The House met at 10:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PENCE).

DETECTION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

WASHINGTON, DC, June 18, 2002.

I hereby appoint the Honorable Mike Pence to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. Dennis Hastert,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING HOUR DEBATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 30 minutes, and each Member, except the majority leader, the minority leader, or the minority whip, limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Pallone) for 5 minutes.

REQUEST TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE FOR ONE MINUTE

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman from Florida would like to ask unanimous consent to do a 1-minute.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair cannot entertain a 1-minute request at this time.

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Could I ask the gentleman to yield a minute of his time?

Mr. PALLONE. Can she not take 5 minutes ahead of me?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New Jersey has the floor for 5 minutes and may yield.

GOP PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN

Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from New York (Mr. Pallone) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. Ros-Lehtinen).

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey for his kindness in yielding. I would like to recognize Anthony Zecca on his retirement as chief of po-ce for the Miccosukee Tribe of Indi-
s. Chief Zecca has been a pillar of strength and trust for his community and has provided assistance and protection for all. His leadership as a law enforce-cement officer over the last 45 years has earned him respect and admiration from his community.

Chief Zecca began his career as a po-ce officer with the New York Police Department and came to the Miccosukee Tribe in 1976. Within a year he was promoted to lieutenant and was appointed chief of police in 1978.

Please join me in recognizing Chief Anthony G. Zecca for the commendable service he has provided and for his commitment to the south Florida community. And I thank the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Pallone), and I know that he knows the Miccosukee Tribe very well and knows Chief Zecca.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. Ros-Lehtinen). I met the chief on one occasion when I went down there with the gentlewoman’s husband, and he is really an outstanding individual.

Let me say, Mr. Speaker, that the reason that I am in the well this morning is because of my concern about the Republican leadership effort to bring up their prescription drug bill today in the Committee on Energy and Commerce and in the Committee on Ways and Means. I have said many times that I am glad that the Republican leadership is finally willing to bring up a bill; however, it is quite clear that their legislation does nothing more than throw some money to private insurance companies in the hope that they will provide some sort of prescription drug benefit. And I am very concerned that, unlike the Democratic proposal which provides for a guaranteed Medicare benefit, 80 percent of which is being paid for by the Federal Government, and which brings down costs by giving the power to the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services to have 30 or 40 mil-ion seniors who can now negotiate lower drug prices, this is what we need. Democrats are proposing a Medicare benefit, a guaranteed benefit, 80 percent paid for by the Federal Government, just like what we have now for part B of Medicare that covers your doctor bills.

What the Republicans are proposing and bringing up in committee today and tomorrow is a sham. It is nothing more than an effort to try to convince the American people that somehow they are going to provide a benefit that will not exist. It is illusory because it is nothing more than giving money to private insurance companies without any guaranteed benefit, without any Medicare benefit, and without any cost control.

But I have said over and over again that Members do not have to take my word for it. In the last few weeks, commentators in the New York Times and various media around the country have pointed out rather dramatically that the Republican proposal will not work, that it is designed for failure, and if I could just use a couple of quotes to... point that out, in Sunday’s New York Times there was an article by Robert Pear, and it says, and I want to quote a few sections, under the Republican proposal, “Medicare would pay subsidies to private entities to offer insurance covering the costs of prescription drugs, but the insurance would not exist and many private insurers doubt whether they could offer it at an affordable price.”

A quote: “I am very skeptical that ‘drug only’ private plans would develop.”

The insurance companies themselves are telling the Republican leadership that these drug-only policies will not work. They will not be offered. It is a hoax on the American people and on our seniors to suggest that somehow this Republican bill is going to provide a benefit. It will not provide a benefit. Nobody is even going to offer the benefit.

He says, “The theory of the Republican bill is that competition among private insurance providers would somehow lead to lower costs. In fact, the almost certain result would be an embarrassing fiasco because the subsidy would have few, if any, takers. The trouble with drug insurance from a private insurer’s point of view is that some people have much higher drug expenses than the average, while others have expenses that are much lower, and both sets of people know who they are. This means that any company that tries to offer drug insurance will find that it tries to offer a plan whose premiums reflect average drug costs. The only takers will be those who have above-average drug costs.”

What Krugman is saying here and what others write is that no insurance company is going to provide this insurance, because the only person that would take it would be someone who has extremely high drug costs, and they cannot operate an insurance system that way. I do not want to get into all the details, but the bottom line is that we are getting this uniform chorus around the country telling us that the Republican proposal to simply provide money to private insurers will not work.

What are the Republicans going to do? They know this is not going to work. They are going to try to shove it down the throats of the Congress in committee tomorrow or the next day, and bring it to the floor next week. They know it will not work, so what they are doing is use the multinational, multinational drug companies to spend millions of dollars on advertising to say it is a good proposal, and it is not.

RECOGNITION OF TEACHERS OF THE YEAR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SAM JOHNSON) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I hate to hear them talking about drugs this early in the morning, because the Republican plan will work. We believe in democracy and free enterprise, and that is how it is going to work.

Mr. Speaker, we have good teachers and we have great teachers, and it is an honor to bring to my colleagues’ attention distinguished teachers from the Third Congressional District of Texas. I am pleased to recognize these recipients of the Teacher of the Year Award, who enable our students to understand and learn from each other and strive to achieve their goals.

Great teachers nurture our country’s best hope for tomorrow: our children. Children may be a fraction of our society, but they are 100 percent of our future. The perseverance and dedication of our teachers challenge and shape students to dream, to work, to make those dreams come true.

Unfortunately, educators work with little public thanks or appreciation, even though top-notch teachers are essential to a strong future. These dedicated educators in particular go beyond the call of duty and selflessly make our children and our country a better place.

It is my distinct honor to present the teachers of the year from Garland, Texas, and Richardson, Texas:

In Garland Independent School District, the teacher of the year is Carol Clark.

In Richardson Independent School District, the teacher of the year are Betty Jackson and Kari Gilbertson.

As the highest-ranking Texan on the Committee on Education and the Workforce, I know firsthand the importance of a quality education. However, it is our outstanding teachers like these who strive for excellence. I thank these hometown heroes and excellent educators for all they do for Garland, for Richardson, for our children, for America, and for freedom. God bless them.

NO TAX BREAKS FOR CORPORATIONS RENOUNCING AMERICA ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, September 11 really brought out the best in Americans when all of us are continuing to be asked to sacrifice some things, and I think we have sacrificed our children. Unfortunately, certain of our multinational corporations are offering less, indeed, much less.

Over the years, the United States has rightly entered into tax treaties with countries around the world to avoid taxing the same income twice for their businesses, as well as for ours. These treaties are so broadly worded, however, that some corporations can exploit them to avoid paying any tax on their foreign earnings, but on what they earn right here at home. These corporations use gaps in the tax treaties to shift U.S. earnings abroad to countries like the Barbados and Luxembourg that impose no tax. This income vanishing act occurs through the creation of affiliated foreign shell corporations that make high-interest loans or obtain hefty royalty fees from the American companies.

To stop this abuse, today I am introducing the “No Tax Breaks for Corporations Renouncing America Act.” This abuse results from the broad way in which our tax treaties test foreign ownership and have been exploited. Before globalization, one could assume that a company with stock listed on the stock exchange was a company from one of the countries with which it was listed, but that is no longer the case. My legislation, by narrowing the provision, ensures that tax treaties are used only for their intended beneficiaries, not for those corporations whose phony claim to foreign citizenship is based on little more than a new mailbox.

By exploiting the tax treaty loophole, companies who renounce their U.S. citizenship are reaping a windfall. Corporate freeloaders are taking tax breaks designed to eliminate double taxation and are using them instead to eliminate all taxation on some of their income.

These corporate “ex-patriots” are selective in waving the Star-Spangled Banner. Yes, they want to be American to enjoy the protection of our Armed Forces, the protection and reliability of our courts, and to seek business from the Federal Government; but when it comes time to pay, to pay their fair share to keep America strong, Old Glory suddenly comes down the flagpole, and they claim they are foreigners.

These fair-weather friends choose to wrap themselves in the flag when that is convenient, and renounce the flag and say they are foreigners and wrap themselves in a tax treaty when that is convenient; we have to pay a stop to that. It is time to end the practice of them sending Uncle Sam a postcard that says, “Sorry, you can find me in Barbados, glad you are not here.”

American executives who want to evade U.S. taxes on U.S. income by moving their mailbox to an island and hold beachside board meetings, are entitled to a tan, not a tax break.

Take companies like Cooper Industries and Stanley Tools. They make tools and equipment, but they might think that when Stanley says it is making something great, it had in mind beach tools like this from its new residency. The way that they are operating inspired one of my neighbors down in Austin to note that Stanley Works ought to be called “Stanley Flees,” because it has fled Old Glory and America.

To vote for the bill that I am introducing today will send the executives a message: They can play all they want on the beach to avoid taxes, but Congress will not put its head in the sand. They can have fun in the sun, but Congress refuses to let the rest of us, Americans who are working hard to pay our taxes, get burned by having to pay their taxes also. It is the American taxpayer who gets hammered when Stanley Works or one of these other companies heads off to foreign shores and does not pay its fair share for our increased national security needs.

And remember, allowing a few unpatriotic corporations to exploit this loophole gives them a competitive advantage over the many American corporations that stay and pay their fair share and are competitors with those who leave our shores.

Freedom is not free. Corporate free loaders, Uncle Sam wants you, wants you to pay your fair share to support America.

I encourage my colleagues to join with me in supporting the “No Tax Breaks for Corporations that Renounce America,” act so we can really ensure equity and fairness in our tax system and put an end to those who are abandoning us through reliance on provisions in these tax treaties that were never intended for the purpose for which they are now being exploited.

ELIMINATION OF MARRIAGE TAX PENALTY

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PENCE). Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, often over the last several years, many of us have asked a very fundamental question, that is, is it right, is it fair, that under our Tax Code that millions of married working couples pays on average about $1,700 in higher taxes just because they are married.

Over the last several years, we in the House Republican majority have been working to eliminate what we call the marriage tax penalty where under our Tax Code, married working couples who are husband and wife are both in the workforce, pay higher taxes, and the way the marriage tax penalty works is when someone is married, husband and wife are both in the workforce, they combine their income, they file jointly. That has always pushed married working couples into a higher tax bracket. Really, it is a financial disadvantage. A couple is punished if they get married and essentially re-warded if they break up the marriage and are living as two single people.

We in the House Republican majority felt all along that was wrong. It is wrong under our Tax Code that we punish marriage. While President Clinton was in the White House, we put legislation out of the House and Senate that created a stand-alone bill to the President, President Clinton; and unfortunately, he vetoed our effort to eliminate the marriage tax penalty. Fortunately, this past year, we have come into office, George W. Bush, who agreed that it is time to stop punishing society’s most basic institution, and this past year President Bush signed into law part of what we call the Bush tax cut legislation, which wipes out the marriage tax penalty; and it is estimated that 43 million married working couples will receive marriage tax relief as a result of the legislation that was signed into law last year.

Unfortunately, because of an archaic rule over in the other body, that provision had to be temporary, which means it expires in a few years; and unless the House and Senate do something, the marriage tax penalty will come back. I am proud to say that this past week the House of Representatives passed overwhelmingly, with the vote of every House Republican plus 60 Democrats, we passed overwhelmingly with a strong bipartisan vote an effort which wipes out the marriage tax penalty permanently.

My hope is the other body will take that up and that the House and Senate will quickly move that legislation through, get it on the President’s desk, and permanently eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

It has been noted to me, according to the Congressional Budget Office, that unless we permanently eliminate the marriage tax penalty that when this temporary provision expires, that 36 million married working couples on average will see a total tax increase of almost $42 billion. Think about that. Unless we make permanent our legislation to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, we will see a $42 billion increase of taxes on marriage, and that is wrong.

I think a couple back in the district I represent in the south suburbs, Jose and Magdalena Castillo, a young couple, they work hard. They have two children, who they loved. They suffered, prior to the Bush tax cut being signed into law, $1,150 marriage tax penalty; and thanks to the efforts of this House, to the House Republican majority, to President Bush, we eliminated their marriage tax penalty. For Jose and Magdalena Castillo, $1,150 is several months of car payments, several months of day care for Eduardo and Carolina, a significant portion of tuition at Joliet Junior College. It is a down payment on a car. It is a big chunk of savings for their children’s college education: $1,150 is real money.

There are some here that say we should let that legislation expire. We should let the marriage tax penalty come back because we can spend that money here in Washington on something else. Well, $1,150 in Washington is a drop in the bucket; but for Jose and Magdalena Castillo, the marriage tax penalty, $1,150, is real money, just like it is for married working couples all over America.

The House has passed legislation now to eliminate the marriage tax penalty. My hope is that Republicans and Democrats in the House and Senate work together to make a priority to permanently eliminate the marriage tax penalty. We have done it here in the House. My hope is the entire Congress can do it together in a bipartisan way and we can get on President Bush’s desk this fall legislation to permanently eliminate the marriage tax penalty.

BUMFIGHTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, one of the most troubling problems for our communities facing the struggle for liability deals with our homeless population. The problem of homelessness, if not today, is certainly more complex. As a result of deinstitutionalization, many of these people now live on the streets; and one of the most serious consequences is violence against the homeless.

Stories of the abuse of homeless and the mentally ill are appearing with stark and frightening regularity, setting a homeless woman on fire, random beatings, even murders. We know last year there were 18 murders and dozens of assaults on the homeless.

These are the stories that were reported to the authorities and found their way into the media. Because of the hidden, often forgotten, world these people inhabit, we know that incidents are underreported and that the known violence is just the tip of the iceberg.

I have been appalled at the people who would not just avoid helping but actually are seeking to exploit the homeless, and the worst example I have seen is a recent video entitled “Bumfights” that films the abuse and violence against the homeless.

hitting himself on the head as he realized that his hair is on fire. A purported crack addict smoking the drug and defecating on the sidewalk, and then there are films of a homeless man extracting his own teeth with a pair of pliers.

A segment entitled “Rumhunter” parodies television’s Crocodile Hunter, with a man in safari clothing binding, gagging and measuring and marking various homeless men on the streets of Las Vegas before releasing them to their fate. These sad, sadistic images are described as hilariously shocking. I call it criminal.

They say it is voluntary, since they reward the men with food, clothing, shelter and small change. I charge them of preying on the despair of those without the basic necessities to sustain life or the facilities to cope. Who among us would willingly be filmed extracting our teeth with a pair of pliers? Of course, the film makers are already planning a sequel.

When I read about this video, I was appalled. Not surprisingly, it was promoted on Howard Stern’s television show and soon being shipped to people nationally and internationally.

The committee jurisdiction or the geography of the people we represent. It is about our basic humanity. If we cannot act to protect our most vulnerable, what does this say about us all? We need to fix this problem.

I have started with inquiries to the heads of the Las Vegas Federal investigative offices of the FBI, Customs and the U.S. Postal Service. I have asked them specifically to explain what steps they intend to take, and if they decline to open a case, whether it is because they lack resources, they have other priorities, or whether there simply is not a legal action.

I believe that this is already criminal conduct. In their press releases, the film makers admit that they are paying homeless actors to commit crimes such as assault and kidnap. They are, therefore, accessories or enablers of major crimes. This activity is not protected by the first amendment anymore than the so-called “snuff flick” might be protected pornography. All three of the Federal agencies investigate pornography, and they know the difference.

The film should have jurisdiction because of the interstate nature of the business and the possible conspiracy to violate State laws. Customs should have jurisdiction because the material is being distributed internationally, and the postal service should have jurisdiction because the mails are being used to further the distribution.

If these agencies claim they do not have the resources, then perhaps Congress should act to earmark funds, because this is a serious public safety issue. If these agencies claim they have other priorities, then perhaps we should examine the setting of their priorities; and if they claim that there is no specific law that authorizes them to investigate this activity, then perhaps we should enact one.

A Congress that will push the constitutional limits on fighting pornography and that will appropriately outlaw crush videos that depict the torture or death of animals should not less for our fellow human beings. This violence against the homeless is not just a crime against them. It is an assault against all of us. We should do all we can to stop this outrage and punish those who instigate and those who condone and exploit some of our most vulnerable citizens.

HOW BIG SHOULD FEDERAL GOVERNMENT BE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan, a little pass on to my colleagues and the American people a predicament that Congress is now facing related to spending. How big should the Federal Government be, how much should we tax the American citizens in order to accommodate what we think is important and necessary spending now. And one of the problems with the overzealousness of Members of Congress to spend is that we either increase taxes to accommodate that spending or we increase the debt.

Right now, the debt of the Federal Government is a little over $6 trillion. We have a law, though, that says that we cannot have a debt that is greater than what is approved by law, passed by the House and the Senate and signed by the President; and that debt limit now is $5.95 trillion. Yet the Federal debt actually is now $6.019 trillion.

