The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable ZELL MILLER, a Senator from the State of Georgia.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Lord God, Sovereign of this Nation, we praise You for the gift of authentic hope. More than wishful thinking, yearning, or shallow optimism, we turn to You for lasting hope. We have learned that true hope is based on the expectation of interventions by Your Spirit that are always on time and in time. You are the intervening Lord of the Passover, the opening of the Red Sea, and the giving of the Ten Commandments. You have vanquished the forces of evil, death, and fear through the Cross and the Resurrection. All through the history of our Nation, You have blessed us with Your providential care. It is with gratitude that we affirm, “Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord.”—Psalm 33:12.

May this sacred season, including Passover and Holy Week, be a time of the rebirth of hope in us. May Your Spirit of hope displace the discordant spirit of cynicism, discouragement, and disunity. Hope through us, O God of Hope. Flow through us patiently until we hope for one another what You have hoped for us. Then Lord, give us the vision and the courage to confront those problems that have made life seem hopeless for some people. Make us communicators of hope. We trust our lives, the work of this Senate, and the future of our Nation into Your all-powerful hands. In the name of the Hope of the world. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The Honorable ZELL MILLER led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

PRIVACY PROTECTIONS
Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I want to draw to the attention of our colleagues in the Senate and also to the American people the unfortunate decision by this administration to recommend that we alter and change some enormously important privacy protections. These protections were recommended by the previous administration—by President Clinton—that were scheduled to go into effect about a year from now. These protections to ensure the privacy of medical records. I will speak on the substance of the issue in a moment.

What I find equally distressing is that we are seeing a series of actions taken by the administration—this is just the latest example—where the administration seems to be opting in favor of protections and regulations at the expense of individuals. In this case, the administration is acting at the expense of the medical privacy of our fellow citizens.

We have recently seen the administration effectively undermine the very sensible and responsible ergonomics recommendations to try to protect people in the workplace. This affects 800,000 workers—primarily women—in our society. Those workers are risking their health without protection. In this case, we saw the administration siding with the companies and corporations at the expense of workers.

We have seen it most recently in the Enron situation. We have seen individuals who are the major players in the corporations walking away with millions and millions of dollars, and the workers seeing their life's savings eliminated. And just this week, we tried to push in protections and regulations in the future. The administration opposed those particular recommendations.

In an entirely different area, we see where the administration has come down on the side of the major health corporations at the expense of individuals on the powerful issue of medical privacy and medical records. The most sensitive information that individuals have is in their medical records.

We have seen over the period of this last year and a half a considerable amount of dialog and discussion, and a number of hearings. We had recommendations in place, which were to go into effect about a year from now. These were announced by the previous administration in response to a requirement put into law in what we call the HIPAA legislation—Kassebaum-Kennedy legislation that dealt with health insurance portability and accountability.

We put in that legislation a requirement on the administration to come forward with medical records protections.

But announced yesterday and today was the decision by the administration to recommend that we wipe away the most important protections that individuals have; that is, their ability to say, no, I will not share the information that is in my medical records.

In the existing proposed regulations, an individual could say, all right, the hospital or the doctor could share it with the insurance company, but that is all they could share it with.

It permitted individuals to say that some information is so sensitive that they do not want to share it with the insurance company. They could pay for a doctor rather than sending the information to their insurer—which could very well come back, as it so often does, to their employer.

We have not passed legislation that will prohibit discrimination against individuals in the workplace—even genetic discrimination.

This is the most sensitive information. We had the promulgation of rules and regulations under the administration that were to go into effect next year. It is surrounding information which is of the most sensitive nature.

The American people give a high priority to privacy. They do not want to have their own private lives infringed on by corporations or governmental agencies. They hold their medical information in the highest order of priority.

For the administration to side with the medical corporate world in being willing to share some sensitive information which individuals do not want shared, I think, is an infringement on the rights to privacy for Americans that this country will not and should not tolerate.

In our committee, we will have hearings on this administration's proposal as soon as we return from the April recess. We will introduce legislation to ensure the protection of privacy for the American public.

I see my friend from Connecticut, Senator Dodd, who has worked on this issue. Our colleague from Vermont, Senator Leahy, has been a leader on this issue. It has not been a partisan issue. It has been bipartisan in nature. But it is of the utmost importance and consequence.

Privacy is an enormously important value for our fellow citizens. To try at the stroke of a pen to say that your medical records are not going to be protected is a violation of the most important and basic privacy rights of an individual. It is wrong. It is basically a surrender to major corporate interests.

We have seen that too often in recent times.

We want an administration that is going to represent the best in terms of protecting our individual rights and our individual liberties, and not always be serving the large medical corporate interests. The administration's decision has been recommended, suggested, and supported by those interests.

It is wrong. We are going to do everything we possibly can to prevent it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. Dodd. Madam President, I commend my colleague from Massachusetts. I had no idea he was coming over to the floor to address an issue which he has spent a great deal of time on over the years. I found myself outraged when I awoke this morning and saw the headline in our local newspaper, "Medical Privacy Changes Proposed."

I do not have any long prepared speech to give, but I associate myself with the remarks of my friend and colleague from Massachusetts. We have worked hard over the years to try to see to it that people's privacy is protected.

We know today, as a result of technology, the gathering of information, consumers want the right to know, but they also want the right to say no when it comes to having access to some of the most private and personal information.

We would not tolerate allowing someone to break into your home and rifle through your closets and to find out, without any justification, the most personal details of your life or your family's life. Yet what the administration is doing here, in a sense, is going to allow people to come into your private life, and when it comes to the most personal and private information about you and your family—your medical history—and the damage that can be done to people with that kind of information is simply a terribly disappointed this morning to hear that the administration is going to be rolling back regulations that are designed to protect people. They are doing so, they claim, in the name of ensuring more rapid care. Well, I say shame on them. Shame on them for pitting care against your right to protect you and your family from people knowing your personal and private information.

That is not what this is all about, wanting to protect you and getting you better care. We know people want access to this information. We know why they want access to the information. That is why people are so concerned. This is not about liberals or conservatives, Democrats and Republicans. This is about the fact that we, as Americans, feel deeply and strongly about our right to have private information kept private.

There is a growing fear in our society of technology being used not only to improve our lives, as it is in so many ways, but to make it easier for people to rifle through our medicine cabinets, peer into our checkbooks, and be able to track us on Internet activities. It worries Americans that this is becoming far too prevalent.

What we need to have is our Government standing up for individual citizens who cannot hire lawyers, who do not have the resources to go out and pay for people to bring lawsuits when this kind of information is abused or misused. We need to stand with them and say: Look, if you want to have this information, you have to get the patient's and the family's permission. In many cases, of course, families are willing to give that permission and you have to ask for it, and you have to get their permission to do so. The idea that you could bypass them and just decide... you are going to have access to that information, without securing the patient’s approval in order to have access to that information, I think is just downright wrong.

I am heartened to know that the chairman of this Committee, Senator SHELBY, you will, on privacy along with my colleagues from Alabama, Senator SHELBY, I think he may have already gone back to his home State of Alabama. He may have left last evening. He was not here this morning. But I wanted to invite him to join me in this Chamber, as he has on I don’t think it is a valid point, it comes to these privacy issues, to stand up to say that we are going to insist that people have the right to say no.

I cannot speak for him here, but I am confident that when the Senator from Alabama comes back on this issue, his voice and his words will not be significantly different than what I have said here already and that, in a bipartisan way, we will be standing up, very strongly, in seeing to it that this proposed rule change is not going to just fly through here without significant opposition.

THE FAMILY AND MEDICAL LEAVE ACT

Mr. DODD. Madam President, I rise to raise concern about a 5-to-4 decision that was reached earlier this week by the Supreme Court on the Family and Medical Leave Act.

not do that. Almost every other industrialized, advanced nation in the world provides for paid leave under these circumstances. We don't do that. I regret that. But I don't have 51 votes for that in this Chamber. I had to do what I could do. So unpaid leave is the best I could do.

The fact that millions of people have been able to take advantage of that is something for which I am very proud. I hope we can come back to this issue of notice. This has been a positive benefit for a lot of people. But a lot of people are unaware that the law exists. Some general notice tacked up on a bulletin board someplace means that an awful lot of people probably wouldn't find out about it. Specific notice makes more sense to me.

My hope is the administration will promulgate a regulation that will call for specific notification and tailor it accordingly so it will not run afoul of the Supreme Court decision reached 5 to 4 a few days ago.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from North Dakota.

FAST TRACK AUTHORITY

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, yesterday the majority leader of the Senate described the conditions under which he intended to bring to the Senate legislation authorizing trade promotion authority. That is a euphemism for fast-track authority.

President Bush has requested of this Congress that we give him fast-track trade authority. Like Presidents before him, he has asked to be allowed to negotiate trade treaties and bring them to Congress for expedited consideration, without any amendments, under any circumstance, for any purpose.

I opposed fast-track authority for President Clinton, and I will oppose it for President Bush. I do not believe Congress should grant fast-track authority. I think it is undemocratic. I do not believe it is necessary for us to have fast-track authority in order to negotiate trade agreements. We negotiate the most sophisticated agreements without fast-track authority. Nuclear arms treaties are negotiated and brought to the Congress without fast-track authority. Only trade agreements, we are told, must have this handcuff put around Members of Congress, so they cannot offer any amendments.

The reason I care about this is I have watched trade agreement after trade agreement be negotiated, often trading away the interests of producers in the United States, only to discover the problems that arise cannot be solved by these agreements.

To give an example, the White House negotiated a trade agreement with Canada, under fast-track trade authority, at the time. I was a member of the House Ways and Means Committee. The trade agreement came back to the House, to the Ways and Means Committee, and the vote in committee for that trade agreement was 24 to 17. As the lone vote against the agreement.

The chairman of the committee came to me and said: Congressman Dorgan, we must have a unanimous vote. It is very important that the only one who is holding it out. It is really important you understand that Canada is our biggest trading partner, our neighbor to the north. The administration has negotiated this with great care. We really want our farmers, taking money right out of our farmers' pockets. Nothing could be done about it because I could not amend the trade agreement. Our hands were tied. That is what fast-track trade authority is all about.

Let me talk about trade for a few minutes and why I am going to oppose this fast-track resolution when it comes to the Senate. I and some others in the Senate—Senator BYRD has described his opposition—will be trying to slow down the fast track bill, and to ultimately defeat it.

Let me describe why. It is not because we are protectionists. It is not because we want to build a wall around our country. Those of us who oppose fast track believe in expanded trade. We believe trade is good for our country. We believe expanded trade and breaking down barriers in foreign markets makes our country. We believe all of that. We also believe and insist and demand that trade be fair.

Let me point out what the Constitution says about trade. The U.S. Constitution, article I, section 8, says: The Congress shall have the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations—and the President, not the executive branch, but the Congress and only the Congress. Congress shall make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into effect the foregoing power. In other words, Congress relinquishes its responsibility. We will let someone else go negotiate a trade treaty, go into a room, shut the door, and in private, in secret, negotiate a trade treaty, and then bring it back to the Congress. Why would we tie behind national security, as we will not be able to offer any amendments. That is what fast-track trade authority is all about.

I will use a chart to describe one piece of trade that I think demonstrates the bankruptcy of what has been going on in international trade. The example I have in mind involves trade with Korea in automobiles. Now, someone watching or listening on CNN or someone in this Chamber might well drive a Korean car. If you own one for you. You have a right to drive it. Korean cars are sold all over this country. You can go to a dealership, and buy a car from Korea, from Japan, from Europe. That is consumer choice. I would never be critical of that.

But the fact that there are lots of Korean cars coming to our country does not mean that there is free trade. You have to look at both sides of the equation. Last year the country of Korea sent to the United States 569,000 Korean automobiles. How many cars made in the United States are sold in Korea? Only 1,700. I repeat, we purchased in the United States 570,000 Korean cars and the Koreans purchased 1,700 from us.

Let me also describe how this happens. Korea does not want American cars in Korea. Under the World Trade Organization, tariff barriers to sending American cars to Korea have come down. Why would we let more cars into Korea? In January, an English-language Korean newspaper published an article describing the trade barriers faced by imported cars in the Korean marketplace. It is based on a report put out by a Korean state-run think tank, the Korea Institute for International Economic Policy. The report cites a widespread climate of fear and intimidation associated with imported cars, including threats of physical harm. Now, this is a report from a Korean think tank, saying that Koreans face threats of physical harm, lengthy safety test procedures, and discrimination by the traffic police.

An especially flagrant example of unfair trade that caught my attention: Korean importers have been frustrated in their inability to showcase foreign cars at the Seoul Motor Show, the biggest car show in Korea. In May of 2000, the distributors put on their own import motor show. As the import show began, to attract interest at the show, orders for foreign cars, the Korean Ministry of Finance announced the selling of any cars with engine displaced at greater than 3,000 cc—which is effectively any imported car—would have to be reported to it. This had an immediate chilling effect on prospective buyers; a lot of car orders were canceled due to fears of tax audits and the like.

In January of this year, the deputy U.S. trade representative, Jon Huntsman, stated that “Korea had somehow become a dynamic exporter without becoming an equally dynamic importer, dampering the competition companies need to keep their edge in the global marketplace.”

This is an example of an intolerable trade situation.

