The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PETRI).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

I hereby appoint the Honorable Thomas E. Petri to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. Dennis Hastert, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE
A message from the Senate by Mr. Monahan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed with an amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 1885. An act to expand the class of beneficiaries who may apply for adjustment and Nationality Act by extending the certification filings, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate has passed a bill and a concurrent resolution of the following title in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 149. An act to provide authority to control exports, and for other purposes.
S. Con. Res. 58. Concurrent resolution expressing support for the tenth annual meeting of the Asia Pacific Parliamentary Forum.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 3, 2001, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 30 minutes, and each Member except the majority leader, the minority leader or the minority whip limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Sam Johnson) for 5 minutes.

A TRIBUTE TO GENERAL MICHAEL E. RYAN
Mr. Sam Johnson of Texas. Mr. Speaker, this morning I would like to rise to pay tribute to a great American, General Michael E. Ryan, the chief of staff of the United States Air Force. His departure on September 6 last week from active duty signaled an evolutionary change: the first time in 63 years, if you can believe that, that a Ryan is absent from the roles of the United States Air Force. His father, General John Ryan, also served as a senior uniformed Air Force officer.

General Mike Ryan’s career spanned over 3 decades during which he distinguished himself as an airman leader and trusted advisor to both the President and the United States Congress.

After graduating from the Air Force Academy in 1965, General Ryan began his illustrious career of faithful service to this Nation.

During his 36 years of service, he commanded at the squadron, wing, numbered air force and major command levels. He flew combat missions in seven different aircraft, including the F-15 and B-2. He has exemplified the quiet dignity and honor of that office. His leadership, integrity and foresight set the right vector for our 21st century Air Force, and his expeditionary force concept is now in being.

General Ryan is absent from the roles of the armed services decline of the last decade. They directly contributed to the Dayton peace accords. He was the head of the Air Force at the time when we used the B-2 bomber to great effectiveness in that war.

General Ryan is a command pilot with more than 4,100 hours flying time in seven different aircraft, including 153 combat missions. His decorations and medals include: the Defense Distinguished Service Medal with oak leaf cluster; the Distinguished Service Medal; the Legion of Merit with two oak leaf clusters; the Distinguished Flying Cross; the Meritorious Service Medal with oak leaf clusters; the Air Medal with 11 oak leaf clusters; the Air Force Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters; and the Vietnam Service Medal with three service stars.

After serving as the commander of the United States Air Force in Europe and commander of the allied air forces in central Europe, General Ryan took the stick of the Air Force as its 16th chief of staff.

History has proven that a true leader sets the right vector and then clears the path to allow his commanders to truly command their units.

General Ryan personifies this type of leader, and I quote, “I do not think leadership should be personalized. Good ideas are best when they do not have a single identity. Leadership is a team effort.” I want to take a moment, if I can, to identify the remarkable accomplishments of General Ryan’s team effort.

He and his leadership team have successfully arrested the Air Force readiness decline of the last decade. They have built stability into the expeditionary operations our Nation demands by reorganizing the United States Air Force.

He has led the Air Force retention and recruiting effort that ensured quality with numbers sacrificed for quantity in an all-volunteer force competing in a strong job market.

He led the effort to provide lifetime health care and a retirement system that properly compensates the member’s family to this country. He was a people person, and he believed in the people that were in the United States Air Force.

In a period of leadership challenges, General Ryan led our Air Force through 4 tumultuous years, balancing reduction in force with increased operational tasking.

Without question, the United States Air Force is the world’s premier aerospace force, and our country owes a debt of gratitude to General Mike Ryan.

One key contributor to the U.S. Air Force “One family, one Air Force” and a person General Ryan owes much of his success to is his wife, Jane Ryan, who was instrumental in dealing with the personnel problems of the military throughout the Air Force.

With dignity and grace, she selflessly gave her time and attention to the men and women of the Air Force family. Her sacrifice and devotion served as an example and inspiration for others.

The Air Force lost not one but two very exceptional people.

Last Thursday’s review ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base was a demonstration of the total force concept that exemplified the superb ability of our airmen and officers that General Ryan has led and improved during his tenure.

Those F-4D that flew by were a symbol of his career as fighter pilot and his combat excellence. He actually flew in an F-16 the day before.

In closing, the Air Force is a better institution and a better employer to the Air Force family. Her sacrifice and devotion served as an example and inspiration for others.

The Air Force lost not one but two very exceptional people.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Isakson) at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

Out of the depths, David cries to You, O Lord, in Psalm 130.

Lord, on an ordinary September Monday, caught up in routine, it may be difficult for us to be in touch with our depths.

Yet, when aware of the pain in some hearts or when we truly face the complexity of issues overshadowing our responsibilities, we need Your mercy.

Help us to sense Your forgiveness behind every mistaken judgment of the past.

Guide our decisions today and throughout this week, that much may be accomplished and be recognized as Your providential care behind every event.

For it is Your justice and Your peace which holds the aspirations of the American people together.

Longing for Your presence, O Lord, make us watchful for Your movements and personal reflection and in honest discussion, so Your glory may be evident in our deeds.

By Your grace penetrate our souls, that we may live and pray from the depths now and forever.

Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Isakson). The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Will the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Rodriguez) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. Rodriguez led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

U.N. CONFERENCE ON RACISM

Mr. Coble asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.

Mr. Coble. Mr. Speaker and colleagues, the most recent issue of the Weekly Standard features a Charles Krauthammer article entitled Disgrace in Dublin, referring to the recently concluded U.N. Conference on Racism.

Mr. Krauthammer suggests that their conference included Third World dictators practicing their demagoguery, hopefully to the detriment of Israel.

He further suggests that the conference had the trappings reminiscent of pre-World War II in Nazi Germany, a Nuremberg rally, if you will, and these same dictators were pointing indirectly or directly accusatory fingers at the United States because of our friendship with Israel.

This sort of activity serves no good purpose, and President Bush is to be commended for his refusal to legitimize or dignify the disgrace in Durbin.

AMERICA NEEDS IMMEDIATE CAPITAL GAINS TAX RELIEF

Mr. Pence asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. Pence. Mr. Speaker, today the United States is burdened with one of the highest capital gains taxes of any industrial nation. The effect puts our country’s companies and workers at a severe disadvantage.

On average, the capital of U.S. businesses and farmers is taxed 80 percent higher than our foreign competitors. The economy needs and those who we represent deserve immediate capital gains tax relief.

The capital gains tax is an assault on the American dream. For many low- and moderate-income workers, one of the ways of accumulating wealth is through investment in stocks and businesses.

When the government puts a high tax on capital gains, people who lose the most from the high rate are the poorest, the youngest, those in the beginning of their careers, those who are further from the sources of capital.

Policies that punish success ultimately kill the seeds that promise enterprise and jobs to the poor. Those in our communities are asking for our help, Mr. Speaker.

Your message to us, to the President and all in this Congress could not be clearer: give us the seed capital for inner-city jobs and investments. Turn this economy around, cut capital gains and cut capital gains taxes now.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE HONORABLE TOM SAWYER, MEMBER OF CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Honorable Tom Sawyer, Member of Congress:

COMMUNICATION FROM THE HONORABLE TOM SAWYER, MEMBER OF CONGRESS

H5458 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE September 10, 2001

Hon. J. Dennis Hastert, Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Speaker: This is to notify you formally, pursuant to Rule VIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, that I have been served with a subpoena for testimony issued by the Court of Common Pleas of Summit County, Ohio.
After consultation with the Office of General Counsel, I will make the determinations required by Rule VIII.

Sincerely,

TOM SAWYER

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that he will postpone further proceedings today on each motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record votes or postponed questions will be taken after debate has concluded on all motions to suspend the rules, but not before 6 p.m. today.

OIL REGION NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA ACT

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker: I move to suspend the rules and pass the H.R. 695 to establish the Oil Region National Heritage Area, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 695

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; DEFINITIONS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Oil Region National Heritage Area Act." (b) DEFINITIONS.—For the purposes of this Act, the following definitions shall apply:

(1) HERITAGE AREA.—The term "Heritage Area" means the Oil Region National Heritage Area established in section 3(a).

(2) MANAGEMENT ENTITY.—The term "management entity" means the Oil Heritage Region, Inc., the locally based private, nonprofit management corporation which shall oversee the development of a management plan in accordance with section 5(b).

(3) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Interior.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) The Oil Region of Northwestern Pennsylvania, with numerous sites and districts listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and designated as a Unique Area of Pennsylvania as one of the State Heritage Areas, is a region with tremendous physical and natural resources and possesses a story of State, national, and international significance.

(2) The single event of Colonel Edwin Drake's drilling of the world's first successful oil well in 1859 has affected the industrial, natural, social, and political structures of the modern world.

(3) Six national historic districts are located within the State Heritage Park boundary, in Embleton, Franklin City, and Titusville, as well as 17 separate National Register sites.

(4) The Allegheny River, which was designated as a component of the national wild and scenic rivers system in 1992 by Public Law 102-271, traverses the Oil Region and connects several of its major sites, as do some of the river's tributaries such as Oil Creek, French Creek, and Sandy Creek.

(5) The unspoiled rural character of the Region provides many natural and recreational resources, scenic vistas, and excellent water-quality for people throughout the United States to enjoy.

(6) Remnants of the oil industry, visible on the landscape to this day, provide a direct link to the past for visitors and demonstrate the history of these settlements, riverbed settlements, plateau developments, farmlands, and industrial landscapes.

(7) The Oil Region also represents a cross section of American history associated with Native Americans, frontier settlements, the French and Indian War, African Americans and the Underground Railroad.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to:

(1) make available under this Act for purposes of preparing, updating, and implementing the management plan developed under subsection (a) a detailed description and map of the boundaries established under this subsection.

(2) authorize the Secretary to conduct public meetings at least annually in the Heritage Area to provide information to the public on the management plan.

(3) provide for an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area and that should be preserved, restored, managed, protected or maintained because of its cultural, historical, recreational, or scenic significance.

(4) authorize the Secretary to conduct public meetings to provide information to the public on the management plan.

(5) includes an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area and that should be preserved, restored, managed, protected or maintained because of its cultural, historical, recreational, or scenic significance.

(6) includes an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area and that should be preserved, restored, managed, protected or maintained because of its cultural, historical, recreational, or scenic significance.

(7) describes a program for implementation of the management plan by the management entity and specifies the existing and potential sources of funding to support, manage, and develop the Heritage Area.

(8) includes an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area and that should be preserved, restored, managed, protected or maintained because of its cultural, historical, recreational, or scenic significance.

(9) includes an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area and that should be preserved, restored, managed, protected or maintained because of its cultural, historical, recreational, or scenic significance.

(10) includes an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area and that should be preserved, restored, managed, protected or maintained because of its cultural, historical, recreational, or scenic significance.

SEC. 3. OIL REGION NATIONAL HERITAGE AREA.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is hereby established the Oil Region National Heritage Area.

(b) BOUNDARIES.—The boundaries of the Heritage Area shall include all of those lands depicted on a map entitled "Oil Region National Heritage Area", numbered OIRE20/20.000 and dated October, 1992, as if it were on file in the appropriate offices of the National Park Service.

(c) DEADLINE; TERMINATION OF FUNDING.—

(1) DEADLINE.—If a management plan is not submitted to the Secretary within 2 years after the funds are made available for this Act.

(2) TERMINATION OF FUNDING.—If a management plan is not submitted to the Secretary in accordance with this subsection, the management entity shall not qualify for Federal assistance under this Act.

SEC. 4. COMPACT.

To carry out the purposes of this Act, the Secretary shall enter into a compact with the management entity. The compact shall include information relative to the objectives and management of the area, including a discussion of the goals and objectives of the Heritage Area, including an explanation of the proposed approach to conservation and interpretation and an overall outline of the protection measures committed to by the Secretary and management entity.

SEC. 5. AUTHORITIES AND DUTIES OF MANAGEMENT ENTITY.

(a) AUTHORITY OF THE MANAGEMENT ENTITY.—The management entity may use funds made available under this Act for purposes of preparing, updating, and implementing the management plan developed under subsection (b). Such purposes may include:

(1) making grants to, and entering into cooperative agreements with, States and their political subdivisions, private organizations, or any other person;

(2) hiring and compensating staff;

(3) undertaking initiatives that advance the purposes of the Heritage Area;

(b) MANAGEMENT PLAN.—The management entity shall develop a management plan for the Heritage Area that—

(1) presents comprehensive strategies and recommendations for conservation, funding, management, and development of the Heritage Area;

(2) takes into consideration existing State, county, and local governments, residents organizations, public agencies, and private organizations working in the Heritage Area;

(3) includes a description of actions that units of government, including units of local government, and area citizens in the Heritage Area shall take to assist the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, its units of local government, and area citizens in promoting the cultural, national, and recreational resources in a manner consistent with supporting appropriate and compatible economic viability.

(c) REPORTS.—The Secretary shall—

(1) submit the management plan to the Secretary no later than 5 years of implementation; and

(2) include an analysis of ways in which local, State, and Federal programs, including the role for the National Park Service in the Heritage Area, may be coordinated to promote the purposes of this Act;

(3) includes a description of actions that units of government, including units of local government, and area citizens in the Heritage Area shall take to assist the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, its units of local government, and area citizens in promoting the cultural, national, and recreational resources in a manner consistent with supporting appropriate and compatible economic viability.

(d) REPORTS.—The Secretary shall include:

(1) provide for an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area.

(e) REPORTS.—The Secretary shall include:

(1) provide for an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area.

(f) REPORTS.—The Secretary shall include:

(1) provide for an inventory of the resources contained in the Heritage Area.
(C) require, for all agreements entered into by the management entity authorizing expenditure of Federal funds by any other person, that the person making the expenditure make available to the management entity for audit all records pertaining to the expenditure of such funds.

(e) PROHIBITION ON THE ACQUISITION OF REAL PROPERTY.—The management entity may not use Federal funds under this Act to acquire real property or an interest in real property.

SEC. 6. DUTIES AND AUTHORITIES OF THE SECRETARY.

(a) TECHNICAL AND FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—(1) IN GENERAL.—(A) TECHNICAL AND FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary may, upon the request of the management entity, and subject to the availability of appropriations, provide technical and financial assistance to the management entity to carry out its duties under this Act, including updating and implementing a management plan that is submitted under section 5(b) and approved by the Secretary and, prior to such approval, providing assistance for initiatives.

(B) OTHER ASSISTANCE.—If the Secretary has the resources available to provide technical assistance to the management entity to carry out its duties under this Act (including updating and implementing a management plan that is submitted under section 5(b) and approved by the Secretary), the Secretary may provide assistance to the management entity to carry out its duties under this Act (including updating and implementing a management plan that is submitted under section 5(b) and approved by the Secretary and, prior to such approval, providing assistance for initiatives), upon the request of the management entity the Secretary shall provide such assistance on a reimbursable basis.

This subparagraph does not preclude the Secretary from providing nonreimbursable assistance under subparagraph (A).

(2) PRIORITY.—In assisting the management entity, the Secretary shall give priority to actions that assist the—

(A) implementation of the management plan;

(B) provision of educational assistance and outreach and assistance to water management communities for significant natural resources of the region;

(C) development and application of techniques promoting the preservation of cultural and historical properties;

(D) preservation, restoration, and reuse of publicly and privately owned historic buildings;

(E) design and fabrication of a wide range of interpretative materials based on the management plan, including guide books, visitor displays, websites, interactive exhibits, and educational curriculum materials for public education; and

(F) implementation of initiatives prior to approval of the management plan.

(3) DOCUMENTATION OF STRUCTURES.—The Secretary, acting through the Historic American Building Survey and the Historic American Engineering Record, shall conduct studies necessary to document the industrial, engineering, building, and architectural history of the Heritage Area.

(b) APPROVAL AND DISAPPROVAL OF MANAGEMENT PLANS.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Governor of Pennsylvania, shall approve or disapprove a management plan submitted, at the request of the management entity, not later than 90 days after receiving such plan. In approving the plan, the Secretary shall take into consideration the following criteria:

(1) The extent to which the management plan adequately preserves and protects the natural, cultural, and historical resources of the Heritage Area;

(2) The level of public participation in the development of the management plan.

(3) The extent to which the board of directors of the management entity is representative of the local government and a wide range of interested organizations and citizens.

(c) ACTION FOLLOWING DISAPPROVAL.—If the Secretary disapproves a management plan, the Secretary shall advise the management entity in writing of the reasons for the disapproval and shall make recommendations for revisions in the management plan. The Secretary shall approve or disapprove a proposed revision within 90 days after the date it is submitted.

(d) APPEALS.—If the Secretary disapproves a proposed revision within 90 days after the date it is submitted, then such management plan, revision, or change shall be deemed to have been approved by the Secretary.

SEC. 7. DUTIES OF OTHER FEDERAL ENTITIES.

Any Federal entity conducting or supporting activities directly affecting the Heritage Area shall—

(1) consult with the Secretary and the management entity with respect to such activities;

(2) cooperate with the Secretary and the management entity in carrying out their duties under this Act and, to the maximum extent practicable, coordinate such activities with the carrying out of such duties; and

(3) to the maximum extent practicable, conduct or support program or other activities within the area that the management entity determines shall not have an adverse effect on the Heritage Area.

SEC. 8. SUNSET.

The Secretary may not make any grant or provide any assistance under this Act after the expiration of the 15-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 9. USE OF FEDERAL FUNDS FROM OTHER SOURCES.

Nothing in this Act shall preclude the management entity from using Federal funds available under this Act for the purposes for which those funds were authorized.

SEC. 10. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act—

(1) not more than $1,000,000 for any fiscal year; and

(2) not more than a total of $10,000,000.

(b) 50 PERCENT MATCH.—Financial assistance provided under this Act may not be used to pay more than 50 percent of the total cost of any activity carried out with that assistance.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON). Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania, Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I am delighted to be here today to discuss H.R. 695, The Oil Region National Heritage Area. I would like to thank the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN) and the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. HEFLER) and their staff for their hard work in bringing this bill to the floor today. This legislation is vital to the protection and conservation of the natural, cultural, and historical resources of the modern era.

The 1859 event of Colonel Edwin Drake's drilling of the world's first successful oil well has had a tremendous effect on the commercial history of petroleum in the United States begins at Drake Well located along Oil Creek near Titusville, Pennsylvania, in fact, 5 miles from my home. The tools, the terminology, and the transportation and financial and extraction processes of the oil industry were developed here in the latter part of the 19th century and are still used today. Oil and petroleum products have been known to mankind for thousands of years. In the automobile, the industrial revolution, and the creation of petroleum-based products such as plastics.

Oil has been recognized as a potential significant substance long before Drake's well. Called the attention of the world to this corner of Northwestern Pennsylvania. Many accounts of the Allegheny valleys and its tributaries tell of springs and streams whose surfaces were covered with a thick, oily substance. Because of this, the Oil Creek Valley was so named even before Drake's well. In addition, Native Americans of the Seneca tribe gathered and traded oil, giving rise to the name 'Seneca Oil.' About 1477, a Pennsylvania named Sam Keir devised a way to distill petroleum into lamp fuel which he called "carbon fuel." The discovery of oil caused a stampede of people, with whole towns and hundreds of new oil wells quickly appearing.

Pacifistic words and meanings in the American language originated or were adopted for use in this territory: wildcatter, bird dog, gusher, pay dirt, shooter, and cash on the barrel head. Heroes and villains, enormous wealth, tremendous, violence, and environmental degradation are part of this story.

Forests were clear-cut to provide railroad ties and material to build oil derricks, bridges and buildings. Early black and white pictures show a denuded landscape devoid of any trees or foliage. Part of the story that visitors learn about when they visit the current area of the Oil Heritage Park includes the degradation and restoration of the forests. Now, the visitors can see the streams, creeks, and ecosystems. When I was a boy, you could not swim in many of these streams. Now we have some of the best trout and bass fishing in the East. I am grateful technology has improved over the years so that we can manage our natural resources in a way that is beneficial to all.

The creation of the Oil Region National Heritage Area enjoys widespread support from local citizens, government officials, businesses, non-profit organizations, and the National Park Service testified about their reluctance to create this heritage area. However, at my urging, they agreed to conduct a feasibility study. The team went into this study with trepidation; however, they came away supportive and enthusiastic about the creation of the Oil Region National Heritage Area.

In February, we conducted two town hall meetings where elected officials, community leaders, businesses and concerned citizens met to discuss the merits of the national designation. No negative comments were voiced concerning the creation of the Oil Region National Heritage Area.
National Heritage Area. Sixty-eight people attended the meetings and every person who commented spoke favorably. As my colleagues can see, Mr. Speaker, this endeavor was founded with true grassroots support.

Today, Pennsylvania is no longer a major contributor to U.S. oil production; however, hundreds of active wells still dot the landscape. Oil Creek and its tributaries now run clear. Hillside creeks that once were oil soaked and clear-cut now exist as mature forests. All of the major oil companies now have their roots here, including Sunoco, Standard Oil, Pennzoil, Quaker State, and Texaco. Oil fueled the industrial revolution and modernized America’s transportation system. It is vital that we preserve and enhance the area that is called “the valley that changed the world,” the birthplace of commercial petroleum.

Through the establishment of the Oil Region National Heritage Area, we are allowing this great story to be told through maintenance of exhibits, restoration of buildings, and the development of educational and recreational opportunities. I would like to thank the cosponsors of H.R. 695, including my good friend, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), a neighbor. In fact, the majority of the Pennsylvania delegation supports the creation of the Oil Region National Heritage Area, and I would like to thank them as well. This bill is supported by the majority and minority party of the Congress on both sides of the aisle.

It is indeed now time to recognize the national significance of this great region by designating the Oil Region as a National Heritage Area. I hope my colleagues will want to support H.R. 695, as amended.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time. (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation would establish a new national heritage area in Pennsylvania. The purpose of the new designation would be to commemorate the first successful efforts to drill for oil in the mid-19th century and to preserve historical and cultural resources of the time. The area included in this new designation is already included in this new designation had at the time, no study of the area to be included. In addition, the administration raised several technical issues regarding the bill. However, since that time, a study has been completed and the area was found to be appropriate for this type of designation. Further, the sponsor of the bill has made the changes suggested by the administration and, with those changes, we join the administration in supporting H.R. 695.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 695, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EL CAMINO REAL DE LOS TEJAS NATIONAL HISTORIC TRAIL ACT OF 2001

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1628) to amend the National Trails System Act to designate El Camino Real de los Tejas as a National Historic Trail.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 1628

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail Act of 2001”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) El Camino Real de los Tejas (The Royal Road to the Tejas) served as the primary route between the Spanish viceregal capital of Mexico and the Spanish provincial capital of Tejas at Las Ades (1721-1773) and San Antonio (1773-1821);

(2) the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth-century rivalries among the European colonial powers of Spain, France, and England and after their independence, Mexico and the United States, for dominion over lands fronting the Gulf of Mexico, are played out along the evolving travel routes in this immense area;

(3) the future of several American Indian nations and their representatives were involved in and affected by the complex cultural interactions that ensued;

(4) the Old San Antonio Road was a series of routes established in the early 17th century by the same corridor and connected routes of El Camino Real, and carried American immigrants from the east, contributing to the formation of the Republic of Texas, and its annexation to the United States;

(5) the exploration, conquest, colonization, settlement, migration, military occupation, religious conversion, and cultural exchange that occurred in Spanish and Mexican-influencee northeastward, and by its successor, the Old San Antonio Road, which carried American influence westward, during a historic period which extended from 1689 to 1850; and

(6) the portions of El Camino Real de los Tejas in what is now the United States extended from the Rio Grande near Eagle Pass and Laredo, Texas to Natchitoches, Louisiana, a general corridor distance of 550 miles.

SEC. 3. AUTHORIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Section 5(a) of the National Trails System Act (16 U.S.C. 1249(a)) is amended as follows:

(1) by designating the paragraph relating to the Alia Kahakai National Historic Trail as paragraph (21); and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(22) EL CAMINO REAL DE LOS TEJAS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—El Camino Real de los Tejas (The Royal Road to the Tejas) National Historic Trail, a combination of routes totaling 2,580 miles in length from the Rio Grande near Eagle Pass and Laredo, Texas to Natchitoches, Louisiana, and including the Old San Antonio Road, as generally depicted on the maps entitled ‘El Camino Real de los Tejas’, contained in the report prepared pursuant to subsection (b) entitled National Historic Trail Feasibility Study and Environmental Assessment: El Camino Real de los Tejas, Texas-Louisiana’, dated July 1986. A map generally depicting the trail shall be on file and available for public inspection in the Office of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior. The trail shall be administered by the Secretary of the Interior.

“(B) COORDINATION OF ACTIVITIES.—The Secretary of the Interior may coordinate with United States and Mexican public and non-governmental organizations, academic institutions, and, in consultation with the Secretary of State, the Government of Mexico and its political subdivisions, for the purpose of exchanging trail information and research, fostering trail preservation and educational programs, providing technical assistance, and working to create an international historic trail with complementary preservation and education programs in each nation.”

SEC. 4. PRIVATE PROPERTY RIGHTS PROTECTION.

Designation of El Camino Real de los Tejas under this Act does not itself confer any additional authority to apply other existing Federal laws and regulations on non-Federal lands along the trail. Laws or regulations requiring public entities and agencies to take into consideration a national historic trail shall continue to apply notwithstanding the foregoing. On non-Federal lands, the national historic trail shall be established only when landowners voluntarily request certification of their sites on the trail consistent with section 3(a)(3) of the National Trails System Act. Notwithstanding section 7(g) of such Act, the United States is authorized to acquire privately owned real property or an interest in such property for purposes of the trail only with the willing consent of the owner of such property, and shall not condemn or otherwise appropriate privately owned real property or an interest in such property for the purposes of the trail.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON) and the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands...
We commend our colleague, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ), and are pleased to support him for his hard work on this legislation. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1628.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1628 would establish the El Camino Real de los Tejas National Trail to the National Trails System. The Camino Real, also known as the Royal Road, is a combination of historic routes totaling 2,600 miles used by the Spanish to connect them to Spanish Capitals. The history of the trail extends from early American Indian nations to modern exploration and colonization.

Today, the trail extends from the Texas-Mexico border along the Rio Grande River to Natchitoches, Louisiana. These roads were primary transportation routes starting in the 1600s, and thus had significant influences on the culture and political identity of south central Texas and western Louisiana.

In addition to the designation as a National Trail, H.R. 1628 would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to coordinate an international effort to recognize the significance of this trail, and foster education and research of its history with the country of Mexico.

Finally, H.R. 1628 specifies that the acquisition of privately-owned land or interest in land would occur only with the consent of the owner.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1628 is supported by the majority and the minority, as well as the administration. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1628.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, a study authorized by the 103rd Congress found that the El Camino Real de los Tejas was eligible for designation as a National Historic Trail under criteria established by the National Trails System Act, H.R. 1628, which will officially add this new route to our National Trails System.

The trail would be comprised of several different and overlapping routes totaling more than 2,500 miles. Beginning on the U.S.-Mexican border between the Texas cities of Eagle Pass and Laredo, the trail would run across Texas through cities including San Antonio, and end in the town of Natchitoches, Louisiana.

These routes were established around 1860 during the Spanish colonial period and remained in use through the early 1880s. During that time, these trails played a significant role in the settlement and economic development of the Texas frontier during the Spanish, Mexican, and Anglo-American periods.

This legislation makes clear that the trail may only be established with the consent of any affected private landowners, and mandates that any land acquisition for trail purposes may be from willing sellers only.
focal point for military battles for Texas independence. Critical supplies made their way to the American Colonies during the war of independence via the Camino Real de los Tejas trail system.

The El Camino Real de los Tejas road system provided many transportation routes for Mexican and Texan armies during the Texas revolution, and continued to play a major role in the military future of the area.

Recognizing the significant importance of El Camino Real de los Tejas and its historical importance grounds us for the future and provides us great opportunities for today. The trail’s designation will help enhance tourism and economic development for many of the small cities that it goes through, and for the towns and trails that it passes through. The local museums as well as historical sites will give new opportunities for growth.

The San Antonio Missions National Historical Park and the importance of the beautification network of the mission in San Antonio will provide a base for operation of the trail. The number of public roads, State parks, and national forests can also provide public access to this important piece of our history.

As we strive to boost international trade and development of our local communities, as well as enhance educational opportunities, we only have to look to the El Camino Real de los Tejas for inspiration.

I can just add once again, I thank the gentleman very much. We always talk about the westward movement. We forget there was a northward movement also, and a southern movement.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 1628, the Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail Act. I want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ) for his leadership on this legislation, as well as the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. HEFLEY), chairman of the Subcommittee on National Parks, Recreation, and Public Land, and its ranking member, the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN).

This trail runs through my hometown of Crockett, as well as several other communities in my district, such as Nacogdoches and Augustine. It is a very historic part of our State in East Texas. I am proud to represent the congressional district once represented by Sam Houston.

This historic highway system, which has served Texas for over 150 years, was, beginning in 1689, one of the primary exploration, commerce, and immigration routes through our great State of Texas. The highway, as has been mentioned, extends from Mexico across the Rio Grande all the way up through East Texas into Louisiana. The trail covers over 2,600 miles in all.

I have received resolutions in favor of this legislation from numerous communities along the trail urging that this highway be designated as a National Historic Trail. I am proud to join with my colleagues here on the floor today advocating that the House adopt H.R. 1628 to designate the El Camino Real as a National Historic Trail.

Mr. PETE PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to share with the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ) that we are delighted to support his bill, and urge fellow Members to do likewise. Likewise, Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1628, the El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail Act of 2001. I want to commend my colleague, Representative RODRIGUEZ of Economic development throughout the region.

H.R. 1628, the El Camino Real de los Tejas National Historic Trail Act of 2001, is a good bill because it provides for the protection and conservation of our cultural heritage. The enactment of H.R. 1628 will serve to continue recognizing the cultural heritage and preservation of the Southwest United States. The measure will also go a long way in strengthening the many common ties between the United States and Mexico that are symbolized by and embodied in the Camino Reales of the Southwest.

The El Camino Real de los Tejas has connected the people of Mexico and the United States in transportation and commerce. This bill would help recognize and designate this network of trade routes to do likewise, cattle trails and military highways used by Native Americans, Spanish, French and English explorers. Moreover, this bill illustrates the historical importance of these corridors and will contribute to the enhancement of tourism and economic development throughout the region.

Designating El Camino Real de los Tejas as a National Historic Trail will, undoubtedly reconnect our citizens even more closely to the ties of historical and cultural heritage with Mexico and Spain. Revitalizing the Camino Real de los Tejas will also allow the larger family of Americans to participate in and benefit from that effort. It will lead to a more rounded, more holistic view of the history of our continent, one that will enable us to continue to discover and explore the commonalities that bond the U.S. with Mexico and Spain.

Last year, Representative SYLVESTRE REYES and I sponsored similar legislation that was signed by President Clinton. That measure designated El Camino Real de Tierra Adentro, which ran from El Paso, Texas to San Juan Pueblo in New Mexico as a National Historic Trail.

H.R. 1628 is equally important to the preservation of our cultural resources. Again, I commend Mr. RODRIGUEZ for introducing this legislation and urge my colleagues to support it.

I hope that together through efforts like this, we can continue to expand cultural heritage preservation and tourism initiatives throughout the Southwest. In doing so, we celebrate our rich cultural history while expanding economic opportunities.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PETE PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 434) to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into a cooperative agreement to provide for retention, maintenance, and operation, at private expense, of the 18 concrete dams and weirs located within the boundaries of the Emigrant Wilderness in the Stanislaus National Forest, California, and for other purposes, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 434
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Emigrant Wilderness Preservation Act of 2001”.

SEC. 2. OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF CERTAIN WATER IMPOUNDMENT STRUCTURES IN THE EMIGRANT WILDERNESS, STANISLAUS NATIONAL FOREST, CALIFORNIA.

(a) COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT FOR MAINTENANCE AND OPERATION.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall enter into a cooperative agreement with a non-Federal entity described in subsection (c), under which the entity will retain, maintain, and operate at private expense the water impoundment structures specified in subsection (b) that are located within the boundaries of the Emigrant Wilderness in the Stanislaus National Forest, California, as designated by section 2(b) of Public Law 93-632 (88 Stat. 2154; 16 U.S.C. 1132 note).

(1) Cow Meadow Lake.
(2) Y-Meadow Lake.
(3) Huckleberry Lake.
(4) Long Lake.
(5) Lower Buck Lake.
(6) Leighton Lake.
(7) High Emigrant Lake.
(8) Emigrant Meadows Lake.
(9) Middle Emigrant Lake.
(10) Emigrant Lake.
(11) Snow Lake.
(12) Bigelow Lake.

(c) ELIGIBLE ENTITY.—The following non-Federal entities are eligible to enter into the cooperative agreement under subsection (a):

(1) A non-profit organization as defined in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 501(c)(3)).
(2) The State of California or a political subdivision of the State.
(3) A private individual, organization, corporation, or other legal entity.

(d) RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY.—

(1) MAP.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall prepare a map identifying the location, size, and type of each water impoundment structure covered by the cooperative agreement under subsection (a).

(2) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF AGREEMENT.—The Secretary shall prescribe the terms and conditions of the cooperative agreement, which shall set forth the rights and obligations of the Secretary and the non-Federal entity. At a minimum,

(A) require the non-Federal entity to operate and maintain the water impoundment structures covered by the agreement in accordance with a plan of operation approved by the Secretary;

(B) require approval by the Secretary of all operation and maintenance activities to be conducted by the non-Federal entity;

(C) require the non-Federal entity to comply with all applicable State and Federal environmental, public health, and safety requirements; and

(D) establish enforcement standards, including termination of the cooperative agreement for noncompliance by the non-Federal entity with the terms and conditions.

(3) COMPLIANCE.—The Secretary shall ensure that the non-Federal entity remains in compliance with the terms and conditions of this section and the cooperative agreement.

(e) RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS.—

(f) EXPANSION OF AGREEMENT TO COVER ADDITIONAL STRUCTURES.—In the case of the six water impoundment structures located within the boundaries of the Emigrant Wilderness, but not specified in subsection (b), the Secretary of Agriculture may expand the scope of the cooperative agreement under subsection (a) to cover additional water impoundment structures located within the boundaries of the Emigrant Wilderness.

The Secretary may engage in the following feasibility studies to identify ways to meet future domestic and commercial water distribution needs:

(2) The Lower Elwha Klallam Rural Water Supply Feasibility Study, to identify additional rural water supply sources for the Lower Elwha Indian Reservation on the Olympic Peninsula, Washington.

(3) The Makah Community Water Source Project Feasibility Study, to identify ways to meet the current and future domestic and commercial water supply and distribution needs of the Makah Indian Tribe on the Olympic Peninsula, Washington.

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Agriculture $20,000 to cover administrative costs incurred by the Secretary to comply with the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) in carrying out this section.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON) and the gentleman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON).

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend and colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLITTLE), for his work on H.R. 434, the Emigrant Wilderness Protection Act. This bill would give the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to enter into a cooperative agreement with non-Federal entities to retain, maintain, and operate at private expense the 12 small check dams and weirs, located within the Emigrant Wilderness boundary. The work would be done under terms and conditions established by the Secretary and without use of mechanized transport or motorized equipment. The bill authorizes $20,000 to be appropriated to cover administrative costs incurred by the Secretary to comply with the National Environmental Policy Act.

Although not specifically indicated within the legislation, it is widely believed to have been the intent of Congress when it passed the Emigrant Wilderness Act in 1974 to preserve 18 check dam structures. Report language for the 1974 act explained: ‘‘Within the area recommended for wilderness designation, there are drift fences, five miles long, which will be maintained, but several cabins and barns will be removed within 10 years. Two snow cabins will be retained. The weirs and small dams will likewise be retained,’’ House Report No. 93-989, page 10, April 11, 1974.

This is a good, well thought-out, common-sense bill, Mr. Speaker; and I urge my colleagues to support the measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

H.R. 434 would allow for the nonmotorized maintenance and repair of 12 concrete dams in the Emigrant Wilderness in the Stanislaus National Forest in California. The bill would allow the Forest Service to enter into cooperative agreements to delegate the maintenance work and expense to private parties. These weirs were built between 1931 and 1954 and were in existence when Congress designated the wilderness area in 1974. Several provide water during the dry seasons for trout habitat.

Although dams generally do not belong in Wilderness and the forest planning process is addressing this issue, several factors make the bill acceptable: first, litigation threatens to drag the planning process out for years. Second, these dams, some of which are eligible for listing on the National Register for Historic Places, predate the establishment of the Wilderness, have a history of nonmotorized maintenance, and, are, for the most part, unobtrusive. Finally, the expense is not borne by the taxpayer.

As reported out of committee, this bill represents a reasonable compromise, reducing the number of dams maintained from 18 to 12 and mirroring the bill that passed the House last Congress. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 434, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: ‘‘A bill to direct the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into a cooperative agreement to provide for retention, maintenance, and operation, at private expense, of 12 concrete dams and weirs located within the boundaries of the Emigrant Wilderness in the Stanislaus National Forest, California, and for other purposes.’’

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST FEASIBILITY STUDIES ACT OF 2001

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1937) to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to engage in certain feasibility studies of water resource projects in the State of Washington, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Pacific Northwest Feasibility Studies Act of 2001’’.

SEC. 2. AUTHORIZATION OF FEASIBILITY STUDIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Interior may engage in the following feasibility studies:

(2) The Lower Elwha Klallam Rural Water Supply Feasibility Study, to identify additional rural water supply sources for the Lower Elwha Indian Reservation on the Olympic Peninsula, Washington.

(3) The Makah Community Water Source Project Feasibility Study, to identify ways to meet the current and future domestic and commercial water supply and distribution needs of the Makah Indian Tribe on the Olympic Peninsula, Washington.

(b) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF RESULTS.—The Secretary of the Interior shall make available to the public, upon request, the results of each feasibility study authorized under subsection (a), and shall promptly publish in the Federal Register a notice of the availability of those results.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON) and the gentleman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PETERSON).

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1937, authored by the gentleman from Washington State (Mr. LARSEN) will authorize the Secretary of the Interior to conduct feasibility studies for three Native American tribes in the State of Washington. The purpose of the studies is to investigate the feasibility of providing potable water and wastewater distribution systems to meet the future domestic and commercial needs of the tribes.

This is a noncontroversial bill, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I rise in strong support as well of H.R. 1937, the Pacific Northwest Feasibility Studies Act. I congratulate my colleague, the gentleman from Washington State (Mr. LARSEN), for his hard work in bringing this bill to the House floor today.

H.R. 1937 authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to engage in water supply feasibility studies to benefit several Native American communities in the State of Washington. The studies will help the communities to identify the best systems to meet their water supply and distribution needs for domestic, rural, and commercial water users.

The bill also requires the Secretary to make the results of these studies available to the public and to publish a notice of the availability of study results. The report and accompanying environmental and economic analyses will provide the Congress with recommendations on how best to proceed with cost-effective and environmentally sound solutions to the water problems facing these communities.

This legislation enjoys broad support, and I encourage my colleagues to support H.R. 1937.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. LARSEN), the sponsor of H.R. 1937.

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I just want to take a few minutes to speak on behalf of H.R. 1937, the Pacific Northwest Feasibility Studies Act of 2001.

I first want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. CALVERT) and the gentleman from Utah (Mr. HANSEN) on the Republican side, and the gentleman from California (Mr. RAHALL) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DICKS), the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH), and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE) on the Democratic side for their support in shepherding this legislation to the floor today.

I just want to point out this bill authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to conduct water feasibility studies for three Native American tribes in Washington State. I want to speak briefly about one in particular, which is my district, the Tulalip Tribe. The Tulalip reservation is located outside of Marysville and covers approximately 35 square miles. The permanent population of the reservation is under 7,000 and continues to grow significantly, but during the summer and holidays the reservation population increases by up to 40 percent.

Like many American Indian reservations, the Tulalip reservation faces groundwater access barriers due to the presence of glacial sediments, a shallow aquifer system, bordering salt water and limited drainage. Likewise, most of the current drinking water on the reservation comes supplied from a patchwork of public and private wells. Continued degradation of the water resources on the reservation will limit the development of the reservation and surrounding areas.

The study that this bill authorizes is vital to ensure the long-term safety and accessibility of groundwater on the reservation. So I urge my colleagues to support this legislation, H.R. 1937.

Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, in closing, to thank the ranking member, the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN), for her support in helping to bring these four bills to the floor today. Especially the first one, I failed to thank her on the floor for that, so I will do it now.

I want to thank her and all the Members for their support in bringing these four bills forward.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to thank my colleague for those kind words. It has been a pleasure sharing this afternoon with him and getting these bills to the floor and passed, as well as working with him on the committee these several years.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and (two of two Co-chairs agreed).

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS).

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, after 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 2133 to establish a commission for the purpose of encouraging and providing for the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision in Brown v. Board of Education. The Clerk read as follows:

September 10, 2001 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE H5465

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1628, and H.R. 1937, the four bills forward.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as I may consume, in closing, to thank her on the floor for that, so I will do it now.

I want to thank her and all the Members for their support in bringing these four bills forward.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Page 5, line 4, strike out "the Chair" and insert "Chair and Co-chairperson." The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS).

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 2133, the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.
Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

It is my pleasure to rise in support of H.R. 2133 introduced by the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN), which would establish a commission to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Brown versus Board of Education decision. This bill passed the House on June 27, 2001, under suspension of the rules by a vote of 414 to 2 and passed the Senate on August 3 with some amendments. These amendments change how the commission would be formed and who would make the recommendations for commission members.

Mr. Speaker, May 17, 2004, will mark the 50th anniversary of this landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision. This legislation would establish a Federal commission to provide for and encourage the commemoration of that anniversary. Of this decision. See as stated in law schools across the United States, is remembered for its definite interpretation of the 14th amendment to the United States Constitution. The Court stated that the discriminatory nature of racial segregation violates the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which guarantees all citizens equal protection of the laws.

On a human level, the Brown decision has had a dramatic impact on families, communities, and governments by outlawing racial segregation, meaning an end to legal discrimination on any basis. Today, we take it as a given that, as the Court opined at that time, separate educational facilities are inherently unequal.

Cheryl Brown Henderson, of the Brown Foundation, had the idea to establish a commission to prepare for the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of this decision and would bring, my colleague, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN), followed through with legislation to establish it. The commission would work in conjunction with the Department of Education to plan and coordinate public education activities and initiatives through its 10 regional offices. Activities such as public lectures, writing contests, and public awareness campaigns will be included.

The commission is to be comprised of 22 members, including representatives from the Department of Education, the Department of Justice, the NAACP, the AFT, the Brown Foundation, and the Brown v. Board National Historic Site. In addition, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives from the States in which the lawsuits were originally filed, Delaware, Kansas, South Carolina, and Virginia, and from the State of the first legal challenge, Massachusetts, and the District of Columbia would recommend individuals to the Speaker of the House and minority leader and the majority and minority leader in the Senate for the commission.

Ultimately, we hope that this commission will educate Americans about the far-reaching historical impact of this decision and what it has done for this country.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN), the sponsor of this bill.

Mr. RYUN of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank those in the House and the other body for their hard work in bringing this important bill to the floor. Particularly want to thank one of my constituents, Cheryl Brown Henderson, for being the catalyst in this effort to educate America on the Brown versus Board of Education Supreme Court decision.

H.R. 2133 will establish a commission to help educate Americans about the history and ramifications of this landmark case in preparation for the 50th anniversary of the Brown decision. On May 17, 1954, the U.S. Supreme Court issued a definitive interpretation of the 14th amendment that would unequivocally change the landscape of American public education. This decision effectively ended the long-held “separate but equal” doctrine in U.S. education. The Brown decision did not only end the practice of segregation in schools but in conjunction with a number of different Departments, as my colleague just mentioned, the Department of Education, Judicial Branch, NAACP Legal Defense and Education Foundation, and the Brown Foundation, it will also have individuals chosen from the various States where this originated, such as in Delaware, Kansas, South Carolina, and Massachusetts will also serve on the commission. So it will be very far-reaching, but it is a great opportunity to bring all this before the American public.

Establishing a commission will help educate the American public on this decision and will serve as a resounding reminder to our country to struggle and sacrifice required to make equality a reality for all America.

We must not forget these sacrifices that were made in order for equality for all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in honoring this historic and far-reaching Supreme Court decision by supporting H.R. 2133.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2133, the legislation to establish the Brown v. Board of Education 50th Anniversary Commission.

I want to commend my friend and colleague, the gentleman from Chicago, Illinois (Mr. Davis) for his leadership in bringing this bill to the floor as the ranking member and co-sponsor of this bill.

This commission, in conjunction with the Department of Education and the Department of Justice, is charged with planning and coordinating public educational activities, initiatives, writing contests, and public awareness campaigns regarding this anniversary of Brown v. the Board of Education.

Under the bill, the commission will in cooperation with the Brown Foundation for Educational Equity, Excellence, and Research, submit recommendations to the Congress to encourage, plan, and develop the observance of the anniversary. The 50th anniversary of the Brown decision will take place on May 17, 2004. Brown v. the Board of Education is to be commemorated for what it did to address the disparities in the American educational landscape years ago and to help remind us that there is much yet to be done to address the disparities that we struggle with even today.

Education has always been the way up and the way out for America’s youth. Equal educational opportunity is America’s best hope for racial, social, and economic justice. It was because of this fact that in 1951 Oliver Brown and the parents of 12 other black children filed a lawsuit against the Topeka Board of Education protesting the City’s segregation of black and white students. This is why also today parents all across America, particularly parents of color, are demanding that elected officials improve the quality and equality of America’s schools.

In 1997, we know that 93 percent of whites age 25 to 29 had attained a high school diploma or equivalency degree. In that same year, only 87 percent of African-Americans had attained their high school diploma and just 63 percent of Hispanics. Among those who achieved a high school diploma, 37 percent of whites had completed a bachelor’s degree at a college or university compared with only 16 percent of African-Americans and 18 percent of Hispanics. Clearly the statistics revealed to us that we have not yet achieved the goals of Brown v. Board of Education.

Given the increasing importance of skills in our labor market, these gaps in educational attainment translate into significant differences by race and ethnicity in eventual labor market outcomes such as wages and employment.

It is important to remember that the historic Brown v. Board of Education decision, which was announced in May of 1954 by Chief Justice Earl Warren, represented a significant change in our policy in our public schools that has meant much progress for those who were for many years segregated into substandard and unequal classrooms.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to join with me in supporting this very important piece of legislation.
Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today in support of H.R. 2133 which would establish a commission for the purpose of encouraging and providing for the commemoration of the 50th Anniversary on May 17, 2004 of the Supreme Court's unanimous and landmark 1954 decision in Brown v. the Board of Education.

While the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments to the Constitution outlawed slavery, guaranteed rights of citizenship to naturalized citizens and due process, equal protection and voting rights, nearly a century would pass before the last vestiges of "legalized" discrimination and inequity would be effectively revoked. The right of equal protection under the law for African-Americans was dealt a heavy blow with the Supreme Court's 1875 decision to uphold the Plessy decision. The Plessy decision created the infamous "separate but equal" doctrine that made segregation "constitutional" for almost 80 years.

It was not until the 1950's, when the NAACP defense team led by the Honorable Thurgood Marshall as general counsel, launched a national campaign to challenge segregation in many school systems that effective and lasting change was achieved. In five individually unique cases filed in four states and the District of Columbia, the NAACP defense team not only claimed that segregated schools told Black children they were inferior to White children, but that the "separate by equal" ruling in Plessy violated equal protection. Although all five lost in the lower courts, the U.S. Supreme Court accepted each case in turn, hearing them collectively in what became Brown v. Board of Education.

The Brown decision brought a decisive end to segregation and discrimination in our public school systems, and gradually our national, cultural and social consciousness as well.

The first, however, did not end there. We may have overcome segregation and racism, but now the fight is economic, one in which some of our schools are inferior to others because of the lack of educational tools, young people lose hope for the future.

No one challenges the concept of investing in human capital, but it is a well-known fact that we spend ten times as much to incarcerate then we do to educate. If we can find the resources to fund a tax cut and a U.S. prison system with nearly 2 million inmates, we can give our public schools the repairs and facilities they desperately need, we can reduce class sizes and provide adequate pay to attract the best and brightest into the teaching profession.

I urge my colleagues here in the House to join me in remembering the lessons of Brown v. Board of Education when we consider our national priorities, by committing ourselves to addressing the unfulfilled promises of equality and opportunity contained in the Brown decision.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) that the House suspend the rules and concur in the Senate amendments to the bill, H.R. 2133.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONVEYANCE OF ARMY RESERVE CENTER IN KEWAUNEE, WISCONSIN TO CITY OF KEWAUNEE

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 788) to provide for the conveyance of the excess Army Reserve Center in Kewaunee, Wisconsin, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H.R. 788

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. LAND CONVEYANCE, ARMY RESERVE CENTER, KEWAUNEE, WISCONSIN.

(a) CONVEYANCE REQUIRED.—The Administrator of General Services shall convey, without consideration, to the City of Kewaunee, Wisconsin (in this section referred to as the "City"), all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of Federal real property, including improvements thereon, that is located at 401 5th Street in Kewaunee, Wisconsin, and contains an excess Army Reserve Center. After such conveyance, the property may be used and occupied only by the City, by another local or State government entity approved by the City, or by another local or State government entity approved by the City.

(b) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the real property to be conveyed under subsection (a) shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Administrator. The cost of the survey shall be borne by the City.

(c) REVERSIONARY INTEREST.—During the 20-year period beginning on the date the Administrator makes the conveyance under subsection (a), if the Administrator determines that the conveyed property is not being used and occupied in accordance with such subsection, all right, title, and interest in and to the property, including any improvements thereon, shall revert to the United States. Upon reversion, the United States shall immediately proceed to a public sale of the property.

(d) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—(1) The property shall not be used for commercial purposes.

(2) The Administrator may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under subsection (a) as the Administrator considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

(e) TREATMENT OF AMOUNTS RECEIVED.—Any net proceeds received by the United States as payment under subsection (c) shall be deposited in the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS).

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 788 would require the General Services Administration to convey to the City of Kewaunee, Wisconsin at no cost a parcel of property containing an Army Reserve Center located in northwest Kewaunee. The property consists of two buildings with approximately 17,000 square feet of space constructed on 4.4 acres of land. The property is excess to the needs of the Army and the Federal Government. It has been vacant since 1996.

Currently, the City of Kewaunee's municipal services are located at different sites around the city. Kewaunee city hall, police department, ambulance service and community center/senior center have outgrown their present facilities. They require room to expand. The City of Kewaunee intends to consolidate these services at the vacant Army Reserve center.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us, as has been pointed out, directs the administrator of the General Services Administration to convey an Army Reserve Center to the City of Kewaunee, Wisconsin. It consists of about four-and-a-half acres of land. It is a piece of property that the City plans to use only for governmental purposes. It is going to be a very important building to this small community of less than 3,000 people by providing a place for a city hall, a city council meeting place. It may also house police, emergency rescue personnel, and other municipal functions.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GREEN) for his efforts in putting this bill together as it pertains to his district. I thank the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) for accommodating concerns raised about the bill.

Mr. Speaker, the bill on the floor is a better bill than we started out with and protects the interests of the Federal Government by specifying that the property must be used exclusively for a government purpose for not less than 20 years or title would revert to the United States Government.
Mr. Speaker, people in America, especially from small towns, want government to work for them. They are looking for common sense and partnerships. This is not a big deal to the Federal Government. This building is vacant, and it will need lots of work to bring it to standards. However, it is a big deal to the City of Kewaunee. It opens new doors to the future, and allows them to reach out and capture some of those good opportunities and dreams.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the minority staff for all of their assistance in this special situation.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GREEN) to enable the City of Kewaunee to have this building which is no longer needed by the Federal Government.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that even though this building does not fit within any of the traditional exceptions for transfer, that the circumstances of this case will speak for themselves and that Members of Congress on both sides of the aisle will join with us in supporting the passage of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GREEN), the bill sponsor, a strong fighter for the citizens of Kewaunee, Wisconsin.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the committee staff and the staff of the gentleman from Virginia and, in particular, the minority staff. As the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER) alluded to, the extra help and assistance and cooperation they gave us, we appreciate very much.

Mr. Speaker, Kewaunee is a small city of about 3,000 people located on the shores of Lake Michigan. It is filled with good people with big dreams. Kewaunee also faces, like a number of small towns, a number of financial challenges. For several years, Kewaunee has been without the financial resources to sufficiently house basic municipal services in its city hall and police station and fire station.

Mr. Speaker, when the U.S. Army abandoned its reserve center in 1996, it created the opportunity for meeting those challenges. Since 1996, the Kewaunee Reserve Center has worked through the GSA disposal process. It was declared excess in 1998; and since then, there has been no expression of interest by any Federal agency. Currently, only the City of Kewaunee has any interest in this property.

Right now the setup for municipal services in the City of Kewaunee is to put it kindly, less than ideal. The city hall is in the old bank building with no parking or office space. The council shares office space with the business office. The police department is in the water treatment plant. The senior citizen center is in the second floor of the fire station, and the ambulance service is in the public works garage. Obviously, this is not ideal.

Mr. Speaker, people in America, especially from small towns, want government to work for them. They are looking for common sense and partnerships. This is not a big deal to the Federal Government. This building is vacant, and it will need lots of work to bring it to standards. However, it is a big deal to the City of Kewaunee. It opens new doors to the future, and allows them to reach out and capture some of those good opportunities and dreams.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the minority staff for all of their assistance in this special situation.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of this measure, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 788, as amended.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, H.R. 788, as amended, passed.
Mr. Parris is a gentleman that I did not have the pleasure of knowing. He left the Congress in 1991, long before I arrived; but I understand from his background that he was an outstanding Member of this body, a distinguished American; and certainly I came to know him as a gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), for seeking to honor such a distinguished man and former Member of this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, let me just thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS), too, for his efforts to bring this up and the other side of the aisle, and with their help and the gentleman from Virginia’s (Mr. TOM DAVIS) help on passing the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate my colleagues on the Committee on Government Reform in bringing this legislation to the House. The bill was designated in the post office building in Annandale, Virginia, to honor Congressman Stan Parris, who served Virginia’s 8th Congressional District for six terms.

It is the privilege as the Representative of the 8th Congressional District to be a sponsor of this bill.

Born in Champaign, Illinois, September 4, 1929, Stan Parris was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1972. After serving one term and losing in that very tough 1974, what they called the “Watergate Year,” he returned to capture a seat in 1980.

Congressman Parris went on to win five consecutive elections, serving from 1981 to 1991.

As an aside, during that period of time we would sit back over here many times and chat and talk when issues would come up; and I would say, Stan, and we would say just back and forth, and I can almost see Stan kind of standing back there and thinking of all the conversations that we would have about issues coming up before the Congress.

Stan had a very distinguished career in serving this country, both as an elected official and the gentleman from Virginia’s 8th district. He involved himself early and often in transportation issues, an area of considerable importance to the citizens of northern Virginia.

Congressman Parris consistently helped Federal employees and military retirees, both largely represented in Virginia’s 8th district. He involved himself early and often in transportation issues, an area of considerable importance to the citizens of northern Virginia.

Congressman Parris was a vigilant defender of the taxpayer and spoke out against instances of fraud and abuse, and according to the Almanac of American Politics 1990, it said Parris was one of the earlier voices in Congress to warn of an impending crisis in the savings and loan industry, speaking out in the fall of 1985. If only the Congress had listened to Stan Parris.

