The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (MRS. EMERSON).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:
I hereby appoint the Honorable Jo Ann Emerson to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.
J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:
Lord, the psalmist cannot find enough words to express trust in You. Personal experience of Your presence, care, and abiding guidance gives rise to his song: “O Lord, my rock, my fortress, my deliverer. My God, my strength of refuge, my shield, the fullness of my salvation, my stronghold.”

Stir in our hearts today Your holy spirit. Touch the soul of this Nation that we may see Your saving work in our work. Your strength behind our weakness. Your purpose in our efforts at laws of justice. Your peace drawing all of us and the whole world to lasting freedom.
You are ever faithful, O Lord, worthy of all of our trust, now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL
The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House her approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule 1, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. PASCRELL led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

FEBRUARY IS AMERICAN HEART MONTH
(Mr. FOLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FOLEY. Madam Speaker, February is American Heart Month as designated by Congress in 1963. I want to thank my colleagues for taking time to come to the floor today to draw attention to the impact that heart disease and stroke have on our own society.

Perhaps in no other instance is a quick reaction more important to saving lives than during heart attacks. There is an important chain of survival which, when followed, can make an impact on the devastating effect of America’s number one killer, heart disease.

The first step is preparation, understanding; and reacting quickly to cardiac events saves lives. Knowing the warning signs of heart attack and being ready to react can save precious moments. Warning signs include: uncomfortable pressure, fullness or pain in the center of the chest lasting more than a few minutes; pain spreading to the shoulders or neck; nausea, sweating or shortness of breath.

The third step is calling 911. The earlier emergency medical personnel can begin resuscitation, the better chance of survival.

Finally, learn CPR. It is important that we maintain this life-saving skill throughout our lives. One never knows when one will be in the situation to implement the chain of survival. The more of us that know it, the more lives that can be saved.

CHILDPROOF HANDGUN ACT
(Mr. PASCRELL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute to and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PASCRELL. Madam Speaker, children are killing children by gunfire. These deaths are occurring in homes and streets and in schools. The failure of Congress in recent years to shoulder the ultimate responsibilities of safeguarding our communities from gun violence is inexcusable. It is time to get past the rhetoric by the extremes on both sides of the gun control issue and pass sensible anti-gun violence legislation.

Today I will introduce in the House of Representatives the Childproof Handgun Act. This legislation requires that gun manufacturers develop personalized guns within the next 5 years. This technology would guarantee that only authorized users could operate the weapon. This is not something out of science fiction. A prototype exists that can read and recognize the gun owner’s fingerprint allowing only the owner to fire the gun. This will keep weapons out of the hands of children and criminals.

The Federal Government sets standards for child safety cigarette lighters and insists that children riding in cars be buckled in approved car seats, and it demands that manufacturers put childproof caps on aspirin containers. For guns, we have nothing.

RECOGNIZING AMERICAN HEART MONTH
(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)
Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, in 1963 Congress designated February as American Heart Month; and today is Valentine’s Day, a day not only about flowers and candy, but also about love and family. It is fitting that we recognize and congratulate the efforts of the American Heart Association and other organizations to reduce the enormous burdens, physical, emotional and economic, that heart disease places on American families.

The fact is that an American dies from cardiovascular disease every 33 seconds killing 1 million Americans annually, about 41 percent of all deaths in the United States. Every American, young or old, male or female, is at risk.

Madam Speaker, today I encourage every American to learn the signs of cardiac arrest and the causes of cardiac disease. Together we can reduce the burden of cardiac disease and its imposition on our families so that everyone can celebrate not only this day as Valentine’s Day but many more in the future.

CHARACTER EDUCATION

(Mr. CLEMENT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CLEMENT. Madam Speaker, later today I will be introducing with the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) the Character Learning and Student Success Act. Society is growing increasingly concerned about the steady decline of our Nation’s core ethical values, especially in our children.

There exists in Tennessee and across the country successful character education programs that have improved school climate, reduced disruptive behavior and resulted in higher performing schools. However, no organization exists that can track these success stories, help schools identify their particular needs, and implement effective character education programs. That is why we are introducing the CLASS Act. This bill would establish a national center for character education that would provide the most up-to-date information about effective character education programs and aid schools in developing their own programs.

Character education is becoming a national priority in the education reform debate. We want all of our children to be responsible, upstanding members of society. I believe that this legislation will help schools create environments where such values are fostered.

Madam Speaker, I encourage my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring this bill.

RECOGNIZING AMERICAN HEART MONTH

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Madam Speaker, today is Valentine’s Day; and as we take the time to shower our loved ones with chocolates, flowers and poems, I ask that we share the most important gift of all, the gift of life. Heart disease kills nearly 1 million Americans every year; 40 percent of the deaths in our country. Every 33 seconds, an American dies from cardiovascular disease.

This February marks American Heart Month; and unfortunately, too many Americans are unprepared to deal with cardiac emergencies. But by becoming familiar with these serious symptoms, it can mean the difference between life and death. Symptoms such as uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of the chest lasting for more than a few minutes, pain spreading to the shoulders, arms or neck, and chest discomfort with light-headedness, faintness, sweating, nausea, or shortness of breath.

Madam Speaker, this Valentine’s Day I ask my colleagues to raise awareness on these matters of the heart. It is just one way in which we can eliminate our Nation’s number one killer.

MONICA, MARC RICH AND A PHONY FINE

(Mr. TRAFFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFFICANT. This is not only slick, this is sick; and America may someday die because of it.

I yield back a phony $8 million fine for James Riady that will be paid for by Chinese Communists who are taking $100 billion a year in trade surplus out of America’s economy.

COMMEMDING FOREIGN SERVICE WORKERS

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Madam Speaker, I rise today to commend the numerous foreign service officers working in our embassy around the world and at the State Department. I have had the pleasure of working with many of these people here in Washington and at our embassies abroad. The tremendous dedication these men and women bring to their work representing our Nation abroad and our principles is an inspiration and an encouragement to all of us. Their work with NGOs is especially appreciated.

The Ambassadors in Thailand, Egypt, Pakistan, and Indonesia, Ambassadors Hecklinger, Kurtzer, Milam, and Gelbard, have lent their expertise and assistance on various issues and projects. In addition, the work of Jeffrey Rock, Lowry Taylor, David Drahman, Sheldon Rapoport, Susan Peck, John Bradshaw, Susan Sutton, Angie Bryant, and others has been invaluable.

Madam Speaker, I commend these individuals for their important and tireless work on behalf of our Nation and the principles on which our Nation stands.

NATIONAL CENTER FOR SOCIAL WORK RESEARCH ACT

(Mr. RODRIGUEZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Madam Speaker, today the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. Hutchinson) and I will reintroduce the National Center for Social Work Research Act which would establish a center within the National Institutes of Health. As a former social worker, I believe that this center would be a tremendous resource not only to Congress and policymakers but also to service providers throughout this country. Social workers are in a unique position to offer insight and recommendations on how to address both individual and community societal problems. They are on the front line working with individuals on a day-to-day basis on issues ranging from access to health care, mental health, child abuse, and family reconciliation.

The establishment of the National Center for Social Work Research would provide us with interdisciplinary, family-centered, and community-based social work research that is needed and designed to help us not only in terms of policy but also in terms of service for our service providers. I ask my colleagues to support this effort, the National Center for Social Work Research.

INTRODUCTION OF CHARACTER LEARNING AND STUDENT SUCCESS (CLASS) ACT

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SMITH. Madam Speaker, Americans are concerned about the decline in our Nation’s values, particularly among our children. Parents should be the primary developers of character, but educators play an incredibly important role. Many school districts have included character education in their curriculum. Others have not but would like to do so. Schools need an organization that helps to identify their particular needs and implement effective character education programs.

The gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT) and I are introducing the Character Learning and Student Success Act. This legislation provides a grant to develop initiatives and disseminate up-to-date resource information about character education. It also funds a study that will examine whether or not character education programs are effective and sustainable.

Madam Speaker, character education not only cultivates minds, it nurtures hearts. I ask my colleagues to please join us in cosponsoring this bill.

AMERICAN HEART MONTH

(Mrs. CAPPS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. CAPPS. Madam Speaker, on this day devoted to matters of the heart, I remind my colleagues that February is American Heart Month. We recognize the millions of Americans today struggling with heart disease and recommit ourselves to helping them. And we acknowledge the efforts of organizations like the American Heart Association which help all of us prevent and treat heart disease.

The theme for Heart Month is "be prepared for cardiac emergencies." Each year more than 1 million Americans will suffer a heart attack. Too many of us are not even aware of the warning signs. And too many of us do not know what to do to help someone who has suffered a heart attack.

To that end, today I will reintroduce legislation, the Teaching Children to Save Lives Act, to encourage training in the classroom. This legislation will teach our children about the dangers of heart disease, how to prevent it, and how to respond in a cardiac emergency.

So I urge my colleagues to support this and other efforts to address the scourge of heart disease.

FEBRUARY, AMERICAN HEART MONTH

(Mrs. MORELLA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, as has been mentioned, this is Valentine’s Day, and it has been designated as American Heart Month.

As a member of the Congressional Heart and Stroke Coalition, I and others of my colleagues will continue to work to increase funding for the National Institutes of Health. I am pleased that for the past 2 years we have seen annual increases of 15 percent for the NIH. The previous 2 years’ funding increases for the NIH has translated into increases for the Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke of $138 million over fiscal year 1999, for a total of $1.148 billion for the current fiscal year.

Eighty-one percent of Americans support increased Federal funding for heart research, and 78 percent support increased Federal funding for stroke research. Heart disease, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases remain this country’s number one killer, causing nearly 960,000 deaths every year, and are a leading cause of long-term disability.

Cardiovascular disease has claimed more lives than the next seven leading causes of death combined. One in five Americans suffers from cardiovascular diseases. Heart disease is the number one killer in Maryland. Stroke is the number three killer in Maryland, and this reflects the Nation.

Let us resolve on this Valentine’s Day to remember what American Heart Month is about, to preserve the health of our loved ones.

RECOGNIZING FEBRUARY AS AMERICAN HEART MONTH

(Ms. CARSON of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. CARSON. Madam Speaker, today I recognize February as American Heart Month. I salute the American Heart Association and other noteworthy organizations’ ongoing efforts to improve the lives of millions of Americans every year.

Cardiovascular diseases are the number one killer of women and men. These diseases currently claim the lives of more than half a million females every year.

The American Heart Association estimates that one in two women will eventually die of heart disease or stroke. African American women face a four times higher risk of dying before the age of 60.

Although cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death among Americans, recent studies show that women still do not recognize their risk, are unaware that their symptoms are different from men’s, are less likely to seek treatment when faced with these symptoms, and are less likely than men to return for diagnostic testing and treatment by their physicians.

What does this say about our Federal health care system? It has not done enough to address women’s health care needs.

I applaud the work that the Congress has done. It successfully passed legislation dealing with cardiovascular disease and stroke, but I would urge the forthcoming Congress to do more in the fight for heart disease research and funding and to ensure adequate health care access for all of our citizens.

RAIL PASSENGER DISASTER FAMILY ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2001

(R) Mr. REYNOLDS. Madam Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 36 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 554) to establish a program, coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, of assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. Each section of the bill shall be considered as read. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Committee on Rules has the immediate consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. Emerson). The gentleman from New York (Mr. REYNOLDS) is recognized for 1 hour.

(Mr. REYNOLDS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and include extraneous material.)

Mr. REYNOLDS. Madam Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customery 30 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), pending which I yield myself such time as may be consumed. During consideration of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 8 of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 554), to establish a program coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, of assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents.

The rule provides for 1 hour of general debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. The rule also provides that the bill shall be open for amendment at any point and authorizes the chairman of the Committee of the Whole to accord priority in recognition to Members who have preprinted their amendments in some sections. The purpose of this resolution is to accord priority in recognition to Members who have preprinted their amendments in some sections.

Madam Speaker, House Resolution 36 is an open rule providing for the consideration of H.R. 554, a bill to establish a program coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, to offer assistance to the families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents.

The rule provides for 1 hour of general debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and the ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. The rule also provides that the bill shall be open for amendment at any point and authorizes the chairman of the Committee of the Whole to accord priority in recognition to Members who have preprinted their amendments in some sections.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of the bill before us, H.R. 554, the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act. This bill is substantially identical to legislation with the same name passed by voice vote in the 106th Congress on October 4, 1999. Unfortunately, that legislation was never taken up in the House before the adjournment of the 106th Congress.

Congress addressed a similar issue in 1996 by passing the Aviation Disaster Family Assistance Act of 1996. In response to the Value Jet and TWA 800 tragedies, Congress approved this measure to coordinate and distribute information to family members in an efficient and sensitive manner.

The next logical step for Congress to take is to extend the same service to families of victims of railroad disasters. The nature of tragedies is that they occur suddenly and without warning. The manner in which these situations are handled in the immediate hours and days following the incident are critical. Providing information quickly and accurately not only saves lives, but offers assurances to family members and loved ones.

In fact, just last week, on Monday, February 5, 2001, an Amtrak train carrying 98 passengers collided with a lumber freight train in my home State of New York. Fortunately the accident was not fatal, but there were sent to area hospitals several who were affected by the railroad incident due to serious injuries.

This is a poignant example of the need to synchronize search and rescue efforts with the dissemination of information to family members in the face of catastrophe.

This legislation establishes points of contact both within the National Transportation Safety Board and from an independent nonprofit organization in order to coordinate emotional care and support to family members, directly addressing the need to keep families informed.

Madam Speaker, I would like to commend the chairman of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. LONG), and the ranking member, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OVERSTREET), for their hard work on this measure.

I would also like to recognize the efforts of my colleague and western New York neighbor, the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN), the newly appointed chairman of the Subcommittee on Railroads.

Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this rule and the underlying legislation.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the customary 30 minutes.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of this open rule. The underlying bill is noncontroversial and was passed under suspension of the rules last Congress by a voice vote.

The measure is intended to deal with the tragedy of rail accidents involving substantial on-board casualties. The key features of H.R. 554 include procedures to handle information, promptly and sensitively, by accident victims and their families. This information is coordinated among the National Transportation Safety Board, the rail passenger carrier, and a designated nonprofit charitable organization in charge of providing necessary counseling services, ensuring a private venue for families to grieve, and assisting families in a variety of matters, including a possible memorial service.

The legislation also protects the victims and their families against unsolicited and intrusive contacts by attorneys in the immediate post-accident environment, when the families may be in shock and not emotionally capable of making sound decisions about possible legal redress. Moreover, the bill also ensures orderly preparedness by rail carriers for accidents by requiring comprehensive plans to be in place governing each carrier’s procedures for handling post-accident information and family assistance.

Madam Speaker, again, I know of no controversy surrounding this measure. Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, just in closing, today is a special day for my good friend, the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN), as he now chairs the Subcommittee on Railroads. I know how proud his mother and father are, as his father Jack, Sr., was a career railroad worker in the Buffalo area. So today I look forward to seeing the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN) begin this bill on as his first as a subcommittee chairman.

Mr. REYNOLDS. Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. REYNOLDS). Pursuant to House Resolution 36 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 554.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 554) to establish a program, coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, of assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents, with Mrs. EMERSON in the chair. The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN) and the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN).

Mr. QUINN. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, before I rise in support of our bill this morning, I would like to welcome the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT) as my partner on the new Subcommittee on Railroads. As I think almost everyone in the House realizes this year, the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure added a separate Subcommittee on Railroads.

The gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT) and I have been friends for quite some time on the full committee; and I am delighted to see him this next term, the next couple of years, to bring legislation to the floor.

While we are not able to do commercial breaks here, I would like to offer to Mr. CLEMENT a copy of Stephen Ambrose’s book entitled “Nothing Like It in the World,” which talks about the men and the women who built the Transcontinental Railroad between 1863 and 1869, as a reference tool.

Having been an English teacher, I say to the gentleman, there will not be any quiz, but I have my own copy of this. As we work our way through those difficult, difficult subcommittee hearings of ours, we will find some time to remember why we do the work we do when we see how the people did it for us some century-and-a-half ago.

Mr. CLEMENT. Madam Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. QUINN. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. CLEMENT. Madam Chairman, I thank the gentleman very much for his gift.

Mr. QUINN. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act, a commonsense bipartisan bill to address a gap in our current transportation laws. The bill is substantially identical to H.R. 2681 approved by the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure in the full House, I might add, in our last 106th Congress, but never acted upon by the other body in the Senate. Released the bill is the first piece of legislation from our committee under our new chairman, the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. LONG). As chairman of the newly formed Subcommittee on Railroads, I strongly urge the bill to give our colleagues to do the same.

Members may recall that several years ago after some terrible, terrible incidents, most notably the 1996 ValuJet and TWA crashes, the families of crash victims were poorly treated by the carriers, the media, and by some lawyers.

The Congress responded by enacting an aviation law that placed the National Transportation Safety Board and suitable private charitable organizations in charge of coordinating efforts to protect the privacy of crash victims’ families, and to assure that they receive the most current information on the carrier and the incident.

The law has been quite successful in improving the situation for crash victims’ families. Since its enactment, it has been updated and expanded in 1997, and again in 1999.

Today, H.R. 554, this bill that the gentleman from Tennessee and I bring to the floor, is virtually a clone of that aviation law, but it is applied to rail passenger service, both intercity and high-speed rail.

Although Amtrak is currently the principal provider of intercity rail passenger service, a number of States are considering forming compacts to support their own bid for rail passenger services.

We understand that, Madam Chairman, necessarily this bill cannot track the aviation statute exactly. We understand that. For example, some passenger trains with unreserved open boarding situations will not have a definite passenger manifest sheet comparable to an airline passenger list.

Generally, however, this bill follows the aviation model.

The National Transportation Safety Board is given the authority to invoke the procedures of the bill, including designating the NTSB Director of Family Support Services for the accident as a point of contact for all the families, and to act as liaison between the families and the passenger carrier.

The NTSB has also authorized a designated independent charitable organization, for example, the American Red Cross, for coordinating emotional care and support activities for the families.

NTSB is also made primarily responsible at the Federal level for facilitating recovery and identification of victims, and providing relevant information to the same families.

The rail carrier itself in this bill is required to cooperate with the designated organization to provide mental health and counseling services to the families, provide for a private grieving environment, to maintain contact with the families, and also to arrange any appropriate memorial service.

The NTSB is also required to give prior briefings to the families before public disclosure of any information about the accident. Unsolicited attorney contacts with the families or victims themselves, other than the railroad employees, are prohibited for 45 days following the accident.

To ensure that the rail and passenger carriers are prepared to implement the law in the event of an accident, the bill requires each carrier to prepare a response plan and to submit that plan to the Department of Transportation and the NTSB within 6 months of enactment detailing how the carrier will carry out the specific family assistance obligations described in the legislation.

Let me also note for the RECORD, Madam Chairman, that when the substantially identical bill was reviewed by the Congressional Budget Office, CBO stated in its estimate in August of 1999 that the bill would have no significant impact on the Federal budget.

As to intergovernmental mandates, CBO found that the bill would not require States to change laws or take action. There would be no significant State costs, and these or any costs involved would not meet the threshold minimum of the Unfunded Mandates Act reform.

The details of these evaluations, of course, are printed in the report of the predecessor bill on House Report 106-313. I urge prompt approval and careful consideration of a very bipartisan commonsense approach.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CLEMENT. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Chairman, I want to congratulate my good friend, my colleague from the great State of New York (Mr. QUINN), on becoming chairman of the Subcommittee on Railroads.

I want to also thank him for this wonderful book about building the transcontinental railroad. He knows that I am a big railroad buff, and I might say that my father-in-law, Noble Carson, was an old railroad employee from the old L&N Railroad in Nashville, Tennessee, where he retired. He is now deceased.

I am a former college president and I am a real historian anyway of the history of this country, and how we have been able to build that transcontinental railroad in just a few years. In this book, it describes how one can build a railroad in just a few years, so we ought to be able to do great things working together on a bipartisan basis on behalf of the Committee on Railroads and our colleagues in this great industry.

Madam Chairman, I rise to express my support for the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act of 2001. This legislation gives relatives of those injured or killed in railroad accidents the same rights as the families of airline disaster victims.

These families deserve the same sensitivity we afford to others following air disasters. What could be worse than having someone you love involved in a railroad disaster, only to find that there is no place to call for information, no one to explain whether one’s husband, wife, son, or daughter was on that train, whether they were injured or deceased, but instead having to wait for hours to get any word, and at the same time, being hounded by lawyers for a lawsuit.

This legislation addresses all of those issues. It calls for the rail passenger carrier to have a plan for providing and publicizing a toll-free number for families to call. The carrier must outline a process for notifying the families before notifying the public. This notification should be carried out in person, when possible.

This legislation ensures that families will be consulted about all remains and personal effects, to the best of the rail passenger carrier’s ability. It says these possessions will be returned to the family unless needed for the crash investigation, and that unclaimed possessions will be held for 18 months.

Madam Chairman, this legislation gives the families of all passengers the right to be consulted about the construction by the rail passenger carrier of a monument for the disaster victims. It designates a point of contact person to act as a liaison for families. It provides for mental health and counseling services for family members, and it prohibits unsolicited communications concerning laws or legislation.

These assurances extend to the families of the employees, as well as the passengers, as all deserve, compassionate treatment. Every time we put a loved one on a train in this country, we should feel confident that he or she is safe. Should a tragic accident occur, however, we have a right to know we will be informed, treated fairly, and helped through the process.

This legislation does just that. The Railroad Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act offers the same treatment to families affected by rail disasters as we currently ensure for those affected by airline disasters. Legislating consistent treatment for both those groups is the fair thing and the right thing to do.

As an advocate of increased passenger rail alternatives for our traveling population, I feel very strongly that this legislation is exactly the type of framework we need in place to deal with unforeseen tragedies. While we work harder and invest more funds to prevent such rail incidents, we still must be prepared at all times to react appropriately and in a timely manner.

I am very pleased that this Congress is moving so quickly to pass H.R. 554. I urge our Senate colleagues to move quickly on passage so we can give this bill to President Bush as soon as possible.

Madam Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. QUINN. Madam Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to thank the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT). I also would like to take this opportunity to thank the staff on our side and his side for preparing the legislation this morning.
While we will receive a lot of advice during the course of his term, in the next few years I am expecting advice from the gentleman and his staff, from my staff and others, but I am also expecting some advice from one Jack Quinn, Senior, back home in Buffalo, New York, who puts in over 30 years with the South Buffalo Railroad, who will also offer me some advice, and offered me a little this morning already. He called to say that I need a haircut. As we go through this, I look forward to working with the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Madam Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 554, the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act of 2001. Although passenger trains are a very safe way for people to travel, even railroads sometimes have accidents that cause serious injuries and loss of life. When rail passenger accidents do happen, they can occur in relatively remote locations and/or in the middle of the night. Modem communications allow for the transmission of news of the event to travel around the nation only minutes after it happens. Families with relatives on board can only hope and pray that their loved ones were not among those killed or injured. In some cases, it is not even certain who their loved one was on the train that had the accident. The tragic accident at Bourbonnais, Ill., in March 1999 that took the lives of 11 Amtrak passengers and injured 49 others was the most recent such tragedy.

At these times, it is imperative that the needs of the families of the accident victims be treated with as much compassion as possible and that their need for information about their loved ones be promptly and accurately addressed.

The purpose of this legislation is to help create a process that, at a minimum, does not make an already highly emotional situation even more traumatic for family members. It requires that all passenger railroads engaged in interstate transportation submit a plan to the Secretary of Transportation and the Chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) to address the needs of families of passengers involved in any railroad accident where there is major loss of life. The plan must address a number of key areas, including the publication of a reliable toll-free number to handle calls from family members, procedures for developing passenger lists, and a process for notifying family members. In addition, the plan must specify the ongoing obligations (such as the disposition of the traveler's personal effects) that the carrier has with respect to the information and services to be provided to the family members throughout the duration of the disaster.

In recognition of the need for a professional and reliable focal point to be responsible for interacting with family members, H.R. 554 provides that the Chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board will identify a Board employee to serve as the Federal Government's point of contact and serve as a liaison between the railroads and the family members. The bill further instructs the NTSB Chairman to establish an independent non-profit organization that has experience with disaster relief efforts, such as the Red Cross or the Salvation Army, to be responsible for coordinating the emotional care and support of the families of passengers involved in the accident. At such trying times, it is extremely important that families be handled by individuals and organizations experienced in providing compassionate assistance.

I would like to note, however, that this legislation is not in response to any inaction or any inappropriate actions by Amtrak. Indeed, Amtrak has already adopted many of the elements called for in this bill, and Amtrak supports this bill that largely codifies its current practices. However, under the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act of 1997, Amtrak is no longer the only railroad that can conduct interstate rail passenger operations. Since that law was enacted, a number of states have begun efforts to launch new conventional or high-speed rail passenger services. Therefore, we need to be prepared for a future of multiple rail passenger service providers.

One element of this bill I find particularly important is the prohibition against unsolicited communications by attorneys until 45 days following an accident. In times of tragedy, family members are consumed with the unscrupulous who would prey upon them. Only last week, an Amtrak passenger train rear-ended a CSX freight train just outside of Syracuse, NY. More than 60 people were injured, many of whom were physically challenged and/ or elderly. After the emergency responders, there were two men at the scene soliciting for legal work related to the accident. The men were handing out business cards and other material. This kind of shameless behavior is unethical; our bill would make it also illegal.

Although I am pleased that in its Statement of Administration Policy the Bush Administration supports passage of this important bill, I am concerned that the Administration indicates that it believes there may be First Amendment problems with this section of the bill (Section 2(g)(2)). To the best of my knowledge, the Administration has not contacted the Committee to outline the reasons for its concerns with the prohibition on unsolicited contact by attorneys after a rail accident. I hope that the Administration is aware of the 1995 Supreme Court decision in Florida Bar v. Went For It, Inc., in which the Court ruled that the First Amendment did not prohibit the Florida Bar from prohibiting lawyers from sending targeted direct mail solicitations to victims and relatives for 30 days after an accident. I see no difference between this decision and the prohibition in our bill.

In addition, I hope the Administration is aware that, under current law, this same type of prohibition applies to unsolicited communications to families of the victims of airline crashes. In the Aviation Disaster Family Assistance Act of 1996, we recognized the importance of the need to provide families of air-craft accident victims with reliable information and compassionate treatment. I have spoken with aviation accident families and they have told me that the 1996 legislation has worked well in assisting families in the most difficult of times. During our consideration of that Act, the Association of Trial Lawyers of America wrote to the Committee regarding that Act's aviation disaster assistance provisions and stated, in relevant part:

 * * * This legislation will lend much-needed support to the families of victims of airline disasters.

In particular, the Association strongly supports sec. 5. This provision states the sense of Congress that state bar associations should adopt rules prohibiting unsolicited contact concerning a lawsuit involving vic-tims or aggrieved families within 30 days of an accident. ATLA's longstanding Code of Conduct goes even further, and entirely prohibits unsolicited communications from the time of the accident occurred. We believe that the 30 day time period you provide in the bill is a reasonable minimum period during which victims and their families should not be bothered against their will with the sometimes painful question of compensation.

However, we urge the committee to go further by strengthening this bill to also prohibiting unsolicited contact by anyone concerning potential claims they or their loved ones may have. Until a family decides to consider its options with regard to compensation, no party should take advantage of them during this delicate emotional time.— (Association of Trial Lawyers of America, September 19, 1996)

I applaud the Association of Trial Lawyers and the many State Bar Associations that have supported our efforts to stop this unethical conduct. I look forward to working with the Administration to address any new concerns that it has.

We have provided some solace to the families of victims of aviation disasters. We should do no less for those who choose to ride our nation's passenger trains.

Mr. RAHALL. Madam Chairman, I am pleased to support the Rail Passenger Family Assistance Act. This bill should be enacted into law because it is the honorable thing to do. In the 106th Congress, I cosponsored a similar bill, H.R. 2681, which the House passed on October 4, 1999, by voice vote, but the Senate did not act and it did not go forward to a different outcome this year.

We all hope and pray that our constituents will get to their destinations safely while traveling. But the harsh reality is that sometimes tragedy does occur. Sometimes a plane or train crashes, causing a major loss of life.

In times like these, when families face the shock and pain of losing a loved one, the least we can do is provide every possible consideration to them, including grief counseling and general emotional support, ensuring their privacy, and helping them to arrange a fitting memorial service.

After the Valujet and TWA 800 airplane tragedies in 1996, this type of family assistance was established for the families of loved ones lost in airplane crashes, but such services do not exist for families of those lost in interstate and intercity rail passenger service.

While Amtrak has established an informal family-assistance program, there is no federal law requiring these services for families of victims of railroad disasters. Because the 1997 Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act mandated competition in intercity rail passenger service, Amtrak will no longer be the sole rail carrier. New rail carriers will be established to compete with Amtrak. Such competition demonstrates the need for the Federal Government to enact a family-assistance program.

Under the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act that we are considering today, a program will be established modeled after the program that was established for families of victims of airline disasters. The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) will designate one of its employees to be the contact person within the Federal Government with victims’ families. That person’s name and telephone number will be published, and the person will be the liaison between the victims’ families and the rail carrier.

The NTSB will then designate an independent disaster-assistance organization, such as the Red Cross, to focus on the emotional needs of the families: providing grief counseling and a private place in which to grieve, helping them to arrange memorial services and funeral arrangements, and preventing contact with their agents, for 45 days after the tragedy, in order to help families to begin the healing process before taking any possible legal action.

It is my hope that our constituents across the Nation will get to their destinations safely when traveling by interstate or intercity rail, whether it be the Amtrak Cardinal Line which passes through West Virginia between Huntington and White Sulphur Springs, or any other carrier anywhere in the Nation. However, when a rail tragedy does happen, we must provide every possible consideration to victim’s families that may be thrown through the tragedy. This bill does that.

Finally, the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act will have no significant impact on the Federal budget, based on the Congressional Budget Office estimate for H.R. 2681, the bill currently before this Committee. Therefore, I encourage the Senate to consider the bill as soon as possible, and the President sign it into law, for the sake of victims’ families.

Mr. STEVENS. Madam Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. QUINN. Madam Chairman, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

The bill shall be considered by sections as an original bill for the purpose of amendment, and pursuant to the rule, each section is considered read.

Directors of the Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act of 2001. For amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment that he or she has printed in the designated place in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

The Clerk will designate section 1. The text of section 1 is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Rail Passenger Disaster Family Assistance Act of 2001.”

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to section 1?

If not, the Chair will designate section 2. The text of section 2 is as follows:

SEC. 2. ASSISTANCE BY NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION SAFETY BOARD TO FAMILIES OF PASSENGERS INVOLVED IN RAIL PASSENGER ACCIDENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter III of chapter 11 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘1132. Assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents

‘‘(a) IN GENERAL.—As soon as practicable after being notified of a rail passenger accident within the United States involving a rail passenger carrier and resulting in a major loss of life, the Chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board shall—

‘‘(1) designate the name and telephone number of a director of family support services who shall be an employee of the Board and shall be responsible for acting as a principal and contact point for the Federal Government for the families of passengers involved in the accident and a liaison between the rail passenger carrier and the families; and

‘‘(2) designate an independent nonprofit organization, with experience in disasters and posttraumatic stress with families, which shall have primary responsibility for coordinating the emotional care and support of the families of passengers involved in the accident.

‘‘(b) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE BOARD.—The Board shall have primary Federal responsibility for—

‘‘(1) facilitating the recovery and identification of fatally injured passengers involved in an accident described in subsection (a); and

‘‘(2) communicating with the families of passengers involved in the accident as to the roles of—

‘‘(A) the organization designated for an accident under subsection (a)(2);

‘‘(B) Government agencies; and

‘‘(C) the rail passenger carrier involved, with respect to the accident and the post-accident activities.

‘‘(c) RESPONSIBILITIES OF DESIGNATED ORGANIZATION.—The organization designated for an accident under subsection (a)(2) shall have the following responsibilities with respect to the families of passengers involved in the accident:

‘‘(1) To provide mental health and counseling services, in coordination with the disaster response team of the rail passenger carrier involved;

‘‘(2) To take such actions as may be necessary to provide an environment in which the families may grieve in private.

‘‘(3) To meet with the families who have traveled to the location of the accident, to contact the families unable to travel to such location, and to contact all affected families periodically thereafter until such time as the NTSB determines that contact with the families is no longer needed.

‘‘(4) To arrange a suitable memorial service, in consultation with the families.

‘‘(d) PASSENGER LISTS.

‘‘(1) REQUESTS FOR PASSENGER LISTS.—

‘‘(A) REQUESTS BY DIRECTOR OF FAMILY SUPPORT SERVICES.—It shall be the responsibility of the family support services designated for an accident under subsection (a)(1) to request, as soon as practicable, from the rail passenger carrier involved in the accident a list of names of passengers aboard a train involved in an accident.

‘‘(B) REQUESTS BY DESIGNATED ORGANIZATION.—The organization designated for an accident under subsection (a)(2) may request, from the rail passenger carrier involved in the accident a list described in subparagraph (A).

‘‘(2) USE OF INFORMATION.—The director of family support services and the organization may not release to any person information on a list obtained under paragraph (1) but may provide information on the list about a passenger to the family of the passenger to the extent that the director of family support services and the organization considers appropriate.

‘‘(e) CONTINUING RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE BOARD.—In the course of its investigation of an accident described in subsection (a), the Board shall, to the maximum extent practicable, ensure that the families of passengers involved in the accident—

‘‘(1) are briefed, prior to a public briefing, about the accident and any other findings from the investigation; and

‘‘(2) are individually informed of and allowed to attend any hearings and meetings of the Board about the accident.

‘‘(f) USE OF RAIL PASSENGER CARRIER RESOURCES.—To the extent practicable, the organization designated for an accident under subsection (a)(2) shall coordinate its activities with the rail passenger carrier involved in the accident to facilitate the reasonable use of the resources of the carrier.

‘‘(g) PROHIBITED ACTIONS.—

‘‘(1) ACTIONS TO IMPED THE BOARD.—No person (including a State or political subdivision) may impede the members of the Board (including the director of family support services designated for an accident under subsection (a)(1)), or an organization designated for an accident under subsection (a)(2), to carry out its responsibilities under this section or the ability of the families of passengers involved in the accident to have contact with one another.

‘‘(2) UNSOLICITED COMMUNICATIONS.—No unsolicited communication concerning a potential action for personal injury or wrongful death which may be made by an attorney (including any associate, agent, employee, or other representative of an attorney) or any potential party to the litigation to an individual (other than an employee of the rail passenger carrier) injured in the accident, or to a relative of an individual involved in the accident, before the 45th day following the date of the accident.

‘‘(3) PROHIBITION ON ACTIONS TO PREVENT MENTAL HEALTH AND COUNSELING SERVICES.—No State or political subdivision may prevent employees, agents, or volunteers of an organization designated for an accident under subsection (a)(2) from providing mental health and counseling services in coordination with subsection (a)(1) in the 30-day period beginning on the date of the accident. The director of family support services designated for an accident under subsection (a)(1) may extend such period for not to exceed an additional 30 days if the director determines that the extension is necessary to meet the needs of the families and if State and local authorities are notified of the determination.

‘‘(4) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the following definitions apply:

‘‘(1) RAIL PASSENGER ACCIDENT.—The term ‘rail passenger accident’ means any rail passenger disaster occurring in the provision of—

‘‘(A) intercity intercity rail passenger transportation (as such term is defined in section 24102); or

‘‘(B) intrastate or intrastate high-speed rail (as such term is defined in section 26105) transportation, regardless of its cause or suspected cause.

‘‘(A) intercity intercity rail passenger transportation (as such term is defined in section 24102); or

‘‘(B) intrastate or intrastate high-speed rail (as such term is defined in section 26105) transportation, except that such term shall not include a tourist, historic, scenic, or excursion rail carrier.

(5) PASSENGER.—The term ‘passenger’ includes

(A) an employee of a rail passenger carrier aboard a train;

(B) any other person aboard the train without the person paid for the transportation, occupied a seat, or held a reservation for the rail transportation; and

(C) any other person injured or killed in the accident.

(ii) LIMITATION ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section may be construed to limit the actions that a rail passenger carrier may take, or the obligations that a rail passenger carrier may have, in providing assistance to the families of passengers involved in a rail passenger accident.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for such chapter is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 1137 the following:

‘‘1138. Assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents.’’

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to section 2?

If not, the Clerk will designate section 3.

The text of section 3 is as follows:

SEC. 3. RAIL PASSENGER CARRIER PLANS TO ADDRESS NEEDS OF FAMILIES OF PASSENGERS INVOLVED IN RAIL PASSENGER ACCIDENTS.

(a) In general.—Part C of subtitle V of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new chapter:

‘‘CHAPTER 251—FAMILY ASSISTANCE

‘‘Sec. 25101. Plans to address needs of families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents.

‘‘§ 25101. Plans to address needs of families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents

‘‘(a) SUBMISSION OF PLANS.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this section, each rail passenger carrier shall submit to the Secretary of Transportation and the Chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board a plan for addressing the needs of all passengers involved in any rail passenger accident involving a train of the rail passenger carrier and resulting in a major loss of life.

‘‘(b) CONTENTS OF PLANS.—A plan to be submitted by a rail passenger carrier under subsection (a) shall include, at a minimum, the following:

(1) A plan for publicizing a reliable, toll-free telephone number, and for providing staff, to handle calls from the families of the passengers.

(2) A process for notifying the families of the passengers, before providing any public notice of the names of the passengers, either by utilizing the services of the organization designated for the accident under section 1138(a)(2) of this title, or by services of other suitably trained individuals.

(3) An assurance that the notice described in paragraph (2) will be provided to the families of a passenger as soon as the rail passenger carrier has verified that the passenger was aboard the train (whether or not the names of the passengers have been verified) and, to the extent practicable, in person.

(4) An assurance that the rail passenger carrier will take steps to the director of any support services designated for the accident under section 1138(a)(1) of this title, and to the organization designated for the accident under section 1138(a)(2) of this title, immediately upon request, a list (which is based on the best available information at the time) of the names of the passengers aboard the train (whether or not such names have been verified), and will periodically update the list. The plan shall include procedures to consider the needs of preserved train and passengers not holding reservations on other trains, for the rail passenger carrier to use reasonable efforts to ascertain the names of passengers aboard a train involved in an accident.

(5) An assurance that the family of each passenger will be consulted about the disposition of personal and personal effects on an ongoing basis to ensure that families of passengers involved in a rail passenger accident.

(6) An assurance that if requested by the family of a passenger, the rail passenger carrier will provide reasonable compensation to any organization designated under section 1138(a)(2) of this title or the services of other organizations for services provided by the rail passenger carrier for at least 18 months.

(7) An assurance that the families of all passengers present at the scene of a passenger within the control of the rail passenger carrier (regardless of its condition) will be returned to the family unless the possession is needed for the accident investigation or any criminal investigation.

(8) An assurance that any unclaimed possession of a passenger within the control of the rail passenger carrier, will be returned to the family unless the possession is needed for the accident investigation or any criminal investigation.

(9) An assurance that the treatment of the families of nonrevenue passengers will be the same as the treatment of the families of revenue passengers.

(10) An assurance that the rail passenger carrier will work with any organization designated under section 1138(a)(2) of this title or the services of other organizations for services provided by the rail passenger carrier.

(11) An assurance that the rail passenger carrier will provide reasonable compensation to any organization designated under section 1138(a)(2) of this title for services provided by the organization.

(12) An assurance that the rail passenger carrier will assist the family of a passenger in traveling to the location of the accident and provide for the physical care of the family while the family is staying at such location.

(13) An assurance that the rail passenger carrier will commit sufficient resources to carry out the plan.

(14) An assurance that the rail passenger carrier will provide adequate training to the employees and agents of the carrier to meet the needs of survivors and family members following an accident.

(15) An assurance that, upon request of the family of a passenger, the rail passenger carrier will inform the family of whether the passenger’s name appeared on any preliminary passenger manifest for the train involved in the accident.

(c) LIMITATION ON LIABILITY.—A rail passenger carrier shall not be liable for damages in any action brought in a Federal or State court arising out of the performance of the rail passenger carrier in preparing or providing a passenger list, or in providing information concerning a train reservation, pursuant to a plan submitted by the rail passenger carrier under subsection (b), unless such liability was caused by conduct of the rail passenger carrier which was grossly negligent or which constituted intentional misconduct.

(d) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) the terms ‘rail passenger accident’ and ‘rail passenger carrier’ have the meanings such terms have in section 1138 of this title; and

(2) the term ‘passenger’ means a person aboard a rail passenger carrier’s train that is involved in a rail passenger accident.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of chapters for subtitle V of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding after the item relating to chapter 249 the following new item:

‘‘251. FAMILY ASSISTANCE ........ 25101’’.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to the bill?

If not, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LANTORETT) having had the Chair, Mrs. EMERSON, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, reported that the Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 559) to establish a program, coordinated by the National Transportation Safety Board, of assistance to families of passengers involved in rail passenger accidents, pursuant to House Resolution 36, she reported the bill back to the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. QUINN. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY UNITED STATES COURTHOUSE

Mr. L’TOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the order of the House of Tuesday, February 13, 2001, I call up the bill (H.R. 559) to designate the United States courthouse located at 1 Courthouse Way in Boston, Massachusetts, as the ‘‘John Joseph Moakley United States Courthouse,’’ and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of H.R. 559 is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. DESIGNATION.

The United States courthouse located at 1 Courthouse Way in Boston, Massachusetts, shall be known and designated as the "John Joseph Moakley United States Courthouse".

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the United States courthouse referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the "John Joseph Moakley United States Courthouse".

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. Emerson). Pursuant to the order of the House of Tuesday, February 13, 2001, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LaTOURETTE) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LaTOURETTE).

Mr. LaTOURETTE. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. LaTOURETTE. Madam Speaker, as I begin my remarks on H.R. 559, I want to thank and commend our colleague, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) for one, not only bringing this matter before the attention of the House, but also for pushing for its expedited consideration.

I was in my district in Ohio as all Members were earlier this week. They all were not in Ohio, they were all in their districts. And the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) was kind enough to call and indicate this was a bill that was not only deserving of the body's attention, but it was deserving of expedited attention.

Madam Speaker, I also want to commend the leadership of the House for giving it every consideration.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 559 designates the United States courthouse located at 1 Boston Way in Boston, Massachusetts as the John Joseph Moakley United States Courthouse. It is only fitting that the courthouse in Boston bear his name, in our estimation, compassionate and amiable colleague in the House.

Mr. Moakley has been a staple in this body since his election to the House in 1972. Congressman Moakley was born, raised and lived most of his adult life in South Boston, something he is very proud of. He began his long distinguished career in public service at the age of 15 when he enlisted in the United States Navy and served in the South Pacific during the Second World War.

Upon returning from his service in World War II, he attended the University of Miami, and later received his law degree from Suffolk University Law School in Boston. At the age of 25, Congressman Moakley was elected to the Massachusetts State Legislature, serving in both the State House of Representatives and the State Senate for 18 years before being elected to the Boston City Council.

In 1972, just 3 years before Congressman Moakley was elected to the United States House of Representatives.

After his first term in the House, Congressman Moakley was appointed to the Committee on Rules. He later became chair of the Committee on Rules in 1989. He is now serving as the Committee on Rules ranking member. With his affable personality, he was one of the willing diplomats that came before his committee, even during some of the more than difficult political debates that we, from time to time, have in this Chamber.

In addition to his work on the Committee on Rules and being an ardent supporter for South Boston's transportation infrastructure, Congressman Moakley continues to be dedicated to ending human rights violations around the world, particularly in Central America. This naming is a fitting tribute to our colleague.

Madam Speaker, I support the bill and encourage my colleagues to join in support.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGovern. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I want to thank my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LaTOURETTE), and the chairman of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, as I mentioned, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hastert), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Armey), the majority leader; the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. Young), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Costello). I really appreciate everybody here working together to move this legislation to the floor expeditiously, and it is for our dear friend, Joe Moakley.

Madam Speaker, this is a very special moment for me. Joe Moakley has been my teacher and he has been my mentor. He has, as I have said many times over the last couple of days, been like a second father to me, and he is my best friend.

As many of my colleagues know, I worked in Joe Moakley's congressional office for over 13 years. I have seen him solve problems, both large and small. I watched as he steered countless millions of dollars to his district and to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for sensible economic development.

There is not a Federal project in Massachusetts from the Berkshires to Cape Cod that does not have Joe Moakley's fingerprints all over it.

I watched him help colleges and universities build new medical research facilities, classrooms and laboratories. I watched him champion the cause of health care, because as he said on Monday, he knows probably better than most of us the miracles of medical science.

Madam Speaker, I have seen him immerse himself in constitutes casework. If someone stops him at a local diner or in the street with a problem, Joe Moakley is immediately on someone, usually using some very colorful language to get his point across in order to solve that problem. And I have even seen Joe stare down death squads in El Salvador.

Joe Moakley's commitment to human rights in that war-torn country played a mighty role in ending the Salvadoran war, which caused over 80,000 innocent civilians' lives.

I returned to El Salvador with Joe in November of 1999 to mark the 10th anniversary of the murder of the 6 Jesuit priests, the case in which Joe successfully exposed the truth.

Everywhere we went in El Salvador, even in the most remote villages, people remembered what he did. They would come up and give him a big hug and say thank you and tell him how much he impacted their lives.

In return, Joe would sing his favorite Irish tunes, if you are Irish, Come Into the House, or Southey, My Hometown, or his personal favorite, Redhead, and I am not sure that they knew what the heck he was singing, but they all fell in love with them. They all appreciated what he did and they will remember him forever.

In 1996, I was elected to the United States Congress, and I would not have won that race if it were not for Joe Moakley. There is no way that I can adequately say thank you to him for helping me realize my dream.

Today we are naming the U.S. courthouse in Boston, a building that, quite frankly, would not be there if it were not for Joe Moakley. We are naming it the John Joseph Moakley Federal Courthouse.

It is an appropriate tribute for two reasons. First, that new courthouse is already serving as a catalyst for economic development in that area of South Boston with new construction springing up all around it. And so much of Joe's career has been about promoting economic development and creating jobs.

He joked the other day that his favorite bird is the crane, and if you visit South Boston, you will see cranes all over the place.

The second reason why I think this is appropriate is that that courthouse is a symbol for justice, and Joe Moakley's entire life has been dedicated to fighting for justice, especially for those who do not have a powerful ally or who are not well committed; whether it is fighting to help Mrs. O'Leary find her Social Security check, or whether it is fighting on behalf of refugees from El Salvador who were too afraid to go back to their homeland during that war, or whether it is fighting for health care or for Medicare or for hospitals or for anybody who has any problem, Joe MOAKLEY is always out there, front and center, fighting for justice.

He was one time asked what his favorite compliment was, and he replied being called a regular guy. Well, JOE MOAKLEY is the most regular guy I have ever known, and the one I love best. He is our country.

The thing that I always love about him is that he is not an easy decision, not an easy road to hoe. You have to make decisions about whether you are going to take care of people who have no way to help themselves, or you are going to take care of people who are taking advantage of government. You are caring about the people that really make this country what it is.

I, for one, want to thank you for doing that. I also want to let you know, Joe, whether you know it or not, you have taught me here in the House on both sides of the aisle, not only to be Members of Congress, but how to act as respectful gentlemen and from all of us, we appreciate that.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Madam Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO).

Mr. CAPUANO. Madam Speaker, I guess, to a certain extent, I do not want to talk about what JOE MOAKLEY has done, because, to me, that is not the measure of the reason I like JOE, and I think the reason JOE is so well loved in his own district. It is what he is.

I grew up in Massachusetts, and for all of my life, like JOE, I live in my own hometown. I live in my own neighborhood. And I want to tell my colleagues, all of my life, I have heard about JOE MOAKLEY, as I heard about Tip O’Neill, as I heard about Ted Kennedy, as I heard about James Michael Curly, as I heard about John F. Kennedy. In there were many political giants. But, for me, most of them came before me. And I knew some of them in passing. I knew Mr. O’Neill a little bit. My father knew him better.

This is the first time in my life I have had an opportunity to get up close to someone who is a living icon in my world, and it is the first time in my life that I know that all the things I heard about him were not just the typical media fluff of around here worry about. We are all worried about our image. We are all worried about what people say about us. And JOE MOAKLEY could not care less because he is what he is, and what he is is a regular guy.

I say that representing a district that almost is a mirror image of Joe’s district. We do represent all of those people. I will tell you that JOE MOAKLEY would have been the exact same person if he did not get into politics, if he had gone the way of so many of his friends and gone to work as a Teamster, or gone to work as a longshoreman or gone to work as a Teamster, or to a certain extent, I do not know what it means to be a Congressman than JOE MOAKLEY. If everybody in this House were like JOE MOAKLEY, we would get along much better; we would get a lot more done.

We would realize that partisanship is important, but yet it stops. We should be able to reach across the aisle and shake hands and have a drink and share a joke and make a cutting remark or humorous remark about one of our colleagues in a way that really shows the camaraderie that we should have.

From the time I came here, JOE MOAKLEY reached out to me. He was, as the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN) have said, a good guy in the very best sense of the word.

Yet, he was also an outstanding Congressman, a man who fought and fought so hard for his district, a man who obviously believes the principles for the Democratic party, fights hard for those principles; but at the end of the day, is willing to sit down and talk with anyone, no matter what their party affiliation happens to be.

He reaches out for people who need help. He is a person who I know, speaking for Members on my side of the aisle, they needed a favor, when they needed help, when they needed a break, the guy they went to on the other side was JOE MOAKLEY.

He never let party divisions stand between him and them.

As the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO) said, JOE MOAKLEY represents a working class district. He represents real people. There is nothing phony. There is nothing built-up by the media. This is the person one sees JOE MOAKLEY, one is seeing what a real person is.

Today, to be honoring him in this way, it is important. It means a lot. But on the other hand, if there was never any courthouse named after JOE MOAKLEY, if there was never any plaque or citation put out for JOE MOAKLEY, he would always be remembered by those who knew him, those who served with him in Congress.
And as the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. CAPUANO) has said, probably most importantly of all, the average guy on the street corner in his district, the average guy in the bar, the average guy driving the bus, the average guy going to work every day, he realizes that JOE MOAKLEY, in every sense of the word, represented those people here in Congress, the people who otherwise would not have a strong voice, the people who are so busy working day to day that they cannot afford to be getting involved in exotic causes. They have to know that they have somebody who is on the firing lines for them day in and day out.

The fact that so many projects went to Joe’s district as opposed to mine or the gentleman from New York (Mr. QUINN), we take that in stride, realizing that was Joe fighting for his district, and, quite frankly, doing a better job than we were doing.

So I am proud to join with all of my colleagues today in honoring JOE MOAKLEY and speaking on behalf of this resolution and saying it has been a true source of pride and honor for me to be with Joe MOAKLEY. I wish him the best of health. I wish him the very best to himself that he has given to so many of us for so many years.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY), my classmate and colleague.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for this opportunity to say a few words about Joe MOAKLEY, JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY, but all of us know him as Joe.

He was described the other day by folks from Massachusetts as a lunch-bucket Democrat and politician; and a politician obviously defined in this sense, as a servant of the people. When he happened to go to work every day, he realized that Joe MOAKLEY, in every sense of the word, represented those people in Congress, the people who otherwise would not have a strong voice, the people who are so busy working every day that they cannot afford to be getting involved in exotic causes. They have to know that they have somebody who is on the firing lines for them day in and day out.

I wish him the best of health. I wish him the very best to himself that he has given to so many of us for so many years.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY), my classmate and colleague.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for this opportunity to say a few words about Joe MOAKLEY, JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY, but all of us know him as Joe.

He was described the other day by folks from Massachusetts as a lunch-bucket Democrat and politician; and a politician obviously defined in this sense, as a servant of the people. When he happened to go to work every day, he realized that Joe MOAKLEY, in every sense of the word, represented those people in Congress, the people who otherwise would not have a strong voice, the people who are so busy working every day that they cannot afford to be getting involved in exotic causes. Mr. Speaker, there is a great void in our deliberations in this institution as Joe MOAKLEY announces that he will not run for another term. But it is altogether fitting and appropriate that we gather here to name the courthouse overlooking Boston Harbor on behalf of Joe MOAKLEY.

There is a great scene in the movie the Ten Commandments where Moses, Charlton Heston, is confronted by Pharaoh, his father who has adopted him is the crane. When one looks all over his district in Boston, one sees one crane after another. One sees construction projects blooming in the Boston skyline and that means development, and that means jobs and a better quality of life for all of Joe’s constituents.

His life is a lasting example of honor. He treats others with respect and dignity; and in turn, he is liked by everyone. We as we have heard from Members on both sides of this aisle.

He is compassionate, but he is certainly not weak. He is strong, but he is always considerate of others. He has a sense of responsibility that has permeated his being for a long, long time. At the age of 15, as I am sure my colleagues have heard or will hear, he forged his documents and enlisted in the Navy and went into World War II. Today, I believe, says he misrepresented something and try to run him out of government; but for Joe, this was the right thing to do to get in there, be a patriot, and to represent and work on behalf of his country.

Tom Oliphant wrote a column about Joe the other day; and in it he said something that was very touching. He said Joe MOAKLEY treats everybody the same. So even if you are a king or President, you get to be treated like his constituent. That says a lot about Joe. It is exactly the way that he has always treated with respect the people whom he represents and whom he considers family.

So it is fitting that this courthouse be named after him. It is fitting because that is where he grew up, that is where he played and ran around in the rail yards that used to pass through there, chasing watermelons and other fruit once they went by.

I am proud and I consider it an honor to join others here today in saying that this courthouse will be appropriately named for Joe MOAKLEY. It represents jobs. It represents progress and development. Most of all, it represents justice and fairness.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, as we await the arrival of other speakers, we reserve the balance of our time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY).

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, there is a great void in our deliberations in this institution as Joe MOAKLEY announces that he will not run for another term. But it is altogether fitting and appropriate that we gather here to name the courthouse overlooking Boston Harbor on behalf of Joe MOAKLEY.

There is a great scene in the movie the Ten Commandments where Moses, Charlton Heston, is confronted by Pharaoh, his father who has adopted him and raised him, where the father says to him, What have you done for me, Moses? My son, Ramseys, Yule Brenner, has done so much for me.

At that point, Moses pulls back the cloth and says, Behold, I have built you a city.

If someone asks me, if someone asks our delegation what has Joe MOAKLEY done, we could pull back the same cloth in the Moakley Courthouse and look out and say, Behold, Joe MOAKLEY has rebuilt Boston.

One would look out on this clear and clean water of Boston Harbor that was once polluted. One can look at the jewels of the Boston Harbor, the islands, now the Boston Harbor National Park.

One could look at the Central Artery, Moses parted the Red Sea, what Joe MOAKLEY has done is reunite the city of Boston by putting the Central Artery underground so that this city that was divided for 50 years is now once again united when the Central Artery, the Big Dig, is completed, the civil and political engineering feat of the last 50 years, finding the money and then designing it. Then the Moakley Courthouse above from which one can see also Evelyn Moakley Bridge named for his beloved wife.

Joe MOAKLEY talked to kings and pages with the same language. If we ever do have a Mount Rushmore for congressmen, Joe MOAKLEY should be up there with his great friends, John McCormack and Tip O’Neill as the symbols of everything that Congress should stand for. He is a great man. We are honoring a great man by placing him high on this list.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST).

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this resolution naming the Federal courthouse at Boston in honor of my colleague, JOE MOAKLEY. No Member of Congress deserves this honor more than the gentleman from Massachusetts, my friend Joe.

We have had the honor of serving on the Committee on Rules with Joe for more than 22 years. No person better epitomizes what is good about public service in this country. Joe has served with distinction, with good humor and with class.

Years ago, he personally and courageously took on the death squads in El Salvador following the murder of four nuns in his district as well as six Jesuit priests. It was his dogged determination and hard work that brought an end to that sad chapter in El Salvador’s history. Joe’s district in Boston did not reap great rewards from his courageous fight, but all of mankind did.

Joe MOAKLEY, as we have heard earlier, enlisted in the Navy in World War II at the age of 15, lying about his age so he could fight the enemies of our Nation. I guess he was big for his age at the time, but no one in Congress today has a bigger heart than Joe MOAKLEY.

Joe MOAKLEY served as chairman of the Committee on Rules for 5 years and has served as ranking Democrat for the past 6 years. Whether in the majority or in the minority, Joe has served with class. He has never been mean to his adversaries, but he has always been firm in his convictions and vigorous in his pursuit of the values and ideals of the Democratic Party.

Joe has made the decision to step down after this term in Congress after having fought valiantly in recent years against a series of ailments and will continue to fight against his ailments and he has done with courage, grace, and dignity. We look forward to his continued service in this body in the months ahead.
Boston and all America can be proud of this great Congressman. He is one of the last of the great Boston pols, a man who is proud to represent his district and to serve his country. Naming the beautiful Federal courthouse overlooking Boston Harbor in his honor is the very least we can do.

Joe Moakley is a great Congressman. He is and always will be a shining example to the entire country about what is good in public life today.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. PRYCE), a seatmate on the Committee on Rules with the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY).

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker. I rise to honor my good friend from Massachusetts and Committee on Rules colleague, Joe Moakley. Anyone familiar with the Committee on Rules’ work knows that it often entails long hearings, very late nights, and early mornings. Joe could always get our work done for the next day.

But Joe Moakley makes our sacrifices much easier to bear with a twinkle in his eye and his quick wit. He keeps us on our toes, and he keeps us chuckling even when the joke is at his own expense.

If more Members could do their party’s bidding on both sides of the aisle with Joe’s flare, there would be a lot less partisan rancor around here and many more smiles on the faces of our colleagues.

Today, we not only honor Joe Moakley, but we also thank him for his invaluable contributions to this institution, to the lives of everyone he has touched, and all of us who have had the privilege of knowing him.

I was not here when a young Joe Moakley came to Washington some 30 years ago, but I am very certain that this institution and his constituents and everyone he has come in contact with is better for his work here.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am a Republican, and Joe Moakley is a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, and most people would, therefore, put us at odds; but I am here to tell you, and to turn a phrase, with enemies like that, who needs friends?

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL).

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) for yielding to me, and thank the Members that are assembled here today.

Joe Moakley’s sense of humor was infectious for all of us; and one can sense, I think, the affection that we all feel for him today. Joe Moakley, he is heir to the great legacy of the great McCormack O’Neill.

There are two parts of this business in Congress. There is the outside business, and there is the inside business. Joe Moakley was good at both of them.

The problem in this institution, like most institutions of legislative life today across America, is that the people that are good at the outside part of it can never become good at the inside part; and there is a disdain for the institutions of which they serve, thereby never buying into consensus, never having the chance to do the great governing that has to take place in legislative life.

Joe Moakley understood both parts of legislative life. One has to be good at the outside part of it, and one has to be very good at the inside part of it. Hence, committee assignments. I know people’s eyes glaze over when they hear that, but the members of the delegations were always on good committees, primarily because of McCormack, O’Neill, and Moakley.

The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) said to me a moment ago when somebody mentioned a fellow, well, Jeez, Joe treated everybody alike. The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank) said, In our delegation, he sure did. He thought we were all on his staff.

But it was a joy to be part of his success in this institution. There is still going to be a lot of good days as we move along as well.

Let me just close on this note: I bumped into the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Everett) today, a terrific guy. He said, Heard you were in town. I saw JOE Moakley voted in the years I have been in Congress, but there was nobody whose company I enjoyed more at dinner. There is nobody that I enjoyed talking to more about the great stories that he told and still will have an opportunity to tell.

I am indeed very grateful for many of the good things that have come my way in legislative life here in the Congress because I consider it an honor to serve here. I have always known that one has to be considerate.

I am indeed grateful today and happy to be part of this and only wish our friend from South Boston, if one asked him where he was from, he would say Boston, he would say he was from South Boston, our friend Joe Moakley.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Armey), the majority leader of the House.

Mr. ARMey. Mr. Speaker, let me say that Joe Moakley locked up my paper last Monday and read the news of Joe Moakley’s illness, it made me extremely sad; and I want to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) for calling to my attention this opportunity we have as a body to appreciate one of our own.

Joe Moakley is a pretty good partisan, and that is fine. It is its institutional role to stick up for people who have a shared point of view of his own, and he has done that and he has done it well. But he has never in all the time I have known him done that in any manner that was ungentelemanship or inconsiderate.

On a more personal basis, when we have those moments in our lives when we can get beyond our institutional roles, he is a friend. I can remember as a young guy in the minority, probably a little bit out of line, messing with something that was not in a committee rule that I served on, considered by many to be perhaps none of my business, having to trek up to the Committee on Rules with the second-ranking Democrat on the Committee on Rules who showed me patience, tolerance, encouragement, consideration, and a helping hand in the committee for me to get an amendment that was important to me to the floor so he could cheerfully vote against it. That was a pretty decent thing, quite frankly.

So I welcome this opportunity. And I should say, by the way again on a more personal note, we should remember that Joe Moakley is from south Boston. If we forget, we should just notice that is where the accent came from. I had not realized until my brother went to work with the Boston Patriots, the New England Patriots, that for all my life I had been mispronouncing his name. I, in my misguided youth, had learned that his name was Charlie Armey. It was only by Joe’s compliments towards my brother that I learned his name is “Chawley Armey.” I often refer to Charlie with affection as my brother Chawley Armey, and I think of Joe Moakley every time.

So thank you again for giving us this opportunity, and I thank the gentleman for giving me this moment to speak with very, very real affection for a real person. As Evey, his wife, would have said, He’s a person. And we ought to know that and we ought to appreciate that.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker. I yield myself such time as I may consume to thank the gentleman from Texas, the majority leader, for his very kind words and his eloquent words. I want him to know I appreciate them and everybody in the Massachusetts delegation. I think everybody in Massachusetts, really appreciates those words.

The gentleman points out that even though Joe was a solid bread-and-butter Democrat, that he had this talent to kind of cross party lines. There is not a single person that disagrees with him on an issue, that do not walk away from a fight saying, He’s a good guy; I liked him a lot.

We really do appreciate the gentleman’s kind words, and we appreciate his working with us to bring this to the floor today.

Mr. Armey. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McGovern. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.
Mr. ARMEY. One final moment. I would just say to JOE, “Mr. Chairman, stay with us.”

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleague in thanking the majority leader for really speaking, I think, on behalf of the whole House in his very personal eloquent statement. We will have to be forgiven, those of us who do this as a profession, because, to be honest, we are all reacting personally in these last couple of days.

JOE MOAKLEY had enormous benefits to the country, to this institution, to the city and the State, but for us also the personal was there. We could not come into this Chamber on the worst of days, having encountered all kinds of unpleasantness, and not have our spirits uplifted by sitting with JOE. There was no way that anyone could fall in his presence. He chose those things: that personal element, even in this time of trial for him, he has been cheering the rest of us up. Typical of this really quite extraordinary man.

I also want to talk about another aspect of an extraordinary life. He was a great stereotype breaker. One of the things we suffer from in this country is this assumption that if we are A, we cannot be B; if we are X, we cannot be Y. JOE MOAKLEY showed us that we could be. There is a lot of talk about civility and things that are important. And for JOE MOAKLEY that a person could be a deeply committed advocate of issues, not simply a partisan in the sense of being a Democrat but a partisan Democrat who cared a lot about what was necessary to improve the lot of those people in our society who were not going to do well on their own, no one had to tell him that someone could be deeply committed without being trumpeting or belligerent. No one had to tell him that JOE MOAKLEY was a leader for really speaking, I think, on behalf of people who are good at one set of articulars. An individual could be a master of the old civility now. No one had to tell JOE MOAKLEY that a person could be a deep and passionate, person could not worry about human rights all the time. JOE MOAKLEY showed us that we could be, a kindly older gentleman who did so much to try to get us to put aside artificial differences.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS).

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join in this discussion. I have not known the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) as well as many of the previous speakers, but I have to say that when I first appeared before the Committee on Rules a few years ago as a freshman and presented my case on an amendment, it was interesting to watch the gentilemman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY).

He initially was shuffling papers, then he began listening to me, and then he turned to the person next to him and I could see him say, “Who is this guy?” And after I made the presentation, he made some complimentary comments and took the trouble after the meeting to come and speak to me about my proposal and explain how it could be improved.

That was the beginning of a friendship. And even though I cannot claim the close friendship that some of the old-timers here have, it has always been a good relationship. We joke with each other, we talk with each other, we always greet each other in the hallways. He always strikes me as what a longstanding Member of Congress should be, a kindly older gentleman, who is helping and aiding those around him and always cheerful, always helpful, and always trying to help us do our best for the country.

We need more Members like that. And the other comments about his civility, I believe, are well taken. He is a very civil person in every sense of the word and truly a gentleman who deserves the honor that he is being given today. We cannot say enough good about him.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MEEHAN).

Mr. MEEHAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for moving on this courthouse quickly with both sides of the aisle embracing this. This is very, very important at this time; and I compliment the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) for not only the way he has gone about this but his remarkable friendship with JOE MOAKLEY over the years.

When I got elected to the Congress, I had never been in a legislative body before, and I was a little inexperienced; and I remember getting here and butting heads with JOE MOAKLEY. Then I quickly surrendered.

JOE is a remarkable guy. Many of us have heard the stories about what he has done in terms of building Boston and what he has meant to that community, with the Big Dig, depression of the Artery, the beautiful courthouse, the sense of humor that he had. Amazing.

All of us have read the story about JOE’s illness, and his initial remark was, “The doctor told me that I should not get any green bananas.” Remarkable sense of humor. The jokes on the floor. But also his commitment on so many issues.

I remember, and it was mentioned earlier, in the wake of the burial of the murdered Jesuits and nuns in El Salvador in 1989, Speaker Foley appointed me to the slot in last row to investigate the El Salvadoran government. It was JOE MOAKLEY who led the way there and exposed violations of human rights that have made a dramatic difference there. What a legacy he has left on human rights work on his trip in El Salvador. An incredible legacy.

Many of us had been fighting over the years to try to get the School of the Americas shut down, could never get the votes in this House until JOE MOAKLEY took it up. He said I will offer this and we will get it passed. That is JOE MOAKLEY.

The personal relationships with Members, not only all he has done for his own district but everyone’s district. When we go to the dean of the delegation from Massachusetts and we ask him for help, we are more effective in our districts. I will tell a quick story, if I can get 30 seconds more. Malden Mills, in my district, is the Polartec factory and Lowell, a great factory that burned down a few years ago. Aaron Feuerstein, the owner of the mill, kept all the workers working at Christmas time. Kept them all employed. He developed Polartec forever. We were looking for a way to get it to the Marines, get it to our service members, because it is cutting-edge fabric.

Aaron came down and said, “How do I do this?” I said, “Well, I will tell you how we will do it. We will go to see JOE MOAKLEY.” Needless to say, the contracts have been signed, and the Marines are now wearing Polartec.

So this is a great honor to a great man and I congratulate the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN).

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), chairman of the Committee on Rules. Mr. MOAKLEY's counterpart, I ask unanimous consent to take 5 minutes of my time and yield it to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) for him to control.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LaHood) Without objection, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) will have an additional 5 minutes.

February 14, 2001 - CONGRESSIONAL RECORD - HOUSE
There was no objection.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding me this time. I hear all these nice things being said about JOE MOAKLEY by Members of the Massachusetts delegation. Members, on this 50 years of life; and I have to say that I probably more than any other Member of this House know JOE MOAKLEY to be a real fighter. In fact, he has abused me regularly up in the Committee on Rules and I know plans to continue that pattern over the next couple of years. He is one who clearly does stand for his principles very firmly.

But I will agree with the arguments that have been made by my colleagues that he is extraordinarily civil in the process. Just yesterday I followed a statement that he made about the fact that he is at a point in his life where he does not purchase green bananas any longer because he does not know if he will be around long enough for them to ripen. I know that JOE MOAKLEY is going to be around for a long time. He continues to fight very hard. But the fact is I presented him yesterday with some green bananas upstairs in the Committee on Rules, and he told me that he would much rather have the gavel than the green bananas that I presented to him.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN). I join my colleagues from the Congress this week. JOE MOAKLEY for his wisdom, his counsel, his kindness, his advice, and help to me. I know I speak for everyone in Massachusetts when I say, we respect him and, as importantly, we love him.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER).

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to my friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) who announced his retirement this week. With his departure, we will lose one of our finest, wittiest, and longest serving Members. We in the Massachusetts delegation will lose our dean, our load star, and the patron saint of South Boston.

Even before his years as chairman and later ranking member of the Committee on Rules, JOE was a force not to be tangled with. In nearly 3 decades of service in the House, he cites among his most notable accomplishments his fight for peace and justice in El Salvador during the conflict-ridden 1980s. He is known for that and a lot more in Massachusetts.

Congressman MOAKLEY has literally lifted the city of Boston up. He has set an example for all of us in his efforts to improve the lives of working families, and his deeply personal style will be remembered.

In addition to lifting the city of Boston up, Joe has spent the last decade securing crucial transportation funding for the Boston Metropolitan area, which faces formidable transportation challenges. JOE recognized that large investments were necessary to keep the Commonwealth in a prominent place in the global economy, and soon Boston will be a shining example of efficient transportation that will be a tribute to JOE’s tireless work.

JOE has been an important part of my political life, too. When I was elected in 1991, JOE cleared the way for me to join the Committee on Appropriations and so helped me define my role in Congress. And I am grateful to him. Much of the discussion of Incurables of Incurable leukemia touches all of our lives. It takes a special breed of person to respond with such grace and equanimity. JOE, I wish you the best. We all wish you the best. Our thoughts and prayers will be with you always.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) for bringing this bill before us today. It is but a small recognition of JOE MOAKLEY’s dedication to public service and of his great accomplishments for the people of Massachusetts.

I urge its adoption.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. LARSON).

Mr. LARSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, let me also congratulate the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN). I join my colleagues from the Massachusetts delegation and the Members of the House who have come to the floor today to pay honor and tribute to an outstanding American, a quintessential Irish statesman who I think, as the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) pointed out, is not only a link to the past but a handshake and a look into his eyes is peering into the future.

I spoke with JOE the other day, and he said with a great deal of pride how he assumed office on the same day that Kennedy was taking John Kennedy’s place in the House of Representatives and John Kennedy was going on to the Senate and JOE MOAKLEY was taking Tip O’Neill’s place in the great State of Massachusetts Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, JOE MOAKLEY simply embodies everything that is rich about public service and public life. I commend the delegation for its salute and tribute to Congressman MOAKLEY.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to one of my most admired colleagues in the House of Representatives. Congressman MOAKLEY of Massachusetts who today is the subject of legislation before this body, that has been written in his honor.
JOE MOAKLEY is the quintessential Boston Irish public servant. For more than 50 years he has served his Nation, his State of Massachusetts, and the hard-working men and women of South Boston in one form or another. In the long, and inspiring tradition of such great men as former Speaker Tip O’Neill, Joe has been a kind of Representative that has shown time and again that he is a leader on the national and international stage, yet has remained ever loyal to the people of South Boston and all of Massachusetts.

When I first arrived here as a freshman Member of Congress, Joe MOAKLEY, who was then and now Dean of the New England House delegation, was one of those remarkable people I looked to as a model of how I wanted to conduct myself as a Member of Congress. With character, dignity, devotion, and loyalty, Congressman MOAKLEY continues to serve as a constant reminder that we are indeed part of a noble profession.

JOE MOAKLEY’s remarkable time in public service began when he was a mere 15 years old, when he enlisted in the U.S. Navy for service in the South Pacific during the Second World War. After graduating from college in Florida, and law school, JOE MOAKLEY ran for the Massachusetts State Legislature in 1952 where he served until 1960. And in 1964, he was elected to the Massachusetts State Senate where he served until 1970. It was a day after briefy serving on the Boston City Council, that he was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives from the 9th District.

It was not long after he began his second term that he gained a seat on the House Rules Committee, where he served today as ranking member. In 1989, he was made chairman of that committee. As chairman, he conducted himself with his characteristic sense of integrity and humor.

Through all his years of service which he continues today, he has worked tirelessly for his district, giving them the same full measure of devotion that he gave to other matters, such as human rights abuses in Central America, which he helped investigate and report on. His actions helped expose injustice, and likely contributed to the end of a brutal civil war in El Salvador.

I have always believed that the measure of a person’s life is not contained merely in the years they spend in office, but rather in how their actions in office continue to positively affect the neighborhoods, district, and people they served, long after their time in service has drawn to a close. If a person’s actions have improved the life of even one person, or one family, or one community, then there is no end or limit to what their service has meant to others. And for JOE MOAKLEY, there is no end in sight.

No matter how long I spend as a Member of this body, I am now, and will always be, proud to say that I served with JOE MOAKLEY.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We are waiting for a couple of other speakers, but I want to take this opportunity to say something that is important to say. I am a former staffer of JOE MOAKLEY. I am one of the few people who have ever left his staff. Most of the people who have worked for him have worked for him for many years, and they have done so because they admire him and respect what he stands for.

But members of the staff who are in Massachusetts, those who are here in Washington, those on the Committee on Rules, do not have the opportunity to come up before the mike and to say anything; and I want to say a few words on their behalf.

Mr. Speaker, if they were able to speak here today, they would express their incredible gratitude to Joe, not only for what he stands for, but for his friendship and for his support over the many years. People who work for him over time find out that Joe is not just people who work for him directly, people who are part of the staff, people in the House dining room, the credit union, all love him because he has a way of connecting with people. He has a way of expressing humor that endears himself to these people.

I want to say on behalf of his staff how grateful we all are to everybody who has spoken here today and who has offered tributes. It means an awful lot to all of us. It is a signal that we are part of his family as well.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR).

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for taking the time to honor our dear friend, JOE MOAKLEY.

I think above all, Joe communicates. The dedication of this Post Office to his memory will go on for many, many different ways: as a member of the Committee on Rules, as the ranking member on the Committee on Rules, a member of our leadership organization, as a member of our ranking Members’ organization. We admire tremendously the service that he has brought.

What really sets JOE MOAKLEY apart is his relationship with his constituents. We all know that he has all of these wonderful roles, dean of the delegation for Massachusetts, ranking member on the Committee on Rules, a leader in the House in so many ways. He has done so much in Central America. He has done so much with many of his constituents in many, many ways. But I think that above all else is his humanity, his humanness, his relationship with each of us individually and collectively. He is to me the emblem of public service, the press conference where he announced his retirement. Joe said the people I represent are more than constituents, they are family. That is the way JOE MOAKLEY treated everyone. He treated everyone he met, his constituents, even total strangers as part of his family.

He was always funny, he was always friendly, he was always warm, he was always loving of other people. And he always will be. I think, more than anything that we can say about JOE MOAKLEY, that we can embody in everything that he has done the human kindness and love that all of us should like to represent.

We love you, Joe, and we look forward to working with you in the days ahead in this Congress to make things better for the people of America and the people of Massachusetts.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
February 14, 2001

I want to thank our leader the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) for his remarks. He mentioned Joe’s humanity. I think all of us agree with him when he says that Joe treated us all like family, and he treated us all with an incredible amount of respect. Joe Moakley is probably the most genu-inous person that any of us know. There is not a phony bone in his body. That is why people love him so much, because when he speaks to you and even when he disagrees with you, it is from his heart.
It is because of what he believes. I very much treasure that trait in him and very much value his friendship.

Mr. Speaker, I want to again thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LATOUR ETTE) for all of his cooperation and for all of his generosity with the time. I want to thank on behalf of all the Massachusetts delegation and the people of Massachusetts everybody who has spoken here today. Words cannot express adequately how much it means to all of us that you have come here today to express your support and your friendship and your love for Joe MOA-KEY.

I want to thank all my colleagues for getting behind this initiative. This is the right thing to do. Joe Moakley is going to be with us for the next couple of years, and we are going to be able to continue to enjoy his humor and to watch him in action. But I think this is the appropriate way to say to Joe, “thank you.” It does not do justice to all that we should do to thank him, but this is a small gesture of our affection.
As I said at the end of my remarks when I opened up here, I will say it again, Joe, we all love you a lot.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 559.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr.
LaHABRA) asks unanimous consent to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, many Members have come over to the floor today. Members that know Joe MOAKLEY far better than I, and have shared their personal stories of his dedication and his compassion, his fierce competitiveness, his desire to be a good Democrat and serve well the constituents of South Boston and a lot of stories about his wit.

I can only tell you, Mr. Speaker, that as a House we are united in our desire to honor our longtime colleague; and there is no honor more fitting than what we plan to do today and that is to name the United States courthouse In Boston after one of Boston’s sons, JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY.

I urge passage of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. KENNEDY).

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr.
Speaker, I thank my friend and colleague for yielding time and say to my colleague, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY), what a wonderful tribute he has organized on behalf of a wonderful man that I know all of our colleagues are distressed to learn is facing the fight of his life but someone whom we all know could face no other choice but to sit in this House.
With charm and dignity and sense of importance in life and humor that none of us, I do not think, could have if we were in his shoes right now facing what he is facing.

I just want to close by saying I cannot think of anybody, and I know my father feels the same way, that would better have his name on really now a landmark in Boston like the Federal courthouse than Joe MOAKLEY. I think what a tribute to have that beautiful courthouse which he was such a major part in bringing about bear his name right next to the bridge that bears the name of his late wife.

All of Boston and all of Massachusetts and all and all of this country and all over the world for the people that Joe MOAKLEY has stood for, this is a great tribute to him. I ask my colleagues to join me in urging passage of the Joe Moakley Federal Courthouse Bill.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation as a tribute to a great American and outstanding Congressman, JOE MOAKLEY.

As a member of the Rules Committee, I have the privilege of working closely with Joe. Serving on the Rules Committee is often a thankless job. It requires late hours and uncertain schedules. For the ranking Democrat, that task is even more difficult. Yet Joe approaches task with dedication and never-ending energy.

I can remember waiting around for many light-night sessions when we were entertained by his stories. Even under the most difficult circumstances, Joe never lost his wit and sense of humor.

Joe represents the best of Democratic ideals of compassion and justice. He has championed the rights of the poor, the ne-eglected, and oppressed, not only in this country but throughout the hemisphere.

He has served his Boston constituents with honor and distinction. He has skillfully used his position to bring Federal Government services to his community. He is the best that government has to offer.

It is highly appropriate to name a Federal courthouse after Joe. A courthouse is where citizens seek justice from their government.

That is Joe’s legacy.

When Joe MOAKLEY was diagnosed with leukemia, his doctor recommended that he consider retiring from Congress and doing what he wants to do. Joe replied that serving in Congress is what he wants to do. That’s Joe’s MOAKLEY—serving others rather than thinking of himself.

There is no way our Nation can fully thank Joe for his service, but this is a fitting attempt.

I have enjoyed my service with Joe over the years and I will treasure the remaining time in the 107th Congress.

Good luck, Joe.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 559, a bill to designate the Federal Courthouse in Boston in honor of Congressman Joe MOAKLEY. It is with great regard that we honor one of Congress’ most prolifworks and dedicated Members with this designation.

Joe MOAKLEY is a true Bostonian. He was born in Boston on April 27, 1927. He attended local schools, and at the young age of 15 ever enlisted in the U.S. Navy, he served in the Pacific during World War II. After the war, Joe attended the University of Miami. Upon his return to Boston he attended Suffolk University Law School and received his law degree in

In 1952, at the age of 25, Joe was elected to the Massachusetts legislature. From 1952 to until 1960 he served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, and from 1962 until 1970, he served in the Massachusetts Senate.
He specialized in urban affairs and environmental legislation.

In 1971, topping the ticket with a record-breaking vote in both the primary and general elections, Joe MOAKLEY won a seat on the Boston City Council. Just 2 years later he was elected to represent the Ninth Congressional District. After his first term he was appointed to a seat on the House Rules Committee—a seat previously held by former Speaker Tip
O’Neill, Jr., his close friend and mentor.

In June 1989, Congressman Moakley was appointed chairman of the House Rules Committee, which controls the flow of legislation and sets terms for floor debate. In 1995, Mr.
Moakley became the committee’s ranking member.

All of us will be known for our legislative achievements but few will be remembered for their broad concern for humanity. For Joe MOAKLEY, it is one of the ways in which he distinguishes himself. In 1989, Joe embarked on his most ambitious mission concerning abuses of human rights. His outrage at the blatant murder of six Jesuits, their housekeeper and her daughter in 1989 in El Salvador propelled him into a national investigation that culminated in the Moakley report.

This hearing revealed the involvement of several high-ranking Salvadoran military officials in the murders. The findings in this report resulted in the termination of United States military aid to El Salvador. It also led to his concern with the School of Americas. More importantly, the people of the small village of Santa Marta had their sense of justice and fairness renewed and refreshed by the diligence and hard work of Joe MOAKLEY.

Although Joe’s concern for abuses of human rights brought him international attention, he proudly remained a “bread and butter” representative—caring and concentrating on the people of the Ninth Congressional District in his beloved Boston. His efforts resulted in securing funds for, among other things, the dredging of Boston Harbor, renovation of the World Trade Center, bridges for access to the Boston waterfront, the Juvenile Justice Center at Boston Public Library, and economic development in the Miles Standish Industrial Park in Taun-

His constituents benefited from his dedication to environmental protection. He was instrumental in establishing the Boston Harbor Islands National Park, and as previously mentioned, he secured funds to clean up Boston Harbor. He did not forget historic preservation—The Africa Meeting House, the Old South Church, the Freedom Trail, the U.S. Constitution, and the Boston Customs House all received necessary funding to preserve these American treasures.

During his career, over 5,100 congressional actions bear the name JOE MOAKLEY. His interest in office for the Olympics, regulatory review, Medicare, human rights, civil rights, violence, police protection, education, environmental protections, energy assistance programs for the poor and elderly, landmark legislation designating arson as a major crime, merchant marines issues, and international affairs. JOE MOAKLEY has received numerous awards and honors including an honorary doctorate from Suffolk University, and an honorary doctorate from Northeastern University in political science.

Of course, no picture of JOE MOAKLEY would be complete without mentioning his boundless Irish wit, his legendary expertise at telling a story, his unfailing courtesy, kindness, and immense generosity.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to close with an Irish blessing for our esteemed colleague JOE MOAKLEY.

May the friendships you make, be those which endure, and all of your grey clouds be small ones for sure.

Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I support this bill again.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to close with an Irish blessing for our esteemed colleague JOE MOAKLEY.

(2) In the United States, business-to-business transactions between small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses and their suppliers is rapidly growing. Some of these businesses begin to use Internet connections for supply-chain management, after-sales support, and payments.

(3) Small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses play a critical role in the United States economy.

(4) Electronic commerce can help small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses as they develop new products and markets, interact more quickly and efficiently with suppliers and customers, and improve their ability by increasing efficiency and reducing transaction costs and paperwork. Small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses who fully exploit the potential of electronic commerce activities can use it to interact with customers, suppliers, and the public, and for external support functions such as personnel services and employee training.

(5) The National Institute of Standards and Technology’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership program has a successful record of assisting small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses. In addition, the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program, working with the Small Business Administration, has successfully assisted United States small enterprises in remediating their Y2K computer problems.

(6) A critical element of electronic commerce is the ability of different electronic commerce systems to exchange information effectively. The continued growth of electronic commerce will be enhanced by the development of private voluntary interoperability standards and testbeds to ensure the compatibility of different systems.

SEC. 102. REPORT ON THE UTILIZATION OF ELECTRONIC COMMERCE.

(a) ADVISORY PANEL.—The Director of the National Institute of Standards and Technology (in this title referred to as the “Director”) shall establish an Advisory Panel to report on the challenges facing small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses in integrating and utilizing electronic commerce technologies and business practices. The Advisory Panel shall be comprised of the Director of the Commerce Administration, the National Institute of Standards and Technology’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership program established under section 256 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278k) and 278i), the Small Business Administration, and private and related parties as identified by the Director.

(b) INITIAL REPORT.—Within 12 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Advisory Panel shall report to the Director and to the Committee on Science, Engineering, and Transportation of the Senate on the immediate requirements of small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses to integrate and utilize electronic commerce technologies and business practices. The report shall—

(1) describe the current utilization of electronic commerce services by small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses, detailing the different levels between business-to-business and business-to-consumer transactions;

(2) describe and assess the utilization and need for encryption and electronic authentication components and electronically stored information use in electronic commerce for small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses;

(3) identify the impact and problems of interoperability to electronic commerce, and include an economic assessment; and

(4) include a preliminary assessment of the approaches for and recommendations for, the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program to assist small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses to integrate and utilize electronic commerce technologies and business practices.

(c) FINAL REPORT.—Within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Advisory Panel shall report to the Director and to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate a 3-year assessment of the needs of small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses to integrate and utilize electronic commerce technologies and business practices. The report shall include—

(1) a 3-year planning document for the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program in the field of electronic commerce; and recommendations, if necessary, for the National Institute of Standards and Technology to address interoperability issues in the field of electronic commerce.

SEC. 103. ELECTRONIC COMMERCE PILOT PROGRAM.

The National Institute of Standards and Technology’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership program, in consultation with the Small Business Administration, shall establish a pilot program to assist small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses in integrating and utilizing electronic commerce technologies and business practices. The goal of the pilot program shall be to provide small and medium-sized manufacturers and other such businesses with the information they need to make informed decisions in utilizing electronic commerce-related goods and services. Such program shall be implemented through a competitive grants program for existing Regional Centers for the Transfer of Manufacturing Technology established under section 23 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278k). In carrying out this section, the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program shall consult with the Advisory Panel and utilize the Advisory Panel’s reports.

TITLE II—ENTERPRISE INTEGRATION

SEC. 201. ENTERPRISE INTEGRATION ASSESSMENT AND PLAN.

(a) ASSESSMENTS.—The Director shall work to identify critical enterprise integration standards and implementation activities for major manufacturing industries underway in the United States. For each major manufacturing industry, the Director shall work with industry representatives and organizations currently engaged in enterprise integration to establish an enterprise integration representative as necessary. They shall assess the current state of enterprise integration within the industry, identify the remaining steps in achieving integration, and work toward agreement on the roles of the National Institute of Standards and Technology and of the private sector in that process.

Within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director shall report to the Congress on these matters and on anticipated related National Institute of Standards and Technology activities for the then current fiscal year.

(b) PLANS AND REPORTS.—Within 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Director shall submit to the Congress a plan for enterprise integration for each major manufacturing industry, including milestones for the National Institute of Standards and Technology portion of the plan, the dates of likely achievement of those milestones, and anticipated costs to the government and industry by fiscal year. Updates of the plans and a progress report for the past year shall be submitted annually until for a given industry, in the opinion of the Director, enterprise integration has been achieved.

SEC. 202. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this title—

(1) the term “Director” means the Director of the National Institute of Standards and Technology;

(2) the term “enterprise integration” means the electronic linkage of manufacturers, suppliers, and other such businesses to enable the electronic exchange of product, manufacturing, and other business data among all businesses in a product supply chain, and the implementation of related application protocols and other related standards; and

(3) the term “major manufacturing industry” includes a aerospace, automotive, electronics, shipbuilding, construction, home building, furniture, textile, and apparel industries and such other industries as the Director designates.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT).

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 524.

There is objection to the request of the gentleman from New York.

There was no objection.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

During a busy day, most Americans probably do not stop to think about the importance of small manufacturers in all aspects of our lives. In fact, most Americans would be surprised to learn that it is all but impossible to get through a day without using and benefiting from the many products created by our Nation’s small manufacturers. Everything from the alarm clock ringing in the morning, to the clothes we wear, to the communications equipment C-SPAN uses to broadcast these House proceedings live can be attributed in part to small manufacturing.

It is not surprising, then, that small manufacturers contribute so greatly to our Nation’s economic growth and prosperity. Small manufacturers employ over 12 million Americans, translating to nearly 1 in 10 workers nationwide. It is estimated that a manufacturing sale of $1 results in an increase of total output in the economy of $2.30. As they seek to remain a driving force in our Nation’s economy, one of the greatest challenges facing small manufacturers in the coming decade will be the ability to implement successful e-commerce business strategies allowing them to better compete in the burgeoning information age.
It is estimated that sales in electronic commerce alone will reach nearly $3.2 trillion by the year 2003. Small manufacturers who successfully embrace new technology and all its benefits will be able to capitalize on the growing trend in online sales and have the chance to compete with larger companies in terms of productivity and revenues. Beyond online sales, e-commerce can help small manufacturers develop new products and markets while at the same time allowing them to interact more quickly and efficiently with their suppliers and customers.

I am pleased to join the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Environment, Technology and Standards, as an original cosponsor of H.R. 524, the Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act. H.R. 524 will allow the director of the National Institutes of Standards and Technology, which we all now as NIST, to establish an advisory panel comprised of both government and private sector representatives that will provide Congress with a comprehensive report detailing the challenges facing small manufacturers in integrating and utilizing electronic commerce technologies.

The report will also require a 3-year blueprint for NIST’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership program, or MEP, in the area of electronic commerce. MEP, with over 400 centers in all 50 states, has been a valuable technology transfer resource for many small manufacturers nationwide. By establishing a 3-year plan, we will have a better idea of how NIST MEP can be most useful in helping small manufacturers overcome the barriers they face in the electronic world.

Finally, H.R. 524 establishes a limited e-commerce pilot program administered through the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program, in conjunction with small business incubators, aimed at assisting small manufacturers to integrate e-commerce business strategies. Last Congress, the House passed legislation mirroring H.R. 524 by voice vote. Unfortunately, Congress adjourned before the Senate could act on the measure. I am hopeful we will be able to get the bill signed into law this year. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to join me in support of the Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act of 2001.

Let me close with formal remarks by commending my colleague, good friend, and partner, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA), for his tenacity, for his innovativeness and for the hard work that has produced this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I too want to commend my very good friend and distinguished colleague in this, I believe, maiden remarks on the floor here as the new full Committee on Science chairman.

I want to express my gratitude to both the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) as well as the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS) for their spirit of bipartisanship which is a continuation of the good working relationship which our committee enjoyed in the last Congress. I certainly bodes well in this new session.

Certainly the fact is not lost that the first action in this new session of the committee is reporting a Democratic bill. For that I am very grateful. I hope my colleagues will continue to the gentleman from New York and continuing that great spirit of bipartisanship which the Committee on Science has been so well renowned for and to say how delighted we are that he will be leading our full committee efforts here in committee and on the floor.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 524, the Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act. H.R. 524 represents a bipartisan effort to encourage and medium-sized enterprises to bringing their businesses online. H.R. 524 is the same text as H.R. 4429 which was reported by the Committee on Science and passed by the House in the 106th Congress.

The bill before us today reflects again a bipartisan consensus. I, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HALL), and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS), along with other Members, decided to reintroduce this legislation because of the challenges small and medium-sized businesses face in implementing the electronic commerce activities. As large corporations move their business transactions online, small companies in the supply chain must go online as well. However, many of these small companies lack the information they need to make informed decisions on choosing e-commerce products and services. The Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act addresses this problem.

First, H.R. 524 establishes an advisory panel to assess the e-commerce needs of small businesses. This advisory panel should represent an equal partnership between industry, government, and other affected groups. The Manufacturing Extension Partnership, working with the advisory panel, will establish a pilot program at MEP centers to provide small businesses with the information they need to make informed, intelligent purchases of e-commerce products and services.

This bill also addresses the issue of interoperability in the manufacturing supply chain. Adoption of e-commerce practices within a supply chain can be hindered by the lack of interoperability of software, hardware, and networks in exchanging product data and other key information.

For example, a recent study indicated losses of $1 billion in terms of productivity due to interoperability problems in the automotive supply chain. Other industries with complex manufacturing requirements could be expected to suffer similar losses.

The National Institute of Standards and Technology, or NIST, has supported the first phase of an automotive supply chain interoperability study in my home State of Michigan. This program was highly successful and strongly supported by industry. H.R. 524 builds upon this preliminary effort. NIST would perform an assessment to identify critical enterprise integration standards and implementation activities and report back to Congress.

I want to thank also the gentleman from Maryland (Chairwoman MORELLA) for working with me on this legislation in the last Congress and also want to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Chairman SENSENBRENNER) for his efforts to bring this bill to the floor in the 106th Congress as well.

Of course, I want to thank our new Chairman on Science, Technology and Standards, as I just mentioned, the gentleman from New York (Chairman BOEHLERT), as well as the gentleman from Michigan (Chairman EHLERS) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. HALL), for our legislation and supporting bringing it to the floor so expeditiously. I hope this represents the first of many bipartisan Committee on Science bills that we will bring to the floor of the 107th Congress.

Mr. Speaker, the manufacturing extension partnership has a proven track record of helping thousands of small businesses across the country. The National Institute of Standards and Technology has continually worked in partnership with the private sector to make advancements that benefit countless American businesses.

In closing, I believe this bill represents sound and reasonable policy that builds upon the impressive history of these Federal agencies. I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS), the distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Environment, Technology and Standards.

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I welcome the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA) to the ranking member position on the Subcommittee on Environment, Technology and Standards; and I look forward to working with him. We have been friends for many years, first in the Michigan House, then the Michigan Senate, and now in the Congress, and especially on this particular subcommittee.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 524, the Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act of 2001. Small manufacturers play a vital role in our society. Each and every day we all rely on... the many goods they produce to help sustain and improve our lives. Small manufacturers are an integral part of our communities, employing hundreds of our friends and neighbors and acting as anchors that help to foster growth and prosperity in many small towns and cities across the country. In our inner cities, it is often small manufacturers that have helped to spur urban renewal and act as the industrial foundation in our metropolitan areas. Recently I visited a factory in my district. It is a classic example of what I just described here. A gentleman purchased a faltering plant which was on the verge of bankruptcy. It had 50 employees. He reinvigorated it; and through good management and advanced techniques of manufacturing, including communication, he became a supplier of parts for the Chrysler Corporation, now the Daimler Chrysler Corporation. At the time I visited, he had 250 employees and he said he had work for 500, if he could only find qualified individuals to work there. He also showed me a machine that was producing parts for the Chrysler minivan. He had produced 2 million of those parts for the Chrysler Corporation. They are also missing out on the opportunity the Internet offers to spur new product development and markets. I have introduced legislation to improve K–12 math-science education, which would go a long way toward solving the problems that are indicated in the previous paragraph and that I also mentioned earlier for the manufacturer in my district who could not find the employees he needed. H.R. 524 is an important piece of legislation because it will help us get a clear picture of all of the barriers preventing small manufacturers from successfully implementing electronic commerce strategies by having both government and private-sector representatives take a closer look at the problem. In addition, the limited pilot program created by H.R. 524 will tell us what is and what is not working in the workplace. NIST’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership program, or MEP, working in conjunction with the Small Business Administration, is uniquely suited to assist small manufacturers in this endeavor. The hundreds of MEP centers all across the country have a proven track record in effectively providing small manufacturers with the advice and expertise they need in order to succeed. I am pleased to join the chairman of the Committee on Science, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), and the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Technology for our Subcommittee on Technology for the last years, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA), who introduced this bill in the 106th Congress, and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE), as an original cosponsor of H.R. 524. Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to join me in support of the Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act of 2001. Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE). Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for his leadership on this issue. Just as an example, encryption is a very important part of business commerce. Very few small manufacturers have the expertise to deal with encryption processes and ensures security, privacy, and integrity of their transmissions. In addition to that, we need standardization of protocols between large manufacturers and their suppliers. We have to have enterprise integration and interoperability. If the smaller manufacturers are going to be able to communicate with the large number of manufacturers that they supply, they should not have to be required to put in different systems for every manufacturer they deal with. In addition to this, a lack of qualified trained technology workers in the marketplace today makes it difficult to successfully integrate technology into the workplace in a meaningful way. Over half the small manufacturers surveyed revealed that human resource shortages were a major problem when trying to implement their e-commerce plans. I would add parenthetically here that I have introduced legislation to improve K–12 math-science education, which would go a long way toward solving the problems that are indicated in the previous paragraph and that I also mentioned earlier for the manufacturer in my district who could not find the employees he needed. H.R. 524 is an important piece of legislation because it will help us get a clear picture of all of the barriers preventing small manufacturers from successfully implementing electronic commerce strategies by having both government and private-sector representatives take a closer look at the problem. In addition, the limited pilot program created by H.R. 524 will tell us what is and what is not working in the workplace. NIST’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership program, or MEP, working in conjunction with the Small Business Administration, is uniquely suited to assist small manufacturers in this endeavor. The hundreds of MEP centers all across the country have a proven track record in effectively providing small manufacturers with the advice and expertise they need in order to succeed. I am pleased to join the chairman of the Committee on Science, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT), and the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Technology for the last years, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA), who introduced this bill in the 106th Congress, and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE), as an original cosponsor of H.R. 524. Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to join me in support of the Electronic Commerce Enhancement Act of 2001.
which I chaired and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BARCIA) was the ranking member, and at that time the bill was then passed unanimously by the House.