Let me give you another example, about Brazilian sugar. There is a tariff on sugar, but none on molasses. So what happens? Brazilian sugar is sent into the United States through Canada disguised as molasses. It is shipped from Brazil to Canada, loaded on as liquid molasses, and becomes stuffed molasses. When returned to Canada from Canada to the United States. The sugar is unloaded from the stuffed molasses. The molasses go back to Canada, and the whole process is repeated. This is fundamentally unfair trade. It goes on all the time, under our noses. And nothing is being done about it—nothing. No one is willing to lift a little finger to resolve these problems. All they want to do is go to the next trade issue.

Over $100 million in U.S. beef per year gets into Europe. Now, I have here a picture of what a typical U.S. cow, or heifer might look like. It happens to be a Hereford. That is what I raised when I was a kid. Now, our cattle are sometimes fed hormones, and to hear the Europeans describe it, our cattle are two heads. Absurd, of course. We buy a lot from Europe every single year, but we cannot get beef into Europe.

There is so much more. Every pound of beef we send into Japan at the moment, 12 years after we had a beef agreement with Japan, has a 38 1/2 percent tariff. Each pound of beef has a 38 1/2 percent tariff attached when we send it to Japan. That is after we had a beef agreement. We had all the negotiators over there who reached a big deal with Japan. It was front-page headlines across the country: Beef agreement with Japan. Good for us.

The agreement provided there will be a 50 percent tariff on all United States beef, which will go up over time, but snap back as the quantity increases. We have gotten more beef into Japan, yes, but 12 years after the agreement, we still have a 38 1/2 percent tariff on each pound of beef going into Japan.

We ought to expect to get more T-bones into Tokyo. That is my cry: T-bones to Tokyo; pork chops to China. Get rid of stuffed molasses to China. How about cars to Korea?

How about asking those who are supposed to represent our country to stop worrying about the next agreement and fix a few of the problems we have created for American workers and American businesses? I am perfectly willing to ask Americans to compete anywhere under any circumstances as long as the competition is fair.

I said in the Chamber before, it is not fair because someone puts a 12-year-old in a factory, 7,000 miles from here, works them 12 hours a day, pays them 12 cents an hour, keeps the doors locked, and ships the product to a store shelf in Pittsburgh, Fargo, or Denver. That is good for the consumer in terms of low prices, but it is not fair trade and it is not fair to America’s producers.

We had a hearing one day in which we were told about how some people who make carpets in central Asia and the Middle East. Put the young kids, 8-, 10-, 12-year-old kids, in the factories, and they use needles to work with the carpets. They put gunpowder on the tips of their fingers and lit the gunpowder to burn them, so that the tips of their finger became deeply scarred from the burns. That way, when the kids were making carpets and they would stick their fingers with the needle it would feel it and it would not hurt—no downtime. And then the carpets end up on a store shelf somewhere in the United States. Fair trade? I don’t think so. Abusing children is not fair trade just because a product is getting manufactured at lower costs. Abusing children is just plain abusing children.

We ought not have any on any store shelf in any place in this country the product of slave labor wages. We should not be letting in women’s blouses made in a factory in Honduras where the doors are locked and people are paid slave wages—we ought not have that on the store shelves of this country. That is not good for consumers. It is not good for anybody.

This country needs to be a leader in demanding fair trade. We do not do that. We want to pass fast track so we can do another trade agreement, and essentially keep our eyes on what is going on in the old agreements and move on to the next one.

I got involved with this issue because of wheat farmers in North Dakota. After the United States-Canada free trade agreement, I watched all that Canadian grain being dumped into our country, money taken from the pockets of our farmers and ranchers. They are furious about it, as well they should be.

On March 6, the U.S. trade ambassador stood up for the American steel industry. He said: We will slap tariffs on the Canadians workers and America’s producers? Do we demand fair trade or don’t we?

In this town there are only two recognized views of trade. You either are a protectionist xenophobic stooge who just doesn’t get it and can’t see over the horizon and can’t see the big picture, or you are for global trade, expanded trade, opportunity, and jobs for the future. That is the way the issue is presented. You are either kind of a nut present. You are either kind of a nut future, or you are for global trade, expanded trade, opportunity, and jobs for the future. That is the way the issue is presented. You are either kind of a nut present. You are either kind of a nut
That is the most thoughtless bunch of nonsense I ever heard. That is not an adequate description of the views of trade we ought to embrace. There ought not be anyone who is worried about standing up on the floor of the Senate and saying: Look, I stand up for this country’s interests, I stand up for the interests of people who work in this country, who produce textiles, who work on the manufacturing floor, and who produce automobiles, who work in the fields and produce grain or livestock.

Our government is not ensuring a level playing field. We have stacked the deck with bad international trade agreements, ineffective trade negotiators and bad agreements, one after the other. Now we are told, let’s implement fast-track authority again so we can have a new agreement. I say to those who demand fast-track authority, please fix a few of the old problems and then come back and we will talk about new agreements. Fix some of the old problems first.

Will Rogers once said that the United States has never lost a war and never won a conference. He must surely have been thinking of our negotiators. I have seen many times that our negotiators wear jerseys, like they do in the Olympics. Next time they sit around a table with China, Japan, Europe, Canada, and Mexico, they could look down at their jersey and be reminded that they represent the United States. They represent workers, businesses, investors, and others who have decided that, in a global economy, they want a fair shake. Nothing more, nothing better, just a fair shake.

I am flat sick and tired of seeing negotiators go abroad and negotiate a trade agreement that ties America’s hands behind its back. The first 25 years after the Second World War our trade was all foreign policy, better, than anybody in the world, and we could outperform anyone with one hand tied behind our back. So what we did is we granted trade concessions all around the world because it was foreign policy to be helpful to foreign governments. That was the first 25 years after the Second World War.

The second 25 years have been different because we suddenly had tough, shrewd international competitors. Too much of our trade policy has been soft-headed foreign policy. And it is not working.

We have a large, growing trade deficit, the largest in human history—a large deficit with China, a large deficit with Japan, a large deficit with Europe, a large and growing deficit with Canada and Mexico. This is not working.

We used to have a small trade surplus with Mexico and then we had a new trade agreement with Mexico and turned it into the big deficit. We had a moderate deficit with Canada. We got a new trade agreement with Canada and doubled the deficit. Of course, with China and Japan, it has been a miserable failure. Our trade relationship with them has failed to really break down the barriers and open up their markets.

So my message is not that I want us to pull back around our country. I don’t believe in that. My message is not that we should create special protections for American producers. I don’t believe in that. I believe in fair, free, and open competition. My message is not that not some of the workers and producers of this country, that trade agreements represent fair trade conditions. If the rules are fair, if the conditions are fair, then we ought to be able to compete. I know we will compete and do well anywhere in the world under those circumstances.

This issue is an issue, at its roots, that has to do with jobs and economic opportunity and growth. When we give lots of people to high schools and colleges, we look out onto that sea of faces of young men and women, the best and brightest in our country, and we see people who are entering the workforce. The question is, What kind of an economy will they join?

We have people around this country bragging about their states being low-wage states. That is nothing to brag about. We need good jobs, good careers, good salaries, and good opportunities for the future. Manufacturing jobs have always been a base of good jobs that pay well and have good benefits, but our manufacturing industry is rapidly being decimated by trade agreements that are unfair to American workers and American businesses.

So I simply wanted to say today that we are going to have a vigorous and significant debate on this issue. It is long overdue. I welcome the opportunity to have trade promotion authority on the floor. Those who bring it should understand it will not be easy to get it. Those of us who have amendments to offer will be here offering many amendments.

CONGRESSIONAL OVERSIGHT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I am chairman of an appropriations subcommittee. Last fall we asked Governor Ridge, who is the Director of Homeland Security, to come and testify on matters dealing with homeland security issues. In my subcommittee, we fund the U.S. Customs Service and others.

Governor Ridge determined that he could not do that and would not do that. Other committees have experienced congressional committees from the Governor. I think the administration is making a mistake. I think Governor Ridge is an excellent public servant. I enjoy working with him, but he really does need to come and testify before Congress. As a subcommittee, I think it will benefit him, it will benefit the Bush administration, it will benefit the Congress and the American people.

I did want to say, however, as we construct homeland defense, I think the administration’s recommendations are good ones. I support them. I have commended President Bush for his prosecution of the war against terrorism. I think his recommendations in this business dealing with homeland security are some thoughtful and good recommendations.

But there is one recommendation that is now floating around, being advanced by Governor Ridge and others, that I simply cannot support. They will not support a recommendation to merge the Customs Service with the Immigration Service. Let me describe why I think that would be inappropriate.

There is a discussion going on about merging a number of agencies of the Federal Government into one larger agency. We are not going to solve the problems of any agency by simply creating larger bureaucracies. That doesn’t solve any problems of government.

We had an embarrassing circumstance a couple of weeks or so ago in which the Immigration Service issued visas to Mohammed Atta and one of the other terrorists who flew the airplanes into the World Trade Center and murdered thousands of people.

We need to solve those problems at the INS. I must say Mr. Ziglar, who runs the INS, a friend of mine and acquaintance of most of the Senate, has inherited an agency that had a lot of problems, no question about that. I know he is struggling mightily to deal with them. I wish him well and I want to help him to do that. But he inherited an agency that wasn’t able to track anything on its computers. It couldn’t track down someone who overstayed a visa. I think Mr. Ziglar has a lot of work to do, and I want to help him do that.

But visiting the problems at the INS through Governor Ziglar inherited on the Customs Service makes no sense at all. The Customs Service runs pretty well. We have some problems there as well, but it is an entirely different agency, which deals with the facilitation of trade and the prohibition of illegal goods from coming into the country. It is the second largest revenue raiser for the Federal Government next to the Internal Revenue Service. So I don’t want to visit upon the Customs Service the problems of the INS or any other Federal agency. And I don’t believe you solve the problems with respect to these issues by creating larger government and bigger bureaucracies.

So again, I would encourage Governor Ridge to come testify before Congress. I am an appropriations committee that has a lot of matters such as these. The idea of merging Customs and the INS is one that I just cannot support.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. The Acting President pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.
Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tem-pore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECESS SUBJECT TO THE CALL OF THE CHAIR

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 1 p.m., recessed subject to the call of the Chair and reassembled at 1:22 p.m. when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. Dodd.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair.

SENATOR HERMAN TALMADGE

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I take a few moments today to recall the days of yesteryear.

I came to this body in January of 1939, after having served in the other body, the House of Representatives, for 6 years. When I came to the Senate, I came into the midst of a chamber that was made up of men and one woman, Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. These men were "tall men, sun crowned, who live(d) above the fog in public duty and in private thinking," men like Richard B. Russell of Georgia. Senator Richard Russell had never married, but he had a bride. His bride was the Senate. There was none other like him.

In my service in the Senate, this man from Georgia, Richard Brevard Russell, was the uncrowned leader, as far as I am concerned, of the Senate. There were men like Lyndon Johnson, Everett Dirksen, Lister Hill of Alabama, and people pulling the wagon than riding, and respect, and for whom we have an enormous, high regard.

But the Talmadges were always the sharpest witted Senators with brains were more sharp than that of Herman Talmadge. He was also very active on welfare legislation long before it became a popular issue to promote, and he authored a provision giving tax credits to private businesses to provide job training. There was a pioneer!

Talmadge was always a powerful proponent of programs calculated to get people on their feet, and to give them the means with which to secure their future and the future of their children. He was just as adept at programs he felt perpetuated cycles of dependency. "You gotta have more people pulling the wagon than riding," he was fond of saying. He could say it crisply, succinctly, right to the point.

Senator Talmadge came to national attention in 1973, when he was appointed to serve on the Watergate Committee. According to an article on him in the Georgia Historical Quarterly, Senator Talmadge:

...thought the Watergate investigation was one of the most important events in the history of the United States (because) it demonstrated how a republican form of government [This is not a democracy, it is a republic; it is a republican form of Government] could correct the conduct of public officials and alert others not to make the same mistake.

It was during the Watergate hearings that the American people were able to observe for themselves the penetrating, get-to-the-heart-of-the-matter style of Senator Talmadge, and I am sure they were impressed.

Despite Senator Talmadge’s productive and historic achievements in the Senate, his life was not without adversity. While serving in this Chamber,
Senator Talmadge suffered the tragic death of one of his sons, and endured other personal and professional misfortunes.

Nevertheless, in his memoirs (Talmadge, A Political Legacy, A Politician’s Life: A Memoir), he wrote:

In looking back over my life, I suppose I have the normal share of regrets. But if I had it all to do over again, I wouldn’t hesitate to enter politics. The rewards far outweigh the price one has to pay. When I speak to a civic club or just walk down the street, I invariably run into someone who has benefited in some way from my three-and-a-half decades in public life. Yes, it was a good life.

Mr. President, Herman Eugene Talmadge served his country and he served it well, in war and in peace. He served his State and the people of America very well with his extraordinary career in the Senate. His was indeed a “good life” and one for which all of us can be grateful.

Let Fate do her worst, there are relics of joy. Bright dreams of the past, that she cannot destroy;

Which come, in the night-time of sorrow and care.

And bring back the features that joy used to wear.

Long, long be my heart with such memories filled.

Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled,

You may break, you may shatter the vase, if you will.

But the scent of the roses will hang round it still.