He graduated from George Washington University School in 1958, and if my memory serves me he worked on a copy machine down in the basement of this capitol when he was working his way through law school. Winning an award for outstanding law student, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) went on to serve in the U.S. Air Force as a jet pilot during the Korean war.

He distinguished himself in combat in Korea, winning the Distinguished Flying Cross with cluster, the Purple Heart and the U.S. and Korean Presidential Citation.

It was once told to me, if you want to understand Stan Parris, read the book “Right Stuff” because Parris was being considered to be an astronaut, was a jet fighter and in many respects a war hero; and if you listen to what actually happened to him, which I will not go into, I think the body would be very impressed.

After starting out in the private sector, Congressman Parris won his first elected office in 1963 as the only Republican member of the Fairfax Board of Supervisors. He then, as the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) said, was Secretary of State of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

In 1969, Congressman Parris went on to serve as a delegate in the Virginia General Assembly for 4 years, serving as chairman of the House-Senate Republican caucus.

Congressman Parris went on to win the seat for northern Virginia’s 8th Congressional District in 1972 in a very close election.

In 1989 Congressman Parris won a spirited and close election, regaining his seat by under 1,100 votes.

I see the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) across the aisle, who is ready to follow and introduce a bill to name, appropriately so, a post office building in Mount Vernon for Herb Harris.

To have the Herb Harris Post Office along with Stan Parris is very fitting because they both ably were fighters for what they believed in. They were advocates for their cause and I think really served this region very, very well.

After winning five consecutive terms, Stan Parris lost his bid for reelection in 1992 but public service continued. President Bush asked him to be president of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, where he used to come before my appropriation committee, and may have impressed me with the entire Saint Lawrence Seaway that we have had in the history of the country.

He was responsible for overseeing the Federal agency charged with operating, managing and promoting maritime activity for the entire Great Lakes region of the Nation.

Stan Parris has dedicated most of his life to serving his country in both a public and military capacity. His commitment and his devotion to public service is deserving of recognition and it is appropriate that the postal building of 4270 John Marr Drive in Annandale, Virginia, be renamed in his honor.

I urge our colleagues to join us in supporting this legislation to honor this former Member for his dedicated service and just want to wish Stanley very, very best and his wife, Marty, and his entire family and on behalf of the people of the Commonwealth and this entire Congress, thank Stan and thank his family, because you know how part of the whole process the family can be, for his service to the country as a war hero and as a Member of this Congress.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), who sought and is seeking a sponsor of this bill.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I realize that the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS), in whose district the Stan Parris Post Office will be located.

This is a very nice post office, and it is appropriate that it be named after Stan Parris; and I recommend my other good friend and colleague, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), It was really his idea that we name both these offices in tandem after Stan Parris and Herb Harris in true bipartisan tradition.

This one that we are speaking specifically about is that for Stan Parris, and the reason why Stan certainly deserves a post office being named after him is that he devoted his life to public service.

He was a fighter pilot during the Korean war. I am sure that that has been mentioned. He was the Distinguished Flying Cross with cluster, the Air Medal with clusters, Purple Heart and the U.S. and Korean Presidential Citations. So he really was a war hero.

After the war, he continued his commitment to public service. He was on the Fairfax Board of County Supervisors. The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) chaired that board and he knows what difficult, thankless work that can be.

He was supervisor in a particularly important transitional time in local government in Fairfax County, and he served as a delegate in the General Assembly in Richmond for the Commonwealth of Virginia.

The reason why this Congress should recognize him is his service for 12 years in the United States House of Representatives. He was on the Committee on District of Columbia; Committee on Government Operations; the Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs Committees. He was chair of the Subcommittee on Fiscal Affairs and Health, Government Operations and Metropolitan Affairs where he promoted fiscal responsibility.

I am very pleased that the three of us can recognize him, the gentleman from Stan Parris.
Virginia (Mr. WOLF), the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS), and I, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER); and we speak for the entire Congress.

You have done a great job, Stan, and this is a very appropriate, fitting tribute to you to name this post office after you.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISAKSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TOM DAVIS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1766.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

HERB E. HARRIS POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 1761) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 8588 Richmond Highway in Alexandria, Virginia, as the “Herb E. Harris Post Office Building”, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. HERB E. HARRIS POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 8588 Richmond Highway in Alexandria, Virginia, shall be known and designated as the “Herb Harris Post Office Building”.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the Herb Harris Post Office Building.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF).

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Union Record be printed as an appendix to the Congressional Record.

There was no objection.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor to stand before you today to speak on behalf of Mr. Herb Harris, who represents the Mount Vernon District on the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors, became vice chair, as the gentleman from Virginia has said, and he still lives in Mount Vernon. He is still very much involved in what goes on in that community.

He did more things for that community and for Fairfax County, and, in many ways, for the Nation, than we will ever know.

He began his public service in 1968. He was instrumental in getting funding for a new hospital and expanding the libraries in the Mount Vernon area and in Fairfax County. He spent a lot of time on thankless tasks, like limiting utility costs and tax rates.

He was first elected in 1975 to the Congress after serving as vice chair of the Metropolitan Washington Transit Authority, and he used that experience on the Metro board to continually push for expansion of the Metro system. He got the legislation through that approved $1.9 billion in final construction funds for the full 101-mile Metro system.

Metro is critical to the entire Metropolitan Washington area. In the early days, it was a very controversial, very political issue, to bring Metro out to the suburbs and to pay the costs. You had to have a vision, and Herb had that vision.

He also promoted the rights of Federal employees. He was fiscally responsible, and he emphasized the need for future planning in terms of transportation needs. In so many areas, we find today that he was even more correct than we understood at the time in terms of meeting those transportation needs.

It was the first time in 25 years that a freshman Member of Congress was selected to serve as chairman of a subcommittee when Herb was designated as the chair of the Subcommittee on the Environment, Bicentennial Celebration and International Community in Washington.

It is with great gratitude that I thank Herb on behalf of the Members of this body, all the Members of this body, and really of the country, for his tireless efforts to improve the lives of Virginia’s and America’s residents. He made a wonderful statement that was a lot of fun to work with, and he was tireless in his devotion to public service. That is why it is most appropriate that we designate the Post Office at 8588 Richmond Highway as the Herb E. Harris Post Office Building.

We have Congressman Harris with us. Herb, thank you for all you did. You are so deserving of this honor.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just have a question for the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. TURNER) and we speak for the entire Congress.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.
MORAN: Does this post office stay in the Eighth Congressional District under the new boundaries that the Virginia General Assembly has promulgated?

Mr. MORAN of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, with the gentleman's yield.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Wolf) would know better than I, controlling the redistricting; but, you betcha. Absolutely.

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, that is appropriate. I can talk.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Wolf).

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) for this effort in helping with this legislation, and I want to commend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Moran) for doing this.

Mr. Speaker, I just have a couple of comments. Herb Harris, as I said in a previous debate, was a fighter, was an advocate. I first met Herb when I was a young lawyer here in town. He was with the American Farm Bureau. Then he went on to do all the amazing things with the American Farm Bureau. Then young lawyer here in town. He was advocate. I first met Herb when I was a previous debate, was a fighter, was an advocate. I first met Herb when I was a previous debate, was a fighter, was an advocate. I first met Herb when I was a previous debate, was a fighter, was an advocate. I first met Herb when I was a previous debate, was a fighter, was an advocate. I first met Herb when I was a previous debate, was a fighter, was an advocate.

Mr. Speaker, I wish Herb the very, very best.

Mr. Speaker, I also note that Mr. Harris is a former president, as I understand it, of the Bren Mar Civic Association, which was in the Mason District which I once represented.

Again, let me say to Herb Harris, thank you for Metro, thank you for the Mount Vernon Hospital, thank you for your years of service as well. We look forward to the dedication.

Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

THE SPEAKER pro tempore. The pending business is the question of suspending the rules and passing the bill H.R. 1766.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Tom Davis) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 1766, on which the yeas and nays are ordered.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. DEFAZIO addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

TRIBUTE TO THE REVEREND DR. JAMES FORD

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. RAMSTAD) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RAMSTAD. Madam Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to a former Minnesotan who devoted his life to ministering to others and who made a huge difference in the lives of the people in this very House for over 2 decades. For 21 years, the House of Representatives was very well served by our dedicated and beloved chaplain, the Reverend Dr. James Ford. Seven days a week, year after year, Jim Ford was here for us and our families in times of deepest need. Jim was always here to encourage, console, humor, and inspire us. That is why all of us were terribly shocked and saddened to hear of his death on August 27. Our thoughts and prayers are with his family: his wife, Marcy; son, Peter; daughters, Julie, Marie, Molly and Sarah; sister, Janet; 9 grandchildren; and countless friends all over the world.

So many memories come flooding back at a time like this. Jim Ford leaves a legacy of love and service for his family, friends, and Nation which will be remembered always. His eloquent well-chosen words and ever-present wit helped keep our focus on what was truly important: working together to serve people.

Also Jim Ford taught us to take our job seriously, but not ourselves. Which Norwegian or Swede among us will ever forget Jim's endless litany of Ole and Sven stories?

Madam Speaker, we all remember the countless tributes that were directed at Jim Ford as he marked his well-deserved retirement 2 years ago. Jim's many distinguished years of service to the United States Military Academy, 19 to be exact, and his earlier years at Ivanhoe Lutheran Church at Ivanhoe, Minnesota, are well known and well documented.

What is not so well known are Jim Ford's very early years in Minnesota and his legendary escapades as a young ski jumper at Theodore Wirth Park in Minneapolis. Let the record reflect that our former beloved Chaplain, Dr. Jim Ford, still holds the record jump at the famous Theodore Wirth Ski jump, backward.

That is right, when he was a young student at Edison High School in northeast Minneapolis, Jim Ford defied the laws of gravity and common sense and survived a backward jump on this notoriously steep ski slope and lived to tell about it.

We now know backward ski jumping was just the beginning of Jim Ford's high-risk hobbies. From his beloved Harley to his ultralight aircraft, Jim lived life with a special zeal. Whether it was his frequent racquetball games in the House gym or a cross-country ride on his Harley, Jim Ford went for all the gusto.

Madam Speaker, they still talk proudly about their prominent alumna, Jim Ford, at Edison High School in northeast Minneapolis and Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minnesota, where Jim starred in the classroom and also on the athletic field.

"You can take Jim Ford from Minnesota, but you cannot take Minnesota from Jim Ford," was how his Gustavus classmate, the Reverend Bill Albertson, put it. Some of us remember my good friend and former minister, Bill Albertson, served as our guest chaplain here several years ago. Jim and Bill had been good friends that day. I will never forget our time together.

On behalf of all Minnesotans, Madam Speaker, we salute the memory of the Reverend Dr. Jim Ford and his many accomplishments. He was always there for us in good times, in hard times, in times of joy, in times of sorrow. We thank the Lord for his prayers, his counsel, great wit, compassion, and service.

We also thank God for the way Reverend Ford cared so deeply about our families, our friends, our constituents, our House of Representatives, and our beloved country. Madam Speaker, we will always be grateful for Reverend Jim Ford's work and for the way he brought Democrats, Republicans, and Independents together for the good of our great Nation.

Jim Ford, I know you are in heaven right now, probably telling Ole and Sven jokes. Maybe God blesses you always, just as your work here in the House of Representatives blessed all of us. May your great legacy of service continue to inspire all of us who are lucky enough to be your friends.

Chaplain Jim Ford might be gone, but his spirit will live forever.

A SUSPENSION VOTE TOMORROW ON THE 245(i) AMNESTY PROGRAM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mrs. BIGGERT.) Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Madam Speaker, tomorrow the House will vote on H.R. 1885, which extends the 245 amnesty program. I am surprised that this vote is actually coming up under suspension. I would like to draw the attention of my colleagues to this legislation and to this vote.

What we are voting on tomorrow extends the date for illegal aliens to qualify for a 245(i) amnesty to August 15, 2001, and it extends the date for illegal aliens to apply for that 245(i) amnesty program for a full year, until April 30, 2002.

For those who have a little trouble understanding what that means, let me explain it this way, that what we have are hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of illegal aliens who are in this country; and we are now step by step trying to find ways in which we can make them legal, as the President has suggested. Perhaps the word is "regularize," or whatever word one wants to use.

But what we are really talking about when we offer a step-by-step process of whittling away this number of illegal immigrants, what we are talking about is an amnesty program, a step-by-step amnesty program, rather than just one large amnesty.

The American people understand what amnesty is all about, and they will be watching and they will be looking at the record when they find out what Congress has been moving. Rather than being forthright in dealing with the amnesty issue, instead, it has tried to exercise its authority in a way that was a little less discernible to the public by granting amnesty to various groups within society.

In this case, we would be granting amnesty in an interesting way, that is, anyone who is in this country illegally who applies, and now we are giving them until April 2002 to apply, can try to regularize their status in the United States. We have several categories of people who are here illegally to be able to do that.

Guess what, that is an amnesty program. We are giving amnesty to several hundred thousand people who are in this country illegally.

Yes, there are some heart-tearing cases here. Yes, some people who are in this country end up marrying American citizens, and the American citizens find that their loved one is going to have to go back to their home country in order to be here legally, because they have married an illegal alien. I am sorry, if someone is here illegally and they are going to have to go back, then they should go back to their home country and legalize their status. This does nothing but encourage the millions, and we are talking about tens of millions, of people who are standing in line throughout the world waiting to come into this country legally so they can become citizens; but we have done nothing to encourage them to come here illegally, to reward the law-breakers, and to punish those people who are following the law.

This is ridiculous. Our colleagues should consider this and vote against the amendment tomorrow on the bill, H.R. 1885.

By the way, let me note that there has been a recent poll by Mr. Zogby, who is one of America’s most respected pollsters, which has found out some interesting things about America’s attitude toward amnesty.

Most Americans think amnesty is a terrible idea. In fact, 55 percent of all Democrats think it is a bad idea; 56 percent of Republicans; 60 percent of union households; 45 percent of people who call themselves liberals; 59 percent of people who call themselves moderates; 61 percent of people who call themselves conservatives. And here is the real hook, here is the real bell-ringer: 51 percent of Hispanic Americans in the United States believe that amnesty for illegal immigrants is a bad idea.

We have been lied to over and over again, and so much so that the Republican party has not had the courage to stand up and oppose illegal immigration, as we should have.

The Democratic Party has made its deal with the illegal immigrants at the expense of the standard of living of our poorest citizens and at the expense of the future of our children. We have, I think, kept just level because we have had a massive flow of illegal immigrants into this country. The Democratic Party has made its deal for political power’s sake.

The Republicans, on the other hand, will not touch the illegal immigration issue because they are afraid to be called racist. They have been told over and over again that Mexican-Americans, Hispanic Americans, are in favor of illegal immigrants, for some reason. That is absolutely not true. We have finally got a pollster who has done a legitimate poll to show that Hispanic Americans, just like all other Americans, oppose illegal immigration. That is understandable.

Tomorrow we will have our chance to vote against an amnesty program for illegal immigrants by voting against H.R. 1885, which will be coming on the floor.

STATUS REPORT ON CURRENT SPENDING LEVELS OF ON-BUDGET SPENDING AND REVENUES FOR FY 2001 AND THE 5-YEAR PERIOD FY 2002 THROUGH FY 2006

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSELE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. NUSSELE. Mr. Speaker, to facilitate the application of sections 302 and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act and section 201 of the conference report accompanying H. Con. Res. 83, I am transmitting a status report on the current levels of on-budget spending and revenues for fiscal year 2002 and for the five-year period of fiscal years 2002 through 2006. This status report is current through September 5, 2001.

The term “current level” refers to the amounts of spending and revenues estimated for each fiscal year based on laws enacted or awaiting the President’s signature.

The first table in the report compares the current levels of total budget authority, outlays, and revenues with the aggregate levels set forth by H. Con. Res. 83. This comparison is needed to enforce section 251(a) of the Budget Act, which creates a point of order against measures that would breach the budget resolution’s aggregate levels. The table does not show budget authority and outlays for years after fiscal year 2002 because appropriations for those years have not yet been considered.

The second table compares the current levels of budget authority and outlays for discretionary action by each authorizing committee with the “section 302(a)” allocations made under H. Con. Res. 83 for fiscal year 2002 and fiscal years 2002 through 2006. “Discretionary action” refers to legislation enacted after the adoption of the budget resolution.

This comparison is needed to enforce section 302(f) of the Budget Act, which creates a point of order against measures that would breach the section 302(a) discretionary action allocation of new budget authority for the committee that reported the measure. It is also needed to implement section 311(b), which exempts committees that comply with their allocations from the point of order under section 311(a).

The third table compares the current levels of discretionary spending for fiscal year 2002 with the “section 302(b)” suballocations of discretionary budget authority and outlays among Appropriations subcommittees. The comparison is also needed to enforce section 302(f) of the Budget Act because the point of order under section 311(b) equally applies to measures that would breach the applicable section 302(b) suballocation.

The fourth table gives the current level for 2003 of accounts identified for advance appropriations in the statement of managers accompanying H. Con. Res. 83. This list is needed to enforce section 201 of the Budget Act, which creates a point of order against appropriation bills that contain advance appropriations that are: (i) not identified in the state-

CONCLUSION

Hon. Jim Nussle
Chairman, Committee on the Budget, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: The enclosed report shows the effects of Congressional action on the fiscal year 2002 budget and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act, as amended. The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of H.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

September 10, 2001

section 314 of the Congressional Budget Act, as amended.

Since my last letter dated July 12, 2001, the Congress has cleared and the President has signed the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2001 (P.L. 107–20), which changed budget authority and outlays for 2002. The effects of this new law are identified in the enclosed table.

Sincerely,

BARRY B. ANDERSON
(For Dan L. Crippen, Director).

UNIQUE LEGISLATIVE ISSUES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Madam Speaker, before I begin my Special Order this evening that will address unique legislative issues, I would like to join my colleague who spoke just a few moments ago to acknowledge the great loss of Chaplain Jim Ford, a very special friend to us all.

I am particularly privileged because Chaplain Ford visited my home district in Houston, the 18th Congressional District, and spoke at the pulpit of the church pastored by Reverend Willy Jones. That church is still riveted by the friendship shown by Chaplain Ford, the good humor, and the ability to interact with different faiths.

We know that he is among the angels, and we offer to him and his family our deepest sympathy and our deepest love.

Madam Speaker I wanted to address tonight several issues. First of all, let me do one that is particularly joyous for me in this time of technology and web pages and communications by e-mail.

Let me congratulate First Lady Laura Bush for an exciting weekend, which I am sorry that I missed; but I hope she enjoyed the reading of famous autors actually reading from books. I hope she will take off around the Nation that this Nation never lacks its appreciation for the written word, for wonderful books written by our national authors. Let us do this around our Nation. I thank Laura Bush, the first lady, for an outstanding job.

Now, I hope that this viewpoint is one that will be based upon the concern for saving lives. In February of this year, 2001, I came to the floor of the House and acknowledged that I believe that the policy toward the Middle East by this administration is wrongheaded and misdirected. I said that because many times engagement in diplomacy is painful. Many times it results in failure. But it is often utilized as the only vehicle and only tool to save lives.

Much laughter and criticism was given to President Clinton in the last days of his administration as he engaged in shuttle diplomacy between Camp David and Washington, D.C. and the country of Israel. I did not find it humorous because it was an attempt to save lives.

Since we have disengaged with the Mideast, all that has resulted is the loss of lives, bloodshed for women, children, and men, both in the Palestinian people and in the Israeli people.

Can anyone believe that our disengagement has been victorious? Does anyone believe in reality that one can stand off to the corner and point fingers and tell ‘those guys’ to get to the table of empowerment and peace? No. It is well known that the United States carries a heavy stick with respect to these particular countries, and it also is well known that the United States’ good will is very important in bringing these two disparate worlds together.

Day after day after day, Arab militants and then Israelis on the other side are engaging in a bloody battle. This is a war. This has accelerated to more than a conflict. I believe our foreign policy on this issue is wrong.

It pains me, as we move to some of the humblest and most sacred times in the Jewish community here in the United States and across the world, two of their most important holidays over the next 2 to 3 weeks in the United States will be honored, and of course in Israel and around the world. Would it not be a wonderful tribute then to say that we are reengaged, that we want to save lives, that we want them to come to the peace table, and we say, ‘Stop the accusations, Arafat come to the table, Sharon come to the table, release yourselves from the strictures of hatred, and begin to talk about real issues of saving lives and living harmoniously together’?

I believe this is an enormously important issue and would ask the President and the administration and his advisers to wake up and understand the importance of U.S. involvement.

Let me conclude by answering my colleague’s comments on 245(i). As the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, it is wrong headed to interpret this particular legislative initiative as a general amnesty. All it is is because the Immigration and Naturalization Service made a mistake. They made a mistake with a date, they made a mistake administratively.

This is simply to allow those who are in the process of filing for legalization 10, 15 years ago, to reactivate their applications.

Many of these people are family members who need to be reunited. Many of these people come from many parts of the world. It is not isolated to people from Mexico. It is not isolated to people from South America. It includes people from Poland, from France, from India, from all continents around the world. It is simply an administrative snafu which is allowing people to apply to reapply and to follow the legal process. It is not an affirmation. It means the INS has to make a decision one way or the other.

THE BUDGET AND THE ECONOMY; MISSILE DEFENSE, AND SEX AND INTERNS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mrs. Biggert). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. McNINIS) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. McNINIS. Madam Speaker, this evening I want to talk about a number of different things in my colleagues know, I serve on the budget and the economic areas, national parks, and national and the most important.

I also spent a good deal of time back in my district, the Third Congressional District of Colorado, which many of my colleagues know includes almost all of the mountains of Colorado. In fact, the Third Congressional District of Colorado geographically is larger than the State of Florida. And of the 67 or so mountains above 14,000 feet in the United States, 53 of them are located in my district. It is the highest district in the Nation. As a result, there are a lot of things that are particular to the Third Congressional District not found in many other districts in the country.

Seventy-five percent of the land in this Nation, including Alaska, 75 percent of the land above 10,000 feet is in the Third Congressional District of Colorado. The Third Congressional District contains the majority or the largest amount of ski resorts of any congressional district in the United States, world-renowned resorts in Aspen, Colardo, with my colleagues know, I serve on the Committee on Ways and Means, and that committee is working very hard on both sides of the aisle to try to figure out some answers to what would be the appropriate government interaction in regards to the economy.

I would also like to talk about missile defense and the importance of missile defense. The third thing I would like to talk about, and which I will start out at the very beginning with, is sex and internships.

I have come under a great deal of criticism in the last month when I have addressed the issues of inappropriate relationships between a United States Congressman, and I am speaking generically here, no specific Congressman, but speaking generically of the United States Congress and exactly what its ethics rules are in regards to inappropriate relationships with interns. That. I have received criticism for.

I have had people across the Nation, editors, across the Nation asking why would I think we need an ethical rule in the United States Congress to say that a sexual relationship with an intern is inappropriate? Well, we need that rule in the United States Congress for the same reason that we find that very rule, that very specific content in rules in an institutional in the United States.

I defy any of my colleagues and I defy any of those editorial boards to pinpoint for me one high school in this Nation, to show me one college in this Nation, perhaps a professor to have a sexual relationship or an inappropriate relationship with a student. They do not allow it. A teacher, a professor who engages in a sexual relationship with a student, they are gone. They are fired.

It was this body not very many years ago, as a result of Tailhook in the United States Navy, that addressed this with the Department of Defense and the executive agencies. They have very specific rules in the United States Navy, that addressed a commanding officer engaging in a sexual relationship with a consenting adult, an adult who is consenting but falls below them in the hierarchy of command, is gone. That fast. It does not matter. Why? Because they have a position of authority over the person they are having that sexual relationship with.

That is exactly what we have in the United States Congress. We have a position of authority over interns. But in a lot of these cases these interns are students. Now, sure, by the technical definition, these students are adults. I do not know what it is in D.C., maybe 15 or 16. So theoretically, if they are above statutory rape age, 15 or 16 years old, they are an adult.

So some of these editors and even some of my colleagues have said to me, hey, they are grown up. Give me a break. Why does the field of medicine, doctors, prohibit themselves from having sex with patients? It is considered an inappropriate relationship and it is in their ethics. They can lose their medical license for an inappropriate relationship. Why does the clergy prohibit it? Because a clergy person, a priest or a minister, is not supposed to have an inappropriate relationship with a parishioner. It is against their rules. Their critics in it. Why does the legal profession, lawyers, prohibit by the ethics of their bars their members from having an inappropriate relationship with their clients? It is because they exercise a great deal of influence over people.

Now, what I have proposed, contrary to some of the news reports across the Nation, is not precedent setting. It is not some novel idea that I came up with. It is simply taking the language that applies in the military, that applies in the clergy, that applies in the teaching profession, that applies in the medical profession, that applies in the legal profession and apply it to the one institution in this country that has no ethical rule about it, to the best of my knowledge, and that is the United States Congress.

I am not saying going out there and trying to legislate morality. My proposal is not a piece of legislation. I have not introduced a bill. What I have asked is that the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct give me an opinion as to whether or not under current ethics regulations, and it is clearly not clear, but under current ethics regulations of this type of relationship is prohibited. And if it is prohibited, I have asked for an in-house rule, not legislation. We are not trying to draft a bill. I am not trying to legislate morality. I am just trying to say the same rules that prohibit us from misuse of government credit cards, for example, or things like that, that we put this in there as well. Just like every other major institution.

Now, remember, these interns are in the United States Congress. First of all, the internship program is what I care the most about, and I want to see that program preserved. It makes me sick that the late night talk shows spend a good deal of their jokes about interns in Washington, D.C. I have seen editorial cartoons across the Nation, and one in particular where they show an intern in a life raft, and I saw this the other day, an intern in a life raft, and her legs are hanging over the side. Underneath the life raft are a bunch of sharks. And I asked my Congressman as the names for the sharks.

I can say to the parents who have interns back here, that this is an exception, this type of inappropriate conduct with an intern. This is a program that has made many changes in young people’s lives, and these are young people. These students and interns are not hard to determine who they are. Back here in the United States Congress, interns have separate IDs. Interns have a separate pay classification. They are not an employee. The interns are students of government and we are the teachers. We as the Congressmen exercise a disproportionate amount of influence, a disproportionate amount of authority over these young students, and we ought to have certain responses that we follow. I saw last week where somebody asked, why do we need a rule; our own moral beliefs ought to tell us we should not have an inappropriate relationship. Well, why do schools need rules; why do high schools or colleges need them? Why does the clergy, the medical or legal need them? Because the fact there are some people who pay attention to those rules. In my opinion, every Congressman that is now serving today, all 435 of us, reads the rules. And I would venture to say that all of us, if we read the rules, will modify our behavior so that we fall in compliance with those rules. If the rules say that we cannot send out constituent mail, say, with political advertising in it, I would not send it out. And most Congressmen do not send out congressional mail with political advertising because the rules prohibit it. They follow the rules.

So what I have suggested here is not something that should be deserving of ridicule in editorials or under-the-breath talk by some of my colleagues, because what we are trying to do is preserve the internship program. A poll was just recently conducted, and parents were asked if they would trust the Congressmen to send their children back to, their students, their young people, back to be interns. Of course, as you might guess, the answer was overwhelmingly no.

This is a program that a lot of my colleagues came through themselves. This is a program that has exposed the young people to the American government and its workings. Every intern in my office that I have seen, has said that their internship in Washington, D.C. in a very positive fashion, and it has made a significant change in their life. So I think it is important to preserve this program.

Now I have three children, two daughters that are internship age. One is 22 and the other one is 19. Both of them have been back here in Washington, D.C. And as a parent I want to know, as every parent wants to know with their young son or daughter, that when they are back there they are in a professional relationship. They are back there in a relationship that has a fiduciary responsibility so that they do not have to worry about the Congressman exerting influence over their child. And they are still students. I do not care whether they are technically adults. The fact is they are students of government.

Do we forget, in college, or in the military, if a professor in his or her class has a student that, say, is 25 years old, the age does not matter. It is the fact they are a student and it is the fact that there is a position of authority over the student and that is why these educational institutions across the Nation prohibit inappropriate relationships.

Now, some people have suggested I not take the floor to discuss this. I feel it is important, because I think it is getting a little out of hand. Not the inappropriate relationships, because contrary to popular belief, in my opinion, most of the Congressmen in these chambers, if not all, and I am not aware of others, all of the Congressmen I know maintain themselves in a professional mode. They are highly ethical when it comes to the treatment of interns and try to avoid any abuse of the rules in the internship program. But the perception that has gone out there is in part caused by the fact that our own ethics do not prohibit it, or apparently there is some confusion as to whether our ethics prohibit those types of relationships.

So we owe it to the internship program, we owe it to the program to put forth a proper in-house rule. Not legislation. We are not legislating morality, we are putting down a rule, the kind of prohibition that, as I have said three or four times in these comments, the same kind of prohibition that exists in our churches, exists in our schools, exists in our hospitals, and exists in our communities.

Mr. Speaker, I would venture to say I would be interested to look at some of the major news networks who waste editorial space on me, I would venture to say most of them probably have prohibitions against inappropriate relationships with their student interns that are not in-house rule, the kind of prohibition that, as I have said three or four times in these comments, the same kind of prohibition that exists in our churches, exists in our schools, exists in our hospitals, and exists in our communities.

I will wrap it up with this: Let me say that we are talking specifically about interns. I am not talking about a congressman who may choose to go into a professional mode, contrary to popular belief, in my opinion, most of the Congressmen, interns and have a relationship with someone who does not work as a student intern or one staff member dating another staff member. I am not talking about those kinds of relationships.

What I am talking about, very, very specifically what I am talking about is a congressman and a student intern. I cannot stress enough that these interns are students. They are students of the government. We do not have to use interns in any way, we need to use interns. As a congressman, we are not required to hire interns. But if we do, we ought to assume some professional responsibility. As I have mentioned several times before, all of my colleagues that I know do assume that professional responsibility, contrary to popular perception. Whether Democrat or Republican, they handle their interns on a professional basis when I have seen them. But I think the internship program, and certainly the reputation, is in danger because of the fact of some of the things that have gone on.

Mr. Speaker, I think one way to help rebuild the reputation is to at least put in place a rule; and then if somebody breaks that rule, let them suffer the consequences. We have a process for that. We have checks and balances in that process. There is absolutely no reason that the United States Congress should not have a House rule prohibiting it. Would that prohibit it between a congressman and a student intern?

Let me move on briefly to cover a couple of points. During the break, the liberal side of the Democratic Party has been lambasting President Bush on this tax cut. What the liberal side of the Democratic Party seems to be forgetting is that my good colleague on the Committee on Ways and Means, the gentleman from New York (Mr. AXELROD), introduced an amendment on this House floor, and that amendment was a tax cut. That amendment called for a tax rebate. It was very similar, not exact, but very similar. Certainly pretty close to exact in concept, but it was very similar to what the President put into place.

The debate here on the floor was not the amount of money in the tax cut, the debate was between the Democrats and the Republicans, and really between the liberal side of the Democratic Party because several of the conservative Democrats supported President Bush’s program for tax cuts, so it was not a clear Democrat/Republican bill, but the Democrats that opposed it, their primary argument after listening to hours and hours of debate, was not about the amount of money, but it was focused on who should get the rebate.

Those Democrats said that the tax rebate should go to people who paid payroll taxes but paid no income taxes. The Republicans and the Democrats who supported the Bush program countered that argument by saying the people who ought to get the tax rebate back are people who paid taxes in. You shall not give a tax rebate to people who had no tax liability. That is where the intensity of the debate focused.

Now because our economy continues to go south, which everyone acknowledges, it really started to do that about 6 months before President Clinton left office, but now that the economy continues to go south, instead of joining together as a team, which is what the American people are demanding, we are seeing the Democrats starting to play President Clinton left office, but now that the economy continues to go south, instead of joining together as a team, which is what the American people are demanding, we are seeing the Democrats starting to play President Clinton left office, but now that the economy continues to go south, instead of joining together as a team, which is what the American people are demanding, we are seeing the Democrats starting to play President Clinton left office, but now that the economy continues to go south, instead of joining together as a team, which is what the American people are demanding, we are seeing the Democrats starting to play President Clinton left office, but now that the economy continues to go south, instead of joining together as a team, which is what the American people are demanding, we are seeing the Democrats starting to play President Clinton left office.
this economy, but instead trying to figure out how can we win the elections next year by monopolizing on how terrible this economy is and doing the blame game.

The time has come. We cannot allow this economy to continue to go in its downward direction and perhaps get into an uncontrollable spiral just because you want political advantage next year in the elections. Every one of us, the Democrats, the Republicans, have an obligation to come together as a team. Sure we will have some debates, but our primary focus ought to be what can we do in working with the President of the United States to try and get this economy to at least level out or hopefully begin a recovery. There are a lot of unique situations about the economy that we face today. One of those is that the entire world is in an economic recession. Many of the countries, a lot of the countries in the world are in an economic recession. The worst economic situation. The United States is swaying back and forth as to whether or not we go into that economic recession.

Mr. Speaker, so in a time like this, there is a demand for us to work together for the benefit of the American people so that they have a healthy economy. I would advise my colleagues, take a look at the Sunday talk shows and take a look at which one of our colleagues really want to work as a team to improve this economy or really want to take advantage of the sour economy for political purposes for next year’s elections. If you know some of them, obviously you know who the ones are that want to take political advantage, you ought to say, I understand that we want political advantage, but maybe we better pay attention to what is happening. While we are preparing for next year’s elections, the ship has a big hole in its side. We are on a lot of water. We may be so worried about next year’s elections, by the time we get that secured and take a look at the boat, we may have too much water to save the boat. I expect now that we are back in session that we are going to see people popping up here and there trying to take political advantage of this economy.

On the other hand, if my colleagues want to see examples of leadership, take a look at Members that parties stand up and are willing to walk back and forth across this aisle and say, Hey, as team, what are we going to do on this economy? How are we going to control spending? Are we going to need further tax cuts?

The Democrats over the weekend on national television on the Sunday shows acknowledged that additional tax cuts may be necessary. Why are they necessary? We need to get more money into the economy. That is why the interest rates have been lowered. That is why Greenspan lowered the interest rate. That is why President Bush put into effect his tax cut. That is why we are talking about additional tax cuts, and we need to figure out in what areas of the country government spending makes some sense, and what do we need to do about deficit spending. Will deficit spending become a necessity to prevent the country from going into a recession? That is why the President says he is not practicing, getting overweight, his or her moves are not what they used to be and really kind of just becoming lazy, what happens? Somebody then begins to take a look, and then the temptation starts.

Maybe now when they are not properly defending themselves and not staying in shape, maybe now is the time to take that person on; and it is the same thing with the United States of America. We are in pretty good shape right now, but we cannot bank on the good shape we have been in in the past. We have to bank on how well we keep ourselves in shape for the future. What do we have in regards to military spending?

I know there are a number of people out there that say and kind of go on the theory we should stop military spending and we should limit defense spending, and do it in peaceful discussion. We should settle things in peaceful ways. And I have interest, in the last year there seem to be a lot more people saying violence has no place in our society.

Well, I am here to tell Members violence does have a place in society. That is exactly how we took care of Hitler, and that is exactly what our police officers do. But these people are correct that while violence is sometimes necessary, it ought to be the last remedy that we use.

Obviously we need to have the ability to communicate, and communication is a very important part of a Nation’s defense. That is why our Secretary of State, and fortunately we have an excellent Secretary of State in Colin Powell, that is why the position is so critical. That is why we have ambassadorships.

One of the best elements of our defense is communication with other countries. Talk to people. Have the ability to negotiate. Have the ability to try and understand where they are coming from; but sometimes that fails. We saw it in the Persian Gulf.

Despite repeated warnings by the President, that country failed to communicate; and we gave them every chance, and finally we had to resort to violence; but as I said, it should be the last remedy.

When we talk about our country, we need to talk about something. Let us look back, for example, in history, in the sixties and the seventies, about 30 years ago. At that time, as you know, the Russian empire was in existence, U.S.S.R., Soviet Union. Communist, threatening to take over the world, Krushchev and people like that had been their previous leaders, talked very strongly about the United States was the number one enemy.

The United States knew that it had to build up and they did so, and even in the Kennedy years and so on; and we had the Cuban missile crisis and so on, we began to build up.

Somebody came up with an idea that said, you know, Russia has got a lot of nuclear missiles and the United States has a lot of nuclear missiles; maybe what we ought to do is sign a treaty between the two and a treaty should be what we call the Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty, and this is very, very important.

The Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty as its concept, as its original thought of the basis of this treaty says that one country cannot defend itself against the other countries.

Now, remember, that the Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty, often called obviously ABM, the Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty. The Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty which was executed, signed, only had two parties to it. There are only two parties that are subject to the Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty.

Why only two parties in the 1970s? Because there were only two parties that were delivering a clear missile upon the land of another country, and they were the United States and the U.S.S.R. That is why you had two parties.

Well now, today, how many parties to the Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty? Well, theoretically only one because the U.S.S.R. does not exist anymore. The Communist regime fell. But realistically let us say two, still two. Now remember, back in 1970 there were only two countries capable of delivering one missile into another country, only two. That was in the 1970s.

What is it today? I do not know: 12, 14. There are lots of countries today. You can start off with China. You can move to India. You can move to Pakistan. You can talk about Israel. You can talk about Iran. You can talk about North Korea. You can talk about South Korea. There are a lot of countries today who are not subject to this Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty. So based on that alone, the treaty needs to be modified or eliminated.

Let me tell you that when this treaty was drafted, the thought of it was one country would not build a defense. They want to defend themselves against missiles. So the United States agreed not to build a missile defense system. Russia, at the same time, the U.S.S.R., the Communist regime, agreed they would not build a missile defense system. The theory being that the United States would not fire upon Russia because they knew Russia would retaliate and we would have no defense because we do not have a missile defense system; and obviously it works the same thing with Russia.

We are in that situation that drafted this, while I disagree with that concept, that is clearly the basis upon which the treaty was drafted; and while I do disagree with that, I can tell you that the drafters of that document had a lot of foresight in that they knew that as time moved on there may be other circumstances that were unforeseen that entered the picture.

Therefore, put within the four corners of this agreement a clause. They put a clause in there that said that this agreement, they could end the treaty, that the treaty could be abrogated and they called for that. That is a right of the treaty. It is a basic right in the treaty.

Now, President Bush has said and the administration has said that the United States could very well terminate that treaty because of our best interests and the risks we have against the best interests of the American people. I have noticed that, frankly, some of the more liberal journalists in the country have said what do you mean you are going to abrogate that treaty? What do you mean you are going to walk away from the ABM treaty? You cannot do that.

Read the treaty. Read the treaty. Of course you can do that. It is a fundamental right. It is in the language of the treaty. Of course you can do that, because the treaty that 32 years ago knew that in 32 years things might change; and boy, have they changed.

Who would have ever imagined 32 years ago that North Korea could deliver a nuclear missile? Who could have ever imagined the fire power of China or India or Pakistan or Israel or other countries in the Middle East or Iran? And not just with nuclear warheads, but with biological warheads as well.

Look, we are kidding ourselves, and I can tell you that as Congressmen we have an absolutely inherent obligation, a fiduciary obligation to the American people to provide the American people a defense, a military defense against the aggressiveness of another country. We are fools, we are kidding ourselves, if we continue to think that we should not build a missile defense for this country.

In Colorado Springs, Colorado, there is a mountain. It is called Cheyenne Mountain. Cheyenne Mountain is a granite monument, a beautiful mountain. Years ago on the inside of that mountain, they went out and they bored out the center of that mountain. They tore out the center of the mountain, or a portion of it out of the mountain, and they put in there the NORAD defense detection. Inside that mountain, we have the capabilities of detecting within seconds, anywhere in the world, a missile launch. We can within seconds tell you where that launch took place, where the trajectory is of that particular missile, what type of missile we think it is, what kind of warheads we think it has on it. We can tell you where its target is. We can give you the estimated time of arrival.

So let us say that North Korea launches a missile, or let us say China launches a missile. Let us say that the target is Oklahoma City, the military base in Oklahoma City. We have the capability, we have it today, we have the most advanced technology in the history of the world. We can immediately know within a couple of seconds. We have got a missile launch, it is coming out of China, it is headed for Oklahoma and it is going to hit in 15 minutes. Then what can we do?

All we can do is call Oklahoma. Governor, you have got a missile. Sorry, Governor, we decided not to provide a missile defense for this country. Sorry, Governor. We had a lot of people that said we should live by the laws of 30 years ago. Sorry, Governor, we pretended that that threat out there did not exist, even though in fact, Governor, we knew it existed. And sorry, Governor, there is nothing we can do. You are going to have a missile hit in about 13 minutes. God bless you. We will think of you in the future.

President Bush has had enough guts to stand up and several Members of Congress on both sides of the aisle, Democrats and Republicans, have had enough guts to stand up and say, uh-uh, we have got to better pay attention to our responsibilities to the American people. We need to put in place a missile defense system.

Missile defense is very complicated. Obviously, we are going to have to research it. Take a look at how much research it took to fly an airplane. Take a look at the money we spent on the space program. Take a look at how much research there was to figure out a TV. You do not just go out there and wave the magic wand and have a perfect missile defense system.

Some of my colleagues are saying, Oh, my gosh, we don’t have one ready today to go, so we shouldn’t build one. Obviously, we don’t have the technology today, although we do have the technology today, but we do not have one in place, so let us not build one because we have to spend too much time on research.

Give me a break. Of course we have got to spend time on research. We need to get a system that is perfected. And it is going to take some time. But we have no time to spare. If we start today, if we give the President the right in the treaty, the right in the treaty, we have got to spend time on research. We need to put in place a missile defense system. Russia, at the same time, they are moving too. They do not have the technology today, although we do have the technology today, they do not have one in place, they have got to spend too much time on research. is like hitting a bullet with a bullet. They are both traveling at very, very fast speeds. You have got to be able to connect them. You cannot just do it with a land-based missile.

The best place to stop an enemy missile is where? Where is the best place to stop an enemy missile? On their launching pad. Not while it is over New York City or over the continental United States, but stop that missile when they are getting ready to launch it. How do you do that? You cannot do it with a land-based missile in the United States. You have got to do it with some kind of space technology. You have got to be able to do it with lasers.

Every peace-loving person in America who is against war, and I guess we are all against war, but who is anti-military or is against violence, you ought to be the strongest proponents there are for missile defense. Because what happens if that missile leaves the launch pad? For example, the biggest danger today is not necessarily an intentional launch of a missile. A big danger today is somebody pushing a button by accident.

What if we had an accidental launch of a weapon incoming to the United States? I mean, if we had the capability to stop that and we confirmed that it was an accident, we may have just stopped the next war. We may have stopped nuclear oblivion because of the fact we were able to stop it before it did harm and determined that it was an accidental launch.

Today as somebody launches a missile, let us say that Russia, by accident, launches a nuclear missile or launches a nuclear missile with multiple warheads on it so that the missile comes into the United States and fires multiple warheads and hits several different targets. How convinced do you think the United States is going to be that this was an accident? What do you think our response would be? We could very easily end up with a nuclear war on our hands. So even those of you who are big proponents of no violence, and I hope you are successful in your efforts, by the way, but realistically I do not think you will be, but let us say those of you who are absolutely opposed to violence, you ought to be the strongest proponents there are of a missile defense system, because the best way to avoid that violence is to take away the tool of violence that they have, and that is a missile that they could deliver to the United States.

So you have several different stages that you want to develop so that you can take out an incoming enemy missile or a missile launched by mistake. One, you want to be able to get it on the launching pad. Ideally, that is the best place to do it. If it gets off the launching pad, you want to be able to, at any different time, have a ground-based laser beam technology that hopefully can destroy that over the ocean. Then, finally, if it gets into the United States, over into our airspace, you want to have the capability of not only satellite laser beam but you also want to have the capability of ground-based or some other ship-based type of missile that could go up and collide with that missile and take that missile out.

Let us say you have a successful test. They fired a missile and they fired an intercept missile and we hit them. That is pretty good. Think about it. You cannot miss by this far. You have got to hit. That missile is not that big around. Let us say you take a look at the warhead on top of a missile, it is maybe the width of a car, so you have got to bring those two cars together out there going at the kinds of speeds that they are going at, and they have got to be able to hit. The test the other day was a successful test. We were able to calculate it. So it is a good step.

But I am amazed at the people who, number one, criticize the President. He, by the way, is the one whom we have an obligation to defend or some other nation out there. How convinced do you think we have of this country? We say to President Bush, President Bush, you better take a look at this treaty. Are you protecting this country? You are in charge of it. You are the President. You are the guy that we are holding responsible to make sure that every single day we go to work every day without being concerned about being dragged into some kind of war or having a missile attack against us.

 Yet we tell them on this end, on this hand we say you are spending too much money, you are dreaming about missile technology that may or may not exist. The President, Mr. President, I am proud of you. We need a missile defense system in this country, and we need it, and we have needed it for some period of time; a leader of this country, to finally stand up and say to Russia, look, Russia, we will even share with you our capability to defend ourselves, because, as you will better acknowledge, Russia, that there are no longer two countries in this world capable of firing missiles at each other. That number is in the tens and twenties, maybe even the high twenties, of countries capable; and every month, every year that goes by, some other nation out there is developing the capability to deliver a missile into another country.

We have got finally a President who has got enough guts to stand up and say, all right, it is time to get back in shape. It is time to build a military missile defense system for the protection of this country and its allies.

We have got a final: a President who has got enough guts to say, and say, and say. All right, time to get back in shape. It is time to build a military missile defense system for the protection of this country and its allies.

Of interesting note, the Europeans, as you know, probably the Brits, some of the strongest allies we have ever had, good allies out there, they are standing up for us. They want a missile defense system. Take a look at the Italians. The Italians, their Prime Minister, they support this idea. So this day, this day, this day, this day, day, day, day. So, this day, this day, this day, this day, day, day, day. So this day, this day, this day, this day, day, day, day.

That is pretty hard to argue, although, as you might guess, on our floor we manage to find argument about it. But education is one of the priorities that the President has asked for a considerable increase in appropriations and in reform, regulation, regarding education; testing, accountability, and more money for education.

But education is one of the priorities that the President has asked for a considerable increase in appropriations and in reform, regulation, regarding education; testing, accountability, and more money for education.

That is pretty hard to argue, although, as you might guess, on our floor we manage to find argument about it. But one of his priorities contained within that military priority is military defense. I am suggesting to my colleagues, no, I am not suggesting to my colleagues, I am telling you, the time has come. We have got to work with the President on a military missile defense system. Every country in this Nation so that they do not live under the threat of an accidental missile launch or an intentional missile launch against the United States of America.

We are the ones today that make those decisions for tomorrow. That is why we were elected. We were not elected to sit here and not think about tomorrow. The President has said to the United States Congress, think about education tomorrow. What are the choices tomorrow? And is the same thing with our military defense. Think about tomorrow, because, before you know it, tomorrow is here, and we have added many, many more countries in the world that have that capability.

Mr. Speaker, let me show this poster. Take a look at today. I am talking about nuclear warheads. But do not forget that on a missile you can also deliver biological or chemical warheads. Every spot that is on this map is a country that is capable of delivering known or probable biological and chemical programs, and they can deliver those chemicals with a missile.

Now, remember, in 1970 when that treaty, the antiballistic missile treaty was drafted, there were two countries, the United States and the USSR, there were only two countries in the world that had to be concerned about that. But, because of this expansion, things have changed. I want to stress to my colleagues, because this argument continues to come up again and again and again, and in my opinion it has no validity, and that argument is the proposition that we cannot build a missile defense system without violation of the Antiballistic Missile Treaty, which we have no right to exit from.

What I am saying here tonight is that antiballistic Missile Treaty, fortunate who drafted this treaty, who brought this thing into being, and I mentioned earlier, I disagree with the concept that the treaty was drafted 30 years ago, but fortunately the people who drafted that treaty had the foresight to say, gosh, over a period of time the consequences may change to the extent that the United States and the USSR ought to be able to walk away from this treaty; that the consequences are of such importance that it justifies withdrawal from the ABM Treaty.

I think the President is justified in taking the position that with all of the countries today that can accidentally or intentionally launch a missile into the United States, that the circumstances have changed dramatically enough that the United States has to take a new approach; that the United States can no longer afford to pay any more time. We have an obligation to the next generation, to our kids, to your kids, to your grandkids, to your grandkids, we have an obligation to provide a defense apparatus for that country that they do not live under the threat of an accidental missile launch or an intentional missile launch against the United States of America, either intentionally or accidentally.

But once that missile is airborne, it does not much matter as far as the consequences of the missile hit. But it does matter if we are able to stop that missile, let us say, on its launching pad; and let us say we are able to determine it was an accidental launch, that somebody made a mistake, that some mechanism, a malfunction, and we were able to stop a war or we were able to stop an American retribution, which you know because of our capabilities would be severe, harsh, and instantaneous; that we were able to avoid that because we had in place a system that was capable of stopping an attack against this country.

So I urge every one of my colleagues, instead of playing the political rhetoric game, which I am beginning to see emerge up here, against the missile defense system, put that political rhetoric aside for the benefit of the future generations of the United States of America. Try and put in place a vision for the future, a future that allows the people and the population of the United States, and the friends of the United States of America, the capability of making a missile attack a nonissue, because we have the capability to stop it.

For those of you who want to end violence or at least do what you can to minimize violence, you, as I said earlier, are the strongest opponents we have for a missile defense system. So I congratulate the President, I congratulate the administration, and, frankly, I commend both Democrats and Republicans on the House floor that are coming across this aisle to stand in unison in favor of a missile defense system for this country.

Let me just reiterate a couple points I made earlier. It is appropriate and it is timely for this Congress to put in our rules a rule which prohibits inappropriate conduct between a Congressman and an intern.

I spent a good deal of time at the beginning of my remarks explaining why I have pursued this issue. I spent a good deal of time pointing out that we are the only major institution, the U.S. Congress is the only major institution in United States that does not have a prohibition against inappropriate relationships between a Congressman and an intern teaching. For example, in our profession, every school in the Nation prohibits it; the medical profession prohibits it; the military prohibits it; the clergy prohibits it; the legal profession prohibits it; most major corporations prohibit it. The United States Congress ought to follow good example. It is not precedent breaking. We should set a good example, follow a good example, and put in place a rule that prohibits that type of inappropriate conduct.

Finally, as my final remarks, I urge all of us to stand as a team to address this economy. This is not a laughing matter. This is a very serious situation. We are in a tunnel, not out of the tunnel, not out on the other side of it, and there is a train coming in. We need to stand in unison to figure out how to get out of that tunnel. And there is light. We can get out of the tunnel, but the more bickering and partisanship that we see on this House floor, the less likely that we can fulfill our leadership responsibilities and obligations and lead our country into some type of economic recovery.

NEGATIVE IMPACT OF PRESIDENT’S TAX CUT

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. AKIN). Under the Speaker’s announced time of January 30, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to respond, if I can, briefly, to some of the comments made last evening from Colorado made with regard to the economy.

Mr. Speaker, I do realize that we in Congress all have an obligation, certainly, to work for economic recovery, and there is, of course, a great deal of concern about the economy right now because of some of the indications we have had over the last week with regard to the stock market, with regard to some of the unemployment figures that have come out.

But, Mr. Speaker, I would be remiss if I did not point out, and this is really the gist of my comments this evening, I do not intend to use the full hour, but I need to spend a little time reiterating once again the negative impact of President Bush’s tax cut, the tax cut that was supported by the majority of the Republicans, who are the majority here in the House of Representatives, and which I think has had a very negative impact and certainly over the long term will have a very negative impact on the economy. And my fear that it is going to lead to President Bush suggesting and the Republican majority suggesting at some point, if it has not happened already, which we are told over and over again by the President and the Republican leadership... that there was no need to worry about this tax cut, this huge massive tax cut that primarily benefited wealthy Americans, because we could have the tax cut and we would also be able to make sure that, even with the tax cut, that we would have enough money left over to pay for national priorities that President Bush outlined, an education bill, a new defense initiative to make sure that the military was ready in the event of war, and also a Medicare prescription drug benefit. We could have the tax cut and we would also be able to have money left over for those national priorities.

We were also assured by the President and the Republican leadership that even with this massive tax cut that primarily favored the well-to-do, that we would have enough money for Social Security, that we would not dip into the Social Security and Medicare Trust Funds.

Well, Democrats have been saying for over a year that none of those things were true; that the nature of the tax cut, the fact that it was so big, that what we were talking about was giving away $1.35 trillion, the Republicans were proposing was so big, that it would basically make it impossible to not dip into the Medicare and Social Security trust funds and that there would not be any money left for any of those priorities.

Well, we are there today. We went home at the end of July, early August, we came back, and lo and behold, the numbers have come back about the budget and what money is available; and the Congressional Budget Office, among other agencies, have told us that none of those things are true, that we probably have already dipped into the Social Security and Medicare trust funds because of this massive tax cut that the President insisted on as the sort of anchor and the mark that he was willing to make sure that we wanted to accomplish in the first year of his Presidency.

Just as some information, Mr. Speaker, the Congressional Budget Office, this is from about a week or so ago, maybe it is 2 weeks now, the Congressional Budget Office confirmed what the Democrats have been saying for over a year, that the Bush tax cut is so big it forces the government to invade Social Security and Medicare trust funds. According to CBO, the government will be taking $30 billion from the Social Security Trust Fund and $170 billion from the Medicare trust fund over the next 5 years. The President talked about how in 2001, this fiscal year, we were going to have the second biggest surplus in history. But this year alone, the government is actually in deficit and must tap Medicare and Social Security to fund just routine government operations.

If we listen to what President Bush is saying, or what anybody much has said, well, we may have to tap into the Social Security trust fund. He has talked about, well, maybe if the economy continues to deteriorate, that will be necessary. So I do not think there is any question, Mr. Speaker, that we are headed down that road.

It is a scary road because, first of all, I should point out before I talk about the consequences of the fact of the matter is, it could be a lot worse than even what the CBO is estimating now, because we have to remember that the Congressional Budget Office, in their making these projections that these are baseline estimates, which basically assumes that there are no changes in spending. In other words, the CBO numbers do not assume that any of the other things that President Bush has talked about spending in this budget are going to happen, and it also assumes that the economy will pretty much stay the way it is rather than get any worse. If the economy worsens or if we tried to implement some of the things that the President has talked about, we could dip even further into the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

I know that the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. McINNIS), the gentleman who just spoke, said he does not really want to talk about the consequences of all of this, because after all, we are supposed to be united and we are not supposed to be bickering over who caused this problem. Well, it is not a coincidence. The Bush tax cut is the reason. In only 8 months, the President has taken us from a situation where we had a healthy surplus that was basically built up under the 8 years of President Clinton’s administration and was a major contributing factor to the fact that the economy was booming, and in just 8 months, this fiscal situation has dramatically reversed itself because of the policies of President Bush.

Now, I am not saying that I do not want to help solve the problem, but I do not want to lay the blame where the blame deserves to be placed. Things were good. The Federal Government was, for the first time, in surplus in the last 6 years of the Clinton administration. Now, in 8 months of the Bush administration, we are in a deficit once again. And, let me talk a little bit if I can, Mr. Speaker, about the consequences of this, because there are a lot of different consequences. There are various aspects as to what we are facing with here in terms of Federal policy and the negative consequences. I only mention it, not because I want to dwell on the negative, but because I want us to understand where we are so that we can do something about it in the future.

