The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Issa).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

I hereby appoint the Honorable Darrell E. Issa to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. Dennis Hastert, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2001, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to 30 minutes, and each Member, other than majority and minority leaders and the minority whip, limited to 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Stearns) for 5 minutes.

PRESIDENT BUSH’S FIRST 180 DAYS

Mr. Stearns. Mr. Speaker, as we all know, we are in our busiest legislative session in July; and it is important to go back and consider all of the accomplishments we have had in the last 6 months. All of us have worked alongside with the President in tackling some very tough issues, and I think it is important that we remind everybody of the important victories that I think are a great benefit to the American people.

When thinking about the first 180 days of President Bush’s service to our Nation, there are many accomplishments across a broad spectrum, both national and international issues, that I think are clearly evident; and I wish to bring to my colleagues’ attention. From education and the environment, to health care and national security, the President has taken an active stance in promoting an agenda that has received both public and bipartisan support.

Mr. Speaker, let me be specific here. For example, the President’s budget, with bipartisan support, funds essential priorities, pays down a historic level of debt in this country, while, of course, simultaneously providing tax relief to every taxpayer in every tax bracket.

The President inherited a faltering economy. He signed into law the largest tax cut in 20 years. This was important because it provided a needed boost while simultaneously proposing measures to increase trade and stabilizing energy prices.

President Bush’s efforts to expand the quality of health care for all Americans has led to the largest increase in medical research funding, the development of 1,200 new community health care centers for rural and low-income Americans, as well as immediate assistance to seniors in the form of a prescription drug discount card that will reduce their bills by 10 to 15 percent or more.

While working to improve health care for American seniors, the President has also taken action to increase access for disabled Americans for better housing, transportation, greater employment opportunities, and overall access to community life. Moreover, Mr. Speaker, his appointment of a bipartisan commission to improve Social Security reveals his deep concern for working Americans and the effect Social Security will have for them long after retirement.

While working to protect the interests of American citizens at home, the President has also worked diligently in order to protect American interests throughout our global community. The $8 billion increase of defense spending that we passed will improve the quality of life for all men and women who have committed their lives to military service. President Bush’s commitment to those in the armed services was no more clearly seen than in his efforts to ensure the safe and expedient return of the U.S. crew that was detained in China. That was no small feat, a diplomatic coup; and I think this is a great success that we, as a Nation, can be proud of.

His efforts have also led to the development of a comprehensive review of all areas of the military while also carrying out a successful missile defense test.

President Bush’s agenda also focuses on strengthening the ties with the global community. His travels to Europe reflect his efforts to promote key foreign policy tenets that aim to assist developing nations in fighting poverty and improving global health care while also promoting an international awareness for environmental conservation. These can be clearly seen in his efforts for partnership with the African nations on issues ranging from the fight against HIV/AIDS to the greater development of international trade.

Mr. Speaker, his commitment to the international treaty that will reduce the worldwide use of 12 dangerous chemicals exemplifies his concern for the global environment. The President’s foreign policy efforts also reflect a sincere commitment to strengthening the young independent democracies of Eastern Europe. Moreover, as the first President to give a radio address in Spanish, the President has also worked to strengthen the alliance of the North American nations through active participation during the Summit of the Americas.

President Bush has successfully strived to replace Washington culture.
of gridlock with several notable bipartisan accomplishments on very tough issues, ranging from economy to education to defense spending.

Mr. Speaker, I believe his first 180 days have revealed to us an active and committed Presidential agenda that spans both domestic and international concerns while also protecting the interests of America and expanding freedom, trade, prosperity, and hope. I wish to congratulate the President this afternoon.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Monahan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed with an amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the following title:

H.R. 2311. An act making appropriations for energy and water development for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate insist upon its amendment to the bill (H.R. 2311) "An Act making appropriations for energy and water development for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes" requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and appoints Mr. Reid, Mr. Byrd, Mr. Hollings, Mrs. Murray, Mr. Dorgan, Mrs. Feinstein, Mr. Harkin, Mr. Inouye, Mr. Domenici, Mr. Cochran, Mr. McConnell, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Burns, Mr. Craig, and Mr. Stevens, to be the conferees on the part of the Senate.

ANNOUNCEMENT FROM THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 4 of rule I, the Speaker signed the following enrolled bill on Friday, July 20, 2001:

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Enclosed please find copies of resolutions approved by the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure on July 18, 2001, in accordance with 40 U.S.C. §606.

Sincerely,

DON YOUNG,
Chairman.

There was no objection.

RAILROAD DISASTERS

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for one minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, last weekend downtown Baltimore was shut down due to the derailment of a freight train carrying hazardous chemicals.

Madam Speaker, just imagine what could have happened if that train was carrying high-level, highly radioactive nuclear waste, the world’s most toxic, deadliest material known to man. Thousands of people would have been exposed to not only heavy smoke and soot but to invisible radiation that can kill them as well as any livestock or other crops within the area.

This scenario is not science fiction. The CBS news show “60 Minutes” detailed that train failure are happening at a rate of nearly one every 24 hours. That is a train accident once every day.

The Department of Energy wants to ship nuclear waste on our railways, past our schools, past our hospitals, through our neighborhoods and communities, and past schools and farms.

Madam Speaker, our responsibility is to protect the American public, not endanger them. We cannot allow the DOE to threaten the lives of our constituents.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for one minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Madam Speaker, as the debate over using Federal funds to support embryonic stem cell research goes forwards, I would urge my colleagues in this Chamber to consider the clear words of Pope John Paul II spoken to our President today, who said in Rome, “Experience is already showing how a tragic coarsening of consciences accompanies the assault on innocent life in the womb, leading to the accommodation and acquiescence in the face of other related evils such as euthanasia, infanticide, and, most recently, proposals for the creation for research purposes of human embryos, destined to destruction in the process.”

The Pope went on to say, “A free and virtuous society which America aspires to be must reject practices that de-value and violate human life at any stage from conception until natural death.

May we in this Chamber, Madam Speaker, and our President heed the words of this gentle servant of God.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. Biggert). Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that she will postpone further proceedings today on each motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote is ordered on or after 6 p.m. today.

MOUNT NEBO WILDERNESS

BOUNDARY ADJUSTMENT ACT

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 451). To make certain adjustments to the boundaries of the Mount Nebo Wilderness Area, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 451

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Mount Nebo Wilderness Boundary Adjustment Act”.

SEC. 2. BOUNDARY ADJUSTMENTS.

(a) LANDS REMOVED.—The boundary of the Mount Nebo Wilderness is adjusted to exclude the following:

(1) MONUMENT SPRINGS.—The approximately 8.4 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Monument Springs”.

(2) GARDNER CANYON.—The approximately 177.8 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Gardner Canyon”.

(3) BIRCH CREEK.—The approximately 5.0 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Birch Creek”.

(4) INGRAM CANYON.—The approximately 15.4 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Ingram Canyon”.

(5) WILLOW NORTH A.—The approximately 3.4 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Willow North A”.

(6) WILLOW NORTH B.—The approximately 6.6 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Willow North B”.

(7) WILLOW SOUTH.—The approximately 21.5 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Willow South”.

(8) MENDENHALL CANYON.—The approximately 9.8 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Mendenhall Canyon”.

(9) WASH CANYON.—The approximately 31.4 acres of land depicted on the Map as “Wash Canyon”.

(b) LANDS ADDED.—Subject to valid existing rights, the boundary of the Mount Nebo Wilderness is adjusted to include the approximately 293.2 acres of land depicted on the Map for—dition to the Mount Nebo Wilderness. The Utah Wilderness Act of 1984 (Public Law 94-428) shall apply to the land added to the Mount Nebo Wilderness pursuant to this subsection.

SEC. 3. MAP.

(a) DEFINITION.—For the purpose of this Act, the term “Map” shall mean the map entitled “Mt. Nebo Wilderness Boundary Adjustment”, numbered S 1116, dated April 6, 2001, having an index entitled “Mount Nebo, Proposed Wilderness Boundary Adjustment, Parcel Descriptions (See Map S 512)” and filed for record at the office of the Chief of the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture.

(b) MAP ON FILE.—The Map and the final document entitled “Mount Nebo, Proposed Boundary Adjustments, Parcel Descriptions (See Map S 512)” shall be on file and available for inspection in the office of the Chief of the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture.

(c) CORRECTIONS.—The Secretary of Agriculture may make technical corrections to the Map.

SEC. 4. TECHNICAL BOUNDARY ADJUSTMENT.

The boundary of the Mount Nebo Wilderness is adjusted to exclude the approximately 21.26 acres of private property located in Andrews Canyon, Utah, and depicted on the Map as “Dale”.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS), Mr. GIBBONS, Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 451, the Mount Nebo Wilderness Boundary Adjustment Act, was introduced by the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN), who also serves as the chairman for the Committee on Resources, to resolve an ongoing dispute over access to several small water systems located in a Forest Service wilderness area in Juab County, Utah.

In 1984, Congress passed the Utah wilderness Act, which designated 800,000 acres of wilderness on Forest Service lands in Utah. One of those areas was the Mount Nebo wilderness area. Unfortunately, due to a clerical error, several small water systems, springs, pipelines, and collection boxes were erroneously included in the wilderness boundary. These water systems supplied the towns of Nephi and Mona, Utah, with most of its culinary water. Because of the wilderness designation, access to these systems was restricted, even for routine maintenance. Since that time, these systems have deteriorated due to lack of that very needed maintenance.

After years of trying to reach a solution through administrative means, Juab County and the Forest Service concluded that a legislative boundary adjustment was necessary to exclude these water developments and the private inholdings in that area. This bill, Madam Speaker, accomplishes that purpose.

In the Committee on Resources an amendment was accepted which reduced the number of acres impacted by nearly one-third. The committee also removed water language that some found objectionable. The committee made additional adjustments to include roadless Forest Service lands as wilderness to compensate for the lands removed, resulting in a net increase of 13 acres to the 800,000 acres previously designated wilderness area. The end result is that Nephi City and the Town of Mona will have access to their historic water developments and the private inholdings have been removed from the wilderness area, and the Forest Service will have a wilderness area with less human intrusion and fewer access issues.

Madam Speaker, I urge the passage of H.R. 451.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. MCGOVERN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCGOVERN. Madam Speaker, H.R. 451 would adjust the boundaries of the Mount Nebo Wilderness in the Uinta National Forest in Utah by removing approximately 279 acres and adding approximately 293 acres. The nine parcels to be excluded from wilderness include mines, private property, and water transmission and storage facilities.

Under existing law, water system operator permits must get permission from the Regional Forester to maintain their systems by motorized access. Complying with stringent guidelines for wilderness management, the Forest Service has not routinely granted these requests. H.R. 451 addresses the difficulties encountered by these operators by “cherry steming” these areas out of the wilderness.

While amendments in committee significantly improve the bill, it still lacks language that would restrict motorized use in areas removed from wilderness to repairing or maintaining existing facilities operating under current special use permits. Without this language, H.R. 451 could lead to more widespread use of motorized vehicles in and around the wilderness and make boundary management difficult.

We believe changes to wilderness boundaries and management should not be made lightly or done routinely. Wilderness bills are the result of lengthy, carefully crafted negotiations. Areas included and excluded from wilderness are rarely accidental. Legislation that overrides the Wilderness Act undermines the Act and degrades wilderness value. H.R. 451 addresses a unique situation, and we will not object to it. However, we hope it will not serve as precedent for future modifications to congressionally designated wilderness boundaries. We also hope that, rather than moving bills that remove land from the National Wilderness Preservation System, the committee will focus on moving bills that add significant acreage of wilderness to the system.

Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
July 23, 2001

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker. I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS) to suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 271, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS).

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I introduced H.R. 271 to direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the city of Carson City, Nevada, for use as a senior center.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 271

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. CONVEYANCE OF CERTAIN BLM DESIGNATING LANDS IN CARSON CITY, NEVADA

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 271) to direct the Secretary of the Interior to convey a former Bureau of Land Management administrative site to the city of Carson City, Nevada, for use as a senior center.

The land adjacent to the center is former Bureau of Land Management property which has been vacant since 1997 and is completely surrounded by property owned by Carson City. The BLM has moved into a new office and is fully supportive of the land conveyance.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 271 is a non-controversial bill which has strong support from local and State officials, as well as the residents of Carson City, Nevada. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGovern asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. McGovern. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 271 directs the Bureau of Land Management to donate a piece of Federal property in Carson City, Nevada, to the city for use as a senior citizen’s assisted living center.

The four-acre parcel has been vacant since 1997 and is being used by the BLM as a vehicle and storage facility, and is adjacent to an existing senior center.

Carson City applied to acquire the property under the Recreation and Public Purposes Act, but the residential nature of the proposed center does not qualify under the act.

Given the prohibitive expense to the community were they forced to purchase the property, as well as the valuable purpose for which they intend to use the land, this transfer appears to be appropriate. Importantly, the legislation specifies that the property will revert to Federal ownership if it ever ceases to be used as a senior center.

Madam Speaker, we support passage of H.R. 271, and I commend the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS) for his work on this bill.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, let me add in final remarks on this bill that Carson City is one of the fastest growing senior populations in the State of Nevada, and they have long outgrown the existing senior center, as we have already talked about.

The land we are discussing here is approximately 4.48 acres, more or less. The official plat approved October 28, 1996, containing 4.48 acres, more or less, and assorted improvements, is T. 15 N., R. 20 E., Mount Diablo Meridian, as depicted on a map dated May 2000 and entered in the records of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management administrative site to the city of Carson City, Nevada, without consideration, all right, title, and interest of the United States in the property described as Government Lot 1 in sec. 8, T. 15 N., R. 20 E., Mount Diablo Meridian, as shown on the Bureau of Land Management official plat approved October 28, 1996, containing 4.48 acres, more or less, and assorted uninhabitable buildings and improvements.

Section (a) Conveyance.—Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Director of the Bureau of Land Management, shall convey to the city of Carson City, Nevada, without consideration, all right, title, and interest of the United States in the property described as Government Lot 1 in sec. 8, T. 15 N., R. 20 E., Mount Diablo Meridian, as shown on the Bureau of Land Management official plat approved October 28, 1996, containing 4.48 acres, more or less, and assorted uninhabitable buildings and improvements.

Section (b) Use.—The conveyance of the property under subsection (a) shall be subject to reversion to the United States if the property is used for a purpose other than the purpose of a senior assisted living center or a related public purpose.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS) to suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 271, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Ms. Wanda Evans, one of his secretaries.

PROVIDING FURTHER PROTECTIONS FOR WATERSHED OF LITTLE SANDY RIVER

Mr. GIBBONS. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 427) to provide further protections for the watershed of the Little Sandy River as part of the Bull Run Watershed Management Unit, Oregon, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 427

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. INCLUSION OF ADDITIONAL PORTION OF THE LITTLE SANDY RIVER WATERSHED IN THE BULL RUN WATERSHED MANAGEMENT UNIT, OREGON

SEC. 202. PERMANENT AUTHORITY RELATING TO ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 31 of title 28, United States Code (as amended by section 201), is amended by adding at the end the following:

§ 530D. Report on enforcement of laws.

(a) REPORT.

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General shall submit to the Congress a report of any instance in which the Attorney General or any officer of the Department of Justice—

(A) Implement[es a formal or informal policy to refrain—

(i) from enforcing, applying, or administering any provision of any Federal statute, executive order, program, policy, or other law whose enforcement, application, or administration is within the responsibility of the Attorney General or such officer on the ground that such provision is unconstitutional; or

(ii) within any judicial jurisdiction of or within the United States, from adhering to, enforcing, applying, or complying with any standing rule of decision (binding upon courts of, or inferior to those of, that jurisdiction) established by a final decision of any court of, or superior to those of, that jurisdiction, respecting the interpretation, construction, or application of the Constitution, any Federal statute, executive order, program, policy, or other law whose enforcement, application, or administration is within the responsibility of the Attorney General or such officer—

(B) determines—

(i) to contest affirmatively, in any judicial, administrative, or other proceeding, the constitutionality of any provision of any Federal statute, executive order, program, policy, or other law; or

(ii) to refrain from defending or asserting, in any judicial, administrative, or other proceeding, the constitutionality of any provision of any Federal statute, executive order, program, policy, or other law, or to apeal or request review of any judicial, administrative, or other determination adversely affecting the constitutionality of any such provision; or

(C) approves (other than in circumstances in which a report is submitted to the Joint Committee on Taxation, pursuant to section 1102 of title 2, of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) the settlement or compromise (other than in bankruptcy) of any claim, suit, or other action—

(i) against the United States (including any agency or instrumentality thereof) for a sum that exceeds, or is likely to exceed, $2,000,000; or

(ii) by the United States (including any agency or instrumentality thereof) pursuant to an agreement, consent decree, or order (or pursuant to any modification of an agreement, consent decree, or order) that provides injunctive or other nonmonetary relief that exceeds, or is likely to exceed, 3 years in duration.

(2) SUBMISSION OF REPORT TO THE CONGRESS.—For purposes of paragraph (1), a report shall be submitted to the Congress if the report is submitted to—

(A) the majority leader and minority leader of the Senate;

(B) the Speaker, majority leader, and minority leader of the House of Representatives;

(C) the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, and the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Senate;

(D) the Senate Legal Counsel and the General Counsel of the House of Representatives.

(3) DEADLINE.—A report shall be submitted—

(1) under subsection (a)(1)(A), not later than 30 days after the establishment or implementation of such policy;

(2) under subsection (a)(1)(B), within such time as will reasonably enable the House of Representatives and the Senate to take action, separately or jointly, to intervene in timely fashion in the proceeding, but in no event later than 30 days after the making of each determination; and

(3) under subsection (a)(1)(C), not later than 30 days after the conclusion of each fis-

ec-year quarter, with respect to all approvals occurring in such quarter.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—A report required by subsection (a) shall—

(1) specify the date of the establishment or implementation of the policy described in subsection (a)(1)(A) or of the making of the determination described in subsection (a)(1)(B), or of each approval described in subsection (a)(1)(C);

(2) include a complete and detailed statement of the relevant issues and background (including a complete and detailed statement of the reasons for the policy or determination, and the identity of the officer responsible for establishing or implementing such policy, making such determination, or approving such settlement or compromise), except that—

(A) such details may be omitted as may be absolutely necessary to prevent improper disclosure of national security information, or of any information subject to the deliberative-process-, executive-, attorney-work-product-, or attorney-client privilege; and

(B) the requirements of this paragraph shall be deemed satisfied—

(i) in the case of an approval described in subsection (a)(1)(C)(i), if an unredacted copy of the entire settlement agreement and consent decree or order (if any) is provided, along with a statement indicating the legal basis for withholding or redacting any settlement or compromise (if not apparent on the face of documents provided); and

(ii) in the case of an approved description in subsection (a)(1)(C)(ii), if the unredacted copy of the entire settlement agreement and consent decree or order (if any) is provided, along with a statement indicating the injunction or other nonmonetary relief (if not apparent on the face of documents provided); and

(2) in the case of a determination described in subsection (a)(1)(B) or an approval described in subsection (a)(1)(C), indicate the nature, tribunal, identifying information, and status of the proceeding, suit, or action.

(d) APPLICATION.—

(1) APPLICABILITY TO THE PRESIDENT AND TO EXECUTIVE AGENCIES AND MILITARY DE-

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director shall have the following duties:

“(1) Serving as special counsel to the Attorney General on the subject of violence against women.

“(2) Maintaining liaison with the judicial branch, Federal and State Governments on matters relating to violence against women.

“(3) Providing information to the President, the Congress, the judiciary, State and local governments, and the general public on matters relating to violence against women.

“(4) Serving, at the request of the Attorney General or Assistant Attorney General, as the representative of the Department of Justice on domestic task forces, committees, or commissions addressing policy or issues relating to violence against women.

“(5) Serving, at the request of the President, acting through the Attorney General, as the representative of the United States Government on human rights and economic justice matters related to violence against women in international fora, including, but not limited to, the United Nations.

“(6) Carrying out the functions of the Department of Justice under the Violence Against Women Act of 1994 (title IV of Public Law 103–322) and the amendments made by that Act to matters of the Department of Justice on matters relating to violence against women, including with respect to those functions—

“(A) the development of policy, protocols, and guidelines;

“(B) the development and management of grant programs and other programs, and the provision of technical assistance under such programs; and

“(C) the award and termination of grants, cooperative agreements, and contracts.

“(7) Providing for adequate assistance, coordination, and support to—

“(A) other components of the Department of Justice, in efforts to develop policy and to enforce our Nation’s antitrust laws, environmental laws, antitrust laws, civil rights laws, immigration and naturalization laws, environmental statutes, tax laws, and numerous other Federal statutes. The lawyers at the Department of Justice represent the United States and the departments and agencies of the Federal Government. In short, the vast majority of legal questions litigated by the Federal Government are reviewed and handled by the Department of Justice.

This great power and responsibility can be a tremendous force for good throughout the Nation and the world. Also, abuse, misuse, and neglect of this power can have detrimental effects that reverberate throughout this country. The Department of Justice is unlike any other department or agency of the Federal Government because its job is providing justice to all. Thus it must be held to the highest standards. Because of its importance, Congress should be fully aware of the Department. Unfortunately, Congress has not done a good job of oversight of the Department in the past and needs to do much better.

Further, Congress has neglected its basic responsibility for the last 20 years by failing to authorize the programs within the Department of Justice. It is shameful that the last bill authorizing appropriations for the Department was signed into law by President Carter on November 30, 1979. The last serious effort to authorize the Department was undertaken by my predecessor, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Conyers), during the 105th Congress, but the other body failed to act on that legislation. Congress must do a much better job in overseeing the many departments and agencies that make up the Federal Government, and today this bill will be a giant leap forward in that effort by authorizing the DOJ and its components.

One reason the Department needs increased oversight is its size. In 1993, the budget authority for the Department was $11.3 billion. Today, it exceeds $24 billion. In 1993, the Department had 90,600 authorized positions. Today it has 35,000 more. In 1993, the Immigration and Naturalization Service had over 53,000 authorized positions and over 18,000 authorized positions. Today the INS has over $5 billion in budget authority and 33,500 authorized positions.

I doubt that many Members or their constituents would argue that the increased funding and staffing at the INS has improved its operations appreciably. I would feel the opposite. Another area of exponential growth at the Department has been its grant-making authority. In 1993, the Office of Justice Programs distributed almost $1 billion in grants. In fiscal year 2001, the Department will distribute more than $5 billion. This growth of budget authority anywhere cries out for congressional oversight. This bill takes us in that direction.

Title I of the bill authorizes appropriations for the major components of the Justice Department for fiscal year 2002. While President Bush’s budget provides a breather from the hefty increases the Department has seen over the last several years from approximately $460 to 360 full-time equivalents. I believe that Congress has been penny-wise and pound foolish in this regard. We should spend a little bit more time, effort, and money on oversight and a little less on other bloated DOJ programs. I would urge the congresses in the DJ appropriation bill to adequately fund the new responsibilities that have come to the IG.

H.R. 2215 requires the IG to submit an oversight plan for the FBI to the Congress and requires the Attorney General to review Attorney General Reno’s order numbered 1931-94. Coincidentally, Attorney General Ashcroft overturned this order on July 11, a day after the report to H.R. 2215 was filed in the House. Now the DOJ Inspector General has full authority over both the FBI and DEA. Passage of this bill will help the new Director and the Attorney General make needed improvements to this prestigious agency.

The bill also authorizes a Violence Against Women Office within the Justice Department. This provision was offered by the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. Baldwin). The VAWO would be headed by a director who is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

In addition, title IV enumerates duties and responsibilities of the Director and requires the Attorney General to ensure the VAWO is adequately staffed. Since its adoption in committee, this provision has been changed to ensure that it may utilize the existing bureaucracy at the Office of Justice Programs. As originally drafted, the VAWO would have had to establish its own grant making office and administrative offices. The director of VAWO will report to the Assistant Attorney General but may report to the Deputy Attorney General on such matters as she deems appropriate.

I appreciate the work of the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. Baldwin) and her willingness to ensure that this office works properly within the existing bureau structure.

Finally, Madam Speaker, I would like to highlight one other provision of this bill. It contains an important provision that directs the Department of Justice to submit all reports it is required to submit, including reprogramming notices and transfer requests, to the Committee on the Judiciary in addition to any other committee. This provision will allow the Committee on the Judiciary conduct oversight of the Department.

I urge all Members to support this legislation.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in support of this legislation, H.R. 2215, and thank the chairman and the ranking member of the Committee on the Judiciary for doing an act, if you will, that has not been done in more than 20 years, authorizing the Department of Justice.

In support of this bill and commend the chairman and the ranking member for not only defending the Committee on the Judiciary’s jurisdiction but also authorizing the Department of Justice.

The committee has not authorized the Department of Justice in more than 20 years, instead permitting the appropriators to decide the DOJ programs that should be authorized and for how much. Needless to say, this puts a serious cramp in the committee’s critical oversight duties and as well the vision for the laws that guide America and the concept that we are a Nation of laws as well as a Nation of people.

To remedy this, the chairman worked with the Democratic staff and the Justice Committee staff on H.R. 2215. Aside from fixing errors in the law, H.R. 2215 is the voice of the committee in progress, I would say, on how the Justice Department should be funded. For example, this bill tracks our request for the Civil Rights Division to receive $101.8 million for fiscal year 2002. There are many issues, of course, that are of interest to us dealing with those, and I will discuss those issues as I proceed in this discussion.

Among the things they will fund will be FACE enforcement that is extremely important, that is, legislation that adheres to the rules and the guidance of our civil rights. The bill also creates a separate and statutory office for the administration of the Violence Against Women Act. The new Violence Against Women Act will raise the profile of VAWA issues and make it easier to distribute grants to combat domestic and other forms of violence against women. In particular, this was an effort that the Democrats on the Committee on the Judiciary, and we worked in a bipartisan way to secure this. I am interested, however, in making sure that we include in this office the oversight of violence against college campuses, which has been a rising statistic. We should ensure that date rape that occurs mostly on college campuses is part of the efforts of this office and of course the Violence Against Women Act.

That being said, the bill, of course, has many good points to it, but it is not perfect. For instance, it does not touch on an all-important DOJ grant program such as COPS, but it is a useful start. The Civil Rights Division receives $101.8 million for fiscal year 2002. In particular, this was a bipartisan effort to secure the civil rights of all Americans. It is crucial that the Civil Rights Division is funded in this time because of the very important issues covering racial profiling and voter rights enforcement.

Needless to say, issues that occurred in Florida are symptomatic of what is occurring across the country as we have had hearings to emphasize that our electoral system, our voting system, is in fact broken. In most instances in minority and poor communities, there is poor equipment, there is poor education, there are untrained workers across the Nation, and we need to ensure that the Office of Civil Rights is involved in voting rights enforcement and, as well, the fixing of the election infra.

Let me also add an additional insight, even though I know it is covered by the oversight committees dealing with the United States military. I have had conversations with military personnel who argued that they have not gotten information, outreach information about voter registration, absentee balloting, and so we are leaving the men and women who offer their lives every day on our behalf out of the polling places in a democratic process. We must ensure that the U.S. military, as well, is covered by any laws and any remedies that we have in changing the voter laws of this Nation to ensure there is no discrimination and, as well, that there is outreach and that every single vote is counted. The full funding of the Civil Rights Division does that.

Let me also applaud and suggest that we are, if you will, gratified for the enhanced funding of the Inspector General's Office. The Inspector General's Office does many things. The $10 million that we have authorized will help it do its job better. In particular, as we look at our responsibilities of oversight over the FBI, the terrible issues dealing with the spy case, lost weapons, lost files, requires great improvement. I am pleased that we have not gotten information, outreach information about voter registration, absentee balloting, and so we are leaving the men and women who offer their lives every day on our behalf out of the polling places in a democratic process. I rise in support of this bill and commend the Chairman not only for defending the Judiciary Committee's jurisdiction but also for his bipartisanship. The Committee has not authorized the Department of Justice in more than 20 years, instead permitting the appropriators to decide what DOJ programs should be authorized. We believe that this puts a serious cramp in the Committee's critical oversight duties.

To remedy this, the Chairman worked with the Democratic staff and the Justice Department to draft H.R. 2215. Aside from fixing errors in the law, H.R. 2215 is the voice of the Committee on how the Justice Department should be funded. For example, this bill tracks our request that the Civil Rights Division receive $101.8 million for fiscal year 2002. Among other things, these funds will be used for voting rights and police brutality investigations and FACE enforcement.

The bill also creates a separate and statutory office for the administration of the Violence Against Women Act. The new Violence Against Women Office will raise the profile of VAWA and it will be easier to distribute grants to combat domestic and other forms of violence against women.

That being said, the bill is not perfect. For instance, it does not touch on all-important DOJ grant programs such as COPS. But it is a step in the right direction and a precursor to what I hope will be more active Committee involvement in the running of the Justice Department.

Finally, the Chairman and the Ranking Member of the House Judiciary Committee have contacted Senate Judiciary Chairman Leahy in the same spirit and believe there may be a reasonable opportunity to pass this legislation in the other body.

I urge my colleagues to vote "yes" on this legislation.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBERNER. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

Mrs. MORELLA. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Department of Justice Reauthorization Act. I want to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Chairman SENSENBERNER) and his staff for their hard work on this bill.

I would also like to bring to the Members' attention a specific provision, one of many, but a specific provision that was added in the Committee on the Judiciary by the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Ms. BALDWIN), which is also stand-alone legislation introduced by Senator Leahy and myself as H.R. 28. By including this provision, we have another opportunity to strengthen the Federal Government's commitment to helping victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

The Violence Against Women Office, as amended to this bill, would make the Violence Against Women Office permanent and provide it with a Presidentially appointed and Senate-confirmed director. This office will have more than just investigator grants. It also expertly implements programs and offers Federal, State, and local governments critical assistance in policy making to combat all forms of violence against women.

The Director's ability, as set out under this bill, to report directly to the Deputy Attorney General demonstrates the essential commitment of the Federal Government and this administration to incorporating strong policies against domestic violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

Again, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Chairman SENSENBERNER) for working with the advocates to maintain this provision in H.R. 2215 and for his support for maintaining and fully funding the Violence Against Women Act grants within the Department of Justice.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this measure.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I simply want to thank the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for her leadership on the issues of violence against women.

I conclude, Madam Speaker, by thanking the chairman of the committee and the ranking member for their leadership on this legislation. I ask for passage of H.R. 2215.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to rise in support of H.R. 2215, the 21st Century Department of Justice Appropriations Authorization Act, which includes a provision to statutorily create the Violence Against Women Office within the Department of Justice.

Currently, the Violence Against Women Office is responsible for coordinating the training of judges, law enforcement and prosecutors in responding to victims of domestic violence, stalking and assault. Among other responsibilities, it works with states and localities to provide a coordinated community response to domestic violence and establishes public education initiatives to heighten national awareness of domestic violence as a crime. Unfortunately, this office stands on the verge of being abolished at any time.

As we begin a new century, violence against women remains a national problem. At present, approximately 4.9 million domestic physical assaults take place against women annually in the United States. There are also 1.1 million protective or restraining orders obtained by victims of intimate partner rape, physical assault, and stalking annually. And finally, $22.3 billion in criminal and legal costs are incurred by domestic violence victims each year.

In response to these statistics, I introduced H.R. 28, the Violence Against Women Office Act, which would establish the Office permanently in statute. I am proud to report that the bill currently has 148 cosponsors. With overwhelming bipartisan support, this language was included as an amendment to H.R. 2215 by the members of the House Judiciary Committee.

Establishing the Violence Against Women Office permanently within the Department of Justice responds to the growing problem of domestic violence and ensures the continued coordination of support, education, and assistance initiatives from the national to the community level.

As the members of House Judiciary Committee have recognized by including the language of H.R. 28 as an amendment to this bill, the need for a permanent Violence Against Women Office is strong. Moreover, without the security of a statute, the continuation of the Office's important work is threatened. Today, we have the opportunity to change that.

Domestic violence is nothing less than an epidemic and must be attacked with all the resources we would bring to bear against a deadly disease. I therefore urge my colleagues to support H.R. 2215, which includes a provision to establish the Violence Against Women Office permanently in statute.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBERNER. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBERNER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 2215, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

CRIMINAL LAW TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS ACT OF 2001

Mr. SENSENBERNER. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 2137) to make clerical and other technical amendments to title 18, United States Code, and other laws relating to crime and criminal procedure, as amended.

Mr. SENSENBERGER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in favor of the bill, H.R. 2137, the Criminal Law Technical Amendments Act of 2001. I am satisfied that the Criminal Law Technical Amendments Act of 2001 is simply what its name implies, a bill involving purely technical amendments to the Federal criminal code.

The bill is cosponsored by the chairmen of the Committee on the Judiciary; the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), the ranking minority member of the Subcommittee on Crime; and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT), the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Crime.

I urge Members to support this bill.

Madam Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 1892, the Family Sponsor Immigration Act of 2001, was introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVET) and amended in the Committee on the Judiciary by our other colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. ISSA). I want to thank both of them for bringing to our attention an unintended quirk in the Immigration and Nationality Act that needlessly keeps families separated. I want to thank them for developing this bill, which brings families back together.

Each year the United States provides hundreds of thousands of immigrant visas for spouses and other family members of U.S. citizens and permanent residents. Tragically, each year a number of these U.S. citizens and permanent residents petitioning for their family members will die before the immigration process is complete. Generally, INS regulations provide for the automatic revocation of a petition when the petitioner dies. The consequences are severe for a beneficiary when his or her petitioner dies before the beneficiary has adjusted status or received an immigrant visa.

If no other relative can qualify as a petitioner, then the beneficiary would lose an opportunity to become a permanent resident.

For instance, if a petition is revoked because a widowed citizen’s father dies after petitioning for an adult unmarried daughter, the daughter would have no living mother to file a new petition. In another related scenario, immigrant visa petition for the beneficiary, the visa petition would become a potential beneficiary

Because of the severe consequences of the revocation of a visa petition, INS regulations do allow the Attorney General, in his or her discretion, to determine that, for humanitarian reasons, revocation would be inappropriate and thus complete the unification of a family.

However, there is a complication. The Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 requires that when a family member petitions for a relative to receive an immigrant visa, the visa must ultimately be granted if the petitioner signs a legally binding affidavit of support promising to provide for the support of the immigrant. If the petitioner has died, obviously he or she cannot sign that affidavit. Thus, even in cases where the Attorney General feels a humanitarian waiver of the revocation of the visa petition is warranted, under current law a permanent resident visa cannot be granted because the affidavit requirement cannot be fulfilled.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 1892 solves this dilemma. It simply provides that in cases where the petitioner has died and the Attorney General has determined for humanitarian reasons that revocation of the petition would be inappropriate, a close family member other than the petitioner would be allowed to sign the necessary affidavit of support.

Eligible family members of beneficiaries would include spouses, parents, grandparents, siblings, adult sons-in-law and daughters, adult sons-in-law and daughters-in-law, and grandchildren. Legal guardians would also be eligible.
In order to sign an affidavit of support, the individual would need to meet the general eligibility requirements needed to be an immigrant sponsor. Thus, he or she would need to, first, be a citizen or national of the United States; second, be 18 years of age; third, be domiciled in a State, the District of Columbia, or any territory or possession of the United States; and, fourth, demonstrate the means (i.e., personal financial assets) to support the applicant and any accompanying dependents.

The Family Sponsor Immigration Act of 2001 is a very important immigration bill. With bipartisan support, we are correcting a glitch in the current immigration law. As the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims of the House Committee on the Judiciary, I was pleased to work with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Gekas), the chairman of the subcommittee, on this legislation, along with the original sponsors of this legislation as well, and I thank them for their service and leadership.

Currently, the Immigration and Nationality Act requires that the same person that petitions for the admission of an immigrant must also sign the affidavit of support—the sponsor. So if the sponsor dies, current law does not allow someone else to sign the affidavit of support, although they are a legitimate person, although there is no attempt to commit fraud, and that person is unable to adjust his or her status to receive an immigrant visa, even though they have been waiting in a line in a very procedurally correct manner and adhering to the laws of our Nation. Such consequences of the law toward a beneficiary when his or her petitioner dies before the beneficiary has a chance to adjust status or receive an immigrant visa are too harsh.

H.R. 1892 will amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to allow an alternative sponsor—a close family member other than the petitioner—as a substitute if the original sponsor of the affidavit of support has died, assuming all other requirements are met.

H.R. 1892 allows the alternative sponsors to be a: spouse, parent, mother-in-law, father-in-law, daughter-in-law, grandparent, or grandchild of a sponsored alien or a legal guardian of a sponsored alien.

This bill, H.R. 1892, which has bipartisan support, is important because in the event of the death of the sponsor the beneficiary’s application will now be able to have someone else sign the affidavit of support and the beneficiary’s application for permanent residency can move forward without losing the beneficiary’s priority date. In essence, not having them go to the back of the line and, therefore, delaying them being reunited with their family.

Madam Speaker, I believe this is an important initiative that we have done in a bipartisan way, and I ask my colleagues to support this legislation.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise to support H.R. 1892, and I believe that it is a legislative initiative that speaks to the cornerstone of immigration policy in this Nation: family reunification.

The Family Sponsor Immigration Act of 2001 is a very important immigration bill. With bipartisan support, we are correcting a glitch in the current immigration law. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRUNNER. Madam Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Calvert), the author of the bill.

Mr. CALVERT. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

In January of this year, my office received a letter from a constituent that hit a roadblock in his attempt to obtain U.S. citizenship. His father, who petitioned for my constituent’s permanent U.S. residence over 8 years ago, suddenly passed away. He had long ago filled out the necessary paperwork and paid the required $1,000 fee.

Last December, my constituent went for his interview with the INS. His paperwork was in order. He was asked if he had ever been in trouble with the law or accepted government assistance. The constituent, who had worked as a manager at a gas station the past 6 years and filed taxes every year, said no. Everything seemed fine. But a week later a letter from the INS came, notifying him that his permanent residence was denied because his petitioner, his father, was dead. Under current law, he had to turn to the end of the line and begin the 8 to 10 year process all over again.

This roadblock only discourages legal immigration. As millions of undocumented immigrants enter this country illegally, law-abiding immigrants like my constituent find that their first interaction with the United States Government is frustrating and confusing. The news of this process surely reaches back to the immigrant's home country. Some might use situations like this as an excuse to forgo the legal process and instead become illegal aliens. This is no way to promote legal immigration.

Madam Speaker, H.R. 1892 would cut down this roadblock in the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1996. Currently, if an applicant’s petitioner dies after an application is accepted by the INS, the applicant is automatically returned to the beginning of the entire naturalization process, a 7 to 8 year process. They cannot substitute their financial sponsor with another qualified relative.

This legislation would allow for a parent, spouse, son, daughter, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, grandparents, or sibling, as long as they qualify, to take up the role of financial sponsor from a deceased sponsor, without having an interruption in the nationalization process for the applicant. So it is important to note this legislation will not allow unqualified applicants to be adjusted or unqualified sponsors to take up sponsorship. Nor will this legislation have any impact on the number of immigrants entering the process. This legislation only affects applicants already in the adjustment process. This bill is non-controversial, a good fix to this infrequent but substantial problem. It passed the full Committee on the Judiciary by voice vote.

On July 11, 2001, the President participated in a swearing-in of immigrants at Ellis Island and announced his support for this measure. The President said, ”If a child’s parent and financial sponsor should pass away, we should permit the other parent to take over as sponsor.”

The President’s recognition that we are a nation of immigrants and his concern that the naturalization process has become unwieldy for legal immigrants serves to quickly correct this present injustice. More importantly, his support for such legislation moves us closer to getting this bill signed into law. This legislation would correct an injustice suffered by too many immigrants that have chosen to adjust their immigration status through the legal process. Immigrants that apply for this status are financially secure and contributors to our society, not burdens on it. These are the immigration cases that should be promoted, not further frustrated.

Madam Speaker, I would like to thank people who have helped on this bill, including the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVET), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary; the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. CANNON) who were very active in helping us perfect this legislation; and certainly the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER), the chairman of the full committee; and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GEKAS), the chairman of the sub-committee; and the ranking members who worked diligently on passing this bill through the entire committee.

Finally, I would like to thank the Khan family who brought this issue to my attention. I look forward to the day when the Khan brothers will become U.S. citizens. These are hard-working individuals who will only be an asset to our community and to our country. I am proud to be able to help them achieve that dream sooner rather than later.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I am delighted to yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK) for all her work on the Committee on the Judiciary; the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY), the chair of the Democratic Caucus Task Force on Children.

(Ms. WOOLSEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WOOLSEY. Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Family Immigration Sponsor Act. In fact, a family member left behind with a child — a child who has become a well-known example of exactly why this bill is necessary.

Mrs. Zhenfu Ge, a 73-year-old Chinese national, came to the United States in 1998 to help care for her dying daughter and her daughter’s two children. Her daughter, my constituent, Yanyu Wong, requested that her mother be able to stay in America to take care of her grandchildren after the mother died. These are hard-working individuals who will only be an asset to our community and to our country. I am proud to be able to help them achieve that dream sooner rather than later.

But this is not to say that there are not one, two, or three thousand separations right now in America. Under current law, death of the petitioner forfeits the priority date. This, like many of the problems dealt with in this legislation, would have a new priority date, creating a tragic outcome for family members who have already waited more than 10 years for their number to be called.

Ms. LOFGREN. Madam Speaker, I, too, have at least one of my constituents who has the same problem. Mr. Myrna Gabriola has tried, so far in vain, to take over the sponsorship of her two brothers.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote for the Family Immigration Sponsor Act to help relieve some of the pain that families like Mrs. Ge’s have endured.

Mr. ISSA asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Madam Speaker, I, too, rise in support of H.R. 1892. I, too, have at least one of my constituents who has the same problem. Mrs. Ge’s case is a tragic example of exactly why this bill is necessary.

Mrs. Ge must go back to China and restart the process. Realizing the devastating results of these circumstances, I introduced H.R. 2011, a private bill to allow Mrs. Ge to remain legally in the United States while she completes the process for legal status.

Forcing Mrs. Ge to abandon her family during this time would only add to the tragedy her 3-year-old granddaughter and 12-year-old grandson were already experiencing. Allowing Mrs. Ge to stay in the country would give the children a living link with their mother and to their mother’s culture, something they would be denied forever if their grandmother is deported.

With the passage of the Family Immigration Sponsor Act, authored by the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVET), Mrs. Ge can stay in America and take care of her daughter’s children while she completes the immigration process. Then she can keep her promise to her daughter. Madam Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to vote for the Family Immigration Sponsor Act to help relieve some of the pain that families like Mrs. Ge’s have endured.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I rise in support of the Family Sponsor Immigration Act of 2001.

I wish to thank the Committee on the Judiciary for reporting this important bill, especially the gentlewoman from Wisconsin (Chairman SENSENBRENNER) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), and acknowledge the sterling leadership of the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVET) for introducing this bill, which will help many grieving families where the petitioners die before the family member is able to gain immigration status.

I have had several of these cases over the years, and have had to transmit the sad news to the families who have been waiting sometimes more than 10 years before the parent petitioner died, and the petition was then, upon his death, deemed expired.

They were told that their only option was to have another family member file a new petition and perhaps wait another 10 years. This is a tearful message to transmit to any loved one.

Under current law, death of the parent petitioner forfeits the priority date established by the deceased parent. The new petition would have a new priority date, creating a tragic outcome for family members who have already waited more than 10 years for their number to be called.

This bill provides a compassionate outcome. The current law allows the Attorney General to offer a humanitarian reprieve, but he could not because the affidavit of support was deemed void upon the death of the petitioner. This bill allows the voided affidavit of support of the deceased to be submitted by another affidavit submitted by a close family member. It is a commonsense kind of solution to a very tragic personal problem.

This bill offers an avenue of relief for many grieving families who continue their petitions for loved ones, even under the devastating conditions today that they have to wait another 10 years. I hope that this bill will pass and will become law, and will provide the kind of relief that these families have been waiting so long to have.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. HONDA), who is... well aware of these issues. Having visited his district, I know of his leadership on the issues of family reunification.

Mr. HONDA. Madam Speaker, I just want to enter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD my thanks for the leadership of the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVERT), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENIBRENNER), and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

The reason I rise on this issue, Madam Speaker, is because just this past week I was visited by a constituent who is a Russian immigrant. He came to this country as a refugee. He was trying to reunite his family, his adult son and his family, and it turns out that he had a change of categories in Russia. Because of that, he lost his standing as a refugee and became an immigrant applicant. That made him go to the end of the line.

The reason the family came to me is because he exhausted all his administrative remedy and all he had left was hope, the hope that he may live long enough that his son may be with him in this country as a legal immigrant. But that would have to wait 4 to 6 years. He is an elderly person.

He asked me if there was any way to change this ruling so that he would be allowed to see his son who has been in Russia for all these years. I had no answer because the rules are the rules. He wanted to follow them, but he wonders if there is a way we could shorten that.

This bill may not give him much hope in the sense that he may not live long enough, but it will give him hope that his son may enter into this country under his petition currently, and that if he does pass away, he will at least have the satisfaction that his petition will remain current.

So in order to support this with all my emotion, all my support, for this family who face this possibility, and I have seen this, but with the hope that the family will ultimately be reunified.

I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVERT) for this bill.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I conclude by simply saying we have heard the number of tragedies that this legislation will cure. Again, I thank the author of the legislation, and I appreciate the bipartisan effort in bringing it to the floor of the House so we may cure the tragedies that have impacted families and reunite the families.

I ask my colleagues to support H.R. 1892.