Mr. President, I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECESS SUBJECT TO THE CALL OF THE CHAIR.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, at the request of the majority leader, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in recess awaiting the call of the Chair.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 1:50 p.m., receded subject to the call of the Chair, is adjourned at 3:34 p.m. when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. JOHNSON).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—S. 565

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I am about to propose a unanimous consent request on behalf of the Democratic leader. This consent request has been cleared on the Republican side as well as the Democratic side. Let me read it, if I may.

I ask unanimous consent that the majority leader, in concurrence with the Republican leader, may resume the consideration of S. 565, the election reform bill; that debate on the bill be limited to 2 hours equally divided in the usual form; that the following be the only remaining first-degree amendments in order, and that debate on them be limited to 30 minutes equally divided in the usual form unless otherwise listed; further, that no second-degree amendment be in order prior to a vote in relation to each amendment; further, that second-degree amendments be pertinent to the amendment to which it is offered and debate be limited to 30 minutes unless otherwise listed; further, that any pending amendment not listed be withdrawn; that upon disposition of the listed amendments, the bill be read the third time and the Senate vote on passage of the bill; and that upon passage, the title amendment, which is at the desk, be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, all without further intervening action or debate; further, that no call for the regular order be in order with respect to this bill:

Senator LEVIN, provisional balloting; Senator CLINTON, residual ballot benchmarking; Senator CRUZ, overseas voters; Senator WYDEN, voting by mail and first time voter; Senator NELSON of Florida, DOJ request; Senator NICKLES, confidentiality voter lists; Senator ROBERTS, provisional balloting notices; Senator HATCH, Internet study; Senator TALMADGE, Senate and rural concerns; Senator GRASSLEY, use of Social Security numbers; Senator SMITH of New Hampshire, election media reporting; and Senator DODD and Senator MCCONNELL, managers’ amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, let me express my very sincere gratitude to both leaders, first of all to Senator DASCHLE and then to the staff who were immensely helpful in pulling this together. I thank the Republican leader, Senator LOTT, for his wonderful leadership. He has been tremendously helpful to us in putting this agreement together. I also thank Senator MCCONNELL and Senator Bond and their staffs for making it possible. Senator LOTT’s office worked very closely with their offices in bringing us to this point.

We have had an awful lot of amendments. This bill had already had some 35 or 40 amendments. We then had to lay the bill aside, and there was still an outstanding list of 40 or 45 amendments. This is a much more abbreviated list, and it will allow us to get to final passage on this bill.

I am very optimistic we will end up with a positive vote in the Senate on this very important issue of election reform. It has been a little more than a year since the election of 2000. As we have said, this bill is forward looking. It is not amended in 2000; rather, what had been happening for many years in regard to the deteriorating condition of our election structure in the country. Florida merely highlighted for many Americans what had happened in many of the States as well.

This bill, while not a complete answer, will put us on a very strong road to resolving a lot of the outstanding issues that occurred then.

I am very grateful to the staffs of all those Senators involved—Senators SCHUMER and TORRICELLI. I thank my own staff, Veronica Gillespie and Jennie Gill of the Rules Committee, as well as Shantel Mahler of my office, who have worked very hard. We are not done yet. We have work to do on this unanimous consent agreement to deal with the remaining amendments and then a conference with the House.

But this unanimous consent agreement, which took the cooperation of all Members of this Chamber, brings us very close to final passage of a good bill, my firm hope is, so that resources in the discretionary funds of this bill might even be available for the 2002 election. It is a bill that we will work on, and that we have provided funding to doing so. It is a bill that we have been able to arrive at this unanimous consent agreement.

The purpose of this bill, as has been stated by many, is to make it harder to defraud the system but, just as importantly, to make it easier for people to cast their ballots: the provisional voting provisions, statewide voter registration, making sure people who are disabled will have access to voting, being able to check your vote, not overvoting, as well as the antifraud provisions and the provisions dealing with the establishment of a permanent commission on elections.

All Members in this Chamber have been extremely cooperative on seeing to both of those twin goals: easier to vote and harder to defraud the system.

Without the cooperation of everyone in this Chamber, we would not have arrived at this unanimous consent agreement.

So it is a great compliment to Members from all across the country that we have been able to arrive at this unanimous consent agreement, the disposition of these amendments, and final passage of the bill that will make it possible for us to say we have made it easier to vote in America and harder to defraud the system. If that is achieved in the final product we produce, we will have responded to the challenge posed to us by what occurred not only in the 2000 national election but what had been occurring across the country for many years. I express my gratitude again to all who are involved.

With that, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
NOMINATION OF JAMES MAHAN

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am very pleased that the Senate has approved Judge James C. Mahan, of Las Vegas, to be the next judge on the United States District Court for the District of Nevada.

I shall say on behalf of my colleague, Senator Ensign, and myself, that Jim Mahan has the unequivocal support of both Senators from Nevada.

Jim Mahan currently serves as a Judge on the Eighth Judicial District Court in Nevada. Governor Kenny Guinn named him in 1999, the first judicial appointment to the Clark County District Court. As a judge, he has presided over a docket of more than 3,000 civil and criminal cases. Despite this heavy docket, Judge Mahan also hears probate matters, drug court and grand jury returns on a regular basis.

As my colleagues have heard me state on numerous occasions, Las Vegas has been the fastest growing metropolitan community in the United States for more than a decade. Very hard work and dedication is required of our judges, policemen, firemen, and other civil servants on a daily basis.

These qualities will serve Judge Mahan well on the U.S. District Court for the District of Nevada, whose docket has a rate that mirrors the explosive growth of my home State, especially Las Vegas.

I am so proud to have played a role in creating three additional judgeships for the District of Nevada over the last few years.

Prior to the Senate’s confirmation of Roger Hunt and Kent Dawson last year, and Larry Hickes last month, Nevadans seeking justice in Federal court were forced to wait up to 3 years before their case went to trial. And these delays may have been worse had it not been for the outstanding addition to the Federal bench.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, our victory Thursday on campaign finance reform was a tremendous victory for the American people, and it wouldn’t have been possible without the tremendous support of grassroots organizations whose members and staff worked tirelessly to help us pass this bill.

I mentioned a few of those organizations on the floor yesterday, but I wanted to take this opportunity today to single out four other groups who made invaluable contributions to our effort as part of the Americans For Reform coalition. The Sierra Club, AARP, the League of Women Voters, and NETWORK, the Catholic social justice lobby, deserve special recognition for the work they did on this legislation. I would also like to thank John Weaver and Lanny Wiles for their assistance during this effort.

In particular, I am grateful to the people of Wisconsin whose support for this issue has been strong and steadfast.

THE 90TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE GIRL SCOUTS OF THE USA

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the 90th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of the USA, GSUSA, this month. Girl Scouting began on March 12, 1912, when founder Juliet Gordon Low assembled 21 girls at Savannah, GA. She believed that girls should be given the opportunity to develop physically, mentally, and spiritually.

This excellent organization empowers girls to develop their full potential, to relate positively to others and their community, and to promote sound values and community service. GSUSA continues to expand its programs to address contemporary issues affecting girls, while maintaining its original core values. The organization’s foundation is still on the original 1912 “Girl Scout Promise and Law.”

Today, Girl Scouting has a membership of 3.8 million, comprised of 2.7 million girl members and over 900,000 adult members, making this the largest organization for girls worldwide. Moreover, this American organization is a member of the larger worldwide family of 10 million girls and adults in 140 countries.

Through Girl Scouting, girls acquire self-confidence and expertise, take on responsibilities, are encouraged to think creatively and act with integrity, all qualities essential for good citizenship and great leaders. At each level of Girl Scouting, girls engage in numerous activities including science and technology, sports, health and fitness, the arts, global awareness, community service, money management and finance, and much more. Importantly, the organization has established a research institute, receiving government funding to address violence prevention. It is also addressing the digital divide with activities that encourage girls to pursue careers in science, math, and technology.

In 2001, GSUSA launched a major initiative rededicating themselves to their founder’s vision of empowering girls to grow into healthy, resourceful citizens. They are diligently working to ensure that Girl Scouting is available to every girl in every community, reaching beyond racial, ethnic, socioeconomic or geographic boundaries.

Girl Scout troops meet everywhere including suburban, urban and rural areas, in communities that are constantly needed to serve the increasing number of participants who desire to be Girl Scouts.

Though the first troops met before women were given the right to vote, 90 years later there is a “Troop Capitol Hill” made up entirely of Congresswomen who are honorary Girl Scouts. More than 50 million women are alumnae. Over two-thirds of our doctors, lawyers, educators, community leaders, and women Members of Congress are Girl Scouts beyond bars, as were 64 percent of the women listed in “Who’s Who of American Women.”

For 90 years this month, this respected organization has demonstrated a proven track record of empowering girls to become leaders, equipping adults to be positive role models and mentors for children, and helping to build strong communities.

With the support and dedication of Congress, Girl Scouts will surely continue this fine tradition for the next 90 years and beyond.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise today to celebrate the 90th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of the United States of America. Founder Juliette Low envisioned an organization that would encourage girls to serve in their communities and experience the open air. Decades later, girls and young women from communities across our Nation enjoy scouting activities that nurture their mental, physical, and spiritual well-being in an accepting and supportive environment. I commend the efforts of the Girl Scouts and the outstanding volunteers who make this important work possible.

Thousands of girls across the State of New Jersey actively participate in Girl Scouts. I have heard heartening stories of scouts visiting senior residence facilities, food pantries, and soup kitchens. In the wake of September 11, these thoughtful young people contributed in many meaningful ways. These active girls and young women participate in anti-smoking campaigns, sports, lessons in civics and the law, outdoors activities and more. These initiatives build self-confidence, and strong leadership and life skills. We cannot underestimate the importance of this positive reinforcement in the lives of girls and young women. Innovative leadership and tremendous outreach efforts in my State continue to promote the Girl Scout initiative For Every Girl, Everywhere. I offer my wholehearted support for this ambitious endeavor. Imagine the possibilities!

Thank you, Girl Scouts, for decades of volunteerism in our communities and dedication to young women. As our nation affirms its commitment to service, the Girls Scouts shine so brightly. Congratulations on this very special occasion.

ENERGY POLICY ACT OF 2002

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, the Daschle-Bingaman substitute amendment, also known as the Energy Policy Act of 2002, includes portions of a bill that was reported favorably last year from the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

That bill, the Federal Reformulated Fuels Act, S. 950, was approved with the committee's understanding that further action by the full Senate would be necessary to solve the delicate problem of eliminating MTBE from the fuel supply to protect water resources, while maintaining air quality and stimulating renewable fuel use.

The substitute amendment before the Senate now does a good job of resolving that problem and balancing many political and environmental concerns. This language does not represent the perfect solution for my State or the Northeast. However, without it, MTBE contamination of water resources will continue unabated. With it, at least we can be assured of greater protection of air and water quality.

If States proceed to ban MTBE without clear Federal authority provided in this amendment, air quality could suffer as RFG areas would be forced to use ethanol in a very inflexible way due to the existing oxygen content requirement in the Clean Air Act. In that situation, and without the anti-backsliding provisions in the substitute amendment before us, there might be significant increases in vehicle emissions of both volatile organic compounds, which contribute to smog, and toxic air pollutants, and large and sudden increases in gasoline prices could also occur.

I would have preferred a bill that, in addition to eliminating the oxygen content requirement, simply eliminated the existing one-pound waiver of Reid vapor pressure requirements for ethanol blends and allowed all Governors to opt-in easily to the RFG program for their whole States. But, at least this language expedites Governors' access to that RVP waiver's elimination and provides accelerated opt-in authority to the entire States in the ozone transport region, where the best evidence is of serious ozone problems. My preferred construction would have gone even further toward providing ever greater air quality benefits and a clearer set of "national" fuels.

The provision on liability limitations for renewable fuels is also problematic in that it is not clear to many of us why such a limitation is necessary. One would assume that Congress has required a renewable fuel content in motor vehicle fuel knowing what renewable fuels and vehicles, and the limits for those fuels and vehicles, are required to meet this requirement. Indeed, we assume that these renewable fuels will be ethanol and biodiesel. If these renewable fuels are as beneficial to the public health as we have been lead to believe, then there should be no need for such a liability limitation.

Under the provision, it is clear that no liability limitation applies to MTBE. It is clear that no liability limitation applies to any cases filed prior to the date of enactment of this bill. It is clear that the limitation applies only to a defective product claim and no other type of claim. It is clear that this limitation applies only to a renewable fuel, and if such fuel is blended with substances that do not meet the definition of a renewable fuel, the limitation does not extend to those substances.

The limitation is not intended to limit any legal requirements that are imposed on importers, applicators, transport or storage of these renewable fuels, and as such, this provision does not amend or modify any such requirements. Nor should this provision be read to curtail the duty of the producers, transporters and distributors of these fuels to act responsibly with regard to their products, including providing all warnings of dangers to human health or the environment associated with their products and taking all precautions to avoid any such harm which may arise from the use of the product altogether.

The substitute amendment provides protection against increases in toxic air pollutant emissions by maintaining the overcompliance that refiners have achieved since the inception of the RFG program. This is particularly vital to the Northeast, as vehicles are a disproportionately large source of these emissions inventory. The language included an important statutory deadline for further EPA rulemaking to impose any additional and necessary toxics reductions to protect public health. As my colleagues may know, several studies have implicated vehicle emissions as a major causal factor to increased cancer and developmental risks in congested urban areas.

