

unjust and unbalanced bankruptcy bill which is great for the big banks and the credit card companies and says nothing about their predatory lending practices. It requires no balance and no accountability on their part and says nothing about the way in which they continually push their credit cards on our children.

This legislation basically tears up the major safety net for middle-class—not just low-income—families to protect families from being put totally under and in economic bondage for the rest of their lives. That is what this bill does by setting up an onerous means test that will make it impossible for families to rebuild their lives.

I think my colleagues want to bring this up because they want to point to the differences between President George W. Bush and President Clinton because President Clinton vetoed this bill. I hope we can stop this bill, and, believe me, I will have many amendments and we will have much debate.

If, in fact, my colleagues want to point out the difference, I am glad to do so. I have been plenty critical of President Clinton in the last several weeks—there has been much to be critical of—but I want to point out to President Clinton: It is an honor to defend you on your veto of this bill.

President Clinton stood up for consumers. He stood up for low- and moderate-income families without a lot of clout in America; he stood up for working people; he stood up for civil rights; he stood up for communities of color. He basically stood up for them and ignored all of the lobbying, the political and economic clout of this financial services industry.

I will have a lot to say in this debate about their contributions and their role. He did the right thing. I am pleased to talk about the differences.

This bill comes to the floor negotiated by a relatively small number of Members. Until this year, this bankruptcy bill has never been on the floor of the Senate in an amendable fashion. I need to make that point tonight because we are going to go on this bill probably Wednesday afternoon.

The third point I want to make is, until the hearing was held by the Judiciary Committee on February 8, there had been no hearings on this legislation. In fact, the Senate has not conducted its own hearing on bankruptcy since 1998.

Here is my point: The first time in amendable form, harsh and unbalanced, unjust, and the financial services industry trying to jam this through.

I see no reason why we should not have extended debate on the Senate floor. Believe me, coming on the heels of this effort to undo 10 years of work on an ergonomics standard to protect people in the workplace, I, as a Senator from Minnesota, will be more than ready to have amendments and have debate.

One of the amendments on which I look forward to a vote will basically say: Before you say to people it is going to be impossible for you to file for chapter 7 and rebuild your lives, before you basically put people economically under for the rest of their lives with this very harsh and one-sided piece of legislation, at least in the case where people have had to file for bankruptcy because of a major medical bill, do not present them with this harsh means test. At least give people who went under because of a medical bill the opportunity to file chapter 7 the way they could before.

We will have a vote on that and a vote on many other amendments as well. That debate will start I suppose Wednesday afternoon.

What a week—it is not just this week; the debate will go on to next week. We have 2 weeks coming up that I think represent what the majority party is about, and I am sorry to say, because I like the Presiding Officer so much and it is not a personal argument, it is an institutional argument. I really believe this President and the majority party are going to do a great job representing the wealthy in America, a great job representing the financial services industry, a great job representing the insurance industry, a great job representing the oil companies, a great job representing the well-heeled, the well-financed, and the economically powerful.

The question most ordinary citizens in the country are asking is: Who will represent us? My hope is that the Democratic Party will do so.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now be in a period of morning business with Senators speaking for up to 10 minutes each.

FAREWELL TO GIGI LOPATTO

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, one of our dear staffers is present who has given a great deal of effort to the Judiciary Committee, and I want to pay her my respects for a few moments.

Today is Jeanne Lopatto's last day working in the Senate. She has worked on the Senate Judiciary Committee, and for me in particular, for the last 18 years and is currently press secretary for the full Judiciary Committee. It is with mixed emotions that I rise to thank her for all the good work she has performed in the past. I give her my best wishes for her future.

Gigi is a Capitol Hill success story. She began her career with me as an entry-level assistant, and she has moved up to spearhead the Judiciary Committee press operation, which is a big job and a very important one. As a result of her hard work and dedication, Gigi has earned the respect, admiration, and trust of all of us who have worked with her. Thus, it is with a certain degree of both sadness and pride that I am bidding her farewell.

Gigi will be joining our dear friend and former colleague, Spencer Abraham, at the Department of Energy as his spokesperson. In other words, she is going to be speaking for a Cabinet-level official. I think that is a great thing. Our loss—mine in particular—will be unquestionably Secretary Abraham's gain. I know she will have her hands full over there, but she is up to the challenge. If I might be so bold, I want to say that I share the pride of Gigi's great success with her wonderful family.

Gigi will be greatly missed here in the Senate, and certainly by me. I think she is going to be missed by the reporters and the press officials who have relied on her on a daily basis. Senate staff on both sides of the aisle are going to miss her, her friends and colleagues on the committee and on my personal staff, and, of course, most of all, I am going to miss her. So let me just say that I am very grateful to Gigi for the service she has given to the Senate and to our country at large and for working with us on the Judiciary Committee, as an essential part of the committee, as somebody who always acted with integrity, decency, honesty, love, and affection for all of us on the committee, regardless how cantankerous that committee is from time to time. She has had a steady hand on the tiller during a lot of really acrimonious debate at times, and she has really done this job as well as it could have been done. We love her, and we are going to miss her. We also wish her well as she proceeds on to even greater and better things, as she views it and as I view it.

So, Gigi, we are going to miss you. We all love you and appreciate you and want you to be successful in your next job, which I know you will be.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Vermont is recognized.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I join the Senator from Utah. We will now know anytime the Democrats are told they are not doing their job it will be coming straight from the Senator from Utah.

Senator Abraham is very fortunate to have her there. Senator Abraham is a good friend to all of us here, and she has been a good friend to all of us here. He is fortunate. I will do my best to fill in and help the chairman on some of these issues, especially as I know we can finish this bill in 2, 2½ days, so long as the leadership does not interrupt us for anything else.