The bill would also allow the National Institute of Standards and Technology to meddle in voluntary standard-setting activities by private parties relating to business-to-business electronic exchanges.

Such a governmental intervention could harbor substantial negative repercussions for e-commerce. Voluntary standards-setting activities by private, non-governmental parties have been credited with the vibrancy and innovation associated with our e-commerce industry. Industry enterprise integration or business-to-business exchanges are a critical component of our e-commerce sector. Today, transactions on such exchanges represent 85 percent of the total value of e-commerce.

The Federal government injecting itself into a business-to-business exchange would just like to respond to some of the comments made by the gentleman from Florida.

Obviously, in the last session we dealt with this issue and it passed unanimously through the House as far as the jurisdictional issue. I understand that some of the committee jurisdictions are still, as we speak, being delineated and settled.

I understand the gentleman’s concern about having NIST establish structures in terms of the interoperability issue, but I want to assure the gentleman from Florida that the automotive industry spoke strongly in favor of this legislation, based on their experience in Michigan that they had with a program called STEP, which, as I mentioned, the Manufacturing Extension Partnership based in Ann Arbor, Michigan, had worked with the automotive industry to put in place.

It has been a very successful program. The automotive industry, which is greatly impacted by this legislation, was very strongly supportive and worked with our leadership of the subcommittee and the full committee to ensure that we would not be setting precedents or addressing some of the issues, perhaps, that the gentleman has concerns about.

But we will be mindful of that, and hopefully enjoy support on passing this bill.

Mr. Speaker, if I could make one last comment about also my colleague and friend, the gentleman from Michigan, and congratulate him on his ascension to the chairmanship of the Subcommittee on the Environment, Technology, and Standards, of which this morning I was selected as the ranking member.

I just want to say, as my good friend, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHRLERS), indicated, we have had the privilege of working together from the State House in Michigan, the State Senate, and then coming to Congress together.

I want to say that I am delighted to be able to work with someone who has been a long-time friend, and someone who, throughout his time both in the Michigan legislature as well as here in Congress, has been recognized as one of certainly the most thoughtful and effective Members of both the State legislature and Congress.

I look forward to working with our new leadership, the new Chair, and of course my long-time friend, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHRLERS), of the subcommittee.

I also want to thank our former Chair, the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA), for her just absolutely great administration of our subcommittee. I think if we looked at the full committee and our subcommittee, we probably would have one of the best track records of bipartisanship in the entire Congress, and certainly all of us on the Democratic side in that subcommittee really appreciated her role, and the fairness and objectivity and spirit of bipartisanship that she carried throughout her tenure as the chair of the subcommittee. Again, I thank the chairman and the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 524.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on the motion to suspend the rules and pass H.R. 524 will be followed immediately by a 5-minute vote on the question of passage of H.R. 524 on which the yeas and nays were ordered recorded.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 409, nays 6, not voting 17, as follows:

district in West Virginia. Had I been present, I would have voted “yea” on both rollcall Nos. 14 and 15.

AFFECTING REPRESENTATION OF MAJORITY AND MINORITY MEMBERSHIP OF SENATE MEMBERS OF JOINT ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the Senate bill (S. 279) affecting the representation of the majority and minority membership of the Senate Members of the Joint Economic Committee, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TANCREDO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the Senate bill (S. 279). Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, and specifically section 5(a) of the Employment Act of 1946 (15 U.S.C. 1224(a)), the Members of the Senate to be appointed by the President of the Senate shall for the duration of the One Hundred Seventh Congress, for so long as the majority party and the minority party have equal representation in the Senate, be represented by five Members of the majority party and five Members of the minority party.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 32), and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 32

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring) That when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Wednesday, February 14, 2001, it stand adjourned until 2 p.m. on Monday, February 26, 2001, and that when the House adjourns on Monday, February 26, 2001, it stand adjourned until 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, February 27, 2001, for morning-hour debate, or until noon on the second day after Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first; and that when the Senate recesses or adjourns at the close of business on Thursday, February 15, 2001, or Friday, February 16, 2001, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it remain until noon on Monday, February 26, 2001, or until such time on that day as may be specified by its Majority Leader or his designee in the motion to re-adjourn, or until noon on the second day after Members are notified to reassemble pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall Nos. 14 and 15, I was unavoidably detained.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Ms. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, I regret that I was unable to attend the recorded votes today, February 14, 2001. I was traveling with President George W. Bush on his visit to my epidemic, we are just trying to pick up after the catastrophe has already occurred. We need to commit our scarce foreign assistance dollars in ways that help bring lasting improvements, build better opportunities, and prevent these cycles of tragedy.

As I researched the question, I became convinced of the value of one development investment in particular: international basic education. I was intrigued to learn that educating children, particularly making a special effort to get girls into schools, because so often they are not allowed to participate, yields a higher rate of return than virtually any other effort we can make in the international developing world.

The data seemed almost too good to be true. With increased education, women live healthier lives. They marry later, live longer, have fewer children, and their children have vastly superior survival rates. The data compiled by the World Bank and other international organizations report that for every year of education a little girl receives beyond grade four, there is a 10 percent reduction in family size, a 15 percent drop in child malnutrition, a 10 percent reduction in infant mortality and up to a 20 percent increase in wages and microenterprise development.

The statistics support what economists and development experts already know: Data and results, especially in countries that have an education infrastructure, as it was being implemented in those countries and the pace of reform in education was measured in terms of USAID officials, the professionals in the NGO community implementing these programs, the families and the personnel from the countries making these little schools run themselves. This is driving systemic change in these areas.

We visited many classrooms, spoke to parents and community leaders and learned firsthand of the changes being made. This picture reflects a meeting with parents who had in a very small rural village. This individual, the village hunter, the one responsible for bagging the game to feed the village, told us that with the children even getting basic primary education, the cotton traders buying their products can no longer cheat them by the scales. They use the children to teach them a fair deal. Time and time again we heard of this kind of change.

We heard from parents that now children are born who are not only eating healthily but are buying medicine that has already got expiration dates; they will help them watch for expiration dates on foods and help them write letters; that schools are a safe place for them to be. They no longer have to worry about the children when they go to market.

We heard from the village chief and president of a parents' association tell us that educating a little girl is like lighting a dark room. He said that their school is giving priority to girls' participation in enrollment, making a difference for the first time in bringing girls into primary education and the opportunities that flow from that. The parents told us that once the girls have learned and write they teach others in the family and they become better mothers. Even in a young teenager's years, they are doing it.

I just want to, in closing, show you one of the little girls participating in something called the Erma program involving USAID dollars and the Academy for Educational Development and some wonderful other NGOs in the area. Twelve years ago, my wife, Sue, and I taught high school in east Africa, and we were very much aware of the institutional and cultural barriers that exist, particularly in the developing world, barriers which all too often prevent girls from going to school and finishing their education. I recently admitted today that I came out a true believer, a great believer in the progress that our dollars are making in those countries.

There are so many heroes that the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) and I can point to in these educational reforms. Of course, the local leaders and the parents' groups, who have to embrace these reforms in order for them to have a chance. Also working with wonderful other NGOs in the area, like Save the Children and Oxfam. But in the brief time that I have, I would like to focus in particular on one program, a program involving USAID dollars and the Academy for Educational Development, a program involving the English style, called the SAGE, Skills Curriculum in the country of Mali.

Through this wonderful program, educators are able to weave throughout their curriculum valuable life skills, especially in the area of preventable health. Mr. colleague and I watched with great interest how teachers would use lessons on, for example, how to prevent dysentery as part of their instruction on grammar so that these lessons truly were a part of the curriculum at every stage and at every level.

As I said, I was a skeptic. Those of us who have taught in the developing world are often struck by how irrelevant our lessons can often be, especially in countries that have an education system which is a holdover from a colonial power. Where I taught, we had the old English system, the English style, rote learning. But what we are seeing in countries like Mali is a new style of education, a new style that involves practical lessons day in and day out, and involves students talking to each other and building upon their own experience.

My colleagues can see to my left here a picture. This shows a young lady in school. My colleague and I watched, because of the shortage of paper, she is using a little chalkboard, a little slate board to help her get through her lessons. That shows some of the material disadvantages that these students often have.

My next chart shows something which may appear very reasonable and normal and everyday to those of us in the West but is a quite remarkable characteristic of reform in education in Mali and Ghana, and that is having breakout groups, where students are no longer stuck in that one classroom, that is a holdover from the colonial days. Instead, they talk about lessons in a very real way, and they apply those lessons, especially those life-skills lessons, to their own experience and they use it to learn grammar, they use it to learn math, they use it to learn science. And the beauty of this is, even if these children, Lord forbid, are never able to go to secondary school, unable to go to high school, unlikely to go to college, they will have learned valuable lessons on preventive health care.

We know these lessons will go a long way in preventing some of the great health challenges that we have seen.

It will pay off in the long run in these countries. It will pay off for America. It is a wonderful thing.

The good news is our dollars are working. I thank the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) for the wonderful experience he included for me. It was truly a great experience.

AMERICAN HEART MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MILLENDEER-MCDONALD) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. MILLENDEER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to wish everyone a happy Valentine’s Day.

As we know, this is the day that everyone speaks from the heart. This is a day more flowers, especially roses, are given to loved ones, more chocolate and other boxes of candy are purchased. But I would like to call attention to this heart day and our heart health.

While we celebrate Valentine’s Day, let us not forget our heart and the signs it gives off, or in some cases, signs that do not give off that are important.

Mr. Speaker, in 1963, a congressional mandate designated February as American Heart Month. Because Valentine’s Day is the day of the heart, it is fitting to raise awareness that heart disease kills nearly one million Americans every year, which is about 41 percent of deaths here in the United States.

Heart disease is the number one killer of Americans. Every 33 seconds an American dies from heart disease, and every 21 seconds someone suffers a heart attack. Due to these statistics, Americans need to become more educated on heart disease risks, prevention, and treatment.

Heart disease is also the number one killer for women. About one in five women have some form of heart disease. Even though surveys show that women view breast cancer as a much greater risk to their health than heart disease, the reality is that a woman’s lifetime risk of dying from heart disease is one in two, whereas it is one-in-nine lifetime risk for contracting breast cancer, which is also important to be educated and seek examination.

High cholesterol and hypertension are two of the main causes of heart disease, which is alarming considering the following statistics. Approximately 50 percent of women have cholesterol levels of 200/dL or higher. Seventy-nine percent of black women and 60 percent of Caucasians over the age of 45 were classified as having hypertension.

Further, women experience other AIDS-related diseases, such as arthritis and osteoporosis that can mask heart disease symptoms and delay the seeking of necessary medical care.

There are also critical preventive measures that include tobacco-use cessation, regular exercise, reduced daily alcohol intake, and controlled blood pressure that women should know of and take to try to avoid this fatal disease.

While heart disease is also the number one killer in my State of California, the good news is that heart disease in California is less than the national average. We must ensure that fighting this disease is on the forefront of our agenda.

In addition to having annual check-ups, screening and participating in regular exercise, it is important to be aware of the heart attack symptoms, including abnormal breathlessness, squeezing or pain in the center of the chest lasting more than a few minutes; pain spreading to the shoulders, neck and arms; chest discomfort with light-headedness, fainting, sweating, nausea, vomiting, nausea, or dizziness.

Women typically do not have the crushing chest pain, which is considered a classic symptom. As a result, women’s symptoms can be overlooked until it is too late.

Heart disease is a critical health issue. Both men and women need to understand how they can prevent and detect heart disease. Both men and women need to become aware of heart attack symptoms and what to do if they experience any of these symptoms. We need a national effort to raise awareness of this disease.

Perhaps most of all, as the new co-chair of the Congressional Caucus on Women’s Issues, I urge all of my colleagues to make sure they understand the facts and that they, their mothers, sisters, brothers, uncles, daughters all get screened on an annual basis.

So happy Valentine’s Day, Mr. Speaker; and let us not forget the heart.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mrs. BIGGERT addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

ELECTION REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be here on the floor of the House this afternoon submitting this special order on election reform.

Mr. Speaker, today I would like to address an issue that has been prominent in the minds of many Americans over the past few months but has been on my mind since 1993.

Twenty election reform proposals have been introduced in the House of Representatives since the opening of the 107th Congress. I applaud the thoughtful and expedient response of my colleagues as I myself am soon to unveil my own proposal for strengthening America’s voting system and have, in fact, organized my first town hall meeting during the President’s Day recess on this specific issue.

When I was elected Secretary of State for the great State of Rhode Island I had the unique experience of setting up an entire new voting system throughout the State and develop effective solutions.

By May of 1994, our Commission reported the need to replace our antiquated Shoup lever voting machines with optical scanning equipment. Because it is cost effective, it would help increase voter participation.

By the end of 1996, the procurement process had begun; and by September 1997 primary local elections, the optical scan equipment was firmly in place. In both 1998 and 2000 elections, these machines were in full operation throughout the State of Rhode Island.

Implementation of the new optical scan equipment was cost effective because of the machine that was used. The Rhode Island’s revenue neutral laws ensured that the expenses for staffing, storage, and transportation of voting equipment and printing and mailing ballots all equal the cost of establishing this new system. We also met our goal of increasing voter participation by increasing the number of registered voters by nearly 60,000 from 1993 to the year 2000.

Finally, ensuring timely accuracy in tabulating votes was also a top priority. Because the optical scan machines read voting ballots by sensing the mark within a defined period indicating the vote, this method ensures the clear intent of the voter is transmitted and tabulated.

This system also provides an audit trail for each ballot and enabled the use of ballots printed in multiple languages. However, since the machines were not accessible to blind or sight-impaired voters, I also initiated the Ballot for the Blind and Tactile ballot initiative to ensure that those who have lost their sight or are sight-impaired maintain their right to vote independently.
As Congress works with the President to explore ways to modernize the machinery of voting, I strongly urge my colleagues to join me in applying proven success stories such as what we have done in Rhode Island. Modernize on an accurate, efficient, and cost-effective election reform, which we should utilize in our efforts to ensure true democracy in America. Our voters deserve no less.

PRESIDENT BUSH'S TAX CUT PLAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. KELLER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KELLER. Mr. Speaker, as someone who campaigned on the platform of providing tax relief for working American families, I am particularly proud today to announce my support for President Bush's plan to lower income tax rates across the board and to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

I would like to address two issues today: number one, why I am supporting this plan; and, number two, what our opponents are saying about this plan and address those issues fairly and squarely.

First, why do I support this plan? Well, I support it because it is going to make a meaningful difference in the lives of so many working families here in the United States.

For example, for a married couple raising two children on a salary of $50,000 combined, they will receive a 50 percent tax cut. That is a savings of $1,600 a year. Now, a savings of $1,600 a year for that family translates into an extra $133 of groceries in their refrigerator every month for those two children that otherwise would not be there.

Now, as someone who himself grew up in relatively humble circumstances, raised by a single mom on a salary of a secretary with three children, I do not have to guess about how much working families and single mothers need tax relief. And that is why I am so enthusiastic in my support of President Bush's tax cut plan.

Now, not everybody agrees with me here. Our opponents have two things they are saying about this bill. And I believe these things are myths. But let us go ahead and address them squarely.

The first they say is this tax cut is simply too big. It does not leave enough money to shore up Social Security, Medicare and pay down the debt.

Well, here is the truth: 70 percent of this tax surplus goes to shore up Social Security, provide for prescription drugs, pay down the debt, with only 20 percent being used to return to taxpayers in the form of tax relief, the very folks who are responsible for this tax surplus.

Now, they say we could leave that 20 percent here in Washington, D.C. And I suppose we could. But what would happen? Congress would simply spend that money. Whether it is Republican Congress, Democrat Congress, or even Congress, that money will be spent. It deserves to be returned to the people who paid these excessive taxes.

The second myth they say is that this is a tax cut just for the rich. Well, let us look at that little myth there. For a secretary making $38,000, a single mom raising three children, she will get a 100 percent tax cut, she will pay no taxes under this plan. For her boss, the lawyer making $100,000 a year with two kids, he will get a 16 percent tax cut. Secretary, 100 percent. Attorney, 16 percent. The low-income Americans are the big winners under this plan.

Now, why is that? Because we take the lowest rate of 15 percent and lower it down to 10 percent and we double the $500 per child tax credit.

Now, with that said, some folks say, well, that is all fine and good for the single moms and folks at the low end of the spectrum, let us not have the taxes for what they call the rich.

Well, once again, all of us pay taxes and all of us are entitled to tax relief. So, let's get this truth right out there. It is that the top 10 percent of wage earners in this country pay 66 percent of the taxes. These are the same people who every year create hundreds of thousands of jobs.

Are these folks not entitled to the tax relief? Should we not encourage them to provide additional jobs in this economy?

In summary, this tax relief is desperately needed. It is going to make a meaningful difference in the lives of single moms and working families. A tax cut is not big and it is not just for the rich.

In closing, let me say this. The leading cause of divorce in the United States today is arguments about the tax cut. Well, here is the truth: 70 percent of the American families, 70 percent of the American families, I am particularly proud of this tax cut.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to recognize the very folks who are responsible for this tax cutout of M.J.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. VISCOLSKY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it is with the greatest pleasure that I pay tribute to one of the most caring, dedicated, and selfless citizens in Indiana’s First Congressional District, Imogene Matthews of Gary, Indiana.

After serving the constituents of Northwest Indiana in my Gary District Office for the last 10 years, Imogene announced her retirement this past December.

Imogene Vanetta Matthews was born on April 15, 1954, in Gary, Indiana. Imogene, affectionately known as Moby, was the youngest girl of 11 children born to Emmett and Pauline Matthews. A lifetime native of Gary, Indiana, Imogene graduated from West Side High School in 1972.

One need look no further than her career choices after high school to determine what kind of person Imogene is. From her beginnings at the Gary Manpower Administration helping to place young children in day-care centers and homes, to her years of service as executive secretary for Gary Mayor Richard G. Hatcher, to the last person she assisted in her capacity as a Federal caseworker in my office, she has dedicated her life wholly to public service.

I was fortunate enough to have Moby on my staff as a Federal caseworker in 1989. Her outstanding work and the people of Northwest Indiana eventually earned her a position as my Deputy District Director.

During her tenure in my office, she has worked selflessly to ensure the well-being of all those around her. Her exceptional knowledge and expertise in dealing with the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Social Security Administration are unparalleled. While serving on my staff, she reunited dozens of families, helping loved ones attain the privilege of U.S. citizenship and aiding those living in the U.S. by acquiring the passports and visas they needed to visit their relatives abroad.

You only needed one meeting with Imogene to see the revelation that her choice of vocation is not only a result of the responsibility she feels to a community she loves but is also a reflection of her deep and abiding compassion for those around her. Federal casework can be a thankless task. But Moby never wavered. Regardless of the barriers that faced her, Imogene threw herself into her work with the patience and perseverance of Job. Her overwhelming commitment to following through on her promises earned her an absolute miracle worker. My office is often the last resort for many of my constituents with problems. Imogene never let anyone feel desperate or afraid. On the contrary, she was a great source of hope for the people who had nowhere else to turn. She treated everyone who walked into my office with the dignity and respect they deserved, regardless of their situation in life or the details of their problems.

After working with her for a decade, I can say easily that her kindness knows no bounds.

As one might expect, Imogene selflessly gives her free time and energy to her community as well, her friends, and her family. The most important to Imogene is a member of the NAACP as well as the Young Women’s Christian Association. She is also an active volunteer for the American Association of Retired Persons and is a member of the Gary Public Library. In addition to these important activities, Imogene promotes another cause that is near and dear to her heart. She is an avid Chicago Bulls fan and a Michael Jordan fan. Pictures of Michael Jordan adorn her office along with a life-size cutout of M.J.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues join me in honoring one of our finest. Imogene deserves to be returned to the people who paid these excessive taxes.
in commending Imogene “Moby” Matthews for her lifetime of dedication, service and compassion to the residents of northwest Indiana. She has touched the lives of many residents and she will be sorely missed not only by those she has helped with her outstanding service and living example, but also by myself and my staff who have seen her extraordinary expertise and felt her deep compassion and love. She will never be replaced.

NATIONAL GUARD AND RESERVE DAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Shimkus). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. Thune) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. Speaker, today is a very important day to American citizens and not just because it is Valentine’s Day, but because the President has also declared it National Guard and Reserve Day. I am encouraged that our national leadership is finally paying tribute to the citizen soldiers that play such a vital role in the protection of democracy and our Nation’s defense.

The National Guard has been there in every war and conflict that this Nation has ever fought. They were there in the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, both World War I and World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Operation Desert Storm and, most recently, Operation Allied Force in Kosovo. The National Guard is an integral part of America’s military today, serving side by side with its active duty counterparts all over the world. They meet the security needs of our Nation, both at home and abroad.

Mr. Speaker, the National Guard is the only component in our military that has a dual mission. Their Federal mission is to serve as an essential partner with the country’s Army and Air Force, responding to security needs worldwide. Just as important is their State mission of meeting the needs of our citizens during emergencies and disasters. The Guard, with its long history of assisting and protecting local communities, is well prepared to play this critical role in this critical mission area.

I would like to take this opportunity today, Mr. Speaker, to highlight the accomplishments of the South Dakota Army and Air National Guard. Under the leadership of the Adjutant General, people strong, the individuals of the South Dakota National Guard are some of the finest citizens in my State. They have served their Federal mission dutifully through deployments. As personnel from the 426th Medical Battalion deployed to Jamaica to perform medical readiness training, the 153rd Engineering Battalion worked on vertical construction in Hohenfels, Germany, and the 186th Engineer Group participated in airfighter exercises in Grafenwoehr. In just 3 years the 147th Field Artillery’s two battalions completed conversion to the multiple launch rocket system, and I have just gotten word that the 1085th Medical Company has been given the order to prepare the unit for full deployment to Bosnia. In addition, the 114th Fighter Wing of the Air National Guard has deployed more than 500 people in support of the Aerospace Expeditionary Force, providing dedicated personnel on the fourth deployment enforing the no-fly zone in Iraq.

Mr. Speaker, these extraordinary individuals have also responded to their State mission, being called on last this past summer to fight the Jasper fire in the Black Hills of South Dakota. This fire was the biggest ever in the history of my State. The 285 soldiers and airmen who were called to active duty to help fight this fire were there to meet the challenge just like they have always been. Their quick response is a credit to the hardworking individuals and their dedication to their job as citizen soldiers.

One can only look at the call of duty of the South Dakota National Guard that their responsibilities are escalating. However, at the same time we have unfortunately witnessed a decline in fully funded personnel accounts and end strengths. As the National Guard’s role in the Federal duty, we must continue to devote attention to full-time manning. Adequate personnel and support are absolutely necessary to ensure a ready and accessible Guard.

Following these lines, we must take steps to ensure that our National Guard forces are capable of fighting and winning two nearly simultaneous major regional conflicts. Procurement and modernization play a central role in this. They are crucial elements to our ability to respond to multiple engagements and threats to our national security. Unfortunately, the Army and Air Force are currently wearing out weapons systems and supporting mission equipment. This is a direct result of the rate at which we have been turning mission. As we begin to work through the defense authorization and appropriation cycle this year and in the future, more attention must be given to procurement of new weapons systems and to combat capability for all forces.

It is critical that Congress and the new administration provide funding levels sufficient to ensure that America’s military capabilities are in line with our superpower responsibilities.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, Washington sometimes speaks with its own language. We talk in this town of talking about guys getting out on the line, when the only cost of failure is to our pride or perceived prestige.

Out there beyond the Beltway, in many cases beyond America’s shores, are people who really do take risks. They lay their lives on the line every day and they do so because we ask them to. They are, of course, America’s finest, our men and women in uniform. And while some in this town may spare them a passing thought now and again, they are thinking of us, and Americans like us, every day. That is what devotion to duty means.

It is unfortunate but correct to note that those soldiers, airmen and marines are never more prominent in our thoughts than when something goes wrong. Our hearts went out to the families of the sterling sailors aboard the U.S.S. Cole. We mourned the loss of brave Marines lost in recent aviation mishaps. And today our thoughts are with the families of soldiers killed and injured in an Army helicopter accident.

There is a message in these events, if we care to hear it. It is that even in times of greatest peace, the profession of arms is fraught with hazard. The world demands that we train hard and realistic training brings real dangers. American interests require that our forces be forward, and those distant waters can mask unseen threats. And the requirement for technological leading means that flaws in new systems can occasionally take a fearsome price. So let us give thought on this Valentine’s Day, this day dedicated to love, to those men and women who put love of country above all. We are free to speak our minds in this Chamber because, out there, they have accepted the job of keeping us free. We are able to run what we call political risks because of moral risks.

We talk at some length about how to properly compensate our men and women in uniform. That debate goes on. But I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, that we owe a humbling debt to America’s servicepeople that goes far beyond the usual debt owed to former soldiers. It is not meant to say that, in the framers’ phrase, they defend our lives and our sacred honor. Such a gift is truly beyond price.

LITHUANIAN INDEPENDENCE DAY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. THUNE). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the 83rd anniversary of Lithuanian Independence Day and the 10th anniversary of freedom from foreign occupation. I am especially proud of my Lithuanian heritage at this time of the year.

From the first Independence Day on February 16, 1918 until their reassertion of their independence on February 16, 1990 from foreign domination has been a hard-earned dream for the Republic of Lithuania.

The Lithuanian people withstood unspeakable abuse under Soviet military forces that occupied Lithuania from 1940 to 1991 with dignity and restraint. In Vilnius, the capital of Lithuania, there are many reminders kept of the sacrifices made for freedom. The Vilnius KGB museum consists of a basement jail that has cells and torture chambers where secret police detained and imprisoned Lithuanians who fought against occupation. The Lithuanian parliament building hosts a section of bullet-scarred barricades that were used in 1990 to ward off Russian tanks. Also, the Vilnius TV tower, which is the tallest structure in the city, has a monument to the 14 unarmed, freedom-loving Lithuanians who were murdered on January 13, 1991 by Soviet soldiers during their attempt to take over the tower.

In the 10 short years since the reestablishment of its independence, the Republic of Lithuania has restored democracy, ensured human rights, secured the rule of law, developed a free market economy, cultivated friendly relations with neighboring countries and successfully pursued a course of integration into the European Union. 2001 will be another critical year for Lithuania as it works to attract foreign investment and gain admission into NATO, a recognition of its perseverance in the face of immense challenges. It has proven not only to be a faithful friend to the United States but also a tenacious ally, as demonstrated by their recent assistance in our peacekeeping efforts in Bosnia. I hope we will not jeopardize their future security by withdrawing NATO membership beyond 2002.

In closing, I would like to thank the outgoing Ambassador from Lithuania, Mr. Stasys Sakalaukas, for his service in Washington, D.C. and his dedication to improving U.S.-Lithuania relations. I also welcome the new Ambassador who will be named at the end of this month, and I look forward to working with him.

I urge my colleagues to join me in commemorating the 83rd anniversary of Lithuanian independence.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, due to the cancellation of my flight, I missed the vote last night on H.R. 2, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001. Had I been here, I would have voted in favor of the bill.

This legislation signifies our commitment to protect seniors’ benefits. It is my hope and belief that Social Security and Medicare funds will only be used for their intended purposes and not be spent on other government programs. I believe this is a major step toward long-term reform that will assure all workers and retirees that these programs will be there for their future.

REPEALING THE 5-YEAR LIMITATION ON INTEREST DEDUCTIBILITY FOR STUDENT LOANS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to re-introduce a bill important to all students—H.R. 1345, the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001. Had I been here, I would have voted in favor of the bill.

This legislation signifies our commitment to protect seniors’ benefits. It is my hope and belief that Social Security and Medicare funds will only be used for their intended purposes and not be spent on other government programs. I believe this is a major step toward long-term reform that will assure all workers and retirees that these programs will be there for their future.

My bill improves this law by removing the current 60 month limitation period for deducting student loan interest. As the law currently stands, if your student loan is older than 5 years from when it came due, you are not eligible for a tax deduction.

This limitation needs to be removed. Higher education has become increasingly expensive and is creating a financial burden on graduates well beyond the first five years of graduation. According to the General Accounting Office, the average student loan in 1980 was $518; in 1995, it rose to $2,417, an increase of 367%. Tuition at 4-year public and private colleges and universities has risen nearly three times as much as median household income in the past 15 years. As a result, it is becoming harder for students to graduate from college or graduate school without the help of student loans.

Students that graduate with student loans start out a few steps behind those without it. It is harder for them to save for emergencies or to invest money for their future. It is also harder for them to meet day-to-day expenses. This tax deduction will help.

All interest accrued on student loans should be deductible. Congress can send the message that we value higher education and recognize the financial responsibility students have made by allowing the student loan deduction for the life of the loan.

This will do two things: It will encourage individuals to go to college or graduate school, and it will reduce the cost of education. Mr. Speaker, I believe very strongly that the way to achieve the American Dream is through education, and that everyone should have this opportunity.

It is absolutely essential that we continue to invest in our most important hope for our children—education. I urge my colleagues to support my bill, H.R. 1345.

PUBLICATION OF THE RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS, 107TH CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I am submitting the attached Committee on Ways and Means rules for the 107th Congress for publication in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD pursuant to House Rule XI, Clause 2(a)(2).

The Committee adopted these Rules on February 7, 2001.

If you have any questions please contact John Kelliher at x69150.

COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS, U.S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES—MANUAL OF RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS FOR THE ONE HUNDRED SEVENTH CONGRESS, ADOPTED FEBRUARY 7, 2001

I urge my colleagues to join me in commemorating the 83rd anniversary of Lithuanian independence.

FOREWORD

This manual has been prepared to assist Members of the Committee on Ways and Means, its staff, and the public. It presents in two parts various aspects of the organization and procedures of the Committee on Ways and Means. Part I contains rules adopted by the Committee for the 107th Congress. Part II contains the Rules of the House of Representatives, which are also a part of the rules of the Committee, affecting all standing committees of the House.

PART I—RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS FOR THE 107TH CONGRESS

Rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, provides in part:

(a)(1) Each standing committee shall have standing subcommittees.

(a)(2) Each subcommittee is a part of its committee and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules, copies are available, each shall be privileged in committees and subcommittees and shall be decided without debate.

(b) A motion to recommit from day to day, and a motion to suspend with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, shall be privileged in committees and subcommittees and shall be decided without debate.

(2) Each subcommittee is a part of its committee and is subject to the authority and direction of that committee and to its rules, so far as applicable.

(3) Each standing committee shall adopt written rules governing its procedures.

(A) Shall be adopted in a meeting that is open to the public unless the committee, in open session and with a quorum present, determines by record vote that all or part of the meeting on that day shall be closed to the public;

(3) may not be inconsistent with the Rules of the House or with those provisions of law having the force and effect of Rules of the House.

In accordance with the foregoing, the Committee on Ways and Means, on February 7, 2001 adopted the following as the Rules of the Committee for the 107th Congress.

A. GENERAL

Rule 1. Application of Rules

Except where the terms “full Committee” and “Subcommittee” are specifically referred to, the following rules shall apply to the Committee on Ways and Means and its Subcommittees as well as the respective Chairmen.

Rule 2. Meeting Date and Quorums

The regular meeting day of the Committee on Ways and Means shall be on the second Wednesday of each month while the House is in session. However, the Committee may not meet on the regularly scheduled meeting day if there is no business to be considered.

A majority of the Committee constitutes a quorum and a quorum shall be present at all meetings of the Committee.

Rule 3. Committee Budget

For each Congress, the Chairman, in consultation with the Majority Members of the Committee, shall prepare a preliminary budget. The Chairman shall include amounts for staff personnel, travel, investigations, and other expenses of the Committee. After consultation with the Minority Members of the Committee, the Chairman shall include an amount budgeted by Minority Members for staff under their direction and supervision. Thereafter, the Chairman shall combine such proposals, consolidate, compromise, and present the same to the Committee for its approval or other action. The Chairman shall take whatever action is necessary to have the budget as finally approved by the Committee duly authorized by the House. After said budget shall have been adopted, no substantial change shall be made in such budget unless approved by the Committee.

Rule 4. Publication of Committee Documents

Any Committee or Subcommittee print, document, or similar material prepared for public distribution shall either be approved by the Committee or Subcommittee prior to distribution and opportunity afforded for the inclusion of supplemental, minority or additional views, or such document shall contain on its cover the following disclaimer:

Prepared for the use of Members of the Committee on Ways and Means by members of its staff. This document has not been officially approved by the Committee and may not reflect the views of its Members.

Any such print, document, or other material prepared by the Committee or Subcommittee shall not include the names of its Members, other than the names of the full Committee Chairman or Subcommittee Chairman under whose authority the document is released. Any such document shall be made available to the full Committee Chairman, the Ranking Minority Member not less than 3 calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays) prior to its public release.

The requirement shall apply only to the publication of policy-oriented, analytical documents, and not to the publication of public hearings, legislative documents, documents which are administrative in nature or reports which are required to be submitted to the Committee under public law. The appropriate characterization of a document shall be determined after consultation with the Minority.

Rule 5. Official Travel

Consistent with the primary expense resolution and such additional expense resolution as may have been approved, the provisions of this rule shall govern official travel of Committee Members and Committee staff. Official travel to be reimbursed from funds set aside for the full Committee for any Member or any committee staff member shall be paid only upon the prior authorization of the Chairman. Official travel may be authorized by the Chairman for any Member and any committee staff member in connection with the attendance of hearings conducted by the Committee, its Subcommittees, or any Committee of the Congress on matters relevant to the general jurisdiction of the Committee, and meetings, conferences, facility inspections, or subject matter which involve activities or subject matter relevant to the general jurisdiction of the Committee.

Before such authorization is given, there shall be submitted to the Chairman in writing the following:

(1) The purpose of the official travel;

(2) The date or dates of the official travel is to be made and the date or dates of the event for which the official travel is being made;

(3) The location of the event for which the official travel is to be made; and

(4) The names of Members and Committee staff seeking authorization.

In the case of official travel of Members and staff of a Subcommittee to hearings, meetings, conferences, facility inspections, or subject matter under the jurisdiction of such Subcommittee to be paid for out of funds allocated to such Subcommittee, prior authorization of the Subcommittee Chairman under whose authority the travel is to be made and the date or dates of the event for which the travel is to be made shall be submitted to the full Committee Chairman.

Rule 6. Availability of Committee Records and Public Access

The records of the Committee at the National Archives and Records Administration shall be made available for public use in accordance with Rule VII of the Rules of the House of Representatives. The Chairman shall notify the Ranking Minority Member of any decision, pursuant to clause 3(b)(3) or clause 4(b) of the rule, to withhold a record otherwise available pursuant to such rule shall be presented to the Committee for a determination on the written request of any Member of the Committee. The Committee shall, to the maximum extent feasible, make its publications available in electronic form.

Rule 7. Websites

The majority shall be entitled to a separate website that is linked or referable to, the full Committee’s Website. For any website created under this policy, the Ranking Minority Member is responsible for its content and must be identified on the introductory page.

All Committee websites must comply with House Regulations.

The content of a committee website may not:

(1) Include personal, political, or campaign information;

(2) Be directly linked or refer to websites created or operated by campaign or any campaign-related entity, including political parties;

(3) Include grassroots lobbying or solicit support for a Member’s position;

(4) Generate, circulate, solicit or encourage signing petitions;

(5) Include any advertisement for any private individual, firm, or corporation, or import any management or agency of the Government endorses or favors any specific commercial product, commodity, or service.

B. SUBCOMMITTEES

Rule 8. Subcommittee Ratios and Jurisdiction

All matters referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, except those revenue measures referred to the Committee on Ways and Means under paragraphs 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6, shall be considered by the full Committee and not in Subcommittees. There shall be six standing Subcommittees as follows: a Subcommittee on Trade; a Subcommittee on Oversight; a Subcommittee on Health; a Subcommittee on Social Security; a Subcommittee on Human Resources; and a Subcommittee on Select Revenue Measures. The ratio of Republicans to Democrats on any Subcommittee of the Committee shall be consistent with the ratio of Republicans to Democrats on the full Committee.

1. The Subcommittee on Trade shall consist of 15 Members, 9 of whom shall be Republicans and 6 of whom shall be Democrats.

The jurisdiction of the Subcommittee on Trade shall include matters referred to the Committee on Ways and Means that relate to customs and customs administration including tariff and import fee structures; domestic regulations for implementing international trade-related problems involving market access and national treatment; international trade negotiations and implementation of agreements involving trade and investment; the impact of trade matters on the federal budget and on the implementation of the Budget Act of 1974, as amended; and the evaluation of trade effects on American competitive conditions, national security, and utilization of American economic resources.

The Subcommittee on Oversight shall have jurisdiction over matters related to the organizations and institutional aspects of international trade agreements including multilateral and bilateral trade agreements, promotion of trade negotiations and implementation of agreements involving trade and investment; the impact of trade matters on the federal budget and on the implementation of the Budget Act of 1974, as amended; and the evaluation of trade effects on American competitive conditions, national security, and utilization of American economic resources.
The Subcommitte on Oversight shall consist of 13 Members, 8 of whom shall be Republicans and 5 of whom shall be Democrats. The jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Oversight shall be all matters within the scope of the full Committee’s jurisdiction but shall be limited to existing law. Said oversight jurisdiction shall not be ex-clusively concurrent with that of the other Subcommittees. With respect to matters involving the Internal Revenue Code and other revenue issues, said concurrent jurisdiction shall be shared with the full Committee. Before undertaking any investiga-tion or hearing, the Chairman of the Sub-committee on Oversight shall confer with the Chairman of the full Committee and the Chairman of any other Subcommitte having jurisdiction.

The Subcommitte on Health shall con-sist of 13 Members, 8 of whom shall be Republicans and 5 of whom shall be Democrats. The jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Health shall include bills and matters re-ferrred to the Committee on Ways and Means that relate to programs providing payments (from any source) for health care, health deliv-ery systems, or health research. More spe-cifically, the jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Health shall include bills and matters that relate to the health care pro-grams of the Social Security Act (including titles V, VI, X, XI (Part B), XVIII, and XIX thereof) and, concurrent with the full Committee, tax credit and deduc tion provisions of the Internal Revenue Code involving title II of the Social Security Act and Chapter 22 of the Internal Revenue Code (the Railroad Retirement Tax Act), as well as provisions of titles VII and title II of the Act relating to procedure and administration involving the Old-Age, Survivors’ and Disability Insurance System.

The Subcommitte on Human Resources shall consist of 13 Members, 8 of whom shall be Republicans and 5 of whom shall be Demo-crats. The jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Human Resources shall include bills and matters referred to the Committee on Ways and Means that relate to the public assistance provisions of the Social Security Act including welfare reform, supplemental security income, aid to families with dependent children, child support, general assistance, availability of welfare recipients for food stamps, and low-income energy assistance. More spe-cifically, the jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Human Resources shall include bills and matters relating to titles I, IV, VI, X, XIV, XVI, XVII, XX and related provisions of titles VII and XI of the Social Security Act.

The jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Human Resources shall also include bills and matters referred to the Committee on Ways and Means that relate to the Federal system of unemployment compensation, and the financing thereof, including the pro-grams for extended and emergency benefits. More specifically, the jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Human Resources shall also include all bills and matters pertaining to the programs of unemployment compensa-tion under titles III, IX and XII of the Social Security Act, Chapters 23 and 23A of the Internal Revenue Code, the Federal-State Ex-tended Unemployment Compensation Act of 1970, the Emergency Unemployment Com-pensation Act of 1974, and provisions relating thereto.

The Subcommitte on Select Revenue Measures shall consist of 11 Members, 7 of whom shall be Republicans and 4 of whom shall be Democrats. The jurisdiction of the Subcommitte on Select Revenue Measures shall consist of those revenue measures that, from time to time, shall be referred to it specifically by the Chairman of the full Committee.

Rule 9. Ex-Officio Members of Subcommittees

The Chairman of the full Committee and the Ranking Minority Member may sit as ex-officio Members of all Subcommittees. They may be counted for purposes of assisting in the establishment of a quorum for a Subcommitte. However, their absence shall not count against the establishment of a quorum by the regular Members of the Subcommitte. Ex-officio Members shall neither vote in the Subcommitte nor be taken into consideration for purposes of determining the ratio of Majority to Minority Members.

Rule 10. Subcommittee Meetings

Insofar as practicable, meetings of the full Committee and its Subcommittees shall not conflict. Subcommittees Chairmen shall set the meeting time with the approval of the Chairman of the full Committee and other Subcommittees Chairmen with a view toward avoiding, wherever possible, simultaneous scheduling of meetings of all full Committee and Subcommitte meetings or hearings.

Rule 11. Reference of Legislation and Subcommittee Reports

Except for bills or measures retained by the Chairman of the full Committee for consideration, every bill or other measure referred to the Committee shall be referred by the Chairman of the full Com-mittee to the appropriate Subcommittee in a timely manner. A Subcommittee shall, within 3 legislative days of the referral, acknowledge the same to the full Committee.

After a measure has been pending in a Sub-committee for a reasonable period of time, the Chairman of the full Committee may make a motion to report to the full Committee the Subcommittee report to the full Committee forthwith report the measure to the full Committee with its recommendations. If within 7 legis-islative days after the Chairman’s written re-quest, the Subcommittee has not so reported the measure, then there shall be in order in the full Committee a motion to discharge the Subcommittee from further consider-ation of the measure. If such motion is ap-proved by a majority vote of the full Com-mittee, the measure may thereafter be con-considered only by the full Committee.

No measure reported by a Subcommittee shall be considered by the full Committee unless it has been presented to all Members of the full Committee at least 2 legislative days prior to the full Committee’s meeting, together with a comparison with present law, a section-by-section analysis of the pro-posed change, a section-by-section justifica-tion, and a draft statement of the budget ef-fects of the measure that is consistent with the requirements for reported measures under clause (b)(8) of Rule 12 of the Rules of the House of Representatives.

Rule 12. Recommendation for Appointment of Conferes

Whenever in the legislative process it be-comes necessary to make conferences, the Chairman of the full Committee shall re-comeend to the Speaker as conferees the names of those Committee Members as the Chairman may designate. In making rec-ommendations of Minority Members as con-ferees, the Chairman shall consult with the Ranking Minority Member of the Com-mittee.

C. HEARINGS

Rule 13. Witnesses

In order to assure the most productive use of the limited time available to question hearing witnesses, a witness shall be sched-uled to appear before the full Committee or a Subcommittee shall file with the Clerk of the Committee at least 48 hours in advance of any hearing a statement of his proposed testimony. In addition, all wit-nesses shall comply with formatting require-ments as specified by the Committee and the Rules of the House. Failure to comply with the 48-hour rule may result in a witness being denied the opportunity to testify in person. Failure to comply with the for-matting requirements may result in a wit-ness’ statement being rejected for inclusion in the published hearing record. In addition to the requirements of clause 2 of Rule 13, witnesses shall submit in a form and manner acceptable to the Clerk for distribution to Members, staff and the public.

A witness appearing at a public hearing, or submitting a written statement to the Clerk, shall provide a statement of his appearance at the hearing, or submitting written com-ments in response to a published request for comments by the Committee must include a statement of the full Committee. Written statements from noncitizens may be con-sidered for acceptance in the record if transmitted to the Committee in writing by Members of Congress.

Rule 14. Questioning of Witnesses

Committee Members may question wit-nesses only when recognized by the Chair-man for that purpose. All Members shall be limited to 5 minutes on the initial round of questioning. In the event of a tie under the 5-minute rule, the Chairman and the Ranking Minority Member shall be recognized first after which Members who are in attendance at the beginning of a hearing will be recognized in the order of their seniority on the Committee. Other Members shall be recognized in the order of their appearance at the hearing. In response to question questions, the Chairman may take into consideration the ratio of Majority Members to Minority Members and the number of questions and answers Members represent and shall apportion the recognition for questioning in such a manner as not to disadvantage Members of the majority.

Rule 15. Subpoena Power

The power to authorize and issue sub- poenas is delegated to the Chairman of the full Committee, as provided for under clause 2p3 of Rule XI of the House of Representa-tives.

Rule 16. Records of Hearings

In accurate stenographic record shall be kept of all testimony taken at a public hear-ing. The staff shall transmit to a witness the transcript of his testimony for correction and immediate return to the Committee offices. Only changes in the interest of clarity, accuracy and corrections in transcribing errors will be permitted. Changes that substanti- ally alter the actual testimony will not be permitted. Members shall correct their own testimony and return transcripts as soon as possible after receiving them. The Chairman of the full Committee may order the printing of a hearing without the corrections of a witness or Member if he determines that a rea- sonable time has been afforded to make cor- rections and that further delay would impede the consideration of the legislation or other measure that is the subject of the hearing.

Rule 17. Broadcasting of Hearings

The provisions of clause 4(f) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives are specifically made a part of these rules by reference. In addition, the following policy shall apply to media coverage of any meeting of the full Committee or a Subcommittee:

1. An appropriate area of the Committee’s hearing room will be designated for members of the media and their equipment.
2. No interviews will be allowed in the Committee room while the Committee is in session. Interviews must take place before the gavel falls for the convening of a meeting or after the gavel falls for adjournment.
3. Day-to-day notification of the next day’s electronic coverage shall be provided by the media to the Chairman of the full Committee through an appropriate designee.
4. Staff members during a Committee meeting will not be permitted to disrupt the proceedings or block the vision of Committee Members or witnesses.
5. Further conditions may be specified by the Chairman.

D. MARKUPS

Rule 18. Reconsideration of Previous Vote

When an amendment or other matter has been disposed of, it shall be in order for any Member of the prevailing side, on the same or next day on which a quorum of the Committee is present, to move the reconsideration thereof, and such motion shall take precedence of other questions except the consideration of a motion to adjourn.

Rule 19. Previous Question

The Chairman shall not recognize a Mem- ber for the purpose of moving the previous question unless the Member has first advised the Chairman and the Committee that this is the purpose for which recognition is being sought.

Rule 20. Official Transcripts of Markups and Other Committee Meetings

An official stenographic transcript shall be kept accurately reflecting all markups and other meetings of the full Committee and the Subcommittees, whether they be open or closed to the public. This official transcript, marked as “uncorrected,” shall be available for inspection by the public (except for meetings closed pursuant to clause 2(g)(1) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House), by Members of the House, or by Members of the Committee together with their staffs, during normal business hours in the full Committee or Subcommittee, such controls as the Chairman of the full Committee deems neces- sary. Official transcripts shall not be re- moved from the Committee or Subcommittee. Furthermore, in the drafting of a Committee or Subcommittee decision, the Office of the House Legislative Counsel or (2) in the preparation of a Com- mittee report of Staff of the Appropriations Committee on Taxation determines in (con- sultation with appropriate majority and mi- nority committee staff) that it is necessary to review the official transcript of a markup, such transcript may be released upon the signature and to the custody of an appro- priation member, and such transcript shall be returned immediately after its review in the drafting sessions

The official transcript of a markup or Committee meeting other than a public hearing shall not be published or distributed to the public in any way except by a major- ity vote of the Committee. The release of the uncorrected transcript, Members- must be given a reasonable opportunity to correct their remarks. In instances in which a stenographic transcript is kept in committee conference committee proceeding, all of the requirements of this rule shall likewise be observed.

Rule 21. Publication of Decisions and Legislative Language

A press release describing any tentative or final decision made by the full Committee or a Subcommittee on legislation under consideration shall be made available to each Member of the Committee as soon as pos- sible, but no later than the next day. How- ever, the release of a final decision of the full Committee or a Subcommittee shall not be publicly released until such draft is made available to each Member of the Committee.

E. STAFF

Rule 22. Supervision of Committee Staff

The staff of the Committee shall be under the general supervision and direction of the Chairman of the full Committee except as provided in clause 9 of Rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives concerning Committee expenses and staff.

Pursuant to clause 6(d) of Rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee may authorize such staff as it deems necessary to carry out its responsibilities under the Rules of the Committee and that the majority is fairly treated in the appoint- ment of such staff.

Rule 23. Staff Honoraria, Speaking Engagements, and Unofficial Travel

This rule shall apply to all majority and minority staff of the Committee and its Subcommittees.

a. Honoraria.—Under no circumstances shall a staff person accept the offer of an honorarium. This prohibition includes the direction of an honorarium to a charity.

b. Speaking Engagements and Unofficial Travel.—

(1) Advance Approval Required.—In the case of all speaking engagements, fact-finding trips, and other unofficial travel, a staff person must receive approval from the full Committee Chairman (or, in the case of the minority staff, from the Ranking Minority Member) at least 7 calendar days prior to the event.

(2) Required for Approval.—A request for approval must be submitted in writing to the full Committee Chairman (or, where appropriate, the Ranking Minority Member) in connection with any speaking engagement, fact-finding trip, or other unofficial travel. Such request must contain the following in- formation:

(a) the name of the sponsoring organization and a general description of such organization (nonprofit organization, trade association, etc.);
(b) the nature of the event, including any relevant information regarding attendees at such event;
(c) in the case of a speaking engagement, the subject of the speech and duration of staff travel, if any; and
(d) in the case of a fact-finding trip or international travel, a description of the proposed itinerary and proposed agenda of sub- stantive issues to be discussed, as well as a participation of the expenses and importance of the fact-finding trip or international trav- el to the staff member’s official duties.

(3) Reasonable Travel and Lodging Expenses Allowed.—Upon receipt of approval described in (1) above, a staff person may accept reimbursement by an appro- priate sponsoring organization of reasonable travel and lodging expenses associated with a speaking engagement, fact-finding trip, or international travel related to official du- ties, provided such reimbursement is consis- tent with the Rules of the House of Representa- tives. In lieu of reimbursement after the event, expenses may be paid directly by an appropriate sponsoring organization. The reasonable travel and lodging expenses of a spouse (but not children) may be reimbursed (or directly paid) by an appropriate sponsoring organization consistent with the Rules of the House of Representatives applicable to the Committee, but rather are considered to be some of the more important rules to which frequent reference is made.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentle- man from Iowa (Mr. NUSSELE) is rec- ognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. SMITH of Washington addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

REVISIONS TO THE ALLOCATION FOR THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentle- man from Iowa (Mr. NUSSELE) is rec- ognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. NUSSELE. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to sec- tion 314 of the Congressional Budget Act, I hereby submit for printing in the CONGRES- SIONAL RECORD revisions to the allocation for the House Committee on Appropriations. The allocation for fiscal year 2001 printed in the House Report 761 is increased to reflect $8,303,000,000 in additional obligation au- thority and $4,392,000,000 in additional out- lays for emergency appropriations, as detailed in the following table:
Those allocation adjustments will change the allocation of House Committee on Appropriations to $609,656,000,000 in budget authority and $638,827,000,000 in outlays for fiscal year 2001. The aggregate total will increase to $1,506,048,000,000 in budget authority and $1,506,048,000,000 in outlays.

Questions may be directed to Dan Kowsalski or Jim Bates at extension 67270.

FIRE SAFETY AT THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, late last month the Office of Compliance reported on its comprehensive fire-safety inspections of the three Library of Congress buildings.

After previous dire warnings over the last two years, the House Inspector General and the Compliance Office about the state of fire protection in the Capitol and congressional office buildings, I had hoped for a better report on conditions at the Library. Unfortunately, the Compliance Office found that the Library buildings suffer from many of the same deficiencies as the Capitol and congressional buildings.

I strongly believe that Congress must take every reasonable step to maximize the physical safety of the thousands who work in the Capitol complex every day and of the millions who visit every year. Congress also has a responsibility to safeguard the numerous valuable artifacts, many of them irreplaceable, which are housed in the Capitol and among the Library's collections.

In view of the Compliance Office's findings at the Library, the new Chairman of the House Administration Committee (Mr.NEY) and I have written jointly to the Architect of the Capitol, who has responsibility for maintaining the Library's buildings, asking for a detailed report on the status of his efforts to correct the deficiencies there. Specifically, we have requested detailed plans, timelines, and an identification of any additional resources needed to complete the task. We have also written to the House Inspector General, who has demonstrated substantial expertise in fire-protection matters making his office to participate in regular meetings with Architect and Library staff, offer whatever guidance he deems appropriate, and monitor progress, as he does in connection with ongoing fire-safety work in the House.

Last September the Architect unveiled before the House Administration Committee a staff reorganization plan that places all AOC fire-safety work under the supervision of a single senior-level subordinate, as proposed in a bill (H.R. 4366) that I introduced in the last Congress. The AOC is clearly moving in the right direction and I appreciate the progress he has made. The Chairman and I look forward to working with the Architect to ensure the deficiencies previously noted, and those just identified at the Library, are remedied as soon as practicable. I include for the RECORD the texts of our letters to the Architect and the Inspector General of the House:

DEAR MR. HANTMAN: We have received the recent Office of Compliance report on its fire-safety inspections of the Library of Congress buildings. As you know, the Office found numerous fire-safety deficiencies in the three Library buildings, the same types of deficiencies found last year during thorough inspections of the Capitol and congressional office buildings. We are greatly concerned about the report and the grave danger posed to Library employees, visitors, and to the Library's enormous collection of books and artifacts, many irreplaceable, by decades of inadequate attention to fire-safety matters. We know you share our concern, and trust that you also share our determination to see these additional deficiencies corrected at the earliest possible date.

Toward that goal, we ask that you provide us immediately with a comprehensive report on the status of AOC efforts to correct deficiencies found in the Library buildings. Please provide detailed plans for the correction of deficiencies that remain uncorrected, including an identification of any additional resources that you may need to complete the work and timelines for its completion. We also ask that you assess the level of fire protection now afforded to the Library's most valuable artifacts, and indicate how you will prioritize the correction of deficiencies related to their protection.

We appreciate the progress that AOC has made in addressing fire-safety deficiencies in the House office buildings since the Inspector General's and Compliance Office's previous reports. We hope the Library can benefit from the AOC's experience in addressing those deficiencies. In that vein, we encourage you to incorporate into your approach for the Library the use of frequent, regular meetings among AOC, Library, and House Inspector General staff, to coordinate efforts and facilitate communication. A similar approach has worked well in the House.

Thanking you for your prompt attention to this request, with kindest regards, we remain

Sincerely yours,

STENY H. HOYER,
Chairman.

Ranking Minority Member.

BUDGET PRIORITIES AND FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, the most important issue facing this Congress is the amount of the tax cut that has been proposed by the President and by the majority party, and a majority of Americans apparently think that this tax cut would be in their best interests. Today I would like to make five points why I disagree, and try to explain why I think a cut of this proposed magnitude is potentially disastrous.

The five points that I would like to make are, one, CBO's 10-year surplus projections are highly unreliable; secondly, the tax cut is skewed to benefit those who need the assistance the least; third, I believe that this tax cut is fiscally irresponsible in that it is substantially understated; fourthly, the tax cut ignores the financial catastrophe that we know is going to occur when the baby boom generation retires in another few years; and, fifth, it does not address what I believe is our highest priority, which is to pay off our public debt before we do anything else with the surplus.
On point number one, Mr. Speaker, the projections upon which we assume that we can afford the tax cut are highly dependent upon economic performance that is, at best, uncertain in the near term, and really has no credible basis in the long term. CBO has increased their estimates from 2.8 percent to a little above 3 percent annual growth, but if they are off by as much as eight-tenths of one percent, $4 trillion of the surplus goes away.

GAT, Controller David Walker testified before the Congress that “no one should design tax or spending policy pegged to the precise numbers in any 10-year forecast.” He also said it is important to remember that while projections for the next 10-year period look better, the long-term outlook looks much worse.

Mr. Speaker, secondly, it is important to understand that the effect of the tax cut applies primarily to those who in fact pay the most taxes. But the top 1 percent of the population whose incomes are over $320,000 a year, now pay about 21 percent of the taxes. One percent pays 21 percent of the total Federal taxes; yet they would get 43 percent of the benefit. Eighty percent of the population pays less than 29 percent of the entire tax cut benefit.

Thirdly, Mr. Speaker, while the tax plan proposes a $1.6 trillion cut, it does not include the additional interest costs that are incurred because it is not aimed at paying down the debt. It also raises the number of people who will be subject to the alternative minimum tax from 2 million today to 27 million households by 2010. Virtually everybody over $75,000 a year in income is going to hit with the alternative minimum tax. They are going to be screaming at the time, and we are going to have to fix it at a substantial cost that is not factored in here. I should also say the estimates do not include a mandatory retirement or civil service retirement.

Fourthly, the baby boomer crisis. Once the baby boom generation that was born right after World War II starts to retire, we are going to be in the position of only three workers for every retiree. That creates a situation that is untenable. So after we get out past 2011, when all these estimates are pegged, we are going to find that for the next life span we are as much as $22 trillion short in Social Security and $12 trillion short in Medicare.

The best thing we could do right now is to currently fund that unfunded Social Security liability. If we put $3.1 trillion aside, as we would do if we were facing this in our own family or in a private corporation, we could fund that unfunded liability and not leave that burden to our children and grandchildren to do so.

Lastly, Mr. Speaker, let me say that our highest priority should be to pay down the debt. That is the best way we can invest in our future, and that is the best gift we can give to our children and grandchildren. We do it in our own family; we ought to do it in the Nation’s best interest as well.

The Economic Future of America

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, it is a real pleasure to be here today to talk about something I think that is critically important to the future of this country. I want us to look, if we will, deep into the 21st century, and I think we start that by looking back historically and seeing where we have come from. I want to talk a little bit about the economic future of this country.

Mr. Speaker, after all, as a government, the people of this country expect us to be an economic power, to provide a structure, an economic structure, that will enable the private sector to flourish.

It has worked as well. Mr. Speaker, as any plan that has been put together in the history of mankind. We have something that is very special. This economic model, this experiment we are on now for over 225 years, has taken us to be the most powerful Nation in the world, not only economically, but also militarily and politically.

Let us look back, Mr. Speaker, just a few short years, back into 1990. We just came out of the decade of the ‘80s. Ronald Reagan had served us 8 years wonderfully as our President. He had spent a lot of his time focusing on the Soviet Union and the Cold War, and actually we saw the fall of the Soviet Union in the late decade of the ‘80s.

But if you looked at what was happening fiscally in our country, Mr. Speaker, at that time, we were in pretty bad shape. Economically we were headed down the wrong path. If you go back to 1990, you would have found annual deficits in the range of $250 to $300 billion a year. You had a mounting debt that was climbing a quarter of a trillion dollars annually.

Many of us who were in the private sector at that time thought that the economic experiment that we were involved in this country was headed for an economic disaster as we moved toward the 21st century.

But as you know, in 1990, with the leadership of President Bush, the first step was taken to change the economic direction of this country. As a matter of fact, those changes, led by President Bush, probably cost him his reelection in 1992.

Then again in 1993, under the leadership of President Clinton, another big step was taken to sort of build the wall around that foundation that President Bush had built to get us headed back in the right direction. With that economic plan in 1993, this government, this economic model that we are involved in here, began to head in the right direction and lower its deficits and head toward a day where we could actually pay our bills on an annual basis and would not be swallowed with red ink.

Secondly, when I ran for Congress in 1996 it was the major campaign theme. The major campaign theme was balancing the budget, removing the deficits, the annual deficits that we had. So this is not something that is new, something we are actually talking about. This is important stuff for the long-term health of this country.

Under the leadership of the House and Senate, Speaker Gingrich, Majority Leader Lott, and President Clinton, in 1997 a Balanced Budget Act was put into place, put into law, which was a plan, a blueprint, to lead us out of red ink and lead us into an era when we could actually pay our bills. Speaker, that model we have is so wonderful that we actually achieved that goal of getting away from deficits about 5 years ahead of that schedule. The 1997 Balanced Budget Act had us balancing the budget in, I think, the year 2003, but we actually did that about 3 or 4 years ahead of that schedule. We have a wonderful window of opportunity here now to continue the work, to continue the job.

Mr. Speaker, the budget process is like a business plan. It is like a business plan that our businesses all across this Nation do on an annual basis. They sit down and they look at what kind of business they want to do, what their objectives are, what parts of their business they have to fund, what revenue they can expect to come in, and then they put all that together in a budget and then they go out and implement it.

Mr. Speaker, that business plan allocates, in the case of our Federal Government, limited Federal resources to our priorities that we think are important.

Mr. Speaker, the surplus is currently projected at $2.7 trillion. That is if we do not use Social Security and Medicare. We all know the CBO, Mr. Speaker, which I have a summary here which we want to examine a little bit closer as we spend some time in this next hour, the CBO report talks about a $5.6 trillion figure over the next 10 years, and that is true; but we know that of that $5.6 trillion, that about half of it is money that comes into the Social Security trust fund and the Medicare Trust Fund.

So we really ought to all get on the same page and talk about the current surplus, the projected surplus, Mr. Speaker, being at $2.7 trillion, because that as late as last week this House voted, I think unanimously, to reinsert its belief that the Social Security funds and the Medicare funds ought to go in a lockbox, and they ought not to be touched for any purpose other than those two specific purposes.

So, Mr. Speaker, we want to spend the next hour examining some of the priorities that this Nation needs to deal with as we have this debate about surpluses, about tax cuts and about our economic plan.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I am glad to recognize the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Stenholm) to spend a few minutes talking about his perspective.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me, and I thank him for taking this time today.

I hope that everyone will pay particular attention to some of the comments they are hearing from our colleagues going to be making. We will have the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Taylor), who will be on the floor momentarily, and will talk very accurately about the fact that we really do not have surpluses.

When we look at the Social Security trust fund, the Medicare trust fund, the Military Retirees trust fund, highways, airports, that really and truly, there is no $5 trillion, $6 trillion surplus.

We ask our colleagues, particularly our friends in the majority, to not just look at part of the CBO report, but take a look at the whole report. Notice where they make a very sound observation in that, first off, projecting the economy of the world for 10 years is almost impossible. No one pretends to be accurate. Yet, here we are now all of a sudden taking 10-year projections, and we hear $5.6 trillion of surpluses, and we have a $700 billion surplus.

We ask our colleagues, particularly our friends in the majority, to not just look at part of the CBO report, but take a look at the whole report. Notice where they make a very sound observation in that, first off, projecting the economy of the world for 10 years is almost impossible. No one pretends to be accurate. Yet, here we are now all of a sudden taking 10-year projections, and we hear $5.6 trillion of surpluses, and we have a $700 billion surplus.

As a result of the economic policies that have been followed over the last 8 years, and the budget actions that have been taken by the Congress over the last 6 or 8 years, we now find ourselves in a position in which the markets are reacting. Yes, we are collecting more tax revenue because people are making more money. That is good. That is not bad. But the question we have to ask is, how long will it continue?

We had a budget alternative, the Blue Dogs, last year which focused on reducing the national debt. This is our budget again this year. We had a budget that focused on saving Social Security first. My personal preference is, I wish we would have had the first serious discussion on this floor this year on saving Social Security and Medicare.

I happen to represent a rural district, and my hospitals and now my nursing homes, my nursing home constituency has been pointing out over the last several months, we are hurting, too. The BBA of 1997 reduced the reimbursement rates of the nursing homes, as well as the hospitals, below what it cost them to stay in business. We have to address that, and that is going to cost some money.

I want to make it very, very clear, the Blue Dog Democrats favor cutting taxes. We are very strongly in favor of dealing with the marriage tax penalty; a perfect day to discuss it, Valentine’s Day. We are for it. We will vote for it. We encourage it to be in the final package. But the question we have to ask is, how long will it continue?

We are for dealing with the estate tax, the so-called death tax. We believe that it is not helpful to have a penalty assessed to a small businessman or woman that spent a lifetime building up their business, and it will be in our budget.

We would like to see across-the-board tax cuts, if that is possible for us to do.

Now, I was not very happy with the cuteness of the vote yesterday, of the actual bill yesterday, because it left a loophole. I hope the American people will hold us accountable not to the loopholes of being able to potentially spend these trust funds twice, which was possible with the legislation yesterday, but to really and truly mean it when we say we are not going to spend, and let us put it more positively, we are going to take this short-term benefit that we have with Social Security in which we are collecting in more than we are paying out to today’s beneficiaries and we are going to take that money and pay down the debt held by the public.

That is good. When I say that is good, that is being interpreted by the markets as being good. Everyone perhaps looking right now or listening to this right now should ask themselves, and answer a simple question, would they rather have 6% percent home mortgagors or 7% percent? When we are buying a new car, would we rather have a 6, 7, 8 percent loan, or an 18 percent loan?

As a result of the economic policies that have been followed over the last 8 years, and the budget actions that have been taken by the Congress over the last 6 or 8 years, we now find ourselves in a position in which the markets are reacting. Yes, we are collecting more tax revenue because people are making more money. That is good. That is not bad. But the question we have to ask is, how long will it continue?

We would like to see across-the-board tax cuts, if that is possible for us to do. Some of us, myself being in this category, I would like to see us take this opportunity now to do more than just complain about the energy problems of this country.

A couple of years ago we had a depression in the oil patch. No one was worried about the domestic oil and gas producers, who were going broke in droves because no one can produce oil and gas at $7 a barrel, but no one was concerned about it then because we were all enjoying the cheapness of energy.

Well, today everyone, including those of us living in the oil patch, are complaining about the price of energy. Why would this not be a good time to look at using the Tax Code to accomplish some much needed improvements in our energy policy in this country?

A simple question I ask, and unfortunately it is not in the President’s plan yet, but the President has said, I am amenable to change. I have submitted a plan to the President and Congress. I was offered the unique opportunity to hear Congress’s opinion on where we go. I would like to see us deal with this.

I would like to see us deal with some environmental incentives, some production incentives, we clearly need to do for the benefit of this country. Most everyone would agree to that. There are a lot of things going on both sides of the aisle to prepare us for this national energy policy. But in mention that Congress is not in the current numbers we hear being kicked around.

I know I have other colleagues that want to take a little bit of time now, so let me kind of summarize where we are as far as the Blue Dogs’ input into the budget considerations this year. I can summarize it pretty quickly: Let us bring a budget to the floor of the House first. Let us not bring tax bills to the floor that everyone will feel in forced to vote for because they do not want to explain why they are opposed to it. Why not deal with the budget first, bring the budget out, and agree on what the budget should look like.

Here it is pretty simple. In a $5.6 trillion projected surplus, Social Security is 2.5 of that, Medicare is .4 of that, that leaves $2.7 trillion. How much of that $2.7 trillion surplus can we afford to spend on a tax cut? That is a simple question.

A lot of folks are saying, “There he goes, he is talking about spending like it is their money. Taxes are our money.” No, let us not continue to forget that the Social Security system has an unfunded liability of almost $9 trillion. Part of that money we are talking about I think needs to be devoted back to saving Social Security. That is not in the current discussions that we hear. Medicare, the same.

For military retirement, we will hear from the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Taylor) in a moment, it is several hundred billions of dollars. Let us deal with that first. Then let us also agree how much additional spending we want. to make in the area of defense. How much is it going to be required to make sure we maintain the strength of America that has allowed peace to become a prevalent word in this world today? How much?

We are going to build a missile defense system. The cheapest version I have heard is $50 billion over the next 10 years, probably more than that. So we are saying, let us have a tax cut. Let us put at least half of that projected surplus, though, against the debt, and let us have an absolute tough decision on spending.

Let us revise or bring back what worked so well for us over the last several years, at least prior to 1997. Let us put some caps on discretionary spending that we agree to, numbers, and then let the appropriators spend that money, but let us stay within that discretionary level.

We can do it. It can be done. We can meet the needs of defense, of veterans, of education, of health care, of the environment, of the future. We can do all of these things if we truly reach out in a bipartisan way.

That term is getting overworked, but here today, we are on the floor. We would love to have a discussion with someone on the other side of the aisle regarding some of the points that I have made, that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD) has made, that our other colleagues will make here in a few moments.

The basics are, we think we ought to have a budget first. Let us have that debate first, and then let us debate the makeup of the tax cut and how much money we are going to spend or save. But even more importantly, let us not forget that the first priority today should be saving Social Security first. If we do not do that, if we do not make a serious effort to do that this year, it will be postponed for another 4 years, because we will never be able to bring it under the climate that will be present here.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend, the gentleman from Texas, who has been in this Congress a long time and is recognized as probably the major deficit hawk in Congress. I know that he is very pleased that we have come so far with the 1997 Balanced Budget Act, and I know that he is somewhat painsed by the fact that we may be reversing that policy with really good spending caps in place that are very, very important.

I say to the gentleman from Texas, the 1997 Balanced Budget Act did put into place some very good spending caps. Those have expired I think as of this year. I really believe that it is time for Congress to look again at what we worked for us in 1997 and has really helped us tremendously, and hopefully we would take another step on the spending side to make sure that we do not let spending run out of control again.

Mr. STENHOLM. If the gentleman would yield again briefly, Mr. Speaker, the problem with the 1997 budget caps were that they were unrealistic. There was not anywhere close to a majority on the majority side of the aisle to live up to it. Therefore, it is extremely important that when we set the caps, be realistic. We have to increase money in the defense of this country, I will say that.

As I say that to the gentleman, I am talking about spending the people's money, because Congress does not make money. The only way we get money to spend is we have to tax people so that we can buy, we have to spend a little bit more of our taxpayer dollars on defense. So let us put that in the budget. Let us not be unrealistic, as we were in saying we are going to increase defense but we are going to cut health care, we are going to cut agriculture, we are going to cut highways, we are going to cut justice, knowing the votes are not there.

This is where bipartisanship has to come forward. We will have a significant deficit reduction and a significant number of Republicans that can agree on a realistic set of caps.

Mr. BOYD. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, I think the important point is that any prudent businessman would establish what the spending levels are first before they begin to implement any part of the budget. I think that is what the gentleman is recommending.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER), another leader in the Blue Dogs. He came in the same year as I did, after the 1996 election, and he has been a leader on these budget issues.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me. I appreciate the opportunity to share this hour with my fellow Blue Dog Democrats, the voice of fiscal conservatism in this House. We have worked long and hard on fiscal issues; paying down the debt, cutting taxes, balancing the budget.

I am glad to be here with the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), my colleague from Utah (Mr. MATTHESON), and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR), to talk about what will be the dominant issue in this Congress for the next several months.

I think we all understand that when we began this Congress, we all shared a commitment to try to work together in a bipartisan way. I was pleased to see President Bush, who I served with when he was Governor of Texas, come with a budget that was a bipartisan way, because for too long the two parties in this House and in this Congress have warred with one another in such a way that the American people have become tired of seeing the bickering that exists here. Perhaps that is one way in which the American people have a budget that does not allow us to pay down our national debt.

Are we going to be for the big tax cut that does not allow us to pay down the national debt, does not allow us to protect and preserve Social Security and Medicare for the future, does not allow us to reach for our children? That is the choice that the American people and this Congress have.

I know we all believe in tax cuts, and I want the biggest tax cut that we can afford, but this Congress must operate the same way that we must operate in our own households. When we sit down at the beginning of the month, we balance our checkbook and we determine what our income is, and we divide that income among the bills that we owe.

If there is something left over after we pay our bills, then maybe we can go out for a fancy dinner or maybe we can even decide to buy a little nicer automobile or maybe we can afford to take a trip, but at my household, and I know at many, we decide that on a month-by-month basis.

I do not know anybody who has ever sat down at the kitchen table and said, talking to their wife, you know, honey, I think, that we are going to be able to afford some things on down the line. I think I will probably get a raise every year for the next 10 years. And since I probably think I may get a raise, that means I have a surplus, and I think we ought to go ahead and spend that surplus now.

That is what this Congress is doing when this Congress decides to cut taxes in an amount equal to the surplus that is estimated to arrive here over the next 10 years under a whole bunch of assumptions that should not make a bit of sense. One of the assumptions is that Federal spending go up at the rate of inflation.

Government spending, for the last 5 years, even under the Republican Congress, has increased. Those who have joined with them trying to hold down spending, government spending still went up at the rate of the gross domestic product. That is a fancy word, but it is a number that is bigger than inflation.

If we just continued to spend on defense at the rate of the gross domestic product, $450 billion of this surplus we are talking about over the next 10 years would disappear. If we simply continue to spend on education at the rate of the increase in the gross domestic product, $400 billion of that surplus would disappear.

What makes us think, after all of the efforts that we have made to be fiscally conservative and to hold down spending for the last 5 years, that we are going to be able to do even better than that? I hope we are better than that, frankly, but to cut taxes in an amount that prevents us from being able to meet the legitimate need of this country in areas like national defense is foolish.

I am convinced that the tax cut that the President has proposed is too big. We simply cannot afford it. So what can we afford? I think the Blue Dogs have a reasonable plan. We have always said, as this whole Congress has repeatedly pledged, we will not touch the surplus that accrues in the Social Security trust fund or the Medicare trust fund. Those trust funds are going to need every penny that will accrue in those funds.

What do we have left even under the optimistic estimate? We have about $2.7 trillion over 10 years. The Blue Dogs have said repeatedly take half of that and use it to pay down our national debt; take 25 percent of it and let us cut our taxes and let us set aside 25 percent to be sure that we save Social Security and Medicare and strengthen our national defense and provide our kids with the kind of education that we know they need.

That is a fiscally conservative approach to budgeting, and the Blue Dogs believe foremost of all that we have to have a budget. The President sent his tax cut down here the other day. He has not sent his budget, yet, and he has pledged to us that his tax cut will fit within his budget. Frankly, I do not think it will, but even if he moves the numbers enough to make it fit, there is going to be some things that will have to be neglected that I think most Americans want to protect; foremost among those is to protect Social Security and to protect Medicare.

Our seniors and those of us who will soon be seniors deserve the protection of a sound Social Security system, and we need to protect Medicare. Health care costs are so out of control that many of the hospitals in my rural district are threatened with closing. I want to protect Medicare because those hospitals depend largely upon Medicare revenues to keep the doors open.

We believe in fiscal responsibility. The Blue Dog Democrats are going to fight for fiscal responsibility, and I am glad to join my colleagues on the floor today to advocate what I think is in the best interests of the American people.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNEE), my friend, one of the leaders of the Blue Dogs, for his fine leadership on these issues.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON), one of our new Members.

Mr. MATHESON. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD), it is a pleasure to be here today to talk about the importance of fiscal responsibility.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to tell the gentleman that when it comes to this type of issue, I am true to my Scottish heritage when it comes to money, especially the people's money.

I do not like deficits, and I do not like debt. It means that we live within our means. I come from the State of Utah, and I know how my constituents feel. We conduct our lives in a way where we live within a budget. We try to face the future in a way where we pay down our debts when we have the opportunity to do so, and we try to face the future and invest in the future to make the world a better place for our children.

That is the type of attitude I think we ought to have as we approach this budget issue here in Congress, and that is why I am so proud to be associated with the Blue Dog coalition.

The Blue Dogs was first introduced to me when I was a candidate, and we sat down and we shared our thoughts about budget issues, about our desire to pay down the debt. Issues that make sense to me. Common sense solutions.

The Blue Dogs have a reputation of being up front with people about the truth. In this atmosphere, as we sort through a lot of the rhetoric that we have in terms of addressing such important issues. That is why I am proud to be here today with my fellow Blue Dogs to talk about these issues. I think as we look at this issue, it is important that we have the right perspective.

I have learned in my life as a businessman and in my personal life that it is very easy to get caught up in the short term day-to-day pressures and emotions of the moment, and that dominates your perspective. And, yet, we all recognize the benefit of taking a step back and taking the longer view when we make decisions.

We make better decisions when we do that; that same applies to Congress. I think we often look at the short term perspective here. People look out to the next election when they make decisions.

We should not be driven by the next election. When we are making decisions in Congress, we should not be looking at the next generation in how we make decisions on these important issues of maintaining fiscal responsibility, that is the perspective that I would like to have brought before this whole House of Congress have.

Let us make it clear there will be tax cuts this year. I have certainly campaigned on the notion of tax cuts in terms of addressing the marriage penalty and estate tax issues, and I think there is great support within Congress to pursue that type of tax cut.

As we move forward in this tax cut discussion, I would offer a quick list of five items that should be considered, common sense considerations, that ought to be included in any discussion of these issues.

The first is that let us be up front about the nature of these budget projections. We ought to be skeptical about this. We are talking about a 10-year projection, and what is interesting is over 70 percent of the projected surplus takes place in the second 5 years.

Does it really make sense for us today to make a commitment assuming that is going to happen? What is the rush to make that decision today? The responsible thing to do is to live within our means, do what we can to try to have our economy grow. And we hope that surplus occurs. We should all do what we can to make that occur, but let us be skeptical about the notion that this surplus is definitely going to happen.

I am a businessman. I have dealt with projections before. When we make projections of the future, the one thing we know, the minute we write it down on the paper is it is probably going to be wrong, so we ought to be cautious and we ought to be smart about that.
But let me talk about a future prediction where we can be certain, that is the second consideration we ought to keep in mind. The second prediction about the future is that we are going to have a whole bunch of baby boomers starting to retire in about 10 years, so whether you hammer away, we know, in terms of the demographics of our country, we are going do have a lot more people moving into the retirement phase of their lives, and that is going to place far more pressure on Social Security and Medicare.

We have the opportunity now, while times are good, to address that issue. Let us not squander the prosperity we have today with short-term thinking. Let us take that longer view when it comes to Social Security and Medicare. A third issue I will mention, a consideration we ought to think about as we look at these tax cuts. Most of us have put together a budget in our lives. Those of us in the business world have done that, and everybody has probably done it for their own household, and when we look at a budget, simply stated, you look at money in and you look at money out. You have revenues and you have expenses, and you match them up, and you figure out what makes sense.

Right now we are only looking at half of that equation. How can we, as an institution, make informed decisions about tax cuts which affect the revenue side without also understanding how it fits with projected expenses? I 1430

I say that if we are going to behave in a responsible manner, it is important to look at the whole budget before we make decisions.

Fourth, the issue we ought to remember is let us recognize the true cost of any tax cut. The projections we have about the surplus are based on nothing happening, on taxes staying the way they are now. If we do have that surplus, the assumptions in these projections are that we are going to pay down our debt. As we pay down the debt, we lower government spending on interest on that debt. If we are going to cut taxes, there is going to be a corresponding increase in government spending because we are not going to be paying down the debt as fast and there is more of an interest expense.

We are going to pursue tax cuts, but as we talk about it, let us be honest. Let us talk about the full cost of any tax cut that we pass in Congress. There is a cost in terms of increased interest because the debt will not be paid down as fast. A fifth point that is a consideration, as we look at tax cuts is the notion that paying down the debt creates so many benefits, so many benefits in the short term, so many benefits in the long term. We bring down interest rates. That is good. We give ourselves greater flexibility if we remove that as part of government spending. Right now interest is the third highest expenditure of the Federal government behind Social Security and defense. We all like the notion of trying to cut government spending. This is an easy one. All we have to do is show some discipline down our debt and lower expenditures on interest. That makes sense to me.

I think that it is important to have this discussion today as Blue Dogs, but I think it is important to have this discussion across the aisle. If we can take that longer view and set aside considerations of just the next election, there will be a better opportunity to have some bipartisan consideration and to really affect this in a positive way. We ought to have a bipartisan agreement to be fiscally responsible. I think we share a lot of values on both sides of the aisles. I am convinced that the Blue Dogs are prepared to engage in those discussions.

Mr. BOYD of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON) for coming. He is obviously going to be a very productive and bright Member of this Congress as we move through these critical times for this Nation.

Next, Mr. Speaker, I want to call on the gentleman from Mississippi who has been a leader on military views, particularly issues which relate to the welfare of our troops, all of our military men and women and around the world; and obviously our national defense is maybe the most important role of this Federal Government.

The gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) is going to spend some time now talking about the budget, and I am honored to yield to the gentleman from Mississippi. Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Florida for this opportunity.

If I were to walk into a town hall meeting and tell the people there that I discovered this magic cure to where our Nation can quit wasting a billion dollars a day, I would think that they would be excited about it. People always say how about stopping wasteful foreign aid, which is about $13 billion, or why can we not cut back on food stamps which is about $30 billion. A $1 billion a day is $365 billion and every month in their Social Security payment; and they trust that that money is set aside and will be there to pay for their retirement.

People always say how about stopping wasteful foreign aid, which is about $13 billion, or why can we not cut back on food stamps which is about $30 billion. A $1 billion a day is $365 billion and every month in their Social Security payment; and they trust that that money is set aside and will be there to pay for their retirement.

It is that easy. We just pay off the national debt. Each day this Nation squanders $1 billion in interest on the national debt. We did it yesterday, we did it the day before that, and we will do it tomorrow; and by the way, we are going to do it every day for the rest of your life until we pay off the national debt.

With that money do we educate a child, build a road, contribute to national security, fulfill our promise of lifetime health care to our retirees, no.

That is why it makes it the most wasteful thing that we do as a Nation, is squandering your tax money in interest on the national debt.

What troubles me in this whole tax cut debate is how many of my colleagues from the Republican party are aware of the fact that this Nation is in debt for $5.7 trillion in debt.

All of us have a tendency to think, well, I am 47 years old so I guess my generation has done my share of that debt because the Nation has been around for a long time. I wish that was true. It is not. Not a single cent of the debt has occurred since 1980. And I think 1980 is a magical year. I hope we will keep it in mind during this whole debate. People say the Reagan years were a model for prosperity. They cut taxes and revenues went up and everything got better. Not quite true.

Actually during the Reagan administration with a Democratic House and Republican Senate, the debt doubled. All of the debt in the first 200 years of operation doubled in those 8 years. It set in motion a series of events which continued to get worse and only got better this last fiscal year when the Nation, for all of the talk of huge surpluses, had a tiny $8 billion surplus after we take into account the trust funds.

One of the things that I fear my Republican colleagues are doing, and I hope I am wrong and I want to give them an opportunity to tell me I am wrong, is misleading the American public as to the true nature of the debt. These are trust funds, and the key word here is trust. People in the military trust that money is set aside to pay for their retirements which adds up to $183 billion. They trust that should they pay for their retirement.

Mr. Speaker, Americans know that a portion of their salary is taken out every month in their Social Security payment; and they trust that that money is being set aside so that when they retire, it will be there to pay their benefits. Americans who have a job also know that they are paying into the Medicare trust fund. Again, they are trusting their Nation to take that money and set it aside so when they get old, and if they get sick, are going to help them with their medical bills.

Those people who work for our Nation have a trust fund as well. It is called the Federal Employees Retirement System. Again, money is taken out, it is supposed to be set aside so it is there to pay their benefits when they retire.

The net value of all of these trust funds is $2.348 trillion. But let me tell you the bad part. There is not a penny of it anywhere in any bank anywhere in the world. All of these $2.348 trillion are a bunch of IOUs. So when my Republican colleagues and our new President talk about all of this money laying around in Washington, I challenge them to show me where that $2.348 trillion is. It is not there.

And so would you not think that since honesty is going to be the order of the day under this administration, the truth is going to be telling that we ought to pay back the money that we owe them. The military retirees who defended our Nation in places like Vietnam, Korea, Kosovo, Desert Shield, Desert Storm, do you not think that we ought to tell them that we owe the money that we owe them? The medical retirees who have done what the military retirees did, and we owe them. And the federal employees who have done what the military retirees did, and we owe them. They came up with a new word, a new word to disguise the nature of it and they do not like, they came up with a new word to disguise the nature of it and they did not like, they came up with a new word to disguise the nature of it and they did not like.

Is your problem. But if I went to that man, I will tell him, no. That is your problem. But if I went to that man, I will tell him, no. That is your problem. But if I went to that man, I will tell him, no.

Mr. Speaker, after we fulfill those commitments, then we start looking for new ways to give some American families tax cuts. Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Mississippi. You can see that he does his home work. He understands these issues very well, and he has certainly been a leader on the military and budget side as it relates to the Federal debt. At this time I would like to call on my friend the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. HILL) who is a wonderful new member of the Blue Dogs, actually moved out of the blue puppy category into a sophomoric level. Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida and my good colleagues on the Blue Dogs Coalition. Mr. Speaker, 2 years ago when I joined the Blue Dogs, I didn’t know exactly what was going to happen. I have discovered in the last 2 years that this is an organization of conservative Democrats that are very honest about what they say.

Mr. Speaker, everything that we have heard here today is exactly as it is. One of the great things about being a Blue Dog member, and there are 33 of us, is that one can rely on the information that one receives. What the American people have been receiving in terms of the speeches that have been made here this afternoon is the truth. If the truth is known to the American people, I think that they will agree what we are talking about in terms of paying down the debt is an important component of this budgetary process and something that we ought to be doing.

Now, I cannot do as well as the other speakers have done so I will not repeat what they have said, but I do want to bring up one point and that is when CBO has made all of these huge projections of what the surpluses are going to be over the next 10 years, they will also tell us in their report that there is a 50 percent chance that they are going to be a hundred billion dollars wrong in the first 5 years. Most people do not realize that. Members of Congress I am sure do not realize that. If you do not take my word for it, go to the Web site. It is www.cbo.gov.

Mr. Speaker, the other projection they talk about is in the following 5 to 10 years there is a 50 percent chance that they will be off at least $250 billion. So we are talking about at least, at a very minimum, of a $350 billion potential swing in these projected budget surpluses. Because guess what happens the day after tomorrow? I do not think that tells you what happened in the first 11 days of the Bush administration taking over, what the politicians were paying down the debt or 1 percent, whether the political and tax side as it relates to the public debt in the first 11 days of the Bush administration that troubles me. I have just got a hunch if I were to walk into a restaurant or coffee shop anywhere in America and went up to an unsuspecting couple and said, how much do we owe you that much money. Their buzz word is it your money. They are right, and I think we ought to pay it back. I think that is a higher priority than giving some Americans a tax break. The groups that I talk about constitute every American, and the most honest thing that we can do is pay you back.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Washington for joining with us here on the floor, and we certainly do want to make him an honorary Blue Dog.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield now to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) to summarize.

Mr. STENHOLM. I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I want to help clarify some other rhetoric that we will be hearing from this floor regarding spending.

I have served in the House of Representatives since 1979. When we look at discretionary spending by the Congress, it has declined by 36 percent from 1980 to 2001. This is 1 percent of our gross domestic product. Entitlement spending has gone up 3 percent during that same period. Revenues have gone up 14 percent since that period. Interest rates have gone up 43 percent.

That is why we are emphasizing paying down the debt. Monies spent on interest are the least productive number of dollars that we can spend in this Congress. Money spent on defense, on veterans, on military retirees, on health care, on education, on agriculture are the most productive dollars that we can spend. So long as they are spent prudently and with policies that we can agree to in a bipartisan way, they are the most efficient and the best way to deal with our Nation’s problems.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Texas and, in substance, to read a portion of the CBO’s report that just came out, the summary. It will just take a few seconds here.

The summary starts out this way, Mr. Speaker, and I quote: “In the absence of significant legislative changes and assuming that the economy follows the path described in this report, the CBO projects that the total surplus will reach $261 billion in 2001. Such surpluses are projected to rise in the future to approach $680 billion in 2011 and accumulating to a $5.6 trillion figure.” We know over half of that is Social Security. Here is an interesting sentence, Mr. Speaker: “That total is about $1 trillion higher than the cumulative surplus projected for the 10-year period in CBO’s 2000 report, July 2000.”

In 6 months, Mr. Speaker, the projected surplus changed by CBO’s own estimates over $1 trillion. And I want to remember that statement that we made on this floor back in the beginning of last year before this report came out, that we are on track to see a surplus of extra tax revenue, a tax surplus of almost $5.6 trillion over the next 10 years.

Think about that. Our Federal budget this year is $1.9 trillion, but over the next 10 years we are expected to collect $5.6 trillion in more tax revenue than we are projected to spend. A huge surplus.

I am also proud to say that we did something that our grandparents, many seniors and those who aspire to be seniors have complained about over the years, and that is we stopped the raid on Social Security. Three years ago, this Republican Congress took the initiative and passed legislation which locked away 100 percent of Social Security and Medicare trust fund surpluses for Social Security and Medicare to use those dollars not only to run our current program of Social Security and Medicare, but to set them aside as we modernize those programs to assure that Social Security and Medicare are there for future generations.

When it comes to welfare reform, I am proud to say that we reformed welfare. I remember when I was first elected we had more children living in poverty than ever before in our Nation’s history and the highest rates of teen-age illegitimacy. Clearly, our Nation’s welfare system was failing. We passed welfare reform. Took us three times before we were able to convince the President to sign it into law, but he finally signed it into law in 1996. And since then we have seen our Nation’s welfare rolls drop. In fact, in States like Illinois they have been cut in half, with almost 6 million former welfare recipients now on the tax rolls as working taxpayers. Clearly fundamental changes.

Think about it. We have balanced the budget, we have stopped the raid on Social Security, we have stopped the raid on Medicare, we have paid on the national debt $600 billion, and we are on track to eliminate our Nation’s debt by the year 2009, and we also reformed and made fundamental changes to our Nation’s welfare system.

One of our other priorities, of course, has been the issue of bringing fairness to the Tax Code. Now, I was proud that as a key part of the Contract With America we enacted the child tax credit. It is States like Illinois, that meant an extra $3 billion in tax relief that stayed in the pocketbooks of Illinois taxpayers rather than going to Washington to be spent by Washington from the $500-per-child tax credit.

But there are other issues in the Tax Code that we need to address that are important to families. I thought Valentine’s Day was an appropriate day to raise this issue. It is an issue of fundamental fairness. Is it right, is it fair that under our Tax Code married working couples, husband and wife both in the workforce, pay on average $1,400 more in higher taxes just because they are married? It just does not seem right, it does not seem fair that if a man and a woman who are both in the workforce decide to get married that they have to pay higher taxes if they make that choice.

The only way today to avoid the marriage tax penalty, if you are still single, is to not get married. And if you are married, the only form you can file to avoid the marriage tax penalty is to file for divorce. Well, that is wrong that under our Tax Code married working couples pay higher taxes than identical couples who live together outside our marriage. That is wrong.

I am proud to say that this Republican Congress has made elimination of the marriage tax penalty a priority, and it is only appropriate that on this day, on Valentine’s Day, that we deliver a valentine to the 25 million married working couples who suffer the marriage tax penalty and let them know that we want to eliminate the marriage tax penalty. It is wrong that married couples should have to pay higher taxes.

I am proud to say that our current President, President Bush, agrees that elimination of the marriage tax penalty needs to be addressed. Unfortunately, the previous President vetoed our proposal to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, because last year we sent the Marriage Tax Elimination Act to President Clinton. He vetoed the bill. And of course that means 25 million couples still suffer that penalty.

During the campaign last fall, then-candidate Bush said he had received the bill, had he been President, he would have signed it into law. So we have an opportunity with our new President to work towards our goal of eliminating the marriage tax penalty.

Let me explain how the marriage tax penalty works. The marriage tax penalty occurs when a man and a woman, husband and wife, both are in the workforce. When they marry, they file their taxes joint. Joint filers can usually combine their incomes, and that usually pushes them into a higher tax bracket.

Let me give an example of a married couple from the district I represent in the south suburbs of Chicago. This is Shad and Michelle Hallihan, two public school teachers from Joliet, Illinois. They actually live in a little town called Manhattan, but they are public school teachers in the Jollet area. They have a combined income of about $65,000. They now have a little boy named Ben. When they file their taxes, with their combined income, and after they do the personal exemptions and all the other provisions they have, they pay an average marriage tax penalty of almost $1,400.

And as Shad and Michelle have pointed out to me, for Shad and Michelle Hallihan and for the average married working couple, $1,400 is real money to their families. It is real money to their children. It is real money to their working neighbors like my neighbors have, over the last few years, $1,400 is a year out of a $1.9 trillion budget. It is a drop in the bucket. But for real people and real communities in places like Illinois, $1,400 is a year’s tuition at Jolliet Junior College, it is 3 months of day care for their little child. And when the Hallihan family are teaching at school, it is 4,000 diapers for their infant. It is real money for real people.

And people like Shad and Michelle Hallihan and 25 million other married working couples suffer the marriage tax penalty, and unfortunately they continue to suffer the marriage tax penalty because our previous President vetoed our legislation to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

I am proud to say today that we announced our plans to reintroduce the Marriage Tax Elimination Act for this Congress, legislation that as of today has over 230 bipartisan cosponsors. Now, I would point out that we need 218 votes to pass a bill; a majority of the House is 218. So a bipartisan majority of the House is cosponsoring our legislation to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

For couples like Shad and Michelle Hallihan, we would help them by eliminating that marriage tax penalty with the Marriage Tax Elimination Act. We note that our proposal does a number of things. Number one is, in the Marriage Tax Elimination Act, we essentially wipe out the overwhelming majority of the marriage tax penalty by, number one, broadening the brackets. There are five tax brackets, and we broaden each of them so that married couples, joint filers, can earn twice as much as a single filer in that same tax bracket and stay within each bracket paying the same tax.

That helps those that itemize their tax, couples like Shad and Michelle Hallihan, that happen to be homeowners.

Second, we double the standard deduction for joint filers twice that for singles. That will help married couples who do not itemize their taxes, usually middle class families, if you own a home, you itemize your taxes, but if you do not itemize your taxes, you use a standard deduction. So we help those who could not itemize by doubling the standard deduction.

We recognize the alternative minimum tax has a consequence when you adjust the rate brackets and we make a fix in our legislation that ensures that, even though we are adjusting for the marriage tax penalty, families like Shad and Michelle can continue to qualify for the child tax credit.

And last, for low-income working families who qualify for that earned income tax credit, we remove the marriage tax penalty there, as well.

In fact, by adjusting the income threshold for married couples by $2,000, we provide for the average family of four eligible for the earned income credit about an extra $400 a year in extra income that they can use by eliminating the marriage tax penalty in the earned income credit, as well.

The bottom line is we wanted to eliminate the marriage tax penalty. We feel it is fundamentally wrong that you should pay higher taxes just because you are married.

Now, President Bush has stepped forward because he recognizes, and we are very thankful that we have a President who agrees, we need to address the marriage tax penalty. And President Bush has a very balanced approach to cutting taxes. He says, out of a $5.6 trillion surplus that we should take about a fourth of that, $1.6 trillion, and use that to lower taxes, stimulate the economy, and bring fairness to the Tax Code.

The centerpiece of his tax cut, of course, is changing the rates and going from our current five rates to four rates. And of course, in addition to that rate reduction, which he feels is very important, and I agree with him, to stimulate this economy, he also attaches to it a proposal which will help reduce the marriage tax penalty, a second-earner deduction.

Now, that is an important step forward. But I would note that the Presi- dent’s plan provides only about $700 in marriage tax relief; and, of course, the marriage tax penalty on average is over $1,400. So his proposal only does about one-half of what we need to do if we really want to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

So our hope is that, over the next few weeks, next few months, as we work to move the President’s tax proposal through the Congress, particularly as we work to stimulate and revitalize our economy, that we can address the need to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, as well.

Some members of the Committee on Ways and Means have met with the President. We have also met with the Treasury Secretary, Secretory O’Neill, and other representatives in the administration to talk about the marriage tax penalty. We want to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

We believe that really the way we can do more is when we adopt the President’s rate reduction plan, which simplifies the Tax Code and lowers taxes for all Americans. We also adjust the brackets in the President’s plan so that we eliminate the marriage tax penalty. And that can be phased in.

In the same way that the President proposes with his rate reduction, we can make the adjustments for the marriage tax penalty, and we believe it should be done at the same time. It only makes sense when you adjust the rates to deal with marriage penalty at the same time.

To my colleagues, I want to share with you that we feel this should be a bipartisan priority. And I am proud to say that 230 Members of this House are now cosponsors of the Marriage Tax Elimination Act.

I particularly want to thank my good friend, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BACIA), who is the lead Demo- cratic cosponsor of the Marriage Tax Elimination Act. He and the gentle- woman from West Virginia (Ms. CAPrito) and the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. KENNY) have taken the lead in working together with us to eliminate the marriage tax penalty. We want it to be a bipartisan effort.

