MIDEAST PEACE PROCESS MUST RESUME
(By U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter)

Escalating violence has deadened the Middle East peace process. As usual, all sides look to the United States to influence the parties to end the violence and resume the quest for peace.

In mid-April, at the request of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, I met with Palestinian Chairman Yasir Arafat in Cairo. When I arrived for our 10:30 p.m. meeting, Arafat said that as we spoke, Israeli helicopters and missiles were attacking Palestinians in Gaza. He did not mention that the Israeli action was in retaliation for mortars fired into Israel earlier that day.

Our discussion, which lasted until nearly midnight, was interrupted every few moments by aides bringing him the latest dispatch on the fighting. I told Arafat I was convinced Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon would not resume the peace process until the violence ended.

Since the sequence of events demonstrated that Israel was responding to Palestinian provocation, it was up to Arafat to demonstrate his best efforts to stop the violence. After all, it was Arafat's famous letter of Sept. 9, 1993, that induced then-Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres to shake Arafat's hand at their historic meeting with President Clinton on the White House lawn four days later. In that letter, Arafat renounced violence and promised to punish any Palestinian who violated that commitment.

Arafat responded that he had made an unequivocal declaration at the recent Arab summit. When his statement was examined, it was obvious it was so conditional as to be meaningless. I then asked Arafat why he had rejected former Prime Minister Ehud Barak's generous settlement offer on major concessions on Jerusalem and additional territory on the West Bank. Arafat said he had accepted the Barak proposal. Again, on examination, there were so many ifs, ands and buts that his response was meaningless. Our meeting ended with no realistic hope that any significant action could be expected from Arafat.

The situation was equally bleak when I traveled on to Beirut and Damascus. Hezbollah, backed by Iran and Syria, had continued to attack Israeli border settlements from Southern Lebanon, leading Israel to bomb Syrian radar. Beirut once touted as the Paris of the Middle East, has not recovered from Lebanon's civil war because of factional quarrels and Syria's continuing dominance of the country.

In Damascus, Syria's foreign minister Farouk Shara agreed with Sharon that Israeli-Syrian peace talks on the Golan Heights would be pointless at this time. Before President Hafez al-Assad's death, the parties had come very close to a settlement but were now back to square one.

Notwithstanding the bleak prospects, the Bush administration, aided by Congress, must push the parties back to the bargaining table. There is no doubt that the countries involved listen to Uncle Sam. When Secretary of State Colin Powell criticized Sharon's tough retaliation as "excessive and disproportionate," Israel modified its tactics.

Congress has spoken emphatically: 87 senators and 209 House members wrote on April 6 to the President calling for the closing of the Palestinian office in Washington if the Palestinians did not stop inciting violence. I have urged President Bush to appoint a special envoy for the Middle East just as President Richard Nixon used Henry Kissinger for shuttle diplomacy and Presidents Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush and Bill Clinton assigned envoys such as Dennis Ross to the peace process. President Bush may soon find it necessary to become personally involved like his predecessors.

The escalation of Israeli-Palestinian violence may encourage other terrorist groups, such as Hamas and Islamic Jihad, to attack not only Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, but also U.S. interests around the world. The peace process cannot be abandoned; one way or another, a way must be found for Israelis and Palestinians to live together on that tiny parcel of hallowed and historic land. Our vital national interests in the region make it imperative that the United States actively pursue a resumption of the Middle East peace process.

TRIBUTE TO BILLIE PENN

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize Billie Penn, a friend and member of my staff for the last 18 years. Billie is one of the most energetic, friendly and sweet people I know. Today this bundle of energy with a heart of gold is retiring.

Billie opened my Lawton office and has managed it for the last 18 years. As my field representative for Southwestern Oklahoma, she has worked diligently for the people of Beckham, Washita, Caddo, Greer, Kiowa, Harmon, Jackson, Tillman, Comanche, Cotton, Stephens, and Jefferson counties.

Billie's enthusiasm is contagious. I think we'll have to hire four or five people just to fill her spot. Besides working for me, Billie finds energy to golf with Bill, her husband of 41 years, visit her kids—William and Allison—and spoil her grandkids, Alisa, Skyler, Nathaniel and Ashlyn. She's active in Lawton's Chamber of Commerce, her church, Grace Fellowship, and probably any other cause that asks for a helping hand.

