PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 107th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 148

WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 2002

No. 44

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m.

The Reverend Ronald S. Escalante, Good Shepherd Catholic Church, Alexandria, Virginia, offered the following prayer:

Almighty and ever-living God, You have revealed Your glory to all nations. Through You authority is rightly administered, laws are enacted, and judgment is decreed.

Let the light of Your divine power and wisdom guide the deliberations of Congress, and shine forth in all the proceedings and laws framed for our rule and government. They seek to preserve peace, promote national happiness, and continue to bring us the blessings of liberty and equality.

We likewise commend to Your unbounded mercy all the citizens of the United States, that we may be blessed in the knowledge and sanctified in the observance of Your holy law. And after enjoying the blessings of this life, may we be admitted to those which are eternal.

We pray to You, who are Lord and God, forever and ever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Monahan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed a bill of the following title in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 1533. An act to amend the Public Health Service Act to reauthorize and strengthen the health centers program and the National Health Service Corps, and to establish the Healthy Communities Access Program, which will help coordinate services for the uninsured and underinsured, and for other purposes.

WELCOMING REVEREND RONALD S. ESCALANTE, ASSOCIATE PASTOR, GOOD SHEPHERD CATHOLIC CHURCH, ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

(Mr. MORAN of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I'd like to just say a word about the priest who gave our invocation today. Father Escalante was born in the Philippines. He has his Masters in Divinity from Mount St. Mary's College and Seminary in Maryland. He has been the Associate Pastor of Good Shepherd Catholic Church for the last 4 years.

Good Shepherd Catholic Church in Mount Vernon, Virginia, has been particularly affected by the events of 9/11. Three of their families lost loved ones, as well as most recently Corporal Matthew Commons was killed in a firefight in Afghanistan while on a mission to rescue a Navy Seal. So that parish has been particularly determined to bring an end to hostility around the world through God's word.

Father Escalante has played an important role in uniting that parish and helping them to get over their grief. We thank him for delivering our invocation this morning.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will entertain ten 1-minute speeches on each side.

COMMENDING WAL-MART FOR PROVIDING AID TO THOSE AFFECTED BY SEPTEMBER 11 TRAGEDY

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to congratulate Wal-Mart for its participation in Vital Voices, an organization which assists Afghan women and children. Wal-Mart is supporting Vital Voices' efforts to provide aid to enable Afghan women to return to work and Afghan girls to return to school.

Wal-Mart's donation is part of a larger company effort to provide aid to those who are affected by the September 11 tragedy. Since September 11, Wal-Mart and Sam's Club associates and customers have raised and contributed nearly $16 million in support of relief agencies and victims' families, including a $1 million donation to UNICEF to help Afghani children.

Please join me in congratulating and recognizing the wonderful contributions of Wal-Mart and Sam's Club associates and customers.

RESPONDING TO SUPREME COURT RULING ON PORNOGRAPHY

(Mr. LAMPSIN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, child pornography was a worldwide industry that was all but eradicated in the 1980s. Unfortunately, it has resurfaced with a vengeance, thanks to computer technology. The explosive growth of computer technology via e-mail, chat rooms and news groups have created a bigger demand for pornographic pictures of our children on the Information Superhighway.

Congress must step up to the plate and take some action to stem the growing tide of child exploitation on the Internet and in other forms. On Tuesday, the Supreme Court struck down the Child Pornography Protection Act. Today the Congressional Missing and Exploited Children's Caucus will hold a briefing for members of the caucus on legislation that is being developed in response to the Supreme Court's decision.

We must continue to protect our children from exploitation and pornography. The Supreme Court sent the wrong message to pornographers all over the world. Mr. Speaker, Congress needs to send the right message, and we will, just as we will in returning Ludwig Koons to the United States. It is not right that Ludwig's pornographer mother illegally removed him to Italy against the order of the United States courts. She is a criminal. We need to bring Ludwig home and all of our children home.

FOSTERING FAMILY INDEPENDENCE THROUGH WELFARE REFORM

(Mr. FOLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, in 1996 this House passed historic welfare reform legislation that fostered family independence by moving people into the workforce. Welfare reform is an issue of monumental proportion. Six years ago we had a positive effect on the lives of millions of needy Americans. Today we have another chance to improve the lives of many more.

Since 1996, statistics have shown that welfare families have begun to achieve independence. While we celebrate the progress of 1996, we must charter a plan that guarantees future success. This Congress must move forward to reauthorize welfare reform and assist those Americans that have not yet achieved their goals.

Welfare reform works. But we must continually improve the system today for tomorrow. By reaching out to Americans in need, we will change not only lives, but put a smile on the face of our society.

We are making progress, Mr. Speaker, but it is time we turn the corner. Let us strengthen the path towards independence by empowering people to support themselves. I encourage my colleagues to support reauthorized welfare reform.

PROTECTING SACRED NATIVE AMERICAN SITES

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, just yesterday we had a hearing in the Committee on Resources dealing with a parcel of land belonging to the Pechanga Band of Mission Indians in Riverside County, California. The Tribe is trying to protect the land because it contains several sites sacred to the tribe, including the largest living oak tree in the United States.

This magnificent tree is over 1,500 years old and has been the site of tribal ceremonies for generations. Believe it or not, this tree is in danger of being felled by an order to construct transmission lines.

We are often faced with the perception that Native American sacred sites are not worthy of protection somehow because they generally are a part of nature and not brick and mortar buildings with a large bell towers. One look at this tree, however, and the majesty of it comes across to even the most cynical.

While I believe we will be able to preserve this particular Native American site through the hard work of the gentleman from California (Mr. ISSA), Senator BOXER and Senator FEINSTEIN, dozens of other similar areas are threatened with desecration. The Glamis Mine in California and the Valley of the Chiefs in Montana are in danger of being lost forever by the presence of gold mining and the sights and sounds of oil drilling.

The time has come for us to stop running around trying to cherry-pick certain Native American sacred sites to save. We need to act and have one strong policy and procedure, backed up by the laws of this country.

SUPPORTING ISRAEL IN ITS WAR WITH TERRORISM

(Mr. DOOLITTLE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to condemn the terrorist attacks upon the people of Israel. On the basis of our shared principles and democratic values, we have an obligation to stand squarely with our democratic ally. We will support those who stand for freedom.

On Monday, tens of thousands of Americans assembled in Washington, D.C., to stand in solidarity with the people of Israel and to support her right to defend herself. We must not and we will not allow the lone light of democracy in the entire Middle East to be extinguished by the Palestinian wave of hatred.

Yasser Arafat has impeded peace and perpetuated his charade for far too long. The Palestinian Authority must not be allowed to breed its violence and hatred, and the international community, led by the United States, must make it absolutely clear that terrorism will not be tolerated.

I urge all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to continue their unyielding support for the people of Israel as they wage their own war on terrorism.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY

(Mr. DeFAZIO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, President Bush and the Republicans in Congress proclaim that today's vote to make permanent last year's $2 trillion tax cut is merely to correct a quirk in the law that sunset the entire tax cut December 31, 2010.

That was no quirk. The Republicans controlled the House, the Senate and the White House. They wrote it into the law because they wanted to hide the implications of these massive tax cuts; the fact that they were going to put us back in deficit, that they were going to take money from the Social Security lock box, which they just voted for seven times, and they just wanted to pretend.

Well, now the pretension is over. They are revealing their true side. Make these cuts permanent. If they are successful in doing that, another $400 billion of deficit in the next 10 years, every penny of it coming out of the Social Security trust fund, money raised with a regressive flat tax which is going to fund estate tax relief for people with estates over $5 million and people who earn over $373,000 a year.

That is what this vote is all about, plain and simple. No quirk; it is highway robbery.

FIGHTING FOR THE RELEASE OF HOUA LY

(Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to mark a tragic anniversary. Three years ago tomorrow, Houa Ly, a Hmong-American constituent of mine, disappeared on the border between Laos and Thailand. Eyewitnesses last saw him with Lao government authorities, a brutal regime infamous for human rights abuses.

For 3 years his family has suffered without any real answers. It has been three frustrating years.

His family is inspired, however, by the memories they still have of their life together as an American family and of Mr. Ly's incredible service to this country, saving downed U.S. pilots during the Vietnam War.

Our Nation will also remember him. The Lao government and its apologists should know for that me and many others, this case is an insurmountable obstacle that should block any effort towards normalizing relations between our two countries.

It has been three frustrating years, and for all of our work together with the Ly family, it often feels like we have gotten nowhere. But we will not give up. A U.S. citizen is mission. His family deserves answers, and we will keep fighting until we get them.

SUPPORTING THE RIGHT OF LEGAL IMMIGRANTS TO BENEFITS UNDER THE FARM BILL

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning to applaud the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) for his motion to instruct today that I ask my colleagues to support enthusiastically. It is important to explain the purpose and the force and the importance of the motion to instruct, and that is to reinforce the language that was offered in the other body regarding legal immigrants and the rights of legal immigrants to receive benefits under the farm bill, in this instance, food stamps. Legal immigrants are represented by us all—we owe them good and fair representation.

It is important to note that nothing is being taken from those who claim to believe that only benefits should ensure to citizens. Legal immigrants work, pay taxes, are our neighbors, and, most of all, they offer their lives for our freedom in the United States military.

□ 1015

This is a commonsense amendment, and it states that the United States House of Representatives truly believes in the equality of all. We cannot owe shame to this body by declaring that legal immigrants who work here and are part of this Nation and sacrifice their lives deserve not to have the benefits. We realize that the U.S. military, many of them, are on food stamps. Would we deny to them the rights of those of us who live and breathe the free air of this Nation? Vote for the Baca amendment.

UNITED NATIONS HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION LOSES CREDIBILITY

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, killing innocent civilians to achieve a political goal is unacceptable under any circumstance. But now we have received word that the United Nations Human Rights Commission has voted to condemn the State of Israel for a long list of supposed human rights violations without even once mentioning Palestinian violence. Worse than that, the resolution supports, and I quote, "all available means, including armed struggle," to establish a Palestinian State.

Now, the United States is on record of supporting an eventual Palestinian state. But we also know what "armed struggle" means in the current environment in the Middle East. It means a 17-year-old girl being promised all the glories of heaven if she will just strap a bomb to herself and go kill a bunch of innocent Israelis.

It is shocking that the U.N. Human Rights Commission would endorse violence against civilians. I think we should thank those countries who voted against this resolution, but we should express anger at the 40 countries who voted for it, including six from Europe. It is an outrage. As far as I am concerned, the U.N. Human Rights Commission has lost all of its credibility.

U.S. NEEDS COMPREHENSIVE ENERGY POLICY NOW

(Mr. HALL of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to begin a series of remarks on energy. Energy, or the lack of energy, has caused many of the wars of the world. Once again, the uncertainties of the Middle East have caused prices in oil markets to rise; and from what we read in the news, the current uncertainty is, unfortunately, likely to last for quite some time.

My goal with this series is simple: to impress upon my colleagues the need to develop a national energy policy, and that policy should include all of our resources: fossil fuels, coal, nuclear renewables, and yes, conservation. We need them all.

In this country we are blessed with an abundance of energy choices. We have abundant coal reserves, in fact, some of the largest in the world. We have a tremendous potential for the development of solar and wind resources; and even though for many years we produced huge volumes of crude oil and natural gas and even supplied some of the world with it at times, we still have significant oil and gas resources in the ground.

Much of the rest of the world is envious of our energy resources and the choices we have. In the coming days and weeks, I will address some of these options and see what we can do to bring them into reality.

CONTINUING THE SUCCESS OF WELFARE REFORM

(Mr. TIAHRT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, I support President Bush's welfare reform. I am often asked what I consider some of the best accomplishments I have made as a Congressman. Well, I am very proud to have been a Member of the historic 105th Congress that passed the 1996 Welfare Reform Act.

Perhaps more than anything else that we have accomplished during my time in Washington, reforming welfare has given the most hope to American families. Welfare caseloads fell by 9 million since 1994. That means 9 million more Americans, 9 million more people are on the road to making their dreams a reality.

The number of mothers who are more likely to go on welfare, but instead have a job, rose by 40 percent between 1995 and 2000. Since 1996, nearly 3 million children have been lifted from poverty. In the African American community, the child poverty rate is at an all-time record low.

The success of the 1996 welfare reform law is beyond dispute. Our challenge and our great opportunity is to build on that success by letting more Americans work their way to freedom of dependence and follow the path to making their dreams a reality.

EXTENDING CONDOLENCES AND GRATITUDE TO CANADA

(Mr. SKELTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I want to express condolences to the families of the four Canadian soldiers who were killed and the eight soldiers who were injured during training exercises in Afghanistan. News reports say that these are the first Canadians to be killed in a combat zone in half a century.

Canada is a valued member of our coalition in the fight against terrorism and has been a valued friend of the United States for decades. I fear we do not express our gratitude enough to the Canadian people for their support and their friendship. In the face of this tragedy, it is important to thank Canada for its commitment to the fight against terrorism.

Our men and women in uniform, U.S. forces, as well as members of our coalition forces, take risks every day in support of our freedoms. Unfortunately, some of our best and brightest young people lose their lives in this cause. Canadian forces are fighting alongside U.S. and European troops, seeking to hunt down remnants of Osama bin Laden's terrorist organization. We extend our condolences to our Canadian allies.

U.S. MUST STAND WITH ISRAEL

(Mr. TIBERI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TIBERI. Mr. Speaker, it is more important than ever that we as individuals and the United States as a Nation reflect on the historic link between the United States and Israel. Yesterday was the 54th anniversary of Israel's independence. The U.S. must stand with Israel now as it did in 1948 as the war on terrorism continues throughout the world.

For 54 years, Israel has existed as the only democracy in the Middle East. We must not abandon our work to bring a lasting peace to the region. The efforts of those trying to achieve this goal over the past few days and weeks should be applauded. However, we must also not forget Israel's right as a sovereign nation to defend itself and its people from terrorism.

Israel has stood by efforts of the U.S. to combat terrorism around the globe. Likewise, the U.S. must stand by Israel in its effort to eradicate the scourge of terrorism.

Let us be clear: attacks on civilians by suicide bombers are acts of terrorism.

REJECT MAKING THE TAX CUTS PERMANENT

(Mr. INSLEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, today the majority party will ram through a bill making their tax cuts permanent; but it is not just tax cuts they will make permanent. They will make a $4 trillion raid on the American Social Security trust fund permanent. They will make their $1 billion raid on the Medicare trust fund permanent. They will take their temporary wound to Social Security and make it into a permanent scar.

Just when 40 million Americans will be entering Social Security, they will be permanently raiding it for $4 trillion. They will be doing so as part of an ultimate dream to privatize Social Security and realize what one Republican called the hope that Medicare some day would just "wither on the vine."

Mr. Speaker, today's bill ought to be called the "Permanent Raid on Social Security," the "Permanent Injury to Medicare Act of 2002"; and we should reject it.

TIME FOR ACTION ON MEDICARE REFORM

(Mr. HEFLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, it is time to take a serious look at the problems we have with Medicare. Medicare started for the right reasons; there is no question about that, and I do not think we can argue with that. We did not want the elderly going without the ability to have the proper health care. We all realize it is not perfect and we need to do something about the prescription drug portion of it.

But there is a bigger problem with Medicare, and that is the problem of access. Doctors are dropping out across this country in droves. They are dropping out because the compensation is too low, and we proposed this year to make it even lower. They are dropping out because there is a hassle factor of feeling that if they make a little clerical error, that they might be drawn in by the police and pulled before the courts.

I had a woman come to me in a town meeting the other day that said she brought her mother from Missouri to Colorado, and they had gone to 128 doctors trying to find care for her mother and none of them would take new Medicare patients.

If we do not have access, we do not have a program. Congress must stop ignoring this problem. It is time for action.

INDIAN SACRED SITES MUST BE TREATED WITH REVERENCE

(Mr. RAHALL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. RAHALL. Mr. Speaker, yesterday at this time several Members of the House Committee on Resources Democratic Caucus rose to speak on a number of environmental issues as a prelude to Earth Day, which is April 22. As the ranking Democrat on that committee, today we continue with this theme.

My purpose this morning, however, is not to speak to the more traditional environmental concerns of which I share, but rather to draw attention to the destruction of sites located on Federal lands which are sacred to American Indians.

Valley of Chiefs, Montana. This area contains historic rock art and is used for ceremonial purposes. Yet the Bush administration believes it is a pretty good place to drill for oil and gas.

Indian Pass, California, a place where dream trails were woven. Yet the Bush administration has given the green light to a massive 1,600 acre open-pit gold mine there.

There are many other examples.

Most Americans understand a reverence for the great Sistine Chapel or a traditional church with steeple and a bell. I believe it is time we sound the alarm bell for Indian sacred sites and treat them with equal reverence. We are, after all, one Nation under God, and all of our religious beliefs must be protected.

WASHINGTON STATE NAMED WINE REGION OF THE YEAR

(Mr. NETHERCUTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Speaker, the State of Washington has long been known for its great people, its great natural beauty, its great companies like Boeing and Microsoft, and its great basketball teams. Now it has been designated with another honor, and that is "Wine Region of the Year" as endorsed by "Wine Enthusiast" magazine.

This designation is fully justified. Washington State is now the second largest wine producing State in the country. It provides $2.4 billion to the Washington State economy, and it employs 11,000 people. It is a small business-focused industry, and it provides tremendously to the jobs and the agriculture community of eastern Washington and western Washington. It produced 100,000 tons of grapes in the year 2001.

So congratulations to the State of Washington, and congratulations to the wine industry in the State of Washington, which helps our agriculture economy, and thanks to "Wine Enthusiast" magazine for making this designation.

PROTECT LANDS SACRED TO INDIAN TRIBES

(Mr. KILDEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, as cochair of the Native American Caucus, I work on many issues on behalf of our first Americans. An issue that is of particular importance to me relates to protecting lands sacred to our Indian tribes.

Native Americans were the first protectors of this great land, and protect it they really did.

Long before my forefathers arrived here, it was the native Americans who respected, honored and gave thanks for all that nature provided. They knew never to take more than what was needed, and never disrespect or damage their sacred areas.

I am sad to see so many native American sacred sites under the threat of desecration and the active role our government often plays.

We have attempted over the years to enact legislation to protect these sites, but each time it falls short. We need to pass legislation that will put the full legal weight of the United States behind the preservation of native American sacred sites.

POSTAL SERVICE REFORM

(Mr. GARY G. MILLER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. GARY G. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, on April 4, the postal service transmitted its "Transformation Plan" to Congress. I read through some of the report and was surprised that there was no mention of the fact that the postal service spent $55 million on general advertising in 2001.

The report did, however, stress that the postal service needs more "flexibility" and cited "increasing cost burdens" and "significant fixed costs" as part of the problem.

Now, why on earth is an organization who whines about "burdens" and "fixed costs" spending $55 million on brand promotion? Remember, this money was spent during the same year it lost more than $1 billion.

Mr. Speaker, the $55 million the postal service spent on advertising for product lines which typically lose money could clearly have been spent more efficiently. For example, $55 million would have just about covered all of the postal service's tax liability on leased facilities last year. Even better, $55 million would have paid for more than two-thirds of the postal service employee wages in my district.

Mr. Speaker, an agency which spends $55 million on a losing advertising campaign does not need "flexibility." No, Mr. Speaker. What the postal service needs is some old fashioned "accountability."

EXTENSION OF TAX CUT WILL RAID SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE

(Mr. MORAN of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, it is important to review a little of the chronology leading to today's vote. Only last year, at the end of the Clinton administration, there was a $5.6 trillion surplus forecast.

Now, the majority of Democrats said, let us be a little fiscally disciplined here. Let us wait and see if these numbers hold up. But the Republican majority, in a rush to judgment, went ahead and enacted a $2 trillion tax cut. Here we are, the very next year, $4 trillion of the surplus is gone and we realize that that money is going to have to come out of Social Security and Medicare trust funds, even though five times we all voted for a lockbox on Social Security and Medicare.

The lockbox is broken. Today we are going to cut taxes between the years 2011 to 2020 by another $4 trillion, $7 trillion when you count interest payments on the increased public debt it will create, and virtually all of that money is going to have to be paid for by Social Security and Medicare. Yet in that decade, from 2011 to 2020, we are going to see another 40 million people join the retirement rolls.

This is fiscally irresponsible. It is not right. We would not do it in our own family, and we should not do it to the American family.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OSE). Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, the pending business is the question of agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal of the last day's proceedings.

The question is on the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

This 15-minute vote will be followed by a 5-minute vote on the motion to instruct.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 369, nays 52, not voting 13, as follows:

So the Journal was approved.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated for:

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, this morning I was unavoidably detained, and therefore unable to cast my floor vote on rollcall No. 99, on Approving the Journal.

Had I been present for the vote, I would have voted "yea" on rollcall vote 99.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 2646, FARM SECURITY ACT OF 2001

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OSE). The unfinished business is the question of agreeing to the motion to instruct on H.R. 2646 on which the yeas and nays were ordered.

The Clerk will designate the motion.

The Clerk designated the motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH).

This will be a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 265, nays 158, not voting 11, as follows:

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, and Ms. BROWN of Florida changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the motion to instruct was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. ISSA. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 100 I was inadvertently detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 586, FAIRNESS FOR FOSTER CARE FAMILIES ACT OF 2001

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 390 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 390

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 586) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide that the exclusion from gross income for foster care payments shall also apply to payments by qualified placement agencies, and for other purposes, with the Senate amendment thereto, and to consider in the House without intervention of any point of order a motion offered by the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means or his designee that the House concur in the Senate amendment with the amendment printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution. The Senate amendment and the motion shall be considered as read. The motion shall be debatable for one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Ways and Means. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the motion to final adoption without intervening motion or demand for division of the question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). The gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

(Mr. HASTINGS of Washington asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 390 provides for a motion offered by the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means or his designee that the House concur in the Senate amendment with the amendment printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution.

The rule waives all points of order against consideration of the motion to concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment. It provides one hour of debate in the House, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Finally, the rule provides that the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the motion to final adoption without intervening motion or demand for division of the question.

Mr. Speaker, upon adoption of this resolution, it shall be in order to take from the Speaker's table the bill, H.R. 586, the Fairness on Foster Care Families Act of 2001. This measure was passed by the House on May 15, 2001 by a vote of 420-0, and would amend the Internal Revenue Code to provide that the exclusion from gross income for foster care payments shall also apply to payments by qualified placement agencies.

The motion to be offered by the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means would modify H.R. 586 in a number of ways. First, it would make permanent the tax reductions passed by Congress last year by repealing Title IX of H.R. 1836, the Economic Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, which "sunsets" tax relief provisions after 2010. The motion also contains a provision providing further protection for the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

Finally, the measure assists taxpayers by reforming the penalty and interest sections of the Internal Revenue Code, providing new safeguards against unfair IRS collection procedures, and increasing the confidentiality of taxpayer information.

Mr. Speaker, it is imperative that the House act without delay to pass these important changes in our tax law. The need to make permanent the tax reductions passed last year is particularly acute. If we fail to pass this legislation, Americans will lose tax relief on January 1, 2011. On that date, if we fail to act: New, lower individual tax rates will disappear; the new $1,000 per child tax credit will be cut to $500; significant reductions in the marriage penalty would end; the annual IRA contributions would be cut from $5,000 to $2,000; the death tax would be resurrected; and contribution limits for education IRAs would be cut from $2,000 to $500; and, finally, greater deductibility of student interest loans would end.

Mr. Speaker, the American people have waited far too long for this much-awaited relief to have it snatched away because Congress failed to act. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to support both the rule and the underlying measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) for yielding me this time. This is a closed rule. It will allow for consideration of the measure to make permanent last year's tax cut. This restrictive rule will not make permanent any amendments. It will also prohibit a motion to recommit which is a long-standing right of the minority.

When Republicans were in the minority, they promised if they ran the House, the minority's right to offer a motion to recommit would be protected. The rule that we are considering makes a mockery of that promise. It is hard to imagine a more restrictive rule, and it is wrong for a measure as expensive, important, and controversial as this bill is.

The bill makes permanent the 10-year tax cut enacted last June. I for one, and many of us, do not understand why the House is rushing to pass this bill. There is no way we can accurately predict how much this legislation will cost a decade from now.

Since we passed the tax cut last year, our Nation suffered of course the terrible terrorist acts on September 11, which shifted our national priorities to homeland defense and the war against terrorism. We do not know the full cost of these important initiatives, but it will become clear over the next few years. It would be prudent to wait and to get more realistic numbers before changing the tax laws again.

During Committee on Rules consideration of the rule, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PHELPS) offered an amendment which would allow the tax cuts to be made permanent upon certification by the Congressional Budget Office that the measure would not create a budget deficit in 2011 or 2012. The Republican majority on the committee refused to make the amendment in order.

The procedure that the Republicans used to bring this bill to the floor prevents Democrats from amending the bill or offering a motion to recommit, and only by defeating the previous question can we bring democracy and order back to the budget process.

Mr. Speaker, my constituents are not asking for this bill. In fact, they want us to delay the tax cuts in order to fund the war on terrorism and keep the budget in balance.

This year in my annual congressional questionnaire, I asked, "Do you favor or oppose delaying already enacted tax cuts in order to fund the war on terrorism?" A full 55 percent of those who responded said they favored delaying tax cuts.

Mr. Speaker, if the previous question is defeated, I will offer an amendment to this unfair rule that will protect the fiscal integrity of our budget. I urge defeat of the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), the chairman of the Committee on Rules.

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, we are doing this today not because of any public opinion poll, not because our constituents have said that we should do this or not do it; we are doing it because it is the right thing to do. If we do not take this action, in 10 years we will see the largest tax increase in our Nation's history inflicted on the American people. That is just plain wrong.

It is very clear that this tax measure which we put into place, Mr. Speaker, has played a role in mitigating the economic downturn that we have suffered since September 11. I believe that it is important for us to let every single investor know, every single American taxpayer know that we are not going to put into place this massive tax increase.

It is just an incredible irony when we listen to the horror stories about how people have said we should live very productively for the next 10 years, but in 2010, before this thing expires, one has to drop dead. I think that the idea behind this whole measure of phasing it out was just plain wrong.

Some of my colleagues have been putting forward ridiculous claims that the idea of phasing it out initiated right here in the House. It did not. It was part of the Byrd rule in the Senate that required that.

So we passed out of the House of Representatives a measure which, in fact, did exactly what we are going to do today right here. We did it with bipartisan support. Democrats and Republicans supported this measure. I happen to believe very strongly in guaranteeing the minority the right to a motion to recommit, and I think it is the right thing to do, and we have guaranteed the minority the right to offer a motion to recommit, and they did it when this bill came forward.

It is not unusual for this procedure of our concurring in a Senate amendment as we are doing here today. In fact, in the 103rd Congress, in 1993, we saw on six occasions our Democratic colleagues do this exact same thing. I am not saying because one side does it that the other should do it. We are not doing this in retaliation at all; we are doing it because this has been a standard procedure. But when people claim that the motion to recommit is not being allowed, you have got to realize that every Member of this House has had a chance in the past to vote on an identical measure that we are going to be voting on today when it comes to the tax portion of this bill. And so it has been debated; and in fact, we gave the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) not only a motion to recommit but a substitute, so there were two bites at the apple when this measure was considered before. It is the right thing to do. Let us move it through.

We had to try four times to get the economic stimulus package through the United States Senate. Many people have said that the other body will not bring it up. I hope very much that they will, in fact, follow our lead once again and do the right thing.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). The Chair would advise Members to avoid urging the Senate to act.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PHELPS).

Mr. PHELPS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio for giving me the opportunity to speak on this very important issue.

Mr. Speaker, first and foremost I would like to express my strong concern with making this tax cut permanent. Yesterday, I offered a simple amendment to the Committee on Rules that would protect Social Security by not allowing the repeal of the sunset of the tax cut to borrow from our Social Security surplus. My amendment was simple and straightforward, and it would have helped save our Nation's most crucial program. But it was denied and without debate or question. A vote was not even allowed.

The budget already calls for tapping into the Social Security trust fund to support other government programs every year for the next 10 years to the total of $1.5 trillion. Our Nation cannot afford to make this worse. Making this tax cut permanent will take away $4 trillion from the Social Security and Medicare trust funds. This is $4 trillion that we promised the American people would be kept safe, locked up.

I am very supportive of repeal of these taxes such as the marriage tax penalty and the estate tax, but only if it is within a balanced budget and it does not require raising the debt ceiling and we do not use the Social Security surplus funds. As fiscal policy leaders of this Nation, we must ensure that making tax cuts permanent will not require the use of Social Security surplus funds. However, it is obvious the Republicans do not agree.

It is time that we start being fiscally responsible. We need to look out for Americans by protecting the resources they depend on us to protect. By making this tax cut permanent, we will make our deficit larger by borrowing even more funds from our Social Security trust fund.

Vote "no" on the previous question, and then allow my amendment to be presented to save Social Security.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS), a member of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, today is a classic example of what we have with one party that is for the taxpayer and one party that is for the tax collector. The tax collector in this case is that IRS that gets money after money after money from the American public. But we are telling the story today that we do not think that we cannot afford it and it is expensive because we have already given it to the taxpayer.

Alan Greenspan said lower taxes equals jobs and a stronger economy. That is what we are after. We want jobs for people, and the way you do that is by giving people back their own money.

What does this bill also do? This bill says today, we are going to make sure that the American people, that through the elimination of taxes, 3.9 million low-income Americans will be able to keep that money that we have already given to them. The tax collector, you see what their plan is. They want to raise taxes on 3.9 million low-income families. We think that is wrong.

The tax collectors want to raise taxes for single moms by $770. We believe that the President's plan, the Republican plan, that we cut taxes by $770 for single moms, was the right thing to do. We believe the right thing to do is to give money to people so that they can make their own decisions in life. The bottom line is senior citizens count, too.

This is not an expensive tax cut. This is giving money directly to people who deserve it. The tax collectors' plan, they want to raise taxes. We want to give money back; $920 is what would be taken for every single senior.

This is all about spending and making priority decisions. One side can spend $2 trillion, but when it gets down to seniors and single moms and low-income Americans, they say, Sorry, you come last in line.

The Republican Party believes it is your money and you should keep it.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF).

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the bill before us today to make permanent tax cuts before it is clear we can afford them. Today we have the opportunity to vote to fund a new round of tax cuts right out of Social Security. Today we can vote for America to go deeper into debt, to force our children to pay billions in interest, to pay more for their homes and to have less for their schools. Today we can vote to put this country back into deficit and debt and more deficit and more debt. Or we can vote for America's future. We can vote for a balanced budget. We can vote to restore the lockbox to protect Social Security.

When we had a $5.6 trillion surplus, we could afford a substantial tax cut, and I supported the President. War and recession intervened. Now we have no surplus, and we have the added expenses of the war on terrorism. While we did not ask for this war and we certainly did not ask for this recession, we cannot shrink from the consequences. To make cuts permanent when it is not clear that we can afford them is simply irresponsible.

Imagine this: at the very same time that the House GOP is asking for a half a trillion dollars in additional tax cuts, the White House is asking to raise the debt limit by $750 billion. What does that mean? That means that we are asking to borrow the money to fund the tax cut. It cannot be simpler than that. We are asking to fund a massive increase in the tax cut out of our Social Security.

I do not know about you, but I would have a hard time looking my parents in the face and telling them that I would like to fund additional cuts for me out of their retirement. And I would have a hard time telling my children that I was prepared to raise the cost of their homes and their education to raise the debt over their heads to fund something now that we cannot afford.

I hope the circumstances change; but right now we should restore a balanced budget, and we should restore fiscal responsibility. I urge a "no" vote on this measure.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SHADEGG).

Mr. SHADEGG. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I rise in strong support of both the rule and the underlying legislation.

Make no mistake about it, this is an issue on which there should not be a disagreement. John F. Kennedy said a rising tide lifts all ships. With that, he cut tax rates. The result was not less income to the Federal Government but more. Ronald Reagan took the same premise. He lowered tax rates and revenues went up.

We are being presented today with a false pretext, a pretext that the only way to increase government revenue is to increase government tax rates, and that is simply wrong. But look at the devastation that that position will cause. If Congress fails to make the Bush tax cut permanent, it will result in the single largest tax increase in American history. That simply makes no sense.

But what is puzzling here is that the American taxpayers do not even understand why we are doing this. Why we are doing this is because there is a bizarre rule in the other body called the Byrd rule; and under the Byrd rule it said that when you make tax policy and it goes beyond 10 years, you must have 60 votes. Sadly, there were only 58 votes, of course, a solid majority for these tax cuts; but we were stuck with the bizarre system where all of these tax relief provisions will go out of existence if we do not act now.

Which one do they oppose? Do they think we should reinstate the marriage penalty and punish Americans who are married? Do they believe that we should repeal the increase in the tax credit and punish parents with small children? I do not think so. Are they opposed to the repeal of the death tax and do they support it being fully reinstated? Because that is what opposing this rule and that is what opposing this bill will do.

But what about savings in America? In this legislation, IRA contribution limits were increased. They would be reduced by 60 percent if we do not act today to make them permanent.

Education IRAs. How many kids are in school today because we increase the ability for education IRAs? Who will be hurt if we do not make this tax cut permanent? Every American will be hurt. I urge my colleagues to support this rule and support this important piece of legislation.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the very distinguished gentlewoman from California (Ms. HARMAN).

Ms. HARMAN. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and tell him how much we all will miss him when he leaves the House in the near future.

Mr. Speaker, the votes before us are a test of whether this Congress will force future generations to shoulder trillions of dollars of new debt incurred by current policy choices. It is a test of whether our grandchildren will have to respond to problems and issues this Congress and administration would rather postpone than try to solve. Amongst them, the solvency of Social Security.

There are, of course, alternatives. One is requiring this Congress and the President to fashion a wartime budget, a wartime budget based on a thorough assessment of our Nation's vulnerabilities and the strategy for addressing them; a wartime budget that ensures that our Armed Forces have all the resources needed to fight the long war against terrorism; a wartime budget that prioritizes every other government program, every other decision about spending and taxing.

Rather than legislate by ideology, we need a wartime budget that ensures our economy remains strong after we win the war against terrorism. Rather than incur trillions of dollars of new debt, we need a wartime budget that sets out the tough, but right, choices. Rather than use the Social Security surplus to fund our current government spending, we need a wartime budget that guarantees the promises we have made to Social Security recipients.

Fiscal responsibility is as critical to homeland defense as are the tools we provide to first responders. A wartime budget can achieve fiscal responsibility.

Defeat the rule. Enact a fiscally responsible wartime budget.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) will now control the time for the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL).

There was no objection.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF), the author of the bill.

Mr. HULSHOF. What I want to do, Mr. Speaker, is kind of set the record straight. There have been a couple of comments made by the other side, the gentleman from Illinois, that said somehow what we are doing today is going to cost $4 trillion. Let me just advise the Members of the House there is actually no budget number from the Congressional Budget Office or the Joint Tax Committee or any official scorekeeper that says any such thing.

Secondly, the other side says we are taking this money out of Social Security. That also is not true. We are talking about budget implications in the fiscal years 2011 and 2012 when we are going to be running surpluses. The numbers, Mr. Speaker, are that over the next 10 years, permanence would cost $374 billion. At the same time, we are projected to have a surplus of $2.3 trillion.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON).

Mr. MATHESON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to speak on this rule, and I want to point out that I am an individual who voted for the tax cut last year. It encompassed a number of measures which I personally felt were important, including elimination of the estate tax and elimination of the marriage penalty.

The bottom line is, times have changed in terms of what we know about the future. If anything we have learned in the last year, it is that things change, and my concern is one certainty we do know is that baby boomers are going to retire and our Social Security system, which is supposed to be overcollecting right now in anticipation of that, that we are spending that Social Security surplus.

So the question I raise is why are we looking at this now? This is something we are talking about 8 years down the line, and we are hearing comments today like this is the only shot we got, and if we do not do it now, then all these tax implications are going to expire. I do not think that is true. I think we are elected to be responsible and make good decisions.

There is concern about long-term planning. People need to understand what is in the tax cut. I will tell you one where I can accept that, and that is in terms of the estate tax. I understand that there is planning now for estate planning for the future, and if we were voting on that measure alone, that is something I would give serious consideration to.

But we are not doing that. Everything has been bundled together for something 8 years away, and I reject the notion that we need to be looking at that right now. In fact, in the face of the uncertainty we face, I think it is irresponsible to make that decision today.

I sure would like to come up with policies that reduce the long-term tax burden for this country, but one thing that is not going to reduce the long-term tax burden for this country is if we incur more debt and we have more interest we have to pay.

When I look at the next generation, when I look at my own 3-year-old son, we are going to be imposing an additional tax burden on him by the debt that we run up by decisions we make here in this Congress.

So I call on people to take a step back from the rhetoric and let us do the responsible thing. As I say, if you want to bring up an estate tax issue, maybe that is one where the long-term planning implications make sense. But, in general, doing something today for 8 years from now, with all the uncertainties we face in the world, to me does not make sense, so I encourage people to oppose the previous question.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. BROWN).

Mr. BROWN of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, we worked hard last year to provide real and meaningful tax relief to the American people, and I am glad to say that we succeeded in creating a package that was a true benefit to all who pay Federal income taxes. For too long the government has taken too much money from the pockets of the American people, and our President and Congress decided it was time to give some money back.

This tax relief sunset was a major flaw in what was an otherwise great initiative. If Congress does not remedy this, families will go back to bed on December 31, 2010, only to wake up the next morning to the largest tax increase in the history of our country. Low income taxpayers will see a 50 percent tax increase. Families will once again be subject to the marriage penalty and will see the child tax credit cut in half. The death tax will once again rob children of family owned and operated farms and businesses.

By passing this bill we can do what we meant to do all along, provide permanent tax relief to the American people. If any on the other side of the aisle believe it is right, either economically or morally, to increase taxes in order to put the people's money back into the coffers of the government, then they have every right to vote against this legislation and against this rule. I, for one, think it is important for Americans to see where their representatives stand on this issue, to see which side we are on, putting money in the pockets of the people, or the coffers of the government.

Again, I support the rule, and hope others will as well.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. TANNER).

Mr. TANNER. Mr. Speaker, I would ask that every young person under the age of 35 years old in this country listen to what I have to say. We are almost $6 trillion in debt as a Nation, as a people, we owe. That is 16 percent of the money that comes here every year. That means we have a 16 percent mortgage on this country.

The President has submitted a request to the Congress for authority to borrow another three-quarters of a trillion dollars. That is another $750 billion. The administration has submitted a budget that is not balanced for the next 10 years.

If there ever was a recipe for financial disaster, if there ever was a generational mugging going on in this Congress because we will not cut spending or raise the money that we need to finance the war and other things that we want today, then let me just say to all of you young people, under these policies, you are going to be overtaxed the rest of your lives because you are going to have to pay 16 or 18 percent interest before you ever get to what you need in your day when it comes.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN), a cosponsor of the bill.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I see my friend from Tennessee. I am under 35 and I am not interested in seeing my generation get hit with the single largest tax increase in American history in the year 2011 if this bill does not pass.

The score of this bill assumes that you are going to have a huge tax increase and if we do not have that huge tax increase, it is going to cost the government money.

All we are proposing is to keep taxes constant, level. Not cutting them, keeping them level. You are saying we want a big tax increase and if we do not get it, it is going to cost us money somehow.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. PENCE).

(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time and rise in support of the rule.

Mr. Speaker and in support of the underlying bill, the tax relief guarantee act.

Mr. Speaker, we all realized, many on both sides of the aisle last year, that it was simply morally wrong to tax married couples more than unmarried couples living together in America.

Mr. Speaker, we realized it was morally wrong to tax small business owners and family farmers over 50 percent of everything they had earned and kept after paying taxes all of their lives, just because of their deaths. And last year Congress repealed, with much support on the Democrat side of the aisle, the marriage penalty and repealed estate taxes. But because of an arcane rule in the Senate, these taxes will be thrust back into the pockets of American taxpayers in the year 2011.

Just as it was morally wrong to have these taxes on the books, I offer to you it is morally wrong, Mr. Speaker, to bait and switch the American people. So many of my constituents have thanked me on the street for ending death taxes, thanked me for ending the onerous marriage penalty, and I have to stop them and say, well, almost. Because in Congress-speak, while we got all the publicity, all of us, for doing just that, the reality is we did less than that, and today we try to make that right.

If we do not pass the Tax Relief Guarantee Act, we will have the largest single year tax increase in American history in the year 2011, and it will most hit low income Americans and married couples. Low income Americans will see their tax rate rise from 10 percent to 15 percent. That is a 50 percent tax increase on those least able to pay. Three million American families now off the tax rolls will be thrust back on the tax rolls, and married couples with children, like me, will suddenly find their tax burden rising by thousands of dollars.

Mr. Speaker, those who say we cannot afford to pass this bill today, we cannot afford not to.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. ROSS).

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, let me begin by saying this is not a partisan issue for me. I was one of 28 Democrats to stand with our President and vote for the largest tax cut in some 20 years. This tax cut does not sunset for 10 years. We all knew that when we voted for it and when we supported it. This is a vote that should happen, in 10 years, and it is a vote that I hope I can cast to repeal the sunset in 10 years. But not now. Not now, unless we can demonstrate without a shadow of a doubt that the money will not come from raiding the Social Security trust fund.

America is in a crisis. We are setting up a train wreck for our kids and our grandkids. $5.9 trillion in debt. What does that mean to the American people? $1 billion every single day this country pays, using your tax money in interest. Not principal, but just interest on the national debt. How much is $1 billion? That is 200 brand new elementary schools every single day in America. That is new highways. That is more economic opportunities for our people. And now for next year we are proposing to deficit spend for the first time since 1997 $50 billion, all of this coming from the Social Security trust fund.

We all know, everyone agrees that Social Security is broke in 2041. That is assuming that we find a way to pay back the $1 trillion that we have already borrowed from the Social Security trust fund, which we all know there is no provision on how that money gets paid back.

Do not repeal the sunset now. Let us make certain that we can save Social Security and Medicare and not dip into it.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I want to emphasize what is being said here, and I suspect we will hear it over and over and over, regarding Social Security. But the fact of the matter is, this bill will not affect any benefits paid out now or in the future to any recipient of Social Security. That needs to be emphasized over and over and over.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE)

Mr. OSBORNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 586, the Tax Relief Guarantee Act of 2002, and in support of the rule.

I know there are divided views on whether the tax cut was good for the economy or not. Alan Greenspan says it was a good thing, and I guess I tend to agree with him.

I would like to pay special attention to the permanent repeal of the death tax. Currently a farmer or small businessman needs three estate plans: First of all, if he dies before 2010, he has to be able to take advantage of the partial exemption; if he dies in 2010, he has a total repeal of the death tax; if he dies after 2010, then he has no death tax exemption and he has to pay the full death tax.

This may sound a little bit extreme, but this is what is going on today. Can you imagine dropping dead while you are watching the football games on January 1, 2011, and your family will not come to the funeral the next day because you died one day too late? That is real pressure to die on time in 2010, and that is basically what we have to do.

So what I would like to point out is that, as has been pointed out in previous debate, the death tax is the most unfair tax. The estate has already been taxed by income, Social Security, property and sales taxes. Then over half of what is left goes to pay taxes. Heirs usually have to sell the farm or business after estate taxes. There are not enough assets left to operate. Money leaves the communities, and this is devastating to small towns.

The death tax repeal needs to be made permanent and it needs to be made permanent now, because plans are being made to transfer businesses and farms, and I think this is the time to do it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. MOORE).

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I voted for the tax cut last year. This is not a partisan issue for me. Last year, there were surpluses. This year, the surpluses are gone. But this legislation would increase the debt of our Nation by over $4 trillion in the next decade. That is $4 trillion we will have to borrow, borrow from Social Security. That is $4 trillion right when we need it, when the baby-boomers begin to retire. That is a $4 trillion debt that we will have to pass on to our kids and grandkids. That is not fair. That is not fiscally responsible.

And it gets worse. Three times in the last year the Secretary of Treasury has written Congress warning us that unless Congress acted to raise the debt limit, we would place our country in a situation of default on current debt obligations.

Congress has not acted; and 2 weeks ago, the Secretary of the Treasury began to borrow money from Federal retirees' pension funds in order to keep our government solvent.

The President has requested a $27 billion defense supplemental to continue our war on terrorism. That is $27 billion we are going to have to borrow, and we will do it. So at a time when we are borrowing money to pay for the war on terrorism, when we are shifting retiree pension funds to maintain current services, and when we know in 10 years the baby boomers will begin to retire, we are wanting to cut taxes. We are wanting to cut taxes starting in 8 years. That is not only fiscally irresponsible, because we do not know what is going to be happening to the economy in 8 years, it is hypocritical; and it did not have to be this way.

Last year I voted for the President's tax cut. We had assurances from the President, and I believed it too, that we had these surpluses that would go on and we would be able to afford the tax cut. I am not apologizing for voting for the tax cut, but we should not take this irresponsible action. If we do, it is going to cost our kids $4 trillion in the future.

The budget, the projected budget surpluses simply did not materialize. We need to reevaluate our position now, just like any responsible business would do.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the Members to vote against this proposal.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the rule to H.R. 586. This bill is brought to the floor under an abusive procedure that prevents the consideration of any amendments and even a motion to recommit.

This rule limits full and fair debate on proposed legislation that would have the effect of increasing the deficit by over $4 trillion in the next two decades. That's $4 trillion that we will have to "borrow" from the Social Security trust funds. That's $4 trillion that we will need at precisely the time the baby boom generation will be retiring. That's a $4 trillion debt we will pass on to our children and grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, that's not fair; that's not fiscally responsible. And, it gets worse.

Three times in the last year, the Secretary of the Treasury has written Congress warning us of a ticking time bomb in our budget. He warned that, unless Congress acted to raise the debt limit—that is if Congress does not increase the government's authority to borrow money—we would place our country in the unprecedented position of defaulting on current debt obligations.

To date, Congress has not acted; and, 2 weeks ago, the Treasury Secretary began to "borrow" retirees' pension funds in order to keep the government open and to prevent a Federal default.

Moreover, this Congress has pending a $27 billion defense supplemental to allow us to continue our campaign against terrorism. That is $27 billion we did not anticipate; that is $27 billion we will have to borrow. So, at a time when we're borrowing money to pay for the war on terror, when we're shifting retiree pension funds to maintain current services, and when we know we'll have, in ten years, an enormous obligation as baby boomers begin to retire and draw Social Security—we're cutting taxes?

Mr. Speaker, that's not only fiscally irresponsible, it's hypocritical. And it didn't have to be this way.

Last year, I voted for the President's tax cut with his assurance that we would have the money to pay for it without dipping into the Social Security surpluses. Like you, I believe that we should fix provisions of last year's tax cut to increase certainty in the tax code that will help people plan for their financial future. Unfortunately, the budget surpluses projected last year did not materialize and we are now in a situation where we must reevaluate our fiscal decisions in order to get us out of the deficit ditch.

Yesterday, our fiscally conservative coalition took to the Rules Committee a proposal to amend this bill to provide for this permanent extension without using the Social Security surpluses and to restore fiscal integrity to the Federal Government. This amendment was rejected on a vote of 6–3.

Today, I urge my colleagues to defeat this rule to allow the House to consider our amendment that will help ensure we get out of the deficit ditch, out of the Social Security surplus and back on the road to fiscal responsibility.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I just want to clarify two errors from the last speaker. First of all, in 8 years we are not talking about cutting taxes. In 8 years we are talking about keeping them constant and not raising taxes. The $4 trillion figure that has been mentioned repeatedly is a nonexistent figure. It is a bogus figure. It is not supported by CBO or by the Joint Tax. It is a dreamed-up Washington math figure, and it should be disregarded by those who are watching this debate.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, it is funny how politics changes very little over the years. More than 30 years ago, Ronald Reagan, in a speech for Barry Goldwater, what I consider the best speech ever given said, "This is the issue of this election: whether we believe in our capacity for self government, or whether we abandon the American revolution and confess that a little intellectual elite in a far distant capital can plan our lives for us better than we can plan them ourselves."

I guess I am now part of that little intellectual elite in Washington, but I can tell my colleagues that I have had no epiphany or no revelation over the past 2 years that tells me how to spend people's money better than they can spend it themselves. That is why I and all of my Republican colleagues and 28 of our Democrat colleagues supported the legislation last year to cut taxes. Now it is incumbent on us to make it permanent.

If we truly believe that Americans can spend their money better than we can spend it for them, then we will support this measure to make the tax cuts permanent.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS).

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, common sense tells us if you want to get out of a hole, you do not dig it deeper. Well, our Nation is in a deep fiscal hole; and this fiscally irresponsible bill would dig that hole much, much deeper.

These are the facts. Our present national debt is right at $6 trillion. Interest on that debt last year alone costs the American taxpayers $360 billion. Last year's dreams of huge surpluses have disappeared. That is a fact. Instead, the reality is we will have a $100 billion deficit this year. And the administration is presently asking us in Congress to immediately raise our national debt ceiling by $700 billion.

Yet, despite all of those facts, we are debating today a proposal that would cut taxes by $374 billion more in this decade and, yes, by $4 trillion more in the next decade. The hole is getting deeper, Mr. Speaker; and sadly, it will be our children and our grandchildren who will be trapped in it for their entire lives, paying massive amounts of taxes just to pay the interest on the debt.

Our generation has no right, whether we are in an election year or not, to put that kind of unfair burden upon our children and future generations of Americans. Increasingly, the national debt harms our present economy by driving up interest rates on homes, cars, credit, and family businesses and farms.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say this: if a Member wants to take credit back home this week for cutting taxes $4 trillion in this bill, then I hope he or she would be honest enough to tell his or her constituents just where you want to cut that $4 trillion. You want to cut it out of defense, Medicare, Social Security, Medicaid, interest on the national debt, which are increasing. Those five programs represent 70 percent of the budget.

I am an appropriator. It will be interesting to look at how many Members who want to take credit for this tax cut today have letters sitting over at the Committee on Appropriations at this very moment. The fact is there are thousands of them asking for hundreds of billions of increased spending.

This is an unfair rule and a bad bill. We should defeat both.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, let me tell my colleagues where I would start cutting waste and spending. The American government spends $5 billion a year helping salmon swim upstream each year. That is enough to put each fish on a first-class flight from the mouth of the river to the top and still save money. That is where I would start cutting. By the way, we also give a grant to a group to teach them how to catch those fish once they are grown. That is where I would start.

The fact is, higher taxes do not balance the budget. A stronger economy balances the budget in Washington, D.C. Making permanent the President's tax relief is an issue of jobs.

Economists tell us that the President's tax relief has already created 800,000 new jobs just in the time it has been in place. It has helped soften the recession. It is the anti-recession formula. But we can grow the economy even faster, create more jobs, build this revenue here, if we will grow and strengthen where we can count on this relief in the future. Most importantly, getting the economy moving now is the key to balancing our Federal budget, to paying down our debt, to preserving Social Security and Medicare.

As my colleagues know, we are here because of a Senate rule that will eliminate the tax relief that we are counting on; and it is funny how the Senate has few rules when it comes to spending our money, but quite a few when it comes to sending it back. The fact is, making permanent this tax relief will help a family of four, two teachers raising their children, avoid a tax hike of $2,000; a $2,000 tax hike.

To grow our economy, to preserve Social Security, to pay down the debt, Americans need tax relief we can count on, not a tax hike we can count on.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think it is clear that everybody in this House would like to see tax cuts continued past 2010. The issue is not whether we are for tax cuts; the issue is whether or not we are willing to use the Social Security trust fund money to pay for those tax cuts.

I voted for the President's tax cut last June, and I would be glad to extend that tax cut; and I hope we have the opportunity to do it sometime between now and 2010. But when we have gone from projections of $5.5 trillion in surplus down to where we no longer have any surplus and we are projecting deficits, it seems fiscally irresponsible to propose today to extend that tax cut.

I am confident we will be able to extend much of it, but fiscal conservatives will support a balanced budget first. Fiscal conservatives will oppose deficit spending, and fiscal conservatives will oppose spending the Social Security trust fund money to pay for future tax cuts.

There is no business in America that will use its retirement fund to give dividends to stockholders, and if they did, they would go to jail. So I am confident that today the right thing to do is to oppose the previous question, oppose this rule, and let us have the opportunity to adopt the Blue Dog amendment to encourage and promote fiscal responsibility.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF).

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, again, I am compelled to respond to the gentleman from Texas, my friend, who just spoke. The fact is, and again I respect those that bring the green eye shade approach here, keeping in mind, of course, that the Congressional Budget Office and Joint Tax do not take into account the economic benefits that are going to happen from small businesses being able to invest. But even assuming the numbers, we have on-budget surpluses; in the most recent numbers, on-budget surpluses in the year that this permanent tax cut kicks in.

If we really want to talk about numbers, the fact is that if we do nothing, nearly 4 million people that are now off the tax rolls are going to be put back on them, and 3 million of those are families with kids. So I would urge that we vote in favor of this measure.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. SHOWS).

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, this is an issue that is not a partisan issue for me, it is very bipartisan, because we just do not think it is the right thing to do. I supported the President's tax cuts when he brought them up and the Speaker and the leadership in the House, because I thought they were the right thing to do, and I still think they were the right thing to do. But they were just to go for 10 years, and then we were to reevaluate and then extend if the economy was doing right.

Even the Republican budget, fiscal year 2003, phased out these tax cuts. They knew the cuts would create a horrible, looming deficit. They knew these tax cuts would dramatically cut into Social Security, Medicare, military retirees, veterans' benefits, and public education. When the timing is right and the Nation does not have such pressing wartime needs or the deficits or taking care of Social Security, that is the time to institute the tax cuts, again extending it past the 10 years.

We cannot deny America's families and seniors what they were promised. The best way to give the American taxpayer back the money they deserve is to keep Social Security, keep Medicare solvent, and lower the cost of prescription drugs, and bring our jobs back from Mexico.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMPSON).

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the previous question and urge the defeat of this measure.

I am one who believes that nonsunsetting tax cuts are, in fact, appropriate. I do not think they should sunset; I think they should be made permanent. But I think they need to be made permanent at a level that we can afford.

The sunset provision of existing law, I think, is flawed. It disallows Americans from planning, both for personal reasons and for business reasons. But the truth is, the existing tax policy should have been made at a level we can afford, a level that does not jeopardize Social Security, Medicare, homeland security, and the other priorities that are important to our Nation.

Unfortunately, we have seen the cost of this tax cut is increasing our debt and puts programs such as Social Security and Medicare in trouble. We pay $1 billion per day just on the interest on our national debt, and if we remove this sunset, it is just going to exacerbate the problem.

It is time that we have honest debate on tax policy, debt reduction, and fiscal policy. That is what we should be doing now, not engaging in political debate, and I would urge defeat of this measure.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. RANGEL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this rule. I went before the Committee on Rules yesterday, and I asked my Republican colleagues to consider just a little fairness in presenting this extremely important piece of legislation to the floor. But they refused to allow Democrats to amend it; they refused to allow us time to debate it; they refused to allow us even the opportunity to send it back to committee with certain instructions.

They do this because they know that our great Nation, our great Republic, even though we are at war today, is actually supporting the government not on regular tax dollars, but on the tax dollars that are being paid by people for their Social Security benefits. We are saying that maybe the President did not know at the time that he had the tax cuts that we would have war or the impact of the recession; but we as legislators, we cannot foresee what is going to happen in the far distant future. This bill before us will be cutting taxes for the next couple of decades at the very time that 40 million Americans will become eligible for their Social Security benefits.

Do we want to take a gamble that we will not have the money there, that the Social Security trust funds just will not be there as they have been for us? Do we want to take a gamble that for those 40 million Americans that become eligible for Medicare and health care as they become older, that the money will not be there?

What is the rush in doing this during the limited time that Mr. Bush is going to be President? Why can we not do this, yes, with the green shades on, and look after the American future the same way we look after our businesses, and being able to say that when the time comes, we will take a look at the economy?

All we wanted to do is say, yes, make the tax cuts permanent, but make it contingent that it does not do violence to the Social Security trust fund. What are they so afraid of, that these things have to be rammed down America's throat, rammed down the Congress, and not even give us a chance to amend and express our views?

If Members think it is so good, why is it that they do not give us time as Americans, not as Democrats, not as Republicans, but as Members of the House of Representatives, to do this? We did not have time even to amend it in the committee of jurisdiction, the tax-writing committee.

We are dealing with close to $5 trillion of revenue shortfalls. We are not dealing with just trying to spend the people's money, we are trying to make certain that the trust fund is there. These funds are entrusted to us. We are the board of trustees. We guarantee that the people are entitled to have their Social Security benefits, and they are taking away that right from the Congress, from the Democrats, and from the American people.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I want to emphasize once again when we have this discussion on Social Security that the benefits now will not be harmed at all by passage of this bill and signing it into law, and benefits in the future will not be harmed when this bill is signed into law by the President.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. THOMAS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, perhaps there is someone who is wondering how such extreme opposite statements could be made and both be true. I invite them to take a look at a section of the Constitution which is called the "speech and debate clause." There, any Member of Congress is protected from any of the normal libel, slander, or other penalties for not speaking the truth.

That is why, in the context of debate on the floor, we can have such wild and exaggerated statements which have no basis in fact and are not true, not only spoken but repeated by Member after Member.

What we just heard from the gentleman from Washington and what we might like to know is that in this legislation it says, "The Social Security and Medicare trust fund shall be held harmless." Not one penny will come out of the trust fund.

In addition to that, if Members are looking for fundamental debate between the parties, I think they have seen it. What they are using are scare tactics about Social Security and Medicare to make sure that the people do not get some of their hard-earned dollars back. What they are saying is they know better than the people, and what they say is when the time is right, they may let people have it back. It is kind of like when we go to a bank, and if we do not need the loan, we get one.

How are we going to grow the economy, have these people make the decisions about economic and industrial questions, or Americans? Republicans believe the way we grow the pie, the way we provide more over this decade and the next, is to get more of Americans' money in their hands and let them make the decisions. It has worked for 200 years.

They are concerned that it will work and that more people will understand the concepts and ideas of opportunity and power. Allow us to continue to grow as a country.

About the fact that we need opposite debate or bills or amendments, this is pretty simple: The tax cut is either going to be permanent or it is not. We are going to hear a lot of rhetoric. That is the basic question: Do we want it to be permanent, or not? It is pretty simple.

We have a board behind us. We have voting boxes. They vote yes or they vote no. This is not a complicated issue. Either people get their money back guaranteed over time so the country can grow, or they listen to them.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN).

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to follow the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, because I guess since this week was April 15, my colleagues have to show again that they are against tax increases. We voted for one last year. Now let us show we are against them, and we are going to vote against one 8 years from now. It just does not make sense.

Last year, when Congress passed the tax cut, a lot of us voiced concerns that we were cutting and not leaving enough room for emergencies. Well, in the post-September 11 environment, that argument has even more weight now.

It is more important, with the war on terrorism, it is critical that we realize our defense responsibilities. We must continue to pay for the important domestic responsibilities we have, education, prescription drugs for seniors, and not go deeper into deficit spending.

All people ask is that the Federal Government live like our families. If our families have to pay for the security of their home, for their prescriptions for their parents, for the education of their children, why would they go to their employer and say, we need a tax cut; we need a pay cut 8 years from now?

It does not make economic sense, it only makes political sense during this week. I am just amazed that my Republican colleagues would try and pull this over the eyes of Americans.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to quickly respond to the last speaker about tax cuts being the source of the loss of the surplus this past year.

That is simply not the case. Seventy-three percent of the loss of the surplus this past year came because our economy went into a recession. People lost their jobs and they did not pay taxes, and the surplus dried up because we went into recession. These tax cuts will grow the economy and get us back on track and grow those surpluses.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. HILL).

(Mr. HILL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, the country's current budget situation is like the proverbial elephant in the living room. He is there and he is larger than life, but very few if any of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle will acknowledge him.

Several of my colleagues and I have been over the last several months trying to alert everyone to the elephant's presence. Rest assured that we are going to continue to come down to this House floor and point him out until everybody acknowledges him.

This elephant, unfortunately, comes with his own set of numbers. In one year, the projected 10-year surplus decreased $4 trillion. That is the truth. That is a fact.

The Federal Government will run a deficit, both this year and next. That is the truth. That is a fact.

Because of these deficits, the Federal Government will have to borrow money to pay its bills. That is the truth. That is the fact.

To pay for these bills, the Federal Government will borrow almost $2 trillion more this decade than was expected when CBO published its numbers in January, 2001. That is the truth. That is the fact.

All told, by the time the interest payments are added in, the national debt will be almost $3 trillion larger than earlier projected when the 10-year budget window closes. That is the truth. That is the fact.

And to top it all off, Social Security surplus dollars will be used to help balance the budget through the end of this decade. That is the truth. That is the fact. This is our problem. This is the elephant. Our fiscal house is not in order.

For those who are listening, it is probably very hard to determine what is the truth and what is the fact, so we offered an amendment that was rejected by the Committee on Rules: We will agree to the tax cuts, but let us do a study by CBO to in fact determine once and for sure what the truth and the facts are. Are we dipping into Social Security? Are we not managing our house in a fiscally responsible way?

This idea was rejected. I am sorry that it was.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BRADY).

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the truth and facts are that when one is laid off, they do not pay into Social Security. If they do not have a job, they do not pay to preserve Medicare. If there is no means of income, they are not helping balancing this budget, they are not paying for the war, they are not paying down our debts.

The economy strengthens our government and strengthens all these programs. That is what this bill is all about.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE), chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

(Mr. NUSSLE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Speaker, that is the truth? Those are the facts? Okay, let us say it is the truth. Let us say it is the facts. Where is their plan? We have been asking for their plan for now going on over 6 months. Where is their plan?

Where is their plan on terrorism? Where is their plan on defending this Nation? Where is their plan on special education? Where is their plan on prescription drugs? Where is their plan on Medicare? Where is their plan on Social Security? Where, where, where in the name of God is their budget?

They do not have a budget; the Senate does not have a budget. The only plan for the American people to look at is the plan that was passed here in the House of Representatives by the President of the United States and the House Republicans. Why is that? Because they are devoid of ideas, they are unable to act, and they are unwilling to lead; therefore, we must.

Now, this is a new phenomenon. The great Democratic Party that led us many times in our history is disappointing America with absolutely not one scintilla of an idea. So what do we have to do? We have to move forward. We want to do it in a bipartisan way.

I mean, translate this debate for us today. The Democrats are coming to the well and they are wringing their hands and saying, oh, my goodness, I am worried about the budget in 2020. That is what I am worried about, the budget in 2020.

We are worried about the family budget today. It is not the Federal budget. Wake up. It is America's family budget that matters. The Republicans are the ones who have paid down the debt, $450 billion. Yet, they come to the well and say, we are worried about the debt in 2020? Well, do something about it. Give us their plan, give us their budget, give us their ideas.

Do not just come down here and scare America's seniors and wring their hands about an economy they are unwilling to do anything about, but join us. Join us in recognizing that last year, because of some quirky Senate rules, they were unable and unwilling to do more than 10 years.

Alan Greenspan said yesterday, "The markets of America assumed this tax cut is permanent." Certainly, my constituents believe that when we pass a bill and pass a law, it means it is permanent until Congress is willing to change it.

The reason they are scared of this debate is simple: Because automatically, 10 years from today, do Members want to know what they are up to? They want the tax increase on America, but they do not want to have to vote for it. No, they do not want to have to show their plan, they do not want to have to show their budget, they just want it to automatically happen.

Have the guts to have a plan, have the guts to have a budget, have the guts to come to the floor and tell America what Democrats are all about. Do not just accuse us of doing nothing, of wrecking the economy, of dipping into Social Security, which we all know is impossible. Do not do that unless they have got a plan on what to do about it, and America will wake up to that fact as soon as we have the opportunity to get this story out.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). Members are asked to refrain from casting reflections upon the other body.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

If Members had the guts to have an open rule, they would be hearing some Democrat plans.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. ISRAEL).

Mr. ISRAEL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding time to me.

Let me share our plan with the gentleman. I appreciate and respect his passion, but let me tell the Members what our plan is: It is the same plan that every American family and every small business has to abide by every day. That plan says we make sure that the budgets are balanced. That plan says we make sure that the numbers add up. That plan says we take care of retirement. That plans says we make sure if we get sick or if our parents or grandparents get sick, we can pay for their medications and prescription drugs.

That is not a novel plan, that is the plan that every single working American family has to abide by, and it is the same plan we should abide by.

I am one of those Democrats who have supported tax cuts. I was one of 28 Democrats to support the President's tax cut. I was one of nine Democrats to support the President's economic stimulus package because it provided tax cuts, because we could afford those plans.

Now all we are asking is for some bipartisanship. I will support this bill. All we are asking is that we do the responsible thing and have the Congressional Budget Office certify to the American people that this is not going to break into their Social Security and their retirement savings.

That is the responsible thing to do. That is the plan that every American family wants from us, and that is what we should do.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SWEENEY). The Chair will advise Members that the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) has 3 minutes remaining. The gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) has 3¾ minutes remaining.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to clarify the last speaker. According to the most recent figures from the Congressional Budget Office and the Joint Committee on Taxation, this bill will not dip into Social Security. This bill will still leave an on-budget or non-Social Security surplus in both the years 2011 and 2012, the years which we are discussing.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON).

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) for yielding me the time, and I rise in support of making these tax cuts permanent.

I just want to talk about the human factor in the death tax. I have a constituent in my congressional district in Kissimmee, Florida. Actually, it is a couple. They owned a florist, Dennis and Nancy Sexton. Their uncle owned a florist in the same town, a much bigger floral operation. He passed away. He had 19 employees, and Dennis inherited that operation; and Dennis had to spend about $253,000 to deal with the death tax. The death tax was $160,000. The lawyer's fee and accountant fees were $60,000. He spent $4,000 on the appraisal of his uncle's floral operation, and he did not have that kind of money.

So what did he do? He did the things that a lot of small business owners have to do. He laid off people. He took people that had worked for his uncle for years, brought them in and said I have to lay you off. Others he said I have to cut your salary. He took out a loan. He had to forego repairs on the building. They actually went a summer in Florida in their office, with no air conditioning, just to save some money, and had fans in there.

The other thing he had to do, he had traditionally given to the United Way, to various charities in the community, as a lot of businessmen do. A lot of these charities come to the local businesses and ask for a donation. He has had to totally cut all that off.

Now, he is going to survive, and I think he is going to make it; and hopefully some day he will be able to grow the business back up to where it was before the IRS stepped in. But I think this death tax is absolutely horrible, and to say in our bill that we want to bring it back in 10 years I just think is obscene, and I thoroughly support all the other provisions.

I am only allowed 2 minutes, but my colleagues could put forward similar arguments with the retirement provisions. We can make the exact same arguments.

So this is a good piece of legislation, and I commend our leaders for bringing it to the floor, and I would encourage everybody on both sides of the aisle to vote in support of it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL).

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, Woody Allen said, "This is a tragedy of a disaster." Look at the State of New Jersey. A member of my colleagues' own administration, very good friend of mine, left the State and said I had a billion dollar surplus. What happened to it? Now we have an $8 billion deficit, the worst in the Nation.

We cannot fill these cards unless we know the numbers. We do not know the numbers 10 weeks from now. How can my colleagues tell us what the numbers are going to be 15 years from now? $400 billion more in deficit, $400 billion more and my colleagues need to address the American people on American values who believe we should pay for what we are getting and not go into debt even further.

By 2008 we will have paid the government's debt, the Nation's debt. Now what has happened? We are into deficit, Mr. Speaker, and Woody Allen's words ring so true, so true.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. KILPATRICK).

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, I thank our ranking Committee on Rules member this morning for yielding me the time.

Someone else asked earlier why do we not put our own plan forward. Well, we have a rule that will not give us a substitute, will not allow us a substitute, will not allow us amendments and will not allow us a motion to recommit. What kind of process is this?

I rise in opposition to the rule and also the underlying bill. If we spend as much time on tax cuts, if we translate that to education and health care, our health care system that is collapsing, Medicare trust fund, our senior parents, our aunts and uncles who built this country, the world and this country would be a better place.

It is a bad bill, it is a bad rule, and until we shore up Social Security for those who built this country, until we have an adequate health care system and Medicare, why do we have a tax bill with a permanent tax cut years out that really cannot bind this Congress? It is a bad rule. It is a bad rule.

Let us vote the rule down, vote the bill down and continue to build America for the people who built it, the Medicare senior citizens who deserve a better health care system than we now have.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would advise the Members that the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) has the right to close. He has 1½ minutes remaining. The gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I reserve my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remaining time.

I want to remind my colleagues and anybody listening out there that the cost of this bill is $753,713,000. The intended raise in the debt limit is $750 billion. Coincidence, I do not know; but one certainly wonders whether one has a lot to do with the other.

We are going to call for a vote on the previous question. If it is defeated I am going to offer an amendment for this unfair rule. The Phelps substitute that was offered in the Committee on Rules and that the Republican majority on the Committee on Rules refused to make in order would allow the tax cuts to be made permanent upon certification by the director of the Congressional Budget Office that enactment of the legislation would not result in an on-budget deficit.

Quite simply, Mr. Speaker, the permanent extension of the tax cuts should not use Social Security funds; and we all stood here, both sides alike, and pledged to protect Social Security funds in a lockbox. We propose that my colleagues let that promise be kept to the American people.

The procedure that the majority used to bring the bill to the floor prevents the Democrats from having a substitute motion to recommit, and only by defeating the previous question can we bring fiscal order back to the budget process. That should be the top priority of this Congress.

So I urge a "no" vote on the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the amendment be printed in the RECORD immediately before the vote.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield the balance of our time to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF), the author of this bill.

(Mr. HULSHOF asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS) for yielding me the time.

My friend from New Jersey awhile ago quoted Woody Allen. Let me provide this quote that I came across in an old "Farmers Almanac" recently. It said, "If Patrick Henry thought taxation without representation was bad, he ought to see it with representation"; and I think Mr. Henry would look at what we did a year ago and he would roll over in his grave because this sunset that was placed on this tax cut has no policy reason at all. It was simply put there by the other body by the bill's opponents.

Why is it, I ask my colleagues, especially those 28 of them, many of whom spoke here today, why is it that tax increases are always permanent? We are still paying for the Spanish-American War with the tax on luxury telephones that was passed in 1898. The death tax that we are trying to repeal once and for all was enacted in 1916. We still have deficit reduction taxes that my colleagues put on the American people back in 1993. So it is a good policy reason that we make these tax cuts permanent.

What is going to happen if we do not? What I hear from the other side of the aisle is, talking about this, we cannot afford this tax cut. Mr. Speaker, if we do nothing, this cost has to be borne by someone, and that someone is the American family, it is the American business, because we know if we do nothing, they are going to see the largest tax increase our Nation has ever had thrust upon them.

Mr. Speaker, a bipartisan majority voted to enact these tax relief measures that we passed a year ago. If it was good policy then, it remains good policy now. I urge a "yes" vote on the rule and a "yes" vote on the underlying legislation.

The material referred to earlier by the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) is as follows:

PREVIOUS QUESTION ON H. RES. 390, RULE FOR H.R. 586, FAIRNESS FOR FOSTER CARE FAMILIES ACT OF 2001

At the end of the resolution, add the following new section:

SEC. ____ (a) Upon adoption of the House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.R. 586, the enrolling clerk of the House of Representatives shall—

(1) prepare an engrossment of the House amendment without title ____ (related to the repeal of the sunset provision of the Economic Growth and Taxpayer Relief Act of 2001) and transmit it to the Senate for further legislative action; and

(2) prepare an engrossment of a bill comprised of title ____ (related to the repeal of the sunset provision of the Economic Growth and Taxpayer Relief Act of 2001).

(b) The vote by which such House amendment was agreed to shall be deemed to have been a vote in favor of the bill referred to in subsection (a)(2) upon certification by the chairman of the Budget Committee that enactment of the legislation would not rely on the use of Social Security surplus funds. Upon the engrossment of such bill, it shall be deemed to have passed the House of Representatives and been duly certified and examined. The engrossed copy shall be signed by the Clerk and transmitted to the Senate for further legislative action. Upon final passage by both houses, the bill shall be signed by the presiding officer of both houses and presented to the President for his signature (and otherwise treated for all purposes) in the manner provided for bills generally.

(c) The Chairman of the Budget Committee shall make the certification under subsection (b) only if the Director of the Congressional Budget Office finds that enactment of the bill would not result in an on-budget deficit in any of the 10 fiscal years based on the most recent economic and technical assumptions by the Congressional Budget Office and all legislation enacted prior to the certification and any additional changes in spending and revenues assumed in H. Con. Res. 353 as passed by the House.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for electronic voting, if ordered, on the question of adoption of the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 219, nays 206, not voting 9, as follows:

□ 1258

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I was inadvertently detained and was not recorded for rollcall vote 102 on April 18. Had it been recorded, I would have voted "aye".

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Ways and Means, the Subcommittee on Human Resources, is meeting at this time rewriting the welfare bill, the TANF bill. Is there any rule under which it is possible for us to suspend here on the floor so that we can go back to the committee and work on that? Members of the Committee on Ways and Means are presently supposed to be in two places at once. I am asking whether there is provision under the rules.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would advise the gentleman that there is no House prohibition on committees meeting while the House is considering H.R. 586. Therefore, the committees are able to meet.

PERMISSION FOR MEMBER TO REVISE AND EXTEND REMARKS ON H.R. 586, FAIRNESS FOR FOSTER CARE FAMILIES ACT OF 2001

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks on the bill which is before us.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Washington?

There was no objection.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. THOMAS. How can the gentleman from Washington revise and extend his remarks on the bill before us when the bill has not been laid before us?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. By unanimous consent, a Member is allowed to revise and extend his remarks on a bill that is yet to be considered.

Mr. THOMAS. As long as it is yet to be considered. The gentleman said "the bill before us."

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman's unanimous consent request is perfectly in order.

Mr. THOMAS. I would like to place in front of the House the bill that the gentleman just placed his information on the RECORD. I did that for the purpose of making sure that notwithstanding the Speaker's response, guided by the Parliamentarian, this individual from California believes the bill has to be in front of us if you are going to place unanimous consent remarks on the bill that is in front of us.

FAIRNESS FOR FOSTER CARE FAMILIES ACT OF 2001

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 390, I call up from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 586) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide that the exclusion from gross income for foster care payments shall also apply to payments by qualified placement agencies, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The text of the Senate amendment is as follows:

SEC. 3. ACCELERATION OF EFFECTIVE DATE FOR EXPANSION OF ADOPTION TAX CREDIT AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS.

Subsection (g) of section 202 of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 is amended to read as follows:

"(g) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001."

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. THOMAS

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the motion.

The text of the motion is as follows:

Mr. THOMAS moves that the House concur in the Senate amendment with an amendment, as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate, strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

Subtitle A—Penalties and Interest

SEC. 211. FAILURE TO PAY ESTIMATED TAX PENALTY CONVERTED TO INTEREST CHARGE ON ACCUMULATED UNPAID BALANCE.

(a) PENALTY MOVED TO INTEREST CHAPTER OF CODE.—The Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by redesignating section 6654 as section 6641 and by moving section 6641 (as so redesignated) from part I of subchapter A of chapter 68 to the end of subchapter E of chapter 67 (as added by subsection (e)(1) of this section).

(b) PENALTY CONVERTED TO INTEREST CHARGE.—The heading and subsections (a) and (b) of section 6641 (as so redesignated) are amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 6641. INTEREST ON FAILURE BY INDIVIDUAL TO PAY ESTIMATED INCOME TAX.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Interest shall be paid on any underpayment of estimated tax by an individual for a taxable year for each day of such underpayment. The amount of such interest for any day shall be the product of the underpayment rate established under subsection (b)(2) multiplied by the amount of the underpayment.

“(b) AMOUNT OF UNDERPAYMENT; INTEREST RATE.—For purposes of subsection (a)—

“(1) AMOUNT.—The amount of the underpayment on any day shall be the excess of—

“(A) the sum of the required installments for the taxable year the due dates for which are on or before such day, over

“(B) the sum of the amounts (if any) of estimated tax payments made on or before such day on such required installments.

“(2) DETERMINATION OF INTEREST RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The underpayment rate with respect to any day in an installment underpayment period shall be the underpayment rate established under section 6621 for the first day of the calendar quarter in which such installment underpayment period begins.

“(B) INSTALLMENT UNDERPAYMENT PERIOD.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term ‘installment underpayment period’ means the period beginning on the day after the due date for a required installment and ending on the due date for the subsequent required installment (or in the case of the 4th required installment, the 15th day of the 4th month following the close of a taxable year).

“(C) DAILY RATE.—The rate determined under subparagraph (A) shall be applied on a daily basis and shall be based on the assumption of 365 days in a calendar year.

“(3) TERMINATION OF ESTIMATED TAX INTEREST.—No day after the end of the installment underpayment period for the 4th required installment specified in paragraph (2)(B) for a taxable year shall be treated as a day of underpayment with respect to such taxable year.”.

(c) INCREASE IN SAFE HARBOR WHERE TAX IS SMALL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Clause (i) of section 6641(d)(1)(B) (as so redesignated) is amended to read as follows:

“(i) the lesser of—

“(I) 90 percent of the tax shown on the return for the taxable year (or, if no return is filed, 90 percent of the tax for such year), or

“(II) the tax shown on the return for the taxable year (or, if no return is filed, the tax for such year) reduced (but not below zero) by $2,000, or”.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subsection (e) of section 6641 (as so redesignated) is amended by striking paragraph (1) and redesignating paragraphs (2) and (3) as paragraphs (1) and (2), respectively.

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (e) (as redesignated by subsection (c)(2)) and subsection (h) of section 6641 (as so designated) are each amended by striking “addition to tax” each place it occurs and inserting “interest”.

(2) Section 167(g)(5)(D) is amended by striking “6654” and inserting “6641”.

(3) Section 460(b)(1) is amended by striking “6654” and inserting “6641”.

(4) Section 3510(b) is amended—

(A) by striking “section 6654” in paragraph (1) and inserting “section 6641”;

(B) by amending paragraph (2)(B) to read as follows:

“(B) no interest would be required to be paid (but for this section) under 6641 for such taxable year by reason of the $2,000 amount specified in section 6641(d)(1)(B)(i)(II).”.

(C) by striking “section 6654(d)(2)” in paragraph (3) and inserting “section 6641(d)(2)”; and

(D) by striking paragraph (4).

(5) Section 6201(b)(1) is amended by striking “6654” and inserting “6641”.

(6) Section 6601(h) is amended by striking “6654” and inserting “6641”.

(7) Section 6621(b)(2)(B) is amended by striking “addition to tax under section 6654” and inserting “interest required to be paid under section 6641”.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to installment payments for taxable years beginning after December 31, 2002.

SEC. 212. EXCLUSION FROM GROSS INCOME FOR INTEREST ON OVERPAYMENTS OF INCOME TAX BY INDIVIDUALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part III of subchapter B of chapter 1 (relating to items specifically excluded from gross income) is amended by inserting after section 139 the following new section:

“SEC. 139A. EXCLUSION FROM GROSS INCOME FOR INTEREST ON OVERPAYMENTS OF INCOME TAX BY INDIVIDUALS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an individual, gross income shall not include interest paid under section 6611 on any overpayment of tax imposed by this subtitle.

“(b) EXCEPTION.—Subsection (a) shall not apply in the case of a failure to claim items resulting in the overpayment on the original return if the Secretary determines that the principal purpose of such failure is to take advantage of subsection (a).

“(c) SPECIAL RULE FOR DETERMINING MODIFIED ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME.—For purposes of this title, interest not included in gross income under subsection (a) shall not be treated as interest which is exempt from tax for purposes of sections 32(i)(2)(B) and 6012(d) or any computation in which interest exempt from tax under this title is added to adjusted gross income.”.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for part III of subchapter B of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 139 the following new item:

“Sec. 139A. Exclusion from gross income for interest on overpayments of income tax by individuals.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to interest received in calendar years beginning after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 213. ABATEMENT OF INTEREST.

(a) ABATEMENT OF INTEREST WITH RESPECT TO ERRONEOUS REFUND CHECK WITHOUT REGARD TO SIZE OF REFUND.—Paragraph (2) of section 6404(e) is amended by striking “unless—” and all that follows and inserting “unless the taxpayer (or a related party) has in any way caused such erroneous refund.”.

(b) ABATEMENT OF INTEREST TO EXTENT INTEREST IS ATTRIBUTABLE TO TAXPAYER RELIANCE ON WRITTEN STATEMENTS OF THE IRS.—Subsection (f) of section 6404 is amended—

(1) in the subsection heading, by striking “PENALTY OR ADDITION” and inserting “INTEREST, PENALTY, OR ADDITION”; and

(2) in paragraph (1) and in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (2), by striking “penalty or addition” and inserting “interest, penalty, or addition”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to interest accruing on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 214. DEPOSITS MADE TO SUSPEND RUNNING OF INTEREST ON POTENTIAL UNDERPAYMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 67 (relating to interest on underpayments) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“SEC. 6603. DEPOSITS MADE TO SUSPEND RUNNING OF INTEREST ON POTENTIAL UNDERPAYMENTS, ETC.

“(a) AUTHORITY TO MAKE DEPOSITS OTHER THAN AS PAYMENT OF TAX.—A taxpayer may make a cash deposit with the Secretary which may be used by the Secretary to pay any tax imposed under subtitle A or B or chapter 41, 42, 43, or 44 which has not been assessed at the time of the deposit. Such a deposit shall be made in such manner as the Secretary shall prescribe.

“(b) NO INTEREST IMPOSED.—To the extent that such deposit is used by the Secretary to pay tax, for purposes of section 6601 (relating to interest on underpayments), the tax shall be treated as paid when the deposit is made.

“(c) RETURN OF DEPOSIT.—Except in a case where the Secretary determines that collection of tax is in jeopardy, the Secretary shall return to the taxpayer any amount of the deposit (to the extent not used for a payment of tax) which the taxpayer requests in writing.

“(d) PAYMENT OF INTEREST.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of section 6611 (relating to interest on overpayments), a deposit which is returned to a taxpayer shall be treated as a payment of tax for any period to the extent (and only to the extent) attributable to a disputable tax for such period. Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, rules similar to the rules of section 6611(b)(2) shall apply.

“(2) DISPUTABLE TAX.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘disputable tax’ means the amount of tax specified at the time of the deposit as the taxpayer’s reasonable estimate of the maximum amount of any tax attributable to disputable items.

“(B) SAFE HARBOR BASED ON 30-DAY LETTER.—In the case of a taxpayer who has been issued a 30-day letter, the maximum amount of tax under subparagraph (A) shall not be less than the amount of the proposed deficiency specified in such letter.

“(3) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of paragraph (2)—

“(A) DISPUTABLE ITEM.—The term ‘disputable item’ means any item of income, gain, loss, deduction, or credit if the taxpayer—

“(i) has a reasonable basis for its treatment of such item, and “(ii) reasonably believes that the Secretary also has a reasonable basis for disallowing the taxpayer’s treatment of such item.

“(B) 30-DAY LETTER.—The term ‘30-day letter’ means the first letter of proposed deficiency which allows the taxpayer an opportunity for administrative review in the Internal Revenue Service Office of Appeals.

“(4) RATE OF INTEREST.—The rate of interest allowable under this subsection shall be the Federal short-term rate determined under section 6621(b), compounded daily.

“(e) USE OF DEPOSITS.—

“(1) PAYMENT OF TAX.—Except as otherwise provided by the taxpayer, deposits shall be treated as used for the payment of tax in the order deposited.

“(B) RETURNS OF DEPOSITS.—Deposits shall be treated as returned to the taxpayer on a last-in, first-out basis.”.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subchapter A of chapter 67 is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“Sec. 6603. Deposits made to suspend running of interest on potential underpayments, etc.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to deposits made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) COORDINATION WITH DEPOSITS MADE UNDER REVENUE PROCEDURE 84-58.—In the case of an amount held by the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate on the date of the enactment of this Act as a deposit in the nature of a cash bond deposit pursuant to Revenue Procedure 84-58, the date that the taxpayer identifies such amount as a deposit made pursuant to section 6603 of the Internal Revenue Code (as added by this Act) shall be treated as the date such amount is deposited for purposes of such section 6603.

SEC. 215. EXPANSION OF INTEREST NETTING FOR INDIVIDUALS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (d) of section 6621 (relating to elimination of interest on overlapping periods of tax overpayments and underpayments) is amended by adding at the end the following: “Solely for purposes of the preceding sentence, section 6611(e) shall not apply in the case of an individual.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to interest accrued after December 31, 2002.

SEC. 216. WAIVER OF CERTAIN PENALTIES FOR FIRST-TIME UNINTENTIONAL MINOR ERRORS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 6651 (relating to failure to file tax return or to pay tax) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(i) TREATMENT OF FIRST-TIME UNINTENTIONAL MINOR ERRORS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a return of tax imposed by subtitle A filed by an individual, the Secretary may waive an addition to tax under subsection (a) if—

“(A) the individual has a history of compliance with the requirements of this title,

“(B) it is shown that the failure is due to an unintentional minor error,

“(C) the penalty would be grossly disproportionate to the action or expense that would have been needed to avoid the error, and imposing the penalty would be against equity and good conscience,

“(D) waiving the penalty would promote compliance with the requirements of this title and effective tax administration, and “(E) the taxpayer took all reasonable steps to remedy the error promptly after discovering it.

“(2) EXCEPTIONS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply if—

“(A) the Secretary has waived any addition to tax under this subsection with respect to any prior failure by such individual,

“(B) the failure is a mathematical or clerical error (as defined in section 6213(g)(2)), or

“(C) the failure is the lack of a required signature.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall take effect on January 1, 2003.

SEC. 217. FRIVOLOUS TAX SUBMISSIONS.

(a) CIVIL PENALTIES.—Section 6702 is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 6702. FRIVOLOUS TAX SUBMISSIONS.

“(a) CIVIL PENALTY FOR FRIVOLOUS TAX RETURNS.—A person shall pay a penalty of $5,000 if—

“(1) such person files what purports to be a return of a tax imposed by this title but which—

“(A) does not contain information on which the substantial correctness of the self-assessment may be judged, or

“(B) contains information that on its face indicates that the self-assessment is substantially incorrect; and

“(2) the conduct referred to in paragraph (1)—

“(A) is based on a position which the Secretary has identified as frivolous under subsection (c), or “(B) reflects a desire to delay or impede the administration of Federal tax laws.

“(b) CIVIL PENALTY FOR SPECIFIED FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSIONS.—

“(1) IMPOSITION OF PENALTY.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), any person who submits a specified frivolous submission shall pay a penalty of $5,000.

“(2) SPECIFIED FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSION.—For purposes of this section—

“(A) SPECIFIED FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSION.—The term ‘specified frivolous submission’ means a specified submission if any portion of such submission—

“(i) is based on a position which the Secretary has identified as frivolous under subsection (c), or “(ii) reflects a desire to delay or impede the administration of Federal tax laws.

“(B) SPECIFIED SUBMISSION.—The term ‘specified submission’ means—

“(i) a request for a hearing under—

“(I) section 6320 (relating to notice and opportunity for hearing upon filing of notice of lien), or “(II) section 6330 (relating to notice and opportunity for hearing before levy), and “(ii) an application under—

“(I) section 7811 (relating to taxpayer assistance orders),

“(II) section 6159 (relating to agreements for payment of tax liability in installments), or “(III) section 7122 (relating to compromises).

“(3) OPPORTUNITY TO WITHDRAW SUBMISSION.—If the Secretary provides a person with notice that a submission is a specified frivolous submission and such person withdraws such submission promptly after such notice, the penalty imposed under paragraph (1) shall not apply with respect to such submission.

“(c) LISTING OF FRIVOLOUS POSITIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe (and periodically revise) a list of positions which the Secretary has identified as being frivolous for purposes of this subsection. The Secretary shall not include in such list any position that the Secretary determines meets the requirement of section 6662(d)(2)(B)(ii)(II).

“(d) REDUCTION OF PENALTY.—The Secretary may reduce the amount of any penalty imposed under this section if the Secretary determines that such reduction would promote compliance with and administration of the Federal tax laws.

“(e) PENALTIES IN ADDITION TO OTHER PENALTIES.—The penalties imposed by this section shall be in addition to any other penalty provided by law.”

(b) TREATMENT OF FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS FOR HEARINGS BEFORE LEVY.—

(1) FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS DISREGARDED.—Section 6330 (relating to notice and opportunity for hearing before levy) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(g) FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS FOR HEARING, ETC.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, if the Secretary determines that any portion of a request for a hearing under this section or section 6320 meets the requirement of clause (i) or (ii) of section 6702(b)(2)(A), then the Secretary may treat such portion as if it were never submitted and such portion shall not be subject to any further administrative or judicial review.”

(2) PRECLUSION FROM RAISING FRIVOLOUS ISSUES AT HEARING.—Section 6330(c)(4) is amended—

(A) by striking “(A)” and inserting “(A)(i)”;

(B) by striking “(B)” and inserting “(ii)”;

(C) by striking the period at the end of the first sentence and inserting “; or”; and

(D) by inserting after subparagraph (A)(ii) (as so redesignated) the following:

“(B) the issue meets the requirement of clause (i) or (ii) of section 6702(b)(2)(A).”

(3) STATEMENT OF GROUNDS.—Section 6330(b)(1) is amended by striking “under subsection (a)(3)(B)” and inserting “in writing under subsection (a)(3)(B) and states the grounds for the requested hearing”.

(c) TREATMENT OF FRIVOLOUS REQUESTS FOR HEARINGS UPON FILING OF NOTICE OF LIEN.—Section 6320 is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)(1), by striking “under subsection (a)(3)(B)” and inserting “in writing under subsection (a)(3)(B) and states the grounds for the requested hearing”, and

(2) in subsection (c), by striking “and (e)” and inserting “(e), and (g)”.

(d) TREATMENT OF FRIVOLOUS APPLICATIONS FOR OFFERS-IN-COMPROMISE AND INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS.—Section 7122 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(e) FRIVOLOUS SUBMISSIONS, ETC.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, if the Secretary determines that any portion of an application for an offer-in-compromise or installment agreement submitted under this section or section 6159 meets the requirement of clause (i) or (ii) of section 6702(b)(2)(A), then the Secretary may treat such portion as if it were never submitted and such portion shall not be subject to any further administrative or judicial review.”

(e) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for part I of subchapter B of chapter 68 is amended by striking the item relating to section 6702 and inserting the following new item:

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to submissions made and issues raised after the date on which the Secretary first prescribes a list under section 6702(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended by subsection (a).

SEC. 218. CLARIFICATION OF APPLICATION OF FEDERAL TAX DEPOSIT PENALTY.

Nothing in section 6656 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall be construed to permit the percentage specified in subsection (b)(1)(A)(iii) thereof to apply other than in a case where the failure is for more than 15 days.

Subtitle B—Fairness of Collection Procedures

SEC. 221. PARTIAL PAYMENT OF TAX LIABILITY IN INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) Section 6159(a) (relating to authorization of agreements) is amended—

(A) by striking “satisfy liability for payment of” and inserting “make payment on”, and

(B) by inserting “full or partial” after “facilitate”.

(2) Section 6159(c) (relating to Secretary required to enter into installment agreements in certain cases) is amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1) by inserting “full” before “payment”.

(b) REQUIREMENT TO REVIEW PARTIAL PAYMENT AGREEMENTS EVERY TWO YEARS.—Section 6159 is amended by redesignating subsections (d) and (e) as subsections (e) and (f), respectively, and inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection:

“(d) SECRETARY REQUIRED TO REVIEW INSTALLMENT AGREEMENTS FOR PARTIAL COLLECTION EVERY TWO YEARS.—In the case of an agreement entered into by the Secretary under subsection (a) for partial collection of a tax liability, the Secretary shall review the agreement at least once every 2 years.”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to agreements entered into on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 222. EXTENSION OF TIME FOR RETURN OF PROPERTY.

(a) EXTENSION OF TIME FOR RETURN OF PROPERTY SUBJECT TO LEVY.—Subsection (b) of section 6343 (relating to return of property) is amended by striking “9 months” and inserting “2 years”.

(1) in paragraph (1) by striking “9 months” and inserting “2 years”, and

(2) in paragraph (2) by striking “9-month” and inserting “2-year”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to—

(1) levies made after the date of the enactment of this Act, and

(2) levies made on or before such date if the 9-month period has not expired under section 6343(b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (without regard to this section) as of such date.

SEC. 223. INDIVIDUALS HELD HARMLESS ON WRONGFUL LEVY, ETC. ON INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT PLAN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 6343 (relating to authority to release levy and return property) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(f) INDIVIDUALS HELD HARMLESS ON WRONGFUL LEVY, ETC. ON INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT PLAN.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that an individual retirement plan has been levied upon in a case to which subsection (b) or (d)(2)(A) applies, an amount equal to the sum of—

“(A) the amount of money returned by the Secretary on account of such levy, and

“(B) interest paid under subsection (c) on such amount of money, may be deposited into an individual retirement plan (other than an endowment contract) to which a rollover from the plan levied upon is permitted.

“(2) TREATMENT AS ROLLOVER.—The distribution on account of the levy and any deposit under paragraph (1) with respect to such distribution shall be treated for purposes of this title as if such distribution and deposit were part of a rollover described in section 408(d)(3)(A)(i); except that—

“(A) interest paid under subsection (c) shall be treated as part of such distribution and as not includible in gross income,

“(B) the 60-day requirement in such section shall be treated as met if the deposit is made not later than the 60th day after the day on which the individual receives an amount under paragraph (1) from the Secretary, and

“(C) such deposit shall not be taken into account under section 408(d)(3)(B).

“(3) REFUND, ETC., OF INCOME TAX ON LEVY.—If any amount is includible in gross income for a taxable year by reason of a levy referred to in paragraph (1) and any portion of such amount is treated as a rollover under paragraph (2), any tax imposed by chapter 1 on such portion shall not be assessed, and if assessed shall be abated, and if collected shall be credited or refunded as an overpayment made on the due date for filing the return of tax for such taxable year.

“(4) INTEREST.—Notwithstanding subsection (d), interest shall be allowed under subsection (c) in a case in which the Secretary makes a determination described in subsection (d)(2)(A) with respect to a levy upon an individual retirement plan.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to amounts paid under subsections (b), (c), and (d)(2)(A) of section 6343 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 after December 31, 2002.

SEC. 224. SEVEN-DAY THRESHOLD ON TOLLING OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS DURING TAX REVIEW.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 7811(d)(1) (relating to suspension of running of period of limitation) is amended by inserting after “application,” the following: “but only if the date of such decision is at least 7 days after the date of the taxpayer’s application”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to applications filed after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 225. STUDY OF LIENS AND LEVIES.

The Secretary of the Treasury, or the Secretary’s delegate, shall conduct a study of the practices of the Internal Revenue Service concerning liens and levies. The study shall examine—

(1) the declining use of liens and levies by the Internal Revenue Service, and

(2) the practicality of recording liens and levying against property in cases in which the cost of such actions exceeds the amount to be realized from such property.

Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit such study to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate.

Subtitle C—Efficiency of Tax Administration

SEC. 231. REVISIONS RELATING TO TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT OF INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE EMPLOYEES FOR MISCONDUCT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter A of chapter 80 (relating to application of internal revenue laws) is amended by inserting after section 7804 the following new section:

“SEC. 7804A. DISCIPLINARY ACTIONS FOR MISCONDUCT.

“(a) DISCIPLINARY ACTIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (c), the Commissioner shall take an action in accordance with the guidelines established under paragraph (2) against any employee of the Internal Revenue Service if there is a final administrative or judicial determination that such employee committed any act or omission described under subsection (b) in the performance of the employee’s official duties or where a nexus to the employee’s position exists.

“(2) GUIDELINES.—The Commissioner shall issue guidelines for determining the appropriate level of discipline, up to and including termination of employment, for committing any act or omission described under subsection (b).

“(b) ACTS OR OMISSIONS.—The acts or omissions described under this subsection are—

“(1) willful failure to obtain the required approval signatures on documents authorizing the seizure of a taxpayer’s home, personal belongings, or business assets;

“(2) willfully providing a false statement under oath with respect to a material matter involving a taxpayer or taxpayer representative;

“(3) with respect to a taxpayer or taxpayer representative, the willful violation of—

“(A) any right under the Constitution of the United States;

“(B) any civil right established under—

“(i) title VI or VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964;

“(ii) title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972;

“(iii) the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967;

“(iv) the Age Discrimination Act of 1975;

“(v) section 501 or 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973; or “(vi) title I of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990; or

“(C) the Internal Revenue Service policy on unauthorized inspection of returns or return information;

“(4) willfully falsifying or destroying documents to conceal mistakes made by any employee with respect to a matter involving a taxpayer or taxpayer representative;

“(5) assault or battery on a taxpayer or taxpayer representative, but only if there is a criminal conviction, or a final adverse judgment by a court in a civil case, with respect to the assault or battery;

“(6) willful violations of this title, Department of the Treasury regulations, or policies of the Internal Revenue Service (including the Internal Revenue Manual) for the purpose of retaliating against, or harassing, a taxpayer or taxpayer representative;

“(7) willful misuse of the provisions of section 6103 for the purpose of concealing information from a congressional inquiry;

“(8) willful failure to file any return of tax required under this title on or before the date prescribed therefor (including any extensions) when a tax is due and owing, unless such failure is due to reasonable cause and not due to willful neglect;

“(9) willful understatement of Federal tax liability, unless such understatement is due to reasonable cause and not due to willful neglect; and

“(10) threatening to audit a taxpayer, or to take other action under this title, for the purpose of extracting personal gain or benefit.

“(c) DETERMINATIONS OF COMMISSIONER.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commissioner may take a personnel action other than a disciplinary action provided for in the guidelines under subsection (a)(2) for an act or omission described under subsection (b).

“(2) DISCRETION.—The exercise of authority under paragraph (1) shall be at the sole discretion of the Commissioner and may not be delegated to any other officer. The Commissioner, in his sole discretion, may establish a procedure to determine if an individual should be referred to the Commissioner for a determination by the Commissioner under paragraph (1).

“(3) NO APPEAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any determination of the Commissioner under this subsection may not be reviewed in any administrative or judicial proceeding. A finding that an act or omission described under subsection (b) occurred may be reviewed.

“(d) DEFINITION.—For the purposes of the provisions described in clauses (i), (ii), and (iv) of subsection (b)(3)(B), references to a program or activity regarding Federal financial assistance or an education program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance shall include any program or activity conducted by the Internal Revenue Service for a taxpayer.

“(e) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Commissioner shall submit to Congress annually a report on disciplinary actions under this section.”.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 80 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 7804 the following new item:

“Sec. 7804A. Disciplinary actions for misconduct.”.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 6072 (relating to time for filing income tax returns) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(f) ELECTRONICALLY FILED RETURNS OF INDIVIDUALS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Returns of an individual under section 6012 or 6013 (other than an individual to whom subsection (c) applies) which are filed electronically—

“(A) in the case of returns filed on the basis of a calendar year, shall be filed on or before the 30th day of April following the close of the calendar year, and

“(B) in the case of returns filed on the basis of a fiscal year, shall be filed on or before the last day of the 4th month following the close of the fiscal year.

“(2) ELECTRONIC FILING.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any return unless—

“(A) such return is accepted by the Secretary, and “(B) the balance due (if any) shown on such return is paid electronically in a manner prescribed by the Secretary.

“(3) SPECIAL RULES.—

“(A) ESTIMATED TAX.—If—

“(i) paragraph (1) applies to an individual for any taxable year, and

“(ii) there is an overpayment of tax shown on the return for such year which the individual allows against the individual’s obligation under section 6641, then, with respect to the amount so allowed, any reference in section 6641 to the April 15 following such taxable year shall be treated as a reference to April 30.

“(B) REFERENCES TO DUE DATE.—Paragraph (1) shall apply solely for purposes of determining the due date for the individual's obligation to file and pay tax and, except as otherwise provided by the Secretary, shall be treated as an extension of the due date for any other purpose under this title.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2001.

Subtitle D—Confidentiality and Disclosure

Subtitle F—Low-Income Taxpayer Clinics

SEC. 271. LOW-INCOME TAXPAYER CLINICS.

(a) LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF GRANTS.—Paragraph (1) of section 7526(c) (relating to special rules and limitations) is amended by striking “$6,000,000 per year” and inserting “$9,000,000 for 2002, $12,000,000 for 2003, and $15,000,000 for each year thereafter”.

(b) LIMITATION ON USE OF CLINICS FOR TAX RETURN PREPARATION.—Subparagraph (A) of section 7526(b)(1) is amended by adding at the end the following flush language:

“The term does not include a clinic that provides routine tax return preparation. The preceding sentence shall not apply to return preparation in connection with a controversy with the Internal Revenue Service.”.

(c) PROMOTION OF CLINICS.—Section 7526(c) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(7) PROMOTION OF CLINICS.—The Secretary is authorized to promote the benefits of and encourage the use of low-income taxpayer clinics through the use of mass communications, referrals, and other means.”.

Amend the title so as to read: “A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to make permanent the tax reductions enacted by the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 and to protect taxpayers and ensure accountability of the Internal Revenue Service.”

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 390, the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) each will control 30 minutes.

□ 1300

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. McCRERY).

(Mr. McCRERY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and include extraneous material.)

Mr. McCRERY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the motion and of making permanent the tax cuts enacted last year.

To me, the key consideration is ensuring the level of federal revenue is sufficient to meet the needs of the government without imposing an unsupportable burden on the governed.

Over the last 40 years, federal government revenues have averaged about 18.2 percent of our gross domestic product. Some might argue that this was too low to meet pressing needs. Others believe it is so high as to stifle economic growth. But the fact is that while revenues fluctuated somewhat, they were usually within 1 percent of that 40-year average. That has changed in the last 4 years, as federal revenues as a share of GDP rose to exceed 20 percent.

In January, the Congressional Budget Office confirmed that even with the passage of the 2001 tax cuts, federal revenues will continue to be close to 20 percent of GDP in every year of the 10-year budget window.

That is contrary to claims that the phased-in nature of the tax cut will starve Washington of revenue in the second half of this decade. The truth is that between 2006 and 2011, federal revenues as a share of GDP will actually increase.

In fact, only three times between the end of World War II and 2001, a span of more than five decades, did federal revenues consume a larger share of our national income than they will in 2011. And those years were 1998, 1999, and 2000.

The real question is whether, over the long-term, allowing the tax cuts to sunset will increase federal revenues to an unsupportable level.

A recent analysis by the General Accounting Office found that if the tax cuts are made permanent and discretionary spending grows as fast as the economy, federal revenues as a share of GDP will remain just under 19 percent for the next 50 years, still higher than historical levels. If the sunset is allowed to occur, the GAO concluded revenues will rise to 20.5 percent of national income every year through the end of their 75-year forecast period.

Looking back 70 years—a period which includes the Great Depression, the New Deal, World War II, the Korean War, the Great Society, the Vietnam War, and the oil embargo of the 1970s—federal revenues have never exceeded 20.5 percent of GDP for 2 consecutive years.

Mr. Speaker, I remain concerned about the drag on our economy which results from having taxpayers send almost one in every five dollars of our national income to Washington. We should certainly not allow the 2001 tax cuts to sunset, thereby further driving up the federal government's take from the national income to historically high and potentially unsupportable levels.

Mr. Speaker, I urge passage of this measure.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we are going to engage in a debate about whether or not the tax bill that was enacted into law last year does not end 10 years from now, but, rather, is open-ended. We are going to hear a series of statements which, frankly, will become very baffling to many people in this debate trying to follow what it is that Members of Congress are saying. I will try to provide a firm set of measuring tools as we get into this debate.

Number one, no matter how many times it is going to be said that we are invading, raiding, doing anything with the Social Security trust fund, that statement is not true.

We will hear a number of dollar amounts thrown around. I guess $700 billion is a lot of money. I cannot comprehend it from a personal revenue point of view. $1 trillion is a lot of money. The economy is currently producing at about $10 trillion a year. It is very, very difficult for most people, and I would say, frankly, for this Member and most Members of Congress, to really put those dollar amounts in some kind of context, so let me give you a little bit of a measurement as you listen to this debate and as dollar amounts are thrown around and the dire consequences given of actually letting the American people permanently keep a little bit more of their own money.

If you would take a look at what this economy is going to produce over the next 10 years by the best estimates and call that $1,000, what we are talking about doing here on a permanent basis is about $2.30. Or, to put it in a yearly basis, if every year of that 10-year $1,000 economy is $100, we are talking about this year's discussion being 23 cents.

Now, you are going to hear that it will reduce the Republic to rubble, deny every senior their Social Security check, deny Medicare, cause diaper rash and every other problem under the sun if, on the economy being $100, we decide to utilize 23 cents to allow people to make decisions on their own, which, frankly from a philosophical point of view is a good guideline between Democrats and Republicans, because we believe the best guarantee to have a surplus 10 years from now is to give people their own money, to allow them to make decisions, to invest, to grow, to be entrepreneurial, and we will have a bigger pie in which more revenue comes in.

Listen carefully to the Democrat plan. They will say, “We think it is a good idea to have a tax cut if and when we think it is a good idea to have a tax cut.” I think you will find those 10 years will come and go, and their belief is hanging on to it here in Washington guarantees a better economy. In other words, they do not trust you.

We believe you should have more of your own money back. They were willing to do it because they were forced to do it on a temporary basis, and in no way do they want to make it permanent. That is what this debate is all about.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we have a lot of smart people in this world that cannot even determine what the economy is going to look like next week, so it is really extraordinary that we have someone that can give us a forecast of what it looks like in the next 20 years.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. MATSUI), an outstanding member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, this bill will not give anybody a diaper rash. It has nothing to do with diaper rashes and things of that nature. What we saw was that in January of 2001, we were projecting a $5.6 trillion surplus. That surplus is almost all gone now because we passed a tax cut of $1.3 trillion last year, and now we are going to pass a $4 trillion tax cut over the next 20 years. $5.5 trillion in tax cuts.

What is interesting about this tax cut, it will not give baby rashes, but those people whose tax returns show an average of $500,000 a year, let me repeat that, $500,000 a year, will get 60 percent of that $5.5 trillion surplus. To put it another way, if your tax return shows over $1 million a year, you are going to get 40 percent of this $5.5 trillion tax cut.

This is payroll tax money. The people on the elevators, running the elevators, waitresses in restaurants, this is their money that they think is going into the Social Security trust account, and instead it is going to go to pay for tax cuts for those earning $1 million a year or $500,000 a year.

I have to say that in addition to that, this is going to put a massive drain on the Social Security trust fund. It will not give baby rashes, but it is going to do major damage to senior citizens throughout the United States. $5.5 trillion.

Forty million new Americans are going to go on the Social Security system in the next 20 years while this tax cut is going through, and we are going to see, if this tax cut goes through, $5.5 trillion, a 30 percent reduction, a 30 percent reduction in the average American Social Security benefits.

That is what this is really all about. It is an issue, frankly, of values, what this country stands for. We want to make sure that we have clean air, we want to make sure we have education for our children, we want to make sure that we give our senior citizens the life they are entitled to in their retirement age.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MATSUI. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask some questions of the gentleman, because he has made some pretty bold statements out here.

Did not the Republican leadership promise that they would not invade the Social Security trust fund? Did they not put this in a lock box? What is the gentleman's response to that?

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would say to the gentleman from New York that over the last 4 years, we had seven votes that the Republican leadership put to the floor of the House saying we were not going to invade the Social Security trust accounts.

Mr. RANGEL. If the gentleman will yield further, what did they do?

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, they have raided the Social Security trust account. They are going to take $5.5 trillion out if this tax cut goes through, and it is going to have a 30 percent reduction in benefits for the average Social Security recipient.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I repeat my statement: There will be no trust fund monies spent from Social Security.

To underscore that, it is my pleasure to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Social Security.

Prior to that, I ask unanimous consent to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF), and that he be allowed to control said time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

(Mr. SHAW asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and include extraneous material.)

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, I have a prepared statement that I will make part of the RECORD, and therefore I want to direct my statements to really the incredible statement that I just heard on the floor by the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Social Security and the ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Speaker, I would say to my friends, no one is raiding the Social Security trust fund. By law you cannot. The only thing in the trust fund is Treasury Bills. Is anybody saying we are taking Treasury Bills out of the Social Security trust fund? Of course not.

Let us get a basic knowledge here of honesty and really look into how this system works. The FICA taxes that are paid, which, incidentally, are not being cut, so I do not know where that argument came from, that came really out of left field, goes into the Social Security trust fund. It goes out by way of payment of benefits. What is not used is a surplus, which then goes into the general fund and is replaced with Treasury Bills inside the trust fund.

Now, how in the world do you raid the Social Security trust fund? By law you cannot. You cannot and never have. When the Democrats were spending all of the surplus and deficit spending, they did not go into the trust fund, because you cannot. You cannot go into the trust fund.

I also heard the incredible statement made just a few moments ago that this is going to lower benefits by 30 percent. Do you know where that figure comes from? If this Congress does nothing, nothing, to reform the Social Security system in this country by forward funding it. That is what the Democrats are talking about. They are not going to have enough money beginning after somewhere in about 25 or 30 years, and they will be faced with a situation, the country will be faced with a situation, of not being able to maintain the amount of benefits that we have.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle continue to mislead American workers and seniors. They claim the Social Security trust funds are being raided to pay for needed tax relief—in spite of the facts.

Such myths are intended only to scare seniors, use Social Security as a political jackhammer, and divert attention from the fact that the Democratic leadership has no plan for strengthening Social Security. They are not acting responsibly.

Everybody here knows the Social Security trust funds have no dollars to "raid." Social Security works the way it always has: surplus payroll taxes are credited to the trust funds as interest bearing Treasury bills—that's the law. It is legally impossible to use those Treasury IOUs for anything else other than paying benefits or administering the Social Security program.

In the name of Social Security, Democrats opposed to making the tax cuts permanent are for tax hikes. Yet, saddling hard-working taxpayers with higher taxes does nothing to stop the enormous cash-flow deficits Social Security faces due to the aging of our nation. If nothing is done, Americans will soon face the additional tax burden of supporting Social Security. While doing nothing appears to be the Democrat solution, it certainly isn't ours.

Moreover, the numbers just don't add up. The cost of Social Security's annual cash-flow deficits will continue to grow, well beyond over-inflated cost estimates of extending tax relief.

And everyone knows adding more government IOUs to the trust fund doesn't do a single thing for Social Security. Because at the end of the day, the Treasury still needs to find the cash to pay those debts.

Making the tax cuts permanent will help the economy grow by hundreds of billions of dollars in the near future, making debt reduction easier, sustaining productivity growth and improving our ability to address the needs of the retiring baby-boom. Letting the tax cuts expire, on the other hand, will cause tax hikes on taxpayers, dampen economic growth, and erode retirement security. For example, a 35 year old would set aside over $160,000 less in their IRA at age 65 if the tax cut is not made permanent.

Rather than talking about how to pass the buck onto future generations, let's have a full and honest debate about how to keep the pledge both Republicans and Democrats made last December. In a vote of 415-5 we pledged to save Social Security without cutting benefits, without raising taxes, or ignoring the special needs of women and minorities.

This debate should start with the Democrats' offering their plan to save Social Security. Are they for massive, growing, and never-ending general revenue transfers that still leave an unsustainable program? Are they for Uncle Sam sitting in the corporate boardrooms of America by allowing government investing of the trust funds or making millions of workers pay more payroll taxes without giving them credit toward their benefits, as called for by Mr. DEFAZIO—who has my sincere respect for committing his plan to legislation. Where are his Democrat colleagues?

America's seniors, workers, and their families are counting on us to provide leadership to strengthen Social Security. If we neglect this duty, if we play political games using Social Security as a pawn, it is our kids and grandkids that will pay the price of our shortsightedness.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, so our side will be able to respond to that question, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the ranking member on the Committee on the Budget, who has provided an outstanding service to the Congress and the country.

(Mr. SPRATT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, the critical vote came first. It was the vote to bypass the budget and do away with the rules that have served us well for the last 10 years. They moved the budget out of deep deficit into big surpluses. Now, with those rules out of the way, this tax bill can work its will, which is just what the gentleman said, it is to raid Social Security.

If you do not believe me, look at the President's own budget. The President's budget calls for $675 billion in tax cuts on top of the $1.3 trillion passed last June. Among other things, it calls for this repeal of the sunset provision. As a result, look at the President's own budget. It wipes out what it is left of any surplus, it spends the entire Medicare surplus, consumes it completely, and spends two-thirds of the Social Security surplus, by the President's own accounting.

Last month, when our Republican colleagues in the House brought out their budget resolution, it provided for none of those tax cuts. Not any of them. It did not make any mention of repeal of the so-called sunset in last year's tax bill. Why was that? Because they knew if they factored into their budget these tax cuts, it would drive the bottom line through the floor. It would put the budget in deficit for as far as the eye could see. They would be spending virtually all of Social Security, the Social Security surplus, and all of the Medicare surplus.

Now, one month later, they bring up a tax cut that they could not accommodate in their budget resolution, did not want to put in the context of a budget resolution, because that would have shown what it did to Social Security, what it did to Medicare. They bring it up ad hoc, all by itself, a blatant violation of the budget process rules.

Consider this: Last year, the Secretary of the Treasury told us that we would not need to raise the ceiling on the amount of national debt we can incur for at least 8 years. That was his testimony. Yesterday the Secretary of the Treasury sent us his third letter saying that the ceiling on the national debt needs to be raised, and raised now, by $750 billion. Why is that? Because we are spending the Social Security trust account, we are spending the Medicare trust account, and not using them to pay down the debt of the United States.

So what is the response of our Republican leaders in the House? It is not to raise the debt ceiling. Their response is to reduce taxes by another $500 billion between now and 2012, $4 trillion between 2012 and 2022. This will wipe out what is left of Social Security and all of the surplus that builds up between now and 2012.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would just say in response to the gentleman that the only budget this House has considered this year does, in fact, include room to make these tax cuts permanent. In fact, the most recent numbers from our official scorekeepers, the Congressional Budget Office, as well as the Joint Tax Committee, tell us this extension would take from the Treasury $374 billion over 10 years. At the same time, we would accumulate surpluses of $2.3 trillion.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. HOUGHTON), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. HOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill that never should have happened. If it had not been for quirks in the Senate language, this all would have been put to bed when we settled the tax reduction issue last year.

Now, look, this bill is not perfect. I have questions about the amount of money, I have questions about the timing, I have questions about the estate tax. But basically it is moving us in the right direction.

I ask the question, what is wrong with reducing taxes? When I was in business, many times we made money, and sometimes we did not make money. But every so often you would say to your employees, gentlemen, ladies, you have hung with us a long time. We have not given you an increase. Many times we have had to have layoffs.

But we are going to give you back some of that money which now we are generating. I think that is a good idea, and that is what this thing is all about. I strongly support this bill.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LEWIS), my distinguished friend and member of the committee.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to point out that the budget resolution brought to the floor by the House Republicans last month provided only $77 billion in tax cuts over the next 5 years. The President is calling for $675 billion in tax cuts over the next 10 years, and the repeal of this repealer will take at least $400 to $500 billion. Their budget resolution did not provide for this tax cut.

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 586. This tax cut bill is not the way to go. It does not provide real relief for all Americans. It is just plain, downright irresponsible.

I ask my Republican colleagues to reconsider their priorities.

Mr. Speaker, if we make the Republican tax cut permanent, we risk stealing, taking, really raiding the Social Security trust fund by more than $4 trillion. We risk gambling the future of the Medicare trust fund. We jeopardize funding for education and a prescription drug benefit for our seniors.

This tax cut bill breaks the promise that we made to the American people to use their tax dollars wisely. A huge windfall for the wealthy, pocket change for working Americans. We should be taking care of the basic needs of all of our people, not rushing to pass a tax cut bill that puts us deeper and deeper in debt.

Today we have a choice, a choice between a permanent tax cut bill that benefits a few, or Social Security and Medicare security that benefit all Americans. I urge my colleagues to make the right choice, the moral choice, the good choice. Vote against this bill.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, what is irresponsible is forcing upon the American families and American businesses a tax increase if Congress does nothing.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON).

(Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is morally irresponsible not to pass this. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, for bringing this bill to the floor. We have to make the tax cuts we enacted last year permanent. Hard-working Americans and the Texans who live in my congressional district were downright angry when they heard that their taxes would increase in 10 years. They think we have lost our minds in Washington. Mr. Speaker, I think they are right.

Just think about it for a moment. We decided to repeal the worst parts of the marriage penalty. We all hope and expect marriages to last. Why would anyone object to the marriage penalty relief becoming permanent? If they do, they must be in a fight with their spouse.

Why would anyone object to $1,000 child tax credit being permanent? How can somebody be against giving parents the extra money they need to raise their children? If my colleagues are against it, I guess they just do not like children.

On another issue, this Congress took important steps to help Americans save for their own retirement by increasing the amount people can contribute to an IRA to $5,000. How can anyone argue against this? If my colleagues do, it means my colleagues are addicted to government spending and against personal savings. The only reason for arguing against these important changes is if my colleagues love big government and do not like people making their own choices and keeping their own money.

Mr. Speaker, we need to pass this for the good of America.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), a leader in this Congress.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Texas said they must have been out of their minds. Of course it was his side of the aisle that included this provision. Remember that, I say to the gentleman, and tell them that.

Mr. Speaker, we are here today for one reason and one reason only: to indulge the GOP in its pavlovian policy prescription for every occasion: tax cuts. The GOP sold its tax cuts last year by telling the American people they were overcharged. Democrats fought for and are still for affordable tax relief. But we knew the projected surplus might never materialize, and we were right.

Mr. Speaker, $5.6 trillion the President said we had; he came down to us now and says we have $6 trillion. The President's own budget says the tax cut was the single biggest factor in erasing our surplus. So is the GOP here to say they made a mistake, to say, let us stop the raid on Social Security and Medicare? Of course not.

With deficits projected every year for the next 10 years and an unchecked raid on Social Security and Medicare, the GOP proposes a bill that would deplete an estimated $7 trillion from the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

I asked Secretary O'Neill that yesterday, whether $4 trillion to $7 trillion was the accurate figure, and he said he thought it probably was. Just as the baby boomers become of age, to take Social Security, we are doing this to them.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to reject this demagogic, reckless, irresponsible piece of legislation.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege to yield 2 minutes to the gen-tlewoman from Washington (Ms. DUNN), a Member who has, more than any other Member, fought to eliminate the Federal death tax.

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support of the Tax Relief Guarantee Act, and I do so on behalf of families and small businesses all over this great country of ours.

Last year we passed a landmark tax relief bill that reduced income taxes for all Americans, the first across-the-board rate cut since the second world war. Now it is time to finish the job.

We have to strip away the sunset provision or else taxpayers will face a decade of uncertainty. Many economists, including Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, have declared that it is very important for Congress to act clearly and unequivocally in this area, because taxpayers need certainty.

Consider the perverse case of the death tax. As the law now stands, the death tax will be repealed on December 31, 2009; and it will return on January 1, 2011, at pre-2001 rates, 55 percent, on estates over $675,000. We are in essence telling people that they have one calendar year to die, or else their heirs will pay that punishing 55 percent tax rate. Without permanence, no small business owner or family farmer can assume the death tax is gone forever. They have to continue to spend money on expensive life insurance policies and costly estate plans.

A study of women-owned businesses recently found that small businesswomen spend, on average, $1,000 a month paying to provide for the death tax. This is money that they could use to hire workers or to buy new equipment or to provide health care for their employees. It is important, Mr. Speaker, to understand that the lack of permanence has real consequences. It is also important to acknowledge that if we do not support permanence, then we are implicitly supporting a tax increase on January 1, 2011.

We have an opportunity to correct a mistake, a legacy of the other body. I think, Mr. Speaker, we ought to seize this moment, fulfill the promise we made, and the President made, to Americans last spring. Let us make these tax cuts permanent.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KLECZKA), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

REQUEST FOR MOTION TO ADJOURN

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House, upon conclusion of today's business, adjourn until noon, January 1, 2011.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). That motion is not in order at this time.

Mr. KLECZKA. Well, Mr. Speaker, if it was in order, it would give some rationale to the bill before the House.

The tax bill, as passed by my colleagues to my left, provided for the sunset. And the gentlewoman from Washington State just stood up and said, my friends, here is what happens.

If you die in 2011, you are going to pay an inheritance tax. And if you die in 2009, you will not. Well, whoever drafted such a nutty bill?

It was they who did so, and it was they who passed it. And it was signed by the President in June of last year. So now a few months later to come back and say, my God, the sky is falling, we are hearing from people who know they are going to die in 2011, and they want it changed now. And I have not heard from any constituent who knows they are going to die in 2011.

But I say to my colleagues that we have some other things to talk about before we restore the permanency to this tax cut. Why are we doing it? I think I know why.

In November there is going to be a congressional election, and right now, the poll numbers are showing them guys think they are in trouble. And if, in fact, the Democrats take back the House, which I think we will, that bill might not come up. And the new chairman of the committee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), might see to it that it does not come up right away, because he and I and many other Democrats are concerned about providing for a drug benefit for the Medicare program. That is going to cost some money. We are told by the Secretary of the Treasury that by June of this year, we have to increase the national debt for all Americans to $6.5 trillion. How can we do that if we make permanent a tax cut which is questionable to begin with?

But remember the debate last year. We were awash in a surplus. We were just swimming in greenbacks here in Congress, so they had a tax bill that gave the bulk of it back; and this year's budget is back in a deficit. Let us take care of the needs of the people; let us get out of deficit before we do something foolhardy, and if I get that call from a constituent who is going to die in 2011, I want to know how he or she knows that.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS), the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, just so we stay on this planet in terms of our rhetoric, six times between March and May, this House passed tax reduction bills. Every one of them was permanent, including on April 4, H.R. 8, which repealed the death or estate tax. That was permanent. It was the United States Senate, and please stop me when I have violated any rule in talking about the other body, that produced this document which was the only time the House voted not to make the tax cuts permanent, and that was a bill generated through a conference. This House voted to make it permanent, and we are trying to do it again.

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? The fact is he voted for the conference committee report.

Mr. HULSHOF. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

Would the Chair be kind enough to advise each side as to how much time remains.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF) has 18 minutes remaining; the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) has 18½ minutes remaining.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume just to respond to my distinguished chairman, since it appears as though the dog has eaten his homework.

This bill was signed into law by a Republican President after passing a Republican House of Representatives and passing a Republican Senate that had had a compromise that excluded all Democrats.

□ 1330

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN), an outstanding Member of Congress and of the committee.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I just think this is the wrong bill at the wrong time for hard-working taxpayers who work hard to make ends meet today and retire comfortably tomorrow.

Working Americans get little from this bill. They already have received 70 percent of the tax cut that Congress passed last year: the 10 percent rate, increased child care credit, education incentives, and higher pension contribution limits.

So what does this bill do for middle America? First, it will bring even more working Americans under the alternative minimum tax. By 2012, 39 million taxpayers, about one in three, will face AMT liability. This bill gives a promise with one hand and takes away the promised tax cut with the other.

This bill increases the deficit by $374 billion over the next 10 years. Every dollar of that added deficit comes from the Social Security trust funds. That is $374 billion that cannot be used to reduce the national debt and interest on that debt.

If interest payments were not so large, we would have a chance to deal with our other priorities: Social Security, a Medicare prescription drug program, education, or our veterans' programs.

Speaking of veterans, the cost of this bill will be more than three times as large as the VA budget. Think about it: Every Member has heard from local veterans who know, as we all know, that the VA budget needs to be increased, especially for health care. We all have heard of veterans who cannot get appointments because VA hospitals and clinics do not have the resources.

Most of us have supported an increase in the VA budget in recent years. Yet, today we debate giving away future VA increases, and then some.

In addition, this bill will reduce revenue by $4 trillion in the period after 2012. People born in 1946 will be 66 years old that year, retired and using Medicare. Will Medicare be there for them? It may not if we continue to provide unnecessary tax cuts and eat up the trust funds.

Mr. Speaker, this is the wrong bill at the wrong time, and it is wrong for us to leave this increased debt for our children and grandchildren.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), a valued member of the Committee on Ways and Means who has fought to eliminate the marriage penalty.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Missouri for his leadership, and he and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) for their leadership on this permanency legislation, and my chairman for making this a priority, as well.

Often a question in debate on this floor is who is helped and who is hurt by the legislation that is on the floor. If Members vote no on making the Bush tax cut permanent, we will label it the Bush tax cut, 100 million Americans benefit from the Bush tax cut. So if Members vote no, they are voting to raise taxes on 100 million Americans.

I would note that there are 3.9 million Americans who do not pay taxes because of the Bush tax cut, 3 million Americans with children do not pay taxes because of the Bush tax cut. If Members vote no and the Bush tax cut expires, those 3.9 million low-income taxpayers will once again have to pay taxes. They are the ones who are hurt.

Let us take a moment to talk about the marriage tax penalty. Under the Bush tax cut, we eliminated the marriage tax penalty. There are 43 million Americans who paid on average about $1,700 more prior to the Bush tax cut just because they were married. They combined their incomes, filed jointly, and they were pushed into a higher tax bracket; 43 million couples, $1,700. We eliminated that with the Bush tax cut.

It is always important, I think, to put a human face on who also benefits when we eliminate the marriage tax penalty. Let me introduce a family from Joliet, Illinois, Jose and Magdalene Castillo, their son Eduardo, and their daughter, Carolina. They suffered the marriage tax penalty prior to the Bush tax cut, but because of the commitment of the Republican majority in the House, we eliminated the marriage tax penalty for two hard-working laborers from Joliet, Illinois, who paid on average about $1,125 more because of the marriage tax penalty. The Bush tax cut eliminated the marriage tax penalty.

So the question is, today, are we going to vote to reimpose the marriage tax penalty on Jose and Magdalene Castillo, or are we going to protect them? That is what is always interesting.

My Democratic friends will argue passionately for permanent spending increases, they will argue passionately for permanent tax increases, but they always oppose making a tax cut permanent.

Let us vote yes. Let us do the right thing. Let us help people like Jose and Magdalene Castillo of Joliet, Illinois.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

We look back to that brief period of time when Republicans and Democrats alike came to this floor to pledge that they would protect Social Security revenues and pledge to protect that lockbox, and actually compete with one another in terms of who could best protect those Social Security dollars.

How differently things are right now. The majority never came to this floor and said, all bets are off. We are going to grab the Social Security cash to fund the government because we are going to cut the rest of the revenues of this country, but that is exactly what is at stake. They are shortchanging the Social Security revenues that we will need to fund the Social Security program by passing this measure. In doing that, they are leaving a much bigger burden for our children.

None of the families I represent are preparing for their retirement costs by just doing no planning at all, spending freely, and relying entirely on the children, their children, to carry the day. Why should we then, as a country, steer our national budget in a way that blows the revenues now and relies upon our children to make up the difference?

There will never be a retirement switch demographically quite like the baby-boomers moving into retirement. The first will turn 65 in the year 2011. What in the world can we be thinking about to propose devastating the Federal budget at the very time the boomers are fully drawing Social Security, fully drawing Medicare?

The only thing that can explain this is this is the baby-boomers' last great self-indulgent act: Blow the revenue now, leave the kids to pick up the slack. That is not how our families function and that is not, as a nation, how we should function.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would say to the gentleman that I am confident that there are family farmers and small businesses in North Dakota that are trying to plan to pass those businesses on to their next generation, and yet cannot because of the sunset, which we are trying to repeal.

Mr. Speaker, especially on the pension issue, no one has been a better champion on our side of the aisle than the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. PORTMAN).

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding time to me, and I want to congratulate the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF) for bringing this bill to the floor. All we are doing is reaffirming what this House did last spring.

I suppose it is going to be tough for some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle who did not join some of their colleagues, because it was a bipartisan vote last spring, to change their vote and now support tax relief. But they ought to think about it, for a couple of reasons.

First, what do we know since last spring? We know these tax cuts were extremely important in keeping us out of a deep recession, and now helping this economy to grow. Economists right, left, and center, including the chairman of the Federal Reserve, have said that: low inflation, low interest rates, lower taxes.

So if they are interested in getting us back into a surplus position so we can take care of the needs of our seniors through Social Security and Medicare, I would think they would want to think again about maybe supporting this tax relief.

Second, even though we have passed a good bill out of the House, the Senate put this 10-year limit on it. That does not make any sense. Why would we want to have tax relief only last for 10 years? We cannot plan. The whole idea with taxes is to be able to plan. Otherwise, we have a huge cost to the economy, to people, to businesses. Not being able to plan means incredibly increased costs and incredible new complexity.

Think about it. If somebody is trying to plan what they are going to do, their accountants and planners are going to say, well, in the ninth year this thing ends and in the tenth year it starts up again, so we really cannot give you any advice about planning, so you have to plan for both. That is a terrible inefficiency in the economy.

I would hope my colleagues would think about that. I will just give one example.

The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF) mentioned the retirement security provisions. They were very popular on a bipartisan basis because they make a lot of sense. They simplify the plans so the small businesses can get into them. They let people take the plan from job to job. They let people save more for their retirement. This year, people can save 50 percent more for their IRA, in their 401(k). If you are over 50, you can save even more.

This is great stuff. Do we want this to expire in 9 years? This does not make any sense. Let us not pull out the rug from the American people. Let us support this permanence.

Mr. RANGEL. I yield myself such time as I may consume, Mr. Speaker.

Sir, this stupid 10-year limitation was passed by the Republican Senate, came back here, and was passed by the House, the Republicans, and went to our President and he signed it. So I would tell the gentleman to be careful what he calls stupid when he voted for it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT), a distinguished member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, Many people have said that 9/11 changed everything for this country. It certainly did for President Bush and his budget. He is now urging this Congress to increase the size of Federal spending by 22 percent for this coming year, over what it was in 1999.

This is the largest increase in Federal spending over that period of time than any comparable time since another Texan named Lyndon Johnson was President. Somehow 9/11 has changed nothing in what is always the predominant theme of the House Republican leadership and their agenda: convincing voters that they can have something for nothing. They are out to convince folks that every year they can pay less and less. Even if we have new, essential security requirements and other government needs, they will just continue to "borrow and spend"—their traditional policy.

The Republicans that were once known as the "party of fiscal responsibility" are now known as the "party of shifting responsibility", letting tomorrow's children pay for today's needs.

It was not long ago that the Republicans were bringing the debt clock out here to the House floor to show us the impact of the national debt. It kept going up. It reminded me of that old ad about a watch: "It takes a licking and it keeps on ticking." Well, it is ticking now as a result of the licking that it is taking with this economy and with the increased spending being proposed.

If there was a problem with the "guns-and-butter" budget of the sixties, imagine the extent of the problem we are going to have with what is essentially a "guns-and-caviar" approach: unlimited defense spending and tax cuts for the caviar set. At the very time this takes effect, many Americans who are baby boomers are going to be retiring. They will need their Social Security. They will need their Medicare. They will have other needs of an aging population even as we have fewer workers to finance those needs. Yet, they propose more debt instead of more responsibility.

Reject the fiscal folly: reject this "gimmick for the gullible."

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would remind the gentleman from Texas, Mr. Speaker, that Social Security and Medicare are funded with payroll taxes, not income taxes.

Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH), another valued member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from Missouri for yielding time to me.

I listened with great interest to my friend, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT). Mr. Speaker, it is something to see a change in political parties. It is something when we stop and realize that the standardbearer of the once proud Democratic Party said the only thing we have to fear is fear itself, and now, sadly, from the modern Democratic Party, the only thing they have to offer is fear itself.

Courage and commitment should be bipartisan, or really should be non-partisan. Indeed, if we take a look at history over the last 40 years, it was first a Democratic President, John F. Kennedy, who said we should reduce marginal tax rates because a rising tide lifts all the boats. Ronald Reagan followed with a similar philosophy in 1980, as did George W. Bush last year.

And guess what? Revenues to the government long-term actually increased because people have more of their money to save, spend, and invest.

My friends on the left have been here really captive to a debate of process. What we should talk about, Mr. Speaker, is a debate based on principles and priorities involving real people.

This is the real consequence if Members vote no today on permanency for tax cuts: A single mother, hear me, not the caviar crew, not the Cadillac set, a single mother will end up paying an additional $963 of her hard-earned money in higher taxes if they say no to making the tax cut permanent.

Now, I know we have been talking about millions and trillions and billions, but a thousand dollars is important in the family budget. Do Members really, Mr. Speaker, want to see taxes raised on working Americans? And yet, that is the net effect if Members do not join with us in a bipartisan, nay, in a nonpartisan fashion, and vote to enact permanent tax cuts. Vote yes.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. NEAL), a member of the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) very much for yielding me the time.

The previous speaker from Ohio said we are asked to reconfirm what we had done last spring. That is astounding in light of the fact that we are also asked since 9-11 to spend $4 billion more on defense, $38 billion more on homeland security, and protect tax cuts. For him to say that we are only doing what we did last spring, as though nothing happened on 9-11, just do what we did last spring, is astounding.

Here we are on the heels of the annual tax filing season to once again to say to the American people we appreciate your contributions for military defense, for homeland security, for health care for elderly and the poor and our veterans, and to also argue on behalf of fiscal discipline. Last year, Congress learned quickly these cuts in tax would lead to big deficits. Trillions of dollars in surplus overnight vanished, and the American taxpayer wondered what happened to that money.

The Republican amendment today is fraudulent and everybody knows it. They are playing a game of three card monty. When they are in charge, they will always draw the tax cut card, but when the average middle-income taxpayer is involved, they will find simply they are going to pay the bill. No matter how many times they play, middle-income taxpayers will get stuck with alternative minimum tax, and this bill does nothing about it.

The Bush administration indicated that because of the alternative minimum tax we will see a massive increase in the number of affected families reaching 39 million by 2012, a full one-third of taxpayers with a liability. At the beginning of this week, Mr. Speaker, Republican leaders and the Treasury Department held press conferences to talk about how badly the current Tax Code needs to be simplified; and by the end of this week, we are voting to eliminate any possibility of getting it done, and we are being pushed into further debt.

We heard speeches years ago against fiscal discipline. One leader in the Republican Party said we are having a fiscal Armageddon. Another one said what a disaster. We had 8 years of unparalleled economic prosperity before this Administration. Vote against this fraudulent measure and for fiscal integrity.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire as to the time remaining on each side.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. HULSHOF) has 11¾ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) has 9¼ minutes remaining.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the majority whip.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Missouri for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I think it says it all when the gentleman from Texas previous to me said that tax cuts are a spending program. Only Democrats would think that tax cuts, leaving money in people's pocket, is a spending program.

Well, Mr. Speaker, a vote against this bill is a decision to bury the middle class beneath a wave of new taxes at the end of the decade; and if the Democrats vote no today, they are inflicting a rash of higher taxes on the American family.

They will slice the child care tax credit in half. It falls from $1,000 down to $500 without permanent tax relief.

They will revive the discriminatory marriage penalty that punishes families with a greater burden.

They will resuscitate the hated death tax that has been stalking American farmers and small businesswomen all these years.

They will weaken the retirement security of millions of Americans by slashing the level of contributions to 401(k) plans by more than a third, and they are dropping IRA contributions from $5,000 down to a paltry $2,000.

Democrats who vote "no" are really saying yes to the largest single-day tax increase in American history. That is the wrong message for American families. It heaps uncertainty on farmers and small businesses, and it sows doubt and uncertainty about our commitment to fiscal discipline and the prospects for limited government. That is the wrong path.

We need to reject this tax hike by making the President's tax cuts permanent; and if we do, average Americans will reap a number of powerful economic benefits. Married couples will send $1,700 less to the IRS. Families with kids will pay $1,500 less in taxes. Single moms will keep more than $700, and our senior citizens will see almost $1,000 in additional savings in their tax.

All of these steps are positive in their own right; but taken altogether, they will send a powerful economic signal that will encourage growth and job creation and, yes, provide more revenues to the government. So in this way, we will prove to the American people that we believe they should keep more of the hard-earned money that they earned.

That is the right message for America. It is what the President wants and I ask our Members to vote "yes."

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1½ minutes to then yield to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the majority leader, to ask a couple of questions here since he was in charge of this bill and did not make it permanent before. I would like to yield time to him. No one else is responding. I would like to yield 30 seconds to him.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANGEL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I will take the 30 seconds, and I appreciate the 30 seconds; but I am not the leader. I am the whip.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is the leader. He is the leader. Now, did not the Republican-controlled other body put in this 10-year limitation?

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, only in response to the Byrd rule. That is the rule. If the gentleman is going to yield, let me answer the question.

Mr. RANGEL. The answer is yes.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, no. Would the gentleman yield so I can answer?

Mr. RANGEL. Then the answer is no. Is it yes or no, did they do it?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York controls time.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANGEL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, we opposed that because it was a response to a silly rule over in the Senate called the Byrd rule that does not allow us to make taxes permanent, yes.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, now did not this silly rule that the silly Republicans have on the other side—

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will suspend momentarily. Members are reminded not to characterize members of the Senate or Senate rules.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman withdraw calling the Republicans silly on the other side of the aisle because it is against the House rules?

Having said that, whatever it was that came over, did not the Republicans have a conference that excluded Democrats where you accepted it?

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANGEL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, absolutely not. We did not exclude anybody from any of the process; and the gentleman may characterize it as that, but we passed a good tax cut for the American people the best way we could with the Democrat opposition that we faced.

Mr. RANGEL. The answers are terrific. Did you not vote for a bill that included this silly amendment?

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANGEL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I voted for the bill because it was the only way we could get tax cuts for American families with the Democrat opposition that we faced.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, did not the President of the United States sign the bill with this silly amendment that came from the Republican-controlled Senate?

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANGEL. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, certainly the President signed the only tax cut we could get for the American family in the face of the Democrat opposition that we faced.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, so I would just like to know where all this silliness came from and where it emanated and where it finally concluded. I thank the gentleman for his responses.

Mr. Speaker, I yield ½ minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. BECERRA), a member of the committee.

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Let me make sure we have this straight. The bill that we have before us is to correct something that our friends on the Republican side did a year ago when we passed the tax bill that cost about $1.3 trillion, but when we cost it out a lot more than that because they did not want to show the American people how much it really would cost. Now we are seeing.

In the decade from 2012 forward for those 10 years, it is about another $4 trillion. What does that translate to, because $4 trillion is something none of us will ever see. Come 2010, my colleagues can expect that the top 1 percent of Americans, the richest Americans, will get about an average of $53,000 in a tax cut; and 60 percent of Americans will average about $347 in 2010 from that tax cut.

What does that mean? Well, somehow we have to pay for it. How do we pay for it? We take every single cent out of the Medicare trust fund. We take every single cent out of the Social Security trust fund, and all that surplus money, and we spend it to pay for this tax cut.

How do we do that? We did it back in the 80s. We did it with this. It made very good use of this card. It was one of those we cannot pay now, but we will pay later. And who pays? I have got three daughters. They will be paying this credit card. Who else pays? If someone has some kids, that is who will be paying.

Why are we doing this? We should be the stewards of the people's money. We are in the people's House, and it is our responsibility to be responsible stewards of the people's money which they put into Social Security, which they put into Medicare. And what are we doing? At a time when we know we are already in deficit, we are going to go further into it.

This is not the thing to do. Do what any American house would do, and that is, be responsible with their money, plan for the future for their kids and retirement. Let us not pass this bill.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ARMEY), the majority leader of the House.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Missouri for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, it is such a privilege and such a pleasure to be here today. The President of the United States is George W. Bush, achieved his reduction in taxes for the American working man and woman earlier in his Presidency than any President that I can ever remember. It was a good thing what we were able to accomplish with the President, and to do it so early was particularly rewarding.

There was a hitch in the process when we tried to bring that bill through because of an arcane rule of the Senate, the other body, requiring a vote of 60 Senators for permanent tax reduction; and because we could not acquire 60 votes for permanent tax reduction, we were forced to accept a 10-year sunset on the Tax Code.

Today, we are here to address that and to renew our commitment to the American people. So for those young couples that got married and are enjoying the fact that they are not receiving today prejudice in the Tax Code for their act of marriage, we are here to say you do not want to have to sunset your marriage or suffer perverse tax penalties in 10 years. We want to make it permanent in your life, till death do you part. Permanent surcease from prejudice in the Tax Code.

For those people that worked hard all their life and said I want to struggle and build and create something and when my days on this Earth are over leave it to my children that I love so much, we want to say for the rest of your life, not just for the next 10 years. You do not have to time your death in accordance with the rules of the other body, and so on down the line.

So we are asking all our colleagues, do the same rational thing. Vote for permanent tax relief, a Tax Code that prevails on the American people today that it be permanent.

In addition to that, we are doing a good thing for those families that reach out and adopt children. We are giving them a special consideration in the Tax Code and a special dispensation, some relief from the burden of taxation as they bring those precious babies into their homes and make a home for them. A good thing to do.

Finally Mr. Speaker, pursuant to a study that I asked for from GAO just the last week revealed 2 million American taxpayers, half of whom had the benefit of professional tax preparation, and were still so intimidated by the rules of the Tax Code and the enforcement procedures of the IRS that they did not take fully all of their tax deductions, to the tune of $1 million in tax overpayment. We are in this bill again addressing the question of our rights to due process, fair decent treatment under the Tax Code.

Three good things we do with this bill. I thank the committee. It is not often that we can come to the floor of the House and with one vote do three good things for the American people. I hope all my colleagues, especially those on the other side of the aisle who so often miss these opportunities, will today avail themselves of the opportunity, do the right thing, three good things for one vote.

You will never get a bargain like that often in our life. Take the opportunity today. You will feel better for it.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR).

(Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks, and include extraneous material.)

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD this statement of the public debt that shows that our Nation's debt has increased by $232,291,656,313.85 since the passage of this measure 12 months ago. Our Nation now has a record $6 trillion debt for which we squander $1 billion a day on interest.

SIMPLE TRUTHS ABOUT THE BUDGET AND THE DEBT

UPDATED THROUGH MARCH, 2002 MONTHLY STATEMENT OF THE PUBLIC DEBT AND FEBRUARY, 2002 MONTHLY TREASURY STATEMENT

The Federal debt is still growing. At the close of business on March 31, 2002, the total public debt was $6,006,031,606,265.38, or $6.006 trillion. The public debt increased by $232 billion in the twelve months since March 31, 2002.

Of the $6 trillion debt, $2.55 trillion is owed to various federal trust funds. These funds were collected and earmarked for specific purposes, but all their surpluses have been borrowed and spent in exchange for government securities.

There is no surplus except in trust funds. Through five months of Fiscal Year 2002, federal trust funds accumulated a total of $82.2 billion in surpluses, while non-trust fund accounts ran a deficit of $156.6 billion. For Fiscal Year 2001, which ended in September, trust funds had $224 billion in surpluses. Outside the trust funds, the federal government ran a deficit of $97 billion.

The trust fund surpluses are obligated for future benefits. Most of the surplus funds are collected for Social Security, Medicare, military retirement, federal employee retirement, and unemployment benefits to save and invest to pay future obligations.

We spend a billion dollars per day on interest. In the first five months of Fiscal Year 2002, the Treasury spent $150.4 billion on interests in 151 days. Over the same period, military spending totaled $129.9 billion, $20.5 billion less than interest costs. Medicare spending totaled $101.4 billion, $49 billion less than interest costs.

In Fiscal Year 2001, the Treasury spent $359.5 billion on interest on the debt, an average of almost one billion dollars per day. In the same twelve months, military spending totaled $291 billion, $68.5 billion less than gross interest. Medicare spending totaled $241.4 billion, $118 billion less than gross interest.

DEBT INCREASE IN PAST 12 MONTHS

Total Public Debt Outstanding March 31, 2002; $6,006,031,606,265.38. Total Public Debt Outstanding March 31, 2001: $5,773,739,949,951.53. Increase in Public Debt Outstanding in 12 months: $232,291,656,313.85.

DEBT OWED TO TRUST FUNDS

Total Owed to All Government Accounts	$2.546 trillion
Total Owed to Social Security Trust Funds	$1.24 trillion
Old-Age and Survivors Insurance	$1.097 trillion
Disability Insurance	$144.7 billion
Total Owed to Medicare Trust Funds	$257.0 billion
Hospital Insurance (Part A)	$214.2 billion
Supplementary Medical Insurance (Part B)	$42.8 billion
Military Retirement	$156.0 billion
Civil Service Retirement and Disability	$529.8 billion
Unemployment Trust Fund	$75.9 billion

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE).

(Mr. INSLEE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

□ 1400

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, the Arthur Andersen accountants are really confused today. For the last several weeks, they have been listening to the Republican Party trooping in front of the television cameras and calling them irresponsible, reckless and fiscally negligent. The Republican leadership then comes to the floor today and proposes a bill that will blow a trillion dollar hole in Social Security below the water line, ensure deficits for decades; and they call the Arthur Andersen accountants irresponsible?

Mr. Speaker, the Republican leadership is on a course to do to Social Security and Medicare and fiscal responsibility what Ken Lay and Arthur Andersen did with Enron. We ought to reject it.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in brief response, I would remind the gentleman, as I know the gentleman was not here during part of the debate, that the 10-year cost for the tax cut that is being considered is $374 billion, and the most recent Congressional Budget Office numbers project a $2.3 trillion surplus over that period of time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY).

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I am humored somewhat by the debate today. There seems to be a lot of hand wringing and shock and outrage over the deficit. It reminds me of a cross between the pit bull and a collie: It rips a person's arm off, and then it runs for help.

What we have heard from the other side, 40 years of managing this process, of running up untold debt, placing it on the back of taxpayers, watching Social Security become insolvent, and all of a sudden we hear all of this outrage. When we have debates on appropriations, I do not hear the same kind of a conservative approach from the other side of the aisle in holding down spending.

April 15 just passed. I am hopeful that everybody on both sides of the aisle concluded their tax return. If Members are so outraged with the tax cut, they could have easily used the old numbers from the old charts. When we handed out the $500 or $600 checks to individuals, $300 checks, I did not see this rush of Members from the other side of the aisle coming to hand their checks back to the Treasury.

The American hard-working taxpayers, police officers, teachers, nurses, doctors, lawyers, janitors, have benefited from this tax policy that we have initiated. Americans are getting to spend more money on their kids. People are talking about buying a new washer-dryer, or get to go on vacation. The appetite for spending in this process is unbelievable. If they hold up numbers of debt, let us talk about how it originated. Let us talk about the spending. Let us bring that into the debate. We cannot talk about doing it as the American family would do, because if we used that analogy, the neighbors would be being robbed by us because we would have encouraged them to take something that is not theirs, use it for someone else, and call it fairness.