There is no reason that Republicans and Democrats cannot work together with the Bush Administration to elimi- nate the most unfair consequence of our complicated Tax Code, and that is the marriage tax penalty.

My colleagues, we need fast action on the President’s tax cut. And here is why I believe it is important that we need fast action.

I have watched the nightly news, just like my neighbors have, over the last several weeks in the Chicago area. We have seen tens of thousands of our neighbors losing their jobs because of the weak economy that President Bush inherited from his predecessor.

Unfortunately, companies like Montgomerry Ward are going out of business. LTV Steel has declared bankruptcy. Lucent and Motorola and Outboard Marine and other companies in the Chicago area are announcing massive layoffs. And those individuals are telling me they are having a hard time finding a new job that’s going to pay them what they chose to get married that they had to pay higher taxes. That is just wrong.

We believe, by adoption of the Marriage Tax Elimination Act, we can eliminate the marriage tax penalty, and we want to work with President Bush and Democrats and Republicans, both in the House and the Senate to get the job done this time.

I was so proud last year when we passed the Marriage Tax Elimination Act out of this House and the Senate. It broke the hearts of 25 million married working couples when President Clinton vetoed the bill. But it is a new day. It is a new time of opportunity. We now have a chance to do the right thing, and that is, to eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

It is important to say that, here on Valentine’s Day, what better valentine than a chance to ensure that Michelle Hallihan get to keep what is already his. The law is designed to ensure that Shad and Michelle Hallihan to have a bright future.

We also want families like Shad and Michelle Hallihan to have a bright future as well by ensuring that Shad and Michelle Hallihan get to keep what is already his. It is important that we keep our promise to those couples who had to pay higher taxes. That is just wrong.

The speaker pro tempore (Mr. KEEN). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from California (Mr. HORN) is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, with a new administration, it is time that we face up to the fact that management is necessary to ensure that America’s economic future of our economy.

President Bush’s proposal would provide an extra $2,000 in higher take-home pay. That is an extra few weeks’ pay, an extra end-of-the-year bonus that can be used to meet their needs.

I am proud to say he is doing that. And for a family making $50,000 a year, President Bush’s proposal would provide an extra $2,000 in higher take-home pay. That is an extra three weeks’ pay, an extra end-of-the-year bonus that can be used to meet their needs.

If you are concerned about who gets what and who pays more, low, moderate, middle income families will see a bigger portion of their income back in the minds of the decision-makers in business as well as consumers about their future of our economy.

this subject last year, accounting procedures were so inadequate that no one could even estimate how much of this money was lost to fraud.

These are just two examples of the enormous cost of the Government’s poor management, outdated business practices, and insufficient financial controls.

At a subcommittee hearing on the governmentwide consolidated financial statements last year, the Comptroller General of the United States, David Walker, testified that serious financial management weaknesses also exist at the Internal Revenue Service, the Forest Service, and the Federal Aviation Administration. We have excellent people there as directors, and they are turning a lot of this around.

Commissioner Rossotti at the Internal Revenue Service is an outstanding executive. He came from the private sector, and he has applied some of those theories to one of the largest bureaucracies in the United States.

The same with the forester of the Forest Service, with the Federal Aviation Administration. They are working very hard to move those agencies ahead. These weaknesses, said the Comptroller General, place billions of dollars at high risk of being lost to waste, fraud, and misuse. There is only one way to find these abuses, and that is to ferret out each wasted dollar, agency by agency, program by program, line by line.

To accomplish this goal, we must make management a clear and unequivocal priority across the entire Federal Government. The General Accounting Office report came to the same conclusion, stating that “effectively addressing the underlying causes of program management weaknesses offers management opportunities to reduce government costs and improve services.” Congress must create a corps of management experts who not only have the ability and skill to address wasteful administration and program failures but who also have the power and mandate to force action and produce results.

The Office of Management and Budget in the Executive Office of the President was created by President Nixon in 1970 to oversee the various purposes I have outlined. At that time, I supported the creation of that office and adding the “M” there and presumably then having a management component with the overworked budget side.

I thought at the time there is a real possibility to use the budget process to get the attention of Cabinet officers and strengthen their interest in management practices. I was absolutely wrong. Every one of my colleagues in the government and the senior service, senior officials of the various agencies, had nothing happening. And when I got back here 6 years ago, that is exactly what had happened. For years, management experts whom I respect, inside and outside the government, have said that the “M” in OMB, the Office of Management and Budget, does not stand for management. It stands for mirage.

The unpleasant reality is that tying management to the power of the budget process was an excellent theory but one that never worked. The pressures and dynamics of the annual budget process have overwhelmed nearly every initiative aimed at improving management. In effect, the fledgling management trees could not survive among the tangled and gnarled limbs of the bureaucratic budgetary forest.

Since serving as chairman of the Subcommittee on Government Management, Information and Technology for the last 6 years, it has become very clear to me that we can no longer continue on our present course of mudfighting. The year 2000 and fundamental management deficiencies with more tax dollars. This course has left us vulnerable to monetary waste and threatens to disrupt vital government programs that serve millions of Americans.

This very real problem seized my attention in April of 1996, some of my colleagues will remember, on the year 2000 date change. Unless corrected, the year 2000 problem threatened to disrupt government computers when their internal clocks moved from December 31, 1999 to January 1, 2000. The bulky computers of the sixties and seventies had little memory and to save that memory they said, let us just call it 67, not 1967. At that time no one thought these systems would still be operating by the turn of the century.

As time went on, the concern grew that these computers would misinterpret the year 2000 as the year 1900; and there were some rather humorous but serious matters. In one case, a 194-year-old woman received a school district notice telling her to register for kindergarten and little things like that. But it was a problem.

It was grappled with not by OMB, it was grappled with when the President of the United States picked a person that had retired from OMB, brought that person in as assistant to the President. He did a very good job, and we can thank him for getting to it. But it took him a long time, 4 years, to get into this. They should have done it earlier. We would have saved billions of dollars if they did not. They did not take it seriously.

When I did a survey of the Cabinet back in 1996, there were two that had never heard of it, did not know a thing about it. We had some that did know something about an agency that was on top of all this was the Social Security Administration. They have long been very well-run organization. In the sixties when I was on the Senate staff, we saw that every day. It was the type of thing that we should commend and we did.

The other thing was the Federal Highway Administration. They had a first-rate programmer tell them all about it back in 1987, and they just laughed. They said, “Oh, that isn’t possible.” You would think that would go up the line to the Secretary of Transportation at the time, but the fact was, it did not.

And the Federal Aviation Administration, therefore, did not really have to face up to the problem, and so they had to play catch-up in order to overcome what could have been done beginning in the 1980s. The President procrastinated until February 1998 even though the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Maloney), the ranking Democrat on my committee, and I had sent him a letter urging him to appoint someone.

Well, he did, 2 years after the letter. But that also lost us time. The President appointed John Koskinen as an assistant to the President and he did pull it together, but it was running right late, in the last week and the last hurdle. Mr. Koskinen served the President as deputy director of OMB for management. You would think something would have happened there. He was there from 1993 until he took retirement. He is a very good man, but in the OMB nest, it was very hard to run the program. And he knew that. And when you are an assistant to the President, you can get things done. The Cabinet officers start listening to you. Mr. Koskinen’s side leadership at OMB frankly did not do anything to solve the problem until he took retirement, the President called him back in, and then he went to work and focused on it.

The year 2000 crisis provides powerful evidence of the need for an Office of Management. The executive branch of our government must have one office that is focused solely on finding, deciphering and solving this type of problem before it occurs, not afterwards. We need one group of tax-oriented professionals who are available to monitor and help find solutions to management problems before they become costly burdens to the taxpayers.

Looking back, Franklin Roosevelt had a small group of professionals who were capable of sorting out problems and their long-range implications. They had the ear of the President in that era of the budget. President Harry Truman had such a group, as did President Dwight D. Eisenhower. We went downhill on management after President Eisenhower left office, and more and more it was politicized. Instead of professional civil servants that knew what they were doing, neither Democrats nor Republicans knew what they were doing, and that is not good enough. What we need are professionals that work for the President, and that is the way that agency used to work. Had the year 2000 problem been taken seriously a decade ago, its solution might have been to stop the routine maintenance and modernization of Federal computer systems. Unfortunately, that did not happen; and we lost probably a few billion. But they do not seem to care about that down there.

In recent years, five major Federal agencies have launched computer modernization efforts that sunk from lofty goals to sinkers. These efforts—by the Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Aviation Administration, the Department of Defense, the National Weather Service, and the Medicare program—can be summed up as an ongoing series of disastrous disasters that cost more than $3 billion before they were canceled and realized they were not going in the right direction. Both were costly examples of abysmal management.

The American taxpayer deserves a lot more from the executive branch than it has received. The new Bush administration can solve a lot of those management problems which have been very visible over the rug. We need to get it out from under the rug and deal with it. Three years ago, the General Accounting Office reported that “these efforts are having serious trouble meeting cost, schedule and/or performance goals. Such problems are all too common. Federal automation projects.”

In short, good management could have saved taxpayers billions of dollars and given the government and its citizens modern, efficient, productive and effective technology. Yes, we need to strengthen the President’s staff in the area of information technology, but we have an even greater need to have an integrated approach to management improvement.

The desperate need to improve the government’s financial management systems which I have already referred to can be pursued meaningfully only in concert with information technology. In addition, however, many of the failures in upgrading these computer systems can be traced to inadequacies in the procurement process. At present, these three specialized areas of management reside in three independent offices within the Office of Management and Budget. We must remove all of them from the shackles of the budget process and insist that they work together to eliminate further loss of billions of dollars in wasteful and unsuccessful systems development.

Many other management challenges lie ahead. We need an organized and comprehensive government-wide plan to protect government computers from cyber attacks such as the Melissa and I-Love-You viruses. Over the next few years, the Federal workforce will suffer massive attrition as a large number of workers become eligible to retire. We need an executive branch agencywide strategy to train new workers and retain veteran employees. An Office of Management would produce enormous dividends in these areas simply by early identification of problems such as these and pointing the way toward the most effective solution.

Mr. Speaker, there are other vital areas that need the same kind of scrutiny and guidance that I believe would flow from an Office of Management. Beginning with the Debt Collection Improvement Act, which was signed into law in 1996, Congress has attempted to provide Federal departments and agencies with the tools they need to collect the billions of dollars in debts that these agencies are owed. Yet so far their collection efforts have been sluggish and ineffective. Good financial management practices and systems should be in place throughout the Federal Government. However, recent subcommittee hearings have again shown that too many agencies are neither.

We will have quite a number of hearings this year taking the Comptroller General’s little report on each of these agencies. We would obviously like the appropriate person to do the same thing and the authorizing committee, but we as the oversight will make sure what the Comptroller General has brought up should be read by every member of this Chamber, and then we can face up to these problems and do something about it. But Congress cannot do it day to day. That is where the executive branch and the Executive Office of the President is important to have this type of an entity added to it, which is simply moving it around but getting a focus in it, and that is the Office of Management.

Regardless of party, most White House staffers are interested in policy development, not managing policy implementation. Policy involves hope, excitement and media coverage. Management, on the other hand, appears dull and dreary, whether it is program management or financial management. Yet good policies that are not translated by good management have very little value. Removing the management problems from the current Office of Management and Budget would provide the President with a rational division of labor that would place a new and necessary emphasis on managing what is now unmanageable.

Those who are engaged in budget analysis have different skills and fulfill different roles than those who work in financial and program management. Since 1993, on a bipartisan basis, this Congress has authorized chief financial officers and chief information officers for each cabinet department and each independent agency. Both management and budget staffs could and should participate in annual budget reviews of the executive branch departments and independent agencies, but they can do that. But they also have to focus to be very effective, and you cannot be diverted, just going to meetings.

We do not need to create a new bureaucracy or require a major reorganization of the executive office of the President. We do, however, need to create a separate office of management, whose director has clear and direct access to the President or the President’s Chief of Staff, to strengthen the President’s relationship with the separate Director of Budget, who sits in his cabinet.

If we are to create government-wide accountability, then an office of management is essential. It is long-overdue recognition that taxpayers deserve good government demands. An office of management could work with departments and agencies in measuring the value of program effectiveness.

Mr. Speaker, the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management and Intergovernmental Relations, which is the subcommittee I now chair, will have a large agenda this year. We will follow up on all of the reports of the General Accounting Office and the Comptroller General of the United States.

We have had hearings on what the States are doing. We have had hearings on what other countries are doing. If Oregon can do it, why cannot the executive branch of the United States do it? If New Zealand can do it, why cannot the executive branch of the United States do it? If Australia can do it, why cannot the executive branch of the United States do it? It just gets down to a question of doing it.

My most famous and fun commencement address that I learned as a university president was when Winston Churchill, the great leader of the free world, was sitting there puffing on his cigar watching the graduates and what they were doing. He got up to the podium and he said, “Do it,” and sat down. If commencement speeches were that long, two words, we would have better inspiration for most of the young people of America.

In August of 1910, Theodore Roosevelt spoke to this very issue. He said no matter how honest and decent we are in our private lives, if we do not have the right kind of law and the right kind of administration of the law, we cannot go forward.

Mr. Speaker, it is time to go forward. If we are to create government-wide accountability, an office of management is essential. It is a long-overdue reform that taxpayers deserve and good government demands. The office of management could work with departments and agencies in measuring the value of program effectiveness.

Mr. Speaker, the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management and Intergovernmental Relations, which I chair, will have a large agenda this year. We will follow the Graduate’s commencement address that I learned as a university president was when Winston Churchill, the great leader of the free world, was sitting there puffing on his cigar watching the graduates and what they were doing. He got up to the podium and he said, “Do it,” and sat down. If commencement speeches were that long, two words, we would have better inspiration for most of the young people of America.
CELEBRATING BLACK HISTORY MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KERNs). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. Jones of Ohio) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, once again on behalf of the Congressional Black Caucus we rise to celebrate Black History Month. As we said yesterday, this is a continuation of presentations from yesterday. Black History Month is an excellent time for reflection, assessment, and planning. A full understanding of our history is a necessary and crucial part of comprehending our present circumstances and crafting our future.

I want to recognize, if she chooses to be recognized once again, the Chair of the Congressional Black Caucus, the gentlewoman from the great State of Texas (Ms. Eddie Bernice Johnson.)

Ms. EDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, to my colleague, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. Jones), let me thank you for leading this celebration series of speeches today. It is important that we at least once a year give notice to the history of the African Americans in this country.

We especially think it is important this year, because we just had a very, very emotional, difficult experience with the past election, and the reason why we are so concerned about that is because we have had several turbulent periods in our history on our voting rights.

As you know, we got them very early; then Reconstruction, we lost a number of people. We have fought and died for our voting rights, and, as I indicated before, as Santayana once said: "Those who fail to learn from history are doomed to repeat it." We do not want to repeat the history we have had in this country, trying to gain equal respect and equal opportunity for casting votes as citizens in the United States.

So it is indeed important that we bring attention to this issue and plead and pray for a solution. I thank the gentlewoman very much.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. I thank the gentlewoman.

Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure at this time to yield to my colleague, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. Norton.)

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio for yielding to me, and particularly do I thank her for her initiative and leadership in organizing this Black Caucus commemorative on and during Black History Month.

I want to congratulate the good gentlewoman from Ohio for the way in which she has hit the ground running. No grass grows under her feet. Her predecessor and the former gentlewoman from Ohio, Mr. Stokes, left. We did not know whose feet would be big enough to fill his shoes. I am looking at her feet right now. They may not be big enough, but they certainly are filling them. They are not big enough because she is a lady, and that is not how a lady’s feet operate. But this is only one indication of how the gentlewoman from Ohio operates.

Mr. Speaker, it is an important occasion this year, because each year we, of course, come forward, who we are African Americans, and others, to commemorate Black History Month. It may be that we were in danger of having Black History Month fade like the white face of George Washington’s birthday. You do it every year, you know you are doing it because something great and important is being commemorated.

But I must say, this year, all of us I believe have looked at Black History Month as a giant wake-up call for what it truly can mean and must mean in these times. This is no commemoration for African Americans or for America; this is a time for reflection and for action.

I could go down a list of reasons why the country does not need to be in repose on its oldest issue, born as a matter of original sin, race and racism in our country. That ought to be clear, although I fear it is not. Rather, I fear in the limited time I necessarily have, I would like to focus on three reasons why a wake-up call comes this Black History Month: one has to do with how long it has taken us to honor the Father of Black History; second has to do with Florida and its aftermath; third has to do with the most pressing voting rights challenge in our time.

Dr. Carter G. Woodson, only the second black to get a Ph.D. from Harvard, a self-educated man until he went to the University of Chicago and got his masters, started the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. This man, this brilliant and great American historian, almost single-handedly uncovered suppressed African American history and started the process of challenging racist stereotypes throughout American historiography. Yet his house on 9th Street, the house where the association that he started and where he lived, has been boarded up for decades.

I come to the House today to the thank the House for passing my bill during Black History Month last year, finally passed by the Senate, which allows the Park Service to do a feasibility study, now under way, to determine whether or not Dr. Carter G. Woodson’s house will become a national historic site.

Carter G. Woodson started Negro History Week, which I always celebrated as a child in the segregated schools of the District of Columbia. It has evolved into Black History Month, now commemorated through the history and the world. It is time that we focused in on the man who began it all, began the process of correcting the history that we use to tell the history, through its correction, that led finally to the historic civil rights acts themselves.

Second, the wake-up call comes in no small part because of Florida and its aftermath. We, especially those of us who come out of the civil rights movement, thought that, at least with respect to the great civil rights bills, our work was done. We could be said to have come a long way, but not far enough. We certainly did not think there were major voting rights problems remaining in this country. We knew there were pockets; we knew of problems.

What we now know is that nation-wide, we must be vigilant against violations of people’s voting rights forever in this country, and if there had not been a close election, we never would have known it. The results in Florida were beneath the standards of American democracy. The great shame is the court to which we move to the side on political matters decided an election for the first time in American history. That alone must never happen again.

Florida shows us that what African Americans struggled for in the 1965 Voting Rights Act is no longer simply a black problem. There were many more people than blacks who were disenfranchised in Florida. We cannot go back to Florida, but what we can do is not make this year go by without putting in motion the apparatus and the funds to correct the voting rights mechanisms or the election mechanisms in the United States of America. We do need a commission, we do need to study some of the long-range effects, but we need to begin the process of correction before the next election is held.

Finally, let me address what I said was the third great wake-up call, and that is the most pressing voting rights challenge in America today. That, of course, is the absence of congressional voting rights for almost 600,000 American citizens who live in the District of Columbia who have no voting representation on the floor of the House or the floor of the Senate, but on April 15th are expected to pay their Federal income taxes like everybody else.

This is a situation that cannot go on much longer, as we hold our heads high as we preach democracy around the world. Residents of the District of Columbia are not going to let it go on much longer. It has gotten to the point of civil disobedience. I myself testified at a trial yesterday regarding some civil disobedience that occurred here during the last appropriations period.

D.C. residents have been very patient. They do not seek to correct this by civil disobedience, the way we did in the civil rights movement. They seek to use the processes of this House in order to get the voting rights to which they are entitled as American citizens who pay their Federal income taxes every year.

I think those for whom this month of commemoration has become just that, a commemoration, let me leave you with a notion that the way to commemorate this month is to think of what is still outstanding on the American agenda that most affects African Americans.

I believe that a small but important matter is making sure that Carter G. Woodson’s home becomes a National Historic Site, and I believe that is under way. I come this afternoon to thank the House for what the House has done and what the Senate has done to make that possible.

There is Florida and its aftermath, which I think is only beginning. We will know if we have gotten anywhere by whether or not this year’s budget and specific legislation has moved this issue forward this year, not this session but this year.

Finally, on that agenda must be the outstanding issue of taxing residents being left without voting rights in the Congress of the United States, and those taxing residents do not live in some far-off corner of our country. Those taxing residents live right under the nose of the Congress.

In their name, in this month of black history, particularly since the majority of African-Americans, I ask that the Congress move forward to grant voting rights in the Congress of the United States to the residents of the District of Columbia.

Mrs. Jones of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia.

For the record, I support voting rights for the District of Columbia, as many of us do, and we are going to continue to work this year in this Congress to see that each of the residents of the District of Columbia have a vote and a voice.

Mr. Speaker, let me just read a quote from the last black to leave Congress back in 1901, George Henry White, from North Carolina, who stood up on this very floor and declared, “You have excluded us. You have taken away the right to vote, and so I am the last one to leave. This, Mr. Chairman, is perhaps the Negro’s temporary farewell to the American Congress. But let me say, phoenix-like, he will rise up some day and come again. These parts words are on behalf of an outraged, heartbroken, bruised and bleeding but God-fearing people, a faithful, industrious, loyal people, rising people, full of potential power.”

With that quote, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from the great State of Illinois (Mr. Rush). Just like the Phoenix rising, he represents one of 37 African-American Members of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Mr. Rush. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, I certainly want to commend the gentlewoman from Ohio for her leadership and her outstanding work on behalf of the entire Congressional Black Caucus and also on behalf of African citizens who are minorities, who are dark-skinned citizens, all across this Nation, as she led the charge on this day and on yesterday to bring before the Congress of the United States the celebration of Black History Month.

Mr. Speaker, for as long as I can remember, Black History Month was a time as the Nation took note of the accomplishments and achievements of black Americans throughout the history of this Nation, acknowledging their contributions, not only to the upliftment of this Nation, the progress of this Nation, but indeed, to acknowledging accomplishments and achievements on behalf of nations throughout the world.

Indeed, the world is a better place because of the contributions of black Americans, and we honor and celebrate them during the month of February.

However, Mr. Speaker, this month of February is a month that the celebration is somewhat hollow. We are celebrating with less enthusiasm than we have celebrated past Black History Months. The reason for this is singularly the fact that just a few months ago there was an election for President of the United States, and, Mr. Speaker, that election, in the opinions of a significant number of American citizens, and I would say, indeed, the majority in the opinion of black American citizens, that election was stolen from the rightful winner.

So, Mr. Speaker, I am here today to talk about a stolen Presidential election and the disenfranchisement of African-American voters during this last election.

As we speak on the floor today, the Committee on Energy and Commerce, on which I serve, is holding a hearing on the television network’s coverage of last November’s Presidential election. That is a hearing that I also have mixed feelings about because, whereas I understand and appreciate and am concerned about the fact that the coverage, the television coverage of last November’s election, left a lot to be desired, I feel as though that feeling is just tinkering along the edges. It is not really getting to the essence of the issue.

I and the voters of the First Congressional District, along with millions of American voters across the Nation, heard the results of Florida’s Presidential balloting announced, then revised, then reversed, then rescinded by the networks.

The impact of those faulty projections and the havoc which they wreaked is still being felt today, not only by the individual who was defeated, Vice President Gore, but also by tens of thousands of American voters who believed then and believe now that their votes in Florida and in many States, like my State, the State of Illinois, were not counted.

Mr. Speaker, we have spent many, many years trying to have spent most of my adult life fighting to ensure that African-Americans have the right to vote and that their votes be counted. I spent most of my political career fighting a dastard machine in the city of Chicago that moved with adroitness and skill on every election to suppress the African-American vote within the city of Chicago, within the State of Illinois.

Mr. Speaker, on election night in Chicago, and also in Cook County, I want to bring it to the attention of the American people that antiquated voting machines in Chicago and Cook County resulted in thousands of African-American votes being disqualified. Yet, in the rich suburban, Republican collar counties surrounding Cook County, where the population is not primarily minority, there were state-of-the-art voting machines in place which allowed for the smooth disposition of defective ballots, and for citizens to be recorded accurately right then and there.

Can Members believe it, in my State, in the State of Illinois, in Cook County, where a majority of minority citizens, I mean we had antiquated machines, that if in fact a ballot was put or entered into that machine, it was kicked out and that person lost their vote? But just a few miles away, in the Republican part of the State of Illinois, in the collar counties surrounding Cook County, they had up-to-date machines where once the card was entered in that machine, if in fact there was a mistake by the voter, it was immediately rejected and the voter right then, at the same time, could correct their mistake and enter that card once again into that machine and their vote would be counted.

So 125,000 African-American and minority voters in the County of Cook were denied their right to vote as a result of this duality of this double standard, of these two different machines, one antiquated, being utilized inside Cook County, and one up-to-date state of the art, being utilized outside of Cook County.

More than 200 years after the Emancipation Proclamation, African-American voters are still today being denied their rights, particularly their right to vote. It is incumbent upon us as Members of Congress to safeguard the rights of African-Americans and all voters, no matter what their race, color, or creed.

There are lingering questions, many lingering questions, about this last Presidential election that need to be answered.

Mr. Speaker, I call upon Members of this Congress, Members of the 107th Congress, I call upon the leadership of this Congress, to get to the bottom of why, why did African-Americans and other minorities, why were they denied their right to vote? Why were their votes not counted? Why was there intimidation and harassment, and indeed, in some instances, faulty arrests of African-Americans on their way to the polls?

Mr. Speaker, in the County of Cook, were there two different types of machines, one with faulty equipment, antiquated equipment, and the other one state-of-the-art equipment? Why were those two different types of machines used in the State of Illinois in a Presidential election?

The American people deserve the right to know that, to know the answer to those questions. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, we all deserve the right to know the answer to those questions. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, we all deserve the right to know the answer to those questions. Indeed, Mr. Speaker, we all deserve the right to know the answer to those questions. Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Illinois very much, and I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from the great State of Maryland (Mr. WYNN).

Mr. WYNN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me. Moreover, I thank the gentlewoman for her outstanding leadership in this special order commemorating Black History Month. She has done a marvelous job over these two days, and we certainly appreciate her efforts.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. If the gentleman will allow me to interrupt the gentleman, due to the large amount of people we have coming, I am going to ask my colleagues to try to restrict their comments to 3 to 5 minutes, please, and I thank the gentleman very much.

Mr. WYNN. Yes, I will be happy to do that. But as I say, the gentlewoman from Ohio has done a magnificent job, and we all appreciate it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from the great State of Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) for her outstanding work and for yielding the floor to me. I rise, joining my colleagues, on this day during Black History Month to discuss two critical issues that impact every American citizen, voting rights and the need for reform.

Mr. Speaker, it is one of the great historic truisms that our right to vote, the ultimate expression of the empowerment of the people and the bedrock of our democracy, is also perhaps the most hard-won right accruing to Americans.

The battle to extend the right to vote to every citizen, especially women and African Americans, has shaped much of our Nation’s history, and along with the battle to protect the vote has, and continues to, shape and reshape our notions of democracy.

Events in Florida this past November remind us that this is no mere intellectual exercise. Unfortunately, events in Florida during the election reflect the battle we continue to face in ensuring a voting environment that is fair and free from the type of assault with great parallels to the events which ushered in the century.
After the Civil War, our Nation witnessed great movement towards democracy. Swept along by a powerful movement for African American equality, Congress passed the 14th and 15th amendments to the Constitution.

The movement for equality rapidly grew to claim a fair share of political representation. Some two dozen African Americans were elected to the Congress, and some 700 African Americans to State legislatures in the South.

The response was a wave of terrorism and oppression followed by a storm of political and legal repression.

One of the most horrific and shameful symbols of that wave of terror came in the summer of 1908, when in the town of Springfield, Illinois, my home State, home to President Abraham Lincoln, America learned of a race riot of mass terror against African Americans which lasted for days and which killed and wounded scores of African Americans and which drove thousands from the city.

Those riots led directly to the founding of the NAACP by W.E.B. DuBois and other brave and far-sighted individuals and to the unfolding of a century of struggle for political and voting rights.

The landmark cases, Smith versus Allwright giving African Americans the right to vote in primary elections in Texas, Thornburgh versus Gingles ruling that redistricting to dilute the voting strength of minorities is illegal, Chisom versus Roemer ruling that the Voting Rights Act applies to the election of Judges, were driven by the unrelenting determination of mass struggles and marches, boycotts, sit-ins and voter registration drives, and by the great political victories including, in the first place, the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Second only to the 13th, 14th, 15th, 19th and 24th amendments to the Constitution, no tool has been more powerful in breaking the bonds which impeded their ability to vote. Voting was a process by which the government derived its authority, as a foundation of our democratic republic, to make sure that each and every American, no matter where they live, their race, ethnic origin, background, income status, they will have the right to participate effectively in the making of decisions in this great democracy, anything less than that makes a mockery of our understanding of what democracy really is.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) for his comments.

Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to yield to the gentlewoman from the State of North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman (Mrs. JONES) for her generosity. I thank her for the leadership and making time available so that members of the Congressional Black Caucus can have this opportunity to speak today.

Mr. Speaker, it is important, and it is also very appropriate for this Black History Month, for us to reflect upon and recall the struggles this Nation has experienced in our continuing quest to ensure that all our citizens are able to freely exercise their fundamental act of citizenship, voting.

In 1776, our Nation’s founders made a remarkable beginning of a struggle to establish a more perfect union, a union which the government derived its authority from the people, the government. Our founders correctly, albeit, with some elitism, established voting as a foundation of our democratic republic.

At first, the only people that mattered, those who enjoyed the privilege of voting, were white men who owned property. Through painful, sometimes bloody, often deadly struggles and sacrifices to break the shackles of racial and gender discrimination have been shaken off. It is fitting that we take time to pause and to recall and to honor those great Americans and their contributions to our Nation that shines like a beacon to other people around the world who also yearn to be free.

Mr. Speaker, after the Civil War, the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation and passage of series of amendments to the United States Constitution, the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments, African Americans, former... slaves and sons of former slaves no longer were excluded from the great American experiment of self government. As a result, black men were elected to public office, especially in the South, in large numbers.

Women were also excluded from voting until the passage years later of the 19th amendment. In South Carolina, the State legislature had a black majority; in North Carolina, at least four Afro-Americans served in Congress during the turn of the century, including Mr. John Hyman, Mr. James O’Hara, Henry Cheatham and George H. White.

Then, the forces of hate, nullification and bigotry surged and our Nation entered the awful period called Jim Crowism, a period in which some whites, with the tacit or overt support of others, exerted power through a combination of terrorism, economic oppression and legalized separation of the races.

The terrorism included bombings of homes and churches, jailing of black men for minor, often presumed violence violations of law, beatings and lynchings. African-Americans were beaten and jailed for trying to register and to vote.

Then the struggle to overcome this horrible chapter of American history brought us to the modern civil rights effort of Thurgood Marshall, the architect of the litigation strategies of the NAACP; and Dr. Martin Luther King, who directed SCLC which, along with the organization led protests and demonstrations to end racial discrimination that excluded African Americans from getting service at hotels and restaurants, from attending public schools with white children, from living in certain neighborhoods, from being considered for employment and college admissions, and most fundamentally, from registering to vote.

In 1957, Congress passed a Civil Rights Act that made it a Federal crime for anyone to interfere with a citizen's right to vote, and created the Civil Rights Commission to investigate violations of the law.

White politicians and white supremacist groups intensified their resolve to prevent blacks from voting. Black applicants seeking to register to vote were made to wait for hours, voter registration places were open for very limited times and often suddenly closed when blacks tried to register, and the applications were lost or discarded.

Before the Voting Rights Act was passed 35 years ago, there were five African Americans in Congress. Today, there are 40. The important role of Federal enforcement of voting rights is clear. The recent voting irregularities in Florida and other States serve as a painful reminder of the need for a Federal presence and effective enforcement remedies as against unfair, discriminatory State action.

We cannot go back, Mr. Speaker, to the period of disenfranchisement of segments of our population. This Nation paid a dear price for that, in broken lives and dreams of generations of African Americans. We paid in the form of loss of national credibility and moral standing in the eyes of the world. We paid in the form of lost opportunities to achieve our national quest for a more perfect union, one nation, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

We must learn from the lessons of history and take seriously the challenges presented by the recent Florida election. We must move forward to heal the Nation and to fix the problems in our voting procedures and machinery.

Congressman George White from North Carolina spoke from the floor in 1900. He knew he could not be reelected because of unfair voting practices taking place all across the country, including North Carolina. He was the last African-American Member of Congress during the Reconstruction era. Like a voice from the wilderness, he called on the Congress to pass legislation that would prohibit lynching. Congress refused to act. Congressman White told his colleagues that he was leaving the Congress but that African Americans, like a phoenix, would rise again and return to the Halls of Congress. Years passed before Mr. Oscar De Priest, from Illinois, was elected in 1928. Nearly a century passed before the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WANTT) and I, in 1992, were elected to succeed George White from North Carolina.

Mr. Speaker, I know there are those who cannot appreciate the depth and pain of the deprivation suffered by many of our citizens for so many years, they must recognize the contradiction between our ideals, that all of our citizens’ votes count in a democracy, and our tarnished history, years of unjust, legalized exclusion from voting of certain segments of our population.

We must work together, both Democrats and Republicans, black and white, Hispanic, Asian and Native Americans, to protect and promote voting and to ensure that all votes are indeed counted. Our government must be elected by the people for the people. Mrs. JONES of Ohio, Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. CLAY).

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, in keeping with the spirit of the many great men and women who honor each year during the Congressional Black Caucus in calling for meaningful election reform that will ensure the voting rights of all Americans, I want to commend the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) for her leadership on this matter and for scheduling this special order at this time.

We as Americans cannot afford to allow a repeat of what transpired during the last Presidential election. Although our Constitution guarantees every citizen the right to vote, what we witnessed last November was an election system so outdated that it caused the disenfranchisement of thousands, if not millions of eligible voters across our country.

The essence of our constitutional freedom itself is founded on the inalienable right of every eligible American citizen to cast his or her vote without obstruction or intimidation.

When this right is denied, whether by design or simple neglect, democracy itself suffers. Like Florida, in my own district in St. Louis, Missouri, thousands of citizens were turned away from the polls and denied their right to vote. The result of a failing system that was ill prepared to deal with the large voter turnout.

Such a situation cannot and must not be tolerated. That is why it is incumbent on those of us in Congress to work together to ensure that every eligible citizen in our country be afforded the unobstructed right to vote. And just as important, every vote cast also must be counted.

To do this, we must modernize our Nation’s failing electoral system by creating one that is accurate, efficient, and tamper proof. To do any less, we risk forfeiting the rights and protections guaranteed to all Americans by law.

We must not allow partisan differences to prevent us from resolving the critical problem, and the public demands that we do not. Because if the people do not have faith in the electoral process, how can we expect them to have faith in our government?

I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES) very much for this opportunity to participate in the special order.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from the great State of Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, if I might welcome the gentleman from Florida (Mr. PUTNAM), it is a delight.

I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio for her kindness, and I am gratified that we have been allowed this time in our Nation’s history to be able to recount the many contributions of Americans.

And I stand before you today to emphasize the word “Amercians” in America, for I might think that there may be those who may be listening who may have some consternation or some difficulty with Members of the United States Congress rising to the floor, to be able to emphasize both our
Mr. Speaker, I salute in this month the many heroes and leaders and activists and spokespersons and quiet people who, through their courage and conviction, have contributed to the fundamental right of the right to vote. February happens to be the month we commemorate the contributions of African Americans to this great Nation, but it also gives us a time in 2001 to be able to reflect upon a journey that not too long ago we thought that we would travel and that is a time that sunshine shown very brilliantly on a Democratic system frankly that is broken.

So I rise today to recount for those whose memories may have faded, Birmingham and Selma and Montgomery. North Carolina and South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi and Texas and names like Martin King and Rosa Parks and Joseph Williams and Andy Young who were names of the many African Americans that are yet not recorded, names of thousands upon thousands of young college students from all walks of life, all religions and races and creeds, that walked in the sixties to be able to reestablish the fundamental right to vote.

Mr. Speaker, I thought it was important, and I want to thank the Congressman from Ohio and the chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, that you hear us emphasizing the need and the importance of ensuring that everyone has a right to vote. And so we are moved to speak on these issues, we are moved to speak. But I would only say that you had registered, there is need for electoral reform.

Mr. Speaker, I do believe that our Declaration of Independence says it all. We all are created equal with certain inalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. In the pursuit of such liberty, it is imperative that our vote is counted. As we proceed to improve on the voting system, let it be in tribute to all of those who marched, who suffused who lit their lives, all Americans with particular emphasis and tribute on African Americans who did not have the ultimate right to vote in the 1960s.

Mr. Speaker, let this African American History Month be a tribute of going forward, never to repeat again the days of Florida and the days of this last election where anyone, no matter who you are, new citizen or not, failed to vote because someone closed the door in your face.

There is much that I could say, and as my colleague well knows, when we are moved to register on these issues, we are moved to speak. But I would only say that the Constitution charges us with the importance of ensuring that everyone has a right to vote.

Mr. Speaker, it is with great enthusiasm and appreciation that I join my colleagues of the Congressional Black Caucus, the fundamental right to vote. February happens to be 1963, the year President Kennedy signed the Civil Rights Act.

So in tribute to African American History Month, I believe the tribute should be forthright and forward-going. It should be a recommitment that, in fact, we will allow no intimidating force to ever keep us away from voting. We will answer the question of racial profiling. We will answer the question of blockades at polls. We will answer the question of antiquated voting equipment in certain areas of our community. We will lift up the Voting Rights Act of 1965 that reinforces the opportunity to be represented by people who will represent them in the best way.

Mr. Speaker, we must never repeat the mistakes of last year. The story of the Florida election reminded us that voting and service to our nation. My pain was at the lack of concern that those who were voters of past conflicts were not given the same level of concern that their votes not go uncounted because they resided in Palm Beach County, and Miami County Florida.

We can and will do better if we adopt electoral reform that enable all Americans to have their vote counted. We can accomplish that in a bipartisan way, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleague from Ohio for her leadership and for bringing us all together to celebrate Black History Month over the last couple of days. As we celebrate Black History Month, we are reminded that the struggles that we face today are intertwined with the legacy of inequality and justice for all. The recent Presidential election reminded us that voting rights, the very essence of our democracy, must be protected and enforced. Many African Americans discovered that equality and justice did not apply to them. America has unfortunately repeated a very sad chapter in our history, and we must never repeat it again. African Americans had to wait almost 100 years after the formation of our country to receive the right to vote. One of the major turning points came after the Emancipation Proclamation in 1863. Less than 3 years later, the 13th amendment was ratified ending slavery. In 1870, the 15th amendment was ratified stating that the right to vote could not be denied in this country based on race, color or previous conditions of servitude. Many blacks were denied opportunities to Congress, two of them being the Senate from Mississippi, Hiram Revels and Blanche Bruce, and 20 Congressmen.

Just as the black community began to enjoy political freedoms in the post-Civil War era, most of their legal rights diminished after the Presidential election of 1876. The Democratic candidate, Samuel Tilden, won the popular vote and only needed one additional electoral vote to win the Presidency. However, his opponent, Rutherford Hayes, made a deal with the Democratic Party and the white-controlled South to remove Union troops from the South, which meant the end of enforcement of black rights in that part of the country, including the right to vote.

Hayes won the election and millions of blacks lost the new rights that they barely had. We must appreciate that the South ushered in the period of Jim Crow. 120 years later, in the 2000 Presidential election, one candidate won the popular vote and another won the electoral vote. Many African Americans reported numerous problems trying to exercise their constitutional right to vote.

Just as in the 1876 election, Florida was one of the States at the center of the voting controversy. In a county in Florida, police check was set up which intimidates voters. Others reported that they were told that they were purged from the voting polls, even though they were indeed registered to vote and had their voting cards with them. Still others were told they could not vote because they were felons, when in fact they were not. Voting irregularities occurred outside of Florida as well, and so the 2000 elections showed that the need to still be vigilant about this very important right remains.

Many men and women died for the right to vote. This is part of black history, it is a part of American history. We will not take the hard-fought right to vote for granted. African Americans had to wait almost 200 years for the full legal and enforced right to vote in this Nation. We will not see those rights taken away.

In closing, I want to commend my colleagues and to all here today that we want to remember and to thank the Speaker, pro tempore (Mr. Pupke) for taking up the request of the gentlewoman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I want to take my last minute to wrap up.

This has been a great pleasure for the past 2 days to have an opportunity to host a Special Order for Black History Month. We decided this year to focus specifically on the whole issue of voter reform and the history of voter disfranchisement that has occurred in this country.

If I have 30 seconds left, Mr. Speaker, I want to yield to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Waters).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman. I would like to share with her how appreciative I am for the time that she has taken to organize this Special Order for the Congressional Black Caucus and others who wanted to participate.

We did focus on election reform. It is extremely important. We have a very rich history in this country of making sure we correct the wrongs and we open up this country to participation by all of those who would wish to participate in this democracy. When we see a problem, we must correct it. This focus today on election reform is about that.

We will be working to make sure we correct the problems in the system.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, not only during Black History Month but appropriately, as we continue to celebrate Black History Month for 2001, the Congressional Black Caucus is using this time and the voice that is afforded to us as members of this body to come before the country and its leaders to re-issue our call to reform the election system. The Presidential election of 2000 will be remembered by many of our citizens for not living up to the promise of “Democracy for all”. It is therefore clear that our election system must be fixed as it relates to the election of the President—but equally important, to ensure that all Americans are afforded their right to use.

Last November, many Americans, especially African-Americans, either saw their legally cast votes not counted or encountered a mire of obstacles that prevented them from being able to vote.

What occurred in the state of Florida last November, as well as in many other places in our country and which has occurred in election after election—must never be allowed to occur again.

According to the NAACP, irregularities ranging from the ridiculous—such as calls being made to primarily Black and Hispanic communities suggesting that the NAACP was calling to urge people to vote for President Bush—to specific complaints, from the time the polls were opened until they were closed, about police stoppings, actual polling places being moved, or the young and old being told that they weren't registered to vote when clearly they were.

In closing, I want to commend my colleague, STEPHANIE TUBBS JONES, for organizing this Special Order tonight.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, seventy-five years ago, Dr. Carter G. Woodson, a noted African American historian and scholar, founded Negro History Week. He wanted to create an occasion for African Americans to remember, honor and celebrate the accomplishments and achievements of their ancestry.

As I stand before you on this diamond anniversary all that I can say is—what a great tradition this has become.

African American Heritage month is important because it provides an opportunity for all American families and communities to come together and reflect upon the contributions African Americans have made to this great country.

Earlier this week, I invited one of my colleagues and close friends—Congressman...
Harold Ford, Jr. of Tennessee to join me at my 2nd annual African American Heritage Month Celebration.

This year’s celebration was dedicated to African American Economic Development and empowerment in the New Millennium.

Every year the event that evening had a good time. Each year, I enjoy celebrating this great tradition and look forward to it.

African Americans have such a rich heritage and culture. Neither my district, the Seventh Congressional District of New York nor this country would be what it is today without the rich contributions of African American heritage and culture. I am proud to say that I represent the district that both Louis Armstrong and Malcolm X lived until the very last days of their lives.

In the aftermath of the 2000 Presidential election, many African Americans throughout this country find themselves engaged in another struggle.

While the civil right’s movement ended some time ago the struggle for equal justice and equality still continues.

After this past election, too many people of color felt that the votes they casted were not counted.

Some even felt that there was an organized effort to disenfranchise their votes and keep them from the polls.

The problems of this past election are far too reminiscent of the problems African Americans had to face prior to the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Voting Rights Act of 1965.

So while we celebrate, we must remember that the fight for equal rights, justice and equality must continue.

I believe that all leaders, regardless of their party affiliation, race, religion or creed must do all that they can to ensure all Americans are protected under the laws of this great nation.

As I stand before you here this afternoon, I pledge to do all that I can to ensure that these rights are protected for African Americans and all Americans regardless of their race, religion or creed.

I would like to thank my colleagues in the Congressional Black Caucus, especially Representative Tubbs Jones for allowing me this time this afternoon.

Mr. Visclosky. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate Black History Month with my colleagues. As we approach the 45th Anniversary of the arrests in which many of Montgomery’s African American leaders, including the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., were indicted, tried, and convicted under an old law prohibiting boycotts, it is important for us to remember that the quest for civil rights is an ongoing journey.

The Montgomery Bus Boycott officially began on December 1, 1955, when Rosa Parks, a seamstress and civil rights activist, was arrested for disobeying a city law that required blacks to give up their seats when white people wished to sit in those seats or in the same row. After this arrest, a chain of events unfolded that had an undeniable impact on American society.

African-American community leaders quickly urged all blacks to stay off the city buses on the day Parks’ case was due in court. Dr. King later wrote, “a miracle had taken place” when all the buses in Montgomery were empty the following morning.

Capitalizing on the boycott’s initial success, local ministers and civil rights leaders met to organize themselves as the Montgomery Improvement Association. As important as the founding of the organization itself, the group elected King as president, and the group quickly moved on a unanimous vote to continue the boycott.

Bus boycotts had been held before for short periods of time in other Southern cities, so local authorities were not expecting the Montgomery boycott to last very long. However, the resolve shown by the community was extraordinary. The Montgomery Improvement Association even organized a “private taxi” plan, under which blacks who owned cars picked up and dropped off blacks who needed rides at various points throughout the city.

Maintaining the boycott was not easy. Local leaders had their homes bombed, and private taxi drivers were arrested on trumped up traffic charges. Each day that it continued, attempts were made to break the boycott, which had hurt downtown businesses considerably.

In court, black residents of Montgomery pushed hard for complete integration of the city’s buses. Because the Brown versus Board of Education decision said that the “separate but equal” doctrine had no place in public education, Montgomery’s residents argued that the doctrine had no place in any public facilities.

On November 13, 1956, the United States Supreme Court declared bus segregation unconstitutional. Montgomery’s black residents returned to the buses after the Supreme Court mandate had been enacted in December of that same year—a full 382 days after the protests began.

Trying to put the Montgomery boycott into perspective is not an easy task, but I would argue that there are three key points to be made when discussing its legacy. First, the ascension of Dr. Martin Luther King as a leader is of the utmost importance. The boycott gave Dr. King a leadership position within the national movement, and he quickly became an international symbol of tolerance who worked tirelessly for the advancement of civil rights.

It should also be noted that the work of the Montgomery boycott was important because of his effectiveness at drawing support to the movement. He built a groundswell of support by recruiting like-minded people throughout the South across the normal barriers of race, age, and religion.

A good example of this is the creation of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee in 1960, where King recruited both black and white college students to lead boycotts, sit-ins, and marches for the cause of civil rights.

Secondly, the Montgomery boycotts are an important aspect of America’s history because they caught the attention of the entire nation. The massive scale and duration of this protest was widely reported, heightening public awareness to the lack of the civil rights of African Americans.

As the first organized mass protest by blacks in Southern history, the Montgomery boycotts also set the tone for the rest of the movement. The boycott’s effectiveness demonstrated the power of nonviolent direct action in the quest to end Southern segregation. Similar nonviolent protests and actions, including the lunchen counter sit-ins that took place throughout the South at segregated stores and restaurants, can be traced to the Montgomery boycotts.

Lastly, honoring the history of the Montgomery boycott reinforces the fact that civil rights require our attention at all times. We must be vigilant at all times, to ensure that no person is every discriminated against on the basis of the color of his or her skin. It may not always be easy, but the path has been laid for us. Collectively, we must commit ourselves to the protection of each person’s unalienable rights to “life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.”

Mr. Conyers. Mr. Speaker, I commend the gentlelady from Ohio, Congresswoman Tubbs Jones, for convening this critically important special order today. It is very appropriate that Members of the Congressional Black Caucus take this time to honor Black History Month, and more specifically, our nation’s ongoing struggle to fulfill the promise of democracy.

When I first ran for Congress in 1964, I ran on a platform of “Jobs, Justice and Peace.” I never thought at that time that the fundamental plank of justice, the right to vote, would remain the primary issue before us 37 years later. I never would have thought then that there would be cases of voter intimidation, disenfranchisement and confusing ballots in the 21st century.

Like most Americans, I wanted to believe that our system of justice would do all that it could under current laws to ensure the right to vote, particularly the right of African Americans and other historically disenfranchised voters will be protected. Unfortunately this was not the case in the 2000 presidential election.

Therefore I have joined with several of my colleagues in the Congress to begin the painstaking task of looking at reform of our system of voting from the top down and from the bottom up.

So, as we celebrate the history of African Americans, we should commit ourselves to fight harder for the future of all of America. This Congress and the current Administration must make real, true election reform their top priority.

Democratic Caucus Special Committee and Congressional Special Committee

Today, Democratic Leader Gephardt announced the formation of a Democratic Caucus Special Committee on Voting Rights Reform, chaired by Congresswoman Maxine Waters, and Co-chaired by myself, Steny Hoyer and a number of our colleagues who have committed themselves to this task. The Democratic Caucus is committed to working on solutions, not rehearsing the past.

We are hopeful that Speaker Hastert will appoint a Congressional Special Committee soon and look forward to working with him and all of our Republican colleagues on a non-partisan basis.

National Roundup of Voter Irregularities

From reports that flakes felony voter “purges,” there may have erroneously disenfranchised thousands of African-American voters to allegations of voter irregularities across the nation, we agree that the razor-thin margin in the 2000 Presidential election illuminated serious flaws in our electoral system.

Here are just a few of the problems encountered by voters in the past:

Problems in Florida

The Problems in Florida are well known. From butterfly ballots that no one could understand, to police roadblocks near polling... places, to overbroad felony voter purges, Florida showed the system is broken.

THE PROBLEM WAS NOT JUST IN FLORIDA—IT WAS NATIONAL

In Georgia, “Lines too long” was the single most commonly heard complaint from voters. Citizens in some communities waited at the polls for two hours or more, and some metro Atlanta voters did not cast ballots until after 11:00 p.m.—a more than four-hour wait. Contributing factors in some polling places were poor layout, a shortage of well-trained poll workers, and a shortage of poll locations.

In Louisiana, people who claimed that they were prevented from voting because their voter registration at local driver’s license bureau under the “motor voter” law never got processed. According to the Registrar of Voters, dozens of voters in Jefferson Parish alone found themselves with no designated precinct to go to. On the west bank of New Orleans, there were 75-100 calls from people who claimed to have changed their address, but were not in the Registrar’s records. And in St. Tammany, Registrar of Voters M. Dwayne Wall said that approximately 100 people called because of apparent problems with the Department of Motor Vehicles registration process.

In Missouri, it was contended that many registered voters were incorrectly stricken from the rolls after a mail canvass. They also allege that procedures for re-registering those “inactive” voters were too cumbersome, and that many polling places were understaffed or had no telephone contact with the board’s downtown headquarters.

And in my home state, voters complained that the polling places had undertrained administrators and long lines.

STORIES OF ELECTION DAY PROBLEMS

In New Orleans, voters were not allowed to vote because their voter registration at local driver’s license bureaus under the state’s motor voter law never got processed. Leslie Boudreaux moved from one precinct and registered, she was turned away at her polling place.

In Portland, Maine, it appears that as many as 15,000 voters were illegally purged from voting rolls and were forced to wait in long lines to register and again vote. One voter forced to stand in line, Shirley Lewellyn, said she was “mad as hell” about having to stand in a long registration line when she wanted to be with her husband, who was undergoing minor eye surgery. “I’ve voted for 20 years at [my precinct], and when I went there this morning, they told me I wasn’t on the list.”

In Columbia, South Carolina, some registered voters said they were turned away from the polls, while others said they were intimidated by polling place and NAAACP poll watchers were asked to leave poll sites.

In Boston, Mass, a volunteer who was giving voters rides to the polls received a call from an amputee for a ride to the polls. The caller stated that he had attempted to vote at the polling place he had voted a year before and was turned away. The volunteer drove the man to four different poll sites and were turned away each time. Only at the last poll site were they told that the first poll site, the one the man had visited initially, was the correct one.

THERE ARE SOLUTIONS

Most importantly, we must address the instances of voter intimidation, such as police checkpoints near polling places, and the widespread problem of overbroad felony voter purges. The best voting machines in the world won’t do any good if they don’t let legal voters vote.

We should have more vigorous investigation and enforcement of civil rights laws and government aid to states should be contingent upon affirmative steps by states to comply with those laws.

The most obvious problem for states and localities has been in mobility or unwillingness to fund 21st Century election technology. The federal government needs to step in and provide assistance to states to replace old voting machines.

But we need to help states do more than that. States need better trained poll workers and better educated voters.

We need to ensure that polling places accessible to persons with disabilities. More than that, it is unthinkable in the year 2001 that we have not implemented technology that allows a seeing impaired person to cast an independent secret ballot. The federal government can provide financial assistance and encouragement in this area as well.

We need to use federal dollars to encourage states to install voting machines as easily as possible, with the same day registration procedures. And there is a “data gap.” No unbiased entity is testing voting machines. There has been no rigorous study of whether other innovations, such as an election day holiday, are needed. We need to study these issues very carefully and very quickly.

In short, Congress needs to act and it needs to act soon before these incidents are repeated in the 2002 elections. Together we must end voting disenfranchisement and secure racial justice in the electoral arena. Today, the fight continues. The voice of each American must be allowed to be heard in our democracy.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) for his kindness in allowing me this time, and I want to join others in commending the Congressional Black Caucus and our colleague, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES), for her leadership in calling this Special Order today.

Nothing speaks to the contribution made by the African American community to our democracy more eloquently than the eloquence that we heard on this floor today from our Members and the fine record of achievement by the African American community and the members of the Congressional Black Caucus to Congress over time.

The focus today on this celebration of Black History Month has been election reform. My colleagues, including the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE), talked about the history of voting rights in this country and how African Americans first got those rights and what the struggle has been. Now, as we look to the future, we must improve.

The issue of electronic voting, using technologies for the future, having a uniform standard, even if it is not a uniform manner of casting ballots and counting them, is essential. We must be very proactive in making sure that the people in all of our cities, including the African American community, know that when they vote, they will be counted, that indeed they do count.

We must be aware of the fact that some of the technology may increase the disparity that we have, so I caution us as we go forward to involve ourselves in those technologies which increase participation and which are more uniform. It is important to the other than again advantage those who have more resources with technology at home.

So while we have big challenges ahead, again we are blessed with the first lady. I wish to yield here to the gentlewoman of the Congressional Black Caucus in this Congress. And I want to point with pride to a newly elected member of our Board of Supervisors in San Francisco, Sophie Maxwell. She comes from a proud tradition. Briola Maxwell, is very active in education and other social and economic justice issues in our community. Sophie is a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. She has been a leader on issues in our community. She has made us, and will make us, all very proud.

But back to the Congressional Black Caucus, I want to thank them for what they are doing. It is important to the black community and important to the Black Caucus, and it is important to our great country.

With that, Mr. Speaker, though I have so much more to say but only a little time, I wish to yield here to the minority leader, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), today appointed me to serve as the chairperson for a Democratic Caucus special election reform committee. I am honored today that I had the opportunity to work with the vice chairs of that committee to travel across this country holding town halls, workshops, and meetings where we will listen to the people. We will hear from the people the problems that they are experiencing in their States and in their jurisdictions as it relates to the elections process.
We were focused on the problems of the election system in Florida in this recent election, and we were amazed at the disenfranchisement that took place there in so many different ways. But we have come to understand that it is not simply Florida, but everywhere we look in this country we can point to problems. Those problems include dysfunctional voting machines, long lines where people are waiting to vote that cannot get in before the polls close. We saw the butterfly ballot, and we learned that there was kind of the division of one person. We saw in Florida, for example, that one person in the elections office could determine that absentee ballots or requests applications could be taken out of the office to be taken home to be worked on. We saw all kinds of things.

So we are going to go around the country, and we are going to hear more. We are going to hear about consolidations that eliminate the ability to do that, and we hope that everyone have a lot of work to do. We will be consolidations that eliminate the ability that we will be doing that, and we hope that everyone who would like to be involved can be involved in this.

SOCIAL SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I am a farmer from Michigan, and I know that you are as well in your State of Florida.

Agriculture today and the plight of farmers is one of the serious issues before Congress. Another serious issue that is sort of the overriding consideration of where we go in the next several months is how high should taxes be in this country and how should government spend the money that comes down here to Washington as we decide on the priorities for spending.

This first chart is a pie chart that shows the different pieces of pie, or the percentage of spending this year that goes into several categories. Social Security takes 20 percent of all Federal spending. Social Security is the largest expenditure that we have in the Federal Government. Of course, the people at risk are the young people today that are going to be threatened with huge increases in taxes or reduced benefits in Social Security benefits.

Out of the approximately $2 trillion that we will be spending this year, 2011, 20 percent goes to Social Security. The next highest is 12 appropriation bills. Two of the appropriation bills all together, what we spend a half a year arguing on, spending for so-called discretionary spending, discretionary meaning what Congress has some discretion over, is 19 percent of the budget. The other 16 of the appropriation bill is defense, and that takes 17 percent.

But here is Social Security now taking much more than even defense spending, with Medicare at 11 percent. Medicare is even growing because we are talking now of how do we add some prescription drug coverage to Medicare. So we are looking at the challenge of the Federal Government's expenditure and the Federal Government getting into the prescription drug issue on individual rights. It is giving more empowerment to Congress and the White House, and it is taking away authority and authorization and power from individuals.

So the first question it seems to me should be, how high should taxes be?

Mr. Speaker, I would ask our listening audience to give us a guess in their own mind of how many cents out of every dollar they earn goes for taxes at the local, State, and national level, what percentage of what you earn goes in taxes.

Well, if you are an average American taxpayer, a little over 41 percent goes in taxes, 41 cents out of every dollar you earn. When the seniors graduate next year or when they finish college or high school and go into the job market, one area that is going to be shelling out 41 cents of every dollar they earn in taxes, taking the first 4 months out of every year proportionately to pay taxes.

And, of course, everybody is now considering their Federal tax bill. They are looking at the taxes. If they have some investment in some mutual funds, they are getting notices on their 1099s that they have a capital gains tax to pay, even though the value of that mutual fund might have gone down in this past year.

So the question then becomes, how do we have tax fairness? It would be my suggestion that we make every possible effort to reduce taxes from that 41 percent down to at least 35 percent. That is what made this country great is the fact that you are going to get some reward for your efforts to save and invest to try to maybe get a second job or a second part-time job so you can take care of your family.

Well, we now have a tax system that says, look, not only are we going to tax you at the same rate if you get a second job, we are going to tax you at a higher rate if you start earning more money. I think there is a lot to do on tax fairness. I think there is a lot to do on tax simplification.

But I want to spend a little time talking about where we go on finances, and part of that question is how large should the Government debt be in this country.

Right now the debt today is $5.69 trillion, almost $5.7 trillion of debt. I am a farmer, as I mentioned, and our tradition on the farm has been to try to pay off some of that mortgage to leave your kids with a little better chance. But I want to spend a little time right now, in this body, and the Senate and the White House is borrowing all of this money and we are going to leave it up to our kids and our grandkids to pay back.

Without reform, Social Security leaves our kids a legacy of debt larger than we have today. Right now, of the $5.7 trillion, $3.4 trillion is so-called Treasury debt. Treasury debt is borrowing money from the American people to pay for the day-to-day operation of the government. It is so-called the debt to the public, the public borrowing. The rest of the debt is debt that we borrow from the trust fund. Roughly $1.1 trillion comes from the Social Security trust fund that the Government has borrowed that that extra money in from Social Security taxes and spent it on other programs.

Yesterday we passed a bill to make sure that we do not do that this year. And then there is $1.2 trillion that is from all of the other 119 trust funds. And so, most of what we are doing with the extra money coming in from the trust funds, we are writing out an IOU and we are using those dollars to pay down the public debt.

When the baby boomers start retiring around 2008, then we are looking at a situation where there is not going to be enough money coming in from Social Security taxes to pay benefits. So what do we do? Well, what Washington has done in the past is increase taxes. I think it is important that we deal with Social Security now so that we do not rely on tax increases in the future.

And that is why we have this curve. As we pay down the debt held by the public, eventually we are going to have to start borrowing again to pay Social Security benefits and Medicare benefits, and that is going to leave our kids with that huge debt load.

The temporary debt reduction plan does little more than borrow the Social Security surplus to repay the debt held by the public; and when the baby boomers retire, Social Security surpluses disappear and Federal debt accumulates.

Again on the debt, for the whole load of hay, we see now that this is roughly the division of that $5.7 trillion of debt. But over time, if we keep borrowing money from the Social Security trust fund and Medicare trust fund and other trust funds and use that money to pay down the debt held by the public, then the debt held by the public continues to diminish, but the Social Security trust fund debt and the Medicare trust fund debt are still there. There is not enough money there to pay the benefits that are going to be required after the baby boomers retire.

That is demonstrated in this chart. In the top left, we see a momentary surplus in Social Security taxes coming in. Right now your Social Security taxes are 12.4 percent of essentially everything you make. But when the baby-boomers retire and go out of the pay-in mode to recipients of Social Security, then the problem really hits us full on. The Government is going to be borrowing all in the number of retirees that are going to be taking Social Security benefits and a reduced number of workers that are paying in their taxes to cover the cost of that program and starting.

Starting around 2012, there is going to be an insufficient amount of Social Security taxes coming in, so we are going to have to come up with money from somewhere else.

What we have done on several occasions that I think should make every American very concerned is that we have either increased taxes and/or reduced benefits. We did that in 1977. We did it again in 1983 when we revised the Social Security system.

This red, by the way, represents $9 trillion of unfunded liability. That is why I think it is so important and I have urged this administration and, of course, I encouraged for the last 8 years the previous administration to move ahead with some changes to Social Security that will keep Social Security solvent.

I mean, if we take a trillion dollars out of this total $5.6 trillion that we are not paying into Social Security over the next 10 years and we use that trillion to start some real returns on some of that money, we can save Social Security and keep it solvent for the next 75 years.

If we put it off, that means that we are going to have to be even more drastic in the future to make these changes. In other words, the longer we put off the solution to Social Security, the more drastic those changes are going to have to be.

I mentioned $9 trillion in today’s dollars. The unfunded liability means that we would have to put $9 trillion into a savings account today to earn enough money in interest to pay benefits to add to what is going to come in in Social Security taxes to keep Social Security solvent for the next 75 years.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt created the Social Security program over 6 decades ago, he wanted it to feature a private account component to build retirement incomes. Social Security was supposed to be one leg of a three-legged stool.

I have some of those old brochures that I have looked up in the archives where it says, look, Social Security is one-third of what should be everybody’s effort to have a secure retirement, one-third from Social Security, one-third from your individual savings and investment, and one-third from putting in and having a pension that the employer pays into. That is how it was going to be.

I encouraged everybody to partake in that. When Franklin D. Roosevelt created Social Security, he encouraged everybody to look into Social Security and put some of that money, we can save Social Security and keep it solvent for the next 75 years.

The personal retirement accounts that a lot of people have talked about and some people have said to me, well, now is not the time to talk about individually owned accounts because look what the stock market has done over the last 12 years.

The fact is that an average person retiring from Social Security 5 years from now is going to get a 1.1 percent return on the money that was paid in that year, and 1.7 percent if you put it into Social Security. Right now the average is 1.7 percent. But as taxes go up, the percentage and the likelihood that you are going to get that money back is going to diminish.

And so the question is, can we do better than getting a 1.1 percent or even a 1.7 percent return on some of that money?

So there is some security in having this in individual accounts. And we can put it in safe investments. We brought in experts into our Social Security Task Force that said, look, we can guarantee a 4.2 percent return and guarantee that you will have at least a 4.2 percent return on the way we are going, we can invest your money.

Some other insurance companies have higher rates. Some others have lower rates. But the fact is that a CD at your bank, other investments that are secure, can do a lot better than that 1.1 to 1.7 percent return.

The fact is that the Supreme Court, on two decisions now, has said that Social Security is a trust fund and, therefore, there is no entitlement or no necessary connection between the two.

I think that should make us nervous, also.

Social Security is a system stretched to its limits. Seventy-eight million baby-boomers will begin to retire in 2008. Of course, the baby-boomers after World War II, the soldiers came home and there was a tremendous increase in birth rate and at that time, of course, we had that huge increase in population. We had problems in building our schools and building up our education system and the kind of services necessary to deal with that expanding population, and Social Security worked very well as an expanded workforce, paid in those taxes, and those taxes immediately go out to pay the benefits of existing retirees.

Social Security spending exceeds tax revenues starting technically in 2015, and that is when the problems really hit us. If there was a Social Security trust fund, then the Social Security trust fund would keep Social Security solvent until 2034 or 2035.

But let me spend just a couple of minutes on what the Social Security trust fund is. You pay in currently 12.4 percent of the first roughly $80,000 you earn in Social Security taxes. For the last almost 6 years now, there has been quite a huge surplus on the taxes coming in as opposed to what was needed to pay benefits.

Again it is a pay-as-you-go program. Taxes come in and by the end of the week, they are sent out in benefits almost. We are dealing with a situation where the government then writes an IOU, but you cannot cash in that IOU. It is nonnegotiable. They write the IOU, and say we are borrowing this money; and for the last 42 years, government has been spending any surplus that came in from Social Security on other government spending.

Starting last year, for the first time, and I introduced a bill in the spring of 1999 that said we would have a rescission or we would cut all spending if we started digging into the Social Security surplus, that ended up with the lockbox bill of the gentleman from California (Mr. HUEBNER).

We passed that again just yesterday, a lockbox bill that says we are not going to use the Social Security surplus for any spending. But now there are a bunch of IOUs in a steel file box down there that technically says the government has borrowed this money.

The question then becomes, when Social Security needs the money, how is it going to pay it back? It is going to do one of three things. To come up with the $120 trillion we need to pay for Social Security benefits, it is either going to reduce the cost of Social Security, in other words, lower benefits so there is not so much to pay back or they are going to reduce other spending or they simply borrow more money.

You remember that earlier chart, how we are going to leave our kids this huge debt. That is because to pay Social Security benefits, we are going to have to borrow these huge amounts of debt. By huge, I mean over the next 75 years, borrowing coming up with $12 trillion. Remember, our total budget this year is $2 trillion. Over the next 75 years, coming up with $120 trillion in excess of what is coming in in Social Security taxes to pay the benefits that are currently promised. You can see now it is a huge problem. Nobody knows quite how to solve this problem. So we keep putting it off. The danger of the situation, of course, is until a crisis is almost on us, we do not react in solving some of the tough problems. That is why it is so important, Mr. Speaker, that the American people understand how dramatically the problem is of keeping Social Security solvent.

Insolvency is certain. We know how many people there are and when they are going to retire. It is not some kind of economic projection. The actuaries over in the Social Security Administration know absolutely how many people there are. Their estimate of how long people are going to live is very, very accurate; and we know how much they are going to pay in and how much they are going to take out in Social Security. Payroll taxes, only 1 percent of which goes to Social Security, but then die and might get a benefit to $79,000, on the first $79,000, so the maximum was $288 a year. In 1980, we raised the rate to 10.16 percent on a total FICA tax, than they do in income tax. This chart represents how we have increased Social Security taxes. How about investing the money? How about saving the money you and your employer paid in, in Social Security taxes. And it is very good, but nobody knows quite how to solve this problem. That is why it is so tough problems. That is why it is so danger of this legislative body, of Congress or the Senate or the President, neither one should be an option of thischr. This is a chart, I thought to demonstrate this point, the fact that it is not a good investment, it is not a good investment, again let us recognize that everybody understands, Mr. Speaker, that in all of the proposals to solve Social Security, none of those proposals touch the disability and survivor benefits. So that portion of the Social Security that goes for disability, if you get hurt on the job, the benefits of the rest of your life, or if you die and your spouse or your kids need help, none of the proposals nor the three bills that I have introduced over the last 8 years, none of the proposals dig into that survivor disability portion of the package.

But to get back all of the money that you and your employer have paid in is going to take anybody that retires in the next several years, it is going to take 23 to 26 years. And over on your right, you see by 2025, the estimate is that at that time there are only going to be two people working for each retiree. Two people working for each retiree. A huge challenge, a huge potential to increase those taxes on those two workers. As you increase taxes, of course, you discourage economic development.

There is no Social Security with your name on it. As I give speeches around the country, a large number of people think that there is somehow an account that is in their name that entitles them to Social Security benefits. This is a quote from the Office of Management and Budget of the United States Government. They say: “These trust fund balances are available to finance future benefit payments and other trust fund expenditures, but only in a bookkeeping sense. They are the claims on the Treasury that, when redeemed, will have to be financed by raising taxes, borrowing from the public, reducing benefits or other expenditures.”

I thought I would throw that quote in. Mr. Speaker, to reaffirm the point that I was just trying to make earlier, that having the Social Security trust fund and per se didn’t change, but that somehow that is the solution out there is fooling ourselves. It is fooling the American people.

The public debt versus Social Security, about a lot of people have suggested that we paid back the debt held by the public, now $3.4 trillion, somehow that savings on interest is going to accommodate the $46.6 trillion shortfall between now and 2057, over the next 56 years. This chart is simply to represent that that $3.4 trillion debt and roughly the 5 percent interest on that debt is not going to accommodate the huge shortfall in Social Security.

Some people have suggested, look, if we can keep the economy going strong, that will help solve our Social Security problems. It helps solve the Social Security problems in the short run, but because there is a direct relationship in the Social Security benefits you receive to the wages that you pay in, in the long term it does not help the problem, because the more you earn and the more you pay in, eventually the higher the benefits you are going to be entitled to. And spelling this out, Social Security benefits are indexed to wage growth. When the economy grows, workers pay more in taxes but also will earn more in benefits when they retire. Growth makes the numbers look better now but leaves a large hole to fill later. Any administration or government has got to realize that saying that we are going to pay down the public debt to save Social Security is not going to do the job.

Helping me is a page by the name of Martha, I think Martha is from New Hampshire. I was up in New Hampshire, Martha, and bought some maple syrup last summer. It is very good, but we make maple syrup in Michigan, too, that is pretty good. In fact, we make some money selling it.

Back to business. The biggest risk is doing nothing at all. Social Security has a total unfunded liability of over $9 trillion. The Social Security trust fund contains nothing but IOUs. To keep paying promised Social Security benefits, the payroll tax will have to be increased by nearly 50 percent or benefits will have to be cut by 30 percent. Neither one should be an option of this Congress or the Senate or the President.

How about investing the money? How big a risk is it? The diminishing returns of your Social Security investment. Right now, this chart represents what you might get back in terms of Social Security benefits based on what you and your employer paid in, or if you are self-employed, what you paid in.

The real return of Social Security is less than 2 percent for most workers and shows a return for some compared to over 7 percent for the market on the average over the last 100 years. If you look at just the last 10 years, then we are looking at returns that exceed 14 percent. It is a negative return, by the way, for minorities.

So if a young black male today because they have a shorter life span, they spend their life paying into Social Security, but then die and might get a $200 death benefit, but they essentially lose all their money. If some of this money was in their own account, then it would go to their heirs and it would not be simply kept by the Federal Government saying, well, this helps balance out everything else. On average, as I mentioned, it is 1.7 percent with a market return of over 7 percent.

This is a chart, I thought to demonstrate this point, the fact that it is not a good investment, it is not a good investment, but then die and might get a $200 death benefit, but they essentially lose all their money. If some of this money was in their own account, then it would go to their heirs and it would not be simply kept by the Federal Government saying, well, this helps balance out everything else. over the years, then we ended up increasing taxes. And twice, in 1977 and in 1981, we also reduced benefits.

This is what I was mentioning in the FICA tax. So the FICA tax, 12.4 is Social Security; and the rest of the 15-odd is Medicare. And a little over 15 percent goes in your payroll tax.

Right now 78 percent of American working families pay more in the payroll deduction in the FICA tax than they do in income tax. What I am trying to do with that chart is show that it would be very unfair to again raise those taxes. But if we do not deal with Social Security now and we say, look, we are just going to use the Social Security surplus to pay down the debt, that would be quite disastrous. The savings rate in this country, that $3.4 trillion to accommodate the $50 or $60 trillion short-fall in Social Security and pretend that somehow that is going to fix Social Security, I think it is not fair to ourselves to say that and I think it is not fair to the American people to think that that is going to be a possibility.

These are the six principles of my Social Security bill that I have been introduced chairman of the Senate finance committee in the State of Michigan before I came here, and there were a couple of considerations and concerns I had before I came to Congress, and that was the low savings rate in the United States. We have a lower savings rate than any of the other G-7 countries.

Our savings rate is about 5 percent of what we earn. In Japan, for example, it is almost 20 percent. In Korea, it has been as high as 35 percent of what they earn. We used to in this country save almost 15 percent of what we earned. We used to in this country save about 19 percent. In Korea, it has been as high as 35 percent of what they earned. We used to in this country save almost 15 percent of what we earned.

But now our savings rate has tremendously gone down. Part of it maybe is the advertisements of Fly now, pay later and get a new card and get $200 immediate cash to buy Christmas presents,” or something.

So we have encouraged debt. So there is a danger not only of the Federal Government mounting this kind of debt, but there is a problem with individual Americans relying more and more on those credit cards or other credit systems to borrow and borrow more money. That does a couple of things. Number one, it disrupts economic expansion. Because say your saving and the investment mean that that investment is what companies use to do the research, to buy the kind of state-of-art equipment and machinery that can accommodate international competition.

It was important for me when I came to Congress that I try to do the kind of things to encourage savings, and one of those things was allowing some of this large Social Security tax to be invested and to be in the name of individuals. I was chairman of the Senate retirement accounts, offer more retirement security.

If I have to take a drink of water, that probably means that I have talked almost long enough, and maybe the listening audience has listened long enough, so I am going to finish the last few slides.

Personal retirement accounts offer more retirement security. If John Doe makes an average of $36,000 a year, he is entitled to $1,280 in Social Security of $1,280, or from a personal retirement account he can expect $6,514.

When we passed the Social Security law back in 1935, that States and local governments could opt out of Social Security and develop their own pension retirement plan. Galveston, Texas, did just that. They decided not to go into Social Security, but to have their own retirement plan. Right now this chart compares what those individuals in Galveston County have as death and disability and retirement benefits as opposed to what they would have in Social Security.

On the death benefits, Social Security, $253; the Galveston plan, $75,000 in death benefits. Social Security, $1,280; the Galveston plan, with their own investments, $2,749. Monthly retirement payments, $1,280, compared to Galveston retirement payments, $1,790. San Diego did the same option. San Diego enjoys personal retirement accounts, PRAs, as well. A 30-year-old employee who earns a salary of $30,000 a year and 5 percent of his PRA would receive $3,000 per month in retirement. Under the current system he would contribute twice as much in Social Security, but only receive $1,077.

The difference between San Diego’s system of PRAs and Social Security is more than the difference in a check. It is also the difference in ownership, in knowing that politicians are not going to take that away from you.

Even those who oppose PRAs agree they offer more retirement security. This is a letter from Senator Barbara Boxer and Diane Feinstein and Ted Kennedy to President Clinton. In their letter they said, “Millions of our constituents who retire will have a retirement account that is more secure than the current pension benefits from their current public pension plans than they would under Social Security.”

So the question is, how can we make this more available to everybody, to, in effect, guarantee they are going to be better off and they are going to have an ownership of some of that retirement account?

I represented the United States in describing our pension retirement system in an international forum in London a couple of years ago, and it is interesting the number of countries that are ahead of us in terms of allowing their workers to own personal retirement accounts.

In the 18 years since Chile offered the PRAs, 95 percent of Chilean workers have created accounts. Their average rate of return has been 11.3 percent per year. Among others, Australia, Britain, Switzerland, all offer workers PRAs. The British workers chose PRAs with 10 percent returns, and two out of three British workers enrolled in the second-tier social security system. They are allowed to have half of their social security taxes go into these personal retirement accounts, and they have been getting 10 percent-a-year return. Again, that compares to our Social Security return, currently at 1.7 percent.

This is what has happened in equity investments over the years. It is a graph of the ups and downs of the returns on equities. Some bad years, in the early 1920s, during the Depression, 1929, a little depression. But, on average, if you leave your money in for over ten years, in the long period, then you did not lose any money on equity investments. The average return over this time period was 6.7 percent.

Again, we are looking at a system, such as all Federal employees know the Thrift Savings Plan, where it is limited to safe investments. It is limited to your choice of how much you want to put in equities versus government Treasury bills versus bonds for corporations, fixed income bonds or variable interest rate investment bonds.

You balance that in terms of minimizing risk, and in all cases the experts suggest that it is going to be very, very easy to do much, much better than the 1.1 to 1.7 percent return you are going to get on Social Security.

Based on a family income of $58,475, the return on a personal retirement account is even better. We divided this into three different areas, if you invest 2 percent of your wages or 6 percent of your wages or 10 percent of your wages. If the average working life span is, what, if you go to work at 20, 25, and you retire at 65, 70, so on average I suspect we are working 40 years, paying in our Social Security taxes, so let me jump way over to the 40 years.

If you were to work 40 years and invest 2 percent of your money, then you would end up with just a little over a quarter of a million dollars. If you invested 10 percent of your money, you would have $1.4 million over the 40-year period.

What are we looking at, if you just invested this money at 2 percent for the first 20 years, you would still have $55,000 after 20 years; or if you invested 10 percent, you would have $274,000 over 10 years.

Again, the fact is that long-term investments, even with the fluctuations for that 12-year or 15-year period, we have never had a 12- or 15-year period in the history of the stock market, of equities, where there has been a loss. Again, the average return on such an investment has been 6.7 percent.

Ok. Let us pick up just briefly with the Social Security bill that I have introduced. I am rewriting that bill now to make a couple changes that I think are important.

The position is some people argue, well, you cannot let individuals invest the money themselves. So what I have done in this legislation is I have limited the investment to safe investments, index stocks, index bonds, an index mutual fund, or an allocation of some of the foreign stock investment funds. That is what we are doing in the Thrift Savings Plan also.

My legislation allows workers to invest a portion of their Social Security taxes in their plans. So this adds to the surpluses over the next 10 years. That Social Security solvent for at least 75 years. That actuaries over at Social Security have scored this and said this will keep Social Security solvent for at least 75 years. Actually, it would keep Social Security solvent forever, the way it is written.

The bill takes a portion of on-budget surpluses over the next 10 years. That is what I would like to stress. This bill borrows $800 billion of surpluses otherwise the Social Security surplus to make the transition. Since we are talking all the money essentially now that is coming in and paying out $400 billion a year in Social Security benefits, how do you come up with enough money to stop paying out? You are not going to stop paying out those benefits, so how do you make the transition?

So the transition is made from borrowing some money from the general fund. Now that we have this surplus coming in, now is the time to take that step. So if we can take $1 trillion now from the other surpluses to fix Social Security, then we are going to have Social Security solvent; and it is not going to haunt our kids and grandkids later.

It uses capital market investments to create Social Security's rate of return above the 1.7 percent workers are now receiving. Over time, PRSAs grow, and Social Security fixed benefits are reduced. It indexes future benefit increases to the cost-of-living increases instead of wage growth.

In other words, part of the problem now with Social Security is that benefits go up faster than the economy. Benefits increase based on wage inflation, which is higher than the CPI inflation. So one of the things my bill does is it changes the index of how much wages are increased to inflation. So it covers the increased cost of everything we buy, but it does not go up faster than everything we buy, as is currently structured under the current Social Security law.

Let me finish, Mr. Speaker, by simply saying that I think we are in luck with this new President we have. He suggested that we leave some of the money that taxpayers are paying in, now at an all-time high. We are paying more taxes now, at the 41 cents out of every dollar, than we have ever paid in the history of America in peacetime. There was one year during World War II that it was higher than what it is today.

So the fact is that another way to say that we have a surplus is saying that we are overtaxing somebody, somewhere, somehow. So let us make taxes more fair, but at the same time, that we are overtaxing, we cannot let individuals invest it in your selection of maybe four, maybe five, limited so-called safe investments, and then I would leave it up to the Secretary of Treasury to add to that any other investment potential that I thought was safe and reasonable to add to this selection.

My proposal does not increase taxes. It repeals the Social Security earnings test for everybody over 62 years old; it gives workers choice, or an index as early as 59.5 years old, and as late as 70. In my proposal, I made a suggestion that you could increase your benefits 8 percent a year for every year after 65 that you delayed taking those benefits.

Mr. Speaker, workers who are choice to retire at 59½. It gives each spouse equal share of the PRSAs. If you are a stay-at-home mom, you get half of what your husband makes; or if you are a stay-at-home dad, half of what your wife would get in your individual PRSA account. So it is always divided equally between the two spouses. If one spouse makes more than the other spouse, they are added together and divided by two to represent how much would go into each account.

It also increases widow and widower benefits up to 110 percent. That is partially to encourage retirees that might be a surviving widow or widower to live in the home. You cannot do it now. One cannot live on half as much money as two. So this adds to the surviving spouse's benefit.

It reinforces the safety net for low-income and disabled workers. It passes the Social Security Administration's 75-year solvency test. In other words, the actuaries over at Social Security have scored this and said this will keep Social Security solvent for at least 75 years. Actually, it would keep Social Security solvent forever, the way it is written.

The message also announced that pursuant to Public Law 94–304, as amended by Public Law 99–7, the Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, appoints the following Senators as members of the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe (Helsinki) during the One Hundred Seventh Congress—the Senator from Texas (Mrs. Hutchison);

the Senator from Kansas (Mr. Brownback);

the Senator from Oregon (Mr. Smith); and the Senator from Ohio (Mr. Voinovich).

The message also announced that pursuant to Public Law 106–550, the Chair, on behalf of the Majority Leader, announces the appointment of the following individuals as members of the United States-China Security Review Commission—

Michael A. Ledeen, of Maryland.

Roger W. Robinson, Jr., of Maryland.

Arthur Waldron, of Pennsylvania.

PUBLICATION OF THE RULES OF THE COMMITTEE ON SCIENCE—107TH CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Putnam). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Boehner) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, enclosed, please find a copy of the Rules of the Committee on Science of the U.S. House of Representatives. The Committee on Science adopted these rules by voice vote on February 14, 2001. We are submitting these rules to the Congressional Record for publication in compliance with rule XI, clause 2(a)(2).

(a) The Rules of the House of Representatives, as applicable, shall govern the Committee on Science and its Subcommittees.

(b) A motion to recess from day to day and a motion to dispense with the first reading (in full) of a bill or resolution, if printed copies are available, are nondatable privileged motions in the Committee and its Subcommittees and shall be decided without debate. The rules of the Committee, as applicable, shall be the rules of its Subcommittees. The rules of germaneness shall be enforced by the Chairman [XI 1(a)].

(b) A majority of majority Members of the Committee shall determine an appropriate ratio of majority to minority Members of each Subcommittee and shall authorize the Chairman in that ratio to vote on behalf of the minority party. Provided, however, that party representation on each Subcommittee (including any ex-officio Members) shall be no less favorable to the minority party than the ratio for the Full Committee. Provided, further, that recommendations of conference to the Speaker shall provide a ratio of majority party Members to minority party Members which shall be no less favorable to the majority party than the ratio for the Full Committee.

Power to Sit and Act, Subpoena Power
(ec)(1) Notwithstanding subparagraph (2), a subpoena duces tecum may be issued by the Committee in the conduct of any investigation or series of investigations or activities to which the Committee has announced it will have access to such information as may be necessary to such investigation and testimony of any of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers and documents as deemed necessary, only when authorized by a majority of the Committee, shall include members voting, a majority of the Committee being present. Authorized subpoenas shall be signed only by the Chairman, or by any member designated by the Chairman. [XI 2(m)]

(2) The Chairman of the Full Committee, with the concurrence of the Ranking Minority Member, may authorize and issue such subpoenas as described in paragraph (1), during any period in which the House has adjourned for a period longer than 3 days. [XI 2(m)(a)(1)]

(3) A subpoena duces tecum may specify terms of return other than a meeting or a hearing of the Committee.

Sensitive or Confidential Information Received Pursuant to Subpoena
(d) Unless otherwise determined by the Committee or Subcommittee, certain information received by the Committee or Subcommittee pursuant to a subpoena or other process served as part of the record at an open hearing shall be deemed to have been received in Executive Session when the Chairman of the Full Committee, or after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, deems that in view of all the circumstances, such as the sensitivity of the information or the confidentiality nature of the information, such action is appropriate.

National Security Information
(e) All national security information bearing a classification of secret or higher which has been received by the Committee or a Subcommittee shall be deemed to have been received in Executive Session and shall be given appropriate safekeeping. The Chairman of the Full Committee may establish such regulations and procedures as in his judgment are necessary to safeguard classified information under the control of the Committee. Such procedures shall, however, ensure that information by Members of the Committee, or any other Member of the House of Representatives who has requested the opportunity to review such material.

Overseas
(f) Not later than February 15 of the first session of a Congress, the Committee shall meet in open session, with a quorum present, to adopt its oversight plans for that Congress for submission to the Committee on House Oversight and the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, in accordance with the provisions of clause 2(d) of Rule X of the House of Representatives.

(g) The Chairman of the Full Committee, or of any other Committee, may undertake any investigation in the name of the Committee without formal approval by the Chairman of the Full Committee after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member of the Full Committee.

Order of Business
(h) The order of business and procedure of the Committee and the subjects of inquiries or investigations decided by the Chairman, subject always to an appeal to the Committee.

Suspension Proceedings
(i) (1) During the consideration of any measure or matter, the Chairman of the Full Committee, or any Subcommittee, or any Member acting as such, shall suspend further proceedings after a question has been put to the Committee at any time when there is a vote of no confidence occurring in the House of Representatives.

Other Procedures
(j) The Chairman of the Full Committee, after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, may authorize the issuance of subpoenas or take such actions as may be necessary to carry out the foregoing rules or to facilitate the effective operation of the Committee.

Use of Hearing Rooms
(k) In consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, the Chairman of the Full Committee shall establish guidelines for use of Committee hearing rooms.

RULE 2. COMMITTEE MEETINGS [AND PROCEDURES] [XI 2(j)]

Quorum [XI 2(b)(h)]
(a) One-third of the Members of the Committee shall constitute a quorum for all purposes except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3) of this Rule.

(b) A majority of the Members of the Committee shall constitute a quorum in order to: (A) report or table any legislation, measure, or matter; (B) vote on matters of the Committee; (C) authorize the issuance of subpoenas pursuant to Rule 2(c); and, (C) authorize the issuance of subpoenas pursuant to Rule 2(d).

(c) Two Members of the Committee shall constitute a quorum for taking testimony and receiving evidence, which, unless waived by the Chairman of the Full Committee after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member of the Full Committee, shall include at least one Member from each of the majority and minority parties.

Meeting and Place
(b)(1) Unless dispensed with by the Chairman, the meetings of the Committee shall be held on the 2nd and 4th Wednesday of each month the House is in session at 10:00 a.m. and at such other times and in such places as the Chairman may designate. [XI 2(b)]

(2) The Chairman of the Committee may convene as necessary additional meetings of the Committee in consideration of any bill or resolution pending before the Committee or for the conduct of other Committee business subject to such rules as the Committee may adopt. The Committee shall meet for such purpose under that call of the Chairman. [XI 2(c)]

(3) The Chairman shall make public announcement of any subject of the hearing, and to the extent practicable, a list of witnesses at least one week before the commencement of the hearing. If the Chairman, with the concurrence of the Ranking Minority Member, determines there is good cause to begin the hearing sooner, or if the Chairman, or the Committee by majority vote, a quorum being present for the transaction of business, the Chairman shall make the announcement at the earliest possible date. Any announcement made under this Rule shall be promptly published in the Daily Digest, and promptly made available by electronic form including the Committee website. [XI 2(g)(5)]

Open Meetings [XI 2(g)]
(c) Each meeting for the transaction of business, including the markup of legislation, of the Committee shall be open to the public at least 24 hours before the hearing and shall include to radio, television, and still photography coverage, except when the Committee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of the meeting on that day shall be in executive session because disclosure of matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, would tend to defame, degrade or incriminate any person or otherwise would violate any law or rule of the House. Persons other than Members of the Committee and such non-Committee Members, Delegates, Resident Commissioner, congressional staff, or departmental representatives as the Committee may authorize, may not be present at a business or markup session that is held in executive session. This Rule does not apply to open Committee hearings which are provided for by Rule 2d).

(d)(1) Each hearing conducted by the Committee shall be open to the public including radio, television, and still photography coverage except when the Committee, in open session and with a majority present, determines by record vote that all or part of the remainder of that hearing on that day shall be closed to the public because disclosure of testimony, evidence, or other matters to be considered would endanger national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information, or would violate a law or rule of the House of Representatives. Notwithstanding the requirements of the preceding sentence, and Rule 2p, when those persons present, there being in attendance the requisite number required under the rules of the Committee to be present for the purpose of taking testimony:

(A) may vote to close the hearing for the sole purpose of discussing whether testimony or evidence to be received would endanger the national security, would compromise sensitive law enforcement information or would violate Rule XI 2(k)(5) of the Rules of the House of Representatives; or

(B) may vote to close the hearing, as provided in Rule XI 2(k)(5) of the Rules of the House of Representatives. No Member, Delegate or Resident Commissioner may be excluded from non-participatory attendance at any hearing of any Committee or Subcommittee, unless the House of Representatives shall by majority vote authorize a particular Committee, for purposes of a particular series of hearings on a particular article of legislation or on a particular subject of investigation, to close its hearings to Members and the Resident Commissioner by the same procedures designated in this Rule for closing hearings to the public. Provided, however, that the Committee or Subcommittee may by the same procedure vote to close one subsequent day of the hearing.
Audio and Visual Coverage [XI, clause 4]

(e)(A) Whenever a hearing or meeting conducted by the Committee is open to the public, these proceedings shall be open to coverage by audio, radio, and still photography, except as provided in Rule XI 4(f)(2) of the House of Representatives. The Chairman shall not be limited to the number of television or radio, and still photographers, installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the Committee is in session. (B) Radio and television tapes, television film, and internet recordings of any Committee hearings or meetings that are open to the public shall be available for use, as partisan political campaign material to promote or oppose the candidacy of any person for elective public office.

(2) It is, further, the intent of this rule that the general conduct of each meeting or hearing covered under authority of this rule by audio or visual means, and the personal behavior of the Committee Members and staff, other government officials and personnel, witnesses, television, radio, and press media representatives, in the general area of the meeting or hearing, shall be in strict conformity with and observance of the acceptable standards of dignity, propriety, courtesy, and decorum traditionally observed by the House in its operations, and may not be such as to:

- (i) distort the object and purposes of the meeting or hearing, or the activities of Committee Members in connection with that meeting or hearing or in connection with the general work of the Committee or the House; or
- (ii) cast discredit or dishonor on the House, the Committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner or bring the House, the Committee, or a Member, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner into disrepute.

(3) The coverage of Committee meetings and hearings by audio and visual means shall be permitted and conducted only in strict conformity with the purposes, provisions, and requirements of this rule.

(a) The following shall apply to coverage of Committee meetings or hearings by audio or visual means:

- (1) Radio or video coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.
- (2) The allocation among the television media of the positions or the number of television cameras permitted by a Committee or Subcommittee Chairman in a hearing or meeting room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.
- (3) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between a witness giving evidence or testimony and any number of the Committee or the visibility of that witness and that member to each other.
- (4) Television cameras shall operate from fixed positions but may not be placed in positions that obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(b) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media may not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing or meeting room while the Committee is in session.

(6)(A) Except as provided in subdivision (B), floodlights, spotlights, strobe lights, and flashlights may not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting.

(b) The television media may install additional lighting in a hearing or meeting room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in a hearing or meeting room to a level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of a hearing or meeting at the current state of the art of television coverage.

(7) In the case of still photographers permitted by a Committee or Subcommittee Chairman in a hearing or meeting room, those photographs shall be taken only by Associated Press Photos and United Press International Newswriters. If requests are made by more than the fewest number of photographic media, the photographic media representatives shall be entitled to provide photographic media coverage of the meeting or hearing by still photography, that coverage shall be permitted on the floor of the House, and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(c) Photographers may not position themselves between the witness table and the members of the Committee at any time during the course of a hearing or meeting.

(d) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(e) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(f) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

Special Meetings

(g) Rule XI 2(c) of the Rules of the House of Representatives is hereby incorporated by reference (Special Meetings).

Vice Chairman to Preside in Absence of Chairman

(h) Meetings and hearings of the Committee shall be called to order and presided over by the Chairman or, in the Chairman's absence, by the member designated by the Chairman as the Vice Chairman of the Committee, or by the ranking minority member of the Committee present as Acting Chairman. [XI 2(d)]

Opening Statements; 5-Minute Rule

(i) Insofar as is practicable, the Chairman, after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, shall limit the total time of opening statements to no more than 10 minutes, the time to be divided equally between the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member. The time any one Member or the Committee on any bill, motion or other matter under consideration by the Committee or the time allowed for the questioning of a witness at hearings before the Committee shall be limited to five minutes, and then only when the Member has been recognized by the Chairman, except that this time may be waived by the Chairman or acting. [XI 2(j)]

(j) Notwithstanding Rule 2(i), upon a motion the Chairman, in consultation with the Ranking Minority Member, may designate an equal number of members from each party to question a witness for a period not to exceed one hour in the aggregate or, upon motion of the majority party from each party to question a witness for an equal number of periods that do not exceed on hour in the aggregate. [XI 2(j)]

Proxies

(k) No Member may authorize a vote by proxy with respect to any measure or matter before the Committee. [XI 2(i)]

Witnesses

(l)(1) Insofar as is practicable, each witness who is to appear before the Committee shall file no later than twenty-four (24) hours in advance of his or her appearance, a written statement of the proposed testimony and curriculum vitae. Each witness shall limit his or her presentation to a 5-minute summary of that statement, and shall be granted by the Chairman when appropriate. [XI 2(g)(4)]

(2) To the greatest extent practicable, each witness appearing in a hearing of the Committee shall be granted equal time for the presentation of his or her testimony, a written statement of the proposed testimony and curriculum vitae. Each witness shall limit his or her presentation to a 5-minute summary of that statement. [XI 2(g)(4)]

(m) Whenever any hearing is conducted by the Committee on any measure or matter, the minority Members of the Committee shall be entitled, upon request to the Chairman, to be present before the completion of the hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to the measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereof. [XI 2(j)(1)]

Private Bills

(n) No private bill will be reported by the Committee if there are two or more dissenting votes. Private bills so rejected by the Committee will not be reconsidered during the same Congress unless new evidence sufficient to justify a new hearing has been presented to the Committee.

Consideration of Measure or Matter

(q)(1) It shall not be in order for the Committee to consider any new or original measure or matter unless of the date, place and subject matter of consideration and to the maximum extent practicable, a written copy of the measure or matter to be considered, and to the maximum extent practicable the original text for purposes of markup of the measure to be considered have been available to each Member of the Committee at least 48 hours in advance of consideration, excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays. To the maximum extent practicable, amendments to the measure or matter to be considered, shall be submitted in writing to the Clerk of the Committee at least 24 hours prior to the addressing of the measure or matter. [XIII 4(a)]

(2) Notwithstanding paragraph (1) of this rule, consideration of any legislative measure or matter by the Committee shall be in order by vote of two-thirds of the Members present, provided that a majority of the Committee is present.

Requests for Written Motions

(r) Any legislative or non-procedural motion made at a regular or special meeting of the Committee and which is entertained by the Chairman shall be presented in writing at least 24 hours prior to the meeting, and a copy made available to each Member present.
(s) A record vote of the Members may be had at the request of three or more Members or in the apparent absence of a quorum, by any one Member.

Reports

Language on Use of Federal Resources

(t) No legislative report filed by the Committee on any measure or matter reported by the Committee shall contain language which has the effect of specifying the use of federal funds, whether explicitly (in whole or in part) or implicitly, or otherwise than specified in the measure or matter as ordered reported, unless such language has been approved by the Committee by a majority vote at a meeting or otherwise in writing by a majority of Members.

Committee Records

(u)(1) The Committee shall keep a complete record of all Committee action which shall include a record of the votes on any question on which a record vote is demanded. The result of each record vote shall be made available by the Committee for inspection by the public at reasonable times in the offices of the Committee. Information so available for public inspection shall include a description of the amendment, motion, order, or other subject of the vote and the name of the Member voting for and each Member voting against such amendment, motion, order, or proposition, and the names of those Members present in the Committee.