How does that happen? We are playing political games. There is a loophole that the last administration and this administration claim exists in current law to use surplus civil service retirement funds and pretend that is not borrowing subject to the debt limit. They use those extra dollars coming in from the deductions of Federal employees to increase Federal Government spending. The ultimate problem still is how much should we spend. When I first ran for Congress in 1992, the percentage of gross domestic product, spent for the Federal Government was a little over 22.2 percent, of GDP. Five years later it was 19.6 percent of GDP. Last year we got it down to about 18.4 percent of GDP. Increased predicted spending for this year is now starting to go up again at 19.9 percent of what we produce in this country.

So the question is how much do we borrow that requires interest and leaves an obligation for future generations? How much do we tax that takes away from workers. We have got a government. Constitution, we have a free enterprise system that motivates. Those that work hard, that try, that learn, that save, that invest, end up better than those that do not. And what we have been tending to do for the last 40 years is increase taxes for those who succeed and redistribute wealth. So we tax at a higher rate everybody that is willing to take a second job, or earn and save and invest, and we tax more than we then refinance.

How much do we tax before we start to take away that incentive to save, to work harder, to invest?

FAST TRACK TRADE BILL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PENCE). Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. BROWN) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. BROWN of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, the House will soon consider a motion to go to conference on H.R. 3065, the fast track bill. Normally, the process for beginning a conference is a non-controversial pro forma exercise, but attempts at passage of a special rule made clear that the current process is anything but normal.

The presumptive chairman of the conference has made clear he does not trust the conference. He has a vision of how he wants the conference to proceed, and he wants to eliminate any chance that things will not go his way. The Republicans are employing an arcane, rarely-used procedure that I do not believe I have seen in my 10 years in Congress. Mr. Speaker, will the Democratic Chairs not be asked to be present on the conference committee and to deny any vote on a Democratic alternative on fast track trade legislation?

The Republicans are attempting to abuse the House process by adding up to a dozen new items that the House has never had an opportunity vote on, has had no hearings to discuss, nor has even considered. These changes include gutting the other body's health care assistance for workers suffering from our trade policies, creates a weaker version of the other body's trade adjustment assistance, and it completely strikes the Dayton-Craig provisions that are designed to ensure that Congress has a role in protecting U.S. trade laws.

The rule goes well beyond normal procedures, completely unnecessary to begin the fast track conference. The most offensive of the Republican leadership's demands, will gut the workers' health protection added in the 'other body's bill. Under TAA health provisions, workers would have access to an advanceable and a refundable tax credit equal to 50 percent of the employer health insurance premium, 70 percent. This tax credit could be used for group coverage, continuation of COBRA coverage, State health insurance purchasing plans, and other ways.

Group coverage offers several advantages to workers. It is cheaper, its availability is much wider, and health insurance cannot be denied due to pre-existing conditions. Republicans, however, are expected to offer a tax credit that will be targeted toward private nongroup coverage.

Under the Republican approach, there is no guarantee that workers will be able to even find health insurance, because it is in the private market, let alone to afford it. In the private individual market, there are no limits on premiums that can be charged for someone who is sick, and insurers often exclude coverage of important services and even exclude coverage sometimes of badly needed services. Add to that the additional cost of having relatively healthy workers is likely to find affordable coverage, which means other workers will be left without any coverage or will be forced to pay the entire cost of whatever group coverage might be available to them. Less healthy workers who are unable to find affordable, meaningful individual coverage will be forced to go without coverage or pay the full COBRA premium.

Because relatively healthy workers will therefore leave the COBRA pool, and relatively less healthy workers will remain in the COBRA pool, employers' COBRA costs go up. Accordin-ingly, employers will be forced to either scale back benefits or drop coverage entirely.

The Republican approach, as it usually does, will create a windfall for insurance companies and for HMOs. It will not protect workers, again, as the Republicans plan to do nothing. It will not protect workers or employers from huge health care costs. Under their proposed rule, Democrats would have no chance to debate or amend any of these provisions.

Not surprisingly, the Republicans are proceeding without any consultation with Democrats on the Committee on Ways and Means. While the majority may say that their TAA health benefit is the same as what the other body passed, no one should be fooled. This will only hurt American workers who have already been hurt by unfair trade policies.

I urge my colleagues to oppose any rule that may be on the floor tomorrow and to object to a weakening of the bipartisan conference committee on fast track.
French President Charles de Gaulle presented her the Legion of Honor, which was France's highest decoration. She was also awarded the Medal of the Resistance with Rosette, and named a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French government for hard work and dedication. At her death, the French government presented a 21-gun salute, making Josephine Baker the first American woman buried in France with military honors.

So I commend, Mr. Speaker, these and all the dedicated valiant women of the OSS, without whom Europe and the world may not exist in its present state. I also call my colleagues' attention to the book “The Secret War” by Francis Russell, if they are interested in learning more about the details of this great agency as well as the women who participated.

SALUTE TO THE DETROIT RED WINGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. STEARNS). Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Michigan (Ms. KILPATRICK) is recognized during morning hour to make a tribute to the Detroit Red Wings.

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, I stand here today to congratulate the Detroit Red Wings for winning the Stanley Cup 2002 award for the year. We congratulate the Red Wings, Mike Illitch and the entire Illitch family; Scotty Bowman, Steve Yzerman, and the entire team for giving our fans across Michigan and across this country a whirlwind tour as we won another Stanley Cup playoff.

I want to say to the Illitch family, “We thank you for your dedication to the Red Wings, to the city, and to the region from which we come. Continue that Illitch spirit as we rebuild our region together and our city.”

To Scotty Bowman, the winningest coach in American hockey, “We congratulate you and wish you well in your retirement as you move on; and to Mrs. Bowman, who has been a stalwart fan of yours and our Detroit Red Wings.”

And to Steve Yzerman and the team for all the hard work, the gut playing, the tenacity. “You really made us all feel proud.”

On behalf of Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick, mayor of the City of Detroit, and all the residents of the city, as well as all the residents of the region and Michigan, we say, “Go Detroit Red Wings. We are so very proud of you.”

Let us use that same spirit to bring our city, our region, and our State together. We have awesome responsibilities ahead of us, and we believe with that Red Wing spirit, with Mayor Kilpatrick’s leadership, we can pull our city together, build new economic development, a wonderful regional transportation system, offer hope for our children, for our seniors.

Go Red Wings. We are so very proud of you, and may you continue to be the spirit of our city.

MEDIARIE MODERNIZATION AND PRESCRIPTION DRUG ACT OF 2002

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. KENNEDY) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of the Medicare Modernization and Prescription Drug Act of 2002. As I go around my district and talk with seniors, this is one of the top issues that they have for us in Congress, to get a prescription drug coverage within Medicare. This bill is long overdue, and it is very important for our seniors. We need a comprehensive prescription drug benefit under Medicare, and this bill delivers exactly that.

No senior should have to choose between groceries and medical care. This plan gives our seniors immediate relief from the rising costs of prescription drug medications by providing a 30 percent discount off the top of their overall prescription drug bill. We guarantee coverage for all seniors who want it in Medicare.

The nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office predicts that 95 percent of seniors will voluntarily sign up for this benefit. So this is a program that will work that we are putting forth for seniors and that we expect to be beneficial to them.

In addition to the immediate discount and basic insurance coverage, which combined should save the average senior about half of their costs for prescription drugs, we are also providing a 100 percent prescription drug coverage for low-income seniors to make sure that those most in need can have the medicines they need to stay healthy.

We also have catastrophic protection, at a $5,000 level or so, that will ensure that individuals do not have to deplete their lifetime savings and do not have to choose between other basic necessities in life and pharmaceuticals.

We offer also more Medicare choices and savings. Many Americans already have coverage. Most seniors have prescription drug coverage, but this bill is putting forth options other plans can build upon to provide stronger coverage for seniors.

We are very hopeful that we can get this passed in the House and enacted into law. Continuing the tradition of making important legislation temporary, the majority in the other body recently introduced a bill that expires after 10 years. That is unfair to our seniors, Mr. Speaker. Our approach helps seniors now and permanently into the future. Our plan is affordable for all seniors.

The choice is clear. I strongly support passage of this bill, and I urge Members to do the same.

SUPPORT MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. STEARNS). Pursuant to the order of the House of January 23, 2002, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) is recognized during morning hour debates for 5 minutes.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise to join with all of my colleagues and all of the people across America who support a real prescription drug program for seniors. I understand the concerns that some have for the need to reform Medicare, and I agree. But I believe that prescription drug coverage for seniors should be an integral part of the Medicare program.

We are aware that since its creation Medicare has remained stagnant, while advances in medicine have grown rapidly. We are aware that even our fundamental vision of medicine has dramatically changed from diagnosis and treatment to preventive care. Today, due to our realization of the need for modification and reform of Medicare, to our seniors, which has been an overwhelming process of paperwork with worries about reimbursement and regulations, it is not a form of security as it once thought to be. Medicare reform is necessary, but the time is now to listen to our seniors and to give them what they have been requesting, that we give them financial relief and provide them with a prescription drug plan that will address their monthly prescription drug expenses. It has been stated on the floor of this House a number of times that we have seniors choosing between food and drugs, splitting their prescription in half and denying themselves other medical care due to the cost of their monthly prescription drug costs.

In fact, seniors are declaring bankruptcy at a record pace due in large part to the rising cost of health care. We need a prescription drug coverage that covers all seniors. It is not just our poorest seniors who are having problems paying for their prescription drugs. It is also middle-class seniors who are struggling with the burden of outrageous drug costs.

As Members of Congress, we need to ensure that we provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit that is voluntary, universal and accessible. No senior should be denied a benefit based on income or any other factor. We see our European neighbors offering their seniors drugs at half the cost of what American companies are charging. American seniors are being encouraged to travel overseas or across our borders to Canada and Mexico just to save money on the same prescription drug they can get in the United States. This is outrageous and absurd and should shed more light on the importance of why this great Nation needs a serious drug plan for seniors.

Once again we need to let our seniors know that we hear them loud and clearly. We need to let our seniors know that we stand firmly behind them in the fight to cut their monthly drug costs. We cannot let our seniors down again this year. Let us do the right thing. Let us enact a real prescription drug program for all of our seniors so that they never have to cut back on the basic necessity to keep living.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess until 12 noon today.

Accordingly (at 11 o’clock and 20 minutes a.m.), the House stood in recess until noon.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed. The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

WELCOMING PASTOR SCOTT CUSTEAD

(Mr. SHUSTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to welcome our guest chaplain, Pastor Scott Custead, from Zion Lutheran Church in Hollidaysburg, Pennsylvania. Pastor Custead is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, and Ryan, who will present.

HAITIAN-AMERICAN CULTURAL HERITAGE MONTH

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, last month we celebrated Haitian-American Cultural Heritage Month. I want to join all who took part in the commemoration of our rich Haitian culture. I want to send special thanks to Dr. Rosy Toussaint from the Haitian-American Cultural Society, North Miami Mayor Joe Celestin, artist Edward Duval Carrie, as well as Miami Dade Mayor Alex Penelas, for their hard work in making this month-long celebration a great success.

DAILY ACTIVITIES OF THIS MONTH-LONG EVENT WERE SHARED WITHIN SOUTH FLORIDA AND SHOWED INCREDIBLE EXAMPLES OF HAITI’S CULTURAL HERITAGE. THESE FABULOUS EVENTS INCLUDED A TASTE OF HAITI EXTRAVAGANZA, ENTERTAINING FILM FESTIVALS, BOOK AND POETRY READING, SPECTACULAR ART EXHIBITS AND DANCE PERFORMANCES, ALL OF WHICH SHONE A BRIGHT RAY OF HAITIAN CULTURE ON OUR SOUTH FLORIDA COMMUNITY.

I AM VERY HAPPY THAT THE PEOPLE OF SOUTH FLORIDA HAD A CHANCE TO CELEBRATE THE WONDER AND DELIGHT OF THE HAITIAN PEOPLE AND THEIR BEAUTIFUL TRADITIONS.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM JAMES MADISON

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, the American people are being prepared for war with Iraq with little or no discussion in this House. Longstanding prohibitions against political assassinations of foreign leaders have been lifted with little or no debate in this House. A policy of strike-first preemptive attacks has been initiated, effectively nullifying the constitutional role of Congress under article 1, section 8 of the Constitution, assuring war at the whim of the President.

Our Nation is being plunged into a stew of continual warfare. President Madison once said: “Of all the enemies to public liberty, war is perhaps the most to be dreaded because it comprises and develops the germ of every other. War is the parent of armies. From these proceed debts and taxes. And armies and debts and taxes are known instruments for bringing the many under the domination of the few. No nation could preserve its freedom in the midst of continual warfare.

James Madison said that in 1795. In 2002 we would do well to remember those words.

ON ENERGY

(Mr. REHBERG asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. REHBERG. Mr. Speaker, America is at war. We are at war against terrorists and those who would support their hate-filled actions. Unfortunately, there are those in this Chamber that would have the United States continue to import almost 60 percent of our oil from many of the very same terrorist-sponsoring regimes our sons and daughters are bravely fighting today. Conservative estimates state that ANWR alone holds enough energy to power all of Montana’s needs for the next 300 years and would provide more than 2,000 desperately needed jobs in my home State. It is ridiculous to depend on unstable nations, riddled with terrorists, for our oil, not when America has untapped resources at home.

The security of our Nation depends on eliminating our dependence on foreign oil. I urge my colleagues to support our balanced energy plan for America’s future.

TITLED IX

(Ms. SANCHEZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the 30th anniversary of title IX of the education amendments of 1972. In passing title IX, Congress intended to give girls and women opportunities equal to those offered to boys and men in education programs that receive Federal taxpayer dollars.

Today we enjoy a greater amount of freedom from our counterparts from 30 years ago. Yet with all the advances that have been made toward gender equity, many barriers still remain. For example, according to a report of the National Coalition for Women and Girls in Education, just 21 percent of all full professors at colleges and universities are women. For every new dollar going to girls at the Division I and Division II levels, male sports receive 65 cents of the dollar while girls or women sports receive only 35 cents. In addition, sex segregation persists in career education, with more than 90 percent of girls clustered in traditional female fields of health, teaching, graphic arts, and office technology.

We must continue to support title IX.

INDIA

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to condemn the atrocities committed by Hindu extremists in Gujarat, India, against Muslims and other minority groups. Last week I met with human rights, academic and religious leaders from India who shared reports documenting the designs of the extremist groups against Muslims, Christians, Dalits and other groups.

Trained combatants in Gujarat entered villages and attacked men, women and children. Pregnant women had their wombs ripped open and unborn babies were ripped out and tossed onto burning fires. Approximately 300 women were gang raped. Over 2,000 people died. I have photos too gruesome to show in my office.

It appears that some of these Hindu extremist groups receive some of their funds from charities in the U.S. and the U.K. We should ensure that no funds from the United States gathered under charitable causes are used to finance terrorism, and we must publicly condemn the violence and officials who support ethnic cleansing.

Mr. Speaker, our government must respond to these brutal attacks and the underlying extremism. The silence of the U.S. Government is deafening.

AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL SYSTEM PRIVATIZATION

(Ms. BERKLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, a recent executive order paves the way for privatization of our air traffic control system. This month is a time to recognize that air traffic control is no longer an inherently governmental function. Air traffic controllers play a significant role in our national security. National security is inherently a government function.

On September 11, our air traffic controllers safely grounded nearly 4,500 aircraft in less than 2 hours, proving that the current system works and works well. Proponents of privatization cite the systems in Great Britain, Canada, and Australia as efficient and effective. However, the systems in Great Britain and Canada are facing financial crisis and the controllers in Australia report poor working conditions.

Our system works. Our air traffic controllers have demonstrated it time and time again. We should not privatize our air traffic control system.

CONGRATULATING IDAHO’S FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT BASEBALL TEAMS

(Mr. OTTER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate the college baseball teams from Idaho’s First Congressional District for winning the national championship and placing third at the recent NAIA World Series. The Lewis & Clark State College Warriors, led by veteran coach Ed Cheff, captured their 12th national title since 1984 on their own Harris Field in Lewiston, Idaho, beating Oklahoma City 12-8 in the May 31 championship game.

Meanwhile, the Coyotes from Albertson College in Caldwell, my alma mater, finished third in head coach Shawn Humberger’s first World Series appearance. Only an Albertson College loss to Clark State College Warriors, led by veteran coach Ed Cheff, captured their 12th national title since 1984 on their own Harris Field in Lewiston, Idaho, beating Oklahoma City 12-8 in the May 31 championship game.

TRIBUTE TO CAROLINA HURRICANES

(Mr. ETHERIDGE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support and admiration of my hometown team, the Carolina Hurricanes, who, after just 5 years in North Carolina, made it to the Stanley Cup finals this year.

The Hurricanes represented North Carolina well. They fought hard, they played fair, and they never gave up. Their strength and determination showed the true mettle that champions are made of.