This bill on the floor today gives every American a chance to project over their time how they will deal with their finances. It is certain, it is important, and it is fair.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS).

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this bill. We should not be borrowing trillions from Social Security to give huge tax breaks to the wealthiest 1 percent, and then have inadequate funding for education, prescription drugs, and veterans' needs.

Mr. Speaker, it may make sense to some people to borrow trillions of dollars from Social Security in order to give tax breaks to millionaires. It may make sense to some to raise the $6 trillion dollar National debt for our kids and grand kids, and increase the deficit—and then have inadequate funding for education, veterans' needs, prescription drugs, environmental protection, and other important social needs.

It does not make sense to me and poll after poll shows that it does not make sense to the American people.

Let's be honest. This bill has nothing to do with good social policy. It has everything to do with rewarding the rich folks who have contributed hundreds of millions to the Republican Party. Thirty eight percent of the benefits in this proposal would go to the richest one percent—people who have a minimum income of $375,000 a year.

Tax breaks for millionaires, inadequate funding for veterans, the elderly, the kids. That's what this bill is about. It is an outrage. Let's vote "no."

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON).

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Speaker, making this $1.35 trillion tax cut permanent is bad policy, bad for the economy, bad for the American people, and it is bad timing. This bill is not about tax cuts, it is priorities. Not Democratic or Republican priorities, but the priorities of the American people. Members favor tax cuts. The American taxpayers favor tax cuts, but our job in Congress is to enact sensible and affordable tax cuts. We should repeal the AMT because it is a stealth tax increase on millions of unsuspecting Americans. Many of us believe we should enact business tax cuts like depreciation reform to stimulate the economy.

Mr. Speaker, in good conscience, how can we support legislation that robs Congress of the resources today that we all know are needed to keep our promises to the American people.

Just last year, a $5 trillion surplus made everything seem possible. But even with then, with that rosy scenario, Congress knew it could not see clear to afford permanent tax cuts. That is why it sunset them in the first place. What has changed in a year? Everything, and none of it argues for making tax cuts permanent.

Mr. Speaker, if we pass these tax cuts, we are making a big mistake. It is plain wrong for our economy and for the American people. It is terrible timing. Oppose this legislation.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN), and I am reminded that in America, pessimists are seldom prophets, and the gentleman is an optimist, and a cosponsor of this bill.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman for his leadership on this issue. The reason we introduced this bill, to reverse this arcane Senate rule that caused this problem, was to give the American taxpayer certainty so they know how to plan for the future, and to strike a blow for fairness and justice.

This issue, contrary to what we are hearing from the Democrats, is not an attempt to get another tax cut. We are not raising taxes, we are not cutting taxes, we are trying to keep taxes steady. If we do not pass this repeal of the sunset, we are raising taxes. Specifically, a family of 4 earning $36,268 will have their taxes raised in 2011 by $2,035; a family of 4 earning $46,756 will have their taxes go up in 1 year by $3,856; a family of 4 earning almost $85,000 will see a tax bill on January 1, 2011, of $8,000.

Mr. Speaker, I do not think Members realize the magnitude of the moment that is coming if we do not repeal this sunset. What will happen from New Year's Eve to New Year's Day, December 31, 2010, to January 1, 2011, will be this: The IRA contribution limit from New Year's Eve to New Year's Day will go from $5,000 down to $2,000; on New Year's Eve to New Year's Day that year, the education IRA will go from $2,000 down to $500; on New Year's Eve to New Year's Day in that year, the 401(k) limit plans will be cut from a $15,000 cap to $10,500. Every 401(k) plan in America will have to be cut by a third on that day in 2011.

Mr. Speaker, the death tax on December 31, 2010, will be zero percent; the next day it will be 55 percent beginning on estates over $675,000.

Income taxes: Small businesses right now pay a higher income tax rate than the largest corporations of America. Their taxes will be 35 percent on New Year's Eve; the next day, 39.6 percent, larger than the taxes paid by IBM or Chrysler or any large operation.

The child tax credit will go from $1,000 down to $500, and the marriage tax penalty will come back to haunt us. That is what awaits us on New Year's Day, January 1, 2011, if we do not repeal this arcane Senate rule sunset. This is a major tax increase if we do not act today.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MARKEY).

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, it was nonsense last June when President Bush and the Republicans argued that we could have a $1.5 trillion tax cuts and not raid Social Security and Medicare and Medicaid. It is nonsense on stilts after September 11, after the deficits, after all that has happened, that they now want to permanently extend those tax breaks for the wealthiest 2 percent because they are now going to permanently raid Medicare, permanently raid Social Security, permanently raid Medicaid, which provides nursing home care for every person in America with Alzheimer's. This is a shameful day in the history of this country when such a vote can be taken.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS).

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I think we have to understand when proceeding in this debate, there is a difference in philosophies that is driving this debate. One, the Democrats believe in creating more taxes; Republicans believe in creating more taxpayers.

When we give Americans more money to spend, to put food on the table, to help pay the car insurance, that is good for jobs. It is good for the economy, and it is good for creating more taxpayers. Let us look at the bottom line and forget all of the goop that we have heard over the last 2 hours.

The bottom line is that the Democrat leaders' plan for married couples is to raise taxes by reinstating the marriage tax penalty in 2001. The President's bipartisan plan that got 28 Democratic votes in the House will give couples $1,700 more per year to spend on themselves and their kids. The bottom line for families with kids, raise taxes by the Democrats, repealing the President's child tax credit in 2011. The bipartisan plan that the President proposed that we passed, cuts taxes by $1,500 for families every year.

The Democrats' plan for singles, the leadership's plan says in 1993 they raised taxes on Social Security. The President's bipartisan plan, we give seniors $920 more to spend for themselves.

The bottom line on education IRA, Democrat leaders' plan, raise taxes by reinstating tax on contributions to education IRA over $500. The President's bipartisan plan, that got 28 votes of Democrats in the House, it eliminates taxes on contributions up to $2,000. That is a good thing for people saving for their children's education.

The bottom line on child care, the Democrat leaders' plan raises taxes by $770 for single moms in 2011. The President's plan, the bipartisan plan that got 28 Democrat votes, cuts taxes by $770 for single moms.

The bottom line for low income families, the Democrat leaders' plan raises taxes for 3.9 million low-income families. The President's bipartisan plan eliminates 3.9 million people. Give Americans a fiscal break. Vote for the President's plan to eliminate higher taxes on the American people.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), the minority whip.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the Republican raid on Social Security that is being made on the floor of the House today. If we support Social Security as we know it today, which are benefits for America's retiring citizens, Members must vote no on this plan to make these tax breaks permanent.

Earlier today our body had the opportunity to vote for a resolution put forth by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PHELPS). It said that these tax cuts could go forward and be made permanent if the Congressional Budget Office certified that no Social Security funds will be used to cover them. Every Republican voted against that. Every Democrat voted for it. One has to wonder where all of the Republican deficit hawks have gone. It seems that they have become an endangered species.

I think it is very, very important to note that the only way to reconcile what the Republicans are doing is that they want the surplus to be reduced, and they want to change Social Security. They want to exact the huge cuts in benefits that President Bush's commission calls for that. That is the only way it would add up. I urge my colleagues to vote no.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY).

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, bananaramma, Rubik's Cube, leg warmers, "Miami Vice," and a tax cut for the rich.

The Republican Party wants to go back to the future to 1981 and President Reagan's voodoo economics. And who is directing this remake? The House Republicans and this administration.

In just 1 year, this tax cut we have seen has virtually raided all of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds to provide for huge tax cuts to wealthy oilmen and other millionaires throughout this country. At the same time we have seen that Congress can no longer protect Social Security and the Medicare trust funds from bankruptcy because we need to pay for this Republican tax scheme somehow.

I ask the American people to stay home and not buy a ticket to this show. It is a flop and it is a sham.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ), an outstanding leader of our party.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time.

The Bush tax cut is really a tax increase on seniors and on lower- and middle-income Americans because, for the wealthiest 1 percent to get a huge tax cut today, working Americans and retirees are going to end up paying back the debt tomorrow. It is like the Republicans giving a huge credit line increase to the wealthiest 1 percent who then rack up astronomical credit card bills, with working families and cash-strapped retirees being stuck paying the tab at a later date. That is not smart. That is not fair. That is not fiscally responsible.

We Democrats want a tax cut, but we want a tax cut that benefits working families and that does not bust the budget or raid Social Security to pay for it. The fact is after 8 years of fiscal responsibility and economic growth under a Democratic administration, it took Republicans less than 1 year to bring us back into long-term deficit spending. Making that reality permanent is not a good idea.

Let us defeat this tax on retirees and working families and defeat this unwise raid of Social Security.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to close this argument on behalf of the minority and the American people to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), our minority leader.

(Mr. GEPHARDT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I urge Members to vote for the motion to recommit and, if that fails, against this legislation.

Last year, the Republicans passed their economic plan. Due to their plan, we lost $4 trillion in surplus in about 15 months. We lost the opportunity for long-term economic growth. We lost the chance to promote opportunity in people's lives. And, most importantly, we lost the chance to pay down the debt and be ready to stabilize and take care of Social Security for the baby boomers.

But, worst of all, the plan was dishonest. When you presented the plan, you could have gone ahead and not had a sunset in the plan and made the tax cut go out into the future, which is what you are trying to do today. I believe you did that because you wanted to mislead the American people and the Congress on what was actually happening.

You had another chance when you presented your budget a few weeks ago to say that the tax cut should not have a sunset, that it should go out into the future. Once again, you did not do it. You did not do it because we are already back into the Social Security trust funds spending those dollars for current revenue needs. We are already back into the Social Security trust fund spending those dollars for current needs.

We passed in this House five times a lockbox that said we would never spend the Social Security funds. Majority Whip DELAY vowed the people's hard-earned money would be saved so they can enjoy their well-deserved retirement. Majority Leader ARMEY vowed that the House is not going to go back to raiding Social Security and Medicare. In 2001, Chairman NUSSLE vowed that this Congress will protect 100 percent of the trust funds. Period. No speculation. No supposition. No projections.

I think that everybody here probably voted at least once for the lockbox. Well, if you vote for this bill today, you are throwing the lockbox on the ground, breaking it open and taking all the money out of it finally.

This is the definitive vote in this Congress on whether you want the economic plan to be permanent or whether you want to save Social Security, stabilize Social Security and ensure that it will always be there for every citizen.

In truth, the bill that we ought to have in front of us today is not this bill. The bill we ought to have in front of us is how to make certain that Social Security will not be privatized, that it will not be raided, that it will always be there for everybody in the future. The Republicans have a plan of privatization. We think it leads to cuts in benefits and raising the retirement age. You do not want to bring it up this year because you do not want it to be an issue in the election. But mark my words, it is going to be an issue in the election, and the issue is, who is for Social Security and who is against it? Who is for saving Social Security and who is for reducing it? Who is for making it stable and who is for tearing it apart? The lockbox is broken open. This is the definitive vote of this Congress, not on taxes. That has been decided. The issue is, what is going to happen to Social Security?

I urge Members to vote "no" against this bill. Vote for the motion to recommit. Save Social Security and Medicare.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRIES

Mr. THOMAS. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The gentleman will state it.

Mr. THOMAS. Was the minority leader's statement accurate? Is there a vote on the motion to recommit?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. A motion to recommit is not in order.

Mr. THOMAS. There will be no motion to recommit. The minority leader's statement was inaccurate.

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. RANGEL. Is it true that the Republicans crafted a rule that denied us the motion to recommit?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the previous question is ordered to final adoption of the motion without intervening motion. There is no opportunity under the rule for a member to offer a motion to recommit.

Mr. RANGEL. I thank the Chair.

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, to conclude the debate on our side, it is my honor and privilege to yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT), the Speaker of the House.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, we hear a lot of rhetoric at times like this when we talk about taxes, when we talk about Social Security, when we talk about our future. But we need to also talk about promises and commitments that we make to people. The fact is, every dollar in a trust fund of Social Security is tied in that trust fund. And every promise we make not to cut benefits and not to raise taxes on Social Security is a commitment that we have made. It is there. It is there for a long time.

The real issue that we are talking about today is a commitment that this House made to cut taxes of American working people and to keep a strong economy and trying to make commitments so this economy will work.

I have heard a lot of rhetoric. Some try to bring class warfare into this whole issue. That is not the right thing to do, in my opinion. But let us set the record straight. On September 30 of this year, less than 6 months ago, we paid down $450 billion in public debt. This Congress said, "We are going to do it." This Congress did exactly that.

We also said that we think American working people ought to have a fair tax break. We said that if you are a married couple, it is not common sense, it is not fair to be taxed $1,400 more if you are married than if you are single. Are we going to say, we are going to do that now, now you see it, now you don't? Nine years from now that is going to disappear and you are going to be taxed more just because you are married rather than being single?

We also made a commitment that if you are raising a family, if you have four children, you are going to get a $1,000 tax credit instead of a $500 tax credit. That is important. You are buying shoes and paying tuition, putting gas in the car to get kids back and forth to school and to practice and those types of things. That is important to an American family, an American family that punches a clock every day, an American family that brings a paycheck home every other week. Are we going to say that 9 years from now we are going to raid, we are going to do away with, we are going to take that $4,000 deduction, that tax credit that that family gets? Is that fair? Does that make common sense? No.

We know that we have this limit because we have to deal with the other body. It is their rules, and they did not have 60 votes to change it. So we live with that. But we do not have to live with it forever. We do not have to tie the American people down to a now-you-see-it-and-now-you-don't promise.

What about the family that spent their whole life building a small business, not taking vacations so that you put a little extra money and capital into that business so you can build it up, and you want to pass it on to your kids and your grandkids? If you do it and that thing slides down, if you do it 9 years from now, you can pass that on to the next generation; but if it is 10 years from now, you will not be able to do it. The Federal Government will come in and confiscate 52 percent of that business.

Mr. Speaker, we are talking about common sense. If this tax break that we passed is good for the American people, it is good for families, it is good for small business, it is good for American farmers. If it is good today and good tomorrow and next year, it ought to be good 10 years from now. It is a promise. It is a commitment we made to the American people. We need to live up to that commitment. We will do that. Pass this legislation this afternoon.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, last year we passed a budget that boasted a ten-year unified surplus totaling $5.6 trillion. The leadership claimed that an expensive tax cut plan and other costly initiatives were eminently affordable and would leave enough of the budget surplus to eliminate most or all of the national debt. Thus Congress passed a tax cut costing $1.3 trillion. Unfortunately, since then, most of that surplus has disappeared, due to the war on terrorism, homeland security, the economic downturn in the economy, and most significantly, the large tax cut. The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) recently projected that the budget surplus decreased this year by $4 trillion.

Now, the leadership wants to make the $1.3 trillion tax cut, due to expire in 2010, permanent. This extension will cost over $4 trillion and will severely undermine the Social Security and Medicare trust funds just as 77 million baby boomers begin to retire. In fact, it will spend the entire Medicare surplus and 93 percent of the Social Security surplus in the next five years. Given the current forecasts, it appears that permanent tax cuts mean permanent deficits.

Furthermore, the House passed legislation five times vowing that every single dollar of the Social Security and Medicare trust fund would be saved. And be put into a "lockbox". Now they are going back on their word, and spending the very money that people who are working now are counting on for their retirement security. Rather than shoring up Social Security and Medicare, the leadership intends to pay for this tax cut extension with the payroll taxes, which will raise interest rates and return us to deficit spending for the next ten years.

After decades of deficit spending, it is our responsibility to reduce the debt future generations will inherit. We must give them the capability and flexibility to meet whatever problems or needs they face. I cannot, in good faith, support legislation that will put our country further into deficit spending, with a tax cut that will benefit only the wealthiest one percent of taxpayers.

Tax relief, however, is a bipartisan issue. My colleagues on both sides of the aisle recognize the need for tax relief, but making the $1.3 trillion tax cut permanent is not the result of bipartisanship. The tax cut passed last year has already derailed the opportunity we had to reduce our large national debt and prepare for our future obligations to our aging population and children's futures. Making the tax cut permanent will only further exasperate our nation's poor fiscal health.

Mr. Speaker, now is not the time for the House Leadership to pursue its own individual agenda to score political points in an election year. This is purely a symbolic vote timed as millions of Americans filed their income tax returns.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to oppose this fiscally irresponsible tax cut. We must shore up Social Security and Medicare and reduce the national debt before passing such an expensive tax cut that we cannot afford. I did not come to Congress to saddles my two boys with a debt burden they did not create.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 586, the so-called Tax Relief Guarantee Act.

Mr. Speaker, I have supported responsible, common sense tax relief for hardworking Americans in the past, and I will continue to do so. Unfortunately, this irresponsible legislation mortgages the fiscal future of America.

The House Republican Leadership is proposing to make permanent the parts of the 2001 tax cuts that most benefit the wealthiest Americans while leaving behind millions of middle-income families and putting the future of Social Security in jeopardy. The cost of the first two years of this legislation is nearly $400 billion and the cost in the second ten years—when the baby boomers will be retiring and relying on their Social Security benefits—will exceed $4 trillion. If the tax cut is made permanent, every single penny of the cost over the coming decade will come out of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds.

Mr. Speaker, the unfortunate reality of our situation is that we have witnessed—in just one year—the most dramatic fiscal reversal in the history of our nation. The projected surpluses are gone. Following eight straight years of fiscal responsibility, the Republican Leadership has decided to throw fiscal discipline out the window. Making the tax permanent will take our nation further down the road of fiscal denial.

Mr. Speaker, making the tax cut permanent will hurt my home state of North Carolina. In North Carolina, we are already facing a $1 billion budget shortfall this year. If North Carolina adopts changes to make its tax law consistent with changes made by the Bush tax cut, it would cost the state $258 million next year. That money will have to be replaced by higher taxes or reduced services. Mr. Speaker, states all across the nation are facing the same budget crunch. It is clear that we can ill-afford to make the tax cut permanent when all of our home states are hurting so badly.

Mr. Speaker, today's debate reminds me of a statement by my friend Gene Sperling, the former economic advisor to the President. Mr. Sperling said that the American Government these days reminds him of a family with 14-year old triplets who are all heading to Ivy League schools. The family will be fine for five or six years, but maybe in trouble down the road. But instead of saving their money for the future and paying down their debt, this family decides to buy a yacht and take a trip around the world. Making this tax cut permanent does the exact same thing with our nation's fiscal future. Mr. Speaker, let's not be the family that buys the yacht. Let's be the family that saves wisely to ensure our continued fiscal health. I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing H.R. 586.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, as stated on the record many times, this Member continues his strong opposition to the total elimination of the estate tax on the super-rich. The reasons for this opposition to this terrible idea have been publicly explained on numerous occasions, including statements in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

This Member has every expectation that this legislation in total is going nowhere in the other body. Furthermore, this Member has every reasonable assurance, in this unpredictable place, that there will be a straight up-and-down vote specifically on the elimination of the inheritance tax. At that time, this Member will most assuredly vote "no" and do everything in his power to defeat the total repeal of the inheritance tax for the wealthiest Americans.

However, this Member is strongly in favor of substantially raising the estate tax exemption level and reducing the rate of taxation on all levels of taxable estates and introduced legislation, H.R. 42, to this effect. This Member believes that the only way to ensure that his Nebraska and all American small business, farm and ranch families benefit from estate tax reform is to dramatically and immediately increase the Federal inheritance tax exemption level, such as provided in H.R. 42.

This Member's bill (H.R. 42) would provide immediate, essential Federal estate tax relief by immediately increasing the Federal estate tax exclusion to $10 million effective upon enactment. (With some estate planning, a married couple could double the value of this exclusion to $20 million. As a comparison, under the current law for year 2001, the estate tax exclusion is only $675,000.) In addition, H.R. 42 would adjust this $10 million exclusion for inflation thereafter. The legislation would decrease the highest Federal estate tax rate from 55% to 39.6% effective upon enactment, as 39.6% is currently the highest Federal income tax rate. Under the bill, the value of an estate over $10 million would be taxed at the 39.6% rate. Under current law, the 55% estate tax bracket begins for estates over $3 million. Finally, H.R. 42 would continue to apply the stepped-up capital gains basis to the estate, which is provided in current law. In fact, this Member would be willing to raise the estate tax exclusion level to $15 million.

Since this Member believes that H.R. 42 or similar legislation is the only way to provide true estate tax reduction for our nation's small business, farm and ranch families, this Member must use this opportunity to reiterate the following reasons for his opposition to the total elimination of the Federal estate tax. First, to totally eliminate the estate tax on billionaires and mega-millionaires would be very much contrary to the national interest. Second, the elimination of the estate tax also would have a very negative impact upon the continuance of very large charitable contributions for colleges and universities and other worthy institutions in our country. Finally, and fortunately, this Member believes it will never be eliminated in the year 2010.

At this point it should be noted that under the previously enacted estate tax legislation (e.g., the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act), beginning in 2011, the "stepped-up basis" is eliminated (with two exceptions) such that the value of inherited assets would be "carried-over" from the deceased. Therefore, the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act could result in unfortunate tax consequences for some heirs as the heirs would have to pay capital gains taxes on any increase in the value of the property from the time the asset was acquired by the deceased until it was sold by the heirs—resulting in a higher capital gain and larger tax liability for the heirs than under the current "stepped-up" basis law. Unfortunately, the bill before us today (H.R. 586) apparently would also make the stepped-up basis elimination permanent resulting in a continuation of the problems just noted by this Member—higher capital gains and larger tax liability for heirs.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, while this Member is strongly supportive of provisions in this bill making most of the earlier tax cuts permanent, he cannot in good conscience support the total elimination of the inheritance tax.

Mr. CRENSHAW. Mr. Speaker, last year this Congress passed the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, which reduced tax rates on individuals, married couples and estates. When the House considered this legislation, it was our intent to permanently enact these cuts. In an effort to circumvent a Senate procedural roadblock, the House compromised with "the other body" and our conferees settled on the legislation with an expiration after 10 years. It is now time to revisit the intent of the peoples' House and make this relief permanent.

Unless these cuts are made permanent, the American people will face the largest single tax increase in history when the cuts expire on January 1, 2011. On that date, the Marriage penalty will return—penalizing millions of married couples who file their taxes jointly. The child tax credit will be cut in half. The Death Tax will be reinstated—undermining estate planning for family owned farms and small businesses. Estates that would have no tax liability on December 31, 2010 could experience a 55 percent tax liability on January 1, 2011. Furthermore without a permanent fix, Americans will experience a major shift in their ability to save for retirement. Contribution limits for IRA's will drop from $5,000 to $2,000. Contributions to 401k plans will be cut by one-third from $15,000 to $10,000 annually. Parents saving for college will only be able to set aside 40 percent of what they could save the day before in their children's education savings accounts.

Congress needs to finish the job we started of promoting long-term economic growth by making these cuts permanent. Without it, economic growth, job creation and individual taxpayers' ability to save will be thwarted.

I am proud to have supported legislation that is allowing Florida's First Coast families to keep more of their hard earned money. For many families, the advance payments that were sent out last year as part of the relief package arrived just in time to pay for school clothes and school supplies. Family expenses like these are not one-time-expenses however, Mr. Speaker. We need to look down the road to make sure that the family with a child currently in elementary school is not hit with an increased tax burden just as they are getting ready to pay that first tuition bill. Mr. Speaker, we need to let those planning their retirement know that they will be able to contribute to their retirement accounts at current or higher levels in the future without the fear of more of their income being diverted to pay for an increase in income tax rates instead of supporting them in their golden years.

We should never underestimate the good that can be accomplished when families are able to keep more of their money and make spending decisions based on their needs. Let's do what is right for the American economy and America's families and make the tax relief contained in the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 permanent.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 586, an irresponsible bill to extend the Bush tax cuts beyond 2010. At a time when Social Security is threatened, our seniors can't buy drugs, our children attend crumbling schools, and our environment is under attack, the Republicans can think of nothing better to do than extend their enormous tax cuts into perpetuity. This is a disgrace. And it's a sad day for America.

The bush tax cut that passed last year has already thrown our economic stability into disarray. Prior to enactment of the tax cut, our Nation enjoyed a record $5.6 trillion surplus. With that money, we could have saved Social Security, provided a prescription drug benefit for our seniors, strengthened our children's education, and protected the environment. Now, $4 trillion of that surplus is gone, and the rest is fading fast.

Who in their right mind would vote for this bill? The people in my district certainly wouldn't, and neither would most American families. If a family knows that one spouse is going to be laid off and that they will soon lose a substantial portion of their income, they don't go buy a Ferrari on credit! As we watch our Nation's resources disappear because of the current tax cut, why do the Republicans want to throw the rest away?

My greatest concern today is for the people who will needlessly suffer because of the carelessness and recklessness of this sorry bill. Our Nation made a promise to its citizens that we would not abandon them as they grew older. Making these tax cuts permanent would eliminate the money needed in 2010 and beyond to ensure that we keep this promise to our seniors—through the Social Security and Medicare programs—and fulfill our bipartisan promise to enact a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

The simple, unmistakable fact is that Republicans don't care about Social Security or Medicare. They never have and they never will. They care about their corporate contributors. And they care about the wealthy. The rest of America, however, gets nothing but the cold shoulder.

If the fact that this bill endangers our seniors wasn't bad enough, look at what it does to our children. The President and his Republican allies supported passage of the "No Child Left Behind Act" education bill last year. But this year, they have failed to provide funding to actually make those education reforms possible. As usual, the Republicans want to appear like they care about the important issues of working families, but they have no interest in actually funding them. This budget cuts last year's education bill by $90 million and calls for termination of forty educational programs. This forces my constituents to ask a very logical question: why can Republicans find enough money for tax cuts, but can't find enough money for our kids?

Again, the budget surplus has shrunk by $4 trillion in one year. Extending the tax cuts will cost $400 billion over just two years, in 2011 and 2012. Analysts estimate that the 10 years after that, the tax cuts will cost more than $4 trillion! The Center on Budget and Policy Priorities estimates that the size of the tax cut is more than twice as large as the Social Security financing gap. To make matters worse, these reckless tax cuts will go into effect when the baby boom generation starts to retire, Medicare faces a funding shortfall, and prescription drug prices undoubtedly will be higher than ever.

I urge my colleagues to stop and think about what an additional tax cut today will mean for our families—especially our seniors and children.

Republicans cut taxes for sport, but this is no game. This bill affects the lives of every American, the very people who have elected us to look out for them and to represent their interests here. Today's bill does nothing to help America. I urge a No vote.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, when Congress considered the president's tax proposal last spring, we had budget surpluses as far as the eye could see. Back then the Republicans argued that we could have it all, that the surpluses were so large we could strengthen Social Security and Medicare, make necessary investments in education and health and still have enough left over to pass their tax cut, half of which benefited the wealthiest one-percent of Americans.

Well, to put it simply: they were wrong. Since that time, the economy has slowed to a halt, layoffs have soared and $4 trillion of the surpluses have evaporated, the quickest turnaround in our history. The president's own numbers show that the tax cut is the main culprit, accounting for almost half of the disappearance of the surplus. And the Republican budget is already draining the Social Security Trust Fund.

So what is the Republicans' solution? They propose to make the tax cut permanent which will cost $4 trillion in the decade after 2012. That is $4 trillion gone at precisely the same time we will need the funds to shore up Social Security and preserve Medicare. At a time when we have serious budgetary challenges before us, we should be meeting the priorities of the American people, not giving away the farm. Making the tax cut permanent for the wealthiest 1 percent alone will total an amount one-and-a-half times the entire Department of Education budget. We should be investing in our kids, not giving away their future.

Mr. Speaker, it is not fair, it not responsible and it is terrible policy. I urge my colleagues to reject this bill and leave this money in the Social Security Trust Fund where it belongs.

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 586, the Tax Relief Guarantee Act of 2002. While I support the bill in its entirety, I am particularly enthusiastic as regards to the chairman's amendment to this legislation.

Last year we passed historic tax reform legislation. I am proud to have supported it in the House and I am very pleased that, on June 7, 2001 President Bush signed the largest tax reduction in 20 years into law. The measure reduced the "marriage penalty," starting in 2005; it doubled the child tax credit by 2010; it repealed the death tax in 2010 after cutting the top rate from 55 percent to 45 percent; and it increased annual contribution limits on individual retirement accounts (IRAs) and other retirement accounts. The measure also temporarily increased the income limits exempting taxpayers from the alternative minimum tax. This provision is in effect for 2001 through 2003.

The President's tax relief plan was eminently fair. It cut taxes for every taxpayer. No one was targeted in and no one was targeted out. It provided enormous tax relief to lower-income taxpayers and will take millions off the tax rolls altogether. It left the tax system even more progressive than previous law. Unfortunately, as enacted, all of the measure's provisions will be repealed on December 31, 2010.

That's right, Mr. Speaker, January 1, 2011, the tax code will revert back to the provisions that were in effect before President Bush's tax relief legislation was signed into law. For example, beginning January 1, 2011, taxpayers in the lowest bracket (currently 10 percent) will see their tax burden increase by 50 percent when the lowest bracket reverts back to 15 percent. When that happens, we will have the single largest tax increase in the history of our country. This could result in one of the largest tax increases in American history, one that could also destabilize long-term economic growth. A family of four with an income of $47,000 in 2002 would face a tax hike of $1,928 in 2011—a 100 percent tax increase! Mr. Speaker, that is unacceptable.

So we are left in a situation whereby the marriage penalty tax, the death tax, and higher marginal rates will all rear their ugly heads come 2011 unless we take action to eliminate them permanently. In the words of Speaker HASTERT, "How can a family make plans to pass on the family farm or small business if there is no death tax on Dec. 31, 2010, and there is a death tax on Jan. 1, 2011?" How indeed, Mr. Speaker?

This legislation also includes a package of taxpayer rights provisions, which I support. The bill also moves up—from 2003 to 2002—the effective date of the special needs adoption tax credit provided in last year's legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is not perfect. There is even more that we can do to ease the burdens placed on American taxpayers. For example, I believe we must eliminate the individual alternative minimum tax. This tax was never sound policy, but it is rapidly becoming an onerous and grossly inappropriate levy. Unfortunately, this legislation does extend exemptions to this individual alternative minimum tax that will expire in 2003. I would also like to see additional disincentives to charitable giving removed, such as is provided for in my bill to remove charitable contributions from those itemized deductions that are subject to an income cap.

Mr. Speaker, I will continue to fight for these and other tax reductions. In the meantime, I would like to commend Chairman THOMAS and the Rules Committee for crafting such a fine amendment. I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of the amendment, and in favor on final passage.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, making last year's tax cut permanent endangers our ability to fund many of our shared priorities and is fiscally irresponsible.

I joined many of my fellow colleagues in opposing last year's tax cut because we knew it would cause a budget deficit and fleece Social Security. And we were right. Now we are being asked to make these extravagant tax cuts permanent. Many of my colleagues whom used to preach fiscal responsibility in this house, now blindly vote to bankrupt our government further and burden our children with a mountain of debt. These tax cuts were the wrong remedy for an ailing economy and now making them part of our fiscal sustenance is just bad medicine. We all know these tax cuts grossly benefit the rich. We had an opportunity to pass a Democratic alternative which would have greatly increased the tax relief for working families. Instead we chose to steal from our senior citizens by robbing from Social Security and dumping off more debt on our children. And today the Republican leadership asks us to continue on this reckless fiscal path.

When I was first elected, I told my constituents I would fight for our common interests and priorities. I promised our seniors that I would protect Social Security and support a prescription drug benefit. I promised our veterans there would be money for their health care. I promised our soldiers and sailors a well deserved pay raise. And I promised our young people that I would expand their educational opportunities and not rack up more debt. I am still fighting for them, and making these tax cuts permanent makes it even harder to meet these priorities. While, the Republican Congress is running the government's budget on a credit card spending plan, I am explaining to my constituents why their government cannot pay the bills.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote down making permanent these fiscally irresponsible tax cuts. Let us consider our children, our working families, and our senior citizens before increasing the national debt, raiding Social Security, and cutting the taxes of the very wealthy.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 586, the Tax Relief Guarantee Act of 2002. I urge my colleagues to support this important measure.

H.R. 586 was an important measure that made significant changes to the penalty and interest sections of the Internal Revenue Code and strengthened taxpayer protections against unfair IRS collection practices and procedures. The full House passed it by voice vote in May 2001, and was subsequently approved by the Senate.

When the other body attached an amendment to H.R. 586 to advance the effective date of the adoption credit provision by one year, it necessitated additional approval from the House. The Rules Committee then approved further amending the bill to make the tax cut provisions passed by Congress last year permanent.

In the landmark tax relief legislation passed last year, the various provisions were set to be phased in over the following 10 years. However, all of these various tax reduction provisions, including the repeal of the death tax, marriage penalty relief, the lowering of marginal rates, and the creation of the new 10 percent tax bracket, are set to sunset after 2010.

This legislation will repeal those sunset provisions, outlined in Title IX of H.R. 1836, making the important tax relief passed last year permanent. By doing this, H.R. 586 will demonstrate to the American people that Congress was serious about enacting tax cuts, and that last year's action was not a mere short-term phenomenon. The American people deserve to know that the tax relief they enjoyed last year, especially the extra money from the $600 rebates, will be around for years to come, and will not arbitrarily disappear after 2010. This bill will accomplish this objective, and is deserving of our support.

Mr. SANDLIN. Mr. Speaker, it is time to honor the commitment we made to American families when we passed the tax cuts last year. It is time to help family farmers and family business owners plan for their retirement. It is time to pass legislation that makes those tax cuts permanent.

Since my election to Congress in 1996, I have consistently supported efforts to eliminate the federal estate tax. Over the years, as I have visited with folks all over my district in northeast Texas, I have heard horror stories from families who were forced to sell all or part of their family business or farm just to pay the estate taxes—which reduced their inheritances by over 55 percent. I found that only about 30 percent of family businesses make it beyond one generation, and only 13 percent make it to the third generation. That simply isn't what America is about.

Farmers, especially, struggle every day to just get by. Farmers were left out in the cold during the economic boon of the late 1990's and suffered as others were acquiring riches. Eliminating the estate tax is one way to help farmers pass along their limited savings to their children, and their children's children. Not only does this punitive tax cause financial problems for families, some of whom are forced to sell property that has been in the family for generations or businesses built over a lifetime, but local economies are also hurt when jobs are lost and businesses close. Clearly, the social and economic costs of the estate tax far outweigh the revenue it provides for the federal government.

Last year, I supported efforts to eliminate the federal estate tax, voting for legislation that phased-out the estate tax over 10 years. Unfortunately, the final version of the tax bill would not fully eliminate the estate tax until 2010 and then would re-establish the estate tax in 2011. The tax cut needs to be made permanent now so that American families can make long-term plans when planning for retirement and planning to pass their assets on to their children.

The tax cut legislation also contained many other important provisions that together have helped mitigate the recession by pumping nearly $40 billion into the economy. Among the other important provisions are the phase-out of the marriage tax penalty—which removed the disincentive to marriage contained in the U.S. tax code. Making the tax cuts permanent means that American couples can count on their taxes being lower—rather than facing a big increase in their taxes in 2011.

Like many of my colleagues, I am concerned about Social Security and making sure that it continues to provide our nation's seniors with income security. When I first voted for the tax cuts in 2001, I was assured that there was plenty of money to pay for the tax cuts without tapping into either the Social Security or Medicare trust funds. Since that time, the economic conditions in our country have changed. However, it appears that by 2011 and 2012, even under revised estimates, there should still be plenty of money to pay for extending the tax cuts.

I would have preferred that my Republican colleagues would have allowed a vote on an important amendment to this legislation that would have made the tax cuts permanent while ensuring that the Social Security and Medicare trust funds were protected. As I mentioned last year, when I supported the original tax cut legislation, I would have preferred that the tax cuts include a trigger allowing delay of the tax cuts in times of national emergencies.

This legislation also contains some important provisions, commonly referred to as the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights. These provisions make a number of changes to Internal Revenue Service (IRS) practices and procedures including debt collection practices, penalties for overdue taxes, privacy of taxpayer information and IRS employee conduct. These are common sense provisions that will make the IRS work better for American taxpayers while balancing enforcement with customer service.

I believe that this legislation is both important and good policy. Today's vote simply changes tax law beginning in 2011. It does nothing to change taxes today. I urge my colleagues to support making the tax cuts permanent and to honor the commitment we made last year to America's families.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I cannot support this proposition. I think everyone in the chamber knows what is going on today. We all know why the Republican leadership has brought this bill forward. They are more interested in trying to score some political points than in trying to work in a bipartisan way to address the budget and the economy. I do not think that the supporters of this proposal expect it to become law this year. So, it might be said that there is no reason not to vote for it. But that would not be the responsible thing to do. A vote for this would be a vote for the underlying tax legislation in the form that it passed the House last year. I voted against that bill because it was based on economic projections that were very doubtful then—and that now have been shown to have been wildly over-optimistic.

When that bill was passed, the economic weather seemed bright—we did not yet know that we already were in recession—and the sponsors of the bill claimed that we could rely on that to continue not just for a matter of months but for a full decade. Now, considering the dramatic change in economic conditions and the need for increased resources to fight terrorism and for homeland defense, it would seem reasonable to review the legislation to see if it needs adjusting. But instead, the supporters of the legislation are calling on us to say that nothing has changed and that we should permanently lock into place all of its provisions.

I am not opposed to cutting taxes. I have supported—and still support—a substantial reduction in income taxes and the elimination of the "marriage penalty." I have supported—and still support—increasing the child credit and making it refundable so that it will benefit more lower-income families. And I have supported—and still support—reforming, but not repealing, the estate tax. But the affordability of last year's tax bill depended on uncertain projections of continuing budget surpluses that now may inspire nostalgia but are otherwise meaningless. As I said last year, the tax bill was a riverboat gamble. It put at risk our economic stability, the future of Medicare and Social Security, and our ability to make needed investments in health and education. For me, the stakes were too high and the odds were too long, and I had to vote against it.

Those same considerations still apply. I agree with the Concord Coalition that we should not "compound the problem by making the entire package permanent," and so I cannot vote for this proposal.

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, we have the unique opportunity before us to help American families. In my district, the average working family of four makes about $36,000 a year. Failing to make these tax cuts permanent, effectively is a vote for significantly increasing the taxes of working Americans.

By making the tax cuts passed by the House almost a year ago permanent, Americans will not face a $2,000 increase in their taxes in 2011. If these tax cuts were allowed to sunset, we would again be taxing those saving for higher education—putting it out of reach for many middle-class Americans. It has always struck me as odd that the federal government taxes balances in prepaid tuition programs which in my mind defeats the whole purpose of these valuable programs. Failing to enact this legislation would reinstate taxes on this valuable tool used by middle-class Americans to pay for their children's higher education. And make no mistake—this is a tax on middle class Americans. In Pennsylvania, families with an annual income of less than $35,000 purchased 62 percent of the prepaid tuition contracts sold in 1996. Refusing to make this tax cut permanent will also cost families up to $20,000 a year as the contributions to education savings accounts shrink from $2,000 to $500 in 2011.

But beyond that college graduates—many of whom have substantial debt—would be restricted on claiming a tax deduction for their borrowing. They would again be limited to 60 months for deducting their student loan interest, but the expiration of this tax provision goes one step further. The income limits would regress to the 2001 limit meaning the $100,000 caps for single taxpayers would drop to $40,000 while $150,000 for joint returns would drop to $60,000. $40,000 in 2002 barely pays for most college educations. I can only imagine what this equates to in 2011 dollars.

College is no longer simply for the wealthy. More and more parents and children realize college is a prerequisite for attaining their dreams. Make no mistake, the debt loads are prohibitive. Congress recognized this and took the appropriate steps to help these students achieve their goals. By not providing permanency to these tax cuts, Congress would deal a severe blow to those who recognize that an education is an investment in the future. We should not further punish struggling families and college grads by reinstating taxes, which are the tools they depend on to make college more affordable.

Mr. JEFF MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, we are considering this legislation today because this is the right course for America and the right course for our economic future.

Mr. Speaker, my colleagues across the aisle will continue to use scare tactics to say that by voting for this bill you are voting to strip seniors of their Social Security. We all know that this is simply not true. The fact of the matter is that there will be no reduction in Social Security or Medicare benefits as a result of the tax cut. Those are promises made and promises that will be honored. We owe it to our seniors to be honest about how Social Security works, similar to a bank, who takes in a depositor's money, credits the amount to the depositor's account, and then loans it out. In effect, what they are saying is that we are taking Treasury bills out of the trust fund to hand out as tax cuts. This is a ridiculous assertion. Social Security reform is a worthy discussion, but it is one for another day.

At the same time, many will argue that we are burdening our children with huge debt by voting for this measure. I could not disagree more strongly. We constantly hear from our "tax and spend" friends that our tax cuts need to be at a level "that we can afford." That is precisely the problem. Our government has become too large and is asking too much of the American people, to the point where it depresses economic growth. We must realize that our federal budget has gotten out of control and that Washington does not always know how best to spend the taxpayers' money.

Since the passage of last year's tax bill I have heard from many constituents that have benefited from the measure. The simple fact is that the federal government has long overcharged the American public, and now is the time to permanently change this disturbing trend. We cannot, and we should not, forgo this opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, my constituents sent me here to work for less taxes, less government and more personal freedom. For the sake of all hard-working Americans, let's make these tax cuts permanent. I rise in support of this important legislation.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, one of the most disturbing trends for governance in America is the tendency to have short-term political expediency regarding budget, tax, and fiscal affairs trump responsible long-term policy. State and federal statutes and initiatives have been passed, which allow politicians and the public to feel good in the short term, give the illusion of solving problems, but setting up in the long term a fiscal train wreck.

We have seen in state after state where tax cuts in the 1990s were joined by formulas for education and corrections that basically put the services in a form of autopilot. Money went automatically to certain forms of education expenditure while corrections systems were mandated to incarcerate more people for longer periods of time. These "focus group" driven policy initiatives, many ratified by voters without a careful analysis of the consequences, effectively painted states and the federal government into a corner. Everybody appears or at least acts like they are powerless. In the short term, given a conflicting set of legislative and voter approved initiatives, a good argument can be made that they are. While policies and politics are sorted out, basic services suffer and public frustration grows.

On the federal level, we are in the midst of unraveling solid progress of the last decade to reign in federal spending and to impose some degree of fiscal discipline. While I didn't agree with all of the initiatives, and in fact voted against some as a Member of Congress, we were headed along a path that gave us choices to either restore draconian cuts or make other adjustments to help meet legitimate needs of our citizens.

One year ago, the projected 10-year budget surplus was $5.6 trillion and elimination of the public debt was projected by 2010. Now, with record increases in Defense spending and the impacts of last year's recession well analyzed, the Republican leadership is attempting to make permanent tax cuts that will destroy any semblance of fiscal sanity. To fund a tax cut that delivers 44 percent of the benefits to the wealthiest 1 percent, the Republican budget invades the Social Security Trust Fund for a total of $1.5 trillion over the next ten years and $4.0 trillion in the following decade. The absurdity of the Republican leadership's fiscal policy would have a devastating effect on the federal government's ability to fulfill its commitments, such as Social Security and Medicare, and respond to unexpected events, like war and recession, for decades to come.

The raid on Social Security and Medicare surpluses is not the only problem. The education of our children, the traffic congestion in our cities, and concerns about our drinking water and air quality are a few of the greatest challenges facing our communities. To put the size of the Republican leadership's tax cut and domestic priorities in perspective, when fully effective the tax cut will be—four times the budget for the entire Department of Education—more than three times as large as the Department of Transportation; and—twenty-four times the size of the Environmental Protection Agency.

This week's series of votes marks a culmination of the worst instincts of the political process on the federal level and the abrogation of our federal responsibilities. A year ago I voted against a tax cut that was based on faulty logic at a time when our economy was softening and when we had not kept commitments we said had priority. Our Medicare system is sadly out of date with modern medical realities and faces three serious threats: (1) It doesn't meet the needs of seniors today who rely on ever increasing amounts of expensive drug therapy; (2) It artificially reduces costs by squeezing providers with a reimbursement rate for doctors and hospitals that are dramatically below the actual cost of service; (3) The long term stability of the Medicare program is jeopardized, while costs of this jerry-rigged system are going to explode at precisely the time there will be more pressures for Social Security funding.

The consensus of people I meet in Oregon and around the country is that these policies are irresponsible. We ought to allow the majority in the House and Senate—both Republicans and Democrats—to work together to solve these problems. We ought not to have empty partisan maneuvering that is a calculated to further erode political trust and public confidence. This charade has only destructive results. It will further inflame partisan tensions, polarize people, and make it harder to do what responsible members of Congress and most of the public know needs to happen—put our fiscal house in order.

Were it to actually be enacted into law it would further tighten our fiscal straightjacket, making it harder to fulfill responsibilities and promises, while creating artificial crises that will haunt us for years to come. This isn't just shameless political posturing before an election. It is evidence of a political process that is rapidly losing its capacity to respond in a thoughtful, dignified, and public-spirited fashion.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, yet again I stand here perplexed by the actions of my Republican colleagues. Will they never cease to amaze me? Perhaps one day I will realize that there are no lengths my colleagues on the other side of the aisle won't go to in order to help their fat cat buddies.

I would note that the wealthiest one percent of the population will receive half of the benefits from this extension. The wealthiest one percent! I ask you, Mr. Speaker, do the wealthiest one percent of our population need our help? I think not.

Based on the most recent CBO estimates, permanently extending last year's ridiculous tax cuts will increase the deficit by another $374 billion through 2012.

Mr. Speaker, just over a year ago, I stood in this very spot and urged my colleagues to vote against the Republicans' ill conceived tax scheme. Here we are, one year later and already back in deficit spending. Because of these absurd tax cuts and the Republican budget, we are taking $1.5 trillion out of the Social Security Trust Fund over the next 10 years.

Mr. Speaker, the most simple laws of math dictate that we cannot carry out our priorities, Democratic or Republican, with this scheme. It is critical that we pass a Medicare prescription drug benefit and address the dramatically rising cost of Social Security as the baby boomers retire. Where will we get the money? How will we pay for homeland security and the President's war on terrorism? How does the President intend to fund his star wars program or increase the defense budget? How will the landmark education reform the President has advocated be carried out without any funding?

Making this tax cut permanent will raise the 10 year cost of last year's tax bill to $2 trillion. Can we afford it? The answer, Mr. Speaker, is no.

George Santayana, whose writings and wisdom I have found to serve those in politics, said: Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it. It is clear, Mr. Speaker, that my Republican colleagues have a very short memory.

Not only do I strongly urge my colleagues to reject this bill, I would also ask that they join me in cosponsoring a bill introduced by my good friend from Massachusetts, Representative FRANK. His bill, H.R. 2935, would repeal the reduction in the top income tax rate. This would add about $100 billion to federal revenue over the next 10 years. All of this money would go into the Social Security and Medicare Trust Funds, where it is needed.

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose this legislation to extend last year's tax cut beyond 2010. Passage of this bill will only serve to further erode the Social Security Trust Fund and leave those who will be retiring in the next decade wondering if promises made will be kept.

Almost a year ago, we passed an unfair tax cut which gave the top one percent of income earners almost 40 percent of the tax benefits. It was not right then, it is not right now, and it will not be right in 2011, when this legislation takes effect.

The world changed on September 11. We are now fighting a war on terrorism which I strongly support. We now must provide additional funds for homeland security. I support this also.

But within the last ten months, since the $1.35 trillion tax cut was passed, we have gone from a projected surplus of $5.6 trillion to deficit spending. Forty percent of the disappearing surplus, the greatest chunk, is attributed to the tax cut. I supported a tax cut, but not this one which did nothing, in my view, to stimulate the economy. It only served to make the wealthier among us better off. In my view, it would be unwise to make it permanent.

Instead, I believe it would be more prudent to address the issues that many of my constituency are talking to me about every weekend when I am home in Arizona. Seniors are worried about where they will find the money to pay for their prescription drugs. Parents are trying to find the best schools for their children; schools that are not overcrowded, and that are not in disrepair, and that have the most modern equipment and qualified teachers. Young adults are searching for ways to afford college and they need Pell Grants and other means of financial support. While it appears the economy is on its way to recovering, unemployment continues to rise and people want to know that there are training opportunities out there if they don't have a job or if they should lose the one they do have. With the tremendous growth in Arizona, people are worried about affordable housing.

These are the issues that are important to most Americans.

Mr. Speaker, we all support tax cuts. We all believe that Americans should keep more of their hard earned money. But we also know that there are many needs out there in our country.

I regret that I will not be able to support this extension of last year's tax cut. Nor will I be able to support any further tax cuts that are being considered. New tax cuts or the extension of this tax cut means we will continue to raid Social Security and further neglect the people who are not among the top income earners in this country.

I urge my colleagues to reject this unfair, unwise, and unjust legislation.

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this misguided legislation.

Last year the House, against my opposition, passed a massive tax cut. That legislation will reduce federal revenues by more than a trillion dollars. If the additional interest costs of this tax cut are added in, the total change in the federal government's financial standing comes close to two trillion dollars. I should add that many of the provisions in last year's tax cut bill were phased in gradually, so that the total annual impact of the bill would not be felt for nearly a decade. The provisions in the legislation enacted last year would expire after ten years—but if we make those provisions permanent, as the bill currently under consideration would do, recent estimates indicate that in the decade after 2012, they will reduce federal resources by four trillion dollars.

As I said last year during House consideration, of the tax cut bill, "the revenue loss to the federal government will explode after the year 2001—just when millions of Baby Boomers retire, the cost of Social Security and Medicare will explode." Given the current challenges that face Social Security and Medicare, it seemed to me then—and it seems to me now—that we ought to spend the coming decade preparing for the anticipated increased future demands that will be placed on Social Security and Medicare by paying down some of our $5 trillion national debt. Instead, Republicans in Congress cut taxes dramatically and produced budget deficits for the foreseeable future.

It is a shame that we squandered the opportunity last year to invest in our nation's future. It is a disgrace that today our Republican colleagues propose to dig the hole deeper. I urge my colleagues to do the sensible thing and pursue a conservative, fiscally responsible federal budget policy.

I will oppose this misguided legislation, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, here comes the train again. Last month, my Republican colleagues passed a fiscally irresponsible budget that called for spending hundreds of billions of dollars from the Social Security Trust Fund on tax cuts for the wealthy.

Mr. Speaker, we gambled with tax cuts last year, we gambled again last month, and here we are today, rolling the dice one more time.

In 1999, 2000, and 2001, Republicans in this chamber voted seven times to fully protect the Social Security Trust Fund. George W. Bush echoed the theme on the campaign trail and during the Presidential debates—he wanted to put those reserves in a "lock-box" to prevent it from being used to pay for tax cuts or additional spending. Even the beloved Speaker of the House stated, "We are going to wall off the Social Security Trust Funds . . . We are not going to dip into that at all." Remember when you said that, Mr. Speaker?

Now it appears that the government will raid the Social Security surplus for as far as the eye can see. And extending the tax cuts permanently would only worsen the deteriorating fiscal outlook.

Mr. Speaker, this bill amounts to an intergenerational mugging. Our children will pay for the debt we incur today. The 75-year cost of making the tax cuts permanent would be more than twice as great as the entire shortfall projected in the Social Security Trust Fund.

Furthermore, this bill, and you won't hear the Republicans mention this during the debate, will also cost the U.S. Treasury $4 trillion during the decade after 2012—just when the Baby Boomers are retiring in earnest and both the Social Security and Medicare systems are coming under mounting financial strain. If the congressional Republicans continue to sacrifice the safety of Social Security and Medicare, for the sake of tax cuts for the wealthy, America will be a country where the rich stay healthy and the sick stay poor. If we simply look at the budget forecast, it is clear that permanent tax cuts mean permanent deficits.

Mr. Speaker, these tax cuts are so heavily skewed to benefit the wealthy that the richest one-percent of taxpayers would receive tax breaks that equal one and one half times the entire budget of the Department of Education. If we completely repeal the estate tax, in particular, we'll be essentially creating intergenerational gated communities. Our capitalist friend, Adam Smith, said, "A power to dispose of estates for ever is manifestly absurd. The earth and the fullness of it belongs to every generation, and the preceding one can have no right to bind it up from posterity."

Mr. Speaker, this chamber sometimes seems like the House of Lords, because it attempts to do everything in its power to protect the pseudo-aristocracy. Mr. Speaker, we need this bill about as much as we need a runaway train. I urge my colleagues to oppose this campaign sop, disguised in the form of H.R. 586.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 390, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 229, noes 198, not voting 8, as follows:

NOT VOTING—8

Clement	Jones (OH)	Roukema
Delahunt	Oberstar	Trafficant
Hastings (FL)	Rogers (KY)

□ 1450

Ms. WOOLSEY, Mr. ACKERMAN, and Mr. OWENS changed their vote from “aye” to “no.”

So the motion was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated against:

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, this afternoon I greatly enjoyed the opportunity to visit with high school students from Becker, Minnesota who are participating in the Close-Up program. As a result of our visit, I was unable to record my vote during the consideration of the misguided tax legislation that will undermine Social Security.

Had I been present, I would have voted “no” on rollcall 103, for I strongly opposed last year's irresponsible tax bill, and I certainly do not support making these tax law changes permanent. If enacted, this fiscally reckless plan would spend $400 billion on tax cuts for the wealthy, every penny of which comes directly out of Social Security.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Ms. PELOSI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of inquiring about the schedule of next week.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. PELOSI. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to announce that the House has completed recorded votes for the week.

The House will next meet for legislative business on Tuesday, April 23 at 12:30 p.m., that is for morning hour, and at 2 o'clock p.m. for legislative business. On Tuesday I will schedule a number of measures under suspension of the rules, a list of which will be distributed to Members' offices tomorrow. The House will also take any recorded votes on motions to instruct conferees offered later today. On Tuesday, recorded votes will be postponed until 6:30 p.m.

For Wednesday and Thursday, I have scheduled H.R. 3763, the Corporate and Auditing Accountability, Responsibility, and Transparency Act of 2002, reported out of the Committee on Financial Services on Tuesday, and H.R. 3231, the Immigration Reform and Accountability Act of 2002, reported out of the Committee on the Judiciary last week.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for informing us of the days for the INS restructuring bill and the Committee on Financial Services accounting bill.

While I have the floor, Mr. Speaker, may I say to the distinguished majority leader, I wish to register a point of deep concern to our side of the aisle. There seems to be a recurring pattern this year where there are no substitutes or alternatives allowed on major, major bills. Today, the procedure did not even permit a motion to recommit to protect Social Security. Despite repeated promises to always guarantee the motion to Democrats, today it was denied on one of the most important votes in this Congress. I want to register objection and disapproval to this and ask the leader if he wishes to comment.

Mr. ARMEY. Again, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for her inquiry. I do appreciate the concerns expressed by the gentlewoman. The parliamentary rules between our two respective bodies on an exchange between the two bodies do not allow for motions to recommit on legislation action taken today. The action we took today, of course, was to advance the work that was sent to us by the other body with respect to adoption of the tax credit, a very important objective of all of the body, and we were able to in this way manage all three things.

But I want to appreciate again the gentlewoman's concerns, her expression, and say that it is indeed something that we pay most concern and credibility to.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, there were those among us who would have tried to, by procedure, hold up the proceedings of the House; but we wanted, such as it was, to have as much of a debate as we could on an issue of major concern to the American people. I think that we all recognize that we come to this floor with differences of opinion, or range of opinion, on issues. Sometimes we can act in a bipartisan way, and that is great for the American people. They expect and deserve us to try and seek a common ground.

Where we do not have it, though, we must stand our ground; and I do not see why we could not have an opportunity to have a fuller debate on the subject. I do not understand why the Republicans would be afraid of a motion to recommit to save Social Security; and I hope that this does not proceed, because I think it could be very damaging to our relationships in this House; and I know that we want to proceed in as much of a bipartisan fashion as possible.

I thank the gentleman for the information.

PERMISSION FOR COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY TO HAVE UNTIL MIDNIGHT, MONDAY, APRIL 22, 2002, TO FILE REPORT ON H.R. 3231, THE BARBARA JORDAN IMMIGRATION REFORM AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT OF 2002

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary have until midnight on Monday, April 22, to file a report to accompany H.R. 3231.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

RESIGNATION AS MEMBER OF COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following resignation as a member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, April 17, 2002.

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
The Office of the Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR DENNY: This is to notify you that effective today, April 17, I am resigning my seat on the House Transportation Committee.

Sincerely,

JOHN COOKSEY,
Member of Congress.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the resignation is accepted.

There was no objection.

ELECTION OF MEMBERS TO COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND THE WORKFORCE AND COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 391), and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 391

Resolved, That the following Members be and are hereby elected to the following standing committees of the House of Representatives:

Education and the Workforce: Mr. Wilson of South Carolina.

Transportation and Infrastructure: Mr. Sullivan of Oklahoma.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid upon the table.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY COMMITTEE ON RULES REGARDING AMENDMENTS TO H.R. 3763, THE CORPORATE AND AUDITING ACCOUNTABILITY, RESPONSIBILITY AND TRANSPARENCY ACT OF 2002, AND H.R. 3231, THE BARBARA JORDAN IMMIGRATION REFORM AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT OF 2002

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, today a "Dear Colleague" letter will be sent to all Members informing them that the Committee on Rules is planning to meet next week to grant a rule which may limit the amendment process for H.R. 3763, the Corporate and Auditing Accountability, Responsibility and Transparency Act of 2002.

Any Member who wishes to offer an amendment to this bill should submit 55 copies of the amendment, one copy of a brief explanation of the amendment by 2 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23, to the Committee on Rules up in H-312 here in the Capitol.

Amendments should be drafted to the text of the bill as reported by the Committee on Financial Services, which is expected to be filed on Monday, April 22. The text will be available on the Web sites of both the Committee on Financial Services and the Committee on Rules.

Members should use the Office of Legislative Counsel to ensure that their amendments are properly drafted and should check with the Office of the Parliamentarian to be certain that their amendments comply with the Rules of the House.

In addition, today a "Dear Colleague" will be sent to all Members informing them that the Committee on Rules is also planning to meet next week to grant a rule on H.R. 3231, the Barbara Jordan Immigration Reform and Accountability Act of 2002. The Committee on Rules may grant a rule which may limit the amendment process for H.R. 3231.

Any Member who wishes to offer an amendment to this bill should submit 55 copies of the amendment and one copy of a brief explanation of the amendment by 12 noon on Wednesday, April 24, to the Committee on Rules in H-312 in the Capitol.

Members should draft their amendments to the bill as reported by the Committee on the Judiciary, which will be available on the Web sites of both the Committee on the Judiciary and the Committee on Rules.

Once again, Mr. Speaker, Members should use the Office of Legislative Counsel to ensure that their amendments are properly drafted and should check with the Office of the Parliamentarian to be certain their amendments comply with the Rules of the House.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, APRIL 22, 2002

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet at 2 p.m. on Monday next.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

HOURLY MEETING ON TUESDAY, APRIL 23, 2002

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns on Monday, April 22, 2002, it adjourn to meet at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23, for morning hour debates.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday next.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 2646, FARM SECURITY ACT OF 2001

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. DOOLEY of California moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendment to the bill H.R. 2646 (an Act to provide for the continuation of agricultural programs through fiscal year 2011) be instructed: to agree to the provisions contained in section 335 of the Senate amendment, relating to agricultural trade with Cuba.

□ 1500

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OTTER). Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART) each will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY).

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the motion that I am offering today is one which is advancing and continuing the policy of economic engagement that this country has embraced. It is a policy to ensure that we can provide economic opportunities for all sectors of our economy, whether it be the farmers in California, Missouri, or Washington, or wherever else in this country.

It ensures that we are going to be able to provide for the sale of goods to Cuba, and to make one minor modification to our existing law, which is to allow private financing of the sale of those goods. This is an important step forward if we truly are committed to trying to provide for additional markets for our farmers in this country.

It is also an important step forward because many of us believe by advancing a policy of economic engagement which is consistent with this motion, it will also do more than we could otherwise in terms of ensuring that we are going to see progress in the advancement of democracy, the advancement of personal freedoms in Cuba itself.

We have been able, I think, to have a case study in terms of what a policy of isolation has done in Cuba over the past 40 or 50 years, when we have seen very little progress in seeing the advancement of personal freedoms in Cuba. We have found in other areas of the world where we have reached out and we have engaged in trade, we have actually seen not only economic opportunities, but we have seen significant progress on the social front with the advancement of democracy, the advancement of human rights, the advancement of religious freedoms.

I am confident if this body instructs the conferees to adopt the Senate position, we will be providing benefits for U.S. citizens, but also we will be empowering the citizens of Cuba to be more successful in improving the quality of their lives.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the Dooley "sell them the rope" motion. The section in the compromise legislation of the year 2000 on this issue relating to financing specified that "United States persons" cannot finance sales to the Cuban dictatorship, and "United States persons" was defined as "the Federal Government, any State or local government, or any private person or entity."

The Senate provision strikes that entire section, including, thus, the prohibition on financing by "the Federal Government." So the Senate financing provision is not as limited as its supporters here allege. It will make available public financing to the Cuban dictatorship.

Last year, the dictatorship was forced to close over 12,000 hotel rooms in its all-important tourist industry. Its currency is worthless. The dictatorship defaulted on $500 million in loans just in the year 2001. So what is the dictator betting everything on? U.S. tourism dollars and the agricultural lobby in the U.S. Congress.

Today we see the agricultural lobby at work here for the dictatorship, despite the current realities of the bankrupt Cuban dictatorship, despite the fact that the Cuban dictatorship continues to provide safe harbor to terrorists throughout the world, despite the fact that Castro serves as the world's primary money launderer for international terrorism, providing his so-called "revolutionary banks" not just for Puerto Rican FALN terrorists, like those who took their stolen millions from the U.S. to Cuba, but laundering money as well for drug dealers, international terrorists, and corrupt politicians.

A few months before 9/11, the Cuban dictator visited Syria, Iran, and Libya. In Iran, he declared "Together, Iran and Cuba will bring the United States to its knees."

In August, Irish IRA terrorists based in Cuba were arrested in Colombia helping the FARC terrorists there improve their urban bomb-making capabilities.

Basque ETA terrorists continue to be based and trained in Cuba to this day.

More than 90 U.S. felony fugitives wanted by the FBI for hijacking, murder, armed bank robbery, the sales of explosives to Libya, and kidnapping remain in Cuba and continue to receive protection by the dictatorship to this day.

The only one of the seven terrorist states that has had 17 spies arrested in the last 3 years, 17 spies arrested, awaiting trial or already convicted, agents spying for the Cuban regime in the United States, the only one of the seven terrorist states that has had those spies arrested and convicted is the Cuban regime.

On September 21, a senior analyst at the Defense Intelligence Agency was arrested for spying for the Cuban government. The FBI was forced to arrest her before they would have wanted to, because according to intelligence community sources, Castro shares intelligence with Middle Eastern enemies of the United States.

Last month, on March 19, the State Department's Office of Intelligence and Research declared that the Cuban dictatorship has "an offensive biological warfare research and development effort. Cuba has provided dual-use biotechnology to rogue states. We are concerned that such technology could support biological weapons programs in those states."

And, as we speak, the U.S. administration is encouraging governments throughout the world to say no to pressure from totalitarian elements in their countries, and to vote in favor of the resolution criticizing the human rights situation in Cuba at the U.N. Human Rights Commission in Geneva.

Mr. Speaker, my high school teacher, Judd Davis, used to tell me that Lenin was fond of saying that "some capitalists will sell even the rope for us to hang them with." What we are seeing here today is that on that matter, Lenin was right: There are some capitalists who would sell even the rope with which they would be hung.

Cuba is in this hemisphere. It is the only country oppressed by tyranny in this hemisphere. In this hemisphere, democracy is required by international law. So while my heart goes out to the Chinese people, the use of the China analogy is hypocritical and it is wrong.

The signal that we need to be sending to Cuba is that there will be no normalization until all the political prisoners are freed and free elections are scheduled. That is President Bush's position, and that is what this Congress has stated repeatedly in the past.

This "sell them the rope" motion is as untimely as it is wrong. There will be a democratic transition in Cuba soon, and the people will do business with those who did not do business with their jailers. It is unfortunate that so many are working so hard to put themselves on the blacklist of those who a free and democratic Cuba will never do business with. For those interested in sales to Cuba, democratic Cuba will not do business tomorrow and forever with those who today worked to provide dollars to the totalitarian dictatorship.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL), the ranking member on the Committee on Ways and Means.

(Mr. RANGEL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, let me congratulate the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY) and those who would direct that the conferees accept the Senate provisions to remove the restrictions on financing agricultural products to Cuba.

I am not known to be a hostage to the agricultural lobby, but certainly I do believe that trade is essential if we are going to attempt to persuade those people who have dictatorships that democracy is the way that they have to go.

I do not really believe we can just shut ourselves off from these people, and continue to have an embargo and deny them access to food and medicine, and at the same time expect that the people are going to look at us as an example of what a better way of life is. I do not really think that we should be held hostage by the People's Republic of Miami in our foreign and our trade policy.

It seems to me that when we take a look at a billion people in China, we are taking a look at a dictatorship. When we take a look at the people in north Vietnam or North Korea, we are taking a look at dictatorships. As a matter of fact, Members do not have to be as old as I am to know that we have taken a look at dictatorships in the past, and even so today, without denying our ability to export to these countries.

So it just seems to me that after the hurricane in Cuba, Americans, for humanitarian reasons, decided that we would offer food and medicine to the people in Cuba. That led to some provisions being made that we could have limited exports to the people in Cuba.

Well, what is wrong, if the House has said and the Senate has said that American farmers should be allowed to export their products, why can we not assist them in making certain they get paid for their products?

So I know this is a very emotional issue, but we cannot allow ourselves to be blinded by emotion at a time when we are saying, look at democracy, look at our farmers, look at productivity, look at better products, look at lesser prices, and allow us to go into that market and compete with everyone else. Let our kids get over there, let them be ambassadors for good will, remove the restrictions in terms of the Cubans and Americans, and let us all work hard for a better understanding, and to bring democracy to Cuba.

Do not threaten those people who vote one way or the other that the new government in Cuba is going to punish those people who voted to relax the embargo. Nobody has designated who is going to lead the new Cuba. If we knew that, maybe we could take a different foreign policy. If some people know who is going to succeed Castro, maybe they should share it with us, because it could be worse than we might expect, than what we are getting today.

But we do not know these things. That is why we should not allow our food policy to be governed by our political policies. For 40 years, those people who said, no, no, no, no, no, have found out that this guy that runs Cuba has survived half-a-dozen Presidents.

Let us give freedom a chance, let us give trade a chance. I congratulate those who have put this motion together to instruct the conferees.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as she may consume to my distinguished colleague, the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN).

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

I am sure that the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) considers the reference to my hometown as "the People's Republic of Miami" to be an example of his piquant wit. I find it to be personally offensive, and I would ask him to please refrain from such characterizations.

But it is a shameful day today. It is shameful today that as former Cuban political prisoners stand before the United Nations Commission on Human Rights in Geneva calling for the international condemnation of the Castro regime's systematic violations of human dignity, civil liberties, and fundamental freedoms, today in this Chamber, a vivid symbol and an instrument of democracy, we are discussing a measure that will provide the Castro dictatorship with the financial means to continue its oppression and its enslavement of the Cuban people.

It is shameful that, as the U.S. State Department Report on Human Rights Practices reports, the use of child labor and forced labor in Cuba's farming sector is mandated, yet this Congress is considering a measure which our assistant secretary of state for democracy, human rights, and labor underscored at a recent congressional hearing would serve to promote the use of child and slave labor by the Castro regime in the agricultural sector.

It is shameful that, as we approach the commemoration of our Memorial Day, when we pay homage to our courageous veterans, some would seek to provide funds to a regime which sent Cuban agents to torture American POWs at a camp in Vietnam called the Zoo.

It is shameful that, as a global war on terrorism intensifies, some in the Congress would be seeking to provide funds to the Castro dictatorship, a country which every recent administration, be it Republican or Democrat, has officially labeled as a State sponsor of terrorism.

It is shameful that, as Columbian President Pastrana, in visiting Capitol Hill this very week, just yesterday outlined, among other details, Cuba's role in supporting narco-terrorists, and its support and training, directly or through such entities as the IRA and the Basque terrorist group ETA, of terrorist operations in the Western Hemisphere, that this body today would consider providing funds to that Castro regime to further these terrorist efforts which undermine the stability of our region.

It is shameful that, as the Castro regime expands its biological weapons capabilities and builds even stronger cooperative agreements in this arena with Iran and Iraq, some would seek to facilitate these efforts, which directly threatens U.S. national security. In 1998, a Department of Defense report raised concerns about the potential of Cuba's biotechnology sector to be used for offensive purposes.

In October of 2001, Dr. Ken Alibek, the former head of Russia's biological weapons program, testified before the Committee on Government Reform on the very real threat posed by Cuba's biotech sector.

In the October 2001 edition of the journal "Nature Biotechnology," Jose de la Fuente, the former director of research and development at the Center for Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology in Havana, disclosed that technology and agents for treatments of a number of diseases were sold by Cuba to Iran's terrorist regime, technology and lethal agents which can be used to produce anthrax bacteria or smallpox virus.

It is shameful that we would be considering a measure that would provide funds to a regime whose leader, Fidel Castro, joined Iran's Ayatollah in May of last year to underscore their commitment to "bring America to its knees." Those were Fidel Castro's own words just months ago, months before 9-11. Castro said, "Together, we can bring America to its knees."

It is shameful that we are going to support a tyranny whose so-called attorney general, Juan Escalona, and I say "so-called" because there is no real justice system in Cuba. It is a dictatorship, a totalitarian state with no respect for civil liberties and which pays none of its debt. So we will be actually subsidizing with our tax dollars all of these great sales that my colleagues would like to make to Fidel Castro.

Juan Escalona, when referring to the transfer of al Qaeda prisoners to Guantanamo Naval Base, was quoted in January of this year saying that he hoped that 15 or 20 of these anti-American terrorists would get out and kill Americans stationed at our base in Guantanamo.

These were the words of a high-ranking Cuban official. He wants the al Qaeda prisoners to kill our American servicemen and -women in Guantanamo base in Cuba and Castro says nothing. This is the attorney general.

It is shameful that as our FBI, CIA, and Defense Intelligence Agency work to repair the significant damage already done to U.S. national security by Cuban espionage in our country, we would be seeking to reward that Castro regime by providing it with access to financing to continue its terrorist and espionage activities against the United States.

It is shameful that we would allow a regime that has killed American citizens to continue to act with impunity by rewarding it with access to much needed funds, funds which will never reach the Cuban people. Do not fool yourselves. Do not try to fool the Congress. Funds which only help maintain Fidel Castro in power.

Mr. Speaker, the provision referenced in this motion to instruct conferees has nothing to do with helping the small farmers of America because these small farmers are the heart and soul of our country, the core of American values and principles, values which they would never seek to betray in this manner. No. The provisions in this Senate farm bill that this motion refers to is to benefit agricultural giants who wish to make profit from trading with America's enemies.

If this was truly about helping America's farmers, then the Senate would have moved the Andean Trade Promotion Act, and it would have given the gentleman from California's (Mr. DOOLEY) farmers those free markets to sell to.

Mr. Speaker, yesterday marked the anniversary of a failed attempt to restore freedom and democracy to Cuba: the Bay of Pigs invasion. In a month we will commemorate the centennial anniversary of Cuban independence. So, Mr. Speaker, today I stand here and I ask my colleagues whom we wish to emulate: those who betrayed the Cuban freedom fighters in 1961 by not providing aerial support to those who landed at the Bay of Pigs, or do we wish to emulate those Rough Riders who, 100 years ago, stood side by side with the Cuban liberators and charged up San Juan Hill and helped Cuba gain its independence?

Do we wish to support the Cuban people in their struggle to free themselves from their bondage, or do we wish to help their oppressor to continue its subjugation of its people and continue threatening the U.S. and, indeed, the hemisphere and the free world?

If we are to stand for what is right and just, as we did with the Afghan people, we must vote "no" on this motion to instruct conferees and hold the House position on the farm bill.

I thank my colleague, the gentleman from Florida, for yielding me the time.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN).

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the motion to instruct conferees offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY).

This motion would instruct conferees to recede to the Senate provision in the farm bill to lift current limitations on the financing of private sales of food and medicine to Cuba.

My reasons are very simple. It is good farm policy, it is good trade policy, and it simply is the right thing to do. It also is the position that reflects the will of the House.

On July 20, 2000, the House voted 301 to 116, 301 to 116, to lift all sanctions on the sale of food and medicine specifically to Cuba. Mr. Speaker, the House has spoken on this issue. It has spoken with a clear, strong, bipartisan voice.

Unfortunately, the will of the House, and I might add the will of the Senate, has been frustrated and undermined. Cumbersome restrictions remain on private financing for food and medicine sales to Cuba. Unlike farmers everywhere else in the world, American farmers cannot obtain credit from a U.S. entity to finance private sales to Cuba. Instead, our farm exporters must either arrange for credit through an overseas bank or insist on cash in advance from Cuba.

The current restrictions on securing private financing are a competitive barrier for our farmers. They need to be eliminated. The Senate provision does so. The House should recede to the Senate and open up the markets between Cuba and our agricultural exporters.

Mr. Speaker, our farmers and banks are savvy enough to weigh the risks in doing trade with Cuba. I trust them. I ask my colleagues to trust them.

We hear a lot of talk about democracy. Well, we need a little democracy in the House of Representatives. Let us uphold the will of the majority. Let us uphold the mainstream opinion in this Congress and vote to support the Dooley motion to instruct the conferees.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), the distinguished whip, great friend of freedom and democracy for the Cuban people.

(Mr. DELAY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, America has forces deployed all around the world as we root out the international terrorist networks. We have served notice to every Nation that there is no middle ground in the struggle to vindicate freedom.

President Bush divided the world into two camps with a very basic guiding principle: either you are with us or you are with the terrorists. Every country must choose between freedom and a culture of murder and destruction.

This misguided campaign to relax the embargo against Fidel Castro's evil regime is a retreat from a very bright line division between freedom and tyranny. We risk clouding our resolve against terror here in our own hemisphere. The supporters of this initiative may believe that by engaging Cuba their approach would bring constructive results, but nothing in Cuba takes place without Castro's blessing, and Castro profits by every business transaction in Cuba. Easing the embargo would only empower a tottering dictator.

For decades, Fidel Castro's Cuba has cultivated, trained, and harbored both individual terrorists and groups using murder to make political statements. Castro's Cuba is a temple to violence. Their handiwork cost American lives like the New Yorkers murdered and maimed by the Fraunces Tavern bombing carried out by Cuban-trained terrorists.

There is no denying that Cuba is a safe haven for terrorist fugitives. Castro shelters Basque ETA terrorists, Colombia FARC and ELN terrorists, and terrorist officials from the Irish Republican Army. Castro is intertwined in the axis of evil.

Just 1 year ago, Castro visited three other state sponsors of terrorism: Iran, Syria, and Libya. In Tehran, Castro said: "Iran and Cuba, in cooperation with each other, can bring America to its knees. The U.S. regime is very weakened and we are witnessing this weakness from up close." That was Castro talking.

Castro sold advanced biotechnology to the Iranian government. The United States believes that Cuba has at least a limited offensive biological warfare capability. Castro is sharing dual-use biotechnology with rogue states.

Ken Alibek, the former Soviet Union's top chemical and biological warfare expert, told Congress that "Cuba has a perfectly developed system of engineering and is capable to develop genetic engineering agents. They've got the desire to develop genetically engineered biological weapons." That is what a former Communist in the Soviet Union said.

In other words, Castro is funneling resources to develop the world's most diabolical weapons, and he shares these evil exports with the world's most dangerous and unstable regimes.

We can be certain that any economic activity between the United States and Cuba will only serve to supply additional fuel to Castro's engine of repression. The proceeds of joint ventures and trade and terrorism do not empower the men and women of Cuba. They are bled into the Castro regime.

We also know that Castro is continuing his attempts to penetrate U.S. intelligence agencies and even our Armed Forces. Last month, last month, the Defense Intelligence Agency's top Cuba specialist pled guilty to spying for Castro over 16 years. There is little doubt that Castro's espionage is made available to our enemies. Perhaps it even makes its way to the al Qaeda.

There is no sign that September 11 did anything to shift Castro's reflexive hostility toward democracy and freedom. He smeared America's response to terrorism. Said Castro: "Their capacity to destroy," their being us, "capacity to destroy and kill is enormous, but their traits of equanimity, serenity, reflection and caution are, on the other hand, minimal."

We know with dead certainty that Castro systematically brutalizes and oppresses the Cuban people. He drags his people through hardship, servitude, and despair; and any fair appraisal of Cuba's long support for terrorist groups and Castro's current behavior leads to an unavoidable conclusion. Without a clear break from terrorist sponsorship and the adoption of fundamental human rights and democratic reforms, the embargo must be upheld.

Even if we set aside our deep reservations about empowering Castro through economic activity with the United States, there are other doubts that remain. What is the likelihood that any American farmer would actually be paid by Castro for the goods exported to Cuba?

Castro's track record is just abysmal. Two years ago, Cuba failed to pay money owed to the French. Last year Castro also defaulted on over $500 million in debt owed to Spain, South Africa and Chile. Castro is a bad credit risk. We should be seeking to open real markets with the actual capacity to pay for the products exported to them.

Members should reject this motion to instruct by standing with the President against state-sponsored terrorism and tyranny. Vote "no" on the motion to instruct.

F.B.I. AIDE TESTIFIES TO ESPIONAGE
CONFESSION

Less than an hour after his arrest last fall on espionage charges, Richard W. Miller confessed passing a secret document to a Soviet intelligence agent, the head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office in Los Angeles testified Friday in Federal District Court here.

It was the fifth straight day the jury heard evidence that Mr. Miller, then an F.B.I. agent, had admitted passing classified documents to the K.G.B., the Soviet intelligence agency. The previous testimony focused on admissions Mr. Miller made in five days of interrogation before his arrest last Oct. 2.

But Richard T. Bretzing, the chief F.B.I. agent here, testified that after Mr. Miller was taken into custody he said he had given the secret 53-page "Reporting Guidance: Foreign Intelligence Information" to his lover, Svetlana Ogorodnikov, a Russian emigre, Mr. Bretzing said Mr. Miller made the admission while he was being taken from his home in Bonsall, Calif., to the bureau's San Diego office.

Arrested on espionage charges the same day as Mr. Miller, who is 48 years old, were Mrs. Ogorodnikov, 35, and her husband, Nikolay, 52. Both pleaded guilty at their trial earlier this summer and were sentenced to prison.

EARLIER TESTIMONY SUPPORTED

The Government contends that Mr. Miller was involved in a sexual liaison with Mrs. Ogorodnikov and agreed to provide Soviet intelligence agents with classified material through the Ogorodnikovs in return for $65,000.

The defense, which will open its case next week, contends that Mr. Miller cultivated a relationship with Mrs. Ogorodnikov as part of a one-man mission to infiltrate the K.G.B. and rescue his 20-year career as an F.B.I. agent.

Earlier this week a Portland, Ore., woman testified that hours before his arrest Mr. Miller telephoned her and told her he was in trouble. The woman, Marta York, testified that Mr. Miller had said he had "only passed one" classified document to Soviet agents.

Mr. Miller's attorneys, who characterized the woman's testimony as "very damaging," were surprised Friday when the prosecution presented a witness to buttress her testimony.

The witness, Gary Allan, an Oregon social worker, testified that he was in Mrs. York's home last Oct. 2 when she received a phone call from a "close friend" named "Richard" who was in the F.B.I.

After the call Mr. Allan said Mrs. York was "agitated" and "excited," and talked about it. "She said she had learned he had gotten into trouble as a result of his relationship with a woman who she identified as a Soviet agent," Mr. Allan testified. Information Termed Secret "Did she tell you that Richard's relationship with the Russian woman was an intimate relationship?" asked Russell Hayman, an Assistant United States Attorney.

Mr. Allan responded, "It's fair to say that, yes." He then said Mrs. York had told him that her F.B.I. friend "had shared information with the Russian agent."

Mr. Hayman asked, "What type of information?" Mr. Allan replied, "She described the information as secret."

Mr. Bretzing testified Friday that, in the five days before Mr. Miller's arrest, he urged the agent to "unburden" himself.

The defense contends that Mr. Miller was so overcome by Mr. Bretzing's spiritual appeal that he began confessing. Mr. Miller was excommunicated from the Mormon Church early last year for adultery. Mr. Bretzing is a Bishop in the church.

But Mr. Bretzing rebuffed defense suggestions that he exploited Mr. Miller's ties to the Mormon Church to elicit a false confession.

"I believed that he had done things he knew to be unlawful and a betrayal of the country," Mr. Bretzing said, referring to Mr. Miller. "I believed from his teachings in the F.B.I. and as a youngster in the Mormon Church, he had every reason to feel guilt."

Stanley Greenberg, a defense attorney, asked "And you tried to appeal to that guilt?"

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Missouri (Mrs. EMERSON).

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, I represent a district whose mainstay is agriculture, and for the last 4 years and now going into our fifth year our farmers are in very, very bad straits.

As a matter of fact, I would agree with the gentlewoman from Florida when she says that our farmers are the heart and soul of America. They are the heart and soul of our American values, but they are hurting; and our farmers overwhelmingly want to sell their commodities to Cuba. As a matter of fact, they have sold $73 million of commodities to Cuba in the last 6 months. Those have been cash sales, and Cuba has paid up front for those purchases.

Up until we imposed the embargo on Cuba 40-plus years ago, my farmers sold the bulk of their rice to Cuba. They lost that market when the embargo was imposed, and they have really never gotten those markets back again from any other country.

Mr. Speaker, the other day, the Friday before last, I helped to load 250,000 bushels of my farmers' rice onto the barges in Carthersville, Missouri. It was my farmers' rice, not a company's rice, my farmer's rice. And I am absolutely shocked and saddened when I hear my colleague from Florida say that any firm or farmers who sell their commodities to Cuba will be blacklisted by the Democratic government that may take over when Castro leaves office, dies or is elected. That is shameful, as my other colleague from Florida said.

Let me talk a little bit about a couple of other things. The administration has recently revoked the visas of several Cuban officials who represent their trading company, Alimport. Those officials were coming to Michigan, to North Dakota, to Missouri and other States to purchase commodities for future sales; and, unfortunately, our administration said it was not their policy to encourage agricultural sales to Cuba.

If our farmers are hurting, if our American economy is hurting and we want to have an open trade policy, it is pretty hypocritical not to allow people who want to purchase our commodities to come and do so.

When we are talking about private financing, we are talking about a company entering into a private financial agreement with the country of Cuba. It is a private company. If they want to take the risk, they should be allowed to take the risk because this is, I thought, a democracy where we were free to make those decisions on our own.

Mr. Speaker, our policy towards Cuba should not be one that is based on a family feud, but rather it should be a policy based on helping the American economy and the American farmer.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know what the family feud is about, but I do know that the shameful attitude is one of standing with the dictatorship; and it is normal and I think to be expected that people, once they are free, do not want to do business with those who collaborated with a dictatorship.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ).

(Mr. MENENDEZ asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, let me say at the start that I admire my friend from California with whom I have worked so closely on so many issues. This is one issue where we disagree, and disagree strongly.

While I would like nothing more than to see democracy and free market trade with Cuba, and while my family in Cuba would like nothing more than to see democracy and free markets and greater access to food, subsidizing trade with a regime on the U.S. terrorist list that has threatened us in the past, that is one of the world's worst human rights abusers, that gives its citizens none of the religious or political freedoms we Americans hold dear, is not helping the Cuban people, it is only helping the dictatorship.

I have taken that constant position, whether it be in China or any other totalitarian place in the world. I wish so many of my colleagues who take that position in those countries would take that position here. Cuba can get food from almost anywhere else in the world. But the fact is the Cuban regime and its failed economic models ration the food that eventually gets to the ordinary people; and rationing food is a control mechanism over the populous.

My family in Cuba gets a ration card, and no matter how much food comes into Cuba, they ultimately can only purchase that amount that they are controlled by the government to have access to. When a government rations food, they obviously control the people because they are waiting in long lines, not thinking about a democracy or overturning a dictatorship, but waiting in long lines to get a mere subsistence.

This is a regime that goes so far as to prohibit their own citizens from privately producing its own agricultural food. It is failed economics that does not give them the hard currency to purchase food. Financing Castro, whether it is food sales or any other kinds of sales, supports the very system that actually prevents the Cuban people from getting freedoms, rights, and, yes, even food without government control.

Some of us look at the motion which I understand my colleague is doing to help farmers in his district and throughout the country, but we look at it and say ultimately it finances oppression, totalitarianism, and I do not think that we can count on the regime to honor its debt. This is not about the private sector simply taking risks on their own because maybe we can make an argument for that, that if the private sector wants to take the risk, they should have the opportunity. If they lose, they lose.

But under this instruction and the Senate's provisions, in fact, the Federal Government's different programs of financing can finance the food sales. Therefore, it is not the private sector making their market decision, it is the taxpayers of this country ultimately who will lose when Castro, who has a long history of not paying debt, ultimately does not pay. That is, I think, a poor statement for American taxpayers to be subsidizing a regime, a dictatorial regime, that ultimately controls its people by rationing its food.

Mr. Speaker, I think what we need to do is deal with the Freedom to Farm Act which was a catastrophe for the farmers. Let us not foot the bill for oppression and dictatorship, and let us not allow the Cuban people to be controlled by food rationing. Let us stand with them against dictatorship and against the motion.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, to provide some clarification, the motion and the Senate language retains section 908(a) which has the prohibition that does not allow for any public financing or assistance in the sale of products. So when Members are making contentions that this is going to result in a subsidization of trade and allow for public financing, this amendment does nothing of the sort because it retains the language in section 908(a).

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. ROEMER).

(Mr. ROEMER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, I want to first of all state my admiration for the sponsor of this motion. This motion is a promotion of democracy. It is for free trade and it is to replace a 40-year-old failed policy with a new idea on foreign policy.

As a new Democrat, as a member of the Cuban Working Group which is a bipartisan group of Members of Congress, I rise in strong support of this motion.

Mr. Speaker, unilateral sanctions on humanitarian products such as food and medicine have been ineffective, totally ineffective, in trying to influence and change the Cuban Castro regime for the past 40 years.

This motion is not even a motion to remove the embargo, which 85 percent of Americans would probably support, this motion simply lets the private sector move forward without restrictions for our agricultural community to do trade with Cuba. This is modest. This is a small step forward for freer trade and replacing a failed policy.

Unilateral sanctions have failed, and they have hurt our farmers across the board. It is not a way to implement American foreign policy. This embargo is hurting Indiana farmers. If we somehow were to get this embargo replaced, the impact on agricultural products, fisheries, and forest products to Cuba from Indiana alone would reach an annual export rate of $29 million, and create 791 new jobs in our State. That is a good policy for Indiana and for farmers and for our economy.

Mr. Speaker, let me close with this. We now trade with Vietnam, whom we fought a war with. We trade with China with 1.2 billion people; why can we not trade with Cuba? Eleven million people, a small island to the south of Florida, do not let it be held hostage to presidential electoral politics.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SMITH), a fighter for human rights.

(Mr. SMITH of New Jersey asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to the Dooley motion to lift current human rights limitations on the financing of private agricultural sales to Cuba. While the motion in support of section 335 of the Senate version of the farm bill purports to assist American commercial interests, it is absolutely clear that the prime beneficiary would be the Castro dictatorship.

Amazingly, it seems to escape the notice and concern of certain Members of Congress that the Cuban dictator not only tortures thousands of people in Cuba, but he is also a terrorist. Cuba continues to share the dubious distinction of being named a terrorist state by the U.S. State Department, joining countries like Iran, Iraq, Libya, North Korean, Sudan and Syria, great company, and we want to trade more with these individuals?

Last year as the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART) pointed out earlier, when Castro was in Iran, and this was in the Agence France Presse, he said after meeting with the Iranians, "The U.S. regime is weak, and we are witnessing this weakness close up." He also said that Iran and Cuba, tightly together, in cooperation with each other, can bring America to its knees.

Mr. Speaker, "bring America to its knees," and we want to reward this terrorist, Castro, by trading more with him? The mention was just made that in China and Vietnam, we trade with them, why not Cuba. There has been no amelioration of human rights abuses in those countries.

I would ask my colleague, the author of this motion, has the gentleman read the country reports on human rights practices with regard to Cuba? Has the gentleman read it? No.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the gentleman and every Member who wants to lift this part of the sanction to read this. It reads like an indictment of the Cuban dictatorship.

This report points out over and over again in this 21-page, single space country report, out of the State Department, that harassment, murder, killing, beatings—if one steps out of line in Cuba, bang, they come at you and beat you with their fists. And we want to reward this dictatorship?

The gentleman from California mentioned China. China has gotten worse in its human rights. Read that report. It is over 60 pages put out by the U.S. Department of State. We cannot aid and abet dictatorship. He is a terrorist. He is a mass violator of human rights, and he would be the prime beneficiary of the gentleman's motion and the Senate language. I urge a "no" vote on this. This is wrong. It makes us, however unwittingly, accomplices in crimes against humanity.

The Government's human rights record remained poor. The Government continued to violate systematically the fundamental civil and political rights of its citizens. Citizens do not have the right to change their government peacefully. Prisoners died in jail due to lack of medical care. Members of the security forces and prison officials continued to beat and otherwise abuse detainees and prisoners, including human rights activists. The Government failed to prosecute or sanction adequately members of the security forces and prison guards who committed abuses. Prison conditions remained harsh and life threatening. The authorities routinely continued to harass, threaten, arbitrarily arrest, detain, imprison, and defame human rights advocates and members of independent professional associations, including journalists, economists, doctors, and lawyers, often with the goal of coercing them into leaving the country. The Government used internal and external exile against such persons, and it offered political prisoners the choice of exile or continued imprisonment. The Government denied political dissidents and human rights advocates due process and subjected them to unfair trials. The Government infringed on citizens' privacy rights. The Government denied citizens the freedoms of speech, press, assembly, and association. It limited the distribution of foreign publications and news, reserving them for selected faithful party members, and maintained strict censorship of news and information to the public. The Government restricted some religious activities but permitted others. The Government limited the entry of religious workers to the country. The Government maintained tight restrictions on freedom of movement, including foreign travel and did not allow some citizens to leave the country. The Government was sharply and publicly antagonistic to all criticism of its human rights practices and discouraged foreign contacts with human rights activists. Violence against women, especially domestic violence, and child prostitution were problems. Racial discrimination was a problem. The Government severely restricted worker rights, including the right to form independent unions. The Government prohibits forced and bonded labor by children; however, it required children to do farm work without compensation.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this motion is not about condoning any of the human rights abuses or any of the infringements upon personal freedoms in Cuba.

Those of us who are advancing this policy and this motion believe very strongly that a policy of engagement is one that is going to do more to improve the situation in Cuba, just as many of us believed when we were advancing a policy of economic engagement with China, it was a policy that was going to result in improvement in religious freedoms and human rights that are so important to the citizens there.

Mr. Speaker, many of us would take exception to the characterization that in our offering of this motion, we are actually working to the detriment of the interest of people in Cuba and elsewhere.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR).

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise in favor of the motion to instruct conferees. I rise because I represent a lot of farmers in California, farmers who traveled with me to Cuba a month ago, people who want to sell what they grow to the Cuban Government, to the Cuban people. The irony is that it is not the Cuban Government that will not let them sell it to them, it is our government.

That is why they are asking us to instruct these conferees to lift what they consider just un-American restrictions on their ability as businesspeople in this country who grow food for people, regardless of their political affiliation, and see that that food can be sold to Cuba. In fact, the rice farmers from California and the wine grape growers from California that were with us indicated that they had sold, the rice growers had sold rice to Cuba, were very pleased with the sale, had gotten paid in a timely fashion and President Castro asked them right across the table, "I'll buy a billion dollars more of American product if you will get your licenses to sell."

So that is what this is about. It is about getting the ability for American farmers to sell their crops. What does it mean to a place like California? We looked at what we could trade in Cuba. It comes out to about $98 million in lost trade of the products that we produce in California that we could be selling to Cuba. About $280 million would be to agricultural-related industries. Cuba is a market for rice, feed, grains, oilseeds, beans, wheat flour, animal products fertilizers, forest products, herbicides, pesticides and farm machinery. Many of these products are big business in California.

Currently with restrictions, the U.S. has had $35 million in sales to Cuba in the last 3 months. So the interchange is happening, but it is a very difficult one. I would just ask, and there is a lot of emotion in here, but I cannot understand why people would care if President Castro gets credit for feeding hungry children. My God, our country can rise above that and start helping 11 million people eat.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), who knows that Castro has never been elected to anything, much less that he deserves to be called Mr. President like the prior speaker called him in an embarrassing, shameful way.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, let me just say to my colleagues, Fidel Castro can buy products from the United States today, and he has been. But he has to pay cash. And what we want to do with this, what you want to do with this motion is you want to allow him to get credit.

Let me just tell you what credit he has honored in the past. He owes $120 million to Spain. No payments. They are trying to restructure the loan. He owes $170 million to France. He defaulted on $10.5 million. They are trying to restructure that loan. He owes $20 million to Chile. No payments on that. $400 million to Mexico; past due, but they are trying to restructure the loan. If he wants to pay cash, he can buy it. But the reason he wants to get credit is because he knows long term that he is going to be able to get out of the debt. And ultimately, I think my colleagues who have made this point in the past are accurate; it will be borne by the taxpayers of America. The money will be borrowed and eventually when it gets up to such a level, the financial institutions that lend it are going to be complaining to high heaven and the government will bail them out. And so henceforth the taxpayers of the United States will be paying for the food that Castro gets.

Let us look at what Castro is. He is still a terrorist. He is working with the FARC guerillas in Colombia. They are selling heroin and cocaine by the carload to American youth. And they are terrorists. They are kidnapping and killing Americans down there, and they are holding them hostage and he works with them. They even wear Che Guevara hats, berets, because they support Castro. They go back and forth to Cuba on a regular basis. He is not for democracy. He is not for human rights. He supports terrorism, and now he wants credit from the United States.

The fact of the matter is, my colleagues, we should not be giving it to him. I have businesspeople in my district that have come to me and say, "We want to do business with Fidel Castro." My answer to them is, when Fidel Castro starts allowing democracy in Cuba, when he starts allowing human rights, when he starts taking steps in the directions that we believe ought to be taken, then we will consider those things. But so far Fidel Castro has done none of these things. He goes around the world condemning the United States, saying he is going to bring us to our knees and we want to kiss him on both cheeks. I think that is a mistake. Until we see a manifest change in Castro's behavior, we should not be giving him credit. If he wants to buy American products, let him pay cash. Let him pay cash. And when he starts showing some changes in human rights and moving toward democracy, we will start looking at credit.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume just to make a couple of observations. I find it remarkable that some of my Republican colleagues have so little confidence in our private financial institutions that they do not think and trust that they will do the due diligence in terms of making a determination on the ability of an entity within Cuba to make good on the loans that they might offer in order to finance a sale of U.S. products into Cuba.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEKS).

Mr. MEEKS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of my good friend's, the gentleman from California, motion to instruct our conferees to agree to the Senate provisions repealing the existing restrictions against the use of American private sector financing of our agricultural exports to Cuba.

It is high time that we bring our trade policy with Cuba, a market with solid potential for a number of job-creating export industries, in line with the fundamental principles and objectives which govern our trade policy with the rest of the world. I for one as a matter of principle have never been a supporter of unilateral sanctions as an effective instrument of United States foreign policy. Such actions also often cost us shares in foreign markets. Other colleagues have also raised morally principled concerns on the inclusion of food in any sanctions policy. I am proud that this body has already moved in a bipartisan manner to exclude agricultural products from our embargo against Cuba. It was a step in the right direction to bring an outdated 20th century policy into the 21st century, a policy which has obviously not achieved the desired results and is ridiculed by our friends and allies across the world.

However, that small step was followed by a step backwards, when we excluded our own financial community from being able to provide financing to our own private sector. Our embargo has already cost our businesses and consumers billions of dollars. Do we really want to send American businesses who want to export American-made goods to banks in other nations?

Mr. Speaker, at a time when our economy is struggling to recover, when our farmers are facing difficult conditions, and when we seemingly find ways to take one step backward every time we take a step forward in reclaiming our global leadership and international trade, it is indeed high time we stop preventing our financial sector from financing legal exports to a $100 million market only 90 miles away from our shores.

I thank the gentleman from California for this motion, and I urge our conferees to follow the bipartisan leadership demonstrated by the other body; and let us end these sanctions on U.S. banking and financial institutions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OTTER). The Chair would advise that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART) has 1¼ minutes remaining and the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY) has 12 minutes remaining. The gentleman from California being the maker of the motion has the right to close.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. I would ask the gentleman how many speakers he has.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. We have at least three.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO).

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Dooley motion to instruct conferees to the farm bill. It repeals existing restrictions against private financing of agricultural sales to Cuba. It is an opportunity to help innocent people suffering under repressive regimes and truly help our farmers who are facing record low prices.

Our foreign policy must be to help, not punish, people who suffer under repressive regimes. Unilateral agricultural sanctions end up hurting the most vulnerable in a target nation, eroding their confidence in the United States as a supplier of food and as a supplier of hope. Human Rights Watch reports that the U.S. embargo has not only failed to bring about human rights improvements in Cuba, it has actually, and I quote, "become counterproductive to achieving this goal."

We are not defending the Cuban Government or its poor human rights record. We must always speak strongly against the abuse of human rights in this world. But current U.S. policy towards Cuba hurts 11 million innocent Cuban men, women, and children; and it denies our farmers a vital export market. This policy has cost America important export markets. The USDA estimates that trade sanctions reduce U.S. agricultural exports by over $500 million per year. U.S. wheat farmers have been shut out of 10 percent of the world wheat market. Soybean farmers could capture as much as 60 percent of the demand for soybeans. We need to help American farmers, but we need to help the innocent people of Cuba. We are talking about food.

I urge my colleagues to please support the Dooley motion. It makes sense. It is humanitarian and maybe in a change in policy we can help to bring about a change in a regime that, yes, in fact has abused human rights. Let us help to see if we can get this back on track.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

(Mr. KIND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIND. I thank my friend for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY) for showing the leadership on this important issue. I rise in support of the motion to instruct to adopt the Senate language to lift the embargo that has existed against Cuba all of these years. A sensible and fair trade policy is an essential feature of economic growth in this country, but the 40-year trade embargo against Cuba has not only been unfair, it has been a failure. Castro is still there. Yet it is our American farmers that are hurt the most by the inability to export to a country just 70 miles off from our coast.

It is time to try engagement. At a time as we live in today when we are importing oil from such regimes as Saudi Arabia and Yemen, even Venezuela and even Iraq, to claim that we should not be trading with Cuba is the height of hypocrisy. Yet what is funny about this whole debate is the American people have been way out ahead of policymakers in this country, especially Presidential candidates as they go down to Florida and to the opposition to this very motion. In fact, in a recent poll conducted on this very issue, over 85 percent of the American people think that the United States should end all restrictions on the sale of food and medicine to the island of Cuba. And a majority of Members now are on record on repeated occasions of supporting lifting the embargo. The most recent vote in the House came down to a 301 to 116 opinion to lift the embargo. The most recent vote in the Senate passed 70 to 28. These votes indicate that there are veto-proof majorities in both the House and the Senate to deal with this issue. Yet it for too long has been tied up in Presidential electoral politics in the State of Florida. A majority of both the House and the Senate agriculture committee members favor lifting these restrictions. And even a majority of the conferees existing on the farm bill today favor lifting the restrictions. It is time to end this unfair trade policy. It is time to try engagement and let the sunshine in and also help the American farmers in the process. I thank my friend for his leadership.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ).

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Dooley motion. Let me just say that I rise in support of what is best for America. As Americans, we have been negligent. We have allowed for this policy to be hijacked. It is now up to us to really look in terms of what is happening and begin to do the right thing. Nothing brought this to light any better than the situation with Elian, the young man who, when we saw that situation, it brought to light the fact that we need to begin to do the right thing. The right thing is to begin to trade.

When we look at American support as indicated earlier, there is support there for the sale of food and medicine to Cuba. An October 2000 public opinion poll found that over 85 percent of Americans support that. And so it is about time that we begin to do the right thing. The majority of the Members of this Congress have repeatedly voted in favor of that measure. But it continues to be hijacked. A majority of both the House and the Senate agriculture committees support unrestricted food and medicine sales to Cuba. The embargo prevents U.S. businesses from doing good business, and it does not make any sense. When we look at it and say we expect them to have an electoral process and vote, I believe that strongly. But if you hold that to every single country that has a dictator or has other forms of government that do not elect their officials, we would not be having too much trade throughout this world, and it does not make any sense.

The other most important thing we need to remember is that when it comes to our national security, I have always said we should act unilaterally and act as quickly as possible. But when it is not in our interests in terms of national security, and I sit on the Committee on Armed Services, and I have never been given information in terms of the threats that are out there. Our major threats come from other countries.

So when we look at that, we ought to act in a multilateral perspective and reach out to Latin America. All of Latin America has always questioned why do we have this policy that is irrational and blinded.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. OTTER). The gentleman from Florida is recognized for 1¼ minutes.

Mr. DIAZ-BALART. Mr. Speaker, with regard to a couple of points made by the colleague who just spoke, he said that he has heard, and he is on the Committee on Armed Services, of no threats by the Cuban regime. Obviously he has not heard the debate that has gone on for one hour, because my understanding was that 17 spies were convicted or arrested in the last couple of years. No other terrorist state has had anywhere near that many spies arrested, in some instances, for spying on U.S. military installations, which is something that goes counter to national security. The highest ranking spy in the Defense Intelligence Agency, my understanding, is that spy was arrested for spying for the Cuban terrorist state, and that would be contrary to national security. My colleague said he never heard of anything along those lines, so I am glad we had this opportunity to inform him.

Our law is clear. Normalization requires freedom for political prisoners, legalization of unions, the press and political parties, and the scheduling of free elections. Now, if you ask the American people a question, do you support those three conditions for normalization, do you support in this hemisphere that all people should have the right to free elections and to no political prisoners and to freedom for political parties and labor unions and the press, I know what the answer to that question would be. It would be overwhelmingly supported. So it all depends on how you ask the question.

This Congress has always stood in favor of free elections and freedom for the political prisoners and freedom of political activity and free speech in effect for the Cuban people. Cuba, as has been said before, is in this hemisphere. The international law and inter-American law requires democracy in this hemisphere. It states that representative democracy is the only form of government in this hemisphere.

Cuba remains in this hemisphere, despite what some would like on the other side of this debate. It remains in this hemisphere, and the Cuban people deserve our continued solidarity, and not financing for the terrorist regime, which is what in effect this amendment would make possible. So vote down the Dooley amendment.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I respect the sincerity and passion of the gentleman's opposition to this amendment, but I think at times the rhetoric has probably gone beyond the issues that are at hand here.

This amendment, what we are talking about really relates solely to the sale of food and medicine from the United States to Cuba. Currently we allow for the sale of food and medicine to Cuba, but we require that it be paid for in cash, or the U.S. interest that is selling the food and medicine to Cuba would have to secure financing from a third party country. All this amendment does is says that a sale of U.S. food and medicine to Cuba can now be financed by a private institution in the United States.

That is what this debate is all about. It is about how we can facilitate the sale of U.S. agricultural products that are important to provide the sustenance to a lot of families in Cuba. It is about how can we facilitate the sale of U.S. drugs to a lot of the families in Cuba by providing an element of private financing.

I just want to clarify an issue that was brought up at times saying this will allow for the public financing of goods to Cuba. This bill does not do that. In fact, it retains the language that I wanted to read into the record, which is section 908(a). It says, "In general, notwithstanding any other provision of law, no United States government assistance, including United States foreign assistance, United States export assistance, and any United States credit or guarantees shall be available for exports to Cuba or for commercial exports to Iran, Libya, North Korea, or Sudan."

My colleagues need to fully understand that, again, what we are talking about here is simply a measure that will provide for the ability to provide for private financing of food and medicine.

There was also some contention made, well, why do we need to be providing for the U.S. be able to provide food and medicines to Cuba? They can get those from other countries. But what is clear is if the United States wants to have the most influence into Cuba, is that we need to enhance and expand upon our interaction and our engagement. That is what this measure will do.

I ask my colleagues to support this measure. It is a step forward in terms of providing greater economic opportunities in many sectors of our economy, and also is a step forward in ensuring that we will have a positive form of economic engagement which can make a difference in the quality of life of the residents and citizens of Cuba.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support my good friend from California and his motion to instruct the conferees on the Farm Security Act, which would repeal the existing restrictions against private financing of agricultural sales to Cuba.

Mr. Speaker, at issue here is whether we want to help American farmers, or leave in place restrictions that are costing them millions of dollars each year. Given that the national farm economy is depressed, it is important that we do what we can to help American farmers and their families. With one simple adjustment in our policy, we can help them recover billions of dollars in lost trade. According to a recent study, U.S. farmers are losing close to $1.26 billion in agricultural exports and about $3.6 billion in exports related to agriculture because of these restrictions.

The U.S. Senate has taken the first step in easing agricultural trade restrictions, and the House of Representatives should follow. The Senate position has garnered wide support from a broad array of agricultural interests. The National Farm Bureau, the USA Rice Federation, the dairy industry, wine sellers, all support lifting the restrictions. The California Farm Bureau supports lifting restrictions because it knows that California agriculture stands to reap great benefits from trade with Cuba. Up to $98 million in agricultural products, and $287 million in related sales could be generated, simply by lifting the restriction on private financing.

The Cubans are ready, willing, and able to purchase our goods. They have stated publicly that they would buy over a billion dollars' worth of agricultural goods if we would only lift restrictions, and help expedite licenses to allow them access to the same lending terms to which other countries have access. Let's help the American farmers. Let's trust them manage their own business and their own risks. Lifting the restrictions would give them this freedom.

This is a simple vote, will we agree to instruct the House conferees to agree with the Senate—which has already realized the necessity of this change in policy—or do we continue with a failed policy, which helps no one and hurts American farmers? I urge my colleagues to support this move, and vote "yes" on the Dooley motion to instruction the conferees.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to the H.R. 2646, the motion to instruct conferees on the Farm Security Act to repeal restrictions against private financing of agricultural sales to Cuba.

Doing business with Cuba means doing business with Castro, it is that simple. So long as Cuba's dictator maintains his stranglehold on every aspect of Cuban life, lifting any aspect of the embargo would mean subsidizing Castro. The truth is that Cuba can get food from almost anywhere in the world. However the Cuban Government chooses to ration the food that it does receive and even goes as far as to prohibit its citizens from producing their own. Under Castro, every aspect of the economy is controlled by the Cuban Government. In Cuba there is no such thing as free enterprise. By sending our products into Cuba, we are only giving Castro the symbolic victory and propaganda he craves. By sending our agriculture products into Cuba, we are only providing assistance to a dictator and a terrorist.

The Cuban Government is characterized by its systematic trampling of civil rights and political freedom, the killing of civilians, the subhuman conditions of its prisons and by a legal system that perpetuates the violation of human rights. According to Amnesty International, no other country of Cuba's size has held so many political prisoners for so long under such inhuman circumstances of atrocity and terror. These atrocities are not some far off history of a generation ago. They are happening today, in jails closer to Miami than we are to my home in New Jersey.

By lifting these sanctions with nothing in exchange from the Cuban Government—no free elections, no commitments on human rights, no civil liberties—we are betraying the very people that this embargo was designed to help. Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to oppose H.R. 2646 and to remain steadfast in their support for the Cuban people.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time has expired.

Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. DOOLEY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair's prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 2646, FARM SECURITY ACT OF 2001

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct conferees.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BACA moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendment to the bill, H.R. 2646, an Act to provide for continuation of agricultural programs through fiscal year 2011, be instructed to agree to provisions contained in section 452 of the Senate amendment, relating to restoration of benefits to children, legal immigrants who work, refugees, and the disabled.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) is recognized for 30 minutes.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on my motion to instruct on H.R. 2646.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me begin by thanking the Congressional Hispanic caucus, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON) and a bipartisan group of colleagues for working so hard within the conference committee to restore food stamp benefits to working, taxpaying legal residents, and I state, to taxpaying legal residents.

We all agree that the time has come for Congress to ensure that all legal residents are eligible for food stamps. America provides aid to hungry people all over the world, yet we do not take care of everyone who needs it right here at home.

Children of legal immigrants to our Nation are starving. It is as simple as that. With the passage of welfare reform in 1996, almost all legal immigrants lost food stamp eligibility. In 1998, Congress realized it had gone too far. But it only restored food stamps to benefit kids and elderly who arrived in our country before 1996. Thousands of immigrants who arrived here in the last 5 years will never receive any help from us for their nutritional needs.

The current law does nothing to help them feed their children, many of whom are United States citizens. Let me say that again, many who are United States citizens. Kids who are United States citizens are starving under the current law. This must stop. It can stop with us.

This motion instructs the 2002 Farm Security Act conference to restore much-needed food stamp benefit to legal, permanent residents. I state, to legal, permanent residents. It would allow legal residents who have been in the United States for 5 years to apply for food stamps if they are low income. This is what the President has proposed. I state, this is what the President has proposed.

It would allow children to be eligible for food stamps, regardless of when they entered the United States. This provision is also contained in the farm bill that the Senate brought to the conference committee. It would reduce the current requirement that an immigrant accrue 10 years of working history to qualify for food stamps to 4 years of work to qualify.

Why should all of us support this motion? Because it makes sense, both fiscally and morally, and because strong bipartisan support already exists for restoring food stamps to legal immigrants.

Support for restoring benefits crosses ideological and partisan lines. President Bush's 2002 budget includes a proposal to restore food stamps to legal immigrants, and I state, to legal immigrants, who have lived in the United States for 5 years. Newt Gingrich even stated that the restrictions on legal immigrants' eligibility for food stamps were one of the provisions in the welfare law that went too far; that went too far. Members from both sides of this aisle in both Chambers support restoration.

Also the children's restoration is very inexpensive. It is already built into the $6.4 billion allotment for the nutrition title. The cost is $200 million. That is a small price when compared to the entire $150 billion farm bill.

Restoration of the food stamps to immigrants with significant work history costs nothing. CBO scored the enhancement at zero. It will simplify the process and help people at no cost to the taxpayers, at no cost to the taxpayers.

Immigrant children need food stamps. Children, more than any other group, need access to healthy diets. I state, children, more than any other group, need access to healthy diet.

Research indicates that children who do not receive adequate nutrition have poor health development. We talk about imposing performance standards on kids in school, but how can kids perform when they go to school with an empty stomach? It is very difficult to perform if you have an empty stomach.

Section 452 of the Senate farm bill and the alternative of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) include this provision for children.

Immigrant children are twice as likely to live in homes where parents pay more than 50 percent of their income in rent. We will make sure that poor kids receive the nutrition they need to one day lift themselves out of poverty, and I state, to lift themselves out of poverty.

Restoring benefits to immigrant children will help with this effort to reach citizen children. Over 85 percent of immigrant families have mixed status, households that include at least one citizen child. Confusion about eligibility and fear about their immigrant status has caused these hard working parents to stay away from the program, even when these kids are eligible, and yet it affects their daily lives as they are going to school.

Our current anti-immigrant food stamp program causes that fear. These are American citizens, American children we are talking about, yet they do not have access at the same time that kids who are born citizens. According to USDA from 1994 to 1998, 1 million citizens of immigrant parents left the food stamp program, representing a 74 percent decline for this group. It is time that we helped these American children.

Working immigrants need food stamps. Low-wage working immigrants should be granted access to food stamp as work support. Legal immigrants are just as likely as natives to work, but they are two times as likely to be poor. Forty-three percent work in jobs paying less than $7.50 an hour, and wages have risen more slowly for immigrants than natives over the last decade.

This motion builds on principles already established under the current law. Currently legal immigrants, individuals or couples that can show a combined work history of 10 years, are exempt from food stamp restrictions on legal immigrants. The notion behind this exemption was that no family with a demonstrated work history should be prohibited access to critical work support.

The Senate bill builds upon the principles of fairness, and so should we. I state, the Senate bill builds upon the principles of fairness, and so should we. It would allow low-income individuals or married couples that can demonstrate, and I state, that can demonstrate, a combined workforce history of 4 years, to begin food stamp eligibility. Four years of work is measured by earning 16 quarters of earnings under the Social Security system.

It is time that all hard-working, tax paying, and I state, hard-working, tax paying residents of this country, are eligible for the same benefits in times of difficulty. Many of our veterans who served are legal permanent residents. This would allow them also to be eligible as well. When tax day rolls around, it just is not for us to ask people, are you a citizen or not?

□ 1615

We should not. When deciding whether to help and feed our children, we should apply the same law, not just when we need it for taxes, but at the same time, when applying the law to feed our children.

We need the President to pick up the phone and say, get it done. We need his leadership now. This is about fairness; this is about our children.

Mr. Speaker, I retain the balance of my time.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I claim the time in opposition, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

As the chairman of the Subcommittee on Department Operations Oversight, Nutrition, and Forestry of the House Committee on Agriculture, I have been charged with the responsibility for attempting to work out this very difficult issue, and I commend the gentleman for his interest in the issue and for his efforts on behalf of people who are in need. However, I must strongly oppose the motion to accept the Senate language here, because to do so would be irresponsible.

The fact of the matter is that while there are certainly people here who are in need of assistance, it is definitely not the case that everybody that the Senate language would cover would fit into that category, and it is also not the case that the people that would be covered are as described by the gentleman.

For example, he refers to tax-paying legal residents. Well, it is not a requirement under the Senate language that the individual have ever paid a penny in taxes in order to receive these benefits. It only requires that they have been in this country as a lawful, permanent resident for 5 years. The fact of the matter is that some people who have been here for 5 years and may have been taxpaying, contributing members of our society and who, as a result of some misfortune, have fallen on hard times and need to receive food stamps, a good case could be made, as has been made by the President of the United States, that some individuals who have been here 5 years should receive them.

But the problem with the Senate language is that it has no definition of that. It does not say you have to have been a taxpayer; it does not say that you had to have been employed for a certain period of time.

Many people are not aware, but the fact of the matter is that a number of noncitizens receive food stamps right now. Children, the disabled, refugees, permanent residents who have been in the United States for more than 10 years and have 40 quarters of work history are just some of the categories for which people can receive these benefits right now.

The President has said that he would like to see that expanded. However, in making that expansion, we have to do it responsibly. We cannot just open the door and not say that there is no standard to be met, no criteria, such as having been a taxpayer, having had a work history, particularly for people who are able-bodied and are between the ages of 18 and 60, for example. Or we need to look at how long this should be allowed to be provided, because, for example, somebody who has been a lawful, permanent resident of the United States after they have been here for 5 years in that status are eligible to apply for United States citizenship; and when they do so, they then can receive the same benefits as any other American citizen.

There is a problem with that, however. The Immigration Service does not work very well. Sometimes it takes a long time for an individual who has qualified, met this 5-year criteria, that everybody has specified, the Republican conferees, the Democratic conferees, the President, have all talked about 5 years of lawful residence. But once you get to that point and you wanted to apply for citizenship to be treated exactly the same as any other American citizen, you cannot always get that done quickly. So we put forward a proposal that said that if you were to reach that point, that you would be entitled to 2 years of food stamps if you had a work history to support that.

The fact of the matter is that in 2 years' time, the vast majority of people who apply for citizenship would be processed and become citizens. We do not require you to become a citizen. If you do not wish to do so, then you had the opportunity to receive those benefits for 2 years anyway.

The point is that all of these things are in negotiation between the House conferees, the Senate conferees, and the White House to do the responsible thing, to do what recognizes the needs where they exist and provide them as the offer that the House conferees made, which included something the Senate conferees did not include in their most recent offer to us, which is for children, for disabled individuals, and for refugees to receive food stamps. Those are certainly areas that should be covered. But it should not be a blanket coverage where anybody gets it whether they have ever contributed anything or whether they have simply come to this country, stayed here for a period of time, and now want to receive government assistance.

So I would urge my colleagues to restrain themselves from saying that just because the Senate has put something out there that we should naturally rush to it. No, we should discuss this with the Senate, we should discuss this with the White House, we should work out a responsible plan, and that is what we are in the process of doing, and this motion to instruct the conferees, which is nonbinding, but nonetheless is an attempt to, I think, make a political statement is not helpful to that process; and I would urge my colleagues to defeat it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me this time. I commend him for his leadership and the leadership of the Hispanic Caucus in this conference in bringing up this important motion to instruct.

Mr. Speaker, as a new cochair of the Democratic Coalition, I am pleased to rise today in strong support of the Baca motion. This motion works to ensure that those who are here legally in the United States receive basic food stamp benefits. After the implementation of the 1996 welfare reform legislation, most legal immigrants lost their access to all welfare benefits, including food stamps. Although legal immigrants represent only about 6 percent of those on public aid, they took the brunt of the cuts made by the welfare law.

Many of those who lost benefits were people who could not support themselves. They were too disabled, too old, or too frail to work. Further, research has shown that since this legislation was passed, many immigrant children have experienced increased difficulty in obtaining the resources to purchase nutritionally-adequate food. The motion before the House today would restore food stamp benefits to legal immigrants.

Support for restoring this benefit crosses ideological and partisan lines. A report issued by the bipartisan U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform, subsequent to the welfare law's enactment, recommended against denying benefits to legal immigrants solely because they were noncitizens. In fact, President Bush's 2003 budget includes a proposal to restore food stamps to legal immigrants who have lived in the United States for 5 years; but now, that is being blocked by the Republican majority in Congress during this conference meeting.

As a New Democrat, I believe it is essential to support our legal immigrants. Our welfare reform law broke the long-standing agreement between future citizens and their adopted homeland. Legal immigrants share the same responsibility as citizens. They pay taxes; they serve in the military. Many, if not all, are working hard to become full-fledged citizens. The United States has always embraced legal immigrants who enrich our culture and work hard to make our Nation stronger; but just like anyone else, immigrants can sometimes fall on hard times. We now have an opportunity to do the right thing and reestablish the contract between legal immigrants and American society. I urge my colleagues to support this motion.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

The gentleman from Wisconsin has accurately stated that the President has put forward a proposal providing food stamps for noncitizens beyond those who already have them now. The gentleman from California, in his earlier remarks, said that the proposal that he is asking us to adopt here was the proposal that the President supported, and that is not the case. He has put forward a different proposal.

At another point in his remarks he also made reference to the fact that this would be at no cost to the taxpayers. I did not follow that at all. This is a $2.485 billion cost to the taxpayers of this country, and I think people need to be aware of that.

Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure to yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDI).

Mr. TANCREDI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, in 1996 we had much of a similar debate on an issue of this nature. We debated the whole concept of welfare and determined that some change had to be undertaken. After several attempts by this body, by this Congress, to pass legislation, in fact, they did; the previous President had vetoed it a couple of times and eventually he got on board with it and decided that, in fact, it was a good thing. It has proven to be a very good thing. It has proven to be even more successful than many of the folks who had originally supported it could hope for.

The numbers of people, as we all know, on welfare have gone down dramatically. Percentages in some States have gone down so dramatically that it boggles the imagination. Somewhere around 70 and 80 percent the caseload has been reduced subsequent to the 1996 act. A lot of people say it has everything to do with the economy being better. But historically we can look at it and find out that over the past century, as a matter of fact, and at least for the past 6 years when we have had a much more intensive welfare program in the United States operating, that the number of people on welfare continued to go up. Regardless of the economic conditions in the country, whether we were in a recession or whether we were in good times, it did not matter; the number of people went up, the number of people on welfare went up. So we cannot draw a conclusion to this phenomenon based upon simply a good economy.

Now, we now know that that plan worked and the plan was to get people off of welfare. It was to do everything we could to get people off of welfare. That is a good idea. We undertook it, and it worked. Here we have a proposal to reverse that, to put more people back on welfare; and frankly, I would be opposing it if it was for a non-immigrant family, a native American family or anybody else. It is not a good idea basically; it is not a good idea to expand the opportunities and expand the number of people eligible for food stamps or welfare in this country.

The fact is that the proposal from the Senate side goes much farther than even the expressed intent as described earlier on. One part of it actually eliminates a part of the law, or at least a concept that has been in practice in the United States for well over 100 years, and that is making someone responsible. If someone is applying for immigration into the United States, a document has to be filled out. This is it. It is an affidavit of the U.S. Department of Justice Immigration and Naturalization Service. The fourth item on this is, and this is called, by the way, an affidavit of support. It says that "This affidavit is made by me for the purpose of assuring the United States Government that the person or persons named in item 3," the person coming into the country, "would not become a public charge in the United States." Number 5, that "I am willing to be able to receive, maintain and support the persons named in item 3. I am willing to deposit a bond, if necessary, to guarantee such persons will not become a public charge to the United States."

Now, there is again a reason for this to be in the law, and a part of the law, by the way, that has been there for well over 100 years. And of course it is to not make the welfare system in any way, shape or form a magnet for immigration. I think everybody would agree that that should not happen.

Now, it is true that even under the present change that is being proposed, someone would still had to have been here 5 years; but they actually wipe out this part of the law of the Senate amendment. It says for this purpose, for food stamps for this purpose, this affidavit would not be required.

Now, I am not going to suggest here that we have been very judicious in our approach of enforcing this particular provision of the law. I do not know the last person that was actually forced to do it.

It is nonetheless a good idea. I have a letter from the gentleman from Wisconsin (Chairman SENSENBRENNER) to the Attorney General asking him essentially why there has not been that kind of enforcement, and what we were going to do in order to try and begin the process of enforcing this particular provision. I hope, of course, that we will.

But we should certainly not eliminate it. We should not, and whether or not we forcefully employ it is one thing, but to actually strike it out of the law and say that we would not hold anybody responsible, if one comes here with a sponsorship, no one would be responsible for the financial well-being of the person coming into the country, as, of course, has been the case, at least in the law if not in practice; de jure, if not de facto, it is irresponsible of us to move ahead to accept the Senate amendments. It is especially irresponsible to abolish this part of the law.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. REYES), the Congressional Hispanic Caucus chair.

Mr. REYES. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

I was sitting there listening to my colleague speaking on the other side of the aisle, talking about the Welfare Reform Act that has proven to be a good thing.

I would ask him, since when is hunger a good thing? Since when is the fact that there are children going to bed hungry and going to school hungry a good thing for this country? It goes contrary to everything that we stand for.

In regard to the affidavit of support, the answer to that is that if we file an affidavit for support and someone is intending to go on welfare, then the immigrant visa will not be issued. I know about that because I spent 26½ years working in the immigration service.

But today, Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Baca motion that instructs conferees on the Farm Security Act. The House has passed the Farm Security Act without any protection in the nutrition title for vulnerable populations, and any farm bill reauthorization would be incomplete without a well-founded nutrition title that includes a clean and simple restoration of the food stamp eligibility for legal residents; again, legal residents.

I am pleased that we have united in a very bipartisan manner in an effort to restore food stamp benefits to legal residents. I believe that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle as a whole are not committed to continuing an anti-immigrant, anti-Latino, anti-family pro-hunger campaign that we have come to equate with some of those on the other side of the aisle.

However, regrettably, the House Republican conferees have been relentless in their efforts to undermine a clean and simple restoration of food stamp benefits. It is unconscionable and regrettable that some Members in this House would use this issue and the issue of hunger that is faced by the most vulnerable of our population as a political ploy and a political tool. There is no compassion in withholding food from families and from children.

I welcome the administration's proposal to extend eligibility to legal residents who have lived in the United States for 5 years. The proposal is simple and straightforward, and every Member in this House ought to support it. I agree with the Baca amendment, and I hope my colleagues vote to support it.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I would respond to the gentleman, who has absolutely misrepresented the position of the House conferees, the Republican conferees, on the farm bill.

The gentleman asks how welfare reform is good if children are going hungry. The fact of the matter is, the proposal that we put forward in the conference on the farm bill provides food stamp benefits for children from day one, from the first day they enter the country. The proposal that the Senate had put forward made them wait 5 years. That is a long time to be hungry, 5 years, before they qualified for food stamps.

So to say that this is something that the House Republicans are trying to drive a wedge through is absolutely wrong, absolutely wrong, and it is the kind of partisan statement that does not promote working out a serious and complicated problem. But we have provided for children, the disabled, and refugees from the day they arrive in this country.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

Mr. Speaker, I want to support the gentleman's amendment for the House. I serve as a ranking member of the committee on which the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) serves as a chair.

There is a fundamental disagreement over this issue. The issue is, indeed, to restore to legal residents or legal immigrants the right to food stamps. In 1996, we denied that. We took them off, for whatever reason, and perhaps, as one of our speakers have said, it was to reduce the incidence of welfare. We have re-examined that on many issues. We re-examined that on children, on senior citizens, and found it unacceptable and inconsistent with our moral values and the values of America.

Now, the Senate bill has certainly a more generous provision than the President's, but we must say, the President went a great step, and I support what the President has done. He said that legal residents who have been here 5 years indeed should have the right, the full right to be restored for food stamps. It also, in the Senate bill, the Senate bill said it would be only 4 years, so there is some room between what the President said and the Senate said.

But the core of this amendment is to say that every right should be given to legal residents. They serve us well in our employment. We do not complain about that. They serve us well in our military. We do not complain about that. It would seem inconsistent with our own stated views that we would not have consistency through that.

We indeed should support this amendment. I think it is very basic. In particular, the one that the President has offered is very basic: In 5 years you are legal and you have the right. It does not say that you would try to make differentials between ages of children. It does not try to make it more complex. Becoming a citizen is complex enough. We should not make having the right to food tied to citizenship. It is unacceptable to our moral values.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes to respond to my good friend and colleague from the committee.

The fact of the matter is, the President's proposal is simple, but it leaves out children who have been here less than 5 years. They do not receive anything under that proposal. We are trying, in cooperation with the White House, and we very much respect the President's efforts in this area to work that out with the President and with the Senate conferees and the House Democratic conferees. But the fact of the matter is that it is not so simple as to say, you do it for 5 years and that is it.

Now, the other thing that is critically important to recognize here is that the proposal that the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) is asking the conference to support, the Senate proposal, does not impose any standard whatsoever on an able-bodied working adult, whether or not they have children. If they have no children, they are between the ages of 18 and 60, they have absolutely no contribution. They do not have to have worked a day since they have entered the United States. As long as they have been a permanent, lawful resident of this country for 5 years, they are able to receive food stamps. Even if they have been in the country unlawfully, they are able to get food stamps.

There is absolutely no basis for giving food stamps to people who have made no contribution to the society. So all we are asking is, impose some guidelines and we can work this out.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOODLATTE. I yield to the gentlewoman from North Carolina.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I was about to ask the gentleman if he is suggesting that he would be willing to restate it, all the legal immigrants, plus your provision, if they had some standard? Is that a 5-year standard, a 4-year standard?

Mr. GOODLATTE. I would tell the gentlewoman, we offered a standard. The Senate did not accept that. We have been continuing to negotiate with the Senate, with the White House, on what that standard would be. Yes, we have been talking about how long an individual has to have been working, if they are an able-bodied individual.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Would the gentleman put a time limit on what a legal immigrant would have?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Absolutely. We put a time limit on it, as well.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. RODRIGUEZ).

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the motion to instruct conferees of the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) to include Senate provisions on restoring the food stamp benefits for legal immigrants.

Food stamps are a critical part of the safety net, and they are woven into helping individuals and families in time of need. This should hold true for immigrants who are legal immigrants and play by the rules and pay taxes. We are not asking for special treatment, we are asking that they be treated the same. To do otherwise would be discriminatory.

We are simply asking that legal immigrants, and we are not talking about illegals, we are talking about legal immigrants, be treated in a fair manner. Despite the calls by President Bush to provide legal, permanent residents access to Federal nutrition programs, House Republicans, conferees on the farm bill, have refused to budge.

I cannot understand the lingering biases against these immigrants. The President would allow legal permanent residents who have been in this country for 5 years to be able to get access. Why would not the conferees do that? We are talking about individuals that might be disabled, we are talking about people that might have lost their jobs, we are talking about possible children that are in need.

In too many cases, immigrant children suffer from hunger right here in our own back yards. Their parents work hard, they pay their taxes, and they play by the rules, but they are in need and require assistance. Nutrition is just the first step to a host of health and social problems.

Let us not play any more games with immigrant children. Let us treat them as we would treat anyone else. When we ask them to join us and fight in our wars, in fact, I want to share with the Members that we have over 62,000 immigrants serving in our military right now. Twenty percent of the Medal of Honor recipients are immigrants. In addition to that, of those, 19,928 are permanent residents that are still not citizens but serving our country. By the way, as we do not pay them enough, a lot of those military people qualify for food stamps, but not these particular ones.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has it exactly backwards. The proposal that we have put forward provides food stamps for children, the disabled, and refugees. The proposal that the gentleman refers to, section 452, only refers to citizens who have been in the country for more than 5 years. So if you are a child who has been here less than 5 years, you are not covered by the proposal of the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA).

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDI).

Mr. TANCREDI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time to me.

This legislation, or this proposal, I suppose, and the opposition to this motion has been characterized as anti-

Latino and anti-family. Well, in a way I would suggest that it is an insult to suggest to anyone that in fact if you are doing something here to reform welfare, that the only people who would benefit by overexposure to welfare, give out more welfare, are Latinos. That, of course, I think is an insult to Latinos.

In fact, I believe everything we do to try to stop the expansion of welfare, especially, in this case, food stamps, we are doing as a pro-family activity. I will tell the Members why I believe that.

The welfare law, the reform law of 1996 to which I referred earlier, replaced AFDC with a brand new program, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, often referred to around here as TANF. This reform has been widely acknowledged, once again I say, widely acknowledged by both opponents of it originally and its supporters as a tremendous success leading to a dramatic drop in dependence and child poverty.

Hear that: The TANF is an improvement, a reform of the system; something that had work requirements ingrained in it, something that had a number of other activities that were required before a recipient could get help. That improvement had a dramatic drop in dependence, a dramatic drop in child poverty, increases in employment, and it slowed down the growth of out-of-wedlock childbearing.

Critics of the original program said it would throw millions of children into poverty, and in fact, the opposite has occurred. Poverty rates of black children and children in single-parent families are now at the lowest point in our Nation's history. TANF requires people to work as a condition of receiving aid.

Food stamps continue to provide a long-term one-way handout. Work requirements are virtually nonexistent, and they are nonexistent in the proposal put forward by the Senate, the one this motion is designed to have our conferees accept.

So which of us is in fact here pro-family, which of us is in fact pro-Latino, if they continually reference that as part of this debate? Is it those who would suggest that welfare, especially the handout that does not have any work requirement tied to it, is not the best thing that we can do to the people of this country?

By all accounts, by empirical evidence, it is no longer theory, we now have 6 years of evidence to show that work requirements and a different kind of philosophy with regard to welfare is better. It does reduce poverty rates. It does do better things for families.

□ 1645

So I certainly take it as a personal affront when someone suggests that I would promote something that is anti-family, anti-Latino or any of the other anti-arguments that were thrown against it. I suggest to my colleagues that it is exactly the opposite.

Creating another system of welfare without the kind of requirements that TANF has intrinsically brought to bear in this discussion is anti-family. That is what we can do to screw up families; to increase poverty is to expand this program of food stamps. My opposition to this plan is not designed to be anti-family. It is just the opposite.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SOLIS).

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, what an interesting debate to talk about welfare when I know we are really trying to talk about hunger and poverty and children and the fact that legal immigrant children should not be treated differently just because maybe they speak a different language. Maybe they have parents from another country. Maybe they even have parents who are serving this country in the military. Some of those very parents represent children in my district. They are serving us right now proudly in Afghanistan and my colleagues are telling them that they cannot have food on the table, that they are not going to get a meal even though their dad or mom is probably out there serving our country on a 24-hour watch.

That is what we are talking about. The face of these children is not someone who just came over the border, and let me further say that some of these immigrant families, a majority happen to be children. They are not all on welfare. Many of them just lost their jobs. Believe it or not, there is a recession that is going on; and in our districts where unemployment is up to 9 and 10 percent, there are people who are very hungry.

They are not looking necessarily for a free handout. They are going to have to be here for 4 years and work. They are going to have to be here to prove themselves worthy of this kind of assistance that our great country should make available.

I think immigrants come to this country because they know there is a better life here for them; but most come with the thought that they are going to be working hard, and we should justly support this motion to instruct the conferees to reinstate those benefits and allow for children as well as seniors and as well as families, working families who are in this situation now, where recession is hitting them hard, they do not have enough food to provide three meals a day.

Some are lucky enough at school, our children, that they get maybe a snack there; and my colleagues are telling them that they cannot have the opportunity to have a full stomach for tonight. I think that is a bad message to send.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

I would say to the gentlewoman that I agree with a couple of the points she made, but the problem is she has not read the section that the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) has cited of the Senate bill that he wants us to support because that section provides nothing for children who have been here for less than 5 years.

The proposal that we put forward covers children, refugees and disabled individuals who have been here less than that time, but she also said something else that is very important.

She said people would have to have been here and to have worked in order to receive these benefits, but the proposal that the gentleman from California asks us to support has absolutely no work-history requirement in it whatsoever, whereas the proposal we have put forward has a work-history requirement.

That is what we are asking for. Do not do this blindly. Let us help the people who truly need the help, but let us not give a blank check to people who have not contributed to our society.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, how much time do I have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FERGUSON). The gentleman has 12 minutes remaining.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, it is great to be on the floor with a distinguished colleague like the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA), and I thank him so very much for his leadership on this issue along with my colleagues.

It is equally interesting to be on the floor with my distinguished colleague from the Committee on the Judiciary, and let me frame the argument that I believe has limited merit. I do not even know why we are here arguing a point that is obvious.

It is interesting, when we were looking and debating the H-1B visas, giving benefit to individuals who would come in and give businesses opportunities for enhanced talent from other countries, we had no opposition from the other side. In fact, it was a midnight train that they passed the H-1B visas because those individuals were of a certain economic level, and no one had any anti-immigrant conversation at that time. In fact, they were rolling across those of who were talking about jobs and the opportunity for Americans to be trained in high technology.

Interestingly enough, when we talk about feeding people and making sure that families have the opportunity to apply, that is the distinction here. These are not handouts. The provisions that the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) is supporting is simply saying that people have an opportunity to, as a legal resident, to apply if they are in need. That is a legal resident who has worked. That is a legal resident who has children. That is a legal resident who is disabled. It is a legal resident who is fighting in the United States military right now, putting themselves on the line and offering themselves so that we might live free.

When it is good for the goose, and high profile, expensive businesses, roll over the folks over here on the other side of the aisle. Vote on it when we are in airplanes, gone in the dark of night or in the late of day; but when it comes to dealing with people who are in need and they are making a point, suggesting that we are throwing food stamps all over the world, we are not. It is an application process, based upon a criteria of need; and if someone does not need it, they will not get it.

This is a sham and a shame. I think we should support the gentleman from California's (Mr. BACA) motion to instruct, and we have got to realize that legal residents are serving this country and fighting for Americans and deserve fairness and equality.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. BECERRA).

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time, and I hope that the debate is not as confusing to folks who are watching this as to those of us who are sitting here and listening.

I want to first commend the gentleman from Virginia for his effort to try to deal with this issue. I do not believe he goes far enough, but I do want to recognize that my friend and colleague from Virginia has made some efforts; and he has always, I know, in committee made efforts to try to be reasonable, and quite honestly I believe is someone who has his heart in the right place. So I want to make sure I mention that.

The issue for many of us is that the proposal that I believe the gentleman from Virginia is bringing up that conferees from the Republican side of the aisle brought to the conference for discussion while it did do a good job when it came to children, it did not do a good job for the parents of those children; and as a result, many of the conferees on the Democratic side had to oppose the proposal by the gentleman.

If the gentleman would be willing to put forth his proposal with regard to his children and the disabled and with refugees and then we work out the disagreement with regard to adults, I think we could go somewhere because I think all of us want to take care of kids. None of us want to see a child go to school malnourished, because we know from our own experience, forget about the research. From our own experience as parents, what happens if a child goes to school hungry?

So we can get somewhere, and I believe there is a fix here; but I would hope that we would not undermine the ability to help families who are working. We are not talking about families on welfare, families who are working to make sure they sustain their families at the basic level.

We are not talking about giving these folks a chance to go buy the lollipops and the Popsicle and all the extra stuff. We are talking about basic food stuffs. Remember that the people we are talking about are for the most part working American families that have not yet become citizens, but have been here for quite some time; and the study shows most of them work longer hours than do most native-born Americans.

Unfortunately, because they work in jobs for the most part that pay $7.50 an hour or less, about 42 percent of those work in those kind of jobs, they have a hard time. They are working. They do not get benefits. They have no health care. They are the people that are mowing our lawns, caring for our seniors, for our grandparents. They are the people who are caring for our kids; and because those are professions, those are occupations which we have not yet in this country come to recognize as valuable, believe it or not, caring for our kids, the people who care for our kids we pay them less than $7.50 an hour, they suffer especially during recessions.

All we are saying, let us not do it to folks who are trying to do it the right way, not by applying for welfare: working, working long hours, working two jobs. Let us help them make sure that their kids are fed decently. Let us make sure we do not make them have to miss a rent payment to feed their kids, and we could do that without causing others to suffer.

I believe this is something we can work out. We should support this motion to recommit by the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA).

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. BECERRA) for his kind words, and we are trying to work this out. I would say to him, however, that this motion to instruct conferees is not well geared toward accomplishing that because it only deals with the section of the Senate bill that covers the 5 years and above. It does not take care of children, refugees, and disabled individuals who have been here a shorter period of time; and so that, I think, is why this is counterproductive.

The President has also shown considerable leadership on this issue. He would like to provide assistance for noncitizens who have been here for 5 years or more as lawful, permanent residents of the United States; but the fact of the matter is that when we do that we have got to have some guidelines. We have got to have some standards of what kind of work history they need to have shown before they get it and how long these benefits are going to be available to them.

That is all we ask is to work that out, but supporting this motion to instruct the conferees moves us in the opposite direction, does not move us toward that.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), the minority whip.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr.

BACA) for yielding me the time and for his leadership on this very, very important issue to this Congress and to this country.

Mr. Speaker, every day our country is blessed by the coming to our great country of many, many immigrants. We are constantly, as a society, reinvigorated by their courage, by their determination, by their family values, by their commitment to community and to a brighter future in America.

Every day from the day they arrive and throughout the contributions they make to our country it is a blessing to us. Indeed, I think just about every person in this House and in this room certainly at this time is a product of those aspirations and dreams.

Then it is sad to see how those immigrants to our country before they become citizens, but while they are legal immigrants, are not valued by our country. Many of them work, and I have good news for our colleague. The gentleman from California's (Mr. BACA) motion to instruct does allow children to be eligible for food stamps regardless of when they enter the country.

So the concern that the gentleman raised that the gentleman from California's (Mr. BACA) motion does not address children and their needs is incorrect, and I know that that will be good news to him; and his amendment and his motion to instruct does address work and does have a worker requirement in it, and it does allow refugees to be eligible for food stamps without a time limit. So the concerns that he raised, saying that his motion did not address it, I am happy to inform my colleague that he does because he is asking us to agree to the Senate language.

This is really unfortunate because it is the third incident in less than 2 months where the Republicans have brought to the floor amendments or motions which are unfriendly to newcomers to our country. We saw this first during the campaign finance reform bill where one Republican Member even referred to legal permanent residents in the United States who were not citizens as potential enemies of the State.

We saw it in the debate on 245(i), which is a very important correction in our immigration bill where we only won that vote by one vote, and some Republicans did vote for it, but many voted against it and voted with the Republicans who wanted to squelch that important initiative to the immigrant community.

What we are talking about today is really about fairness, fairness to our newcomers as our ancestors had anticipated and hoped for fairness when they came here.

We talk about family values. Nowhere are those family values stronger than the immigrant community. We talk about living the American dream and aspiring for a better life. Those people bring courage to our country. They are a constant source of invigoration to our society, and I hope that my colleagues will support the amendment of the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA). A family of four with two wage earners making the minimum wage are still eligible for Food Stamps because the minimum wage is so low.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington (Mr. INSLEE).

(Mr. INSLEE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for bringing this motion which I support. I would just suggest that there are two things that are pretty much universal in our country that ought to support this motion. One thing that is universal is the presence of hunger in all parts of the country. The reason that I have come to the floor to share the story that I represent, in a sense, a very upscale area. There are a lot of software millionaires in my district. I represent Microsoft Corporation. But even at the height of the economic boom in the year 2000, the food banks in my area of Washington were experiencing an increase of people coming into the food bank from anywhere from 12 to 50 percent depending on what time of the year.

I think that story is an untold story across America. Even in the midst of great prosperity, we have had individuals, because we have a wage structure in this country that does not sufficiently honor work for a lot of folks, that they are still hungry.

The second thing that I think is universal in this country, or ought to be, is respect for everyone that works at every wage level. I represent a lot of people who work in software countries, many of whom are legal immigrants, who are fairly well compensated, and their work is absolutely fundamental to the American economy. But I hope Members will agree with me that people who are working in our nursing homes caring for our parents, the people who are cooking our food in our restaurants, the people who are working in the hospitals helping clean the ER rooms after surgery of our relatives, those people deserve the same level of dignity and the same level of respect and legal protection as other folks who are here legally in this country working over 5 years.

Mr. Speaker, I would submit those two universalities of this country, which are pockets of hunger, and respect for all levels of dignity of work, ought to merit that we pass this motion and do it proudly, and turn our back to the sad statement that some people have been making lately in this Chamber that legal residents somehow are unAmerican.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2½ minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I agree with much of what the gentleman from Washington

(Mr. INSLEE) said, but the problem is when he refers to lawful citizens working over 5 years, what the gentleman is asking us to support has no such work requirement in it. I think it is certainly negotiable within the conference, within the House and Senate Committees on Agriculture that are meeting to work this out, that we could come up with a work history requirement that would be acceptable for both sides. But the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) does not have that in the language that he refers to in the Senate bill. For that reason, I have to oppose this motion.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOODLATTE. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I thought there was a work requirement of 16 quarters?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, it is an either/or work requirement. Someone can be here 5 years and never work a day, or be here for 16 quarters of work and qualify, not both. That is the crux of the matter. There has got to be a work history requirement for an able-bodied adult, and there is no such requirement in the motion.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOODLATTE. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman in favor of the 5 years if the 16-quarter requirement is there?

Mr. GOODLATTE. We certainly could work that out. The proposal we put forward was 20 quarters.

Mrs. CLAYTON. But there was also a time line? It was only for 3.5 years?

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, we limit it to 2 years, I believe, in the offer.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would continue to yield, would the gentleman be willing to remove the time lines and give legal residents the same right?

Mr. GOODLATTE. No, because an individual, after they have been here for 5 years is a lawful, permanent resident, and they are entitled to apply for United States citizenship. And if there is a need to have benefits extended for a longer period of time, they have that option.

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman and I both know it takes a long time and is very expensive for people to become legal citizens, and tying food and hunger to citizenship is very difficult.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, that is why we allowed 2 years. That is a very long time to apply for citizenship. Almost all of the people who apply get their citizenship within 2 years.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT), the minority leader.

(Mr. GEPHARDT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I urge Members to vote "yes" on this motion. There have been some intimation here that this is a political debate. This is not a political debate. It is about people putting food on their table for their family and their children.

Last week in conference, House Republicans blocked a proposal to restore Food Stamps to legal immigrants. It is a proposal that has the support of House Democrats, the Senate, and the Bush administration. It benefits over 350,000 people. It helps keep people from starving until they can put food on their table on their own, and it provides a safety net for those less fortunate and need assistance.

House Republicans sought to block it, and block it they did. This is a responsible proposal, and it is simply the right thing to do. Legal immigrants who work hard, live by the rules, pay taxes, even serve in our Armed Forces deserve access to Food Stamps. Equal treatment, fair treatment, we should be promoting these values. But instead of supporting policies that embody these values, Republican House leaders prefer to dole out subsidies to corporate farms.

In this debate, that is their priority. In this debate, this is what they decided to do. It is bad policy and it is wrong to send people a message that responsibility is a value that we are going to ignore. Legal immigrants have not had access to Food Stamps in the past 5 years. In the past 5 years, children have gone hungry as a result. This Congress should not end until we have taken action to restore Food Stamps to legal immigrants. We should reward the value of hard work. We should reward immigrant families who strengthen our economy and our cultural life. Let us restore Food Stamps. Let us get the job done this year. Vote "yes" on the Baca motion.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, in response to the gentleman from Missouri, what has transpired in the conference regarding the farm bill has been inaccurately portrayed. The Senate tendered to the House a proposal that had nothing in it for the children, the refugees, and the disabled individuals that the minority leader referred to.

We tendered an offer which provided Food Stamps for noncitizens who have been here from day 1 if they are disabled, they are children or if they are refugees.

The difference of opinion between the House and the Senate conferees in terms of our proposals are that for those people who are adults, they are able-bodied, they are able to work and between the ages of 18 and 60, they ought to have some work history and be able to show that they were contributing, tax-paying members of our society; but they do not require that in the proposal that the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA) has set forth. That is why I am opposed to this motion to instruct conferees.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDO).

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman from California earlier suggested that if we did not pass this motion, that this would be a signal to people coming into the country that we were denying them the American dream.

We have gone from suggesting that some help may be needed for families here who are not employed sufficiently, to saying that essentially welfare is the American dream. That this is what we should hold out, this is the carrot that we should hold out to people, because part of the American dream is access to welfare.

We have heard continual references to the degradation that would be the result of nonpassage of this motion and continuing the process of restricting Food Stamps to people who are not citizens for a period of time. But listen to what degradation, in fact, occurs. This is all documented. The reports from which I quote are reports that are available to anyone in this body. Again, they are empirical information. It is not something that we just make up or theorize about with regard to the effects of especially Food Stamps.

"The traditional welfare system comprised of programs such as AFDC, Food Stamps and public housing dramatically undermined work ethic, reduced employment and generated long-term dependence. For example, the Seattle-Denver Income Maintenance Experiment, a massive controlled experiment on effects of welfare conducted in the early 1980s, showed that for each additional dollar of welfare aid led, on average, to a reduction of employment and earnings of 80 cents. These anti-employment effects should apply to cash as well as noncash aid."