(2) The records of the Committee at the National Archives and Records Administration shall be made available for public use in accordance with Rule VII of the Rules of the House of Representatives. The Chairman shall notify the Ranking Minority Member of any decision pursuant to clause 3(b)(3) or clause 4(b) of the Rule, to withhold a record otherwise available, and the matter shall be presented to the Committee for a determination on the written request of any Member of the Committee. [XI 2(e)(3)]

(3) To the maximum extent feasible, the Committee shall make its publications available in electronic form, including the Committee website. [XI 2(e)(4)]

(v)(A) Except as provided for in subdivision (B), all Committee hearings records, data, charts, and files shall be kept separate and distinct from the congressional office records of the member serving as its Chairman. Such records shall be the property of the House and an Member, Delegate, Resident Commissioner, or other officer, employee of the House without the specific prior permission of the Committee.

Publication of Committee Hearings and Reports

(v) The transcripts of those hearings conducted by the Committee which are decided to be printed shall be published in verbatim form, with the material requested for the record, if any, to be placed in the record, at the end of the record, as appropriate. Individuals, including Members of Congress, whose comments are to be published as part of a Committee report shall give the Committee the opportunity to verify the accuracy of the transcript in advance of publication. Any requests by those Members, staff or witnesses to correct any other than errors in the transcript, shall be appended to the record, and the appropriate place where the change is requested will be footnoted. Prior requests by Members of hearings conducted jointly with another congressional Committee, a memorandum of under-
Any Member of the Committee may have the privilege of sitting with any Sub- committee during its hearings or deliberations and may participate in such hearings or deliberations. Such Member shall vote only if such Member is a voting Member of the Committee. Any Member who is not a Member of the Subcommittee shall vote on any matter before such Subcommittee, except as provided in Rule 3c.

(a) The report of the Committee on a measure which has been approved by the Committee shall include the following, to be provided in the Committee report:

(1) the oversight findings and recommendations required pursuant to Rule X 2(b)(1) of the Rules of the House of Representatives, separately set out and identified (XIII, 3c);

(2) the statement required by section 308(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, separately set out and identified, if the measure provides new budget authority or new or increased tax expenditures as specified in [XIII, 3(c)(2)];

(3) With respect to reports on a bill or joint resolution which amends a public character, a “Constitutional Authority Statement” citing the specific powers granted to Congress by the Constitution pursuant to which the bill or joint resolution is to be enacted;

(4) with respect to each record vote on a motion to report any measure or matter of a public character, and on any amendment offered to the measure or matter, the total number of votes cast for against, and the names of those Members voting for and against, shall be included in the Committee report on the measure or matter;

(5) the estimate and comparison prepared by the Committee under Rule XIII, clause 3(d)(2) of the Rules of the House of Representatives, unless the estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office prepared under subparagraph 2 of this Rule has been timely submitted prior to the filing of the report and included in the report [XIII, 3(d)(3)(D)];

(6) in the case of a bill or joint resolution which amends a statute or part thereof, the text of the statute or part thereof of which is proposed to be repealed, and a comparative print of that part of the bill or joint resolution amending the statute or part thereof of which is proposed to be amended [Rule XIII, clause 3]; and

(7) a transcript of the markup of the measure or matter as waived under Rule 2(v).

(b) A statement of general performance goals and objectives, including outcome-related goals and objectives, for which the measure authorizes funding, (XIII, 3c)

(c) The report of the Committee on a measure which has been approved by the Committee shall include the following, to be provided by sources other than the Committee:

(1) the estimate and comparison prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office required under section 403 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, separately set out and identified, whenever the Director (if timely, and submitted prior to the filing of the report) has submitted such estimate and comparison of the Committee (XIII, clauses 2-4);

(2) if the Committee has not received prior to the filing of the report the material required under paragraph (1) of this Rule, then it shall include a statement to that effect in the report.

Minority and Additional Views (XI 2(0))

(c) If, at the time of approval of any measure or matter by the Committee, any Member of the Committee gives notice of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views, that Member shall be entitled to not less than two subsequent calendar days to file such views (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays) in which to file such views, in writing and signed by that Member, with the clerk of the Committee, and that Member and any one or more Members of the Committee shall be included within, and shall be a part of, the report filed by the Committee with respect to that measure or matter. The report of the Committee upon that measure or matter shall be printed in a single volume which shall include the majority, or additional views, which have been submitted by the time of the filing of the report, and shall bear upon its cover a recital that any such supplemental, minority, or additional views (and any material submitted under Rule 4(b)(1)) are included as part of the report. However, this rule does not preclude (1) the immediate filing or printing of a Committee report unless timely requested for the opportunity to file supplemental, minority, or additional views has been made as provided for in this Rule by the Committee of any supplemental report upon any measure or matter which may be required for the correction of any technical or clerical error in a previous report made by that Committee upon that measure or matter.

(d) The Chairman of the Committee or Subcommittee shall further include the following, to be printed promptly and to be included within, and shall be a part of, the report filed by the Committee under Rule XIII, clause 3(b)(2) of the Rules of the House of Representatives, unless the Chairman informs the Members of the day and hour when the time for submitting views relative to any given report elapses.

Any supplemental, minority, or additional views shall be accepted for inclusion in the report if submitted after the announced time has elapsed unless the Chairman of the Committee or Subcommittee decides to extend the time for submission of views the 2 subsequent calendar days after the day of notice, in which case he shall communicate such fact to Members, including the revised day and hour for submissions to be received, without delay.

Consideration of Subcommittee Reports

(e) Reports and recommendations of a Subcommittee shall not be considered by the Committee until after the intervention of 48 hours, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, following the filing by the Committee of any supplemental report upon any measure or matter which may be required for the correction of any technical or clerical error in a previous report made by that Committee upon that measure or matter.

(f) Any document published by the Committee as a Committee print other than a document described in paragraph (3) of this Rule: (A) shall include on its cover the following statement: “This document has been printed for informational purposes only and does not represent either recommendations adopted by this Committee;” and (B) shall not be published following the sine die adjournment of a Congress, unless approved by the chairman of the Committee, after consultation with the Ranking Minority Member of the Full Committee.

(i) A report of an investigation or study conducted jointly by this Committee and one or more other Committee(s) may be filed jointly, provided that each of the Committees complies independently with all requirements for approval and filing of the report.

(j) After an adjournment of the last regular session of a Congress sine die, a investigative or oversight report approved by the Committee may be filed with the Clerk at any time, provided that if a member gives notice at the time of approval of intention to file supplemental, minority, or additional views, that members shall be entitled to not less than 7 calendar days to submit such views for inclusion with the report.

(k) After an adjournment sine die of the last regular session of a Congress in which the President prorogued the Congress, the Chair- man may file the Committee’s Activity Report for that Congress under clause 1(d)(1) of Rule XI of the Rules of the House with the Clerk of the House, in which case, the approval of the Committee, provided that a copy of the report has been available to each member of the Committee for at least 7 calendar days and that the report includes any supplemental, minority, or additional views submitted by a member of the Committee. [XI 1(d), XI 1(d)(4)]

Oversight Reports

(l) A proposed investigative or oversight report shall be considered to have been available to the members of the Committee for at least 24 hours (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, or legal holidays except when the House is in session on such day). [XI 1(b)(2)]

The Senate met at 10:00 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable LINCOLN CHAFEE, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

O God, here we are decked out with red ties, blouses, and dresses, ready to celebrate Valentine’s Day. Thank You for those we love—our spouses and families, our friends, and those with whom we work. You are the artesian well of true love. Good thing, Father, for we also need love for those we find it hard to like!

May this be a day in which Your love is expressed in our words, attitudes, and actions. Particularly, we need Your help to express affirmation to those who need assurance, encouragement to those who have heavy personal burdens to carry, and hope to those with physical pain. Our prayer for each of these is not to remind You of what You already know, but to place ourselves at Your disposal to be messengers of Your love in practical ways and in heartfelt words. May this be a “say it” and “do it now” kind of day.

Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The Honorable LINCOLN CHAFEE led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOMNTION OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. THURMOND).

The assistant legislative clerk read the following letter:

The Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

The Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

money back in real dollars than people who pay a lot more in taxes are going to get back and that somehow is unfair. For example, if somebody who pays $200 in income taxes is going to get tax relief of $200—in other words, many people under the proposal being put forth now are going to see all of their tax liability eliminated. If they are paying $200 in taxes and they are going to get $200 in tax relief while someone who pays $300,000 in taxes is going to get $30,000 in tax relief, somehow it would be unfair. It is true that this one person who is a hard-working person is only going to get $200 under this proposal and some fat cat is going to get $30,000, and that is unfair.

So we see pictures: Here is what the fat cat is going to get, here is what the poor working person is going to get, and that is not fair. Except for the fact, if you step back and say, wait a minute, how much is this person who is paying a lot of taxes—how much are they paying and what is their relief versus what someone who has a lower income is paying and what is their relief? If we were going to balance this according to fairness as described by some, then there should be equal tax relief even though there is not equal payment of taxes.

When a surplus is created because people have overpaid taxes and we want to relieve the tax burden on those who have overpaid, then I think fairness dictates we give tax relief to everybody who has contributed to the overpayment somewhat in proportion to what they have overpaid. That, to me, would be fair.

What would be unfair is for someone who pays $200 in taxes to get $200 in tax relief as opposed to someone who pays $300,000 in taxes to get $300 in tax relief. Some would suggest that is fair. I suggest that is typical Washington wealth redistribution because we know who the more deserving are here in Washington.

What we are putting forward is as fair as we could possibly do it. In fact, if you look at the numbers, the top income earners and the top taxpayers in this country are going to end up with an increased burden of taxes. If you look at all the people paying taxes and whose share of the tax burden is going to go up after this proposal if it is passed as the President suggested, the tax burden on the higher income people will actually go up relative to everybody else.

Some would argue that is unfair. Some would argue that we are not giving enough tax relief to those who are higher up to keep the distribution of who pays taxes the same. But we are shifting the distribution to higher income.

We are going to hear lots of arguments about fairness. I always use this example: I think it is the example that everybody—between what we are trying to accomplish and what some on the other side would suggest is fair.

I use the example of people who buy tickets to a baseball game. You pay and the game gets rained out. It is the last game of the year, so they have to refund your money. There are people who paid different prices for different seats in the baseball stadium. Some people paid $10 from the front, and the ticket seller, maybe $25 a ticket. Then you paid for some up here in the loge boxes, maybe $15 a ticket. And then there are some folks up here in the outfield and they paid $5 a ticket. The game got rained out, and the baseball team have to do? They have to refund your money. You have overpaid. But you didn’t get what you were promised. You overpaid. Get your money back.

What I would suggest as fair is, people who pay the $25 get $25 back, people who pay the $15 get $15 back, and people who pay $5 get $5 back. The guy outside who just happened to be driving by and didn’t buy a ticket does not get anything back. To some on the other side of the aisle, here is what they believe is fair. The guy who paid $25 gets $5; because he obviously can afford $25, he doesn’t need all of the money returned. It is the guy who paid $5 who might be trying to produce something. We feel so bad about the guy up there who paid $5 who probably needs more money, and not only are we going to give him $5 but we are going to give him $15 back. The guy in the middle who paid $15, we will give him $15. We feel so bad about the guy who paid $5 that we give him $10. We feel so bad about the guy who paid $15 that we give him $25.

Is that fair? No. I do not know of an owner of a baseball team who could get away with something like that. It is patently unfair to do it that way. I think most Americans would agree. Right now, higher income individuals pay about 40 percent of every dollar they earn in Federal taxes, not to mention other taxes they have to pay. When we have a surplus and the surplus has been generated by the fact that a lot of people have overpaid their taxes, my feeling is, what is unfair if you give every taxpayer tax relief?

To the extent we can, yes, we should help others. There are going to be proposals you are going to see considered to give people relief who didn’t get in the stadium and pay for the ticket. They will get some relief, if you will. Even though they did not pay, they are going to get some money out of this. Why? Because we want to create more opportunity for people so someday they get inside the stadium.

We would like everybody to pay taxes in a sense that that would be economically successful, and enough that they would be in a tax bracket that would require it. We are about fairness. I think that dictates that we provide tax relief across the board to those who pay.

The other thing we should think about when we put a tax bill together is: What are we trying to accomplish? What is the goal? Obviously, as I stated before, we have to make money. I would like to get it out of Washington before we spend it.

There are those of us who come to the floor year after year to say if we don’t give tax relief, and if we don’t get this money out of Washington, rest assured it will be spent. Just at the end of last year, we added to the 10-year budget of the United States $600 billion in new spending. I did not hear a word from those who now say we don’t need tax relief and who have suggested we could cut the deficit if we didn’t have. We hear a lot of people say we can’t do tax relief because we don’t know that the surplus is going to be there and therefore we shouldn’t commit ourselves to this relief. They did not make that complaint when we were talking about spending the $600 billion surplus that we didn’t have last year. I argue that if the money stays in Washington and we don’t provide tax relief, that money will be spent just as anything I promise. It will be spent if it sits on the table. We just can’t help ourselves. I think it is important to get that money back out.

Why would we want to do that other than just do it so we don’t spend it? We have heard lots of reports about what the economy looks like now and in the future. We have had an unprecedented string of years of economic growth. But I think it is important, as several other economists said—and Alan Greenspan—that in the future to avoid an economic slowdown we have lower rates of taxation and more money in the economy for investment and job creation. By the way, who is creating the jobs? We have heard many times some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle talking about not having to provide tax relief for higher income individuals. But who creates the jobs? The employer. The employee is the low-wage worker, but hate employers. I do not know of too many employees who find jobs if there are not employers. Providing tax relief to people who will take that income and go out, as some have suggested, and buy a Lexus—if you are earning $2 million or $3 million a year, you already have a Lexus, if you want one. But they will go out and take that money and invest it to create jobs, and create opportunities so we can take some of those people outside the stadium who didn’t have the chance to buy the ticket and give them a job so they can become taxpayers.

It is important not just to get the money out of Washington, but it is also vitally important to help our economy and create economic opportunities for people who need economic opportunities down the road.

There are some other things we need to do, again in the name of fairness. There is a lot of discussion about fairness. The President’s proposal is that we have marriage penalty relief. It is unconscionable that on Valentine’s Day there are people in America who will get married and, by virtue of the fact that they are married, have to pay more in income taxes. At a time when we want to encourage marriage through the Tax Code, we penalize it. That is unconscionable and unfair. Under the President’s proposal, we go a long way to eliminating that marriage penalty.

Mr. President, death should not be a taxable event, but it is. What we are suggesting is that over a 10-year period of time we phase out estate taxes on people who die. I think most Americans would agree that if someone has a piece of property and they die and pass it on to the next generation, when that next generation sells the property, they should be taxed on the capital gains. But if in fact the person dies, it should not be a taxable event on the next generation. The greatest impact of that is on the family farm, the small business man or business woman when they want to pass that business on to the next generation. They have to sell the farm or the business so they can pay the taxes that are due.

Whom does that hurt? Obviously, it hurts the businessperson. But how good it is to shift a tax from the business, where that business has to go out of business simply to pay taxes or where the business has to be sold simply to pay taxes.

So, again, it is the old story. Most Americans realize this. When you stand up here and say: ‘We are going to go after and get the rich, we are going to make sure they pay even more and more and more and more taxes,’ ultimately who gets hurt is the people at the bottom of the economic ladder who do not get the quality jobs or they do not get the kind of strong economy that makes for a better quality of life.

So I think what we are talking about here is tax relief for every taxpayer. Someone suggested that is the only fair way to do it; when you have a tax surplus, you give it back in proportion to how much the people paid. That, to me, would be fair.

If you think your job is to not be fair but to redistribute wealth—that is the object here, to redistribute the wealth based upon who we believe, in Washington, are more deserving. Let’s be clear about it; that is what we are doing. We are saying some people are more deserving than others, and we are going to choose to take some people who worked hard, earned this money, sent it to Washington—we are going to take their money and give it to other people. I don’t believe that is fair. We do a lot of that already. But now we are suggesting, because there is an overpayment, here is an opportunity to do more of that.

I argue that is not what we should take advantage of. We should take the opportunity to create an across-the-board, fair tax reduction for every working American, every taxpayer.

So that is what the debate is going to be about. I hope we will look at the underlying policy of why we are trying to do this, is not how much X gets and here is how much Y gets but look at the underlying policy: Are we trying to pass tax relief that is going to accomplish economic growth? If so, how do we best do that? Let’s have a discussion about that.

Are we trying to eliminate provisions in the Tax Code that are unfair, such as the marriage penalty and the death tax? I argue that the alternative minimum tax has become unfair on a lot of middle-class, working Americans who now have to pay that tax.

If we look at it and we take it a step at a time, we will deal with the fairness issue. Let’s take care of that issue, and then let’s try to do something across the board that does something for economic growth; we must have as part of our agenda not just fairness but growth because the ultimate equalizer, if you will, the ultimate source of opportunity, is economic growth.

I believe that unless we do something to create a tax system that enables more economic growth in the future, then a lot of folks to whom we are talking about redistribution of wealth and some suggest, that you take from higher income and give it to lower income—they are going to find themselves either in lower paying jobs down the road or with no jobs. That is not a good result for anybody.

So again, let’s keep our eye on the ball. Yes, get the money out of Washington; yes, provide some tax fairness; but also, let’s make sure we do a tax reduction that is going to result in a growing economy even over the long term. That, to me, dictates, as Alan Greenspan said yesterday, a rate reduction. The best way to assure economic growth is an across-the-board rate reduction.

So what we care about is avoiding a deep recession or a recession altogether in the next 3 or 4 or 5 years, the best way to accomplish that is a rate reduction for all taxpayers.

One other point that have mentioned—what are we talking about here is Federal income taxes: You have a lot of taxpayers who have to pay FICA taxes and Medicare taxes, and they are not getting any tax relief.

I would make two comments on that. No. 1, FICA taxes or Social Security taxes, when they are paid, obviously, fund a program, the Social Security program, or the Medicare program in the case of Medicare taxes. But they also make you eligible for a benefit. The benefit is so structured today where lower income individuals get a much higher percentage benefit than higher income individuals. So the program is already structured, No. 1, that you pay the tax to assure a benefit down the road.

So it is not like income taxes, where you just sort of pay the tax and it goes to the general welfare. But this actually earns you, if you will, a particular benefit. It is the same with Medicare. So you are getting something directly for you for the dollars you are contributing.

Secondly, we are paying too much in Social Security taxes now. We have a surplus. Some of us have argued—and I will continue to argue—instead of bidding up what I consider to be a phony surplus, with just basically IOUs in the Social Security trust fund, which are future obligations for taxpayers, and nothing more than that, I would suggest we take this surplus and allow the workers to invest that money to create real opportunities for them so they can have real money, real assets that can pay real benefits 20, 30, 40 years from now, instead of creating IOUs which are simply a claim on their children’s taxes 30 years from now or 40 years from now. And that would not be a real economic asset; it would simply be a real economic obligation of future generations.

I argue that the better way to accomplish that, instead of overtaxing current workers, which we do with Social Security and Medicare—I am going to focus on Social Security right now—instead of overtaxing Social Security payers, who pay Social Security taxes today, let’s give them the opportunity of setting that money aside, investing it over the long term, accumulating assets, and then using that real asset—a real economic asset—to come back 30 years from now to help pay for those benefits. That would be instead of, in a sense, putting that IOU away.

I will use this as an example. I think it is a good example. I went to a group of high school students the other day, and I asked you how many of you out here work? About half the hands went up. I asked: Where do you work? One kid said: Burger King. I said: Right now you work at Burger King, and you have to pay Social Security taxes. And 12.4 percent of Social Security tax is. You pay 12.4 percent, but all that money does not go to pay benefits. That is what it traditionally has done. All the money would go right out to pay benefits. But in this case, you are paying more than you need to.

You only need to pay a little over 10 percent to pay for current beneficiaries. Money comes in, goes out to beneficiaries, but we have a surplus, a little over 2 percent. So you pay more than you need to. So we are taking more money out of your paycheck than we need.

So Social Security gives money to the general fund, and the general fund puts a note back into Social Security. It is an IOU. It is a Treasury bond that pays interest.

Now let’s talk about that 18-year-old 30 years from now. Thirty years from now, that 18-year-old is still paying taxes. He is 48 years old. Then, instead of having a surplus in Social Security, we have a deficit. So then what will we have to do is raise Federal taxes because we will have to start repaying those bonds. We have to put the money back into Social Security.

So what are we going to have to do? Thirty years from now, we are going to go to that person who paid too much in taxes in the first place to create the IOU, we are going to have to increase their taxes so they can pay back the IOU they created by paying too much taxes in the first place. So they get to pay twice for this benefit. That is not fair.

So I think we do need to create personal retirement accounts. That is one way we can solve the problem of Social Security taxes.

The Senator from Colorado is here, and I am happy to yield the floor to him.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore, The Senator from Colorado.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania for yielding and certainly appreciate his hard work and dedication on the issue of taxes. I served with him in the House and now serve with him in the Senate. He is certainly a great American.

I understand that we are moving into time controlled by Senator BOND and Senator COLLINS. I have a number of points I want to make in relation to national defense. I would like to yield to my colleague from Missouri to visit us briefly with his strong views to manage the time and what his plans are.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore, The Senator from Colorado is recognized.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about our national security and defense. This is the week the President has decided to emphasize defense. I will take a moment to review briefly where we are as far as the National Missile Defense Program is concerned. Before I do that, I will lay out a few things for the record.

First, this week the President has decided to talk about quality of life. He has emphasized the fact that soldiers enlist, but families reenlist, trying to address the problems we have with retention in our military services. I wholeheartedly agree with him in his efforts. He has made tremendous strides in that direction, when he says he will go ahead and try to promote the idea that we need to have a military pay raise, renovate standard housing, improve military training, and review overseas deployments to reduce family separations.

The President also has recognized the concept of a citizen soldier. I can relate to that. I like to think of myself as a citizen legislator. These are individuals who have regular jobs but take a spell from those jobs to serve our country. That is our National Guard and Reserve troops, and States play an important role. The National Government has to be sure important states, like Pennsylvania, these citizen soldiers are readily available in time of national emergency to serve our country and its defense.

The third item he has talked about is the transformation of the military to a stronger, more agile, modern military, which has both stealth and speed.

I think we also need to rethink our vulnerabilities and the time to do it is now. We need to reexamine it, and the time to do it is now, while we are transitioning from one administration to another. There is no doubt in my mind that for the last 8 years our defense structure in this country suffered intolerably. It is time we made plans that is(involved) and the idea that we need to increase spending for defense.

As we look at our vulnerabilities and strengths, we certainly need to base our thinking on the new technology that we have and what the future is for the development of that new technology. We need to think about the future threat from potential adversaries. We need to work toward the idea of more peace and more freedom through stronger defense. I think this is a reality and on the ground. I think that is as true today as it was two or three centuries ago. Controlling the high ground is very important in the field of battle.

I am a strong proponent of looking at an enhanced role for space. We must think in terms of a space platform. By controlling that high ground, we would secure all our forces and secure our national defense system. I believe the technology is very close, where we can move forward with some very significant steps in enhancing, in a modern way, our defense systems in America.

I want to take a little time while I have the floor to review the background of our National Missile Defense System—a step in that direction—and review a little bit about where I see we are today.

First of all, on the National Missile Defense System, I think we ought to quit referring to it as the “national” missile defense system. I think we need to refer to it as our missile defense system and get away from the vagueness of trying to identify a theater missile defense system and a national missile defense system. I think, from a foreign relations standpoint, when we use the term “national,” it implies it is just for America. We are putting together a missile defense system, hopefully, that will secure our world peace. I think we need to keep that in mind when we talk about what we are going to do to enhance our missile defense system.

In my discussion this morning on defense and the National Missile Defense System, I am just going to refer to it as the missile defense system.

Starting back in 1995, the Republican Congress consistently pressured the Clinton administration to make a commitment to deploy a national missile defense system. In 1996, then-President Clinton vetoed the Defense Authorization Act over its establishment of a national missile defense deployment policy.
Then, in 1998, the Rumsfeld report, now-Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld, said that a ballistic missile threat to the U.S. was “broad-er, more mature and evolving more rapidly” than the Intelligence Community had been reporting prior to that. The report also stated that:

The warning times the U.S. can expect of new, threatening ballistic missile deployments are being reduced...The U.S. might well have little or no warning before operations are being reduced...The U.S. might now have little or no warning before operations are being reduced...the U.S. might have little or no warning before operations are being reduced...

That is what our current Secretary of Defense was saying.

Then, in 1999, the National Intelligence Council warned that:

The probability that a WMD armed missile will be used against the U.S. forces or interests is higher today than during most of the Cold War.

That was made in 1999 by the National Intelligence Council.

In 1999, finally, the President signed the National Missile Defense Act of 1999—referred to around here as the Cochran bill—which requires deployment of a national missile defense system “as soon as technologically possible.” That is the key—“as soon as technologically possible.”

Even though the administration funded the National Missile Defense Acquisition Program, President Clinton never committed the United States to actual deployment. So in September of last year, 2000, President Clinton decided to defer a deployment decision to the next administration.

Having laid out that background, I want to talk about where we are today. The current missile defense system is preparing to deploy a single ground-based site in Alaska, with a threshold capacity of 20 interceptor missiles in fiscal years 2005–2006, and 100 interceptors in fiscal years 2007–2008. That is the current plan. This is referred to as the initial stage. This would be upgraded and ground-based site would be deployed to deal with more complex and numerous threats in the fiscal year 2010–2011 timeframe.

This stand-alone, ground-based approach is inadequate really to satisfy U.S. global security requirements. Nonetheless, the most affordable and most effective path to a global ballistic missile defense system is to augment the current missile defense program rather than replace it.

Now, based on ground-based missile defense program has made significant technical progress and offers the earliest deployment options. Once this system is deployed, it will offer an “open architecture.” This is very important. It offers an “open architecture” that can be augmented with ground-based, sea-based, and/or space-based systems as they mature and are demonstrated. So we leave the door open for technological advances so we can build upon the structure we are initially out there.

I will reemphasize that this is a defense structure, not offensive; it is a defense system. Frankly, I don’t understand the opposition from many of our allies to a system that is defensive in nature. I think they ultimately will share in that technology because it will assure that we have a safer world.

The key to deploying an effective missile defense system is a layered system that is deployed in phases. A top priority should be the prompt establishment of programs to develop the sea-based and then the space-based elements that can be added to the initial system when they are ready.

The sea-based missile defense elements should be based on the existing Navy Theater Wide (NTW) Theater Missile Defense Program. The NTW Program will need to be augmented, both in terms of funding and technical capability. The interceptor missiles are not sufficiently capable to perform the missile defense mission. Therefore, the Department of Defense should consider a phased approach to the NTW, which involves initial deployment of a system for long-range missile defense applications, and then upgrade to a more dedicated sea-based missile defense capability in the future.

The development of a strategy for dealing with the ABM Treaty is as important as the technical/architectural issues mentioned above. The United States will need to determine whether it wants to pursue modifications to the treaty or seek a completely new arrangement. Any effort at incrementally amending the treaty will involve many of the same problems the Clinton Administration experienced with Russia and our allies.

The current acquisition cost, including prior years, for the initial ground-based National Missile Defense system (with 100 interceptor missiles) is $20.3 billion. The average annual cost for R&D and Procurement is approximately $2.0–2.5 billion. Ballistic Missile Defense Organization is also recommended to enhance its flight test program and its efforts to deal with counter-measures, which could increase the overall Missile Defense cost by several billion dollars. The Navy has estimated that an initial sea-based National Missile Defense capability could be deployed in 5–8 years for $4–6 billion; an intermediate capability could be deployed in 8–10 years for $7–10 billion; and a far-term capability, involving dedicated Missile Defense ships and missiles, could be deployed in 10 years for $13–16 billion. Note that the Navy estimates assume that the ground-based National Missile Defense infrastructure is in place. Without this infrastructure, the Navy would have to add radars, space-based sensors, battle command and control to their cost estimates.

There are many issues before Congress and this administration concerning our missile defense system and they are the following:

- We need to establish a policy for ballistic missile defense reflecting the current global security environment. We need to illuminate the path ahead regarding the ABM Treaty.
- We need to redefine the relationship between ballistic missile defense and strategic forces.
- We need to establish a global missile defense network as a new ballistic missile defense paradigm.
- We need to deemphasize the distinction between national missile defense and theater missile defense.
- We need an integrated missile defense architecture and operational concept.
- We need to have a layered approach to ballistic missile defense starting with land, sea, and space in the future.

Our greatest challenge is overcoming 8 years of funding inadequacy. In the fiscal years 1994 through 1999, Secretary Cheney at that time envisioned $7 billion to $8 billion SDI budgets. We have a great opportunity before us. I think most Americans like most of President Bush’s ideas. A Newsweek poll found 56 percent approved of his plan for a missile defense system.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said no President could allow a situation in which “extinction of civilization is one of our options.”

The New York Times reports today that Russian President Putin and Germany’s Foreign Minister Fischer discussed the proposed American missile defense at a Kremlin meeting yesterday...and they mentioned talks that Mr. Fischer said pointed to new Russian flexibility on the notion of a shield against rogue missiles. Mr. Fischer told reporters: “In the end, I think Russia will accept negotiations.”

The Senate Armed Services Committee has met with the British foreign minister and discussed this. A nuclear missile defense will benefit the world. Only our aggressors, I believe, need fear our missile defense technology.

Robert L. Bartley says in today’s Wall Street Journal: “The deliberate vulnerability of ‘mutual assured destruction’ carries an appropriate acronym, MAD.”

In the end, with the cold war over, we should look beyond the cold war rules and to the unpredictable future and weapons of mass destruction.

I reemphasize that I believe we need to rethink our vulnerabilities and our strengths based on our new technology and to the unpredictable future and potential adversaries. Our goal should be more peace and more freedom through renewed strength and a renewed security, and we accomplish that by establishing control of the high-ground.

Technology is the key, and we need to be sure we are working to put our dollars and our brain power behind the idea that we will move forward with a strong defense system which will, in the long run, assure continued world peace.

I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Collins). The clerk will call the roll.
Mr. EDWARDS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PATIENT PROTECTION LEGISLATION

Mr. EDWARDS. Madam President, for too long the law has been on the side of HMO's and big insurance companies. It is time we give power back to patients and families and doctors. Nearly every one of us has had some sort of bad experience with an HMO or an insurance company, either personally or through a family member or a friend. Sometimes the problems are frustrating, sometimes the problem is just red tape and bureaucracy, sometimes it is simply impersonal treatment.

Sometimes the problems are much more serious than that. Sometimes the problems are dangerous: when an HMO, for example, refuses to authorize a visit to a specialist or the nearest emergency room. And sometimes it is that is desperately needed by a patient, or refuses to be held accountable for any of the decisions it makes. Americans have the right to expect that decisions about their health care and their family's health care will only be made by those who feel that the patient, the family, the physician and family members, and that physicians will be able to help them make those decisions on the basis of the patient’s best medical interests. Those decisions should not be made by HMOs and insurance companies concerned only about the bottom line.

That is why we need a Patients' Bill of Rights. That is why last week I joined Senator JOHN MCCAIN, along with a bipartisan group of Members of the House and the Senate, to introduce a bill that builds on the progress that has already been made in this Congress to pass a Patients’ Bill of Rights.

The Bipartisan Patient Protection Act provides comprehensive patient protection for all Americans. It will, No. 1, guarantee access to specialists for all people who have private insurance, so that men, for example, can go directly to an OB/GYN or a child can go directly to a pediatrician for care. But it also ensures the right to go to an emergency room, to the ER, immediately after an emergency arises, without first having to be concerned about calling some 1-800 number and asking permission from an insurance company or an HMO.

When the family is involved in a medical emergency, the last thing they need to be worried about is calling the insurance company. They need to be able to do what is best for their family and go immediately to the emergency room that is closest to them. Our bill provides for that.

We also eliminate the gag rule. What we need to do is give doctors the ability to speak freely with their patients about the treatment options that ought to be considered by the patient. What we have done is prohibit clauses between insurance companies and doctors—the so-called "gag rule"—that restrict doctors from talking to their patients about treatment options, and instead only allow doctors to talk about the cheapest treatment options. We prohibit that practice and prohibit gag rules.

Scope. Our bill covers every single American who has private insurance through an HMO or an insurance company. Some of my colleagues have argued, during the course of the debate about a real Patients' Bill of Rights, for a more limited approach. I do not agree. I believe every single American who has health insurance or receives coverage through an HMO deserves, and is entitled to, exactly the same rights. The basic same rights and freedoms that we provide for people who are covered by a State law, or a State insurance program, or an HMO.

Under our bill, if the State law is comparable or more protective of patients than those we enact here in the Congress, State law will remain in effect. In most cases, HMOs and other health care providers can refuse to cover treatments that are made by patients and doctors. This is usually not a problem. The people get the treatment they are entitled to, the treatment their doctor recommends, and they get better. But if the patient or the doctor believes that the quality of their health care may be at risk because of what the HMO is doing, because of some bureaucrats sitting behind a desk somewhere who decides that they know better what treatment the patient should receive, that they know better than the doctor or specialist who is taking care of the patient, then we need to provide some way for the patient to appeal that decision.

What we have done here is provide an alternative recourse whenever the HMO or insurance company decides that coverage for treatment should be denied. Under existing law, the HMO's decision is final. If the HMO, no matter what its reasoning for the decision is, decides that the treatment is not covered, for example, that a sick child should not be able to go directly to a pediatric oncologist—the patient, the family, the child can do nothing. The HMO holds all the power. The law is completely on the side of the HMO and the insurance company, and patients are left totally defenseless.

What we are doing today, through this legislation, is putting accountability back into the system so that, like all other Americans, HMO's are held accountable for what they do.

As a first resort, patients are guaranteed both an internal and an external appeals process. If they go to an HMO and the HMO says that they won't pay for a particular treatment or a particular doctor, patients have a place to go to appeal. All patients will have a right to appeal treatment denials to an external review authority with outside medical experts, which is critical. The independence of the appeals process is crucial. We have provided for extensive protections to ensure that the independence is in fact there. Once the appeal is made and the independent board decides that coverage should have been provided, the decision is final and binding on the HMO or the insurance company.

As a matter of last resort—and I emphasize last resort—if the HMO has denied coverage, and the appeals process fails, the patients should have the ability to go to court.

I want to emphasize that the ability to go to court is a matter of absolute necessity. For example, states such as Texas that have enacted legislation—about 3 years ago, Texas enacted legislation providing patients the right to go to court—experience has proven that actual litigation virtually never happens. It does not happen for a very good reason. Most people do not want to go to court. In States such as Texas that have enacted patient protection legislation, there have been very few lawsuits filed.

What the Bipartisan Patient Protection Act does is ensure that medical judgment cases go to State court. The basic reasoning here is that if the HMO or the insurance company is making a medical judgment, if they make the decision that they are going to insert their judgment in the place of the physician's judgment, then normally those are cases that are decided in State court, under State law, using State standards. Our belief is that the HMO, if they are going to exercise medical judgment, if they are going to substitute their own judgment for the judgment of the doctor involved, ought to be subject to the same standards to which doctors are subject. If a case were brought against a doctor for exercising his or her medical judgment, that case would go to State court.

What we have provided here is simple: when the HMO steps in and inserts itself into the process of exercising medical judgment, their case goes to State court just as a medical negligence case would go to State court. We should not preempt State law. State law has traditionally controlled these kinds of cases. Under our bill, the law that the Governor at the time—now President Bush—enacted in Texas, the protections are respected, as would HMO patient protection laws that exist all over the country. So essentially what we are doing in our legislation is deferring almost entirely to the oversight of medical judgment that has traditionally been regulated by State law.

I point out that the Judicial Conference of the United States has spoken on this issue. Chief Justice Rehnquist is the presiding officer of the Judicial Conference of the United States.

The Judicial Conference, through its executive committee, adopted the following position on February 19, 2001:

The Judicial Conference urges Congress to provide that in any managed care legislation agreed upon—

This is the legislation we are talking about today—that State courts be the primary forum for the resolution of personal injury claims arising from the denial of health care benefits.

The Judicial Conference of the United States, a nonpartisan, nonpolitical body headed by the Chief Justice of the United States, a nonpartisan, nonpolitical body headed by the Chief Justice of the United States, decided that cases involving medical judgment go to State court. These types of cases have been traditionally resolved in State court.

Federal courts, of course, are courts of limited jurisdiction. And these are not cases that should go to Federal court. This is exactly what the Judicial Conference, headed by our Chief Justice, has recommended. It sends these cases to the place where they have traditionally been decided.

Contract cases, based solely on what the text of the contract are, are not an exception. If there were a provision requiring that insurance coverage be in place for 60 days before payment can be made for any particular treatment—if there were a dispute about whether 60 days had actually passed, or whether the coverage or the contract applies, that would be an interpretation of the contract and would go to Federal court. In those limited cases where there is a dispute about the actual language of the contract, those cases go to Federal court.

There are limitations contained in our bill about any recovery in Federal court. The basic structure here is simple: medical judgment cases, where the HMO is inserting its judgment for that of the health care provider, go to State court. Cases that have always traditionally been decided in State court go to State court, just as our Chief Justice in the Judicial Conference is recommending. The only cases that go to Federal court, a court of limited jurisdiction, are cases involving pure interpretation of the contract—cases that have historically been decided in Federal court under ERISA. So they essentially maintain the same bifurcation that the U.S. Supreme Court suggested.

We have included a balanced approach and imposed some limitations. Under our bill, there are no class actions. Appeals have to be exhausted before a patient can go to court.

Third, the vast majority of cases go to State court and are therefore subject to whatever State court limitations apply. For example, the limitations that the other State law in Texas would apply to cases that go to State court in Texas.

We are attempting to balance interests and create really meaningful and enforceable rights for the patient, giving the patient the ability to enforce those rights through an appeals process, and then, as a matter of absolute last resort—and as history has proven, it happens very rarely—giving them the right to take the HMO to State court, where these kinds of cases are traditionally decided.

We have debated this issue over and over on the floor of the Senate. Many Members of the Senate have been involved. Congressmen Norwood and Dinnell have led the effort on the House side in the debate. It is time for us to get past simply talking about this issue and debating the various parties’ positions. Senator Mccain and I, along with others in support of this bill, are making an effort to resolve our differences and get this legislation enacted. It is time, finally, that we enact legislation that puts law on the side of the patients, on the side of families, and on the side of doctors, not on the side of big HMOs and insurance companies.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for up to 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FEBRUARY AS AMERICAN HEART MONTH

Mr. VOINOVICH. Madam President, I rise today to highlight February as American Heart Month, a designation that has stood since 1963 when Congress first recognized the need to focus national attention on cardiac health. I think it is particularly appropriate since it is Valentine’s Day.

The theme of this year’s Heart Month is one that resonates deeply with me: “Be Prepared for Cardiac Emergencies.” This theme is especially meaningful because on January 20, the day of the Presidential Inauguration, the Voinovich family almost lost one of its beloved members to sudden cardiac arrest.

Indeed, as the country welcomed the arrival of a new administration, I, like many of my colleagues, was looking forward to sharing this joyous occasion with family and friends. Tragically, our celebration was suddenly upended when Patricia Voinovich, my brother Vic’s wife, was struck by sudden cardiac arrest. As she entered the Ohio Inaugural Ball, she crumpled to the ground without a pulse or respiration.

Sudden cardiac arrest—as the name implies—happens abruptly and without warning. It occurs when the heart’s pumping chambers suddenly stop contracting effectively and as a result, the heart cannot pump blood.

Although it has received much less attention than heart attacks, sudden cardiac arrest is a major cause of death in the United States.

This usually fatal event causes brain damage or death within minutes if treatment is not received immediately, and is estimated to cause more than 220,000 deaths in the United States annually.

That is more than three lives every 7 minutes—more than 600 deaths a day. These deaths are largely attributed to the lack of preparedness and immediate accessible medical attention in the short window between the heart ceasing to pump and death.

Just as in most sudden cardiac arrests, with Pat there was no warning or indication that she would be susceptible to such a sudden physical trauma. She was in good health. As a matter of fact, she had just been to the doctor and had a check up.

Even after the incident, doctors recommended that her heart was undamaged and healthy. After she became stabilized, my family and I listened to the doctors at the George Washington University Hospital who informed us just how lucky Pat, Vic, and the rest of the family had been. I was told that when individuals are struck with sudden cardiac arrest, only a minuscule number, 5 percent, survive.

Fortunately, Pat had been blessed to be in a place where there was what the American Heart Association calls a strong chain of survival in place.

As a matter of fact, one of the doctors from George Washington University Hospital had been assigned to the convention center in anticipation that something like this could happen. I think all convention centers throughout the United States should have that equipment on board. I think all of us here in the Senate should feel very fortunate that because Dr. Pieter, that kind of equipment is available to the floor of the Senate and the House and the corridors of the Capitol.

The chain of survival, developed by the American Heart Association, is a four-step process to saves lives from cardiovascular emergencies. The process includes early access to emergency medical services, early CPR, early defibrillation and early access to advanced cardiovascular care. Its goal is to minimize the time from the onset of symptoms to treatment.

Although I did not know it at the time, all of these factors were present that night at the Ohio Inaugural Ball.
Indeed, the American Heart Association estimates that if what they call a strong chain of survival is in place, the survival rate of sudden cardiac arrest would increase to upward of 20 percent, saving as many as 40,000 lives per year. Think of that; 40,000 lives per year if that chain of survival exists.

As Pat lay there on the floor following her collapse, I can only thank God that this chain of survival was present and went into effect. Secret Service agents and an on-hand emergency physician were present and went into effect. Following her collapse, I can only thank God that this chain of survival exists.

These Good Samaritans began administering CPR, as well as utilizing a lifesaving machine called an automatic external defibrillator, also known as an AED. If it had not been for the grace of the Holy Spirit, the rapid response of Secret Service agents and the presence of an AED, Pat almost certainly would not have survived.

The late dedicated Heart Association has been a longtime leader in educating the country in cardiovascular disease and the need for preparing for cardiac emergencies.

Unfortunately, many Americans do not know the kind of education and training that the Heart Association can provide until after an emergency situation occurs. I have certainly become even more aware of their services in light of my family’s situation.

Quite simply, being prepared for a cardiac emergency can and does save lives. It is my hope, that by focusing on this year’s American Heart Month theme—‘Be Prepared for Cardiac Emergencies’—we can save many thousands of lives, not only this year, but in years to come.

I encourage all Americans to participate in American Heart Month, and take the time to educate themselves so that they will be prepared and know what to do when a cardiac emergency strikes them.

For those of you who might be interested in how Pat is doing, she was in the hospital for 5 days. They inserted a defibrillator in her chest, so if she has another occurrence that defibrillator will respond to it.

My brother thanked me profusely for inviting him to the inauguration because he said Pat had this preexisting condition they did not know about, and if it had occurred somewhere else instead of the Convention Center, she would no longer be with us.

So we have a happy ending to what could have been a real tragedy for our family which, again, emphasizes that because of some folks out there who become involved in the chain of survival, she is now alive and well and able to take care of her family.

Thank you, Madam President.

Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, are we in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time until 12 noon is under the control of the Democratic leader.

RECOGNIZING AMERICAN HEART MONTH

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I want to talk about two items today. The first deals with February being American Heart Month. Let me describe my interest in this issue.

Today, of course, is Valentine’s Day. Most of us will receive some kind of valentine from someone that has a red heart on it and describes love and affection. It is a wonderful day for all of us.

The other symbol is the human heart, which is a symbol that relates to the American Heart Association, an organization I have worked with a great deal. And also, as I said, this is American Heart Month.

Robert Benchley once said: “As for me, except for an occasional heart attack, I feel as young as I ever did,” describing, of course, the devastation of the cardiac problems that people who suffer from heart disease have.

I want to talk, just for a moment, about that because we need to continue every day in every way to deal with this killer in our country. Heart disease is this country’s number 1 killer. It is the leading cause of disability and the leading cause of death in our country.

Forty-one percent of the deaths in our country each year are caused by heart disease and other cardiovascular diseases, more than the next six leading causes of death combined. Cardiovascular disease and heart disease kill more women than the next 14 causes of death combined. That is 5.5 times more deaths than are caused by breast cancer.

How can we help fight heart disease? All of us work on a wide range of issues. I am very concerned about a wide range of diseases. I have held hearings on breast cancer in North Dakota. I have worked on diabetes especially with respect to Native Americans. But heart disease is a special passion for me. I lost a beautiful young daughter to a heart attack some years ago, and I have another daughter who has a heart defect. I spend some amount of time visiting with cardiologists and visiting Children’s Hospital talking about the human heart.

We know there is much more to be learned about heart disease. There is breathtaking and exciting research going on at the National Institutes of Health dealing with heart disease. I have been to the NIH and visited the researchers. What is happening there is quite remarkable. We are dramatically increasing the funding for research dealing with a wide range of diseases and inquiry into diseases at the National Institutes of Health. We have gone from $12 billion now to over $20 billion, and we are on a path to go to $24 billion in research at the National Institutes of Health.

I am pleased to have been one of the principal stimulants that have increased the investment and research to uncover the mysteries of disease. To find ways to cure diseases and to prevent diseases—heart disease, cancer, so much more—is a remarkable undertaking, an outstanding and important investment for the country.

We can, however, as a Congress provide some focus to this issue of heart disease?

We have a Congressional Heart and Stroke Coalition that we founded in 1996. I am a co-chairman of that in the Senate and Senator Frist, who is a former heart transplant surgeon, is the other co-chair. We have two co-chairs in the House of Representatives as well. We are active in a wide range of things dealing with the issue of heart disease.

More than 600 Americans die every single day from cardiac arrest. That is the equivalent of two large jet airliner crashes a day. But it is not headlines every day of the year. We are working on making these available in airplanes. We are working on making these available in public buildings all around the country, and other areas of public access, so they’re available to help save lives when someone has a sudden cardiac arrest? That is what we are working on.

We have passed legislation to try to make these available in airplanes. We have passed legislation to try to move them around to make them available in public buildings. We should do much more than that. They are affordable, easy to use, and can save lives. We ought to have these new portable defibrillators as common pieces of safety equipment in public buildings like fire extinguishers are now. It is achievable, and it is something we should do.

We also need to find ways to do more cholesterol screening. That also relates... very much to cardiovascular disease. We know the identification of one of the major changeable risk factors for cardiovascular disease—that is, high levels of cholesterol—is not covered by Medicare. Clearly, we ought to cover those kinds of screenings under Medicare.

The American Heart Association recommends that all Americans over the age of 20 receive cholesterol screening at least once every five years. But when an American turns 65 and enters the Medicare program, their coverage for cholesterol screenings stops. That makes no sense. We have tried in recent years to improve the Medicare coverage of preventive services. We now cover screening for breast, cervical, colorectal and prostate cancer, testing for loss of bone mass, diabetes monitoring, vaccinations for the flu, pneumonia, and hepatitis B. Now we must provide Medicare coverage for cholesterol screenings as well.

I intend to introduce legislation that would add this important benefit to the menu of preventive services already covered by Medicare. I have just mentioned the substantial amount of research going on at the National Institutes of Health. I confess that my passion about this issue comes from my family’s experience—in the first case, a tragic experience. In the second case, we hope for an experience that will show us the miracles of research that are coming from the National Institutes of Health that provide new treatments and new remedies and new cures for some of these illnesses, such as heart disease. We hope this will offer my family good news in the future; not just my family, every family. Every family is touched and is acquainted in some way with this issue of heart disease. As I indicated, it’s number 1 killer. I have been pleased to work with the American Heart Association, a wonderful organization of volunteers across this country that does extraordinary work to continue to fight with them and work with the heart and stroke coalition in the Congress to see if we can’t continue to make progress in battling this dreaded disease that takes so many lives in our country.

AIRLINE SERVICE

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I rise to speak for a moment about the airline service in our country. Last weekend, the National Mediation Board released Northwest Airlines and one of its unions, called AMPA, from the mediation service that was going on.

Now we are under a 30-day march to a potential labor strike and therefore shutdown of airline service. It is not just Northwest Airlines. We have a United Airlines dispute in front of the National Mediation Board. We have a Delta Airlines dispute there, and an American Airlines dispute.

What has happened in recent years with the airlines, not just with respect to these labor issues, but with respect to the way the airlines have remade themselves since deregulation, is very troubling to me and should be very troubling to most of the traveling public in this country.

I mentioned today is Valentine’s Day. I suggest for a moment that you might want to take a trip on Valentine’s Day. If you want to go to Bismarck, ND—and if you say no because it is February, I would admonish you to think about Bismarck, ND, as a wonderful place and it is not all that cold in the winter—guess what the walk-up cost for a flight to Bismarck, ND, is—$1,687. But assume your sweetheart is very special and you decide, I am not going to go Bismarck. I am going to Paris, France. Do you know the fare you can find to Paris, France today? It is not $1,687. We have found walk-up fares to Paris, France, for $406; or Los Angeles, $510. So fly to Bismarck for $1,687 or Paris, France, for $406.

Ask yourself, what kind of a nutty scheme is this that these private companies have developed a pricing scheme that says: If you fly twice as far, we will charge you half as much. But if you fly half as far, we will charge you twice as much.

Using Bismarck again, if you have a hankering to see the largest cow on a hill overlooking New Salem, ND—the cow’s name is Salem Sue, the world’s largest cow—or to go to see Mickey Mouse in Los Angeles, in Orlando, in Paris, you pay twice as much to go half as far to see the largest cow, or pay half as much to go twice as far to see Mickey Mouse. What kind of a nutty idea is that? Who on earth comes up with these pricing schemes? Deregulation comes up with pricing schemes that say, by the way, we are not going to regulate the airlines. They can compete aggressively between the big cities where a lot of people want to travel. They compete aggressively and drive down the prices, and you have really nice prices among the large cities where people are traveling. Meanwhile, the rest of the folks get soaked with extraordinary high prices and less service.

What happened after deregulation is these major airlines decided they really liked each other a lot and started romancing each other and they merged. What used to be 11 airlines is now 7. They want to merge some more and they want to go from 7 to 3 airlines.

What happened through all these mergers? They retreated into the regional hubs, such as Minneapolis, Denver, Atlanta—you name it; they have retreated to regional hubs where one airline will control 50 percent, 70 percent, 80 percent of the hub traffic. The result is that a dominant airline controlling the hub traffic sets its own prices, and those prices are outrageous. Now, here is the point: We now have outrageous prices for people in sparsely populated areas in the country. We have a system of deregulation in which the airlines have become unregulated monopolies in regional hubs, and now we have a circumstance where United decided it wants to buy USAir, and American wants to buy TWA because TWA is going to be in bankruptcy, and it has been there twice. Delta is talking about buying Continental, and NWA, what will sit in the mix. They want to condense this down to three big airline carriers. Now, that is not competition where I come from. That is kind of an economic cholesterol that clogs the economic veins of the free market system in this country. We need to stop that.

I am considering legislation that would set up a moratorium on airline mergers above a certain size for a couple years so we can take a breath and understand what this means to the American consumers. The answer of what it means to the American consumers is quite clear to me. Some are rewarded with lower fares—if you are in the large markets where there is competition as well. But assume your sweetheart is very big; you are willing to pay extraordinary prices to fly in small markets where there is less service and higher prices.

United says it wants to buy USAir. That combination means a bigger company with more market control. The TWA thing—if I might just describe the circumstance—is, in my judgment, byzantine. It was purchased by Carl Icahn in a hostile takeover in the 1980s. Icahn is not a caribou, he is a predator. It was purchased by Carl Icahn in a hostile takeover in the 1980s. I said this is unhealthy to put an airline company into these hostile takeover wars, with junk bonds and everything. Guess what the problem with TWA is? At the moment, Mr. Icahn, after having been through two bankruptcies with TWA, has an agreement post-bankruptcy to sell seats on TWA at a 45-percent discount from the lowest public fare. This Icahn-TWA deal, termed the “caribou agreement,” remains in effect through 2003. Mr. Icahn is vigorously contesting the bankruptcy proceeding because if the assets are sold, the company will cease to exist.

What kind of a deal is that when airlines become pawns in hostile takeovers and then you get sweetheart deals coming out of bankruptcy that impose that kind of burden on the back of TWA?

It doesn’t look to me as though the public interest has been defined at all in these machinations. That is, when airlines have become bigger and bigger and have retreated into dominant hubs, if there is a strike or lockout and the airline ceases operating, it is not like it was 30 years ago when, if your airline shut down, you had other airlines. In North Dakota, we had five different companies flying jet airplanes into our State. Now we have one, and we just got a second recently with a regional jet.

The point is, when an airline shuts down, when you have dominance in a certain hub, entire parts of the country will be left with no airline service at all. Those airlines and their employees have dramatically changed the circumstances of collective bargaining. There is someone else who must be at their table, and that is the American traveling public because their interests are at stake. A strike or lockout will affect their interests in a very dramatic way.

I wanted to make this point for a couple reasons. One, I think these proposed mergers fly directly in the face of public interest and ought not to be allowed. That is people. We ought to stop this. We don’t need to go to three airlines. That is, in my judgment, moving in the wrong direction. That is not in the public interest. We need more competition, not more concentration.

No. 2, and my final point, is when you have the kind of disputes that now exist before the National Mediation Board and the threatened disruptions of airline service, it will be devastating to the public and to this country’s economy if you have entire regions with no air service at all. We went through a strike with the dominant carrier in our region about 2 and a half years ago and it was devastating. We can’t let that happen again. There are four carriers with cases in front of the mediation board of which we have not released. I say to those carriers and to the labor unions, because you have re-made yourself in a different circumstance, with dominance in hubs all across this country, you have a different responsibility than you used to have in collective bargaining. You have a responsibility to the American public that didn’t previously exist. This is not business as usual. There is another interest that must be seated at your table, and that is the public interest.

Understand that those of us in Congress, those who are strong supporters of businesses and strong supporters of unions, understand it is most important that we are supporters of the public interest. We represent, and supporters of the larger national interests in this country.

With what happened to the airline industry, the massive concentration and the critical dominance in regional hubs, these labor disputes are very troubling to me and to many others. They must not—I repeat—result in the shutdown of critically needed airline service to parts of this country that can ill afford to have that happen. It is critical that the airlines and the unions: Sit at that table and bargain. I am a big supporter of collective bargaining. Bargain and reach an agreement. Understand that the empty chair next to your discussion is a chair that represents the public interest, and that chair is not filled by someone who is sitting there as part of that discussion, but they are in that room overlooking those negotiations. Resolve these issues and keep that service from the American people.

I hope my colleagues will join me in expressing loudly that having this country go to three major airline carriers is a step backward, not forward. It is a step toward concentration, not competition. It plugs the arteries of the free market system in a very unhealthy way for this country.

I will speak at a future time about concentration, and not just in the airline industry, but about what is happening in a range of industries in this country where there is concentration and antitrust behavior that ought to be troubling to the American people and this Congress. I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). The clerk will call the roll. The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to proceed for 12 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CAPITOL VISITORS CENTER

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I can remember traveling home a day in July two and a half years ago when I learned on the radio that two Capitol policemen, Detective John Gibson and Officer Jacob Chestnut, had been murdered in the Capitol.

When there is a loss of life, it affects us all; but, these men were in the line of fire and prevented other people from being killed.

I also had a particular affinity toward Detective John Gibson because of the assistance he provided at a function when my wife took ill. He, in a very heroic fashion, exercised good judgment in helping with the medical problems my wife was experiencing. A short time after he gallantly helped my wife, he was murdered.

Furthermore, the deaths of Detective Gibson and Officer Chestnut were painful for me because I was a Capitol policeman. I put myself through law school working in the Capitol as a police officer.

The reason I mention these events is that I was stunned Monday to read in the Hill newspaper, the headline read: “Officials Say $65 Million Short of Goal With Clock Ticking.”

After all that has transpired, after all the statements we have heard on this floor, after the House, I am ashamed we have found ourselves in this predicament. Any further delay in construction of the much needed Capitol visitors center must be prevented. We must take action as quickly as possible.

Every night I leave my office in the Capitol to go home, I exit through the memorial door. It is called the memorial door because there are two plaques on the wall commemorating Officer Chestnut and Detective Gibson. I see their faces each night as I walk through the door.

In response to these murders, many Members renewed our call for the construction of the visitors center which had been talked about for years. I can remember talking about this project when I was the chairman of the Legislative Branch Appropriations Committee. When I was chairman, we cleared the cars off the east front of the Capitol. There were automobiles out there now, but we did it, for security and the fact that it was an eyesore. Unfortunately, it’s still an eyesore—that blacktop on the East side of the Capitol of the United States. The only superpower left in the world and we have an ugly blacktop out here. More important than the visual aspect, however, are the safety concerns. The reason Chestnut and Gibson were killed, in my opinion, is that they had no protection. A madman with a gun rushed through the door and shot Chestnut. Gibson valiantly came forward to protect a Member and others from being shot, and he was killed. A visitors center would enhance safety for these fine men and women who guard us. Men and women who guard the thousands of Americans who come to this building every day.

In addition to that, we always see people lined up out there on the east side of the Capitol waiting to get into the Capitol. We stand here during the spring and summer months. We see them during the fall months when school is out. Even during the winter months, they line up for blocks. People from all over America—from Nevada, Montana, Maine—come to Washington to visit the Capitol. They are forced—I say “forced” because there is no place else to go—to stand outside in the elements, whether it is raining, snowing, or 100 degrees, without the benefit of restrooms, a place to get something to eat, a place to sit and a place to get a drink. The Capitol visitors center would allow the Capitol Police to better protect themselves and all of us... who come to this Capitol complex to work or to visit, and would also provide an indoor facility for visitors to stand in line, as well as a gift shop, a cafeteria, and a place for them to go to the bathroom.

We have authorized $100 million for the construction of this Capitol Visitors Center. It will cost, however, $265 million. After six different congressional committees exercised their jurisdiction, it was decided that we would sell $65 million worth of commemorative coins from the U.S. Mint, with the additional $100 million raised in the private sector. I have never thought the money should be raised in the private sector. If there were ever something that should be paid for by the government, it should be a visitors center to this Capitol.

I commend all of the donors who gave their time and money to raise the $35 million that has been raised to date. While I commend these people, however, I believe their noble efforts should never have been necessary in raising this money. The U.S. Capitol Building is the people’s house. It is the seat of government and the enduring symbol of this democracy, the greatest country in the history of the world. The Capitol is the seat of government for the greatest country in the history of the world.

As Senators and Representatives, we have been blessed with the incredible fortune of calling the Capitol the place where we work. I am disappointed that we, as caretakers of this people’s house, have abrogated our responsibility by begging the private sector for funds to help build what I believe should remain a public institution. We have an obligation to fully fund the construction of the visitors center. We should do it right away—during this Congress.

I have conveyed this message to Senators BENNETT and DURBIN, the chairman and ranking member of the Subcommittee on Legislative Branch Appropriations, as well as to the full committee chairman, Senator STEVENS, and the ranking member, Senator BYRD.

I ask unanimous consent that the letter I have written to these Senators be printed in the RECORD following my remarks. I am asking for unanimous consent that the article in Monday’s edition of the Roll Call newspaper to which I referred be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibits 1 and 2.)

Mr. REID. I intend to continue my efforts to ensure that we provide the necessary funds as quickly as possible to prevent construction delays in the Capitol visitors center. It is important that we do this, it is important to this country. It is important to this institution. It is important to the people we serve.

EXHIBIT 1

U.S. SENATE,

Hon. ROBERT BENNETT,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Legislative Branch Appropriations, U.S. Capitol, Washington, DC,

Hon. RICHARD DURBIN,
Ranking Member, Subcommittee on Legislative Branch Appropriations, U.S. Capitol, Washington, DC,

Dear Mr. Chairman and Senator Durbin:

I would like to express my serious concern and disappointment with recent reports that construction of the much needed Capitol Visitors Center may fall even further behind schedule because of budgetary development that we must prevent as quickly as possible.

In July 1998, following the murder of Office of Compliance Director John Gibson, many Members of the House of Representatives and the Senate, including me, publicly recognized the sacrifices made by all of the donors who gave generously to the Fund for the Capitol Visitors Center. At a cost of approximately $265 million, however, that amount fell far short of the funds needed. As you know, following a series of delays caused by six different congressional committees exercising their jurisdiction over the project, it was decided that $65 million would be raised by the U.S. Mint through the sale of commemorative coins, with the additional $100 million raised by the Fund for the Capitol Visitors Center through private donations.

While I commend those donors and all who have generously contributed their time and money to raise private funds for the construction of the Capitol Visitors Center, I believe that their noble efforts should never have been necessary. The United States Capitol Building is the People’s House. It is the seat of our government and the enduring symbol of our democracy. As Senators and Representatives, we have been blessed with the incredible fortune of calling the Capitol our place of employment. I am extremely disappointed that we, as caretakers of the People’s House, have abrogated our responsibilities by begging the private sector for funds to help build what I believe is, and should remain, a public institution.

We have an obligation to fully fund the construction of the Capitol Visitors Center. As a Member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, I intend to continue my efforts to ensure that we provide the necessary funds, as quickly as possible, to prevent construction from falling even further behind schedule.

My best wishes to you.

Sincerely,

HARRY REID,
U.S. Senator.

VISITORS CENTER FUNDS “LAGGING,” OFFICIALS SAY

$65 MILLION SHORT OF GOAL WITH CLOCK TICKING

(By Lauren W. Whittington)

Amid concern that private fundraising efforts for the Capitol visitors center are “lagging,” some top officials associated with the project have begun looking into other funding options in order to keep it from falling behind schedule.

The Fund for the Capitol Visitors Center, a non-profit organization established by the Pew Charitable Trusts, has raised $35 million in private gifts thus far. That leaves it $65 million short of the $100 million it needs to raise by the end of the year.

“I think we’ve been aware now for a while that the fundraising [aspect] is lagging, and we have been thinking about different options,” said an aide to one member of the Capitol Preservation Commission, the entity charged with overseeing the visitors center. While the aide declined to discuss timeliness and what those specific options might be, the staffer said that using more taxpayers’ funds—a controversial idea—to supplement the project is “certainly an option” that is being discussed.

After two Capitol Police officers were shot and killed in the Capitol in July 1998, Congress appropriated $100 million in taxpayer funds for the visitors center with the idea that the funds would be matched by private donations.

Construction on the visitors center is set to begin in January 2002, and under federal law all funds used for the project must be committed before the first shovel goes into the ground.

Senior Congressional officials involved in the project are privately expressing concern that the money may not be forthcoming.

“The Capitol is in desperate need of this visitors center, so we want it to stay on track, and we need to have the money by December 31, 2001 for construction to begin on time,” one CPC staffer said on the condition of anonymity. “I think that everybody’s dedicated to figuring out a way to keep it moving forward.”

After kicking off its campaign in April 2000 with an initial $35 million in pledged donations, including $10 million from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, the fund has not publicly announced any further donations or fundraising totals.

“I think this has really been a much more difficult task than they thought it would be,” said the aide to a CPC member. “I do think they were very optimistic about what they could raise and it wasn’t really reality.”

The first major addition to the Capitol since 1859, the visitors center is slated to cost $265 million and be completed by January 2005—just in time for the next presidential inauguration.

The price tag could increase by as much as $10 million if CPC members approve construction of a proposed tunnel that would connect the center with the Library of Congress.

Thus far, fundraising concerns have not affected the project’s estimated start date, but that could change if funds are not collected by year’s end.

“If we had to wait for the fundraising, potentially, yeah, it would need to be moved back, but I don’t think that’s in anybody’s head right now,” the CPC member’s aide said. “I think it’s too soon to be talking about that.”

Former Rep. Vic Fazio (D-Calif.), who sits on the fund’s board of directors, said the organization has donations “in the pipeline,” even though they are unable to publicly announce them.

“How much people will decide to give, if they decide to give, is something that’s still being discussed,” said Fazio, who championed the project when he was in the House. Nobody could have predicted, and we still couldn’t tell you for sure how much money could be raised for such a purpose.”

Maria Titelman, president of the fund, said the organization is “cautiously confident,” though she too was unable to release any estimates or talk publicly about possible donations.
“I think that we’re very excited about where we’re going,” Titelman said. “We’re raising money as quickly as we can on an accelerated schedule. We’ll get to our $100 million as soon as possible.”

The bulk of the remaining $65 million will be raised through the sale of commemorative coins. From the sale of the bicentennial coins in the late 1990s have now reached $30 million, and the CPC expects to make another $5 million to $10 million from the sale of two coins to be released by the U.S. Mint this spring.

For their part, Members and key staffers on both sides of the aisle remain committed to the project.

“The entire leadership and CPC remain very committed to this and very enthusiastic about it,” said Van Der Meld, an aide to Speaker Dennis Hastert (R-Ill.).

Van Der Meld also noted that last week’s shooting incident at the White House “reaffirms one of the main purposes for the visitors center.”

To assist with their efforts, the fund has hired outside fundraising consultants Wyatt Stewart & Associates and The Bonner Group. Also advising the fund is Steven Briganti, the legal counsel to the fund.

“I have not objected to the effort to raise private funds, and I’ve been part of that effort, but I certainly would hope that if we are only successful at that, that we would then fall back on additional appropriations to make it happen,” Fazio said. “The most important thing is not to be something that is delayed or undone.”

Form Sen. Dale Bumpers (D-Ark.), also a member of the board, said he has always favored the option of appropriating the funds needed to build the center.

“So far as this mixing of private and public money, I never have much liked that,” Bumpers said in an interview last week. “I thought if it was a good idea, we ought to fund it with public funds.”

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.), co-chairman of the CPC, said in a prepared statement, “At this time I feel that it would be premature to make any final decisions regarding the appropriation of additional funds for the Capitol visitors center. However, I recognize that because of the importance of this project, it is essential that we keep all of our options open.”

Sen. Bob Bennett (R-Utah), chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee on the legislative branch and a member of the CPC, said he would consider appropriating more money for the project if it was needed.

“I haven’t given any thought to what happens if [the current fundraising framework] won’t work,” he said. “But if it becomes clear that it won’t work, then I would take a look at an additional appropriation.”

Howard Mica (R-Fla.) is a CPC member and one of the most vocal supporters of the visitors center to date, said he is against appropriating more taxpayer money.

“I don’t think we need any more public money and particularly at this stage,” Mica said. “At some point if we have to beef up the private fundraising efforts or help assist them in any way, there’s plenty of muscle power that can raise that money, particularly Members who unashamedly raise hundreds of millions for campaign efforts.”

Outside of revisiting the public funding debate, the CPC can also explore other private fundraising options, including an agreement with the fund is not exclusive. The CPC could begin to accept private donations directly or it could set up another organization to raise private money for the project.

One thing that has been a roadblock for the fund’s efforts thus far is the issue of public recognition. From the outset, most Members of Congress have been adamantly opposed to the idea of naming portions of the visitors center after corporate sponsors, and the leadership and the fund have differed on the ways in which corporations can receive public recognition for the donations.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.), co-chairman of the CPC, said, “I have not objected to the effort to raise private funds, and I’ve been part of that effort, but I certainly would hope that if we are only successful at that, that we would then fall back on additional appropriations to make it happen.”

EXPRESSING SYMPATHY FOR LOST LOVED ONES IN HAWAII

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I express my sincerest sympathies to the families of those who have lost loved ones in two unrelated incidents the U.S. military in Hawaii during the past week.

On Friday afternoon, the U.S.S. Greeneville collided with the Ehime Maru, a Japanese fishing vessel. I join President Bush in expressing my regret to the people of Japan for this tragedy. My heart goes out to the families of the nine people who are still missing following this incident.

On Monday evening, two UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters crashed during a training exercise at the Kahuku Military Training Area, resulting in six deaths. My thoughts and prayers are with the families and units who are mourning the loss of their loved ones. I also wish a speedy recovery to those soldiers whose injuries sustained in this accident.

I am certain that the investigations into these incidents will be thorough and comprehensive. But my purpose today is not to question why these incidents occurred, but to express the genuine sadness and concern that I share with the people of Hawaii and the rest of the nation over these two unfortunate episodes.

Mr. REED. The PRESIDENT. OFFICER (Mr. Edwards). The Senator from Hawaii is recognized.

(The remarks of Mr. AKAKA pertaining to the introduction of S. 329 are located in today’s RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. AKAKA. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT. The clerk will call the roll.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT. Morning business is closed.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, the distinguished chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Mr. Hatch, is going to be coming over on a matter of ours. He is not here yet. I ask unanimous consent that I be able to proceed on a different subject as in morning business.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED FROM THE WRONGFUL CONVICTION OF EARL WASHINGTON

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I want to discuss the case of Earl Washington. Mr. Washington was released from custody Monday after more than 17 years in prison. In fact, of the 17 years in prison, 10 years of that were on death row, Virginia Governor James Gilmore pardoned Earl Washington on October 2, 2000. After some new DNA tests confirmed what earlier DNA tests had already shown—he was the wrong guy. They had the wrong person in prison on death row.

I mention this case as probably the most recent that we have seen in the press, but we have seen a shocking number of cases in the past 2 years in which inmates have been exonered after long stays in prison, including more than 90 cases involving people who had been sentenced to death. Let me repeat that: more than 90 cases where people had been sentenced to death and they then found they had the wrong person.

Since Earl Washington was pardoned 4 months ago, six more condemned prisoners in four different States have had their convictions vacated through exonerating evidence: William Nieves, sentenced to death in Pennsylvania in 1994; Michael Graham and Albert Burrell, sentenced to death in Louisiana in 1997; Peter Limone and Joseph Salvati, sentenced to death in Massachusetts in 1968; and Frank Lee Smith, sentenced to death in Florida in 1986.
There have also been other recent exonerations of inmates who were not sentenced to death, but were serving long terms of imprisonment. Just last month, the State of Texas released Chris Ochoa from prison at the request of one of the local prosecutors. The prosecutors claimed that Ochoa was the wrong guy locked up. In 1989, Ochoa pled guilty to a rape-murder he did not commit. Somebody may ask: Why would you plead guilty to a rape and murder that you did not commit? Because the authorities said that if you were going to make sure he got a death sentence if he did not plead guilty to the crime.

DNA tests that were not available when he was arrested cleared Ochoa and his co-defendant and implicated another man, who had previously confessed to the crime on several occasions.

Here is how bad this case was. Chris Ochoa was arrested. He knew he did not commit the crime, this rape-murder, and basically told the authorities he did not commit it. We are going to have you executed if we do not. We will spare you the death penalty. He did. But you can plead guilty and we will spare you the death penalty. He did. But not possibly have committed. But whatever it was, when they asked him if he committed the crime, he said: “Yes, sir.”

First, he confessed to the crime he had actually committed—breaking into Helen Weeks’ home and hitting her over the head with a chair. That he did do. Then he confessed to raping her. With no reason to suspect that Weeks had been raped, the officers interrogating Washington asked if he had raped her, and he gave the standard response, “Yes, sir.”

On that basis alone, they charged him with rape. Well, then Helen Weeks came forward and said, “Nobody raped me. I never told the police I had been raped. Nobody tried to rape me.” And they kind of tiptoed into court and dropped the rape charge. Due to that erroneous information, Earl Washington went on to confess to four other unrelated crimes. Investigators later concluded that he could not have committed three of the crimes in other words, that his confessions were wholly unreliable. Yet with virtually no evidence other than the remaining confession, he was charged and brought to trial for the fourth crime the rape and murder of Rebecca Williams.

Earl Washington almost immediately retracted his confession to the Williams murder, and there were no fingerprints or blood linking him to the crime scene. But he was convicted, and the jury recommended execution. He was sentenced to death, his appeals were rejected, and he was executed within a few days of being electrocuted. The whole justice system failed him. But science eventually came to his rescue. The justice system did not just fail Mr. Washington; it was entirely different. He had committed a crime. He had broken into a woman’s house, and he had hit her with a chair. But he did not rape her. Nobody did. She said so in 1989, when the authorities charged him with murder and rape. Earl Washington did not rape Rebecca Williams.

Despite these test results, the state officials still thought he might be guilty. Maybe there was somebody else involved. Maybe there were two people. Investigators found the woman who was murdered, who had lived for a period of time after she was attacked, said very clearly that there was only one person.

So Earl Washington remained in prison for so many years. But they did not execute him—they commuted his sentence to life in 1994. But he was not pardoned. He was given life in prison, but still for a crime that he did not commit and more of the authorities in the State knew he did not commit and DNA tests proved he did not commit.

One would think the courts would be interested in scientific evidence, especially of a prisoner’s innocence. Normally, you do not have to prove your innocence, but this was a case where he could prove his innocence. One might ask, couldn’t he go to court with the new DNA evidence and ask for a new trial? The answer is no; Virginia has the shortest deadline in the country for going back to court with new evidence. It has to be submitted within 21 days of conviction. After that, the defendant is out of luck. Earl Washington could not submit the evidence within 21 days of conviction for a very simple reason: The technology for DNA testing, at the time of his conviction, was not available. And of course by the time it became available a few years later, he was in a catch-22. I’ve got DNA evidence that proves I’m innocent. Sorry, 21 days went by a long time ago. But they didn’t have DNA evidence within 21 days of my conviction. I know, it is a crying shame. Stay on death row.

Last year, a new and more precise DNA test confirmed what the earlier tests had shown: Earl Washington did not commit the crime for which he was sentenced to death. The tests pointed... to another person who was already in prison for rape. So, 7 years after the initial DNA tests and more than 16 years after he was sentenced to be executed, Earl Washington was granted an absolute pardon for the rape and murder of Rebecca Williams, a rapist and murderer committed. After science had twice proven his innocence, the Commonwealth of Virginia finally acknowledged the truth.

That is not the end of the story. He then spent another 4 months in prison for his attack on Hazel Weeks. That is at least a crime he committed. He hit her with a chair in 1983. So now, 17 years later, he is finishing that sentence. People sentenced for similar crimes in Virginia are generally paroled after 7 to 10 years in prison. They made Earl Washington serve twice the time that others would serve the maximum possible time in prison. Having unjustly condemned him, the Commonwealth of Virginia compounded the injustice in the following way:

2 weeks ago, when he became entitled to mandatory parole. It is almost as if they were saying: How dare you be innocent of the other crime we convicted you of? How dare you prove us wrong? We won't let you go.

I had hoped to meet with Earl Washington after his release from prison. Congressman BOBBY SCOTT of Virginia wrote to the Virginia correctional authorities 2 weeks ago and sought permission. Washington traveled to Capitol Hill Monday under the care and supervision of his attorneys. We thought it was important for the American people to hear firsthand an account of this injustice. A good justice system learns from its mistakes.

The last 17 years of Earl Washington’s life have been one of the system’s worst mistakes. We felt we owed it to Earl Washington and future Earl Washingtons to listen. The officials of the Commonwealth of Virginia, in a different view. They did not want Earl Washington to come here. They did not want him to come here even for a few hours, come that great distance from Virginia, which is 2 miles away. They didn’t want him to come those extra 2 miles and tell the story.

This case reveals the dark side of a system that is not known for admitting its mistakes. I am not speaking only of the Commonwealth of Virginia. A whole lot of other States have been just as bad at admitting their mistakes.

In the Earl Washington case, state officials insisted on pursuing a death penalty charge despite having wholly unreliable evidence. They kept him in prison for years despite knowing he was falsely convicted. They kept him locked up, knowing he was falsely convicted. And then they would not even let him come here to Washington to tell the American people what happened.

We need to hear from such people like Earl Washington, not hide them from public view. The American justice system is about the search for the truth; the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. As a former prosecutor, I understand the importance of finality in criminal cases, but even more important than that is the commitment to the truth; that has to come first.

This case tells us we cannot sit back and assume prosecutors and courts will do the right thing when it comes to DNA evidence. It took Earl Washington 7 years to convince prosecutors to do the very simple tests that would prove his innocence, and more time still to win his freedom.

Some States continue to stonewall on requests for DNA testing. They continue to hide behind time limits and procedural default rules to deny prisoners the opportunity to present DNA test results in court. They continue to destroy DNA evidence that could set innocent people free. These practices must stop. I have long supported and I continue to support funding to ensure that law enforcement has access to DNA testing and all the other tools it needs to investigate and prosecute crime in our society. But if we as a society are committed to getting it right, and not just to getting a conviction, we need to make sure that DNA testing, and the ability to present DNA evidence to the courts, is also available to the defense. We should not pass up the promise of truth and justice for both sides of our adversarial system, and that promise is there in DNA evidence.

We must also understand this case shows why we should not allow the execution of the mentally retarded. As I noted in a floor statement last December, people with mental retardation are more prone to make false confessions than people who are not mentally retarded. We should not condone a system that has resulted in much good legislation that has helped American consumers and businesses and which has encouraged American innovation and creativity, including greater deployment of the Internet.

Some recent examples of our work include the following items:

- The Satellite Home Viewer Improvement Act, which authorized the carriage of local television stations by satellite carriers, has brought local television to thousands across the country who might not have been able to get it before, and has brought competition in subscription television services to many others who before could only watch the local channels.
- The passage last year of a loan guarantee program will help make the benefits of this law more widely available.
- The Anticybersquatting Consumer Protection Act helps guard against fraudulent or pornographic websites that confuse, offend, or defraud unwitting online consumers who go to sites with famous business names only to find that someone else is using that trademarked name in bad faith under false pretenses. This law also helps protect other businesses that could be hurt by the bad faith misuse of their trademarked business name in ways that tarnish their

People of good conscience can and will disagree on the morality of the death penalty; but people of good conscience all share the same goal of preventing the execution of the innocent. People of good conscience should not disagree that the way the case of Earl Washington was handled over the past 17 years was unjust. It was completely unacceptable. We ought to find ways to make sure these kinds of things do not happen again.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND HIGH TECHNOLOGY TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS ACT OF 2001

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. LINCOLN). Under the previous order, the hour of 2 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will now proceed to the consideration of S. 320, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 320) to make technical corrections in patent, copyright, and trademark laws.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be 1 hour of debate on the bill equally divided in the usual form.

The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, I rise today to discuss S. 320, the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act, which I have introduced with my distinguished colleague, the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, Senator LEAHY. We have had a very productive relationship in the Judiciary Committee in the area of high technology and intellectual property. Our bipartisan cooperation has resulted in much good legislation that has helped American consumers and businesses and which has encouraged American innovation and creativity, including greater deployment of the Internet.

Some recent examples of our work include the following items:

- The Satellite Home Viewer Improvement Act, which authorized the carriage of local television stations by satellite carriers, has brought local television to thousands across the country who might not have been able to get it before, and has brought competition in subscription television services to many others who before could only watch the local channels.
- The passage last year of a loan guarantee program will help make the benefits of this law more widely available.
- The Anticybersquatting Consumer Protection Act helps guard against fraudulent or pornographic websites that confuse, offend, or defraud unwitting online consumers who go to sites with famous business names only to find that someone else is using that trademarked name in bad faith under false pretenses. This law also helps protect other businesses that could be hurt by the bad faith misuse of their trademarked business name in ways that tarnish their... name or undermine consumer confidence in their brands.

The American Inventor Protection Act is helping to further serve American innovators with more streamlined procedures at the United States Patent and Trademark Office, and better organizing the Office so that it will better serve its customers, American inventors. There are also protections for inventors from unscrupulous businesses that prey on small inventors who are not familiar with the procedures of obtaining a patent.

The Digital Millennium Copyright Act updated copyright law for the Internet, while striking a balance necessary to foster technological development and full deployment of the Internet. This law has set the groundwork for entertainment convergence on a single interactive platform where the consumer is king and can set his or her own schedule for news, information, entertainment, communication, and so on.

Well, Madam President, this is just a sampling of what we have achieved together, and it is a prelude to what we can do in the future.

Today, we are here to discuss S. 320, the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act. S. 320 is a technical corrections bill to clean up some scrivener mistakes in the Intellectual Property and High Technology and Trademark Office, and better organize the Office so that it will better serve its customers, American inventors. There are also protections for inventors from unscrupulous businesses that prey on small inventors who are not familiar with the procedures of obtaining a patent.

The American Inventor Protection Act updated copyright law for the Internet, while striking a balance necessary to foster technological development and full deployment of the Internet. This law has set the groundwork for entertainment convergence on a single interactive platform where the consumer is king and can set his or her own schedule for news, information, entertainment, communication, and so on.

Well, Madam President, this is just a sampling of what we have achieved together, and it is a prelude to what we can do in the future.

Today, we are here to discuss S. 320, the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act. S. 320 is a technical corrections bill to clean up some scrivener’s errors that have crept into the U.S. Code in the patent, trademark, and copyright laws. We, the sponsors, believe it is to the benefit of smooth functioning of the law to clean up the Code to make it easier to use, and to more accurately reflect Congressional intent.

Specifically, the bill corrects typographical errors such as misspellings, dropped or erroneous cross-references or punctuation errors. It also makes consistent the titles of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and its officers. It also clarifies some unclear drafting in the Code, some procedural matters at the USPTO, such as making it clear that if foreign trademark applicants fail to designate a U.S. agent, the USPTO Commissioner is deemed to be that agent for delivery of documents regarding that application; and ensuring that no prior art effect will be given to foreign patents or patent applications unless they are published in English. It makes it easier for small inventors to sit on the USPTO Advisory Commission. It also requires more pro-American inventor policies to be codified now in the law, but not clearly drafted. This bill makes them clearer.

All of these changes make the intellectual property laws of our country easier to use and understand for our constituents who invent, create, innovate and so serve our other citizens. It also makes the law clearer for those who use the inventions and creations of others. I believe there is no controversy about the provisions of this bill, and I am supporting it on a variety of grounds. I also believe that Congressional action to foster the growth of our most innovative sector, our intellectual property sector.

With regard to that, Senator LEAHY and I are releasing today our joint High Technology and Intellectual Property legislative agenda.

I would like to mention some of the items on that agenda and discuss some of the issues related to it. In the Internet Age, many basic questions need to be asked about the relationship between the artists and the media companies that market and distribute their product; about the rights of consumers and fans to use works in new ways and the ability of technology companies and other mediators to assist them in those uses; and about the accessibility of works to scholars, students, or others for legitimate purposes. We need to continue to think about how the copyright system applies in the Internet world, where some of the assumptions underpinning traditional copyright law may not be relevant, or need to be applied by a proper analogy. Are there ways to clarify the rights and responsibilities of artists, owners, consumers, and users of copyrighted works? How can we foster the continued convergence of information, entertainment, and communication? What are the adequacy of a variety of platforms and devices that will make life more enjoyable and convenient? We need to encourage an open and competitive environment in the production and distribution of content on the Internet.

As the Internet’s new digital medium continues to grow, we must ensure that consumers are confident that personally identifiable information which they submit electronically are afforded adequate levels of privacy protection. As consumer confidence in the security of their personal and financial information is enhanced, Internet users will be more willing to go online, make purchases, and generally provide personal information required by businesses and organizations over the Internet. At the same time, we must ensure that any initiatives have the least regulatory effect on the growth of e-commerce and on commercial free speech rights protected by the Constitution. We expect to examine the adequacy of Internet privacy protection and will, where necessary, advance reforms aimed at ensuring greater privacy protection.

For example, the Committee expects to examine the following:

1. How are privacy concerns impacting the growth of e-commerce, in the financial services industry, in the insurance industry, in online retailing, etc., and the deployment of new technologies that could further the growth of, and consumer access to, the Internet?

2. Does Congress need to amend criminal or civil rights laws to address consumer electronic privacy concerns?

3. Does U.S. encryption policy negatively affect the growth of e-commerce?

4. What is the impact of the European Union’s Internet Privacy Directive on U.S. industry and e-commerce?

5. Can Federal law enforcement, particularly civil rights enforcers, play a larger role in safeguarding the privacy concerns of Internet users?

6. To what extent can web-sites and Government agencies track the Internet activities of individual users and financial sensitive data?

We would like to work toward reforms that can more fully deploy the Internet to make educational opportunities more widely available to students in remote locations, to life-long learners, and to enhance the educational experience of all students.

The Internet can bring new experiences to remote locations. My own home state of Utah has been experimenting with ways to bring the best possible educational experience to learners all across our state, some of whom live in remote rural areas, using wireless technology. We would like to see how we can further support efforts to harness the communicative power of the wired world on behalf of students across the country.

Science is advancing rapidly and the challenges to the patent system of genetics, biotechnology, and business method patents are daunting. Whole new subject matter areas are being exploited, from patents on business methods from financial services to e-commerce tools on the Internet. The complexity of innovation and the nature of patent applications are expanding exponentially. Recent Supreme Court decisions have once again posed the question of state government responsibility to respect and protect intellectual property rights. And I believe we need to review the Drug Price Competition and Patent Term Restoration Act of 1984 to ensure that its balanced goals continue to be met.

As many know, that act helped to create the modern generic drug industry. It has been estimated that it has largely saved consumers $10 billion every year since 1984. It is considered one of the most important consumer protection acts in the history of the country.

As the assignment of domain names transitions from a single company to a competitive, market-based system, we need to stay vigilant with regard to the significant antitrust and intellectual property ramifications. The process holds for American businesses and consumers. We intend to build on our record of strengthening protection for online consumers by protecting the trademarks consumers rely on in cyberspace, while also encouraging the full range of positive interactions the Internet makes possible. I think the Internet can be a place of infinite variety where we continue to allow consumers to rely on brand names they know in the commerce context. The global nature of the Internet also heightens the need for the United States to join international efforts to make worldwide intellectual property
Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, have the yeas and nays been ordered on S. 320?

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. They have not been.

Mr. LEAHY. I ask for the yeas and nays.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I thank my good friend from Utah for his comments. He and I have been working closely on an agenda for the coming year for the Judiciary Committee. As always, the agenda will reflect not only the needs of the Senate, but the friendship that the two of us have had for well over 20 years.

I congratulate Senator HATCH for his continuing leadership in improving our copyright, trademark, and patent law. Our intellectual property laws are important engines of growth, fueling the creative energy responsible for America’s global leadership in the software, movie, music, and high-tech industries.

The bill we consider today contains amendments recommended to us by the Copyright Office. I commend the Register of Copyrights, Marybeth Peters, for the expertise she brings to her office and the assistance she brings to us. At the end of my statement, I ask that a letter from Marybeth Peters in support of the legislation be printed in the Record.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. LEAHY. Over the past years, Senator Hatch and I, and others on the Judiciary Committee, have worked constructively and productively together on intellectual property matters. Just in the last Congress, we were able to pass the Anticybersquatting Consumer Protection Act, the Patent Fee Integrity and Innovation Protection Act, the Satellite Home Viewers Improvements Act, and the American Inventors Protection Act. These significant intellectual property matters were preceded by our work together forging a consensus on the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, the Copyright Term Extension Act, the PTO Reauthorization Act, the Trademark Law Treaty Implementation Act, and many others. And the other members of the committee have worked to ensure that this partisanship stays clear of this important area.

The proof of what we in Congress can accomplish when we put partisan differences aside, roll up our sleeves, and do the hard work or crafting compromises is demonstrated every day by our record of legislative achievements on intellectual property matters.

I hope all Senators will look at what Senator HATCH and I have been able to do when we set aside partisan differences and make sure we do things that work.

This bill makes technical corrections to and various non-substantive changes in our intellectual property laws. Introduction and passage of this bill is a good start for this Congress, but we must not lose sight of the other copyright, patent and trademark issues requiring our attention. The Senate Judiciary Committee has a full slate of intellectual property matters to consider. I am pleased to work on a bipartisan basis with the chairman on an agenda to provide the creators and inventors of copyrighted and patented works with the protection they may need in our global economy, while at the same time providing libraries, educational institutions, and other users with the clarity they need as to what constitutes fair use of such work.

We have to realize things have changed. There has been a lot in the press in the past couple days about the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision in Napster. I suggest that if anyone thinks this is the end of the whole issue, they are mistaken.

Those who distribute, produce copyrighted material, including movies, music, and books, have to realize their own business practices may well have to change and be a lot different. Profit margins may change, depending upon how it is done. Artists are no longer beholden just to a few mega distributors. With the Internet, they are going to be able to work out their own way of distributing their material. They are going to be able to get themselves known if they want, even if it is by distributing their music, movies, or books for free.

It is a different world out there, but it is just one example of the kinds of issues we have to look at. Applying copyright principles to new situations should not be done by courts or by one-shot, make law which is imprecise, at best, because a court is limited to the factual situation before it rather than a full panoply of circumstances, but can be done here, recognizing we have a whole new way of doing things.

I remember when I was growing up in Montpelier, VT, my parents owned a small printing business. We used either moveable type or hot lead type. It was a laborious process. One thing I learned was not to proofread in a hurry, but to read upside down and backward, as well as right side up and forward, because that is the way the letters work. It is a matter of consternation sometimes. People do not realize I am reading what is before me.

Now I look at the business, and there has been enormous change. It is less labor intensive in the setting up—it is not even type anymore, now it is offset. It changes the whole economy, but opens up a whole new world, all using different kinds of copyrighted material.

Among the things we should look at is protection from State infringement.
In response to the Supreme Court’s decisions in the Florida Prepaid and College Savings Bank cases, I introduced in the last Congress legislation to re-store Federal protection for intellectual property to guard against infringement by the States.

This is a reaction to an activist U.S. Supreme Court which held that States and their institutions cannot be held liable for patent infringement and other violations of the Federal intellectual property laws, even though those States have huge academic and do enjoy the full protection of those laws for themselves.

Basically, the Supreme Court—it seemed to me anyway—seems to be willing to rewrite the rule of law with regard to the Constitution, certainly when it comes to telling States what they cannot do. We know they are not hesitant to do that. The legislation I sponsored would condition a State’s ability to obtain new intellectual property technology on its waiver of sovereign immunity in future intellectual property suits.

It would also improve the limited remedies available to enforce a nonwaiving State’s obligations under Federal law. There is no provision in the Constitution. This is a critical area in which the Congress should act.

Then we have distance education. The Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing in the last Congress on the Copyright Office’s thorough and balanced report on copyright and digital distance education, something that can be very important to those of us from rural States where there may be small schools.

While the distinguished Presiding Officer has metropolitan areas in her State, she also has very rural areas. Schools in rural areas may not be able to hire the top math teacher, the top language teacher, or the top science teacher even though all these may be needed, but three or four of them together can do so if they are connected in such a way that they can utilize this.

We need to address legislative recommendations outlined in the Copyright Office’s report to ensure our laws permit the appropriate use of copyrighted works in valid distance learning activities. I know Senator Hatch shares my goal for the schools in this country, particularly in rural areas. We can use this technology to maximize the educational experiences of our children.

It is an important area for the Judiciary Committee to examine. Not everybody comes from large schools. I had about 30 in my high school graduating class. Interestingly, every 4 years, all 500 of those 30 students show up at my door saying they were a high school classmate; could they please have a ticket to the Presidential inaugural.

We have the Madrid Protocol Implementation Act. I introduced legislation in the last two Congresses to help American businesses, and especially small and medium-sized companies, protect their trademarks as they go into international markets. The legislation would do so by conforming American trademark application procedures to the terms of the Madrid protocol.

The Clinton administration transmitted the protocol to the Senate for its advise and consent last year. I regret we did not work on it promptly. I hope the new Congress will agree that action because ratification by the United States of this treaty would help create a one-stop international trademark registration process, an enormous benefit for American businesses.

We have amendments method patents. The PTO has been subject to criticism for granting patents for obvious routines which implement existing business methods. The patent reform law that Senator Hatch and I worked out in the last Congress addressed one aspect of this matter: The prior user defense at least protects those who previously practiced that particular art. We should hold a hearing and engage the PTO in a dialog about this important issue to find out what you do with initial patents.

Frankly, I find patenting electronic business practices not that far removed from the situation where two competing hardware stores in the spring put the seeds, the Rototillers, and whatnot out front and in the winter put the snowblowers out front. Should one be allowed to patent that process so in the summer its competitor would have to have snowblowers out front and could not put out lawn items? I think not. That is what we are looking at, except now in a digital age.

The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development criticized the PTO for granting overly broad biotechnology patent protections. This area, as well as the international protection of patent rights, warrants examination and careful monitoring.

Then we have the issue of rural satellite television and Internet service. It is important to the State of Vermont. It is important to every rural community. It is certainly important to mine. I live in a house where I cannot get any television. I used to joke that I would get one and a quarter. I do not even get the quarter anymore. I cannot get anything, but I can if I have satellite television, and I can get my Internet service the same way. Senator Hatch and I worked together to address this issue in the major Satellite Home Viewers Law passed last Congress.

We authorized a rural loan guarantee program to help facilitate deployment in rural areas. That law included a priority for loans that offered financing for high-speed Internet access. That is a great tool in eliminating the digital divide between urban and rural America.

So we want to make sure that gets done and done right. The job of this Congress is to ensure that the administration gets the job done so that those goals are met and the programs we have established are fully implemented.

The ninth circuit’s ruling in the Napster case on Monday highlights the tensions between new online tools and copyright protection and intellectual property rights. In the long-term, where it counts the most, both sides—copyright holders and advocates for advances in new technology—can find victories in this ruling.

Nothing short of stopping the genius of a Shaw Fanning or those who come up with new online technologies like Napster.

While Napster customers may not initially see it that way, the availability of new music and other creative works—and its contributions to the vibrancy of our culture and in fueling our economy—depends on clearly understood and adequately enforced copyright protection. The Court of Appeals has sent the case back to the district level. We need to ensure that the creators are protected and that the online marketplace is just that, and not a free-for-all.

The exponential growth of Napster has proven that the Internet works and distributes music. This case is a warning that copyrights may not be ignored when new online services are deployed. The Internet can and must serve the needs not only of Internet users and innovators of new technologies, but also of artists, songwriters, performers and copyright holders. The Judiciary Committee should examine this issue closely to ensure that our laws are working well to meet all these needs.

Last Congress I introduced the Drug Competition Act of 2000, S. 2993, to give the Justice Department and the FTC the information they need to prevent anticompetitive practices which delay the availability of low-cost generic prescription drugs. I intend to reintroduce this bill soon and work with my colleagues to enact it this year to help assure that the availability of lower cost prescription drugs.

I noted upon passage of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act in 1998 that there was not enough time before the end of that Congress to give due consideration to the issue of database protection, and that I hoped the Senate Judiciary Committee would hold hearings and consider database protection legislation. Despite the passage of time, the Judiciary Committee has not yet held hearings on this issue.

I support legal protection against commercial misappropriation of collections of information, but am sensitive to the concerns raised by the libraries, certain educational institutions, and the scientific community. This is a complex and important matter that I look forward to considering in this Congress.

Product identification codes provide a means for manufacturers to track their goods, which can be important to protect consumers in case of defective, tainted, or harmful products and to implement product recalls. Defacing, removing, or tampering with product identification codes can thwart these tracking efforts, with potential safety consequences for American consumers. We should examine the scope of, and legislative solutions to remedy, this problem.

Senator HATCH and I worked together to pass cybersquatting legislation in the last Congress to protect registered trademarks online. This is an issue that has concerned me since the Congress passed the Federal Trademark Dilution Act of 1995, when I expressed my hope that the new law would "help stem the use of deceptive Internet addresses taken by those who are choosing marks that are associated with the products and reputations of others." (CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, December 29, 1995, page S19312.)

The Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (I-CANN) has recently added new top-level domain names and is negotiating contracts with the new registries. Senator HATCH and I followed these developments closely and together wrote to then Secretary of Commerce Norman Mineta on December 15, 2000, for the Commerce Department’s assurances that the introduction of the new TLDs be achieved in a manner that minimizes the abuses of trademark rights. The Judiciary Committee has an important oversight role to play in this area.

We also will need to pay careful attention to the increasing consolidation in the airline, telecommunications, petroleum, electric, agriculture, and other sectors of the economy to ensure that consumers are protected from anticompetitive practices. The Judiciary Committee has already held one hearing on airline consolidation in this Congress and I stand ready to work with my colleagues on legislation to address competition problems.

I have already joined with the Democratic leader and several of my colleagues on the Securing a Future for Independent Agriculture Act, S. 20, to address the growing serious problem of consolidation in the agriculture processing sector. In addition, we need to carefully monitor international efforts to harmonize competition law to ensure that American companies and consumers are fairly treated and that our antitrust policies are not weakened.

This bill represents a good start on the work before the Senate Judiciary Committee to update American intellectual property law to ensure that it serves to advance and protect American interests both here and abroad.

The list of additional copyright, patent, and trademark issues that require our attention shows that we have a lot more work to do.

EXHIBIT 1

REGISTER OF COPYRIGHTS, LIBRARY OF CONGRESS, WASHINGTON, DC, February 12, 2001.

