PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I would like to speak today about the Patients’ Bill of Rights, the Bipartisan Patient Protection Act, which we are going to be turning to beginning tomorrow morning in the Senate. debate revolves around the development of for-profit health care and the growth of big managed care organizations and what has meant to patients and people around this country who seek medical help. For some 4 years now, we have been discussing what has been happening with the explosion of HMOs in our health care system.

All of us understand the basics of medicine. That is, we understand that if you have a medical affliction, you need to see someone who is trained in the field of medicine. Often, they perform certain tests, and if you have an acute problem, often they check you into a hospital to get the needed treatment in those circumstances.

But things have changed in recent years in this country. The emergence of for-profit managed care organizations that are now in charge of health care for a good many Americans has changed the delivery of health care. The delivery of health care to individual patients now does not just involve the delivery of health care advice from a doctor to a patient in an examining room. It is more than that. In some cases, we have been observing in an insurance company office 1,000 miles away perhaps, who is making a decision about what medical care they will cover and what they will not cover with respect to this particular patient.

In many cases, Congress is told to get a great deal of mail from patients saying: I had a health care plan only to discover that, when I became very sick and needed the benefits of that plan, those benefits were not available to me. In only cases I required as a patient to fight a battle with cancer, I was also required, they write, to fight a battle with cancer and then a battle with my managed care organization to give me the treatment I needed.

Our Patients’ Bill of Rights says: We have before us a bipartisan Patients’ Bill of Rights, or Bi-partisan Patient Protection Act. Yes, it is bipartisan. Democrats and Republicans are together bringing a bill to the floor of the Senate, saying we need to change what is happening in the delivery of health care in a way that provides fundamental rights to patients.

Let me describe some of those rights. Patients ought to have the right to know all of their medical options for treatment, not just the cheapest medical option. Second, a patient ought to have the right to medically necessary care without some arbitrary interference by an HMO or a managed care organization. Doctors often treat patients, not health plan executives, ought to determine the care that is needed.

Patients ought to have the right to choose the doctor they want for the care they need, including especially specialty care.

Patients ought to have the right to emergency room care when they have an emergency.

A patient ought to have the right to have access to prescription medicine that the doctors say are medically necessary for the patient.

You ought to have the right to a fair and speedy process for resulting disputes with your health care plan or your managed care organization.

And, finally, you ought to have the right to hold that managed care organization accountable if its decision results in injury or even death.

As this debate gets underway, we will hear a lot of things about this bill. We will hear that this is “a trial lawyer’s bill of rights.” God forbid, they will say, that we should give patients the right to go to an attorney and seek redress against a managed care organization that didn’t do right by them.

I find this a fascinating description of this bill. I will talk a bit more about it later. But those who will come to the floor of the Senate and talk about their concern about lawyers being involved are concerned only for one side. They say: We don’t want patients to have the ability to go to a lawyer to get compensation for bad managed care organizations give them the care they need and the care they thought was guaranteed to them; let’s not allow patients to have a lawyer.

They don’t say anything about the managed care organizations. Those big organizations have all kinds of lawyers working for them. If a patient doesn’t pay a bill, or a monthly premium, guess what? The managed care organization can certainly go a hire a lawyer. That is their right. They can hire lawyers with whom to pursue their objectives.

Those who oppose this legislation say the patient ought not have the right to seek redress. I would like to go through a few examples today and draw some conclusions. As I do that, I would like to point out that these examples are real people. I have used some of them before, and some are new. But let me describe the problems we are trying to address with this legislation through the patients and the difficulties these patients have been forced to go through in order to get the medical help they thought they were going to get under their managed care plan.

Let me take James Adams. Let me take Jacqueline Lee. Let me take a young fellow tugging on his sister’s shirt sleeve to get her attention. He lost both of his hands and legs.

James Adams is now 7 years old. Before Congress began to debate with another person who was dealing with another person who was dealing with another person who was dealing with another person who was dealing with another person. His worried mother called the HMO. The nurse on duty recommended bathing this young fellow in cold water. The pediatrician then placed a follow-up call advising the parents to bring James to an HMO participating hospital. But even though there were 3 hospitals within 42 miles away, this young boy suffered full cardiac and respiratory arrest and lost the use of his legs.

On the way to the furthest hospital, which was the HMO hospital 42 miles away, this young boy suffered full cardiac and respiratory arrest and lost the use of his legs. The HMO reassigned three hospital emergency rooms before they could finally reach the HMO hospital, which is where they would have coverage, according to their HMO.

Upon James’ arrival, doctors were able to return his pulse and breathing. But the circulation to his hands and feet had been cut off and could not be returned, causing irreparable damage to his extremities. The result? Both of his hands and feet had to be amputated.

But it does not stop there. In this situation he will have to live with for all of his life. The delay in care caused by driving almost an hour to an affiliated hospital took its toll.

Let me describe another story, dealing with another person who was dealing with another person who was dealing with another person who was dealing with another person who was dealing with another person. Jacqueline Lee lives in Bethesda, Maryland. A lover of the outdoors, she took a trip to hike in the Shenandoah Mountains in the summer of 1996.

Amazingly, she survived the fall, sustaining fractures in her arms, pelvis, and her skull.

After she survived and went through a convalescence, her HMO refused to pay more than $10,000 in emergency room bills because it said this woman who was brought into an emergency room on a gurney, unconscious, did not get preapproval for using emergency room services.

Because an unconscious patient falling off a 40-foot cliff, suffering substantial injuries, did not get preapproval, the managed care organization said it would not pay the emergency room bills. This is an example of emergency room care that is needed by a patient who had protection under her health insurance policy. That is the way some HMOs work. Any emergency room ought to be available to this young fellow in an emergency.

Let's not have more delay and all kinds of shenanigans by the managed care organization to see how it can withhold treatment. Let's say that if you have an emergency and you are covered by a managed care plan, you deserve the right to be treated at an emergency room. It ought to be true for Jacqueline Lee. It ought to be true for James Adams. It ought to be true for every patient covered under a plan who needs emergency room treatment. Let me describe the situation of Ethan Bedrick. I have spoken of Ethan before.

The reviewing doctor never met with the family and never met with this young boy, Ethan. He simply said: Only a 56 percent chance of being able to walk by age 5 is a "minimal benefit" and therefore his insurance company would not continue the therapy.

Ethan Bedrick was born on January 28, 1992. His delivery went badly, and as a result of asphyxiation, he has suffered from severe cerebral palsy and spastic quadriplegia, which impairs motor functions in all his limbs. Ethan was put on a regimen of intense physical, occupational and speech therapy to help him overcome some obstacles throughout his development.

At the age of 14 months, Ethan's insurance company abruptly cut off coverage for his speech therapy, and limited this physical therapy to only 15 sessions per year. This change was recommended by an insurer's doctor who performed a "utilization review" of Ethan's case. The reviewing doctor cited a 50 percent chance that Ethan could walk by age 5 as a "minimal benefit" of further therapy.

Ethan's parents appealed to the courts. The courts said:
The child does not have to be better as it is to be treated. The implication that walking by age 5... would not be significant progress for this unfortunate child is simply revolting.

Unfortunately, during the time of court action, Ethan lost three years of vital therapy. And even then, the Bedricks were left with no remedy for Jacqueline Lee. It ought to be true for James Adams. It ought to be true for every patient covered under a plan who needs emergency room treatment.

The health plan denied treatment saying, no, this drug is experimental, even though it wouldn't have had to pay for the drug itself, only the blood draws, physician visits, and blood products it would have paid for had he received the experimental drug.

Chris's family immediately appealed. The review, which was supposed to have taken 48 hours, took 10 days. Meanwhile, as the appeal dragged on, Christopher's condition worsened, and he was left with no choice but to start Christopher on the more traditional chemotherapy. But that did not work.

The National Bone Marrow Donor Program found six perfect matches for this young boy, which was almost unheard of. Unfortunately, he was never able to make it to a bone marrow transplant because he was never able to achieve the second remission without the drug he needed in order to do that. At a hearing that I held with my colleague, Senator Reid, his mother Susan stood up and held this picture of young Christopher above her head, and she began crying as she described her son's death. She said: My son was 16 years of age. And at the time of his death, she said: Mom, I just don't understand how they could do this to a kid.

This mother felt that her son deserved every opportunity, deserved a fighting chance against his disease. What she said was: My son and our family had to fight the cancer and fight the managed care organization at the same time, and that is not fair.

She is right about that. We ought not have to fight the cancer and the managed care organization. The legislation that says to them and others like them: You have certain rights as patients. Right now the odds are stacked against you and they have all the money and all the lawyers; and we have the patients over here who, alone with their families, are left to fight the battle.

We had a hearing in Washington, DC, about a year ago. A mother from New York came to that hearing. Mary Lewandowski was her name. I will never forget her because she came up to me after the hearing and gave me a big hug, and we talked about her daughter Donna Marie. Donna Marie died February 8, 1997. Her mother Mary has made it a cause to try to see if she can prevent from happening to others what happened to her child. Mary came to Congress at her own expense. Nobody pays her way here. Every chance she gets, she comes to talk about her daughter.

The week of her daughter Donna's death, she had been to a doctor four times in 5 days. Despite her worsening symptoms, this young girl was told that she had an upper respiratory infection, and she had panic attacks, her doctor said. She was 22 years old. On the morning of February 8, Donna was in a tremendous amount of pain. Her mother called the hospital, and was told she could not bring her daughter to the hospital unless it was a life-or-death situation, or unless she had a doctor's referral.