Even though our ‘Canes could not bring the cup home this year, they took the city of Raleigh, the area and really the whole State on a very exciting ride. The entire region has been swept up in the fervor of the quest for the cup and the sport of hockey. Raleigh, North Carolina, long known for basketball, is now most definitely a hockey town. Just last week, over 6,000 people turned out to say “thank you” to the team and welcome them back home.

The ‘Canes’ rise to the top of the hockey elite has also given the world a glimpse of what those of us from North Carolina have known for a long time. Raleigh is one of the most vibrant and exciting cities in the world, and the whole Triangle region is a wealth of innovative technology, business and industry.
I am proud to represent North Carolina and proud of the Carolina Hurricanes.

TRIBUTE TO THOSE WHO PUT OUT WILDFIRES

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, as summer days get longer and hotter, the risk of forest fires continues to increase. The last week of a 1,500-acre wildfire burned in Pioche, Nevada. Dedicated firefighters kept the blaze from the small Nevada town, located about 190 miles north of Las Vegas.

"Today I would like to echo the sentiments expressed by Lincoln County Sheriff’s Sergeant John Wilcock. He said, "If it hadn’t been for the quick response by volunteer firefighters and the BLM, the town could have been gone."

Thank you to all of our Nation’s firefighters who risk their own lives every day to save the homes and lives of others. As a proud resident and Representative of a Western State, I know firsthand the unique challenges our firefighters face in preventing and putting out wildfires. Nevadans value your work, your commitment and your heroism.

ENRON CORPORATION RUN FOR FUN AND PROFIT OF TOP EXECUTIVES

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, as Americans picked up their newspapers this morning, they once again learned that the Enron Corporation was run for the fun and profit of its top executives, not for the benefit of the energy market, and certainly not for most of its employees.

In the year that Enron was falling and heading toward bankruptcy, 140 of its top executives took out almost $800 million in bonuses; $800 million, which is about the same amount as its 20,000 employees lost in their 401(k) retirement plans; $800 million that those people will not have for retirement, but which these 100 executives will have for the rest of their lives.

As the Republicans talk about privatizing the Social Security system and insisting that everybody go into the equity markets with their own little account, they had better understand that corporate America is not running this system for the benefit of the shareholders. Corporate America is not running the system for the benefit of the corporations. They are running it for the benefit of the executives, those executives that took out $800 million on the eve of the bankruptcy at Enron Corporation.

SENIORS NEED DRUG BENEFIT NOW

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, Americans have sent a clear message to Congress: Seniors need a prescription drug benefit now. We can no longer rely on rhetoric and empty promises. We must take action now to make sure that seniors receive help.

Now, thanks to the leadership of Republican Presidents, we have a prescription drug benefit plan that not only provides for a long-term permanent benefit, but also makes sure that relief is given now in the short term.

This is a plan that does not discriminate between different groups of seniors, as everyone should have access to the prescription drug if they choose to use it. And the most important part of this plan is that it provides options. We will give seniors real choices to make sure they get a plan that best suits their individual needs.

Many on the other side of the aisle want to make this a partisan issue. They offer up plans that have no basis in reality, calling for a $800 billion program with no way to fund it. This is politics as usual, rhetoric with no results.

The Republican prescription drug benefit is a responsible and realistic plan, and we can get it to our seniors now.

PROVIDING SENIORS PRESCRIPTIONS AT AN AFFORDABLE PRICE

(Mr. MENENDEZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, they built this Nation, raised their families, and fought for our freedom, so no senior in this country, not a single one, should be without the prescription drugs they need to stay healthy.

Every senior deserves access to the prescriptions they need at an affordable price. We do that in our plan. Republicans do not. That is what we Democrats are fighting for.

If we controlled the House, we would pass a bill to cover all seniors, not just some, but all seniors today. In fact, we would have passed a bill years ago, but almost 8 years after Republicans took control of the House, they still refuse to give all seniors the coverage they deserve.

Why is that? The sad truth is that Republicans would rather protect 100 percent of their special interest friends and leave millions of seniors without the coverage they need, and that is a sorry, inexcusable disgrace.

Let us have what Democrats are proposing. Let us have a vote on this floor for a universal, affordable, voluntary prescription drug program for America’s seniors.

MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT AND DISCOUNT ACT

(Mr. DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, the House Democrats' prescription drug proposal is a real one. It provides a solid $25-a-month premium cost, a $100-year deductible, coinsurance. Beneficiaries pay 20 percent, Medicare pays 80 percent, an out-of-pocket limit of $2,000 per year per beneficiary, and low-income beneficiaries with incomes of 150 percent of poverty will pay absolutely nothing.

This is a real plan, a plan that benefits all of the people. Let us pass it.

BRING KIDNAPPED AMERICAN CHILDREN HOME

(Mr. LAMPSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I have taken to this floor every day now this year to come here to remind the American citizens of Ludwig Koons, who was abducted from the United States of America in 1994. He is now, I think, 9 years old, and he is still a citizen of the United States who is illegally out of our country.

I placed a phone call to our Secretary of State. A staff person called me back. I placed a phone call to the Ambassador to the United States from the Vatican. They have not even bothered to return my phone call. I have placed a phone call, many phone calls, I might add, to all of these people, including the Ambassador of Italy to the United States. I have talked with him, yet nothing yet seems to be moving.

The issue is not about Ludwig Koons, it is about the 1,000 children who are taken out of our borders each year illegally. They are all citizens of this country and pledge allegiance to our flag.

Where is our government? Why are we not turning to those children and doing anything, anything, necessary to return them to our land? Bring our children home.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CULBERSON). Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on each motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objectionable under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record votes on postponed questions will be taken after debate has concluded on all motions to suspend the rules.

CODE TALKERS RECOGNITION ACT

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and
The Congress finds the following:
(1) On April 6, 1917, the United States, after extraordinary provocations, declared war on Germany, thus the United States entered World War I, and All Wars.
(2) At the time of this declaration of war, Indian people in the United States, including members of the Choctaw Nation, were not accorded the status of citizens of the United States.
(3) Without regard to this lack of citizenship, many members of the Choctaw Nation joined many other Native American tribes and nations in enlisting in the Armed Forces to fight on behalf of their native land.
(4) Members of the Choctaw Nation were enrolled in the force known as the American Expeditionary Force, which began hostilities in France in the fall of 1917, and specifically, members of the Choctaw Nation were incorporated in a company of Indian enlistees serving in the 142d Infantry Company of the 36th Division.
(5) A major impediment to Allied operations in general, and American operations in particular, was the fact that the German forces had deciphered all codes used for transmitting information between Allied commands, leading to substantial loss of men and materiel during the first year of American action.
(6) Because of the proximity and static nature of the battle lines, a method to communicate without the knowledge of the enemy was needed.
(7) An American commander realized the fact that he had under his command a number of men who spoke a native language. While was discouraged by the American Government, the commander sought out and recruited 18 Choctaw Indians to use for transmission of messages during an upcoming campaign.
(8) Because the language used by the Choctaw soldiers in the transmission of information was not based on a European language or on a mathematical progression, the Germans were unable to understand any of the transmissions.
(9) The Choctaw soldiers were placed in different command positions, to achieve the widest possible area for communications.
(10) The use of the Choctaw Code Talkers was particularly important in the movement of American soldiers in October of 1918 (including securing forward and exposed positions), in protecting supply lines, and in organizing German personnel and matériel during American action (including preventing German gun emplacements from enemy shellings), and in the preparation for the assault on German positions in the final stages of combat operations in the fall of 1918.
(11) In the opinion of the officers involved, the use of Choctaw Indians to transmit information in their native language saved men and munitions, and was highly successful. Based on this successful experience, Choctaw Indians were being withdrawn from frontline units for training in transmission of codes so as to be more widely used when the war came to a halt.
(12) The Germans never succeeded in breaking the Choctaw code.
(13) This was the first time in modern warfare that such transmission of messages in a native American language was used for the purpose of confusing the enemy.
(14) This action by members of the Choctaw Nation is another example of the commitment of American Indians to the defense of our great Nation and adds to the proud legacy of such service.
(15) The Choctaw Nation has honored the actions of these 18 Choctaw Code Talkers through a memorial bearing their names located at the entrance of the tribal complex in Durant, Oklahoma.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate shall make appropriate arrangements for the presentation, on behalf of the Congress, of a gold medal of appropriate design honoring the Choctaw Code Talkers.

TITLe IV—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. MEDALS FOR OTHER CODE TALKERS.
(a) Presentation.
(1) In addition to the gold medals authorized to be presented under subsections (2), (2), and (3), the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate shall make appropriate arrangements for the presentation, on behalf of the Congress, of a gold medal of appropriate design honoring the Code Talkers identified by the Secretary of Defense pursuant to subsection (b) who has not previously received a Congressional Gold Medal.
(2) IDENTIFICATION OF OTHER NATIVE AMERICAN CODE TALKERS.
This legislation celebrates a relatively unknown aspect of American history, acts of bravery and heroism by Native American soldiers in the world wars of the last century, acts which saved the lives of many Allied servicemen.

Mr. Speaker, in any world war, battles turn as much on intelligence as on pure military might. If you know what your enemy is planning, you have a good chance to stop it. In both the First and Second World Wars, our enemies were skilled code breakers, and the ability of our communications costs many Allied lives.

In both conflicts, however, a relatively small band of Native Americans were able to use their unique tribal languages to baffle enemies. Speaking to each other either on field radios or field telephones, or occasionally even communicating with written messages, these men were able to quickly and accurately relay complex military messages and orders that could not be understood or intercepted. Based on European languages or on mathematical formulas, these tribal languages were so incomprehensible to the German and Japanese military intelligence units that they are said never to have been cracked. Mr. Speaker, the best known of these code talkers were the Navajo, honored with congressional medals in the last Congress. But a number of other tribes, including the Sioux, Comanche and Chippewa, also provided code talkers, and the legislation we consider today seeks to recognize them as well.

The bill we are taking up was introduced by the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. Thune) and incorporates the legislation we considered last Congress. It is a fitting tribute that the House now extends to the Choctaw, Comanche, and to other Native American code talkers through passage of this important legislation.

During World War II, America and its allies fought a massive war on several fronts and the code talkers protected the allies' secrets communications on most, if not all, of these fronts. From the Comanche and the Choctaw against the German Army and France, to the Navajo in the Pacific theater, more than 17 tribes in all made immeasurable contributions to the war effort. These include Cheyenne, Comanche, Cherokee, Chippewa, Caddo, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Chippewa, and Menominee, Muscogee-Seminole, Javaj, Oneida, Paunee, Sac and Fox, and the Sioux, from both the Lakota and Dakota dialects.

The compelling story of how the rich heritage of our Native American peoples, their language, and their heroes ultimately played a major role in our winning World War II unfortunately took more than a half a century to be told. And it took as long for one of our nation's highest honors to be bestowed upon these Native American heroes.

Today we honor their patriotism and their selflessness and their heroic actions, and America is grateful and proud for their contributions to our freedom. As proven by the code talkers, it is our heritage, and our people, that will always make America a great Nation.

I only regret that we as a Congress are so late in recognizing the contributions of American Indians, the code talkers of World War II and that not all of the code talkers who served are alive today to accept this important honor. Even so, I am pleased we are taking this action today; and as the daughter of a World War II veteran, I am also heartened by the progress we can all see on the national memorial now under construction on the Mall just blocks from here.

As we commemorate this historical day, we cannot let the magnitude of the great victory our veterans achieved over the fanaticism of our World War II enemies fade from the national memory. As we face new military challenges today, from terrorists who also target and hate free societies, we can draw inspiration from the bravery of our World War II veterans and the special place in history for the Native American code talkers. These brave soldiers went to war for the United States despite the historic mistreatment of Native Americans by the very government they were fighting to defend.

I am honored to stand and honor the Sioux code talkers this morning. Congress has stipulated that recipients of this award have “performed an achievement that has an impact on American history and culture that is likely to be recognized as a major achievement in the recipients’ field long after the achievement.” The contribution of code talkers to our great victory in World War II meets this high standard, and I am very pleased to join with my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to recognize them today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE), who is the primary principal author of this bill and who has worked very diligently on this effort.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and thank him for his efforts in bringing to the floor today this important legislation. I am honored to stand and honor the Sioux code talkers for the important service they performed during World War II. The Sioux code talkers, who I represent, used their Lakota, Dakota and Nakota dialects to send coded communications that the enemy was unable to crack. These brave men were often sent out on their own to communicate with headquarters regarding enemy location and strength without protection from the enemy. Sometimes they spent over 24 hours in headphones without sleep or food in deplorable conditions.

Today, military commanders credit the code talkers with saving the lives of countless American soldiers and being instrumental to the success of the United States military during World War II.

Two of these Sioux code talkers are still alive today: Clarence Wolf Guts of the Oglala Sioux Tribe and Charles Whitepipe, Sr. of the Rosebud Sioux Tribe.

Unfortunately, the nine other Sioux code talkers, John Bear King of the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe, Simon Broken Leg and Iver Crow Eagle, Sr. of the Rosebud Sioux Tribe, Eddie Eagle Boy and Philip LaBlanc of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, Baptiste Pumpkinsed of the Oglala Sioux Tribe, Edmund St. John of the Crow Tribe, Philip Wind of the Crows, Creek Sioux Tribe, and Walter C. John of the Santee Sioux Tribe of Nebraska have passed away.

Clarence Wolf Guts and Charles Whitepipe can tell us the stories of the trials and tribulations they faced as they served our country. The families of the other Sioux code talkers can pass on the stories told to them by their husband, father or uncle.

The legislation before us today finally honors the Sioux code talkers for their distinguished service to our country. In addition, the bill recognizes two other groups of code talkers who served our country with distinction. This bill designates 14 Comanche code talkers for their contribution and service during World War II, and it also pays tribute to the Choctaw code talkers who served not only during World War II, but were known to have been used for their transmission of field communications in their native languages during World War I. I appreciate the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER) and thegentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATKINS) working with me to recognize these heroes.

At a time in which we fully understand the meaning of the word “hero,” I believe we can all agree the code talkers are truly heroes of this country.

All of the code talkers provided safekeeping for fellow Americans who were fighting abroad for their Nation. They did so by using their culture and their native language, which had been passed down to them through the generations. Above all, these code talkers brought respect to their Nation and victory to our country.

Last year, we rightly honored the Navajo code talkers for the important role that they played and for their heroism during World War II. It is now time to honor and recognize the Sioux, Comanche and Choctaw code talkers for their contributions by awarding them Congressional Gold Medals.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to be the sponsor of H.R. 3250, the Code Talkers Recognition Act, which will finally recognize the men who had risked their lives to save the lives of others. Congress should recognize these courageous men for their bravery and heroism in the face of adversity. Today, we will consider this important legislation, and I encourage all of my colleagues to support this important legislation. I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) for his work in bringing it to the floor today and say to my colleagues on the floor that it is high time that we gave honor and due recognition to these brave men and the cultures that they represent.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, millions of people poured into movie theaters this weekend to see the movie Wind Talkers, focusing on a Navajo code talker. The movie is set during World War II against the backdrop of the horrific battle of Saipan; the drama revolves around the Navajo “code talker.”

The so-called code talkers were Native Americans who used their native dialect to radio important messages in code to our allied troops. The movie “Wind Talkers” focuses on a Navajo code talker who was the Marines’ first new secret weapon against the Japanese. The movie explores just how far our Marines were willing to go to protect the code.

We all know that in our fast-paced, modern world, movies are our storytellers. Hollywood often misses some of the facts, but in this case I am proud to see the tale of these code talker heroes being told so publicly. In my mind, the Native American code talkers are some of the Nation’s greatest heroes.

Today, it is time for Congress to give all the Native American code talkers the recognition they deserve for their contribution to U.S. victories in World War I and World War II. Like the Navajo code talkers who were recognized for services last year, the Comanche, Choctaw and Sioux Indians also served as “code talkers” with the United States in both the Pacific and European theaters during World War II. We also know that the Choctaw code talkers served our country as early as World War I.

These code talkers were sent out on their own to provide communications on enemy location and strength. They sometimes spent 24 hours using headphones without sleep or food. Many of

Mr. WATKINS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I wish to thank the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) and the gentleman from New York (Mrs. MALONEY) for their efforts in getting this here. I would like to especially thank the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE), the gentleman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER), my good friend and neighbor, who represents Fort Worth quite capably.

As the gentleman from Oklahoma stated, I had the distinct privilege, although one does not realize it as much when one is growing up, of growing up among the Choctaw Indians in southeastern Oklahoma. I heard many of my elders talk about the days of using code talkers in World War I, and they were also utilized in World War II.

So it is with a great deal of pride and nostalgia as I think back to what a lot of the elderly Native Americans with Choctaw ancestry were saying for me to be part of bringing this legislation, H.R. 3250, to the floor. I want to thank the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman Oxley) for the Financial Services and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) on that committee that combined several of these code talker bills so we could bring this legislation together and move it at this time.