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY, U.S. Senate, Committee on the Judiciary, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR LEAHY: I understand that you will be introducing legislation in this Congress that will incorporate the last year’s proposed Copyright Technical Corrections Act of 2000, H.R. 5106. The Copyright Office proposed the technical corrections that were included in H.R. 5106 to address some minor drafting errors in the Intellectual Property and Communications Omnibus Bill that corrected some other technical discrepancies in Title 17. None of these proposed corrections are substantive.

I believe that it is important that the provisions of Title 17 be clear, and therefore I thank you for your leadership on this legislation and hope that you will be successful in obtaining its passage.

Sincerely, MARYBETH PIETERS, Register of Copyrights.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah has 15 minutes 18 seconds.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, I will tell everybody I do not intend to use that whole time. I will use part of it.

THE NINTH CIRCUIT DECISION IN THE NAPSTER CASE

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, I would like to take a few moments while we are on the subject of copyright law to address the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals’ long- awaited decision in the Napster case. I have been considering the opinion for the last few days, and it may be some time before all of us grasp its full implications. I believe the Judiciary Committee will need to hold hearings on the decision’s possible implications and to get an update on developments in the online music market. I will consult with my ranking member and other interested parties, and will likely look into the matter in the coming weeks.

As I have considered the case over the last couple of days, I have been troubled by the possible practical problems that may arise from this decision. I am troubled as a strong supporter and prime author of much of our copyright law and intellectual property rights.

By ordering the lower court to impose a preliminary injunction—before a trial on the merits, and on a record that is expeditiously developed in this service that had developed a community of over 50 million music fans, it could have the effect of shutting down Napster entirely, depriving more than 50 million consumers access to a music service they have enjoyed. The Napster community represents a huge consumer demand for the kind of online music services Napster, rightly or wrongly, has offered and, to date, the major record labels have been unable to satisfy. Now, I understand that the labels are trying to get their labels’ content online, and I have seen some projects beginning recently. I have been promised consumer roll-outs this year. But these offerings have been slow in coming and have not been broadly deployed as of yet. I hope deployment will be speeded up to meet the unsatisfied demand that may be caused by interruptions in Napster service as the litigation continues through trial on the merits and appeals.

I am long time advocate of strong intellectual property laws. There is something in our legal system called copyright law and it is obeying copyright is a sound one. I believe that artists Must be compensated for their creativity. And I believe that Napster as it currently operates, threatens this principle. I authored Digital Millennium Copyright Act, which has ensured that as a general matter, copyright law should apply to the Internet. I am proud of my work in furtherance of that Act. I have mentioned Senator LEAHY in particular, and there others as well.

Yet, I also believe that the compensation principle underlying copyright can coexist—and has in fact coexisted— with society’s evolving technologies for generations. And, in each case this coexistence has benefited both copyright owners and the consumer, in what you might call an expansion of the pie, in other words.

So let’s turn to the present controversy. It might be helpful to review some facts. In the span of about one and a half years, Napster has seen its client software downloaded more than 62 million times. Over 8 million people a day log onto the Napster service. At any one time there may be as many as 1.7 million people simultaneously using the service. It is, quite simply, a virtual community of unprecedented reach and scale. It is the most popular application in the history of the Internet, and I have to say, in the history of music.

It is also free and, unfortunately, according to the court, it is probably facilitating copyright infringement. The major labels, which account for over 80 percent of the CD’s sold in this country, is rightly shaken by the Napster phenomenon. Although the industry saw its sales increase by 4.4 percent in the year 2000, it believes it would have sold more CD’s had it not been for Napster. And the district court and Court of Appeals agreed with them. The labels have, as is their right under the law—many of them—pursued legal redress through out judicial system. Were I in their shoes, I question whether I would have taken a different course of action.

Now the parties have brought their dispute before this committee. The erosion of the copyright laws might he the frightening outcome.

I am particularly troubled because, if the popular Napster service, which has a relationship with one of the major record companies, Bertelsmann, is shut down, and no licensed online services exist to fill this consumer demand, I fear that this consumer demand will be
I think working together in the marketplace cooperatively will lead to the best result for all parties, the record labels, the online music services, the artists and the music fans. I hope the focus will be on the latter two. After all, without artists, there is nothing to sell, and without the fans, there is no one to convey it to. I think keeping the focus on the artists and the audience can help the technologists and the copyright industries find a way for all to flourish. And I hope this opportunity is taken before it is lost. I hope this opportunity is taken before it is lost. I wanted to make these remarks on the floor, and I hope we can resolve these problems in a way that benefits artists, consumers, publishers, and others who are interested in this matter. I think if we get together and work this out, it will be in the best interests of everybody.

I am prepared to yield my time.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I yield whatever time remains.

Mr. CRUZ. I yield my time as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMPSON). The bill having been read for the third time, the question is, Shall the bill pass? The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. CRUZ. I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Kentucky (Mr. BUNNING) would vote "yea."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 98, nays 0, as follows:

(b) ADDITIONAL TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.—The Trademark Act of 1946 is further amended as follows:
   (1) Section 1d(1)(1) (15 U.S.C. 1051(d)(1)) is amended in the first sentence by striking ‘‘specifying the date of the applicant’s first use’’ and all that follows through the end of the sentence by inserting ‘‘specifying the date of the applicant’s first use of the mark in commerce and those goods or services specified in the notice of use or in connection with which the mark is used in commerce’’
   (2) Section 1e(1) (15 U.S.C. 1051(e)) is amended to read as follows—
      (i) if the registrant is not domiciled in the United States and the applicant may designate, by a document filed in the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the name and address of a person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in proceedings affecting the mark, such notice or process may be served upon the person so designated by leaving with that person or mailing to that person a copy thereof at the address specified in the last designation so filed. If the person so designated cannot be found at the address given in the last designation, or if the registrant does not designate by a document filed in the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the name and address of a person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in proceedings affecting the mark, such notices or process may be served upon the person so designated by leaving with that person or mailing to that person a copy thereof at the address specified in the last designation so filed.
   (ii) if the registrant is domiciled in the United States the registrant may designate, by a document filed in the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the name and address of a person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in proceedings affecting the mark, such notices or process may be served upon the person so designated by leaving with that person or mailing to that person a copy thereof at the address specified in the last designation so filed. If the person so designated cannot be found at the address given in the last designation, or if the registrant does not designate by a document filed in the United States Patent and Trademark Office, the name and address of a person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in proceedings affecting the mark, such notices or process may be served upon the person so designated by leaving with that person or mailing to that person a copy thereof at the address specified in the last designation so filed. and Trademark Office, the record shall be prima facie evidence of execution.

“(4) An assignment shall be void against any subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration with notice, in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner.

“(b) An assignee not domiciled in the United States may designate by a document filed with the United States Patent and Trademark Office the name and address of a person resident in the United States on whom may be served notices or process in proceedings affecting the mark. Such notices or process may be served upon the person so designated by leaving with that person or mailing to that person a copy thereof at the address specified in the last designation so filed. If the person so designated cannot be found at the address given in the last designation, or if the assignee does not designate any person in such a document, any person resident in the United States may designate by a document filed in the United States Patent and Trademark Office within 3 months after the close of the assignment or prior to the subsequent purchase.

“(5) The United States Patent and Trademark Office shall maintain a record of information with respect to a mark, in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner.

“(b) The item relating to section 105 of the table of contents for chapter 9 is amended by striking ‘licensure’ and inserting ‘licensing’.

“SEC. 12. OTHER COPYRIGHT RELATED TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS.

(a) AMENDMENT TO TITLE 18.—Section 2319(e)(2) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking ‘107 through 120’ and inserting ‘107 through 122’.

(b) STANDARD REFERENCE DATA.—(1) Section 105(i) of Public Law 94–553 is amended by striking ‘section 290(e) of title 15’ and inserting ‘section 6 of the Standard Reference Data Act (15 U.S.C. 290e)’.

(2) Section 6(a) of the Standard Reference Data Act (15 U.S.C. 290e) is amended by striking ‘Notwithstanding” and all that follows through ‘United States Code,’ and inserting ‘Notwithstanding the limitations under section 105 of title 17, United States Code.’.

The PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for up to 10 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL MISSILE DEFENSE SYSTEM

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I take this time to respond to those who are suggesting we put off, or even cancel, the deployment of a national missile defense system.

One reason the critics of the program are giving for delay is the alleged opposition of our allies, particularly those in Europe. Earlier this month at the Munich Conference on International Security, Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld made a forceful case for deployment of a national ballistic missile defense. He explained the rationale for our missile defense program, and he also made it clear that this administration intends to deploy such a system as soon as possible.

He told those attending the conference that deploying a missile defense system was a moral issue because ‘no U.S. President can responsibly say his defense policy is calculated and designed to leave the American people and our allies undefended against threats that are known to exist.’

Former Secretary of State Kissinger, who negotiated the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, also spoke at the conference. He said a U.S. President cannot allow a situation in which ‘extinction of civilized life is one’s only strategy.’

The response from our European allies was very encouraging. For months, critics have been saying that our allies would oppose our plans for strategic missile defenses and would never go along with them. But the Secretary General of NATO, George Robertson, said:
Now the Europeans have to accept that the Americans really intend to go ahead. . . . Now that the question of ‘whether’ it’s going to happen has been settled, I want an engagement inside NATO between the Americans and other allies about the ‘how’ and the ‘when.’

With respect to the threat, Secretary General Robertson said:

The interesting point is that there is now a recognition by leaders—American, European, and even Russian—that there is a new threat from the proliferation of ballistic missiles that has got to be dealt with. The Americans have said how they’re going to deal with it. The Europeans are being offered a chance to share in that.

Robertson also added:

The concept of mutually assured destruction is obsolete. The old equation no longer works out: Russia and the United States in a balance of terror. Now there are groups and states acquiring missile technology and warheads with great facility. We are living in a dangerous new world.

Germany’s views are also changing. Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder, addressing the parliament in Berlin, wavered in his own diplomacy by members, said recently, ‘We should be under no illusions that there will be no difference of opinion with the new American leadership under President George W. Bush. First and foremost, about the planned National Missile Defense program but about trade policy issues. Differences over NMD are not the decisive factor in the German-American relationship.’

German Foreign Minister Fischer said that Germany’s views are also changing. ‘A national decision for the United States.’ In Moscow this week, he said, ‘in the end, the Russians are going to accept it somehow.’

Here in Washington last week, Britain’s Foreign Secretary said, ‘On the question of what happens if national missile defense proceeds; if it means the U.S., feels more secure and therefore feels more able to assert itself in international areas of concern to us, we will not look at it as a new threat to security.’ And the Prime Minister of Canada, who just a few months ago had joined Russian President Putin in calling for preservation of the ABM Treaty, said last week after consulting with President Bush, ‘Perhaps we are in a different era.’

The Australian Foreign Minister noted last week that until now.

A lot of the debate has been directed at the United States. I frankly think an awful lot of the debate should instead be directed not only toward those countries that have got or are developing these missile systems but the countries that have been transferring that missile technology to others. . . . If there were no missiles, there would be no need for a ballistic missile attack. The best ally is a strong one, and the actions of the Bush administration are an overdue reassurance that the United States will indeed be a strong alliance partner. . . .

Dr. Javier Solana of Spain, former Secretary-General of NATO and now the director of foreign policy for the European Union, said ‘The United States has the right to deploy’ an NMD system. Of the ABM Treaty, the so-called ‘cornerstone of strategic stability,’ Dr. Solana said, ‘It is not the Bible.’

The words we now hear from our European and other important allies are signaling changed attitudes. I think they have been influenced by the Bush administration’s willingness to confront the NMD issue squarely, to consult fully with our allies, and to make clear a determination to protect this nation from a limited ballistic missile attack. The best ally is a strong one, and the actions of the Bush administration are an overdue reassurance that the United States will indeed be a strong alliance partner.

The new American government has welcomed our NMD plans. France still has not embraced the concept, and Russia and China continue their opposition. But this shouldn’t change our plans to deploy missile defenses. Our action threatens no nation, although it will create an obstacle for those who would threaten the U.S. Those who mean us no harm have nothing to fear from this purely defensive system; those who do, that we lack intelligence to detect; the United States will no longer commit itself to continuing vulnerability.

Another reason for proceeding as soon as possible to deploy missile defenses is that last week highlighted in testimony presented to the Senate by the Director of Central Intelligence, George Tenet. He said, ‘we cannot underestimate the catalytic role that foreign assistance has played in enabling missile and WMD programs, shortening the development times, and aiding production.’ He noted that it is increasingly difficult to predict those timelines, saying ‘The missile and WMD proliferation picture is changing in ways that make it harder to monitor and control, increasing the risks of substantial surprise.’ Director Tenet went on to say, ‘It is that foreign assistance piece that you have to have that allows us to understand, and sometimes you get it and sometimes you don’t.’ Because of the difficulty monitoring foreign assistance, Director Tenet added that ‘these time lines all become illusory.’

He also noted a mistake to think of nations who aspire to obtain missiles as technologically unsophisticated: ‘We are not talking about unsophisticated countries. When you talk about Iraq and Iran, people need to understand that it’s all about capabilities with sophisticated capabilities, sophisticated technology, digital communications.’

And the danger does not stop when one of these nations acquires technology already available that is highly transferable. Mr. Tenet warned about what he termed ‘secondary proliferation’:

There is also great potential for secondary proliferation, for maturing state-sponsored programs such as those in Pakistan, Iran, and India. Add to this group the private companies, scientists and engineers in Russia, China and India who may be increasing their involvement in these countries’ missile development projects by offering advantage of weak or unenforceable national export controls and the growing availability of technologies. These trends have continued, and in some cases have accelerated over the past year.

The Director of Central Intelligence added, ‘So you know, the kind of technology that we see from big states to smaller states and then the inclination of those people who do the secondary proliferation I think is what’s most worrisome to me.’

Some who oppose missile defense pointed to future initiatives and political change as evidence that the threat is diminishing. For example, they point to recent efforts by North Korea’s leader Kim Jong II to present a more open face to the world.

Pyongyang’s bold diplomatic outreach to the international community and engagement with South Korea reflect a significant change in strategy. The strategy is designed to assure the continued survival of Kim Jong II by ending Pyongyang’s political isolation and fixing the North’s faltering economy by attracting more aid. We do not know how far Kim Jong II is in open communications. I can report to you that we have not yet seen a significant diminution of the threat from North to American and South Korean interests.

Pyongyang still believes that a strong military, capable of projecting power in the region, is an essential element of national power. The first step of the so-called ‘strategic airlift’ requires massive investment in the armed forces, even at the expense of other national objectives . . . [The North Korean military] appears, for now, to have halted its near decade-long slide in military capabilities. In addition to the North’s longer-range missile threat to us, Pyongyang is also expanding its short- and medium-range missile inventory, putting our allies at risk.

Similar claims about diminishing threats have been made about Iran. A year ago, those who oppose missile defense were suggesting that because of the election of reform-minded leaders we need no longer worry about that country obtaining more capable missiles. Here is what the Director of Central Intelligence had to say about Iran in testimony to the Senate:

Iran has one of the largest and most capable ballistic missile programs in the Middle East. It’s public statements suggest that it plans to develop longer-range rockets for use in space-launch program. But Tehran could follow the North Korean pattern and test an ICBM capable of delivering a light payload to the United States in the near future.

Events in the past year have been encouraging for positive change in Iran. . . . "Prospects for near-term political reform in the near term are fading. Opponents of reform have not only muzzled the open press, they have also arrested prominent activists and billeted the legislature’s president for the summer, supreme leader Khameini ordered the new legislature not to ease press restrictions, a key reformist pursuit, that signaled no change in how he would allow the legislature to operate."

I hope that reformers do make gains in Iran, although senior CIA officials have testified that Iranian "reformers"—such as President Khatami—are enthusiastic about acquiring ballistic missiles. I hope Iran may indeed be a thriving democracy. But that day has not arrived, and our security policy cannot be based on hope.
We need missile defense not just because of the capabilities of particular countries, but because of the larger problem: The proliferation of missile technology has created a world in which we can no longer afford to leave ourselves open to an entire class of weapons. Remaining vulnerable only guarantees that some nation will seize upon this vulnerability and take the United States and our allies by surprise.

The Bush administration’s resolve to deploy missile defenses is an essential first step in modernizing our national security assets. Because of the neglect our missile defense program has suffered, the last eight years, we now face a threat against which we will have no defense for several years. Because of decisions made by the previous administration, the only long-range missile defense we have in the near-term will be the ground-based system planned for initial deployment in Alaska. Additional resources must be provided so that other technologies and basing modes can be developed and tested. But now, we must move forward as fast as we can with the technology we have today. We must not prolong our vulnerability by waiting for newer and better technology. Therefore, it is important that the administration immediately begin construction of the NMD radar at Shemya, AK. Construction of the national missile defense radar at Shemya, AK, should begin immediately.

Construction of this radar was to have begun this May, but last September President Clinton postponed the decision to proceed, citing delays with other elements of the system and a lack of progress in convincing Russia to modernize the ABM Treaty to permit NMD deployment. However, construction of the Shemya radar is urgent. The so-called “long-lead” item in deployment of the NMD system; it is the step that takes the longest and must begin the soonest. Delaying construction of the NMD radar means delaying deployment of the entire system, and we cannot afford more unnecessary delays in this program.

There is still time to recover from the delays caused by President Clinton’s postponement last fall. The radar design is complete, the funds have been appropriated, and any missile defense system we build will have to begin with an X-band radar at Shemya. So we should get on with it.

Beginning construction of the Shemya radar will be a demonstration of the determination of our government to fulfill its first constitutional duty, which is to provide for the security of our Nation. It will send an unmistakable signal to all—friend or potential foe—that the United States will not remain vulnerable any longer to those who threaten us with ballistic missiles.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, before I propose a unanimous consent request, I want to make some brief comments on the bill that I expect to call up.

HONORING PAUL D. COVERDELL

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, many of us in the Senate still greatly miss our distinguished and honorable colleague from Georgia, Paul Coverdell. There are not many days that go by that I do not think about him when I am working in this Chamber and in my office. We really have been grieving and thinking an awful lot about him over the months since his unfortunate early passing away as a result of his problems last year when he had a cerebral hemorrhage.

He was an extraordinary public servant. We all wanted to find a way to express our sorrow and to appropriately honor him. In that vein, I wanted to make sure we did not just have a rush to judgment of what we might try to do to honor him—doing it in several little ways but never an appropriate way.

After discussion on both sides of the aisle and getting approval of the Democratic leader, I asked four of our colleagues to serve as an informal task force to come up with an appropriate way to honor Senator Coverdell. These four Senators, two from each side of the aisle, were good friends and worked closely with Paul. They had a personal interest in it.

I thank Senator Gramm of Texas, Senator DeWine of Ohio, Senator Harry Reid of Nevada, and Senator Zell Miller of Georgia for taking the time to think about this, meeting together and coming up with ideas of how to appropriately honor Senator Coverdell.

That is how this bill came into being. A lot of ideas were considered. They were discussed with Senator Coverdell’s former staff members, family, particularly his wife, and they came up with the suggestion that is included in this bill.

I thank Senator Daschle and Senator Reid for being willing to be involved in this process. As a result of their efforts, we now have a bill.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—A BILL HONORING PAUL D. COVERDELL

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of a bill at the desk which honors Senator Paul D. Coverdell by naming the Peace Corps headquarters after our former colleague. I further ask unanimous consent that the bill be read the third time, passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. (Mr. Cochran). Is there objection?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator reserves the right to object.

Mr. REID. As the majority leader has indicated, a significant amount of time has been spent on this matter. I remember as if it was yesterday Senator Lott coming on the floor and making the announcement. It was a sad day in the history of this Senate, in the history of the State of Georgia, and certainly for our country.

Those of us who knew Senator Coverdell know how closely he was associated with the majority leader and how he loved this institution. What the leader has said is very true. I worked with Senator Millard, Senator Gramm, and Senator DeWine to come up with something that is appropriate. We think we have done that.

I do, though, have to object for one of the other Members of the Senate. It is something which is procedural in nature. I am confident we can work this out. I ask that the leader be understanding and that this matter be brought up after we get back from our vote. I believe it. I am confident in that period of time we will work this out.

I talked with Senator Gramm and Senator Miller, and we agreed to do it once more rather than the piecemeal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada objects.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, while I feel the objection is certainly unfortunate, I know that Senator Reid wants to find a way to work through the problem that may exist. I will be glad to work with him and Senator Miller.

Senator Miller has been very generous with his time and very committed to this program and with him a couple of times—just yesterday—to try to work through this. It is my expectation we will be able to clear this bill and take it up for consideration. It really is noncontroversial, and it should be passed by unanimous consent.

I hope Members who do have a problem, or if there is a procedural problem, will find a way to work through it so we can honor a respected Member. I invite Senator Reid and any others to comment on the process, and if they have any remedy they can suggest, I am anxious to hear from them. I know effort is already underway to do that, and I know they will continue.

It will be my intent to file cloture on this matter if it is necessary prior to the recess of the Senate this week. I hope and expect we will not have to do this, but because of the requirements of S. Res. 8, if I have to file cloture, I will have to wait the requisite 12 hours now before filing the cloture on an amendable item, so I will have to begin the process.

Rather than leave it in that vein, I prefer we talk and we work this out and find a way to get it cleared and agreed to tomorrow before we leave for the Presidents’ Day recess.

Mr. REID. I appreciate the leader’s comments. I would appreciate very much the leader not filing cloture. We do not need that or want that on this piece of legislation.
MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now be in a period for morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMENDING SENATOR COCHRAN

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I commend my colleague, the Presiding Officer, Senator Cochran, for the remarks he made a few moments ago on the floor of the Senate with regard to the defense budget, particularly missile defense. He has been very thoughtful in this area. He has been involved for a number of years.

He serves as head of a bipartisan group of Senators who have been to Russia on behalf of the Senate, who have met with representatives from the government of the Republic of Russia, when they have been in the United States.

To put this in a positive way and note that President Bush intends to go forward with it when it is ready to be deployed and that we be prepared to have a serious discussion about it is fine, but I thank him for the way he has been involved in this issue and express my confidence that as we move forward on this very important defense item for our future, I know he will be involved in that.

I feel very good that President Bush and Secretary of Defense Rumsfeld will approach this matter in an appropriate way, with our defense budget funding also in the way it is handled with our allies. I look forward to working together in the future on this important issue.

I yield the floor.

BLACK HISTORY MONTH

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I am very pleased to join in commemorating African-American History Month and particularly this year’s theme, “Creating and Defining the African-American Community: Family, Church, Politics and Culture.”

Since 1926, the month of February has served as a time for our citizens to recognize and applaud the vast contributions made by African-Americans to the founding and building of this great Nation. The vision of the noted author and scholar, Dr. Carter G. Woodson, lie behind this important annual celebration. As we note the theme of this year’s Black History Month celebration, it is important to recognize the challenges ahead for African-Americans in a new age.

From early days, the family has been the backbone of the African-American culture in our country. Through a strong and stable family structure, African-Americans found companionship, love, and an understanding of the suffering endured during oppressive periods in history. The African-American family has served to strengthen and encourage young African-Americans to forge ahead to break barriers and rise to new heights within American culture.

The unemployment rate for African-Americans has fallen from 14.2 percent in 1992 to 8.3 percent in 1999, the lowest annual level on record. The median household income of African-Americans is up 15.1 percent since 1993, from $22,034 in 1993 to $25,351 in 1998. Real wages of African-Americans have risen rapidly in the past two years, up about 5.8 percent for men and 6.2 percent for women since 1996.

The African-American poverty rate has dropped from 33.1 percent in 1993 to 26.1 percent in 1998, the lowest level ever recorded and the largest five-year drop in more than twenty-five years. Since 1993, the child poverty rate among African-Americans dropped from 46.1 percent to 36.7 percent in 1998. While still too large, this represents the largest five-year drop on record. It is critical that we in Congress continue to work to enact legislation that will further strengthen African-American families and enable these rates to continue to decrease at record levels.

Religion, like family, has played a vital role in African-American life in this country, with the Black Church a substantial and pervasive presence. Throughout the early period of our Nation’s development, African-Americans established their own religious institutions. Although these institutions were not always formally recognized, it should be noted that the African Methodist Episcopal Church was founded in 1787, followed closely by the African Baptist Church in 1788. Throughout our Nation’s history, the Black Church has served as both a stabilizing influence and as a catalyst for needed change.

During slavery, the African-American Church was a place of spiritual sanctuary and community. After Blacks were freed, the Church remained a line of defense and comfort against racism. The Black Church served as an agency of social reorientation and reconstruction, providing reeducation for the values of marriage, family, morality, and spirituality in the face of the corrosive effects of discrimination.

The Black Church became the center for economic cooperation, pooling resources to buy churches, building mutual aid societies which provided social services, purchasing and helping resettle enslaved Africans, and establishing businesses. From its earliest days as an invisible spiritual community, the Black Church supported social change and struggle, providing leaders and leadership at various points in the struggle against racism and discrimination.

The civil rights movement of the 1960s provided the catalyst for African-Americans to move into the political arena. Three major factors encouraged the beginning of this new movement for civil rights. First, many African-Americans served with honor in World War II, as they had in many wars since the American revolution. However, in this instance, African-Americans led the way, pointed to the records of these veterans to show the injustice of racial discrimination against patriots. Second, more and more African-Americans in the North had made economic gains, increased their education, and registered to vote. Third, the NAACP had attracted many new members and received increased financial support from all citizens.

In addition, a young group of energetic lawyers, including Thurgood Marshall, of Baltimore, Maryland, used the legal system to bring about important changes in the lives of African-Americans, while Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., appealed to the conscience of all citizens. When Congress passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, Clarence Mitchell, Jr., of Maryland, played a critical part in steering this legislation through Congress.

African-Americans began to assume more influential roles in the Federal Government as a result of the civil rights movement, a development which benefitted the entire Nation. In 1966, Dr. Robert C. Weaver became the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the first Black Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. In 1967, Thurgood Marshall became the first Black Justice on the Supreme Court.

In 1969, Shirley Chisholm of New York became the first Black woman to serve in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Progress continued in the next three decades. In 1976, Patricia Harris became the first Black woman Cabinet Member, and in 1977, when Clifford Alexander was confirmed as the first Black Secretary of the Army. In 1989, Douglas Wilder of Virginia became the first elected African-American Governor in the Nation. In 1992, Carol Moseley Braun became the first African-American female U.S. Senator. In 1993, Ron Brown became the first African-American Secretary of Commerce, Jesse Brown became the first African-American Secretary of the Veterans Administration, and Hazel O’Leary became the first Black Secretary of Energy. In 1997, Rodney Slater became the first African-American Secretary of Transportation and Alexis Herman became the first African-American Secretary of Labor. In 2001, Roderick Paige became the first African-American Secretary of Education and General Colin Powell, in addition to being the first African-American Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, became the first U.S. Secretary of State.

African-Americans have played significant roles in influencing and changing American life and culture. Through such fields as arts and entertainment, the military, politics and civil rights. African-Americans have been key to the progress and prosperity of our Nation. Blacks have contributed to the artistic and literary heritage of America from the early years to the present. They have influenced the field of music as conductors, composers, and cellists, and played a seminal role in the emergence of blues, jazz, gospel, and rhythm and blues.

Although African-Americans owned and published newspapers in the 19th century, their achievements in the communications industry have been mostly noted in the 20th century, when they produced and contributed to magazines, newspapers, and television and radio news and talk shows in unprecedented numbers. There are now hundreds of Black-owned radio stations throughout the country. While integrated into professional sports relatively recently, African-American athletes have reached the highest levels of accomplishment. They also comprise some of the finest athletes representing the United States in the Olympic Games.

As we move into the new Millennium, we look forward to the continued growth and prosperity of African-American citizens. Our Nation’s history is replete with the contributions of African-Americans. Black History Month affords all Americans an opportunity to celebrate the great achievements of African-Americans, to celebrate how far this Nation has come, and to remind us of how far we have to go.

DR. BENJAMIN ELIJAH MAYS

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I rise today to bring the country’s attention to one of its most gifted educators, civil rights leaders and theologians, the late Dr. Benjamin Elijah Mays, and to again encourage the President to award Dr. Mays a Presidential Medal of Freedom. Dr. Mays lived an extraordinary life that began in a very unextraordinary setting. The son of slaves, Dr. Mays grew up in the rural community of Epworth, South Carolina, where poverty and racism were everyday realities and the church was sometimes the only solace to be found. Yet, as the title of Dr. Mays’ autobiography, “Born to Rebel” reveals, he was never content to accept the status quo. He looked to education as the key to his own success, and later the key to sweeping social change.

After working his way through South Carolina College, Bates College and a doctoral program at the University of Chicago, Dr. Mays worked as a teacher, an urban league representative and later dean of the School of Religion at Howard University here in Washington. Then, in 1940, he took the reins at Morehouse College and—to borrow a phrase—the rest was history. As President of Morehouse, Dr. Mays took an ailing institution and transformed it into one of America’s most vital academic centers and an epicenter for the growing civil rights movement. He was instrumental in the elimination of segregated public facilities in Atlanta and promoted the cause of nonviolence through peaceful student protests in a time often marred by racial violence. During his tenure, Dr. Mays and other influential 20th century leaders considered Dr. Mays a mentor and scores of students followed his footsteps by awarding him an honorary degree.

After retiring from Morehouse after 27 years, Dr. Mays did not fade from the spotlight—far from it. He served as president of the Atlanta Board of Education for 12 years, ensuring that new generations of children received the same quality education he had fought so hard to obtain back in turn-of-the-century South Carolina. Dr. Mays said it best in his autobiography: “Foremost among my many achievements, my most enduring has been my honest and forthright efforts to find the truth and proclaim it.” Now is the time for us to proclaim Dr. Benjamin Mays one of our nation’s most distinguished citizens by awarding him a posthumous Presidential Medal of Freedom.

ASYLUM AND DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, before leaving office, Attorney General Reno ordered the Board of Immigration Appeals to reconsider its decision to reject the asylum claim of a Guatemalan domestic violence victim. I applaud the former Attorney General for her actions in this case, entitled Matter of R.A., and I encourage the Bush Administration to continue with her efforts to provide a safe harbor for victims of severe domestic abuse.

The facts of the R.A. case are chilling. Ms. Rudi Alvarado Pena sought asylum after suffering from unthinkable abuse at the hands of her husband in her native Guatemala, abuse that ended only when she escaped to the United States in 1996. She said that her husband raped and pistol-whipped her, and beat her unconscious in front of her children. She said that law enforcement authorities in Guatemala told her that they would not protect her from violent crimes committed against her by her husband. And she believed that her husband would kill her if she returned to Guatemala.

The INS did not dispute what Ms. Pena said, and in 1996, an immigration judge determined that she was entitled to asylum. But in 1999, the Board of Immigration Appeals (“BIA”) reversed that decision on the grounds that even if everything Ms. Pena said were true, she did not qualify for asylum because victims of domestic abuse do not constitute “a special class of people” under existing law. This decision seemed to me and a number of other Senators and Representatives to be inconsistent with previous decisions extending asylum to victims of sexual abuse. I wrote Doris Meissner, then the Commissioner of the INS, in August 1999 to express my concerns about the case. I joined a group of Senators writing Attorney General Reno about this matter in November 1999, and raised those concerns again in letters to the Attorney General in February and September 2000.

Finally, I reiterated my concerns to Ms. Meissner in August 2000. The Justice Department released a proposed rule in December that would make it easier for women to base asylum petitions on gender-based persecution. Then-Attorney General Reno’s January 19 order stays the R.A. case until a final version of that rule is approved, at which time the BIA will reconsider the case in light of that rule. I urge the Bush Administration to approve a final rule that provides strong protections for victims of domestic violence and other forms of gender-based oppression. I urge the BIA to apply that rule in a way that provides the maximum protection for such women.

The United States should have—and I believe does have—a bipartisan commitment to refugees. I have been joined by Republicans such as Senators Breaux, Bayh and Judd in my attempts to draw attention to this case. And I am optimistic that the Bush Administration will share our concerns. No one wants to see a victim of domestic violence returned to face further abuse, especially if the government does not have the will or ability to protect her. Working together, and building on the foundation laid by Attorney General Reno, we can prevent that from happening.

TRIBUTE TO FORMER SENATOR ALAN CRANSTON

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I join many of my colleagues in paying tribute to former Senator Alan Cranston, who died on New Year’s Eve, 2000. Since I came to the Senate in 1965, I have had the honor of serving on the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, and my first 8 years on the committee were under the superb chairmanship of Senator Cranston. During our years, I came to know and appreciate his unbounded dedication to the veterans of this country, and his extraordinary record of leadership and commitment to our Nation throughout his 24 years of public service in the U.S. Senate.

Senator Cranston played an integral role in veterans affairs from his first days in the Senate, serving initially as Chairman of the Veterans’ Affairs Subcommittee of the then-Committee on Labor and Public Welfare. When that subcommittee became the full Committee on Veterans’ Affairs in 1971, he was a charter member of it. He became Chairman of the full Committee in 1977, was ranking member from 1978-1986, and then Chairman again in 1987, until he left the Senate in 1993.
Throughout his tenure, Senator Cranston demonstrated a devoted commitment to the men and women who risk their lives for the safety and welfare of our Nation. Although he opposed the war in Vietnam, he was a strong champion for the rights and benefits afforded those who served in it.

Cranston’s vision—to ensure that our country upheld its obligation to meet the post-service needs of veterans and their families—was the inspiration for the final process of legislation passed during his tenure. He showed his concern for disabled veterans and their families in many ways, including authoring support programs that provided for grants, cost-of-living increases in benefits, adaptive equipment, rehabilitation, and other services.

Senator Cranston’s record on issues related to the employment and education of veterans is unequalled. As early as 1970, he authored the Veterans’ Education and Training Amendments Act, which displayed his heartfelt concern for Vietnam-era veterans, and served as the foundation for other key initiatives over the years.

As a strong advocate for health care reform and an appreciative Senator Cranston’s efforts over the years to improve veterans’ health care through affirmative legislation. He brought national attention to the many needs of VA health care facilities, which resulted in increased oversight of the quality of their staffs, facilities, and services.

Senator Cranston’s patience in pursuit of his goals is legendary. For example, he introduced legislation in 1971 to establish a VA readjustment counseling program for Vietnam veterans. When it failed that year, he reintroduced it in the next Congress, and the next, and the next, never losing sight of his vision. Four Congresses later, in 1979, it was finally accepted by the Reagan administration. He also pushed for enactment of legislation which extended the eligibility period for readjustment counseling. In 1991, Senator Cranston authored legislation which allowed veterans of later conflicts, including the Persian Gulf War, Panama, Grenada, and Lebanon, to receive assistance at Vet Centers as well.

Another example of Senator Cranston’s persistence was his effort to provide an opportunity for veterans to contest VA decisions on claims for benefits. He began working on this issue in the mid-70’s and stayed with it through final enactment in 1988 of legislation which established a court to review veterans' claims. That court, now known as the U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims, stands as a legacy to Senator Cranston’s commitment to making sure that veterans are treated fairly by the government that they served.

The list of Senator Cranston’s achievements is long—for veterans, his home State of California, our country, and the world. Senator Cranston’s leadership went beyond the concerns of veterans. From nuclear disarmament to housing policy to education to civil rights, Senator Cranston fought to do the right thing, with energy and passion. For nearly a quarter of a century, he was a true champion for the less fortunate among our society.

Senator Cranston’s legacy is immense, and I know that his leadership, which continued after he left this Chamber, will be missed. I consider it a privilege to have had the opportunity to work side-by-side with him over the years. By continuing his fight for the people we represent and the ideals we were elected to uphold, I seek to carry on his mission.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an article about Senator Cranston by Thomas Tighe, a former Legislative Assistant, an early and stalwart advocate for preservation and judicious stewardship of the environment, an unyielding voice for a woman’s right to make reproductive health choices, and of course, a relentless pursuer of world peace and the abolition of nuclear weapons—upon which he continued to work passionately until the day he died.

Those efforts have made a tremendous positive difference in the lives of millions of people in this country and around the world.

For me, Alan Cranston’s standard of adhering to principle while acknowledging practical success remains a constant source of inspiration and motivation, as I am sure is true for the hundreds of others who worked on his staff over the course of 24 years. His was an example that one’s strongly held ideological and policy beliefs, whether labeled “liberal” or “conservative,” should not be confused with being overwhelmed by if it prevented meaningful progress. And he insisted upon honest and rigorous oversight of the government—so as to avoid defending on principle something indefensible in practice, thereby eroding support for the principle itself.

Once, while trying to describe an obstacle on Peace Corps matter, I made a flip reference to the “‘America Right or Wrong” crowd. He asked if I knew where that expression came from, which I did not. He said it was usually misunderstood and, in my case, misused, and told me that it was a wonderfully patriotic statement. He stared at me curiously, with a slight smile and with the presence of nearly 80 years of unimaginably rich experiences in life and politics, and said, “America, right or wrong. When it’s right, know it. When it’s wrong, make it right.”

It was a privilege to work for Alan Cranston, and to know that is what he tried to do.

VA LEADS THE NATION IN END-OF-LIFE CARE

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, the Department of Veterans Affairs has been quick to ensure that more needs to be done to deal with patients’ pain, and this has become an integral part of VA’s overall efforts to improve care at the end of life—for veterans and for all Americans. As ranking member of the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, I am enormously proud of VA’s efforts in pain management and end-of-life care. I suspect, however, that many of my colleagues are unaware of the work in this field.

We simply must recognize the lack of services and resources for people who are suffering with pain, especially those who need long-term institutional care and other alternatives, such as hospice care, for chronic conditions. The health care and related needs of Americans are very diverse. We must target problems and address them with creativity, with a variety of resources that can help different groups in different ways. Taking a look at the VA’s success in this area is a good place to start fixing the problem.

I therefore ask unanimous consent that a press release on VA’s pain management initiatives and a Washington Post article in this area be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

VA INITIATES PAIN MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Pain is one of the most common reasons people seek medical care, according to the American Academy of Pain Medicine and the American Pain Society. In fact, it is the primary symptom in more than 80 percent of all doctor visits and affects more than 50 million people. In January 1999, the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) took the lead in pain management by launching a nationwide effort to reduce pain and suffering for the 4.4 million veterans who use VA health care facilities.

VA AND PAIN MANAGEMENT

VA believes that no patient should suffer preventable pain. Doctors and nurses throughout VA’s 1,200 sites of medical care are required to treat pain as a “fifth vital sign,” meaning they should assess and record patient pain. They note the importance of four health-care basics—blood pressure, pulse, temperature and breathing rate. They ask patients to rate their pain on a scale of zero to 10, then consult with the patients about ways to deal with it.

“It changed how VA approached pain,” said Dr. Jane Tollett, national coordinator of VA pain management strategy. “We’re too often obsessed with finding out what’s going on at the molecular, cellular and pharmacological levels as opposed to asking: Is the person feeling better?” Measuring pain as a vital sign was part of the first step in the following comprehensive strategy to make pain management a routine part of veterans’ care.

Pain Assessment and Treatment: Procedures for early recognition of pain and prompt effective treatment began at all VA medical centers. VA pain management and protocol development efforts were set up, including ready access to resources such as pain specialist and multidisciplinary pain clinics. VA updated its Computerized Patient Record System (CPRS) to document a patient’s pain history. Patient and family education about pain management was included in patient treatment plans.

Evaluation of Outcomes and Quality of Pain Management: VA began to systematize outcomes and quality of pain management by developing patient satisfaction measures. Across the nation, VA set up quarterly data collection to evaluate: Was the patient assessed for pain using a 0-10 scale? Was there intervention if pain was reported as 4 or more? Was there a plan for pain care? Was the intervention evaluated for effectiveness?

Research: VA expanded research on management of acute and chronic pain, emphasizing conditions that are most prevalent among military veterans. There are nine pain research projects funded by VA. Research funded by the Health Services Research and Development Service focuses on identifying research priorities, producing scientific evidence for pain management protocols throughout VA and evaluating and monitoring the quality of care.

EDUCATION OF HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONALS

VA is assuring that clinical staff, such as physicians and nurses, have orientation and education on pain assessment and pain management. In collaboration with the Department of Defense and the community, VA is developing clinical guidelines for pain associated with surgery, cancer and chronic conditions.

Additionally, VA initiated an extensive education program for health care providers that includes orientation for new employees and professional trainees in internet sessions on “pharmacotherapy of acute and chronic pain,” satellite broadcasts and interactive sessions with VA health care facilities, guest lectures on topics like pain assessment and treatment of the demented, purchase and distribution of pain management videos, and a Web site (www.webmed.va.gov/intranet/pain).

VA also focuses on pain management education for medical students and health care professional trainees through VA’s affiliations with academic institutions. Among recent milestones:

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation last year awarded VA a grant of $855,056 to help train physicians in end-of-life care, including pain management.

The VA Office of Academic Affiliations recently awarded additional funding to nine VA medical facilities to support graduate education residences in anesthesiology pain management, including VA medical centers in Milwaukee, Wis.; Durham, N.C.; and Loma Linda, Calif., and the health care systems in North Texas, New Mexico, Puget Sound (Wash.), Palo Alto (Calif.), and North Florida—Northeast Georgia.

NATIONAL PAIN MANAGEMENT STRATEGY

The complexity of chronic pain management is often beyond the expertise of a single practitioner, especially for veterans whose pain problems are complicated by such things as homelessness, post-traumatic stress disorder and combat injuries. Additionally, pain management has been made an integral part of palliative and end-of-life care, the effective management of pain for all veterans cared for by VA requires a nationwide coordinated approach. To accomplish this, VA formed a team made up of representatives from all disciplines—anaesthesiology, nursing, psychiatry, surgery, oncology, pharmacology, gerontology and neurology.

Funded by an unrestricted educational grant, VA is producing a Web-based physician education program aimed at end-of-life issues and an online forum for VA pain management in which more than 200 clinicians actively participate.

In December 2000, a pain management and end-of-life conference is scheduled to showcase innovation and effective practices within VA, address specialized topics with expert faculty and solve systematic problems that cause confusion in pain management care. Additionally, VA will set up programs to support clinicians in settings that are remote from pain experts, centers or clinics.

“Untreated or undertreated pain takes its toll not just in monetary loss but also in the medical and physical suffering of veterans and their families. Pain can exacerbate feelings of distress, anxiety and depression. . . . When severe pain goes untreated and/or de- consider or attempt suicide. The message is clear: all those in pain have the right to systematic assessment and ongoing manage- ment of pain by health care professionals.”

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

IN MEMORIAM OF THE MEN AND WOMEN OF THE 14TH QUARTER-MASTER DETACHMENT WHO LOST THEIR LIVES IN OPER-ATION DESERT STORM

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I stand before you today to honor the tenth anniversary of a terrible tragedy that faced the men and women who serve in the United States Armed Forces. I speak about an attack carried out by Saddam Hussein that took the lives of brave men and women from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who were proudly serving their country as members of our armed services. We are indebted to those who made the ultimate sacrifice for our country during that conflict, and they will remain in our hearts and memories forever.

The 14th Quartermaster Detachment of Greensburg, PA, was mobilized and ordered to active duty on January 15, 1991 in support of the Persian Gulf crisis. On February 25, 1991, only days after the Desert Storm conflict began, the 14th Quartermaster Detachment suffered the greatest number of casualties of any allied unit during Operation Desert Storm. An Iraqi Scud missile destroyed the building where the unit was quarters and killed 508 soldiers and wounding 99. Of those casualties, 13 members of the 14th were killed and 43 were wounded. Desert Storm ended only hours after this tragedy.

To recognize the supreme sacrifice that these men and women undertook for our great nation, Major General Rodney D. Ruddock, Commander, 99th Regional Support Command, will hold an anniversary ceremony on February 25, 2001 to honor the 14th Quarter- master Detachment of Greensburg, PA. During this solemn event, we will honor, not only the men and women who lost their lives 10 years ago, but all the men and women who serve in the Armed Forces and selflessly put their lives on the line every day in order to preserve our nation’s freedom.

We, as Americans, will remain eternally grateful for the sacrifices and true courage that our men and women in uniform display on our behalf in serving this great nation.

It is at this time that I ask my Senate colleagues to join me in honoring the members of the 14th Quarter-master Detachment.
TRIBUTE TO COLONEL PAUL W. ARCARI, U.S. AIR FORCE, RETIRED

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Colonel Paul Arcari, United States Air Force, Retired—in recognition of his distinguished service to his country.

For nearly 46 years, first for 30 years in the Air Force, and later for The Retired Officers Association, Colonel Arcari has worked tirelessly for the retired personnel and their families. He has worked closely with, and has been a valuable resource for, the Senate Armed Services Committee as we enacted a wide range of much-needed improvements for our military personnel. His efforts in the areas of military compensation, retirement benefits, health care and fair cost-of-living adjustments, COLA, for retired personnel and their families, has been invaluable in improving long term retention of our armed forces. I am particularly gratified that during the past two years, in which I have been privileged to serve as Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I have been able to enact some of the most substantial quality-of-life enhancements for active, reserve, and retired service members and their families in decades. Colonel Arcari played an important role in this effort.

Colonel Arcari is a unique career of leadership and personal dedication to fostering readiness by protecting every service member's welfare. An inspiration and a continuing lesson to all who care about our men and women of our military. My best wishes go with him. Colonel Arcari, I salute you on behalf of all the men and women, past and present, who wear the uniform.

COAST GUARD CUTTER "WOODRUSH"

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the men and women who have served aboard the United States Coast Guard Cutter Woodrush, WLB 407, homeported in Sitka, in my own state of Alaska.

On March 2, 2001, the USCGC Woodrush will be decommissioned, departing for Baltimore, MD. There, her crew is to be transferred to the navy of the Republic of Ghana.

Although she is the youngest of the 39 seagoing buoy tenders constructed during World War II, the Woodrush has logged nearly 57 years of service to our nation.

She was built for less than $1 million in Duluth, Minnesota, and commissioned on September 22, 1944. For thirty-five years she sailed from Duluth, servicing aids to navigation, conducting search and rescue missions, and icebreaking on the Great Lakes.

In 1979, she began a major refit at the Coast Guard shipyard in Baltimore. She has been homeported in Sitka since leaving the shipyard in 1980. Woodrush's primary mission has been keeping aids to navigation in good condition. Her crew maintained 68 shore lights and 69 buoys throughout the 2,000 square-mile Southeast Alaska panhandle. The work of the Woodrush has been crucial to the safety of the thousands of tugboats, fishing vessels, ferries, pleasure boats and cruise ships that navigate those sometimes treacherous waters each year.

USCGC Woodrush also participated in several notable search and rescue missions. She was one of the first ships to arrive on the scene of the wreck of the Edmond Fitzgerald in 1975, when the ore freighter went down with all hands in a violent storm on Lake Superior. Her sonar located two large pieces of wreckage, and she served as a platform for the U.S. Navy's Controlled Underwater Recovery Vehicle, which found the sunken hull.

In 1980, Woodrush responded to the uncontrolled fire and eventual loss of the cruise ship Princendam off Graham Island, British Columbia. The efforts of Woodrush and her coast guard rescue units, led to the successful rescue of all passengers and crew, with no loss of life.

In August 1993, Woodrush assisted the 248-foot cruise ship MV Yorktown Clipper, after it ran aground. Woodrush crewmembers helped control the flooding and ensured that all 130 passengers were taken safely off the vessel.

Not all of the crew's adventures were at sea. In the summer of 1997, a 100-foot oil tanker from Woodrush helped extinguish a dangerous fire in the small community of Tenakee, Alaska. Their efforts helped keep the fire from spreading out of control in the 30-knot winds.

Protection of the environment is yet another of the Coast Guard's many missions. Over the years, Woodrush has contributed in many ways, including service as one of the numerous Coast Guard vessels that in 1989 helped extinguish the Exxon Valdez oil spill in Prince William Sound. Each year, the Woodrush crew has trained to handle future accidents. It is reassuring to know that their skills have not been needed to date, but even more so to know they have been, like the Coast Guard's motto, "Always Ready."

During her 57 years of service, the Woodrush and her crew earned several awards, including the Meritorious Unit Citation, the Campaign Service Ribbon, the World War II Service Ribbon, and the National Defense Medal. Woodrush was a Bronze Winner of the Coast Guard Commandant's Quality Award in both 1997 and 1998, as well as a recipient of the Coast Guard Foundation's Admiral John B. Hayes Award. The Hayes Award honors the Pacific Area unit that best demonstrates the commitment to excellence and professionalism embodied in the traditions of the United States Coast Guard.

USCGC Woodrush will service her last aid to navigation on February 27.
all the men and women who have served as her crew. I extend my thanks and appreciation. Your faithful attention to duty—guiding mariners to safety, aiding citizens in distress, and defending all the interests of the United States will be remembered. You have truly been Semper Paratus.

TRIBUTE TO LAURA STEPHAN

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Laura Stephan of Merrimack, New Hampshire, for being honored by the "President’s Award" from the Merrimack Chamber of Commerce.

Laura has served the citizens of Merrimack selflessly with enthusiasm and loyalty. Her demonstrated ability to continuously provide high quality assistance in all aspects of Chamber activities is commendable.

Laura is a graduate from the State University of New York in Albany with a Liberal Arts degree. She is the Treasur- er of the State of New Hampshire Women’s Council of Realtors and is an active member of the Nashua Chapter of the Women’s Council of Realtors who has received the “Affiliate of the Year Award” from the Greater Nashua Board of Realtors.

Active in numerous community projects, Laura has served as the President of the American Stage Festival Theater Guild and as a member of its Board of Trustees. She is also an active member and committee chairperson for Merrimack Friends and Family.

Laura and her husband, Gary, reside in Merrimack. She is a passionate vol- unteer for the Humane Society of Nashua and is committed to promoting a better quality of life in the community.

Laura has enthusiastically provided dedicated service to her local community and to the people of New Hampshire. It is an honor to represent her in the U.S. Senate.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the no net loss of private lands bill. This legislation has to do with acquisition of lands by the Federal Government, particularly lands to be acquired by the Federal Government in the West. This is a commonsense proposal, I believe, to Federal land acquisitions in public land States.

The Federal Government continues to acquire large amounts of land throughout the Nation. In many instances, it is justified. There are many reasons why land should be acquired, but there does become a question of the federal public interest.

In almost every State, officials and concerned citizens are saying we need to address this question of public land needs before we continue to increase the size of the Federal Government. The Federal Government is not always the best neighbor of the people in the West, largely because so much land in our States—in my State, 50 percent of the State—belongs to the Federal Government. Even though everyone wants to protect the lands, and that is an obligation we all have, we also have an opportunity for the most part to use these lands in multiple use.

We should be able to have both access for hunting, fishing, grazing, for visitation and camping, and use the lands for other economic activity in such a way that we can protect the environment.

If we have run into from time to time is the effort to lock up the public lands and restrict access. We find this happening in a number of ways, including excessive emphasis on roads, where people cannot have access to the lands they occupy.

Interestingly enough, we hear from all kinds of people. Often they say it is the oil companies. As a matter of fact, it is often disabled veterans. For example, they say they would like to go into the back country and get into some of the public lands, but they don’t have highway access for doing that, it is impossible.

This setting aside and this decision-making that comes from the top down creates great hardships for many local communities, destroys jobs, and depresses the economy in many places around the West. As we provide funds—and there is always a proposition to provide automatic funding for acquisition—it threatens the culture, it threatens the faith of many of our States and local governments, and the rights of individual property owners throughout the Nation. Even this proposed language would put constraints on mandatory spending and Federal land acquisition. If we don’t do that, we will see it increasing at a faster and faster pace.

How does it work? The bill limits the amount of private land the Federal Government acquires in States where 25 percent or more now belongs to the Federal Government. When a Federal Government has reason, and they will have reasons to purchase 100 acres or more, it will require disposing of an equal value of amount away from Federal ownership. If there is 40 percent Federal ownership in your State, and there were good reasons to acquire more, there would have to be an exchange of lands so the 40 percent factor continues.

Fifty percent of Wyoming and much of the West is already owned by the Federal Government. Many people throughout the country don’t realize that. They know about Yellowstone Park. But much of the State was left in Federal ownership when the homestead proposition was completed and these lands were never really set aside for value of the land. They were just there when this homestead stopped. They came under Federal ownership, not because of any particular reason but because that is the way it was at that time.

I think it is time for the Federal Government to make a move to protect private property owners and use restraint in terms of land acquisition. The no net loss of private lands acquisition bill will provide that discipline. As I mentioned, this amendment does not limit the ability to acquire pristine or special areas in the future. Areas the have a particular use and that use should be under Federal ownership.

They can continue to acquire more land in many areas. But in order to do that, as I mentioned, there would have to be some trading.

Regarding the Federal land ownership pattern, I suppose many people expected more, but in Alaska almost 68 percent of the State belongs to the Federal Government. Even in Arizona, as high as it stood, as it is almost half, 47 percent, is Federally owned. In Colorado, it is 36 percent; in Idaho, 61 percent of the State is in Federal ownership; the number in Montana is 28 percent, and Nevada is 63 percent federally owned. Really, making a case that much of this land could be better managed by local or State governments or if it were in the private sector. In New Mexico, the percentage of Federal land ownership is 33 percent; Oregon, 22; Utah, 22; Washington, 29; and Wyoming, 49 percent.

So we are talking about providing an opportunity for the Federal Government to continue to acquire those lands if there is good reason to do that, but to recognize the impact that it does have on private ownership, on the economy, and on the culture of the States. We have some offsets.

In our State, we have 23 counties. They are quite different, but in some of those counties—for instance, my home county, ark County, Cody, Wy., which is right outside of Yellowstone Park—82 percent of that county belongs to the Federal Government. In Teton County, next to Yellowstone, it is 96 percent. Four percent of Teton’s land is in non-Federal ownership.

I think this is a reasonable thing to do. It certainly does not preclude the addition of land to the Federal Government. The Federal Government has a good reason to acquire it. It simply says if you want to acquire some, let’s take a look at the other 50 percent that you already own of the State and see if we can’t dispose of something in equal value.

By Mr. SHELBY:

S. 324. A bill to amend the Gramm-Littleton Act, which prohibits the sale and purchase of the Social Security number of an individual by financial institutions, to include social security numbers in the definition of nonpublic personal information, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Social Security Privacy Act of 2001. This legislation would prohibit the sale and purchase of an individual’s Social Security number by financial institutions and include Social Security numbers as “nonpublic personal information” thereby subjecting the sharing of Social Security numbers.
numbers to the privacy protections of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act. I believe Congress has a duty to stop Social Security numbers from being bought and sold like some common commodity. While the Social Security numbers are used by the federal government to track workers’ earning and eligibility for Social Security benefits, we all recognize that it has become something much more than that. The number is now the key to just about all the personal information concerning an individual.

There was never any intention or consideration for financial institutions to use a person’s social security number as a universal access number. Such use of the Social Security number facilitates criminal activity including fraud, abuse, pilfering of people’s personal information for use in obtaining credit cards, loans and other goods.

Not only is identity theft happening more often, recent events confirm that no one is immune from this problem. Just last month, a California man was convicted of using Tiger Woods’ Social Security number to obtain credit cards that he used to run up more than $17,000 in charges in Mr. Woods’ name.

Identity theft can affect anyone. It is extremely serious. It costs our economy hundreds of millions of dollars each year. Once it occurs, it is very difficult for the victim to restore his or her good credit rating. The incidences of identity theft are growing at an ever increasing pace.

Now, how does identity theft relate to the average financial institution? In 1999, a reputable Fortune 500 company, U.S. Bancorp, legally sold account information—including Social Security numbers—of one million of its customers to MemberWorks, a telemarketer of membership programs that offer discounts on such things as travel to health care services. Now some may believe that engaging in such activity by including a provision, Section 502 (d), in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act limiting the ability of institutions to share account information with telemarketers.

That provision, however, does not stop one financial institution from buying and selling individual Social Security numbers. Indeed, it is even legal to stop a financial institution from buying and selling account information with telemarketers.

The ability of institutions to share account information with telemarketers. Indeed, it is even legal to stop a financial institution from buying and selling account information with telemarketers. Indeed, it is even legal to stop a financial institution from buying and selling account information with telemarketers.

For those of you who are concerned that this legislation would hinder a financial holding company from sharing information among its affiliates, fear not. This legislation does not limit a financial institution from sharing one individual’s Social Security number among its affiliates. I am pleased today to introduce the Gift of Life Congressional Medal Act.

Life Congressional Medal Act

In 1999, there were almost 22,000 transplants—a large increase over the roughly 13,000 transplants performed ten years ago. However, the demand for transplants has skyrocketed, more than tripling in the past ten years.

As a heart and lung transplant surgeon, I saw one in four of my patients die because of the lack of available donors, and more and more patients waiting four years or more for a transplant each year before they can receive an organ.

The Department of Health and Human Services announced an increase of nearly 4 percent in organ donation levels. While I was pleased to see this news, this is only a small step towards addressing our nation’s organ shortage. Much more remains to be done.

The Gift of Life Congressional Medal Act will make each donor or donor family eligible to receive a commemorative Congressional medal. This creates a tremendous incentive to honor those sharing life through donation and increase public awareness of this issue.

Recent years have witnessed a tremendous coalescing on both sides of the aisle around the importance of increased public compassion and awareness of those needing organ transplants. I appreciate the growing support for this issue and look forward to working with my colleagues to encourage people to give life to others.

By Mr. FRIST (for himself, Mr. DeWine, Mr. Durbin, Mrs. Murray, and Mr. Thurmond):

S. 325. A bill to establish a congressional commemorative medal for organ donors and their families; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce the Gift of Life Congressional Medal Act of 2001. This legislation, which does not cost taxpayers a penny, will recognize the thousands of individuals each year who share the gift of life through organ donation. Moreover, it will encourage potential donors and enhance public awareness of the importance of organ donation to the over 74,000 Americans waiting for a transplant.

In 1999, there were almost 22,000 transplants—a large increase over the roughly 13,000 transplants performed ten years ago. However, the demand for transplants has skyrocketed, more than tripling in the past ten years.

As a heart and lung transplant surgeon, I saw one in four of my patients die because of the lack of available donors, and more and more patients waiting four years or more for a transplant each year before they can receive an organ. More than 6000 patients died in 1999 before they could receive a transplant. Since 1988, more than 38,000 patients have died because of the lack of organ donors. There are simply not enough organ donors; public awareness has not kept up with the rapid advances of transplantation. It is our duty to do all we can to raise awareness about the gift of life.

Last fall, the Department of Health and Human Services announced an increase of nearly 4 percent in organ donation levels. While I was pleased to see this news, this is only a small step towards addressing our nation’s organ shortage. Much more remains to be done.

The Gift of Life Congressional Medal Act will make each donor or donor family eligible to receive a commemorative Congressional medal. This creates a tremendous incentive to honor those sharing life through donation and increase public awareness of this issue.

Recent years have witnessed a tremendous coalescing on both sides of the aisle around the importance of increased public compassion and awareness of those needing organ transplants. I appreciate the growing support for this issue and look forward to working with my colleagues to encourage people to give life to others.
agencies that is currently scheduled to go into effect on October 1, 2002. The legislation we are introducing this morning will also extend the temporary 10 percent add-on payment for home health patients in rural areas to ensure that these patients continue to have access to the care they need.

Health care has gone full circle. Patients are spending less time in the hospital. More and more procedures are being done on an outpatient basis, and recovery and rehabilitation for patients with chronic diseases and conditions has increasingly been taking place in the home. Moreover, the number of older Americans who are chronically ill or disabled in some way continues to grow each year.

Concerns about how to care effectively and compassionately for these individuals will only multiply as our population ages and as it is at greater risk for chronic disease and disability. As a consequence, home health care has become an increasingly important part of our health care system. The kind of highly skilled and often technically complex services that our Nation’s home health agencies provide have enabled millions of our most frail and vulnerable senior citizens to avoid hospitals and nursing homes and to receive the care they need just where they want to be: in the security, privacy, and comfort of their own homes.

By the late 1990s, home health care was the fastest growing component of Medicare spending. The program was growing at an average annual rate of 25 percent. For this reason, Congress and the administration, as part of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, initiated changes that were intended to slow the growth in spending and make the program more cost-effective and efficient. These measures, however, have unfortunately produced cuts in home health care spending that were far, far beyond what Congress ever intended. According to preliminary estimates by the CBO, home health care spending in the year 2001 is half the amount that was being spent just 3 years earlier, in 1997.

On the horizon is yet another additional 15-percent cut that would put many of our already struggling home health agencies at risk and which would seriously jeopardize access to critical home health services for millions of our Nation’s seniors.

It is now crystal clear that the savings from home health in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 have not only been met, but far exceeded. The most recent CBO projections show that the post-Balanced Budget Act reductions in home health will be about $59 billion in fiscal years 1998 and 2002. That is more than four times the $16 billion the CBO originally estimated for that time period, and it is a clear indication that the Medicare home health cuts back in 1997 produced an outcome that was far worse than ever anticipated.

As a consequence, we have home health agencies across the country that are experiencing acute financial difficulties and cashflow problems. These financial difficulties are inhibiting their ability to deliver much needed care. Approximately 3,300 home health agencies have either closed or stopped serving Medicare patients nationwide, as stated by President. That is how deep these cuts were.

Moreover, the Health Care Financing Administration estimates that 900,000 fewer home health patients received services in 1999 than in 1997. This means that the most central and important consequence of these cuts. The fact is that cuts of this magnitude simply cannot be sustained without adversely affecting the quality and availability of patient care.

The effects of these regulations and cuts have been particularly devastating in my home State of Maine. The number of home health patients in Maine dropped from almost 49,000 to 37,545. That is a change of 23 percent. This means that the most central and important consequence of these cuts. The result was that she developed an infection that the home health nurses throughout the State of Maine, and I found that many of these patients have ended up going into nursing homes prematurely. Others have been repeatedly hospitalized with problems that could have been prevented, and they have been continuing to receive their home health benefits. Still others are trying to pay for the care themselves, often on very limited means. And yet others are going without care altogether.

A home health nurse in Saco, ME, told me of a patient who she believes ultimately died because she lost her home health benefits. She lost those nurses coming to check on her condition. The result was that she developed the infection. The home health nurse undoubtedly would have caught the result was a tragedy in this case.

We have seen a 40-percent drop in the number of visits in the State of Maine and a 51-percent cut in Medicare reimbursements to home health agencies.

Keep in mind that Maine’s home health agencies have historically been very prudent in their use of resources. They were low cost to begin with. The problem is, when you have cuts of these magnitudes imposed on agencies that are already low-cost providers, they simply cannot sustain the cuts and continue to deliver the services that our seniors need.

The real losers in this situation are our Nation’s seniors, particularly those Medicare patients with complex care needs who are already experiencing difficulty in getting the home care services they deserve.

I am very concerned that additional deep cuts are already on the horizon. As I mentioned, on October 1, 2002, an additional automatic 15-percent cut is scheduled to go into effect. We need to act.

Last year we passed legislation, the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Benefits Improvement and Protection Act, which did provide a small measure of relief to our Nation’s struggling home health agencies. It did, for example, delay by another year the 15-percent cut I have discussed this morning, but I do not think that goes far enough. The automatic reduction should be eliminated completely. We do not need it to achieve the savings estimated by the Balanced Budget Act. Those have already been far exceeded by the cuts that were put in place.

The fact is, an additional 15-percent cut in Medicare home health payments would ring the death knell for those low-cost agencies which are currently struggling to hang on, and it would further reduce our seniors’ access to critical home care services.

This is the fourth year we have found ourselves simply keep delaying this cut by yet another year is to leave a sword of Damocles hanging over our home health system. It makes it very difficult for our home health agencies to plan how they are going to the care of their Medicare patients with complex care needs who are already low-cost providers, the automatic cut. It would also make permanent the temporary 10-percent add-on for home health services furnished patients in rural areas. That was included in the legislation last year. We would make it permanent.

This provision will ensure that our seniors living in rural areas continue to have access to critical high-quality home health services. Mr. President, the Home Health Care Stability Act will provide a needed measure of relief and certainty for cost-efficient home health agencies across the country that are experiencing acute financial problems that are inhibiting their ability to deliver much needed care, particularly to those Medicare patients with complex care needs. I urge all of my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring this important legislation.
Let’s get the job done once and for all this year. Let’s repeal that 15-percent cut that otherwise would go into effect. Let’s remove that uncertainty that is hanging over our home health agencies, and let’s recommit ourselves to providing quality home health care benefits to our seniors and our disabled citizens.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I rise today to join with my colleague from Maine, Senator COLLINS, to introduce legislation that addresses the ongoing crisis in home care. Two of our colleagues join with us today to offer the Home Health Payment Fairness Act to deal with this crisis and to try to ensure that seniors and disabled Americans have appropriate access to high-quality home health care.

Home health care is an important part of Medicare in which seniors and the disabled can get basic nursing and therapy care in their home, if their health or physical condition makes it almost impossible to leave home. Often home health care is the key to remaining independent and without the need for home health care than previously. That’s upwards of a million patients—one of every four who had been receiving home health care who simply disappeared from the world of home care. Unfortunately, the explanation is not a miraculous improvement in the health of our nation’s seniors that drastically reduced the need for home health care. No, almost one million fewer people were receiving home care because the help just dried up.

This is partly because more than 3,300 of the nation’s 10,000 home health agencies have either gone out-of-business, or have stopped serving Medicare patients. That’s one-third of the home health agencies that we can only imagine the outrage we would have in this country if one-third of the hospitals simply disappeared?

In some areas, this hasn’t been a major problem because there were other local home health agencies to pick up the slack. But in many parts of America—particularly in rural America—this has led to a serious problem of getting access to care.

In one sense, what’s bad for the patient is good for the budget. Medicare home health spending has actually gone down for three straight years—dropping by 46 percent from 1997 and 2000. In Medicare, these types of cuts in spending are absolutely unprecedented. In no other part of Medicare has there ever been drastic cuts like this. Remember, our goal in the Balanced Budget Act was to slow down the growth of the program, not to slash spending. The second Medicare policy change will provide desperately needed assistance to help slow the growth of the program, not to slash it. The added transportation and labor costs incurred as home health nurses travel longer distances between visits.

The second thing that is unique about home health—the biggest cuts may yet to come.

While hospitals, nursing homes, hospice programs, and other Medicare providers still face some additional Balanced Budget Act cuts, most of the BBA provisions have already either taken effect or been erased by the two “Medicare giveback” bills we have passed into law.

But home health care patients and providers still have the largest BBA cut of all. In other words, the 15-percent across-the-board home health cuts that are now scheduled for October of 2002. That’s a 15-percent cut to provide needed care.

I do not believe this should happen, and I actually don’t know of anybody who believes the 15-percent home health cuts should go into effect. These major policy changes had delayed the 15-percent cuts three separate times.

To impose these cuts, given all that home health care has been through, would be adding insult to injury. It’s too bad that we haven’t seen more home health agencies out-of-business, perhaps risking the care for a million more patients.

Today, Senator COLLINS and I propose to fix this once and for all—no more delays, no more half-measures. The key provision in the Home Health Payment Fairness Act would permanently eliminate these 15-percent cuts. This will be expensive—probably more than $10 billion over 10 years. I don’t think anybody in Congress wants to drop the guillotine on home health by imposing these cuts—what’s the three delays have shown. We need to just bite the bullet and get rid of them once and for all.

The one additional key provision in our bill would make permanent the 10-percent bonus payments that we are about to start giving rural home health agencies. These new rural payments recognize that, historically, rural patients have been penalized due to the added transportation and labor costs incurred as home health nurses travel longer distances between visits. The second Medicare “giveback” bill that Congress just passed into law in December authorized these bonus payments for the first time—but only for a two-year period. The reasons that rural patients cost more are going to last for more than two years—we believe the added rural payments should as well.

This policy change will provide desperately needed assistance to help home health care in rural America—which, as I mentioned earlier, has been much harder hit by the home health problems that stem from the Balanced Budget Act.

First and most importantly, no other group of Medicare patients and providers have endured as many difficulties. This is a big claim, given the many changes that have been heard about the Balanced Budget Act. But absolutely nobody has suffered like home health patients and home health agencies. The numbers don’t lie.

Two years after the Balanced Budget Act, almost 900,000 fewer seniors and disabled Americans were receiving home health care than previously. That’s about a million patients—one of every four who had been receiving home health care who simply disappeared from the world of home care. Unfortunately, the explanation is not a miraculous improvement in the health of our nation’s seniors that drastically reduced the need for home health care. No, almost one million fewer people were receiving home care because the help just dried up.

This is partly because more than 3,300 of the nation’s 10,000 home health agencies have either gone out-of-business, or have stopped serving Medicare patients. That’s one-third of the home health agencies that we can only imagine the outrage we would have in this country if one-third of the hospitals simply disappeared?

In some areas, this hasn’t been a major problem because there were other local home health agencies to pick up the slack. But in many parts of America—particularly in rural America—this has led to a serious problem of getting access to care.

In one sense, what’s bad for the patient is good for the budget. Medicare home health spending has actually gone down for three straight years—dropping by 46 percent from 1997 and 2000. In Medicare, these types of cuts in spending are absolutely unprecedented. In no other part of Medicare has there ever been drastic cuts like this. Remember, our goal in the Balanced Budget Act was to slow down the growth of the program, not to slash almost half of the spending out of vital services like home health care. In 1997, we envisioned $16 billion in savings from home health over five years—but the most recent estimates show that we are on target to get $69 billion in savings, more than four times the target figure. This is not how anybody wanted to balance the federal budget.

No State has been spared this crisis, but the seniors and the disabled in my home state of Missouri have been particularly hard-hit. 27,000 fewer patients are receiving home care than before that’s a drop of 30 percent. And while Missouri had 300 home health agencies when the Balanced Budget Act passed, we now have just 161. That’s almost 140 health care providers that Missourians need—but that are now gone.

All of this points to the fact that the breadth and the depth of the post-Balanced Budget Act problems are undeniably worse in home health care than any other part of Medicare. That’s the first thing that distinguishes home care providers from other struggling Medicare providers.

The second thing that is unique about home health—the biggest cuts may yet to come.

While hospitals, nursing homes, hospice programs, and other Medicare providers still face some additional Balanced Budget Act cuts, most of the BBA provisions have already either taken effect or been erased by the two “Medicare giveback” bills we have passed into law.

But home health care patients and providers still have the largest BBA cut of all. All of this points to the fact that breadth and the depth of the post-Balanced Budget Act problems are undeniably worse in home health care than any other part of Medicare. That’s the first thing that distinguishes home care providers from other struggling Medicare providers.

But home health care patients and providers still have the largest BBA cut of all. In other words, the 15-percent across-the-board home health cuts that are now scheduled for October of 2002. That’s a 15-percent cut to provide needed care.

I do not believe this should happen, and I actually don’t know of anybody who believes the 15-percent home health cuts should go into effect. These major policy changes had delayed the 15-percent cuts three separate times.

To impose these cuts, given all that home health care has been through, would be adding insult to injury. It’s too bad that we haven’t seen more home health agencies out-of-business, perhaps risking the care for a million more patients.

Today, Senator COLLINS and I propose to fix this once and for all—no more delays, no more half-measures. The key provision in the Home Health Payment Fairness Act would permanently eliminate these 15-percent cuts. This will be expensive—probably more than $10 billion over 10 years. I don’t think anybody in Congress wants to drop the guillotine on home health by imposing these cuts—what’s the three delays have shown. We need to just bite the bullet and get rid of them once and for all.

The one additional key provision in our bill would make permanent the 10-percent bonus payments that we are about to start giving rural home health agencies. The intent of this important legislation is two-fold—first, eliminate the impending 15 percent reduction in home health payments scheduled to take effect in October 2002, and second, restore a modicum of stability and predictability to the home health funding stream after a decade of volatility and turmoil. I was pleased to introduce similar language with Senator COLLINS last Congress; I am pleased to do so again.

Over the past several years, Congress has worked to address the unintended consequences of the 1997 Balanced Budget Act, BBA. Specifically, we have sought to alleviate the tremendous financial burdens that have been borne by the home health industry and the patients they serve. These agencies care for disabled beneficiaries they serve. Home health care agencies in my home state of Rhode Island have been especially hard hit by these changes. We have seen a significant decline in the number of beneficiaries served and access to care for more medically complex patients threatened by these cuts. These reductions have clearly had negative impact on patients who heavily rely on home health care.

Nationally, between 1997 and 1998, the number of Medicare beneficiaries receiving home health services has fallen 14 percent, while the total number of home health visits has fallen by 40 percent. We have seen a similar trend in Rhode Island, where over 3,000 fewer beneficiaries are receiving home health care—representing a decline of 16 percent—and the total number of visits has fallen 38 percent. These individuals are either being forced to turn to more expensive alternatives as institutional-based nursing homes and skilled nursing facilities for their care, or these individuals are simply going without care, which places an immeasurable burden on the family and friends of vulnerable beneficiaries. I truly do not believe this is the path we want to remain on when it comes to home health care. In light of the impending “senior boom” that will be hitting our entitlement programs in a few short years, it is imperative that we preserve and strengthen the Medicare home health benefit. We can begin to do so by eliminating the 15 percent reduction in home health payments. By taking this step, we will alleviate an enormous burden that has been looming over financially strapped home health agencies as well as the frail and vulnerable Medicare beneficiaries who rely on these critical services.

I urge my colleagues to join us in supporting this critical legislation, and I look forward to working with Senator COLLINS and my other colleagues on the home health issue this Congress.

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. DODD, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. WELLSTONE, Ms. MURRAY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. CHAFER, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. REID, and Mr. BAUCUS):

S. 327. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to provide up-to-date school library media resources and well-trained, professionally certified school library media specialists for elementary schools and secondary schools, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce bipartisan legislation to support and strengthen American school libraries.

Research shows that well-equipped and well-staffed school libraries are essential to promoting literacy, learning, and achievement. Indeed, recent studies in Colorado, Pennsylvania, and Alaska reveal that a strong school library media program, consisting of a well-stocked school library staffed by a trained, school-library media specialist, helps students learn more and score higher on standardized tests than their peers in library-impoverished schools. These findings echo earlier studies conducted in the 1990s, which found that students in schools with well-equipped libraries and professional library specialists performed better on achievement tests for reading comprehension and basic research skills.

Mr. President, with our ever-changing global economy, access to information and the skills to use it are vital to ensuring that young Americans are competitive and informed citizens of the world. That is why the school library is so important in supplementing what is learned in the classroom; promoting better learning, including reading; research; library skills; and their lives.

While the promise of a well-equipped school library to promote literacy, learning, and achievement is boundless, and its importance greater than ever, the condition of libraries today does not live up to that potential. As Linda Wood, a school-library media specialist from South Kingstown High School in Rhode Island, noted during a Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee hearing two years ago, school library collections are outdated and sparse.

Many schools across the nation are dependent on books purchased in the mid-1960s with dedicated funding provided under the original Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) of 1965. Many of the books still on school library shelves today were purchased with this funding and have not been replaced since 1981, when this dedicated funding was folded into what is now the Title I program. As a result, many books in our school libraries predate the landing of manned spacecraft on the moon, the breakup of the Soviet Union, the end of Apartheid, the Internet, and advances in DNA research.

Mr. President, over the past several months I have received over one hundred books pulled from library shelves... across the country which further illustrate the sad state of school libraries today. I would like to cite just a few examples.

A book entitled Rockets Into Space, copyright 1959, informs students that “the trip to the moon must be made in two stages. The first stage would be from earth to a space station. The second stage would be from the space station to the moon. It would cost a lot of money to buy a ticket to the moon.” This book was checked out of a Los Angeles school library 13 times since 1995.

Further, a book found on a Rhode Island school library shelf, entitled Life in America, copyright 1962, contains the following information: “UNDERSTANDING SOME CHARACTERISTICS OF THE ARABS—It is difficult to generalize about any group of people and yet there are some characteristics which seem predominant and helpful in understanding the Arabs.” Needless to say, the book then proceeds to describe characteristics of Arab people in derogatory terms.

And finally, a book entitled Colonial Life in America copyright 1963 was found on a shelf in a Philadelphia school library, informs the student that life on “a large plantation in the South was like a village. Slave families had their own cabins. This book describes southern plantation life as if it were free of reference to the harshness and injustice of life as a slave.

As you can see, in a rapidly changing world, our students are placed at a major disadvantage if the only scientific, geographical, and historical materials they have access to are outdated and inaccurate. The reason for this sad state of affairs is the loss of targeted, national funding for school libraries.

In sum, school library funding is grossly inadequate to the task of improving and supplementing collections. Library spending per student today is a small fraction of the cost of a new book. Indeed, while the average school library book costs $15, the average spending per student for books is approximately $6.75 in high schools. Consequently, many schools cannot remove outdated books. This not only is harmful because there is no money to replace these books.

My home state of Rhode Island is working on an innovative effort to ensure that students gain access to materials not available in their own school libraries. RILINK, the Rhode Island Library Information Network for Kids, gives students and teachers 24-hour Internet access to a statewide catalog of school library holdings, complete with information about the book’s status on the shelf. RILINK also allows for ordering of materials via interlibrary loan, with rapid delivery through a statewide courier system, and provides links from book information records to related Internet research sites, allowing a single book request to serve as a point of departure for a galaxy of information sources.

Unfortunately, such innovations, which could benefit schoolchildren at all levels, cannot be expanded without adequate library funding. Indeed, the only federal funding that is currently available to school libraries is the Title VI block grant, which allows expenditure for school library and instructional materials. In 1981, states have chosen other needs above school library books and technology.

This amount is wholly insufficient to replace outdated books in both our classrooms and school libraries, and this lack of targeting and diffusion of funding is why block grants are so harmful.

Mr. President, well-trained school library media specialists are also essential to helping students unlock their potential. These individuals are at the heart of guiding students in their work, providing research training, maintaining and selecting collections, and ensuring that a library fulfills its potential. In addition, they have the skills to guide students in the use of the broad variety of advanced technological education resources now available.

Unfortunately, only 68 percent of schools have state-certified library media specialists, according to Department of Education figures, and, on average, there is only one specialist for every 591 students. This shortage means that many school libraries are staffed by volunteers and are open only a few days a week.

I am introducing this bipartisan bill today, along with Senators Cochran, Kennedy, Bingaman, Wellstone, Murray, Mikulski, Clinton, Chafee, Rockefeller, Reid, Sarbanes, and Baucus to restore the funding that is critical to improving school libraries. The Improving Literacy Through School Libraries Act authorizes $500 million to help school libraries with the greatest needs update their collections and would ensure that students have access to the informational tools they need to learn and work. This bill achieves this goal and allows for maximum flexibility, enabling schools to use the funds to update library media resources, such as books and advanced technology, train school library media specialists, and facilitate resource-sharing among school libraries.

The bill also establishes the School Library Access Program to provide students with access to school libraries during non-school hours, including before and after school, weekends, and summers.

Providing access to the most up-to-date school library collections is an essential part of increasing student achievement, improving literacy skills, and helping students become lifelong learners. The bipartisan Improving Literacy Through School Libraries Act is strongly supported by the American Library Association, and will help accomplish these essential goals. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this important legislation and work for its inclusion in the upcoming reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be made a letter of support written by the American Library Association be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SEC. 3. ELIGIBILITY.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Improving Literacy Through School Libraries Act of 2001.”

SEC. 2. SCHOOL LIBRARY MEDIA RESOURCES.

(a) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by redesignating part E as part F; and

(2) inserting after section 2351 the following:

"PART E—ASSISTANCE TO SCHOOL LIBRARIES TO IMPROVE LITERACY

Subpart I—Library Media Resources

SEC. 2350. PURPOSE.

"The purposes of this part shall be—"

(1) to improve literacy skills and academic achievement of students by providing students with increased access to up-to-date school library materials, a well-equipped, technologically advanced school library media center, and well-trained, professionally certified school library media specialists;

(2) to support the acquisition of up-to-date school library media resources for the use of students, school library media specialists, and teachers in elementary schools and secondary schools;

(3) to provide school library media specialists with the tools and training opportunities necessary for the specialists to facilitate development and enhancement of the information literacy, information retrieval, and critical thinking skills of students; and

(4)(A) to ensure the effective coordination of resources for library, technology, and professional development activities for elementary schools and secondary schools; and

(B) to encourage collaboration between school library media specialists, and elementary school and secondary school teachers and administrators, in developing curriculum-based instructional activities for students so that school library media specialists are partners in the learning process of students.

SEC. 2351. STATE ALLOTMENTS.

"The Secretary shall allot to each eligible State educational agency for a fiscal year an amount that bears the same relation to the amount appropriated under section 2260 and not reserved under section 2259 for the fiscal year as the amount the State educational agency received under part A of title I for the preceding fiscal year bears to the amount all eligible State educational agencies received under part A of title I for the preceding fiscal year.

SEC. 2352. STATE APPLICATIONS.

SEC. 2358. SUPPLEMENT NOT SUPPLANT.

"Funds made available under this subpart shall be used to supplement and not supplant other Federal, State, and local funds intended to carry out activities relating to library, technology, or professional development activities.

SEC. 2359. NATIONAL ACTIVITIES.

The Secretary shall reserve not more than 3 percent of the amount appropriated under section 2360 for a fiscal year—

(1) for an annual, independent, national evaluation of the activities assisted under this subpart, to be conducted not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this subpart; and

(2) to broadly disseminate information to help States, local educational agencies, school library media specialists, and elementary school and secondary school teachers and administrators learn about effective school library media programs.

SEC. 2360. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subpart $475,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2003 through—

Subpart 2—School Library Access Program

SEC. 2361. PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may make grants to local educational agencies to provide professional development opportunities for school library media specialists, elementary school and secondary school teachers and administrators.

(b) APPLICATIONS.—To be eligible to receive a grant under subsection (a), a local educational agency shall submit an application at such time, in such form, and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

(c) PRIORITY.—In making grants under subsection (a), the Secretary shall give priority to local educational agencies that demonstrate, in applications submitted under subsection (b), that the agency—

(1) seeks to provide activities that will increase literacy skills and student achievement;

(2) will provide effectively coordinated services and funding with entities involved in other Federal, State, and local efforts to provide programs and activities for students during the non-school hours described in subsection (a); and

(3) have a high level of community support.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subpart $25,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2006."

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION,

HON. JACK REED,
U.S. SENATE,
WASHINGTON, DC.

DEAR SENATOR REED: I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and Senator Thad Cochran for your bi-partisan support of school libraries as you introduce the Improving Literacy Through School Libraries Act of 2001. This bill would provide assistance to the nation’s school libraries and school library media specialists at a time when they are laboring mightily to cope with the challenges of increasing school enrollment, new technology and the lack of funding for school library resources.

As an academic librarian in New York, I know personally how this legislation will contribute to effective learning by our school children. Many of the nation’s school... libraries have collections that are old, inaccurate and out of date. How can we encourage children to read, continue their education in college and become lifelong learners if the material we have available for them is inadequate?

Your legislation proposes to upgrade collections at schools and train school librarians, and effect greater cooperation between school professionals directly involved teaching children—school library media specialists, librarians, and teachers. Educational legislation should be included in the reauthorization process now going forward in the Senate. The school children of today deserve the best resources we have to give them.

On behalf of the 61,000 school, public, academic and special libraries, library trustees, friends of libraries and library supporters, I thank you for your effort to improve the resources in school libraries. We offer the support of our members in working towards passage of the legislation.

Sincerely,

Nancy C. Kranich
President

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself, Mr. INOUYE, and Mr. GRAHAM).

S. 329. A bill to require the Secretary of the Interior to conduct a national theme study on the peopling of America, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, America is truly unique in that almost all of us are migrants or immigrants to the United States, originating in different regions—whether from Asia, from islands in the Pacific Ocean, Mexico, or valleys and mesas of the Southwest, Europe, or other regions of the world. The prehistory and the contemporary history of this nation are inextricably linked to the mosaic or migrations, migrations and existing cultures in the U.S. that has resulted in the peopling of America. Americans are all travelers from diverse areas, regions, continents and islands.

We need a better understanding of this coherent and unifying theme in America. With this in mind, I am introducing legislation, along with my colleagues Senator INOUYE and Senator GRAHAM, authorizing the National Park Service to conduct a theme study on the peopling of America. An identical bill passed the Senate last Congress, and I am optimistic that the Senate will again pass this bill.

The purpose of the study is to provide a basis for identifying, interpreting and preserving sites related to the migration, immigration and settlement of America. The peopling of America is the story of our nation's population and how we came to be the diverse set of people that we are today. The peopling of America will acknowledge and embrace the contributions of the first peoples who settled the North American continent, the Pacific Islands, and the lands that later became the United States of America. The peopling of America has continued as Europeans, African-Americans, Asian-Americans and others migrated to and across the American landscape—through original residency, European colonization, forced migrations, economic migrations, or politically-motivated immigration—that has given rise to the rich interactions that make the American character and experience unique. I would venture to say that no other nation has the heterogeneous patchwork of migration and movement around the country that is found and that makes us the American Nation.

We embody the cultures and traditions that our forebears brought from other places and shores, as well as the new traditions and cultures that we adopted or created anew upon arrival. Whether we are the original inhabitants of the rich Pacific Northwest, settled in the rangelands and agrarian West, the industrialized Northeast, the small towns of the Midwest, or the genteel cities of the South, our forebears came from different backgrounds and created new relationships with peoples of other backgrounds and cultures. Our rich heritage as Americans is comprehensible only through the stories of our various constituent cultures, carried with us from other lands and transformed by encounters with other cultures.

All Americans are travelers. All cultures have creation stories and histories that place us here from somewhere. Whether we came to this land as native peoples, English colonists, Africans who were brought in slavery, Filipinos who came to work in Hawaii's cane fields, Mexican ranchers, or Chinese merchants, the process by which our nation was peopled transformed us from strangers from different shores into neighbors united in our inimitable diversity—Americans all. It is essential for us to understand this process, not only to understand who and where we are, but also to help us understand who we wish to be and where we should be headed as a nation. As the caretaker of some of our most important cultural and historical resources, from Ellis Island to San Juan Island, from Chaco Canyon to Kennesaw Mountain, the National Park Service is in a unique position to conduct a study that can offer guidance on this fundamental subject.

Currently we have only one focal point in the national park system that celebrates the peopling of America with significance. Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty National Monument. Ellis Island welcomed over 12 million immigrants between 1892 and 1954, an overwhelming majority of whom crossed the Atlantic from Europe. Ellis Island celebrates these immigrant experiences through their museum, historic buildings, and memorial wall. Immensely popular as it is, Ellis Island is focused on Atlantic immigration and thus reflects the experience only of those groups (primarily Eastern and Southern Europeans) who were processed at the island during its active period, 1892–1954.

Not all immigrants and their descendants can identify with Ellis Island. Tens of millions of other immigrants traveled to our great country through other ports of entry and in different periods of our Nation's history and prehistory. Ellis Island tells only part of the American story. There are other chapters, just as compelling, that must be told.

On the West Coast, Angel Island Immigration Station, tucked in San Francisco Bay, was open from 1910 to 1940 and processed hundreds of thousands of Pacific Rim immigrants through its doors. An estimated 1.75 million Chinese immigrants and more than 20,000 Japanese made the long Pacific passage to the United States. Their experiences are a West Coast mirror of the Ellis Island experience.

An estimated 1.75 million Chinese immigrants and more than 20,000 Japanese made the long Pacific passage to the United States. Their experiences are a West Coast mirror of the Ellis Island experience. But the migration story on the West Coast is much longer than Angel Island. Many earlier migrants to the West Coast contributed to the rich history of California, including the original resident Native Americans, Spanish explorers, Mexican ranchers, Russian colonists, American migrants from the Eastern states who came overland or around the Horn, German and Irish military recruits, Chinese railroad laborers, Portuguese and Italian farmers, and many other groups. The diversity and experience of these groups reflects the diversity and experience of all immigrants who entered the United States via the Western states, including Alaska, Washington, Oregon, and California.

The study we propose is consistent with the agency’s latest official thematic framework which establishes the subject of the theme study. The framework, which serves as a general guideline for interpretation, was revised in 1996 in response to a Congressional mandate—Civil War Sites Study Act of 1996, Public Law 101–628, Sec. 1209—that the full diversity of American history and prehistory be expressed in the National Park Service’s identification and interpretation of historic and prehistoric properties.

In conclusion, we believe that this bill will shed light on the unique blend of pluralism and unity that characterizes the American people. With its responsibility for cultural and historical parks, the Park Service plays a unique role in enhancing our understanding of the peopling of America and thus of a fuller comprehension of our relationships with each other—past, present, and future.

I urge my colleagues to support this initiative. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Peopling of America Theme Study Act.”

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.
(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—
(1) an important facet of the history of the United States is the story of how the United States was populated;
(2) the migration, immigration, and settlement of the population of the United States;
(A) is broadly termed the “peopling of America”; and
(B) is characterized by—
(i) the movement of groups of people across external and internal boundaries of the United States and territories of the United States;
(ii) the interactions of those groups with each other and with other populations;
(iii) each of those groups has made unique, important contributions to American history, culture, art, and life;
(iv) the spiritual, intellectual, cultural, political, and economic vitality of the United States is a result of the pluralism and diversity of its population;
(5) the success of the United States in embracing and accommodating diversity has strengthened the national fabric and unified the United States in its values, institutions, experiences, goals, and accomplishments;
(6)(A) the National Park Service’s official thematic framework revised in 1996 corresponds to the requirement of section 1209 of the Civil War Sites Study Act of 1996 (16 U.S.C. 1a–5 note; title XII of Public Law 101–628), that “the Secretary... ensure that the full diversity of American history and prehistory are represented” in the identification and interpretation of historic properties by the National Park Service; and
(B) the thematic framework recognizes that “people are the primary agents of change” and establishes the theme of human population movement and change—or “peopling places”—as a primary thematic category for study and interpretation. The framework, which serves as a general guideline for interpretation, was revised in 1996 in response to a Congressional mandate—Civil War Sites Study Act of 1996, Public Law 101–628, Sec. 1209—that the full diversity of American history and prehistory be expressed in the National Park Service’s identification and interpretation of historic and prehistoric properties.

In conclusion, we believe that this bill will shed light on the unique blend of pluralism and unity that characterizes the American people. With its responsibility for cultural and historical parks, the Park Service plays a unique role in enhancing our understanding of the peopling of America and thus of a fuller comprehension of our relationships with each other—past, present, and future.

SEC. 4. NATIONAL HISTORIC LANDMARK THEME STUDY ON THE PEOPLING OF AMERICA.
(a) THEME STUDY REQUIRED.—The Secretary shall prepare and submit to Congress a national historic landmark theme study on the peopling of America.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the theme study shall be to identify regions, areas, trails, districts, communities, sites, buildings, structures, objects, organizations, societies, and cultures identified under subsections (b) and (d);
(ii) to promote cooperative arrangements with educational institutions, local historical organizations, communities, and other appropriate entities to preserve and interpret key sites in the peopling of America;
(ii) to promote the manufacture, distribution, and sale of products and souvenirs related to the theme study.

SEC. 5. COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS.
The Secretary may enter into cooperative agreements with educational institutions, local historical organizations, communities, and other appropriate entities knowledgeable about the peopling of America.

SEC. 6. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.
There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out this Act.

By Mr. TORRICELLI:
S. 330. A bill to expand the powers of the Secretary of the Treasury to regulate the manufacture, distribution, and sale of firearms and ammunition, and to expand the jurisdiction of the Secretary to include firearm products and non-powder firearms; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. TORRICEILLI. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Firearms Safety and Consumer Protection Act of 2001. I am sure that this bill will face opposition, but I am equally sure that the need for this bill is so clear, and the logic so unquestionable, that we will eventually see gun consumers fighting for the passage of the legislation.

Mr. President, I have long fought against the gun injuries that have plagued American families for years. We succeeded in enacting the Brady bill and the ban on devastating assault weapons. And in the 104th Congress, even in the midst of what many consider a hostile Congress, we told domestic violence victims that they could no longer own a gun. These were each measures aimed at the criminal misuse of firearms.

But there is another subject that the NRA just hates to talk about—the consumer products that occur to decent gun owners, recreational hunters, and to law enforcement. Every year in this country, countless people die and many more are injured by defective or poorly manufactured firearms. Yet the Consumer Products Safety Commission, which has the power to regulate every other product sold to the American consumer, lacks the ability to regulate the manufacture of firearms.

And, the nation that regulates everything from the air we breathe, to the cars we drive, to the cribs that hold our children, the most dangerous consumer product sold, firearms, are unregulated. Studies show that inexpensive safety technology and the elimination of flawed guns could prevent a third of accidental firearms deaths. Despite this fact, the Federal government is powerless to stop gun companies from distributing defective guns that fail to warn consumers of dangerous products.

This gaping loophole in our consumer protection laws can often be disastrous for gun users. To take just one recent example, even when a gun manufacturer discovered that it had sold count- less defective guns with a tendency to misfire, no recall was mandated and no action could be taken by the federal government. The guns remained on the street, and consumers were defenseless. Time after time, consumers, hunters, and gun owners are each left out in the cold, without the knowledge of danger or the assistance necessary to protect themselves from it.

For too long now, the gun industry has successfully kept guns exempt from consumer protection laws, and we must finally bring guns into line with every other consumer product. Logic, common sense, and the many innocent victims of defective firearms all cry out for us to act—and act we must.

To that end, I am introducing the Firearms Safety and Consumer Protection Act, legislation giving the Secretary of the Treasury the power to regulate the manufacture, distribution, and sale of firearms and ammunition. The time has come to stop dangerous and defective guns from killing American consumers. I urge my colleagues to support this bill. I ask that this bill be ordered to be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. PURPOSES.
The purposes of this Act are—
(1) to protect the public against unreasonable risk of injury and death associated with firearms and related products;
(2) to develop safety standards for firearms and related products;
(3) to assist consumers in evaluating the comparative safety of firearms and related products;
(4) to promote research and investigation into the causes and prevention of firearm-related deaths and injuries; and
(5) to restrict the availability of weapons that pose an unreasonable risk of death or injury.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.
(a) SPECIFIC TERMS.—In this Act—
(1) FIREARMS DEALER.—The term “firearms dealer” means—
(A) any person engaged in the business (as defined in section 921(a)(21)(C) of title 18, United States Code) of dealing in firearms at wholesale or retail;
(B) any person engaged in the business (as defined in section 921(a)(21)(D) of title 18, United States Code) of repairing firearms or dealing in firearm parts; and

(C) any person who is a pawnbroker.
(2) FIREARM PART.—The term “firearm part” means—
(A) any part or component of a firearm as originally manufactured;
(B) any good manufactured or sold—
(i) for replacement or improvement of a firearm; or
(ii) as an accessory or addition to the firearm; and
(C) any good that is not a part or component of a firearm and is manufactured, sold, delivered, offered, or intended for use exclusively to safeguard individuals from injury by a firearm.
(3) FIREARM PRODUCT.—The term “firearm product” means a firearm, firearm part, non-powder firearm, and ammunition.
(4) FIREARM SAFETY REGULATION.—The term “firearm safety regulation” means a regulation from the use of those products.
(5) FIREARM SAFETY STANDARD.—The term “firearm safety standard” means a standard promulgated under this Act.
(6) NONPOWDER FIREARM.—The term “non-powder firearm” means a device specifically designed to discharge BBs, pellets, darts, or similar projectiles by the release of stored energy.
(7) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of the Treasury or the designee of the Secretary.

The term “product” means each term used in this Act that is not defined in subsection (a) shall have the meaning (if any) given that term in section 921(a) of title 18, United States Code.

TITLE I—REGULATION OF FIREARM PRODUCTS

SEC. 101. REGULATORY AUTHORITY.
(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations governing the design, manufacture, and performance of, and commerce in, firearm products, consistent with this Act, as are reasonably necessary to reduce or prevent unreasonable risk of injury resulting from the use of those products.
(b) MAXIMUM INTERVAL BETWEEN ISSUANCE OF PROPOSED AND FINAL REGULATION.—Not later than 120 days after the date on which the Secretary issues a proposed regulation under subsection (a) with respect to a matter, the Secretary shall issue a regulation in final form with respect to the matter.
(c) PETITIONS.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—Any person may petition the Secretary to—
(A) issue, amend, or repeal a regulation prescribed under subsection (a) of this section; or
(B) require the recall, repair, or replacement of a firearm product, or the issuance of refunds with respect to a firearm product.
(2) DEADLINE FOR ACTION ON PETITION.—Not later than 120 days after the date on which the Secretary receives a petition referred to in paragraph (1), the Secretary shall—
(A) grant, in whole or in part, or deny the petition; and
(B) provide the petitioner with the reasons for granting or denying the petition.