Mary tried in vain to reach Donna's doctor. One hour later, Donna lapsed into a coma and died. She died from a blood clot on her lung, the size of a football.

Donna's doctor later told her mother that a $750 lung scan might well have saved her daughter's life. But the test was not performed because it could not be justified to the HMO or the managed care organization.

Now I would like to turn, just for a moment, to a couple of other issues in this debate. The question of whether care is medically necessary is often cited as a reason for lack of treatment by the managed care organizations.

This is a picture of a young baby born with a horrible problem, a cleft upper lip: A terrible disfigurement. Surgeons tell me that—in fact, one Member of Congress, who is an oral surgeon, confirms this—it is not unusual at all to be told that fixing this is not medically necessary and, therefore, the health care plan will not cover it. It is not medically necessary to fix this. Can you imagine being told that as a parent?

Let me show you a picture of what it looks like when you fix this problem. This picture shows what that young child can look like when that problem is fixed.

After looking at the results, can one really say it is not medically necessary to fix this? This legislation begins to define what the rights of patients are with respect to what is medically necessary.

Is it necessary for us to pass this legislation? In the name of all of these children, in the name of these patients and in the name of these people who have to fight the disown end and the managed care organizations at the same time, the answer clearly is yes. We ought to give them those opportunities. And those opportunities exist in this legislation.
But I do know this: This debate has gone on for nearly 4 years now. This is an iteration of an iteration of an iteration. It is a compromise after a compromise after a compromise. It is a bipartisan bill brought to the Senate Chamber to say: Let us provide patient protections for the HMOs that want to withhold needed treatments for patients. Let’s change the odds.

Let me hasten to say, not all insurance companies or HMOs are bad actors. Many of them are wonderful, and do a great job, and serve their patients very well. I commend them.

There are some, however, who look at a patient in the context of profit and loss. A woman in the State of Georgia suffered a very severe head injury. She was put in an ambulance, and on the way to a hospital—she was not quite unconscious—she had the presence of mind to tell the ambulance driver: I want to go to the following hospital. And it was the fastest hospital away, about 15 minutes. They took her there, but later they asked her why, with a brain injury, she would want to take the extra 10 minutes to go to a further hospital. She said: I know about the hospital that was closer. It is a hospital with a reputation for taking a look at a patient who is coming in and seeing the dollars and cents, the profit and loss. I didn’t want my medical care to be the function of someone else’s calculation of profit and loss.

This is from a woman in an ambulance with a brain injury. My point is very simple. This country needs to have some basic protections for patients, and the patients want those protections. Especially with the growth of managed care organizations, many of whom do a fine job, but some of whom do not, we need these protections.

We need to say, as a matter of public policy in this country, patients have certain rights. Yes, you have a right to know all of your options for medical treatment, not just the cheapest one the managed care organization might want to tell you about.

Yes, you have a right to an emergency room when you have an emergency. Yes, you have a right to be able to see the specialist you need when you need to see one. Yes, you have a right, if your spouse is being treated for breast cancer and you have changed jobs, to see that same oncologist who has been working with her for the last 5 years to fight her breast cancer. You ought to have that right, and this legislation will give you that right.

We will have Senators who will assert that this is a bill about trying to create more lawsuits. It is not that at all. It is about trying to provide patient protections. As I said when I started, the managed care organizations have all the lawyers they need. They hire all the lawyers they need and want unimpeded. No one is going to come to the Chamber from the other side and talk about limiting the rights of the big managed care organizations or insurers to hire lawyers, are they? I don’t think so. But they will say: We don’t want patients to have access to attorneys to hold managed care organizations accountable.

This is about accountability. The Red Cross can be held accountable. Boy Scouts can be held accountable. Everybody can be held accountable except, in these circumstances, managed care organizations. This piece of legislation says everybody ought to be held accountable.

This is not about lawyers, this is about getting the right care to patients when they need it.

I suspect we will debate this for a couple of weeks. We have had this debate before. This legislation has changed from that time. For example, we hear from small businesses, who are now getting mailings around the country, saying: If Congress passes this Patient’s Bill of Rights, this is going to be breakthrough legislation because we will be held accountable. That is not true. In fact, this has changed so that we use exactly the same language the majority party used in its substitute in 1999. This bill isn’t in any way putting in jeopardy our businesses. We don’t hold them accountable. They are not accountable at all in circumstances where they have not had direct participation in making decisions about patient care. They are not accountable in that circumstance and should not be accountable because they were not making the decision.

This is about managed care organizations and patients and the relationship between the two and the rights patients ought to have.

I have other pictures. I have other stories. I will at some point later describe more of them in terms of what is “medically necessary” because by deciding what is medically necessary is another very important way in which HMOs can withhold treatment.

I am going to show a poster on the issue of medical necessity that is a little more subtle than perhaps the other one I used but just as important. Brenda Nay was born in 1987. She has abnormal facial features characteristic of what is called Hajdu-Cheney syndrome. The shape of her skull is distorted. She had no chin. The question is, is it medically necessary to treat this young lady?

Let me show the result after surgery. They built this young woman a chin. After surgery, does that improve that woman’s life? Is this something you ought to expect would be covered in a health plan? In my judgment, it should.

I have other pictures that are similar. I will use them later.

This “medically necessary” issue is critically important. I feel passionate about these health care issues. I have lost a member of my family. I have sat in intensive care day after day after day and know what it is like to lose a member of my family in a circumstance I can hardly begin to describe. In my case, my loss didn’t have anything to do with the managed care organization withholding treatment. But I understand the passion of patients. I understand the passion of people who are fighting for their lives, who are struggling and fighting mightily against dread diseases and illnesses they know can kill them and then discover they not only have to waste the emotional energy to wage war against cancer or heart disease or so many other problems, but they have to try at the same time to fight a managed care organization that ought to be covering that which is in their health care plan.

That is not right. That is not fair. These are the types of problems this piece of legislation is designed to try to address. If we can pass this legislation, the country will be a significant step ahead in dealing with patients’ needs and protections.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN assumed the chair.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DAYTON). Without objection, it is so ordered.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

HONORING COLONEL JAMES GARRARD JONES, FIRST MAYOR OF EVANSVILLE

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise today to honor a true pioneer in public service, Colonel James Garrard Jones.

Colonel Jones was born in Paris, KY on July 3, 1814, but soon became a resident of the great State of Indiana when his family moved there in 1819. This move was Indiana’s good fortune, for it did not take long for Colonel Jones to become involved in public life.

The young Colonel Jones served as Surveyor and Deputy Recorder of Vanderburgh County, leaving a lasting mark as the county’s early field notes and books of deeds and mortgages appear in his handwriting. He went on to serve as Evansville Trustee and Evansville Attorney under the town corporation. In 1847, Colonel Jones’s efforts in the establishment of a city government culminated with his election as first Mayor of Evansville. He won reelection as Mayor in 1850.

Colonel Jones took his service to the State level with his election as Attorney General of Indiana in 1860. But shortly thereafter he was appointed Colonel of the Forty-Second Regiment of the Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and he left office to serve with the regiment.

After hostilities ended, Colonel Jones practiced law until Governor Baker appointed him to his final position of public service in 1869 as Judge of the Fifty-first Judicial Circuit.

Colonel Jones passed away on April 5, 1872. This public servant, husband, and father to eight children is remembered not only for his public service, but also for his intelligence, kindness, and geniality.

On June 23, 2001, the descendants of Colonel Jones, the current Mayor of Evansville, IN, Russell Lloyd Jr., the Friends of the Forty-Second Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and others will gather to remember Colonel Jones with the placement of a new bronze marker at his grave site in the Oak Hill Cemetery in Evansville. I am pleased to join them in honoring this fine man who contributed greatly to Evansville, the state of Indiana, and our nation.

CONGRATULATING SHIRLEY M. CALDWell TILGHMAN
• Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate Shirley Tilghman on becoming the 19th President of Princeton University. Dr. Tilghman comes to this revered post eminently qualified, having previously served as an exceptional teacher and a world renowned scholar.

Dr. Tilghman has been a valuable member of the Princeton faculty for many years. While at Princeton in 1986, she served as the Howard A. Prior Professor of the Life Sciences. She has also served as the chair of Princeton’s Council on Science and Technology from 1996 through 2000, and in 1998 undertook the responsibilities of founding director for Princeton’s multi-disciplinary Lewis-Sigler Institute for Integrative Genomics. The founding of the Lewis-Sigler Institute grew out of Dr. Tilghman’s role as one of the architects of the national effort to map the human genome.

Harold R. McAllindon once said, “Do not follow where the path may lead. Go instead where there is no path and leave a trail.” I am confident that based on Dr. Tilghman’s wealth of experience and interests, she will continue in this spirit as she guides Princeton University. I wish her all the best.

TRIBUTE TO KATHLEEN MOORE
• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Kathleen Moore of Goffstown, NH, for her act of heroism. I commend her for the act of risking her own life to save the life of a fellow citizen.

While returning home after babysitting for children of a friend, Kathleen spotted a burning automobile that had crashed into a tree. Alarmed by the sound of banging from inside the vehicle, Kathleen, a postal employee, risked her life while aiding Mark Renaud, of Barnstead, NH, who was trapped underneath the burning car. Kathleen and a daughter and a son in an automobile accident 12 years earlier, heroically pulled Mark Renaud out of the flaming inferno that had consumed the car. Thanks to the selfless actions of Kathleen, Mark is alive today.