Perhaps as important, the amendment requires the EPA to do a much better job of ensuring that fuels and fuel additives don't harm water quality, as well as air quality. Manufacturers will need to regularly supply information to the Agency on the public health and environmental impacts of the use of fuels and fuel additives. The Administrator will be held responsible for maintaining that data up to date and adequate for determining whether those substances' use is a cause for concern.

As my colleagues know, I have been a strong proponent of encouraging the use of alternative and renewable fuels for decades. That is why I have supported S. 760, a bill to provide incentives for those fuels and vehicles, and many other efforts to motivate reductions in our dependency on petroleum. We are making a small dent in that dependency with this language. The total motor gasoline consumption in 2012 is expected to exceed 180 billion gallons annually. The substitute's provisions require that about 2.8 percent of gasoline consumption in that year be fuel made from renewable sources. This is good for energy security and the environment.

Work has been underway in Congress to try to solve this problem since MTBE contamination was first found. Senators BOXER, FEINSTEIN and BOB SMITH, in particular, have been instrumental in addressing the matter. Before S. 950, the Committee on Environment and Public Works reported a bill, S. 2962, in the 106th Congress which had an effect similar to what is contained in this substitute amendment. Many of the most important concepts in those bills are now embodied in the amendment. It is past time that Congress acted on this matter. Further delay will simply lead to more water resource contamination.

I ask unanimous consent that a brief and informal section-by-section summary of the renewable fuels and MTBE provisions be included in the Record following my statement. This may assist Senators and their staff in understanding what we are attempting to do if I am substitutes to charge them to help us solve this problem.

There being no objection, the following material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

Congressional Record — Senate
SEC. 819. Renewable Content of Motor Vehicle Fuel. Amends the Clean Air Act to require that gasoline sold or dispensed to consumers in the United States contain a certain volume of renewable fuel starting in the year 2004. The volume starts at 2.3 billion gallons in the first year and increases to 5.0 billion gallons in 2006. The volume requirements continue thereafter at the same percentage that the 5.0 billion gallons represents in relation to the total gasoline pool in 2006. The Act includes requirements for section 211 to apply to this new requirement.

Renewable fuel is defined as motor vehicle fuel made from grain or other biomass sources, methane from landfills, seawage, etc., and that replaces or reduces fossil fuel. This includes biodiesel.

EPA must promulgate regulations translating the total national volume requirement into percentages that are applicable to individual refineries, blenders and importers. They may achieve compliance with the applicable percentage by buying credits from others in the industry that have used more renewable fuel than required.

Credits are valid for up to three consecutive years. EPA regulations will be promulgated. Compliance with the applicable percentage of renewable fuel may be deferred for one year, if the refiner, blender or importer is unable as a result of the respective credit in the previous year and complies with the following year's requirement. Ethanol made from non-corn sources, such as dedicated energy crops, animal waste, municipal solid waste, and wood and wood residues, generates 1.5 credits for each gallon sold or introduced into commerce.

Using EIA information, EPA will ensure that no less than 35 percent of the applicable renewable fuel use shall take place in every renewable fuel use region. Renewable fuel use shall be at least 35 percent of the applicable percentage by buying credits from others in the industry that have used more renewable fuel than required.

Section 820. Nonattainment Areas. The Clean Air Act is amended to allow EPA to regulate fuels and fuel additives to prevent degradation of water quality.

MTBE use is discontinued not later than 4 years after enactment, except in any State that chooses to continue using it. EPA will promulgate the appropriate implementing regulations and may allow trace quantities of MTBE in motor vehicle fuel to exist nationally after December 31, 2005, provided that it is not intended to affect any existing State efforts to ban MTBE. Existing domestic manufacturers of MTBE supplying today's nonattainment areas are eligible for transition assistance for conversion of their facilities to produce MTBE substitutes. The First LUST funds authorized for 2003-05 for such assistance.

Section 834. Elimination of the Oxygen Content Requirement for Reformulated Gasoline. The 2 percent oxygen content requirement for RFG under section 211 of the Clean Air Act is eliminated 270 days after enacted, except that it is eliminated upon enactment for California.

To ensure that elimination of the oxygen content requirement for RFG does not increase toxic air pollutant emissions, within 270 days EPA must promulgate regulations to ensure that each refiner or importer of RFG must achieve a toxics reduction performance achieved in 1999-2000. If that performance is not achieved in any region, PADD, of the country, EPA must modify the regulations for all RFG to assure performance.

EPA will promulgate revisions to the RFG regulations to require that the more stringent VOC performance requirements of Southern region RFG apply to all RFG.

Section 832. The Leaking Underground Storage Tank Program. EPA is required to study remediation of aquifers that have been contaminated from an underground tank leak to ensure that, for information on the renewable fuels manufacturer is in compliance with EPA requests for information on the renewable fuels' public health and environmental effects, the techniques for detecting the additive in fuel, and the resulting effects on emissions from vehicles, vehicles' performance, and any emissions related effect on public health and welfare.

Section 832. The Leaking Underground Storage Tank Program. EPA is required to study remediation of aquifers that have been contaminated from an underground tank leak to ensure that, for information on the renewable fuels manufacturer is in compliance with EPA requests for information on the renewable fuels' public health and environmental effects, the techniques for detecting the additive in fuel, and the resulting effects on emissions from vehicles, vehicles' performance, and any emissions related effect on public health and welfare.

Section 832. The Leaking Underground Storage Tank Program. EPA is required to study remediation of aquifers that have been contaminated from an underground tank leak to ensure that, for information on the renewable fuels manufacturer is in compliance with EPA requests for information on the renewable fuels' public health and environmental effects, the techniques for detecting the additive in fuel, and the resulting effects on emissions from vehicles, vehicles' performance, and any emissions related effect on public health and welfare.

Section 833. Fuel System Requirements. States may have the Federal Government enforce a State's controls on fuels or fuel additives if the controls are part of an approved SIP and otherwise meet the requirements of this section.

Section 839. Fuel System Requirements. States may have the Federal Government enforce a State's controls on fuels or fuel additives if the controls are part of an approved SIP and otherwise meet the requirements of this section.

ACCESS TO AFFORDABLE HEALTH CARE ACT

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I am in support of a piece of legislation offered by my good friend and colleague from Maine, Senator COLLINS. Before I begin, I would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge her distinguished leadership in this area.

Throughout her career as a U.S. Senator, she has worked hard to develop laws that reflect the healthcare needs of the people of Maine and of the Nation. Each and every proposal to help increase access to health care that she has put forward has been based on sound principles and innovative strategies. This bill is no exception.

Almost 39 million Americans have no access to health insurance. In Louisiana, almost 1 million people go to bed each night worried about what they would do if they or their family member becomes seriously ill. That is one out of five people in our State. As a result, a great number of Americans are forced to decide between medical treatment and other life essentials such as food and shelter or worse, forgo treatment all together. The research has confirmed for us what common sense has lead us to believe all along. In a recent survey, 39 percent of those Americans without insurance said that they put off necessary medical treatments or tests because they could not afford them.

In order to understand the issues affecting the uninsured, it is important that we ask ourselves, who are the uninsured? Nearly 30 percent of the 39 million uninsured Americans are women of child bearing age; 12 million of the uninsured are children. More than 8 out of 10 uninsured are in working families. Nearly 8 out of every 10 are middle income. These statistics point to serious gaps in our health care delivery system, gaps that can and need to be filled.

This bill attempts to fill these gaps. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act, which I am introducing today, is a seven-point plan that combines a variety of public and private approaches to make quality health care coverage more affordable and available. The bill focuses on three key populations: small business employees; pregnant women and children as well as working individuals. In addition, it supports programs targeted at providing these populations access to affordable coverage. Let me explain in greater detail.

The Access to Affordable Health Care Act establishes a tax credit for small businesses to help meet the company’s cost of providing health insurance. In addition, it provides grants to help states develop health insurance cooperatives for small companies.

The Access to Affordable Health Care Act gives states the option to expand the Children’s Health Insurance Program for pregnant women and eligible children. Because of statewide efforts under LACHIP, more than 100,000 Louisiana children now have health insurance.

The Access to Affordable Health Care Act provides a refundable tax credit for low and middle income workers who don’t have employer-provided coverage. It also improves the welfare-to-work transition by bridging the gap when newly employed workers lose their Medicaid coverage.

Providing access to insurance is not only the right thing to do, it is the smart thing to do. Uninsured patients are 3 times more likely to require hospitalization for avoidable conditions. The uninsured have a greater chance of being diagnosed with late stage cancer. They are 2 times as likely to die of breast cancer. Because they are often unable to avail themselves on preventive care, the majority of medical attention they receive is catastrophic and delivered by an emergency room. These statistics show is that when we provide greater access to health insurance we not only save lives, but we also save millions of dollars in long term health care costs.

Again, I want to thank my colleague from Maine for her efforts in producing this important legislation. I look forward to working with her and other like minded colleagues towards reaching the day when all Americans are insured.

THE LATE HERMAN EUGENE TALMADGE
Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to recall the memory of my devoted cousin and loyal friend. It is with great sadness that I remember my former colleague’s service to the United States Senate, the late Herman Eugene Talmadge, who shared this floor with me for many years. He passed away yesterday at his home in Hampton, GA.

Herman Eugene Talmadge was born in 1913 to Eugene and Mattie Thurmond Talmadge in McRae, GA. He graduated from the University of Georgia School of Law in 1936 and then went on to practice law in Atlanta with his father. He continued to practice law until he felt a patriotic duty to volunteer for World War II. He entered the United States Navy in 1941 as an ensign. He was discharged from the Navy as a lieutenant commander in 1945. Senator Talmadge was also the capable Governor of the State of Georgia from 1948 to 1955. As Governor, Senator Talmadge focused his efforts on the farmers and rural areas of Georgia.

Senator Talmadge distinguished himself in the United States Senate. During his time as chairman of the Agriculture Committee, vice chairman of the Finance Committee, and on the Watergate committee hearings, Senator Talmadge continued to support rural areas and the farming community in the United States Senate when he helped pass the Rural Development Act of 1972. This act promoted the development of jobs and infrastructure in rural areas. He gained much of his national recognition during the long year long Watergate committee hearings.

Senator Talmadge may have best been known for the outstanding services that he provided to the good people of Georgia. He tried to provide the best possible service to everyone that he possibly could. He never forgot those who voted for him, and he was always willing to help his constituents. It was a combination of this constituent support and his strong work ethic that made him so hard to beat in an election.

Senator Talmadge was a public spirited, patriotic citizen. He will long be remembered for all his great works in the United States Senate, and for his unwavering commitment and support to the people of the Peach State. He was not only a statesman, but also a true southern gentleman, and he will undoubtedly be missed by a large circle of family and friends.

My heartfelt thoughts and Prayers go out to the entire Talmadge Family. May God’s richest blessings rest on them and sustain them in this time of sorrow and grief.

WOMEN’S HISTORY MONTH 2002

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, on the occasion of women’s history month, I am proud to honor the long tradition of New York women who made history. And there is no better place to begin than with three women heroes who gave their lives to save others at the World Trade Center. Officer Kathy Mazza, Emergency Medical Technician Yamel Merino, and Officer Moira Smith were recently named Women of Distinction for their heroic acts on September 11, and for their history of service to the people of New York.

Kathy Mazza served as the first female commandant of the Port Authority Police Training Academy. Yamel Merino served as New York’s emergency medical technician of the year last year, and Moira Smith previously received the Distinguished Duty Medal for rescuing people after a subway crash.

On September 11 these three heroes brought the same commitment to their jobs that they showed every day, willing to put their lives on the line at a moment’s notice for fellow New Yorkers who they did not know. We will never forget their selfless acts of courage and commitment to duty on that day, and how they worked side by side with their brothers to escort as many people as possible to safety. Our thoughts remain with their families who have suffered an immeasurable loss during this tragedy, and who are comforted by the knowledge that their loved ones acted with honor and bravery.

Years from now their stories will be told alongside the stories of so many courageous New York women who devoted their lives to others and shaped history through their actions. After all, New York was the birthplace of one of the largest social movements of this country’s history. In Seneca Falls in 1848, women came together to issue the Declaration of Sentiments that served as a launching point for the women’s rights movement.

So many of our foremothers whose contributions are now legendary called New York home. From the great abolitionist Harriet Tubman who provided safe passage to her sisters and brothers who sought freedom from slavery, to Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony, who never relented in the movement for women’s suffrage, to the great labor leader Kate Mullany, New York women have always made a difference.

When celebrating this women’s history month, we pause to salute the accomplishments of women who gave so much of themselves to this country. Children generations from now will come to understand our great loss on September 11 by learning the stories of Kathy Mazza, Yamel Merino, Moira Smith and all of the firefighters, police officers and first responders to whom we owe so much. Today and everyday we need to do our part to tell their stories and to honor their lives.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I am glad to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEY in March of last year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred July 27, 1993 in Atlanta, GA. A gay man was abducted, beaten, robbed and thrown out of a moving car. The four assailants used homophobia—anti-gay slurs while beating the victim.

I believe that government’s first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them. against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

TRIBUTE TO STEPHEN J. ANDERSON

- Mr. REED. Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to recognize an outstanding Rhode Islander, Stephen J. Anderson. Steve has distinguished himself with a rewarding career as a public school teacher and as an accomplished State Representative in the Rhode Island General Assembly.