Mr. Speaker, this is what we are trying to avoid. I suggest, and I must say that I would go further than the gentleman from California, I do not believe that Food Stamps are an improvement on one's condition. I do not think it is a good thing. I would be opposing an expansion for any group; but I guarantee, it is not a good thing for the people that we are identifying here. As all empirical evidence suggests, welfare, especially the old AFDC program and Food Stamps, are degrading.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, first I commend the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDO) for his contribution, standing up for welfare reform. This was a tremendous triumph, a bipartisan triumph, a law signed into effect by President Clinton, that was pushed by the Republican Congress, supported by a great many Democrats, and he is simply, and I agree with him, trying to avoid unnecessary erosion of an important principle, and that is we should be giving people a hand up rather than a hand out.

Mr. Speaker, with regard to the motion to instruct conferees, the Republican offer in the conference is to give people a hand up and to help those people who are most in need: Children, the disabled and refugees. We also make Food Stamps available for others if they have a work history, and we make it available to them for a limited period of time.

What the gentleman from California is asking the House to accept in terms of what the Senate put forward does absolutely nothing for children who have been in this country for less than 5 years.

Secondly, it does not impose a work requirement that is not independent of the 5-year standard. In other words, what he is asking us to say is you can either have worked or been here 5 years, one or the other. You do not have to have both. That is not the position of the President of the United States, that is not the position of the House conferees, and it should not be what this House adopts as we take these negotiations forward.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this motion to instruct conferees and let the negotiations go forward in a good-faith way to come up with something that is fair to those people who are truly in need but does not give a blank check to people who have not contributed to our society and, therefore, have no work history to justify receiving these benefits.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

First of all, I thank the gentleman from Virginia in reference to the debate, but I think he has not really read the bill and does not have his facts together. The bill itself and the instructions do have a work requirement. Apparently he opposes the President's proposal that actually states this, and it does have a work requirement. And no individual is eligible unless they have demonstrated that they have worked. So a lot of false statements have been made here. And these people have contributed to our society. They have. These are legal, permanent individuals who have contributed to our society, who have worked, are working citizens, are taxpayers who have contributed. These are individuals who are veterans and children who deserve assistance.

This is about meeting our needs. This is about allowing legal immigrants who are in the United States for 5 years or more to have the opportunity to apply for food stamps if they are low income. This is the President's proposal. It allows children eligible for food stamps regardless of when they enter the United States. So we talk about not offering to children, yes, we are offering to children. Yes, we are providing assistance to them.

And then it does cover the work requirement, too, as well. This restores the disabled opportunities to apply for food stamps, regardless of the date that they entered. I believe that we have the responsibility to all of us in America to provide assistance for many of our children. We want to make sure that our children are not starving and that our children have an opportunity to go to school on a full stomach. This is the right course. We should support the restoration of the 5-year plan, the plan submitted by the Senate that basically tells us what we should be doing in complying, in helping and assisting many individuals throughout our country.

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Baca Motion to Instruct the Farm Bill Conferees to adopt the Senate provisions that provide eligibility for food stamps to lawfully present, hard-working immigrant families in their time of need.

Legal immigrants are individuals who have played by the rules. They work hard and pay taxes that support the food-stamp program to which they may be denied access if Mr. BACA's motion does not pass.

The fact is that many legal permanent residents lose their jobs because they work in industries hit hardest in times of economic downturn and as a result, lack the finances to buy food for their families.

When you consider that more than one in five low income children belong to legal immigrant families, it is even more unconscionable that in their time of need, they will be denied the most basic of safety-net programs.

As the world's wealthiest nation, it is inexcusable that a high rate of hunger exists among low-income legal permanent resident families living in this country.

We must not allow this tragic situation to continue. No one in this country, especially innocent children, should go hungry.

Therefore, Congress should follow the President's lead and expand access to the food stamp program for these hard-working, legal residents and their children.

Support the Motion to Instruct.

Mr. HINOJOSA. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the motion by the gentleman from California, Mr. BACA. Each day in this country, thousands of children go hungry because their families are ineligible for food stamps. Many of these children are American citizens and many are legal permanent residents.

No matter their status, or the status of their parents, there is no excuse for denying children access to food.

No doubt many Members on the other side of the aisle will oppose this motion. They want to make it impossible for hard working, tax-paying U.S. residents to feed their families just because they are not yet full citizens. We are not talking about people who have come to this country illegally or people who refuse to work.

Legal permanent residents, like our parents and grandparents, have followed the rules and come to America to work for a better life for their families. They serve in our military and in their communities and continue to make this country a vibrant, diverse nation that is the envy of the world.

Despite support by the Administration for benefit restoration, House Republicans continue to stall the Farm Bill conference by opposing help for minorities and the poorest among us. This is wrong, it is unfair and it is not in keeping with the spirit and ideals this nation was founded upon.

I urge my colleagues to support this motion and yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Michigan). All time has expired.

Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA).

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBER TO JOINT ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, and pursuant to 15 United States Code 1024(a), the Chair announces the Speaker's appointment of the following Member of the House to the Joint Economic Committee:

Mr. HILL of Indiana.

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the House amendment to the Senate amendment to H.R. 586 agreed to earlier today.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Colorado?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. JONES of North Carolina addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. WELDON of Florida addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BROWN of Ohio addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

IN MEMORY OF SCOTT BILLINGSLEY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDO) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to deliver a tribute to M. Scott Billingsley, legislative director for Colorado's Sixth Congressional District from December 15, 2001, to March 25, the day of his death.

First and foremost, I am honored today to share with you Scott's dedication to his career, his fellow man and his country. Mr. Speaker, my staff and I were given the great privilege of working with Scott for the last few months of his life. When Scott became my legislative director this past December, he instantly gained my respect and, more importantly, generated a sense of enthusiasm in his office which empowered my staff to reach their personal best and to strive to work toward perfection. Scott's infectious personality and poise drew people close to him. We instantly enjoyed getting to know him and were eager to learn from him.

Scott possessed a rare gift that allowed him to do his job thoroughly, in a way that nurtured the work ethic of his peers while at the same time enabled him to act as a mentor.

Mr. Speaker, we were blessed to have Scott in our lives. Scott will always be remembered as a person who lived life to the fullest, with a passion for knowledge and a sincere desire to make a difference in the lives of those around him and the people of Colorado's Sixth Congressional District.

The news of his sudden death saddened all of us beyond words. His presence is irreplaceable, his character exceptional.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit Scott's eulogy delivered by both his father and fiancée for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

It is important to let history know that Mr. Billingsley was a man who dedicated his life to improve the livelihood of his fellow citizens and America.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I would like to quote a verse from the Bible. In the short time we were blessed with Scott in our lives, we believe he would say these words to help ease the hearts of all those who knew and loved him. The scripture is from Numbers 6:24-26:

"The Lord bless thee and keep thee. The Lord make his face to shine down upon thee and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee and give thee peace."

While losing Scott was tragic, his spirit remains with all of us.

EULOGY BY SCOTT'S FATHER, DR. MICHAEL L. BILLINGSLEY

(MARCH 30, 2002, GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, COLORADO SPRINGS)

To the Family and Friends of Michael Scott Billingsley:

This is the most difficult thing that a father ever has to do, but I must say a few words about our son. Most of you have known and loved Scott for some or all of his 32 years, and I know you are devastated by this loss. His mother and I, his sister, and our family are crushed beyond words, and I don't know if we will ever completely recover from this. Scott and Rebecca have always been our life and our joy. I have no words to express the pain his passing has caused.

We are comforted, however, by our firm belief, that only Scott's physical presence is gone. His spirit is everlasting, and is bound up in that mysterious force, that binds us all together, the Holy Spirit of God.

I will let others recount Scott's accomplishments and attributes. We all know that he achieved much in his short time with us. He was a gifted and talented young man, and contributed a great deal to the lives of all who knew him well.

I would like to focus for a moment on his spirit, the enduring essence of his being. Scott's spirit is fiercely independent. From the beginning, he asserted his uniquely individual style, never egotistical, but always assertive, and firm in his convictions. From his earliest use of words and phrases, Scott was an able debater and advocate. When Rebecca was only 2 years old, and Scott 5, she refused to talk, though able, because she had only to point at something she wanted, and Scott would instantly become her legal counsel, explaining in full sentences what Rebecca really meant to say. I don't remember a time, when he was at a loss for words. Blessed with a keen intellect, and once convinced of the merits of his position, he was a formidable partisan for his issue. His assertiveness was, more often than not, balanced with sincere sense of fairness, and respect for his opponent. His friends will tell you that he was always up to a debate on nearly any issue, and was even occasionally willing to consider other reasonable and well thought out points of view; that is, if he couldn't readily destroy their argument.

Scott's is a loyal spirit. His bonding to kindred souls, regardless of differences of opinion, was remarkable. Some of his best friends were often his polar opposites on world and political views. His spirit was able to transcend those differences and inspire comradeship in many of the "loyal opposition," as he might describe them. Finding and bonding with the essential goodness in others was one of his great strengths. Often through humor and wit, Scott could bridge strong differences in opinion and diffuse anger and confrontation. Scott's sense of humor was treasured by our family. He was always able to bring laughter to even the most contentious family matters. As many of you know, he could incite hysterical laughter in his sister with a mere gesture or an off-hand remark.

The real center of Scott's spirit is love. A great deal of this attribute certainly came from the unending love and nurturing of his mother, his wonderful relationship with his sister, his grandparents, his aunts and uncles, and his cousins. He was fortunate to have many long-lasting close friendships from high school, college, law school, and from his work experiences in Washington. My personal relationship with him was almost perfect. We agreed on almost every philosophical principal. Our last game, a week ago, was a tie. We didn't even have a playoff. All of these life experiences helped develop in Scott a strong sense of compassion and justice. There is more, however, that came from Scott himself. In the past few years, he has developed a closer relationship with God, and had been at last, able to make many life shaping decisions. The most important decision was to marry Katie, his soul-mate, to whom he had dedicated his life. She brought him great joy, laughter, and fulfillment. His mother and I know that since meeting Katie, he had more direction and contentment than ever before. After a recent reunion with Scott, Rebecca remarked that she had never seen so much happiness and joy in her brother's life. Our hearts weep for you Katie, God bless you.

Something that I had not been able to verbalize before, has occurred to me over the past few days. It is the realization that Scott is a rare and very special person, who has the gift of connecting to people in a way that most of us can only wonder at and admire. Scott is one of the glue people that hold us together, who can transcend our differences and make us feel part of the same whole. I have known a few other extraordinary people like this, whose presence remains with me, and we all have these feelings for members of our families. But Scott had a special ability to connect with even those of short acquaintance, to build and maintain special ties. I believe that God was and is doing his work, through Scott, and continues to use his spirit to connect us. His mother, sister, Katie, and I have certainly felt his continuing presence, as I am sure many of you have also. Let Scott's life, and continuing presence, help us all understand this binding of our spirits, the inescapable conclusion that we are not alone, now and forever.

We will miss your person so much, Scott, but we will always be comforted knowing that your spirit lives. This is not the end, but only the beginning. We know that you will always be with us, by the grace of God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

“SCOTT'S FAITH” BY KATIE MCNERNEY

(MARCH 30, 2002, GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, COLORADO SPRINGS)

I look out today to a group of people, most of whom have known Scott far longer than me. During the last 10 years in DC, he was physically quite far away, although I know he did a great job of staying in touch by phone and e-mail and occasional visits. I thought it would be helpful to take some time to share with you some of the more recent aspects of Scott's life. After 3½ years of spending nearly every day with him, I was blessed to witness the increasing growth of this remarkable man I called my fiancé, best friend and soul mate. I'd like to start talking about Scott by focusing on an area of his life that not many people knew about. His faith. When we first met, Scott and I were at about the same place in our spiritual lives. Scott's parents, grandparents, and other family and friends clearly influenced his strong value system and his faith. Similarly I was raised in a conservative Christian family, but neither of us felt very comfortable using Jesus' name in conversation and we were often wary of those who did. However, in the last few years, Scott and I together shared a number of experiences that introduced us to a new faith and began a relationship with Jesus that strengthened over time.

One of those experiences involved a routine surgery two years ago. After an adverse reaction to anesthesia, Scott's heart stopped and he had to be resuscitated, three times. When the doctor came into the waiting room and told me the news, my shock and fear quickly turned to relief and gratitude because Scott was going to be okay. And he was going to be okay. Scott left the ICU with a new perspective on life. And it's not like what you see in the movies when people all of the sudden start giving away their worldly possessions or vow to find the cure for cancer. Instead, Scott started focusing internally on how he could become a better person. And as you already know he was starting from an excellent foundation. But he knew there was something missing in his life.

We began to pray together, sometimes in thanksgiving for having found each other, our soul mates, and sometimes out of pain for friends who we lost or family tragedies or even challenges at work. Scott started joining me for church regularly and began to like the weekly practice. Of course, the hours after mass were the times when Scott really loved to debate the sermon with me. And, of course, he'd always win. But I could hear the passion in his voice and see the changes he was making in his life. Over time, this was one of the many ways that Scott and I fell in love. We were putting Christ at the center of our relationship and, if you can imagine a triangle with Jesus at the top, and Scott and me at the other angles, the closer we each moved to Jesus, the closer we moved to each other. Scott loved that image, and he became increasingly committed to making sure he was growing spiritually individually and together with me. Last fall, Scott began meeting with a good friend on Capitol Hill for regular Bible studies. Scott and I also enrolled in the Alpha Course, a course on Christianity many churches offer for new Christians or ones that need some brushing up. For those of you who knew Scott, he mastered the art of arriving fashionably late to most things, but to the Alpha Course he was on time, every week. Even in the midst of some of the busiest months at his job, he would leave work right at 6:30, pick me up, and we would drive over to the Falls Church together.

Last Thursday, Scott asked me to meet him for lunch, something we didn't often have a chance to do during the work week. He wanted to attend a forum by the Faith and Politics Institute. Heather Mercer, the young woman who was held in captivity by the Taliban for 90 days last fall, was there to address a small group of Congressmen and aides. I got the invitation at 12 noon and by 12:30, Scott and I were in the Longworth Building listening in awe as Heather recounted the story of her heroic and faith-filled mission. At one point, when Heather was describing that she loved the Lord so much that she was willing to give her life, Scott reached out and took my hand in his. His eyes welled with tears, as did mine, and I knew then that Scott had truly accepted Jesus as his savior. I was blessed to have witnessed Scott's spiritual growth and his family and I are at peace knowing that he is now with his everlasting father in heaven.

On Tuesday night, more than 40 people back in DC gathered to pay tribute to Scott and shared remarkable stories. A recruiting theme was Scott's unwavering passion for everything he did. At work, his love for sports, and his love for his family and friends. Scott approached his work with more passion than anyone I knew. From the moment he arrived to work until he left at night, oftentimes late into the night, he was committed to making sure his government was doing the right thing. Scott never questioned the value of his work or contributions. As a lawyer, you'd think this conviction would have made him want to be a prosecutor. But Scott also had a deep passion for policy. Just last week, Scott spent days working on the new immigration legislation for his congressman. After just spending a day on the Hill watching the legislation being made, I asked Scott about his day. Of course, he quoted Bismarck that you should never watch two things being made “sausage and legislation”. Despite his exhaustion, for the next three hours, he explained to me all the intricate details of immigration reform and why Congressman Tancredo was so right. For “fun”, we spent the next Saturday morning watching a video on INS reform.

Prior to joining Congressman Tancredo's office, Scott took on one of his most important professional responsibilities, to bring justice to the former Presidential Administration's irresponsible handling of the pardons for the House Government Reform Committee. The Final report, released just weeks ago, is a clear reflection of Scott's diligence, consistent commitment to the pursuit of justice, and his dedication to his job and his co-workers. The report is one of those tangible reminders that we have of Scott's intelligence and his love of public policy. The Committee often required long hours of wading through document after document and typing up pages upon pages of footnotes. Scott never complained and once, when a co-worker was staying late with the team, despite it being her boyfriend's birthday, Scott called her later to apologize. It wasn't anyone's fault. It was their job, but Scott felt compassion for his friend. Scott was a wonderful teacher and always shared what he knew about issues with people. I work in a mostly Democrat office, so as the lone Republican, I relied on Scott for material. He would often get e-mails from me two and three times a day saying “okay, how would you debate this issue and give me some facts to back it up” just so I could go back to my office mates with all my vast knowledge. No matter what he was doing or how busy he was, he would send two or three articles within two minutes, and he would add a line at the bottom of the e-mail saying “Go get'em, sweetie.”

Scott also loved to travel and learn about geography, languages, different cultures, and new people. There were few times, if any, where you didn't walk away from the conversation with Scott and not have learned something. The one book on his dresser that never collected dust was Scott's atlas. He loved looking something up and reading about places all over the world, places he hoped we would visit someday. This Christmas, Scott bought me an atlas, so he could have an extra copy at my place too! He would point out places he had visited like Brazil, where he lived in Germany, and where he visited in Italy for work in Dec. 2000. We joked with him that the trip to Italy was a boondoggle, but Scott genuinely felt that the trip's mission, to combat organized crime, was of critical importance. He also had fun stories when he returned, of being in the real town of Corleone. Isn't it ironic, he told me, that they stamped out crime in most of Sicily? In a weird way, Scott was saddened by this. The Godfather was his favorite movie.

Scott was so full of love, for his parents, Diane and Mike, whom he adored and whom he could not wait to return to Colorado to be near, for his sister Rebecca whom he so admired for her intelligence, strength of character, and sense of humor. Last night, I spent a few hours talking with Scott's high school friends. Of course, they were recounting stories that I had heard from Scott a hundred times before. I am in awe of the friendships that Scott created—life long friendships that Scott cultivated with great care. Steve, Joe, Mark and Mike were just a few of his closest high school friends. He had many others from college and law school, Andy, Rob, Vinnie, Adam, and Dan. His friends from Colorado and DC, Eric and Jen. If I've forgotten anyone, please forgive me. You know how much Scott loved you all, and he is honored here by your presence.

Of all the things that Scott gave me, the one thing I think will most sustain me is his sense of humor. We laughed hard. He had an array of talents in impersonations. He perfectly imitated the President's "I'm the governor of Texas" line. With his jokes, Scott could bring tears to my eyes. Mike Myers was one of his favorite comedians, and Scott did the best impression of Fat Bastard (Can I say that in church?) Please forgive me. He loved South Park, the Jerky Boys, and did a mean impression of James Brown.

Now, people pass away every minute of every day, but I find it especially fitting, that we are gathered here on Holy Saturday, the day the Christian faith weeps over the loss of our Lord's only son. We weep with God, but like Jesus, Scott is not sad. We are the ones that are sad. You see, Scott is already with God. The moment his last breath left his body on Monday, March 25th, was the moment that Jesus took his hand and brought him home to a beautiful place, to a place where Scott could be with his grandfather, uncle, Farfie, and Fritz and, as his friend Vin pointed out, all the philosophers and political theorists. In fact, he might not even be listening to us now because he's too busy telling off Rousseau.

Scott, we feel your presence with us, and we will love you and keep you in our hearts forever.

EQUAL PAY FOR WOMEN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, Tuesday was Equal Pay Day. That is the day when women rise to say they are not being equally paid. A year and 4 months into the next year is how long women had to wait this year in order to earn what the average man earned. I feel Equal Pay Day, I suppose, stronger than most. I feel like I have been working for equal pay for women at least half of my life. I am a former Chair of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, where I administered the Equal Pay Act. It is amazing to see that this act has not been touched in 40 years. It was the first of the great civil rights acts to be passed. It obviously needs to be revised because it is a very different world with a very different economy from the 1963 economy.

There is a bill here pending, the Paycheck Fairness Act, that would modestly revise this bill. Did we know, for example, that if women and men discuss their wages against the wishes of the employer in the workplace, he can sanction them? The Paycheck Fairness Act would bar that. And did we realize that class actions under the Equal Pay Act are much harder to obtain because the act was passed so early? So it is an unequal civil rights law.

Actually there are two kinds of equal pay. One kind was violated right under our nose. A couple of months ago I went to the Ford Building to see the women who clean the House receive their checks from a class action they won against the Congress of the United States because women who clean our offices were paid a dollar less than men who clean our offices. And they won. This was the first class action brought under the Congressional Accountability Act. All I can say is the women who clean this House and this Senate held us accountable. But then there is another kind of equal pay, and that is the kind that affects the average woman. Senator TOM HARKIN and I have a bill to go at that pay. It goes at jobs that are underpaid because they are stereotyped as female jobs.

Women work in only three sectors: factory, service, and clerical. Those jobs are often paid according to the gender and not the sex. The Fair Pay Act would allow women to sue when the job she is doing is equal in responsibility and in content to the job a man is doing even though that job is not the very same job. It is interesting when you poll, you find that equal pay is among the top one or two issues for the American public. Why is that? Because equal pay is no longer a woman's issue. Equal pay has become one of the great family issues of our time. If there is a working woman in your family, you lose $4,000 annually because one of the breadwinners, or in some cases the only breadwinner, is a woman.

It is time we fixed the Equal Pay Act. It was a great breakthrough in 1963. Almost 40 years later it needs the kind of repair that you would need if you were 40 years old and had not seen a doctor since you were born. The EPA has not seen a doctor. It has not had us tend to it for 40 years. The Paycheck Fairness Act is certainly the place to begin; 194 Democrats have signed on. I am sure many Republicans also agree that this is the year to tell America that we understand that women and men work, that they are in the same families, that when they have been doing the same jobs, similar jobs or comparable jobs, they should be paid equally.

If we did not learn anything else on Equal Pay Day, I hope that is the message we sent. I certainly hope that before this session is out, this Congress will do more than rhetorically recognize the notion of equal pay. Let us pass the Paycheck Fairness Act.

PROTECTING AMERICAN INDIAN LANDS AND ALASKA NATIVE SACRED LANDS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the congressional Native American Caucus, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 2085, the Valley of Chiefs Native American Sacred Site Preservation Act, which would safeguard an area very sacred to a number of Indian tribes, and ask that my colleagues support this bill as well. In addition, I want to comment on the need to protect other threatened American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) sacred lands.

Our many democratic forums establish an opportunity for discussions to take place to better understand the social, economic, legal and political complexity of AI/AN realities, before related legislation is brought to the House Floor for a vote. As Congressional history demonstrates, the decisions we make as Representatives can either positively or negatively impact AI/AN people, and their nations, tribes, bands, villages and communities.

For example, between 1887 and 1934, the U.S. Government took over 90 million acres of land from American Indians without compensation—including sacred lands. More recently, between 1945 and 1968, Congress decided that federal recognition and assistance to more than 100 tribes should be terminated. This termination policy created economic disaster for many American Indians, and their nations, resulting in millions of acres of valuable natural resource land being lost through tax forfeiture sales. This is a primary reason why AI/AN families have the highest poverty level of any group in the country, at a rate of 31 percent on some Indian reservations.

By holding hearings on the impact of legislation related to American Indians and Alaska Natives, Congress moved to rectify its prior decisions by passing self-determination and self-governance policies. As a result of such policies, AI/AN nations and villages have greater control over their lands and resources. They have made great strides toward reversing the economic blight that resulted from previous federal policies, and have revived their unique cultures and nations.

Congress must withstand pressure from those individuals and groups that call for backtracking to old AI/AN policies, such as termination and reduction of AI/AN sovereign rights. We must acknowledge and learn from our mistakes, and not repeat them in the future because AI/AN nations and people are relying upon our commitments.

The United States Constitution recognizes that American Indian Nations are sovereign governments. Hundreds of treaties, the Supreme Court, the President and the Congress have repeatedly affirmed that Indian Nations retain their inherent powers of self-government. In addition, the United States Government is committed to a trustee relationship with the Indian Nations. This trust relationship requires the federal government to exercise the highest degree of care with tribal and Indian lands and resources.

Sacred lands, and ceremonies associated with those lands, are a necessary expression of AI/AN spirituality, and often are key to individual and collective wellness. This necessity is situated deep in the ancient history of these Indian nations and maintains a prominent place in the fact-based stories handed down from one generation to another. Since the coming of the Europeans to these shores in the late 14th Century, these sacred lands have been subject to intrusions and disturbance as settlers laid claim to lands of the AI/AN peoples.

In 1978, Congress passed the American Indian Religious Freedom Act, recognizing the necessity of upholding the protection of AI/AN spirituality within the ambit of the religious freedom guaranteed by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. Unfortunately, litigation in the courts since then to safeguard sacred lands, and the ceremonies associated with those lands, has, for the most part been unsuccessful.

Rather than safeguard sacred lands, these cases have upheld multiple intrusions upon them and maintained a history of subordination of AI/AN spirituality to the interests of dominating groups. Federal government representatives, leaders of historic religions and judiciary members must develop more tolerance and expand their definitions of what constitutes a proper sacred place.

Culture and legal scholar, Davis Mayberry-Lewis, writes: "American Indian religions consider the earth as sacred, whereas the secular culture that surrounds them considers the earth to be real estate. It is hard for the strong to give up their ingrained habit of overpowering the weak, but it is essential if we are to make multiethnic societies like our own work with a minimum of civility."

Anthropologist Elizabeth Brandt states: "The free practice of many Indian religions requires privacy and undisturbed access to culturally and religiously significant sites and their resources. It is irrevocably tied to specific places in the world which derive their power and sacred character from their natural undisturbed state."

Ultimately, how free are we, really, if the first religions of our great country cannot be protected? Therefore I strongly support H.R. 2085, the Valley of Chiefs Native American Sacred Site Preservation Act, which would safeguard an area very sacred to a number of Indian tribes, and ask that my colleagues support this bill as well.

I also call for additional Sacred Land legislation to be developed in consultation with the majority of AI/AN nations in the United States. Furthermore, the establishment of a government-wide, effective, and comprehensive procedure that safeguards the loss of further AI/AN sacred lands must be enacted. We must move swiftly in conjunction with AI/AN nations before more sacred lands, such as Mt. Shasta and Medicine Lake of California, Devil's Tower and Black Hills of South Dakota, to name a few, are further desecrated and damaged.

I ask you, what if, despite your objections to the contrary, your spiritual place was being bulldozed for economic activity or spiked for scaling purposes? How would you feel, what would you think and what would you do? I ask you to support H.R. 2085 and the initiatives I have discussed related to safeguarding the loss of further AI/AN sacred lands.

IN MEMORY OF SCOTT BILLINGSLEY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor to pay tribute to Scott Billingsley. Scott died suddenly and unexpectedly on March 25, 2002. He was only 31 years old.

Scott had served ably as Counsel to the Committee on Government Reform for two years before recently leaving to become Legislative Director for Congressman TANCREDO. In his time with the Committee, Scott displayed the best characteristics of a Capitol Hill professional: idealism, honesty, dependability, and selfless devotion to his work. His endearing spirit and infectious good cheer were a blessing to his co-workers with whom he spent countless long hours and late nights. Everyone who knew Scott liked him, and those who knew him best will love and remember him forever. Scott wanted to make a difference in the world, and he did—not just professionally but personally as well. Others can speak more eloquently about Scott's unique personality, and they have done so in the eulogies that Mr. TANCREDO will place into the RECORD. I want to take this opportunity, however, to say a few words about Scott Billingsley's work for the Committee.

Scott's deeply held belief in the importance of integrity and accountability in government led him to become a Counsel for the Committee on Government Reform. In that position, he played a vital role in our oversight investigations in recent years. Most recently Scott was responsible for drafting the largest and most important section of the Committee's report on abuses of the Presidential pardon power—a chapter on the pardons of Marc Rich and Pincus Green. Scott's work on this chapter represented a substantial share of the final product and formed the solid foundation on which others built. Even though Scott left the Committee before the report was complete, he generously returned to our offices on many occasions to assist the staff in completing what he had begun. He did this under no obligation and on his own time, which says a lot about the kind of person he was. Now, we know how precious little time Scott had left, and we are honored that he chose to spend some of it at the Committee.

Scott's parents—and his fiancée, Katie—should be proud of his professional accomplishments. Scott was an excellent lawyer who chose to defend the principles he held dear. He gladly sacrificed the lure of private sector salaries in favor of public service, working tirelessly to promote what he believed in so passionately. Scott's work reflected his strong conviction that public corruption should be opposed vigorously. His commitment to honesty and integrity in government deserves to be remembered and honored, as does his drive and determination to work toward those goals. Therefore, as a token of our appreciation for his service to the Committee, I will be presenting to Scott's family a special copy of the pardon report on which he worked so diligently—dedicated to the memory of an extraordinary professional: Scott Billingsley.

May he rest in peace.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO U.S. ARMY
STAFF SGT. BRIAN THOMAS CRAIG

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GREEN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with a heavy heart. While serving his country in Afghanistan, U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Brian Thomas Craig, from my hometown of Houston, was killed on Monday, April 15, 2002, in a field near the former compound of the Taliban leader.

I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to the life of a truly brave American.

Brian Craig was twenty-seven years old and had spent the majority of his adult life in service to our nation. He joined the Army in 1993, shortly after graduating from Klein Forest High School, where he was an excellent student.

Yesterday, the Houston Chronicle reported on Brian's truly patriotic life. I would like to share the following excerpt:

A straight-A student with college potential, Craig wanted to join the Army first. A high school social studies teacher, Scott Boyer, who recently died, instilled a sense of patriotism in Craig as they studied the Gulf War. "We knew from his junior year that he would enlist after graduation," said Joe Georgiana, a retired marketing teacher from Craig's high school. "It was always his objective. He never wavered."

Brian is survived by his parents, Pastor Arthur and Barbara Craig, a brother, Kevin Craig and a sister, Elaine Hurtado.

The United States Army goes out every day to make a difference and Brian Thomas Craig certainly did—some days in a small way, some days in a big way, and on April 15, 2002, at the cost of his life. One cannot ask more from our brave military personnel.

The loss of any life is a tragic event. The Book of John, Chapter 15, verse 13 states: "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

I believe this message has a special meaning today and forever. As a father, I cannot begin to understand the pain and heartache felt by the Craig family. I can only say that his death was not in vain, and we all join together to pray for them.

Staff Sgt. Brian Thomas Craig's dedication and devotion to the citizens of our nation serves as a model for those who have dedicated their lives to defending our country and the ideals we hold dear.

It has been said that the ultimate measure of a person's life is the extent to which they made the world a better place. If this is the measure of worth in life, a grateful nation can attest to the success of the life that Staff Sgt. Brian Thomas Craig led.

Brian will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery, a fitting tribute, and a memorial service is planned for Friday at 2:00 p.m. at the First Baptist Church in Houston.

I ask my colleagues in the House of Representatives to join me in expressing our condolences to the Brian Craig family. Our thoughts and prayers are with you.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. KIND addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

CONTRADICTIONS IN NATIONAL SOCIAL PROGRAMS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, our last debate today was very instructive when you combine the last debate of the day, which was a debate about whether or not our great Nation will feed legal immigrants by allowing them into the food stamps program, and you combine that debate with the debate we had earlier about making permanent a tax cut which will provide for the richest people of the Nation further tax relief. The tax cut is equal to four times the size of the budget of the entire Department of Education. It is more than three times as large as the Department of Veterans Affairs or the Department of Transportation.

When you look at that combined with the fact that next week we are going to be discussing the reauthorization of the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families Act, that replacement of the old Aid to Families With Dependent Children, we are looking in America at sort of contradictions. Let us add to that the fact that earlier today we debated the placement of a cap on the farm subsidies act, the farm bill.

The farm subsidies were created in the same spirit that the Aid to Families with Dependent Children was created. It was created in the same spirit as food stamps were created. They were created on the assumption that there are certain Americans who need help. We need a safety net for them. The safety net is there for people who need food, and food stamps were a way to administer and process our assistance to people who need food.

Sometimes there are desperately poor people, most of them are desperately poor, and sometimes they are not so poor, but people who are caught in a temporary situation, where their income falls short and they are unemployed. Even some middle income people unemployed have taken advantage of the food stamp program. If they happen to be legal immigrants, however, we cut them off. In a Nation with plenty, we do not want to give food to legal immigrants.

At the same time, the farm subsidy program is overly generous and has been greatly abused, and the vote we took today was a vote to put a cap on farm subsidies for farmers. Let us forget about the complications of farm corporations, the fact that the agriculture business is not a business of small farmers anymore, but there are often many large corporations benefiting from the farm subsidies.

But it was not supposed to be a program to benefit anybody except those who were at risk of falling through the safety net, so earlier today we prided ourselves on voting to put a cap, to instruct the conferees who are considering the bill now to put a cap on the farm subsidies at $175,000. That is per year, my colleagues. $175,000 per year. That would be the cap. Right now there is no cap, so some get much more than that.

As I progress with this statement tonight, I am going to read some of the examples of the kind of benefits that are being received by America's farmers, who are, after all, not working. They do not have to put in any special volunteer work to do this, to do anything, in order to qualify for the safety net program for farmers. The farm subsidy program is a safety net program for farmers. The food stamp program is a safety net program for hungry Americans.

Legal immigrants, by the way, as one of the speakers pointed out, legal immigrants are allowed to fight in our Armed Forces, and a large number are out there in the Armed Forces right now, and more are being encouraged to enter our Armed Forces. In fact, the recruiting process of our military is such that they are making a special effort to reach immigrant communities. They have set up a large recruitment center just one block from my office in the 11th Congressional District in Brooklyn. They have set up a recruitment center at a place which is a transportation hub for immigrants. Large numbers of people who are immigrants, mostly immigrants from the Caribbean, come through this hub, and they have made an effort to reach them, in particular to get them to sign up for the military. They will reach their quotas faster, because a large percentage ever the people who are now signing up for our military are immigrants.

These people can know go off and fight for America, they can go off to meet our military needs, and yet they are not able to qualify for food stamps. I think one of the speakers previously pointed out that they could not, even if they are soldiers. Some of our soldiers are paid so low that they do qualify, their families do qualify for food stamps, but not if they are legal immigrants. They are soldiers. They can fight and die, but they cannot receive food stamps.

Those are contradictions which I do not think we ought to be content to live with. The American spirit ought to try to wrestle with greater fervor against some of these contradictions. We have, on the one hand, a very generous spirit, which leads us to send food throughout the world. We are feeding people all over the world with surplus American food.

Certainly, long before we were able to bring the Taliban down in Afghanistan, we were delivering food to Afghanistan, and we sometimes dropped food from airplanes. We understand the need for food, the power of food, and yet the contradiction here is we are not willing to feed legal immigrants within our own borders.

That contradiction will be further highlighted next week when we debate the Temporary Assistance for Families in Need bill. We approach families in need in this country with great contempt, and yet those people who are in need are certainly worthy of some help, worthy of being caught up in the safety net. They are falling in the safety net that is designed for them as much as for anybody else. I will talk a little bit about that.

If we have to talk in military terms, we will talk in military terms. We are all concerned about the fight against terrorism. We are all concerned. The first line of defense is, of course, to deal with the people who have attacked us and to confront them head on and to hit them where their bases are and to break up their whole conglomeration of evil and terror, and I applaud the President for moving in that manner.

I do not consider myself a hawk. I would generally be called a dove. But I think when we moved against bin Laden and the stronghold bin Laden had in Afghanistan, it was the right move. But in order to do that, we move with human beings, and many of those human beings are people who are the sons and daughters of folks that we hold in contempt back in America when we do the Temporary Assistance to Families in Need.

In other words, I am saying that a large number of the people who go off to fight our wars are poor people, and for us to take a position that we have contempt for them and we want to harass them and drive them off the welfare rolls and force them to go to work for less than minimum wage through "workfare" programs, what we are doing is attacking the people who are providing the foot soldiers, the foot soldiers to keep America great, to keep America free, to fight our battles.

I am going to talk a little later about the fact I have done an analysis of who dies in the wars, who died in World War I, who died in World War II, and who our casualties in Vietnam were. They were mostly poor, from the urban centers and from the rural areas. They were mostly poor soldiers, our foot soldier class.

We do not like to think of classes in America. We say there is no class warfare in America. That is an accurate statement. There is no class warfare, because the poor do not have any advocates. They do not have anybody to fight for them, so it is not warfare. There is no warfare. The rich are in control thoroughly, and the tax bill that we passed today is just one more indication of how thoroughly they control our American democracy.

Yes, you can have a democracy where the people vote against their own interests, or you can have a democracy where people act against their own interests, because those who do not vote are acting against their own interests. We know even in presidential elections, something close to 49 percent of the people do not go out to vote. If in our presidential elections, our most important elections, you only have 51 percent of the people voting, you can imagine how that falls down as you go down to the Senate, the House, local State and elected officials.

Those who do not vote have nobody to blame in the final analysis but themselves in a democracy, but their actions are part of a process by which the majority interests are not served in a democracy. A democracy allows a minority to usurp their prerogatives and to act in their interests. The tax bill that was passed today is an example of that.

The tax cuts represent the worst kind of priorities. What we do here in Washington and in the House is always an important thing involving priorities, how you set priorities, how you make use of available resources.

When I get back to my district, like during the period where we had a long work period, in my district I am constantly confronted by people that have special questions about what are you doing down there that makes any difference to me? Why are you not doing something to relieve my particular problems here?

Senior citizens are upset by the fact that in New York City now the Department for the Aging is cutting Meals-on-Wheels. They are proposing to close down some services for senior citizens, to make them pay a greater share for their lunches. They want to know what are you doing in Washington for me?

Well, the problem in New York is probably partially a problem of deep budget cuts because of a great loss of revenue caused by the fact that the World Trade Center was the heart of our financial districts and the financial district was a great generator of tax money, of revenue. So the folks in New York, senior citizens, are suffering from the budget cuts because of the fact that bin Laden and the al Qaeda terrorist network chose as a target a piece of America that happened to be in New York City.

He was not attacking New York City or senior citizens in the communities of Brooklyn. He does not care about the senior citizens in Brownsville and in East New York or Flatbush. He does not care about the people of New York. The terrorists and the people who attacked the World Trade Center were attacking the United States of America, but the suffering is disproportionately being borne by the people of New York City at this point.

Yes, we are getting a large amount of money to rebuild the Trade Center.

The President has promised more than $20 billion to rebuild and take care of the reconstruction and the removal of the wreckage and to help the businesses in the financial area. But there is no program that seeks to deal with the loss of revenue. There is no program offering New York City any assistance for the great loss of revenue which leads to the cuts in senior citizens programs or the loss of revenue which leads to the cuts in education, the school budget.

Now, that is not a phenomenon unique to New York. All over the country we are having problems with our school budgets. We have documented that in our Committee on Education and Workforce, that the majority of the States are cutting school budgets, cutting their aid to education, and localities are finding the necessity to cut aid to education.

So, what does it have to do with us here in Washington? We could, instead of giving a huge tax cut to the richest people in America, we could give more aid to education. I just said before that the tax cut that we voted, that the majority of the House voted, I certainly voted against it, along with most of the members of the Democratic Party, we voted against it, but we are outnumbered here, so the House voted for a tax cut which is four times as large as the budget for the entire Department of Education.

That is significant, that at a time when we are forced to make cuts in our school budgets, we get no more aid from the Federal Government than we get during prosperous times. One would say, well, there is the old adage about education being the responsibility of the States, the responsibility of localities, so why do you keep bringing up education as a Federal responsibility?

Well, education is our number one national security issue. We are a high-tech society. Our military is high-tech. Our ability to defend ourselves and to bring down the terrorist network in Afghanistan or anywhere else depends on high technology.

Even in small matters, and I do not want to invade the territory of the military experts, but even in small matters, which are not so small, I guess, even in matters which are detailed in terms of our performance on the battlefield, we are losing more men and women, more of our combatants on the battlefield, through human error in this war than we have as a result of enemy engagements.

We just lost the lives of four Canadians because of human error. One of our planes fired into a Canadian group just yesterday, and, if you hear all the different explanations for it, it was really human error. The pilot was not given an order to fire, because they were checking out the area. The information his headquarters had was greater than the information he had, and he panicked and fired, and human error cost four more lives.

We have lost a number of other lives as a result of human errors. It is not grounds for a detailed analysis of the war, but it is just one more indication of the fact that a high-tech army, high-tech military, will require more and more well-educated people in order to minimize human error. So even in the matter of combat, education becomes very important.

But the infrastructure which produces the weapons and the whole system that keeps our economy strong and allows us to afford a first-rate military is all dependent on education. So here we are at a time when education is suffering, and we are extending the tax cut to the richest people in America; and that is a part of the great contradiction. We have what I referred to in an earlier rap poem that I read a few weeks ago; we have great angels in America who understand our particular point, our pivotal point in history at this point. They understand that we are the key to civilization, which we are. Whether civilization goes forward and realizes its full potential or rolls backward and is caught up in the jaws of people like bin Laden who say that all the folks who want to roll back history, take away freedoms, oppress women, have no use for democracy and votes.

Mr. Speaker, the world is governed by more governments that are not democratic than are democratic. The world has leaders in power who have contempt for women, who have contempt for minorities. We are not in such good shape if we look over the entire Earth and we look at what is happening in terms of the leadership and the governments and those in control. We are at a pivotal point; and we are leading the charge for a more civilized world, a world where everybody has a right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, where we are in favor of equal rights for all. As I said in my poem, "Let's Roll, America" a few weeks ago, we can sing the high hallelujah note, because all of our races and women can vote. We can celebrate that.

In every language of the Earth, to the country of all nations, we have proudly given birth. All of the languages of the earth, those immigrants that some people want to deny food stamps for, they are part of what we have created. We have created a nation where all languages are spoken. We have created a nation where all of the people of the Earth aspire to get here and be a part of it.

I do not subscribe at all and do not have any patience for the notion that Americans are the objects of great anger, that people despise us. That is ridiculous. Throughout the world, most people, ordinary people, the vast majority of people, they envy us perhaps, and they admire us more so than despise us. There is a leadership out there that feels that it is on the spot. They do not produce for their people. They use the resources of their nations to make the rich richer. They do a lot of things that lead them to want to see America removed from the scene because we are examples of how a government and a nation can work for all of the people, all of the people.

We are an example of how you create a consumer market by being just, by having fair wage laws, by having working conditions, benefits, pension plans, all of which work and really do not swindle the people and that works. There is a lot of business leaderships and military leaders and government leaders across the world who hate that because they like to see those kinds of components of a government and of a civilization not displayed because they do not want to offer it to their own people.

So we are not hated in the world. The majority of the people, the ordinary people very much admire Americans because we are what I call "great angels." I said in the same poem, "Let's Roll, America" was the name of the rap poem that I did a few weeks ago, and I said at that time that the Olympics are forever. We will win all the races. We are great angels of tomorrow, with magic mongrel faces. We are a mixture of people but, most of all, the spirit of the great angels is there. The spirit of the great angels is there in competition with the spirit of what I call the giant Scrooges.

The giant Scrooges are always on stage here. The giant Scrooges are in command here in the House of Representatives. They have the majority. They can pass a tax bill which makes it impossible for Social Security to be secure over the next 25 to 50 years. They are the ones who combined, in a bipartisan move, to lock the box and make certain that Social Security would not be threatened. But what this tax cut does is threatens Social Security.

Those seniors back in my district who are worried about food stamps, who are worried about their centers being closed and the lunches that they have at the senior citizen centers, the rate that they pay will be going up, and they are worried about the Meals-on-Wheels programs being shut down. They have bigger worries if the Republicans continue to insist on a pattern of tax cuts that make it impossible to balance our budget, that drive us into deficit. All of this has to be looked at together. The same Republicans who would terrorize and harass welfare mothers, the mothers of the foot soldiers who go off to fight our wars, those same people insist on creating bigger and bigger tax cuts for the rich. They are jeopardizing in the process, they are jeopardizing Social Security, something that every senior considers to be most basic.

The last thing that they will tolerate from me is a statement which tells them that I am a Democrat, I cannot do anything about the forward march toward threatening Social Security, or privatizing Social Security. They do not want to hear from any elected official who says they cannot protect Social Security. And we must understand that there would be a revolution here in this Nation if we continue to threaten Social Security.

The kind of incremental threats that are woven into the Republican tax cuts are hard to get people, it is hard to get people to understand. But in just 1 year, the surplus projections for the next decade have declined by $4 trillion as a result of the Republican tax plan. They have broken the lockboxes by spending trillions of Social Security and Medicare trust funds on other things. The Republicans shamelessly will try to escape blame by pretending that the war on terrorism has caused a $4 trillion loss. Simple arithmetic will tell us that it has not been the case. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the war on terrorism costs $10.2 billion this year. That is a tiny fraction of the unprecedented deterioration and the position of the budget in terms of the surplus.

Where did all the money go? The bulk went to fulfilling Republican campaign promises to pass tax breaks for wealthy contributors to the Republican Party. According to the Citizens for Tax Justice, 37.6 percent of the benefits of the final tax bill will go to the top 1 percent of the income earners in this Nation. Mr. Speaker, 37.6 percent of the benefits of the tax bill will go to the top 1 percent of income earners. These are the giant Scrooges who want to more and more enrich the rich.

We now know that the money for these tax breaks comes from payroll tax contributions that every worker makes to Social Security and Medicare. In the final analysis, that is where the money is. Willy Sutton used to say when he was asked, why do you rob banks, and he would say, that is where the money is. Where do you get the money to balance the budget if you are going to give huge tax cuts? You get it from Social Security and Medicare, because that is where the money is.

Our Leader GEPHARDT has called for a bipartisan summit to work out a blueprint for how America will get itself out of this mess. As it stands, the extending of the tax cut will further raid the Social Security and Medicare trust funds which the Republicans claim not to touch. We need a bipartisan truth commission to tell the truth about what the real threat to Social Security is and how the tax cut becomes a threat to Social Security, and a tax cut becomes the problem behind the problems that the people in my district are complaining about. You cannot have some relief on education expenditures coming from the Federal Government if the relief that might have been there is being poured into a tax cut.

The Federal Government, at a point in history like this, when we not only have great budget cuts in education in New York City, but across the whole country, we should have some relief for the States and for the local governments, and that relief has been proposed in our education legislation. We propose that the Federal Government take on the full responsibility for special education. If we took on the full responsibility for, not full responsibility, but that we live up to the original legislation on special education which said that the Federal Government would pay 40 percent of the cost, and right now we are paying something like 10 or 11 percent of the cost of special education. If we were just to assume the 40 percent costs for special education instead of pouring our money into tax cuts, take a portion of that, a relatively small portion and put it into special education, we would free up funds at the local level to be spent on education in some other way.

Forty percent of the cost, instead of 11 percent of the cost, means that local education agency would be able to take that money and fill in some of these budget cuts that are resulting, not only in New York, which has suffered probably more than most big cities because of the 9-11 attack which took away our taxes, our revenue to pay for education, but across the country. One gesture like that would be beneficial to education right across the board.

In addition to that, the President should go ahead and fund title I. They promised to begin the process by, increase title I by adding to the title I fund in each year until within 5 years we would have twice as much funding in title I as we presently have. But right away, despite that promise, the President backed away in his budget that was sent to Congress. Two items live up to our promise to fund special education by going all the way to the 40 percent and increase the funding for title I, and we would bring a great deal of relief already to the education budgets out there that are suffering right now.

So it all relates, Mr. Speaker. I hope that I am not confusing any of our colleagues. We have had a discussion about the tax cut and what the impact of that is. We have had a discussion about the farm bill and setting a cap, putting a cap on farm subsidies. We are going to have a discussion next week, and preliminary discussions are taking place right now, and all of the committees, the committees of jurisdiction, the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on Education and the Workforce are discussing the temporary assistance to families in need. We had a discussion, of course, earlier here today on food stamps for immigrants. It all relates.

I think that the challenge of leadership in America nowadays is not a challenge of knowing the facts; it is a challenge of how we put it all together once we get the facts. Probably the challenge of leadership anywhere in the world is understanding the complexities of the world and understanding how one thing relates to another, and being able to provide some leadership which will make use of the existing resources so that everybody benefits.

The great angels of tomorrow we are. As Americans, one side of our personality says we are great angels and we want to do the right thing for everybody, including the people in this country, and then beyond that, to provide help for other people throughout the world. That is one part of our spirit. The other part of our spirit is demonic. It is giant Scrooges. People who want to take food stamps away from legal immigrants; people who want to give welfare recipients, a family of three, I think in Wisconsin they get less than $300 a month for a family of three. That is considered a successful program for welfare recipients, aid to families in need.

All of these things are related. Setting priorities and determining how does our great wealth get utilized to push civilization forward is a great question. It is there in all of these issues. They do relate very much.

I want to make certain that I make it clear that the class problem is at the heart of the way we make decisions in America. We do not have class warfare, we hate to bring up the whole issue of class, but class is very much a problem.

There is among the giant Scrooges, there is also contempt for the poor. The giant Scrooges are people who have contempt for poor people, just as Scrooge did in Charles Dickens' novel. They have great contempt for poor people.

The giant Scrooges of America have a lot of racism also woven into that. The harshness with which we treat people on welfare, the way the law is formulated, is partially due to the perception that this is thought that this is a program mostly for minorities. If we treated farmers in the same manner, we could say, well, it is people who want to make certain that the taxpayers get their money's worth; people who are frugal, who have respect for the taxpayers and want to make certain that we spend money wisely. If that was the case, then why do we not apply the same standards to farmers or to the farm subsidy program that we apply to welfare recipients?

We will be reauthorizing the temporary assistance to families in need, and in that bill we say nobody, no matter how needy, they can only have assistance from the Federal Government for 5 years. The 5-career limit has been imposed. We say it has been very successful. It has made people more conscious of the fact that they need to go to work and get off welfare.

There may be some truth to that. Why do we not impose a 5-year limit on the farm subsidy program? Why did we not impose a 5-year limit on the farm subsidy program a long time ago? Why do we have unlimited amounts of money being paid out in the case of the farm subsidy program when we have very paltry amounts being paid to families who are in need under the TANF, the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, Act?

If we are considering frugality and the best use of taxpayers' money, what motivates us to pay $20 to $22 billion out to the farm community when less than 2 percent of the people of America are farmers? What is going on as we set our priorities?

And why do we pay 40 percent of the farm subsidy money, why do we pay most of the farm subsidy money to 40 percent of the farmers, so that 60 percent of the farmers get nothing? Family farms who are really poor in that 60 percent get zero, while 40 percent of the agricultural businesses, I will not call them farms, in America are receiving most of the money.

If we are only concerned about the best use of our taxpayers' money, why do we let the farm program continue to rob us blind? In addition to the subsidies, there are also farm home loans, special loans for farmers, disaster loans for farmers. Less than 2 percent of the population walks away with a great part of the budget. What is going on in terms of our priority-setting?

If we are great angels of tomorrow, as I think some of us are, the great angels would want to make certain that we use our resources across-the-board to help the greatest number of people. Why can we not have a prescription drug benefit for senior citizens, and save some of the money from the abuses in the farm subsidy program in order to finance a program for prescription drug benefits? What is going on here? Why do we let the Scrooges prevail?

Evidently, the same Scrooges, giant Scrooges who are in charge of our tax cut program, are also funneling money to a small percentage of the farming businesses. I might not object to the farm subsidy program if we could guarantee that it went to the poor farmers, but we admit that it is going to farmers who are getting large amounts of money.

In fact, we consider it a victory today that we voted for a motion to instruct the conferees that was prepared by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH). The gentleman's motion was to instruct the conferees who are considering the farm bill now to put a cap on the program, accept the Senate proposal for a cap; that is, an amount, a limit on the amount of money that farmers can get. We, I think, voted for a cap of $175,000 per year, $175,000 per year. That would be the cap. We consider that a victory. How wonderful it is that we have put a cap of $175,000 on a subsidy that farmers can get.

It is a safety net program. It is a handout, if we want to get into the slang that is used by the Scrooges when they are considering giving $300 to a family of three on welfare; it is a handout. They hand it out with great contempt, and they complain about it, and they look for ways to push a person off the welfare rolls who is maybe getting $300 a month. We can see how much that adds up for a year.

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) wrote a letter to all his colleagues. If we want to talk about bipartisan cooperation, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is a Republican.

"Dear Colleague: You have received letters from many Members supporting limitations on farm subsidy payments. Some farms now receive millions of dollars. On Wednesday, I will offer a motion to instruct House conferees on the farm bill, H.R. 2646. It will direct them to accept the farm subsidy caps added to the legislation in the Senate. The caps will limit farmers to $225,000 in subsidies per year; if they have a spouse, $275,000 per year.

"The purpose of subsidies since the beginning has been to protect family farmers. Unfortunately, about 82 percent of all subsidies now go to just 17 percent of the farmers. By providing unlimited subsidies, we have encouraged huge corporate farm operations to get bigger and bigger, squeezing out family farmers.

"You may have heard from some farm and commodity groups in opposition to this idea, but make no mistake about it, they do not speak for the majority of farmers and ranchers. Last year, 27 of the Nation's land grant colleges from all the Nation's regions came together to poll farmers and ranchers on their opinions of the farm bill.

"On the issue of farm payment caps, there was enormous consensus: Nationwide, 81 percent of farmers and ranchers agreed that farm income support payments should be targeted to small farms. Limiting subsidies to any particular farmer will help traditional-sized family farms.

"Please consider supporting the motion to instruct on Wednesday," et cetera, et cetera, by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH), Member of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD this letter from the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) to his colleagues.

The letter referred to is as follows:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, April 15, 2002.
PROTECT FAMILY FARMS!
CAP FARM SUBSIDIES!

DEAR COLLEAGUE: You have received letters from many members supporting limitations on farm subsidy payments. Some farms now receive millions of dollars.

On Wednesday, I will offer a motion to instruct House conferees on the farm bill (H.R. 2646). It will direct them to accept the farm subsidy caps added to the legislation in the Senate. The caps will limit farmers to $225,000 in subsidies per year ($275,000 with spouse).

The purpose of subsidies, since the beginning, has been to protect family farmers. Unfortunately, about 82% of all subsidies now go to just 17% of the farms. By providing unlimited subsidies, we've encouraged huge, corporate farm operations to get bigger and bigger, squeezing out family farmers.

You may have heard from some farm and commodity groups in opposition to this idea, but make no mistake about it—THEY DO NOT SPEAK FOR THE MAJORITY OF FARMERS AND RANCHERS!

Last year, 27 of the nation's land grant colleges from all the nation's regions came together to poll farmers and ranchers on their opinions of the farm bill. On the issue of farm payment caps, there was enormous consensus. Nationwide 81 percent of farmers and ranchers agreed that farm income support payments should be targeted to small farms.

Limiting subsidies to any particular farmer will help traditional-size family farms. Please consider supporting the motion to instruct on Wednesday. For additional information, please contact me or Dan Byers on my staff at 5-5064.

Sincerely,

NICK SMITH,
Member of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I want my constituents at home to understand that the great angels who care about fairness, who want to see our resources spread to all the people, do not come necessarily in just certain parties. I have criticized the Republicans for their actions, but the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is a Republican.

A large number of people are offended by the fact that the giant Scrooges take over, and they are shameless in the way they use the taxpayers' money. If there is ever a program which shows us what the giant Scrooges are doing in the mismanagement of America's resources, it is the farm subsidy program.

I have indicated, I think, before on this floor that there is a special group called the Environmental Working Group, and they have done us all a great service to let Members really see how outrageous the farm subsidy program is.

Again, the farm subsidy program is supposed to be a safety net program for small farmers, for the poor. All of our safety net programs are designed to help people who cannot help themselves. After all, this is a capitalistic economy. Farming is a business. Do we want to have socialistic supports for the agribusiness when we do not have socialistic supports for any other business? Farming is a business.

It is okay, it is part of our credo, to take care of those who are in danger in some way of falling through the safety net. We wanted to support family farms and keep our farmers, family farms, out there, not have them all migrate to the cities and turn over the whole agricultural production to great corporations, big corporations. That is an objective that I certainly concur with. It is in the spirit of the great angels of America.

But the Scrooges have taken over, and long ago, for years now, it has been totally out of hand. I am talking to rural Congressmen, I am talking to big city Congressmen. We all deserve to be able to tell our constituents a better story than "This is necessary to keep the food prices cheap in our supermarkets."

It actually keeps the prices higher, Mr. Speaker. It keeps us in a situation where we are paying more than we would pay if capitalism were to go to work in our farm, in the agricultural business.

But in addition to not violating the tenets of capitalism, which I do not take exception to. I think we have a capitalistic economy. There are a lot of socialistic elements in it. When we apply those socialistic elements, I do not complain. I do not think we should be stuck in a rut, that capitalism is so great that it cannot learn from some other forms of economic production.

We have capitalism in the banking industry that helped bail out the savings and loan associations. That socialism in the banking industry recently came to the aid of some of our big investing groups, so we have across the world capitalist economies like Korea and others who have taken steps to have the government intervene to prop up businesses.

Those are socialistic elements of economic dealings that make sense, they are pragmatic. We bailed out Mexico when they were about to go under by intervening with $20 billion in loans. So it is not automatically an evil to have socialistic actions being taken in the economy. But if we do that, at least we ought to have an end game which produces fairness.

This Environmental Working Group, they created a website on the Internet, so Members can go and see every person, family, or business in America that gets farm subsidies. Members can find out who they are, where they are located, and exactly how much they are getting, or how much they were getting in the year 2000. It is <http://www.ewg.org/farm/>. Members can look in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and get the website address, and go to the website and find out exactly what farmers are getting State by State, county by county.

What Members will find is that whereas the State of Wisconsin, and I am going to take Wisconsin as an example because next week we are going to hear a lot about Wisconsin. When we start discussing the reauthorization of the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families Act, we are going to talk about Governor Thompson, who had the model program, it has been cited as a model program, in Wisconsin. Governor Thompson did such a great job until President Bush asked Governor Thompson to come to Washington and head the Health and Human Services Agency, because he has a model program.

Well, in Wisconsin, their program might have been a few degrees better than the New York City program under Mayor Rudy Giuliani. Rudy Giuliani, who performed so magnificently during the crisis precipitated by the attack on the World Trade Center, has more contempt for poor people probably than any leader in America. The workfare program in New York City was one of the worst. But I think the present administration admires the Giuliani program even more than it admired Governor Thompson's program.

Governor Thompson's Wisconsin program, the model program, is a program that provided less than $300 a month for a family of three, less than $300 a month. The Governor of Wisconsin, Mr. Thompson, who is now Secretary of Health and Human Services, saved money by pushing people off the welfare rolls. The caseload went down. He saved money.

He did not put that money back into the program to provide more money for education or transportation, or in some way benefit the recipients who needed help in getting more training, more education, in order to get jobs.

He used the money instead for other kinds of activity. He did what we call supplanting. He supplanted money meant for the poor. He moved it about in the budget until he could free up money so he could use it for other State projects. That is what we are saluting in Washington right now as a model program. He took money from the poor and used it for other State projects and that is supposed to be wonderful.

He has minimum programs to allow people to get education. Vocational education is permitted under the TANF program; higher education is not. If someone wants to go to junior college, community college, become a hygienist or a technician of some kind, the kinds of jobs that are available that pay decent salary, that have a future, they cannot do that under the program that Governor Thompson put forth and has now become the model for Federal programs. Cannot do that.

The same Governor Thompson in the State of Wisconsin, according to the record, has never raised his voice against farm subsidies. If Governor Thompson is a hero because he pushed those terrible people off the welfare roll, and sent them out to get a job, he wants to make the best use of the taxpayers money, then I ask him to tell us, tell us, Secretary Thompson, why do you not deal with the farm subsidy abuses in Wisconsin?

I have a list of the top 100 farm subsidy recipients in Wisconsin. Again, like Wisconsin, like every other place, the poorest farmers are not getting the money. It is the top 40 percent who get all of the money, just about.

The first 100 recipients, according to amounts, the first top recipient Dane County Growers. That is a corporation in Edgerton, Wisconsin. They get $457,646 per year, the annual amount they received in year 2000.

Let us go down to some individuals and skip over what looks like corporations. Jeffrey M. Hahn, Cambria, Wisconsin, $268,998.57. This man, of course, would be against the cap that we just passed because the cap that is being proposed by the Senate is $225,000. He is getting $268,998.

What do these people have to do to get the taxpayers' money? Do they have to do volunteer service? This Congress, under the leadership of the Republicans a few years ago, voted to make people in public housing do 8 hours of service per month because they are recipients of subsidized housing. The law now says, as a result of an amendment passed on this floor when the Republican majority votes, that a person has got to do 8 hours of public service if they are in a publicly subsidized housing development, public housing. Do we make any of these recipients of these large amounts of money do public service? What is it that we are getting in exchange for this? It is supposed to be a program for people who need it very badly; but if someone is getting year after year $400,000, $200,000, are they needy, really?

When we go down the list all the way, there are people getting $170,394 per year. Again, the welfare recipient in Wisconsin will get $300 a month times 12 months. That is $3,600 for a family of three; but in Wisconsin, the man whose 100th on this list, down at the very bottom in terms of the first 100 recipients, Mr. Thomas P. Sayre, Jr., Edgerton, Wisconsin, is getting $157,227. What is the criteria in America for giving somebody $157,227 of tax payers money versus giving a family of three $3,600?

The list that I am referring to is as follows:

I would ask Governor Thompson to give us the answer. If he is a great advocate for the best use of the taxpayers money, why has he never spoken out against the farm subsidies that are clearly being abused in Wisconsin, and I cited Wisconsin only because Governor Thompson is from Wisconsin and he happens to be the man who is pushing now for an even more regressive and even more punitive bill than we have presently, a law that will give no room to breathe for people on welfare in terms of they must get a job but we do not want to give them an education, a chance to get an education.

The present law will not allow anybody to go for a single day to an institution of higher learning. Vocational education is all they can do. Once we had in New York City, and the Federal Government did not prohibit it, a program which allowed people to go to junior college, 2 years of junior college while they were on welfare in order to get their education, complete it to the point where they could become a tax payer.

Study after study has shown that once people get even a degree from a junior college or from a senior college, once they get into that realm, they pay back far more to the tax rolls than they ever received as welfare recipients. It is common sense and yet the Federal law now forbids any State to allow people to go in an institution of higher learning. They have to be vocational education only; and yet the jobs that are needed are the nursing job, the dental hygienist job, the jobs in information technology. They are all in an area which requires about 2 years of college.

If we want to give a person a chance to get off welfare, to not receive a safety net subsidy, then let them go all the way to the point where they can get a decent job. That is not allowed under current law.

So I am trying to make it understood to my constituents, to the constituency of others; and I think that when we have our debate next week on temporary assistance to families in need we will find out, needy families, we will find out whether there are any advocates for the poor.

Are the Democrats going to advocate for that group out there that has nobody here to speak for them? They are far more than 2 percent of the population.

Farmers are very well organized. The farmers have great, giant scrooges among them who did their homework years ago. The Department of Agriculture is the second largest agency in the Federal Government. Why at this time in America, when the population producing agricultural product is less than 2 percent of the population, why is the Department of Agriculture still the second largest agency in the Federal Government?

Somebody has done their homework very well. Those Scrooges know how to organize. Those Scrooges know how to take from those in need and make certain that they always have subsidies greater than they should be getting, farmers home loans, disaster for farmers, et cetera.

If there are Members of Congress listening who represent poor people, as I do, I am sure they are telling them what I tell them, that in America, people have the same opportunity. People have got to organize. People have got to come out and vote. Forty-nine percent of the American people who are not voting are the answer to all these problems.

The great angels of America need them. Those people have the spirit of wanting to spread our wealth and our know-how and our system of government throughout the world. They want to combat terrorism. They want to make certain that civilization is not subject to all these dark and negative forces that are seeking to pull us down, the al Qaeda network and the people who think women ought to be treated like cattle and the people who have great contempt for democracy and do not want everybody to have a vote, the people who are stealing their countries blind, all of the resources of the country going to the hands of a few.

There are forces out there which are in numbers greater than we are, and the only way we are going to conquer those forces is to have our own forces released. The great angels of America have to overcome the giant Scrooges. The giant Scrooges are always pressing to give our resources to the smallest number of people, and that is no way to keep America great.

A nice way to defend our interests. Our interests have to be defended because we are generous. We are willing to use our know-how and our constitutional civilization to the advantage of every American, willing to use our constitutional civilization to the advantage of people all over the world.

"Let's roll, America. Set the tracks of destiny straight. Don't look back but close the gate, toast the past but change the cast. In every language of the earth to the country of all Nations we have proudly given birth. At the Olympics of forever we will win all the races; we are Great Angels of tomorrow with magic mongrel faces.

"Let kindergartners take a poll, full baby bellies is our favorite goal, usher in the age of soul."

"America, let's roll."

CORRECTION TO THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD OF APRIL 17, 2002

The following general leave statement by Mr. BEREUTER was inadvertently placed under the motion to recommit offered by Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. It should have been placed under the motion to instruct conferees offered by Mr. SMITH of Michigan for H.R. 2646, on page H1382.

Mr. BEREUTER. Madam Speaker, this Member rises in strong support of the motion to instruct conferees on the issue of payment limitations which the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) has offered.

It is clear that strong payment limitation language would improve the integrity of the farm program payments and help to retain public support for these programs essential to rural areas. Making this change will also help prevent the overwhelming consolidation of farms that has resulted in a decrease in small- and medium-sized family farm operations. The savings achieved from this provision could then be directed to other worthwhile agricultural programs.

A survey conducted by 27 land grant universities found that 81 percent of the agricultural producers across the country supported placing limits on support payments thereby directing dollars to where they are actually intended. Furthermore, a 2001 General Accounting Office report found that in recent years, more than 80 percent of farm payments were made to large- and medium-size farms. In 1999, for instance, 7 percent of the nation's farms—those with gross agricultural sales of $250,000 or more—received about 45 percent of the payments. With Congress facing so many spending priorities, we must demonstrate to our constituents that we are using taxpayers' money more efficiently.

It is important to note that this motion to instruct expresses support for redirecting these funds to agricultural research and conservation. Our choice is clear—we can continue to funnel millions of dollars to some of the wealthiest farms or we can make an investment in the future of agriculture which will benefit all producers and all Americans.

Mr. Speaker, this Member strongly supports the motion to instruct and encourages his colleagues to vote for it.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 107th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 148

WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, APRIL 18, 2002

No. 44

Senate

The Senate met at 9:45 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON, a Senator from the State of New York.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. This morning our guest Chaplain, Reverend Samuel L. Green, St. Mark African Methodist Episcopal Church, in Orlando, FL, will lead the Senate in prayer:

PRAYER

The guest Chaplain offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Oh God, our God. How excellent is Your name. You are wonderful. You are glorious. You are sovereign and majestic. You alone are God. We offer to You today thanksgiving. Thank You for the many blessings You have so graciously bestowed upon us. Thank You for blessing America. We pause as a nation today to bless You. Give us strength and courage to work together as a nation to create environments of liberty and justice throughout our land.

Dear Lord, grant unto this Senate an agenda that will speak to the issues that affect every citizen of our Nation. As these women and men convene, cause them to remember that our Founders established this Nation under God. Then as they deliberate, their thoughts and actions will be led by You.

God of grace, God of glory, on these Senators pour Your power. Grant them wisdom; grant them courage for the facing of this hour in America. Give them a strong resolution against the evils that we as a nation deplore. Search their souls, be their glory so that these women and men who have been elected to serve as Senators will not fail those they represent or Thee. In the name of Jesus, the Christ, we pray. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. BYRD).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
Washington, DC, April 18, 2002.

To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON, a Senator from the State of New York, to perform the duties of the Chair.

ROBERT C. BYRD,
President pro tempore.

Mrs. CLINTON thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. REID. Madam President, this morning the Senate will resume consideration of the energy reform bill. The ANWR amendments are pending. The time until 11:45 is divided equally between the two leaders or their designees. At 11:45 the Senate will vote on cloture on the Stevens ANWR amendment. If cloture is not invoked on the Stevens amendment, the Senate will immediately vote on cloture on the Murkowski ANWR amendment.

I ask that Senator NELSON of Florida be recognized to give remarks regarding our guest Chaplain.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Florida.

WELCOMING THE GUEST CHAPLAIN

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Madam President, the minister who is our guest Chaplain is a personal friend of mine from Orlando. It is noteworthy that I make a couple of remarks concerning him.

Reverend Sam Green of St. Mark AME Church in Orlando is a rather extraordinary minister of the gospel. He comes from a family that has four brothers who are all ministers, in Orlando, Tallahassee, Gainesville, and Miami. Reverend Green's pastorate and his ministry are an outreach to the community of Orlando, for he has created businesses to fill the needs of the Orlando community that are all occupied by parishioners of his church. And so it is with a great deal of pleasure that we welcome Reverend Sam Green of Orlando to be our guest Chaplain this morning.

Thank you, Madam President.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

NATIONAL LABORATORIES PARTNERSHIP IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2001

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of S. 517, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Daschle/Bingaman further modified amendment No. 2917, in the nature of a substitute.

Kerry/McCain amendment No. 2999 (to amendment No. 2917), to provide for increased average fuel economy standards for passenger automobiles and light trucks.

Dayton/Grassley amendment No. 3008 (to amendment No. 2917), to require that Federal agencies use ethanol-blended gasoline and biodiesel-blended diesel fuel in areas in which ethanol-blended gasoline and biodiesel-blended diesel fuel are available.

Lott amendment No. 3028 (to amendment No. 2917), to provide for the fair treatment of Presidential judicial nominees.

Landrieu/Kyl amendment No. 3050 (to amendment No. 2917), to increase the transfer capability of electric energy transmission systems through participant-funded investment.

Graham amendment No. 3070 (to amendment No. 2917), to clarify the provisions relating to the Renewable Portfolio Standard.

Schumer/Clinton amendment No. 3093 (to amendment No. 2917), to prohibit oil and gas drilling activity in Finger Lakes National Forest, New York.

Dayton amendment No. 3097 (to amendment No. 2917), to require additional findings for FERC approval of an electric utility merger.

Schumer amendment No. 3030 (to amendment No. 2917), to strike the section establishing a renewable fuel content requirement for motor vehicle fuel.

Feinstein/Boxer amendment No. 3115 (to amendment No. 2917), to modify the provision relating to the renewable content of motor vehicle fuel to eliminate the required volume of renewable fuel for calendar year 2004.

Murkowski/Breaux/Stevens amendment No. 3132 (to amendment No. 2917), to create jobs for Americans, to reduce dependence on foreign sources of crude oil and energy, to strengthen the economic self determination of the Inupiat Eskimos and to promote national security.

Stevens amendment No. 3133 (to amendment No. 3132), to create jobs for Americans, to strengthen the United States steel industry, to reduce dependence on foreign sources of crude oil and energy, and to promote national security.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the full 2 hours be given and the votes occur at 10 minutes to the hour rather than 15 minutes on the hour.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I understand I have up to 15 minutes to speak at this time, is that correct?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. No time was specifically allotted to any particular Senator.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Chair. I am supposed to proceed on our side. As the majority whip knows, I have a hearing beginning shortly. The Senator from Pennsylvania wanted to use 2 minutes of my time. Could we let him proceed for 2 minutes?

Mr. REID. That would be fine if the three Republican Senators wish to speak.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. SANTORUM. Madam President, I want to speak for a couple of minutes on this amendment on steel. We had an opportunity to do something to profoundly help the steel industry this year. The President has done the right thing. He did something tremendously important to help steel jobs by creating the tariff decision a few weeks ago. But the second piece of this puzzle was to do something about the legacy cost, so the steel industry can consolidate and be much more efficient.

We had an opportunity in this bill, because we had a pot of money, to be able to fund this program. I don't see any other pot of money out there that is substantial enough to meet the needs of people who are basically without health insurance now because of the failure of so many companies in the steel industry. We had the money. All we needed was the will. Fortunately, you had the steel companies saying let's do it and make this our chance because the money is here, the will is here. The steelworkers passed. Many people here who are advocates for steelworkers are taking a pass. The reason is because they cannot get a commitment from the President to sign this exact piece of legislation.

I am going to vote for this legislation, but if that now is the standard, I am going to adopt that standard. I will not vote for another piece of steel legacy legislation on the floor of the Senate. I will not advocate for another piece of steel legacy legislation until we have a commitment from the President, before it leaves the Senate, that he will sign it. Since that is the commitment that was necessary here, that will now be the commitment to get my support and advocacy on this side of the aisle for any future steel legacy bailout. You have made your bed, and it is an uncomfortable one, and it is not going to be a satisfying one for the people who could today be realizing health care, could be realizing a restoration of the health care benefits that were promised them. But some people decided to take a political pass. Go ahead and take your political pass, but the impact on all of these workers is profound, and the impact on all of these retirees is profound. It is a very sad day for the steelworkers and the retirees as a result of the politics being played on this issue.

I thank the Chair.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, this side has asked me to ask unanimous consent that the time consumed by the quorum call be equally divided on the unanimous consent the Senator from Nevada just requested.

Mr. REID. I hope we don't have a quorum call.

Mr. DOMENICI. That quorum time be equally divided. That is what we are trying to clear up.

Mr. REID. I am sure it is OK. I'm not sure I understand.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, today we are debating an amendment that, simply put, has a profound impact on our future. This legislation is American jobs and national security. And I will say, what could be more compelling than these two very simple, but profound and obviously important considerations: American jobs and national security.

Our Nation, whether we like it or not, whether we should have done something about it sooner or not, moves on oil. We can wish for a future in which there are other options, but it is not here now. Absolutely nothing changes the stark fact that now, and for the foreseeable future, we need expanded supplies of oil, and we are dangerously dependent on foreign sources.

Our economy grinds to a halt without oil. Our tremendous military capabilities require oil. Today, for example, it takes 8 times more oil to meet the needs of each American soldier than during World War II.

Senator after Senator has noted that we are now importing almost 60 percent of our oil. We all know that the past crises occurred when we were half as much dependent. Those crises occurred when other nations followed their own best interests. That will always be the case. Our interests will not always drive the actions of our neighbors and countries that call themselves our friends.

We know that oil is going to become an increasingly precious resource. Supplies are not infinite, but it is not a question of whether we have enough oil for the foreseeable future; but will America be able to be assured—or can we do things that will make us more assured that we will have what we need?

We know that oil is getting to be a more precious resource. Obviously, we have become vulnerable to disruptions. That vulnerability has never been larger. But I submit that it will get larger in the future because we are not taking any action, in my opinion, that either short-term or long-term will change that situation.

At this instant, we see tremendous instability in the Middle East. We have been getting at least 1 million barrels of oil per day from Iraq. And instability doesn't stop in the Middle East. Whatever it is that is causing instability in our world, has moved over into our hemisphere. Obviously, Venezuela is another very major supplier of the United States. It does not take a genius to look into the cloudiest of crystal balls and forecast that there are likely to be immense shortages of oil in the near future.

Some argue that ANWR oil will not be ready for 10 years, while experts note that oil could be flowing in 1 to 2 years. Others will argue that even with the shorter time, ANWR cannot impact today's crisis sufficiently. Sure, it cannot, but it will be better and it will enable us to withstand the next crisis much, much better. In fact, it might postpone one crisis or another crisis in the future. And there is no question that prices at the oil pump are now being impacted by this situation that I have just described with reference to our dependence on the Middle East and other world conditions. Whether you're shopping at the neighborhood gas pump or reading the papers, the signs are all around us, oil is approaching $26 a barrel versus $18 earlier this year.

There are headlines such as "Gas Prices Put Some Budgets Running on Empty," and "The Oil Market is Running Scared." Those kinds of signs are plastered in newspapers and magazines. Right here in Washington, gas prices have climbed 20 percent in the past month. Besides giving us more control over our own gas prices, ANWR has other far-reaching impacts. After all, we are just coming out of recession.

This is the time when good jobs are especially precious. ANWR oil, valued at $300 billion or more, means thousands upon thousands of jobs for Americans. It is estimated that the President's whole energy package delivers about 700,000 jobs for Americans. Many of those jobs are represented by some of our strongest unions, and we have seen a number of them support the passage of the ANWR legislation.

It is obvious to me there will be many jobs in special areas of oilfield exploration, and extensive logistic support will be needed at every step of exploration and development.

In one sense, this is a huge jobs opportunity for Americans. These are highly paid jobs. They will go elsewhere. They will not stay in this country. Salaries will be lost as we become more dependent, and without us having the advantage of the ANWR oil activities, the oil money will go elsewhere. We will pay more money to foreign countries rather than keep it for ourselves.

We would rush to the floor to vote for any project or program that we could put into effect that would produce the kind of jobs that ANWR will bring. There is no question it is the biggest job-producing activity that anyone could plan during the next decade and perhaps thereafter.

If we import more oil, we are encouraging more pumping from places in the world with less stringent environmental regulations. If we import more, what sense does it make to ban our exploration and drilling under rigid environmental mandates and tell the rest of the world to use whatever approaches they want, with whatever environmental damage, just to satisfy our needs and our thirst?

We cannot, by defeating ANWR, mandate the environmental conditions that will exist across this world when the oil that would have been ANWR oil is produced by other countries in other places.

ANWR critics need to remember that this amendment limits the total footprint of all operations to 2,000 acres, a tiny piece of a gigantic area encompassing more than 20 million acres. That means 99.99 percent of ANWR is untouched by this development. If the same fraction of New Mexico, my home State, was developed as is being proposed in ANWR, it would consume an area roughly the size of the Albuquerque Sunport and Kirkland Air Force Base.

That piece of geography in the southwest in New Mexico—the Sunport in Albuquerque plus Kirkland Air Force Base—is the entirety of property that would be used. It would leave no destruction or damage or in any way harm the 2,000 acres. That can be done.

For those who wonder whether we can drill that many wells and get that much oil from such a small piece of geography, that is what the law says; that is the only activity the President would be allowed to do if either of the pending amendments were to be adopted.

If the same fraction of New Mexico were developed as is being proposed in the ANWR drilling, it would consume the area I have just described. There are some who do not believe that, but I repeat, we have become such technological experts in drilling for oil that, indeed, 2,000 acres will suffice because we no longer drill straight down, perpendicular. We drill horizontally so there will be many wells many distances from this 2,000 acres, but it will not be visible on the surface nor will it impact the surface.

We have spent a lot of resources—a lot of businesses invested money and we invested money in the research to permit that, to get us to this point where we can stand in this Chamber and talk about horizontal drilling and about a footprint of 2,000 acres that could drain the entirety of ANWR, the entirety of the 1.5 million acres or at least sufficient quantities to make it worthwhile.

If we import more, then we are only encouraging more pumping in places in the world with less stringent regulations, which I have just commented on. If we want to move environmental degradation elsewhere—which will be minuscule in the United States, in Alaska, in ANWR—then shame on us and doubly shame on us if we, with the same set of events, deny an opportunity to produce it under stringent requirements as we have been referring to for ANWR.

It is likely that the ANWR supply would replace about 30 years of oil imports from Saudi Arabia and about 50 years of oil imports from Iraq. Right now, we pay Saddam Hussein about $4.5 billion a year for oil. Do we really want to be dependent on this regime? Do we want it to grow rather than diminish? If we want his regime to grow, then reject the two pending amendments. If we want Saddam Hussein's influence to lessen, then we ought to vote in such a way as to permit American business, American working men and women to proceed to produce on our behalf.

To me, this is a very easy issue. We should drill in the United States using our best environmentally friendly technology under our rigid environmental controls. We should drill where we can find our own oil to satisfy our national needs and, at the same time, we should work to develop new technologies that lessen our dependence on oil and petroleum-based fuels. There can be no doubt, ANWR will not solve our problem, but clearly it will help solve our problem, and with that, there are so many pluses in terms of where the wealth will go, where the money will be invested, which workers will get the jobs, which businesses will be part of the very complicated drilling techniques and apparatus that will be on American soil drilling for oil for Americans, instead of part of the international pool produced by some other country, the benefits of which are absolutely nil to the United States.

It is an easy issue because this is an American issue and a jobs issue with very little downside. Actually, this should not be an environmental issue. This should not be an issue that oil companies favor. This should not be an issue that the labor unions favor. This is an American issue that we should have come to the floor shoulder to shoulder saying: Let's give it a try.

I submit that just as happened in the Prudhoe Bay activity—after lengthy debates and passing by the narrowest of margins, with all that was going to happen environmentally in that area, from what I can tell and on what I have been briefed from people who live there, nothing of significant damage to the environment has occurred—I predict the very same thing will occur if we proceed to drill on the 2,000 acres set aside.

I regret, if it turns out this cannot be passed, that the argument apparently will prevail that we should let the environment be degraded in other countries to produce commodities that we desperately need, but we should not produce this product on our own land under far more stringent environmental controls. To me it makes no sense as an environmental issue.

To me, it is abandoning hundreds, and hundreds of thousands, of jobs and billions of dollars that are American. We are going to be sending those off to others saying: You enjoy them because, after all, America is so powerful, so strong, we do not need any.

I believe this amounts to something very close to economic arrogance on the part of those who promote it. It is kind of like walking out and saying: America is so robust, we do not need to worry about hundreds of thousands of jobs and billions of dollars that could be ours instead of some other country in the world. It would seem to this Senator that it is a very clear issue. I, for one, am sorry we have taken so much time, and I do hope when we finish with this issue that we will proceed.

I note my colleague from New Mexico has been in this Chamber for an inordinate amount of time trying to get this bill done. I want to say to him, I am not one who wants further delay. When we get this finished, I am for getting on with it. I hope that happens in a few days rather than weeks. The issue has been joined. Both sides have had a good shot at it. Perhaps none of us have understood it correctly, but I think we have all tried.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MILLER). The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the Senators on the Democratic side who have requested time will be given this amount of time: Senator BINGAMAN, 10 minutes; Senator BOXER, 5 minutes; Senator DASCHLE, 10 minutes; Senator KERRY, 10 minutes; Senator LIEBERMAN, 5 minutes; Senator REID, 5 minutes; Senator ROCKEFELLER, 10 minutes.

Mr. President, some of my colleagues have advocated opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to drill for oil. Those who favor exploiting the Arctic Refuge for whatever oil might be there often suggest this Coastal Plain is desolate and unforgiving.

The Arctic Refuge is a very different landscape than most of the wildlife refuges in the lower 48 States. This unique Coastal Plain is worthy of protection, and that is an understatement.

I am from a place called Searchlight, NV, a small town in the heart of the Mojave Desert. The Mojave Desert is the driest and one of the most unforgiving regions in North America. It is also one of the most beautiful and awe-inspiring places on Earth. This desert, because of its extreme climate, is very slow to heal from impacts people make in it. The Mojave Desert is hot, it is dry, and it is fragile.

The Arctic Refuge, though so different from the desert, is actually similar to the Mojave in that it is another of North America's most unforgiving landscapes.

Like the Mojave Desert, the Arctic Refuge is a beautiful, irreplaceable and shared national treasure. The Arctic Refuge belongs to all Americans and all Americans should have a voice in determining its future. Those pushing to drill for oil in this American wilderness claim drilling would not have a harmful impact, but we know that due to extreme climate the Arctic would be slow to heal from the wounds caused by oil and gas exploration and development.

The Arctic Refuge is cold, it is wet, it is fragile, and it is also unique and irreplaceable. The Arctic Refuge is not a wasteland. We must not allow it to become one. I am fortunate to be able to return home to the Mojave Desert and enjoy visits with my family. That is where my home is.

Congress should guarantee, for the sake of our children and grandchildren, the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge also remains pristine, unharmed and free from wasteful exploitation.

Behind the misguided drive to drill in the Arctic Refuge is a fundamental issue on which we should all agree: America is too dependent on oil. We must be honest with the American people about this simple truth: America has 3 percent of the world's oil reserves; 90 percent of the oil reserves are elsewhere, but we use 25 percent of the world's supply of oil. America will never again produce all of the oil it uses. As long as America depends on oil, we will have to depend on foreign oil. That is too bad. There is no question that reducing our use of foreign oil is a critical goal for our Nation.

Improving fuel efficiency in cars would significantly reduce our debilitating dependence on foreign oil. If all cars, trucks and pickups had a corporate average fuel economy, or CAFE standard, at 27.5 miles per gallon, the country would save more oil in 3 years than could be recovered economically from the entire Arctic National Wildlife Refuge ever.

It is easier to save a barrel of oil than to produce one. Reducing our demand for oil means eliminating the inefficiencies that plague our Nation's energy use. Our energy policy must promote responsible production of oil and gas. This legislation will provide tax incentives to do just that, but that does not mean we should drill in the pristine Arctic wilderness. Although drilling in the Arctic refuge might seem like a solution to our energy challenges and could be profitable for oil companies, America cannot afford to cut corners at the expense of this refuge.

The refuge can only supply 6 months' worth of oil to meet America's energy needs. This is not a solution. We must find a long-term solution because once the oil is extracted and used it is gone. We will soon find ourselves facing the same dilemma, only this refuge would be destroyed and/or damaged.

There are solutions. Substituting alternative energies, solar, wind and, of course, geothermal, as well as biofuels for fossil fuels or using them as fuel additives can help offset some of our demand for petroleum and at the same time dramatically reduce pollution.

As fantastic as it sounds, with the use of hydrogen fuel cells, as the Senator from Idaho spoke recently, oil will eventually be phased out as a primary transportation fuel. Yes, our Nation will some day abandon oil as its primary energy source in favor of natural gas and renewable energy. The day is coming. I hope it is a day when we can all look back and be proud that we made the right decision to protect the Arctic Refuge for centuries to come.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I welcome a chance to speak for a few additional minutes on this important issue. In my view, opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is not good environmental policy for our country and also it distracts us from the effort we are making to craft a comprehensive energy policy the country can support and with which we can move ahead.

I urge my colleagues to vote against the cloture motions. I have several reasons for that. One point that needs to be made very clearly is one that I think has sort of not been said but has been part of the background discussion, and that is that nothing that is proposed with regard to drilling for oil in the wildlife refuge would in any way reduce the price of gas for Americans.

The suggestion has been made, well, the price of gas is going up. Therefore, we have to rush out and drill in the Arctic Wildlife Refuge. The truth is, there is nothing in these proposals that is going to affect the price of gas to the American consumer. I think everyone sort of concedes that point when asked the question, but I wanted to make it very explicit.

Also, there is nothing in this proposal to help us with our short-term needs. The Energy Information Agency says that even if we were to pass legislation this year to permit drilling in the Arctic Wildlife Refuge, there would be no production out of that area for at least 7 years, perhaps for as long as 12 years.

We had a hearing in the Energy Committee where the representative from ExxonMobil said it would be at least 8 years, and more realistically probably 10 years. So there is no solution to our short-term needs in these proposals.

I would also make the point, which we have tried to make in several ways, that there is really no solution to our long-term needs in this proposal to open the wildlife refuge either. I have a chart that we have shown before, but I think it is a very instructive chart. It is based on information from the Energy Information Agency, which is part of our Federal Government, part of the administration. We asked them first a pretty obvious question. We said, let us look long-term in the year 2020. How dependent will we be on foreign oil if we do not open ANWR to production?

They said, we will be 62 percent dependent. The exact figures they gave us show we are about 55 percent dependent this year on foreign sources of oil. In 2020, we will be 62 percent dependent if we do not open ANWR.

Everybody said, great. Let us think about opening ANWR then. We said, how dependent would we be if we did open ANWR to drilling? They said we would be 60 percent dependent. That is the issue. It is a 2-percent difference in the year 2020.

Then we asked the next question: Longer term, what about 2030? How dependent will we be in 2030 if we don't open ANWR to drilling? The answer is, 75-percent dependent upon foreign sources of oil. This is assuming we don't change any of our other policies with regard to CAFE standards, with regard to use of hydrogen power for fuel cells or anything else. They said 75 percent; we said, if we do open ANWR to drilling, how dependent? And they say 75 percent. The truth is, their projections indicate that whether ANWR is opened or is not opened for drilling and production, by the year 2030 it is all gone and we are at 75-percent dependence upon foreign sources of oil. So there is nothing in these proposed amendments we are going to be voting on that solves our long-term problems.

The controversy, I do believe, has diverted our attention from other real opportunities to enhance our domestic energy production. Let me recount briefly what some of those are.

Senators from Alaska made the point very strongly, and I agree with them, that a tremendous opportunity for our country as far as meeting our energy needs in the future is concerned is getting the gas that is produced in the Arctic down to the lower 48 so we can use it. We have 32 million cubic feet of natural gas that is immediately available, substantially more natural gas that is expected to be available if there is a way to transport that—a pipeline—from the North Slope down to the lower 48. We have provisions in this bill that will facilitate the construction of that pipeline.

We have worked with the Senators from Alaska to try to devise other provisions, incentives, ways to reduce the risk, the financial risk involved, so that pipeline can be constructed. It is very much in our national interest that be done. I very much hope as a result of the legislation, we are able to do this.

Talking now again about oil rather than natural gas, there are substantial prospects for increased production of oil on the North Slope of Alaska in the National Petroleum Reserve, Alaska. There are 23 million acres of Federal land that have been set aside to secure our petroleum reserves. That is the orange area on this map. This is very promising. The previous administration leased a substantial area for drilling. Those leases were certainly sought by the industry. There is another lease sale being prepared for this June. There are additional lease sales planned in the future. They all have the very high interest of the oil and gas industry. I strongly support going ahead with that development. It is something we need to do to meet our needs. I hope we do.

In addition, there is a substantial area of State and Native lands between the Arctic Refuge and the National Petroleum Reserve, Alaska, between the green area, which is the wildlife refuge area, and the orange area, which is the National Petroleum Reserve, Alaska area. That is State and Native land. There is an aggressive State leasing program going forward there. That benefits, of course, everyone and increases domestic production.

Even when we get away from the North Slope of Alaska and look at the Gulf States, we have today 32 million acres offshore of Louisiana, Texas, and Mississippi, that have been leased for drilling and have not yet been drilled and developed. We need to figure out what we can do through policies and incentives to encourage the development of those resources. Clearly, there is a substantial benefit to our country there.

The point I made repeatedly throughout the 5 or 6 weeks we have been on this bill—I am losing track at this point—the point I have made repeatedly is we need to begin looking to other sources of energy. We need to be looking at other ways to meet our energy needs: Better energy conservation, more attention to research and development, more attention to renewable energy sources. Clearly, that needs to be a major thrust of what we do.

There are provisions in one of the amendments we will vote on related to the steelworkers and to the steel industry. The Senator from Pennsylvania was here a few minutes ago and spoke to that. Many Members in the Senate are sympathetic to the problems the steel industry has encountered, particularly the workers, the retirees from that industry, the legacy issue relating to the steel industry. I am persuaded this is not the right place to try to deal with that issue. We should not be trying to deal with that issue as an add-on to a proposal related to the opening of the Arctic Refuge.

I also don't believe we should be trying to deal with any of our commitments or assistance to Israel as part of this effort to open the Arctic Refuge for drilling. Those are separate issues. There is strong support in the Senate for dealing with both of those issues, but it is not appropriate, in my view, to try to roll those into these amendments.

This energy bill has got enough on it and enough issues to deal with without adding these provisions. Clearly, they complicate the issue substantially and do not hold out a real prospect for solving either of those problems.

There is a lot of talk about jobs. I believe sincerely this energy bill overall, if we can pass it, if we can get it to the President for signature, will create substantial jobs in this country. We will do that in a variety of ways. We will create substantial jobs if we incentivize construction of the gas pipeline from the North Slope down to the lower 48. We will create substantial jobs if we are able to move ahead with more use of renewable energy throughout our country. That will create substantial jobs. There are all sorts of provisions in the bill that will create jobs. I believe it is far better in the job creation arena than the bill passed by the House of Representatives last summer.

I conclude by saying I hope Senators will vote against cloture on these two amendments so we can move on to some other issues and conclude action on this very important energy bill.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. How much time remains on each side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Forty minutes remain to the Senator from Alaska.

Mr. REID. And Senator DASCHLE's time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Forty-three minutes.

Mr. REID. I make a unanimous consent request. I suggested earlier what we would do in our time remaining: Senator DASCHLE, 10 minutes; Senator ROCKEFELLER, 10 minutes; Senator KERRY, 10 minutes; Senator LIEBERMAN, 5 minutes; and Senator BOXER, 5 minutes; and I ask that be in the form of a unanimous consent request for how the time is distributed on our side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, it is my intention to try to follow a similar pattern on our side. I reserve 10 minutes at the end at my discretion as manager on this side of the aisle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I yield to Senator STEVENS such time as he needs.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I am delighted the Senator from New Mexico has indicated his support for the Alaska natural gas pipeline. I hope we can proceed during this Congress to carry out that commitment.

The gas we will transport is from State land, not Federal land. Obviously, we are going to have to have some changes in Federal law to permit the construction of the largest project in the history of man. It will take some incentives. I tried to provide some incentives to that through the second-degree amendment. That is obviously not going to be adopted by the Senate.

I will speak for a moment about the defeatist attitude of the Democratic Party. The Senator from New Mexico has said we have 75-percent dependence on foreign oil coming. Why? We closed all the coast lines in the United States to oil and gas exploration—except the gulf and a little bit in Alaska on State lands. Those are State lands where oil and gas drilling and production take place. The Federal lands, because of the demands of the Sierra Club and other radical environmental organizations, are closed to oil and gas leasing, almost. The administration is going to try to reopen some of them in the Rocky Mountain area. We will see how the Democratic Party reacts to that. But as a matter of fact, the Clinton administration closed NPRA. The Senator from New Mexico talks about opening it. It is closed. We tried to open it several times.

I welcome the attitude that we are going to open up the reserve set aside for Alaska in 1925 by President Coolidge to try to make up for the Teapot Dome scandal. It has been closed since that time. We had one well drilled during the war by the Navy. By the way, it was a pretty good well. It was very shallow, but it was good.

The Sierra Club and all the radical organizations have brought about the closure of offshore drilling, the closure of Federal lands drilling, the closure of Alaska lands now. What more do they want? If we follow this defeatist attitude that we are going to face 75-percent imports in the future as far as our oil energy is concerned, it is going to happen. It will not happen if we decide we are going to use our technology base to do what President Truman wanted to do, go offshore and research the seabed. Two-thirds of the world's surface is covered by water and there is very little production in that water around the United States. Half of the Continental Shelf—probably even more than that—off the United States is off our State. Not one well has been drilled out there. Why? The environmental organizations oppose it.

We will have 75-percent dependence on foreign oil if the Democratic Party has its way. It is part of the platform of the Democratic Party to oppose drilling on these lands. So it is a political issue, and it is high time we faced up to it.

We think we have a right to transport that gas. As a matter of fact, in the State of the Senator from New Mexico, the Indians in his State can drill on their lands. They are producing gas on their lands. They are producing oil on their lands. What happens in our State? They cannot drill on privately owned Native land, Eskimo land that is within the 1002 area in the Alaska Coastal Plain, the 1.5 million acres. There are 92,000 acres owned by those Eskimos, and they cannot drill. Why? Because the administration at the time they got the lands, the Clinton administration, demanded that they agree to a provision that they could not drill until we were able to drill within the 1002 area itself.

Talk about discrimination. Not only is the State discriminated against but our Natives are discriminated against. We are going to have an amendment before we are through with this bill. That amendment will be to allow the Alaskan Eskimos to drill on their own land, to stop this discrimination against our people. It is bad enough to discriminate against the State, but to discriminate against Alaskan Eskimos who own that land is just atrocious as far as I am concerned.

I welcome the support of the Senator from New Mexico, as I said, for the Alaska natural gas pipeline. It is going to take some incentives. If we want that gas down here—the equivalent, by the way, of a million barrels of oil a day—if we want that gas down here before 2030, 2050—when they talk about the real demand for energy—if we want it, even then, we are going to have to start now. If we started right now to build the Alaska natural gas pipeline it would be finished in 2011; 9 years minimum. That is nonsense.

It is nonsense that we cannot drill on our lands. It is nonsense they will not keep the commitment that two famous Democratic Senators made.

I have learned a lesson from this in the last 21 years and that is this, something that every Senator should know: Do not depend on future Congresses, particularly future Senators, to keep commitments that were made by a previous Congress and President. In 1980, the commitment was made that this area would be subject to drilling, if it did not—if the environmental impact showed there was not going to be permanent harm to the area as far as the fish and wildlife was concerned. We relied upon that commitment in December of 1980 to go ahead with this whole idea of withdrawing 104 million acres. We relied on a commitment made by an administration and Congress, in law, that we would be able to do that.

In subsequent Congresses the House has carried it out, strangely enough. The Senate has not—except for twice when we sent it down to the President and President Clinton vetoed it.

So if you want a continuum of what is causing the 75-percent dependence upon foreign oil that the majority says is inevitable, then follow the Democratic Party. Follow them to dependence upon foreign oil, the exporting of U.S. jobs, and the total dependence upon the philosophies of foreign nations in order to keep our Nation going.

Just think of that. We are saying it is inevitable, in order to keep this country going—this country, the greatest economic engine the world has ever seen—we have to be totally dependent upon foreign oil; 75 percent is total as far as I am concerned.

The Senator from New Mexico says this will not affect the price of gas. How would you like to make a bet? Do you want to make a little bet? I bet before the end of the year, the price of gas is up again 25 cents at least. As a matter of fact, as the trendline goes up on dependence on foreign oil, the price is going to go up. That happens every time we have seen that line go up in terms of dependence on foreign oil.

If you do not believe that, go back and look at the price of gas before the embargo in the 1970s and then see that as that embargo was lifted, we increased our dependence on foreign oil. It was less than 35 percent in 1973, and it is now 57 percent, they say. If it is going up to 75 percent, just follow the trendline of the price of gasoline.

It may be so. As a matter of fact, it is so. If we pass our amendment, it would not change the price of gas now, but it will change the price of gas in 6 years. We will be more dependent upon foreign oil in 6 years if we do not open up the Arctic Plain.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. STEVENS. I yield to the Senator such time as he wishes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I thank the senior Senator from Alaska. I congratulate him. But I especially want to congratulate the junior Senator from Alaska for his leadership on this issue. I have been here a long time—some-would say too long—but I have seen few people who have done a better job in trying to promote what I perceive to be the public interest than Senator MURKOWSKI.

Today, we are going to vote on closure on ANWR. I think it is clear that we do not have the votes, and there are many reasons for that. But no one can fault the Senator from Alaska, Mr. MURKOWSKI, because no one has done more to put together a coalition, which now involves labor unions, involves people who are concerned about Israel and the Middle East, and involves people who are concerned about the national security implications of not producing energy here at home to turn the wheels of industry and agriculture, energy that can be produced efficiently, and that can be produced in an environmentally sound way.

Because we are not producing energy at home, we are becoming dependent on foreign oil, and the national defense and security implications and the foreign policy implications are overwhelming.

I could understand opposition to opening up ANWR if a realistic case could be made that it will not produce this energy or create 750,000 jobs in the process. By the way, that is why organized labor is for opening ANWR, in my opinion—that and their legitimate concerns as citizens about national security.

If the price we had to pay to produce this energy was the rape and pillage of the land, and massive environmental destruction, and if we will create something that looked like Azerbaijan in the wake of the efforts of the Soviets to exploit oil and gas there, then I think we could have a legitimate debate on the floor of the Senate about this. Under those circumstances, I think the case we are trying to make here would be a lot harder. But the amazing thing is no one has proposed such a program. What is astounding to me is how extreme the environmental movement in America has gotten in relation to how modest the proposal that we are getting ready to defeat is.

Let me remind people of these numbers.

There are 319.7 million acres in Alaska. Some people claim it is the largest State in the Union. There could be a debate about that.

When you look at the ANWR area where there is the potential for oil and gas production, there are 20 million acres of land in that area. That's just 20 million of 319.7 million.

In 1980, Congress decided to reduce the area open for production from 20 million to 1.5 million acres. But the proposal of Senator MURKOWSKI is so modest that it says let us reduce that even further, down to only 2,000 acres.

So we have now come from 319.7 million acres to 20 million to 1.5 million to the point where we are talking about a relatively tiny footprint for oil and gas exploration of 2,000 acres.

Now, what kind of technology will be employed? Well, we are talking about the most expensive technology on the planet being used to assure that even in the 2,000 acres, we have a very modest environmental impact.

In addition to that, while we would allow the potential for production in 2,000 acres out of 319.7 million acres under the most restrictive covenant for oil and gas exploration in American history, still, under the Murkowski amendment as offered, you couldn't engage in exploration even on the 2,000 acres unless the President of the United States made a decision through a Presidential finding that the national security interests of the United States dictated that such action be taken.

The provision before us bans export of the oil assuring that every bit of it will be used in the United States.

It has other provisions related to Israel and its special circumstance in terms of oil needs.

Finally, to compensate for 2,000 acres that will have minimal disruption if a national security waiver permits production to occur, the amendment before us reclassifies 1.5 million acres in Alaska as wilderness.

I think if you really thought this was some kind of rational debate about the public interest, you would have to ask yourself: How in the world could anybody be opposed to this amendment? When you are talking about being responsible and moderate, how could you do more than this amendment does? Yet this innocuous proposal has attracted enormous opposition. The opposition basically boils down to the fact that we have gotten into a political situation where vested political interests are dictating the outcome of the debate. God bless them because some of them make up the interests of America, and they have every right to be extreme because that is what having rights is about. A news article from the New York Times which somebody read to me this morning reports that if we could stop global warming in exchange for drilling in ANWR, the environmental groups in this country would be against it. How can that be?

It can be because this has become a debate about symbolism, not energy or the environment. This has become a debate about fundraising and the kind of extremism that creates political causes and that has political impact but that in no way reflects the public interest.

How can it not be in the public interest to take 2,000 acres in a State that has 319.7 million acres, and on the most environmentally responsible basis, over the next 30 years, produce more oil than we are importing from Saudi Arabia?

To offset any negative impact we might have on these 2,000 acres, we put 1.5 million additional acres into the wildlife refuge.

How in the world can such a proposal be controversial? Why don't we have 100 votes in favor of it?

Is no one awake to the fact that we have problems in the Middle East, that we have a growing dependence on oil, that there are profound national security implications of producing as much oil as we will import from Saudi Arabia in the next 30 years on 2,000 acres of land in a State with 317 million acres?

I know I am not going to sway anyone's vote, but I want people to understand this has become a debate not about America's interest, but about political symbols.

Opposition to this amendment cannot be supported on the basis of rationality. It cannot be based on any realistic weighing of the national interest. It can only be based on blind loyalty to symbolism.

When you get into these extreme positions where you are putting political symbolism in front of America's interest, I don't think you are serving the public purpose.

I remind my colleagues that when Greeks went to ask advice from the Oracle, they found this inscription above the gate at Delphi: "Moderation In All Things."

I believe this is an issue where we need to step back and ask ourselves: to whom do we owe allegiance? What are we trying to promote? Whose interest are we trying to advance?

I think when one special interest group becomes so demanding as to jeopardize national security and the public interest to try to make a point for them, when symbolism becomes more important than the security of America, then something is badly wrong.

I just wanted to make that point.

I am going to vote with Senator MURKOWSKI. I see that he has come back to the Chamber.

I just want to say this: I have watched him debate. I have been involved in many of them. But I have not seen anybody do a better job than Senator MURKOWSKI has done on this issue. I have never seen a better political base built for an issue.

If we were having a rational debate in this body about a proposal with a broad spectrum of political support—which it has from labor unions, to people concerned about peace in the Middle East, to national security, to working people, and to people who want to be able to use their cars and trucks, and who want to turn the wheels of industry and agriculture with American-produced energy—this vote would be 100 to nothing. It is simply a measure of how extreme this issue has become that Senator MURKOWSKI is not going to prevail on this issue.

Finally, let me say we are going to have two votes to bring to an end debate on this issue. I am going to vote in favor of the ending debate on the Murkowski amendment. We deserve an up-or-down vote on this amendment. I do not know if it will be this year or next year or sometime in the future, but I am confident that the public interest will ultimately be served. Someday we will produce this energy. Someday, when we have felt pain from not acting rationally, that rationality and the public interest will override the wishes of extreme special interests. The sooner we can do it the better. We ought to do it now. Even if we started preparing today, it would take years to get the oil and gas in ANWR. I think is an indication that time is wasting, and that we need to get on with this.

We will also have a cloture vote this morning on the so-called steel legacy issue. I intend to vote against cloture. I am adamantly opposed to that amendment. It is a bad idea whose time has not come. I would like to remind my colleagues that the majority of the members of the Steel Manufacturers Association oppose the amendment because it rewards inefficient producers and those who granted benefits they could not pay for at the expense of efficient producers.

Secondly, I think it is important to note that some of these steel companies are still in business and have roughly 200,000 retirees. If we are going to come in and start paying benefits for operating companies that are irresponsible in promising benefits that they cannot afford, then we are going to encourage other companies act in a similar manner.

I think it is very important we recognize that by doing this, we are adding to the problem in the steel industry by keeping excess capacity in business when everybody knows capacity should be reduced, not maintained. I think spending $7 billion to bail out these steel companies is a misuse of taxpayer money.

Finally, all over the world today, socialist countries are trying to get out of the business of bailing out inefficient, feather-bedded companies. All over the world, in every socialist country on Earth, people are trying to undo this stuff. Yet, here we are, in the United States of America, trying to get into the business of subsidizing companies that overpromise and underdeliver.

It is a very bad idea. It richly deserves to be killed, and I am hopeful it will be.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. NELSON of Nebraska). Who yields time?

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the manager of this bill, Senator BINGAMAN, will use up to 3 minutes, if necessary, at this time. I yield that to him.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, in response to some of the comments that have been made, I want to make two points, very simply.

First of all, the projections for the extent of our dependence on foreign oil in the future are not my projections. They are the projections of the current administration, the Bush administration, the Department of Energy, the Energy Information Agency within the Department of Energy. They have said if we do not change policies in some other significant respects, we will be 75-percent dependent upon foreign sources of oil by the year 2030 if ANWR is opened, and we will be 75-percent dependent on foreign sources of oil if ANWR is not opened. So that is the point I was trying to make.

The second issue I want to clarify—I believe Senator STEVENS raised the question or disputed that the National Petroleum Reserve, Alaska, had been opened for drilling. My information, which I believe is accurate, is that the Bureau of Land Management held a sale, an oil and gas lease sale in May of 1999, during the Clinton administration. It generated a high level of industry interest. There were 3.9 million acres that were offered for lease at that time. In fact, 132 leases were issued covering 867,000 acres. The bonus bids on that lease sale were $104.6 million.

So there has been a significant lease sale in the National Petroleum Reserve, Alaska.

I know there is another lease sale scheduled for June of this year, which I support, with which Secretary Norton is going forward. And I know there are plans being made for even a more substantial lease sale in the next few years. So there certainly is the opportunity for oil and gas development in those areas.

I have a press release dated May of last year, 2001, saying Phillips Alaska, a wholly owned subsidiary of Phillips Petroleum, and Anadarko Petroleum have announced the first discoveries in the National Petroleum Reserve, Alaska, since the area was reopened for exploration in 1999. So there has been real success for developing oil and gas in that area.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time under my control be changed to allow Senator BOXER 7 minutes, Senator ROCKEFELLER 9 minutes, and Senator KERRY 9 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, how much time is remaining on this side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Fourteen minutes 22 seconds.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I thank Senators BINGAMAN and REID for their generosity in giving me this 7 minutes of time. I have been trying to get some time on this matter for quite a while.

Mr. President, I am not going to get into a number of details today. What I really want to do is paint more of a broad-brush argument as to why it is so important to preserve this beautiful area.

Some 2 years ago, I sent my eyes and ears, my top environmental adviser on the Arctic, Sara Barth, who is in the Chamber today, to the area in my stead. I think it is fair to say that she came back a changed person because of what she had seen because she really, truly was stunned by the beauty of this area.

Many times in the debate, when people have been talking about this area, it has sounded as though this area is not really a beautiful area. So what I thought I would do today is put in the RECORD information that has been taken off the Web site of the Bush administration's Interior Department. This was given to me by Chairman BINGAMAN. I think it is a good way for me to lead off.

It is not BARBARA BOXER's words or the Sierra Club's words or the wildlife people's words. It is the Bush administration's words. If you go on their Web site, you get it. It says:

The Unique Conservation Values of Arctic Refuge.

The Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is the largest unit in the National Wildlife Refuge System. The Refuge is America's finest example of an intact, naturally functioning community of arctic/subarctic ecosystems. Such a broad spectrum of diverse habitats occurring within a single protected unit is unparalleled in North America, and perhaps in the entire circumpolar north.

When the Eisenhower Administration established the original Arctic Range in 1960, Secretary of Interior Seaton described it as—one of the world's great wildlife areas. The great diversity of vegetation and topography in this compact area, together with its relatively undisturbed condition, led to its selection as . . . one of our remaining wildlife and wilderness frontiers.

I think nothing says it better than the words of our own former Interior Secretary under President Eisenhower. And this is from the Web site of Interior Secretary Norton today.

I want to show a few beautiful photographs. I know the Senators from Alaska live in a magnificent place. Some of these photos are just unbelievable.

Here in this photo we see an area in the Coastal Plain, the 1002 area of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. It is a photograph by Pamela Miller. The incredible colors are stunning.

We will go to the next photo because we have so little time and so many photos.

This is a beautiful picture of a songbird that you can find in the refuge. It makes clear why these words are up on the Web site of our own Interior Department.

This is a magnificent photograph as well.

Here is a polar bear, which I know we have seen walking across a pipeline, but here it is walking in its natural surroundings—very beautiful. Here are the caribou. I think you have seen a lot of this before. Here are the musk oxen—quite beautiful.

I have another beautiful landscape to show of another view of this magnificent area. We do have drilling in a national wildlife refuge there in Alaska. Everyone says there is no damage done. Remember the pictures I just showed. Now look at how it is all left with these floating barrels. It is a pretty devastated site.

I think you need to come back to the question of what is a refuge. You could look it up in the dictionary: a place to find comfort and peace and tranquility. Therefore, it seems to me it doesn't make any sense to disturb a refuge. When you do this, if you go this way and drill there, we are going to disturb it.

Someone sent me a cartoon. I think it was a constituent. It never ran in the newspaper, but it basically says: The George Bush Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. It shows that cars are lapping up the oil on the plain. And it says:

Where S.U.V.s are free to roam without fear of regulation.

That is somebody's sense of humor about what we are going to do to the wildlife refuge. I hope we don't. I hope we hold the line.

It is very fair for people who don't agree with me on this to ask: What is your solution? I really want to talk about that.

We know when something isn't a solution. In my opinion, the amount of oil there, from everything we know, is hardly going to make a dent. Here is a chart that shows that. We have a chart that shows the projected consumption of U.S. citizens of oil. Right down here on this little black line is the amount of oil we will get, 3.2 billion barrels over 50 years.

I have another chart that tells the tale. You save 2.38 billion barrels more oil from the Arctic if you have just better tires. With just better tires, you get more oil. And then if you close the SUV loophole, which is really not that hard to do—they are going to have hybrid SUVs coming up shortly—you save about 10 billion barrels. And if you just go up to 35 miles per gallon—Senator KERRY led us so well on that issue; I think we made a huge mistake—we save 18 billion barrels.

So look at this. Out of all these options, you get more oil if you just use better tires. Some of the people who want to drill seem to oppose a lot of these other easy ways to govern.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. REED). The time of the Senator from California has expired.

Mrs. BOXER. I would like to sum up in 1 more minute, if I might.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. I will go to the Los Angeles Times editorial which I thought was right on point. They say:

Wilderness is or it is not. There is no mostly wilderness with just a little bit of development.

It continues: No matter what Dick Cheney says, U.S. energy security does not depend on drilling for fuel in the Arctic refuge. The Alaskan oil would not come on line for 10 years. It goes through that.

It says: The fastest way to gain more energy security is to use less oil and use it more efficiently. It shows that better tires alone will give you more oil than lies in the refuge.

Then it ends up:

The nation doesn't need a muscle-bound energy policy. It needs a smart one—one that does not rely so heavily on fossil fuels and fossil thinking.

The choice is clear. I respect my friends from the other side on this debate, but I hope we will defeat the proposal to open the refuge.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. Who yields time?

The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I yield myself 9 minutes.

Let me begin by paying respect to both Senators from Alaska. Though I disagree with them and they know that, they waged an effort that represents their principles, their views, their beliefs and, most especially, the beliefs of the people of Alaska, as they understand their responsibility.

I emphasize as strongly as I can, none of us in the U.S. Senate are cavalier or dismissive of Alaska's interests. There are many ways to serve those interests. I certainly am one Senator who is prepared always to try to help with respect to economic development issues, other hardship issues that exist in a State that faces a different set of challenges from many of us in the Senate. I hope they understand that, that this is a difference based on an equally fervently held set of beliefs and a different interpretation of the facts.

I think they are facts. There are some profound differences in that regard.

With respect to the amendment on steel, I believe Congress must act to deal with the plight of steelworkers, retired steelworkers and their families. Steelworker retirees are being devastated by the loss of health care benefits. More than 125,000 steelworkers have lost those benefits due to the liquidation of 17 American steel companies, and another 500,000 steelworker retirees stand to lose their health care unless we act to protect them.

I am glad that some of our Republican friends have discovered this issue. I regret that they want to trade their concern for steelworkers with the opening of the Arctic Wildlife Refuge. It would be disappointing if down the road our Republican friends are only prepared to try to deal with steelworkers in the context of the Arctic wildlife refuge and not in the context of their personal human plight. We will have an opportunity in a short period of time to try to deal appropriately with the problem of steelworkers.

Yesterday Senator WELLSTONE made a very powerful statement in the Senate Chamber. There is nobody in the Senate who has fought harder or will fight harder for steelworkers than Senator WELLSTONE, but he will work in a bipartisan way, as he is now, to help us deal with this issue at the appropriate time.

One of the things with which I disagree with my colleagues, as they have presented this issue, is that there has been this moving target of rationale for why we should be asked to drill in the Arctic wildlife refuge. We have heard on the other hand that those of us who oppose it somehow oppose job creation or we are in favor of high gasoline prices or we oppose energy independence or we support electricity brownouts, blackouts, that we oppose Israel, that we support Saddam Hussein. There have been a series of insinuations in the course of this argument that really don't do proper service to the merits of the argument or to the good faith of most U.S. Senators.

It is interesting also that this moving target of support for this issue has found different rationale at different points of time. When California faced an electricity crisis last year in January, we heard Senators come to the floor and suggest that ANWR would help solve that problem. We actually had those arguments made. But only 1 percent of all of the electricity of California comes from oil-based, oil-fired electricity.

ANWR has nothing to do with it. The Middle East has nothing to do with California's brownout problems or electricity problems. Then we heard when heating oils spiked and gas prices spiked, of course: ANWR is the answer. But the Arctic Wildlife Refuge drilling will not come online for about 7 to 10 years. When it does come online, it doesn't produce a sufficient amount of oil under anybody's scenario to have an effect on the world price or world supply. So that argument simply doesn't stand scrutiny.

The Arctic Wildlife Refuge, at its best offering, will not affect the price of oil globally, and it cannot affect America's supply. Then, when we were hit with a recession and layoffs, we were told: the Arctic Wildlife Refuge is the solution. It is going to produce 700,000 jobs. But now the very people who made that study and talked about those numbers of jobs have repudiated that number and have acknowledged that that number was based on a 12-year-old study that had oil at the price of $45 a barrel in the year 2000, and all of us know it has been at about $25 or less, and that provides a different economic reality.

The truth is that one might be talking about somewhere in the vicinity of 50,000, 60,000, 100,000 jobs, which is the number of jobs produced in the American economy in a 3-week period and anytime we are doing what we were doing in the period of 1997 to the year 2000. So this is really not even a jobs program. In fact, the very people who produced the faulty study acknowledged that, until the year 2007, the Arctic Wildlife Refuge doesn't provide any jobs at all—zero. That is according to the American Petroleum Institute's funded study that is faulty—maybe it was faulty to the wrong side, but they suggested there would be zero jobs in that period of time. So it is certainly not an antidote to recession, to the current economic problems we face.

Promise after promise after promise about what it will do has been punctured by the truth. Here is a truth with which our colleagues on the other side of the aisle can never adequately deal. The truth is, even with the best, most optimistic prognosis of what you might get out of the Arctic Wildlife Refuge—even with that, and all of the other oil we possess in the United States of America, we have a problem: God only gave our country 3 percent of the world's oil reserves. The Middle East, Saudi Arabia, the gulf states, all of the countries from which we import, including Iran and Iraq, which have been the subject of much vilification, for good reason, have the largest share of the world's oil reserves. Saudi Arabia alone has 46 percent, compared to our 3 percent.

Here is the other truth they don't want to deal with: Every year, the United States of America uses 25 percent of the world's reserves. Of the available oil, 25 percent goes to America, even though we only have 3 percent of the oil reserves. The simple equation, the truth that they don't want to deal with, is that the United States of America has an ultimate confrontation with its dependency on oil.

Oil is a finite resource. One day, it is going to be used up. One day, we are going to have to move to a different form of transportation dependency. The question to be asked of Americans is: If we have to do it one day, and with all these ills that are associated with the dependency today, why don't we make the choice today to begin to define that dependency?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. KERRY. I ask unanimous consent that I may yield myself 1 additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, on every category with respect to independence, this will not affect the independence of the United States. We have to invent the new technologies that provide the new fuels for America. This will not affect the price for America. This will not liberate us from our dependency in the Middle East. This will not bring home one of America's young men or women who are in harm's way as a consequence of opening the Arctic Wildlife Refuge. What it will do is destroy forever this precious resource, designated as a pristine wilderness, that can never be returned to that state, which has been cherished by Republican Presidents, Democratic Presidents, Republican administrations, Democratic administrations, and by all Americans for all of these years. Let's not vote today to give that up when there is a better set of choices for our country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, how much time is remaining on this side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 14 minutes 20 seconds.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I yield 4 minutes to my friend from Wyoming.

I would like to put up a picture that shows a producing well from the Don Edwards Bay National Wildlife Refuge out of San Francisco, CA. It is a wildlife refuge, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming is recognized.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I thank my friend from Alaska. I served with him on the Energy Committee for some time when he was chairman. I served closely with him in this idea of doing something to develop an energy policy in this country. I want to speak very briefly about our need for a balanced energy policy.

Obviously, we are on ANWR here, of course, which is part of that total policy. That has been and should be the emphasis. It is only part of the policy, but a very important part of it. I am amazed at the opponents who talk about how we face these problems in the future, and we need to do something about it and refuse to move forward on one of the things we can most reasonably do.

I come from a State where we have a good deal of production, where we have a great deal of public lands. I can tell you that multiple use of those lands is one of the things we really believe in and can do and have proven can be done.

The lands I am talking about in Wyoming are really a little different from the ones in Alaska. I have visited there, and I can tell you that we can use those in multiple use. We can continue to have the uses that are there. We can use it for energy.

It has been years since we have moved on an energy policy—years. It is time we do that, and it is time we do a balanced bill that has in it one of the things that are most clearly needed, and that is domestic production. I am amazed that particularly my friends from New England, who use most of the energy in this country and don't produce any, are very concerned about the fact that we are trying to use multiple use ideas in the rest of the country where we can help provide these kinds of resources. There is nothing more important. What is more important than our energy?

Mr. KERRY. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. THOMAS. No. I think the Senator from Massachusetts has had ample time to discuss this issue.

One of the things we need to do is take a real look at this, of course. ANWR was set aside for future exploration, no question about that. ANWR, obviously, will reduce our dependence on foreign oil. We are nearly 60-percent dependent on foreign oil in an unstable world such as we have now. ANWR is the largest onshore prospect for oil and gas. That is clear. It is clearly there. ANWR would require the toughest environmental standards ever imposed on energy production, and that goes back to this idea of having multiple use, to be able to do it with this 2,000-acre footprint and, at the same time, preserve that environment. We can do that. It creates jobs, of course, for the whole country and for Alaska, for the Native Americans who live there. It gives us a more affordable and reliable energy. That is the basis.

Many of us have been working on energy for a very long time. We need to have that reliable source. We are going to look for new ways, and we will find new ways.

I remember going to a meeting in Casper years ago, and someone, I think from Europe, said we would never run out of the fuel, and we will. We don't know. We need oil, and we need domestic oil.

Mr. President, I am not going to take more time. We have had thousands of people come here—veterans, Jewish folks, labor unions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. THOMAS. They are very aware of what we need to do. I urge we do it, including drilling in ANWR.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I believe I have 5 minutes to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair. Mr. President, this debate about the proposal to drill for oil in the Arctic Refuge has been simmering for a long time, and it has finally been joined in this Chamber over the last 2 days.

It has been a good, spirited debate. I have great respect for those who are proponents of drilling, particularly my two colleagues and friends from Alaska. I never question their sincerity. We have a good-faith difference point of view.

Let me try, if I can, for a few moments to summarize what I believe are our arguments against drilling and then talk about where I hope we go after we have voted on these cloture motions.

First, we are talking about 5 percent of the North Slope in Alaska. Ninety-five percent is now open for oil exploration and development. A lot of it is happening now. A lot of it is planned. This 5 percent is the heart of a thriving, beautiful ecosystem described by someone as the American Serengeti.

The question is, Do we want to disrupt it, develop on it, some would say destroy its natural state—I would say that—for the oil that we could get out of it? And would that development for oil affect the health of that beautiful part of Alaska?

I contend and we have contended in this debate that the development of the refuge as proposed in the pending amendments would irreversibly damage this natural treasure. The U.S. Geological Survey recently produced a 78-page report encapsulating 12 years of research which, in my opinion, concludes that very fact of irreversible damage to this natural treasure.

For what? As we have said over and over, maybe oil coming out of there in 10 years and how much, will it break our dependence on foreign oil? By the Energy Department's own estimate, in 2020, if we allow drilling for oil in the Arctic Refuge, our dependence on foreign oil would drop from 62 percent to 60 percent, still painfully dependent. The only way to break our dependence on foreign oil is to break our dependence on oil and develop new home-grown sources of energy and conserve.

Second, what effect would the drilling have on prices? We are all worried about gas prices going up now. The development of the refuge for oil would do nothing to affect oil and gas prices. Drilling would have no impact, even under the inflated estimates for petroleum potential that are cited by the proponents of the amendment because the price of oil is determined on the world market no matter from where it comes.

As we approach these votes, I am confident that the cloture motions will not succeed. I thank my colleagues for listening to the debate and moving in this direction which I think reflects the opinions of the American people. The question is, What do we do then? I hope we will set aside this divisive amendment and join around the underlying bill which does offer progress, a balanced energy plan for America, including some development within our American sovereignty, our land, but also has the kind of incentives we need for new technologies and conservation, which is the only way for this great Nation to remain great and not dependent on foreign sources of oil.

I say to my colleague from Wyoming that we in New England actually believe we do contribute to the energy supply. My guess is about 50 percent of the energy in the New England States comes from nuclear powerplants right in our region. I know in Connecticut, we have two plants functioning. Forty-five percent of our electricity comes from those plants. More hopefully, New England has become a center for technology development using the brilliance of American ingenuity and innovation and capitalism to create new sources of energy.

One of our great companies, United Technologies, is investing hundreds of millions of dollars in fuel cell technology—clean, efficient, and ours.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I ask unanimous consent for 30 seconds more.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair. Nearly 100 years ago, President Teddy Roosevelt, a great American, great conservationist, great Republican—this really is not a partisan issue—said that the conservation of our natural resources and their proper use constitute the fundamental problem which underlies almost every other problem of national life.

It is a century later, but there is still a lot of wisdom in T.R.'s statement. I hope we will heed it, defeat these motions for cloture, and then move on to work together side by side for the kind of balanced progressive energy program that is in the underlying bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

• Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise in strong opposition to the Murkowski amendment, which calls for oil drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. My opposition is based, primarily, on the critical importance of protecting this special part of the world. But my objection is also based on my view that this proposal represents a fundamental endorsement of a skewed and misguided energy policy.

ANWR is a unique and pristine area. It is the only unbroken continuum of arctic and subarctic ecosystems on the planet. It is home to a wide variety of plants and animals, including 135 bird species. It is the central area for the huge Porcupine caribou herd. It is home to polar bears, wolves, grizzly bears, muskoxen, and wolverines.

And there is no doubt that drilling there would despoil the area. It would risk and potentially harm wildlife. And it would destroy ANWR's unique character as wilderness, regardless of whether that is an applicable legal term or not.

So there is a very serious downside to drilling.

So what is the upside? Why are we even thinking about despoiling a place that so many Americans want us to protect? What's the risk-reward quotient?

We have heard several arguments here on the Senate floor. But they just don't hold up. Notwithstanding claims to the contrary, ANWR oil won't create 735,000 jobs. It won't give an assurance of a reduction in the price of oil, certainly not anytime soon. And it surely won't make us energy independent, lowering our import needs only marginally.

The fact is, there is just not all that much oil in ANWR. Based on estimates from the U.S. Geological Survey, it is likely to have little more than 6 months' worth of capacity relative to 1 year of U.S. demand. The oil wouldn't even begin to be available for at least 10 years. And it wouldn't reach peak production for 20 years.

According to a recent Department of Energy study, even at its peak, total oil production from ANWR would be 800,000 barrels a day. That is only about 0.7 percent of global production.

Who are we kidding here? Is it really worth risking such a treasured space for the prospect of increasing global production by 0.7 percent in 20 years?

I, for one, don't think so.

Now, let me address the issue of jobs. Yesterday, drilling proponents claimed that drilling in ANWR could create 735,000 jobs. That's a significant number. But it just doesn't hold up. The estimate comes from a study conducted for the American Petroleum Institute more than 10 years ago. And it's fundamentally flawed.

For example, the study assumed that peak ANWR production would be 3.5 percent of world supply. Yet, as I have discussed, the real level, based on government estimates, is less than 1 percent.

The study also badly overestimated the world price of oil. It forecasted that the world price of oil would be $46.86 per barrel by 2015, and that price was a driver of the jobs estimate. But when the authors of the study issued a similar forecast recently, they forecast a price of $25.12, a huge difference.

Because of these and other mistakes, the study relied on by ANWR proponents simply has no credibility. And nobody should be fooled by it.

I would point out, that if we want to create jobs, there are much better ways to do that while promoting energy independence. For example, there is no reason why America can't lead in next-generation energy technologies the way we have in information technology and biotechnology. Renewables and fuel cells will be growth industries, and the United States ought to get out front and then export those technologies to the world. That, to me, sounds like a better job creation strategy than drilling in ANWR.

Another argument made by drilling proponents is that drilling in ANWR would reduce the price of world oil. But the oil market is a global market. And it is dominated by players far larger than the United States. We have only 3 percent of the world's oil reserves.

As I mentioned earlier, ANWR's peak production would amount to less than 1 percent of world production. And it's just not realistic to claim that this will have more than negligible impact on the world oil price.

Why? Because it's a huge global market, one that currently has about 7 million barrels a day of excess capacity in the system today.

So a modest decrease in supply, such as the recent disruptions in Iraqi and Venezuelan supplies, can be made up by other producers.

And this process can just as easily work in reverse. Any increase in world oil supply resulting from bringing ANWR on line could simply be offset by decreases in production elsewhere in the world.

Aggregate supply and demand conditions in the global market will set the marginal price, and the prices will be determined by the cumulative decisions of individual producers. The United States simply cannot control the price of oil in the world market, because we don't control the aggregate supply. And drilling in ANWR is not going to change that.

That leads me to the next topic I want to address, national security.

We're now importing about 57 percent of the oil we consume. According to the Department of Energy, if we don't drill in ANWR, we'll be importing 62 percent of our oil by 2020.

If we do drill in ANWR, the Department of Energy estimates that imports would be reduced to 60 percent of U.S. consumption in 2020. That's only a 2-percent decrease in import share resulting from peak ANWR production.

How can anyone pretend that this will make a difference in our national security? It just won't. That 2-percent differential, when it finally comes, simply won't matter.

As I said earlier, the oil market is a world market. No nation or company has a monopoly on supply. So the relatively small amount, in a global context, that ANWR could produce could easily be offset by decreased production elsewhere.

So we are going to be just as vulnerable to price shocks in 2020 if we drill in ANWR as if we don't.

Rather than pretending that ANWR is the answer to our energy security needs, we ought to take steps that can have a real impact. And the most effective step we can take is to reduce consumption. Unfortunately, we have already voted down a CAFE increase, and I think that was a big mistake. But if we are serious about reducing our dependence on foreign oil, we simply have to deal with demand.

Another thing we should do is diversify our sources of oil. And to a large extent, we have already done that. Only 13 percent of the oil we consume comes from the Middle East. The rest is produced here, and in places like Canada, Mexico, the United Kingdom, and Norway.

These particular producers are our closest allies. Are we really supposed to believe that importing oil from these countries is a threat to our national security?

Having said that, I recognize that the Middle East does contain the lion's share of the world's oil reserves. And political turmoil there has clear implications for the world oil market, as does instability in Latin America. But getting a relative trickle of oil from Alaska 10-20 years from now won't make the problems in the Middle East magically disappear, or change the supply of oil enough to impact the price of oil. Instead, we need to engage now and work consistently to bring a lasting peace to the region. Until instability is eliminated, our national security will always be at risk from turmoil in the Middle East. That is an issue that is much larger than oil.

Finally, I wanted to take a moment to briefly discuss energy policy more broadly. As many have said, we need an energy policy that is balanced. But that balance needs to be weighted toward the future, not the past.

That means that our first priority should be to create incentives and standards that encourage the development of next-generation energy technologies. I am talking about technologies like wind, solar, and fuel cells.

Second, we should set tougher energy efficiency standards for appliances, buildings, and vehicles so that we can grow our economy while we use less energy.

And third, we should increase our domestic supplies of fossil fuels in an environmentally responsible way so we can continue to power our economy as we transition to new technologies and energy sources.

In my view, ANWR doesn't fit anywhere in this framework, certainly not as the centerpiece. And it just doesn't make sense as a matter of macroenergy policy.

I think the American people believe that we should leave ANWR alone. That is certainly the sentiment in New Jersey. I have received letters from more than 9,000 New Jerseyans urging me to oppose drilling in ANWR, that's more than I received on any other topic in my 16 months as a Senator.

The people who wrote to me about ANWR aren't "radical environmentalists," as some drilling proponents have suggested. They're ordinary Americans who believe that ANWR is one of those special places that should be preserved in its natural state. And they are convinced, like I am, that drilling might well cause unacceptable environmental damage.

In conclusion, we know that drilling in ANWR will harm the Arctic wilderness. And the economic and national security benefits just aren't there. So I will vote against cloture, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I believe that a comprehensive energy plan is absolutely critical security and economic well-being of this nation. A national energy policy needs to balance our growing demand for energy with conservation and supply. I believe that this balance should include the use of sustainable, renewable energy sources along with continued responsible development of traditional fuels including limited, environmentally-sensitive exploration in a small fraction of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, ANWR. Energy exploration in ANWR has become a very contentious and highly polarized issue. I would like to take this opportunity and talk frankly about energy exploration in this area and dispel some of the many myths associated with this issue.

An overwhelming majority of the Arctic Refuge is protected from energy development. In fact, 92 percent of the refuge is not eligible for development at all. However, more than 20 years ago, Congress set aside 8 percent of ANWR—1.5 million acres of the Refuge—for possible energy exploration. In 1980, under the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act, Congress expanded ANWR to 19 million acres, and designated 8 million acres as wilderness area. Under this act, the designated wilderness area cannot be considered for development.

However, the current debate regarding drilling in ANWR surrounds the 1.5 million acres—outlined in Section 1002 of the act—that was set aside by Congress for further study into the development of mineral resources. Under Section 1002, Congress called upon the Department of Interior to conduct a study on the biological resources and oil and gas potential of the 1.5 million acre coastal plain. This study, commonly called the 1002 Report or the Final Legislative Environmental Impact Study, was released in 1987 and recommended full leasing of the coastal plain. The Section 1002 area has always been a potential site for mineral recovery, and is not, as has been expressed by some, part of a wilderness designation.

It is true that Section 1002 makes up at most 8 percent of the total refuge or 1.5 million acres. However, this number is misleading. In reality, the entire 1.5 million acres would not be developed. Current estimates place the total acreage of development at far less than a million acres. In fact, HR. 4, the House-passed energy bill, and the current Senate amendment contain provisions to limit development to 2,000 acres or 0.01 percent of the refuge. Our opponents say that the "2000 acres" grossly underestimates the infrastructure required to support energy development, that it merely describes the exact imprint of the core facilities, and does not include the area encompassed by those facilities, nor any of the supporting infrastructure. However, the nature of the facilities covered by the House bill and the exact shape of the 2000 acres was not specified. I believe that the amendment offered by Senator MURKOWSKI better clarifies the scope of development for these 2000 acres.

The use of new technologies will further limit the foot print of development. Thanks to our nation's ingenuity and technological advances, the footprints of energy development infrastructure are drastically reduced. Production of oil is safer and cleaner than ever before. Smaller gravel pads, advances in horizontal drilling, the re-injection of drilling wastes, and ice roads, all decrease the "footprint" of development. Furthermore, several new technologies have increased the success rate of exploratory wells from about 10 percent to as much as 50 percent. Such technologies include: 3-D seismic imaging, 4-D time lapse imaging, ground-penetrating radar, and enhanced computer processing. The greater percentage of successful wells, the fewer number of pads and the lower the exploration costs. Our experiences at Prudhoe Bay are testament to our technological successes. If Prudhoe Bay were built today, the footprint would only be 1,526 acres, 64 percent smaller than it is today.

But no matter how minimal the intrusion, opponents argue that any development will permanently degrade the sense of pristine wilderness found in the refuge. While most of the refuge has little sign of human encroachment, the coastal plain is home to the Inupiat tribe and their village of Kaktovik. Additionally, the nearby Distant Early Warning line (DEWline) for missile detection, the remnants of former or uncompleted DEWline installations, a garbage dump, and a runway are scattered in or near the 1002 area.

Typically, development of mineral resources is often extremely controversial in neighboring state and local communities. That is not true in this case. A majority of Alaskans, 75 percent, the entire Alaskan delegation, and the closest Native American tribe support energy development in ANWR. These constituencies all see ANWR as a tool for supporting a modern economy to meet such basic human needs as health care and education.

More specifically, the Inupiat tribe supports development. This tribe lives on 92,000 acres of privately held land within ANWR, and inhabits the only village within the 1002 area. According to Tara Sweeney, an Inupiat, "We believe that responsible development of this area is our fundamental human right to self-determination." She goes on to say, "When oil was discovered in our region in the late 1960s we were fearful of development. . . . Over thirty years later we have changed our opinion. Development has not adversely impacted our ancient traditions or our food supply. The caribou population . . . has thrived."

Opponents argue that the Gwich'in tribe is strongly opposed to drilling in ANWR. The Gwich'in Tribe depends upon the Porcupine Caribou for food and reveres its calving area and rituals. According to some, developing ANWR is effectively raping and pillaging the land of one of the last great traditional tribes. However, the often quoted Gwich'in Tribe in fact lives over 100 miles away, on the other side of the mountains. The Gwich'in are not and never have been—indigenous to the North Slope. On the other hand, the Inupiat, who live within the 1002 area, support development and feel strongly that it will improve their way of life. It is my firm belief that the people of Alaska, the people who live closest to the refuge, should be allowed to determine their future and the future of ANWR. These people see that development of ANWR will lead to both a healthy economy and a healthy environment.

Opponents also raise concern about animals, such as the polar bears and the Porcupine Caribou, which reside in and around the 1002 area. Some believe that drilling would endanger both populations. For polar bears, the concerns have focused on how modern winter technology will affect winter dens and if pregnant polar bears denning on the coastal plain would be affected. Despite these concerns, the record is clear. Over the past 20 years, the population of polar bears has remained exceedingly healthy. In fact, over ninety percent of Alaska's 2,000 polar bears den in the offshore pack ice and would not be affected by onshore development along the Arctic coastal plain.

Ill-founded concerns regarding the welfare of caribou have been raised during the discovery of oil at Prudhoe Bay. Yet, following the development of Prudhoe, the herd seemed to adapt, and even prosper. In 1969, when oil was first discovered in the region, the Central Arctic caribou herd was estimated at 3,000 animals. Today, the same herd has grown to almost 20,000 animals. The herd is healthy and continues to calve and nurse their young alongside the oil field operations. Opponents suggest the following: that the Porcupine Caribou cannot be compared to the Central Arctic herd; that the narrower coastal plain off the 1002 area results in a smaller calving area than Prudhoe; that the pictures of caribou on drilling pads and near pipelines are misleading; that the encroachment of development facilities will force the animals into the more dangerous foothills; and furthermore, that Porcupine Caribou is sacred to the Gwich'in tribe.

While a few of these concerns may be valid, empirical evidence suggests that the Porcupine Caribou population is robust, nearly 130,000 stronger, compared to the present Central Arctic Herd, only 20,000. Therefore, I am confident that development of a few thousand acres of the coastal plain will not harm the far stronger 130,000 member Arctic Porcupine Caribou herd which inhabits the Arctic Refuge. This is not to say that impacts on animals—even in the slightest and most unexpected form—are not possible. Should such impacts become apparent, the federal government may establish special protections for impacted animals, such as wilderness designation, delayed exploration, or a special regulatory regime.

On a larger scale, development of ANWR could reduce America's dependence on foreign oil. Currently, the United States imports 57 percent of our oil supply. By 2020, experts project that this country could be importing up to 65 percent of our oil supply. This reliance on foreign oil jeopardizes our national security and makes our economy susceptible to the frequent and recurring crises that occur around the world. As we have experienced over the last few weeks, we can not afford to rely on rogue nations like Iraq for oil, a resource vital to the economy and security of our country. Dependence on foreign sources of oil holds Americans hostage, by exposing the United States to every crisis within every nation we depend on for oil. For instance, over the last few weeks, we have witnessed turmoil within Venezuela that resulted in reduction of Venezuelan oil being shipped to the United States. Prior to this crisis, Venezuela was the third largest supplier of oil to the U.S. If this crisis continues, Americans could suffer price increases at the gas pump, the grocery store, and in their heating bills this winter.

However, if this country is allowed to move forward with development in the 1002 area, and we are again faced with oil embargoes, war, or further terrorist attacks, it will be possible to mitigate those hardships, by increasing our reliance on domestic production from Alaska's North Slope.

The fields in ANWR are the best bet for significant oil finds in the United States. Assuming 9.4 billion barrels are economically recoverable at a world market price of $24 per barrel, development of ANWR's oil fields would be roughly 1.4 million barrels per day. By 2015, projected U.S. oil imports will be 15.25 million barrels per day and petroleum use is estimated at 24.26 million barrels per day. This would mean that peak production in the 1002 area could reduce U.S. imports by a significant 9 percent by 2015.

As our technologies advance, more and more of the oil present in the 1002 area will become technically recoverable. Should the prices of oil significantly increase over time, more oil from ANWR will become economically recoverable. The amount of economically recoverable oil estimated in the 1002 area is comparable to the giant field at Prudhoe Bay, now estimated to have held 11–13 billion barrels.

Opponents insist that drilling in ANWR will not alleviate our dependence on foreign oil. They assume that ANWR's oil will be sold to the highest bidder and therefore can just as easily be sold abroad as sold domestically. The amendment currently being debated in the Senate would limit the exportation of oil from ANWR to Israel alone. In addition, H.R. 4 contains a provision which prohibits the exportation of oil under a lease in the 1002 area, as a condition of the lease.

Development of ANWR's resources could bring jobs to every state in the union. Further development of the North Slope is expected to create between 60,000 and 735,000 new jobs, depending on the amount of oil found, the price of oil, and the unemployment rate at the time of development. For this reason, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and several other labor unions have spoken out publicly in support of ANWR development. According to James P. Hoffa, Teamsters general president, "Working families are about to be caught between a recession and a deepening energy crisis. By tapping into petroleum resources in Alaska, we can create jobs and stabilize our economy by lessening our dependence on foreign oil."

Revenues from any recovered resource will be split between the Federal Government and the State of Alaska. According to the Alaska Statehood Act and the Mineral Leasing Act, Alaska should be treated like any other State where revenues are split 90/10, in favor of the State. However, Congress could, as they have in H.R. 4, establish a different arrangement, where the revenue sharing formula is 50/50. Federal revenues would be enhanced by billions of dollars from bonus bids, lease rentals, royalties and taxes. Estimates in 1995 on bonus bids alone were $2.6 billion. The Inupiat tribe sees development as a good move for their economy too, since they are only allowed to develop their subsurface mineral resources, if the Federal Government develops the 1002 area.

Opponents argue that a six month supply of oil hardly seems worth destroying America's Serengeti. However, the "6-month" argument is misleading. This figure assumes that all U.S. consumption will be met by ANWR, that we will not produce any oil domestically, and that we will not import any oil whatsoever. This is actually an impossible scenario. All of the oil in the 1002 area can not be removed within a 6-month time frame. Furthermore, it would be impossible to move that much oil via the Trans-Alaskan Pipeline during such a short time frame. A much more realistic scenario is to say that there is enough oil in the 1002 area to curtail all imports from Iraq over the lifetime of the 1002 oil fields.

Drilling in ANWR will not alleviate an immediate energy crisis or solve any of our immediate needs. Depending on the time it takes to navigate through the permitting process, full scale production in the 1002 area is likely to take 7–12 years. However, development in the 1002 area will help to mitigate future problems stemming from a reliance on foreign oil and a shortage of domestic energy sources.

We need a comprehensive energy policy which, while developing conventional resources, also includes energy conservation and research into renewable power generation. There are many very promising renewable energy sources currently being researched and developed. However, it will likely take at least a decade to bring renewable technologies into the market place. I feel it is important that as we pursue new and innovative technologies, we continue to develop our conventional fuels to guarantee a vibrant economy, jobs, and our national security.

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to amendment No. 3132 to the energy bill allowing for the opening of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil exploration and development. My decision to oppose this amendment was not made lightly. It was made after much thought and deliberation and after carefully reviewing all of the information available.

I think it is important to put today's debate in context with the 1980 decision by Congress to set aside the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In 1980, just before the election of Ronald Reagan, this country was in the middle of economic disaster, the Carter "malaise." Our Nation was just exiting a terrible energy crisis; we were suffering from stagflation; the Middle East was in crisis with Americans being held hostage in Iran; and gas prices, adjusted for 2002 dollars, were well over $2 per gallon. Yet it was in that atmosphere that the United States Senate established, by a 78-14 vote, the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and prohibited drilling in the refuge. That strong bipartisan decision was supported by the overwhelming majority of both Republicans and Democrats, conservative and liberal, including many of both parties who are still in the Senate today. I believe that was the right decision then, and I believe the Senate should maintain its support for protecting this wildlife refuge.

My support for the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is nothing new. In fact, in 1990, I was a cosponsor of legislation in the House of Representatives to designate the wildlife refuge as wilderness in order to ensure protection from oil and gas exploration. I believed then, as I do now, this area represents one of our last complete and unspoiled arctic ecosystems in the world. It is a very special place deserving protection. While I have been a supporter for exploration of many areas of this country, in fact some areas that arctic drilling proponents have opposed, I believe it is a different case to drill and develop in a designated wildlife refuge that was set aside because of its wilderness qualities by Congress.

I would like to quickly address the provisions in the amendment that limit the exploration and development infrastructure to 2,000 acres. I think that there are misconceptions about what these provisions actually do. This provision reads, "the maximum amount of surface acreage covered by production and support facilities, including airstrips and any areas covered by gravel berms or piers for support of pipelines, does not exceed 2,000 acres on the Coastal Plain." Supporters of this amendment believe that this provision will limit production to just 2,000 acres of the coastal plain, an area about the size of a large airport.

What needs to be kept in mind, is that the oil reserves in ANWR are not found in a concentrated area. They are spread out over the coastal plain in various pockets that differ in size. Production activities will not be limited to just one section of the coastal plain. Oil rigs, pipelines and other facilities will be spread throughout the area, resulting in a spider-web effect of infrastructure than could cover much of the coastal plain. This is especially true since pipelines are not included in the amendment, just the support beams. To put this all in perspective, the infrastructure associated with existing oil development on the North Slope has a "footprint," as defined in this amendment, of 12,000-acres, but in reality covers an area of more than 640,000 acres, or 1,000 square miles. It is safe to assume that in this amendment the so-called 2,000 acre limitation in ANWR would likely impact an area over 50 times that size.

This Nation must have a comprehensive energy strategy that ensures a reliable, environmentally friendly, safe and economic supply of energy. I applaud President Bush for his commitment and I am proud to be a strong supporter of nearly all of his plan. I have been a long advocate of incentives for next generation vehicles and alternative fuels. These are vehicles that will not only provide clean transportation, but will dramatically reduce our oil dependency. I have also introduced legislation providing incentives for the construction of energy efficient buildings. However, I do not believe that allowing oil development in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge is the right answer.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the Arctic national Wildlife Refuge or ANWR. As my good friend and colleague from Alaska Senator STEVENS has outlined, oil and gas exploration in ANWR is not a new issue. In fact, it is an issue that was contemplated when Congress expanded the boundaries of the Arctic national Wildlife Refuge in 1980, by requiring the Department of Interior to prepare a detailed study on the Coastal Plain area and recommend how it should be managed.

The Department of Interior's study recommended that the entire area be made available for oil and gas leasing, describing it as "the most outstanding petroleum exploration target in the on-shore United States." Despite this recommendation, no action has been taken in ANWR the intervening years except for the 1996 Budget Reauthorization Act authorizing the opening of ANWR which was retold by President Clinton.

I understand that there is a push and pull between those who believe we should strive to achieve energy independence by drilling in ANWR and those who feel that we should protect the environment and preserve ANWR. But, I believe that we can do both. We have come a long way since the very first oil fields were drilled. Today we have the ability, the technology and the know-how to drill in ANWR and protect and preserve the environment.

What is more, we are not proposing to drill in the entire Arctic National Wildlife Refuge as one might assume when they listen to our debate. In fact, this amendment will only allow for drilling on 2,000 acres of the total 19 million acres that encompasses the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

The events of September 11th have made it glaringly obvious that the time has come for the United States Congress to step up to the plate and take an active interest and an active role in securing our nation's energy future. We can no longer sit on the sidelines and assume that wind energy, solar panels, and battery packs are going to advance our Nation's energy interest. No matter how many tax credits we force on alternative fuels or how much money we devote to research into these technologies, the fact remains that our country is increasingly dependent on foreign sources of oil.

The reality of the situation is that our Nation is more reliant on foreign sources of oil today than it was during World War II. This despite CAFE standards and other investments in alternative fuel vehicles. The Energy Information Administration estimates that in the next 20 years America's demand for oil is projected to increase by 33 percent. Yet as consumption increases, U.S. production continues to decrease. I think that is a frightening fact and I believe that we must address it by increasing domestic production. If this means that we need to drill in ANWR, then we must drill in ANWR.

Today, foreign imports supply 60 percent of our Nation's consumption. This dependence makes us vulnerable. It is not in our national interest to continue to be beholden to volatile foreign countries for our energy needs.

This country needs a rational energy policy. And we need a national energy policy that includes new sources of production so that we have access to our own energy supplies. Without our own energy supplies, this country will continue its increasing dependence on volatile foreign sources that could be terminated at any moment.