Kathleen Moore is a role model for the citizens of Goffstown, our State and country. I applaud her act of heroism and charity. It is an honor and a privilege to represent her in the United States Senate.

CONGRATULATING THE MERCK INSTITUTE OF AGING & HEALTH
• Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate the Merck Institute of Aging & Health and its executive director, Dr. Patricia Barry, on its public introduction today.

As the baby boom becomes the senior boom, the number of Americans over 65 will double within the next 30 years to 70 million. This significant increase in the life span means that we must find ways to increase the health span, or America will grow sicker as it grows older.

Located in Washington, DC, the Merck Institute of Aging & Health is a new nonprofit organization established to help increase the health span by promoting active aging. Funded by the respected Merck Company Foundation of White House Station, NJ, the new institute is specifically dedicated to improving the health, independence, and quality of life of older people around the world. It will fulfill this mission by communicating vital health information, educating the public and health professionals about healthy aging, and encouraging research in the aging field.

As more individuals start to enjoy longer lives, they also need to enjoy better lives. They need to learn how to age without losing independence, and they need to make active aging transformed into reality. This is both the challenge and charge of the new institute, and I have every confidence that its director and staff will meet that challenge and help the public, professionals, and policymakers face the critical issue of active aging in the 21st century. In the process, I know that this institute will help prove, in the words of Dr. Barry, that “Aging should not be seen as an obstacle, but as an opportunity.”

Again, I congratulate the Merck Institute of Aging & Health on its public introduction, and I wish it continued success throughout the coming years.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2001
• Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY last month. The Local law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation, and I am pleased to join them in honoring this selfless actions of Kathleen, Mark is alive today.

Kathleen Moore is a role model for the citizens of Goffstown, our State and country. I applaud her act of heroism and charity. It is an honor and a privilege to represent her in the United States Senate.

SPEARFISH HIGH SCHOOL “WE THE PEOPLE . . . THE CITIZEN AND THE CONSTITUTION” FINALISTS
• Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I rise today to publicly commend an excellent group of students from Spearfish High School in Spearfish, SD. This class of 23 government students performed extraordinarily well at the Center for Civic Education’s “We the People . . . The Citizen and the Constitution” national finals held in Washington, D.C. The Spearfish High School class competed with 49 other government classes from around the country, and I applaud these students for their outstanding performance and for their dedication and commitment to studying the U.S. government.

“We the People . . . The Citizen and the Nation,” is an outstanding program directed by the Center for Civic Education and funded by the United States Department of Education by an act of Congress. The program’s goal is to create an enlightened citizenry that is well-versed on the principles and virtues of America’s constitutional democracy. To help meet this goal, students take part in an instructional curriculum that culminates with a simulated congressional hearing that tests students’ knowledge and understanding of the role and principles of American government.

Spearfish, SD is a wonderful town located in the northern part of the Black Hills, home to Mt. Rushmore, Crazy Horse monument, and other beautiful landscapes and landmarks. I am proud that these students from Spearfish serve as such excellent representatives of our great State of South Dakota. I commend them for their talent and their commitment to learning about our Nation’s system of government.

Mr. Patrick Ganey deserves special recognition for his role in this accomplishment. As the teacher of this class, he both taught and inspired these students, while leading them to the national finals competition. I also acknowledge State Coordinator Lennis Larson, and District Coordinator Mark Rockafellow for helping to facilitate this event for these students.

I am proud that South Dakota is home to such outstanding students, whose desire and commitment to studying our constitutional government is clearly evident from this achievement. I thank you, for allowing me time to share this outstanding accomplishment with my Senate colleagues. Their performance in this national competition not only makes all of South Dakota proud, but also serves as a model for other talented and motivated students throughout our state to emulate.

NOTICE OF HEARING
PERMANENT SUBCOMMITTEE ON INVESTIGATIONS
Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I would like to announce for the information of the Senate and the public that the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Committee on Governmental Affairs will hold hearings entitled “Diabetes: Is Sufficient Funding Being Allocated To Fight This Disease.” The upcoming hearings will examine whether sufficient Federal funding is being allocated to fight diabetes. The subcommittee intends to hear from children suffering from the disease, celebrities affected by diabetes, scientists, and business leaders who will explain the toll that this disease has on individuals who suffer from it, its impact on society, and current research opportunities to find a cure. The hearing will be held in conjunction with the second Juvenile Diabetes Foundation Children’s Congress.

The hearing will take place on Tuesday, June 26, 2001, at 10 a.m., in room 216 of the Hart Senate Office Building. For further information, please contact Claire Barnard of the subcommittee’s minority staff at 224-5721.
changes have been made because that will determine what first amendments might be offered or what the tone of the debate will be as we open this legislation. I am sure we are going to be able to go to the Patients’ Bill of Rights in a reasonable period of time, but at this time have been asked to object. So I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Warner). Objection is heard.

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I say before my friend leaves that we have copies of the law. We will be happy to let anyone who wants look at it. I hope, as the minority leader indicated, that we can move to this bill tomorrow. If not, of course, there are other procedural things we can do to get to it eventually.

I have spent time with Senator Gregg in recent weeks, and he is a pleasant man to be with. I know Senator Frist is well advised about this legislation. This has been going on for years, and we hope we can finally dispose of it once for all. I hope the other men are happy to let anyone who wants to listen. I hope, as the minority leader indicated, that we can move to this bill tomorrow. If not, of course, there are other procedural things we can do to get to it eventually.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 19, 2001

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 10 a.m., Tuesday, June 19. I further ask consent that on Tuesday, immediately following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate begin a period for morning business at 11:30 a.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the following exceptions: Senator Kyl from 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.; Senator Brownback from 10:30 a.m. to 10:40 a.m.; Senator Duren, or his designee, from 10:45 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., with Senator Hollings in control of 10 minutes of Senator Durbin’s time.

Further, I ask unanimous consent that tomorrow, after the morning business hour has expired, the Senate be in recess from 12:30 p.m. until 2:15 p.m. for the weekly party conferences.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that following the remarks of Senators Spector, Kennedy, and Helms, the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Spector. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. Kennedy. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HEALTH CARE

Mr. Kennedy. Mr. President, tomorrow I am very hopeful we will at long last have the opportunity to consider, again, legislation to protect American patients from HMO abuses. Across the country, we have seen abuses as a result of HMOs interfering with the decisions daily by doctors, nurses, and family physicians. Health care professionals are seeing their decisions overruled by HMO accountants who, in many instances, are many miles away. These accountants do not have the experience of the doctors and nurses initially making that judgment and decision have received. They are not seeing the patient and are more interested in the bottom line for the HMO rather than the good outcome for the patient.

This legislation has been out there for nearly 5 years. During that period of time, we have had some debate. We have had some votes in the Senate, but it seems to me we now have a chance to finally get the protections they want and deserve.

I will take a few moments this afternoon to review, once again, what this legislation is about. This legislation recognizes that managed care too often means “mismanaged” care. We have the opportunity to change that. We should change it and establish a minimum standard of quality care. If individual States want to build on those standards, that should be the decision for the States, but we ought to establish a minimum standard. That is what this legislation, before the Senate tomorrow, will do.

This legislation basically incorporates the protections which are already in effect in the Medicare and Medicaid programs. Many of the protections included in this bill have been recommended by insurance commissioners who are not Democrats or Republicans. Actually, if you looked, there are probably more Republicans than Democrats among this group. A few days ago, the Senate passed the Patients’ Bill of Rights, 63-37, and the result of the unanimous bipartisan commission, set up 3 years ago, that made a series of recommendations. The protections included here reflect a unanimous vote by the commission.

I will review them quickly. It is important we understand the introduced proposal now known as the McCain-Edwards legislation. I am a strong supporter of Senator Duren. He is a strong supporter of Senator Durbin. He is a strong supporter, as well as others. Over the weekend, more than 44 State medical societies wrote their Senators indicating their strong support for this legislation. As of this afternoon, more than 600 health organizations from across the country support the McCain-Edwards legislation.

I would be surprised if the other side can find about 15 supportive organizations. Virtually every medical community—not only the professional doctors, nurses, consumers, but the advocates—understand the importance of this legislation and support it, along with the senior organizations. The disability community understands this legislation. This bill provides care for children and others that have special needs as a result of their condition. Virtually every health organization supports it. This bill has bipartisan support.

Sixty-three Republicans effectively supported this legislation in the House of Representatives, and it has bipartisan support in the Senate. I daresay if one asks Republicans or Independents across the country—whether in the upper parts of the State of Maine, southern Florida, California, or the State of Washington—this bill has common interest and common concern across the Nation. The issues we deal with in the Senate have support only in one region of the country among one particular group, and they usually face strong opposition in other parts of the country.

The principal opposition—the singular opposition—is the insurance companies and the HMOs. If one looks at the breadth of support on our side, it is not just the bipartisan membership bringing this and supporting this, Republicans and Democrats. Dr. Norwood in the House of Representatives, Congressman Ganske, and others in the House of Representatives—along with Congressman Dingell support the bill. In the Senate, we have Senator McCoy, Senator Durbin and others, including Senator Spector, who is on the floor at this time, and other Members who support this concept.