In 1972, Steve began his teaching career in the Exeter West Greenwich School System where he has taught Social Studies, History and Geography. Even as a young child, Steve dreamed of being a teacher, and his enthusiasm, dedication and professionalism over the past three decades has had a profound effect on our community and in the lives of generations of young people.

Steve is described as a hardworking and imaginative teacher who has a special gift for relating to his students. He is modest, friendly and witty and easily earns their respect and admiration.

In 2000, Steve Anderson was honored with the Charles B. Willard Achievement Award and the Alumni Service Award from his alma mater Rhode Island College. The Charles B. Willard Award is presented to graduates who have brought honor to the College by distinguished service in their field. Additionally, the Alumni Service Award honors those who have made a contribution to the College by unselfishly devoting their time, talents and resources or to an individual who has made a contribution to the state or nation which reflects ideals of service to the community. Indeed, Steve Anderson epitomizes the spirit of both these coveted awards.

In the General Assembly, Steve has been a leader on education issues and successfully sought funding for National Board Certification for Professional Teaching Standards in Rhode Island, for innovative reading programs for the Jr. High Soccer Team and the Cross Country Team.

I ask my colleagues to join me in commending Stephen J. Anderson for his commitment to education and public service. He inspires us with his example of leadership, and I join with a grateful community in commending him for his efforts in the classroom, as a policy maker and as outstanding Rhode Island citizen.

Over the years, Women 4 Women has amazingly donated more than $500,000 for various causes through their fund-raising capabilities. This group, made up of over one hundred women, is dedicated to their causes, diligent in their efforts, and determined about change.

Women 4 Women deserves special attention for unveiling their Benchmark 2000 partnership program in Jefferson County, KY for which they won an Ogden Newell & Welch Inc. Award. Specifically, Benchmark 2000 aims to study the status of women and girls in Jefferson County through strong coalition building between citizens and government in order to improve the overall economic and social status of females. By combining existing data and information from citizens, government officials, and service providers, the diligent participants of this program hope to, over time, address the existing needs of females and bring about positive social change.

I would like to express my sincerest admiration to all members of Women 4 Women for their hard work in the area of women's rights and commitment to the community. Organizations such as Women 4 Women deserve praise and recognition for their good deeds and progressive vision.

IN MEMORIAM OF BUZZ FITZGERALD AND JOEL ABRONDON

- Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise today with a heavy heart to pay tribute to two pillars of the Community of Maine, Buzz Fitzgerald and Joel Abromson. How can I describe what these two men meant to their beloved home State? These words of then President-elect John Fitzgerald Kennedy provide a start: ‘‘And when, at some future date, the high court of history sits in judgment on each of us, recording whether our brief span of service we have fulfilled our responsibilities to the state, our success or failure, in whatever office we hold, will be measured by the answers to four questions: first, were we truly men of courage; second, were we truly men of judgment; third, were we truly men of integrity; and finally, were we truly men of dedication.’’

These words, first uttered by President-elect Kennedy when I was an elementary school student in Caribou, have remained with me when they were quoted regularly in speeches by my boss and mentor, Bill Cohen, a gifted orator and, in many ways, a walking Bartlett’s.

But the full impact of Kennedy’s glorious phrases struck me with special poignancy this year as I pondered the loss of two of Maine’s leading citizens, two good friends, two wonderful men who were taken from us while still in their early 60’s, at the height of their powers.

One was born in St. John Plantation in far northern Maine, the other in Auburn. One moved when he was one year old, the other after college. But each became synonymous with his community, Buzz Fitzgerald with Bath, and Joe Abromson with Portland.

Each contributed mightily to his company, to his community, to his State. Each had a family that extended far beyond actual relatives to miners in all walks of life. Each made the lives of thousands of people better, and each did it without apparent effort and without a hint of self-righteousness.

It is often said that if you want a job well done, find a busy man. Each of these remarkable individuals ran a company, each possessed a breathtaking list of civic and charitable credentials, and each demonstrated a willingness to embrace causes that would benefit many businessmen fleeing for cover.

As I watch Buzz become a champion of reproductive rights for women, or Joel become a leading advocate for equal rights for gays and lesbians, I watch the embodiment of Kennedy’s four defining characteristics: courage, judgment, integrity, dedication. Those four qualities were an immense aid to Joel as he championed a state law that would outlaw discrimination against Maine citizens who are gay or lesbian. Though he did not prevail, he led his noble fight for gay rights with courage and integrity, in a manner that is to be commended.
Indeed, I saw two men who could immerse themselves in the most emotional of issues, those causes that rubbed nerves raw in public debate, and I could see them emerge without enemies. Disagreeing without being disagreeable is a high art form, and these two were masters of the art. Successuful people rarely lack charm, and each possessed it in abundance. Whether it was the union leadership hammering out a contract agreement with Buzz at the Bath Iron Works or Joel’s colleagues on both sides of the aisle negotiating with him on a bill in the Maine Senate, friends and adversaries alike were drawn to both men because they invariably deserved to be trusted. It may be hackneyed to say their word was their bond. But it was. Always.

A friend of mine who knew both men, but was not an intimate of either, tells a story that is illustrative. When my friend’s father died in Florida, the first contribution made in his memory came from Joel Abromson. And when Buzz’s sister, Gayle Corey, died of a virulent form of cancer, Buzz did not wait to receive expressions of condolence; rather, he sent notes to Gayle’s friends thanking them for befriending her. One does not easily forget gestures such as these, and there were thousands of others. In the final days and weeks of his life, Buzz called other cancer patients trying to cheer them up.

Fortunately for all of us who benefited from knowing them, many Maine leaders, led by Governor King, participated in exceptionally moving public tributes to these two remarkable individuals while they were still alive to hear the accolades. Having spoken to both of them shortly before they died, I know that they were touched by the outpouring of appreciation for lives well lived.

Losing public treasures like Joel and Buzz when they had so much more to give reminds us anew that life is unfair, as President Kennedy often noted. Fair or not, our state has lost two remarkable senators and representatives. In the final days and weeks of his life, Buzz called other cancer patients trying to cheer them up.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

In executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred, to lie on the table as indicated:

POM-220. A resolution adopted by the Senate of the Legislature of the State of Michigan relative to permit states to promote long-term care insurance under Medicaid; to the Committee on Finance.

SENATE RESOLUTION No. 109

Whereas, as the number of elderly in America continues its swift growth, the issue of long-term care will present an increasing number of problems for our Nation. Demographic trends leave little doubt that, without steps to increase the public-funded Medicaid program may be stretched beyond its capacity to respond adequately to the needs of our country’s poor and elderly; and

Whereas, the challenge of paying for long-term care most often ends up being handled by Medicaid. The Federal-State partnership designed to provide health coverage for the poor, ends up covering the long-term care costs for millions of older Americans who become poor only because their resources are exhausted by the high costs of nursing homes or in-home care. Approximately one of every three Medicaid dollars is spent on long-term care; and

Whereas, while each state determines the eligibility requirements for Medicaid based on specific factors, general eligibility thresholds limit the assets that can be preserved by a Medicaid recipient and spouse; and

Whereas, there is a bill before Congress, H.R. 1841, that seeks to permit states more flexibility to enter into long-term care partnerships under Medicaid in order to promote the use of long-term care insurance. Clearly, any area in this country would be most helpful for our country; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate, that we memorialize the Congress of the United States to enact legislation to permit states to promote long-term care insurance under Medicaid; and be it further

Resolved, that copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and the members of the Michigan Congressional Delegation.

POM-221. A joint resolution adopted by the Senate of the Legislature of the State of Vermont relative to the desecration of the United States Flag; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

JOINT SENATE RESOLUTION No. 9

Whereas, the flag of the United States is one of the greatest symbols of our nation, and

Whereas, this symbol represents the defining principles of our country, and

Whereas, Americans have placed their lives in harm’s way for hundreds of thousands of cases, have sacrificed their lives defending these principles, and

Whereas, the willingness to sacrifice their lives in defense of these cherished principles demonstrates one of the purest and most commendable forms of patriotism, and

Resolved, that copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Whereas, the flag serves important ceremonial functions at public gatherings, funerals, celebrations of patriotic holidays, parades and countless other gatherings, and

Whereas, respect for the flag and observance of the various protocols attendant thereto (such as proper display, proper folding, saluting, etc.) serves as an introduction, for many young Americans to the symbol of our nation, and

Whereas, we the American people, accord our flag a unique position of love and admiration for the principles it represents, and recognize the importance of providing dignity and honor to this symbol, and Whereas, these principles protect individual freedoms enumerated in the First Amendment to the United States Constitution including free speech, free press, peaceable assembly, and petition for redress of grievances, now therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, That the General Assembly expresses its respect and admiration for our United States Flag, and be it further

Resolved, That the General Assembly urges the Congress of the United States to ensure that proper respect and treatment will always be accorded to the United States Flag, and that the Congress explore all avenues available, which may include a constitutional amendment, a statutory change and a public education program, to protect the United States Flag from physical desecration, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of State transmit copies of this resolution to the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States and members of the Vermont Congressional Delegation.

S. 2067. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to enhance the access of Medicare beneficiaries who live in medically underserved areas to critical primary and preventive health care benefits under the Medicare+Choice program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. President, the legislation I am introducing today with the Senators BOND and INOUYE is the “Medicare Safety Net Access Act of 2002,” or “Access 2002,” would improve services for Medicare beneficiaries and protect a critical mission of health centers, to provide access to care to underserved rural, frontier, and inner-city communities.

Community health centers, CHC’s, provide primary and preventive care to more than 700,000 medically underserved Medicare beneficiaries, including over 20,000 in New Mexico. Health centers also provide critical support services that help seniors more easily access care. In many cases, the local health center may be the only source of primary and preventive care for Medicare beneficiaries in a community.

While hundreds of thousands of Medicare beneficiaries turn to health centers for care, many centers struggle to provide services to these patients. Current Medicare regulations cause health centers significant financial losses that have a direct impact on access to care. In addition, the Medicare federally qualified health center, FQHC, benefit has not been modernized to include many of the new preventive and other services added to the Medicare package by Congress in recent years again under- neeming the critical role that health centers play in providing access to care.

To address these and other issues, Senators BOND, INOUYE, and I are introducing the “Medicare Safety Net Access Act of 2002”, also known as “Access 2002.” The legislation would address the following problems.

With respect to payment issues, the bill ensures that Medicare covers the cost of providing Medicare beneficiaries at CHC’s. Congress provides more than $1.3 billion in section 330 funding to CHC’s to provide care to... the uninsured. When Medicare fails to cover the costs of care for Medicare beneficiaries, CHC’s must make up for the shortfall through a variety of mechanisms including drawing from the section 330 grants, which are supposed to be dedicated for care to the uninsured.

Medicare has historically provided many cost-based reimbursement to other safety net providers, such as certain hospitals, cancer hospitals, and children’s hospitals. Moreover, Congress passed legislation in 2000 to protect health centers from the same problem in Medicaid.

The legislation assures that CHC’s are afforded the same protections through the Medicare program so that Federal funding for the uninsured is not redirected to pay for shortfalls from Medicare patients. It does so by eliminates the per visit payment cap on health centers’ Medicare payments. In the Medicare statute, Congress clearly intended to cover the cost of a health centers’ Medicare patients, but the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CMS, applies an arbitrary “pay for performance” cap that is not in the Federal statute. For many health centers, the cap has significantly reduced their Medicare payments, particularly for patients that have chronic illnesses, and forced them to reduce care they would have otherwise provided for their uninsured patients. Our bipartisan legislation prevents the imposition of the Medicare payment cap for health centers, and again, mirrors cost-based reimbursement that a number of other safety-net providers receive through Medicare.

The bill also extends payment protections to Medicare+Choice. This is achieved by establishing a supplemental cost-wrap-around payment much like the one that currently exists in the Medicaid program for FQHC’s contracting with managed care organizations. As this has worked so well in the Medicaid program, Congress should also protect this “pay for performance” payment in the Medicare+Choice program to ensure CHC’s are having their reasonable costs appropriately covered.

In addition, the legislation eliminates regulatory hurdles that impair health centers’ ability to provide preventive ambulatory services to Medicare patients. While CHC’s provide primary care services to their patients, Medicare does not cover anything other than contracted preventive services provided at CHC’s. Such services that health centers may provide that Medicare does not pay on a cost basis, include: mammograms, nutrition services, or laboratory or x-ray services. Some of these services have been recently been added by Congress but the Medicare FQHC benefit has not been updated to reflect those changes. This legislation would expand the services that health centers could provide to medically underserved Medicare beneficiaries.

Furthermore, the bill ensures the availability of these services to those enrolling in Medicare managed care but requiring Medicare+Choice plans to contract with a sufficient number of FQHC’s to make FQHC services accessible to plan enrollees.

And finally, the Medicare Safety Net Access Act of 2002 establishes a safe harbor in the federal anti-kickback statute for arrangements between health centers and other providers that improve access to services for low-income patients in underserved communities. Health centers and other providers often in arrangements designed to expand their ability to provide care in the poor communities they serve. However, these arrangements can potentially expose health centers under the federal anti-kickback laws.