Many people know the history of the code talkers of World War II; however, few people know the history of the code talkers of World War I. In the closing days of World War I, several members of the Choctaw Nation were helpful in winning key battles. The Choctaws were the first Native American code talkers used in battle and to win wars.

The Germans had broken the code of the American forces, and they had captured a messenger who was running in the messages received and sent out on D-Day. On that day he identified where our troops were, protected them from being fired on by our own troops and, in general, completely confused the Germans. Chi-bitty and other members said in code to our men, “Okay, we know where you are, just keep doing what you are doing.”

The code that Chi-bitty used was never broken and, for a long time, the Germans believed it was just gibberish. Eventually, the Germans sent spies to training grounds in Fort Gordon and to reservations in Oklahoma to try and crack the code. None of the spy missions were successful.

Chi-bitty, a true American hero, was also a loyal friend. He once turned down the Medal of Honor because it did not include all members of the 4th signal company whom he considered his brothers. Chi-bitty says, “I am glad I am still here, but I miss my comrades. I know that my comrades that have already gone before me are listening and laughing right now. I know when I go up there some day, they will be there waiting.”

Mr. Speaker, I wish to honor Charles Chi-bitty and all of the other Native American code talkers who so valiantly fought for our country and protected our Nation. H.R. 3250 authorizes the President to present a Congressional Gold Medal to these Native Americans who served as code talkers during both World War I and II. H.R. 3250 gives these men the honor they so richly deserve. Please support H.R. 3250.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may con- stute to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATKINS), who was raised among the Choctaw in eastern Oklahoma.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleagues, the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE), the gentleman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER), and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATKINS), for their efforts.

Clearly, the generation that went off to Europe in 1917 and 1918 is now all but gone, and the young men who went off to fight the Second World War between 1941 and 1945 is starting to show the ages and seasons of time. But, my colleagues, by making this effort to acknowledge these brave and valiant efforts, we do this House great service and do this Nation the same service.

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of this resolution.

Until recently the very existence of Sioux and Navajo code-talkers had remained yet another classified war secret.

These proud code-talkers lived with the quiet dignity of knowing that they did a great service for their nation, but could never speak of their heroic deeds.

These Sioux code-talkers worked under some of the heaviest combat conditions and worked around the clock, often without sleep, to provide coded information that saved the lives of countless American soldiers.

The Sioux code-talkers were so successful that military commanders credit the code for many victories in battle.

These brave and heroic men deserve our deepest respect. We owe a debt of gratitude to these men. We must honor them and teach our children, so that their quiet dignity is silent no more. So we may now honor them as what they are—American heroes.

It took an act of Congress to honor the Navajo code-talkers. We should at least pay the same tribute to these other defenders of our freedom.

Let us never forget the 44,000 Native Americans who served in World War II. They fought for a nation that has mistreated historically their people. That is the ultimate sign of valor and sacrifice.

Mr. LUCAS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CULBERTSON). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. LUCAS) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 3250, as amended.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill, as amended, was passed.

The title was amended so as to read:

“A bill to authorize the presentation of gold medals on behalf of Congress to Native Americans who served as Code Talkers during foreign conflicts in which the United States was involved during the 20th Century in recognition of their service to the Nation.”

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Ms. Wanda Evans, one of his secretaries.

RONALD C. PACKARD POST OFFICE BUILDING

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H.R. 4794) to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1895 Avenida Del Oro in Oceanside, California, as the Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. RONALD C. PACKARD POST OFFICE BUILDING.

(a) DESIGNATION.—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 1895 Avenida Del Oro in Oceanside, California, shall be known and designated as the "Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building".

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from California (Mr. ISSA) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) will each control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE).

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the bill, H.R. 4794.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4794, introduced by our distinguished colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. ISSA), designates the post office located in Oceanside, California, as the Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building. Members of the entire House delegation from the State of California are cosponsors of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, Ron Packard was first elected to Congress on November 2, 1982, after a successful write-in campaign, becoming only the fourth successful write-in candidate in U.S. history to win a House seat. He served the people of San Diego, Orange, and Riverside Counties for 18 years in the House of Representatives before his retirement at the close of the 106th Congress.

During his time in Congress, Mr. Packard served on the prestigious Committee on Appropriations and chaired the powerful Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development, Subcommittee on Military Construction, and Subcommittee on Legislative. He also worked as a member of the Subcommittee on Transportation and the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing and Related Programs.

Previously, he served on the Committee on Public Works, and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, and the Committee on Science, the Subcommittee on Space and Technology.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Issa).

Mr. ISSA. Mr. Speaker, authoring this bill was an honor and a pleasure for me for I have known Ron Packard for all but 2 years of the time that he was a Member of Congress. But what I did not know until I arrived here was what kind of a special Representative Ron Packard was while he was here in Congress.

Time after time Members on both sides of the aisle would come up to me and talk about something special they had with Ron, perhaps a difficult situation long into the night on a piece of legislation either on the floor or in committee, or some piece of appropriations that both sides were wrangling with to make it work. And Ron would quietly smile, give a kind word, listen, and try to make things happen.

That attitude, that way of doing business, was what everyone remembered about Ron.

What we also remember about Ron Packard is that he was able to have that unique talent so seldom found in this body, but so admirably it is found. Ron was able to be fiercely partisan in his beliefs and totally open and bipartisan in the way he approached problems, in the way he dealt with Members on both sides of the aisle.

Ron was known as a man who was already not only an adult, but a father and on his way to being a grandfather before he discovered the game of golf. He did not use golf as a tool against anyone, he used it as an opportunity to come to the other side of the aisle to say, let us go talk about something and maybe catch a round of golf.

Ron did that in everything that he did here in the House. He will be remembered for his effectiveness, but most important, back in our district, he today is contributing as only a former Member of Congress can.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4794, a bill designating the United States Post Office building in Oceanside, California, as the "Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building." I would like to thank Chairman DAN BURTON and the Government Reform Committee for discharging this bill, and House Leadership for placing it on the suspension calendar in such an expeditious manner.

Mr. Speaker, remember Ron Packard as the distinguished Congressman who represented the 48th Congressional District for 18 years, but you may not know his storied past. Congressman Ron Packard has served the people of California and his country for nearly half a century, accentuating integrity and above all, respect for his fellow man.

After relocating his family to Northern San Diego County, Ron Packard began his public service career as a trustee of the Carlsbad

H3619

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter).

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I arrived late. I just wanted to pay my respects to Ron Packard and the action that we are taking today on his behalf.

I just wanted to say that Ron really had two great trademarks in the House: his great civility, his ability to get along with other Members, and to argue on the substance but never on a personal level and I think bring us together in many difficult times and also had great conservative values which very much reflected the values of his district in San Diego County. I think that this naming of the post office is a fitting tribute to Ron and a fitting tribute to those values which he stood for.

So my best to Ron Packard, and I want to thank the chairman for allowing me to come down and talk about him a little bit.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Cox).

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I arrived late. I just wanted to pay my respects to Ron Packard and the action that we are taking today on his behalf.

I just wanted to say that Ron really had two great trademarks in the House: his great civility, his ability to get along with other Members, and to argue on the substance but never on a personal level and I think bring us together in many difficult times and also had great conservative values which very much reflected the values of his district in San Diego County. I think that this naming of the post office is a fitting tribute to Ron and a fitting tribute to those values which have served us so well.

So my best to Ron Packard, and I want to thank the chairman for allowing me to come down and talk about him a little bit.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Cox).

(Mr. COX asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me the time.

I, too, rise in support of the legislation, H.R. 4794, just considered by the House of Representatives, to designate the Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building in Oceanside, CA, a fitting tribute to Ron Packard. He had been a chairman on the Committee on Appropriations who took his trust so seriously that, in discharging it, he actually reduced spending.

When Ron Packard first became a chairman on the Committee on Appropriations in 1995, he quickly sent a bill to the floor of the House of Representatives that did not cut spending for the benefit of taxpayers, it cut spending at home where, presumably, it would hurt members of Congress themselves most, in our own legislative budget. He cut spending by Congress on itself by fully one-third, an extraordinary achievement when we had a new majority, a new Congress.

In fact, throughout his career in the majority as a chairman, as a leader, as a mayor, he has been for all of us, he has improved this institution, the people’s House. The Congress of the United States and thus our country is the better for it.

It has been a privilege to know the gentleman, Mr. Packard, and the designation of the Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building has been a fitting tribute to his contributions to our democracy.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support H.R. 4794, designating the Ronald C. Packard Post Office Building.

Ron has a long legacy of service to San Diego and has served the community one capacity or another since 1962. From his election to Congress in 1982 until his retirement in 2000, Ron worked tirelessly on behalf of the people of San Diego. His leadership as chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee provided for many of the improvements to San Diego’s infrastructure. Ron was also a senior member of the Appropriations Committee and was crucial in securing funding for many of the highway improvements and transit projects in the county.

Aside from Ron’s service and achievements, he is also a trusted friend. In my time in this body, I have turned to Ron many times as the senior member of the San Diego delegation for advice. Ron is one of the most sincere and generous individuals I have ever met. His character is unquestionable and I think that we would all do well to conduct our lives with the same sense of purpose and moral wisdom as Ron.

I believe that this post office is a fitting tribute to Ron Packard’s career in Congress and I am pleased to lend my support to this legislation.

Mr. WATSON of California. Mr. Speaker, thank you, Mr. Issa, for introducing this bill, and for allowing me to speak in support of naming this post office after Congressman Ron Packard.

Ron Packard has been a fixture in California politics for as long as I can remember. When most people think of the responsibilities of a Member of Congress, they think of our work here in Washington, shaping policy and passing legislation. But much of the job we do is focused on our own communities back home, serving as advocates for our hometowns and neighborhoods.

Over the two decades that he served in Congress, Ron Packard excelled in both these roles. In the House he rose to become an Appropriations subcommittee chairman, one of the so-called “Cardinals” who have a special responsibility for shaping our government’s spending policy.

But he was always focused on finding ways to help out his constituents and neighbors back home. Congressman Packard started out in local politics, as director of the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce. Strengthening the economy of his community and his state was his overriding passion. Like many Californians, Ron Packard was a pioneer, moving to California to serve in the United States Navy. After his service he settled here, and helped to build our state, as a dentist and local businessman.

This blend of military and private sector experience made Congressman Packard uniquely qualified to deal with one of the great economic challenges that California has had to confront over the last decade—the decline in huge defense budgets that came with the end of the Cold War. The California economy has had to adjust to this new reality, and Congressman Packard was a leader in this effort, whether it was cleaning up or converting old military sites or supporting efforts to diversify the local economy.

Congressman Packard retired so that he could spend more time with his family. I understand that he now has thirty-four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren, so I expect that spoiling all these youngsters will keep him quite busy.

This bill is a fitting tribute to Congressman Packard for the years of service he has provided to this House, his community and his country. Thank you again Mr. Issa.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield back my time.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 4717, introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE), designates a post office located in Pasadena, Texas, as the Jim Fonteno Post Office Building. Members of the entire House delegation from the State of Texas are co-sponsors of this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, during his 28-year tenure as Harris County commissioner, Commissioner Jim Fonteno has championed many projects to improve east Harris County. For instance, one of his first initiatives was to create senior citizen centers throughout east Harris County. Today these senior centers are available throughout Harris County, and it is a tribute to Commissioner Fonteno for his foresight in championing their establishment. These multiservice centers provide many services to senior citizens, including transportation services to and from the centers. In addition, Commissioner Fonteno has worked to improve local recreation facilities by upgrading equipment, purchasing land, and building new facilities.

There are currently 35 parks in Commissioner Fonteno’s precinct, covering 4,000 acres and providing 30 miles of hiking and biking trails. Commissioner Fonteno has also worked to improve the services available to youth by establishing the East Harris County Youth Program, which serves at-risk boys and girls at summer camps and after-school programs. Both of these programs help young people to succeed both academically and socially.

The renaming of the Pasadena post office building in honor of Commissioner Jim Fonteno is a well-deserved honor. He has tirelessly served the citizens of East Harris County through his many public and civic endeavors.

Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of H.R. 4717.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

As a member of the House Committee on Government Reform I rise in support of H.R. 4717, legislation naming a post office after Jim Fonteno. H.R. 4717, which was introduced by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) on May 14, 2002, has met the committee policy and enjoys the support and co-sponsorship of the entire Texas delegation.

Jim Fonteno is a county commissioner in East Harris County, Texas; and for over 28 years, Commissioner Fonteno has worked to deliver services to senior citizens and the young people of his community. He has improved local recreation facilities, established community and after-school programs for at-risk youth and created senior centers for the elderly.

Commissioner Jim Fonteno is known throughout the county for his dedication to public service, and I am pleased to join with my colleagues in seeking to name such a monument to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman and ranking member of the subcommittee for yielding me the time today.

I rise in strong support of H.R. 4717, legislation that I am sponsoring along with the entire Texas delegation, to rename the post office at 1199 Pasadena Boulevard in Pasadena, Texas, in my congressional district as the Jim Fonteno Post Office Building. As has been mentioned, Jim Fonteno has served as a member of the Harris County Commissioner Court for Precinct 2 in East Harris County since 1974 and will be retiring at the end of this year.

First elected in 1974, Jim Fonteno has exhibited dedication and compassion for those he served in East Harris County. He is and has been a permanent fixture throughout the region. Beloved by his constituents, Commissioner Fonteno can be found mingling at one of the many centers he helped to develop, riding on a Precinct 2 bus to an Astros game with them or serving as an auctioneer for one charitable cause or another, notably wearing his Precinct 2 cap and corralling wandering politicians to ante up for the cause.
Jim Fonteno is a veteran of both the United States Army and Merchant Marines. Prior to service as county commissioner, Jim Fonteno served as municipal court judge for the city of Baytown, Texas. He also served as port commissioner for the Port of Houston. An Auchterlonie native, Jim was elected to the office of county commissioner. Jim and his wife, JoAnn, have seven grown children and live in the Northshore area of East Harris County. He is an active member of the Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

Of particular note is the commissioner’s famed senior citizens program. Shortly after taking office in 1975, Commissioner Fonteno went to work on implementing a program that would address the unique needs of senior citizens in Precinct 2. Commissioner Fonteno did not believe retirement should mean resignation from one’s community; but he realized that for many of his constituents, most of whom people on fixed incomes, retirement meant just that. He also realized that for many, particularly widows, that lack of adequate nutrition and social and physical activity would result in a degraded life just at the time when one should be enjoying themselves for a lifetime of labor. Realizing there were no county funds for such a program, Commissioner Fonteno formed East Harris County Senior Citizens. This nonprofit program provides activities and transportation to the seniors throughout the precinct. Additionally, activities and meals are made available to seniors at the multiservice centers established by Commissioner Fonteno. Veterans’ medical needs are also addressed, and transportation is provided to and from the VA hospital.

One of the most critical needs that seniors faced was obtaining adequate transportation. Because seniors had limited transportation funds or none, they were literally inactive. Without transportation, many would remain shut in and excluded from county activities. In 1976, Commissioner Fonteno, along with four area businessmen, signed a note on a 32-passenger bus nicknamed the Fun Bus. Today, the fleet includes 21 buses, five of which are equipped for the physically challenged.

The Fun Bus. Today, the fleet includes 21 buses, five of which are equipped for the physically challenged. The buses are used to transport senior citizens to various places and activities. East Harris County Senior Citizens sponsor various activities throughout the year, including trips to sporting events such as Houston Astros, Comets, and Aeros games, and the Houston Livestock Show & Rodeo.

One of the most popular events sponsored by the East Harris County Senior Citizens is the Senior Citizen Olympics, held annually throughout precinct two. These fun-filled events provide both social and physical interaction among senior citizens. However, not every senior is able to attend these events. The distinctive needs of the seniors in the 18 nursing homes located throughout precinct two are addressed by the Nursing Home Program. Special activities such as movie parties, manicures, and the Ms. Golden Years Pageant are offered to nursing home residents. In addition, the handicap buses are utilized for field trip outings.

All of these activities are funded solely by grants and private donations. The $4 million in funds for Coast Guard services to the county, has earned the respect of all who have made to the 501c(3) corporation.

Another cause that Commissioner Fonteno devoted a great deal of time to was the well-being of our youth. The East Harris County Youth Program, which he founded, is dedicated to serving the needs of the Harris County Precinct two youth. The program originated as a pilot program comprising a summer camp at J.D. Walker Community Center and an after-school program at Cloverleaf Elementary School.

The single most important role of the East Harris County Youth Program is to serve as a vehicle that makes learning fun. Designed to be a resource, not a substitute for school systems, the program is a strong proponent of the students staying in school.

Although academic achievements receive top priority, the East Harris County Youth Program also puts an emphasis on physical activity.