We cannot continue to put more and more power in the hands of foreign suppliers, foreign countries. ANWR has the potential to produce over one million barrels of oil a day. One million barrels a day is enough to replace the volume that we currently import from Saudi Arabia or Iraq for more than 25 years.

Energy independence should be our long-term goal. But reducing our reliance on foreign energy sources should be our short-term goal. This country needs a balanced national energy policy that encompasses these goals. We need an energy policy that protects the environment, increases the efficient and effective use of renewables, encourages diversification of generating capacity AND most importantly, increases our domestic production. ANWR presents the United States with enormous potential for increasing domestic production. I think that we would be fools to pass up such an important opportunity for our Nation.

I encourage my colleagues to join with me in supporting this amendment to allow oil and gas exploration in ANWR.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, in my 22 years in the Senate, there has not been a more heavily lobbied issue than ANWR and there has not been a tougher vote. It is especially difficult because of my commitment to protecting the environment for future generations, including my own grandchildren, as evidenced by my strong environmental voting record.

After extensive deliberation, I have decided to vote for cloture, to cut off debate, for a composite of reasons: 1. The United States needs to become independent of OPEC oil; 2. this modified legislation greatly reduces the environmental impact; 3. Federal funds from ANWR would cover legacy retiree health costs for steel workers to allow for re-structuring to save the American steel industry and tens of thousands of jobs, including thousands for Pennsylvanians.

Many steps must be taken to free the U.S. from dependence on OPEC oil. To rely on the Saudis, let alone Iraq and Iran, is to court disaster. Our reliance on Arab oil has broad-ranging implications on our policy in the Mid-East including our support for Israel.

In this bill, I have voted for a significant increase in renewables to generate more energy from wind, the sun, biomass, hydropower and geothermal sources. I have supported expanded tax credits for clean coal and conservation measures including increasing mileage requirements for motor vehicles.

While I would prefer not to open ANWR to drilling if we could become independent of OPEC oil without it, I have visited ANWR and believe that significant steps have been taken to reduce the incursion, such as a reduced footprint through multi-directional drilling, ice roads and winter season drilling.

This legislation also allows for the use of funds from ANWR to cover so-called legacy costs for retired steel workers which would enable re-structuring of the domestic industry which is vital for national security. More than thirty steel companies have filed for bankruptcy in the past few years and tens of thousands of steel workers have lost their jobs. The recently imposed tariffs on imported steel gives the industry a three-year period for re-structuring with consolidation of many potentially failing companies into a company which could compete with foreign steel producers. That consolidation could not take place if the acquiring company has to assume the legacy costs. Federal funds derived from ANWR would be used to cover such legacy costs and permit consolidation.

Another consideration in my vote to invoke cloture is my view that the Senate should not require 60 votes for passage, a super majority, unless there is a great principle at issue, such as civil rights or civil liberties. Regrettably, a practice has evolved in the Senate to require cloture or 60 votes to pass legislation which is contrary to the fundamental principle, that in a democracy, decisions should be made by a majority.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, today I express my opposition to drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. I oppose drilling in the Arctic Refuge because it is both poor energy policy and poor environmental policy.

A sound energy policy is critical to our Nation's security. The United States is currently 56 percent dependent on foreign oil. By 2020, this number could rise to 70 percent. At that time, over 64 percent of the world's oil exports will come from Persian Gulf nations, a prospect that causes me great concern.

In light of our increasing dependence on a profoundly undependable source of oil, we must ask ourselves what course do we now chart for our Nation's energy policy? Should we rush to deplete our last major reserve of oil, or should we increase conservation and develop alternative technologies that will allow our children to enjoy a better quality of life?

President Teddy Roosevelt once said: "I recognize the right and duty of this generation to develop and use our natural resources, but I do not recognize the right to waste them, or to rob by wasteful use, the generations that come after us."

Americans have a right to develop our energy resources, but not to waste them. We could do far more to reduce our reliance on foreign oil by increasing the efficiency of our automobiles than by drilling in the Arctic. Drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge today would be akin to wasting resources that should rightfully be there for future generations. We must embrace an ethic of stewardship of our most treasured national resources.

Instead of rushing to deplete what is likely the last major oil reserve in the United States, we should instead promote energy efficiency and develop alternative technologies. Doing so will not only make more of an immediate difference than drilling in the Arctic, but it will also ensure that we leave our children with ample energy supplies and a broader array of energy options.

We can achieve greater and more immediate energy security by increasing our energy efficiency. According to testimony heard before the Senate Government Affairs Committee, the United States could cut our dangerous reliance on foreign oil by more than 50 percent by increasing energy efficiency by 2.2 percent per year. This would do far more to reduce our reliance on foreign oil than would drilling in ANWR, and the benefits could start almost immediately, not in 10 years. I note that the United States has a tremendous record of increasing energy efficiency when we put our minds to it: following the 1979 OPEC energy shock, the United States increased its energy efficiency by 3.2 percent per year for several years. With today's improvements in technology, 2.2 percent is attainable.

I am disappointed that the Senate last month failed to adopt higher automobile fuel economy standards. The Senate had the chance to save more than twice as much oil as is in the Arctic Refuge by simply increasing fuel economy standards. That proposal, which I cosponsored, would have saved consumers billions of dollars in annual gasoline bills while doing more to reduce our reliance on foreign oil than any other single measure.

It was Republican President Dwight Eisenhower who first set aside the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. In his parting words from the Oval Office, President Eisenhower told the Nation:

"As we peer into society's future, . . . [we] must avoid the impulse to live only for today, plundering for our own ease and convenience, the precious resources of tomorrow." Although the Arctic Refuge may seem to some to be the easiest and most convenient source of oil available, drilling in the Arctic Refuge will not solve our energy problems. I urge my colleagues to increase our energy efficiency, develop alternative energy sources, and preserve our precious Arctic resources so that our children will have the freedom to make their own choice concerning this vast wilderness reserve.

Mr. McCain. Mr. President, I would like to speak about today's vote to end debate on the two pending amendments to authorize oil and gas development in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

In past years, I have voted in support of exploring development options in ANWR as part of budget reconciliation measures. I believed that was the right vote. I was not an expert on the issue and I believed that further deliberation was warranted.

Unfortunately, the information presented to us consistently reveals widely varying predictions of actual oil potential and economic benefits, as well as various scenarios of possible impacts on wildlife and the environment. Even government studies are not conclusive and raise more questions than they answer. The various interpretations have already been debated by each side, and I need not rehash them now.

However, several factors are clear to me.

Oil and gas could be recovered from ANWR many years from now, but not without considerable costs to taxpayers.

Most scientific analyses conclude that both the land and wildlife would adversely be impacted by development.

The two Alaska Native communities most impacted by this debate are split in their positions on this issue.

Even if ANWR were authorized for development, we would still rely on imported oil supplies and require other sources of energy development and generation.

I, too, am concerned about our Nation's dependence on foreign oil supplies. Unless we act in some comprehensive manner on several fronts, including conservation measures and greater use of nuclear and other forms of alternative energy generation, our current dependence on foreign oil could increase from 56 percent to 70 percent in less than 20 years.

With respect to taking truly effective action to reduce our oil dependence, regrettably the Senate rejected a more effective measure to modestly increase fuel efficiency standards, a proposal that would substantially decrease our Nation's dependence on foreign oil and also reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Had we adopted an increase of fuel efficiency standards to 36 mpg average by 2013, we could have potentially saved 2.5 million barrels of oil per day by 2020 which is about equal to present imports from the Persian Gulf. This prudent conservation measure would also save twice as much, if not more, oil than what is in ANWR.

Opening the refuge could only meet about 2 to 5 percent of the Nation's oil needs, at best. Even some oil company executives have expressed doubts about drilling in ANWR, as stated by one: "Big oil companies go where there are substantial fields and where they can produce oil economically . . . does ANWR have that? Who knows?"

Let me also say that the answer to threats posed by the regime of Saddam Hussein is not to drill in ANWR but to end his regime sooner rather than later. Drilling in ANWR will not remove the clear and present danger posed by Hussein and will not stop in any way whatsoever his weapons of mass destruction program or for that matter his "inspiring and financing a culture of political murder and suicide bombing," as Defense Secretary Rumsfeld so aptly described his lawless and murderous behavior.

I also wish to comment briefly about the second-degree amendment offered to the underlying ANWR amendment to divert a majority of revenues derived from oil and gas development to retirement and other benefits for the steel industry.

I am not against our steel workers. They helped build our Nation and are among the hardest working people in America. But to underwrite their retirement in a transparent effort to attract more votes is very bad policy. What do we say to all the other workers who are also suffering during economic hard times? Are we going to say, "sorry, but giving royalties to folks in your industry won't get us the votes we need to pass our bill"?

Miners, teachers, construction laborers, and many other hard-working Americans have seen their jobs, benefits, and pensions endangered by the recent hard economic times. Yet, they would not benefit from this proposal. Nor would our veterans, who undoubtedly could use more help paying for their medical bills. These last-minute tactics are not a credit to this deliberative body and only serve to increase the public's skepticism of government.

America will need oil for the foreseeable future. What gives this generation the right to deplete this vital resource when we have the opportunity to preserve it for the benefit of future generations? At the end of our day, we still have prudent alternatives to ANWR to meet our energy demands and we should aggressively pursue them. A more acute energy need than our own in the future may require development, where assurances of improved technology may better protect the environment. With other viable energy options available to us today, to approve ANWR drilling would be a dereliction of our duty to posterity.

Teddy Roosevelt, the champion of conservation, once said: "Conservation means development as much as it does protection. I recognize the right and duty of this generation to develop and use the natural resources of our land; but I do not recognize the right to waste them, or rob, by wasteful use, the generations that come after us."

I have thought long and hard about this debate and the vote that I will cast. I still hope we can achieve a more balanced national energy strategy, but I am not convinced that a key component of that policy should be to drill in ANWR. I will vote against the motions to invoke cloture on these amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska controls 10 minutes. The Senator from New Mexico has 14½ minutes.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am informed Senator DASCHLE wishes to speak and is going to be coming to the floor in a few minutes to do that. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, is time running off the side of the majority at this time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is running off the time of the majority.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I thank the Chair. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. We are playing games here, Mr. President, so I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I will take a few minutes at this time, and I would appreciate the Chair reminding me when half my time is up. My understanding is that is in 5 minutes.

I want to show a chart. We had the Senator from California talk a little bit about refuges. This happens to be a producing well in a refuge in California. It is near San Francisco. The point is, there are refuges in many States, as additional charts will show.

Be that as it may, I am not going to belabor that point because there are a few other issues on which we need to reflect.

Today we are seeing headlines: "Summer Gasoline Prices Again Headed Higher."

We also see information coming at us from the Mideast relative to the crisis, and Saddam Hussein advises that oil is going to be used as a weapon.

Oil as a weapon. We remember the last time we saw a weapon in this country, it was an aircraft being used as a weapon—two aircraft, three aircraft. There was the Pentagon, there was the New York Twin Towers, and there was the terrible crash in Pennsylvania.

This is as a consequence, to some degree, of our continued reliance on imported oil. We have heard a lot on the other side relative to ANWR and what it would contribute. Let me identify for the record—and this is from the Energy Institute—crude oil imports relative to the annual report for the year 2002. Opening ANWR would reduce oil dependence from 66 percent in 2020 to 62 percent by 2024; 58 percent by 2020 in a high case. So we have a low case, a mean, and a high.

The significance is what it does relative to domestic production. Assuming the USGS mean case for oil in ANWR, there would be an increase of domestic production by 13.9 percent; assuming a higher case for oil—and this is USGS figures—25 percent of total domestic production, an increase—well, the increase is clearly substantial.

I think what a lot of people have forgotten in this debate is what we are debating. This second degree amendment, of course, provides funding for the rejuvenation of the American steel industry, with the proceeds from ANWR. But for a moment, let us reflect on the fact that passing the underlying amendment does not automatically open ANWR. In this amendment, we have given the President the authority to open ANWR. The President has to certify to Congress that the exploration, development, and production of the oil and gas resources in the ANWR Coastal Plain are in the U.S. national, economic, and security interests. I think we should trust our President to make that decision. Clearly, at a time when the Mideast is in an inferno and we are 58 percent dependent, we should trust our President to make this decision.

Further, there is a 2,000-acre limitation on surface disturbance. That is in the House bill. There is an export ban, with the exception of exports to Israel. Under the Israeli oil supply agreement, we are extending it through the year 2014. There are 1.5 million acres of wilderness in ANWR, in exchange for opening approximately the 1.5 million acres of the Coastal Plain. We believe that is a responsible exchange.

We talk about a process. This is what I find totally unacceptable. One might say we were defeated before we even started on this project. Why? Well, because the majority leader basically pulled away from the committee of jurisdiction the process of developing out of that committee an orderly transition and development of a bill that could be brought to the floor and voted on by 50 votes.

We had 50 votes. We were victorious, and the Democratic leader knew it, but he pulled the bill from the Energy Committee and put us in a position of having to come up with 60 votes, and that is where we are today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 5 minutes remaining.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I guess one could say when we had control of the Senate the last time, 55 to 45 in 1995, we passed ANWR. President Clinton vetoed it. Now it is a different story in the Senate. We have 50/49/1. That is the reality associated with this issue.

The final point I want to make relative to the majority leader and his handling of this bill is one that I think bears consideration by all Members of this body. He said, even if we get 60 votes, we are not going to get ANWR because he will pull the energy bill.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Who yields time?

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, Senator ROCKEFELLER was scheduled to speak. Of his time, which is 10 minutes, we yield 3 minutes to the manager of the bill, Senator BINGAMAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I will summarize some points we have made several times before. I think this debate has been useful in that all the arguments have been heard extensively. I do think it is an important issue.

I commend the Senators from Alaska for their efforts to move ahead. I do not favor going ahead with opening ANWR to drilling, and I think this is a debate which has continued, frankly, for decades in this Senate and in this country.

My own view is the long-term energy needs of our country can be best met with a balanced, comprehensive bill, which we are trying hard to enact and perfect in the Senate, that encourages domestic production in ways that are not environmentally objectionable to a substantial portion of our population. I mentioned those.

There are substantial opportunities for us to increase production on the North Slope of Alaska. There are substantial opportunities for us to increase production in the Rocky Mountain region, and I know that is going to be objectionable to some people, but we have a lot of production in my State. I think there are opportunities for additional production. There is a lot of opportunity for increased production in the gulf that we can benefit from substantially.

In addition to that domestic production, though, we need to have a heavy emphasis on increased efficiency. There is no reason we cannot use the new technology that has been developed to reduce dependence on foreign sources of oil. I regret some of the earlier votes we have had on this bill in that regard. I will not revisit that right now, but I will say there are opportunities for us to pursue an enlightened policy that positions us better in the future with regard to our energy needs. Meeting those needs and opening ANWR to drilling is not a necessary part of that.

I do not support it as an environmental policy, and I do not support it as part of this energy bill. We will have a good opportunity to express views on that in these upcoming two votes, and Members know exactly what the issues are. There is no mystery about that.

With regard to the first of the votes we are going to cast, it is complicated by the fact that we have had loaded in there provisions relating to the steel industry and the legacy issues related to the steel industry. I have said before, and I reiterate, this is not the right place to deal with those issues. I support trying to find a solution to those problems, but this is not the right place to do so.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Who yields time?

Mr. REID. How much time is remaining now on the majority side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ten minutes is available to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. REID. That time is yielded to the Senator from West Virginia, Mr. ROCKEFELLER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I want to read one paragraph of a letter from the United Steelworkers of America which was given to me last night. It says:

The United Steelworkers of America support you—

That happens to be me—

now and will continue to support you as you go forward to explore every avenue for the passage of this vital legislation [the legacy costs for health care].

In the last 2 weeks, despite every effort, the White House and the Republican leadership in the House and Senate refused to grant the ironclad assurances necessary to go forward with legacy costs legislation as part of the energy bill. In fact, the inaction of the White House and the Republican leadership shows a total lack of concern for the 600,000 steelworkers who have or are about to lose their retiree health care.

I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of this letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

UNITED STEELWORKERS OF AMERICA,
Pittsburgh, PA, April 17, 2002.

Hon. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IV,
U.S. Senate, Senate Hart Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ROCKEFELLER: I want to thank you for your continuing efforts to obtain a retiree health care program that will address the needs of hundreds of thousands of Steelworker retirees. The United Steelworkers of America support you now and will continue to support you as you go forward to explore every avenue for the passage of this vital legislation.

In the last two weeks, despite every effort, the White House and the Republican leadership in the House and Senate refused to grant the ironclad assurances necessary to go forward with legacy costs legislation as part of the Energy bill. In fact, the inaction of the White House and the Republican leadership shows a total lack of concern for the 600,000 steelworkers who have, or are about to lose, their retiree health care.

Without your consent or the support of the United Steelworkers of America, the Republican leadership has attached the legacy costs legislation to an amendment that would open Alaska to new oil exploration and production. The United Steelworkers of America oppose this action. The issue of ANWR stands alone. This is not the way to obtain legacy costs relief.

What the Steelworkers do support is the legacy costs legislation that you will introduce today, co-sponsored by Senator Specter of Pennsylvania.

In the coming weeks, we will work with you and other Senators on both sides of the aisle in order to build a broad-based grassroots campaign to ensure the speedy enactment of legacy costs relief. We urge the Republican leadership not to call for a vote on the Stevens' Amendment. Our members, and in particular our 600,000 retirees, their dependents and surviving spouses, deserve serious consideration of this problem, not political exploitation.

Sincerely,

LEO W. GERARD,
International President.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I have consistently, over the years, voted against drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge area. I will oppose both the Murkowski and the Stevens amendments. As a refuge, ANWR is protected land, intended to ensure the national diversity of wildlife, to ensure quality in water and conservation, and to provide subsistence living for Native Americans who have lived in that region for many generations.

The Coastal Plain within the refuge is targeted by some, as we well know, for oil exploration while only 8 percent of this refuge, the plain, is home to a wide variety of wildlife, including polar bears, caribou, and 100 species of birds.

ANWR is likely to produce, at best, 2 percent of America's oil demand in a given year if the oil, in fact, is there. Extracting it, if it is there, will be extremely costly. According to the Congressional Research Service, ANWR would not under any circumstances start producing oil for at least 7 years, or perhaps as many as 12 years.

The limited amount of oil and the problems extracting it make it clear we should not risk opening the refuge, which is the last 5 percent of Alaska's vast North Slope that remains protected. There are other, better ways to promote domestic oil production and other more effective ways to deal with our country's energy needs.

In addition to opening ANWR to oil exploration, Senator STEVENS—who in my work with him acted in total honor and integrity, which is part and parcel of his nature—adds a provision that appears to provide health care benefits to retired steelworkers and also coal miners. They relate to ANWR. He links the two. If that were a real possibility, it would be very hard to resist for somebody like me, who has been fighting for steelworkers who have been going downhill.

However, no matter how genuine the Senator from Alaska is—and he is—he has been unable to secure any kind of support for either himself, myself, or anybody else from the White House that it would support it through the conference committee. Remember, the House has passed this bill. ANWR is in it; there is no steel. Therefore, no matter what we do, it has to go to conference. The whole problem is they would then drop legacy costs for steel and coal miners and keep ANWR, and that would be easy, unless, of course, the White House committed and the House committed not to do so. Senator STEVENS asked for that kind of commitment and was given no such commitment whatsoever. That leaves an empty promise.

It basically says: Vote for me on what I want and when your turn comes, I will consider what you want. In addition, the White House said they would not even consider sending a letter of any sort until they had 60 votes on ANWR. That is the same thing as saying: Give us 60 votes; we will write you some kind of a letter, and steel will get dropped in conference.

No. No. I represent West Virginia, as well as the United States of America and steelworkers and other people everywhere. I am not a part of anything of that sort. I will not and cannot support the effort of the Senator from Alaska to add steel retiree legacy costs to the ANWR amendment, although I am very sympathetic with what his predicament is. It is the same predicament I face. I have great respect for the Senator. His amendment offers nothing to steelworkers across this Nation, through no fault of his own.

The American steel industry and retired steelworkers were struggling in the face of an unprecedented steel crisis. They deserve help from their Government and need help. The steel industry is not a casual industry. It is no less strong in its meaning to America than the oil industry, but nobody seems to care about the steel industry. Not that many States produce steel, and half the Senators from those States do not care. It is a discouraging situation.

The steelworkers deserve straight talk about what the administration is prepared to do to help them, not political gain. There are nearly 100,000 steelworkers without health care benefits today. Most are former LTV workers who lost their benefits less than 8 months ago. Some are workers of American steel companies that went bankrupt waiting for the President to act on section 201, which was the matter of tariffs for unfair trade practices. There are hundreds of thousands of steelworkers whose health benefits are in imminent jeopardy without some help. There is an urgent need for legislation to restore the health benefits and to protect the steelworker health benefits that are at risk.

I want my colleagues to know for months and months I have tried in every way I possibly could to try to get the White House to have some sense of empathy for this situation. They did the tariffs. All that did was buy time. It did nothing for the steel industry. You have to have legacy followed by consolidation. Without consolidation, there is no steel industry. Without legacy there is no consolidation. It has to be tariffs, legacy, consolidation. They said no to legacy.

Don Evans, Secretary of Commerce, was on one of the Sunday shows. He said: That is up to the Congress to pass.

Well, there is a Republican House, a one-vote organizing majority in the Senate, and a Republican White House. What do you think that says? We are not interested.

It is, unfortunately, the steel industry that is not a priority for this administration. I am disappointed but not surprised. I am disappointed. I am bitter about it. I will be back about it. I will be back on this because I represent steelworkers.

There has never been a single solitary indication that this administration would support the concept of legacy relief. The President's refusal to make a commitment to retired steelworkers at this point sends a very chilling message to every steelworker, every steel company in the United States of America that this White House simply does not care about the long-term well-being of the steel industry. I don't know how I can reach any other conclusion. I tried to work with them, but there could be no other conclusion.

For our own industrial manufacturing base, of which steelworkers are 14 percent in West Virginia, for our national security interests, we all have a vested interest in doing something about steel. I conclude by saying, again, please do not be fooled by the linking of drilling and legacy costs. This amendment is misleading. There will be legislation introduced in this body that will represent a meaningful way to protect steel retiree benefits, but this is not the vehicle. Drilling in and of itself is wrong.

I urge my colleagues to vote against both the Stevens amendment and the Murkowski amendment.

I thank the Presiding Officer. I yield the floor.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I ask how much time remains on the other side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska controls 4 minutes and the other side controls 8 seconds.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, how much time remains on the side of the majority?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority has no time remaining.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, obviously, I have the availability of leader time, but in the interest of moving these votes along, it is important we try to stay as close to schedule as we can.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, we have now been debating how best to reshape our Nation's energy policy for 24 days.

Time and again, we have heard our Republican colleagues say that opening Alaska's arctic wilderness is the cornerstone of their energy policy.

Time and again, we have said, if that is the case, then offer an amendment to that effect.

Time and again, they declined.

I am mystified as to why it has taken us so long to get to this point, but now that we are here, I want to talk about the substance of this amendment, because I support policies that will encourage domestic production of oil and gas.

I also believe that we need a comprehensive and balanced energy policy that will help to meet our Nation's critical energy needs.

But, given the fact that drilling in the Arctic Refuge won't increase our energy independence, but will have an adverse impact on the wildlife refuge—I believe that it does not belong as part of our Nation's energy policy.

America's appetite for energy continues to grow each year. Over the next 10 years, the United States is expected to consume roughly 1.5 trillion gallons of gasoline. At the same time, the United States holds only 3 percent of the known world oil reserves.

Even if we drilled in everybody's back yard, we could never meet our own demand with our own supply.

That is not to say that we shouldn't drill for oil and gas in the United States—to the contrary, we can and we should.

But we cannot simply drill our way out of this problem, and we should not be drilling in environmentally sensitive areas.

Supporters of drilling in the Arctic Refuge have used every possible opportunity to justify their position.

When we were experiencing rising oil prices, supporters said it would make oil available quickly and drive prices down in the process.

But even if Congress were to authorize drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge today, we would not see significant quantities of oil produced from the refuge for 8 years at the earliest.

When our economy began to slow, supporters began billing it as an economic stimulus measure, saying it will create 750,000 jobs.

Yet that number comes from an outdated and biased study commissioned by the American Petroleum Institute. Recent, more credible estimates by the Congressional Research Service, the Joint Economic Committee and others suggest that less than one-tenth that number would actually be created.

And now, as we see volatility in a number of oil-producing nations, those same supporters are saying that drilling in ANWR is vital to increasing our energy independence.

But estimates of the amount of oil that might potentially be available if we drilled in the Arctic Refuge average around 3.2 billion barrels.

Let me give you an important point of comparison: if we all put replacement tires on our cars that were as good as the ones that came with the cars when they were new, the resulting increase in efficiency would save 5.4 billion gallons of oil—70 percent more than the total amount of oil in the Arctic Refuge.

Perhaps the most cynical attempt to justify drilling in the arctic refuge was the most recent. It was an attempt to link drilling in ANWR to an issue that many of my colleagues care about—the issue of health and retirement benefits for laid-off steelworkers.

All I can say is that I hope those who proposed this addition to the ANWR amendment remember their newfound commitment to steelworkers when it comes time for us to debate trade adjustment assistance.

The bottom line is this: anytime you see a policy so desperately in search of a justification, you can count on one of two things—either it's not that good a policy, or it doesn't have much support.

Drilling in ANWR falls into both categories.

And here's why: right now, more than 95 percent of the Alaskan North Slope is already open to oil and gas drilling.

I find it ironic that by focusing this debate on ANWR, we are missing the other opportunities to produce oil and gas in Alaska that we should be encouraging.

The first amendment that we passed to this bill authorizes the construction of a pipeline to bring natural gas from Alaska to the lower 48 States.

There are 35 trillion cubic feet of known natural gas reserves on the North Slope of Alaska.

There is more we can do to encourage sensible production. We should explore ways to pump the heavy crude oil that remains in the ground in northern Alaska.

And we should explore for oil and gas in the National Petroleum Reserve in Alaska—the area where the 3 largest onshore oil reserves in the last 10 years were found.

Faced with so little evidence that drilling in the Arctic Refuge would do anything significant to help our economic situation or increase our energy independence, some are now arguing that at the very least it can be done without harming the environment, or without exploiting too much land.

But those arguments are flawed as well.

For 12 years—over the course of a Democratic and a Republican administration—the U.S. Geological Survey studied the impact that drilling in the Arctic Refuge would have on the local wildlife.

In March they came out with their final report—and it couldn't have been more straightforward: the wildlife in the region will be seriously hurt by oil development.

Now, some Republicans are saying that they will limit the operation to a 2,000 acre “footprint,” and the environmental damage will be minimal.

Well, “footprint” is a misleading term.

In reality, oil production on the coastal plain area would require central production facilities, drilling pads, roads, airstrips, pipelines, water and gravel sources, base camps, construction camps, storage pads, powerlines, powerplants, and possibly a coastal marine facility.

When you add those logistical necessities to the fact that those 2,000 acres doesn't include an additional 93,000 acres of Native American land—you begin to see how that 2,000 acre footprint could easily trample a substantial amount of the coastal plain.

Finally, we need to recognize that this debate is about more than just drilling in the Arctic Refuge.

It is about whether we are willing to recognize that decreasing our dependence on foreign oil means decreasing our dependence on oil, period.

It is about whether we choose to pursue an energy future based upon the old philosophy of dig, drill, and burn—or whether we embrace innovative approaches to our energy future.

We need to expand production of renewable fuels, such as ethanol and biodiesel, develop cars and trucks that do not run on gasoline, but on fuel cells or other energy technologies that we can produce here in the United States, and, in the meantime, build more innovative and efficient automobiles.

Let me give you just one example of what the innovative new approach could achieve:

If we had fully implemented the vehicle fuel-efficiency provisions that were originally in this bill—something that could have been done without affecting safety or performance—we would have saved American drivers billions of dollars—and saved our Nation the same amount of oil we are currently importing from the Persian Gulf.

Bold steps like that are the path to energy independence—not backward steps like this.

Most Americans will never have the opportunity to visit the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and see the beauty and wonder of land that has been largely untouched by humans since the dawn of time.

It is a tribute to the best of America that Americans still want to protect that ecologically rich expanse.

It is a tribute to the best of America that so many people today want to give future generations the opportunity to see that land as it once was, and always should be.

So I urge my colleagues to use these votes to show that we have the creativity to meet our energy needs, and the character to resist violating the few natural sanctuaries that we have set aside to protect in the process.

Let's defeat these amendments. I urge all my colleagues to vote against cloture.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I yield myself the remaining time.

I want my colleagues to note there is not one single thing in here that increases domestic oil production in this energy bill. I find that unconscionable at a time when energy prices are increasing. We face continued crisis in the Middle East, and the intention of Saddam Hussein is, in his words, “use oil as a weapon.” We have seen that.

I am very pleased to stand with Senator STEVENS and recognize the support on this issue, from seafarers, teamsters, ironworkers, laborers, operating engineers, plumbers, pipefitters and many other unions in America that recognize this legislation as good for the American worker. A vote on the second degree which Senator ROCKEFELLER just talked about is a vote for America's steel industry.

He didn't talk about rejuvenating the industry. This is money that could come from opening ANWR, some $12 billion. It is unconscionable that they are not giving serious consideration to this because we are talking about passing a law; the conference is something else. Finally, a vote for this amendment is a vote for the Native people of my State of Alaska. They were promised they would have access to their lands. The underlying amendment would give them that.

We talk about truth today. I am going to close with one reference from the New York Times.

A Democrat from the northeast who considers himself a strong environmentalist also said he once tried quietly to see if he could broker a deal in which Democrats would back limited exploration in the wildlife reserve and Republicans would support much tougher fuel efficiency standards for cars and trucks.

The Democrat said he quickly gave up when it became apparent that the environmental organizations would not budge in their opposition to new drilling.

“If you told the environmentalists we would end global warming once and for all in return for ANWR,” he said, “they'd still say no.”

The truth is, what is going on here is simply the word “greed.” The so-called environmentalists are not interested in science; they are not interested in the health of this planet; they are not interested in the welfare of the people of my State; they are interested in only one thing—fundraising and keeping their high-paid jobs.

They know that we can explore Alaska safely; and that the wildlife will not be hurt. But they know that if we win ANWR, and we will, their chief fundraising tool goes away. That's what this entire debate is about—it is about raising money and keeping jobs for people who call themselves environmentalists.

That is the bottom line. We could pull this bill but the people of Alaska are entitled to a vote and Members are entitled to stand and be heard. They are going to be held accountable, and that is the way it should be.

I urge my colleagues to do what is right, what is right for America, not what is right for America's environmental community that has lobbied this issue hell-bent for election.

I yield the floor.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired. Under the previous order, the clerk will report the motion to invoke cloture.

The bill clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close debate on the Stevens amendment No. 3133, regarding drilling in ANWR:

Tom Daschle, Kent Conrad, Harry Reid, Ben Nelson, Barbara Mikulski, Patty Murray, Dianne Feinstein, Tim Johnson, Tom Carper, Jeff Bingaman, Byron Dorgan, Richard Durbin, Mark Dayton, Jay Rockefeller, Patrick Leahy, Jack Reed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived. The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the Stevens amendment, No. 3133, to amendment No. 3132 to S. 517, a bill to authorize funding for the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnership for fiscal years 2002 through 2006 and for other purposes shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are required under the rule. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 36, nays 64, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3133, WITHDRAWN

Mr. STEVENS. Madam President, I withdraw amendment No. 3133.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right. The amendment is withdrawn.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close the debate on the Murkowski ANWR amendment No. 3132 to S. 517, the Energy Bill:

Tim Johnson, Tom Carper, John Kerry, Jeff Bingaman, Patrick Leahy, Tom Harkin, Tom Daschle, Harry Reid, Hillary Rodham Clinton, Max Cleland, Maria Cantwell, Jack Reed, Ron Wyden, Carl Levin, Patty Murray, Max Baucus.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the Murkowski ANWR amendment No. 3132 to S. 517, a bill to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes, shall be brought to a close?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 46, the nays are 54. Three-fifths of the Senate duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAMM. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMM. Madam President, I call for regular order.

AMENDMENT NO. 3144 TO AMENDMENT NO. 2999

Mr. GRAMM. I send a second-degree amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator specify the amendment?

Mr. GRAMM. The Kerry-McCain amendment is the pending business, as I understand the regular order. I think we have about 10 amendments that are in the stack of regular order, but I think it is at the top.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. GRAMM. I send a second-degree amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Texas [Mr. GRAMM], for himself and Mr. KYL, proposes an amendment numbered 3144 to amendment No. 2999.

Mr. GRAMM. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To make permanent the repeal of the death tax)

Strike all beginning on page 2, line 1, and insert the following:

SEC. . PERMANENT REPEAL OF DEATH TAXES.

Section 901 of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 is amended—

(1) by striking "this Act" and all that follows through "2010." in subsection (a) and inserting "this Act (other than Title V) shall not apply to taxable, plan, or limitation years beginning after December 31, 2010.", and

(2) by striking " , estates, gifts, and transfers" in subsection (b).

Mr. GRAMM. Madam President, I called for the regular order, which brought up the Kerry-McCain amendment as the pending business. I have sent a second-degree amendment to the desk sponsored by myself and the Senator from Arizona, Mr. KYL. It is an amendment that makes the repeal of the death tax permanent.

I say to my colleagues this is a revenue bill. This may very well be the only revenue bill we have for the remainder of this Congress. Perhaps there may be others, but as of today there is no guarantee that there will be.

The House is voting today to make the tax cut permanent. Senator KYL and I thought the Senate should have an opportunity to have a vote on that issue, and we decided if we were going to try to focus on one part of the tax cut, this would be the relevant part to focus on. We now have a revenue measure before us, and therefore we believe this is an opportunity for us to fix something that is very broken.

I will not belabor the point because our colleagues are very familiar with it, but basically because of a quirk in the Budget Act, we made the tax cut temporary, and it expires in 10 years. We could have made it permanent had we had 60 votes, but we only had 58 votes. So we had to use a procedure called reconciliation.

Under that procedure, the tax cut expires when the reconciliation expires, which is in 10 years. This produces the extraordinary anomaly that every year for the next 10 years, the death tax—that is the tax that is imposed on small businesses, family farms, and the wealth that people build up over their lifetime by working, sacrificing, and saving—will be reduced. Before we passed the tax cut, when these people died, their children often have to sell the business or the family farm to give the Government up to 55 cents out of every dollar they have accumulated in their lifetime.

We decided to repeal the death tax in our tax cut, and we decided to phase it out over a 10-year period. Yet because of this anomaly in the budget law, if you die 9 years from now, your family does not have to sell your farm or business, and your children get to keep every penny of wealth you have accumulated on which you paid taxes once before. It will belong to them. But if you die in the 10th year after the passage of the tax cut, the death tax returns, and they will have to sell the business, sell the farm, or sell your assets, and give the Government up to 55 cents out of every dollar you have earned in your lifetime.

Senator KYL and I believe that is outrageous tax policy. We think it is very unfair, and this is a tax measure that is in the Senate on the very day the House is moving to rectify this problem by making the tax cut permanent.

Therefore, I have sent this amendment to the desk on behalf of Senator KYL and myself. I hope my colleagues will look very closely at it. I cannot imagine we would want to let stand a provision of law whereby we repeal the death tax with great fanfare, we trumpet the fact that we had done away with this evil and unfair tax, and yet 10 years from now it all comes back in its full force, its full vengeance, and its full negative impact on every business and every farm in America. The amendment which is now pending is Senator KYL's amendment, which I have cosponsored, and I ask others who want to cosponsor it to do so. The amendment would make the repeal of the death tax permanent. I thank my colleagues for their indulgence. I ask them to look at this amendment.

I think someone could always say, this is an energy bill. Well, this bill is many different things. It has literally hundreds of different provisions that are more or less related—and many are less related—to energy. I do not know anything that has more to do with energy than giving people an incentive to work and save, with the knowledge that when they build up a farm or a business the Government is not going to take it away from their children. That unleashes the most powerful energy source in the universe, and that is the energy that is in the soul of men and women who want to better themselves and their family.

In my mind, this is the clearest energy provision in this bill if we adopt it, and I commend it to my colleagues. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MILLER). The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I appreciate the remarks of the Senator from Texas and would reiterate that this is really a propitious time for us to deal with this issue, for the following reasons: The House of Representatives, as we speak, is taking action to pass a bill that would make permanent all of the tax reform we enacted less than a year ago. That includes the death tax repeal.

Second, we all recall what we did 4 days ago, on April 15, and I know at that time there were a lot of calls by friends on both sides of the aisle in both bodies talking about how the tax burden was too great for most Americans and we wished we could do something about it. We now have an opportunity to do something about it, as Senator GRAMM said.

Third, in his Saturday radio message—and I know there are still a lot of Americans who listen to the President's radio message on Saturday morning; I know I do—he explicitly called for us to do what Senator GRAMM and I are suggesting.

I read briefly from the remarks of President Bush in his radio address on Saturday morning:

One thing that is pretty interesting to note is that some of these tax reforms are going to expire at the end of ten years, or in 2011. It is a quirk in the law. I think that doesn't make much sense. It is going to be hard to plan your future. If you think all of a sudden these things get kicked in full time and then go away, they need to make these tax cuts permanent. For the good of the working people of America, for the good of families, for the good of small businesses, for the good of farmers and ranchers, we need to make the tax relief plan permanent in the Tax Code.

President Bush was saying the reform the Congress passed, and he signed about 10 months ago, is going to expire now in 9 years, and if we really meant it when we passed those reforms, we should make those reforms permanent, especially the death tax. The reason I say "especially the death tax" is because people have to plan to deal with the death tax. They have to think ahead. If they don't know what the Tax Code is going to be when, say, the head of the household dies, they don't know what to do to plan for it.

The tax relief we voted on gradually reduces the death tax burden until the 10th year when it goes away altogether. When the sunset expires, the entire Tax Code, the way it was before, comes back into play, and people are then paying the death tax at a rate of up to 55 percent, with an exemption of only $675,000.

How do they plan? Are they going to die in the year 2009, 2010, or 2011? It makes a big difference in which year they die. The irony is that one of the major reasons for eliminating the death tax was that they wouldn't have to spend the enormous amounts of money they spend each year—to plan, to buy the insurance, do the estate planning, and all that goes with planning—to preserve as much of their estate as possible.

We have found, and I have quoted the statistics in the past, Americans spend about the same amount of money each year on lawyers and insurance companies planning their estates as other Americans do in actually paying the estate tax, just about the same amount of money. It turns out to be a double tax, except each year, every single year, Americans spend $20 to $30 billion on estate planning.

The President is saying: Since you can't plan because you don't know what the law is going to be, we have to figure out what that is, and make it permanent so that everybody knows what the rules are and what they need to plan against.

Obviously, we believe what the rules should be is what the Congress decides and what the President signed into law, which is that the death tax should be repealed, as it is in the year 2010. That is what everybody was gearing toward. That was the whole idea, get to final repeal. That is what we voted for. We want to give our colleagues the opportunity to make that repeal permanent so people can plan for the future, so they will know what the rules of the road and the Tax Code are at the time of death.

We could probably have picked some other way to bring this to our colleagues, but the distinguished Presiding Officer will recall the only way we have had an opportunity so far to bring this question before our colleagues is through a sense of the Senate. The distinguished Presiding Officer and many others were supportive of that sense of the Senate, saying we need to get on about the business of doing this. We all agreed—not all, but most Members agreed—with that. There are very limited opportunities to do that in the Senate. We have to have a bill that has revenue factors involved. This bill before the Senate now has a feature from the Finance Committee that deals with revenue and therefore it is one of the few opportunities—maybe the only opportunity, quite possibly the only opportunity—we will have all year long to bring this issue to the floor when it is germane to the legislation pending.

There is some talk that on down the road we may or may not have a pension bill. If we did, and it got to the floor, the issue would be germane to that, as well, but that is very uncertain. Therefore, Senator GRAMM and I believed the best way to bring this issue before the body in a way we could express ourselves on this once and for all was through the only vehicle that existed, which is the vehicle of the Finance Committee work on the energy bill. That is why we do it at this time.

As I said before, there is a secondary reason, and that is because most Americans are focused this week on having paid their taxes, and at least for those who are listening to what the President had to say, we are well aware of the fact that the President wants to make the tax cuts permanent. He especially mentioned the death tax.

Now, it is one thing to do this because the House of Representatives is doing it this week and the President has called for it, the other reason to do it obviously is it is the right thing to do. I will spend a few minutes talking about that.

We knew when we debated a few weeks ago, when we had the sense of the Senate before the Senate, which was, of course, adopted, that one of the things on people's minds at that time was stimulating the economy, getting the economy going, and making sure the economic growth we were beginning to see signs of—it is almost like the flowers of spring coming up out of the soil; we can see economic recovery coming. But there is a question whether we can sustain that with oil prices that are now probably going to increase substantially. That could knock out the economic recovery.

For our families back home thinking about what they can afford this year and whether it will be a good year economically and whether they will save their job, we need to do everything we can to let them know we will work as hard as we can to make sure the economic recovery is sustained, they keep their job, we keep oil prices as low as possible, and all the rest.

We found during the previous debate that pumping money back into the economy, which occurs as a result of the capital formation from repeal of the death tax, is one of the surest ways of creating jobs and maintaining this economic expansion. There were several experts who made that point in one way or another. There are studies that make the point.

One study talked about a $40 billion stimulus to the economy from the repeal of the death tax. Let me refer to some of these in order.

What Alan Greenspan said on this issue is instructive. He was asked a question during a hearing at the House of Representatives: What's your thought on what we ought to be doing here with regard to permanency—meaning making the tax cuts permanent? Chairman Greenspan's reply stresses the need for certainty in the Tax Code, which is what I was talking about. It is the key.

He said:

Whatever you do, Congresswoman, I think it has to be clear where the longer term tax structure in this area is. You cannot do estate planning, as you point out, unless you have a judgment as to what these numbers are. And wherever the Congress comes out, I think it is far more important that it come out clearly and unequivocally and not have an issue pending as to an issue which would create a degree of uncertainty which could make estate planning very difficult to implement.

Those are almost the exact words I used before. I had forgotten Chairman Greenspan expressed it in exactly this way. However, that is the point. When there is certainty, people know how to plan, they know how to invest. As a result, the capital formation that our economic recovery requires is available for investment.

What Mr. Greenspan is saying is, this is an area where this is most important, where planning is most critical, the area of the estate tax. We have to have clarity. We have to have, as Mr. Greenspan said, the code "come out clearly and unequivocally," with a degree of certainty so that estate planning is not difficult to implement.

Mr. Greenspan testified in another forum in response to a question from one of our colleagues in the Senate. He very clearly rejected the notion that making the tax cut permanent would complicate efforts to meet the Federal Government's long-term financial obligations to Social Security and Medicare.

I read:

I don't know of any economist who does long-term forecasting and presumes that the tax cuts will fall off a cliff at the end of the period in which they are statutorily in place. I don't think it is an economic issue because I don't know anyone who seriously believes the world works the way legislation stipulates.

That is the end of the quote by Chairman Greenspan.

He is absolutely right. Nobody would imagine that at the end of 10 years all the work toward eliminating the estate tax simply disappears and we go back to the way it was in the year 2000. Who would think that? My friends back home, with whom I talked, to whom I kind of came home and bragged about repealing the estate tax, were very surprised when I said: You understand when I said repeal it, what it meant was it was phased down to the 10th year and then on the 11th year it comes back again. They said: How could it be?

I had to explain to them the arcane—I should not say arcane—the rule under which the Senate operated to get this adopted was the reconciliation procedure. That has a 10-year limit to it. That means whatever you do can only have an effect of 10 years. That means if you reform taxes and repeal a section, at the end of 10 years, the 11th year it goes right back the way it was before.

That is not the way we should have to do it. Unfortunately, it was the only way to get the matter before the Senate at the time it was brought forward, and it was the only way to get the number of votes necessary to effect all the reforms we wanted to adopt. So there we are with a procedure that Alan Greenspan says nobody would understand—but it is the reality, so at the end of 10 years we are faced with this absurd situation that the repeal that we effected disappears and we are right back where we started.

Mr. Greenspan is saying that is unacceptable. We are saying that is unacceptable. The President is saying it is unacceptable. The House of Representatives today is going to invoke saying it is unacceptable. We have now an opportunity in this body to make sure that unacceptable result does not continue, that we have an opportunity to finally, once and for all, repeal the death tax so people can get about their planning, get about their business, and we do not have this immoral tax hanging around our heads.

Both the President and I have spoken about this, and the Senator from Texas has made the point as well, that not only is this a bad tax in terms of what it does to capital formation and economics, but it is an unfair tax. I know some of my colleagues on the other side have made the point that we have to find a way that rich people can pay a tax on the unrealized gain. In other words, if an asset is purchased, there are a lot of folks who want to make sure a tax is paid when that asset is finally disposed.

In the real world we call it a capital gains tax. We say when you buy something, buy it at $100 and sell it at $500 and you do not do any improving on it, then you have a gain of $400 and the capital gains tax rate is going to apply against that $400 gain when you decide to sell the asset.

So you stop and think, I have this piece of property that is worth $500. I know if I sell it I am going to have to pay a capital gains tax because I did not pay that much for it at the beginning; it has really appreciated in value. Do I want to do that? And you make a judgment in your mind to either sell it or not sell it. You know what the tax liability will be. You make an economic decision.

With the death tax, it is totally different. There are two or three other examples in our Tax Code. You didn't decide to die or you didn't decide for your father to die. It happens. It is an unfortunate circumstance, but it is not or should not be a taxable circumstance. The Tax Code should tax behavior. It should tax action. It should tax decision.

In other words, when Americans decide to do a certain thing that we have said is taxable, we do it knowing what the tax consequences are. The Tax Code should not penalize you for dying.

It should not tax you for the act of having died or, to be more precise, it should not tax your heirs because you died. You didn't intend it; they didn't intend it. But people say you should still pay a tax or your heirs should pay a tax on the unrealized gain from the assets.

So what we did in constructing this estate tax repeal was to say: You are right. That unrealized gain will be taxed. To be fair, we are not going to let anybody off the hook. No asset is going to be untaxed—even though, by the way, in most cases this is the second tax. The first tax was the income tax that was paid and then this will be the second tax on the investment income, in effect. But in any event, in order to make sure nobody would go untaxed with the unrealized gains, in effect we have not just repealed the estate tax, we have substituted for the estate tax a capital gains tax on those assets, saying that if and when the heirs ever decide to sell that property, then and only then will they pay the tax. It will not be the estate tax of 55 percent; it will be a capital gains tax on the gains at the appropriate capital gains rate, whatever that applicable rate may be at that time.

We did one other thing. Today under the Tax Code the minute you die your property has a new value attributed to it. It is not the value at the time you purchased it but the value now at the time you die, so the value is much higher. If you were to sell that—let me use an example. Let's say a billionaire in our country today dies and his widow inherits all the assets. The very next day that widow decides to sell those assets. How much capital gains tax does the widow pay? The answer is none. The reason is that the value of the estate is now the value at the day of death. Technically, if she sold it immediately it would be none. There might be a little appreciation of a few hours. But the point is, if she sold it the next day there would be no capital gains tax due because the value would be increased to the value at the time of the death rather than at the time acquired.

What we say is it is going to be a capital gains tax based on the appreciation of the original value of the property. If it had been acquired 10 years earlier and had a value of $100 and the value at the time of death is $500, A, when the property is sold, it is sold by the lawyers, it is going to have a gain of $400, but again the tax rate is the estate tax rate, which is in some cases less than half of the estate tax rate and, B, the tax is only due if the heirs make an affirmative decision to sell the property knowing what the tax consequences will be.

That is fair. I certainly do not attribute this to any of my colleagues, but there are those on the outside who like to demagog this issue. They like to say this is just a rich man's tax and we are going to let all the rich people in the world off because we are going to repeal the tax that applies to them. They are not telling you the truth. The truth is, a tax will be due on those estates, but it will be a tax due at the time the assets are sold.

It is the same rule in the Tax Code that applies to other situations in which, by fate, in effect, something happened to you and then you got income as a result and you should not have to pay income tax on that immediately. It is the same thing that applies when something is stolen from you and you are recompensed for the theft. It is the same thing that applies when you have property condemned and the State pays you money.

It wasn't your choice to have the property condemned so you should not have to pay tax on the money at that time.

As a result, there are few provisions of the Tax Code that recognize, where there is involuntary behavior that resulted in gain, or income, that people ought to have the ability to defer the tax on that until they want to sell the asset and at that point in time the capital gains tax is the appropriate tax.

I hope my colleagues appreciate when we talk about the repeal of the death tax here, what we voted for and what was signed into law is not a provision that says those assets are never taxed. It is a provision that says they are taxed when the assets are sold by the heirs at the capital gains tax rate.

I want my colleagues to understand this because I think when we explain to our constituents back home how we voted on this, whether we voted to make this tax cut permanent or not, we also need to appreciate that we can demonstrate what we have done is eminently fair; that people shouldn't have to pay a tax at the involuntary time of death. That is a most unfair thing to do at the worst time in a family's life, that they should have to pay a tax on the unrealized gains. But they should do that as we do in the other parts of the Tax Code when an economic decision is made based upon, among other things, the tax consequences that pertain.

When we have an opportunity to vote on this amendment, I hope my colleagues will consider the economic improvement that would result; the fact that we will be following what the President and House of Representatives have in effect asked the Senate to do; that we will be keeping faith with our constituents whom we told we repealed the tax and who now would want to know that we did in fact do it permanently; and that it wasn't just a charade for a 1-year period of time in the year 2001 and then go back to the way it was before.

If my colleagues can appreciate those points, I hope they will join us when we have an opportunity to make this permanent, and join Senator GRAMM and me in accomplishing that result.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, Members on this side of the aisle have concerns about the structure of the estate tax. In fact, we voted to change it significantly. I think the estate size threshold could be even higher. We don't want small businesses to be hurt by people who, upon death, have to lose a family business or lose jobs in communities.

There is a lot we need to talk about. But I think this is not the moment given what we are discussing. It is perhaps better that we save it for a different point in time.

My amendment, No. 2999, is the pending business. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Amendment No. 2999 is the pending question.

AMENDMENT NO. 2999, WITHDRAWN

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I withdraw that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right. The amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have spoken to the Senator from Texas. He has indicated that during the course of the debate on this matter he is going to offer his amendment at a subsequent time. I certainly appreciate that.

It is my understanding that the pending business is amendment No. 3008. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the regular order.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I call for the regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

AMENDMENT NO. 3145 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3008

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nevada [Mr. REID] proposes an amendment numbered 3145 to amendment No. 3008.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To require that Federal agencies use ethanol-blended gasoline and biodiesel-blended diesel fuel in areas in which ethanol-blended gasoline and biodiesel-blended diesel fuel are available)

In lieu of the matter proposed to be added, insert the following:

SEC. 8. FEDERAL AGENCY ETHANOL-BLENDED GASOLINE AND BIODIESEL PURCHASING REQUIREMENT.

Title III of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 is amended by striking section 306 (42 U.S.C. 13215) and inserting the following:

“SEC. 306. FEDERAL AGENCY ETHANOL-BLENDED GASOLINE AND BIODIESEL PURCHASING REQUIREMENT.

“(a) ETHANOL-BLENDED GASOLINE.—The head of each Federal agency shall ensure that, in areas in which ethanol-blended gasoline is available at a competitive price, the Federal agency purchases ethanol-blended gasoline containing at least 10 percent ethanol (or the highest available percentage of ethanol), rather than nonethanol-blended gasoline, for use in vehicles used by the agency.

“(b) BIODIESEL.—

“(1) DEFINITION OF BIODIESEL.—In this subsection, the term ‘biodiesel’ has the meaning given the term in section 312(f).”

“(2) REQUIREMENT.—The head of each Federal agency shall ensure that the Federal agency purchases, for use in fueling fleet vehicles used by the Federal agency at the location at which fleet vehicles of the Federal agency are centrally fueled, in areas in which biodiesel-blended diesel fuel is available at a competitive price—

“(A) as of the date that is 5 years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, biodiesel-blended diesel fuel that contains at least 2 percent biodiesel, rather than nonbiodiesel-blended diesel fuel; and

“(B) as of the date that is 10 years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, biodiesel-blended diesel fuel that contains at least 20 percent biodiesel, rather than nonbiodiesel-blended diesel fuel.

“(C) EXEMPTION FOR MILITARY VEHICLES.—This section does not apply to fuel used in vehicles used for military purposes that the Secretary of Defense certifies to the Secretary must be exempt for national security reasons.”

Mr. REID. Mr. President, for edification of the Senators, what the two leaders have suggested we do is early this afternoon move to border security. There is a unanimous consent that has been prepared. It is being circulated now. We should be able to enter into that agreement hopefully very soon.

In the meantime, I think the Senate would be well advised to continue working on the bill that is now before us—the energy bill. There are a number of amendments that have been cleared.

In a moment, the Senator from New York will be here to speak on ethanol. There are a number of amendments dealing with that subject in this legislation. Until the Senator from New York returns, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask for the regular order and call up amendment No. 3030.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. If the Senator will allow me to make a suggestion?

Mr. SCHUMER. Please.

Mr. REID. The Senator should call up his amendment, that it be the pending business.

AMENDMENT NO. 3030, WITHDRAWN

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3030.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I withdraw this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

The amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. SCHUMER. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I plan, along with several of my colleagues, to discuss this amendment. We are going to offer it again for a vote at a time that is agreeable to everybody. The only reason I withdrew it is I didn't want there to be a motion to table it where we wouldn't have a full debate on this very important amendment.

This is, of course, the amendment that would remove the ethanol mandate from the energy bill, not removing either of the other parts. It keeps the clean air standards, and it keeps the ban on the MTBE, but it does not require that ethanol be used as an oxygenate. It does not even require an oxygenate as long as the MTBE standard is met.

Before I begin, I want to say how much I respect and admire our majority leader, TOM DASCHLE. He is just a leader par excellence. He is a principled, compassionate, and extraordinary public servant, and a true friend to the people of my State. I consider it a privilege to serve under him and to be his friend.

For that reason, believe me, I do not enjoy opposing a provision in a bill about which I know Senator DASCHLE cares very deeply. I thought long and hard about whether to oppose the amendment and came to the conclusion that I had no choice, that I was compelled to do so because I sincerely believe this provision will hurt consumers dramatically in my State of New York and throughout the country.

So I do rise to my feet in this Chamber to speak on amendment No. 3030, reluctantly, with some sadness, but nonetheless, bolstered in the belief that it is the right thing to do and that I would be derelict in my responsibilities as a Senator to the people of my State and to our country if I did not offer my amendment. I had hoped that someone else would have, but they did not, so here I am.

I have been in Congress for 22 years. Every so often there is an amendment that people vote for that becomes part of the law that isn't paid too much attention to, and then, a year or two later, it turns out to be a big disaster. Our constituents turn to us and ask: How, the heck did you do that? How could you have done this? How could you have created something that has caused so much hardship without even thinking about it, without debating it, without opposing it?

I remember the catastrophic illness amendment 10, 12 years ago. I know some of my colleagues disagree about the analogy, but I think it is an apt one. We passed that amendment in the House, when I was in that body, with, I believe, minimal debate. I may be mistaken, but I think it was even on a two-thirds vote on the consent calendar. Everyone thought they were doing a good thing.

When the bill bit—when people realized how much they had to pay for a service that they would have liked to have had, but it was not essential to them, when people realized they all paid for it, even though many of them did not need it because they had other coverage—there was a public outcry, and there was almost a rush to the floor by House Members to get up and say why they really did not vote for what had happened, why they did not mean to do what had been done.

That happens every so often around here. It does not happen often. We are generally pretty careful, and the slowness of the legislative process stops it.

I say to my colleagues: Beware. If there were ever an amendment quietly put in a bill that should have a “tread cautiously” label on it, that should have perhaps a skull and crossbones on it, this is it. This is not an innocuous amendment. This is not an amendment that simply helps some farmers and does no harm to the rest of us. It is a deep and profound change in terms of how we use our motor fuel. It will require dramatic changes in investments throughout the land. It will create consequences that none of us are sure of because we are jumping into this pool of ethanol, if you will, without having put our toe in first. I fear the consequences.

So today I rise with my fellow Senator from New York, Mrs. CLINTON, our colleagues from California, and now a small but growing band of Members throughout the Senate, to oppose the unprecedented new ethanol gas tax which was quietly inserted into the Senate energy bill a few weeks ago without any debate.

My amendment may be adopted, but I do not fool myself. It may not. There is a huge group—some of whom I have often allied with, some of whom I usually oppose—arrayed against it. But I am convinced we will be the better for this debate, whatever our view is, because of the breathtaking change that the ethanol mandate imposes throughout the land.

The antioxygenate provisions in the bill accomplish two goals that are not disputed by my amendment. One is banning the use of MTBE. We have found that MTBE has resulted in ground water pollution all over the country. In my home State, on Long Island, where drinking water comes from one big single aquifer, MTBE that is spilled on the ground is slowly seeping into the soil, and it actually permanently pollutes that precious aquifer which close to 3 million people depend upon for their drinking and bathing and their washing.

My State, along with many others, has banned MTBE and many more States are planning to do it. This bill does that. We are not changing that.

The second is the scrapping of the oxygenate mandate that led so many States to make such heavy use of MTBE in the first place. The proposal in the bill provides an antibacksliding provision that says if you don't use MTBE, you can't backslide on clean air. Some believe those provisions could be stronger, but we are not opposing either of those two parts: the ban on MTBE or the antibacksliding provisions, the provisions that require the air to stay as clean as we require it now. It is not those provisions we are opposing.

Beyond those two provisions, this new provision added to the energy bill—again, without any debate—adds an astonishing new anticonsumer, antifree market requirement that every refiner in the country, regardless of where they are located, regardless of whether their State mandates it or not, regardless of whether the State chooses a different path to get to clean air, regardless of whether the refiners in that State say that ethanol doesn't work or works very expensively, it requires them to use an ever-increasing volume of ethanol.

Here is the kicker—there are a lot of kickers in this provision, the ethanol provision that was quietly added to the bill. If your State or your region does not want to use ethanol, you still have to pay for ethanol. You have to buy what is called ethanol credits. It costs you the same as if you bought the ethanol yourself. When have we done that before? When have we said, even if you choose not to use a product, an expensive product, a product that affects just about everyone, anyone who owns a car, any company that drives trucks, when have we ever said in such a dramatic way that you are forced to use something? It is astounding. It would be similar to saying to people who needed heating in their homes, you have to use oil rather than gas, and if you choose to use gas for whatever reason, you still have to pay for the oil.

That is what we are doing here, no less, except we are doing it with gasoline, and it sounds sort of complicated, ethanol sounds chemical, and all that. The effect is very simple.

This is a gas tax. In 1993, many of us debated whether there ought to be a gas tax. Some say the whole Congress changed on the basis of that debate; that in 1994, the House and Senate switched parties in part because of that debate. This is, for most States, a larger gas tax than the one that was proposed. And, to boot, it doesn't even go to a useful purpose. The gas tax at least built new highways to help the driver, and there was a theory about it. This makes you buy ethanol—hardly a return to motorists the way the gas tax was to be.

It will affect every employee driving to work. It will affect every mom driving the kids to school. It will affect every Teamster driving a truck. It will affect every company that uses automobiles and cars and trucks. I don't think there are many that don't. Every gasoline user in this country will pay.

The mandate is so steep that sure as we are sitting here, it is not just the added cost of the ethanol—which will be great enough; I will talk about that in a minute—but it is going to cause price spikes. Currently, refiners across the Nation use 1.7 billion gallons of ethanol. That is the total amount. Starting in 2004, 2 years away, they would be required to use 2.3 billion gallons of ethanol. Almost immediately, we are requiring a large amount of ethanol. You know what happens when you place a huge demand on a product and you don't have the supply? Simple economics: The price goes through the roof.

I am opposed to this substantively. But I say to my colleagues who are running in 2004: Beware. Let's say the proponents of the bill are wrong. Let's say I am right and all of a sudden next summer, the summer of 2004, gasoline goes up 30, 40, 50 cents a gallon, which is very possible. What are you going to say?

I want to help the corn farmers, too. I vote for everything that comes up to help the middle western and southern farmers. But this is not the way to do it. We can do it a lot more efficiently and with a lot less harm to the driver.

You don't need a degree in economics to know that if ethanol producers can't meet the demand, there are going to be price spikes, big price spikes. That is just the beginning. It is going to get worse. We ratchet up the number from 2.3 billion in 2004, up to 5 billion gallons of ethanol in 2012. Then we increase it by a percentage equivalent to the proportion of ethanol in the entire U.S. gas supply after 2012 in perpetuity. We are locking people into one method of cleaning the gasoline and the air forever. That means from 2012 on, the Nation's ethanol producers will have a guaranteed annual market of over 5 billion gallons, which every consumer in this country will pay for at the pump.

Here is how much you are all going to pay. This is a conservative estimate. They use Department of Energy numbers, but it is called Hart/IRI Fuels Information Services. They are a well-established group. They are not part of the petroleum industry or anybody else. The estimates are conservative because that is without price spikes and that is assuming the best of circumstances, that everything works smoothly.

Here is how much each of your States will pay. The minimum is 4 cents, 4 cents a gallon every time you go to the pump. But I am going to read all the States where it is greater than 4 cents a gallon, how much you would pay.

In Arizona, you would pay 7.6 cents a gallon; in California, you would pay an extra 9.6 cents a gallon; in Connecticut—I see my colleague from Connecticut here in the Chamber—it is estimated you would pay an extra 9.7 cents a gallon; District of Columbia, 9.7 cents a gallon; Illinois, 7.3 cents a gallon; Indiana, 4.9 cents a gallon; Kentucky, 5.4 cents a gallon; Louisiana, 4.2 cents a gallon; Maryland, 9.1 cents a gallon—that is a lot of money—Massachusetts even more, 9.7 cents a gallon; Missouri, 5.6 cents a gallon; New Hampshire, 8.4 cents a gallon; New Jersey, 9.1 cents a gallon; New York, 7.1 cents a gallon; Pennsylvania, 5.5 cents a gallon; Rhode Island, 9.7 cents a gallon;

Texas 5.7 cents a gallon; Virginia, 7.2 cents a gallon; Wisconsin—I see my friend from Wisconsin here; we have worked on agricultural issues together—5.5 cents a gallon.

Every one of those States pays more than the 4 cents.

If you hear the name of your State now, your drivers will pay, under the best of circumstances by these estimates, an extra 4 cents a gallon: Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

The annual aggregate impact is $8.3 billion. That is a lot of money. Even in the Middle West, where there is a lot of ethanol production, where it would be less onerous than in other places, the cost of gasoline goes up 4 or 5 cents a gallon. That is a lot of money.

I know there are some supporters here. We have had many good arguments privately and on the floor and some are going to say these numbers are inaccurate. They include the cost of banning MTBE. The cost of forcing the entire country to use 5 billion gallons of ethanol will be a mere pittance.

Remember this, my friends: Ethanol is very hard to transport. It cannot be carried through our existing pipeline infrastructure because it is so volatile. It has to be put on a truck, a barge, and sent down the Mississippi to New Orleans, usually, and then sent by boat around the country, and then loaded back onto a truck and taken to a local refinery and put into the gasoline. You can see why it is so expensive.

Then some people say they will build ethanol plants closer to the big users, particularly on the coast and in the South, where this has the greatest effect. There is not enough corn and ethanol production down there. Who is going to pay for the cost of all those new ethanol plants? It will be the drivers of all of our States. Because of its volatility, because you cannot create a pipeline and pipe it through to the refinery and add it in, because you have to transport it in this particular way, you can see that ethanol is not the cheapest way to do what we want to do in terms of cleaning our air.

With all due respect, I think the cost estimates I am citing are based on more realistic assumptions than those that went into my opponents' number. We tried to be as careful and conservative as we could. To forecast how much a 10-year, 5-billion-gallon ethanol mandate is going to cost consumers across the country, you have to look at interplay of a host of complex factors: growth in auto travel, gasoline prices, corn prices, ethanol price, and how many new ethanol plants are expected to come online. That is all inextricably linked to how high the price of ethanol is going to go. If the price is high and manufacturing ethanol becomes profitable, yes, the private sector will build the plants. If it is not, they will not. Yet in the numbers I have seen circulated by the proponents of this issue, they use contradictory figures. They say ethanol prices will be unusually low for the next 10 years. At the same time, the private sector is going to build plants all over the country.

You cannot have it both ways. If the price is low, you are not going to build new plants. If the price is high, then you will. I am willing to concede that modeling this unprecedented, inefficient, untested, jerry-built contraption, a nationwide mandate on every refiner in the United States to pay for billions and billions of gallons of ethanol whether they use it or not is difficult.

I know my staff has been working with Senator DASCHLE's staff and a number of technical experts to see if we can reach agreement on the numbers. If we can do so, that would be great.

In truth, whether it costs a penny a gallon or a dollar a gallon—my guess is, from the estimates I read, the State-by-State numbers I read are low, because those are under the best of market conditions—why are we mandating it? There is no public policy reason for the use of ethanol other than the political might of the ethanol lobby.

I say to colleagues from the farm States, the fact that we are getting rid of MTBE and keeping the air standards high is going to increase demand for ethanol. I think you are going to do better than you have ever done before. Without casting aspersions on colleagues and individuals, the proposal is kind of greedy. Yes, ethanol is going to be needed more. But a mandate to the ethanol world? You are going to do well under this. Once MTBE is gone, your main competitor is gone.

For States such as mine, where the refiners believe they can find a better method that is cheaper, why would you require us to use ethanol? That is the fundamental weakness.

I was having a good discussion with my friend from Iowa, who does a great job defending farmers and farm States. He has even tried to help us in an unprecedented way in the Northeast. He says: What will replace ethanol if you don't mandate?

The first and best argument is to let the market come up with something. If you mandate it, there is going to be no alternative; you are stuck with it. If it is the best in the market, it will prevail in the marketplace.

There are alternatives. Refiners have told me—those away from the Middle West—that they will use a combination of aromatics and alkaloids. Alkaloids are about as clean as ethanol. Aromatics are kind of dirty. Aromatics break down so you cannot use all of them. But a form called Alkaloids are clean. Alkaloids could be used, plain and simple. I don't know if they work better than ethanol or not. But I will tell you, the people in my State say they will. Why mandate that?

So the bottom line is, there is no sound public policy reason for mandating the use of ethanol. We live in a free market economy. We hardly mandate anything, especially when there is a choice.

Well, the new ethanol gas tax will contribute to market volatility and price spikes, especially since the industry is concentrated in the Midwest. It is going to increase costs in general. That is the second issue. But you are going to create price spikes all over the place. When you increase the amount that is needed, you know when there is one big boy, one producer, they are going to go to town.

Archer Daniels Midland, alone, controls 41 percent of the market—a monopoly. Certainly, somebody is asserting huge market control. When they have to build more refineries, who is going to have the best access to capital and technology? They are. My guess is their market share will actually increase. Who knows, 41 percent is a lot.

Well, let me tell you, the mandates frighten people even in the Middle West. I want to make a point. Two States in the heartland of America—two of the biggest corn-producing States in the country considered mandating ethanol—Iowa and Nebraska. Both of them rejected it. If the people of Iowa, through their legislature, and the people of Nebraska withdrew the legislation—it was not a referendum—and rejected this, why now are we in the Senate imposing it on Iowa, Nebraska, and everybody else who is in a far worse position?

Let me read what some of the newspapers in those areas said:

An ethanol mandate would deny Iowans a choice of fuels and short circuit the process of ethanol establishing its own worth in the marketplace. . . . The justification is to marginally boost the price of corn. Cleaner air is offered as a reason, too, but that's an afterthought. If that were the goal, other measures would be far more effective. . . .

That is the Des Moines Sunday Register, 9-19-1999, headlined "Let Ethanol Prove Itself."

The Quad City Times from Davenport, IA, in an editorial entitled "Ethanol Only Proposal Doesn't Help Consumers":

With research and continued refinements, it might someday become an economically viable alternative to gasoline—but until that day, it is ludicrous to argue that Iowa's gas stations be required to sell only ethanol. . . . Ethanol might be worth some level of support, but it will never be so valuable as to justify scrapping our free enterprise system.

That is not the New York Times. That is not the Los Angeles Times in California. That is the Quad City Times at the border of Iowa and Illinois.

Nebraska, as I mentioned, considered an ethanol mandate and rejected it. Here is what the Grand Island Independent said about a year ago in an editorial:

"Ethanol Use Shouldn't Be a Forced Buy." Americans don't like to be forced to do anything and Nebraskans are no different. Yet the Legislature is considering forcing all gas stations throughout the state—to start selling ethanol blends. . . . That just doesn't seem fair. Our country and our business system is based on supply and demand. Consumers determine the products they want and businesses meeting those needs succeed. While many in Nebraska may want ethanol-based fuels, many Americans traveling our highways don't.

This was a State mandate—

Finally, the Omaha World Herald, in the year 2000, editorialized:

Now the Nebraska Legislature is considering eliminating the competition altogether. Support is building for a proposed state law to require most general purpose automotive fuel sold in the state to contain ethanol. . . . As a general principle, government should not take sides in such matters unless a strong case can be made that intervention serves a major public purpose. In this instance, the arguments for eliminating competition haven't been persuasive.

Even editorials, as well as voters, in the heartland of America, where there is much more corn and ethanol is far more likely to succeed, argue against a mandate, which is what we are about to impose.

My opponents also argue that this ethanol gas tax is needed to help family farms, and I take those arguments very seriously. I know that many of my colleagues from the Middle West want to help their family farmers who are struggling. I want to help those farmers, too, and I have stood by my Senate colleagues from Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Montana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and I have voted for billions and billions of dollars in agricultural subsidies to help the farmers in the West and South. That is a decision I think I can make in good conscience. Commodity subsidies, by the way, do very little for New York.

Since I have been in the Senate, I have supported the Midwestern farmers. I know how important they are to the economy of those States. I know how important they are as a breeding ground for American values. I say to my colleagues, I think a majority in this Senate Chamber—a big majority—are willing to help some more. But find a way that works. Do not do it by imposing a gas tax on all of our drivers.

I speak for my State of New York. Our economy is hurting after 9-11. We do not need this which particularly affects the east and west coasts worse than other places.

Guess what. In addition, what pains me is this has not trickled down. Do you think corn growers of the Middle West are going to make most of the money? I have heard our farm State folks complain over and over that it is the middleman who gets most of the farm dollar. It is the people in the middle who make the money and a few bits trickle down to the family farmer. Yet that is just what we are doing here.

We are giving Archer Daniels Midland, Williams Energy Company, Minnesota corn processors, and giant corporations the real control in the market. They are the ones who will make most of the money. When the price spikes the way electricity spiked in California, do you think that money will trickle down to your farmers? Forget it. Maybe if they own stock in Archer Daniels Midland they will do well, but they will get very little bang for the buck. If the past is any indication, for every nickel that our drivers pay throughout the country, the farmer will receive certainly less than a penny.

This policy does not even do its best to help the farmers. Take this $5 billion mandate and put it into some kind of direct subsidy that goes to small family farmers, main-line it directly to them, and you will get my support. That will not make the drivers in my State pay.

I say to my colleagues from the Middle West, figure out better ways we can help our farmers and I will support you, but not this one.

Let me read to you from the CRS report on ethanol. It is on energy security. They say:

Another frequent argument for the use of ethanol as a motor fuel is that it reduces U.S. reliance on oil imports, making the U.S. less vulnerable to a fuel embargo of the sort that occurred in the 1970s, which was the event that initially stimulated development of the ethanol industry. According to the Argonne National Laboratory, with current technology, the use of E-10 leads to a 3-percent reduction in fossil fuel energy per vehicle mile, while use of E-95 could lead to a 44-percent reduction in fossil energy use. However, our studies contradict the Argonne studies suggesting the amount of money needed to produce energy is roughly equal to the amount of energy obtained from its combustion—

So you have to create as much energy to use it as you would save in using it.

Continuing the quote:

which could lead to little or no reductions in fossil energy use. Thus, if the energy used in ethanol production is petroleum-based—

Which it is likely to be—ethanol would do nothing to contribute to energy security.

That is CRS, not somebody with an ax to grind.

Remember, in terms of conserving energy, ethanol is basically a wash.

The final argument my opponents will make, I believe—I think this is somewhat cynical, but it will be made, I guess; that has never been a bar to any of us on the floor of the Senate—is that if New York and California and other States want to clean up their water by banning MTBE and maintain clean air, they should have to pay the price of an ethanol gas tax, and that it is political naivete to think otherwise.

My State has already banned the use of MTBE, and so have 12 other States, including: Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, South Dakota, and Washington.

A number of other States are also in the process of taking action, as well, because MTBE pollutes the groundwater. But everyone in those States who banned MTBE is going to be in an impossible dilemma. Their citizens are demanding they ban MTBE, but with the oxygenate requirement in place, they cannot successfully do so.

Last year, President Bush's administration denied California's petition to waive the oxygenate requirement, despite the State's ability to comply with air quality standards without it. They deny the waivers, even though you can get there a better way. This denial forced the State to defer its critical ban on MTBE and suffer groundwater contamination.

New York State is considering requesting a waiver. Although I call on President Bush and Administrator Whitman to look favorably on New York's waiver request, my guess is if and when New York applies, we will be met with the same denial as that of the Governor of the State of California. States such as New York, California, States on the coasts, many States in the South, even States that are large urban States in the Middle West, such as Illinois, are between a rock and a hard place.

Our citizens' health and the environment are being held hostage to the desire of the ethanol lobby to make ever larger profits.

Let us meet the same clean air standards we now have in the way we think is best. Let us use reformulated gasoline. Let us use these outlets which are as clean as ethanol and cheaper if one is not near corn. If ethanol is better, the marketplace will prevail.

What makes me doubt all the virtues of ethanol, when my colleagues propose it, is that they mandate. If it is going to be so cheap and so clean and so good, let the market prevail. As I said before, the ethanol producers and corn growers are going to be in a better position, even with my amendment, than otherwise because MTBEs are banned. The clean air standard stays, and in many cases ethanol will be the best way to go.

It is an outrage that Congress is telling Americans across the country that we refuse to clean up their air and water unless they pay off ADM. That is unconscionable. There is no public policy reason on Earth not to allow States to ban MTBEs and remove the oxygenate requirement and keep clean air standards in place without requiring them to buy ethanol.

Ironically, the ethanol mandate, because ethanol is exempt, reduces the highway trust fund in State after State. It is going to reduce it in California by $900 million, in New York by $493 million, in Pennsylvania by $446 million, in Massachusetts by $183 million. It can be looked up to see how much less highway money each Senator's State will get as a result of this mandate. In New York, we need that money. We have a great need for transportation dollars, especially with the damage done to our subway system on 9-11.

Other States such as Virginia that suffered an attack and had to struggle to accommodate transportation needs of its fast growing suburbs need it as well.

So for consumers throughout the country, this is a one-two punch. First, one pays more at the pump to meet arbitrary goals that boost the sales of ethanol but are not necessary to achieve clean air. Second—and this is another zinger in this bill; it is loaded with boobytraps consumers will face restrictions from suing manufacturers, and oil companies will have less incentive to ensure that the additives they manufacture and use are safe.

There is a provision that says not only can States such as California, New York, and so many others—not only do they have to use ethanol, but we are banning MTBEs and we are prohibiting anyone from suing companies that may have polluted their water. My goodness, how much can they pile on us?

This is no longer an academic discussion. Three oil companies have been found liable in California—I am sure my colleague from California, the senior Senator, knows about this—of knowingly polluting the ground water around Lake Tahoe with MTBEs. My colleague from California, our junior Senator, Mrs. BOXER, will have a lot more to say about that case and what these provisions that exempt the refineries and oil companies from being sued mean. But the case demonstrates something truly disturbing.

The petroleum industry opposed ethanol mandates for years, but now, facing a raft of MTBE lawsuits, including the first defeat in California, they have signed off on this deal in return for a really disgraceful liability provision.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. SCHUMER. I would be happy to yield to my friend from California.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. If I understand the context of the Senator's argument, what he is saying is that New York does not need an oxygen requirement, that New York can use reformulated gasoline and can meet the clean air standards by this reformulated gasoline, and California as well does not need an oxygen requirement; we can meet clean air standards without an oxygenate requirement and, where we do not meet clean air standards—summer months in Southern California—can use ethanol and we do not need an around-the-year requirement.

So if I understand the Senator correctly, his position then is exempt New York, exempt California, from the strictures of this bill, and exempt us from an oxygenate requirement. Is that the position of the Senator?

Mr. SCHUMER. Well, my position is we should not have this mandate anywhere, but obviously if we were offered an exemption for New York, and for California, the vehemence against this opposition would disappear. We are defending the vital interests of our States. I would simply argue with my friend from California, this is not just a New York and California problem; this is a problem in many States.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I realize that. I find myself in agreement with the Senator. What I have wanted all along is for California—because we do not have an infrastructure in place in the state and we know there is going to be a price spike—to have the EPA sign off on a waiver.

Mr. SCHUMER. Right. I apologize.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. So I want to identify myself with where the Senator is going. If these two States were to receive a waiver from the oxygenate requirement, we would certainly be satisfied.

Mr. SCHUMER. I misinterpreted what my friend from California was saying, for which I apologize. California applied for a waiver from the oxygenate standard and was rejected by the current administration. No good reason was given. I think, again, this was a sop to the ethanol lobby.

New York would like to apply. If we knew these waivers would be granted, if we knew that consideration would be made on the merits, we would not be debating today. But if someone tells us, well, you can get the standard waived, forget it; they are not waiving it. The administration is not waiving it. If we were to get a letter from President Bush saying he will waive States that can find a better way, we are in; but we are not. As I had mentioned earlier, we are between a rock and a hard place.

In conclusion, I ask my colleagues to support the amendment sponsored by myself and the senior Senator from California, the Senator from New York, Mrs. CLINTON, the Senator from California, Mrs. BOXER, and some others, to strike the ethanol mandate. If we believe Congress has an obligation to protect the health of our citizens and environment, if we believe that maintaining clean air standards is important but also believe there are different ways to get there, do not support forcing American consumers to pay for ethanol.

If my colleagues believe Congress has the obligation to protect consumers and keep our market economy running as efficiently as possible, then I would ask them not to mandate ethanol and impose a gas tax.

I say to my colleagues who support this amendment, the heart of which is in the Middle West, find us a better way. We do not want to hurt their farmers. In fact, we want to help them, as our record has shown, but not at undoing the entire fuel economy of much of the country.

I say to my colleagues that as they listen to this debate, I think it is very hard not to be persuaded that we have a good argument. I urge them to listen to the debate. I urge them to look at the substance. I urge them to look at the politics. I urge them to defeat the ethanol gas tax, the mandated ethanol gas tax, by supporting our amendment. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator from Wisconsin yield for a unanimous consent request?

Mr. KOHL. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. So Senators understand what we are trying to do this afternoon, we are going to ask unanimous consent the Senator from Wisconsin proceed for up to 5 minutes as if in morning business. Following that, the Senator from New Mexico, the manager of this bill, has a significant number of amendments that have been cleared, almost 20 amendments that have been cleared. He will have cleared those.

Senator MURKOWSKI has been called away for a funeral this afternoon. He will be back in about an hour.

Senator DAYTON wishes to speak on the ethanol provision, following the statement of the Senator from Wisconsin and the work done by the manager of the bill.

Then Senator FEINSTEIN and Senator MCCONNELL have some business they want to do. That will also be in morning business, as I understand it.

As I say, when Senator MURKOWSKI returns, the two leaders, Senator DASCHLE and Senator LOTT, agree it would be appropriate for him to offer an amendment dealing with Iraqi sanctions. We hope after he gets back to complete the debate on that within a relatively short period of time, perhaps an hour or less. Then we would go this evening to border security. Senator KENNEDY and others have been working on that matter, and we would be in a position in the near future to offer a unanimous consent request. That should take us into the evening time with several votes during the next several hours.

I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Wisconsin be recognized for up to 5 minutes.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Reserving the right to object, so that I can advise Senator MCCONNELL, my understanding of the unanimous consent agreement is Senator KOHL, Senator DAYTON, and then Senator MCCONNELL and I will have a chance to introduce legislation in morning business.

Mr. REID. I say to my friend from California, the only unanimous consent request I requested was Senator KOHL. I was relaying what I hope will happen. As soon as Senator BINGAMAN finishes his business, Senator DAYTON will speak for 15 or 20 minutes, at the most, and then there will be time for you and Senator MCCONNELL to take up your matter for up to a half hour.

That is not in the form of a unanimous consent agreement, but I think everyone should recognize that is the courteous thing to do, to allow people to proceed in that manner.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to allowing the Senator from Wisconsin to speak?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The remarks of Mr. KOHL are printed in today's RECORD under "Morning Business.")

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Mexico.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3015, AS MODIFIED; 3024, AS MODIFIED; 3078, AS MODIFIED; AND 3141, EN BLOC

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate now proceed to the consideration en bloc of the following amendments: Amendment No. 3015, relating to a National Academy of Sciences study on certain spent nuclear fuel shipments; amendment No. 3024, relating to nuclear powerplant licensing and regulation; amendment No. 3078, relating to a review of Federal procurement initiatives, and that those amendments be modified with changes at the desk.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments will be so modified.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I further ask unanimous consent that it be in order to also consider amendment No. 3141, relating to fuel cell vehicles, and that all four amendments I have referred to be agreed to en bloc.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments (Nos. 3015, 3024, 3078, and 3041) were agreed to en bloc, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3015 AS MODIFIED

(Purpose: To require a National Academy of Sciences study of procedures for the selection and assessment of certain routes for the shipment of spent nuclear fuel from research nuclear reactors)

At the end of title XVII, add the following:

SEC. 1704. NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES STUDY OF PROCEDURES FOR SELECTION AND ASSESSMENT OF CERTAIN ROUTES FOR SHIPMENT OF SPENT NUCLEAR FUEL FROM RESEARCH NUCLEAR REACTORS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation shall enter into an agreement with the National Academy of Sciences under which agreement the National Academy of Sciences shall conduct a study of the procedures by which the Department of Energy, together with the Department of Transportation and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, selects routes for the shipment of spent nuclear fuel from research nuclear reactors between or among existing Department of Energy facilities currently licensed to accept such spent nuclear fuel.

(b) ELEMENTS OF STUDY.—In conducting the study under subsection (a), the National Academy of Sciences shall analyze the manner in which the Department of Energy—

(1) selects potential routes for the shipment of spent nuclear fuel from research nuclear reactors between or among existing Department facilities currently licensed to accept such spent nuclear fuel;

(2) selects such a route for a specific shipment of such spent nuclear fuel; and

(3) conducts assessments of the risks associated with shipments of such spent nuclear fuel along such a route.

(c) CONSIDERATIONS REGARDING ROUTE SELECTION.—The analysis under subsection (b) shall include a consideration whether, and to what extent, the procedures analyzed for purposes of that subsection take into account the following:

(1) The proximity of the routes under consideration to major population centers and the risks associated with shipments of spent nuclear fuel from research nuclear reactors through densely populated areas.

(2) Current traffic and accident data with respect to the routes under consideration.

(3) The quality of the roads comprising the routes under consideration.

(4) Emergency response capabilities along the routes under consideration.

(5) The proximity of the routes under consideration to places or venues (including sports stadiums, convention centers, concert halls and theaters, and other venues) where large numbers of people gather.

(d) RECOMMENDATIONS.—In conducting the study under subsection (a), the National Academy of Sciences shall also make such recommendations regarding the matters studied as the National Academy of Sciences considers appropriate.

(e) DEADLINE FOR DISPERSAL OF FUNDS FOR STUDY.—The Secretary shall disperse to the National Academy of Sciences the funds for the cost of the study required by subsection (a) not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(f) REPORT ON RESULTS OF STUDY.—Not later than six months after the date of the dispersal of funds under subsection (e), the National Academy of Sciences shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report on the study conducted under subsection (a), including the recommendations required by subsection (d).

(g) APPROPRIATE COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS DEFINED.—In this section, the term “appropriate committees of Congress” means—

(1) the Committees on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, Energy and Natural Resources, and Environment and Public Works of the Senate; and

(2) the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives.

AMENDMENT NO. 3024 AS MODIFIED

(Purpose: To promote the safe and efficient supply of energy while maintaining strong environmental protections)

On page 123, after line 17, insert the following:

Subtitle C—Growth of Nuclear Energy

SEC. 521. COMBINED LICENSE PERIODS.

Section 103c. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2133(c)) is amended—

(1) by striking “c. Each such” and inserting the following:

“c. LICENSE PERIOD.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each such”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(2) COMBINED LICENSES.—In the case of a combined construction and operating license issued under section 185(b), the duration of the operating phase of the license period shall not be less than the duration of the operating license if application had been made for separate construction and operating licenses.”.

Subtitle D—NRC Regulatory Reform

SEC. 531. ANTITRUST REVIEW.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 105 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2135) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“d. ANTITRUST LAWS.—

“(1) NOTIFICATION.—Except as provided in paragraph (4), when the Commission proposes to issue a license under section 103 or 104b., the Commission shall notify the Attorney General of the proposed license and the proposed terms and conditions of the license.

“(2) ACTION BY THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.—Within a reasonable time (but not more than 90 days) after receiving notification under paragraph (1), the Attorney General shall submit to the Commission and publish in the Federal Register a determination whether, insofar as the Attorney General is able to determine, the proposed license would tend to create or maintain a situation inconsistent with the antitrust laws.

“(3) INFORMATION.—On the request of the Attorney General, the Commission shall furnish or cause to be furnished such information as the Attorney General determines to be appropriate or necessary to enable the Attorney General to make the determination under paragraph (2).

“(4) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection shall not apply to such classes or type of licenses as the Commission, with the approval of the Attorney General, determines would not significantly affect the activities of a licensee under the antitrust laws.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 105c. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2135(c)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(9) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection does not apply to an application for a license to construct or operate a utilization facility under section 103 or 104b. that is filed on or after the date of enactment of subsection d.”.

SEC. 532. DECOMMISSIONING.

(a) AUTHORITY OVER FORMER LICENSEES FOR DECOMMISSIONING FUNDING.—Section 161i. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2201(i)) is amended—

(1) by striking “and (3)” and inserting “(3)”; and

(2) by inserting before the semicolon at the end the following: “, and (4) to ensure that sufficient funds will be available for the decommissioning of any production or utilization facility licensed under section 103 or 104b., including standards and restrictions governing the control, maintenance, use, and disbursement by any former licensee under this Act that has control over any fund for the decommissioning of the facility”.

(b) TREATMENT OF NUCLEAR REACTOR FINANCIAL OBLIGATIONS.—Section 523 of title 11, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(f) TREATMENT OF NUCLEAR REACTOR FINANCIAL OBLIGATIONS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title—

“(1) any funds or other assets held by a licensee or former licensee of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, or by any other person, to satisfy the responsibility of the licensee, former licensee, or any other person to comply with a regulation or order of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission governing the decontamination and decommissioning of a nuclear power reactor licensed under section 103 or 104b. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2133, 2134(b)) shall not be used to satisfy the claim of any creditor in any proceeding under this title, other than a claim resulting from an activity undertaken to satisfy that responsibility, until the decontamination and decommissioning of the nuclear power reactor is completed to the satisfaction of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission;

“(2) obligations of licensees, former licensees, or any other person to use funds or other assets to satisfy a responsibility described in paragraph (1) may not be rejected, avoided, or discharged in any proceeding under this title or in any liquidation, reorganization, receivership, or other insolvency proceeding under Federal or State law; and

“(3) private insurance premiums and standard deferred premiums held and maintained in accordance with section 170b. of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2210(b)) shall not be used to satisfy the claim of any creditor in any proceeding under this title, until the indemnification agreement executed in accordance with section 170c. of that Act (42 U.S.C. 2210(c)) is terminated.”.

Subtitle E—NRC Personnel Crisis

SEC. 541. ELIMINATION OF PENSION OFFSET.

Section 161 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2201) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“y. exempt from the application of sections 8344 and 8468 of title 5, United States Code, an annuitant who was formerly an employee of the Commission who is hired by the Commission as a consultant, if the Commission finds that the annuitant has a skill that is critical to the performance of the duties of the Commission.”.

SEC. 542. NRC TRAINING PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In order to maintain the human resource investment and infrastructure of the United States in the nuclear sciences, health physics, and engineering fields, in accordance with the statutory authorities of the Commission relating to the civilian nuclear energy program, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission shall carry out a training and fellowship program to address shortages of individuals with critical safety skills.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $1,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2006.

(2) AVAILABILITY.—Funds made available under paragraph (1) shall remain available until expended.

AMENDMENT NO. 3078, AS MODIFIED

(Purpose: To require the General Services Administration to conduct a study regarding Government procurement policies)

On page 244, after line 23, add the following:

SEC. 840. REVIEW OF FEDERAL PROCUREMENT INITIATIVES RELATING TO USE OF RECYCLED PRODUCTS AND FLEET AND TRANSPORTATION EFFICIENCY.

Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator of General Services shall submit to Congress a report that details efforts by each Federal agency to implement the procurement policies specified in Executive order No. 13101 (63 Fed. Reg. 49643; relating to governmental use of recycled products) and Executive order No. 13149 (65 Fed. Reg. 24607; relating to Federal fleet and transportation efficiency).

AMENDMENT NO. 3141

(Purpose: To promote a plan that would enhance and accelerate the development of fuel cell technology to result in the deployment of 2.5 million hydrogen-fueled fuel cell vehicles by 2020)

On page 213, after line 10, insert:

“SEC. 824. FUEL CELL VEHICLE PROGRAM:

Not later than one year from date of enactment of this section, the Secretary shall develop a program with timetables for developing technologies to enable at least 100,000 hydrogen-fueled fuel cell vehicles to be available for sale in the United States by 2010 and at least 2.5 million of such vehicles to be available by 2020 and annually thereafter. The program shall also include timetables for development of technologies to provide 50 million gasoline equivalent gallons of hydrogen for sale in fueling stations in the United States by 2010 and at least 2.5 billion gasoline equivalent gallons by 2020 and annually thereafter. The Secretary shall annually include a review of the progress toward meeting the vehicle sales of Energy budget.”

Mr. BINGAMAN. I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3141

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I believe it is in our national interest to improve the efficiency of our vehicles, for example, through new vehicles and vehicle fuel technologies, so that we can reduce our oil dependence and better protect the environment.

Several months ago, I test drove a fuel cell vehicle. A fuel cell vehicle produces electricity from the reaction of hydrogen and oxygen. The only by-product is water. Fuel-cell vehicles are similar to battery-powered electric cars in that the fuel cell produces electricity that powers motors at the wheels.

But while a battery must be recharged after all of the fuel inside it has reacted, a fuel cell is a "refillable battery," in the sense that recharging the vehicle only requires refilling the fuel tank. The hydrogen fuel required to power it can be stored directly on the vehicle in tanks or extracted from a secondary fuel, like methanol or ethanol, that carries oxygen. So, a fuel cell car can get double or triple the mileage of cars on the road today.

This new technology would decrease emissions, help reduce global climate change, and protect our national security by reducing the amount of oil we would need to import from unstable regions.

All we need to do is look at the political conditions in Venezuela and the situation in the Middle East, coupled with Saddam Hussein's sanctions against exporting oil to the United States, to realize the precariousness of our dependence on these imports. At this point, we still have other countries that can meet the global oil market requirements and we are not in a crisis, but this could change at any moment.

Our transportation sector consumes the largest amount of energy in our society. Passenger vehicles account for 40 percent of the oil products the Nation consumes each year, or nearly 8 million barrels of oil each day. And, in 2001, the United States imported 53 percent of the Nation's oil and this is expected to increase to 60 percent or more by 2020, according to the Energy Information Administration. So we can and must change our oil consumption habits. We can do this by implementing new technologies that will increase fuel efficiency and help create jobs.

A Ford Motor Company representative has stated "the technology . . . has the potential to significantly improve the fuel economy of [vehicles], which could reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil, reduce greenhouse gas emissions and save consumers money at the pump."

That is why I am introducing an amendment directing the Energy Department to develop a program that would create measurable goals and timetables with the aim of putting 100,000 hydrogen-fueled fuel cell vehicles on the road by 2010 and 2.5 million by 2020, along with the needed hydrogen infrastructure. DOE would have to report annually on its progress toward achieving these goals.

The amendment is designed to have DOE work with the auto manufacturers to ensure that these goals are met. With this amendment, we are sending a strong message that our goal is to accelerate and enhance the development of fuel cell vehicle technologies with concrete targets and timetables.

Most major automakers are racing to produce prototype fuel cell vehicles. DaimlerChrysler has plans to have fuel-cell cars in production by 2004.

California's clean air act requirements also will ensure that many fuel cell vehicles are on the road in the near future. Specifically, by next year, 2003, 2 percent of California's vehicles have to be zero-emission vehicles and around 10 percent of its vehicles must be zero-emission vehicles by 2018. This means that California could have nearly 40,000 or 50,000 fuel cell cars on the road by the end of the next decade. Federal fleet purchase requirements also would help realize the targets established in my amendment.

I am pleased that my amendment is supported by United Technologies, the Alliance to Save Energy, and Senators CANTWELL, BAYH, and REID.

I know there are a number of other Members that also share my enthusiasm for hydrogen-fueled fuel cell vehicles, and I look forward to working with my colleagues to move this important and promising technology off the shelves and onto our streets.

AMENDMENT NO. 3024

Mr. VOINOVICH. Madam President, I rise today to propose an amendment to the energy bill that will promote the safe and efficient supply of nuclear energy while maintaining strong environmental protections. My amendment, the Nuclear Safety and Promotion Act, supports the growth of nuclear energy, provides regulatory reform to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and addresses the personnel crisis at the NRC.

According to the Department of Energy, we are going to have to increase the amount of energy we produce by 30 percent by 2015 in order to meet our demand. Nuclear power must be a significant part of meeting this demand.

My amendment addresses an unintended consequence of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 that will help nuclear energy grow in our country. This act created a combined construction and operating license of 40 years. However, it inadvertently caused the clock on the 40-year period to begin ticking when the license is issued, not when the facility actually begins operating. Since this could result in a difference of several years, this amendment fixes the quirk in the law by making the clock on a license start when a facility begins operating.

In addition, the Energy Policy Act of 1954 requires the NRC to perform antitrust reviews when considering initial licensing. However, these reviews are currently also performed by the Department of Justice and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. This duplication is unnecessary and inefficient. My amendment establishes antitrust review authority firmly in the hands of the Justice Department, who has the experience and background to best perform these reviews.

Under this new provision, the NRC would have no authority to either review the application or impose conditions regarding antitrust matters on any new or renewed license for commercial reactors. The NRC simply would be required to notify the Attorney General when the NRC proposes to issue a license for a reactor, and if the Attorney General requests, the NRC would provide general information about the facility and the applicants. Thus, the Attorney General would make a determination as to whether the proposed license for the reactor would create or maintain a situation inconsistent with antitrust laws.

The licensing process and the antitrust review are two different matters and should be treated as such. The NRC would continue with its licensing action while the Justice Department makes its determination. In fact, this determination would not affect the NRC's licensing action in any way. If it is determined that the license would create or maintain a situation inconsistent with the antitrust laws, then the Attorney General could take action, but these actions would and should be independent of NRC's licensing process.

While removing this inefficient duplicative burden on the NRC, my amendment also ensures that NRC maintains authority of a facility regardless of its status. In most cases, where a nuclear power reactor licensee sells ownership of a reactor to a new licensee, the responsibility for funding decommissioning is the new owner's, and decommissioning funds that have been set aside in a trust fund are transferred to the new licensee as part of the transfer.

However, in license transfers involving the Indian Point 3 and Fitzpatrick reactors, the former licensee has retained the trust funds. Although the NRC, in approving the transfer of the reactors, imposed conditions aimed at ensuring that the former licensee may only use the decommissioning funds for that purpose, I, as well as the NRC, am concerned about this situation not being clearly provided for in law. My amendment would provide the explicit statutory authority to ensure that decommissioning funds are used for that purpose and that decommissioning is done in accordance with NRC regulatory requirements. Furthermore, the NRC would be able to retain a decommissioning fund over sellers of nuclear facilities even though the seller may no longer be a NRC licensee.

Additionally, a provision of this amendment would prevent any funds or other assets held by a licensee or former licensee of the NRC to be used to satisfy the claim of any creditor until the decontamination and decommissioning of the nuclear power reactor is completed. Both of these provisions ensure that decommissioning funds are used for decommissioning.

One of the biggest problems in our country and government is the human capital crisis, and the NRC is no different. The NRC currently has six times as many employees older than 60 as it does under age 30, meaning that a potential wave of retirements could leave the agency without the expertise it needs. Adding to this problem is the fact that former employees cannot consult for the NRC without jeopardizing their pensions. These are people with critical skills that cannot provide their expertise without being penalized.

Fortunately, the Office of Personnel Management has provided the NRC with a limited-scope, temporary pension offset waiver to rehire former employees. My amendment would eliminate this pension offset to help preserve the knowledge base by allowing individuals with critical skills to be hired as consultants in future years. Under this amendment, individuals like the former Deputy Director of the Office of Nuclear Regulatory Research, who has 44 years of experience in the nuclear industry and is currently consulting with the NRC due to the temporary waiver, would be paid for their consulting services to the NRC while still receiving their federal pensions.

The NRC is also facing extreme shortages of individuals with critical safety skills. The numbers of education and training programs in the two basic disciplines, nuclear engineering and health physics, are declining. From 1996 to 2001, university programs in nuclear engineering have declined 26 percent, from 50 to 37, and healthy physics programs have declined 12 percent, from 49 to 43. Within the general disciplines, the NRC is experiencing shortages of people with a variety of critical skills, including: nuclear process engineering, thermal hydraulics, geology, structural engineering, and transportation. The shortages in these fields are a result of NRC's aging workforce and nuclear industry requirements. Over the next decade, the demand for nuclear engineers is projected to be twice the supply, and for health physicists, one and one half times the supply.

To help train and recruit the next generation of nuclear regulatory specialists, this amendment authorizes the NRC to fund academic fellowships to address shortages of individuals with critical safety skills. Instead of the funding coming from user fees, $1 million would be authorized per year for 2002–2005. The ability to fund training programs in specialized areas at universities would enable the NRC to implement more timely and effective strategies to close future skill gaps identified through the agency's planning processes.

Our Nation needs to be responsible to future generations. We must allow nuclear energy to grow today to meet future needs. We also must realize that our resources are scarce and we should not waste them on duplicative and costly regulatory burdens that place us into further debt. We also must plan for the future by ensuring that nuclear plants are cared for properly when they are closed, that we fully utilize the people who have spent years in this industry, and that have future generations with the necessary critical skills.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3148 THROUGH 3156, EN BLOC

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I ask that the Senate now proceed to the following amendments that are at the desk. There are nine.

First is an amendment for Senator CANTWELL relating to the high-power density industry program; the second is an amendment for Senator REID relating to precious metal catalysis research; the third is an amendment for myself relating to energy savings associated with water use; the fourth is an amendment for Senator SCHUMER relating to appliance rebates; the fifth is an amendment for Senator LANDRIEU relating to small businesses; the sixth is an amendment for Senator CORZINE relating to public housing; the seventh is an amendment for Senator KENNEDY relating to schoolbuses; the eighth is an amendment for Senator LINCOLN relating to a decommissioning pilot program; and the ninth is an amendment for Senator MURKOWSKI relating to a clean coal technology loan.

I ask for the immediate consideration of these amendments, en bloc.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report the amendments, en bloc.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Mexico [Mr. BINGAMAN] proposes amendments No. 3148 through 3156, en bloc.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendments be dispensed with.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3148

(Purpose: To improve energy efficiency in industries that use high power density facilities)

On page 403, after line 12, insert the following:

SEC. 1215. HIGH POWER DENSITY INDUSTRY PROGRAM.

The Secretary shall establish a comprehensive research, development, demonstration and deployment program to improve energy efficiency of high power density facilities, including data centers, server farms, and telecommunications facilities. Such program shall consider technologies that provide significant improvement in thermal controls, metering, load management, peak load reduction, or the efficient cooling of electronics.

AMENDMENT NO. 3149

(Purpose: To authorize the Secretary of Energy to carry out research in the use of precious metals in catalysis for the purpose of developing improved catalytic converters)

On page 403, after line 12, insert the following:

“SEC. 1215. RESEARCH REGARDING PRECIOUS METAL CATALYSIS.

“The Secretary of Energy may, for the purpose of developing improved industrial and automotive catalysts, carry out research in the use of precious metals (excluding platinum, palladium, and rhodium) in catalysis directly, through national laboratories, or through grants to or cooperative agreements or contracts with public or nonprofit entities. There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as are necessary for fiscal years 2003 through 2006.”.

AMENDMENT NO. 3150

(Purpose: To provide for a report on energy savings and water use)

At the end of title XVII, add the following:

SEC. 17 . REPORT ON ENERGY SAVINGS AND WATER USE.

(a) REPORT.—The Secretary of Energy shall conduct a study of opportunities to reduce energy use by cost-effective improvements in the efficiency of municipal water and waste water treatment and use, including water pumps, motors, and delivery systems; purification, conveyance and distribution; upgrading of aging water infrastructure, and improved methods for leakage monitoring, measuring and reporting; and public education.

(b) SUBMISSION OF REPORT.—The Secretary of Energy shall submit a report on the results of the study, including any recommendations for implementation of measures and estimates of costs and resource savings, no later than two years from the date of enactment of this section..

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There is hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

AMENDMENT NO. 3151

(Purpose: To provide funds to States to establish and carry out energy efficient appliance rebate programs)

At the end of subtitle A of title IX add the following:

SEC. 9 . ENERGY EFFICIENT APPLIANCE REBATE PROGRAMS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) ELIGIBLE STATE.—The term “eligible state” means a State that meets the requirements of subsection (b).

(2) ENERGY STAR PROGRAM.—The term “Energy Star program” means the program established by section 324A of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act.

(3) RESIDENTIAL ENERGY STAR PRODUCT.—The term “residential Energy Star product” means a product for a residence that is rated for energy efficiency under the Energy Star program.

(4) STATE ENERGY OFFICE.—The term “State energy office” means the State agency responsible for developing State energy conservation plans under section 362 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6322).

(5) STATE PROGRAM.—The term “State program” means a State energy efficient appliances rebate program described in subsection (b)(1).

(b) ELIGIBLE STATES.—A State shall be eligible to receive an allocation under subsection (c) if the State—

(1) establishes (or has established) a State energy efficient appliance rebate program to provide rebates to residential consumers for the purchase of residential Energy Star products to replace used appliances of the same type.

(2) submits an application for the allocation at such time, in such form, and containing such information as the Secretary may require; and

(3) provides assurances satisfactory to the Secretary that the State will use the allocation to supplement, but not supplant, funds made available to carry out the State program.

(c) AMOUNT OF ALLOCATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall allocate to the State energy office of each eligible State to carry out subsection (d) an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount made available under subsection (e) for the fiscal year by the ratio that the population of the State in the most recent calendar year for which data are available bears to the total population of all eligible States in that calendar year.

(2) MINIMUM ALLOCATIONS.—For each fiscal year, the amounts allocated under this subsection shall be adjusted proportionately so that no eligible State is allocated a sum that is less than an amount determined by the Secretary.

(d) USE OF ALLOCATED FUNDS.—The allocation to a State energy office under subsection (c) may be used to pay up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing and carrying out a State program.

(e) ISSUANCE OF REBATES.—Rebates may be provided to residential consumers that meet the requirements of the State program. The amount of a rebate shall be determined by the State energy office, taking into consideration—

(1) the amount of the allocation to the State energy office under subsection (c);

(2) the amount of any Federal or State tax incentive available for the purchase of the residential Energy Star product; and

(3) the difference between the cost of the residential Energy Star product and the cost of an appliance that is not a residential Energy Star product, but is of the same type as, and is the nearest capacity, performance, and other relevant characteristics (as determined by the State energy office) to the residential Energy Star product.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003 through fiscal year 2012.

AMENDMENT NO. 3152

(Purpose: To assist small businesses to become more energy efficient)

On page 301, line 22, strike “organizations.” and insert the following: “organizations.”

“(d) SMALL BUSINESS EDUCATION AND ASSISTANCE.—The Administrator of the Small Business Administration, in consultation with the Secretary of Energy and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall develop and coordinate a government-wide program, building on the existing Energy Star for Small Business Program, to assist small business to become more energy efficient, understand the cost savings obtainable through efficiencies, and identify financing options for energy efficiency upgrades. The Secretary and the Administrator shall make the program information available directly to small businesses and through other federal agencies, including the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the Department of Agriculture.”.

AMENDMENT NO. 3153

(Purpose: To establish energy efficiency provisions for public housing agencies, and for other purposes)

At the end of subtitle D of title IX, add the following:

SEC. 937. CAPITAL FUND.

Section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437(g)), as amended by section 934, is amended—

(1) in subsection (d)(I)—

(A) in subparagraph (L), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”;

(B) by redesignating subparagraph (L) as subparagraph (K); and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(L) integrated utility management and capital planning to maximize energy conservation and efficiency measures.”; and

(2) in subsection (e)(2)(C)—

(A) by striking “The” and inserting the following:

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

“(ii) THIRD PARTY CONTRACTS.—Contracts described in clause (i) may include contracts for equipment conversions to less costly utility sources, projects with resident paid utilities, adjustments to frozen base year consumption, including systems repaired to meet applicable building and safety codes and adjustments for occupancy rates increased by rehabilitation.

“(iii) TERM OF CONTRACT.—The total term of a contract described in clause (i) shall be for not more than 20 years to allow longer payback periods for retrofits, including but not limited to windows, heating system replacements, wall insulation, site-based generations, and advanced energy savings technologies, including renewable energy generation.”.

SEC. 938. ENERGY-EFFICIENT APPLIANCES.

A public housing agency shall purchase energy-efficient appliances that are Energy Star products as defined in section 552 of the National Energy Policy and Conservation Act (as amended by this Act) when the purchase of energy-efficient appliances is cost-effective to the public housing agency.

SEC. 939. ENERGY EFFICIENCY STANDARDS.

Section 109 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act (42 U.S.C. 12709) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in paragraph (1)—

(i) by striking “the date of the enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992” and inserting “September 30, 2002”;

(ii) in subparagraph (A), by striking “and” at the end;

(iii) in subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end and inserting a semi-colon; and

(iv) by adding at the end the following:

“(C) rehabilitation and new construction of public and assisted housing funded by HOPE VI revitalization grants, established under section 24 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437v), where such standards are determined to be cost effective by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development; and

(B) in paragraph (2) by striking “Council of American” and all that follows through “life-cycle cost basis” and inserting “2000 International Energy Conservation Code”;

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by striking “the date of the enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992” and inserting “September 30, 2002”;

(B) by striking “CABO” and all that follows through “1989” and inserting “the 2000 International Energy Conservation Code”;

(3) in subsection (c)—

(A) in the heading, by striking “MODEL ENERGY CODE” and inserting “THE INTERNATIONAL ENERGY CONSERVATION CODE”;

(B) by striking “CABO” and all that follows through “1989” and inserting “the 2000 International Energy Conservation Code”.

SEC. 940. ENERGY STRATEGY FOR HUD.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall develop and implement an integrated strategy to reduce utility expenses through cost-effective energy conservation and efficiency measures, design and construction in public and assisted housing.

(b) ENERGY MANAGEMENT OFFICE.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall create an office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development for utility management, energy efficiency, and conservation, with responsibility for implementing the strategy developed under this section, including development of a centralized database that monitors public housing energy usage, and development of energy reduction goals and incentives for public housing agencies. The Secretary shall submit an annual report to Congress on the strategy.

AMENDMENT NO. 3154

(Purpose: To provide for cleaner school buses)

On page 183, line 15, strike “and” and all that follows through line 19, and insert the following:

(2) the term “idling” means not turning off an engine while remaining stationary for more than approximately 3 minutes; and

(3) the term “ultra-low sulfur diesel school bus” means a school bus powered by diesel fuel which contains sulfur at not more than 15 parts per million.

(k) REDUCTION OF SCHOOL BUS IDLING.—Each local educational agency (as defined in section 9101 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7801)) that receives Federal funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) is encouraged to develop a policy to reduce the incidence of school buses idling at schools when picking up and unloading students.

AMENDMENT NO. 3155

(Purpose: To direct the Secretary of Energy to establish a decommissioning pilot program to decommission and decontaminate the sodium-cooled fast breeder experimental test-site reactor located in northwest Arkansas)

On page 123, after line 17, insert the following:

SEC. 514. DECOMMISSIONING PILOT PROGRAM.

(a) PILOT PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Energy shall establish a decommissioning pilot program to decommission and decontaminate the sodium-cooled fast breeder experimental test-site reactor located in northwest Arkansas in accordance with the decommissioning activities contained in the August 31, 1998 Department of Energy report on the reactor.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $16,000,000.

AMENDMENT NO. 3156

(Purpose: To provide for certain clean coal funding)

On page 443, after line 8, insert the following:

SEC. 1237. CLEAN COAL TECHNOLOGY LOAN.

There is authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $125,000,000 to the Secretary of Energy to provide a loan to the owner of the experimental plant constructed under United States Department of Energy cooperative agreement number DE-FC22-91PC99544 on such terms and conditions as the Secretary determines, including interest rates and up-front payments.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendments en bloc.

The amendments (Nos. 3140 through 3156) were agreed to.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3152

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, last week I joined with Senator KERRY in offering an amendment dealing with small business energy efficiency. That particular amendment dealt with the Energy Star Program, which is an important program in helping small businesses become more energy efficient. The amendment I offer today, which was developed with the help of Senators KERRY, ENSIGN, CANTWELL, LIEBERMAN, and CARNAHAN, complements that language.

First I would like to take a moment to thank Senators BINGAMAN and MURKOWSKI and their staffs for helping us to address this issue given relatively short notice. Despite the fact that they have been very busy with many other aspects of this bill, they took the time to help us work out some language that everyone could accept. I would also like to echo Senator KERRY's remarks last week thanking Byron Kennard at the Center for Small Business and the Environment and Carol Werner at the Environmental and Energy Study Institute for their role in bringing this important issue to the forefront.

Simply put, this amendment addresses the need for Federal agencies to help small businesses become more energy efficient. I just want to take a minute to explain why I believe this language is necessary. Small businesses are often the hardest hit by energy unreliability and big price hikes. Many operate on slim profit margins, so the threat of big increases in electric bills can force small businesses to lay off workers or even to close their doors.

Restaurants, for example, are highly energy intensive and they tend to use energy inefficiently. As my colleagues know, restaurants were some of the hardest-hit businesses following the slump in tourism after the September 11 attacks. Restaurants are also unique because they also operate on narrow margins of profit, so money saved on energy bills can easily equal a big boost in revenue. According to EPA, saving 20 percent on energy operating costs—something that's easily achievable—can increase a restaurant's profit as much as one-third.

Small firms, however, often lack access to capital and the know-how to purchase and install new energy efficient products, and to fund the research and development stage of such innovations. As Senator KERRY expressed in his remarks yesterday, Federal agencies, the Small Business Administration in particular, have the resources, contacts and personnel necessary to give a real helping hand to small businesses in these situations.

The SBA, for instance, deals with thousands of small businesses across the country on a regular basis, serving as a clearinghouse for information, a counselor, and a guarantor of loans for these businesses. It would be quite simple for the SBA to expand its role to provide assistance in the area of energy efficiency. The Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of Energy, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the Department of Agriculture also have roles to play in these efforts.

Let me share a success story from a small business in my own State of Louisiana. There is a law firm in Baton Rouge, Jerry F. Pepper, APLC. The firm recently remodeled its offices to make them more energy efficient. Thermostats, air filters, and lights were all replaced with newer, more efficient models.

The firm believes that, in addition to a savings of $6,100 annually—let me repeat that amount, $6,100 per year—the upgrades will improve employee morale and productivity, reduce indoor pollution, and improve safety. Additionally, the upgrade for this firm—for one law firm in Baton Rouge—is estimated to reduce over 100,000 pounds of carbon dioxide annually.

I want my colleagues to imagine for a moment that every small business in America upgraded its energy efficiency with similar results. The savings in energy, pollution, and money would be incredible. But these businesses cannot do it on their own. Their profit margins are too tight; their resources are too limited. But Federal agencies like the SBA have the resources and know-how to assist these businesses in these efforts.

That is why I am proud to join other members of the Small Business Committee to offer this important language to help our Nation's small businesses become more energy efficient.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, as chairman of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I am pleased to join my colleague, Senator LANDRIEU, in introducing an amendment regarding the need to assist more small businesses become energy efficient.

This legislation reinforces a small business amendment that Senator LANDRIEU and I put forth last week regarding the Energy Star Program. It was successfully adopted as part of the Energy Policy Act of 2002, and I thank Senators BINGAMAN and MURKOWSKI for that.

There is an obvious missing player in our efforts to increase the number of small businesses that are using or developing products and processes that save energy, and it is the Small Business Administration. This amendment directs the Administration to develop and coordinate a government-wide program that educates small firms about the cost-benefits and business advantages of energy efficiency.

I was astounded to learn last year, during a hearing I held on the business of environmental technologies, that SBA is not actively working with DoE and the EPA to advertise their joint program for promoting energy efficiency of small business. This is particularly hard to understand given that there is so much work to be done. There are an estimated 25 million small businesses in this country, and they account for more than half of all the commercial energy used in North America. However, according to Paul Stolpman, who testified on behalf of the EPA, only 3,000 small businesses have partnered with EPA in committing to improve their energy performance.

I am not criticizing the EPA or the Department of Energy; they have a good initiative, and I support their efforts. I am simply pointing out that there are millions of small businesses left to reach, millions of opportunities to reduce energy consumption in this country. It is basic common sense that SBA could help significantly in that effort. After all the financial hardships small businesses suffered over the last couple of years because of price spikes and unreliability, energy isn't even a prominent issue on SBA's website.

To illustrate the power of education and the need to coordinate outreach efforts through the SBA, I would like to share a story about one of the small businesses in my home State of Massachusetts that benefitted greatly from making energy modifications. Carl Faulkner is the owner of the Williams Inn in Williamstown. Years ago, he was approached by his energy company to receive a free energy audit and rebates to off-set the cost of upgrading his lighting systems. It seemed like a good idea, so he went ahead and took them up on their offer. After all was said and done, between the rebates and his new energy savings, he recovered his expenses in just 1 month. But that is not the end of the story. The results of those simple changes were so positive that he was inspired to learn even more about energy savings and to investigate where else his business was losing money on unnecessary energy usage. Since then he has put on special roofing, replaced air conditioner units, put insulation around pipes, and installed meters to determine when and where his business uses the most energy. With this information, Mr. Faulkner can bring down usage, saving even more energy and money.

These simple changes have yielded vast results. In January and February, he saved more than $10,000. Mr. Faulkner now considers energy efficiency a never-ending process. He says if it weren't for outreach, he never would have made these important changes to his business. He changed his business from one that was consuming energy at an unmonitored level to one that has an energy management system that allows him to identify other savings.

In addition to increasing energy efficiency of small businesses in order to reduce consumption, to reduce pollution, and to reduce reliance on foreign oil, there is a need for Federal agencies to increase their work with small business to research and develop new technologies and processes that are more energy efficient. In 1999, the SBA investigated the role of small business in technological innovation and found that when a market demands progress, change, and evolution, small firms play a key role. Just looking back to 1997, there were more than 33,000 small firms operating in the environmental industry, with combined revenues of $52 billion. That is billion. In Massachusetts alone, environmental technology businesses employ more than 30,000. No matter how you cut it, revenues, jobs, pollution reduction, energy supply, national security, there is a very good reason to encourage the innovation of efficient technology. And the Federal Government needs to make a serious effort to use small businesses to do that research and development as much as possible. At the very least, I would like to see a focus on these topics through the small business research and development projects through the Small Business Innovation Research and Small Business Technology Transfer initiatives. We have got the finest research universities in the world and certainly the most dynamic small business sector. I want a coordinated and heightened effort to use these resources for national energy policy.

As I said yesterday when we were debating the proposal to drill in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, we cannot drill our way out of our energy problem. We must innovate our way out of our energy problem. Not just innovation in more fuel efficient cars, but also appliances. If the Bush administration would fully implement efficiency standards for appliances that were issued in 1997 and last year, the Department of Energy estimates the total savings to business and consumers to be $27 billion by 2030. Why? Simply because of less energy use and generally less demand when using more efficient appliances. We can go further with more innovation. And we need to use Federal agencies to increase the interplay between small businesses, innovation, and the Nation's environmental and energy goals.

I thank Senator LANDRIEU for offering this amendment. And again I thank Senators BINGAMAN and MURKOWSKI, and their staffs, for their help in passing this small business amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 3153

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I would like to thank my colleagues Senators BINGAMAN and MURKOWSKI for their support of and efforts to pass my amendment to improve energy efficiency in public housing, which cleared the Senate Floor earlier today. I would also like to thank my colleagues on the Banking Committee, Chairman SARBANES and Ranking Member GRAMM for their assistance in passing this amendment.

My amendment will help reduce our Nation's energy consumption and reduce long-term energy costs in public housing. The amendment accomplishes this by giving the Department of Housing and Urban Development, HUD, and the public housing authorities, PHAs, it oversees the tools they need to increase energy efficiency in public housing developments.

HUD and public housing authorities oversee approximately 1.3 million units of residential low-income public housing across the country. The Federal Government spends approximately $1.4 billion each year just to cool, heat, light, and supply water to these units. Utility costs make up anywhere from 25 to 40 percent of a typical housing authority's operating budget.

Despite the large amount of Federal dollars spent on energy usage in public housing, there are virtually no resources to help public housing authorities manage their utility expenditures. Furthermore, there are few incentives for them to utilize energy efficient technologies.

My amendment addresses these issues, first, by establishing an Office of Energy Management at HUD. This office will coordinate energy management activities throughout the public housing system so that energy management is less fragmented and technical expertise is made available to all public housing authorities.

The amendment will also improve financial incentives available to public housing authorities to implement energy saving strategies, such as window replacements, heating system retrofits, and other efficiency and renewable measures. The amendment also encourages public housing authorities to purchase Energy Star appliances and equipment when replacing outdated building systems and equipment.

Finally, my amendment requires that all new public housing construction meet current energy codes where cost effective. Most States have not adopted the most recent codes and, in some cases, do not require adherence to any code. Meeting these updated codes will save public housing authorities as much as 15 percent in annual energy costs.

The bottom line is that this legislation would expand the resources available to provide low-income housing without increasing Federal spending. HUD has conservatively estimated that improved energy management processes throughout all of its public housing programs could save about $200 million annually. These savings could be used to build more affordable housing and improve the quality of life of public housing residents. Improving energy efficiency in public housing units will also decrease utility costs for low-income residents, who often pay a portion of their utility expenses.

At a time of skyrocketing utility costs and decreased public housing funds, my amendment offers commonsense solutions that will reduce public housing's reliance on fossil fuels and free up resources to improve housing for low-income families.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 3028 AND 3070, WITHDRAWN

Mr. BINGAMAN. Finally, I ask unanimous consent amendment No. 3028 and amendment No. 3070 be withdrawn.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. DAYTON. Madam President, like most of my colleagues, I have lived through a number of the energy crises which have afflicted our country. I was living and working on the East Coast during the first oil crisis in 1973 and 1974. People lined up at gas stations, starting at 3 or 4 in the morning to purchase a few gallons before the day's scarce supplies ran out.

In January 1977, during one of the coldest winters ever recorded in Minnesota, I serve as the Energy Policy Adviser to our State's Governor, when he declared Minnesota's first official energy emergency.

From 1983 to 1987, I served as commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Energy and Economic Development, where I was constantly monitoring the State's energy supplies. I will never forget one Christmas Eve, which I spent trying to locate a refinery that would reopen and provide desperately needed home heating oil to people in northern Minnesota who had run out of their own supplies.

From these experiences, I have become a hard-headed realist and a pragmatist about energy policy. I am well aware of the fragility of our country's energy supplies, pipelines, transmission lines, and refineries, where even a small disruption can trigger major dislocations which quickly create a crisis. In a cold-weather State like Minnesota, the consequences of a disruption in energy supplies can be very serious and even fatal.

I have viewed "renewable" or "alternative" forms of energy with hope but also reservations. While sometimes viable on a small scale, most of them are not capable of supplying the large-scale energy needs of our vast and complex society and our economy. That is why the percentage of U.S. energy consumption from renewable sources has remained essentially the same for the last 40 years. In 1960, renewable provided 6.6 percent; and in the year 2000, renewable energy provided 6.9 percent of our country's total energy consumption. Why, despite their promise, despite the encouragement and the financial assistance they have received, has the usage of renewable energy sources in this country not increased in 40 years?

It is because none of them can compete in price, supply, or public acceptance with the traditional energy sources of oil, natural gas, coal, and nuclear energy. As long as sufficient supplies of these fuels remain reliably available at current, stable prices, they will be preferred over the alternatives. They cost less per BTU; they can be supplied in the quantities necessary for our large and diverse economy; and their production, transportation, and distribution systems are all well established.

Thus, our Nation's de facto energy policy has been for many years and continues to be to maintain the status quo. Despite all the warnings and dire predictions, despite the occasional, but so far short-lived crises, the status quo has been the right short-term policy during the last 30 years. However, the question before us now is: Will these primary fuels continue to be as less expensive, as available, and as reliable during the next 10 years, 20 years, or 30 years? If there is sufficient doubt, are we willing to design and implement a transition willing to design and implement a transition over the next 10 or 20 years to include a viable alternative? That is what a national energy policy should do.

From my personal and professional experience, I know that the so-called "bio-fuels" or "renewable fuels," such as ethanol, soy-diesel, and other fuels derived from agricultural commodities could be used in this country today to replace 10 percent, 20 percent, or soon 50 percent or more of the gasoline used on our Nation's roads and highways.

Presently, the United States consumes 25 percent of the world's entire oil production. About 44 percent of it is produced domestically, and 56 percent is imported from other countries.

Although the United States is currently the second largest producer of oil, our domestic production, either with or without ANWR, will not be able to supply even half the amount we consume. Since most of our remaining oil supplies are more costly to extract, it will be less expensive for us to buy more of our oil from other countries. That equation means we will continue to become more dependent upon imported oil. The only way to reduce significantly the amount of foreign oil we need is to reduce the amount of oil we consume.

Seventy percent of the oil we produce or import is used in our transportation and most of that goes into our cars, SUVs, trucks, and other motor vehicles. In fact, about 1 of every 7 barrels of oil produced in the entire world goes into an American gas tank. So, if we are ever going to reduce the amount of oil we consume, motor fuel consumption is the place to start.

Unfortunately, as I said earlier, we are going in the other direction. As a Nation, we are using more gasoline, not less. More people are driving more vehicles greater distances than even before. And more of their vehicles are less fuel efficient. In fact, last year the total fleet fuel efficiency in this country dropped below that in 1980.

What are we doing about it? Nothing. Government-mandated fuel efficiency standards have not changed since 1985, and an amendment to increase them in this bill was defeated by a two-thirds majority. Then light trucks were removed entirely from future mileage standards review. Light trucks and SUVs, are the fastest growing segments of the U.S. market, and they are among the least fuel efficient vehicles.

Some people advocate a significant increase in Federal or State gasoline taxes, to reduce fuel consumption to encourage the purchase of more fuel-efficient vehicles, and to increase the amount of money going into the Highway Trust Fund. How many Members of Congress who voted for a 10 cent per gallon, of 20 or 30 cent per gallon tax increase, would survive their next election?

So, barring a severe jolt to the world market, barring a large and lasting jump in gasoline prices, everything points toward increased gasoline consumption, which means increased oil consumption above the 25 percent of all the world's oil supply production that we now consume.

Everything points in that direction except for ethanol and other biofuels. Ethanol is now made mostly from corn, although other commodities such as sugar beets, sugar cane, wheat, and even wood chips have been converted into ethanol. Ethanol has been around for many years. Many Minnesota farmers have distilled some of their grains, drank the best of it, and refined the rest into ethanol, which they put in their trucks, tractors, and even cars. With a few adjustments to the carburetors, they worked just fine. Until recently, however, ethanol could not be used in most conventional American engines, because it burned too cleanly and acted as a solvent which dislodged the grime attached to the walls of engines.

Finally, the combustion process in modern engines improved so that ethanol could be blended with gasoline. That is how it has been used, and that is how it is viewed in the debates this week and last week—as an additive to gasoline.

In fact, ethanol's potential goes far beyond that. It is not just an additive to gasoline; it is an alternative to gasoline. An alternative which today could be substituted for 20 percent of all the gasoline consumed in the United States, and with the near-term potential to substitute for over 50 percent of the oil-based gasoline used in this country. Imagine reducing the motor consumption of gasoline in this country by more than half, with no change in the types of cars, SUV's, and light trucks on the road. It would require only slight engine modifications which have been made to 2 million vehicles already sold in the United States.

How do I know this? I know it because 5 years ago, the Minnesota Legislature passed a law which mandated that every gallon of gasoline sold in our state be comprised of at least 10 percent ethanol. It was very controversial then, and opponents used the same scare tactics we have witnessed in this debate: Prices would increase; supplies would be inadequate and unreliable; engines would be damaged; lives would be disrupted. Today, in Minnesota, it is a total non-issue. Most people have forgotten it is even in every gallon of gas they buy. Last week, the price of a gallon of regular, unleaded gasoline in Minnesota was 20 cents less than in California, a penny more than in New York, two cents less than in Wisconsin, and almost a nickel less than in Illinois.

We have heard of a study, referred to here, which is misunderstood and has been presented as predicting that this legislation would cause a 4-cent to 9-cent increase in the cost of a gallon of gasoline. That study by the Energy Information Administration, isolating the effect of ethanol, the ethanol mandate in the legislation, actually found the price of a gallon of gasoline would go up by less than 1 cent.

But let us set aside the study and conflicting opinions about what that study says because that is projecting into the future. I am talking about current reality. What I am talking about is the price of 10 percent blended ethanol in today's gasoline in Minnesota compared to other parts of the country. Again, that is just 10 percent ethanol blended with 90 percent gasoline.

I lease a Chrysler Town & Country, which has the "flexible fuel" modification to the regular engine, and it travels throughout most of Minnesota on E85 fuel. E85 is a blend of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline. It has now been driven over 20,000 miles, in all kinds of weather, through all four seasons, and we have had no trouble with it whatsoever.

The price of a gallon of E85 in Minnesota last week was $1.24, 21 cents less than a gallon of regular unleaded in Minnesota—forty-two cents less than a gallon of regular unleaded gasoline in California; 20 cents less than in New York; and 26 cents less than in Illinois.

That price differential is not as good as it seems. First, a gallon of ethanol contains fewer BTUs than a gallon of gasoline. Second, ethanol benefits from a federal subsidy. As I said earlier, no alternative fuel is less expensive per equivalent BTU as our traditional energy supplies. But ethanol is already close. And at higher levels of production, the price will go down. As car and truck manufacturers better adapt their engine to ethanol, fuel efficiency will improve. And, trust me, we have plenty of corn, beets, and sugar cane, and other agricultural commodities suitable for ethanol conversion all across this country.

However, for ethanol production and consumption to increase enough to cause a significant reduction in the amount of gasoline consumed in this country, it needs what Minnesota provided—a mandate; a mandate such as this bill contains; a gradual, graduated, achievable increase over a decade. With that mandate, ethanol providers and would-be providers will know there is a reliable and growing market nationwide for ethanol.

Opponents have made much of the fact that one company—Archer Daniels Midland—produces 41 percent of this country's ethanol. What they don't tell you is that 25 years ago ADM produced almost 100 percent of this country's ethanol. ADM's market share has gone down every year for the last 25 years, and it will continue to go down as more companies, and farm Coops, make it possible and profitable to produce ethanol. For unlike gasoline, ethanol's raw products are available all over this country. They can be grown in most parts of this country. Where there are large markets, like California or New York, refineries will locate there. Just as California, as its population grew, declined to depend on milk and cheese from Minnesota and Wisconsin, and developed its own instate industry which supplies, actually oversupplies, its State's entire need.

If ethanol must be transported by truck, or tanker, or rail from one part of this country to another, it is far shorter and thus less expensive than importing oil, gasoline, and MTBE from all over the world. Seventy-five percent of California MTBE currently arrives by barge, the majority of it from Saudi Arabia. That is why the price per gallon increases which have been used on this floor defy common sense. And they are wrong.

The alternative to doing nothing with ethanol is doing nothing at all—nothing except increasing our national consumption of gasoline and oil. If world prices remain the same as today, and if world and domestic supplies can reliably satisfy our nation's ever-growing demand, then that "continue the status quo" strategy will continue to be less expensive than a transition to 10 percent or 20 percent or 50 percent ethanol.

But those who live by the sword, die by the sword. Those who want to bet this Nation's entire transportation sector on the status quo continuing indefinitely are taking a big gamble. Anyone who believes the United States can continue to get 25 percent of the world's entire oil production at today's prices are making a hugely optimistic assumption.

Yes. There will likely be an incremental cost to a transition to ethanol nationwide. There is always a short-term cost to diversification. A business that has one produce line incurs a cost to developing a second or a third product. As long as the first product continues to sell, overall profits will be slightly down. But when that product falters, and the others come on line, the company will prosper and grow, rather than decline.

Someone who owns only one stock incurs a short-term cost diversification. But someone who is betting their entire future on that one stock is a foolish person to do so. For the United States to bet our country's entire energy future on uninterrupted consumption of our ever more traditional energy sources is to make a very unwise bet.

We can afford the small incremental costs of transition if they lead to really substantial alternatives. That is what ethanol and biodiesel would do—replace 20 percent of today's diesel fuel over this entire country.

I am a Senator from a corn- and soybean-producing State. Is ethanol production an economic boon to many Minnesota farmers? Yes; it is. I hope it will continue to raise market prices for these agricultural commodities, which will reduce the need for and the amount of taxpayer subsidies. However, I would not stand on the floor of the Senate today and advocate ethanol as an alternative fuel for the entire country if I did not believe—if I were not certain—that it would be good for the entire country.

It will take the decade which this bill uses to increase ethanol production to an amount where it can be used as a consistent 10 percent blend nationwide. That is what Minnesota uses today. That would be 10 percent less oil-based gasoline. And that is twice as much oil alternative as ANWR would produce at that point in time.

It will take another decade to increase ethanol production to replace up to 50 percent of our current gasoline consumption. We should hope we have that long as a nation before a significant increase in the price of gasoline or a lack of supply causes a serious disruption in our economy and in our lives. If, however, at that point in time we are using 50 percent less gasoline, we will have a real alternative fuel at a lower cost and a more reliable supply based right here in the United States.

If we don't undertake this transition, then we will have nothing—nothing that we can do. That is what the amendment that strips this bill of any fuel alternative will leave this country in the future—nothing, no alternative. That is a very bleak future.

Thank you. I yield the floor.

(The remarks of Mr. MCCONNELL and Mrs. FEINSTEIN pertaining to the introduction of S. 2194 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. NELSON of Florida). The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BINGAMAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, may I be recognized as in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Florida.

DRILLING IN ANWR

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I congratulate the Senate for the tremendous vote we had today on basically dispensing with the attempt to amend the bill of the Senator from New Mexico to drill in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. The vote ended up being a lot stronger than a lot of people expected. For us just to talk about the sensitive environment and the drilling is certainly a very important component of the question. But the question is so much more comprehensive. It is a question of when is America going to be energy reliant, and are we going to wean ourselves from our dependence on foreign oil, and how are we going to produce that energy?

As the chairman of the Energy Committee has reminded us many times, the biggest part of our energy consumption is in the transportation sector. And if we don't ever address the enormous consumption of energy in the cars that we drive, then we will remain dependent on all that foreign oil. There is an easy way to do that, and that is to use this beneficence of American ingenuity called technology and apply it to the problem and increase the miles per gallon in our automobiles and SUVs and light trucks, which we can do so well.

Already we have hybrid vehicles that, because of a computer, go back and forth between an electric generation and gasoline generation, and you cannot tell the difference as the driver and the passenger, with all the creature comforts that we enjoy in our automobiles.

So I congratulate the Senate and I congratulate the chairman of the Energy Committee—who now graciously has offered to take the Chair so that I might make these few remarks—for an extraordinary effort. I hope that now he is able to proceed with the energy bill and finally get it passed out of this body.

I also want to take a moment to state, with a sober and heavy heart, what we are facing in the Middle East. From the standpoint of the United States, it is very clear what is in our interest, and that is peace in the Middle East, a cessation of firing, a creation of an environment where the parties can come together.

A week and a half ago I was in Damascus, Syria, and met with the new young President who took over after his father died, President Assad. We said: President Assad, now is the time for leaders outside of the Palestinians and the Israelis to emerge in the area and to realize that it is in your interest that there be peace in the Middle East.

We thanked him for his help and his intelligence network with regard to our efforts in going after the al-Qaida terrorists.

We said: President Assad, you have to go after the groups, such as Hezbollah, that you are offering facilities to, which are also fostering terrorism.

Of course, he rejected that. His point of view was that they were freedom fighters. There is a lot of politics in it.

It will take leaders such as Assad and the leader of Lebanon, with whom I met yesterday, the Prime Minister of Lebanon, Rafiq Hariri, to emerge as leaders in the Arab world and say: We have to change the old ways; we have to do it differently, and violence and killing is not in our interest.

Those Arab leaders are going to have to say vigorously to their colleagues that it is in their interest that they create an environment where they can solve this violent situation in the Middle East and bring the Palestinians and Israelis together. As the Good Book says, "Come let us reason together."

I am very grateful that the Senator took the Chair so I could come to my desk and make these remarks.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. NELSON of Florida). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we are waiting, as I have indicated, for Senator MURKOWSKI. As I indicated an hour or so ago, he had to go to a funeral in Arlington. We are going to hopefully agree on bringing up an amendment he has dealing with Iraq. That will probably take about 45 minutes, and then we will move to the border security matter. So those Senators wishing to speak in morning business, the time may be limited today.

We certainly have time for Senator CORZINE to speak for up to 10 minutes. I ask unanimous consent that Senator CORZINE be allowed to speak for up to 10 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New Jersey.

SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUND, THE SECURITY AMERICANS NEED

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, today I rise to speak out on a subject that is both timely and extremely important to the American people. A few hours ago, the House of Representatives, showing an unimaginable indifference to the retirement security of American families, and further undermining the integrity of the Social Security trust fund, made permanent the tax cuts that were enacted last year.

The bill they passed really frames a stark choice for the American people:

Do we take payroll tax revenues that working people, working Americans, thought were being dedicated to the Social Security trust fund and use them instead to pay for this huge new tax cut, a tax cut that really goes to the wealthiest of Americans or should we be using Social Security revenues, payroll taxes, for their intended use, securing the Social Security trust fund for this and future generations?

It is a pretty fundamental choice. It is pretty starkly laid out by the nature of the tax cut that was endorsed by the House Republicans today. It is a choice that will impact all Americans.

I believe if Americans were asked, they might come up with a different answer. I think they would choose security, Social Security, not tax breaks that would take the security out of Social Security.

I want to give one perspective. The tax cut that was implemented today in the House is about $400 billion more in the next decade, and 60 percent of that upcoming tax cut goes to those with incomes over $500,000. That is hard to believe. Of the additional $400 billion, 60 percent is going to people with incomes over $500,000. I have a hard time understanding why we are taking payroll taxes and the Social Security trust fund to fund that kind of tax cut.

The effort to make that tax cut permanent is not only misallocating resources, but in my view it is draining the resources that are badly needed to protect Social Security in the years ahead for those millions of baby boomers who will be retiring in the coming decades. It is really quite substantial.

Right now, Social Security has about 46 million folks retired. In another 20 years, that will be 72 million. So it is a big change in the population. That is what the demographic bubble is all about. How are we going to pay for it if we are going to implement tax cuts that are going to take as much as $4 trillion away from the ability of the American public to have revenues to pay for Social Security in the years ahead in the second 10 years? It is hard for me to understand.

More importantly, I want to consider two numbers. The 75-year cost of the tax cut is $8.7 trillion. That is a lot of money. It will take awhile to count that far. By contrast, the shortfall in the funding to maintain the currently guaranteed benefits for Social Security beneficiaries, of all generations over the next 75 years, is only $3.7 trillion. So we have more than two times coverage by the tax cut that was implemented. If it were to be followed in the way the House did it, we would be giving up those revenues to cover the needs of Social Security. I do not get it. We have the resources, if we have the will, to make sure that Social Security is there for each and every generation.

So that is part of the trouble. Unfortunately, these drains on Social Security revenues that are caused by this tax cut are step 1 in the administration's plan to undermine the security of Social Security. Step 2 is to privatize that program; that is, taking $1 trillion out of the trust fund—it is actually a little more than $1 trillion, but for round numbers, and it is a big number—in the next decade so we can provide funding for these private accounts. That is going to lead to a dramatic cut in benefits which are absolutely necessary.

If one has any doubt about it, they just have to look at the report released by the President's Commission on Social Security. They talk about it themselves. That, when it gets translated into individual lives, as we move to the next chart, will reduce benefits for a 30-year-old about 20 percent when they retire in about 2032.

For those who are a little younger than that, it will be almost 45 percent by 2075, a cut in Social Security benefits, 20 percent for 30-year-olds, 25 percent for people who are starting in the workplace, and about 45 percent for younger Americans.

If one thinks Social Security benefits are lavish, I think we all have another review to go through. That 25- to 45-percent cut, that goes against benefits that average about $10,000 a year for most Social Security beneficiaries. For most seniors, Social Security is their only source of income, about two-thirds of them. I do not know what happens in Florida, but in my State of New Jersey $10,000 is not a princely sum. It is not going to allow our seniors to have a tremendously flush lifestyle.

To the President's commission, that $10,000 looks like too much because they are instituting a program that, in fact, will undermine the ability to maintain those guaranteed benefits at that level. I think that is hard to believe as well. That is step 2.

They do not want us to have the ability to maintain those guaranteed benefits. What they want to do is have that tax cut that I talked about before.

So I have to say that both for myself and for my colleagues, most of us on this side of the aisle, we have a different view about protecting Social Security. We think protecting the security of working American families must be our top priority. We are going to fight long and hard and steady to make sure Social Security is not undermined—not today, as was done through the passage of this tax bill in the House, not tomorrow, or in the years ahead, not ever.

Today's choice that was put in front of us is whether Social Security is really about the security of all Americans in their retirement years. I do not think we should be taking the term "security" out of Social Security. We ought to stand firm with it. That is what this debate will be about as we go forward day after day.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Nebraska be recognized for 10 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nebraska.

RENEWABLE FUELS STANDARD

Mr. NELSON. Mr. President, perhaps no issue related to the energy debate in the Senate has suffered more as a result of misinformation than the renewable fuels standard agreement. This historic agreement was arrived at after years of careful and considerate negotiation from all sectors of interest; environmentalists, farmers, oil industry representatives, and politicians included.

Simply stated, it directs the gradual increased production and integration of ethanol and other biofuels—renewable fuel sources—into the U.S. fuel supply. The increase in available alternative fuels such as ethanol and biodiesel are sure to result in a cleaner environment, an ease on supply, and a reduction on the U.S. dependence on foreign oil—a national security imperative.

Opponents of the renewable fuels standard have raised the specter of an increase in gas prices as a result of increased ethanol production. Some claim that motorists could pay as much as 4 to 9 cents extra per gallon. However, in parts of the Nation where ethanol constitutes a significant share of the market, over the past 10 years, there has been essentially no difference in price between ethanol and nonethanol gasoline.

According to a consulting firm working for the Oxygenated Fuels Association, whose members produce and market MTBE, 70 percent of which is imported—the defeat of the RFS will keep the MTBE market alive—it is 4 to 9.75 cents per gallon. According to the Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration it is 5 to less than 1 cent per gallon. The marketplace reality is: 20 years' experience in Nebraska—$.01 less than ethanol-free gasoline at the pump; 10 years' experience in Minnesota—$.08 less than gasoline at the wholesale level; 1.5 years' experience in California—no essential difference to the public; and 10 years' experience nationwide—no essential difference to the public.

The question is which numbers do you believe. Furthermore, the availability of ethanol blends has been shown to drive down the price of all gasoline as a result of market forces.

Another false argument against ethanol's we've heard is that producing ethanol consumes nearly as much non-renewable oil as the ethanol replaces. The latest U.S. Department of Agriculture report demonstrates that ethanol production has a positive energy balance of 1:1.34 and only 17 percent of that energy comes from fossil oil. The bulk of the energy used in fertilizing the crops and to power ethanol production plants comes from natural gas or coal. Additionally, with farmers using more ethanol and biodiesel in their vehicles, and the advance of biorefineries using cellulosic biomass including agricultural and forestry crops and residues, as well as other biomass and animal waste with disposal problems, the use of fossil fuels to produce biofuels could approach zero.

Where opponents really miss the point is in their failure to recognize the threat posed to America's national, energy, and economic security by our dangerous dependence on oil imports. In 1999, America was importing over 55 percent of its oil and petroleum products. Just 2 years later, our dependency increased to over 59 percent—and part of those supplies are in jeopardy because of the unpredictability of Saddam Hussein and political instability in other oil-producing nations.

Failure to provide an adequate market for ethanol is a major factor in preventing the emergence of biofuels made from cellulosic biomass. The renewable fuels standard is critical to advance biorefinery technology that will produce urgently needed refined, domestic, renewable, and clean burning biofuels. The biorefineries, very small compared to oil refineries, will be well disbursed throughout the country and much less prone to terrorists' attacks.

Opponents wail about a monopoly in the ethanol industry and that only a small group of producers will benefit from the renewable fuels standard. This is inaccurate on two fronts.

Essentially all the ethanol and biodiesel plants under construction and in planning phases are smaller plants owned by cooperatives and community enterprises. More importantly, the RFS will provide the impetus to launch the construction of biorefineries across the Nation.

Some perceive the RFS as a targeted massive Federal Government subsidy to benefit only farm belt States. In fact, the renewable fuels standard will encourage technology advancements that could be located and employed in any region of the United States, not just the "corn states." It will enhance the Nation's economy, surely in agriculture-based economies, but also through support industries, new jobs, research and development, and opening new markets for agriculture products.

This may displays existing ethanol plants, plants under construction and ethanol, biodiesel, and other biofuels plants under consideration. As you can see, with the renewable fuels standard, biorefineries will soon be operating in most State of the Nation.

There is no question that the renewable fuels standard will reduce our dependence on foreign oil. It will slow the deterioration of the environment through the reduction of fossil fuel emission and spills, enhance national, energy and economic security, create a new industrial base with tens of thousands of new, high quality jobs, and strengthen homeland security by providing hundreds, perhaps thousands, of community-oriented biorefineries producing biofuels, biochemicals, and bioelectricity.

There are those who believe that ethanol's current tax incentives are sufficient, and obviate the need for the renewable fuels standard calling for an expanding market for biofuels. For the past 10 years the price of ethanol was generally below the price of 87 octane at both the wholesale and the retail levels. At current capacity, there is a surplus of ethanol driving wholesale price of ethanol well below the wholesale price of gasoline.

On April 11 of this year, the wholesale price of gasoline in New York was 84 cents while the national average cost of wholesale ethanol was 55 cents. If ethanol was available in New York City gasoline today, the price to the consumer should be considerably less than ethanol-free gasoline. I say should because the ethanol industry is always at the pricing mercy of the gasoline marketers. Routinely, the octane value of the ethanol accrues to the gasoline industry not to the ethanol producers. Again, historically, the availability of ethanol in the marketplace drives down the cost of all gasoline because of market forces.

According to the Society of Independent Gasoline Marketers of America,

The federal benefits afforded ethanol-blended fuels have been an important, pro-competitive influence on the nation's gasoline markets. By enhancing the ability of independent marketers to price compete with their integrated oil company competitors, this program has increased independent marketers' economic viability and reduced consumers' costs of gasoline.

Then there is the issue of the overall cost of the ethanol industry. Opponents claim that the cost of the program exceeds the benefits. This is refuted by a recent study: the Economic Analysis of Legislation for a Renewable Fuels Requirement for Highway Motor Fuels, conducted by AUS Consultants.

It will displace 1.6 billion barrels of oil over the next decade; reduce our trade deficit by $34.1 billion; increase new investment in rural communities by more than $5.3 billion; boost the demand for feed grains and soybeans by more than 1.5 billion bushels over the next decade; create more than 214,000 new jobs throughout the U.S. economy; and expand household income by an additional $51.7 billion over the next decade.

The RFS in this bill represents a continuation of sound public policy supporting the biofuels industry that has brought benefits to the Nation over the past quarter a century.

Two States are showing us the way—Minnesota and Nebraska. We can also look to the major advances being made in Europe and Brazil.

I am unabashedly proud of what my home State has accomplished. The formation of the National Governors' Ethanol Coalition was one of the important steps. Nebraska and several other Midwestern States created this coalition that now consists of 26 States and one U.S. territory, as well as Brazil, Canada, Mexico, and Sweden. Since its formation in 1991, the Governors' Ethanol Coalition has worked to expand national and international markets for biofuels. American firms are working with India, Thailand, Colombia, and other countries to help them establish biofuels industries.

Within the State of Nebraska, during the period from 1991–2001, seven ethanol plants were constructed and several of these facilities were expanded more than once during the decade. Specific benefits of the ethanol program in Nebraska include:

$1.15 billion in new capital investment in ethanol processing plants.

1,005 permanent jobs at the ethanol facilities and 5,115 induced jobs directly related to plant construction, operation, and maintenance. Average salaries at the ethanol processing facilities range from $38,000–$56,000 depending on geographic location. The permanent jobs generate an annual payroll of $44 million.

More than 210 million bushels of corn and grain sorghum is processed at the plants annually. Economists at Purdue University and the USDA estimate that the price of corn increases from 9.9 cents–10 cents per bushel for every 100 million bushels of new demand. Local price basis increases in Nebraska range from 5–15 cents.

The trend of marketing wet distillers grains for cattle feeding generates at least $41 million in increased economic activity annually according to a 1999 report by the University of Nebraska. Of the $41 million increase, 85 percent accrues to cattle feeders in the form of reduced costs and increased gains, and 15 percent accrues to the plants.