For nine years, a proposed “safe harbor” has been pending before the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services’ Office of the Inspector General, HHS IG, that would allow health centers and other providers to improve health services to low-income patients without fear of being in violation of the anti-kickback law. To qualify under the proposed safe harbor, the arrangement would have to meet strict criteria to protect against fraud and abuse, including the demonstration of a community benefit through the savings of grant dollars intended for care for the uninsured or an increase in the availability of services to a medically underserved community. In addition, several other requirements, such as assurances that the arrangement to not limit a patient’s freedom of choice, in addition to any other requirements the IG deems are needed as long as they are consistent with congressional intent.

Community health centers enjoy strong bipartisan support in Congress because they are cost-effective providers of services that keep patients healthy and out of costly specialty and emergency room care. As people prepare to enter the Medicare program, it is vital that beneficiaries in rural, frontier, and inner-city areas have access to the full range of Medicare benefits. Health centers are the vehicle to make that happen. I urge passage of this legislation.

Unfortunately for these hundreds of thousands of veterans in Florida and Georgia, the nearest national cemetery is located in Bushnell, FL, which is 3-hour drive from Jacksonville. The national cemetery in St. Augustine is full and closed. The nearest national cemetery to Georgia is in Marietta just north of Atlanta.

Our veterans have made great sacrifices to protect our country in her days of peril, and certainly deserve to rest in honored respect in a national cemetery. Under the veterans of northeast Florida and southeast Georgia, we must act now, in order to have this facility established by 2006 when our World War II veterans' deaths are expected to reach their peak.

Senator SHERRY and Cleland and I are honored and proud to sponsor this important bill, and we look forward to the support of our colleagues as we provide for our veterans who have given so much for our country.

If I might have the unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself and Mr. KERRY):

S. 2070. A bill to amend part A of title IV to exclude child care from the determination of the 5-year limit on assistance under the temporary assistance to needy families program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Children First Act. Since 1996, federal funding for child care assistance under the Child Care and Development Block Grant, CCDBG, has significantly increased, making it possible for states to provide more low-income families with child care assistance and expand initiatives to improve the quality of child care. This has been an extremely important endeavor. Access to quality child care helps families to work and children to succeed. Yet, we must do more. Only one out of five eligible for assistance through the CCDBG program receives a subsidy, approximately 12.9 million eligible children without assistance. In March 2000, a family earning as little as $25,000 could not qualify for child care assistance in most States. The need for child care assistance is likely to significantly increase in the near future. Many States are currently faced with serious budget shortfalls that threaten the progress they have made in the provision of child care in recent years. The administration's recently proposed welfare plan would increase work-related requirements for welfare recipients, which if passed will create an even greater demand for child care. Even if this administration's welfare proposal is rejected as unworkable, which I believe is the case, we must make providing high-quality child care to low-income families a priority in this Congress. The Children First Act will do just that.

Increased availability of child care enables low-income parent on welfare, and parents trying to stay off welfare, to work and support their families. According to a recent administration report, employment among mothers with young children grew in recent years from 58 percent to 73 percent. The administration noted: "These employment increases among single mothers and former welfare mothers are unprecedented." Most people agree that employment gains among single mothers can only be sustained if families have access to dependable child care. Studies show that when child care is available, and when families get help paying for care, they are likely to work.

When I talk to people in my home State of New Mexico about welfare reform, they identify access to child care as the most important work support we can provide. In New Mexico, 57 percent of children under 6 live in households in which all parents work. Approximately 67 percent of these households have income less than 200 percent of the Federal poverty threshold. Yet less than 25 percent of children under the age of 6 eligible for federal law for child care assistance are receiving assistance in New Mexico. Families with both parent working and earning the minimum wage must pay 49 percent of their income on child care for one child. Without subsidized care, many of these families cannot afford to work.

When I talk to people in New Mexico about improving our education system, the need for improved school readiness is often the topic concern. Improved quality of child care is an important component in that effort as well. Quality child care provides low-income children with the early learning experiences that they need to do well in school. We know that children in high-quality early care score higher on reading and math tests, are more likely to complete high school and go onto college, and are less likely to repeat a grade or get charged in juvenile court.

In contrast, children in poor quality child care have been found to be more likely to be referred to special education, delayed in language and reading skills and to display more aggression toward other children and adults. According to the recently enacted No Child Left Behind Act, Congress and the President signaled a new commitment to improving educational outcomes in our schools. The legislation required states, school districts, and communities to close the gaps between disadvantaged students and their peers. In his State of the Union Address earlier this year, President Bush acknowledged the important of early learning and made it a priority for his administration. Increased federal support for child care is critical to supporting high-quality early learning programs. We should work on a bipartisan basis—as we did with respect to the No Child Left Behind Act—towards this goal.

We must increase access to child care, but we must also do more to ensure the improved quality of child care. Many families in New Mexico, even those receiving assistance, cannot afford to provide their children with a high quality child care setting. In part, this is caused by the low reimbursement rates provided due to limited funding. For example, in New Mexico the reimbursement rate is $356, while the market rate averaged $470. As a result the higher quality provider often do not accept state-subsidized children into their programs.

A lack of qualified care provider also make the provision of high quality care for his administration. Increased federal support for child care will allow New Mexico make, on average, $6.24 per hour, less than half the average weekly wage. Less than 20 percent of these workers receive employee benefits such as health insurance and paid sick leave.

The Children First Act will address these issues by increasing funding for the Child Care Development Block Grant by $1.2 billion over five years. With these funds, states will be able to serve approximately 1 million more children nationally. The bill also contains an increase in the quality set-aside in CCDBG, which will provide funds specifically for efforts to improve the quality of care. States can use these funds to provide training to care providers and create and enforce standards of care. The bill also makes common sense changes to the TANF program that support work by enabling states to increase the availability and improve the quality of child care.

I urge my colleagues to support this important piece of legislation. It will help low-income families work and help prepare our children to succeed.

By Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire:
S. 2071. A bill to amend title 23, United States Code, to prohibit the collection of tolls from vehicles or military equipment under the actual physical control of a uniformed member of the Armed Forces, and for other purposes. The Committee on Environment and Public Works

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to offer a bill that will exempt our Nation’s military vehicles and equipment from being subject to paying tolls on America’s roads, bridges and ferries. As the Ranking Member of the Environment & Public Works Committee, which has jurisdiction over our highway system, and as a senior member of the Armed Services Committee, I believe that this an appropriate action long overdue. In this time of war and heightened threat to America’s shores, the thought of all units in an Army troop convoy digging into their pockets to drop quarters into the nets at tollbooths on the Jersey turnpike is absurd. When we created the interstate highway system in the 1950’s under the strong leadership of President Eisenhower, a primary motivation of the former General of the Army was to facilitate the movement of men and material in times of crisis. Yet in the intervening years, as toll roads have been established, no one at the Federal level has thought to exempt the armed forces form being slowed down to pay these levies. While the Federal Government has not acted, many States, most notably my State of New Hampshire, has seen fit to exempt those who are protecting us from paying these tolls. America’s armed forces deserve all the help we can give them.

The shortsighted among us might say that all we need to do is to provide some expedited form of payment, so that the tolls can be collected faster. I say that our troops deserve better. There is just no reason to subject our military to paying tolls in order to use America’s roads when their only reason for being on those roads is to protect America. Therefore, my bill provides for a complete exemption from tolls, and not just half-way measures to simplify the payment. But my bill goes even further. In the same vein, I believe that it is essential, should a crisis arise, or God forbid, should America again be attacked, to speed our troops through the toll facilities. Accordingly, I have written the bill a provision to require a toll facility, in times of an emergency declared by the President, to reserve a dedicated support for America’s military by voting for this important bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I understand Senators KERRY and BOND have a substitute amendment at the desk. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration, that the amendment be agreed to, and that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 3076) was agreed to.

(Text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Text of Amendments.")

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I would urge that there be no further delay, no further obstruction, and that the Senate act—at long last—to pass a bill that is very important to so many small businesses in this country crippled by the economic fall-out of September 11, including businesses that were already struggling before September 11 during the recession and are now faced with even more difficult prospects.

For months, tens of thousands of small businesses have been asking for help—an immediate helping hand—just to keep their businesses going—particularly working capital to meet payroll and pay the bills—just to keep being forced to make ends meet, by using credit cards and depleting personal savings because small businesses don't have the same access as big business—to credit or otherwise. Left in the lurch by congressional inaction and delay, these businesses and their employees paid the price.

Now it is time that the Senate delivers the relief the vast majority of us were told we would receive in the first weeks after September 11, urgent relief delayed by partisan gamesmanship.

My American Small Business Emergency Relief and Recovery Act has gotten a lot of attention over the past 5 months. It has been blocked from even a meaningful debate on the Senate floor. What makes this week different?

What makes it different is that we have reached final agreement with the White House on a compromise, thanks to our last resort—hardball tactics of our own—and the bill has at long last been cleared to pass the Senate by unanimous consent.

I thank the 63 cosponsors of this bill. I thank the numerous small businesses and small business advocates who have worked so hard and used so much of their limited resources to free this bill for passage. This diverse coalition of business leaders and Democratic and Republican policy makers have stood by us from day one—their support should be enough to vote the passage way back then, but it wasn’t enough to stop some from playing partisan games with even bipartisan legislation. Now, at long last, the good faith efforts of our supporters are being rewarded.

It is my hope that having worked out our differences with the White House, we have cleared the way for passage not just through the Senate but also through the House. Once this help is enacted, small businesses will finally be able to receive desperately needed economic relief.

I am pleased with the compromise. It preserves provisions that are really important for those small businesses that have worked so hard over the past few months but fell through the cracks in SBA’s disaster loan program, or fell through the cracks in the private sector where lenders have cut back on loans to small businesses over the past year.

It simply was not enough, not efficient, and not cost-effective to use only one of SBA’s many lending programs to serve all the small businesses throughout this country that were hurt by the terrorist attacks or that have been struggling with the credit crunch. All of the SBA’s tools should be used to help the affected small businesses, and this bill does just that. Because this bill was blocked from consideration, Senator Bond and I were forced to enact some of these provisions through a defense bill. I very much thank Senator Byrd and Hollings for including them. Specifically, we made it possible for small businesses to get working capital loans through the SBA’s 7(a) loan program or the program to a building or equipment through SBA’s 504 loan program. After 22 weeks (nearly 6 months), only 2,600 loans have been approved, adding up to a denial rate of almost 50 percent. That doesn’t even include the small businesses that were turned away before they even filled out an application because of outdated size standards. That has left a lot of small businesses across this country without the relief the vast majority of us employees paid the price. And delay, these businesses and their employees paid the price.

One needs only to look at the record by comparison for economic injury disaster and small business advocates who have kept this issue in Congress. As one small business advocate said today, in reference to the thousands of tour bus companies that went out of business, “I understand the banks now own a wonderful fleet of tour buses.”

Well, for those small tour bus owners who have been waiting for this bill to pass and still need a working capital loan to make it through the coming tourist season, the compromise preserves the refinancing of debt under a disaster loan. They need this so that they can restructure debt to survive this business slump. We fought very hard to keep this in the bill.

For the owners of travel agencies—the majority of which are small businesses—we have increased the size standards for your industry so that more of your companies qualify for disaster loans and 7(a) emergency loans. Please spread the word to travel agencies that were turned away earlier in the year because they were considered too large. They might need working capital loans now. And now that the airlines have completely eliminated commissions.

For small businesses that need access to credit and can’t get it because of the credit crunch, Senator Bond and I were able to make SBA’s programs more affordable by reducing the fees borrowers pay through September 2004. In both the Senate and the House, we have had hearing after hearing trying to get fairer fees for the borrowers who need capital. It is true that we can make our loans, but until now we haven’t gotten any cooperation. This bill will make a difference. Whether you need working capital through SBA’s 7(a) loan program or credit to buy a building or equipment through SBA’s 504 loan program, it will now be less expensive. Stimulating lending and borrowing is good for the economy because it creates jobs and saves jobs. By law, small businesses that borrow money through the SBA’s 504 loan program have to hire or retain on employee for every $35,000 borrowed. This is a win-win situation for our economy.

The overall purpose of this emergency legislation is to provide access to the full complement of SBA loans and business counseling in order to help small businesses hurt by the terrorist attacks of September 11th and the aftermath.

This legislation will help mitigate bankruptcies, business closures, and lay-offs and address the shrinking availability of credit. However, small businesses doing business with the Federal Government have also felt the impact of the terrorist attacks.

Small business contractors, because of very real and legitimate security concerns, have experienced a dramatic increase in costs for work in and around Federal Government facilities. We have heard reports of small businesses being denied access to their equipment on military bases, waiting for hours each day to enter government facilities and being limited in the hours they can work on their projects. Immediately after the terrorist attacks, Dave Krueger, President of AS Horner Construction, Inc. out of Albuquerque, NM. Dave was currently doing work on a Federal contract at an Air Force facility pouring concrete parking aprons. Immediately after the attack, the company was locked out of the facility for nearly 2 weeks and currently has limited hours to access the construction site. Dave estimates that this will result in cost increases of at least 10 percent, meaning he will take a loss on this contract.

Such situations cannot go unresolved. Small businesses are far too important, not just to our national economy, but to our national defense as well. Small business is a vital component of our national supply chain and essential to our national security interests. To address this, S. 1499 establishes an expedited procedure whereby Federal small business contractors can apply for an equitable adjustment to this contract if costs have been incurred due to security or other measures resulting from the terrorist attacks. In the interest of compromise, Senator Bond and I agreed to reduce the funding available for these provisions from $100 million to $50 million.