Mr. HORN. Madam Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1892, the Family Sponsor Immigration Act, and urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this worthwhile legislation.

Madam Speaker, many Americans share a very serious concern that our immigration laws can be abused by others who disrespect the legal process. However, there are countless individuals who abide by the law and deserve a fair and just process. The Family Sponsor Immigration Act provides that fairness to those who have followed the letter of the law in seeking legal immigration.

This important legislation corrects an unfair loophole in the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1996. Currently, an immigrant applying for permanent resident status must have a single family member sponsor them. If the sponsor dies before the application is reviewed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the applicant is forced to find another sponsor and begin the naturalization process over again. These families are forced to fall back of the line due to the circumstances beyond their control.

The Family Sponsor Immigration Act allows another qualified immediate family member to take up the role of the deceased sponsor from a deceased sponsor without interrupting the naturalization process. By correcting this injustice suffered by many immigrants who followed the legal process, we can ensure fairness in our immigration system.

This bill in no way allows unqualified applicants or unqualified sponsors to abuse the system. There is also no impact on the number of immigrants entering the naturalization process. Familial unity is a priority in our immigration policy, and this bill will promote that goal. By providing this commonsense correction to the naturalization process, we can ensure fairness and compassion for law-abiding individuals.

I encourage my colleagues to support this effort. Let us support vigorously H.R. 1892.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Madam Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the passage of the Family Sponsor Immigration Act, introduced by my good friend and neighbor, Ken CALVERT. This legislation will help us avert family tragedies that now happen all too often because of our overworked immigration system.

Jamie Clarino and his family are an example of the tragedy of how our system now works. Mr. Clarino, a Filipino native, fought with the United States Army in World War II and won his American citizenship through his military service.

In 1988, Mr. Clarino petitioned to sponsor his four adult children for legal immigration to the United States. Unfortunately, far more people would like to come to our country from the Philippines than we can accept in any year. In fact, the backlog is so large from the Philippines that it took 12 years—until the year 2000—for Mr. Clarino's children to be certified to begin the immigration process.

Their documents were found in order. They were scheduled for an interview with our consular officials in Manila that would complete the process. They would soon be able to join our U.S. citizen father in his home for the past dozen years.

And then tragedy struck: Mr. Clarino died just before the interviews were to take place. He could not sign the affidavit of support required of those who follow the rules. Under our current law, these children of this man who fought for America in World War II must now begin the process all over again with a new sponsor.

Without this legislation, the Clarino family will be forced to wait perhaps a decade more years for the chance to immigrate. As you can imagine, this means the dream of their father—that his family come to his adopted homeland—will probably never become reality. A sister who is a lawful permanent resident, who could easily take over as sponsor for her siblings, will probably never get the chance.

Madam Speaker, I believe we must stop our system from adding to the tragedy of families like the Clarinos, who lose a loved one and at the same time have their hopes of coming to America dashed. My friend Ken CALVERT's bill would allow families to continue their quest under a new sponsor, without losing their place in line. It does not grant special favors; it merely closes a loophole to help those families who are playing by the rules to gain legal immigration to our nation.

I ask my colleagues to support H.R. 1892 and urge its passage.

Mr. ISSA. Madam Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 1892, the "Family Sponsor Immigration Act of 2001." I thank Congressman Ken CALVERT, author of this bill, Chairman SENSENIBRENNER, Chairman GIKAS, and the Immigration Subcommittee staff for their leadership and assistance on this bill. This bill will correct the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) to allow another family member to become a sponsor of an applicant by signing an affidavit of support if the original sponsor has died.

Current INS regulation, set up by the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRIRA), allows sponsors to sign an affidavit of support to transfer sponsorship of an applicant if a previous sponsor dies without signing an affidavit of support, the applicant must start the process all over again. Due to the immense number of applicants filing for permanent residency, the application process for the INS can take more than a decade.

I first became aware of this problem in the IIRIRA of 1996 when my district office told me of a constituent, Myrna Gabiola, who wanted to sponsor her two brothers after her father passed away. The family was so focused on the health of the father that they did not realize that the father had to sign an affidavit of support allowing another family member to take over the application while he was still alive. There was no indication of a problem until Renan and Ben Patao had interviews and did not have the required affidavit of support. They were subsequently denied because their father had passed away before the interviews took place.

The Gabiola family waited for sixteen years to be granted an interview for permanent residency but were then sent to the back of the line to begin the process over again. I urged my staff to explore every possible avenue to assist Ms. Gabiola through the administrative process, but upon further exploration, there was none. I contemplated a private bill, but after discussing the possibilities with the Immigration Subcommittee staff for the Judiciary Committee, they revealed that Congressman CALVERT had draft legislation to correct a similar situation. After talking with Congressman CALVERT, he explained that he had a concern similar to a similar situation and wanted to bring forth legislation as soon as possible.

After being introduced on May 17th of this year, this bill passed the Judiciary Committee's Immigration subcommittee and the full committee by voice vote. H.R. 1892 has received bipartisan support from Members and the INS, and is supported by the White House. This bill will keep families together and help avoid the possibility of having two tragedies stemming from one unfortunate event.

Again, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this legislation.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1892, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Madam Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nay vote.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

HONORING FOUR FIREFIGHTERS WHO LOST THEIR LIVES FIGHTING THIRTYMILE FIRE IN CASCADE MOUNTAINS OF WASHINGTON STATE

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 201) honoring four firefighters who lost their lives fighting the Thirtymile Fire in the Cascade Mountains of Washington State, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Res. 201

Whereas, on July 10, 2001, 21 United States Forest Service firefighters were dispatched to contain a spot fire of the Thirtymile Fire in the Okanogan and Wenatchee National Forest in the Cascade Mountains of Washington State;

Whereas high temperatures, low humidity, and erratic winds, combined with very dry forest fuels, caused the fire to become an explosive, high-intensity fire that rapidly progressed from less than 25 acres to over 2,500 acres in less than 3 hours;

Whereas 14 of the firefighters were forced to deploy emergency shelters as a result of being overrun by the rapidly expanding fire; 7 firefighters and 2 civilians were injured in the fire, including firefighter Jason Emhoff, firefighter Thomas Taylor, firefighter Scott Sherzinger, and firefighter Rebecca Welch, whose heroic actions saved the lives of the two civilians;

Whereas, in service to the Nation and in the line of duty to protect their communities and fellow citizens, 4 firefighters lost their lives in the fire; and

Whereas these 4 firefighters who lost their lives in the fire were Tom Craven, a husband and father of two, Karen FitzPatrick of Yakima, Washington, Jessica Johnson of Yakima Washington, and Devin Weaver of Yakima, Washington: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives
(1) honors firefighters Tom Craven, Karen FitzPatrick, Jessica Johnson, and Devin Weaver, who lost their lives fighting the Thirtymile Fire in the Cascade Mountains of Washington State, for their bravery and sacrifice in service to the Nation;
(2) extends its deepest sympathies to the families and fellow firefighters of these heroes; and
(3) reaffirms its support and commitment to America's Federal firefighters who, without reservation, answer the call of duty and risk their lives for the Nation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS) and the gentlewoman from Hawaii (Mrs. MINK) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. DAVIS).

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on House Resolution 201.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 201, and I commend its sponsor, the distinguished gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS), for introducing it.

This resolution honors four firefighters: Tom Craven, a husband and father of two from Ellensburg, Washington; and Karen Fitzpatrick, Jessica Johnson, and Devin Weaver, all of Yakima, Washington, who gave their lives fighting the Thirtymile Fire in the Okanogan and Wenatchee National Forest in Washington's Cascade Mountains.

The resolution also expresses the deepest sympathies of this House for their families.

Finally, Madam Speaker, it pledges that the House will continue to support and work for all American firefighters who, in the words of the resolution, “without reservation answer the call of duty and risk their lives for the Nation.”

Madam Speaker, on July 10, 2001, 21 Forest Service firefighters were sent to contain a spot fire, but high temperatures, low humidity, and erratic winds combined with very dry forest fuels to cause the fire to become an explosive, high-intensity fire. In under 3 hours, that fire spread from less than 25 acres to more than 2,500 acres. Fourteen firefighters were overrun by the rapidly expanding fire and had to deploy emergency shelters.

In addition to the four firefighters who were killed, four others and two civilians were injured. The injured firefighters were Jason Emhoff, Thomas Taylor, Scott Sherzinger, and Rebecca Welch. Ms. Welch's heroic actions saved the lives of the two civilians.

Madam Speaker, less than 1 month ago, this House honored three firefighters who died fighting a blaze in Queens, New York. Today we are again honoring four more firefighters killed in the line of duty, which reinforces the observations we made then of the dangers inherent in fighting fires. Their deaths are a sad reminder of the daily risk our firefighters voluntarily assume to protect the lives and property of their fellow Americans. The men and women who have devoted their lives to fighting fires in America are truly heroes. I, as the wife of a career firefighter, understand the many risks and sacrifices these dedicated professionals endure, and as we honor the four firefighters who died in Washington State, Madam Speaker, let us also thank and honor all American firefighters.

I encourage all Members to support this resolution.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, the honorable gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), ranking minority member of the subcommittee on Civil Service and Agency Administration, would have been here except for an unavoidable delay, and I have the honor of representing the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) in this opening statement and guiding the course of House resolution 201 honoring four firefighters who lost their lives in the Cascade Mountains of Washington State.

The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) would have said this morning that he had spoken of three firefighters who lost their leaves on Father's Day fighting a five-alarm blaze that ripped through a hardware store in Queens, New York. At that time he would have said their names would be added to the fallen firefighter memorial wall in Memorial Park in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Today, he would have said that he was saddened to have to stand before the House and say that an additional four names would have to be added to that memorial park. Tom Craven, Devin Weaver, Jessica Johnson, and Karen Fitzpatrick died on Tuesday, July 10, in the North Cascade Mountains in Winthrop, Washington.

They were part of a 21-member crew... trapped when the fire they were called upon to mop up blew up around them.

The fire, which apparently was sparked by an unattended campfire, quickly spread through the stands of 80- to 100-year-old trees. Tom, Devin, Jessica, and Kari had seconds to find an escape route. They tried to drive away from the fire but found themselves on a dead-end road. These brave firefighters were killed when a wall of flames crashed on them in their emergency shelters.

H. Res. 201 honored not only the four firefighters who died in the blaze but the firefighters who were injured in the fire while saving the lives of civilians. All the firefighters who were in the Cascade Mountains that day were there to fulfill their promise to keep their communities safe by being on the front lines against fires. We honor them today for their bravery and for the promise they kept.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. JO ANN DAVIS of Virginia. Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Washington (Mr. NETHERCUTT).

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time. I am delighted to support this resolution, H.R. 201, which was introduced by my dear friend and colleague, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. NETHERCUTT), who has just happened to be here today because he is out West preparing to attend the funeral for these four young people who died and who are the subject of this resolution.

My colleague introduced the legislation out of respect for those in the West who fight fires and especially out of respect for these four people who lost their lives trying to save the lives of others. And he is joined, along with myself, with the rest of the congressional delegation from our State in paying tribute and honor to these four young people.

We in the West are used to fighting fires. We are used to the dangers of firefighting wildfires throughout the Pacific Northwest States. Yet it is very difficult for us today as we pay tribute and recognize the danger of fighting fires and the hazards that many men and women not just not just in our State but other States across this country to put out fires and to save lives. These four young people were moms and dads and the children of moms and dads and brothers and sisters and uncles and aunts and friends to many who respected what they do and what they have done. Tom Craven, Karen FitzPatrick, Jessica Johnson, and Devin Weaver gave their lives to their country and in service certainly as Federal firefighters.

There were some bright spots that came out of this tragedy. I must say. Amid the sadness and great loss were a few encouraging moments. Firefighter Rebecca Welch embraced two hikers in her emergency shelter as the flames approached and saved their lives and her own. Firefighter Jason Emhoff suffered severe burns, and he is successfully recuperating. Others continue to fight the blaze in honor of their fallen colleagues.

I think this resolution is a way to pay tribute to these fine people and to recognize the seriousness of firefighting and the importance of these young people as they jeopardize their lives. So I am delighted that the House is taking this action. I urge my colleagues to support this, and I especially say congratulations to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) for taking the initiative to recognize these four young people.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Madam Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. McNULTY).

Mr. McNULTY. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time, and I thank all of the sponsors of this bill. In particular, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) and our colleagues from the State of Washington, but it is sad indeed that so soon after the New York tragedy we are back here again memorializing firefighters who died in the line of duty.

What the previous speaker said certainly is correct, that Tom and Devin and Jessica and Karen will go down in history as heroes, along with the Worcester Six and the New York Four. Our thoughts and prayers are with all of the members of their families.

But I will reinforce what I said when we memorialized the New York Four and that is that we should take to heart the words of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) and the Members of this House and the Members of this Congress really want to do something for firefighters, we can pass that comprehensive grant program for fire departments all across this country. We did some work we had a program for teachers, we should have a program for firefighters. Let us get our priorities straight. They are putting their lives on the line for us every single day.

Of course, as citizens, we can do something, too. Instead of just extending our thoughts and prayers to families when they have lost their loved ones, we can go around and thank the firefighters for us this day and every day. I suggest to my fellow citizens that the next time they are taking a stroll in their neighborhood, stop by the local firehouse, walk in and say hello, shake somebody’s hand and let them know that we are grateful for the fact that they are willing to put their lives on the line 365 days a year to protect our lives and our property.

So I thank all of the sponsors of this resolution, and I especially thank the four fallen heroes, Tom, Devin, Jessica, and Karen, and express my thoughts and extend my prayer prayers to all of the members of their families.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH, chairman of the Committee on Government Reform; the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), chairman of the Subcommittee on Civil Service and Agency Organization; as well as the ranking members of the full committee and subcommittee, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) for expediting consideration of this resolution.

It is impossible for this House to lessen the loss suffered by the families of these four firefighters. We can only hope that our action today will help comfort those families by symbolizing our Nation’s gratitude for their loved ones’ bravery and the debt we owe to them all. I urge all Members to support this resolution.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Madam Speaker, last week, I spoke of three firefighters who lost their lives on Father’s Day, fighting a five-alarm blaze that ripped through a hardware store in Queens, New York.

At that time, I said that their names would be added to the Fallen Firefighter Memorial Wall in Memorial Park in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Today, I am sad to say, that their names will be joined by four other brave firefighters.

Tom Craven, 30, Devin Weaver, 21, Jessica Johnson, 19, and Karen FitzPatrick, 19, died on Tuesday, July 10 in the North Cascade Mountains in Winthrop, Washington. They were part of a 21-member crew trapped when the fire they were called upon to “mop up” blew up around them.

The fire, which apparently was sparked by an unattended campfire, quickly spread through stands of 80- to 100-year-old trees. Tom, Devin, Jessica, and Karen, had seconds to find an escape route. They tried to drive away from the fire, but found themselves on a dead-end road. These brave firefighters were killed when a wall of flames crashed down on them in their foam emergency shelters.

Of course, as citizens, we can do something too. Instead of just extending our thoughts and prayers to families when they have lost their loved ones, we can go around and thank the firefighters for us this day and every day. I suggest to my fellow citizens that the next time they are taking a stroll in their neighborhood, stop by the local firehouse, walk in and say hello, shake somebody’s hand and let them know that we are grateful for the fact that they are willing to put their lives on the line 365 days a year to protect our lives and our property.

So I thank all of the sponsors of this resolution, and I especially thank the four fallen heroes, Tom, Devin, Jessica, and Karen, and express my thoughts and extend my prayer prayers to all of the members of their families.
On July 10, 2001, less than a month after completing her firefighter training, Rebecca Welch's bravery, strength, and skill were tested to the utmost degree. As part of a United States Forest Service fire crew, she, along with fourteen other firefighters, was called upon to help fight a smoldering 25-acre fire that ultimately turned into a raging inferno that consumed more than 8,000 acres in a little more than a week.

After recently receiving her degree in communications broadcast journalism from the University of Sioux Falls in South Dakota, Ms. Welch courageously and selflessly covered the Hagemeyers with her shelter and maintained a calm and controlled haven while flames roared relentlessly outside. While undergoing several minutes of suffocating heat, Ms. Welch provided a reassuring hope and protection that saved the Hagemeyers' lives.

As we consider this resolution to honor these firefighters who lost their lives (H. Res. 201), let us be grateful for their bravery and sacrifice. The nation owes a debt of gratitude to these four firefighters. For their bravery and sacrifice, the nation offers by the House of Representatives for 10 succeeding terms.

As a member of the Subcommittee on Research, I urge my colleagues to support it. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

JAMES C. CORMAN FEDERAL BUILDING

Mr. COOKSEY. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 468) to designate the Federal building located at 6230 Van Nuys Boulevard, in the City of Van Nuys, State of California, as the "James C. Corman Federal Building." The Clerk read as follows:

S. 468

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION OF JAMES C. CORMAN FEDERAL BUILDING.

The Federal building located at 6230 Van Nuys Boulevard in Van Nuys, California, shall be known and designated as the "James C. Corman Federal Building."

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the Federal building referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the "James C. Corman Federal Building."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. BIGGERT). The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the resolutions were suspended and the resolution agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. COOKSEY. Madam Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill (S. 468) to designate the Federal building located at 6230 Van Nuys Boulevard in Van Nuys, California, as the James C. Corman Federal Building.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. COOKSEY) and the gentleman from California (Mr. HONDA) each will have 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. COOKSEY).

Mr. COOKSEY. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, S. 468 designates the Federal building in Van Nuys, California, as the James C. Corman Federal Building. The House passed H.R. 621, the House version of the bill, on February 28, earlier this year.

Congressman Corman was born in Galena, Kansas, and was a graduate of Belmont High School. He earned his undergraduate degree from UCLA, his JD from USC, and his LL.D from the University of San Fernando Valley School of Law. He was admitted to the California bar in 1949.

Congressman Corman first served his country in the United States Marine Corps during World War II and later as a colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve. He was elected to the Los Angeles City Council. He served on the Council until being elected to the 87th Congress in 1960 and was reelected to the House of Representatives for 10 succeeding terms.

He served on the Committee on the Judiciary, where he was instrumental in fighting for passage of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, and on the Committee on Ways and Means, where he was the leading advocate for the poor and disadvantaged working on tax and welfare reform. Congressman Corman was also proud to serve on President Johnson's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders to investigate the causes of multi-city rioting in 1967.

As many of my colleagues are aware, former Congressman Corman passed away at the age of 80 in January. I support this bill and encourage my colleagues to support it as well. Madam Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HONDA. Madam Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Madam Speaker, I rise in strong support of this Senate bill 468, a bill to designate the Federal building located at 6230 Van Nuys Boulevard in Van Nuys, California, as the James C. Corman Federal Building. In February, 2001, the gentleman from California (Mr. Berman) introduced similar legislation, H.R. 621, in the House.

Congressman Jim Corman represented the 21st Congressional District in California for 20 years, from 1961 until 1981, years which saw the Vietnam War, urban riots, Watergate, and the first manned flight to the moon.

Jim Corman was born on October 20, 1920, in Galena, Kansas, and in 1933, after his father died, he and his mother moved to the Los Angeles area. During World War II, Mr. Corman served in the Marines. After the war, he worked his way through UCLA and the University of Southern California law school.

He began his public career in 1957, when he was elected to serve in the Los Angeles City Council, and in 1961, he was elected to Congress and was named to the Committee on Ways and Means. In addition, he served on the House Committee on Ways and Means.

President Johnson named Congressman Corman as one of the 10 people named by the President to the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders. It was informally known as the Kerner Commission. During his tenure on the commission, he was optimistic about finding the causes and developing solutions for racism in America.

In 1978, he became President Johnson's point man for welfare reform.
Having suffered the indignities and trappings of poverty as he was growing up, Mr. Corman displayed a particular energy and devotion to solving welfare problems. During his 20 years of service, his concern for senior citizens and the poorest members of our society became his trademark and part of his legacy.

Jim Corman saw the fruition of his efforts in the enactment of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which he considered a fitting and proper to honor Congress-

EXPRESSING CONDOLENCE OF HOUSE TO FAMILIES OF PEOPLE KILLED IN FANGLIN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL EXPLOSION IN PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF CHINA.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on International Relations and the Committee on Ways and Means be discharged from further consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 121) expressing the sincerest condolences of the House of Representatives to the families of the 42 people, including 37 children, killed in the March 6, 2001, explosion at the Fanglin elementary school in the province of the People’s Republic of China, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) to explain the resolution.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding and for his leadership on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is important to send our condolences to the survivors of those who died. Let me say briefly, Mr. Speaker, 10-year-old Zhang Yanhong was a good student; and she always listened to her teachers. As a result, on March 6 of this year she and 30 other of her third and fourth grade classmates all lost their lives.

For years, the parents of the children in the Fanglin elementary school which is in the small village 480 miles southwest of Shanghai, had complained that their children were forced by school officials to manufacture large firecrackers at school. Every day, the young children were required to spend hours mounting fuses and detonators into the firecrackers that were then sold by local Communist party officials. The underpaid teachers and government officials running the child labor scheme also set a sliding production quota in order to maximize their profits. It started at 1,000 firecrackers per day for the youngest children and reached 10,000 firecrackers per day for the fifth graders.

Mr. Speaker, something terrible was bound to happen and soon it did. On a Tuesday afternoon, the firecrackers exploded in the elementary school and took the lives of 42 people including 37 young children.

Chinese Prime Minister Zhu immediately denied that there had been any forced labor involvement. In fact, Communist party officials invented a story about a mad man who entered the school and set off the explosion as part of his suicide attempt.

According to news accounts, Communist Party officials blew off roads into the village to prevent journalists from seeing the scene of the accident for themselves and interviewing residents. Residents who let journalists through the roadblocks anyway were reportedly arrested, and some families had their telephones disconnected to prevent contact with the outside world.

However, thanks to the brave and determined reporting of both Chinese and international journalists, and to the parents of the children, many of whom refuse to go along with the official cover-up of the deaths of their loved ones, Prime Minister Zhu was forced to eventually acknowledge what really happened and apologize in a nationally broadcast television broadcast.

The forced labor and child labor condemned by the government of the People’s Republic of China violates several conventions of the International Labor Organization; but, unfortunately, the ILO has no enforcement powers. For months we can express our deep condolences to the parents and thank the journalists who risked their lives and their freedom to report the story.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, continuing under my reservation, I want to begin by thanking the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) for bringing this resolution to the floor and the help he has been in getting it here today. I think this is an important resolution, and it is an important message from the Congress of the United States dealing with China’s disgraceful record on child and forced labor. Many of us, along with the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH), have been raising this issue year after year as Congress has considered legislation granting special trade privileges to China.

Mr. Speaker, 2 weeks ago nearly 3 million of our fellow citizens celebrated our Nation’s independence on July 4, and millions were set off in celebration of that great anniversary. Unknown to many Americans, millions of those fireworks may have been made by young Chinese children compelled to labor in dangerous factories to raise money for their schools.

On March 6 of this year, 37 young Chinese school children were killed in an explosion that occurred while third and fourth graders were forced to manufacture fireworks at the Fanglin Elementary School. For years before the explosion, the parents of these children had pleaded with school administrators and government officials to end the practice of forced child labor, but their concerns were ignored. The conditions of the labor of these little children were hazardous, and demands were unrealistic. The youngest children in the school were expected to mount at least 1,000 detonators and fuses into fireworks daily. Children who were slightly older were each required to manufacture 10,000 firecrackers per day.

It was only a matter of time before this tragedy occurred. When it did on March 6, the first response of the Chinese government was to deny the facts and try to cover up the fact that the incident took place and try to fabricate a story. What we found out later, because of the bravery of these parents and because of some of the members of the press in China, the international journalists, we now know the truth about forced child labor in this school.

A week after the Chinese government invented this story, the Chinese prime minister finally apologized for the incident and acknowledged that the firecrackers were manufactured in an elementary school. Prohibition on child labor is not only the standard for Western countries or developed countries, it is an internationally recognized labor standard that has been approved by the ILO of which the United States and virtually every country of the world is a member.

All children, no matter how rich or poor their country, deserve to spend their developing years learning in school. The children at the Fanglin Elementary School were denied that right. Unfortunately, nobody knows if the hundreds of thousands of firecrackers produced at the Fanglin Elementary School were eventually sold to stores and firecracker stands right here in the United States.

However, if they did enter the United States, it is a violation of U.S. laws which prohibit the importation of products made by forced labor. I have called upon the U.S. Customs Service and the Department of Labor to conduct an investigation to determine which products are produced under Chinese forced child labor. A few years ago, the Chinese government acknowledged that it was encouraging industries to move production into Chinese elementary and high schools. The government gave tax incentives to the businesses that set up their factories in Chinese schools and elsewhere.

Over 700,000 Chinese elementary and high schools have industries manufacturing a host of products, and the U.S. Government must ensure that none of these child labor products are reaching U.S. consumers. I call upon the Secretary of State and the Commissioner of Customs to act on my inquiries and to ensure that the imports from China are free from forced child labor.

Today the Members of the House can join in expressing condolences to the families of the children who died as a result of the exploitative labor conditions in Chinese schools and elsewhere in that country.

Mr. Speaker, let us remember these children when we debate the issues on international trade in the future.

Mr. Speaker, further reserving the right to object, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR).

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) has been a leader in child labor protection and labor rights, along with the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH). They are a voice over these trade routes for people, including for children, and that trade is more than just material goods. It is amazing how hard it is to carry that message, even in this country, and yet we look at a nation like China, with over 1.250 billion people, and we see that none of the standards that we have written into law in this country exist. Yet we continue to be the chief market, whether it is fireworks or toys or clothing, the chief market in the world for Chinese exports.

Mr. Speaker, how can we in support of this resolution asking for a full accounting and also condemning China for allowing its children to be used in such a heinous way.

With imported carpet from India, we require smiling logos in order to guarantee to American consumers that they are buying a product that is not made with child labor. We have no such guarantees with China.

I thank the gentleman for what he is doing here. In some places on Earth, life is very cheap; and here in our country, it used to be cheap. In fact, it was not until a wonderful woman by the name of Mary Norton, the first Democratic congresswoman to serve here east of the Mississippi River in the 1930s who wrote into our laws the prohibition on child labor in our country.

We as a country gained a broader conscience of how we should live as a people and that children have value as human beings beyond whatever they might be able to produce. They have a value beyond being a producer. They have an intrinsic value as a human being.

Mr. Speaker, I support the gentleman and congratulate him on the resolution and again compliment the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH) and the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) for reminding us of our heritage as we try to lift other part of the world forward as she struggles to meet her own social and economic needs internal to herself. It should not be done at the cost of any human life to be so disregarded.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, continuing under my reservation, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey and the gentleman from California for their concern about this very important human rights issue.

Four years ago when the United States began its trading relationship with China, we were told that this would be a way to help democratize China, to bring China into a world of human rights and worker rights and environmental consciousness. We have found that there is a time lag in China, a slow understanding of the principles which we have tried to communicate to them through our trading relationship.

The incident at Fanglin Elementary School is a graphic example and a very sad example of how we have really failed to follow through on the spirit of our trade relationship with China because the spirit of our trade relationship with China says that as a pre-condition of trade, we want to transmit democratic values that show that China appreciates the democracy that we have; not that we appreciate their type of government.

We have been trying to bring China over towards a more democratic expression, and what do we see. We see an example where 37 children die in a fireworks factory that was otherwise a school. They call it a school, but it was actually a fireworks factory. The very type of child labor that is being discussed here is abhorrent to the American people. We do everything we can, parents rich or poor, to try to make our childhood experiences one where children are given an opportunity to be nurtured, children are given an opportunity to have their status protected. But no, that is not what is happening in China. Children making fireworks. How dangerous an occupation that is any way, but to have children making them in their schools, that is why this resolution is important.

Mr. Speaker, this resolution lets China know that it is not good enough to have a manufacturing base that includes child labor and slave labor. It is not good enough to offer cheap goods to this country and other countries around the world when those cheap goods are made under dangerous conditions by children who have no means of recourse.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. GIBBONS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 121

Whereas on March 6, 2001, an explosion at the Fanglin elementary school in the Jianxi province of the People’s Republic of China’s killed at least 42 people, including 37 children;

Whereas the children, all between the ages of 9 and 11, were being forced by elementary school officials to manufacture fireworks when this tragedy occurred;

Whereas the parents of the deceased children report that the mandatory labor, which involved mounting fuses and detonators into large firecrackers, had been a daily practice at the school for years;

Whereas this systematic exploitation of children in the elementary school was not only known about but actually organized by individuals holding official responsibilities with the local Chinese Government;

Whereas this practice is a grave violation of the rights of children under the International Labor Organization’s Conventions 138 and 182, as well as Convention 29 on Forced Labor; and

Whereas Chinese Prime Minister Zhu Rongji has taken the important step of acknowledging these violations of internationally recognized labor standards: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

(1) expresses its sincerest condolences to the families of the 42 people killed in the March 6, 2001, explosion at the Fanglin elementary school in the Jianxi province of the People’s Republic of China, including to the parents and families of the 37 young children who lost their lives as a result of this dangerous and forced child labor;

(2) expresses its gratitude to the Chinese and international journalists who reported the true cause of the explosion in response to the Chinese Communist Party’s original attempts to put forward an “authorized”, but false, version of the events; and

(3) expresses its support for international trade agreements and policies that will enforce the International Labor Organization’s core labor standards, which include prohibition of child labor and forced labor.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. SMITH OF NEW JERSEY

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Smith of New Jersey:

Strike all after the resolved clause and insert the following:

That the House of Representatives—

(1) expresses its sincerest condolences to the families of the 42 people killed in the March 6, 2001, explosion at the Fanglin elementary school in the Jianxi province of the People’s Republic of China, including to the parents and families of the 37 young children who lost their lives as a result of this dangerous and forced child labor; and

(2) expresses its gratitude to the Chinese and international journalists who reported the true cause of the explosion in response to the Chinese Communist Party’s original attempt to put forward an “authorized”, but false, version of the events.

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment in the nature of a substitute be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The Speaker pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

The Speaker pro tempore. The amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY FUND-RAISERS

(Mr. CUNNINGHAM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, many of us were revolted when the Democratic leadership took $1 million from Bernard Schwartz from Loral that gave military secrets to the Chinese who in turn gave them to North Korea that can now hit us with a Taepo Dong I1 missile. We were sickened when the DNC used our military as warships in a White House fund-raiser.

But the latest tops all of that, I believe. Democrat leadership had a fund-raiser this weekend with Hanoi Jane, Hanoi Jane Fonda, that stood beside Vietnamese gunners as they were trying to shoot down American airplanes; and Jane and Tom Hayden, who stood beside those gunners, knowing that our POWs were tortured and brutalized, and said nothing. Yet the Democratic leadership this weekend has a fund-raiser in the face of campaign finance reform with Hanoi Jane Fonda.

I hope you choke on every dollar.

FAITH-BASED INITIATIVES

(Ms. WATSON of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.

Ms. WATSON of California. Mr. Speaker, one of the most fundamental underlying principles of our Nation is that individuals should be judged on their talents rather than on their heritage or their beliefs. It has been a long struggle for many Americans to secure the benefits of this principle. Even today, unfair discrimination prevents many Americans from achieving all they can. But most Americans can agree that our Federal Government should not sanction unfair discrimination but rather should fight it wherever it exists.

Last week, Congress took a decision that compromised this principle. The passage of the Community Solutions Act last week by this House would permit groups to discriminate unfairly against certain Americans. Worse yet, the bill actually would take away the right of communities to establish their own antidiscrimination laws.

Mr. Speaker, it is not too late for Congress to correct this House mistake. I encourage you to work with the Senate to see that any final version of this bill respects the rights of communities to enforce their own antidiscrimination laws and thereby protect one of our most cherished American principles.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OTTER). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 2246, MEDIA MARKETING ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.
Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to rise this evening and discuss a topic that is important to all of us, which is our Nation's children.

Two months ago, I was in a truck stop and I saw a young man playing a video game. I did not think much about it, but when I finally got home, I watched what he was doing. He was shooting a laser gun, but he was not shooting at targets. He was not shooting ducks. He was shooting people. Every time he hit one, an arm flew off and the blood spurted, or a head flew off and the blood spurted. I was really impressed by the violence of the game.

This young man was about 10 years old. Nowhere on that game was any type of rating indicating that this was inappropriate for a young person.

As I saw that, I began to have a flashback to some of the school shootings we have had, and I realized that the United States currently is the most violent nation in the world for young people, with the highest homicide rate and the highest suicide rate of any nation in the civilized world. Our out-of-wedlock birthrate has risen from 5 percent in 1960 to 33 percent today. And so you say, what has happened here? Why has our culture unraveled in the way that it has?

I am sure we can point the finger at a great many different reasons and causes, but I would say one of the chief causes is the influence of violent, explicit material in the entertainment industry. Because, you see, the average child spends 25 hours a week watching movies, playing video games and listening to recorded music and probably spends an hour or less talking to his or her parents. That 25 hours has a huge impact. Some of it is benign, but much of it is really pernicious and very harmful.

In September of 2000, the Federal Trade Commission prepared a report entitled Marketing Violent Entertainment to Children. This is what they found, and I quote:

"The pervasive and aggressive marketing of violent movies, music and electronic games to children undermines the credibility of the entertainment media industry's parental advisory ratings and labels."

In other words, they were doing this in violation of their own ratings. The entertainment industry at that time was attempting to quit marketing adult material to children in violation of their own rating system. This was done in September of 2000.

Then a follow-up study was done of the entertainment industry's progress in January of 2001. It was found that a year later some progress had been made but not very much. Whatever progress had been made was in ratings of movies, video games and their advertising, but practically no change at all had occurred in the ratings and in the advertising of the violent industry.

So much of the rap music, much of the music that young people listen to, is relatively targeted to kids and much of it is violent and very explicit. Since there has been relatively little progress in this area, H.R. 2246, the Media Marketing Accountability Act of 2001, has been introduced in the House. This is a companion to Senate bill 792. This bill simply requires the entertainment industry to advertise adult-rated material to adult audiences.

Some people bring up the issue of the first amendment. They say, well, this is obviously a violation of free speech. I think it is important that we think about this a little bit, because this bill does not in any way tell the entertainment industry what they write or what they produce. It does not edit content. It simply says: If you are going to have a rating system, PG, R, adult, whatever it may be, then let us make that, if it is adult rated, that you do not advertise in preteen and teenage magazines and on movies that are G rated and do not market it to young children.

It is very simple. It is not a violation of free speech.

I think that we have really let our standards slip abysmally in this country. All of us who are adults have stood by and we have let it happen. We have watched it happen. I think that it is time that Congress steps up to the plate. I think Congress can do something about this. I think we can send a message to the entertainment industry. I hope that Congress will do the right thing and will support H.R. 2246, the Media Marketing Accountability Act.

SOCIAL SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, there was an extraordinary report published the end of last week which should be required reading for every American. It is a staff draft of the Bush Social Security privatization commission. Now they want to call it the bipartisan commission on the future of Social Security or something, but let us make no bones about it. It is a privatization commission. The basic assumptions under which they are operating and the measures that the President are they must privatize at least a portion of Social Security.

But that is no surprise. President Bush has taken that position for many years, as have many on the other side of the aisle who have never liked the idea of Social Security. But what is shocking about this report is that on page 14 they say, we have become used to the idea that Social Security is going to have a financing problem beginning in 2038. Beginning in the year 2038, we are beginning to see current assumptions, without a single change, can pay 73 percent of benefits from that date forward but 100 percent of all promised benefits up to 2038. That is a fact.

The Bush commission, the privatization commission, says they question whether Social Security can or will pay any benefits beginning in 2016, which means they are raising the specter that we have to raise the Social Security taxes to pay the benefit. Secretary O'Neill said that they may not honor the debt of Social Security. That is the fact that we have all paid taxes in excess of that necessary to pay current benefits with the idea we are accumulating a trust fund that can be held in Federal Treasury securities, and Federal Treasury securities are supposed to be the safest security in the world.

Now, Secretary O'Neill and, by implication, President Bush, are raising the question whether the Federal Government will honor those securities. That is unbelievable. That is extraordinary. It is frightening. It could bring about an economic collapse worldwide.

You ask, why are they doing it for one petty reason, because they hate Social Security, they want to attack it, and they want to privatize it. Because the people on Wall Street say, "Hey, if we could have 250 million separate accounts the management would charge all of them a little bit of money every month, we would make tens of billions of dollars."

Disregard the fact that those management fees over a person's lifetime would reduce their retirement by 40 percent in that little fund, and, for most lower income workers and others who this report feigns to really care about, they are shocked, shocked, shocked, that the widows and poor people and minorities do not have large retirement plans. They are not offering anything new for them, they are just saying Social Security has not been hit as hard as them with regard of living. Yes, that is true. But at least it has been there, it has been predictable.

This year, Americans will pay $93 billion. "B," billion more in Social Security taxes than are necessary to meet current benefits. We thought that $93 billion was then being deposited with the Federal Treasury with notes and it would be paid back, but Secretary O'Neill and this Commission and President Bush are saying no, we might not pay that back.

Well, if that is the case, then let us lower the tax now. You rushed out here to lower taxes for people who earn over $273,000 a year, yet more working Americans pay more in FICA taxes to Social Security than they do income taxes. If you are saying you are not going to honor those debts, then lower that tax today. Give us back that $93 billion extra we are going to pay this year, if you are questioning whether you are going to honor that debt, let us be extraordinary and irresponsible and unbelievable that this group, the Privatization Commission, is going down this path. The trust funds hold not accumulated reserves of wealth, but only promises that future taxpayers will be asked to redeem. That is the same as any other Federal Treasury security. So they are raising a question about whether the full faith and credit of the Federal Government lies behind not only the Social Security trust funds, but the $6 trillion of debt the United States of America has accumulated over the years.

If that filters through to the world financial markets, there will be a catastrophic collapse of the dollar; U.S. securities will be dumped in the market, and it will bring about economic catastrophe.

So I recognize they are trying to do a job here. The President ordered them to come up with the rationale for privatization. But do not do it in this extraordinarily irresponsible way. Just say, look, we want to cut people’s benefits so that we can then transition to a privatized plan, and, of course, the models in Great Britain, Argentina and Chile did not work out so well, but we think they will work out better here.

Be honest. Do not lie and do not threaten the security of the world by pressing their regret at not being able to stay for this presentation and this day.

Tribute to the Late Eudora Welty

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Otter). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. WICKER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, many of my colleagues have not yet been aware of the death earlier today of one of America’s giants. Eudora Welty died this afternoon in Jackson, Mississippi, at the age of 92. Her literary career spanned portions of 7 decades, and her awards and decorations place her among the superstars of American literature.

Her novel, The Optimist’s Daughter, earned her the 1973 Pulitzer Prize for fiction. In addition, her honors included four O. Henry prizes, the National Book Foundation Medal, the American Academy of Arts and Letters William Dean Howells Medal, the National Institute of Arts and Letters Gold Medal for the Novel, the American Book Award for Literature, the American Award for Paperback Fiction, the Phi Beta Kappa Association Award, and many more.

It is a point of personal pride for me that Miss Welty was a native Mississippian, having been born in Jackson in 1909 and educated in the public schools of our state, as well as at Mississippi University for Women in Columbus. For years, we Mississippians have considered Eudora Welty our State’s pre-eminent citizen. May 2 is annually celebrated in Mississippi as Eudora Welty Day.

Mississippians are also proud of the fact that she has been increasingly recognized throughout America as a national treasure. She was appointed to the National Council on the Arts by President Nixon in 1972, and she twice received the Freedom Medal of Honor from Presidents Carter and Reagan.

Beyond her acclaim in her native America, Miss Welty’s works have been translated into virtually every European language, as well as Russian and Japanese. She has been recognized by many heads of state. In 1987, Eudora Welty was knighted, knighted, by the President of France; and in January 1996, Miss Welty was presented with the French Legion of Honor.

Eudora Welty understood not only the South, but the complex family relationships and individual struggles against adversity which have combined to give our country its rich texture. Her works of fantasy and tall tale narration included two of my favorites, The Robber Bridegroom and The Ponder Heart, which have been adapted for the Broadway stage, but which are still read aloud in the Wicker household.

Mr. Speaker, over the next few days and weeks the publicity concerning the life of Eudora Welty will perhaps assist new generations and young people in appreciating the extraordinary life and accomplishments of this remarkable American. Perhaps I will be able to express in a more adequate way the admiration and kinship that I feel for her as a fellow Mississippian.

Suffice it for now to say that her work sparked the imagination of countless readers around the globe. She brought her country’s experience and made it relevant to people beyond the region’s boundaries, and that her life and her life’s work are worthy of our heartfelt praise and gratitude.

Now, with the indulgence of the Chair and my other colleagues in the Chamber, I am pleased to yield to my friend and colleague, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. SHOWS).

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding.

Mr. Speaker, today I stand before you, my colleagues, and the American people with sad news. One of our Nation’s greatest writers has passed away. Earlier today Eudora Welty died. Miss Welty lived in my district down in Jackson.

Miss Eudora will always live, Mr. Speaker, over the next few days and weeks the publicity concerning the life of Eudora Welty will perhaps assist new generations and young people in appreciating the extraordinary life and accomplishments of this remarkable American. Perhaps I will be able to express in a more adequate way the admiration and kinship that I feel for her as a fellow Mississippian.

Suffice it for now to say that her work sparked the imagination of countless readers around the globe. She brought her country’s experience and made it relevant to people beyond the region’s boundaries, and that her life and her life’s work are worthy of our heartfelt praise and gratitude.

Now, with the indulgence of the Chair and my other colleagues in the Chamber, I am pleased to yield to my friend and colleague, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. SHOWS).

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman yielding.

Mr. Speaker, today I stand before you, my colleagues, and the American people with sad news. One of our Nation’s greatest writers has passed away. Earlier today Eudora Welty died. Miss Welty lived in my district down in Jackson.

Miss Eudora will always live, Mr. Speaker, in the hearts of thousands of Mississippians. Her works of fiction and tall tale narratives have touched the human heart, and we are all richer because of her presence in this world.

Miss Welty was an icon. She, through her grace, gentleness and greatness, has given so many Mississippians a role model. Ms. Eudora, through her life and writings, has given thousands a kind of permission to strive for their dreams.

Mr. SPEAKER. Mr. Speaker, I do not think her curtain of green has closed with her passing, but rather has opened; has opened wide, so that all of us can continue to embrace the characters, places, and events she told us about. The curtain of green is open wide for us today, as it will be for all countless generations to come.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I will simply close by saying to our colleagues, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. THOMPSON) and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. Pickering), were on the floor earlier and expressed their regret at not being able to stay for this presentation and this moment of observance. They will be submitting remarks for the RECORD later on.

I will simply close today with the words of a fellow Mississippian, William R. Ferriss, Chairman of the National Endowment of the Humanities, who said this afternoon “Eudora Welty’s mastery of language was unparalleled, and her unserving commitment to her craft as a writer will inspire future generations. We mourn the loss of a truly great writer and friend and the love and compassion enriched us all.”

PUTTING PATIENTS BEFORE PROFITS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, on Sunday evenings I usually do a radio show called “Talking to the People” with a co-host, Garfield Major; and on last evening, we were supposed to have a guest, a young lady who was going to be with us. But then, of course, last week she had to go away, and we decided that we would dedicate the show in her memory. Her funeral is going to take place on Thursday of this week, and I simply want to say to the family of Evelyn Spivery and all those people of the world with her that we share with them in their grief and sorrow at her early and untimely death.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to lend my support to and talk about an issue that is important to all of America, and that is the issue of a patients’ bill of rights. Not just any patients’ bill of rights, but I support the patients’ bill of rights sponsored by my colleagues Mr. McCAIN, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. EDWARDS in the Senate, and the companion bill of rights sponsored by the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSKE) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL) here in the House. I support the patients’ bill of rights that puts patients before profits, and values human life over the bottom line.

The idea of a patients’ bill of rights is nothing new to this Congress. We have all listened to the rhetoric, and we have all been involved in the debate. As a matter of fact, as a Member of Congress since 1996, I must say that it is interesting to see where this debate has gone.

I find it worth commenting that the question we are now faced with is not so much whether we should pass a patients’ bill of rights, but which version we shall pass. In other words, we are all pretty much in agreement that patients need to be afforded an increased level of protection from the predatory tendencies of some components of our health care delivery system. But rather than immediately delving into the particulars of why we should prefer one version over another, I believe it is instructive to take a step back for a moment and look at the concept of a patients’ bill of rights in the first place.

The very idea that we need a patients’ bill of rights, an idea, I remind you, we are all in support of, implies the presence of an injurious element within our health care system. The simple fact that we are debating this idea means that each one of us at some level acknowledges the basic reality that the interests of some parts of our health care delivery system seem to be adversarial to the interests of patients.

I believe that with a careful examination of the means and motives by which some components of our health care system make money off the pain and suffering of patients, the answer to the question of which patients’ bill of rights is the real patients’ bill of rights becomes self-evident.

Now, what is it about those components of our health care system that is so inherently evil? Well, let me read a quote from Milton Friedman, a well-known advocate of free market economics. Mr. Friedman says that “few tenets of economics are more fundamental to the very foundations of our free society as the acceptance by corporate officials of a social responsibility other than to make as much money for their stockholders as possible.” In other words, if we go by the dictates that managed care organizations live by, not only is it undesirable to take a patient’s well-being into account, it is simply unethical to do so. Any motive other than the profit motive is extraneous and inappropriate. This narrow-minded approach placed one corporation in a completely unique situation. We are the only Nation in the entire world with a health care system whose fundamental operating principle is to avoid as many sick people as possible.