I am proud to know Jim Fonteno, proud to call him a friend, and honored to be his representative in the U.S. House of Representatives.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 444 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk reads the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 444

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to take from the Chair immediate consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Bonilla). The gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. Myrick) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to my friend, the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. Slaughter); pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Ms. Slaughter. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule and to support the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, at a time when large corporations and manufacturers are announcing layoffs and scaling back production, more and more of our country are learning what western New York already knows: that the small business sector can be the real economic engine for our communities. Small businesses generate the jobs that keep our cities and towns vibrant, they generate the opportunities that anchor our sons and daughters to family and home, and they foster the innovators who represent the brightest hope for our future.

Last month I was pleased to host the Small Business Administration's 2002 Young Entrepreneur of the Year, a young man named Aaron Zach Phillips from Rochester, New York. Although only 25 years old, Zach has achieved remarkable success. He is the president of BMX, a manufacturer and distributor of BMX bicycle parts and related soft goods. Since 1999, Zach has doubled his company's growth annually with sales reaching nearly $1 million as of March 31, 2001. Zach now does business outside the United States and sells his product through distributors in Europe, Canada, Australia, and Japan. On every mailing logo, every label, every brochure or marketing tool he prints the words "Rochester Made Means Quality Made."

Zach embodies a growing trend that Congress must continue to foster. Small businesses now account for approximately 75 percent of all new jobs added to the economy and represent 99.7 percent of all employers. Small businesses provide almost one-third of the workers with their first jobs and initial on-the-job training in basic skills. The important role small businesses play in keeping our Nation competitive must not be overshadowed by corporate America's clout in this body. When small entrepreneurs like Zach are afforded the same attention and access to Washington that the large corporate interests enjoy,

A quick look at the numbers show that small businesses form the backbone of our economy. They account for half of our domestic products and contribute more than 55 percent of the innovations in such sectors as manufacturing, technology, and services. During the last administration, small businesses forged the way for high-tech expansion and growth. They now account for almost 40 percent of the jobs in the high-technology sector.

One reason for this is that women and minorities opened small businesses in record numbers. Women-owned businesses nearly quadrupled in the last decade, and they generally outstrip the national growth of business start-ups and receipts. Minority-owned businesses now own 15 percent of American business, and 99 percent of these businesses are small businesses.

Congress has addressed the needs of small business before. We have passed paperwork reduction legislation, such as the Paperwork Reduction Act, PRA, and the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement Fairness Act. Moreover, the last administration streamlined regulations by reinventing government and implementing the many recommendations made by the White House Conference on Small Businesses. The measure before us today continues this effort to reduce unnecessary paperwork for small businesses. I know of no opposition to this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 41, I call up the bill (H.R. 327) to amend chapter 35 of title 5, United States Code, to require each agency to establish a single point of contact for small businesses, a requirement for each agency to make further efforts to reduce paperwork for small businesses with fewer than 25 employees, establishment of an interagency task force to study streamlining of paperwork requirements for small businesses, and a requirement for two annual reports for fiscal years 2003 and 2004 from each agency on enforcement actions taken and civil penalties assessed, including actions and assessments against small businesses.

Despite the statutory requirements for annual reductions in paperwork burden, there have been annual increases in Federal paperwork requirements, with paper in each of the last 6 years, from 1996 to 2001. In addition, OMB's April 2002 report to Congress on Federal paperwork did not identify any interagency efforts to streamline paperwork requirements in small businesses.

Small businesses are particularly hurt by regulatory and paperwork burden. In an October 2001 report, the Small Business Administration estimated that 30 percent of large firms, those with over 500 employees, $4,463 per employee to comply with Federal regulatory and paperwork requirements. However, the cost to small businesses, those with fewer than 20 employees, is nearly 60 percent higher, a staggering $6,975 per employee.

Since introduction the staff of my subcommittee has worked with the staff of the Committee on Small Business to address concerns by this committee's majority and minority. As a consequence, as it did in the 105th Congress for the predecessor bill, that being H.R. 391, the Committee on Small Business sent a letter waiving jurisdiction on H.R. 327. H.R. 327 has been endorsed by many organizations including the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the National Federation of Independent Business, the National Small Business United Organization, the Small Business Coalition for Regulatory Relief, the Small Business Legislative Council, and the Small Business Survival Committee.

Congressional Budget Office provided a preliminary estimate of the budgetary impact of H.R. 327, saying that the bill "would result in a minimal cost for Federal agencies each year. Because the bill would not affect direct spending or governmental receipts, pay-as-you-go procedures would not apply." I support the rule to enable the House to consider a motion to concur with the Senate amendments to H.R. 327 and 1 hour of general debate evenly divided. Not only are regulatory and paperwork costs higher for small businesses, but also they are harder to absorb. Small businesses simply cannot afford to comply with Federal requirements in the same way that large businesses can. H.R. 327 should result in some much needed relief for small businesses.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I have no request for time, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 41, I call up the bill (H.R. 327) to amend chapter 35 of title 5, United States Code, for the purpose of facilitating compliance by small businesses with certain Federal paperwork requirements and to establish a task force to examine the feasibility of streamlining paperwork requirements applicable to small businesses, with Senate amendments thereto, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. In motion. Consent. Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BONILLA). The Clerk will designate the motion.

The text of the motion is as follows: Mr. OSE moves that the House concur in the Senate amendments, as follows: Senate amendments—strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Small Business Paperwork Relief Act of 2002."

SEC. 2. FACILITATION OF COMPLIANCE WITH FEDERAL PAPERWORK REQUIREMENTS.

(a) REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO THE DIRECTOR OF OMB.—Section 3504(c) of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking all after the enacting clause and inserting:
States Code (commonly referred to as the “Paperwork Reduction Act”), is amended—

(1) in paragraph (4), by striking “;” and inserting a semicolon; and
(2) in paragraph (5), by striking the period and inserting a semicolon; and
(3) by adding at the end the following:

“(6) publish in the Federal Register and make available on the Internet (in consultation with the Small Business Administration on an annual basis a list of the compliance assistance resources available to small businesses, with the first such publication occurring not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of the Small Business Paperwork Relief Act of 2002.”;

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF AGENCY POINT OF CONTACT—

(1) section 3506 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(B) Establishing a 1 point of contact with respect to the collection of information and programs and examine the feasibility and desirability of requiring each agency to consolidate requirements regarding collections of information with respect to small business concerns within and across agencies, without negatively impacting the effectiveness of underlying laws and regulations regarding such collections of information, in order that each small business concern may submit all information required by the agency—

“(1) to a point of contact in the agency;
“(2) in a single format, such as a single electronic reporting system, with respect to the agency;
“(C) the task force members; and
“(D) not less than 1 representative of the Department of Transportation;

“(E) not less than 1 representative of the Office of Advocacy of the Small Business Administration;
“(F) not less than 1 representative of the Internal Revenue Service;
“(G) not less than 2 representatives of the Department of Health and Human Services, including 1 representative of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services;
“(H) not less than 1 representative of the Department of Agriculture;
“(I) not less than 1 representative of the Department of the Interior;
“(J) not less than 1 representative of the General Services Administration;
“(K) not less than 1 representative of each of 2 agencies not represented by representatives described under subparagraphs (A) through (J).

“§ 3520. Establishment of task force on information collection and dissemination

“(a) In general—Chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by redesignating section 3529 as section 3521; and
(2) by inserting after section 3529 the following:

“§ 3520. Establishment of task force on information collection and dissemination

“(a) There is established a task force to study the feasibility of streamlining requirements with respect to small business concerns regarding collection of information and strengthening dissemination of information (in this section referred to as the ‘task force’).

“(b)(1) The Director shall determine—

“(A) subject to the minimum requirements under paragraph (2), the number of representatives to be designated under each subparagraph of that paragraph; and “(B) the agencies to be represented under paragraph (2)(K).

“(2) After all determinations are made under paragraph (1), the members of the task force shall be designated by the head of each applicable department or agency, and include—

“(A) the Director of the Department of Labor, who shall convene and chair the task force;

We thought that small business owners and workers are simply overwhelmed with paper work and don’t realize their error. We thought that small business owners should be given a chance to correct the problem before they were slapped with a fine. I am disappointed that this final version does not include the fine suspension.”

Mr. Speaker, I agree with Senator Lincoln and hope that these helpful provisions will be enacted by Congress in the future.

The amended version of H.R. 327 before the House today includes the following helpful provisions for small businesses: first, a requirement for the Office of Management and Budget to annually publish in the Federal Register and on the Internet a list of compliance assistance resources available to small businesses;

Second, a requirement for each agency to establish a single point of contact for small businesses;

Third, a requirement for each agency to make further efforts to reduce paperwork for small businesses having fewer than 25 employees;

Fourth, a requirement for each agency to submit two reports, each with data for a 1-year period on enforcement actions in which a civil penalty was assessed and the penalty amounts reduced or waived for small businesses;

Fifth, establishment of an inter-agency task force to study streamlining of paperwork requirements for small businesses.

Under the amended version of H.R. 327, this task force will identify ways to integrate the collection of information across Federal agencies and programs, and to determine the feasibility of requiring the agencies to consolidate reporting requirements in order that each small business may submit all information required by the agency to one point of contact at the agency, in a single format or using a single electronic reporting system, and with synchronized reporting.

During the May 21 Senate floor debate on the amended version of H.R. 327, Senator Joe Lieberman inserted in the record a amendment co-authored by Senator Voinovich, entitled, “H.R. 327: Consensus Amendment, Purposes and Summary, Section-by-Sec tion Description, and Legislative History.” This document constitutes only part of the legislative history of the amended version of H.R. 327.

The task force will also examine the benefits to small businesses of publishing a list of information collections organized by the North American Industrial Classification System codes or in another manner by which small businesses can more easily identify requirements with which they are expected to comply.

Last month, the subcommittee provided OMB with a road map for OMB to easily prepare such a NAICS code listing, which will be printed in the RECORD at the end of my statement.

In addition, later in this debate, I will engage in a colloquy with the chairman of the Committee on Small Business, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Manzullo), about the utility of a NAICS-code listing.

Additionally, the task force will develop recommendations for systems for interactive electronic reporting. The definition of “small business” in this bill is the one used in the Small Business Act at 15 USC subsection 631 et seq.

Senator Voinovich’s companion bill, which passed the Senate by unanimous consent last December, included an every-2-year reporting requirement on the number of enforcement actions in which a civil penalty was assessed, the number of such actions in which a civil penalty is assessed against a small entity, the number of enforcement actions in which the civil penalty is reduced or waived, and the total monetary amount of reductions or waivers. Unfortunately, the amended version of H.R. 327 today only includes a requirement for agencies to report this information two times. However, if there is practical utility to this information, this Federal agency reporting requirement can and should be expanded.

H.R. 327 amends the Paperwork Reduction Act, which is the successor to the Federal Reports Act of 1942, which began the requirement for OMB approval before paperwork could be imposed on nine or more persons.

The 1980 Paperwork Reduction Act, which established the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in the office of OMB, began by stating: “Information needed by Federal agencies shall be obtained at a minimum burden upon business enterprises, especially small business enterprises, and other persons required to furnish the information, and at a minimum cost to the government.” The 1995 reauthorization of the Paperwork Reduction Act set 10 percent and 5 percent goals for paperwork reduction each year from 1996 to 2000.

OMB’s most recent estimate of Federal paperwork burden on the public is 7.7 billion hours annually, at a cost of $230 billion per year. Despite the statutory requirements for annual reductions in paperwork burden, there have actually been annual increases in paperwork in each of the last 6 years, from 1996 to 2001. OMB’s April 2002 report to Congress entitled “Managing Information Collection and Dissemination: Fiscal Year 2002,” does not identify any interagency efforts to streamline paperwork requirements on small businesses. Also, OMB is now required to provide an analysis of the impacts of Federal regulation on small business, OMB’s December 2001 report entitled “Making Sense of Regulation: 2001 Report to Congress on the Costs and Benefits of Regulations and Unfunded Mandates on State, Local, and Tribal Entities,” devotes less than one page to the impact of Federal regulatory and paperwork burdens on small businesses.

H.R. 327 has been endorsed by the United States Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Manufacturers, National Federation of Independent Business, National Small Business

Small businesses are particularly hurt by regulatory and paperwork burden. In an October 2001 report, the Small Business Administration estimated that it cost large firms, those with over 500 employees, $4,463 per employee to comply with Federal regulatory and paperwork requirements.

However, the cost to small businesses, those with fewer than 20 employees, is nearly 50 percent higher, a staggering $6,975 per employee. Not only are such costs higher for small businesses, but they are also much harder to absorb. Small businesses simply cannot afford to comply with Federal requirements in the same way that large businesses can. The high cost of such requirements often makes it impossible for small businesses to expand; it threatens their ability to stay afloat or prevents them from opening in the first place.

During the May 21, 2002, floor debate on the amended version of H.R. 327, Senator LINCOLN stated, “I have been told that Federal paperwork burdens rank just behind taxes and the cost of health care as the top problems facing members of the National Federation of Independent Businesses.” H.R. 327 should result in some needed relief for small businesses.

Steps to Add NAICS Codes to OMB/OIRA’s Existing Computerized Paperwork Database

1. NAICS information. Decide what NAICS codes information should be included in OMB/OIRA’s existing computerized paperwork database. Examine the SF-80 (Rev. 9-80) item #21 to see if that approach is desirable, especially since the software was previously developed for it. This item required OMB to indicate up to ten 3-digit SIC codes or to check “multiple” or “all.” Besides deciding on the approach, OMB needs to decide on the number of NAICS digits—the first 2 digits are used for sectors, the 3rd digit is for sub-sectors, the 4th digit is for industry group, etc.—which would be most useful for the public to identify applicable paperwork. The agencies could reduce duplicative paperwork and paperwork without any practical utility.

2. Other new information. Decide if any other information could be added to OMB/OIRA’s paperwork database so that the agencies could be asked to provide this information for all currently-approved information collections at the same time as NAICS codes information. Alternatively, the agencies could be asked to provide this information only for new collections OMB approval under the Paperwork Reduction Act. First, examine the 16 other items on the SF-80 (Rev. 9-80) which were deleted, including item #21, Section III (available in the Executive and Legislative Branch budgeting). The software for some of these items was also previously developed. However, some of these could be used, such as #28 (authority for agency for information collection—indicate statute, regulation, or other source document). Since 1980, the Regulatory Information Service Center (RISC) has made some progress in coding some of this information.

3. Data specifications. After #1 and #2 are settled, outline the data specifications for a computer contractor. After the contractor is on board for the project, OMB should work with him to design the data format and a minimum number of data edits. For example, the contractor probably does not need to check if each 3-digit (or whatever level is chosen) NAICS code is valid by an agency. However, a valid one but the contractor probably should check that there is some NAICS information for every data collection which significantly impacts on small entities (OMB-83-I #5) or which affects business or other for-profits or farms (OMB-83-I #11 b & d).

4. Output formats. OIRA and the contractor also need to design the output formats, including: the OMB webpage which includes NAICS information, including links to each agency’s consolidated webpage, which, at a minimum, should include links to each of the agency’s approved forms (available in onlyذ the full paper-copy listing by NAICS code. The agency webpages could also include additional information, such as links to the applicable regulations underpinning the recordkeeping requirements and any non-binding guidance documents. Unfortunately, many currently-approved agency forms are not yet available on the Internet so this step may require some agency effort, which is worthwhile with or without the addition of NAICS.

5. Availability. After consultation with the statistical and interest groups (such as NFIB), OMB should decide if all Federal Register publica-tions annually and the Federal Register Notice of Document Availability for OMB’s full paper-copy listing.

6. Agency training. OIRA (including its Statistical Policy experts) needs to train the agencies about NAICS. If agencies are in doubt which NAICS codes apply, they could then provide assistance to small businesses all know which NAICS code applies to them since they are routinely asked to provide this information by various Federal agencies (e.g., the Census Bureau and the SIC).

7. Agency input. After OMB and the contractor have agreed on an approach (step #1 above) and the agencies are trained (step #2 above), OMB needs to ask each agency with one or more currently approved information collections (i.e., including the independent regulatory commissions and the bank regulatory agencies) to provide the new information—for each of the 7,780 currently-approved information collections—in the same way the agencies would be using for all new agency requests for OMB approval under the Paperwork Reduction Act. OMB would ask agencies to directly input this information to the database with the rest of the data elements in OMB’s database kept as read-only items which can not be changed by the agencies. Alternatively, OMB could ask the agencies to e-mail the information in a format calling only for the 8-digit OMB number and then have the contractor edit checks in the consolidated (agency-provided) new information in OMB/OIRA’s paperwork database (as determined in step #3 above) and test each of the links from OMB’s webpage to each of the agency’s webpages.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE), the chairman of the subcommittee, and the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee for their willingness to negotiate the amendments to H.R. 327 that we are considering today.