Local tax bases are more diversified in areas where plants are located. Several smaller communities have experienced increases in housing construction and new business start-ups associated with services related to plant operations.

Jobs among the skilled trades have increased. Pipe fitters, steamfitters, steel workers, and construction engineering trades are involved in plant construction.

Value is added to grain processed at ethanol plants. Today, a $2.00 bushel of corn is processed into products worth at least $5.00. Gasoline purchased from refineries outside Nebraska is displaced by ethanol produced in the State, thereby retaining energy dollars in the local economy.

These economic benefits have increased each year during the past decade due to plant expansion, employment increases, and additional capital investment.

If each State followed the Minnesota and Nebraska models, which are different in several respects, and produced 10 percent of its own domestic, renewable fuels, America will have turned the corner and that noose of oil-import dependency and climate change will begin to loosen.

I know there is doubt among my colleagues from States without farm crops about the ability to provide the needed starch, sugar, or oil seed crops to produce biofuels and other biorefinery products. There are more than adequate supplies of cellulosic biomass in each State to meet the 10 percent goal: agricultural and forestry crops and residues; rights-of-way, parks, yard and garden trimmings; and the clean portion of the biomass fraction of our municipal waste.

A major resource commitment is needed in this country to ensure that, 10 years from now, we have established the commercial technology base to produce many billions of gallons per year of renewable fuels, in dispersed and decentralized installations around the nation. The feedstocks must be diversified with the end uses ranging from gasoline to diesel to aviation fuels. We also need to quantify the "externality costs" of our current imported oil dependence, in order to ensure we are not paying those costs 10 years from now.

Over the past few days, we have learned that we cannot drill our way out of our dangerous oil dependency. We have decided to support a renewable energy portfolio standard that will increase our use of renewable resources like solar, wind, geothermal, hydro, and biomass to produce electricity.

We sue very little oil to produce electricity. We use oil to power our transportation sector. That is where we are most vulnerable.

The renewable fuels standard is absolutely necessary in order to expand the biofuels industry into the use of cellulosic biomass, which is in great abundance throughout the United States.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, Senator MURKOWSKI is present. As I indicated, he was obligated to attend a funeral this afternoon. We have a unanimous consent request we would like to offer. I want to make sure it is cleared on the other side. Until we get that done, what I ask is Senator STABENOW be recognized as in morning business for 10 minutes, and then the Senator from Missouri, Mrs. CARNAHAN, be recognized as in morning business for 6 minutes. Then we will proceed to offering the unanimous consent agreement with Senator MURKOWSKI.

As I indicated earlier, what we will do is ask that there be 60 minutes equally divided and a vote, so there will be a vote at about 5:15 today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Michigan.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG COSTS

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity to speak to my colleagues today about an incredibly important issue, and that is the question of the rising costs of health care, particularly as it relates to the cost of prescription drugs. I think the headline in this week's Washington Post column by David Broder said it all: Our health care system is in a "death cycle."

The greatest country in the world, the most extensive health care system in the world, most sophisticated system, and we have a respected columnist saying it is in a death cycle. I suggest one of the major reasons for this is the uncontrollable cost of prescription drugs in this country.

There is something wrong when we are involved as taxpayers, as Americans, in funding research for prescription drugs—which I support—providing tax credits for research and development for the companies to be able to do incredibly important, lifesaving research. Yet we in the United States of America pay the highest prices of anyone in the world. That is not an exaggeration—higher than anyone in the world.

If you are uninsured—and particularly for our seniors who may use 18 different medications in a year; that is the average—if you are uninsured, if you are someone walking in and paying retail, you pay the most of anyone anywhere in the United States and the world.

This is extremely troubling. We are not talking about buying something that is optional; we are talking about lifesaving medications. Whether I am talking to my hospital administrators or the Big Three auto companies or small businesses or senior citizens or a family with a disabled child or anyone who is involved in purchasing prescription drugs, I hear the same thing over and over: We have a system that is broken. It is broken. We have to fix it.

I am here today asking my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to join with us in that sense of urgency about fixing this problem.

Whenever we talk about costs, we hear from the companies that in order to lower costs we will lose valuable research. None of us wants to lose research. We support that. We support funding research. We will do that again this year. But the facts do not show us that we have to suffer and lose research in order to lower costs.

We know that among the largest companies, on average, they spend twice as much on advertising and promotion as they do on research. We also know in an average year there will be about 88,000 people working to promote and to advertise prescription drugs and on average 48,000 people involved in research. There are 88,000 people involved in promoting and advertising, 48,000 involved in research.

I think every American knows, just by turning on the television set, that we have seen an explosion in advertising. Unfortunately, what has happened is we have seen that explosion in advertising causing an explosion in our costs of 18 percent to 20 percent a year.

Something is wrong when there are almost twice as many people involved in promoting a drug and advertising a drug as there are people researching new medications. There is also something wrong when we can go across the bridge or through the tunnel to Canada—Mr. President, that is 5 minutes in Michigan. We can go across the bridge and we can cut our costs in half for American-made, FDA-approved medications.

I have twice taken a group of seniors across the border, going through the Canadian medical society, and then going into the Canadian pharmacies. We have seen dramatic results. I will just share a couple.

In Michigan, Zocor, a drug to reduce cholesterol, costs $109.73 for 50 5-milligram tablets. In Canada, the exact same prescription costs $46.17—$109.73 and $46.17. Since we as taxpayers in the United States have helped to subsidize the research—which I support doing—I also want to see us get a price break for the tax dollars that are helping to do this.

I also know that tamoxifen, a breast-cancer-treating drug, is available for about $136 in Michigan. When we went to Canada, with breast cancer patients, they got it for $15. There is something wrong with the laws that say our people cannot freely go back and forth—our hospitals, our businesses—and get those lower costs.

There is something wrong with a system where small businesses are seeing 25, 30, 35 percent or more increases in their health care premiums. I have had small business people come to me saying they will have to drop their insurance because they cannot afford the premium increases. The majority of that is the cost of prescription drugs.

We have a lot of work to do. There is something wrong in a country as blessed and as wealthy as the United States when there are seniors who got up this morning, sat at the kitchen table, and said: Do I eat today or do I take my medicine? Do I pay the electric bill or do I take my medicine?

We can do better than that. We have an obligation to do better than that. I believe one piece of that is Medicare coverage and updating our Medicare system to cover prescription drugs. But I believe it is also much more than that. I believe it is making generics available once the patent has run its course and finding ways to make sure those laws are enforced and not undermined. It is making sure that research is done, and we reward and help fund that, and invest in that more than we are investing in advertising. It is making sure our business community can afford premiums, that we have competition across the border, making sure we are able to provide prescriptions at the lowest possible cost while still allowing important research to happen and our pharmaceutical industry to thrive.

I believe we can do all of that if we have a focus on the right values and priorities when it comes to this debate.

I simply say it is now time for a sense of urgency. If a child in our family is sick or if we have a parent who needs lifesaving medication and can't afford it, if we have someone in our family who needs an operation, we feel a sense of urgency. We feel a sense of urgency if someone needs nursing home care or if someone needs some other kind of health care.

We need that same kind of sense of urgency when it comes to public policy on health care.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join with us in the coming weeks to lower the fastest growing part of that health care dollar; that is, the cost of prescription drugs and lifesaving medication.

We can do better than we are doing for our seniors and our families. We can do better than we are doing for the business community. We can do better than we are doing for everybody in our country if we are willing to get to work. I hope we are going to do that.

I yield the floor.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senator from Missouri completes her statement, Senator MURKOWSKI be recognized to offer his Iraqi oil import amendment; that there be 60 minutes for debate prior to the vote in relation to the amendment with the time equally divided and controlled in the usual form; that there be no intervening amendment in order prior to the vote in relationship to the Murkowski amendment; that upon the use or yielding back of the time without further intervening action or debate the Senate proceed to vote in relation to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order to ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CORZINE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

LEAVE NO CHILD BEHIND ACT

Mrs. CARNAHAN. Mr. President, last year, Democrats and Republicans joined together with President Bush to enact a monumental and far-reaching education bill.

This new law, the Leave No Child Behind Act, will bring new resources and meaningful reform to our Nation's schools.

It establishes new academic standards for students, increases teacher training, and demands new levels of accountability, while increasing flexibility with Federal funds at the State and local level.

I am hopeful that this law will help close the achievement gaps that separate many poor and minority students from their peers.

Indeed, I am optimistic that it will improve education for all students.

But Congress has, as Harry Truman once said, some "unfinished business" when it comes to our schools.

We have left out a critical component when it comes to ensuring that our schools and our teachers and, most importantly, our students will succeed.

Today, one in five schools fails to meet building or safety codes or needs extensive repairs, renovations, and maintenance.

Across the country, run-down, overcrowded, dilapidated schools jeopardize the health and safety of our students.

Across the country, deteriorating schools inhibit the ability of our children to learn.

And yet, with the exception of the Impact Aid program, which I strongly support, the new education reform law did not include funds for school renovation and repair.

Nor were any funds for renovation and repair made available through the appropriations process.

The administration's most recent budget even eliminates the Emergency School Repair Program.

And yet, data from the National Center for Education Statistics tells us that nearly $127 billion in renovations and repairs are needed to upgrade existing schools to good physical condition.

Furthermore, this figure does not include the funding needed for construction to accommodate increasing enrollments in districts across the country.

We have these pressing needs at a time when resources are scarce. Our States and local governments are still feeling the effects of the recession.

And for too many years, Congress has failed to provide States and localities the funding it promised long ago to share the cost of special education.

The Federal Government cannot ask States and localities to shoulder the burden of school renovation and repair costs alone.

If the Federal Government stands on the sidelines, it will be at the expense of our children.

But neither should Washington attempt to single-handedly solve this problem. Congress should not be in the business of giving direct grants to communities to build schools.

I strongly believe that education is a national priority but a local responsibility.

The legislation being introduced today, the "Investing for Tomorrow's Schools Act," answers this call for partnership.

Our bill provides initial funding for the creation of State and regional infrastructure banks. These banks will make loans to districts for school construction or modernization needs.

This mechanism helps to alleviate the financial burden for States and localities but provides sufficient flexibility to meet local needs.

The structure of the bill ensures that states and localities have the requisite flexibility to tailor programs to meet their unique needs.

The bill requires a 25 percent State match, which ensures the commitment of State government to the program while allowing States to leverage their dollars four-to-one.

It is a voluntary program—only for those states who choose to participate.

To those who have argued that the Federal Government should have no role in school facilities, and likewise to those who call for overly intrusive Federal programs, this bill offers a common-sense compromise.

I remember visiting a school in Nixa, MO, where every fourth-grader in the district attends class in trailers behind the school.

I have subsequently learned from teachers and administrators in other districts that the kids in trailers often have the best deal because conditions in the actual school buildings are often far worse than they are in the trailers.

Every State in this country has districts in need, in both urban and rural and suburban communities. The needs span the social economic strata of our Nation.

Disadvantaged and minority students are most likely to attend school in decrepit and obsolete buildings.

I would imagine that we have all seen schools that are either freezing cold or unbearably hot, that have poor lighting or inadequate bathroom facilities.

But students in more affluent suburbs—where there is often explosive growth in the community—also suffer from overcrowding.

Most parents would agree that they would like their children to attend schools where the student to teacher ratio is low, where class size is small.

Yet, without enough space, small class size is an impossibility.

And despite these conditions, we are asking our children for more than ever before.

A fellow Missourian, Mark Twain, once told the following story:

When I was a boy on the Mississippi River there was a proposition in a township there to discontinue public schools because they were too expensive. An old farmer spoke up and said, "If they stopped building the schools they would not save anything, because every time a school was closed a jail had to be built."

I have great faith in America's children. The time to invest in them is now. The investments we make in them will be returned to us many times over.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, for the interest of Senators, I have been in consultation with the distinguished Republican leader throughout the day. We are momentarily going to propound a unanimous consent request which would do several things.

First of all, it would accommodate Senator MURKOWSKI and his desire to bring up an amendment on the energy bill relating to Iraq.

We would then move to complete our work on the border security bill. There would be a number of amendments offered by Senator BYRD. Once those amendments have been disposed of, it would be our intention to then go to final passage. Then, prior to the end of the day, we would also take up a judicial nomination that has been on the calendar.

We would, throughout this period, have further discussions about our schedule for the remainder of the week—tomorrow—and early next week, as we attempt to bring some final closure to the energy bill.

So that is the current schedule. It is my expectation we will get this request which would allow us to complete our work on border security today. Senators should be forewarned there will be additional votes, probably several additional votes, yet today on the border security bill, I assume on the Murkowski amendment, as well as on the judicial nomination.

So that is the current plan. Just as soon as we have cleared it a final time with our Republican colleagues, I will propound this unanimous consent request. Until that time, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—H.R. 3525

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that upon disposition of the Murkowski amendment relating to Iraqi oil, the Senate resume consideration of H.R. 3525, the border security bill, and that it be considered under the following limitations: that there be 30 minutes of debate on the bill, with the time equally divided and controlled between Senators KENNEDY, BROWNBAC, FEINSTEIN, and KYL, or their designees; that the amendments listed in this agreement be the only amendments in order; that any debate time be equally divided and controlled in the usual form; that upon disposition of all amendments, the bill be read a third time and the Senate proceed to vote on final passage of the bill, without further intervening action or debate: Kennedy-Brownback-Feinstein-Kyl managers' amendment, 20 minutes for debate; that debate on the following Byrd relevant amendments be limited to 20 minutes each: Byrd amendment regarding review of educational institutions' compliance provisions, Byrd amendment regarding penalty increase for manifest noncompliance, Byrd amendment with regard to change of deadlines for implementation of biometrics, and Byrd amendment regarding tightening requirements for participation in the visa waiver program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I thank my colleagues for their cooperation.

Under this order, the Murkowski amendment relating to Iraqi oil is now the pending order of business. I encourage Senators, if they want to be heard on the amendment, to come to the Chamber.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3159 TO AMENDMENT NO. 2917

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Alaska [Mr. MURKOWSKI] proposes an amendment numbered 3159 to amendment No. 2917.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To make the United States' energy policy toward Iraq consistent with the national security policies of the United States)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

TITLE—IRAQ OIL IMPORT RESTRICTION SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND FINDINGS.

(a) This Title can be cited as the 'Iraq Petroleum Import Restriction Act of 2001.'

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the government of the Republic of Iraq:

(A) has failed to comply with the terms of United Nations Security Council Resolution 686 regarding unconditional Iraqi acceptance of the destruction, removal, or rendering harmless, under international supervision, of all nuclear, chemical and biological weapons and all stocks of agents and all related subsystems and components and all research, development, support and manufacturing facilities, as well as all ballistic missiles with a range greater than 150 kilometers and related major parts, and repair and production facilities and has failed to allow United Nations inspectors access to sites used for the production or storage of weapons of mass destruction.

(B) routinely contravenes the terms and conditions of UNSC Resolution 661, authorizing the export of petroleum products from Iraq in exchange for food, medicine and other humanitarian products by conducting a routine and extensive program to sell such products outside of the channels established by UNSC Resolution 661 in exchange for military equipment and materials to be used in pursuit of its program to develop weapons of mass destruction in order to threaten the United States and its allies in the Persian Gulf and surrounding regions.

(C) has failed to adequately draw down upon the amounts received in the Escrow Account established by UNSC Resolution 661 to purchase food, medicine and other humanitarian products required by its citizens, resulting in massive humanitarian suffering by the Iraqi people.

(D) conducts a periodic and systematic campaign to harass and obstruct the enforcement of the United States and United Kingdom-enforced "No-Fly Zones" in effect in the Republic of Iraq.

(E) routinely manipulates the petroleum export production volumes permitted under UNSC Resolution 661 in order to create uncertainty in global energy markets, and therefore threatens the economic security of the United States.

(F) pays bounties to the families of suicide bombers in order to encourage the murder of Israeli civilians.

(2) Further imports of petroleum products from the Republic of Iraq are inconsistent with the national security and foreign policy interests of the United States and should be eliminated until such time as they are not so inconsistent.

SEC. 2. PROHIBITION ON IRAQI-ORIGIN PETROLEUM IMPORTS.

The direct or indirect import from Iraq of Iraqi-origin petroleum and petroleum products is prohibited, notwithstanding an authorization by the Committee established by UNSC Resolution 661 or its designee, or any other order to the contrary.

SEC. 3. TERMINATION/PRESIDENTIAL CERTIFICATION.

This Title will remain in effect until such time as the President, after consultation with the relevant committees in Congress, certifies to the Congress that:

(a) (1) Iraq is in substantial compliance with the terms of

(A) UNSC Resolution 687 and

(B) UNSC Resolution 986 prohibiting smuggling of oil in circumvention of the "Oil-for-Food" program; and

(2) ceases the practice of compensating the families of suicide bombers in order to encourage the murder of Israeli citizens; or that

(b) resuming the importation of Iraqi-origin petroleum and petroleum products would not be inconsistent with the national security and foreign policy interests of the United States.

SEC. 4. HUMANITARIAN INTERESTS.

It is the sense of the Senate that the President should make all appropriate efforts to ensure that the humanitarian needs of the Iraqi people are not negatively affected by this Act, and should encourage through public, private, domestic and international means the direct or indirect sale, donation or other transfer to appropriate non-governmental health and humanitarian organizations and individuals within Iraq of food, medicine and other humanitarian products.

SEC. 5. DEFINITIONS.

(A) "661 committee." The term 661 Committee means the Security Council Committee established by UNSC Resolution 661, and persons acting for or on behalf of the Committee under its specific delegation of authority for the relevant matter or category of activity, including the overseers appointed by the UN Secretary-General to examine and approve agreements for purchases of petroleum and petroleum products from the Government of Iraq pursuant to UNSC Resolution 986.

(b) "UNSC Resolution 661." The term UNSC Resolution 661 means United Nations Security Council Resolution No. 661, adopted August 6, 1990, prohibiting certain transactions with respect to Iraq and Kuwait.

(c) "UNSC Resolution 687." The term UNSC Resolution 986 means United Nations Security Council Resolution 687, adopted April 3, 1991.

(d) "UNSC Resolution 986." The term UNSC Resolution 986 means United Nations Security Council Resolution 986, adopted April 14, 1995.

SEC. 6. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The prohibition on importation of Iraqi origin petroleum and petroleum products shall be effective 30 days after enactment of this Act.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, earlier this month Saddam Hussein indicated that he was terminating oil production for 30 days. That would terminate oil from Iraq to the United States.

I have a chart in the Chamber that shows currently the oil that we are receiving from Iraq. This chart shows the historic trend of crude oil imports from Iraq to the United States. In January, it was about 294,000 barrels. In June, it went up to 973,000 barrels.

One of the extraordinary things occurred in September. In September, it was at a high of almost 1.2 million barrels. Lest we forget, during September we had a terrorist attack in New York, in Washington, DC, and the downing of the aircraft in Pennsylvania.

What does this have to do with Iraq? Well, we have known for some time that Saddam Hussein has been fostering and supporting terrorist activities. And to give you some idea, let me show you this little replica of an acknowledged statement from his Government relative to providing funding to the Palestinian suicide bombers. There is a check for $25,000. Previous to this, he was providing payments of up to $10,000. With an incentive of $25,000, God only knows to what extent terrorist activities will continue.

Yet as we look at the United States and the trends we have seen in oil imports, as the Mideast crisis worsens, we see the price of oil rise.

We also have another chart. We have seen this oil come into the United States. People probably don't really know from where their oil comes. Probably most of them don't care. It comes in to identified areas of New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, California, and Washington.

The irony here is obvious, if we go back to 1992 and look at the desolation associated with the burning of the oilfields in Kuwait. Recognize that we are now importing or have been importing about 1 million barrels of oil a day from Iraq. Then with the notice by the Government of Iraq that they are going to terminate production, clearly one has to wonder if it is in the principal interest of the United States to rely on this source.

Earlier in the day, we voted on the issue of ANWR. It was a cloture motion. We did not obtain 60 votes. So far on the energy bill, it is fair to say that the only increase in domestic production identified was associated with ANWR. Perhaps it is ironic that Saddam Hussein should terminate production. But I think it is appropriate, from a principle point of view, that the United States, by formal action, end our imports from Iraq until a couple of things happen.

One is that the United Nations certifies that Iraq has complied with the Security Council resolution No. 687 and has dismantled their programs to develop and construct weapons of mass destruction; and that Iraq cease to smuggle oil in contravention of Security Council resolution No. 986; and finally, Iraq no longer pays bounties to the families of suicide bombers wreaking havoc in Israel.

I recognize the Iraqi oil program is intended to be used for the benefit of the Iraqi people. But that is not the case. My amendment also seeks to ensure that the President use every means available to support humanitarian needs of the Iraqi people, notwithstanding the ban on oil imports.

Most Members consider themselves internationalists. I believe firmly in the importance of engagement with other countries, particularly economic engagement. I am a strong believer in free trade and have worked with many of my colleagues to reform economic sanctions and policies. However, it is time to draw the line on economic engagement when national security is compromised.

Our increasing dependence on unstable overseas sources of oil is compromising our national security. We have seen Saddam Hussein last week urge fellow Arab OPEC members to use oil as a weapon. We have seen what an aircraft can do as a weapon. Saddam Hussein did that by imposing this 30-day embargo of oil exports to the United States until the United States forced Israel to cave in to the demands of the Palestinian extremists.

In 1973, the Arab League used oil as a weapon during a time of similar crisis in the Mideast. At that time, the United States was 37-percent dependent on imported oil. Still the Arab oil embargo demonstrates how powerful a weapon oil can be. And the United States was brought to its knees. Several of us remember during that time of the Yom Kippur War, there were gas lines around the block. The public was blaming everybody for the inconvenience, including Government.

During that particular timeframe, however, the TransAlaska Pipeline was completed. Oil began to flow. And within a few years, 25 percent of our domestic oil production came from Prudhoe Bay. As a consequence, imports dropped dramatically. But that was then and this is now. Times change. On the other hand, how much they stay the same.

Nearly 30 years after the Arab oil embargo, we are faced with a similar threat that we faced in 1973, but there is a difference. The difference is now we are 58-percent dependent on imported oil. Back in 1973, we were 37 percent. The stakes are higher. The national security implications are more evident. One wonders what we have learned. From the vote earlier today, I wonder that, too.

Before us is the reality that Saddam Hussein has called on his Arab neighbors to use oil as a weapon and begin a 30-day moratorium on exports. The United States was importing over 1 million barrels of oil from Iraq.

As we look at the situation in the Mideast today, our Secretary of State, having made every effort to bring the parties together, understanding withdrawal, whatever it took, and the appearance at least that Egypt has refused to meet with our Secretary of State, Mubarak, what that means, I guess one could look between the pages of history and come up with some kind of an evaluation. Things certainly are better but they might get worse.

Reality dictates if you filled up your tank, chances are at least a half a gallon of the gasoline in your tank originally came from Iraq. Think about that. This is the same guy who pays bounties on suicide bombers of $25,000, who fires at our sons and daughters flying missions in the no-fly zones in Iraq, who has used chemical weapons on his own people, who has boasted that he has the weapons to scorch half of Israel.

But when you innocently filled up your tank, you paid Saddam Hussein perhaps a nickel of every dollar you spent at the pump that day. You contributed to some extent to the suicide bombings. You bought shells targeted at American forces. You paid for chemical and biological weapons being developed in Iraq which are targeted at Israel and those Iraqis who would challenge Saddam Hussein.

Haven't we learned our lesson before? I was looking around the house the other night. I ran across a Life magazine from March 1991. In a profile of the gulf war, they wrote of Saddam:

When he finally fought his way to power in 1979, after an apprenticeship of a few years as a torturer, his first order was the execution of some 20 of his highest-ranking government officials, including one of his best friends. He likes to say "He who is closest to me is farthest from when he does wrong." He grew up in dirt to live in splendor. . . . He is cheerless. And he currently possesses Kuwait.

This article can be used as a reminder of the costly mistakes of not dealing with him. It is more or less a play-by-play review of the gulf war that we are in now but new names and a new era from 2002 could just as easily be inserted into the article. These lessons must not be lost. We recognize he is our enemy. The world must isolate him, cut him off and coax his regime to an early death.

But we haven't learned our lesson, have we? He is still there because we are still buying his oil. Sure, these purchases are masked in the Oil for Food Program, but is it really working? He is still there.

I know the Oil for Food Program isn't supposed to work this way. Saddam is supposed to use the money from Oil for Food to feed the Iraqi people and buy medicine. But we know he cheats on the program, buying all kinds of questionable materials, and that he smuggles billions of dollars of oil out of Iraq, which directly funds his armies, his weapons programs, and his palaces.

I had an opportunity to be in Baghdad several years ago with a number of Senators. We met with Saddam Hussein. This was just before the gulf war. Regarding the circumstances of that meeting, I won't go into any detail, but they are very interesting. He invited us to lunch and never brought lunch. What we got out of the meeting was the recognition that this was a force to be dealt with.

No matter how you look at it, Mr. President, our purchase of Iraqi oil is absolutely contrary to our national security interests. It is indefensible and must end.

My amendment would do just that; it would end new imports of Iraqi oil until Iraq is proven a responsible member of the international community and complies with the relevant Security Council resolutions.

I began the statement by affirming my support for economic engagement. I believe deeply in the principle of free trade. I do not, however, believe in economic disarmament. When, as is the case with oil, a commodity is not only important to our own economic health but also important to our military's ability to defend the Nation, self-sufficiency is a crucial matter. No country or group of countries should have the ability to ground our aircraft, shut down our tanks, or keep our ships from leaving port. Yet allowing ourselves to become dependent on imports of this nature threatens to do just that.

In the case of Saddam Hussein, we are dependent for some 5 percent of our imports from a sworn and defiant enemy. There he is on that chart. But our reliance on other foreign sources of oil is not risk-free. We have a very uneasy relationship with our friends in the gulf. September 11 clearly demonstrated that our enemies in such staunch allies as Saudi Arabia may outnumber our friends.

We already have some form of economic sanction on every single member of OPEC—a reflection of the uneasy relationship that we have with these nations. So this is risky business relying on countries such as these for our national security.

Some Members have long recognized the folly of importing oil from our enemies—some more than others. But on July 25, we extended sanctions on importing oil from Iran and Libya. We have not imported any oil from those countries for some time because the sanctions were in existence. We didn't initiate sanctions against Iraq. Well, it is time we did.

Does relying on Iraq make more sense than relying on Iran and Libya? I don't think so. I know that many of my colleagues advocate production in less risky parts of the globe, including here in the United States. The trouble is, we have to drill for oil where we are likely to find it. The fact is, the ground under which most of the oil is buried is controlled by unstable, unfriendly, or at-risk governments.

Look at Colombia and the oilfields being developed in the pristine rain forests down there. We get some 350,000 barrels a day from Colombia.

The 408-mile-long Cano Limo pipeline is at the heart of the Colombian oil trade, and it frequently is attacked by FARC rebels. They have declared the pipeline to be a "military target." They are anticapitalist, anti-United States, anti-Colombian Government rebels.

The trouble is, the half of the country these rebels control has the Cano Limo pipeline running through it—a convenient target to cripple the economy, get America's attention, and rally their troops for their cause. Countless attacks have cost some 24 barrels in lost crude production last year and untold environmental damage to the rain forest ecosystem.

Last year, rebels bombed the Cano Limo 170 times, putting it out of commission for 266 days, costing Colombia roughly $500 million in lost revenue.

Our administration wants to spend $98 million to train a brigade of 2,000 Colombian soldiers to protect the pipeline. Now, last week, another rebel faction called American oil companies running the pipeline "military targets."

I wonder if we are truly unfazed about the close connection between oil, money, and national security. Are we willing to turn our heads on the Mideast crisis to finance the schemes of Saddam Hussein? Are we willing to allow our policy choices in the Middle East to be dictated by our thirst for imported oil from this particular source? Are we willing to let our oil be used as a weapon against us?

We should not allow our national security to be compromised. I know some today have dismissed ANWR as a solution. But the relevance here is principle. Our military cannot conduct a campaign associated with dependence on such unreliable sources.

I sympathize with the desire to eliminate the use of fossil fuels. I believe we will get there with continued research and new technologies. I understand the urge to deny the importance of oil in the national security equation. But all of my colleagues will eventually have to look in the mirror after this debate and ask themselves, again, to what extent we are willing to sacrifice our national security in order to appeal to the fantasies associated with the desires of Saddam Hussein.

One of the things I think is testimony to the severity of how we deal with Iraq is the responsibility of the President and Joint Chiefs of Staff, his Cabinet, and others, as we have observed the reality that he is developing weapons of mass destruction. He has a delivery system capable of sending a missile to Israel. But he has been working on a nuclear capability. When is the world going to deal with that? Had we known what was about to occur relative to the tragic events associated with September 11, we would have taken action against Osama bin Laden. Had we only known.

In the case of Saddam Hussein, the exposure is there. The question is, When and how? Buying oil and increasing our dependence on that country is certainly not the answer because we are funding whatever mischief Saddam Hussein is up to. So that is the purpose of this amendment, Mr. President.

I urge my colleagues to think a little bit about the principle involved and join me in support of the amendment. Again, the irony is that he has cut us off for 30 days. The ramifications of that, the future will tell. Will the OPEC nations increase production and make up for the shortfall? They have indicated they might. Will the price of oil likely go up because of the shortage of supply? It is already going up.

Clearly, by an action taken by the Senate to formally terminate imports from that country, we will send him a message, but will somebody else simply take our place and buy Saddam Hussein's oil?

In any event, I think it is appropriate, from a principle point of view, for the United States to terminate its relationship with Iraq, as the amendment proposes, until such time as he commits to abide by the U.N. agreement, which requires that we have inspectors in Iraq to ensure that he is not a threat to the world; further, that he commits to halt any further funding of suicide bombers associated with the terrible activities occurring in Israel and Palestine.

I have no further comments. Seeing no other Senator seeking the floor, I yield back the remaining time on this side, and defer to Senator BINGAMAN.

I believe the yeas and nays have been ordered, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes, they have.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, how much time remains in opposition?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Thirty minutes.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, let me make a few comments with regard to the amendment, and I do not know that I will be in opposition, but I have some concerns I wish to express—and perhaps ask a few questions—I have the amendment in front of me—my understanding of what the amendment is that first of all, it does not in any way prohibit Iraq from exporting oil. I think that is clear. Iraq has made a decision just recently to suspend its exports of oil for 30 days. So that is in place, as I understand it. But this amendment does not prohibit Iraq from exporting oil or does not commit us to any action which would in any way prohibit Iraq from exporting oil.

Second, it does not prohibit us from importing oil from other sources. What it basically says is, we can continue to import whatever the percentage is—50 percent, 56 percent—of our oil needs from the world market. We just cannot import from this source.

Also, it does not really by its language impose a legal prohibition against importing from Iraq. What it says is, as I read it and this is on page 3 of the amendment. It says:

This Act prohibits imports until such time as the President, after consultation with the relevant committees in Congress, certifies to the Congress that resuming the importation of Iraqi-origin petroleum and petroleum products would not be inconsistent with the national security and foreign policy interests of the United States.

Basically, it takes the decision, which has been our national policy, that we would import legally exported Iraqi oil, just as we would import other oil. It says that in order for us to continue with that activity, the President has to give us a certification that it is not inconsistent with our national security or foreign policy interests to do so.

Obviously, our relations with Iraq are a very serious foreign policy issue for our country at this time, and I am persuaded that most Members of the Senate would be very anxious to work in cooperation with the administration and with the President in formulating our policy toward Iraq.

I do not know where the administration stands on this amendment. I do not know if there has been any request for their views on it. I would be anxious to hear from the sponsor of the amendment if he has had a reaction from the administration. We have made some informal inquiries, and we have been unable to get a response from the administration.

I, frankly, think the responsible course would be for us to give the administration a chance to tell us its views. If the President wants this legislation enacted, then obviously that would carry great weight with many Senators. If the President believes this puts him in an awkward position, in that it requires him to issue a certificate to permit continued imports of Iraqi oil, then I think we should know. Obviously, there are many Members of this body who do not want to put the President in an awkward position relative to our relations with Iraq.

I also have concerns about how an amendment such as this could be interpreted in world oil markets. We are very concerned that the price of gasoline has been going up in recent weeks, and we heard a lot about that during the ANWR debate that just concluded. Of course, that is a reflection, to some extent at least, of the rising price of oil on world markets. The price is up around $26 a barrel today, which is substantially higher than it was a few months ago. People are concerned about that.

However, the information I have is that one reason why we import oil from Iraq is that we are able to do so at a discount. Why is Iraq forced to sell its oil at a discount in the world market? Because it is considered by the market to be a somewhat unreliable source for oil, so they are not able to get the premium price that some other producers are able to get. U.S. refiners benefit from that, and U.S. consumers benefit from the fact that we are buying that oil at a discount.

I have an article that I will ask be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD after my statement, from the April 15 edition of the Dallas Morning News. The title of it is: "In Oil, Profit Often Beats Politics." I ask unanimous consent the article be printed in the RECORD after my statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, the key part of this is some comment on the amendment my colleague, Senator MURKOWSKI, is now offering. It says:

Mr. MURKOWSKI wants to ban Iraqi oil imports. We have done this before. Libyan oil was banned. Iranian oil was banned. But oil is a commodity, and import bans make little difference in the global market. Unless all importers join the boycott, the oil will find a buyer.

The main point is pretty clear: If Iraq is going to decide at the end of this 30 days to commence exports again, it will find a buyer for that oil. It will likely continue to sell at a discount in the world market. If we prohibit the importation of that oil into the United States, that is not going to hurt Saddam Hussein. That is not going to hurt Iraq. Iraq will find a buyer for that oil. We will be buying the oil we need from another source, but we will be buying on the world market just as we are today.

As I say, I think there is less here than meets the eye as far as actually trying to impact or strike a blow against Saddam Hussein. I do not see that this amendment does that. I think, if anything, it puts our President in the awkward position of having to send a certificate to the Congress saying that, in his view, we should go ahead and continue to import Iraqi oil.

Maybe that is what the President would like. Maybe that is what the Secretary of State would like. Maybe that is what the Secretary of Energy would like. I have not heard that from any of them, and I think the appropriate course would be for us to solicit their opinion on an important amendment such as this before we adopt it.

My initial reaction to this kind of amendment, and I am sure the initial reaction of most Senators, is: Fine, this is an anti-Saddam Hussein vote. How do you go wrong, how do you lose support in your home State by voting against Saddam Hussein? I would venture to say nobody does.

However, this is a sensitive area of foreign policy and I do not know whether the Foreign Relations Committee has considered anything like this. It might be something they would be interested in looking at. I do not know if Senator BIDEN, who is chairman of that committee, has had a chance to look at this and formulate a position on it.

I do not know that many Senators would want to vote against an amendment of this type, but if it is going to be pushed to a vote, I hope before the vote occurs—and I know it is expected to occur very soon under the unanimous consent agreement—I hope we can get some communication from the White House as to whether or not they support the amendment.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

EXHIBIT 1

[From the Dallas Morning News, Apr. 15, 2002]

IN OIL, PROFIT OFTEN BEATS POLITICS

WASHINGTON.—Gasoline prices climbed 31 cents a gallon in the last eight weeks. Israelis and Palestinians are at war again. Saddam Hussein says Iraq will halt oil production for 30 days to protest. None of this is encouraging, but neither is it a description of an oil crisis. When one spigot closes, another opens. There's 7 million barrels a day of spare production capacity available to make up for Iraq's 1.7 million barrels a day of exports. The 11 members of the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries hold 90 percent of that spare capacity. OPEC has tried since the 1973 Arab oil embargo to convince the world that it is an economic club rather than a political weapon. Saudi Arabia, with 3 million barrels a day of spare capacity, is expected to cover any Iraqi-induced shortage, as it has before.

Gasoline prices have risen rapidly in recent weeks but remain about 10 cents a gallon below last year's levels. Dallas experienced its highest price for unleaded regular on May 12, when the average was $1.66 a gallon. Oil is the most political commodity. It was largely Saudi Arabia's political will to produce more that sent oil prices down after Sept. 11, and Saudi curbs on oil that sent them back up again. The oil workers in Venezuela and Nigeria flexed their political muscles last week in showdowns with their governments that coincided with the agonies of the Middle East.

Nigeria's unrest centered on unpaid oil workers, and quieted quickly.

Venezuelan oil deliveries were disrupted, and the strikers persuaded the military to join them in an abortive coup Friday against Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez. Mr. Chavez returned to office Sunday, 48 hours after being ousted.

Iraq and Venezuela supply a major portion of oil refined in the United States. Venezuela sends half its 2.4 million barrels a day of exports to the United States, both as gasoline and crude oil. More than half of Iraq's exports also land in the United States. Given the enmity between our countries, that seems crazy. But economics beats politics with Iraqi oil, whose price discounts seem irresistible to U.S. refiners.

Republican Sens. Frank Murkowski of Alaska and Larry Craig of Idaho are incensed by Iraq's presence in the market. They say that every time a U.S. motorist fills up, he or she is putting money in the pockets of suicide terrorists. (Iraq has offered $25,000 to their families.)

Mr. Murkowski wants to ban Iraqi oil imports. We have done this before. Libyan oil was banned. Iranian oil was banned. But oil is a commodity, and import bans make little difference in the global market. Unless all the importers join the boycott, the oil will find a buyer.

The same logic applies to export bans. Iraq can quit producing, and Saudi Arabia covers the deficit. Iraq and Venezuela can stumble together, and if the Saudis don't cover it all, prices will rise around the world and tempt other nations to increase their production.

OPEC, in fact, can ill afford to see its oil production used as a political weapon. The U.S. Energy Information Administration expects OPEC production to be down 1.9 million barrels a day this year as the cartel tries to defend a price band. This lures others, particularly the Russians, to fill the gap. Non-OPEC production is expected to increase this year by 1.1 million barrels a day. Because profit has more pull than political kinship, rival producers will rush to capitalize upon a slowdown in Iraqi and Venezuelan oil exports. That logic founders if something happens to disrupt Saudi oil production. No one can take Saudi Arabia's place in the market. Today's regime in Saudi Arabia shows no sign of repeating the 1973 oil embargo. Tomorrow's regime? Who knows?

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I oppose the amendment of the Senator from Alaska. I do not disagree with most of the findings in his amendment. Saddam Hussein is clearly in violation of his obligations under United Nations Security Council resolutions. He has repeatedly demonstrated his callous disregard for the plight of the Iraqi people. Humanitarian aid under the oil for food program has been diverted, languished in warehouses, or simply not purchased at all. As much of the Iraqi population goes without adequate health care and nutrition, Saddam lavishes luxury goods on his cronies and builds palaces.

While the Senator may be correct in his diagnosis of the illness, it is not clear to me that his amendment is the cure.

I have just spoken to a senior official at the State Department, who believes this amendment is a serious mistake. I believe that this amendment puts the President in a very difficult position at a difficult time.

I have concluded that we need a regime change in Iraq. In my view, that effort will require us to lay the groundwork by making a solid case and building as broad a coalition as possible. I am concerned that this amendment may make the President's task more difficult. At the very least, we should provide him the opportunity to make his views known on this amendment.

While the potential impact of this amendment is great, it has not been scrutinized sufficiently. The Foreign Relations Committee has certainly discussed the issue of Iraq policy, but we have not examined this specific proposal. I also understand that the Energy Committee has held no hearings on this proposal.

As I stated at the outset, I do not see how this amendment will address the legitimate issues that the Senator cites. The proceeds for the legal purchase of Iraqi oil made by American companies are deposited in an escrow account controlled by the United Nations. Money in that account is then released for purchases of civilian goods. Before any money is spent, the sanctions committee, on which the United States sits, must approve every contract. In other words, we have a veto on how the money gets spent.

To be sure, the oil for food program has flaws. Saddam gets illegal revenues by selling oil outside the program and by collecting illegal surcharges from shady middlemen. It is these revenues that are used by Saddam to prop up his regime, pursue weapons of mass destruction, and pay the families of Palestinian suicide bombers. The Senator's amendment does not address the problem of illegal surcharges or smuggling.

I am also concerned that by effectively pulling the United States out of the oil for food program, we may be sending the signal that we are not interested in the welfare of the Iraqi people. I know that is not the Senator's intention, but it may be an unintended effect of his amendment. This could have an impact on the ability to pull together an effective coalition to confront Saddam.

This is just one example of the potential unintended impact of this amendment. I think it is important that we understand all of the ramifications of this proposal before proceeding.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, recognizing I have yielded back my time, I wonder if the majority would allow me to respond for a few minutes to the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I have no objection. Following that, I expect to yield back most of my time. I gather we are ready for a vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska is recognized.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I thank my friend, Senator BINGAMAN.

It is the intention of the prohibition on Iraqi-origin petroleum imports to terminate the imports, and they could then be addressed by the President and the President, after consultation with relative committees of Congress, can certify to the Congress that Iraq is substantially in compliance with the U.N.S.C. Resolution 687 and Resolution 986.

Resolution 986 prohibits smuggling of oil in circumvention of the Oil for Food Program, and 687 mandates inspections by U.N. inspectors. So the intent is clear. It is to terminate oil exports in the United States.

The Senator from New Mexico suggested we contemplate and be somewhat sensitive to the attitude of the White House. I think during our extended debate on ANWR we had an extended discussion about the attitude of the White House that did not prevail in this body.

I think what is germane, however, is the attitude of the White House with regard to the sanctions on Iran and Libya. They are quite clear, and I think there is a notable similarity. Those sanctions were initiated in retaliation to terrorist activities associated with Libya. What was it? The downing of Pan American flight 103 over Scotland. That is why we took that action. It was most appropriate. In Iran, in 1979, it was the Embassy takeover and the terrorist activities associated with that.

So we have a parallel. I do not think there is any question about it. We terminated a relationship in the sanction action against Libya and Iran for fostering terrorism.

If what is going on with Saddam Hussein is not an act of terrorism, I do not know what is. I indicated in my statement pretty much throughout, this is a matter of principle for the United States. I do not think there is any question about the justification. It is the same justification. Saddam Hussein is fostering terrorism, and I think we would all acknowledge that. So I think, with all due respect, that is the justification for this action.

Today, who is more of a threat to the world? Is it Iran, is it Libya, or is it Iraq? Well, no question in my mind.

I am happy to respond to any questions.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of our time as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 3159. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. INOUE), is necessarily absent.

Mr. LOTT. I announce that the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. NICKLES), is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CARPER). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 88, nays 10, as follows:

CAPACITY-BASED STANDARDS

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have discussed with Senator BINGAMAN a concern with his amendment No. 3016. In particular, I question whether we should structure the renewable portfolio standard to refer to the “capacity” of a renewable system or, as done in Senator BINGAMAN’s amendment, to the “energy generated.” I think we should simplify compliance by staying with a “capacity-based” standard, but I realize that this is a complex issue. I strongly recommend that we return to this issue in conference and carefully evaluate the pros and cons of these two approaches.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I concur with my colleague that this issue deserves more discussion. I look forward to further analysis and discussion of this in conference in order to arrive at a final position.

ENHANCED BORDER SECURITY AND VISA ENTRY REFORM ACT OF 2002

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of H.R. 3525, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3525) to enhance the border security of the United States, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I understand that we have a time limit on both the bill and the particular amendments. Am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. KENNEDY. And the time on the overall bill is?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Thirty minutes equally divided.

Mr. KENNEDY. And 40 minutes on each amendment equally divided. Am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. President, I am very pleased that we are enacting the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act of 2002.

I would like at the outset to thank my colleagues and fellow sponsors, Senators BROWNBACK, FEINSTEIN, and KYL, as well as their dedicated staff, David Neal, LaVita Strickland, and Elizabeth Maier. We began working together on this legislation in November and have moved through every stage of this process as a united team.

I would also like to thank Senator HOLLINGS and Senator GREGG for their invaluable contributions to the bill. I thank Senator BYRD for steadfastly working with us to make important improvements to the legislation.

Finally, I thank all of our colleagues in the Senate for withdrawing their unrelated amendments to assure the swift passage of this vital legislation, the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act, which will strengthen the security of our borders. It will improve our ability to screen visitors, monitor foreign nationals, and enhance our capacity to deter potential terrorists.

Our bill provides real solutions to real problems. It closes loopholes in our immigration system. Our solutions include expanding intelligence and law enforcement capabilities, upgrading 21st century technology, and establishing an electronic interoperable data system. Vital information will be shared in real time among our front line agencies.

Our legislation sets realistic deadlines for the Attorney General and the Secretary of State to issue to all foreign nationals machine-readable, tamper-resistant travel documents with biometric identifiers. It also sets a realistic deadline for our ports of entry to be used with biometric data readers and scanners.

It also recognizes the valuable role of our border security and INS personnel by ensuring that these offices receive adequate pay and training and have the technology they need to secure our borders without obstructing the efficient flow of persons and commerce.

It also recognizes the demands on our consular offices, and provides them with the additional training and resources to screen for security threats.

In this legislation, we preserve the visa waiver program but require a stringent reporting requirement on passport theft and more frequent evaluation of participating countries’ compliance with the programs’ conditions.

Our bill honors our proud immigration tradition. It safeguards the entry of the more than 31 million persons who enter the United States legally each year as visitor students, temporary workers, and the 550 million who legally cross our borders each year to visit family and friends.

We recognize that immigration is not the problem—terrorism is. We must identify and isolate potential terrorists—not isolate the United States. “Fortress America” is not a solution that we would consider.

In defending America, we are defending the fundamental constitutional principles of diversity, cultural exchange, and civil rights that have made America strong in the past and which will make us even prouder in the future.

This legislation strikes the appropriate balance. I hope we will receive overwhelming support for it.

I withhold the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I join my colleague, Senator KENNEDY, as ranking member on the Immigration Subcommittee to support this bill.

This bill cleared the House of Representatives twice on a unanimous consent calendar. It is important. We still have problems at our borders. This bill deals with trying to get at the terrorists who seek to enter our land and not the legitimate people who are seeking to come here for reasons that are positive to the United States.

This bill is a testament to the dedication of this body and in Congress. It is bipartisan. It has had the input of many Members. The bill reflects how truly united we as Americans stand before the threat of terrorism.

The bill is the product of a lot of dedicated people, too many to name—elected officials from both sides of the aisle, from both Houses, and experts from both inside and outside of Government. The entire community in and around Washington and the country came together for this common goal of defending America.

The bill is endorsed by the entire immigration spectrum. The groups that are the most impacted by it endorse it. They appreciate the hard decisions that have to be made after September 11 and see the wisdom in this legislation.

We have legislation here that protects our borders without compromising our values or our economy. This legislation is a measured, intelligent response to an evil that we will defeat. I am proud to be a part of this bill.

I will describe quickly, what we are trying to do—and we will get it done—is to get information sharing from the various governmental agencies—the INS, the State Department, but also the CIA, the FBI, the DIA, and, hopefully, even other intelligence sources—so that we will have information sharing so we can catch before they enter this country people who seek to do harm. That information sharing is not taking place to the degree it needs to be today. Senator KENNEDY noted how many people yearly enter this country legally—over 300 million entries—and we are looking for those few who seek to come in here to do us harm. We are looking for a needle in a haystack, so we have to have that information sharing.

We are trying to expand the perimeter around the United States. This would include working with Canada and Mexico to get our perimeter broader and more secure.

I visited the El Paso INS detention facility 1 year ago. There at the detention center were people who had tried to enter our country illegally from 59 different countries, coming in through Central America, going up by land through Central America, through Mexico. We need to get the Mexican Government's support and help in protecting our perimeter.

We require manifests from other countries before the flights leave so we can check those when they come in. We provide more monitoring of foreign students in this country once they come here.

On September 11, unfortunately, some of those terrorists were here under student visas. We have to monitor the foreign students better in this country.

This bill provides biometrics. It provides more information we can use in checking people at the border. We have a number of other provisions that are in the bill. It provides for more border security officials to be able to check to make sure we are getting our job done.

In short, Mr. President, this bill has received a lot of work. We need to pass this legislation. I believe we will get it passed today.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and reserve the remainder of our time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield for a question from the Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. BROWNBACK. I would be happy to yield for a question. I have yielded back the floor.

If I could secure the floor, Mr. President, I would be happy to yield for a question from the Senator from New Mexico.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. DOMENICI. I say to the Senator, I would just like to eliminate a little bit of confusion. This bill is going to pass unanimously—or almost—today. And stories are going to say we provided 1,000 new agents for the INS and all the other things you provide in this bill.

I wonder if you might tell me, is any of this money appropriated by this bill?

Mr. BROWNBACK. If I could respond to that question, within the President's budget is allocated $742 million in the first year for the implementation of this bill. It is within the President's budget. It is believed that the budget needs for the first year are $1.3 billion total. We have over half of that in the President's budget, and we are going to be seeking the approval for additional resources. We think we can compete for the necessary funding with the homeland security issues within it.

It is going to take authority, and this is the authority it is going to take appropriations to be able to get this implemented. The Senator from West Virginia has been raising in hearings and in this Chamber this issue about the implementation.

Mr. DOMENICI. I say to the Senator, as I indicated, I do not doubt it has wonderful provisions in it. I have read them. I come from the border, and I confirm that they are all good; our border people would like to have them.

I just want to make sure we understand that there is no money provided in this bill. So the public will get the story today or tomorrow that we passed this bill, but 3 or 4 months from now, when the appropriations bill comes that funds these kinds of activities, the Appropriations Committee has to have the money or we will just have another bill that expresses, in beautiful words, what we would like to have happen for our country. Is that about right?

Mr. BROWNBACK. No. I would disagree, if I could, with my colleague. The appropriate way to proceed is authorization language, then appropriations, of course. What we are doing here is the authorization language. The President has built into his budget request over half of the funding for this already. Now we will have to appropriate it. But to get there, first we are supposed to authorize. This is authorizing language.

Mr. DOMENICI. Sure. There is nothing tricky about my question. I am not trying to put anyone on the spot. I am just trying to establish that unless the money is appropriated later on by another act of Congress, and signed in another act by the President, we do not have 200 new agents this year in each of the Departments, we don't have the research money that is in this bill does not provide for any money to be spent. If that is not a correct statement, then I withdraw it.

Mr. BROWNBACK. That is correct. This is authorizing language.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Senator very much.

Mr. BROWNBACK. I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. KENNEDY. I yield myself a half a minute.

I want to add to what my colleague said. There is also $100 million in fees here. We have raised the fee part of it, which will be self-funding, making the total $843 million. This agency has a budget of $6 billion. It is our intention to try to work within that $6 billion to find the additional money and to work with the Appropriations Committee.

But I think that the point the Senator from New Mexico makes about the difference between authorization and appropriations is always worthwhile to point out so people have a very full understanding of the process.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Senators.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, before the distinguished Senator from New Mexico leaves the floor, I say to the Senator from New Mexico, he has made a very important observation.

I am going to vote for this bill. But we do not have a CBO estimate of the cost. We have no estimate of the cost. There is an estimate by the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Now, that may be off a great deal or it may not be off a great deal.

I think it is important to keep in mind what the distinguished Senator from New Mexico has pointed out. There is a great difference between authorizations and appropriations. And it is the money that counts. Cicero, that great Roman orator, said: "There is no fortress so strong that money cannot take it." So it is the money that counts. And the Senator has made an important observation. I made that observation, too, early on. And I don't know what the estimate of the cost is going to be in here. We have certain estimates, the $1.1 billion for the first year, and the $3.2 billion—or something like that—$3.2 billion for 3 years. But those are estimates. They are by the Immigration and Naturalization Service. And, of course, that is not a great bank to put your money into when the INS estimates it. We have seen that agency fall on its face so many times in recent years.

But, in any event, I thank the Senator.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield for 1 minute?

Mr. BYRD. Yes. I would be glad to yield.

Mr. DOMENICI. A question along with this observation: I say to the Senator, it seems to me that what we do—and what we are doing in this crisis, which is a very big crisis, with the President putting large numbers of billions of dollars in homeland security and saying this is new money—we come along and pass bills that authorize the new programs that he is saying he wants new money for, but the truth of the matter is that very seldom are any existing programs that are being paid for eliminated.

So you are going to have a subcommittee of your Committee on Appropriations, maybe two, that are going to fund this authorization bill—or maybe not, or maybe part of it; who knows? But the President had in mind canceling a whole bunch of programs in order to pay for this. And the point I make is, nobody helps with that part of the burden. Nobody carries any weight on trying to make room within the Government. They just pass on to the appropriators a very good, wonderful, new set of authorizations that we have all passed, and we go home and tell our people it is going to help solve the crisis that is before us with reference to taking care of our borders, which are porous and should not even be called borders, they are so bad.

I thank the Senator.

Mr. BYRD. Well, the Senator is correct. There will be a lot of eyes looking toward the Senator from New Mexico and toward me, and the other 27 members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, when it comes time to put the money on the barrelhead.

But having said that, I am going to vote for this bill. I am still going to seek a CBO estimate of the cost because I think that would be helpful in the coming days as we proceed to the conference and then to the conference report, and so on.

AMENDMENT NO. 3161

(Purpose: To revise provisions relating to the compliance by institutions and other entities with recordkeeping and reporting requirements with respect to nonimmigrant students and exchange visitors)

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the opportunity to seek a quality higher education has long enticed men and women to leave their homelands to travel to America.

We are, by and large, a generous Nation when it comes to providing an education to foreign citizenry. Indeed, American colleges, universities, and technical schools have opened wide their doors to students from foreign lands. And all levels of schooling are available to foreign nationals of every age—from preschool to post-graduate work, from public grade schools to private technical-training institutions.

In fact, foreign students have proven to be a lucrative source of revenue for U.S. educational institutions. Private-sector analysts estimate that foreign students contribute between $9 billion and $13 billion to the U.S. economy every year. Any number of marketing efforts are made by colleges and universities to recruit foreign students, whose tuition fees serve to bulk up college budgets.

As a result, we have opened our borders to a stream of foreign students with precious little oversight of their movement through the American educational stream. According to the INS, there are currently 2 million foreign students admitted to study in this country—649,000 of whom were admitted just last year. These include nuclear engineering scholars, biochemistry students, and pilot-trainees, who have access to sensitive technology, training, and information.

Yet while our schools have been training would-be pilots in the art of flying airliners, we have been asleep at the switch! There has been too little accountability, and too few checks, largely because oversight has proven too burdensome and costly for the government and the U.S. educational industry.

The lax government oversight of these student visa beneficiaries was underscored by the fact that three of the September 11 hijackers were awarded student visas—not to mention the fact that the INS was still processing the student visa applications for two of them 6 months after they had crashed two planes into the World Trade Center towers and gone on to meet their eternal destiny.

Clearly INS has not been up to the job of monitoring foreign students, and, in its current condition, placing new burdens on that agency alone is no solution. Therefore, as we look at our Nation through the prism of the new realities of terrorism, we must reconsider ways to involve those who have the best opportunity to prevent attacks. We need the assistance of our educational institutions.

In recent years, efforts to impose more stringent reporting requirements on schools have faltered because educational institutions have been reluctant to get into the job of monitoring foreign students. In fact, colleges and universities have lobbied heavily against such requirements, and the current lack of a national program to monitor foreign students indicates the effectiveness of that lobbying effort.

The pending legislation takes some important steps toward closing many of the loopholes in our foreign student policies that could be exploited by a potential terrorist. If the student monitoring provisions in this bill are to be successful, however, we must ensure the participation of our schools. These institutions are best suited to inform the INS and the State Department as to which students have been accepted to attend a school, whether they actually show up for class once they enter the country on a student visa, and whether they continue their classes or merely drop out of sight after checking in with the admissions office.

Monitoring the student visa program requires a partnership between the government and all colleges, and technical schools that accept foreigners.

The pending bill gives the INS and the Secretary of State too much discretion in determining whether or not these educational institutions should be penalized.

Section 502(c) of this bill reads:

EFFECT OF FAILURE TO COMPLY.—Failure of an institution or other entity to comply with the record keeping and reporting requirements to receive nonimmigrant students or exchange visitor program participants under section 101(a)(15) (F), (M), or (J) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15) (F), (M), or (J)) or Section 641 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1372), may, at the election of the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization or the Secretary of State, result in the termination, suspension, or limitation of the institution's approval to receive such students or the termination of the other entity's designation to sponsor exchange visitor program participants, as the case may be.

What's more, in section 502 of this bill, the "periodic reviews," which the INS Commissioner, Secretary of State, and Secretary of Education are required to make to determine whether institutions are complying with this legislation, are not defined. A "periodic review" could mean every 5 years or it could mean every 20 years or it could mean every 50 years.

That is very soft language.

My amendment would require reviews by the relevant agency heads at least once every two years. Further, if they found that U.S. educational institutions were materially not complying with the reporting requirements in this bill, my amendment would require the relevant agency heads to terminate or suspend, for at least one year, the right of those institutions to accept foreign students.

This amendment makes clear the serious concern about this Nation's ability to help foreign students while also protecting our homeland. Educational institutions are essential partners in our efforts to ensure that foreign students really are "students" with no other agenda but learning.

I thank Senators KENNEDY, BROWNBACK, FEINSTEIN, and KYL for their support of this amendment. I hope that the Senate will adopt it.

Mr. President, I have made my statement prior to calling up the amendment. I ask unanimous consent that the time I have consumed in reading my statement come out of my time on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. BYRD] proposes an amendment numbered 3161:

On page 49, beginning on line 4, strike "The" and all that follows through "reviews" on line 7 and insert "Not later than two years after the date of enactment of this Act, and every two years thereafter, the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, in consultation with the Secretary of Education, shall conduct a review".

On page 49, lines 22 and 23, strike "The Secretary of State shall conduct periodic reviews" and insert "Not later than two years after the date of enactment of this Act, and every two years thereafter, the Secretary of State shall conduct a review".

On page 50, line 16, strike "(c) EFFECT OF FAILURE TO COMPLY.—Failure" and insert "(c) EFFECT OF MATERIAL FAILURE TO COMPLY.—Material failure".

Beginning on page 50, line 24, strike "may" and all that follows through the period on line 5 of page 51 and insert the following: "shall result in the suspension for at least one year or termination, at the election of the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, of the institution's approval to receive such students, or result in the suspension for at least one year or termination, at the election of the Secretary of State, of the other entity's designation to sponsor exchange visitor program participants, as the case may be.".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I will urge our colleagues to support this amendment for the excellent reasons that the sponsor gave in support and in justification of the amendment.

There are now 26,000 universities and schools that can effectively approve a foreign student to come and study. But the foreign student has to qualify for the visa project at the current time. We have included some very important requirements in this legislation because this has been one of the great loopholes in our monitoring of who comes into this country and who does not.

The State Department must first receive the electronic evidence of the acceptance from an approved U.S. institution prior to issuing a student visa. The State Department must inform the INS that a visa has been approved. The INS must inform the approved institution the student has been admitted into the country, and then the approved institution must notify INS when the student has registered and enrolled. If the student doesn't report for class, the school must notify the INS of this absence not later than 30 days after the deadline for the classes.

So the colleges and universities have to develop that kind of system in order to be qualified for these programs, which is enormously important and a very significant, dramatic change from the current situation.

Currently, there are sporadic inspections of the universities. So now the Byrd amendment comes along and says, well, what you have in here looks good on paper, but what we take note of is the fact that, even if it is good on paper, the INS, in its history, has been sporadic in inspecting and finding out whether the schools and colleges are doing what they said and what they are supposed to do. That has been true. This tightens that provision up in a very important way.

If there is a material breach, then there will be a suspension of that institution from being able to receive the foreign students. So I believe it is going to make a very important difference in terms of compliance with one of the most important aspects of this legislation, which is understanding the students who are coming here, monitoring the students when they are here, knowing when the students are leaving, and if the students are not attending the schools, having access to that kind of information as well.

I thank the Senator from West Virginia for the amendment. What it does is put real teeth into this provision which we had worked out in the committee to achieve the kind of oversight the INS has not had up to this time.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the Senator for his statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas is recognized.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues, as well, to support the Byrd amendment. The reasons have been stated by both Senators BYRD and KENNEDY. I think the important thing to look at and see here is that we have a number of foreign students in the United States, and this has been a very positive thing, overall, for the United States and for the rest of the world. I don't think anybody would disagree with that statement. Yet what we have had taking place is a system that, over time, has gotten far too loose, and we saw the effects of that on September 11, where a couple of these individuals who came into the United States and did this operation, this horrific thing that happened, came in under student visas because they were looking for weaknesses in the system to get into the United States in a less restrictive, reviewed area. So that is why this has been at the very heart of this bill.

Senator BYRD puts in a good provision. There have been sporadic reviews by the Government of the educational institutions to see that they are doing this right, that they are taking the program seriously and not just finding some way of being able to bump up their student account and the number of students coming to the United States. We will have a regular reporting requirement and we will be able to monitor this much more closely. It should not inhibit legitimate students from coming here, nor the institutions that are legitimate and serious about what their projects are. It will be a bit more of a hindrance to those looking to increase their foreign student accounts and, hopefully, it will help us to get at those students who are here to do us harm.

I urge adoption of this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California is recognized.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, this amendment actually came into the bill from the original parts of the bill, Senator KYL's and my investigations from the Terrorism and Technology Subcommittee. What we found is the student visa program was greatly in disarray. We found that we have about 660,000 students coming in a year, and there is no tracking of any of them. Nobody knows whether they are really at a school.

Up to this point, the schools have had no responsibility to report that a student has arrived, that a student is taking this or that course and, yes, that the student has stayed in school. So I think Senator BYRD's amendment strengthens what is already in the bill. I think it makes it a better bill. We intend to follow up on this. Senator KENNEDY and I have discussed it. We intend to see, in fact, that the schools do keep their word and do, in fact, do the reporting they are required to do under this legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, Senator FEINSTEIN and I were upstairs a moment ago during the time allotted for discussion of the bill in general. Let me take a couple of minutes, if I could, to express my support also for the amendment pending that Senator BYRD offered. As Senator FEINSTEIN said, it will strengthen what we are trying to do with the student visa program.

Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee has a couple of subcommittees of jurisdiction. Senator KENNEDY and Senator BROWNBACK are the chairman and ranking member of the Immigration Subcommittee, and I have the honor of serving on that committee, as does Senator FEINSTEIN. She chairs and I am ranking member of the Terrorism Subcommittee. So we have had the ability in both of these subcommittees to hold hearings and to discover after September 11 areas in which we can improve our immigration laws to make it much more difficult for terrorists to enter this country or to stay here illegally.

This legislation is designed to close as many of those so-called loopholes as we can. I think it is a good effort in that regard. Each of the amendments that will be offered by Senator BYRD, in one way or another, strengthens the bill we have already offered.

I wanted to make two quick comments. Eighteen of the terrorists who entered the country and flew airplanes into the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and into the ground in Pennsylvania came in using B-1, B-2 tourist visas. According to the Department of State, 47 foreign-born individuals, including these 19, have been charged with, pled guilty to, or been convicted of involvement in terrorism over the past decade. All 47 of these people had contacts with an INS inspector. Yet, somehow, they were able to get into the country. The 19th of the 19 was Hani Hanjour. He entered the country on an F1 student visa, the subject of the specific amendment now before us. He supposedly came here to attend classes and study English. He never showed up for class. The school did not notify the authorities that he never attended classes. He overstayed his visa and just melted into our society.

Another example of one of the terrorists, Mohamed Atta, came in on a tourist visa. According to several sources, he was placed on the FBI watch list 6 weeks before the terrorist attacks. But his name was never entered into INS's system. Before his visa expired in December of 2000, Atta actually went to the INS to change his status to that of student. After December of 2000, even without the information that showed his placement on a watch list, he should not have been allowed to reenter the country.

Yet, on June 3, 2000, at Newark International Airport on a Czech Air flight from Prague, after being questioned by INS for an hour, he was admitted back into the United States.

My point of illustrating with these two examples is to point out that the INS had contact with all of these people. They clearly should have been caught, but they were not caught because the INS officials either did not have the information they should have had or for some other reason did not ask the right questions.

Mary Ryan, who is one of the people who testified before Senator FEINSTEIN's subcommittee—her title is Assistant Secretary for Consular Affairs, Department of State—actually said: we felt like the woman driving through the school zone at 15 miles an hour and the little girl runs out behind the parked cars. She gets hit, and we feel terrible, but what could we do about it? That is why we set about trying to figure out what we could do about it.

One provision is to tighten up the student visa requirements. Without going into anything further, I think it sets the stage for what we are trying to accomplish and trying to close some of these loopholes, how we hope it will have some good, positive effect—not the overall answer to terrorism, but it will help to some extent.

As I said, the amendments Senator BYRD offers strengthen the bill. I am supportive of them, and I hope we can get to final passage.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, if it is agreeable with Senator KENNEDY and the other cosponsors of the amendment, I will yield back the remainder of my time on the amendment. Some Senators have been promised that there will be no votes until about 7:15 p.m. If it is agreeable with all the cosponsors, I will be happy to ask unanimous consent that the vote on this amendment occur upon the expiration of all time on the amendments and further statements can be made in regard to the bill so that the votes would be stacked for beginning, say, around 7:15 p.m.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DAYTON). The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, stacking the votes is fine with me. I would rather have our colleagues available so that we can move along. It is just 6 o'clock now. Maybe my cosponsors want to spend time describing the amendments. I do not think so. I know Senator FEINSTEIN has not had a chance to address the whole issue as a prime sponsor. It seems to me we should be able to consider these amendments in a timely manner. I would like to see if we can move the votes to prior to 7:15 p.m. If the leader set that time, then that will be the time, but I hope we can make progress prior to that time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, if we stack these votes, I certainly think our colleagues will appreciate that. I believe there is going to be, if I understand the intention of the Senator from West Virginia and the amendments he is putting forward, broad agreement amongst the cosponsors of the amendments.

All of these are strengthening amendments. I see no reason why we cannot do all of the amendments together in an expedited fashion. What the Senator is doing is really making the bill better. I do not know if it is possible, but if we could do it, we could have a limited number of votes for which we would call our colleagues back.

These are good amendments. I do not anticipate anybody coming to the Chamber in opposition to them. Possibly we could adopt these together as one. Of the ones I have looked at, they appear to look quite good. My hope is to complete them quickly. If we need to do it at 7:15 p.m., fine, and we can do them possibly altogether.

Mr. BYRD. I think it will work out all right if we just proceed.

I ask unanimous consent, Mr. President, that the vote on this amendment occur at the expiration of the time on all the amendments with the yielding back of that time and yielding back or making final statements on the bill, if that is agreeable with the cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the pending amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3162

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I send to the desk the second amendment, and I ask that the clerk read the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. BYRD] proposes an amendment numbered 3162.

(Purpose: To require as a condition of a country's designation or continued designation as a program country under the Visa Waiver Program that the country reports to the United States Government the theft of blank passports issued by that country.)

Beginning on page 32, strike line 23 and all that follows through line 5 on page 33 and insert the following:

(a) REPORTING PASSPORT THEFTS.—Section 217 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1187) is amended—

(1) by adding at the end of subsection (c)(2) the following new subparagraph:

“(D) REPORTING PASSPORT THEFTS.—The government of the country certifies that it reports to the United States Government on a timely basis the theft of blank passports issued by that country.”; and

(2) in subsection (c)(5)(A)(i), by striking “5 years” and inserting “2 years”; and

(3) by adding at the end of subsection (f) the following new paragraph:

“(5) FAILURE TO REPORT PASSPORT THEFTS.—If the Attorney General and the Secretary of State jointly determine that the program country is not reporting the theft of blank passports, as required by subsection (c)(2)(D), the Attorney General shall terminate the designation of the country as a program country.”.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield such time as I may consume from my time on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, in my testimony before the Immigration Subcommittee last week, I spoke about the safety of the American people and how that safety within their own borders often takes a back seat to such issues as commerce and diplomacy.

The visa waiver program, I believe, is a clear example of what I was talking about.

The program allows 23 million citizens from 28 countries to enter the United States without first obtaining a visa from a U.S. consulate abroad. This program, by eliminating the visa requirement and the subsequent State Department background check, expedites travel and commerce, but waives the usual first step by which foreigners are screened for admissibility when seeking to enter the United States.

Consequently, in a 1999 study, the Justice Department's Office of the Inspector General found that terrorists, criminals, and alien smugglers have attempted to gain entry into the United States through the waiver program. The inspector general's office also commented on the danger of stolen passports from visa waiver countries being used by terrorists to enter the United States without a visa.

It has been noted that in 1992 one of the conspirators in the 1993 World Trade Center bombing tried to get into the United States through the visa waiver program with a fake Swedish passport. Fortunately, he was caught, and a search of his luggage revealed bomb-making instructions.

In recent years, tens of thousands of blank passports from visa waiver countries have been stolen. These passports are sold on the black market to terrorists, criminals, and anyone else who may wish to avoid a State Department background check before entering the United States.

While only countries deemed "low-risk" are allowed to participate in the visa waiver program, and they must meet certain qualifications, the Attorney General is only required to review these countries' participation once every 5 years. Moreover, the Attorney General is not required to consider the efforts to prevent theft when determining whether to accept the country into or allow the country to continue to participate in the visa waiver program.

My amendment would require the Attorney General to review the countries that participate in the visa waiver program at least once every 2 years to help ensure that those countries continue to meet the programs' standards, and it also requires the Attorney General to remove countries from the program that do not report stolen passports. I am hopeful that my amendment will foster the kind of review that will result in greater scrutiny of this program and of those who enter the country through it.

This is a commonsense amendment, and I hope that Senators will support it.

I have discussed it with Senator KENNEDY, and he in turn has discussed it with the other authors of the bill and I hope that all Senators will support the amendment. I believe it to be a good one, a very worthwhile amendment.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. I urge our colleagues to support this amendment as well. It strengthens an important provision in the legislation. The Senator has outlined what the visa waiver program is, available now to 28 different countries.

Why the visa waiver? It was the judgment and the determination that if 2 percent, or less than 2 percent, of the visa applications were going to be rejected, then it probably made sense in terms of the efficiency to grant a visa waiver to that particular country. These are generally our oldest allies and friends as nations. A country has to stay at 2½ percent in order to stay in the program. Six countries a year is the general rule.

So what the Senator's amendment does is it says, look, given the changed circumstances that exist in the world, at least every 2 years we want to see countries reviewed. This is certainly supportable.

One of the principal reasons, obviously, in reviewing a country in terms of a visa waiver, may be because there are national security issues that are different. There may be law enforcement issues that are different. If there are security issues that are different, then we would want to know it and know about it in a timely way.

We have seen in recent times, a month ago, Argentina was dropped from the visa waiver program because of the turmoil that exists there and the enormous numbers of people who were leaving with very little intention perhaps of returning. So the amendment of the Senator will ensure that the visa waiver program will carry forward its real intention, and it will be carefully reviewed every 2 years with the idea that the review, which will be by the State Department and the Attorney General, will look at the country and see if there are new issues of security that may pose a potential threat to the United States. If they do, they can take the action of removing the country, or make other recommendations.

The second feature of this amendment, which is enormously important, is the requirement that we are going to have the report of stolen passports. That has been a very slipshod process in the past. The Byrd amendment puts teeth into that provision. If the countries themselves are not going to be reporting these stolen passports, they will no longer be participating in this favored position in terms of the visa waiver.

Getting a handle on stolen passports is enormously important. It is going to be even more important as we move on into the future. This amendment makes sense. I hope our colleagues will support it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to support this second Byrd amendment. It is a strengthening amendment, for the reasons that have been articulated by the Senator from West Virginia and the Senator from Massachusetts.

I wish to focus on the final point that Senator KENNEDY put forward with an exclamation mark. This is an important program. The visa waiver program has certainly been a very valuable one for the countries that work closely with the United States. They like it. A number of people who travel really like and appreciate it, and yet in some places we are having thefts, losses of passports with which people can penetrate our borders. That has not been as forcefully enforced by other countries on this visa waiver provision.

Now, with the Byrd amendment requiring an every 2-year review, if they are not enforcing this provision when there is a loss or a theft of a passport, it is not being reported aggressively, there is a real hammer here: No more visa waiver.

I rather imagine there are a number of countries that are in this visa waiver program that do not like this amendment, but for us and for our security this is an excellent provision given the world of today. If this were 10, 20 years ago and we did not have quite the present threat on us of terrorist attacks in the United States and people trying to slip through our borders, one might say this is going to be an added burden that maybe we should not have. But given the situation we are in today, I think we would have been wise to have had it 10 or 20 years ago. It is clearly a needed provision, and it will cause people who are working closely with the United States, that have this visa waiver, they will scrutinize their practices more closely and report these passports if they have been stolen.

This is an excellent strengthening provision. I urge my colleagues to support it as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I yield back the remainder of my time. I ask unanimous consent that the vote on this amendment occur immediately after the vote on the student monitoring amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Massachusetts yield back the remainder of his time?

Mr. KENNEDY. I yield back all of the time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

AMENDMENT NO. 3163

Mr. BYRD. I now offer a third amendment. I anticipate we could have a voice vote on this amendment, unless enough Senators wish to have a rollcall vote.

I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending amendment is laid aside. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. BYRD] proposes an amendment numbered 3163.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To substitute October 26, 2004, for October 26, 2003, for the achievement of requirements with respect to machine-readable, tamper-resistant entry and exit documents)

On page 25, line 21, strike "October 26, 2003" and insert "October 26, 2004".

On page 26, lines 12 and 13, strike "October 26, 2003" and insert "October 26, 2004".

On page 26, lines 24 and 25, strike "October 26, 2003" and insert "October 26, 2004".

On page 28, line 2, strike "October 26, 2003" and insert "October 26, 2004".

On page 28, line 16, strike "October 26, 2003" and insert "October 26, 2004".

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may consume of the time allotted to me on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, as we strive to respond to the new challenges of terrorism, we must be cognizant of the essential component of public trust. Without the confidence of the people, our efforts to improve domestic security, including our efforts to tighten our border defenses, cannot succeed.

To help ensure that we do not undermine the public's confidence in our efforts to secure our borders, we must set realistic mandates—that is, guidelines and time frames that are measurable and achievable.

This bill, in two separate instances, sets an October 26, 2003, deadline for the Attorney General and the Secretary of State to meet two separate mandates.

Section 303(b)(1):

Not later than October 26, 2003, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State shall issue to aliens only machine-readable, tamper-resistant visas and travel and entry documents that use biometric identifiers.

Section 303(b)(2):

Not later than October 26, 2003, the Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall install at all ports of entry of the United States equipment and software to allow biometric comparison of all United States visas and travel and entry documents issued to aliens, and passports issued pursuant to subsection (c)(1).

A third October 26, 2003, deadline applies to visa waiver countries issuing to their nationals machine-readable passports that are tamper-resistant and that incorporate biometric identifiers.

I question whether the Attorney General and the Secretary of State will be able to meet these deadlines. When I asked one of the authors of this bill, Senator KYL, about this deadline during the floor debate on Monday, Senator KYL said:

The Senator from West Virginia raises a good question with respect to those deadlines. Frankly, on two of the three, there is no good answer. The Senator is absolutely correct about that. . . . As to precisely how long it will take to get those [systems] online, there is not a good specific answer, nor is there an answer as to when we can have the interoperable system developed, which is one of the central features of the bill.

These dates are not based on the availability of technology, or even projections about the availability of technology. Nor are they based on any realistic expectation about the availability of funding. As far as I can tell, these deadlines are based solely on the fact that the USA PATRIOT Act was signed into law on that same day in 2001.

I appreciate the notion that, without deadlines, it is difficult to press the agencies to act expeditiously. But, when this deadline comes and goes, and the Attorney General and the Secretary of State have not met these goals, the public will have reason to become disillusioned with our efforts to tighten our border defenses. Considering the public's current skepticism regarding the INS and its ability to safeguard our borders, I suggest that we be careful about committing our border defense agencies to deadlines that they cannot meet.

Under the regular appropriations process, Congress cannot make the necessary funding available to the agencies before October 1, 2002, and that assumes that all 13 appropriations bills are completed on time, by the end of the fiscal year. Even if the bills are completed on time, it could still take months before funds are released to the agencies to meet these mandates.

With the support of Senator KENNEDY, I am offering an amendment that would move the October 26, 2003, deadlines back by one year to October 26, 2004. This amendment allows the Congress more time to appropriate the necessary funds, and help to ensure adequate time for the State and Justice Departments to meet these deadlines.

Our efforts to tighten our border defenses will require the long-term support of the American people. It is an effort that will require the trust and confidence of the American people. We should not place that trust at risk by setting deadlines we know to be unrealistic. So it is for that reason Senator KENNEDY and I and the other authors of this amendment have worked together to fashion this amendment. I urge adoption of this amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Byrd amendment. This is a positive amendment in the overall bill, it is appropriate, and it was the topic of a great deal of discussion previously as we were putting together this bill overall. The bill, in its design, had a number of people working together to try to figure it out. One of the most contentious issues was this issue about the time deadline in which we would be able to accomplish these biometric identifiers.

The administration had a great deal of concern about meeting the very aggressive dates set in the overall bill. A number of our colleagues involved in the negotiation said: We realize this may be aggressive, but we need to push it because this is such an important issue. A lot of people within the executive branch were saying: I don't know that we can meet this deadline.

This amendment will be well received by a number of people who believed the time deadlines put forward in the original bill were just too aggressive to be accomplished. This will set a far more realistic date as to when we accomplish it. I know people in the executive branch will try to do this as quickly as possible. They are clearly going to be far more comfortable with this date as being more realistic, one that can be accomplished.

For those reasons, I urge my colleagues to support this Byrd amendment to the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. I have a different take on it. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment, but I think we need to send a message to the INS that it can't be business as usual any longer and that instead of a "can't do" attitude, they have to have a "can do" attitude.

I personally spoke with Governor Ridge about this deadline and asked him what he thought. He said: Let me get back to you. When he did get back to me, he said: We have to move forward as quickly as possible. I support the date that Senators KENNEDY, BROWNBACK, and FEINSTEIN and I agreed upon. We have to show the American people we will get on with this and the delay will no longer be acceptable.

Senator BROWNBACK is correct when he says that this will make some people a lot happier. There were people who were saying: We are not sure we can meet this deadline in the bill. To that extent, the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia will be well received.

I want to make it clear, we are not sending a signal by agreeing with the Senator from West Virginia tonight—and I know he doesn't mean to, either, as I understand this amendment—because we have decided it is OK to sit back and relax because we have extra time. It is simply a reflection of the fact that it will not be easy. It will take time. Nobody knows for sure exactly how much. However, all five of us, I am sure I can say, are strongly of the view that we have to get on with this. Business as usual is not going to cut it.

The good news is that while technology may be a little more difficult to implement in the very beginning, and a little costly, in the long run it will be both cheaper and much more efficient in enabling analysis of the data in this huge country of ours with all of the millions of people who come into it by visas and other means. The technology will help enforce the provisions of this bill and other legislation on the books.

Technology will be the answer eventually. It will take time to get going. But by agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia, I can speak for everyone by saying to those folks who have to implement it, we do not mean for you to relax; we mean for you to get on with it. We have to do our part by giving you the resources to do it.

I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I, too, hope our colleagues will support the amendment. There really is not any difference in the views that are being shared on the Senate floor this evening. That is, we want to get the best technology, and we want to then get a process so that it can be utilized effectively in order to protect our security.

I want to give assurances to those who favor the earlier date that our committee will be meeting with the Commissioner, with Mr. Ziglar, and we welcome other colleagues, to try to monitor this as aggressively as we possibly can. This is the final date, but it is certainly the sense here for the INS to understand we want it done as early as possible. But we want to make sure it is complete, and we are going to have the best technology. Then we are going to have the best technology in terms of the implementation of the legislation.

We give assurance to our colleagues that our committee will monitor this very carefully and periodically give reports back to the Senate because this is enormously important.

What we are basically saying is with 550 million people moving in and out of the United States, there is a limited number who pose a security threat. The immigrants are not the danger, terrorists are the danger. We have to be able to use that knowledge to detect them. We have great opportunities to do it. We want to get the right technology and implement it and we want to do it in the shortest possible time.

This legislation will establish sending that message. I agree with those who say we want to get started, we want to get it done right, but we have altered the date to take into consideration those who believe we would not have done the right job if we had the earlier date. We think this makes sense, and we hope colleagues will support the amendment.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise to join my colleagues supporting this amendment. There is one thing I would like to point out. I have serious concerns about the visa waiver program. I have concerns about its wisdom in the first place.

When you have 23 million people coming in without visas, from 29 different countries, it becomes so easy for passports to be misplaced and for people who are threats to get into this program. I think we have to watch it very carefully. We have to depend on the fact that the strictures in this bill are meant to be carried out.

I, for one, would not have a problem with doing away with the program if we find any more irregularities in it. We have actual instances where terrorists have used this visa waiver program. We know 100,000 passports were missing. We know they were not reported in a timely way. This bill requires, first of all, the thefts of passports, or that passports are missing, be reported immediately. Then the INS, within 72 hours, would have to enter them into an interoperable database, assuming we get to that interoperable database. Until that system is established, the INS would enter the information into an existing data system.

I, for one, am going to ask my staff to watch very carefully as to how these passport numbers get entered, and I will try to do my level best to see it is carried out. If it is not, I think we will have to go back and assess the wisdom of this entire program.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I am happy to yield the remainder of my time.

Mr. KENNEDY. I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 3163) was agreed to.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. BROWNBAC. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3164

(Purpose: To increase the penalty for non-compliance with the requirements to provide manifest information)

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The senior assistant bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. BYRD] proposes an amendment numbered 3164:

On page 39, line 25, strike "$300" and insert "$1,000".

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may require.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the border security bill before the Senate requires ships and aircraft entering the United States to provide to our immigration officials a manifest of all passengers and crew on the vessel before they arrive in U.S. ports. If a commercial carrier fails to do so, this bill imposes on the carrier a $300 fine for each person not mentioned, or for each person incorrectly identified, in the manifest.

This penalty is wholly inadequate in my judgment. It is really a slap on the wrist for an airline or sea carrier that fails to provide important information to our immigration officials. This amendment would increase this penalty to $1,000 for each person that a commercial carrier fails to list accurately on the passenger manifest.

Airlines and sea carriers must be more than a passive conduit for information between ticket agents and our border defense agencies. We need the commercial carriers that bring people to this country to be partners in identifying persons who might have suspicious travel documents or travel plans.

Increasing the fine for noncompliance is one way to emphasize to commercial carriers that they have an important role in border security.

This amendment has the support of the managers of the bill and I urge my colleagues to support it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may use.

I support the amendment. I think it demonstrates support for a very important provision in the legislation, and that is for the INS to receive the manifests of those who are coming into the United States in a timely fashion. It demonstrates, by increasing the penalty, that we are serious about this issue.

The American carriers, as I understand it, do this regularly, routinely. In any event, there are a number of carriers that do not. What the amendment does is underline the importance of this function and establishes the seriousness with which we take this function of information by increasing the penalty. I think it helps the legislation and I support it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBAC. Mr. President, this is another strengthening amendment. We have teeth in this provision. They get bigger with the Byrd amendment. I think that is a good provision for us on the prearrival of aircraft coming into this country. For whatever reason, we have had some difficulty with airlines providing this manifest ahead of time. This is going to make this a more significant penalty.

We need to have this information. We should have this information ahead of time. This is a key security issue. It is part of this extension to try to deal with terrorists trying to enter our land.

This is a good strengthening amendment. I urge my colleagues to support it.

I congratulate and thank the Senator from West Virginia once again for helping to make what I think is a good bill better.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time on this amendment.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 3164) was agreed to.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from West Virginia for the study that he has given to this issue, and for the recommendations that he has made on this legislation. We are urging our colleagues to support this.

I thank him for his cooperation and for the seriousness which he has given to this legislation. I thank him.

Mr. President, under the consent agreement we still have the additional item; that is, the managers' amendment. I ask that we now proceed to the consideration of the managers' amendment.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, will the distinguished Senator yield for a question prior to proceeding?

Mr. KENNEDY. Yes.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote on the previous amendment.

Mr. BROWNBAC. Mr. President, I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 3160

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KENNEDY], for himself and Mr. BROWNBAC, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. KYL, proposes an amendment numbered 3160.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Text of Amendments.")

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I hope we will approve the managers' amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 3160) was agreed to.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. BROWNBAC. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I understand that two rollcalls have been ordered. I ask unanimous consent that it be in order to ask for the yeas and nays on final passage of H.R. 3525, the underlying measure.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, I am very pleased that the Senate is considering H.R. 3525, the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act. This bill mirrors S. 1749, which Senator KENNEDY introduced with Senators FEINSTEIN, BROWNBAC, KYL, and others. I am one of 58 cosponsors of S. 1749, which has commanded extraordinary bipartisan support and the sponsorship of most of the members of the Judiciary Committee, from which H.R. 3525 was discharged. Indeed, this bill reflects the results of sustained bipartisan negotiation, and represents the consensus view of Senators across the ideological spectrum. In other words, this is legislation the Senate should pass without delay.

As a Senator from Vermont, I know what a serious issue border security is. For too long, Congress has taken a haphazard approach to border security, meeting many of the needs of our southwest border but neglecting our border with Canada. Since the terrorist attacks of September 11, we have taken a far more comprehensive approach. Congress took its first steps to strengthen our borders in the USA PATRIOT Act, which authorized tripling the number of Border Patrol personnel, INS Inspectors, and Customs Service agents serving along our northern border, and $100 million in funding for improved technology for the INS and Customs Service's use in monitoring the border. As the author of those provisions, I am pleased that the administration has requested substantial increases in funding for border security personnel. I urge the Congress not only to fund this priority, but to ensure that the northern border receives at least half of any new supply of border security enforcement officers.

The legislation before us today builds on the first steps taken in the USA PATRIOT Act to strengthen substantially the security of our borders. It will further increase the number of INS Inspectors and INS investigative personnel, and authorize raises for Border Patrol agents and inspectors so that we can retain our experienced border security officers, who have been so overworked over the past 7 months. The bill also authorizes funding for training of INS personnel for more effective border management, and for improving the State Department's review of visa applicants abroad. In addition, it authorizes $150 million for the INS to improve technology for border security, another important follow-up to the USA PATRIOT Act.

Beyond authorizing badly needed funding for our borders, this legislation includes a number of important security provisions, a few of which I would like to highlight today. First, it requires the Attorney General and Secretary of State to issue only machine-readable and tamper-resistant visas, and travel and entry documents using biometric identifiers, by October 26, 2003. They must also have machines that can read the documents at all ports of entry by that date.

Second, the bill requires the Secretary of State to establish terrorist lookout committees within each U.S. mission abroad, to ensure that consular officials receive updated information on known or potential terrorists in the Nation where they are stationed.

Third, the bill will foster information sharing between other Government agencies and the State Department and INS, and shorten the deadline established in the USA PATRIOT Act to develop a technology standard to identify visa applicants.

Fourth, the legislation requires all commercial vessels or aircraft entering or departing from the United States to provide complete passenger manifests.

Fifth, this bill would substantially strengthen existing law for the monitoring of foreign students. The Government would be required to collect additional information about student visa applicants, and educational institutions would be obligated to report visa holders who did not appear for classes. In addition, the INS Commissioner would perform periodic audits of educational institutions entitled to accept foreign students.

I will vote for this bill because it will help protect our Nation and our borders. More than ever since September 11, those issues are fundamental priorities for this Congress. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill, and look forward to its becoming law.

Ms. CANTWELL. Madam President, today we are considering legislation on one of the most important issues in our fight against terrorism—how we can effectively secure our borders.

For me and for my State, one of the most critical things this bill does is to build on our efforts last year to increase staffing at the border by authorizing annual staffing increases on the borders for each of the next 5 years.

Those of us who represent States along the northern border knew before September 11 that the northern border was woefully understaffed. While we were able to double staffing across the border last year, the northern border will need a yearly infusion of staff to guarantee our security for the future.

This bill also incorporates many of the ideas of our colleague from California, Senator FEINSTEIN, to create a workable entry and exit system and better tracking of those in this country on student visas, and I would like to thank her for her many years of work on these issues.

Finally, this bill is about better use of technology to provide the enhanced security and border efficiency we need. But with every technological solution, comes the very real risk that the technology could be misused to invade personal privacy.

I have worked hard to make sure that provisions of this bill preserve the right to privacy. As we come to rely more on technology, including voluntary programs that require our citizens to provide personal information to government agencies, we will need to make very sure that we have sufficient safeguards in place to protect how that information is stored and used.

Many of the provisions of this bill are based on and cross-reference a provision I was able to include in the USA PATRIOT Act. That provision requires the State Department and the Department of Justice to develop a technology standard for the purpose of exchanging law enforcement and intelligence information necessary to screen applicants for U.S. visas and individual's using visas to enter the country.

Within that standard, there are specific privacy safeguards to limit the application of the standard of aliens; limit the purposes the data collected could be used to background checks and border verification; limit the distribution of the data to consular officers and border inspectors; require that any changes to expand access to the data has to be done by regulation so that the public can have input; finally, we require Congressional oversight of the implementation of the technology standard.

I am pleased that this legislation incorporates these safeguards and adds others specific to the "interoperable database system" that facilitates the sharing of law enforcement and intelligence information with the State Department and INS.

The bill before us today limits re-dissemination of information accessed through the system; ensures that the information is used solely to determine the admissibility or deportability of an alien to the United States; requires accuracy, security and confidentiality; requires protection of any privacy rights of individuals who are subject of the information in the system; and requires the timely removal and destruction of obsolete or inaccurate information.

Even with these provisions, Congress must keep a watchful eye on the implementation of the provisions of this legislation. We need to be vigilant to make certain we are achieving the proper balance between the need for national security and the need to protect the privacy of our citizens.

I am concerned about protecting the privacy of my constituents and citizens across our country, and I thank the authors of this bill for working with me to address these concerns.

I support this legislation because I believe that the security measures are well balanced against privacy concerns—and both security and privacy must be served.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Madam President, I rise today to support H.R. 3525, the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act of 2001. This bill includes important provisions that will enhance our overall security. As a member from a border State, I am especially supportive of provisions that improve our ability to provide security on the Northern border.

H.R. 3525 authorizes the addition of 200 Immigration and Naturalization Service agents on the border, raises their pay and improves their retirement benefits, increases funding for their training, and authorizes money for them to improve and buy new technology. In Minnesota, some of our border crossings, such as the crossing at Crane Lake, are staffed only part-time in the summer and even then are not staffed around the clock. Some parts of the border are staffed via telephone and video. For example, a person wanting to cross into the United States from Canada arrives at a border station, picks up a telephone or video-phone, and calls Border Patrol personnel located elsewhere to announce his arrival. We must address this security risk. We must address the vulnerability of our borders.

The situation on our northern border demands immediate attention but simply putting new staff there is not enough. We must retain experienced officials and provide adequate training to identify and intercept would-be terrorists. By raising the pay grade of INS border personnel and improving their retirement benefits, we can ensure the retention of dedicated, experienced officials. By providing them adequate training and improving their ability to share information, we can prevent the entry of people who intend to do this country harm.

The Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act of 2001 also has provisions to help us determine who is coming to the US before they arrive. It requires our consulates to transmit to INS officials electronic versions of the visas they issue so that information is available on the person prior to this arrival. It requires commercial flights and ships to provide manifests about each passenger prior to their arrival and it fills the gaps in the foreign student monitoring program to ensure we know who is coming to the United States to study at our universities before they get here. The more we can do to know who is coming to the United States before they actually arrive, the more secure we will be.

I would like to take a moment to address the issue of civil liberties. Many of us have concerns about the changes taking place in regard to our Federal agencies sharing intelligence information. Today, more than ever, we must ensure that Federal law enforcement and other agencies have the ability to share information in a timely and effective manner. Nothing is more distressing than to think that the horrible events of September 11 may have been prevented through better interagency communication and organization. Yet, we must ensure that we vigorously monitor the effects structural changes now underway will have on our civil liberties. We must continue to monitor implementation of laws that question the fundamental balance between our security and liberty.

We are doing that here today. The USA PATRIOT Act which we passed last October required the FBI to provide the State Department and INS with access to certain FBI databases. During the debate on that bill there were serious concerns over how to determine what information those agencies needed and how to protect that information. The bill before us requires the President to report to Congress on exactly what information the State Department and INS need, and to develop a comprehensive information-sharing plan with adequate privacy protections. I support this important provision and believe it is a good example of what needs to be done in the future. We must review, and improve legislation if necessary, to ensure protection of our fundamental freedoms.

Colleagues, H.R. 3525 is a comprehensive bill which will strengthen the security of our borders, secure our visa entry system and enhance our ability to deter potential terrorists. It is another important step towards ensuring that we will never again witness the tragic event of September 11. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Ms. SNOWE. Madam President, I am pleased to rise today in support of the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Reform Act of 2001.

I have worked with Senators KYL and FEINSTEIN, first on their Visa Entry Reform Act of 2001, and subsequently with them and Senators KENNEDY and BROWNBACK on this legislation. These sponsors have worked feverishly to bring this bipartisan bill to fruition and I have very much appreciated the opportunity to work with them in assembling a strong and meaningful package to help secure our homeland.

The bottom line is, at this extraordinary time, in the wake of horrific attacks from without against innocent lives within our borders, we must take every conceivable step with regard to those variables we can control in securing our Nation. How can we do anything less when it has become so abundantly and tragically apparent that admittance into this country cannot and must not be the "X-Factor" in protecting our homeland?

Entry into this country is a privilege, not a right, and it is a privilege that has clearly been violated by perpetrators of evil who were well aware of inherent weaknesses in the system. Just look at the story of Mohamed Atta, coming into Miami, he told the INS that he was returning to the U.S. to continue flight training, despite the fact that he presented them with a tourist visa, not the student required visa for his purposes, and they let him in. INS has since said that Atta had filed months earlier to change his status from tourist to student so they let him in, despite long-standing policy that once you leave the country, you're considered to have abandoned your change of status request.

What this bill is about is stopping dangerous aliens from entering our country at their point-of-origin and their point of entry by giving those Federal agencies charged with that responsibility the tools necessary to do the job. Now, some say the tools we need are better technologies, some say better information, some say better coordination. The beauty of this bill is that it stands on all three legs, because I can tell you if there is one thing I learned from my experience in working on these issues on the House Foreign Affairs International Operations Subcommittee is that we are only going to get to the root of the problem with a comprehensive approach.

This was clear from the aftermath of our investigation of the comings and goings of the mastermind of the 1993 World Trade Center bombing, the radical Egyptian cleric Sheikh Rahman. We found that the Sheikh had entered and exited the country five times totally unimpeded, even after the State Department formally revoked his visa and even after the INS granted him permanent resident status. In fact, in March of 1992, the INS rescinded that status which was granted in Newark, NJ about a year before.

But then, unbelievably, the Sheikh requested asylum in a hearing before an immigration judge in the very same city, got a second hearing, and continued to remain in the country even after the bombing, with the Justice Department rejecting holding Rahman in custody pending the outcome of deportation proceedings and the asylum application, stating that "in the absence of concrete evidence that Rahman is participating in or involved in planning acts of terrorism, the assumption of that burden, upon the U.S. government, is considered unwarranted."

To address the trail of errors, I introduced legislation to modernize the State Department's antiquated Microfiche lookout system, but as we have painfully learned in the interim, such a system is only as good as the information it can access. That is why we fought tooth and nail to require information sharing between the FBI and the State Department. In 1994 Congress passed my legislation to give State Department officials access to FBI criminal records for every visa application, whether for immigrant or non-immigrant purposes. Addressing non-immigrants who enter the U.S. using student visas was particularly important, as was demonstrated by the inexplicable errors by INS, and in the case of the bomber who entered the U.S. on a student visa before dropping out of school, remaining undetected for two years on the expired visa, and driving a truckload of explosives into the World Trade Center in 1993. Unfortunately a revised provision limited this access only for purposes of immigrant visas, dropping my requirement for the non-immigrant visas initially used by all 19 of the September 11 hijackers.

So I am pleased that the USA PATRIOT counterterrorism bill we passed last year does require information sharing between the State Department and the FBI, but we can and must do more, we must also require information sharing among all agencies like the CIA, DEA, INS, and Customs.

And that is what this bill does, along with my measure that is included to establish "Terrorist Lookout Committees" at every embassy, which are required to meet on a monthly basis and report on their knowledge of anyone who should be excluded from the U.S.

I am also pleased to have worked further with Senators KENNEDY and KYL to include in the managers' amendment a provision increasing accountability by requiring the Terrorist Lookout Committees to report to the Secretary of State after each monthly meeting and with reports from the Secretary to Congress on a quarterly basis.

We ought to ensure that the person standing in front of the INS agent at the border is the same person who applied for that visa. It does no good to do every background check in the world overseas, only to have someone else actually show up at our doorstep. The fact is, we have the so-called "biometric technology" available to close this gap, and I am pleased that my measure requiring the use of this biometric technology such as fingerprinting for visa applicants both abroad and at the border has been included, although not exclusively limited to fingerprinting. The information collected by the consular officer issuing the visa must then be electronically transmitted to the INS so that the file is available to immigration inspectors at U.S. ports of entry before the alien's arrival.

In addition to these protections, the bill provides funding for an increase in border patrol personnel and for training of those agents and other agency staffs at U.S. ports of entry and in our consular offices to improve the ability of these officers, our first line of defense on our borders, to more easily identify and intercept would-be terrorists.

As the President has said, "We're going to start asking a lot of questions that heretofore have not been asked." By giving the Director of Homeland Security the responsibility of developing a centralized "lookout" database for all of this information, along with instituting tighter application and screening procedures and increased oversight for student visas, we will close the loopholes and help bring all our Nation's resources to bear in securing our Nation.

This is a crucial bill in our war on terrorism and I urge my colleagues to support this bill. I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I first want to commend the chairman of the Immigration Subcommittee, Senator KENNEDY, my colleague from Massachusetts, for his leadership on this bill. The Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act gives law enforcement and immigration authorities greater access to the tools they need to improve border security. The legislation enhances our ability to identify terrorists and other individuals who should not be allowed to enter the Untied States and establishes new programs to ensure that people whom we welcome as visitors live up to their responsibilities under our immigration laws.

I am particularly pleased that the bill contains two amendments that I authored: one extending training opportunities to Border Patrol agents and another requiring the Department of Justice to provide Congress information on aliens who fail to appear at removal hearings.

It is critical that every law enforcement agent who works on the border understands and correctly applies our immigration laws. The Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act authorizes appropriations for such training for various law enforcement and immigration personnel at the border. My first amendment ensures that these training opportunities are extended to Border Patrol agents.

My second amendment requires the Department of Justice to report to the Congress how many aliens arrested while entering the country outside ports of entry fail to show up for their removal hearings. The amendment is the result of a hearing I held last November at the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

At that hearing, members of the subcommittee heard from current and past employees of the U.S. Border Patrol who came forward to express their concerns with INS practices involving the release on recognizance, that is on their promise to return, of people arrested while trying to gain illegal entry into the United States outside ports of entry. While the problems raised by the Border Patrol agents at the hearing would have been serious in normal circumstances, they carried particular weight following the attacks of September 11.

What the agents told my subcommittee is that when people are arrested by the Border Patrol, at places other than ports of entry, most who don't voluntarily return to their country of origin, usually Mexico or Canada, are given a notice to appear at a removal hearing. The Border Patrol initially decides whether the person should be detained, released on bond or released on his or her own recognizance while awaiting the hearing. The removal hearing can take several months to occur.

But detention decisions are not made by the Border Patrol alone. If the Border Patrol decides to detain a person or set a bond to help assure that a person shows up at the hearing, the INS deportation office can revise that decision and order the person released on a lower bond or on his or her own recognizance. It was revealed at the hearing that the Border Patrol and the INS simply release on recognizance a large percentage of people who are arrested for illegal entry. That means people who get caught and are arrested at the border while attempting to enter the country illegally are nonetheless allowed to move at will in this country with no constraints other than a written instruction to appear at a hearing, the purpose of which is to remove them from the country.

This practice is absurd. And statistics from the Detroit Sector illustrate the extent of the absurdity. In fiscal year 2001, the Detroit Sector of the Border Patrol arrested slightly more than 2100 people. A significant percentage of these people were arrested while actually attempting to enter the country illegally. Of those 2100 or so, slightly less than two-thirds were voluntarily returned to their country of origin and 773 were issued notices to appear at a removal hearing. Pending their removal hearing, 595 or more than 75 percent of those issued notices to appear were released on their own recognizance. Many of these people were released without a criminal background check and some were not even able, or perhaps willing, to provide the Border Patrol with an address. We learned that people released on their own recognizance who don't have an address are simply given a form to mail to the INS when they get an address so the agency can mail them a notice of their hearing date. That is the extent of the follow-through by the INS.

So, how many of these 575 people actually showed up for their hearings? One former INS District Director and Border Patrol Chief has said that in one of his sectors he thought the percentage of persons arrested outside a port of entry and released on their own recognizance who don't show up for their hearing was 90 percent. When I asked the INS what the actual number was, the agency couldn't tell me. The INS doesn't even keep this statistic.

Moreover, we learned at November's hearing that there was no requirement that, before releasing them, the Border Patrol complete a criminal background on people arrested for crossing the border illegally. I found that situation unjustifiable, and apparently so did the INS when they were made aware of it. As a result of my November hearing, the INS issued a memorandum requiring that a criminal background check be conducted on all aliens arrested and released on bond or recognizance. That change is important but additional improvements in both policy and practice are necessary.

The manner in which the Border Patrol and INS process aliens arrested between ports of entry remains unacceptable. That is why my second amendment to the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act requires the Department of Justice to provide the Congress an annual report containing the number of aliens arrested outside ports of entry who were served a notice to appear for a removal hearing and released on recognizance and who failed to attend their removal hearing. It is my hope that once the INS and the Congress comprehend the extent of the problem, we will change the way we process aliens who are arrested at the border while attempting to enter the country illegally.

We are an open and generous country and we welcome people from around the world who share our commitment to hard work, common decency and egalitarian values. But we are also a Nation of laws. And with the privilege of living in America comes an obligation to follow the law. The hearing I held at the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations highlighted a situation where our immigration laws were simply not being followed. My amendment ensures that Congress is able to track whether or not this situation improves.

Mr. KYL. Madam President, this is a good day for the security of the United States. The terrorist attacks that so changed our nation occurred over seven months ago. Seven months is too long to wait to pass a measure as important, as potentially life-saving, as this one is.

After months of meetings about these issues, it is time to do what is right—to fix our immigration and visa-processing systems so that terrorists cannot enter or remain in the United States in violation of our laws.

Congress took an important first step shortly after the terrorist attacks. The USCA PATRIOT Act, signed into law on October 26, 2001, provided us with better tools to fight terrorism. Among other provisions, that bill changed the definition of a terrorist—and, therefore, changed who is inadmissible to the United States. It clarified that the FBI can share information on its terrorist watch-list with other relevant Federal agencies. It provided the Attorney General with additional limited authority to detain would-be terrorists for a limited amount of time.

Our Nation, however, continues to face overwhelming infrastructure and personnel needs at our consular offices abroad, along both our southern and northern borders, in our immigration offices, and throughout other Federal law and intelligence offices throughout the United States.

The Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act will provide for such resources, for such changes to existing law and infrastructure, the right way. As a result of this bill, resources will be efficiently targeted—funds, for example, will not be sent to the INS without a clear directive that explains to the agency exactly what it is responsible for producing. We have learned that it is only through direct instructions that we will see loopholes closed in our immigration system, our borders secured, intelligence shared appropriately and infrastructure modernized to achieve stated goals. If we do not provide this infrastructure and guidance, I fear that other unthinkable incidents will occur.

Sadly, the real-life terrorist incidents that we suffered gave us too many real-life reasons why this bill is so desperately needed.

In a hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee's Subcommittee on Terrorism and Technology, Senator

FEINSTEIN and I heard some very trenchant testimony from Mary Ryan, Assistant Secretary of State for Consular Affairs, about the gaping holes in the system. Secretary Ryan's statement points to the dire need for better intelligence-gathering and significantly improved intelligence-sharing among all relevant agencies. The Border Security Visa Reform Act will provide for better information-sharing among appropriate agencies.

Surprisingly to some, 18 of the 19 terrorists entered the country using B1/B2 tourist visas. According to State Department statistics, 47 foreign-born individuals, including the 19 terrorists, have been charged, have pled guilty, or have been convicted of involvement in terrorism over the past decade. All 47 had contact with an INS inspector. This, of course, points to the need for more inspectors, as the Border Security bill authorizes, and for better informed inspectors through the sharing of information, which the bill will facilitate as well.

Madam President, the Mohammed Atta case perhaps illustrates what is wrong with the system better than any other. Atta entered the country on a B1/B2 visa that expired at the end of 2000. According to several sources, he was placed on the FBI's watch list 6 weeks before the terrorist attacks but his name was not entered into INS's system. The border-security bill will help by facilitating the real-time sharing of this type of information to relevant Federal law-enforcement and intelligence agencies, including all Federal agents who are responsible for determining the admissibility of aliens to the U.S., and all officers investigating and identifying aliens.

An entry-exit system at our Nation's ports of entry, using biometric identifiers, linked to an interoperable data-sharing system, will go a long way toward ensuring that people like Mohammed Atta are never allowed to enter the country. This system, coupled with the significant increase in interior investigative personnel that this bill makes possible, will better enable authorities to find terrorists if they infiltrate our borders. Information about Atta would have been tapped at a port of entry's entry-exit system. And, three other terrorists among the 19 who overstayed their visas would have been identified at ports of entry as well.

Before his visa expired on December 2, 2000, Atta asked the INS to change his status to that of "student." After that expiration, and even without the information that showed his placement on a watch list, he should not have been allowed to reenter the country. Yet, in January 2001, he arrived back in Miami and, after he was questioned by the INS for an hour, he was admitted back into the United States.

Another terrorist, Hani Hanjour, entered the country in December 2000 on an F1 student visa to study English but he never attended class. The school did not notify authorities that Hanjour never attended class. He overstayed his visa and melted into obscurity in the United States. The Border Security and Visa Reform Act will address both of the loopholes that allowed Hanjour to stay in the country undetected by requiring strict reforms in our student-visa system and, again, by requiring that our entry-exit system employ biometric passports and other travel documents to protect against fraud and to find visa overstayers such as Hanjour.

Madam President, Senators KENNEDY, BROWNBACK, FEINSTEIN, and I have worked hard to craft this bill. The staff of each of those members, Esther Olavarria, Lavita Strickland, and David Neal, should also be personally commended. After Senators KENNEDY and BROWNBACK, and separately Senator FEINSTEIN and I, developed separate counter-terrorism bills, during a difficult time, while offices were closed on Capitol Hill, we all came together to produce the final product we now anticipate will be sent shortly to the President for signature.

This bipartisan, streamlined product, cosponsored by both the chairman and ranking Republican of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and the ranking Republican of the Senate Appropriations Committee, will significantly enhance our ability to keep terrorists out of the United States and find terrorists who are here.

Under the Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act of 2001, at the direction of the President, all Federal law-enforcement and intelligence communities, the Departments of Transportation, State, Treasury, and all other relevant agencies will develop and implement a comprehensive, interoperable electronic data system for these governmental agencies to find and keep out terrorists. That system should be up and running by October 26, 2003, 2 years after the signing into law of the USA PATRIOT Act.

Under our bill, terrorists will be deprived of the ability to present fake or altered international documents in order to gain entrance, or stay here. Foreign nationals will be provided with new travel documents, using new technology that will include a person's fingerprint(s) or other form of "biometric" identification. These cards will be used by visitors upon entry into and exit from the United States, and will alert authorities immediately if a visa has expired or a red flag is raised by a Federal agency. Under our bill, any foreign passport or other travel document issued after October 26, 2004, will have to contain a biometric component. The deadline for providing a way to compare biometric information presented at the border is also October 26, 2004.

Another provision of the bill will further strengthen the ability of the U.S. Government to prevent terrorists from using our "Visa Waiver Program" to enter the country. Under our bill, the 29 participating Visa Waiver nations will, in addition to the USA PATRIOT Act Visa Waiver reforms, be required to report stolen passport numbers to the State Department; otherwise, a nation is prohibited from participating in the program. In addition, our bill clarifies that the Attorney General must enter stolen passport numbers into the interoperable data system within 72 hours of notification of loss or theft. Until that system is established, the Attorney General must enter that information into any existing data system.

Another section of our bill will make a significant difference in our efforts to stop terrorists from ever entering our country. Passenger manifests on all flights scheduled to come to the United States must be forwarded in real time, and then cleared, by the Immigration and Naturalization Service before the flight's arrival. Our bill also removes a current U.S. requirement that all passengers on flights to the United States be cleared by the INS within 45 minutes of arrival. Clearly, in some circumstances, the INS will need more time to clear all prospective entrants to the U.S. These simple steps will give appropriate officials advance notice of foreigners coming into the country, particularly visitors or immigrants who pose a security threat to the United States.

The Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act will also improve our lax U.S. foreign student visa program, which has allowed numerous foreigners to enter the country without ever attending classes and, for those who do attend class, with little or no oversight of such students by the Federal Government. Our bill will change that, and will require that the State Department within 4 months, with the concurrence of the INS, maintain a computer database with all relevant information about foreign students.

America is a nation that welcomes international visitors—and should remain so. But terrorists have taken advantage of our system and its openness. Now that we face new threats to our homeland, it is time we restore some balance to our consular and immigration policies.

As former chairman and now ranking Republican of the Judiciary Committee's Terrorism Subcommittee, I have long suggested, and strongly supported, many of the antiterrorism and immigration initiatives now being advocated by Republicans and Democrats alike. In my sadness about the overwhelming and tragic events that took thousands of precious lives, I am resolved to push forward on all fronts to fight against terrorism. That means delivering justice to those who are responsible for the lives lost on September 11, and reorganizing the institutions of government so that the law-abiding can continue to live their lives in freedom.

Madam President, as I said, 7 months is too long a period of time for the American people to wait for action on legislation that will make it tougher for terrorists to infiltrate the United States. I, therefore, urge my colleagues to act quickly to pass this bill. It really could mean the difference between a secure nation and one that continues to be vulnerable to infiltration by those who mean us no good. Time is absolutely of the essence.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, last September—5 days before the terrorist attacks on our Nation—President Vicente Fox delivered an historic address to this Congress on the importance of U.S.-Mexican relations.

On both sides of the political aisle, and on both sides of the U.S.-Mexican border, there was wide agreement that reforming our Nation's outdated immigration laws was an essential step in strengthening the relationship between our two countries.

Then came September 11.

One of the important lessons we learned on that horrific day is that border security is not simply a matter of immigration policy. It's a matter of urgent national security.

In the months since September 11, we have seen that the INS and the FBI lack the tools and resources to effectively track foreign nationals in our country. This includes even individuals with known links to terrorist networks. Not only are we unable to expel people who have violated their visas, very often we can't even find them.

Then last month, we were stunned to learn that the INS had just mailed confirmations of visa extensions to two of the terrorist hijackers responsible for the September 11 attacks.

I am proud to be one of the 61 sponsors of the bipartisan Enhanced Border Security and Visa Entry Reform Act, and I urge my colleagues to vote for it.

This act will strengthen America's border security and improve our ability to track visa holders—including foreign students.

It gives law enforcement agencies new tools and technology to share critical information, and to identify and intercept visitors who threaten our national security.

It also increases staffing and training for border security officers.

I want to thank Senator KENNEDY, the Chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration, and Senator FEINSTEIN for their leadership. Without their hard work and determined persistence, we would not be here today.

I also thank Senator BYRD for his efforts to improve this bill—and for his invaluable leadership on the larger challenge of strengthening America's homeland security in general.

We all know that authorizing legislation is important. But it takes resources to turn policies into workable laws. No one in Washington has fought harder to protect America from future terrorist attacks than ROBERT C. BYRD. I look forward to working with him to ensure that this and other homeland security measures are given the resources they need to work.

We cannot strengthen America's homeland security on the cheap, and we should not try. We need to do this right.

Just before President Fox's visit last September, Congressman GEPHARDT and I outlined principles for comprehensive immigration reform. Enhanced border security is one of those principles.

Unfortunately, another of our principles—extension of section 245(i) of the immigration code—is not included in this bill.

Section 245(i) would allow immigrants who are in this country, who have applied to become permanent residents and who are contributing to our society, to remain in this country while they wait for their "green card."

Many of these immigrants are married to Americans, and have children who were born in this country. Without Section 245(i), many of them face the impossible choice of leaving their families for up to 10 years, taking their families back with them to a country they may have fled to escape poverty or terror, or breaking the law, thus foregoing the chance to ever become a lawful permanent resident.

The Senate voted to extend section 245(i) last year, the same week President Fox spoke to Congress.

We had hoped and expected that the House would quickly do the same. Instead, it delayed for six months. By the time it finally acted, key deadlines contained in the bill had become unworkable.

I remain strongly committed to a meaningful 245(i) extension—one that gives long-time, tax-paying residents a genuine opportunity to remain in this country—with their families—while they wait to become permanent legal residents.

My colleagues and I look forward to working with Senators LOTT, HAGEL and BROWBACK and others, on a bipartisan basis, to send President Bush a 245(i) extension bill with realistic deadlines.

America needs an immigration system that is pro-family, pro-business and fair. Together, we can create such a system—one that sacrifices neither our security nor our ideals.

The new border security bill on which we are about to vote, and a meaningful extension of 245(i), are essential parts of such a system.

We also look forward to working with our Republican colleagues, and with the administration, to restructure and strengthen the INS, end the backlogs, provide meaningful access to earned legalization, and reunite families. We look forward to creating a new and better temporary worker program that treats workers with the respect they deserve and provides businesses with the employees they need.

Within hours after the twin towers collapsed, we heard some people say that America should close its doors to immigrants. Some people even said we should force out immigrants who are already here, working and contributing to our society.

People who say such things need to understand that our enemy is not immigrants, it is intolerance and hatred. America is strong not in spite of our diversity, but because of our diversity.

By passing this bill today, we are strengthening not only our border security, but our basic American values. It is the right thing to do, and I thank all of our colleagues who helped get us to this point.

Mr. BROWBACK. Mr. President, as we are getting this matter wrapped up, I wish to recognize four key staff members who really helped shepherd this bill through. This is important safety legislation.

I, first, recognize Senator KENNEDY's lead staff on this, Esther Olavarria, who is a humble, diligent servant of the State and who does a wonderful job on these sorts of issues. She worked closely with my staff member, David Neal, who is relatively new to the process but has diligently worked to shepherd this legislation on through.

Also, for Senator FEINSTEIN and for Senator KYL, two wonderful staff members who helped make the core nucleus in negotiating this through; Elizabeth Maier and LeVita Strickland are excellent people.

I think at the end of the day when we look to strengthen the borders of this country to protect our people, these four great citizens really dedicated a lot of time and a lot of soul to be able to get this through. I want to note their tremendous activity in this regard.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, before we proceed to this series of votes, I would like to make a few remarks concerning the bill.

I believe there is a certain amount of time on the bill. Is there?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is time under the control of Senators Kennedy and Brownback.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to give whatever time we have remaining to the Senator from West Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, in my long career of serving in various and sundry legislative branches, I have from time to time been awarded the honor of being the "legislator of the year" in connection with something. Let me say that as one who has served now in my 50th year in Congress this year, and having served as majority leader in this body during the years 1977, 1978, 1979, and 1980, and again during the years 1987 and 1988, and also having served as minority leader over a period of 6 years, and having served in the leadership in the Senate for 22 years, including my stint as majority whip and my stint as secretary of the Democratic Conference, I have had occasion to note some very successful and outstanding legislators. I would include among the most outstanding of those legislators Senator KENNEDY.

The late Senator Henry Jackson was another one of the outstanding legislators with whom I served. He was responsible for bringing a great deal of legislation to the floor dealing with energy, with the environment, and on various and sundry other matters. He was an outstanding legislator.

Senator KENNEDY is one who has proved to be an outstanding chairman of the committee. I think Senators will agree with me in observing that when Senator KENNEDY comes to the floor with a bill, especially if it is a bill that has been reported by his committee, a committee which he chairs, or by a committee on which he sits, he is always prepared. He has done his homework, and he makes a very forceful expression. He makes a very forceful expression of support of the managers of the amendment thereon. He is a formidable opponent of one who opposes a bill. Senator KENNEDY brings to the floor a formidable opponent of any Senators who offer amendments in opposition thereto. He is a well-rounded legislator in that his experience, and his knowledge of the subject matter of the legislation which he promotes, is, indeed, remarkable. As far as I am concerned, he is an outstanding legislator in the 50 years in which I have served in Congress.

Senator KENNEDY and I have not always been together on matters. We have been opponents in some instances. We have not necessarily, in the early days, held each other in terms of endearment.

But we have passed through those years and in the subsequent years—especially in the years when I served as majority leader, and the first time I served as majority leader in 1977, during those years, and in subsequent years, Senator KENNEDY has been one of my most supportive friends and fellow Senators. And I have counted his support as invaluable, particularly when I was majority leader. As the majority leader or the majority whip, sometimes one looks around and wonders where the troops are. And there are times when we look back over our shoulders and find that the troops are not necessarily there.

But Senator KENNEDY was always very supportive of me. There were times when he perhaps could not vote with me or could not exactly support a particular amendment of mine, but he was always most courteous and most considerate to me.

As we close the debate on this bill, I want to say once more, as I have said before, that Senator KENNEDY is a Senator who could well have graced the Senate at any moment of the Senate's long history, dating back to March 4, 1789. He would have been a worthy protagonist or antagonist, whatever the case might have been. I have learned to respect him and appreciate him as the years have come and gone. I have learned to appreciate him and respect him more and more.

So, Mr. President, I take this occasion to thank Senator KENNEDY for his courtesies during this debate. He invited me to testify before his Immigration Subcommittee last week. He visited my office several times over the last 4 months to listen to my concerns. He has always been very gracious to me, and I thank him for that.

I thank the other proponents of this legislation—Senator BROWNBACK, Senator KYL, and Senator FEINSTEIN. They have all been very fine authors of amendments. In particular, I think with respect to this bill, they have done an excellent job. They have been very kind to me, and they have been considerate. I want to take this occasion to thank them for their work on the bill. No one could be more patriotic than these Senators. No one could pay more attention to their duties in the Senate, their duties to their constituents whom they represent.

This is a bill that may still have some flaws in it. No piece of legislation, I would say, ever passes the Senate that is perfect, but they certainly have done their best in trying to improve it as we have gone along. I thank them all for the courtesies they have extended to me and the support they have expressed for these amendments I have offered.

So let me say, again, that with one of these Senators I have served since November 1962. And Senator KENNEDY well understands my interest in the institution of the Senate. To me, that is why I am here today, because of my interest in this institution and the Constitution. That is why I am here. I did not have to run last time to put bread and butter on my table. I could have retired and probably earned a bigger check in retirement. Since I have been paying into the retirement fund now for 50 years, this year, I could probably have earned a bigger check in retirement than I will have earned as a Senator.

But I am here to defend this institution. That is the only reason I am here. That is the only reason. I could have been better off if I had retired. Perhaps somebody would have had pity on me and asked me to serve on some board, and I could have raked in a little additional money. But that is neither here nor there.

I chose to serve here. This has been my career. I have loved this Senate from the first day I walked into it. And so I am proud to serve in it. The only reason I am here is that I believe in the Senate. I am not here because of any particular legislation. As a matter of fact, I am here because I love the Senate and want to do what I can to preserve the Senate prerogatives.

I believe there are three separate and distinct coordinate branches of Government. I believe that the legislative branch is the branch of the people. I think it is the people's branch. I believe that the Senate is the premier institution, the premier legislative institution—the U.S. Senate—in the world today. And there have been many senates. Perhaps the next greatest of all was the senate of the Roman people.

I am proud the people of West Virginia have seen fit to send me here, and send me back from time to time, and overlooked the warts and all in my makeup, politically and otherwise. But I reverence the Senate, honor it, and respect all Members of the body. It doesn't make a difference whether they are Republicans or Democrats or Independents; I respect them. We may not agree, but they are Senators. They are my equal any day. They are entitled to their viewpoint as much as I am entitled to mine.

So having said that, let me say, far too often Members of this body are willing to give up their right to debate and to amend legislation. I am pleased that at least some public debate has been generated on this bill and that the right of Senators to offer amendments was respected. I think the end product is a better piece of legislation than it was heretofore.

With regard to the amendment I offered on the importation of goods, especially Chinese goods, that are made using forced labor, I, of course, have determined not to press to include that amendment in this bill. But I continue to believe that the Congress needs to pass legislation to prevent goods made in foreign prisons and detention camps from crossing our borders. We also have a responsibility to protect our businesses from this unfair and reprehensible trade practice. I expect to raise the issue again at some point on some bill because much more needs to be done to discourage this blatant violation of our trade laws.

Senators should also be aware that we still do not have a cost estimate of this bill from the Congressional Budget Office. The INS estimates that the bill will cost $1 billion in the first year and $3.2 billion over 3 years, but those estimates likely underestimate the true costs. It is very well to authorize these funds—and I intend to vote for the bill—but this bill will require the appropriation of funds and the support of its proponents, and the support of the administration, for those appropriations if its provisions are to be implemented.

Again, I thank Senators KENNEDY, BROWNBACK, FEINSTEIN, and KYL for their interest in improving our Nation's border defenses. I thank them and I love them. I salute them for the work they have done in this respect. I hope we can maintain the bipartisan support we have seen on this bill when it comes time to appropriate the funds necessary to implement these provisions.

Mr. President, with that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from West Virginia. He is my friend. I know I really can speak for all Members in saying he is the defender of all of the constitutional prerogatives of this great institution. We have heard him speak this evening.

We have listened to that clear and compelling voice tonight, as we have heard it in defending the institution at other times.

I am wondering if I could ask a special favor of the Senator. He has been extremely kind. But what we have not heard tonight is the poem about the ambulance in the valley. I know it is late in the evening, but could the Senator—if we were to yield the Senator a few more minutes—recite that poem? Or would he prefer to wait for another time? If he would prefer not to, I would certainly understand.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator honors me by calling on me to repeat the lines of the poem by Joseph Malins titled "A Fence or an Ambulance." I am not sure I am really up to it at this point in the day. I am not sure I can do it on this short notice, but I will certainly try. It will not be the first time I have failed on a poem. Occasionally I do fail.

Let me think for a minute. Perhaps I could do that.

"'Twas a dangerous cliff, as they freely confessed,
Though to walk near its crest was so pleasant;
But over its terrible edge there had slipped
A duke and fall many a peasant.
So the people said something would have to be done,
But their projects did not at all tally;
Some said, "Put a fence around the edge of the cliff,"
Some, "An ambulance down in the valley."
But the cry for the ambulance carried the day,
For it spread through the neighboring city;
A fence may be useful or not, it is true,
But each heart became brimful of pity
For those who slipped over that dangerous cliff;
And the dwellers in highway and alley
Gave pounds or gave pence, not to put up a fence,
But an ambulance down in the valley.
"For the cliff is all right, if you're careful," they said,
"And, if folks even slip and are dropping,
It isn't the slipping that hurts them so much,
As the shock down below when they're stopping."
So day after day, as these mishaps occurred,
Quick forth would these rescuers sally
To pick up the victims who fell off the cliff,
With their ambulance down in the valley.
Then an old sage remarked: "It's a marvel to me
That people give far more attention
To repairing results than to stopping the cause,
When they'd much better aim at prevention.
Let us stop at its source all this mischief," cried he,
"Come, neighbors and friends, let us rally;
If the cliff we will fence we might almost dispense
With the ambulance down in the valley."
"Oh, he's a fanatic," the others rejoined,
"Dispense with the ambulance? Never!
He'd dispense with all charities, too, if he could;
No! No! We'll support them forever.
Aren't we picking up folks just as fast as they fall?
And shall this man dictate to us? Shall he?
Why should people of sense stop to put up a fence,

While the ambulance works down in the valley?"

But a sensible few, who are practical too,

Will not bear with such nonsense much longer;

They believe that prevention is better than cure,

And their party will soon be the stronger. Encourage them then, with your purse, voice, and pen,

And while other philanthropists dally, They will scorn all pretense and put up a stout fence

On the cliff that hangs over the valley. Better guide well the young than reclaim them when old,

For the voice of true wisdom is calling, "To rescue the fallen is good, but 'tis best

To prevent other people from falling." Better close up the source of temptation and crime

Than deliver from dungeon or galley; Better put a strong fence round the top of the cliff

Than an ambulance down in the valley."

Mr. KENNEDY. Hear. Hear. I thank the Senator.

Madam President, it is my understanding now that we will proceed to three votes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. CANTWELL). The Senator is correct.

Mr. KENNEDY. The order of the votes will be the two amendments of the Senator from West Virginia in the order in which they were offered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. KENNEDY. I ask unanimous consent that there be no intervening business in between the votes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. I further ask unanimous consent that after the first vote, the remaining two votes be 10 minutes in duration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KENNEDY. So that would include final passage; am I correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

The Senator from Nevada.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that following final passage of H.R. 3525, the Senate then proceed to executive session to consider the following nomination: Calendar No. 761, Legrome D. Davis to be United States District Judge; that Senator SPECTER be recognized for up to 5 minutes, and the Senate then vote on the nomination; the motion to reconsider be laid on the table, the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action; that any statements thereon be printed at the appropriate place in the RECORD, and the Senate return to legislative session, without any intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to ask for the yeas and nays on that nomination.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to address the body for 1 minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Madam President, I note a word of thanks to Senator BYRD. He has dealt with many of us for some period of time on this particular issue in some contentious situations. He has dealt with us privately, publicly, and in other forums. At the end of the day, we do come out with a better piece of legislation. For that I thank the Senator. At the time, going through it, I was not quite as thankful for that.

He has done a service to the country. And at the end of the day, we will have a better piece of legislation. I thank my colleagues, Senators KENNEDY, KYL, and FEINSTEIN. Together we crafted a good piece of legislation. I am thankful to be a part of it. I think it will be a very positive move for our country.

I yield the floor.

VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 3161

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under a previous order, the question is on agreeing to amendment No. 3161. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. INOUE) and the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. NELSON) are necessarily absent.

Mr. LOTT. I announce that the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. NICKLES) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

EXECUTIVE SESSION

NOMINATION OF LEGROME D. DAVIS, OF PENNSYLVANIA TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will go into executive session.

The nomination will be stated.

The legislative clerk read the nomination of Legrome D. Davis, of Pennsylvania, to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, the confirmation of Judge Legrome Davis to the District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania will be the 17th judge confirmed since the beginning of this session. Under Democratic leadership, in less than 4 months the Senate has confirmed as many judges as were confirmed in all 12 months of the 1996 session under Republican leadership. In fact, included among the 17 judges whom we will have confirmed since January this year are 2 judges to our Courts of Appeals. That stands in sharp contrast to the 1996 session in which the Republican majority did not allow even a single Court of Appeals nominee to be confirmed—not one. I submit that we have already done better in less than 4 months than our predecessors and critics did during the entire 12 months of the 1996 session.

The confirmation of Judge Davis today illustrates the progress being made under Democratic leadership and the fair and expeditious way in which we have considered nominees. Judge Legrome Davis was first nominated to the position of U.S. District Court Judge for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania by President Clinton on July 30, 1998. The Republican-controlled Senate took no action on his nomination and it was returned to the President at the end of 1998. On January 26, 1999, President Clinton renominated Judge Davis for the same vacancy. The Senate again failed to hold a hearing for Judge Davis and his nomination was returned to the President on December 15, 2000, after 2 more years of inaction in a second full Congress while the Senate was controlled by a Republican majority. Under Republican leadership, Judge Davis' nomination languished before the Committee for 868 days without a hearing. Unfortunately, Judge Davis was subjected to the kind of inappropriate partisan rancor that befell so many other nominees to the district courts in Pennsylvania and to the Third Circuit during the years Republicans controlled the Senate. I want to note emphatically, however, that I know personally that the senior Senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. SPECTER, supported Judge Davis's nomination and worked hard to get him a hearing and a vote. The lack of Senate action on Judge Davis's initial nominations are in no way attributable to a lack of support from the senior Senator from Pennsylvania. Far from it. In fact, I give Senator SPECTER credit for getting President Bush to renominate Judge Davis earlier this year and want to commend him publicly for all he has done to support this nomination from the outset.

This year we have moved expeditiously to consider Judge Davis. Judge Davis was nominated by President Bush in late January 2002, the Committee received his ABA peer review on March 12, he participated in a confirmation hearing the next week on March 19, and he received a unanimous vote by the Judiciary Committee on April 11—less than 3 months after his nomination, and less than 1 month after his paperwork was completed. The saga of Judge Davis recalls for us so many nominees from the period of January 1995 through July 10, 2001, who never received a hearing or a vote and who were the subject of secret anonymous holds by Republicans for reasons that were never explained.

At Judge Davis' recent confirmation hearing Senator SANTORUM testified that Judge Davis did not get a hearing after President Clinton nominated him because local Democrats objected. I was the ranking Democrat on the Judiciary Committee during those years and never heard that before. My understanding at the time, from July 1998 until the end of 2000, was that Judge Legrome Davis would have had the support of every Democrat on the Judiciary Committee and in the Senate. He was not included in the May 2000 hearing for a few other Pennsylvania nominees. His not being included was a part of the discussion on the record, a discussion about unwillingness of some to act on nominees in a presidential election year although Senator SPECTER emphasized his personal commitment to supporting Judge Davis. Senator HATCH never indicated to me that he thought Democratic opposition was the reason he could not include Judge Legrome Davis in a hearing over those 3 years.

Judge Davis has served as a Judge on the Court of Common Pleas in the First Judicial District in Pennsylvania for more than 13 years. Prior to serving as a judge, he had an extensive career litigating criminal cases in State courts. He has participated in numerous task forces and a variety of pro bono projects aimed to improve the judicial system. He is well-qualified and has broad bipartisan support. I know that Judge Davis and his family are glad that this day has finally arrived. I expect that the people served by the Eastern District of Pennsylvania will be happy with the Senate's action today.

Judge Davis will be the 45th judicial nominee to be confirmed since last July when the Senate Judiciary Committee reorganized after the Senate majority changed. With today's vote on Judge Davis, the Senate will confirm its 45th judicial nominee in the less than 10 months since I became Chairman this past summer. The Senate has confirmed more judges in the last 10 months than were confirmed in 4 out of 6 full years under Republican leadership. The number of judicial confirmations over these past 10 months 45 exceeds the number confirmed during all 12 months of 2000, 1999, 1997 and 1996.

As our action today demonstrates, again, we are moving at a fast pace to fill judicial vacancies with nominees who have strong bipartisan support. Those partisan critics who assert that our rate of confirming President Bush's judicial nominees is bad are ignoring the facts. They willfully confuse the actual "pace," or rate, of confirmation with the misleading percentages they like to construct. The facts are that looking at the number of confirmations in similar time periods shows that we are confirming President Bush's nominees at a faster pace than the nominees of prior presidents, including those who worked closely with a Senate majority of the same political party.

The rate of confirmation in the past 10 months actually exceeds the rates of confirmation in the past three presidencies. For example, in the first 15 months of the Clinton administration, 46 judicial nominees were confirmed, a pace on average of 3.1 per month. In the first 15 months of the first Bush administration, 27 judges were confirmed at a pace of 1.8 judges per month. Likewise, in President Reagan's first 15 months in office, 54 judges were confirmed, a pace of 3.6 per month. In less than 10 months since the shift to a Democratic majority in the Senate in less than two thirds of the time period—President George W. Bush's judicial nominees have been confirmed at a rate of more than 4.5 judges per month, a faster pace than for any of the past 3 Presidents.

During the 6½ years of Republican control of the Senate, judicial confirmations averaged 38 per year a pace of consideration and confirmation that we have already exceeded under Democratic leadership over these past 10 months in spite of all of the challenges facing Congress and the Nation during this period and all of the obstacles Republicans have placed in our path. At the end of today, we have confirmed 45 judicial nominees in just 10 months. This is almost twice as many confirmations as George W. Bush's father had over a longer period—27 nominees in 15—months than the period we have been in the majority in the Senate.

The Republican critics typically compare apples to oranges to mischaracterize the achievements of the last 10 months. They complain that we have not done 24 months of work in the less than 10 months we have been in the majority. That is an unfair complaint. A fair examination of the rate of confirmation shows that Democrats are working harder and faster on judicial nominees, confirming judges at a faster pace than the rates of the past 20 years. The double standards asserted by Republican critics are just plain wrong and unfair, but that does not seem to matter to Republicans intent on criticizing and belittling every achievement of the Senate under a Democratic majority. I would like to commend the members of the Judiciary Committee and our Majority Leader and Assistant Majority Leader for all of their hard work in getting us to this point. The confirmation of the 45th judge in less than 10 months, especially these last 10 months, in spite of the unfair and personal criticism to which they have each been subjected, is an extraordinary achievement and a real example of Senators acting in a bipartisan way even when the other side makes it as difficult as possible.

Republicans have been imposing a double standard on circuit court vacancies as well. The Republican attack is based on the unfounded notion that the Senate has not kept up with attrition on the Courts of Appeals. Well, the Democratic majority in the Senate has more than kept up with attrition, and we have been acting to close the vacancies gap on the Courts of Appeals that more than doubled under the Republican majority.

Just this week, the Senate confirmed Judge Terrence O'Brien to the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit by a vote of 98 to zero. His confirmation was the eighth circuit court nominee to be confirmed in the almost 10 months since I became Chairman this past summer. Just today, the Senate Judiciary Committee voted on the 11th Court of Appeals nominee to come before the Committee in less than 10 months. Thus, another Court of Appeals nominee is already on the Senate Executive Calendar and being scheduled for floor action.

In a little less than 10 months since the change in majority, the Senate has confirmed 8 judges to the Courts of Appeals and held hearings on 3 others. In contrast, the Republican-controlled majority averaged only 7 confirmations to the Courts of Appeals per year. Seven. In the less than 10 months the Democrats have been in the majority, we have already exceeded the annual number of Court of Appeals judges confirmed by our predecessors. The Senate in the last 10 months has confirmed as many Court of Appeals judges as were confirmed in all of 2000 and more than were confirmed in 1997 or 1999, and 8 more than the zero from 1996. Another way to put it is that within the last 10 months, the Democratic majority in the Senate has confirmed as many Court of Appeals judges as were confirmed in the 2000 and 1996 sessions combined and confirmed more Court of Appeals judges than were confirmed in the 1999 and 1996 sessions combined or in the 1997 and 1996 sessions combined.

The Republican majority assumed control of judicial confirmations in January 1995 and did not allow the Judiciary Committee to be reorganized after the shift in majority last summer until July 10, 2001. During that period from 1995 through July 10, 2001, vacancies on the Courts of Appeals increased from 16 to 33, more than doubling.

When I became chairman of a Committee to which Members were finally assigned on July 10, we began with 33 Courts of Appeals vacancies. That is what I inherited. Since the shift in majority last summer, 5 additional vacancies have arisen on the Courts of Appeals around the country. With this week's confirmation of Judge O'Brien, we have reduced the number of circuit court vacancies to 30. That is, we have kept up with attrition by confirming 5 Court of Appeals judges and then acted to lower the number of vacancies by already confirming 3 additional judges. Those are the facts.

Since our Republican critics are so fond of using percentages, I will say that we will have now reduced the vacancies on the Courts of Appeals by almost 10 percent in the last 10 months. In other words, by confirming 3 more nominees than the 5 required to keep up with the pace of attrition, we have not just matched the rate of attrition, but surpassed it by 60 percent. I add this facetiously to show how ridiculous their use of percentages is in this setting.

Rather than the 38 vacancies that would exist if we were making no progress, as some have asserted, there are now 30 vacancies—that is more than keeping up with the attrition on the Circuit Courts. Republican critics unfairly seek to attribute to the Democratic majority the lack of action by the Republican majority before the historic change last summer.

While the Republican Senate majority increased vacancies on the Courts of Appeals by over 100 percent, it has taken the Democratic majority less than 10 months to reverse that trend, keep up with extraordinary turnover and, in addition, reduce circuit court vacancies overall. This is progress. Rather than having the circuit vacancy numbers skyrocketing, as they did overall during the prior 6½ years—more than doubling from 16 to 33—the Democratic-led Senate has reversed that trend. The vacancies numbers are moving in the right direction—down.

It is not possible to repair the damage caused by longstanding vacancies in several circuits overnight, but we are improving the conditions in the 5th, 10th and 8th Circuits, in particular. The confirmation of Judge O'Brien this week made the second judge confirmed to the 10th Circuit in the last 4 months. Next week we will proceed with a nominee to the 6th Circuit.

Overall, in little less than 10 months, the Senate Judiciary Committee has held 16 hearings involving 55 judicial nominations. That is more hearings on judges than the Republican majority held in any year of its control of the Senate. In contrast, one-sixth of President Clinton's judicial nominees—more than 50—never got a Committee hearing and Committee vote from the Republican majority, which perpetuated longstanding vacancies into this year. Vacancies continue to exist on the Courts of Appeals in large part because a Republican majority was not willing to hold hearings or vote on more than half—56 percent—of President Clinton's Court of Appeals nominees in 1999 and 2000, and was not willing to confirm a single judge to the Courts of Appeals during the entire 1996 session.

Despite the new-found concern from across the aisle about the number of vacancies on the circuit courts, no nominations hearings were held while the Republicans controlled the Senate in the 107th Congress last year. No judges were confirmed during that time from among the many qualified circuit court nominees received by the Senate on January 3, 2001, or from among the nominations received by the Senate on May 9, 2001.

The Democratic leadership acted promptly to address the number of circuit and district vacancies that had been allowed to grow when the Senate was in Republican control. The Judiciary Committee noticed the first hearing on judicial nominations within 10 minutes of the reorganization of the Senate, and held that hearing on the day after the Committee was assigned new members.

That initial hearing included a Court of Appeals nominee on whom the Republican majority had refused to hold a hearing the year before. We held unprecedented hearings for judicial nominees during the August recess. Those hearings included a Court of Appeals nominee who had been a Republican staff member of the Senate. We proceeded with a hearing the day after the first anthrax letter arrived at the Senate. That hearing included a Court of Appeals nominee. In a little less than 10 tumultuous months, the Senate Judiciary Committee has held 16 hearings involving 55 judicial nominations—including 11 circuit court nominees—and we are planning to hold another hearing next week for half a dozen more nominees, including another Court of Appeals nominee. That is more hearings on judges than the Republican majority held in any year of its control of the Senate. The Republican majority never held 16 judicial confirmation hearings in 12 months and we have to do so in less than 10 months.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is holding regular hearings on judicial nominees and giving nominees a vote in Committee, in contrast to the practice of anonymous holds and other obstructionist tactics employed by some during the period of Republican control. The Democratic majority has reformed the process and practices used in the past to deny Committee consideration of judicial nominees. We have moved away from the anonymous holds that so dominated the process from 1996 through 2000. We have made home State Senators' blue slips public for the first time.

I do not mean by my comments to appear critical of Senator HATCH. Many times during the 6½ years he chaired the Judiciary Committee, I observed that, were the matter left up to us, we would have made more progress on more judicial nominees. I thanked him during those years for his efforts. I know that he would have liked to have been able to do more and not have to leave so many vacancies and so many nominees without action.

I hope to hold additional hearings and make additional progress on judicial nominees. In our efforts to address the number of vacancies on the circuit and district courts we inherited from the Republicans, the Committee has focused on consensus nominees for all Senators. In order to respond to what Vice President CHENEY and Senator HATCH now call a vacancy crisis, the Committee has focused on consensus nominees. This will help end the crisis caused by Republican delay and obstruction by confirming as many of the President's judicial nominees as quickly as possible.

Most Senators understand that the more controversial nominees require greater review. This process of careful review is part of our democratic process. It is a critical part of the checks and balances of our system of government that does not give the power to make lifetime appointments to one person alone to remake the courts along narrow ideological lines, to pack the courts with judges whose views are outside of the mainstream of legal thought, and whose decisions would further divide our nation.

The Committee continues to try to accommodate Senators from both sides of the aisle. The Court of Appeals nominees included at hearings so far this year have been at the request of Senator GRASSLEY, Senator LOTT, Senator SPECTER, Senator ENZI and Senator SMITH from New Hampshire—five Republican Senators who each sought a prompt hearing on a Court of Appeals nominee who was not among those initially sent to the Senate in May 2001. Next week's hearing will continue that effort and include a Court of Appeals nominee from Tennessee at the request of Senator THOMPSON.

Each of the 45 nominees confirmed by the Senate has received the unanimous, bipartisan backing of the Committee. Only Judge Roger Gregory has had a single vote cast against his confirmation in all of the Senate votes on all of these nominees. The confirmation of Judge Davis is the 45th judicial nominee to be confirmed since I became Chairman last July. Like Judge Roger Gregory, this is the confirmation of a qualified nominee who could not get a hearing when the Republican majority controlled the Senate. I had hoped that at the end of the day, justice would be done. I am glad that this is that day, and that at the end of today Judge Davis will also have been considered and confirmed. These consensus nominees could and should have been acted upon before this year. I thank Judge Davis for his commitment and patience, and congratulate him and his family on this important day.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, I rise in support of the confirmation of Judge Legrome Davis to the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Judge Davis' nomination is yet another example of President Bush's bipartisan approach to judicial nominations. This is the second time, Judge Roger Gregory being the first, that this administration has renominated a candidate who was originally nominated by the previous administration. It is a rarity for a new administration to renominate a previous administration's judicial nominees, especially when the two administrations are of different parties. Clearly, the President is leading by example when he calls upon the Senate to rise above petty partisanship and provide fair hearings and prompt votes to every judicial nominee regardless of what party controls the White House or the Senate.

I have had the pleasure of reviewing Judge Davis' distinguished legal career, and I have come to the conclusion that he is a fine Pennsylvania State judge who will only add to the distinguished Federal bench in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Judge Davis graduated from Princeton University and Rutgers-Camden School of Law. After graduation, he joined the Office of the District Attorney of Philadelphia as an Assistant District Attorney in the Law and Trial Divisions. Eventually, he rose to become Assistant Chief of Narcotics and then Chief of the Rape Unit.

One of the many examples of his fine character revolves around a defendant's rape conviction before Judge Davis led the D.A.'s Rape Unit. Upon examination of new evidence, it became clear that the alleged victim, in the case, suffered from paranoid schizophrenia and had hallucinated the criminal episode. The investigation that freed the defendant was conducted by Davis.

His record of rulings before the appellate courts is equally as impressive. Judge Davis has filed approximately 150 cases, of which only 3 were overturned on appeal—and the Pennsylvania Supreme Court reinstated his decision in one of those cases.

Judge Davis has been a champion in reforming the Philadelphia court system. He helped author and was an early proponent of Philadelphia's differentiated case management system. This system, which groups defendants with similar case dispositions into one of four "tracks," has resulted in a 47 percent reduction in the Felony-Waiver Unit's pending inventory.

I am very pleased that we will confirm Judge Davis today.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, in January 2002, Judge Legrome Davis was nominated by President Bush to serve on the United States District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

The American Bar Association rated Judge Davis as well-qualified for a judgeship on the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Judge Davis presently serves on the Court of the Common Pleas of Philadelphia County, a position he has held since 1987.

From 1992 until January 2001, Judge Davis served as the Supervising Judge of the Criminal Division, with principal responsibility for all issues of policy, planning and administration involving criminal case processing.

During his tenure as Supervising Judge, numerous city, state and federal funding authorities awarded the First Judicial District more than nineteen million dollars to support supervisory endeavors for defendants developed by Judge Davis and administered under his direction.

He is the Coordinator of the Female Offenders' Criminal Justice Treatment Network, a collaborative project linking the criminal justice and treatment communities in addressing the complex and special challenges of women in the criminal justice system.

Judge Davis was integral in conceptualizing and implementing the court reforms which were integral to the suspension of the federal prison cap in 1995.

Previously he worked for Ballard, Spahr, Ingersoll & Andrews, and the Office of the General Counsel of the University of Pennsylvania. He was also an Assistant District Attorney for nine years, serving in the Homicide, Narcotics, and Career Criminal Units, and was the Chief of the Rape Prosecution Unit when he left office to seek a state court judgeship.

He has been honored by the Pennsylvania Trial Judges Association "Golden Crowbar Award, the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court Board of Judges Exceptional Service Award, the Philadelphia Bar Association; Thurgood Marshall Award, the Philadelphia Coalition for Victim Advocacy; Victim Advocacy Award and the Fraternal Order of Police Honorary Lifetime Membership—Lodge 92.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, if I could announce to colleagues, this is the last vote tonight. There will not be any votes tomorrow. The Senate will not be in session tomorrow, and there will be no rollcall votes on Monday. The next rollcall vote will occur sometime Tuesday morning.

I thank my colleagues. Have a good evening and a good weekend.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination of Legrome D. Davis, to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania? The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. I announce that the Senator from California (Mrs. BOXER), the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. INOUE), and the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. NELSON) are necessarily absent.

Mr. LOTT. I announce that the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. NICKLES), the Senator from Missouri (Mr. BOND), and the Senator from Kansas (Mr. ROBERTS) are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 94, nays 0, as follows:

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will return to legislative session.

The majority leader.

WISHING MARY JANE OGILVIE A FULL RECOVERY

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I wanted to come to the floor before the end of the day to alert our colleagues on a matter about which I know they would all be concerned. Mary Jane Ogilvie, wife of our Chaplain, a very treasured member of our Senate family, is battling bacterial pneumonia this week. She is in an area hospital and in serious but stable condition.

Dr. Ogilvie and his children are, of course, with her as they have been throughout this ordeal. Dr. Ogilvie has been our Chaplain now for 7 years, since 1995, and over the years he has been the source of real strength for many of us in times of sorrow, in times of difficulty. Especially these last difficult months, we have relied on his wise and compassionate counsel over and over again. Now it is our turn to be the source of strength for him, for Mrs. Ogilvie, and for their family.

The Chaplain's Office asked that we not send flowers because they are not permitted in intensive care, but if you believe in prayer, they say, please pray for Mrs. Ogilvie. We will certainly do so.

We want to extend—I know on behalf of all Senators, Republican and Democratic—our sincere best wishes for a complete and full recovery. We wish her strength, and we want her to know that our thoughts and prayers are with her tonight and will continue to be with her until she returns to good health.

I just talked to Dr. Ogilvie this afternoon. He has informed me that the prognosis is improving. We hope that that will be the case throughout the weekend. We wanted to make note of this at this time.

I know my colleague, the distinguished Republican leader, has also had a conversation with Dr. Ogilvie, and to accommodate his words at this time, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. I thank Senator DASCHLE for making our colleagues and those who follow the situation in the Senate aware of the struggle our Chaplain is going through now. He has been a chaplain and a minister for all of us.