Let me say that again. I believe this gets to the crux of the matter. Many managed care corporations are predicated upon avoiding the needs of patients.

Now, given the fact that some managed care corporations are opposed to the needs of patients, given the fact that some managed care guidelines, as they are currently written, do not allow patients to stay overnight for a mastectomy or see a neurologist for new onset seizures, and given the fact that some corporations spend 25 cents of every dollar on administrative expense while Medicare is administered at a rate of over 12 times less, and given the fact that many of these same corporations feel that patients’ rights don’t allow the patients to go into a court of law to seek redress for injury, I think it is clear, Mr. Speaker, that the only real Patients’ Bill of Rights is the one that puts people over profits, and the motive is to protect the patient.

STAND UP FOR THE NATIONAL GUARD

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OTTER). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak on behalf of our National Guard. For 225 years our young men in the National Guard and our young women in the National Guard have stood in the gap when our Nation was called. From Concord to Kosovo, they have put their lives on hold, left their families, their jobs and responded to our Nation’s needs. Today, they are continuing that great tradition.

Now, what is it about those components of our health care system that is so inherently evil? Well, let me read a quote from Milton Friedman, a well-known advocate of free market economics. Mr. Friedman says that “few tenets of economics are more fundamental to the very foundations of our free society as the acceptance by corporate officials of a social responsibility other than to make as much money for their stockholders as possible.” In other words, if we go by the dictates that managed care organizations live by, not only is it undesirable to take a patient’s well-being into account, it is simply unethical to do so. Any motive other than the profit motive is extraneous and inappropriate. This narrow-minded approach placed one corporation in a completely unique situation. We are the only Nation in the entire world with a health care system whose fundamental operating principle is to avoid as many sick people as possible.

Let me say that again. I believe this gets to the crux of the matter. Many managed care corporations are predicated upon avoiding the needs of patients.

Now, given the fact that some managed care corporations are opposed to the needs of patients, given the fact that some managed care guidelines, as they are currently written, do not allow patients to stay overnight for a mastectomy or see a neurologist for new onset seizures, and given the fact that some corporations spend 25 cents of every dollar on administrative expense while Medicare is administered at a rate of over 12 times less, and given the fact that many of these same corporations feel that patients’ rights don’t allow the patients to go into a court of law to seek redress for injury, I think it is clear, Mr. Speaker, that the only real Patients’ Bill of Rights is the one that puts people over profits, and the motive is to protect the patient. budget directives, the Active Duty Air Force intends to pull the teeth of the Air National Guard by removing the B-1 mission from the Guard. Today it is the B-1 mission. What will it be tomorrow? No more F-15s in the Guard? No more F-16s? We do not know, but one thing is clear: The Active Duty Air Force intends to pull the teeth of the Air National Guard.

Now, this is very upsetting to the young men and women of the Guard. Consider their success with the B-1 mission in combat, more experience, a higher mission-capable rate; and now consider the reward for being the top B-1 wing: loss of their mission. It does not make sense economically or logically. In a time of tight budgets when we have a shortage of 1,200 pilots, when retention of personnel is paramount, this is exactly the wrong message and exactly the wrong decision.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that each of my colleagues will consider this assault on our Guard and oppose it. For 225 years, the Guard has stood in the gap for us. I hope we will choose to stand up for them.

PATIENTS’ BILL OF RIGHTS: EMPowering PHYSICIANS AND THEIR PATIENTs

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Fletcher-Peterson-Johnson bill, and I appreciate the opportunity to talk to people about the strength of our approach to providing people with the right to sue if they have been harmed by a plan or a decision that their plan, one can hold HMOs accountable. We provide direct access to pediatricians, that you can appeal it to a panel of experts. We have set quality number one in this bill. We have established a criteria for this external review, the highest standards in the country, a consensus of experts of national opinions and what we call the referee journals, those medical journals that drive the standards are higher than any other specialists out there to bring the latest, the state-of-the-art of medicine, to the patient’s bedside. We want to make sure that there is continuity of care, that if, all of a sudden, the contract is removed from the physician, that there is a solution.

For instance, if you are a young lady and you are being covered by a physician or he or she is your attending physician and you are about to deliver a child, we make sure that you can continue to see that physician, and that you get the care that you need throughout, even though they are no longer working with that HMO, that they can do that until the delivery is completed and postpartum care is completed as well.

We do not allow any gag clauses. We do not allow HMOs to tell physicians, you cannot tell your patients what medical treatment they need. So we stand up for that.

Clinical trials. We make sure that if there is a clinical trial that is out there that may give someone a hope of a cure for a disease that we make that available.

We make sure that you get plan information, just like the other bill.

We make sure that there is an appeals process; that if an HMO says, we do not think that is covered, that you can get an internal and external appeals, does that mean? That means that you can appeal it to a panel of experts. We have set quality number one in this bill. We have established a criteria for this external review, the highest standards in the country, a consensus of experts of national opinions and what we call the referee journals, those medical journals that drive the standards are higher than any other specialists out there to bring the latest, the state-of-the-art of medicine, to the patient’s bedside. We want to make sure that there is continuity of care, that if, all of a sudden, the contract is removed from the physician, that there is a solution.

For instance, if you are a young lady and you are being covered by a physician or he or she is your attending physician and you are about to deliver a child, we make sure that you can continue to see that physician, and that you get the care that you need throughout, even though they are no longer working with that HMO, that they can do that until the delivery is completed and postpartum care is completed as well.

We do not allow any gag clauses. We do not allow HMOs to tell physicians, you cannot tell your patients what medical treatment they need. So we stand up for that.

Clinical trials. We make sure that if there is a clinical trial that is out there that may give someone a hope of a cure for a disease that we make that available.

We make sure that you get plan information, just like the other bill.

We make sure that there is an appeals process; that if an HMO says, we do not think that is covered, that you can get an internal and external appeals, does that mean? That means that you can appeal it to a panel of experts. We have set quality number one in this bill. We have established a criteria for this external review, the highest standards in the country, a consensus of experts of national opinions and what we call the referee journals, those medical journals that drive the state of the art of medicine. So we establish the highest quality of any bill. Actually, our quality of care standards are higher than any other bill that is out there.

We make sure that the prescription drugs that you need are there, that if it is not on the formulary and you cannot tolerate the drug that that is on the formulary, that there is access to a drug that is not on the formulary, but because you cannot take the medication that is on the formulary, you get another medication.

We make sure that there is the liability, that there is the redress so that one can hold HMOs accountable.

Now, one way we hold them accountable is we make sure that if an insurance company does not comply with this panel of expert physicians, this high gold standard, that if they do not comply with that and give the treatment that one needs, we hold an HMO liable in exactly the same manner that a physician is liable.

The other bill, there is about 19 pages of criteria that have to be met. Nobody knows how the States are going to respond to that. We are seeing a decision from the Department of Justice saying that we are not sure how the States are going to respond to 19 pages of Federal mandating. That is unprecedented. But we make sure that the HMO is held accountable if they do not comply with those panel of expert physicians, the same way a physician is held accountable.

There is no difference in our bill. We make sure that there is tight, focused accountability.

We also provide, and let me talk about it, immediate access and instant remedy. When we focus on patients, that is what we want to see.

We also provide the opportunity for small businesses to come together and to offer a national health plan. That will save an estimate of 10 percent to 30 percent on premiums.

I have not talked to anyone out there, Mr. Speaker, that is not interested in the cost of health care and of seeing that going up double digits this year. So being able to decrease the cost of health insurance, make that more accessible, allow more small businesses to offer health insurance is one of our goals. I believe we accomplished it.

It is estimated that 8.5 million Americans will be able to get insurance that do not have insurance today. We hold HMOs accountable; and we weed out bad players, as I have said. We make sure that the medical decisions are made by doctors.

The Ganske-Dingell bill, and the Ganske-Dingell bill, what they say is that if one does not get the treatment immediately, if they just allege harm, they can go to court. What does that do? Does that not, first, get the patient the treatment they need, and it also increases the number of junk or frivolous lawsuits. We will talk about that in a minute and what effect that has on patients’ ability to get affordable health care.

We make sure that one does not have to go to a judge, that one can go to a doctor to get an opinion. Then if the HMO is a bad player, we hold them accountable.

We enable small businesses, as I said, to offer health insurance. Most importantly, when we talk to the American people, Mr. Speaker, what we find out is that the American people are very, very concerned about the health care they get through their jobs. I have some farmers in my district whose spouses go to work simply so they can get that health care.

The other bill may impact to the point where individuals will lose the health care they get through their work. In Kentucky, that estimate is 40,000 to 80,000 Kentuckians will lose their health insurance because of the Ganske-Dingell bill.

Again, we protect the health care American get through in their jobs. We provide all patients with patient protections. Setting that gold standard by that independent review of panels, we raise the standard of the quality of health care.

When we look at insurance premiums, ours, when we figure the total bill with those association health plans and something else called Medical Savings Accounts, where one can set aside some money to use for health care expenses, ours shows that we will have a net decrease, if we look at the premiums. Theirs will increase by about 4.2 percent.

We do not think we will increase lawsuits. Actually, we will get the care and have less lawsuits than they will, but yet we will weed out bad players.

We estimate that we may decrease totally by 7 million the number of uninsured. They may increase it for some up to 9 million.

Health care quality, we believe we can actually increase health care quality with this bill, which is a primary concern.

We want remedy, we do not want retaliation. We know there is a lot of emotion. As a physician, I can say there are many HMOs angered me. But the motivation for passing a good patients’ bill of rights is remedy, not retaliation. We want to make sure one gets immediate help, not unlimited or frivolous lawsuits.

We want to make sure one has access to State courts if the managed care company refuses to give what the experts say. There are no caps on many of their decisions, and that means premiums are going to go up. We have access also to Federal courts if it is a coverage decision.

Why is it very important to make sure that we provide health insurance? Why are we so concerned about the uninsured? I am disappointed in the other side. I think we both have a very similar motive, but their bill has what I call truly a flagrant disregard for the uninsured.

When we look at the simple fact, and this comes out of the Journal of American Medicine, from November 19, 1997, this was an article that said that a patient without health insurance is three times more likely to die than patients with health insurance. So when we talk about driving up the number of uninsured, we have a tremendous impact on the health and well-being of Americans. That is why it is so important to focus on the uninsured.

Look at this map. We currently have 43 million Americans uninsured. If we take the Ganske bill, there are 4 million more uninsured. If we look at the blue States and if we were to take the population of all those blue States, that is equal to the population of the number of people in the United States that have no insurance. That is where we should be focused.

That means that 43 million Americans now are not able to go see their physicians, not able to preventive health care they need, so when they do arrive in the emergency room, their disease is further along. It is more advanced and less curable.

If we pass the Ganske-Dingell bill, it is estimated that those red States, a population equal to the population of those red States would lose their health insurance. I do not think that is something we can afford in America.

I say this, if we look at the differences, I think both of us have the same goal. That is to make sure we provide good patient protection. I think in their liability portion they are very misguided in the sense they turn rich citizens over to judges and lawyers instead of physicians. I think it is bad legislation, particularly for those that I call “near-uninsured.”

Who is it going to impact most? Low-income and minorities, that is who it is going to impact. I believe that the Democrats would take up this issue, because that is a constituency they always speak about having compassion for, yet their bill will impact them worse than any other portion of our society. Low-income and minority people are the ones that stand to lose the health insurance, those who are barely getting along, those families who are having to decide between putting food on the table and providing health care for their children.

Under their bill, they may end up having to say, I am not going to take the food off the table, so I will have to drop health insurance. That is not right for America. That is not right for those most vulnerable in our country.

I appreciate the opportunity, I say to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. Johnson), to speak with her, and I thank her for her support of this bill. I think we have an excellent bill. It is a chance to share this time with her.

Mrs. Johnson of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for joining us.

I want to ask just one question to the gentleman, as a physician. Is it not true that under our emergency services section, where we guarantee people the right, if one’s pain is severe enough that any prudent person would think someone needed to go to the emergency room, they can go to the emergency room and get care under our bill and under the other bill?

But there is a unique aspect to our bill. That is that to those very, very young infants, where of course “the prudent layperson” rule is a little hard to apply. So we do take a different tack in that portion of the bill. If the gentleman would just talk about that, I think it would help people understand how thoughtful our legislation is.

Mr. Fletcher, Mr. Speaker, we wanted to make sure that the access there to the emergency was available to everyone, regardless of their age and regardless of their ability to be able to define what a layperson’s definition is.

So we make it very clear, and I think that is one of the reasons that, when we talk to the emergency room physicians across this Nation, they talk about our provisions, so that no patient is without access to the emergency room.

I mentioned in the beginning that some of the problems have been that a patient may call the HMO and they send the child to a distant emergency room. We have eliminated that problem. We have solved that problem. We make sure that if one has an emergency, if one has severe pain or something where one feels or a layperson feels like it could threaten their health, they can go to the nearest emergency room, get that treatment from those physicians and health care providers, and they can be assured of being reimbursed for that.

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me.

That is what people are concerned about, that they want to better understand their health care insurance, what their coverage is, and what the plan consists of, more so than anything else.

I have very few, and I cannot recall any, really, who have been to my office and said, “Mac, I want you to pass legislation, take away my health care plan, and my employer.” That is not what is on their mind. What is on their mind is the information that the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) shared with us: “What am I going to do about health insurance and health care coverage for my family?” Those are the concerns.

I have very few to call the office concerned about the denial of a service that they may need in the private sector. I do have quite a few calls when it comes to some of the, what I will call government-run HMOs, health management organizations, and those are Medicare and Medicaid.

Thanks to the new administration and some of the things that are happening, for Medicare Services now, though, those calls have become fewer and fewer.

We used to have a lot of calls about the Veterans Administration, but fortunately, we have had a lot of good, positive changes in the Atlanta Region, with the VA. I have not received, in years, many calls.

These are things that, as a Member of Congress, it is pleasing, because I feel like my constituency is being better served by the agencies.

I say to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON), there are a couple things I do have complaints about. One is the cost of health care. People say, “Congressman, why is my health care so high? It is to a point where I cannot afford it. Why is insurance so high? I cannot afford coverage. I cannot afford the insurance. What am I going to do? What am I going to do?”

One thing we should not do is subject the marketplace to provisions of law that may increase those numbers who cannot afford insurance or cannot afford to pay their health care costs. That is just something we do not need to do. I am afraid what we are looking at with this particular patients’ bill of rights is the fact that we may increase, if we pass one particular provision, and that is the bill that the other parties have offered, the Ganske-Dingell bill, the McCain-Kennedy bill, that possibly we will increase the number of uninsured and raise the cost to a point that many cannot afford it.

I have had health care management organizations to come by the office in Georgia, particularly the Jonesboro office, because it is closer to the Atlanta area, and talk to me. It has been 3 or 4 years ago, about health care and what they were going to do, how they were going to take care of the uninsured. One had some pretty slick brochures, they were just fancy, and they probably spent a lot of money on preparing them.

I looked at them. We talked for a while. I said, “Those things are pretty. They are slick. A lot of good information here. My advice to you is to do what you say you are going to do in these brochures, and that is take care of those that you insure.” I said they should heed the warning, because if they heed the warning, that is the better approach of all that has been presented. I believe it has a less negative impact on employers. I believe it has a less negative impact on employees. Let us face it, most people obtain their health care insurance coverage at the workplace. That is where it happens. That is the benefit. That is the incentive that an employer offers to have someone work for them, or part of the incentive program. And the gentlewoman’s bill puts at risk in a lesser fashion the employer when it comes to liability. As an employer for 38 years myself and in the type of business that I am in, trucking, have been since I was 18 years old, a lot of miles on the road, a lot of employees in accidents, I have been in court, and it is not cheap to go to court to defend yourself. I know that a lot of employers, if they are going to have to subject themselves to additional cost, the additional time and trouble of defending themselves based on a suit that may not be a viable suit, it may not be a real liability to them, but they have to go to court. It is not only not in themselves removed from the case, what will happen, I am afraid, is that many employers will just say, hey, I am not going to do this. I am just not going to provide it. What if they do? What if they say, I will continue on. I will take that chance. What will be the result? I think it will be based on passage of legislation, whether it be either bill. I like the idea that the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLATLEY) put forth, that this may reduce costs, and I hope it does. I think the majority of the time, though, anytime the Congress gets involved in something, it always increases the cost, whatsoever it may be.

But let us just look at a couple of comments that a group on Wall Street made about the potential of the McCain-Kennedy, or the Kennedy-McCain, now that the Democrats are in the majority over there in the other body, or the bill that is before us from the majority over there in the other body-Peterson-Johnson bill is that it has a simple, clean mechanism for protecting employers. The employers simply appoint a dedicated decision-maker, and under his plan he is protected from suit.

Now, in the other bill, realizing what a good idea we had, in the Senate they added that designated decisionmaker into the bill. But they just laid it on top. So now their bill has two systems. What that does is to create court cases about which system. That is the kind of way in which the other bill, in its complexity, invites litigation, explodes litigation, drives up costs, drives up premiums or copays, or reduces coverage or, in fact, forces employers to drop their plans. So when we talk about the fact that our bill better protects employers and protects the employees’ insurance, it is right there in black and white. It is in the provisions. Their provisions drive inappropriate litigation. Our provisions only help the person who was harmed by not getting the medical care they deserved. And that person, under our bill, has the right to sue.

I thank the gentleman from Georgia for joining us and talking about this. Mr. COLLINS, if the gentleman will yield further, they should have that right, and I think they have that right today.

I am still very concerned about the language, though, of appointing a decisionmaker. Because that can be questioned, too. But if the decision to purchase the insurance is not subject, because it is definitely not a health care issue.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. That is right, and that is very clear under our bill, that that is not a health care decision.
Mr. COLLINS. Well, I hope it is, and I think it is, because I have been assured that that is my amendment that the gentlewoman has accepted. I thank her.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. That is right.

Now, I would like to recognize my colleague from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH), also a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and I appreciate his being with us tonight. Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Connecticut for yielding to me. I listened with great interest to the gentleman from Georgia and, preceding me in this well of the House, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER), the principal sponsor of the true bipartisan Patients' Bill of Rights. Because make no mistake, my colleagues, we have a clear choice on this floor for all of America later this week: Will this House stand for a true patients' bill of rights in the games of special interests, will this House, instead, pass a trial lawyer's right to bill.

The gentleman from Kentucky made the case. The gentleman from Georgia made the case. Let us reaffirm the principles so important to us. As I see here tonight we are joined also by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), whose district, as most districts in this country, really embraces the work ethic and the notion of getting one's money's worth and the quality of life, and I think these underlying principles form the foundation of our actions.

Number one, when someone is sick, they do not go to see a lawyer. They want to see a health care professional, a health care provider of their choice, a doctor to help them solve that problem.

Number two, should there be a dispute about insurance, most individuals want health care professionals who understand the concept of continuity of care, who understand the concept of the illness that person faces making decisions, rather than ending up in court.

The basic thought, Mr. Speaker, is this: We all want help from medical professionals rather than a court date that can stretch on and on ad infinitum instead of getting quality health care, that can stretch on and on ad infinitum until the patient is dead, and we better not go down that path, we better not surrender health care rights to the trial lawyers' lobby. Yet, the choice we will have on this floor is crystal clear. We can succumb to the siren song of the clever and those who wrap their message of higher fees in the language of love and counterfeit compassion; or, instead, we can vote for a bipartisan measure, the principal architect of whom has dealt with patients in his primary calling in life in a bipartisan way to focus on health care for Americans. That is the simple choice when we take it all away. Are we for lawyers or are we for doctors and health care professionals helping Americans make the right decisions for their health care? That is the issue we will confront this week on the floor.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON).

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH) is absolutely right. This is about whether doctors will regain control of America's health care system.

At the hearing before our subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means, every single example that the trial lawyers gave could have been solved more rapidly under the system in our bill and for $50.

I ask, what is in the patients' interest? What is in the patients' interest is they get the care they need when they need it, that they do not go to court and face the long dragged out process of the court and face the high cost of a court case.

It was really sad to sit there and hear every single example the trial lawyers' representatives gave and to see how this could have been resolved so much more rapidly, with so much less suffering and harm on the part of the patients and the doctors. And they get the care they need when they need it, that they do not go to court and face the long dragged out process of the court and face the high cost of a court case.

My colleague is absolutely right.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy to say that after years of examining managed care systems, legislation and the legislation my colleague of my subcommittee, a great deal of consensus exists as to what a Federal patient protection bill should include. I believe there is also strong bipartisan agreement that Congress should act quickly to extend patient protections to all Americans. The plan of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) does exactly that, by providing patients with the tools they need to protect themselves and to ensure that they have quality health care coverage now and in the future.

This bill provides patients with better access to information about their health care coverage. It requires plans to provide patients with detailed plan information with an explicit list of covered and excluded services and benefits.

Unlike other proposals, the plan of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) makes the plan available to patients and doctors to work directly together to decide the best course of treatment, rather than focusing on insurance company guidelines and regulations. It ensures that patients have the right to choose their doctor with continuity of care protections. These protections allow patients who have an ongoing special need such as care for even a pregnancy to have continued access to their treating specialist in cases where the specialist has been terminated from the plan or if the plan is terminated.

H.R. 2315 eliminates the so-called gag rule by prohibiting health plans from restricting physicians giving patients advice about their health and what is the best for them. Additionally, this legislation does not forget the special health care needs of women and children by allowing immediate access to gynecologists, obstetricians, and pediatricians. It also provides access to specialists.

The bill of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) provides a provision that says patients cannot be denied emergency care coverage because the visit was not preapproved. The plan says if a prudent layperson believes that a symptom requires immediate medical attention, including emergency ambulance services, then the insurer must pay for the care regardless of whether it is a network facility. We do not want to let insurance providers drive the industry to a point where, in an emergency, patients are calling their insurance companies before dialing 911.

The plan also requires coverage of routine medical costs for patients enrolled in a government-sponsored cancer clinical trial which includes FDA trials under which about two-thirds of all clinical trials occur. It also prohibits insurance providers from denying coverage on FDA-approved drugs or medical devices by classifying them as, quote, “experimental” or “investigational.”

This legislation provides patients with the best access to prescription drugs by allowing doctors to request off-formulary drugs for their patients and for plans to consider side effects and efficacy in their determination.

Mr. Speaker, American families are concerned about their health care; but we cannot improve the quality of care without addressing the cost. Those without health insurance are not just the indigent. It is the small business owners, the self-employed who cannot afford the premiums. It is young people. It is a broad cross-section of America. A staggering 44 million Americans cannot afford or do not have health insurance.

Studies show that other proposals being offered in the House as an alternative to the bill of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) could force 6 million more Americans into the ranks of the uninsured. On the other hand, producing a plan that would cover 60 percent of the plan of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) would help provide 9 million uninsured Americans vital access to coverage by expanding association health plans and repealing all restrictions on access to medical savings accounts. But it does not give the patients themselves ultimate control over their own health care.

Another notable feature that puts the proposal of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) above the other proposals which claim to protect patients is support from the Bush administration. President Bush has promised to sign this bill saying, “I believe the Fletcher bill will help enhance the great medical care that we have in our country.”

I could not agree more, and I am pleased that the President has put the needs of patients first by lending his support to this bill. Health care reform is complicated, much more complicated than what they believe. We must protect patients by advocating strong patient-focused health care reform.

Mr. Speaker, I will reiterate, strengthening patient protections, strengthening patients’ rights is the key to reforming health care. I strongly support H.R. 2315. I salute the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) and the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON) for their efforts.

Mr. Speaker, I support this as a plan to reform managed care that promotes quality care and restores the doctor-patient relationship. My hope is that my colleagues can join us in rallying behind this initiative as a bipartisan basis for the patients’ bill of rights forward, moving it back to the Senate, and getting a consensus that we can get a Presidential signature on.

I believe this is all achievable in the immediate future if we can work together on a bipartisan basis in this body. I thank the gentlewoman for playing a critical role in creating that bipartisan environment that is allowing us to move forward and have this vote and hopefully move forward to success.

Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for his comprehensive remarks on this issue. This is an extremely important debate we are going to have. I personally believe that every patient, everyone who has health insurance and needs medical care, has the rights of access to quality care that are guaranteed in our bill and in the other bills. That is the right for a breast cancer patient to have a breast GYN specialist, the right to choose pediatric care, and other specialists, to emergency care, to continuity of care, to access to proper information about one’s plan, access to treatment under clinical trials, something I fought 5 years for for Medicare recipients so they could have the benefits of clinical trials, protection from gag rules, and that is what this bill does.

These patients’ rights embodied in our legislation are extremely important. Yes, they can only be enforced if a patient who is denied access has the right to sue. I am proud to say that in over the past 5 years the patients who needed care and harmed by that decision has the right to sue and gets redress. But the program we put out to guarantee patients the right to sue under our bill is a legal structure that is simple, that is direct, that makes it clear to employers that they cannot be sued if they are not making medical decisions; and, therefore, it is affordable and will not push costs up.

Mr. Speaker, we limit liability in a responsible fashion, just as they do in Texas and in many, many States that provide the right to sue. By doing that, again, we control costs and we protect the employers who are the primary folks who are providing insurance to the people of our country.

Mr. Speaker, I am very proud that the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) and others have been part of the team that have developed this legislation that it offers the American people all of the access rights, all of the protections they need to both continue to enjoy health insurance through their place of work and to have the right to all needed medical care. This is a patient’s bill of rights. This is a doctor-power bill.

But if we do this wrong, if we do not really listen to what might happen if we write these provisions in a way that is insensitive to what happens when frivolous suits are brought to the table, when costs shoot up for all the wrong reasons, then it will do damage to the rights of patients and we will deny many currently covered the great privilege and pleasure of health security through health insurance.

I enter this week with high hopes that we in the House can do the right thing to provide access and care to all who have insurance. I am proud to say that the American College of Surgeons, the College of Cardiologists, the thoracic surgeons, the orthopedic surgeons, the neurologists, the pulmonary specialists, the radiation oncologists could go on and on, enough groups of doctors support this bill so that we have that same doctor power behind this bill as the AMA that supports the other bill.

But it is very interesting. The groups that support this bill are the very groups who are most concerned about patient access to their services, because they are the specialist groups. They are the ones that under the current system most frequently are not able to reach the patients that need their care.

So I am proud of this legislation. It will serve the people of America well.
The bills have much in common. I hope working together we in this House and our colleagues in the other body can send to the President's desk a Patients' Bill of Rights that will serve patients, doctors and all Americans and maintain the system of employer-provided health insurance that has made the American health care system the best there is in the world.

MANAGED CARE REFORM FROM A DEMOCRATIC PERSPECTIVE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KIRK). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I intend this evening with some of my colleagues on the Democratic side to focus on the real Patients' Bill of Rights that I, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), who is a Democrat; the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD), who is a Republican and a physician; and the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSKE), who is a Republican and a physician, have been fighting for for probably 5 or 6 years, is the bill that has been sponsored by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), who is a Democrat; the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSKE), who is a Republican and a physician; and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. NORWOOD), who is a Republican and a dentist, and that was voted on overwhelmingly by every Democratic Member of the House of Representatives in the last Congress, as a system of independent review doctors have been influencing by every Democratic Member of the House of Representatives in the last Congress, the real Patients' Bill of Rights, is now being superseded on the other side of the aisle by the Republican leadership which is now promising to bring an alternative bill which they also refer to as the Patients' Bill of Rights to the floor.

I would remind my colleagues that the real Patients' Bill of Rights, the one that we voted on, one that all of us, most Democrats and a significant number of Republicans have been pushing for for probably 5 or 6 years, is the bill that should be allowed to come to the floor rather than the Republican alternative, the Fletcher bill, which is in my opinion nothing but a fig leaf and which does not accomplish the goal of truly reforming HMOs.

There are two essential goals of HMO reform that are in the real Patients' Bill of Rights. One goal is to make sure that rational decisions are made by the physician, the health care professional and the patients, not by the HMOs, not by the insurance companies; and the second goal is to make sure that if you have been denied care by the HMO that you can take the case to court. In all the years since 1997 that it has become law, only 17 lawsuits have been filed under the real Patients' Bill of Rights and which shows dramatically that neither one of those disasters, all these lawsuits, all this litigation, or the other disaster that my Republican colleagues talked about, that health care costs are going to be going up, that insurance companies are going to drop their patients, neither one of those disasters befell the State of Texas because a real Patients' Bill of Rights was put into effect.

It is interesting because, in reality, what President Bush is doing in the last few weeks and leading up to hopefully a vote this week on the Patients' Bill of Rights is that President Bush is waving the same flags that he used in 1997 when he was Governor to say there is going to be too much litigation and that insurance companies are going to drop patients and not let Americans have health insurance, that they are going to drop health care, that they are going to sue the medical decisions that the President used when he was the Governor, they are the arguments that he is using now, and it is simply not true.

Mr. Speaker, if I could just give some statistics. This goes back to 1997 when then Governor Bush said of the Texas Bill of Rights in 1994. In 1997, when it came up again, he did everything he could to sabotage the bill to the point that he actually refused to sign it but I guess for political reasons figured that he could not veto it again and so he simply let it become law without his signature. But we are getting the same rhetoric again.

Last week as the Patients' Bill of Rights, the real one, made its way towards debate in the House, the President said almost the same thing; and I quote, he said, "This is how best to improve the quality of care without unnecessarily running up the cost of medical care by encouraging more lawsuits which would eventually cause people not to be able to have health insurance."

Again, that people are going to have their health insurance dropped, that their litigation is going to increase.

Let us look at the facts. Since the 1997 Texas law that Bush opposed so strongly has taken hold, the disastrous effects he had predicted have yet to occur in the Lone Star State. In the 4 years since, even the law's opponents acknowledge that none of then Governor Bush's predictions have come true. Instead of becoming a bonanza for the all the trial lawyers, the right to sue an HMO for an injury in Texas has been exercised just 17 times. In all the years since 1997 that it has become law, only 17 lawsuits. That is an average of three or four per year.

According to the Texas Department of Insurance, the number of Texans enrolled in health insurance or HMO plans has actually increased steadily since the 1997 law was passed. Enrollment has grown from 2,945,000 Texans at the end of 1996 before the law was passed to 3.2 million at the end of 1997 to 3.9 million at the end of 2000. There is just no truth to this. In fact, when you talk about the cost, the cost of HMO premiums in Texas have risen but less than the national average. So the real problem line is the disaster has not occurred.

I know I almost hesitated to talk about what is happening in Texas because my two colleagues whom I know are going to join me tonight are both from Texas and I do not like to speak about another State, but it is all positive. The experience has been totally positive.

How can the President or any of our Republican colleagues on the other side of the aisle suggest the kind of thing, the same kind of disaster that is going to befall the Nation when Texas has been such a success story?

Just to give an example, one of the reasons, of course, and I always maintain that what the HMO reform would do and what the Patients' Bill of Rights would do was essentially correct the errors of the system. Because once the HMOs know that they cannot get away with these things, then they start to be more cautious and making sure that patients get the type of care that they want. Because they know that if they deny care there is going to be an external review by independent people outside the HMO, or they know that ultimately people can go to court. So they correct the situation. It becomes preventative. That is essentially what the Patients' Bill of Rights will do.

Again, the Texas situation points that out very dramatically. In Texas, you could go straight to the courts if you want to, but people overwhelmingly go to the independent review. This is an external review, a group of people that review a denial of care that are not appointed by the HMO and not influenced by the HMO's original ruling. I guess in about half the cases. What we are seeing is now that patients know that they can go outside the HMO and have an independent review of a denial of care. They are exercising that. They are not going to court because nobody wants to go to court and have litigation and spend money and go on and on for years. Nobody wants to do that, not the patients any more than the HMOs or the employers.

What they set forth in Texas is a very easy way to review denial of care. It has been largely successful. The bottom line is there is absolutely no reason why we should not try to implement that level.

Some people have said to me, well, if the States are doing this, why do we need the national law?

First of all, not every State is doing it. Texas has probably the best law. None of the others are as good. Most States still do not have anything near the protection that Texas offers.

In addition to that, because of a statute called the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, or ERISA, those people who are insured through employers who are self-insured, and I do not want to get into all the bureaucracy of that, but that is about 60 percent of the people who are insured in this country, they are not subject to the State law. They are covered by the ERISA law like the Patients’ Bill of Rights to make sure that they have the same kind of protections that they would get in States like Texas if they were covered by the Texas law.

The other thing that really upset me, and I have to be honest about the Fletcher bill, the Republican alternative that we heard about earlier this evening, is that it would preempt the State law. Experts in Texas will tell you that if the Fletcher bill, the one that my Republican colleagues were talking about tonight, were to become law, it would supersede the Texas law and we could have a situation where the very people who are being protected by that law now and have that independent review or the ability to go to court might not have that kind of protection because the Federal law, the Fletcher bill, would preempt it.

What is happening down here? Mr. Speaker, my colleagues might say, are we ever going to get to this Patients’ Bill of Rights? Are we ever going to get to the Fletcher bill? The Republican leadership and the Speaker made, and they can bring up whatever they want. But the bottom line is that we know that there is a majority for the real Patients’ Bill of Rights, for the Norwood-Dingell-Ganske bill that is made up of almost every Democrat and enough Republicans to create a majority. We have a right, given that that majority exists, to have that bill come up for a clean vote this week. I will say right now to the Speaker and to my colleagues that if that right is denied us because the Republican leadership realizes that there are enough votes to pass the real Patients’ Bill of Rights and not enough to kill it with the Fletcher alternative, there is going to be a lot of recriminations around here because we do not have the right to vote on that bill.

So I would say to the Republican leadership, bring up the Patients’ Bill of Rights. You want us to vote on the Fletcher bill? The votes will not be there. Just bring us a vote on the real Patients’ Bill of Rights, the Dingell-Ganske-Norwood bill.

But either way, let us have a clean vote this week, because that was the commitment that the Republican leadership and the Speaker made, and they should fulfill that commitment this week and let us vote on the patients’ bill this week. The simple basic premise is not frivolous and they have been based upon the negligence of the HMO in denying medical care. Just return to you my thought processes here on the Fletcher bill. First of all, it now becomes a potpourri, a kitchen sink, of private savings accounts for health care and a myriad of other tax issues and accounting issues, and this is not what the American people are asking for.

The basic underlying principles of the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill, and we could put it in any other framework, the bill passed in the Senate, the bill is about accountability.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield now to one of my two colleagues from Texas, both of whom have been here on a regular basis with me speaking out on this issue, and I particularly like to yield to the gentleman from Texas. Mr. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey. I am delighted to be able to join him, along with my distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ), who has served in the State legislature and serves, as I do, on the Energy Brain Trust of the Congressional Black Caucus. He, of course, leads the leadership of the health caucus in the House. We know that these are global American issues, and so we come to speak to them as they are global issues.

I was fascinated by the debate of my colleagues that occurred just a few short minutes ago regarding the pending debate as relates to new legislation, H.R. 2315, now known as the Fletcher bill. I was quite fascinated because one of the strongest elements of the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill and the McCain bill is the bipartisanism and the age of the bills. These bills have been vetted throughout the country, they have been vetted by Members of both sides of the aisle, and they have been seen to be logical and direct responses to the needs of American people.

I am very disappointed that the administration, with the leadership of President Bush, that comes directly out of the State of Texas, who has seen the similarity in the Dingell-Norwood bill work, would now throw this curve, so that we could not do this for the entire citizenry of America.

There is a study that exists, and I cannot quote the particular survey that was done, but it was done out of Fort Worth, that shows in the time frame of the passage of the State bill that is very similar to what we are debating and hopefully will debate, the real patients’ bill of rights, shows that there have been less than 20 cases dealing with challenges to HMOs, lawsuits, if you will, and all of them have been non-frivolous and they have been based upon the negligence of the HMO in denying medical care.

Just return to you my thought processes here on the Fletcher bill. First of all, it now becomes a potpourri, a kitchen sink, of private savings accounts for health care and a myriad of other tax issues and accounting issues, and this is not what the American people are asking for.

The basic underlying principles of the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill, and we could put it in any other framework, the bill passed in the Senate, the bill is about accountability. The simple basic premise is not frivolous lawsuits, it is not harassment, it is not intimidation, it is simply to hold HMOs accountable for negligence. It is not even holding them accountable for their existence. There are many viewpoints about, but I was very pleased to have seen that many of the holders of HMOs, the individuals who have health plans, like their individual health plan.

This is not an uprising by the American people to randomly throw out health plans, without as well as well. The bottom line of why we thought it was necessary some 3 or 4 years ago, as the gentleman from New Jersey is well aware of, to come to the aid of the American people, were the egregious denials that were occurring to various holders of health care or managed care programs and plans throughout the Nation.

Right now I can remember the lady that was flown from Hawaii because she was denied service, and, as she got off the plane in Chicago, she died. I remember the very moving and stirring presence, a middle-aged lady, mother of a little boy about 8 to 12 years old, that the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. GANSSKE) brought to the floor of the House to educate us about a young boy who was denied emergency care, and, because of that denial, suffered a myelitis neuropathy of his limbs. We are talking about egregious circumstances that have to be addressed.

Interestingly enough, we are still holding the American Medical Association, the premier group that knows about medical care in today’s hospitals and today’s rural and urban communities, who have indicated their strong and committed support of the legislation on the patients’ bill of rights. Let me cite to you a direct quote from the American Medical Association. It says, “June 28, 2001, the American Medical Association called on Congress to reject the HMO lobby’s desperate smokescreen that the McCain bill,” which is, on the House side, the Dingell-Ganske-Norwood bill, “would increase the number of uninsured. In the nine states that have comprehensive patients’ rights laws in place, there have been very few lawsuits, and the laws have not caused premiums or the number of uninsured to skyrocket.”

This goes to the very point dealing with the fact employers, well-meaning, good-intentioned employers, will be the ones that will suffer. First of all, I know we are looking to address that question, but primarily that kind of result is not the result, did not happen in Texas, and certainly not as it was alleged, as evidenced by the statement of the American Medical Association, which has assessed the nine states that have this bill. We have not seen evidence of skyrocketing costs, uninsured individuals, employers, and employees running away from their employees in providing health insurance.

Let me cite you an additional point. Last year, without a patients’ bill of rights, the insurers nationwide had no patients’ bill of rights existed, increased premiums by an average of 8.3 percent. That is ten times what it would cost for the liability provisions in the McCain bill, and, again, that is the House bill as well that we have and the number of uninsured went down. That is by Dr. Reardon, the President of the American Medical Association. I think what we need to do is to present to the American people the facts that if we present to them the facts, they will adhere to the reasoning of why we have to come to their aid.

For example, we know that HMOs, or managed care entities, have found as the basis for their existence the controlling of hospital admissions, diagnostics tests or specialty referrals, either through programs to review the use of services, or by giving participating physicians a financial stake in the cost of the services they order.

Here lies the angst of the American people. What the American people have been used to and have asked for to remedy the inability to pay for health insurance plans and to be able to access those plans. What we have had over the last couple of years without a patients’ bill of rights is hard-working Americans being denied access to emergency care, access to specialty care, and, in women in particular, access to Ob-Gyn and being able to select them as our primary care.

As you can see, I was so struck by the earlier debate, forgive me for utilizing the words of the gentleman. I believe that we have worked so long. I am recalling hearings that we had, where people came from across the country to share with us some of the terrible examples, stories, anecdotes, personal experiences, where they were denied care, not by their physician who encouraged the care, but by an HMO, and, as we have noted before, HMOs that are using various computers and nonmedical personnel, plugging in to the computer and denying care. I am thinking of Houston, Texas, or to Orange, New Jersey, if you will, or Newark, New Jersey, or San Antonio, or Chicago, Illinois, that the service will be denied.

This is what is not provided in the Fletcher bill. It does not guarantee, according to the American Medical Association, access to pediatric specialists. Now, my State and many States have huge medical centers. We are very proud of the Texas Children’s Hospital. We see patients from around the country. My district is next door to that facility. But it is world-renowned.

In that hospital there is a great need for specialists. When children come from around the world, they come there because they have been referred. But in many instances when they are sent back to their home destinations, those doctors wanted to refer them to specialists to continue their care. The Fletcher bill does not guarantee access to pediatric specialists. So tell me one expert that wants to accept the kind of health care that does not allow them to secure the best specialty services for their child? Juvenile diabetes, which we know is a terrible devastating disease, how many want to be referred back to their home community and cannot access a pediatric specialist?

The Fletcher bill fails to guarantee referrals to specialists for patients with congenital conditions, and obviously I am very grateful for the research and technology that has allowed us to live longer with congenital disorders. We cannot do so, however, if we leave the large medical institutions that we have maybe in the large cities, go back to our respective communities, and cannot be referred to specialists.

It does not allow women to see gynecologists without asking permission from the HMO. It does not become a specialist, such that you have to make affirmation or confirmation on what is necessary care for women on an ordinary daily basis? As we well know, preventive care is the care, which, of course, is enormously deadly, and they want to send you to an intern who focuses on general medical conditions, that does not relate to the seriousness and the devastating impact of a breast disease.

In addition, the Fletcher bill contains numerous loopholes in the point of service option which severely limit the ability of patients to buy coverage that allows visits to out-of-the-network providers, which says is I have got a long-standing relationship with my physician, and many of us who grew up with our pediatrician and grew up with doctors who visited our homes or grew up with the family practitioners, we know when we join HMOs plans, to our chagrin, the network prevented us from going back to those physicians who knew our family history, who had cared for us; and, I tell you, senior citizens in my district have been painfully impacted by not being able to have their long-standing physicians, as well as they have been painfully impacted by the Medicare HMOs who canceled out because it has not been profitable for them.

So this whole thing is of a substitute, and let me attribute to my colleagues good intentions; let me attribute to those who have offered H.R. 2315 good intentions. But I can assure you as good, as well as they have these good intentions, what really is happening are smoke and mirrors.

I said I was concluding, but if the gentleman would just bear with me for just a moment, and I will conclude just simply say some additional points that are just glaring and frightening. If you take H.R. 2315 and you want to look at what is happening to the Senate bill and the House bill, listen to all the “no’s” on the Fletcher bill. Requires coverage for minimum hospital stay for breast cancer treatment, no; prohibits discrimination based on genetic information, no; requires choice of primary care provider, prohibit that simply means these good intentions, what really is happening are smoke and mirrors.

If you take H.R. 2315 and you want to look at what is happening to the Senate bill and the House bill, listen to all the “no’s” on this Fletcher bill. Requires coverage for minimum hospital stay for breast cancer treatment, no; prohibits discrimination based on genetic information, no; requires choice of primary care provider, prohibit that simply means these good intentions, what really is happening are smoke and mirrors.

I would simply say to the House and to the leadership, give us the opportunity to have a full debate on the McCain bill, on the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill, and for those of us who have experienced a personal crisis with our loved ones, as I have done in the last 3 to 4 years, with a loved one and a parent, where I had to press the point of the kind of specialty care that would have extended his life. Unfortunately, I lost him.

Unfortunately, I lost him. Many of us have seen the loss of our dear relatives. I would say that there is nothing more personal and more privileged than good health care. I would hope that our colleagues would see the error of their ways and begin to open the doors in the next 48 hours for us to be able to debate the real Patients’ Bill of Rights, what America has asked for, and that we can carry on the truth serum, if you will, the good medicine, and get this legislation passed.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman from Texas for bringing out all of the really good points that she did in effectively refuting many of the myths that the Republicans who support the Fletcher bill, the weaker bill, if you will, the points that they made this evening.

But there were two areas that I would like to focus on before I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ) that I think the gentlewoman really brought out and that I did not bring out, and one is that I focused a lot, and I think that the Republicans on the other side focus a lot, on the liability issue, the question of whether one can sue or not sue. I think to some extent, in refuting them, I kind of fell into the trap of discussing the liability issue.

The fact of the matter is, and the gentlewoman pointed out a number of times, that the Fletcher bill has the weaker bill, if you will, the points that they made this evening.

Secondly, the Fletcher bill does not protect against using these improper incentive arrangements where the doctor gets paid more if he provides less care or does not provide as much care, depending on the procedure, they get paid a little bit. That is not protected in the Fletcher bill.

The other thing and the gentlewoman went into this, so I will not go into it too much, but basically the Fletcher bill has a lot of flaws in the area of access to specialty, clinical care and clinical trials. That is not protected in the Fletcher bill.

The other thing I will mention briefly before I yield to the gentleman from Texas is the poison pills. One of the ways that the Republican leadership succeeded in the last session in killing the real Patients’ Bill of Rights, as the gentlewoman knows, and we all know that it passed here in the House, the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill passed and almost every Democrat and 68 Republicans, I believe, voted for it. But when it got to conference, what they did is, they kept arguing, if you will, over these poison pills. In other words, it passed in the House, but it had these poison pills with regard to the medical savings accounts and the malpractice suits.

The Fletcher bill has two poison pills like this. It expands the medical savings accounts and also the association health plans. I do not want to spend time tonight getting into all of those. The bottom line is they absolutely nothing to do with the Patients’ Bill of Rights or patient protection. They have to do with the way they save money and deal with your health insurance and what kind of health insurance pools we have. They do not belong in this bill. If we pass that bill, we will have the same thing again in conference where they try to argue those issues and they manage to kill the real Patients’ Bill of Rights.

Again, we have a poison pill. That is what we are asking for, the real Patients’ Bill of Rights, the clean bill that only deals with HMO patient protection and does not mess things up with all of these poison pills. I am glad the gentlewoman brought that up, because it is another criticism of this Fletcher Republican alternative.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I appreciate him reinforcing that point. Because as I was reading through some of my materials, the poison pills are so damaging because they are contrary to the American people.