It is understandable because this bill has compelling reason for protections. They are commonsense protections. First, we want to protect all patients. That is very fundamental and important. We don’t want legislation that allows coverage for all, but creates sufficient loopholes so large numbers of our American families will not be covered. President Bush has recognized this principle. He wants to make sure all families and all patients will be covered.

Let’s talk about access to specialists. It includes out-of-network service. I can remember in my own family situation, my son Teddy was 12 years old, and he had a particular type of cancer—Osteosarcoma. About 1,500 children have this kind of cancer every year. It took a child pediatric oncologist who could understand his real needs and was able to make the recommendations for treatment of that particular case. I want to make sure if other families have either children or loved ones who need the kind of specialty care that is outside of the network, then they will be able to access the best of the specialty’s trained medical professional. We want to make sure it is guaranteed. In too many instances today, it is not guaranteed.

We want to make assure care coordination and standing referrals. This is especially important for individuals who have a disability, so they don’t have to go back every single time to their primary care physician for a referral. We need care coordination and protections particularly because some patients have complicated, involved health care needs or disabilities. This is enormously important. It is a feature the disability community cares so much about. It makes sense and provides savings for resources.

Next, this bill protects coverage for clinical trials. We heard from Senator Grassley on this issue in the Senate not along ago. We did not guarantee access to clinical trials. There is a decline in the number of clinical trials at the present time. Even if we were supporting dramatic increases in the NIH budget, and at the time of the century that we will see the greatest progress in the life sciences that we have ever seen.

As the previous century was the age of engineering, chemistry, and physics, this is the century of the life sciences. When we pick up a newspaper each day, we find that new breakthroughs are taking place. The only way we can get the breakthroughs from the laboratory to the bedside is through clinical trials. We have to make sure we encourage clinical trials. We are seeing a decline in the number of clinical trials because the industry will not continue to support these programs.

We will have a chance to get into this in greater detail. Obviously, when we debate clinical trials, the additional kinds of health care costs that are entailed should be covered by the clinical trials. But there should be basic coverage for that individual who is a health care need that should be continued by the insurance company.

It is always amazing to me why insurance companies or HMOs will not support it. If the person gets better as a result of the clinical trial, it is going to save the health plan resources, and it is not going to put them at greater risk.

Next, coverage for emergency care. In too many instances, if patients go to another emergency room or another emergency care facility or hospital, the HMO will not cover it. That makes absolutely no sense.

Direct access to OB/GYN providers and pediatricians is enormously important. It is an issue that is of primary concern to women, so they can have the OB/GYN as their primary care doctors. Certainly for primary care physicians, the need for pediatricians for children is sought to be very clear and supported.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair wishes to advise the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts that the standing order of the day is limiting Members to 10 minutes during this period of morning business.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I see my friend from Pennsylvania. Could I go for 10 more minutes? I ask unanimous consent for 10 more minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Hearing no objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. We want to make sure the patients receive the prescription drugs that their doctors prescribe. This is not always the case. It is difficult but that it is not the case in too many HMOs.

The list goes on. This bill prohibits clauses which frequently gag medical professionals and doctors from recommending what is best for patients. This bill also prohibits financial incentives to deny care.

It is difficult for most of us to believe what exists in many HMO contracts at this time. Many have major financial incentives for doctors—if they do not prescribe in a certain way, they can enhance their financial situation. Any legislation ought to have that particular protection, as well as protections for the providers who advocate for patients.

We want to make sure we have a good internal appeals process conducted in a timely way. So if there is a question of getting the treatment, it is done in a timely way. We also need a timely independent external appeals process.

There are those who think if the HMO makes a recommendation on appeal, then that is good enough. Recommendations should be independent. In States with the external appeals process, it is done independently. We should do no less. We will have a chance to debate that. Surprisingly, it is debatable, but the protection makes a good deal of sense.

Health plans should be held accountable. In Federal or HMOs, it is done independently. We should do no less. We will have a chance to debate that. Surprisingly, it is debatable, but the protection makes a good deal of sense.

Health plans should be held accountable in the States when certain disputes result in injury or death. Plans should be held accountable in State courts when a disputed medical judgment results in injury or death. The judicial conference has made these recommendations, and it is, by and large, the standard care we have in the State of Texas at the present time. Since 1997, we have seen only a handful of lawsuits take place.

If the Chair will let me know when I have 1 minute left, please, do let’s take a look here, once again, why it is so important to pass this bill. I will do this very quickly. Every day we fail to act, this is what it means in terms of American patients being hurt. The number of patients affected every day from health care abuse—from delay in needed care—is 35,000; from delay in specialty care, the number of patients affected every day is 35,000; and from HMOs forcing patients to change doctors, 59,000 patients are affected each day. As a result of that, 59,000 patients every day have added pain and suffering, and 41,000 patients every day experience worsened conditions. That is happening every single day. That is why it is so important to provide protections.

Doctors know that congressional delay means patient suffering. That was the result from a study by the Kaiser Family Foundation. It illustrates that 14,000 doctors each day see patients suffering from serious decline in their health because of abuses by health plans. It happens from health plans denying coverage of physician recommended prescription drugs.

There are 10,000 doctors every day recommending various diagnostic tests so they can analyze the health care needs of their patients. But patients are denied coverage for these tests. And there are 7,000 doctors who are recommending specialty care for their patients. They have made the decision and have found it necessary, but the specialty care is not being covered. There are 6,000 doctors who say patients ought to stay overnight in the hospital, but it is being denied. And there are 6,000 doctors who see their referral for mental health or substance abuse treatment denied—every single day, that is happening.

This is why we need to address this situation across this country—north, south, east, and west. We ought to establish a basic floor of protections. We want to have accountability. Because when we have accountability, HMOs do the right thing.

If we look at what has happened, we just finished 8 weeks on the floor of the Senate where rarely a speech was made about education when we did not hear about accountability. Remember that? We are going to have accountability for children, third grade through eighth, for taking tests. We are going to have accountability for schools. If they don’t shape up, they will be restructured and reorganized. Accountability on the parents, accountability on the States—accountability, accountability, accountability.

This is all we are saying—when we have accountability, which means a decision is made by an HMO that overrides a doctor’s decision, and that decision results in harm, death, or injury to a patient, the HMO should be held responsible for its decision.

What we need to include this provision in HMOs, we find it is no number of harmful decisions falls. If you look at the State of Texas where they have had this protection in effect for 3½ years, they... have had about a dozen cases. If you look at the State of California—which has a very tough protection not dissimilar from what we are talking about, but also has accountability—they have no cases to date. None, zero. This is the case to the industry and to other health observers in California. There have been 200 appeals out there. Mr. President, 65 percent of those appeals have been decided in favor of the HMO, but they still have not brought the cases brought to court. But what you do have is guarantees to patients, such as the ones we have outlined here in this particular list. That has been true.

Finally, we have about 50 million Americans through their own contract—State and county workers—who have the opportunity to sue the HMOs under that particular contract.

We don’t find the kind of abuses the naysayers will take children I do. I think one of the benefits of this legislation, and we find their premiums are very much along the lines of the others.

We are looking forward to this debate tomorrow. I welcome the opportunity to finally bring this bill up. I am hopeful to the leadership of Senator Daschle who has urged us to move on this in a timely way. In the past, we haven’t been able to bring this up in the way we will tomorrow—as a free and open debate. We have had to bring it up in other circumstances, at other times, using the rules of the Senate to insist that the Senate address it. Now we will have the chance for a free and open debate. We want progress on this legislation. It is necessary.

In the last week, we were able to work out—with the administration and others—a very solid result for education reform. I am still not satisfied it will work. I think we need to have the administration and the others do this because they are important to families across the Nation.

I look forward to the debate. I hope we can get to this bill in a timely way. We had a full opportunity to examine and look at the various provisions. It is already debated and acted on most of the provisions 2½ years ago. This is a substantive matter with which Members should be familiar. The need is paramount.

I look forward to working with our colleagues on all sides of the aisle. I look forward to, hopefully, working with the administration so we can enact legislation that will make sure that doctors have the kind of protection. Health professionals need that protection. Importantly, patients need that protection.

That is what this legislation is all about. We look forward to working with our colleagues to make sure we get the job done.
I am extremely proud that J.A. Jones will play an important role in the building of the World War II Memorial. When we break ground this summer, I will be there with my father, who served in World War II, and my son, whose generation must recognize and understand the sacrifices that America’s Greatest Generation made for freedom. And I will look at them in the eye if I had any question about J.A. Jones’ commitment to American and a free world.

Today, I can say unequivocally that no company is more committed than J.A. Jones to the principles that have made America the leader of the free world.

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HATCH). The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, it is just by accident that I happened to be on the floor to listen to my distinguished friend and colleague recount the history of this really remarkable construction firm. But I must say I have some concerns about the problem. I have not reached any determination. I don’t know if there is anything that this committee or any Senator can do to try to clarify what I perceive as a legitimate concern not only held by this Senator but many across the United States for these reasons.

My dear friend and colleague from North Carolina has recounted the history of J.A. Jones. I don’t question for a minute the distinguished patriotic service this firm has rendered to the United States, as the Senator has recounted very clearly, from World War II to the present. It also brought up the Charles Tompkins firm here in Washington, DC. I had some knowledge of that firm, and that firm also had an impeccable record, so far as I know, of patriotic service and built many structures here in Washington.

Indeed, if I may indulge, at one time I was a young sort of engineer of types. After my last year of college before going to law school, I worked in the construction business here in the Nation’s Capital as the supervisor of heavy concrete and steel construction. And all of us knew about the Charles H. Tompkins Building Firm.