First of all, let me say I do not care what the other side says about this, the fact of the matter is that because we are now in this deficit situation, because of the Bush tax cut, we have destroyed any opportunity to spend any money on the national priorities that the President and others have talked about.

If we listen to President Bush, he still talks about his education initiatives and how there is going to be money now that is going to go back to the States and local school boards and to the schools throughout the country that are going to get beef up education. Let me assure my colleagues that the money is not there. It is not going to happen. It is not going to happen unless we take the money from the Social Security trust fund. So I do not think it is going to happen.

Number two, the President keeps talking about his defense priorities. The gentleman from Colorado (Mr. McINNIS) just mentioned a missile defense system. Well, I do not particularly like what the President is talking about in terms of a missile defense program; but whatever he is talking about: he talks about more money for the soldiers, he talks about more money for weapons, he talks about all of these billions of dollars that are going to be necessary to put us in a state of military preparedness. The money is not going to be there.

Mr. Speaker, these things are not going to happen. President Bush’s tax cut destroyed any opportunity to spend money on education or on defense. Most of all, because of the tax cut, the fact that I heard just about from my constituents, I have to have a district that has a higher proportion of senior citizens; and when I am home, as I was this weekend, they still talk to me about the high cost of prescription drugs, and how they cannot afford it and how they would like to have Medicare include a prescription drugs program, which I have been a big supporter of. We have a health care task force on the Democratic side of the aisle. We have been working collectively to come up with a prescription drugs Medicare program, and we have endorsed several programs on the Democratic side that President Clinton talked about what he wanted to do to have prescription drugs program. Well, President Bush can tell us whatever he wants, but the money is not there, because of his tax cut, to pay for this Medicare prescription drug program.

Mr. Speaker, I doubt that any of these national priorities that the President has identified: education, defense, or a prescription drug benefit under Medicare, will ever happen because of this tax cut, and because of the site of that, we just did.

Now, let me go on and talk a little more. It is not only that now, because of the tax cut, the Bush tax cut and the potential deficit that we do not have any money to spend on other priorities, but what is happening now is going to have a negative impact on the economy; and the fact of the matter is that what we do not have a surplus. And we are in a deficit situation. We hurt the economy; and we make it very, very difficult to have any economic recovery. I think the Republican side are telling us that now they want to focus on what we can do to bring the economy back, certainly bypassing this tax cut and putting us in a deficit situation, they have made it much, much harder for us to achieve any economic recovery.

Now, my colleagues do not have to take my word for it. Basically, we know that over the last year or so, the Federal Reserve has aggressively lowered short-term interest rates, but long-term interest rates have barely moved. They are still high. It was interesting at a July Senate Banking Committee hearing, we had Alan Greenspan, the Fed Chairman, and he very specifically indicated that the Bush tax cuts impact on the surplus in future years has prevented a decline in long-term interest rates.

The reason, a major reason why the economy was doing well during the Clinton era was because when President Clinton created a situation where there was a Federal surplus, it meant that the interest rates were low on their own, even without the Federal Reserve action; and it basically made it so that money was available. The Federal Government was not borrowing as much as it money out of the system for lenders who wanted to use it to lend money to companies or factories so that they could build new factories and come up with new means of production and create more jobs. That drain that comes the drain on the economy that comes from a Federal deficit is going to have a terribly negative impact on the economy and make it much more difficult for us to recover because the long-term interest rates will remain high, because it will be more difficult to borrow and raise capital for new production and create new jobs.

At this Senate Committee on Banking and Financial Services hearing, just to again reiterate that what I am saying is not pie in the sky, we had a little dialogue between the Federal Chairman Greenspan and Senator Schumer from New York. And if I could just finish this, this was the Senator, or I do not know if I can use the word “Senator,” but a member of the other body who said, and I quote, “One thing you mentioned, Mr. Greenspan, you thought that rates hadn’t come down enough was that the rate of decline of Treasury debt had not been as great as we thought. Is that due to the tax cut?” The Senator said, And Federal Chairman Greenspan said, “I think it is basically due to a series of things. One, the tax cut.” Senator SCHUMER says, “Right. So the tax cut did have a negative effect on this?” And Alan Greenspan says, “Oh, yes, no question.”

So the Bush tax cut is not only making it difficult to spend any money on education, defense, Medicare prescription drugs, and may kill all of those things; but in addition, it is having a negative impact on the economy and it is going to be very, very difficult to achieve the kind of economic recovery that now the President and my Republican colleagues are saying should be a priority.

Lastly, and this I guess is the most obvious one, but I want to go into it a little bit. What is happening here now in terms of us going back into a deficit and, inevitably, it seems, spending the money from the Social Security and the Medicare trust fund, is that the tax cut is having a negative impact and threatening Social Security and Medicare, we have the President, President Bush, setting up this commission, Social Security commission that over the summer, including during the August, was charged with providing all of this information about how they want to privatize Social Security. They may want to raise the age again when one gets Social Security. That is all this potential tinkering with the Social Security system that I think is going to make the situation even worse, because if we privatize Social Security, or say to people that they can take a certain amount of their current money outside to invest it in the stock market or in some other thing, there again, that is taking money away from the Social Security system that is not going to be available for the baby boom generation when they get to be 65.

Mr. Speaker, we no longer have the situation which we had under President Clinton and the Democrats where the general revenue surplus is being applied to boost up Social Security and Medicare. We now have a situation where President Bush’s tax cut is probably going to make Congress, or maybe we are already doing it, dip into the trust funds for Social Security and Medicare.

At the same time, we have this commission out there that President Bush is instituting that is proposing to take even more money out of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds so that people can invest money in the stock market or whatever. I cannot imagine a worse situation. Mr. Speaker, I recognize and I agree with my colleague, my Republican colleague, who spoke before me, the gentleman from Colorado, that I do not want to just come here and talk about how bad things are. But if we do not recognize why they are getting bad, then we are never going to correct them.

This Congress has to think about ways of dealing with the fact that this tax cut has really hurt the economy, threatened Social Security, and makes it possible for us to invest in other national priorities such as education, prescription drugs under Medicare, and defense needs.

Until we recognize the fact that this is a cause of a major cause of the problems, I do not think we are going to correct it. I am not going to just stand here and put my head in the sand and say this is just happening through natural causes. This is happening because of the President and the Bush tax cut and this policy. That is why we are in the situation that we are in, and we need to recognize it before we can move on.

OFFERED BY MR. STEARNS

SEC. 305. REPAIR, RESTORATION, AND PRESERVATION OF LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE MEMORIAL, MARNES LA-COGUETTE, FRANCE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The Lafayette Escadrille, an aviation squadron within the French Lafayette Flying Corps, was formed April 16, 1916.

(2) The Lafayette Escadrille consisted of aviators from the United States who volunteered to fight for the people of France during World War I.

(3) 265 volunteers from the United States served in the Lafayette Flying Corps, comprising 3,000 combat sorties and amassing nearly 200 victories.

(4) The Lafayette Escadrille won 4 Legions of Honor, 7 Medailles Militaires, and 31 citations, each with a Croix de Guerre.

(5) In 1918, command of the Lafayette Escadrille was transferred to the United States, where the Lafayette Escadrille became the combat air force of the United States.

(6) In 1921, a Franco-American committee was organized to locate a final resting place for the 68 United States aviators who lost their lives flying for France during World War I.

(7) The Lafayette Escadrille Memorial was dedicated on July 4, 1928, in honor of all States aviators who flew for France during World War I.

(8) The Lafayette Escadrille Memorial Foundation, located in the United States and in France, was founded by Nelson Cromwell in 1939 and endowed with a $1,500,000 trust for the maintenance and upkeep of the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—The United States should continue to honor the sacrifices made by all Americans who have served our Nation and our allies.

The Egyptian Government has pledged funds to support a restoration of the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial.

The United States should continue to honor the sacrifices made by all Americans who have served our Nation and our allies.
(b) Availability of Funds.—Of the total amount authorized to be appropriated under section 301(5) for operation and maintenance for Defense-wide activities, $2,000,000 shall be available to the Secretary of the Air Force only for the purpose of making a grant to the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial Foundation, Inc., to be used solely to perform the repair, restoration, and preservation of the structure, plaza, and surrounding grounds of the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial in Marnes La-Coguette, France. The grant funds shall be used solely for costs associated with such repair, restoration, and preservation, and none of the funds may be used for remuneration of any entity or individual associated with fund raising for the project.

(c) Corresponding Reduction in Funds.—The amount provided in section 301(5) for funding the Washington Headquarters Services is hereby reduced by $2,000,000.

H. R. 2386

Offered by Mr. Stearns

Amendment No. 6: At the end of subtitle A of title III (page 46, after line 23), insert the following new section:

(10) The French Government has pledged funds to support a restoration of the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial.

(11) The Lafayette Escadrille Memorial should be restored to its original beauty to honor all the United States aviators who flew for France during World War I and to demonstrate the respect of the United States for the sacrifices made by all Americans who have served our Nation and our allies.

(b) Sense of Congress.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should continue to honor its commitment to the United States aviators who lost their lives flying for France during World War I by appropriating sufficient funds to restore the Lafayette Escadrille Memorial in Marnes La-Coguette, France.
The Senate met at 11 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. BYRD].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Father, thank You for the privilege to pray to You at the beginning of this work week in the United States Senate. Gratefully, we remember the historic event which made possible one of America's most enduring traditions. On September 7, 1774, the first prayer in Congress was prayed when the Continental Congress convened. We praise You that this declaration of dependence on You led to the Declaration of Independence twenty-two months later. We reflect on the many times throughout our Nation's history that prayer broke deadlocks, opened the way to greater unity, and brought light in our darkest times. As we celebrate the power of prayer in years past, deepen our individual and corporate prayers for this Senate and our Nation. Help us to say those crucial words, 'One Nation Under God' with new trust in You this morning.

Dear God, bless America. Guide this Senate to lead this Nation to greater trust in You. We need a profound spiritual awakening once again. Forgive our Nation's humanistic secularism, materialism, and insensitivity to the problems of poverty, racism, and injustice. Lower Your plumb line of righteousness on every facet of our society and reveal what is out of plumb for what You desire for America. May our prayers draw us to Your heart. We want this prayer to begin a continuous conversation with You throughout this day. Help us to listen, discern Your will, and obey with faithfulness. You are our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 12 noon will be under the control of the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. THOMAS, or his designee. Under the previous order, the time until 12 noon will be under the control of the Senator from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, or his designee.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Nevada, Mr. REID, is recognized.

STATUS OF THE COMMERCE, STATE, JUSTICE APPROPRIATIONS BILL

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I spoke Friday afternoon with Senator HOLLINGS, who will manage the Commerce, State, Justice appropriations bill. He indicated that he and Senator GREGG are ready to go to work. They will be on the floor at noon today. There are a number of amendments, but we don't think there will be a lot of amendments. We need to move this bill very quickly. As soon as we finish, we have seven more appropriations bills to complete as soon as possible, with the fiscal year coming to a close at the end of this month.

The majority leader has indicated that he will have a vote between 5 and 5:30 tonight. Senator HOLLINGS understands that. So Members should expect a vote tonight between 5 and 5:30.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wyoming, Mr. THOMAS, is recognized.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I yield the 15 minutes to my friend, the Senator from Idaho.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Idaho is recognized for not to exceed 15 minutes.

THE LAST OF THE "SLUDGE" FROM THE CLINTON ADMINISTRATION

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I am on the floor of the Senate today to speak to an issue that is right in Washington, D.C., in our midst. It is something that I think few of us realize, but it has begun to get the attention of the American public. We have seen several news articles on it in the last month.

Mr. President, the Bush administration inherited an environmental mess from previous administrations over the past good number of years. As I have said, it is right here in the backyard of Washington, D.C. The Washington Aqueduct, which is operated by the Army Corps of Engineers, is in violation of the Endangered Species Act and the Clean Water Act. Millions of pounds of sludge, laced with alum, are created when the Potomac River water is treated for drinking water for the Washington, D.C., and Northern Virginia area.

I have a picture of the release of the sludge from the Potomac River. Rather than send the sludge to a landfill, as other cities are required to do, it is dumped back into the Potomac River. Strangely enough, Mr. President, it is dumped into the river at night. Why? I suspect so that the public will not see it or ask the question: What is it? Therefore, it is dumped through the Chesapeake and the Ohio Canal National Historic Park.

The Corps claims that to alter this procedure that it would require the water treatment facilities will take years to plan, to build, and to become operational. The only problem is that they have been saying that now for decades.

The Corps has stated that if it were prohibited from dumping millions of pounds of toxic sludge into the river to protect an endangered species would create a security crisis. What would the crisis be? Well, it would deprive the White House, the Congress, the courts, and the Pentagon of adequate drinking water.

Mr. President, I have to be honest. That kind of an argument and that situation outrages me. I believe that no one should be above the law, including the Army Corps of Engineers. Of all the times that I thought we would never hear the phrase, “not in my backyard,” we are hearing it repeated said right here in Washington by the Army Corps of Engineers. A situation of this nature would have occurred in the mid-90’s if it were not because the Endangered Species Act would have trumped all of the other needs first. In fact, a community would be taxed beyond its capacity to finance a new facility and that facility would be taxed down for a while. Of all the times that I thought we would never hear the phrase, “not in my backyard,” we are hearing it repeated said right here in Washington by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Let me give you an example in McCall, ID. The drinking water source from the community is cleaner than the standards of the Safe Water Drinking Act. However, the community has been struggling for the last decade to finance a new drinking water system in order to comply with Federal regulations.

I strongly feel that no one entity should operate as if it was above the law and especially in our Nation’s Capital. If changes need to be made to the Washington Aqueduct, then the Corps should be taking steps to work with the affected communities to establish a new plan. That is what is expected of all of the communities in my State, in the West, and across the Nation, and no less should be expected by our Nation’s Capital.

A new discharge permit would require the current illegal discharge to cease, and that, of course, is the problem. This new permit has not been issued because there is a concern by local residents who do not want the dump trucks hauled by the sludge through their community; thus, a resulting belief that ratepayers would prefer that the sludge be dumped into the river rather than pay for the cost of the facilities to treat it. At least that appears to be the attitude at this moment.

I have a hard time believing that the residents of any community would want to pollute the water of their community and especially through the middle of a national park. However, this is the typical response of “not in my backyard.” We now affectionately call it NIMBY or being “NIMBYfied.”

Clearly, in my State Washington is silent on its NIMBYism. The situation, I repeat, would not be tolerated in the West because a Federal court would order a community to stand down and be responsible under the regulations of the law.

According to the Army Corps, the volume of chemically treated sludge discharged into the primary, if not the only, spawning habitat of the endangered shortnose sturgeon is large enough to require 15 dump truckloads a day to haul it away from the area.

This chart is a picture taken at dawn of the sludge pouring into the river. While it is hard to see, in the distance lies the natural quality of the water. This is the chemical sludge that pours into the Potomac River during the night. Of course, this is a picture that is not very handsome, and I am sure the Army Corps of Engineers would not like to have it dramatized, but in reality, this is exactly what goes on. This dumping represents 15 truckloads of material that should be hauled away on a daily basis.

It has been concluded that a single enormous discharge that includes several million pounds of solids, often mentioned in the transcripts from Mount Vernon, that one of the most lucrative parts of the Mount Vernon operation was fishing in the Potomac. We know that cannot happen nor would it happen today.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has concluded that the fish is present in the general area because commercial fishermen turned in the sturgeon they happened to catch in their nets in response to a reward program for another species of sturgeon that was known to be in the area.

The bottom line is, there are threatened and endangered fish in the Potomac River, and yet the Army Corps has done nothing in response to the need to cooperate.

In my State of Idaho, or any other State in the Nation, this is a practice that would not be tolerated, and that is why I have come to the floor today. We pass laws, you and I, Mr. President, and the administration works on regulations to administer those laws. The Endangered Species Act over the last three decades has been touted by some as the most progressive environmental law in our Nation, and clearly it has saved species of threatened and endangered plants, animals, fish.

My State has been largely reshaped by it. Federal land use plans in my State are much more prescriptive today and controlled by the very issue of the Endangered Species Act. But here, by the way, and by the nod, nothing happens. It is a river that you and I, Mr. President, for years have worked to pass legislation that would progressively clean up and improve it, moving it back toward a time when it was a viable fishery on the east coast. But with the millions of pounds of sludge dumped daily into this river in the dark of night under a permit that has not been reissued since 1994—really, how long do we allow something like this to go on? How long do we allow the Army Corps of Engineers to continue to operate because it is in our best interest in the Nation’s Capital, the city that ought to lead by example but cannot get away with a direct violation of the law or by ignoring the enforcement of the law?

I do not think that should be the case. That is why I stand in the Chamber to speak to this issue and to speak more clearly to it. While I believe the Endangered Species Act needs to be reformed, there is not any way I could write it to reform it that would justify this, nor would I try. Nor would any Senator vote for that kind of a reform.

Yes, we would expect the Endangered Species Act to be more practical in its application, and, yes, we would want a more cooperative relationship with local communities of interest, but never tolerate the kind of an aggressive act that goes on in Washington on a daily basis, as I have said, oftentimes in the dark of night by Washington on a daily basis, as I have said, oftentimes in the dark of night by this city and by our own agency, the Army Corps of Engineers, which is primarily responsible for the water treatment of this city.

The application of the Endangered Species Act, as we see it, is good for the country and good for the West. It ought to be the same act and it ought to be treated in the same way in our Nation’s Capital. This is simply not being done.

I am in the Chamber to speak to that issue and to recognize I have been involved with others in trying to bring about the conformity of the enforcement of the Endangered Species Act as we rebuild the Woodrow Wilson Bridge. This is one of many issues where there seems to be this attitude, well, if it is the Government doing it, somehow the Government can get away with it, and if it is in or near our Nation’s Capital, where national security and the importance of the Congress are involved, then surely we can wink and nod and we can let the law be bypassed.

I think not, Mr. President, and I think you agree with me.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Wyoming, Mr. Thomas.

PLANNING THE SENATE AGENDA

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, we enter into our second week of this fall’s session after the recess, and we are faced with much to do. I think that is not unusual. It is often the case things pile up towards the end of the session, of course, but it seems to me we have a great many items to consider.

There are 15 appropriation bills to be passed in this year and I have this Government operate in the next fiscal year. The fiscal year begins October 1, which is only 3 weeks away. In the course of those 3 weeks, there are several days which, for various reasons—the Jewish holiday is one of them—will not be a legislative day. So we have really a relatively short time.

Obviously, what we will be doing is passing a continuing resolution before this is over; but nevertheless we have a great deal to do. None of these bills has yet gone to the President. Some of them have been passed in both Houses and are waiting now on the conference committees.

To be sure, it is difficult. It is always difficult. This year we are seeing some more difficulties because of the change in conditions with regard to the surplus, because of the difficulty I think we are finding now in staying within the budget we passed some time ago. Nevertheless, those are the items before us.

It does not seem to me perhaps that we are moving ahead quite as rapidly as we might. It does not seem to me we have a very well designed plan to accomplish these things within a certain period of time.

I understand it is very difficult to bring together a group of this kind with different views and properly argue those views. On the other hand, the role of leadership is to have a plan. It is the role of leadership to cause things to happen. Even though they are difficult issues, they must be done. Unfortunately, as I noticed particularly this weekend on public media, and so on, while we are trying to get along, we seem to be spending more time blaming one another, particularly the President and the administration, for the difficulties in which we find ourselves.

We can have different points of view about whether that is valid or whether it is not, but even if it is, the fact is we have things to do and we should be moving ahead with the plan to do them. Instead of that, we seem to be spending more time complaining about the administration’s plan. The fact is, we have indeed the second largest surplus in our history. We also have a budget that we passed that is about a 4-percent increase, which is a fairly low increase, which is what we needed compared to what we have spent in the past several years. Our challenge is to stay within the budget we passed and to continue to move forward in doing that.

We have a great deal of complaint about tax relief—too much tax relief. As a matter of fact, we are in the process of passing that relief back to the people who own the money, and that is as it should be, I believe, particularly as we find ourselves in a time with a very slowing economy. What else is more important than to return more money to the taxpayers if we indeed have a surplus? And we are doing that. It is interesting, of course, is of not reaching into Social Security, which I happen to agree with, although we have done that for how many years and those dollars are accounted for in the Social Security fund, even though for years they have been spent for other purposes. But it is a great deal of complaint, I might add.

However, I do not think that is really the issue. The issue is holding down spending to comply with the budget that we passed. It seems to me that ought to be our challenge.

There is, of course, in my view, no real threat to the beneficiaries of Social Security. Those obligations are there. They are going to be there. We have paid down more debt because of the surpluses of several years ago. And what we really need to do is address ourselves to the issues we have before us. The turndown in the economy, of course, is the thing most of us are very concerned about, all of these are here, whether we are in Casper, WY, or wherever, and to do what we can to seek to play the Government’s role in doing what we can to change that.

A reduction in taxes, the return of tax relief, is designed to help do that. Hopefully, it will. We are not through with that yet. We are in the process with, I believe, seven reductions in the last year in interest rates designed hopefully to stimulate the economy. We need to do that.

Limiting our spending in the budget is another aspect we are seeking to help pick up and strengthen the economy. There are some other things we ought to be doing. We ought to be doing something about the difficulty in the Asian currency a year ago which brought a good deal of problems to our economy. So we are a part of that, of course. There are a number of things we can do, and I cannot think of anything more important for us to talk about collectively than what is appropriate for the Government in helping to strengthen this economy.

Yesterday, again on the TV, there were some questions about that. Oh, no, it is up to the President to do that. I do not agree with that. Of course, the President is the one who brings up the suggestions to the Senate. The President is not in control of the Senate, and the Senate has its own responsibilities to take leadership as well. The idea of saying it all began since this President became President is not true.
It has been here for a year, and then to say it is up to the President, I do not agree with that.

Each of us in this body has some responsibility to give thought to what we can do to help strengthen this economy, which everyone in this country wants to see succeed.

In addition to that, of course, it seems to me we ought to be moving on an energy bill. This is very important to us, not only to the economy, but we are going to have more impacts of it, of course, in the winter. We can do that. We started to work on pharmaceuticals. The budget contains opportunity for that. We can do that. Education has been passed by both Houses of Congress and still remains in conference.

I know many in the leadership on both sides are very anxious to work together and show evidence of working together and want to work together. I certainly encourage that be done so we can do more impacting of it, which I believe holds the budget, so that we have completed all the appropriations bills.

The economy is in trouble. Whether we like it or not, the President of the United States is seen to be the person directing the economy of the country. Basically, that is true.

Over the weekend, the press reported all over America a conversation between Speaker Hastert and the President of the United States, George W. Bush. I quote from him: A year from now is when it matters. He is talking to the President about the terms of the economy. A year from now is when it matters.

Let’s see, a year from now is real close to midterm elections. Is that what they are talking about? Of course it is.

President Bush responds: “It’s my timeframe, too. So the Speaker of the House, who says they are not concerned about the economy now, but they are concerned about what happens a year from now. That is too bad. We have to be concerned about the economy today, not a year from now. We have an economy that is in real trouble. That is a fact. Rarely do all economists agree on everything, but when it comes to the current state of our economy, there is uniform agreement that things are getting worse instead of better.”

As of the end of the 1993 Budget Deficit Reduction Act, which was a very difficult vote, President Clinton gave us that budget. It was a tough vote for all Members. In the House of Representatives, without a single Republican vote, it passed by one vote. Courageous people lost their seats in the House of Representatives. The hero that I look to is MARIA CANTWELL. She served one term in the House of Representatives. She knew if she voted for that Budget Deficit Reduction Act, she was going to lose her re-election, and it did, but she did the right thing and now is a Member of the Senate. Not all people were as fortunate as MARIA CANTWELL. Some lost and their political careers ended.

In the Senate of the United States, the vote was a tie and the Vice President of the United States came over and sat where the Presiding Officer is now sitting and cast a tie-breaking vote to allow that budget deficit plan to go forward. As a result, we had 7 years of good times in this country. The votes were tough. We reduced unemployment by over 300,000 people, excluding the military. We had the lowest inflation, lowest employment in more than 40 years, created 25 million new jobs, reduced the deficit from $300 billion a year to surpluses.

Now, with this great budget we have been given by George W. Bush, we are in trouble already. Everyone acknowledges that we do not have the money for these tremendous tax cuts in the future. It has put a real damper on our economy.

Since the passage of the President’s budget, we have witnessed a very decline in the number of economic indicators. Each week there is a new economic indicator indicating we are in trouble. Majority Leader DASCHLE said this weekend, when you take a U-turn on economic policy, you can expect a U-turn in the direction of the economy. That is what we have. The problems face because of the President’s budget deserve immediate attention.

My friend from Wyoming said it right not the President of the United States. He got us into this mess. He needs at giving us a blueprint for trying to get out of this mess. We are going to go ahead and do the country’s business and work our way through the appropriations bills the best we can. We have to move forward. That makes it tough in the Senate. We need some leadership from the President of the United States, other than saying “a year from now is when it matters.”

It matters right now. The current state of the economy is one of people losing jobs; the surplus has already disappeared. We are going back to the days of deficits already. And the fact that the ranking member of the Budget Committee, my friend from New Mexico, Senator DOMENICI, was quoted in the press, saying maybe we should spend Social Security surpluses.

To show the disarray on the other side, we have some who are calling for more tax reductions to solve the problem. This economy cannot reduce the capital gains taxes. The thing we are now hearing is the Republicans are fighting among themselves as to whether that is a good deal.

The President of the United States today, as we speak, is in Florida talking about the need to pass an education bill. The first thing the Democrats did upon taking power in the Senate was pass the education bill. We did that.

Senator DASCHLE could have brought this economy back. He did not. It is the majority leader placed education on the agenda. And we worked our way through that and passed it. There were some battles as to whether we should do this or that, but it was passed. There was compromise. Legislation is about the art of compromise.

For the President of the United States to be in Florida saying, “Pass my education bill,” which is now in conference, takes money, dollars, not to just go around talking about what a great bill we have.

I can remember when I was not as educated in “things Washington,” and I would read in the newspapers that someone in the Nevada delegation issued a statement that some bill had passed. Oh, I thought, good times are here. Little did I know that what you needed was an appropriation to go along with that authorization. I do not think that the United States is being fair to the American public by not recognizing that you need to do more than authorize; you need to appropriate. And he will not help us with that. So to go down to Florida today and have a big cheerleader with the words about "I am the guy who is going to help you with education" when he is unwilling to help us finance education is wrong.

I don’t know how many more people have to lose their jobs, lose their cars, lose their homes. How many will it take before we have the President telling us we need a new budget? The old budget will not work. The economy will not be fixed by hastily arranged press conferences such as we had last week when they found there was a 4.9-percent unemployment rate. There was a quick press conference held, and all the congressional leadership ran to the White House, and that is where they came up with this brilliant statement; it does that is happening now; what we need to look at is what going to happen a year from now.

We need to work with the President in righting this problem, but we need some direction from the White House.

STEM CELL RESEARCH

Mr. REID. Mr. President, 3 years ago a young man by the name of Steve Rigazio, president and chief operating officer for the largest utility in Nevada, Nevada Power—a fine, fine young man—was diagnosed with Lou Gehrig’s disease. It is a devastating illness that affects the nerve cells in the spinal cord, causes muscles to wither and die very quickly. He has lived longer than people expected. The normal time from the time of diagnosis, when you are told you have this disease, until the time you die, is 18 months. He has lived 3 years. He no longer works. He finally had to give up his job.

Because Lou Gehrig’s disease attacks the body but leaves the mind intact, this vibrant man has had to watch his body deteriorate around him. He is a man of great courage, and I hope he lives much longer than people expect. He deserves it.

I have had visiting me for a number of years now two beautiful little girls from Las Vegas. They are twins. They are now 12 years old. One of the twins, Mollie Singer, has struggled with juvenile diabetes since she was 4 years old. She has had thousands of pricks of her skin—thousands. She is a beautiful little girl who believes that we in Washington can help her not have to do all the things the million Americans who suffer from this illness, Mollie fears that her kidneys will fail, she will get some kind of infection and have one of her limbs amputated or even lose her sight as a result of this diabetes.

There is something that gives Mollie and Steve hope, and that is stem cell research. It gives hope to tens of millions of families, including the family of Steve Rigazio and Mollie Singer, who, like Steve Rigazio and Mollie Singer, suffer from Lou Gehrig’s disease, diabetes, or Alzheimer’s, Parkinson’s, lupus, heart disease, spinal cord injuries, and other illnesses. Since 2001, stem cells can transform into nearly all the different tissues that make up the human body, they can replace defective or missing cells. Scientists are really very optimistic that one day stem cells will be used to replace defective cells in children with juvenile diabetes or even to create rejection-free organs.

Knowing that stem cells may have the power to save and improve lives, we cannot deny researchers the tools they need to fully realize the potential of stem cells. If we fail to seize promising research opportunities, we will fall millions of Americans and their families and people all over the world.

Early last month, President Bush announced he would limit Government funding for the stem cell lines that already existed at the time of his announcement. This was obviously a political compromise. I am pleased that the President left the door open for Federal funding of stem cell research in some capacity, but I am very concerned that he has not opened the door far enough to allow scientists to fully realize the life-saving potential of stem cells.

Last week, Secretary Thompson announced that no more than 25 of the 64 stem cell lines the National Institutes of Health listed as falling under the President’s criteria are fully developed. We still do not know whether the remaining 40 stem cell lines would be useful to us. Even now, we know about the 25 viable stem cell lines that fall under the President’s guidelines is very troubling. Why? Most, if not all, of the existing stem cell lines have been mixed with mouse cells. As a result, these cells could transfer deadly animal viruses to people, human beings.

It is also unclear whether these cells will be suitable for transplanting into people. Just last week, Dr. Douglas Melton, a professor of molecular and cellular biology at Harvard, testified that cells derived from mice “have proven unreliable over time for research, either dying out or growing into diseased forms.”

Even though scientists are working on ways to grow human embryonic cell lines without using mouse cells, they will not be eligible for Federal research money because they will be created after President Bush’s arbitrary August 12 deadline. Last week the administration announced it would not reconsider this deadline, even if it were later discovered that none of these cell lines was suitable for long-term research.

If we fail to fund research for the new stem lines that are created without mouse cells, foreign scientists will still conduct research on stem cell lines that fall outside his guidelines. This research is going to go forward. So why can’t we go forward? Why aren’t we trying to get a step up on the United States. This research is going to go forward. Let’s do it the right way.

As a result of the guidelines of the President, we will not have the ability to provide any oversight of this research, if it is done overseas, to ensure that it is conducted by ethical means. Not only will we risk losing our most talented scientists to foreign countries, but we also jeopardize our potential as a nation to remain a world leader in stem cell research.

Over the course of the next several months, scientists will continue to determine whether President Bush’s policy will allow stem cell research to advance at a reasonable pace. As we continue to evaluate the President’s funding guidelines, we need to keep in mind that millions of Americans who suffer from devastating illnesses do not have the luxury of time—Steve Rigazio as an example. We cannot continue to dangle the hope of cure or the promise of scientific breakthrough before these patients and their families without adequately supporting research to allow scientists to achieve these very important discoveries.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the question be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Mr. LEAHY). Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Morning business is closed.

DEPARTMENTS OF COMMERCE, JUSTICE, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2002

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will now proceed to the consideration of H.R. 2500, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2500) making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The distinguished Senator from South Carolina, the chairman of the Commerce Committee, is recognized.
Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask the clerk to report it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from South Carolina [Mr. HOLLINGS], for himself and Mr. GREGG, proposes an amendment numbered 1553.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in the RECORD under Amendments Submitted.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the amendment is considered adopted.

The amendment (No. 1553) was agreed to.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I am pleased to present to the Senate the fiscal year 2002 State, Justice, Commerce, the Judiciary, and related agencies appropriations bill. This bill was accepted unanimously by the full committee in past years. This has been an extremely bi-partisan effort on the part of the members and staff of this subcommittee. In particular, I would like to thank the ranking member, Senator GREGG, for his dedication to producing a fair and well rounded bill. I cano from act of this subcommittee in a distinguished fashion during the past 4 years. He knows this bill through and through and his assistance during the change over has been greatly appreciated. Also, I want to recognize the hard work of my subcommittee staff: my majority clerk, Lila Helms, Jill Shapiro Long, Luke Nachbar, and Dereck Orr; as well as the minority clerk, Jim Morhard along with Kevin Linskey, Katherine Hennessey, and Nancy Perkins.

This is my 31st year on the CJS Subcommittee, and this is the 25th annual appropriations bill for CJS that I have been privileged to present to the Senate either as chairman, or as ranking member of the subcommittee. I am still amazed at the range of important issues that this bill addresses.

Funds appropriated under this bill directly affect the daily lives of all Americans.

First, the President's budget proposal to move MARAD into the Department of Defense. The subcommittee's appropriations bill, and the President's request. There are four specific accounts that benefit from the increased funds above the President's request. They are MARAD, COPS Universal Hiring Program, NIST's Advanced Technology Program, and the Small Business Administration.

Second, the President's budget proposal to fund only the school resource officer component of the COPS Program. The committee bill before the Senate today fully supports the School Resource Officer, but also restores the Universal Hiring Program. The committee bill provides $190 million for the Universal Hiring and Cops More Program.

Third, the President's request proposed to zero out the Advanced Technology Program. The committee bill restores this program and provides the same level of funding, $90.7 million, for new awards as was provided last year. As a result, the bill includes $190 million above the President's request for the ATP Program.

Finally, the President's request proposed to move SBA from a service agency to a fee for service agency. In the process, the President's request for funding for the SBA to increase by 7% from 1998, and marking 9 consecutive years of decline. This continues to be the longest running crime decline on record. Bipartisan efforts to fund DOJ's crime fighting initiatives have impacted this reduction in crime during the past 10 years.

The bill provides $3.47 billion for the FBI, which is $226 million above last year's funding level. To meet the FBI's training, resources, and equipment needs, the bill provides $142 million for the FBI's Computer Modernization Program, trilogy; $68.8 million to improve intercept capabilities; $7 million for counter-encryption resources; $12 million for forensic research; $4 million for four mitochondrial DNA forensic labs; and $32 million for an annex for the engineering research facility, which develops and fields cutting edge technology in support of case agents.

To highlight the changing mission of the FBI, the bill provides a new budget structure. Three old criminal divisions were combined into two, and new divisions for cybercrime and counterterrorism were created. The bill also provides the Bureau with more flexibility and should improve the Bureau's responsiveness to changing patterns of crime and headquarters' support of the field. The bill also directs the FBI to re-engineer its workforce by hiring and training specialists that are technically-trained agents and electronics engineers and technicians.

The bill provides $1.15 billion for DEA, $8.8 million above the budget request. Increased funds are provided for technology and infrastructure improvements, including an additional $30 million for DEA's computer network, firebird, and an additional $13 million for DEA's laboratory operations for forensic support.

To combat drugs that are reaching our streets and our children, the bill provides $52.8 million to fight methamphetamine and encourages the DEA to increase efforts to combat heroin and emerging drugs such as oxycodin and MDMA, also known as ecstasy. The bill also directs DEA to review its enforcement work and increase its focus on combating drug trafficking and corruption under the country's new President Vicente Fox.
For the INS, the bill includes $5.5 billion, $2.1 billion of which is derived from fees. This funding provides the necessary resources to address border enforcement and benefits processing. For border enforcement, the bill provides $375 million for 700 additional Border Patrol Agents, $25 million for 348 additional land border inspectors, and $67.5 million for additional inspectors and support staff.

To better equip and house these agents and inspectors, the bill provides $91 million for 328 new vehicles, $22 million for border equipment, such as search lights, goggles and infrared scopes, $40.5 million to modernize inspection technology; and $205 million for Border patrol and detention facility construction and rehabilitation.

For INS' other hat, benefits processing, the bill provides $67 million additional funds to address the backlog and accelerate the processing times.

This bill includes $3.07 billion for the Office of Juvenile Justice Programs. This amount is $259.8 million above the amount requested by the President. This bill provides for the funding of a number of important law enforcement programs.

The committee has provided $2.08 billion for State and Local Law Enforcement Assistance Grants. Within this amount, $400 million is for the Local Law Enforcement Block Grant Program; $390.5 million is for Violence Against Women Act—VAWA—grant programs, including programs to assist disabled female victims, programs to reduce violence against women on college campuses, and efforts to address domestic and child abuse in rural areas; and $265 million is provided for the State Criminal Alien Assistance Program which reimburses States for the incarceration costs of criminal aliens.

Within the amount provided for the Office of Justice Programs, a total of $928.7 million has been also been recommended for juvenile justice programs. These funds will go towards programs aimed at reducing delinquency among at-risk youth; assisting States in enforcing underage drinking laws; and enhancing school safety by providing youth with positive role models through structured mentoring programs, training for teachers and families so that they can recognize troubled youth, and training to students on conflict resolution and violence prevention.

This bill includes $1.019 billion for the COPS office in new budget authority, which is $163.7 million above the President's request. As in prior years, the Senate has provided $180 million for the COPS-in-Schools Program to fund up to 1,500 additional school resources officers in FY02, which will make a total of 6,100 school resource officers funded since Senator Gregg and I created this program in 1998.

The committee also remained committed to providing grant funds for the hiring of local law enforcement officers through the COPS Universal Hiring Program. Although the President did not seek funding for this program in FY02, the committee has provided $190 million to continue to hire officers, as well as to provide much needed communications technology to the Nations law enforcement community. Within the total, the committee has also increased funding for programs authorized by the Crime Identification and Technology Act, CITTA. In FY02, $150.9 million is provided for programs that will improve the retention of, and access to, criminal records nationwide, improve the forensic capabilities of State and local forensic labs, and reduce the backlog of crime scene and convicted offender DNA evidence.

And finally, the committee has provided $48.3 million within COPS to continue the COPS methamphetamine initiative. These funds will provide for the clean-up of meth production sites which pose serious health risks to law enforcement and the surrounding public. Funds will also be provided to State and local law enforcement to acquire training and equipment to safely and effectively dismantle existing meth labs.

For the Department of Commerce in fiscal year 2002, the committee has focused on the separate but equally important goals of improving departmental infrastructure and promoting the Advanced Communications Technology Act. The Nation is blessed with an outstanding group of individuals who go to work every day, across the Nation, for the Department of Commerce. Thirty-seven thousand people work in agencies as diverse as the Economic Development Administration, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the Bureau of the Census. They are highly-trained experts who are responsible for a huge array of critical programs. These people help millions of manufacturers, retailers and consumers flourish, run trade missions to open foreign markets to American goods, forecast hurricanes, estimate the Nation's gross domestic product, set standards and measurements recognized and used worldwide, fly satellites, manage the Nation’s fisheries, conduct censuses, and process patents.

These missions of the Department of Commerce are the glue that holds together the U.S. economy, both domestically and internationally.

There is no doubt as to the importance of the missions under the purview of the Department of Commerce. There is, however, a crisis looming in terms of the infrastructure available to the employees who work there. In many cases, Mr. President, these people are going to work in World War II-era buildings that are literally crumbling around them. We saw this last year in Sutland where we had leaks in the roof, lead in the water, and asbestos. Today, the President requested funding for new buildings. The average age of the NOAA fleet of research vessels is close to 30 years old. Employees in Department of Commerce bureaus are working with antiquated computer systems that often do not speak to the outside world.

The bill we have before us begins to turn the tide on infrastructure needs. In FY02, the bill provides for President's request for capital upgrades. This includes new information technology systems at the Minority Business Development Agency, the Bureau of the Census, the Economic Development Agency, and the Office of Economic and Statistical Analysis. The bill includes a $76 million increase for the next generation of polar-orbiting satellites. It also includes a new radio spectrum measurement system at the National Telecommunications and Information Administration.

In other cases, this bill jump-starts capital projects that were not requested by the President when they should have been. For example, funding is included to begin work on upgrading the Federal building in Denver, CO, campus of the National Institute of Standards and Technology. We also encouraged the United States Patent and Trademark Office to reflect on its infrastructure needs and to report back on what we can do to help in the future.

In terms of NOAA, the bill includes funding for 2 new research vessels and funds to refurbish 6 others. In addition, funding is included for needed repairs at转折, Oxford, and Kasitsna Coastal Laboratories. Significant funding is provided to begin construction on regional National Marine Fisheries Service Buildings in Hawaii and in Alaska. The bill provides funding to start building visitor facilities at National Marine Sanctuaries.

Mr. President, the funding provided in this bill for these purposes is a down-payment on the future of a robust Department of Commerce. I believe that the people at the Department—most of its growth—these targeted funds will allow those people to better do their jobs for decades to come.

In terms of advancing technology, in addition to the satellite programs, research vessels, radio spectrum management systems and other programs that I mentioned earlier, the bill provides $996.5 million for the National Institute for Standards and Technology—NIST. This amount aggressively funds scientific and technical services that are carried out in the NIST Laboratories in Gaithersburg and in Boulder. The bill provides the current year funding level of $60.7 for new ATP awards. The ATP is an industry-led, competitive, and cost-shared program to help the U.S. develop the next generation of breakthrough technologies in advance of its foreign competitors. ATP contracts encourage companies to undertake initial high-risk research that promises significant widespread benefits. Over one-half of the ATP awards go to small companies. To date, Mr. President, 41 ATP competitions have been held; 4,435 proposals... have been submitted involving 7,343 participants; 526 awards have been issued involving 1,187 participants, and 248 ATP projects have been completed. Of the 526 awards, 173 are joint ventures, and 353 are single applicants. Fifty-five percent of the projects are led by small businesses and 71 percent of the single applicant projects are led by small business. More than 150 different universities are involved in 280 ATP projects and over 100 new technologies have been commercialized as products or services. Companies have identified nearly 1,400 potential applications of ATP research.

Is ATP a success? The answer clearly is ‘yes.’ The Advanced Technology Program has been extensively reviewed. Since its inception, there have been 52 studies on the efficacy and merits of the program. These assessments reveal that the ATP does not fund projects that otherwise would have been funded by the private sector. Rather, the ATP facilitates so-called “Valley of Death” projects that private capital markets are unable to fund. In June 2001, the National Academy of Sciences’ National Research Council completed its comprehensive review of the ATP. It found that the ATP is an effective Federal partnership that is funding new technologies that can contribute to important societal goals. They also found that “the ATP could use more funding effectively and efficiently since so many projects that future returns from just 3 of the 50 completed ATP projects—improving automobile manufacturing processes, reducing the cost of blood and immune cell production, and using a new material for prosthetic devices—would pay for all projects funded to date by the ATP. Measurement and evaluation have been part of the ATP since its beginning. What the analysis shows time and time again is that the ATP is stimulating collaboration, accelerating the development of high-risk technologies, and paying off for the Nation.

The bill includes a total of $7.6 billion for the Department of State and related agencies, an increase of $617 million above last year’s funding level of $7.0 billion. Within the State Department account, $1.1 billion has been provided for worldwide security upgrades of State Department facilities. Additionally, the bill provides $773 million to continue support for international peacekeeping activities.

During the past several years, the worldwide security accounts and the peacekeeping account have accounted for the majority of increases in the Department’s budget while the day-to-day operations have been neglected. As a result, many of the Department’s quality of life initiatives and the Department’s other infrastructure needs—communications, transportation, office equipment, and the like—are underfunded. The funding provided in this bill fully funds current services for the Department of State. In addition, this bill funds all quality of life initiatives such as: additional language, security, leadership and management training; monetary incentives to attract employees to hardship posts; incentives to allow civil service employees to compete for 2-year overseas assignments; and replacement of obsolete furniture and motor vehicles.

As with the other departments funded through this bill, full funding is provided for information technology upgrades. The worldwide web has become essential to the conduct of foreign policy. Yet many overseas posts have been short of that capability. The funding provided in this bill fully supports Secretary Powell’s decision to place information technology among the Department’s top priorities and fully funds the Department’s efforts to provide internet access to all State Department desktops by January 2003.

Let me conclude by saying again this is a solid piece of legislation that addresses issues that affect the daily lives of Americans, on the day-to-day things that balances the needs on many diverse missions, and the interests of members from both parties. Every year, we face difficulties with respect to limited funding and multiple, sometimes conflicting priorities. This year was no different. And, as in past years, the CJS Subcommittee made those decisions in a bipartisan and judicious manner. This could not have happened without the assistance of Senator Hollings and the other brave Senators that closed the gap that both my and his staff put into drafting the bill before the Senate today. With the help of my colleagues, I look forward to swift passage of this vital legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I rise in support of the bill brought forward by the Senator from South Carolina. I want to thank her for the tremendous courtesy and teamwork approach he has taken on this bill relative to the Republican side of the aisle. I especially thank his staff, led by Lila Helms, for their efforts to make sure we had an approach that involved all the different players on the committee.

This has been a bill which Senator BYRD, during the full committee markup, described as the “most bipartisan bill in his memory.” We are very proud of that, I think it is very much a reflection of the leadership of Senator HOLLINGS and the approach he has taken. So I express my deep and sincere thanks to him.

Senator HOLLINGS has outlined pretty specifically the areas this bill funds and some of the initiatives in the bill. Let me talk about a couple, however, that I would like to highlight myself. First, the appropriation level on this bill is significant, $4.15 billion, which is over $1 billion above the President’s request by a fair amount—about one-half billion dollars. It is my hope—and I have discussed this with Senator HOLLINGS—as we move through the process that we can come a little closer to the President’s request. I note, however, that the bill is within our budget resolution and the allocation given to this committee. So as a practical matter it does not in any way negatively impact the budget. It is my understanding it spends these dollars is because it has significant agencies that it funds.

The Department of Justice is, of course, a critical agency; the Department of State; Department of Commerce; Judiciary; FTC; FCC; and the SEC. These are all agencies that play a huge role in the deliverance of quality Government in our country. It is our obligation to strongly support them.

One area on which we have focused a considerable amount of time in the committee has been the issue of terrorism and our preparation for terrorism as a government. Earlier in the year, we had a joint hearing that involved a large number of Senators participating who had been present and testifying all the major agencies that impact terrorism within the Federal Government—I believe the number is 42, or maybe 46. I myself even lost count, even though I stay attentive to subcommittee and, as a practical matter, the coordination necessary in order to deliver a thoughtful and effective response to the threat of terrorism is not that strong.

Terrorism can be divided into three basic areas of responsibilities, the first being intelligence, both domestic and international; the second being interdiction, again domestic and international; and the third being consequence management should an event occur.

In all these areas, there is a significant overlap of responsibility and, as a result, through this hearing and many other hearings we have held, we have come to the conclusion that we have to be more focused. We think especially the Justice Department, which has a huge role in this area, but within other agencies which naturally fold into the Justice Department.

We have suggested in this bill that we create a Deputy Attorney General who would serve as a national go-to person on the issues relating to domestic terrorism. This individual would obviously work in tandem with a lot of other major players, including FEMA, but as a practical matter at least we hope we could begin and where people could look to more response to terrorism. It would be a central place where not only the response would occur but the responsibility would occur and therefore we would have accountability, which is absolutely critical and which today does not exist.

This bill creates that position and funds it, along with funding a significant amount of new activity at a variety of levels which are critically important to our efforts to address this issue.

I do not want to sound too pessimistic because our efforts in this area are extraordinary. Compared to 4 or 5 years ago when we began this initiative, we are way down the positive road. We have, in effect, up and running a first responder program in a number of communities across this country, and we are moving aggressively across the country to bring critical areas up to speed.

We have an effective intelligence effort and effective interdiction effort, but we still have a long way to go. If you put it on a continuum of a person's life, this person who was 5 years ago and we were now in mid-adolescence, in our late teens, moving, however, aggressively into a more mature approach to the issue.

Another area I think needs to be highlighted on which I congratulate the chairman, as I have with counter-terrorism, is the issue of NOAA. NOAA is absolutely a critical agency for us. It is one of the premier agencies in our Nation in addressing the question of science and the role NOAA plays in maintaining the quality of our science in this country but, more importantly, the quality of the life of our citizenry.

As was mentioned by the chairman of the committee, we have made a strong commitment to the judiciary which has its own unique problems, and we continue to work hard, especially in the area of pay. I personally believe we should do something aggressively in the area of pay. I suspect the Chair also feels this way, as he is the fellow responsible for these judges.

Again, as was mentioned by the chairman, the State Department has been aggressively addressed. I am happy to report, as the chairman has alluded, that the arrears situation is much improved, thanks to the good work of our former Ambassador to the U.N., Mr. Holbrooke. As early as 1991, a criminal gang called the Revolutionary United Front, or RUF, began terrorizing and raping civilians for no other reason than to terrorize civilians. As long as the RUF can profit from the sale of conflict diamonds, the butcher will continue. It is equally the responsibility of diamond-importing countries to do all they can to ensure we are not facilitating the trade in conflict diamonds.

Lastly, I want to mention one thing that is especially important to me personally, and that is the bill's effort to eliminate the illegal diamond trade that has fueled the violent conflict in African nations such as Sierra Leone, Congo, and Angola.

Nowhere has the effect of this illicit diamond trade been more graphic than in Sierra Leone. As early as 1991, a criminal gang called the Revolutionary United Front, or RUF, began terrorizing civilians for no other reason than to terrorize civilians. As long as the RUF can profit from the sale of conflict diamonds, the butcher will continue.

There are things we can do to make the situation in Africa better. The key is to act. We have a chance to save lives, to promote peace, merely by changing the way we do business. This bill goes a long way in addressing the appalling events currently taking place in much of West Africa.
Again, I thank Senator HOLLINGS for his commitment in this area and his willingness to support this effort and be a leader on it. In conclusion, I also thank Senator Hollings, and especially his staff, for all they have done to make this a bipartisan bill and a bill which Congress can effectively support. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

AMENDMENT NO. 1535

Mr. HOLLINGS. I send to the desk a managers' package of technical amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from South Carolina [Mr. HOLLINGS], for himself, and Mr. GREGG, proposes an amendment numbered 1535.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 91, line 15, before the “;”, insert the following: “of which $11,554,000 shall be available only for the activation of the facility at Atwater, California, and of which $13,323,000 shall be available only for the activation of the facility at Honolulu, Hawaii.”

On page 93, line 23, strike “$54,255,000” and insert “$712,682,000.”

On page 95, starting on line 4, and finishing on line 5, strike “provided under this heading in previous years” and insert in lieu thereof “in excess of $22,000,000.”

On page 96, line 18 and continuing through line 18, strike “for expenses necessary to carry out…activities defined.”

On page 98, starting on line 7 and ending on line 8, strike “acquisition, acquisition, and construction subcategory” and insert in lieu thereof “conservation activities defined.”

On page 98, line 10, after “amended”, insert “including funds for.”

On page 98, strike all after “amended” on line 12 through “limits” on line 16.

On page 99, line 16, after “That”, insert the following: “notwithstanding any other provision of law.”

On page 99, line 17, strike “for” and insert “in lieu thereof “used to initiate.”

On page 98, line 18, insert before the “;”, the following: “of which shall be no matching requirement.”

On page 99, starting on line 2 and ending on line 3, strike “National Coastal Saline Restoration Subcategory” and insert in lieu thereof “conservation activities defined.”

On page 99, line 5, after the second “;”, insert the following: “including funds for.”

On page 99, line 9, strike all after “expended” through “limits” on line 13.

On page 100, line 7, before the “;”, insert the following: “support for the Commerce Administrative Management System Support Center.”

On page 106, line 8, after the “(B)”, strike “not more than $15,000,000” and insert in lieu thereof “None.”

On page 106, after line 15, insert the following new section:

“(3) The Office of Management and Budget shall issue a quarterly Apportionment and Reapportionment Schedule, and a Standard Form 43, for the Working Capital Fund and the “Advances and Reimbursements” account based upon the report required by subsection (d)(1).”

On page 75, after line 11, insert the following new section:

“Sec. 336. Pursuant to section 140 of Public Law 97-92, such as are authorized during fiscal year 2002, to receive a salary adjustment in accordance with 28 U.S.C. 461: Provided, That $8,625,000 is appropriated for salary adjustments pursuant to this section and such funds shall be transferred to and merged with appropriations in title III of this Act.”

On page 102, line 20, strike “$3,750,000,000” and insert “$4,500,000,000, as provided under section 20(h)(1)(B)(ii) of the Small Business Act.”

On page 103, line 1, after “loans,”, insert “for debentures and participating securities.”

On page 103, line 3, strike “$41,000,000”, and insert “the levels established by section 200(h)(1)(C) of the Small Business Act.”

On page 105, line 5, before the “;”, insert the following: “to remain available until expended.”

On page 105, line 18, strike “$724,682,000” and insert “$712,682,000.”

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, in this managers' package, I have listed some two dozen technical amendments clarifying the funding level for the Merchant Marine Academy; another technical amendment clarifying the funding level for the Prison Activations; a technical amendment clarifying the funding level for the NOAA Executive Administrations; and inserting the following new subsection:

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

MANAGER’S PACKAGE

1. Hollings technical amendment [clarifying the funding level for the Merchant Marine Academy] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
2. Hollings technical amendment [clarifying the funding level for prison activations] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
3. Hollings technical amendment [clarifying the funding level for NOAA executive administration] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
4. Hollings technical amendment [clarifying the amount of NOAA’s prior years deobligations] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).

23. Hollings for Kerry/Bond amendment [improving SBA’s loan authority] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
24. Hollings for Kerry/Bond amendment [improving SBA’s loan authority] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
25. Hollings for Kerry/Bond amendment [improving SBA’s loan authority] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
26. Gregg for Murkowski amendment [to clarify the availability of funds to the U.S.-Canada Alaska Rail Commission] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
27. Hollings technical amendment [prioritizing spending] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).
28. Hollings technical amendment [prioritizing spending] (line 12 through “limits” on line 16).

Mr. HOLLINGS. I thank the distinguished Chair, and I urge the adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 1535. The amendment (No. 1535) was agreed to.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. INOUYE. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to reconsider was laid upon the table.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. CRAIG. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

AMENDMENT NO. 1536

Mr. CRAIG. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk to the pending legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.
The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. CRAIG] for himself, Mr. MILLER, Mr. HELMS, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. ALLEN, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. LIE柏N, Mr. NUCLEUS, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. KYL, Mr. BOND, and Mr. INhofE, proposes an amendment numbered 1536.

Mr. CRAIG. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To prohibit the availability of funds for cooperation with, or assistance or other support to, the International Criminal Court or the Preparatory Commission) At the end of title VI, add the following:

SEC. 623. (a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(2) As of April 30, 2001, 139 countries had signed the Rome Statute and 30 had ratified it. Pursuant to Article 126 of the Rome Statute, the Statute will enter into force on the first day of the month after the 60th day following the date on which the 60th country deposits an instrument ratifying the Statute.

(3) Any American prosecuted by the International Criminal Court will, under the Rome Statute, be denied procedural protections to which all Americans are entitled under the Bill of Rights to the United States Constitution, such as the right to trial by jury.

(4) Members of the Armed Forces of the United States deserve the full protection of the United States Constitution whenever they are stationed or deployed around the world to protect the vital national interests of the United States. The United States Government has an obligation to protect the members of its Armed Forces, to the maximum extent possible, against criminal prosecutions carried out by United Nations officials or international courts that deny them their constitutional rights.