SEC. 102. ORDERS; INSPECTIONS.
(a) AUTHORITY TO PROHIBIT MANUFACTURE, SALE, OR TRANSFER OF FIREARM PRODUCTS MADE, IMPORTED, TRANSFERRED, OR DISTRIBUTED IN VIOLATION OF REGULATION.—The Secretary may issue an order prohibiting the manufacture, sale, or transfer of a firearm product which the Secretary finds has been manufactured, or has been or is intended to be imported, transferred, or distributed in violation of a regulation prescribed under this Act.
(b) AUTHORITY TO REQUIRE THE RECALL, REPAIR, OR REPLACEMENT OF, OR THE PROVISION OF COMPENSATION TO, FIREARM PRODUCTS MANUFACTURED, IMPORTED, TRANSFERRED, OR DISTRIBUTED IN VIOLATION OF REGULATION.—The Secretary may issue an order requiring the manufacturer of, and any dealer in, a firearm product which the Secretary determines poses an unreasonable risk of injury to the public, is not in compliance with a regulation prescribed under this Act, or is defective—

(1) provide notice of the risks associated with the product, and of how to avoid or reduce the risks, to—

(A) the public; and

(B) in the case of the manufacturer of the product, each dealer in the product; and

(C) in the case of a dealer in the product, the manufacturer of the product and the other persons known to the dealer as dealers in the product;

(2) bring the product into conformity with the regulations prescribed under this Act; or

(3) repair the product;

(4) replace the product with a like or equivalent product which is in compliance with those regulations;

(5) refund the purchase price of the product, or, if the product is more than 1 year old, a lesser amount based on the value of the product after reasonable use;

(6) recall the product from the stream of commerce; or

(7) submit to the Secretary a satisfactory plan for implementation of any action required under this subsection.

(c) Authority To Prohibit Manufacture, Importation, Transfer, Distribution Or Export Of Unreasonably Risky Firearm Products.—The Secretary may issue an order prohibiting the manufacture, importation, transfer, distribution, or export of a firearm product if the Secretary determines that the exercise of other authority under this Act would not be sufficient to prevent the product from posing an unreasonable risk of injury to the public.

(d) Inspections.—When the Secretary has reason to believe that a violation of this Act or of an order issued under this Act is being or has been committed, the Secretary may, at reasonable times—

(1) enter any place in which firearm products are manufactured, stored, or held, for distribution in commerce, and inspect those areas where the products are manufactured, stored, or held; and

(2) enter and inspect any conveyance being used to transport a firearm product.

TITLES II—PROHIBITIONS

SEC. 201. PROHIBITIONS.

(a) Failure of Manufacturer to Test and Certify Firearm Products.—It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture, transfer, distribute, or export a firearm product unless the manufacturer has tested the product after reasonable use; and furnished to the Secretary the name and address of the manufacturer of the product; (b) the name and address of any importer of the product; (c) the serial number of the product and the date the product was manufactured; (d) a specification of the regulations prescribed under this Act that apply to the product; (e) the certificate required by subsection (a)(3) with respect to the product; and (f) a copy of those records at reasonable times.

(b) Importation and Exportation of Unreasonably Risky Firearm Products.—It shall be unlawful for any person to import into the United States or export a firearm product that is not accompanied by the certificate required by subsection (a)(3).

(c) Commerce in Firearm Products in Violation of Order Issued or Regulation Prescribed Under This Act.—It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture, offer for sale, distribute in commerce, import into the United States, or export a firearm product if the Secretary determines that the product poses an unreasonable risk of injury to the public; and time is of the essence in protecting the public from the risks posed by the product, including—

(1) seizure of the product; and

(2) an order requiring—

(A) the purchasers of the product to be notified of the risks posed by the product; and

(B) the public to be notified of the risks posed by the product; or

(3) the defendant to recall, repair, or replace the product, or refund the purchase price of the product (or, if the product is more than 1 year old, a lesser amount based on the value of the product after reasonable use).

(d) Venue.—An action under subsection (a)(2) may be brought in the United States district court for the District of Columbia or for any district in which any defendant is found or transacts business.

SEC. 203. IMMEDIATELY HAZARDOUS FIREARMS.

(a) In General.—Notwithstanding the provisions of any other act of Congress, the Secretary of the Treasury may bring an action in a United States district court to restrain any person who is a manufacturer of, or dealer in, immediately hazardous firearm products from manufacturing, distributing, transferring, importing, or exporting the product.

(b) IMMEDIATELY HAZARDOUS FIREARM PRODUCT.—In subsection (a), the term ‘‘immediately hazardous firearm product’’ means any firearm product with respect to which the Secretary determines that—

(1) the product poses an unreasonable risk of injury to the public; and

(2) time is of the essence in protecting the public from the risks posed by the product, including—

(1) seizure of the product; and

(2) an order requiring—

(A) the purchasers of the product to be notified of the risks posed by the product; and

(B) the public to be notified of the risks posed by the product; or

(C) the defendant to recall, repair, or replace the product, or refund the purchase price of the product (or, if the product is more than 1 year old, a lesser amount based on the value of the product after reasonable use).

(d) Venue.—An action under subsection (a)(2) may be brought in the United States district court for the District of Columbia or for any district in which any defendant is found or transacts business.

SEC. 204. PRIVACY CAUSE OF ACTION.

(a) In General.—Any person aggrieved by any violation of this Act or of any regulation prescribed or order issued under this Act by another person may bring an action against such other person in any United States district court for damages, including consequential damages. In any action under this subsection, the court, in its discretion, may award to a prevailing plaintiff a reasonable attorney’s fee as part of the costs.

(b) Rule of Interpretation.—The remedy provided for in subsection (a) shall be in addition to any other remedy provided by common law or under Federal or State law.
this Act or of any regulation prescribed or order issued under this Act. In any action under this section, the court, in its discretion, may award to a prevailing plaintiff a reasonable attorney’s fee as part of the costs.

SEC. 306. EFFECT ON PRIVATE REMEDIES.
(a) irrelevancy of Compliance With This Act.—This Act or any order issued or regulation prescribed under this Act shall not relieve any person from liability to any person under common law or State statute by law.

(b) irrelevancy of Failure To Take Action Under This Act.—The failure of the Secretary to take any action authorized under this Act shall not be admissible in litigation relating to the product under common law or State statutory law.

Subtitle B—Criminal Enforcement

SEC. 351. CRIMINAL PENALTIES.
Any person who has received from the Secretary a notice that the person has violated a provision of this Act or of a regulation prescribed under this Act shall not relieve any person from liability to any person under common law or State statute by law.

Subsection (a) of this section, the court, in its discretion, may award to a prevailing plaintiff a reasonable attorney’s fee as part of the costs.

SEC. 401. FIREARM INJURY INFORMATION AND RESEARCH.
(a) in General.—The Secretary shall—
(1) collect, investigate, analyze, and share with other appropriate government agencies circumstances of death and injury associated with firearms; and
(2) conduct continuing studies and investigations of economic costs and losses resulting from firearm-related deaths and injuries.

(b) Other Data.—The Secretary shall—
(1) maintain current production and sales figures for each licensed manufacturer, broken down by the model, caliber, and type of firearms produced and sold by the licensee, including a list of the serial numbers of such firearms;
(2) conduct research on, studies of, and investigation into the safety of firearm products and improving the safety of firearm products; and
(3) develop firearm safety testing methods and test devices.

(c) Availability of Information.—On a regular basis, but not less frequently than annually, the Secretary shall make available to the public reports of the activities of the Secretary under subsections (a) and (b).

SEC. 402. ANNUAL REPORT TO CONGRESS.
(a) in General.—The Secretary shall prepare and submit to the President and Congress at the beginning of each regular session of Congress, a comprehensive report on the administration of this Act for the most recently completed fiscal year.

(b) Contents.—Each report submitted under subsection (a) shall include—
(1) a thorough description, developed in coordination with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, of the incidence of injury and death and effects on the population resulting from firearm products, including statistical projections, and a breakdown, as practicable, among the various types of such products associated with the injuries and deaths;
(2) a list of firearm safety regulations prescribed that year;
(3) an evaluation of the degree of compliance with firearm safety regulations, including a list of significant violations, court decisions, and settlements of alleged violations, by name and location of the violator or alleged violator, as the case may be;
(4) a summary of meetings between the Secretary or employees of the Secretary and representatives of industry, interested groups, or other interested parties.

TITLE V—RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAWS

SEC. 501. SUBORDINATION TO ARMS EXPORT CONTROL ACT.
In the event of any conflict between any provision of this Act and any provision of the Arms Export Control Act, the provision of the Arms Export Control Act shall control.

(ii) subsection (f)(2) (relating to cessation in eligible farming business), and
(iii) subparagraph (A) or (B) of subsection (f)(3) (relating to prohibited transactions and pledging account as security).

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—Paragraph (1)(A) shall not apply to—

(A) any distribution to the extent attributable to income of the Account, and

(B) the distribution of any contribution paid during a taxable year to a FARRM Account to the extent that such contribution exceeds the limitation applicable under subsection (b) if requirements similar to the requirements of section 408(d)(4) are met.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), distributions shall be treated as first attributable to income and then to other amounts.

(1) SPECIAL RULES.—

(1) TAX ON DEPOSITS IN ACCOUNT WHICH ARE NOT DISTRIBUTED WITHIN 5 YEARS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—If, at the close of any taxable year, there is a nonqualified balance in any FARRM Account—

(i) there shall be deemed distributed from such Account during such taxable year an amount equal to such balance, and

(ii) such amount is taxed for such taxable year under section 408(d) (relating to tax on prohibited transactions).

(2) NONQUALIFIED BALANCE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term ‘nonqualified balance’ means any balance in the Account on the last day of the taxable year which is attributable to contributions paid during such taxable year and are not contributed to the Account under section 4975(e)(2) (relating to contributions).

(2) ORDERING RULE.—For purposes of this paragraph, distributions from a FARRM Account (other than distributions of current income) shall be treated as made from deposits in the order in which such deposits were made following the earliest deposits.

(2) CESSATION IN ELIGIBLE BUSINESS.—At the close of the first disqualification period after a period for which the taxpayer was engaged in farming business, there shall be deemed distributed from the FARRM Account of the taxpayer an amount equal to the balance in such Account (if any) at the close of such period.

For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘disqualification period’ means any period of 2 consecutive taxable years for which the taxpayer is not engaged in an eligible farming business.

(3) CERTAIN RULES TO APPLY.—Rules similar to the following rules shall apply for purposes of this section—

(A) Section 220(f)(8) (relating to treatment on death).

(B) Section 468(e)(2) (relating to loss of exemption of account where individual wrongfully engages in prohibited transactions).

(C) Section 468(e)(4) (relating to effect of pledging account as security).

(D) Section 468(g) (relating to community property laws).

(E) Section 468(h) (relating to custodial accounts).

(4) WHEN PAYMENTS DEEMED MADE.—For purposes of this section, a taxpayer shall be deemed to have made a payment to a FARRM Account on the last day of a taxable year if such payment is made on an account of such taxable year and is made on or before the due date (without regard to extensions) for filing the return of tax for such taxable year.

(5) INDIVIDUAL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘individual’ shall not include an estate or trust.

(6) DEDUCTION NOT ALLOWED FOR SELF-EMPLOYMENT TAX.—The deduction allowable by reason of subsection (a) shall not be taken in determining the amount of an individual’s net earnings from self-employment (within the meaning of section 1402(a)) for purposes of chapter 2.

(g) Exceptions.—The trustee of a FARRM Account shall make such reports regarding such Account to the Secretary and to the person for whose benefit the Account is established with respect to contributions, distributions, and such other matters as the Secretary may require under regulations. The reports required by this subsection shall be filed at such time and in such manner and furnished to such persons at such time and in such manner as may be required by such regulations.

(h) TAX ON EXCESS CONTRIBUTIONS.—

(1) Subsection (a) of section 4973 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to tax on prohibited transactions) is amended by striking ‘‘(i)’’ and ‘‘(ii)’’ and inserting after ‘‘(i)’’ the following:

‘‘(ii) a FARRM Account (within the meaning of section 468C(d)), or’’;

(2) Section 4973(e)(2) of such Code, is amended by adding after (h) the following:

‘‘(h) EXCESS CONTRIBUTIONS TO FARRM ACCOUNTS.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘contribution’—

(A) shall be construed to mean any contribution (including a contribution of property) to a FARRM Account;

(B) shall be interpreted to include contributions of property made through the use of a credit or a loan arrangement;

(C) Section 4973(g) (relating to effect of prohibited transactions) if, with respect to such transaction, the account ceases to be a FARRM Account by reason of the application of section 468C(c)(3)(A) to such account to a certain tax-favored accounts and annuities) is amended by striking ‘‘(1)’’ and ‘‘(2)’’ and inserting ‘‘(1)’’ and ‘‘(2)’’ after the item relating to section 468B as follows:

‘‘Sec. 468C. Farm and Ranch Risk Management Accounts.’’;

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

Subtitle E—estate and Gift tax Relief

SEC. 111. REPEAL OF ESTATE, GIFT, AND GENERATION-SKIPPING TAXES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subtitle B of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is hereby repealed.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The repeal made by subsection (a) shall apply to the estates of decedents dying, and gifts and generation-skipping transfers made, after December 31, 2010.

SEC. 112. TERMINATION OF STEP UP IN BASIS AT DEATH.

(a) TERMINATION OF APPLICATION OF SECTION 1014.—Section 1014 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to basis of property acquired from a decedent) is amended by adding after the end of such section the following:

‘‘(7) TERMINATION.—In the case of a decedent dying after December 31, 2010, this section shall not apply to property for which basis is provided by section 1022.’’

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subsection (a) of section 1016 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to adjustments to basis at death) is amended by striking the item provided by section 1022 at the end of paragraph (26), by striking the period at the end of paragraph (27) and inserting ‘‘;’’ and, by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(28) to the extent provided in section 1022 (relating to basis for certain property acquired from a decedent dying after December 31, 2010).’’

SEC. 113. CARRYOVER BASIS AT DEATH.

(a) GENERAL RULE.—Part II of subchapter O of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to rules of general application) is amended by redesignating subsections thereof as subparagraphs (A) to (H) by inserting after subparagraph (G) the following:

‘‘(I) CARRYOVER BASIS PROPERTY DEFINED.—

‘‘(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘carryover basis property’ means any property—

(A) which is acquired from or passed from a decedent who died after December 31, 2010, and

(B) which is not excluded pursuant to paragraph (2).

The property taken into account under this section with respect to a decedent who died after December 31, 2010, this section shall be determined under section 1015.

(c) CARRYOVER BASIS PROPERTY ACQUIRED FROM A DECEDE NT DYING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 2010.

SEC. 1022. CARRYOVER BASIS FOR CERTAIN PROPERTY ACQUIRED FROM A DECE 1NT DYING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 2010.

(1) CARRYOVER BASIS.—Except as otherwise provided in this section, the basis of carryover basis property in the hands of a person acquiring such property from a decedent shall be determined under section 1015.

(2) CARRYOVER BASIS PROPERTY DEFINED.—

‘‘(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘carryover basis property’ means any property—

(A) which is acquired from or passed from a decedent who died after December 31, 2010, and

(B) which is not excluded pursuant to paragraph (2).

(2) Property taken into account under this section with respect to a decedent who died after December 31, 2010, shall be determined under section 1015 if such property would otherwise be taxable under this section if, with respect to such transaction, the account ceases to be a FARRM Account by reason of the application of section 468C(c)(3)(A) to such account to a certain tax-favored accounts and annuities) is amended by striking ‘‘(1)’’ and ‘‘(2)’’ and inserting ‘‘(1)’’ and ‘‘(2)’’ after the item relating to section 468B as follows:

‘‘Sec. 468C. Farm and Ranch Risk Management Accounts.’’

‘‘(A) any item of gross income in respect of a decedent described in section 691,’’
“(B) property of the decedent to the extent that the aggregate adjusted fair market value of such property does not exceed $1,300,000, and

“(C) property which was acquired from the decedent by the surviving spouse of the decedent (and which would be carryover basis property without regard to this subparagraph) but only to the extent that the fair market value of such property would have been deductible from the value of the taxable estate of the decedent under section 2056, as in effect on the day before the date of the asset’s inclusion in the decedent’s gross estate.”

For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘adjusted fair market value’ means, with respect to any property, fair market value reduced by any indebtedness secured by such property.

“3. Limitation on Exception for Property Acquired by Surviving Spouse.—The adjusted fair market value of property which is not carryover basis property by reason of paragraph (2)(C) shall not exceed $3,000,000.

“(4) Allocation of Exempted Amount.—The executor shall allocate the limitations under paragraphs (2)(B) and (3).

“5. Inflation Adjustment of Exempted Amounts.—In the case of decedents dying in calendar year 2011, the dollar amounts in paragraphs (2)(B) and (3) shall each be increased by an amount equal to the product of—

(A) such dollar amount, and

(B) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for such calendar year, determined by substituting ‘2010’ for ‘1992’ in subparagraph (B) thereof.

If any increase determined under the preceding sentence is not a multiple of $10,000, such increase shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10,000.

“c. Regulations.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

(b) MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS RELATED TO CARRYOVER BASIS.—

(1) Capital Gain Treatment for Inherited Art Work or Similar Property.—

(A) In General.—Subparagraph (C) of section 1221(a)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining capital asset) is amended by inserting ‘other than by reason of section 1022’ after ‘is determined’.

(B) Coordination with Section 170.—Paragraph (1) of section 170(e) of such Code (relating to intangibles of ordinary income and capital gain property) is amended by adding at the end the following: ‘For purposes of this paragraph, the determination of whether property is a capital asset shall be made without regard to the exception contained in subsection 1221(a)(3)(C) for basis determined under subsection 1022.’

(2) Determination of Executor.—Section 7701(a) of such Code (relating to definitions) is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘(47) Executor.—The term ‘executor’ means the executor or administrator of the decedent, or, if there is no executor or administrator appointed, qualified, and acting within the United States, then any person in actual or constructive possession of any property of the decedent.’

(3) Clerical Amendment.—The table of sections under chapter 1 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

‘Sec. 1022. Carryover basis for certain property acquired from a decedent dying after December 31, 2010.’

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to estates of decedents dying after December 31, 2010.

SEC. 114. ADDITIONAL REDUCTIONS OF ESTATE AND GIFT TAX RATES.

(a) Maximum Rate of Tax Reduced to 50 Percent.—

(1) In General.—The table contained in section 2001(c)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by striking the two highest rate brackets and inserting the following: ‘Over $2,500,000 $1,025,800, plus 90% of the excess over $2,500,000.’

(2) Phase-In of Reduced Rate.—Subsection (c) of section 2001 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

‘(3) Phase-In of Reduced Rate.—In the case of estates of decedents dying, and gifts made, during 2002, the last item in the table contained in paragraph (1) shall be applied by substituting ‘35%’ for ‘50%’.

(b) Repeal of Phased-Out Graduated Rates.—Subsection (c) of section 2001 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by striking paragraph (2) and redesignating paragraph (3), as added by subsection (a), as paragraph (2).

(c) Additional Reductions of Rates of Tax.—Subsection (c) of section 2001 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as so amended, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

‘(3) Phased-Out of Tax.—In the case of estates of decedents dying, and gifts made, during any calendar year after 2003 and before 2011:

(A) In General.—Except as provided in subparagraph (C), the tentative tax under this subsection shall be determined by using a table prescribed by the Secretary (in lieu of using the table contained in paragraph (1) which is the same as such table; except that—

(i) each of the rates of tax shall be reduced by the percentage points of reduction determined under subparagraph (B), and

(ii) the amounts setting forth the tax shall be reduced by the extent necessary to reflect the adjustments under clause (1).

(B) Percentage Points of Reduction.—The number of percentage points reduction for any calendar year after 2002 but before 2011 is determined by using the following table:

The number of percentage points reduction is increased for estates of decedents dying after December 31, 2003, and gifts made after December 31, 2003.

(d) Coordination with Income Tax Rates.—The reductions under subparagraph (A)—

(i) shall not reduce any rate under paragraph (1) below the lowest rate in section 2011(b); and

(ii) shall not reduce the highest rate under paragraph (1) below the highest rate in section 1(c).

(1) Coordination with Credit for State Death Taxes.—Rules similar to the rules of subparagraph (A) shall apply to the table contained in section 2011(b) except that the Secretary shall prescribe percentage points of reduction based on the proportionate relationship (as in effect before any reduction under this paragraph) between the credit under section 2011 and the tax rates under subsection (c).

(2) Effective Dates.—

(A) Subsections (a) and (b)—The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) shall apply to estates of decedents dying, and gifts made, after December 31, 2001.

(B) Subsection (c)—The amendment made by subsection (c) shall apply to estates of decedents dying, and gifts made, after December 31, 2003.

SEC. 115. UNIFIED CREDIT AGAINST ESTATE AND GIFT TAXES.

(a) In General.—

(1) Estate Tax.—Subsection (b) of section 2001 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to computation of tax) is amended to read as follows:

‘(1) Computation of Tax.—

(i) The tax imposed by this section shall be the amount equal to the excess (if any) of—

(A) the tentative tax determined under paragraph (2), over

(B) the aggregate amount of tax which would have been payable under chapter 11 with respect to gifts made by the decedent after December 31, 1976, if the provisions of subsection (c) (as in effect at the decedent’s death) had been applicable at the time of such gifts.

(2) Tentative Tax.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the tentative tax determined under this paragraph is a tax computed under subsection (c) on the excess of—

(A) the sum of—

(i) the amount of the taxable estate, and

(ii) the amount of the adjusted taxable gifts, over

(B) the exemption amount for the calendar year in which the decedent died.

(3) Exemption Amount.—For purposes of paragraph (2), the term ‘exemption amount’ means the amount determined in accordance with the following table:

(4) Adjusted Taxable Gifts.—For purposes of paragraph (2), the term ‘adjusted taxable gifts’ means the total amount of the taxable gifts (within the meaning of section 2503) made by the decedent after December 31, 1976, other than gifts which are includible in the gross estate of the decedent.

(2) Gift Tax.—Subsection (a) of section 2502 of such Code (relating to computation of tax) is amended to read as follows:

‘(1) Computation of Tax.—

(i) The tax imposed by section 2501 for each calendar year shall be the amount equal to the excess (if any) of—

(A) the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for such calendar year and for each of the preceding calendar periods, over

(B) the exemption amount under section 2001(b)(3) for such calendar year.’

(3) Repeal of Unified Credits.—

(1) Section 1010 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to unified credit against estate tax) is hereby repealed.

(2) Section 2505 of such Code (relating to unified credit against gift tax) is hereby repealed.

(c) Conforming Amendments.—

(1) Subsection (b) of section 1011 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended—

(A) by striking ‘adjusted’ after ‘taxable’ in the table; and

(B) by striking the last sentence.

(2) Subsection (f) of section 2511 of such Code is amended by striking ‘, reduced by the amount of the unified credit provided by section 1010’.

(3) Paragraph (a) of section 2512(c)(1) of such Code is amended by striking ‘2010’.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE S1409
(4) Paragraph (2) of section 2014(b) of such Code is amended by striking “2010, 2011,” and inserting “2011.”

(5) Clause (ii) of section 2056(a)(12)(C) of such Code is amended by inserting the following new paragraph:

“(ii) to treat any reduction in the tax imposed by paragraph (1)(A) by reason of the credit allowable under section 2001(c) on the amount of the adjusted taxable gifts, as defined in section 2001(b)(3), over the excess of $1,300,000 over the exemption amount under section 2001(b)(3).”

(7)(A) Subsection (b) of section 2101 of such Code is amended to read as follows:

“TENTATIVE TAX.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amount of the tentative tax determined under section 2010(a) with respect to the gross estate of the decedent determined under section 2035(b)(3) shall be the amount equal to the excess of—

(A) the tentative tax determined under paragraph (2), over

(B) a tentative tax computed under section 2010(c) on the amount of the adjusted taxable gifts.

(2) TENTATIVE TAX.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the tentative tax determined under this subsection shall not exceed the excess of—

(A) the sum of—

(i) the amount of the taxable estate, and

(ii) the amount of the adjusted taxable gifts, over

(B) the exemption amount for the calendar year in which the decedent died.

(3) EXEMPTION AMOUNT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘exemption amount’ means $60,000.

(B) EXEMPTIONS FOR POSSESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES.—In the case of a decedent who is considered to be a nonresident not a citizen of the United States under section 2293, the exemption amount under this paragraph shall be the greater of—

(i) $60,000, or

(ii) that proportion of $175,000 which the value of that part of the decedent’s gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States bears to the value of his entire gross estate wherever situated.

(C) Special Rules.—

(1) COORDINATION WITH TREATIES.—To the extent required under any treaty obligation of the United States, the exemption amount under this section shall be amended to the extent necessary to reflect the amount which bears the same ratio to—

(i) the exemption amount under section 2001(b)(3) for the calendar year in which the decedent died as the value of the part of the decedent’s gross estate which at the time of his death is situated in the United States bears to the value of his entire gross estate wherever situated.

(2) UNDERTAKING TO COMPLY WITH TACTICAL RULES.—(A) IN GENERAL.—If any individual makes an indirect skip during such individual’s lifetime, any unused portion of such individual’s life-time exemption amount shall be allocated to the property transferred to the extent necessary to make the allocation ratio for such property zero.

(B) TREATMENT OF UNUSED PORTION.—If the amount of the indirect skip exceeds the entire unused portion, the entire unused portion shall be allocated to the property transferred.

(3) UNUSED PORTION.—For purposes of paragraph (2), the term ‘unused portion’ means the portion of—

(a) exempt property transferred to the extent of the life-time exemption amount with respect to such property, or

(b) property transferred by an individual’s testamentary or inter vivos transfer of such individual’s property provided that such transfer was made only at the close of the estate tax inclusion period.

(4) AUTOMATIC ALLOCATIONS TO CERTAIN TRUSTS.—For purposes of this subsection—

(A) inclusions of the value of property transferred to the extent of the life-time exemption amount with respect to such property, or

(B) inclusions of the value of property transferred by an individual’s testamentary or inter vivos transfer of such individual’s property provided that such transfer was made only at the close of the estate tax inclusion period.

(5) APPLICABILITY AND EFFECT.—(A) IN GENERAL.—(i) may elect to have this subsection not apply to—
"(i) In General.—(a) EFFECTIVE DATES.—(1) DEEMED ALLOCATION MADE.—If the allocation of so much of the transferor’s unused GST exemption to any previous transfer or transfers to the trust on a chronological basis.

(2) SPECIAL RULES.—If the allocation under paragraph (1) by the Secretary respecting allocations of the GST exemption under section 2632 described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b), and (ii) an election under subsection (b)(3) or (4) of such Code (as so added) shall apply to transfers made before the date of enactment after December 31, 2000.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATES.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to transfers made before the date of enactment after December 31, 2000.

(c) RELIEF FROM LATE ELECTIONS.—Section 2642(b)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)) shall apply to requests pending on or filed after December 31, 2000.

(2) SUBSTANTIAL COMPLIANCE.—Section 2642(g)(2) of such Code (as so added) shall apply to subjects to chapter 11 or 12 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, made after December 31, 2000.

(3) EASEMENTS.—Subsection (a)(2)(A) of section 2632(c)(1) of such Code (as so added) shall apply to any tax expenditures made after December 31, 2000.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATES.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to estates of decedents dying after December 31, 2000.

(b) RELATIONSHIPS OF INCOME AND ESTATE TAX CREDITS.—In determining whether there has been substantial compliance, all relevant circumstances shall be taken into account, including evidence of intent contained in the trust instrument or instrument of transfer and such other factors as the Secretary deems relevant.

(c) Clarification of Date for Determining Value of Land and Easement.—(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 2631(c)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (defining applicable percentage) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection: "(ii) EFFECTIVE DATES.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to transfers subject to chapter 11 or 12 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 made after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 119. RELIEF PROVISIONS.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 2642 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection: "(c) RELIEF PROVISIONS.—(1) RELIEF FROM LATE ELECTIONS.—In General.—The Secretary shall by regulation prescribe such circumstances and procedures under which extensions of time will be granted to make—

(2) RELIEF FROM LATE ELECTIONS.—In determining whether to grant relief under this paragraph, the Secretary shall take into account all relevant circumstances, including evidence of intent contained in the trust instrument or instrument of transfer and such other factors as the Secretary deems relevant.

(3) RELIEF FROM LATE ELECTIONS.—In determining whether to grant relief under this paragraph, the Secretary shall take into account such values as of the date of the contribution referred to in paragraph (8)(B)."

SEC. 118. MODIFICATION OF CERTAIN VALUATION RULES.

(a) GIFTS FOR WHICH GIFT TAX RETURN FILED OR DEEMED ALLOCATION MADE.—If the allocation of the GST exemption to any previous transfer or transfers for purposes of section 2642(a) shall be determined as if such allocation had been made on a timely filed gift tax return for each calendar year within which each such transfer was made.

(2) FUTURE INTEREST.—For purposes of this subsection, a person has a future interest in a trust to which any transferor was a grantor of a grantor of a grantor of the transferor’s spouse or former spouse, and (ii) is assigned to a generation below the generation assignment of the transferor, and (iii) such person predeceases the transferor, then the transferor may make an allocation of any of such transferor’s unused GST exemption to any previous transfer or transfers to the trust on a chronological basis.

(b) DEEMED ALLOCATION.—(1) GIFT FOR WHICH GIFT TAX RETURN FILED OR DEEMED ALLOCATION MADE.—If the allocation of the GST exemption to any previous transfer or transfers to trusts thereafter for purposes of this chapter of post-death changes in value are not prescribed by the Secretary.

(2) TIMING AND MANNER OF SEVERANCES.—A severance pursuant to this paragraph may be made at any time. The Secretary shall prescribe by forms or regulations the manner in which the distribution of the estate tax period, and after the date of such transfer, or, in the case of a transfer as a result of the death of the transferor, shall have an inclusion ratio of greater than zero. If a trust has an inclusion ratio of greater than zero and less than 1, a severance is a qualified severance only if the single trust is divided into two trusts, one of which has a fractional share of the total value of all trust assets equal to the applicable fraction of the single trust immediately before the severance. In such case, the trust receiving such fractional share shall have an inclusion ratio of zero and the other trust shall have an inclusion ratio of 1.

(c) RETROACTIVE ALLOCATIONS.—If the Secretary makes an allocation under the uniformity provisions of this paragraph.

(d) RETROACTIVE ALLOCATIONS.—(1) GENERAL.—If any of such transferor’s unused GST exemption available to be allocated shall be determined immediately before such death.

(2) FUTURE INTEREST.—For purposes of this subsection, a person has a future interest in a trust to which the transferor’s unused GST exemption is allocated if the transferor’s unused GST exemption is allocated to such trust.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATES.—(1) DEEMED ALLOCATION.—Section 2623(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)), and the amendment made by subsection (b), shall apply to transfers subject to chapter 11 or 12 after December 31, 2000, and to estate tax inclusion periods ending after December 31, 2000.

(2) RETROACTIVE ALLOCATIONS.—Section 2623(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)) shall apply to deaths of non-skip persons occurring after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 117. SEVERING OF TRUSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 2642 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to inclusion ratio) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(A) In General.—If a trust is severed in a trust on a chronological basis.

(b) ELECTIONS.—(1) ELECTION WITH RESPECT TO INDIRECT SKIPS.—An election under subparagraph (A) of this section shall apply to transfers made after December 31, 2000, and to estate tax inclusion periods, on and after the close of such estate tax inclusion period, and (i) ELECTIONS WITH RESPECT TO INDIRECT SKIPS.—If a trust is severed in a trust on a chronological basis.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATES.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to transfers made before the date of enactment after December 31, 2000.

(d) RETROACTIVE ALLOCATIONS.—(1) GENERAL.—If any of such transferor’s unused GST exemption available to be allocated shall be determined immediately before such death.

(2) FUTURE INTEREST.—For purposes of this subsection, a person has a future interest in a trust to which the transferor’s unused GST exemption is allocated if the transferor’s unused GST exemption is allocated to such trust.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATES.—(1) DEEMED ALLOCATION.—Section 2623(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)), and the amendment made by subsection (b), shall apply to transfers subject to chapter 11 or 12 after December 31, 2000, and to estate tax inclusion periods ending after December 31, 2000.

(2) RETROACTIVE ALLOCATIONS.—Section 2623(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)) shall apply to deaths of non-skip persons occurring after December 31, 2000.

SEC. 117. SEVERING OF TRUSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 2642 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to inclusion ratio) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(A) In General.—If a trust is severed in a trust on a chronological basis.

(b) ELECTIONS.—(1) ELECTION WITH RESPECT TO INDIRECT SKIPS.—An election under subparagraph (A) of this section shall apply to transfers made after December 31, 2000, and to estate tax inclusion periods, on and after the close of such estate tax inclusion period, and (ii) is assigned to a generation below the generation assignment of the transferor, and (iii) such person predeceases the transferor, then the transferor may make an allocation of any of such transferor’s unused GST exemption available to be allocated shall be determined immediately before such death.

(2) FUTURE INTEREST.—For purposes of this subsection, a person has a future interest in a trust to which the transferor’s unused GST exemption is allocated if the transferor’s unused GST exemption is allocated to such trust.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATES.—(1) DEEMED ALLOCATION.—Section 2623(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)), and the amendment made by subsection (b), shall apply to transfers subject to chapter 11 or 12 after December 31, 2000, and to estate tax inclusion periods ending after December 31, 2000.

(2) RETROACTIVE ALLOCATIONS.—Section 2623(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (a)) shall apply to deaths of non-skip persons occurring after December 31, 2000.
TITLES II—STUDY OF COSTS OF REGULATIONS ON FARMERS, RANCHERS, AND FORESTERS

SEC. 201. COMPTROLLER GENERAL STUDY OF REGULATIONS.

(a) Data Review and Collection.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall—

(1) conduct a review of existing Federal and non-Federal studies and data regarding the cost to farmers, ranchers, and foresters of complying with existing or proposed Federal regulations directly affecting farmers, ranchers, and foresters; and

(2) as necessary, obtain and analyze new data concerning the costs to farmers, ranchers, and foresters of complying with Federal regulations proposed as of February 1, 2001, directly affecting farmers, ranchers, and foresters.

(b) Use of Data.—Using the studies and data reviewed and collected under subsection (a), the Comptroller General shall—

(1) assess the overall costs to farmers, ranchers, and foresters of complying with existing and proposed Federal regulations directly affecting farmers, ranchers, and foresters; and

(2) identify and recommend reasonable alternative Federal regulations that will achieve the objectives of the regulations at less cost to farmers, ranchers, and foresters.

(c) Submission of Results.—Not later than February 1, 2002, the Comptroller General shall submit to the Secretary of Agriculture, the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate, and the Committee on Agriculture, the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives the results of the assessment conducted under subsection (b)(1) and the recommendations prepared under subsection (b)(2).

(A) reducing or eliminating exceptions to the principle of national treatment;

(B) freeing the transfer of funds relating to investments;

(C) reducing or eliminating performance requirements and other unreasonable barriers to the establishment and operation of investments;

(D) seeking to establish standards for expropriation and compensation for expropriation, consistent with United States legal principles and practice; and

(E) providing meaningful procedures for resolving investment disputes.

(4) intellectual property.—The principal negotiating objectives of the United States regarding trade-related intellectual property are—

(A) to further promote adequate and effective protection of intellectual property rights, including through—

(i) ensuring accelerated and full implementation of agreements on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights referred to in section 101(d)(15) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 3511(d)(15)), particularly with respect to United States industries whose products are subject to the lengthiest transition periods for full compliance, by developing countries with that Agreement, and

(ii) ensuring that the provisions of any multilateral or bilateral trade agreement entered into by the United States provide protection at least as strong as the protection afforded by chapter 17 of the North American Free Trade Agreement and the annexes thereto;

(B) providing strong protection for new and emerging technologies and new methods of transmitting and distributing products embodying intellectual property;

(C) preventing or eliminating discrimination with respect to products affecting the availability, acquisition, scope, maintenance, use, and enforcement of intellectual property rights; and

(D) providing strong enforcement of intellectual property rights, including through cooperative civil, administrative, and criminal enforcement mechanisms; and

(iv) providing strong enforcement of intellectual property rights, including through cooperative civil, administrative, and criminal enforcement mechanisms; and

(B) to secure fair, equitable, and nondiscriminatory opportunities for United States persons that rely upon intellectual property protection.

(5) transparency.—The principal negotiating objective of the United States with respect to transparency is to obtain broader application of the principle of transparency through—

(A) increased and more timely public access to information regarding trade issues and the activities of international trade institutions; and

(B) increased openness of dispute settlement proceedings, including under the World Trade Organization.

(b) Principal Trade Negotiating Objectives.—

(1) trade barriers and distortions.—The principal negotiating objectives of the United States regarding trade barriers and other trade distortions are—

(A) to eliminate or restrict—

(i) tariffs and other charges that decrease market opportunities for United States exports and to obtain fairer and more open conditions of trade by reducing or eliminating tariff and non-tariff barriers and other measures and practices of foreign governments directly related to trade that decrease market opportunities for United States exports or otherwise distort United States trade;

(ii) barriers to international trade in services, including dispute settlement; and

(B) to obtain reciprocal tariff and non-tariff barrier elimination agreements, with particular attention to those tariff categories covered in section 111(b) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 3212(b)).

(2) trade in services.—The principal negotiating objectives of the United States regarding trade in services is to reduce or eliminate barriers to international trade in services, including regulatory and other barriers that deny national treatment or unreasonably restrict the establishment or operations of service suppliers.

(3) foreign investment.—The principal negotiating objective of the United States regarding foreign investment is to reduce or eliminate artificial or trade-distorting barriers to trade related foreign investment by—

(A) reducing or eliminating exceptions to the principle of national treatment;

(B) freeing the transfer of funds relating to investments;

(C) reducing or eliminating performance requirements and other unreasonable barriers to the establishment and operation of investments;

(D) seeking to establish standards for expropriation and compensation for expropriation, consistent with United States legal principles and practice; and

(E) providing meaningful procedures for resolving investment disputes.

(4) intellectual property.—The principal negotiating objectives of the United States regarding trade-related intellectual property are—

(A) to further promote adequate and effective protection of intellectual property rights, including through—

(i) ensuring accelerated and full implementation of agreements on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights referred to in section 101(d)(15) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 3511(d)(15)), particularly with respect to United States industries whose products are subject to the lengthiest transition periods for full compliance, by developing countries with that Agreement, and

(ii) ensuring that the provisions of any multilateral or bilateral trade agreement entered into by the United States provide protection at least as strong as the protection afforded by chapter 17 of the North American Free Trade Agreement and the annexes thereto;

(B) providing strong protection for new and emerging technologies and new methods of transmitting and distributing products embodying intellectual property;

(C) preventing or eliminating discrimination with respect to products affecting the availability, acquisition, scope, maintenance, use, and enforcement of intellectual property rights; and

(D) providing strong enforcement of intellectual property rights, including through cooperative civil, administrative, and criminal enforcement mechanisms; and

(iv) providing strong enforcement of intellectual property rights, including through cooperative civil, administrative, and criminal enforcement mechanisms; and

(B) to secure fair, equitable, and nondiscriminatory opportunities for United States persons that rely upon intellectual property protection.

(5) transparency.—The principal negotiating objective of the United States with respect to transparency is to obtain broader application of the principle of transparency through—

(A) increased and more timely public access to information regarding trade issues and the activities of international trade institutions; and

(B) increased openness of dispute settlement proceedings, including under the World Trade Organization.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this subsection shall apply to estates of decedents dying after December 31, 1997.
following aspects of foreign government policies and practices regarding labor, environment, and other matters that are directly related to trade:

(A) To ensure that foreign labor, environmental, health, or safety policies and practices do not arbitrarily or unjustifiably discriminate or serve as disguised barriers to trade.

(B) To ensure that foreign governments do not derogate from or waive existing domestic environmental, health, safety, or labor measures that deter exploitative child labor, as an encouragement to gain competitive advantage in international trade.

(3) A PPLICABILITY OF TRADE AUTHORITY—A trade authority may be extended under subparagraph (a) if the President determines that the objectives of this title will be promoted thereby, the President—

(A) may enter into trade agreements with foreign countries before—

(1) October 1, 2003, or

(2) October 1, 2007, if trade authorities procedures are extended under subsection (c), and

(B) may, subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), proclaim—

(i) such modification or continuance of any existing duty,

(ii) such continuance of existing duty-free or excise treatment, or

(iii) such additional duties, as the President determines to be required or appropriate to carry out any such trade agreement. The President shall notify the Congress of the President's intention to enter into an agreement under this subsection.

(2) LIMITATIONS.—No proclamation may be made under paragraph (1) that—

(A) reduces any rate of duty (other than a rate of duty that does not exceed 0.5 percent ad valorem on the date of enactment of this Act) to a rate of duty that is less than 50 percent of the rate of the duty that applies on such date under the Act;

(B) reduces the rate of duty on an article to take effect on a date that is more than 10 years after the first reduction that is proclaimed to carry out a trade agreement with respect to such article;

(C) increases any rate of duty above the rate that applied on January 1, 2001.

(3) AGGREGATE REDUCTION; EXEMPTION FROM STAGING.—

(A) AGGREGATE REDUCTION.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the aggregate reduction of duties (as a single, continuing reduction) which is in effect on any day pursuant to a trade agreement entered into under paragraph (1) shall not exceed the aggregate reduction which would have been in effect on such day if—

(i) a reduction of 3 percent ad valorem or a reduction of one-tenth of the total reduction, whichever is greater, is taken effect on the effective date of the first reduction proclaimed under paragraph (1) to carry out such agreement with respect to such article; and

(ii) a reduction equal to the amount applicable under clause (i) had taken effect at 1-year intervals after the effective date of such first reduction.

(B) EXEMPTION FROM STAGING.—No staging is required under subparagraph (A) with respect to a duty reduction that is proclaimed under paragraph (1) for an article of a kind that is not produced in the United States. The United States International Trade Commission shall, before the effective date of the identity of articles that may be exempted from staging under this subparagraph.

(4) ROUNDS.—If the President determines that such action will not simplify the computation of reductions under paragraph (3), the President may proclaim the modification of a duty or staged rate reduction that may not be proclaimed by reason of paragraph (2) may take effect only if a provision authorizing such reduction is included within an implementing bill provided for under section 305 and that bill is enacted into law.

(5) OTHER TARIFF MODIFICATIONS.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2) through (5), the President may, without regard to this paragraph and the next lower whole number; or

(B) one-half of 1 percent ad valorem, on a provided for under subparagraph (D) may take effect only if a provision authorizing such reduction is included within an implementing bill provided for under section 305 and that bill is enacted into law.

(6) OTHER TARIFF MODIFICATIONS.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2) through (5), the President may, without regard to this paragraph and the next lower whole number; or

(B) one-half of 1 percent ad valorem, on a

(7) AUTHORITY UNDER URUGUAY ROUND AGREEMENTS ACT NOT AFFECTED.—Nothing in this section shall limit the authority provided to the President under section 111(b) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (U.S.C. 3571(b)).

(6) OTHER LIMITATIONS.—A rate of duty reapply to a bill of either House of Congress consisting only of—

(A) a provision approving a trade agreement entered into under this subsection and approved by the Congress; or

(B) a provision directly related to the principal objectives set forth in section 302(b) achieved in such trade agreement, if those provisions are necessary for the operation or implementation of United States rights or obligations under such trade agreement,

(C) provisions that contain or effect of the provisions of the trade agreement,

(D) provisions to provide adjustment assistance to workers and firms adversely affected by trade, and

(E) provisions necessary for purposes of complying with section 232 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 in implementing the trade agreement, to the same extent as such section 151 applies to implementing bills under that section. A bill to which this subparagraph applies shall be referred, in the House of Representatives and the Senate, and each joint committee of the Congress by any member of such House, and shall be referred, in the House of Representatives, to the Committee on Ways and Means and to the Committee on Rules. The provisions of sections 152(d) and (e) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2122(d) and (e)) (relating to the floor consideration of certain resolutions in the House and Senate) apply to an extension disapproval resolution.

(3) CONSULTATION REGARDING NEGOTIATIONS.—

(A) The President shall consult with the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate; and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate concerning the results of the assessment, whether it is in the interest of the United States to further tariff reductions based on the conclusions reached in the assessment, and how all applicable negotiating objectives will be met.

(B) CONSULTATION WITH CONGRESS BEFORE AGREEMENTS ENTERED INTO.—

(1) CONSULTATION.—Before entering into any trade agreement under section 303(b), the President shall consult with—

(A) the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate; and

(B) each other committee of the House and the Senate, and each joint committee of the Congress, which has jurisdiction over legislation involving subject matters which would be affected by the trade agreement.

(2) SCOPE.—The consultation described in paragraph (1) shall include consultation with respect to—

(A) the nature of the agreement; and

(B) how and to what extent the agreement will achieve the applicable purposes, policies, and objectives of this title, and a statement that such progress justifies the continuation of negotiations; and a statement of the reasons why the extension is needed to complete the negotiations.

(3) REPORT TO CONGRESS BY THE ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—The President shall promptly inform the Advisory Committee for Trade Policy and Negotiations established under section 135 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2155) of the President’s decision to submit a report to the Congress under paragraph (2). The Advisory Committee shall submit to the Congress as soon as practicable, but not later than August 1, 2003, a written report that contains—

(A) its views regarding the progress that has been made in negotiations to achieve the purposes, policies, and objectives of this title; and

(B) a statement of its views, and the reasons therefor, regarding whether the extension requested under paragraph (2) should be approved or disapproved.

(4) REPORTS MAY BE CLASSIFIED.—The reports submitted to the Congress under paragraph (2) of this title may be classified to the extent the President determines appropriate.

(5) EXTENSION DISAPPROVAL RESOLUTION.—

(A) A provision approving a trade agreement entered into under this subsection and section 151 of the Trade Act of 1974 to any implementing bill submitted with respect to any trade agreement entered into under section 303(b) of the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Authorities Act of 2001 after September 30, 2003, with the blank space being filled with the name of the resolving House of the Congress.

(B) An extension disapproval resolution—

(i) may be introduced in either House of the Congress by any member of such House; and

(ii) shall be referred, in the House of Representatives, to the Committee on Ways and Means and to the Committee on Rules.

(C) The provisions of sections 152(d) and (e) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2122(d) and (e)) (relating to the floor consideration of certain resolutions in the House and Senate) apply to an extension disapproval resolution.

(6) Extension disapproval resolution—

(A) the Senate to consider any extension disapproval resolution not reported by the Committee on Finance;

(B) the House of Representatives to consider any extension disapproval resolution not reported by the Committee on Ways and Means and by the Committee on Rules; or

(C) either House of Congress to consider an extension disapproval resolution after September 30, 2003.

SEC. 304. IMPLEMENTATION OF TRADE AGREEMENTS.

A provision approving a trade agreement entered into under section 303(a) or (b) of this Act shall be provided to the President, the Congress, and the United States Representative not later than 30 days after the date on which the President notifies the Congress under section 303(a)(1) or 303(a)(1)(A) of the President’s intention to enter into the agreement.

(1) CONSULTATION REGARDING THE IMPLEMENTATION OF TRADE AGREEMENTS.—

(A) CONSULTATION.—In addition to the requirements set forth in section 135 of the Trade Act of 1974 regarding any trade agreement entered into under section 303(a) or (b) of this Act shall be provided to the President, the Congress, and the United States Representative not later than 30 days after the date on which the President notifies the Congress under section 303(a)(1) or 303(a)(1)(A) of the President’s intention to enter into the agreement. The consultations described in paragraph (A) shall concern the manner in which the negotiation will address the objective of reducing or eliminating a specific trade barrier, and the agreement will contain provisions related to trade that decreases market opportunities for United States exports or otherwise disadexisting laws that the President considers would be required in order to bring the United States into compliance with the agreement;

(b) If, after entering into the agreement, the President submits a copy of the final legal text of the agreement, together with—

(i) a draft of an implementing bill described in paragraph (3);

(ii) a statement of any administrative action proposed to implement the trade agreement; and

(iii) the supporting information described in paragraph (2); and

D the implementing bill is enacted into law.

(2) SUPPORTING INFORMATION.—The supporting information required under paragraph (1)(C)(iii) consists of—

(A) an explanation as to how the implementing bill and proposed administrative action will change or affect existing law; and

(B) a statement—

(i) asserting that the agreement makes progress in achieving the applicable purposes, policies, and objectives of this title;

(ii) setting forth the reasons of the President regarding

(I) how and to what extent the agreement makes progress in achieving the applicable purposes, policies, and objectives referred to in clause (1)

(II) whether and how the agreement changes provisions of an agreement previously negotiated;

(III) how the agreement serves the interests of United States commerce; and

(IV) how the implementing bill meets the standards set forth in section 303(b)(3).

(3) RECIPROCAL BENEFITS.—In order to ensure that a foreign country that is not a party to a trade agreement entered into under this Act does not receive benefits under the agreement unless the country is also subject to the obligations under the agreement, the implementing bill submitted with respect to the agreement shall provide that the benefits and obligations under the agreement apply only to the parties to the agreement, if such application is consistent with the terms of the agreement. The implementing bill may also provide that the benefits and obligations under the agreement do not apply uniformly to all parties to the agreement. Application is consistent with the terms of the agreement.

(b) LIMITATIONS ON TRADE AUTHORITY PROCEDURES.—

(1) FOR LACK OF CONSULTATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The trade authorities procedures shall not apply to any implementation of a trade agreement entered into under section 303(b) if during the 60-day period beginning on the date that one House of Congress agrees to a procedural disapproval resolution by the Committee on Ways and Means or the chairman or rank—

(iii) the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2192(d) and (e) (relating to the floor consideration of certain resolutions in the House and Senate) apply to a procedural disapproval resolution.

(c) It is not in order for the House of Representatives to consider any procedural disapproval resolution not reported by the Committee on Ways and Means and by the Committee on Rules.

(c) RULES OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND SENATE.—Subsection (b) of this section and section 303(c) are enacted by the Congress—

(I) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the House of Representatives and the Senate, respectively, and such procedures supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such other rules;

(ii) with the full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rules of both Houses (in the case of that House) at any time, in the same manner, and to the same extent as any other rule of that House.

SEC. 306. TREATMENT OF CERTAIN TRADE AGREEMENTS.

(a) CERTAIN AGREEMENTS.—Notwithstanding section 303(b)(2), if an agreement to which section 303(b) applies—

(1) is entered into under the auspices of the World Trade Organization regarding trade in information technology products,

(2) is entered into under the auspices of the World Trade Organization regarding extended negotiations on financial services as described in section 135(a) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 5555(a)(A)),

(3) is entered into under the auspices of the World Trade Organization regarding the rules of origin work program described in Article 9 of the Agreement on Rules of Origin referred to in section 101(d)(10) of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 3511(d)(10)), or

(4) is entered into with Chile, and results from negotiations that were commenced before the date of enactment of this Act, subsection (b) shall apply.

(b) TREATMENT OF AGREEMENTS.—In the case of any agreement to which subsection (a) applies—

(1) the applicability of the trade authorities procedures to implementing bills shall be determined with regard to the requirements of section 304(a), and any procedural disapproval resolution under section 303(b)(1)(B) shall not be on the basis of a failure to report, or refusal to comply with the provisions of section 304(a); and

(2) the President shall consult regarding the negotiations described in subsection (a) with the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Finance.

SEC. 307. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) In General.—Title I of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2111 et seq.) is amended as follows:

SEC. 401. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Agricultural Trade Freedom Act".

SEC. 402. DEFINITIONS.

In this title, the terms "agricultural commodity" and "United States agricultural commodity" have the meanings given in section 102 of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5601).

SEC. 403. AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES, LIVE-STOCK, AND PRODUCTS EXCEPTED FROM UNILATERAL AGRICULTURAL SANCTIONS.

Subtitle B of title IV of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5661 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 418. AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES, LIVE-STOCK, AND PRODUCTS EXCEPTED FROM UNILATERAL AGRICULTURAL SANCTIONS.

"(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

"(1) CURRENT SANCTION.—The term 'current sanction' means an unilateral agricultural sanction that is in effect on the date of enactment of the Agricultural Trade Freedom Act.

"(2) NEW SANCTION.—The term 'new sanction' means an unilateral agricultural sanction that becomes effective after the date of enactment of that Act.

"(3) UNILATERAL AGRICULTURAL SANCTION.—The term 'unilateral agricultural sanction' means an prohibition, restriction, or condition that is imposed on the export of an agricultural commodity to a foreign country or foreign entity by an unilateral agricultural sanction imposed by the United States for reasons of the national interest, except in a case in which the United States imposes the measure pursuant to a multilateral regime and the other members of that regime have agreed to impose substantially equivalent measures.

"(b) EXEMPTION.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3) notwithstanding any other provision of law, agricultural commodities made available as a result of commercial sales shall be exempt from an unilateral agricultural sanction imposed by the United States on another country.

"(2) Exception.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to agricultural commodities made available as a result of programs carried out under—

"(A) the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1691 et seq.);

"(B) section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1341);

"(C) the Food for Progress Act of 1985 (7 U.S.C. 1736e);

"(D) the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 (7 U.S.C. 5601 et seq.);

"(3) DETERMINATION BY PRESIDENT.—The President may include agricultural commodities made available as a result of the activities described in paragraph (1) in the unilateral agricultural sanction imposed on a foreign country or foreign entity if—

"(A) a declaration of war by Congress is in effect with respect to the foreign country or foreign entity; or

"(B) the President determines that inclusion of the agricultural commodities is in the national interest;

"(ii) the President submits the report required under subsection (c); and

"(iii) Congress has not approved a joint resolution stating the disapproval of Congress of the report submitted under subsection (d).

"(4) EFFECT ON AGRICULTURAL TRADE.—Nothing in this subsection requires the imposition of a unilateral agricultural sanction with respect to an agricultural commodity, whether exported in connection with a commercial sale or a program described in paragraph (2).

"(c) CURRENT SANCTIONS.—

"(1) In GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the exemption under subsection (b)(1) shall apply to a current sanction.

"(2) PRESIDENTIAL REVIEW.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of the Agricultural Trade Freedom Act, the President shall review each current sanction to determine whether to continue the sanction under subsection (b)(1) shall apply to the current sanction for reasons of the national interest.

"(3) APPLICATION.—The exemption under subsection (b)(1) shall remain in effect until the President determines that the exemption should not apply to the current sanction for reasons of the national interest.

"(d) REPORT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If the President determines under subsection (b)(1) or (c)(3) that the exemption should not apply to a unilateral agricultural sanction, the President shall report to Congress not later than 15 days after the date of the determination.

"(2) CONTENTS OF REPORT.—The report shall contain—

"(A) an explanation of—

"(i) the economic activity that is proposed to be prohibited, restricted, or conditioned by the unilateral agricultural sanction; and

"(ii) the national interest for which the exemption should not apply to the unilateral agricultural sanction; and

"(B) an assessment by the Secretary—

"(i) regarding export sales;

"(D) in the case of a current sanction, whether markets in the sanctioned country or countries are likely to be affected by the new sanction or by retaliation by any country to be sanctioned or likely to be sanctioned, including a description of specific United States agricultural commodities that are most likely to be affected;

"(iii) regarding the income of agricultural producers—

"(i) in the case of a current sanction, the potential for increasing the income of producers of the United States agricultural commodities involved; and

"(ii) in the case of a new sanction, the likely effect on incomes of producers of the agricultural commodities involved;

"(iv) regarding displacement of United States suppliers—

"(i) in the case of a current sanction, the potential for increased competition for United States suppliers of the agricultural commodities in countries that are subject to the current sanction because of uncertainty about the reliability of the United States suppliers; and

"(ii) in the case of a new sanction, the extent to which the new sanction would permit foreign suppliers to replace United States suppliers;

"(v) regarding the reputation of United States agricultural producers as reliable suppliers—

"(i) in the case of a current sanction, whether removing the sanction would improve the reputation of United States producers as reliable suppliers of agricultural commodities in general, and of specific agricultural commodities identified by the Secretary; and

"(ii) in the case of a new sanction, the likely effect of the proposed sanction on the reputation of United States producers as reliable suppliers of agricultural commodities in general, and of specific agricultural commodities identified by the Secretary;

"(v) CONGRESSIONAL PRIORITY PROCEDURES.—

"(A) JOINT RESOLUTION.—In this subsection, the term 'joint resolution' means only a joint resolution introduced within 18 session days of Congress after the date on which the report of the President under subsection (d) is received by Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: 'That Congress disapproves the report of the President pursuant to section 418(d) of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, transmitted on ______ , with the blank completed with the appropriate date.

"(B) REFERRAL OF REPORT.—The report described in subsection (d) shall be referred to the appropriate committee or committees of the House of Representatives and to the appropriate committee or committees of the Senate.

"(3) REFERRAL OF JOINT RESOLUTION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—A joint resolution shall be referred to the committee in each House of Congress with jurisdiction.

"(B) REPORTING DATE.—A joint resolution referred to in subparagraph (A) may not be considered by the committee to which it is referred before the earlier of (1) 30 calendar days after the day of Congress after the introduction of the joint resolution.
“(4) DISCHARGE OF COMMITTEE.—If the committee to which is referred a joint resolution has not reported the joint resolution (or an identical joint resolution) at the end of 30 session days after the date of introduction of the joint resolution—

“(A) the committee shall be discharged from further consideration of the joint resolution; and “(B) the joint resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the House concerned.

“(5) FLOOR CONSIDERATION.—

“(A) MOTION TO PROCEED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—When the committee to which a joint resolution is referred has reported, or when a committee is discharged under paragraph (4) from further consideration of a joint resolution—

“(i) it shall be at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) for any member of the House concerned to move to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution; and “(ii) all points of order against the joint resolution (and against consideration of the joint resolution) are waived.

“(ii) PRIVILEGE.—The motion to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution—

“(I) shall be highly privileged in the House of Representatives and privileged in the Senate; and “(II) shall not be debatable.

“(iii) AMENDMENTS AND MOTIONS NOT IN ORDER.—The motion to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution shall not be subject to—

“(I) amendment;

“(II) a motion to postpone; or

“(III) any motion to proceed to the consideration of other business.

“(iv) MOTION TO RECONSIDER NOT IN ORDER.—A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order.

“(v) BUSINESS UNTIL DISPOSITION.—If a motion to proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution is agreed to, the joint resolution shall remain the unfinished business of the House concerned until disposed of.

“(B) LIMITATIONS ON DEBATE.—

“(i) DEBATE ON THE JOINT RESOLUTION.—On debate on the joint resolution, and on all debatable motions and appeals in connection with the joint resolution, shall be limited to not more than 10 hours, which shall be equally divided between those favoring and those opposing the joint resolution.

“(ii) FURTHER DEBATE LIMITATIONS.—A motion to limit debate shall be in order and shall not be debatable.

“(iii) AMENDMENTS AND MOTIONS NOT IN ORDER.—An amendment, to a motion to postpone, or a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business, is not a part of the rules of the House, and any motion to consider a joint resolution—

“(A) N O COMMITTEE REFERRAL .

“(B) FLOOR PROCEDURE .

“(I) the procedure in that House shall be

“(II) shall not be debatable.

“(C) DISPOSITION OF JOINT RESOLUTIONS OF RECEIVING HOUSE.—On disposition of the joint resolution received from the other House, it shall be the action of the receiving House with regard to the disposition of the joint resolution originated in that House that shall be deemed to be the action of the receiving House with regard to the disposition of the joint resolution originated in the other House.

“(D) PROCEDURES AFTER ACTION BY BOTH THE HOUSES.—If a House receives a joint resolution from the other House after the receiving House has disposed of a joint resolution originated in that House, the action of the receiving House with regard to the disposition of the joint resolution originated in that House shall be deemed to be the action of the receiving House with regard to the disposition of the joint resolution originated in the other House.

“(E) RULEMAKING POWER.—This subsection is enacted by Congress—

“(A) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, and as such this subsection—

“(I) is deemed to be a part of the rules of each House, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in that House in the case of a joint resolution; and

“(II) supersedes other rules only to the extent that this subsection is inconsistent with those rules; and

“(B) with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rules (so far as the rules relate to the procedure of that House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.”.

“SEC. 404. SALE OR BARTER OF FOOD ASSISTANCE.

“It is the sense of Congress that the amendments to section 203 of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1723) made by section 208 of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U.S.C. 910c) made by section 208 of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1962 (7 U.S.C. 910c) were intended to allow the sale or barter of United States agricultural commodities in connection with United States food assistance only within the recipient country or countries adjacent to the recipient country, unless—

“(1) the sale or barter within the recipient country or adjacent countries is not practicable; and

“(2) the sale or barter within countries other than the recipient country or adjacent countries will not disrupt commercial markets for the agricultural commodity involved.

“By Mr. MCONNELL (for himself, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. DEWIN, Mr. WARNER, and Mr. LUGAR).

“S. 335. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide an exclusion from gross income for distributions from qualified State tuition programs which are used to pay education expenses and authorized purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

“Mr. MConnell. Mr. President, today I am once again honored to introduce a bill which focuses on an important issue facing American families today—paying for the education of their children. I have long believed that we need to make college education more affordable, and my legislation, the Setting Affordable Education, or SAVE, Act, will do that by making savings in qualified tuition savings plans entirely tax-free. I am pleased to be joined in this endeavor by the bill’s original co-sponsors, Senators GrahAm, BunnInG, dEwInE, warner, and lugAr.

“However, while I am proud of these initial success stories, I will continue to press to make education savings entirely tax-free. While the end is in sight, we cannot claim victory until we achieve this goal. In fact, the need for education savings tax relief is more acute than ever as recent studies demonstrate that we must continue to encourage parents to adopt a long-term savings approach for their children’s future education.

According to the College Board, during the 2000–2001 academic school year, the average tuition at four-year public colleges rose between 4.4 and 5.2 percent. It is important to note that this increase was higher than the 1999 tuition increase of 3.4 percent. In addition, the College Board estimates that room and board charges will increase between 4 and 5 percent for next year. What is most frustrating is that despite the recent economic boom, the cost of a college education continues to rise at a rate faster than many families can afford. According to the College Board, since 1980 the price of a college education has risen between 2 and 3 percent, whereas the Consumer Price Index increased just 4 percent over the same period.

As a result, more and more families are forced to rely on financial aid to meet tuition costs. To its credit, a majority of all college students utilize some amount of financial assistance. The amount of financial aid available to students and their families for the 1999–2000 school year topped $80 billion, more than 4 percent above that of the previous year. However, there has been a marked trend from grant-based assistance programs to loan-based assistance programs, and today many students are forced to borrow in order to attend college. This shift toward loans increases the financial burden of attending college because students and families must then assume interest costs that can add thousands to the total cost of tuition.

We must not forget that compounded interest cuts both ways. For those students who must borrow, compounded interest is a burden, for those students and families who save, it is a blessing. By saving, participants can keep pace, or even surpass, tuition inflation and save funds to meet their children’s educational needs and provide a smooth tuition savings plan for their children’s college education. In the mid-1980s, states first began to recognize the difficulty that families faced in keeping pace with the rising cost of education. States like Kentucky, Florida, and a handful of Michigan programs are among the first to start programs aimed at helping families save for their children’s college education. Other states have since followed suit, and currently 48 states have some form of tuition savings plans.

Today, there are nearly one million savers who have contributed over $2 billion in education savings. In the Commonwealth of Kentucky alone, 3,250 beneficiaries have active accounts and have accumulated $13 million in education savings. This is a 60% increase from plan participants earning a household income of under $60,000 annually, state-sponsored tuition plans clearly benefit middle-class families—the exact Americans who deserve and need such relief.

In addition to accomplishing my long-sought goal of making savings in tuition savings plans entirely tax-free, the SAVE Act includes several other new provisions. The SAVE Act also modifies the cap on room and board expenses to more accurately reflect the cost of attending an institution of higher learning. The final important change made in the SAFE Act is a provision allowing for one annual rollover between Section 529 plans to meet the needs of our increasingly mobile society.

I have worked closely with state plan administrators over the years seeking both their advice and support. When I introduce the SAFE Act this afternoon, I will be honored once again to have the endorsement of the National Association of State Treasurers and the College Savings Plans Network, as well as the signatory from the CSPN’s letter of support included in the record. They have worked tirelessly in support of this legislation because they know it is in the best interests of plan participants—families who care about their children’s education. In addition, state-sponsored tuition savings plans have recently been touted as one of the best ways to save for a college education by such influential magazines as Money, Fortune, and Business Week. This overwhelming support for these programs underscores my belief that we have a real opportunity to go even further toward making college affordable for American families. It is in our national interest to maintain a quality and affordable education system for all families—not merely those fortunate to have the resources. My legislation rewards parents who are serious about their children’s future and who are committed over the long-term to the education of their children by providing a significant tax break for all savers nationwide. This will reduce the cost of education and will not unnecessarily burden future generations with thousands of dollars in student loans. College is a lifelong investment. We must take steps to ensure that higher education is within the reach of every child so that they are prepared to meet the challenges they will face in our increasingly competitive world. We must make it easier for families to save for college, and we can do so this year by providing total tax freedom for education savings. My bill will make these tuition savings plans entirely tax-free, and the money is drawn out to pay for college, and I believe that my legislation is the best approach to ensuring that our children can obtain a higher education without mortgaging their futures.

Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity to speak to the Senate on this legislation and I look forward to working with the bill’s co-sponsors and the Bush Administration to enact it into law.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill and a letter be printed in the Record. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Setting Any Student on a Path to Educational Success” (SAVE) Act.

SEC. 2. EXCLUSION FROM GROSS INCOME OF EDUCATION DISTRIBUTIONS FROM QUALIFIED STATE TUITION PROGRAMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (B) of section 529(e)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to distributions) is amended to read as follows:

“(B) DISTRIBUTIONS FOR QUALIFIED HIGHER EDUCATION EXPENSES.—For purposes of this paragraph—

“(i) IN-KIND DISTRIBUTIONS.—No amount shall be includible in gross income under subparagraph (A) by reason of a distribution with respect to the ownership interest of a plan distributee which, if paid for by the distributee, would constitute payment of a qualified higher education expense.

“(ii) CASH DISTRIBUTIONS.—In the case of distributions not described in clause (i), if—

“(I) such distributions do not exceed the qualified higher education expenses (reduced by expenses described in clause (i)), no amount shall be includible in gross income, and “(II) in any other case, the amount otherwise includible in gross income shall be reduced by an amount which bears the same ratio to such amount as such expenses bear to such distributions.

“(d) EXCEPTION FOR INSTITUTIONAL PROGRAMS.—In the case of any taxable year beginning before January 1, 2004, clauses (i)
(i) Any trustee or person who may under contract operate or manage the trust dem-

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I am proud to join Senator MCCONNELL and my colleagues in colleges in launching an initiative to increase Americans’ access to college education. Today, we are introducing the Setting Aside for a Valuable Education Act. This bill extends tax-free treatment to all state sponsored prepaid tuition plans and state savings plans. This legislation also gives prepaid tuition plans established by private colleges and universities tax-exempt status.

Prepaid college tuition and savings programs have flourished at the state level over the last decade. As a result of spiraling college costs. According to the College Board, between 1980 and 2000, the cost of going to a four-year college has increased 115 percent above the rate of inflation. The cause of this dramatic increase in tuition is the issue of significant debate. But whether these increases are attributable to increased costs to the universities, reductions in state funding for public universities, or the increased value of a college degree, the fact remains that financing a college education has become increasingly difficult.

In response to higher college costs, the states have engineered innovative ways to help its families afford college. Michigan implemented the first prepaid tuition plan in 1986. Florida followed in 1988. Today 49 states have either implemented or are in the process of implementing prepaid tuition plans or state education savings plans.

Prepaid tuition plans allow parents to pay prospectively for their children’s higher education at participating universities. States pool these funds and invest them in a manner permitted in the hundreds of thousands of children for whom college is now an affordable reality.

Sincerely,

GEORGE THOMAS,
Chair, College Savings Plans Network and New Hampshire State Treasurer.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, it is my pleasure to join my colleagues in introducing this bill which makes a college education easier to obtain.

By Mr. BOND:
S. 336. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code to allow use of the cash method of accounting for certain small businesses; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce a bill that addresses one of the primary concerns every family in America has—how to encourage savings and college attendance. Finally, for most families, the single largest financial burden is the student is required to find other means of generating the funds to pay the tax.

I am pleased to have this opportunity to join my colleagues in introducing this bill which makes a college education easier to obtain.

While the IRS argues that the accrual method of accounting produces a more accurate reflection of “economic income,” it also produces a major headache for small enterprises. Few entrepreneurs have the time or experience to undertake accrual accounting, which forces them to hire costly accountants and tax preparers. By some estimates, accounting fees can increase as much as 50 percent when accrual accounting is required. As a result, the cost of high-tech computerized accounting systems that some businesses must install. For the brave few that try to handle the accounting on their own, the accrual method often leads to mistakes and additional costs for professional help to sort the whole mess out—not to mention the interest and penalties that the IRS may impose as a result of the mistake.

To make matters even worse, the IRS focused on small service providers who use some merchandise in the performance of their service. In an e-mail sent to practitioners in my State of Missouri and in Kansas on March 22, 1999, the IRS’ local district office took special aim at the construction industry asserting that “[t]axpayers in the construction industry who are on the cash method of accounting may be using an improper method. The cash method is permissible only if materials are not an income producing factor. It is the homeowner who pays for the materials. The builder simply records gross receipts when he receives payment that he will use in the future. For those lucky service providers, the IRS has asserted that the use of merchandise requires the business to undertake an additional form of bookkeeping—inventory accounting.

Let’s be clear about the kind of taxpayer at issue here. It’s the home builder who by necessity must purchase wood, nails, dry wall, and host of other items to provide the services of constructing a house. Similarly, it’s a painting contractor who will often purchase the paint when he renders the service of painting the interior of a house. These service providers generally purchase materials to undertake a specific project and at its end, little or no merchandise remains. They may even arrange for the products to be delivered to their client.

Mr. President, if we thought that accrual accounting is complicated and burdensome, imaging having to keep track of all the boards, nails, and paint used in the home builder’s and painter’s job is each year, and it doesn’t always stop at inventory accounting for these service providers. Instead, the IRS has used it as the first step to imposing overall accrual accounting—a one-two punch for the small service provider when it comes to compliance burdens.

Even more troubling is the cost of an audit for these unsuspecting service providers who have never known they were required to use inventories or accrual accounting. According to a survey of practitioners by the Budget Business Services Foundation, audits of businesses on the issue of merchandise used in the performance of services resulted in tax deficiencies from $2,000 to $14,000, with an average of $7,200 a price to pay for an accounting method error that the IRS for years has never enforced.

The bill I’m introducing today—the Cash Accounting for Small Business Act of 2001—addresses both of these issues and builds on the legislation that I introduced in the 106th Congress. First, the bill establishes a clear threshold for when small businesses may use the cash method of accounting. Simply put, if a business has an average of $5 million in annual gross receipts or less during the preceding three years, it may use the cash method. Plain and simple—no complicated formula; no guessing if you made the right assumptions and arrived at the right answer. The business exceeds the threshold, it may still seek to establish, as under current law, that the cash method clearly reflects its income.

Some may argue that this provision is unnecessary because section 448(b) and (c) of the Internal Revenue Code already provide a $5 million gross receipts test with respect to accrual accounting. That’s a reasonable position since many in Congress back in 1986 intended to provide an opportunity for small business taxpayers using the cash method. Unfortunately, the IRS has twisted this section to support its quest to force as many small businesses as possible into costly accrual accounting. The IRS has construed section 448 to be merely a $5 million ceiling above which a business can never use the cash method. My bill corrects this misinterpretation once and for all—if a business has average gross receipts of $5 million or less, it is free to use cash accounting.

Additionally, the bill indexes the $5 million threshold for inflation so it will keep pace with price increases. As a result, small businesses will not be forced into the accrual method merely because their gross receipts increased due to inflation.

Second, for small service providers, the Cash Accounting for Small Business Act provides other taxpayers from inventory accounting if they meet the general $5 million threshold. These businesses will be able to deduct the expenses for such inventory that are actually consumed in the operation of the business during that particular taxable year. While the small service provider will still have to keep some minimal records as to the merchandise used during the year, it will be vastly more simple than trying to comply with the onerous inventory accounting rules currently in place in the tax code.

The $5 million threshold set forth in my bill is a common-sense solution to an increasing burden for small businesses in this country, which was recently highlighted by the IRS National Taxpayer Advocate. In his 2001 Report to Congress, the Advocate noted that “Small businesses may be burdened by having to maintain an accrual method of accounting for no other purpose than tax reporting. Because these taxpayers can be relatively unsophisticated about tax and inventory accounting issues, they are likely to hire advisors to help them comply with their tax obligations.” Unfortunately, these higher costs of recordkeeping and tax preparation take valuable capital away from the business and hinder its ability to grow and produce jobs. The Cash Accounting for Small Business Act takes a big step toward easing those burdens and allowing small business owners to dedicate their time and money to running successful enterprises instead of filling out government paperwork.

In addition, it sends a clear signal to the IRS: stop wasting scarce resources forcing small businesses to adopt complex and costly accounting methods. As the Treasury is already understaffed, this is simply a matter of timing. Whether a small business uses the cash or accrual method or inventory accounting or not, in the end, the government will still collect the same amount of tax. The Act exempts not all this year, but very likely early in the next year. What small business can go very long without collecting what it is owed or paying its bills?

Last year, the Treasury Department’s answer was to propose a $1 million threshold under which a small business could escape accrual accounting and presumably inventories. While it is a step in the right direction, it simply was not far enough. Even ignoring inflation, if a million dollar threshold were sufficient, why would Congress have tried to enact a $5 million threshold 14 years ago? My bill completes the job that the Clinton Treasury Department was unable or unwilling to do.

More recently, the IRS issued a notice announcing that the agency has temporarily changed its litigation position concerning the requirement that certain taxpayers must use inventory and accrual accounting. Based on losses in several court cases, the IRS has decided to back off on taxpayers in construction businesses similar to those addressed by the Act. For those taxpayers, the agency has turned down the fire, and I applaud the IRS for its decision. The new litigation position, however, does not solve the underlying statutory issues that led the IRS to pursue these taxpayers in the first place, nor is it any assurance that the litigation position will not be changed again once the IRS’ Chief Counsel has completed its study of these issues. The Cash Accounting for Small Businesses Act takes a big step toward easing those burdens and allowing small business taxpayers to have printed in the RECORD, the text of the bill and a description of its provisions.

There being no objection, the matter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 336

SEC. 2. CLARIFICATION OF CASH ACCOUNTING RULES FOR SMALL BUSINESS.

(a) CASH ACCOUNTING PERMITTED.—Section 446 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to general rules of accrual accounting) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(g) SMALL BUSINESS TAXPAYERS PERMITTED TO USE CASH ACCOUNTING METHOD WITHOUT LIMITATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, an eligible taxpayer shall not be required to use accrual accounting for any taxable year.

“(2) ELIGIBLE TAXPAYER.—For purposes of this subsection—

“(C) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.—In the case of quired to be taken into account by the taxence Code of 1986 shall be taken into account

CASH ACCOUNTING FOR SMALL BUSINESS ACT

The bill amends section 446 of the Internal Revenue Code to provide a clear threshold for small businesses to use the cash receipts and disbursements method of accounting, instead of accrual accounting. To qualify, the business must have $5 million or less in average annual gross receipts based on the preceding three years. Thus, even if the production, purchase, or sale of merchandise is an income-producing factor in the taxpayer’s busitness, the taxpayer will not be required to use an accrual method of accounting if the taxpayer meets the average annual gross receipts test.

In addition, the bill provides that a taxpayer meeting the average annual gross receipts test is not required to account for invventories under section 471. The taxpayer will be required to treat such inventory in the same manner as materials or supplies that are not inventories. Accordingly, the taxpayer may deduct the expenses for such inventory that are actually consumed and used in the operation of the business during that particular period.

The bill indexes the $5 million average anual gross receipts threshold for inflation. The cash-accounting safe harbor will be effective for taxable years beginning after

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I rise

Teacher Recruitment, Develop-

I want to begin with a quotation I recently came across that captures the essence of teaching:

“The mediocre teacher tells. The good teacher explains. The superior teacher demonstrates. The great teacher inspires.

The point is simple, for our children will succeed will be those who can read, write, and do math. I firmly believe that our children’s futures are not only enough teachers that possess the tools required to make that positive impact on our children.

Teachers must not only be prepared when they are hired, but they must remain armed with the latest technology to teaching tools for the duration of their careers. Just think of the constant training and testing doctors, police officers, and lawyers must endure throughout their careers.

I touch upon the Teacher Recruitment, Development, and Reten-ton Act of 2001 in greater detail I would like to make a few brief comments about K–12 education in New Mexico. New Mexico is a very large and rural state with almost 20,000 teachers and nearly 330,000 public school students.

New Mexico’s 89 school districts come in all shapes and sizes, for instance, Albuquerque has over 85,000 students. However, each of these districts, and small must all have qualified

The Teacher Recruitment, Development, and Retention Act of 2001 seeks to create several optional programs for states to facilitate teacher recruitment development, and retention through grants awarded by the Secretary of Education.

The first option would be the creation of Teacher Recruitment Centers.
These centers would serve as job banks/statewide clearinghouses for the recruitment and placement of K–12 teachers. The centers would also be re-novative for creating programs to further teacher recruitment and retention
within the state.

The second option would encourage countries to implement teacher internships where newly hired teachers would participate in a teacher internship student teaching requirement. The internship centers would serve as job banks/statewide clearinghouses for the recruitment of Teacher Recruitment Centers.
These centers would serve as job banks/clearinghouses for the recruitment of teachers. The centers would also be re-novative for creating programs to further teacher recruitment and retention
within the state.

Finally, states would have the option
cular professional devel-oment teams. These teams would alleviate the need for teachers and administrators that often have to travel great distances to attend professional development programs by bringing these activities directly to the local district or a centrally located regional site through mobile professional devel-oment teams.

I believe the primary beneficiaries of mobile professional development teams would be rural areas and the programs offered would focus on any state or local requirements for licensure of teachers and administration, including certification and recertification.

Under the Teacher Recruitment, Development, and Retention Act of 2001 each program would be authorized at $50 million for fiscal year 2002 and such sums as may be necessary for each of the four succeeding fiscal years.

In conclusion, I want to again say how pleased I am to introduce the Teacher Recruitment, Development, and Retention Act of 2001 and I look forward to working with my colleagues as we reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

By Mr. ENGLISH for himself and Mr. REID:
S. 338. A bill to protect amateur athletes and combat illegal sports gambling; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today I join my colleagues from Nevada, Senator ENGLISH, in introducing bipartisan legislation aimed at curtailing illegal gambling in college sports. The bill we are introducing today takes affirmative steps to immediately address illegal gambling on college sports. It establishes a task force on illegal wagering on collegiate sporting events at the Department of Justice.

The task force is directed to enforce Federal laws prohibiting gambling related to college sports and to report to Congress annually on the number of prosecutions and convictions obtained. It doubles the penalties for illegal sports gambling. Our bill also addresses the growing trend of gambling by minors by directing the National Institute of Justice to conduct a study on this disturbing trend.

It requires the Attorney General to conduct a study of illegal college sports gambling. Our legislation answers a concern raised by the NCAA regarding illegal gambling on college campuses. The National Gambling Impact Study Commission’s final report found widespread illegal gambling by student athletes despite NCAA regulations prohibiting such activities. The commission urged the NCAA to do more. The NCAA has failed to take any action so our bill directs the National Institutes of Health to report on incidents of drug and alcohol abuse on their campuses they will now provide similar data on illegal wagering. Schools will be required to coordinate their anti-gambling programs and submit an annual report to the Secretary of Education. In addition to reporting on incidents of illegal gambling activity on their campuses, schools will be required to provide a statement of policy regarding illegal gambling.

Finally, our bill includes a section on personal responsibility. Students receiving athletic-related aid shall be deemed ineligible for such aid if it is acting a prohibition on all forms of sports wagering—even in States where it is legal and regulated. Such a proposal is an affront to States’ rights and more importantly, does not address the real problem—illegal gambling. Just as schools now report on incidents of drug and alcohol abuse on their campuses they will now provide similar data on illegal wagering. Schools will be required to coordinate their anti-gambling programs and submit an annual report to the Secretary of Education. In addition to reporting on incidents of illegal gambling activity on their campuses, schools will be required to provide a statement of policy regarding illegal gambling.

determined that that student engaged in illegal gambling activity. While this is a taught measure, if the NCAA is serious about addressing this problem, we would hope they could join us in supporting a real solution. Schools will be required to coordinate their efforts to reduce illegal gambling on campuses.

I believe the problems of illegal gambling on college sporting events is very real. I believe it is growing. No one knows what is being done to combat this at the Federal level or by our Nation’s institutions of higher learning. The NCAA has chosen not to address this problem. To date, their combined strategy of finger pointing, use of red herrings and outright denial has left us with little to show in terms of addressing this problem. Our nation’s students and schools are being ill-served by this beleaguered association that at times seems more interested in making billion dollar broad-casting contracts than ensuring the integrity of the sporting events they sanction.

Our bipartisan legislation takes sig-nificant and meaningful steps toward clearing the state of affairs with collegiate sports. I urge my colleagues join us in committing to address the problem of illegal gambling in college sports.

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself, Mr. FRIST, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. BREAUX, Ms. LANDRIEU, and Mr. BAYH):

S. 339. A bill to provide for improved educational opportunities in rural schools and districts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, if you are one of the millions of rural school children who ride buses 2.9 billion miles every year, if you attend school in one of the thousands of rural schools that have no school library or no classroom computers, if one of the buildings at your school is in serious disrepair, or if you are sharing a few 30 year-old textbooks with the other students in your class, then you probably feel like you are going to school in an education sacrifice zone.

Our country spends less than a quarter of our Nation’s education dollars to educate approximately half of our nation’s students. You don’t have to be a math whiz to know that the numbers just don’t add up. The students who are short-changed often live in rural areas.

Thousands of rural and small schools across our nation face the daunting mission of educating almost half of America’s children. Increasingly, these schools are underfunded, overwhelmed, and overlooked. While half of the nation’s students are educated in rural and small public schools, they only receive 20 percent of Federal education dollars; 25 percent of State education dollars; and 19 percent of local education dollars.

We all grew up thinking that the “three R’s” were Reading, Writing, and Arithmetic. Unfortunately for our rural school children, the “three R’s” are too often run-down classrooms, insufficient resources, and really over-worked teachers.

The bill I am introducing with Senators FRIST and SESSIONS, the Rural Education Development Initiative, REEDI, would provide funding to 5,400 rural schools that serve 6.5 million students—a short-term infusion of funds that will allow rural schools and their students to make substantial strides forward.

Local education agencies would be eligible to provide REEDI if they are either “rural”; school locale code of 6, 7, or 8, and have a school-age population, ages 5–17, with 15 percent or more of the kids are from families with incomes below the poverty line; or, by 2005, 15 percent or more of the kids are from families with incomes below the poverty line.

In Oregon, among the schools eligible for REEDI funding would be Jewell School in Seaside, the Burnt River Elementary in Unity, Gaston High School in Gaston, and Mary-Lynn Elementary School in Lyons, Oregon.

Like the Education Flexibility Act of 1999, Ed-Flex, I authored with Senator FRIST last Congress, REEDI is voluntary—states and school districts could choose to participate in the program. Both Ed-Flex and REEDI are designed to provide states and districts with flexibility they need so they can target their local priorities.

Rural school districts and schools also find it more difficult to attract and retain qualified teachers, especially in Special Education, Math, and Science. Consequently, teachers in rural schools are almost twice as likely to provide instruction in two or more subjects than their urban counterparts.

The History teacher may be teaching Math and Science as formal training or experience. Rural teachers also tend to be younger, less experienced, and receive less pay than their urban and suburban counterparts. Worse yet, rural school teachers are less likely to have the high quality professional development opportunities that current research strongly suggests all teachers desperately need.

Limited resources also mean fewer course options for students in rural and small schools. Consequently, courses are designed for the kids in the middle. So, students at either end of the academic spectrum miss out. Additionally, fewer rural students who are dropout risks, complete high school, and fewer rural higher school graduates go on to college.

On another note, recent research on brain development clearly shows the critical nature of early childhood education. Yet, rural schools are less likely to offer even kindergarten classes, let alone earlier educational opportunities.

To make matters worse, many of our rural areas are also plagued by persistent poverty, and, as we know, high-poverty schools have a much tougher time preparing their students to reach high standards of performance on state and national assessments. Data from the National Assessment of Educational Progress consistently show large gaps between the achievement of students in high-poverty schools and those in low-poverty schools.

Our legislation will support rural students with greater learning opportunities by putting more computers in classrooms, expanding distance learning opportunities, providing academic help to students who have fallen behind, and making sure that every class is taught by a highly qualified teacher.

I’ve heard it said that this will be the Education Congress, but we have much to do before we earn that title. It’s time to show that we are ready to make the commitment and send the message that we are willing to take the initiative and help rural and small communities more of the educational opportunities they deserve.

I ask unanimous consent that my bill be printed in the Record. Knowing no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 339

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Rural Edu-ca-tion Development Initiative for the 21st Century Act.”

SEC. 2. PURPOSE.

The purpose of this Act is to provide rural school students in the United States with increased learning opportunities.

SEC. 3. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) While there are rural education initia-tives identified at the local and state level, no Federal education policy focuses on the specific needs of rural school districts and schools, especially those that serve poor stu-dents.

(2) The National Center for Educational Statistics (NCES) reports that while 46 percent of our Nation’s public schools serve rural areas, they only receive 22 percent of the nation’s education funds annually.

(3) A critical problem for rural school districts involves the hiring and retention of qualified administrators and certified teachers (especially in Special Education, Science, and Mathematics). Consequently, teachers in rural schools are almost twice as likely to provide instruction in two or more subjects than teachers in urban schools. Rural school also face other tough challenges, such as shrinking local tax bases, high trans-portation costs, aging buildings, limited course offerings, and limited resources.

(4) Data from the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) consistently shows large gaps between the achievement of students in high-poverty schools and those in other schools. High-poverty schools will face special challenges at preparing their students to reach high standards of performance on State and national assessments.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ELEMENTARY SCHOOL; LOCAL EDU-CATIONAL AGENCY; SECONDARY SCHOOL; STATE
EDUCATIONAL AGENCY.—The terms “elementary school”, “local educational agency,” “secondary school”, and “State educational agency” have the meanings given the terms in section 1401 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 791).

(2) ELIGIBLE LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY.—The term “eligible local educational agency” means a local educational agency that serves—

(A) a school-age population 15 percent or more of whom are from families with incomes below the poverty line; and

(B)(i) a school locale code of 6, 7, 8; or

(ii) a school-age population of 800 or fewer students.

(3) RURAL AREA.—The term “rural area” includes the area defined by the Department of Education using school locale codes 6, 7, and 8.

(4) POVERTY LINE.—The term “poverty line” means the poverty line (as defined by the Office of Management and Budget, and revised annually in accordance with section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2))) applicable to a family of the size involved.

(5) SCHOOL LOCALE CODE.—The term “school locale code” means as defined by the Department of Education.

(6) SCHOOL AGE POPULATION.—The term “School age population” means the number of students aged 5 through 17.

(7) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Education.

SEC. 5. PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.

(a) RESERVATION.—From amounts appropriated under section 9 for a fiscal year the Secretary shall reserve 0.5 percent to make awards to elementary or secondary schools operated or supported by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to carry out the purpose of this Act.

(b) GRANTS TO STATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—From amounts appropriated under section 9 that are not reserved under subsection (a) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall award grants to local educational agencies that have applications approved under section 7 to enable the State educational agencies to award grants to eligible local educational agencies for local authorized activities described in subsection (c).

(2) FORMULA.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each State educational agency shall receive a grant under this section in an amount that bears the same relation to the amount of funds appropriated under section 9 that are not reserved under subsection (a) for a fiscal year as the school-age population served by eligible local educational agencies in the State bears to the school-age population served by eligible local educational agencies in all States.

(B) DATA.—In determining the school-age population in an amount that bears the same relation to the amount of funds appropriated under section 9 that are not reserved under subsection (a) for a fiscal year as the school-age population served by eligible local educational agencies in the State bears to the school-age population served by eligible local educational agencies in all States.

(3) DIRECT AWARDS TO LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—If a State educational agency elects not to participate in the program under this Act or does not have an application approved under section 7, the Secretary may award, on a competitive basis, the amount the State educational agency is eligible to receive under paragraph (2) directly to eligible local educational agencies in the State.

(4) MATCHING REQUIREMENT.—Each eligible local educational agency that receives a grant under this Act shall contribute resources with respect to the local authorized activities to be assisted, in cash or in kind, from non-Federal sources, in an amount equal to the Federal funds awarded under this grant.

(c) LOCAL AUTHORIZED ACTIVITIES.—Grant funds awarded to local educational agencies under this Act shall be used for—

(1) local educational technology efforts as established under section 6844 of Title 20, United States Code;

(2) professional development activities designed to prepare those teachers teaching out of their primary subject area;

(3) for academic enrichment programs established under section 10204 of Title 20 in United States Code;

(4) innovative academic enrichment programs related to the educational needs of students at-risk of academic failure, including remedial instruction in one or more of the core subject areas of English, Mathematics, Science, and History; or

(5) activities that retain qualified teachers in Special Education, Math, and Science.

(d) RELATION TO OTHER FEDERAL FUNDING.—Funds received under this Act by a State educational agency or an eligible local educational agency shall not be taken into consideration in determining the eligibility for, or amount of, any other Federal funding awarded to the agency.

(e) STUDY.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall submit an annual report to the Secretary describing the methodologies and how the local educational agencies used funds provided under this Act.

SEC. 6. STATE DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS.

(a) AWARD BASIS.—A State educational agency shall award grants to eligible local educational agencies according to a formula or competitive grant program developed by the State educational agency and approved by the Secretary.

(b) FIRST YEAR.—For the first year that a State educational agency receives a grant under this Act, the State educational agency—

(1) shall use not less than 99 percent of the grant funds to award grants to eligible local educational agencies in the State; and

(2) may use not more than 1 percent for State activities and administrative costs and technical assistance related to the program.

(c) SUCCEEDING YEARS.—For the second and each succeeding year that a State educational agency receives a grant under this Act, the State educational agency—

(1) shall use not less than 99.5 percent of the grant funds to award grants to eligible local educational agencies in the State; and

(2) may use not more than 0.5 percent of the grant funds for State activities and administrative costs related to the program.

SEC. 7. APPLICATIONS.

Each State educational agency, or local educational agency eligible for a grant under section 5(b)(3), that desires a grant under this Act shall submit an application to the Secretary.

(a) STATE REPORTS.—

(1) CONTENTS.—Each State educational agency that receives a grant under this Act shall provide an annual report to the Secretary. The report shall describe—

(A) the method the State educational agency used to award grants to eligible local educational agencies under this Act;

(B) how eligible local educational agencies used funds provided under this Act;

(C) how the State educational agency provided technical assistance for an eligible local educational agency that did not meet the goals and objectives described in subsection (c)(3); and

(D) how the State educational agency took action against an eligible local educational agency if the local educational agency failed, for 2 consecutive years, to meet the goals and objectives described in subsection (c)(3).

(b) LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY REPORTS.—Each eligible local educational agency that receives a grant under section 5(b)(3) shall provide an annual report to the Secretary. The report shall describe how the local educational agency used funds provided under this Act and how the local educational agency used to award grants to eligible local educational agencies under this Act;

(2) how eligible local educational agencies used funds provided under this Act; and the progress made by the State educational agencies used to award grants to eligible local educational agencies receiving assistance under this Act in meeting specific, annual, measurable performance goals and objectives established by the agencies for activities assisted under this Act.

(c) ACCOUNTABILITY.—The Secretary, at the end of the third year that a State educational agency participates in the program assisted under this Act, shall permit only those State educational agencies that met their performance goals and objectives, for two consecutive years, to continue to participate in the program.

(d) STUDY.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study regarding the impact of assistance provided under this Act on student achievement. The Comptroller General shall report the results of the study to Congress.

SEC. 8. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act $300,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2002 through 2005.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 29

At the request of Mr. BOND, the name of the Senator from Missouri (Mrs. CARNABAH) was added as a cosponsor of S. 29, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow a deduction for 100 percent of the health insurance costs of self-employed individuals.

S. 99

At the request of Mr. KOHL, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 99, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a credit... against tax for employers who provide child care assistance for dependents of their employees, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Gramm, the name of the Senator from Nevada (Mr. Ensign) was added as a cosponsor of S. 143, a bill to amend the Securities Act of 1934, and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, to reduce securities fees in excess of those required to fund the operations of the Securities and Exchange Commission, to adjust compensation provisions for employees of the Commission, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Enzi, the names of the Senator from Utah (Mr. Bennett) and the Senator from Nevada (Mr. Reid) were added as cosponsors of S. 149, a bill to provide authority to control exports, and for other purposes.

At the request of Mr. Hatch, the name of the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. Inouye) was added as a cosponsor of S. 237, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the 1993 income tax increase on Social Security benefits.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

THAT CONGRESS MEMORIZE, AND (1) FULLY USE THE POWERS OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO ENHANCE THE SCIENCE BASE REQUIRED TO MORE FULLY DEVELOP THE FIELD OF HEALTH PROMOTION AND DISEASE PREVENTION, AND TO EXPLORE HOW STRATEGIES CAN BE DEVELOPED TO INTEGRATE LIFESTYLE IMPROVEMENT PROGRAMS INTO NATIONAL POLICY, OUR HEALTH CARE SYSTEM, SCHOOLS, WORKPLACES, FAMILIES AND COMMUNITIES.

Mrs. Feinstein (for herself, Mr. Craig, Mr. Bingaman, and Mr. Crapo) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Whereas the New England Journal of Medicine has reported that modifiable lifestyle factors such as smoking, sedentary lifestyle, poor nutrition, unmanaged stress, and obesity account for approximately 50 percent of the premature deaths in the United States; and
Whereas the New England Journal of Medicine has reported that spending on chronic diseases related to lifestyle and other preventable diseases accounts for an estimated 70 percent of total health care spending; and
Whereas preventing disease and disability can extend life and reduce the need for health care services; and
Whereas the Department of Health and Human Services has concluded that the health burden of these behaviors falls in greatest proportion on older adults, young children, racial and ethnic minority groups and citizens who have the least resources; and
Whereas business leaders of America have asserted that spending for health care can divert private sector resources from investment that could improve financial returns and higher wages paid to employees; and
Whereas the Office of Management and Budget reports that the medicare and medicaid expenditures continue to grow; and
Whereas the American Journal of Public Health reports that expenditures for the medicare program will increase substantially as the program increases and increase the numbers of people are covered by medicare; and
Whereas the American Journal of Health Promotion reports that a growing research base demonstrates that lifecycle factors can be modified to improve health, improve the quality of life, reduce medical care costs, and enhance workplace productivity through health promotion programs; and
Whereas the Health Care Financing Administration has determined that less than 5 percent of health care spending is devoted to the improvement of lifestyle and health, and a very small portion of that 5 percent is devoted to health promotion and disease prevention; and
Whereas research in the basic and applied sciences can yield a better understanding of health and disease prevention; and
Whereas additional research can clarify the impact of health promotion programs on long term health behaviors, health conditions, morbidity and mortality, medical care utilization and cost, as well as quality of life and productivity; and
Whereas the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Science has concluded that additional research is needed to determine the most effective strategies to create lasting health behavior changes, reduce health care utilization, and enhanced productivity; and
Whereas the private sector and academia cannot sponsor broad public health promotion, disease prevention, and research programs; and
Whereas the full benefits of health promotion cannot be realized—(1) unless strategies are developed to reach all groups including older adults, young children, and minority groups; and (2) until a more professional consensus on the management of health and clinical protocols is developed; and
Whereas protocols are more broadly disseminated to scientists and practitioners in health care, workplace, school, and other community settings; and
Whereas Research America reports that most American citizens strongly support increased Federal investment in health promotion and disease prevention: Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in the Congress of the United States by the Constitution and the laws of the United States, be it
Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring),

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This resolution may be cited as the “Building Health Promotion and Disease Prevention into the National Agenda Resolution of 2001.”