But I think it is important for the Record to show that these two firms were then bought out—Tompkins was first bought by the Jones Company, if I understand it, and then the Jones Company, the controlling interest, was bought out by a German firm. Am I correct in saying that? I ask my distinguished colleague?

Mr. HELMS. That is correct. But the presidency resides in the United States.

Mr. WARNER. Yes. But what year, to refresh my recollection? I have read it, but I simply don’t have my papers here. But how many years ago was it when the German firm bought this?

Mr. HELMS. I don’t recall.

Mr. WARNER. So I will place that in today’s Record. But I think it is important. I feel a duty to put in the Record also that this parent firm in Germany has just recently concluded a resolution of what appears to be a longstanding dispute about its record during World War II as it related to certain persons in the European area and the use of them as forced labor during the war, which, unfortunately, was prevalent with a lot of German firms that have operated in the history of this firm just paid a penalty to the U.S. Government for some settlement, again, of a claim between the U.S. Government and this firm.

Then just several hours ago I got a report that some evidence is coming to the forefront—I will have to try to put this in the Record; I am sorry I don’t have my papers, but I think it is important that this firm just paid a penalty to the U.S. Government for some settlement, again, of a claim between the U.S. Government and this firm.

But I say to my distinguished friend—and I have no better friend in the Senate. Both of us served in World War II in the U.S. Navy. My service was very modest, but I do remember that period of time very well as a young 17-year-old sailor. I think it is important that at least the Record state the facts. Then the people of the United States, particularly those who served in World War II, and their families—because this memorial is as much a tribute to the families as it is to those who served, particularly the families who lost their loved ones in that conflict.

As the Senator knows, there were over several hundred thousand who lost their lives. There were many, many more hundred thousands who suffered that have lived through the war. Then the Senator remembers the tremendous unity here at home during that entire period between all citizens who served their Nation in many ways.

But I just point this out. I think this Record should be complete. I feel an obligation to do it. I do it out of respect for my colleague. But I will put into the Record today additional facts relating to your statement, Senator, because I think the Record should be complete, and then the citizens simply have to make their own minds up on this. I do not know that there is any action that can be taken or should be taken, but the RECORD, in my judgment, should be complete.

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WARNER. Yes, of course.

Mr. HELMS. I think the RECORD should be as clear as to the German firm. I don’t know anything about that. But the allegations made about J.A. Jones Construction Company, and it is that North Carolina firm that I came to defend this afternoon.

I welcome anything that the distinguished Senator from Virginia, who has been my friend for a long time, can add about the German firm. But I want the RECORD to be clear about J.A. Jones Construction Company. That is the reason I came to the Senate Chamber this afternoon.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I think it is important that you undertook this because you do so not only out of loyalty to your State and to your constituents, but, indeed, by your distinguished record in World War II, having served in the Navy, and by your strong support throughout your entire Senate career for all those who participated in military conflict, and their families, and particularly for your support for this memorial.

I thank the Senator for the opportunity to engage in a colloquy with him.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may have printed in the RECORD certain additional material that could be pertinent.

Mr. HELMS. I ask unanimous consent that I may have printed in the RECORD additional material that could be pertinent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (See Exhibit 1.)

Mr. WARNER. I say to my good friend, so we will all know, our beloved colleague, and former majority leader, Robert Dole, who has an extraordinary record of heroism in World War II, was, indeed, instrumental in the building of this memorial; that is, raising the funds and putting the infrastructure in place financially for this memorial to go through. There are some hundred thousand dollars that have been raised—almost all of it in the private sector. I was pleased, as a member of the Armed Services Committee, to bring to the Senate an amendment of some $6 million of taxpayers funds which was incorporated into last year’s authorization bill and appropriated to add to the many hundreds of thousands of gifts contributed towards the building of this memorial as to raise the final total to the $100 million to allow construction to go forward.

So I say to my good friend from North Carolina, again, I feel an obligation, having instituted that funding requirement, and asking colleagues to support—indeed, the Congress as a whole—I feel it is my obligation to put in the RECORD such facts as I know about this case. And I will include a communication I have just received from Senator Dole which in many ways recites the history of the distinguished firm to which you refer.

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mr. HELMS. I say to the Senator, I commend you for the position you have taken. And I join you in making clear all of the relevant facts about this matter, specifically those involving the German firm.

Mr. WARNER. Yes.

Mr. HELMS. But I want to separate the J.A. Jones Construction Company from that. Incidentally, I talked to Senator Dole right here on the floor of the Senate last week about it. And it was he who called me to look into the matter and to come here today.

Mr. WARNER. I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I thank our distinguished colleague, and I appreciate the forbearance of our distinguished colleague from Pennsylvania, who has been patiently waiting.
WASHINGTON, D.C.—Philipp Holzmann AG, a German construction company, has pled guilty to participating in a criminal conspiracy to rig bids on a USAID-funded construction contract in the Arab Republic of Egypt, Everett L. Mosley, Acting Inspector General, U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID), announced today.

As part of its plea agreement with the Department of Justice, Antitrust Division, Holzmann agreed to pay a criminal fine in the amount of $300,000.

The one-count felony judgment was entered in the U.S. District Court in Birmingham, Alabama. It charged Holzmann and other unnamed co-conspirators with participating in a conspiracy to suppress and eliminate competition on the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) contract for construction of the Washington Mall in Washington, D.C.

Today’s action is the first charge to arise out of an ongoing grand jury investigation in the District of Alabama conducted by the Justice Department’s Antitrust Division, Atlanta Field Office, working in concert with the USAID Office of the Inspector General.

“This plea agreement is the first step in the unraveling of a wide-ranging conspiracy involving several multi-national corporations, which had targeted the USAID program for exploitation,” Mosley said. “This investigation is part of our continuing law enforcement effort to combat fraud in the foreign assistance program. The integrity is essential to maintain public support for the foreign assistance program of the United States.”

Holzmann participated in rigging the bids so that its American subsidiary, J.A. Jones Construction Co., which had submitted a bid as part of a joint venture, would be awarded the lucrative USAID contract for construction of a waste-water treatment project at a highly inflated price.

The investigation is continuing until each co-conspirator is identified and prosecuted. This investigation was conducted by USAID’s Office of Inspector General.

The case was prosecuted by the Justice Department’s Antitrust Division, Atlanta Field Office.

GSA STATEMENT ON SELECTION OF CONTRACTOR FOR WWII MEMORIAL

The General Services Administration (GSA), acting as agent on behalf of the American Battle Monuments Commission (ABMC), awarded a contract to Tompkins Builders and Grunley-Walsh Construction to construct the National World War II Memorial on the Mall in Washington, D.C.

The joint venture of these American firms submitted the highest quality proposal and the lowest price, thus providing the best overall value to the Government.

GSA management is sensitive to the issues raised in news stories. The agency reiterates that Tompkins Builders and Grunley-Walsh are responsible firms.

Tompkins Builders, a U.S. company established in the District of Columbia in 1911, later became the third largest general contractor in the Washington D.C. Metropolitan area, has a reputation for quality construction. It is owned by J.A. Jones Construction Company, a German construction firm.

Both Tompkins Builders and Grunley-Walsh have extensive working relationships with GSA and other Federal agencies. They have participated in many construction and renovation projects in the Washington, D.C. area, including the: Washington Monument; Jefferson Memorial; Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial; U.S. Capitol; National Air and Space Museum; Food and Drug Administration’s Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition in College Park, Md, and Alexandria Federal Courthouse in Alexandria, Va.

J.A. JONES REAFFIRMS LONG HISTORY OF SUPPORTING U.S. MILITARY

CHARLOTTE, NC, June 12, 2001.—J.A. Jones Construction Co., whose subsidiary Tompkins Builders was chosen last week as lead contractor for the prestigious World War II Memorial in Washington, today reiterated its commitment to America's Greatest Generation.

Today’s announcement is just as strong today as our employees continue to build and manage bases and facilities around the world.

In discussing the relationship between Philipp Holzmann and J.A. Jones, it also is important to look at history. Two companies that worked together in the mid-1970s on U.S. Army Corps of Engineers projects in Saudi Arabia. J.A. Jones was looking to expand its global presence, and Philipp Holzmann AG saw potential in the U.S. Philipp Holzmann bought J.A. Jones in 1979. Edwin Jones Jr., the World War II veteran who fought at Iwo Jima, was chairman of J.A. Jones at the time of the sale.

We are in fact a global economy. The very fact that Germany has become a free capitalistic country and trusted American ally is a testament to the United States' and post-World War II Allied commitment to rebuilding the free world. Unfortunately, in the decades of where the World War II Memorial will be built and who will build it, we have lost sight of the true purpose of this project: to honor the veterans who saved the world. I believe the history of J.A. Jones Construction and its people makes it the ideal choice for the historic project.

I am extremely proud that J.A. Jones will play an important role in the building of the World War II Memorial. When we break ground this summer, I will be there with my father, who was a paratrooper in World War II, whose的眼睛 if I had any question about J.A. Jones' commitment to America and a free world.

Today, I can say unequivocally that no company is more committed than J.A. Jones to the principles that have made America the leader of the free world.