Today, there was a surprise retirement party for her that I'm sorry I could not attend. I can only imagine the numbers of people that showed up to celebrate the great job Billie has done. There is no one else like her and she will be missed.

Billie is a true friend and a real treasure. I am grateful for her outstanding service to the people of Oklahoma. We all have benefited from her hard work.

Today, I wish her all the best as she begins her retirement.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT
OF 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY last month. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

Today, Mr. President, I would like to detail a heinous crime that occurred July 29, 2000 in Mahwah, New Jersey. A man who allegedly attacked two men after calling them gay was arrested and charged with aggravated assault, bias harassment, and bias assault. Witnesses told police that the alleged perpetrator, William Courain, 26, was at an apartment complex party when he began making remarks to several of the guests about their sexual preferences. He left the party and confronted two men in the parking lot, making obscene comments about their sexual orientation, before attacking them. Witnesses say he began punching and kicking the two victims, one of whom suffered bleeding from the mouth and eyes and was treated at a local hospital. (The RECORD, August 1, 2000)

I believe that government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation, we can change hearts and minds as well.

JOINT TASK FORCE FULL ACCOUNTING

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, recently, in a remote area of Vietnam, a helicopter with 16 passengers and crew aboard went down in a central Vietnamese jungle. Vietnamese officials reported that there were no survivors. The passengers on this aircraft included seven American heroes. One of those heroes, I am sad to report, was from New Mexico, Major Charles Lewis II. Major Lewis was an Air Force ROTC graduate of Mayfield High School and New Mexico State University in Las Cruces, NM. He was an outstanding student and deeply committed to his country through his service with the Air Force. We are shocked and saddened at the loss of Major Lewis and these American heroes.

In connection with the recent "National Former Prisoner of War Recognition Day", I salute Major Lewis and his downed colleagues. Moreover, I salute the heroic contributions of all those who serve in the Joint Task Force Full Accounting, JTFFA, and the U.S. Army Central Identification Laboratory Hawaii, CILHI, whose noble mission is to resolve the cases of Americans still unaccounted for during America's wars. We especially honor the unsung victims of this tragic accident who were carrying out our nation's abiding commitment to account for and honor the lives of POW-MIAs lost in the conflict in Southeast Asia three decades ago. They were part of an advance team scheduled to begin recovery work at six MIA sites in Vietnam beginning this month.

Since 1973, the JTFFA and CILHI have conducted investigations and excavations that have accounted for 603 American POW-MIA personnel. Since 1985, with the full support of cooperative Vietnamese assistants, members of the Joint Task Force and the Central Identification Laboratory have undertaken the most challenging assignments to locate and identify former American prisoners of war or servicemen missing in action. Some excavations have consumed months of painstaking labor under very difficult conditions to retrieve the smallest items of evidence to help identify American casualties. Much of the work is done by hand in order not to disturb potential evidence. Our service personnel such as those who lost their lives last month have routinely exposed themselves to significant dangers in the quest for honoring our former POW-MIAs. Sadly, they lost their lives in their deeply patriotic quest.

I call on all Americans to pause and remember Major Lewis and the brave men and women of the Joint Task Force and Central Identification Laboratory who have given their lives in such a noble cause.

DEDICATION OF THE PAUL G. ROGERS PLAZA AT THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I rise today to honor and recognize the achievements of a distinguished Floridian and former congressman, the Honorable Paul Rogers. The National Institutes of Health is dedicating the Paul Rogers Plaza at Bethesda, MD on June 12, 2001 in recognition of his phenomenal efforts and ardent advocacy for public health and medical research.

Paul Rogers represented Florida's 11th District in the House of Representatives from 1956 to 1979, where he earned the distinguished and fitting title, "Mr. Health." During his twenty-four years of service in Congress and eight years as the Chairman of the House Subcommittee on Health and Environment, he consistently demonstrated his heartfelt commitment to improving medical care and technology and preserving our fragile environment. His extensive list of legislative accomplishments and contributions is too great to fully recount, but there are several legislative achievements that are particularly noteworthy. The National Cancer Act, the Clean Air Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act, and the Medicare-Medicaid Anti Fraud and Abuse Act are just a few of Paul Rogers' endeavors that continue to impact our nation today.