SEC. 2. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that the Federal Government should—
(1) increase resources to enhance the science base required to further develop the field of health promotion and disease prevention; and
(2) explore strategies to integrate lifestyle improvement programs into national policy, our health care, schools, workplaces, families, and communities in order to promote health and prevent disease.

Mrs. Feinstein. Mr. President, today Senator Craig and I are introducing the “Building Health Promotion and Disease Prevention into the National Agenda Resolution of 2001.” This resolution expresses the sense of Congress that the federal government should do two things: (1) Support scientific research on health promotion and (2) explore ways in which the government can develop a national policy to integrate lifestyle improvement programs into our health care, schools, families, and communities.

This resolution is supported by a coalition of 47 organizations, including the Wellness Council of America, the American Journal of Health Promotion, the American Preventive Medical Association, the National Alliance for Hispanic Health, the National Center for Health Education, Partnership for Prevention, and the Society for Prevention Research.

According to the American Journal of Health Promotion, health promotion... is the science and art of helping people change their lifestyle to move toward a state of optimal health.” Optimal health is defined as “a balance of physical, emotional, social, spiritual and intellectual health.”

In the past year and age of scientific breakthroughs and increased knowledge of medical science and health, American health care tends to emphasize curative treatments, rather than preventive measures and health promotion.

Several compelling statistics make the case for this resolution:

“Fifty percent of premature deaths in the United States are related to modifiable lifestyle factors,” according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

People with good health habits survive longer, and they can postpone disability by five years and compress it into fewer years at the end of life, says the New England Journal of Medicine.

When the amount spent on preventive health is disputed, experts estimate that only two to five percent of the annual $1.5 trillion spent on national health care is on health promotion and disease prevention. In an April 1999 speech, Dr. David Satcher, from all illnesses. By doing so, we can prevent disease. This is simply not enough.

We must do a better job of supporting health promotion and disease prevention, as well as research to find cures for diseases and helping those who suffer from all illnesses. By doing so, we will see an increase in the number of Americans who are living longer and healthier lives and this could mean a decrease in overall national health care costs. Simply put, it is much cheaper to prevent a disease than to treat it.

Diseases that are modifiable, if not checked, can become very expensive in treatment and cures. For instance:

- The direct and indirect costs of smoking is $130 billion per year.
- Diabetes costs $98 billion per year.
- Physical inactivity costs $24 billion per year.
- Cardiovascular diseases cost $327 billion per year.
- Cancer costs $107 billion per year.
- Here is another example. Obesity costs our nation $70 billion per year. In a recent report titled “Promoting Health for Young People through Physical Activity and Sports,” the CDC states that it is increasingly important that children from pre-kindergarten to 12th grade receive physical education every day, as well as after-school sports programs. According to Dr. Jeffrey Kaplan, the director of the CDC, “We need to save our public health program...we have an epidemic of obesity among youth, and we are seeing a troubling rise in cardiovascular risk factors, including type 2 diabetes among young people.”

With increased physical education, our children will be less likely to suffer from obesity, and in turn lower the risk type 2 diabetes.

Increased awareness about disease prevention and health promotion will never totally prevent illness, but it can reduce the cost of treating preventable diseases. It can save millions of dollars.

For instance, sun-block is proven to prevent some skin cancers. If every person who spent prolonged periods of time outside, protected themselves adequately from the sun’s harmful rays, many incidents of skin cancer could be prevented. It is that easy.

Early detection helps to lower costs of diseases in the long run. If everyone had regular physicals and screenings, many diseases could be detected early and treated long before they advance to serious, incurable, and terminal stages.

Clearly, we must make health promotion a national priority.

The sad part is, our government invests very little to help educate people and promote healthier living.

As stated earlier, it is estimated that out of the $1.5 trillion spent annually on health care, only two to five percent goes to health promotion and disease prevention. Government public health activities receive 3.2 percent of national health expenditures, according to the Health Care Financing Administration. The National Institutes of Health (NIH) spent $4.1 billion on prevention research in Fiscal Year 2000.

Surgeon General Dr. David Satcher believes that the government should pursue “a balanced community health system, a system which balances health promotion, disease prevention, early detection and universal access to care.” I couldn’t agree more. While it is imperative that our nation’s research in disease and medicine continue, we must increase our attention to disease prevention.

Passing this concurrent resolution will make a strong statement that the health of all Americans is a national priority.

As the generation of baby boomers quickly approaches retirement, the education and promotion of health and the lengthening of life-spans becomes even more important.

Keeping people healthy should be our number one goal.

I urge my colleagues to support this important resolution.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 12—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE IMPORTANCE OF ORGAN, TISSUE, BONE MARROW, AND BLOOD DONATION, AND SUPPORTING NATIONAL DONOR DAY

Mr. DURBIN (for himself, Mr. FRIST, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. SPEC-
Let me just take a moment to mention a few very telling facts. Only five percent of people who are able to donate blood do so on a regular basis. And, although donated blood can be stored for up to six weeks, it is rarely as for many donors, because the demand is so great. And that is just for the donation of blood. There are more than 70,000 individuals awaiting organ transplants at any given time, and ten people die every day because of the shortage of these organs. Ten people a day—over the past year, 3,650 of our citizens have died, simply because there are not enough organs out there to meet the need.

On a more personal level, there was a young child from my state—Caleb Godo—who was recently admitted to St. Jude Hospital with Leukemia. Caleb, who is just over a year old now, was only four months old when he was diagnosed. He was given only a ten percent chance of surviving. But thanks to chemotherapy, a new kind of treatment, and a bone marrow transplant from his father, Caleb is in remission now, and well. He is one of the thousands of individuals whose lives are saved by transplants every year, and the many more who require blood transfusions. But there are so many more who do not receive the help they need.

This is why it is so vital that we make people aware of the importance of donating blood, tissue, marrow, or organs. Today, on this very special day, we focus on the impact love can have on a person’s life. We shower our loved ones with gifts and flowers to show how much we truly care for them. We exchange cards and kind words with coworkers, friends, and even strangers. But the truly selfless people are those who give for others than through the simple gift of a pint of blood, or checking the box on our driver’s license to become an organ donor?

The majority of people are eligible to be donors, and the past three National Donor Days have made many people aware of our great need. I urge my colleagues to work and help continue to make National Donor Day a success.

SEANTE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 13—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS WITH RESPECT TO UPCOMING TRIP OF PRESIDENT GEORGE W. BUSH TO MEXICO TO MEET WITH THE NEWLY ELECTED PRESIDENT VICENTE FOX, AND WITH RESPECT TO FUTURE COOPERATIVE EFFORTS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND MEXICO

Whereas the United States, as Mexico’s neighbor, ally, and partner in the Hemisphere, has a strong interest in seeing President Fox advance justice and democracy during his term of office;

Whereas President George W. Bush and President Vicente Fox have demonstrated through their mutual commitment to a deeper alliance between the United States and Mexico by making President Bush’s first foreign trip as President of the United States to Mexico on February 16, 2001;

Whereas both presidents recognize that a strong, steady Mexican economy can be the foundation to help solve many of the challenges shared by the two countries, such as immigration, environmental quality, organized crime, corruption and trafficking in illicit narcotics;

Whereas the economic cooperation spearheaded by the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) has established Mexico as the second largest trading partner of the United States, with a two-way trade of $374,000,000,000 each year;

Whereas the North American Development Bank and the Binational Environment Cooperation Commission, were established to promote environmental infrastructure development that meets the needs of border communities;

Whereas the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, an independent self-sustaining United States Government agency responsible for facilitating the investment of United States private sector capital in emerging markets, has recently developed a small business loan program to support United States investment in Mexico;

Whereas under the North American Free Trade Agreement the United States currently has an annual limit on the number of visas that may be issued to Mexican business executives for entry into the United States but there is no such limit with respect to the Canadian business executives;

Whereas United States-Mexico border tensions have continued to escalate, with the number of illegal immigrant deaths increasing 400 percent since 1996; and

Whereas the Government of Mexico, through the establishment of a special cabinet commission, has made a renewed commitment with increased resources, to combat drug trafficking and corruption: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that the President should work with the Government of Mexico to advance bilateral cooperation and should, among other initiatives, seek to—

1. encourage economic growth and development to benefit both the United States and Mexico, by providing common strategies to improve the flow of credit and United States investment opportunities in Mexico, as well as increasing funding of entrepreneurship programs of all sizes, from micro- to large-scale enterprises;

2. strengthen cooperation between the United States and Mexican military and law enforcement entities for the purpose of addressing common threats to the security of the two countries, including illegal drug trafficking, illegal immigration, and money laundering;

3. upon the request of President Fox—

   (A) provide assistance to Mexico in support of President Fox’s plan to reform Mexico’s justice system and its inherent corruption within Mexico’s law enforcement system; and

   (B) provide assistance to the Government of Mexico to strengthen the institutions that are integral to democracy;

4. develop a common strategy to address currently documented illegal immigration between the United States and Mexico through increased cooperation, coordination, and economic development programs;

5. support drug enforcement efforts to fighting the illicit drug trade by reducing the demand for illicit drugs through intensification of anti-drug information and education, improvement of intelligence sharing, and the coordination of counterdrug activities, and increasing maritime and logistics cooperation to improve the respective capacities of the two countries to disrupt drug shipments by land, air, and sea;

6. encourage bilateral and multilateral environmental protection activities with Mexico, including strengthening the North American Development Bank (NADbank) so as to facilitate expansion of the Bank;

7. obtain the support of the Government of Mexico to assist the Government of Colombia in achieving a peaceful political solution to the conflict in Colombia; and

8. review the current illicit drug certification process, and should seek to open to consideration of other evaluation mechanisms that would promote increased cooperation and effectiveness in combating the illicit drug trade.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of the Senate shall transmit a copy of this concurrent resolution to the President.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 14—RECOGNIZING THE SOCIAL PROBLEM OF CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT; AND EXPRESSING SUPPORTING EFFORTS TO ENHANCE PUBLIC AWARENESS OF IT

Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself and Mr. KOHL) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, as follows:

Whereas more than 3,000,000 American children are reported as suspected victims of child abuse and neglect annually;

Whereas more than 500,000 American children are unable to live safely with their families and are placed in foster homes and institutions;

Whereas it is estimated that more than 1,000 children, 78 percent under the age of 5 and 38 percent under the age of 1, lose their lives as a direct result of abuse and neglect every year in America;

Whereas this tragic social problem results in human and economic costs due to its relationship to crime and delinquency, drug and alcohol abuse, domestic violence, and welfare dependency and

Whereas Childhelp USA has initiated a “Day of Hope” to be observed on the first Wednesday in April, during Child Abuse Prevention Month, to focus public awareness on this social ill. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That—

1. it is the sense of Congress that—

   (A) all Americans should keep these victims in their thoughts and prayers;

   (B) all Americans should seek to break this cycle of abuse and neglect and to give these children hope for the future; and

   (C) the faith community, nonprofit organizations, and, volunteers in America should recommit themselves and mobilize their resources to assist these children; and

2. (a) all Americans should keep these victims in their thoughts and prayers;

   (b) all Americans should seek to break this cycle of abuse and neglect and to give these children hope for the future; and

   (c) the faith community, nonprofit organizations, and, volunteers in America should recommit themselves and mobilize their resources to assist these children; and
(2) the Congress—
(A) supports the goals and ideas of the “Day of Hope”; and
(B) commends Childhelp USA for its efforts on behalf of abused and neglected children everywhere.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, for far too long, our nation has been almost silent about the needs of some of its most vulnerable families and children—those caught in the vicious cycle of child abuse. That is why, today, I am introducing the Senate concurrent resolution recognizing the first Wednesday of April as a National Day of Hope dedicated to remembering the victims of child abuse and neglect and recognizing Childhelp USA for initiating such a day. I am pleased to be joined in this effort by my friend and colleague from Wisconsin, Senator KOHL, with whom I have worked for many years on issues affecting youth at risk.

This resolution expresses the sense of the Congress that we must break the cycle of child abuse and neglect by mobilizing all our resources including the faith-based nonprofit organizations and volunteers. Childhelp USA is one of our oldest national organizations dedicated to meeting the needs of abused and neglected children. By focusing its efforts on prevention and research and treatment, this organization has provided help to thousands of children since it was founded in 1959. Childhelp USA and many other non-profits or faith-based organizations nationwide are performing a vital service to abused and neglected children that they would not have otherwise, and they are to be commended.

I know first-hand the importance of having help when it is needed. The National Day of Hope Resolution calls on each of us to renew our duty and responsibility to the vulnerable children and families caught in the cycle of child abuse and neglect.

To further observe the National Day of Hope, a cross-country ride has been organized by a group of Harley-Davidson owners in Northern Arizona. This “Cycle of Hope” will help turn the eyes of our entire nation to the suffering of the victims of child abuse. As a motorcycle enthusiast myself, I look forward to being a part of that effort.

More than 3 million American children are reported as suspected victims of child abuse and neglect each year. That is 3 million children too many. And, it is estimated that more than 1,000 children, 76 percent under the age of 5 and 38 percent under one year of age, lose their lives as a direct result of abuse and neglect every year: That is not acceptable. We must do something to change these statistics.

While I am encouraged by the efforts of many organizations nationwide, more needs to be done. That is why I urge my colleagues to act quickly on this resolution so we can move one step closer to erasing the horror of child abuse from our nation’s history.

SENATE RESOLUTION 20—DESIGNATING MARCH 25, 2001, AS “GREEK INDEPENDENCE DAY: A NATIONAL DAY OF CELEBRATION OF GREEK AND AMERICAN DEMOCRACY”

Mr. SPECTER (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. MURkowski, Mr. LEIBerman, Mr. CORZINE, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. JORDAN, Mr. McCaIN, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. MUKULski, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mrs. FINESTEIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. KERRY, Mr. DODD, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. TORricelli, Mr. INFoRE, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. WARDEN, Mr. RUGG, Mr. DiWINE, Mr. BINGaman, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. KORI, Mr. STEvENS, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. THOMPSON, Mr. GrassLEY, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. ENZI, Mr. Breaux, Mr. EDWARDS, Mr. CORZINE, Mr. HATCH, Mr. BUTCHERs, Mr. HUSKINs, Mr. RUSsEL, Mr. REDDING, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. REED, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, Mr. McCaIN, Mr. JORDAN, Mr. CASTELLanos, Mr. Coburn, Mr. JONATHAN, Mr. NIXON, Mr. CoCHRAN, Mr. JOHNSON, Mrs. MURphy, and Mr. REED) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

S. RES. 20

Whereas the ancient Greeks developed the concept of democracy, in which the supreme power to govern was vested in the people;

Whereas the Founding Fathers of the United States drew heavily on the political experience and philosophy of ancient Greece in forming our representative democracy;

Whereas Greek Commander in Chief Petros Mavromichalis, a founder of the modern Greek state, said to the citizens of the United States in 1821, “it is in your land that liberty has fixed her abode and . . . in imitating you, we shall imitate our ancestors and be thought worthy of them if we succeed in resembling you”;

Whereas Greece is one of only 3 nations in the world, beyond the former British Empire, that has been a United States ally in every major international conflict in the twentieth century;

Whereas Greece played a major role in the World War II struggle to protect freedom and democracy through such bravery as was shown in the historic Battle of Crete and in Greece presenting the Axis land war with its first major set of events that significantly affected the outcome of World War II;

Whereas former President Clinton, during his visit to Greece on November 20, 1999, referred to modern-day Greece as “a beacon of democracy, a regional leader for stability, prosperity and freedom”, and President George W. Bush, to the Prime Minister of Greece, Constantinos Simitis, in January 2001, referred to the “stable foundations and common values” that are the basis of relations between Greece and the United States;

Whereas Greece and the United States are at the forefront of the effort for freedom, democracy, peace, stability, and human rights;

Whereas those and other ideas have forged a close bond between our two nations and their peoples;

Whereas March 25, 2001, marks the 180th anniversary of the beginning of the revolution that freed the Greek people from the Ottoman Empire; and

Whereas it is proper and desirable to recognize the anniversary of the beginning of the effort for freedom, democracy, peace, stability, and human rights.

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates March 25, 2001, as “Greek Independence Day: A Celebration of Greece and American Democracy”; and
(2) requests that the President issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, today I am pleased to submit a resolution along with fifty-one of my colleagues to designate March 25, 2001, as “Greek Independence Day: A Celebration of Greek and American Democracy.”

One hundred and eighty years ago, the Greeks began a revolution that would free them from the Ottoman Empire and return Greece to its democratic heritage. It was, of course, the ancient Greeks who developed the concept of democracy in which the supreme power to govern was vested in the people. Our Founding Fathers drew heavily upon the political and philosophical experience of ancient Greece in forming our representative democracy. Thomas Jefferson proclaimed that, “to the ancient Greeks . . . we are all indebted for the light which led ourselves out of Gothic darkness.” It is fitting, then, that we should recognize the anniversary of the beginning of their efforts to return to that democratic tradition.

The democratic form of government is only one of the most obvious of the many benefits we have gained from the Greek people. The ancient Greeks contributed a great deal to the modern world, particularly to the United States of America, in the areas of art, philosophy, science and law. Today, Greek-Americans continue to enrich our culture and make valuable contributions to American society, business, and government.

It is my hope that strong support for this resolution in the Senate will serve as a clear goodwill gesture to the people of Greece with whom we have enjoyed such a close bond throughout history. Similar resolutions have been passed by the Senate since 1984 with overwhelming support. Accordingly, I urge my Senate colleagues to join me in supporting this important resolution.

SENATE RESOLUTION 21—DIRECTING THE SERGEANT-AT-ARMS TO PROVIDE INTERNET ACCESS TO CERTAIN CONGRESSIONAL DOCUMENTS, INCLUDING CERTAIN CONGRESSIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE PUBLICATIONS, SENATE LOBBYING AND GIFT REPORT FILINGS, AND SENATE AND JOINT COMMITTEE DOCUMENTS

Mr. McCaIN (for himself, Mr. LEAHy, Mr. LOTT, and Mr. LEIBerman) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Joint Committee on Rules and Administration.

S. RES. 21

Whereas it is the sense of the Senate that...
Resolved, that the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate shall make information available to the public in accordance with the provisions of this resolution.

SEC. 2. AVAILABILITY OF CERTAIN CRS INFORMATION.

(a) Availability of information.—

(1) In general.—The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, in consultation with the Director of the Congressional Research Service, shall make available through a centralized electronic database, for purposes of access and retrieval by the public under section 4 of this resolution, all information described in paragraph (2) that is available through the Congressional Research Service website.

(2) Information to be made available.—The information to be made available under paragraph (1) is:

(A) Congressional Research Service Issue Briefs.

(B) Congressional Research Service Reports that are available to Members of Congress through the Congressional Research Service website.

(C) Congressional Research Service Authorization of Appropriations Products and Appropriations Products.

(b) Limitations.—

(1) Confidential information.—Subsection (a) does not apply to—

(A) any information that is confidential, as determined by—

(i) the Director; or

(ii) the head of a Federal department or agency that provided the information to the Congressional Research Service; or

(B) any documents that are the product of an individual, office, or committee research request rather than a document described in subsection (a)(2).

(2) Redaction and revision.—In carrying out this section, the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, in consultation with the Director of the Congressional Research Service, may—

(A) remove from the information required to be made available under subsection (a) the name and phone number of, and any other information regarding, an employee of the Congressional Research Service;

(B) remove from the information required to be made available under subsection (a) any material for which the Director determines that making it available under subsection (a) may infringe the copyright of a work protected under title 17, United States Code; and

(C) make any changes in the information required to be made available under subsection (a) that the Director determines necessary to ensure that the information is accurate and current.

(c) Senate Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate, in consultation with the Director of the Congressional Research Service, shall make information required to be made available under this section available under the following conditions:

(1) is practical and reasonable; and

(2) does not permit the submission of comments from the public.

SEC. 3. PUBLIC RECORDS OF THE CONGRESS.

(a) Senate.—The Senate Committee on Rules andAdministration of the Senate, in consultation with the Director of the Congressional Research Service, shall make information required to be made available under this section available to the public on the Internet for purposes of access and retrieval by the public:

(1) Lobbyist disclosure reports.—Lobbyist disclosure reports required by the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 (2 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.) within 90 days (Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays excepted) after they are received.

(2) Gift rule disclosure reports.—Senate gift rule disclosure reports required under paragraph 2 and paragraph 4(b) of rule XXV of the Standing Orders of the Senate, within 5 days (Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays excepted) after they are received.

(b) Director.—The Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, in consultation with the Director of the Public Printer in the Government Printing Office, shall make information available on the Internet under section 3 by the electronic directory of Federal electronic information required by section 410(a)(1) of title 44, United States Code.

SEC. 4. METHOD OF ACCESS.

(a) In general.—The information required to be made available to the public on the Internet under this resolution shall be made available as follows:

(1) CRS information.—Public access to information made available under section 2 shall be provided through the websites maintained by Members and Committees of the Senate.

(2) Public records.—Public access to information made available under section 3 by the Public Printer in the Government Printing Office shall be provided through the United States Senate website.

(b) Editorial Responsibility for CRS Reports Online.—The Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate is responsible for maintaining and updating the information made available on the Internet under section 2.

SEC. 5. CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE MATERIALS.

It is the sense of the Senate that each standing and special Committee of the Senate and each Joint Committee of the Congress, in accordance with such rules as the committee may adopt, should provide access to the Internet for all public committee information, documents, and proceedings, including bills, reports, and transcripts of committee meetings that are concise, factual, and unbiased and have the high-quality reports and issue briefs that are concise, factual, and unbiased—a rarity in Washington. Many of us have used these products to make decisions on a wide variety of legislative proposals considering issues as diverse as Amtrak reform, the future of the Internet, health care reform, and tax policy. Also, we routinely send these products to our constituents in order to help them understand the important issues of our time.

My colleagues and I believe that it is important that the public should have access to this CRS information. The American public will pay $73.4 million to produce CRS’ operating budget for fiscal year 2001. The material covered in this resolution is not confidential or classified, and the public should be able to see that their money is well spent.

The Senate will serve two crucial functions by allowing the public to access this information over the Internet. First, it will help to fight a growing public cynicism about our government. According to a January 10–14, 2001, Gallup poll, the American public listed dissatisfaction with the Congress, government leadership, and the government in general as one of the “most important problems facing the country today.” By making these unbiased documents available online, the Senate will allow the public to see the factors that influence our decisions and votes. These documents will provide the public a more accurate view of the Congressional decision-making, and dispel some of the notions about Congress that create this cynicism.

In addition, the Senate will serve the important function of informing their constituents by making these CRS products available online. Members of the public will be able to read these
There is one sense in which your revised resolution may actually strengthen the protections of the Clause for CRS products. By lodging responsibility in the Senate-at-Arms for providing access, you have retained in a legislative officer, as opposed to the CRS, the power to make determinations concerning accessibility. The Senate-at-Arms, functioning nominally as the Senate and one of the statutory "officers of the Congress," Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1, 128 (1975) and 2 U.S.C. § 40-1(b) and there can be, therefore, no doubt about the Senate's intent to reposs in one of its officers the power to control its privileges.

In doing so, you have, as a practical matter as well, given the Senate the direct control over access to CRS matters. See United States v. Hofa, 205 F. Supp. 710, 723 (S.D. Fla. 1962) (cert. denied sub nom Hofa v. Lieb, 371 U.S. 892 (invocation of legislative privilege by the United States Senate conclusive upon judicial branch). Given that any putative litigant seeking to obtain privileged CRS documents would have to actually serve process upon the Senate-at-Arms to obtain documents under the revised resolution, it is even less likely under the revised bill that a party could obtain disclosure of such documents.

Sincerely,

STANLEY M. BRAND.

AOL TIME WARNER,

Hon. JOHN MCCAIN,
Chairman, Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. PATRICK J. LEAHY,
Ranking Minority Member, Committee on the Budget, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MCCAIN AND SENATOR LEAHY: On behalf of AOL Time Warner, we write to express our support for your Senate Resolution directing the Senate-at-Arms to provide Internet access to certain Congressional documents, including certain Congressional Research Service publications, Senate lobbying and gift report filings, and Senate and Joint Committee documents.

The Internet is one of our society's most powerful tools for education and communication, and its tremendous growth continues. We, like you, believe that this medium offers an unprecedented opportunity to connect individuals to the political process—by helping people become more informed citizens, by helping our government be more responsive to them, and by engaging more people in public policy discussions and debate.

Your resolution recognizes that the ability of citizens to access public records and to obtain research materials on public policy issues is crucial to a robust and successful democratic system, and that the Internet can serve as a powerful resource for information about our government and our political process. We believe that your legislation will help to further democracy by ensuring online access to Congressional documents and records.

We appreciate your leadership on this important issue and your continued leadership on technology-related matters. We look forward to working with you closely in the 107th Congress.

Sincerely,

JILL LESSER,
Senior Vice President, Domestic Policy.

ELIZABETH FRAZER,
Vice President, Domestic Policy & Congressional Relations.
DEAR SENATOR MCCAIN:

The National Federation of Press Women would like to express its support for legislation to establish a centralized, public database for Congressional Research Service reports.

NFPW, which represents more than 2,000 journalists, editors and professional communicators in the United States, last year supported S. 393, Introduced by Sen. Patrick Leahy and yourself. Our members have sent notes of interest and concern to many senators to explain why this effort is important.

CRS reports are an invaluable resource for journalists. They provide the nation’s best backgrounder on legislation. They help journalists to illuminate that wonderful sense of “history on the run,” as former Washington Post publisher Philip Graham once described the products of our craft.

But a CRS report is also a means by which the public, through the news media today is only as good as the luck of the reporter. Since the reports are not easily found, nor reliably catalogued in any public forum, a journalist must arm himself with the power which knowledge gives.

We have supported your efforts to achieve the public’s right to access the government’s information. CRS reports are some of the best research products, lobbyist disclosure reports on the Internet – a first step in allowing the public to be more involved in the legislative process.

We believe that convenient electronic access to public documents upon which the Congress relies in performing its legislative and oversight functions serves to strengthen accountability of government to the people as well as the legislative process. We hope to see early action on your resolution in this session of the 107th Congress.

Sincerely,

Douglas B. Comer, Director, Legal Affairs.

Senator John McCain, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS MCCAIN AND LEAHY:

We heartily endorse your Congressional Openness Resolution, which would require the U.S. Senate to provide access via the Internet to publicly released Congressional Research Service documents on the Internet, including Congressional Research Service (CRS) Reports and Issue Briefs, CRS Authorization and Appropriations Reports, lobbyists’ disclosure reports and Senate gift disclosure reports.

Your resolution would put about 2700-2800 of these useful reports on the Internet. Placing lobbyist disclosure reports on the Internet would help citizens to track patterns of influence in Congress, and to discover who is paying whom for much to lobby on what issues.

Citizens need access to these congressional documents to discharge their civic duties. CRS reports are some of the best research products, lobbyist disclosure reports on the Internet – a first step in allowing the public to be more involved in the legislative process. Your resolution would put about 2700-2800 of these useful reports on the Internet. Placing lobbyist disclosure reports on the Internet would help citizens to track patterns of influence in Congress, and to discover who is paying whom for much to lobby on what issues.

Taxpayers will be cheered that you have included a Sense of the Senate resolution that Senate and Joint Committees should “provide access via the Internet to publicly available committee information, documents and proceedings, including bills, reports and transcripts of committee meetings that are open to the public.” We taxpayers pay dearly for congressional documents – if they are not available we are unable to know what our elected representatives are doing.

In 1982, James Madison explained why citizens must have government information: “A popular Government, without popular information, or the means of acquiring it, is but a Prologue to a Farce or a Tragedy; or perhaps both. Knowledge will forever govern ignorance: And a people who mean to be their own Governors, must arm themselves with the power which knowledge gives.”

The Congressional Openness Resolution honors the spirit of Madison’s words. Thank you for your efforts to place congressional documents available on the Internet.

Sincerely,

Vivien Sadowski, Director, ALA Office of Government Relations.

DEAR CHAIRMAN MCCAIN:

I write to affirm the support of the American Library Association of your proposed Senate resolution regarding the maintained electronic database through which the public would be able to access CRS reports to Congress, issue briefs, issue briefs for the Internet. I note that your current initiative follows up on legislation that you introduced last Congress (S. 393) that would have mandated such action.

We have supported your efforts to achieve such public access in the past, and we are pleased that you have once again taken the initiative on this matter.

We believe that convenient electronic access to public documents upon which the Congress relies in performing its legislative and oversight functions serves to strengthen accountability of government to the people as well as the legislative process. We hope to see early action on your resolution in this session of the 107th Congress.

Sincerely,

Douglas B. Comer, Director, Legal Affairs.

Senator John McCain, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR MCCAIN:

We support your proposal to make reports from the Congressional Research Service (CRS) publicly available. We want to endorse your efforts to assure public access to a broad range of government information. The CRS reports are well researched and balanced products addressing a wide variety of current issues.

We believe that these unique and valued resources should be available to scholars and researchers as well as to all Americans through the Federal Depository Library Program (FDLP). The FDLP already provides a network of libraries throughout the country that serve the public by providing access to Federal government information. Utilizing the FDLP as well as Internet resources provides a wide range of public benefit through access to the CRS reports.

ALA has long standing policies about these issues and has made a concerted effort to increase public access to CRS reports.

Whereas, the 104th and 105th Congresses have a made a concerted effort to increase public access to Congressional Research Service reports and information products are distributed in a timely manner to the general public through Federal Depository libraries and on the Internet.

Attached is a copy of the complete resolution. We thank you for your efforts on this issue and look forward to working with you and your staff as this proposal moves forward.

Sincerely,

Lynne Bradley, Director, ALA Office of Government Relations.

WHEREAS, according to the Department of State and international human rights organizations, the Government of the People’s Republic of China continues to commit widespread and well-documented human rights abuses in China and Tibet;

WHEREAS the People’s Republic of China has yet to demonstrate its willingness to abide by internationally accepted norms of freedom of belief, expression, and association by repealing or amending laws and decrees that restrict those freedoms;

WHEREAS the Government of the People’s Republic of China continues to ban and criminalize groups it labels as cults or heretical organizations;

WHEREAS the Government of the People’s Republic of China has repressed unregistered religious congregations and spiritual movements, including Falun Gong, and persists in persecuting persons on the basis of unauthorized religious activities using such measures as harassment, prolonged detention, physical abuse, incarceration, and closure or destruction of places of worship;

WHEREAS the People’s Republic of China and Tibet have sentenced many citizens so detained to harsh prison terms;

WHEREAS Chinese authorities continue to exert control over religious and cultural institutions in Tibet, through instances of torture, arbitrary arrest, and detention of Tibetans without public trial for peacefully expressing their political or religious views;

WHEREAS bilateral human rights dialogues between several nations and the People’s Republic of China have yet to produce substantive adherence to international norms; and

WHEREAS the People’s Republic of China has signed the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, but has yet to take the steps necessary to make the treaty legally binding; Now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That it is the sense of the Senate that

1. At the 57th Session of the United Nations Human Rights Commission in Geneva, Switzerland, the appropriate representative representatives and any copyrighted material or empower our citizens through electronic access to invaluable CRS products.
of the United States should solicit cosponsorship for a resolution calling upon the Government of the People’s Republic of China to end its human rights abuses in China and thereby comply with its international obligations; and

(2) the United States Government should take the lead in organizing multilateral support to defeat any such resolution. We must begin as soon as possible to obtain support for a resolution at the upcoming meeting of the United Nations (U.N.) Human Rights Commission. There is no more appropriate place for highlighting these abuses in a multilateral setting, because this multilateral forum was established just for this purpose.

If we do not use this forum for bringing up obvious abuses, then we undercut its very viability. The U.S. has traditionally led the effort on China’s human rights abuses. This year should be no different. China is already intensely lobbying other countries to defeat any such resolution. We must begin to consider the consequences of a defeat before it happens.

Mr. President, of all the human rights abuses, the Internet offers a unique opportunity. The Chinese government has stepped up its campaign against spirals of information, especially those promoting democracy. Given the circumstances and social climate in China, this is not a time for the administration to be skeptical of the Chinese government’s offers and promises. It must continue to support the resolution.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President. I rise today to introduce legislation that would honor Benjamin Elijah Mays for his distinguished career as an educator, civil and human rights leader, and public theologian. Among his many accomplishments, Dr. Benjamin E. Mays earned a master's degree and a doctorate of philosophy from the University of Chicago, served as president of Morehouse College and mentored Martin Luther King Jr. He received numerous awards and honors during his lifetime.

Whereas Benjamin Mays was instrumental in the elimination of segregated public facilities in Atlanta, Georgia, and promoted the cause of nonviolence through peaceful student protests during a time in this Nation that was often marred by violence; whereas Benjamin Mays received numerous accolades throughout his career, including 56 honorary degrees from universities across the United States and abroad and the naming of 7 schools and academic buildings and a street in his honor; and whereas the President should award the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the highest civilian honor in the Nation, was established in 1965 to appropriately recognize Americans who have made an especially meritorious contribution to the security or national interests of the United States, world peace, or cultural or other significant public or private endeavors; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved. That it is the sense of the Senate that the President should award the Presidential Medal of Freedom posthumously to Dr. Benjamin Elijah Mays for his distinguished career as an educator, civil and human rights leader, and public theologian, and his contributions to the improvement of American society and the world through the elimination of segregated public facilities in Atlanta, Georgia, and his promotion of nonviolence through peaceful student protests.

Whereas Benjamin Mays was a member of the Asian American Caucus of the National Urban League, he served as president of the National Urban League and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; whereas Dr. Benjamin Elijah Mays, through his distinguished career of more than half a century as an educator, civil and human rights leader, and public theologian, has dedicated his life to the rights of people of color across the world by his persistent commitment to excellence; whereas Benjamin Mays persevered, despite the frustrations of the civil rights movement, to begin an illustrious career in education; whereas as dean of the School of Religion of Howard University and later as President of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Georgia, for 27 years, Benjamin Mays overcame seemingly insurmountable obstacles to offer quality education to all Americans, especially African Americans.

Whereas at the commencement of World War II, when most colleges suffered from a lack of available students and the demise of Morehouse College appeared imminent, Benjamin Mays prevented the college from permanently closing its doors by vigorously recruiting potential students and thereby adding to the development of future generations of African American leaders.

Whereas when the Senate and Congress as a whole passed PNTR for China, proponents argued that passage of PNTR in no way signaled a diminished concern for human rights. I believe that now is the time to demonstrate this continuing concern for human rights. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

SENATE RESOLUTION 23

EX-PRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE PRESIDENT SHOULD AWARD THE PRESIDENTIAL MEDAL OF FREEDOM POSTHUMOUSLY TO DR. BENJAMIN ELIJAH MAYS IN HONOR OF HIS DISTINGUISHED CAREER AS AN EDUCATOR, CIVIL AND HUMAN RIGHTS LEADER, AND PUBLIC THEOLOGIAN; WHEREAS Mr. CLELAND (for himself, Mr. MIller, and Mr. HOLLINGS) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, as follows:

WHEREAS Benjamin Elijah Mays’ achievements are even more extraordinary given the circumstances and social climate of the United States at the turn of the 20th Century; Dr. Mays, the son of former slaves, encountered prejudice and obstacles at every stage of his early education and pursued his dream

Whereas Dr. Benjamin Elijah Mays, throughout his distinguished career of more than half a century as an educator, civil and human rights leader, and public theologian, has dedicated his life to the rights of people of color across the world by his persistent commitment to excellence;...
SENATE RESOLUTION 24—HONORING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF CATHOLIC SCHOOLS.

Whereas America's Catholic schools are internationally acclaimed for their academic excellence, but provide students more than a superior scholastic education:

Whereas Catholic schools ensure a broad, values-added education emphasizing the lifelong development of moral, intellectual, physical, and social values in America's young people;

Whereas the total Catholic school student enrollment for the 1999-2000 academic year was 2,653,038, the total number of Catholic high school students drop out of school, and 83 percent of Catholic high school graduates go on to college;

Whereas Catholic schools produce students strongly dedicated to their faith, values, families, and communities by providing an intellectually stimulating environment rich in spiritual, character, and moral development;

Whereas in the 1972 pastoral message concerning Catholic education, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops stated, "Education is one of the most important ways by which the Church fulfills its commitment to the dignity of the person and building of community. Community is central to education ministry, both as a necessary condition and an ardently desired goal. The educational efforts of the Church, therefore, must be directed to forming persons-in-community; for the education of the individual Christian is important not only to his solitary destiny, but also the destinies of the many communities in which he lives." Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) supports the goals of Catholic Schools Week, an event sponsored by the National Catholic Educational Association and the United States Catholic Conference and established to recognize the vital contributions of America's thousands of Catholic elementary and secondary schools; and

(2) congratulates Catholic schools, students, parents, and teachers across the Nation for their ongoing contributions to education, and for the key role they play in promoting and ensuring a brighter, stronger future for this Nation.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Armed Services be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, February 14, 2001, at 11 a.m., in closed session to receive testimony regarding Education Tax and Savings Incentives.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON COMMUNICATIONS

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Communications of the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation be authorized to meet on Wednesday, February 14, 2001, at 9:30 a.m. on ICANN Governance.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to conduct a hearing on Wednesday, February 14, 2001, at 10 a.m. in SD226.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to conduct a hearing on Wednesday, February 14, 2001, at 11 a.m. on ICANN Governance.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PRESIDENTIAL VISIT TO MEXICO

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to consider the concurrent resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 13) expressing the sense of Congress with respect to the upcoming trip of President George W. Bush to Mexico to meet with newly elected President Vicente Fox Quesada—and with respect to future cooperative efforts between the United States and Mexico.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, we are facing a unique time in the history of U.S.-Mexico relations. Mexico's election and inauguration last year of an opposition candidate as president—Vicente Fox Quesada—has overturned 71 years of executive branch domination by the Institutional Revolutionary Party, PRI. And now, with the inauguration of our new president—George W. Bush—both nations have the unprecedented opportunity to implement positive changes and create lasting progress for our entire Western Hemisphere.

Because of Mexico's critical importance to our nation and hemisphere, it is not at all surprising that President Bush has chosen to travel to Mexico for... his first official foreign trip as President. It is with that in mind that I am introducing a resolution today, along with Senators HELMS, LOTT, DODD, MCCAIN, LANDRIEU, GRASSLEY, BREAUx, CHAFEE, VOINOVICH, and LEAHY to express our bipartisan interest in America’s current relationship with Mexico and to suggest several issues of particular importance that President Bush should raise during his upcoming meeting with President Fox.

Our resolution acknowledges the vital nature of our relationship with Mexico and calls for policies that promote cooperation, enhance the security and prosperity of both nations, and enable both countries to establish mutually agreed-upon goals in at least four areas: one, economic development and trade; two, the environment; three, immigration; and, four, law enforcement and counter-drug policy.

In the view of both countries should pursue realistic and practical steps that will build confidence in our partnership and help set the stage for future discussions and future progress. No more the importance of our involvement with Mexico—a nation with which we share over 2,000 miles of common borders. Additionally, over 21.4 million Americans living in this country are of Mexican heritage—that is 67 percent of our total U.S. Latino population. Indeed, many people and many issues bind our nations together. And, it is in both nations’ interest to make that bond even stronger.

That is why we want to see President Fox succeed. And, he is off to a good start. For the first time in two decades, economic crisis has not marred Mexico’s transition period in between presidencies. Instead, President Fox’s election has been received as a positive signal about their nation’s value as an economic partner. Meanwhile, President Bush knows this. He understands America, itself. Our resolution acknowledges the importance of Mexico to the future prosperity and security of our country, as well as our hemisphere. The elections of Vicente Fox and George W. Bush present one of the best opportunities not only to redefine U.S.-Mexico relations, but to bring all of Latin America to the top of the Administration’s foreign policy agenda.

We cannot underestimate, nor can we neglect our neighbors to the south. President Bush knows this. He understands this. And, in a speech last August, he best described our relationship with Latin America, when he said:

Those who ignore Latin America do not fully understand America, itself. . . . Our future cannot be separated from the future of Latin America. . . . We seek, not just good neighbors, but strong partners. We seek, not just progress, but shared prosperity.

Overall progress in our partnership cannot occur, though, absent continued progress in Mexico’s economy. Although Mexico is in its fifth consecutive year of recovery following the 1994-1995 peso crisis, improved living standards and economic opportunities have not materialized. Lack of jobs and depressed wages are particularly acute in the interior of the country, even in President Fox’s home state of Guanajuato. As long as enormous disparities in wages and living conditions exist between the United States and Mexico, our own nation will not fully realize the potential of Mexico as an export market nor will we be able to deal adequately with the resulting problems of illegal immigration, border crime, and drug trafficking.

In keeping with the market-oriented approach we began with NAFTA, the United States can take a number of constructive steps to continue economic progress in Mexico and secure its support for a Free Trade Agreement with the Americas:

First, we can encourage growth and development by devising, for example, a common strategy to improve the flow of credit and U.S. investment opportunities in Mexico and by increasing funding for entrepreneurial efforts of all sizes, such as microcredit and microenterprise programs and Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) projects. OPIC—a loan program that assists U.S. businesses that make investments in foreign countries—is already developing a limited small business financing program to support U.S. investments in environmentally sound projects in Mexico. We should work to expand the availability of this kind of investment assistance.

Second, we should expand the mandate of the North American Development Bank (NADbank) beyond the U.S.-Mexico border region—an idea proposed by Congressman DAVID DREIER and M. Delali Baer, an expert in Latin American affairs for the Center for Strategic and International Studies. The NADbank has been a successful source of private-public financing of infrastructure projects along our borders. Extending its authority inland will not only bring good jobs into the interior of Mexico, but also would develop and further nationalize a transportation and economic infrastructure.

Third, both nations need to pursue a joint immigration policy that takes into account the realities of the economic conditions of both countries. At this point, the Bush Administration should re-evaluate the current guest worker program, which has proven burdensome for U.S. farmers and small businesses. Any calls for a liberalization of this program from President Fox should be linked to concrete programs to reduce illegal immigration into the United States.

Fourth, in a quick and simple fix, the Bush Administration should eliminate the annual cap on the number of visas issued to Mexican business executives to enter the United States. Currently, the cap stands at 5,500 and will be phased out by 2004. The United States does not have such a cap for Canada. Repealing the cap would send to President Fox and the people of Mexico a positive signal about their nation’s value as an economic partner.

Fifth and finally, it is important for the United States to be seen as a partner and resource when President Fox undertakes his pledge to reform Mexico’s entire judicial system. With a law enforcement system plagued with inherent corruption and institutional and financial deterioration, President Fox will face numerous challenges. It is in our interest to help him upon his request, whether it be through financial or technical assistance. It is in our interest that he succeed, because our own country cannot effectively deal with the flow of drugs across our border without the full cooperation and support of Mexican law enforcement. Additionally, the Bush Administration should explore possible multilateral anti-drug mechanisms and work with Mexico, Canada, and the United States to realize standard day-to-day border functions of the hardworking and trusted law enforcement officials from both countries.

The issues that impact the United States and Mexico are numerous—all important, each interrelated with the other. Together, they present an enormous task for the presidents of both countries. Perhaps most important, they are evidence of the enormous importance of Mexico and the future prosperity and security of our country, as well as our hemisphere. The elections of Vicente Fox and George W. Bush present one of the best opportunities not only to redefine U.S.-Mexico relations for the better, but to bring all of Latin America to the top of the Administration’s foreign policy agenda.

We cannot underestimate, nor can we neglect our neighbors to the south. President Bush knows this. He understands this. And, in a speech last August, he best described our relationship with Latin America, when he said:

Those who ignore Latin America do not fully understand America, itself. . . . Our future cannot be separated from the future of Latin America. . . . We seek, not just good neighbors, but strong partners. We seek, not just progress, but shared prosperity.

With persistence, we shaped the last century into an American century. With leadership and commitment, this can be the century of the Americas.

I couldn’t agree more.
laid upon the table, and finally, that any statements relating to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 13) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

(The resolution is printed in today’s RECORD under “Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions.”)

ORGAN DONATION AND SUPPORTING NATIONAL DONOR DAY

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, on behalf of the majority leader, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Con. Res. 12, submitted earlier today by Senator DURBIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 12) expressing the sense of Congress regarding the importance of organ, tissue, bone marrow, and blood donation, and supporting National Donor Day.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, let me take a moment, if I may, to speak on behalf of this resolution.

Every day in this country we lose people because we do not have enough donated organs, and we do not have enough people who understand this problem. I applaud my colleague for introducing this resolution and join with him and the other cosponsors in asking for its passage.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution and preamble be agreed to, en bloc, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statement relating to the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 12) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

(The concurrent resolution is printed in today’s RECORD under “Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions.”)

MEASURE READ THE FIRST TIME—S. 328

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I understand that S. 328 is at the desk, and I ask for its first reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 328) to amend the Coastal Zone Management Act.

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I ask for its second reading and object to my own request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be read a second time on the next legislative day.

PROVIDING FOR A JOINT SESSION OF CONGRESS

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H. Con. Res. 28, regarding an address to Congress by the President of the United States. Further, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 28) was agreed to.

PROVIDING FOR A CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND A CONDITIONAL RECESS OR ADJOURNMENT OF THE SENATE

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H. Con. Res. 32, the adjournment resolution, which is at the desk.

I further ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 32) was agreed to.

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 2001

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 10 a.m. on February 15. I further ask unanimous consent that immediately following the adjournment, the Senate consider a resolution relative to the energy crisis occurring on the west coast and could also consider the nominee to head the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Therefore, votes can be expected to occur.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, on behalf of the majority leader, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order following the remarks of Senator BROWNBACK.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DeWINE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECONCILIATION AND VALENTINE’S DAY

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I want to speak for a few minutes on a bill that I am going to be putting forward shortly and then tie it in to this business. It is Valentine’s Day. I hope everybody has called their special person. I hope they have called their mother. I hope they have called the people to whom they think they ought to reach out. If they have not done so, there is still time. There is special delivery of flowers, candy, and others things that can be done. They can still capture the day and the moment for the people to whom they should be reaching out.
I want to talk about a national day of reconciliation. This is an effort by both Houses to identify what needs to be done to reconcile the Nation and past and present problems.

We are at the beginning of a new administration and at the beginning of a new millennium. This would be a good time to do this.

It is a simple proposition, a basic proposition of what we need to do to identify—something we should have done—and correct past wrongs. I am hoping we can identify and move that forward without difficulty and controversy. It will be a very healthy exercise.

It is also healthy to recognize the basis of some of these days we celebrate. That is why I put forward this notion of reconciliation on Valentine’s Day. It is a lot more than just hearts, cards, and candy.

I commend to the Senate an article written by Mark Merrill in the Washington Times today. He is president of Family First, an independent, non-profit research group that strengthens families. He supports the story of Valentine, the true Valentine. I understand there are three St. Valentines. All three were martyred. All three were tremendously dedicated to other individuals and to helping them.

The one he identifies is the first Valentine. It is quite a story. I ask unanimous consent to print this article in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

[From the Washington Times, Feb. 14, 2001]

SACRIFICIAL LOVE—ST. VALENTINE’S CONTRIBUTION TO LOVE AND COMMITMENT

(By Mark W. Merrill)

Do you know the real story behind Valentine’s Day? It goes way beyond hearts, cards and candy. It is a story of love, sacrifice and commitment.

In the third century, the Roman Empire was ruled by Claudius Gothicus. He was nicknamed “Claudius the Cruel” because of his harsh leadership and his tendency for getting into wars. In fact, he was in so many wars that he was having a difficult time recruiting soldiers.

Claudius believed that recruitment for the army was down because Roman men did not want to leave their loves or families behind, so he canceled all marriages and engagements in Rome. Thousands of couples saw their hopes of matrimony dashed by the single act of a tyrant.

But a simple Christian priest named Valentine came forward and stood up for love. He began to secretly marry soldiers before they went off to war, despite the emperor’s orders. In 269 AD, Emperor Claudius found out about the secret ceremonies. He had Valentine thrown into prison and ordered him put to death.

He gave his life to that couples could be bonded together in holy matrimony. They may have killed the man, but not his spirit. Even centuries after his death, the story of Valentine’s self-sacrificing commitment to love was legendary in Rome. Eventually, he was granted sainthood and the Catholic church decided to create a feast in his honor. They picked Feb. 14 because of the ancient belief that birds (particularly lovebirds and doves) began to mate on that very day.

So what are you doing to keep the love in your marriage? While gifts, candlelight dinners and sweet words are nice, the true spirit of Valentine’s Day needs to last year-round. Here are some ways to bring more love into your marriage:

1. Schedule priority time together. Pull out your calendars and set a date night every week or two—just to spend time together and talk. (Note: Movies don’t count)
2. Laugh together. When was the last time you shared a funny story and chuckled with each other? Loosen up and laugh freely. Live lightheartedly.
3. Play together. Find a hobby or activity you both enjoy—fishing, bowling, tennis, hiking, biking or crossword puzzles.
4. Be romantic together. Send your spouse a note of encouragement in the mail every once in awhile just to say, “I love you.” However, you choose to express yourself, do it in the spirit of the selfless Saint Valentine—who not only took a stand for love—he gave his life for it.

Mr. BROWNBACK, I will read portions of the article because it is so instructive about what Valentine’s Day is about.

In the 3rd century, the Roman Empire was ruled by Claudius Gothicus. He was nicknamed “Claudius the Cruel”—

That is a pretty auspicious name for an emperor—because of his harsh leadership and tendency for getting into wars. In fact, he was in so many wars he was having a difficult time recruiting soldiers.

Claudius believed that recruitment for the Army was down because Roman men did not want to leave their loves or their families behind. . . .

So what do you do if you are emperor and cannot get people to sign up? He banned the institution of marriage and said there was not going to be marriage allowed anymore.

Thousands of couples saw their hopes for matrimony dashed by the single act of a tyrant.

But a simple Christian priest named Valentine came forward and stood up for love. He began to secretly marry soldiers before they went off to war, despite the emperor’s orders. In 269 AD, Emperor Claudius found out about the secret ceremonies. He had Valentine thrown into prison and ordered him put to death.

He gave his life so couples could be bonded together in holy matrimony. They may have killed the man, but not his spirit. Even centuries after his death, the story of Valentine’s self-sacrificing commitment to love was legendary in Rome. Eventually, he was granted sainthood and the Catholic church decided to create a feast in his honor. They picked February 14 because of the ancient belief that birds (particularly lovebirds and doves) began to mate on that very day.

I think it is interesting to look back into the history of why it is we celebrate certain days and when we celebrate them. There is usually a beautiful story, this tapestry of something of beauty in our heritage that I always think of in redigging that well and seeing what is there.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in adjournment until 10 a.m., Thursday, February 15, 2001.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 5:02 p.m., adjourned until Thursday, February 15, 2001, at 10 a.m.
HON. WALLY HERGER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce the Farmer Tax Fairness Act, along with my Ways and Means Committee colleagues, Representatives THURMAN, DUNN, and FOLEY, ENGLISH, and CAMP. This legislation will help ensure that farmers have access to tax benefits rightfully owed them.

As those of us from agricultural areas understand, farmers’ income often fluctuates from year to year based on unforeseen weather or market conditions. Income averaging allows farmers to ride out these unpredictable circumstances by spreading out their income over a period of years. A few years ago, we acted in a bipartisan manner to make income averaging a permanent provision of the tax code. Unfortunately, since that time, we have learned that, due to interaction with another tax code provision, the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT), many of our nation’s farmers have been unfairly denied the benefits of this important accounting tool.

Our legislation directly addresses the concerns being raised by farmers using income averaging. Under the Farmer Tax Fairness Act, if a farmer’s AMT liability is greater than taxes due under the income averaging calculation, that farmer would disregard the AMT and pay taxes according to the averaging calculation. As such, farmers will be able to take full advantage of income averaging as intended by Congress.

This provision is a reasonable measure designed to ensure farmers are treated fairly when it comes time to file their taxes. I urge my colleagues to join me in promoting greater tax fairness for our nation’s farmers.
On behalf of the citizens of the Sixth District of North Carolina, we congratulate Landis, North Carolina on its centennial celebration. We offer our best wishes for much prosperity and success during the century to come.

IN HONOR OF SFC TOYA D. KING-JOHN

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I wish today to honor the 18-year commitment of SFC Latoya King-John of Brooklyn, NY. Ms. King-John is currently serving in the United States Army Reserve. From 1996-1997, Ms. King-John served in Operation Joint Venture; leaving her husband and two young children while she worked as a movement control supervisor in Bosnia, Croatia, and Hungary.

In addition, Ms. King-John has worked for New York State for the past 17 years. While there she has been an active member of the Civil Service Employees Association, where she has served on the Education Committee of Local 351. Also, Ms. King-John is a member of the Non-Commissioned Officers Association. In 1999, Ms. King-John was recognized by the Disabled American Veterans.

Mr. Speaker, Ms. King-John has served this country for nearly two decades at great personal sacrifice; she has served New York State for nearly two decades as well. As such, she is more than worthy of receiving our recognition today, and I hope that all of my colleagues will join me in honoring this truly remarkable woman.

SUPPORT OF THE LABOR FIRST CONTRACT NEGOTIATIONS ACT

HON. GENE GREEN
OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Labor Relations First Contract Negotiations Act.

The National Labor Relations Act guarantees the right of employees to organize and bargain collectively to improve living standards and working conditions. The right to organize is a basic civil right, and unions are an avenue for continued public service in the community.

Down payment and loan fee reductions will have the effect of helping school districts and localities recruit and retain qualified teachers, policemen, and firefighters. It will also make it easier for public servants to buy a home within the community. And, the bill's premium waiver feature provides an incentive for continued public service in the local community.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) has estimated that the bill would generate 125,000 new loans to teachers, policemen, and firefighters over the next five years. CBO also determined that the bill would actually increase the federal budget surplus by $162 million over the same period.

This legislation is supported by the Fraternal Order of Police, the American Federation of Teachers, the National Education Association, and the American Association of School Administrators.

Moreover, the bill enjoys bipartisan support, and was in fact passed by the House last year, as Section 203 of H.R. 1776. Unfortunately, it died when the House and Senate failed to reach agreement. I urge my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring this important legislation, so that we may enact it into law this year.

HONORING ASSEMBLYMAN DENIS BUTLER

HON. JOSEPH CROWLEY
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Assemblyman Butler for his twenty-four years of elected service on behalf of the people of Queens. The Powhatan and Pocahontas Regular Democratic Club will honor Butler again next week for his tremendous advocacy for youth, senior citizens, veterans, and the disabled.

Assemblyman Butler was first elected to the New York State Assembly in April of 1976, and enjoyed victories in every Assembly race since then. During his twenty-four years in the Assembly, Mr. Butler moved up the ranks to become an Assistant Speaker Pro Tempore, to which he was appointed in 1993. Assemblyman Butler previously held the positions of Vice Chairman of the Majority Conference, Chairman of the Majority Conference and Chairman of the Committee on Standing Committees. He was also a member of the Executive Committee of the Eastern Regional Conference of the Council of State Governments.

Moreover, the bill enjoys bi-partisan support, so that we may enact it into law this year.

Mr. Speaker, Ms. King-John, today, along with my colleague Representative LEACH and a number of other Members of the House, I will be introducing the Homeownership Opportunities for Uniformed Services and Educators Act, also known as the "HOUSE Act."

The HOUSE Act authorizes 1% down payment FHA mortgage loans for prekindergarten through 12th grade teachers, policemen, and firefighters buying a home within the school district or local employing jurisdiction. This significantly reduces the down payment hurdle. For example, the down payment on a $132,000 home would be lowered from around $6,270 to only $1,320. In higher cost areas the effect would be more dramatic.

Moreover, for qualified borrowers, the bill defers the 1.5% up-front FHA premium that FHA customarily charges, which currently ranges from $1,980 to $3,590, depending on the size of the loan. Moreover, this deferred fee is reduced by 20% for each year of public service in the community, and entirely waived after five years of continued service.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) has estimated that the bill would generate 125,000 new loans to teachers, policemen, and firefighters over the next five years. CBO also determined that the bill would actually increase the federal budget surplus by $162 million over the same period.

This legislation is supported by the Fraternal Order of Police, the American Federation of Teachers, the National Education Association, and the American Association of School Administrators.

Moreover, the bill enjoys bipartisan support, and was in fact passed by the House last year, as Section 203 of H.R. 1776. Unfortunately, it died when the House and Senate failed to reach agreement. I urge my colleagues to join us in cosponsoring this important legislation, so that we may enact it into law this year.
I was proud to serve with Assemblyman Butler in the New York State Assembly for twelve years, and I am pleased to call him a friend.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in commending Assemblyman Butler for his twenty-four years of advocacy for the people of Queens and New York State.

INTRODUCING A BILL TO ENSURE THAT SMALL BUSINESSES ARE RIGHTFULLY ENTITLED TO USE THE CASH METHOD OF ACCOUNTING

HON. WALLY HERGER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce the “Cash Accounting for Small Business Act of 2001,” a bill to simplify the tax code and provide relief for small businesses across the nation. I am pleased to be joined in this effort by my colleague on the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. TANNER, along with the chairman and ranking member of the Small Business Committee, Mr. MANZULLO and Ms. NYDIA VELAZQUEZ.

One of the most complex and burdensome aspects of the Tax Code for many small businesses is also one of the most fundamental—their tax accounting method. While current tax law specifies a $5 million annual gross receipts test for the use of cash accounting, this test has often been misinterpreted by the IRS, especially for small businesses using inventory.

Today we are introducing the “Cash Accounting for Small Business Act of 2001,” legislation to clarify tax accounting rules for small businesses. Our legislation will follow the recommendation of the IRS National Taxpayer Advocate in his 2000 report to Congress by further clarifying the $5 million threshold for use of the cash method of accounting. For small companies with average annual gross receipts below that level, they will be entitled to use the cash method. In addition, the bill will enable small businesses, particularly service providers below the $5 million threshold, to avoid the onerous inventory-accounting rules.

As a result, small business owners will be able to save time and accounting costs and put them back into productive use.

According to accountants, the use of accrual accounting can increase a small business’ accounting costs by as much as 50 percent. For small firms struggling to get their businesses off the ground, that’s valuable capital thrown down the drain to pay for unnecessary recordkeeping. The costs for failure to comply, however, can be quite high. A survey by the Padgett Business Services Foundation, for example, revealed that on the inventory-accounting issue alone, a small business found by the IRS to be using the incorrect bookkeeping method can end up paying $2,000 to $14,000, with an average of $7,200 in taxes, interest, and penalties.

Small business owners across the country have been clamoring for tax simplification. This legislation is a down payment on that goal. I urge all my colleagues to join me in this straightforward effort to infuse some common sense into our overly complicated Tax Code.

Small businesses contribute greatly to this country’s economy, and they deserve a break from needless government-imposed compliance costs.

A TRIBUTE TO THE HONORABLE ALBERT VANN

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I wish today to honor New York State Assemblyman Albert Vann of Brooklyn, New York upon his receipt of the Susan G. Hadden Pioneer Award from the Alliance for Public Technology. The Hon. Albert Vann has served as the NYS Assemblyman for the 56th Assembly since 1974. During this time Mr. Vann has been a tireless advocate on behalf of low-income communities, chairing the Assembly Standing Committee on Children and Families as well as the New York State Black and Puerto Rican Caucus. He is currently the Chairman of the Assembly Standing Committee on Corporations, Authorities and Commissions. The ‘Corporations’ Committee has oversight authority over the New York State Public Service Commission, the regulatory body for telecommunications and cable.

Assemblyman Vann has worked on a variety of initiatives to lay the groundwork to bring technology to low income and rural areas. Mr. Vann worked with me to expand the Congressional Black Caucus’ Braintrust Communicators Conference to include telecommunications and e-commerce issues. He also worked with the New York State Public Service Commission to create the Diffusion Fund, which provides $50 million to establish broadband capacity in low-income communities. In addition, he has held a series of technology seminars in his district to provide his constituents with networking opportunities in telecommunications and information services.

Assemblyman Vann was selected to serve as co-chair of the Assembly Task Force on Telecommunications where he worked on the ramifications of the 1996 Federal Telecommunications Act for New York State. He has used his positions to ensure that New York State maintains a leadership role on telecommunications issues. At brought his technology access concerns to a national forum by chairing the National Black Caucus of State Legislators Telecommunications and Energy Committee.

Mr. Speaker, NYS Assemblyman Al Vann has been a tireless advocate on behalf of the technologically underserved, through his hard work and dedication, he has provided access where otherwise there would not be any. As such, he is more than worthy of receiving our recognition today, and I hope that all of my colleagues will join me in honoring this fine public servant.

INTRODUCTION OF A HOUSE CONTINUING RESOLUTION URGING INCREASED FEDERAL FUNDING FOR JUVENILE (TYPE 1) DIABETES RESEARCH

HON. GENE GREEN
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of legislation which urges Congress to increase federal funding for Type I diabetes, also known as juvenile diabetes. Type I diabetes is a devastating illness that affects over 1 million Americans, many of whom are diagnosed as children. This serious disease robs children of their innocence and independence, and burdens its victims with a lifetime of finger-sticks, shots, and fear of dreaded complications.

Even with a strict regimen of insulin injections, blood-glucose monitoring, diet and exercise, people with Type I diabetes are at severe risk for blindness, kidney failure, amputations, heart disease and stroke.

The burden of diabetes is felt by all Americans. Americans spend $105 billion each year on the direct and indirect costs of this disease. One of every four Medicare dollars is spent on beneficiaries with diabetes, and one in ten health care dollars overall are spent on individuals with this serious disease.

There is great promise that a cure for Type I can be found in the near future. Advancements in genetic research, transplantation and immunology, and research into potential vaccines all hold the potential to eliminate Type I diabetes. But if we are to find a cure, we in Congress must find the money to pay for it.

The Diabetes Research Working Group (DRWG), a Congressionally appointed panel of experts in diabetes research, issued a report in 1999 that indicates the need for a significant increase in diabetes research. The DRWG recommended a $4.1 billion increase for diabetes research over a five year period. Congress must heed this report.

This legislation I am introducing today recognizes the particular burden of Type I diabetest, and the need to follow the recommendations of the DRWG. It also recognizes the importance of our partners in the private sector, such as the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, which has donated more than $336 million to diabetes research since 1970 and will give $100 million in FY 2001.

Mr. Speaker, full funding for diabetes research will help eradicate this devastating illness, save billions of health care dollars, and end the unnecessary suffering of millions of Americans. I urge all of my colleagues to join me in our fight to cure Type I diabetes.

TEACHER RECRUITMENT AND RETENTION ACT

HON. DENNIS MOORE
OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to support the Teacher Recruitment and Retention Act. I am introducing this legislation today to address a pressing need in school districts across the country—the need for teachers at all levels.

Local school districts all over the country are struggling with a teacher shortage that shows no signs of abating in the near future. Urban, rural and suburban districts are all struggling to fill these positions, and the problem caused by a combination of demographic trends and a low teacher retention rate.

The children of the Baby Boomers, or the Baby Boom Echo, resulted in a 25% increase in our nation’s birth rate that began in the mid-1970s and reached its peak in 1990 with the birth of 4.1 million children. The children of the Baby Boom Echo are flooding our schools—in the fall of 2000, 53 million young people entered our nation’s public and private classrooms. In the fourth year of the new century, a new national enrollment record was set—a record 2000 enrollment reflects an increase of 6.5 million, or 14% since fall 1990.

Furthermore, the U.S. is on the verge of a major teacher shortage. That is as the large cohort of experienced teachers who were hired in the late 1960s and 1970s begin to leave the profession. A total of 2.2 million teachers are needed to meet enrollment increases in the next 10 years and to offset the large number of teachers who are preparing to retire. The nationwide shortage of teachers is already particularly pronounced in the disciplines of science, math, special education, and foreign languages.

Unfortunately, young teachers are leaving the profession at an alarming rate. Local school administrators are working overtime to find the qualified teachers they need, but their toughest problem is keeping them once hired. Our recent booming economy, which has benefited all workers, has driven qualified teachers to higher-paying, lower-stress jobs in the private sector. Twenty-two percent of all new teachers leave the profession in the first three years. Studies show that teachers are much more likely to remain in the field of education if we can help them through the first three years.

Local school districts are already feeling the effects of this trend. Last year, I conducted a survey of school districts within the Third Congressional District in Kansas, and the principals of 75% of all middle schools, 95% of junior high/middle schools and 75% of high schools reported they were able to fill all teaching positions with qualified teachers. Furthermore, the principals fully expect this problem to continue—75% of all schools reported they anticipate difficulty hiring qualified teachers in the future, including 90% of the middle school and junior high schools.

It is time for the federal government to assist states and local school districts in attracting and keeping qualified teachers. It is also time to recognize that recruiting and retaining good teachers is a national priority worthy of federal investment.

Mr. Speaker, today with several of my colleagues I am introducing the Teacher Recruitment and Retention Act. This bill would increase 100% of federal student loans (up to $10,000) over five years for any newly qualified educator who: teaches in a low-income school, teaches special education, or teaches in a designated teacher shortage area (as defined by the state departments of education). The provisions of this bill would apply to all Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) Direct Loans (DL).

I encourage my colleagues to hear the requests of their school districts and join me in cosponsoring this important legislation.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. XAVIER BECERRA
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, on January 30 and 31 and February 6, 7, and 13, I was unable to cast my votes on roll call votes: No. 5, on motion to suspend and pass H.R. 93; No. 6 on motion to suspend and agree to H. Con. Res. 14; No. 7 on motion to suspend and agree to H. Con. Res. 15; No. 8 on approving the journal; No. 9 on motion to suspend and pass H.J. Res. 7; No. 10 on motion to suspend and agree to H. Res. 28; No. 11 on motion to suspend and pass H.R. 132; No. 12 on motion to suspend and agree to H. Res. 34; and No. 13 on motion to pass H.R. 2. Had I been present for the votes, I would have voted “aye” on roll call votes 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13.

HONORING MARY ANNE KELLY

HON. JOSEPH CROWLEY
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor Mary Anne Kelly for her great commitment to community and family involvement. Kelly will be recognized next week by the Powhatan and Pocahontas Regular Democratic Club for her work on behalf of her community in Long Island City and Astoria, New York.

Kelly’s love for and roots in Queens are deep and long lasting. She was born in St. John’s hospital, then located to Long Island City, where she was raised as the only child of loving parents, Florence and Lawrence Creamer of Astoria. She graduated from St. Joseph’s Grammar School in Astoria with honors and was the recipient of the Math Medal. Mary Anne then attended St. Jean the Baptist High School in Manhattan where she participated in numerous activities and did volunteer work with the New York Founding Home.

She said that although it was often heart wrenching, it was a wonderful feeling to be able to help infants and toddlers. It was a true labor of love.

Mrs. Kelly had every intention of entering Hunter College with the goal of becoming a Math teacher, as she loved working with children. However, the New York Telephone Company offered a wonderful opportunity to her, and she opted for the business world—a choice she does not regret. She worked for eight years in the commercial department, the last five years as a business representative. Kelly also served as her office’s union representative.

In the summer of 1956, a mutual friend introduced Mary Anne to a wonderful man. Now after 43 years of marriage to Peter Kelly, Mary Anne claims that she has the luckiest day of her life. They were married in June of 1958 and had three marvelous children: Peter, now a Civil Court Judge, Anne-Marie, my talented Director of Constituent Service, and Carleen. In addition, they have a loving daughter-in-law Cathy, a terrific son-in-law Robert, and have been blessed with four beautiful grandchildren Christian, Bobby, Brian and Meghan.

Kelly’s involvement with politics started with a phone call from Denis Butler who had decided to run for Democratic leader in Astoria. She invited him to run with her as female co-leader. They had known each other through their mutual involvement in church and Home School activities. Kelly was Vice President of the HDCC Community and had chaired many successful fundraisers for their school. That phone call was the beginning of a wonderful political union and a friendship that lasted through 30 years of service to their community and clubs. They have the honor of being the two leaders, male and female, in Queens who remained in office longer than any other political team. Although Kelly is no longer a Democratic District Leader, a title her daughter Anne-Marie Anzalone now holds, she will always remain devoted to her community and the Powhaton and Pocahontas clubs whose members have been so supportive over the years.

As an elected official, I appreciate the work and dedication of people like Mary Anne Kelly to democracy and good government. Mary Anne is the person who carries the petitions, stuffs the envelopes, helping to elect hundreds of talented men and women to all levels of government, from Queens courts to U.S. President.

Mr. Speaker, please join me recognizing Mrs. Mary Anne Kelly for her lifetime of service to the communities of Astoria and Long Island City, New York.

HONORING JOLIET JUNIOR COLLEGE (JJC)

HON. JERRY WELLER
OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Joliet Junior College (JJC) as they celebrate their 100 year anniversary and the unveiling of the U.S. Postal Service post card honoring JJC.

JJC is America’s oldest public community college. It began in 1901 as an experimental postgraduate high school and was the “brain child” of J. Stanley Brown, Superintendent of Joliet Township High School, and William Rainey Harper, President of the University of Chicago. The college’s initial enrollment was six students.

Brown and Harper’s innovation created a junior college that academically paralleled the first two years of a 4-year college or university. The junior college was designed to accommodate students who wanted to remain within the community and still pursue a college education that was affordable. Today, Brown and Harper’s vision has spread across the nation and has become a vital part of our economic prosperity and our cultural awareness.

Community Colleges have stood the test of time, meeting the challenges of recovery from depression and war, opening their doors to over 2.2 million veterans since World War II and teaching a generation of baby boomers.
H.R. 599: MEDICARE MENTAL ILLNESS NON-Discrimination Act

HON. MARGE ROUKEMA
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, yesterday I introduced H.R. 599, the Medicare Mental Illness Non-Discrimination Act. In reference to my extension of remarks concerning this legislation (on page E156 of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD), I ask that a letter in support of H.R. 599 from Dr. Daniel B. Borenstein, President of the American Psychiatric Association (APA), be added in the RECORD. I submit the following letter from the APA into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

AMERICAN PSYCHIATRIC ASSOCIATION,
Rayburn Building, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE ROUKEMA: On behalf of the American Psychiatric Association (APA), the medical specialty representing more than 40,000 psychiatric physicians nationwide, I am writing to offer our heartfelt support and gratitude for the introduction of legislation to end Medicare’s historic discrimination against patients with mental illness.

As you know, Medicare currently requires patients to pay a copayment for mental health treatment for mental illness to pay 50 percent of their cost out of pocket, as opposed to the 20 percent copayment charged for all other Medicare Part B services. This is simply a policy of discrimination by diagnosis that inflicts a heavy toll on Medicare patients who, for no fault of their own, happen to suffer from mental illness.

Your legislation would end this discrimination by requiring that Medicare patients pay only the same 20 percent copayment for mental illness treatment that they would pay when seeking any other medical treatment, including, for example, treatment for diabetes, cancer, heart disease, or the common cold. APA commends you for your continued dedication to persons with mental illness, and we join you in urging Congress to end Medicare’s discriminatory coverage of mental illness treatment.

Thank you for your sponsorship of this most important bill. We look forward to working with you to secure its ultimate enactment.

Sincerely,

DANIEL B. BORENSTEIN, M.D., President.

INTRODUCTION OF A BILL TO STRENGTHEN AND IMPROVE THE BENEFITS PROVIDED TO SMALL BUSINESSES UNDER INTERNAL REVENUE CODE SECTION 179

HON. WALLY HERGER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce the “Small Business Expensing Improvement Act of 2001” legislation to assist small businesses with the cost of new business investments. I am pleased to be joined in this effort by my colleague on the Ways and Means Committee, Mr. TANNER.

Small businesses truly are the backbone of our economy, representing more than half of all jobs and economic output. We should not take small business vitality for granted, however. Rather, our tax laws should support small businesses in their role as the engines of innovation, growth, and job creation.

The legislation making today will improve our tax laws to make it easier for small businesses to make the crucial investments in new equipment necessary for continued prosperity. Under Code Section 179, a small business is allowed to expense the first $24,000 in new business investment in a year. Our legislation will increase this amount to $35,000, beginning in 2001. Furthermore, our bill will index this amount to ensure that the value of this provision is not eroded over time.

This legislation will also allow more small businesses to take advantage of expensing by increasing from $200,000 to $300,000 the total amount a business may invest in a year and qualify for Section 179. It is important to note that this amount has not been adjusted for inflation since its enacting into law in 1986.

The “Small Business Expensing Improvement Act” also improves the small business expensing provision by following the recommendations of the IRS National Taxpayer Advocate in his 2000 Annual Report to Congress. Specifically, our legislation makes residential rental personal property and off-the-shelf computer software eligible for expensing under Section 179.

Mr. Speaker, in times of economic uncertainty, we must do all we can to encourage new investment and job creation. The “Small Business Expensing Improvement Act of 2001” will help accomplish this worthy goal, and I urge my colleagues to join me in this effort.

IN COMMEMORATION OF THE DAY OF REMEMBRANCE RE-INTRODUCTION OF THE WARTIME PARLIAMENT ACT OF 2001

HON. XAVIER BECERRA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, on Saturday I will enjoy the privilege of joining with citizens in Los Angeles at the historic Japanese American National Museum to commemorate our mission to “remembering our history to better guard against the prejudice that threatens liberty and equality in a democratic society,” in commemorating the Day of Remembrance. Truly by reflecting on our history we secure the promise of the “streets of gold” that our ancestors dreamed about. An America ripe with opportunity for all people—and a spirit refined by our struggles to build a brighter future as we secure the riches of the blessings of liberty.

On Saturday, we will gather to remember a solemn past so we can look onward towards a future of promise. We look back solemnly to a relocation center at Rohwer Arkansas where a young boy was forced to spend much of his childhood. But we see a more promising future as this boy, Los Angeles’ very own, George Takei, overcame that experience to become a household name as an original cast member of one of America’s most celebrated television programs. We look back solemnly to a relocation center called Heart Mountain in Wyoming where another innocent young boy was stripped of his freedom. But we see a more promising future as this boy, Norman Mineta, became the first Asian Pacific American ever to serve on a president’s cabinet. We look back solemnly to the Manzanar relocation center in Utah as last year President Clinton finally awarded this country’s highest military citation, the Medal of Honor, to 22 of these heroes. Those medals are just a dim reflection of the brilliance of their courage and resilience. We can never repay their sacrifice.

These are the ones who have worked tirelessly to bring us where we are today. But there is still much more work that needs to be done. This year’s Day of Remembrance theme behind which we gather, “Building a Stronger Community Through Civil Rights and Redress” is appropriately fitting as we work together towards the America we dream of today. Together we have achieved much but there is still much more left to do. I am proud to continue our struggle for civil rights. Along with my colleagues in the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus, I worked this last year in Congress to secure needed funding to build a memorial center right outside of Los Angeles at the Manzanar relocation center. My colleagues and I wanted to make sure that the camp stands to remind us never to erect another one again. We must remember our past so we can build a better future. Further, during the 106th Congress we worked in combating the sickness of hate motivated crimes, establishing the first ever Presidential Commission on Asian Pacific American Inclusion.

to sign Executive Order 9066. And so without a trial, more than 100,000 people of Japanese descent lost their freedom. It was not until 1983 that a Presidential Commission characterized the internment as an act of racism and wartime hysteria. After all those years the government never uncovered even a single case of sabotage or espionage committed by an American of Japanese ancestry during the war. Yet more than 100,000 people had already lost their freedom as little boys and girls. The government never uncovered even a single case of sabotage or espionage committed by an American of Japanese ancestry during the war.

We celebrate this victory even today because the achievement remains monumental. However, we are still only looking over the horizon. As we look forward to a new day when this chapter of our history is finally brought to a close, the sun has not risen on the new day because it has not yet set on the old. There is still unfinished work that must be done before we can move forward into a brighter future.

Last year, I introduced bi-partisan legislation in Congress to finish the remaining work of redress. While most Americans are aware of the internment of Japanese Americans, few know about our government's activities in other countries resulting from prejudice held against people of Japanese ancestry. Recorded thoroughly in government files, the U.S. government involved itself in the expulsion and internment of an estimated 2,000 people of Japanese descent who lived in various Latin American countries. Uprooted from their homes and forced into the United States, these civilians were robbed of their freedom as they were kidnapped from nations not even directly involved in World War II. These individuals are still waiting for equitable redress, and justice cries out for them to receive it. That is why today I re-introduced the Wartime Parity and Justice Act of 2001 to finally turn the last page in this chapter of our nation's history.

This bill provides redress to every Japanese American individual forcibly removed and interned in the United States. These people paid a tremendous price during one of our nation's most trying times. Indeed, America accomplished much during that great struggle. As we celebrate our great achievements as a nation, let us also recommit ourselves to correcting those mistakes.

My legislation is the right thing to do to affirm our commitment to democracy and the rule of law.

In addition, the Wartime Parity and Justice Act of 2001 provides relief to Japanese Americans confined in this country but who never received redress under the Civil Liberties Act of 1988 given technicalities in the original law. Our laws must always establish justice. They should never deny it. That is why these provisions ensure that every American who suffered these injustices will receive the justice they deserve. Finally, we come today to remember because through remembrance scars are healed and we become more careful to guard against the same injuries again. That is why my legislation will reauthorize the educational mandate in the 1988 Act which was never fulfilled. This will etch this chapter of our nation's history in our national conscience for generations to come as a reminder never to repeat it again.

Let us renew our resolve to build a better future for our community through civil rights and redress as we dedicate ourselves to remembering how we compromised liberty in the past. This will help us to guard it more closely in the future. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this much needed legislation.

HONORING THE R.A. BLOCH CANCER FOUNDATION

HON. DENNIS MOORE
OF KANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a family and a foundation that have changed the lives of thousands of cancer patients in our country—Richard and Annette Bloch and the volunteers of the R.A. Bloch Cancer Foundation.

In 1978, Richard Bloch was told he had terminal lung cancer and that he had 3 months to live. He refused to accept this prognosis, and after two years of aggressive therapy, he was told he was cured.

Since Richard was diagnosed with cancer, he and his wife Annette have devoted their lives to helping other cancer patients. Richard, one of America's best known businessmen, sold his interest in H&R Block, Inc. and retired from the company in 1982 to be able to devote all of his efforts to fighting cancer.

The Bloch Cancer Foundation, which is fully supported financially by the Bloch family, is fueled by over a thousand volunteers—other cancer survivors and supporters who share the vision of Richard and Annette Bloch, such as:

- Doctors who have shared their time, knowledge, and expertise;
- Home volunteers who call newly diagnosed cancer patients and place the metaphorical arm around a shoulder. These home volunteers guide new patients through their apprehension and fears so they can face their disease with confidence;
- Computer specialists who have developed the website so patients and survivors can seek help over the Internet;
- Volunteers who give their time on a weekly basis to answer phones and e-mail and form the backbone of an organization committed to cancer patients;
- The professionals and volunteers of the Bloch Cancer Support Center;
- Those who help develop Cancer Survivors Parks;
- Those who develop Cancer Foundation;
- The Board of Directors who help Dick and Annette develop and implement the programs of the foundation.

Mr. Speaker, on June 4, 2001, we will celebrate the 16th anniversary of Cancer Survivors Day, an event that was started by the Blochs in Kansas City and is now celebrated in over 700 communities throughout the United States. June 4th also marks the 21st anniversary of the Cancer Hot Line, which has received more than 125,000 calls from newly diagnosed cancer patients since its inception in 1980.

Encourage my colleagues to join me as I honor Richard and Annette Bloch and the volunteers of the R.A. Bloch Cancer Foundation for twenty-one years of steadfast commitment to cancer patients and survivors.

HONORING PATRICIA D. HUGHES
OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Ms. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from New Jersey for her remarks.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to honor Patricia Hughes of New Jersey. Ms. Hughes is a survivor of cancer, and she has been a tireless advocate for the rights of women and the right of the unborn.

Patricia Hughes was diagnosed with breast cancer in 1991. She underwent chemotherapy and radiation treatment, and she is now cancer-free. However, she has not forgotten the pain and suffering she endured during her treatment. Ms. Hughes is committed to ensuring that other women do not have to experience the same hardships she did.

In 1992, Ms. Hughes founded the Patricia Hughes Foundation, which is dedicated to providing financial assistance to women who are undergoing treatment for breast cancer. The foundation has helped hundreds of women cover the costs of medical care, transportation, and other expenses that can add up to a significant burden.

Ms. Hughes is also an advocate for reproductive rights. She is a strong proponent of women's right to make their own decisions about their bodies, and she has been involved in various efforts to promote reproductive justice.

CONGRATULATING TENAFLY MIDDLE SCHOOL ON EFFORTS TO REMOVE LAND MINES

HON. MARGE ROUKEMA
OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the students of Tenafly Middle School for their efforts to remove land mines in the small Balkan town of half a world away. The students have done so by raising money to help rid a small Balkan town half a world away of land mines. The work these students have done is an outstanding example of humanitarian concern and compassion among young individuals. These students are in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades.

The Land Mine Awareness Club grew out of a class taught by language arts teacher Mark Hyman, called "Heroes of Conscience" and aimed at the development of student leaders by focusing on historical figures who were models of compassion and service. Students in the class decided two years ago to focus on the land mine problem, which had been championed by Britain’s Princess Diana before her 1997 death.

About two dozen students from the class formed the Land Mine Awareness Club, designed a multimedia presentation on the world land mine problem, and chose the village of Podzvizd in northeastern Bosnia-Herzegovina as a “sister city.” The students began their presentation to churches, civic groups, and other organizations throughout Bergen County, explaining the dangers of land mines and appealing for donations to help remove land mines in Podzvizd.

The students soon formed a non-profit organization, Global Care Unlimited Inc., in order to collect donations on behalf of Podzvizd. In addition to the presentations by the club, the school’s 800 students began a campaign of selling paper butterflies—representative of the deadly “butterfly” model of land mine—that raised $6,000. To date, the students have raised more than $15,000 in donations. Last week, Global Care signed an agreement with the U.S. State Department, which will match the private donations dollar for dollar under its Global Humanitarian Demining Program. In all, $30,000 is now available to remove hundreds of mines from a field near a school in Podzvizd.

Global Care Unlimited declares part of its goal to be “to develop student leadership potential in the areas of organization, communication and technology in the service of humanitarian causes.” The students involved in this project have, in fact, learned how to establish a formal, non-profit organization, have learned communication skills by working with the local media and technological skills in putting together the multimedia presentation used in their fund-raising efforts.

Special recognition must go to Mr. Hyman, a teacher who has made a difference not only in the lives of his own students but for the residents of Podzvizd as well. These students clearly took to heart the lessons they learned in this class and put them to use—military that they have become “heroes of conscience” themselves.

Mr. Speaker, land mines are horrible enough when used during time of war by soldiers of one army against those of another. But land mines are unlike other weapons that observe a cease-fire when the war ends. Instead, they lie dormant, their locations often forgotten and difficult to find even if records are available. Civilians return to areas that were once battlefields and become victims of land mines long after a conflict has ended. Approximately 110 million live land mines are estimated to be buried around the world today and one blows up every 22 seconds. Of those injured, 90 percent are civilians—more than one-third of them children. In nations such as Bosnia-Herzegovina, thousands of children are missing limbs in evidence of the threat posed by land mines. And thousands of others have died as a result of the mines.

That is why I wrote to President Clinton last year, urging him to join the world effort led by Canada to ban all conventional land mines. In addition, I have co-sponsored the Land Mine Elimination Act, which would prohibit federal funds from being spent to deploy new anti-personnel land mines. A total of 156 nations support a complete ban of land mines, as do international leaders such as General Norman Schwarzkopf, Pope John Paul II and Bishop Desmond Tutu. I will continue to work hard to achieve the goal of ridding the globe of this man-made menace. This horror cannot be allowed to continue.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues in the United States House of Representatives to join me in congratulating these young people on the magnificent humanitarian effort. We can all learn from the example offered by these youth. I refer you to the Bible, Book of Isaiah, ‘... and a little child shall lead them.’

VETERANS’ COMPENSATION EQUITY ACT OF 2001

HON. LANE EVANS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing H.R. 609, the “Veterans’ Compensation Equity Act of 2001.” This legislation will provide more equitable treatment to approximately 150,000 older veterans who receive service-connected disability compensation from the Department of Veterans Affairs and who are also eligible to receive retirement pay based upon their military service.

Under current law, the amount of military retirement pay received by a military retiree is reduced on a dollar-for-dollar basis by the amount of VA service-connected disability compensation the military retiree receives. This reduction in military retirement pay when the military retiree is in receipt of service-connected disability compensation is intended to prevent dual compensation. The notion of dual compensation is simply erroneous. Service-connected disability benefits are paid to compensate a veteran for an injury or illness incurred or aggravated during military service. Retirement benefits are paid to military retirees who have spent at least 20 years of their lives serving our country as members of the Armed Forces. These two programs—military retirement pay and service-connected disability compensation—are completely different programs with entirely different purposes. Payments made by these programs are not and should not be considered duplicative.

The current treatment of military retirees who have service-connected disabilities is simply inequitable. A veteran receiving service-connected disability compensation could become eligible for civil service retirement based on his or her subsequent work as a civilian employee of the federal government. This individual, unlike the military retiree, can receive the full amount of both of the retirement benefits which has been earned and the service-connected disability compensation for which he or she may be eligible.

The “Veterans’ Compensation Equity Act of 2001” will reduce and then eliminate the offset in military retirement benefits for veterans who are entitled to both military retirement pay and service-connected compensation benefits. Under this bill the offset will be completely eliminated when the retiree reaches age 65. In many cases, retired military personnel are fortunate enough to have retired military service unscathed. These military retirees are not eligible to receive VA compensation due to illnesses or injuries incurred or aggravated during their military careers. In addition to receiving military retirement pay they are able to earn additional income through non-military employment and thereby accrue Social Security or other retirement income benefits.

Military retirees who are not so fortunate, are required to forfeit a portion or all of their military retirement pay in order to receive service-connected compensation benefits due to illnesses or injuries which were incurred or aggravated during their military careers. Before we consider tax relief for our Nation’s wealthiest citizens, we should allow military retirees to receive the full amount of the retirement benefits they have earned through many years of devoted military service and compensation for illnesses or injuries which were incurred or aggravated during their military careers. These veterans, as a result of their service-connected medical conditions, face diminished employment possibilities and therefore a diminished ability to earn additional income through civilian employment. They may completely lose the opportunity to accrue Social Security or other retirement income benefits.

In general, Social Security disability benefits received by retirees are offset by monies received under state Worker’s Compensation and similar public disability laws. However, the Social Security statute provides that this offset ends when the worker attains 65 years of age. Furthermore, while recipients of Social Security benefits who earn income have their Social Security benefits reduced as a result of their earnings, this offset is eliminated at retirement age (currently 65).

While all veterans who are subject to the concurrent receipt offset are unfairly penalized, my bill would begin to rectify the injustice which falls most heavily on our older veterans. This bill will promote fairness and equity between military retirees and Social Security retirees by eliminating the offset at age 65.

Military retirees who have given so much to the service of our country and suffered disease or disabilities as a direct result of their military service do not deserve to be impoverished in their older years by the concurrent receipt penalty.

I commend Mr. Bilirakis, an original co-sponsor of this bill, for his longstanding efforts to address the problems our military retirees experience due to the statutory prohibition on concurrent receipt of military retirement pay and benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs. I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan effort to promote fairness for our Nation’s older military retirees.

AMERICAN HEART MONTH

HON. DAVID E. PRICE
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I want to join my colleagues in recognizing February as American Heart Month. I commend the American Heart Association and other organizations for their efforts to raise we consider tax relief for their work is essential to reducing the physical, emotional, and economic burden of heart disease on the American public.
Heart disease remains the number one killer in America. Currently 20 million Americans are living with some form of this disease. In 1997 alone, over nineteen thousand North Carolinians died of heart disease. Every American is at risk for heart disease, and most of us have loved ones who have suffered from some form of this disease. The financial cost to the American public is immense. Heart disease, together with stroke and other cardiovascular diseases, are estimated to cost approximately $300 billion in medical expenses and lost productivity in 2001.

One way each of us can help reduce the number of deaths and disability from heart disease is by being prepared for cardiac emergencies. Unfortunately, too many Americans do not know the warning signs of a heart attack. They include uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of the chest lasting more than a few minutes; pain spreading to the shoulder, arm or neck; and chest discomfort with lightheadedness, fainting, sweating, nausea or shortness of breath. If a friend or family member is exhibiting these symptoms, you can assist them by recognizing these signs, being prepared to call 9-1-1, and administering CPR if needed. Just knowing these signs can save your life or the life of someone you care about.

I urge each of us to dedicate ourselves to learning more about heart disease, how to prevent it, how to recognize it, and what to do if you suspect that someone is having a problem. In the meantime, Congress must continue its strong commitment to the National Institutes of Health so researchers have the tools necessary to find new ways to treat and cure this devastating disease.

HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001
Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to Professor Zinovy Gorbis, who will be celebrating his 75th birthday on March 3. Professor Gorbis, a faculty member of UCLA’s Mechanical, Aerospace, and Nuclear Engineering Department, committed his life to studying the properties of solid particles suspended in gas or liquid. His contribution to the field deserves our respect and admiration. He is a prolific scientist, holding 17 patents and authoring three extensive field-defining papers and numerous articles. Long before environmental concerns led to the intensive study of aerosols, Professor Gorbis identified gas/liquid-solid systems as the 5th state of matter. His ideas on the unique properties of gas solid systems continue to influence and direct research throughout the world.

Despite the countless number of hours spent researching, Professor Gorbis still found time for his family. And he rarely passed up an opportunity to dance or play chess. Perhaps as well as anyone else, he has always understood the importance of life’s simple treasures. Indeed, his passion for life helped him overcome formidable tribulations that most of us can only imagine. As a teenager, he fled to the Soviet Union after German troops invaded his home and he experienced firsthand the horrors of war. As he grew older, he was never fully trusted because he was a Jew, despite the wide recognition and respect he received for his scientific work. In 1975, he was dismissed from his position and precluded from teaching when his oldest son, Boris, applied to leave the Soviet Union. A year later, he fled to Vilnius, Lithuania, waiting for the day that he could continue his crucial work. The Soviets, however, fervently refused to allow his family to emigrate, and Professor Gorbis spent the next decade in oblivion, measuring noise in elevator shafts while his wife suffered from a crippling bone disease.

In 1987, Professor Gorbis and his family were finally allowed to leave the Soviet Union. He soon settled in southern California with his family, where they flourished and became outstanding citizens. Once again, he was able to contribute to science with selfless devotion. I ask my colleagues to join me in saluting Professor Gorbis for his outstanding achievements. His scientific work and his passion for life inspire us all. We thank Professor Gorbis and wish all the best to him and his family on his 75th birthday.

A VIEWPOINT ON THE SUPREME COURT CASE NY TIMES V. TASINl

HON. JAMES P. MCGOVERN OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001
Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I submit for the RECORD the letter from Marybeth Peters, the Register of Copyrights at the U.S. Office of Copyrights, establishing her position on the U.S. Supreme Court Case, NY Times versus Tasini.

REGISTER OF COPYRIGHTS, LIBRARY OF CONGRESS,
Washington, DC, February 14, 2001,
Congressman James P. McGovern,
Cannon House Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Congressman McGovern: I am responding to your letter requesting my views on New York Times v. Tasini. As you know, the Supreme Court of the United States in the 1976 revision of the copyright law that created the publishers’ privilege at the heart of the case. I believe that the Supreme Court should affirm the decision of the court of appeals.

In Tasini, the court of appeals ruled that newspaper and magazine publishers who publish articles written by freelance authors do not automatically have the right subsequently to include those articles in electronic databases. The publishers, arguing that the immediate public interest in requiring the withdrawal of such articles from these databases and irreplaceably destroying a portion of our national historic record, successfully petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari.

The freelance authors assert that they have a legal right to be paid for their work. I agree that copyright law requires the publisher to compensate the freelance authors. However, there is no right to include the contribution in any revision that would appear to be of little value to the publisher. Kurt Steele, “Special Report, Owners of Contribution Works under the New Copyright Law,” Legal Briefs for Editors, Publishers, and Writers (McGraw-Hill, July 1978).

In the past, the interpretation of §201(c) advanced by publishers in Tasini would give them the right to exploit an article on a global scale immediately following its initial publication, and to continue to exploit it indefinitely. Such a result is beyond the scope of the statutory language and was never intended; in a digital environment, it interferes with authors’ ability to exploit secondary markets. Acceptance of this interpretation would lead to a significant risk that authors will not be fairly compensated as envisioned by the compromises reached in the 1976 Act. The result would be an unintended windfall for publishers of collective works.

The public display right
Section 106 of the Copyright Act, which enumerates the exclusive rights of copyright owners, includes an exclusive right to display publicly a collection of works. However, other exclusive rights are the rights of reproduction and distribution. The limited privilege based on the exclusive right to display works in any particular form is not an exclusive right that is protected by section 106. Instead, those rights are the rights of reproduction and distribution.
in §201(c) does not authorize publishers to display authors' contributions publicly, either in their original collective works or in any subsequent permitted versions. It refers only to "reproduction or distributing the contribution." Thus, the plain language of the statute does not permit an interpretation that would permit a publisher to display or authorize the display of the contribution to the public.

The primary claim in Tasini involves the NEXIX database, which gives subscribers access to articles from a vast number of periodicals. That access is obtained by displaying the articles over a computer network to subscribers who view them on computer monitors. NEXIX indisputably involves the public display of the authors' works. The other databases involved in the §201(c) claims, such as CD-ROMs, also (not always) involve the public display of the works. Because the industry appears to be moving in the direction of networked electronic databases, the CD-ROM distribution is likely to become a less significant means of disseminating information.

The Copyright Act defines "display" of a work as "the public showing of a work either directly or by means of "any other device or process." The databases involved in Tasini clearly involve the display of the authors' works. It is far more than a new, amended, improved or up-to-date version of the original collective work.

REVISIONS OF COLLECTIVE WORKS

Although §201(c) provides that publishers may reproduce and distribute a contribution to a collective work in three particular contexts, the publishers claim only that their databases are revisions of the original collective works.

Although "revision" is not defined in Title 17, both common sense and the dictionary tell us that a database such as NEXIX, which contains every article published in a periodical within some period of time, is not a revision of today's edition of the New York Times or Sports Illustrated. A "revision" is a "revised version" and to "revise" is "to make a new, amended, improved, or up-to-date version of an existing thing." Although "NEXIX" may contain all of the articles from today's New York Times, they are merged into a vast database of unrelated individual articles. What makes the database a revision of a magazine or any other collective work is to "work" under the copyright law—it selects, coordinates, and arranges them in a recognizable way. Thus, the new database is, at best, a "new anthology," and it was Congress's intent to exclude new anthologies from the scope of the §201(c) privilege.

The legislative history of §201(c) supports this conclusion. Examples of a revision of a collective work, an evening edition of a newspaper or a later edition of an encyclopedia. These examples retain the editorial integrity of the original, but the recurring fact that NEXIX is recognized as revisions of the original collective work.

HONORING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF ROBERTA CHEFF BROOKS

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I want to bring to the attention of my colleagues the contributions of a great public servant, Roberta Cheff Brooks, on the occasion of her retirement from service to the House of Representatives and to the constituents of the 9th District of California. On February 22nd, after more than 30 years in the United States Congress, Roberta will retire from her position as my District Director in our Oakland District office. She will be greatly missed.

Roberta, a native of Wilmington, Delaware, received her Bachelor of Arts from Smith College in 1964. She moved to Berkeley, California in 1967 and became very active in local and anti-war politics.

She began her tenure with the House of Representatives in 1971 by working for my former boss, colleague and friend Congressman Ron Dellums. Roberta served as a liaison between the Berkeley Coalition and the Dellums for Congress campaign in 1970. Following that successful campaign, she was asked to work for the new Congressman Ron Dellums in his district office on constituent affairs.

Roberta was a strong voice in the anti-Vietnam War movement. While she worked hard to serve as an active voice for constituent's of the 9th District, she remained active in local politics through the April Coalition and later through Berkeley Citizens' Action.