(5) In addition to exposing members of the Armed Forces of the United States to the risk of international criminal prosecution, the Rome Statute creates a risk that the President and other senior elected and appointed officials of the United States Government may be prosecuted by the International Criminal Court for national security decisions involving such matters as responding to acts of terrorism, preventing the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and deterring aggression.

(6) The claimed jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court over citizens of a country that is not a state party to the Rome Statute is a threat to the sovereignty of the United States under the Constitution of the United States.

(b) PROHIBITION.—None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be available for cooperation with, or assistance or other support to, the International Criminal Court or the Preparatory Commission. This subsection shall not be construed to apply to any other entity outside the Rome treaty.

Mr. CRAIG. Madam President, at this time I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I now submit a second-degree amendment to the amendment, which I think is at the desk as I speak, as follows:

SEC. 623. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be available for cooperation with, or assistance or other support to, the International Criminal Court or the Preparatory Commission. This subsection shall not be construed to apply to any other entity outside the Rome treaty.

Mr. CRAIG. Madam President, I take this time to address with my colleagues a matter that I believe has the most profound consequence on our national sovereignty.

I also submit for the RECORD three articles that pertain to this issue that I think are fundamentally important for my colleagues to have and understand. One of those happens to be an op-ed in the Washington Post in August, another one from Mr. Bolton, and another one from Mr. Lee Casey. I ask unanimous consent they be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(From the Washington Post, August 22, 2001)

By Larry E. Craig

At its founding, the mission of the United Nations, as stated in its charter, was to ‘‘save succeeding generations from the scourge of war.’’ It made no claim to supersede the sovereignty of its member states. Article 2 says that the United Nations ‘‘is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members,’’ and it may not ‘‘intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state.’’

Since then, the United Nations has turned the principle of national sovereignty on its head. Through a host of conventions, treaties and protocols, it has intruded into regulation of resources and the economy (for example, treaties on ‘‘biological diversity,’’ marine resources and climate change) and family life (conventions on parent-child relations and women in society). It has demanded that countries institute racial quotas and laws against hate crimes and speech. Officials tried to undermine Americans’ constitutional right to keep and bear arms (with proposed restrictions on the international sale of small arms).

Fortunately, many of these have been dead on arrival in the U.S. Senate, successive presidents have refused to sign, and, in any case the United Nations had little power of enforcement. But in 1998, one mechanism of global government came to life so-called when the United States established a permanent International Criminal Court. Once this treaty is ratified by 60 countries, the United Nations will wield jurisdiction over even a human being—even over citizens of countries that haven’t joined the court.

While the court’s stated mission is dealing with war criminals, its critics rightly cite the danger its mandate could be broadened later. Based on existing U.N. tribunals for Yugoslavia and Rwanda, which are models for the International Criminal court, defendants will have none of the due process rights afforded by the U.S. Constitution, such as trial by jury, confrontation of witnesses or a speedy and public trial.

President Clinton’s signing of the Rome treaty last year, citing U.S. support for existing U.N. war crimes tribunals. Many suppose the court will target only a Slobodan Milosevic or Saddam Hussein, or dictators like Iraq’s Saddam Hussein. But who knows? To some people, Augusto Pinochet is the man who saved Chile from communism; to others that he is a human being—only to the United Nations or the Chilean people?

In dozens of countries, governments use brutal force against indigenous peoples. Could the United Nations decide whether leaders in Turkey or India should be put in the defendants’ dock, and then commit the United States to bring them to the Hague? Could Russia’s Vladimir Putin, for Chechnya? Or Israel’s Ariel Sharon? Can we trust the United Nations with that decision?

The court’s critics rightly cite the danger to U.S. military personnel deployed abroad. Since even one death can be a war crime, a U.S. soldier could be indicted just for doing his duty. But the International Criminal Court also would apply to acts ‘‘committed’’ by any American here at home. The European Union and U.S. domestic opponents called the death penalty ‘‘inhumane.’’ Could an American governor face indictment by the court for ‘‘crimes against humanity’’ for signing a death warrant?

Milosevic was delivered to a U.N. court (largely at U.S. insistence) for offenses occurring entirely within his own country. Some say the Milosevic precedent doesn’t threaten Americans, because the U.S. Constitution protects them. But for Milosevic, who knows? To some people, Augusto Pinochet is a murderer. Who knows? To some people, Augusto Pinochet is who knows? To some people, Augusto Pinochet is...
United States Participate in the ICC

THE INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT: UNDEMOCRATIC AND UNCONSTITUTIONAL

(By Lee A. Casey)

Lee A. Casey is a partner in the Washington, D.C. law firm of Steptoe & Johnson. He served in the Department of Justice’s Office of Legal Counsel and Office of Legal Policy during the Reagan and George H.W. Bush administrations. Mr. Casey writes and speaks frequently on international law and constitutional issues.

The 1998 Rome Treaty, which would establish an International Criminal Court ("ICC"), creates a number of unprecedented challenges for the United States. The ICC will have the power to investigate and prosecute crimes against humanity, war crimes, and torture or extra-judicial killings, or both. This includes states such as Algeria, Cambodia, Haiti, Iran, Nigeria, Sudan, Syria and Yemen, all of which have been implicated in torture or extra-judicial killings, or both.

Even our closest allies, including European states following the civil law system, begin with very different assumptions about the power of the courts and the right of the accused. Nevertheless, if it is permitted to be established, the ICC will claim the power to try individual Americans, including U.S. service personnel and officials acting fully in accordance with U.S. law and interests. The court itself would be the final arbiter of its own jurisdiction, and there would be no appeal from its decisions.

United States Participation in the Rome Treaty Would Be Unconstitutional. Not surprisingly, U.S. ratification of the Rome Treaty would be unconstitutional. By ratifying that agreement, the United States would become a full participant in the ICC treaty regime, affirmatively vesting in the court jurisdiction over its nationals. At the same time, the ICC would not provide the rights guaranteed to all international criminal defendants. That court would not guarantee Americans the right to confront hostile witnesses, to a speedy and public trial, and against "double jeopardy." For example, the Sixth Amendment guarantees a criminal defendant the right to "confront" all hostile witnesses, and, therefore, the right to exclude from evidence most "hearsay" evidence. This right is not preserved on the international level. In the ICTY, a court that, like the ICC, theoretically guarantees the right to a speedy and public trial, both anonymous witnesses and virtual "unhearsay" evidence have been permitted in criminal trials. Similarly, the ICC does not preserve the right to a speedy and public trial, defendants often wait years in prison whether the elected officials of the United States, as well as ordinary American citizens, have acted lawfully on any particular occasion. In this, the Rome Treaty is fundamentally inconsistent with the tenet of American republicanism—that anyone who exercises power must be responsible for its use to those subject to that power. The ICC would not.

Moreover, the ICC would be a powerful tool for both our adversaries. The ICC would not offer even the minimum guarantees that the United States has never even ratified, is wrong in many respects, not least that powers, is one continued moratorium on underground nuclear testing the Senate defeated the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty, the administration said that one president may legitimately (if unwisely) do, another may legitimately (and prudently) undo. The incoming administration seems more than prepared in'deared to take its place in domestic political, and it should not hesitate to do so internationally as well. Not only would an unsigning decision make the U.S. inviting to the ICC clear beyond dispute, it would also open the possibility of subsequently UNSIGNING numerous other unrelated treaties. It would be a strong gesture of a distinctly American internationalism.

Relying on Article 18, which cannot sensibly apply to our government of separated powers, is wrong in many respects, not least that the court cannot serve as a final arbiter of the question whether the elected officials of the United States, as well as its military and the citizenry at large, are ultimately responsible to the legal and political institutions established by our federal and state constitutions, which exerts an inherent right to protection of the American people. The Rome Treaty would erect an institution, in the form of the ICC, that would claim authority superior to that of the federal government, the states, and the American electorate itself! This court would assert the ultimate authority to determine for a trial, large portions of which are conducted in secret. In addition, although the Constitution’s guarantee against “double jeopardy” prevents the prosecution in a criminal case from following a judge or jury of acquittal in acquittals in the ICC would be freely appealable by the prosecution, as they are now in the ICTY—where the Prosecutor has appealable judgment of acquittal.

ICC supporters incorrectly suggest that U.S. participation would not be unconstitutional because that court would not be “a court of the United States,” to which the Constitution applies, and invariably point to extradition cases, where the Supreme Court has ruled that Americans may be extradited to face charges in courts with the guarantees of the Bill of Rights. In fact, and unlike the situation in an ordinary extradition case, if the U.S. ratified the Rome Treaty, it would be a full participant in the ICC and its governing structures, and any prosecution brought by the ICC would be as much on behalf of the U.S. as any other state party.

Although the Supreme Court has not directly faced such a case, it has suggested that, where a prosecution by a foreign court is, at its core, a prosecution undertaken on behalf of the United States, for example, where “the United States and its allies had enacted substantially similar criminal codes aimed at prosecuting those abuses,” it would be improper to apply criminal law to a case involving non-U.S. citizens that the United States was not a party to.

Mr. CRAIG. Madam President, last December, President Clinton deposited his signature to the Rome treaty, in his own words, “significant flaws” and would not send it to the Senate for ratification.

In his confirmation hearing testimony, Secretary Powell made it clear that the administration would not send this treaty to the Senate for ratification. However, in my opinion and the opinion of others, this is not enough. Once the 60th country ratifies the treaty, the United States and her citizens will become subject to the jurisdiction of the ICC. The President’s support of the treaty under the treaty’s own terms. This is precisely why we cannot simply allow the treaty to just be confirmed and collect dust. I believe it is incumbent upon all of us to try to bring, in essence, the treaty down.

U.S. Armed Forces operating overseas in peacekeeping operations could conceivably be prosecuted by the ICC for protecting the vital interests of the United States. In other words, the Senate of the United States could support our Armed Forces operating in war in a foreign nation only to have an international court rule them as criminals against the state or, in essence, criminals against the world.

Furthermore, Americans prosecuted by the ICC will not be guaranteed any of the procedural protections to which all Americans are entitled under the Bill of Rights. I can recite those for you. We have heard them all of our lives: The right to counsel, the right to a trial by jury or trial by a jury of one’s own peers and the right to question one’s accusers—that is just to name a few of the very rights that we now walk away from for our citizens if we do not stand up boldly and say the International Criminal Court should, in fact, not become an arm of the United Nations.

Currently, the Rome treaty already has 139 signatories, and over half of the necessary countries have already ratified. It is only a matter of time before this becomes a reality unless we act now. The question is whether the United States will oppose it—and we have already opposed Kyoto, Biodiversity, CTBT, and other bad treaties—or whether we will simply acquiesce to it. The answer to that question is not only one of protecting our service personnel; it is also one of principle. Are we fundamentally committed to the sovereign rule of the domestic law of our country under the U.S. Constitution as opposed to global justice under the U.N. auspices? I think that is a question on which this amendment comes right to the point. And are we fundamentally committed to helping other countries establish and maintain their own constitutions and their own rule of law?

The consequence of allowing this court to come to fruition stretches far beyond the threat of prosecution of American military personnel. It will also put some of our closest allies in direct jeopardy, as we have seen in the example of the World Conference on Racism that we have heard about over the last good many months. We have seen that action taken by the United Nations and its institutions are not always impartial in their findings. In fact, at the World Conference Against Racism, language was adopted hostile to Israel, and it is not limited to the text regarding Zionism, but it has attracted much attention in light of the 1975 U.N. General Assembly Resolution 3379, which passed in November of 1975, which condemned Zionism in similar though not identical terms, as “a racist and imperialist ideology,” and as “a form of racism and racial discrimination.”

Largely due to American efforts, the General Assembly finally revoked Resolution 3379 in 1991 with a substantial vote.

Ironically, some nations that took part in the World Conference Against Racism, and who were supporters of language denouncing Zionism as racism, are currently supporting slavery and the trafficking of human beings. As a result of this controversy over Zionism, one could easily see the International Criminal Court become nothing more than another U.N. forum for anti-Semitism. For the same playing field that caused the United States and Israel to walk out on the World Conference on Racism would reappear.

The result could be the extradition and prosecution of Prime Minister Ariel Sharon for charges of crimes against humanity for taking actions to protect the citizens of Israel against terrorism within the sovereign boundaries of his own nation. Another document connected to the Durban conference charges Israel with “genocide” and “crimes against humanity”—judicial terms that directly setting the stage for a future prosecution in an international criminal court.

I will be the first to admit that atrocities are being committed in some parts of the world, and that those perpetrating such atrocities must be brought to justice. And whenever possible the United States should serve as a facilitator for that justice to take place, and always be a shining city on a hill, a supreme example for all nations, particularly those with fledgling democracies and judicial systems. But the answer to that problem is not to create a permanent International Criminal Court with supra-national jurisdiction, but to encourage the emergence of judicial systems, just be set to come to fruition stretches far beyond the threat of prosecution of American military personnel. It will also put some of our closest allies in direct jeopardy, as we have seen in the example of the World Conference on Racism that we have heard about over the last good many months. We have of countries that had been allied against the Axis, it soon became seen as a dispute resolution forum for all countries.

In principle at least, the United Nations initially made no claim to super sede the principle of state sovereignty of its member states. Even its own Charter, Article 2, says that the U.N. “is based on the principle of the sovereignty equality of all its Members,” and it may not “in tervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state.”

That is what its charter says. Let’s remember what it has done in the last few years.

Even in the U.N.’s premiere judicial body, the International Court of Justice, the principle of state sovereignty was maintained, with the Court only having limited jurisdiction in disputes between nations. It had no authority over individual citizens of those nations.

Unfortunately, in recent years the U.N. has turned the principle of national sovereignty on its head. Through a proliferating host of conventions, treaties, conferences, commissions and initiatives, the U.N. has intruded every aspect of human life once thought to be the exclusive preserve of national govern ments, not to mention private citizens. They include claims over family life, such as conventions on parent child relations and the role of women in society. They include, under the guise of anti-racism, demands that countries institute quotas and hate crimes and hate speech laws.

While all of these on the surface appear to be good, and in many instances many of us would support them, we must stop short in saying that the U.N. has the right to bring them down on any nation and tread on that nation’s sovereignty.

Recently, under the pretext of fighting illicit trafficking in weapons, the U.N. has even set its sight on undermining American’s constitutional right to keep and bear arms under the second amendment.

Thankfully, many of these initiatives have been dead-on-arrival in the Senate, as successive Presidents have refused to endorse others. Moreover, despite the U.N.’s evolution toward governmental authority it had little to enforce its will. Ideas for global taxation and a standing U.N. army have so far gained little ground.

But one key mechanism of global government began to be realized in 1998 with the adoption of the so-called “Rome Statute” establishing a permanent International Criminal Court (ICC). While this dangerous treaty is ratified by 90 countries, the ICC will come into existence. For the first time, the U.N. will wield a judicial power not just over nations, but directly over every individual human being. It will even claim authority over citizens of countries whose governments have refused to join the ICC. While the ICC’s stated mission is dealing with war crimes and crimes against humanity—which, since there is no appeal from its decisions, will give the Court the right to define—nothing prevents the U.N. from broadening its mandate later. Defendants will have none of the due process rights afforded by the U.S. Constitution, a speedy and public trial, protection from self-incrimination, and others previously mentioned. As with other U.N. panels, it can be expected that it will include “justices” from countries notorious for their human rights abuses.

It is tempting for many to suppose the ICC will only target the likes of a Slobodan Milosevic or the perpetrators of massacres in Rwanda, or maybe rogue state dictators like Iraq’s Saddam Hussein, Libya’s Muammar Quaddafi, or Cuba’s Fidel Castro. But who can be sure that will be their only target? To some people, former Chilean Dictator Augusto Pinochet is a patriot who saved his country from a communist invasion. Again, in the eyes of the beholder, what is he? There are different opinions and different attitudes. Who has responsibility? I would suggest that the U.N. should not be allowed to be the judge, or that the ICC will not be allowed to be the court. Ultimately, the people of Chile; in this case, Pinochet. They were the people who made the decisions. They were the judges.

In dozens of countries governments enjoy brutal force to suppress violent insurgencies. Should we empower the U.N. to decide whether the military authorities in Algeria, Turkey, Macedonia, Sri Lanka, China, and India must be considered “lawless” or “inhumane.” My guess is some of our colleagues would agree with that, while others would not.

Who can guarantee that an American Governor might not face an indictment by the ICC for “crimes against humanity” for signing a death warrant, or that someday, under some foreign judge’s idea of “arms trafficking,” a U.N. court will not demand the extra dition of a private American citizen for selling a gun to his neighbor?

It has been suggested that Milosevic’s extradition does not set an ICC precedent threatening U.S. citizens because they will be protected by the U.S. Constitution. But why? In the Milosevic case, we demanded that the newly established Yugoslav Constitution be a war crimes and crimes against humanity. We are not defending a constitutional right at that point; we are simply saying that an international body has a higher authority. Once the ICC is up and running, why should we assume our Constitution would not be thrown in the trash as well as that of Yugoslavia? Nothing in the treaty requires them to respect our Constitution and our citizens’ rights.

Trying to “fix” the Rome treaty’s flaws gives me shivers. Why would we empower the ICC solely within the Rome treaty’s flaws, the United States must recognize that the ICC is a fundamental threat to American sovereignty and civil liberty, and that no deal, nor any compromise, is possible. We need to make it clear that we consider the ICC an illegitimate body, that the United States will never become part of it, and that we will never accept its jurisdiction over American or help to impose it on other countries. President Bush has flatly rejected the Kyoto global warming convention. It is a less urgent that we act as forth rightly on the ICC.

According to the administration, the State Department is already engaged in what we call lobbying in the ICC Preparatory Commission. Why are we helping to establish an institution that is created by a treaty that the administration has stated they will not send to the Senate for ratification? Any kind of participation that would lend legitimacy to the ICC would be a mistake and would send a wrong message to our friends in the international community.

That is why during my recent meeting with Secretary Powell, and in my recent letter to him dated August 22 in the Washington Post, I have encouraged the administration to remove our signature from the Rome treaty and to discontinue assistance to the International Criminal Court’s Preparatory Commission. Such a statement of policy would send a clear signal to those countries that are currently wrestling with the issue of ratification that the United States does not support the creation of the Court. This amendment, which has already been supported by the House of Representatives earlier this year when they passed an amendment, with overwhelming bipartisan support, to the State authorization bill that prohibits cooperation with the International Criminal Court.

To complement the administration’s efforts, and the efforts of the House of Representatives, I am offering this first- and second-degree amendment to Commerce-State-Justice, and the Judiciary appropriations bill that would prohibit funding to the International Criminal Court and its Preparatory Commission. I have discussed this issue with Senator Helms. He and many others have shown their strong support for the proposal.

When we stand to cast a vote on these amendments, we literally are voting about American sovereignty. My guess is, when the dust settles and the smoke clears and this amendment is analyzed, that is exactly how it will be viewed. It is a vote to protect the men and women of our Armed Forces — without question — and a vote to protect our allies that have become subject to the Court.

I will be darned if American sovereignty and the U.S. Constitution become subject to an International Criminal Court on my watch. And I would hope all of my colleagues would agree.

The creation of an international court is not a foregone conclusion. We can intervene. We can state a position. We can ask that we step back and withdraw our own from this critical action and say to all the world that we will not support an International Criminal Court’s ratification, and we would ask other nations in the world to act accordingly.

Mr. President, at this time I know of no others in this Chamber who wish to debate this issue, so I ask unanimous consent to temporarily set aside my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, on behalf of Senatorsarkin, Warner, Inhofe, Cochran, and myself, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Smith], for himself, Mr. Harkin, Mr. Warner, Mr. Inhofe, and Mr. Cochran, proposes an amendment numbered 1338.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide protection to American Service personnel who were used in World War II as slave labor)

At the appropriate place, add the following:

Sec. 6. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Department of Justice or the Department of State to file a motion in any court opposing a civil action against any Japanese person or corporation for compensation or reparations in which the plaintiff alleges that, as an American prisoner of war during World War II, he or she was used as slave or forced labor.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, there are many things that happen in war of which, when we look back, many of us on both sides of the aisle are not always proud.

But I want to point out that sometimes things happen that must be corrected just because they are things to do. This amendment I am offering is likely to be mischaracterized. There will be a lot of things said about what my amendment does not do. I want to make sure everybody understands what this amendment is about. It concerns what might have been the most barbaric thing that happened during World War II. I want to refer to it before I go to the actual context of the amendment.

There is an article written by Peter Maas I want printed in the RECORD, which is entitled “They Should Have Their Day in Court.” I ask unanimous consent a copy of that article be printed in the RECORD. It is a Parade magazine article.

There being no objection, the material ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(From Parade Magazine, June 17, 2001)

THEY SHOULD HAVE THEIR DAY IN COURT

(By Peter Maas)

Tears suddenly fill Lester Tenney’s eyes. “I’m sorry,” he says, reflecting back a long time, but it’s very hard sometimes to talk about.” All I can do is nod dumbly. Words fail me as I listen to the horror he is describing.

On April 9, 1942, Tenney, a 21-year-old Illinois National Guardsman, was one of 12,000 American soldiers who surrendered to the Japanese at the tip of Bataan Peninsula, which juts into Manila Bay in the Philippines. Ill-equipped, ill-trained, disease-ridden, they had fought ferociously for nearly three months against odds, with no possibility of help, until they ran out of food, medical supplies and ammunition.

As prisoners of war, Tenney among them, they were taken to a prison camp by the Japanese army on what became infamous as the nine-day, 55-mile-long Bataan Death March, during which 1000 of them perished. The atrocities they suffered have to some extent been revealed. But what happened afterward — when they were forced into inhuman slave labor for some of Japan’s biggest corporations — has remained a secret.

These corporations, many of which have become global giants, include such familiar names as Mitsubishi, Mitsui, Kawasaki and Nippon Steel.

Through interviews with former POWs and examinations of government records and court documents, I learned that in 1999 Tenney had filed a lawsuit for reparations in a California state court. His suit was followed by a number of others by veterans who had offered a similar lawsuit to federal jurisdiction but also succeeded in getting them dismissed by Vaughn R. Walker, a federal judge for the Northern District of California. In his ruling, Judge Walker declared in essence that the fact that we had won the war was enough of a payoff. His exact words were: “The immeasurable bounty of life for themselves [the POWs] and their posterity in a free society services the debt.” In applauding the judge’s decision, an attorney for Nippon Steel was quoted as saying, “It’s definitely a correct ruling.” She did not dwell on what these men had gone through.

What befell Lester Tenney as a POW was by no means unique. One of what was to come on that April day in 1942 when he surrendered and one of his captors smashed in his nose with the butt end of a rifle. Forced to stand on the crushed rock and loose sand, the men — wracked with malaria, jaundice and dysentry — were given no water. Occasionally, the Japanese commander would cause a POW to scoop up a handful of water more likely than not by bayoneted or shot to death.

The same fate awaited most POWs who could not longer walk. “If you stopped,” Tenney recalls, “they killed you.”

As Tenney staggered forward, he saw a Japanese officer astride a horse, wielding a samurai sword and certain to be tried, often successfully, to decapitate POWs. During a rare respite, one prisoner was so disoriented that he could not get up. A rifle butt knocked him senseless. Two of his fellow POWs, were ordered to dig a shallow trench, put him in it and bury him while he was still alive. They refused. One of them immediately had his head blown off with a pistol shot. Two more POWs were then ordered to dig two trenches—one for the dead POW and the other for the prisoner, who had begun to moan. Tenney heard him continue to moan as he was being covered with dirt.

Tenney was one of 500 POWs packed into a 50-by-50-foot hold of a Japan-bound freighter. The overheat hatches were kept closed except when buckets of rice and water were lowered twice daily. Each morning, four POWs were allowed topside to hoist up buckets of bodily wastes and the corpses of any one who had died during the night, which were tossed overboard.

In Japan, the prisoners were sent to a coal mine about 35 miles from a city they had never heard of, called Nagasaki. The mine was owned by the defendant corporation, which is today one of the world’s biggest corporations. You see the truck containers it built on every highway in America. The mine was so dangerous that Japanese miners refused to work in it.

The Geneva Convention of 1929 specified that the POWs of any nation “shall be at all times be humanely treated and protected” and explicitly forbade forced labor. Japan, however, never ratified the treaty. That was how it occurred to General Douglas MacArthur during World War II, freeing up able-bodied Japanese men for military service.

Lester Tenney and his fellow POW slave laborers worked 12-hour days, eating primarily rice, amounted to less than 600 calories a day. This was subsequently reduced to about 400 calories. When he was taken prisoner, Tenney weighed 185 pounds. When he was liberated in 1945, he weighed 97 pounds.

Victory beatings by Mitsubishi overseers at the mine were constant. Tenney’s worst moment came when two overseers decided he wasn’t working fast enough and went at him with a pickax. His hip bone was broken once again. So was his left shoulder. The business end of the axe pierced his side, just missing his hip bone but causing enough internal damage to leave him with a permanent limp.

Frank Bigelow was a Navy seaman on the island fortress of Corregidor in Manila Bay. It was three months after Bataan fell, so Bigelow escaped the Death March. But he ended up in the same Mitsubishi coal mine as Tenney. He was in the deepest hard-rock part of a considerable tunnel. He was a POW, so Bigelow and the others were struck on the head, then shot, and then bayonetted if you helped a POW. Bigelow’s leg began to swell and become putrid. Tissue—destroying gangrene had set in.

With the help of a POW doctor, Thomas Hewlett, was refused plaster of Paris for a cast. Hewlett tried to construct a makeshift splint, but it didn’t work.

Bigelow’s leg began to swell and become putrid. Tissue—destroying gangrene had set in.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire.

I want to refer to a couple of paragraphs from this article because it certainly sums up why they should have their day in court and what exactly we are talking about with regard to these American GIs and POWs. Let me read a couple of paragraphs.

On April 9, 1942, a gentleman by the name of Lester Tenney, one of 12,000 POWs, American soldiers, surrendered to the Japanese at the tip of Bataan Peninsula. He was a POW in a prison camp by the Japanese Army on what became infamous as the 9-day, 55-mile-long Bataan Death March during which 1,000 of them perished. I will not go into all of the details, but a few details will show why a day in court is justified and is important. The atrocities they suffered—some have been revealed; some have not—and what happened afterward, where they were forced into slave labor camps for some of Japan’s biggest corporations, remains largely unreported for what happened—when they moved to Federal jurisdiction—but also succeeded in getting them dismissed. I found that particularly outrageous. This is all pointed out by Mr. Maas in his article.

Many of these corporations have become global giants today, including some names that would certainly get one’s attention: Mitsubishi, Matsui, Kawasaki, and Nippon, to name just a few.

Through interviews with former POWs, we have come to learn a lot. But to my amazement, the United States Government stepped in on behalf of the Japanese and not only had lawsuits thrown out but got payments for what happened—they moved to Federal jurisdiction—but also succeeded in getting them dismissed. I found that particularly outrageous. This is all pointed out by Mr. Maas in his article.

I got involved in this a few months ago, having been a school dropout, decided to get on with his life. He eventually earned a Ph.D. in finance and taught at both San Diego State University and Arizona State University. Mean-friend who fell down or beaten or whatever, to survive all of that and then be placed into camps, slave labor camps on behalf of these corporations by these corporations.

To offer the amendment that I am offering today, it is important to understand what the content is. All it says is:

None of the funds made available in this act may be used by the Department of Justice or any other department or agency of the United States to file an action in any court opposing a civil action against any Japanese person or corporation for compensation for property taken from any person or for personal injuries sustained by any person as a result of the war. The plaintiff alleges that, as an American prisoner of war during World War II, he or she was used as a slave or forced labor.

This is no fund will be used to block the right of these folks to go to court. It doesn't provide any money to anybody. It doesn't assume that anybody is going to win this case. It doesn't do any of that. We are probably going to hear that. That is not the case.

All it says is that the State Department stays out of it, the Justice Department stays out of it, and these folks are allowed to have their day in court.

Let me explain why I introduced this amendment. As I said, to go through what they went through in the Bataan Death March, and then to be put into slave camps by Japanese companies was atrocious. I want to make clear what I mean by Japanese corporations. War is a terrible reality. I have said that. What happens during war is tragic, and sometimes it just happens. There is no lack of a lot you can do about it. What happened in World War II at the hands of these private Japanese companies is especially tragic because there has never been anything done about it. We are not talking about the Japanese Government torturing American prisoners. I want to make that clear. The war is over. A treaty was signed. Whatever happened, happened. That is behind us.

All it says is that the State Department stays out of it, the Justice Department stays out of it, and these folks are allowed to have their day in court.

What we are talking about is private Japanese companies. There are many of these companies. It is important to understand, the Japanese corporations.

Out of the 36,000 U.S. soldiers who were captured by the Japanese, 5,300 roughly are alive today. They are not getting any younger.

Several of those veterans live in New Hampshire. I was astounded to find out that eight or nine of them do actually live in New Hampshire. I am sure they can be found in every State in the Union, particularly in some of those veterans during the August recess. It was a very emotional meeting, but the interesting thing about it, there was no anger presented to me about what happened in the war. The anger and frustration that was expressed to me was what happened with these private companies that went beyond what happened in the war.

Arthur Reynolds from Kingston, NH, spent 3 1/2 years as a POW, 2 years of which he spent shoveling coal under unspeakable conditions for a private Japanese company. He lost 100 pounds in captivity and weighed less than 100 pounds when he was liberated. He survived on barely 500 calories a day, suffered countless beatings. Now he is being told by his Government—not the Japanese Government, the United States Government—that they are on the side of the private Japanese corporation that enslaved him.

I say to my colleagues, that is just flat out wrong. Whatever happens in the courtroom happens in the courtroom. That is what happens on both sides. But what we are talking about here is the right to sue.

That is what we are talking about—not the right to have a victory when you sue, just the right to sue. However gentleman I have some very strong feelings that they should win this case and many Americans—most, I hope—also do. We are not asking for a victory, as much as I would like to see it. We are asking for the right to sue.

Arthur is 85 years old. How much longer is Arthur going to live? Manford Dusett from Seabrook, NH, spent 3 1/2 years as a POW. Like Arthur Reynolds, he is a survivor of the Bataan Death March and the so-called hell ships that transported the prisoners to Japan. He was forced to work in a coal mine for 10 to 12 hours a day, with almost no food and under the worst imaginable conditions. He suffered a broken leg in the mine. Frank was 37 years old in that. He was able to get just enough medical treatment to survive. Manford, as his colleague, weighed less than 100 pounds when he was released. There were others from New Hampshire. This gentleman has no pictures here is Roland Stickney from Lancaster. I met with him. There are others from New Hampshire: Roland Gagnon from Nashua, Roland Stickney from Lancaster, Arthur Locke from Hookset, Wesley Wills, Wilf Lowrey of Freedom, Ernest Ouellette of Boscowen, and I am sure I missed a few. I tried to find everybody.

My colleagues who might be familiar with the plight of these veterans, I have submitted for the RECORD the Parade magazine article. It is important you read to understand not only what happened to them in the Bataan Death March but, after that, how they were treated when they were put on those ships. Imagine being taken in those ships to the coal mines and other places where they were reported to work as slaves.

These veterans are seeking compensation through our legal system—that is all they are doing—from the Japanese corporations that used them as slave laborers. That is all they are doing. Yet, believe it or not, our Government, the U.S. Government, is trying to block and oppose all of this. I commend the veterans' efforts to seek proper redress through our judicial system. Is that constitutional?

Should our Government be stopping a private citizen from seeking his or her day in court for a grievance? I don't think so. I think it is wrong. I am, frankly, ashamed it is happening, which is why I am on the floor today. I am sure of the war, refight the war, or bring up and point out the atrocities of the war. That is not why I am here. I don't think the veterans would want me to do that. The State Department facilitated the recent agreement between German companies and their victims who were used as slave laborers during World War II. I commend them for that. That was the right thing to do.

Last year this body passed S. Con. Res. 158, introduced by my colleague and good friend, Senator HATCH, and urged the Secretary of State to facilitate discussions between these veterans and the guilty corporations. But the State Department ignored this recommendation, unlike what they did in the German case. When it comes to the Japanese case, they chose to ignore this. In the case of the Japanese companies, the State and Justice Departments argued that—unfortunately—that the private claims of the veterans were waived by the 1951 peace treaty with Japan. I will repeat that because it is very important to the whole discussion of this case. The State and Justice Departments argued that the private claims of veterans were waived by the 1951 peace treaty with Japan. I am going to say, with the greatest respect, that that is flat out wrong. Their rights were not waived. Why do they maintain this position then?

Let me read from the 1951 peace treaty, article 14(b). Let me read from article 14(b) in the 1951 peace treaty:

Except as otherwise provided in the present Treaty, the Allied Powers waive all reparation claims of the Allied Powers, other claims of the Allied Powers and their nationals arising out of any actions taken by Japan and its nationals in the course of the prosecution of the war and claims of the Allied Powers for direct military costs of occupation.

If I had only read article 14(b), which I just read, I might have agreed—and probably would have—that the claims of these veterans were waived by the treaty because that is what it sounds like. But the issue is a lot deeper than that. So if someone is going to read article 14(b) on the theory that, therefore, these claims are waived, then we have to go beyond that. Let me go beyond that:

Article 14(b) does not waive private claims against private Japanese companies.

Don't be mistaken. The State Department knew this in 1951 when the treaty was signed. In fact, John Foster Dulles, the chief negotiator for the treaty—prior to his being Secretary of State—orchestrated a confidential exchange of diplomatic notes between the Departments that is very important to article 14(b). In short, the Dutch didn't want any part of 14(b). They refused to waive the private claims of their nationals because, as the United States—remember the fifth amendment—the Dutch were constitutionally barred from doing so without due process of law. So they had a constitutional problem like we have. They can't waive the private claims. Fortunately for the Diplomatic notes—and this is what burns me up, frankly, if I may say it as nicely as I can. We find so much information classified in Government. It is the old cover-your-know-what routine. That is why we keep it classified. There are legitimate reasons to classify materials, but 50 years later we finally get the truth declassified. All these guys, for all these years, were being denied their day in court when the truth was buried in the classified files. It is just absolutely unbelievable. I am not saying I am the first to find it. I know lawyers have found it for the others, for those doing this, those who are suing. But let me go right at it.

What did those diplomatic notes say? We have it right here. This is September 7, 1951, just declassified in 2000, 50 years later, after all these guys have fought all these years trying to get reparations, and most of them have died. Only 5,300 remain out of 12,000. Here we are, I will read this letter:

Dear Mr. Prime Minister,

I beg to draw the attention of Your Excellency to the paragraph in the address to President and Delegates of the Peace Conference of September 4, 1945, (as read).

"Some question has arisen as to the interpretation of the reference in article 14(b) to "claims of Allied Powers and their nationals.""

It sounded as if we waived everybody's rights—which the Allied Powers agree to waive. It is my Government's view that article 14(b) as a matter of correct interpretation does not obligate us to the expropriation by each Allied Government of the private claims of its nationals so that after the Treaty comes into force these claims will be nonexistent.

The question is important because some Governments, including my own, are under certain limitations of constitutional and other governing laws as to confiscating or expropriating private property of their nationals.

Signed by the Prime Minister of Japan.

This one is signed by Dirk Stikker, Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands. A copy was sent to the Japanese Government. It says, in part:

Also, there are certain types of private claims by allied nationals, which we would assume the Japanese Government might want voluntarily to deal with in its own way as a matter of good conscience or of enlightened expediency.

And so forth.

To get to the fourth chart, this is from the Prime Minister of Japan to the Dutch, and I will read this portion outlined:

With regard to the question mentioned in Your Excellency's note, I have the honor to state as follows:

In view of the constitutional legal limitations referred to by the Government of the Netherlands, the Government of Japan does not consider that the Government of the Netherlands by signing the Treaty has itself expropriated the private claims of its nationals so that, as a consequence thereof, after the Treaty comes into force these claims would be nonexistent.

The Japanese Government is saying that:

However, the Japanese Government points out that, unless nationals will not be able to obtain satisfaction regarding such claims, although, as the Netherlands Government suggests, there are certain types of private claims by nationals which the Japanese Government might wish to voluntarily deal with.

These two documents remained classified for 50 years while these guys tried for 50 years to get their day in court. Our own Government would not give these documents to our own soldiers. What an outrage that is. That is an absolute outrage.

The 1951 peace treaty in no way obligates the Government of Japan to pay any private claims. I admit that. It does not obligate them to do anything. We are not talking about the Government of Japan.

At the same time, the treaty does not waive private claims against private Japanese companies, as the State and Justice Departments would like you to believe, and it is right there in declassified documents finally after 50 years.

How is an exchange of diplomatic notes between the Government of Japan and the Government of the Netherlands relevant to the United States and its citizens? Good question. The answer lies in article 26 of the peace treaty, and this is what article 26 says:

Should Japan make a peace settlement or war claims settlement with any state granting that state greater advantages than those provided by the present treaty, those same advantages shall be extended to the parties of the present treaty.

In other words, if they make a deal with the Japanese, they do not involve anybody else who has the same constitutional problems. This occurred in an exchange of diplomatic notes. Japan made it clear the treaty did not waive the private claims of Dutch citizens, and article 26 automatically extends this to American citizens. Pure and simple. End of story.

This would have been resolved 20 or 30 years ago if somebody had just declassified these documents. If somebody could play these documents were classified for 50 years because of national security, I will be happy to say we should classify them again.

The Departments of State and Justice are on the side of Japanese corporations. That is what this amendment is about: Are you on the side of our Justice Department and State Department that are on the side of the Japanese corporations that did this to our Americans, against the intent of the treaty, at the side of the American GIs and POWs who for 50 years have been denied their day in court?

That is it. There is nothing complicated about my colleagues' vote on this one. That is it: You are either for the American GIs who served and were prisoners and were slaves or you are on the side of the Japanese corporations that put them in slave camps and your own Department of State to file a motion in any court opposing a civil action.

In other words, we do not want Justice and State to come in now and oppose the action of this court, of these men who fought for 50 years these documents were classified and they did not even have the opportunity to do it. We did them a disservice. These are men who fought and suffered horribly in a terrible war.

I urge my colleagues to please read my amendment when you come down to the Chamber to vote to give these men—brave men, heroes—the opportunity to go to court under the terms of the 1951 treaty, and give them an opportunity to be heard. That is all we are doing.

I also want to point out in all that—I did not say it at the time, but to give a little bit more credence to the argument, guess who drafted the memos we are talking about between the Dutch and the Japanese. Who was involved in that draft? None other than John Foster Dulles. That is the great tragedy of this. John Foster Dulles himself participated in the draft of those documents. We have all the evidence to that as well.

I hope my colleagues in the Senate will say to Justice and State: Step aside; it is the right thing to do. You kept this secret all these years by classifying documents and did not allow our guys in a court. Step aside; do the decent thing and let these men go to court, as it is determined under the treaty, and allow them to sue. If they lose, they lose. If they win, they win, but just let them go to court.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.
Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, I thank my colleague and friend, the Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. SMITH, for proposing this important legislation and for offering this amendment today, which I am proud to co-sponsor.

Before I get into the need for the amendment and perhaps repeat some of the facts that the Senator from New Hampshire brought up, let me take a minute to summarize what happened in the Philippines and Japan between 1942 and 1945.

General MacArthur did return. He liberated the Philippines and rolled back the forces of imperial Japan. Sadly, MacArthur was too late for the hundreds who had died in the infamous Bataan Death March. In the day-to-day forced march, American troops were denied food and water, beaten and bayoneted if they fell to the ground. As many as 700 Americans lost their lives in those 3 days.

It was too late for the thousands who lost their lives on the so-called hell ships that transported surviving POWs to Japan and Japanese-occupied territories. Packed into cargo holds, American POWs struggled for air, as temperatures reached 125 degrees. Almost 4,000 American servicemen would lose their lives just on these journeys in these cargo ships.

Those who survived Bataan and the hell ships would find little rest as Japanese POWs. For more than 3 years, they would serve as slave labor for private Japanese companies, the same companies that used them as slave laborers for compensation from the Japanese government. I do not think that is justice. They have gone to court to ask for compensation from the Japanese companies. We are simply saying let them have their day in court.

I met with the sisters of Jon Hood, a Navy seaman forced to work on the shipping docks. I met with Gene Henderson of Des Moines, a marine who was stationed in the Philippines. Gene Henderson was captured and sent to China to work on Japanese artillery ranges before he was sent to work in the iron ore pits in Japan. Although she could not attend the meeting I held, Margaret Baker of Oelwin, IA, wrote me a letter in June about her late husband Charles Baker. Charles Baker, who was an Army private, survived the Bataan Death March before he was sent to work in the mines in Japan for 3 years. He died at age 54 in 1973. In her letter she wrote:

She suffered many injuries and hunger on the Death March during his imprisonment. We feel that his early death was caused by the subhuman conditions and his working long hours in the mines, without food, rest and clothing.

I speak for this amendment and support it on behalf of these veterans and their families. These men and 700 of their fellow prisoners of war and their families are now seeking long delayed justice. They have gone to court to ask for compensation from the Japanese companies that used them as slave laborers during the war.

They deserve their day in court. Yet as the Senator from New Hampshire has pointed out, our own State Department has come down on the side of the Japanese companies, not our POWs. The State Department has taken the view that the peace treaty signed in 1951 prohibits reparations from private Japanese companies for survivors such as Frank Cardamon or Gene Henderson. In fact, State Department officials have submitted statements to the Court in support of the Japanese companies. I do not think that is right. I do not think it is fair. That is why I am a cosponsor of Senator SMITH’s amendment that would stop the State Department and the Department of Justice from using taxpayer dollars to defend the interests of these Japanese companies.

I might add, the House passed this amendment in July by an overwhelming vote of 303 to 23, so it seems the State Department should not be allowed to use our tax dollars to fight against our American POWs in court. Now again, as Senator SMITH said, I am sure while we both believe the Japanese companies ought to pay for the slave labor they provided during the war, that is not what our amendment says. Our amendment simply says let them have their day in court; let them make their case; let the Japanese companies come in and defend themselves, if they will.

That is all we are asking. We are not preconditoning the outcome. We are not setting up any kind of a standard by which they will be held in one view or another. The Japanese companies. We are simply saying let them have their day in court. We are saying our State Department should not be intervening in State or Federal courts against these POWs. Let the POWs have their own arguments and their day in court, and let us keep our State Department out of it.

These men courageously served our country. They endured unspeakable, wretched conditions as slave laborers for the Japanese companies. MacArthur was forced to leave them behind in 1942. In 2001, let us not leave them behind one more time. Let us give them their day in court.

My colleague has given all of the arguments. He has outlined what the treaty said in article 14(b). He laid out very cogently and clearly the side agreements that had been done by John Foster Dulles, at that time the chief negotiator for the allied nations, with the Japanese and side agreements were not brought to light until April of last year. So for all of these years these POWs and their lawyers really perhaps did not have a leg to stand on because of this treaty, but then after April of 2000 we found out the Japanese had made an agreement with the Government of the Netherlands to allow the private citizens of the Netherlands to pursue their private claims.

Then article 26 of the 1951 peace treaty states that it imprisons the courts. Now article 14(b), as Senator SMITH pointed out, basically said: The allied powers waive all reparation claims of the allied powers, other claims of the allied powers and their nationals arising out of any actions taken by Japan and its nationals in the course of the prosecution of the war.

On its face, that ends it. That ends it right there. For all of these years, that is what sort of the basis in court was. Article 26 did state, should Japan make a peace settlement or war claims settlement with any state granting that state greater advantages than those provided by the present treaty, those same advantages shall be extended to the parties to the present treaty.

We did not know until April 2000 that the Japanese Government had indeed made a war claims settlement with another state granting greater advantages to the nationals of that state, and that, of course, the Dutch citizens because the diplomatic note to the Japanese Prime Minister from the Dutch Foreign Minister—again which was the correct interpretation, does not involve the expropriation by each allied government of the private claims of its nationals. So that after the treaty comes into force, these claims will be nonexistent.

In other words, the Dutch Minister said: It is my Government’s view that article 14(b) does not prohibit private claims of the nationals of the Netherlands.

The Japanese Prime Minister responded:

In view of the constitutional legal limitations referred to by the government of the Netherlands, the government of Japan does not consider the government of the Netherlands by signing the treaty has itself expropriated the private claims of its nationals so that, as a consequence thereof, after the treaty comes into force these claims would be nonexistent.

Taken out of international State Department legalese, what that basically says is the Government of Japan has said to the Government of the Netherlands that just signing this treaty does not mean you take away from your citizens their right of private claims against the Government of Japan or the nationals of the nation of Japan.

This is the document we did not know about until April of 2000. So we know that article 26 of the treaty of 1951 now comes into full force and play, and because Japan made a war claims settlement with the Netherlands that article 14(b), as a matter of correct interpretation, does not involve the expropriation by each allied government of the private claims of its nationals. So that after the treaty comes into force, these claims will be nonexistent.

Therefore, I stand before the Senate to take up this matter; that it would be, without question, an amendment of high emotions, and that it would revive memories of a distant past, black memories.

While listening to my colleagues’ speak, I was reminded that a few days ago I was called upon by one of my dear friends in the Senate, advising me that I should not be involved in this matter; that it would be, without question, an amendment of high emotions, and that it would revive memories of a distant past, black memories.

On my part, I am old enough to recall those dark days in our history. Like some Members, I was involved in that ancient war, World War II. Sometimes I have my personal nightmares.

There is no question that none of us here would ever condone any of the actions taken by the Japanese in the Banan death march. Being of Japanese ancestry becomes a rather personal issue for me. Who knows if I could have been the one with the bayonet and rifle. I have no way of knowing. But those men who mistreated our men were of the same ancestry.

I am constrained to say I hope no one interprets this violation as somehow trying to bring up again World War II or bringing up in a way that would be detrimental to the present Government of Japan the actions taken during World War II. That is not our intention at all. We all recognize the Government of Japan is one of the great, strong democracies of our present world. They have a system of free government and free enterprise in Japan that is the envy of many places in the world.

For a year and a half I was privileged to serve my country as a Navy pilot stationed at Atsugi airbase in Japan in the mid to late 1960’s. I spent a year and a half living on the Japanese economy. I worked with men and women who worked for the Nippon Aircraft Corporation. I was one of their test pilots. I worked with them every day. During my year and a half there, I can honestly say I became an admirer of the Japanese people. I admire many of the things they have done after World War II. I don’t for one minute admire anything they did during World War II, what the warlords did, what they did to lead that nation into World War II. The atrocities they committed during World War II are a definite blot on their history.

Today, the Japanese Government stands as a beacon of democracy and representative government. The Japanese people, I think, have expunged themselves of this terrible legacy of World War II. I am saying this because I don’t want anyone to interpret that we are using this amendment or offering this amendment, as making a detrimental statement about the present Government of Japan. That is not so.

We are saying we believe in the rule of law, just as the Japanese Government, since World War II, believes in the rule of law. This rule of law we adhere to, that we believe in so strongly, says that people who are wronged, people who believe they have a claim against another person or a government, ought to have their day in court. That is all we are saying. Let them make their case. Let the private companies want to defend themselves and say they have already paid reparations, they have already paid in full for all of this, let them come to court and show us. That is all we are saying.

The administration argues this amendment violates our Constitution regarding the separation of powers. This type of restriction we are now placing on appropriations by the participation of the Attorney General in private litigation has been enacted in 1918. Congress has accepted and complied with the executive branch. There was an example offered by Warren Rudman, another Senator from New Hampshire, passed in 1983 that barred the Justice Department from intervening in certain types of private antitrust lawsuits. We have done that many, many times in the past. I don’t think the argument that somehow this will revive memories of the separation of powers holds any water.

I thank my colleague from New Hampshire for his leadership on this issue, for sticking up for our POWs and for offering this amendment. I hope it is passed overwhelmingly so we can coordinate with the House, which passed it overwhelmingly, and permit these lawsuits to move ahead and give POWs their long overdue day in court. They may have been left behind in 1942 by General MacArthur; let’s not leave them behind one more time.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BAYH). The Senator from Hawaii, Mr. INOUYE, has offered this amendment as if making a statement on which he has been requested to give his views. I will share my thoughts on this amendment and the reasons why I oppose it.

While listening to my colleagues’ speak, I was reminded that a few days ago I was called upon by one of my dear friends in the Senate, advising me that I should not be involved in this matter; that it would be, without question, an amendment of high emotions, and that it would revive memories of a distant past, black memories.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, two of my most distinguished colleagues, the Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. SMITH, and the Senator from Iowa, Mr. HARKIN, have offered this amendment which is passed overwhelmingly. I yield the floor.

There is no question that none of us here would ever condone any of the actions taken by the Japanese in the Ba war. Being of Japanese ancestry becomes a rather personal matter for me. Who knows if I could have been the one with the bayonet and rifle. I have no way of knowing. But those men who mistreated our men were of the same ancestry.

Therefore, I stand before the Senate not with any great pleasure but because I feel it must be done. Two days ago, officials of our Nation and the high officials of Japan gathered in the city of San Francisco to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the signing of the Potsdam Declaration which ended the hostilities of Japan in World War II. This treaty was a farsighted document designed very deliberately to eliminate the possibility of further Japanese aggression by paving the way for enduring peace between our two countries.

Central to this goal was the recognition by the United States that it had a responsibility to rebuild war-torn Japan so that it could regain its economic sufficiency. The economic abandonment of Germany after World War I by the victorious nations of Europe and its horrific consequences were enough to convince the President and the Congress of the United States to avoid inviting a repetition in the Pacific. Accordingly, the provisions of the San Francisco treaty were specifically aimed at protecting the recovering economy of Japan, and among the most important was article 14(b) of that treaty. I think we should read this article 14(b) once again:

[Except as otherwise provided in the present Treaty, the Allied Powers waive all reparations claimed by the Allied Powers, other claims of the Allied Powers and their nationals arising out of any actions taken by Japan and its nationals in the course of the prosecution of war.

It was clear that this language was intended to waive, unless otherwise provided in the treaty, all claims of the United States and allied nations against Japan and Japanese nationals arising from World War II.

No one can deny the pain and the atrocities suffered by American citizens who were prisoners of war in Japan, and by agreeing to article 14(b), our Nation did not intend to turn its back on its own citizens. I have had the privilege and the great honor of serving in the Congress now for nearly 42 years and during that time I believe my record is very clear when it comes to the support of the men and women in uniform. At this moment, I find myself in some disagreement with the great leaders of this Senate as to how the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee's bill should be handled. I have always maintained that we cannot do enough for men and women in uniform. Less than one-half of 1 percent of this Nation has stepped forward to indicate to the rest of us that they are willing to stand in harm's way and, if necessary, at the risk of their lives. How can anyone say this is not something worthy of our support? How can we support the men in uniform? I hope will not be questioned by any one of my colleagues.

When we signed the treaty and when we passed the War Claims Act of 1948 soon thereafter, our Nation assumed the responsibility of making reparations to our people using the proceeds of Japanese assets ceded by Japan under the treaty. We thought it was important enough at that moment in our history to take over that responsibility.

I do not stand before you to present any rationale or apology for Japanese war crimes because history has shown that during the war, as in many great wars, officers and men of competing armies oftentimes resort to treatment of prisoners so cruel and inhumane as to seem barbaric. There are no good people in a war.

Those of us on the committee, the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, have one thing in mind—to prevent wars—because many of us have seen what they can do. There is no questioning that American prisoners in the hands of the Japanese suffered much. I think the evidence is rather clear, as pointed out by the Senator from New Hampshire and the Senator from Iowa. However, when the officials of our nations met with representatives of the defeated nation, Japan, these atrocities were recognized and taken into account in the consideration and ratification of the treaty of San Francisco. Moreover, the Government of Japan has acknowledged the damage and suffering it caused during World War II. Last Saturday, September 8, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Tanaka, reaffirmed Japan's feelings of deep remorse and heartfelt apologies that had been previously expressed in 1995 by then-Prime Minister Murayama.

Unfortunately, the amendment presented by my two distinguished colleagues attacks a central provision of the treaty by making it difficult, if not impossible, for the Departments of Justice and State to intervene in reparations suits and assert article 14(b) of the treaty. I think we should remind ourselves that article II of the Constitution of the United States makes it very clear that it is the President of the United States who has the responsibility of negotiating treaties and making certain that the United States is carried out. It is not the right of any State or any individual, nor is it the right of this Congress.

Thus, if this amendment is approved by both Houses of Congress and signed into law by the President, it would announce our intention to abrogate a central term of the treaty of San Francisco. This action will abrogate that treaty. Some have suggested it might be a slap in the face of the Japanese. Yes, it might be, but, more importantly, it will abrogate a treaty.

We who have stood on this floor time and again condemning other nations for slight deviation of their treaties are now coming forth deliberately to say that we want to abrogate this treaty. This would be contrary to U.S. foreign policy because it would signal to the world that the United States cares little for its treaty obligations. It would be also contrary to U.S. national security policy because the San Francisco treaty is the cornerstone of U.S. security arrangements in the Asia-Pacific region.

In addition to the foreign and security policy considerations, this amendment might also encourage other nations to facilitate laws against the United States, and against U.S. companies and the U.S. Government and its officials for actions by U.S. military and those who support such actions. This is not far fetched. It could expose our Nation and our Nation's citizens to millions, if not billions, of dollars in claims. The administration of President Bush, in its policy statement issued through the Department of State, concurs with this analysis and strongly opposes the amendment.

Indeed, the administration additionally objected to the amendment because it would impair the executive branch's ability to carry out its core constitutional responsibility relating to treaties, article II of the Constitution. Accordingly, reopening this issue as the amendment now proposes would have very serious negative consequences for United States-Japan relations. Indeed, we would have no doubt about America's word among other allies.

Therefore, I oppose the amendment and I hope all of my colleagues will carefully consider the points that I have raised.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I want to respond to my great friend—he is my great friend—and colleague from Hawaii. There is no one with whom I have greater respect and admiration in the Senate for all the years I have been here than the senior Senator from Hawaii, Senator Inouye. Certainly, I commend him for his statement and the courage he has shown to take his position on this matter. No one should in any way misinterpret the action taken by Senator Inouye in opposing this amendment. I know he comes at it with conscience and with his own feeling of what is right.

I may not agree with his position on it, and let no one think that in any way Senator Inouye now or at any time has let down our country, or our military, or our military establishment. By his own life and by his own example, Senator Inouye has shown what it means to be a patriot and to put himself in harm's way and possibly give one's life for his country. He did that during World War II.

No one could have been more proud than all of us here when President Clinton finally recognized his efforts, his dedication, and his sacrifice during war in finally granting Senator Inouye the Congressional Medal of Honor. It was a recognition that was long overdue.

I hope that no one misinterprets what the Senator said in his opening statement about taking his position. I certainly don't, and no one else should.

As I said, we have a disagreement. And, quite frankly, I am hard pressed to think of the last time I disagreed with the Senator from Hawaii because I have high regard for him in matters of science and with his own feeling of what is right.

We must permit them to have their day in court. It is their right. Again, I thank the Senator from New Hampshire for offering the amendment. I particularly want to thank Senator INOUYE for his years of dedication to our country for his leadership during World War II, and for his 42 years of leadership in the Senate. I am sorry I have to disagree with him on this issue.

Thank you, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I want to associate myself with every single word the Senator from Iowa just said regarding our colleague, Senator INOUYE. I want to state for the record that Senator INOUYE has earned the right to say anything he wishes on the floor of the Senate with his distinguished service to our country. I think we have a difference of opinion on what the treaty said or didn’t say. As far as I am concerned, to make the record clear.