As Senator DASCHLE said, each one of us has had moments of difficulty over the past 7 years. He is always there. Just recently, when my wife lost her father, she didn't get to talk to Dr. Ogilvie, but he left a message on the recorder. It was like a message from heaven, just magnificent; so meaningful, my wife saved it and listened to it more than once.

So at this time when our Chaplain is facing difficulty, certainly we need him to know of our thoughts and our prayers. When I spoke to him, I told him that I believe in miracles and that his wife can pull through this and rejoin the Senate family.

Mary Jane is very much a part of the family. She attends events; she goes with our Chaplain so many places. She is his helpmate. As I spoke with him a few minutes ago, I could just feel it in his voice; he is just really so worried.

I join Senator DASCHLE and all of the Senate in extending to them our love and our thoughts and prayers. We look forward to continuing to follow her improvements. We have the Senate physician, Dr. Frist, on the job. He is keeping us posted of how she is doing. We will be thinking about them over the next weekend and look forward to them being back in full form and with us on all these many occasions at which we enjoy their presence.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

NATIONAL LABORATORIES PARTNERSHIP IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2001—Continued

Mr. BAUCUS. What is the business of the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. S. 517 is the pending business.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that there be a time limitation of 1 hour equally divided between myself and Senator GRASSLEY for debate on the Finance Committee energy tax amendment; that no amendments be in order to my amendment except a second-degree amendment by Senator GRASSLEY; that at the conclusion or yielding back of the time, the Senate vote in relation to Senator GRASSLEY's second-degree amendment and to my Finance Committee amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LOTT. Reserving the right to object, I supported this tax section that Senator BAUCUS is trying to add to the energy bill at this time when we had it in the Finance Committee. Obviously, there are some things in there that I would prefer not be in there. But we had an overwhelming vote out of the Finance Committee in support of this package.

An energy policy that does not include a tax section is not a complete policy. We have to have some incentives for these hybrid cell vehicles and to try to get marginal wells back in production, to encourage biomass, to do everything we can, along with the policy that is included in this bill, to also encourage more energy production and more energy conservation through the Tax Code.

I support this. I will be glad to work with Senator BAUCUS to see that we get it included in the Senate package or certainly in the conference when a conference is completed. We have to do that.

But at this time, we do have an objection from our side of the aisle. And on behalf of a Senator who has a tax provision in which he is very interested, I am constrained to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, I hear the distinguished Senator from Mississippi. I very much understand the reasons for his objection. I deeply appreciate his statement in support of the Finance Committee title that we hope to offer to this bill.

The provisions in the Finance Committee title total roughly $15 to $16 billion over 10 years. The Senate hopefully will pass the Senate-passed version of tax incentives. It will be incentives for production, conventional production, renewables, unconventional production, for conservation. The House passed a tax title to their energy bill which totals about $30 billion.

I fully agree with the distinguished Senator that the Finance Committee provisions, which will help wean us away from OPEC by providing incentives on matters that I suggested, are vitally important. And I hope—in fact, I expect—that the Senate, before it passes an energy bill, will also include these provisions because they are such an integral and vital part of the bill.

I thank all concerned, particularly my good friend from Mississippi.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

CLOTURE MOTION

Mr. REID. Madam President, I send a cloture motion to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The cloture motion having been presented under rule XXII, the Chair directs the clerk to read the motion.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, hereby move to bring to a close the debate on the Daschle/Bingaman substitute amendment No. 2917 for Calendar No. 65, S. 517, a bill to authorize funding for the Department of Energy and for other purposes:

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to a period for morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for not to exceed 5 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR'S ERGONOMICS ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, since President Bush signed into law a provision to overturn the ergonomics rule, over 1.8 million workers have suffered ergonomic injuries. At that time Secretary Chao promised "to pursue a comprehensive approach to ergonomics." However, now more than a year later, the Department of Labor has unveiled a plan that ultimately falls short of the substantive protections needed to protect America's workers.

In response, Senator JOHN BREAUX and others have introduced a bill that would require that the Department of Labor promulgate a new rule on ergonomics within 2 years.

I am deeply concerned that the administration continues to build on its record of putting special interests above working Americans. I believe that Senator BREAUX's bill is an important measure that clarifies that workers deserve real protections, not more studies and voluntary guidelines.

Unfortunately, the administration's late announcement fails to provide workers adequate protections. The administration's plan states an "intent" to develop voluntary guidelines for selected industries. Senator BREAUX's bill will ensure that the administration provides real protections and not hollow promises.

STATUS OF JUDICIAL CONFIRMATIONS

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, I would like to respond to some comments made yesterday on the topic of judicial confirmations. I had no intention of bringing up this topic today, but now I find myself with no choice but to again set the record straight with respect to the comments my colleague made earlier yesterday.

First, I would like to put my remarks in context. I began this Session of the 107th Congress by praising the way that Chairman LEAHY and the Senate's Democratic leader had begun to handle judicial nominations. One of the reasons I did so was that I had detected the possibility that the Judiciary Committee may be headed in a new direction as we began a new Session. I sensed a chance that, after more than eight months of Democratic control, the leaders might stop steering their course by staring at the rear-view mirror, and would begin to look forward through the windshield at the work ahead. I thought that they might begin to sense the American people's frustration at the Senate's stonewalling of President Bush's priorities—especially his selections for the judiciary. Obviously, now that we are in the eleventh month of Democratic control, my optimism has become tarnished not only by the continuing extremely slow pace of confirmations and the blatant mistreatment of Judge Pickering, but also by the kind of comments we heard this morning that actually attempt to persuade the American people that the Senate's record is acceptable.

I want to correct a couple distortions of the record and explain what is really going on in the Judiciary Committee.

My colleague began his comments with the assertion that the Democrats have only been in charge of the Judiciary Committee since the end of July rather than the beginning of June—which somehow adds up to 9 months. This particular exercise in make believe is apparently very important for some of my colleagues to repeat over and over. But the fact is—as everyone in the Senate knows—that Democrats took charge of the Senate on June 5, not at the end of July. Considering that it is now the middle of April, we are now in the eleventh month of Democratic control.

Why is this important? Playing make-believe that the month of June didn't exist last year helps some of my colleagues explain away the fact that they failed to hold any confirmation hearings during that entire month. There is no basis for the underlying assertion that the lack of an organizational resolution prevented the Judiciary Committee from doing so. It certainly didn't stop 9 other Senate Committees from holding 16 confirmation hearings for 44 nominees during that same month. And it did not prevent the Judiciary Committee from holding five hearings in three weeks on a variety of issues other than pending nominations.

Of course, the month-of-June distortion is simply part of the larger charade of pretending that the current judicial vacancy crisis has less to do with the last 11 months of foot dragging than with the Committee's work between the years 1994 and 2000. The fact is that, at the close of the 106th Congress, there were only 67 vacancies in the federal judiciary. In the space of one Democratic-controlled congressional session last year, that number shot up to nearly 100, where it remains today. The broader picture shows that the Senate confirmed essentially the same number of judges for President Clinton (377) as it did for President Reagan (382), which proves bipartisan fairness—especially when you consider that both Presidents has six years of Republican control in the Senate.

So, how did we go from 67 vacancies at the end of the Clinton Administration to nearly 100 today? There can be only one answer: The current pace of hearings and confirmations is simply not keeping up with the increase in vacancies. We are moving so slowly that we are making no forward progress. President Bush nominated 66 highly qualified individuals to fill judicial vacancies last year. But in the first four months of Democratic control of the Senate last year, only 6 federal judges were confirmed. At several hearings, the Judiciary Committee considered only one or two judges at a time. The Committee voted on only 6 of 29 circuit court nominees in 2001, a rate of 21%, leaving 23 of them without any action at all. In fact, eight of the first eleven judges that President Bush nominated on May 9 of last year still have not had a hearing—despite being pending for 344 days as of today.

It is time for this Senate to examine the real situation in the Judiciary Committee, rather than listen to more inventive ways of distorting it. We have lots of work to do. There are 96 vacancies in the Federal judiciary—a vacancy rate of more than 11.2 percent—and we have 53 nominees pending—plus 4 nominees for the Court of Federal Claims. Twenty of the pending nominees are for circuit court positions, yet the Senate has confirmed only 2 circuit judges this session. This is despite a crisis of 30 vacancies pending in the circuit courts nationwide—virtually the same number of vacancies pending when the Democrats took control of the Senate in June of last year.

These numbers beg the question: If the Judiciary Committee is not making any progress on the judicial vacancy crisis, What is happening in the Judiciary Committee? What is the Committee doing in lieu of confirming President Bush's nominees?

Well, the judicial confirmation process appears to be falling into the hands of some extreme-left special-interest groups whose political purposes are served by launching invidious attacks on the good people President Bush has nominated to serve as judges.

We all know too well what happened to Judge Pickering, who was a decent, honorable man who is clearly qualified to be a judge on the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. So I won't recount that very unfortunate situation. But I would like to warn everyone that the stoves of the special interest groups are readying to boil up an attack on Judge Brooks Smith of Pennsylvania who had a hearing nearly two months ago but still has had no vote in the Judiciary Committee.

If you are waiting to hear that some profound issue has been raised about a complicated or important legal issue, I am sorry to disappoint you. The fact is that Judge Smith has a very distinguished record as a Federal judge for nearly 14 years, and no one has questioned his ability or competence. So what is the great issue that may well be endangering his nomination—you might ask? Well, believe it or not, some are trying to make hay out of the fact that Judge Smith used to be a member of a small family-oriented fishing club—like hundreds that exist from Vermont to Wisconsin to North Carolina to Utah, that happens to limit membership to men.

Let me note at the outset that Judge Smith's nomination is supported by the Women's Bar Association of Western Pennsylvania and the local Domestic Violence Board in Pennsylvania. The people who know him best are the ones who support him the most.

It is also important to recognize that the Judiciary Committee, in 1990, and the Judicial Conference, in 1992, each made clear that Judges or nominees can belong to single-gender clubs so long as the club exhibits certain attributes of privacy first articulated by Justice William Brennan for the Supreme Court in Roberts v. Jaycees.

In Roberts, Justice Brennan—the great liberal patriarch of American jurisprudence—first articulated the right of intimate association in furtherance of the Freedom of Association recognized by the Supreme Court in NAACP v. Alabama as an extension of First Amendment speech. Such intimate association, Justice Brennan said, must be protected “as a fundamental element of personal liberty,” and “choices to enter into and maintain certain intimate human relationships must be secured against undue intrusion . . . because of the role of such relationships in safeguarding the individual freedom central to our constitutional scheme.” The Court went on to describe the attributes of such intimate associations as “relative smallness . . . a high degree of selectivity in decisions to begin and maintain the affiliation, and seclusion from others in critical aspects of the relationship.”

I should note that the club that Judge Smith belonged to has only 115 members.

I for one, stand by the American people's Freedom of Association as defined by the Supreme Court. As Justice Thurgood Marshall pointed out, the ability to associate as we see fit is part of what makes this country great, and a freedom we honor. And I hope we can all recognize that Judges, or people who might want to be Judges someday, should be just as free as anyone else to exercise that right. There is no point to turning the nomination of Judge Smith into a referendum on the Freedom of Association. And there is certainly no sympathy among the American electorate to turn yet another of President Bush's judicial nominees into a mere single-issue caricature when Judge Smith has an outstanding record of service to our country.

I am very concerned that any further delay of Judge Smith's confirmation will lead to even more cynicism about the Senate in the minds of the American people. The voters who have watched the Judiciary Committee during the past eleven months already know that the vacancy crisis is not tit for tat or mere payback for anything that happened in the past. The voters know that the Democratic leadership has plunged into truly uncharted territory, holding up an absolutely unprecedented percentage of President Bush's nominees and, in the process, allowing leftist special interest groups to smear decent and accomplished public servants in order to serve highly partisan political aims.

There is no better way to understand the extreme partisanship of these powerful leftist groups than to look at the irony in their call for “diversity” on the circuit courts of appeal. I of course agree with having a diverse judiciary, but I do not believe that these groups mean what they say.

Let's look at judicial diversity. Right now, over 50 percent of the active federal judges in America were appointed by President Clinton. The best way to ensure diversity on the bench is for the Senate to confirm more Bush nominees who will enforce existing law and leave lawmaking to the people's elected representatives, including the President's nominees from Minority groups.

But I fear that nominees like Miguel Estrada, whom the President has nominated to be the first Hispanic to sit on the second most prestigious court in the land, are not getting a fair shake because out-of-the-mainstream liberal groups show increasing intolerance to Hispanics and African-Americans who don't subscribe to the left-of-mainstream ideology. The intolerance is not because of race, but because many liberals will not give the time of day to any minority or woman who have become accomplished in any field other than liberal activism. I fear that the Liberals are seriously thinking about shutting the door to our Courts of Appeal to any Hispanic, African-American or woman who does not toe the line of the radical, left-of-center special interest groups. That would be a great tragedy for our country. I would be an end to the very diversity that is the strength of America and its judicial system.

We cannot allow outside groups to impede progress. In fact, what we need is to approve more circuit judges at a faster pace to address the vacancy crisis in the federal appellate courts. The Sixth Circuit is presently functioning at a 50 percent capacity. Eight of that court's 16 seats are vacant. President Bush has nominated 7 well qualified individuals to fill the vacancies on that court. Two of those nominees, Deborah Cook and Jeffrey Sutton, have been pending since May 9 of last year—344 days of inaction. They have languished in Committee without so much as a hearing while the Sixth Circuit functions at 50 percent capacity. Another appellate court that is in trouble is the D.C. Circuit, which is missing one-third of its judges: It has only 8 of its 12 seats filled. President Bush nominated two exceedingly well qualified individuals to fill seats on the D.C. Circuit on May 9 of last year. Those individuals, Miguel Estrada and John Roberts, are among the most well respected appellate lawyers in the country. Yet the Judiciary Committee has not granted them a hearing, much less a vote.

Part of the problem is a decision by the Committee not to consider more than one circuit judge per hearing. In fact, the Committee has not moved more than one circuit judge per hearing during the entire time the Democrats have had control of the Senate. When I was Chairman, I had 10 hearings with more than one circuit nominee on the agenda. If we are going to get serious about filling circuit vacancies, then I encourage my Democratic colleagues to move more than one circuit nominee per hearing.

The bottom line of all this is that America is facing a real crisis facing its federal judiciary, especially the circuit courts of appeals, due to the nearly 100 vacancies that plague it. The Judiciary Committee has decided not to make any progress toward remedying this situation. Instead, it is pouring its energy into creative accounting and make believe. But the American people are sick of the charades and are disgusted by the personal destruction for partisan purposes. They want the Senate to help—not hinder—President Bush. I urge my friends across the aisle to focus on this situation, to step up the pace of hearings and votes, to resist the powerful leftists who are the enemies of the independent judiciary, and to do what's right for the country.

HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION TO THE BANKRUPTCY BILL

Mr. KOHL. Madam President, the bankruptcy conference will meet on Tuesday to discuss and attempt to resolve the remaining differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill.

One of those issues is the Senate provision that addresses the single most offensive abuse in the bankruptcy system, the homestead exemption. As we all know, the homestead exemption allows debtors in five privileged States to declare bankruptcy but still shield unlimited millions of dollars in their homes from their creditors.

With every year that passes, we learn of new cases where scoundrels have declared bankruptcy in States like Florida and Texas but have continued to live like kings in multi-million dollar mansions.

Just 2 weeks ago, the New York Times ran a story on former Enron executives like Ken Lay and Andrew Fastow who are doing some bankruptcy planning of their own. They are selling numerous properties around the country worth millions of dollars, but retaining—or in some cases even building—luxury homes in Texas or Florida. Using the homestead exemption, Lay will be able to retain his $7.1 million condominium in the finest apartment building in Houston and Fastow will keep his multi-million dollar mansion currently under construction. They will be able to enjoy their mansions, even if they declare bankruptcy, as their former employees struggle to find a new paycheck or to cover the rent.

Last year, it was Paul Bilzerian—a convicted felon—who tried to wipe out $140 million in debts and all the while held on to his 37,000 square foot Florida mansion worth over $5 million—with its 10 bedrooms, two libraries, double gourmet kitchen, racquetball court, indoor basketball court, movie theater, full weight and exercise rooms, and swimming pool.

The Bankruptcy Conference has a real chance to put an end to this now. The Senate has repeatedly—year after year—voted overwhelmingly in favor of a provision that would put a hard cap on the amount of home equity that a debtor can retain even after bankruptcy. The Senate should insist on a real and meaningful solution to this problem.

But so far, the only compromises we have been offered are road maps that show debtors how to circumvent the law. We have been told that we can only impose a residency requirement of two and a half years

This will not do. First, it does nothing to stop lifelong residents of Texas or Florida. Ken Lay has lived there most of his life. So has Andrew Fastow. They get away scot free under this proposal. Second, most bankruptcy attorneys will tell you that anyone rich enough can plan 2 to 3 years in advance.

In the spirit of compromise, we have agreed to raise the homestead cap to $175,000—a figure that far exceeds the average amount of equity a Houston homeowner has in their house. So, the average homeowner will not be affected at all by this provision, only the extraordinarily wealthy debtor. And even now, we remain open to effective and practical proposals aimed at solving this inequity.

Yet, we may not have an opportunity to reach that compromise. Instead, those that want the bill so badly that they are willing to legislate unfairness into the bankruptcy code are trying to get their way.

We should remember that one of the central principles of the bankruptcy bill is that people who can pay part of their debts should be required to do so. But the call to reform rings hollow when the proposal creates an elaborate, taxpayer-funded system to squeeze an extra $100 a month out of middle-class debtors but allows people like Burt Reynolds to declare bankruptcy, wipe out $8 million in debt, and still hold on to a $2.5 million Florida mansion.

To put it another way, political expediency may well trump fairness. The rich will be able to pour millions of dollars into the value of their Florida home, their Texas ranch, or their unimproved plot of land secure in the knowledge that their creditors will never be able to touch it. Yet, the average debtor will lose their house and most of their personal possessions as they try to repay their debts.

We have made historic changes to the bankruptcy code, but have chosen not to remedy the worst abuse of them all. We can only hope that between now and the conference committee's meeting on Tuesday, the parties to this deal will have a change of heart.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO JAMES GRIMMER

• Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to James B. Grimmer, a business pioneer in Birmingham, AL, and a dedicated community leader and family man. He was responsible for developing over thirty shopping centers throughout the Southeast, which helped to spur business and economic development in the region. Mr. Grimmer died in Birmingham on March 12 at the age of 81. I would like to take a few moments to reflect on the life of a man who brought opportunity to many in the Southeast and lived a life committed to family, friends and community.

James Grimmer was born on March 23, 1920 and raised in East Lake, AL. He attended Ramsay High School and graduated from Woodlawn High in Birmingham. Upon finishing high school and unable to join the armed forces due to age restrictions, James joined the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1937 before he turned eighteen. However, with America's imminent entrance into World War II, James dutifully returned to the United States to serve in the U.S. Army Air Corps. He eventually retired from the military as a Lt. Colonel in the U.S. Air Force.

After the war, James embarked on a long and stellar career in real estate development. In 1955, he joined the firm of Moulton, Allen & Williams. It was with this firm that he developed the Eastwood Mall, which was the Southeast's first enclosed mall. It had such a positive impact on the community that other developers soon followed James' lead and established numerous shopping centers in the Birmingham area. This led to new jobs, economic growth and was instrumental in Birmingham's expansion during the fifties and sixties. In 1962, James decided to build on his success and founded the Grimmer Realty Company. With his new independence, James went on to develop numerous other malls, including: the Western Hills Mall, the Montgomery Mall, Quintard Mall in Oxford, AL, and Jackson Mall in Jackson, MS. In fact, James Grimmer developed over eight and a half million square feet of retail space throughout the Southeast.

James was also closely involved with the Birmingham community and had close ties to real estate developers around the nation. He enjoyed scouting, golfing and fishing with family and friends, and was a member of the Independent Presbyterian Church. He was a member of the International Council of Shopping Centers, The Club, Summit Club; Vestavia Country Club and the New York Real Estate Board.

It is with sincere respect that I pay tribute to James Grimmer. He will be remembered as a pioneering businessman not only in the Birmingham community but the entire Southeastern region. He will be missed by the community as well as by his many close friends and relatives. My thoughts and prayers extend to his wife, Rose, children, Park and Susan, grandchildren, Leslie, Shelly and Jamie, and his sister, Evelyn Williams.●

IN HONOR OF THE RETIREMENT OF SUPERINTENDENT FOR CLOVIS
UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT,
DR. WALTER L. BUSTER

● Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I recognize and pay tribute to Dr. Walter L. Buster, Superintendent of Clovis Unified School District in Clovis, CA as he prepares to retire.

Dr. Buster has been in education for over 50 years, seventeen of those years as a school superintendent and the last 7 years as Superintendent for Clovis Unified School District. Dr. Buster is committed to educational excellence. He has taught all levels of school: elementary, junior high, high school and college, successfully serving many school districts in California and along the way has implemented visionary programs.

In Clovis Unified, Dr. Buster implemented Class Size Reduction and Early Literacy Instruction in grades 1-3. In these grade levels, only 20 students or fewer are enrolled in each class, thus giving the students a better ability to learn during these critical early years. Some of his most prized work in Clovis Unified School District has been in the following programs: Community of Readers, a program where volunteers in the community are trained to assist students with reading one hour each week; CHARACTER COUNTS, a program that teaches the six pillars of success—Responsibility, Respect, Fairness, Caring, Citizenship and Trustworthiness; and Laptops for Learners, a program developed to assist 7th, 8th and 9th graders in classes where laptop computer are used as learning tools.

Dr. Buster is truly a credit to the educational system. He has established as a standard a high level of integrity and decency. He is a man of great determination and dedication who has worked tirelessly to educate our children. I am honored to congratulate and pay tribute to him, and I encourage my colleagues to join me in wishing Dr. Walter L. Buster best wishes as he embarks on future endeavors.●

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT
OF 2001

● Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY in March of last year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred April 13, 1996 in Long Beach, CA. Two lesbians were beaten with a baseball bat. The attackers, a large group of people, were heard to yell anti-gay epithets.

I believe that government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.●

RECOGNITION OF MR. SEIJI
OZAWA

● Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize and celebrate one of this Nation's brightest stars, Mr. Seiji Ozawa, who has presided over the Boston Symphony Orchestra as music director for the last 29 years. On April 20, Seiji will conduct the BSO in Mahler's Ninth Symphony and the conclusion of that performance will mark the final installation of his work in Massachusetts. The enthusiasm and precision he brings to his craft are legendary, and as he prepares to assume his new post at the Vienna State Opera, I want to take a moment to join people throughout Massachusetts and across the country in expressing our gratitude for the contributions he has made during his time with the BSO.

For the last three decades Seiji Ozawa has challenged colleagues with his innovative interpretations and charmed audiences with his playful energy and focus. Through award-winning recordings, and celebrated performances in cities around the world, he has brought the beauty and insight of classical music to life for people of all ages. His service to the BSO stands as the longest continuous directorship in the history of the symphony, surpassing even Serge Koussevitzky, who held the baton from 1924 to 1949. Throughout that time, Seiji has lent his skills to the Berlin Philharmonic, the Vienna Philharmonic, the Orchestre de France and the Paris Opera, where he presided over the debut of Messiaen's "Saint Francois d'Assise."

Seiji began his musical journey by enrolling at the Toho Music School in Tokyo, Japan, as a child. A rugby injury changed his original plans of becoming a concert pianist and soon after he shifted focus to the unique art of conducting. Once Seiji settled on this pursuit, his instructor at the Toho School, Mr. Hideo Saito, urged him to travel abroad and refine his skills. Following that advice, he won first prize at the International Competition of Orchestral Conductors, in Besancon, France in 1959. This accolade earned Seiji an invitation in 1960 from Charles Munch, then music director of the BSO, to study at the Tanglewood Music Center. That first Tanglewood visit resulted in Seiji winning the Koussevitzky Prize for outstanding student conductor, and it also marked the beginning of a mutual love affair between Massachusetts and the young conductor.

Upon completion of his studies, Seiji moved to West Berlin to work with Herbert von Karajan. It was here that Seiji's unique presentation and style caught the eye of Leonard Bernstein, and upon returning to the United States he accepted Bernstein's offer to serve as assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic for 1961 and 1962. In 1964, he conducted the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood, raising the baton in a concert hall where he had studied just 4 years before. Word continued to spread about the enthusiastic Ozawa, and offers came in from orchestras around the world. Seiji decided on becoming the music director of the Ravinia Festival in Chicago, where he remained for five summers, and then moved to the Toronto Symphony until 1969. After a brief period with the San Francisco Symphony, Seiji became artistic director at Tanglewood in 1970, and was subsequently asked to assume the role of music director for the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1973.

It has been during his time with the BSO that Seiji became the cultural icon that we celebrate this year. In 1976, he was honored with an Emmy Award for the Boston Symphony Orchestra's PBS television series, "Evening at Symphony." In 1994, he won a second Emmy Award for Individual Achievement in Cultural Programming, in recognition of his work "Dvorak in Prague: A Celebration with the Boston Symphony Orchestra." In a nod to his early instructor and the Japanese heritage he has proudly shared with the world, he co-founded the Saito Kinen Festival in Japan, which will provide young people the same chance he had to learn the arts of conducting and performing. The academic community of my home state has recognized Seiji's tremendous talent with honorary Doctor of Music degrees from the University of Massachusetts, the New England Conservatory of Music and Wheaton College, and certainly our beloved Red Sox have never had a more enthusiastic supporter.

Seiji arrived in Massachusetts as a young man finishing his education and beginning his professional ascension. After April 20, he will leave the Boston Symphony Orchestra a true master of his craft. While he has been guided by a deep respect for the past and its masters, Seiji remains the consummate modernist; a solitary individual fueled by an instinctual fascination and hunger for the unexplored frontier of the future.

My constituents and I have been so proud to host Mr. Ozawa over these last three decades. For the rest of his career we will proudly think of him as one of our own in Massachusetts, and I join my constituents in thanking Seiji Ozawa for the invaluable contributions he has made throughout his time at Tanglewood and with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.●

HONORING THE JEWISH COMMUNITY FEDERATION OF LOUISVILLE

● Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I rise today in order to thank and honor the 50 members of the Jewish Community Federation of Louisville, Ky for participating in Monday's Pro-Israel rally held outside our Nation's Capitol. I truly believe these individuals along with the entire Jewish Community Federation of Louisville deserve to be honored for their commitment to Israel and all that it stands for.

Monday's rally was quite a sight to see. Over 100,000 supporters gathered, including former Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and former mayor of New York Rudy Guilani, to demonstrate support for Israel in its current struggle against terrorism. Since September 11, the citizens of the United States of America have unfortunately and tragically been forced to face the realities that accompany terrorism; the fear, the pain, and the struggle. The American people now have an understanding of what it means to live in fear of a cowardly and radical enemy.

The terrorist threat and presence Americans currently fear and feel everyday has been a reality for the people of Israel since 1948, when the state of Israel was officially established and recognized. For 54 years now, the Israeli people have fought for their freedom and right to exist. In recent weeks, the Israeli government has come under fire for their aggressive but necessary military actions in Palestinian-controlled areas of the West Bank. While I pray for the innocent Palestinians who suffer the consequences of their leader's failures, I cannot find it in myself to condemn Israel, doing all it can to protect its families, future, and freedom.

Since the time he was a 17-year old arms dealer in Cairo fighting to rid Palestine of all British and Jewish influence, Yasser Arafat has dedicated his time, thoughts, and efforts to bringing terrorism to the homes and streets of the Jewish people. In 1958, Arafat founded the Al-Fatah movement, an underground network of terrorist cells working as one to bring about the demise of the Jewish state. Just one year after the organization was established, Al-Fatah was publishing a radical magazine advocating the armed struggle against Israel and its people. Since Al-Fatah, under the leadership of Arafat, took control of the PLO in 1969, both Jordan, for attempting to overthrow King Hussein, and Lebanon, for using Palestinian refugee camps as bases for cross-border attacks against Israel, have expelled Arafat and his terrorist group from their land. Even today, Arafat continues to support the terrorist activity of such barbaric groups as Hamas and Palestine Islamic Jihad by agreeing to compensate the families of their homicide bombers. These homicide bombers are no different from the 19 Al-Qaeda terrorists who piloted two planes into the World Trade Centers, and one into the Pentagon killing thousands of innocent American citizens. They are all willing to kill innocent civilians as well as themselves for fanatical leaders such as Osama bin Laden and Yasser Arafat.

In 1988 at a special session of the UN, Arafat showed signs that he was willing to negotiate for peace. He renounced terrorism and vowed to prosecute those who took part in terrorist activities. This empty rhetoric however proved to be short-lived. In 1991, Arafat fully supported Saddam Hussein and Iraq in the Persian Gulf War just three short years after he gave his UN speech. He has also refused to take a tough stance on terrorism, failing to live up to his promise to prosecute those responsible for such horrific acts as we have seen in the past six months. Arafat has now had the opportunity to deal with multiple Israeli Prime Ministers and U.S. Presidents but to no avail. He has been offered land, statehood, and a peaceful existence with the state of Israel. In every instance, talks ended and violence ensued.

I once again would like to thank the Jewish Community Federation for sending 50 of its most devoted individuals to the rally. Israel has always been a good friend to both the U.S. and to democracy, and it always will be. I finally ask that my colleagues join me in praying that this situation ends as quickly and as peacefully as possible. I know that we all would like to see this conflict resolved without any further bloodshed, but we must be willing to stand by our friends in Israel in our fight to eradicate terrorism from the globe.●

THE FUTURE OF AMERICAN STEEL

● Ms. MIKULSKI. I am proud to join Majority Leader DASCHLE, Senator ROCKEFELLER and the other cosponsors today in introducing the Steel Industry Consolidation and Retiree Benefits Protection Act, a bill that seeks to maintain the viability of a critical domestic industry, and maintain a safety net for its workers and retirees who today live in fear of losing their healthcare coverage.

I am on the side of steel and steelworkers. I will stand up for steelworkers and make sure that their voices are heard in the Senate.

On March 20th, President Bush announced that he would impose tariffs on steel imports, the tariffs weren't as high as we believe necessary to give America's steel industry the opportunity to consolidate and get back on its feet. The tariffs imposed under section 201 were a first step, but we can not afford half-measures. Congress now needs to take the next step and address retiree health care benefits.

I recently held a hearing to listen to the people behind "legacy costs"—the workers; the retirees; the widows; the executives; and worker representatives whose voices are not being heard. I heard from retirees and widows from the Bethlehem Steel plant at Sparrow's Point in Baltimore. I will never forget hearing Gertrude Misterka tell me that she would have to spend nearly $7,000 on her prescriptions if she lost her husband's health care benefits. She would be in tough shape if she lost those health benefits that her husband, a proud Korean War veteran, Charlie, worked so hard for.

I will not forget Jeff Mikula who has a job at Sparrow's Point but if that plant closed, he lose the benefits he has worked so hard for over the last 26 years. I will not forget McCall White, a retired steelworker, a proud veteran, who worked at Sparrow's point for nearly 40 years. It is for them and hundreds of thousands in similar situations that I will fight. I will fight to make sure legacy costs are addressed in a very serious way.

HOW WOULD THE ROCKEFELLER BILL HELP STEELWORKERS AND RETIREES?

This bill would help protect the U.S. steel industry and would provide health care and life insurance to steel retirees of those companies directly effected by unfair trade practices.

This bill helps companies consolidate by addressing the liability costs that have served as barrier to the restructuring that many argue that is needed by this industry in order to be able to compete. At my hearing on the steel industry, I heard how restructuring would help to maintain a competitive U.S. steel industry, which is in the national interest and would preserve American jobs today and tomorrow good paying, American jobs.

This bill would mean that promises made are promises kept. Steel retirees, their families and dependents would have the retirement security earned through decades of hard work and sacrifice. This bill would establish a health benefits program for retirees modeled on the most popular health care for Federal employees the Blue Cross/Blue Shield standard plan. This is not the Cadillac, gold-plated health plan that some claim these retirees have. These are the benefits that our steel workers worked hard for. Under this bill, any steelworker with at least 15 years of work in our nation's steel mills would have a basic health benefit package that they can count on. This bill would also provide a very modest death benefit of $5,000 to the widows of steel retirees.

WHO WOULD THIS BILL HELP?

Now, there are now about 142,000 active steelworkers, but there are about 600,000 retirees counting on these benefits. By helping those with more than 15 years of hard work in our mills, this bill would help many of our Nation's active and retired steelworkers. In my own State of Maryland, 3,700 people work at the Bethlehem Steel Sparrows Point facility, but there are 23,000 retired steelworkers, widows and dependents. These workers and retirees deserve a basic health benefit package that they can rely on.

I agree with President Bush when he said, "Steel is an important job issue. It is also an important national security issue." We need to see the President join us on this issue in fighting for American jobs and for national security. A sound domestic steel industry is critical as we fight the war on terrorism. Steel builds our tanks, our planes and our ships. Bethlehem Steel produced the armor to repair the USS Cole.

The policy of our government is to support producers when it is in the national interest. National interest means national responsibility. Congress voted for nearly $80 billion in farm support over the next 10 years. It is important to support farmers to make sure we have the producers to be food-independent. I voted for the bill that is now in conference, and I am happy to stand up for American farmers. Congress gave the airlines $15 billion after September 11 because of a national emergency. It was the right thing to do.

Now, we need to stand up for steel. We need to have producers here in America to be steel-independent and be ready for national emergencies. Make no mistake: This is a national emergency for steel. Standing up for steel is in the national interest just like farmers, just like airlines.

There is much to do to ensure that there is a viable U.S. steel industry. We need to make sure that the Section 201 tariffs are being implemented properly. Steel legacy costs are also a vital, necessary, crucial part of ensuring a viable U.S. steel industry. This is part of the comprehensive solution. We can not afford half-measures, not with a critical industry at the brink of collapse, not with the retirement security of hundreds of thousands at risk.

I urge my colleagues to join us to protect American steel.●

IN MEMORY OF CLAIRE T. SHADIE

● Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I seek recognition today to acknowledge the service of the late Claire T. Shadie of West Nanticoke, PA, a very special woman whose untimely death on October 10, 2001, left a great void in the lives of her family and the many whom she touched.

Claire Shadie was Founder and Chairman of the Board of "Supporting Autism and Families Everywhere," or SAFE, Inc., which is a non-profit group of parents of autistic children that works to help people with autism live full and independent lives. From April 24 through April 26, 2002, the annual SAFE, Inc., conference on autism will bring together international experts on autism and families affected by the malady, and the meeting will be dedicated to the memory of Claire Shadie.

Claire was known throughout her community as the "Angel of Autism," and she dedicated her life to helping find effective ways to aid individuals with the condition, including her son Alexander. She worked diligently throughout the years, counseling families and organizations throughout the United States. In addition to SAFE, Inc., she helped establish the Coalition on Autism, whose goal is to bring together related agencies and support groups to help ease the bureaucracy and improve the quality of service in Northeast Pennsylvania. Through SAFE, Inc., she worked with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Wyoming County Housing and Redevelopment Authority, and other agencies to create New Hope

Farm, a facility that will provide its learning-disabled residents with daily opportunities for social interaction, skill acquisition, and integration into the greater community.

For her leadership and work on behalf of autism, I would like to extend the gratitude and recognition of the United States Senate to Claire Shadie, "Angel of Autism."●

AN ESSAY BY BERNARD RAPOPORT ON ENRONICS

● Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I want to share with my colleagues an excellent essay by a long-time friend of this Senator, Bernard Rapoport. The essay points out that using any means to make money as those at Enron did, or evading taxes as too many American corporations do today by creating offshore schemes, are unpatriotic acts, which should outrage the American people.

As the message comes from someone who has distinguished himself as a business leader and whose generosity has made our society a little more just and equal, it is a message I hope all American business executives not only hear, but heed.

The essay follows:

"ENRONICS"—(LACK OF PATRIOTISM)

My father was a Russian Jewish revolutionist, (the Agrarian Revolution of 1905). He was a Marxist which advocated the philosophy that the "ends justified the means." It is, perhaps, an understandable point of view of someone subjected to the despotic czarist rulers of the Russia in the time in which he was raised. A few years after he escaped from Siberia, to which he was exiled for life for participation in the revolution, he came to America still convinced about ends and means from the Marxian view. I, too, was raised with that philosophy. Fortunately, and I think at the same time as he, I was influenced by Emerson's wonderful admonition that "character is that which can do without success," and it brought both of us to a new understanding. Yes, how one achieves is more important than if one achieves.

It's the "means" that in fact does determine the "ends." In my eight and a half decades of living I've had three poignant examples of unrestrained American patriotism. Of course, there have been many others, but what follows are the three that are most firmly imprinted in my memory.

The first was America's reaction to Pearl Harbor. Second, during World War II, on that day that General Dwight Eisenhower told us by radio that D-Day had begun and that there would be a large loss of lives, and, third, 9/11! The most essential ingredient in patriotism is love of country, which requires a commitment that we conduct ourselves in such a manner as to consistently do those things to make our country better.

The tragedy of "Enronics" is that these high-falutin' capitalists lowered themselves to a Marxian philosophy. Yes, their end was making money. Any means legal or otherwise, was justified because of their "ends!"

My reason for this essay is that I'm not angry—"I'm mad!" My father's daily plea was to me was to "have a sense of outrage at injustice." "Enronics." Gives just cause to understand outrage because it is unrestrained unpatriotism.

Here's another example of what I perceive to be unpatriotism. In the New York Times of February 18, 2002, the column headline on the front page was, "U.S. Companies Use Filings in Bermuda to Slash Tax Bills." I always thought I was fairly sophisticated when it came to finance, but I quickly learned after reading that article that I wasn't nearly as "smart" as I thought I was. This is an occurrence that happens often in my life. I majored in economics at the University of Texas. The bibliography included Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," which is the predicate for capitalism. Smith realized the greed instinct within all of us, but thought that the invisible hand, i.e. competition, would be the moderator or leveler of the greed instinct. Well, this particular article to which I've alluded is beyond my comprehension. Evidently intelligent lawyers and accountants had come up with schemes to "legally" avoid the rules by which the rest of us must play. Secondly, this was combined with lobbyists who appealed to members of Congress to include riders to particular pieces of legislation which would benefit one particular corporation, and enable it to escape the responsibilities that any patriotic company would observe. Competition is making a better product, merchandising it more intelligently, and paying the taxes that all the rest in the same category pay. Well, not in the legal sense, but morally. I ask the question, "Why do we put up with these kind of shenanigans? Why don't we have a sense of outrage at this injustice? Why don't we get mad?"

I'm reminded of Murray Edelman's wonderful thought, "Political history is largely an account of mass violence and of the expenditure of vast resources to cope with mythical fears and hopes. At the same time, large groups of people remain quiescent (that's us!) under noxiously oppressive conditions and sometimes passionately defend the very social institutions that deprive or degrade them."

For example, in the New York Times article, it points out that one company made $30 million additional profit because they didn't pay taxes. Now if they had played by the same rules as other companies, they would've shown $30 million less profit because of the payment of what it really owes. Guess what! Their stock sells at a much higher price because they are taking advantage of what I call an "Enronic" approach. At least, such companies should have the courtesy and be required to show what their earnings would be if they were paying on the same basis as their competitors. In the New York Times article it is pointed out that one corporation saved $400 million in taxes! Reducing taxes can really be a meaningful objective if these groups to which I've referred to were truly patriotic. All these companies do to avoid these taxes is to have an office in Bermuda or the Cayman's or some other island, and obtain this unfair advantage. As ridiculous as it may sound, a company with one of these offices in Bermuda, for example, can borrow money from its Bermuda account, charge out the interest that it pays, reducing their taxes in the United States. Let's be quickly reminded that there is no tax on the interest earned by the Bermuda parent. So an additional injustice is compounded as a result of this tax avoidance scheme.

The U.S. Treasury has to borrow money, sell bonds, and you know who buys them? These same corporations! Guess what! The interest they have received on their bonds as a result of their Bermuda office will not be taxable. It's a vicious circle! Where, of where, is there not a sense of outrage to their unconscientious acts of unpatriotism?

We must be constantly reminded of what Guiseppe Mazzini said, "God has given you your country as cradle, and humanity as mother; you cannot rightly love your brethren of the cradle if you love not the common mother."•

NINETY DAYS IS SIMPLY NOT ENOUGH TIME

• Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, a letter released last week by the General Accounting Office highlighted serious problems that could result from reducing the period of time that National Instant Criminal Background System records are retained to only 24-hours after a firearm sale. Under current NICS regulations, records of allowed firearms sales can be retained for up to 90 days, after which the records must be destroyed. On July 6, 2001, the Department of Justice published proposed changes to the NICS regulations that would reduce the maximum retention period from 90 days to only one day.

According to FBI officials and the GAO letter, retained records that were more than 1 day old but less than 90 days old were used to initiate over 100 firearm-retrieval actions by law enforcement in the 4-month period beginning July 3, 2001, through October 2001. As a result, the GAO believes that next-day destruction of NICS records would likely obstruct the ability of law enforcement to retrieve firearms from individuals who were mistakenly approved to purchase firearms. Since its inception, NICS checks have prevented more than 156,000 felons, fugitives and others not eligible to purchase a firearm from doing so. While not infringing upon any law-abiding citizen's ability to purchase a firearm.

The retention of NICS records for a sufficient period of time is important. I am greatly concerned by the Attorney General's action and I support the "Use NICS in Terrorist Investigations Act" introduced by Senators KENNEDY and SCHUMER. This legislation would codify the 90-day period for law enforcement to retain and review NICS data. The GAO letter provides further evidence that the Schumer/Kennedy bill is common sense legislation that deserves enactment. •

ANDIE BUEL RETIRES AFTER 35 YEARS

• Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, later this month, Andie Buel, Chief of the Congressional Operations Division at the Department of Defense, will be retiring after 35 years of government service. I wish her the very best.

No question, the congressional delegation trip to Normandy in 1994 commemorating the 50th anniversary of D-Day stands out as one of the great highlights of my years in the Senate. Mrs. Buel was the architect of that trip.

She has a long list of accomplishments, but to get right to the point: she has worked hard to ensure all our congressional trips are not only meaningful to our work in Washington, but that they run flawlessly. We thank her, and as she enters her new life we certainly will miss her. •

TRIBUTE OF DONALD LANGENBERG

• Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, as the end of the 200-2002 academic year approaches, I rise to pay tribute to Dr. Donald N. Langenberg, who at the end of this month will retire as Chancellor of the University System of Maryland, which for the past twelve years he has served with great distinction.

In 1990, when Dr. Langenberg came to Maryland from the University of Illinois-Chicago, the University System of Maryland was still in the earliest stages of its formation. It was established in 1988 to bring together thirteen diverse institutions, each with a distinctive and distinguished history, into a "family" dedicated to "nurturing minds, advancing knowledge, elevating the human spirit and applying (our) talents to the needs of the citizens of Maryland." The purpose of the new system was to be nothing less than to "achieve and sustain national eminence and become a model for American higher education and a source of pride" for all the people of my State.

In short, Dr. Langenberg had his work cut out for him, but no one could have been better suited to the challenge, by both temperament and experience, than he. It was his task as the first Chancellor of the University of Illinois at Chicago, established in the 1980s to bring together existing undergraduate, research and medical institutions, to guide the new university through its formative years; and he came to that position from the National Science Foundation, where he had served as acting and deputy director.

Dr. Langenberg's academic background, however, was not in administration but rather in physics. With degrees from Iowa State University, the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of California at Berkeley, he taught at the University of Pennsylvania, where he also directed the Laboratory for Research on the Structure of Matter and served as Vice Provost for Graduate Studies and Research. He has been a visiting professor at numerous institutions in this country and abroad; his work on superconductivity has resulted in the development of a new type of voltage standard, which is in use worldwide, and it led to the publication of a paper so frequently cited in other papers and journals that it is known as a "citation classic." Throughout his distinguished career, Dr. Langenberg has also maintained the highest level of engagement in numerous professional associations, for example as president and chairman of the board of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, AAAS, chairman of the board of National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, NASULGC, President of the American Physical Society, APS, chairman of the President's Council of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges, AGB. He recently completed a decade's service as a member of the University of Pennsylvania's Board of Trustees.

For the past twelve years the University System of Maryland has been the beneficiary of the great breadth and depth of Dr. Langenberg's experience, and above all from his abiding commitment to make our state system a model for higher education everywhere. The University System's campuses have never been more vigorous than they are today. The schools of medicine and law are thriving, and so are programs designed for adults wishing to resume or continue their education. Under Dr. Langenberg's leadership the University System has developed new measures of accountability and productivity, which are in use not only in Maryland but at universities around the Nation. The K 16 Partnership for Teaching and Learning, of which Dr. Langenberg was a founding member, works to ensure continuity and coherence in Marylanders' education, from kindergarten through the B.A. And in a State whose extraordinary diversity of human and natural resources is reflected in its public institutions of higher education, among them a major research university that is also one of the earliest land-grant colleges, three historically black colleges, professional schools and independent research institutes, he has played a leading role in building the University System family. Each of its thirteen very different member campuses determines its own focus and honors its own traditions, while at the same time all collaborate to offer better opportunities for higher education to Marylanders of all backgrounds, talents and persuasion.

Behind the formidable intelligence, zest for hard work, success in academic administration and distinction as a scholar that Dr. Langenberg brought to his position as Chancellor of the University System of Maryland there has always been a clear and steady vision, which he himself has most eloquently described. First, he remarked in a speech not long ago, "As a Midwesterner, I have always had tremendous admiration for great public universities because I know that they provide opportunities that might not otherwise exist." And then, he observed, "much of his long and distinguished career 'has been about creating linkages and partnerships, between our citizens and higher education, between and among campuses, between higher education and public schools, and between higher education and the business community.'" For this he offered a compelling and moving explanation: "as the only child of deaf parents, I became my parents' translator and their link to the hearing and speak world."

Maryland has been deeply fortunate to have Dr. Donald Langenberg at the helm of its University System. I want to express my gratitude for all that he has accomplished, my congratulations on his retirement, my delight in the decision he and his wife have made to stay in Maryland, and my best wishes for the years ahead.●

OUTSTANDING VOLUNTEER PERFORMANCES BY FLORIDA SENIORS

● Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I would like to extend congratulations to a group of outstanding citizens from Broward County, FL. Each of these men and women has given a special gift to their community—they have given of themselves. Their volunteer efforts should be an inspiration to all of us.

On May 3, 2002, these 10 individuals will be inducted into the Dr. Nan S. Hutchison Broward Senior Hall of Fame. These selfless volunteers have contributed time, talents and love toward their fellow residents of Broward County. Allow me to tell you about each of them:

Evelyn Denner helped found the We Care organization, providing assistance to the elderly and helping them to remain self-sufficient. Her work with many civic, political, and religious organizations continues to make Broward County a treasured place to live.

Clara Font has volunteered for 12 years at the Horizon Club's "Assisted Living Community." At 101 years of age, people young and old look to her service for inspiration. She has contributed time to those suffering from the debilitating effects of Alzheimer's disease, while also assisting friends and neighbors.

Joan Hinden, a retired teacher, has provided support to Florida's youth for many years. She was appointed to the Family Care Council by Florida's Governor and has worked with the Department of Children and Families, aiding and encouraging people through difficult times.

George Olferm has donated his time to many worthy organizations such as TRIAD, SALT, the Davie Fraternal Order of Police, and the Area Agency on Aging of Broward County. As a talented artist, George has donated stained glass artwork to help local charities raise thousands of dollars to support their ongoing projects. He has had a tangible impact on people's lives.

Casey Pollack has worked diligently to improve the lives of Alzheimer's patients. He has established training programs for care givers and founded the Crisis Respite Program, helping many citizens fill a temporary need for Alzheimer's care.

Sidney Specter has served as president of the Kings Point Culture Club of Tamarac. His leadership and energy have provided groups of senior citizens the opportunity to attend cultural events which enrich their lives.

William Teague has served as president of the South Broward Chapter of the National Federation for the Blind, helping to serve over 51,000 visually challenged individuals. He has educated drivers to yield to blind pedestrians, thereby reducing the number of individuals involved in traffic accidents.

Former State representative Jack Tobin has given over a decade of service as a legislator. He worked to secure continuing funding for Alzheimer's care and treatment centers, which has made an indelible impact on the quality of life for many Floridians. He participates on the board of directors for the Area Agency on Aging after serving as its president. He has contributed invaluable guidance as a Director of both the YMCA and Child Care Connection, helping to the continuation of social service programs for the future.

Dr. Murray Todd's medical services have contributed to the health and well-being of countless Broward County residents, especially those with Alzheimer's. As a teacher, speaker and volunteer, he has trained others to join in the fight for a cure for this disease.

Ellyne F. Walters has spent years serving her church, the city of Fort Lauderdale, and numerous organizations. As vice president of the Broward County Friends of the Library, she has helped strengthen local libraries and contributed to the opening of the African American Research Library.

These "volunteers for humanity" have served diligently and tirelessly in their quest to enhance the lives of their fellow man. Our State and Nation are fortunate to have such inspiring senior citizens.●

TRIBUTE TO ALEX MARION

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, today I show my support for Alex Marion for his heroic efforts at the McIntyre Ski Area. He, along with Shawn Page, Adam Anderson, and Andrew Emanuel, helped to save the life of a fellow skier.

While enjoying a day of recreation at the ski slope, he noticed a child hanging from the seat of a chairlift. The skiers formed a human net to catch the boy when he fell. Alex helped save the boy and prevent any serious injuries.

I commend this heroic act of Alex Marion. He helped to save the life of a fellow citizen and brought comfort to a worried family. As long as we have such dedicated citizens our nation will continue to be strong. Alex exemplifies the ideals of a Granite Stater and I am honored to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO CODI VACHON

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Codi Vachon of Manchester, NH. Her heroic actions saved the life of a drowning boy.

While life guarding she noticed twelve-year old Julio Velez at the bottom of the pool. Codi later learned that Julio had experienced a seizure and by acting quickly she was able to bring the boy to safety.

Codi Vachon is to be commended for her selfless actions. As long as we have such dedicated citizens, our nation will continue to be strong. Codi exemplifies the ideals of a Granite Stater. It is an honor and privilege to represent her in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO ANTHONY TRIPARI

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Anthony Tripari of Merrimac, MA. His heroic actions saved the lives of numerous Farmington, NH residents, including the life of a helpless baby. He put his own life on the line to rescue others from a burning building.

In August of 2001, Anthony was on his way to a fishing trip with his friend Derek Vitale, when they noticed smoke from a burning apartment building. It was about three o'clock in the morning so Derek honked the horn of his car in an attempt to wake the residents of the building to alert them to the fire.

I commend the altruistic acts of Anthony Tripari. It takes true courage to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Anthony, our nation will continue to be strong. It is an honor and a privilege to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH "BOO" MURRAY

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support to Elizabeth "Boo" Murray of Danville, NH. Her heroic efforts saved the life of an elderly neighbor.

Walking through her Danville neighborhood one day in June, Elizabeth noticed flames and smoke coming from her neighbor's house. Realizing that the elderly woman was likely to be still inside, Elizabeth raced in to save her. She found her in the home and removed her from danger. Although her neighbor later died of injuries she sustained, Elizabeth put her life in the foreground to rescue the life of another.

I commend you Boo for your commitment to life. You are an example of heroism to New Hampshire residents and the nation alike. I am honored to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO ARTHUR MOREAU

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Arthur Moreau of Manchester. Arthur, with the assistance of his friends Russ Lauriat and Russ VanderHorst, rescued the life of 28-year-old Scott Derendal.

The three friends came upon a wrecked, burning vehicle while driving through Wear last July. Feeling a civic duty to aid a fellow person in need, Arthur, Russ and Russ raced to rescue the individual trapped in the car. They managed to save the life of Scott.

I commend you Arthur for the selfless act of kindness you imparted on an unknown individual. You gave of yourself without a second thought as to how it might affect your life. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO RUSS VANDERHORST

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Russ VanderHorst of Goffstown. Russ, with the assistance of his friends Russ Lauriat and Arthur Moreau, rescued the life of 28-year-old Scott Derendal.

The three friends came upon a wrecked, burning vehicle while driving through Wear last July. Feeling a civic duty to aid a fellow person in need, Arthur, Russ and Russ raced to rescue the individual trapped in the car. They managed to save the life of Scott.

I commend you Russ for the selfless act of kindness you imparted on an unknown individual. You gave of yourself without a second thought as to how it might affect your life. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO SHAWN PAGE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to show my support for Shawn Page for his heroic efforts at the McIntyre Ski Area. He, along with Adam Anderson, Alex Marion, and Andrew Emanuel, helped to save the life of a fellow skier.

While enjoying a day of recreation at the ski slope, Shawn noticed a child hanging from the seat of a chairlift. The skiers formed a human net to catch the boy when he fell. Shawn helped save the boy and prevent any serious injuries.

I commend this heroic act of Shawn Page. He helped to save the life of a fellow citizen and brought comfort to a worried family. As long as we have such dedicated citizens our nation will continue to be strong. Shawn exemplifies the ideals of a Granite Stater. I am honored to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO EDWARD ROY

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to show my support for Edward Roy of Manchester, NH. His heroic actions saved the lives of numerous residents sleeping inside their multi-story apartment building. He put his own life on the line to preserve the lives of others.

On a December morning in 2001, the off-duty firefighter was driving home from work when he noticed smoke in the distance. He raced to the site and found a burning apartment building. In an attempt to awaken and evacuate the residents, he knocked on all the doors of the building. In the process of knocking on residents doors, his coat caught on fire, but Edward continued to rescue people. Edward met the arriving fire fighters and helped them extinguish the fire.

Firefighters, like Edward, work valourously everyday. Every time they respond to a call for help, they are putting their own lives in jeopardy to help the community in crisis. Firefighters are among our country's bravest heroes, and I applaud Edward for his dedication to keep New Hampshire safe.

I commend the altruistic act of Edward Roy. It takes true courage and honor to put other's lives above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Edward, our nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such dedicated citizens. It is truly an honor to represent Edward Roy in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO DUSTIN SHERWOOD

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Dustin Sherwood of Barnstead. Dustin, along with his two friends John Lank and Nick Poulin, saved the life of a distressed boater.

While boating on Suncook Lake in July, the three boys noticed a boat that was moving erratically. Upon closer inspection, they realized the driver had lost control and had fallen into the water. Skillfully the three regained control of the boat and dragged the Vermont teen to safety.

I commend you Dustin for your selfless act of heroism. You gave of yourself to help another in need. There is no greater gift. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO JOHN HORAN

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to John Horan of Nashua, NH, for risking his life to save the life of a motorist trapped in a crashed vehicle.

In August of 2001, John was driving with his friend Nathan Langlais when they came across a vehicle that had plunged through a guardrail and down a hill. John and Nathan, without regard for their own lives, raced to the aid of the trapped motorist.

They discovered a smoking car and a semi-conscious driver. The men attempted to extract the driver from the vehicle but were unsuccessful in their first attempt. Loud noises began coming from the gasoline tank and the back of the car began to ignite. With little time to spare, the men rescued the driver from the passenger's side of the vehicle.

I commend John Horan for his bravery. His selfless act saved the lives of a fellow citizen, and set a positive example for the people of the Granite State. I am confident that as long as there are Americans like John Horan who are willing to put the well-being of others before themselves, our Nation will continue to be strong. It is truly an honor and a privilege to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO LIEUTENANT CASINO CLOGSTON

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Lieutenant Casino Clogston of New Hampshire. His heroic actions brought comfort to a family and community who endured a very tragic event.

On an early April morning in 2001, Casino arrived at the scene of a burning apartment. After giving commands to the rest of his crew, he entered the burning building. Putting his own life in jeopardy, the Lieutenant searched for any signs of life. He discovered the body of a burning man. Holding the body in one arm, he was able to kick down the door of the room and escape safely. After the victim received medical attention, he was pronounced dead. However, Clogston helped to bring comfort to the man's family and friends.

Firefighters, including Firefighter Clogston, work valorously everyday. Every time they respond to a call for help, they are putting their own lives on the line. In this instance, Casino truly did go above and beyond the call of duty in order to recover the body of a fellow citizen. Firefighters are some of our country's bravest heroes, and I applaud Clogston for his efforts to keep New Hampshire safe.

I commend the altruistic acts of Lieutenant Casino Clogston. It takes true courage to value the lives of others above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Casino, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen, and it is truly an honor to represent Casino Clogston in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO THE PEMBROKE FIRE DEPARTMENT

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for the Pembroke Fire Department, including Deputy Chief Paul Gagnon; Lieutenants Rob Farley, David Bouffard and Brian Lemoine; Firefighters Patrick Maccini, Ricky Bilodeau, Jeff Bokum, Stacy Amyot, Josh Ginn, Mike Perron, Steve Perron and Eric Stromvall; and Engineers Brad Robertson, Chet Martel, Chuck Schmidt and Steve Ludwick. Their heroic actions saved numerous lives and helped preserve one of New Hampshire's historical landmarks. They placed their own lives at risk to protect and serve the people of New Hampshire.

On an early morning in July of 2001, the Pembroke Fire Department received what appeared to be a routine call. They learned that a historic Bed and Breakfast was in flames and worked tirelessly to extinguish the flames of the burning building.

Upon learning that guests were trapped in the residence, the firefighters successfully made several rescues. Leading six victims down their ladders, they brought them to safety. The firefighters further risked their lives to perform room-by-room searches to confirm that everybody was out of the building safely.

These firefighters work valorously everyday. Each time they respond to a call for help, they are putting their own lives in jeopardy. This is just one example of the hard work and dedication of New Hampshire's firefighters. By consistently operating above and beyond the call of duty, these men and women save the lives of fellow citizens and bring comfort to the community.

I commend the selfless acts of the Pembroke Fire Department. It takes courage to place somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have firefighters like those in Pembroke our Nation will continue to remain protected. New Hampshire is proud to have such dedicated citizens and it is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO CHRISTOPHER SMITH

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Christopher Smith of Seabrook, NH. His heroic actions, along with the help of Timothy Dillon, saved the life of a woman trapped in a burning vehicle. He put his own life on the line to rescue a fellow citizen.

In October of 2001, Christopher was riding with his mother when he noticed that a burning car had driven off the road. Christopher and Timothy raced to the scene of the accident and discovered an elderly woman trapped in the burning vehicle. She was pinned in the vehicle by the deployed air bag and the crushed dashboard.

Christopher attempted to break the driver's side window, while Timothy broke through the back of the car. Christopher smashed the window using a tire iron and then entered through the front of the car. Putting their own lives in jeopardy, the two men were able to pull the woman to safety.

I commend the selfless acts of Christopher Smith. It takes true courage to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Christopher, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is truly an honor to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO MELISSA BOGACKI

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to Melissa Bogacki of Chester, NH. Her quick action and bravery helped save the life of her drowning brother.

I commend Melissa for immediately responding to this stressful and dangerous situation. While she was taking a walk with her siblings, she noticed that her three-year old brother had fallen into a swampy area. Responding immediately, she jumped in to rescue him. After dragging him to safety Melissa immediately notified her mother for help.

Melissa's valorous deed serves as an example to the people of Chester as well as the Granite State. She saved the life of a family member and brought comfort to her family. I am confident that as long as we have dedicated citizens like Melissa our Nation will continue to be strong. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO RUSSELL KEAT

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Russell Keat of Grantham, NH. He helped recover numerous bodies that had been buried beneath the rubble at Ground Zero, as well as three American flags. He put his own life on the line to bring comfort to a grieving nation.

After the second airline crashed into the World Trade Center on September 11, 2001, one of the most catastrophic days in our Nation's history, Russell offered his support for the rescue efforts.

Russell specializes in rescue missions and had previously rescued individuals from airline crashes, collapsed buildings, and caves. However, no other rescue meant as much to this patriot as his work at Ground Zero. He recovered the bodies of victims and helped with the clean up effort. Russell also led a group of five other heroes who uncovered three United States flags. Russell risked working on unstable structures and inhaling hazardous materials in order to perform his patriotic duty.

I commend the selfless acts of Russell Keat. It takes true courage and honor to value one's Nation above their own life. I am confident that as long as we have people like Russell our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is an honor to represent Russell Keat in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO JOHN LANK

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for John Lank of Barnstead, John, along with his two friends Nick Poulin and Dustin Sherwood, saved the life of a distressed boater.

While boating on Suncook Lake in July, the three boys noticed a boat that was moving erratically. Upon closer inspection, they realized the driver had lost control and had fallen into the water. Skillfully the three regained control of the boat and dragged the Vermont teen to safety.

I commend you John for your selfless act of heroism. You gave of yourself to help another in need. There is no greater gift. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO KATHLEEN MOORE

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to Kathleen Moore of Goffstown, NH. Her heroic actions, along with the help of Henry Gerlack Jr., saved the life of a man trapped inside a burning vehicle.

In April of 2001, Kathleen was driving down a local highway when she came to the aid of a motorist trapped inside a burning vehicle. She, and nearby resident Henry Gerlack, heard cries for help coming from the vehicle. The two found 34-year-old Mark Renaud wedged between a crushed steering wheel and the dashboard. Kathleen and Henry, putting their own lives in jeopardy, pulled the man out of the car through the driver's side window. The car exploded moments after they pulled Mark to safety.

I commend the bravery and heroism of Kathleen Moore. It takes true courage to place somebody else's life above your own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Kathleen, our State and Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is truly an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO ANDREW EMANUEL

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support to Andrew Emanuel for his heroic efforts at the McIntyre Ski Area. He, along with Shawn Page, Alex Marion and Adam Anderson, helped to save the life of a fellow skier.

Last winter, while enjoying a day of recreation at the ski slope, he noticed a child hanging from the seat of a chairlift. The skiers formed a human net to catch the dangling boy. When the boy fell, they saved his life and prevented him from sustaining any serious injuries.

I commend this heroic act of Andrew Emanuel. He helped to save the life of a fellow citizen and brought comfort to a worried family. I feel that as long as we have such dedicated citizens, our Nation will continue to be strong. Andrew exemplifies the ideals of a Granite Stater and I am honored to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO HENRY GERLACK

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I show my support for Henry Gerlack Jr. of Barnstead, NH. His heroic actions, along with the help of Kathleen Moore, saved the life of a man trapped inside a burning vehicle. Henry put his life on the line to preserve the life of another.

In April of 2001, Henry Gerlack noticed a burning vehicle on the side of the road. He heard cries for help and raced to the burning vehicle to find a 34 year-old man wedged between the crushed steering wheel and dashboard. Henry and Kathleen pulled the man out of the car moments before it exploded.

I commend the altruistic acts of Henry Gerlack, Jr. It takes true courage to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Henry, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen and it is an honor to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO NICK POULIN

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Nick Poulin of Manchester. Nick, along with his two friends John Lank and Dustin Sherwood, saved the life of a distressed boater.

While boating on Suncook Lake in July, the three boys noticed a boat that was moving erratically. Upon closer inspection, they realized the driver had lost control and had fallen into the water. Skillfully the three regained control of the boat and dragged the Vermont teen to safety.

I commend you Nick for your selfless act of heroism. You gave of yourself to help another in need. There is no greater gift. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO JACK LEE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Jack Lee for his heroic efforts in pulling a semi-conscious teenager to safety. He went above and beyond the call of duty to reach out to another in need.

Mr. Lee came upon a burning vehicle in Auburn, NH. Noticing a young individual was trapped inside, he began to try and free her from the burning wreck. Though not successful at his first few attempts to save the girl from the car, Mr. Lee did not give up. He finally pulled her to safety.

Not only do Jack's actions serve as an exemplary commitment to human life, they also highlight a selflessness we all should strive for. I commend Jack for being a hero to his community and nation. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO THE HOOKSETT FIRE DEPARTMENT

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for the Hooksett Fire Department, including Chief Michael Howard, Lieutenant David Carignan, Firefighter Bill Palmer and Firefighter Steve Davis. Their heroic actions saved numerous lives, and preserved one of New Hampshire's historical landmarks. They worked without regard for their own safety to preserve a treasure to the community.

On an early morning in July of 2001, the Hooksett Fire Department received a call that a historic bed and breakfast was on fire. The company worked tirelessly to save the burning building.

Upon learning that guests were trapped in the residence, the firefighters successfully made several rescues. Leading six victims down their ladders, they brought them to safety. The firefighters further risked their lives to perform room-by-room searches and confirm that everybody rescued.

These firefighters work valorously everyday. Each time they respond to a call for help, they are putting their own lives in jeopardy. This is just one example of the hard work and dedication of New Hampshire's firefighters. By consistently operating above and beyond the call of duty, these men and women save the lives of fellow citizens and bring comfort to the community. Firefighters are among our country's bravest heroes, and this company has served the State of New Hampshire for many years.

I commend the altruistic acts of the Hooksett Fire Department. It takes courage to place somebody else's life above your own. I am confident that as long as we have firefighters such as the men of the Hooksett Fire Department, our Nation will continue to be protected. New Hampshire is proud to have such dedicated citizens. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO KEVIN HEALY

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to Kevin Healy, a firefighter in the city of Manchester, NH. His heroic actions saved the lives of numerous residents caught inside an apartment building.

On a February 2001 morning, the off-duty firefighter was driving home from work when he noticed smoke in the distance. He found a burning apartment building which he immediately entered in search of victims. He could hear people coughing and used their sounds to locate burning victims. He successfully brought two people to safety and returned to the burning building to check for trapped victims. During the rescue Kevin suffered burns and respiratory injuries.

Firefighters, like Kevin, work valorously everyday. Each time they respond to a call for help, they are risking their own lives. Kevin went above and beyond the call of duty in order to save fellow citizens and bring comfort to his community. Firefighters are some of our country's bravest heroes, and I applaud Kevin's efforts to keep the citizens of New Hampshire safe.

I commend Kevin Healy's bravery and applaud his dedication to public service. It exemplifies true courage and honor to put other's lives above your own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Kevin, our State and Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such exemplary citizens and it is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO JEFFREY MORSE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Jeffrey Morse of New Hampshire. His heroic actions, combined with help from Paul Gagne, saved a woman and numerous animals. He put his life on the line to rescue others from a house.

In September of 2001, the two telephone technicians were working on a cable problem when they noticed smoke coming from a nearby house. They raced to the scene of the fire. Paul hurried to call the emergency rescue services, while Jeffrey used a garden hose to prevent the flames from spreading. Jeffrey then noticed a sign indicating that live animals were living in the house, so he kicked down the door to the building and retrieved a cat.

After the animal was brought to safety, the two men heard screams. Paul and Jeffrey entered the burning building and worked their way through the thick smoke to find a choking woman. The two men picked her up and carried her to safety. They returned for a final trip to ensure they had rescued everyone.

I commend the selfless acts of Jeffrey Morse. It takes true courage to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Jeffrey, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is an honor to represent Jeffrey Morse in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO RUSS LAURIAT

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Russ Lauriat of Goffstown. Russ, with the assistance of his friends Arthur Moreau and Russ VanderHorst, rescued the life of 28-year-old Scott Derendal.

The three friends came upon a wrecked, burning vehicle while driving through Wear last July. Feeling a civic duty to aid a fellow person in need, Arthur, Russ and Russ raced to rescue the individual trapped in the car. They managed to save the life of Scott.

I commend you Russ for the selfless act of kindness you imparted on an unknown individual. You gave of yourself without a second thought as to how it might affect your life. It is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO PAUL GAGNE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Paul Gagne of New Hampshire. His heroic actions, combined with help from Jeffrey Morse, saved a woman and numerous animals. He put his life on the line to rescue others from a burning house.

In September of 2001, the two telephone technicians were working on a cable problem when they noticed smoke coming from a nearby house. They raced to the scene of the fire. Paul hurried to call the emergency rescue services, while Jeffrey used a garden hose to prevent the flames from spreading. Jeffrey then noticed a sign indicating that live animals were living in the house, so he kicked down the door to the building and retrieved a cat.

After the animal was brought to safety, the two men heard screams. Paul and Jeffrey entered the burning building and worked their way through the thick smoke to find a choking woman. The two men picked her up and carried her to safety. They returned for a final trip to ensure everyone had been rescued.

I commend the acts of Paul Gagne. It takes true courage and honor to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Paul, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is an honor to represent Paul Gagne in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO RAY SUMMERS

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Ray Summers of Manchester, NH. His heroic actions and dedication to his country saved two fellow citizens and helped to discover numerous bodies that were buried beneath the rubble at Ground Zero. He put his own life on the line to bring comfort to a Nation.

Ray was interning at Shea Stadium when the World Trade Center Buildings collapsed on September 11, 2001, one of the most catastrophic days in our Nation's history. As a trained EMT, Ray answered a call from the New York City emergency authorities who desperately needed his support at Ground Zero. He was escorted to the scene, given rescue equipment, and immediately began to search for victims.

Ray searched for survivors and cleaned up rubble for about 72 hours, taking little time to rest or eat. He encountered several near death experiences, including nearly being crushed by the collapsing Liberty Plaza Building. He and another rescuer found two Port Authority officers still alive. They uncovered the two officers and carried them to safety.

I commend the selfless acts of Ray Summers. It takes true courage and honor to put somebody else's life and their country above one's own life. I am confident that as long as we have people like Ray Summers, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is an honor to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO ADAM ANDERSON

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support to Adam Anderson for his heroic efforts at the McIntyre Ski Area. He, along with Shawn Page, Alex Marion, and Andrew Emanuel, helped to save the life of a fellow skier.

While enjoying a day of recreation at a ski slope, Adam noticed a child hanging from the seat of a chairlift. The skiers formed a human net to catch the boy. When the boy fell, Adam and his friends were able to save his life and prevent him from sustaining any serious injuries.

I commend this heroic act of Adam Anderson. He helped to save the life of a fellow citizen and brought comfort to a worried family. I feel that as long as we have such dedicated citizens our Nation will continue to be strong. Adam exemplifies the ideals of a Granite Stater and I am honored to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN TOM BUINICKY

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Captain Tom Buinicky of the Claremont Fire Department. His heroic actions, along with the efforts of Firefighter Amos Chamberlain, helped to save the lives of several families caught inside a burning apartment building. Amos puts his life on the line everyday for the sake of others.

In January of 2001, the two men responded to what seemed to be a routine call. They were two of the first firefighters on the scene and they discovered a three-alarm fire. Witnesses told them of an infant trapped on the third floor of the building, so the men searched for the baby. The baby had already been brought to safety, but the men continued to make sure that the entire building had been vacated.

Firefighters Buinicky and Chamberlain work valorously everyday. Each time they respond to a call for help, they are putting their own lives in jeopardy. This is just one example of how they went above and beyond the call of duty in order to save the lives of fellow citizens and bring comfort to the community. Firefighters are among some of this Nation's bravest heroes, and I applaud them for their work to keep New Hampshire safe.

I commend the altruistic acts of Captain Buinicky. It takes true courage to put other's lives above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Tom our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen and it is truly an honor to represent Captain Tom Buinicky in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO TIMOTHY DILLON

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Timothy Dillon of Hampton Falls, NH. His heroic actions, along with those of Christopher Smith, saved the life of a woman trapped in a burning vehicle. He put his own life on the line to rescue a fellow citizen.

In October of 2001, Timothy noticed a burning car that had fallen down an embankment. Timothy and Christopher raced to the scene of the accident and discovered an elderly woman trapped in the burning vehicle. She was pinned in the vehicle by the deployed air bag and the crushed dashboard.

Christopher attempted to break the driver's side window, while Timothy broke through the back of the car. Christopher smashed the window using a tire iron and he entered through the front of the car. Putting their own lives in jeopardy, the two men were able to pull the woman to safety.

I commend the selfless act of Timothy Dillon. It takes true courage to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Timothy, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is truly an honor and privilege to represent Timothy Dillon in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO FIREFIGHTER AMOS CHAMBERLAIN

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I show my support for Firefighter Amos "Buzz" Chamberlain of the Claremont Fire Department. His heroic actions, along with the efforts of Captain Tom Buinicky, helped to save the lives of several families caught inside a burning apartment building. Buzz puts his life on the line each day for the sake of others.

In January of 2001, the two men responded to what seemed to be a routine call. They were two of the first firefighters on the scene and discovered a three-alarm fire. Witnesses told them of an infant trapped on the third floor of the building and they searched for the baby. The baby had already been brought to safety, but the men continued to make sure that the entire building had been vacated.

Firefighters Chamberlain and Buinicky work valorously everyday. Each time they respond to a call for help, they are putting their own lives in jeopardy. This is just one example of how they went above and beyond the call of duty in order to save the lives of fellow citizens and bring comfort to the community. Firefighters are among some of this Nation's bravest heroes, and I applaud them for their work to keep New Hampshire safe.

I commend the altruistic acts of Amos Chamberlain. It takes true courage and honor to put others' lives above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Buzz, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen and it is truly an honor to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO FRED AND JOYCE CORSER

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to Fred and Joyce Corser of Concord, NH, for their heroic act of rescuing two young passengers from a vehicle on the verge of exploding.

In August of 2001, an automobile accident occurred outside of the Corser's home. Fred immediately rushed to assist the two passengers trapped inside the vehicle, while Joyce contacted rescue personnel and then joined her husband. Together, they risked their lives to remove the backseat passenger from the vehicle, who had sustained a compound leg fracture during the accident.

Moments before the vehicle exploded, Fred and Joyce put their lives in jeopardy once again and pulled out the second passenger. As they were carrying him to safety, the car burst into flames. Fred Corser quickly found a piece of plywood and used it to shield the victim from the explosion.

I commend Fred and Joyce Corser for their altruistic acts. Their selfless deeds saved the lives of two fellow citizens. I feel confident that as long as there are Americans like Fred and Joyce Corser, who are willing to put the well-being of others before themselves, our Nation will continue to be strong. It is truly an honor and a privilege to represent them in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO DEREK VITALE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, today I show my support for Derek Vitale of Chester, NH. His heroic actions saved the lives of numerous Farmington, NH residents, including the life of a helpless baby. He put his own life on the line to rescue others from a burning building.

In August of 2001, Derek was on his way to a fishing trip with his friend Anthony Tripari, when they noticed smoke from a burning apartment building. It was about three o'clock in the morning, so Derek honked the horn of his car in an attempt to wake up all the residents in the building and alert them to the fire.

As the residents vacated, it was reported that a baby was trapped on the second floor. Derek sprinted into the flaming building, covering his mouth with only the collar of his shirt and found the baby. Derek carried the baby to safety and simultaneously knocked on the doors of every apartment to make sure the building was vacated.

I commend the altruistic acts of Derek Vitale. It takes true courage to put somebody else's life above one's own. I am confident that as long as we have people like Derek Vitale, our Nation will continue to be strong. New Hampshire is proud to have such a dedicated citizen. It is an honor to represent him in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO THE ALLENSTOWN FIRE DEPARTMENT

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, today I show my support for the Allenstown Fire Department, including Captain Dan Silva, Lieutenant Scott Eaton, as well as Firefighters Edward Higgins, Lee Cheney, Mark Jacobs, Ray Seigny and Keith Lambert. Their heroic actions saved the lives of numerous hotel guests and preserved one of New Hampshire's historical landmarks. The men of the Allenstown Fire Department risked their lives, as they do everyday, to protect and serve.

On an early morning in July of 2001, the Allenstown Fire Department received a call that a historic bed and breakfast was in flames. The company worked tirelessly to extinguish the fire.

Upon learning that guests were trapped in the residence, the firefighters successfully made several rescues. Leading six victims down their ladders, they brought them to safety. The firefighters further risked their lives to perform room-by-room searches to confirm that everybody was out of the building safely.

I am confident that as long as we have firefighters like those of Allenstown our Nation will continue to remain protected. New Hampshire is proud to have such dedicated citizens, and it is an honor to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

TRIBUTE TO NATHAN LANGLAIS

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Madam President, today I pay tribute to Nathan Langlais of Nashua, NH, for risking his safety to save the life of a fellow motorist trapped in a crashed vehicle.

In August of 2001, Nathan and his friend John Horan, noticed a vehicle that had plunged through the guardrail and down a hill on the side of Daniel Webster Highway. The men immediately, and without regard for personal safety, came to the aid of the car's driver.

They discovered a semi-conscious driver in the smoking car. The men attempted to extract the driver from the vehicle but were unsuccessful in their first attempt. Loud noises came from the gasoline tank and the back of the car began to ignite. With little time to spare, the men rescued the driver from the passenger's side of the vehicle.

I commend Nathan Langlais for his bravery and heroism. His selflessness saved the life of a fellow citizen, and set a positive example for the people of the State of New Hampshire. I am confident that as long as there are Americans like Nathan Langlais, our Nation will continue to be strong. It is truly an honor and a privilege to represent you in the U.S. Senate.●

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. MCCONNELL (for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, and Mr. BENNETT):

S. 2194. A bill to hold accountable the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Palestinian Authority, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Madam President, on behalf of the Senator from California and myself, I offer the Arafat Accountability Act. This act seeks to create conditions more conducive to stopping the senseless violence and flow of innocent blood in the Middle East.

The act takes aim at the weakest link in ongoing efforts to negotiate a political solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict—PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat. His leadership has been marked by repeated failures—failure to forcefully denounce and terminate the spree of horrific homicide bombings, failure to serve as a credible and reliable partner in peace, and failure to fulfill the aspirations of the Palestinian people for stability, economic opportunity, and a viable homeland.

Instead, he has acquiesced to terror and violence. Documents seized during recent counterterrorism operations on the West Bank reveal his personal involvement in financing and supporting terrorism against Israeli civilians. The successful interception of a cargo vessel from Iran earlier this year—loaded with offensive weaponry destined for the Palestinian Authority—should have conclusively proven that Chairman Arafat was, at best, a balking partner in peace, or, at worst, a foe of any meaningful reconciliation.

The terrorist attacks against Israel must come to an end. And they must end on terms that safeguard the lives and livelihoods of innocent Israeli and Palestinian civilians. Much like our war against the Taliban and al-Qaida in Afghanistan, Israel is rotting out terrorist cells and destroying their networks.

It is no understatement that the Israeli military is undertaking its operations with precision and professionalism that no other army in the region could exert.

The Arafat Accountability Act will not frustrate or derail the important efforts of the administration to secure a political solution to the ongoing strife. Rather, it places critical incentives to ensure that Chairman Arafat and the Palestinian Authority do not deliver a fatal blow to the prospects for peace.

Specifically, the act denies a visa to Arafat and other senior PLO officials to travel to the United States, downgrades the PLO's representative office here in Washington, restricts the travel of senior PLO officials at the United Nations, and seizes the assets of the PLO and the Palestinian Authority and Arafat in the United States. It also requires the administration to report to Congress on any acts of terrorism committed by the PLO or its constituent elements.

Importantly, the bill provides the President with flexibility in determining the sanctions, but it is my expectation that they would remain in place until a cease-fire is achieved and the Tenet plan implemented. These are the very same short-term goals that Secretary Powell has been trying to achieve over the last few days.

We should not forget that in 1993 Arafat himself committed the PLO to "a peaceful resolution of the conflict," so we are not holding Arafat to any higher standard than he established for himself already.

I would offer that Arafat should have listened more carefully to Secretary Powell when he said to the Nation and the world from the McConnell Center for Political Leadership at the University of Louisville last year that solutions to this conflict "will not be created by teaching hate and division, nor will they be born amidst violence and war."

I emphasize that it is not my intent to push this bill to a vote on the Senate floor at this time. We should give the President and his advisers more time to pursue their objectives in the region.

It is my intent, though, and the intent of the Senator from California, to send a powerful signal to Chairman Arafat and the Palestinian Authority that the Senate will not stand idly by while they talk peace in English and practice terror in Arabic.

No progress toward a political solution to this conflict will be made until and unless Yasser Arafat forcefully, clearly, and repeatedly condemns homicide bombings and other acts of terrorism against Israel and takes concrete measures to restrain Palestinian extremists.

The bill we introduce today puts added pressure on Arafat and the PLO to be responsible and responsive partners in peace. There is no room for further failure on Arafat's part. He must either lead his people toward peace or get out of the way.

Let me close by commending President Bush and his administration for their superb conduct in the ongoing war against terrorism. They certainly have my full support in this endeavor—be it in the West Bank or in Gaza or, for that matter, in Iraq.

My colleagues and I are looking forward to hearing from Secretary Powell when he appears before the Foreign Operations Subcommittee next week.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Madam President, I thank the Senator from Kentucky for his work and leadership on this issue.

We are here because we believe any hope for peace in the Middle East must begin with the complete renunciation of terrorism by the Palestinian Liberation Organization and a strong, unwavering commitment to bring such terrorism to an end.

We also believe that only with the leadership of the United States can there be a peaceful settlement and resolution of issues in the area.

For the past 18 months, as the violence of the second Intifada has increased, the United States has consistently called upon Yasser Arafat to halt the terrorism he pledged to end in the Oslo accords.

Unfortunately, Arafat has incited the violence and helped financially support the terrorists.

We now know that one of Arafat's top advisers is directly involved in financing the illegal weapons purchases and terror activities of the Al Aqsa Brigade.

We now know, according to documents seized by the Israeli Defense Forces, that Arafat was directly involved in efforts to illegally smuggle more than 50 tons of arms into Israel from Iran a few months ago.

We now know that Arafat has failed to confiscate weapons of terrorist suspects.

We know he has failed to arrest and hold suspected terrorists and is harboring suspects in the assassination of an Israeli Cabinet official in his own headquarters in Ramallah.

In fact, much of the terrorism emanates from the heart of the PLO, carried out by the Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, composed of members of Arafat's own Fatah faction.

Since the beginning of the year, 209 people have been murdered and more than 1,500 injured in these suicide bombings. These are children, women, men—innocent civilians.

The Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade claimed credit for numerous of these attacks, including on March 31, central Jerusalem, killing 3 people; March 3, killing 10 people in west Jerusalem; and January 31, when the first female bomber killed an elderly Israeli.

A document seized by the Israel Defense Forces in Ramallah, signed by Arafat himself, approves funding for the Al Aqsa Brigades.

On February 3, Arafat wrote a New York Times op-ed opposing violence against Israel. Yet he declared a few days later, in Ramallah, that "we will make the lives of the infidels Hell" and led a chant of "A million martyrs marching to Jerusalem!"

And this past week, while Arafat spoke out against terrorism, his wife, in Paris, said she would be proud if she had a son who became a suicide bomber.

I believe, sincerely, that this is not a leader who wants peace for his people. In fact, I believe the suicide bombings have been precisely calculated to destroy any chance for peace.

If these suicide bombers cannot be stopped, the situation is going to continue to deteriorate, Israel will have to continue to exercise its legitimate right of self-defense, and the result will be full-scale military conflagration.

Israel has done no less—and certainly no more—than what any country would do to defend itself. There has been a lamentable loss of life in the West Bank. And I grieve for it because I believe, very deeply, every life—Israeli or Palestinian—has equal value.

But let us not forget that Israel's military operation has been one based on specific intelligence information, with specific military goals—to act directly against terrorists who before the start of the operation were carrying out daily suicide bombings against Israeli civilians—and carried out with considerable restraint.

Certainly, Israel has not gone beyond what the United States and our allies have been doing in Afghanistan, or the United Kingdom in Northern Ireland, or the bloody French campaign in Algeria—let alone, what Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Iraq, or Iran do on almost a daily basis to quell dissent.

Does anyone doubt that a suicide bombing in Cairo, or Riyadh, or Damascus, or Beirut, or Paris would be met with the strongest of reactions, as was the 9-11 terrorist incident here?

There simply is no excuse for arming a teenage girl with bombs around her waist to blow up women and children. And this kind of terror is happening over and over again.

So the time is now for this Senate to stand up, in a strong, unified voice, to condemn the actions of Chairman Arafat and his PLO and the terrorism that has spawned.

Chairman Arafat has said one thing in English and another in Arabic. Chairman Arafat fans the flames and incites the people.

We offer this bill, after witnessing the failure of efforts by Messrs. Tenet, Mitchell, Zinni, and, at least initially, Secretary Powell to break the deadlock largely because Chairman Arafat has not brought to an end the suicide bombing and other acts of terrorism.

This legislation would require the President to report to Congress every 90 days, detailing the acts of terrorism engaged in by the Palestinian Liberation Organization or any of its constituent elements and, based on that report, to designate the PLO or its constituent elements as terrorist organizations, or explain why not.

The legislation also finds that Chairman Arafat and the PLO have violated his commitment to peace through the recent purchase of 50 tons of offensive weaponry from Iran; that they are responsible for the murder of hundreds of innocent Israelis and the wounding of thousands more since October 2000, and that they have been directly implicated in funding and supporting terrorists who have claimed responsibility for a number of homicide bombings inside Israel.

Because of the failure by the Palestinian Liberation Organization to renounce terrorism, the act would, A, downgrade PLO representation in the United States to before Oslo; B, place travel restrictions on senior PLO representatives at the United Nations; C, confiscate assets of PLO or Palestinian Authority or Chairman Arafat in the United States; D, deny visas to Chairman Arafat or other officials of the PLO or the Palestinian Authority.

It is important to note that the President may, on a case-by-case basis, waive this provision based on national security considerations.

The legislation presents a sense of the Senate outlining the first steps needed to reach peace. First, the United States should urge an immediate and unconditional end to all terrorist activities and commencement of a cease-fire. Two, Arafat and the PLO should turn over to Israel for detention and prosecution those wanted by the Israeli Government for the assassination of Israeli Minister of Tourism, Mr. Zeevi. Third, Arafat and the PLO should take broad and immediate action to condemn all acts of terrorism, including and especially suicide bombing, which has resulted in the murder of over 125 Israeli men, women, and children in the month of March alone and the injury of hundreds more; confiscate and destroy the infrastructure of terrorism, including weapons, bomb factories and materials, as well as end all financial support of terrorist activities; and to take positive steps to urge all Arab nations and individuals to cease funding terrorist operations and the families of terrorists.

Finally, the President of the United States, working with the international community, with Israel and the Arab States, should continue the search for a comprehensive peace in the region.

There is no question that there are serious differences to be reconciled between Israel and the Palestinian people and that only a political settlement can hopefully bring the violence in this region to an end. I believe the 1967 borders, borders which have the imprimatur of the United Nations, hold the key to a settlement. Despite serious differences about the refugee problem, ongoing security, and the status of Jerusalem, I believe peace can be achieved through negotiation and agreement. But I know it cannot be achieved through violence.

The necessary first step is the end of the violence, the terrorism, and the suicide bombing. Once that is done, we are firmly convinced that if leaders on both sides want peace, the rest can all be worked out.

By Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mrs. CLINTON, Mrs. CARNAHAN, and Mrs. FEINSTEIN):

S. 2195. A bill to establish State infrastructure banks for education; to the Committees on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, the need to rebuild our Nation's crumbling schools is clear. The National Center for Education Statistics estimates that it would cost $127 billion to repair, modernize, and renovate U.S. schools. Fourteen million U.S. students currently attend schools that report a need for extensive repair. And a study by the American Society of Civil Engineers concludes that public schools are in worse condition than any other sector of our national infrastructure.

And yet the Federal Government is doing far too little to help.

That is why I am introducing the Investing for Tomorrow's Schools Act of 2002. I am pleased to have Senators CLINTON, CARNAHAN, and FEINSTEIN join with me as co-sponsors.

This legislation allows States to create "infrastructure banks" for public schools and libraries. Modeled after State revolving funds, which have been used successfully to finance transportation projects, these banks would offer low-interest loans to school districts for building or repairing public schools, and to public libraries for building or repairing libraries. As the loans are repaid, the bank funds would be replenished, and the banks could make new loans to other schools and libraries. Once the banks got rolling, they would sustain themselves, without any need for ongoing Federal appropriations.

After more than a decade of fighting to rebuild our Nation's deteriorating schools, I am well aware that this bill is just one part of the solution. Two years ago, as the ranking member on the Senate Labor, HHS, and Education Appropriations Subcommittee, I led the effort to provide $1.2 billion in grants to schools that urgently need repairs. Last year, the Senate approved another $925 million on a bipartisan vote, but unfortunately that funding was eliminated during conference negotiations with the House.

I also introduced the America's Better Classrooms Act, which would provide tax credits to subsidize $25 billion in new construction. That legislation is still pending, and I am hopeful that it will succeed. The Investing for Tomorrow's School Act is the final piece of the puzzle.

If the nicest buildings our kids see in their hometowns are shopping malls, sports arenas and movie theaters, and the most rundown place they see is their school, what kind of signal are we sending? We can and must do better for our children. The Investing for Tomorrow's School Act should be a critical part of our strategy to improve education, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

I ask that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2195

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Investing for Tomorrow's Schools Act of 2002".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) According to a 1996 study conducted by the American School & University, $10,420,000,000 was spent to address the Nation's education infrastructure needs in 1995, with the average total cost of a new high school at $15,400,000.

(2) According to the National Center for Education Statistics, an estimated $127,000,000,000 in repairs, renovations, and modernizations is needed to put schools in the United States into good overall condition.

(3) Approximately 14,000,000 American students attend schools that report the need for extensive repair or replacement of 1 or more buildings.

(4) Academic research has proven that there is a direct correlation between the condition of school facilities and student achievement. At Georgetown University, researchers found that students assigned to schools in poor conditions can be expected to fall 10.9 percentage points behind those in buildings in excellent condition. Similar studies have demonstrated improvement of up to 20 percent in test scores when students were moved from a poor facility to a new facility.

(5) The Director of Education and Employment Issues at the Government Accounting Office testified that nearly 52 percent of schools, affecting 21,300,000 students, reported insufficient technology elements for 6 or more areas.

(6) Large numbers of local educational agencies have difficulties securing financing for school facility improvement.

(7) The challenges facing our Nation's public elementary schools and secondary schools and libraries require the concerted efforts of all levels of government and all sectors of the community.

(8) The United States competitive position within the world economy is vulnerable if America's future workforce continues to be educated in schools and libraries not equipped for the 21st century.

(9) The deplorable state of collections in America's public school libraries has increased the demands on public libraries. In many instances, public libraries substitute for school libraries, creating a higher demand for material and physical space to house literature and educational computer equipment.

(10) Research shows that 50 percent of a child's intellectual development takes place before age 4. The Nation's public and school libraries play a critical role in a child's early development because the libraries provide a wealth of books and other resources that can give every child a head start on life and learning.

SEC. 3. STATE INFRASTRUCTURE BANK PILOT PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) COOPERATIVE AGREEMENTS.—The Secretary of Education (hereafter in this Act referred to as the "Secretary"), in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, may enter into cooperative agreements with States under which—

(A) States establish State infrastructure banks and multistate infrastructure banks for the purpose of providing the loans described in subparagraph (B); and

(B) the Secretary awards grants to such States to be used as initial capital for the purpose of making loans—

(i) to local educational agencies to enable the agencies to build or repair elementary schools or secondary schools that provide free public education; and

(ii) to public libraries to enable the libraries to build or repair library facilities.

(2) INTERSTATE COMPACTS.—

(A) CONSENT.—Congress grants consent to any 2 or more States, entering into a cooperative agreement under paragraph (1) with the Secretary for the establishment of a multistate infrastructure bank, to enter into an interstate compact establishing a multistate infrastructure bank in accordance with this section.

(B) RESERVATION OF RIGHTS.—Congress expressly reserves the right to alter, amend, or repeal this section and any interstate compact entered into pursuant to this section.

(b) REPAYMENTS.—Each infrastructure bank established under subsection (a) shall apply repayments of principal and interest on loans funded by the grant received under subsection (a) to the making of additional loans.

(c) INFRASTRUCTURE BANK REQUIREMENTS.—A State establishing an infrastructure bank under this section shall—

(1) contribute in each account of the bank from non-Federal sources an amount equal to not less than 25 percent of the amount of each capitalization grant made to the bank under subsection (a);

(2) identify an operating entity of the State as recipient of the grant if the entity has the capacity to manage loan funds and issue debt instruments of the State for purposes of leveraging the funds;

(3) allow such funds to be used as reserve for debt issued by the State, so long as proceeds are deposited in the fund for loan purposes;

(4) ensure that investment income generated by funds contributed to an account of the bank will be—

(A) credited to the account;

(B) available for use in providing loans to projects eligible for assistance from the account; and

(C) invested in United States Treasury securities, bank deposits, or such other financing instruments as the Secretary may approve to earn interest to enhance the leveraging of projects assisted by the bank;

(5) ensure that any loan from the bank will bear interest at or below the lowest interest rates being offered for bonds, the income from which is exempt from Federal taxation, as determined by the State, to make the project that is the subject of the loan feasible;

(6) ensure that repayment of any loan from the bank will commence not later than 1 year after the project has been completed;

(7) ensure that the term for repaying any loan will not exceed 30 years after the date of the first payment on the loan under paragraph (6); and

(8) require the bank to make an annual report to the Secretary on its status, and make such other reports as the Secretary may require by guidelines.

(d) FORMS OF ASSISTANCE FROM INFRASTRUCTURE BANKS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—An infrastructure bank established under this section may make a loan to a local educational agency or a public library in an amount equal to all or part of the cost of carrying out a project eligible for assistance under subsection (e).

(2) APPLICATIONS FOR LOANS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A local educational agency or public library desiring a loan under this Act shall submit to an infrastructure bank an application that includes—

(i) in the case of a renovation project—

(I) a description of each architectural, civil, structural, mechanical, or electrical deficiency to be corrected with loan funds and the priorities to be applied; and

(II) a description of the criteria used by the applicant to determine the type of corrective action necessary for the renovation of a facility;

(ii) a description of any improvements to be made and a cost estimate for the improvements;

(iii) a description of how work undertaken with the loan will promote energy conservation; and

(iv) such other information as the infrastructure bank may require.

(B) TIMING.—An infrastructure bank shall take final action on a completed application submitted to it in accordance with this subsection not later than 90 days after the date of the submission of the application.

(3) CRITERIA FOR LOANS.—In considering an application for a loan, an infrastructure bank shall consider—

(A) the extent to which the local educational agency or public library desiring a loan would otherwise lack the fiscal capacity, including the ability to raise funds through the full use of such bonding capacity of the agency or library, to undertake the project proposed in the application;

(B) in the case of a local educational agency, the threat that the condition of the physical plant in the proposed project poses to the safety and well-being of students;

(C) the demonstrated need for the construction, reconstruction, or renovation based on the condition of the facility in the proposed project; and

(D) the age of the facility proposed to be reconstructed, renovated, or replaced.

(e) QUALIFYING PROJECTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A project is eligible for a loan from an infrastructure bank if it is a project that consists of—

(A) the construction of a new elementary school or secondary school to meet the needs imposed by enrollment growth;

(B) the repair or upgrading of classrooms or structures related to academic learning, including the repair of leaking roofs, crumbling walls, inadequate plumbing, poor ventilation equipment, and inadequate heating or lighting equipment;

(C) an activity to increase physical safety at the educational facility involved;

(D) an activity to enhance the educational facility involved to provide access for students, teachers, and other individuals with disabilities;

(E) an activity to address environmental hazards at the educational facility involved, such as poor ventilation, indoor air quality, or lighting;

(F) the provision of basic infrastructure that facilitates educational technology, such as communications outlets, electrical systems, power outlets, or a communication closet;

(G) work that will bring an educational facility into conformity with the requirements of—

(i) environmental protection or health and safety programs mandated by Federal, State, or local law, if such requirements were not in effect when the facility was initially constructed; and

(ii) hazardous waste disposal, treatment, and storage requirements mandated by the Solid Waste Disposal Act (42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq.) or similar State laws;

(H) work that will enable efficient use of available energy resources;

(I) work to detect, remove, or otherwise contain asbestos hazards in educational facilities; or

(J) work to construct new public library facilities or repair or upgrade existing public library facilities.

(2) DAVIS-BACON.—The wage requirements of the Act of March 3, 1931 (referred to as the "Davis-Bacon Act" (40 U.S.C. 276a et seq.)) shall apply with respect to individuals employed on the projects described in paragraph (1).

(f) SUPPLEMENTATION.—Any loan made by an infrastructure bank shall be used to supplement and not supplant other Federal, State, and local funds available to carry out school or library construction, renovation, or repair.

(g) LIMITATION ON REPAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the repayment of a loan from an infrastructure bank under this section may not be credited toward the non-Federal share of the cost of any project.

(h) SECRETARIAL REQUIREMENTS.—In administering this section, the Secretary shall specify procedures and guidelines for establishing, operating, and providing assistance from an infrastructure bank.

(i) UNITED STATES NOT OBLIGATED.—The contribution of Federal funds into an infrastructure bank established under this section shall not be construed as a commitment, guarantee, or obligation on the part of the United States to any third party, nor shall any third party have any right against the United States for payment solely by virtue of the contribution. Any security or debt financing instrument issued by the infrastructure bank shall expressly state that the security or instrument does not constitute a commitment, guarantee, or obligation of the United States.

(j) MANAGEMENT OF FEDERAL FUNDS.—Sections 3335 and 6503 of title 31, United States Code, shall not apply to funds contributed under this section.

(k) PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION.—A State may expend an amount not to exceed 2 percent of the grant funds contributed to an infrastructure bank established by a State or States under this section to pay the reasonable costs of administering the infrastructure bank.

(l) SECRETARIAL REVIEW AND REPORT.—The Secretary shall—

(1) review the financial condition of each infrastructure bank established under this section; and

(2) transmit to Congress a report on the results of such review not later than 90 days after the completion of the review.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ELEMENTARY SCHOOL, FREE PUBLIC EDUCATION, LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCY, AND SECONDARY SCHOOL.—The terms "elementary school", "free public education", "local educational agency", and "secondary school" have the same meanings as in section 14101 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 8801);

(2) OUTLYING AREA.—The term "outlying area" means the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, and the Republic of Palau;

(3) PUBLIC LIBRARY.—The term "public library"—

(A) means a library that serves free of charge all residents of a community, district, or region, and receives its financial support in whole or in part from public funds; and

(B) includes a research library, which, for purposes of this subparagraph, means a library that—

(i) makes its services available to the public free of charge;

(ii) has extensive collections of books, manuscripts, and other materials suitable for scholarly research which are not available to the public through public libraries;

(iii) engages in the dissemination of humanistic knowledge through services to readers, fellowships, educational and cultural programs, publication of significant research, and other activities; and

(iv) is not an integral part of an institution of higher education; and

(4) STATE.—The term "State" means each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and each of the outlying areas.

By Mr. BENNETT:

S. 2196. A bill to establish the National Mormon Pioneer Heritage Area in the State of Utah, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BENNETT. Madam President, today it gives me great pleasure to introduce for the Senate's consideration legislation establishing the National Mormon Pioneer Heritage Area.

Spanning 250 miles, from the small town of Fairview, UT southward to our border with Arizona, the area encompassed by the National Mormon Pioneer Heritage Area includes outstanding examples of historical, cultural, and natural resources shaped by the Mormon pioneers. The story of the Mormon pioneers is one of the most compelling and captivating in our Nation's history. After traveling 1,400 miles from Illinois either by wagon or by pulling a handcart the pioneers came to the Great Salt Lake Valley. Along the way, the pioneers experienced many hardships including starvation, dehydration, exposure to the elements, Indian attacks, and religious persecution to name a few. Many people died during their journey. Shortly after arriving in and establishing Salt Lake City, Brigham Young dispatched pioneers to establish communities in present day Idaho, Wyoming, Oregon, and other regions of Utah. The vast colonization effort in no way ended the hardship experienced by the pioneers. Throughout the area included in my proposal are numerous stories of pioneers who persevered through challenging circumstances. Communities such as Panguitch have Quilt Days every year to commemorate the sacrifice and fortitude of its pioneers whose efforts saved the community from starvation in 1864. The Quilt Days celebration is a remembrance of an event known as the Quilt Walk, in which a group of men from Panguitch attempted to cross over the mountains to Parowan, a community to the west, to procure food during the community's first winter. Because of deep snows the pioneers were unable to trek across the mountains. Using their quilts, the pioneers formed a path which would support their weight and were able to reach Parowan, secure food, and return to Panguitch. There are other remarkable stories in the proposed heritage area that demonstrate the tenacity of the Mormon pioneers. At times in order to survive, the pioneers had to overcome major natural obstacles. One such obstacle was the Hole-in-the-Rock. In 1880 a group of 250 people, 80 wagons, and 1,000 head of cattle came upon the Colorado River Gorge. After looking for some time to find an acceptable path to the river, the pioneers found a narrow crevice leading to the bottom of the gorge. Because the crevice was too narrow to accommodate their wagons, the pioneers spent six weeks enlarging the crevice by hand, using hammers, chisels, and blasting powder, so wagons could pass. Today the Hole-in-the-Rock stands as a monument to the resourcefulness of the Mormon pioneers.

The National Mormon Pioneer Heritage Area will serve as special recognition to the people and places that have contributed greatly to our Nation's development. Throughout the heritage area are wonderful examples of architecture, such as the community of Spring City, heritage products, and cultural events, such as the Mormon Miracle Pageant, that demonstrate the way-of-life of the pioneers.

This designation will allow for the conservation of historical and cultural resources, the establishment of interpretive exhibits, will increase public awareness, and specifically allows for the preservation of historic buildings. This is a locally based, locally supported undertaking. My legislation has broad support from Sanpete, Sevier, Piute, Garfield, and Kane Counties. Furthermore, nothing in my legislation affects private property, land use planning, or zoning.

I am very proud to introduce this legislation today. I look forward to working with my colleagues in the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources to pass this legislation this year.

By Mr. WYDEN.

S. 2197. A bill to provide for the liquidation or reliquidation of certain entries of roller chain; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. WYDEN. Madam President, today I am introducing legislation whose purpose is to correct a gross injustice that has been carried out for more than two decades by bureaucrats at the International Trade Administration, ITA, and the U.S. Customs Service, Customs, against a small Oregon business, GS Associates, Inc., GS. What has been allowed to happen to this company at the hands of the federal government is a shocking and ultimately disturbing example of what can happen to ordinary, hardworking Americans when an overzealous Federal bureaucracy is allowed to run horribly amok.

In 1973, imports of Japanese roller chain, not bicycle chain, potentially became subject to dumping duties, and in 1980, Congress instructed the International Trade Administration, ITA, to conduct complete annual administrative reviews of outstanding dumping findings to determine whether any dumping duties should be assessed. But ITA failed to complete its reviews on a timely basis. In fact, for my small Oregon importer, GS, the ITA wasn't just a day or two late in reporting the findings of its review of the company's Japanese supplier for shipments imported from April 1, 1981 through March 31, 1982, they were nine-and-a-half years late. When ITA finally got around to issuing a notice regarding its administrative review on September 22, 1992, a court challenge was initiated by the Japanese supplier and a court decision was rendered on July 11, 1995. Not surprisingly, ITA failed to publish notice of the court's decision in the Federal Register within ten days, as required by law. That was in 1995. The year is now 2002, and ITA still has not published that notice. And as if all of this ineptitude were not enough, ITA then failed to instruct Customs to begin assessing dumping duties on and to liquidate GS Associates' shipments until the Spring of 2000. When Customs finally began assessing duties, they added on enormous amounts of interest, dating back almost 20 years, in sums that were two to three times greater than the original dumping duty assessments. This outrageous pattern of conduct by the federal government threatens GS with bankruptcy.

The level of ineptitude displayed in this case by bureaucrats at ITA and the Customs Service is egregious bordering on negligence. Legitimate small businesses in this country should have the expectation they will be treated fairly and forthrightly by their federal government. ITA and the Customs Service deserve a very strong rebuke. GS Associates deserves to have its case resolved quickly and fairly, and that is the point of my legislation. It will liquidate once and for all the $1.7 million in duties and interest that have accumulated over the past 20 years on these imports because of federal government negligence.

I intend to work with the Finance Committee to assure that this measure is included in the legislation the committee is preparing on temporary duty suspensions, and hope that the duty suspension bill will enable this Oregon company to be able to put this terrible experience behind it.

By Mr. CRAIG:

S. 2199. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to permit additional States to enter into long-term care partnerships under the Medicaid Program in order to promote the use of long-term care insurance; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CRAIG. Madam President, I rise today to introduce the Long-Term Care Insurance Partnership Act.

In the early 1990's, with support from a grant by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, four States, California, Connecticut, Indiana and New York, initiated programs to create public-private long-term care partnerships to provide citizens with options for long-term care coverage without having to spend down to Medicaid eligibility. However, current law prohibits additional States from including asset protection in any public-private partnerships they may develop. Other States may set up the policies, but the beneficiaries receive no asset protection in the event they exhaust the long-term care insurance policies. They would be forced to spend down to Medicaid levels, thereby removing the key incentive behind the partnership program—asset protection.

Under the partnership program, States authorize the sale of approved long-term care insurance policies that meet certain benefit requirements. Individuals who purchase approved policies, would receive a guarantee from the State that should their policy benefits be exhausted, the State would then cover the cost of their continuing care through Medicaid. The primary incentive for purchasing partnership policies is asset protection.

In other words, the State Medicaid program would become a payer of last resort rather than providing first-dollar coverage, in effect becoming a long-term care "stop-loss" program.

The benefits of the program are significant for both seniors and government: Individuals are encouraged to take responsibility for their own long-term care needs rather than relying on a State benefit. It avoids forcing middle-class individuals to spend down to Medicaid levels, but gives these same individuals the knowledge that the government will be there if they need it. This program has been successful in the goal of keeping people from needing to use Medicaid. Under this program in four States, there are nearly 66,000 policies in force and so far only 28 policyholders have exhausted their long-term care insurance benefits and accessed Medicaid assistance. At a cost averaging $50,000 per year for long-term care services, the savings for State Medicaid budgets can be significant.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2199

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Long-Term Care Insurance Partnership Program Act of 2002".

SEC. 2. PERMITTING ADDITIONAL STATES TO ENTER INTO LONG-TERM CARE PARTNERSHIPS TO PROMOTE USE OF LONG-TERM CARE INSURANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1917(b)(1)(C) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396p(b)(1)(C)) is amended—

(1) in clause (i), by striking “shall seek adjustment” and inserting “may seek adjustment”; and

(2) in clause (ii), by striking “had a State plan amendment approved as of May 14, 1993, which provided” and inserting “has a State plan amendment approved which provides”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself and Mr. GRASSLEY):

S. 2200. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify that the parsonage allowance exclusion is limited to the fair rental value of the property; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Madam President, today I introduce legislation, along with Senator GRASSLEY, to clarify the tax treatment of the clergy housing allowance. It is a very simple bill that confirms established Internal Revenue Service policy that has lacked the force of law. Without this clarification, we risk losing a long-standing benefit that is terribly important to hundreds of thousands of ministers, priests, rabbis and other clergy all across America.

Since 1921, the Tax Code has allowed clergy to exclude from their taxable income the value of housing provided to them, and since the 1950's they have also been able to exclude a housing allowance provided for the same purpose. This section of the Code is similar to one for employer-provided housing for other taxpayers. The one for clergy is much simpler, in order to minimize the involvement of the Government in the affairs of churches, that is, to keep the separation between Church and State.

The IRS has always interpreted this exclusion to be limited to the fair market rental value of the housing. They clearly stated that position in 1971, but their statement lacked the force of law. Their position has been challenged in Court, and the Court has said that it was not clear that Congress meant to impose this limit. That is why we must act.

The vast majority of clergy across America work very hard for very modest pay. Especially in rural areas like we have in Montana, many congregations are small, pay is low, and ministers are very dependent upon their churches providing or paying for their housing. A dispute over this issue has led to a controversial attempt by a panel of court of appeals judges to call into question the constitutionality of the exclusion. If the exclusion is lost, it will cost America's clergy $500 million each year. That may seem like a small amount of money compared to many of our tax bills that add up to billions, but it is a lot of money to those who are directly affected, and to the millions of Americans in the congregations that they serve.

The House has passed similar legislation by a vote of 408 to 0. Senator GRASSLEY and I will try to expedite passage of the legislation here in the Senate.

It is good tax policy to keep a reasonable limit on the amount of this deduction, as the IRS has done for decades. And it is good policy to make our intent crystal clear so that government involvement with religious affairs is kept to a minimum. This bill will do both.

By Mr. HOLLINGS (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. BURNS, Mr. INOUE, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. KERRY, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. NELSON of Florida, and Mrs. CARNAHAN):

S. 2201. A bill to protect the online privacy of individuals who use the Internet; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Madam President, today I rise to introduce bipartisan legislation that will establish baseline requirements for the protection of personal information collected from individuals over the Internet. This bill, the Online Personal Privacy Act, represents the work of many months and important input from consumer groups, affected individuals, and most importantly, many Senators on the Commerce Committee. The origin of this emerging consensus position began to take shape at a Commerce committee hearing last summer that focused generally on whether there was a need for online privacy legislation. At that time, members of the committee began to articulate the notion that not all personal information is created equal. I agree. Some, highly sensitive personal information, such as personal financial or medical information or a person's religious beliefs are clearly more sensitive than other garden-variety types of information, such as a pair of slacks that an individual may purchase. Since that hearing, and in numerous meetings with members of the Committee, we have worked hard to develop a balanced approach to Internet privacy regulation that recognizes and builds upon best practices in the online community while establishing a federal baseline standard for the protection of individuals' privacy on the Internet.

Let me begin by expressing my gratitude to Senators ROCKEFELLER, INOUE, BREAUX, and CLELAND, who worked closely with me during the last Congress to advocate the need for strong online privacy protections and who have agreed to be original cosponsors of this legislation. In addition, I would also like to particularly thank Senators KERRY, STEVENS, and BURNS for their invaluable contributions throughout this process and their willingness to join with us in working to craft a workable, bipartisan, consensus position on legislation that will provide individuals with better controls over the use of their personal information while fueling the growth of e-commerce as consumer confidence in the Internet spurs a significant increase in online activity.

Some have argued that Americans' concerns about privacy no longer exist in the aftermath of September 11. But poll after poll consistently demonstrates that the American people want companies they patronize to seek their permission prior to using their personal information for commercial profit. These concerns are heightened with respect to the Internet, which, in a digital age, enables the seamless compilation of highly detailed personal profiles of Internet users. Accordingly, fears about privacy have had palpable effects on the willingness of consumers to embrace the full potential of the Internet and e-commerce.

Distrust of false privacy promises has sparked a rage of online self-defense, especially the providing of false information by individuals. Industry analysts estimate that between one-fifth to one-third of all individuals provide false personal information on the Internet. This response is understandable given that consumers have few tools to discover whether their personal information is being disclosed, sold, or otherwise misused, and they have virtually no recourse.

Privacy fears are stifling the development and expansion of the Internet as an engine of economic growth. Because of consumer distrust, online companies and services are losing potential business and collecting bad data, blocking the Internet and its wide range of services from reaching its full potential. The lack of enforceable privacy protections is a significant barrier to the full embrace by consumers of the Internet marketplace. According to a recent Harris/Business Week poll, almost two-thirds of non-Internet users would be more likely to use the Net if the privacy of their “personal information and communications were protected.”

Moreover, according to a recent Forrester study, online businesses lost nearly $15 billion, or 27 percent of e-commerce revenues, due to consumer privacy concerns. Those numbers are significant in light of the economic downturn and its disproportionate impact on the high-tech Internet sectors. Good privacy means good business and the Internet economy could use a healthy dose of that right now.

Accordingly, our legislation offers a win-win proposition for consumers and business: it will protect the privacy of individuals online and provide online businesses with a new market of willing customers. While protecting the necessary business certainty of a single Federal standard.

Online companies have long argued that privacy regulations would hamper their ability to efficiently conduct business on-line and give consumers the tailored buying experience they now expect from the Internet. Online merchants also touted self-regulation as sufficient privacy protection. We know otherwise.

Privacy violations continue to make headlines: a major outcry erupted last year after Eli Lilly disclosed a list of hundreds of customers suffering from depression, bulimia, and obsessive compulsive disorder over the Internet. Moreover, just last week, a New York Times article, "Seeking Profits, Internet Companies Alter Privacy Policy," recounted how Internet companies such as Yahoo had changed their privacy policies in order to require consumers to restate their privacy preferences even if they had previously withheld consent for the use and commercialization of their personal information. Accordingly, these companies expanded their ability to use an individual's personal information for on-line and offline marketing purposes notwithstanding that individual's prior policy preferences. Still other businesses confound consumers with opaque privacy policies that begin with, "Your privacy is important to us," but in the subsequent legalese, outline a series of exceptions crafted with double-negative verbs that allow virtually any use of a consumer's information. Still other commercial web sites fail to pass any privacy policy at all, safe in the knowledge that they face virtually no legal jeopardy for selling personal information.

To be fair, some companies have taken consumer privacy seriously. Earthlink launched a national television advertising campaign touting its policy of not selling customer information. U-Haul's web site simply says: "We will never sell or share our information with anyone, or send you junk mail, we hate that stuff, too." Companies like Hewlett Packard, Intel, and Microsoft, giants of the high tech industry, already provide individuals opt-in protection with respect to their personal information. But, in the final analysis, despite the best of intentions and some successful efforts, reliance on self-regulation alone has not proven to provide sufficient protection. In its May 2000 Report to Congress, the Federal Trade Commission clearly recognized this shortcoming having studied this issue diligently for 5 years: "Because self-regulatory initiatives to date fall short of broad-based implementation of effective self-regulatory programs, the Commission has concluded that such efforts alone cannot ensure that the online marketplace as a whole will emulate the standards adopted by industry leaders. The Commission recommends that Congress enact legislation that, in conjunction with continuing self-regulatory programs, will ensure adequate protection of consumer privacy online."

Our legislation aims to do just that. Fundamentally, our legislation is built upon the five core principles of privacy protection identified by the Federal Trade Commission in its 1995 report to Congress regarding online privacy: 1. Notice, 2. Consent, 3. Access, 4. Security and 5. Enforcement. Those principles are tried and true and formed the framework for the bipartisan Children's Online Privacy Protection Act of 1998. Which was hailed by industry far and wide as a template for protecting children's personal information that is collected on the Internet.

The bill we introduce today takes a singular approach. It divides online personal information into two categories: sensitive information and non-sensitive information. Sensitive information is narrowly tailored to include actual information about specific financial data, health information, ethnicity, religious affiliation, sexual orientation, and political affiliation, or someone's social security number. Non-sensitive information is all other personally identifiable information collected online.

In this respect, the legislation is also similar to the two-tiered approach taken by the European Union in which companies are required to provide baseline protections governing the use of nonsensitive information, and stronger consent protections governing the use of sensitive data. More than 180 American companies, including Staples, Marriott, Microsoft, Intel, Hewlett Packard, DoubleClick Kodak, and Axiom, doing business in Europe have agreed to provide such protections with respect to the personal data of European citizens. They have signed up for the EU Safe Harbor and their names are listed on the Department of Commerce's web site. Our bill simply asks these and other companies to provide similar protections for U.S. citizens.

First, with respect to notice and consent, the bill would require web sites and online services to post clear and conspicuous notice of its information practices. In other words, plainly state to individuals what you plan to do with their personal information. To the extent that a web site collects sensitive information, it would also be required to obtain a consumer's affirmative consent, so-called "opt-in" consent, prior to the collection of such data. To the extent that a web site collects only non-sensitive personal data, it would be able to collect such data for other uses as long as it provides individuals with an ability to "opt out" of such uses and provides the consumer with actual notice at the point of collection, so-called "robust notice", which briefly and succinctly describes how the information may be used or disclosed.

Many Internet companies are doing this already. For example, on the same page where an individual provides his or her personal information, the web site for 1-800 Flowers states: "You will be receiving promotional offers and materials from our sites and companies we own. Please check the box below if you do not want to receive such materials in the future and do not wish us to provide personal information collected from you to third parties." Similarly, NBC's website says the following on the webpage where individuals register their personal information: "As our customer, you will occasionally receive email from shopnbc.com about new services, features, and special offers we believe would interest you. If you'd rather not receive these updates, please uncheck this box." It's as simple as that. And it provides the individual the ability to make an informed choice at the critical point at which he or she is providing a company with personally identifiable information.

Next, our legislation requires companies to provide individuals with the ability to find out what personal information a web site has collected about them. While important, this right of reasonable access is not unqualified. Rather, it considers a variety of factors including the sensitivity of the information sought by the consumer and the burden and expense on the provider in giving consumers access to their personal information. In addition, the bill would permit online companies to charge individuals a reasonable fee to access their personal data, as is similarly provided under the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

In addition, our bill requires that web sites adopt reasonable security procedures to protect the security, confidentiality, and integrity of personally identifiable information, just as Congress required in the Children's privacy legislation.

Moreover, the bill grants consumers important rights of redress. First, the Federal Trade Commission and state attorneys general are empowered to take action. If the FTC collects civil penalties, the bill creates a mechanism whereby those injured can petition to receive up to $200 of the award. For more serious violations involving sensitive information, the bill would additionally permit individuals on their own to pursue redress for damages in federal court.

Finally, in addition to following these fair information principles, the legislation also takes the critical step of establishing a uniform federal standard for online privacy protection by preempting State Internet laws. Inconsistent state regulation of privacy is already causing problems for online businesses. Vermont has adopted "opt-in laws" governing financial and medical privacy. In Minnesota, the state Senate has adopted "opt-in" online privacy legislation by a vote of 96-0. In California, state privacy legislation is again moving through the state legislature, offering the very real possibility that online businesses will sooner rather than later face the prospect of trying to bring their online operation into compliance with inconsistent state laws.

Because new technologies make privacy protection a constantly evolving issue, the bill requires the FTC not only to implement the requirements of the law, but further, to issue periodic reports about how the law is working; whether similar privacy protections should apply offline or to pre-existing data; whether standardized online privacy notices should be developed; if a meaningful safe harbor should be constructed; and whether privacy protection technologies in the marketplace such as P3P can help facilitate the administration of the Act.

Consumer participation in cyberspace should not be conditioned on a willingness to relinquish control over one's personal information. Rather, for the medium to truly flourish, we must establish baseline consumer protections that will eliminate the tyranny of convenience in which consumers are forced to choose between disclosing private, personal information, or not using the Internet at all. Congress has a moral obligation to protect American individual liberties, including the right to better control the commercialization of one's own personal, private information.

This bill is an important first step. The privacy protections in this legislation will instill more confidence in people to use the Internet and create a consistent legal framework for online businesses. It will provide better online privacy protections for consumers, better commercial opportunities for businesses who respond to consumer privacy concerns, and a better future for Americans who will embrace the Internet rather than fear it.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2201

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Online Personal Privacy Act".

- Sec. 404. FTC report.
- Sec. 405. Development of automated privacy controls.

SEC. 3. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) The right to privacy is a personal and fundamental right worthy of protection through appropriate legislation.

(2) Individuals engaging in and interacting with companies engaged in interstate commerce have a significant interest in their personal information, as well as a right to control how that information is collected, used, or transferred.

(3) Absent the recognition of these rights and the establishment of consequent industry responsibilities to safeguard those rights, the privacy of individuals who use the Internet will soon be more gravely threatened.

(4) To extent that States regulate, their efforts to address Internet privacy will lead to a patchwork of inconsistent standards and protections.

(5) Existing State, local, and Federal laws provide minimal privacy protection for Internet users.

(6) With the exception of Federal Trade Commission enforcement of laws against unfair and deceptive practices, the Federal Government thus far has eschewed general Internet privacy laws in favor of industry self-regulation, which has led to several self-policing schemes, none of which are enforceable in any meaningful way or provide sufficient privacy protection to individuals.

(7) State governments have been reluctant to enter the field of Internet privacy regulation because use of the Internet often crosses State, or even national, boundaries.

(8) States are nonetheless interested in providing greater privacy protection to their citizens as evidenced by recent lawsuits brought against offline and online companies by State attorneys general to protect the privacy of individuals using the Internet.

(9) The ease of gathering and compiling personal information on the Internet, both overtly and surreptitiously, is becoming increasingly efficient and effortless due to advances in digital communications technology which have provided information gatherers the ability to compile seamlessly highly detailed personal histories of Internet users.

(10) Personal information flowing over the Internet requires greater privacy protection than is currently available today. Vast amounts of personal information, including sensitive information, about individual Internet users are collected on the Internet and sold or otherwise transferred to third parties.

(11) Poll after poll consistently demonstrates that individual Internet users are highly troubled over their lack of control over their personal information.

(12) Market research demonstrates that tens of billions of dollars in e-commerce are lost due to individual fears about a lack of privacy protection on the Internet.

(13) Market research demonstrates that as many as one-third of all Internet users give false information about themselves to protect their privacy, due to fears about a lack of privacy protection on the Internet.

(14) Notwithstanding these concerns, the Internet is becoming a major part of the personal and commercial lives of millions of Americans, providing increased access to information, as well as communications and commercial opportunities.

(15) It is important to establish personal privacy rights and industry obligations now so that individuals have confidence that their personal privacy is fully protected on the Internet.

(16) The social and economic costs of establishing baseline privacy standards now will be lower than if Congress waits until the Internet becomes more prevalent in our everyday lives in coming years.

(17) Whatever costs may be borne by industry will be significantly offset by the economic benefits to the commercial Internet created by increased consumer confidence occasioned by greater privacy protection.

(18) Toward the close of the 20th Century, as individuals' personal information was increasingly collected, profiled, and shared for commercial purposes, and as technology advanced to facilitate these practices, the Congress enacted numerous statutes to protect privacy.

(19) Those statutes apply to the government, telephones, cable television, e-mail, video tape rentals, and the Internet (but only with respect to children).

(20) Those statutes all provide significant privacy protections, but neither limit technology nor stifle business.

(21) Those statutes ensure that the collection and commercialization of individuals' personal information is fair, transparent, and subject to law.

SEC. 4. PREEMPTION OF STATE LAW OR REGULATIONS.

This Act supersedes any State statute, regulation, or rule regulating Internet privacy to the extent that it relates to the collection, use, or disclosure of personally identifiable information obtained through the Internet.

TITLE I—ONLINE PRIVACY PROTECTION

SEC. 101. COLLECTION, USE, OR DISCLOSURE OF PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website on the Internet may not collect personally identifiable information from a user, or use or disclose personally identifiable information about a user, of that service or website except in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(b) APPLICATION TO CERTAIN THIRD-PARTY OPERATORS.—The provisions of this Act applicable to internet service providers, online service providers, and commercial website operators apply to any third party, including an advertising network, that uses an internet service provider, online service provider, or commercial website operator to collect information about users of that service or website.

SEC. 102. NOTICE AND CONSENT REQUIREMENTS.

(a) NOTICE.—Except as provided in section 104, an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website may not collect personally identifiable information from a user of that service or website online unless that provider or operator provides clear and conspicuous notice to the user in the manner required by this section for the kind of personally identifiable information to be collected. The notice shall disclose—

(1) the specific types of information that will be collected;

(2) the methods of collecting and using the information collected; and

(3) all disclosure practices of that provider or operator for personally identifiable information so collected, including whether it will be disclosed to third parties.

(b) SENSITIVE PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION REQUIRES OPT-IN CONSENT.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website may not—

(1) collect sensitive personally identifiable information online, or

(2) disclose or otherwise use such information collected online, from a user of that service or website, unless the provider or operator obtains that user's affirmative consent to the collection and disclosure or use of that information before, or at the time, the information is collected.

(c) NONSENSITIVE PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION REQUIRES ROBUST NOTICE AND OPT-OUT CONSENT.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website may not—

(1) collect personally identifiable information not described in subsection (b) online, or

(2) disclose or otherwise use such information collected online, from a user of that service or website, unless the provider or operator provides robust notice to the user, in addition to clear and conspicuous notice, and has given the user an opportunity to decline consent for such collection and use by the provider or operator before, or at the time, the information is collected.

(d) INITIAL NOTICE ONLY FOR ROBUST NOTICE.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website shall provide robust notice under subsection (c) of this section to a user only upon its first collection of non-sensitive personally identifiable information from that user, except that a subsequent collection of additional or materially different non-sensitive personally identifiable information from that user shall be treated as a first collection of such information from that user.

(e) PERMANENCE OF CONSENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The consent or denial of consent by a user of permission to an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website to collect, disclose, or otherwise use any information about that user for which consent is required under this Act—

(A) shall remain in effect until changed by the user; and

(B) shall apply to the collection, disclosure, or other use of that information by any entity that is a commercial successor of, or legal successor-in-interest to, that provider or operator, without regard to the legal form in which such succession was accomplished (including any entity that collects, discloses, or uses such information as a result of a proceeding under chapter 7 or chapter 11 of title 11, United States Code, with respect to the provider or operator).

(2) EXCEPTION.—The consent by a user to the collection, disclosure, or other use of information about that user for which consent is required under this Act does not apply to the collection, disclosure, or use of that information by a successor entity under paragraph (1)(B) if—

(A) the kind of information collected by the successor entity about the user is materially different from the kind of information collected by the predecessor entity;

(B) the methods of collecting and using the information employed by the successor entity are materially different from the methods employed by the predecessor entity; or

(C) the disclosure practices of the successor entity are materially different from the practices of the predecessor entity.

SEC. 103. POLICY CHANGES; BREACH OF PRIVACY.

(a) NOTICE OF POLICY CHANGE.—Whenever an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website makes a material change in its policy for the collection, use, or disclosure of sensitive or nonsensitive personally identifiable information, it—

(1) shall notify all users of that service or website of the change in policy; and

(2) may not collect, disclose, or otherwise use any sensitive or nonsensitive personally identifiable information in accordance with the changed policy unless the user has been afforded an opportunity to consent, or withhold consent, to its collection, disclosure, or use in accordance with the requirements of section 102(b) or (c), whichever is applicable.

(b) NOTICE OF BREACH OF PRIVACY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the sensitive or nonsensitive personally identifiable information of a user of an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website—

(A) is collected, disclosed, or otherwise used by the provider or operator in violation of any provision of this Act, or

(B) the security, confidentiality, or integrity of such information is compromised by a hacker or other third party, or by any act or failure to act of the provider or operator, then the provider or operator shall notify all users whose sensitive or nonsensitive personally identifiable information was affected by the unlawful collection, disclosure, use, or compromise. The notice shall describe the nature of the unlawful collection, disclosure, use, or compromise and the steps taken by the provider or operator to remedy it.

(2) DELAY OF NOTIFICATION.—

(A) ACTION TAKEN BY INDIVIDUALS.—If the compromise of the security, confidentiality, or integrity of the information is caused by a hacker or other external interference with the service or website, or by an employee of the service or website, the provider or operator may postpone issuing the notice required by paragraph (1) for a reasonable period of time in order to—

(i) facilitate the detection and apprehension of the person responsible for the compromise; and

(ii) take such measures as may be necessary to restore the integrity of the service or website and prevent any further compromise of the security, confidentiality, and integrity of such information.

(B) SYSTEM FAILURES AND OTHER FUNCTIONAL CAUSES.—If the unlawful collection, disclosure, use, or compromise of the security, confidentiality, and integrity of the information is the result of a system failure, a problem with the operating system, software, or program used by the internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of the commercial website, or other non-external interference with the service or website, the provider or operator may postpone issuing the notice required by paragraph (1) for a reasonable period of time in order to—

(i) restore the system's functionality or fix the problem; and

(ii) take such measures as may be necessary to restore the integrity of the service or website and prevent any further compromise of the security, confidentiality, and integrity of the information after the failure or problem has been fixed and the integrity of the service or website has been restored.

SEC. 104. EXCEPTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 102 does not apply to the collection, disclosure, or use by an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website of information about a user of that service or website necessary—

(1) to protect the security or integrity of the service or website or to ensure the safety of other people or property;

(2) to conduct a transaction, deliver a product or service, or complete an arrangement for which the user provided the information; or

(3) to provide other products and services integrally related to the transaction, service, product, or arrangement for which the user provided the information.

(b) PROTECTED DISCLOSURES.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website may not be held liable under this Act, any other Federal law, or any State law for any disclosure made in good faith and following reasonable procedures in responding to—

(1) a request for disclosure of personal information under section 1302(b)(1)(B)(iii) of the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act of 1998 (15 U.S.C. 6501 et seq.) to the parent of a child; or

(2) a request for access to, or correction or deletion of, personally identifiable information under section 105 of this Act.

(c) DISCLOSURE TO LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCY OR UNDER COURT ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, an internet service provider, online service provider, operator of a commercial website, or third party that uses such a service or website to collect information about users of that service or website may disclose personally identifiable information about a user of that service or website—

(A) to a law enforcement, investigatory, national security, or regulatory agency or department of the United States in response to a request or demand made under authority granted to that agency or department, including a warrant issued under the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, an equivalent State warrant, a court order, or a properly executed administrative compulsory process; and

(B) in response to a court order in a civil proceeding granted upon a showing of compelling need for the information that cannot be accommodated by any other means if—

(i) the user to whom the information relates is given reasonable notice by the person seeking the information of the court proceeding at which the order is requested; and

(ii) that user is afforded a reasonable opportunity to appear and contest the issuance of requested order or to narrow its scope.

(2) SAFEGUARDS AGAINST FURTHER DISCLOSURE.—A court that issues an order described in paragraph (1) shall impose appropriate safeguards on the use of the information to protect against its unauthorized disclosure.

SEC. 105. ACCESS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website shall—

(1) upon request provide reasonable access to a user to personally identifiable information that the provider or operator has collected from the user online, or that the provider or operator has combined with personally identifiable information collected from the user online after the effective date of this Act;

(2) provide a reasonable opportunity for a user to suggest a correction or deletion of any such information maintained by that provider or operator to which the user was granted access; and

(3) make the correction a part of that user's sensitive personally identifiable information or nonsensitive personally identifiable information (whichever is appropriate), or make the deletion, for all future disclosure and other use purposes.

(b) EXCEPTION.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website may decline to make a suggested correction a part of that user's sensitive personally identifiable information or nonsensitive personally identifiable information (whichever is appropriate), or to make a suggested deletion if the provider or operator—

(1) reasonably believes that the suggested correction or deletion is inaccurate or otherwise inappropriate;

(2) notifies the user in writing, or in digital or other electronic form, of the reasons the provider or operator believes the suggested correction or deletion is inaccurate or otherwise inappropriate; and

(3) provides a reasonable opportunity for the user to refute the reasons given by the provider or operator for declining to make the suggested correction or deletion.

(c) REASONABLENESS TEST.—The reasonableness of the access or opportunity provided under subsection (a) or (b) by an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website shall be determined by taking into account such factors as the sensitivity of the information requested and the burden or expense on the provider or operator of complying with the request, correction, or deletion.

(d) REASONABLE ACCESS FEE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website may impose a reasonable charge for access under subsection (a).

(2) AMOUNT.—The amount of the fee shall not exceed $3, except that upon request of a user, a provider or operator shall provide such access without charge to that user if the user certifies in writing that the user—

(A) is unemployed and intends to apply for employment in the 60-day period beginning on the date on which the certification is made;

(B) is a recipient of public welfare assistance; or

(C) has reason to believe that the incorrect information is due to fraud.

SEC. 106. SECURITY.

An internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website shall establish and maintain reasonable procedures necessary to protect the security, confidentiality, and integrity of personally identifiable information maintained by that provider or operator.

TITLE II—ENFORCEMENT

SEC. 201. ENFORCEMENT BY FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION.

Except as provided in section 202(b) of this Act and section 2710(d) of title 18, United States Code, this Act shall be enforced by the Commission.

SEC. 202. VIOLATION IS UNFAIR OR DECEPTIVE ACT OR PRACTICE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The violation of any provision of title I is an unfair or deceptive act or practice proscribed under section 18(a)(1)(B) of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 57a(a)(1)(B)).

(b) ENFORCEMENT BY CERTAIN OTHER AGENCIES.—Compliance with title I of this Act shall be enforced under—

(1) section 8 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1818), in the case of—

(A) national banks, and Federal branches and Federal agencies of foreign banks, by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency;

(B) member banks of the Federal Reserve System (other than national banks), branches and agencies of foreign banks (other than Federal branches, Federal agencies, and insured State branches of foreign banks), commercial lending companies owned or controlled by foreign banks, and organizations operating under section 25 or 25A of the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 601 and 611), by the Board; and

(C) banks insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (other than members of the Federal Reserve System) and insured State branches of foreign banks, by the Board of Directors of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;

(2) section 8 of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1818), by the Director of the Office of Thrift Supervision, in the case of a savings association the deposits of which are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation;

(3) the Federal Credit Union Act (12 U.S.C. 1751 et seq.) by the National Credit Union Administration Board with respect to any Federal credit union;

(4) part A of subtitle VII of title 49, United States Code, by the Secretary of Transportation with respect to any air carrier or foreign air carrier subject to that part;

(5) the Packers and Stockyards Act, 1921 (7 U.S.C. 181 et seq.) (except as provided in section 406 of that Act (7 U.S.C. 226, 227)), by the Secretary of Agriculture with respect to any activities subject to that Act; and

(6) the Farm Credit Act of 1971 (12 U.S.C. 2001 et seq.) by the Farm Credit Administration with respect to any Federal land bank, Federal land bank association, Federal intermediate credit bank, or production credit association.

(c) EXERCISE OF CERTAIN POWERS.—For the purpose of the exercise by any agency referred to in subsection (b) of its powers under any Act referred to in that subsection, a violation of title I is deemed to be a violation of a requirement imposed under that Act. In addition to its powers under any provision of law specifically referred to in subsection (b), each of the agencies referred to in that subsection may exercise, for the purpose of enforcing compliance with any requirement imposed under title I, any other authority conferred on it by law.

(d) ACTIONS BY THE COMMISSION.—The Commission shall prevent any person from violating title I in the same manner, by the same means, and with the same jurisdiction, powers, and duties as though all applicable terms and provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 41 et seq.) were incorporated into and made a part of this Act. Any entity that violates any provision of that subtitle is subject to the penalties and entitled to the privileges and immunities provided in the Federal Trade Commission Act in the same manner, by the same means, and with the same jurisdiction, power, and duties as though all applicable terms and provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act were incorporated into and made a part of that subtitle.

(e) DISPOSITION OF CIVIL PENALTIES OBTAINED BY FTC ENFORCEMENT ACTION INVOLVING NONSENSITIVE PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If a civil penalty is imposed on an internet service provider, online service provider, or commercial website operator in an enforcement action brought by the Commission for a violation of title I with respect to nonsensitive personally identifiable information of users of the service or website, the penalty shall be—

(A) paid to the Commission;

(B) held by the Commission in trust for distribution under paragraph (2); and

(C) distributed in accordance with paragraph (2).

(2) DISTRIBUTION TO USERS.—Under procedures to be established by the Commission, the Commission shall hold any amount received as a civil penalty for violation of title I for a period of not less than 180 days for distribution under those procedures to users—

(A) whose nonsensitive personally identifiable information was the subject of the violation; and

(B) who file claims with the Commission for compensation for loss or damage from the violation at such time, in such manner, and containing such information as the Commission may require.

(3) AMOUNT OF PAYMENT.—The amount a user may receive under paragraph (2)—

(i) shall not exceed $200; and

(ii) may be limited by the Commission as necessary to afford each such user a reasonable opportunity to secure that user's appropriate portion of the amount available for distribution.

(4) REMAINDER.—If the amount of any such penalty held by the Commission exceeds the sum of the amounts distributed under paragraph (2) attributable to that penalty, the excess shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts no later than 12 months after it was paid to the Commission.

(f) EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.—

(1) PRESERVATION OF COMMISSION AUTHORITY.—Nothing contained in this subtitle shall be construed to limit the authority of the Commission under any other provision of law.

(2) RELATION TO TITLE II OF COMMUNICATIONS ACT.—Nothing in title I requires an operator of a website or online service to take any action that is inconsistent with the requirements of section 222 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 222).

(3) RELATION TO TITLE VI OF COMMUNICATIONS ACT.—Section 631 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 551) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(i) To the extent that the application of any provision of this title to a cable operator as an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website (as those terms are defined in section 401 of the Online Personal Privacy Act) with respect to the provision of Internet service or online service, or the operation of a commercial website, conflicts with the application of any provision of that Act to such provision or operation, the Act shall be applied in lieu of the conflicting provision of this title.”.

SEC. 203. ACTIONS BY USERS.

(a) PRIVATE RIGHT OF ACTION FOR SENSITIVE PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION.—If an internet service provider, online service provider, or commercial website operator collects, discloses, or uses the sensitive personally identifiable information of any person or fails to provide reasonable access to or reasonable security for such sensitive personally identifiable information in violation of any provision of title I then that person may bring an action in a district court of the United States of appropriate jurisdiction—

(1) to enjoin or restrain a violation of title I or to obtain other appropriate relief; and

(2) upon a showing of actual harm to that person caused by the violation, to recover the greater of—

(A) the actual monetary loss from the violation; or

(B) $5,000.

(b) REPEATED VIOLATIONS.—If the court finds, in an action brought under subsection (a) to recover damages, that the defendant repeatedly and knowingly violated title I, the court may, in its discretion, increase the amount of the award available under subsection (a)(2)(B) to an amount not in excess of $100,000.

(c) EXCEPTION.—Neither an action to enjoin or restrain a violation, nor an action to recover for loss or damage, may be brought under this section for the accidental disclosure of information if the disclosure was caused by an Act of God, unforeseeable network or systems failure, or other event beyond the control of the Internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website.

SEC. 204. ACTIONS BY STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) CIVIL ACTIONS.—In any case in which the attorney general of a State has reason to believe that an interest of the residents of that State has been or is threatened or adversely affected by the engagement of any person in a practice that violates title I, the State, as parens patriae, may bring a civil action on behalf of the residents of the State in a district court of the United States of appropriate jurisdiction—

- (A) to enjoin that practice;
- (B) to enforce compliance with the rule;
- (C) to obtain damage, restitution, or other compensation on behalf of residents of the State; or

(D) to obtain such other relief as the court may consider to be appropriate.

(2) NOTICE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Before filing an action under paragraph (1), the attorney general of the State involved shall provide to the Commission—

- (i) written notice of that action; and
- (ii) a copy of the complaint for that action.

(B) EXEMPTION.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to the filing of an action by an attorney general of a State under this subsection, if the attorney general determines that it is not feasible to provide the notice described in that subparagraph before the filing of the action.

(ii) NOTIFICATION.—In an action described in clause (i), the attorney general of a State shall provide notice and a copy of the complaint to the Commission at the same time as the attorney general files the action.

(b) INTERVENTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—On receiving notice under subsection (a)(2), the Commission shall have the right to intervene in the action that is the subject of the notice.

(2) EFFECT OF INTERVENTION.—If the Commission intervenes in an action under subsection (a), it shall have the right—

(A) to be heard with respect to any matter that arises in that action; and

(B) to file a petition for appeal.

(c) CONSTRUCTION.—For purposes of bringing any civil action under subsection (a), nothing in this subtitle shall be construed to prevent an attorney general of a State from exercising the powers conferred on the attorney general by the laws of that State to—

- (1) conduct investigations;
- (2) administer oaths or affirmations; or
- (3) compel the attendance of witnesses or the production of documentary and other evidence.

(d) ACTIONS BY THE COMMISSION.—In any case in which an action is instituted by or on behalf of the Commission for violation of title I, no State may, during the pendency of that action, institute an action under subsection (a) against any defendant named in the complaint in that action for violation of that rule.

(e) VENUE; SERVICE OF PROCESS.—

(1) VENUE.—Any action brought under subsection (a) may be brought in the district court of the United States that meets applicable requirements relating to venue under section 1391 of title 28, United States Code.

(2) SERVICE OF PROCESS.—In an action brought under subsection (a), process may be served in any district in which the defendant—

- (A) is an inhabitant; or
- (B) may be found.

SEC. 205. WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—No internet service provider, online service provider, or commercial website operator may discharge or otherwise discriminate against any employee with respect to compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment because the employee (or any person acting pursuant to the request of the employee) provided information to any Federal or State agency or to the Attorney General of the United States or of any State regarding a violation of any provision of title I.

(b) ENFORCEMENT.—Any employee or former employee who believes he has been discharged or discriminated against in violation of subsection (a) may file a civil action in the appropriate United States district court before the close of the 2-year period beginning on the date of such discharge or discrimination. The complainant shall also file a copy of the complaint initiating such action with the appropriate Federal agency.

(c) REMEDIES.—If the district court determines that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred, it may order the Internet service provider, online service provider, or commercial website operator that committed the violation—

- (1) to reinstate the employee to his former position;
- (2) to pay compensatory damages; or
- (3) to take other appropriate actions to remedy any past discrimination.

(d) LIMITATION.—The protections of this section shall not apply to any employee who—

- (1) deliberately causes or participates in the alleged violation; or
- (2) knowingly or recklessly provides substantially false information to such an agency or the Attorney General.

(e) BURDENS OF PROOF.—The legal burdens of proof that prevail under subchapter III of chapter 12 of title 5, United States Code (5 U.S.C. 1221 et seq.) shall govern adjudication of protected activities under this section.

SEC. 206. NO EFFECT ON OTHER REMEDIES.

The remedies provided by sections 203 and 204 are in addition to any other remedy available under any provision of law.

TITLE III—APPLICATION TO CONGRESS AND FEDERAL AGENCIES

SEC. 301. SENATE.

The Sergeant at Arms of the United States Senate shall develop regulations setting forth an information security and electronic privacy policy governing use of the Internet by officers and employees of the Senate that meets the requirements of title I.

SEC. 302. APPLICATION TO FEDERAL AGENCIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), this Act applies to each Federal agency that is an internet service provider or an online service provider, or that operates a website, to the extent provided by section 2674 of title 28, United States Code.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—This Act does not apply to any Federal agency to the extent that the application of this Act would compromise law enforcement activities or the administration of any investigative, security, or safety operation conducted in accordance with Federal law.

TITLE IV—MISCELLANEOUS

SEC. 401. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) COLLECT.—The term “collect” means the gathering of personally identifiable information about a user of an Internet service, online service, or commercial website by or on behalf of the provider or operator of that service or website by any means, direct or indirect, active or passive, including—

(A) an online request for such information by the provider or operator, regardless of how the information is transmitted to the provider or operator;

(B) the use of a chat room, message board, or other online service to gather the information; or

(C) tracking or use of any identifying code linked to a user of such a service or website, including the use of cookies or other tracking technology.

(2) COMMISSION.—The term “Commission” means the Federal Trade Commission.

(3) COOKIE.—The term “cookie” means any program, function, or device, commonly known as a “cookie”, that makes a record on the user’s computer (or other electronic device) of that user’s access to an internet service, online service, or commercial website.

(4) DISCLOSE.—The term “disclose” means the release of personally identifiable information about a user of an Internet service, online service, or commercial website by an internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website for any purpose, except where such information is provided to a person who provides support for the internal operations of the service or website and who does not disclose or use that information for any other purpose.

(5) FEDERAL AGENCY.—The term “Federal agency” means an agency, as that term is defined in section 551(1) of title 5, United States Code.

(6) INTERNAL OPERATIONS SUPPORT.—The term “support for the internal operations of a service or website” means any activity necessary to maintain the technical functionality of that service or website.

(7) INTERNET.—The term “Internet” means collectively the myriad of computer and telecommunications facilities, including equipment and operating software, which comprise the interconnected world-wide network of networks that employ the Transmission Control Protocol/Internet Protocol, or any predecessor or successor protocols to such protocol, to communicate information of all kinds by wire or radio.

(8) INTERNET SERVICE PROVIDER; ONLINE SERVICE PROVIDER; WEBSITE.—The Commission shall by rule define the terms “internet service provider”, “online service provider”, and “website”, and shall revise or amend such rule to take into account changes in technology, practice, or procedure with respect to the collection of personal information over the Internet.

(9) ONLINE.—The term “online” refers to any activity regulated by this Act or by section 2710 of title 18, United States Code, that is effected by active or passive use of an Internet connection, regardless of the medium by or through which that connection is established.

(10) OPERATOR OF A COMMERCIAL WEBSITE.—The term “operator of a commercial website”—

(A) means any person who operates a website located on the Internet or an online service and who collects or maintains personal information from or about the users of or visitors to such website or online service, or on whose behalf such information is collected or maintained, where such website or online service is operated for commercial purposes, including any person offering products or services for sale through that website or online service, involving commerce—

(i) among the several States or with 1 or more foreign nations;

(ii) in any territory of the United States or in the District of Columbia, or between any such territory and—

(I) another such territory; or

(II) any State or foreign nation; or

(iii) between the District of Columbia and any State, territory, or foreign nation; but

(B) does not include any nonprofit entity that would otherwise be exempt from coverage under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 45).

(11) PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term “personally identifiable information” means individually identifiable information about an individual collected online, including—

(i) a first and last name, whether given at birth or adoption, assumed, or legally changed;

(ii) a home or other physical address including street name and name of a city or town;

(iii) an e-mail address;

(iv) a telephone number;

(v) a birth certificate number;

(vi) any other identifier for which the Commission finds there is a substantial likelihood that the identifier would permit the physical or online contacting of a specific individual; or

(vii) information that an Internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website collects and combines with an identifier described in clauses (i) through (vi) of this subparagraph.

(B) INFERENTIAL INFORMATION EXCLUDED.—Information about an individual derived or inferred from data collected online but not actually collected online is not personally identifiable information.

(12) RELEASE.—The term “release of personally identifiable information” means the direct or indirect, sharing, selling, renting, or other provision of personally identifiable information of a user of an Internet service, online service, or commercial website to any other person other than the user.

(13) ROBUST NOTICE.—The term “robust notice” means actual notice at the point of collection of the personally identifiable information describing briefly and succinctly the intent of the Internet service provider, online service provider, or operator of a commercial website to use or disclose that information for marketing or other purposes.

(14) SENSITIVE FINANCIAL INFORMATION.—The term “sensitive financial information” means—

(A) the amount of income earned or losses suffered by an individual;

(B) an individual's account number or balance information for a savings, checking, money market, credit card, brokerage, or other financial services account;

(C) the access code, security password, or similar mechanism that permits access to an individual's financial services account;

(D) an individual's insurance policy information, including the existence, premium, face amount, or coverage limits of an insurance policy held by or for the benefit of an individual; or

(E) an individual's outstanding credit card, debt, or loan obligations.

(15) SENSITIVE PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION.—The term “sensitive personally identifiable information” means personally identifiable information about an individual's—

(A) individually identifiable health information (as defined in section 164.501 of title 45, Code of Federal Regulations);

(B) race or ethnicity;

(C) political party affiliation;

(D) religious beliefs;

(E) sexual orientation;

(F) a Social Security number; or

(G) sensitive financial information.

SEC. 402. EFFECTIVE DATE OF TITLE I.

Title I of this Act takes effect on the day after the date on which the Commission publishes a final rule under section 403.

SEC. 403. FTC RULEMAKING.