STATEMENT OF THE AMERICAN BATTLE MONUMENTS COMMISSION REGARDING THE CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT FOR THE NATIONAL WWII MEMORIAL, JUNE 11, 2001

The joint venture of Tompkins Builders and Grunley-Walsh Construction was awarded a $56 million contract last week to build the National World War II Memorial on the Mall in Washington, D.C.

The selection was based on price, experience, comparable past performance. The evaluation of all these factors allowed the government to select the offer companies went to great lengths to hide competitive bidding. Indeed, some of the almost certainly impossible to obtain under almost six years ago, after a top financial of Frankfurt.

Frankfurt. According to people briefed on the case. At the time of the bidding, the Frankfurt Group, according to people briefed on the case, referred to themselves as the international construction companies, which collectively referred to themselves as the same group. Three of the five largest construction companies in America are foreign-owned.

Neither ABMC nor GSA has the authority to discriminate against American firms based upon the nationality of parent or grandparent corporations. Moreover, such discrimination would be inconsistent with the principles for which the WWII generation sacrificed.

According to court records, companies in- deed, irregularities in Contract 20A led to the discovery of the broader bid-rigging scheme. The irregularities were first discov ered by Richard F. Miller, who worked first as a controller and then as treasurer of Jones from 1986 through 1996. During the course of his work, Mr. Miller discovered a series of improper transactions involving the joint venture with Harbert, and pieced together that a bid-rigging conspiracy was involved in Contract 20A, a $107 million sewer project in Cairo.

Among the evidence eventually discovered by Mr. Miller, according to court records presented in a federal whistle-blower suit he filed, were wire transfers for $3.35 million from the joint venture to a related company for fictitious “preconstruction costs.”

The most complex of all the construction, according to the court records, was a bogus “sale-lease-back” arrangement involving a Jones-re lated company called Sabba. Under the terms of the deal, Sabba was to purchase the construction equipment for the project, then lease it back to the joint venture.

Yet while $14.4 million in lease payments were made to Sabba, the $1 million used to purchase the equipment was never paid by that company. Instead, according to court records and lawyers involved in the case, that money remaining in a Swiss bank and was used as a fund to disburse payments to other co-conspirators.

“This was an example of a transaction that was ‘strictly not even to reduce the apparent profitability of Contract 20A,’ ” said Robert Bell, a lawyer from Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering who is representing Mr. Miller in his whistle-blower suit. “If you skim almost $15 million off the top, it’s easier to make it look like the joint venture wasn’t making all that much money.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

THE PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to comment about the legislation which is due to come to this Senate tomorrow. I thought it might be useful to focus on a Dear Colleague letter which I sent out last week, which reads as follows:

A key point of controversy on legislation now pending in the Senate is whether plaintiffs should be permitted to collect damages from insurance companies without a statutory limitation. Under more than 200 years of common law precedents, a harmed plaintiff has been able to recover as a compensatory or punitive damages for gross, malicious or intentional misconduct.

The McCain-Edwards-Kennedy Bill, of which I am a co-sponsor, provides for Federal court jurisdiction on the issue of whether a claim is covered by the contractual provi sions of a health care plan and for state court jurisdiction on medical malpractice claims.

Serious concerns have been raised to that bill because of a history of very high verdicts in state courts on personal injury claims which could significantly raise the cost of health care in the United States. There is substantial experience that Federal court trials result in a more reasonable and judici ous result in malpractice cases.

I intend to offer a compromise amendment which would maintain Federal court juris diction under McCain-Edwards-Kennedy for coverage claims (which have also been re moved) from the torts (including malpractice, negligence, and punitive damages for gross, malicious or intentional misconduct).
malpractice claims (which have also been referred to as quality or treatment decisions) which would preserve plaintiffs' traditional common law remedies in a more reasoned judicial forum.

The consequences of ERISA have been extremely complicated. Enacted in the early 1970s, it has been held in many, many cases to bar plaintiffs from recovering for personal injuries. Cases brought under ERISA, section 502(a)(1), are precluded by the doctrine of complete preemption, which applies when Congress so completely preempts a particular area of law that any civil complaint raising this select group of claims is necessarily Federal in character.

Under section 514, a plaintiff's claim is barred if the claim relates to an employee benefit plan. If a plaintiff's claim does not relate to an employee benefit plan, then the claim is not barred and is heard in State courts. There is a growing line of cases finding that State causes of action, States' Patients' Bill of Rights, do not relate to an employee benefit plan and, therefore, are not preempted if they address the quality of services to be provided.

There are many cases in this complex field, and they are referred to by the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in a case decided slightly less than a year ago on June 20, 2000, in a case captioned Aetna Health Plans of Texas, Inc. v. the Texas Department of Insurance. The Fifth Circuit noted that the courts have "repeatedly struggled with the open-ended character of the preemption provisions of ERISA" and also the Federal Employees Health Benefits Act.

The Fifth Circuit goes on to say:

The courts have faithfully followed the Supreme Court's broad reading of "relate to" preemption under 502(a), in its opinions decided during the first twenty years after ERISA's enactment. Since then, in a trilogy of cases, the [Supreme] Court has confronted the reality that if "relate to" is taken to the furthest stretch of its indeterminacy, preemption is complete, and its course, for real universal relations stop nowhere."

There has been a succinct summary of the key issues raised by ERISA preemption in a case decided earlier this year on March 27, 2001, by the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, captioned Pryzbowski v. United States Health Care Incorporated. In Pryzbowski, the court noted prior Third Circuit opinions where the court distinguished between claims directed to the quality of the benefits the plaintiff received versus claims that the plans erroneously withheld benefits, that is, claims that seek to enforce plaintiff's rights under the terms of their respective plans or to clarify their rights to future benefits. In Pryzbowski, the Third Circuit went on to say that:

We stated that claims that merely attack the quality of benefits do not fall within the scope of section 502(a)'s enforcement provisions and do not clearly provide complete preemption whereas claims challenging the quantum of benefits due under an ERISA-regulated plan are completely preempted under section 502(a)'s civil enforcement scheme.

The Third Circuit then went on to note:

Though the quality-quantity distinction was helpful in those cases, we have acknowledged that the distinction would not always be clear.

From Pryzbowski and other cases, it is apparent that if a Patients' Bill of Rights is enacted which gives the Federal courts jurisdiction over the scope of the plan, or the so-called quantity decisions, and the State courts jurisdiction over the quality or the treatment decision, then there will be a plethora of nearly endless litigation as to what belongs in which court. The court decisions are replete with cases where the facts have been analyzed. It is frequently very difficult to distinguish between the two categories, quantity or quality, and it often ends up with the case remanded for other facts to be determined.

It is my suggestion that the Federal court retain total jurisdiction over both category of cases, whether they are the quantity decisions, which relate to eligibility decisions, or the quality decisions, which relate to treatment decisions. My suggestion is that it would be much preferable to have exclusive jurisdiction vested in the Federal courts.

There is considerable concern about excessive verdicts in State courts when contrasted with the more judicious decisions in the Federal courts. What my compromise suggests is that by giving exclusive jurisdiction to the Federal courts, traditional plaintiff's damage claims could be retained without so-called caps or limitations.

There has been enormous concern about what would happen if the Patients' Bill of Rights refers to the State courts these medical malpractice cases without any limitation on damages.

Last year, the Judiciary Committee considered amending diversity jurisdiction in class action cases because diversity jurisdiction was so easily defeated when a class of plaintiffs would sue a defendant. If there was a single plaintiff residing in the same State as the defendant, then diversity was defeated.

This legislation, which amended diversity jurisdiction and was passed out of the Judiciary Committee, was sought by so many defendants who felt unfairly treated by State court decisions. The report of the Judiciary Committee on the Class Action Fairness Act of 2000 (S.R. 106–420) contains some statements which are relevant to consideration of having medical malpractice cases litigated in the Federal courts rather than the State courts.

This is what the Judiciary Committee report said at page 15:

The ability of plaintiffs' lawyers to create Federal lawsuits has helped spur a dramatic increase in the number of class actions litigated in State courts—an increase that is stretching the resources of the State court systems.

Then on page 16, the Judiciary Committee majority report goes on to point out the concern of unfairness in State court actions saying:

Committee finds, however, that one reason for the drastic explosion of class actions in State courts is that some State court judges are less careful than their Federal counterparts in conforming to the procedural requirements that govern class actions. Many State court judges are lax about following the strict requirements of rule 23. Class actions are intended to protect the due process rights of both unnamed class members and defendants. In contrast, Federal courts generally do scrutinize proposed settlements much more carefully and pay closer attention to the procedural requirements for certifying a matter for class treatment.

The majority report then goes on to say:

State court judges are often inclined to certify cases for class action treatment not because they believe a class trial would be more efficient than an individual trial, but because there, unlike class actions in Federal courts class actions are such a powerful tool, they can give a class attorney unbounded leverage. Such leverage can essentially force corporate defendants to pay cases in class attorney settlements—rather than litigating—frivolous lawsuits.

The majority report then goes on to say:

State court judges often are inclined to certify cases for class action treatment not because they believe a class trial would be more efficient than an individual trial, but because there, unlike class actions in Federal courts, traditional plaintiff's damage claims could be retained without so-called caps or limitations.

There has been enormous concern about what would happen if the Patients' Bill of Rights refers to the State courts these medical malpractice cases without any limitation on damages.

Now, in citing these references to the Judiciary Committee report, I do not seek to impugn all State court judges because the majority of State court judges are careful and judicious and follow settled principles. But there have been a considerable number of these certifications of class actions, and there have been many cases which involve forum shopping, judge shopping, which seek to go to specific counties or specific States where there are excessive verdicts.