I want to respond to the point on the abrogation of treaties because I think it is important we understand that, in my view—and I think in the view of many—if we abrogate the treaty at all. It limits the State and the Justice departments from interfering. That is all. The courts will decide the true intent of the treaty. That is what courts are supposed to do. But they should not be abrogated. That is why I would consider unnecessary meddling.

Article 26 of the treaty makes it very clear that the Japanese entered into a more advantageous agreement than those terms apply to all the signatories of the treaty.

We are not abrogating the treaty. We are fulfilling the treaty. I think it is very important to understand those points that were made in the exchange between the Japanese Government and the Dutch Government and article 26 in the sense that the person who offered those documents, John Foster Dulles, made it very clear that we don’t want to deny individuals under a constitutional government the right to have their constitutional rights fulfilled.

I would respond quickly to three or four points that were made by the opponents and then yield the floor.

We just talked about those who say it undercuts our treaty obligations. I don’t see it. I don’t see it. It merely prevents the State and the Justice departments from obtaining the true facts. I am not saying the State and Justice departments in any way directly are responsible for holding back documents. The truth is our own Government has the right to have these documents. Had these documents been available 50 years ago, I think this matter would have been resolved.

For all these years our veterans never had the opportunity to have this information and take it to court. I think that.

The judicial branch is perfectly capable and within its rights to interpret treaties without any assistance from or deference to the views of the executive branch or frankly, the legislative branch. This is law. That is how things are settled.

In any event, the amendment does not prevent the executive branch from making the record. It merely makes it that very clear. It does not prevent the executive branch from executing the treaty. It merely prevents the executive branch from advising a certain interpretation in court. All we are doing with my amendment and that of Senator HARKIN and others who cosponsored it is to say we are not going to provide taxpayer dollars to allow that argument to be fought. Let it go to court. That is all. I think it is very important that we understand that.

Some say the amendment impairs the ability of the courts to interpret treaties. The courts are perfectly capable of interpreting treaties without the assistance of the executive branch. They are bound by executive interpretation. In fact, the Supreme Court noted in one of its opinions that the courts interpret treaties for themselves. The courts remain the final arbitrator of a treaty’s meaning and have the right to interpret the latter in this case.

The courts observed that the views of the executive branch regarding a treaty are entitled to no deference of any type when they appear to have been adopted either solely for political reasons or even for the purpose of political litigation. I believe we are dealing with the latter in this case.

I will also get to the point of damping relations with Japan. No one wants to do that. I want to make it very clear that I believe Japan is a valuable ally in the Far East and that they are very important to us, especially as we look at the emergence of China and the threat of the Chinese. This is not about the Japanese Government. It is not about our participating in the war. It is about interpreting a treaty the way it was intended and allowing people to have their day in court without losing their constitutional rights.

That is for all of us.

It should not change our relationship with Japan. I do not know of anybody who wants to do that. We are strong allies. We are close friends. We are going to continue to be close friends after this. This should not, in any way, be somehow construed as an unfriendly act. Secretary Powell, I think, recently called Japan our Pacific anchor. I think he is right. But it does send a serious message that as long as these veterans are with us, this is going to be an area of contention.

Frankly, I think it is better for Japanese-American relations to get it behind us. Let’s move on. And the best way to do it is to allow these men to come to court without the interference of the Justice and State Departments; let them come to court, have their day in court, and get a decision. That was the right thing to do when the State Department did that in relation to the activities in the German case, and I think it is the right thing to do in this case.

Last year, again, as I said earlier in my statement, this body passed S. Con. Res. 158, offered by Senator HATCH, which would facilitate discussions between the veterans and the Japanese. Unfortunately, though, the State Department chose to ignore that. All we are trying to do is to move forward and not have it hang out there any longer.

This is an issue between private Japanese citizens and private United States citizens who have been wronged by those companies. It is also important to remind people that we do have a Constitution and every single one of us has constitutional rights.

Under the fifth amendment: “No person shall . . . be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.”

The Supreme Court has ruled that the Federal Government can take or espouse private claims of United States citizens against foreign governments and their agents, but this case involves private claims against corporations that are not agents of the Japanese Government. There are no constitutional or legal precedents for the Federal Government to take or espouse the private claims of private citizens against private foreign entities.

In fact, if you read article 14(b), which we have done a couple times, to mean “private versus private claims,” this raises very serious fifth amendment concerns. The Federal Government does not have the right to espouse private versus private claims. There is an important difference between the private versus Government claims, which the Federal Government can espouse, and the private versus private claims which the Federal Government cannot espouse. That is a big difference.

Just like the United States Government, the Dutch were faced with the same problem. The Dutch had a constitutional issue, which is why they raised the issue at the time, which is why article 26 was written. John Foster Dulles certainly had a hand in writing both of those letters and the exchange of letters between the Japanese and the Dutch. He understood both sides of it. And he understood it completely. That is why the letters were written and why the Dutch raised the question. And that is why they made certain that if another country raised similar objections, such as the United States, they would have the opportunity to have their citizens have their day in court.

So I hope that as we get to whatever point the leadership decides to call a vote on this, we understand that this is not about bringing up some old war stories or replaying the war or anything at all. It is simply about the right of an American citizen, who happened to be a POW, to get his or her day in court against a private company in another country and not be interfered with by our own Government. All our amendment does is say that no funds under this act shall be used by our country or our Government to interfere with that claim. That is it.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. INOUYE. Point of inquiry: Will this matter be voted upon at 5:30? Mr. HOLLINGS, I think so. We are ready to make that request, but I want to say a word in debate.

Mr. INOUYE. Fine.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time until 3:15 p.m. be for debate with respect to the Smith amendment No. 1538; that at 3:15 p.m. the amendment be set aside to recur at 5 p.m., today, with all time equally divided and controlled between Senators SMITH of New Hampshire and HOLLINGS or their designees; that a vote in relation to the amendment occur at 3:30 p.m., today, with second-ordered amendments in order prior to a vote in relation to the amendment; further, that at 3 p.m. Senator DORGAN be recognized to offer an amendment relating to TV Marti.

Mr. HOLLINGS. You mean 3:15. Mr. REID. Yes, sir.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I extend my appreciation to the Senator from Idaho, who is not in the Chamber, for allowing us to move forward on this even though his amendment is pending.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Nevada for his advice and support in the train running—and on time—and, incidentally, is fully informed on what is on that train. That is really the point to be made with Senator HARRY REID.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, there is no question when the chorus is formed to praise our distinguished senator colleague from Hawaii, I am going to be in that chorus. There is no one I admire more. I remember the debate with respect to the reparations, and I was moved by our other wonderful Senator from Hawaii, Mr. Matsunaga. But mind you me, that was a very different situation.

Here is an individual of Japanese descent, DANIEL INOUYE of Hawaii, who fought for over a year to try and gain acceptance as a soldier in the cause of the United States in World War II. And having done that—because I was in that particular theater—that day forward in Italy with the Nisei fighters, even after the armistice peace had been signed with Italy, with his arm gone and 22 slugs in his body.

He only got the Distinguished Service Cross. It hit my conscience that here was an individual, just because he was alone, and not recognized at that time, who only received the Distinguished Service Cross. And that was repugnant to me and others of those brave Nisei fighters, received the Medal of Honor. So the record has been made.

But this isn’t on account of Senator INOUYE’s courage. I really am grateful, I am grateful this bill myself, that he has taken this position that does take courage in one sense of the word. But under the Constitution, which the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire points out, there is no other course than to kill this particular amendment.

Let me speak again of my high regard for the Senator from New Hampshire and the Senator from Iowa in their feeling for the veterans, particularly those who suffered under that death march from Bataan, because I was dragged into this thing myself in May of 1942, when others just ahead of me got caught up not only in the Bataan death march, but that treatment of prisoners of war under such treatment that has been described by the distinguished Senators from New Hampshire and Iowa.

I think of Jack Leonard. I think of other classmates who suffered in that period of the war. So I share the feeling of the Senator from New Hampshire. You cannot be more devastated and defaced and tortured than these Japanese prisoners of war. They deserve every bit of consideration they can get under the Constitution. But if we are going to be a body of laws, there isn’t any question about whose side—I was taken by the Senator from New Hampshire who said you are either on the side of the private Japanese corporations or you are on the side of the veterans. Not at all. You are either on the side of the Constitution or you are not. And our Constitution says: The treaty made duly ratified is the law of the land. That terminated any particular claims or their day in court.

To understand, read this amendment, not agreeing, if you please, with the Senator from New Hampshire, not agreeing, if you please, with the Senator from South Carolina, but it says: No relief available in this Act may be used by the Department of Justice or the Department of State to file a motion in any court opposing a civil action against any Japanese person or corporation for compensation or reparations in which the plaintiff alleges that, as an American prisoner of war during World War II, he or she was used as a slave or forced labor.

It says that the Department of Justice and the Department of State cannot function as a Department of Justice and a Department of State. Certainly, they don’t want to do that. If it is to be that they have a right or day in court, then only if nothing we vote on this afternoon will take away that right or day in court—it has been had, this time last year in the California court. The judge found it and studied it and objectively looked at it in every particular regard and found otherwise. Nothing that we vote on today one way or the other is going to take away their right in court.

But there is a right and a duty and a responsibility of the Department of State and the Department of Justice to defend the position of the United States. And we think that the position of the United States is under article 14 of that particular treaty with Japan, ratified in 1952 by an overwhelming vote that was entered into by President Truman, ratified by a 66–10 bipartisan vote in the U.S. Senate. If I raise my hand as a Senator, I hereby pledge to preserve, protect, and defend. So it is not the side of the corporation or the side of the veteran. It is the position under the Constitution. You have to defend the laws of the land.

Certainly, I am not totally familiar with the cases under particular venue, certainly not as much so perhaps as the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire. But there have been others who have studied it very thoroughly. Have a letter from a distinguished former Secretary of State. This is in June. He writes to the House chairman of Foreign Relations, I take it, at that particular time. I want to read from this letter from George P. Shultz:

Dear Mr. Chairman, I am writing to you to express my deep reservations about H.R. 1198, the Justice for the U.S. Prisoners of War Act of 2001.

This was passed overwhelmingly, incidentally, in the House of Representatives. We have too many polsters in Government. My polster, my political consultant said: Why don’t you keep your mouth shut. Let DANNY INOUYE defend it and you don’t have to say anything. And then in the next election, you won’t have to explain how the veterans now are all against you.

Life is too short for that kind of nonsense. You have to take positions here. Let me go ahead with Secretary Shultz’s letter:

I express my opposition to the bill against the background of tremendous sympathy for the problems of the United States’ citizens who have in one way or another been harmed, many severely, in the course of war and its sometimes dehumanizing impact.

But the bill in question would have the effect of voiding the bargain we made and explicitly set out in the Treaty of Peace between Japan, the United States, and forty-seven other countries. President Truman with advice and consent of the Senate ratified the treaty and it became effective April 28, 1952.

The Treaty has served us well in providing the fundamental underpinning for the peace and prosperity we have seen, for the most part, in the Asia Pacific region over the past half-century.

The Treaty addresses squarely the issue of compensation for damages suffered at the hands of the Japanese. Article 14 in the treaty sets out the terms of Japanese payment “for the damage and suffering caused by it during the war.” The agreement provides:

1. a grant of authority to Allied Powers to seize Japanese property and to obtain jurisdiction at the time of the treaty’s effective date;
2. an obligation of Japan to assist in the rebuilding of territory occupied by Japanese forces during the war; and
3. waiver of all “other claims of the Allied Powers on national and international jurisdiction arising out of any action taken by Japan and its nationals of the war.”

Let me divert from the reading of this letter. One says “to seize the property. That was done. Japanese property was seized. You constantly hear in the presentation that this is against private corporations. The treaty was against private corporations and their property and was distributed to the prisoners of war. It wasn’t done enough, but you agree on that in a flash. I sympathize with the motivation of the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire, but we did seize the property. And we did distribute it as reparations. That ended all claims of all nationals.

The waiver of all other claims of the allied powers and their nationals, that ended it. It didn’t say whether 50 years from now we can find some memo with respect to the Netherlands and whether or not they had constitutional authority. There isn’t any question put on our Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, had authority. There isn’t any question that the President of the United States who signed the treaty, the Congress itself, the U.S. Senate that ratified that treaty, had its authority. This is by the board what was found 50 years later by the Netherlands. Let’s find out what was found by the United States of America, its President and its Senate as constitutionally binding under the treaty.

Let me go back to the letter from George P. Shultz:

The interests of Allied prisoners of war are addressed in Article 15, which provides for transfer of Japanese assets in neutral or even me jurisdictions to the International Red Cross for distribution to former prisoners and their families.

H.R. 1198 addresses these undertakings head on, as it says, “In any action in a Federal court . . . the court . . . shall not construe section 14(b) of the Treaty of Peace with Japan as authorizing any action of which the court considers to be injurious to the constitutional and sovereign interests of the United States, including claims by members of the United States armed forces, so as to preclude the pending action.”

I read further:

I have read carefully an opinion of Judge Vaughn R. Walker of the U.S. District Court in California rendered on July 21, 2000 . . .

I ask unanimous consent that the Record be printed.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

On December 23, 1941, after mounting a brave resistance against an overwhelming foe, the small American garrison on Wake Island in the South Pacific surrendered to Imperial Japanese forces. James King, a former United States Marine, was among the troops and civilians taken prisoner by the invaders. He was ultimately shipped to Kyushu, Japan, where he spent the remainder of the war toiling by day as a slave laborer in a steel factory and enduring maltreatment in a prison camp by night. When captured, King was 20 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighed 167 pounds. After conclusion of the war, he weighed 98 pounds.

James King is one of the plaintiffs in these actions against Japanese corporations for forced labor in World War II. His experience, and the undisputed injustice he suffered, are representative. King and the other plaintiffs seek judicial redress for this injustice.

These actions are before the court for consolidated pretrial proceedings pursuant to June 5, 2000, and June 15, 2000, orders of transfer by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation. On August 17, 2000, the court heard oral argument on plaintiffs’ motions for remand to state court and defendants’ motions to dismiss or for judgment on the pleadings.

This order addresses, first, all pending motions for remand. For the reasons stated below, the court concludes that notwithstanding plaintiffs’ attempts to plead only state law claims, removal jurisdiction exists because these actions raise substantial questions of federal law by implicating the federal common law of foreign relations.

Second, the court addresses the preclusive effect of the same Treaty of Peace with Japan on a suit brought before the court, namely, those brought by plaintiffs who were United States or allied soldiers in World War II captured by Japanese forces and held as prisoners of war. The court concludes that the 1951 treaty constitutes a waiver of such claims.

This order does not address the pending motions to dismiss in cases brought by plaintiffs who were not members of the armed forces of the United States or its allies. Since those cases arise between citizens of countries that are signatories of the 1951 treaty, their claims raise a host of issues not presented by the Allied POW cases and, therefore, require further consideration in further proceedings.

II

Defendants may remove to federal court “any civil action brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United States have original jurisdiction.” 28 USC §1441(a). “The propriety of removal thus depends on whether the case originally could have been filed in federal court.” Chicago v. International College of Surgeons, 522 US 156, 163 (1997).

Federal courts have original jurisdiction over cases “arising under the Constitution, laws or treaties of the United States.” 28 USC §1331. For purposes of removal, federal question jurisdiction can arise only when a federal question is presented on the face of the plaintiff’s properly complaint.” Caterpillar Inc v. Williams, 482 US 866, 392 (1987).

If a defense is not the plaintiff’s properly pleaded statement of his claim, a case may not be removed to federal court on the theory of federal question jurisdiction. See Brosnahan v. United States, 340 U.S. 395, 405 (1951).

Defendants’ assertion of the Treaty of Peace with Japan as a defense to plaintiffs’ state law causes of action therefore, confer federal jurisdiction. Recognizing this defendants rely on a line of cases committing to federal common law questions implicating the foreign relations of the United States.

In Banco Nacional de Cuba v. Sabbatino, 376 US 386, 425 (1964), a case in which federal jurisdiction was based on diversity of citizenship, the Supreme Court held that development and application of the act of state doctrine was a matter of federal common law, notwithstanding the general rule of Erie R Co v. Thompkins, 304 US 64, 78 (1938), that federal courts apply state substantive law in diversity cases. The court reasoned that because the doctrine concerns the boundary between nations, “the problems involved are uniquely federal in nature.” Id at 424. Although the applicable state law mirrored federal decisions, the Court “constrained to make it clear that an issue [involving] our relationships with other members of the international community must be treated exclusively as an aspect of federal law.” Id at 425.

Under Banco Nacional, federal common law governs matters concerning the foreign relations of the United States. See Texas Indus, Inc v. Radcliff Materials, Inc, 451 US 630, 641 (1981). “In these instances, our federal system does not permit the controversy to be resolved under state law, either because the authority and duties of the United States as sovereign are intimately involved or because the * * * international nature of the controversy makes it inappropriate for state law to control.” Id.

If an examination of the complaint shows that the plaintiff’s claims require determinations that will directly and significantly affect United States foreign relations, a plaintiff’s state law claims should be dismissed. Republic v. Marcos, 806 F2d 344, 352 (2d Cir 1986). This doctrine has been extended to disputes between private parties that implicate the “vital economic and sovereign interests” of the nation where the parties’ dispute arose. Torres v. Southern Peru Copper Corp, 113 F3d 540, 543 n8 (9th Cir 1997).

The court concludes that the complaints in the instant cases, on their face, implicate the federal common law of foreign relations and as such, give rise to federal jurisdiction. Plaintiffs’ claims arise out of world war and are enmeshed with the momentous policy choices that arose in the war’s aftermath. The cases implicate the uniquely federal interests of the United States to make peace and enter treaties with foreign nations. As the United States has argued as amicus curi, these cases carry potential to unsettle half a century of diplomacy.

After a thorough analysis, Judge Baird in the Central District of California denied remand of one of the cases underlined pursuant to the multidistrict litigation transfer order, Poole v. Nippon Steel Corp, No. 00–0189 (CD Cal March 17, 2000). The court determined that the “Court is constrained to make it clear that an issue [involving] our relationships with other members of the international community must be treated exclusively as an aspect of federal law.” Id at 425.
The Treaty of Peace with Japan was signed at San Francisco on September 8, 1951, by the representatives of the United States and 47 other Allied powers and Japan. The Treaty of Peace with Japan, [1952] 3 UST 3169, TIAS No 2490 (1951). President Truman, with the advice and consent of the Senate, ratified the treaty and it became effective April 28, 1952. Id.

"Art. 14 provides the terms of Japanese payment for "future damages and suffering caused by it during the war." Id. at Art 14(a). For present purposes, the salient features of the agreement are: (1) a grant of authority of Allied powers to assert all "claims within their jurisdiction at the time of the treaty's effective date; (2) an obligation of Japan to assist in the rebuilding of territory occupied by Japanese forces during the war and (3) waiver of all "other claims of the Allied Powers and their nationals arising out of any actions taken by Japan and its nationals in the course of the prosecution of the war." It is the waiver provision that defendants argue bars plaintiffs' claims. In its entirety, the provision reads: "(b) Except as otherwise provided in the present Treaty, the Allied Powers waive all reparations claims of the United States and all other claims of the Allied Powers and their nationals arising out of any actions taken by Japan and its nationals in the course of the prosecution of the war, and the Allied Powers pay in full direct military costs of occupation." Id at Art 14(b)."

"On its face, the treaty waives "all reparations and "other claims of the "nationals" of Allied powers "arising out of any actions taken by Japan and its nationals during the course of the prosecution of the war." The language of this waiver is strikingly broad, and contains no conditional language or limitations, save for the opening clause referring to the provisions of the treaty. The interests of Allied prisoners of war are addressed in Article 16, which provides for transfer of Japanese assets in neutral or enemy jurisdictions to the International Reparations Commission for transfer to former prisoners and their families. Id at Art 16. The treaty specifically exempts from any obligation Japanese assets resulting from "the resumption of trade and financial relations subsequent to September 2, 1945." Id at Art 14(a)(ii)(iv)."

"To avoid the preclusive effect of the treaty, plaintiffs advance an interpretation of Article 14(b) that is strained and, ultimately, unconvincing. Although the argument has several shades, it comes down to this: the signatories of the treaty did not understand the Allied waiver to apply to prisoner of war claims because the provision did not expressly identify such claims, in contrast to the corresponding Japanese waiver provision of Article 19. Article 19(b) states that the Japanese waiver includes "any claims and rights of action of the Allied prisoners of war and civilian internees in the hands of the Allied Powers" * * *

"That the treaty is more specific in Article 19 does not overrule the plain language of Article 14. If the language of Article 14 are ambiguous, plaintiffs' expresso unius argument would have more force. But in light of General MacArthur's authority in the course of the war, and his subsequent role in the transition to a stable, democratic Japan as a bulwark against communist advances in the region.

"In the present context, the congressional acquiescence in the concluded settlement, and the role of the President in ratifying the treaty, "renders any aggressive reparations plan an exercise in futility. Meanwhile, the importance of a stable, democratic Japan as a bulwark to communism in the region increased.
At the end of 1948, MacArthur expressed the view that “[t]he use of reparations as a weapon to retard the reconstruction of a viable economy in Japan should be combated with all possible vigor” and “recommends that the reparations issue be settled finally and without delay.” Memorandum from General Headquarters of SCAP to Department of the Army, at 4 (Def Req for Judicial Notice, Exh E).

That this policy was embodied in the treaty is clear from the negotiations history but also from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee report recommending approval of the treaty by the Senate. The committee declared: “Obviously, evidence upon the payment of reparations in any proportion commensurate with the claims of the injured countries and their nationals would, in the Japanese economy, dissipate any credit that it may possess at present, destroy the initiative of its people, and create misery and chaos in which the seeds of discord and communism would flourish. In short, it would be contrary to the basic purposes and policy of * * * the United States.”

The committee recognized that the treaty provisions “do not give a direct right of return to individual claimants except in the case of those having property in Japan” and further acknowledged the position of the State Department that “United States nationals, whose claims are not covered by the treaty provisions * * * must look for relief to the Congress of the United States,” id at 14.

Indeed, the treaty went into effect against the backdrop of congressional response to the massive problem of former prisoners of war, in which many, if not all, of the plaintiffs in the present cases participated. See War Claims Act of 1946, 56 USC §§ 2001–2017p (establishing War Claims Commission and assigning top priority to claims of former prisoners of war).

Were the text of the treaty to leave any question in doubt that it waived claims as those advanced by plaintiffs in these cases, the history of the Allied experience in post-war Japan provides a foil to any claim that the ratification debate would resolve it in favor of a finding of waiver.

As one might expect, considering the acknowledged inadequacy of compensation for victims of the Japanese regime provided under the treaty, the issue of additional reparations has arisen repeatedly since the adoption of that agreement some 50 years ago. This is all the more understandable in light of the vigor with which the Japanese economy has rebounded from the abyss. The court finds it significant, as further support for the conclusion that the treaty bars plaintiffs’ claims, that the United States Department of State has stood firmly by the principle of finality embodied in the treaty. This position was expressed in recent congressional testimony by Ronald J. Bettauer, deputy legal advisor, as follows: “The 1951 Treaty of Peace with Japan settles all war-related claims of the U.S. and its nationals, and precludes the possibility of making legal action in United States domestic courts to obtain additional compensation for war victims from Japan or its nationals—including Japanese commercial entities.”

In another recent example, in response to a letter from Senator Orrin Hatch expressing “disappointment” with the “fifty-five year old injustice imposed on our military forces and their families and urging that the Secretary of State to take action, a State Department representative wrote: “The Treaty of Peace with Japan has, over the full course of time, reaffirmed U.S. security interests in Asia and to support peace and stability in the region. We strongly believe that the U.S. must honor its international and constitutional treaty obligations.” If there is, in our view, no justification for the U.S. to attempt to reopen the question of international commitments and obligations under the terms of the treaty, there must be a strong presumption that “par for the present treaty,” i.e., the government signatories. The question of enforcing Article 26 is thus for the United States, not the plaintiffs, to decide.

IV

The Treaty of Peace with Japan, insofar as it barred future claims such as those asserted by plaintiffs in these actions, ex- cluded cases implicating the unilateral actions of a future peace. History has vindicated the wisdom of that bargain. And while full compensation for plaintiffs’ hardships, in the purely economic sense, has not been provided, these former prisoners countless other survivors of the war, the immeasurable bounty of life for themselves and their posterity in a free society and in a more peaceful world services the debt.

The motions to dismiss and/or for judgment on the pleadings are GRANTED. The plaintiff cases shall be dismissed in favor of defendants in the above-captioned cases.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Quoting, again, from the letter:

I have read carefully an opinion of Judge Vaughn R. Walker of the U.S. District Court in California rendered on September 21, 2000, dealing with claims, many of a heart-rending nature. His reasoning and his citations are incisive and persuasive to me. He writes, "The cases implicate the unilateral federal interests of the United States to make peace and enter treaties with foreign nations. As the United States has argued as amicus curiae in these cases, the cases carry potential to unsettle the agreement and enshrine in the law a precedent of action that would, in effect, abrogate the Treaty." The chief negotiator of the Treaty on behalf of President Truman was the clear-eyed and tough-minded John Foster Dulles, who later became Secretary of State for President Eisenhower. He and other giants from the post World War II period saw the folly of what happened after World War I, when a vindictive peace treaty, that called upon the defeated states to pay huge reparations, helped lead to World War II. They chose otherwise: to do everything possible to cause Germany and Japan to become democratic partners and, as the Cold War with the Soviet Union emerged, allies in that struggle.

As Judge Walker notes in his opinion, "the importance of a stable, democratic Japan as a bulwark to communism in the region increased." He says, "that this policy was emblematic of the Treaty as it emerged from the negotiations history, but also from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee report recommending approval of the Treaty by the Senate, and his history yields up the wisdom of that bargain."

This is George P. Shultz, and I quote further:
I served during World War II as a Marine in the Pacific. I took part in combat operations. I had friends—friends close to me—friendships derived from the closeness that comes from being in combat together, killed practically beside me. I do not exaggerate at all in saying that the people who suffered the most are the ones who did not make it. They were always suppose to be the best of treatment for our veterans, especially those who were involved in combat. If they are not being adequately taken care of, we should do nothing but to do more.

If you have fought in combat, you know the horrors of war and the destructive impact it can have on decent people. You also know how fragile our own lives is. I recall being the senior Marine on a ship full of Marines on our way back from the Pacific Theater after 3 years overseas. We all knew that we would reassemble into assorted forces for the invasion of the Japanese home islands. As Marines, we knew all about the bloody invasion of Tarawa, the Palauas, Okinawa, Iwo-Jima, and many other Islands. So we knew what the invasion of the Japanese home islands would be like.

Not many left me port, an atomic bomb was dropped on Japan. None of us knew what that was, but we sensed it must be important since the event was newsworthy enough to cover our ships at sea. Then heard of a second one. Before our ship reached the States, the war was over. I have visited Japan a number of times and I have stated before for dropping those bombs, but everyone on that ship was convinced that President Truman saved our lives. Yes, war is terrible, but that ship was convinced that President Truman saved our lives. Yes, war is terrible, but the treaty brought it to an end.

I can divert from those who are those same sentiments. I didn’t get back until November. He is talking about August when those bombs were dropped in 1945. But there is no question that President Truman was the hero for dropping those bombs. But under the International Criminal Court, somebody could try to file a claim 50 years later. Whether that has an effect or not is to be determined. If it does prevent the veterans from moving forward, but it certainly prevents the United States of America, through its Department of Justice and Department of State, from holding up its side of the United States under this particular treaty.

The distinguished Senator from New Hampshire could well say, wait a minute, here is this information that has to come up 50 years later. Whether that has an effect or not is to be determined. No rights have been taken away from my veteran friend here who might stand at my side and say, HOLLINGS, I want you to bring this case. Nothing prevents the case from being brought. But this amendment says not on the particular treaty. The Senate, which ratified the treaty, doesn’t want to take the position that its ratification cannot even be commented on by this particular amendment because all funds are removed, no motion can be made, no defense can be made. On that basis alone, I will support the Senator from Hawaii in his opposition and commend him for his courage, and I commend my friend from New Hampshire for raising this particular question because I think it is met with to be discussed in a court of law and both sides heard fully, without saying one particular side can’t be defended at all.

I yield the floor. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I wish to respond briefly to a couple of the points my colleague from South Carolina made. The argument that our former POWs have already been compensated under the War Claims Act and 1951 peace treaty is ridiculous, to be candid about it. POWs who were enslaved by private Japanese corporations received next to nothing in compensation. Many of these POWs received nothing—nothing, zip.

A Federal judge who dismissed many of the lawsuits wrote in his opinion—listen to this:

The immeasurable bounty of life for themselves and their posterity in a free society services the debt.

That is what he said. If that is not a ridiculous statement, even if it did come from a judge, I have never heard one. Here it is again:

The immeasurable bounty of life for themselves [POWs] and their posterity in a free society services the debt.

It is true under the War Claims Act POWs could receive compensation—a dollar a day—for their claims against the acts of powers. They could not be compensated for claims against private corporations and nationals who were not agents.

But there is no question that President Truman was the hero for dropping those bombs. But under the International Criminal Court, somebody could make the case these folks should not have that opportunity to proceed.

This is right out of the memorandum of understanding, and this was partially written by Dulles himself:

Following the conversation of September 3, 1951, between the Secretary of the Dutch Foreign Ministry . . . Dutch Ambassador, and others, we emphasize that the purpose of this statement was that the Dutch Government was, by the act of signing the Japanese peace treaty, giving up without due process rights held by Dutch subjects.

That is the same issue with the United States, and Dulles realized it. You cannot sign a treaty that says we have no due process against another citizen in another country. You simply cannot do it.

Talk about sticking to the Constitution and defending the Constitution. That is exactly what I am doing, and that is exactly what John Foster Dulles and others were doing because they realized this. Then, in an effort to cover it all up to satisfy the Dutch, he buried it. He classified it and kept it classified for 50 years to keep these people from having the right to go to court. That is what he did. That is what the U.S. Government did. It is wrong, and we need to correct it. We can correct it right here today.

We cannot say we are not defending the Constitution. We are not only defending the Constitution. We are defending the rights of individuals who live under this Constitution to have due process. That is what we are doing, and that is what this debate is about.
I yield the floor, Mr. President.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise to express my opposition to the Smith Amendment to the Commerce-Justice-State Authorization.

I do not do so because I think that the bill is against the Japanese corporations by the former Prisoners of War who were used as slave labor during World War II should not go forward—but just the opposite—but because I believe that this Amendment takes the wrong approach to this issue. I strongly support the right of the POWs to file lawsuits against the Japanese corporations. The POWs and veterans are only seeking justice from the private companies that enslaved them, and these claims should be allowed to move forward.

In fact, Senator HATCH and I introduced legislation earlier this year, S. 1272, the POW Assistance Act of 2001, precisely because I believe that it is important for POWs who were used as slave labor during World War II to have their day in court, and an opportunity to press their claims for renumeration and compensation.

There are serious questions about whether the 1951 Treaty between Japan and the United States has settled these claims, and these questions should be dealt with seriously. But as these lawsuits go forward, I do not think that it is right and proper to enjoin the Department of State and the Department of Justice from offering the court their opinion on the meaning and interpretation of the 1951 Treaty. That opinion—which may ultimately be determined to be incorrect—is a perfectly legitimate part of the proceedings.

I strongly support the right of the POWs to seek justice. This is a matter that belongs before the courts. But I do not think that the Smith Amendment is the right way to, and I urge my colleagues to oppose its passage.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I want to express my support for amendment No. 1338 of Senators SMITH and HARKIN regarding American POWs held in Japan. I do so with much respect for those who have served and suffered horrific treatment as a result of their service. I was traveling with President Bush in Florida when the vote occurred, but had I been present, I would have voted "nay" to the motion to table the amendment.

We rejected an international treaty with Japan to which we are bound. But, this Amendment is not about what the Treaty signed 50 years ago does or does not allow. It is about due process to those Americans who suffered a grievous wrong. The point is that these brave men and women were held in prison in Japan and their day in court to have their case heard. Actions by the Departments of Justice and State to block such actions deprive them of fairness and due process. Congress should not be a party to such deprivation.

I support the Smith-Harkin amendment and wish to be on record as opposed to the motion to table it.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, during World War II, 36,000 Americans were captured and held prisoner by Japan. The story of the often horrific treatment of these prisoners is punctuated by episodes such as the Bataan Death March, where ten Americans lost their lives for every mile of the gruesome journey, and by the pictures of the emaciated soldiers who spent years in confinement on starvation rations. I cannot think of any way in which we, as representatives of the men who suffered through such an horrific treatment.

The amendment before us today, offered by Senator SMITH and Senator HARKIN, but in jeopardy of con-stitutional principles that each member of the Armed Forces, and each member of this body, swore to uphold. The amendment would prevent the Department of State and the Department of Justice from defending the U.S. Government in court against lawsuits that challenge whether provisions in the Treaty of San Francisco will continue to be in force as the law of the land.

The treaty brought peace between Japan, the United States, and our Allies in World War II, explicitly settled all wartime reparations claims that might arise against Japan. The text of the peace treaty is very clear in this regard. Because, under Article VI of the Constitution, a ratified treaty is the supreme law of the land, it is equally clear that this treaty prohibits the Government of the United States, or its people, from seeking further reparations from the Government of Japan, or its people. This is the position that the Department of State and the Department of Justice have maintained since ratification of the treaty in 1952.

The amendment before us would prohibit those departments from arguing in court against lawsuits that violate the peace treaty. It would prevent the U.S. Government from upholding a supreme law of the land which brought peace between Japan and the United States, and the U.N. convention on small states. It would prevent the U.S. Government from upholding the peace treaty. It would prevent the U.S. Government from upholding the peace treaty and the International Criminal Court, the Biological Weapons Convention, and the U.N. convention on small states, and the U.N. convention on small states. A move to reverse a major provision such as a long-standing treaty would be an unconscionable confirmation, and escalation, of this trend. This is a particularly inopportune time to raise further questions about our Nation's ability to cooperate with other countries.

I urge my colleagues not to view the vote on the Smith-Harkin amendment as an up-or-down vote on our veterans. There are serious constitutional and foreign policy issues at stake, and other means to compensate these veterans have not yet been exhausted. We should take a closer look at alternative means of compensation, and reject this attempt to tie the hands of our government in discharging its constitutional duty to defend a ratified treaty.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Wyden). The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Nebraska be given 10 extra minutes to present his amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I thank my friend, the distinguished senior Senator from Hawaii, who is, as we have heard today, one of the most distinguished veterans of World War II, as is his colleague, the distinguished Senator from South Carolina.

I am a bit of an interloper on this issue, except to say that I spent 3 years in the South Pacific during World War II in the Army Air Corps. So I know some of what my distinguished colleagues are talking.

I am most appreciative of the efforts and the motives of the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. SMITH. I know of his father's great sacrifice during World War II, meaning the sacrifice Senator SMITH's family made to this country. I do not tread upon this subject lightly.

I urge you to support this amendment. The Senator from South Carolina and the Senator from Hawaii have made very significant, substantive points as to why it is the wrong course of action, in the opinion of some, including this Senator from Nebraska.

I will say first, there is surely no way a grateful nation can ever adequately compensate or express our feelings to those brave men and women who fought and endured for it. It was freedom. It was the liberty for a nation, an individual, to have the kind of life and dignity for which America has stood for over 200 years. That is what it was about.

How do we compensate, how do we adequately thank these men and women? We cannot, of course, but we should remember this: What they fought for, what they endured, can be, in fact, recognized by knowing and honoring the spirit, and likely the letter, of any of us can leave in life is a family, the world better than we found it, and accomplishing something much greater than our own self-interests. That is the most important dynamic for me as I have debated this debate and as I have read the reasons and listened to the reasons that Senator SMITH put forward to essentially change our treaty obligations.

Make no mistake, this is a very significant step. As I said in closing, that this body, this Congress, this Nation will take if, in fact, we vote for this amendment. Great nations honor their treaty commitments. Treaty commitments are important, and we can debate the specifics of sections and paragraphs of law and treaties, and as has been articulated rather directly and plainly this afternoon, there are various interpretations of that. But we should make it very clear that this great Nation will, in fact, live up to these commitments they made, and a commitment that we made 50 years ago when that treaty was signed in San Francisco, which was, as expressed here, commemorated last weekend. It is a 50-year treaty.

Was it awkward? Was it done not exactly the right way? Were parts of that treaty misused? Why did we classify some of it in the way we did? I suppose we could take days, weeks, and months debating that, but that is part of a smaller issue. The bigger issue really is, Are we, in fact, going to unilaterally reinterpret the commitment we gave to other nations that signed this treaty 50 years ago? That is really the issue.

American prisoners of war forced into slave and forced labor by Japan during World War II suffered unspeakable brutality, and their treatment by Japanese overseers violated every standard of human decency. Their sacrifice and heroism now forms one of the most distinguished chapters in American history.

While we must not forget these Americans who suffered so greatly, we also must not forget our country’s historic and principled decision in the aftermath of this terrible conflict. Our peace treaty with Japan was not punitive. Although the United States had defeated a brutal enemy, we chose not to claim the spoils of war. Instead, the peace treaty with Japan reflected the great humanity, vision, spirit and generosity of the American people. Referred to at the time as a “Peace of Reconciliation,” it looked forward to Japan’s economic recovery and not backward to its defeat. Most importantly, it reflected the new stirrings of a great and magnanimous superpower.

In 1945, most Americans felt the terms of surrender with Japan were too lenient. By 1951, most Americans began to see Japan in a very different light— as a potential friend and ally in East Asia, not as an implacable foe. When John Foster Dulles negotiated our generous peace with Japan, waiving all reparation claims, the American public supported the Senate’s ratification with a lopsided majority, 66-10, on March 20, 1952. The United States has stood behind this decision for 50 years.

Last Saturday, on September 8, Secretary of State Powell and Japanese Foreign Minister Tanaka commemorated the 50th anniversary of the Treaty of San Francisco at San Francisco’s War Memorial Opera House, and formally renewed the strategic partnership between the United States and Japan. This relationship stands as one of the most important of the 20th century. This would set a dangerous precedent. While many of my distinguished colleagues may no longer agree with the decision made by the United States in 1951, it still stands as a treaty obligation and the official United States position in United States court cases. We are a nation that upholds the rule of law and honors its treaty commitments.

How then should we honor and fairly compensate the Americans who suffered grievously as slave or forced labor in World War II without violating our long-held treaty obligation with Japan? Two of our World War II allies, Canada and the United Kingdom, recently provided compensation to their prisoners of war—recognizing that Japan has no obligation to do so under the Treaty of San Francisco. This is a model on this issue.

Treaty obligations are important, and as has been articulated rather directly and plainly this afternoon, they are in the best interests of the world, and, quite honestly, the best interests of the very families and the legacies these very brave men and women will leave behind and what they endured for us.

I ask my colleagues to oppose this amendment as we vote this afternoon and once again recognize the Senator from New Hampshire for his motives, for his intent, but in this Senator’s opinion it is the wrong approach to accomplish something that is important.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I believe there is no further statement to be made with respect to the Smith amendment and that now the unanimous consent agreement takes place whereby the distinguished Senator from North Dakota will ask to set the Smith amendment aside, to be brought up at 5 p.m. with the time equally divided between 5 p.m. and 5:30 p.m., and the vote to occur at 5:30 p.m. Until then, the agreement is the Senator from North Dakota will be recognized for him to offer an amendment. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, thank you and I thank the Senator from South Carolina.

I actually have two amendments. I will talk about the first, offer the amendment following my discussion of it, and it is within the consent of the Senate. I will begin by offering the second amendment, and then I will take a moment to begin discussing the first amendment. The first amendment is an amendment to increase the amount of resources we are putting in this appropriations bill to deal with trade compliance and trade enforcement. The area of international trade is a very important area, and we are losing a lot of ground despite what one hears from some in Washington, DC.

DC. I will put up a chart which shows the trade deficits we now have. This chart shows the ballooning trade deficits year after year after year. These are the very large trade deficits. They have risen from $332 billion a year in 1993 to over $450 billion a year in 2000, and will likely to go even higher in the year 2001.

Our trade deficits are out of control. They are growing larger and larger and larger. Now this trade deficit comes from the following sources: In the year 2000, we had an $81 billion trade deficit with Japan; an $84 billion trade deficit with China; a $56 billion trade deficit with the European Union; a $50 billion trade deficit with Canada; and a $24 billion trade deficit with Mexico. Many of our trading partners, as we all know, have a very poor record of complying with trade agreements.

The trade deficits with China, which my colleague from South Carolina frequently holds up in debate, is a book called "Foreign Trade Barriers." It is a rather thick book that describes all of the trade barriers American producers and workers confront when trying to send American products abroad.

Let us talk for a moment about China, Japan, and Canada. Do you know what happens when you try to send potato flakes to South Korea? They impose a 300-percent tariff on potato flakes. Outrageous. And we have a huge deficit with Korea.

How about with Mexico? We have a very large deficit with Mexico, and we will likely to lose it. Before NAFTA we had a tiny surplus, and then we passed a trade agreement and turned it into a huge deficit. We try to send high fructose corn syrup to Mexico, and they put the equivalent of a 33- to 79-percent tariff on it. This is not a mistake. This is not a mistake. This will not stand up for its economic interests. Too many people in this country do not seem to care. This burgeoning trade deficit will make a difference. It will be repaid someday in some way by a lower standard of living in this country. We ought to get it under control now.

I spoke last week about international trade and why I get so upset about it from time to time. I mentioned in the area of trade, we have problems with China, Japan, Korea, Europe, Mexico, Canada. I mentioned we have nearly $400 billion in trade deficits in our trade agreements. As I mentioned, this number has gone from 10 people monitoring China down to 7 people from 17 people monitoring Japan down to 7 people; from nearly 33 people monitoring Mexico to 13 people. I am suggesting we reverse that trend.

How do we reverse it? By adding $10 million as a first step back to this appropriations bill. How would I get the money to do that? To get the money to enforce our trade laws, I propose we cut funding for something called TV Marti. TV Marti, boy, that will spark some interest among some. Let me describe what TV Marti is. TV Marti is a tool by which we broadcast television signals into Cuba to tell the Cubans the truth. The Cubans need to know the truth. They can get a lot of Miami radio stations and from Radio Marti. I support Radio Marti. It costs $14 or $15 million a year. Having been in Cuba, I understand the Cubans listen to and appreciate the broadcasts. Good for Radio Marti. Count me as a supporter.

But nobody sees TV Marti. Each year we spend a substantial amount of money on TV Marti, despite the fact that it is absurd to do so. Here is the television picture seen on TV Marti in Havana. Does it look like snow and only snow? It does, because it is jammed. The signal does not get through. It is a jammed signal. From 30 people monitoring trade with China, Japan, Korea, Europe, Mexico, Canada.

China, I could go forever on China, Japan, the same thing. I could talk forever about the trade impediments and the barriers to try to get American products into these countries or to stop unfairly subsidized products from those countries coming into our country.

I come from a State where we produce wonderful potatoes. We produce a lot of potatoes. Some are turned into potato flakes which are used in fast food. Try to send potato flakes to South Korea. Do you know what happens when you try to send potato flakes to Korea? They impose a 300-percent tariff on potato flakes. Outrageous. And we have a huge deficit with Korea.

How about with Mexico? We have a very large deficit with Mexico, and we will likely to lose it. Before NAFTA we had a tiny surplus, and then we passed a trade agreement and turned it into a huge deficit. We try to send high fructose corn syrup to Mexico, and they put the equivalent of a 33- to 79-percent tariff on it. This is not a mistake. This is not a mistake. This will not stand up for its economic interests. Too many people in this country do not seem to care. This burgeoning trade deficit will make a difference. good deal? I don’t think so. I think we ought to cut that and use the money to enhance our compliance in the area of international trade.

To make the rest of the case, I will describe more about TV Marti. As I said, I fully support Radio Marti. I know it is effective. TV Marti, on the other hand, is a total, colossal waste of the taxpayers’ money, providing no picture to anyone, and does so at 3:30 in the morning.

Last year, we spent $10.8 million beaming TV Marti to Cuba, where the viewership was approximately zero. Since the inception, we have spent about $150 million of taxpayers’ money on TV Marti. We continue to broadcast 4½ hours a day—31½ hours a week—from 3:30 a.m. until 5 a.m. What we broadcast are fuzzy lines, as I indicated before. TV Marti’s broadcast to Cuba has been consistently jammed to the public. No one can view the programs.

To lessen the effects of jamming, the TV Marti uses a signal on 1080 watts, transmitted east and west of Havana during broadcast hours. Those who want to watch a snowy jammed signal that one cannot see have to catch it as a signal that moves around Havana somewhere between morning and night.

TV Marti is seen by those who would visit the visa department at our Interests Section in Havana where they play videotapes of the program. Thus, it reaches those who have already decided they want to leave Cuba. We have plenty of evidence there are people who want to leave Cuba. I don’t know that we have to tell the Cubans the difference between living in the United States and in Cuba. People living in Cuba understand what is happening in Cuba.

Let me talk about the question of whether we want to spend money on something that is not effective. We broadcast TV Marti through an antenna that transmits from a transmission balloon 10,000 feet above Cudjoe Key in Florida. This is a picture of Fat Albert. Fat Albert is the aerostat balloon which we send up to 10,000 feet which broadcasts a line of sight signal to Cuba that is jammed at 3:30 in the morning. A Cuban television set can have snow. Fat Albert, of course, is not invincible. Television is easy to jam. TV Marti is easy to jam. TV Marti’s signal, according to experts, is able to be jammed by several off-the-shelf jamming devices like those used by foreign powers, the power of a light bulb. The antennas cost about $5,000 each to block the signals.

Why waste money when the message can get through by radio and people can’t get the message through by television signal? Transmitting by aerostat balloon is not perfect. They have to be taken up and down. They regularly require maintenance. They are affected by weather conditions.

TV Marti employs 55 people and keeps spending money even if the balloon cannot go up for various reasons. TV Marti did not broadcast from October 1999 to October 2000 because it lost its transmission balloon in a storm. Fat Albert got lost in a storm and they did not broadcast for an entire year. But they continued to operate at TV Marti at $27,000 a day.

This was at the time that a Fat Albert-type balloon had problems at Cudjoe Key. In the early 1990s, a Fat Albert balloon broke from its cable and landed in the Everglades 70 miles away where it was recovered by a team with a helicopter. And a balloon like Fat Albert escaped the TV Marti started, of course—and local fishermen caught it and tethered it to the bow of the boat. As the sun warmed up the blimp, it started to rise higher and higher and actually lifted the fishing boat out of the water and the poor folks in the fishing boat had to dive off the boat. So much for Fat Albert and so much for tethered balloons.

That is how we broadcast a blocked signal to Cuba. We have an aerostat balloon transmitting a jammed signal to Havana, Cuba, at 3:30 in the morning so people with a television set are unable to see a picture. And this is paid for with U.S. taxpayers’ funds.

One thing I am able to ask the question with a straight face, is this good public policy? Does it serve the taxpayers interests? With Radio Marti, the answer to that would be yes, Radio Marti works. The signal gets through to Cuba and people listen to it. I think it is an effective piece of public policy.

TV Marti has been supported, notwithstanding the fact it does not work, by this Congress year after year because even waste has a constituency. No more, in my judgment.

Let Congress, where we are wasting money, stop wasting money and invest that money in something that is important for this country. In this case, we have a crying need to better enforce our trade laws and to make sure we better enforce our trade law and have people monitoring its compliance with respect to other countries. It will be controversial because I propose abolishing the $10 million of funding for TV Marti. Again, let me say, since everyone will concede that virtually no one in Cuba sees the signals of TV Marti. As I mentioned before, Radio Marti is effective, but TV Marti is a colossal and tragic waste of taxpayers’ money. May I hope my amendment will be accepted as one that is thoughtful, useful, and one that will advance this country’s interests.

Mr. President, I am going to ask the amendment at the desk be called up at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN].

Mr. DORGAN. I have an amendment at the desk, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN] proposes an amendment numbered 1542. Mr. DORGAN. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The amendment is as follows: (Purpose: To increase funds for the trade enforcement and trade compliance activities of the International Trade Administration and to reduce funds for TV Marti.)

On page 44, line 1, strike "$347,090,000" and insert "$357,090,000".
On page 44, line 6, strike "$27,441,000" and insert "$32,441,000".
On page 44, line 7, strike "$42,859,000" and insert "$47,859,000".
On page 48, line 7, strike "and television".
On page 88, line 9, strike "and television".
On page 88, line 10, strike "$241,872,000" and insert "$14,872,000".

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, the amendment does exactly what I described with respect to the numbers.

That is all I have to say about the amendment. If there are others who wish to speak on it, I will be happy to entertain questions or engage in a discussion with them. If not, I ask consent to offer a second amendment to this legislation. I therefore ask unanimous consent to set aside the pending amendment so I may offer my second amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. HOLLINGS. Reserving the right to object, let me say a word. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DORGAN. Perhaps the Senator from South Carolina should seek recognition, after which I will seek to be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, the distinguished Senators from Florida, both of them—Senator GRAHAM, I am sure, will be here momentarily. I think he is on the way to the floor. I am double-checking that now.

The junior Senator, Senator BILL NELSON, was with the President in Florida. Maybe that is where Senator GRAHAM is also. But that is why they are not here to be heard. It is very vital to their interests to be heard.

Barring that, let me say defending Fat Albert has always been a role of this particular subcommittee. Time and again, since its institution over 15 years ago, we have had reports—the most recent one, of course, is the one referred to by my distinguished colleague from North Dakota—the Report of the Advisory Panel on Radio Marti and TV Marti.

While it found it might not be economically feasible, I read the finding:

TV Marti's broadcasts are technically sound and contain essential information not otherwise available to the Cuban people. Persistent Cuban jamming does limit viewership on the island, however. These broadcasts could prove vital to the United States' interests and to the welfare of the Cuban people in the future.

True it is, it comes on in the middle of the night, 3 in the morning, and then it goes on to early morning when it is generally picked up, except for that year's period when Fat Albert was down.

Our distinguished friend Larry King made himself famous. I used to be on his program when it was out on the west coast at 1 in the morning. It was only, what, 10 o'clock or 11 o'clock in California. But he came on at midnight up to 3 in the morning and got so famous that we can't get him off the air now. He is on the east coast at 9 o'clock every night. I don't think he should be off the air. I think it is wonderful programming.

So my emphasis is on the timing of it. We are going to have these debates back and forth on this particular amendment. As I understand the unanimous consent that is going to vote on the Smith amendment after a half hour equally divided, from 5 to 5:30. We are going to vote at 5:30 on the Smith amendment. Then we'll have the other votes with respect to the amendment on the floor from some of the distinguished Senator from Idaho relative to the International Crime Commission. The Fat Albert amendment, which the Senator from North Dakota has up, is subsequent thereto.

Having the floor, I cannot pass the opportunity, because as my friend from West Virginia carries around the Constitution, I carry around the record of waste. I heard the word "waste" but it was in regard to about $10 million. Let's talk about billions—$1 billion a day waste.

I hold in my hand the public debt to the penny, put out by the Department of Treasury as of this morning. We are already in the red this fiscal year, and which is to end now in about 3 weeks' time, $100 billion.

That didn't happen overnight. I guess $74 billion came from that tax cut that didn't help the economy—and the rest just followed suit. But that is another debate to be had at a different time.

But let's pay attention to the fact that the public debt is $100 billion. If anybody wants to get into this yin-yang about the public debt and the Government debt—yes, the public debt has gone down $59 billion but the Government debt has gone up $159 billion. So it is paying off your Visa card with your MasterCard. That gets people confused. But there is not any confusion on the actual figure put out by the Treasury Department of $100 billion.

Under President Bush's budget and under the CBO budget, both of them submitted within the last 3 weeks, they estimate a deficit ending the fiscal year, that is September 30—today is the 10th, 20 days from now, of $123 billion or $124 billion.

Consequently, since we ran a deficit last year of $23.2 billion, and we are going to run a deficit this year—where is the plus that everyone talks about? I have been on the floor since January saying: Wait a minute, there is not any surplus, there is not any surplus. But everybody was talking surplus to get that tax cut. Now they are all running around saying where has the money gone?

The big waste is the interest cost, when the debt goes up, up and away, from $5.674 trillion at the end of the last fiscal year, to now, this minute, it is at $5.774 trillion. The interest costs necessarily go up. As that interest goes up, the waste goes up.

Having talked about waste, let me say a word about the current account deficit, or the deficit in the balance of trade. This is a favorite subject of mine. It used to be just $17 billion. Monitoring that $81 billion deficit in the balance of trade with Japan, that $17 billion is down to $7 billion; or that $17 billion, monitoring the $94 billion deficit in the balance of trade with the People's Republic of China, is down to $7 billion.

There is a question about this particular International Trade Commission receiving more money. I have found from some of my colleagues' experience, that the International Trade Commission is a gimmick. The reason I call it a gimmick, advisedly, is through hard experience.

Time and again, corporate America has taken its trade violation case against Japan, against China etc., to the International Trade Administration in the Department of Commerce, and they have found a dumping case, that the goods are being sold at less than cost.

I have a Lexus. Let's say that Lexus costs $35,000. Go buy that same Lexus in Tokyo, Japan. Its cost is $45,000.

The Japanese article imported into this country is sold here for much less. Time and again it is proven that it is being sold at less than cost. Take the Kodak case. What happens? That is what I call a gimmick. Then they go for a fix before the Finance Committee of the Senate to find out, even though there is dumping, there is no injury. That is the question before the International Trade Commission. And they file for injury.

It is very interesting that there is now a steel case the President is disturbed about because over 20 mills have closed down in the last 18 months with a loss of 40,000 steel jobs. Since NAFTA, the State of South Carolina has lost 48,600 textile jobs, which are just as important as the steel jobs to the economy—for a round of hearing under President Kennedy. But time and again you go before the International Trade Commission, and that is why they don't enforce the laws.

There is no such thing as free trade. That was a pretty good wag at the end of World War II when we had the whole industry and we were in the cold war and wanted capitalism to defeat communism. We put in the Marshall Plan. We more or less gave up our manufacturing sector to the free world will prevail in the People's Republic of China.
We have lost 1 million manufacturing jobs in the last year in the United States of America. That is the problem that we have with respect to trade. There is no question that if we don’t begin to compete—as the distinguished Senator from North Dakota wants to do—we will be in a dangerous position. It brings us up, up, and away—we will finally learn the lesson that has already been given us.

In 1989, we passed a resolution to have hearings with respect to China on human rights. We went down to New Zealand, to Australia, and over to Africa and their friends. They never had a hearing on that resolution. About 5 months ago the United States was kicked off the Human Rights Commission. Sudan and Libya remained on the commission.

The atom bomb, the aircraft carrier, forget it. It is the economy, stupid. It is the industrial power, and your money in international affairs as well as domestic politics.

We don’t seem to realize that the name of the game out there is market share. The name of the game in the United States is standard of living. So we continue to add not just a minimum wage, Medicare, Medicaid, plant closing notices, clean air and clean water, safe workplace conditions, safe machinery, and on and on. Ergonomics was the last one. I am glad we voted it down. But they think up all kinds of things here for the high standard of living, and they don’t want to protect the economy of the United States.