Roberta's commitment to her community expanded as she became deeply involved with local boards and organizations, as well as, ad hoc groups that included the following: Oakland Perinatal Project (which was the precursor of the East Bay Perinatal Council) and the Coalition to Fight Infant Mortality. With these affiliations, she helped organize ad hoc hearings on infant mortality, which Congressman Dellums chaired as the Chairman of the D.C. Committee.

Roberta was a cofounder of the California Health Action Coalition which worked diligently on the bill Congressman Dellums introduced calling for a National Health Service. She was also part of a national coalition for a National Health Service and helped organize national groups working in several cities in the country to garner support for the bill.

She helped organize hearings on homelessness which Congressman Dellums chaired in Oakland. She served on the advisory board of Legal Assistance for Seniors for many years. She was also on the Board of the Coalition for the Medical Rights of Women and the Perinatal Health Rights Committee.

Roberta organized hearings chaired by Congressman LANTOS who came at the request of Congresswoman Dellums to investigate labor and safety issues related to the protracted Summit Hospital strike. The hearings contributed to a resolution of the strike and led to a more responsive board which included additional community members.

Roberta's commitment to "free speech" and community supported radio led her to serve on the local advisory board of KPFA radio for a number of years and on the national Pacifica Board of Directors for nine years.

When the 1993 Base Realignment and Closure Commission slated Oakland Naval Hospital, Alameda Naval Station and Naval Reserve facility, as well as, the Public Works Center located at Naval Supply Center, Oakland for closure, Roberta joined Sandre Swanson in establishing the East Bay Conversion and Reinvestment Commission. That Commission then proceeded to help establish the Alameda and Oakland Reuse authorities—public bodies on which Roberta served as an alternate and then later as a principal commissioner. These organizations focused on base conversions and provided oversight on reuse plans to convert the military bases to peace-time operations.

Throughout the base conversion process, Roberta's emphasis remained on the human resources component—job creation for workers; working to establish the homeless collaborative which worked with both reuse authorities to create a process which HUD has described as a model for accommodating the homeless in base closure; working hard with the community advisory groups; and working with public benefit conveyances. Roberta cites this as an extremely important part of her work especially since it was so creative, establishing policies and procedures for base closure. She assisted in developing a way to "sell" the federal worker to private industry, and other important projects.

Roberta has worked closely with all of the community health clinics in the district; Chabot Observatory; the Ed Roberts Campus at Ashby BART station; HIV/AIDS; Cuba; issues related to the elderly; and many others. She served on both Congressman Dellums' and Congresswoman Barbara Lee's political advisory boards throughout her career.

Her casework load has focused on Federal Workers compensation; Office of Personnel Management (which was known as the Civil Service Commission), and at other times, Social Security and EEOC. She has served thousands of constituents for Congressman Dellums and Congresswoman Barbara Lee.

When Congressman Dellums retired in February of 1998, Roberta continued her Congressional career with me in April of that same year. She became my District Director and was the first female District Director in the history of the 9th Congressional District. Every member will attest that having a staff member with the ability to develop expertise quickly and thoroughly on a wide range of issues is extremely valuable. With Roberta on my team, I knew that I was getting the best political advice in order to make competent legislative and policy decisions.

Roberta represented me well on many issues and continued to handle some casework as well as extensive issues related to those close to her. She helped coordinate a major Housing Summit which was sponsored by the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation in August 2000 which was attended by seventeen members of Congress and more than five hundred people. Roberta is best known for her sound advice. Ron Dellums has said, "the only reason I did anything was because Roberta Brooks told me to." While her political judgement was always thorough and thought about, young people was even more profound.

To young men and women she says, "work for someone whose politics you share because the work is very intense and it is very important that you believe in what you are doing." She tells them that she has been so blessed in her work life to have been able to go to work every day believing in what she is doing, believing she is making a difference and that her work is consistent with her own political beliefs. She says that is the best work a person can have.

Throughout Roberta's career, her professionalism was distinguished with honesty and integrity. I always knew that I could rely on her advice and suggestions because she used her mind, heart and soul in decision making. Because of this, the 9th Congressional District has been served with distinction and with grace. Roberta's forthrightness was appreciated by everyone. I particularly appreciated her tremendous clarity and directness.

Roberta is an American of the finest caliber and this institution will be greatly missed. As Roberta transitions onto new experiences and challenges, we all cheer for her future and success.

HONORING SCHOOL NURSES

HON. TOM UDALL

OF NEW MEXICO

In the House of Representatives, Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, today I share with my colleagues the deep respect and admiration that I have for our nation's school nurses. As you may know, January 6th was National School Nurse Day, and I used that opportunity to extend recognition to those who provide medical care for our children in New Mexico's schools.

Health care professionals in our school nurses serve a unique role in our education system. They witness suffering and do their best to calm and help our students. Nurses bring their professional skills to bear, but they also bring their compassion and knowledge to help those at their most vulnerable. I believe that the contribution school nurses make to our students and schools is often overlooked.

Recently, I have been in touch with several school nurses, administrators, and others who have taken the time to let me know about the unique challenges that our rural health care school nurses face. Many of my colleagues would be surprised to learn that many schools in rural New Mexico do not have full-time nurses.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to honor the school nurses that serve McKinley County of my home state. These health care professionals deserved to be recognized for their contributions: Regina Belmont, E.J. Charles, Anna Chavez, Veronica Chavez, Lynne Dennison, Allison Kozeliski, Sara Landavazo, Barbara Lopez, Phyllis Lynch, Octher Sacedo, Pam Smith, Camille Quest, and Nancy VanDipen. They have difficult jobs and I want them to commend for their service.
I would also like to recognize Cynthia Greenberg, who is the president of the New Mexico School Nurses Association, for her commitment to our schools and students.

In closing, I want to thank all the school nurses in New Mexico and around the country for their enthusiasm and dedication. I call on my colleagues to join me in thanking them for their valuable work.

CLINTON EXECUTIVE ORDERS CONTINUE TO KILL IDAHO JOBS

HON. C.L. “BUTCH” OTTER
OF IDAHO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, yesterday one of the largest and most well known employers in Idaho—Boise Cascade—announced plans to close two lumber mills in the First District of Idaho, located in Cascade and Emmett. As a result, almost 400 of my constituents will lose their jobs. Many of these people have worked in the forest industry all of their lives.

Yesterday, I contacted the CEO of Boise Cascade about this unfortunate turn of events. He advised that the Clinton Administration’s last minute executive orders squeezed their supply by shutting off access to thousands of acres of productive forest areas, and prevented any reasonable chance to harvest enough to keep their operations going.

I’m pleased that the Bush Administration has pledged to review these damaging executive orders. But reviewing them may not be enough.

I hope that the Bush Administration is just as aggressive with their use of executive orders as the Clinton Administration—in a way that protects the environment, the forests, and the livelihoods of our Idaho families and rural areas.

TRIBUTE TO MESCAL HORNBECK

HON. MAURICE D. HINCHEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, while I often have the privilege of congratulating outstanding members of our community, I rarely have the honor of recognizing an individual as distinguished as Mescal Hornbeck. Through her work as nurse, teacher, community leader and town councilperson, Mescal has dedicated her life to helping others.

I am proud to call her my good friend. Mescal Hornbeck is a most deserving honoree and I applaud the creation of Woodstock’s “Mescal Appreciation Day.”

SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE LOCK-BOX ACT OF 2001

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2, The Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act of 2001, that seeks to amend the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to prevent the surpluses of the Social Security and Medicare Part A, Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund from being used for any purpose other than providing retirement and health security.

Mr. Speaker, during the 106th Congress, the House passed H.R. 1259, the “Social Security and Medicare Safe Deposit Box Act of 1999,” which set aside just the Social Security surplus, by a vote of 416 to 12 and on June 20, 2000, the Social Security and Medicare Safe Deposit Box Act of 2000, which set aside both the Social Security and the Medicare surplus, by an even wider margin—420 to 2. Yet, even though neither of those bills became law, we still managed to protect both the Social Security surplus and the Medicare surplus.

Not only is the Republican Leadership covering the same ground by bringing up this bill today, it is also making the same mistakes that it made in the past.

Just as with both “lock boxes” from the 106th Congress, the bill before the House today has not been considered by any of the Committees of jurisdiction, thereby denying Members the opportunity to debate and to improve the bill.

Just as with both “lock boxes” from the 106th Congress, the bill before the House today does nothing to improve the long-term solvency of either Social Security or Medicare. Certainly, it is critical to ensure that these surpluses are not used to finance a huge tax cut or to fund spending on other programs. However, strengthening Social Security and Medicare requires more than simply protecting the surpluses they already possess. It requires actually adding to those surpluses, but this bill would not add a single dollar to either the Social Security Trust Funds or the Medicare Trust Fund.

Just as with both “lock boxes” from the 106th Congress, the bill before the House today will not protect Social Security and Medicare surpluses nearly as stringently as the Republican Leadership would have you believe. Like its predecessors, this vaunted lock box can be “unlocked” by any bill that defines itself as either “Social Security reform legislation” or “Medicare reform legislation.” This means that any bill, including bills to privatize Social Security or Medicare, can use the Social Security and Medicare surpluses as long as it defines itself as “reform.”

Mr. Speaker, if we have already reached an agreement about the necessity of protecting the Social Security and Medicare surpluses and if there are obvious improvements that could be made to this bill, why is the Republican Leadership rushing this bill through the House?

The answer is obvious. When the Republican Leadership brings the President’s tax cut to the House floor later this year, it wants to be able to claim that “Republicans protected Social Security and Medicare,” regardless of the price tag for that tax cut and regardless of how much it drained away resources needed for other priorities.

It is one thing to claim that you have protected Social Security and Medicare, but it is quite another to actually do it. Despite the assertions that Republicans make about this bill, the President’s tax plan could easily dip into the Social Security and Medicare surpluses. All it would take is for the Rules Committee to waive the points of order contained in this bill.

Indeed, it is not Democrats here in the House who need to be persuaded about setting aside Social Security and Medicare surpluses. Democrats here in the House voted in favor of a Social Security and Medicare lock box in overwhelming numbers in the last Congress and will vote in favor of one again today.

The people who need to be persuaded about setting aside Social Security and Medicare surpluses are Republicans, both in the other body and in the White House.

Mr. Speaker, even President Bush’s chief economic advisor, Larry Lindsey, when asked whether the government should dip into the Social Security surplus to make room for tax cuts that he thinks might stimulate the economy, responded: “It’s a question that needs to be asked,” and OMB Director Mitch Daniels, when asked whether Medicare should get the same protection in terms of its surplus as Social Security, said: “I don’t agree. . . . We could allow the concept of a Medicare surplus which exists in Part A, but not on a tax cut, to obscure the need for real reform to which this administration will be committed as a fairly early priority. So for that reason I would be very hesitant to treat those funds in the same way as we do Social Security where I think it’s quite in order.”

Furthermore, according to a Wall Street Journal article from February 5, 2001, “The Bush administration also won’t wall off Medicare’s current surpluses in a ‘lockbox.’ . . . In fact, Mr. Daniels said he has told his staff not to talk about a Medicare surplus.”

In addition, according to BNA’s Daily Report for Executives (February 7, 2001), Senate Majority Leader TREN'T LOTT has yet to make a commitment to a Medicare lock-box, suggesting “We’re going to think that through before deciding whether to back the Medicare lockbox measure.”

Mr. Speaker, Democrats strongly support setting aside the Social Security and Medicare surpluses, but we also understand that doing that alone is not enough. Both programs need more resources. Unfortunately, the President’s tax plan moves through Congress it will likely consume all available budget surpluses.

We can not afford to squander the opportunity that budget surpluses provide. Democrats favor a tax cut, but one that is enacted within a fiscally responsible framework. Tax cuts should leave room for priorities like debt reduction, education, transportation, a bipartisan program for defense, and strengthening Social Security and Medicare, including the addition of coverage for medicines. We can not afford to completely drain budget surpluses to finance an enormous tax cut, instead of using them to address the challenges that the nation faces.

CELEBRATING STUDENT VOLUNTEERS

HON. JIM LANGEVIN OF RHODE ISLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I wish today to congratulate several young students from my district who have achieved national recognition for performing outstanding volunteer service in their communities. Rochelle Cotton of East Greenwich and Michelle Wheelock of North Kingstown have been named as my state’s top honorees, and Claire Berman of North Kingstown is a state finalist in the 2001 Prudential Spirit of Community Awards program. This is an annual honor that is conferred on the most impressive student volunteers around the country.

Miss Cotton is a junior at East Greenwich High School and was recognized for founding the Rhode Island Student Alliance. This student-run non-profit organization identifies issues that affect teenagers in the community and attempts to find solutions. Miss Cotton expanded the program to the entire state, personally presenting her idea to the principals of each high school. Representatives from every school in Rhode Island now meet monthly to work on a variety of projects, such as curbing youth violence and writing an advice book for high school freshmen. Miss Cotton is pleased that students can now come together for cooperation rather than competition.

Miss Wheelock is currently in the seventh grade at Wickford Middle School. She was honored for her work with seniors at a local nursing home. Motivated by the opportunity to “brighten up the day of every resident I met,” Miss Wheelock never tires of trying to improve the lives of her new friends. Throughout her service with seniors, she always strives to understand what they are going through and listen to their concerns. Miss Wheelock plans to continue volunteering at the nursing home for as long as she can, sharing her happiness with her new friends.

Miss Berman is a junior at North Kingstown High School, who was instrumental in the collection of more than 840 cans of food for the North Kingstown Food Pantry. She accomplished this by organizing a competition where students competed to construct four-foot “Empire State Buildings” out of canned goods that were donated to the pantry.

These three students are examples for all our young people. Given the growing trend of Americans being less involved in community activity than they once were, it is important to encourage the kind of dedicated service for these young women. They are inspiring role models for us all.

Mr. Speaker, I hope you and our colleagues will join me in congratulating these students, along with all of the Prudential Spirit of Community awardees throughout the country.

INTRODUCTION OF THE TEACHER TAX CREDIT ACT

HON. ROBERT C. SCOTT
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the bipartisan “Teacher Tax Credit Act” which gives a $1,000 tax credit to eligible public school teachers to defray qualified costs for classroom expenses, professional development expenses, and interest paid on certain education loans. A similar bill, S. 225, has been introduced in the Senate by my Virginia colleague Senator JOHN WARNER.

I think that most people would agree that America’s teachers did not enter the profession because they thought that the pay would be good. They teach for far more altruistic reasons: to educate our children and make a lasting difference in their lives. I’m sure that every one of us can remember at least one teacher who changed our lives for the better.

Despite the important role that teachers play in our children’s lives, secondary and secondary school teachers remain underpaid, overworked, and all too often under-appreciated. Many teachers spend significant amounts of their own money on expenses that improve our children’s education, both directly and indirectly. Teachers often spend their own money to buy learning materials for their classrooms such as books, supplies, pens, paper, and even computer equipment. They also have professional development expenses that indirectly benefit our children by ensuring that they will be taught by qualified, competent people who know the latest teaching techniques.

All of these expenses benefit students in the classroom either through better classroom materials or through better teachers, and that which benefits America’s students benefits all of us. Why do our teachers have to spend their own money on things that benefit all of us? Simply put, because current school budgets are not adequate to meet the costs of educating our children. Our teachers have stepped in to fill the gap with their own money. Current tax law provides that teachers can deduct some of these expenses. There are several impediments to using this deduction, however, that result in few teachers actually benefiting from it.

In order to better help teachers defray these costs, I am introducing this bill with my good friend and Virginia colleague, Senator JOHN WARNER, who is the primary sponsor for this legislation in the Senate. Our bill would ensure that qualifying teachers would not have to itemize their deductions or exceed the 2 percent floor to receive the credit. Teachers would not be phased out of the student loan interest benefit based on income level, and there would be no 60 month limitation.

We all agree that our education system must leave no child behind. As we try to achieve this goal through strengthening and reforming our educational system, we must keep in mind their most important component—the teachers.

RECOGNIZING THE 5TH ANNUAL FAST OF REVEREND RONALD I. SCHUPP ON TIBETAN NATIONAL DAY, 2001

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I wish today to inform my colleagues that on March 10, 2001, which is Tibetan National Day, one of my constituents, Reverend Ronald I. Schupp will begin his fifth annual 24-hour fast to call attention to China’s occupation of Tibet. Reverend Schupp will be sending a message to the People’s Republic of China to free Tibet and allow for displaced Tibetans to return to their homeland.

The 14th Dalai Lama was forced to leave Tibet in 1959 and is still working for a just outcome to China’s occupation of Tibet. In 1989, the Dalai Lama was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his ongoing efforts to focus attention on this subject.

I respect the efforts of Reverend Schupp and wish him well in his efforts on behalf of the people of Tibet.

181ST ANNIVERSARY OF SUSAN B. ANTHONY

HON. JO ANN DAVIS
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring attention to and commemorate tomorrow’s 181st anniversary of the birth of Susan B. Anthony. This anniversary is a good time to remember her lifelong work for women’s rights, her opposition to slavery, and work that changed the course of this nation. And it is a good time to remember, or perhaps, recover, another very important aspect of her legacy in promoting equal rights for all. I refer to Susan B. Anthony’s pro-life legacy in calling for equal rights for both women and their unborn children.

In fact, Susan B. Anthony considered opposition to abortions as part and parcel of her work to promote women’s rights. Anthony branded abortion, “child murder,” and believed women turned to it only because of their treatment as second class citizens. She called for “prevention, not punishment,” for the abortion problem of her day, and believed the best way to prevent abortion was to promote the dignity and equality of women.

More than a century later, “prevention, not punishment” remains a sound strategy for all those who would promote the rights of both women and unborn children.
OSTEOPOROSIS FEDERAL EMPLOYEE HEALTH BENEFITS STANDARDIZATION ACT

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Osteoporosis Federal Employee Health Benefits Standardization Act of 2001. This much needed legislation will provide the same consistency of osteoporosis coverage for our Federal employees and retirees as Congress approved for Medicare in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997.

Instead of a comprehensive national coverage policy, FEHBP leaves it to each of the over 350 participating plans to decide who is eligible to receive a bone mass measurement and what constitutes medical necessity. A survey of the 19 top plans participating in FEHBP indicates that many plans have no specific rules to guide reimbursement and instead cover the test on a case-by-case basis. Several plans refuse to provide consumers information indicating when the plan covers the test and when it does not. Some plans cover the test only for people who already have osteoporosis. All individuals, whether they work in the public sector or private sector, should have health insurance coverage for osteoporosis screening because this affliction is so widespread but more importantly, because it is preventable when discovered early.

Osteoporosis is a major public health problem affecting 28 million Americans, who either have the disease or are at risk due to low bone mass; eighty percent are women. The disease causes 1.5 million fractures annually at a cost of $13.8 billion ($38 million per day) in direct medical expenses, and osteoporotic fractures cost the Medicare program 3 percent of its overall costs. In their lifetimes, one in two women and one in eight men over the age of 50 will fracture a bone due to osteoporosis. A woman’s risk of a hip fracture is equal to her combined risk of contracting breast, uterine, and ovarian cancer.

Osteoporosis is largely preventable and thousands of fractures could be avoided if low bone mass was detected early and treated. We now have drugs that promise to reduce bone loss by 50 percent. However, identification of risk factors alone cannot predict how much bone a person has and how strong bone is. Experts estimate that without bone density tests, up to 40 percent of women with low bone mass could be missed.

It is my hope that by making bone mass measurements available under the FEHBP, we can deter the serious effects of osteoporosis and improve the lives of our Federal employees and retirees.

AMERICAN HEART MONTH

HON. JOHN F. TIERNEY OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues in recognizing February as American Heart Month and in commending the 22.5 million volunteers and supporters committed to combating heart disease. Clearly, all citizens should “Be Prepared for Cardiac Emergencies. Know the signs of cardiac arrest. Call 9–1–1 immediately. Give CPR.”

Paralysis, weakness, decreased sensation, numbness, tingling, decreased vision, slurred speech or the inability to speak, loss of memory and physical coordination, difficulty swallowing, lack of bladder control, mental capacity declines, mood changes, dysfunctional, uncontrollable, and unpredictable movement, shortness or loss of breath, fainting, and fatigue are all signs associated with cardiac arrest.

Immediate response to signs of cardiac arrest is imperative as seconds and minutes make the difference between life, the quality of life, and death. Every 29 seconds, someone in America suffers a heart attack, and every 60 seconds someone dies as a result of the same. While we have the luxury of emergency ambulatory responses as a result of 9–1–1, if we act while waiting on trained professionals to arrive, we can make a meaningful difference. For this reason, we should all encourage broader knowledge of CPR.

As medical folklore has it, said when the heart is under attack, blood is not flowing to parts of the body, such as the brain, that solely rely on it for functioning, and permanent damage to the brain can occur if blood flow is not restored within four minutes. As a result, if life is sustained, the quality of life may be significantly diminished as irreversible harm often takes place. I am hopeful that those who have regular contact with loved ones at risk will be trained in CPR.

I applaud the American Heart Association and other organizations nationwide that educate and train all of us to be properly prepared for cardiac arrest by providing education that informs us about the causes and signs of heart disease and the skills necessary to react to these unfortunate episodes when they occur. Also, I thank my colleagues for pausing to recognize these organizations for their ongoing efforts in this vital area.

IN SUPPORT OF THE LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS’ HEALTH ACT

HON. BART STUPAK OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Law Enforcement Officers’ Health Act to encourage all states to adopt a practice of the workers compensation system that the illness is an occupational disease. Instead, it would require states to adopt this presumption that the illness is an occupational disease.

The provisions of this legislation will not become effective until eighteen months after enactment so that an affected state will have adequate time to amend its laws or modify its regulations.

I have recently had the pleasure of working with the leadership of the International Union of Police Associations, AFL–CIO, in developing this legislation to ensure that all law enforcement officers receive the same health protections that their fellow officers in my state of Michigan enjoy. I particularly want to recognize Sam Cabral, International President, and Dennis Slocumb, Executive Vice President, for their dedication to this cause.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in sponsoring this legislation.

JAMES J. MCGRATH—DEDICATED LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER

HON. JAMES H. MALONEY OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, it is an honor for me to bring to the attention of my colleagues the distinguished career of one of my constituents, James J. McGrath of Ansonia, Connecticut.

Mr. McGrath recently retired from his post as Ansonia Police Chief, a position he held for 19 years. During that time, he presided over the Ansonia police force with integrity, professionalism, and a passionate sense of duty. Chief McGrath ended his career as the State of Connecticut’s oldest police chief—and one of its most respected.

He is truly an institution in the city of Ansonia. Born and raised in the city’s Derby Hill section, he graduated from Ansonia High School in 1943. Like all residents of this close-knit community, Chief McGrath has developed deep bonds with the community—bonds that will continue to deepen as Ansonia gives him thanks for his years of service.
Chief McGrath began his life of public service during World War II. From 1943–1947 he served in the United States Navy, defending our country as a member of the Submarine Service. After returning to civilian life and graduating college, he began a thirty year career as a Connecticut State Police Officer, where he advanced to the rank of Captain. He began his tenure as Ansonia’s police chief in 1981, and then held that position for nearly two decades.

Chief James J. McGrath has devoted his life to protecting the well-being of others. He worked tirelessly to ensure that Ansonia was a safe place to live and work for its families, children, and senior citizens. In fact, his dedication was such that during his 19 years as police chief, he never took a single sick day. I know that I speak for all Ansonia residents in saying that the city is deeply appreciative of his work and his leadership.

Perhaps there is no better way to illustrate Chief McGrath’s commitment to public safety than to refer to his own words: “I’m as concerned about the welfare of the people of Ansonia as I am of my own family.”

Mr. Speaker, Chief James J. McGrath deserves wide recognition for his lifelong dedication to law enforcement. I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating this outstanding public servant, and to extend our best wishes as he embarks upon a well-deserved retirement.

GOLDEN TRIANGLE ENERGY COALITION PLANT

HON. SAM GRAVES OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. GRAVES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the farmers-members of the Golden Triangle Energy Cooperative on the imminent success of the new ethanol plant in Craig, Missouri. The new plant will add value to members’ agricultural commodities through efficient and affordable energy opportunities. This will benefit both the farmers and their families across the region.

On Saturday, February 17, 2001, we will celebrate the grand opening of the Golden Triangle Energy Coalition Plant. This plant will process 6 million bushels of corn each year, producing 15 million gallons of ethanol. This plant will not only benefit farmers, but also the environment and our consumers across the nation.

I am pleased that farmers in Northwest Missouri are making a positive impact on their community by expanding value-added markets, such as ethanol. In the past 10 years, more than 20 farmer-owned cooperatives were constructed nationwide. Today farmer-owned ethanol production facilities are responsible for one third of all U.S. ethanol production.

Farmers in Northwest Missouri are positioned to meet the nation’s ethanol needs. Ethanol produced in Craig, Missouri will be sold across the country as a high-octane fuel bringing improved automobile performance to drivers while reducing air pollution. It is a clean-burning, renewable, domestically produced product. The new plant in Craig will create jobs and provide value-added markets to bolster agriculture and our rural economy.

Again, I congratulate and commend the farmer-members of the Golden Triangle Coalition on the opening of the nation’s newest ethanol plant. I look forward to working with them in the future.

HONORING ANTHONY F. COLE

HON. JAMES A. LEACH
OF IOWA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to extol the virtues and lament the retirement of Anthony F. “Tony” Cole after more than 25 years of federal service.

A scholar and a gentleman, Tony graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the College of William and Mary, earned a Masters in history from Rutgers, and his law degree from the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at William and Mary.

In 1975 Tony joined the staff of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, where he served as Deputy General Counsel of the Depository Institutions Deregulation Committee and later as Special Assistant to the Board as its liaison with Congress. Leaving these real jobs, Tony came to the Hill in 1986 to serve first as Minority Counsel and then as Minority Staff Director for the House Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs.

During my tenure as Chairman of the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services, from January 1995 to the end of last year, Tony was the Staff Director for the Committee. Tony’s fine hand may be seen in all of the major legislation the Committee considered over the past 15 years, from the reform of the savings and loan industry (FIRREA), to the financial modernization bill (Gramm-Leach-Bliley), to debt relief for the poorest countries in the world.

As my colleagues know, the job of a committee staff director is one of the most demanding on Capitol Hill. It requires assuaging the easily bruised egos of the Members, administering a multimillion dollar budget, managing a 50-member professional and support staff, and coordinating with leadership. All this must be accomplished while having at one’s finger tips an encyclopedic knowledge of both current statute and the legislative process.

Nobody did it better than Tony. A consummate professional, Tony was respected by both sides of the aisle and revered by the staff he led by precept and example. A person of grace and good humor, he gave of himself selflessly to this institution and in so doing to serving the people of the United States.

The House needs the likes of Tony Cole and he will be sorely missed. It is with profound gratitude that I wish Tony all the best in a well-deserved retirement.

DEFENSE FUNDING

HON. CAROLYN McCARTHY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. McCARTHY of New York. Mr. Speaker, throughout our nation’s history, our armed forces fought bravely to preserve and protect the liberties we cherish. As of late, we have done much to recognize the accomplishments of the generation that fought the Second World War, and rightly so. But we should not forget the equally impressive job our military forces are doing today. They faced down aggression in Iraq; restored democracy in Haiti; and ended ethnic cleansing in the former Yugoslavia. In short, they have much to be proud of.

However, we are faced with some serious concerns. This increase in deployments and operations occurred during a time of military downsizing. It is clear to many we cannot, in good faith, ask our forces to be engaged around the world when they are stretched so thinly.

We have no choice but to embrace this opportunity and demonstrate our commitment to our military personnel. In this time of peace and budget surpluses, we must prepare for the threats that loom in the not-too-distant future by modernizing our military forces and investing in programs to recruit and retain quality military personnel.

We have done a great deal to ensure that our military forces are the best in the world, but the world is changing before our eyes—we need to do more. As we move though the budget process, let us show our support for these brave men and women by passing a responsible defense budget.

THE WAGE ACT

HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce the Workers Access to Accountable Governance in Employment (WAGE) Act. This bill takes a first step toward restoring the rights of freedom of association and equal protection under the law to millions of American workers who are currently denied these rights by federal law.

The WAGE Act simply gives workers the same rights to hold decertification elections as they have to hold certification elections. Currently, while workers in this country are given the right to organize and have union certification elections each year, provided that 30 percent or more of the workforce wish to have them, workers are not given an equal right to have a decertification election, even if the same requirements are met.

As a result of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) created contract-bar rule, if 30 percent or more of a bargaining unit wants to hold an election to decertify a union as their representative, they are prohibited from doing so unless the contract is in at least its third year.

In other words, it does not matter whether or not workers want to continue to have the union as their representative. It does not matter whether or not the union represents the will of the workers. It does not even matter if the majority of the current workforce voted for union representation. They must accept that representation.

Mr. Speaker, this is absurd. The lowest criminal in this country has the right to change...
Mr. Speaker, the WAGE Act takes a step toward returning a freedom to workers that they never should have lost in the first place: the right to choose their own representative. I urge my colleagues to support the nonpartisan, pro-worker WAGE Act.

Mr. Speaker, the Mount Washington American Legion Post 484, which celebrated its 80th anniversary on January 21, 2001. The American Legion was chartered by Congress in 1919 as a patriotic, mutual-help, war-time veterans organization. The Mount Washington American Legion Post 484 opened its chapter 80 years ago, and, since then, it has carried out its mission—to defend and teach the principles of democracy; to uphold the law of the land; to foster patriotism; to venerate, serve and support our veterans; to instill a sense of obligation to the community, state and nation; and to guard the rights and freedoms provided to us by the Constitution.

Post 484 has made a remarkable difference in the Cincinnati community by helping to improve the quality of life for our veterans and for others in the Second Congressional District of Ohio. Post 484 currently has about 400 members, many of whom have dedicated their time at Veterans Administration Hospital and Hospice volunteer programs. Its service also includes: volunteer work in our local schools; donations of blood to the Red Cross; environmental protection and crime prevention programs; and fundraising for crisis intervention and family support programs. Post 484 also has raised funds for the Americanism Youth Conference; the Spirit of Youth Fund; flag etiquette and citizenship programs; the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of America; and anti-substance abuse, child safety as well as literacy programs.

Mr. Speaker, the Mount Washington American Legion Post 484 reminds us that one of the best ways to help individuals and communities is through the hard work and dedication of our local volunteers. These volunteers, who have courageously defended our country, have exhibited an unrelenting service to our community. My colleagues will join me in congratulating Post 484 and its members on 80 years of superb service to the Cincinnati area and to our nation.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Charles E. Crist. I have had the pleasure of working with Chuck for the past year as his deputy for Program and Project Management with the St. Paul District of the Corps of Engineers. Quite simply, he is one of the finest public servants I have had the opportunity to work with. Throughout his time with the St. Paul District, Chuck has stood out as an individual who could tackle complex, sensitive water resource issues. He is a man of great integrity, with a deep commitment to the issues he works on. His contributions to the Corps are numerous, but one that will always be recognized is his efforts to make the Corps a truly responsive agency to the needs of the communities it serves.

During the devastating flood of 1997, Chuck worked to coordinate emergency response measures in Grand Forks, North Dakota and all along the Red River. In the aftermath of the flood, Chuck assembled a team within the Corps to design plans for a permanent flood control project for Grand Forks. He was instru- mental in leading the development of the project reports needed to secure authorization. Without the quick, creative work of Chuck and his team within the Corps, we would have missed a critical window to secure congressional authorization. In recognition of this work, the team received the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Outstanding Planning Achievement Award for Planning Team of the Year. Thanks to Chuck’s dedicated efforts, Grand Forks is now getting the protection it so desperately needs.

In addition to his work in Grand Forks, Chuck has also led efforts to address the ongoing flooding in the Devils Lake Basin. His work has been critical to protecting the future of a town that has experienced eight years of continual flooding. All throughout this process, he has been able to balance a wide range of issues while implementing workable solutions. No matter what the challenge, Chuck has always been able to meet or exceed it.

Chuck’s friendly demeanor and genuine sympathetic nature have made him a trusted public servant. He has been wholeheartedly committed to working with North Dakota communities through difficult water problems and challenges. Through tough and daunting times, he has always maintained a level of optimism that has quite unmatched. There is no doubt that North Dakota has been well-served under his leadership.

Above all, Chuck is a valued friend and partner. Chuck will be missed for his person- ality, remembered for his professionalism, and honored for the positive change he brought to the Corps. After a distinguished career that has spanned more than 32 years, I want to personally thank Chuck for his service to the Corps and the State of North Dakota. I wish him all the best in his retirement.
states to impose and collect fees on trucks to cover the cost of these inspections. By requiring all trucks to pass inspections before entering the United States, we can help to limit the risks these unsafe trucks pose to our citizens.

This country entered into NAFTA in order to better the lives of our citizens. I urge all of my colleagues to support the legislation, because without it, we will simply put our citizens in even more jeopardy. Thank you.

COMMENORATIVE STAMP FOR AVGA GARDNER
HON. BOB EITHERIDGE
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. EITHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce a concurrent resolution recommending that the U.S. Postal Service issue a commemorative postage stamp for Johnston County’s favorite daughter and one of America’s most accomplished actresses, Ava Gardner.

Having grown up in Johnston County myself, I am proud to introduce this legislation in Ava Gardner’s memory, not only because she is a famous North Carolinian; but because she touched the lives of thousands around the globe.

Despite her superstar status, Ava Gardner never forgot her humble Johnston County roots. She was born the youngest of seven children of Jonas and Mary Elizabeth Gardner in 1922 and grew up near Smithfield. When she was 13 her family moved to Newport News, Virginia, only to return to North Carolina where she attended high school in the Rock Ridge community and studied at Atlantic Christian College, which is now Barton College, in Wilson.

In the summer of 1941 the Smithfield Herald told the story of Ava Gardner’s trip across country to a place called Hollywood. When she arrived there, it didn’t take long for the world to recognize what the people of Smithfield and all of North Carolina already saw—Ava’s remarkable talent. During her career, she starred in 64 films and won many honors including:

A Golden Globe nomination for “Best Actress in a Drama” for “Night of the Iguana” in 1964;

The Academy of Motion Pictures “Merit for Outstanding Achievement—Best Actress” nomination for “Mogambo” in 1953;

And the Look “Film Achievement” award for her performance in “Hucksters” in 1947.

She was also the first woman from North Carolina to grace the cover of Time magazine. Indeed, Ava Gardner’s story is the American Dream.

In addition to her success on the silver screen, Ava was a leader in the fight against cancer and worked tirelessly for more funding for research. She was also a patriot and was recognized by the U.S. Armed Forces for her performance as a goodwill ambassador to people around the globe and graciously dedicated her fame to the fight against cancer.

Mr. Speaker, Ava Gardner’s legacy lives on through her movies and the wonderful Ava Gardner Museum in Smithfield, North Carolina.

CHILD PASSENGER PROTECTION EDUCATION GRANTS
HON. JAMES L. Oberstar OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, this week is National Child Passenger Safety Week. This national observance reminds parents and caregivers of the importance of buckling up children correctly on every ride. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, in 1999, motor vehicle crashes killed 1,400 children under age 14 (more than any other cause except firearms) and injured another 300,000. Six out of 10 children killed in these crashes were completely unrestrained. This is simply unacceptable.

Today, I introduce a bill to continue for fiscal years 2002 and 2003 the Child Passenger Protection Education Grant program authorized by Section 203(b) of the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA 21). The bill authorizes $7.5 million for each of fiscal years 2002 and 2003 for the Secretary of Transportation to make incentive grants to states to encourage the implementation of child passenger protection programs in those states.

Current authorizations for the Child Passenger Protection Education Grant program expire at the end of fiscal year 2001, whereas authorizations for virtually all other TEA 21 programs expire at the end of fiscal year 2003.

To increase seat belt use nationwide, the previous Administration established goals to reduce the number of child occupant fatalities 15 percent by 2000 and 25 percent by 2005. The Child Passenger Protection Education Grant program has played an important role in helping the Department meet the first of these goals. Since 1997, the number of child fatalities resulting from traffic crashes has declined 17 percent, exceeding the goal of 15 percent by 2000. Restraint use for infants has risen to 97 percent from 85 percent in 1996, and has climbed to 91 percent for children aged one to four, up from 60 percent in 1996.

Under my bill, a state may use its grant funds to implement programs that are designed to:

Prevent deaths and injuries to children;

Educate the public concerning all aspects of the proper installation of child restraints, appropriate child restraint design, selection, and placement, and harness threading and harness adjustment on child restraints; and

Linking information and materials developed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and child restraint manufacturers with local and regional professionals, police officers, fire and emergency medical personnel, and other educators concerning all aspects of child restraint use.

A state may carry out its child passenger protection education activities through a state program or through grants to political subdivisions of the state or to an appropriate private entity. Each state that receives a grant must submit a report that describes the program activities carried out with the funds made available under the program.

Not later than January 1, 2002, the Secretary of Transportation shall report to Congress on the implementation of the program, including a description of the programs carried out and materials developed and distributed by the states that receive grants under the program.

In each of fiscal years 2000 and 2001, the Transportation Appropriations Act provided $7.5 million to finance the Child Passenger Protection Education Grant program. It is essential that we continue to provide funding for the Child Passenger Protection Education Grant program to ensure that we make progress in preventing deaths and injuries to children on the nation’s highways, and achieve our goal of a 25 percent reduction in child occupant fatalities by 2005.

INTRODUCTION OF THE GIFT OF LIFE CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL ACT OF 2001
HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to introduce the “Gift of Life Congressional Medal Act of 2001.” This legislation creates a commemorative medal to honor organ donors and their survivors. Senator Frist, a heart and lung transplant surgeon himself, is introducing companion legislation in the Senate.

There is a serious shortage of available and suitable organ donors. Nearly 75,000 people are currently waiting for an organ transplant, and every 14 minutes a new name is added to the list. Because of low donor rates, over 6,000 people died in 1999 for lack of a suitable organ. Incentive programs and public education are critical to maintaining and increasing the number of organs donated each year.

We are very happy to hear that Secretary Thompson has made this a priority issue that he plans to address during his first 100 days as Secretary. He has promised to mount “a national campaign to raise awareness of organ donation”, and to “do more to recognize families who donate organs of a loved one.” The Gift of Life Congressional Medal Act is a great opportunity for us to work with Secretary Thompson to draw attention to this life-saving issue. It sends a clear message that donating one’s organs is a selfless act that should receive the profound respect of the Nation.

The legislation allows the Health and Human Service’s Organ Procurement Organi-gation (OPO) and the Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network (OPTN) to establish a nonprofit fund to design, produce, and distribute a Congressional Medal of Honor for organ donors or their family members. Enactment of this legislation would have no cost to the Federal Government. The Treasury Department would provide an initial loan to OPTN for start-up purposes, which would be fully repaid. From then on, the program would be self-sufficient through charitable donations. The donor or family member would have the option of receiving the Congressional Gift of Life Medal. Families would also be able to request that a Member of Congress, state or local official, or community leader award the medal to the donor or donor's survivors.

Physicians can now transplant kidneys, lungs, pancreas, liver, and heart with considerable success. The demand for organs will continue to grow with the improvement of medical technologies. According to the United Network for Organ Sharing (UNOS), an average of 8,600 donations was made per year between 1995 and 1999. Without expanded efforts to increase the supply of organ donation, the supply of suitable organs will continue to lag behind the need.

This is non-controversial, non-partisan legislation to increase organ donation. I ask my colleagues to help bring an end to transplant waiting lists and recognize the enormous fault and courage displayed by organ donors and their families. This bill honors these brave acts, while publicizing the critical need for increased organ donations.

HONORING LONNELL COOPER

HON. MARTIN FROST
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Lonnell Cooper, a retired sergeant with the Fort Worth Police Department and tremendous public servant who has served our community for half a century.

Throughout his life and career, Sgt. Cooper has been a stellar law enforcement officer and a trailblazer. He was a leader in breaking down the color barrier as one of the first six African Americans accepted to the Fort Worth Police Department. He also organized the department’s first Explorer post.

Among the many honors bestowed on Sgt. Cooper throughout his distinguished career are Fort Worth Officer of the Year of the department’s Service Division, he was designated an Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer by the State of Texas and a Pioneer in Criminal Justice by the U.S. Congress. The mayor of Fort Worth even designated a “Sgt. Lonnell E. Cooper Day” in the city.

This Sunday, February 18, the New Rising Star Baptist Church is paying much deserved tribute to Sgt. Cooper for his lifetime of service to our community. I want to join with his family and many friends in thanking Sgt. Lonnell E. Cooper for all that he has done to make our community safer and a better place to live.

INTRODUCTION OF THE McKinney-Vento HOMELESS EDUCATION ACT OF 2001

HON. JUDY BIGGERT
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the “McKinney-Vento Homeless Education Act of 2001.” This legislation builds upon legislation I introduced during the last Congress, numbered H.R. 2888, to improve educational opportunities for homeless children.

As my colleagues will recall, a majority of H.R. 2888 was incorporated into H.R. 2, the Students Results Act, which overwhelmingly passed the House on March 29, 1999. I am hopeful that this year’s version of the legislation will garner the same kind of bipartisan support as did the last bill and ultimately will find its way into law.

Mr. Speaker, I think you would agree that being homeless should not mean foregoing an education. Yet, that is what homelessness means for far too many of America’s children and youth today.

Even with our healthy economy, estimates are that one million kids will experience homelessness this year. Due to red tape, lack of information, and bureaucratic delays, some homeless children are missing school or are being turned away at the schoolhouse door and, as a result, losing out on the chance for a better life.

Studies show that more than 20 percent of homeless children do not attend school on a regular basis. In addition, homeless children are twice as likely to repeat a grade and have four times the rate of delayed development.

Congress recognized the importance of school to homeless children by establishing the Stewart B. McKinney Education of Homeless Children and Youth program. This program is designed to remove barriers that prevent or make it hard for homeless youth to enroll, attend and succeed in school. And, for many homeless children, it may make the difference between success in the classroom and failure in life.

Yet today, more than a decade after the passage of that important program, inadequacies in the federal law inadvertently are acting as barriers to the education of homeless children. We must act to strengthen these weak areas, and we must act now.

This Congress has the rare chance to review, redefine, and improve our federal education policies. Not since 1994, when programs under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) were last authorized, has Congress had a similar opportunity to examine K through 12 education in total. I believe it is incumbent for Members from both sides of the aisle in both chambers to take advantage of this unique opportunity to renew our commitment to homeless children.

As the 107th Congress rushes forward to reauthorize our federal K–12 education programs, we must pause long enough to ensure that all homeless children are guaranteed access to a public education, so that they acquire the skills needed to escape poverty and lead productive lives. In doing so, we will be meeting America’s commitment to, as President Bush has clearly stated, leaving no child behind.

Mr. Speaker, the following is what the McKinney-Vento Homeless Education Act does. The bill:

One: ensures that homeless children are immediately enrolled in school. This means that no homeless child will be prevented for days or even weeks from walking through the school doors because of delayed paperwork or other bureaucracy:

Two: limits the disruption of education by requiring schools to make every effort to keep homeless children in the school they attended before becoming homeless, unless it is against their parents’ wishes. This provision ensures that homeless children are not unwillingly ripped away from their friends and environments where they are comfortable learning.

Three: keeps homeless students in school while disputes are being resolved. Homeless children often spend weeks or even months out of school while enrollment disputes remain unresolved. This legislation addresses this serious problem by creating a mechanism to quickly and fairly resolve such disputes, ensuring that the enrollment process burdens neither the school nor the child’s education:

Four: requires local school districts to select a contact person to identify, enroll and provide resource information and resolve disputes related to homeless students. Because many schools don’t currently have a point of contact for homeless students, these children frequently go unseen and unserved:

Five: strengthens the quality and collection of data on homeless students at the federal level. This is particularly crucial as the lack of a uniform method of data collection has resulted in unreliable information and the likely underreporting of the numbers of homeless students:

Six: prohibits federal funding from being used to segregate homeless students. Despite McKinney Act requirements to remove enrollment barriers and to integrate homeless students into the mainstream school environment, some school districts continue to segregate these children into separate schools or classrooms. By explicitly prohibiting McKinney money from being used for such a purpose, this provision will better define and put teeth into the current federal statute governing this issue:

Seven: increases accountability by providing States with greater flexibility to use authorized funds to provide technical support to local school districts in order to bring them into compliance with the Act:

Eight: and finally: assists overlooked and underserved homeless children and youth by adding to the program’s authorized funding level by $90 million in FY2002 and reauthorizing the program for another five years.

Mr. Speaker, a majority of these provisions are derived from the Illinois Education for Homeless Children State Act, which many consider to be a model for the rest of the Nation. These provisions also are a reflection of the best ideas of some of America’s most dedicated people—homeless advocates, educators, and experts at the U.S. Department of Education.

In closing, let me take a moment to thank Illinois State Representative Mary Lou Cowlishaw, as well as Sister Rose Marie Lorentzen and Diane Nilan with the Hesed House in Aurora, Illinois for bringing this issue to my attention and for their years of tireless, and often unrecognized, work on behalf of the homeless.

I also want to thank Barbara Duffield with the National Coalition for the Homeless for her help in putting together this bill and my colleagues Representative Doug Ose of California and Chaka Fattah of Pennsylvania for being original cosponsors.

Recognizing the Accomplishments of the Service Corps of Retired Executives

HON. MICHAEL BILIRAKIS OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the accomplishments of SCORE, the Service Corps of Retired Executives. SCORE is a prototypical model for a nonprofit, non-governmental association that melds American expertise and entrepreneurial spirit with a uniquely American tradition of service and esprit de corps. SCORE utilizes the talents of current and retired American business executives, a talented pool that many consider to be among the finest business minds in the world, to provide volunteer business consulting service to the small business community. SCORE provides these services free of charge thanks to the efforts of its tireless volunteers.

Founded in 1964, there are currently 389 locally based chapters of the organization that provide business counseling at the community level. SCORE currently has over 11,000 volunteers and since its inception, has helped nearly four million business people throughout the nation with free advice. SCORE success stories run the gamut of the business world and include technology oriented companies, retail establishments, restaurants, and service providers, just to name a few. President Bush has repeatedly pointed out that community based organizations such as SCORE can provide an invaluable service to the nation without relying on government bureaucracy and expenditures of taxpayer dollars.

I salute the volunteers of the Service Corps of Retired Executives and hope that they serve as a model for a new generation of Americans dedicated to excellence with a commitment to service.

Honoring the Life of Samuel H. Day, Jr.

HON. TAMMY BALDWIN OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Ms. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Sam Day, Jr., a tireless advocate for peace and justice. Sam Day’s efforts to preserve our planet from nuclear destruction have been recognized not only in our home community of Madison, Wisconsin but across the country and around the world.

I first heard of Sam Day long before I ever had the honor of meeting him. It was back in the late 70s. In high school, I studied Sam’s legal, ethical, and moral case against the U.S. government and his steadfast support for the First Amendment; his unyielding respect for our Constitution. As editor of “The Progressive” Magazine, Sam Day agreed to publish “The H-Bomb Scam: How We Got It, Why We’re Taking It.” The federal government tried to prevent publication of that article, bringing suit against the magazine in a case that upheld our right to free speech. By publishing that article, Sam taught us much more than how to build a bomb. His efforts taught us about the right of a citizen to question his or her government. . . . a radical notion whether you’re seventeen or seventy. And he taught us the obligation of every human being to actively oppose nuclear annihilation, no matter what the personal toll.

These are lessons that I carry with me every day into the Halls of Congress.

Sam’s commitment to social change was unswerving; his mission the same whether challenging the government of the United States on its nuclear policies or challenging our local, county, or town policies that adversely affected people with disabilities—to protect and preserve humanity in the face of everything from outright aggression to insensitive indifference. He remained, until the very end, a self-proclaimed, “Old Codger for Peace.”

Our Nation has lost a powerful voice of conscience. I ask the Congress today to recognize the life of Sam Day, Jr., an indefatigable fighter for peace, and to continue, through our own words and deeds, his lifelong pursuit of justice.

Introduction of the Middle Income Home Heating Assistance Act of 2001

HON. BOBBY L. RUSH
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to introduce the Middle Income Home Heating Assistance Act of 2001 (MIHAA).

In the face of this winter’s natural gas crisis, there has been a great deal of discussion nationwide, about raising the LIHEAP 150% poverty level eligibility cutoff. While LIHEAP funding and eligibility limits must be increased to protect the increasing number of people who desperately need assistance, the tremendous cost associated with such legislation, must be supported by other legislative initiatives designed to accomplish similar assistive goals.

Consider the statistics in Illinois alone. In Illinois, when the eligibility cutoff was 125% of poverty level, LIHEAP covered 633 thousand households. At the current eligibility cutoff of 150% of the poverty level, $474 thousand households will be covered. If raised to 175%, as some have proposed, close to 1.4 million households will be covered. This would more than double the number of homes currently covered, and would according to State officials, result in an additional $130 million in administrative costs.

Instead of raising LIHEAP, my bill would pick up where LIHEAP leaves off. The importance of relief for those earning just above the 150% poverty rate is especially clear in a year when many individuals have received increases in Social Security benefits, and have been pushed just beyond the cutoff.

My bill does the following: where a taxpayer, in any given year, pays an average of 50% more per thousand, over the average per thousand cost for the previous three years, she is entitled to a refundable tax credit. The maximum credit, which phased out from the 150 to 300% poverty level, is $500. Under this bill, a family of four, with an annual income of $25,575 would be entitled to a $500 credit. The phase-out, for a family of four would end at one with an income of $51,150.

While we must find solutions to the United States’ energy problems, we in Congress must also attend to the consequential costs which those problems levy against the average consumer. The Middle Income Home Heating Assistance Act of 2001 focuses on the middle income consumer, and ensures some relief in years where current law offers none.

Charity to Eliminate Poverty Tax Credit Act of 2001

HON. JIM KOLBE OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, we are introducing today—Valentine’s Day—the Charity To Eliminate Poverty Tax Credit Act of 2001.

This legislation is a Valentine’s present for all the families and people who are struggling every day to survive. I am talking about our nation’s poor.

We are a wealthy nation. The federal government should reward people for trying to help raise the standard of living of those living in poverty.

This bill would give every American the option of sending $100 to an organization that primarily assists the poor instead of sending the money to the IRS.

When you fill out your tax forms this year, wouldn’t you like the opportunity to redirect $100 of your money that is headed to the federal bureaucracy and give it directly to an organization that is helping raise the standard of living of some of America’s poorest citizens?

The Charity To Eliminate Poverty Tax Credit Act of 2001 allows a tax credit up to $100 ($200 if filing a joint return) for charitable contributions to tax-exempt organizations that help people whose annual income is under 150 percent of the official poverty level. Currently, that level is $12,525 annually for an individual and $25,575 for a family of four.

The legislation also acknowledges the importance that in some cases the “real” dollars that people may give to charity so we have indexed the tax credit amount to inflation.

Another important provision requires an organization to spend at least 70 percent of its money on helping the poor in order to qualify. Only a maximum of 30 percent of the charitable organization’s budget can be spent on administrative expenses, expenses to influence legislation, fundraising activities, and litigation costs, among others. We want the charitable contribution to go to the poor, not to increase an administrator’s salary.

President Bush’s tax proposal touches on this objective by suggesting that a charitable tax deduction be allowed for people who do. not itemize their deductions. The President also has encouraged the States to provide a charitable tax credit. In my State of Arizona, we are already allowed to take a $200 charitable tax credit. This legislation goes one step further by offering the credit at the federal level.

Private charities succeed because they are community driven and stress personal responsibility. These local food banks and shelters become personally involved in helping change lives. I believe a better way to help the poor is through local organizations that are designed, implemented, and staffed by residents of the neighborhoods they serve. Also, the tax credit will put more money on the table for programs that help the poor and create a more competitive atmosphere. Each organization will be overseen and judged, not by Washington, DC, but by the community and the people giving the money to the charitable organization. This will in turn improve services to the poor.

Hopefully, we will all agree to give a Valentine’s gift to our nation’s poor by enacting this anti-poverty relief tax credit—the Charity To Eliminate Poverty Tax Credit Act of 2001.

FIRE SAFETY AT THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

HON. ROBERT W. NEY
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on House Administration has received a report from the Office of Compliance on its fire-safety investigation of the Library of Congress buildings. A similar report on fire safety in the Congressional Office Buildings was presented to the Committee in January of 2000. The Office of Compliance report identified numerous deficiencies in Library fire safety and noted that while some conditions have already been corrected, others may require additional time and resources. After carefully considering the report, I, along with the Committee’s ranking member, Mr. Hooley, have written to the Architect of the Capitol to determine what remedial measures will be implemented and the timetable for addressing each of the deficiencies raised in the report. I am committed to working with the Architect and the Librarian to make the Library buildings as safe as possible for the many public patrons, employees, Congressional staff, and Members who work in or visit the Library.

Twice in the Library’s history, in 1812 and 1851, significant parts of its collections were decimated by fire. It is my hope that with the technology and expertise at our disposal, history will not repeat itself.

HONORING SERGEANT KYLE THOMAS

HON. GARY G. MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Sergeant Kyle Thomas, of the Orange County California Sheriff’s Department, upon his retirement.

Sergeant Thomas began his career in law enforcement in 1958 when he joined the Alameda County Probation Department. He worked there until volunteering to serve in the United States Army in 1962. A distinguished veteran, Sergeant Thomas was an M.P. in Korea. After being honorably discharged, Sergeant Thomas was hired by the North Orange County Marshal’s Department in 1966. Only three short months after being hired, Sergeant Thomas was promoted to Deputy II and assigned to Civil Field Services. For 15 years, Sergeant Thomas worked as a Civil Deputy, handling all types of enforcement duties.

In January of 1981, he was promoted to the rank of Sergeant. As a Sergeant, his responsibilities have spanned all aspects of North Orange County’s operations. Because of his vast knowledge of civil procedure, Sergeant Thomas has become the Department’s resident civil expert.

Sergeant Thomas is also an active leader in our community. He is a member of the Latino Peace Officers Association and served as their First Vice President for five years. He has been an active representative for the Association of Deputy Marshal’s of Orange County and the State Marshal’s Association.

In addition to his professional leadership, Sergeant Thomas also takes the time to keep local youth on a winning path. Since 1969, he has volunteered his services to teach Judo and wrestling at the Anaheim YMCA. He has also volunteered as an Orange Youth Soccer League trainer and currently coaches Judo at the Gemini Judo Club in Yorba Linda.

A resident of Placentia, California, Sergeant Thomas’ retirement will bring more time with his wife of 38 years, Virginia, his two children, and three grandchildren.

Sergeant Thomas’ exemplary career in law enforcement distinguishes him as a true American hero, worthy of this Congress’ praise and gratitude.

RECOGNIZING JANE KRATOCHVL

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize an admirable citizen from the great state of Illinois, Jane Kratochvl. As President Bush releases his Education Plan, “No Child Left Behind,” and sets up his Faith Based Liaison Office in the White House that will encourage volunteer work as part of a multi-pronged approach to addressing social challenges, I wanted to take this opportunity to draw your attention to Ms. Kratochvl who is a shining example of selfless volunteerism.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to a very demanding full time job, Ms. Kratochvl spends her unpaid free time working with a program called “The School First Foundation.” This non-profit organization helps underserved K-12 schools gain access to technology and teaching resources that serve to improve their learning environment. As part of this program, Jane works extensively in the Chicago inner-city area and travels on occasion to help in the difficult Roxbury district of Boston.

Jane’s efforts are commendable. Not only is she touching the lives of the many underprivileged boys and girls she is teaching directly, but her organization is helping to identify and advance educational content that improves learning performance, so in essence, she is helping more students improve their minds and lives than we could ever quantitatively.

I want to extend my deepest thanks to Jane Kratochvl and all others like her. It is through volunteers like Jane that we will be successful in ensuring that all children receive a quality education and a fair shot at a successful life.

THE TENNESSEE STATE UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION’S MIDWEST REGIONAL CONFERENCE

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize the Tennessee State University Alumni Association. Since its inception in 1923, it has provided guidance and scholarships to alumni both nationally and in the Northeast Ohio region.

The many local chapters of the alumni association have become pillars of our community, often sponsoring soup kitchens and mentoring programs in their neighborhoods. The Tennessee State University Alumni Association has worked tirelessly to help foster a sense of dignity and honor in the young people of their communities.

Countless children have been able to further their education and their futures because of the opportunity to attend college provided by the Tennessee State University Alumni Association. The scholarships which the alumni association sponsors help to mold the lives of youths who might not otherwise have the resources necessary to attend such a fine institution. The intrinsic role that the alumni association has played in the lives of these young people is noteworthy.

The theme of this conference, “Don’t Forget The Bridge that Brought You Across . . . Then and Now” gives us reason to reflect upon the many opportunities which we were blessed with throughout our lives. As children, we were all confronted with many challenges, and it is important to remember the people who helped us overcome those hurdles and have allowed us to succeed. The theme of this conference should inspire us to continue to contribute to our communities, to allow us to continue to provide opportunities for our youth, and to strengthen the social fabric of our society.

My fellow colleagues, please join me in honoring the Tennessee State University Alumni Association.
A BILL TO REPEAL SECTION 809, WHICH TAXES POLICYHOLDER DIVIDENDS OF MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES, AND TO REPEAL SECTION 815, WHICH APPLIES TO POLICYHOLDER SURPLUS ACCOUNTS

HON. AMO HOUGHTON
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. HOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleague from Massachusettts, Mr. NEAL, together with a number of our colleagues in introducing our bill, “The Life Insurance Tax Simplification Act of 2001.” The bill repeals two sections of the Internal Revenue Code which no longer serve valid tax policy goals. Except for the effective date, the bill is identical to the one we introduced in the 106th Congress.

Congress has taken a major step forward in reworking the regulatory structure of the financial services industry in the United States. This realignment is already having a positive impact on the way life insurance companies serve their customers, conduct their operations and merge their businesses to achieve greater market efficiencies. Unfortunately, the tax code contains several provisions which no longer represent valid tax policy goals, and in fact are carry-overs from the old tax and regulatory regimes that separated the life insurance industry from the rest of the financial world and differentiated between the stock and mutual segments of the life insurance industry. Today, the lines of competition are not between the stock and mutual segments of the life insurance industry. Rather, life insurers must compete in an aggressive, fast moving global financial services marketplace contrary to the premises underlying these old, outdated tax rules.

In 1984 Congress enacted Section 809, which imposed an additional tax on mutual life insurers to guarantee that stock life insurers would not be competitively disadvantaged by what was then thought to be the dominant segment of the industry. Section 809 operates by taxing some of the dividends that mutual life insurers pay to their policyholders. When Section 809 was enacted, mutual life insurers held more than half the assets of U.S. life insurance companies. It is estimated that within a few years, life insurers operating as mutual companies are expected to constitute less than ten percent of the industry.

The tax is based on a bizarre formula under which the tax of each mutual life insurer is determined based on the amount of its large stock company competitors rise—even when a mutual company’s earnings fall. The provision has been criticized by the Treasury Department and others as fundamentally flawed in concept. The original rationale behind the enactment of Section 809 no longer exists. Accordingly, the bill would repeal Section 809.

Section 815 was added to the Code as part of the 1959 changes to the life insurance companies tax structure. Before 1959, life insurance companies were taxed only on their investment income. Underwriting (premium) income was not taxed, and underwriting expenses were not deductible. The change provided that all life insurance companies paid tax on investment income not set aside for policyholders and on one-half of their underwriting income. The other half of underwriting income for stock companies was not taxed unless it was distributed to shareholders (so-called “policyholders surplus account or PSA”). The 1959 tax structure sought to tax the proper amount of income stock and mutual companies and made the PSA mechanism help implement that goal.

In 1984, Congress rewrote the rules again. Both stock and mutual companies were subjected to tax on all their investment and underwriting income. In this context, dividend deductions for mutuals were limited under Section 809, and the tax exclusion for a portion of stock company’s underwriting income was discontinued. Congress made a decision not to tax the amount excluded between 1959 and 1984. Rather the amounts are only taxed if one of the specific events described in the current Section 815 occurs (principally dissolution of the company).

The bill would repeal the obsolete Section 815 provision. Since 1984, the Federal government has collected relative small amounts of tax from mutual life insurers and released the policyholders surplus account or PSA fund. While never swaying from his duty, Michael Gage also refused to shrink from offering compassion to those in need. During his time and after his time as Sheriff, Mike demonstrates a continuing commitment to helping those who found themselves on the wrong side of the law. In recent years, Mike maintained a strong correspondence with numerous former inmates and attempts to keep them on the right path by lending a willing ear and a responsive heart.

In his work and in his life, Michael Gage has lived out his faith in ways which have made a real difference for his family and his community. Mike has been thoroughly devoted to Carol, his wife of 34 years, and their three children, and their family has also reached out across international borders in hosting 17 exchange students in 20 years.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I am proud to my friend’s decision to turn in his badge will not mean a retreat from the dedicated service to his fellow citizens that has been the benchmark of his storied career. In fact, Mike is wasting no time in continuing his public service with his recent election to the Huron County Board of Commissioners. I know the board will welcome the addition of his significant knowledge, skills and experience as they work for the future of Huron County.

I ask my colleagues to join me in expressing gratitude to Sheriff Gage for his outstanding service and wish him continued success in serving the needs of Huron County.

HON. BOB RILEY OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, protecting America’s retirement must be of the highest order. H.R. 2 is extraordinarily important for guaranteeing a secure retirement for Americans. Our Government must never revert back to raiding the Social Security trust fund.

We have a moral obligation to not allow the Medicare or Social Security surpluses to be carelessly squandered. All funds that are originially designated for Medicare or Social Security must stay there, regardless of a surplus or not. This legislation mandates that no Social Security or Medicare surpluses can be used for any other purpose other than debt reduction from Social Security or Medicare reform legislation. The creation of a “lockbox” for these funds, I believe, is essential for maintaining the current status of Social Security benefits and for protecting the future retirees in our country.

Every American citizen has been promised a secure retirement and access to health care in their twilight years, and as representatives of these citizens, we not only have a professional duty, but a moral obligation to keep that promise. The Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act will guarantee that these funds will be out of the reach of wasteful government spending and keep secure for today’s beneficiaries and future retirees.
I urge my colleagues to join me today in support of the Social Security and Medicare Lockbox Act.

RECOGNIZING AMERICAN HEART MONTH

HON. JOE BACA
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, on Valentine’s day, a time of celebration of our loved ones, we should take a moment to recognize American Heart Month, established by the Congress in 1963. This February the American Heart Association’s 22.5 million volunteers and supporters are joining together with the message that we can combat heart disease.

I worked on this issue in California, authoring a bill to fight against heart disease, and standing with the American Heart Association on this important issue.

Cardiovascular disease, including heart attack and stroke, is America’s No. 1 killer and a leading cause of permanent disability. An American dies from cardiovascular disease every 33 seconds. Nearly 61 million Americans suffer from cardiovascular disease. Coronary diseases kill nearly 1 million Americans every year—about 41% of deaths in the U.S. If cardiovascular diseases were eliminated, life expectancy would rise by almost 7 years. Cardiovascular disease will cost Americans an estimated $300 billion in medical expenses and lost productivity in 2001.

Coronary heart disease (including heart attack and crushing chest pain) is the single largest killer of all Americans. Every 29 seconds someone suffers a heart attack and every 60 seconds someone dies. This year, more than 1 million Americans will suffer a heart attack. More than 40% of these victims will die.

This tragic illness affects women, too. Heart disease, stroke and other cardiovascular diseases actually kill more American women than men. Cardiovascular diseases, including heart disease and stroke, remain the No. 1 killer of American females. More than 500,000 die each year. Cardiovascular diseases kill more females each year than the next 14 causes of death combined. Heart disease kills five and a half times more American females than all other causes of death combined. More than 500,000 die each year—about 41% of deaths in the U.S. If cardiovascular diseases were eliminated, life expectancy would rise by almost 7 years.

American females as all forms of cancer. Vascular diseases kill almost twice as many women as breast cancer. Cardiovascular disease and stroke, combined. Heart disease kills five and a half times more American females than all other causes of death combined. More than 500,000 die each year—about 41% of deaths in the U.S. If cardiovascular diseases were eliminated, life expectancy would rise by almost 7 years.

In recognition of the Retirement of Charles T. Harris

HON. JAMES P. MORAN
OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, today I pay tribute to Charles T. Harris—one of our Federal Government’s finest public servants and a long time resident of the Commonwealth of Virginia. This March he will retire from an exceptionally distinguished career of service to his country. He has served our nation in an active duty including two tours of duty with the U.S. Army in Vietnam, first as a platoon leader and then as a company commander. After leaving the Army, Mr. Harris began his civilian career in the Department of the Army as a supervisory budget analyst in the Army’s logistics programs. In 1985, Mr. Harris began work in the Office of the Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), where since 1988 he has served in the Senior Executive Service in various leadership roles, including: Associate Director for Air Force Operations, Deputy Director of the Revolving Funds Directorate, Deputy Director and then Director for Operations and Personnel.

Mr. Harris’ professionalism and significant contributions have been recognized by every administration he has served. Among his many awards, he has received the Outstanding Department of the Army Civilian Award (the PACE Award), the Presidential Rank Award for Meritorious Service, and most recently, the Department of Defense Distinguished Civilian Service Award, the highest award granted to civilian employees in DoD.

Through his civilian career as a financial manager, Mr. Harris has steadily and continuously accumulated a comprehensive knowledge of the workings of the Federal budget process and the needs for financing the nation’s military forces. Year after year, Mr. Harris has succeeded in transforming the administration’s defense priorities into a clear, defensible and compelling articulation of the resource requirements necessary to execute the nation’s peacetime and wartime military operations. In his role as Director of the Operations and Personnel Directorate, he is directly responsible for fully 65 percent of the Department of Defense annual budget. He has become an acknowledged expert on Military Readiness, Recruiting and Retention, Quality of Life, Contingency Operations, Military Healthcare, Training and Education.

Mr. Harris is an imaginative leader and exceptional manager who inspires his people to produce work of the highest quality. Throughout his career he has repeatedly sought out opportunities to materially improve the ways in which the Department of Defense allocates its resources to effectively execute the National Military Strategy. By actively working with stakeholders in the Congress and throughout the Department of Defense, he has successfully streamlined and rationalized the submission of budget justification materials so that they are both more timely and more useful to decision makers.

Senior leaders, both in the Congress and in the Department of Defense have benefitted enormously from his unsurpassed experience, wisdom and clarity. His efforts have enabled our nation’s leaders to make the most effective use of defense resources to ensure America’s military strength in the twenty-first century. Mr. Harris is retiring from a career of exemplary merit and has earned the profound respect of a grateful nation. On behalf of my colleagues, I thank him for his service to our country and wish him well on his retirement.

INTRODUCTION OF THE CALIFORNIA RECLAIMED WATER ACT FOR THE 21ST CENTURY

HON. GEORGE MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to introduce the California Reclaimed Water Act for the 21st Century. I introduced almost identical legislation in the 106th Congress (H.R. 5555).

The dry winter we are experiencing in California should be a reminder that water shortages and droughts are quite normal in our State. I strongly believe that investment in reclaimed water technology—water recycling—can help us “drought-proof” many of our community water supplies in California.

Projects that recycle water result in a net increase in available local water supplies and can help reduce the need for water that must be supplied and often imported from other sources. Because wastewater for recycling is available even when other water supplies are diminished, recycled water can assist in providing a long-term, reliable, local source of water even during droughts.

Our farmers, urban dwellers, sport and commercial fishing interests, tribes, mountain communities and environmentalists all seek a more reliable and a more certain water future. Recycled water plays an important part in meeting California’s water needs today and will play an even more important role in the next several decades.

About 3 percent of the water supply in the San Francisco Bay Area is now recycled. Water managers hope that eventually as much as 40% of the water we use will be recycled, perhaps as much as 500,000 acre-feet per year. California cities need planning help and financial assistance to find markets for the recycled water, and to construct the treatment and conveyance facilities needed to get the treated water to identified markets. The treated water can help fund golf courses, parks, school lands, business campuses, and highway medians, and for groundwater recharge, wetlands development; and industrial purposes. We have to start thinking about recycled water as a critical component of the water supply picture in California.

Californians and government agencies have recently affirmed their support for water recycling, first with the passage of the California water bond last year, and more recently with the approval of the CALFED Water Project Agreement which broadly sets a course for California’s water future. Water recycling and reuse is a major element of both these new actions and policies.

The Federal government’s support for water recycling was initially authorized in the Recclamation Act of 1996. The Bureau of Reclamation’s so-called “Title XVI” program originally approved financial assistance for planning, design and construction of four water recycling projects in California. Multiple projects were approved in 1998.

The legislation I introduce today builds upon these Congressional efforts, voter ballot initiatives and agency studies.

The bill authorizes a series of new Title XVI water recycling projects and directs the Secretary of the Interior to work with various water districts throughout the State on water recycling activities. Specific projects included in the bill are the Water Agency; Bear Lake Basin Water Reuse Project; San Ramon Valley Recycled Water Project; Inland Empire Regional Water Recycling Project; San Pablo Baylands Water Reuse Project in Sonoma, Napa, Marin and Solano Counties; State of California Water Recycling Program; Regional Brine Lines (salt removal) in Southern California and in the San Francisco Bay and the Santa Clara Valley areas; Lower Chino Dairy Area Desalination Demonstration and Reclamation Project; and the West Basin Comprehensive Desalination Demonstration Program.

These projects will have the capacity to produce hundreds of thousands of acre-feet of useable water. Each acre-foot of recycled water produced by these projects will reduce the demand in California for imported water from the Bay-Delta and the Colorado River.

Unlike traditional Bureau of Reclamation water projects, these water recycling projects require a majority of funds to be locally provided. Consistent with Title XVI limitations on recycling projects as authorized in 1992 and 1996, the projects proposed in my bill require 75 percent local funding. Federal cost sharing is limited to 25 percent. Moreover, this bill specifies that the funds can be used for annual operation and maintenance costs. Those annual expenses are the responsibility of the local water districts or management agency.

I strongly believe that water recycling will continue to play an important and growing role in total water management strategies to provide a safe and sustainable water supply in California and in many other parts of the country. The water recycling projects authorized by the legislation I am introducing today are part of a long-term solution to some of California’s most difficult challenges. Water recycling is not the only solution. But, water recycling and water reuse can play a significant part as these projects can be designed, built, and placed in service within a short time.

BAN THE USE OF THE INTERNET TO OBTAIN OR DISPOSE OF A FIREARM

HON. PATSY T. MINK OF HAWAII
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Speaker, today I re-introduce a bill to ban the use of the internet to obtain or dispose of a firearm. Internet technology has brought our world closer together. It has made our lives more convenient by having almost anything we want available at our fingertips, literally, by the click of a button. We can purchase items from groceries, a brand new car, or even a semi-automatic weapon from a private seller via the Internet.

The Gun Control Act of 1968 was enacted for the purpose of keeping firearms out of the hands of those not legally entitled to possess them because of age, criminal background, or incompetence.

To curb the illegal use of firearms and enforce the Federal firearms laws, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) issues firearms licenses and conducts firearms license qualification and compliance inspections.

Use of the internet to dispose or obtain a firearm would bypass these Federal licensing requirements, as well as background checks and waiting periods. Compliance inspections to help identify and apprehend criminals who illegally purchase firearms would also be avoided.

Criminals having access are not all that we should be concerned about. Our children now have universal access to the internet—almost every classroom and many homes have been installed with and public libraries have at least one computer terminal with a modem. Our children must be protected from the ease the internet provides in obtaining firearms.

It may be difficult to track internet firearm purchasers due to numerous security precautions available. Terrible damage may already have been done by the time the unlicensed purchaser and/or seller is detected.

We have an obligation to do all we can to keep our communities safe. This bill will help prevent such weapons from getting into the wrong hands.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO APPLY THE LOOK-THRU RULES FOR PURPOSES OF THE FOREIGN TAX CREDIT LIMITATION TO DIVIDENDS FROM FOREIGN CORPORATIONS NOT CONTROLLED BY A DOMESTIC CORPORATION

HON. SAM JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am joined by Representative Bob Matsui in the introduction of legislation to clarify a provision of our tax code that is needlessly hindering U.S. businesses’ ability to efficiently operate in overseas markets.

In some countries, U.S. investors face significant business, legal and political obstacles that prevent them from acquiring a controlling interest in a foreign company. This occurs in particular when the local government has a share in the foreign venture, the industry is heavily regulated (financial services, utilities, and oil and gas exploration, for example), or requires the dominant investor to take a majority interest. Consequently, U.S. companies must operate in these foreign countries through corporate joint ventures, many times in partnership with local businesses. U.S. international tax rules, however, tend to discourage corporate joint ventures, even when they require that U.S. companies take minority ownership interest in cooperative arrangements with local companies in order to do business.

In particular, the so-called “10/50 foreign tax credit rules” impose a separate foreign tax credit limitation for each corporate joint venture in which a U.S. company owns at least 10 percent but not more than 50 percent of the stock of the foreign entity.

The 10/50 regime is bad tax policy because it increases the cost of doing business for U.S. companies operating abroad by singling out income earned through a specific type of corporate business for separate foreign tax credit “basket” treatment. This provision inevitably prevents U.S. companies from fully using these tax credits, and thus subjects them to double taxation.

More fundamentally, the current rules impose an unreasonable level of complexity, especially for companies with many foreign corporate joint ventures.

The 1997 Tax Relief Act partially corrected this inequity by eliminating separate baskets for 10/50 companies. Unfortunately, the 1997 act did not make the change effective for such dividends unless they were received after the year 2002. It further complicated the Tax Code by requiring two sets of rules—one from earnings and profits (E&P) generated before the year 2003 and one for dividends from E&P accumulated after the year 2002.

My legislation will greatly simplify the U.S. tax treatment for U.S. companies subjected to these 10/50 foreign tax credit rules. This bill will accelerate from 2003 to this year the repeal of the separate foreign tax credit basket for these companies. In doing so, so-called “look-thru treatment” will allow them to aggregate income from all such ventures according to the type of earnings from which the dividends are paid, thus conforming the treatment of this joint venture income to other income earned overseas by the U.S. companies.

The proposal also ensures that pre-effective date foreign tax credits that are being carried forward also receive this look-thru treatment. Without such a rule, these tax credits will expire, a result that never was intended.

In 1999, the House of Representatives and the Senate passed the “Taxpayer Refund and Relief Act of 1999.” Although former President Clinton vetoed that particular bill, his administration recommended this legislative proposal in its next budget proposal. Consequently, I am confident that this bill will have strong bipartisan support.

I urge my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring this important legislation.
HONORING CHAIRMAN ARTHUR LEVITT

HON. MICHAEL G. OXLEY
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, last week marked the end of the Honorable Arthur Levitt’s tenure as the longest-serving Chairman in the history of the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. Arthur has been a good friend of mine for quite some time. More importantly, over the past eight years, he has been a leader in preserving the integrity of our capital markets and protecting America’s investors.

I have worked closely with Arthur during his entire tenure on a number of major initiatives, especially the past few years in my capacity as chairman of the former House Commerce Subcommittee on Finance and Hazardous Materials.

Chairman Levitt leaves the Commission with an enviable record of accomplishment. He worked tirelessly to achieve his top priority of protecting investors, conducting more than 40 investor town meetings across the country, listening and responding to their concerns.

He played an important role in the recent financial services debates. The financial modernization legislation—known as the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act—was enacted after decades of futility. It was, in part, the product of Chairman Levitt’s hard work and support.

Persuading the nation’s stock exchanges to convert to decimal pricing took some prodding from the Commission and Congress, but I am pleased to report that America’s investors are already benefiting from the narrower spreads that I envisioned when I introduced the Common Stocks Price Act of 1997. Chairman Levitt deserves a great deal of credit for helping implement this historic reform.

He played an integral role in passage of the National Securities Markets Improvement Act, which modernized the relationship between state and federal securities regulators and eliminated costly and duplicative state regulation of national securities offerings. More recently, his work on the Commodity Futures Modernization Act, helped us pass historic legislation to provide legal certainty to the trillion-dollar derivatives industry.

Finally, the SEC, under Mr. Levitt’s direction, has taken important steps in creating a regulatory framework that embraces new technology and promotes competition.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, let me say that Arthur Levitt is a man of great integrity who has served his nation admirably. He is the quintessential public servant. The American people are better off for his tenure.

HONORING ISADORE TEMKIN ON HER 80TH BIRTHDAY

HON. ROSA L. DELAURO OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I today join the many friends and family members of my dear friend, Issadore Temkin, in extending his warmest wishes as he celebrates his 80th birthday. Throughout his life, he has been an outstanding leader in his community, always demonstrating a deep commitment to public service.

Issie, along with his wife Zena, has been actively involved in Connecticut’s political arena for over forty-five years. Many of Connecticut’s elected officials have benefited from his support including former Governor Ella T. Grasso, former Senator Abraham Ribicoff, current Senator CHRISTOPHER DODD and myself. His invaluable friendship is a tremendous gift we all have cherished.

In the many years that I have known Issie, I have come to appreciate his wisdom and wit, his concern for the welfare of the community. He has been actively involved in the Republican Party in Connecticut for 40 years and has served as chairman of the Connecticut Republican Party since 1987.

Issie is a man of great vision and energy, excitement and community fellowship that make a one-stoplight town or a sprawling metropolis a treasured hometown.

Readers responded to our call with notes, poems and a bit of professional public-relations puffery, singing the praises of more than 120 communities from Tacoma, Wash., to Miami, Fla., to Barnes, a cozy English town outside London.

Issie has been a leader in the community and is continuing to do so today. Serving as a member of the Connecticut State Dental Commission, the regulatory board for dentistry, he ensured that residents received proper care from dentists practicing in Connecticut.

While keeping true to his endless efforts to improve his community, he opened a clinic in memory of his brother, Charles, and his sister-in-law, Elvira. The Issie Temkin Care Center is now rooted here as se-

HON. JOHN J. LAFalCE
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. LALANCE. Mr. Speaker, I want to share with my colleagues an article that appeared yesterday in the national newspaper, USA TODAY. After conducting a nationwide search for a “City with Heart”, they chose my hometown of Buffalo, New York. In this great, historic city you will find four enjoyable seasons, world-class educational institutions, expansive parklands, and the finest in art and architecture.

For nearly a century, the citizens of Buffalo have been the envy of the world for their beautiful, sturdy brick streets and neighborhoods, each with its own unique character. Buffalo is a warm-hearted lady, and it is with great pride that I join the many friends and colleagues in paying tribute to her.

The people of Buffalo still know these well. And they stuffed the valentine ballot box with the most notes to tell the world the sunny truth about their oft-maligned, blizzard-thumped city.

They managed to be simultaneously proud and humble about their world-class art, architecture and grand urban parks; a great history including two U.S. presidents; and generations of immigrants and their descendants who turn evaluations from May to October into a street festival.

Don’t let the snow fool you,” wrote Marge McMillen, listing, as many did, the city’s remarkable museums, parks, colleges and sports teams. “Buffalo is a warm-hearted lady.”

So we winged into town for a day to see. Eleven Buffalo guys—eight of them born here—joined us for platters of chicken wings at the Anchor Bar, world famous for the spicy tidbits that legend says were invented here. Friendlier people would be hard to find. “That’s why we all come back here,” says Dennis Warzel, one of five in the lunch group who tried living elsewhere and felt Buffalo call him home. He’s now rooted here as securely as the lavish Buffalo Botanical Gardens, where he spends hours volunteering. That’s why my parents, who retired to Florida, returned to be with their old friends,” says Bonnie MacGregor, bass drummer in the Celtic Spirit Pipe Band. If Buffalo were a band, its tunes could be drawn from Irish, Scottish, German, Irish, Scottish, Polish, Italian, German, Slavic, Jewish, Native American and a dozen other cultures.

This lovable rust-belt city is full of blue-collar guys of every ethnic background who get together on Sunday to watch the Bills and remove their shirts in 35-degree weather. (We support everybody withour tractor pulls to the philharmonic—and hardly any drive-by shootings!), quips Jim Joslin.
Good neighbors keep this city’s heart beating, all agree. Asked for signs of neighborliness in action, Sandra Cochran leapt to mention Friends of Night People. Lodged in a pink house on the edge of downtown, it’s a 24-hour soup kitchen and shelter of last resort, established 32 years ago when the homeless didn’t have the media attention that they do today. "Generosity here is above and beyond anywhere I’ve ever worked," says director Darren Strickland, watching volunteer Betty Dorio make bologna and cheese sandwiches. The shelter serves 72,000 meals a year and provides eye, foot, and health care for 1,600 children, women, and elderly annually.

MacGregor was among 200 who huddled in a streetlight, hands clasped, under the tree lights on and turned the hall lights off. "For a big city, it’s very small," says Kern. Adds Nancy Lynch: "When people do small things for one another, they tend to want to reciprocate. When the cycle is repeated over and over again, you end up with a City with Heart."

INTRODUCTION OF THE AFRICAN ELEPHANT CONSERVATION RE-AUTHORIZATION ACT

HON. WAYNE T. GILCHREST OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, as the new chairman of the House Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans, I am pleased to introduce legislation to reauthorize the African Elephant Conservation Act of 1988. Prior to the passage of this landmark conservation law, the population of African elephants plummeted from 1.3 million animals to less than 600,000. The primary causes of this decline were catastrophic drought, illegal poaching of elephants and the insatiable international demand for elephant ivory. Without immediate action, it was clear that this flagship species of the African continent would continue its march toward extinction. In response to this crisis, the Congress passed the African Elephant Conservation Act. In addition, President George H. Bush used the authority of this law to prohibit the importation of all carved ivory into the United States and to persuade the convention on the International Trade in Endangered Species of wild fauna and flora (CITES) to place the African elephant on its Appendix I list. Through this listing, a worldwide commercial ban on all products derived from the species was established in January of 1990. Due to these actions, the price of ivory, the trade in ivory, and the poaching of elephants all decreased almost immediately.

A key component of this law was the establishment of the African Elephant Conservation Fund. Under the terms of the fund, the Secretary of the Interior is charged with the responsibility of reviewing and approving meritorious conservation projects. To date, 113 conservation projects that affect elephant populations in 22 separate countries have been funded. In total, $11.9 million in federal money has been obligated for these projects, matched by $5 million in non-federal funds. In recent years, money has been spent to support elephant conservation. The principles...
INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 614, THE COPYRIGHT TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS ACT OF 2001

HON. HOWARD COBLE
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, February 14, 2001

Mr. COBLE. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing H.R. 614, the “Copyright Technical Corrections Act of 2001.” H.R. 614 consists of purely technical amendments to Title I of the Intellectual Property and Communications Omnibus Reform Act of 1999 and title 17, H.R. 614 corrects errors in references, editorial punctuation; conforms the table of contents with section headings; restores the definitions in chapter 1 to alphabetical order; deletes an expired paragraph; and creates continuity in the grammatical style used throughout title 17.

This legislation makes necessary improvements to Title 1 of the Copyright Act. It is non-controversial and was passed under suspension of the rules in the 106th Congress. I urge Members to support H.R. 614.
from rhinoceros horn. Rhinoceros horn has been used for generations to treat illnesses in children and for ceremonial purposes in certain Middle Eastern countries.

Despite this grim future, the fate of the five remaining subspecies of tigers was even worse. In 1990, there were more than 100,000 tigers living in the wild. In 1994, the total was fewer than 5,000 animals which represented a decline of 95 percent. As in the case of rhinos, the illegal hunting of tigers was the overwhelming factor in their demise. Tigers were killed for their fur, and other body parts. Tiger bone powders, wines, and tablets were used to combat pain, kidney, liver problems, rheumatism, and heart conditions.

Despite the fact that both rhinos and tigers are internationally protected, these prohibitions have not been effective. In 1998, the Secretary of the Interior, Bruce Babbitt testified in support of reauthorizing the act when he said, "This is a small grant program, but it is amazing how much even a small amount of money can mean to our partners in other countries. Something more intangible—but often even more important—is the boost to their morale when they realize that we, the United States care enough to help them." At that same hearing, the president of the American Zoo and Aquarium Association stated that, "Passage—combined with increased appropriations for law enforcement will certainly be a bold step by the United States in ending the slaughter of the rhinoceros and tigers in the wild."

Since its passage in 1994, Congress has appropriated $29.5 million to the Rhinoceros and Tiger Conservation Fund. This money has been spent in projects in 16 range countries. These projects have included: a database on tiger poaching, trade and other wildlife crimes in India; desert Rhino conservation and research; development of national tiger action plan in Cambodia; establishment of a viable population of "greater one-horned rhinoceros;" public education on Siberian tiger conservation; survey and habitat assessment for South China tigers; training in anti-poaching techniques for rhinoceros in southern national parks; training of staff in Nepal’s Department of National Parks, and a video on tiger poaching in Russia. In addition, the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation has done a superb job of managing the Save the Tiger Fund that has helped to educate millions of people about the harmful effects of tiger poaching.

Since the establishment of this grant program, these conservation projects have helped to change international opinion on the need to protect their animals. While the job is far from complete, the population of both animals has slightly increased and there is new found hope of saving their species from extinction. However, it is essential that the availability of money to this fund be extended for an additional five years. In addition, I will work to increase the amount of appropriated money for rhinoceros and tiger projects. The good news is that the Department of the Interior financed 111 projects. The bad news is that it lacked the resources to fund some 358 other projects, many of which were highly meritorious.

SPEECH OF
HON. DANNY K. DAVIS OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, February 13, 2001
Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support House Resolution 2 Social Security and Medicare Amendments Act of 2001. The legislation is the nation’s largest retirement and disability program providing cash benefits to 44 million retired and disabled workers and to their dependents and survivors. Medicare provides 39 million of them with health insurance. Today, 1 out of 6 Americans receive Social Security; 1 out of 7 receives Medicare. About 155 million workers paid taxes to support the two programs. A major issue for President George W. Bush will be to provide a fiscal responsible plan for maintaining the solvency of the Social Security System while guaranteeing income for America’s retired and disabled workers.

Historically, Social Security has been a "pay-as-you-go" system. Ninety percent of the payroll taxes paid by workers are immediately spent as benefits to current Social Security recipients. The other 10 percent goes into the Social Security Trust Fund for payment of future benefits. Here lies the problem. In 1950 it took 16 workers to support 1 beneficiary on Social Security compared to 3.4 workers to support 1 recipient today. Mr. Speaker, the American people demand that the Social Security and Medicare surpluses will not be used for anything other than their current purposes. Even if, the current $2.7 trillion projected surpluses that are available for tax and spending initiatives will be used up by President Bush’s tax cut for the wealthiest 1 percent and other items that are associated with debt service costs. Spending our surpluses projected for the next 10 years leaves us nothing to protect Social Security and Medicare.

INTRODUCING H.R. 615, THE INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS ACT OF 2000
HON. HOWARD COBBLE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, February 14, 2001
Mr. COBBLE. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce, H.R. 615, "The Intellectual Property Technical Amendments Act of 2000."

As my colleagues know, the success of our economy and quality of modern life can be directly attributed to the innovation and genius of our patent and trademark system. It is in the fields of computers, media, aerospace, or bio-technology.

In 1999, Congress successfully passed landmark legislation to modernize our patent system and transform the Patent and Trade-mark Office (PTO) into a more autonomous and efficient agency. This legislation—the "American Inventors Protection Act"—was the most significant reform of its type in a generation, and it represented five years of hard work by a large, diverse group of Members. Administration officials, inventors, union representatives, and businesses.

At the same time, the Act contained a small number of clerical and other technical drafting errors. Today, I offer the opportunity for my colleagues to work with me to remedy these errors within this bill. In addition, this bill makes a small number of other non-controversial changes requested by the PTO. For example, it changes the title of the chief officer of the PTO from "Director" to "Commissioner." It also clarifies some of the agency’s administrative duties and the protections for the independent inventor community.

This bill represents the progress made last session when the House was able to pass it by an unanimous voice vote under suspension of the rules. The bill is being reintroduced in virtually the identical form as passed last year in order to expedite these house-keeping processes. Additional changes requested by others have been placed on the back burner for the present, since these revisions still require further review. Rest assured, there will be opportunities during the rest of the session for continued legislative oversight and innovation in these areas.

I urge all Members to support this innovation-friendly legislation.
Fort Wayne resident, surely it was the Rev. Jesse White, 73, who died Monday.

Tall, with a backbone’s physique and a booming baritone voice that was equally effective in rallying congregations as in delivering a sermon or demanding justice, the pastor of True Love Baptist Church had the rare ability to cut an imposing yet approachable presence.

Parishioners, friends and public officials will remember the Rev. White as much for his compassion in helping and serving people as in public relaying for civil rights. For instance, one of his longtime friends, former City Councilman Charles B. Redd, remembered White’s civil rights leadership charged into a planned Fort Wayne Community Schools board meeting. But he also remembers the minister who would open his wallet to people in need, a caring pastor who ordered a youth caught looting a parishioner’s car be taken not to jail but to the front of the congregation, where he prayed with the youth and asked the congregation to grant forgiveness.

His commanding presence and eloquence in giving voice to the wrongs of racism through a number of lenses—religion, the Constitution, economics, personally—made him a natural leader. He protested segregated Fort Wayne restaurants in the 1960s and 1980s. It was the late Rev. White who called for a black boycott of Fort Wayne Community Schools in 1969, applying as much pressure on other black ministers to urge their congregations to participate as on the white leaders of the school system.

The Rev. White chose his battles wisely, a natural ability borne from the heart and soul, not public relaying for civil rights. As the leader of the local Operation Breadbasket in the early 1980s, White set about to address the economic legacy of racism, leading boycotts and negotiations—with national department store and grocery chains, urging them to hire more blacks at their Fort Wayne outlets. By the 1980s, White concentrated emotionally on economically disadvantaged people in his own southeast neighborhoods, opening the 30-unit True Love Village for senior citizens housed in the 52-unit Adams and Bruce Housing for people with disabilities. True Love’s computer learning center helped more than 1,500 students ages 6 to 86 learn and upgrade their computer skills.

Through his ministry, his leadership in civil rights and his personal compassion, the Rev. Jesse White enriched his church, his neighborhood and Fort Wayne as a whole. He will be truly missed.

FIGHTER FOR JUSTICE CHANGED THE CITY

(From The Journal Gazette)

RIGHTS ACTIVIST JESSE WHITE DEAD AT AGE 73

(By David Gilmer)

Nearly paralyzed by the brain tumor that would take his life three days later, the Rev. Jesse White insisted on leading a funeral service Friday for a parishioner he had bапtized.

Three mem physically supported the Rev. White in Fort Wayne. White, a former civil rights leader, was among the most revered civil rights leaders, as he warned the audience about life’s fleeting nature.

“Don’t waste your time, young people, for time is master,” White had said.

The Rev. White, 73, knew how prophetic his words would be.

About 2 a.m. Saturday, the pastor was admitted to Lutheran Hospital, where he died at 2:30 a.m. Monday.

City officials and civic leaders throughout Fort Wayne mourned the loss of a man who spent more than half a century fighting racism.

Glynn Hines, Fort Wayne City Council’s only black member, said the Rev. White was an inspiration to activists, who likened his passing to a loss of the day’s philosophy. He promoted with his final sermon.

“That’s his spirit of can-do, and I think I included that on many young people who came through his congregation,” said Hines, who was baptized by the Rev. White in 1962.

A potent speaker and powerful singer, the Rev. White was a key member of Fort Wayne’s “old guard” civil rights leaders who organized marches and boycotts to raise awareness of inequality.

Even in recent years, his thick glasses and thick white sideburns could be spotted at rallies against crime on the city’s southeast side.

“He may have been pleased with the inches of progress, but he was looking for miles,” Hines said. “He always used to say, ‘You’ll know there’s not a need to fight when there’s not a need to fight.’ ”

The Rev. White was born in Natchez, Miss., in 1927. Traveling with a group of gospel singers, he first came to Fort Wayne in 1933. The next year, he made it his home.

He became pastor of Progressive Baptist Church in 1956 and married Ionie Grace Engleman in 1958. They had nine children.

He became a confidant of Jesse Jackson, whose presidential campaign in 1984 and 1988.

Both churches became major players on Fort Wayne’s civil rights front. Any friction between the two was forgotten, said Greater Progressive Pastor Terrance Jordan.

Jordan became pastor 16 years after the Rev. White’s resignation, and he was excited to take the chance to work alongside the Rev. White.

“There was no animosity between Dr. White and myself,” Jordan said. “I knew the Rev. White. When he came to Fort Wayne, I grew up in the home of a minister, and Jesse White was a household name.
The Rev. White became president of the local Council of Civic Action, brought Operation Bread-basket to Fort Wayne and was president of the local chapter of Jackson’s Operation P.U.S.H.

His first wife died in 1993, and he married Vanessa Atkins in 1995.

Funeral services will be 10 a.m. Saturday at True Love Baptist Church, 715 E. Wallace St. Calling will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday at Calvary Temple Worship Center, 1400 W. Washington Center Road.

A memorial service will be 5 to 8 p.m. Friday. He will be buried in Lindenwood Cemetery.

REV. JESSE WHITE REMEMBERED AS “DRUM MAJOR FOR JUSTICE”

(By Kevin Kilbane)

The Rev. Michael Latham remembers the phone calls.

When Latham first became a pastor 12 years ago, the Rev. Jesse White would call once a week to see how the younger man was doing.

At least once a month, White would call on Sunday morning to encourage Latham before the young man went off to lead Renaissance Missionary Baptist Church in worship.

White, the pastor of True Love Baptist Church, always ended the conversation with the words, “Preach good.”

“He was my mentor,” Latham said of White, 73, who died Monday after a short illness.

During nearly 50 years of ministry in Fort Wayne, friends and White showed the same concern for other young pastors, people in need and those facing racial discrimination.

“I guess you could call him a drum major for justice,” said Hana Stith, chairwoman of the African-American Historical Museum. “He really was.”

The funeral service for White will be 10 a.m. Saturday at True Love Baptist, 715 E. Wallace St. Calling will be 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Friday at Calvary Temple Worship Center, 1400 W. Washington Center Road.

A memorial service will be 5 to 8 p.m. Friday. He will be buried in Lindenwood Cemetery.

White, who moved to Fort Wayne in the early 1950s, first made an impact locally during the civil rights struggle of the late 1950s and early 1960s.

As president of the Civic Action Committee, he led other local African-American pastors in opening restaurants that had refused to serve minorities, recalled the Rev. James Bledsoe of St. John Missionary Baptist Church.

The committee intervened when companies refused to hire minorities or to treat them fairly, said Bledsoe, president of the local African-American pastors’ Inter-denominational Ministerial Alliance.

In addition, White and the committee led protests against racial segregation in the Fort Wayne Community Schools district.

In fall 1969, for example, the pastors organized a boycott that kept 1,300 children out of schools. Children attended “freedom schools” in the churches for nine days before FWCS agreed to provide the students with equal educational resources.

“He didn’t fear any retribution,” Stith said. “He just stepped up and did what was right.”

White also touched many lives through his dynamic preaching and as a mentor, clergy said.

First as pastor of Progressive Baptist Church from 1955 to 1974, and then as leader of True Love Baptist, which he founded in 1974, White was a frequent guest speaker at local pulpits.

“If anybody would call Dr. White to come and speak, he would never say no,” Latham said.

White’s preaching ability also frequently set up and preached at out-of-town crusades as part of his duties as chairman of the National Baptist Convention’s evangelistic board, Bledsoe said.

“I do a lot of traveling,” Bledsoe said, “and when I say I’m from Fort Wayne, they say, ‘Oh, you are from Jesse White’s town.’"

But despite a busy schedule, White was always willing to help with a community or personal need, said the Rev. Vernon Graham, executive pastor of Associated Churches of Fort Wayne and Allen County.

“He was like the tall oak tree,” Graham said. “He was one of the pastors the younger pastors would turn to for advice and counseling.”

Graham also frequently asked White’s help in planning or carrying out Associated churches’ projects. Those efforts have included establishing food banks and other programs to help the needy, and initiatives to heal racial division.

Through White’s work, Latham and other pastors noted, present generations enjoy the freedom and opportunities they have now.

“He was one of the ones who paved the way,” Latham said “I think what we are doing today is standing on his shoulders.”
SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Thursday, February 15, 2001 may be found in the Daily Digest of today’s RECORD.