H.R. 327 is a substantial improvement over the small business paperwork bills that were considered by the House in the last two Congresses. The controversial penalty provisions have been removed, and the bill includes provisions suggested by the Democratic minority that will reduce the paperwork burden on small businesses.

Mr. Speaker, small businesses are the backbone of the economy and are where the new jobs are being created. However, many small and family-owned businesses spend a great deal of their resources learning about and complying with applicable laws.

I am pleased that we are looking at ways to make it easier for small businesses to understand what information they are required to provide to the government and ways to simplify and streamline the paperwork processes.

H.R. 327, as amended, requires OMB to annually produce a list of compliance assistance resources available to small businesses. This list must be printed in the Federal Register and posted on the Internet. This bill also requires each agency to establish one point of contact to act as a liaison with small businesses.

H.R. 327 requires agencies to make efforts to further reduce paperwork now instead of businesses with fewer than 25 employees.

The bill establishes a task force to make recommendations for electronic reporting and improving information dissemination. And H.R. 327 requires agencies to report on the number of enforcement actions they take and the number of instances when they reduce and waive penalties.

Mr. Speaker, 4 years ago we considered similar provisions with the House considered H.R. 3310. Unfortunately, H.R. 3310 also contained provisions that would have prohibited agencies from penalizing businesses for most first-time information-related violations. These provisions would have removed agency discretion and created a safe haven for willful, substantial, and long-standing violations. They were strongly opposed by the Clinton administration, labor, environmental, consumer, women, heads of trade, and firefighter groups, as well as some State attorneys general.

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) and I offered an amendment to address these concerns. However, the amendment failed, leaving substantial paperwork requirements in place.

Because of the surrounding controversy, the bill was never considered in the Senate and we lost the chance to implement the provisions we are considering today. The bill was resurrected in the next Congress as H.R. 391. The Kucinich amendment, which fixed the controversial provisions, narrowly failed by a vote of 214–210. Again, because the controversial provisions remained in the bill, it never became law.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to see that H.R. 327 does not include the controversial penalty provisions, and it will likely become law. I am pleased to say that this version of H.R. 327 includes suggestions made by the Democratic minority of the Committee on Government Reform. For instance, the focus of the bill is on compliance assistance. The bill helps businesses figure out what information they need to provide to which agencies and makes it easier for them to provide the information.

Furthermore, the task force will make recommendations for implementing interactive systems for information collection requirements and electronic reporting. This will allow small businesses to identify applicable requirements over the Internet and get immediate feedback on electronic submissions in order to help ensure that they submit consistent and usable data.

Moreover, the task force will recommend ways to strengthen information dissemination so that agencies can more efficiently share the information they gather with other agencies and the public.

In addition, the original bill required agencies to provide an annual list of paperwork requirements by statistical code. However, this list likely would not be used by small businesses, and it would merely provide a statistical analysis of the quantity of information regulations.

Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is not to count regulations, but to help small businesses understand and comply with the information collection requirements. The bill directs a task force to study the feasibility of such a list and whether such a list would actually benefit small businesses, so the bill requires a useful annual list of compliance assistance resources. While I understand, Mr. Speaker, that there will be a colloquy between the chairman of the Committee on Small Business and the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE), that information that is shared with us is, of course, their opinion and is not part of the legislative history.

H.R. 327 includes a provision suggested by the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS) and adopted 4 years ago that focuses paperwork reduction on small businesses with fewer than 25 employees. This amendment helps direct resources to the small businesses that need our help the most. The definition of small businesses that was incorporated into H.R. 327 originally was so broad that it included numerous businesses that many do not consider small. It included petroleum refineries with up to 1,500 employees, pharmaceutical companies with up to 750 employees, and banks with up to $100 million in assets. Thus, the bill helps most businesses, not just small businesses. Therefore, I believe it is appropriate to focus agency efforts on businesses that really are small.

Mr. Speaker, information collection is one of the most important jobs of the Federal Government. It allows the government to enforce the law without burdening businesses with in-depth site investigations. Nevertheless, it is difficult for small businesses to fully understand what is required of them. And many businesses have expressed frustration with the fact that they have provided similar information to more than one source in government.

I believe the government should help small businesses understand their responsibilities and streamline the information collection process. This bill serves both purposes without jeopardizing the underlying protections. Furthermore, it should help us tackle the advantage of the information age by using the Internet to gather and disseminate information. These changes have been suggested by interested agencies, including the General Accounting Office.

I urge my colleagues to support this motion. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Government Reform.

(Without waiting in Indiana and asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time.

Let me start off by thanking the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY), the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE) and the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) who worked with me to get this piece of legislation to the floor. This is an extremely important piece of legislation because if there is one thing that small businesses across the country are very chagrined about, it is the amount of paperwork that they have to deal with on a regular basis. As a matter of fact, the cost to a small businessperson runs about $7,000 per employee to deal with the paperwork that faces them from the Federal Government. If you have over 20 employees, that is a $140,000 annual cost that you have to deal with, and it simply is not necessary.

This legislation is designed to streamline that effort to make sure that small businesspeople do not suffer from a tidal wave of paperwork that is going to be placed on their business almost impossible. I think my colleagues have covered this very, very well. The gentleman from California (Mr. OSE) has worked very hard on this. The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) has as well. I think they have covered all of the provisions of the bill and the problems we had in getting this bill drafted and to the floor.

I would just like to say that it is high time that we got this done. If there is one thing that small business and business in America needs, it is a reduction of the amount of paperwork and regulation that they have to deal with on a daily basis with the Federal Government. I believe this is going to save them money, it is going to streamline the effort to comply with government regulations, and it is a giant step in the right direction.

All of the small businesses in America that may be watching this right now, you can take heart. We are moving in the right direction. There is a lot more that needs to be done, but this is a great first step.

Mr. Speaker, today we have before us a piece of legislation that's going to help small businesses navigate the maze of Federal forms that they have to fill out.

This is a serious problem for small businesses. If you talk to any small business owner, they tell you that Federal regulations, Federal mandates, and Federal paperwork are a serious burden. It's hard to figure out what rules have to be complied with and what forms have to be filled out. It's time-consuming and expensive.

Last year, the Small Business Administration estimated that small businesses spend close to $7,000 per employee on Federal paperwork. Think about that—$7,000 per employee. For a company that has 20 employees, that's $140,000. That's a serious drain on the resources of a small business.

It's a serious problem. The Paperwork Reduction Act many years ago, the goal was to reduce the Federal paperwork burden. Unfortunately, it hasn't been very successful. Over the last six years, the paperwork burden on the American people has not shrunk—it's grown every year.

This bill isn't going to reverse that tide all by itself. But I think it will help small businesses cope with the problems they're having. It will give them more resources so they can get assistance when they need it.

This bill requires every Federal agency to have a single point of contact for small businesses. If a small businessman in Indiana or Ohio doesn't understand what forms he has to fill out, there should be one office in each agency where he can pick up the phone and get help. This bill does that.

It requires the Office of Management and Budget to post on its website every year an up-to-date list of all of the resources that are available to help small businesses with paperwork problems.

It requires every Federal agency to make additional efforts to reduce paperwork for the smallest businesses—businesses with fewer than 25 employees.

This bill sets up an inter-agency task force. This task force will develop a plan to consolidate reporting requirements and make them more uniform. Many small businesses have to report the same information to several different agencies. We should have a system that would allow a small businessman to submit that information once, in electronic form. That would be the job of this task force.

It would also look at whether we could have interactive reporting systems, so businesses could get immediate feedback if there is a problem. These things would be very valuable to small businesses around the country.

Last but not least, this bill would require Federal agencies to report to Congress on the penalties they impose on individuals and small businesses. They would be required to file two annual reports on the number of civil actions brought by and the number of penalties that were reduced specifically on small businesses.

We have never had that kind of information before. We need to get a better handle on how many penalties are being imposed on small businesses, and for what kind of offenses. These reports will help us do that.

When we first started working on this bill several years ago, we had a provision that required agencies to waive first-time penalties against small businesses for inadvertent paperwork errors. I thought that was a very good idea. It was approved twice in the House. Unfortunately, we couldn’t get it passed in the other body. We tried for about three years, and it didn’t happen. So we compromised. Nobody got everything they wanted in this bill—but it’s a good compromise. These reports on penalties being imposed on small businesses will give us more information and help us understand what’s happening.

We’ve worked very hard with Members of both bodies to get to this point. I want to thank my friends on the Government Reform Committee, Mr. OSE, Mr. WAXMAN, and Mr. TIERNEY for working with me to get this bill done.

I also want to thank our friends in the other body for their assistance—particularly Senator LIEBERMAN, Senator VOINOVICH and Senator THOMPSON. We couldn’t have gotten to this point without their help.

Let me conclude by saying this— I was a small businessman before I came to Congress. Mr. OSE was a small businessman before he came to Congress. Many Members of the House ran their own businesses before they decided to run for Congress. We understand how difficult it is to start your own business, and to make it successful. We understand it to comply with Federal mandates and Federal tax laws, and to make sure you’ve filled out the right forms. And we also understand how important small businesses are to our economy. They’re the lifeblood of our economy.

So any time we have an opportunity to develop legislation that will make it a little easier to deal with the Federal bureaucracy, we should do it. That’s what this bill is meant to do. It’s not about helping small businesses face go away, but it’s a good start. We’re going to continue to look for opportunities to pass legislation that will help small businessmen and women.

I urge all of my colleagues to support this good piece of legislation.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. BALDACCI).

Mr. BALDACCI. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Massachusetts for his leadership on this issue and helping to bring this very important piece of legislation to the floor. This is something that concerns an awful lot of small businesses in the State of Maine. It knows how crucial it is. Over 97 percent of the businesses are represented by small businesses in our State. We have over 40,000 of them in all. These enterprises face a maze of regulations and requirements that impose a time-consuming and expensive Federal Government alone has over 7,000 forms that are required for one activity or another. State and local regulations add a further layer of almost equal complexity and cost. How small businesses compete and grow and their full potential when they have to devote so much time and energy and resources just to figuring out what forms to fill out? I know how hard this situation is for small businesses. I know because I am a small business owner myself, and I have personally experienced the frustration of trying to navigate the system. I do believe that the innovations that this bill provides will make it easier. It will make compliance assistance more readily available. It will require agencies to find ways to further reduce paperwork for smaller businesses. And it will establish a single point of contact for small businesses in each of the Federal agencies, something that is very much needed.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is a good start. I look forward to bringing this assistance to small businesses. However, as we all know, there is more work that we need to do. We need to find ways to help agencies to better coordinate their efforts both at the Federal level and between the State and local levels to make these processes seamless. Ideally, we should have a single point of contact for all small business so they can quickly and easily find what they need. Small businesses do not have the resources of big corporations, but they should have the same chance to compete.

This bill is a good step towards having a level playing field. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO).

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 327, the Small Business Paperwork Relief Act as amended by the Senate. The bill represents the first effort in reducing the paperwork burdens that are swamping millions of small businesses. If we can get them out from under this deluge, we can devote our attention to creating jobs, investing in capital, moving the economy forward and cooking spaghetti, which is what my brother does in his Italian restaurant. The gentleman from Maine (Mr. BALDACCI) does the same thing.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is a good start. It would reduce the paperwork burden. Some of the reasons for this bill is to allow the chefs to spend more time cooking Italian food at our restaurants as opposed to filling out forms. People do not go to chef school to fill out forms. They go there to make people happy, to present a good balance of herbs and spices, to be able to know what is on the menu, to be able to make the food according to people’s tastes. But when all the chefs in the small restaurants and all the like-minded small business people in the country have to fill out papers for the Federal Government, then they spend too much time doing that.

Twenty years after the passage of the Paperwork Reduction Act, there is no evidence that the government has reduced the amount of paperwork on small businesses. Mr. Glickman, who is the current Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, and who is doing a great job, has begun efforts to reduce paperwork burdens. Even with these efforts, the Federal Government annually costs Americans at least $61 billion to complete the paperwork forms. People may have to prepare as many as 46 different forms accompanied by 250 pages of instructions. Physicians seeking to provide service under the Medicare program send a 30-page application to CMS, while private insurers enroll physicians after a one-page application.

We ask ourselves, is all of this information for small business necessary? What government find the information useful? Can the government get the necessary information in a less burdensome way? The Small Business Paperwork Relief Act will initiate a process to help answer these questions. Small businesses should be engaged in a colloquy with the gentleman from California (Mr. OSE), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Energy Policy, Natural Resources and Regulatory Affairs.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman yield?

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to engage in a colloquy with the gentleman from Illinois, who is the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Small Business.
Mr. MANZULLO. I thank the gentleman from California for agreeing to engage in this colloquy. I think it is absolutely imperative that the task force created by the bill obtains input from the small business community. I am sure the gentleman from California agrees.

Mr. OSE. I concur with the gentleman from Illinois. I cannot understand how a task force that is designed to reduce the paperwork burdens on small businesses could accomplish its goal without obtaining input from the small businesses that are buried by Federal reporting and recordkeeping requirements.

Mr. MANZULLO. I thank the gentleman from California for clarifying that issue. I also note that the bill would require that the Office of Management and Budget, OMB, publish in the Federal Register and make available on the Internet an annual listing of the compliance assistance resources available to small businesses. I agree that this would make the information more accessible. However, I believe that more can be done. I think that OMB should establish a link on its Website to each agency’s single point of contact. Each agency’s Website would then have links to each relevant paperwork required for small businesses. I would like the opinion of the gentleman from California on this point.

Mr. OSE. I agree with the gentleman from Illinois. The bill is intended to make information available in a user-friendly format, which means making it easy for small businesses to find the relevant paperwork requirements on the Internet. That would include providing appropriate links on the Office of Management and Budget’s Website to the single points of contact established by the bill. In addition, I would expect links on the Office of Management and Budget’s Website to other general access points, such as the FirstGov Website and the Small Business Administration and Budget, OMB, publish in the Federal Register and make available on the Internet. That would include providing appropriate links on the Office of Management and Budget’s Website to the single points of contact established by the bill. In addition, I would expect links on the Office of Management and Budget’s Website to other general access points, such as the FirstGov Website and the Small Business Administration’s Website. It would then be up to Congress to organize it. It would then be up to Congress to consider the task force findings, colloquies notwithstanding.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, just to briefly say that the record shall reflect, Mr. Speaker, that that colloquy, of course, reflects the personal opinions of the two Representatives involved and the provision for public comment of the task force draft report. This committee and the committees over in the Senate did a lot of time negotiating out the resulting provisions of this bill, and we are in total agreement. I believe that the information should be organized by NAICS codes. Otherwise a small business searching for information on its paperwork burdens might not find the information most applicable to its business. By using NAICS codes, resources could easily be organized by which are relevant for restaurants, not information for steel manufacturers.

In conclusion, I fully agree with the gentleman from Illinois on this point, Mr. Speaker, for helping me make it part of the record.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I concur with the gentleman from Illinois. I cannot understand how the task force created by the bill would not be part of the history of this particular bill, having come through committees and subcommittees and been negotiated.

I reiterate that there was no part of that colloquy to which the minority was privy. They were not given the courtesy of an advance copy of that colloquy through the subcommittee. I do not know what the reason was, but certainly I do not want to leave it with the public or the Speaker that impression that that was part of the legislative history, the negotiations between the subcommittees, the committees, the Senate or the House, in leaving the bill could be more accessible. However, I believe that more can be done. I think that OMB should establish a link on its Website to each agency’s single point of contact. Each agency’s Website would then have links to each relevant paperwork required for small businesses. I would like the opinion of the gentleman from California on this point.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. MANZULLO). We inadvertently left out a couple of items of the record that we are attempting to establish here.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry that I left out a point in our colloquy that is quite important. Finally, I should have clarified one point. H.R. 327 as introduced required OMB to annually publish a list of requirements applicable to small businesses organized by North American Industry Classification System, NAICS, codes and industrial/sector description. In the amended version of H.R. 327 as passed by the Senate, this requirement is modified substantially.

Instead of requiring OMB to annually publish such a listing, it allows the task force to examine the feasibility and benefits of small businesses of publishing organized by NAICS code, industrial/sector description, or in another manner by which small businesses can more easily identify requirements with which they are expected to comply. I would seek the gentleman from California (Mr. Ose), is it your opinion that the best method for classifying the information remains by NAICS codes because that would enable small businesses to best identify the paperwork burdens associated with their businesses?

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?
Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Pence).

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Small Business Paperwork Relief Act.

Mr. Speaker, I serve as chairman of the Subcommittee on Regulatory Reform and Oversight of the Committee on Small Business, and I have spent countless hours listening to small businesses of America plead with Congress to restrain the egregious rulemaking and paperwork requirements of Federal agencies.