The security of our Nation is like a three-legged stool. You have the values as a nation, the one leg: unquestioned. Everyone knows that America stands for indivisible rights and freedom. The second leg is the military: unquestioned. But the third leg is industrial capacity. Industrial capacity has been fractured. I am glad the distinguished Senator from North Dakota brought this subject up when we have just a few minutes.

What we should be doing is paying the bill. What we should be doing is getting competitive and enforcing the laws on the books.

Does the Senator from North Dakota want to set aside his amendment and go to another amendment?

The PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA: Mr. President, Jacob Javits, the distinguished Senator from New York, has introduced an amendment to the bill which I am trying to pass. The amendment is one of the many amendments which have been introduced. I am not interested in being soft on Castro, nor am I interested in being hard on the American taxpayer. So my point is very simple: Let’s get rid of that $10 million and move on and invest in something that really does strengthen this country and our manufacturing center. Let’s demand and insist that other countries with whom we have trade relationships own up to those trade relationships and begin to exhibit fair trade practices with this country.

In conclusion, let me say to my friend, the Senator from South Carolina, I have always enjoyed the Senator from South Carolina when he gets a full head of steam on the issue of international trade. He is interesting to listen to and knows his stuff. I hope he agrees with me as we add a number of people engaged in monitoring the compliance and requiring the enforcement of our trade laws with respect to other countries. Compliance and enforcement has decreased rather than increased, and as a result our trade deficit has dramatically ballooned.

Having said all that, let me now turn to my next amendment. I will be mercifully brief. I will offer this amendment because I think it is important to have this discussion and to pass a piece of legislation such as it.

This amendment deals with the Small Business Administration. Many of you will remember the disaster in the state of North Dakota—that the city of Grand Forks—the Red River Valley, in fact—experienced a very large flood in 1997. The city of Grand Forks, a city of nearly 50,000 people, had to be nearly completely evacuated. It is almost an unprecedented event in this country, in the last 150 years, to have a city of that size be nearly completely evacuated as a result of a flood. In the middle of that flood, a fire broke out in the downtown business section. So we had a raging flood of the Red River, that had required the evacuation of a city. Then, we had a roaring fire in the middle of that downtown that had been evacuated. You might remember on television the images of firefighters trying to fight a fire in the middle of a flood. It was really quite a remarkable sight.

That disaster, as other disasters in this country, prompted the Small Business Administration, and other agencies, including FEMA and HUD, to move money and send something on the basis of the handsome $10 million. We do that in times of disaster. Our Government programs are meant to say to people who are down and out, flat on their back, hit with a natural disaster: We are here to help you. Here is a helping hand. We want to help you during troubled times. So we did that.

One of the things we did was provide Small Business Administration low-interest disaster loans. There were some grants and other things as well, but the centerpiece was an SBA loan to a homeowner or a business that had been dramatically flooded and was in very difficult trouble.

We have had to do this at the time, and what I think many of you perhaps do not know in this Chamber, is that those loans by the SBA, including the disaster loans I am now discussing, were later packaged together and then sold to the highest bidder. Companies that are engaged to bring money together to invest in Government loans decide: We are going to buy a package of loans from the SBA. Then they bid 50 cents on the dollar or 60 cents on the dollar, and they buy the loans from the Small Business Administration.

I never thought much about that. I suspect most people have not thought about that. The problem is when the SBA sold those loans, you lose the potential for a second disaster for a family or business. Here is why.

The SBA, when it serviced those disaster loans itself, was always reasonably flexible in dealing with people. Oh, yes, we're going to pay those loans back. That is for sure. But if someone got stuck in a tough situation, the SBA would work with them. For example, if a business had to sell one asset and replace it with another asset that was more efficient and if the old asset had an SBA disaster lien on it, the SBA would say: Yes, we will work with you on that; we will transfer the lien. And the business was able to deal with that.

Now these disaster loans are sold to financial companies, and the financial companies say: We are sorry, we don't intend to transfer any liens. We are sorry, there is no flexibility here. We are not going to do what the SBA did for you.

I will give you an example—there are many—but I will offer an example of a woman in Grand Forks, ND. This is one of many letters I have received:

I am another flood victim trying to find a way to transfer the current loan I have from the SBA to another property. My SBA loan was sold to [blank—I will not name the company] and I've been told by them they don't transfer loans, period. So I am out of luck. Personal circumstances made it necessary for me to sell my property. And I need this low interest rate in order to afford another property to get back on my feet.

She had the disaster. The disaster still hurts, but something happened in her circumstance where she had to sell that property and replace it with another property because of family circumstances. In the past, the SBA always loans have said: Yes, we will work with you to transfer the lien, as long as we still have a lien on the property. The new investors—now that the loans have been sold—say: We're sorry, we won't change the interest rate on you. We won't change the terms of the loan. But there is no flexibility. Any changes at all might cost you a huge fee. And in some cases they say: There's no fee because there are no changes in the terms or flexibility.

So I have talked to the head of the SBA. I had a visit with him, in fact, on Friday of this past week. He understands there can be some problems in these areas. He told me he is going to try to put an advisory panel together to see how they work on individual cases. But I really believe we ought not be selling disaster loans. I do not object to selling other loans, if they want loan processing to be done by someone else in ordinary circumstances, but I do not believe disaster loans represent ordinary circumstances. I believe disaster loans ought to be serviced by the SBA. That way, the SBA controls and maintains the policies with respect to how these loans are treated.

My preference is that the SBA go ahead and sell other loans they want, except disaster loans. The SBA, I believe, has a responsibility and an obligation to service those disaster loans.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To prohibit the sale of disaster loans authorized under section 7(b) of the Small Business Act)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 1. PROHIBITION ON SALE OF DISASTER LOANS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no amount made available under this Act may be sold to any disaster loan authorized by section 7(b) of the Small Business Act.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I will not continue further. I have been appreciative of the efforts by the Senators from South Carolina and New Hampshire to allow me to offer these amendments. I know they will set us aside to proceed with other things on the bill.

I will continue to work with those in the authorizing committee on a couple of these issues. But it is my hope we will be able to consider both pieces of legislation favorably. I know one of them is—controversial; it should not be. As I said, even waste has a constituency, I guess, in Congress and perhaps in some parts of the country. But I think, to the extent we can—especially as we suffer an economic downturn in this country—when we see waste, we really ought to eliminate it. On behalf of the American taxpayer, we ought to take action. So my hope is the Senate will find its way to be supportive of both amendments I have offered.

Mr. President, I understand there will be a request to set these aside. I will be happy to work with the Chairman to find a way to see if we can find a way to clear one or both of these amendments as we proceed.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I want to hear momentarily from the Small Business Administration with respect to the handling of these disaster loans. The position of the distinguished Senator from North Dakota is very appealing. It sounds logical to me. On the other hand, think of it for a second, and you understand that SBA is selling these particular loans and taking the funds and leveraging even more SBA loans. Some of the wrongs that may have occurred with the private sector purchasing the loans, as well as other administrative problems, I want to hear from the Small Business Administration.

I am not trying to put it off, but I will learn quite shortly. I know there will be opposition to Fat Albert. There are a lot of people on a diet, but not Fat Albert.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, if the Senator from South Carolina will yield, my hope is that as he continues to consider this issue, he will be the last to come to the aid of Fat Albert, having heard my discussion about Government waste and knowing his position on Government waste. My hope is that he will be the last in line to be supportive of the aerostat balloon called Fat Albert, a balloon that broadcasts a signal no one can see at 3:30 in the morning.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, as I understand the pending business, and I ask the Chair to confirm, at 5 o'clock we come back to the Smith-Harkin amendment relative to compensation for POWs, because of some of the issues of war, with the time equally divided between Senator SMITH and Senator INOUYE.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I suggest the absence of a quorum, with the time to be equally allocated to both Senator SMITH and Senator INOUYE.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, it is my understanding we have the vote on the Smith amendment at 5:30. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. I say to my colleagues who are also here to speak, I will be very brief in deference to those on both sides who wish to speak.

I want to say what the Smith amendment does. It says:

None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Department of Justice or the Department of State to file a motion in any court opposing a civil action against any Japanese person or corporation for compensation or reparations in which plaintiff alleges that, as an American prisoner of war during World War II, he or she was under Japanese control.

All this says is that no funds in this act will be used to block that lawsuit.

That is it. We are not making any editorial comment on the merits or demerits of the lawsuit or who should win it. We are feeling personal feelings about who should win it. I believe the American POWs should win the lawsuit. That is up to the courts. All we want to do is let that process proceed.

I also want to make it very clear that this amendment does not abrogate the 1951 peace treaty with Japan. I repeat, it does not abrogate the 1951 peace treaty with Japan. It merely limits the State and Justice departments from interfering in the veterans’ lawsuits.

Why does it not do it? Because article 26 makes it very clear that if the Japanese should enter into any agreement that is more advantageous than the terms of the treaty. My colleagues will not lead us down this very dangerous path. If we violate, how will other countries begin to doubt our good word? Are the promises made by the United States good? Are the promises made by the United States?”}

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORZINE). The Senator from Hawaii is recognized.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I believe all of us will agree that the atrocities committed and the inhuman treatment of our war prisoners cannot be conditioned and cannot in any way be justified. We condemn those atrocities. It is not a question of Japanese corporations versus American heroes. What is involved is the Constitution of the United States. Article II makes it very clear that treaties are to be negotiated by the President or the executive branch of this country—not by any State or Territory, nor by any individual nor by the Senate. It will be by the executive branch. There is no question about that.

The document that my dear friend from New Hampshire has referred to which was arranged by our then-Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, should be praised and not condemned. I would like to explain.

I believe the references to this arrangement is a bit misleading. I say so most respectfully. This arrangement which was engineered by our then-Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles was simply a side agreement designed to address a domestic issue for the Dutch and thereby enabling the Dutch to sign on as a signatory to the treaty of peace in San Francisco. It does not in any way change the terms of the treaty. My colleagues from New Hampshire and Iowa have read the documents. But somehow we have slid over certain words. If I may, very carefully I will quote from their document.

However, the Japanese Government points out that under the treaty allied nationals will not be able to obtain satisfaction regarding claims which the Netherlands government suggests, there are certain types of private claims by allied nationals which the Japanese Government might well be willing to deal with.

We have somehow skimmed over that word “voluntarily.”

At this moment, Mr. President, if you wanted to sue me and I said to you, I voluntarily open myself up to you, we need not go to court, no one is going to fuss over that. If at this moment a prisoner of war of the United States should decide that he wants to sue the Japanese Government or a Japanese national notwithstanding the treaty, and if that Japanese national or the Japanese Government should say, yes, they voluntarily want to deal with us, we don’t have to break the treaty. But if the Japanese Government or the Japanese national should resist and challenge that claim, then I say the executive branch of the Government of the United States should have every right to intervene in such a suit because it does impact upon the treaty of San Francisco.

I think we should read this again:

There are certain types of private claims by allied nationals which the Japanese Government might wish voluntarily to deal with.

This amendment is not necessary. If you want to sue the Japanese Government or its national at this moment, and the Government of the Netherlands has said to you, yes, they will voluntarily enter into an agreement with you to compensate you for whatever claims you may have, no one is going to complain. But this amendment will without question impact upon the treaty. It will abrogate the treaty. Then other countries will begin to doubt our good word. Is our word good? Are the promises made by the United States good? We are constantly criticizing other nations for violating, if I may say, provisions of treaties.

This is very simply an attempt on the part of the United States to violate a provision of a treaty. I hope that my colleagues will not lead us down this very dangerous path. If we violate, how can we be critical of other nations violating provisions of their treaties? So I hope this matter will be settled. And accordingly, if I may, Mr. President, I move to table the Smith amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion is premature while time remains. Mr. INOUYE. I assumed the Senator had finished.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Senator HARKIN wishes to speak.
Mr. INOUYE. I am sorry.

Mr. HARKIN. How many minutes do we have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Six minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, first of all, we are not abrogating any treaties with this amendment. How could we abrogate a treaty with an amendment that simply says: No moneys can be expended by the State Department Attorney General to go into court opposing our POW cases against private Japanese companies? That is all we are saying. Again, we have done this time and time again in the history of this country. This is not something new.

We have the power to do that. We have the power of the purse strings. We are not abrogating the treaty. We are just saying that the U.S. Government cannot go into court using taxpayer money to oppose the POWs who are filing these lawsuits.

If the court upholds the treaty and says that they cannot get anything, that they have already been compensated, well, that’s the end of it. I guess they can appeal it to the Supreme Court of the United States, but if the courts find, as my friend from Hawaii says, that this treaty holds and would be abrogated, and we can’t do that, then that is the end of the case, but at least the POWs will have had their day in court.

That is all we are asking with this amendment. We are not abrogating any treaties; we are simply trying to uphold the rule of law and our own private citizens’ rights.

Let’s keep in mind whom we are talking about: 30,000 men who served their country in unbearable conditions in Japanese prisoner-of-war camps. Now we are talking about at least 700 of these same from my own State of Iowa—seeking some long-delayed justice. They have gone to court to demand compensation from the Japanese companies that used them as slave laborers.

And who were these companies? Mitsubishi, Mitsui, Nippon Steel. These are not tiny, little companies that are going to go broke because they might have to pay these people some back wages and compensation for what they endured during those war years.

I think it is unconscionable that our own State Department has intervened in the courts to keep them from pressing their case. That is not right. It is not fair.

So, No. 1, this amendment does not, in any way, undermine the treaty. Let the court decide that. All we are saying is, the State Department cannot use our taxpayers’ money—the very taxes paid by these former POWs—to go into court to keep them from seeking redress.

No. 2, this does not violate a separation of powers. We have, time and time again, used the power of the purse strings to say that the Attorney General cannot intervene in certain court cases. That is nothing new. We have done that before.

No. 3, they have said the POWs have already been compensated by the United States. I talked to three POWs from Iowa who were slave laborers in Japan during the war, and not one of them got paid. So I do not know whom they are talking about, but they did not get a dime.

No. 4, it has been said this opens up the United States to lawsuits from other countries. Again, the United States was known to treat our POWs more decently. Many of the German POWs who worked here in the cotton fields were indeed paid for their work when they worked in the United States as POWs.

Again, we can get wrapped up in all these details, but let’s keep in mind what we are talking about. We are talking about men who survived on a cup of rice a day. The one person I knew in Iowa, who is still alive, went from 160 pounds down to 68 pounds in 3 years working in a Japanese auto parts factory and then in the lead mines in Japanese occupied territory.

Again, these survivors and their families should at least give them their day in court. That is all we are asking. Mitsubishi, they have a lot of money. Nippon Steel, they can hire the best lawyers if they want to argue this case.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record the number of former POWs in various States who would be affected by this class action suit: 1,454 in California, 200 in Arizona, 200 in Colorado, 150 in Georgia, 150 in Illinois—I am not going to read the whole list, but I ask to have that list printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

STATE BY STATE LISTING OF SURVIVORS AND THEIR FAMILIES WHO WOULD BE AFFECTED BY THE CLASS ACTION SUIT

Arizona: 200.
California: 1,454.
Colorado: 200.
Georgia: 150.
Illinois: 150.
Louisiana: 140.
Maryland: 1,154.
New York: 240.
Virginia: 189.
Oregon: 200.
Texas: 972.
Wisconsin: 106.
Ohio: 106.
North Carolina: 100.
Pennsylvania: 100.
Massachusetts: 100.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, again, let’s keep in mind that all the Smith-Harkin amendment says is: Do not use taxpayers’ money to have the State Department come into court to fight our former POWs who are seeking compensation from Japanese companies that never paid them. That is all we are asking. If the judge and the Supreme Court of the United States find that they cannot abrogate that treaty, that is the end of it, but at least give them their day in court.

Let’s not turn our backs on them. They suffered long enough. It is time they get their just compensation.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, just a unanimous consent request.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator Wayne Allard be added as a co-sponsor to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The sponsors’ time has expired.

The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, as I indicated earlier this afternoon, it was certain that this debate would become a highly emotional one. A few of us were involved in that ancient war, and we know what the Bataan Death March was all about. We do not condone that; we condemn it. We are not here to justify or provide a rationale for the actions taken by the Japanese; far from it. But we are here to maintain the integrity of our country and our treaties.

Yes, we have provided provisions in the appropriations bill stopping our Departments from suing on certain issues, but never on a treaty. This one will break a treaty.

So, Mr. President, I hope my colleagues will go along in support of my motion to table.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, before the motion is made, I have one more unanimous consent request.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator Ben Campbell also be added as a co-sponsor to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Who yields time?

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, what is the time situation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The opposition has 2 minutes remaining.

Mr. INOUYE. I yield back the remainder of my time and move to table the Smith amendment.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be. The question is on agreeing to the motion. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from Missouri (Mrs. CARKHAN), the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. EDWARDS), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KERRY), the Senator from Florida (Mr. NELSON), the Senator from Michigan (Ms. STABENOW), and the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. TORRICELLI) are necessarily absent.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Arizona (Mr. KYL) and the Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN) are necessarily absent.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, let’s keep in mind that all the Smith-Harkin amendment says is: Do not use taxpayers’ money to have the State Department come into court to fight our former POWs who are seeking compensation from Japanese companies that never paid them. That is all we are asking. If the judge and the Supreme Court of the United States find

The motion was rejected.

question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 1538) was agreed to.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. NICKLES. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. I rise very briefly to give my colleagues some bad news and some good news. The bad news is the house of my colleague, Senator JEAN CARNA-
good news. The bad news is the house orator from Missouri.

We have the amendment by the Senator from Idaho, Mr. CRAIG, relative to the International Criminal Court.

There being no further debate, as I understand it, I am waiting to check with the leadership on both sides of the aisle on how they intend to continue, but we will meet early in the morning and I am asking all Senators, please, if they have any amendments, get ready and let us bring them up and let us see if we can move along like we did today.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The
Senator from Connecticut.

AMENDMENT NO. 1538

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I want to be heard on the Craig amendment, unless there is some reason why I cannot.

Is that in order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut is recognized on the Craig amendment.

Mr. DODD. I thank the President, and I thank my colleagues.

Mr. President, I would like to speak in opposition to the amendment offered by my good friend from Idaho. I do so because it goes back a long time. As a matter of revealing past history, I take great pride in the fact that the person at whose desk I now stand and in whose chair I now sit from time to time was the executive trial counsel at the Nuremberg trials. I was about a year old, a year and 2 months old, when my father went off to Nuremberg as a young lawyer and became an executive trial counsel at the end of those historic trials at the end of World War II.

I remember vividly growing up with my father and others of his generation arguing most strongly that had there been in the 1920's or 1930's a criminal courts of international justice the tragedies of World War II might have been avoided.

He never said it would have been absolutely because obviously that would be an impossibility to predict, but there was no place, there was no forum in which the civilized world could gather, in a sense, to denounce or to indict a madman such as Adolf Hitler.

As a result of the world's silence, in many ways the 1930's, the Nuremberg trials in the latter part of that decade, of course, the events of the first part of the 1940's occurred.

So after World War II, there were many highly responsible individuals in this country and elsewhere who argued most strongly for the establishment of such a court. In fact, it was the United States that led the way to esablish a United Nations system. It was the Eisenhower administration.

In fact, some of the strongest conservatives of that era argued very strongly that it was in the interest of the United States, in our own self-interest, as the leader of free peoples around the globe to have some place where we could indict those who would commit the horrors and tragedies of human rights violations.

So it is somewhat ironic—in a way sadly so—that we find ourselves at the outset of the 21st century the United States apparently leading the charge to see to it that no such organiization should ever come into existence.

Let me quickly say to my colleagues,
I do not think all support configuration or proposal of an international criminal court. It is tremen-doously flawed as a proposal. It is very much in our interest, as a nation, to be at the table to help fashion this court.

Ultimately we may not support it.
We may try to see to it that it does not become established. However, there is a great risk that it will become established. In the absence of our participation, it could end up being a lot like to support. We are working with our men and women in uniform in this country, for the interests of the United States in an ever-shrinking global community.

I am deeply concerned, as I am now told the administration is in favor of this amendment as previously proposed. As I understand it, the Craig amendment bars the United States from using funds in support of the International Criminal Court or to continue to participate in any Preparatory Commission which is working to finalize matters relating to the Court.

I think this is a dangerous amendment in many ways. I have proposed language which we have not yet considered in the Foreign Relations Committee dealing with one of the major concerns being raised about the estabishment of a criminal court; that is, the vulnerabilities of our men and women-in-uniform.

The legislation that I have drafted is gathering wide-range support. The administration itself finds an awful lot which would like to support. We are working with them in something to meet their support.

The adoption of this amendment, however, is a major setback, in my view, in this effort. As currently drafted, the Craig amendment forecloses one of the options the Bush administration is currently reviewing with respect to how to remain actively engaged internationally in support of the rule of law.

It is my understanding that the Bush administration strongly opposes, in fact, what our good friend and colleague from Idaho is suggesting with this amendment. Under existing law, the administration is currently prohibited from expending funds in support of the Court. That is the law today. That was adopted in 1999. The law has left the door open for the Bush administration to determine whether or not it would like to participate in the work of the Preparatory Commission. It makes all the sense in the world to be so involved. The structure of the Preparatory Commission is such that it is charged with finalizing the details of the implementing language of the Court in resolving outstanding definitions, ambiguities, and difficulties with the Rome statute.

The Craig amendment closes the door with respect to the possibility of U.S. participation in the Preparatory Commission. This, in my view, is very shortsighted since there are a number of issues which we would want to and should work to resolve or clarify, even if we ever decide to become a party to the treaty.

Clearly, I am hopeful President Bush will choose to stay part of the Preparatory Commission process, but the decision as to whether or not to do so is up to him, not up to the Congress. Frankly, to prohibit the President from participating in the Preparatory Commission is probably a violation of the President’s constitutional treaty power to conduct negotiations with other states on behalf of our own Nation. Think this amendment sends a terrible signal just as the international community gathers in New York to listen to President Bush address the United Nations for the first time since coming to office. What message can come from yet another U.S. unilateral rejection of internationalism? Perhaps they will take it as a signal that we in the United States no longer intend to be leaders in the international advocacy of the rule of law and human rights.

How ironic, how truly ironic that is. How quickly we seem to have forgotten the Holocaust and the international community’s decision to convene the Nuremberg trial of the leading Nazi war criminals following World War II, or that this war crimes tribunal was largely an American initiative. Justice Robert Jackson’s team drove the process of the drafting of the indictments, the gathering of the evidence, and the conducting of that extraordinary trial. The trial was a landmark in the struggle to deter and punish crimes of war and genocide, setting the stage for the Geneva and Genocide Conventions.

The surrender of Slobodan Milosevic to the International Criminal Tribunal for Yugoslavia is a strong reminder that war crimes are not a thing of the distant past. At Nuremberg Justice Jackson said: It is common to think of the crimes as against American citizens who might be brought before foreign tribunals even if we are not a party to them. This bill calls for active U.S. diplomatic efforts to ensure that the ICC functions properly and maintains the assertion of U.S. jurisdiction over American citizens and bars the surrender of U.S. citizens to the ICC once the U.S. has acted.

The Bush administration is currently reviewing its options with respect to the Rome statute and with respect to the ongoing preparatory work that will make the Court operational only once 60 parties have ratified it. If the Craig amendment is adopted, it will foreclose the Bush administration from opting to stay engaged as a participant in the work of the Preparatory Commission in order to protect U.S. interests and interact with friends and allies on these matters.

Let there be no doubt; at some date in the future an international criminal court will come into existence, 60 states have already ratified the treaty, including all members of the European Community. For the United States to be totally on the sidelines as the last details of procedures are hashed out is clearly contrary to our national self-interest. There may also be times when, on a case-by-case basis, the United States may want to assist in the prosecution of foreign war criminals, particularly those cases where the crimes are against American citizens.

We just debated, ironically, a proposal dealing with the war crimes of World War II. I think but for the treaty of San Francisco, it would have been bolder. At 00 in the persuasive arguments of Dan Inouye and others, we believe treaties are important and should not be violated. How ironic that we find ourselves in this particular matter, depriving ourselves of the opportunity to be able to fight hard where war crimes are committed, and, in fact, U.S. citizens may be the victims because we will not allow the option to be involved in the Preparatory Commission of such a court.

But why does that legislation of this kind would erase America’s Nuremberg legacy by ensuring that the United States will never again join the community of nations to hold accountable those who commit war crimes and genocide? A study door forever on the International Criminal Court and bar the United States from being engaged, ironically, may be read by some as a signal that the United States accepts immunity from the world’s atrocities. What a terrible possibility.

It is a sad day, as we embark on the 21st century, that the U.S. Senate, the great bastion of debate on international matters of such importance and weight, might vote to deprive us of even being involved in the Preparatory Commission considering an international court of criminal justice where human rights and genocide matters be debated, those who commit those crimes can be brought to the bar of justice.

I urge my colleagues to think more carefully about this vote. I accept there are problems with the Rome treaty as currently written, but I do not support it. If the Rome treaty came to this Chamber as written, I would vote against it. But that is not the case. There is work to be done. We ought to be engaged in that work. That is why I introduced legislation before the August recess to protect U.S. interests until we can successfully work out our differences on this issue.

I hope the Foreign Relations Committee will hold hearings on this legislation as soon as possible.

This bill, the American Citizens Protection and War Criminal Prosecution Act of 2001—the American Citizens Protection Act, would both protect America’s Nuremberg legacy while at the same time safeguarding the rights of American citizens who might be brought before foreign tribunals even if we are not a party to them. This bill calls for active U.S. diplomatic efforts to ensure that the ICC functions properly and maintains the assertion of U.S. jurisdiction over American citizens and bars the surrender of U.S. citizens to the ICC once the U.S. has acted.

The Bush administration is currently studying this and other approaches to issues related to the ICC. We should permit that review to continue and give the President the flexibility to decide how best to serve U.S. interests in this important area.

The world is a global village in this new millennium. The United States must strike the right balance between protecting our citizens and our men and women in the armed forces who may be traveling or deployed abroad, and preserving United States leadership and advocacy of universal adherence to principles of international justice and the rule of law.

For those reasons, I urge my colleagues to reject the Craig amendment and let existing law stand with respect to limitations on funding in support of the ICC at this time.

This is no time for us to be walking away from a responsibility which we have shouldered proudly for the past half century.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. ALLEN, Mr. President, I rise to speak on the Craig amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. ALLEN, Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment of our colleague, Senator Craig of Idaho, of which I am a cosponsor. I listened very carefully to the eloquent words of the Senator from Connecticut, Mr. Dodd, and his arguments in opposition to this amendment. In my view, the proposed International Criminal Court is a threat to the sovereignty of the United States and our individual God-given rights. That treaty, which would establish a permanent international criminal court, creates a number of undesirable, unprecedented challenges for the people of the United States. The ICC will have the power to investigate and prosecute a series of international criminal offenses such as crimes against humanity, heretofore enforceable only in national courts or tribunals of limited application which have broad international support, such as the Nuremberg trials, which Senator Dodd brought up.

Obviously, everyone here thinks the Nazis should be prosecuted. We do support, obviously, the tribunal that is trying Milosevic right at this moment. The International Criminal Court in The Hague is the proper approach, which does not impinge upon our sovereignty.

Senator Dodd, in arguing against this amendment, did mention he would oppose the Rome treaty as written if we were going to be voting on it at this moment. But if the Senate were to ratify this ill-advised treaty, this International Criminal Court would have the authority to try to punish Americans for alleged offenses abroad or in the United States, and that Court will be entirely unaccountable for its actions.

This International Criminal Court, in fact, would be in a position to punish individual American officials for the foreign policy and military actions of the United States and would not offer even minimum guarantees afforded in the Bill of Rights to any defendants before it.

At the heart of the ICC is an independent prosecutor accountable to no one. The international prosecutor is empowered to enforce justice as that prosecutor sees fit. If the international prosecutor believes that a local trial in our U.S. courts has been inadequate, he or she is authorized to indict an alleged human rights abuser and demand a new international trial. The international prosecutor may think a local pardon or international trial. The international prosecutor must be responsible for its use to those subject to that power. In our country, the Government derives its just powers from the consent of the people. That is foundational and fundamental.

The values of the ICC's prosecutor and judges are unlikely to be the same values of those of the United States. The Rome treaty has been embraced by many nations with legal and political traditions dramatically different from those of our own. This includes such states as Cambodia, Iran, Haiti, Niggeria, Sudan, Syria, and Yemen, all of which have been implicated in torture or extrajudicial killings or both.

Even our closest allies, including European states following the civil law system, begin with a very different assumption about the powers of courts and the rights of the accused. Nevertheless, if it is permitted to be established, the ICC will claim the power to try, including U.S. service personnel and officials acting fully in accordance with U.S. law and our interests. The Court itself would be the final arbiter of its own power, and there would be no appeal from its decisions.

I urge my colleagues to join me in exercising this right and supporting this amendment to protect the sovereignty of the American people. I yield the floor.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to voice my strong opposition to the Craig amendment to the International Criminal Court (ICC). While I have great respect for the Senator from Idaho, I believe it is unnecessary, damaging to the cause of international justice, and would further erode our standing with our European allies.

Even the Bush administration, which has no intention of sending the Rome treaty to the Senate for its advice and consent, opposes the Craig amendment.

Since the Rome treaty was approved over two years ago, it has been signed by more than 120 nations including all of the European Union members, all of our NATO allies except Turkey, as well as Israel, and Russia.

Joining our friends and allies, President Clinton signed the Rome treaty late last year, a decision which I wholeheartedly supported, as the ICC represents an important step in bringing to justice those responsible for committing the most heinous crimes.

Throughout the negotiations on the ICC, the United States supported everything it wanted and was able to obtain important safeguards to prevent American soldiers from being subjected to politically-motivated actions by the Court.

There is room for improving the treaty, and that is precisely why I oppose the Craig amendment. The Craig amendment would prevent our diplomats from being at the table during the ongoing Preparatory Commissions on the ICC.

While this may make some feel good, the practical effect would be self-defeating. It would put us in a far worse position to advance U.S. interests within the ICC and obtain additional protections we already obtained operate effectively, and make sure that the Court serves its intended purpose of prosecuting crimes against humanity.

I do support the International Criminal Court. But, again, this vote is not about whether you support it or not. We already have a prohibition against the expenditure of U.S. funds for the "use by or support of" the ICC, unless the U.S. ratifies the treaty, which it is not going to do anytime soon.

The issue is whether we will participate in discussions on the procedures of the court, or whether we are going to tie the hands of the administration by sending the United States from even sitting at the table.

And, both the Clinton and Bush administrations have stated that they would not submit the Treaty to the Senate for consideration.

I urge my colleagues to join me in exercising this right and supporting this amendment to protect the sovereignty of the American people.
and over 80 countries outside of Europe that have signed the Treaty but not yet ratified.

Because the reality is that the Court will come into existence and have jurisdiction over non-parties, our best strategy is to remain engaged with the ICC to shape a Court that best represents our interests and values.

Irrespective of one’s views on the ICC, it makes no sense to bury our heads in the sand and hope for the best. That is precisely what the Craig amendment will do and one of the major reasons why I strongly oppose it.

The other reason that I oppose the Craig amendment is the long-term harm that it could have on U.S. efforts to prosecute war criminals. Year after year, Senator MCCONNELL and myself, alternating as chairman and ranking member of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee, have struggled to find enough money to help support the efforts of the international tribunals for the former Yugoslavia, Rwanda, and Sierra Leone.

Moreover, we may now be asked to contribute millions of dollars to support a tribunal to prosecute crimes of genocide by the Khmer Rouge in Cambodia, if the tribunal there meets international standards of justice.

The negotiations on these tribunals often takes years and involves endless wrangling over costs, over the laws and rules that will be applied to the proceedings, and over whether to even establish an ad hoc tribunal in the first place.

One of the primary goals of the ICC is to have a permanent forum to prosecute these heinous crimes wherever they may occur, and our allies have embraced the ICC for precisely this reason.

Once the ICC comes into existence, and our allies and the Security Council will no longer support establishing new ad hoc tribunals—which at that point could be unnecessary and duplicative—what will the United States do?

No longer help with the prosecution of war criminals, because we do not support the ICC? That would be ridiculous for a country whose Bill of Rights is a beacon of hope for victims of human rights abuses around the world.

Clearly, we all want to protect U.S. interests within the ICC. This amendment does not do that. In fact, it makes things worse by not even allowing our negotiators to be in the room while important issues are being discussed and could ultimately hinder our efforts to prosecute war criminals.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I checked with several Senators interested in this amendment as well as its proponent, Senator CRAIG. If there is no other question, we need to move these amendments along as best we can.

I think we are ready for a voice vote. I urge the question on the Craig amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment in the second degree.

The amendment (No. 1537) was agreed to.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I urge the question on the underlying amendment, as amended.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment, as amended.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the yeas and nays be vitiolated on the amendment in the first degree.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Note: Details may not add to totals due to rounding. Totals adjusted for consistency with scoring conventions. For enforcement purposes, the budget committee compares the Senate-reported bill to the Senate 302(b) allocation. The 2002 budget resolution includes a "firewall" in the Senate between defense and nondefense spending that will become effective once a bill is enacted increasing the discretionary spending limit for 2002. Because the firewall is for budget authority only, the appropriations committee did not provide a separate allocation for defense outlays. This table combines defense and nondefense outlays together as "general purpose" for purposes of comparing the Senate-reported outlays with the subcommittee's allocation.

MOUNTAIN VIEW HOUSE

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I would like to briefly mention to Senator HOLLINGS an EDA project that is of significant importance to employment in a section of New Hampshire that has traditionally experienced high levels of unemployment. The project is the Mountain View House. This project was inadvertently left out of the Senate Report, but it would be my hope that the Economic Development Administration would consider an application for the Mountain View House within applicable procedures and guidelines. and provide a grant if warranted. Will you join with me in urging the EDA to consider this vital initiative in New Hampshire?

Mr. HOLLINGS. I would certainly join with the Senator from New Hampshire in recognizing and supporting the Mountain View House project. I will work with my colleagues during conference to include this project in the committee report.

INS INSPECTORS AT PORT OF DETROIT

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I would like to thank the chairman for addressing in this bill the severe INS staffing shortages at certain land border ports of entry. I would also like to thank him for recognizing and addressing the severe shortage of INS inspectors at Detroit’s port of entry on the U.S.-Canadian border, which includes the Ambassador Bridge and the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel. I am pleased this bill provides $25,408,000 for 348 additional land border inspectors and specifically identifies the Detroit bridge and tunnel port of entry as being understaffed by a whopping 151 people. I appreciate the efforts of this Committee to address the significant INS staffing shortage on the Detroit-Canadian border and that a portion of the increase in INS inspectors funded by this bill will be allocated to address the Detroit shortfall.

I wish to seek clarification from the chairman of the Commerce-Justice-State Appropriations Subcommittee as to whether a significant portion of the funding provided for additional INS inspectors by this bill will be allocated to address the Detroit shortfall. The Ambassador Bridge is the most heavily traveled bridge and the most heavily traveled tunnel on the U.S.-Canadian border. Total traffic at the bridge has nearly doubled over the past 14 years. According to data compiled by the Bridge and Tunnel Operator’s Association, more than 12,000,000 auto and commercial vehicles crossed the Ambassador Bridge and more than 9,500,000 auto and commercial vehicles passed through the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel.

Mr. STABENOW. Mr. President, I too would like to express my thanks to the distinguished chairman for increasing INS staffing levels to address the past under funding of land border inspectors, and to also seek clarification concerning the Port of Entry. The committee notes that the Detroit Port of Entry, which includes the Ambassador Bridge and the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, requires a total of 175 personnel yet is currently staffed at only 23 inspectors. That leaves the port understaffed by 151 inspectors, the third worst staffing level at a U.S. port of entry as a percentage of total workload. This is a serious concern, particularly because the Detroit Port is the nation’s busiest northern border crossing, experiencing unrelenting traffic congestion and delays. I appreciate the committee having recognized the Port of Detroit as one of the nation’s ports of entry most in need of these additional inspectors and look forward to more efficient INS inspections at the Detroit-Canada border once these additional inspectors are in place. Is it the intent of the chairman, or what I have learned, that additional INS inspectors would go to the Detroit Port of Entry?

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, the Senators from Michigan are correct. This committee has addressed the problems faced at the Port of Detroit and its shortfall of 151 INS land border inspectors, and it is the committee’s intent that a significant number of these additional INS inspectors funded in our bill will help address the severe shortage of INS inspectors at this port of entry.

CLEARMADD, UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, I have previously brought to your attention the important capabilities of the Center for Leadership in Education and Research in Mass Destruction (CLEARMADD). This Center, to be supported by a consortium of institutions including the University of Georgia, the Medical College of Georgia, and the Savannah River Ecology Laboratory (SREL), has available substantial expertise regarding the threat posed domestically from weapons of mass destruction (WMD). In recent years, concerns have increased about the potential for terrorists or foreign states to use biological, nuclear or chemical weapons to inflict mass casualties in the United States. As a nation, we are only just beginning to develop an adequate response capability in dealing with an attack. The consequences of the use of WMD in the United States would be catastrophic, particularly in terms of the ability of our health care system to respond. While other programs have focused on research and training for medical responders, there is a significant need for additional training of health professionals in the field. Inspectors assembled with CLEARMADD have significant capability to provide such curriculum development and training for these so-called second responders.

I understand that a total of $364 million is included in the Senate version of the Fiscal Year 2002 Commerce-Justice-State Appropriations bill for additional INS officers for the Office of State and Local Domestic Preparedness Support (OSLDFS) of the Department of Justice to assist with training in the U.S. to respond to potential terrorist attacks. This is an increase of more than $100 million over funding for this purpose in the current fiscal year. It is my view that the programs and expertise of CLEARMADD fit well within the OSLDFS mission and I believe funds should be found within the Fiscal Year 2002 budget of OSLDFS to take advantage of CLEARMADD’s expertise to help develop model curricula and training programs to assist local health care professionals.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I appreciate the gentleman from Georgia, Mr. CLELAND, bringing CLEARMADD to my attention. There is a significant need for training of health professionals in the event of a chemical or biological attack. I am pleased that this bill has included additional INS inspectors for this next fiscal year. I wish to seek clarification from the chairman as to whether a significant number of these additional INS inspectors would go to the Detroit-Canada border. Is it the intent of the chairman, or what I have learned, that a portion of the increase in INS inspectors for this next fiscal year would go to the Detroit-Canada border? I am pleased this bill proposes to provide $25,408,000 for 348 additional land border inspectors.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, the Senators from Michigan are correct. This committee has addressed the problems faced at the Port of Detroit and its shortfall of 151 INS land border inspectors, and it is the committee’s intent that a significant number of these additional INS inspectors funded in our bill will help address the severe INS staffing shortages on the Detroit-Canadian border.

Mr. CLELAND. I thank the Senator for his support and attention to this matter and I look forward to working with you in the future on this issue of border security.
entry last year. Hartsfield received no new positions. There are other notable disparities. For example, Atlanta conducts 70 percent more inspections than Boston, but has only 30 percent more inspectors. The number of passengers processed per inspector at Hartsfield is 35,782. In comparison, Miami has a higher ratio of inspectors per passenger than Atlanta, and, as a consequence, the average inspector in Miami processes 10,000 fewer passengers each year. Hartsfield, however, inspects less passengers than does Atlanta, but has twice as many inspectors. And because Hartsfield generates between $18 million and $19 million in user fees each year with less than $5 million spent at Hartsfield, there is concern that the Atlanta Airport is subsidizing inspections at other airports in the Nation.

In addition, the airlines serving Hartsfield are planning major expansions in their international service. Furthermore, recent census data reflects tremendous population growth in metro Atlanta over the past 10 years. This dynamic population increase, second only to that of New York, will cause a demand for international travel. Given the time it takes to hire and train new inspectors, it is critical that INS address the shortfall at Hartsfield now, or we will lose our ability to attract international passengers and the economic development of the region will suffer.

Mr. HOLLINGS. As chairman of the Commerce Committee, I am very aware of the increase in the number of flight delays at the Nation’s airports. We have held numerous hearings on the increase in domestic and foreign travel and it is clear that additional INS agents are needed at the Nation’s busiest airports. United States airports have experienced significant growth over the last several years and additional INS agents are needed to address the increased demand not only at the Atlanta airport but throughout the Nation’s airports, including in my home State of South Carolina. I will continue to work with Senator Cleland to ensure that the nation’s business airports, Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport, receive the additional INS agents that it needs.

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, I thank you for your support and attention to this matter and I look forward to working with you in the future on this issue of national importance.

VOTE EXPLANATION

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. President, I was unavoidably detained and therefore was unable to cast my vote on the motion to table the Smith-Harkin amendment No. 1538 to H.R. 2500. Had I been present, I would have voted against the motion to table.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period for morning business with Senators permitted to speak therein for a period not to extend beyond 10 minutes each.

THE CRIME VICTIMS ASSISTANCE ACT OF 2001

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, on March 26, 2001, my friend Senator KENNEDY and I introduced S. 783, the Crime Victims Assistance Act of 2001. This legislation represents the next step in our continuing efforts to afford dignity and recognition to victims of crime. Among other things, it would enhance the rights and protections afforded to victims of Federal crime, establish innovative new programs to help promote compliance with State victim’s rights laws, and vastly improve the manner in which the Crime Victims Fund is managed and preserved.

Senator KENNEDY and I first introduced the Crime Victims Assistance Act in the 105th Congress, and we reintroduced it in the 106th Congress. Like many other provisions in this bill, however, this much-needed legislation took a back seat to the debate over a proposed victims’ rights constitutional amendment. I have on several occasions noted my concern that we not dissipate the progress we could be making by focusing exclusively on efforts to amend the Constitution. Regrettably, I must note again that the pace of victims legislation has slowed noticeably and many opportunities for progress have been squandered.

This is yet another opportunity to make significant progress toward providing the greater voice and rights that crime victims deserve. The Crime Victims Assistance Act of 2001 enjoys broad support from victims groups across the country, including the National Center for Victims of Crime, the National Organization for Victim Assistance, and the National Association of Crime Victim Compensation Boards. Regardless of their views on the proposed constitutional amendment, these organizations recognize that our legislation can make a difference in the lives of crime victims right now.

When I spoke about the Crime Victims Assistance Act earlier in the year, I expressed the hope that Democrats and Republicans, supporters and opponents of a constitutional amendment, would join me in advancing this bill through Congress. This should be a bipartisan effort, and in this closely divided Senate, I will do my part. It is a bipartisan effort. I want to thank our eight Democratic cosponsors: Senators CORZINE, DASCHLE, FEINGOLD, HARKIN, JOHNSON, KERRY, MURRAY, and SCHUMER. And I want once again to urge my friends on the other side of the aisle to step up to the plate and support this important victims’ legislation.

When it comes to recognizing the rights of victims of crime, there is no majority, no minority, and no middle ground. As Americans, we share the common desire to help victims and provide them the greater voice and rights that they deserve. The Crime Victims Assistance Act proposes some basic, commonsense reforms to Federal crime victim’s laws, and would help provide the resources necessary to assist the states in giving force to their own locally-tailored statutes and constitutional provisions. What a shame if this legislation stalls again this year, because we could not work together on an issue on which we share so much common ground.

EXPORT ADMINISTRATION ACT

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I think it is important to state my reasons for voting against S. 149, the Export Administration Act. I do so because I think there is too much deference to commercial interests at the expense of limiting exports which may threaten national security.

I cast my vote late in the rollcall where there were 77 votes in favor of the bill. When there were 77 votes in favor of the bill, I thought my vote was decisive so that it might have been a matter of having a bill which vastly improved the current situation, which is the absence of legislation. Then I might have voted differently. I think the number of negative votes are important as a protest signal that this subject should be monitored closely and perhaps reviewed sooner rather than later.

For example, my concerns about the elevation of commercial interests over potential national security risks are illustrated by the foreign availability and mass market status this Act provides controlled items. The foreign availability component of the act would make the U.S. Government unable to control the sale of items that are also manufactured by other countries. Such lack of control would allow U.S. firms to sell anthrax to Saddam Hussein because of anthrax’s dual-use in vaccine production. Additionally, the mass-market status in this bill would enable export of controlled items without a license if the item were mass produced for different industrial uses. An example of this mass-production would be titanium and carbon fibers that can be used in the manufacture of both golf clubs and also ballistic missiles.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
September 10, 2001
These are only illustrations of problems which, I believe, should yet be corrected in conference or in later legislation.

Mr. JOHNSON. I am very pleased that S. 149, the Export Administration Act of 2001, which the U.S. Senate by such an overwhelming bipartisan vote of 85–14, is a major step forward in addressing the serious threat to our national security posed by the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction—nuclear, chemical, and biological—and their means of delivery through the exportation and use of dual-use technologies.

I believe that government’s first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation, we can change hearts and minds as well.

RECENT ELECTIONS IN EAST TIMOR

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate the people of East Timor on the success of their recent Constituent Assembly elections.

On August 30, 2001, the people of East Timor voted to elect a new Constituent Assembly. That Assembly will begin meeting almost immediately to adopt a new constitution and to establish the framework for future elections and a transition to full independence next year. The vote was conducted on the second anniversary of the violent 1999 independence referendum. In that earlier referendum, nearly 98 percent of eligible voters risked their lives to vote for independence from Indonesia. Last week, the people of East Timor demonstrated their continuing commitment to democracy by turning out again in force to elect the women and men who will lead them now to full democracy and independence. Final voter turnout in this recent election was reported at more than 91 percent, in a territory-wide poll that was both peaceful and orderly.

After 25 years of occupation by Indonesia, and a much longer period of colonization by Portugal, many ordinary men and women walked for hours and lined up before dawn to vote for the first time for their own political leaders. Clearly, many difficult decisions and fears now lie ahead for the 24 women and 64 men who have been entrusted by their election to the Constituent Assembly to establish a sound legal framework for independent governance. It is my fervent hope that the same spirit of civic participation and tolerance that guided this most recent election will continue to guide the elected representatives of the Constituent Assembly as they establish a new democratic system to promote the cause of peace, independence, and prosperity for East Timor.

The United Nations must also be credited for organizing a successful election and establishing a firm foundation for future independent governance. As U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan has noted, it is in many respects the conviction with which the people of East Timor have embraced democracy that continues to strengthen the commitment of the world community to their cause. I commend the United Nations Administration in East Timor, UNTAET, for their dedication in implementing this important mission and for their success in organizing this recent election.

anniversary. It is an honor and a privilege to rise today on the floor of the United States Senate to recognize this institution’s longevity and its role in preserving the history of Springfield and Greene County.

Some twenty-five years ago I was able to play a role in the founding of this museum while I was serving as Governor of Missouri. The Museum was then called the Bicentennial Historical Museum in honor of our Nation’s 200th birthday. Over the years, the name has changed but the goal and purpose of the museum has remained the same, preserving the history and heritage of the city of Springfield and Greene County. History is our window to the past and helps us to remember just how far we have come as a nation and as a community. The museum contains permanent exhibits beginning with the earliest settlement in the region, continuing on through the Civil War, and into the twentieth century. The museum also changes exhibits throughout the year which examine other areas of Greene County’s history.

The museum is a private, not-for-profit organization that is open to public at no charge. The museum is funded through private contributions, memberships, grants, and gift shop sales. The staff, management, and volunteers who operate this facility are to be congratulated for their tireless efforts and innovation which make the museum an important part of the community. The museum is a valuable tool for students and teachers to learn the historical significance of the area.

The History Museum for Springfield-Greene County is a valuable asset to the Springfield area. I ask that the Members of the Senate join me in recognizing and honoring the twenty-fifth anniversary of the History Museum for Springfield-Greene County.

NATIONAL ASSISTED LIVING WEEK

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, today I draw the Senate’s attention to National Assisted Living Week. The National Center for Assisted Living is sponsoring National Assisted Living Week this week to highlight the significance of this service and the hope that it can provide seniors.

Assisted living is a long term care alternative for seniors who need more assistance than is available in retirement communities, but do not require the heavy medical and nursing care provided by nursing facilities. Approximately one million of our Nation’s seniors have chosen to opt into assisted living in this country. This demonstrates a tremendous desire by seniors and their families to have the kind of assistance that they need in bathing, taking medications or other activities of daily living in a setting that truly becomes their home.

This year’s theme of National Assisted Living Week is “Sharing the Wisdom of Generations,” and it is intended to recognize the value of sharing insights and experiences between assisted living residents, their families, volunteers and assisted living staff. I think that it is appropriate because it highlights the variety of options assisted living can provide to meet different needs.

Oregon has led our Nation in the concept of assisted living. My State spends more State health dollars to provide assisted living services than any other in our Nation. Assisted living has taken different directions in different States, and Oregon’s choices for consumers is important to provide security, dignity and independence for seniors.

Assisted living will become even more important for seniors and their families as our nation experiences the demographic tsunami of aging baby boomers. It is important for us to continue to support options that allow seniors and their families a choice of settings in order to assure that they get the level of care that they need.

CONGRATULATING LT. STEVE YOUNG

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I am honored to stand before you today and congratulate Lieutenant Steve Young, his family and friends on his well-deserved nomination as President of the National Fraternal Order of Police, FOP. As you may know, the 86 year-old Fraternal Order of Police is the world’s largest organization of sworn law enforcement officers, improving the working conditions and advocating the safety of its 298,000 members in over 2,000 local lodges throughout the United States.

I am confident that with his 25 years of membership in the FOP and his current position as a Lieutenant in the Marion Police Department in my State of Ohio, Lt. Young is an outstanding choice to lead the nation’s largest law enforcement organization. Prior to being named National President, Lt. Young has proudly and effectively served as both National Vice President and Ohio’s State President.

Further, he has become something of an expert in helping to ensure police officers’ pension plans throughout the country. He also helped to create the Ohio Labor Council to improve the effectiveness of negotiations between management and labor in police forces, a model that has since been utilized in 14 other States.

I know that Lt. Young will use his new position to further ensure fair and equal treatment to our nation’s true heroes, police officers, on the job and to expand the FOP’s involvement throughout the Nation. I wish Lt. Young the best of luck and send my congratulations to him once again here before Congress. I know he will do an excellent job.

THE HEART FAILURE SOCIETY OF AMERICA

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, the Heart Failure Society of America (HFSA) is a non-profit professional organization headquartered in St. Paul, MN, that represents the first organized effort by heart failure experts from the Americas to provide a forum for all those interested in heart failure research and patient care.

Today, the Heart Failure Society of America is convening here in our Nation’s capital with over 2,000 cardiologists, cardiac surgeons, internists, family practitioners, nurses, social workers, pharmacists, nurses, pharmacists and other allied health care professionals who treat heart failure patients for the HFSA 5th Annual Scientific Meeting. At this forum, preeminent professionals will unveil and review the latest developments in heart failure research and clinical practice.

Heart failure is a progressive condition in which the heart muscle weakens and gradually loses its ability to pump enough blood to supply the body’s needs and is a cause of common but underrecognized. Heart failure affects nearly 5 million Americans. As more people survive heart attacks and are being left with weakened hearts, heart failure is the only major cardiovascular disorder on the rise. An estimated 400,000 to 700,000 new cases of heart failure are diagnosed each year. The number of deaths in the United States from this condition has more than doubled since 1979, averaging 250,000 annually. In comparison, the death rate from coronary heart disease has dramatically dropped statistically over a similar time period. An estimated $8 to $15 billion is spent each year on the costs of hospitalization due to heart failure, which is twice the amount spent for a cancer or HIV/AIDS. While there is currently no known cure for heart failure, new treatment approaches may help patients live more normal and fulfilling lives and benefit from a decreased risk of hospitalization.

The HFSA was founded in 1994 by a small, dedicated group of academic cardiologists who recognized that heart failure was on the rise, but that there was no venue for researchers, trainees and clinicians to share ideas about preventing and treating heart failure. While there is currently no known cure for heart failure, new treatment approaches may help patients live more normal and fulfilling lives and benefit from a decreased risk of hospitalization.

The Heart Failure Society of America is seen by government, industry and the medical community as the authoritative organization on heart failure. The Senate first commended the HFSA and its work in the area of heart failure in February of last year, designating the week surrounding Valentine’s Day each year as “National Heart Failure Awareness Week.” These medical professionals are dedicated to enhancing the quality and duration of people’s lives.
We are pleased to welcome this group of distinguished individuals to Washington and recognize their extraordinary public service.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE HONORABLE DENNIS W. ARCHER

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I rise today to acknowledge the achievements of an accomplished jurist, distinguished public servant and committed civic leader from my home state of Michigan, the Honorable Dennis Wayne Archer, Mayor of Detroit. On October 11, 2001, Mayor Archer will be inducted as a Knight of Charity by the Pontifical Institute for Foreign Missions (PIME Missionaries) at the 30th Knights of Charity Award Dinner in Dearborn, Michigan. This award is a fitting tribute for a man who has dedicated his life to the service of others.

The Knight of Charity Award is presented each year to men and women who clearly exemplify “Unity in Family Life with Person-to-Person Charity.” This award is given to those whose actions promote the ideals of charity, friendship, love and interfaith and intercultural collaboration.

Mayor Archer spent the first five years of his career teaching learning disabled students in the Detroit Public School system. During this time, Mr. Archer was also a student, studying and attending classes after work to earn his law degree. Mr. Archer quickly established himself as one of the finest legal minds in Michigan and in 1985 he was appointed Associate Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court by Governor James Blanchard. The next year he was elected to an eight-year term, which he served with distinction.

Elected to the Detroit City Council in 1993, Dennis Archer soon became known nationwide for the innovative approach he brought to city government. Near the end of his second year in office, Detroit was under the leadership of Mayor Archer’s predecessor. Mayor Archer has successfully reduced crime, balanced budgets, lowered taxes, improved public services and attracted over $14 billion in new investment, with another $3 billion projected for this year. Mayor Archer has received numerous honors in recognition of his achievement, including being named President of the National League of Cities in 2001, Public Official of the Year in 2000 by Governing magazine, one of the 25 most dynamic Mayors in the United States in 1999 by Ebony magazine.

As a native Detroitian, I can personally attest to Mayor Archer’s leadership and his commitment to those he serves. Through his hard work, dedication and creativity, he has truly improved the City of Detroit and the lives of those who live there. I know that my Senate colleagues will join me in congratulating Mayor Archer on being named a Knight of Charity.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS
By Mr. Hagel:
A bill to protect the property rights guaranteed by the fifth amendment to the Constitution by requiring Federal agencies to prepare private property taking impact analyses and by allowing expanded access to Federal courts; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, America's property owners are increasingly pressured by more and more burdensome government regulations and restrictions. Federal agencies should comply with state and local laws on property rights, and ensure that our Nation's policies are implemented with minimal impact on property owners. Today, I am reintroducing legislation that would help enforce the U.S. Constitution's guarantee of private property rights.

The Private Property Rights Act would help protect land owners in two ways. First, the bill would require the Federal Government to conduct an economic impact analysis prior to taking any action that would infringe or restrict the use of private property. For the first time, the government would be forced to determine in advance how its actions will impact the property owner.

Second, when government does take private property or restricts land use, the bill would allow landowners to appeal. If they choose, the property owner could appeal any Federal taking of their property in their home state, rather than Washington, D.C.

This bill has won the endorsement of the Nebraska Cattlemen, the Nebraska Farm Bureau, and the Defenders of Property Rights. Their letters of support are being submitted for the RECORD.

The Private Property Rights Act is common-sense legislation that will return some justice to the system by reining in regulatory agencies, as well as giving the property owner a voice in the process. This is the fair thing to do. This is the right thing to do.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that additional material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the additional material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows. September 6, 2001.