By contrast, the Federal courts have an established reputation where there is different selection of judges. In many States, judges are elected—my own State of Pennsylvania. Here, again, I am not intending any broad condemnation, but in the Federal courts, where judges are selected for life tenure, it is fair to say that the caliber of the judiciary is superior. That, again, is a generalization.

Again, there are many fine State court judges. But the experience in the State courts, as illustrated by this class action report, gives grave concern to many who are worried that if the Patients' Bill of Rights is enacted and there are unlimited damages possible in State court (medical malpractice cases), which is now the provision under the McCain-Edward-Kennedy bill, that there will be widespread abuses. Those same concerns are not found with respect to these malpractice cases in the Federal courts.
We are about to enter on to a difficult and protracted debate on a Patients’ Bill of Rights. It is my view, and has been, as reflected in the votes I have cast on the Senate floor for several years now, that America needs a Patients’ Bill of Rights and that the traditional remedies not be capped or limited. But a good tradeoff, in my judgment, would be that exclusive jurisdiction would be vested in the Federal courts. This is not really a problem for plaintiffs of “forum non conveniens”—the Latin phrase which means an inconvenient court—because there are underlying Federal questions on ERISA. And even when cases are brought in the State court, invariably, they end up on removal actions in the Federal court. When you start to try to make distinctions under ERISA 502, ERISA 514, trying to distinguish between the quantity of coverage versus the quality of coverage, they necessarily overlap; and it will be a saving of judicial resources if all of those cases are heard in the Federal court. I ask my colleagues to consider this.

I ask unanimous consent at this time that the full text of my Dear Colleague letter, dated June 13, be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

DEAR COLLEAGUE: A key point of controversy on legislation now pending in the Senate is whether patients will be permitted to collect damages from insurance companies without a statutory limitation. Under more than 200 years of common law precedents, a harmed plaintiff has been able to recover compensation as set by a jury for economic losses and pain and suffering when a defendant is negligent and punitive damages for gross, malicious or intentional misconduct.

The McCain-Edwards-Kennedy Bill, of which I am a co-sponsor, provides for Federal court jurisdiction on the issue of whether a claim is covered by the contractual provisions of a health care plan and for state court jurisdiction on medical malpractice claims.

Serious concerns have been raised to that bill because of a history of very high verdicts in state courts on personal injury claims which could significantly raise the cost of health care in the United States. There is substantial experience that Federal court trials result in a more reasoned and judicial result in malpractice cases.

I intend to offer a compromise amendment which would maintain Federal court jurisdiction under McCain-Edwards-Kennedy for coverage claims and extend Federal court jurisdiction, excluding state court jurisdiction, on medical malpractice claims which would preserve plaintiffs’ traditional common law remedies in a more reasoned judicial setting.

Since the Patients’ Bill of Rights will be on the Senate floor next week, I thought it useful to call this proposal to your attention so that you may consider it. My staff and I are available to respond to questions and to amplify the details of this proposed compromise since this is a simplified statement on complex legal issues.

Sincerely,

ARLEN SPECTER.

Mr. SPECTER. I thank the Chair for sitting late. It is not easy to come in on a Monday afternoon. The distinguished Senator from Utah, a senior Republican on the Judiciary Committee, has performed extraordinary service. I thought it not unfitting that I should cite his report on class action cases since he was the author of those pearls of wisdom I quoted.

I believe that concludes our business. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands adjourned until 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 4:03 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, June 19, 2001, at 10 a.m.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Father Mariano Frascati, O. De M., as he celebrates his 50th year of priesthood. Cleveland should be proud to have this exemplary man in its midst.

Father Frascati was born in Castelviscardo (Terni), Italy on May 16, 1925. He attended the Propedeuticum at Gregorian University in Rome earning a Baccalaureus in Philosophy. He attended seminary at St. Joseph Franciscan Seminary in Teutopolis, Illinois, and was ordained on June 24, 1951—50 years ago this month.

His Cleveland service began in 1957 as Assistant at Our Lady of Mount Carmel (West). He became Pastor in November 1970 and served in this capacity until April 1995. He was the Chairman of the Detroit Sh oreway Community Development Corporation. He was instrumental in the planning and fund-raising process that resulted in the completion in 1979 of Villa Mercede, a federally funded HUD project consisting of 150 apartments for seniors and the disabled.

He became Vicar for the Order of Our Lady in the United States in July 1994. In 1976 Father Frascati received the Cavalier dell'Ordine al Merito della Repubblica Italiani from the Italian government in recognition of his services to the Italian community both here and abroad.

My fellow colleagues please join me in applauding this truly great man and all of his contributions to society.

TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN RICHARD J. PARISH, USN

HON. JOE SCARBOROUGH
OF FLORIDA
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a man who has dedicated more than 30 years of his life to protecting the people of this great nation through his service in the United States Navy. This gentleman has distinguished himself as a decorated officer, a community leader, a trusted advisor, and as a personal friend. The man I speak about today is Captain Richard J. Parish, who is retiring from the United States Navy.

Captain Parish is currently the Director of Office Training and Education/NROTC Program Manager on the staff of the Chief of Naval Education and Training in Pensacola, Florida. I could praise Captain Parish for his many successes as Commander of the Naval Surface Warfare Center at Coastal Systems Station, Commanding Officer of U.S.S. Samuel Eliot Morison, or his numerous other assignments throughout his storied career. I could mention his many awards, including the Defense Superior Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Navy Commendation Medal, and many others. Or I could applaud his academic achievements, including a Master's Degree in Financial Management from the naval Postgraduate School. However, I'm sure Captain Parish would say that all of these were just part of his duty.

Mr. Speaker, not only has Captain Parish been an outstanding Naval officer, he's also been a great friend and advisor. Whether through his assignment at CNET at NAS Pensacola, or his extraordinary tenure as Commander of Coastal Systems Station, Captain Parish has been an engaged and effective leader as well as a great source of advice and counsel to me on issues related to the Navy. I have looked to Dick Parish on many occasions for his unvarnished opinion on the issues affecting our nation's armed forces. As a member of the U.S. Navy's Armed Services Committee over the past seven years, such insight has proven invaluable to me. Although I too will be leaving my post in the near future, I look forward to continuing our friendship.

Mr. Speaker, I join Captain Parish's many friends and colleagues in wishing him all the best as he embarks on this new phase of his life. Northwest Florida and the greater Navy community are fortunate to have had Captain Richard J. Parish serve them with honor and distinction. I want to thank my friend Dick Parish for his service to our great nation and to our local community, and wish him success and happiness now and always.

HONORING VETERANS FROM NAS-SAU COUNTY’S UNITED VETERANS ORGANIZATIONS

HON. CAROLYN McCARTHY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mrs. McCARTHY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise in recognition of four veterans from Nassau County's United Veterans Organizations (UVO)—Joe Librizzii from Oceanside, Pat Cassatton from Uniondale, Bernie Flatow from West Hempstead, and Sal Brandino from Rockville Centre—as June Citizens of the Month for the flag education program.

In December of 1997, the UVO came up with a brilliant idea of a flag education program for Nassau County schools and students. This program was designed to teach elementary students proper flag etiquette and respect.

Too often our students aren't exposed to the knowledge and the history our veterans possess. With this program students can learn about our nation's history from those who lived it. At the same time, the students learn about America's most important symbol from those who fought for our country.

The veterans began to put their idea into a plan by sending letters of introduction and explanation to 56 school superintendents in Nassau County. In early 1998, the team consisting of Librizzii, Cassatton, Flatow and Brandino began their presentations and as they say, "The rest is history." In the first year of presentations, they visited 29 schools and reached about 12,000 students. During the 2000/2001 school year, the vets predict they will reach 39 schools this year, bringing their three-year total to 40,000 students.

Thousands of letters from students, teachers, and administrators give testimony to the fact the vets achieved their goal—fostering respect for the American flag. The vets committee have also been honored by the U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard attending many of their presentations.

These veterans saw a void in education, and stepped in to help out. We should all be like these veterans—they're still giving back to their community and shaping their country's future.

Thank you, and congratulations.

IN HONOR OF COMMISSIONER JIMMY DIMORA

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Commissioner Jimmy Dimora on this very special birthday and to thank him for his many dedicated years of public service.

Mr. Dimora is a great man, skilled politician, public servant, and most importantly, a friend. In January 1993 he began his term as Cuyahoga County Commissioner with the one simple goal to simplify county government and make it "user friendly" for his constituents. He was soon, thereafter, elected by his fellow commissioners as President of the Board of Cuyahoga County Commissioners.

His career in public service did not begin, however, on the county level. Mr. Dimora has 28 years of dedicated service with the City of Bedford Heights. Originally a city employee, he quickly demonstrated his love for the city and was elected Council-at-Large. In 1982 he was elected Mayor of the City of Bedford Heights and was re-elected without opposition to four consecutive terms. Commissioner Dimora has served his community in countless capacities, including Chairman of Cuyahoga County's Investment Advisory Committee, Vice-Chairman of the County's Solid Waste District, member of the Board of Revisions and Governing Board to the Northeast Ohio Areawide Coordinating Agency. Commissioner Dimora currently serves as Chairman of the Cuyahoga County Democratic Party and has served selflessly in that position since February, 1994.