Small businesses, as we all know, Mr. Speaker, are on the front lines every day dealing with the real-world implications of overzealous bureaucrats that seldom take into consideration the impact on the small business sector. Despite the fact that small businesses account for 50 percent of America’s employers and two-thirds to three-quarters of net new jobs in the United States, few people inside the Federal Government are listening on an average day, and the paperwork burden continues to balloon, costing small businesses with fewer than 20 employees $6,975 per employee to comply.

The Small Business Paperwork Relief Act will, Mr. Speaker, help small businesses, as we all know, Mr. Speaker, listen on an average day, and the paperwork burden continues to balloon, costing small businesses with fewer than 20 employees $6,975 per employee to comply.

The Small Business Paperwork Relief Act will, Mr. Speaker, help small businesses, as we all know, Mr. Speaker, listen on an average day, and the paperwork burden continues to balloon, costing small businesses with fewer than 20 employees $6,975 per employee to comply.

Mr. Speaker, nowhere is that paper-work burden more evident than in the Environmental Protection Agency. My subcommittee recently held a hearing on the EPA’s TRI Lead rule. This was a classic case of an executive agency subverting the regulatory reform measures that have been put in place over the years.

For example, the EPA failed to do a proper analysis of its impact on small businesses. It failed to do an independent peer review of the science behind the rule, and they failed to do proper small business outreach. All of this will result in a cost of over $50 million per year to small businesses, and the paperwork regulation that will follow will not in any way reduce the lead released into our environment.

This simply cannot continued. America’s small business owners are suffering death by 1,000 paper cuts. They go into work every day armed with the entrepreneurial spirit, with the goal of building a business that will be successful, and what they have found is one of their largest obstacles to success is not a faulty business plan or a poor economy, but the paperwork and reporting requirements that the Federal Government imposes.

I urge all of my colleagues today to stand by those who make their daily trek into work, to stand by the small business owner, and make it today just a little bit less burdensome. Pass the Paperwork Relief Act.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from West Virginia (Mrs. Capito).

Mrs. CAPITO. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from California for his leadership on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today and urge all of my colleagues to support H.R. 327, the Small Business Paperwork Relief Act. This plan has the ability to really make a difference.

In my home State of West Virginia, over 80 percent of our businesses are small businesses. In our State, good jobs are at a premium, and economic growth is our continual goal. This plan will support our State and other States in their goal to reach for more job creation and a stronger economy by helping small businesses thrive and perhaps even helping a small business begin.

Mr. Speaker, small business has always been and will continue to be the key to the American dream. By erecting and ignoring the government barriers that hinder the success of small business, this slows the creation and stifles growth.

We have heard a lot of figures today, but I have a new one. According to recent figures by the Office of Management and Budget, American businesses spend 7.7 million hours each year complying with Federal paperwork at an astounding cost of $230 billion a year. Just the health and safety people could be employed or how many additional health benefits could be afforded with that much money.

Passing the Small Business Paperwork Relief Act will free the hands of our small business owners by removing the unnecessary regulations that prevent them from doing things that I have mentioned, offering expanded health benefits, employing new employees. All these things could be done with the cost they expend on filling out the mountains of paperwork.

We need to work quickly and pass this so that our constituents will not be cheated and our economy will not be stifled by depriving our businesses of many talented and capable workers. I urge my colleagues to recognize the tremendous benefits of this plan and to pass H.R. 327.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Idaho (Mr. Otter), the vice chairman.

Mr. OTTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman of our subcommittee for yielding me time, and I also thank him for the leadership that he has shown in an effort to reduce not just the paperwork, but all the burdensome government regulations on all of our small businesses and, in fact, on the private sector in general.

We already know and we have heard many of the virtues and the merits that this H.R. 327 is going to provide for the private sector. I am hopeful, Mr. Speaker, that this the first in an evolutionary process that we will have in reducing many more of the burdensome regulations not only on paperwork, but of the other rules and regulations that we have on the private sector, and especially the small businesses.

The U.S. Small Business Administration Office of Advocacy recently issued a report called The Impact of Regulatory Costs on Small Firms. In this report, it is stated that with Federal regulations, Americans spent $843 billion in the year 2000. Had every household received a portion of that bill, every family received a proportional share of that bill, each household would have cost $8,164, each household.

I submit, Mr. Speaker, that it did cost each and every one of those households $8,164. Of course, that is to be added in the $19 trillion that the Federal revenues already collect from each and every household.

Why do I say that the households themselves had to pay $8,164 each? Because, Mr. Speaker, all you can do when you have a cost accruing from the government to a business and to a value-added product is pass that on to the customer. So we politicians sit down here and we pontificate about how we are not going to tax the people, we are not going to make the people pay the burden of the regulations. We are just going to make the businesses do it.

And, quite frankly, businesses pay no taxes. Those that do go bankrupt. There is all kinds of lists of those. But who pays the taxes are the taxpayers. They are the ones that pay the taxes, each and every one. You want to increase the price of Idaho french fries? Tomorrow morning I will guarantee all the french fry jox in this great Nation of ours you will see the price of french fries go up, because businesses have to collect those taxes.

But it is the sleight of hand. It is the shadowy little area that we always deal in with rules and regulations and taxes in this Congress. Let us be honest with ourselves and let us tell these folks that not only are we giving the small businesses relief from the paperwork burden, but we are giving the taxpayers, the purchasers, the consumers, those who would consume the services and the value-added goods from our small businesses in this country, we are giving them the relief as well. I think you will see how much more competitive we can become in
Mr. Speaker. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OSE. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair announces that he will postpone further proceedings today on the further motion to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record vote on the postponed question will be taken tomorrow.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF UNITED STATES ARMY SPECIAL FORCES

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 364) recognizing the historic significance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the United States Army Special Forces and honoring the ‘Father of the Special Forces’, Colonel Aaron Bank (United States Army, retired) of Mission Viejo, California, for his role in establishing the Army Special Forces, as amended.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Con. Res. 364

Whereas on June 22, 2002, the Special Forces Association will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the first permanent special forces unit in the United States Army;

Whereas such unit was created in response to the advocacy of Colonel Aaron Bank (United States Army, retired), known as the ‘Father of the Special Forces’;

Whereas Colonel Aaron Bank’s service in the Office of Strategic Services and his experience leading resistance fighters against Nazi Germany convinced him of the need for permanent, elite units in the Armed Forces that would specialize in small unit and counterinsurgency tactics, intelligence operations, and the training of indigenous soldiers;

Whereas in 1942 the Army created its first special forces unit, the 10th Special Forces Group (United States Army, Fort Bragg, North Carolina), which would later be known for the distinctive green berets worn by its soldiers;
WHEREAS Colonel Aaron Bank was assigned as the first commanding officer of the 10th Special Forces Group;

WHEREAS the success of the United States Army Special Forces encouraged the incorporation of principles of force multiplication into the military doctrine of the United States and paved the way for the revitalization of special operations forces in the Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps;

WHEREAS these special operations forces have helped revolutionize the conduct of modern warfare;

WHEREAS special operations soldiers have served with bravery and distinction in every major military conflict in which the United States has participated in the last 50 years and in innumerable covert operations;

WHEREAS special operations soldiers are sometimes called upon to conduct missions so secret that their bravery cannot be fully recognized;

WHEREAS special operations soldiers are playing a critical role in the war against terrorism;

WHEREAS thanks to Colonel Aaron Bank and the thousands of United States Army Special Forces soldiers who have followed him, the Armed Forces are better prepared to conduct unconventional warfare and to protect the United States from developing threats; Now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED by the House of Representatives and the Senate concurring, That Congress—

(1) recognizes the historic significance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the United States Army Special Forces;

(2) honors the “Father of the Special Forces”, Colonel Aaron Bank (United States Army, retired) of Mission Viejo, California, for his role in establishing the United States Army Special Forces;

(3) recognizes the sacrifices and accomplishments of United States Army Special Forces soldiers and of all other special operations soldiers in the Armed Forces;

(4) expresses deep gratitude for the continuing sacrifices of United States Army Special Forces soldiers and of all other special operations soldiers in the Armed Forces now fighting throughout the world in defense of the freedoms challenged by the heinous events of September 11, 2001 and the heinous events of November 29, 2001;

and

(5) honors the sacrifices made by United States Army Special Forces soldiers who have trained hard, served valiantly in battle, and made the ultimate sacrifice for their country, many times in missions so secret that their valor may never be fully acknowledged. It is right that we also express our deep gratitude for the continuing sacrifices of Army Special Forces soldiers, many of whom are based in my district at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, and of all other special operations soldiers in the Armed Forces now fighting throughout the world in defense of the freedoms challenged by the heinous events of September 11, 2001.

I call on my friends and colleagues to pass this legislation, sending a message loud and clear today to our U.S. Special Forces that your efforts are honored, and your sacrifices are appreciated by this Congress and a truly grateful Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HAYES) and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HAYES).

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Con. Res. 364, the concurrent resolution underlying this operation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. COX).
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE  H3637

Bank was made the first commanding officer of the unit. That unit, eventually swapped the Green Berets and provided the impetus for the formation of the Navy SEALs, the Marine Corps’ Force Recon, and the Army’s counterterrorism specialists, the Delta Force.

Over the past half century, Colonel Bank’s vision of small-unit operations has proven prophetic. The Special Forces have played a role in almost every major conflict in which the United States has been engaged, just as importantly, in crucial clandestine missions that have never made the headlines. The Special Forces have trained counterinsurgency operations and conducted diversionary campaigns to distract enemy forces. They have hunted drug kingpins throughout Central America. They have secured pathways for the distribution of humanitarian supplies in the Horn of Africa.

Now our Special Forces are engaged in a new challenge: finding and destroying the cells of al-Qaeda. Our Special Forces are figuring prominently in our war on terrorism. They have operated for weeks at a time behind enemy lines, and they have incurred the brunt of U.S. casualties in this new 21st century warfare. Their successes, though, are a testament to Colonel Bank’s vision, his legacy that has revolutionized how America conducts 21st century warfare.

It is thus fitting, Mr. Speaker, that we should show our appreciation for the sacrifices that our Special Forces are currently making on the war on terror and in every corner of the world. This measure honors the brave men and women who have served in this capacity over the past 50 years, and especially the man who created these elite units. It is with great pride that I ask this body to pass this legislation to honor Colonel Bank for his achievements.

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself as much time as I may consume.

I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 364, introduced by the gentleman from Orange County, California (Mr. Cox) which recognizes the 50th anniversary of the United States Army Special Forces. The United States Army Special Forces was created on June 20, 1952, when the original 10th with Special Forces Group commanded by Colonel Aaron Bank was activated at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. From this a nucleus was activated on June 19 of 1952 at Fort Bragg. It was designated the 10th Special Forces Group, with Bank as the commander, and on the day of activation, the total strength of the group was 10 soldiers; Bank, 1 warrant officer, and 8 enlisted men.

That was soon to change, however. Bank began training his troops in the most advanced techniques of unconventional warfare, and as defined by the Army, the main mission of Bank’s unit was to infiltrate by land, sea, or air, deep into enemy-occupied territory and organize the resistance/guerrilla potential to conduct Special Forces operations with an emphasis on guerrilla warfare.

But there were also secondary missions. They included deep-penetration raids, intelligence missions and counterinsurgency operations. It was a tall order, one which demanded a commitment to professionalism and excellence perhaps unparalleled in our American military history. But Bank’s men were up to that challenge, and by 1958 the basic operational unit of Special Forces had emerged as a 12-man team known as the detachment, or the “A-team.” Each member of the A-detachment, two officers, two operations and intelligence sergeants, two weapons sergeants, two communications sergeants, two medics, and two engineers, were trained in unconventional warfare and cross-trained in each other’s skills. Each of them, at least one foreign language. This composition allowed each detachment to operate if necessary in two six-man teams or basically split the A-team.

On November 23, Colonel Bank will be 100 years old, and throughout his life he has demonstrated unwavering loyalty and willingness to take on the most dangerous assignments to achieve the goal of his mission.

During World War II, he served at the Office of Strategic Services. Under that capacity, he was called on to organize a team of German-speaking Americans and French soldiers to dress and train as German SS soldiers with the mission to assassinate Hitler. Although the mission was terminated on the eve of its deployment, Colonel Bank and his soldiers risked certain death by agreeing to serve on this incredibly dangerous mission.

He was the commander of the 107th Airborne Infantry Regimental Combat Team during the Korean War. He has a rich past. He is respected by many military and world leaders. And even recently, leaders of the Special Forces contacted Colonel Bank for his advice on military strategy. In 1997, I spoke at an event kicked off on the occasion of the Special Operations Foundation to Bank, the Walk Across America, which brought the retired members of the Special Forces Association who started in Newport Beach, California, to walk across America covering eight States and 2,640 miles honoring the Green Berets and raising money for a Special Forces museum.

It was my pleasure on that day when I met Colonel Aaron Bank. Today it is my pleasure to call him the Father of the Special Forces on the 50th anniversary of his contribution to our Nation’s efforts to preserve democracy and freedom.

Given their contribution to the war on terrorism, it is even more appropriate that we honor the tens of thousands of Special Forces soldiers, who to date, have risked certain death by completing more than 8,000 men and women currently serving as Special Forces soldiers in defense of America.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Skelton), the ranking member of the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. SKELTEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for allowing me to add my voice to this effort.

Mr. Speaker, when one walks into the Special Operations Command lobby thereof on the right-hand side there will be a portrait of the late gentleman from Virginia, Dan Daniels, for it was he on June 26, 1986, who introduced a bill to establish the National Special Operations Command. We have the Special Operations Command as a result of his efforts, and the efforts on the other side of the Capitol, particularly with the help of Retired Lieutenant General Sam Wilson; this command was activated on April 16, 1987. U.S. Special Operations Command provides highly trained, rapidly deployable and regionally focused personnel to support the combatant commanders. Today, there are some 46,000 Special Forces personnel in the Army, Navy and in the Air Force.

Today we commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Special Forces of the Army. I rise to support H. Con. Res. 364. The Special Forces Service of the Second World War is considered to be the predecessor to the present U.S. Army Special Forces. General George C. Marshall determined that an elite force recruited in Canada and our country was required to conduct raids and strikes of the kind that was necessary. It is a form of mountain warfare.

Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE). I have the pleasure to congratulate Colonel Aaron Bank, who served in the OSS at the time, proposed a permanent, small elite unit to do this kind of work. So in June 1952, the first unit of Special Forces was activated. The 10th Special Forces Group was established at Fort Bragg. Let me add my voice to that of the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ) for her leadership and interest in this initiative.

This Thursday, June 20, will mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the U.S. Army Special Forces under the leadership of Aaron Bank.

The Special Forces are the best of the best. Through their storied history, they have achieved popular recognition and acclaim as the Green Berets in honor of their distinctive headgear.

I am proud to say that the Maryland Army National Guard Second Battalion 20th Special Forces Bravo Company makes its home at the Gunpowder Military Reservation in Baltimore County.

At age 99, Aaron Bank is still alive and vigorous. It is without reservation that we acclaim him as a living legend. He is indeed the father of the Special Forces, and it is right and proper that we honor him as a living legend.

For the sponsorship, with the leaders of the Armed Forces; and also my first command, Wayne Downing, who is now a retired colonel, airborne and ranger-qualified in the Army Reserve.

Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HAYES), who also is a lieutenant colonel, airborne and ranger-qualified in the Army Reserve.

Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to be here speaking about what Colonel Bank has done for the country. It has been mentioned about the fruit not falling far from the tree. I want to mention some of the Special Operations Command individuals that had an impact on my life through this organization.

I just briefly remember my first company commander, who is now a retired lieutenant colonel in the Army, John Everett, who was an A Team leader before he commanded my company. I have heard all about him and his Bragg command, Wayne Downing, who now is retired Special Operations Command commander, and now works for the former governor of Pennsylvania, Tom Ridge, and the Agency of Homeland Security.

The Special Forces are designed around, lethal, mobile, and independent operations. A key to that is NCO leadership: proficient, trained soldiers who can operate on their own and operate successfully. That is really the case now the model for the transformation of the army, and the success in Afghanistan just shows that the vision of Colonel Bank as that for new enemies, the model of the Special Operations Command of lighter, quicker, independent action, more lethal, and junior NCO leadership, is a model by which I think we will be well served in the defense of this country for many, many years to come.

Mr. Speaker, Colonel Bank is a very interesting guy. He will be 100, as I said, in November. I want to reiterate that he is still alive and kicking and doing a great job for us. I will remind Members that until his 75th birthday, he had an ambulance follow him, several miles of fact, when he had his troops, sometimes he had an ambulance follow them during their workouts because some of the young recruits did not know how difficult it was going to be in those units. Even today, he rides a stationary bike four days a week. He lives in Orange County, California; and we are very proud of him, as we are of all our Special Forces from over the years.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, first I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. Cox) for his leadership in helping bring this resolution forward, and also I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ) for her leadership and interest in this vital project, and the ranking member of our Committee on Armed Services, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Skelley), and the gentlewoman from Missouri (Ms. Hanabarger).