Two points: Over 80 percent of the American people believe that HMOs should be held accountable for negligence. They are not asking about Federal savings accounts and other issues. They also believe they should be able to get to emergency rooms in the 80 percent range. It does not seem like they are focusing on all of this other baggage that the Fletcher bill has.

Before the gentlewoman yields, and I thank the gentlewoman from Texas for allowing me to make this point, as I was coming to the floor and hearing the debate that preceded us, there was some comment about minorities and how this would have a negative impact on minorities. We know that African Americans, Hispanics, Asians, whatever group we want to classify as minorities, other groups of people, they need other sorts of assistance, or we are trying to work with their employers so that they can have the kind of coverage that they should have. But I think that it is certainly misrepresenting to suggest that this bill will hurt minorities.

Mr. Speaker, I want to reinforce that this bill will give all Americans a Patients’ Bill of Rights to reestablish the patient-physician relationship and help individuals who one believes fight the system by being able to hold HMOs accountable. So if one happens to be the bus driver, the waitress, the schoolteacher, the accountant, the doctor, the lawyer, one can still have the ability to hold the HMO accountable for negligence when they have denied you the care that you have paid for. I cannot see any way that this will hurt minorities.

In fact, for those minorities who we want to classify as minorities, they need assistance, health care, whose health has been impacted because they cannot get good health care, to make HMOs more accountable and ensuring that when a physician calls from an inner city needing added care for that particular victim or patient, I should not say victim but patient, that that physician can access that health care, regardless of whether they are in the inner city of Harlem or Houston or anywhere else that might relegate them to inadequate health care.

So I refute that, and I question any comment suggesting that this bill will hurt minorities and, in particular, let me say, African Americans, and I cannot find any evidence in this bill where that would occur.

I thank the gentlewoman.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for bringing that up, because I think essentially what our bill does is empower people. It does not matter whether one is of one’s race, color, gender. The bottom line is people who are sick are not easily empowered. They are victims, even though we do not want to use that term. What it does is it empowers people at a time when they really need help, regardless of their race, religion or whatever, and that is what we are all about.

I thank the gentlewoman.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ).

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for allowing me to be here. I also had a chance to listen to the dialogue that was coming, and I have the hour after yours regarding border health, but I needed to come up here because, in all honesty, there was a sense of frustration and some anger.

Because, as the gentleman well knows, for the last two or 3 years we have been talking about making sure we pass a Patients' Bill of Rights. We know that people are, throughout the country, having those difficulties. Not only do they have to fight their illness when they get sick, but they have to fight their HMO and the managed care system, and that is unfortunate.

One of the good things about it is, if nothing else, now they are talking about it. Now they have brought up the issue. Now they realize that it is something that is serious and so they need to at least begin to give it lip service. But we are hoping that they do more than just lip service, because I know that they can do that and then decide not to do what they are supposed to be doing.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot help but recall an incident back when I was in the State legislature when we talked about access to rural health care. One of the first things we talked about was how we could get help to rural Texas. At that time, when I was in the Texas legislature, I remember that a person with any logic, any sense of wanting to really respond to the problem, would start thinking, well, let us see how we can get a doctor down there. Let us see how we can get a mobile unit down there. Let us see how we can get some nurses down there.

Well, the response from what actually occurred after all that, because I was real naive to the political process, was they decided to draft legislation that was tort reform. So here we stand and what I hear is the lawyers are going to get it. I am not a lawyer. I do not care about attorneys. The only thing I do care about is to make sure that patients have access to health care. Yes, in some of those critical situations, if HMOs are not responsive, they should have access to the judicial courts. No one who is sick would want to go to the courts. No one who has been hurting and is tired enough of having to fight their HMO wants to go see an attorney. I know I would not want to do that. But one has to be able to leave that as a last option, no matter what.

I can share an example. I have a friend who was working in the garage, cut his finger, his finger fell off completely, and he got scared, grabbed it, and he went to the hospital. He went into the emergency room. This happened prior to the legislation. First, they had some trouble getting the doctor that he should have been seeing, and then the specialist, they had trouble getting the specialist. Well, the insurance company, the bottom line was, told him, number one, we are not going to pay for a specialist because they did not okay it. So here he is, losing a finger, and he has to try to get an okay as to whether this specialist should put it on or not. Well, he lost his finger. He does not have the finger now. They are still unwilling to pay, approximately, a little less than $3,000. What does he do? What does he do?

So one of the things that this legislation allows and opportunity for the person to choose the doctor of their choice, and that is so important. Not only is that critical, but it also allows that physician to determine whether one needs a specialist or not. Those are the ones that are supposed to be making the decisions, not the accountant, not the insurance based on how much profits they are making or not making if they make certain decisions. It should be made on the needs of that person.

Secondly, the bill covers all Americans, and that is so important, whether one works for small businesses or not. There are company doctors that are out there that we need to be concerned about. A lot of times the company doctors will make decisions on the needs of the company and not the particular patient. So that becomes real important.

Thirdly, it ensures that all external reviews of medical decisions are conducted by independent qualified physicians, and that is so important. We want to make sure, if you are there, if your mother is there or if a loved one is there, you want qualified people making those decisions. You do not want them to be made because they are going to save a few hundred dollars or a few thousand dollars in choosing not to do certain procedures.

The other thing is that doctors right now, and the gentleman mentioned this, are gagged by the gag rule. They are actually being told that they cannot provide certain options where they can tell the patient, look, you have this disease, these are the options. You can do this, this, or this other option and there is a cost variance. They are not even allowed to do that.

We ought to be ashamed of ourselves. We have passed this piece of legislation several times already, and the Republican-dominated Congress continues to kill it in conference. Now, they get up here, and now they are talking about it. Well, let us see if it does not turn into a situation where the rules will allow a lot of other amendments to come in and then, very similar to what happened in campaign finance, where they allowed so much junk out there so that they were going to pile it up so that even the author would want to be able to vote for that piece of legislation.

So I am hoping that, as we move forward from, at least we got them to a point that they are at least talking about it, and that we can go forward in making sure that we do the right thing when it comes to the Patients' Bill of Rights, when it comes to our patients throughout this country.

I want to thank the gentleman for his hard work that he has done, because he has been at the forefront. We need to keep hitting on this issue. It is something that is right, and it is something that we need to do.

I just want to remind the gentleman that President Bush, then Governor Bush, initially vetoed the first Patients' Bill of Rights in Texas. that was not really concerned about his health care. What we are trying to do with the Patients’ Bill of Rights is to put the patient and doctor back together again.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, if I could, I have a gentlewoman here from Texas, in the House, who is getting to the point that I wanted to raise by our colleague from Texas.

He talked about lip service, and what has been happening here with our Republican colleagues on the other side tonight is that they realize now that the Patients’ Bill of Rights has the support overwhelmingly of the American people.

As the gentlewoman said, the special interests have been out there, the HMOs, the insurance companies, fighting this thing tooth and nail. Even with all of that, look at all of the recognized groups that care about patients, and the AMA being probably the most prominent, but there are so many other supportive groups, the nurses and all of the doctors, too.

Our colleague, the gentleman from Connecticut, mentioned one specialty care, but I could rattle off every specialty care diplomate organization in the country that is supportive of the Dingell-Norwood bill.

What they are doing now is paying lip service to the issue because they know it is an issue that is strong and that people want because it affects real people, like the guy who lost his finger.

What I wanted to say if I could, and then I will yield back, is that we have to be very careful what we do here. These people that oppose the Patients’ Bill of Rights, the special interests, they are pretty sophisticated. What they are trying to do tonight with this Fletcher bill is suggest that somehow this is not that different from the Dingell-Norwood-Ganske bill.

It is not true. It is simply not true, because we have to remember that that person, refer to them, the person who lost their finger, they are very vulnerable individuals. If we are going to make sure that the decision about what type of care they get is made by the doctor, and that if that is denied that they have a real way to redress the grievances, we could make some very simple changes in the law and eliminate both of those things.

That is what they have done with the Fletcher bill, because one of the things we hold the Patients’ Bill of Rights is to say that the standard of review about what kind of care is necessary, what the physician should be allowed to provide, is decided by the physicians, by the standard of care within the medical community, and particularly within those specialties, the pediatric standard, the cardiological standard for the specialty care, or the general standard for family practice care.

They have basically said in their bill, in the Fletcher bill, that that review process is going to be different. It is going to be stacked against the patient.

I will just give an example. The bill, basically what it says is the standard review used by the external review process requires the reviewer to make its decisions on only the patient’s record and scientific evidence, and does not allow them to get to the standard of care that has the larger community or that exists for that specialty.

I probably sound like a bureaucrat in relating all this, but the bottom line is, we make sure that the decision about what microscope is the standard that the AMA would use, that the cardiologists’ Board of Diplomates would use. They are not using that standard. The guarantee that that decision is going to be based on what the physician thinks is necessary is denied by the Fletcher bill.

The other thing is that we have a rapid ability to overturn a denial of care, in our bill. What the Fletcher bill does is to put all kinds of barriers in the way when they lose a finger, he cannot easily say, I have been denied care and I can go to somebody, and they right away turn around that decision, so he can get his finger reattached in a timely fashion. They put all kinds of barriers in the way. I will just give an example. In the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill, we require the decisions are made with regard to the medical exigencies of the patient’s case. This means the plan has to act quickly when the person loses a finger.

There is no such requirement in the Fletcher bill. There is nothing that says, my finger is detached. If they are denying me care, I have to have somebody who is going to within minutes change that decision over the phone. That is not the case. They could say under the Fletcher bill that one would have to wait a few days, a couple of weeks, how does that work with a guy who loses his finger?

I will give another example, there are ten that I could give here.

The patient, under the Ganske-Dingell-Norwood bill, requires that patients have a right to appeal to an external reviewer before the plan terminates care. That is not true in the Fletcher bill. To use the example with the guy who lost his finger, they can continue to provide him all kinds of care, but maybe not what is necessary to reattach the finger. He cannot go to the board and have the decision turned down, and they are continuing to treat him in some maybe not effective way.

So there are all kinds of ways to get around the basic protections that we are providing in the Ganske-Norwood bill. To give an example with the Fletcher bill, it is using all kinds of little ways to get around that. We do not have time to go into it all tonight, but I want there to be a basic understanding that there is a real difference here between these two bills.

As the gentlewoman said, my colleague from Texas, they are giving lip service to the Patients’ Bill of Rights, but they are not really for the real Patients’ Bill of Rights.

I yield back to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ.)

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I would hope that when people provide lip service, I would hope that we judge people on what they also do. So when they give it lip service, I am hoping they will go beyond that and start acting in an appropriate manner.

When we try to do tonight with this Fletcher bill, I came up with a tort reform. If they use it for political reasons to get after and reward their friends and do in their enemies, then that really upsets me and angers me. I saw the tone of that when they got up here.

The majority of people do not like attorneys. I am not one, and I do not know if the gentleman is one. I apologize if the gentleman is. But the bottom line is, they have the judiciary paid insurance. Those judges, and all the judges out there, with the exception of the Supreme Court in the last decision that they made. Beyond that, most judges do the right thing. We would expect that people would go only to the judiciary in the last respect.

With our piece of legislation, it allows a review board, and it allows that review board to be able to look at that data before any court decision. So it would be very obvious to anyone if something wrongful had occurred. And if it does occur, and if it occurs with one’s loved one or anyone, then that person deserves to receive justice if they were denied access to a certain cause that caused that injury.

So I think that is important, and that ultimate right still belongs to every American. It should not be taken away by the insurance companies of this country. Just because they have paid insurance all their lives, not all of a sudden they are sick and find themselves not having access to the quality care they had been paying for and had been promised, and they find themselves again fighting the disease and the illness and also fighting the HMOs, then they would wonder, where are our politicians? Where are they?

We have been trying to make this happen, and I hope that they are sincere about trying to make something happen and make people accountable, and make those insurance companies accountable for doing the right thing when those people find themselves in need.

Mr. PALLONE. I appreciate the gentleman’s comments. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), Mr. Speaker.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman made a slight misstatement. He said he was sounding like a bureaucrat. No, the gentleman was explaining the bureaucracy that the Fletcher bill was now going to recreate to inhibit the diagnosis review or have an opportunity to hold HMOs accountable.

Fingers do not last long that are detached, and emergency surgery or needs for immediate care cannot tolerate scientific review and paperwork review and computer review and standards review. They can tolerate a trained specialist or physician looking at the facts with the patient before them, consulting with their colleagues and making an immediate decision to save this person’s life.

What I see is a pitiful response to the outcry of Americans about care and the relationship between physicians and patients creating this whole new established bureaucracy that does nothing but delay the decision. If I have to get my child into an emergency room circumstance with a pediatric specialist at hand and if that is denied me, then I may shorten the opportunity for my child to recuperate.

We have seen some tragic incidences occurring with children just this summer. When the summertime comes, we know that children engage in fun, but we also know that with the myriad various incidents that occur. They need immediate health care.

I would say to the gentleman, no, he is not the bureaucrat, but the Fletcher bill would create a whole new independent set of bureaucracies that do not get care to the patient. I just think that we should come together in this House and the Senate and vote for the real Patients’ Bill of Rights.

Mr. FALLONE. I want to thank the gentlewoman, and both of my colleagues from Texas.

I think we only have another minute or so. I wanted to say that my real concern, the House focus and that we never get to the real Patients’ Bill of Rights.

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I was just hearing talking about the Patients’ Bill of Rights and how important that issue is. I want to take this opportunity tonight to begin to talk a little bit about border health.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to call attention to the poor state of health along the U.S.-Mexican border. The United States-Mexico border reaches approximately 2,000 miles, from the Pacific Ocean in the West to the Gulf of Mexico in the East.

More than half of this border, over 1,248 miles, is shared with Texas. It is a vast region, and each of the four southwestern border States have a unique history and community dynamics.

However, Texas, California, Arizona, and New Mexico’s borders all share the plague of persistent socioeconomic problems largely ignored by the rest of the Nation.

If the United States border region of Texas were declared the 51st State, and we say this and we kind of talk in Texas about the fact that we are one of the few States that has a law that says we can divide our State into five States if we wanted to, but if we were to make the 51st State on the border of Texas, taking those counties into consideration, it would rank as one of the poorest in terms of access to health care, second in the death rate from hepatitis, and third in the death rate of diabetes. The rate of the uninsured is among the highest in the country, as are the poverty rates.

In Texas and New Mexico, an estimated 28 percent of the border residents have no health insurance, and in Arizona it is estimated at 28 percent, and the estimates in California are 19 percent. So that what we have throughout the border area is a very large lack of health care.

I am relieved that there is finally a focus on health care and this has dominated both of the campaigns in the previous elections. There is some talk about the importance of border health now, although it had been there before. Since the focus has started now and some dialogue has started, we are hoping to be able to get revenues to the border.

I strongly support all the efforts that have been made to pass a comprehensive Patients’ Bill of Rights, and we are going to continue to move forward on that, but I urge my colleagues to also look at the issues of access and especially in underserved communities such as the border.

Oftentimes, the emergency rooms end up being the first line of care for residents in underserved areas like the border. It is also true that health disparities along the border are enormous. For those of my colleagues who have ever visited the border, any of the areas I represent, Starr and Zapata on the border are the two counties I have of which are in my district, both Starr County and Hidalgo County, not in my district, these two counties included are the poorest in the country in the Nation. So we have a great deal of poverty associated with lack of access to health care.

The district that I represent faces many health and environmental challenges. The poor state of infrastructure leads to real health and environmental problems, including hepatitis, diabetes and tuberculosis. Health problems are compounded by low per-capita income, lack of insurance, and lack of access to health care facilities.

There is a realization that the border region is crying out for increased resources in the face of so many challenges. Tuberculosis has emerged as a serious threat to public health along the border. One-third of the new TB cases in the U.S. were from four southwest border States. Once again, one-third of all the cases in the United States come from the border.

The ease with which an individual can contract the tuberculosis bacteria is often frightening. Often someone needs to do no more than breathe in the tuberculosis bacteria coughed into the air by the infected individual. Currently, 15 million Americans are infected with tuberculosis, which means we are all at risk. The disease hits some communities more than others.

Regions which have high levels of tourism, international business and immigration experience higher than average levels. For instance, Texas has one of the highest tuberculosis rates in the country now. My State ranks seventh nationwide in the incidence of tuberculosis, with TB rates of 8.2 percent per 100,000. Even more sad is that minorities suffer disproportionately. Latinos in the United States have a tuberculosis rate six times that of Anglos.

Tuberculosis is not the only disease of which the border residents are hit disproportionately. They also suffer from diabetes.

When we look at diabetes, the border has a higher mortality rate than the rest of the country. Again, I will use the Texas statistics. In 1986, the Texas diabetes mortality rate was nearly 50 percent higher than the rest of the United States. Gestational diabetes and Type II diabetes hit the Spanish population in greater numbers than other populations, and it is the Hispanic population that makes up the largest percentage of the border residents.

It is unacceptable that such a high number of border diabetes patients die from disease that can be controlled and even prevented.

When we consider the effect that environmental pollution has on health, it gets even worse. Last year we debated whether to let Mexican trucks into the United States. I cannot stress again how important it is that these trucks meet U.S. safety standards, especially when they are coming into our state. Our air quality along the border is threatened due to the increased truck traffic brought about through NAFTA. More children than ever are developing respiratory problems, such as asthma, causing them to miss school, extra-curricular activities and, even worse, to be hospitalized.

Water pollution poses a serious health hazard, including the spread of Hepatitis A and parasitic infections. Hepatitis A, spread mainly through unclean food and water, is two or three times more prevalent along the Mexican border than the U.S. as a whole. The presence of lead in water can cause damage to developing brains, the nervous system of children, and affects reproductive systems in adults.

BORDER HEALTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I was just hearing talking about the Patients’ Bill of Rights and how important that issue is. I want to take this opportunity tonight to begin to talk a little bit about border health.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to call attention to the poor state of health along the U.S.-Mexican border. The United States-Mexico border reaches approximately 2,000 miles, from the Pacific Ocean in the West to the Gulf of Mexico in the East.

More than half of this border, over 1,248 miles, is shared with Texas. It is a vast region, and each of the four southwestern border States have a unique history and community dynamics.
Residents in colonias are even more at risk from environmental health-related problems. Colonias are rural, unincorporated communities characterized by the lack of certain basic public services, such as drinking water, sewage disposal, electricity, and paved roads. For instance, 86 percent of the individuals living in Texas colonias in the year 2000 had water but only 12 percent had sewage disposal.

As you can see, what I am describing is not on the Mexican side. I am talking about the U.S. side, and we are talking about the boarders between Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California. Mr. Speaker, the border regions between the U.S. and Mexico are an area of great potential and challenge, especially with respect to the health and environmental concerns that our two nations face.

What is the cause of the border health disparity? The lack of health education, low reimbursement rates to our health care providers, the lack of access to health care facilities, and the chronic shortage of health care professionals. In addition, the poor data collection related to this situation where we do not have all the information needed to solve the problems that confront us. Disparities in the reimbursement rates for Medicaid and the SCHIPs, along with the consistent lack of health care professionals are some of the problems that have been confronted.

I want to take this opportunity to also mention that we have had the opportunity to work through the boarder. We recently had a town hall meeting in El Paso with my colleague, the gentlemen from Texas (Mr. REYES), and one of the things, as we get the data that deals with the disproportionate disparities that exist, on the boarder regarding health, is that despite the fact that we get resources from the Federal Government, such as Medicaid, for example, that we still find some disparities within the States.

One of the great ironies was some testimony that was provided by a county judge from El Paso, Dolores Briones, and I want to read part of her testimony that she gave us. She talked about the ironies that have recently been discovered in our State, and I am going to read from her testimony.

Our State, referring to Texas, Medicaid budget actually benefited from the high poverty rates along the border when compared to the Federal dollars. That is, because of the poor people in south Texas, the State of Texas is able to leverage additional resources that they would not necessarily be able to.

Right now, those funding formulas for the Medicaid programs allows the State to draw down $1.50 for every State general revenue dollar spent on Medicaid services. That is what we call the 60–40 split. That is that for every 40 cents we put in, we get 60 cents. This split of funding responsibility is recalculated each year for each of the States, and it is based upon the State’s per capita income.

I mention this because it is real important that my colleagues stay with me and follow through. We get those monies based on per capita income when compared to the national average per income levels. The lower the State per capita income, the higher the Federal dollars that the State gets. It is additional resources because of the poor people that live on the border.

The testimony we received is that the State of Texas actually benefits from those high poverty rates based on per capita income, and child poverty, El Paso and other border counties. Without the borders, the State of Texas would only be getting a statistic of 50 to 50 instead of 40 to 60 percent, which is a minimum of Federal matching rate allowed under Medicaid.

A separate calculation for the area, if we just took the lower region and if we took that calculation, the lower counties should get 83 cents for every 17 cents we put in. The bottom line is, when then the formulas are distributed and the State gets that money, they reimburse Houston and some of the communities and Dallas in the north at a higher rate than they do San Antonio, than they do the rural areas of El Paso. So here they are leveraging that money based on per capita, based on the low-income population and, at the same time, as they receive those resources, they choose to distribute them in a manner that discriminates against those poor that were able to leverage those resources for them.

It was very startling information that was provided by the county judge. She talked about the fact that she was going to do everything she could to come to grips with that issue, to make sure that those monies followed those patients and that it go to those areas where those patients are in need. And the areas that are a little more affluent such as South Texas should not be leveraged at higher rates if they do not have the same formulas or the same per capita. The region and the border should be getting a higher rate. San Antonio included.

So when we look at that disparity, we see some of the problems that exist and that we need to begin to clarify. And she indicated that she was looking at it and, if she had to, was going to go into litigation over the issue. My colleague, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. REYES), and other Members of Congress from Texas asked the GAO to do an assessment of each of the States as to how this money was being handled. So it is something that needs to be looked at.

It is something that is serious. It is something that we need to come to grips with in making sure that if those monies are going down there to help those people that are in need and if it is followed based on a formula that talks about how important it is because of the fact that they are poor and it is per capita, then one would think they would be receiving the money, yet they get disproportionate monies. What it does is it creates a real difficulty because of the reimbursement rate for our doctors on the border, which is much less, for our hospitals it is much less than it would be in Dallas or Houston or elsewhere.

That is unfortunate. But, hopefully, we will continue to work on that specific issue as we move forward.

I also want to take this opportunity to just give a few statistics about the border. It is important to note that, in 1990, there were 6 million people lived along the border, with 55 percent in the United States and 45 percent in Mexico. A lot of times we do not take into consideration that these communities have sister cities right across and there are major populations. So it is important for us to remember that.

When we look at the problems of tuberculosis, it is not just the population that we have in El Paso or the population that we have in Laredo. We have to consider that there are not just the people on the one side also that have a direct impact. So it becomes really important that we keep that in mind. So for health care, which is the issue that I am talking about, it is one of the areas that we also need to be very conscientious of.

We talked about tuberculosis. As my colleagues may well know, tuberculosis can be spread by just talking in front of someone, as we breathe the air. It is very serious. Tuberculosis, a very infectious disease, up until seven prescriptions are needed. It has to be fought for 6 months, and if it is not fought and the medication not taken during that period of time, we find a situation where those particular prescriptions will no longer work on that particular illness.

We find out now that in tuberculosis, we are finding that there are some strands that we are having difficulty with because we do not have medications to treat them.

Mexico treats tuberculosis with less prescriptions, and a lot has to do with cost. We really need to battle tuberculosis on the border. We need to battle it wherever it is throughout the world because when it comes to infectious diseases, it is like preventing a war. If you can prevent something, it is better than having to send our troops to deal with it. The same thing with access to infectious diseases. We need to treat them because later on we will find other forms of the disease that you are unable to treat because people did not take the medication appropriately the way that they should.

When we look at AIDS, the disparity in AIDS also exists. There is a tremendous amount of AIDS. We see the statistics of Hispanics based on their population figures. It is beginning to hit the wise that are poor. We know in the area of AIDS there is some new information that you can begin to test yourself, and you can identify whether you have AIDS or not much earlier, which has a direct impact on being able to take care of yourself and taking care of those persons that are inflicted with that disease.

It is important that we do that as quickly as possible. Once again, one of the problems that exists is with the poor. It is one thing to know that they have diabetes or AIDS, but it does not do any good unless patients have access to good care. It becomes more important to have these conditions under control, and I think of the lack of access to good quality care, the problems of not having access to insurance, and we do have Medicaid for our indigent, but one of the things that we find is if you are not indigent and you are working on the border, and a lot of times small companies do not have access to insurance. If you do not have access to insurance and you are trying to make ends meet, you find yourself in a situation if you get sick or you are pregnant, you find yourself in trouble. Thank God we were able to establish the CHIP program which has helped a lot of youngsters of parents who are working and trying to make ends meet and get covered with insurance, but we need some additional efforts in that area. We do need to do the outreach. We need educational programs. We have done some good studies on diabetes. In fact, some initial studies on diabetes were on the border, Starr County, where we have been able to detect diabetes in the morning. The only way it is good information is if we do something about it. As we have found a way of being able to identify whether a person has diabetes or not, now we have to provide access to care and the possibility of being able to get rid of those problems that they encounter.

I want to take this opportunity to mention the current border population is a little over 11 million. In the first 5 years up to July 2000, the border area population has continued to increase by 25 percent. If you look at the year 1986, 806 maquiladoras existed in the six border States. But a decade later, we have over 1,500 maquiladoras. 1997 estimates show that over 2,000 plans employed more than 600,000 Mexican workers on the borders. We have a great deal of growth on both sides. One of the larger metropolitan areas is the city of Laredo, and it continues to grow. On the U.S. side, on the Mexican side we have similar growth throughout the border region. Although poverty is a common element shared with both United States and Mexico, the U.S. side of the border is more impoverished than the rest of the United States, with over 33 percent of the families living at or below poverty levels. In Texas the statistics are 35 percent of all the families, and 40 to 50 percent of those same families are living on below that poverty level.

Three of the U.S. border counties are among the 10 poorest counties in the United States. Starr County, that I represent, is one of the poorest. Tonight what I want to share is that there is a need for us to look at the border. We need to look at it from the perspective of also being part of this United States. We have to look at the colonias that are out there.

There has been a great deal of efforts on the part of the States to stop that type of growth, and we do need to stop that growth from that perspective because it is growth that is not planned inroads, but the bottom line is the growth, and we need to make every effort to make sure that those people, those individuals that still reside on the border, have access to good housing. It becomes important that we provide them some access to health care and some of the stumbling blocks of having those colonias that exist on the border.

Mr. Speaker, I want to take this opportunity to give a little data on California’s border. One of the issues talks about problem of diabetes all along the border, and the fact that people have gone blind. The sad thing is that it could have been prevented. Now we have gotten to the disease so we can prevent a great deal of blindness that occurs through diabetes. And amputation, people have lost their limbs as a result of diabetes. In a lot of those cases, it is preventable. Some it is not, but in most cases it is preventable. It could be worked on, and these are important things to remember.

On the HIV-AIDS situation, as we all know, we can look at the data and say it is looking great. We have made some inroads, but the bottom line is the numbers are increasing for the socio-economic areas of our country. Those increases are going to be more harshly hit because these are the people who do not have access to good quality care. These are people who do not have access to the resources needed to respond to issues such as AIDS. If you are wealthy and have insurance, you can almost survive AIDS. But if you do not, you are going to find yourself not being able to sustain life and also not even knowing about it until it is almost too late.

As we look at the border, we look at our children’s health and the importance of vaccinations in providing access to good quality health care, there have been some efforts with community mental health centers in ensuring that we provide that care. I do want to take this opportunity to thank those centers for their efforts throughout the country, and especially on the border in providing access to health care. They have people working out there, people working in communities providing that access to that care, and making sure that those people have access. We still need a lot more resources.

In addition to that, we have talked about the environment. We talked about water pollution. Remember that on both sides we still need sewage plants, not only on the United States side but the Mexican side also. We drink water from the Rio Grande. We find ourselves in a real bind in terms of the quality of that water. So every effort needs to be made to make sure we have good quality drinking water.

When we look at air pollution, it is no coincidence that El Paso has not been able to meet EPA standards. No matter what El Paso does, they are going to have difficulty meeting those standards mainly because of colonias. So colonias needs to be considered important and we can not consider one side of the river without looking at the other side, and making sure that good quality care exists on both sides because we breathe the same air and drink the same water and we need to make every effort to ensure that colonias are considered as we communicate with each other.

Mr. Speaker, the border has a lot of positives. It has a lot of enthusiasm. It has a lot of people moving forward. There are a lot of things happening on the border. It is not just making sure that we have good quality care. I want to take this opportunity and maybe I will do it at a later date, to talk about the information regarding some of the other States. I know in New Mexico there are 167 miles along the Mexican border area comprised of five counties in that region. You will find some disparities that exist in the area of health care, and those disparities are evident not only in New Mexico throughout, but the Mexican also want to mention a couple of other things.

I know one of the main disparities that exist in New Mexico when you look at tuberculosis cases, you find that you have a large number of tuberculosis cases also all along the border, and New Mexico is no exception. As well as Arizona. Arizona finds itself in the same situation, as well as California. So the whole border region is an area that we need to continue to focus on.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased if nothing else with the issue of NAFTA. For those who opposed NAFTA, you have to admit that at least NAFTA has allowed us an opportunity to focus. In Texas, very seldom did we talk about the border, the part of Texas that is never focused on it. It continued to neglect it, and because of the importance of trade, because they saw the value of our neighbor to the South, now there is a great deal of focus.

Along with that focus once again should come the real concern of meeting the needs of the community in that area, and those needs are translated in the form of resources for access to good quality care. I am hoping as we move forward, we will continue to look at getting resources for access to health care; and I am hoping as that county judge from El Paso testified, that we can start looking at those disparities and making sure that those resources when they come to Texas, and those States on the border, that they come to those regions where they are needed the most and also to be able to leverage those resources in order for them to be able to fight the diseases I have mentioned.

I want to thank everyone who has been here tonight. I know that we had some opportunities to be able to dialogue about the importance of these issues. I want to just indicate that there has been some discussion on the issue of medication. I just want to briefly indicate that along the border, there is a study that was done where nearly 40 percent of a survey reported that in the immediate household, 40 percent, received their medications on the border from Mexico. We find a population that is seeking out for access to health care, they are not finding it on this side, they are seeking it elsewhere in Mexico, and there are some pitfalls to that. There are some positives also, but there are some pitfalls. Some of the pitfalls that I have indicated are like the problems that we find with tuberculosis that in Mexico is not treated in the same way that we treat it. We provide it with a lot more medication than they do. That could create some serious problems for all of us if it is not treated appropriately. Secondly, as they go across, one of the main prescriptions that they get deals with uses for colds and some uses, 30 percent, were for blood pressure, 50 percent were for heart disease, 20 percent for diabetes.

As we move forward, I am hoping that Congress at the national level, that there is an opportunity to meet and that when people live on the border and people come across the border that we as a Nation have a responsibility to also provide access to good quality care for not only all the people on the border but also those people that get impacted by people from the other side of the border.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE
By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Mr. ABERCROMBIE (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of official business.

Mr. BACA (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of a death in the family.

Ms. CARSON of Indiana (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of official business.

Mr. CRANE of Illinois (at the request of Mr. ARMERY) for today on account of travel delays.

Ms. KILPATRICK (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of official business in the district.

Ms. PELOSI (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of a flight delay.

Mr. SCHIBOROUGH (at the request of Mr. ARMERY) for today, July 24, and July 25 on account of attending a memorial service for a former staffer.

Mr. SHERMAN (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of airline mechanical problems.

Mr. STARK (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of medical reasons.

Ms. WATERS (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for today on account of official business in the district.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED
By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders hereafter entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. DEFAZIO) to revise and extend the remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. DEFAZIO, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, for 5 minutes, today.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. TAHERT) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. OSBORNE, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. WICKER, for 5 minutes, today.

Senate

The Senate met at 2 p.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. BYRD].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Gracious Father, replenish our energies so that we can give ourselves unre- servedly to the challenges of this new week. Give us gusto to confront problems and work to apply Your solutions. Replace our fears with vibrant faith. Most important of all, give us such a clear assurance of Your guidance that we will have the courage of our convictions.

Bless the women and men of this Senate with a profound personal experience of Your grace, an infilling of Your Spirit of wisdom, and a vision of Your will in all that must be decided this week. In the name of our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Nevada.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have been asked by the majority leader to indic- ate that we are to be in morning business for 2 hours today. Following that, we will return to legislative business. We will be on the Transportation appropriations bill. There will be an amendment offered at or about 4 o’clock today, with a vote to occur at about 5:45 today. We hope those who have amendments to offer to the bill will be ready to do so. We know there is at least one difficult issue. We are going to work on that.

Senator MURRAY and Senator SHELBY have spent a great deal of time on this legislation. We hope to complete this matter and one or two other appropriations bills this week.

The recess is fast approaching, a period for the transaction of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each, with the following exceptions: The Senator from Arizona, Mr. KYL, from 2 to 3 p.m., and the Senator from West Virginia, Mr. BYRD, from 3 to 4 p.m.

The Senator from Arizona, Mr. KYL. Mr. KYL. Thank you, Mr. President. When my colleague, the Senator from Idaho, arrives, I will stop my presentation and give him an opportunity to join me in our comments today. We intend to take this hour to both talk about the same general subject.

NOMINATIONS

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, when we first came back and began this Con- gress in January, there was a lot of talk about bipartisanship at that time due primarily to the fact that the Senate was equally divided between Republicans and Democrats, and we knew we better act in a bipartisan way or not a lot would get done.

Since that time, of course, the Demo- cratic Party has taken the majority, by virtue of the transfer from a Repub- lican to an independent status, and we now have 50 Democrats, 49 Repub- licans, and one independent in the Sen- ate; therefore, the Senate is under the control of the Democratic Party as the majority party. But we have a Repub- lican administration and no less of a requirement to work together in a bi- partisan fashion.

The distinguished President pro tem- pore chairs a committee which, by its very nature, requires bipartisanship. I think I was presiding in the chair the day the distinguished President pro temope his counterpart, the ranking member, the Senator from Alaska, talked about the fact that without the kind of bipartisan cooperation in that committee that has characterized its work, it would be hard for the Senate to get its work done.

That is also true of some other things, some housekeeping, if you will, that the Senate has to do as part of its constitutional responsibilities and, frankly, are among the most important of its responsibilities. That includes the advice and consent that we provide with respect to nominees from the executive branch.

When a new President comes into power, there is also a certain transi- tion that takes place because the new President nominates his own people for his executive branch department, his Cabinet officers and subcabinet offi- cers, and also, of course, judicial nomi- nations.

In order for those departments to be fully staffed and up and operating, it is necessary for the Senate, as quickly as possible, to hold hearings on those nominees, to act on them one way or the other, and then those that it approves—the vast majority—can join the President and begin work in the executive branch of Government. Ordinarily, that is a somewhat lengthy process but not a particularly difficult process.

Most of the nominations are relatively routine. After they finish their FBI check, there is a hearing. There is almost never any controversy and there is not difficult for the Senate to confirm those nominees. In fact, for the benefit of a lot of folks who would not be aware of the process, we do not take time in this Chamber to debate each and every nominee and hold a rolcall vote on each and every nominee. Instead, most of them are not controversial, and the leader will ask that a group of them be considered in a group, at the end of the day; and if no group of them be considered in a group, at the end of the day; and if no one objects to the nominees, there are well over 600—proved unanimously. They are all approved, and they are approved.

That is the way it is done for most of the nominees. There are only 600—or so—more than there were at the end of the previous administration. That is putting a real burden on the Senate. Incidentally, though it wasn’t a change from Reagan to the first George Bush in terms of party, the percentage was exactly the same as with regard to George W. Bush. Clearly, the Senate has to do a better job getting these nominees confirmed. The Senate can walk and chew gum at the same time. It can both pursue legislative business, which is not difficult to accomplish this. We are supposed to have a hearing on three nominees, but only one of them is a judge. The other two are nominees for the Department of Justice.

The good news is, the Senate can do both things at the same time. It can confirm the Senate can do both things at the same time. It can confirm

As of this month, over one-eighth of the Senate has not acted very quickly either. Part of that was due to the fact we had this change from an equally divided Senate to a Senate controlled by the Democratic Party, and there was a period when the reorganization resolution had not yet been adopted.

People might say: Why is all that important? Let’s just get these nominees approved. Sometimes there are certain steps the Senate has to take before it can do things. The fact is, now we have had quite a period of time within which to act on these nominees, and we are beginning to act on some of them, but, frankly, they are not occurring as fast as I think they should occur and many of them believe should occur.

The Senate has had too many nominees we have not confirmed, and we are afraid will not be confirmed by the beginning of the August recess, in less than 2 weeks from now. That means it would not be until after Labor Day that the President could have his full complement of Cabinet officers in place, and subcabinet officers. That is far too long.

As of this month, over one-eighth of the Bush administration term is now gone. Many of the people being considered for work for the Bush administration have had long periods in the beginning of the Bush administration term to confirm them. I respectfully request that the chair of the Senate Judiciary Committee move quickly to get these judicial nominees confirmed. Today there are 76 vacancies on the Federal bench. Of those 76 vacancies, 29 have been empty so long they are officially classified as judicial emergencies. The failure to fill these vacancies is straining our Federal court system and delaying justice for people all across this country. This cannot continue.

That was in March of 2000. When he made that statement, there were 76 vacancies, 29 of which were categorized as “judicial emergencies.” Today there are 108 vacancies, 40 of which are classified as “judicial emergencies.”

It is clear the Judiciary Committee needs to schedule more hearings, that we need to get these judges to the Senate floor for confirmation, and that the Senate needs to act more quickly on these very important judicial nominations, 40 of which are classified right now as “emergencies.” In other words, according to the administrative office of the U.S. courts, these are the positions which need to be filled immediately or the administration of justice will suffer. It represents 12.6 percent of the judicial positions in our country today. That is the vacancy rate, and of those, just under 40 percent, are classified as “judicial emergencies.” Clearly, we have to get working on these nominations.

I note that my colleague, Senator Craig, has arrived. I was going to begin discussing some of the specific nominees who are not judicial nominees that have been pending for a long time that we want to get cleared. Before I do that, perhaps my colleague is ready to make a presentation. I am happy to wait and go into some of the specific names after a little bit.

I yield to the Senator from Idaho.

The President pro tempore. Mr. KYL. As much time as the Senator takes.

The President pro tempore. The Senator from Arizona for yielding. Most importantly, let me thank him for coming to the floor this afternoon to talk about what, without question, is a critically important issue to our country. That is that a President, once elected and in office, has the right to choose, to select, a President takes.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank my colleague from Arizona for yielding. Most importantly, let me thank him for coming to the floor this afternoon to talk about what, without question, is a critically important issue to our country. That is that a President, once elected and sworn in by a Nation, has the right to govern the executive branch of the Government.

We all know that takes a good many hands at the tiller, talented people from all walks of life who can help a President in all of the agencies of the Government make the right determinations and decisions as they relate to how policy ultimately gets implemented. Have we watched over the years as this has become a most cumbersome approach. It has become increasingly involved, a combination of legislative action on the part of the Congress—the Senate playing a role—executive orders on the part of the President to cover a critical mass. That takes the process a very long while to work. I am talking about simply the selection of, the vetting of, the background checking of an individual whom a President is going to nominate prior to that individual getting to the Senate, and then for the committees of jurisdiction to hold the proper hearings that are necessary to look at all of the material and ultimately make that decision an individual for recommendation before the full Senate.

The reason I talk about that at the outset is that we are not talking about that today. We are talking about the second step—the Senate process, the responsibility we have as Senators to review, confirm, and/or reject these nominees, based on cause, whom a President sends before us.

We are in a situation where the Senate has confirmed about 210 Bush nominees so far this year, including the 77 we have confirmed in the last 11 days. During the Fourth of July break, I was home in my State of Idaho and I was hearing from many constituents who ultimately were saying, are we going to get this person? Senator, when are we going to get that person?” Or they would say: Senator, do you realize that Clinton people are still in power at the regional levels of the National Marine Fisheries—or U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, or the EPA—and those decisions are still being made, based on, if you will, the philosophy and attitude of that administration versus the one the American public has just elected to power? What is going to happen or change? We elected a new President; we want a new direction. We want a new President; we want a new direction. We expect that. That is why we did what we did last November.

It was during that time, in listening to my constituents and trying to explain, that I began to examine the second phase—this phase, the one we are in now as Senators, doing our responsible job and constitutionally mandated job to review and confirm or reject appointments, nominations made by a President.

Coming back from the Fourth of July break, I began to examine the numbers involved to see what the problem was, why we had not moved more. Yes, there was a time when we had a change of power and that took time. I don’t argue that. But clearly, if you examine the amount of time involved with all of the nominees who are before us, there were a good many languishing before committee and floor, nor were hearings scheduled. As a result of that, I began to look at it in the context of how do we make this system work to accelerate itself, to do what it should do responsibly, but to do so in a timely fashion, so that our President can have the people he sent forth to help govern our country at the executive level.

It was at that time that my colleague from Arizona and I teamed up, using the rules of the Senate appropriately, to discuss this issue and to cause the Senate to work in a more expeditious fashion. Even with the recent progress we have made—those 11 days and 77 confirmations—that is just 58 percent of all of the nominees President Bush has sent to us so far. How does that compare with past Presidents’ transitions? As of July 20, the Senate had confirmed, as I say, about 58 percent of President Ronald Reagan’s nominations. As of July 20, 1993, the Senate had confirmed, as the chart shows, about 74 percent of President Clinton’s. As of July 20, 1981, the Republican-controlled Senate had confirmed 72 percent of President Ronald Reagan’s nominations. So somewhere in the seventies is probably a figure that is right and reasonable—if there is a ‘right and reasonable’. Or should the Senate operate clearly in a more expeditious fashion? To keep pace with the record we have shown by the chart this afternoon, we would have had to have confirmed 83 nominees last week to match the Clinton record, instead of the 23 for whom we fought hard to get the majority to work with us, to ultimately get before the Senate in confirmation.

The transition in power in the Senate, as I mentioned, caused some delays. I accept that, and I am willing able to talk about that, and I should because that is the process that is fair. The uncertain outcome of a Presidential election stalled any President or President-elect out 36 days before they could begin to actually move in the new fashion. Yet the Bush administration has recovered from its delays, and it had sent a record 365 nominations as of last week. I think the Senate now must step up the pace if we are going to deal with this matter in a timely fashion.

As important as all of that is, as my colleague from Arizona knows so well, to allow this President to govern, to set the course in the policy direction that is set by these key people, and also to establish the kind of relationships and esprit de corps that occurs within an agency between administrators of that agency and the rank-and-file civil servant, our goal—the goal of the Senator from Arizona and myself—is working with the leadership of Republicans and Democrats in the Senate—is to get the Bush administration fully staffed with qualified people as quickly as possible.

A week and a half ago I told the majority leader, Tom Daschle, that our goal was, if you will, to cleanse the Senate of nominees by the August recess. Why? Because we are going to be governed by a President and we do not want any nominees languishing without cause simply because committee chairmen could not act or would not act, then shame on them, shame on the Senate, and shame on the leadership of the Senate for simply moving the hearings in the next 2 weeks to get the hearings done, to vet these people, to get them voted on, and get them to the floor.

As we know, it is only in a rare case that a nominee actually brings about aggressive debate on the floor of the Senate. Why? Because, in a bipartisan manner, all of us believe that a President has the right to choose, to select.
While it is our responsibility to confirm, very seldom does the Senate actually reject. So why should there be delay, as long as the process is thorough, responsible—and it should be timely. Based on the workload of the Senate, there is really no reason for a lack of timeliness.

There are 499 positions in the executive branch requiring Senate confirmation, not counting judicial nominees. As the Senator from Arizona knows, while he was tackling the judicial nominees, at all the other agencies as my target, believing that those were the ones we could get out to the administration most quickly. Of those, according to the Brookings Institution, there are 313 positions currently vacant. That is 6 out of 10 positions in Government today. In other words, 6 out of 10 people are not “on the ground,” not working with the President and the Vice President to govern our country.

That is what we are talking about—making critical decisions about how policy gets implemented. For those who are the victims of the lack of people being in place, it is the rank-and-file citizens out there in Arizona or in Idaho. It makes me wonder how we stand in conflict with or in conflict with a given rule or regulation and having someone outside the system make a judgment, or someone who has a given philosophical bent, instead of this administration. That is why what we do here and what the Senate does in the next 2 weeks is absolutely critical to the American people.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CRAIG. Yes, I am happy to yield.

Mr. KYL. I think the Senator just hit the nail on the head. This isn’t an abstract proposition, the fact that the President needs to have his team in place; I think everybody recognizes that. But it has real “on the ground,” real people being in place, and we are important for the American people, and what can happen if these positions are not filled. Would the Senator like to initiate discussion on that? I can certainly do the same.

Mr. CRAIG. Let me give an example. I thank my colleague. I will reclaim my time and give an example. Some weeks ago, an acting regional administrator of National Marine Fisheries told the largest utility in Idaho, which is a hydro-based utility, that they had to dump their water; they could not generate power. The 320,000 acre feet of water impounded for the purpose of generating power for Boise, Idaho, was being ordered to be dumped in the name of fish and fish recovery. The power company thought it was inappropriate to do and unnecessary under the law, even recognizing the need to protect the fish.