This “bullet” symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.
Commissioner Dimora is a man I hold in very high regard for he has greatly touched the Cleveland community. He has dedicated his entire life to public service and enjoys working with his constituents. He is people-oriented, kind-spirited, hard-working, and dedicated to his work and community.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in honoring a very fine man and wishing him a happy birthday. Commissioner Jimmy Dimora is truly a man of the people, and has served the Cleveland community selflessly his entire life.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. BARON P. HILL
OF INDIANA
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, I did not vote on House Concurrent Resolution 145 when the House of Representatives considered it on June 13th (rollcall vote No. 161). Had I voted on House Concurrent Resolution 145, I would have voted “yea.”

TRIBUTE TO FREDERICK STEPHENS HUMPHRIES, PH.D., NOTED EDUCATOR, SCHOLAR, AND GREAT AMERICAN

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK
OF FLORIDA
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, tonight I am pleased to pay tribute to Frederick Stephens Humphries, one of the true giants of higher education in this country. We all recognized early in his 16-year tenure that he is a man of great vision and wisdom. As President of Florida A&M University, he built it into one of this nation’s premier institutions of higher education.

Dr. Humphries is one of those special individuals in whom there exists not only an immense capacity for service, but also that touch of genius which everyone recognizes but no one can define.

Under Dr. Humphries’ leadership, Florida A&M’s enrollment has more than doubled and the number of graduates has tripled. He did this simultaneously while raising standards and improving the overall quality of the student body. Three times in the last ten years Florida A&M has been the top choice of National Achievement Scholars, tying last fall with Harvard for attracting the largest number of these high-achieving students.

Thanks to Fred Humphries, Florida A&M now has the triple distinction of being the nation’s largest single-campus historically black college, the No. 1 producer of African-Americans with baccalaureate degrees, and the leading producer of African-American teachers.

Perhaps his single greatest contribution to America and to African-Americans is that, during his 26-year career as a college President, Dr. Humphries has taught an entire generation of African-Americans that there was room for intelligence and idealism in our world, and that “excellence with caring” was not just a way to live but a way to live greatly, that with education and knowledge each of us might share in the promise of our age.

So to you Frederick Stephens Humphries, I want to thank you for all that you have done not only for Florida A&M, but this nation and our world.

ESPERANZA’S 11TH ANNUAL FIESTA OF HOPE

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor Esperanza, Incorporated for their years of education to the Cleveland community and celebrate their 11th Annual Fiesta of Hope to be held on Friday, June 22, 2001.

Esperanza, Inc. is the only non-profit organization in Ohio dedicated to the promotion and advancement of Hispanic Education. This organization attracts hundreds of volunteers who tutor, mentor, and provide guidance to students of all ages. Volunteers provide assistance to students looking for scholarships and academic advice.

Since its formation, Esperanza, Inc. has celebrated its diversity through a yearly “Fiesta.” Last year, Esperanza, Inc. awarded 55 scholarships that provided much needed assistance to students. An education is the backbone of a healthy and productive life, and this organization is spending their time and energy in promoting a better education for all people.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in recognition of a fine educational association. Esperanza, Inc. has served the Cleveland community for over a decade. I am humbled and grateful to have such a worthwhile organization in my district, and wish them the best of luck with their 11th Annual Fiesta of Hope.

A TRIBUTE TO WAYMAN F. SMITH III

HON. WM. LACY CLAY
OF MISSOURI
Monday, June 18, 2001

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to offer my comments and warmest congratulations on the retirement of my friend, Wayman F. Smith III, who is leaving his position as Vice President of Corporate Affairs for the Anheuser Busch Corporation after 20 years of dedicated service. Wayman F. Smith has been a leader in community involvement. He founded and chairs the African American Initiative for the United Way: a program that has raised millions of dollars for worthwhile charities in the St. Louis Metropolitan Area. Wayman is also Chairman of the Board of Regents for one of our nation’s historically black educational institutions, Harris-Stowe State College, and serves on the Howard University Board of Trustees where he is also Chairman Emeritus.

Wayman Smith also participates on the boards of the St. Louis Gateway Classic Foundation, the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, Rankin Technical College, the NAACP Special Contributions Fund, and the United Way of Greater St. Louis.

Now after twenty years at the corporate helm, Wayman plans to enjoy his early retirement from Anheuser Busch by returning to his first love, private legal practice. This summer, Wayman will rejoin his brother, Christopher M. Smith, Sr. and six other attorneys in the Smith Partnership in St. Louis, where he will continue to represent Anheuser Busch as well as other national and international interests.

It is my pleasure and honor to recognize Wayman F. Smith III for the many contributions he has made on behalf of his beloved City of St. Louis, his community and his nation.

Wayman Smith began his high school years in the 1950s at the segregated Summer High School in St. Louis, but later transferred to and graduated from Soldan High School following the U.S. Supreme Court’s decision in Brown vs. Board of Education. After completing his undergraduate degree in Business Administration from the New School in West Long Branch, New Jersey, Wayman later went on to earn his Juris Doctorate degree from Howard University School of Law. Following his graduation from law school, Wayman became a partner in the law firm of Wilson, Smith, McCullin and Smith and later served as a judge in the St. Louis Metropolitan Court and served as the director of the Conciliation for the Missouri Commission on Human Rights.

During the last twenty years, Wayman has served as Vice President of Corporate Affairs for the Anheuser Busch Corporation, where he has been credited with building positive and economically productive relationships between Anheuser Busch and the African American community. Under Wayman’s leadership, Anheuser Busch’s Corporate Affairs Department expanded its Minority Purchasing Program initiative from less than $1 million to nearly $200 million. As a result, the Anheuser Busch Corporation today holds the honorable distinction of having done business with every African American, Hispanic and women-owned financial institution in the nation.

Additionally, his department has raised over $160 million for the United Negro College Fund and he founded the “Budweiser Jammin’ for Education Fund” a major provider of college scholarship funds for our nation’s urban youth. Literally hundreds of organizations have benefited greatly from Wayman’s assistance, including the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, which received a direct contribution from Wayman Smith to help pay off the mortgage on its Washington, D.C. headquarters.

In addition to his professional responsibilities, Wayman Smith has always been a leader in community involvement. He founded and chairs the African American Initiative for the United Way: a program that has raised millions of dollars for worthwhile charities in the St. Louis Metropolitan Area. Wayman is also Chairman of the Board of Regents for one of our nation’s historically black educational institutions, Harris-Stowe State College, and serves on the Howard University Board of Trustees where he is also Chairman Emeritus.

Wayman Smith also participates on the boards of the St. Louis Gateway Classic Foundation, the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, Rankin Technical College, the NAACP Special Contributions Fund, and the United Way of Greater St. Louis.

Now after twenty years at the corporate helm, Wayman plans to enjoy his early retirement from Anheuser Busch by returning to his first love, private legal practice. This summer, Wayman will rejoin his brother, Christopher M. Smith, Sr. and six other attorneys in the Smith Partnership in St. Louis, where he will continue to represent Anheuser Busch as well as other national and international interests.

It is my pleasure and honor to recognize Wayman F. Smith III for the many contributions he has made on behalf of his beloved City of St. Louis, his community and his nation.
Mr. ISRAEL. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride that I rise today to recognize one of New York’s outstanding young students, Jordan Henner. On July 13, 2001, the Boy Scouts of Troop 125 in Commack will recognize Jordan’s achievements by giving him the Eagle Scout honor.

Since the beginning of this century, the Boy Scouts of America have provided thousands of boys and young men each year with the opportunity to make friends, explore new ideas, and develop leadership skills with learning self-reliance and teamwork.

This award is presented only to those who possesses the qualities that make our nation great: commitment to excellence, hard work, and genuine love of community service. Becoming an Eagle Scout is an extraordinary award with which only the finest Boy Scouts are honored. To earn the award—the highest advancement rank in Scouting—a Boy Scout must demonstrate proficiency in the rigorous areas of leadership, service, and outdoor skills; they must earn a minimum of 23 merit badges as well as contribute at least 100 man-hours toward a community oriented service project.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating the recipients of these awards, as their activities are indeed worthy of praise. Their leadership benefits our community and they serve as role models for their peers. Also, we must not forget the unsung heroes, who continue to devote a large part of their lives to make all this possible. Therefore, I salute the families, scout leaders, and countless others who have given generously of their time and energy in support of scouting.

It is with great pride that I recognize the achievements of Jordan Henner, and bring the attention of Congress to this successful young man on his day of recognition. Congratulations to Jordan and his family.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Mr. James F. “Big Jim” Pykare for his many years of service and countless contributions to his community.

Mr. Pykare, originally from Warren, Ohio, served his world community selflessly throughout his lifetime. He was born the son of the late Eugene F. and Ruth Clarissa Wallace Pykare. He has a very distinguished military career. Pykare served in Vietnam, Germany, Jordan, Lebanon and Alaska as a member of the Army. He also served on several special duty stations in the United States, specializing in Infantry Intelligence and Operations.

His loyalty and dedicated service to the Army was noticed. For his military service, Pykare was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star for Valor. After serving his country selflessly, Pykare owned his own business, the Motorcycle Club of Cleveland, where he customized bikes. He also had a large love of politics that led him to taking an active role within the old Ward 13 Democratic Club.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you join me in honoring the memory of a wonderful, loving man. “Big Jim” Pykare has affected and served the Cleveland community in many capacities, and was an inspiration to many. He has touched so many of us, and will be greatly missed.