The Commission shall—

(1) initiate a rulemaking within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act for regulations to implement the provisions of title I; and

(2) complete that rulemaking within 270 days after initiating it.

SEC. 404. FTC REPORT.

(a) REPORT.—The Commission shall submit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Commerce 18 months after the effective date of title I, and annually thereafter, on—

(1) whether this Act is accomplishing the purposes for which it was enacted;

(2) whether technology that protects privacy is being utilized in the marketplace in such a manner as to facilitate administration of and compliance with title I;

(3) whether additional legislation is required to accomplish those purposes or improve the administrability or effectiveness of this Act;

(4) whether legislation is appropriate or necessary to regulate the collection, use, and distribution of personally identifiable information collected other than via the Internet;

(5) whether and how the government might assist industry in developing standard online privacy notices that substantially comply with the requirements of section 102(a);

(6) whether and how the creation of a set of self-regulatory guidelines established by independent safe harbor organizations and approved by the Commission would facilitate administration of and compliance with title I; and

(7) whether additional legislation is necessary or appropriate to regulate the collection, use, and disclosure of personally identifiable information collected online before the effective date of title I.

(b) FTC NOTICE OF INQUIRY.—The Commission shall initiate a notice of inquiry within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act to request comment on the matter described in paragraphs (1) through (7) of subsection (a).

SEC. 405. DEVELOPMENT OF AUTOMATED PRIVACY CONTROLS.

Section 20 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278g–3) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (e); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

“(d) DEVELOPMENT OF INTERNET PRIVACY PROGRAM.—The Institute shall encourage and support the development of one or more computer programs, protocols, or other software, such as the World Wide Web Consortium's P3P program, capable of being installed on computers, or computer networks, with Internet access that would reflect the user's preferences for protecting personally identifiable or other sensitive, privacy-related information, and automatically execute the program, once activated, without requiring user intervention.”

Mr. CLELAND. Madam President, just last week I read an article that described the practice of online companies placing prices on people's personal information in order to raise revenue. When the Internet revolution began, I do not believe anyone thought the buying and selling of our personal information would be where these companies would turn when they began to experience difficulties in the financial markets. My constituents have expressed to me their concerns over such practices, and I have responded by co-sponsoring Senator HOLLINGS' bi-partisan legislation to enact reasonable privacy standards on personal information gathered on-line.

In May 2000, the Federal Trade Commission, FTC, issued its third report to Congress on the state of online privacy. Due to the fact that there remained a great deal of concern by consumers over how their information is used by online companies, so much so that some consumers provided false information or did not utilize the commercial aspects of the Internet altogether, the FTC recommended legislation to establish online privacy guidelines. Introduction of this legislation is a step in the right direction, and a step closer to the FTC's recommendation.

This bill calls for sensitive, personally identifiable information, such as health information, race, religion, and social security number, to be protected by requiring consumers to provide affirmative consent for this information to be shared; in other words, they must “opt in.” Under our proposal, the treatment of non-sensitive, personally identifiable information must be described through strict, robust notice in plain English. After some consumers received their privacy policies required by the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, they thought it would be easier to understand the tax code.

An important provision in the Hollings measure modeled on allowing consumers to access their credit report information would allow online consumers to access and correct any incorrect information companies may be listing. Additionally, to monitor the effectiveness of this legislation, the bill calls for the FTC to report to Congress on this matter and to recommend any needed changes in its provisions.

I am pleased to be an original cosponsor of this legislation which I believe moves us in the right direction to actually grow the Internet and its capability for commerce by easing people's fears over how their names, addresses, social security numbers and other important information will be secured. The Internet's possibilities are only beginning to be realized. In the business world, it creates an easy way to share information and conduct transactions. However, if the information is personal in nature, I, along with many of my colleagues, believe people deserve and are indeed entitled to expect the opportunity to elect whether to have that information shared or not, and in all cases for it to be securely monitored. I am proud to lend my support to this important bill.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER:

S. 2205. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to clarify the entitlement to disability compensation of women veterans who have service-connected mastectomies, to provide permanent authority for counseling and treatment for sexual trauma, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Madam President, I introduce legislation today that would help VA continue to meet the needs of veterans who experienced sexual trauma while serving in the military. This legislation would also extend special compensation to women veterans whose service led to the loss of all or part of a breast, and would help us understand better how well VA is meeting the health care needs of women veterans.

Almost a decade ago, the Committee on Veterans Affairs took a hard look at the growing needs of women veterans in a hearing that helped VA improve its women's health care and services. Many studies grew from this hearing, including investigations that showed that women veterans are eight times more likely to report having experienced sexual assault during military service than women civilians of the same age.

In 1992, Congress authorized VA to provide counseling to women who experienced sexual trauma during active military service. Two years later, recognizing that sexual trauma is not limited to women, Congress expanded VA's mandate to offer counseling and treatment to victims of sexual harassment or sexual assault without regard to gender. The Veterans Millennium Health Care and Benefits Act of 1999 broadened VA's responsibilities toward victims of sexual trauma even farther, strengthening outreach efforts and extending the programs through December 2004.

VA has worked, internally and with the Department of Defense, to educate health care professionals about the physical and emotional legacies of military sexual trauma. Those who have endured such trauma need counseling and appropriate treatment, both during and following service. Although we must hope that education will eliminate sexual violence from our forces, the sad reality is that the programs that VA has established will continue to be needed. The legislation I introduce today would authorize VA to continue its counseling and treatment programs for veterans who have experienced military sexual trauma beyond 2004, so that veterans and health care professionals can depend upon these critical services.

The Committee on Veterans Affairs continues to await VA's report on rates of military sexual trauma among National Guard and Reservists, mandated in the Millennium Act and due in March 2001, to make a sound decision on the need for counseling services among these forces who might have experienced sexual trauma while on active duty for training.

Last year, Congress authorized VA to offer special monthly compensation to women who had lost one or both breasts, including through surgical treatment, as a result of their military service. VA recently issued regulations addressing this, which would require complete loss of a breast through simple or radical mastectomy in order to make a woman eligible for benefits. The intent of Congress in passing this legislation was to acknowledge that women who undergo such procedures face physical, emotional, and financial challenges in returning to health. The need for increased medical attention, and concomitant impairment in daily activities, remains consistent, whether the loss of a breast is complete or partial. Therefore, the legislation that I offer here would extend benefits to women veterans who have lost half or more of a breast's tissue as a result of military service, rather than drawing an arbitrary clinical line for compensation.

According to the Veterans Health Administration, women veterans now make up about 5 percent of enrolled veterans, a percentage that is expected to double over the next two decades. We must ensure that women veterans enjoy access to the best possible health care, including for gender-specific medical conditions, in the most appropriate setting. One of the challenges that Congress and VA face in assessing how well the needs of women veterans are being met is understanding exactly what services women veterans require, and whether these are being offered by VA's medical facilities.

Many of the advances VA has made in improving women's care and services has resulted from the hard work of the Women Veterans Coordinators who work within VA's medical centers. These coordinators assist women veterans who seek VA medical care, and help VA understand which needs still go unmet, frequently as a collateral portion of their jobs, while facing many competing demands on their time. As VA health care evolves from a primarily hospital-based system to a network of outpatient clinics, women veterans coordinators face an even more complex set of tasks and a shifting geography of care.

Women veterans increasingly receive care within general outpatient clinics rather than in women's clinics, an issue of special concern as women may comprise only a tiny part of the caseload for VA's general practitioners, unlike the private sector where women make up half or more of a doctor's patients, resulting in less expertise in women's health. The legislation I offer here would request a report on how many clinics and health care teams remain dedicated specifically to the needs of women veterans, and how many hours per week Women Veterans Coordinators can allocate to serving women veterans.

In 1983, Congress responded to the needs of the growing number of women veterans by establishing the Advisory Committee on Women Veterans. This committee advises the Secretary of VA on the adequacy of programs for women veterans, and helps ensure that women veterans have the same access to services and benefits as their male counterparts. Early this year, the Secretary renewed the charter for the Advisory Committee on Women Veterans. I hope my colleagues will join me in acknowledging both the Secretary's decision to foster this essential voice, and the service of the men and women who share their time and experience with VA on behalf of all women veterans. Together, VA and the advisory committee have worked to be sure that VA can offer women veterans the services they need and the respect they have earned.

I ask that the text of the bill and a list of the membership of the Advisory Committee on Women Veterans be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 2205

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. CLARIFICATION OF ENTITLEMENT TO WARTIME DISABILITY COMPENSATION FOR WOMEN VETERANS WHO HAVE SERVICE-CONNECTED MASTECTOMIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1114(k) of title 38, United States Code, is amended by inserting “of half or more of the tissue” after “anatomical loss” the second place it appears.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act, and shall apply with respect to months that begin on or after that date.

SEC. 2. PERMANENT AUTHORITY FOR COUNSELING AND TREATMENT FOR SEXUAL TRAUMA.

Section 1720D of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking “During the period through December 31, 2004, the Secretary” and inserting “The Secretary”; and

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “, during the period through December 31, 2004,”; and

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking “establishment and”; and

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “establishing a program” and inserting “operating a program”.

SEC. 3. REPORT ON FURNISHING OF HEALTH CARE TO WOMEN VETERANS BY VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION.

(a) REPORT REQUIRED.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall submit to the Committees on Veterans' Affairs of the Senate and the House of Representatives a report on the furnishing by the Veterans Health Administration of health care for women veterans.

(b) REPORT ELEMENTS.—The report under subsection (a) shall set forth the following:

(1) A list of each Women Veterans' Comprehensive Health Center within the Veterans Health Administration, including whether such Center is located in a Department of Veterans Affairs medical center or outpatient clinic.

(2) For each Center listed under paragraph (1)—

(A) the staffing level of such Center, expressed in terms of number of full-time equivalent employees (FTEEs);

(B) the health care services furnished by such Center to women veterans, including the health care services (including breast cancer screening and cervical cancer screening) that are furnished only for women; and

(C) the number of women veterans furnished health care services by such Center during the last fiscal year ending before the date of the report.

(3) A list of each facility without a Women Veterans' Comprehensive Health Center that furnishes health care services to women veterans through a full-service women's primary care team, including whether such facility is located in a Department medical center or outpatient clinic.

(4) For each facility listed under paragraph (3)—

(A) the staffing level of such facility for the furnishing of health care services to women veterans, expressed in terms of number of full-time equivalent employees (FTEEs);

(B) the health care services furnished by such facility to women veterans, including the health care services (including breast cancer screening and cervical cancer screening) that are furnished only for women; and

(C) the number of women veterans furnished health care services by such facility during the last fiscal year ending before the date of the report.

(5) For each Veterans Integrated Service Network and Department medical center, the number of hours per week that the Women Veterans' Coordinator of such network or medical center, as the case may be, is authorized to perform duties relating to the furnishing of health care services to women veterans.

By Mr. DASCHLE (for himself, Mr. HARKIN, and Mr. GRASSLEY):

S. 2207. A bill to permit an individual to be treated by a health care practitioner with any method of medical treatment such individual requests, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, last year I introduced S. 1378, the Access to Medical Treatment Act of 2001. This bill would allow patients to use certain alternative and complementary therapies not approved by the FDA.

Alternative therapies constitute an increasingly accepted part of medicine. At the National Institutes of Health's Office of Alternative Medicine, scientists are working to expand our knowledge of alternative therapies and their safe and effective use. Additionally, more Americans are turning to alternative therapies in those frustrating instances in which conventional treatments seem to be ineffective in combating illness and disease.

The Access to Medical Treatment Act support patient choice while maintaining important patient safeguards. It allows individuals, especially those who face life-threatening afflictions for which conventional treatments have proven ineffective, to try an alternative treatment. This is a choice rightly made by patients.

Treatments covered under the Access to Medical Treatment Act must be prescribed by an authorized health care practitioner. The practitioner must fully disclose all available information about the safety and effectiveness of any medical treatment, including questions that remain unanswered because the necessary research has not been conducted. The bill includes detailed informed consent requirements.

The bill carefully restricts the ability of practitioners to advertise or market unapproved drugs or devices or to profit financially from prescribing alternative treatments. This provision was included to ensure that practitioners keep the best interests of patients in mind and to retain incentives for seeking FDA approval.

The bill also protects patients by requiring practitioners to report any adverse reaction that could potentially have been caused by an unapproved drug or medical device. If an adverse reaction is reported, manufacture and distribution of the drug must cease pending an investigation. If it is determined that the adverse reaction was caused by the drug or medical device, as part of a total recall, the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services and the manufacturer have the duty to inform all health care practitioners to whom the drug or medical device has been provided.

While I believe that S. 1378 would give patients important new choices in health care while maintaining strong consumer protections, there has been little discussion or attention given to the issue. Meanwhile, some advocates of greater access to alternative therapies have urged me to reintroduce a version of the Access to Medical Treatment Act similar to the one I and 13 other senators introduced during the 105th Congress in an effort to stimulate further discussion of this important policy issue. This measure includes less detail than S. 1378 but embodies the same goal of making alternative treatments more available to patients who want them.

I continue to believe that S. 1378, with its detailed informed consent and practitioner reporting requirements, is the version of the Access to Medical Treatment Act that provides the appropriate vehicle for legislative debate, and I am hopeful that the bill Senators HARKIN, GRASSLEY, and I are introducing today will generate momentum to get that debate started.

By Mr. ROCKEFELLER:

S. 2209. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to provide an additional program of service disabled veterans' insurance for veterans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Madam President, I am tremendously pleased to introduce legislation that would establish a new service-disabled veterans life insurance program. Named in honor of Robert Carey, former Director of the Philadelphia Regional Office and Insurance Center until his untimely death in 1990, this bill will improve enormously the life insurance options available to those veterans who are unable to purchase commercial policies because they became disabled in service to our Nation. I look forward to its swift passage.

Since 1919, the Department of Veterans Affairs has provided life insurance for servicemembers and veterans in various amounts and with varying degrees of success, but with the overarching purpose of providing them with an insurance benefit comparable to the commercial coverage that they are unable to purchase due to their service in the Armed Forces. Unfortunately, as described in the Department of Veterans Affairs' Program Evaluation of Benefits for Survivors of Veterans with Service-connected Disabilities, which was released last May, the current Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance, or SDVI, program does not sufficiently fulfill this purpose.

The SDVI program insures service-disabled veterans who, but for their service-connected disability, would be eligible for commercial life insurance. The basic policy currently provides up to $10,000 in coverage. Veterans who are deemed totally disabled are eligible for an additional $20,000 in supplemental coverage and may apply to have the premium on their initial $10,000 policy waived.

However, according to VA's report, the current SDVI program uses mortality tables from 1941 to determine the premiums paid by its policyholders. This has led to premiums nearly four times greater than those paid by non-veterans. While SDVI policyholders would generally expect to pay somewhat higher premiums, many veterans still cited this extremely high cost as a major reason for not purchasing an SDVI policy. In light of this fact, it is not difficult to understand why only 3.5 percent of those eligible actually take advantage of the current SDVI program.

Also cited as a reason for non-participation was the limited benefit available under the current SDVI program. According to VA's report, the typical private sector employee possesses a life insurance policy two to three times his or her annual income, and most financial planners recommend even more coverage than that. However, half of all SDVI beneficiaries report receiving less than $15,000 in total insurance benefits from the loss of a loved one. On average, only $9,000 of this comes from their SDVI policy. Forty percent of all SDVI beneficiaries sole source of income are the benefits provided by VA. Their lack of other coverage, combined with the very limited benefit currently available through the current SDVI program, leaves disabled veterans woefully under-insured. We simply cannot accept this situation.

This bill would create a new life insurance program for service-disabled veterans offering as much as $50,000 in coverage at a price comparable to that of commercial coverage. It would also bring the premiums charged under the current SDVI program more in line with commercial policies by updating the mortality tables VA uses to set its rates.

The motto of the Department of Veterans Affairs is "To care for him that has borne the battle and for his widow and orphan." By introducing the "Robert Carey Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance Act of 2002," I propose that we take yet another step toward fulfilling the obligation embodied in those words, and I encourage my colleagues to join with me in supporting this very important bill.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2209

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Robert Carey Service Disabled Veterans' Insurance Act of 2002".

SEC. 2. ADDITIONAL PROGRAM OF SERVICE DISABLED VETERANS' INSURANCE FOR VETERANS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) Subchapter I of chapter 19 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 1922A the following new section:

"§ 1922B. Service disabled veterans' insurance: level premium term insurance"

"(a) Subject to the provisions of this section, any person described in subsection (b) shall, upon payment of premiums as provided in subsection (f), be granted insurance by the United States against the death of such person occurring while such insurance is in force.

"(b) A person described in this subsection is any person as follows:

"(1) A person insured under section 1922(a) of this title if such person applies for insurance under this section within the times provided for under paragraphs (2) and (3) of subsection (e).

"(2) A person (other than a person described in paragraph (1)) who—

"(A) is released from active military, naval, or air service, under other than dishonorable conditions;

"(B) is found by the Secretary to be suffering from a disability or disabilities for which compensation would be payable if 10 per cent or more in degree;

"(C) except for the disability or disabilities referred to in subparagraph (B), would be insurable according to standards of good health established by the Secretary; and

"(D) has not attained the age of 65 years as of the date of application for insurance under this section.

"(c)(1) Insurance under this section for a person described in subsection (b)(1) is in addition to the insurance of such person under section 1922(a) of this title and the insurance, if any, of such person under section 1922A of this title.

"(2) A person deemed insured under section 1922(b) of this title is not eligible for or entitled to insurance under this section.

"(d)(1)(A) Subject to subparagraph (B) and except as provided in paragraph (3), the amount for which a person described by subsection (b)(1) is insured under this section shall, at the election of the person, be—

"(i) $45,000; or

"(ii) an amount less than $45,000, but more than $5,000, that is evenly divisible by $5,000.

"(B) The amount of insurance elected under this paragraph by a person described by subsection (b)(1) may not cause the aggregate amount of insurance of the person under this section and sections 1922(a) and 1922A of this title to exceed $50,000.

"(2) Except as provided in paragraph (3), the amount for which a person described by subsection (b)(2) is insured under this section shall, at the election of the person, be—

"(A) $50,000; or

"(B) an amount less than $50,000, but more than $5,000, that is evenly divisible by $5,000.

"(3) Upon attaining the age of 70 years, the amount for which a person is insured under this section shall be the amount equal to 20 percent of the amount otherwise elected by the person under paragraph (1) or (2), as applicable.

"(e)(1) A person seeking insurance under this section shall submit to the Secretary an application in writing for such insurance.

"(2) The application of a person under paragraph (1) shall be submitted not later than 10 years after the date of the release of the person from active military, naval, or air service.

"(3)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the application of a person under paragraph (1) shall be submitted not later than two years after the date on which the Secretary finds the service-connection for the disability or disabilities of the person on which the application is based.

"(B) In the case of a person shown by evidence satisfactory to the Secretary to have been mentally incompetent during any part of the two-year period otherwise applicable to the person under subparagraph (A), an application for insurance under this section shall be filed not later than the earlier of—

"(i) two years after a guardian for the person is appointed; or

"(ii) two years after the removal of such disability or disabilities, as determined by the Secretary.

"(f)(1) Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), a person insured under this section shall pay premiums for such insurance as determined under paragraph (4).

"(2) The provisions of section 1912 of this title shall apply with respect to payment of premiums for insurance under this section.

"(3) A person shall not be required to pay premiums for insurance under this section after attaining the age of 70 years.

"(4) The premium rates for insurance under this section shall be level, and shall be based on the Commissioners 1980 Standard Ordinary Basic Table of Mortality and interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum.

"(5) All premiums and other collections for insurance under this section shall be credited directly to a revolving fund in the Treasury established for purposes of this section, and any payments on such insurance shall be made directly from such fund.

"(g)(1) Except as otherwise provided in this section, insurance under this section shall be issued on the same terms and conditions as are contained in standard policies of National Service Life Insurance, except that insurance issued under this section shall have no loan value or extended values.

"(2) All settlements on insurance under this section shall be paid in a lump sum.

"(h) Insurance under this section may be referred to as 'Robert Carey Service Disabled Veterans' Insurance'."

(2) The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 19 of that title is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 1922A the following new item:

"1922B. Service disabled veterans' insurance: level premium term insurance."

(b) COORDINATION WITH CURRENT SERVICE DISABLED VETERANS' INSURANCE PROGRAM.—Section 1922 of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (b), by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(5) A person deemed insured under this subsection is not eligible for or entitled to insurance under section 1922B of this title."; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(d) A person insured under subsection (a) may also be eligible for insurance under section 1922B of this title in accordance with the provisions of that section."

(c) OTHER AMENDMENTS TO CURRENT SERVICE DISABLED VETERANS' INSURANCE PROGRAM.—Subsection (a) of such section 1922 is amended by striking "Commissioners 1941 Standard Ordinary Table of Mortality and interest at the rate of 2½ per centum per annum" each place it appears in paragraphs (1) and (2) and inserting "Commissioners 1980 Standard Ordinary Basic Table of Mortality and interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum".

(d) REVIEW OF APPLICABILITY OF MORTALITY TABLES.—(1) The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall, from time to time, evaluate the standard ordinary table of mortality being used for purposes of service disabled veterans' insurance under sections 1922 and 1922B of title 38, United States Code, in order to determine whether such table of mortality continues to be suitable for such purposes.

(2) If as the result of an evaluation under paragraph (1) the Secretary determines that the standard ordinary table of mortality being used for purposes of insurance referred to in that paragraph is no longer suitable for such purposes, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Veterans' Affairs of the Senate and the House of Representatives a report setting forth that determination and including a recommendation for an alternative standard ordinary table of mortality to be used for such purposes.

(e) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall prescribe regulations for purposes of administering section 1922B of title 38, United States Code (as added by subsection (a)), and for purposes of administering the amendments to section 1922 of that title made by subsections (b) and (c). Such regulations shall take effect on October 1, 2003.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR REVOLVING FUND.—There is hereby authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Veterans Affairs for the revolving fund established pursuant to subsection (f)(5) of section 1922B of title 38, United States Code (as added by subsection (a) of this section), such sums as may be necessary for purposes of that section.

(g) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsections (a) through (c) shall take effect on October 1, 2003.

By Mr. BIDEN (for himself, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. KERRY, Mr. FRIST, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. CHAFFEE, and Mr. DEWINE):

S. 2210. A bill to amend the International Financial Institutions Act to provide for modification of the Enhanced Heavily Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) Initiative; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, I rise today, along with my colleague, Senator SANTORUM, to introduce legislation to reform the way we provide debt relief for the poorest nations of the world. We are joined in this effort by Senators KERRY, FRIST, SARBANES, CHAFEE, and DEWINE.

Earlier today, our friends from the House, CHRIS SMITH, JOHN LAFALCE, SPENCER BAUCUS, MAXINE WATERS, BARNEY FRANK met with us to announce the introduction of companion legislation on their side of the Hill.

Looking around at that group of people, it would be fair to wonder what we all have in common. Some days, not much. Today, however, what we have in common is a shared concern about the fate of the men, women, and children in the poorest countries of the world.

It is true that the war on terrorism has brought home to us more clearly than before that conditions of grinding poverty in the rest of the world are ignored at our peril. Common sense tells us that our national security is at risk in a world where millions of people have little to live for, and are ripe for the seductions of radical, even violent action against the desperate conditions they face every day.

As Tom Friedman has said in another context, if you don't visit the bad neighborhoods, they will visit you.

But that cannot be the only reason that we all share a concern about poverty in the underdeveloped countries of the world. All of the world's great religions charge us to look after each other, and show special concern for those who need it most.

Common decency recoils at the conditions of disease and deprivation faced by others while we are so blessed with abundance here.

Common sense, and common decency. That is what brought us all together today.

Few things offend both common sense and common decency more than the situations faced by the poor countries of the world who lack the resources to provide the most basic public health care and the most basic education, but yet still send money to the international financial institutions established by the wealthiest nations of the world.

They send two billion dollars a year here to Washington, home of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, and to the regional development banks around the world, to pay interest on loans they have taken out over the years, money that they desperately need for basic human services.

We set up those institutions to promote conditions for global economic growth and stability, and to promote economic development. And they do many good things. But the blessings that came when those loans went out to poor countries in many cases have turned into a curse. Now many of those countries are stuck in a debt trap, where payments to simply service the interest on those loans weaken their ability to provide the kind of essential public services needed for basic human existence, much less sustainable economic growth.

Tragically, most of the countries with the greatest debt burdens are among the worst victims of the HIV/AIDS epidemic. The resources needed in African countries in the fight against HIV/AIDS are already beyond their reach. The burden of debt makes that fight even harder.

Two years ago, the United States joined with the other members of the IMF and the World Bank to reduce the debt burdens of the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries. The world's churches led that fight, the Jubilee 2000 fight, to undo some of the harm done by this cycle of debt. I was proud to be part of that effort.

The result was a real improvement in the debt situation of many countries. Our experience with that program shows that the money we free up with debt relief really does go for the important services the poor citizens of these countries really need.

As a matter of fact, about 40 percent of the debt savings in those countries is going for education, and 25 percent for health care.

But realistically, these countries will still be stuck in a debt trap far into the future.

In fact, just this week the Bank and the Fund honestly admitted that under the current formula, many countries will simply not reach a sustainable level of debt. James Wolfenson, President of the World Bank, has said that he is considering deeper debt relief to achieve the goals of the existing HIPC program. The legislation I am introducing today with Senator SANTORUM will make success under that HIPC program more likely.

Specifically, for the many countries facing a public health crisis, such as the HIV/AIDS epidemic, we say that no more than five percent of their budgets should go to service their debt to the international financial institutions. For those who do not face such a crisis, debt service should exceed no more than ten percent of their budget.

While the existing HIPC program sets a sustainable level of debt at 150 percent of a country's income from exports, our bill says that it is also important to measure the debt burden against a country's budget, as well. That's the best way to see the real impact on a country's ability to meet its own pressing domestic needs.

In fact, given the deep problems the eligible nations have with trade—most of them export basic commodities whose prices have been declining—using export income should not be the sole basis for determining their ability to pay. The HIPC program currently assumes that the eligible countries will enjoy much higher growth in that export income than they have ever been able to achieve. That is a formula for disappointment.

Deeper debt relief, more sustainable debt levels, measured by a country's actual ability to pay as a share of its budget, that is what our legislation would establish as the U.S. negotiating position at the Bank and the Fund. If those reforms are adopted, an additional billion dollars a year of debt service will be lifted from the poorest nations.

This weekend, the Bank and the Fund will be meeting here in Washington, and I expect those very issues will be under discussion. The legislation we are introducing today offers a way to achieve the original goals of debt relief, and the goals of our own foreign policy in the developing world.

Common sense, and common decency, should help us find some common ground to achieve those goals. The broad coalition of support this legislation already enjoys tells me that we can succeed.

By Mr. HUTCHINSON (for himself and Mr. CLELAND):

S. 2211. A bill to amend title 10, United States Code, to apply the additional retired pay percentage for extraordinary heroism to the computation of the retired pay of enlisted members of the Armed Forces who are retired for any reason, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Madam President, I rise today to introduce the Heroism Pay Equality Act. This legislation will restore fairness and equality to our country's retired military reservists who have been cited for extraordinary heroism, by affording them the same entitlements offered to their active component counterparts. Current law awards members with between 20 and 30 years of service who have been cited for extraordinary heroism in the line of duty an additional 10 percent to their retirement pay for their heroic acts. Typically, this equates to a service member who has received the Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross, or the Navy Cross. Yet a service member who has been awarded one of these medals, and whose retirement eligibility was achieved in the Reserves, is not recognized with the same benefit.

This bill erases this injustice, and is offered in the spirit of fairness to the total force. The United States is increasingly reliant on the Reserve component of the armed service to meet the challenges that face our military. Reserve and National Guard units have served with distinction in Bosnia, Kosovo, the Middle East, and are doing so today in Afghanistan and countless locations across the United States as part of our global war on terrorism. The additional pay for heroic acts is awarded for the act itself and has nothing to do with the component in which retirement eligibility was achieved. Thus, to honor our Nation's military reservists, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation, which Senator CLELAND and I are introducing today, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2211

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. EXPANDED APPLICABILITY OF ADDITIONAL RETIRED PAY FOR EXTRAORDINARY HEROISM.

(a) ARMY.—Section 3991(a)(2) of title 10, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking “If a member who is retired under section 3914 of this title” and inserting “If an enlisted member entitled to monthly retired pay under this subtitle”; and

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: “The first sentence does not apply with respect to retired pay computed under section 12733 of this title.”.

(b) NAVY AND MARINE CORPS.—(1) Chapter 571 of such title is amended by inserting after section 6334 the following new section:

“§6334a. Computation of retired pay: additional 10 percent for enlisted members credited with extraordinary heroism

“If an enlisted member entitled to monthly retired pay under this subtitle has been credited by the Secretary of the Navy with extraordinary heroism in the line of duty, the member’s retired pay shall be increased by 10 percent of the amount determined under section 6333 or 6334 of this title, as the case may be, but to not more than 75 percent of the retired pay base upon which the computation of such retired pay is based. The first sentence does not apply with respect to retired pay computed under section 12733 of this title. The Secretary’s determination as to extraordinary heroism is conclusive for all purposes.”.

(2) The table of sections at the beginning of such chapter is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

“6334a. Computation of retired pay: additional 10 percent for enlisted members credited with extraordinary heroism.”.

(c) AIR FORCE.—Section 8991(a)(2) of title 10, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking “If a member who is retired under section 8914 of this title” and inserting “If an enlisted member entitled to monthly retired pay under this subtitle”; and

(2) by inserting after the first sentence the following new sentence: “The first sentence does not apply with respect to retired pay computed under section 12733 of this title.”.

(d) DISABILITY RETIREMENT.—(1) Section 1201 of such title is amended—

(A) in subsection (a), by striking “, with retired pay computed under section 1401 of this title,”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(d) COMPUTATION OF RETIRED PAY.—(1) The retired pay to which a member is entitled under this section shall be computed under section 1401 of this title.

“(2) If an enlisted member entitled to monthly retired pay under this section has been credited by the Secretary concerned with extraordinary heroism in the line of duty, the member’s retired pay shall be increased by 10 percent of the amount determined under section 1401 of this title (but to not more than 75 percent of the retired pay base upon which the computation of such retired pay is based).”.

(2) Section 1202 of such title is amended—

(A) by inserting “(a) RETIREMENT.—” before the text of such section;

(B) by striking “with retired pay computed under section 1401 of this title” and inserting “and pay retired pay to the member.”; and

(C) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(b) COMPUTATION OF RETIRED PAY.—(1) The retired pay to which a member is entitled under this section shall be computed under section 1401 of this title.

“(2) If an enlisted member entitled to monthly retired pay under this section has been credited by the Secretary concerned with extraordinary heroism in the line of duty, the member’s retired pay shall be increased by 10 percent of the amount determined under section 1401 of this title (but to not more than 75 percent of the retired pay base upon which the computation of such retired pay is based).”.

(e) APPLICABILITY.—The amendments made by this section shall not apply with respect to months beginning on or before the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, and Mr. JOHNSON):

S. 2212. A bill to establish a direct line of authority for the Office of Trust Reform Implementations and Oversight to oversee the management and reform of Indian trust funds and assets under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior and to advance tribal management of such funds and assets, pursuant to the Indian Self-Determinations Act and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. MCCAIN. Madam President, today I am introducing a discussion bill intended to provide the basis for further reform of the administration and management of the assets and funds held by the United States in trust for federally recognized Indian tribes and individual Indians. I’m pleased to be joined by my two distinguished colleagues from South Dakota, Senators DASCHLE and JOHNSON.

As a result of over 300 treaties and an extensive course of dealings between the United States and Indian tribes, the Federal Government holds the legal title to lands held in trust for Indian tribes and individual tribal members. The revenues derived from the use of these lands and the resources found on trust lands, along with the proceeds from claims that have arisen from the wrongful taking or the loss of use of the assets, comprise the funds that are held in trust by the United States for the benefit of individual Indians and Indian tribes.

Today, the United States maintains approximately 1,400 trust fund accounts for 315 Indian tribes with funds in excess of $2.6 billion, and over 260,000 individual Indian money, IIM, accounts with about $400 million in funds. Approximately 45 million acres of land are held in trust by the United States for the benefit of Indian tribes and about 11 million acres are held in trust for individual Indians. These lands contain vast amounts of minerals, coal, oil and gas, water, forest resources, and agricultural resources.

These funds, lands, and resources comprise the trust estate held by the United States for the benefit of tribes and individual Indians. The Interior Department distributes leasing and sales revenues of $300 million per year to more than 225,000 individual Indian money accounts and about $800 million a year to the 1,400 tribal accounts. It manages income from more than 100,000 active leases for tribes and individual Indians.

Indian tribes depend on the revenues from these trust assets to provide basic governmental services. IIM account holders are often living at, or near, the poverty level, and they rely on these revenues for basic essentials such as housing, food, and transportation. The manner in which trust assets and trust funds are managed by the Department has very real impacts on the lives of hundreds of thousands of Indian people every day. All too often, those impacts are not positive.

The administration and management of individual Indian trust assets and funds are extremely difficult due to the problem of fractionated heirship of lands that are a continuing legacy of the misguided and discredited allotment policies of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Today, the Department and individual Indians are left with the nightmare of 1.4 million fractional interests of two percent or less involving 58,000 tracts of individually owned trust and restricted lands, each of which requires administration and often provides nothing but frustration in return for all involved. For some of these accounts, it may cost more to print and mail statements annually than the assets themselves are worth. A lasting solution needs to be found that reconsolidates these assets under Indian ownership.

Many of my colleagues are familiar with the never-ending stream of GAO reports, news accounts, and hearings detailing the deplorable history of the Federal effort to manage these trust funds. Far less is known about the condition of trust assets and the history of their management. However, it doesn’t take very long to recognize that the problem of mismanagement extends far beyond trust funds to the lands and resources that generate most of the funds. The Interior Department cannot provide accurate information on the number of leases on Indian lands for any purpose or the amount of revenues that should be attributed to any parcel of trust land despite repeated attempts to develop the necessary database and record keeping systems. In addition, the records for some lands and trust accounts have been lost or destroyed for entire time periods.

In 1994, the Congress enacted the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act. This law was intended to bring about a series of major reforms in the management of Indian trust funds and assets under the auspices of a Special Trustee in the Interior Department. Some positive changes have occurred. Most trust account holders now receive regular statements on their accounts. Most of the revenues derived from Indian trust assets are now posted to the correct account in a reasonable period of time.

However, the major structural reforms that were called for in the 1994

Act have not been achieved. It is still not possible to tell with complete certainty what tribal lands and resources are leased and what revenues are generated from all tribal lands and resources. The original intent of the 1994 Act was for the Special Trustee to go out of business after completing a plan for the restructuring of the day-to-day management of tribal and individual trust funds and assets.

The Special Trustee did develop a plan that called for the creation of a government sponsored enterprise to take control of the entire Indian trust estate and manage it. The tribes and individual beneficiaries of the trust were nearly unanimous in their condemnation and rejection of this plan.

The 1994 Act also established a procedure through which tribes can withdraw their trust funds from federal trust and manage them directly. Only a few tribes have taken this course. The Interior Department has not encouraged tribes to withdraw their funds and the tribes have been reluctant to do so for the simple reason that the federal trust is terminated by the act of withdrawing the funds. Anyone who is familiar with the devastation brought about by the various efforts over the years to terminate the unique relationship between the tribes and the Federal Government will not be surprised by the lack of success in the implementation of this part of the 1994 Act.

The 1994 Act also called for the completion of audits of all individual and tribal trust fund accounts. After years of effort and the expenditure of millions of dollars, in 1997, the Interior Department finally provided the tribal account holders with a "reconciliation" of their accounts. These reconciliation reports only covered a small fraction of the years the accounts have been maintained and the reports were not audits as was required by the 1994 Act. Some tribes accepted the results of the reconciliation of their accounts. Most did not. None of the IIM accounts were reconciled and have not been to this day, despite the requirements of the 1994 Act. There are no plans to comply with the mandate of the 1994 Act for an actual accounting for any of the trust fund accounts. Conducting such an accounting would be difficult due to the lack of records. But it can be accomplished and every reasonable effort should be made to make sure this important work gets done soon.

Last fall, Secretary Norton unveiled a proposal to take all of the trust fund and asset management functions out of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in order to vest them in a new Bureau of Indian Trust Asset Management, BITAM. This proposal is estimated to have a price tag of about $300 million in its first year or two.

Secretary Norton's proposal was intended to respond to the short-comings of the 1994 Act and the orders of Judge Lamberth in the Cobell v. Norton litigation that has been in the Federal District Court for the District of Columbia since 1997. This litigation involves the individual trust accounts and seeks an accounting of the funds managed by the Departments of the Interior and Treasury since 1887. Past failures to reconcile accounts led to contempt orders against former Secretaries Babbitt and Rubin. Judge Lamberth is currently considering contempt orders against Secretary Norton and Assistant Secretary McCaleb for actions they have taken or have failed to take with regard to these trust funds and for misleading the court about what is actually being done.

Indian leaders across the country have condemned Secretary Norton's proposal to establish BITAM and have since offered a variety of alternative proposals. As I understand it, while the Secretary is working with tribal leaders to evaluate different options proposed by the tribes, the BITAM proposal remains the Department's preferred option.

Representatives of the Tribes have been working on a range of possible reforms through a special Task Force established by Secretary Norton at their request. We have been in contact with members of the Task Force and am somewhat heartened by the fact that they believe they are making real progress toward meaningful reforms. The bill we are introducing is not intended to undermine that process, but will hopefully assist it. In any event, we must give careful consideration to the recommendations the Task force ultimately develops and try to act on them at the appropriate time. I believe Senators DASCHLE and JOHNSON would join me in urging the Department to continue to work with the Task Force as it completes its work in the months ahead.

Even as we monitor these developments, I, and many others in Congress, continue to be concerned about the future management of trust funds and assets. We believe that further reform is necessary and that it must comport with the Interior Department's trust responsibility at the same time that it advances the self-determination policies that have been so successful in the past 30 years. The status quo is simply not acceptable.

Just to reinforce our intent, the bill we are introducing today is not intended to be the ultimate solution to the problems that have been revealed in the management of the trust funds and trust assets. However, we believe it critical to the on-going reform process to introduce a bill that focuses on two elements that are important to achieving a lasting reform in the management of these funds and assets.

First, the bill will establish a direct line-of-authority over the management of the trust funds and trust assets at the highest levels within the Department. Judge Lamberth, and other oversight agencies such as the General Accounting Office, have lamented the lack of accountability in the Interior Department and strongly recommended the designation of one official who will ultimately be responsible for the management of the trust funds and assets.

This bill addresses this issue by establishing the Office of Trust Management and Reform in the Department of the Interior. This office will be under the authority of a Deputy Secretary who will report directly to the Secretary and who will oversee the work of the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, the special Trustee, the Director of the Minerals Management Service and the Director of the Bureau of Land Management with regard to trust funds and trust assets.

I am certain that many of my colleagues who are concerned about this issue will join me in ensuring that candidates nominated by the President for the Deputy Secretary position are not only qualified in financial management, natural resource management, and federal Indian policy, but also are widely supported by the tribal community.

The new Deputy Secretary will be the person ultimately responsible for the overall management of these funds and assets. The Deputy Secretary will have the authority to require the Special Trustee and the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, along with the Directors of the Bureau of Land Management and the Minerals Management Service, to take the steps necessary to put into place the changes needed to ensure the proper administration and management of the trust funds and assets. The Deputy Secretary will be appointed by the President, subject to the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of six years and may only be removed for cause. This should give the Deputy Secretary the independence necessary to bring about meaningful reform, while still ensuring accountability.

The current Tribal task force working with the Secretary is considering a structure for the management of Indian affairs that would elevate all of the current responsibilities of the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs, the Special Trustee, and the Deputy Commissioner, to the Deputy Secretary level in the Department. We look forward to learning more about the scope of the Task Force proposal and its costs or cost savings. As necessary, this bill can be modified to accommodate such a proposal if the Task Force concludes that doing so would be appropriate.

This Task Force has served an important role to the tribes in working with the Department on these matters and many would like to see its function continue as a collaborative component to the Department's management. In order to ensure a continuing role for the tribes in the day-to-day activities of the Department with respect to the management of the trust funds and the trust assets, this bill amends the 1994 Act to provide that the advisory board that was established to assist the Special Trustee will be reconstituted and continue as an advisory board for the Deputy Secretary. The composition of the advisory board is broad enough to enable the Deputy Secretary to include members with expertise in the areas of trust fund management, investment, and related responsibilities of the Deputy Secretary.

The other major feature of the bill is the focus on the successful policy of self-determination. Any fair review of Federal Indian policy over the course of the last century will point to the policies of termination and assimilation through allotment as abject failures. Many of the most intractable problems the tribes and federal policy makers wrestle with today stem from the wreckage caused by these misguided policies of the past.

On the other hand, the policy of self-determination, which was first proposed by President Nixon in 1971, has shown itself to be the single most successful Federal Indian policy in the history of our Nation. The reasons for this success are many, but the core reason is one we can all recognize and relate to: self-determination involves Indian people directly in identifying and defining the problems facing the tribes, and more importantly, it empowers them to implement the solutions they know will work best. Putting it in slightly different terms, the self-determination policy recognizes the fact that the government closest to the people is the best government to recognize and resolve local problems. Indian policy made by the Federal Government for the Federal Government has never worked and never will work. Indian policy made by the tribal governments with appropriate Federal assistance has shown that it does work.

Portions of the 1994 Act and Secretary Norton's BITAM proposal have some things in common. In varying degrees, both are attempts by the Federal Government to make Indian policy for the federal government. Neither provides a proper role for tribal governments. This bill provides a framework by which tribes can become more involved in the day-to-day management of their trust assets and trust funds through the Indian Self-Determination Act. It does not dismantle the BIA. It does provide a foundation for the tribes, the Department, and the Congress to develop and implement meaningful reform over the next several years. Every major provision of this bill is based on solutions that have been proposed by the tribes.

The bill builds on the concept of beneficiary co-management of trust funds and assets. This is not a new idea. It was advanced by the tribes in the 1980's and 1990's. It is embodied in the Indian Forest Resources Management Act that Congress enacted in 1990 and the Indian Agricultural Resources Management Act enacted in 1994. It is implicit in the Indian Self-Determination Act and it is a proven formula for progress.

This bill does not deal with the issues of the past. It does not address concerns about claims for past mismanagement. It does not deal with the need for an accounting of tribal and individual trust funds. It does not deal with the condition of the trust lands and assets. These are all very serious matters.

My purpose is not to avoid these issues or indicate any disregard for them. Rather, we are simply trying to find a way to move forward on a more constructive basis. Representatives of the tribes have been working on a way to move forward on these issues a more constructive basis. We must give careful consideration to the recommendations they develop and try to act on them at the appropriate time.

Both the House and the Senate recently passed S. 1857 to deal with the statute of limitations on past claims for mismanagement of the tribal trust funds. Judge Lamberth is considering remedies for mismanagement of the individual Indian trust funds. Secretary Norton has established the Office of Historical Trust Accounting to try to produce an accounting for the individual funds. We need to monitor all of these efforts and be prepared to enact additional legislation if necessary and if sought by the tribes.

We are hopeful that we can build on the modest successes realized under the 1994 Act by providing greater accountability in the Department of the Interior and recognizing the fact that the tribes must be involved as active participants in the management and administration of the trust funds and assets without the threat of termination of the trust responsibility. It took over 100 years to create the problems we now confront with the Indian trust funds and assets. The Indian people did not create these problems. The Federal Government did. It is going to take many more years to resolve the problems. The 1994 Act was a step in the right direction. We believe this bill can lead to further progress through greater accountability and direct involvement of those who have the most at stake, the tribes and Indian people.

Once again, Senators Daschle, Johnson and I propose this legislation as a vehicle for discussion for all those concerned with ending decades of mismanagement of Indian trust funds and trust assets. We look forward to receiving comments on this legislation and call on our friend, the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, to use this bill as the basis for hearings on these matters when the committee is prepared to do so.

I ask that the bill and a section-by-section summary of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

"(5) OFFICE.—The term";

(5) in paragraph (5), by striking "(5) The term" and inserting the following:

"(1) BUREAU.—The term";

(6) in paragraph (6), by striking "(6) The term" and inserting the following:

"(2) DEPARTMENT.—The term";

(7) by adding at the end the following:

"(3) DEPUTY SECRETARY.—The term 'Deputy Secretary' means the Deputy Secretary for Trust Management and Reform appointed under section 307(a)(2).

"(6) REFORM OFFICE.—The term 'Reform Office' means the Office of Trust Reform Implementation and Oversight established by section 307(e).";

(8) by moving paragraphs (1) through (8) (as redesignated by this subsection) so as to appear in numerical order; and

(9) by adding at the end the following:

"(9) TRUST ASSETS.—The term 'trust assets' means all tangible property including land, minerals, coal, oil and gas, forest resources, agricultural resources, water and water sources, and fish and wildlife held by the Secretary for the benefit of an Indian tribe or an individual member of an Indian tribe pursuant to Federal law.

"(10) TRUST FUNDS.—The term 'trust funds' means all funds held by the Secretary for the benefit of an Indian tribe or an individual member of an Indian tribe pursuant to Federal law."

(b) DEPUTY SECRETARY FOR TRUST MANAGEMENT AND REFORM.—Title III of the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4041 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 307. DEPUTY SECRETARY FOR TRUST MANAGEMENT AND REFORM.

"(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established within the Department the position of Deputy Secretary for Trust Management and Reform.

"(2) APPOINTMENT AND REMOVAL.—

"(A) APPOINTMENT.—The Deputy Secretary shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

"(B) TERM.—The Deputy Secretary shall be appointed for a term of 6 years.

"(C) REMOVAL.—The Deputy Secretary may be removed only for good cause.

"(3) ADMINISTRATIVE AUTHORITY.—The Deputy Secretary shall report directly to the Secretary.

"(4) COMPENSATION.—The Deputy Secretary shall be paid at a rate determined by the Secretary to be appropriate for the position, but not less than the rate of basic pay prescribed for Level II of the Executive Schedule under section 5313 of title 5, United States Code.

"(b) DUTIES.—The Deputy Secretary shall—

"(1) oversee all trust fund and trust asset matters of the Department, including—

“(A) administration and management of the Reform Office; and

“(B) financial and human resource matters of the Reform Office; and

“(2) engage in appropriate government-to-government relations and consultations with Indian tribes and individual trust asset and trust fund account holders on matters involving trust asset and trust fund management and reform within the Department.

“(c) STAFF.—In carrying out this section, the Deputy Secretary may hire such staff having expertise in trust asset and trust fund management, financial organization and management, and tribal policy as the Deputy Secretary determines is necessary to carry out this section.

“(d) EFFECT ON DUTIES OF OTHER OFFICIALS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), nothing in this section shall be construed to diminish any responsibility or duty of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Indian Affairs or the Special Trustee relating to any duty of the Assistant Secretary or Special Trustee established under this Act or any other provision of law.

“(2) TRUST ASSET AND TRUST FUND MANAGEMENT AND REFORM.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Deputy Secretary shall have overall management and oversight authority on matters of the Department relating to trust asset and trust fund management and reform.

“(e) OFFICE OF TRUST REFORM IMPLEMENTATION AND OVERSIGHT.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Office of the Secretary the Office of Trust Reform Implementation and Oversight.

“(2) REFORM OFFICE HEAD.—The Reform Office shall be headed by the Deputy Secretary.

“(3) DUTIES.—The Reform Office shall—

“(A) supervise and direct the day-to-day activities of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Indian Affairs, the Special Trustee, the Director of the Bureau of Land Management, and the Director of the Minerals Management Service, to the extent they administer or manage any Indian trust assets or funds;

“(B) administer, in accordance with title II, all trust properties, funds, and other assets held by the United States for the benefit of Indian tribes and individual members of Indian tribes;

“(C) require the development and maintenance of an accurate inventory of all trust funds and trust assets;

“(D) ensure the prompt posting of revenue derived from a trust fund or trust asset for the benefit of each Indian tribe (or individual member of each Indian tribe) that owns a beneficial interest in the trust fund or trust asset;

“(E) ensure that monthly statements of accounts are provided to all trust fund account holders;

“(F) ensure that all trust fund accounts are audited at least annually, and more frequently as determined to be necessary by the Deputy Secretary;

“(G) ensure that the Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Indian Affairs, the Special Trustee, the Director of the Bureau of Land Management, and the Director of the Minerals Management Service provide to the Secretary current and accurate information relating to the administration and management of trust funds and trust assets;

“(H) provide for regular consultation with trust fund account holders on the administration of trust funds and trust assets to ensure, to the maximum extent practicable in accordance with applicable law, the greatest return on those funds and assets for the trust fund account holders; and

“(I) enter into contracts and compacts under section 102 of the Indian Self-Determination Act (25 U.S.C. 450f) or section 403 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 458cc) to provide for the management of trust assets and trust funds by Indian tribes pursuant to a Trust Fund and Trust Asset Management and Monitoring Plan developed under section 202 of this Act.

“(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out this section.”

(c) ADVISORY BOARD.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 306 of the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4046) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 306. ADVISORY BOARD.

“(a) ESTABLISHMENT AND MEMBERSHIP.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Deputy Secretary described in section 307 shall establish an advisory board to provide advice on all matters within the jurisdiction of the Office of Trust Reform. The advisory board shall consist of 9 members, appointed by the Deputy Secretary after consultation with Indian tribes and appropriate Indian organizations, of which—

“(1) 5 members shall represent trust fund account holders, including both tribal and Individual Indian Money accounts;

“(2) 2 members shall have practical experience in trust fund and financial management;

“(3) 1 member shall have practical experience in fiduciary investment management; and “(4) 1 member, from academia, shall have knowledge of general management of large organizations.

“(b) TERM.—Each member shall serve a term of 2 years.

“(c) FACIA.—The advisory board shall not be subject to the Federal Advisory Committee Act.”

(2) PREVIOUS ADVISORY BOARD.—The advisory board authorized under section 306 of the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4046) as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act shall terminate on the date of enactment of this Act.

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 302 of the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4042) is amended—

(A) by striking “who shall” and inserting “who, except as provided in subsection (b)(3), shall”; and

(B) in subsection (b), by adding at the end the following:

“(3) TRUST FUND MANAGEMENT.—The Special Trustee shall report directly to the Deputy Secretary with respect to matters relating to trust fund management and reform.”

(2) Section 303 of the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4043) is amended—

(A) by striking subsection (a);

(B) in subsection (b)(1), by striking “The Special Trustee” and inserting “Except as provided in section 307(d), the Special Trustee”;

(C) in subsection (c)(5)(A), by striking “or which is charged with any responsibility under the comprehensive strategic plan prepared under subsection (a) of this section,”;

(D) by striking subsection (f); and

(E) by redesignating subsections (b) through (e) as subsections (a) through (d), respectively.

SEC. 3. INDIAN PARTICIPATION IN TRUST FUND ACTIVITIES.

Title II of the American Indian Trust Fund Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4021 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by striking sections 202 and 203; and

(2) by inserting after section 201 the following:

“SEC. 202. PARTICIPATION IN TRUST FUND AND TRUST ASSET MANAGEMENT ACTIVITIES BY INDIAN TRIBES.

“(a) PLANNING PROGRAM.—To meet the purposes of this title, a 10-year Indian Trust Fund and Trust Asset Management and Monitoring Plan (in this section referred to as the ‘Plan’) shall be developed and implemented as follows:

“(1) Pursuant to a self-determination contract or compact under section 102 of the Indian Self-Determination Act (25 U.S.C. 450f) or section 403 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 458cc), an Indian tribe may develop or implement a Plan. Subject to the provisions of paragraphs (3) and (4), the tribe shall have broad discretion in designing and carrying out the planning process.

“(2) To include in a Plan particular trust funds or assets held by multiple individuals, an Indian tribe shall obtain the approval of a majority of the individuals who hold an interest in any such trust funds or assets.

“(3) The Plan shall be submitted to the Secretary for approval pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination Act (25 U.S.C. 450f et seq.).

“(4) If a tribe chooses not to develop or implement a Plan, the Secretary shall develop or implement, as appropriate, a Plan in close consultation with the affected tribe.

“(5) Whether developed directly by the tribe or by the Secretary, the Plan shall—

“(A) determine the amount and source of funds held in trust;

“(B) identify and prepare an inventory of all trust assets;

“(C) identify specific tribal goals and objectives;

“(D) establish management objectives for the funds and assets held in trust;

“(E) define critical values of the Indian tribe and its members and provide identified management objectives;

“(F) identify actions to be taken to reach established objectives;

“(G) use existing survey documents, reports and other research from Federal agencies, tribal community colleges, and land grant universities; and “(H) be completed within 3 years of the initiation of activity to establish the Plan.

“(b) MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION.—Plans developed and approved under subsection (a) shall govern the management and administration of funds and assets held in trust by the Bureau and the Indian tribal government.

“(c) NO TERMINATION REQUIREMENT.—Indian tribes implementing an approved Plan shall not be required to terminate the trust relationship in order to implement such Plan.

“(d) PLAN DOES NOT TERMINATE TRUST.—Developing or implementing a Plan shall not be construed or deemed to constitute a termination of the trust status of the assets or funds that are included in, or subject to, the Plan.

“(e) LIABILITY.—An Indian tribe managing and administering trust funds and trust assets in a manner that is consistent with a Plan shall not be liable for waste or loss of an asset or funds that are included in such Plan.

“(f) INDIAN PARTICIPATION IN MANAGEMENT ACTIVITIES.—

“(1) TRIBAL RECOGNITION.—The Secretary shall conduct all management activities of funds and assets held in trust in accordance with goals and objectives set forth in a Plan approved pursuant to and in accordance with all tribal laws and ordinances, except in specific instances where such compliance would be contrary to the trust responsibility of the United States.

“(2) TRIBAL LAWS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Unless otherwise prohibited by Federal law, the Secretary shall comply with tribal law pertaining to the management of funds and assets held in trust.

“(B) DUTIES.—The Secretary shall—

“(i) provide assistance in the enforcement of tribal laws described in subparagraph (A);

“(ii) provide notice of such tribal laws to persons or entities dealing with tribal funds and assets held in trust; and

“(iii) upon the request of an Indian tribe, require appropriate Federal officials to appear in tribal forums.

“(3) WAIVER OF REGULATIONS.—In any case in which a regulation or administrative policy of the Department of the Interior conflicts with the objectives of the Plan, or with a tribal law, the Secretary may waive the application of such regulation or administrative policy unless such waiver would constitute a violation of a Federal statute or judicial decision or would conflict with the Secretary's trust responsibility under Federal law.

“(4) SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY.—This section does not constitute a waiver of the sovereign immunity of the United States, nor does it authorize tribal justice systems to review actions of the Secretary.

“(5) TRUST RESPONSIBILITY.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to diminish or expand the trust responsibility of the United States toward Indian funds and assets held in trust, or any legal obligation or remedy resulting from such funds and assets.

“(g) REPORT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the enactment of this section, and annually thereafter, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives.

“(2) CONTENTS.—The report required under paragraph (1) shall detail the following:

“(A) The efforts of the Department to implement this section.

“(B) The nature and extent of consultation between the Department, Tribes, and individual Indians with respect to implementation of this section.

“(C) Any recommendations of the Department for further changes to this Act, accompanied by a record of consultation with Tribes and individual Indians regarding such recommendations.”

SEC. 4. REGULATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior shall promulgate regulations to carry out the amendments made by this Act.

(b) ACTIVE PARTICIPATION.—All regulations promulgated in accordance with subsection (a) shall be developed with the full and active participation of Indian tribes that have trust funds and assets held by the Secretary.

SECTION-BY-SECTION SUMMARY—INDIAN TRUST ASSET AND TRUST FUND MANAGEMENT AND REFORM ACT OF 2002

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE

This section provides that the Act may be cited as the “Indian Trust Asset and Trust Fund Management and Reform Act of 2002.”

SECTION 2. DEPUTY SECRETARY FOR TRUST MANAGEMENT AND REFORM

Paragraph (a) of this section provides that Section 2 of the American Indian Trust Fund

Management Reform Act of 1994 (25 U.S.C. 4001) is amended to add new definitions for the terms “Deputy Secretary,” “Reform Office,” “Trust Assets,” and “Trust Funds,” and to redesignate the paragraphs of Section 2 of the 1994 Act.

Paragraph (b) of this section amends Title III of the 1994 Act by adding provisions to establish the position of Deputy Secretary for Trust Management and Reform in the Department of the Interior. The Deputy Secretary will be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of six years and may only be removed for cause. The Deputy Secretary will report directly to the Secretary and will be responsible for the oversight of all trust fund and trust asset administration and management, including consultation with Indian tribes and individual Indian trust asset and trust fund account holders.

This section authorizes the Deputy Secretary to hire staff in the Reform Office with expertise in trust fund and asset management, financial organization and management and tribal policy. The existing responsibilities of the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs and the Special Trustee would not be affected by the duties of the Deputy Secretary, except that each will be required to report to the Deputy Secretary on matters involving trust funds and trust assets.

This section also provides for the establishment of the Office of Trust Reform Implementation and Oversight which shall be headed by the Deputy Secretary and which will be responsible for the supervision of the day-to-day activities of the Assistant Secretary, the Special Trustees, the Director of the Bureau of Land Management and the Director of the Minerals Management Service in their administration of management of any Indian trust funds or assets, consistent with the provisions of Title II of the Act, as amended.

The duties of the Office of Trust Reform include: authorization to require the development and maintenance of an accurate inventory of all trust properties, funds and other assets; ensure the prompt posting of revenues derived from trust funds, properties and assets; ensure that trust fund account holders receive monthly statements; ensure that trust fund accounts are audited at least once a year or more frequently if necessary; ensure that the Secretary receives current and accurate information relating to the administration and management of trust funds, properties and assets; provide for regular consultation with trust fund account holders to ensure the greatest return on trust assets and properties for the trust account holders; and enter into contracts and compacts under the Indian Self-Determination Act to provide for the management of trust assets and funds by Indian tribes.

Such sums as maybe necessary are authorized to be appropriated to carry out the provisions of Section 307 of the Act.

Paragraph (c) of Section 2 amends Section 306 of the 1994 Act to reconstitute the Advisory Board for the Special Trustee as the Advisory Board for the Deputy Secretary. The Advisory Board will be comprised of nine members, five of whom shall be representative of tribal and individual trust fund account holders; two of the Board members shall have experience in trust fund and financial management; one Board member shall be experienced in fiduciary investment managements and one member shall be from academia and shall have knowledge of management of large organizations. Each member of the Advisory Board will serve for a term of two years. The Board will not be subject to the Federal Advisory Committee Act.

Paragraph (d) of Section 2 sets forth conforming amendments to Section 302 and Section 303 of the 1994 Act.

SECTION 3. INDIAN PARTICIPATION IN TRUST FUND ACTIVITIES

Section 3 amends the 1994 Act by striking Sections 202 and 203 of the Act relating to the withdrawal of trust funds and the termination of the trust responsibility. It inserts a new Section 202 to provide for the development and implementation of Indian Trust Fund and Trust Asset Management and Monitoring Plans by the Secretary and Indian tribes pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination Act. Indian tribes are to be afforded broad discretion in designing and carrying out the planning process. Funds and assets held in trust for multiple individuals may be included in a Tribal Plan with the consent of a majority of the individuals who hold an interest in any such assets or funds.

If a Tribe chooses not to develop or implement a plan, the Secretary is required to do so in close consultation with the affected Tribe.

Each plan is required to: determine the amount and source of funds held in trust; identify and prepare an inventory of all trust assets; identify specific tribal goals and objectives; establish management objectives for the funds and assets held in trust; define the critical values of the Indian tribe and provide identified management objectives; use existing surveys, reports and other research from Federal agencies, tribal community colleges and land grant universities; and, be completed within three years after the start of activity to establish a plan.

Approved plans will govern the management and administration of funds and assets held in trust by the Secretary and the Indian Tribes. The development and implementation of a plan by an Indian Tribe or the Secretary does not require the termination of the trust responsibility and shall not be construed or deemed to constitute a termination of the trust status of the assets or funds that are included in or subject to the Plan. An Indian tribe shall not be liable for waste or loss of a trust asset or trust funds if it is acting in accordance with an approved plan.

The Secretary is required to conduct all trust fund and trust asset management activities in accordance with tribal law and to provide assistance in the enforcement of tribal law unless doing so is prohibited by Federal law or would be contrary to the trust responsibility of the United States. The Secretary may waive any regulations or administrative policies of the Department of the Interior that are in conflict with Tribal law or an approved plan unless such a waiver would constitute a violation of a Federal statute or judicial decision or would conflict with the Secretary's trust responsibility.

This Section of the Act does not constitute a waiver of the sovereign immunity of the United States or authorize Tribal justice systems to review actions of the Secretary. Nothing in this Section shall be construed to diminish or expand the trust responsibility of the United States toward Indian trust funds and assets held in trust.

Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment, and annually thereafter, the Secretary is required to file a report with the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives.

The report shall detail: the efforts of the Department to implement this Section; the nature and extent of the consultation between the Department, Tribes and individual Indians with respect to the implementation of this section; and, any recommendations of the Department for further changes to the Act, along with a record of the Department's consultation with Tribes and individual Indians regarding such recommendations.

SECTION 4. REGULATIONS

Section 4 requires the Secretary to promulgate regulations for the implementation of the amendments to the Act within one year after enactment, with the full and active participation of the Indian tribes that have trust funds and assets held by the Secretary.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, today I am joining with Senators JOHN MCCAIN and TIM JOHNSON to introduce a legislation that is intended to focus attention on the need to address and correct the longstanding problem of inefficient management of the assets and funds held by the United States in trust for federally recognized Indian tribes and individual American Indians.

Indian Country has faced many challenges over the years. Few, however, have been more important, or more difficult, than ending the mismanagement of the Indian trust fund and restoring integrity to this administrative process.

For over 100 years, the Department of Interior has managed a trust funded with the proceeds of leasing of oil, gas, land, and mineral rights for the benefit of Indian people. Today, the trust fund may owe as much as $10 billion to as many as 500,000 Indians.

To give some perspective, the 16 tribes of the Great Plains in South Dakota, North Dakota, and Nebraska comprise 10 million acres of trust lands representing over one-third of the trust accounts. Many enrolled members of the nine South Dakota tribes have trust accounts.

How these trust funds have been and will be managed is being litigated in Cobell versus Norton, and the resolution of this lawsuit will have far-reaching implications throughout Indian country. It is impossible not to evaluate potential solutions in the context of this lawsuit.

There is clear consensus in Indian Country that the current administration of the trust fund is a failure. The daunting question has always been how to reform it.

Last fall, the Secretary of the Interior unveiled plans to reorganize the Bureau of Indian Affairs, BIA and segregate the oversight and accounting of trust-related assets in a new Bureau of Indian Trust Asset Management, BITAM. In testimony before the U.S. District Court, she acknowledged that, "We undoubtedly do have some missing data—and we are all going to have to find a way to deal with the fact that some information no longer exists."

The Secretary's controversial reorganization proposal was presented to the court in a hasty effort to avoid being held in contempt of court with minimal consultation with the tribes or individual Indian account holders, not to mention Congress. In South Dakota, tribal leaders communicated to Tim Johnson and me their concern that the Secretary's solution appeared to be a fait accompli, conceived without meaningful participation of the stakeholders most directly affected by it. They felt strongly that this proposal should not be implemented without further consultation with the tribes.

Earlier this year, in the face of administration assurances that its reorganization plan was not set in stone, the Interior Department requested that $200 million from the BIA and $100 million from the Office of the Special Trustee, be reprogrammed to "a single organization that will report to the Secretary through an Assistant Secretary, Indian Trust." This contradiction set off red flags in Congress, and a clear and direct message was sent to Secretary Norton by Senators INOUE, CAMPBELL, BYRD, JOHNSON and others that no action should be taken to implement her proposed reorganization plan administratively.

Given these developments, Senators MCCAIN, JOHNSON, and I felt that Congress should be more assertive in forcing discussing about what role Congress might play in ensuring that tribes and individual Indian account holders have a voice on shaping trust reform policy. It is our hope that this bill will stimulate better dialogue among the Congress, the Interior Department, and Indian Country on this problem.

With that goal in mind, the bill has been reviewed by representatives of the Great Plains tribes at a meeting in Rapid City. Mike Jandreau, chairman of the Lower Brule Sioux Tribe, has been an effective advocate and champion of trust reform, not only for his tribe, but also for all Indian people. Mike and Flandreau-Santee Sioux Tribal chairman and Great Plains Tribal chairman's association president, Tom Ranfranz led a very impressive and productive working session with tribal leaders from South Dakota, North Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, and Wyoming that both raised awareness of the stakes of this issue and built support for the bill that is being introduced today.

I commend the willingness of these participating tribal leaders to be a part of a public process that will hopefully not stop until Indian country feels comfortable with a final product they create. The McCain-Johnson-Daschle bill is intended to be a starting point for promoting greater understanding of what needs to occur to achieve meaningful trust reform.

At this point, I would like to share with my colleagues some initial observations on this proposal that were raised yesterday by participating South Dakota treaty tribes and tribes of the Great Plains and Rocky Mountain regions. These comments demonstrate how thoughtfully Indian leaders are approaching the trust problem, and I fully expect that their suggestions will be considered and incorporated as the bill moves through the committee process.

The following issues are of great importance to the Great Plains Tribal Chairman's Association.

Providing the Deputy Secretary with sufficient authority to ensure that reform of the administration of trust assets is permanent; They do not believe the bill at present gives the Deputy Secretary the full and unified authority needed.

Including cultural resources as a trust asset for management purposes.

Incorporating the Office of Surface Mining and Bureau of Reclamation and other related agencies within the Department of Interior and the Federal government under the purview of the Deputy Secretary.

Assuring that the legislation not infringe on tribal sovereignty by interfering with tribal involvement in the management of individual trust assets or tribal assets, or both.

Maintaining the Bureau of Indian Affairs' role as an advocate for tribe.

Maintaining current levels of Bureau of Indian Affairs employment.

Applying Indian employment preference to all positions created by the legislation.

Providing in law that Bureau of Indian Affairs funds not be used to fund the Deputy Secretary appointed by the legislation.

Stressing the importance of appropriating adequate funding allow reform to succeed.

Reflecting in the legislative history that much of the funding needed for real trust reform be allocated at the local agency and regional levels of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Placing more tribal representatives, including tribal resources managers, from the various Bureau of Indian Affairs regions on the advisory board to the Office of Trust Reform.

The issues of trust reform and reorganization within the Bureau of Indian Affairs are nothing new to us here on Capitol Hill, or in Indian Country. Collectively, we have endured many efforts, some well intentioned and some clearly not, to fix, reform, adjust, improve, streamline, downsize, and even terminate the Bureau of Indian Affairs and its trust activities.

These efforts have been pursued in both Republican and Democratic administrations. Unfortunately, they have rarely sought meaningful involvement from tribal leadership, or recognized the Federal Government's treaty obligation to tribes.

Both meaningful consultation and acceptance of tribal status are critical if we expect to find a workable solution to the very real problem of trust management. The bill Senators MCCAIN, JOHNSON, and I are introducing today reflects this conviction.

There is no more important challenge facing the tribes and their representatives in Congress than that of restoring accountability and efficiency to trust management. And nowhere do the bedrock principles of self-determination and tribal sovereignty come more into play than in the management and distribution of trust funds and assets.

This measure recognizes that the only effective long-term solution to the trust problem must be based on government-to-government dialog. I believe the discussion the bill generates will not only provide the catalyst for meaningful tribal involvement in the search for solutions but also form the basis for true trust reform. I look forward to participating with tribal leaders in pursuit of this important objective.

Mr. JOHNSON. Madam President, I rise today to join my colleagues, Senator JOHN MCCAIN and Senator TOM DASCHLE, as sponsors of the Indian Trust Asset and Trust Fund Management and Reform Act of 2002. This legislation we are introducing today is intended as simply the first step in the legislative process as we continue to work closely with tribes to address the need for further reform of the management of the trust funds and assets that have been mismanaged for decades. I am hopeful that by taking this action today, we will begin to further the discussion of this critical issue, knowing full well that there will be ongoing consultation and input from tribal leaders and tribal members all across the country.

As many of my colleagues are aware, the issue of trust fund mismanagement is one of the most urgent problems we are faced with in Indian Country. Of all the extraordinary circumstances we find in Indian Country, and especially in South Dakota, I do not think there is any more complex, more difficult and more shocking than the circumstances we have surrounding trust fund mismanagement.

This problem has persisted literally for generations, and continues today. Administrations of both political parties have been inadequate in their response, and the level of direction and the resources provided by Congresses over past decades has also been sadly inadequate. The Federal Government, by law, is to be the trustee for Native American people. When the Trust Fund Management Act of 1994 was passed, I was hopeful that this accounting situation would at last be remedied. Unfortunately, this has not been the case.

Last year's attempt by Secretary Norton and the Department of the Interior to address this ongoing problem has also fallen far short of what is needed. In fact, Indian leaders all across the country widely opposed the plan released by the Secretary last November to create a new Bureau of Indian Trust Asset Management, BITAM. Unfortunately, the Secretary released the Department's plan without seeking input and consulting with the very people who are supposed to benefit from these trust fund accounts.

Many tribal leaders have offered counter proposals to the Department's plan, however, Secretary Norton continues to stand behind and defend BITAM as the best alternative to addressing this problem. I believe it is now time for Congress to attempt once again to make real progress on this issue. As I stated earlier, the bill my colleagues and I have introduced today is not intended to be a final product, but rather the beginning of a process that will lead to further improvements, revisions and refinements based on the continued input of tribal leadership.

One of the main provisions of our legislation is to establish the position of a Deputy Secretary for Trust Management and Reform in the Department of the Interior. The Deputy Secretary will be appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of 6 years and may only be removed for cause. The Deputy Secretary will report directly to the Secretary and will be responsible for the oversight of all trust fund and trust asset administration and management, including consultation with Indian tribes. It is my hope that the Deputy Secretary is provided the adequate authority to administer the trust assets and to ensure that reform of the administration of trust assets is permanent.

In addition, we must maintain and strengthen the integrity of services of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, BIA, as the primary agency providing trust services directly to tribes. This reorganization should not by any means diminish the BIA in its role as advocate for tribes and must include the necessary funding to allow for real trust reform to be implemented at the regional and agency levels.

We have already benefitted from the input of the many tribal officials in South Dakota, including the input of the Great Plains Tribal Region and Montana Wyoming Tribal Leaders' Council. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mike Jandreau, chairman of the Lower Brule Sioux Tribe and a member of the Interior Department's Tribal Task Force, as well as Tom Ranfranz, president of the Flandreau Santee and chairman of the Great Plains Tribal Chairman's Association for their advice and counsel as we attempt to address the many challenges facing trust reform. Their important insight into the trust fund management issues and their leadership, along with the other tribal chairs in the Great Plains and Rocky Mountain Regions who have been very helpful to me as we to address the shortcomings of the Department's plan and try to find a legislative approach that will finally begin to improve this situation.

Madam President, I have high hopes that this issue may finally be laid to rest. It is crucial that the first Americans of this proud country be treated with the dignity and respect that has been so sadly lacking for far too long. This legislation provides a new foundation from which we may once again begin to rebuild the trust that the U.S. Government has, in the eyes of the Indian people, let crumble into the rubble of a bureaucratic maze.

By Mr. CORZINE (for himself, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. SCHUMER, and Mrs. CLINTON):

S. 2214. A bill to provide compensation and income tax relief for the individuals who were victims of the terrorist-related bombing of the World Trade Center in 1993 on the same basis as compensation and income tax relief is provided to victims of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes on September 11, 2001; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. CORZINE. Madam President, today along with Senators TORRICELLI, SCHUMER and CLINTON, I am introducing legislation to ensure that the families of the victims of the 1993 World Trade Center terrorist bombing receive the same compensation for their devastating losses as those whose loved ones perished in the horrific attacks of September 11. They too deserve aid in rebuilding their lives and it is up to Congress to make certain their needs are met and their losses acknowledged. I am pleased to join my colleague Representative Robert Menendez of New Jersey, who has introduced this legislation in the House of Representatives.

On February 26, 1993, a car bomb exploded on the second level of the World Trade Center parking basement. The blast injured over 1,000 people working in the towers and left 6 individuals dead. Among those lost was 57-year-old William Macko of Bayonne, NJ.

I recently met with the Macko family to discuss their loss and their struggle for recovery. Though it has been nearly a decade since William's death, it is clear that they are still suffering from the unimaginable pain of his loss. And as though this tragedy is not enough for them to bear, the family was dealt yet another blow when Carol, William's widow, was diagnosed with cancer just nine months after losing her husband.

Congress has responded with tremendous generosity to the tragedy of September 11, creating a Victim Compensation Fund to compensate those injured and the families of those deceased for economic and non-economic losses, as well as providing substantial Federal income tax relief.

These programs should also be made available to those who lost loved ones in the World Trade Center bombing of 1993. They too should be compensated for the unbearable pain and sorrow they endured at the hands of terrorists. That is why I am introducing the 1993 World Trade Center Victims Compensation Act, which would include those injured or killed in the 1993 bombing in both the Victim Compensation Fund and Victims Tax Relief.

When I met with the Macko family, they asked that William's death not be forgotten or dismissed. They asked for Congress to ensure that their suffering and that of the other families who lost loved ones on that cold February day be recognized as well. Their request was clear and simple, and we must not let them down.

I urge my colleagues to show their support for these families and cosponsor this legislation.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself and Mr. SANTORUM):

S. 2215. A bill to halt Syrian support for terrorism, end its occupation of Lebanon, stop its development of weapons of mass destruction, cease its illegal importation of Iraqi oil and by so doing hold Syria accountable for its role in the Middle East, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mrs. BOXER. Madam President, today Senator SANTORUM and I are proud to introduce the Syria Accountability Act, a bill that will ensure that Syria is held accountable for its actions in the Middle East and for its support of international terrorism.

As a state-sponsor of terrorism, Syria has supported and provided safe haven to several terrorist groups, such as Hizballah, Hamas, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. This is in violation of U.N. Security Council resolutions that call on U.N. member states to refrain from providing any form of support, active or passive, to entities or persons involved in terrorist acts.

Syria is also in violation of U.N. Security Council Resolutions that call for the sovereignty and political independence of Lebanon. More than 20,000 Syrian troops and security personnel occupy much of the sovereign territory of Lebanon and it is time for them to leave.

The legislation we are offering today would expand sanctions on Syria until the President certifies that Syria has met four conditions.

First, that it does not support international terrorist groups;

Second, that it has withdrawn all military, intelligence, and other security personnel from Lebanon;

Third, that it has stopped developing ballistic missiles and has stopped the development and production of biological and chemical weapons; and Fourth, that it no longer is in violation of relevant U.N. Security Council Resolutions.

To give maximum flexibility to the President, we have included a "menu" of sanctions for the President to choose from and a provision that would waive sanctions should the President find that it is in the national security interest of the United States.

I hope my colleagues can support this legislation and ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2215

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Syria Accountability Act of 2002".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) On September 20, 2001, President George Bush stated at a joint session of Congress that "[e]very nation, in every region, now has a decision to make . . . [e]ither you are with us, or you are with the terrorists . . .

[f]rom this day forward, any nation that continues to harbor or support terrorism will be regarded by the United States as a hostile regime".

(2) United Nations Security Council Resolution 1373 (September 28, 2001) mandates that all states "refrain from providing any form of support, active or passive, to entities or persons involved in terrorist acts", take "the necessary steps to prevent the commission of terrorist acts", and "deny safe haven to those who finance, plan, support, or commit terrorist acts".

(3) The Government of Syria is currently prohibited by United States law from receiving United States assistance because it is listed as state sponsor of terrorism.

(4) Although the Department of State lists Syria as a state sponsor of terrorism and reports that Syria provides "safe haven and support to several terrorist groups", fewer United States sanctions apply with respect to Syria than with respect to any other country that is listed as a state sponsor of terrorism.

(5) Terrorist groups, including Hizballah, Hamas, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command maintain offices, training camps, and other facilities on Syrian territory and operate in areas of Lebanon occupied by the Syrian armed forces and receive supplies from Iran through Syria.

(6) United Nations Security Council Resolution 520 (September 17, 1982) calls for "strict respect of the sovereignty, territorial integrity, unity and political independence of Lebanon under the sole and exclusive authority of the Government of Lebanon through the Lebanese Army throughout Lebanon".

(7) More than 20,000 Syrian troops and security personnel occupy much of the sovereign territory of Lebanon exerting undue influence upon its government and undermining its political independence.

(8) Since 1990 the Senate and House of Representatives have passed seven bills and resolutions which call for the withdrawal of Syrian armed forces from Lebanon.

(9) Large and increasing numbers of the Lebanese people from across the political spectrum in Lebanon have mounted peaceful and democratic calls for the withdrawal of the Syrian Army from Lebanese soil.

(10) Israel has withdrawn all of its armed forces from Lebanon in accordance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 425 (March 19, 1978), as certified by the United Nations Secretary General.

(11) Even in the face of this United Nations certification that acknowledged Israel's full compliance with Resolution 425, Syria permits attacks by Hizballah and other militant organizations on Israeli outposts at Shebaa Farms, under the false guise that it remains Lebanese land, and is also permitting attacks on civilian targets in Israel.

(12) Syria will not allow Lebanon—a sovereign country—to fulfill its obligation in accordance with Security Council Resolution 425 to deploy its troops to southern Lebanon.

(13) As a result, the Israeli-Lebanese border and much of southern Lebanon is under the control of Hizballah which continues to attack Israeli positions and allows Iranian Revolutionary Guards and other militant groups to operate freely in the area, destabilizing the entire region.

(14) The United States provides $40,000,000 in assistance to the Lebanese people through private nongovernmental organizations, $7,900,000 of which is provided to Lebanese-American educational institutions.

(15) In the State of the Union address on January 29, 2002, President Bush declared that the United States will "work closely with our coalition to deny terrorists and their state sponsors the materials, technology, and expertise to make and deliver weapons of mass destruction".

(16) The Government of Syria continues to develop and deploy short and medium range ballistic missiles.

(17) The Government of Syria is pursuing the development and production of biological and chemical weapons.

(18) United Nations Security Council Resolution 661 (August 6, 1990) and subsequent relevant resolutions restrict the sale of oil and other commodities by Iraq, except to the extent authorized by other relevant resolutions.

(19) Syria, a non-permanent United Nations Security Council member, is receiving between 150,000 and 200,000 barrels of oil from Iraq in violation of Security Council Resolution 661 and subsequent relevant resolutions.

(20) Syrian President Bashar Assad promised Secretary of State Powell in February 2001 to end violations of Security Council Resolution 661 but this pledge has not been fulfilled.

SEC. 3. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the Government of Syria should immediately and unconditionally halt support for terrorism, permanently and openly declare its total renunciation of all forms of terrorism, and close all terrorist offices and facilities in Syria, including the offices of Hamas, Hizballah, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command;

(2) the Government of Syria should immediately declare its commitment to completely withdraw its armed forces, including military, paramilitary, and security forces, from Lebanon, and set a firm timetable for such withdrawal;

(3) the Government of Lebanon should deploy the Lebanese armed forces to all areas of Lebanon, including South Lebanon, in accordance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 520 (September 17, 1982), in order to assert the sovereignty of the Lebanese state over all of its territory, and should evict all terrorist and foreign forces from southern Lebanon, including Hizballah and the Iranian Revolutionary Guards;

(4) the Government of Syria should halt the development and deployment of short and medium range ballistic missiles and cease the development and production of biological and chemical weapons;

(5) the Government of Syria should halt illegal imports and transshipments of Iraqi oil and come into full compliance with United Nations Security Council Resolution 661 and subsequent relevant resolutions;

(6) the Governments of Lebanon and Syria should enter into serious unconditional bilateral negotiations with the Government of Israel in order to realize a full and permanent peace; and

(7) the United States should continue to provide humanitarian and educational assistance to the people of Lebanon only through appropriate private, nongovernmental organizations and appropriate international organizations, until such time as the Government of Lebanon asserts sovereignty and control over all of its territory and borders and achieves full political independence, as called for in United Nations Security Council Resolution 520.

SEC. 4. STATEMENT OF POLICY.

It should be the policy of the United States that—

(1) Syria will be held responsible for all attacks committed by Hizballah and other terrorist groups with offices or other facilities in Syria, or bases in areas of Lebanon occupied by Syria;

(2) the United States will work to deny Syria the ability to support acts of international terrorism and efforts to develop or acquire weapons of mass destruction;

(3) the Secretary of State will continue to list Syria as a state sponsor of terrorism until Syria ends its support for terrorism, including its support of Hizballah and other terrorist groups in Lebanon and its hosting of terrorist groups in Damascus, and comes into full compliance with United States law relating to terrorism and United Nations Security Council Resolution 1373 (September 28, 2001);

(4) the full restoration of Lebanon's sovereignty, political independence, and territorial integrity is in the national security interest of the United States;

(5) Syria is in violation of United Nations Security Council Resolution 520 (September 17, 1982) through its continued occupation of Lebanese territory and its encroachment upon its political independence;

(6) Syria's obligation to withdraw from Lebanon is not conditioned upon progress in the Israeli-Syrian or Israeli-Lebanese peace process but derives from Syria's obligation under Security Council Resolution 520;

(7) Syria's acquisition of weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missile programs threaten the security of the Middle East and the national interests of the United States;

(8) Syria is in violation of United Nations Security Council Resolution 661 (August 6, 1990) and subsequent relevant resolutions through its continued purchase of oil from Iraq; and

(9) the United States will not provide any assistance to Syria and will oppose multilateral assistance for Syria until Syria withdraws its armed forces from Lebanon, halts the development and deployment of weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missiles, and complies with Security Council Resolution 661 and subsequent relevant resolutions.

SEC. 5. SANCTIONS.

(a) SANCTIONS.—Until the President makes the determination that Syria meets the requirements described in paragraphs (1) through (4) of subsection (c) and certifies such determination to Congress in accordance with such subsection—

(1) the President shall prohibit the export to Syria of any item, including the issuance of a license for the export of any item on the United States Munitions List or Commerce Control List of dual-use items in the Export Administration Regulations (15 C.F.R. part 730 et seq.);

(2) the President shall prohibit United States Government assistance, including loans, credits, or other financial assistance, to United States businesses with respect to investment or other activities in Syria;

(3) the President shall prohibit the conduct of programs of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation and the Trade and Development Agency in or with respect to Syria; and

(4) the President shall impose two or more of the following sanctions:

(A) Prohibit the export of products of the United States (other than food and medicine) to Syria.

(B) Prohibit United States businesses from investing or operating in Syria.

(C) Restrict Syrian diplomats in Washington, D.C., and at the United Nations in New York City, to travel only within a 25-mile radius of Washington, D.C., or the United Nations headquarters building, respectively.

(D) Reduce United States diplomatic contacts with Syria (other than those contacts required to protect United States interests or carry out the purposes of this Act).

(E) Block transactions in any property in which the Government of Syria has any interest, by any person, or with respect to any property, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

(b) WAIVER.—The President may waive the application of either paragraph (2) or (3) (or both) of subsection (a) if the President determines that it is in the national security interest of the United States to do so.

(c) CERTIFICATION.—A certification under this subsection is a certification transmitted to the appropriate congressional committees of a determination made by the President that—

(1) the Government of Syria does not provide support for international terrorist groups and does not allow terrorist groups, such as Hamas, Hizballah, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, and the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command to maintain facilities in Syria;

(2) the Government of Syria has withdrawn all Syrian military, intelligence, and other security personnel from Lebanon;

(3) the Government of Syria has ceased the development and deployment of ballistic missiles and has ceased the development and production of biological and chemical weapons; and

(4) the Government of Syria is no longer in violation of United Nations Security Council Resolution 661 and subsequent relevant resolutions.

SEC. 6. REPORT.

(a) REPORT.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, and every 12 months thereafter until the conditions described in paragraphs (1) through (4) of section 5(c) are satisfied, the Secretary of State shall submit to the appropriate congressional committees a report on—

(1) Syria's progress toward meeting the conditions described in paragraphs (1) through (4) of section 5(c); and

(2) connections, if any, between individual terrorists and terrorist groups which maintain offices, training camps, or other facilities on Syrian territory, or operate in areas of Lebanon occupied by the Syrian armed forces, and the attacks against the United States that occurred on September 11, 2001, and other terrorist attacks on the United States or its citizens, installations, or allies.

(b) FORM.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall be in unclassified form but may include a classified annex.

SEC. 7. DEFINITION OF APPROPRIATE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.

In this Act, the term "appropriate congressional committees" means the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

STATEMENTS ON SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 246—DEMANDING THE RETURN OF THE USS "PUEBLO" TO THE UNITED STATES NAVY

Mr. CAMPBELL submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

S. RES. 246

Whereas the USS Pueblo, which was attacked and captured by the North Korean Navy on January 23, 1968, was the first United States Navy ship to be hijacked on the high seas by a foreign military force in over 150 years;

Whereas 1 member of the USS Pueblo crew, Duane Hodges, was killed in the assault while the other 82 crew members were held in captivity, often under inhumane conditions, for 11 months;

Whereas the USS Pueblo, an intelligence collection auxiliary vessel, was operating in international waters at the time of the capture, and therefore did not violate North Korean territorial waters;

Whereas the capture of the USS Pueblo resulted in no reprisals against the Government or people of North Korea and no military action at any time; and

Whereas the USS Pueblo, though still the property of the United States Navy, has been retained by North Korea for more than 30 years, was subjected to exhibition in the North Korean cities of Wonsan and Hungnam, and is now on display in Pyongyang, the capital city of North Korea: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) demands the return of the USS Pueblo to the United States Navy; and

(2) directs the Secretary of the Senate to transmit copies of this resolution to the President, the Secretary of Defense, and the Secretary of State.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Madam President, I am pleased to introduce this resolution which recognizes and demands that the government of North Korea return the ship the USS Pueblo to the United States Navy.

On January 23, 1968, while in international waters, the USS Pueblo was attacked and illegally captured by the North Korean Navy. This engagement marked the first time in over 150 years a United States Navy ship was hijacked on the high seas by a foreign military force. This naked act of aggression resulted in 82 crew members being held in captivity as Prisoners of War for eleven months in inhumane conditions with one casualty, Duane Hodges who was killed during the initial assault. On December 23, 1968, the USS Pueblo crew was finally released. At the time of its capture, the USS Pueblo was operating as an intelligence collection auxiliary vessel, and did not pose a threat.

According to the Navy Department Office of the Chief of Naval Operations Ships' Histories Section, the name USS Pueblo has enjoyed a long and proud history prior to January 23, 1968. Currently, the environmental research vessel USS Pueblo, AGER-2, is the third ship of the fleet to bear the name of the City and County of Pueblo, CO. Originally the armored cruiser Colorado was renamed the Pueblo in 1916 when a new battleship named Colorado was authorized. That ship served from 1905 to 1927. The second vessel named the Pueblo, PF-13, was a city class frigate which proudly served from 1944 to 1946. She was later sold to the Dominican Republic where she serves today. The third and current PUEBLO, AGER-2, was built by the Kewaunee Shipbuilding and Engineering Corporation, Kewaunee, WI. A general purpose supply vessel designed especially for service in the U.S. Army Transportation Corps, she was launched 16 April 1944 and later redesignated as an environmental research vessel.

To date, the capture of the USS Pueblo has resulted in no reprisal against the government or people of North Korea and although the USS Pueblo still remains property of the United States Navy, the North Korean Government displays it as a traveling museum in the North Korean cities of Wonsan and Hungnam, and is now on display in Pyongyang, the Capital city of North Korea. This is unacceptable to me and a number of my colleagues. At issue here, isn't the value of the ship. At issue is the honor of America and the record of those who proudly served and were illegal captives by North Korea, a nation which seeks the destruction of America.

I stand with my fellow legislators back home in the Sixty-third Colorado State General Assembly in demanding the return of the USS Pueblo to the United States Navy.

I urge my colleagues here in the U.S. Senate to join me in supporting passage of this important resolution.

diesel-blended diesel fuel that contains at least 2 percent biodiesel, rather than nonbiodiesel-blended diesel fuel; and

"(B) as of the date that is 10 years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, biodiesel-blended diesel fuel that contains at least 20 percent biodiesel, rather than nonbiodiesel-blended diesel fuel.

"(c) EXEMPTION FOR MILITARY VEHICLES.—This section does not apply to fuel used in vehicles used for military purposes that the Secretary of Defense certifies to the Secretary must be exempt for national security reasons."

SA 3146. Mr. HAGEL submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

Strike Title XI and insert the following:

TITLE XI—NATIONAL GREENHOUSE GAS REGISTRY

SEC. 1101. SHORT TITLE.

This amendment may be cited as the "National Climate Registry Initiative."

SEC. 1102. PURPOSE.

The purpose of this title is to establish a new national greenhouse gas registry—

(1) to further encourage voluntary efforts, by persons and entities conducting business and other operations in the United States, to implement actions, projects and measures that reduce greenhouse gas emissions;

(2) to encourage such persons and entities to monitor and voluntarily report greenhouse gas emissions, direct or indirect, from their facilities, and to the extent practicable, from other types of sources;

(3) to adopt a procedure and uniform format for such persons and entities to establish and report voluntarily greenhouse gas emission baselines in connection with, and furtherance of, such reductions;

(4) to provide verification mechanisms to ensure for participants and the public a high level of confidence in accuracy and verifiability of reports made to the national registry;

(5) to encourage persons and entities, through voluntary agreement with the Secretary, to report annually greenhouse gas emissions from their facilities;

(6) to provide to persons or entities that engage in such voluntary agreements and reduce their emissions transferable credits which, inter alia, shall be available for use by such persons or entities for any incentive, market-based, or regulatory programs determined by the Congress in a future enactment to be necessary and feasible to reduce the risk of climate change and its impacts; and

(7) to provide for the registration, transfer and tracking of the ownership or holding of such credits for purposes of facilitating voluntary trading among persons and entities.

SEC. 1103. DEFINITIONS.

In this title—

(1) "person" means an individual, corporation, association, joint venture, cooperative, or partnership;

(2) "entity" means a public person, a Federal, interstate, State, or local governmental agency, department, corporation, or other publicly owned organization;

(3) "facility" means those buildings, structures, installations, or plants (including units thereof) that are on contiguous or adjacent land, are under common control of the same person or entity and are a source of emissions of greenhouse gases in excess for emission purposes of a threshold as recognized by the guidelines issued under this title;

(4) "reductions" means actions, projects or measures taken, whether in the United States or internationally, by a person or entity to reduce, avoid or sequester, directly or indirectly, emissions of one or more greenhouse gases;

(5) "greenhouse gas" means—

(A) an anthropogenic gaseous constituent of the atmosphere (including carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, hydrofluorocarbons, perfluorocarbons, and sulfur hexafluoride) that absorbs and re-emits infrared radiation and influences climate; and

(B) an anthropogenic aerosol (such as black soot) that absorbs solar radiation and influences climate;

(6) "Secretary" means the Secretary of Energy;

(7) "Administrator" means the Administrator of the Energy Information Administration; and

(8) "Interagency Task Force" means the Interagency Task Force established under title X of this Act.

SEC. 1104. ESTABLISHMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the enactment of this title, the President shall, in consultation with the Interagency Task Force, establish a National Greenhouse Gas Registry to be administered by the Secretary through the Administrator in accordance with the applicable provisions of this title, section 205 of the Department of Energy Act (42 U.S.C. 7135) and other applicable provisions of that Act (42 U.S.C. 7101, et seq.).

(b) DESIGNATION.—Upon establishment of the registry and issuance of the guidelines pursuant to this title, such registry shall thereafter be the depository for the United States of data on greenhouse gas emissions and emissions reductions collected from and reported by persons or entities with facilities or operations in the United States, pursuant to the guidelines issued under this title.

(c) PARTICIPATION.—Any person or entity conducting business or activities in the United States may, in accordance with the guidelines established pursuant to this title, voluntarily report its total emissions levels and register its certified emissions reductions with such registry, provided that such reports—

(1) represent a complete and accurate inventory of emissions from facilities and operations within the United States and any domestic or international reduction activities; and

(2) have been verified as accurate by an independent person certified pursuant to guidelines developed pursuant to this title, or other means.

(d) CONFIDENTIALITY OF REPORTS.—Trade secret and commercial or financial information that is privileged and confidential submitted pursuant to activities under this title shall be provided in section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 1105. IMPLEMENTATION.

(a) GUIDELINES.—Not later than 1 year after the date of establishment of the registry pursuant to this title, the Secretary shall, in consultation with the Interagency Task Force, issue guidelines establishing procedures for the administration of the national registry. Such guidelines shall include—

(1) means and methods for persons or entities to determine, quantify, and report by appropriate and credible means their baseline emissions levels on an annual basis, taking into consideration any reports made by such participants under past Federal programs;

(2) procedures for the use of an independent third-party or other effective verification process for reports on emissions levels and emissions reductions, using the authorities available to the Secretary under this and other provisions of law and taking into account, to the extent possible, costs, risks, the voluntary nature of the registry, and other relevant factors;

(3) a range of reference cases for reporting of project-based reductions in various sectors, and the inclusion of benchmark and default methodologies and practices for use as reference cases for eligible projects;

(4) safeguards to prevent and address reporting, inadvertently or otherwise, of some or all of the same greenhouse gas emissions or reductions by more than one reporting person or entity and to make corrections and adjustments in data where necessary;

(5) procedures and criteria for the review and registration of ownership or holding of all or part of any reported and independently verified emission reduction projects, actions and measures relative to such reported baseline emissions level;

(6) measures or a process for providing to such persons or entities transferable credits with unique serial numbers for such verified emissions reductions; and

(7) accounting provisions needed to allow for changes in registration and transfer of ownership of such credits resulting from a voluntary private transaction between persons or entities, provided that the Secretary is notified of any such transfer within 30 days of the transfer having been effected either by private contract or market mechanism.

(b) CONSIDERATION.—In developing such guidelines, the Secretary shall take into consideration—

(1) the existing guidelines for voluntary emissions reporting issued under section 1605(b) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 13385(b)), experience in applying such guidelines, and any revisions thereof initiated by the Secretary pursuant to direction of the President issued prior to the enactment of this title;

(2) protocols and guidelines developed under any Federal, State, local, or private voluntary greenhouse gas emissions reporting or reduction programs;

(3) the various differences and potential uniqueness of the facilities, operations and business and other relevant practices of persons and entities in the private and public sectors that may be expected to participate in the registry;

(4) issues, such as comparability, that are associated with the reporting of both emissions baselines and reductions from activities and projects; and

(5) the appropriate level or threshold emissions applicable to a facility or activity of a person or entity that may be reasonably and cost effectively identified, measured and reported voluntarily, taking into consideration different types of facilities and activities and the de minimis nature of some emissions and their sources; and

(6) any other consideration the Secretary may deem appropriate.

(c) EXPERTS AND CONSULTANTS.—The Secretary, and any member of the Interagency Task Force, may secure the services of experts and consultants in the private and non-profit sectors in accordance with the provisions of section 3109 of title 5, United States Code, in the areas of greenhouse gas measurement, certification, and emissions trading. In securing such services, any grant, contract, cooperative agreement, or other arrangement authorized by law and already available to the Secretary or the member of the Interagency Task Force securing such services may be used.

(d) TRANSFERABILITY OF PRIOR REPORTS.—Emissions reports and reductions that have been made by a person or entity pursuant to section 1605(b) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 13385(b)) or under other Federal or State voluntary greenhouse gas reduction programs may be independently verified and registered with the registry using the same guidelines developed by the Secretary pursuant to this section.

(e) PUBLIC COMMENT.—The Secretary shall make such guidelines available in draft form for public notice and opportunity for comment for a period of at least 90 days, and thereafter shall adopt them for use in implementation of the registry established pursuant to this title.

(f) REVIEW AND REVISION.—The Secretary, through the Interagency Task Force, shall periodically thereafter review the guidelines and, as needed, revise them in the same manner as provided for in this section.

SEC. 1106. VOLUNTARY AGREEMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In furtherance of the purposes of this title, any person or entity, and the Secretary, may voluntarily enter into an agreement to provide that—

(1) such person or entity (and successors thereto) shall report annually to the registry on emissions and sources of greenhouse gases from applicable facilities and operations which generate net emissions above any de minimis thresholds specified in the guidelines issued by the Secretary pursuant to this title;

(2) such person or entity (and successors thereto) shall commit to report and participate in the registry for a period of at least 5 calendar years, provided that such agreements may be renewed by mutual consent;

(3) for purposes of measuring performance under the agreement, such person or entity (and successors thereto) shall determine, by mutual agreement with the Secretary—

(A) pursuant to the guidelines issued under this title, a baseline emissions level for a representative period preceding the effective date of the agreement; and

(B) emissions reduction goals, taking into consideration the baseline emissions level determined under subparagraph (A) and any relevant economic and operational factors that may affect such baseline emissions level over the duration of the agreement; and

(4) for certified emissions reductions made relative to the baseline emissions level, the Secretary shall provide, at the request of the person or entity, transferable credits (with unique assigned serial numbers) to the person or entity which, inter alia—

(A) can be used by such person or entity towards meeting emissions reductions goals set forth under the agreement;

(B) can be transferred to other parties or entities through a voluntary private transaction between persons or entities; or

(C) shall be applicable towards any incentive, market-based, or regulatory programs determined by the Congress in a future enactment to be necessary and feasible to reduce the risk of climate change and its impacts.

(b) PUBLIC NOTICE AND COMMENT.—At least 30 days before any agreement is final, the Secretary shall give notice thereof in the Federal Register and provide an opportunity for public written comment. After reviewing such comments, the Secretary may withdraw the agreement or the parties thereto may mutually agree to revise it to finalize it without substantive change. Such agreement shall be retained in the national registry and be available to the public.

(c) EMISSIONS IN EXCESS.—In the event that a person or entity fails to certify that emissions from applicable facilities are less than the emissions reduction goals contained in the agreement, such person or entity shall take actions as necessary to reduce such excess emissions, including—

(1) redemption of transferable credits acquired in previous years if owned by the person or entity;

(2) acquisition of transferable credits from other persons or entities participating in the registry through their own agreements; or

(3) the undertaking of additional emissions reductions activities in subsequent years as may be determined by agreement with the Secretary.

(d) NO NEW AUTHORITY.—This section shall not be construed as providing any regulatory or mandate authority regarding reporting of such emissions or reductions.

SEC. 1107. MEASUREMENT AND VERIFICATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Commerce, through the National Institute of Standards and Technology and in consultation with the Secretary of Energy, shall develop and propose standards and practices for accurate measurement and verification of greenhouse gas emissions and emissions reductions. Such standards and best practices shall address the need for—

(1) standardized measurement and verification practices for reports made by all persons or entities participating in the registry, taking into account—

(A) existing protocols and standards already in use by persons or entities desiring to participate in the registry;

(B) boundary issues such as leakage and shifted utilization;

(C) avoidance of double-counting of greenhouse gas emissions and emissions reductions; and

(D) such other factors as the panel determines to be appropriate;

(2) measurement and verification of actions taken to reduce, avoid or sequester greenhouse gas emissions;

(3) in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture, measurement of the results of the use of carbon sequestration and carbon recapture technologies, including—

(A) organic soil carbon sequestration practices;

(B) forest preservation and re-forestation activities which adequately address the issues of permanence, leakage and verification; and

(4) such other measurement and verification standards as the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of Agriculture, and the Secretary of Energy shall determine to be appropriate.

(b) PUBLIC COMMENT.—The Secretary of Commerce shall make such standards and practices available in draft form for public notice and opportunity for comment for a period of at least 90 days, and thereafter shall adopt them, in coordination with the Secretary of Energy, for use in the guidelines for implementation of the registry as issued pursuant to this title.

SEC. 1108. CERTIFIED INDEPENDENT THIRD PARTIES.

(a) CERTIFICATION.—The Secretary of Commerce shall, through the Director of the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the Administrator, develop standards for certification of independent persons to act as certified parties to be employed in verifying the accuracy and reliability of reports made under this title, including standards that—

(1) prohibit a certified party from themselves participating in the registry through the ownership or transaction of transferable credits recorded in the registry;

(2) prohibit the receipt by a certified party of compensation in the form of a commission where such party receives payment based on the amount of emissions reductions verified; and

(3) authorize such certified parties to enter into agreements with persons engaged in trading of transferable credits recorded in the registry.

(b) LIST OF CERTIFIED PARTIES.—The Secretary shall maintain and make available to persons or entities making reports under this title and to the public upon request a list of such certified parties and their clients making reports under this title.

SEC. 1109. REPORT TO CONGRESS.

Not later than 1 year after guidelines are issued for the registry pursuant to this title, and biennially thereafter, the President, through the Interagency Task Force, shall report to the Congress on the status of the registry established by this title. The report shall include—

(a) an assessment of the level of participation in the registry (both by sector and in terms of national emissions represented);

(b) effectiveness of voluntary reporting agreements in enhancing participation in the registry;

(c) use of the registry for emissions trading and other purposes;

(d) assessment of progress towards individual and national emissions reduction goals; and

(e) an inventory of administrative actions taken or planned to improve the national registry or the guidelines, or both, and such recommendations for legislative changes to this title or section 1605 of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (42 U.S.C. 13385) as the President believes necessary to better carry out the purposes of this title.

SEC. 1110. NATIONAL ACADEMY REVIEW.

Not later than 1 year after guidelines are issued for the registry pursuant to this title, the Secretary, in consultation with the Interagency Task Force, shall enter into an agreement with the National Academy of Sciences to review the scientific and technological methods, assumptions, and standards used by the Secretary and the Secretary of Commerce for such guidelines and report to the President and the Congress on the results of that review, together with such recommendations as may be appropriate, within 6 months after the effective date of that agreement.

SA 3147. Mr. THURMOND submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 574, between lines 11 and 12, insert the following:

SEC. 17 . FEASIBILITY REPORT ON COMMERCIAL NUCLEAR ENERGY PRODUCTION AND REGIONAL EDUCATION CONSORTIA AT DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY NUCLEAR FACILITIES.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) COMMERCIAL NUCLEAR ENERGY PRODUCTION.—The term “commercial nuclear energy production” means electric power generated by for profit, private firms, public cooperatives, and municipal utilities.

(2) DEPARTMENT FACILITY.—The term “Department facility” means a Department of Energy nuclear facility.

(3) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of Energy.

(b) STUDY.—The Secretary shall conduct a study to determine the feasibility of—

(1) developing commercial nuclear energy production facilities at Department facilities in existence on the date of enactment of this Act, including—

(A) options for how and where commercial nuclear power plants can be developed at Department facilities;

(B) estimates of cost savings to the United States that may be realized by locating new commercial nuclear power plants at Department facilities;

(C) the feasibility of incorporating new technology into commercial nuclear power plants at Department facilities;

(D) potential improvements in the licensing and safety oversight procedures of commercial nuclear power plants at Department facilities;

(E) an assessment of the effects of nuclear waste management policies and projects as a result of locating commercial nuclear power plants at Department facilities;

(F) the appropriate amounts of contributions of public and private funds; and

(G) other appropriate factors; and

(2) establishing regional education consortia at Department facilities, including—

(A) strategies for strengthening partnerships among the Department of Energy, engineering and science institutions of higher learning, other schools providing vocational training to the nuclear power industry, and commercial nuclear power producers;

(B) contributions that such consortia could make to the program goals of relevant provisions of this Act; and

(C) other actions that could optimize civilian and military education in nuclear education at Department facilities that would enhance electric power production in the United States.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report describing the results of the study under subsection (b).

SA 3148. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Ms. CANTWELL) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 403, after line 12, insert the following:

SEC. 1215. HIGH POWER DENSITY INDUSTRY PROGRAM.

The Secretary shall establish a comprehensive research, development, demonstration and deployment program to improve energy efficiency of high power density facilities, including data centers, server farms, and telecommunications facilities. Such program shall consider technologies that provide significant improvement in thermal controls, metering, load management, peak load reduction, or the efficient cooling of electronics.

SA 3149. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Mr. REID) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 403, after line 12, insert the following:

“SEC. 1215. RESEARCH REGARDING PRECIOUS METAL CATALYSIS.

“The Secretary of Energy may, for the purpose of developing improved industrial and automotive catalysis, carry out research in the use of precious metals (excluding platinum, palladium, and rhodium) in catalysis directly, through national laboratories, or through grants to or cooperative agreements or contracts with public or nonprofit entities. There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as are necessary for fiscal years 2003 through 2006.”.

SA 3150. Mr. BINGAMAN proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of title XVII, add the following: SEC. 17 . REPORT ON ENERGY SAVINGS AND WATER USE.

(a) REPORT.—The Secretary of Energy shall conduct a study of opportunities to reduce energy use by cost-effective improvements in the efficiency of municipal water and waste water treatment and use, including water pumps, motors, and delivery systems; purification, conveyance and distribution; upgrading of aging water infrastructure, and improved methods for leakage monitoring, measuring, and reporting; and public education.

(b) SUBMISSION OF REPORT.—The Secretary of Energy shall submit a report on the results of the study, including any recommendations for implementation of measures and estimates of costs and resource savings, no later than two years from the date of enactment of this section.

(c) AUTHORIZATION.—There is hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

SA 3151. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Mr. SCHUMER) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle A of title IX add the following:

SEC. 9 . ENERGY EFFICIENT APPLIANCE REBATE PROGRAMS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) ELIGIBLE STATE.—The term “eligible state” means a State that meets the requirements of subsection (b).

(2) ENERGY STAR PROGRAM.—The term “Energy Star program” means the program established by section 324A of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act.

(3) RESIDENTIAL ENERGY STAR PRODUCT.—The term “residential Energy Star product” means a product for a residence that is rated for energy efficiency under the Energy Star program.

(4) STATE ENERGY OFFICE.—The term “State energy office” means the State agency responsible for developing State energy conservation plans under section 362 of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act (42 U.S.C. 6322).

(5) STATE PROGRAM.—The term “State program” means a State energy efficient appliance rebate program described in subsection (b)(1).

(b) ELIGIBLE STATES.—A State shall be eligible to receive an allocation under subsection (c) if the State—

(1) establishes (or has established) a State energy efficient appliance rebate program to provide rebates to residential consumers for the purchase of residential Energy Star products to replace used appliances of the same type;

(2) submits an application for the allocation at such time, in such form, and containing such information as the Secretary may require; and

(3) provides assurances satisfactory to the Secretary that the Senate will use the allocation to supplement, but not supplant, funds made available to carry out the State program.

(c) AMOUNT OF ALLOCATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), for each fiscal year, the Secretary shall allocate to the State energy office of each eligible State to carry out subsection (d) an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount made available under subsection (e) for the fiscal year by the ratio that the population of the State in the most recent calendar year for which data are available bears to the total population of all eligible States in that calendar year.

(2) MINIMUM ALLOCATIONS.—For each fiscal year, the amounts allocated under this subsection shall be adjusted proportionately so that no eligible State is allocated a sum that is less than an amount determined by the Secretary.

(d) USE OF ALLOCATED FUNDS.—The allocations to a State energy office under subsection (c) may be used to pay up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing and carrying out a State program.

(e) ISSUANCE OF REBATES.—Rebates may be provided to residential consumers that meet the requirements of the State program. The amount of a rebate shall be determined by the State energy office, taking into consideration—

(1) the amount of the allocation to the State energy office under subsection (c);

(2) the amount of any Federal or State tax incentive available for the purchase of the residential Energy Star product; and

(3) the difference between the cost of the residential Energy Star product and the cost of an appliance that is not a residential Energy Star product, but is of the same type as, and is the nearest capacity, performance, and other relevant characteristics (as determined by the State energy office) to the residential Energy Star product.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003 through fiscal year 2012.

SA 3152. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Ms. LANDRIEU) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 301, line 22, strike “organizations.” and insert the following:

“organizations.

“(d) SMALL BUSINESS EDUCATION AND ASSISTANCE.—The Administrator of the Small Business Administration, in consultation with the Secretary of Energy and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall develop and coordinate a government-wide program, building on the existing Energy Star for Small Business Program, to assist small business to become more energy efficient, understand the cost savings obtainable through efficiencies, and identify financing options for energy efficiency upgrades. The Secretary and the Administrator shall make the program information available directly to small businesses and through other federal agencies, including the Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the Department of Agriculture.”.

SA 3153. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Mr. CORZINE) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the end of subtitle D of title IX, add the following:

SEC. 937. CAPITAL FUND.

Section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437g), as amended by section 934, is amended—

(1) in subsection (d)(1)—

(A) in subparagraph (L), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”;

(B) by redesignating subparagraph (L) as subparagraph (K); and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(L) integrated utility management and capital planning to maximize energy conservation and efficiency measures.”; and

(2) in subsection (e)(2)(C)—

(A) by striking “The” and inserting the following:

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following:

“(ii) THIRD PARTY CONTRACTS.—Contracts described in clause (i) may include contracts for equipment conversions to less costly utility sources, projects with resident paid utilities, adjustments to frozen base year consumption, including systems repaired to meet applicable building and safety codes and adjustments for occupancy rates increased by rehabilitation.

“(iii) TERM OF CONTRACT.—The total term of a contract described in clause (i) shall be for not more than 20 years to allow longer payback periods for retrofits, including but not limited to windows, heating system replacements, wall insulation, site-based generators, and advanced energy savings technologies, including renewable energy generation.”.

SEC. 938. ENERGY-EFFICIENT APPLIANCES.

A public housing agency shall purchase energy-efficient appliances that are Energy Star products as defined in section 552 of the National Energy Policy and Conservation Act (as amended by this Act) when the purchase of energy-efficient appliances is cost-effective to the public housing agency.

SEC. 939. ENERGY EFFICIENCY STANDARDS.

Section 109 of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act (42 U.S.C. 12709) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in paragraph (1)—

(i) by striking “the date of the enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992” and inserting “September 30, 2002”.

(ii) in subparagraph (A), by striking “and” at the end;

(iii) in subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end and inserting a semi-colon; and

(iv) by adding at the end the following:

(C) rehabilitation and new construction of public and assisted housing funded by HOPE

VI revitalization grants, established under section 24 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U.S.C. 1437v), where such standards are determined to be cost effective by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development; and

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “Council of American” and all that follows through “life-cycle cost basis” and inserting “2000 International Energy Conservation Code”;

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by striking “the date of the enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992” and inserting “September 30, 2002”; and

(B) by striking “CABO” and all that follows through “1989” and inserting “the 2000 International Energy Conservation Code”; and

(3) in subsection (c)—

(A) in the heading, by striking “MODEL ENERGY CODE” and inserting “THE INTERNATIONAL ENERGY CONSERVATION CODE”; and

(B) by striking “CABO” and all that follows through “1989” and inserting “the 2000 International Energy Conservation Code”.

SEC. 940. ENERGY STRATEGY FOR HUD.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall develop and implement an integrated strategy to reduce utility expenses through cost-effective energy conservation and efficiency measures, design and construction in public and assisted housing.

(b) ENERGY MANAGEMENT OFFICE.—The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall create an office at the Department of Housing and Urban Development for utility management, energy efficiency, and conservation, with responsibility for implementing the strategy developed under this section, including development of a centralized database that monitors public housing energy usage, and development of energy reduction goals and incentives for public housing agencies. The Secretary shall submit an annual report to Congress on the strategy.

SA 3154. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Mr. KENNEDY) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 183, line 15, strike “and” and all that follows through line 19, and insert the following:

(2) the term “idling” means not turning off an engine while remaining stationary for more than approximately 3 minutes; and

(3) the term “ultra-low sulfur diesel school bus” means a school bus powered by diesel fuel which contains sulfur at not more than 15 parts per million.

(k) REDUCTION OF SCHOOL BUS IDLING.—Each local educational agency (as defined in section 9101 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7801)) that receives Federal funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6301 et seq.) is encouraged to develop a policy to reduce the incidence of school buses idling at schools when picking up and unloading students.

SA 3155. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Mrs. LINCOLN) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 123, after line 17, insert the following:

SEC. 514. DECOMMISSIONING PILOT PROGRAM.

(a) PILOT PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Energy shall establish a decommissioning pilot program to decommission and decontaminate the sodium-cooled fast breeder experimental test-site reactor located in northeast Arkansas in accordance with the decommissioning activities contained in the August 31, 1998 Department of Energy report on the reactor.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $16,000,000.

SA 3156. Mr. BINGAMAN (for Mr. MURKOWSKI) proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 443, after line 8, insert the following:

SEC. 1237. CLEAN COAL TECHNOLOGY LOAN.

There is authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $125,000,000 to the Secretary of Energy to provide a loan to the owner of the experimental plant constructed under United States Department of Energy cooperative agreement number DE-FC22-91PC99544 on such terms and conditions as the Secretary determines, including interest rates and upfront payments.

SA 3157. Mr. THURMOND submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; which were ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

On page 574, between lines 11 and 12, insert the following:

SEC. 17 . REPORT ON RESEARCH ON HYDROGEN PRODUCTION AND USE.

Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Energy shall submit to Congress a report that identifies current or potential research projects at Department of Energy nuclear facilities relating to—

- (1) the production of hydrogen; or
- (2) the use of hydrogen in fuel cell development or any other method or process enhancing alternative energy production technologies.

SA 3158. Mr. CONRAD (for himself and Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

Strike section 2104 and insert the following:

SEC. 2104. CREDIT FOR BUSINESS INSTALLATION OF QUALIFIED FUEL CELLS AND STATIONARY MICROTURBINE POWER PLANTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraph (A) of section 48(a)(3) (defining energy property) is amended by striking “or” at the end of clause (i), by adding “or” at the end of clause (ii), and by inserting after clause (ii) the following new clause:

“(iii) qualified fuel cell property or qualified microturbine property.”

(b) QUALIFIED FUEL CELL PROPERTY; QUALIFIED MICROTURBINE PROPERTY.—Subsection (a) of section 48 is amended by redesignating paragraphs (4) and (5) as paragraphs (5) and (6), respectively, and by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph:

“(4) QUALIFIED FUEL CELL PROPERTY; QUALIFIED MICROTURBINE PROPERTY.—For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) QUALIFIED FUEL CELL PROPERTY.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘qualified fuel cell property’ means a fuel cell power plant that—“(I) generates at least 1 kilowatt of electricity using an electrochemical process, and “(II) has an electricity-only generation efficiency greater than 30 percent.

“(ii) LIMITATION.—In the case of qualified fuel cell property placed in service during the taxable year, the credit determined under paragraph (1) for such year with respect to such property shall not exceed an amount equal to the lesser of—

“(I) 30 percent of the basis of such property, or

“(II) $1,000 for each kilowatt of capacity of such property.

“(iii) FUEL CELL POWER PLANT.—The term ‘fuel cell power plant’ means an integrated system comprised of a fuel cell stack assembly and associated balance of plant components that converts a fuel into electricity using electrochemical means.

“(iv) TERMINATION.—Such term shall not include any property placed in service after December 31, 2007.

“(B) QUALIFIED MICROTURBINE PROPERTY.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘qualified microturbine property’ means a stationary microturbine power plant which has an electricity-only generation efficiency not less than 26 percent at International Standard Organization conditions.

“(ii) LIMITATION.—In the case of qualified microturbine property placed in service during the taxable year, the credit determined under paragraph (1) for such year with respect to such property shall not exceed an amount equal to the lesser of—

“(I) 10 percent of the basis of such property, or

“(II) $200 for each kilowatt of capacity of such property.

“(iii) STATIONARY MICROTURBINE POWER PLANT.—The term ‘stationary microturbine power plant’ means a system comprising of a rotary engine which is actuated by the aerodynamic reaction or impulse or both on radial or axial curved full-circumferential-admission airfoils on a central axial rotating spindle. Such system—

“(I) commonly includes an air compressor, combustor, gas pathways which lead compressed air to the combustor and which lead hot combusted gases from the combustor to 1 or more rotating turbine spools, which in turn drive the compressor and power output shaft,

“(II) includes a fuel compressor, recuperator/regenerator, generator or alternator, integrated combined cycle equipment, cooling-heating-and-power equipment, sound attenuation apparatus, and power conditioning equipment, and

“(III) includes all secondary components located between the existing infrastructure for fuel delivery and the existing infrastructure for power distribution, including equipment and controls for meeting relevant power standards, such as voltage, frequency, and power factors.

“(iv) TERMINATION.—Such term shall not include any property placed in service after December 31, 2006.”

(c) LIMITATION.—Section 48(a)(2)(A) (relating to energy percentage) is amended to read as follows:

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The energy percentage is—

“(i) in the case of qualified fuel cell property, 30 percent, and

“(ii) in the case of any other energy property, 10 percent.”

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 29(b)(3)(A)(i)(III) is amended by striking “section 48(a)(4)(C)” and inserting “section 48(a)(5)(C)”.

(B) Section 48(a)(1) is amended by inserting “except as provided in subparagraph (A)(ii) or (B)(ii) of paragraph (4),” before “the energy”.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to property placed in service after December 31, 2002, under rules similar to the rules of section 48(m) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1990).

SA 3159. Mr. MURKOWSKI proposed an amendment to amendment SA 2917 proposed by Mr. DASCHLE (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) to the bill (S. 517) to authorize funding the Department of Energy to enhance its mission areas through technology transfer and partnerships for fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

TITLE—IRAQ OIL IMPORT RESTRICTION
SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND FINDINGS.

(a) This Title can be cited as the ‘Iraq Petroleum Import Restriction Act of 2001.’

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the government of the Republic of Iraq;

(A) has failed to comply with the terms of United Nations Security Council Resolution 686 regarding unconditional Iraqi acceptance of the destruction, removal, or rendering harmless, under international supervision, of all nuclear, chemical and biological weapons and all stocks of agents and all related subsystems and components and all research, development, support and manufacturing facilities, as well as all ballistic missiles with a range greater than 150 kilometers and related major parts, and repair and production facilities and has failed to allow United Nations inspectors access to sites used for the production or storage of weapons of mass destruction.

(B) routinely contravenes the terms and conditions of UNSC Resolution 661, authorizing the export of petroleum products from Iraq in exchange for food, medicine and other humanitarian products by conducting a routine and extensive program to sell such products outside of the channels established by UNSC Resolution 661 in exchange for military equipment and materials to be used in pursuit of its program to develop weapons of mass destruction in order to threaten the United States and its allies in the Persian Gulf and surrounding regions.

(C) has failed to adequately draw down upon the amounts received in the Escrow Account established by UNSC Resolution 661 to purchase food, medicine and other humanitarian products required by its citizens, resulting in massive humanitarian suffering by the Iraqi people.

(D) conducts a periodic and systematic campaign to harass and obstruct the enforcement of the United States and United Kingdom-enforced "No-Fly Zones" in effect in the Republic of Iraq.

(E) routinely manipulates the petroleum export production volumes permitted under UNSC Resolution 661 in order to create uncertainty in global energy markets, and therefore threatens the economic security of the United States.

(F) pays bounties to the families of suicide bombers in order to encourage the murder of Israeli civilians.

(2) Further imports of petroleum products from the Republic of Iraq are inconsistent with the national security and foreign policy interests of the United States and should be eliminated until such time as they are not so inconsistent.

SEC. 2. PROHIBITION ON IRAQI-ORIGIN PETROLEUM IMPORTS.

The direct or indirect import from Iraq of Iraqi-origin petroleum and petroleum products is prohibited, notwithstanding an authorization by the Committee established by UNSC Resolution 661 or its designee, or any other order to the contrary.

SEC. 3. TERMINATION/PRESIDENTIAL CERTIFICATION.

This Title will remain in effect until such time as the President, after consultation with the relevant committees in Congress, certifies to the Congress that:

(a) (1) Iraq is in substantial compliance with the terms of

(A) UNSC Resolution 687 and

(B) UNSC Resolution 986 prohibiting smuggling of oil in circumvention of the "Oil-for-Food" program; and

(2) ceases the practice of compensating the families of suicide bombers in order to encourage the murder of Israeli citizens; or that

(b) resuming the important of Iraqi-origin petroleum and petroleum products would not be inconsistent with the national security and foreign policy interests of the United States.

SEC. 4. HUMANITARIAN INTERESTS.

It is the sense of the Senate that the President should make all appropriate efforts to ensure that the humanitarian needs of the Iraqi people are not negatively affected by this Act, and should encourage through public, private, domestic and international means the direct or indirect sale, donation or other transfer to appropriate non-governmental health and humanitarian organizations and individuals within Iraqi of food, medicine and other humanitarian products.

SEC. 5. DEFINITIONS.

(A) "661 committee." The term 661 Committee means the Security Council Committee established by UNSC Resolution 661, and persons acting for or on behalf of the Committee under its specific delegation of authority for the relevant matter or category of activity, including the overseers appointed by the UN Secretary-General to examine and approve agreements for purchases of petroleum and petroleum products from the Government of Iraq pursuant to UNSC Resolution 986.

(b) "UNSC Resolution 661." The term UNSC Resolution 661 means United Nations Security Council Resolution No. 661, adopted August 6, 1990, prohibiting certain transactions with respect to Iraq and Kuwait.

(c) "UNSC Resolution 687." The term UNSC Resolution 986 means United Nations Security Council Resolution 687, adopted April 3, 1991.

(d) "UNSC Resolution 986." The term UNSC Resolution 986 means United Nations Security Council Resolution 986, adopted April 14, 1995.

SEC. 6. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The prohibition on important of Iraqi origin petroleum and petroleum products shall be effective 30 days after enactment of this Act.

SA 3160. Mr. KENNEDY (for himself, Mr. BROWNBAC, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. KYL) proposed an amendment to the bill H.R. 3525, to enhance the border security of the United States, and for other purposes; as follows:

SEC. 204. PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT AUTHORITIES FOR POSITIONS INVOLVED IN THE DEVELOPMENT AND IMPLEMENTATION OF THE INTEROPERABLE ELECTRONIC DATA SYSTEM ("CHIMERA SYSTEM").

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law relating to position classification or employee pay or performance, the Attorney General may hire and fix the compensation of necessary scientific, technical, engineering, and other analytical personnel for the purpose of the development and implementation of the interoperable electronic data system described in section 202(a)(2) (also known as the "Chimera system").

(b) LIMITATION ON RATE OF PAY.—Except as otherwise provided by law, no employee compensated under subsection (a) may be paid at a rate in excess of the rate payable for a position at level III of the Executive Schedule.

(c) LIMITATION ON TOTAL CALENDAR YEAR PAYMENTS.—Total payments to employees under any system established under this section shall be subject to the limitation on payments to employees under section 5307 of title 5, United States Code.

(d) OPERATING PLAN.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall submit to the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Judiciary, the Select Committee on Intelligence, and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on Appropriations, the Committee on the Judiciary, the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives an operating plan—

(1) describing the Attorney General's intended use of the authority under this section; and

(2) identifying any provisions of title 5, United States Code, being waived for purposes of the development and implementation of the Chimera system.

(e) TERMINATION DATE.—The authority of this section shall terminate upon the implementation of the Chimera system.

SEC. 205. PROCUREMENT OF EQUIPMENT AND SERVICES FOR THE DEVELOPMENT AND IMPLEMENTATION OF THE INTEROPERABLE ELECTRONIC DATA SYSTEM ("CHIMERA SYSTEM").

(a) EXEMPTION FROM APPLICABLE FEDERAL ACQUISITION RULES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for the purpose of the development and implementation of the interoperable electronic data system described in section 202(a)(2) (also known as the "Chimera system"), the Attorney General may use any funds available for the Chimera system to purchase or lease equipment or any related items, or to acquire interim services, without regard to any otherwise applicable Federal acquisition rule, if the Attorney General determines that—

(A) there is an exigent need for the equipment, related items, or services in order to support interagency information sharing under this title;

(B) the equipment, related items, or services required are not available within the Department of Justice; and

(C) adherence to that Federal acquisition rule would—

(i) delay the timely acquisition of the equipment, related items, or services; and

(ii) adversely affect interagency information sharing under this title.

(2) DEFINITION.—In this subsection, the term "Federal acquisition rule" means any provision of title III or IX of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act, the Small Business Act, the Federal Acquisition Regulation, or any other provision of law or regulation that establishes policies, procedures, requirements, conditions, or restrictions for procurements by the head of a department or agency of the Federal Government.

(b) NOTIFICATION OF CONGRESSIONAL APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEES.—The Attorney General shall immediately notify the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate in writing of each expenditure under subsection (a), which notification shall include sufficient information to explain the circumstances necessitating the exercise of the authority under that subsection.

On page 216, after line 21, add the following:

SEC. ____ PHASEOUT OF TAX SUBSIDIES FOR ETHANOL FUEL AS MARKET SHARE OF SUCH FUEL INCREASES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 15 of 2002, and each subsequent calendar year, the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine the percentage increase (if any) of the ethanol fuel market share for the preceding calendar year over the highest ethanol fuel market share for any preceding calendar year and shall, notwithstanding any provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, reduce by the same percentage the ethanol fuel subsidies under sections 40, 4041, 4081, and 4091 of such Code beginning on January 1 of the subsequent calendar year.

(b) ETHANOL FUEL MARKET SHARE.—For purposes of this section, the ethanol fuel market share for any calendar year shall be determined from data of the Energy Information Administration of the Department of Energy.

(c) ETHANOL FUEL.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘ethanol fuel’ means any fuel the alcohol in which is ethanol.

(d) FLOOR STOCK TAXES.—

(1) IMPOSITION OF TAX.—In the case of ethanol fuel which is held on any tax increase date by any person, there is hereby imposed a floor stocks tax in an amount determined by the Secretary to equal the reduction in ethanol fuel subsidies described in subsection (a) beginning on such date.

(2) LIABILITY FOR TAX AND METHOD OF PAYMENT.—

(A) LIABILITY FOR TAX.—A person holding ethanol fuel on any tax increase date to which the tax imposed by paragraph (1) applies shall be liable for such tax.

(B) METHOD OF PAYMENT.—The tax imposed by paragraph (1) shall be paid in such manner as the Secretary shall prescribe.

(C) TIME FOR PAYMENT.—The tax imposed by paragraph (1) shall be paid on or before the date which is 6 months after such tax increase date.

(3) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

(A) TAX INCREASE DATE.—The term “tax increase date” means any January 1 on which begins a reduction in ethanol fuel subsidies described in subsection (a).

(B) HELD BY A PERSON.—Ethanol fuel shall be considered as ‘held by a person’ if title thereto has passed to such person (whether or not delivery to the person has been made).

(C) SECRETARY.—The term “Secretary” means the Secretary of the Treasury or the Secretary’s delegate.

(4) EXCEPTION FOR EXEMPT USES.—The tax imposed by paragraph (1) shall not apply to ethanol fuel held by any person exclusively for any use to the extent a credit or refund of the tax imposed by section 4041, 4081, or 4091 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is allowable for such use.

(5) EXCEPTION FOR FUEL HELD IN VEHICLE TANK.—No tax shall be imposed by paragraph (1) on ethanol fuel held in the tank of a motor vehicle or motorboat.

(6) EXCEPTION FOR CERTAIN AMOUNTS OF FUEL.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—No tax shall be imposed by paragraph (1) on ethanol fuel held on any tax increase date by any person if the aggregate amount of ethanol fuel held by such person on such date does not exceed 2,000 gallons. The preceding sentence shall apply only if such person submits to the Secretary (at the time and in the manner required by the Secretary) such information as the Secretary shall require for purposes of this paragraph.

(B) EXEMPT FUEL.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), there shall not be taken into account fuel held by any person which is exempt from the tax imposed by paragraph (1) by reason of paragraph (4) or (5).

(C) CONTROLLED GROUPS.—For purposes of this paragraph—

(i) CORPORATIONS.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—All persons treated as a controlled group of corporations shall be treated as 1 person.

(II) CONTROLLED GROUP OF CORPORATIONS.—The term “controlled group of corporations” has the meaning given to such term by subsection (a) of section 1563 of such Code; except that for such purposes the phrase “more than 50 percent” shall be substituted for the phrase “at least 80 percent” each place it appears in such subsection.

(ii) NONINCORPORATED PERSONS UNDER COMMON CONTROL.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, principles similar to the principles of clause (i) shall apply to a group of persons under common control where 1 or more of such persons is not a corporation.

(7) OTHER LAWS APPLICABLE.—All provisions of law, including penalties, applicable with respect to the taxes imposed by section 4081 of such Code shall, insofar as applicable and not inconsistent with the provisions of this subsection, apply with respect to the floor stock taxes imposed by paragraph (1) to the same extent as if such taxes were imposed by such section 4081.

NOTICES OF HEARINGS/MEETINGS

PERMANENT SUBCOMMITTEE ON INVESTIGATIONS

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I would like to announce for the information of the Senate and the public that the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Committee on Governmental Affairs will hold 2 days of hearings on the subcommittee's 10-month investigation into gasoline prices entitled "Gas Prices: How Are They Really Set?"

In the spring and early summer of 2001, most parts of the country experienced a dramatic increase in the price of gasoline. Numerous consumer groups expressed concern over price gouging. The oil companies responded that there were problems with supply. This series of hearings by the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations will explore how gasoline prices are set and why they have become so volatile.

The hearing will take place on Tuesday, April 30, and Thursday, May 2, 2002, at 9:30 a.m., each day, in room 342 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building. For further information, please contact Elise Bean of the subcommittee staff at 224-9505.

(2) by striking "or both,".

EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICER MEDAL OF VALOR

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 347, H. Con. Res. 243.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 243) expressing the sense of the Congress that the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor should be presented to the public safety officers who have perished and select other public safety officers who deserve special recognition for outstanding valor above and beyond the call of duty in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks in the United States on September 11, 2001.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, today in the Senate Judiciary Committee we passed en bloc by unanimous consent three Sense of Congress resolutions introduced by Representative JOE CROWLEY, Senator TOM HARKIN, and Senator TED STEVENS, respectively, to honor the police officers, firefighters and emergency personnel who responded to the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001. I am pleased that the full Senate is now taking up these resolutions for final passage.

I thank Senator SCHUMER, and, in particular, the Fraternal Order of Police and its president, Steve Young, for their leadership and strong support for honoring the fallen September 11 first responders.

There were so many examples of bravery and courage on September 11 and there is no doubt that the extraordinary heroism of our police officers, firefighters and emergency personnel should be recognized.

Last year, I was proud to work with Senator STEVENS, Senator HATCH and other members of the committee to enact legislation, which I cosponsored, to authorize the President to award and present the Medal of Valor to public safety officers, upon the selection and recommendation of the Medal of Valor Review Board, for extraordinary valor above and beyond the call of duty.

Well before the terrorist attacks, Congress and the President decided that the award would have the most meaning if firefighters and police and other public safety officers themselves—the peers of those who will be honored—made the selections of candidates.

All 11 members of the Medal of Valor Review Board have now been appointed and the Board met for the first time last month. I have full faith that the Medal of Valor Review Board members will work quickly to award the Medal of Valor to their fellow public safety officers involved in the September 11 terrorist attacks. As chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, I certainly support awarding the Public Safety Medal of Valor to the fallen heroes of September 11.

Since my time as a Chittenden County States' Attorney in Vermont, I have taken a keen interest in law enforcement in my home State and around the country. Vermont has the reputation of being one of the safest states in which to live, work and visit, and rightly so. In no small part, this is due to the hard work of those who have sworn to serve and protect us. We should do all we can to support and protect them and all public safety officers nationwide.

I am proud of my legislative record in support of the public safety officers in Vermont and the Nation. For example, Senator CAMPBELL and I authored the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Acts of 1998 and 2000 to create and then expand the $25 million Department of Justice program to provide grants to law enforcement officers to buy bulletproof vests. This grant program has funded almost 1,000 lifesaving vests for Vermont officers and more than 300,000 vests for officers across the country.

Specifically in response to the terrorists attacks of September 11, I negotiated a retroactive $100,000 increase in the total benefit under the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Program as part of the USA PATRIOT Act. Congress needed to act immediately to provide much-needed relief for the families of the brave men and women of law enforcement who sacrificed their own lives for their fellow Americans. Although an increase in the PSOB benefits can never be a substitute for the loss of a loved one, it was the right thing to do for the families of our fallen heroes. In addition, I helped draft legislation to create the September 11 Victims Compensation Fund to provide fair and quick compensation to terrorist victims and their families.

I look forward to continuing to work in a bipartisan manner with my Senate colleagues on legislation to support our Nation's public safety officers who put their lives at risk every day to protect us.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the concurrent resolution and the preamble be agreed to, en bloc; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; and that any statements relating to the concurrent resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 243) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICER MEDAL OF VALOR

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 349, S. Con. Res. 75.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 75) to express the sense of the Congress that the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor should be presented to public safety officers killed or seriously injured as a result of the terrorist attacks perpetrated against the United States on September 11, 2001, and to those who participated in the search, rescue, and recovery efforts in the aftermath of those attacks.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the concurrent resolution and the preamble be agreed to, en bloc; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; and that any statements relating to the concurrent resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 75) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The concurrent resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. CON. RES. 75

Whereas on September 11, 2001, terrorists hijacked and destroyed 4 civilian aircraft, crashing 2 of them into the towers of the World Trade Center in New York City, a third into the Pentagon, and a fourth in rural southwest Pennsylvania;

Whereas thousands of innocent Americans and many foreign nationals were killed and injured as a result of the surprise terrorist attacks, including the passengers and crews of the 4 aircraft, workers in the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, firefighters, law enforcement officers, emergency assistance personnel, and bystanders;

Whereas hundreds of public safety officers were killed and injured as a result of the terrorist attacks, many of whom would perish when the twin towers of the World Trade Center collapsed upon them after they rushed to the aid of innocent civilians who were imperiled when the terrorists first launched their attacks;

Whereas thousands more public safety officers continued to risk their own lives and long-term health in sifting through the aftermath and rubble of the terrorist attacks to rescue those who may have survived and to recover the dead;

Whereas the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor Act of 2001 (Public Law 107-12, 115 Stat. 20) authorizes the President to award and present in the name of Congress, a Medal of Valor to public safety officers for extraordinary valor above and beyond the call of duty;

Whereas the Attorney General of the United States has discretion to increase the number of recipients of the Medal of Valor under that Act beyond that recommended by the Medal of Valor Review Board in extraordinary cases in any given year;

Whereas the terrorist attacks against the United States on September 11, 2001 and their aftermath constitute the single most deadly assault on our American homeland in our Nation's history; and

Whereas those public safety officers who perished and were injured, and all those who participated in the efforts to rescue whomever may have survived the terrorist attacks and recover those whose lives were taken so suddenly and violently are the first casualties and veterans of America's new war against terrorism, which was unanimously authorized by the Authorization for Use of Military Force (Senate Joint Resolution 23, enacted September 14, 2001): Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the President should award and present in the name of Congress a Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor to every public safety officer who was killed or seriously injured as a result of the terrorist attacks perpetrated against the United States on September 11, 2001, and to deserving public safety officer who participated in the search, rescue, and recovery efforts in the aftermath of those attacks; and

(2) such assistance and compensation as may be needed should be provided to the public safety officers who were injured or whose health was otherwise adversely affected as a result of their participation in the search, rescue, and recovery efforts undertaken in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001.

EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE PUBLIC SAFETY OFFICER MEDAL OF VALOR

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 348, S. Con. Res. 66.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 66) to express the sense of the Congress that the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor should be awarded to public safety officers killed in the line of duty in the aftermath of the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the concurrent resolution and preamble be agreed to, en bloc; that the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; and that any statements relating to the concurrent resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 66) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The concurrent resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. CON. RES. 66

Whereas the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor Act of 2001 (Public Law 107-12, 115 Stat. 20)—

(A) allows the President to award, and present in the name of Congress, a Medal of Valor to a public safety officer cited by the Attorney General of the United States, upon the recommendation of the Medal of Valor Review Board, for extraordinary valor above and beyond the call of duty; and

(B) provides that the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor shall be the highest national award for valor by a public safety officer;

Whereas on September 11, 2001, terrorists hijacked and destroyed 4 civilian aircraft, crashing 2 of the planes into the towers of the World Trade Center in New York City, and a third into the Pentagon in suburban Washington, DC;

Whereas thousands of innocent Americans were killed or injured as a result of these attacks, including rescue workers, police officers, and firefighters at the World Trade Center and at the Pentagon;

Whereas these attacks destroyed both towers of the World Trade Center, as well as adjacent buildings, and seriously damaged the Pentagon;

Whereas police officers, firefighters, public safety officers, and medical response crews were thrown into extraordinarily dangerous situations, responding to these horrendous events and acting heroically, without concern for their own safety, trying to help and to save as many of the lives of others as possible in the impact zones, in spite of the clear danger to their own lives; and

Whereas these attacks were by far the deadliest terrorist attacks ever launched against the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of Congress that—

(1) because of the tragic events of September 11, 2001, the limit on the number of Public Safety Officer Medals of Valor should be waived, and a medal should be awarded under the Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor Act of 2001 to any public safety officer, as defined in that Act, who was killed in the line of duty; and

(2) the Medal of Valor Review Board should give strong consideration to the acts of bravery by other public safety officers in responding to these events.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, APRIL 22, 2002

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until the hour of 1 p.m. on Monday, April 22; that immediately following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and there be a period for morning business until 2 p.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the time equally divided between the two leaders or their designees; that at 2 p.m., the Senate resume consideration of the energy reform bill; that Senators have until 1:30 p.m. on Monday to file first-degree amendments to the energy reform bill, and that the live quorum under rule XXII be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. REID. Madam President, the Senate will vote on cloture on the Daschle-Bingaman substitute amendment to the energy reform bill on Tuesday. The Senate will not be in session tomorrow and there will be no rollcall votes on Monday.

Madam President, I congratulate the Senate in its entirety for the work we did this week. We accomplished a great deal, even though our time was compressed and the days were very long.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 1 P.M.
MONDAY, APRIL 22, 2002

Mr. REID. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 8:40 p.m., adjourned until Monday, April 22, 2002, at 1 p.m.

CONFIRMATION

Executive nomination confirmed by the Senate April 18, 2002:

THE JUDICIARY

LEGROME D. DAVIS, OF PENNSYLVANIA, TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

IN MEMORY OF DR. SHERMAN SPARKS

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in honor of the beloved community member Dr. Sherman Sparks, of Rockwall, Texas. Dr. Sparks was a tireless country doctor who devoted his life to his friends and neighbors. He had served his community from the 1940's until his retirement in 1996. He died at the age of 92.

Sherman was a bedrock of the Rockwall community as it grew from its rural roots into a suburban city. His devotion to the community was constant, though. It was said that he did not have patients, but he had friends. During his medical practice he delivered over 3,000 babies.

He was very generous with those who needed him, but could not afford a doctor. He founded the Rockwall High School chemistry program and volunteered as doctor for the High School's athletic teams for over 30 years. Sherman also donated his services as jail doctor for the Rockwall Detention Center between 1945 and 1975. Dr. Sparks made house calls up until the day he retired—often traveling to homes that could only be reached by tractors.

Outside of his medical services, Sherman was also instrumental in the community's politics. He founded the Rockwall County Republican Party and even traveled to Washington to testify before Congress on behalf of his patients about Social Security. In the mid-1950's Sherman was instrumental in starting the Rockwall Municipal Airport, much of which they built with their own hands. He was an avid pilot.

Mr. Speaker, Dr. Sherman Sparks was one of those rare community leaders who gave his entire life to shaping the community. The impact he made is incalculable. He will be remembered as a selfless giver and great family man, a father to four sons, Dr. Randy P. Sparks, Dr. Bob Sparks, David P. Sparks and James Sparks; with 14 grandchildren and numerous great-grandchildren. We will remember with sadness the passing of this kind and caring man who gave everything to his family and community—Dr. Sherman Sparks.

HONORING NANCY RICHARDSON

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Nancy Richardson for receiving the Excellence in Public Service Award sponsored by the Business Council. Ms. Richardson will be recognized at a luncheon sponsored by the Kenneth L. Maddy Institute, The Fresno Bee, and the Business Council.

Nancy has been active within the community for years. Her interest in the juvenile system was sparked when she learned that judges from Valley counties were sentencing children to years in the California Youth Authority at a rate that exceeded the state average. This realization led Ms. Richardson on an expedition to uncover and expose the truth. She gathered information and published 1,000 copies of her findings to let people know what was occurring. After this amazing contribution to the juvenile justice system, Nancy went on to volunteer her services to more places which benefited from her initiative. She was elected to the Fresno Unified School District's Board of Trustees, served as coordinator of the Inter-agency Council, and now works on the Foster Care Oversight Committee.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Nancy Richardson for receiving the Excellence in Public Service Award. I invite my colleagues to join me in thanking Ms. Richardson for her tremendous contributions to the community, and in wishing her many years of continued success.

HONORING MS. MAIOLA COLEMAN
AS AN AGENT OF CHANGE IN TUCSON'S AND PIMA COUNTY'S
AFRICAN AMERICAN COMMUNITY.

HON. ED PASTOR

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. PASTOR. Mister Speaker, I rise today to mark the celebration of Maiola Coleman's life by her family, friends and her community on April 19, 2002, at Grace Temple in Tucson, Arizona. They have gathered to honor Maiola's 50 years as an agent of change in Tucson's and Pima County's African American Community with choirs, commemorative awards, and remembrances by those who have been touched by her generous spirit. The community members have chosen this public acclamation to acknowledge Maiola's many achievements on their behalf.

Maiola Coleman is and has been a passionate and committed advocate of civil rights all of her life. Her mother, Tommie Thomas, was her mentor, teacher, and role model for community, grass roots activism on behalf of equal rights and equal opportunities. Maiola learned her lessons well and has honored her mother's teachings by living them and passing them on.

Her childhood experiences helped focus her energies in working with youth and young adults, especially minority youth. Her work as a job developer, trainer, and employment counselor has enabled thousands of minority youth to pursue their dreams of upward mobility through education and good entry level jobs. She has created model programs with the Tucson Urban League and with the University of Arizona that have served as national models for successful minority educational retention programs and community collaborations for at-risk youth.

In addition to her work with youth, Maiola is the "go-to" person for solutions to problems in the African American community. Maiola works diligently with elected officials, agency directors, private employers, community leaders, and the clergy to bring resources from every sector to bear on finding solutions to problems, whether the problem affects one person or the whole community. Maiola is able to engage multiple resources because she is a "bridge builder" who is constantly linking people and organizations to maximize their effectiveness. She has a wide range of personal contacts and friends who respect her work "from the heart" and who trust her community spirit to work for the greatest good for all. Her latest collaboration has been the Desert Waste Not Warehouse which is recycling computers into the households of the minority and low-income neighborhoods of Tucson and Pima County. This program is making a tremendous difference locally in the "digital divide". It, too, may serve as a national model.

I applaud Maiola Coleman for all she has done for our community in Arizona District 2 to make civil rights a reality and to improve the living conditions of those in need. She has been given many awards and certificates of achievement. They are well deserved. We are proud of her spirit and her service. I thank Maiola for all that she has done to make our country better and stronger. I also thank her 3 children, Marcus, Stellvonne, Kimiro, and her 2 grandchildren, Kivone and Enai for encouraging and sustaining her as she shares her great gifts with the rest of us. Finally, I thank Maiola for being my friend and for sharing with me the vision of a just world.

IN MEMORY OF BOB DE LORENZI

HON. TOM DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of a friend of Northern Virginia who passed away this week, Mr. Bob de Lorenzi.

Mr. de Lorenzi was a pillar of the Northern Virginia community. As President and Chief Executive Officer of the Patriot Computer Group, Inc. and its subsidiary PatriotNet, Inc., Mr. de Lorenzi was widely admired as a businessman, receiving the 2001 Businessman of the Year Award from the Chamber of Commerce. But even more importantly, he was admired for his love and devotion to his Northern Virginia community.

Mr. de Lorenzi served as Vice Chairman of Technology, and Chief Information Officer, for the Central Fairfax Chamber of Commerce. This is the first instance in the nation that a Chamber of Commerce appointed a Board-level CIO. He was chairman of the Central Fairfax Chamber of Commerce's Technology Committee since its inception in 1995, organizing the Chamber's Technology Day event geared toward improving understanding and efficiency in the technology arena.

Utilizing his professional expertise to benefit his community, Mr. de Lorenzi served on the Fairfax City/George Mason University Technology Committee and its Business/Training and Schools subcommittees, as well as the Fairfax County Information Technology Policy Advisory Committee. His volunteer efforts were recognized when the Central Fairfax Chamber of Commerce honored him with its 1998 Volunteer of the Year award. Last night, April 17, 2002, Bobbie Kilbert, President of the Northern Virginia Technology Council, offered a moving tribute to Mr. de Lorenzi recognizing his many contributions to Northern Virginia's high-tech community and indeed the community at large.

In October 2000, Mr. de Lorenzi again set out to make the Washington metropolitan area, and the nation, a better place by serving as chairman of the first annual Washington Conference on Telework/Telework America TM Day. This conference focused on the development and promotion of telework in the Washington metropolitan area, attempting to provide a solution to many of the difficult issues facing this region, including traffic congestion, work-life balance, recruitment and retention, and air quality—all at an affordable cost. The conference's attendees included elected and appointed representatives of Federal and local governments and managers from both private and public sectors of the entire Washington metropolitan area.

The nation's trust and admiration was revealed as Mr. de Lorenzi was presented by our President, George W. Bush, with the opportunity to serve as the Chief Technology Consultant to the Bush-Cheney Presidential Transition Team. The President discovered what Northern Virginians have long known: Bob was a man you wanted on your side.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I express my sincere condolences to the family and friends of Mr. Bob de Lorenzi, and as a representative of the residents of the 11th District of Virginia, I know he will be missed. I call upon all of my colleagues to join me in honoring the memory of Mr. Bob de Lorenzi.

TRIBUTE TO MERRILL CONNALLY

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in tribute of a great Texan, a great American and a dear friend and colleague—the late Judge Merrill Lee Connally of Floresville, Texas—who passed away at the age of 80 on September 4, 2001. Over the course of his life he had been a rancher, an oilman, a radio station operator, a judge, and a soldier who served his country with distinction in the South Pacific during World War II.

Merrill grew up on his family's ranch west of Floresville where he was born as the sixth child of John Bowden Connally Sr. and Lela

Wright Connally on April 9, 1921. After attending Floresville High School, he went on to Texas A&M University in 1941 as a member of the Corps of Cadets. In January 1942, shortly after entering college, he left to enlist in the United States Marine Corps where he rose to the rank of Captain serving in the South Pacific. During the fight for Bougainville, Merrill earned two Purple Hearts.