When they refused, that acting agent sent a letter to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission asking they order them to do just that. At that time, I and other members of the Idaho congressional delegation got involved. We began to examine it. Frankly, we found an individual who was operating and making decisions in a manner that was inconsistent with the law, much more consistent with their philosophical bent than the legal responsibility and the right administration of the law. We asked for a conference. We asked that all the parties be brought to Washington to solve this problem.

Under the law, it was decided that the utility could continue to operate normally, and in so flowing the water through its pin stocks and turbines, it could not only generate power, and we know what happened in the Pacific Northwest, with a real absence of power.

To make a long story short, but a very dramatic example for Idaho, instead of folks like someone I felt was philosophically driven by a past administration’s attitudes of how that agency ought to operate, under a negotiated settlement and within the law, this utility was allowed to operate, manage the water according to what would be no blackouts in Boise, ID, and the surrounding area this year, save the fish, and solve the problem.

I believe that if the regional director for National Marine Fisheries had been in place, the request to spill or dump water would never have occurred. That problem could have been solved at the regional level through reasonable negotiation. That is an example, and there are a myriad of others going on out there at this moment.

Let me give another example, and while this one cannot be blamed on the Senate at this moment, it is a perfect example in place at the right time. It really cannot be blamed on the administration, either. I am talking about our Ambassador to the United Nations, Negroponte, and the stalled nomination and the unprecedent system that impacts this. Without a permanent Ambassador, the United States mission at the United Nations has had to rely on a career diplomat, Mr. Cunningham, who was the acting Ambassador in January when Richard Holbrooke resigned.

What happened in the meantime? The problem became a public one because of the unwillingness, in my opinion, to be aggressive in holding the Nation’s position as it relates to our role in the United Nations and in the General Assembly.

The problem became public on May 3 when the United Nations lost two influential U.S. Commissioners: one for human rights and one for narcotics control.

According to a source close to the U.S. Commission, diplomats were unaware that positions on either panel were in jeopardy until the final hour. In other words, somebody was not doing their homework and somebody was not watching and dealing with it. It appeared that a last-minute campaign effort would have secured the United States one of the three open seats for the United Nations in the U.N. Commission on Human Rights. The U.S. diplomat had expected to get a 43-53 vote in favor.

They did not get it, and we know the rest of that story. For the first time since the Commission’s inception in 1947, the United States has lost positions. That speaks to the problems and complications of the system. I cannot lay the blame at the feet of the Senate on that issue, but the reason I bring it up, I tell the Senator from Arizona, is to express the dramatic consequences that can occur when we do not act timely to get the right people in the right place at the right time to make the decisions and to administer the role of Government as we would want it done.

I will be happy to yield to my colleagues from Arizona.

(Mr. REED assumed the chair.)

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, if I may pursue this one of the nominees who has been pending for a long time, John Negroponte was nominated on May 14. As the distinguished Senator from Idaho pointed out, it was very shortly thereafter that this problem in the United Nations occurred. Many people have said if John Negroponte had been there, this would not have happened. We do not know, as the Senator said. I do know about a month ago Secretary of State Colin Powell was on national television, on one of these Sunday morning talk shows. He was asked about the nomination of John Negroponte, and Secretary Powell made an eloquent plea to the Senate to please confirm John Negroponte. He said the United States needs him at the United Nations, that we needed to get him confirmed. That was, I believe, over a month ago.

His nomination has been pending since May 14. It is now July 23. The President is going to be speaking to the United Nations this fall, I believe in September. He is going to be addressing the United Nations. For the United States to not have our Ambassador in place would be a breach of significance and diplomatic importance as well as an important loss to U.S. interests.

I note that because the Senator from Idaho brought up the name of John Negroponte, another perfect example of someone we have had plenty of time to consider and we have not yet taken up his nomination for confirmation, and we need to do so.

I thank the Senator for yielding.

Mr. CRAIG. I talked about what could have happened in Idaho if, in fact, we had not been able to move the issue to Washington and those who had been left to administer at the regional level had won.
What the Senator from Arizona and I just talked about is an international problem and clearly an image problem on the part of the United States. How does it look for the United States not to be able to act in a timely and responsible manner to put key diplomats in place to do the work of our country? What does it say to the rest of the world? What does it say to the United Nations as it relates to how we prioritize the value of the U.N. and these important commissions, the question of drugs being trafficked internationally, the question of human rights that this Senate has spent a great deal of time on over the years—human rights in this country and human rights around the world—and we have now lost key positions because we did not have people in place to lobby effectively for the position of this country, to make sure we had a voice on these key commissions.

It is not about not only our inability to operate but the cumbersome nature of the system we have allowed to be created.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from Idaho to yield again, primarily to make a point.

Mr. CRAIG. I will be happy to respond.

Mr. KYL. The Senator from Idaho was instrumental at the end of the week in getting an agreement from the Democratic leadership to take up the nomination of Jack Crouch, sometimes known as J.D. Crouch, a distinguished expert in, among other things, missile defense. He was placed on the Senate’s Executive Calendar. The Executive Calendar is at the desk. It is the calendar that nominations reside on before they are considered by the Senate as a whole. He was reported out of committee by a unanimous vote. This is the head of the Small Business Administration. He got a unanimous vote out of committee, but he came there May 1.

The most modern phrase I can come up with is, “duh.” It is kind of a “duh” issue. I know he and I will continue to work to see we complete this list of nominees for confirmation before we leave for the August recess. It would be a shame to leave here with that unfinished business, leaving the President without the team he needs to help in the important tasks that need to be done. There are 9 pending before the Armed Services Committee, and in addition to that, J.D. Crouch, on whom we need to vote.

In the Banking Committee, there are 7 pending; in the Commerce Committee, there are 8; in the Energy Committee, there are 3; before the Finance Committee, there are 12; Foreign Relations has 15; many of whom are important nominees to Ambassadorial positions to various countries. What do these countries think when that we sit on these nominations for so long before confirming them and sending them on to serve the United States abroad?

There are 4 pending before the Governmental Affairs Committee, 6 before the health committee; as I said, before the Judiciary Committee, there are 27 judicial nominees and either 12 or 13, depending on my count of positions, to other judicial branch appointments, and 3 before the Veterans’ Affairs Committee, and another before the Judiciary Committee, since the Senator from Idaho singled out the Judiciary Committee.

I am on that committee and the Judiciary Committee has not done its job either with the executive branch nominees or the judiciary, the judges. John Gillis was nominated in April to head the Consumer Product Safety Commission. He would be the Director of the Office for Victims of Crime at the Department of Justice. He has had no hearing. This is an important position to manage and promote U.S. interests in that region by dealing with a whole range of problems from drug trafficking to crime and poverty reduction and environmental protection. Otto Reich deserves to have a confirmation hearing and be brought to the Senate floor for confirmation before we leave here for our August recess.

Brian Jones, general counsel of the Department of Education: We all like to talk a good game when it comes to education. This is for the children. We need to help them. We need to staff up the Department of Education. It needs to be able to do the work we have asked it to do. Brian Jones was nominated back in April as well, April 30. He has had no hearing. Yet his responsibilities as the general counsel for the Department of Education are to help support equal access to education and education excellence around the country providing understandable, and useful legal services and effectively managing the Department on all of the ethics and legal issues that come before it as well as to serve as the principal adviser to the Secretary on all legal matters affecting the Department’s programs and activities.

John Gillis was nominated in April to head the Consumer Product Safety Commission. It is critical that he join the team at the Department of Justice and support equal access to education and employment by providing sound, understandable regulations, and to assist in the development of regulations and standards to protect workers in this country.

I mentioned another individual who was nominated more recently but whose name has really been before the Senate for a long time: Otto Reich. This is an important position to manage and promote U.S. interests in that region by dealing with a whole range of problems from drug trafficking to crime and poverty reduction and environmental protection. Otto Reich deserves to have a confirmation hearing and be brought to the Senate floor for confirmation before we leave here for our August recess.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, let me mention one other very practical problem. The Attorney General, John Ashcroft, told me of a situation which I hope by now has been corrected. But he literally was at his farm in Missouri after he became the Attorney General and I think he was the sole executive person at the Department of Justice. An aide had to fly a warrant out of Missouri, fly on an airplane from Washington, DC, out to Missouri so he could sign it because he was the only one who had the authority at that point to sign this particular document.

I believe since then we have confirmed some people who also have that authority. But the point here is we have to get the executive team in place. We have 155 people who need to be confirmed; at least about 130 of them need to be confirmed before we leave for the August recess. In the name of bipartisanship, for the good of the American people, for the sake of doing the important jobs we have outlined here before the sake of filling our judiciary, I urge my colleagues to work with us to get these people to the floor and to get them confirmed before we leave for the August recess.

Mr. President, might I inquire, do I have another minute or so left? What is the time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is informed it is 3 o'clock, when Mr. BYRD is to be recognized.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I conclude by urging all of my colleagues to work with us so we can get these people to the Senate floor and get them confirmed before the August recess. If we do, we will feel better about the future of the this country will feel better because we will have served the interests of the American people.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia is recognized.

U.S. IMMIGRATION POLICY

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, in his de-lim-MR. I work "Democracy in America," Alexis de Tocqueville begins his thoughts on the origins of Anglo-Americans with these words: "The emigrants who came at different periods to occupy the territory now covered by the American Union differed from each other in many respects; their aim was not the same, and they governed themselves on different principles. These men had, however, certain features in common, and they were all placed in an analogous situation. The tie of language is, perhaps, the strongest and the most durable that can unite mankind. All the emigrants spoke the same language; they were all children of the same people."

For generations, the United States has had the good fortune to be able to draw upon not only the talents of native-born Americans but also upon the talents of foreign-born citizens. Immigrants from many nations built our railroads, worked in our factories, mined our coal, made our steel, advanced our scientific and technological capabilities, and added literature, art, poetry, and music to the fabric of American life.

Of course, many of these new Americans struggled with our language and customs. But, as they learned our language, they absorbed our constitutional principles, they abided by our laws, and they contributed in a mighty way to our success as a nation.

Indeed, I believe that, particularly in the case of those who came to our shores fleeing tyranny, there has existed a unique appreciation for the freedom and opportunity available in this country, an appreciation which makes those special Americans among our most patriotic citizens.

In other words, do not go to Weirton, W.Va., and burn the flag. No, not in Weirton. We have at least 25 or 30 different ethnic groups in that small steel town in the Northern Panhandle.

Mr. President, the United States today is in the midst of another immigration wave—the largest since the early 1960s. According to the latest numbers from the U.S. Census Bureau, immigrants now comprise about 10 percent of the total U.S. population. That is about 28.4 million immigrants living in the United States.

During the 1990s, an average of more than 1 million immigrants—legal and illegal—settled in the United States each year. Over the next 50 years, the U.S. Census Bureau projects that the U.S. population will increase by its present 284 million to more than 400 million. Immigration is projected to contribute to two-thirds of that growth.

There are unprecedented numbers. When I was born in 1917, there were about 102 million people in this country. When I graduated from high school in 1934, there were about 130 million people in this country. And today, there are 284 million Americans. This nation has never attempted to incorporate more than 28 million new-comers at one time into its society, let alone to prepare for an additional 116 million citizens over the span of the next 50 years.

Although many of the immigrants who have entered our country over the last ten years are skilled and are adjusting quickly, others have had problems. Last year, the Center for Immigration Studies, 41.4 percent of established immigrants lived in or near poverty, compared to 28.8 percent of natives. The situation had completely reversed itself from 30 years before, when, in 1970, established immigrants were actually less likely than natives to have low incomes, with about 25.7 percent living in or near poverty compared with 35.1 percent of the native population.

A deterioration in the position of immigrants can be explained, in part, by a significant decline in the education of immigrants relative to natives and by the needs of the U.S. economy. In 1970, 7.1 percentage points separated the high school completion rate of established immigrants versus natives. By 2000, established immigrants were more than three times as likely as natives not to have completed high school, with 34.4 percent of established immigrants and 9.6 percent of natives lacking a high school diploma.

The less skilled the immigrants, the worse their employment prospects, the bigger the burden on schools, and the greater the demand for social services. The National Research Council recently estimated, in December 1999, that the net fiscal cost of immigration ranges from $11 billion to $20.2 billion per year. That is enough money to fund the operations of the State of West Virginia for nearly 3 to 6 years.

As chairman of the Appropriations Committee and as a member of the Budget Committee, I well know of the extreme shortage of money to meet the needs of our education today because of the 10-year tax cut that was enacted earlier this year, I am wrestling mightily with trying to provide enough money to educate our children, meet our health care needs, provide transportation to our population, and battle crime in our streets.

And, so, Mr. President, I grow increasingly concerned when I read media reports about discussions within the administration to grant amnesty to 3,400 immigrants who illegally reside in the United States. I am very concerned that an open immigration policy only makes it more difficult to adequately meet the needs of our Nation. I have found the attempt to fund the needs for America among the most frustrating challenges that I have ever undertaken. I have imploried this administration to take into account these critical needs.

In many school districts overcrowding is already a major problem. As our classrooms fill to the brim, they are becoming breeding grounds for violence. Economic growth in some regions of the country, and the resulting influx of workers, has created a surge in the number of school-aged children. A less stringent immigration policy will only make this problem worse.

This country’s personal and commercial highway travel continues to increase at a faster rate than highway capacity. Many highways cannot sufficiently support our current or projected travel needs. Between 1970 and 1995, passenger travel nearly doubled in the United States, and road use is expected to climb by nearly two-thirds in the next 20 years. This congestion will grow even worse as immigration traffic increases.

And, how will we provide for health care costs of these new citizens? Whether or not they arrive here legally or illegally, immigrants can receive federally funded emergency health care service. As the immigrant population continues to increase, so will health care expenditures to the Federal Government.

We also have an obligation to ensure the safety of the residents living in the United States—both native citizens and immigrants. Yet the Attorney General must soon release from jail and into our streets 3,400 immigrants who have been convicted of such crimes as rape, murder, and assault because their own countries will not take them back. We cannot protect our residents if our country is used as the dumping ground for the criminals of other nations.

We are struggling with ways to preserve and protect our environment. But population growth only exacerbates the increasing demands on our aging water and soil systems, and further threatens the safety of our drinking water. Our “green spaces” are diminishing as more and more homes are being built to house our growing population. We lament the loss of and the damage to our natural resources, yet we find ourselves unable to come to any conclusion in connection to our loose immigration policy.

We have a weakening economy, an increasing unemployment rate, a problem with adequately educating our people, a congested transportation infrastructure, a lack of adequate health care, and an administration that certainly is not totally unsympathetic to these needs. We cannot afford to take on more. I understand the desire to help the millions of people around the world who continue to seek freedom that we, as Americans, enjoy. At this time in our history, I do not know how we can possibly afford to provide for additional people who may need assistance with education, health problems, and job skills.

If we invite new masses to citizenship, we have an obligation to adequately provide for them. Yet we are presently frustrated with an inability to even provide for those who have come before and those who have been born in this country.

Mr. President, an interdepartmental group formed by the White House to suggest reforms of immigration policy is expected to include the option of granting legal residency to undocumented Mexican immigrants who have been working in the United States. The report raises the possibility of these illegal immigrants ultimately becoming citizens. Such a proposal would take away from our current immigration laws in the wrong direction.

The Immigration and Nationality Act, our primary law for regulating immigration into this country, sets out a very specific process by which immigrants may live and work in this country. To capriciously grant amnesty to 3 million immigrants who circumvented these processes, who have resided and worked in this country illegally, sends exactly the wrong message.

Such an amnesty would reduce illegal immigration. Yet the Reagan administration that such a blanket amnesty to 2.7 million illegal immigrants ultimately becomes legal immigrants who have been working in the United States. The President proposed a blanket amnesty to 2.7 million illegal immigrants based largely on the mere fact that they had lived in this country at least since 1982. I supported that amnesty, after accepting the arguments of the Reagan administration that such amnesty would reduce illegal immigration when combined with tougher sanctions on employers who hire illegal aliens.

What happened instead, was that the United States sent a message to the world that illegal immigrants could gain legal status in the United States without having to go through the normal processes. Consequently, illegal immigration jumped from an estimated 7 million illegals in 1986 to somewhere between 7 million and 13 million illegals today—and these estimates do not even include the 2.7 million illegals who were granted amnesty in 1986.

So, Mr. President, we should not repeat the earlier mistakes. If amnesty is given to a class on the basis of their having broken the law, then we are rewarding breaking the law, we are rewarding a criminal act. This is not the message that we should send to those who would consider illegally entering this country. What is worse, such an amnesty undermines our present immigration laws and suggests that these laws mean nothing if, to those who break them, we are rewarding a criminal act. This administration to grant amnesty with a wink and a nod.

Millions of potential immigrants are waiting patiently for a chance to come to the United States legally. Why should illegal aliens have preference over the aliens who are waiting patiently? Amnesty sends the message that it is far easier and faster to become a U.S. citizen by immigrating illegally than it is to wait for legal approval.

Now, Mr. President, American citizenship should mean something. It should not be something merely handed out as a means of political expediency. It should not be something that one can achieve as some kind of squatter’s right, particularly when access to the soil they claim was gained illegally.

Being an American is something to be cherished, something to be revered. Citizenship in the United States brings with it certain inalienable rights. Those who would come to our country to try to establish citizenship are often enticed by the promise of those rights. The notion that each citizen is guaranteed certain protections is powerfully alluring. But what many fail to understand is that those rights are protected only so long as Americans are willing and able to defend them. Our populace must be constantly vigilant for those things that threaten to undermine our rights, our Constitution, and our form of Government. Such threats go well beyond military invasion. They include the preservation of ideals such as liberty and equality and justice, which can be so easily chipped away. In order to become a citizen, most aliens are required to devote time to a study of our country and its history. They receive, at least, elementary guidance to help them appreciate the precious title of “citizen” and all that it entails. What goes all too often unspoken in this debate is that U.S. citizenship entails much more than rights. It entails responsibilities.
Our citizenry should be instilled with at least a basic understanding of the precepts that formed the foundation for this country. Lacking that, they are ill-prepared to be guardians of our future.

We Americans are justifiably proud of their history as a melting pot. If we go back far enough, we are all products of that melting pot, at least most of us. But the melting must be done in a way that ensures that these new citizens are ready to be productive, functioning Americans. We owe it not only to today’s citizens but also to future citizens, including those who come to our shores expecting the opportunity for them.

PRESIDING OVER THE SENATE

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, every class of Senators seems to have characteristics or qualities that make it distinguishable from other classes. The Senate class of 1946, for example, has been considered the “post-New Deal Republican Eightieth Congress.” The Senate Class of 1958, my own class, had qualities to which I devoted an entire chapter in Volume I of my history of the United States. The Senate of 1974 has been referred to as “Kennedy children” because of the influence that President John F. Kennedy had on so many of them, and as the “Watergate Babies” because so many of them owed their election and/or their downfall to the scandals of the Nixon Administration. The Senate class of 1980 was certainly an integral part the “Reagan Revolution.”

I daresay that the Senate class of 2000 may well become known for, and distinguished by, a renewed dedication to the Senate as an institution. That is what they have brought to the Senate.

I have never seen a freshmen class of Senators demonstrate more pride in understanding the rules, customs, and traditions of the Senate as has the class of 2000.

They first grabbed my attention early in this session when three of them—namely, Senators Mark Dayton, Bill Nelson, and Hillary Clinton—came to me and asked for my advice not only on how the Senate works, but also what makes it work, and what they could do to make it work better.

I have seen and witnessed so much in my lifetime that few things ever impress me any more, but that did. I was impressed by their eagerness and their sincerity, and their interest, not only in their individual Senate careers, but their interest in the Senate as an institution, as well. These new Senators wanted to know how they could contribute to the Senate, how they could be good Senators in the context of being useful, of being efficient, of being Senators who develop and retain an institutional memory, how they could best serve their States in this institution.

At about that same time, our Majority Leader, Mr. Daschle, asked me if I would conduct a session with new Senators to discuss some of the elemental rules that would be important to new Members, especially when they are called upon to preside.

I began meeting with these new Senators and the Senate rules and Senate traditions and how the Senate operates, how it should operate, how it has operated in the past. These meetings have been well attended.

Now I have enjoyed watching members of the class of 2000 preside over the Senate, and the attentiveness and the pride with which they perform this duty.

I realize that presiding over the Senate is often regarded as a chore. The limitations of the position keep it from being seen as an exciting or glamorous assignment. For example, Senators are restricted in what they can say from the Chair. Even when criticisms are directed to the Chair, the Chair is not supposed to respond. The Chair is only to respond when called upon by way of a parliamentary inquiry or to make a ruling on a point of order, or to restore order in the Senate Chamber or in the galleries.

Perhaps this is why, over the years, I have developed a tendency among some Senators not to take the position of Presiding Officer seriously. This is why, no doubt, some Senators have shied away from serving in the position, and why, when they did preside, they could be seen reading a newspaper or magazine, or reading their mail or writing out their checks—anything but paying attention to what was happening on the floor.

But I want to take this opportunity to stress that the Presiding Officer has a most important, most fundamental responsibility to the Senate and to the people of the United States. The Presiding Officer is the person who maintains the rules, customs, and precedents of the Senate, and from these rules and precedents come the order, civility, and decorum in the Senate. In his farewell speech to the Senate, in 1805, Aaron Burr, who was Vice President, referred to the Senate Chamber as a “sanctuary.” He said:

“This House is a sanctuary; a citadel of law, of order, and of liberty; and it is here—it is here, in this exalted refuge; here, if anywhere, will resistance be made to the storms of political phrenzy and the silent arts of corruption; and if the Constitution be desired ever to perish by the sacrilegious hands of the tormentor or the usurper, which God avert, its expiring agonies will be witnessed on this floor.”

This is the place where we, the Nation’s lawmakers, come together to talk to one another, to listen to one another respectfully, to learn, and to make our best case to the best of our ability.

Order and decorum are needed so that Senators may be properly recognized, the clerk can hear and record the debates, and the people in the galleries—the people who watch silently over our shoulders—can hear the debate. As I was sitting in the chair earlier today and watching the people in the galleries, I thought: Here are the silent auditors. These are the people; sovereign rests in them. They come here; they listen; they watch us; they watch over our shoulders.

Then there is my imagination carried me from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and I thought: Here are 284 million people represented in this body by 100 men and women. What an honor, what a responsibility, what an opportunity. Order and decorum are needed if our different political parties are to work together in the best interests of our Nation and its people.

So as we conduct our business in front of the galleries and in front of the television cameras, we must keep in mind that the American people are watching. They are watching us. They are the people who send us here. They are the people who pay our salaries. They are watching us. They are evaluating what we do and what we say, and they are pondering what is being said but also the way we act. They are looking over our shoulders. They are judging us.

Calling the U.S. Senate the “citadel of liberty,” Senator President pro tempore-elect William King of Alabama pointed out that it is also a “sanctuary for this body”—“[that] the intelligent and virtuous, throughout our widespread country, look with confidence for an unwavering and unflinching resistance to the encroachments of power.”

Think of that. Senator King then proceeded to explain:

“Now with the televising of Senate proceedings, we are being observed by teachers, by students around the country, by judges, by coal miners, by farmers, by members of legislatures, members of city councils, observing and studying the legislative process. They are watching us. We are being observed by millions of taxpayers in the kitchens, in the living rooms. We are also being viewed by people around the world.”

The U.S. Senate is the premier upper Chamber in the world today, and we ought to keep it that and be proud of it. There are over 61 nations in the world that have bicameral legislative bodies. All the others have unicameral legislatures. But the U.S. Senate and the Italian Senate are the only bicameral legislative bodies in the world today in which the upper chamber is not dominated by the lower chamber.

Furthermore, developing democracies are watching us for guidelines on... how a legislature operates in a representative republic, in a democratic republic.

It is imperative, therefore, that the U.S. Senate be seen as a model, and that the Presiding Officer be seen as a model Presiding Officer; order and decorum are essential to that objective. Order and decorum are established in the Senate rules. Of the 20 rules that the Senate first observed in 1789, many of them regulated order and decorum. Yet Senate rules, like order and decorum, if fear, are taken too much for granted.

I am not the first Senator to express that concern. In 1866, Senator Charles Sumner of Massachusetts cautioned his colleagues that they had become so “accustomed” to the parliamentary rules that they failed to recognize their “importance in the development of liberal institutions.” These rules, he maintained, “are among the precious contributions which England has made to modern civilization... [They] have become a beautiful machine by which business is conducted, legislation is molded, and debate is secured in all possible freedom.” These rules, he said, “I have always held dear, are “the very temple of constitutional liberty.”

Some years later, Vice President Adlai Stevenson reminded his colleagues “that the rules governing this body [the Senate] are founded deep in human experience; that they are the result of centuries of tireless effort in the legislative hall, to conserve, to render stable and secure, the rights and liberties which have been achieved by conflict.”

Our English forebears wrested from tyrannical monarchs the power of the purse and vested it in a body made up of the elected representatives of the people, the House of Commons. They knew that parliamentary rules serve many purposes. They perform many vital functions not only here in the Senate but also in our Government.

Arthur Onslow, whom Thomas Jefferson considered the “ablest among the Speakers of the [British] House of Commons,” maintained “that nothing tended more to throw power into the hands of administration... than a neglect of, or departure from, the rules of proceeding.”

We have seen that right here in this Senate. “By its rules the Senate wisely fixes the limits on its own power.” declared Vice President Adlai Stevenson.

I have said this time, time, and time again, but this is Vice President Adlai Stevenson saying it this time: “The right of amendment and of debate. The right of amendment and of debate, and how often in recent years have we seen Senators deny these fundamental rights; the right to debate and the right to amend?”

“Great evils often result,” continued Vice President Stevenson, “from hasty legislation; rarely from the delay which follows full discussion and deliberation. In my humble judgment, the historic Senate—preserving the unrestricted right of amendment and of debate, maintaining intact, the time-honored parliamentary methods and amenities of action and of debate—may not, after deliberation—possesses in our scheme of government a value which cannot be measured in words.”

I would add, Mr. President, that it is in the Senate rules which establish the basis for order and decorum in the Senate.

In his “Manual of Parliamentary Practice for the Use of the Senate of the United States,” Thomas Jefferson laid out strict rules for maintaining order and decorum, including a proviso that read:

No one [Senator] is to disturb another in his speech by hissing, coughing, spitting, speaking, or whispering to another, nor to walk up and down the floor, nor to go across the house, or walk up and down it, or take books or papers from the table, or write with his pen.

That was Jefferson speaking.

The Senate has remained ever attentional to the need for order and decorum, Mr. President. According to the Senate Historian’s Office, persistent concern for the chronically disordered state of floor activity in the early 1850s moved the Senate to authorize construction of a new and larger chamber. The chambers:

This Chamber into which the Senators moved in 1859 included ample galleries and floor space, and—for the first time—cloakrooms to which members could retire for private conversation and writing.

Ergo, Mr. President, order and decorum are needed because in this Chamber we are dealing with important, often controversial, national issues. We are dealing with precious issues that can affect so many people we represent and to the Nation’s values.

Pressure is constantly building upon us with so much at stake in nearly everything we say and do. As tensions rise and pressures mount, it is essential that we maintain order and decorum as well as mutual respect for one another. Only with respect for and obedience to the rules, especially those governing order and decorum, can the Senate function properly and effectively.

Without observance of these rules, events in the Senate can escalate, and have escalated, out of control. During the decade in which the country approached the Civil War, for example, the 1860s witnessed some of the most controversial issues of the period flared, and so did tempers, and so did disorder in the Chamber.

During a heated argument in 1850, Senator Henry Foote of Mississippi in the Old Senate Chamber just down the hall drew a pistol on Senator Thomas Hays of Kentucky. In that same chamber in 1856 came the caning of Senator Charles Sumner of Massachusetts. In 1859, Senator William Gain of California challenged Senator Henry Wilson of Massachusetts to a duel. In 1863, in this Chamber, William Salisbury of Delaware threatened to shoot the Sergeant at Arms. Several decades after the Civil War, in a heated debate over a treaty, two South Carolina Senators fought, Senator Benjamin Tillman and Senator John McLaughlin, both of South Carolina, traded punches on the Senate floor.

We no longer draw pistols on each other, or engage in fist fights, or threaten to shoot the Sergeant at Arms, but for a long while I was seriously concerned about the decline of decorum in this body. In December 1995, I came to the floor and expressed my deep concern at the growing incivility in this Chamber. Senators were using what I call “gutter talk” and “fighting words” that once could have led to fist fights or even duels.

Just last year, I complained of the lack of decorum that had developed over the past few years. Observing in both Houses of the West Virginia State Legislature, I pointed out that the decorum, the order within the House of Delegates of West Virginia and the West Virginia Senate, were far more compelling. And yet I could find not a point of order being made from the floor, to maintain order and decorum in the Senate Chamber and in the galleries. When the Presiding Officer falls in the mission, he fails the Senate.

I say to my colleagues: Don’t be afraid to use that gavel. Hit the desk hard. Use that gavel. It is made of ivory. It won’t crack. Only once has the gavel been broken in more than two centuries of debate in the Chamber. Just tapping is all right. It is all right just to tap the gavel if the pages are being a little noisy or if there are two or three Senators making a noise up here close and if the Chamber is not crowded with Senators. But if there are many in the Chamber, one needs to use that gavel.

I have been very proud of the way these new Senators use the gavel. The Senate ladies here—I am an old-fashioned Senator; I still refer to men as gentlemen and women as ladies—these female Senators use that gavel and they make themselves heard. And they are firm when they ask for order. When they are presiding and they ask for order, they get it. They make that gavel sound. They make the rafter move and they make the floor move. When they ask for order, they get it. I daresay that much of the indecorous ways of the Senate from time to time come about when the Presiding Officer is not paying attention to the floor, is not enforcing the rule.

My how things have changed in the last few months with the Senate class of 2000. I no longer see the Presiding Officer picking up a newspaper and leaving his desk. It is now common knowledge that whenever the Presiding Officer does go to pick up his mail, he sits up there and reads the newspaper or looks at a periodical.

Our new Senators, when presiding, are not reading the mail. They are paying attention to what is happening on the floor, and they are keenly aware of what is going on. One quick look at them will show you that they take the responsibility of presiding over the Senate very seriously. They perform very professionally.

These Senators are determined to keep order. They are not afraid to pound the gavel to get order in the Senate. Even though they are freshmen, they will pound that gavel against more senior Members when it is called for.

Just the other day I watched as one of the freshman Senators hammered away until he got absolute silence. That is what we do here. It is a way to learn more about the Senate, to watch and study the way it works and to learn from it. And perhaps even more importantly, they recognize the importance of the position in keeping the Senate operating and functioning properly.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, will the Senator suspend? Could I ask what the order of business is?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. Nelson of Nebraska. The order is to resume consideration of H.R. 2299.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Seeing no one else on the floor, I ask unanimous consent I be allowed to proceed for 5 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FEDERAL FUNDS FOR ELECTION REFORM

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, the subject of election reform has been talked about and discussed a great deal during the past 6 or 7 months. In fact, there have already been more than 60 hearings this year in Washington and in the States.

I appreciate the attention that has been paid to this important issue, and commend my colleague on the Senate Rules Committee, Chairman DODD, for his attention to this issue.

I think we can all agree that America needs, wants, and demands action on election reform.

The Senate is in a strong position to act on this issue of tremendous national importance, and in a refreshingly bipartisan manner. On election reform, Republicans and Democrats agree on far more than we disagree.

In fact, 90 senators agree that we need meaningful election reform.

Ninety Senators are cosponsoring either the bipartisan McConnell-Schumer-Torriceilli election reform bill leading the election reform pact with 70 Senators on board—38 Republicans, 31 Democrats, and one Independent; the Democrats-only Dodd bill which has all Democrats and one Independent as co-sponsors; or the McCain bill—which has 2 cosponsors.

That means 90 Senators are cosponsoring legislation authorizing federal funding to assist the 50 States in improving their election systems. The McConnell-Schumer-Torriceilli bill, the Dodd bill, and the McCain bill all have funding in them for election reform.

Federal funding is the common denominator which brings the Senate together on this critical issue and makes election reform possible for the American people.

But no money has yet been appropriated for election reform. No election reform money at all—not one thin dime—is yet in any appropriations bill for fiscal year 2002.

I think we can all agree that is unacceptable. We must have election reform money appropriated for fiscal year 2002.

Otherwise, any authorization which is passed later this fall will be all-show and no-go, until subsequent appropriations bills.

If we do not appropriate election reform money in this round of appropriations—for fiscal year 2002—then election reform will be delayed. Election reform would either be postponed until fiscal year 2003, or be contingent upon an emergency supplemental appropriations bill at some point.

Election reform delayed is election reform denied.

The Republican Leader, Senator LOTT, had planned the election reform debate in the Senate to occur during June. Senators SCHUMER, TORRICELLI, and I were ready to press ahead. The Senate leadership was supporting our bill—including Common Cause and the League of Women Voters—were ready to do an all-out push for our election reform bill. Obviously, that floor debate did not happen.

It is not clear now when election reform will pass the Senate in the form of an authorization bill. In any event, any authorization for Federal funding for new voting machines and other enhancements in election systems will require that money be appropriated.

That is why I take the floor today, to announce my plan to pursue a meaningful appropriation for election reform.

The McConnell-Schumer bill authorizes $500 million annually. The Dodd bill authorizes such sums as many be necessary.

While it may be nearly impossible to appropriate several hundred million dollars for the upcoming fiscal year, I do believe that we can come together on both sides of the aisle to find an election reform appropriation that is possible and meaningful. Today, I am pledging my commitment to do just that and calling on my colleagues on the Rules and Appropriations Committees to help me make this happen.

There will have to be an authorization mechanism later on to determine precisely who will administer the funds, how, to whom and for what. But we do know that the sum is substantial, and that time is running out to make a difference for the 2002 elections.

Senators on the Appropriations Committee have already demonstrated great enthusiasm for election reform with nearly all the Republicans and half the Democrats on my bill and all the Democrats on the Dodd bill.

If not successful at the committee stage in the appropriations process, I will offer an amendment on the floor at a suitable time.

One way or another, we need to make sure that the Senate will have the election reform issue before it—sooner rather than later—in the form of the funding that is absolutely essential to make the McConnell-Schumer-Torriceilli election reform bill, the Dodd bill, or the McCain bill work.

Let’s appropriate election reform money for 2002. We can decide later which election reform bill will become law, who will hand out the money, and whether there will be Federal mandates.

I look forward to working with Chairman DODD on the Rules Committee and Senators BYRD and STEVENS and my fellow members of the Appropriations Committee to ensure that this appropriations season does not pass without setting aside funds for election reform.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is now closed.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2002

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now resume consideration of H.R. 2299, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2299) making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes.

PENDING: Murray/Shelby amendment No. 1025, in the nature of a substitute.

Murray/Shelby amendment No. 1030 (to amendment No. 1025), to enhance the inspection requirements for Mexican motor carriers seeking to operate in the United States and to require them to display decals.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

AMENDMENT NO. 1025

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I believe the pending business is an amendment by the Senator from Washington; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I rise to speak on the amendment. I will not take very much time because I just discussed with the Senator from Washington an amendment we would have to the American Free Trade Agreement because of our failure to allow trucks

Over the weekend, I examined the language in the Transportation appropriations bill and our concerns about

I do not think those concerns are unbridgeable. So I would like to speak for a few moments on how we can discuss this issue and debate it and then, if necessary, vote on the Murray amendment. If not, hopefully we can work out some agreements which will achieve the goal we all seek.

The goal we all seek is simple: That Mexican trucks that are allowed to come into the United States of America, according to the North American Free Trade Agreement—this is in compliance with the North American Free Trade Agreement. The United States has already been found, by a panel, to be out of compliance with the North American Free Trade Agreement because of our failure to allow trucks that originate in Mexico to come into the United States. What we need is a way they can come into the United States but that the American people and the Mexican people will have the total and complete confidence that every reasonable safety measure has been employed to prevent needless death on the highways of America. That is the goal we all seek.

As we know, the House has taken action, as part of the 2002 Department of Transportation appropriations bill, that would prohibit the approval of any Mexican motor carrier from operating beyond the southern border.

Second, it adopted an amendment to prohibit the approval of any Mexican carriers to operate in this country. That amendment is a blanket prohibition. It is in direct violation of NAFTA, and it is wrong. It is discriminatory and it would not prevail.

The Senate appropriations subcommittee, under the leadership of the Senator from Washington, has taken a different approach and one that I think is very supportable in part but perhaps not entirely. This bill provides significant funding to enable the Department of Transportation to hire and train more safety inspectors and investigators and to build more inspection facilities at the southern border. I commend the committee for this action.

I have concerns, however, over a number of requirements included in the bill that, if enacted without modification, could effectively prevent the opening of the border indefinitely. My concerns are shared by other colleagues, and those concerns are shared by the administration.

The administration estimates that the Senate provisions would result in a further delay in opening the border for another year. This would be a direct violation of NAFTA. It effective provides a blanket prohibition against allowing any Mexican motor carrier from operating beyond the commercial zones. And this is a view shared by a number of us, as well as the President’s senior advisers.

By the way, the present state of play is that if the Mexican Government chose to—since the United States has been found to be in violation of NAFTA—impose billions of dollars of sanctions on United States goods. I hasten to add, I have seen no indication that the Mexican Government wishes to take such action. Their object is to try to get their carriers along the southern border.

I was on the committee that negotiated this NAFTA agreement. As a leader of the 1994 legislation creating the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, I strongly support proposals to advance truck and bus safety. I recognize the Senate provisions are largely intended to address safety concerns. Unfortunately, some of the provisions’ mandates simply are not achievable. The provisions are overly rigid and burdensome. The modifications, I believe, could go a long way toward promoting motor carrier safety in a nondiscriminatory manner.

At a later time, I will discuss a number of the concerns that I and others and the administration have about the bill. I have some very specific ideas as to how we can address these concerns. But at the moment, since I believe we are in some active discussions, I will not take the Senate in going through all these specifics.

I will again point out that the administration, last Thursday, sent over a letter saying that the President wanted to veto the Transportation appropriations bill. I do not think the President wants to veto the Transportation appropriations bill. I do not want the President to do that.

Second, it adopted an amendment to prohibit the approval of any Mexican motor carrier from operating beyond the southern border.

Another 2 years or more. This would be against allowing any Mexican motor carrier from operating beyond the southern border.

I might say, also, we are the last ones—the last ones—who would compensate a situation to prevail that would place the lives and property of our citizens in danger. It is across the southern border where most of this activity initially will take place, although I believe I will live to see the day when we will see basically open transportation between Canada and Mexico.

As it has been a boon to the economy in Canada, so it can be across our southern border.

I hope we can deal with this issue in the ensuing hours. I understand the Senator from Washington may be discussing this issue with the Secretary of Transportation. We encourage all Members to get involved in this issue. It is a very important one. We are not talking about a policy dispute. I emphasize, we are talking about a solemn agreement that was entered into between the United States, Canada, and Mexico. That agreement called for certain safety—safety agreements that we believe will have the practical impact of making it impossible for a long period of time for us to conform to the agreement that we made with Mexico in NAFTA.

Let me make it clear that the Senator from Washington, the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, dramatically improved the work done by the House. Even those of us who believe that her amendment would be harmful and would abrogate our agreement with Mexico are convinced that her work is a dramatic improvement over that of the House.

What we are trying to do is to simply work out an agreement where we can meet legitimate safety standards with respect to Mexican trucks, do it in a way that allows us to meet the obligations that we have under NAFTA, and do it in such a way to try to keep out any provisions that may be cloaked in some garb of safety, when in reality they represent an effort to prevent the implementation of our agreement.

I understand Senator McCain has given the distinguished subcommittee chairman a copy of the amendment. I don’t see any reason that this should be or has to be a partisan issue. I am hopeful we can work out an agreement.

Let me explain why it is so important that such an agreement be reached and why I feel so strongly about it. We entered into the most far-reaching trade agreement of the last 20 years when we signed a free trade agreement that encompassed North America—Mexico, Canada, and the United States. Part of that free trade agreement had to do with the ability of trucks to enter the United States from Mexico. President Clinton was very slow in implementing the agreement, and many people believe that politics was behind that slowness in implementation.

We are now on the verge of seeing the agreement implemented. We are hearing great protests about safety. In that debate, a lot of points have been made that, when you actually look at the facts, are not borne out by the facts.

Let me give an example. First of all, the good news story with regard to Mexican trucks is that a significant amount of inspection is already occurring so that when we supplement that to deal with trucks that will come to the United States, we have something on which to build.

For example, there are 8 million U.S. registered trucks. Last year, there were 2.3 million inspections and so, therefore, about 29 percent of all American trucks were inspected. Mexico has 63,000 Mexican trucks currently operating in the United States, and 46,000 inspections took place last year involving Mexican trucks. Therefore, roughly 73 percent of Mexican trucks were inspected. They also are now operating within a 20-mile inspection area, whereas prior to this agreement, we had something on which to build.

Some people have used the number, in sort of scare tactics, that only about 1 percent of Mexican trucks were inspected. In trying to figure out where that number came from, we can figure that number came from the fact that for many years when we signed a free trade agreement, we know that 1 percent of Mexican trucks were inspected. We proposed that we have an inspection of every Mexican truck, that that inspected truck then be licensed with a decal, and that be periodically inspected.

I believe the Senator from Alaska is referring to the way we are dealing with legitimate safety concerns without effectively abrogating our trade agreement with Mexico.

I know that most special interests that don’t want to implement this agreement. But it is important for us to remember in the Senate that all over the world today, other legislative bodies are debating whether to live up to agreements they have made with the United States of America. Other legislative bodies are meeting at this very moment, at that very moment, trying to decide whether to implement an agreement they made with the United States that may not at that very moment, or this very moment, be politically popular in their country.

It seems to me that since we are the world’s largest exporter of trade, we are the world’s largest exporter and importer of goods and services, it is important to live up to the letter and the spirit of our trade agreements so that we can have moral standing in dealing with countries that do not live up to their agreements with us.

So, in a time when all over the world similar agreements are being debated, it is very important in dealing with our neighbor to the south that we live up to the agreement we have made. I do not believe the House provision lives up to that agreement. I think there are very real problems with the current bill. I think Senator McCaIN has offered an amendment that provides safety but does not create problems that will delay implementation beyond legitimate requirements of safety. I hope the amendment will pass. But the NAFTA agreement is an important agreement. It is vital to my State, vital to the country, and I cannot imagine, if we can’t work this out, that we would want to move forward with this bill.

So I urge my colleagues to look at the language that has been proposed. We are not saying this is the only way it has to be done or we are not going to be satisfied. We have simply raised some concerns with the current bill. I am hopeful in working together with the administration that we can reach a compromise. It will hardly serve anybody’s purpose to pass a bill that the President will veto and we will have to start all over again.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Murray amendment be temporarily set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 1025 TO AMENDMENT NO. 1025
Mr. REID. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. Reid], for himself, Ms. Mikulski, and Mr. Sarbanes, proposes an amendment numbered 1025 to amendment No. 1025.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To require a study of the hazards and risks to public health and safety, the environment, and the economy of the transportation of hazardous chemicals and radioactive material, the improvements to transportation infrastructure necessary to prevent accidents in the transportation of such chemicals and radioactive material, the improvements to transportation infrastructure necessary to prevent accidents in the transportation of such chemicals and radioactive material, and the preparedness of Federal, State, and local emergency response and medical personnel to respond to and mitigate accidents in the transportation of such chemicals and radioactive material.)

On page 81, at the end of line 13, insert the following:

SEC. 350. (a) FINDINGS. — Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The condition of highway, railway, and waterway infrastructure across the Nation varies widely and is in need of improvement and investment.

(2) Thousands of tons of hazardous chemicals, and a very small amount of high level radioactive material, is transported along the Nation’s highways, railways, and waterways each year.

(3) The volume of hazardous chemical transport increased by over one-third in the last 25 years and is expected to continue to increase. Some propose significantly increasing radioactive material transport.

(4) Approximately 261,000 people were evacuated across the Nation because of rail-related accidental releases of hazardous chemicals between 1978 and 1985, and during that period industry reported 8 transportation accidents involving the small volume of high level radioactive waste transported during that period.

(5) The Federal Railroad Administration has significantly decreased railroad inspections and has allocated few resources since... to assure the structural integrity of railroad bridges. Train derailments have increased by 18 percent over roughly the same period.

(6) The poor condition of highway, railroad, and waterway infrastructure, increases in the volume of hazardous chemical transport, and proposed increases in radioactive material transport are the risk of incidents involving such chemicals and materials.

(7) Measuring the risks of hazardous chemical or radioactive material accidents and preventing such accidents requires specific information concerning the condition and suitability of specific transportation routes and combating such transport to inform and enable investment in related infrastructure.

(8) Mitigating the impact of hazardous chemical and radioactive material transportation accidents requires skilled, localized, and well-equipped emergency response personnel along all specifically identified transportation routes.

(9) Accidents involving hazardous chemical or radioactive material transport pose threats to the public health and safety, the environment, and the economy.

(b) STUDY.—The Secretary of Transportation shall, in consultation with the Comptroller General of the United States, conduct a study to address the following:

(1) Whether Federal, State, and local emergency preparedness personnel, emergency response personnel, and medical personnel are adequately trained and equipped to promptly respond to accidents along specific transportation routes for the current, and any anticipated or proposed, transport of hazardous chemicals and radioactive material, including whether resources and information are adequate to conduct such evaluations and inspections.

(2) The costs and time required to ensure adequate inspection of specific transportation routes and related infrastructure and to complete the infrastructure improvements necessary to ensure the safety of current, and any anticipated or proposed, hazardous chemical and radioactive material transport.