The Kerry-Bond approach has always been cost-effective—about five times cheaper than the administration’s approach. CBO estimated that providing this assistance to small businesses would cost $366 billion. The final compromise, based on CBO’s estimates, is down from $860 million to $300 million.

This is a good compromise. It will help small businesses in every State. It is a reasonable approach that maximizes existing resources and private sector help. I strongly and respectfully urge my colleagues to let this legislation pass. Small businesses in your State will thank you.

I ask that a list of supporters of S. 1499 be printed in the Record.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues in the Senate to vote in favor of S. 1499, the American Small Business Emergency Relief and Recovery Act of 2002. Senator Kerry of Massachusetts, Senator KERRY, for introducing the bill, and I am pleased to be its principal cosponsor. Since S. 1499 was introduced on October 4, 2001, 62 of our Senate colleagues have joined us as cosponsors.

The measure before the Senate today is a comprehensive managers' substitute amendment to S. 1499, which incorporates significant changes that have been agreed to following lengthy negotiations with the staffs from the White House and the Office of Management and Budget, OMB. In particular, I thank Andy Card, the President's Chief of Staff, Dr. Lawrence Lindsey, Director of the National Economic Advisors, and Steve McMillin, Assistant Director at OMB, for their personal involvement in the negotiations.

The managers' substitute amendment modifies S. 1499 to recognize changes in the disaster relief and credit programs at the Small Business Administration, SBA, that were enacted on January 10, 2002, in section 203 of the Department of Defense and Emergency Spending Appropriations Recovery and Response to Terrorists Attacks on the United States, P.L. 107–117 Emergency Disaster Supplemental.

Enactment of S. 1499, as amended, will ensure that valuable credit and management assistance will flow to small businesses that were harmed by the September 11 terrorist attacks on the World Trade Centers and the Pentagon. It is my understanding the House of Representatives is prepared to act quickly on the bill soon after the 2-week recess, so that it can be sent to the President Bush for his signature in the near future. Fast action by Congress is critical. Small businesses from across the United States are continuing to struggle under the dual pressures from the economy and the aftermath of the terrorist attacks.

As the ranking member of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I have received pleas for help from small business in Missouri and across the nation: small restaurants that have lost much of their business due to the fall off in business travel; local flight schools that have been grounded as a result of the recent terrorist attacks; and Main Street retailers who are struggling to survive. The American Small Business Emergency Relief and Recovery Act contains sound initiatives to help our nation's small businesses and their employees. We in Congress must act and act soon to help our Nation's small businesses.

In response to the urgent calls for strong and effective Federal Government action to reverse the decline in the economy and stimulate a business rebound, last October I introduced the Small Business Leads to Economic Recovery Act of 2001, S. 1493, which was designed to provide effective economic stimulus but complementary ways: increasing access to capital for the nation's small enterprises; providing tax relief and investment incentives for our small firms and the self-employed; and directing one of the nation's largest consumers, the Federal Government, to shop with small business in America.

Historically, when our economy slows or turns into a recession, the strength of the small business sector helps to right our economic ship, with small businesses leading the Nation to economic recovery. Small businesses employ over one-half of the U.S. workforce and create 75 percent of the net new jobs. Clearly, we cannot afford to ignore America's small businesses as we consider measures to stimulate our economy.

S. 1499 goes to the heart of a major problem confronting thousands of small businesses today by taking on access to capital barriers. This bill is a bipartisan collaboration between Senator KERRY, and me and our staffs of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship. We have worked together to devise one-time modifications to the SBA Disaster Relief, 7(a) and 504 Loan Programs because the traditional approach to disaster relief will not address the critical needs of thousands of small businesses located at or around the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and in strategic locations throughout the United States.

In New York City, it could be a year and more before many of the small businesses destroyed or shut down by the terrorist attacks can reopen their doors and get back on their feet. Business disruption. Small businesses in need of working capital would be able to obtain SBA-guaranteed “Emergency Relief Loans” from their banks to help them during this period. Fees normally paid by the borrower to the SBA would be eliminated, and the SBA would guarantee 85 percent of the loan. A key feature of the bill is the authorization for banks to defer repayment of principal for up to one year. This section would remain in effect for 9 months after the date of enactment of this act.

My colleagues and I have heard from thousands of small businesses since the terrorist attacks that small businesses are experiencing significant hardship. The downturn in business activity, however, was clearly underway prior to September 11. The downturn was further exacerbated by the terrorist attacks.

S. 1499 would provide for changes in the SBA 7(a) Guaranteed Business Loan Program and the 504 Certified Development Company Loan Program to stimulate lending to small businesses that are most likely to grow and add new employees. The managers’ substitute amendment incorporates the provision from the emergency supplemental that reduces the annual fee paid by small business borrowers by 50 basis points, 0.50 percent, to 25 basis points, 0.25 percent. In addition, the up front origination fee paid by small business borrowers would be reduced. These enhancements to the SBA’s 7(a) program, and comparable reductions in 504 loan program fees, are to continue through September 30, 2004. They are designed to make the programs operate more effectively and efficiently during the period when the economy is weak and banks have tightened their underwriting requirements for small business loans.

Specifically, when the economy is slowing, it is normal for banks to raise the bar for obtaining commercial loans. However, making it harder for small businesses to survive is the wrong reaction to a slowing economy. By making these adjustments to the 7(a) and 504 loans to make them more affordable to borrowers and lenders, we will be working against history’s rules governing a slowing economy, thereby adding a stimulus for small businesses. Essentially, we will be providing a counter-cyclical action in the face of a slow economy with the express purpose of accelerating the recovery.

The SBA has a very effective infrastructure for providing management assistance to small businesses located nationwide. The Small Business Development Center, SBDC, SCORE, Women’s Business Center and Microloan programs provide much needed counseling to small businesses that are struggling or facing problems in their start-up phase. With the U.S. economy under unusual stress, many segments of the small business community are today forced to cope with daily management issues.

S. 1499 would authorize expansions in these programs so that the SBDCs, the SCORE chapters and the Women’s Business Centers are positioned to address the needs of a large influx of small businesses looking for help. Our bill would create special authorization for each program to provide assistance tailored to the needs of small businesses following the September 11 terrorist attack. For example, the bill would increase the authorization levels by the following amounts: SBDC program, $25 million, SCORE $2 million, Women’s Business Centers $2 million, and Microloan technical assistance, $3 million.

For small businesses that are doing business with the Federal Government section 9 of the managers’ substitute amendment to S. 1499 would authorize a fund of $50 million to compensate small businesses who default in 504 loans as the result of the terrorist attacks, has caused the costs to increase for small businesses to meet the terms of their contracts. The fund would be administered by the Department of the Treasury. The Office of Federal Procurement Policy would establish guidelines for administering the program, and the contracting agencies would consult with the SBA when determining whether an award should be made.

The American Small Businesses Emergency Relief and Recovery Act is important legislation that is needed to help the many struggling small businesses. Swift passage will be very helpful to the many businesses that are struggling or facing problems in their early stages of growth and development. In addition, the bill would create special authorization for microbusinesses looking for help. Our bill would enter into a grant agreement with the Director which shall specify the duties of the Authority under this section, including provisions for continual maintenance of the Center by the Authority without the use of Federal funds; and

(b) demonstrate, to the satisfaction of the Director, that the Authority has raised, or has commitments from private persons or State or local government agencies for, an amount that is equal to not less than 66 percent of the cost to the Authority of the activities to be carried out under the grant.

(3) LIMITATION.—The amount of any grant awarded under paragraph (1) shall not exceed 33 percent of the cost of the activities to be funded under the grant.

(4) IN-KIND CONTRIBUTION.—When calculating the cost share obligation by the fair market value of the approximately 300 acres of land donated by Oklahoma City for the Center, if such land is used for the Center.

CORRECTIONS IN ENROLLMENT OF H.R. 2356

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate turn to the immediate consideration of H. Con. Res. 361.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 361) directing the clerk of the House of Representatives to make corrections in the enrollment of the bill, H.R. 2356.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I am in support of the unanimous consent for the adoption of H. Con. Res. 361 making technical corrections to H.R. 2356 passed by the Senate yesterday.

Several weeks ago, I met with Senator McCaIN and Senator Feingold, we have before us today the fruit of our labor. I thank them and their staff, specifically Jeanne Bumpus and Bob Schiff, for their hard work and persistence in making these minor corrections.

The items contained in this concurrent resolution are a compilation of technical corrections sought by me, and corrections sought by the Senators from Arizona and Wisconsin. In fact, this independent expert assistance was provided to me by the staffs of my colleagues from Arizona and Wisconsin. I applaud my colleagues for addressing this technical issue and will consent that a letter from Commissioners Mason and Smith outlining technical issues with H.R. 2356 for the Senate to consider be included in the RECORD. Similarly, the correction to the citation to the Immigration and Nationalization Act was raised by the FEC Commissioners Brad Smith and Dave Mason and advanced by the staff of my colleagues from Arizona and Wisconsin. I am grateful for the determination of the FEC, Shays-Meehan inadvertently cited the definition of “advocates” rather than “lawfully admitted for permanent residence.”

These technical corrections clarify some other important points: Respecting the primacy of State law in financing State and local party buildings; continuing to allow members to transfer excess campaign funds to party committees without limit; ensuring that we do not change the rules for 2002 candidates engaged in a run-off, recount, or election contest; providing for direct member challenges to the constitutionality of H.R. 2356; and providing a sunset provision for expedited review in the D.C. Circuit court of appeals who live on the west coast do not forevermore have to come to Washington, DC, to challenge provisions of the act.

However, I remain strongly opposed to the underlying R. A. 2356 and believe its disparate treatment of individuals, parties, groups, corporations, and labor unions runs afoul of our fundamental constitutional rights. By singling out national party committees and chilling their speech at the State and local level, this legislation marks the end of “national” party committees and the beginning of “federal” party committees. Further, the broadcast gag provisions in the bill are not only unprecedented in scope, but haphazard in applicability. I will ask consent that 5 additional items be included in the RECORD which highlight the egregious constitutional and practical problems with the legislation.

Again I thank Senator McCAN and Senator FEINGOLD for their efforts on this concurrent resolution and commend the House for their swift action on this concurrent resolution.

I also have additional material printed in the RECORD.

The material follows.

FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION,
Hon. MITCH MCCONNELL,
Ranking Member,
Senate Committee on Rules.

DEAR SENATOR MCCONNELL: You have asked for comments on provisions of H.R. 2356 that appear sufficiently problematic in enforcement or interpretation as to require legislative clarification. We urge Congress to consider this legislation in the context of the issues which could otherwise hinder our ability to effectuate the will of the Congress or to administer the election laws.

We note that we have had only a few days to review the House-passed version of H.R. 2356, so the list below may not be exhaustive of all desirable technical and clarifying changes.

1. Should the Commission regulate Internet web pages or e-mail as “Public Communication”? The proposed new definition of “Public Communication” (proposed Part 22 of Section 301 of the FECA [2 USC 431]) includes “any other form of general public political communication,” The Commission has treated Internet web pages available to the public and widely-distributed e-mail as forms of “general public political communication.” Thus, the new definition combined with the Commission’s established interpretation of the FECA could command regulation of Internet and e-mail communications. Congress should clarify whether it intends for the Commission to regulate publicly-available web pages and widely-distributed e-mail as forms of “Public Communication.”

2. Does Congress intend to prohibit state or local political parties from making contributions to state or local PACs? Proposed new Section 305’s contributions to state or local political parties to 527 organizations other than political parties, “political committees,” and authorized committees of state and local candidates. Since the term “political committee” as used in the FECA is limited to Federal (e.g. FECA-registered) political committees, Congress may wish to clarify whether it intends to prohibit state and local political parties from making state-permissible (non-Federal) contributions to state-registered political committees.

3. Does Congress intend to prohibit Federal Officeholders from appearing at fundraising events for state or local candidates? Proposed new Section 223(e) prohibits raising of non-Federal funds by Federal officeholders, except for state or local party committees or for the official’s own campaign for state or local office. Congress may wish to clarify whether it intends to allow Federal officeholders to appear at fundraising events for authorized committees of state or local candidates.

4. Does Congress intend to exempt non-Federal amounts spent on “Federal Election Activity” from state reporting requirements? Section 453 of the FECA pre-empts state law “with respect to election to Federal office.” This provision prohibits states from imposing reporting requirements additional to those of the FECA. Section 103 of H.R. 2356 requires states and local political parties to report non-Federal funds raised for Federal Election Activity. The “Levin” funds must be “donated in accordance with state law but not ‘support’ pursuant to state law.” However, if funds are not reported to relevant state agencies, the FEC will have difficulty determining whether they were in compliance with state law. Congress should clarify whether it intends to exempt non-Federal amounts spent on “Federal Election Activity” from state reporting requirements to require dual (Federal and state) reporting.

5. Does Congress intend to repeal the requirement that Independent Expenditure reports be received within 24 hours? Just over a year ago Congress revisited the FECA to require that last-minute Independent Expenditure reports be received within 24 hours. Provisions required filing by mail, which sometimes resulted in a several day delay in receipt of Independent Expenditure reports. Section 212 of H.R. 2356 would impose additional reporting requirements for Independent Expenditures. However, Section 212 appears to be based on the premise that Independent Expenditures are, presumably inadvertently, would have the effect of repealing the recently-imposed requirement that 24-hour reports be received within 24 hours. Similarly, Congress should consider whether personal expenditure notifications under Sections 304 and 3019 of H.R. 2356 must be received or merely filed within 24 hours, or possibly 2 days.