Hon. CHUCK HAGEL, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR HAGEL: The Nebraska Cattlemen applaud you for reintroducing property rights protection legislation, The Private Property Rights Act of 2001, in the 107th Congress. The Association supported similar legislation (S. 246) in the 106th Congress and extends their support for your efforts again this year.

The Private Property Rights Act of 2001 addresses a phenomenon of federal and state government growth over the past three decades—regulatory programs that creep into areas where they were never intended to impact at their creation. Wetland regulations and endangered or threatened species designations are just two examples of how "regulatory creep" has begun to affect almost every agricultural activity. A little closer to home, recent efforts by EPA to identify wetland "buffer zones" in the Platte River may only be overshadowed by more recent efforts to list the prairie dog as a species threatened with extinction.

Considering these examples, it has never been more important for federal agencies to be required to conduct an analysis of the effects of their actions on property rights. As found in The Private Property Rights Act of 2001, agency actions critical to public safety or land management would be exempt from this requirement. Finally, and most critically, the legislation provides affected property owners an opportunity to seek relief from regulatory takings result in a taking of private property rights through a federal district court in their state—instead of forcing them into the Federal Claims Court in Washington, DC.

The Private Property Rights Act of 2001 is a commonsense measure to protect property rights of landowners. For years farmers and ranchers have seen their property rights erode through various government actions and regulations. The problem is only exacerbated by the recent emphasis placed on providing individuals and public entities full and equitable compensation for the loss of the use of property due to government actions.

Your bill would take a giant step forward by providing some protection for landowners' property rights. By requiring federal agencies to prepare private property taking impact analyses and by allowing expanded access to Federal courts, the bill would certainly help prevent or reduce the loss of private property rights. Government should be forced to determine in advance how its actions would impact the property owner and this bill would put those necessary requirements in place.

In Nebraska, the Endangered Species Act and wetland regulations have decreased the use of land on which privately held acres by farmers and ranchers. This legislation would go a long way towards putting some fairness back into the system by making agencies think twice before they act on rules that impact the private property rights of landowners by giving property owners a voice in the process.

Nebraska farmers and ranchers appreciate your support for private property rights and your introduction of this bill.

Sincerely,

BRYCE P. NEIDIG, President.

Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation,

Hon. Chuck Hagel,
Russell Senate Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR HAGEL: On behalf of the Nebraska Farm Bureau, I would like to offer our strong support for your bill titled "Private Property Rights Act of 2001!"

As Nebraska's largest farm organization, we have been a long time supporter of legislative efforts to protect property rights for landowners. For years farmers and ranchers have seen their property rights erode through various government actions and regulations. The problem is only exacerbated by the recent emphasis placed on providing individuals and public entities full and equitable compensation for the loss of the use of property due to government actions.

Your bill would take a giant step forward by providing some protection for landowners' property rights. By requiring federal agencies to prepare private property taking impact analyses and by allowing expanded access to Federal courts, the bill would certainly help prevent or reduce the loss of private property rights. Government should be forced to determine in advance how its actions would impact the property owner and this bill would put those necessary requirements in place.

In Nebraska, the Endangered Species Act and wetland regulations have decreased the use or value on many privately held acres by farmers and ranchers. This legislation would go a long way towards putting some fairness back into the system by making agencies think twice before they act on rules that impact the private property rights of landowners by giving property owners a voice in the process.

Nebraska farmers and ranchers appreciate your support for private property rights and your introduction of this bill.

Sincerely,

BRYCE P. NEIDIG, President.

Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, and grants for other purposes under certain circumstances; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation amending the Consolidated Rural Community Development Act to allow the Secretary of Agriculture to approve changes to the original purpose for which a USDA Rural Development grant or loan was made when requested by a recipient.

The Rural Community Advancement Program, as established by the Consolidated Rural Community Development Act, consists of separate accounts to provide funding for rural community facilities, rural waste and water utilities, and rural business and cooperative development. In the 1996 Farm Bill, we provided State Directors of Rural Development with the authority to transfer up to 25 percent of funds allocated to one of those accounts for a State in a fiscal year to any of the other accounts for which funds were allocated for the same account in that fiscal year. This flexibility allows a State to adjust funding among the accounts to meet changing circumstances. For example, in a given year a State may have greater demand for financial assistance for rural community facilities than for rural business development, and the authority we granted in 1996 would allow a State the flexibility to address that change in demand.

The flexibility provided by the 1996 Farm Bill, however, extended only to prospective funding. It did not cover changes to loan and grant purposes needed by a community after a loan or grant has been made. Any post-award change to the grant or loan purpose would require return to USDA of any unspent grant or loan funds, or reimbursement to the Federal Government for its proportionate financial interest in any property acquired with the loan or grant funds.

Communities in Pennsylvania, Oregon, and Oklahoma have faced this dilemma when they have sought to provide space in grant-funded industrial parks to businesses that were too large to qualify under the terms of their Rural Business Enterprise Grant. But that otherwise would have been eligible for a Rural Development Business and Industry loan. An Indiana community has unused property in its grant-funded industrial park that it now would like to use for a critically needed police station and water tower. USDA has no authority to allow any of these communities to change the authorized use for the land for which the grant or loan originally was made.

The measure I offer today would allow the Secretary to approve these types of requests. Under the bill, a community could request that the Secretary to approve a change in the rural development purpose for previously awarded grants and loans to another rural development purpose authorized by the Con Act. A change in purpose could be requested only for property acquired with such funds, or for the proceeds from sale of property acquired with such funds.

This measure would not require the Secretary to approve requests. It simply allows the Secretary to be fair and reasonable in considering requests by communities to alter the original purpose of a grant or loan. The beneficiary of such a change would not reap any financial windfall from such a change at the expense of the Federal government. The Federal government would retain its financial interest in any property used for the new purpose approved by the Secretary.

We all know how the needs of communities change over time due to economic development and demographic change. This measure allows the Secretary to be fair and reasonable in considering requests by communities to alter the original purpose of a grant or loan in response to such changes. I am hopeful my colleagues will join me in supporting this legislation.

By Mr. CRAIG:

S. 1414. A bill to provide incentives for States to establish and administer periodic testing and merit pay programs for elementary and secondary school teachers, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Parent and Teacher Accountability in Teacher Testing Act of 2001. We spent much of the spring debating the Federal Government’s role in education, and in the end we passed a bill which gives a lot of money to the education establishment. Now, however, it is time to work on a policy that addresses what we can do for parents and teachers, and how we can let them keep some of their money so they can start improving education from the ground up.

This bill has many important provisions, but the most important is the tax credit for parents and relatives to use for education expenses. They can use this credit for any expenses they incur when they spend money on their children’s education, such as school supplies, computers, private tutors, or other such expenses. This credit can also be used by parents who home school as well as to help offset tuition at private schools. This is not a voucher program nor is it a government subsidy for teacher testing programs, as long as those states also have a continuing education requirement as part of their teacher certification process. It also has a provision which clarifies any Department of Education regulations and says that federal funds can be used for merit pay systems and for teacher testing programs. If States and school districts find the need to use their funds for these programs, the Federal Government should not tie them up in red tape and prevent them from doing the things we see them do. We all know that local educators have a much better view of the needs they encounter, and we in Washington... should give them as much freedom as possible to meet those needs.

By enacting this bill, the U.S. Senate will be making a firm commitment to helping parents and teachers achieve education success. Parents in this country need to have as much freedom as possible to choose the ways in which their children will be educated, and this bill is a modest step in that direction. To complement the efforts of parents, though, we need to have teachers who are the most qualified and the most able to meet the needs of the children parents send them to every day. Encouraging states to implement merit pay and teacher testing, and allowing teachers to have a credit for their educational expenses, will go a long way towards making this a reality.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record. There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the Parent and Teacher Achievement Act of 2001.

SEC. 2. STATE INCENTIVES FOR TEACHER TESTING AND MERIT PAY.

(a) AMENDMENT.—Subpart B of part IV of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6601 et seq.) is amended—

By Mr. HATCH (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, and Mr. DODD):

S. 1415. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to enhance book donations and literacy; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation designed to clarify and enhance the charitable contribution tax deduction for donations of excess book inventory for educational purposes. I am pleased to be joined in this effort by my good friends and colleagues Senators BAUCUS and DODD. This proposal would simplify a complex area of the current law and eliminate significant roadblocks that now stand in the way of corporations and others who wish to donate books to schools, libraries, and literary programs, where they are much needed.

Unfortunately, our current tax law contains a major flaw when it comes to the donation of books that are excess inventory for publishers or booksellers. The tax benefits for donating such books to schools or libraries are often better than the cost of sending the books to the landfill. And, since it is generally cheaper for a company to simply send the books to the dump, rather than go through the trouble of finding donees, and of packing, storing, and shipping the books, it often ends up being more cost effective and easier for companies to truck the books to a landfill or recycling center.

While there are provisions in the current law where a larger deduction is available for the donation of excess books, many companies have found that the complexity and uncertainty of dealing with the requirements, regulations, and possible Internal Revenue Service challenges of the higher deduction serve as a real disincentive to making a contribution.

This is a sad situation, when one considers that many, if not most, of these books would be warmly welcomed by schools, libraries, and literacy programs.

The heart of the problem is that under the current law, the higher deduction requires that the donated books be used only for the care of the needy, the sick, or infants. This requirement makes it difficult for schools to qualify as donees and also frequently prohibits libraries and adult literacy programs from receiving such deductions. This is because these schools, libraries, and literacy programs often serve those who are not necessarily above the age of 18. Furthermore, complicating the issue, the valuation of donated book inventory has been the subject of ongoing disputes between taxpayers and the IRS. The tax code should not contain obstacles that provide incentives that could be utilized to help America's adults and children.

I hope our colleagues will join us in supporting this bill. It is wrong for our tax code to encourage book publishers to send books to the landfill instead of to the library. Let’s correct this problem.

S. 1415

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. CONTRIBUTIONS OF BOOK INVENTORY.

(a) In General.—Section 170(e)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to certain contributions of ordinary income and capital gain property) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

""(D) SPECIAL RULE FOR CONTRIBUTIONS OF BOOK INVENTORY FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES."

"(i) CONTRIBUTIONS OF BOOK INVENTORY.—In determining whether a qualified book contribution is a qualified contribution, subparagraph (A) shall be applied without regard to whether or not—"

"(I) the donee is an organization described in the matter preceding clause (i) of subparagraph (A), and"

"(II) the property is to be used by the donee solely for the care of the ill, the needy, or infants.

"(II) QUALIFIED BOOK CONTRIBUTION.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term 'qualified book contribution' means a charitable contribution of books, but only if the contribution is to an organization—"

"(I) described in subsection (I) or (III) of paragraph (6)(B)(i), or"

"(II) described in section 501(c)(3) and exempt from tax under section 501(a) which is organized primarily to make books available to the general public at no cost or to operate a literacy program."

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to contributions made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise with my colleagues Senator HATCH and Senator BAUCUS to introduce a measure to the Senate, and I ask my colleagues to join Senators HATCH, BAUCUS, and myself in supporting this bill.

STATEMENTS ON SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 158—HONORING THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS AND UNFAILING SPIRIT OF WOMEN IN THE 20TH CENTURY

Mr. CLELAND (for himself, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. COCHRAN, and Mrs. MURRAY) submitted the following resolution: Which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

Whereas women now serve in all ranks and all branches of the Armed Forces as pilots, intelligence specialists, drill instructors, specialists, technicians, soldiers, airmen, and marines on the battlefields, and as sailors aboard Navy and Coast Guard ships at sea;

Whereas the 20th century saw women in new roles as justices of the Supreme Court, members of the President’s Executive Cabinet, and Members of Congress;

Whereas women’s contributions have become irrefutably as formal as federal legislators, Governors, judges, Cabinet officers, county commissioners, mayors, city council members, and directors of Federal, State, and local agencies;

Whereas women made significant strides in the 20th century, yet as we enter the 21st century women continue to face inequality; whereas women who read on their own do better on both math and reading tests;

Whereas women continue to be underrepresented in science and technology careers;

Whereas women are often paid only 72 cents for each 1 dollar paid to men for the same work;

Whereas women are disproportionately affected by poverty and elderly women are more specifically more dependent on the social security program under title II of the Social Security Act;

Whereas women can reflect upon the opportunities created during the 20th century and look toward even greater accomplishments in the 21st century: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) honors and commends the accomplishments and unflinching spirit of women in the 20th century;

(2) recognizes the crucial roles of women in our communities as mothers, wives, and family caregivers;

(3) recognizes the disparity in equality that women still face;

(4) reaffirms the need to prevent and punish violence against women so that women may be safe from domestic violence, sexual assault, elder abuse, and violence in the workplace;

(5) recognizes that women should have equal access to health care and inclusion in research and clinical trials;

(6) recognizes the need for equality in vocational and academic education;

(7) recognizes that the pay gap should be closed;

(8) commits to preserving the social security program under title II of the Social Security Act and the Medicare program under Title XVIII of such Act; and

(9) pledges to make the 21st century the ‘Century of Equal Opportunity for Women’.

Whereas women should be celebrated for the unparalleled strides made during the 20th century in education, professional careers, legal rights, politics, military service, religion, sports, and self-reliance;

Whereas in the 20th century, women in the United States were denied their constitutional right to equal protection of the law to vote;

Whereas the women’s suffrage movement, the largest grassroots political movement in the Nation’s history, involved approximately 2,000,000 women over the 70 years of petitions, referenda, speeches, national and State campaigns, demonstrations, arrests, and hunger strikes;

Whereas women should have the right to vote throughout the United States with the ratification of the 19th amendment to the Constitution in 1920, and by the end of the century women were voting in larger numbers than men in some national elections;

Whereas women represent an increasing percentage of the population awarded college and post-secondary degrees but to also address specific areas where further improvements are needed in order to ensure that women are given equal opportunity.

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) honors and commends the accomplishments and unflinching spirit of women in the 20th century;

(2) recognizes the crucial roles of women in our communities as mothers, wives, and family caregivers;

(3) recognizes the disparity in equality that women still face;

(4) reaffirms the need to prevent and punish violence against women so that women may be safe from domestic violence, sexual assault, elder abuse, and violence in the workplace;

(5) recognizes that women should have equal access to health care and inclusion in research and clinical trials;

(6) recognizes the need for equality in vocational and academic education;

(7) recognizes that the pay gap should be closed;

(8) commits to preserving the social security program under title II of the Social Security Act and the Medicare program under Title XVIII of such Act; and

(9) pledges to make the 21st century the ‘Century of Equal Opportunity for Women’.

(6) recognizes that women should have equal access to health care and inclusion in research and clinical trials;
women may have not just more opportunities, but equal opportunities. The measure is supported by the American Association of University Women. I, along with co-sponsors Senators CLINTON, COCHRAN, and MURRAY, urge our colleagues to oppose this resolution, and to recognize the full context of the \"Century of Equal Opportunity for Women.\"

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

None of the funds made available by this Act may be used for any United States undertaking when: (1) the United Na- tions Security Council has not taken any action; or (2) such undertaking will involve United States Armed Forces under the command or operational control of a foreign national; and any funds not submitted to the President a recommenda- tion that such involvement is in the national security interests of the United States and the President has not submitted to the Congress such a recommendation.

SEC. 611. (a) None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be used to transfer any Federal employee, including any Federal employee of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, to any non-Federal entity engaged in combating terrorism and antiterrorism activities.

(b) The recommendations in subsection (A) and (B) of section 618 of that Act shall continue to apply during fiscal year 2002.

SEC. 612. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be used to provide any special dress or other benefits to any law enforcement officer engaged in an investigation or prosecution as a reward for such service, unless such special dress or other benefits have been determined not to be prohibited from being furnished by an individual or group providing such services.

SEC. 613. Any costs incurred by a depart- ment or agency in any fiscal year in response to personnel actions taken in response to funding reductions included in this Act shall be considered as an equitable adjustment and not result- ing from personnel actions taken in response to funding reductions included in this Act.

SEC. 614. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act or any other provision of law may be used for: (1) the implementa- tion of any tax or fee in connection with the international transfer of firearms, ammunition, or any other property that is not prohibited by Federal law; or (2) the payment of any fee available to any commercial or private entity engaged in any commer- cially published information or material to a person when such information or material is not required or necessary for the purpose of gaining either immigrant or non- immigrant visas, or both, consistent with the Secretary’s determination under section 283(d) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, to citizens, subjects, nationals, or resi- dents of countries that the Attorney General has determined deny or unreasonably delay accepting the return of citizens, subjects, na- tionals, or residents under that section.

SEC. 615. (a) None of the funds appropriated pursuant to this Act or any other provision of law may be used for: (1) the implementa- tion of any tax or fee in connection with the international transfer of firearms, ammunition, or any other property that is not prohibited by Federal law; or (2) the payment of any fee available to any commercial or private entity engaged in any commer- cially published information or material to a person when such information or material is not required or necessary for the purpose of gaining either immigrant or non- immigrant visas, or both, consistent with the Secretary’s determination under section 283(d) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, to citizens, subjects, nationals, or resi- dents of countries that the Attorney General has determined deny or unreasonably delay accepting the return of citizens, subjects, na- tionals, or residents under that section.

SEC. 616. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be used to support any domestic security or national security activity, including any activity that does not require and result in the de- struction of any identifying information submitted by or on behalf of any person who has been determined not to be prohibited by any other provision of law, all authorities, liabilities, funding, personnel, equipment, and real property associated with the Office of State and Local Domestic Preparedness Support, the National Domestic Preparedness Office, the Executive Office for Intelligence and Counterintelligence, and such components that relate to domestic counterterrorism and antiterrorism activities in the Office of Intelligence Policy and Review as are necessary to carry out the requirements of this Act, funds appropriated or otherwise made available to the departments and agencies of the United States; the President has determined not to be prohibited from being furnished by an individual or group providing such services.

SEC. 617. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be used to support any domestic security or national security activity, including any activity that does not require and result in the destruction of any identifying information submitted by or on behalf of any person who has been determined not to be prohibited from being furnished by an individual or group providing such services.

SEC. 618. Hereafter, none of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be used to transfer any Federal employee, including any Federal employee of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, to any non-Federal entity engaged in combating terrorism and antiterrorism activities.

SEC. 619. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be used to transfer any Federal employee, including any Federal employee of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, to any non-Federal entity engaged in combating terrorism and antiterrorism activities.

SEC. 620. Section 504(a)(16) of the Com- merce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996 (110 Stat. 1321-55; Public Law 104-134) is amended by striking "bicentennial" and inserting "two hundred years".

SEC. 621. The requirements of section 312(a)(3) of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act shall not apply to funds made available by section 2201 of Public Law 106–246.

SEC. 622. (a) Section 203(i) of the Act entitled "An Act to improve a governing inter- national agreement between the United States and the Republic of Poland, and for other purposes," approved November 13, 1998, is amended by striking "2001" and inserting "2006".

(b) Section 203 of such Act, as amended by subsection (a), is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"(j) Not later than December 31, 2001, and every 2 years thereafter, the Pacific State Marine Fisheries Commission shall submit to the Committees on Commerce, Transportation, and Related Agencies Appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes; as follows:

SEC. 623. (a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(2) On April 30, 2001, 139 countries had signed the Rome Statute and 30 had ratified it. Pursuant to Article 126 of the Rome Statute, the Statute will enter into force on the first day of the month following the 60th day following the date on which the 60th country deposits an instrument ratifying the Statute.

(3) Any American prosecuted by the International Criminal Court will, under the Rome Statute, be denied procedural protections to which all Americans are entitled under the Bill of Rights to the United States Constitution, such as the right to trial by jury.

(4) Members of the Armed Forces of the United States serve the full protection of the United States Constitution wherever they are stationed or deployed around the world to protect the vital national interests of the United States. The United States Government has an obligation to protect the members of its Armed Forces, to the maximum extent possible, against criminal prosecution following the end of their military service.

(5) In addition to exposing members of the Armed Forces of the United States to the risk of international criminal prosecution, the Rome Statute creates a risk that President and other senior elected and appointed officials of the United States Government may be prosecuted by the International Criminal Court for national security or drug-related matters, or by the International Criminal Court for acts of terrorism, preventing the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, and deterring aggression. The claimed jurisdiction of the International Criminal Court over citizens of a country that is not a state party to the Rome Statute is a threat to the sovereignty of the United States under the Constitution of the United States.

(b) PROHIBITION.—None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be available for cooperation with, or assistance or other support to, the International Criminal Court or the Preparatory Commission. This subsection shall not be construed to apply to any other entity outside the Rome treaty.

SA 1537. Mr. CRAIG proposed an amendment to amendment SA 1536 proposed by Mr. CRAIG to the bill H.R. 2500, making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes; as follows:

Strike line 2 and all that follows, and insert the following:

None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act shall be available for cooperation with, or assistance or other support to, the International Criminal Court or the Preparatory Commission. This subsection shall not be construed to apply to any other entity outside the Rome treaty.

SA 1538. Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire (for himself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. WARNER, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. CAMPBELL, and Mr. JOHNSTON) proposed an amendment to the bill H.R. 2500, making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the appropriate place, add the following:

SEC. 8. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Department of Justice or the Department of State to file a motion in any court opposing a civil action against any Japanese person or corporation for compensation or reparations in which the plaintiff alleges that, as an American prisoner of war during World War II, he or she was used as slave or forced labor.

SA 1539. Mr. WELLSTONE (for himself, Mr. HELMS, Mr. KOHL, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. SAKAKI) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill H.R. 2500, making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 41, between lines 22 and 23, insert the following:

SEC. 112. Section 6 of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1990 (Public Law 101–200; 8 U.S.C. 1423 note) (as amended by Public Law 106–415) is amended by striking "18 months" each place such term appears and inserting "36 months".

SA 1540. Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill H.R. 2500, making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2002, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 46, line 9, strike "$341,000,000," to remain available until expended," and insert "$454,000,000, to remain available until expended," on all principal payments of direct loans or guarantees made available by the North Country Council to be used to provide assistance (such as a revolving loan fund for small businesses and, in coordination with public and private colleges and universities, providing job training) to the towns of Berlin and Gorham, New Hampshire and businesses and individuals that have been significantly affected by the closure of and layoffs at the American Tissue mills in Berlin and Gorham, New Hampshire.

On page 87, line 7, strike "$31,000,000" and insert "$27,000,000.

SA 1541. This subsection shall not be construed to apply to any other entity outside the Rome treaty.

(1) the Government of the Republic of Korea over many years has supplied aid to the Korean semiconductor industry enabling that industry to be the Republic of Korea’s leading exporter;

(2) this assistance has occurred through a coordinated series of government programs, policies, and actions including preferential access to credit, low-interest loans, government grants, preferential tax programs, government inducement of private sector loans, tariff reductions, and other measures;

(3) in December 1997, the United States, the International Monetary Fund (IMF), other foreign government entities, and a group of international financial institutions assembled an unprecedented $58,000,000,000 financial package to prevent the Korean economy from declaring bankruptcy;

(4) as part of that rescue package, the Republic of Korea agreed to put an end to corporate cronynism, and to overhaul the banking and financial system;

(5) Korea also pledged to permit and require banks to run on market principles, to allow and enable bankruptcies and workouts to occur rather than bailouts, and to end subsidies;

(6) the Republic of Korea agreed to all of these provisions in the Stand-by Arrangement with the IMF, with the September 9, 1997, agreement, and take immediate such other actions as are necessary to assure that the improper bailout by the Republic of Korea is stopped, and its effects fully offset or reversed;

(7) the relationship between the United States and Republic of Korea has been and will continue to be harmed significantly by the bailout of a major exporter of products from Korea to the United States;

(8) the Republic of Korea has now engaged in a massive $5,000,000,000 bailout of Hynix Semiconductor which counterbalances the commitments the Government of the Republic of Korea made to the IMF, the World Trade Organization and other agreements, and the understandings and certifications made to Congress under the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999:

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
The following named officer for appointment to the grade indicated in the United States Marine Corps Reserve under Title 10, U.S.C., Section 1220:

To be colonel

JAY B. STEPHENS, OF VIRGINIA, TO BE ASSOCIATE ATTORNEY GENERAL. VICTOR DANIEL MARCUS, RESIGNED.
Ms. DeLAURO. Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to rise today to join the many family, friends, and colleagues who have gathered to pay tribute to my dear friend, Michael Ferrucci who is celebrating his retirement after a tremendous career with the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees. His outstanding leadership and unparalleled dedication has made a real difference in the lives of many.

I have often said that we are fortunate to live in a country that allows its workers to engage in efforts to better employee standards and benefits. State, county, and municipal governments employ a number of laborers who deserve a voice and are a part of their families. Michael has fought hard for better wages, more comprehensive health benefits for members and their families, and safer work environments—ensuring that state, county, and municipal employees are afforded these basic rights.

Michael began his career in 1953 as a maintenance worker for the Connecticut Highways Department. Elected first as Steward then Secretary and finally as President of AFSCME Local 867, he has served the union membership from the beginning. In addition to his service with Local 867, Michael went on to serve as the elected Secretary of Council and was later elected President of Council 16 representing Connecticut State Employees.

Michael eventually left his state employment when he was appointed as the Executive Director for Council 16. It was during his tenure as Executive Director of Council 16 that state workers won collective bargaining rights—much in part to Michael’s tremendous leadership.

Council 16, representing state employees, and Council 4, representing municipal employees, later merged to create what is today the largest union in Connecticut representing 34,000 State, Municipal, and Private Sector members. Michael held a number of leadership positions in Council 4 prior to his election as Executive Director nearly five years ago. In addition to his service with AFSCME, Michael has also served as a Labor Advocate on the Connecticut State Board of Mediation and Arbitration for over fifteen years.

Throughout his career, Michael has demonstrated a unique commitment to AFSCME’s union membership. Through his vision and because of his unparalleled dedication, Connecticut’s state and municipal employees and their families have a strong union that is always willing to ensure their needs and interests are heard and met. It is with my deepest thanks and sincere appreciation that I stand today to pay tribute to Michael Ferrucci, Jr., as he celebrates his retirement. His good work and strong voice will certainly be missed—and never forgotten.

VERMONT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT CONGRESSIONAL TOWN MEETING

HON. BERNARD SANDERS
180 SOUTH CAPITOL BUILDING, ROOM G-428
WASHINGTON, DC 20515

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize the outstanding work done by participants in my Student Congressional Town Meeting held this summer. These participants were part of a group of high school students from around Vermont who testified about the concerns they have as teenagers, and about what they would like to see government do regarding these concerns.

I submit these statements to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, as I believe that the views of these young persons will benefit my colleagues.

ON BEHALF OF KEVIN VAN GENECHTEN—REGIOMINDING GLOBAL WARMING—MAY 7, 2001

Kevin Van Genechten. My name is Kevin Van Genechten, doing global warming, for Colchester. Global warming is the steady rise in temperature caused by buildup of gases like CO2 and CH4 in the Earth’s atmosphere. The gases act like the glass in a greenhouse; they let the heat in, but not out. The main cause of gas buildup is the burning of coal, oil and wood CFCs. 1998 was the hottest year in thousands of years.

The nine hottest years on record have all been in the past two decades. Humankind’s actions on the global scale have changed not just the landscape of the earth, but the world’s climate too. Increasingly sophisticated measures of the Earth’s climate and the wealth of evidence that the earth has been getting steadily warmer.

An intergovernmental panel for climate change set up in 1988 to put together the thinking on global warming is creating a dangerous world. The burning of fossil fuels, such as oil and coal, and the emission of harmful gas must be addressed if we are to secure ourselves a future on planet Earth. And although interested parties are bringing pressure from the big power groups like the Worldwide Fund for Nature—which may soon disappear—it may be these gestures are too little, too late. There is still hope in the air and time in this millennium to make the necessary changes to happen. However, we have to move fast; there is no room for maneuver; there is no, there is no time for waiting.

and what you could see, is that it was designed as kind of a family-type of thing, where the teachers knew a lot about the personal lives of the students, and the students really felt like they didn’t have their privacy. They didn’t know about their personal lives, they would usually leave. And one of the problems because we also wanted to know what was wrong with the school, what the students in the program didn’t like about the high school. And a lot of what they said was how big it is. And, as you saw with the group that you had before us, we do have a very big school, so you can get lost, in that you can slip through the cracks. If you need help and you don’t know it, they just wouldn’t get to you. And those people, they do come—the majority of them come from broken homes or dysfunctional families or things where they have problems, and are not getting the help that they need. And their teachers in the high school, they were saying, weren’t always aware of that, and weren’t really interested in that. So in the program, they work through things. The teachers are not only educators, but they are also kind of counselors and moms, and they give homework. We thought it was the coolest thing when we went over there. We didn’t know what to expect, and we came back, and we were like: Oh, my God! We just couldn’t believe it. It does seem like a very close-knit thing. And the classes are constructed—they’re offered as needed. Like if 15 of the students really need a Western Civ class, that is what the teachers will do. Another problem that might be with the alternative program is, we found out that one of the teachers is only certified in that. Was it elementary English and social studies? And we didn’t really know how that worked in. And I kind of had a problem with that; I don’t know if Carlin and Katie did. But it seemed to work for them.

Congressman Sanders. Okay.

Bethany Wallace. That’s basically the gist on the alternative programs. And we found that, especially with it coming from the students, it was really helpful, and they did a lot, to keep the kids in school.

Congressman Sanders. Bethany, thank you. Katie or Carlin, are you going to go next?

Carlin Hebert. I focused more or less on extracurricular activities and how they affected dropout rate. And like the other group said, the extracurricular activities really are focused on school. Many people play sports. Almost everyone participates in some way—drama, band, something. And we walked around and surveyed a lot of students, and a lot of them said they would consider dropping out, or at least wouldn’t be coming to school as often—only, they wouldn’t just do it—if they didn’t then participate in something after school. It drew a lot of students towards the school, because they said, if it simply was, You come in, you sign your name on the attendance sheet, then you leave and go home, there would be nothing in it for them. They just wouldn’t enjoy it. And so we said it was maybe 55 percent, probably, said they never even would consider dropping out. But there was a large percentage that did say that they just—without sports of some sort or activities, that they just—there was nothing for them to do. They don’t enjoy classes, and basically that.

Katie Kervorkian. I’m focused on the pregnancy problem. I’m going to start with a little story that was told to me by the teachers in the Stars program, one of the teachers in the middle school program. She had a student who, at the time, was pregnant. And once that happened, she couldn’t attend school anymore, she couldn’t attend the Stars program, because, once you have a baby, you can’t really do that. And she couldn’t find childcare. She actually had twins at age 13, and the woman there was her teacher. But she couldn’t get her an education. She sent her to tutoring centers, she helped set up childcare, but the girl apparently was very disagreeable with her childcare, and ended up taking her kids out of that. She is now 15, and she has missed so many credits that she cannot graduate high school at age 18, and, at 15, she was working on her GED. I interviewed people from two places, two area places, where pregnant teenagers often go. One was the Tristate Pregnancy Center, and they basically give them—she tried to educate them on when they are pregnant, and show them their options. And then they work through another place I interviewed, Sunrise Family Resource Center, to help them get their GED and finish their education. Sunrise also does that. They try to provide childcare. They have programs such as Reach Up, which helps with—they try to get them some benefits. And the other one is—Can you let me see that? Vermont Homeroom. They try to get childcare and educate them. And pregnancy is a problem. It has gone down in the last ten years, but, in our community, it is still a huge problem. The rate is higher there than in any other place in Vermont. No, the rate is higher there than the rate in Vermont. Excuse me.

The Hon. Tom Davis of Virginia

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce a bill that will help alleviate a problem that has plagued the senior weather forecasters at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

One of the most important missions NOAA undertakes is the accurate forecasting of weather phenomena. Every highly specialized weather forecasting is responsible for everything from making landfall predictions of hurricanes along the Eastern Seaboard, to gauging wind conditions above fires and ensuring the safety of those trying to put them out. These forecasters, all of whom as GS-14 (or lower), nonmanagerial employees, often work weekends and nights into the evening trying to give the most accurate information possible.

Unfortunately, many of the senior forecasters are underpaid for the overtime they routinely put in. This bill seeks to alleviate that problem by standardizing the overtime pay for those forecasters who are critical to the immediate daily operation of the forecast and warning responsibilities of the National Weather Service and the health of our economy. By working weekends and nights, a senior weather forecaster may successfully predict the path of fish annually and require 1.8 billion pounds of feed. This supports over 90,000 acres of corn, 500,000 acres of soybeans, and cotton seed from over 230,000 acres of cotton.

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in reluctant opposition to this resolution. While I have always been a strong supporter of free trade, I can not support expanding trade with Vietnam until the administration addresses a serious conflict between Vietnam and the United States catfish industry. Frozen fish fillets of an entirely different family of fish are imported and unlawfully passed off to customers as “catfish” in such large and increasing volumes that it threatens the future success of the American catfish industry.

American consumers are being defrauded in believing that they are receiving farm raised U.S. catfish instead of another species of fish raised along the Mekong River in Vietnam. Most of the Vietnamese fish are raised in floating cages and ponds along the Mekong River Delta, feeding on whatever floats down the river. Yet they are fraudulently marketed to us as farm-raised grain-fed catfish. Since the Vietnamese do not place a high value on the fish in a controlled environment, their cost of production is much lower. Importing interests of the Vietnam fish, searching for new markets, were allowed by the FDA to use the term catfish. In combination with previously approved names. This has resulted in imports entering the U.S. in skyrocketing quantities and being fraudulently passed off to American consumers as “catfish.”

It is unlawful to pass a cheaper fish species off as another species. There is evidence of widespread illegal packaging and labeling of the Vietnamese fish which violates numerous existing laws, including the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act, the Trade-Mark Act of 1946, the Customs origin marking requirements, and the Federal Food Drug and Cosmetic Act. I understand that the bilateral agreement includes some trademark protection, but until importers are required to comply with current law, I do not think we can expect these protections to be enforced.

Since 1997, the total import volume of Vietnamese catfish has risen from less than 500 thousand pounds to over 7 million pounds in 2000. According to this year’s recorded import numbers, imports are reaching levels of 2 million pounds per month and on target to reach over 20 million pounds in this year alone. As of May this year, Vietnamese imports of frozen fish fillets were equivalent to 20 percent of the sales of the United States farm-raised frozen fillets.

There are over 189,000 acres of land in catfish production, of which 110,000 are in my home state of Mississippi. U.S. catfish farmers produce 600 million pounds of farm-raised catfish and require 1.8 billion pounds of feed. This supports over 90,000 acres of corn, 500,000 acres of soybeans, and cotton seed from over 230,000 acres of cotton.
This very young industry has created a catfish market where none had previously existed. They have done this by investing substantial capital to producing a quality product which the consumer considers to be reliable, safe, and healthy. We can not allow unfair competition to destroy the livelihood of farmers, processors, employees, and communities which depend on the American catfish industry.

Before we expand trade relations with Vietnam, our two governments must resolve this issue in a way that ensures the quality and safety of Vietnamese imported fish products. The Administration must also enforce current law so that our American catfish producers are not unfairly put out of business. I am hopeful this issue can be resolved so that all Americans can enjoy the benefits of free and fair trade with Vietnam.

PROGRESS ON CURING PARKINSON’S DISEASE

SPEECH OF
HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 6, 2001

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to come to the floor this evening to mark the fourth anniversary of the passage of the Morris K. Udall Parkinson’s Research Act, an anniversary that occurred this week.

In 1999, along with my friends and colleagues, FRED UPTON, LANE EVANS, JOE SKEEN, MARK UDALL, and HENRY WAXMAN, I formed the Congressional Working Group on Parkinson’s Disease. The Working Group strives to ensure that the nation’s decision makers remain ever aware of the needs of the more than one million Americans struggling with the devastating disease of Parkinson’s.

Four years ago this past Monday, Senator WELLSTONE was successful in adding the Morris K. Udall Parkinson’s Research Act as an amendment to the Senate FY98 Labor-HHS Appropriations bill. Not surprisingly, the amendment was approved by a vote of 95–3.

Named for Arizona Representative Mo Udall to honor his legacy, the Morris K. Udall Parkinson’s Research Act was originally introduced on April 9, 1997 in the House of Representatives. Mr. UPTON and Mr. WAXMAN were the bill’s lead sponsors in the House, with Senators MCCAIN and WELLSTONE sponsoring it in the Senate. In the 105th Congress, this bill, H.R. 1260, had 255 cosponsors in the House; I was a proud original cosponsor, too.

The Udall Act expanded basic and clinical research in Parkinson’s Disease. It established Udall Centers of Excellence around the country, and set up the Morris K. Udall Awards in Parkinson’s Research to provide grants to scientists working in the area.

One of the eleven Udall Centers is located in the great city of New York. The Morris Udall Center for Parkinson Disease Research at Columbia University is doing innovative research, including identifying new genes that, when either expressed or suppressed, contribute to the deterioration of nerve cells. The New York group is also investigating gender and ethnic differences in people with Parkinson’s Disease. Notably, too, Columbia University’s Dean of Medicine is the former Director of NIH’s National Institutes of Neurological Disorders and Stroke, Dr. Gerald Fischbach. The work at this Udall Center, as well as Centers across the country, is leading to a better understanding of the brain and how this disease affects it. The groundbreaking research at the Udall Center public and private sector research effort, will lead to better treatment and a cure for Parkinson’s.

In this Congress, I will proudly join Congressmen MARK and TOM UDALL and members of the Congressional Working Group to introduce a bill on Parkinson’s Research Act. I urge all of my colleagues to join us in reauthorizing this important legislation.

In the spirit of Mo Udall’s tenacity and strength of purpose, we cannot stop now. We must wholeheartedly support Parkinson’s research until we find a cure!

As the President has said, we must continue on path to doubling the NIH budget by 2003.

In last year’s appropriations, $71.4 million of the NIH budget was designated for Parkinson’s Disease research. But this is only year-one funding of the NIH’s Five Year Plan for Parkinson’s Disease Research. We have to remain vigilant and keep the pressure on.

Leading scientists describe Parkinson’s as the most curable neurological disorder! That is why I urge my colleagues to support the second-year funding of the Five Year NIH Plan.

Recent advances in Parkinson’s Disease research have given us great hope that a cure is in our near future.

In Parkinson’s, there is an advanced stage where greater management and coordination of the federally-funded research effort will accelerate the pace of scientific progress dramatically. I ask all my colleagues to support NIH’s research agenda by fully funding the $143.5 million increase for FY02 in the Labor-HHS Appropriations bill.

Secondly, we must continue to fund the U.S. Army’s Neurotoxin Exposure Treatment Research Program. The research not only strives to improve the treatment of neurological diseases, but also aims to identify the causes of these diseases themselves.

I am heartened by the scientific progress being made. We are so close to a cure of this disease.

As you may know, this is a personal issue for many of us. Some of our colleagues are struggling with Parkinson’s or have family members who are living with this illness. My own father has been afflicted by Parkinson’s—I have seen the impact of this disease first hand and have spoken to the experts. Professionals at NIH have said that this disease is curable within as little as 5 years. My government should be a part of that research.

Better treatment and a cure for Parkinson’s Disease also depends on stem cell research. With further research into embryonic stem cells, scientists should be able to reprogram the stem cells into the dopamine-producing cells which are currently lost in Parkinson’s Disease. President Bush’s August decision to fund limited types of stem cell research is a small step forward for this life saving medical research, though a limited one indeed. The President’s decision to permit research on existing cell lines, without allowing for the derivation of new cell lines, falls short in the eyes of many top medical researchers. Experts tell us that different cell lines hold disparate research and therapeutic potential, and elimination of federal funding for certain lines will hold major consequences. I am quite troubled by what Secretary Tommy Thompson said yesterday. He noted that less than one-third of the embryonic stem cells lines that President Bush and said were available for federally-funded research are fully derived, and currently inadequate for research. This is unacceptable. We must not tie the hands of the scientists.

So again, I urge my colleagues to support the scientists and the researchers who are battling this disease by providing the funding levels needed to cure Parkinson’s. In addition, we must keep the pressure on the NIH to stay true to their Five Year Plan for Parkinson’s Disease Research. Let this be the Congress that history points to that fulfilled the promise of the Udall Act and provided the unwavering support that led to an end to Parkinson’s Disease.

HONORING IDA WELLS ON THE OCCASION OF HER RETIREMENT

SPEECH OF
HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO
OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Ms. DeLAURO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to join the many family, friends, and colleagues in paying tribute to an outstanding member of the New Haven, CT, community—Ida Wells. Ida is a public housing resident who has shown unparalleled dedication and commitment to our community and it is my privilege to honor her today as she celebrates her retirement from the Board of Commissioners of the Housing Authority of the city of New Haven.

Originally from Newark, NJ, Ida first came to New Haven from New York City only 16 years ago. In that time, she has developed a reputation as one of the leading advocates for public housing residents. Ida, a public housing resident herself, became active in her building as a way to fill her time. Prior to her appointment to the Housing Board of Commissioners, Ida served as Crawford Manor’s tenant council president for 8 years. Even then, Ida was one of the first people her neighbors turned to when they needed a strong voice on their behalf.

As a Commissioner, Ida’s job has not always been easy. With tedious budget reviews and resolutions to consider, she has often said that at first she felt like she was in the middle of a three ring circus. Her fellow commissioners have described Ida as a calming force when the need was there. Her fellow commissioners have described Ida as a calming force when they needed a strong voice on their behalf.

commitment to ensuring real change for her neighbors and fellow public housing residents. After nearly two decades of service as a resident representative, you can be sure that Ida’s retirement from the Board of Commissioners will not impede her from continuing to advocate for public housing residents. Though she will certainly be missed in her office capacity, I am sure her strong voice will continue to be heard. It is with the greatest thanks and appreciation for her outstanding service to our community that I stand today to honor Ida Wells on this very special occasion and extend my sincere congratulations to her for many more years of health and happiness.

VERMONT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT CONGRESSIONAL TOWN MEETING

HON. BERNARD SANDERS OF VERMONT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize the outstanding work done by participants in my Student Congressional Town Meeting held this summer. These participants were a part of a group of high school students from around Vermont who tested about the concerns of Vermonters, and asked what they would like to see government do regarding these concerns.

ON BEHALF OF WILL BABCOCK—REGARDING TRADE SKILLS FOR YOUNG VERMONTERS

MAY 7, 2001

Will Babcock. Like I said, I’m Will Babcock, here representing Youth Build. Skateland, from Williston, got closed down recently. I’m trying to reopen it. I have plans to talk to J.D. Real Estate to see how much the lease per year is, and if I can get it cheaper. I have a lot of money, but it let’s face it: In Burlington, there is really nothing to do but play basketball, hang out at the mall or hang out on the streets. So I think the youth need healthy activity, and that’s a good thing to do. I’m in love with it, you know. Let’s see, I have talked to everyone I can about it. That’s why I’m here today, to see if I can get any help from Bernie or anybody with political power to get the ball rolling, get it open again. I’ve organized a skate club at school. I have got people at school doing it. All my teachers are interested in it. And, recently, to go roller skating, I’ve had to go to Latham, New York, three hours away. It is three hours away, four hours of roller skating, hours back. If you know, I can’t really afford a hotel room, so I have to come back the same night. I have talked to Pat McGirk, the guy that got the skate park down here by the waterfront started. I have been talking to him to see if I can get something going there. I would like to try and find some backers who think this is a good idea, and want to help me get it going. I have gone to a couple of other meetings besides these, with churches and town halls and stuff. So it is getting around. People are starting to hear about it. I’m hoping that it is more than just “hear,” “that people will start saying: “Yes, I’m going to help this kid do it. It is a good thing to do. Like I said, I’m Will Babcock, Youth Build, Middle Friend and Family, and everyone that roller skates, probably about a good 20, 25 of us. I need help in any way possible, so if you guys know somebody that can get into an idea like that or anything, you know, find out who I can ask for money, you know, for a couple of I need another one’s if. If you have any questions or anything.

ON BEHALF OF RICHARD WEST—REGARDING VOTING REFORM, MAY 7, 2001

Richard West. Never before has there been an event more politically controversial for this generation than the 2000 presidential election. As the weeks progressed after the election, much was said about the method for choosing the person who will become the leader of the free world. Is it fair? Is it accurate? Does it represent the people? In a nation of millions of people, is it possible for this system to function properly? To answer these questions, I have interviewed some of the younger generation and listened to their views on this issue.

To be heard. It is with the greatest thanks and appreciation for her outstanding service to our community that I stand today to honor Ida Wells on this very special occasion and extend my sincere congratulations to her for many more years of health and happiness.
Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an exceptional individual, Harry Pregerson. He is not only the oldest active Judge of the United States Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and a man of legendary accomplishments, he is a good friend whose wise counsel I rely upon. I am pleased that he will be honored by the San Fernando Valley Bar Association on September 29, 2001, with the prestigious Stanley Mosk Legacy of Justice Award.

Judge Pregerson began his legal career, after graduating from Boalt Hall Law School, in private practice. In 1964, he was named to the Los Angeles Municipal Court and subsequently to the Superior Court. In 1967, President Johnson appointed him to the United States District Court for the Central District of California. Later, Judge Pregerson was named to the Ninth Circuit by President Carter. Each of these prestigious appointments were a direct result of his hard work, talent and dedication. During these years, he garnered an impressive reputation and earned the respect of his colleagues.

In addition to his judicial career, Judge Pregerson has been a longtime advocate for the homeless, especially homeless veterans.

In recognition of Opportunity, Inc. on their 25th anniversary.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to recognize Opportunity, Inc. an exceptional organization located in Highland Park, Illinois. This extraordinary enterprise is a fine example of the initiative needed to help more people move from welfare to work allowing them to pursue the American dream.

Opportunity, is a not-for-profit contract manufacturer that employs over 125 persons, most of whom have developmental, physical and/or emotional disabilities. Founded in 1976, the company’s mission is both to provide a mainstream plant environment in which “Handicapped” people can reach their full potential by working and earning a paycheck and to provide customers such as Baxter International, Al Gore, the popular victor, would have won the presidency. 272 electoral votes to 266 votes. Thank you very much.

In 1988, Judge Pregerson started the Bell Homeless Shelter, a shelter which today provides a full array of social services to homeless individuals in East Los Angeles. Recently, he helped bring together a number of enforcement authorities, judges and county officials to create a new program that assists veterans convicted of minor violations complete a rehabilitation program and return to a productive life. His special affinity for helping veterans probably comes from his own distinguished military service. He himself is a war veteran who was seriously wounded in the battle of Okinawa during World War II.

The San Fernando Valley Bar Association’s recognition of Judge Pregerson is not surprising since the event commemorates commitment to the legal profession and the public. Judge Pregerson’s distinguished service on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and numerous public service projects clearly demonstrate his very strong commitment to the law and the community.

It is my distinct pleasure to ask my colleagues to join with me in saluting Judge Pregerson for his outstanding achievements, and to congratulate him on receiving this prestigious award.

APPROVING EXTENSION OF NON-DISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT WITH RESPECT TO PRODUCTS OF THE SOCIALIST REPUBLIC OF VIETNAM

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to bring attention to an increasingly serious problem affecting the public trust and truth in advertising. Today as we debate H.J. Res. 51, to approve the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment with respect to the products of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, I wish to make my colleagues in the House aware of the misleading marketing of the Vietnamese basa fish as catfish.

Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, and Louisiana farmers who endured, and continue to endure, the significant capital risk and time investment to raise catfish—notice I use the term catfish—should not be made to compete with a foreign product bearing no similarity to North American catfish. Vietnamese Pangasius, also known as the basa fish, has flooded the American market and now accounts for 20% of all catfish sold in the United States. This basa fish, however, is not catfish yet it is labeled catfish and even bears the industry logo.

American catfish farmers, who have worked for over a quarter of a century and spent half a billion dollars in research and development, deserve better. They deserve the assurance that their government will take the steps necessary to ensure their product retains the public trust and is not compromised in any way. Similarly, when a consumer purchases catfish they have the right to expect they are purchasing grain-fed, pond-raised North American freshwater catfish. The basa fish, however, is not grainfed, nor pond-raised, neither is it the freshwater catfish. The basa fish, however, is not grainfed, nor pond-raised, neither is it the freshwater catfish. Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues carefully consider the erroneous marketing of basa fish before reaching any decision on extending nondiscriminatory treatment to the products of Vietnam.

HUMAN CLONING PROHIBITION ACT OF 2001

HON. DENNIS MOORE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to make clear my concerns about the legislation before us today.

I absolutely oppose the cloning of human beings for any purpose. Even the thought of human cloning is inhumane, unethical and repugnant. I am concerned, however, that in our zeal to outlaw this abominable practice, we have overstepped necessary prohibitions and have acted to stop lifesaving research before it even begins.

For the third time, the House has failed to make the important distinction between reproductive cloning that creates a human being and the use of cloning research technology that does not create a human being. An outright ban on cloning that creates a human being and the use of cloning research technology that does not create a human being.

Today the House has failed to make the important distinction between reproductive cloning that creates a human being and the use of cloning research technology that does not create a human being. An outright ban on cloning that creates a human being and the use of cloning research technology that does not create a human being.

such research technology, which scientists believe can lead to treatments or cures for currently deadly diseases, is shortsighted in the extreme. Even more disturbing, H.R. 2505 goes further to ban the importation of any therapies created using this research technology. This means that any product or therapy developed anywhere in the world using this technology, could not be used by American patients. Consider for a moment a cure for Parkinson's, diabetes or ALS developed in the United Kingdom using cloning research technology—Americans would be banned, under penalty of prison and a $1 million fine, from using that therapy. That is wrong.

Today, I supported an alternative that would have banned reproductive cloning while specifically protecting therapeutic research cloning by maintaining the status quo—private, strictly regulated research. This alternative, offered by Representative Greenwood, would have allowed scientists to pursue promising research that could show how to create stem cells from a person's own DNA, avoiding problems with immune system rejection. The alternative would have allowed scientists to study how stem cells become specialized, and thus provide insight into the mechanisms responsible for abnormal cells that result in some cancers and birth defects. It would have allowed research into how cells age and are regulated, potentially leading a treatment or a cure of Alzheimer's, Parkinson's and other degenerative diseases of the brain or spinal cord. Unfortunately, this alternative failed.

The opportunities at the doorstep of medical research are unparalleled in our history. H.R. 2505, although well intended, simply goes too far.

Mr. Speaker, it is possible to ban human cloning without stopping lifesaving research and that is what this House should do.

THE REVEREND FATHER ROBERT E. NILON, S.J.—A LIFETIME OF DEDICATION

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, it is my great pleasure to honor the achievements of Reverend Robert E. Nilon, S.J. of Miami as a Parish Priest. Father Nilon was ordained to the priesthood to follow the steps of St. Ignatius of Loyola on June 25, 1954.

Reverend Nilon has accepted various Florida assignments. Several locations include Gesu Church in Downtown Miami, St. Ann's Church in West Palm Beach, St. Mary's Church in Key West, and is currently serving the Sacred Heart Church in Tampa, Florida as Parish Priest and Hospital Chaplain.

The Jesuits are not in pursuit of personal fame when accepting assignments as needed in the home or mission field. However, occasionally there are opportunities to do great things. One of Reverend Nilon's most memorable events was his presence in Rome in 1999 when he celebrated Mass in the company of His Holiness, John Paul II, who was celebrating the 400th Anniversary of the Jesuits.

His work is an inspiration to others in our community and will set a precedent for societal advancement. As a parish priest and pastor, he has demonstrated a strong commitment to others that proves to be an affordable resource for the community.

Father Nilon will be honored on August 12, 2001 at the GESU Church where a Mass of Thanksgiving will be presided by Archbishop John C. Favalora. We congratulate Father Nilon for his outstanding contribution to our community and wish him all the best in health and continued prosperity.

TRIBUTE TO THOMAS CHEATHAM, JR.

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I stand today to pay tribute to Mr. Thomas Cheatham, Jr., a native of Bentonia, MS. After a long and distinguished career of public service, Mr. Cheatham announced his retirement on June 30, 2001.

Mr. Cheatham was a dedicated employee of the State of Mississippi for 37 years with tenures at both the Department of Public Safety, Motor Vehicles Division and as a tax collector with the Mississippi State Tax Commission. Prior to this, Mr. Cheatham served in the military for 28 years with the Mississippi National Guard, where the qualities of dedication and punctuality were instilled into him. These traits followed him throughout his career, evidence in the fact that he was always on time for work.

Although Mr. Cheatham enjoyed his time with the State his real passion was coaching little league baseball. He spent 37 years coaching the Grove Park Royals, an eight to twelve age team, in Jackson, MS. As leader of the team, Mr. Cheatham enjoyed many successful seasons, this past year going 19 and 1. He was instrumental in the development of many young individuals on and off the field. He has also been fortunate enough to see several of his players eventually go on to play Major League Baseball.

Mr. Cheatham will be missed by a lot of people at work, but if anyone is more deserving of retirement it is him. He should be commended because he is truly a modern day "role model," displaying the characteristics of integrity and commitment for all to admire.

PROGRESS ON CURING PARKINSON'S DISEASE

SPEECH OF
HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the Congressional Working Group on Parkinson's Disease, I rise today to recognize the fourth anniversary of the passage of the Morris K. Udall Parkinson's Research Act. I was so very honored to be an original co-sponsor to this legislation, named for Arizona Representative Mo Udall.

This landmark legislation expands basic and clinical research in Parkinson's Disease and establishes Morris K. Udall Centers, for awards for Excellence in Parkinson's Disease Research. Today I express my full support for a continuation of Parkinson's Disease research.

Approximately, 1,000,000 Americans are afflicted with Parkinson's, with 60,000 more diagnosed each year—one every nine minutes. Approximately 40% of those afflicted are under the age of 60, effectively removing them from the work force.

Parkinson's is the biological opposite of Alzheimer's disease: while Alzheimer's destroys the mind, leaving the body intact and functioning, Parkinson's destroys the body's ability to function, taking away the physical abilities necessary to daily life while leaving the mind prisoner inside the body.

Mr. Speaker, it is my hope as science moves forward, especially in the area of stem cell research, which holds hope for the millions with Parkinson's that a cure will be found soon, and that the legacy of Mo Udall will live forever.

JOHN RANDOLPH, JR., HONORED

HON. PAUL E. KANJORSKI OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. KANJORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to call the attention of the House of Representatives to the selection of John M. Randolph, Jr., C.P.A., as 2001 Community Leader of the Year by the Northeastern Branch of the Arthritis Foundation. Mr. Randolph will be honored with a dinner on Sept. 13.

A well-respected business leader, John Randolph has also devoted countless hours to improving the community of Northeastern Pennsylvania. He came to Wilkes-Barre in 1959 to attend college and made the Wyoming Valley his home. A frequent speaker for professional and community service groups, John has often shared his financial expertise with the community. The list of his personal and professional affiliations and memberships is long and impressive.

King's College, from which he graduated with a bachelor of science in accounting in 1963, has benefited greatly from his service. He has served on the college's board of directors since 1992, served as vice-chairman of the board since 1996 and chaired the Jubilee Capital Campaign that raised approximately $21 million over four years. King's awarded him the Kilburn Medal in 1999 for extraordinary service to the college.

He has also been honored with the Annual Trustee Award by College Misericordia, where he served as chairman and vice chairman of the finance committee. He has also served on the board of directors at Keystone College and on the President's Council of Wilkes University.