(3) Whether Federal, State, and local emergency preparedness personnel, emergency response personnel, and medical personnel are adequately trained and equipped to promptly respond to accidents along specific transportation routes for the current, anticipated, or proposed hazardous chemical and radioactive material transport.

(4) The costs and time required to ensure that Federal, State, and local emergency preparedness personnel, emergency response personnel, and medical personnel are adequately trained and equipped to promptly respond to accidents along specific transportation routes for the current, anticipated, or proposed hazardous chemical and radioactive material transport.

(5) The availability of, or requirements to establish, information collection and dissemination systems adequate to provide the public, in an accessible manner, with timely, complete, specific, and accurate information (including pertinent accident reports, proposed, or anticipated shipments by highway, railroad, or waterway of hazardous chemicals and radioactive material, including accidents involving the transportation of such chemicals and materials by those means.

(d) DEADLINE FOR COMPLETION.—The study under subsection (b) shall be completed not later than six months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(e) REPORT.—Upon completion of the study under subsection (b), the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the study.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I just left a hearing of the Environment and Public Works Committee, the Subcommittee on Transportation Infrastructure. In fact, the hearing is still going on. Senators Voinovich and Inhofe are there completing the hearing.

At the hearing today, we had four mayors of very important cities in America—the mayor of New Orleans, Mayor Marc Morial; the mayor of Las Vegas, Mayor Goodman; and the mayor of the District of Columbia, Mayor Williams. The purpose of the hearing is to talk about the decaying infrastructure of our country, especially in our urban areas.

It is tragic—"tragic" is not too powerful a word to describe what they have talked about. We have all kinds of problems in New Orleans. The mayor of the District of Columbia—the Federal city—talked about water pipes that carry water that are over 100 years old. Some of them are wooden. The mayor of Atlanta said they have pipes over 100 years old. He said most mayors are term limited and their duty is: Please, let me make it through my term and leave the problem to somebody else. They do not have the money to handle the problems facing American cities.

The tunnel we have all seen so often in the news in the past 5 days or 6 days—actually, it was Wednesday at 3 o'clock that the derailment took place in the tunnel in Baltimore. That tunnel is a mile and a half long. It is 100 years old. So that tunnel was created through that area in about 1900. What kind of equipment did they have then? Most of it was done by hand; very little machinery was available for digging a tunnel around the turn of the century. That tunnel has had almost nothing done to it since then. It is the same tunnel.

This amendment is on behalf of myself, Senator Sarbanes, and Senator Mikulski. It is an amendment to protect against the dangers posed by the transportation of hazardous substances. The amendment requires the Secretary of the Department of Transportation, in consultation with the Comptroller General of the United States, to study the public health and safety associated with the transportation of these dangerous substances.

My amendment requires the Department of Transportation and the General Accounting Office to study whether our transportation system can safely transport these dangerous substances and ask how it might improve the safety track record.

If you read my amendment, you will see a number of interesting things. The volume of hazardous chemical transport has increased by over one-third in the last 25 years and is expected to continue. Approximately 261,000 people were evacuated across this Nation because of rail-related accidents during the past 20 years—no, that is not in the last 20 years. It is from the period of 1978 to 1995—less than 20 years. So 261,000 people were evacuated from their homes because of rail-related accidents.

During that period, the industry reported eight transportation accidents involving small volumes of high-level radioactive waste transported during the period.

The Federal Railroad Administration has significantly decreased railroad inspections and has allocated few resources since 1993 to assure the structural integrity of railroad bridges.

One of the mayors today testified that 70 percent of the bridges in America won't meet basic safety standards—70 percent of the bridges. Maybe he is 10 percent wrong. Maybe it is only 60 percent; maybe it is 80 percent. We know there are bridges in America today where schoolbuses stop and let the kids walk across, and the bus will come over and pick them up. We have all kinds of trouble with our infrastructure in America today. We need to do something about it, and that is what this amendment is all about.

It is saying let's at least have some knowledge of what is out there when we are seeing these treks of very hazardous materials. As you know, in Baltimore, which we all saw, the substance there was hydrochloric acid. Hydrochloric acid is extremely dangerous. One of the important things was that it was far enough away from a school that it wasn't an immediate danger. Had the accident occurred closer to the populated area, of course, it would have been.

I can remember a number of years ago being in Ely, NV, a rural part of the State of Nevada. One of the men I went to high school with was a police officer there. I always tried to stop him when I came through Ely. He has since retired. I was in the police station and he came through there. He looked at it and said: Why do they even send me this stuff? They were telling him there was a transport of hazardous materials coming through Ely. His point was: So what. I could not do anything about it. The only thing that telling me about it does is frighten me. We have no ability to respond to a chemical accident spilled in Ely, NV.

Mr. President, this is an extremely important question. The United States Department of Transportation and the General Accounting Office—we know how they can and they should—study the ability of personnel to respond to transportation accidents involving dangerous materials. Today, they looked at it and said: Why do they even send me this stuff? They were telling him there was a transport of hazardous materials coming through Ely. His point was: So what. I could not do anything about it. The only thing that telling me about it does is frighten me. We have no ability to respond to a chemical accident spilled in Ely, NV.

My friend, the police officer in Ely, NV, did what most police officers in rural America would do: They threw the report away. They cannot do anything about it. In fact, Rick said he would rather not know. All it does is frighten him.

While emergency response teams might be equipped and available in urban areas such as Baltimore—that was interesting. That occurred so they had the ability—and we may hear further from Senators SARRANES and MKULSKI—that was a great deal of teamwork among county, city, State, and Federal officials in some of our metropolitan areas. They did pretty well from what I can tell.

How prepared are the small rural communities in Nevada? How well prepared are small rural communities in Nebraska, the State of Washington, all over America? They are not very well prepared.

What resources do they need to protect against the danger of a hazardous accident? I have to say candidly that this is not just a rural America problem; it is a major city problem also. But I guess the answer to both my questions is, we really do not know. We have no idea. That is why this study is important.

Finally, my amendment instructs DOT and GAO to evaluate the way we communicate with the public about accidents involving dangerous substances. As a member of this subcommittee I talked about earlier, I am confident we are going to have to develop information, as I told the four mayors, and we also had the manager of the port authority there and somebody from the General Accounting Office—I told those people assembled today that we need to be aware of what is wrong with our infrastructure. It is time they were more forceful and told us what is wrong with our infrastructure. I also told them this is the first of a number of hearings. We have to start identifying what is wrong with the infrastructure. Senator VOINOVICH talked about a 1981 study which showed the problems with our infrastructure. Shortly after that, there were statements about the problems of our decaying infrastructure, but we have done nothing about it. Literally, we have done nothing. As a Federal Government giving cities and States more responsibilities, these unfunded mandates they talked about today. We give them the responsibility, but we do not join with them in true partnership to help pay for these things.

Some will say these are not national problems; why should the Federal Government be involved? They are national problems. Our wakening mayor of New Orleans indicated that the city of New Orleans is basically in a basin and they are pumping every minute of every day to keep the water from inundating this beautiful city. They have 100 pumping stations. As soon as they began checking the waybill, reviewing what they had left behind. And that’s what troubled them when they began to notice the black smoke pouring out of the tunnel. Something was there. That might be anything from paper to toxic chemicals. 4:15: NO FALSE ALARM

Seven blocks away, on the other side of Baltimore, Capt. James Groller, 34, sat in the firehouse for Engine Co. 13, at 405 McMechen St.

A call came in: smoke pouring from the train tunnel. At 3:07, Capt. Groller said, "I honestly thought it was an earthquake." Cadden and Brown weren’t sure what to think, according to federal transportation officials who interviewed them. There was the lurch, then the flashing indicator, then the stopping of the train. Black fumes were everywhere, but that’s often the case when three engines are running in a tunnel. They tried to radio the CSX dispatcher, but no luck, probably because they were under a mountain. Cadden dialed a toll-free number, reaching the train master. It was 3:15. They were still unaware of the breaching disaster to the north.

With the fumes growing worse, they shut down two engines, then uncoupled all three from their cargo, and drove them out the tunnel. From the north end of Camden Yards, three engines are running in a tunnel. But that’s what troubled them when they began to notice the black smoke pouring out of the tunnel. Something was there. That might be anything from paper to toxic chemicals.
manager for 21 years of the high-rise Sutton Place Apartments, it’s been her job to find out such things, and the sirens were blowing. She, too, was familiar with the frequent false alarms, but this time enough newspaper stories about the sort of cargo that came and went on those tracks to wonder if one day a call might be for real.

"I have had that feeling," said Macklin, 72. Two years ago, she’d told her three scolding children, "Some day, something will happen in that tunnel.

Now, after more than two decades of living and working next door, that day had come. But she didn’t know until she rode an elevator to an empty apartment on the 11th floor for a break, and was joined by firefighting assistance, Patricia Stanitski, who said: "The school’s on fire," referring to the old Mount Royal Station, which houses part of the Maryland Institute, College of Art.

"No," Macklin said, watching the smoke rise part the top floor. "It’s the tunnel." She hoped there was nothing hazardous burning.

A FORAY INTO DARKNESS

Chief Terry Ryer wondered the same thing when he heard the call go out to Engine Co. 13.

Ryer, 49, was listening to the radio at the firehouse in Brooklyn, where he commands the 6th Battalion, with its hazardous materials squad.

It was a later part of the call that sent him into action. Not only had a train possibly derailed, but hazardous materials might be involved. Ryer opened his office door and told the firefighters relaxing in the bay to stand ready. Less than a minute later they got the call.

The son of a city firefighter, Ryer, like his dad, signed on for duty at age 18, so he’s been around long enough to know that some fires aren’t the sort that should be rushed into, and this sounded like just such a fire.

Captain Smith was discovering that first-instance awareness is the color of the smoke, and suddenly the truck stopped and four of the six firefighters relaxing in the bay to stand ready. They talked to each other, touching, anything to keep from separating in the blackness, but what would happen if the fire suddenly intensified. They weren’t even sure what was burning.

A sight ran counter to almost all their training, which teaches them to constantly be aware of “escape routes” and “safety zones.”

"The controlling fire," Smith said, "you’re usually never more than 12 feet from a window or some stair, a door, a ladder. This really played with your mind. . . . We were concerned it may have been a caustic substance.

They made it a hundred yards, at most, before agreeing to back out. A second attempt might be for real. Police had closed every major road. Helping lessen the sense of isolation, Macklin had heard by telephone from friends and family, some of whom called after radio and TV stations reported that Sutton Place was being evacuated. Officials were standing by to move residents. Owens ran out such things, and the sirens were blowing.

At Sutton Place, Elaine Laboratories immediately turned in at midnight after an uneasy night of watching TV news accounts, windows shut tight.

All of downtown was sealed up. You could leave, but you couldn’t come back. Police had closed every major road. Helping lessen the sense of isolation, Macklin had heard by telephone from friends and family, some of whom called after radio and TV stations reported that Sutton Place was being evacuated. Officials were standing by to move residents.

Perhaps by morning, she hoped, everything would be fixed. But she arose Thursday to see white smoke still rising from the tunnel. When she walked close to her living room window, she shivered.

THANK MOTHER NATURE

A few blocks south, at the Holiday Inn, the Pelaiai and other lodgers saw that the impromptu hotel “swimming pool” was finally under control. Owens and public works crews had contained it, digging a hole in the street that exposed the ruptured pipe. Water was still dumping into the tunnel.

Overnight, a new guest had checked into the hotel. It was Dan Stone, who hadn’t wanted to desert his building at Pratt and Howard streets. Water in the basement had peaked at 9 feet by 11 a.m., when city work crews began pumping it out. He hadn’t reached the hotel until 4:20 a.m.

Other workers, meanwhile, were just beginning to clear debris. The new day’s rush hour began, ending shifts that had continued while the rest of the city slept. Ryer got home at 6:30 a.m., Smith and MacFarlane around 11 a.m., Owens told her three scoffing children, "MOM, you were right.

Someday, something will happen in that tunnel.

Perhaps by morning, she hoped, everything would be fixed. But she arose Thursday to see white smoke still rising from the tunnel. When she walked close to her living room window, she shivered.

THANK MOTHER NATURE

A few blocks south, at the Holiday Inn, the Pelaiai and other lodgers saw that the impromptu hotel “swimming pool” was finally under control. Owens and public works crews had contained it, digging a hole in the street that exposed the ruptured pipe. Water was still dumping into the tunnel.

Overnight, a new guest had checked into the hotel. It was Dan Stone, who hadn’t wanted to desert his building at Pratt and Howard streets. Water in the basement had peaked at 9 feet by 11 a.m., when city work crews began pumping it out. He hadn’t reached the hotel until 4:20 a.m.

Other workers, meanwhile, were just beginning to clear debris. The new day’s rush hour began, ending shifts that had continued while the rest of the city slept. Ryer got home at 6:30 a.m., Smith and MacFarlane around 11 a.m., Owens told her three scoffing children, "MOM, you were right.

Someday, something will happen in that tunnel.

Perhaps by morning, she hoped, everything would be fixed. But she arose Thursday to see white smoke still rising from the tunnel. When she walked close to her living room window, she shivered.
alkali, it reacts with acid sort of like water with fire, neutralizing its caustic nature.

DAY 2: A NEW STRATEGY

The fire, while still burning, no longer seemed an imminent threat to blow into an environment by late afternoon. By late afternoon, a firefighting force that had peaked at 150 was down to 50. Not that their jobs were much easier.

Some boxcars had already been removed from the tunnel. Others would soon follow. But some were still baking at 400 degrees, and smoke still poured from the north end. The next day, two men—a state official and a chemical consultant—were overcome by smoke.

But it was on Thursday afternoon that the fire was finally extinguished. Dan Stone got a preview of it from his office, where three firemen asked if there might be an entrance to the tunnel through his building. There wasn’t, but they eventually found another: through a manhole, where they poked a hose to douse the fire’s midsection. It was also the entry point for hazardous waste crews that pumped hydrochloric acid from the leaking tanker.

Outnumbering fire crews by then were street crews, digging into the pavement five blocks east of Howard Street to lay a new fiber-optic cable. Lines near or through the tunnel had been damaged or destroyed, disrupting e-mail, Internet, and phone service from Baltimore to New York to Africa.

SORTING OUT EVENTS

By nightfall Thursday, another force had arrived on the scene. The National Transportation Safety Board plays an important role in sorting out such events, ultimately assigning blame. Yesterday, the NTSB made itself known to the public through board member John Hammerschmidt, whose briefings are minor masterpieces of bureaucratic jargon.

For the day’s final briefing was CSX President Michael Ward, who grew up not far from Terry Ryer’s 6th Battalion fire headquarters in Brooklyn.

Ward praised the city, praised the mayor and said his company would continue to err on the side of caution. Then came a question.

Once this mess was cleaned up, would his company would continue to err on the side of caution. Then came a question.

Ward testily called any such question “premature.”

What about foresight? They must have forgotten to ask Elaine Macklin, at Sutton Place, who again went to bed with smoke pouring past her 14th-floor window.

Mr. REID, Mr. President, this article, among other things, details how this train derailment threatened to leak hazardous chemicals, such as hydrochloric acid in the main tunnel running under downtown Baltimore. They were able to stop that leak. This train derailment closed roads, broke fiber optic communications cables, generated a water main break, caused evacuations of residents, and injured workers. While it was not one of the more serious things, it indicates how widespread this was: They canceled three Baltimore Orioles baseball games. They simply could not play with hazardous materials around. People couldn’t even get to the game. Baltimore was basically shut off.

To show the cost to the business community, we have only to look at what happened to the Baltimore Orioles. Damages associated with just the lost baseball revenues are estimated at almost $5 million for the Baltimore Orioles.

Is Baltimore an isolated example? Of course not. In Bev Hills, and 1993, as I said, over 260,000 people were evacuated across the Nation due to transportation accidents involving trains. There are some reasons why. The Federal Railroad Administration increased inspections and allocated few resources to ensure safe passage on the Nation. Train derailments during that period increased 18 percent.

Unfortunately, we do not have good statistics about the prevalence or dangers associated with accidents such as the one in Baltimore. We do know from press reports that transportation-related accidents involving dangerous substances occur around the Nation each year. A quick search revealed many.

For example, I found an exploding boxcar in Kansas City sending its hazardous contents, potassium nitrate, into a nearby school. I am told that is one of the things that was used in the bomb in Kansas City.

I found reports in Charleston, SC, of a train derailment that spilled 300 gallons of formaldehyde and forced the evacuation of 100 families and hospitalized 7.

I found reports of hazardous substances being dumped in a river and endangering the life and property of millions of people in California.

While we do not have a complete count of all the accidents, we do have data to show transportation of dangerous substances is on the rise. With increased transportation comes an increased risk unless we step back and evaluate how well our transportation infrastructure is handling this dangerous cargo.

We need to know whether our emergency response personnel are trained and equipped to deal with hazardous accidents, not only in urban Baltimore but in rural Nevada. We need to know whether we adequately convey information on dangerous accidents to the public in time to ensure their safety.

We do not have reliable estimates of the need to upgrade infrastructure in order to handle unique threats posed by hazardous materials. We can conclude, though, that the nature of these accidents and the volume of hazardous materials, or hazmats, occur each day on our highways, railroads, and waterways. The total volume of these materials such as flammable liquids and corrosive chemicals exceeds some 3 billion tons a year. While the vast majority of these shipments are transported safely, without any release, the number of hazardous incidents involving rail transportation of dangerous chemicals or radioactive materials on our rail and highway network.

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, more than 800,000 shipments of hazardous materials, or hazmats, occur each day on our highways, railroads, and waterways. The total volume of these materials such as flammable liquids and corrosive chemicals exceeds some 3 billion tons a year. While the vast majority of these shipments are transported safely, without any release, the number of hazardous incidents involving rail transportation of dangerous chemicals or radioactive materials on our rail and highway network.

As Senator REID has already noted, last Wednesday a 60-car freight train, including several cars containing hazardous chemicals, derailed and caught fire in the Howard Street tunnel right through downtown Baltimore. The cause of the derailment and fire are still under investigation, but according to news reports, some fire officials speculated that the fire started in a car carrying tripropylene, a caustic and flammable chemical used for making detergents and plastics.

I take this opportunity to commend the members of the Baltimore City Fire Department for their heroic efforts in managing the fire and protecting the health and safety of the citizens of our city. For nearly 5 days, the city firefighters took on tremendous risks, courageously entering the dark tunnels filled with smoke, to face the fire and the volatile chemicals and hazardous materials that burned within. During the height of the incident, over 150 of the city’s firefighters were on the scene and many more obviously reported for duty throughout the course of this incident.

The fact that injuries were kept to a minimum is a testament to the skill and professionalism with which the Baltimore City firefighters performed their jobs. I also express my appreciation to the Maryland National Guard Strike Force, the Maryland Department of Environment, and all the other members of the team who worked around the clock to protect public health and the environment.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

Firefighters’ activities were largely completed last night. This morning, the last of the 60 railcars was pulled out of the tunnel. The tunnel is now free of the train and examination will continue even to this day to serve by providing routes for significant inner-city passenger and freight traffic moving up and down the east coast, as well as providing links from the ports to the Midwest and points beyond.

Two major main line corridors traverse Baltimore. Amtrak operates more than 100 trains a day through Baltimore, traversing through two sets of major tunnels, the Union tunnel and the Baltimore and Potomac tunnel, immediately northeast and southwest of downtown Baltimore. These tunnels were built in the 1870s when the Pennsylvania Railroad extended its reach south to Washington. A second parallel Union tunnel was built in the early part of the 20th century. Amtrak’s corridor is also used by MARC commuter rail trains linking Baltimore and Washington and Norfolk and Southern freight trains.

While a number of improvements have been made to the corridor since the 1970s, the basic infrastructure of the route, including the tunnels and bridges over the numerous rivers north of Baltimore, is virtually the same as that in place some 75 to 100 years ago. CSX, the descendent of the original Baltimore and Ohio Railroad also operates its main line through Baltimore.

The main line serves traffic traveling from north and south and up and down the east coast and traffic which is ultimately heading west to the Ohio River Valley. Both movements converge between Baltimore and Washington as the main line through the latter city. It is CSX’s main line which passes through Baltimore by the 1.7-mile-long Howard Street tunnel where the accident occurred on Wednesday night. Most of this was built in the 1890s on a single track. Numerous other short tunnels and bridges are also along the route north and east of the central city.

The physical condition of the rail infrastructure and the mix of trains that use it pose problems for the movement of freight and passengers. There are inadequate vertical clearances for the passage of certain types of freight since high-cube, double-stacked container trains. There are numerous checkpoints and there is capability-related congestion on the Northeast Corridor and the CSX main line.

So the purpose of this study, this additional amendment that Senator Mikulski and I will offer, is to assess the condition of both the freight and passenger rail infrastructure in the Baltimore region, and to identify potential solutions to those problems. We need to get some sense of what the possibilities are, what the costs associated with them are, and what might be a reasonable course of action in order to address this situation. I very much hope when that amendment is offered our colleagues will be supportive of it.

I do want to have printed in the Record because of my remarks an article from the Baltimore Sun about the effort of our firefighters and other authorities who responded to this emergency entitled, “There when you need them.” I ask unanimous consent that be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I want to conclude by, again, underscoring the very important contribution that my colleague from Nevada has made in alerting us, not just now but over a sustained period of time, to the importance of addressing the much broader issue. I, of course, have focused today on this Baltimore tunnel problem, but that is only illustrative, as it were, simply an example of the kind of situation we are confronting in many, many parts of the country. My colleague from Nevada, Senator Reid, has repeatedly stressed the importance of addressing this question. His amendment, which I join in cosponsoring, to require a study of the hazards and risks to the public health and safety, the environment, and the economy flowing from the transport of hazardous chemicals and radioactive materials, and the improvements necessary to our infrastructure, I think, is a very important contribution. I strongly support it, and I trust when it comes to a vote in this body the overwhelming support of this body.

I yield the floor.

THREE WHEN YOU NEED THEM

Without warning. Emergency responses were generally good, but luck was better, the worst did not happen.

Baltimore had a close call Wednesday. It could have been so much worse.

Industrial chemicals that caught fire, or that did not, might have sent toxic fumes into the downtown atmosphere, damaging lungs and skin, invading work places and residences.

On the whole, the ugly bickering from both ends of the tunnel proved to be benign.

The whole metropolitan area, which is in debt to the courageous firefighters who entered the tunnel, into the unknown, to deal with a fire they could not locate. Also the police, hazardous materials workers, and public works workers who toiled on no notice through the night to cope with the fire, train mishap, water main break and power outage that paralyzed a great city.

They had other plans for the evening. But this was their job and they did it.

City, state and federal authorities were right to err on the side of caution in closing roads, waterways, baseball, business and normal life until public safety was secured.

The thing that did not work well was the civil defense sirens. If in the 17th century it has been tested but never before used for a real emergency, Those who heard it did not know what it conveyed.

Were they to duck beneath desks in event of a nuclear attack? If not, was the loud siren saying? For those who were just trying to come home in the evening rush hour, the best response was to carry on doing it, assuming they heard a mere malfunction.

People have long since learned to turn on radios, television or the Internet—or battery-operated radios in the event of power outage—to learn if something big is happening. The siren probably did not alert anyone who didn’t already know what was going on.

The emergency showed just how interconnected modern society is, how dependent we all are on everyone else functioning normally. The disruptions to city life and to East Coast commerce will go on for some time. More lessons will be learned in ensuing days. New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Norfolk and the rest had better pay attention. Here, but for the grace of God, go they.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. CANTWELL). The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Madam President, I join with my colleagues, Senator REID and Senator SARBANES, as an enthusiastic cosponsor of their respective amendments that I believe, should they be agreed to, will make America safer.

Last week in Baltimore we had a terrible train wreck in something called the Baltimore tunnel. A train overturned. It was a freight train. Immediately, we were not sure what was in it; what were the consequences of a fire; were we going to have an explosion; and whether the smoke billowing out of the tunnel was going to be a toxic plume over Baltimore. The civil defense alarm sounded for the first time in Baltimore in 50 years. The mayor jumped into action immediately, as did our brave firefighters and emergency management people because we had to both contain the fire and we had to contain panic.

I salute the mayor and the Governor for the support he gave the mayor, and the brave men and women of our public safety organizations, our firefighters, emergency management, public works, and also the citizens of Baltimore.

The railroad worked in a hands-on fashion with our mayor. I am happy to report that, as of now, we have pulled the railroad cars out, the smoke is clearing, but now the next phase needs to begin. During this saga that was unfolding, both in Baltimore and in the national media, our first fear was for the firefighters, the first responders, the ones who had to go in there and see if there were people behind; and whether the smoke billowing out of the tunnel was going to be a toxic plume over Baltimore. Mr. REID. Madam President, before my friend leaves the floor, I want to express my appreciation to her, and also the senior Senator from Maryland for joining in this amendment.

This Senator from Maryland can describe better than anyone here the terror of those brave firefighters facing a tunnel a mile and a half long, knowing there was a train in there and not knowing what was on the train but knowing there was a lot of smoke coming from it.

This was a real act of courage, as the Senators have indicated. I can’t imagine the terror that these men and women had in fighting this fire. From all the accounts that I have followed it very closely—it appears that it was a picture book attack on a very dangerous fire.

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. REID. Yes.

Mr. SARBANES. Actually, they knew what was in the train because they had the railroad manifest of what was contained in the railroad cars. They knew, in fact, there was hazardous material being carried in some of those 80 cars that were involved. Firefighters do a great job day in and day out all across the country. The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

AMENDMENT NO. 1025 TO AMENDMENT NO. 1025

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be laid on the table, and I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator SARBANES and Senator MIKULSKI and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment will be set aside. The clerk will report. The legislative clerk read as follows: The Senator from Washington [Mrs. MURRAY, for Mr. SARBANES, for himself and Ms. MIKULSKI] proposes an amendment numbered 1038.

Mrs. MURRAY. I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows: (Purpose: To set aside funds for a joint study of rail infrastructure in the vicinity of Baltimore, Maryland)

At the appropriate place, insert: SEC. . (a) Of the funds appropriated by title I for the Federal Railroad Administration under the heading "RAILROAD RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT", up to $750,000 may be expended to pay 25 percent of the total cost of a comprehensive study to assess existing problems in the freight and passenger rail infrastructure in the vicinity of Baltimore, Maryland, that the Secretary of Transportation shall carry out through the Federal Railroad Administration in cooperation with, and with a total amount of equal funding contributed by, Norfolk-Southern Corporation, CSX Corporation, and the State of Maryland.

(b)(1) The study shall include an analysis of the condition, track, and clearance limitations and efficiency of the existing tunnels, bridges, and other railroad facilities owned or operated by CSX Corporation, Amtrak, and Norfolk-Southern Corporation in the Baltimore area.

(2) The study shall examine the benefits and costs of various alternatives for reducing congestion and improving safety and efficiency in the operations on the rail infrastructure in the vicinity of Baltimore, including such alternatives for improving operations as shared usage of track, and such alternatives for improving the rail infrastructure as possible improvements to existing tunnels, bridges, and other railroad facilities, or construction of new facilities.

(c) Not later than one year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report on the results of the study to Congress. The report shall include recommendations on the matters described in subsection (b)(2).

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I urge the adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 1038.

The amendment (No. 1038) was agreed to.

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mrs. MURRAY. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.
Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I ask the pending amendment be set aside, and I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of Mr. THOMAS. I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending amendment will be set aside and the clerk will report the amendment.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Washington (Mrs. MURRAY), for Mr. THOMAS, proposes an amendment numbered 1039.

Mrs. MURRAY. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 66, line 8, after the word “bus,” insert the following phrase: “; and,” as that term is defined in section 301 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. § 12111);

On page 66, line 19, strike “and” and insert in lieu thereof “; and”;

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I urge this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no further debate, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 1039

The amendment (No. 1039) was agreed to.

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mrs. MURRAY. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Madam President, I rise to speak on the pending Reid amendment regarding a Department of Transportation-General Accounting Office study on the hazards and risks to public health and safety, the environment, and the economy associated with the transportation of hazardous chemicals and radioactive material.

In light of the recent events in Baltimore, it is entirely understandable that Senators from Maryland would join the Senator from Nevada in offering this amendment. Many of our urban areas suffer from inadequate and perhaps unsafe transportation infrastructure. However, I hasten to point out that if this derailment had happened to a train carrying spent nuclear fuel or other radioactive material, none of the havoc we saw in Baltimore would have occurred. The Orioles would not have had to cancel games and there would have been no threat to the general public health and safety.

That’s because the casks used to transport such material are subjected to rigorous safety standards by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and are tested in such a manner to ensure that a train derailment and any number of other accidents that could befall the casks would neither damage the casks or allow the release of any radioactive material.

As many of you well know, transportation is one of the key issues that arises in the discussions we have had here on the Senate floor when we debate the matter of how to deal with the disposal of our spent nuclear fuel. But I need to remind everyone that we already transport such material—and have been doing so for over 30 years. There have been close to 3,000 shipments in this country and no fatality, injury or environmental damage has ever occurred because of radioactive cargo. That is not to say there have been no accidents—but the casks have performed as designed. They haven’t broken open. They have not leaked. We have done a hooj job transporting spent nuclear fuel and radioactive waste and we will continue to do so. Great precautions are taken to avoid accidents and when and if Yucca Mountain is declared suitable as a repository for fuel, additional transportation safety provisions under the Nuclear Waste Policy Act will kick in to ensure that the additional transportation of spent fuel will continue in a safe manner.

But we don’t have to wait for Yucca to open to have safety measures in place—we already have them. Shipments are happening now and are safe. A nuclear fuel container consists of literally tons of shielding inside a thick steel cylinder. Any container design must be licensed by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission before the container is used for shipment. The NRC will not license a container until it undergoes a series of rigorous tests demonstrating that it is invulnerable to impact, flames, submersion and puncture.

In addition to the safety of the casks, spent nuclear fuel may be shipped only along specified highway routes. Shippers submit routes to the NRC for approval ahead of time. The NRC checks that a route conforms to U.S. Department of Transportation regulations, requiring the most direct interstate route, and avoiding large cities when a bypass or beltway is available. NRC officials drive the route ahead of time if it has not been previously approved before or used within the past few years. They will check for law enforcement and emergency response capability as well as secure facilities for emergency stops. DOT regulations also require that the shipper notify the governor of each State on the route seven days before the shipment.

Specialized trucking companies handle spent nuclear fuel shipments in the United States. These experienced, specially licensed companies haul all kinds of hazardous materials more than 50 million miles annually. Vehicles are state of the art, equipped with computers that provide an instantaneous update on the truck’s location and convey messages between driver and dispatcher through a satellite communications network. Drivers receive extensive training and must be certified.

The DOT and NRC establish emergency preparedness requirements for radioactive materials. The Federal Emergency Management Agency and the DOE provide emergency response training for state and local law enforcement officials, fire fighters, and rescue squads, covering preparedness planning and accident handling. In addition, the DOE’s Radiological Assistance teams provide expertise and equipment, including mobile laboratories, to every region of the country. Also, according to a voluntary mutual assistance agreement, utilities respond to incidents and DOE personnel from the shipper and shipping utility arrive.

I have no objection to the overall purpose of the amendment however, in having a study done on infrastructure and training. My colleagues should be aware that we already do that continuously for nuclear fuel and high-level radioactive waste.

This project also has a wide range of important discretionary funding source for the State of Michigan.

I would ask the distinguished chairwoman to give consideration to a particularly important project on our U.S.-Canadian border in Michigan. The Ambassador Bridge Gateway Project which will provide direct interstate access to the Ambassador Bridge and improve overall traffic flow to and from our U.S.-Canadian border, needs $10 million this year to keep the project on schedule. To date, there has been a total of $30.2 million in federal funds either spent or committed with a state match of $7 million. Any consideration that the distinguished chairwoman can provide is much appreciated.

Mr. LEVIN. I join the distinguished Senator from Michigan in asking the distinguished chairwoman to give this important project consideration in conference. The Ambassador Bridge in Detroit, MI is a critical project for the State’s trade infrastructure. It is one of the three busiest border crossings in North America, and more trade moves over this bridge than the country exports to Japan. It is crucial that we keep traffic moving safely and efficiently at this crossing. The Ambassador Bridge Gateway project will provide increased interstate access to the bridge, and improve overall traffic flow to and from the Ambassador Bridge. This project also has a wide range of support from the state, local government, metropolitan planning and the business community.

Ms. MURRAY. I thank the distinguished Senators from Michigan, and I will be happy to work with them in conference on this important corridor project.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mrs. MURRAY. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate move to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Madam President, is the order that we are in morning business with Senators allowed to speak for 5 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Thank you, Madam President.

SAFE TRUCKS ON AMERICAN HIGHWAYS

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Madam President, I commend Senator MURRAY and Senator SHELBY for drafting an amendment that is attempting to address the issue of safe trucks on American highways. This is an issue that has caused a lot of disagreement. I know it is a very controversial issue. I want to speak about why, because my State is most certainly affected. But I think every State is affected by whether we have safe trucks on our highways.

We do not yet have an agreement on this issue that everyone can live with, but I think we are a lot closer than anyone thinks. I ask Senators MURRAY, SHELBY, MCCAIN, GRAMM, and the administration to work together to try to make sure we come out with regulations that will assure that we have the facilities and manpower to inspect every truck coming into our country, whether it is from Mexico or from Canada.

Second, we must make sure we have foreign-owned trucks and drivers meet U.S. safety standards, while ensuring fair treatment for our trading partners. That is our responsibility and our commitment under NAFTA.

Third, I think it is very important that we commit to providing the financial resources for the inspection stations and other border infrastructure. The administration asked for about $88 million for this purpose. The Murray-Shelby committee report that is on the floor has more than $100 million to make sure we have the border inspection stations, without which we couldn’t possibly comply with NAFTA. If we have good regulations and the money to conduct the inspections, I think we can come up with language that will be acceptable to everyone and keep our commitment under NAFTA.

I voted for NAFTA. I support free trade. But there are provisions in the underlying bill that I think could keep the United States from keeping its commitment under NAFTA. I don’t think we have been able to fix this yet. I hope we will be able to work together on language that will assure that we will have real inspections, that will ensure safety on our highways, and comply with our commitments under NAFTA. I don’t think we are there yet, but I think we are working on it.

I ask everyone on the table, Senator STEVENS has been a leader on this issue. Senator McCAIN, chairman of the Commerce Committee, certainly is a leader on this issue. Senator SHELBY and Senator MURRAY as the chairman and ranking member of the Appropriations Transportation Subcommittee are leaders on this issue.

I am a member of the Appropriations Transportation Subcommittee as well as the Commerce Committee. But mostly, I am very concerned on how we are going to be on highways where there is going to be a lot of NAFTA traffic. When we are looking at 8,500 Mexican commercial trucks passing through the United States in our 10 major ports of entry, the 50 billion Mexican truck crossings on our freeways, the safety of our highways is a major issue.

In 1999, both United States and Mexican commercial motor vehicles made an estimated 4.5 million crossings on the border. Seventy percent of those were in Texas.

This debate is not merely hypothetical to Texas, nor to the other border States. The added burden of overweight and potentially unsafe trucks is a daily reality in south Texas.

The reason for low inspection statistics is the lack of space to conduct safety inspections. Currently, the only permanent inspection facilities at the United States-Mexico border are at the State facilities in Calexico and Otay Mesa, CA. At the other 25 border crossings, Federal and State inspectors have limited access to the existing U.S. Customs lots.

Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration inspectors do not have the equipment nor the space they need to do the job. These inspectors have space to inspect only one or two trucks at a time. The construction of dedicated motor carrier safety inspection facilities at or near the existing Federal border crossing would improve inspection statistics.

Working with the Department of Public Safety in Texas, we have identified funding needs of $100 million to construct safety inspection stations. So it is very important that all of us focus on this issue, and that we all look for a resolution of this issue.

I think we are very close, but we are not there yet. I hope everyone will come together either to fashion an answer right now in this bill before it goes out of this Chamber or agree that we will not do that now, that we will write something in conference, but most certainly we would not stand on the language that is in the underlying bill nor the language that is in the House underlying bill that was passed that would prohibit Mexican trucks from coming into the United States at all.

I think we can come up with language that will be acceptable to the administration and acceptable to our Mexican counterparts. But the bottom line is, we are not going to have unsafe trucks on our highways as long as I have a voice in the Senate, because we have standards. The whole concept of NAFTA was that we would have parity, parity of our truck standards with the truck standards of Canada and Mexico. That means there would be a level playing field in trucking company competition, so that there would not be an unfair advantage to another country and, secondly, so that there would be safety on all of our highways, to make sure we are not in any way discriminating against any country nor are we lowering the standards that we have in our country.

So I intend to be very active in this debate. I intend to be very active in bringing the groups together to try to come to that compromise. My bottom line is only one; and that is that there is parity, safety, and a level playing field for the truckers of our country and the countries in NAFTA with whom we trade.

ILSA EXTENSION ACT

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the CBO cost estimate with respect to S. 1218, a bill to extend the authorities of the Iran and Libya Sanctions Act, be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Hon. Paul S. Sarbanes,
Chairman, Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for the ILSA Extension Act of 2001. If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them.

The CBO staff contacts are Joseph C.
MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY RESEARCH

Mr. BURNS. Madam President, S. 805, introduced on May 1, is a vital step toward the day when advanced research will find ways to halt, and even cure, life-threatening muscular dystrophy.

Muscular dystrophy is a genetic disorder, actually a number of separate disorders, that are characterized by weakening and eventual wasting of muscles. Muscular dystrophy may affect up to a quarter of a million Americans of all ages are affected by these disorders. One form, Duchenne, strikes young boys and usually takes their lives before they reach their twenties. Other forms that affect adults are also severely debilitating and can be devastating to the victims and their families.

Since 1966, entertainer Jerry Lewis has hosted the annual Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Telethon, calling the Nation's attention to the muscular dystrophy crisis and helping fund research for individuals and families affected by these diseases. Jerry Lewis is the National Chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Association which, through its Telethon and year-round fund raising activities, has raised hundreds of millions of dollars for programs of direct patient services, research and summer camp. The MDA program supports a nationwide network of 230 clinics, which are affiliated with hospitals and universities, sends more than 4,000 youngsters it serves to MDA summer camps, and helps pay for wheelchairs, braces, and various therapies for people with muscular dystrophy.

In addition to providing these direct patient and family services, MDA expends about $30 million per year to support scientific research. Over the past half century, MDA has funded research that was vital in developing the protocols that resulted in groundbreaking discoveries in genetic mapping. This extraordinary organization has played a key role in identifying the gene defects that cause virtually all of the forms of muscular dystrophy. The Muscular Dystrophy Association is to be commended for its work and can be justified of the very positive role it has in assisting those affected by neuromuscular disease. In fact, the implications of their research extend to all of the estimated 5,000 genetic-based diseases affecting all of mankind. With all of the research insights and opportunities made available by this organization, it is time for us to help.

The next critical phase in muscular dystrophy research is to apply these basic scientific discoveries to the development of effective therapies. That is where S. 805 would be helpful. Authorizing such a vigorous Federal effort is the purpose of S. 805. The bill calls upon NIH and the Centers for Disease Control to establish Centers of Excellence in which intensified clinical research can be conducted which will speed the discovery of treatments and cures for the various forms of muscular dystrophy.

S. 805 provides the Director of the NIH and the Directors of the several institutes within NIH that conduct muscular dystrophy research with the authority and responsibility to concentrate and intensify that research effort. The bill also authorizes the funds necessary to conduct preclinical trials. In short, it gives NIH the organization and the mandate to exploit recent advances in gene therapy. The goal is the swiftest possible rescue for children and adults whose lives will otherwise be lost or badly damaged by muscular dystrophy.

Mr. President, the Congress has responded generously and often to the demands for research funding aimed at other diseases that shorten or impair the lives of Americans. It is time to add muscular dystrophy to the list of those diseases. I commend my colleagues for introducing S. 805, and I regret that I am just now getting the opportunity to deliver this statement, two weeks after my name was added to this important legislation as a cosponsor.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Madam President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY in March of this year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred October 23, 1994 in Buena Park, California. Two men parked near a gay bar were slashed with broken bottles and beaten by a group of men who shouted anti-gay epithets and stole the victims' car.

I believe that government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation, we can change hearts and minds as well.

THE TRADE ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE FOR WORKERS, FARMERS, COMMUNITIES, AND FIRMS ACT OF 2001

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Madam President, I rise today to lend my full support to the Trade Adjustment Assistance for Workers, Farmers, Communities, and Firms Act of 2001, which I introduced today along with Senators BINGAMAN, BAUCUS, and DASCHLE. I particularly want to congratulate Senator BINGAMAN on all the hard work and dedication that he has shown on this issue over the past several months in crafting this piece of legislation, which is so critical to American workers and their families.

Improving and expanding TAA is a priority for us, and we hope it will become a priority for Congress and for the President as well. This bill is not just a reauthorization but an improvement to our current TAA program—and not a moment too soon. Earlier this week, the Chairman of the Federal Reserve told us that economic outlook remains troubling. We know that means there will be more and more workers and families who will need to turn to TAA for help to rebuild their futures.

In addition to reauthorizing TAA for an additional five years, this bill makes substantial improvements to the TAA program as a whole. The bill extends possible TAA benefits for an additional 26 weeks, provides wage insurance for many displaced workers over 50, and expands coverage for secondary workers and workers whose jobs were lost when companies shifted their operations overseas.

Given the massive legacy cost issue facing our steel companies, I particularly applaud the action taken to ensure health care and child care benefits for workers who have lost their jobs due to imports. At my urging, the bill contains several health care provisions, including a refundable tax credit for 50 percent of COBRA benefits and a provision that links TAA beneficiaries to child care and health benefits that they are entitled to under TANF.

As we expand coverage and benefits available under TAA, however, we still need to remember what’s really important in this debate: TAA cannot substitute for a good job, and too many good jobs are being lost due to our current trade policies. That’s what we really need to focus on, although we still need TAA because there will always be workers who need it.

As Governor of West Virginia in the 1980’s and later as a U.S. Senator, I have seen firsthand the devastation that import surges have wrought on manufacturing communities. I have walked the streets of Welch, knowing that one in four people I met that day were unemployed. I have been to Weirton and Wheeling and seen the impact of the recent surge of dumped and subsidized imports on our economic landscape and the collective psyche of those communities as thousands of steelworkers, as well as workers whose jobs depend on those steel companies staying open, have been laid off. I have seen steel plants in Elkins, West Virginia, and a shoe plant in Marlinton, a glassworks in Huntington, and a shirt factory in Morgantown, close down because of foreign competition, throwing hundreds of people—many of whom had never held another job—out of work.

Many of the unemployed are in their 20’s and 30’s with young children to support. Others are in their 40’s and 50’s and have held the same job for more than 20 years. A few may never find work again. For those who do, it will be at a vastly reduced salary with fewer benefits. And as plants continue to close down, who knows if the health care and pension benefits that were guaranteed and widely expected by those workers thought they could depend on will still be there for them when they retire?

It makes me angry that we as a Nation have not done enough to help those who have been dislocated from foreign trade, through no fault of their own, particularly when our trade policies led to their unemployment. Instead, we have provided a TAA program for which many of our workers do not qualify and which provides too little assistance for workers to retrain so that they can adequately provide for their families. That is just not right.

At the same time, our foreign trade partners continue to engage in unfair and illegal trade practices that throw more and more Americans out of work. For years, the relative market shares of the top Japanese steel firms has never varied by more than 1 percent, regardless of changes in the market—such as the collapse of the automobile. Russian and East European steelworkers often do not receive wages. New uncompetitive steel capacity continues to come on line around the world, often partially funded by loans from international financial institutions that receive U.S. Government funding.

Yet our steelworkers, glassworkers, and others in the manufacturing sector of our economy are forced to compete on the same playing field with these countries, whose producers are heavily subsidized or who have benefitted from a long legacy of indirect government assistance or toleration of anti-competitive activities. Such practices have allowed foreign steel companies to stay in business that would have shut down if they were located in the United States. How are our workers supposed to compete with that, no matter how efficient they are?

It is no wonder that people in this country are beginning to wake up to our trade policies and wonder just what we are doing and what principles, if any, we are using to guide them. You should not need to have an MBA from Harvard in order to get a good job, with good wages and benefits, in this country.

If this Administration wants to negotiate more trade agreements, without dealing with the impact that trade has on our steelworkers and workers in other sectors of our economy who built this country into the economic superpower that it is today, then it will fail miserably.

This bill is a good step forward. I urge my colleagues in Congress to help us pass it and the President to sign it into law. But it is only the beginning. We simply cannot ignore the fact that with trade, a rising tide does not always lift all boats. Our laws are not the laws of nature, but rather, the laws of mankind. We cannot say that dislocation through trade is inevitable and just throw up our hands, leaving millions of American workers behind.

We have an obligation to them and to their families, to craft trade policies that will provide them with the skills which help them prepare for the future. It is an obligation that we simply cannot ignore.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Madam President, at the close of business Friday, July 20, 2001, the Federal debt stood at $5,723,280,631,657.09, five trillion, seven hundred twenty-three billion, two hundred eighty million, six hundred thirty-one thousand, six hundred fifty-seven dollars and nine cents.

One year ago, July 20, 2000, the Federal debt stood at $5,665,503,000,000, five trillion, six hundred sixty-five billion, five hundred three trillion.