6. Does Congress intend to repeal the requirement that reports of Independent Expenditures in support of or opposition to Senate candidates be filed with the Secretary of the Senate? Section 212 (discussed above) in restating the Independent Expenditure reporting requirements also omits the provision in 2 U.S.C. 434(c) providing for Senator-related reports to be filed with the Senate, and requires all Independent Expenditures reports to the FEC. Congress may wish to consider whether this change is intended.

7. Are the existing and proposed new “coordination” provisions intended to be read consistently? Section 202 of H.R. 2356 treats an electioneering communication “coordinated” with a candidate or party as a contribution to that candidate or party. Earlier versions of H.R. 2356 included a definition of “coordination,” but that definition was deleted in development of the existing statutory rule addressing “cooperation, consultation or concert” (44Ua(a)(B)(i)). Congress should harmonize the terminology between Sections 202 and 302 and propose new subparagraph (C) of this section, lest confusion arise as to whether Congress intended a common regulatory standard to apply. Similarly, Congress should clarify the relationship between “contributions” and “electioneering communications” addressed in proposed new subparagraph (B) and proposed new subparagraph (C) of this section, lest confusion arise as to whether Congress intended a common regulatory standard to apply. Congress should consider instead prohibiting the non-graduated response (similar to the House provision) might strike a better balance among the goals of aiding candidates, limiting the size of contributions and reasonable simplicity of application.

Finally, the provisions require candidates beyond from income limits to return unspent funds within fifty days of the election. However, the bill requires reports on the disposal of these contributions “in the next regularly scheduled report after the date of the election.” For general elections, this date would fall only thirty days following the election, and the relevant date would be less than thirty days following the primary. Thus, committees would be required to report on how they plan to spend or distribute funds required to dispose of them. Congress should consider requiring the “disposal report” in a report due sixty days or more (allowing fifty to sixty days for return of excesses and some time to complete the report) after the relevant election.

Section 303 of H.R. 2356 helpfully strengthens the “foreign money ban.” It appears that Congress intends to hold foreign nations strictly liable for violations of this provision. However, the provision prohibits “solicitation, acceptance or receipt” of funds from a foreign national, read most naturally as including even when a donor, contributor, or other person indicating that the contributor is a foreign national. Thus, candidates signing direct mail fundraising appeals could be held in violation of this provision if they included the name of a foreign national. Congress should consider instead prohibiting the “knowing solicitation, acceptance or receipt” of foreign national funds. The standard is distinct from “knowing and willful,” thus, this change would protect genuinely inadvertent solicitations while still distinguishing between simple and aggravated violations.

9. Does Congress intend for the FECA to audit all self-financing candidates and their opponents? The “millionaire” amendments (Sec. 304 and 319 of H.R. 2356) include eight variables (two of which will change as often as daily). Congress may wish to clarify whether it intends to apply these provisions for graduated increases in contribution limits.

We are concerned that candidates who may be entitled to benefit from this provision will be prevented from doing so because of both its complexity and the lag time between personal expenditures resulting increases in contribution limits. The complexity will also make it difficult and costly for the Commission to enforce, likely requiring an audit of every candidate who in this provision comes into play. (The Commission currently has resources to audit approximately two Senate campaigns per election cycle.) At least twelve campaigns would have been affected (by triggering or being eligible for increased contributions) had these provisions been in effect for the 2002 elections.)

The distinction between primary and general elections could allow wealthy candidates (particularly in states with late primaries) to spend unlimited funds attacking a prospective general election opponent during the primary without triggering increased contribution limits. Further, the intended application of the provisions (Sec. 319) is unclear: Are the gross receipts figures from June 30 and December 31 added together, or combined, compared or applied in some other fashion? A provision with a higher initial threshold, fewer offsetting factors, and a non-graduated response (similar to the House provision) might strike a better balance among the goals of aiding candidates, limiting the size of contributions and reasonable simplicity of application.

The FECA amendments described above are unprecedented in scope, but haphazard in applicability. We urge Congress to consider the constitutional and practical problems which could otherwise hinder our ability to effectuate the will of the Congress or to administer the election laws.
10. Does Congress intend to extend the Commission's "allocation window" during the soft money transition period? A floor amendment to H.R. 2556 clarified that the national party soft money transition regulation (Section 402(b)) is not intended to allow parties to pay "hard money" debts with soft money. However, the statutory provision allowing parties to use their federal accounts between 10 days before and not later than 60 days after expending funds. Congress may wish to clarify whether it intends for national parties to comply with the Commission's existing allocation regulations (including the 70-day allocation window) during the transition period.

11. Does Congress intend for the expedited Judicial Review and exclusive jurisdiction provisions of Section 403 to apply in perpetuity? Section 403 provides for a special three-judge District Court panel and expedited appeal to the Supreme Court for any constitutional challenge to the Act. However, by not limiting the provision to initial challenges (within a specified period), Section 403 would require convening of a three-judge panel and expedited appeal to the Supreme Court for actions years into the future. All such future challenges would have to be filed only in the District of Columbia, and circuit court review would be permanently foreclosed. Special FECA procedures for immediacy and constitutional challenges enacted in 1971 and 1974 have been employed in the Third Circuit and District of Columbia in the past. Congress may wish to set a time limit for these special judicial review provisions and allow normal judicial procedures to govern constitutional claims raised in subsequent years.

Sincerely,

DAVID M. MASON,
Chairman,
BRADLEY A. SMITH,
Commissioner.

DONATIONS DON'T SEEM TO CHANGE VOTES

BY DAVID S. BRODER

A lot of politicians have been explaining the money they have gotten from Enron. When U.S. Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.), the powerful ranking Democrat on the House Energy and Commerce Committee, was asked about the donations he received, he said: "When somebody gives me money, they, I assume, are supporting one thing: good government. And that's what they got, and that's what Enron got."

In recently passing new campaign finance regulations in the past two years, Congress may wish to press insist that donors only support candidates whose views they share. Proponents of campaign finance reform have managed to claim the mantle of disdaining "hard money" contributions and want to set a time limit for these special judicial review provisions and allow normal judicial procedures to govern constitutional claims raised in subsequent years.

For example, the Democrats who furnished the bulk of the votes for passage may be dismayed to learn that in the view of Michael Malbin, the widely experienced head of the nonpartisan Campaign Finance Institute, the bill hands President Bush an enormous advantage in his 2004 reelection campaign.

Here's why: In 200, when Bush rejected public financing of his race for the Republican nomination, he assembled a record treasury of "hard money" contributions (limited to $1,000 per person) from family friends, Texas supporters and allies. It end the same will follow if we continue the path of stricter and stricte campaign "reform."

NOW, THE UNINTENDED CONSEQUENCES

It was a famous victory. The campaign finance bill now has passed both the House and Senate and likely will become law with President Bush's signature.

The bill has one great virtue. It will end the ugly and indefensible practice of federal elected officials extracting six-figure contributions to their political parties from corporations, unions and wealthy individuals. It is clear and definitive about doing that, and it will be effective.

Beyond that, the consequences of the bill the Senate approved last year and the House passed early Thursday morning are probably not as dire as they may seem. The optimism of the backers is exceeded only by the folly of the House Republican leadership, which must be grateful today of the mainline Republicans who na\n

Theoretically, one wealthy individual could drop $1 million or more into his favorite party, by writing separate checks to 50 state or local party headquarters. You may want to loophole or a wise provision to support grassroots activity, but it goes against the centralizing forces in our polity—why else strengthened not just recent presidents but congressional leaders of both parties.

When the national parties do less for their presidencies and the handful of their professional candidates, those men and women become even more individual political entrepreneurs. It is perhaps not a coincidence that all four of the sponsors—Sens. John McCain and Russ Feingold, Reps. Chris Shays and Marty Meehan—are notable for their maverick tendencies. Hence, this legislation will breed more of their kind.

Finally, the issue the opponents of this bill tried without success to raise its effects on the relative power of interest groups and political parties. The most dubious parts of the measure are those regulating “issues ads” that non-party groups run during election campaigns. These provisions implicate basic First Amendment rights of expression, and if the courts find them unconstitutional, then the new legislation will empower interest groups while restricting the parties’ participation in campaigns.

In short, interest-money politics are as American as apple pie. But their agendas are, by definition, narrower than those of the broad coalitions called Republicans and Democrats. It will not help the parties to magnify the power of narrow interests at the expense of the two-party system.

WITH VICTORIES LIKE THESE... THE GLARING INADQUACIES OF SHAYS-MEEHAN

By Ellen S. Miller

What a cruel twist of fate: campaign finance reform that benefits Republicans and big money.

The Shays-Meehan bill is back-to-the-future reform: legislation that takes us back to just before 1980, when there was no “soft money” but still a huge imbalance in the influence of the big contributors over the rest of the population. Under the terms of the bill that passed this week the national parties and their campaign committees can no longer raise soft money—the unlimited and unregulated contributions that totaled $496 million in 2000. A very good thing, say reformers, for it will ease shock to big-money politics, which enables campaigns to sidestep the limits altogether. The first increase involves the aggregate contribution limit for individuals. The legislation nearly doubles the limit from $1,000 to $2,000 per election.

The second hike is in what individuals can give to national political parties, which rises from the current $20,000 per cycle per party to $30,000. Within these limits, the bill also provides for another dramatic increase: the amount individuals can give to House and Senate candidates doubles to $2,200 per cycle.

But say that a self-funding multimillionaire candidate is running for office, as is frequently the case these days. Should that happen, Shays-Meehan raises the cap on individual donations to that candidate’s opponents from $2,000 to $12,000. Another limit that opponents are concerned about is the $57,500 that coordinated expenditures for their coordinated expenditures to supplement the campaigns of party candidates within the states—is lifted altogether.

The bill also would provide more unsettling for the Democrats than for the Republicans. While only five of the 19 federal legislative candidates who spent $1 million in hard money in 2000 won their races, four of them were Senate Democrats—three of them newcomers from Minnesota, and Maria Cantwell of Washington (and one returning (Hers Kohn, of Wisconsin).

So what would gain power from these fixes? To understand just how off kilter this reform is, you have to understand one primary factor: Today, less than one-tenth of one percent of Americans make a contribution of $1,000 to candidates, but these 340,000 individuals accounted for fully $1 billion of the $2.9 billion in hard and soft money that politicians, PACs, and parties spent. Most of this money comes in large bundles from the “economically interested”—executives and business associates who’ve been armed-twist into supporting a corporation’s electoral favors.

Under the new legislation, those bundles will only grow larger. Republican Senator John McCain maintained to being embarrassed recently by the disclosure that he took $31,000 from individuals associated with the now bankrupt telecommunications firm Global Crossing (his own case before the Federal Communications Commission. Just how tainted would be feel if he got double that amount (allowable under the new limit) from them the next time he runs for president?

After all these years of struggle, why did reformers settle for so little? In fact, after more than a decade of seeing their more ambitious ideas come to naught even as the amount of money in politics grew exponentially, reformers and their editorial-board allies felt that they desperately needed a win. According to Derek Cressman of USPIRG (the only campaign-finance reform group that’s ever been able to halve the K NEXT INADEQUACIES OF SHAYS-MEEHAN unconstitutional and ineffective. As long as measures like McCain-Feingold or Shays-Meehan are allowed to masquerade as reform, neither Congress nor President Clinton will get serious about additional true reforms, which we believe lies in the direction of fair and adequate public financing.

Just last year, we offered Burt Neuborne, a former ACLU Legal Director and one of the principal opponents of our campaign finance policies, the opportunity to argue his position before the ACLU’s 85-member National Board. After hours of debate and discussion, Neuborne completely failed to shift the ACLU Board to his view. Many Board members let him know that Neuborne was in direct conflict with the First Amendment rights that form the foundation of our democracy. Ultimately, the one Board member who had a motion to radically alter our long-standing policy withdrew it rather than allowing it to come to a vote.

Yet our former ACLU colleagues persist, offering sweeping proposals that would constitute a wholesale breach of First Amendment rights and that ignore the real-world impact of limits on speech. They speak approvingly of efforts to impose “reasonable limits on campaign spending” without saying specifically what such regulations would do. But at those core principles becomes clear that current campaign finance measures would do immeasurable damage to political speech. The devil, as the cliché goes, is in the details.

A key provision of both McCain-Feingold and Shays-Meehan would, for example, establish limits that effectively bar any individual or organization from explicitly criticizing incumbent Mayor Giuliani in the wake of the horrific Abner Louima incident. In other words, the official is up for re-election within 60 days. If that kind of law had governed the recent New York City mayoral election, it would have effectively barred the ACLU (and other non-partisan groups) from criticizing incumbent Mayor Giuliani by name on the subject of police brutality in the wake of the horrific Abner Louima incident—precisely during the pre-election period when such criticism is most audible. That prohibition would have gagged us even when such criticism is most audible. That such criticism be effectively barred from criticizing can-

Still, our former ACLU colleagues press ahead with these proposals that would in effect limit political speech. We shake our heads, wondering how such measures can be regarded as “reforms” by anyone who is genuinely committed to the First Amendment.