It is fitting that the National Institutes of Health has chosen to honor him with a permanent plaque at the Paul Rogers Plaza, as I am certain that the beneficial effect of his public service on the health of American people will continue to be felt for many years to come. Paul Rogers' foresight in the areas of medical research and environmental regulation brought about cutting edge policies that continue to protect Americans everyday. His prolific efforts helped bring these critical issues to the forefront of our nation's agenda.

As we continue to debate and develop new legislation aimed at improving the health of Americans and our environment, we should take a moment to consider and thank the men and women, like "Mr. Health," who initiated this crusade. I am extremely pleased that Paul Rogers' tireless efforts are being duly recognized by the National Institutes of Health.

U.S. POLICY TO CHINA AND TAIWAN

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, these past few weeks have been eventful ones in our relationship with China.

President Bush announced a robust arms sale package for Taiwan. It included several major weapons systems and, of greater long-term significance, it provides for increased cooperation and coordination between our two military forces. He also announced the end of the annual review of arms needs, putting our support for Taiwan's defense on a more regular and less political setting.

We secured the release of our reconnaissance plan's crew that was being held on Hainan Island. Subsequently, there were several important, albeit inconclusive, meetings with Chinese representatives about the return of the plane and about establishing future rules of engagement to ensure that there will not be a repeat of this irresponsible Chinese action.

President Bush made a potentially dangerous gaffe in an interview where he seemed to reverse precipitously a two decade old policy that has resulted in relative stability across the Taiwan Strait. I believe that the trilateral relationship among the PRC, Taiwan, and the United States, and the "One China" policy must adapt and evolve. But change must be made with extreme care.

The United States approved a visa for former Taiwan president Lee Teng-hui to visit for a month, and we have agreed to issue a transit visa for current Taiwan President Chen Shui-bian, although the conditions set on President Chen's visit are still under negotiations.

China continues to hold as a prisoner Gao Zhan, an innocent scholar who is a permanent resident of our country with a U.S. citizen husband and son. They also hold several other American citizens of Chinese origin.

Some of these developments are infuriating and frustrating. After our plane was downed, some in Congress called for revenge, retaliation, and retribution. Proposals include that congress reverse its approval of PNTR, Permanent Normal Trade Relations, for China; that the United States oppose holding the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing; and that we reduce or cease military-to-military relations with China.

Our long-term interests with China require a carefully measured course of action. We cannot allow emotion to obscure our policy objectives. And we cannot determine China policy based on vague ideological images.

Like all Americans, I am outraged by the behavior of the Chinese Government in holding the crew of our reconnaissance plane and demanding an American apology, when the blame was so clearly with a reckless Chinese pilot following reckless orders.

I congratulate President Bush on his handling of the first foreign policy crisis of this administration. He kept emotions in check. He rejected the advice of those who wanted to take precipitous action. He secured the safe release of our crew without giving China the kowtowing apology they demanded.

President Bush's decision last week on which defense items to transfer to Taiwan was also responsible and correct. It will provide Taiwan with the hardware and the "humanware" it needs to defend itself, while avoiding actions that would have been unnecessarily provocative vis-a-vis China. Unfortunately, he followed this measured decision with a "shoot from the hip" comment on a possible U.S. response to Chinese military action against Taiwan. That remark has created unnecessary confusion uncertainty, and potential instability across the Taiwan Strait.

We need to look at what is good for U.S. interests, not what is bad for China. There is no room for emotion as we defined the relationship we want with China and determine how to move them in the right direction.

Last year Congress approved, by a wide margin, legislation granting Permanent Normal Trade Relations status to China once they join the World Trade Organization. The benefits of incorporating China into the world trade community were clear.

American farmers, businesses, and workers would be well served by a growing and liberalized economy in China. Economic growth in China would, over the long term, lead to a larger middle class making its own demands on the government for greater accountability and personal choice, just as happened in South Korea and Taiwan. Membership in the WTO would bring international disciplines to the Chinese economy. And the reformers, led by Premier Zhu Rongji, would be strengthened.

The events of the last few weeks have not changed this calculation. If anything, nurturing growth in our economic and trade relationship with China is more important than ever.

Let's be clear about what happened in China while our crew was detained on Hainan Island.

The delay in releasing our crew members was a reflection of a monumental struggle for China's future between reformers led by Premier Zhu Rongji and President Jian Zemin, on one side, and the old guard, including the People's Liberation Army, the managers of most state-owned enterprises, and many entrenched politicians, on the