Twenty-five years ago, July 20, 1976, the Federal debt stood at $619,038,000,000, six hundred nineteen billion, thirty-eight million, which reflects a debt increase of more than 10 percent, $5,104,242,631,657.09, five trillion, one hundred forty-two billion, six hundred thirty-one thousand, six hundred fifty-seven dollars and nine cents during the past 25 years.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

MINIMUM WAGE

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I ask that the following article from the Wall Street Journal, dated July 19, 2001, be printed in the RECORD.

[From the Wall Street Journal, July 19, 2001]

FALLING BEHIND—AS OFFICIALS LOST FAITH IN MINIMUM WAGE, PAT WILLIAMS LIVED IT

SHREVEPORT, LA.—Night had fallen by the time Pat Williams, hungry and bone tired, arrived home to find the little red ticket mocking the more than 10 hours of toil she had just put in.

“Oh, Lord,” she said, reaching into her mailbox, “what is this?” She swatted a mosquito, held the ticket to the light above her front stoop and took in the bad news: Reliant Energy Inc. had cut off her gas because her account was $477 overdue.

“I ain’t going to sweat it,” she muttered over and over. Clearly, though, she was wound tight, and soon began puffing on a succession of discount cigarettes.

It was early April. After Williams was dressed in the dark blue uniform that she wears at her first job, caring for the aged and infirm at a nursing home. Atop that was the gray apron she dons for her second job, cleaning offices at night. The place where she works as a nursing assistant, Harmony House, was paying her $5.55 an hour—barely above the minimum wage on which she has been there more than 10 years, is a union member and completed college courses to become certified. The cleaning job, which she took on because she couldn’t make ends meet, pays right at the federally mandated minimum: $5.15 an hour.
The incident, she says, left a void in her life. "It made me feel just like a prisoner," she said. "I just wanted welfare to be a reality," she says. "It made me feel helpless, not in control." The vice president, Richard Nixon, added that it would be "unfortunate" if the administration spent less than 1% because that would only enhance the odds that Democrats in Congress would "raise the ante." Finally, Mr. Eisenhower spoke up. "We just have to seek that place where both sides will curse us," he said. "Then we'll be right.""

The law establishing the federal minimum wage, the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, had called for just such a balancing act. It sought to protect workers from the "bearing and caring for a child, Ms. Williams would have been eligible for a tax credit of only $27—a point at which, she says, she'd likely be on the streets. The daughter claims her other two children for tax purposes. Through the 1980s, Ms. Williams's wages were so low that she received welfare payments of $260 a month—to supplement her income. But she ceased collecting these handouts 12 years ago, partly, she says, because it was a hassle to reapply every year. She didn't like the indignity. "I just wanted welfare to be a stepping stone," she says. "It made me feel terrible. Last summer, Ms. Williams also had to stop receiving food stamps, which in the past had been worth up to $235 a month, depending on how many of her children were living with her and other factors. The local housing authority still picks up nearly two-thirds of her monthly $525 in rent, and she stops reapplying for food stamps, which in the past had been worth up to $324 a month, partly because of the pressure at an indigent clinic.

Inside her modestly kept house—decorated mostly with bric-a-brac from Good Will and the Dollar Store and pictures cut out of magazines hung on the walls—Ms. Williams ticked off the expenses that she was juggling at the moment. Besides the gas bill, a notice recently arrived reminding her that she was late in paying $142.14 to the electric company. She owed $55.28 to the phone company, $23.47 on the student loan she took out years ago for her nursing education, $123.95 for her burglary alarm—a must, she says, in her crime-infested neighborhood.

Violence touched her just last year. Ms. Williams says her 17-year-old son, who is on probation, tried to stab her at her boyfriend's house. Ms. Williams shot him with her .25-caliber pistol. It staggered into traffic and was run over and died. The authorities ruled the shooting "justifiable," and Ms. Williams was never charged.

The incident, she says, left a void in her life. "It made me feel just like a prisoner," she said. "I just wanted welfare to be a reality," she says. "It made me feel helpless, not in control." The vice president, Richard Nixon, added that it would be "unfortunate" if the administration spent less than 1% because that would only enhance the odds that Democrats in Congress would "raise the ante." Finally, Mr. Eisenhower spoke up. "We just have to seek that place where both sides will curse us," he said. "Then we'll be right."

Worse yet, Northern California’s Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis.) had just smashed his record-setting 715th major-league home run.

Few in the president’s party protested the raise, which took the minimum wage to $2.30 an hour ($6.25 in 2001 terms) from $1.60 to three years. That made up for much of the inflation that had eaten away at it since the last increase in ’68. The president himself had voted for it, but that, while not go...

She landed a job at the Hollywood Tourist Court, a hotel chain where she cleaned up and checked in patrons, some of them acquaintances of hers apparently sneaking off for illicit trysts. She received only minimum wage — then $2.90 an hour — but “it felt good,” she says, to be bringing in her own money. “I was proud.”

What’s more, Ms. Williams found that even on her minimum wage, equivalent to $6.34 an hour in today’s dollars — she was able to meet her routine expenses without much of a strain. She usually had enough money left over to help her the children to have more than I did,” Ms. Williams set out to find work.

The minimum wage went up again during the latter part of 1974 by a former commissioner of labor statistics named Ewan Clague crossed President Nixon’s desk. It indicated that the minimum wage was exacerbating one of the most vexing problems confronting the nation at the time: a skyrocketing youth unemployment rate. Mr. Proxmire had already said in a letter to the president that, while not going so far as I wished in protecting... work opportunities for youth,” “the fight had dragged on long enough. “...shouldn’t take much of a cynic to dismiss President Nixon’s comments as politically motivated, especially given that he signed the bill as the Watergate scandal began to escalate. Surely, he no longer had the muscle to sustain another veto. But several Nixon advisers insist that to read this way was a mistake.

This wasn’t a political sop to anybody,” says Ken Cole, then Mr. Nixon’s point man on domestic-policy issues. “He believed in what he was doing.”

Secondly, a wholly new line of reasoning, to be sure. But after President Reagan was elected, "the tone changed," says Sen. Edward Kennedy, the Massachusetts Democrat who is chairman of a subcommittee on minimum wage. "It was much more ideological."

For the first time ever, a president and his top aides set out to see the minimum wage "as an effective dead letter."

The administration's antipathy was fueled by scholarship similar to that which Mr. Nixon had zeroed in on earlier: The minimum wage has been raised twice: with great fanfare similar to that which Mr. Reagan saw almost any meddling in the market as needed to help them, not saddle them "t" of his or her skills," says John Cogan, one of the SEIU's main stakes for their cause. Ms. Freeman has seen people to devise a slogan that they could use to rally the public to their cause. Ms. Freeman's entry: "Take Care of the People Who Take Care of Yours."

Several of the women said they think from time to time about finding another job. The Shreveport economy has been strong lately, and most "anybody that's got some get-up-and-go should be able to, I think, that pays satisfactorily, says Mayor Keith Highower. The median pay for tele marketers in the area is $5.50 an hour. Housekeepers at the can make up to $7. But for someone like Ms. Williams, who burns up so much energy just trying to make it day to day, job hunting seems hungrily daunting."

Besides, she and the others say that, save for their wages, they feel good about what they do. The nursing home residents "are like my family," she says. "I keep photographs of her patients who've passed on."

In the mid-90s, Ms. Williams left Harmony House for a hospital job that paid a bit more. But she came back 22 years later because she didn't like the atmosphere at the new place nearly as much.

The idea of the living-wage edifice that's antiseptic-clean inside, officials say they'd love to pay their workers more, but the Medicaid situation has made it impossible. "We've really been in a pinch," says James Shelton, a supervisor at Central Management, which pays its staff more than it was all through the '60s and '70s, a backlash has developed around the nation. Ten states and the District of Columbia now have their own minimum wages that are higher than the federal government's. And in a host of cities, so-called living-wage campaigns have been undertaken to raise work er's salary soared to $402,943 that year—far more than ever before—were NFIB members. On Capitol Hill, entrepreneurs were treated increasingly as "heroic figures," says Motley. "The government seemed to get behind them with mandates and regulations."

As the NFIB and other minimum-wage advocates such as the National Restaurant Association ascended, the policy's more "sane-guardian gall on hard times. Following President Reagan's firing of striking air-traffic controllers in 1981, labor unions went on the defensive and were unable to fight as tena ciously as they had in the past for a higher minimum wage. All the while, the portion of the working force that's unionized declined steadily, edging under 20%.

When Mr. Reagan took office in 1981, the minimum wage was at $3.35 an hour. When he left eight years later, it was still at that level. In real terms, its value had sunk almost 27%, to $4.46 in today's dollars.

Back in Shreveport, Pat Williams grappled with what the minimum wage job, 22 years ago.

Since Ronald Reagan left office, the minimum wage has been raised twice: with great fanfare and by President Clinton in 1996. Both followed drawn-out battles defined by the kind of par tisan sniping that has come with the changed complexion of Congress. Many of the seats once held by Southern Democrats have been seized by Republicans, and the GOP majority's sup port the minimum wage has shriveled in the conservative tide.

One new twist, added to the debate in recent rounds, is that tax breaks for small businesses are now routinely linked to any minimum-wage bill. The only way low-wage workers get help is if lawmakers do, too. In earlier years, that would have been laughed out of the room by both sides," says Ken Young, a longtime AFL-CIO official. No one expected that thought to come up "when you were talking about the people at the very bottom end of the economic ladder."

"If you really listen to the blues," she says, "you find out it's nothing but the truth."

A half dozen Harmony House workers sat on Ms. Williams's threadbare couches one evening last April, sipping beer and peering through a cigarette haze, as union organizer Zack Nauth offered up something rare in their lives: a word of hope.

"You find out it's nothing but the truth."

The women were skeptical that any of it would come to pass, and spent most of the night venting. One worker, Shirley Vance, was particularly testy and questioned why they even have a union at Harmo way House, results," she said, griping about her biweekly dues of $5.60, by the late '80s they ate strictly chicken—so much of it that her kids would break out in songs around the dinner table:

Chicken fly high

Chicken fly low

Chicken fly Mama's way

Don't fly no mo

"Chicken fly Mamma's way"

Don't fly no mo

*When the chicken money ran out, the chil dren resorted to the minimum wage rice.

The worst, though, was the holidays. Ms. Williams just sat on her bed and cried. Event ually, she came out of her room and turned on the stereo. She doesn't remember exactly what she played that December afternoon, but she's sure it was her favorite music: the blues.

"If you really listen to the blues," she says, "you find out it's nothing but the truth."

"We were still on two meals a day when I first got here," said Ms. Williams. "One new twist, added to the debate in recent rounds, is that tax breaks for small businesses are now routinely linked to any minimum-wage bill. The only way low-wage workers get help is if lawmakers do, too. In earlier years, that would have been laughed out of the room by both sides," says Ken Young, a longtime AFL-CIO official.
The Faces of Low-Wage Work

Name: Gussie Cannedy. Age: 76. Home: Philadelphia. Occupation: Answers phones at the American Red Cross. Hourly wage: $5.15. Ms. Cannedy, who works about 18 hours a week, says she is doing okay, thanks to her husband’s $7.50-an-hour job as a liquor-store salesman. Still, she has been actively campaigning for a “living wage” in her area, after seeing so many colleagues struggling to stay afloat.

Name: Trae Sweeten. Age: 18. Home: Newport, Tenn. Occupation: Does everything from making burgers to cleaning the parking lot at a Wendy’s restaurant. Hourly Wage: $5.60. Trae, who lives with his father and will attend community college, says his wage is sufficient for “putting money in my pocket.” Besides, he adds, his stint at Wendy’s has been “a nice taste of the working world.”

Name: Celia Gonzalez. Age: 18. Home: San Antonio. Occupation: Sews baseball caps and tennis visors at a hat factory. Hourly Wage: $6. Ms. Gonzalez, a single mom, counts on her 21-year-old son, who earns $5.15 an hour at a tortilla factory, to help with the family finances. “Food is now very expensive,” says Ms. Gonzalez, who moved to the U.S. from Mexico about 15 years ago. She stays at home on weekends because going out anywhere would burn the fuel she needs to get herself and her son to work.

CONGRATULATING JUDGE RENA MARIE VAN TINE

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, I rise to recognize and congratulate Rena Marie Van Tine of Chicago on her recent appointment as an Associate Judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County. Ill. When she was sworn in on June 12, 2001, Ms. Van Tine became not only the first judge in Illinois of South Asian heritage, but the first female Indian American judge in the Nation.

With a fast-growing community of Asian Americans in Cook County, it is important that the Judiciary reflects the diversity of the people it serves. I applaud Chief Judge Donald P. O’Connell and other Circuit Judges of Cook County for electing this outstanding lawyer to join them on the bench.

Judge Van Tine is a highly experienced attorney with a distinguished record of service to the people of Illinois. She most recently served as Special Counsel to Illinois State Comptroller Daniel W. Hynes, in a position where she oversaw the regulation of approximately one billion dollars in Illinois consumer trust funds entrusted pursuant to the laws governing the cemetery industry.

Prior to joining the Comptroller’s Office, Judge Van Tine was a Cook County Assistant State’s Attorney for 12 years. In this capacity she tried hundreds of cases, both in the Criminal Division where she prosecuted violent offenders, as well as in the Civil Division where she saved taxpayers millions of dollars in lawsuits.

In addition to her public service positions, Judge Van Tine has been active with voluntary bar activities. A past president of the Asian American Bar Association and a former executive committee member of the Alliance of Bar Associations for Judicial Screening, she is currently on the board of the Women’s Bar Association of Illinois, and is a founding member of the Chicago chapter of the Indian-American Bar Association.

Her contributions to the legal profession are extensive. Judge Van Tine was an adjunct professor for Trial Advocacy at the Chicago-Kent College of Law, and has served as a mock judge for local and national moot court competitions. She has written a book chapter in the American Bar Association’s publication of Women’s Bar Association of Illinois. She is a founding member of the Midwest chapter of the Asian American Bar Association.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.
REPORT ON THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO TERRORISTS WHO THREATEN TO DISRUPT THE MIDDLE EAST PEACE PROCESS—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 36

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

To the Congress of the United States

As required by section 401(c) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C. 1641(c), and section 20(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, 50 U.S.C. 1703(c), I transmit hereewith a 6-month periodic report on the national emergency with respect to terrorists who threaten to disrupt the Middle East peace process that was declared in Executive Order 12947 of January 23, 1995.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED

Under the authority of the order of the Senate of January 3, 2001, the Secretary of the Senate, on July 20, 2001, during the recess of the Senate, received a message from the House of Representatives announcing that the Speaker has signed the following enrolled bill:

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate, and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-139. A resolution adopted by the National Black Chamber of Commerce, Inc. relative to energy; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

POM-140. A resolution adopted by the City Council of Berea, Ohio relative to the environment and natural resources; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

POM-141. A petition presented by the Council on Administrative Rights entitled “Reaffirm America”; to the Committee on Finance.

POM-142. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of the Legislature of the State of New Hampshire relative to authorizing the House of Representatives to fund up to 40 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States; and

Whereas, the federal government currently funds, on average, less than 14 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States; and

Whereas, local school districts and state government end up bearing the largest share of the costs of educational services; and

Whereas, the federal government’s failure to adequately fulfill its responsibility to special needs children undermines public support for special education and creates hardship for disabled children and their families; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring,

That the New Hampshire general court urges the President and the Congress, prior to spending any surplus in the federal budget, to fund 40 percent of the average per pupil expenditure in public elementary and secondary schools in the United States as promised under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act to ensure that all children, regardless of disability, receive a quality education and are treated with the dignity and respect they deserve; and

That copies of this resolution be forwarded by the house clerk to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, and the members of the New Hampshire congressional delegation.

POM-143. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of the Legislature of the State of New Hampshire relative to authorizing the greater state regulation of gas pipelines carrying other hazardous substances; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 12

Whereas, ensuring the safety of citizens residing near pipelines carrying hazardous substances and protecting the surrounding environment from the effects of pipeline spills are vital state and local responsibilities, yet the federal government is responsible for the oversight of interstate pipelines; and

Whereas, several significant pipeline spills have occurred in other parts of the nation in recent years, including a major petroleum spill in Bellingham, Washington, resulting in a fire which killed three people and destroyed much of a city park; and

Whereas, Washington governor Gary Locke thereafter formed a study team of local and state fuel accident response agencies, which in the course of numerous meetings, briefings, and public hearings learned that current federal oversight of pipeline safety is inadequate in many respects; and

Whereas, the state of Washington is providing an example of how oversight of pipeline safety can be effectively accomplished at the state level by developing a strong, coordinated program of state and local oversight of pipeline safety that will be well integrated with concurrent federal oversight; and

Whereas, state programs cannot be fully implemented without action by the Congress and the President to modify existing statutes and provide necessary administrative and budgetary support; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring:

That Congress enact legislation amending the federal Pipeline Safety Act (49 U.S.C. Section 60101, et seq.) to allow states to adopt and enforce standards stricter than federal laws and regulations, and that such standard not interfere with interstate commerce; and

That such act be further amended to allow states at their option to seek authority to monitor and enforce federal pipeline safety standards; and

That an interim measure pending congressional consideration, or other enacting statutes and provide necessary administrative support, be the President direct the federal Office of Pipeline Safety to grant authority to states that qualify to enforce federal standards; and

That Congress increase funding to assist states in responding to pipeline accident emergencies, to implement pipeline safety measures, to support states with delegated authority to enforce federal standards, and to the Office of Pipeline Safety for additional research and development of technologies for testing, leak detection, and oversight operations; and

That the clerk of the New Hampshire house of representatives forward copies of this resolution to the President of the United States, the Secretary of the United States Department of Transportation, the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and to the members of the New Hampshire congressional delegation.

POM-144. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of the Legislature of the State of New Hampshire relative to allowing military retirees to receive service-connected disability compensation benefits without requiring them to waive an equal amount of retirement pay; to the Committee on Armed Services.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 1

Whereas, American servicemen and women have dedicated their careers to protecting the rights we all enjoy; and

Whereas, military personnel endure hardships, the threat of death and disability, and long separation from their families in service to their country; and

Whereas, career military personnel accrue retirement pay based on longevity of service and rank at retirement; and

Whereas, service-connected disability pay serves a different purpose from longevity retirement pay and is intended to compensate military personnel for pain, suffering, disfigurement, and impaired earning ability due to disability; and

Whereas, under a 19th century law that is still in effect, military retirees are denied concurrent receipt of full retirement pay and service-connected disability compensation benefits. They must choose receipt of one or the other or waive an amount of retirement pay equal to the amount of disability compensation; and

Whereas, no other federal employees face a reduction in civil service retirement benefits if they also receive compensation for a service-connected disability; and

Whereas, federal legislation has been introduced to amend Title 38 of the U.S. Code to provide military retirees like other federal retirees and permit them to receive service-connected disability compensation without requiring a concurrent deduction from retirement pay; to the President of the United States.

Whereas, it is fundamentally unfair to require military veterans to essentially fund their own disability compensation by offsetting it against retirement benefits earned in service to their country; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring:

That the general court of New Hampshire hereby urges the United States Congress to enact legislation to allow disabled, military retirees to receive service-connected disability compensation benefits without requiring them to waive an equal amount of retirement pay; and
That copies of this resolution shall be sent by the house clerk to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the Senate, the clerk of the United States Senate, the chairpersons of committees of the United States Congress having jurisdiction over Veterans Affairs, the Secretary of Defense, and each member of the New Hampshire congressional delegation.

POM-145. A concurrent resolution adopted by the House of the Legislature of the State of New Hampshire relative to supporting the electoral college; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION 10
Whereas, the President of the United States has been elected by the electoral college since the adoption of the Constitution; and
Whereas, the electoral college promotes modern political processes by encouraging the consideration of varying perspectives and discouraging the exclusion of minorities of all types, including geographic and political minorities; and
Whereas, the electoral college preserves and recognizes the importance of states as states; and
Whereas, the electoral college promotes the separation of powers, without which a federal system of government cannot successfully function; and
Whereas, the constitutional concepts of the electoral college, the bicameral legislature, and the nonselective judiciary serve to articulate the superiority of fundamental rights over the demos; and
Whereas, the abolition of the electoral college necessarily entails the abandonment of a constitutionally-enshrined and historically-tested system in favor of an uncertain alternative requiring federal control of the electoral process; now, therefore, be it
Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate, and each member of the New Hampshire congressional delegation.

POM-146. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of New Hampshire relative to expanding eligibility for membership in the American Legion; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION 1
Whereas, membership in the American Legion is restricted to veterans who served during certain periods set by Congress of wartime service; and
Whereas, membership in the American Legion is declining; and
Whereas, many otherwise qualified veterans are prevented from joining the American Legion due to the restrictions on dates of service; now, therefore, be it
Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the General Court convened:
That the general court of the state of New Hampshire hereby urges Congress to expand membership in the American Legion to include all veterans with records of honorable, active duty service in the United States Armed Forces, regardless of dates of service; and
That copies of this resolution shall be forwarded by the house clerk to the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the Senate, the United States Senate and to each member of the New Hampshire congressional delegation.

POM-147. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana relative to insurance coverage for loss, damage, or diminution in value to property caused by drought; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION No. 140
Whereas, drought is a complex physical and social phenomenon of widespread significance; and
Whereas, drought damage is unforeseeable and not immediately identifiable; and
Whereas, the ongoing drought in some parts of the country has an adverse impact on the economy; and
Whereas, millions of homeowners are not able to recognize damages to property caused by varied climatic conditions, lack of precipitation for extended periods of time being just one example; and
Whereas, many homeowner insurers do not recognize structural damage caused by foundation shifts due to adjustments in subsurface water levels as covered under their respective policy provisions or within the policy definition as an "Act of God"; and
Whereas, many insurers will not recognize damages to property caused by varied climatic conditions, lack of precipitation for extended periods of time being just one example; and
Whereas, a productive and expanding charter industry would be of great benefit to the United States and the United States Congress to express its desire to the National Marine Fisheries Service to implement a moratorium on the charter boat moratorium in the Gulf of Mexico not be implemented. Be it further Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to each member of the Louisiana Congressional delegation and to the pre-eminent officers of the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate.

POM-149. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana relative to the Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas lease sales in the Gulf of Mexico; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 76
Whereas, it has been almost four years since the environmental impact statement was prepared for the Oil and Gas Lease Sales 169, 172, 175, 178, and 182 in the Gulf of Mexico; and
Whereas, as a result of public testimony in response to that environmental impact statement, there was recognition of the significance of catastrophic events relative to the infrastructure in offshore activity focal points such as Port Fourchon and LA Highway 1 through the parish of Lafourche; and
Whereas, there is an abundance of 45 deep water rigs working in the Gulf of Mexico being serviced through Port Fourchon, as are many of the rigs located on the Outer Continental Shelf, with the accompanying increase in land traffic and inland waterway traffic, all primarily through the parish of Lafourche; and
Whereas, efforts have so far failed to develop plans to mitigate these present and well-documented impacts while efforts to increase the number of leases in the Gulf of Mexico continue without an effort to provide mitigation for current or increased impacts. Therefore, be it
Resolved, That the Senate of the Legislature of Louisiana does hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to direct the Minerals Management Service of the United States Department of the Interior to develop a plan for impact mitigation relative to the Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas lease sales in the Gulf of Mexico. Be it further Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the secretary of the United States Senate, the clerk of the United States House of Representatives, to each member of the Senate and House of Representatives of the General Court convened, and to the director of the Minerals Management Service.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
July 23, 2001

POM-150. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the State of Louisiana relative to repealing mandatory minimum sentences; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 75

Whereas, the increasing cost of incarceration at all levels is placing an increased fiscal burden on state and local governments; and

Whereas, studies continue to indicate that incarceration is not the answer to the cure-all for crime and its consequences in the nation; and

Whereas, alternatives to incarceration, such as probation programs, drug courts, and restorative justice, are proving to be more effective in rehabilitation of offenders as well as in lowering incidents of recidivism; and

Whereas, only through rehabilitation, educational opportunities, and re-entry and acceptance into the community can an offender make the transition from societal dropout to community contributor; and

Whereas, each offense and each offender’s potential must be judged individually by the court system to determine, within statutory guidelines, the consequence which will be most beneficial to society; and

Whereas, realizing the expense and the limitations placed on sentencing options by minimum mandatory sentencing, the state of Louisiana has removed minimum mandatory sentences in the state through passage of Senate Bill 239 during the 2001 Regular Session; and

Whereas, the repeal of mandatory minimum sentencing on a national level is necessary to fully address the issue. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the Legislature of the State of Louisiana hereby memorializes the Congress of the United States to address the problem of sexual trafficking and to support the bipartisan federal initiatives to prosecute traffickers and assist victimized women and girls. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this Resolution shall be transmitted to the secretary of the United States House of Representatives and to each member of the Louisiana delegation to the United States Congress.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

At the request of Mr. DURBIN, the names of the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN) and the Senator from Louisiana (Ms. LANDRIEU) were added as co-sponsors of S. 1204, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide adequate coverage for immunosuppressive drugs furnished to beneficiaries under the medicare program that have received an organ transplant.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 1219. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to include swine and bovine waste nutrients as a renewable energy resource for the renewable electricity production credit, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, for years I have worked to decrease our reliance on foreign sources of energy and accelerate and diversify domestic energy production. I believe public policy ought to promote renewable domestic production that burns clean energy. For this reason, I will be introducing the Providing Opportunities With Efficient Renewables, or POWER Act, today which cultivates another home-grown resource: swine and bovine waste nutrients.

Section 45 of the Internal Revenue Code provides a production tax credit for electricity production from renewable sources. Currently, the production tax credit is available for wind, closed-loop biomass, and poultry waste. The
The benefits of using an anaerobic digester do not end at electricity production. Anaerobic technology can capture, and sometimes nearly eliminate offensive odors from the animal waste. In addition, the process of anaerobic digestion results in a higher quality fertilizer. The dairy farm I referenced earlier estimates that the fertilizing value of the animal waste is increased by 50 percent. Additional environmental benefits include mitigating animal waste’s contribution to air, surface, and groundwater pollution.

With all the problems that this type of opportunity remedies, I’m sure there will be a number of folks wondering why we haven’t tried this before. The reason is, even if we had provided swine and bovine producers with tax incentives for renewable energy, they probably wouldn’t have had access to the capital necessary for infrastructure development.

In fact, there was a segment on National Public Radio last week addressing the topic of anaerobic digester energy production. A professor from Cal State University who is an expert on anaerobic digesters was interviewed. The professor explained that the main reason farmers have not pursued this type of opportunity is cost.

For the record, in addition to the tax credit opportunity I’m providing under section 45, I’m also going to guarantee within the POWER Act that funds be made available under the Environmental Quality Incentives Program for the development of anaerobic digesters.

Currently, the Environmental Quality Incentives Program provides funding for technical, educational, and financial assistance to farmers and ranchers for soil, water, and related natural resource concerns on their land. A component of the program allows for improvements to farm manure management systems. The POWER Act will guarantee that payments, up to two years worth of funding which currently amount to $100,000, would be made available to producers for “cost sharing” opportunities related to anaerobic digester implementation.

Using swine and bovine waste nutrient as an energy source can cultivate profitability while improving environmental quality. Maximizing farm resources in such a manner may prove essential to remain competitive and environmentally sustainable in today’s livestock market.

In addition, more widespread use of this technology will create jobs related to the design, operation, and manufacture of energy recovery systems. The development of renewable energy opportunities will help us diminish our foreign energy dependence while promoting “green energy” production. This tax/farm bill proposal is real “win-win” situation for America and for our livestock producers.

Using swine and bovine waste nutrient is a perfect example of how the agriculture and energy industries can come together to develop an environmentally friendly renewable resource. My legislation will foster increased investment and development in waste to energy technology thereby improving farmer profitability, environmental quality, and energy productivity and reliability.

Why should we promote swine and bovine waste nutrient as an energy source? Consider the recent electricity shortage in California, the sky-high prices at the pump throughout last year and the soaring cost of home heating fuel and natural gas this winter. We have an obligation to consumers across the country to accelerate the nation’s production of homegrown, clean-burning, renewable sources of energy.

The POWER Act is good for agriculture, good for the environment, good for energy consumers, and promotes a good, make that great, renewable resource that will reduce our energy dependence on foreign fuels. It is my hope that all of my colleagues join me in advancing this important piece of legislation.

By Mr. BREAUX (for himself, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. SPECTER, and Mr. DURBIN):

S. 1220. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to establish a grant program for the rehabilitation, preservation or improvement of railroad track; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, today my colleague Senator SMITH of Oregon and I have introduced the Railroad Track Modernization Act. As chairman and ranking member of the Surface Transportation and Merchant Marine Infrastructure Finance Subcommittee, the needs of the Nation’s small railroads have been brought to our attention by railroad experts during hearings concerning the state of the railroad industry. Our colleagues Senators SCHUMER, DURBIN, and SPECTER join us in introducing this legislation.

Small short line railroads have saved tens of thousands of miles of light density rail line from abandonment. In 1980, there were 220 short line railroads in the U.S. Today there are over 500 short line railroads, due in part to the mergers and streamlining of Class I operations which encouraged the larger companies to sell off their little-used or abandoned branch lines. Short line and regional railroads are an important and growing component of the railroad industry. Today they operate and maintain 20 percent of the American railroad industry’s route mileage and account for 9 percent of the rail industry’s freight revenue and 11 percent of railroad employment.

These line railroads employ approximately 15,000 individuals, serve thousands of local and rural shippers and are often the only connection these shippers have to the national rail network. To survive, this infrastructure needs to be upgraded in order to move the tonnage of commerce, good for the environment, good for energy consumers, and promote a good, make that great, renewable resource that will reduce our energy dependence on foreign fuels. It is my hope that all of my colleagues join me to advance this important piece of legislation.

Today, two factors have combined to bring this situation to a head. First, the advent of the heavier 286,000-pound cars that are becoming the standard of the Class I industry puts a greater premium on speed and precisely scheduled operations. The short line railroads must meet these higher standards or be cut off from the national system.

This legislation does not create a long term program to fix this problem, but instead it creates a fix for this problem. While these small railroads have enough traffic to operate profitably on an ongoing basis, they do not earn enough to make the large capital investment required by the advent of the 286,000-pound cars or the need to signal area to increase speed. This legislation would authorize a program which could provide grants to the nation’s smaller railroads to help them make the improvements needed to stay in business and continue to serve small shippers.

This legislation is of vital importance to the economy of Louisiana and the Nation. Louisiana is home to ten small freight railroads that maintain rail service on over 500 miles of track. Without these small railroads, dozens of Louisiana communities and hundreds of employees would be cut off from our national rail network.

In addition, small railroads are vital to the safety of our highways. Every loaded rail car keeps as many as four trucks off our nation’s roads. At a time when we face record congestion and unprecedented delays we can ill afford to lose track caused by the failure of the small freight railroad system. Millions of additional trucks per year is not only bad for our interstate highways, but also for the state rural roads in Louisiana. These roads will bear the brunt of damage caused by the trucks, while dramatically increasing our highway costs.

The Timber Rock Railroad, TIBBR, serves Beauregard Parish and handles 15,000 carloads of freight per year, of which iron ore and coal are the major commodities. Without the existence of TIBBR, many major employers in western Louisiana such as Boise Cascade, Louisiana Pacific and Energy Gulf States would be without any rail service at all. The New Orleans and Gulf Coast Railway runs for 24 miles from Gouldsboro Yard in New Orleans through Orleans, Jefferson, and Plaquemine Parishes to Myrtle Grove. New Orleans and Gulf Coast, NOGC, serves shippers such as Chevron Chemical’s Oak Point Plant, Harvest States’ Myrtle Grove Grain Export Terminal, and TOSCO Petroleum’s refinery at Allicon. Rail is the safest mode of transportation for hazardous materials, and by transporting hazardous materials by rail NOGC keeps hundreds of truckloads of dangerous cargoes off of Highway 23 and the streets of New Orleans. The Louisiana & Delta Railroad, L&D, is headquartered in New Iberia, LA and operates 114 miles of track carrying 12,000 carloads of coal, sugar, molasses, pipe, rice and paper products. The railroad serves dozens of customers in Lafayette, St. Martin, Vermilion, Iberia, St. Mary, Assumption, and Lafourche Parishes. In order to upgrade the infrastructure of Louisiana’s short lines and those around the nation who provide the same kind of local service as the TIER, NOGC, and L&D, the Railroad Track Modernization Act should be passed.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on this legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the colleagues on this legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

SEC. 1220. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

CHAPTER 223—CAPITAL GRANTS FOR RAILROAD TRACK

Sec. 22301. Capital grants for railroad track.

(a) Establishment.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of Transportation shall establish a program of capital grants for rehabilitation, preservation, or improvement of railroad track (including bridges and related track structures) of class II and class III railroads. Such grants shall be for rehabilitating, preserving, or improving railroad track, preserving track, and efficiently including grants for rehabilitations, preserving track, and efficiently. The maximum Federal share for carrying out a project under this section shall be 50 percent of the project cost. The non-Federal share may be provided by any non-Federal source in cash, equipment, or supplies. Other in-kind contributions may be approved by the Secretary on a case by case basis consistent with this chapter.

(2) PROJECT ELIGIBILITY.—For a project to be eligible for assistance under this section the track must have been operated or owned by a class II or class III railroad on the date of the enactment of the Railroad Track Modernization Act of 2001.

(3) USE OF FUNDS.—Grants provided under this section shall be used to implement track capital projects as soon as possible. In no event shall grant funds be contractually obligating for a project later than the end of the third Federal fiscal year following the year in which the grant was awarded. Any funds not obligated by the end of such fiscal year shall be returned to the Secretary for reallocation.

(4) ADDITIONAL PURPOSE.—In addition to making grants for projects as provided in subsection (a), the Secretary may also make grants to supplement direct loans or loan guarantees made under title V of the Railroad Rehabilitation and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (45 U.S.C. 822(d)), for projects described in the last sentence of section 502(d) of such title. Grants made under this subsection may be used in whole or in part, for paying interest, or providing for a holiday on principal payments.

(5) EMPLOYEE PROTECTION.—The Secretary may, in the awarding of any grant made under this section that the recipient railroad provide a fair arrangement at least as protective of the interests of employees who are affected by the project to be funded with the grant as the terms imposed under section 11236(a), as in effect on the date of the enactment of the Railroad Track Modernization Act of 2001.

(6) LABOR STANDARDS.—

(A) PREVAILING WAGES.—The Secretary shall ensure that laborers and mechanics employed by contractors and subcontractors in construction work financed by a grant made under this section are paid wages not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality, as determined by the Secretary of Labor under the Act of March 3, 1931 (known as the Davis-Bacon Act; 40 U.S.C. 276a et seq.). The Secretary shall make a grant under this section only after being assured that required labor standards will be maintained on construction work.

(B) WAGE RATES.—Wage rates in a collective bargaining agreement negotiated under the Voluntary Employee Benefits Act (45 U.S.C. 151 et seq.) are deemed for purposes of this subsection to comply with the Act of March 3, 1931 (known as the Davis-Bacon Act; 40 U.S.C. 276a et seq.).

(c) STUDY.—The Secretary shall conduct a study of the projects carried out with grant assistance under this section to determine the public interest benefits associated with the density of rail traffic in the States and their contribution to a multimodal transportation system. Not later than March 31, 2003, the Secretary shall report to Congress and the Governor of each of the States the Secretary considers appropriate regarding the eligibility of light density rail networks for Federal infrastructure financing.

(2) AUTHORIZE APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Transportation $350,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2002 through 2004 for carrying out this section.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The item relating to chapter 223 in the table of chapters at subtitle V of title 49, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"223. CAPITAL GRANTS FOR RAILROAD TRACK ........................................ 22301".

By Mr. SPECTER:

S. 1221. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to establish an additional basis for establishing the eligibility of veterans for insurance of necessary medical care, and for other purposes; to provide for VA housing assistance; to provide for the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I have sought recognition at this time to comment briefly on legislation that I have introduced today to address an injustice now contained in statutory formulas which define which veterans will, and will not, be allowed priority access to free Department of Veterans Affairs VA, health care. To simplify, VA currently provides access to health care under the following priority scheme: veterans who have suffered service-connected disabilities have first opportunity to enroll for VA care; then, veterans who are former prisoners of war, those who are catastrophically disabled, and those who have no where else to turn for health care because of financial constraints may enroll for VA care; and, finally, veterans who simply choose to use VA care must be able to afford care elsewhere, and, in testimony to the quality of care VA provides, many do, are invited to enroll. Currently, VA... welcomes all veterans to enroll for care, and VA generally turns away no veteran who seeks hospital or clinical care. But lower priority patients are required to make copayments for the care and the medications they receive from VA.

As I have noted, poor veterans, technically, those who are classified as being “unable to defray the expenses of necessary care,” have priority over veterans who have nonservice-connected illnesses or disabilities. In order to determine who is, in fact, “unable to defray,” VA uses a single, national “means test.” In effect, a veteran without dependents who has an annual income of less than $23,688 has priority access to VA care at no charge; a veteran with a higher annual income who does not otherwise qualify for priority status is required to make a copayment to receive the same care. In addition, that patient is placed in the pool of “eligible” patients who live in relatively low-cost areas who the veteran-patients who live in relatively low-cost areas and who are otherwise eligible as low-income veterans.

In the event of budget shortfalls ever require limiting enrollment, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1221
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. ADDITIONAL BASIS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF INABILITY TO DEFRAY EXPENSES OF NECESSARY CARE.

(a) ADDITIONAL BASIS.—Section 1722(a) of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2), by striking “or at the end;”;

(2) in paragraph (3), by striking the period at the end and inserting “;”;

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(4) the veteran (including any applicable family) is eligible for treatment as a low-income family under section 3 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437a) for the area in which the veteran resides.”

(b) APPLICABILITY.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect on January 1, 2002, and shall apply with respect to years beginning after December 31, 2001.

STATMENTS ON SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 138—NATIONAL PROSTATE CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, today prostate cancer remains the most commonly diagnosed non-skin cancer in America. According to estimates by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute, NCI, more than 198,000 American men will learn that they have the disease within the year. Nearly 32,000 American men will lose their lives to this year, making it the second most common cause of cancer death among men. Those statistics translate into devastating realities for men and families across this country. This disease will affect one in six men in the United States during his lifetime. More than 25 percent of those battling this disease are under the age of 65, prime years of productivity for families and for this Nation. The number of Americans impacted by cancer, and prostate cancer specifically, is expected to grow. If unchecked during the next decade, cancer incidence and mortality rates could increase by 25–30 percent.

Whereas 1 American man in 6 will be diagnosed with prostate cancer in his lifetime;

Whereas prostate cancer is the most commonly diagnosed non-skin cancer and the second most common cancer killer of American men;

Whereas 198,100 American men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer and 31,500 American men will die of prostate cancer in 2001, according to American Cancer Society estimates;

Whereas fully 1/4 of new cases of prostate cancer occur in men during their prime working years;

Whereas African Americans have the highest incidence and mortality rates of prostate cancer in the world;

Whereas screening by both digital rectal examination and prostate specific antigen blood test (PSA) can diagnose the disease in earlier and more treatable stages and have reduced prostate cancer mortality;

Whereas the research pipeline promises further improvements in prostate cancer prevention, early detection, and treatments; and

Whereas educating Americans, including health care providers, about prostate cancer and early detection and its role in saving men’s lives and preserving and protecting our families: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the month of September as “National Prostate Cancer Awareness Month”;

(2) declares that the Federal Government has a responsibility—

(A) to raise awareness about the importance of screening methods and treatment of prostate cancer;

(B) to increase research funding that is commensurate with the burden of the disease so that the causes of, and improved screenings, treatments, and cures for, prostate cancer may be discovered; and

(C) to continue to consider ways for improving access to, and the quality of, health care services for detecting and treating prostate cancer; and

(3) requests the President to issue a proclamation calling upon the people of the United States, interested groups, and affected persons to promote awareness of prostate cancer, to take an active role in the fight to end the devastating effects of prostate cancer on individuals, their families, and the economy and to observe the month of September with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 1032. Mr. CLELAND (for himself and Mr. HARKIN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill H.R. 2299, making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

SEC. 3. STUDY OF EAST-WEST TRANSPORTATION INFRASTRUCTURE IN THE NORTHEAST.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than January 31, 2003, the Secretary of Transportation shall:

(1) conduct a study of east-west transportation infrastructure in the northeastern United States and Canadian Provinces (referred to in this section as the “region”); and

(b) REQUIRED ELEMENTS.—The study shall:

(1) assess the sufficiency of the east-west transportation infrastructure of the region, including—

(A) highway and road connections on the 2 east-west axes from Halifax, Nova Scotia, through Montreal, Quebec, to the Buffalo, New York and St. Catherine, Ontario, area and the Detroit, Michigan, and Windsor, Ontario, area; and

(B) portions of Route 401 in Canada and Interstate Route 90 in central and western New York and connecting systems in the vicinity of Detroit, Michigan;

(2) identify potential alternatives for expanding the east-west transportation infrastructure to complement the transportation infrastructure in existence on the date of enactment of this Act (including north-south infrastructure);

(3) evaluate highway, rail, maritime, and aviation infrastructure;

(4) assess whether the transportation infrastructure in existence on the date of enactment of this Act is sufficient to fulfill the transportation needs of the region;

(5) assess the impact of the North American Free Trade Agreement on the transportation needs of the region;

(6) assess any potential long term economic, safety, and efficiency benefits of improvements to the east-west transportation infrastructure of the region; and

(7) evaluate the impact and consequences of no additional improvements to the east-west transportation infrastructure of the region or marginal improvements to the east-west transportation infrastructure of the region.

(c) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the Secretary of Transportation should invite the Government of Canada—

(1) to participate in the study required under this section; and

(2) to contribute to the cost of the study.

SA 1035. Ms. SNOWE (for herself and Ms. COLLINS) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by her to the bill H.R. 2299, making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes, which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, in accordance with 22 U.S.C. 1928a–1928d, as amended, appoints the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN) as Chairman of the Senate Delegation to the NATO Parliamentary Assembly during the 107th Congress.

The Chair, on behalf of the President pro tempore, and upon the recommendation of the majority leader, pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2761, as amended, appoints the Senator from Vermont (Mr. LEAHY) as Chairman of the Senate Delegation to the British-American Interparliamentary Group during the 107th Congress.

GEORGE WASHINGTON LETTER TO TOURO SYNAGOGUE

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of calendar No. 93, S. Con. Res. 16.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 16) expressing the sense of Congress that the George Washington letter to Touro Synagogue in Newport, Rhode Island, which is on display at the B’nai B’rith Klutznick National Jewish Museum in Washington, D.C., is one of the most significant early statements buttressing the nascent American constitutional guarantee of religious freedom.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the concurrent resolution and preamble be agreed to, and that any statements related thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 16) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The concurrent resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. Con. Res. 16
Whereas George Washington responded to a letter sent by Moses Seixas, warden of Touro Synagogue in Newport, Rhode Island, in August 1790;
Whereas, although Touro Synagogue, the oldest Jewish house of worship in the United States, and now a national historic site, was dedicated in December 1763, Jewish families had been in Newport for over 100 years before that date;
Whereas these Jews, some of whom were Marranos, came to the United States with hopes of starting a new life in this courtly land, where they could practice their religious beliefs freely and without persecution;
Whereas they were drawn to the Colony of Rhode Island and the Providence Plantations because of Governor Roger Williams’ assurances of religious liberty;
Whereas the letter from Touro Synagogue is the beginning of many congratulatory notes addressed to the new president by American Jewish congregations;
Whereas Seixas articulated the following principles of liberty in his letter: ‘‘For happily the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance; requires only that they who live under its protection, should demean themselves as good citizens, in giving it on all occasions their effectual support’’;
Whereas this was the first statement of such a principle enunciated by a leader of the new United States Government;
Whereas this principle has become the cornerstone of United States religious and ethnic tolerance as it has developed during the past two centuries;
Whereas the original letter is on display as part of the permanent collection of the B’nai B’rith Klutznick National Jewish Museum in Washington, D.C.; and
Whereas Americans of all religious faiths gather at the grave each August 23, the anniversary of the date of the letter’s delivery and at the Klutznick Museum on George Washington’s birthday to hear readings of the letter and to discuss how the letter’s message can be applied to contemporary challenges: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—
(1) the George Washington letter to Touro Synagogue in Newport, Rhode Island, in August 1790, which is on display as part of the permanent collection of the B’nai B’rith Klutznick National Jewish Museum in Washington, D.C., is one of the most significant early statements buttressing the nascent American constitutional guarantee of religious freedom; and
(2) the text of the George Washington letter should be widely circulated, serving as an important tool for teaching tolerance to children and adults alike.

NATIONAL AIRBORNE DAY
Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of calendar No. 94, S. Res. 16.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 16) designating August 16, 2001, as ‘‘National Airborne Day.’’