Merrill served until 1945, after which he returned to Floresville to help manage the Connally family ranch. He continued with the ranch the rest of his life, but he had other ventures, as well. Along with 10 other fellow veterans, Mr. Connally organized and operated radio station KVET in Austin, Texas. In addition to the radio station, he had other business venture including Connally Agricultural Services, Connally Fuels, and Connally Minerals. He was also a 20 year board member of the Republic Bank of Austin.

Like all of the Connally family, Merrill served his country well by staying active in local, state and national politics. From 1847–1950, he was Wilson County Commissioner—he held the position again from 1955–1959. In both 1956 and 1960 Merrill served as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention. He also helped his brother run for governor, serving as his campaign coordinator in both 1962 and 1964.

Merrill served on the Floresville chamber of Commerce, Wilson County Farm Bureau, Floresville Lions Club, South Texas County Judges' Association, Southwest Cattle Raisers' Association, and American Quarter Horse Association, and was a past president of the Floresville Peanut Festival Association. In addition, he served for many years on the board of directors of the Wilson Memorial Hospital, a hospital that he had played an instrumental part in founding.

Later in life, Mr. Connally began a hobby acting. He played the role of Davy Crockett in "Alamo—The Price of Freedom" and also made appearances in Steven Spielberg's "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and "Sugarcorn Express."

Most importantly, though, Merrill will be remembered a true American hero and devoted family man. Just this year he celebrated his 50th wedding anniversary with his loving wife Mary Catherine Howard. He was father to two and a grandfather to four.

He will be remembered by his family, friends and former colleague as a true Texas who served his state and country well. He will be remembered for his mild-mannered ways and devotion to the people of Texas. He leaves a legacy of service kindness. Mr. Speaker, it is with great admiration that I recognize the life of a great Texan and true American hero—Merrill Lee Connally.

HONORING VITO CHIESA

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Vito Chiesa on the occasion of the completion of his term as president of the Stanislaus County Farm Bureau. Mr. Chiesa has served as president for the past two years, from April 2000 to 2002, and served as a board member representing the Eastside Region for two years prior to his presidency.

Vito is a peach, almond, and walnut farmer who was born and raised in Stanislaus County and has farmed all his life. He is currently the manager of Chiesa Ranch and previously owned Agriculture Land Management Co., Vito Chiesa Farms. Mr. Chiesa opens his farm to visitors to help them better understand the farming industry.

In 1999, Vito received the Outstanding Young Farmer Achievement Award. The Stanislaus County Farm Bureau has also honored him with the Outstanding Achievement Award. Mr. Chiesa has been an outstanding county farm bureau president and has demonstrated his leadership abilities during negotiations involving sensitive issues affecting the farming community. He has exhibited an impressive ability to bring diverse interests and opinions together to work toward a common goal.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Vito Chiesa at the end of his term as Stanislaus County Farm Bureau President. I invite my colleagues to join me in thanking Mr. Chiesa for his contributions to the agriculture and the community and in wishing him many more years of continued success.

HONORING THE NATIONAL LAW CENTER FOR INTER-AMERICAN FREE TRADE IN TUCSON, ARIZONA

HON. ED PASTOR

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2001

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to pay tribute to an organization that recently marked its 10th anniversary of working to reduce the legal barriers to trade among nations in our hemisphere. The organization I proudly speak of is the National Law Center for Inter-American Free Trade, located in Tucson, Arizona.

The organization was created by Dr. Boris Kozolchik, a law professor at the University of Arizona and expert on free trade on April 1, 1992. Its purpose was to address and resolve the practical and legal obstacles that NAFTA would bring, as well as to develop the legal infrastructure necessary to facilitate the movement of goods, services and investment capital in the Western Hemisphere.

The Center works closely with the James E. Rogers College of Law at the University of Arizona as an educational and research institution in such areas as banking, commercial credit, customs, electronic commerce, environment, intellectual property, labor and transportation.

Free trade leads to economic well-being, enhances political stability, and promotes public accountability and the rule of law among the nations in our hemisphere, making the National Law Center for Inter-American Free Trade an important organization to our state and country. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring this outstanding institution.

HONORING MR. KIRK LOGGINS OF NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE ON THE OCCASION OF HIS RETIREMENT FROM THE TENNESSEAN

HON. BOB CLEMENT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. CLEMENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Mr. Kirk Loggins of Nashville, Tennessee on the occasion of his retirement from the Tennessean newspaper where he covered government, politics, and the court system for nearly thirty years.

Kirk Loggins was born in Jackson Clinic in Dickson, Tennessee on October 20, 1946. A native of Middle Tennessee, he grew up on a farm near Charlotte, Tennessee, where his family had lived since the 1830s. Growing up, he regularly worked on the farm, milking cows, helping with the tobacco crop, while longing to experience city life.

An early achiever, he graduated valedictorian of Charlotte High School in 1964, where he also served as editor of the school newspaper. His early involvement in journalism helped land him a summer job at the Dickson County Herald newspaper prior to entering Vanderbilt University in the fall of 1964. Loggins attended Vanderbilt as a Rockefeller Foundation Scholar and spent the summer of 1966 working in Washington, D.C., as an intern at the U.S. Office of Education.

Graduating from Vanderbilt in June 1968 with a major in English and a minor in History, he went to work just three days later as associate editor of the Dickson County Herald. In fact, his first day on the job was the morning after Robert Kennedy was assassinated in Los Angeles. During his four years at the Dickson County weekly paper, he earned the Tennessee Press Association's Most Improved Award two consecutive years.

His experience led to a position at the Tennessean, where he was originally assigned to the state desk for the first three years at the paper. From 1975–1976 he served as the Washington correspondent, but returned to cover the local court system in December 1976. He has covered the courts continuously since that time, with the exception of a year-long break to investigate the Ku Klux Klan in 1979–1980, and for a National Endowment for the Humanities fellowship at the University of Michigan in 1982–1983.

Loggins has covered literally hundreds of criminal trials, including 15 death penalty cases, and witnessed Tennessee's first execution of a prisoner in 40 years, in April 2000. Beloved by his colleagues and his rivals alike, he has been honored for his work by the Nashville Bar Association and the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

On a personal note, I will always appreciate the professionalism he exhibited in his reporting of the death and trial of my former Chief of Staff, Alex Haught, who was killed by a drunk driver in Nashville three years ago. Loggins is an outstanding journalist who serves the profession nobly and accurately. His work will be missed by thousands of readers and we wish him the very best in his retirement and all of his future endeavors.

A TRIBUTE TO BYRON R. WHITE

HON. DIANA DeGETTE

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. DeGETTE. Mr. Speaker, it is with profound sadness that I rise today to recognize the life and contributions of Byron "Whizzer" White, one of Colorado's most renowned and admirable native sons. Retired Supreme Court Justice White died on Monday, April 15, at the age of 84, of complications with pneumonia. We have not only lost this honorable and esteemed man, we have also lost the last living former Supreme Court Justice. I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to his dedication to our country and his remarkable achievements before this body of Congress and this nation.

White was born in Fort Collins, Colorado in 1917, raised in the nearby town of Wellington. White excelled at every aspiration and accomplished everything he attempted. Valedictorian of his high school and University of Colorado class, White continued to become a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford university. He completed his legal studies at Yale Law School after serving our country in World War II. "Whizzer" White was also a legendary All-America football player at University of Colorado and played for the NFL with the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Detroit Lions.

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy appointed White to the Supreme Court of the United States. The new justice joined the Court just as it neared the height of its liberal and activist period. White quickly evolved into a conservative jurist with a strong independent streak, dissenting from many of the court's liberal rulings of the 1960's. Yet he was a strong proponent of civil rights for racial minorities. In 1961, White served to protect the "Freedom Riders", the young civil-rights activists trying to integrate the interstate bus system over the objection of Alabama's all-white power structure. White served a remarkable 31 years on the Supreme Court as a loyal and devoted Democrat before retiring in 1993.

Mr. Speaker, Byron R. White was a distinguished jurist who served his country with the utmost honor and dedication. The "Whizzer" remains a celebrated figure and a Colorado native son we are very proud to claim as one of our own. His exceptional brains, athleticism, and esteemed character and devotion to justice will continue to live on through the lives of those he has touched. I would like to extend my deepest sympathies to White's family and friends during this difficult time of remembrance and bereavement.

BEGINNING A SERIES OF ENERGY REMARKS, CALLS FOR USE OF ALL ENERGY SOURCES

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to begin a series of remarks on energy. Once again, the uncertainties in the Middle East have caused prices in oil markets to rise, and from what we read in the news, the current uncertainty is unfortunately likely to last for quite some time.

My goal with this series is simple: to impress upon my colleagues the need to develop a national energy policy. And that policy should include all of our resources—fossil fuels, nuclear, renewables and, yes, conservation. We need them all.

In this country we are blessed with an abundance of energy choices. We have abundant coal resources—in fact some of the largest in the world. We have tremendous potential for the development of solar and wind resources. And even though for many years we have produced huge volumes of crude oil and natural gas—even supplied some of the world with it at times—we still have significant oil and gas resources in the ground.

Much of the rest of the world is envious of our energy resources and the choices we have. In the coming days and weeks, I will address some of those options and what we can do to bring those options into reality.

CONGRATULATING JUAN ARAMBULA

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Fresno County Supervisor Juan Arambula for receiving the 2002 Rose Ann Vuich Ethical Leadership Award. He was recognized April 17, 2002, at a luncheon reception.

Mr. Arambula has been dedicated to community service in Fresno for over ten years; he was first elected to public office in 1990. Juan is a former president of Fresno Unified School District's board of trustees, and has also served on the California School Boards Association's board of directors. This is Juan's second term on the Fresno County Board of Supervisors; he was first elected in 1997. Mr. Arambula has earned the respect of his colleagues through his many endeavors and is very deserving of this prestigious award.

The Rose Ann Vuich Award is sponsored by the Fresno Business Council, the Fresno Bee, and the Kenneth L. Maddy Institute of Public Affairs. The award honors former State Senator Vuich, who consistently maintained high ethical standards and earned bipartisan respect throughout her career in the State legislature. The award aims to recognize elected leaders who symbolize integrity, strength of character, and exemplary ethical behavior.

HONORING BOB BYNUM FOR 28 YEARS OF SERVICE

HON. TOM DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor a friend of Northern Virginia, Mr. Bob Bynum, who is being recognized for his 28 years of volunteer service to the Mason District Little League at the League's Opening Day Ceremony on April 20, 2002 in Fairfax, Virginia.

Mr. Bynum has dedicated himself to making our community a better place. Beginning in the late 50s when he played baseball for the Bailey's Crossroads Little League, Mr. Bynum has devoted years to making Little League a strong, positive institution for the children of Northern Virginia.

In the late 70s, Mr. Bynum coached his first baseball team for children between the ages of 10 and 12, and has continued this service for 28 years, coaching hundreds of children in the Mason District Little League. While off the field, Mr. Bynum ran three golf tournaments to raise needed funds to build batting cages that can be seen on the Parklawn Park fields on Lincoln Road, as well as to purchase a lighted scoreboard dedicated at last year's Opening Day Ceremonies on the fields of Mason District Park.

In addition to his years of coaching, Mr. Bynum has served as President of the Mason District Little League, as well as several other Board positions. Despite having no children of his own, Mr. Bynum did all of this as a result of his passion for baseball, the children, and the Little League institution.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I wish the very best to Mr. Bob Bynum as he is recognized for his years of service to the Mason District Little League. He certainly has earned his recognition, and I call upon all of my colleagues to join me in applauding this remarkable service to our community and our children.

A TRIBUTE TO SCOTT K. NIELSON
ON HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

HON. BOB CLEMENT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. CLEMENT. Mr. Speaker, Scott K. Nielson was born on April 3, 1922, in Huntington, Utah. His father was Gerald W. Nielson and his mother was Lone Wakefield Nielson. Scott had three brothers, Kirk Nielson, Dick Nielson and Tom Nielson, and one sister, Jean Nielson Adamson. He married Lila H. Wilson on April 10, 1943. Scott and Lila have three sons, Scott, Jr., Mark, and Gaylan, and one daughter, Wendy Nielson. They have 12 grand and 10 great grand children.

Scott is an outstanding father, grandfather, and great grandfather. His children and their children love and respect him. He is a loving and caring father, and a wonderful role model. Because of his love and support, all of his children attended college. The three sons have graduate degrees, and are successful and productive members of the community. His daughter Wendy has a flourishing career as a systems administrator for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Scott is a veteran of World War II having served in the U.S. Army in the Pacific Theater. His unit fought in the Philippines, Guadalcanal and Luzon.

Following World War II, Scott worked as a coal miner and construction contractor. Scott, along with his father and brothers built many of the roads in Emery County, Utah and the Millers Flat Dam, a storage facility located in Huntington Canyon, Utah. During the 1950s, the Nielson men turned to mining uranium in both Utah and Colorado. In 1961, Scott moved his family to Salt Lake City, Utah. He and his brother Kirk Nielson were service station dealers for several years. Scott and Kirk continued to work together, first in the service station and then in the remodeling business until retirement. Scott is a talented mechanic and carpenter and has continued to work part time doing home modeling up to the present time. A man who can do anything around the house, Scott is an excellent electrician, plumber, and finish carpenter who has a reputation for the quality of his workmanship—Scott is never satisfied with anything less than perfection.

Scott is an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and is currently a member of the High Priest Quorum. Church activity is a very important part of Scott's life and he and Lila, his wife of fifty-nine years, are currently serving a mission for their church in Salt Lake City.

Scott Nielson has lived a long and productive life. He is an outstanding father and role model. He will continue to be an important member of the community for many years to come. I look forward to honoring him again on his 90th and 100th Birthdays! Happy 80th Birthday Scott!

HONORING THE PIPEFITTERS
LOCAL #208 ON THE OCCASION OF THEIR CENTENNIAL ANNIVERSARY

HON. DIANA DeGETTE

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. DeGETTE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor Local #208 of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipe Fitting Industry, located in Denver, Colorado. From their formation on April 26, 1902, Local #208 has a history full of challenge, perseverance, loyalty, and ingenuity.

Before the creation of Local #208, conditions for pipefitters based in Denver were generally poor. Employment was not steady and jobs were scattered across the nation, forcing pipefitters to constantly move. However, with the increase in indoor plumbing and construction, pipefitters soon found employment in hospitals, schools, and water systems, among others.

As the number of jobs grew, so did the need for a union to protect the interests of the workers in the pipefitting industry. The national union was founded on October 7, 1889 and two of the first elected officers were from Denver.

On April 26, 2002, the Pipefitters Local #208 will have existed for 100 years. This is truly an achievement. From their beginnings in 1902, the Local has contributed to the welfare of their members, as well as the pipefitting industry. The loyalty of Local #208 to its members was demonstrated numerous times when it came to the aid of financially distressed pipefitters in Denver and across Colorado. In fact, the Local provided interest free loans to its members who were experiencing difficult times.

Local #208 also gave back to Denver and its budding pipefitters. Local #208 coordinated with other locals in the region to advocate for stronger worker protections, improvements in health and safety, and contract agreements. Additionally, the Local created a Joint Apprenticeship Committee that provides training and accreditation of new pipefitters.

In the last 25 years, Local #208 has successfully fought for better wages and working conditions of its membership and has helped to make Denver the great city it is today. Members of Local #208 have contributed to the construction of such Denver institutions as the home of the Denver Broncos, the Denver Public Library, the Denver International Airport, and the home of the Colorado Rockies.

Over 100 years, Local #208 has thrived through perseverance, loyalty, and creativity. These are the characteristics that will allow Local #208 to last for another 100 years. I am proud to congratulate Local #208 on their first 100 years and wish them all the best in the future.

IN MEMORY OF HERMAN A. ENGEL

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to honor the memory of Herman Engel of Tyler, TX, who recently passed at the age of 85. He was a war hero, pioneering oil man, and beloved community activist and father.

Herman first started in the oil industry working for Shell Oil in Houston, where he was born. After graduating from LSU with a degree in Petroleum Engineering he spent time in East Texas, Houston, and Oklahoma working for various oil companies. He moved to East Texas permanently in 1976 to run the East Texas Salt Water Disposal Company and remained active with the company even after his retirement in 1989. Prior to 1976 he had been vice president of APCO Oil Corporation and of Union Texas Petroleum, both of which were in Tulsa, OK.

As a professional he was recognized as a leader. In 1983 he was selected as a "Pioneer Engineer" by the Petroleum Landmen, Petroleum Geologists and Petroleum Engineers of East Texas. He was an Honorary Life Member of the Independent Petroleum Association of America and was a Distinguished Member of the Petroleum Engineers. He also served as vice president and director of both the Society of Petroleum Engineers and the American Institute of Mining.

Before he began his professional career, Herman served his country in the Second World War. This true American hero was an officer in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and spent 1½ years in Alaska in addition to his 2½ in the South Pacific.

While in Tyler he was an integral part of the community and played a major part in helping to make East Texas a better place for everyone. He served as a vice president and director of the Tyler Area Chamber of Commerce. He was a long-time director of East-Texas Lighthouse for the Blind, and was an active supporter of several local organizations and foundations. Among those were Louisiana State University, Tyler Junior College, and the Tyler Independent School District. He was also a devoted trustee of the Watson W. Wise Foundation.

In passing, Mr. Engel leaves behind two daughters Dee Landers and Alice Beam; a sister Elizabeth Engel; and 6 grandchildren. He was a wonderful father, devoted husband, and beloved grandfather. Mr. Speaker, this was one of those men who made a lasting impact in everything that he did. We will remember with great respect everything this kind and caring man did for his community—Mr. Herman A. Engel.

MICHAEL VANG INVESTIGATION

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with a heavy heart to recognize a dark anniversary for one of my constituents. Three years ago, Suzie Vang lost her friend and husband to unknown circumstances in Laos.

On April 19, 1999, Michael Vang and Mr. Houa Ly, a resident of Appleton, WI, both Americans, were traveling along the border between Laos and Thailand. According to eyewitnesses, the U.S. congressional research missions, nongovernmental organizations and other sources both Ly and Vang were seized by Lao Government authorities. Despite the building evidence, the Lao Government continues to deny knowledge of their whereabouts or the role of government security forces in their abduction.

The State Department has been asked repeatedly by Members of Congress to vigorously investigate and resolve this case since it was first reported in early May 1999. It is certainly true that we have received some assistance from them. However, there continues to be a lack of results. This is not surprising considering that the State Department continues to pursue an investigation in cooperation with the regime in Laos—a regime involved with their disappearance. While the State Department continues their slow and seemingly never-ending investigation, the trail grows colder.

We need a renewed effort. We need to initiate a new independent investigation free from coordination with the government of Laos. Three years is long enough. And, as long as this case goes unresolved, I will continue to oppose Normal Trade Relations (NTR) status for Laos.

HONORING THOMAS E. BRUNK UPON HIS RETIREMENT

HON. TOM DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to Mr. Thomas E. Brunk, upon his retirement from the Federal Government after 33 years of distinguished and dedicated service to Northern Virginia, our Nation, and the Department of Defense.

Tom's career truly can be described as an American success story. Tom began his career as a young intern in Oklahoma, somewhat bewildered by the sights and sounds of the bustling air logistics center. Now, more than three decades later, he will end his career as a member of the Senior Executive Service and as the deputy director and the highest-ranking civilian of the Defense Contract Management Agency, a worldwide organization of 12,000 employees responsible for ensuring that the supplies and materials going to our Military Services—our men and women in uniform—are delivered on-time and are of the highest quality. His contribution has been particularly notable over the last nine years as contingency contract management has been needed to support America's military deployments at locations around the world.

Despite his relative youth, Tom quickly demonstrated exceptional managerial skills in support of major aerospace systems, including the B-2 aircraft and the Peacekeeper missile. With great vigilance and a strong sense of duty, he led operations reviews at dozens of major Defense contractors, and after having proved his mettle on the plant floor, steadily advanced to positions of increasing responsibility. In 1990 he accepted an appointment to the Defense Department's principle contract-management organization, the Defense Contract Management Command. In this capacity, Tom has been a stalwart standard bearer in the Department's pursuit of acquisition excellence.

The capstone of Tom's career came in March 2000, when he spearheaded the establishment of the Defense Contract Management Agency, a combat-support organization responsible for the management of 310,000 government contracts cumulatively valued at more than $100 billion. As deputy director since the agency's inception, Mr. Brunk has brought to bear his considerable managerial, technical, and interpersonal skills to ensure America's fighting forces receive the material support they need to protect and defend our nation. He has helped DCMA earn a place of prominence in the Department's technology revolution, as evidenced by his role in the development and deployment of the Standard Procurement System, a Department-wide purchasing and payment system that will replace a jumble outmoded and disparate programs that for years have bedeviled financial management with the Defense community.

Whether it is on the flight line at an air logistics center in Oklahoma City, on the plant floor at a manufacturing plant in St. Louis, or at a negotiations table in the Nation's capital, Tom Brunk served with dignity, commitment, and integrity. On the occasion of his retirement from the Federal Civilian Service, I offer my congratulations and thanks to this long-time resident of Northern Virginia, and wish him and his wife, Sharon, well in their future pursuits.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I wish the very best to Mr. Brunk as he is recognized for his years of service to the Federal Government, the people of Northern Virginia and our nation. He certainly has earned this recognition, and I call upon all of my colleague to join me in applauding this remarkable service.

IN MEMORY OF GALE CINCOTTA

HON. MARCY KAPTUR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, during this reflective season of Ramadan, Passover, and Lent, I have been reflecting on friends whose lives closely paralleled the stories of sacrifice in the Holy Books. It is this reflection that calls to my mind Mrs. Gale Cincotta of Chicago, who passed from this life to the next on August 15, 2001. I am grateful for the opportunity to encapsulate her life's work for the RECORD.

Born of humble origin and reared in Chicago's Austin neighborhood, Gale became a neighborhood activist and then national leader as her personal knowledge of injustice led her on a passionate journey. Her dissatisfaction with her sons' educational opportunities spurred her to address the issue. She became impassioned with the root causes of an inadequate educational system: poverty, lack of decent and affordable housing and the resulting decaying neighborhoods. As her understanding grew about these issues, Gale found her true vocation. Armed initially only with a small but vocal band of neighborhood residents, Gale began a crusade which would eventually lead her to national prominence. She was, the Chicago Tribune noted upon her death, "one of the most effective community activists in the nation." I would add that she had extraordinary vision, a sharp intellect, a love of those without voice or power, and a boundless sense of humor.

Feisty, blustery, and with a keen ability to cajole or badger those with influence and power into doing what needed to be done, Gale earned the respect of all with whom she worked whether or not they agreed with her. Her passion was unmistakable, her commitment unwavering, and her expertise unparalleled. She taught many people, including myself, what being a neighborhood activist is really all about: it is about changing people's lives for the better. It is about helping them gain power to improve the condition of people's lives.

Though responsible for many changes in neighborhood development and revitalization, lending practices and housing concerns across our nation, Gale's greatest public accomplishment was gaining Congressional approval of the Community Reinvestment Act in 1977. Passage of this Act, now a cornerstone of neighborhood financing that has released billions of dollars of private credit to formerly red-lined neighborhoods, was considered by the Chicago Tribune Gale's "single greatest triumph." Ever the champion of marginal neighborhoods, she persuaded not only elected officials but also bankers, insurance companies, landlords, and business leaders that neighborhood investment—while being the right thing to do—could also be profitable. She taught them that the savings of people of ordinary means should not be drained from their neighborhoods, but made available for reinvestment. Her work made the capitalist system work in some of the most neglected corners of our nation. Her tireless and unmatched efforts yielded visible results by turning faded city blocks into flourishing neighborhoods from coast to coast. Gale organized other programs and works, and many awards and accolades were bestowed upon her through the years, but surely none meant as much to her as the lasting legacy of the Community Reinvestment Act and the people and communities it still helps.

Gale Cincotta lives on in the seeds she planted in the hearts of the people she served and the minds of those she battled with and against to make people's lives better. She never yielded. She once said to me that the media had convinced Americans they were all "middle class" and that had bred a dangerous political complacency among the working class of people and the poor, who struggled daily to gain an economic foothold in our country. Their interests will not be served by false images of how hard and political this struggle is really.

The new director of the organization she founded, the National Training and Information Center, recalled that Gale—a mother of six sons and a widow—loved to dance. His message to the people upon taking the reigns as director began with a quote from an old Shaker hymn. The words seem to sum up Gale's legacy quite well: "They buried my body and they thought I'd gone, but I am the dance and I still go on." Surely, she lives among us.

IN MEMORY OF M.L. "MIKE" ANGLIN

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I speak today in memory of M.L. "Mike" Anglin, of Longview, Texas, a beloved member of his community, a veteran and loving father, who passed away at the age of 85.

Mike spent his life serving his country and community. He was the Commander of the American Legion Post #140 for over 30 years. Because of his long service there, he was saluted as the Texas State American Legion veteran of the year on three separate occasions. He was a Lieutenant in World War II but became a General for his veterans back in East Texas. Without his help, VFW posts 4002, 1183, 140 and 131 would not have even existed. He also worked to obtain the Veterans Clinic in Longview. Beyond the American Legion, Mike was active in 4-H, March of Dimes, Boys and Girls State and was one of the original organizers of the East Texas State Fair.

This loving family-man is survived by his wife, Zelma, two daughters, Celia and Cynthia, three sisters and a granddaughter. He not only loved his county but cared for its people. East Texas has lost a unique individual and he will be missed. We will remember with sadness the passing of a true American, a beloved father, and a legend in East Texas who will not easily be forgotten—M.L. "Mike" Anglin.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO ELI MARTINEZ

HON. SCOTT MCINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with a solemn heart and yet great pride that I take this opportunity to pay respect to a United States Marine, Eli Martinez. Eli was killed over a year ago during training exercise at the age of twenty-one. He was a well-respected young man who is dearly missed by the community of Trinidad, Colorado who relied on him for his willingness and desire to help others. His legacy of kindness now has the opportunity to pass on through the efforts of his mother, Marie Martinez. She has recently established a memorial fund to continue Eli's quest to better his surroundings and his community. As she begins this quest, I would like to recognize her son before this body of Congress, and this nation.

According to his mother, Eli's purpose and goal in life was to simply help others in any way possible. At the age of seventeen, he could often be found praying for those in need, those who were sick, and those who were less fortunate. He reached out and touched the lives of people from all walks of life in Trinidad, regardless of age, class, or religion, and was known as a truly kind soul. Eli felt that the ultimate gift to others was to serve them in difficult and trying circumstances. He joined the Marines at the age of eighteen and was well respected amongst his fellow Marines, and officers. Like many members of our armed forces, Eli believed that it is every young person's duty to be willing to pay the ultimate sacrifice for their country. Unfortunately Eli was called upon to pay that price, but his memory lives on. The new Eli Martinez Foundation Fund, created by Marie Martinez, will continue the work that Eli began. Contributions to the fund will go to a variety of causes close to Eli's heart, including the homeless and troubled youths.

Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege to pay tribute to Eli Martinez for his contributions to the Trinidad community and to our nation. His dedication to his community, his fellow man, and to the protection of our freedoms deserves the recognition of this body of Congress, and a grateful nation. Eli is a fine example for young people of this country who strive to better themselves and improve the lives of others. Although Eli has left us, his selfless spirit will live on through the lives of those he touched, and through the efforts of his mother, Marie. Eli, thank you for your service, you will be greatly missed.

ON THE PASSING OF RABBI ISRAEL MILLER

HON. MICHAEL R. McNULTY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Rabbi Israel Miller—a great leader of our Jewish Community and a great American.

Rabbi Miller was a man of vision. As president of the Conference of Jewish Material Claims Against Germany, he combined passion with dignity in his negotiations with foreign governments. He was able to achieve a landmark compensation agreement for the criminal theft that was part of the Nazi barbarity against the Jewish people.

Rabbi Miller played an outstanding role in American Jewish life. He served as chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major Jewish Organizations and was its spokesperson on matter relating to Israel and international affairs in the United States and abroad. He had a special interest in helping the Jews behind the Iron Curtain, as evidenced by his national leadership of the American Jewish Conference on Soviet Jewry.

He left his imprint on virtually every major facet of American Jewish life as the founding president of the American Zionist Federation, founder of the Jewish Community Relations Council of New York, vice president of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee, and president of the Rabbinical Council of America.

Throughout his life, Rabbi Miller sought to build bridges of understanding and respect among people of different religious, racial and ethnic origins. He believed that every human being should be able to live in safety, "and there shall be none to make him afraid."

What a legacy Rabbi Israel Miller left us. He will be sorely missed.

RETIREMENT CONGRATULATIONS TO ROBERT MAXWELL

HON. MARCY KAPTUR

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have the opportunity to publicly recognize the life's work of one of Toledo, Ohio's most notable citizens, Robert Maxwell, who is retiring from his career after 38 years. Truly, Robert Maxwell is a "Golden Guy."

Bob moved through the ranks of the Lathrop Company, over which he began a tenure as President in 1986. That tenure saw outstanding growth as he developed the Lathrop Company into a premier construction company in our region.

Even as he built the company, Bob fulfilled a deep sense of commitment to the community, involving himself in many concerns including 911 services, Toledo Public Schools' Partners In Education, the Toledo Area Chamber of Commerce, the Local Initiatives Support Corporation and the National Multiple Sclerosis Society to name but a few.

Although Bob is well known as an excellent businessman and community oriented philanthropist, his true passion is his family. Always, his wife and children are first in his mind and heart and his pride in his family is evident. He will surely receive many accolades upon his retirement, as he has throughout his career, both from his peers and the organizations he supports, but none are so important as his family and his place in it. In fact, he will tell you that his family means everything to him. Thus, though he leaves a storied career, it is to his family that he retires.

The writer David Lawrence once wrote, "My soul knows that I am part of the human race, my soul is an organic part of the great human race, as my spirit is part of my nation. In my very own self, I am part of my family." Perhaps unconsciously, Bob Maxwell lived out this thought. Professionally and civically, he addresses his responsibility and his place in the family of man. Personally, he carries forth as a family man. Now as he leaves the working world, we wish Bob all the best in his retirement. May he spend his days doing all that he enjoys with those he loves.

TRIBUTE TO ROYCE WISENBAKER

HON. RALPH M. HALL

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HALL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak in memory of a cherished East Texan, Royce E. Wisenbaker of Tyler, Texas, who passed away recently at the age of 84. Royce was one of the region's most gracious patrons. He devoted a lifetime to helping others in countless ways and through numerous organizations, and he is truly missed by all those who knew him.

Born on July 23, 1917, Royce grew up in Mineola, where he graduated from high school. From there he attended Texas A&M University, earning a Bachelor of Science degree in Agricultural Engineering and a Master of Science in Sanitary Engineering. This was the beginning of a long and active relationship with the University that continued until his death.

After graduation from college, he began work for the State, serving as District Engineer of the Northwest Texas Area. In 1942 he answered the call to duty and entered the U.S. Army, where he advanced to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Royce served a total of five years and fought in three theaters. He maintained his Army Reserve status and retired as a full Colonel.

Upon completion of military service, Royce formed an engineering partnership with Robert Fix. Their company designed and supervised construction of waterworks and sewerage projects, streets, airports, industrial waste facilities, water reservoirs and other municipal projects. The partnership lasted 38 years, until Mr. Fix retired and the company was sold. Throughout this time Royce also delved into land development, waterworks, farming, and oil and gas production. After the end of his engineering partnership, he focused full-time on these ventures.

During his long life, Royce consistently worked to support his alma mater and had the honor of serving on the Board of Regents of Texas A&M for eighteen years. His building downtown was always recognizable by the large maroon and white Texas A&M flag flying over it. Royce also served as president of the University's 12th Man Foundation and president of the Association of Former Students—the only person ever to have served as president of both. He was the originator of the President's Endowed Scholarship Program and personally endowed six scholarships. This program now offers more than six-hundred fully endowed scholarships and has been copied by other universities across the nation. He also endowed similar scholarships at Austin College in Sherman, Texas and at Tyler Junior College. Royce supported Texas A&M's faculty and research efforts as well. He endowed a chair in the School of Engineering and two Graduate Fellowships for the School of Engineering, one of which was named in honor of Fred Benson, his former professor and long-time friend and associate. He was a very loyal and supportive person—often referred to as Texas' largest contributor in the political arena for local, state and national offices.

In addition to his professional responsibilities and his service to Texas A&M, Royce managed to contribute considerable time and energy to numerous organizations in the Tyler community. He served as governing board member of Mother Frances Hospital, president of the YMCA, member of the Shriners, director of the Tyler Chamber of Commerce, a member of the American Legion and Elks Lodge, board member and president for seven years of the East Texas Goodwill Industries, and president of Smith County Youth Foundation. He also was a director of the East Texas Symphony, board member of the Texas Chest Foundation, vice president of the East Texas Area Council Boy Scouts, Elder and Deacon of the First Presbyterian Church; board member of Texas Presbyterian Foundation, president of Tyler Catholic School Board, member and secretary of Texas State Board of Health Resources for twelve years and member of the volunteer council at Rusk State Hospital. He served on various boards of the University of Texas at Tyler, Tyler Junior College and Austin College. And the list goes on—for Royce's presence and contributions were evident in almost every worthy cause in his community.

Among his many recognitions include the Distinguished Alumnus Award from Texas A&M in 1973, the Commissioners Award from Texas Health & Mental Retardation Commission in 1972, Silver Beaver award from Boy Scouts in 1977, Rotary Club Award of Appreciation in 1970, Outstanding Service Award from National Association of Mental Health in 1974, Outstanding Humanitarian Award from Citizens of Rusk in 1975 and Engineer of the Year Award in 1981. In 1987 the Board of Regents at Texas A&M designated the "Royce E. Wisenbaker Engineering Research Center" building.

Royce is survived by his loving wife of 57 years, Clorinda "Petey" Wisenbaker; daughters Susan Spies, Paula Wisenbaker and Libby Wallace; son Royce, three sisters, a sister-in-law and eleven grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, Royce Wisenbaker made such a difference in the lives of those who knew him. He was truly an outstanding American who leaves a remarkable legacy of accomplishments—and memories of a man devoted to his family, friends and community. It is an honor today to pay my last respects to this exemplary community leader, beloved husband and father, and friend—Royce E. Wisenbaker.

TRIBUTE TO STEPHEN E.
KAVANAGH CHIEF OF AETNA
HOSE, HOOK AND LADDER FIRE COMPANY

HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE

OF DELAWARE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to honor and pay tribute to a leader in the Delaware firefighting community—the Chief of Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company in Newark, Delaware, Stephen E. Kavanagh. Chief Kavanagh is a courageous and dedicated leader whose personal mission is to protect and save the lives of Delawareans. On behalf of myself and the citizens of the First State, I would like to honor Chief Kavanagh and congratulate him for being selected by the Congressional Fire Service Institute to appear in their annual "Protecting America" painting.

Stephen Kavanagh joined the Wilmington Manor Fire Company in 1970, establishing for himself a fine track record in advancing the quality of fire and emergency services throughout Delaware. In 1979, Steve moved to the Aetna Hose, Hook and Ladder Company of Newark, Delaware and it is here that he really made his name. Having held a number of officer positions in the Company, Steve Kavanagh was elected Chief in 1999. Aetna Hose, Hook and Fire Company is one of the busiest fire companies in the State and leading this company is both a challenging and rewarding task for Chief Kavanagh.

Chief Kavanagh has protected the residents of Newark, Delaware through good times and bad times. Throughout the tragic events of September 11th, he was a pillar of strength and a protector of safety in the community. He calmed the fears of Delawareans and stood resolute to help his state and his country in any way he could.

In addition to the time he spends as Chief of the Company, Steve is also a skilled craftsman who works on custom aircrafts for Dassault Falcon Jet at the New Castle County Airport. His family is of the utmost priority to him and he and his wife Theresa have two children and three grandchildren.

Chief Kavanagh makes daily sacrifices to serve others in our community and his selflessness and commitment to service will have a permanent place in Delaware's fire service history. The example Chief Kavanagh has set for firefighters throughout Delaware is one we hope all future firefighters will strive to emulate. His dedication to the protection of life is truly commendable. It is for all these reasons that he is being honored in the painting "Protecting America." As Delaware's Congressman, I would like to personally thank him for a difficult job well done.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO SHERIFF
GARY CURE

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize an outstanding individual who has dedicated the past 24 years of his life to serving and protecting the citizens of Colorado. Sheriff Gary Cure of the Jackson County Sheriff's Office has, in his many years of service, courageously and dutifully served his community, his state and his country, and I am honored to pay tribute to him today in front of this body of Congress. After a long and successful career as one of Colorado's finest, Gary will be moving on to take a position with the County Sheriffs of Colorado in Denver. Though I look forward to his tenure in Denver, I, along with the many citizens of Jackson County, will sorely miss his hard work and dedication to the Jackson County Sheriff's Office.

Gary has been with the Jackson County Sheriff's Office since 1979, where he began his tenure as undersheriff before being elected sheriff in 1982—a post to which he has been reelected ever since. As sheriff, Gary has dedicated himself to the betterment of the community and the department, not only through his extraordinary law enforcement work, but also through his incredible ability to raise funds for much needed improvements. Prior to announcing his retirement, Gary announced that he had, at no cost, procured a $30,000 file management system for the Sheriff's Office. He was responsible for getting a loan that enabled the county to install a 911 system, and subsequently procured an additional $50,000 grant to upgrade the system. In addition, he was the chairman of the committee that obtained $3 million in grants to upgrade the County Courthouse.

As sheriff, Gary did a marvelous job of walking the fine-line that all law enforcement officers must walk; as both a member and protector of the community. He will be sorely missed by each and every person in the community, but his marvelous contributions will always remain.

Mr. Speaker, as a former law enforcement officer, I am well aware of the dangers and hazards our peace officers face today. Gary Cure has dedicated his life to serving and protecting his fellow citizens, working long hours, weekends, and holidays to guarantee their safety and their freedoms, and it is with a great deal of pride and respect that I bring his career to the attention of this body of Congress. Sheriff Gary Cure deserves the thanks of a grateful nation for all of his hard work, and I wish him all the best in his future endeavors.

EARTH DAY 2002

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and celebrate the thirty-second annual Earth Day, a global holiday that acknowledges and emphasizes the importance of a clean, healthy, and safe world. This spring observation provides the people of our nation and those across the globe the opportunity to renew our dedication to the protection and preservation of our environment. We have a shared responsibility to conserve our diverse natural resources, and Earth Day allows us to demonstrate our commitment to the environment.

While we have made significant progress since the first Earth Day celebration in 1970, we must continue our efforts to improve environmental quality. The Earth Day activities heighten awareness to the positive actions we can take to improve our environment, both locally and globally. The annual observance allows us the opportunity to applaud our progress, but more importantly, it allows us to renew our commitment to the continuing environmental challenges facing our planet.

I would like to pay special tribute to my many constituents who are so active in their support of environmental causes. This is especially true during this month, with activities and programs to mark Earth Day in Takoma Park, Glen Echo, Potomac, Silver Spring, and throughout the region.

I consider environmental protection to be a national priority. I pledge to work with my colleagues in Congress to ensure the preservation of our natural resources and the protection of the public health. And on Earth Week, as we also mark the birthday of William Shakespeare, we recall his words, "to nature none more bound." We must preserve and protect this treasure for future generations. This year, as we celebrate Earth Day 2002, let us reaffirm our commitment to a cleaner world.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. WILLIAM L. JENKINS

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. Speaker, I was not present to cast my votes on rollcall Nos. 93, 94, and 95 on April 16, 2002. Had I been present, I would have voted "aye" on rollcall 93, 94, and 95.

ON THE SITUATION IN THE MIDDLE EAST

HON. MICHAEL R. McNULTY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. McNULTY. Mr. Speaker, as terrorist attacks and homicide bombings continue to ravage Israel and her citizens, I call on the Administration to express its unqualified support for the only democracy in the Middle East, and our most loyal supporter at the United Nations.

Two weeks ago, I stood with members of the United Jewish Federation of Northeastern New York and Rabbis from across the Capital Region of New York State, and recounted the horrible story of a March terrorist attack that ripped through the heart of an Albany family—by stealing the life of Avia Malka, a nine-month old infant visiting Netanya, Israel on the joyous occasion of a family wedding. An armed homicide bomber walked into the lobby of the family's hotel, began shooting, and then detonated his device. The infant Avia was shot in the head, struck by shrapnel, and killed. Her father remains in the hospital and still cannot walk.

Mr. Speaker, I am deeply disappointed with the contradictory statements made by our President in recent weeks, and I totally disagree with our vote at the U.N. asking Israel to retreat from its pursuit of Palestinian terrorists. For the President to embrace such a policy is completely contradictory to the principles of our own international war against terrorism.

In 1947, the United Nations General Assembly recommended partitioning the British mandate called Palestine into two states, a 5,500 square-mile Jewish state, and a 4,500 square-mile Arab state, and a "corpus separatum" international zone around the holy city of Jerusalem.

Jews accepted the partition plan but the Arabs did not. Israel unilaterally declared its independence in May 1948, and the Arab states attacked the new state. Therefore, the Palestinians could have had their own state in 1947, but rejected it.

In 2000, former Israeli Prime Minister Barak offered a peace agreement, which included not only further land transfers, but also nearly all that Chairman Arafat requested—and Arafat and the Palestinians rejected that offer, too.

In addition, the first three wars against Israel (1948, 1956, and 1967) all occurred when the West Bank was in Arab hands. On January 1, 1965, Fatah, the main branch of Arafat's organization, launched the first terrorist attack on Israel—all within the 1967 borders.

Last year, Faisal Hussein, a "moderate" within Arafat's leadership, offered the following response when asked whether the Palestinian goal is still the elimination of the State of Israel: "If you are asking me as a Pan-Arab nationalist what are the Palestinian borders . . . I will immediately reply, 'From the river Jordan to the Mediterranean sea.'"

Mr. Speaker, arguing that 'returning' these lands would ensure peace is simply ignoring history!

Israeli citizens have lived with terrorism since the founding of their country in 1948, and have had to fight five wars just to survive. It is past time for all civilized countries to support the right of Israel to exist, and to denounce in unambiguous terms the terrorists who block the road toward peace in the region.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO ELIZABETH MOORE

HON. SCOTT MCINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with profound sadness that I pay tribute today to Elizabeth Moore, an incredible woman who recently passed away, but whose dedication to the people and animals in her community was both extraordinary and inspirational. Elizabeth selflessly gave her time and energy to her community through her intense love of all living creatures, and was a woman of unquestioned integrity and of unparalleled morality. She will be sorely missed by each and every person whose life she touched, and as her family mourns her loss, I believe it is appropriate to remember Elizabeth and pay tribute to her for her incredible contributions to her city, and her state.

Elizabeth and her husband John first came to Colorado's San Luis Valley in 1995 after riding on the Cumbres & Toltec Scenic Railroad. They decided to make the beautiful valley their home, and immediately embarked upon a mission to make it a better place for all to live—even the animals. After arriving in the San Luis Valley, Elizabeth served as the President of the Humane League, dedicating her time to organizing fundraisers for spay and neuter clinics and finding homes for stray cats and dogs. She had a strong conviction that the best way to help the plight of animals in the community was to control the population by spaying and neutering. Her efforts were critical in procuring funds from the Max Fund to assist with low-cost spay/neuter clinics in the community. In addition, she loved the outdoors, and had climbed most of Colorado's highest peaks, inspiring her husband to take up the sport as well. Elizabeth's extraordinary selflessness and dedication to all living things will be sorely missed by everyone that knew her, and by all that benefited from her incredible deeds.

Mr. Speaker, we are all terribly saddened by the loss of Elizabeth Moore, but take comfort in the knowledge that our grief is overshadowed only by the legacy of courage, selflessness and love that she left with all of us.

Elizabeth Moore's life is the very embodiment of all that makes this country great, and I am deeply honored to be able to bring her life to the attention of this body of Congress.

INTRODUCTION OF DUTY REDUCTION AND SUSPENSION LEGISLATION

HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE

OF DELAWARE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce several duty reduction and suspension bills for colorants used in ink-jet printers, in addition to materials used in the production of environmentally sensitive herbicides and insecticides that improve the quality of our lives.

These duty suspension bills lower the cost of producing these products thereby lowering the cost to consumers and helping U.S. industries compete in the global marketplace. When American companies make the active ingredients for these colorants and chemicals, there is a proper role for duties to exist. However, when the active ingredients are only made by foreign companies, we needlessly increase product costs for American consumers by imposing duties on their importation. By introducing these bills, I am triggering a careful review of these proposals by the House Ways and Means Committee and the International Trade Commission to make sure there are no domestic producers of these active ingredients so no U.S. jobs will be negatively affected. In fact, these duty suspensions will make U.S. products more competitive, thus creating jobs in the U.S.

Mr. Speaker, let me take this opportunity to highlight the beneficial uses of the final products these chemicals will produce. NMSDA is used to produce a herbicide for broadleaf weed control in corn. This environmentally sound herbicide is within the margins of safety to mammalian, avian, and aquatic organisms. R118118 Salt is used to produce a postemergence soybean herbicide. Postemergence herbicides have the advantage of low application rates. The herbicide is only needed if weeds emerge around the sugar beets. Many other herbicides must be applied ahead of time to prevent weeds from developing regardless of whether they would have emerged naturally, needlessly introducing toxins into the environment. Thiamethoxam Technical is used in production of a neonicotinoid insecticide that targets "sucking and chewing pests," that are harder to target, without causing harm to the crops. Prodiamine Technical is used in production of an environmentally sound herbicide used in vegetation management control. Finally, Flauzinam 500 F formulated product is used to control plant diseases on peanuts and potatoes. It has an environmentally sound profile that is particularly well suited for resistance management programs.

The ink-jet printer colorants are beneficial to the American consumer. These colorants are specially formulated for enhanced quality, specially designed characteristics include improved wet-fastness on plain paper, improved opearability, higher chroma than the current industry standard and high humid-fastness to reduce bleed and hue change. These colorants are widely used in the small and home office settings, as well as in photorealistic printing. It is essential we give the America consumers both choice and quality.

Duty suspension bills often pass with universal bipartisan support because they are common sense for consumers, for the environment, and for enhancing the competitiveness of our domestic industries. I urge support for these proposals after the appropriate committees and agencies have thoroughly vetted these measures.

HONORING THE ROCKVILLE SENIOR CENTER

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor the 20th anniversary of the Rockville Senior Center. For two decades, the Rockville Senior Center has created opportunities for mature adults in Rockville, MD, to live healthy, happy, active lives.

Serving more than 1,700 members, the Rockville Senior Center offers opportunities for seniors to achieve independence and self-sufficiency through a network of education, information programs, and active participation. A wide variety of classes and recreational activities enrich and support the lives of the membership. In addition, a number of important social services are provided, such as health clinics and health insurance counseling.

The vibrant community of the Rockville Senior Center is the focal point for many programs, activities, and services. The organization continues to offer a full complement of services to meet the needs of senior adults. In many ways, the Rockville Senior Center is a second home and a second family to many of these seniors.

I am particularly proud to recognize the 32 members who first joined the nurturing community that is the Rockville Senior Center at the very beginning, 20 years ago. They have seen many changes, but one thing has not changed in all these years—the commitment and the level of service provided to the membership.

So, Mr. Speaker, I join with the entire community in offering my best wishes and congratulations to the Rockville Senior Center on this considerable milestone.

COMMEMORATING SAM L. ERVIN, HEALTHCARE PIONEER

HON. STEPHEN HORN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the long and distinguished career of Sam L. Ervin, a pioneer in the development of innovative and cost effective programs that enhance the quality of life for older and disabled adults.

Mr. Ervin was the founding executive office of the original Senior Care Action Network (SCAN), a social health maintenance organization in Long Beach, CA. SCAN was selected by the then Health Care Financing Administration in 1982 to be one of four demonstration sites for the Social HMO program. The Social HMO expands comprehensive HMO benefits to include community-based long-term care and some nursing home care.

Today, he is the chairman and chief executive officer of SCAN, serving more than 50,000 members in four southern California counties. Since its inception, SCAN has made a unique and significant contribution to seniors' ability to remain healthy, independent and in control of where they live and how they live.

I have introduced H.R. 2953, the Coordinated Community Care Act of 2001 to make Social HMOs a permanent part of the Medicare + Choice program. I am proud to do so and to recognize Sam Ervin for his contributions to the improved quality of life for thousands of seniors.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO MAE SCHULER

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor a woman whose passion for life and whose incredible human spirit is an inspiration to us all. Mae Schuler, a Grand Junction, Colorado resident, recently passed an impressive milestone, celebrating her one-hundredth birthday with a gathering of her friends and family. I am truly honored to be able to bring the life of such a strong and extraordinary woman to the attention of this body of Congress and this nation.

Mae was born the youngest of eight children on March 7, 1902 on a farm in Ontario, Canada. At the age of nineteen, she moved to Detroit, where her sister lived, and met her husband Clarence. While living in Detroit, Clarence went to work selling cars, while Mae raised their baby girl, Jeanne. They survived the Depression by scraping by on the wages that Clarence was able to earn at the local gas station, since people were unable to afford to buy new cars. After Clarence retired in 1968, the couple moved to Palm Beach, Florida, where Mae remained active in the church, participated in a number of crafts groups and grew to love shuffleboard. Seven years and one day after moving to Florida, Clarence passed away peacefully in his sleep. Mae made the best she could of it, choosing to go on with her life and live it with the same vigor and energy that she had always lived it.

After living in Florida for another 30 years, Mae moved to Grand Junction in 1998 in order to be closer to her daughter, Jeanne. At 100 years of age, Mae is still going strong. As chronicled in her local newspaper, the Grand Junction Sentinel, she is exceptionally active, both mentally and physically, and still enjoys life to the fullest. She takes time to read to those who can't see as well, knits caps and washcloths for friends, bakes cookies for those who are sick, types personal notes on her old Smith-Corona typewriter, and most importantly, loves to play bingo. She is truly a remarkable woman, who has lived quite a remarkable life.

Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I bring to the attention of this body of Congress, the life and spirit of such an extraordinary woman, who has always managed to brighten and invigorate the lives of those around her. Mae Schuler is truly an inspiration to all of us, and I, along with the many people whose lives she has touched, am honored to recognize her tremendous accomplishment in reaching her one-hundredth birthday, and more importantly, her passion for life and indomitable human spirit.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MARK FOLEY

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I wish to inform you that yesterday I inadvertently misvoted on rollcall No. 97 on final passage of H.R. 476, the Child Custody Protection Act. I have supported this legislation in the past and continue to do so and my intention was to vote in support of it yesterday. I did not realize until after the voting had closed that I had mistakenly voted otherwise. I regret any confusion this may have caused and want the RECORD to reflect my support for H.R. 476.

INTRODUCING LEGISLATION ON PULMONARY HYPERTENSION

HON. KEVIN BRADY

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. BRADY of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased today to introduce a concurrent resolution in the House aimed at increasing awareness of the disease pulmonary hypertension. PH is a rare disorder of the lung in which the pressure in the pulmonary artery (the blood vessel that leads from the heart to the lungs) and the hundreds of tiny blood vessels that branch off from it rises above normal levels and may become life threatening.

Symptoms of pulmonary hypertension include shortness of breath with minimal exertion, fatigue, chest pain, dizzy spells and fainting. When PH occurs in the absence of a known cause, it is referred to as primary pulmonary hypertension (PPH). This term should not be construed to mean that because it has a single name it is a single disease. There are likely many unknown causes of PPH.

Secondary pulmonary hypertension (SPH) means the cause of the disease is known. Common causes of SPH are the breathing disorders emphysema and bronchitis. Other less frequent causes are scleroderma, CREST syndrome and systemic lupus. In addition, the use of diet drugs can lead to the disease.

Unfortunately, PH is frequently misdiagnosed and often progresses to late stage by the time it is detected. Although PH is chronic and incurable with a poor survival rate, new treatments are providing a significantly improved quality of life for patients. Recent data indicates that the length of survival is continuing to improve, with some patients able to manage the disorder for 20 years or longer.

A close friend and constituent of mine, Mr. Jack Stibbs, has a daughter who is battling this difficult disease. Emily Stibbs has touched many people with her courage and strength at such a young age. I am pleased to introduce this resolution today to raise awareness in the House and throughout the country about PH. The resolution highlights the need for increased federal investments in biomedical research, and public and professional awareness programs focused on the disease. I encourage my colleagues to join me in the fight against pulmonary hypertension by cosponsoring this resolution.

CONGRATULATING THE TOWN OF WINDSOR, VIRGINIA, ON THEIR CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

HON. J. RANDY FORBES

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the town of Windsor in Isle of Wight County, in the Commonwealth of Virginia, which is celebrating its centennial this year.

Originally discovered in the 17th Century by early settlers, Windsor served as an important route for mail and trade throughout America's early colonial days. One cannot separate Windsor's history from America's history.

On April 11, 1902, Windsor was granted its charter from the Virginia General Assembly. Since then, Windsor has grown with the times while never forgetting its rich history and small town charm.

Today, Windsor, Virginia, is a culturally and economically diverse community. With its status as one of the best places to live in Virginia and continued high standard of living and education, Windsor is a community that residents can be proud to call home.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you and all of my colleagues to join me in congratulating Windsor during its centennial year as the citizens of Windsor begin an exciting new century.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO DR. RONALD ROBINSON

HON. SCOTT MCINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to Dr. Ronald Robinson and thank him for his extraordinary contributions to the University of Southern Colorado, his alma mater, and to the petroleum-engineering field, to which he has contributed so much. Since graduating from the University of Southern Colorado, Dr. Robinson has become one of the preeminent thinkers and innovators in his field, advancing and overseeing technologies that contribute to making each and every one of our lives better. His remarkable accomplishments are surpassed only by the level of integrity and honesty with which he has conducted himself each and every day, a trait we have come to expect from graduates of the University of Southern Colorado, but one that Dr. Robinson embodies so well. As we celebrate his tremendous accomplishment of receiving the Alumni Achievement Award, let it be known that I, along with the people of Colorado and this nation, applaud his efforts, and are eternally grateful for all that he has accomplished in his distinguished career.

Always the consummate academic, Dr. Robinson graduated from Southern Colorado State College (now the University of Southern Colorado) in 1968, with a degree in math and physics, and then went on to earn his masters in physics from Baylor University, and finally his doctoral degree in petroleum engineering from Texas A&M University. After earning his doctoral degree, Dr. Robinson embarked upon an impressive career in the petroleum engineering industry, emerging time and again as a leader and innovator in the field. In 1996, he was named President of Texaco Technology, where he was responsible for all of Texaco's research, development, engineering, information technology and technical applications throughout the world. While at Texaco, he managed a total operating budget of over $450 million a year, as well as an investment portfolio of almost $500 million.

As a testament to his expertise and intellect, in 2001, Dr. Robinson became professor and department head of the Albert B. Stevens Endowed Chair in the Harold Vance Department of Petroleum Engineering at Texas A&M University. He was recently named Chairman of the Board of Verdisys, a provider of satellite broadband infrastructure for energy and rural enterprises, and is a director of the Global Petroleum Research Institute and the Network of Excellence in Training. In addition, he is the Chairman, CEO and President of UniPure, Corp., an energy company that develops process technologies for the oil industry. Perhaps most importantly, he has three children, Kevin, Kyle and Kurt, with his wife Bonnie Lynn Martin.

Mr. Speaker, it is clear that Dr. Ronald Robinson is a man of unparalleled talent, dedication, and intellect, who has, throughout his career, reached extraordinary heights and achieved incredible things. He has proven himself to be among the best in his field, and it is a great honor to be able to bring his many accomplishments to the attention of this body of Congress. It is my privilege to extend to him my sincere congratulations on receiving the Alumni Achievement Award from the University of Southern Colorado, and wish him all the best in his multitude of endeavors.

RESPECT NATIVE AMERICAN SACRED SITES

HON. BRAD CARSON

OF OKLAHOMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. CARSON of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, Native American sacred sites usually don't have white-washed siding, a high steeple, or a loud bell. Often they are part of the world around us—a mountain, valley, river, or even a tree but they deserve to be respected and protected as much as any traditional church.

Native Americans have always respected and honored the land, water, and air from which we receive so much. Oral history passed from generation to generation will explain to a tribe where they came from and the journey taken to arrive.

Across the country, Native American sacred sites are being threatened with destruction and few options exist to halt the damage. Over the years Congress has enacted laws to "consult" with Indian tribes about sacred areas, and to "accommodate" Indian religious ceremonies.

The problem is that we have thousands of sacred sites on public lands all across this nation and no firm process to disallow certain activities that will harm or destroy the site. We need to find a way to protect the sacred sites while permitting needed growth and energy development to continue. I know we can find the right balance.

RECOGNIZING THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF NALEO ON ITS 25TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. HILDA L. SOLIS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials (NALEO) as it celebrates its 25th year of working towards strengthening the participation of all Latinos in our great democracy.

Founded in 1976, NALEO was established as a non-profit, non-partisan membership organization of the nation's Latino elected and appointed officials. Later in 1981, NALEO Education Fund was instituted to politically empower the greater Latino community. Because of such efforts, NALEO has significantly contributed to the sizeable increase of Latino elected officials over the past couple decades. Today, NALEO is well recognized as the leading nationwide organization of Latino political empowerment.

I especially applaud the efforts of the NALEO Education Fund, which conducts a series of programs geared towards integrating Latino immigrants into American society, developing future leaders among Latino youth, providing assistance and training to the nation's Latino elected and appointed officials, and conducting research on issues important to the Latino community.

I would like to congratulate Arturo Vargas, Executive Director of NALEO for his excellent leadership. I have long supported NALEO and the NALEO Education Fund and offer my sincerest congratulations on a very successful 25 years.

CONGRATULATING LOUISIANA'S CRAIG PERKS ON PGA PLAYERS CHAMPIONSHIP WIN

HON. CHRISTOPHER JOHN

OF LOUISIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. JOHN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Craig Perks, 2002 winner of the PGA Players Championship. Craig and his family are residents of my congressional district in Southwest Louisiana and our community takes great pride in his outstanding accomplishments.

Craig is living proof that hard work and perseverance do bring reward. He has given 110 percent effort to his pursuits since coming to this country from Palmerston North, New Zealand in 1985. His adopted home quickly became South Louisiana, where he and his wife Maureen—a Broussard, Louisiana native—live with their two young children.

An All-American golfer at the University of Louisiana at Lafayette, Craig has continued to give back to the Lafayette community after graduation. As an assistant professional at Le Triomphe Golf Club in Lafayette, he worked on his game while coordinating tournaments and instructing beginning golfers. Now, as a professional in the spotlight, he continues to set an example of sportsmanship and make his chosen home proud.

Craig is an inspiration to golfers not only in my district, but around the world. From Palmerston North, New Zealand to South Louisiana, his efforts have succeeded in promoting and opening the doors of opportunity for "Cajun Golfers" everywhere. I congratulate Craig on his first PGA Tour win. I have no doubt that South Louisiana will continue to follow the rise of our "adopted son" and applaud his efforts in the years to come.

PAYING TRIBUTE DENNIS FLORES

HON. SCOTT MCINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the leadership of a member of the Pueblo community who has had an immeasurable effect on the lives of those he has touched. Dennis Flores has spent a lifetime committed to serving his country and the community of Pueblo, Colorado. To reward his efforts, his alma mater, the University of Southern Colorado, has recently bestowed upon him the high honor of Outstanding Alumnus. As Dennis accepts this honor, I would like to commend him on the diligence and commitment he has shown to his community and fellow Coloradans to achieve this recognition. He is a generous soul and I am honored to pay tribute to him before this body of Congress, and this nation.

Before Dennis entered college, he served this nation as a member of the U.S. Army Security Agency. With the rating of a top-secret crypto clearance, he served with distinction in Vietnam, receiving both Vietnam Campaign Medals for his outstanding service. After returning to Pueblo, he enrolled at the University of Southern Colorado and graduated with a degree in business management. It was at this time he began to work for SCA Insurance as an insurance agent trainee, and amazingly has continued with the same organization for over thirty years. Today, under his leadership as Senior Vice President and principal, the company serves as a model agency and business in the community.

Desiring to further serve his community, Dennis volunteers much of his time and efforts to improving the lives of his fellow residents. He has been a pioneer in developing programs to enhance the Latino community and has served as President of the Latino Chamber of Commerce. Dennis has been instrumental in establishing the Pueblo Hispanic Education Foundation to help Latino students afford education and is credited with being an instrumental part in the creation of the El Pueblo Inter-Development Corporation, an innovative loan program created for small businesses. As a result of his dedicated leadership, Dennis has been elected to and served on the board of the Pueblo School District for over eight years. With his help and dedication to improving education, District 60 has been nationally recognized in reading reform, educational assessment, and accountability.

Mr. Speaker, it is an incredible honor to represent such a distinguished man as Dennis Flores and be able to bring his achievements to the attention of this body of Congress, and this nation. His generosity, success, and service to his fellow Coloradans serves as a model example of giving back to the community and I would again like to thank him for all that he has done for Pueblo and Colorado. Thanks for all your efforts Dennis and good luck in your future endeavors.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. STEPHANIE TUBBS JONES

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I was unable to return to Congress on Tuesday, April 16, 2002, Wednesday, April 17, 2002, and Thursday, April 18, 2002 due to a death in my family. I request an excused absence for these days. Had I been present, the record would reflect that I would have voted:

On rollcall No. 96, H.R. 476, Motion to recommit with instructions, "Yea".

On rollcall No. 97, H.R. 476, on passage, "No".

On rollcall No. 98, on approving the journal, "Yea".

5TH ANNIVERSARY OF MING PAO DAILY NEWS

HON. NYDIA M. VELÁZQUEZ

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to rise today to commemorate the 5th Anniversary of the Ming Pao Daily News, a source of information to the Chinatown community in New York's 12th district and to Chinese Americans in major cities across the country.

Ming Pao Daily News provided vital coverage of the September 11 terrorist attacks, the aftermath of which deeply affected Chinatown. In addition, the newspaper covered other news of interest to the Chinese American community, including the democratic elections in Taiwan last December.

Ming Pao not only produces news of interest, it is thoroughly committed to improving the community. Through charity fundraising, educational seminars, and sponsorships of cultural events, the newspaper is dedicated to showcasing the best the community has to offer.

I am pleased to mark Ming Pao's five years this month. I wish the organization the best of luck and success for many more years.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

ANTARCTIC ICE SHELF COLLAPSES INTO SEA

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, on March 19, scientists reported the collapse of a 12,000 year old ice sheet in Antarctica. A piece of ice the size of Rhode Island breaking off of Antarctica is amazing enough but the realization that it took only 35 days—a nanosecond in glacial time—for the disintegration of something of this magnitude should give us pause. Whether or not the collapse is related to global warming, this event should be a cautionary lesson to us all. We tend to look back on geologic history and see gradual trends but this reflects more the averaging of time than the reality of past conditions. Rapid climatic changes have occurred in the past; we should expect them in the future. We may have just witnessed an event that scientists of the future will look back on as the first sign of a rapid warming period of the 21st Century. As we contemplate the demise of the Larsen B ice sheet, we should also consider our assumptions about our ability to adapt to climate change. Gradual warming might allow us to adjust but we have no guarantee that Mother Nature will allow us the luxury of time.

[From the Washington Post, Mar. 20, 2002]

ANTARCTIC ICE SHELF COLLAPSES INTO SEA

(By Eric Pianin)

An Antarctic ice shelf the size of Rhode Island recently shattered and collapsed into the sea after an unusual warming period, stunning some scientists who said they had never seen such a large loss of ice mass in the remote Antarctic Peninsula.

The disintegration of the ice shelf—1,260 square miles in area and 650 feet thick—was most alarming to some because of the extraordinary rapidity of the collapse. The shelf is believed to have existed for as long as 12,000 years before regional temperatures began to rise, yet it disintegrated literally before scientists' eyes over a 35-day period that began Jan. 31.

"We knew that it would collapse eventually, but the speed of it is staggering," said David Vaughan, a glaciologist with the British Antarctic Survey, which announced the event yesterday in London and released vivid video images of the breakup.

Researchers and scientists who study the Antarctic Peninsula cautioned that there was little evidence to directly link the ice shelf collapse to the effects of global warming, which is induced by carbon dioxide and other man-made "greenhouse" gases. Rather, they are blaming a localized warming period that allowed melt water to seep into cracks and trigger massive fracturing of the ice when temperatures dropped.

"What we see is climate warming regionally," said Ted Scambos, a researcher with the National Snow and Ice Data Center at the University of Colorado in Boulder. "Ice shelves that have been there for centuries, maybe thousands of years, are responding to climate they haven't seen in the past. Very quickly they shatter."

But some scientists, including Princeton University geoscience professor Michael Oppenheimer, believe that more sophisticated and localized global warming models eventually will show a direct relationship between Earth's rising temperatures and the vanishing ice shelves.

"Ascribing a temperature trend in a small region like that to the broader global trend is difficult," said Oppenheimer, one of the hundreds of scientists who helped research a seminal United Nations-sponsored report on global warming. "Nevertheless, the collapse of the ice shelf in my opinion can be partially ascribed to human-induced climate change."

Experts said the loss of the ice shelf will not result in a rise in sea level because the ice was already floating. One of the most significant predicted results of global warming is a rise in sea level as ice on land melts.

Ice shelves are thick plates, fed by glaciers, that float in the ocean around much of Antarctica. In recent months, with the polar summer just beginning, temperatures were already creeping above freezing in the peninsula region. Scientists said there has also been a 50-year warming trend in the peninsula, averaging approximately 0.5 degrees Celsius per decade, which is considered a sensitive, early indicator of global climate change.

But the overall climate picture in the peninsula, nearest to southern Argentina and Chile, is complicated and hard to generalize. Glaciers elsewhere on the continent are both thickening and thinning as temperatures show conflicting climate trends. In January, for example, researcher Peter Doran said scientists working in the McMurdo Dry Valleys of eastern Antarctica have found temperatures dropping since 1986.

The Larsen B ice shelf, as it was called, located on the eastern side of the peninsula, collapsed into a plume of small icebergs and fragments. The amount of ice released in a month's time was enough to fill 29 trillion five-pound bags. The collapse was first detected on satellite images this month by the National Snow and Ice Data Center. A British research vessel, the RRS James Clark Ross, was in the area just as the event was occurring and provided vivid images of the vanishing ice from the ocean's surface.

It was the largest single event in a series of retreats by ice shelves in the peninsula over the past three decades. "We're all simply astounded by the uniqueness of the event," said Christina Hulbe, a geology professor at Portland State University in Oregon who collaborated on research into Antarctica's breaking ice.

Some environmental groups seized on the breakup to renew their plea to President Bush to take more aggressive action to reduce emissions that contribute to global warming. Bush has disavowed the Kyoto global warming treaty concluded last November by Japan, European countries and Russia, which would force deep cuts in carbon dioxide emissions. Instead he recently announced proposals to encourage industry to reduce emissions voluntarily.

"This stunning development warns of the dangers of governments doing too little to halt global warming," said Lara Hansen, a climate scientist for the World Wildlife Fund. "The visibility and sheer scale of what is happening in Antarctica should provide a wake-up call to policymakers worldwide."

PAYING TRIBUTE TO RITA BARRERAS

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the efforts of a woman who has devoted her life's work to improving the lives of children, the elderly, and the disabled in the State of Colorado. Rita Barreras has taken tremendous strides in the social services field and has proven herself a dedicated leader in her profession. For her service to others, she was recently honored by her alma mater, the University of Southern Colorado, as Outstanding Alumnus. It is my honor to bring the accomplishments of such an astounding provider of care and service before this body of Congress, and this nation.

Rita is currently the Director of the Division of Aging and Adult Services for the Colorado Department of Human Services in Denver. In this position, she provides the leadership and vision for sixty-three social service county departments. After twenty-five years in the field, Rita is known as a respected administrator and dedicated care provider. She is credited with many innovative policies that have changed the lives of the elderly and aging, as well as their families throughout Colorado. A 1974 graduate of the University of Southern Colorado, Rita attributes much of her success and her approach to her profession to her experience and education at USC.

Rita has long been an active member of the community, and has gone to great lengths to improve the lives of her fellow Coloradans. She serves as a Board Member of Metro Denver Hospice, the Denver Foundation, and the Colorado Hispana Leadership Council. She also serves as an advocate for the United Way, the Metro Denver Homeless Initiative, and the American Diabetes Association. As a member and leader of these groups, Rita has been a driving force in developing and achieving worthy and often difficult goals for the organizations.

Through her professional success and her unfaltering efforts to help others, Rita has become a model citizen of the Hispanic community and the broader Colorado community. She has been well rewarded over the years, most notably in 1993 when she was a nominee for the Denver YWCA's Women's Achievement Award, where she was invited to attend and organize the Colorado Delegation for the White House Conference on Aging. In addition, in 1995, the AARP honored Rita with the Partnership Award for her successes in providing care to the aging.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor today to bring the accomplishments of Rita Barreras before this body of Congress, and this nation. Rita embodies the extraordinary spirit of service and dedication in this country, and it brings me great pride and joy to bring her efforts to your attention today. Thank you for all of your efforts in improving our lives and community, Rita. Good luck, and congratulations on your recent achievement.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. HELEN FREDERICK

HON. JAMES E. CLYBURN

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Mrs. Helen Frederick of Florence, South Carolina. Retiring after thirty years of service, Mrs. Frederick is being recognized for the contributions she has made to the higher education community in the State of South Carolina.

Mrs. Frederick began her career in 1957 as Secretary to the Registrar at Lander University. In 1960, she began working part-time in order to raise her children. Over the next thirteen years, she divided her time between family and career; and in 1973 she rejoined Lander's full-time staff. Less than ten years later, in 1981, Mrs. Frederick was promoted to Assistant to the President and Director of Alumni Relations. In addition to the duties she encountered with these new positions, Mrs. Frederick also coordinated the activities of the thirty-six member Lander Board of Visitors.

In 1984, Mrs. Frederick moved to Florence to join the staff of Florence-Darlington Technical College (FDTC) as Executive Assistant to the President. She served FDTC's Commissioners with an unbridled enthusiasm that secured her tenure through the leadership of five different Presidents of FDTC. Mrs. Frederick's dedication earned her the title of Director of External Relations in 1994. With this promotion she had oversight over all of FDTC's Public Relations, Marketing, FDTC Education Foundation, Alumni Relations, and Print Shop. After these many years of service, Mrs. Frederick is entering a well-deserved retirement, and looks forward to spending more time with her husband and their five grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and my colleagues join me in honoring Mrs. Helen Frederick, an outstanding South Carolinian whose dedication to helping those in higher education has touched the lives of countless students and a number of administrative staffs. I congratulate her on her retirement and wish her good luck and Godspeed.

INTRODUCTION OF H. RES. —

HON. LYNN N. RIVERS

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. RIVERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H. Res. __, commending the NephCure Foundation headquartered in Ann Arbor, Michigan for establishing National Kidney Cure Week in the first week of October and encouraging the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make more information on kidney diseases available to the public.

Today, chronic kidney disease affects 2.5 million Americans. The U.S. Surgeon General has designated kidney disease as a focus area of the Healthy People 2010 campaign. The incidence of glomerular diseases, which attack the filtering mechanisms of the kidney, is increasing rapidly in the U.S. These diseases typically strike children from sixteen months to four years of age and often are difficult to diagnosis and treat. In their most severe form, glomerular diseases can lead to end stage renal disease—near or complete kidney failure requiring dialysis treatments or even kidney transplants. Sadly, even after a patient finds a donor, undergoes surgery, and receives a transplant, the disease can recur.

Glomerular diseases impact more than the patients and families directly affected—the economic costs associated with care, treatment, and loss of productivity are staggering. In order to raise public awareness and improve diagnosis and treatment of glomerular diseases, I am introducing this resolution commending NephCure Foundation for designating the first week of October as National Kidney Cure Week and encouraging the Secretary of Health and Human Services to make more information available to the public concerning kidney diseases.

While treating kidney diseases effectively remains a challenge, there is potential for substantial scientific progress toward finding cures. Researchers at the National Institutes of Health are beginning clinical trials, with the goal of discovering new and innovative therapies for patients suffering from various kidney diseases.

National Kidney Cure Week activities will help develop public and private partnerships, encourage competency among health care providers, and promote health education and training. There are many national and regional organizations that will greatly contribute to and benefit from such partnerships: the NephCure Foundation, American Association of Kidney Patients, American Kidney Fund, American Society of Pediatric Nephrology, American Society of Nephrology, Association of Nephrology Nurses, the National Kidney Foundation, the PKD Foundation, and numerous other private foundations, universities, and hospitals.

Events held in connection with National Kidney Cure Week could lead to improved diagnosis, acute treatment, and disease management for Americans who are susceptible to kidney disease. The Secretary of Health and Human Services also could greatly improve awareness and treatment by strengthening kidney disease public education efforts. I am happy to support these efforts and to commend the NephCure Foundation for its leadership on this issue.

IN MEMORY OF EDITH DIVICINO DIFAZIO

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor a very special woman, Edith DiVincino DiFazio, who passed away on Saturday, April 6, 2002. Edith was married to Pasquale (Pat) DiFazio for 53 years and they were the very proud parents of two children, Paul and Linda, and the ever loving grandparents of Michael and Allison Lech.

Mr. Speaker, Edith DiFazio was born and raised in New Britain, Connecticut and lived there her entire life. She made an indelible impact on the community she loved so much through her participation in local politics, her support of her husband in his business development, her community activism as well as the countless friendships she made and kept during her ninety years of life in New Britain.

Mr. Speaker, Edith was a woman who loved and was loved deeply in return by her family and her friends. She was in many ways a woman who was ahead of her time and she was a role model to everyone who knew her. Edith worked alongside her husband Pat who was the owner and president of Ames Construction Company. Among the Company's many projects are Pulaski Middle School, Chamberlain School, Knapp Village Apartments and Schaller Oldsmobile. With a constant smile and engaging personality, Edith found enjoyment in all aspects of life. She learned the pleasure of raising plants and flowers from working in her father's greenhouse, Davis Florist Company in New Britain. She was a gourmet cook and her Italian cooking was considered to be the gold standard of cuisine and she served her community as a volunteer at the New Britain Memorial Hospital and as a member of the Greater Italian Junior League.

Mr. Speaker, if Edith DiFazio were asked what the greatest accomplishments of her life were, she would say her two children Linda and Paul. For almost half a century I have known and been part of the DiFazio family. Edith and Pat DiFazio were two of the most widely respected and loved members of our community. Edith was the core of her home and her family. She was as comfortable with U.S. Senators and Governors as she was with her pals at the senior center. Her dignity, her gracefulness, her kindness and her gentleness were her hallmarks. I have no doubt that as Pat welcomed her to heaven, so too did the angels because they wanted to add to their ranks.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all my colleagues in the House to join me in expressing our collective sympathy to Edith DiFazio's family and to give thanks for all she did throughout her life to make her community and our country better for human kind.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO JODY VOSS

HON. SCOTT MCINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MCINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to Jody Voss and thank her for her extraordinary contributions to the Boys' and Girls' Club of Pueblo, Colorado. Her life-long dedication to both her job and the youth of Pueblo is matched only by the level of integrity and honesty with which she has conducted herself each and every day while at her post. She is known as a kind and caring soul with the utmost dedication and talent, and is known as a leader in her community. As Jody celebrates her recent milestone of twenty years with the organization, let it be known that I, along with each and every person with whom she has worked in Pueblo, are eternally grateful for all that she has accomplished in her many years of service.

Jody went to work for the Boys' and Girls' Club of Pueblo in 1982. As executive director, Jody, and the rest of her dedicated leadership, grew the organization from one center serving two-hundred fifty kids to seven centers involving over three thousand kids. For over twenty years, Jody has selflessly given her time, energy and unrelenting commitment to the youth of Pueblo, a milestone recently celebrated by the organization in early March. She is considered by many to be the backbone of the organization and the success the club enjoys today is a direct reflection of her diligence and commitment to our younger generations.

Mr. Speaker, it is clear that Jody Voss is a woman of unparalleled dedication and commitment to both her professional endeavors and the people of her community. It is her unrelenting passion for each and every thing she does, as well as her spirit of honesty and integrity with which she has always conducted herself, that I wish to bring before this body of Congress. She is a remarkable woman, who has achieved extraordinary things in her career and for her community. It is my privilege to extend to Jody Voss my congratulations on twenty years of faithful service and wish her the best in her future endeavors.

HONORING JEWELL FRANCES
WELLS GOLDEN ON HER 90TH BIRTHDAY

HON. JEFF MILLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. JEFF MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer a happy birthday to one of Northwest Florida's true matriarchs, Jewell Frances Wells Golden, who turned 90 years old on April 16, 2002.

The daughter of one of the Northwest Florida's pioneering families and a true Panhandle native, Mrs. Golden has used her years to inspire and help shape our community in numerous ways. As a wife of 66 years to the late Albert Golden, their many business ventures can be felt all along the Gulf Coast. From humble beginnings, the two embarked upon undertakings that included a number of banks, oil companies, and a local newspaper. Along with these endeavors, side-by-side, Mr. and Mrs. Golden founded the Church of the Living God in 1977, where she is still a devoted member.

Mrs. Golden's influence reaches well beyond her business enterprises. Her impact earned her the 1970 "Personality of the South" and 1974 "Florida Mother of the Year" awards in recognition of her service to her community and state. Mrs. Golden was a delegate with the Florida Department of Agriculture with a mission to promote goodwill with other nations. She also served as director of Santa Rosa County's United Way from 1964–1965.

Mrs. Golden is adored by a family of 3 children, 11 living grandchildren, 20 living great (grandchildren, and a thankful community. Through her example, we have all learned that hard work, dedication, and strong values will lead to success and happiness.

On behalf of the United States Congress, I would like to wish this special woman the happiest of birthdays and many more to come. I offer my sincere thanks for all she has done for Northwest Florida.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. DEBORAH PRYCE

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. PRYCE of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I was regrettably absent the week of April 8, 2002, and on April 16 and 17, 2002. Consequently, I missed the following recorded votes. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea" on rollcall Nos. 80, 81, 82, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 92, 93, 94, 95, 97, and 98, and "no" on rollcall Nos. 83, 90, 91, and 96.

CHILD CUSTODY PROTECTION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. JIM RYUN

OF KANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 17, 2002

Mr. RYUN of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today on behalf of the American family, and to express my support to the Child Custody Protection Act.

As elected officials, we have been entrusted with the great responsibility of protecting not only the rights of the individual, but also upholding and reinforcing the authority of the States in which they live. Before us is a bill that not only strengthens existing state laws, but also protects a very vulnerable group in today's society—pregnant teens.

A 1998 poll shows that 78 percent of Americans strongly disagreed with the transporting of a minor across state lines to obtain an abortion without her parents' knowledge. Our constituents have spoken, and it is our explicit responsibility to protect the rights of parents in the 43 States that have parental involvement statutes.

One specific example is the Hope Clinic in Granite City, IL, which brazenly cites Illinois' lack of required parental consent through radio ads in St. Louis, essentially supporting the circumvention of Missouri State laws. We must prevent clinics from luring in teenagers from States where parental consent is required.

If our genuine goal as Representatives is to improve the safety and well-being of the American public, then we must pass the Child Custody Protection Act.

FAIR CARE FOR KIDS ACT

HON. HEATHER WILSON

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, each day an estimated 13 million children, including 6 million infants and toddlers, spend some part of their day being cared for someone other than their parents. Research shows that quality early care and education leads to increased cognitive abilities, positive classroom learning behavior, increased likelihood of long-term school success, and greater likelihood of long-term economic and social self-sufficiency. Childcare centers and family childcare homes need to provide care that promotes healthy development. Parents need to be able to go to work and have the piece of mind that their children are in safe, nurturing environments.

Childcare is costly. Many families cannot afford childcare. For families with young children and a monthly income under $1,200, the cost of childcare typically consumes 25 percent of their income.

On an average monthly basis, more than 1.8 million children, nationwide benefit from federal financial assistance for childcare through Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF), Social Services Block Grant (SSBG), the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) and USDA Child and Adult Care Food program. There are more children receiving federal childcare help through these programs than through Head Start. But, generally, the quality of care is much lower.

Reimbursement rates, which determine the maximum the State will reimburse a childcare provider for the care of a child who receives a federal subsidy, are too low to ensure that quality care is accessible to all families. Currently, in New Mexico day care providers are being reimbursed at lower rates than the current market rate, including licensed centers that provide infant care. As a result, many of the best childcare setting or even average ones, limit or do not accept children who are on assistance.

Low payment rates directly affect the kind of care children get and whether families can find quality childcare in their communities. In many instances, low payment rates force child care providers to cut corners in ways that lower the quality of care for children, including reducing number of staff, and eliminating staff training opportunities.

If day care providers are not reimbursed at or near the current market rate, then the lowest income children are forced to go to the most marginal settings. And in some states, parents or grandparents are prohibited from making up the difference between the subsidy and the fee for higher quality care.

Children in low quality childcare are more likely to have delayed reading and language skills. Parents need access to affordable, quality care for their children. Increased payment rates lead to higher quality child care as child care providers are able to attract and retain qualified staff, provide salary increases and professional training, and maintain a safe and healthy environment.

That is why I am introducing the Fair Care for Kids Act. My bill would require that current market rates are paid to day care providers who receive federal funding. Market surveys, which identify market rates, must be current and that is why they must be updated annually.

This bill is a step in the right direction for helping our working parents. This bill is a step in the right direction to providing quality day care to our children.

TRIBUTE TO THE CROATIAN SONS LODGE NUMBER 170

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it is my distinct honor to congratulate the Croatian Sons Lodge Number 170 of the Croatian Fraternal Union, on the festive occasion of its 95th Anniversary and Golden Member banquet, on Sunday, April 28, 2002.

This year, the Croatian Fraternal Union will hold this gala event at the Croatian Center in Merrillville, Indiana. Traditionally, the anniversary celebration entails a formal recognition of the Union's Golden Members, those who have achieved fifty years of membership. This year's honorees who have attained fifty years of membership include: William A. Bursich, Sally Cullen, Lynn Edward Evans, Steve Jack Grdina, Anastasia Kresich, Eugene Krukowski, Michael F. Luketic, Charles Peretin, Stefania Peretin, Dorothea Petrovich, Stephen Ratkay, Dennis Rivich, Frances Staesnick, Peter T. Sut, and Mary Ann Thews.

These loyal and dedicated individuals share this prestigious honor with over 300 additional Lodge members who have previously attained this important designation.

This memorable day will begin with a morning mass at Saint Joseph the Worker Catholic Church in Gary, Indiana, with the Reverend Father Stephen Loncar presiding. The festivities will be culturally enriched by the performance of several Croatian musical groups. The Hoosier Hrvati Adult Tamburitza Orchestra directed by Frank Jovanovich, the Croatian Glee Club "Preradovic," and the Croatian Strings Tamburitza and Junior Dancers directed by Dennis Barunica will perform at this gala event. A formal dinner banquet will end the day's festivities.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you and my other distinguished colleagues to join me in commending Lodge President Betty Morgavan, and all the other members of the Croatian Fraternal Union Lodge Number 170, for their loyalty and radiant display of passion for their ethnicity. The Croatian community has played a key role in enriching the quality of life and culture of Northwest Indiana. It is my hope that this year will bring renewed hope and prosperity for all members of the Croatian community and their families. I am proud to represent these gifted residents of the First Congressional District of Indiana.

RICHARD HAIRE RETIRES FROM CORRALES ELEMENTARY

HON. TOM UDALL

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, we all know that our schools will never be any better than the men and women who teach in them. I rise today to pay tribute to a remarkable teacher who has made Corrales Elementary one of the best in my home state of New Mexico.

Corrales has been truly fortunate to have someone of the talents and dedication of Mr. Haire within the community. It is an honor to be able to recognize him on this special occasion.

After serving as an exemplary elementary school teacher in New Mexico for more than 32 years, Richard Haire is retiring the chalk, and will end a career that will conclude with teaching a fifth grade class of children at Corrales Elementary for twenty-three consecutive years. I say he is retiring the chalk because I know that he will continue to contribute to the community in a variety of ways.

Mr. Haire graduated second in a class of 360 in 1965 from Commack High School in upstate New York, where his classmates voted him most likely to succeed. He graduated cum laude from the State University of New York with a BA in psychology, and then received his Ms in Education from Syracuse University.

In addition to teaching children, Mr. Haire was a mentor to scores of his colleagues. Indeed, he is a teacher's teacher. His greatest service to our community lies in his devotion as an educator to his students. He deserves the greatest praise both from the families of these young individuals, and from all those whose lives he has touched. His efforts are an invaluable investment in New Mexico's future and we are all truly blessed that we had such a dedicated professional in the classroom.

It is impossible to find a former student whose life has not been changed positively by Mr. Haire. Everyone can point to a turning point where his teaching caused each to embark upon a course of action. In his service to education, Mr. Haire embraced the principle that one person can make a difference, by leading by example, getting people involved, touching everything and everyone in the community.

Teachers like Richard Haire do make a difference. I believe so strongly in education. I know that as we battle the ills of our society—poverty and hopelessness—education is the great beacon and the great hope. I strongly believe that our public school system will continue to meet the challenges of the 21st century. The commitment Mr. Haire has made to children both in and out of the classroom continues to illustrate the power of a single person.

Mr. Speaker, in 1818, Thomas Jefferson said, "A system of general education, which shall reach every description of our citizens from the richest to the poorest, as it was the earliest, so will it be the latest of all the public concerns in which I shall permit myself to take an interest." This quotation embodies Richard Haire's career.

We will dearly miss his service at Corrales Elementary.

LEGISLATION TO AMEND THE NATIVE AMERICAN HOUSING LOAN PILOT PROGRAM

HON. ENI F.H. FALEOMAVAEGO

OF AMERICAN SAMOA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation which will amend the Native American Housing Loan Pilot Program by making spouses of qualified Native Americans, including American Samoans, Native Hawaiians, Native Alaskans and American Indians, eligible to obtain VA home loans.

While veterans living in most of our nation have been able to obtain home loans guaranteed by the federal government for decades, certain segments of our veteran population did not obtain this benefit until the 1990s. Many American Samoan, Native Hawaiian, Native Alaskans and Native American Indian veterans who lived on native lands were not eligible for home loans because, among other reasons, fee simple title to the land could not be acquired. Without clear title to the land, commercial banks would not make home loans and, without commercial loans, the Department of Veterans Affairs could not offer assistance to these veterans.

In 1992, Congress created a pilot program to address this problem. This program was created through §8 of P.L. 102-547 and is now called the Native American Housing Loan Pilot Program. The Native American Housing Loan Pilot Program provides VA direct housing loans to Native Americans who, because of where they live, are not eligible for the national VA home loan guarantee program. Pacific Islanders, Native Hawaiians, Native American Indians and Native Alaskans all benefit from this program.

For nine years, this program has been a tremendous success—hundreds of loans have been made and the default rate is very low. However, this direct loan program does not solve the housing problem for veterans married to American Samoans, Native Hawaiians, Native Alaskans and Native American Indians.

In American Samoa, for example, there are many non-Samoan veterans married to a Samoan spouse who are ineligible to obtain VA home loans. These non-Samoan veterans are surprised to find out first, that the national VA home loan program is not available to them, and second, that they are ineligible to participate in the Native American Housing Loan Pilot Program, which is operational in American Samoa.

The bill I introduce today will expand the eligibility of the program by making spouses of qualified American Samoans, Native Hawaiians, Native Alaskans and Native American Indians eligible to obtain VA home loans.

This would be a small adjustment to the current eligible population and would be made available only in those few areas in which the national VA home loan program has not been implemented.

I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

ISRAEL DESERVES THE RIGHT TO DEFEND HERSELF

HON. RONNIE SHOWS

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, since September 11th, Americans have been living in a new age. Attacks on New York and Washington made us keenly aware of our vulnerability.

Never before had we been attacked so savagely so close to home. That is a day we will never forget.

Well, Mr. Speaker, now we all know what it must be like to be an Israeli, because this has been the pattern of THEIR lives, every day.

Israel has long lived under the shadow of terrorism. In the aftermath of 9-11, Americans need look no further than the people of Israel as a source of strength and courage.

Terrorists have no regard for innocent human life and have threatened innocent Israelis for years.

But in recent weeks these terrorists have escalated their bloody tactics and threaten ALL innocent Middle Easterners who just want to live in peace.

They have escalated their violence to a terrifying level that threatens regional stability and world peace.

Mr. Speaker, the whole world is watching and wondering and praying for peace in the Middle East and an end to this senseless slaughter.

Our President has stepped up to the plate and initiated negotiations towards that end.

That's all well and good, Mr. Speaker, but on the very day that Secretary of State Powell arrived in Israel to begin the process, yet another terrorist bomb blew a hole in the heart of peace itself.

And in spite of this we continue to insist that Israel pull its troops out of the West Bank! Mr. Speaker, we are asking Israel NOT to defend herself.

Mr. Speaker, how can we ask Israel to pull back—to stop defending itself—at the very time we are engaged in our own war against terrorism?

We are fighting in a country thousands of miles away, but Israel's enemies are in her own back yard. How can we tell Israel to back off, when the terrorists don't play by civilized rules?

Israel is a land that is holy to so many people throughout the world. Yet the terrorists have invaded the most sacred churches, shooting from its windows, and using nuns and clerics as human shields.

This is what Israel is up against, Mr. Speaker. Yassir Arafat either can not, will not, or does not want to, end the terrorist attacks against innocent Israelis.

Since September 11th, we Americans know very well what terrorists seek to do—to strike mortal fear within the fabric of everyday life, to destroy free society from within.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot expect Israel—or any free country—to cease defending itself against this kind of threat.

Just as we are standing up to Osama Bin Laden and his forces of evil, Israel must stand up against the forces of evil that would bring her down.

SOCIAL SECURITY CERTIFICATES

HON. BOBBY L. RUSH

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, on Feb 15, 2002, House Majority Leader DICK ARMEY circulated a Memorandum where he called on Congress to push Social Security Privatization in the upcoming legislative session. I agree that addressing the long-term solvency of the Social Security program deserves our utmost attention in the upcoming legislative session. However, the recommendation that we privatize Social Security does nothing to strengthen the financial solvency of the program.

The Majority Leader exclaims that his bill H.R. 3135, which allows workers to voluntarily put between three and eight percentage points of their Social Security tax into personal retirement accounts, is based on a progressive scale that allows lower-income workers to put more into their accounts and to build more wealth. The Majority Leader failed to take into account the volatility of the stock market. I do not believe that the American public is willing to gamble their retirement security in the up's and down of the stock market. Especially, with the recent collapse of Enron and the present economic recession, the American public is even more suspicious of any proposal that will partially or fully privatize Social Security. Americans know that Social Security provides guaranteed, lifelong benefits. No matter what the stock market does the day you retire or in the months leading up to your retirement, your benefits will be unaffected.

In addition, the Majority Leader's plan to send out Social Security certificates to seniors that claim to guarantee their Social Security benefits is disingenuous at best. Not only will sending these bogus certificates cost the taxpayers 47 million dollars, but it does absolutely nothing to guarantee that Social Security benefits will be there in the future. The Congressional Research Service has concluded that the certificates provide no more protection than already exists under law. It's not an iron-clad guarantee and Senior citizens will not be able to use these certificates in a court of law. The certificates should instead tell Seniors the truth about the Republican's plan to privatize Social Security and their reckless waste of the budget surplus, which will inevitably lead to a lack of benefits for Seniors.

Nevertheless, the Social Security program faces serious financial challenges, however, those challenges are manageable and does not require us to dismantle the system via privatization.

CHILD CUSTODY PROTECTION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. PHILIP M. CRANE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 17, 2002

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 476, the Child Custody Protection Act.

This legislation makes it a federal crime to knowingly transport a minor across state lines with the intent that she obtain an abortion, in violation of the minor's home state parental consent or notification law. Under the measure, violations of this law would be punishable by a fine of up to $100,000 and one year in prison. Any parent or guardian who suffers legal harm from the violation of a parental notification law is allowed to seek civil action for damages.

The bill includes an exception from prosecution, however, if the abortion is necessary to save the life of the minor. The bill also protects the minor from prosecution under its provisions. The measure allows individuals accused of violating this provision to defend themselves against civil and criminal actions by claiming that they believed the parents had been notified or had given their consent, as required by state law.

By way of background, it is important to note that in many states it is illegal for a school nurse to dispense so much as an aspirin to a minor without parental consent. However, absent this legislation, minors can be brought across state lines without parental consent for the express purpose of obtaining an abortion. Over-the-counter aspirin requires parental notification, but abortion does not? Mr. Speaker, how can this be?

In 1999, the House passed identical legislation by a vote of 270 to 159; unfortunately, the measure was never considered by the other body, thus necessitating its reintroduction in the 107th Congress. I commend Chairman SENSENBRENNER, Chairman CHABOT, and Congresswoman ROS-LEHTINEN for their work in crafting this urgent legislation, and I truly hope that my colleagues will join me in voting for this legislation today. As such, I urge an "aye" vote on final passage.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

THE PAST AS A PROLOGUE TO THE FUTURE—75 YEARS AFTER THE FLOOD OF 1927—

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, as we mark the 75th Anniversary of the Flood of 1927, the images that come to mind serve to remind us of how the flood affected Missouri and shaped the flood protection policies of today. Although the floodwaters of the past have receded, the lessons they have left behind are unmistakably clear.

The first major levee break during the Flood of 1927 was at the Dorena levee and has significant meaning to those living in the surrounding area because it forever changed Missouri and the entire river delta. The Dorena break alone flooded 135,000 acres of land in the St. John Levee and Drainage District, left 7,500 people homeless and overtopped the Farrenburg levee near New Madrid, flooding an additional one million acres. Overall, the break will always be remembered as part of the greatest natural disaster in American history.

When the Flood of 1927 finally subsided, the disaster had displaced 700,000 people—80,000 more people than currently live in Missouri's Eighth District today. Geographically, the flood left 26,000 square miles under water (an area roughly two times the size of the country of Switzerland), crops were destroyed, cities paralyzed, farm land ruined and more than a thousand people were dead (276 from the flood and the remainder from the sickness and disease that followed). Today, a flood of that magnitude would shut down every interstate from St. Louis south to New Orleans—running east or west.

Prior to the Flood of 1927, the river control system in place was based on a "levees only" policy, which many attribute as being partially responsible for the Flood of 1927. The policy meant that there were no outlets, reservoirs or spillways to assist in flood control. The lack of coordinated protection for water flow combined with the heavy rain and melting snow resulted in major flooding which broke the levees in more than 120 places. At a time when the federal budget barely exceeded $3 billion, the flood, directly and indirectly, caused an estimated $1 billion in property damage.

As is the case with many disasters, the Flood of 1927 prompted lawmakers to take a long look at past policy. In an attempt to learn from the flood so that they wouldn't repeat the mistakes of the past, the Flood of 1927 led to the "Flood Control Act of 1928." The plan, which gave the US Army Corps of Engineers the job of providing flood control on the Mississippi River, authorized the Jadwin Plan, or what came to be known as the Mississippi River and Tributaries Project (MR & T). This comprehensive flood control plan has four major elements—levees, floodways and control structures, channel improvements and stabilization measures, and tributary basin improvements. These elements work together to provide flood protection and navigation while simultaneously promoting environmental stewardship and restoration.

Since the establishment of MR & T in 1928, more than 87 percent of the project has been completed. This investment of nearly $11 billion has been used for planning, construction, operation and maintenance. That $11 billion has paid off—people live in safer communities protected from many of the hazards of flooding; commerce and economic development have enhanced river towns and steps have been taken to promote conservation of land while providing recreational use opportunities for communities along our nation's rivers. Perhaps most notable is that the MR & T project has prevented $258 billion in flood damages to date. It means that for every one dollar spent, we have saved $24 in flood-related damages.

It is that type of investment in the future that we continue to make as the Army Corps of Engineers works with Congress during the budget process. As was the case during the Depression and previous wars, Congress is currently faced with certain financial realities. In light of those realities, I still believe this much-needed funding is critical to ensuring that flood protection, navigation, port authority and drainage projects are completed so that lives are saved and the economic livelihood of towns up and down the river are preserved.

RECOGNIZING MR. CRAIG BAZZANI

HON. TIMOTHY V. JOHNSON

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this time to recognize Mr. Craig Bazzani for his many years of continuing service to the 15th District of Illinois. A graduate of Illinois State University, Mr. Bazzani has shown exemplary dedication to my home state. Throughout his twenty-five year tenure at the University of Illinois, Mr. Bazzani has held several key positions that have enabled him to make immense contributions to the betterment of the institution. He played an important role in the design of a major debt-financing program, introduced the first University Financial Accounting System, developed the labor relations program, assisted the University in making major strides in the provision of multiple sources of energy for its buildings and facilities, and took the initiative to modernize all of the areas that reported to him. But what leaves an even more lasting impression is the deep devotion he has shown to his co-workers, inspiring in them the necessary confidence to complete the difficult tasks with which he has been entrusted. The University will surely miss Craig's incisive and effective style of administration, but joins me in wishing him the best of luck in his retirement and all of his future endeavors. We thank him for his many years of service to the University, knowing that only the most honorable of people could ever fill his shoes.

MAKE THE MARRIAGE TAX PENALTY RELIEF PERMANENT

HON. GEORGE W. GEKAS

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to lend my strong support for making the marriage tax penalty relief permanent. Last May Congress passed historic tax relief which included marriage penalty tax relief. Unfortunately, the tax package, including the marriage tax penalty relief, is sunset to expire in 2011.

Prior to passage of the tax relief legislation, the U.S. tax code penalized over 25 million married couples, costing them an average of $1,400 in additional taxes over that of two people living together outside of marriage. This discrepancy, justifiably, became known as the "Marriage Tax Penalty."

The tax relief package passed by Congress phased out the marriage tax penalty, providing billions in tax relief over 10 years for married couples. However, due to the compromise reached with the Senate, the marriage tax penalty relief is set to expire in 2011. Thus, in 2011, once again, millions of married couples will be faced with paying more taxes simply because they are married.

Mr. Speaker, the strength of America rests on the solid foundation of the American family. For too long our federal tax policy has chipped away at that foundation. Under Republican leadership and with the leadership of President Bush, Congress has taken an important step toward reaffirming the centrality of marriage in the American society. Let's not hang the specter of future tax penalties over the heads of our current and future American families. We must eliminate the Marriage Tax Penalty once and for all.

I thank the gentleman from Illinois, my good friend Mr. Weller, for his strong and consistent advocacy of tax fairness, especially in this vital area of marriage taxes. I have been proud to fight with Mr. Weller on this issue for so long. I urge my colleagues to join me in voting to eliminating this onerous burden on marriage and make the marriage tax penalty relief permanent.

IN HONOR OF NORA E. WRIGHT

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in honor of a truly remarkable woman on the occasion of her 100th birthday celebration.

Deacon Nora E. Wright was born at the dawn of the twentieth century to the late Rev. and Mrs. Robert Brightwell in Atlanta, Georgia. She graduated from the Roth Street School and Spelman Seminary in her hometown. As the daughter of a Baptist Minister she was taught to love family and church above all else. In 1952, she joined the Berean Missionary Baptist Church under the pastorate of Dr. Hylton L. James. She has always been an active and dedicated member of her church. Deacon Wright has served as a Supervisor of the Deaconess Broad for 15 years, President of the Senior Missionary Society for 24 years, an advisor to the floral club, and a member of the Senior and Volunteer Choirs. Her religious convictions and service go far beyond her own church. In 1978, she was honored for her 44 years of service as a District Worker to 25 churches, Recording Secretary for 30 years, and as the Vice-President at large. Under the Pastorate of Dr. Arlee Griffin, Nora was consecrated as a Deacon. Extending beyond the Eastern Baptist Association, she became Chairman of the Worship Committee of the New England Convention.

Deacon Wright's work has not been limited to the church. She also organized and became the leader of the Annie G. Martin Tent # 102; she was the organizer and president of the Guiding Light Benevolent Club of Brooklyn; and Founder and Executive Director of the Ruth L. McLean Scholarship Guild. All of these groups were formed with the concept of helping others. Nora has also held positions as the Recording Secretary of the Executive Board of the Eastern District Grand Tent #3; Financial Secretary of the Brooklyn Tent Home; a member of the Past Grand Officers League of the Royal Degree Chamber #5; and Treasurer of the C.V.C. Alumni. One of her greatest accomplishments is the creation of the first Black calendar Children Preview in 1960.

Deacon Wright has been recognized for many of her accomplishments; she received a citation from the now former Brooklyn Borough President, Howard Golden; a citation of honor as an extraordinary elder from the Kings County District Attorney, the Honorable Charles J. Hynes; and a citation from former New York State Assemblyman(now Councilman), the Honorable Al Vann.

Mr. Speaker, Deacon Nora E. Wright is a wife, a mother, grandmother, great grandmother and great-great-grandmother. She has lived through experiences that most can only read about in history books and throughout she has remained a dedicated church leader, and a lover of all mankind. On the occasion of her 100th Birthday, she is more than deserving of this recognition and I urge my colleagues to join me in honoring this truly remarkable woman.

INTRODUCTION OF SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBER PROTECTION ACT OF 2002

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased today to introduce legislation that would outlaw the practice of purchasing or selling Social Security numbers.

A few years ago, a man named Liam Youens was stalking a 21-year-old New Hampshire woman named Amy Boyer. Youens reportedly purchased Amy Boyer's Social Security number from an Internet Web site for $45. Using this information, he was able to track her down, a process that he chillingly detailed on an Internet Web site that he named after his target. Finally, this demented stalker fatally shot Amy Boyer in front of the dental office where she worked. Afterwards, he turned the gun on himself.

This terrible tragedy underscores the fact that while the Social Security number was originally intended to be used only for the purposes of collecting Social Security taxes and administering the program's benefits, it has over the years evolved into a ubiquitous national personal identification number which is subject to misuse and abuse. The unregulated sale and purchase of these numbers is a significant factor in a growing range of illegal activities, including fraud, identity theft, and tragically, stalkings and now, even murders.

Today, if you open up a bank account, apply for a loan, buy insurance, get a credit card, sign up for telephone service or electric or gas utility service, you are almost invariably asked to provide a merchant with your Social Security number. Over the years, this number has become a key to verifying a person's identity. As a result, it has become increasingly clear that there are growing and serious privacy risks being created by unrestricted commerce in Social Security numbers, and resulting abuses of this number, that require immediate legislative action.

The risks and abuses associated with misuse of the Social Security number are only being magnified by the rapid growth of electronic commerce. Right now, only $5 billion of the $860 billion in annual retail sales currently occur over the Internet. But that figure will continue to grow exponentially in the future. So, the question we must ask is how are we going to adjust our laws to deal with this new medium? How will we animate the New Economy with our old values—such as our cherished right to privacy?

Today, the real privacy challenge we are facing isn't Big Brother; it's Big Browser. If you buy anything over the Internet, that information can be linked up to other personal identifiers to create disturbingly detailed digital dossiers that can profile your lifestyle, your interests, your hobbies, or your habits. We also know that the Social Security number is a critically important personal identifier that many online and offline businesses wish to obtain about consumers. Consumers who value their family's privacy, however, have a compelling interest in not allowing this number to be used to tie together bits and pieces of information in various databases into an integrated electronic profile of their interests and behavior that can be zapped around the world in a nanosecond to anyone who is willing to pay the price.

If you do a simple Internet search in which you enter the words "Social Security Numbers," you will turn up links to dozens of web sites that offer to provide you, for a fee, with social security numbers for other citizens, or to link a social security number that you might have with a name, address and telephone number. Where are the data mining firms and private detective agencies that offer these services obtaining these numbers? In all likelihood, they are accessing information from the databases of credit bureaus, financial services companies or other commercial firms.

If someone actually obtains a Social Security number from one of these sites, they have a critically important piece of information that can be used to locate the individual, get access to information about the individual's personal finances, or engage in a variety of illegal activities. By bringing a halt to unregulated commerce in Social Security numbers, the bill I am introducing today will help reduce the incidence of pretexting crimes, identity thefts and other frauds or crimes involving misuse of a person's Social Security number.

We need to take this action now if we are going to fully protect the public's right to privacy by preventing sales of Social Security numbers. That is why I am pleased today to be introducing legislation which would outlaw this practice. My bill would make it criminal for a person to sell or purchase Social Security numbers. Under the bill, the FTC would be given rulemaking authority to restrict the sale of Social Security numbers, determine appropriate exemptions, and to enforce civil compliance with the bill's restrictions. The bill would also authorize the states to enforce compliance, and provide for appropriate penalties.

I look forward to working with my House colleagues to enact this important privacy protection proposal into law.

HONORING STEVE COFFMAN

HON. JAMES P. MORAN

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor my friend, Steve Coffman, who is retiring on April 19, 2002, from the Alexandria Police Department after 33½ years of dedicated public service to the City of Alexandria.

A lifelong Alexandria City resident, Steve's dream of serving his community was realized on October 10th, 1968, when he was sworn in as Alexandria's first auxiliary police officer. Steve started his law enforcement career during a tumultuous time in our nation's history. In 1971, the Alexandria City Council voted to integrate T.C. Williams High School, a decision that was criticized by many in the community. In addition, we were in the midst of the Vietnam War, and on the domestic front, racial relations were strained and unstable. In Alexandria, it was very important for our law enforcement agents to keep the peace and restore community relations during this time.

Steve has served the law enforcement community in several capacities, most recently as one of two Polygraph Operators for Alexandria City. He has also served as a Street Patrol officer and Identification Technician.

During Steve's long and distinguished law enforcement career, he has received many accolades, including the Police Officer of the Year award, one of the Police Department's highest honors.

I join Steve's family, including his wife Patty, daughters Angie and Valerie, as well as the City of Alexandria, in congratulating and thanking Steve for his dedication to improving the lives of others and serving the needs of our community.

ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE DAY

HON. HENRY A. WAXMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, this week we celebrate Israel Independence Day, paying tribute to the shared values and goals that are the cement of strong U.S.-Israel relations. We demonstrate our unwavering support for our staunchest ally in the Middle East. We express our solidarity with the people of Israel whose vibrant democracy and brave military stand beside us on the front lines of the war against terrorism.

But even as we celebrate the miraculous achievements since the establishment of the Jewish State 54 years ago, we must recognize that Israel is still engaged in a fight for its survival.

Since Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat rejected the tremendous proposals put forward at Camp David and unleashed the current Intifada, more than 460 Israelis have been murdered and more than 3,000 wounded by vicious terrorist attacks. Proportional to our own population, that figure is staggeringly more than three times the number of those killed in the September 11th attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon.

Daily life in Israel has been torn apart by the uncertainty of when another suicide bomber will strike against innocent civilians at a pizza store, a cafe, a grocery store, a disco, or on a bus. Families have been shattered by Palestinian terrorists who have targeted Bat-mitzvah guests and mothers walking their children to synagogue.

The reason there is no cease-fire is that Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat supports the violence. He was unwilling to stop Hamas and Islamic Jihad and the documents seized by the Israeli army from Arafat's headquarters and other Palestinian Authority offices demonstrate that he actively endorses and funds the terrorist activities of his Fatah militias—the Tanzim, Force 17, and the Al-Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, which was recently added to the U.S. list of Foreign Terrorist Organizations.

The root cause of Palestinian terrorism is not settlements. It is the exhortation by the Palestinian leadership for its youth to sacrifice their own dreams of statehood to Arafat's quest for martyrdom.

The underlying source of Palestinian hatred is not Israel's acts of self defense. It is anti-Semitism indoctrinated by Palestinian textbooks and television shows that glorify murder and exalt suicide bombers.

It is shocking to me that those in Europe and at the United Nations who so harshly judge Israel have no sympathy for Israel as the victim of daily terrorism.

The war between Israelis and Palestinians is not about Arafat and Sharon. It is about the refusal of a democratic society to reward terrorism with territory. It is about a civilized society unwilling to legitimize suicide attacks as a form of political negotiation.

If Arafat can succeed, then Bin Laden can succeed. Not because they share the same goals, but because they share the same tactics.

That is why it is so critical that the United States stand with Israel in this time of crisis, strong in our resolve against those who support and justify terrorism. Israel as a sovereign nation has the right to take all measures necessary to defend its citizens, and it is in the interest of the United States to support its ability to do so.

Although President Bush has dispatched CIA Director Tenet, Senator Mitchell, General Zinni, Vice President CHENEY, and now Secretary Powell to try and restore security and stability, it is clear that no one will succeed unless Chairman Arafat renounces terrorism and starts preparing the Palestinian people for peace instead of war.

At a time when synagogues are burning in France, Saudi newspapers are launching 21st century blood libels, and a Passover Seder in Netanya can become the target of terrorist bloodshed, the existence of the State of Israel is more important now than ever.

CHILD CUSTODY PROTECTION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. DENNIS MOORE

OF KANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 17, 2002

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my strong concerns about H.R. 476. I held the same concerns when I voted against this legislation during the 106th Congress, as did many of my colleagues in the House and Senate. No effort has been made to address the valid problems with this bill in the nearly three years since we last took it up on the House floor.

This restrictive legislation would isolate a young woman at a time when she needs support the most. I absolutely believe that young women should involve parents in important life decisions. In fact, most young women do involve a parent when making a decision about abortion, however, that option is not always available. Incest, abuse and other serious family problems are a sobering reality for many in our country. In that case, a young woman should be encouraged to consult another trusted adult, such as another family member, a medical provider or a religious counselor—this bill makes that virtually impossible and even criminal.

Under this bill, grandparents, older siblings, religious leaders, and other responsible adults could face prosecution, imprisonment, fines, or civil suits for coming to the aid of a young woman during her time of need. The true absurdity of this legislation can be summed up in this astonishing example: A father molests his young daughter and the young woman goes to her grandmother for help. Should the young woman obtain an abortion in another state, this bill could give the father standing to sue in a civil court and could make the grandmother liable for $100,000 in damages and a year in prison.

In addition, this bill is dangerously overbroad. The law would apply to anyone having peripheral involvement in the minor's abortion, even if the person was not acquainted with the bill's legal provisions or even aware of the minor crossing state lines.

I supported a Motion to Recommit that would have sent this flawed bill back to the committee with the recommendation that the legislation exempt grandparents and adult siblings from the bill. This Motion would have provided young women with at least a minimal safety net of family members. It failed by a vote of 173–246.

Mr. Speaker, I will continue to oppose legislation that will endanger young women's lives and health by isolating those who cannot involve a parent. We should encourage young women to turn to other family members when they cannot turn to their parents, and Congress has no business criminalizing that.

PHILIP E. RUPPE POST OFFICE BUILDING

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to express my thoughts about a gentleman of distinction, who served his constituents from Northern Michigan for six terms. Philip Edward Ruppe was born in Houghton County, Michigan where his family lived since the 1870's. He attended Central Michigan University and the University of Michigan for two years after which he received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Yale University in 1948. He served our Nation as a lieutenant (junior grade) in the Navy during the Korean conflict.

After his service in the Navy, Mr. Ruppe became the president of the Bosch Brewing Company for ten years, served as director of the Houghton National Bank, the Commercial National Bank of L'Anse and R. L. Polk and Company.

In January 1967, the people of Northern Michigan elected Mr. Ruppe as their representative until 1979, when he ran for the United States Senate. As a member of the United States House of Representatives, Congressman Ruppe served on the Committee on Merchant Marines and Fisheries and was ranking member of the Interior and Insular Affairs Committees. He dedicated his time to constituent services and economic development in the Upper Peninsula.

I want to recognize and thank the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK) who thoughtfully introduced H.R. 1374, designating the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 600 Calumet Street in Lake Linden, Michigan, as the "Philip E. Ruppe Post Office". It is most appropriate to name a post office to honor Philip Ruppe who represented his constituents most ably during his tenure in Congress. Congressman Ruppe and his late wife, Loret Ruppe, who was a well-loved and respected director of the Peace Corps and Ambassador to Norway, were dedicated parents to their daughters and imparted the importance of public service to them.

I have been privileged to know both Loret and Phil. Phil still resides in Bethesda, Maryland, and I am delighted to have him as a constituent and wish him the best in life.

PENSION SECURITY ACT OF 2002

HON. NITA M. LOWEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose this legislation, and in support of the Democratic alternative.

Millions of working Americans are watching what we do here today. They are watching to see just whose side we're on. They want to see whether we will do something to prevent another Enron. They want to know whether their retirement savings are truly safe.

With this bill, we know who the Republican leadership would protect. This bill is a get out of jail free card. It doesn't protect pensions, it protects those who would prosper on the backs of their employees.

This bill keeps employees off pension boards. It limits the ability of employees to collect damages when the misconduct of company officials costs them their life savings. It forces employees to keep stock matches in 401(k) plans for three years after each match, while executives are held to no such limit. This bill even allows companies to offer investment advice from the same firm that administers the company's 401(k) plan.

Mr. Speaker, in light of the thousands of Enron employees who have worthless stock certificates to show for their years of hard work, this bill is an outrage.

The Democratic alternative provides real protection. Employees should have the same control over their retirement accounts as executives, and should have the same access to unbiased, independent investment advice. Our bill levels the playing field between executives and employees, giving employees full control of their retirement accounts. And, executives would be held fully accountable when they violate pension rights.

Mr. Speaker, you say you're on the side of the American people. But, as the saying goes, actions speak louder than words, and your bill hurts the working families of this Nation. Vote no on the underlying bill and yes on the Democratic alternative.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES
ON H.R. 2646, FARM SECURITY ACT OF 2001

SPEECH OF

HON. MAX SANDLIN

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, April 17, 2002

Mr. SANDLIN. Mr. Speaker, I commend the Agriculture Committee Chairman COMBEST and Ranking Member STENHOLM for the skill and hard work they have put into crafting the Farm Security Act. I would also like to commend the Conferees of the House Agricultural Committee for their continued efforts to work toward agreement on a farm bill that is good for America's farmers. I want to thank them for the great sensitivity to and understanding of the needs of our nation's farmers.

This motion to instruct goes against that understanding and, thus, I rise in strong opposition to this motion and urge all my colleagues to vote against it.

The presentation of this motion is unnecessarily repetitive in nature. The Members of the House of Representatives have already voted on this issue. During House consideration of the Farm Security Act, an amendment containing this language failed by a bipartisan vote of 238–187.

Mr. Speaker, one thing I can count on hearing every time I return home is that our farmers need help this year. Our farming families put everything they have on the line every year to feed America. America's families never got the economic boon that swept the nation in the late 1990's.

This year, good weather worldwide has created commodity surpluses and driven down the price that farmers get for their crops. The U.S. dollar also remains strong relative both to our competitors and customers, making U.S. crops more expensive and less competitive. U.S. producers continue to compete on an uneven playing field, facing much higher tariffs on our exports to other countries than other countries face on their exports to us.

The goal of our farm policy should be to provide a safety net so the American agricultural sector survives through these difficult times. This motion to recommit would limit payments for commodity programs and is a slap in the face to those families.

Furthermore, this motion unjustly deters the Conferees efforts to resolve funding levels for conservation and research programs. This motion claims to increase conservation programs as if it is a new idea, when, in fact, the Conferees have already allotted an eighty-percent increase in funding.

I urge my colleagues to reject this unnecessary and disruptive motion and to stand aside and let the Conferees continue their hard work on the conference committee.

IN SUPPORT OF THE COMMISSION OF THE CONGRESSIONAL GOLD MEDAL ON BEHALF OF DR.
DOROTHY I. HEIGHT

HON. DIANE E. WATSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Ms. WATSON of California. Mr. Speaker, for two hundred and twenty-six years, the United States Congress has expressed its highest regard for exemplary and extraordinary accomplishments by awarding the Congressional Gold Medal to its most outstanding citizens. It is now time to include among these laureates Dr. Dorothy Height, lifelong social worker, internationally known and respected human rights activist, who celebrated her 90th birthday earlier this year.

Dorothy Height, whose public service career spans over 65 years, has created an enviable legacy of advocacy and leadership in the cause of social justice for the whole nation, and particularly in her advocacy for the needs and rights of women, children, and families. She has constantly inspired others, from the poor to world leaders, to achieve at the highest level. As an advisor to Presidents through their First Ladies, Dr. Height has effected significant change in the lives of not only African-American women, but all women and their loved ones. She counseled Eleanor Roosevelt and prodded President Eisenhower to desegregate the nation's schools. She pressed President Johnson to appoint black women to sub-cabinet posts. As one of the "Big Six" civil rights leaders, she was the only woman at the table when Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and others made plans for the civil rights movement.

Dr. Height's many achievements and her distinguished service to the Nation and world has earned her over 50 awards and honors from local and State governments as well as the Federal Government, including the following:

In 1965, she received the John F. Kennedy Memorial Award from the National Council of Jewish Women.

For her contributions in interfaith, interracial and ecumenical movements for over thirty years, she was awarded the Ministerial Interfaith Association Award in 1969.

In 1968, she received the Lovejoy Award, the highest recognition by the Grand Lodge. Elks of the World for outstanding contribution to human relations.

In 1974, Ladies Home Journal named her "Woman of the Year" in recognition of her work for human rights;

The Congressional Black Caucus presented her with the William L. Dawson Award for decades of public service to people of color and particularly women.

For her tireless efforts on behalf of the less fortunate, President Ronald Reagan presented Dr. Height the Citizens Medal Award for distinguished service in 1989, the year she also received the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Freedom Medal from the Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt Institute.

In 1994, President Bill Clinton presented her with the Presidential Medal of Freedom Award.

Other awards include:

1993 Springarn Medal from the NAACP;

1993 Induction into the National Women's Hall of Fame;

1990 Oleander Foundation's Generous Heart Award;

1990 Camille Cosby World of Children Award;

1987 Essence Award;

1990 Steller Award.

Dorothy Height has sought no reward, because her monumental achievements were comfort and compensation enough. But this Congress and the nation owe her a debt of gratitude and should commission a Gold Medal for all her contributions. In her own words, 'I want to be remembered as someone who used herself and anything she could touch to work for justice and freedom. I want to be remembered as one who tried.'

It is with knowledge of your enthusiastic support of these noble causes that we respectfully request your endorsement of this measure. Please contact Alice Holmes at 202-225-7086.

HONORING THE STATE OF ISRAEL
ON THE OCCASION OF ITS 54TH INDEPENDENCE DAY

HON. KEN BENTSEN

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the State of Israel and join in sending our good wishes to the people of Israel, on occasion of Israel's 54th year of independence. Regrettably, commemoration of this important milestone comes at one of the darkest and most isolated points in Israel's 54-year history. All over Israel, the traditional celebratory activities have been canceled due to increased security risks due to an unprecedented wave of suicide bombings that has struck almost every corner of the country since the intifada commenced.

Mr. Speaker, every year Israelis stand and memorialize the soldiers who have given their lives so that Israelis can continue to live free in their land, and the next day Israelis celebrate their independence. It is no coincidence that Israel's Memorial Day and Independence Day are observed side-by-side. For far too many years in Israel's history, death and independence have been inexorably linked. Only on Independence Day during the nearly disastrous Yom Kippur War of 1973 do Israelis recall being so threatened, and even then the fighting was among soldiers at the front who could be reasonably certain their wives and children were not in imminent danger.

Mr. Speaker, in a recently-published poll conducted by Israel's largest daily newspaper, Yediot Aharonot, 53% Israelis said they would be afraid to celebrate Independence Day in an open public place and definitely would not do so. Living with the threat of terror is a new reality for America after September 11th. Israelis have had to live with the threat of violence almost every day, which has intensified since January 2002.

Mr. Speaker, the breakdown of the peace process in the Middle East and the recent escalation of violence should be a matter of great concern to the United States. The United States' close friendship with Israel dates back to May 14, 1948, when President Harry S. Truman announced our recognition of this new nation, within moments of its declaring independence. Since that time, the United States has, time-and-again, offered its support to Israel in its struggle to survive and has played in advancing the peace process. As history has shown, strong U.S. leadership, particularly from the President, is necessary if there is to be any progress toward Mideast peace. That is why Presidents Nixon, Ford, Carter, Reagan, Bush, Clinton and now Bush, have all involved themselves in the quest for an end to the conflict. Today, the challenge is to help guide Israel and its Palestinian neighbors back on the path for peace.

Mr. Speaker, on this important day, I think it is instructive to look back at what the late Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said, when he received his Nobel Peace Prize in 1994, to understand Israel's struggle for peace. "We will pursue the course of peace with determination and fortitude. We will not let up. We will not give in. Peace will triumph over all its enemies, because the alternative is grimmer for us all. And we will prevail."

Mr. Speaker, my greatest hope for Israel on its 54th Day of Independence is the realization of its greatest hope—to live in peace with its neighbors with security for its people.

NEW THOUGHTS TO MEET THE CHALLENGES ON TERRORISM

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, this Saturday, thousands of American citizens will gather in Washington, DC to challenge the open-ended war the United States is now waging. They are right to do so, and the broader American public would do well to listen.

Congress authorized a police action to apprehend the conspirators behind the September 11 attack. Congress did not declare war because the President did not ask Congress to declare war. Yet, the Administration is conducting itself as if it were engaged in a declared war, sending military special operations forces to many new countries and ramping up defense spending. The Administration's budget contains real, inflation-adjusted spending increases only for military spending. Non-military spending is projected to remain flat, and funding for many important programs is decreased, in spite of growing unmet needs. The list of national priorities from which the Administration has taken away federal funds includes education, housing for the elderly, health care, and transportation.

This war footing will ultimately make the world a more dangerous place. Already, the Administration has derailed efforts to negotiate the termination of North Korea's missile program and undermined efforts by President Khatami and other pro-reform Iranians to moderate the policies of Islamic fundamentalists in Iran. The Administration's unilateral intention to withdraw from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty, its abandonment of efforts to pass a Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty, and its refusal to negotiate enforcement mechanisms for the Biological Weapons Convention will only compound this instability.

The protestors are also concerned about having civil liberties and basic rights undermined at home. The USA PATRIOT Act, which 65 of my colleagues and I opposed, allows widespread wiretapping and internet surveillance without judicial supervision. It also allows secret searches without a warrant and gives the Attorney General the power to determine what is and isn't a domestic terrorist group. The law allows the U.S. government to imprison suspected terrorists for an indefinite period of time without due process or access to family members or lawyers. Last November, the President announced his intention to establish military tribunals as well. The Administration remains confused about extending internationally recognized treatment under the Geneva Convention.

The protestors' central observation is that these actions will likely have the opposite effect of what is intended—U.S. efforts intended to quell international terrorism will provoke more of it. History is replete with the unintended and counterproductive consequences of U.S. action: the U.S.-led embargo of Iraq, which has led to the deaths of thousands of Iraqi civilians, has solidified Saddam Hussein's hold on power. Our government secretly sponsored anti-Soviet fundamentalists in Afghanistan and this led to the rise of the Taliban and their harboring of Osama bin Laden.

The path to ending terrorism, whether by individuals, organizations or nation states, is a foreign or domestic policy based on social and economic justice—not corporate concerns. This is the hopeful premise of H.R. 2459, a bill to create a Department of Peace. This Cabinet-level Department would serve to promote nonviolence as an organizing principle in our society. We should treat others as we would want them to treat us. We should follow international law, if we want others to do so. We should practice non-violence and encourage non-violent conflict resolution whenever possible. We should stop supporting repressive regimes, if we want democracy to flourish.

But that is not the path the Administration has chosen. Those gathering in Washington, DC believe we cannot stop terrorism with an open-ended, permanent war. They believe the time has come for new thinking in meeting the challenges of terrorism. I believe they are right.

INTRODUCTION OF TWO DUTY SUSPENSION BILLS

HON. JUDY BIGGERT

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing two pieces of legislation that will suspend the duties on two specific products imported into the United States. Both are chemicals used in the production of agricultural herbicides.

Among the first herbicides to be registered in the United States, 2,4-Dichlorophenoxyacetic acid, otherwise referred to as 2,4-D, is used principally by farmers to help protect crops from damage caused by weeds. In addition to agricultural applications, 2,4-D has been widely used to control broadleaf and woody plants on rangelands, lawns, golf courses, forests, roadways, and parks.

The other chemical, 2-Methyl-4-chlorophenoxyacetic acid, otherwise referred to as MCPA, is also an agricultural herbicide, but controls a slightly different spectrum of weeds. It was developed in the 1940's, and has been used since then to effectively control a wide variety of broadleaf weeds in cereals, grasses, flax, and non-crop areas.

Both chemicals are advantageous because they offer: broad spectrum weed control; low toxicity; low environmental persistence; little evidence of weed resistance following decades of use; and relative cost advantages over other chemical and non-chemical methods of weed control. In their long history, these chemicals have been tested according to modern standards and continue to meet regulatory acceptability.

So why is it appropriate to suspend the duties on these two chemicals?

First and foremost, MCPA is not produced in the United States, so a duty on foreign imports of this product only burdens American businesses. As for 2,4-D, only our trading partners with Normal Trade Relations currently pay the duty on this product; the majority of imports enter the United States duty-free under the Generalized System of Preferences. In this way, the duty undesirably discriminates against our good trading partners, and therefore should be suspended.

Cost is another reason to suspend the duty on these chemicals. Reducing costs is paramount in today's depressed agricultural sector. This bill helps agriculture producers and consumers in this effort by suspending the duty on critical herbicide inputs. In addition to helping farmers reduce their costs, this legislation would benefit the financially pressed federal, state, county and municipal government agencies that use these chemicals to maintain our roads, forests, rangelands, and parks.

The cost of inputs is such an important factor affecting the global agricultural economy that a proposal will be considered during the next WTO multilateral round of international trade negotiations to make all major agricultural inputs duty free. This "Zero for Zero" initiative will relieve agricultural producers and consumers from the unnecessary and burdensome costs of numerous duties. In light of this development, the legislation I introduce today is timely.

By suspending the duty on two chemicals, these bills lift a costly burden from American businesses, stop the discrimination against our close trading partners, and reduce input costs for agriculture consumers and producers. I urge my colleagues to support both bills, and I look forward to working with the Ways and Means Committee to include these bills in comprehensive duty suspension legislation that the Trade Subcommittee will consider in the near future.

HONORING ARTHUR AND CLARICE
WORTZEL ON MARTHA'S VINEYARD

HON. WILLIAM D. DELAHUNT

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Speaker, when Arthur and Clarice Wortzel are honored this Sunday on Martha's Vineyard, it will be with mixed feelings. We will wish the Wortzels well as they embark on their new life in Wisconsin; but we will miss the boundless community spirit which has characterized their years on the Island.

The Wortzels made Martha's Vineyard their home after many decades in the Foreign Service of the United States. Over the course of his distinguished career, Arthur Wortzel took on a variety of sensitive assignments. Mr. Wortzel and his wife, Clarice, became engaging ambassadors of American interests and values.

After retirement, the Wortzels put their skill and resolve to work for the benefit of the year-round community on Martha's Vineyard—from Community Services to the Foundation for Island Health, from the Dukes County Health Advisory Council to the Martha's Vineyard Hebrew Center. No task was too small for their kindness; no task was too large for their talent.

We're delighted the Wortzels can join their three children and their families in Wisconsin. We wish the Wortzels well and look forward to staying in close touch. Our community is better for their commitment, and we'll miss their wit, warmth and wisdom until their first visit back to the Island.

RECOGNIZING A CENTURY OF SERVICE BY THE EL MONTE WOMEN'S CLUB

HON. HILDA L. SOLIS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the El Monte Women's Club as they celebrate their Centennial Anniversary of service to the community.

On April 18, 1902, 34 women converted a three-year old Shakespearean Club into the El Monte Women's Club. A year later, the El Monte Women's Club became chartered as a San Gabriel Valley District, California Federation of Women's Clubs. The guiding principle of the Club is to unite women's clubs and like organizations throughout the world to benefit and promote their common interests in education, public welfare, moral values, civic, and fine arts.

Throughout its 100 years, the El Monte Women's Club has instituted a tradition of community service benefiting the residents of El Monte. Today, the club is the largest non-denominational women's volunteer service organization in the city. Members of the club are largely women that take great pride in their commitment to provide scholarships for youth in the community.

Among the many programs sponsored by the club, the El Monte Women's Club actively sponsors programs on gerontology, environmental issues, and DARE Red Ribbon celebrations. Membership in the El Monte Women's Club today consists of 65 women dedicated to serving the community's needs, while providing opportunities to develop personal leadership skills, educating the public, stimulating civic consciousness and commemorating women's history.

It gives me great pride to honor and congratulate the El Monte Women's Club for its 100 years of contributions to the community.

CEDAR FALLS TO RECEIVE A 2002 GREAT AMERICAN MAIN STREET AWARD

HON. JIM NUSSLE

OF IOWA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to share some good news about a well-deserved award bestowed recently upon Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation rightfully chose Cedar Falls to receive a 2002 Great American Main Street Award. The award recognizes America's best efforts in historic preservation-based commercial district revitalization.

Mr. Speaker, as someone who has seen first hand what this community has accomplished on behalf of its citizens, let me assure you that this honor is wholly deserved.

Like many American communities, Cedar Falls experienced a loss of jobs during the 1980s. By 1987, Cedar Falls' historic business district was in trouble and nearly vacant. Although committed to their downtown business district, the community struggled with a long-term revitalization plan.

Today, only two storefronts are empty. Today, downtown Cedar Falls is an attractive, vibrant place to work and visit.

The Cedar Falls Community Main Street program helped bring the community back to life. The program supported inter-agency partnerships and the lead economic development partner in the community.

Due to the dedication of the Cedar Falls Community Main Street downtown development group over the last 15 years, the area has seen a net gain of 237 new jobs, 306 building renovations or improvements, with $8.2 million in private funds invested in rehabilitation and another $5.6 million in property acquisition. The group includes downtown merchants, lifelong residents, and newcomers who have discovered the newly preserved and revitalized community.

I offer my sincere congratulations on this award to the Cedar Falls residents who had the vision and dedication to make such a dramatic difference in their community.

HONORING MILTON FISHER

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. DARLENE HOOLEY

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the life and legacy of one of our Nation's leading sportsmen and environmentalists. Milton Lee Fischer, of Nehalem, Oregon, recently passed away in a traffic accident near his home in Nehalem.

Milton, who was a California native, was one of the top fly-fishing guides in the world. He was also a fierce advocate for maintaining and improving the health of the streams he fished. Despite the large number of trout and steelhead that he caught, Milton nearly always released the fish, including hatchery fish. Milton's fly-fishing guests would be treated to lessons in conservation and biology, at the same time learning from his expert fly-fishing technique.

Milton used a slack-line fly-fishing technique developed in California for catching small stream trout that very few people are able to master. When most anglers would hang up their fly rods for the winter steelhead season, Milton would still be leading trips along the small streams of Oregon's northern coast.

The Oregonian newspaper quoted him as saying, "You give me equal conditions and I think I have as good or better chance of hooking a winter steelhead as anyone with bait. In fact, I'll follow you downriver and still find the fish." Milton's confidence came from his long hours spent perfecting his casting, as well as his broad knowledge of the biology and ecology of the rivers he fished. His business, River House and Pleasure Outfitters, was a favorite among fishermen and sportsmen across the country, including Oregon Governor John Kitzhaber.

Mr. Speaker, very few people rise to the top of their profession. The consensus among both amateur and professional anglers is that Milton Fischer was among a handful of the most elite fly-fishermen in the world. Please join me in honoring the memory of this outstanding American.

HONORING CLIFTON J. SHIPMAN FOR COMMUNITY SERVICE

HON. CHARLES H. TAYLOR

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor one of Western North Carolina's most outstanding citizens, Mr. Clifton J. Shipman of Hendersonville, on the occasion of his receiving the first-ever Community Service Award given by the Hendersonville Merchants and Business Association. On Wednesday, April 17th, 2002, the civic and business leaders of Hendersonville gathered to pay tribute to Cliff's character, entrepreneurship, generosity and community service in bestowing upon him this prestigious award. Clifton J. Shipman truly exemplifies the best combination of the American spirit of enterprise coupled with service to his community, and the following newspaper story gives an account of why he is held in such high esteem.

[From the Hendersonville Times-News, Apr. 18, 2002]

SHIPMAN RECEIVES FIRST COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD

(By Jim Wooldridge)

HENDERSONVILLE, NC.—A local entrepreneur, known as much for his modesty as for his business success, won the first ever Community Service Award given Wednesday night by the Hendersonville Merchants & Business Association.

Clifton J. Shipman, 79, owner of the Chariot and the Cedars, plus much of the property on both sides of Seventh Avenue downtown, was chosen unanimously for the award, said presenter Carolyn Swanner.

"In reviewing his record, we found he started more than 25 businesses here and was operating 15 of them at the same time," Swanner said. "And that was before we had computers."

A third-generation native, Shipman started his enterprises between the time he ended his World War II service in 1946 and his partial retirement five years ago. He was probably best known, she said, for Clifton's Cafeteria at the corner of Church Street and Seventh Avenue. The building is now the Chariot, a dining room for private meetings and for most of the Hendersonville civic clubs.

"The impressive thing about Cliff was his extraordinary modesty," said Mac Drake, a lifelong acquaintance who got his first job from Shipman. "He never sought recognition for charitable work that touched so many people." An example, he said, was Shipman's giving the former Lutheran church building across Church Street from the Chariot to the Reformation Presbyterian Church.

His first business was the Hendersonville Riding Stables and Saddle Club, which offered not only horseback riding but three dances a week, many featuring big-name orchestras such as "Les Brown and His Band of Renown."

This property, on State Street, was Clifton's home until he bought a farm in Flat Rock several years ago. A barn on the property is the theater for the Hendersonville Little Theater company. He opened a newsstand in 1948 in the Brooks Building on Third Avenue West. It was named The Smoke Shop and was popular with young people, Swanner said. He opened his first restaurant, Clifton's, in the same building in 1950.

In 1951, he leased Hendersonville's public swimming pool on Washington Street and ran it until 1954, when he sold it to the American Legion. He started the Smokehouse restaurant on Asheville Highway in 1954, a business which today is the Quarter House.

He leased Boyd Park in 1954 and built a miniature golf course, tennis courts, shuffleboard courts, and a dance pavilion. In 1958 he leased Jump-off Rock from the Town of Laurel Park and built another dance pavilion, this one with picnic area and gift shop.

Shipman converted a gasoline service station on the Asheville Highway into Hendersonville's first fast-food restaurant. It was a huge success, Swanner said, because burgers, fries and milkshakes were priced at 19 cents; soft drinks, 5 cents.

Started in 1959, this restaurant was named the Hasty Tasty. He built a new building for it in 1962 on the corner of Church Street and Eighth Avenue East. The building cost $3,800 and Shipman sold enough 19-cent burgers to pay for it in four weeks, Swanner continued.

The Chicken Shack restaurant was another converted service station he operated in on Seventh Avenue West until 1995. It is now used as a bus stop.

Concentrating on Church Street, Shipman built his Minit Carwash in 1966 and the cafeteria two years later. Using the cafeteria's cooking capability, he bought the Chariot building on Seventh Avenue in 1970 and made it the main meeting place for service organizations.

He bought the Cedars in 1976 and spent two years restoring the former mansion as a location for wedding receptions and dinner meetings. His last major purchase was the former post office, now called the Federal Building, at the corner of Church Street and Fourth Avenue East.

LETTER FROM MICHAEL HAYHURST, PARTNER IN BOISE, IDAHO, OFFICE OF ARTHUR AN-DERSEN

HON. C.L. "BUTCH" OTTER

OF IDAHO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to place into the public record the views of my constituent, Michael Hayhurst of Boise, Idaho. Michael is a partner in the Boise office of Arthur Andersen and is deeply concerned for the future of his firm and the well being of his fellow employees and their families. I urge the Administration and others who are pursuing the wrongdoers in the Enron collapse to remember that all of their actions impact the innocent as well. It is my fervent hope that a just settlement can be found that will ensure that the guilty are adequately punished, retirees are protected, and innocent men and women can maintain their jobs and careers.

ARTHUR ANDERSEN, LLP,
Boise, ID, March 15, 2002.

U.S. Rep. BUTCH OTTER,
Longworth House Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR U.S. REPRESENTATIVE BUTCH OTTER:
As one of your constituents, I would like you to consider the following:

I am a partner of the Boise office of Arthur Andersen. I was admitted to the partnership on September 1, 2001 (last fall) and find it necessary to provide information to you about our Firm's current situation and myself.

I was born and raised in Idaho. I grew up in American Falls—a town of 3,000 people, just west of Pocatello. As one would expect for an accountant, I was somewhat of a bookworm and did not participate much in the party scene in school. I was, however, able to maintain a 4.0 GPA (there was no extra credit for college prep courses at that time) and graduate as a co-valedictorian of the class of 1984. As an aside, I am also an Eagle Scout.

I attended Idaho State University for my higher education and graduated in 1990 with a double major in accounting and finance. My college time was extended as I received a Rotary scholarship to study in Australia between my junior and senior year. Throughout college, I maintained a 3.93 GPA and attained the highest score in the state of Idaho on the CPA exam for individuals sitting for the exam the spring of 1990.

I started my career with Arthur Andersen June 3, 1990. I was, and still am, very proud to be able to work with as fine of people as I have had the opportunity to work with over the last 11 years with Arthur Andersen. I also am very proud of the history and the culture of our firm. The coordinated attack on our name and our people by congress and the media does not do justice to, or represent the true side of my firm or the 85,000 outstanding individuals in my firm (28 thousand of whom are located in the United States).

The rules we operate under have gotten increasingly complex since I started with the Firm. This includes both the accounting rules under which our clients are required to report financial information and the auditing rules and standards under which we attempt to provide reasonable assurance that those financial statements are materially correct. I will not bore you with the details, but I can assure you that I have spent and continue to spend a significant amount of my time staying up-to-date on these rules and that I come to work every day with nothing but the intention of doing what is right. I always strive to do the best job that I can, for my Firm, my clients and the users of their financial statements.

Also over the last eleven years, I have become increasingly involved in the community of which I am a part. I am currently acting as the Treasurer of Fundsy, Inc., the Ore-Ida Council of Boy Scouts and the Boise River Festival. Not only do I commit a significant amount of time to these activities (much of which is during my workday and using Firm resources—our culture has always been to give back to our communities, which the Firm wholeheartedly supports with monetary and other resources for our people) but I also contribute monetarily to these and other civic causes in the community.

After being with Anderson for one year, I met an R.N. working for St. Luke's RMC and we were married one year later. We now have two children. My oldest son is five and will be starting kindergarten next fall. He is in swimming lessons at the local Y and this spring and summer will participate in Y-Ball (basketball) and T-Ball. My youngest son is three and will begin preschool next fall. We just found out that our youngest son has amblyopia. He will now be wearing glasses and may have to patch his eye after the next visit to the optometrist. My wife still works as an R.N. and somehow finds time to keep all of the men in her life under some semblance of control.

I am trying to put a face on Arthur Andersen for you, my representatives to our government, so that you understand that Andersen is made up of people. The abridged story above plays itself out 40 times, the number of professionals we have in our Boise office, locally and over 28 thousand times in communities across the United States. All of us are individuals at various stages in our careers. Over 99% of our professionals in the United States have never worked on, or had anything to do with, the Enron audit.

As I signed my Partner Agreement on September 1, I have had to come to the realization that the loan I took out at that time to provide my capital contribution to the Firm will likely not be repaid from funds out of my capital account, I can live with that. What I cannot live with is the potential impact that the Department of Justice's position will have on my people in this office. This is not "justice" and has prompted me to write to you. I am an American and as we have all seen after the events of September 11, we can only be unjustly beaten down and pushed around so long before we find ourselves in a position of having to fight back.

Our position is that we are not guilty, therefore we will not plead guilty. Also, we believe that a fair reading of the facts is summarized in the attached letter and our law firm's report on its investigation into the document destruction matter would lead anyone to the conclusion that this indictment, and the manner in which it is being pursued, is nothing but a gross abuse of power that is being orchestrated for political reasons.

Normally, I would say, "let the courts decide." However, the risk of enforcing a death sentence on over 86,000 careers (28,000 in the U.S.)—which has been amply pointed out in the media—without ever having the opportunity for this to reach a free hearing in trial, along with the fact that we have been completely forthcoming and cooperative throughout this process and that we have agreed to significant changes without the enforcement of criminal charges, makes this an unconscionable act by my government's officials.

Please take the time to read the following information. I would be happy to answer any questions you may have or provide additional information if necessary. You may reach me at 208-387-4029.

Thank you for your time.

Very truly yours,

MICHAEL L. HAYHURST.

VETERANS' MAJOR MEDICAL FACILITIES CONSTRUCTION ACT OF 2002

HON. JERRY MORAN

OF KANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. MORAN of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, as Chairman of the Subcommittee on Health of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, today I and Ranking Democratic Member, Mr. FILNER of California, introduce a bill to authorize the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to complete ten construction projects to improve, renovate, and update Veterans Affairs medical centers across the country.

These older VA medical centers are in dire need of repair, and our veterans need and deserve quality health care in modern, well maintained, and safe buildings. The Veterans' Major Medical Facilities Construction Act is an important step that would provide authority to the Secretary to move forward on VA's highest construction priorities without further delay. The bill authorizes appropriations for each project, and limits each project to not exceed the level authorized. The total amount authorized for these projects is $285 million. The House VA Health Subcommittee will hold a hearing on this proposal on April 24th.

The VA medical facilities receiving seismic upgrades and corrections or seismic bracing and anchorage of non-structural items include facilities in Palo Alto, San Francisco, West Los Angeles, Long Beach, and San Diego, California. These upgrades will bring each facility into conformance with current VA seismic standards. Completion of these construction projects will eliminate significant safety risks.

Cleveland, Ohio's VA medical facility's mechanical and electrical systems will be replaced. Installed in 1961, they are in dire need of attention. Anchorage, Alaska's project involves the construction of a new combined Veterans Affairs Department of Defense facility, which will help address the workload and provide space for additional personnel. This project reflects our interest in having these two departments share health resources under Public Law 97-174, the Veterans Administration and Department of Defense Health Resources Sharing and Emergency Operations Act. The VA Medical Center in West Haven, Connecticut will see a variety of improvements: renovations to inpatient wards to correct patient privacy inadequacies, consolidation of support services, and corrections to deficiencies in air quality, ADA accessibility, and the general safety of patients and staff.

The construction project for the VA medical facility in Tampa, Florida will relocate three Spinal Cord Injury (SCI) inpatient wards and ancillary support functions to the new SCI building just dedicated in February 2002. This will allow for more space and further expansion of the facility.

The authorization level of $285 million is included in the resolution on the budget approved by the House on March 20, 2002. Mr.

Speaker, I am very pleased and encouraged that the budget resolution the House approved included the funding necessary for this bill. I especially want to thank the Budget Committee Chairman, Mr. NUSSLE, and the Ranking Member, Mr. SPRATT, for their understanding and support of these critical construction needs in the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to cosponsor and favorably consider this measure to improve the hospitals and clinics in which veterans receive their health care. We have no greater responsibility than to ensure VA facilities are safe and up-to-date. This bill will aid us in that effort and I am proud to introduce it and urge its early passage.

NATIVE AMERICAN SACRED SITES

HON. NEIL ABERCROMBIE

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, Native American sacred lands are under attack as never before in this country and we must work together and be willing to put teeth into legislation to protect these lands once and for all.

The Native Hawaiians in my district are very spiritual and instinctively honor that which we receive from nature. Indeed the goddess of fire, "Pele" working through the volcanoes created most of the great State of Hawaii. She is still very active and very honored.

There are specific areas in my state which are sacred to the Native Hawaiians. Although the areas do not have a large steeple or white-washed fence around them, they nonetheless deserve to be respected and protected.

We have begun remediation on the sacred island of Kahoolawe and protected it from further destruction as a military bombing range. But there is so much more to be done.

The problem is that we have a few laws that dance around the idea of protecting native sacred lands which use words like "consultation" or "accommodate" but are inadequate to simply stop potential desecration.

Occasionally, we are able to stop the mining of one sacred site, or the demolition of another. But the time has come for Congress to enact strong legislation to protect Native American sacred lands.

HONORING REVEREND ROBERT R. BLYTHE FOR HIS SPIRITUAL GUIDANCE

HON. ERNIE FLETCHER

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 18, 2002

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, today, I rise to honor Reverend Robert R. Blythe for his life-long commitment to the educational and spiritual development of residents in Richmond, Kentucky and the surrounding communities.

Born and raised in Richmond, Reverend Blythe is a shining product of the local public school system. He was educated in the Richmond School System before earning his bachelor's degree in math education at Eastern Kentucky University, where he was elected President of the class of 1971.

Following graduation, he went home to the local school system to begin his distinguished teaching career. He was named the Jaycees Outstanding Young Educator in 1974, and he received the Jaycees Outstanding Young Man of America Award in both 1978 and in 1985.

In 1981, Reverend Blythe joined the First Baptist Church in Richmond as their Pastor; he was a worthy shepherd to lead the local flock. In 1986, he received his Master of Divinity with Pastoral Emphasis from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky.

Reverend Blythe taught at Madison High School in Richmond and at Madison Southern High School in Berea as a mathematics and French instructor. He continues to educate Kentucky's future as a mathematics instructor at his alma mater, Eastern Kentucky University.

Reverend Blythe has had a significant impact on the Richmond community and its residents. He has served on the Kentucky Human Rights Commission, the Youth Leadership Madison County Advisory Committee and the Governor's Health Care Data Commission. He continues to serve as the President of the Madison County Branch of the NAACP.

Mr. Speaker, Reverend Blythe represents what is right about America. He demonstrates a willingness to sacrifice his own needs to foster and improve the lives of others. I am convinced that the lives of Central Kentucky residents have been and will continue to be blessed by Reverend Blythe's presence. I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Reverend Blythe for his twenty years of service at the First Baptist Church and for his life-long service to the residents of Richmond, Kentucky.

provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed at one time. ¶Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available through GPO Access at www.gpo.gov/gpoaccess. Customers can also access this information with WAIS client software, via telnet at swais.access.gpo.gov, or dial-in using communications software and a modem at (202) 512-1661. Questions or comments regarding this database or GPO Access can be directed to the GPO Access User Support Team at: E-Mail: gpoaccess@gpo.gov; Phone 1-888-293-6498 (toll-free), 202-512-1530 (D.C. area); Fax: 202-512-1262. The Team's hours of availability are Monday through Friday, 7:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, except Federal holidays. ¶The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $211.00 for six months, $422.00 per year, or purchased for $5.00 per issue, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $141.00 per year, or purchased for $1.50 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. To place an order for any of these products, visit the U.S. Government Online Bookstore at: bookstore.gpo.gov. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O.