Mr. Randolph also was admitted to the Northeastern Pennsylvania Business Hall of Fame by Junior Achievement of Northeastern Pennsylvania and was awarded the prestigious Annual Community Service Award by B'nai Brith.

Additionally, he serves on the boards of directors of the Greater Wilkes-Barre Chamber of Business and Industry, where he chaired the Project 2000 Task Force, and the Luzerne Foundation, of which he is also treasurer. He has also served as an elected member of the Council of Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants and as a member of the Group B for the Council of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Mr. Speaker, as indicated by his peers’ selection of him for leadership roles, his professional achievements are impressive. He co-founded Parente, Randolph & Co., now known as Parente, Randolph P.C. and was instrumental in the planned growth of the firm to 10 practice offices with revenues in excess of $25 million. When he retired from the firm in 1995, it was ranked as the 20th largest firm in the United States.

From 1995 to 1996, he served as senior executive vice president and treasurer of the Wyoming Valley Health Care System. Since that time, he has served as chairman of the board of directors and chief administrative officer of MotorWorld Automotive Group, Inc., as well as a special consultant to a variety of regional businesses.

John Randolph also served the nation as a member of the military for six months in 1964. He and his wife, Sharon, were married the following year. They have two grown sons, John III and Scott.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to call to the attention of the House of Representatives the achievements and good deeds of John M. Randolph, Jr., and I wish him all the best.

HONORING NASHVILLE METROPOLITAN PARK SYSTEM FOR 100 YEARS OF SERVICE TO TENNESSEE RESIDENTS

HON. BOB CLEMENT
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. CLEMENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the park system of Nashville, Tennessee, on its 100th Anniversary of existence. The Metropolitan Board of Parks and Recreation, under the direction of Mr. James H. Fyke, currently oversees parks, historic sites, golf courses, swimming pools, senior centers, community centers, greenways, art galleries, and numerous other facilities which add to the quality of life for the 5th Congressional District of Tennessee.

Mr. Fyke and his staff are ardent supporters of the community by offering professionalism and vision as the parks system makes the transition into the 21st Century. The continued support of the Nashville Metropolitan Government over the years has been a crucial factor in the upkeep and maintenance of these properties, which benefit so many Nashvillians.

The Tennessee General Assembly approved legislation to enact and charter the Nashville Park System on April 13, 1901. That same year Mayor James Head appointed five individuals to the very first City Park Commission. On their first meeting, April 16, they began work with one mule, a handful of employees, one park, and no financial support whatsoever.

Nashville’s first official park was Watkins Park, followed by Centennial Park in 1902. By 1903, the City Park Commission had an annual operating budget of $25,000, and employed Robert Creighton as its first Superintendent of Parks. It wasn’t until 1912 that additional parks were added to the system. These included Hadley and Shelby Parks. The first community center was opened in Centennial Park just four years later, while the first public golf course opened in Shelby Park in 1924.

One of the crown jewels in the Nashville Park System is the Warner Parks, which the city acquired in 1926. To date the Warner Parks, located at Old Hickory Boulevard near Bellevue, offer 2,681 acres of natural beauty for the public to explore and enjoy, along with a Nature Center, picnic area, two golf courses, hiking and driving trails, and much more.

Another significant landmark belonging to the Nashville Park System is the Parthenon, the only full-scale replica of the original in existence. It was originally created as a temporary structure for the Tennessee Centennial Exposition in 1897, reflecting the city’s nickname as “The Athens of the South”. It was rebuilt during the 1920s and officially re-opened its doors to visitors from around the world during the 1930s. The structure is nearing the conclusion of a $13 million renovation and today houses many of the city’s official art collections, while hosting visiting artwork from around the world. It is also the home to Athena, a 42-foot copy of the tallest indoor sculpture in the Western World.

The 1940s saw construction of the first gymnasium in Elizabeth Park Community Center and the first running of the Iroquois Steeplechase in Percy Warner Park. As the Park System celebrated its 50th Anniversary in the 1950s, the Cumberland Golf Course opened its doors as the first black golf course. However, by the end of the fifties segregation of Nashville’s golf courses ceased for good.

The Metropolitan Board of Parks and Recreation as we know it today, first met on June 5, 1963. By 1976 the parks system had earned for itself an outstanding reputation and as such was selected as the most outstanding local agency in the United States. The seventies saw much activity as Greer Stadium, home of Nashville Sounds baseball, Fort Negley Park, Ice Centennial ice rink, Wave Country, and Hamilton Creek Sailboard Marina all opened to the public under the direction of newly appointed parks director Jim Fyke.

The now popular Riverfront Park was added in 1983, which has become the site of the city’s annual Independence Day Celebration and numerous concerts and festivities. During the 1990s the following additions were made to the Nashville Park System—the Centennial Sportsplex opened, the Metro Greenway Commission was created,Ted Rhodes Golf Course reopened, Greer Wildlife Park was acquired, Metro Parks received the largest land donation in its history of 1500 acres, Shelby Bottoms opened, the Predators Ice Practice Facility opened, and many other improvements were implemented.

Most recently the parks system dedicated the new McCabe Golf Clubhouse and the VinnyLinks First Tee Golf Course and Learning Center in Shelby Park in 2000. Also, the countywide parks/greenways master plan will offer numerous improvements well into the 21st Century.

Today Metro Parks celebrates 100 years of existence with 93 parks, 9,350 total acres, 450 year round employees and 350 seasonal employees, as well as, 173 tennis courts, 85 ballfields, 14 swimming pools, 25 community centers, and 7 golf courses. The system also offers a sailboat marina, a wave action pool, 2 indoor ice rinks, 2 indoor tennis centers, a zoo, a nature center, a children’s museum, a countywide greenway/trail system and a professional baseball stadium.

Metro Parks is to be commended for its legacy of excellence and service to the Nashville/Davidson County community for the past 100 years. May it continue to grow, prosper, and impact our region in the 21st Century. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

COMMEMORATING THE LIFE OF THE HONORABLE FLOYD SPENCE OF SOUTH CAROLINA, 1928-2001

HON. VAN HILLEARY
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the life and public service of a great advocate for our nation’s defense, a true gentleman in the finest Southern tradition, and my good friend, Floyd Spence.

As one of us who today continue along the path to recovery, it may come as a surprise that this gentle soul spent his early life as a terror on the gridiron at Lexington High School and the University of South Carolina. It’s less of a surprise that he had a distinguished 36-year career in the U.S. Navy and Naval Reserve, because his knowledge of our nation’s military was rivaled only by his deep affection for it.

Floyd was a leader with the courage of his convictions. He became a Republican in 1962, when Republicans in the South were still a rare commodity. That party switch cost him his seat in the South Carolina House of Representatives, but the people of South Carolina came to respect his courage and shortly thereafter sent him to Congress in 1970. By the time I first came to Capitol Hill in 1994, Southern Republicans had become relatively commonplace but that happened because people like Floyd Spence followed their conscience and accepted the consequences willingly.

When I met Floyd, he was then the newly installed Chairman of what was then called the House National Security Committee. He handled his considerable responsibility with grace and dignity, displaying fairness to all members, regardless of party, and showing considerable patience with us freshmen who showed up full of enthusiasm but short on experience. Chairman Spence knew that freedom isn’t free and deeply believed that lasting peace could best be achieved through unquestioned strength. He pushed for better funding for training, modernization, readiness and quality of life initiatives. His leadership was instrumental in finally stemming the tide of declining defense budgets and placing our military on the road to recovery. The soldier enjoying his new pay raise, the military families moving into improved post housing, the pilot stepping into a much-needed new fighter jet—each of these people, and many others, can thank Floyd Spence for fighting for them. We would be well-advised to continue along the path to recovery that this remarkable man worked so hard to put us on.
An old historian once noted that, “Great men are not often good men.” Well, Floyd Spence was certainly both. Those of us who have had the great opportunity to know him are far better for the privilege.

TRIBUTE TO SISTER MIRIAM THOMAS, S.C.

HON. JOSE´E SERRANO
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, I proudly rise today to pay tribute to Sister Miriam Thomas, S.C., a phenomenal individual who has devoted her life to enhancing the lives of others. After her 50 years of ceaseless work to educate and counsel others, and improve the communities she lives in, I take great pride in honoring Sister Thomas’s 50th anniversary of service to God and humanity with this congressional tribute.

Sister Thomas was born and received her early education in South Brooklyn. Upon graduation from high school, Sister Thomas answered the calling to devote her life to God. At age 18 she entered Sisters of Charity where she received an invaluable theological education as well as a degree from Mount Saint Vincent College in the Bronx. Once she professed her vows, Sister Thomas brought her newly-honed ministry skills to Ascension Grammar School in Manhattan, where she remained for 8 years. She then relocated to Ponce, Puerto Rico where her education was enriched at Catholic University. At this point, with more years of training and instruction, she was ready to take on the South Bronx. There, she was assigned to St. Athanasius Parish where she has shared her gift of easing souls and invoking smiles for the past 39 years.

Mr. Speaker, in 1972, Sister Thomas, along with her neighbors, heard that a woman who served as the administrator of Simpson Street Development Association was murdered while on the job. Courage and an unflattering sense of devotion allowed Sister Thomas to stand up and fill this important position. There, with a tireless and supportive staff, Sister Thomas works miracles daily by providing social services and emotional guidance to people in need. Beyond these commitments, Sister Thomas also sits on the South Bronx Community Board 2 as chairperson. Her involvements in other community-based organizations are too numerous to mention. She says that her ceaseless community involvement was inspired by Father Louis Gigante, a visionary and dear friend.

Sister Thomas’s ability to take the Gospel and translate it into language that speaks to the hearts and souls of nearly every St. Athanasius parishioner, has made her a priceless component of many people’s spiritual and earthly lives. I am not the first to recognize her contributions, of course. Of the many rewards Sister Thomas has received throughout her years of service to the Church and humanity in general, she most treasures being named a Sister of Charity and her acceptance as a resident of the Innsbruck Point Community of the South Bronx.

Mr. Speaker, I have the privilege of representing the 16th district of New York where Sister Thomas practices her faith each and every day and I am truly delighted to acknowledge her today. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring this remarkable woman.

TAIWAN AND THE UNITED NATIONS

HON. MAURICE D. HINCHERY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. HINCHERY. Mr. Speaker, as the United Nations General Assembly prepares to convene on September 11, I believe it is appropriate to recognize the achievements of Taiwan. Over the past several years, Taiwan has established itself as a world economic power and a stable political presence in Asia. Since the passage of the Taiwan Relations Act in 1979, the United States and Taiwan have developed a strong friendship and understanding of each other.

Most importantly, Taiwan is a thriving, multi-party democracy. Its leaders have successfully confronted the most difficult moment emerging democracies face: turning over offices to others when their own party loses. They have allowed open competition for office, and encouraged public discussion of the full range of issues that face Taiwan. It is clear that the people of Taiwan have the right to determine their nation’s future.

Unfortunately, at a time when Taiwan’s example and its assistance could be most beneficial to the world community, it continues to be isolated from that community. Restoration of its membership in the United Nations would end that isolation. As new democracies emerge, I am convinced that the world could greatly benefit from the counsel of a nation that has recently transformed itself into a democracy.

DEFENSE PRODUCTION ACT

HON. RON PAUL
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, when the Defense Production Act was enacted in 1950, considerable damage was done. Some of the worst damage occurred as a result of wage and price controls and the improper delegation of economic powers to the President (much of which economic power even Congress itself didn’t hands over). This bill’s entire existence rests on the presumption that its supporters have absolutely no confidence whatsoever in either freedom or the market process. In a time of crisis, you don’t need an “industrial policy” and you don’t need some fascist or corporatist variety of socialism. What one needs more than ever in a time of crisis is the market—deviation from the market process is the worst thing an economy can do. Oftentimes, it’s the “industrial policy” which is the very cause of the economic crisis one hopes to remedy with yet another round of “industrial policy” intervention.

We have an energy crisis in California created by the bureaucrats and the politicians. As prices skyrocket and a crisis is declared, it is later said that prices are now down and there’s less of a shortage or crisis. But it’s the market process that worked because the prices skyrocketed rather than skyrocketing prices becoming the justification for abandoning the market process.

Of course, if one likes socialism and rejects the notion that freedom works, this type of an Act and improper of delegating and centralizing such powers is ideal. But why accept the notions of socialism when you really need an economy to provide products and services in the nation’s time of most dire need? This whole notion that the powers in this bill should be illegitimately granted to a President and then turned over to the head of FEMA is potentially one of the most dangerous things this body will ever do (or continue doing).

Mr. Speaker, I encourage the members of this body to begin thinking about the amount of false hope they place in the centralization of power in the hands of a central-planners and reconsider their apparent lack of confidence in the market process and a free society. I encourage a strict adherence to market principles and strongly oppose H.R. 2510.

THE HISTORY MUSEUM OF SPRINGFIELD AND GREENE COUNTY

HON. ROY BLUNT
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an institution which for a quarter of a century has served an invaluable role in preserving and remembering our Southwest Missouri history and heritage. Twenty-five years ago the History Museum of Springfield and Greene County was created in honor of the Bicentennial of our great nation. The citizens of Springfield and Greene County established the museum to educate others about the area’s culture and open a new window on the history of day-to-day life in the region. A key local education resource was born.

Teachers and other educators in Southwest Missouri have been blessed to have such a historical museum readily available. Over the years it has become a favorite field trip destination, permitting thousands of young minds to experience some of the culture that nurtured their parents and grandparents as well as other generations before them. Many educational trips have been hosted by The History Museum for Springfield and Greene County. The Museum, founded and guided in its early years by Springfieldian Kitty Lipscomb, is also a place of remembering and learning for adults too.

The museum is a storehouse of knowledge about past experiences which helped shape our families, neighborhoods and communities and are still molding us as a society today. It reveals the common threads that bound neighborhoods and communities together in past generations. Capitalism, Democracy, Liberty and Faith were the core values that stirred our imagination and gave birth to America’s work ethic. I think we all need to learn more about the commitment to education, and personal independence. Each of these qualities is on display at the History Museum for Springfield and Greene County in vintage photographs, clothing displays, maps and documents depicting how our communities grew and developed. With its home on the top floor of the Springfield City Hall, the Museum has dedicated itself to the reflection of our past with an eye towards the Moment.

This superb facility gives us the opportunity to memorialize our own stories of accomplishment, development and expansion as well as documenting how we overcame challenges and disagreements. Individuals, neighborhoods, community leaders and institutions joined together to forge a strong, diverse economy and society in the Ozarks.

I’m confident that my Colleagues join me in expressing our thanks to the vision and foresight of community leaders a quarter century ago. Because of their dedicated work, the residents of Southwest Missouri have had a place where they can go to rediscover the roots of our past and benefit from lessons for the future.

CELEBRATING THE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY OF THE ORANGE COUNTY RESCUE SQUAD, INC.

HON. ERIC CANTOR OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Orange County Rescue Squad, Inc.’s Golden Anniversary. The Rescue Squad began serving Orange County, Virginia in June 1951 and was officially chartered September 1, 1951.

The Orange County Rescue Squad’s 50 years of service is a remarkable accomplishment. Many dedicated men and women of Orange County have volunteered their time over the past 50 years to provide critical care to the citizens of the county. The Rescue Squad’s generous service is invaluable and something for which we are all extremely grateful. I am honored that such a remarkable organization resides within the county of Virginia.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in congratulating the Orange County Rescue Squad, Inc. for its 50 years of service.

MORTON MARKS
HON. THOMAS G. TANCREDO
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, Coloradans are fortunate to have a man like Morton “Mort” Marks and his wife Edie as members of our community and civic leaders. Mort was born in Washington, DC, and the political genes that accompanied him from his birthplace were never lost.

After graduating from Columbia University, Mort fought in World War II, and bravely participated in the Battle of the Bulge. When he returned from Europe, Mort cultivated his interest in politics, which began to climax when he became a field director and delegate for Ronald Reagan’s presidential campaigns, and then a delegate to the Republican National Convention for the Bush/Quayle campaigns.

Coloradans have also benefited from Mort’s vast political experience as he has worked or volunteered for Governor Bill Owens, Senator Bill Armstrong and Representative-Elect Jack Swigert, the first person elected to represent Colorado’s Sixth Congressional District.

Mort currently writes for several local publications, including The Gazette newspapers, Colorado Expressions, and the Colorado Statesman, and has won awards for his writing from the Colorado Press Association.

He and his wife have two lovely daughters, Lori Marks and Elise Marks Grutch.

Thank you, Mort, for all the work that you have done for your state and your party.

HONORING NELSON C. WESTBROOKS, JR.

HON. JACK KINGSTON
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a great man from my district who was recently honored by a society of his peers. At their annual meeting and convention in San Antonio, Texas, the Georgia Society of CPAs gave Nelson C. Westbrooks, Jr., their highest honor, the 2001 Meritious Service Award. Please include in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a copy of an article from a local newspaper, The Harbor Sound, recounting all of Mr. Westbrooks’ hard work and service to the people of Georgia. Certainly his dedication and every one of my colleagues to read and appreciate his outstanding service to the Society through involvement in local chapters and statewide activities.

It is with great pride and pleasure that I am honored to introduce a gentleman who has dedicated his life to public accounting. I am proud to introduce someone who has given his time and energy to the development of the accounting profession. I am proud to introduce to the House a gentleman who is a dedicated public servant.

Mr. Westbrooks is an example of the high standards of professionalism that should be exemplified by all CPAs.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in congratulating Nelson C. Westbrooks, Jr. for his outstanding contributions to the accounting profession and for his many years of dedicated service to his professional organization.

The GSCPA is the premier profession organization for CPAs in the state of Georgia. With over 10,000 members throughout the state, the purpose of the GSCPA is to promote the study of accounting, provide accounting knowledge to nonprofit organizations, and provide continuing education to Georgia Music Hall of Fame including many vintage sound recordings.

The Society is proud to honor Nelson C. Westbrooks Jr. for his outstanding contributions to the accounting profession and for his many years of dedicated service to his professional organization.

SOMETIMES THE ECONOMY NEEDS A SETBACK

HON. RON PAUL
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I encourage each and every one of my colleagues to read and heed the insights contained in James Grant’s Sunday New York Times article entitled “Sometimes the Economy Needs a Setback.” Mr. Grant explores the relationship of technology to the business cycle and identifies the real culprit in business cycles, namely “easy money.” Grant explains:

Booms not only precede busts; they also cause them. When capital is so cheap that it might as well be free, entrepreneurs make marginal investments. They build and hire expectantly, to continue the upward wave. Optimistic bankers and steadily rising stock prices shield new businesses from having to show profits any sooner than eventually.

Those genuinely interested in understanding the most recent economic downturn will do well to read and contemplate Mr. Grant’s article.

(By James Grant)

The weak economy and the multi-trillion-dollar drop in the value of stocks have raised a rattle of fears. Never a people to suffer the loss of money in silence, Americans are demanding to know what happened to them. The truth is simple: There was a boom.

A boom is a phase of accelerated prosperity. For ignition, it requires easy money. For insulation, it needs new technology. A decade ago, farsighted investors saw a glorious future for the personal computer in the context of the more peaceful world after the cold war. Stock prices began to rise—rose and rose. The cost of financing new investment fell correspondingly, until about the middle of the decade the money became too cheap to pass up. Business in the 1990s became too cheap to pass up. Business in the 1990s became too cheap to pass up. Business in the 1990s became too cheap to pass up.

Booms begin in reality and rise to fantasy. Stock investors seemed to forget that more capital spending means more competition, not less; that more competition implies lower profit margins, not higher ones; and that lower profit margins do not point to rising stock prices. It seemed to slip their minds that high-technology companies work ceaselessly to make their own products obsolete, to encourage the competition that they are inherently self-destructive.

At the 2000 peak of the titanic bull market, as shares moved with no visible support of command, the value of all stocks as a percentage of the American gross domestic product reached 183 percent, more than twice the level before the crash in 1929. Were investors out of their minds? Wall Street analysts were happy to reassure them. The 2000 bull market was seen as the latest in a series and that technological progress is the bulwark of economic system reacts to the stimulus. * * * with the prompt and complete mobilization of all its inner forces in order to carry it out everywhere in the shortest possible time. But this acceleration and concentration has evidently to be bought at the expense of a disturbance of equilibrium which is slowly overcome in time of depression.”

Röpke, wrote before the 1946 Employment Act, which directed the United States government to cut recessions short—using tax breaks, for example, or cuts in interest rates—even if these actions stymie a salutary process of economic adjustment. No one doubts the humanity of this law. Yet equally, one can doubt the inhumanity of a decade-long string of palliatives in Japan, intended to insulate the populace from the consequences of their bubble economy of the 1980’s. Rather than suppressing the bust, the government has only managed to prolong it, for a decade.

Booms not only precede busts; they also cause them. When capital is so cheap that it might as well be free, entrepreneurs make marginal investments. When good times are expected, the building and hiring is expected to increase.

Then, when the stars change alignment and investors decide to withhold new financing, many companies are cash-poor and must restructure or shut down. It is the work of a bear market to reduce the prices of the white elephants until they are cheap enough to interest a new class of buyers.

The boom-and-bust pattern has characterized the United States economy since before the railroads. Growth has been two steps forward and one step back, as in an animal cycle over cycle. Headlong building has been followed by necessary tearing down, which has been followed by a successful round of building. Observing this sequence from across the seas, foreigners just shake their heads.

Less and less, however, are we bold and irrepressible Americans willing to suffer the tearing-down phase of the cycle. Year after year, it has seemed increasingly unnecessary. With a rising incidence of federal intervention in financial markets, expansions have become longer and more economic. This year in and year out, the United States is allowed to consume more of the world’s goods than it produces (the difference being approximately defined as the trade deficit, running in excess of $400 billion a year). We have listened respectfully as our financial elder statesmen have speculated on the modern economy. Then again, it has been true for 500 years.

In 1929, Alan Greenspan observed that technological progress is the bulwark of the modern economy. Then again, it has been true for 500 years. In 1929, Alan Greenspan observed that technological progress is the bulwark of the modern economy. Then again, it has been true for 500 years.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Daniel Branagan, Elizabeth Taylor, Joseph Barre, David Swank, and Delon Haggard on their upcoming R&D 100 Award to be presented next month in Chicago. The R&D 100 award celebrates the 2001 most significant technological achievements for the year 2001 as recognized by R&D Magazine. This talented group of scientists made this unique contribution to American science and industry as a materials research team for the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory (INEL). The honor that this team has earned is the 27th such award for the INEL. Specifically, this team is being recognized for their creation of the new material known as Super Hard Steel.

Super Hard Steel, created through an innovative process that transforms steel alloy into a nanocrystalline metallic glass, has hardness properties among the highest ever reported for a metallic substance. Once sprayed on, the Super Hard Steel coating cannot be removed—even with a hammer and chisel. This tough, low cost, wear and corrosion resistant coating is expected to replace, and indeed outperform, much more expensive materials in high-stress machine parts. Already, more than 15 companies are evaluating the material with an eye towards licensing it and the Department of Defense is expected to soon begin tests of the material in various demanding environments. The R&D Magazine’s award, which has appeared in publications such as USA Today, has already added to the list of companies pursuing this new material.

The work of this intrepid group of Idahoan scientists will soon benefit the entire American economy and their metallic coating, with wide-ranging applications in products such as knife blades and mining rock crushers, becomes integrated into products that affect the lives of all Americans. Who knows exactly how many machine parts will someday be made with Super Hard Steel, this innovation as such as this. The people at the INEL-a state of Idaho, are proud to be a part of.

Mr. Speaker, there are a series of government-funded national laboratories across this...
TRIBUTE TO MAGGIE WADE

HON. RONNIE SHOWS
OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Maggie Wade, from the great State of Mississippi, who has been named a Congressional Angel in Adoption.

As you know, each year the Congressional Coalition on Adoption holds a national awards ceremony honoring individuals whose outstanding efforts have strengthened families through adoption. In Mississippi, that person is indisputably Maggie Wade.

In Mississippi, Ms. Wade is as well known for her community activism as she is for being the trusted news anchor at WLBT. She averages over 175 speaking engagements per year, in addition to her work with the Jackson Chamber of Commerce Mentoring Project, Southern Christian Services, the Mississippi Public Education Forum, Unicef, Easter Seals, and the State Health Department. A true leader in our community, Ms. Wade has been honored with over 150 awards from the grateful recipients of her dedication to serving others. As a journalist, Ms. Wade has not squandered the opportunity to bring attention to the most important issue—adoption—and the promotion of adoption. She does more than just deliver the news, she creates it: Since 1986, almost 500 children have been adopted as a result of her compassionate weekly segment “Wednesday’s Child.” This is a great accomplishment for the children and families of Mississippi.

Mr. Speaker, it is a privilege today to honor Maggie Wade for this well deserved award. I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing Maggie Wade as a true angel in adoption.

75TH ANNIVERSARY OF PICO WATER DISTRICT

HON. GRACE F. NAPOLITANO OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. Mr. Speaker, I am proud today to rise in recognition of the 75th anniversary of Pico Water District in Pico Rivera, California. Currently serving 5,233 households, the Pico Water District is performing important work during this crucial period of addressing California’s water shortage.

Just before the Pico Water District was founded, the 243 homes in the area were served by five small water systems. In 1926, the Pico Rivera Chamber of Commerce called for the creation of this district to provide water to its customers. The high quality of service the District provides should serve as a model for water providers throughout California. Since 1926, the Pico Water District has worked as a cohesive unit to provide water to its customers. Please join me in commending them as they celebrate their 75th Anniversary.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE AEGEAN REGATTA

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to pay tribute to an event that took place on August 18, 2001, Nikos Sifounakis, Minister of the Aegean, was the sponsor of the Aegean Regatta 2001, an international event that highlights the rich culture and history of the Aegean islands.

This event pays tribute to the ancient mariners who first introduced Hellenic culture to other parts of the world and honors today’s international mariners. The Aegean Regatta celebrates the incomparable beauty of the area, as well as its remarkable history. The poetry of Sappho and Elytis of Mytilini, Sifounakis and Homer of Chios, who derived their inspiration from the national epic of the Aegean, continues to enchant and enthral modern readers.

The Aegean Regatta stands as a testament to the legacy of sportsmanship community of this great civilization, a tradition also exemplified by the Olympics. Like the Olympics, the Aegean Regatta fosters community bonds among people of different countries and cultural backgrounds.

The ancient mariners of the Aegean were known far and wide for their skill. Their vessels carried both raw materials and new concepts of democracy, vision and hope. Participants in the 2001 Aegean Regatta are heirs to... the old seafarers. They enjoyed the phenomena of sailing the routes traveled by the ancients. The beauty of the Aegean is mesmerizing, a beauty connected to the spirit and the soul, forged by the waves and sculpted by the wind.

The Aegean Regatta is not simply a sailing competition but a maritime celebration that continues the maritime tradition, and emphasizes two of Greece’s most successful “exports,” sports and culture. This unique event allows mariners of today to pay homage to mariners of the past and to carry on an ancient tradition in which sailing was a way of life. Sailing enthusiasts from around the world participate in the Aegean Regatta, proof of the respect and admiration other countries continue to bestow upon this timeless community.

Many of my constituents attended this event, and as a friend and co-founder of the Hellenic Caucus, I would like to say that I hope all who attended enjoyed a time filled with great sailing and great fun. Participants were the recipients of the Aegean’s best and most lasting prize, the hospitality of island residents.

I request that my colleagues join me in congratulating the Minister of the Aegean, Nikos Sifounakis, and the sailing community for participating in this wonderful event. We can all take pride in an extraordinary celebration of history and athleticism as well as an opportunity to forge new bonds among different people from different communities. Islanders, organizers, and competitors will have the opportunity to join together beneath the Aegean sky in universal friendship and understanding.

RECOGNIZING WILLIAM RALPH “BILL” ROUTON OF HOPE, ARKANSAS

HON. MIKE ROSS OF ARKANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to recognize the life and achievements of a man who was not only a personal friend, but a friend to his entire community and a respected civic leader in southwest Arkansas, Mr. William Ralph “Bill” Routon.

Bill passed away on August 26 at age 77 following a lengthy battle with heart and bone marrow related illnesses. He was a lifelong resident of Hope, Arkansas, where he was also a lifelong member of the Methodist church.

During World War II, Bill served his country for three years with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in England. Following his service, he returned to Arkansas to attend college at Henderson College and the University of Arkansas and then came home to take over the family farm and timber business.

As a resident and community leader in Hope, Bill served on the Hope School Board for 16 years during the crucial time in the 1960s and 1970s when the Hope schools were being integrated. He was also a member of the board of the School of Hope, a school for developmentally challenged children. For 40 years, he served on the board of the Citizens National Bank, where he would visit each day and greet customers. In 1993, he was appointed by Governor Jim Guy Tucker to the state’s Red River Commission, which promotes the economic viability of the southwest Arkansas region along the Red River.

At the First United Methodist Church in Hope, Bill was chairman of several boards and committees and was a leader in the Century Bible Class. In addition, he was a member of the board of Rose Hill Cemetery and an active member of local chapters of the Masons and the Shriners as well as a 50-year member of the Yellow Creek Hunting Club of McNab, Arkansas.

Bill could usually be spotted in his trademark khaki pants and diamond stickpin that he wore in place of a necktie. He was a friend to many in Hope and throughout Arkansas, including the late Virginia Clinton Kelley, mother of former President Bill Clinton. To those who knew him, he was regarded as a stalwart in the community, a true southern gentleman dedicated to his family and his fellow citizens. His passing is a great loss not only to his family and friends, but to the City of Hope and all the people of southwest Arkansas.

I am grateful for his friendship and his devotion to serving others, and I honor him for his lifetime of accomplishments. My thoughts and prayers are with his wife, Bonnie, his children and his loved ones.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE CYPRUS FEDERATION OF AMERICA, INC.

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 10, 2001

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the Cyprus Federation of America, Inc., which will be hosting its annual Awards Gala on September 28, 2001, and to pay tribute to the distinguished guests it will honor that evening. The Cyprus Federation of America is an umbrella organization representing the Cypriot American community in the United States. The largest Hellenic Cypriot community outside of Cyprus is located in the 14th congressional district, which I am fortunate to represent. As the founder and co-chair of the Hellenic Caucus, I am proud to be their representative.

This year the Cyprus Federation of America, Inc. will honor four individuals who have demonstrated an unparalleled commitment to the cause of justice and freedom for Cyprus, and to the preservation of the ideals and principles of the Hellenic American community. The President of the Republic of Cyprus, Glafcos Clerides will present the guests of honor with their awards. The honorees are, His Eminence Archbishop of the Cypriot Orthodox Church Inc. will honor four individuals who have demonstrated an unparalleled commitment to the cause of justice and freedom for Cyprus, and to the preservation of the ideals and principles of the Hellenic American community. The President of the Republic of Cyprus, Glafcos Clerides will present the guests of honor with their awards. The honorees are, His Eminence Archbishop of the Cypriot Orthodox Church, Mr. Andreas D. Comodromos, and Mr. Angelides, past president of Cyprus Federation of America, Inc. Mr. Angelides, past president of Cyprus Federation of America, Inc. Mr. Philip Angelides, Treasurer of the great state of California has provided outstanding leadership as a businessman, and civil servant. The policies and programs implemented by Mr. Angelides as Treasurer have been credited with bolstering the economic strength of California.

Mr. Angelides graduated from Harvard University and was a Core Foundation fellow. He served in California government for eight years, during which time he established a repu-
ment business, which quickly became a success.

Mr. Angelides has been active in the civic life of his community and State for more than 20 years. During which time he helped coordinate a unique bi-partisan civic committee, which helped reform the once troubled Sacramento City Unified School District. Mr. Angelides made history by becoming the first Greek American elected to statewide office in California. He and his wife Julie continue to reside in their hometown of Sacramento where they have three daughters: Megan, Christina and Arianna.

Mr. Andreas D. Comodromos is being honored with the Justice for Cyprus Award for his tireless work to bring justice and peace to Cyprus. Andreas was born in Famagusta Cyprus on March 27, 1949. The son of Demetrios and Aphrodite Comodromes, he was raised in the Village of Vatili and after completing high school served in the military. He then joined the Cyprus offices of American Life Insurance Co.

In 1973, he married American born Anna C. Zachaiades. They built their home in Cyprus, where they planned to raise their family. The 1974 Turkish invasion resulted in the loss of their home. In April of that year they emigrated to the United States where Andreas pursued his college degree. Mr. Comodromes graduated Magna Cum Laude from Saint Peter’s College in 1978, with a Bachelor of Science in

Throughout his life his devotion of God and spirituality played an integral role in his education and career aspirations. He entered the School of Theology of the National and Capodistrian University of Athens in 1946 where he received his theology degree and recognized for his outstanding work. In 1966, at the age of 32, he was invited to the office of the Diocese and in 1964 ordained as a priest. In 1965 he enrolled at Harvard University to pursue his Ph.D. He received scholarships to study at the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and was also honored with the prestigious Arthur Darby Nick Fellowship.

On June 20, 1967 he was elected Titular Bishop of Vresthena. He received a Doctorate of Philosophy from Harvard University in November 1971. In 1977, he received a second Doctorate in Theology from the Faculty of the School of Theology of the National and Capodistrian University of Athens. Three years later he was invited to teach at the Harvard University Divinity School as a visiting professor.

His academic and theological accomplishments made him an incomparable candidate for the position of Greek Orthodox Archbishop of North and South America, a position he was named to on September 18, 1999, and continues to hold to this very day.

The Honorable Philip Angelides, Treasurer of the great state of California has provided outstanding leadership as a businessman, and civil servant. The policies and programs implemented by Mr. Angelides as Treasurer have been credited with bolstering the economic strength of California.

Mr. Angelides graduated from Harvard University and was a Core Foundation fellow. He served in California government for eight years, during which time he established a repu-
ment business, which quickly became a success.

nate a unique bi-partisan civic committee, which helped reform the once troubled Sacramento City Unified School District. Mr. Angelides made history by becoming the first Greek American elected to statewide office in California. He and his wife Julie continue to reside in their hometown of Sacramento where they have three daughters: Megan, Christina and Arianna.

Mr. Andreas D. Comodromos is being honored with the Justice for Cyprus Award for his tireless work to bring justice and peace to Cyprus. Andreas was born in Famagusta Cyprus on March 27, 1949. The son of Demetrios and Aphrodite Comodromes, he was raised in the Village of Vatili and after completing high school served in the military. He then joined the Cyprus offices of American Life Insurance Co.

In 1973, he married American born Anna C. Zachaiades. They built their home in Cyprus, where they planned to raise their family. The 1974 Turkish invasion resulted in the loss of their home. In April of that year they emigrated to the United States where Andreas pursued his college degree. Mr. Comodromes graduated Magna Cum Laude from Saint Peter’s College in 1978, with a Bachelor of Science in Accounting. He later founded the accounting firm of Comodromos Associates, P.A. with his brother Michael. He has remained the President and managing partner of the firm, which is based in Paramus, NJ, ever since.

Andreas’s immense success in America has not diminished his love and appreciation for the land in which he was born, which is why he continues to work for justice and peace in Cyprus. He has held several positions on the Board of the Cyprus Federation of America and served as its President for two consecutive terms. He was also elected to the National Council of Saint Andrew the Apostle Abroad (SAE), North and South American Region. He continues to reside with his family in Kinnelon, New Jersey.

Nicholas Bouras is being honored with the Humanitarian and Philanthropic Award for his many contributions to various humanitarian and philanthropic efforts. Mr. Bouras was born in Pontiac, Michigan and was raised in Chicago, Illinois. In 1942 he enlisted in the U.S. Army Air Corps and served in combat in the European Theater of Operations during World War II. During his service he flew 42 combat missions in B–26 and A–26 medium bombers as a lead bombardier and navigator until the end of the war in Europe. He was discharged with the rank of major and awarded the distinguished Flying Cross, eight Air Medals and five Battle Stars.

In 1955, he graduated from the School of Commerce at Northwestern University, located in Evanston, Illinois. Beginning in 1940, Mr. Bouras worked for the United States Steel Corporation for nearly two decades. In 1960 he began his own steel construction company with his lifetime partner, Anna K. Bouras. He continues to work as the owner and president of Bouras Industries, which now has locations in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and South Carolina and approximately 750 employees.

Mr. Bouras is also the founder of the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church in Westfield, New Jersey. He is also a member of the Archdiocesan Council and a member of the Executive Board of the Archdiocesan Council of America for which he also serves as Secretary. He is a member of the National Board of the Order of St. Andrew the Apostle and also serves as its Executive Vice President.

In 1999 he too received the Ellis Island Medal of Honor and a year later was awarded the Lifetime Achievement Award from the American Subcontractors Association of New Jersey. Ernst and Young awarded him the 2000 entrepreneur Award and in 2001 he was presented with the Hellenic Heritage Achievement Award by the American Hellenic Institute. On May 19, 2001 he was awarded a Doctorate of the Humanities by the Hellenic College of Holy Cross. In March 2001 the American Hellenic Institute of Political Affairs Committee (AHIPAC) honored him for his outstanding contributions to the Hellenic Community.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring the Cyprus Federation of America, Inc. and its distinguished guests for their tremendous accomplishments, and tireless efforts for human rights and justice for Cyprus.

HONORING ST. JAMES EPISCOPAL CHURCH

HON. SCOTT McNINIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. McNINIS. Mr. Speaker, as the United States expanded westward and Colorado’s western slope was essentially untouched wilderness, Episcopalian clergy decided to place the first church in the region at Lake City, Colorado. 125 years later, this church is celebrating its founding and I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the congregation’s dedication and perseverance since its inception.

The Right Reverend John Franklin Spalding, Episcopal Bishop of Colorado, and Reverend C.M. Hoge conducted the original services and confirmation processes for the church in 1876. After many trips and openings of other church organizations, Bishop Spalding recalled that the church at Lake City was the first church in the Lake City area. Today, the church continues to honor the efforts of Bishop Spalding and after relocating to numerous sites throughout the town, the Episcopal services were finally housed at a former carpentry shop and one-room schoolhouse in 1877.

Lake City has the honor of hosting four churches and St. James Episcopal Church most resembles its original design. A Gothic-style 1910 Estey organ still fills the sanctuary with its unique tones. The balance between traditional architecture and contemporary style 1910 Estey organ still fills the sanctuary with its unique tones. The balance between traditional architecture and contemporary style.

Despite the small size of the church, with an average attendance of 40 people during the summer and 10 throughout the winter, the setting is conducive to intimate teachings and reflection. Mr. Speaker, the St. James Episcopal Church has withstood many tests of time and continues to provide a place of worship for the Lake City community. It is truly a great landmark and I would like to congratulate the congregation on their successes and extend my warmest regards and wish them the very best in years to come.

TAIWAN’S UNITED NATIONS MEMBERSHIP

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, Taiwan, a thriving democracy, a strong advocate of human rights and fundamental freedoms, and a bastion of economic strength, deserves membership to the United Nations on behalf of its 23 million citizens. With the election of its President—Chen Shui-bian—in a free and fair election last year, Taiwan continues to strengthen its democracy by improving safeguards for human rights and contributing to the international community.

Since his election, President Chen has continually sought to resume dialogue with the Chinese mainland regarding eventual reunification. Despite this effort, Taiwan’s efforts to participate in international organizations has often been thwarted for political reasons beyond Taiwan’s control. It is unreasonable for the people of Taiwan to be excluded from full participation in international constituencies. Due to threats from mainland China, denying Taiwan membership in the United Nations and other international organizations, such as the World Health Organization, obstructs access to important international resources.

For the past several years, both Houses of the U.S. Congress have consistently introduced and passed legislation relating to Taiwan’s meaningful participation and membership in the United Nations. This important legislation restates our support and our commitment to the progress of Taiwan’s democracy. We believe that Taiwan’s full and equal membership in the United Nations and other international organizations is long overdue. The rationale of the world community in 1971 was that they were righting one wrong in giving China a seat in the United Nations. Now it is time to right the wrong created at that time, namely the U.N. disenfranchisement of Taiwan’s citizens.

In order to strengthen the prestige and authority of the United Nations, it is now necessary to grant the people of Taiwan United Nations membership.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MICHAEL G. OXLEY
OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I was unavoidably absent from the House floor during Thursday’s roll call vote on H.R. 2833.

Had I been present, I would have voted in favor of this bill to promote freedom and democracy in Vietnam.

BROWN VERSUS BOARD OF EDUCATION

HON. J.C. WATTS, JR.
OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, the United States Constitution guarantees liberty and equal opportunity to the people of the United States. Historically, however, these fundamental rights have not always been provided.

In the early beginnings of U.S. history, education was withheld from people of African descent. In some states it was against the law for African Americans to learn to read and write. Later, throughout America’s history, the educational system mandated separate schools for children based solely on race. In many instances, the schools for African American children were substandard facilities with out-of-date textbooks and insufficient supplies. However, on May 17, 1954, in the landmark case aimed at ending segregation in public schools—Brown versus the Board of Education—the United States Supreme Court issued a unanimous decision that “separate educational facilities are inherently unequal," and as such, violate the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution, which guarantees all citizens, "equal protection of the laws." The Brown decision effectively denied the legal basis for segregation in states with segregated classrooms and invalidated a decision throughout the United States. This decision brought all Americans one step closer to attaining equal opportunities in education.

In remembrance of the Brown decision, we must remain steadfast in our efforts to make sure that all children receive the very best education imaginable. Therefore, I urge all of my colleagues to join with me today in supporting the establishment of a commission to encourage and provide for the commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Brown v. Board of Education Supreme Court decision.

PROMOTING SAFE AND STABLE FAMILIES AMENDMENTS OF 2001

HON. BENJAMIN L. CARPIN
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. CARPIN. Mr. Speaker, I am joining my colleague, Representative WALLY HERGER, the Chairman of Ways and Means Subcommittee on Human Resources, in introducing legislation today to reauthorize and increase funding for the Promoting Safe and Stable Families Program. This legislation would raise the funding level for this important child welfare program from $305 million to $505 million per year. In addition, the measure would provide new educational assistance for children who have aged out of foster care, and establish a new mentoring program for the children of prisoners. I commend Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson for providing us with detailed legislative language on the President’s proposals in this area, although I was disappointed to see the Administration’s recent mid-session review of its budget proposal backtrack on the President’s prior commitment to fully implementing these much-needed policies.

The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimates the bill would have outlays of $38 million in FY 2002, meaning that it would not dip into the Social Security Trust Funds (CBO projects a $2 billion non-Social Security budget surplus in FY 2002). However, we do need to carefully evaluate the impact of this new spending on Social Security funds in future years. We must maintain a responsible budget framework that does not use Social Security funding to finance spending or tax policies. I am prepared to make sufficient budgetary changes to ensure this new legislation meets that test.

As the Nation, we rightfully provide temporary foster homes to children when they are victims of abuse and neglect. However, we do not currently do enough to prevent abuse from occurring in the first place, or to avert it from re-occurring once a problem is identified. This is exactly the purpose of the Promoting Safe and Stable Families Program, which serves families in, or at-risk of becoming involved in, the child welfare system. States have broad discretion in spending funds from this program for services designed to support at-risk families, to reunify families in an environment safe for children, and to promote adoption when children cannot safely return home. More specifically, States can provide counseling, parenting skills classes, respite services, mental health care, comprehensive caseworker oversight, and foster care post-adoption assistance and substance abuse treatment. On this last issue, I believe we should establish a separate program with a dedicated funding stream to address the pervasive connection between parents abusing drugs and alcohol and the incidence of child abuse. Hopefully, that will be our next step after the passage of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, with nearly 1 million confirmed cases of child abuse and neglect every year, we must increase our Nation’s commitment to helping at-risk families and to ensuring safe and nurturing homes for defenseless children. This legislation is not a magic wand that will singlehandedly eradicate child abuse, but it is an important step in our continuing effort to keep children safe and to help families succeed. I urge my colleagues to support this important measure.

COMMENDING THE GENEROUS GIFT BY THE HALLMARK CHANNEL AND JIM HENSON COMPANY TO THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

HON. KAREN McCARTHY
OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Ms. McCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to salute the Hallmark Channel in partnership with the Jim Henson Company for their recent gift to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Their generous contribution of this license will help the Commission relaunch a national v-chip campaign utilizing Kermit the Frog as the official "spokesfrog" empowering parents with the tools they need to control the programming that their children view.

The Hallmark Channel and Jim Henson Company have recognized the importance of the v-chip and ratings initiatives in empowering viewers to control what comes into their homes over their television sets. Last year, these companies developed an award-winning promotional campaign that designated the world famous and beloved figure of Kermit the Frog as the official "spokesfrog" empowering parents with the tools they need to control the programming that their children view. The Hallmark Channel and Jim Henson Company have repeated this leadership by giving the FCC a license to use Kermit on the informational materials that it distributes. The Commission just completed publication of this new brochure for widespread dissemination.

I am proud to have the world headquarters of Hallmark located in my home district in Kansas City, Missouri. The company has a long history of serving the metropolitan Kansas City area as well as other communities throughout the nation. Hallmark has repeatedly demonstrated its civic commitment through its advertising and the Jim Henson Company’s award-winning programs. The powerful message of these award winning programs bring meaningful and wholesome entertainment into our living rooms. Its leadership in partnering with the Salvation Army has turned the donation of greeting cards to a prison chaplain for distribution to inmates so they may stay in touch with their families into a national model of rehabilitation involving both the federal and state prisons.

Hallmark not only provides millions of dollars annually to outstanding charitable causes, it has repeatedly been recognized as one of the most outstanding places to work in the country. Its creative environment is family-focused, which invites its associates to excel and want to come to work each day. Clearly, Hallmark is an outstanding national model of corporate citizenship.

Mr. Speaker, please join me and our colleagues in the United States House of Representatives in commending the Hallmark Channel and Jim Henson Company for this generous gift to the FCC. Their ongoing efforts to provide the viewing public with family-friendly programming choices, and their help in educating the public about the v-chip and the ratings systems are greatly appreciated.

HONORING FRANK NELSON

HON. SCOTT McINNIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, September 10, 2001

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to remember the life of Frank Nelson who passed away on Wednesday, September 5, 2001. Frank was the Director of Colorado’s Commission for Persons with Disabilities for over a decade and I would like to recognize him for his contributions to the Denver community and for his diligent efforts and dedication.

Frank was born in New Hampshire and relocated to Denver, Colorado when he was 2 years old. In 1981, he graduated with a degree in education from the University of Colorado. Following his formal education, Frank was employed by the Montana Independent Living Project, but returned to Denver in 1984 to work as a social worker and vocational counselor.

During his tenure as the Director of the Commission, Frank and his colleagues strived to enhance the accessibility of municipal areas and sought to ensure that parking laws were enforced for the sake of the disabled. Besides these tasks, Frank’s team also worked in conjunction with other parts of the city government to review new building plans and make them more accommodating for everyone.

Whether it was the new construction of the Performing Arts Center, Coors Field or Denver Performing Arts Center, Frank always challenged the project for the benefit of disabled citizens. Due in part to his efforts, Denver was recognized as “America’s most wheelchair friendly city” by New Mobility Magazine in 1997.

Mr. Speaker, Frank was an outstanding citizen who constantly watched out for the well being of everyone, particularly the disabled. His contributions in Denver have aided numerous people in living life to its fullest extent. I would like to take this time to recognize Frank’s hard work on the behalf of others and extend my deepest thanks and condolences to his family at this time of remembrance. Frank was a great man and will be missed by many.
Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment and pay tribute to the passing of a valuable member of our community. The life of Jim Bray, a former resident of Snowmass, Colorado, was cut short at the age of 66 when he was hit by a car in front of his home in Prescott, Arizona. I would like his wife, Susan, and his sons, Alexander and Dennis, to know that many hearts are reaching out to them in their time of mourning. Jim Bray was an accomplished man with a strong character. He was born in Halstead, Kansas in 1935. He graduated from high school in Houston, Texas in 1953 after which he attended both the University of Houston and the University of Hawaii. He then went on to serve in the United States Marine Corps and the United States Air Force. His enduring drive led to a respected career as a professional hotel manager eventually bringing him to Snowmass, Colorado where he was a driving force behind the construction of the Snowmass Resort Association’s Conference Center. Although he remained there for only 5 years, he had made a valuable contribution to the community that will endure for years to come.

Mr. Speaker, although the sudden death of Jim Bray is certainly unexpected, his memory will live in the hearts of many. His contributions and service to the community and the United States will not be forgotten. I would like to extend my deepest sympathy to the family and friends of Jim Bray. He will surely be missed.

HONORING CONNI LOGAN

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with a solemn heart that I would like to acknowledge the loss of a valuable member of our community. Conni Logan suffered from a brief illness that took her life on August 13, 2001, at the age of 59. Conni was a loving wife and mother who had a deep passion for the arts and dedicated her life to teaching that appreciation to others. Conni was born in 1942 as one of seven children in a family that valued and encouraged diversity. She went on to graduate from college with a degree in psychology after which she received master’s degrees in art history and exhibition design.

Although living in Santa Fe, New Mexico when she passed, she had made valuable contributions to the State of Colorado as an educator. In 1993, she was a Program Director at the Aspen Campus of the Colorado Mountain College, Center for Excellence in Arts. In addition to curating 30 art exhibits during her time there, she also developed and instructed art history and principles in art courses at the college’s telecourse center. Her move to Santa Fe gave her the opportunity to work at the Santa Fe Children’s Museum and the Conlon Siegel Galleries.

Mr. Speaker, Conni made valuable contributions to the education of our community and through her creativity and leadership gave many a greater appreciation for the arts. Conni Logan will be remembered as a woman who saw the beauty of the world in a way that most of us do not experience. I would like to extend my deepest sympathy to those close to Conni, as she will surely be missed.

HONORING POLICE OFFICER KEN KIECK UPON HIS RETIREMENT

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, after 20 years of gracious service to Glenwood Springs, Colorado, Ken Kieck has opted to retire as a member of the police force there. To serve the public in such a capacity is a position worthy of praise and I would like to recognize Ken’s contributions to the people of Glenwood. Ken constantly acted with high levels of energy as he trained new officers just entering the ranks in the department. The new officers referred to Ken as the “Answer Guy.” He was very concerned with the proper education of new officers and sought to ensure that they were taught the correct way the first time in every matter. Throughout his time on the force, Ken served as a patrolman, an interim Sergeant and an administrative officer.

To honorably serve the public is a great task and Ken’s work has been one of pride and dedication. While Glenwood is safer due to the efforts of this officer, his contributions will be missed. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Ken Kieck for all that he has done and extend my warmest regard and best wishes to him upon his retirement and for many years to come.

HONORING THE RETIREMENT OF POLICE OFFICER SGT. TOM MCCORKLE

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, to place your life in the line of duty day in and day out for the sake of others is an honorable and noble task, yet that is exactly what police officers do daily. Sgt. Tom McCorkle, who served as an officer in Glenwood Springs, has recently announced his retirement after 23 years and I would like to accentuate the importance that he played in the community and thank him for his dedicated service.

Prior to his service in Glenwood, Tom was a police officer for four years in California. Glenwood Police Chief Terry Wilson noted how incredibly quick and accurate Tom was in all that he did. Sgt. McCorkle suffered a shoulder injury from an incident in which he was saving a person’s life in 1984. Despite many attempts to heal his shoulder, its hindrance has forced Tom to end his career in public service.

Mr. Speaker, Sgt. Tom McCorkle acted with great professionalism in all that he did throughout his career. He truly sought to ensure that pride and respect was upheld in conjunction with the community. Tom never forgot that safety and protection were the most important part of the service he offered to the people he served. It is with great pride that I recognize Tom and I would like to extend my appreciation to him for the difference he has done and wish him the best upon his retirement and many years to come.

HONORING PHIL MASON

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to remember an honorable and distinguished man who served the State of Colorado for nearly three decades as a Colorado Division of Wildlife officer. It is with profound sadness that I now rise to honor the life and memory of Mr. Phil Mason who recently passed away.

Phil was a caring and compassionate individual who was dedicated to teaching youngsters about wildlife and their surroundings in Hinsdale County. Phil, for example, would often bring an injured eagle or hawk to the local elementary school to give children a first-hand experience with nature. He worked in Lake City as a Colorado Division of Wildlife officer, and was also engaged civically as Mayor and as Trustee on the Town Board of Lake city. Phil was committed to his State and to his community by putting the interests of others before his own. Phil established himself in his community as an outstanding, hard-working, and respectable man who could be counted on as a friend, coworker, and teacher. Literally everyone turned to Phil for guidance and friendship. Phil’s memory will live on with those whose lives have been touched by him. Mr. Speaker, at the age of 60, Mr. Phil Mason will be especially missed by his wife, two children, and brother. As family and friends mourn his passing, his compassion will shine through the hearts of those close to him and to those who knew him best. I would like to extend my deepest sympathy and warmest regards to his family during this time of remembrance. Phil Mason will surely be missed.

REMEMBERING MR. ED BRADBURY

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to remember a caring and compassionate family man from Salida, Colorado who has recently passed. It is with profound sadness that I now rise to honor the life and memory of Mr. Ed Bradbury. Born and raised in Granite, Ed was a dedicated citizen who spent time with the U.S. Army in Germany before heading back home to Salida in order to pursue a life in public service. Ed was elected to the Salida City Council for 10 years prior to being elected as a Chaffee County Commissioner where he served diligently for eight years.
During this time, Ed worked hard for the people of Salida and Chaffee County and was known as a person who accomplished much during his time in office. He was also well known as the owner of the Salida Sweet Shop, which brought joy and happiness to countless children.

Sadly, Ed died after falling down a mineshaft near his birthplace of Granite, Colorado, in a mine he had worked since 1954. His family, friends, and those people whom he had served throughout his career as a public servant will miss Ed dearly. His wife, Estella and their three daughters Charlene, Theresa, and Dianna will solely miss their caring husband and father.

Mr. Speaker, at the age of 71, Ed Bradbury will be remembered and appreciated for his family values and devotion towards the public sector. As family and friends mourn his passing, his lessons and service will live forever in the hearts of those who knew him and whom he assisted. I would like to extend my deepest sympathy to his family at this time of remembrance. Ed Bradbury will surely be missed.
SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Tuesday, September 11, 2001 may be found in the Daily Digest of today’s RECORD.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

The public proceedings of each House of Congress, as reported by the Official Reporters thereof, are printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed at one time. Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available through GPO Access at www.gpo.gov/gpoaccess. Customers can also access this information with WAIS client software, via telnet at swais.access.gpo.gov, or dial-in using communications software and a modem at (202) 512-1661. Questions or comments regarding this database or GPO Access can be directed to the GPO Access Support Team at: E-Mail: gpoaccess@gpo.gov; Phone 1–888–293–6498 (toll-free), 202–512–1530 (D.C. area); Fax: 202–512–1262. The Team’s hours of availability are Monday through Friday, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, except Federal holidays. The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $197.00 for six months, $383.00 per year, or purchased for $4.00 per issue, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $171.40 per year, or purchased for $1.50 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. To place an order for any of these products, visit the U.S. Government Online Bookstore at: bookstore.gpo.gov. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O. Box 371984, Pittsburgh, PA 15259–7984, or phone orders to (202) 512–1800, or fax to (202) 512–2250. Remit check or money order, made payable to the Superintendent of Documents, or use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, or GPO Deposit Account. Following each session of Congress, the daily Congressional Record is revised, printed, permanently bound and sold by the Superintendent of Documents in individual parts or by sets. With the exception of copyrighted articles, there are no restrictions on the republication of material from the Congressional Record.