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution and preamble be agreed to en bloc, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Res. 16) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. Res. 16
Whereas the Parachute Test Platoon was authorized by the War Department on June 25, 1940, to experiment with the potential use of airborne troops;
Whereas the Parachute Test Platoon was composed of 48 volunteers that began training in July, 1940;
Whereas the Parachute Test Platoon performed the first official Army parachute jump on August 16, 1940;
Whereas the success of the Parachute Test Platoon led to the formation of a large and successful airborne contingent serving from World War II until the present;
Whereas the 11th, 13th, 17th, 22nd, and 101st Airborne Divisions and the numerous other regimental and battalion-sized airborne units were organized following the success of the Parachute Test Platoon;
Whereas the 503rd Parachute Battalion participated successfully and valiantly in achieving victory in World War II;
Whereas the airborne achievements during World War II provided the basis for continuing the development of a diversified force of parachute and assault troops;
Whereas paratroopers, glidermen, and air assault troops of the United States were and are proud members of the world’s most exclusive and honorable fraternity, have earned and wear the ‘‘Silver Wings of Courage’’ badge, have participated in a total of 93 combat jumps, and have distinguished themselves in battle by earning 69 Congressional Medals of Honor, the highest military decoration possible, and hundreds of Distinguished Service Crosses and Silver Stars;

Whereas these airborne forces have performed in important military and peacekeeping operations, wherever needed, in World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Lebanon, Sinai, the Dominican Republic, Panama, Somalia, Haiti, and Bosnia; and
Whereas the Senate joins together with the airborne community to celebrate August 16, 2001, the 61st anniversary of the official parachute jump by the Parachute Test Platoon, as ‘‘National Airborne Day’’; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—
(1) designates August 16, 2001, as ‘‘National Airborne Day’’; and
(2) requests that the President issue a proclamation calling on Federal, State, and local administrators and the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities.

REAUTHORIZATION OF THE TROPICAL FOREST CONSERVATION ACT OF 1998 THROUGH FISCAL YEAR 2004
Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Foreign Relations Committee be discharged from the consideration of H.R. 2131, and the Senate then proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2131) to reauthorize the Tropical Forest Conservation Act of 1998 through fiscal year 2004, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read three times, passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, with no intervening action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 2131) was read the third time and passed.

ORDERS FOR TUESDAY, JULY 24, 2001
Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 10 a.m., Tuesday, July 24. I further ask unanimous consent that on Tuesday, immediately following the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate resume consideration of H.R. 2290, the Transportation Appropriations Act; further, that the Senate recess from 12:30 to 2:15 p.m. tomorrow for our weekly party conferences.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM
Mr. REID. Madam President, on Tuesday, the Senate will convene at 10 a.m. and resume consideration of the Transportation Appropriations Act. We expect rollcall votes on amendments throughout the day. The Senate will recess, as has been noted, for the weekly party conferences.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. REID. Madam President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 6:40 p.m., adjourned until Tuesday, July 24, 2001, at 10 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate July 23, 2001:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

CHRISTOPHER WILLIAM DELL, OF NEW JERSEY, A CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF COUNSELOR, TO BE AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY AND Plenipotentiary OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE REPUBLIC OF ANGOLA.

PATRICIA DE STACY HARRISON, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE AN ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE (EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL AFFAIRS), VICE WILLIAM B. BADER.
Mr. FRANK. Mr. Speaker, there have understandably been a large number of tributes to our late colleague, Joe Moakley, who so well exemplified the best qualities of a representative of the people. One of them in particular had special meaning to me.

Among the issues for which he fought so hard were those affecting the right of older people to live their lives in some degree of comfort and security. The most recent issue of The Oldster, published in Boston by the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans, is dedicated to Joe and contains a number of articles describing his great work in that field.

I ask that the article by the MAOA President Emeritus, Elsie Frank, recalling the speech Joe made at his 85th birthday celebration, be printed here, as an example of the impact he had. I am proud to share with my colleagues my Mother's excellent summary of the qualities that made Joe Moakley so important to so many of us.

[From The Oldster, July 2001]

JOE MOAKLEY
(By Elsie Frank)

My friend, Joe Moakley, was not a grandstander but a public official who was dedicated to public service. He took his responsibilities as a Congressman seriously; he was committed to social justice—to equality and respect for human dignity, and to the proposition that private interests shall not prevail over the public good. He wanted a society that is caring, just and fair to all—young and old alike.

Part of Joe's greatness was his ability to make everyone feel special—like I felt when he spoke at my 85th birthday party. Joe agreed with historian Arnold Toynbee that a society's quality and durability can be best be measured “by the respect and care given to its old.”

Although no one would argue that society can shield every individual from problems that need to be solved, Joe Moakley openly offered his help to others, often frustrated with a feeling of helplessness, and hopelessness. To him helping others was not a political issue, it was a moral issue. Despite the columnists and talk shows that ridicule those who help the down trodden, money could not buy the good feelings Joe Moakley had about helping others. When we at the Committee To End Elder Homelessness, Inc., were in the process of converting an abandoned bread factory into permanent housing for homeless elders, he was the one we turned to for assistance in overcoming obstacles.

Joe Moakley was more than a politician. By his desire to make a difference in the quality-of-life of young and old, he set an example for all elected officials, those now in office and those who will win elections in future years. To continue his legacy of dedicated public service, his successor has an enormous void to fill.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member encourages his colleagues to read the following editorial, from the June 27, 2001, edition of the Omaha World Herald. This editorial takes the position that both debtors and lenders of credit are responsible for the record rates of bankruptcy filings in Nebraska and Iowa.

LENDERS SHARE THE BLAME

Nebraskans and Iowans are filing for personal bankruptcy at a higher rate than ever before. That has resulted in an unusual personal spending but also in the explosion of easy credit available in recent years.

Nationally, personal debt is at an all-time high. Americans put a trillion dollars on their credit cards last year. The rate in Iowa increased significantly, too. Many factors may play into the rise—a weaker economy, higher unemployment, the threat of a stronger and less friendly bankruptcy law being considered in Congress.

People should, of course, take responsibility for their own spending. No one forces them to use the credit that is offered. Many factors, including deceptive conditions that bolster their profits at the expense of people who can't pay their bills. Interest as high as 30 percent, covering the entire balance and lasting until it is paid off, can be imposed on people who are late or miss a payment. High late fees, a shorter period in which to pay the bill and brief or no grace periods contribute to people's difficulties. Thus, people with poor credit histories and poor performance are penalized further with the extra fees.

There are far too many gullible souls in this country who, for whatever reason, don't have enough financial sense or self-discipline to use credit cards wisely. They fall into the traps set by the banks that issue credit cards. The temptation for instant gratification overwhelms some people. Their difficulties are, ultimately, their own fault.

Nevertheless, lenders shouldn't be exploiting the vulnerable unless they accept the risk involved. When they bombard people of modest means with thousands of dollars worth of easy credit, at a low! low! low! (introductory) interest rate; when they target college students who often don't have jobs or the means to pay back credit card debt; when they work hard to entice people who have just gone through a bankruptcy to re-enter the credit whirlwind, they need to recognize that many of these people will not be able to handle the debt they have been enticed to assume. They will default.

People should have the common sense to handle their credit cards cautiously and manage their finances wisely. But too many do not. When the credit card industry takes advantage of their weaknesses to increase its bottom line, it should not be surprised when problems occur.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, good morning. I am pleased to be here today to introduce legislation that will facilitate dialog on a key issue facing the Northwest.

I want to begin today with a quote from Chief Joseph, a man who lived in northeastern Oregon and traveled the lands of the Columbia and Snake River Basin:

"The Earth was created by the assistance of the sun, and it should be left as it was... I never said the land was mine to do with it as I chose. The one who has the right to dispose of it is the one who has created it. I..."
claim a right to live on my land, and accord you the privilege to live on yours.

This legislation is called the Salmon Planning Act. It provides for the planning that will be necessary to save the endangered salmon and steelhead populations in the Snake River if the Bush administration continues to deny funding to recovery efforts.

For centuries, salmon has been recognized as a symbol of the Northwest lifestyle and a mainstay of the economy. Both commercial fishermen and the sport fishing industry rely on commercially runs of salmon and steelhead. Generations of northwesterners have grown up with fishing as a part of their lives.

Beginning in the early 1960s, a series of 4 dams were constructed on the Lower Snake River. The dams provided energy, water for irrigation, and a barge system for transporting goods between the inland and ocean ports. Since then, the 12 genetically distinct populations of salmon and steelhead, native to the Snake River, have dropped to such an extent that every one of those populations is either functionally extinct or listed under the endangered Species Act.

Scientific studies have shown that declining salmon runs represent the declining health of the overall ecosystem in the Columbia and Snake River basin. Independent studies by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Fish and Wildlife Service have shown an ecosystem in peril.

Additionally, numerous treaties with Native Tribes in Oregon, Washington, Alaska, and the Canadian Government have committed our government to ensuring the continued viability of the salmon.

Last year the National Marine Fisheries Service released a biological opinion regarding the Columbia and Snake River Basin and developed the Salmon Recovery Plan, which would avoid breaching the dams. I support this plan and hope that we can continue to make every effort to develop a workable solution without breaching the dams.

However, the current administration has so far failed to allocate any funds to implement this plan. Full funding of the restoration measures called for in the Salmon Recovery Plan will cost an estimated $1.2 billion per year for the region as a whole. The administration has chosen to sacrifice the salmon and the economy of the Northwest in favor of large tax refunds.

The Salmon Planning Act will provide for a thorough peer review of the Salmon Recovery Plan of 2000 by the National Academy of Sciences to ensure the scientific credibility of its findings. In addition, the Salmon Planning Act calls for a study by the General Accounting Office of the effects of potential dam removal on every sector of society that is impacted by the dams. Independent studies by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Fish and Wildlife Service have shown an ecosystem in peril.

In addition, the Salmon Planning Act calls for a study by the General Accounting Office of the effects of potential dam removal if recovery efforts fail.

The GAO study would detail the effects of dam removal on every sector of society that is impacted. In addition to the fishing and scientific community, dam removal would affect energy, transportation, agriculture, and the local communities.

The GAO study will also address the potential liability of the American taxpayer that may result from our failure to fulfill our treaty obligations should our salmon and steelhead populations become extinct.

Passage of the Salmon Planning Act by itself will not result in the breaching of the dams. Let me repeat that, this act will not result in breaching the dams. Congress will need to address this issue again in the future. This bill does, however, provide the planning that will be necessary for Congress to make an informed decision.

The window of opportunity to save our valuable salmon and steelhead resources is quickly closing.

IT IS TIME FOR CONGRESS TO SPEAK UP

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, last week, the House of Representatives attempted to consider campaign finance reform. While the House ultimately decided not to consider the legislation because of a ridiculous rule, it is significant that campaign finance reform has come to the floor for a vote before election day for the first time.

I was the first to point out that it does not matter how much money we spend on our campaigns, or for that matter, how much money we do not spend on our campaigns, if votes still do not count.

It is clear to me that after last year’s farce of an election, in which it was discovered that thousands of voters had their right to vote stripped from them, Congress would have acted by now. But Congress has not acted.

Congress remained silent when the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights released its findings that minority voters were more likely to have their votes thrown out than non-minority voters. Congress remained silent when thousands of voters testified to civil rights groups like the NAACP, the National Council of La Raza, the ACLU, and this Committee, discussing the many problems they faced at the polls last November. Congress still remains silent, while Americans become more cynical by the day.

The debate that needs to commence is not on how much money we spend on our campaigns. Instead, the debate should focus on how much money we are not spending on our elections.

My home county, Broward County, may not purchase the best voting machines on the market because they cannot afford it. We need to be talking about how to get Broward County, and every other county in this country, the needed funds to improve their election systems.

Mr. Speaker, contrary to what many argue, the need for election reform is much more than a civil rights issue. Rather, the need for election reform is a challenge to our democracy. It is a challenge that calls on us to reaffirm our commitment to the principles and ideals that our country’s founding fathers died defending. It is a challenge that burns at the heart of every American who believes in our country’s democratic heritage. It is a challenge that we cannot back down from. It is a challenge that we will not back down from. Finally, it is a challenge that must be overcome before history repeats itself.
as much manpower as we could,” said Albert W. Billington, special agent in charge of the Washington field office.

Petty Officer Brown, 24, was listed as missing June 15 during her commanding officer called NCIS to report the young woman had missed checks and had not shown up for work.

The next day a Prince Georges County detective called Frank O'Donnell, who was heading up the missing persons investigation, to tell him police may have found her body and a man's body.

Prince Georges police moved quickly on the case, Mr. Billington said, and with the help of NCIS investigators who were able to track credit- and debit-card usage, and conduct surveillance and searches of the suspects' and the victims' homes.

On June 27, Prince Georges police arrested five men in connection with the killings.

Marco Scutchings, 18; Robert Odum Jr., 23; and Aaron Hollingsworth, 18, await preliminary hearings scheduled for July 26 and 27. The five men beat the couple and stuffed them in the trunk after a botched carjacking, according to police reports. The two later were shot and check on her. They were often joined by lots of friends and neighbors.

Christina’s was a very kind and loving person, always caring about people, and she always had her open home. She would welcome people with food, and she was always lending a helping hand, opening the door to friends and strangers who needed a glass of water or a meal.

Christina raised three lovely, and successful, children: Josephina, who now works as a Security Officer for Sandia National Labs; Joe, who retired from the Santa Fe Railroad, where he worked on the cars; and Nicanora, who drives a school bus and also plays basketball.

Her children lovingly recall being raised by their mother: “We lived out in the country. Belen was 12 miles away. Mom would take us to the country drug store. Jenny’s which had an old soda fountain. They made great root beer floats. They were very pure. The store is gone now. They tore it down. Mom would also take us to go buy groceries. It was like a treat, because we lived so far away from everything.”

Christina’s children remark that one of the best gifts she left them was the values she instilled in them. She was very religious, and even when she was in the nursing home, she attended church twice a week. She liked to pray the Rosary in Spanish.

Christina taught her children the teachings of the Catholic Church. During Lent, she made sure the family did not eat meat on Friday. Instead she would serve wild spinach with beans. It was excellent and made it much easier to avoid meat! She also made wonderful bread pudding with raisins.

Christina was fond of singing the Hail Mary. She had a lovely voice, and her children can still recall her singing in the home:

Hail Mary
Full of Grace
The Lord is with thee . . .

And she loved to recite the Lord’s Prayer:
Our Father who art in Heaven
Hallowed be thy name
Thy Kingdom come
Thy will be done
On earth as it is in Heaven
Give us this day our daily bread
And forgive us our trespasses
As we forgive those who trespass against us
Lead us not into temptation
But deliver us from evil
For thine is the Kingdom and the power and the glory forever
Amen.

Mr. Speaker, a quiet history runs through our Nation, a history that is not in our textbooks. In this history, the lonely whistle of the Santa Fe railroad can be heard through the night, as a young woman bakes bread on a farm. Her household is filled with the good smells of coffee and cocoa. Her children learn the words of our Holy Bible, and grow up to be good, God-fearing people with children of their own. From her they learn kindness and good deeds, the value of a hard day’s work, the importance of opening a door to a stranger.

This is the fabric from which our Nation is built. For often it is not the famous and the affluent who shape our country’s destiny; instead it is women like Christina Chavez, who raise a family one day at a time, bake the bread, tend to the farm, and the country store.

And so, we pay tribute and memory to Christina Chavez, the last of my father’s generation, my aunt and Godmother, loving mother to Josephina, Joe, and Nicanora.

There is a sadness that comes from great love, but there is also a quiet pride. Pride at all the families of Chavez and Baca have achieved in this great Nation. That as Latinos and Latinas we have carved a place for ourselves in the fabric of its history.

Mr. Speaker, Christina’s children offer these words: “Thank you Mom for family values. You taught us how to be strong. You often raised us alone as Dad traveled on the Santa Fe Railroad.”

And so, I say to Christina, thank you for all you have been to me and to your children, all the lives you have touched. God bless you, we miss you, but we know you are in Heaven in the arms of the Lord.

HONORING VERNON JOSEPH CHARRON, JR.
HON. SCOTT McINNIS
OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, freedom, as we know, is not free and requires large doses of perseverance, dedication and sacrifice. Since his extensive tour of duty with the Navy during some of the most tumultuous times in World War II, Vernon Joseph Charron Jr. has traveled to numerous schools and other settings to inspire the youth of America with a similar passion for the United States that he holds. Vernon is a man who has aided the battle of freedom and I would like to take this opportunity to recognize his service to our country.

“Vern” was awestruck at the sight of his ship arriving at Pearl Harbor in 1942. The battle cruiser U.S.S. Atlanta was the ship that would be his home during the ensuing conflict. Located on the island of Guadalcanal and three months after the main conflict there, the Americans held a rudimentary airstrip called Henderson Field. Surprise confrontations and unplanned attacks stemming from the Japanese still plagued the island and resulted in many casualties. Obtaining and maintaining control of the waters surrounding the island was critical, and it is here that one of the most gruesome battles occurred and Vernon fought. On the night of November 12, 1942, as 14 ships from the Japanese fleet attacked the Henderson Field, the U.S.S. Atlanta and 12 other U.S. ships confronted the aggressors. After the battle, the area would be known as “Ironbottom Sound” due to the number of casualties and sunken debris. Twenty-seven ships attempted to destroy each other.

The U.S.S. Atlanta, by the end, had been hit 49 times before it ultimately sank. Although Vernon was part of the thirteen man crew, he was the only survivor. Amidst flame and further attack, the U.S.S. Atlanta lost 170 men that night and although men of this generation were taught not to cry, a tear fell from Vern’s eyes as he recounted the demise of this great ship and her crew. Only upon further examination did we discover that Vernon went from one firestorm to another because he also served in the battle of Midway and also in the Solomon Island Campaign. During these momentous times and occurrences, Vern was only 17 years of age.

Following the trials of war, Mr. Charron was employed by the Russell Stover Candies company and continued his position there for 49 years. While the USS Atlanta rests below 80 fathoms of water near Guadalcanal, Vern uses his experiences to light the fires of patriotism in youth to perpetuate the great spirit of America. His service is commendable as he gave of himself unselfishly to our remarkable nation. I applaud him and thank him for his efforts. He has certainly demonstrated the cost of freedom and his teachings will persist as testaments to America.

PROTECTING OUR WHISTLEBLOWERS

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, today, I introduced legislation in Congress amending the Whistleblower Protection Act (WPA) to restore protections for federal employees who risk their jobs by disclosing waste, fraud, abuse or violations of law they witness on the job. This legislation is critical to restore the flowing of information to Congress and the public about wrongdoing within the government. It is necessary because the original congressional intent has been partially nullified by certain judicial decisions. In 1989, Congress unambiguously passed the Whistleblower Protection Act (WPA) and strengthened it in 1994. The new bill closes judicially created loopholes that have made the law useless in most circumstances. Recent decisions by the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit have denied protection for disclosures made as part of an employee’s job duties or within the chain of command. The bill restores coverage in over 90 percent of the situations where it counts most for federal workers to have free speech rights—when they defend the public on the job.

The bill also makes permanent a free speech shield known as the “anti-gag statute” that Congress has passed annually for the last 13 years. It outlaws nondisclosure rules, agreements and other forms of gag orders that would cancel rights in the Whistleblower Protection Act and other good government statutes. In particular, it upholds the supremacy of a long-established law that workers have a right to notice that information is classified as secret for national security interests, before they can be held liable for releasing it. The necessity for the bill was increased last week by passage of a little noticed provision in the Intelligence Authorization Act for 2001. That provision functionally could make whistleblowers liable for criminal prosecution, based on speculation that unmarked information were classified.

We must reaffirm our support for whistleblowers. We made a serious commitment to federal workers in 1989 and Congress must ensure those protections stay in place. Congress must demonstrate once again its support for federal workers who risk everything to defend the public against fraud, waste, and abuse.

HONORING JOSEPH MAXWELL CLIFTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with a solemn heart that I would like to remember the life of Joseph Maxwell “Max” Clifton, who passed away on July 12, 2001. He was a dedicated businessman and a compassionate individual.

In 1966, Max and his son-in-law started a car dealership, a Datsun franchise, in Pueblo County, Colorado. Establishing a market for these cars was a daunting task since there were less than five Datsuns registered in the area. His business was later purchased and was turned into a prosperous dealership in the community. The success of the business is a testament to the charisma and passion that Max exhibited at work. Max truly valued his community. The success of the business is an important part of many peoples’ lives. His memory will live through those he touched. Mr. Speaker, I would like to extend my deepest sympathy and warmest regards to Max Clifton’s family and my thoughts and prayers are with them.

HON. JOHN CONYERS, JR.
OF MICHIGAN
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have recently introduced HR 2273, the National Bank Offshore Activities Act of 2001, which was referred to the Committee on Financial Services on June 21, 2001. If enacted, this legislation would amend banking laws with respect to offshore activities, investments, and affiliations of national banks, which are chartered by the United States Comptroller of the Currency. Specifically, the legislation tightens regulations and closes loopholes in the country’s supervision of the national banks it charters when they operate overseas. In this global economy, banks chartered and regulated by our government must maintain the highest legal and ethical standards wherever they operate, yet far too often, our banks have not been as scrupulous as they should be when they get involved in overseas activities.

I am introducing this legislation because it has been brought to my attention that there have been recent allegations of great improprieties committed by our national banks chartered by the Comptroller of the Currency when they operate overseas, and that the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency has concluded it is powerless to act against these U.S. chartered banks and foreign subsidiaries. There have been even allegations that some of our chartered banks have been involved in illegal activities, including possible money laundering, yet our own Office of the Comptroller of the Currency is called on to investigate these matters. There has not been a current enforcement authority. As I stand here today, I am aware that the ownership and control of one overseas company in particular has been transferred in a bankruptcy proceeding to a trustee approved by a group of U.S. chartered and foreign banks, and that there have been allegations that the appointed trustee in this matter has committed embezzlement, money laundering, and other crimes. Yet it is my understanding that the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency has not fully investigated these matters, and that they may need further enforcement authority in order to do so. This is why I believe that H.R. 2273 is such an important piece of legislation. It makes certain that the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency has full enforcement powers so they may act to enforce our nation’s banking laws. Above all, H.R. 2273 improves upon the existing enforcement regime of the Comptroller of the Currency so that they may better identify possibly harmful bank relationships and practices before they hurt U.S. depositors and shareholders. Our global economy requires that U.S. banking laws reach activity affecting U.S. shareholders and investors anywhere in the world. Therefore, our Comptroller of the Currency must have full power and authority to investigate these offshore activities of our national banks and to order these banks to cease their involvement in an overseas interest, if this activity leads to illegal activities, or other violations of law.
Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2273 is an important first step towards addressing the nursing staffing shortage. By providing the authority to consider the number of tertiary care nurses in designating a HPSA, nurses placed in a medically under-served area would be eligible to receive scholarships and/or have their student loans repaid under the NHSC Scholarship and Loan Repayment programs. We must revitalize the interest in the nursing profession for today's students and make the choice to enter the profession a more attractive, achievable option.

At the same time, this bill does not harm the status quo. Language in the Nursing Shortage Response Act prevents the stripping of current HPSA designations by the inclusion of tertiary care nurses in the designation process. Additionally, the 10% set aside for advanced practice nurses under the NHSC Scholarship and Loan Repayment programs. We must revitalize the interest in the nursing profession for today's students and make the choice to enter the profession a more attractive, achievable option.

NURSING SHORTAGE RESPONSE ACT STATEMENT OF INTRODUCTION

HON. WALTER B. JONES
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Nursing Shortage Response Act to help address the critical shortage of registered nurses (RNs) in our nation's hospitals.

With the number of students going into the nursing profession on the decline and the aging of the workforce, it is becoming a real healthcare crisis. At the same time, mandatory overtime and lack of adequate staffing in hospitals is driving many existing nurses from the nursing profession into other jobs or retirement. Because of this shortage, existing nurses are being over-worked and the quality of care many patients receive is being called into question.

The Nursing Shortage Response Act would help alleviate the current staffing problems. Hospitals are experiencing by amending the Public Health Service Act to give the National Health Service Corp (NHSC) the authority to consider tertiary care or hospital based nurses. The NHSC would establish criteria for including these nurses in determining the number of health professionals in the ratio for designating a health professional shortage area (HPSA).

Currently, the NHSC does not take into account the ratio of hospital nurses per patient in designating a HPSA. This designation process is based only on the number of primary care doctors per patient.

I believe this is an important first step towards addressing the nursing staffing shortage. By providing the authority to consider the number of tertiary care nurses in designating a HPSA, nurses placed in a medically under-served area would be eligible to receive scholarships and/or have their student loans repaid under the NHSC Scholarship and Loan Repayment programs. We must revitalize the interest in the nursing profession for today's students and make the choice to enter the profession a more attractive, achievable option.

NURSING SHORTAGE RESPONSE ACT STATEMENT OF INTRODUCTION

HON. CHRISTOPHER COX
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate Maria Ema Minon, M.D., who this past weekend completed her term as President of the Orange County Medical Association.

Dr. Minon, only the second woman president in the 100 year history of the OCMA, has provided excellent leadership on numerous issues of central importance to the people of Orange County. Her fight for just compensation for physicians provided under Medi-Cal and her dedication to improving the quality of care for our patients are with her family and I would like to express my deepest sympathy to her family. The idea of service to others filled his heart and was witnessed by his involvement in the military, law, and politics. Throughout World War II Leo was a judge advocate and retired from the Army Reserve with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

As his wife was nearing the end of her life, Leo comforted her. Since then he has lived by himself. His humility pervaded his character as did his patience, professionalism, and care. Seemingly always giving more than expected, Leo was a dedicated man and well respected. Leo Altman shall be remembered as a man with an intense mind, delicate character and a big heart. Mr. Speaker, my thoughts and prayers are with his family and I would like to extend my warmest regards and deepest sympathies to them.

In addition, H.R. 2273 provides that both national banks and any other persons or entities, including any Federal or State official, department, or agency, may file a notice with the Comptroller of the Currency to notify the Comptroller of any violation of law that has occurred as a result of the affiliation of the national bank and the offshore interest, and to petition the Comptroller of the Currency to prohibit any further relationship between the national bank and the entity with which the national bank maintains a correspondent banking relationship, which has been finally adjudicated or determined by any adjudicative, regulatory, or other governmental authority.

In addition, H.R. 2273 also prohibits certain relationships between national banks and certain violators of Federal, State, or foreign criminal law, banking or financial services law, or labor law, or any regulations prescribed under any such law, by any agent or affiliate of the national bank, or any other entity with which the national bank maintains a correspondent banking relationship, which has been finally adjudicated or determined by any adjudicative, regulatory, or other governmental authority.

Mr. McNNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with a solemn heart I would like to recognize the passing of Leo S. Altman. Leo was a compassionate husband and grandfather, a dedicated lawyer and a skilled woodworker, who resided in Pueblo, Colorado and died on Thursday, July 12—on the birthday of his wife, Helen, who passed away last year.

Leo gave of himself unselfishly and made a difference in many peoples' lives. As a figurehead, young lawyers would look to him for advice not only because of his helping hand, but because he was a remarkable lawyer. His teachings he was able to inspire others and truly set an example for many to emulate. Beginning in 1935 and as a partner in Preston & Altman; Leo did not end his career until a month ago when his health began to fail him.

Beyond the scope of his occupation, Leo loved to travel and visited 108 countries throughout his life. Woodworking was another passion that he developed and he has made everything from tables to jewelry boxes. The idea of service to others filled his heart and was witnessed by his involvement in the State Board of Bar Examiners. He also served as the president of the Pueblo Bar Association and in other positions as a municipal judge and police magistrate. Throughout World War II Leo was a judge advocate and retired from the Army Reserve with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

As his wife was nearing the end of her life, Leo comforted her. Since then he has lived by himself. His humility pervaded his character as did his patience, professionalism, and care. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2273 is an important first step toward improving our nation's banking laws. I would ask my colleagues to join me in seeking passage of this important bill.
quality of care in Orange County have been exemplary.

Dr. Minon was born in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and immigrated to the United States in 1966. After graduating from the University of California, Irvine School of Medicine, she distinguished herself over 20 years as a pediatrician in private practice. Since 1984, she has served in numerous leadership positions to promote public service in medicine, ethics, and health finance. Dr. Minon served as President of my district’s American Academy of Pediatrics chapter and was recently named Chair of the Children and Families Commission of Orange County. She is also the Chair Emeritus of the Board of Directors of the CHOC Foundation for Children with the Charlie Hester Philanthropy Award.

Although the gavel has passed to a new President, I know Dr. Minon will continue to dedicate her time and knowledge to advancing high-quality health care for all Orange Countians. On behalf of the United States Congress and all of the people of Orange County whom it is my privilege to represent, congratulations to Dr. Minon on her successful term as the President of the Orange County Medical Association.

HONORING ANNE STEINBECK
HON. SCOTT McINNIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. McInnis. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor and congratulate Anne Flick Steinbeck on her retirement for the Gunnison/Hinsdale Department of Social Services. When she retired on June 11, Anne had given the department more than 38 years of dedicated service. Her presence will surely be missed.

While being recognized at a gala retirement event, Gunnison County Commissioner Perry Anderson called Steinbeck a “miracle worker.” Although the Gunnison/Hinsdale Department of Social Services has undergone numerous changes during the time Anne has served, the primary aim of assisting fellow human beings has remained the same. Touching the hearts of others has undoubtedly been a motivating factor for her as she has served selflessly for the people of her community.

After many years of service to others, Anne and her husband have decided to travel and spend a considerable amount of time with their family. I wish Anne Steinbeck the best of luck and thank her for the dedicated effort she has put forth.

TRIBUTE TO EUDORA (ALICE) WELTY
HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON
OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. Thompson of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an American Literary Figure, the late Eudora Alice Welty. This well known author was born and educated in Jackson, Mississippi. She received her Bachelor of Arts at University of Wisconsin, Madison in 1929 and in 1931 attended Columbia University School for Advertising, New York.

In 1946, she published her first full-length novel, Delta Wedding, which depicts The Mississippi Delta’s structure and society of the family with mythical parallels. Her work put into words the everyday life struggles of Mississippians.

In 1950, Welty won a Guggenheim Fellowship and was elected to the National Institute of Arts and Letters. In 1987, Welty was knighted a Cavalier by the French Government. Welty received the 1996 Legion of Honor, France’s highest civilian honor.

She has received the Pulitzer prize, 1973; Presidential Medal of Freedom, 1960; National Endowment for the Arts Award, 1989 and Charles Frankel prize, 1992. Some of her numerous honors are Bread Loaf Writers Conference fellowship (1940), O’Henry fellowship (1942, 1943, 1968), Howells Medal (1965) and gold medal (1972), and Bobst award, 1984.

Mr. Speaker, Ms. Eudora Welty, is proudly recognized by the state of Mississippi and the United States of America as a visionary for all people. On behalf of the people of the 2nd Congressional district, I salute her.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE BOLIVIAN FOLKORIC GROUP, LOS KJARKAS
HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. Menendez. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Los Kjarkas, a world renowned Bolivian folkloric group.

The seven members of Los Kjarkas, Gonzalez Hermosa Gonzalez, Elmer Hermosa Gonzalez, Gaston Guardia Bilbao, Eduardo Yanez Loayza, Miguel Mencos Montes de Oca, Rolando Malpartida Porcel, and Ivan Barrientos Murillo will begin the American portion of their 2001 world tour on July 28th, in New York City.

Often referred to as the Ambassadors of Bolivia, audiences throughout the country will be entertained by Los Kjarkas’ folkloric presentations. The music of Los Kjarkas provides audiences with an Andean cultural experience that will enhance their knowledge and exposure to Bolivian customs and traditions.

Before coming to the United States, Los Kjarkas will begin their international tour in Europe with performances throughout Spain and Switzerland. The tour will conclude in South America.

Los Kjarkas has used its fame and notoriety to positively impact the lives of youths throughout Latin America. In 1994, the group established ‘la fundacion Kjarkas’ a foundation devoted to teaching children throughout Latin America how to compose and perform Andean music. As a result of their dedication and commitment, Los Kjarkas has inspired many Latin American children to pursue musical endeavors.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Los Kjarkas for their outstanding musical contributions and unparalleled commitment.

IN SUPPORT OF THE NATIONAL COMMISSION FOR THE NEW NATIONAL GOAL: THE ADVANCEMENT OF GLOBAL HEALTH
HON. GEORGE W. GEKAS
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I rise once again to bring to the attention of my colleagues the introduction of legislation to prove “The National Commission for the New National Goal: The Advancement of Global Health.”

The entire world acknowledges that the 20th century was engaged by our nation’s leadership in the removal of the threat of totalitarianism and of world communism. Our national goals were the safeguard and expansion of democracy through the maintenance of military and political power. With the fall of the Berlin Wall, these goals were not only advanced but made a reality. As we enter the 21st century, our great nation has once again a unique opportunity to channel the genius of its technology, industrial might, scientific research and the will of our great citizens into a potential goal equal to the 20th century challenge of defeating totalitarianism.

Today, it is time to rechannel our limitless energies to an all-out effort to enhance the health of every American and to combat disease worldwide. America’s humanitarian and enlightened self-interest are substantial reasons to commit to the global eradication of disease such accomplishments would protect our citizens, improve quality of life, enhance our economy and ensure the continued advancement of American interests worldwide. While the global scale may not be possible, the pursuit of such a goal could lead to new projects in health care, new medicines and new methods of treating disease.

On June 30, 1999, I introduced into the 106th Congress H.R. 2399, the National Commission for the New National Goal: The Advancement of Global Health Act. I am reintroducing that measure today. This legislation would create a Presidential/ Congressional commission to investigate how we as a nation can commit ourselves to the goal of the global eradication of disease. Specifically, this commission would recommend to Congress:

In order to accomplish these objectives, the bill sets two tangible goals for the Commission. First, the Commission would assist the Children’s Vaccine Project at the National Institutes of Health to achieve global control of infectious diseases. In addition, the Commission would utilize the NIH and NSF to expand health resources and research information globally through Internet conferencing and data dissemination capabilities. The Commission would also be authorized to spend up to $1 million as seed money to coordinate and attract private and public funds, both at home and abroad, to realize these goals.

Mr. SPEAKER. Mr. Thompson, the Chair of the Committee on Rules, has tendered his report.
On September 13, 2001, Dr. Dyann Wirth, a professor at the Harvard University School of Public Health Department of Immunology and Infectious Disease, testified on this legislation before the House Commerce Committee subcommittee on Health and the Environment on behalf of the Joint Steering Committee for Public Policy. I would like to emphasize the following excerpt from her testimony:

"We support this bill because we believe that in this third millennium it is within the grasp of human capability to accelerate the role of basic biomedical research and the translation of that research to the benefit of the world’s least fortunate people. Now is the time; scientific potential is there; it requires only political will to make it real. . . ."

According to the World Health Organization, infectious diseases account for more than 13 million deaths per year. That means that over the duration of this hearing 1,500 people will die from an infectious disease—half of them children under five. . . .

As you know, most of these deaths occur in developing countries where extreme poverty and lack of access to basic health care, adequate sanitation and essential drugs can seal the fate of children before they are born. However, the enormous volume of travel and trade today have made infectious diseases blind to our national borders. . . .

As we begin the 21st century, we are blessed with unimaginable opportunities to build on breakthrough research to control and prevent global infectious disease. This is not just altruism to reduce the suffering of the world’s most needy; this is also a question of national security and health for the United States and its citizens. Renewed investment in the treatment and prevention of global infectious disease is a win-win situation for the country; by helping others across the world we are also launching the best defense to protect the health of our Nation’s people.

The knowledge and unbounded imagination of researchers, doctors and scientists such as Dr. Dyann Wirth have ensured the preeminence of research that has fostered our freedom and economic well-being. Now, we can empower these individuals in an all-out effort to devise the methods and substances to eradicate disease worldwide. The concern for human life requires us to muster all available resources, bolstered by a concerted, dedicated will to eradicate disease from the face of the Earth.

Please join me in co-sponsoring this important legislation.

HONORING DAN AND MARY KING

HON. SCOTT McINNIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, today I’d like to congratulate and thank Dan and Mary King of Ouray, Colorado, for having the courage and initiative to take on a project that will enrich the City of Ouray. The couple, who are working to completely renovate the historic Beaumont Hotel, will provide residents and visitors both with a sense of history and foundation. Dan and Mary, who are from San Antonio, Texas, have made a huge investment in the once crumbling hotel. They purchased what Lori Cumpston of The Daily Sentinel called “the pink elephant—an eyesore” at an auction in 1998 with the hopes of transforming it into “a revitalized hotel with retail shops, restaurants, and a spa.” Currently, the Kings have found fifty workers to help them update the building with new electrical, mechanical, plumbing, and fire suppression systems, as well as handicapped access to all floors. They are also baring the natural brick that has long been covered with bubblegum pink paint. "Every square inch, including the mortar, has had to be hand scraped," Mary said. While the new Beaumont will portray new amenities, however, they are also keeping the hotel authentic. Dan said, "We want to change as little as possible. We want the experience to be that it’s 115 years old.”

Even though Mary and Dan estimate that the hotel will not be finished until the summer of 2002, the first shop owner in the hotel is already enjoying the King’s project. David Smith, whose business is the first in 37 years to open in the Beaumont Hotel, has already opened Buckskin Book sellers at the Beaumont, which houses over 4000 books. Smith says of the Beaumont, “Most people see this as becoming the core of the town.”

Mr. Speaker, the Kings have done a great service in transforming what used to inhibit the town’s atmosphere into what might be the new “core” of Ouray. I ask we pay tribute on behalf of Congress to their personal sacrifice and their initiative.

IN MEMORY OF EUDORA WELTY

HON. GENE TAYLOR
OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues from Mississippi in expressing deep appreciation and admiration for one of the most gifted literary figures of our state and nation, Eudora Welty, whom we lost this afternoon following a lifetime of contribution to her art. Although recognized and celebrated throughout her career, Welty had a gracious and genteel demeanor. She spoke frequently to students of literature and lovers of writing, encouraging them to develop an ability to listen and to carefully observe before trying to understand or tell a story.

Born in 1909, Welty was a life-long resident of Jackson, Mississippi, where she grew up in a close-knit extended family. She claimed to have been sheltered and protected from outside forces of all sorts. She attended Mississippi State College for Women, the University of Wisconsin in Madison, and Columbia University in New York. She returned to Mississippi during the Great Depression. She held various jobs, including publicist for the Works Progress Administration and a number of lecturing and teaching posts. She also had a love for photography, and took many pictures during that era that were later displayed and published.

Photography had a profound influence on her mode of writing, teaching her life that does not hold still and inspiring her to try to capture the transience of life. This gave her a unique perspective about her life, Welty carefully controlled her public persona. She firmly insisted that her work was not political, and did not discuss social or cultural issues in her work outside those endemic to immediate community and family. She traced her upbringing and mediated upon the forces, both familial and situational, that shaped her as a writer and as a person.

Welty’s novels include The Robber Bridegroom (1942), Delta Wedding (1946), The Ponder Heart (1954), Losing Battles (1970), and The Optimist’s Daughter (1972). Her short story collections include A Curtain of Green (1941), The Wide Net and Other Stories (1943), The Golden Apples (1949), and The Bridge of San Luis Rey (1955). She also wrote the non-fiction works The Eye of the Story (1978), and One Writer’s Beginnings (1984).

Welty’s works seem not to reflect so much an attempt to write the great American novel, but rather the act of simply telling a story and having the readers connect with its characters. These beautifully written works offer not only a panorama of Welty’s extraordinary vision, but they also give a sense of, as she said herself, “watching a negative develop, slowly coming clear before your eyes.”

HONORING TERRY AND VICKI BRADY

HON. SCOTT McINNIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, we live in a world where thousands of children are neglected or abused, where television is a common substitute for parenting, and where many parents feel insecure or even indifferent about their ability as parents. Terry and Vicki Brady have not only refused to become part of this dangerous downward spiral, but they have reached out to help direct others, serving as leaders and role models in the most important occupation. For their efforts, they have been selected as Colorado Parents of the Year, and they certainly deserve our thanks and congratulations.

Terry and Vicki, who live outside Idaho Springs, Colorado, are the proud parents of eight children, ranging in age from 5 months to 24 years. They have encountered challenges endured by all parents, as well as a few most hope they never have to face. Their first child, Emily, nearly died in her infancy from a rare disease. Emily survived, but when she began school, severe learning disabilities caused her to be deemed “uneducable.” Instead of giving up, Vicki taught Emily at home, eventually helping Emily to learn in ways the family had been told were impossible. As a result of this experience, Vicki and Terry decided to home school all of their children, and to help guide others in the same endeavor.

The two currently run Home Education Network (HEN) Radio, which has led to national recognition in the field of home schooling. Vicki, Terry, and three of their children share the responsibilities of the radio station where they broadcast nationally the programs Just a Mom and Homeschooling USA. Vicki, a radio host, facilitates discussions between parents with a wide range of backgrounds, as well as answering questions from callers. In all, they produce live broadcasts four times per week, using it as a means to serve and minister to
Mr. Speaker, Doug Sterner is certainly the right man for the position as Chair of the Colorado State Board of Veterans Affairs. Doug was recently appointed as the new Chairman for the Colorado State Board of Veterans Affairs. A Vietnam War veteran and co-founder of the Home of Heroes campaign in Pueblo, Doug Sterner exemplifies patriotism and deserves the praise and admiration of us all. My thanks to Doug for his commitment to the veterans. His appointment as Colorado State Board of Veterans Affairs Chairman reflects the huge strides he has made in pro-

Mr. Speaker, Terry and Vicki Brady have been excellent role models for parents, particular- ly those who have home school their children. They have contributed to a vital movement toward making our nation’s children our first priority. Their outstanding efforts deserve the praise and admiration of us all. My thanks to them for a job well done.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE BOLIVIAN FOLKLORIC GROUP, LOS KJARKAS

HON. ROBERT MENENDEZ
OF NEW JERSEY
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Los Kjarkas, a world-renowned Bolivian folkloric group. The seven members of Los Kjarkas, Gonzalez Hermosa Gonzalez, Elmier Hermosa Gonzalez, Gaston Guardia Bilbao, Eduardo Yanez Loayza, Miguel Mengoa Montes de Oca, Rolando Malpartida Porcel, and Ivan Barrientos Murillo will begin the American portion of their 2001 world tour on July 28th, in New York City.

Often referred to as the Ambassadors of Bolivia, audiences throughout the country will be entertained by Los Kjarkas’ folkloric presentations. The music of Los Kjarkas provides audiences with an Andean cultural experience that will enhance their knowledge and exposure to Bolivian customs and traditions.

Before coming to the United States, Los Kjarkas will begin their international tour in Europe with performance throughout Spain and Switzerland. The tour will conclude in South America.

Los Kjarkas has used its fame and notoriety to positively impact the lives of youths throughout Latin America. In 1994, the group established “la fundacion Kjarkas,” a foundation devoted to teaching children throughout Latin America how to compose and perform Andean music. As a result of their dedication and commitment, Los Kjarkas has inspired many Latin American children to pursue musical endeavors.

HONORING PAUL ZSCHOKKE OF COLORADO
Monday, July 23, 2001

Mr. McNINIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this moment to honor a man who has been offered a unique opportunity, Paul Zschokke. Paul has been nominated to spend a week at Space Camp learning the mental, physical and emotional strains that face this Nation’s astronauts. This experience will not only benefit Paul, but also the thirty, ten- and eleven-year-old students Paul teaches each year at Highland Park Elementary School.

For eighteen years Paul has been a teacher in Pueblo and in that time he has molded the minds of hundreds of students. Paul was not always interested in teaching, when he was younger electronics was his interest, but when he got to college he decided to major in psychology, because he wanted to spend his life with people. His early interest in science is apparent in Paul’s lesson plans. He has been trying to incorporate science and math into his writing curriculum, because writing is such a crucial skill at any age. For the last eight years Paul has been working closely with the Pueblo Boeing plant, to expose his students to aerodynamics, aerospace and how real business functions bring to life math and science. The field trips to the plant have allowed his students a unique perspective on the real life application of the subjects that seem so abstract in the school setting.

The program that Paul has implemented, Pueblo with Boeing, is the main reason that Paul will be attending space camp. Although Paul never wanted to become an astronaut, he did say, “I always wanted to be one of those guys in the white shirts on the ground trying to figure out the problems.” By the end of his week at Space Camp, Paul will be at mission control in Houston watching those men “in white shirts” in action. Throughout this experience Paul has set the personal goal of finding more ways to merge English with science. If Paul accomplishes his goal, not only will his life be enriched by this experience, but also the lives of his students.

In a time when Congress is continually looking for a way to improve education in the United States, it is commendable when a teacher takes the initiative to improve his skills and knowledge for the benefit of his students. That is why, Mr. Speaker, I stand before you to recognize Paul Zschokke. Good luck at Space Camp, Paul, and I hope you continue to strive to be the best teacher you can be.
SENEGAL COMMITTEE MEETINGS
Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This rule requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Congressional Record—DAILY DIGEST

July 23, 2001

The public proceedings of each House of Congress, as reported by the Official Reporters thereof, are printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed at one time. ¶ Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available through GPO Access at www.gpo.gov/gpoaccess. Customers can also access this information with WAIS client software, via telnet at swais.access.gpo.gov, or dial-in using communications software and a modem at (202) 512–1661. Questions or comments regarding this database or GPO Access can be directed to the GPO Access User Support Team at: E-Mail: gpoaccess@gpo.gov; Phone 1-888-293–6498 (toll-free), 202–512–1530 (D.C. area); Fax: 202–512–1262. The Team's hours of availability are Monday through Friday, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, except Federal holidays. ¶ The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $197.00 for six months, $383.00 per year, or purchased for $4.00 per issue, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $314.00 per year, or purchased for $1.50 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. To place an order for any of these products, visit the U.S. Government Online Bookstore at: bookstore.gpo.gov. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O. Box 371954, Pittsburgh, PA 15250–7954, or phone orders to (202) 512–1800, or fax to (202) 512–2250. Remit check or money order, made payable to the Superintendent of Documents, or use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, or GPO Deposit Account. ¶ Following each session of Congress, the daily Congressional Record is revised, printed, permanently bound and sold by the Superintendent of Documents in individual parts or by sets. ¶ With the exception of copyrighted articles, there are no restrictions on the republication of material from the Congressional Record.