Their efforts and the time spent in bringing this measure to the floor expeditiously are most appropriate and appreciated. These folks that we honor today, past and present, are first and foremost warriors; but they are also historians, teachers, and leaders. They bring stability and peace to the regions in the areas that they touch.

They represent us with incredible distinction and make clear the old adage that simply says, our citizen soldiers clearly recognize the difference. between good and evil, and they are not willing to live in a world where evil prevails.

In honor of the Airborne, the Special Forces and for Colonel Shimkus, I close by saying simply:

Stand up, hook up, shuffle to the door
Leap right out and count to four.

If your main don’t open wide,
You got a reserve by your side.

Airborne.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the fog and friction of war ruled the day when seven American special operations forces died on an isolated mountaintop in Afghanistan. The battle at Takur Ghar took place during Operation Anaconda. U.S. military officials sent a special operations reconnaissance element to a key piece of terrain. As the team reached the 10,000-foot mountaintop, the team's assault helicopter took immediate ground fire. In the course of the next two hours, the special operations team went back to rescue their mate, who had fallen out the back of the assault helicopter. He continued to fight until his death. That fight is a microcosm of the fog and friction of war ruled the day when the Army called for soldiers to fight until their death. That fight is a microcosm of the fog and friction of war ruled the day when the Army called for soldiers to fight until their death.

Colonel William B. (“Wild Bill”) Donavan, a Special Forces soldier who was killed while deployed to support the 10th Special Forces Group, the original Special Forces unit, and special operations support units. Colonel William B. (“Wild Bill”) Donavan, a Special Forces soldier who was killed while deployed to support the 10th Special Forces Group, the original Special Forces unit, and special operations support units.

The Special Forces Regiment uses a twelve-member team concept. It assigns multi-faceted missions including counter-terrorism, direct action, strategic reconnaissance, psychological warfare, civil affairs, and training foreign military and para-military forces in counter-insurgency operations. Special Forces Soldiers are teachers who are trained in foreign languages and are called on to teach military skills to people around the world. They operate in urban, jungle, desert, mountain, maritime, and arctic environments and are sometimes called on to survive for months at a time behind enemy lines.

Special Operations Forces are an elite, specialized military unit which can be inserted behind the lines to conduct a variety of operations. Special Forces and para-military forces are characterized by “combinations of specialized personnel, equipment, training and tactics that go beyond the routine capabilities of conventional military forces.” SOF personnel are carefully selected and undergo highly demanding training. U.S. Army SOF include 26,000 soldiers from the Active Army, National Guard, and Army Reserve who are organized into Special Forces units, Ranger units, special operations aviation units, civil affairs units, psychological operations units, and special operations support units. Special Operations Forces and para-military forces have played a role in most U.S. conflicts. In 1985, Congress noted that the U.S. SOF provide an immediate and primary capability to respond to terrorism.

Colonel Aaron Bank is truly a legend. If life were like fiction, Colonel Bank would be the leading character in one of the most dramatic stories of the 20th century. He is called the “Father of the Green Berets.” Colonel Bank was born in New York City in November of 1902. As a young man he lived in Europe and learned French and Russian. He assisted in the French and Russian resistance in 1939 and graduated from OCS in 1940. He was commissioned in the Infantry and served as the Tactical Officer of a railroad battalion at Camp Polk in Louisiana in 1943, when the Army called for linguists to join the newly formed Office of Strategic Services (OSS) [predecessor of the Central Intelligence Agency], Colonel Bank stepped forward. Under the Command of Colonel William B. (“Wild Bill”) Donavan, Colonel Bank parachuted into occupied France in the Ronch Valley to train and fight with the French resistance. Colonel Bank was made Chief of Guerilla Operations. He operated in the area of Avignon and Nimes, along with other OSS Jedburgh Teams. Colonel Bank was involved with some of the most intriguing operational realities of that era. He was actively involved with the famous Operation “Iron Cross”—the plot to assassinate Adolph Hitler.

Following World War II, Colonel Bank served as Commander of Counter-Intelligence in Bavaria until 1950. He also served in Korea, where he was the executive officer of a Regimental Combat Team. From 1951–1952, Colonel Bank was assigned to the Special Operations Branch, Psychological Warfare Staff at the Pentagon. It was here that the idea for the First Special Forces Group took form. On June 19, 1952, this idea became reality. This occurred when Colonel Bank activated the 10th Special Forces Group, the original Special Forces unit. Colonel Bank commanded the Group at Bad Toelz, Federal Republic of Germany until 1954. In 1954, Colonel Bank was honored with the title of Colonel of the Regiment for all U.S. Army Special Forces.

The Army Special Forces lived quietly by their motto “De Oppresso Liber”, Latin for “To Free the Oppressed”. Therefore, I salute the United States Army Special Forces and Colonel Aaron Bank on the historic significance of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the United States Army Special Forces.

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

HOMELAND SECURITY ACT OF 2002—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 107–227)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to Union Calendar and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby transmit to the Congress proposed legislation to create a new Cabinet Department of Homeland Security.

Our Nation faces a new and changing threat unlike any we have faced before—the global threat of terrorism. No nation is immune, and all nations must act decisively to protect against this constantly evolving threat.

We must recognize that the threat of terrorism is a permanent condition, and we must take action to protect America from the terrorists that seek to kill the innocent.

Since September 11, 2001, all levels of government and leaders from across the political spectrum have cooperated like never before. We have strengthened our aviation security and tightened our borders. We have stockpiled medicines to defend against bioterrorism and improved our ability to combat weapons of mass destruction. We have dramatically improved information sharing among our intelligence agencies, and we have taken new steps to protect our critical infrastructure.

Our Nation is stronger and better prepared today than it was on September 11. Yet, we can do better. I propose the most extensive reorganization of the Federal Government since the 1940s by creating a new Department of Homeland Security. For the first time we would have a single Department whose primary mission is to secure our homeland. Soon after the Second World War, President Harry S. Truman recognized that our Nation's fragmented military defenses needed reorganization to help win the Cold War. President Truman proposed uniting our military forces under a single entity, the National Security Council, and creating the National Security Council to bring together defense, intelligence, and diplomacy. President Truman’s reforms are still helping us to fight terror abroad, and today we need similar dramatic reforms to secure our people at home.

President Truman and Congress reorganized our Government to meet a very visible enemy in the Cold War. Today our Nation must once again reorganize our Government to meet an often-invisible enemy, an enemy that hides in the shadows and an enemy that can strike with many different types of weapons. Our enemies seek to obtain the most dangerous and deadly weapons of mass destruction and use them against the innocent. While we are winning the war on terrorism, Al Qaeda and other terrorist organizations still have thousands of trained killers spread across the globe plotting attacks against America and the other nations of the civilized world.

Immediately after last fall’s attack, I used my legal authority to establish the White House Office of Homeland Security and the Homeland Security Council to help ensure that our Federal response and protection efforts were coordinated and effective. I also directed Homeland Security Advisor Tom Ridge to study the Federal Government as a whole to determine if the current structure allows us to meet the Unknowns of today, and the Challenges of the unknown threats of tomorrow. After careful study of the current structure, coupled with the experience
The Department of Homeland Security would have a clear and efficient organizational structure with four main divisions: Border and Transportation Security; Emergency Preparedness and Response; Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear Countermeasures; and Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection.

BORDER AND TRANSPORTATION SECURITY

This is a global threat and we must improve our border security to help keep out those who mean to do us harm. We must protect those who are coming into and out of our country to help prevent terrorists from entering our country and bringing in their instruments of terror. At the same time, we must expedite the legal flow of people on which our economy depends. Securing our borders and controlling entry to the United States has always been the responsibility of the Federal Government. Yet, this responsibility and the security of our transportation systems is now dispersed to a number of Government organizations. Under my proposed legislation, the Department of Homeland Security would unify authority over major Federal security operations related to our borders, territorial waters, and transportation systems.

The Department would assume responsibility for the United States Coast Guard, the United States Customs Service, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (including the Border Patrol), the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, and the Transportation Security Administration. The Secretary of Homeland Security would have the authority to administer and enforce all immigration and nationality laws, including the visa issuance functions of consular officers. As a result, the Department would have sole responsibility for managing entry into the United States and protecting our transportation infrastructure. It would ensure that all aspects of border control, including the issuing of visas, are informed by a centralized information-sharing clearinghouse and compatible databases.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

Although our top priority is preventing future attacks, we must also prepare to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. My legislative proposal requires the Department of Homeland Security to ensure the preparedness of our Nation’s emergency response professionals, provide the Federal Government’s response, and aid America’s recovery from terrorist attacks and natural disasters. To fulfill these missions, the Department of Homeland Security would incorporate the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) as one of its key components. The Department would administer the domestic disaster preparedness grant programs for firefighters, police, and emergency personnel currently managed by FEMA, the Department of Justice, and the Department of Health and Human Services. In responding to an incident, the Department would mobilize such critical response assets as the Nuclear Emergency Search Team (from the Department of Energy) and the National Pharmaceutical Stockpile (from the Department of Health and Human Services). Finally, the Department of Homeland Security would integrate the Federal interagency emergency response plans into a single, comprehensive, Government-wide plan, and would work to ensure that all response personnel have the equipment and capability to communicate with each other as necessary.

CHEMICAL, BIOLOGICAL, RADIATIONAL, AND NUCLEAR COUNTERMEASURES

Our enemies today seek to acquire and use the most deadly weapons known to mankind—chemical, biological, radiological, and nuclear weapons.

The new Department of Homeland Security would lead the Federal Government’s efforts in preparing for and responding to the full range of terrorist threats involving weapons of mass destruction. The Department would set national policy and establish guidelines for State and local governments. The Department would direct exercises for Federal, State, and local chemical, biological, radiological, and nuclear attack response teams and plans. The Department would consolidate and synchronize the disparate efforts of multiple Federal agencies now scattered across several departments. This would create a single element of primary mission is the critical task of securing the United States from catastrophic terrorism.

The Department would improve America’s ability to develop diagnostics, vaccines, antibodies, antidotes, and other countermeasures against new weapons. It would consolidate and prioritize the disparate homeland security-related research and development programs currently scattered throughout the executive branch, and the Department would assist State and local public safety agencies by evaluating equipment and setting standards.

INFORMATION ANALYSIS AND INFRASTRUCTURE PROTECTION

For the first time the Government would have under one roof the capability to identify and assess threats to the homeland, map those threats against our vulnerabilities, issue timely warnings, and take action to help secure the homeland.

The Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection division of the new Department of Homeland Security would complement the reforms on intelligence-gathering and information-sharing already underway at the FBI and the CIA. The Department would analyze information and intelligence from various levels of government, and many other Federal agencies to better understand the terrorist threat to the American homeland.

The Department would comprehensively assess the vulnerability of America’s key assets and critical infrastructures, including food and water systems, agriculture, health systems and emergency services, information and telecommunications, banking and finance, energy, transportation, the chemical and defense industries, postal and shipping entities, and national monuments and icons. The Department would integrate its own and others’ threat analyses with its comprehensive vulnerability assessment to identify potential vulnerabilities and support protective steps to be taken by the Department, other Federal departments and agencies, State and local agencies, and the private sector. Working closely with State and local officials, other Federal agencies, and the private sector, the Department would help ensure that proper steps are taken to protect high-risk potential targets.

OTHER COMPONENTS

In addition to these four core divisions, the submitted legislation would also transfer responsibility for the Secret Service to the Department of Homeland Security. The Secret Service, which would report directly to the Secretary of Homeland Security, would retain its primary mission to protect the President and other Government leaders. The Secret Service would, however, contribute its specialized protective expertise to the fulfillment of the Department’s core mission.

Finally, under my legislation, the Department of Homeland Security would consolidate and streamline relations with the Federal Government for America’s State and local governments. The new Department would contain an intergovernmental affairs office to coordinate Federal homeland security programs with State and local officials. It would give State and local officials one primary contact instead of many when it comes to matters related to training, equipment, planning, and other critical needs such as emergency response.

The consolidation of the Government’s homeland security efforts as outlined in my proposed legislation can achieve great efficiencies that further enhance our security. Yet, to achieve these efficiencies, the new Secretary of Homeland Security would require considerable flexibility in procurement, integration of information technology systems, and personnel issues. My proposed legislation provides the Secretary of Homeland Security with just such flexibility and managerial authorities. I call upon the Congress to implement these measures in order to ensure that we are maximizing our ability to secure our homeland.

Even with the creation of the new Department, there will remain a strong continued need for coordination of Homeland Security. Protecting America from terrorism will remain a multi-departmental issue and will continue to require interagency coordination. Presidents will continue to require the continued presence of a Homeland Security Advisor, and I intend for the White House Office of Homeland Security and the Homeland Security Council to maintain a strong role in coordinating our governmentwide efforts to secure the homeland.

THE LESSONS OF HISTORY

History teaches us that new challenges require new organizational structures. History also teaches us that critical security challenges require clear lines of responsibility and the unified efforts of a Government.

President Truman said, looking at the lessons of the Second World War: “It is now time to discard obsolete organizational forms, and to provide for the future the soundest, the most effective, and the most economical kind of structure for our armed forces.” When skeptics told President Truman that this proposed reorganization was too ambitious to be enacted, he simply replied that it has to be. In the years to follow, the Congress responded to my call to act before the dangers were faced during the Cold War. Our terrorist enemies hide in shadows and attack civilians with whatever means of destruction they can access. But as in the Cold War, meeting this threat requires clear lines of responsibility and the unified efforts of government at all levels—Federal, State, local, and tribal—the private sector, and all Americans.

America needs a homeland security establishment that can help prevent catastrophic attacks and mobilize national resources for an enduring conflict while protecting our Nation’s values and liberties.

Years from today, our world will still be fighting the threat of terrorism. It is my hope that future generations will be able to look back on the Homeland Security Act of 2002—as we now remember the National Security Act of 1947—as the solid organizational foundation for America’s triumph in a long and difficult struggle against a formidable enemy.

History has given us our Nation’s new challenges—and important new assignments. Only the United States Congress can create a new department of Government. We face an urgent need, and I am pleased that Congress has responded to my call to act before the end of the current congressional session with the same bipartisan spirit that allowed us to act expeditiously on legislation after September 11.

These are times that demand bipartisan action and bipartisan solutions to meet the new and changing threats we face as a Nation. I urge the Congress to join me in creating a single, permanent department with an overriding and urgent mission—securing the homeland of America and protecting the American people. Together we can meet this ambitious deadline and help ensure that the American homeland is secure against the terrorist threat.

GEORGE W. BUSH

THE WHITE HOUSE, June 18, 2002.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without prejudice to the possible resumption of legislative business, and under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG PLAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of a true prescription drug plan that would cover all the seniors in America. Under Medicare, a Democratic prescription drug benefit would be voluntary and universal. Every senior would have access, no matter where they live or what their income.

Soaring prices for prescription drugs are putting medicine out of reach for millions of seniors. Many of them are being forced to choose between paying for prescription drugs or paying for food. No older American should be faced with that decision.

The House Republican prescription drug plan is a sham proposal that provides no real guarantee at all. Let us do the math, Mr. Speaker. Republicans argue that they have a $2,500 gap in coverage. That gap is bad enough, but the reality is even worse. Here is the math that will compare apples to apples. Under the Republican drug plan, the beneficiary pays as follows: a $250 deductible, and then a $150 coinsurance for the first $1,000 of drugs, and then a $1,350 coinsurance for the next $1,000 of drugs, and then a $4,500 out-of-pocket limit that the Republicans have. That is $3,600. The gap for which the beneficiary is 100 percent on the hook in the Republican Medicare bill is...
$3,600. After a beneficiary obtains $2,000 worth of drugs, they get no more coverage from the Republican Medicare drug plan until they spend another $3,600 out of their own pocket. Therefore, before Medicare pays another cent, a beneficiary must obtain $5,600 worth of prescription drugs for the year.

That is pretty complicated, and that is what the Republicans are counting on, that they will just use some words and they will not be able to do the math. But you have got to understand it. The Republican Medicare proposal has even greater gaping holes than they want to admit. Under their plan the benefit is so limited that it will not be worthwhile for many middle-class seniors to even enroll, it will not cover all seniors, and there is even a bigger problem. The Republican plan forces seniors to shop for and buy a private insurance plan, a plan which virtually every insurance company in America says they will not offer because it is not worth it, and so seniors will have to go without coverage at all.

We know this model does not work. It did not work in 1965, and that is why we created Medicare to begin with. The Health Insurance Association of America said it will not offer drug-only policies.

The Republican prescription plan does nothing to slow prescription drug prices from continuing their upward spiral, and the Republican plan is simply guaranteed to fail. There they go again, putting words on a bill which has no meaning for the average American today.

Learn how do the math, everybody, because this is going to be a basic debate in America over the next few weeks. We need to pass a meaningful prescription drug plan that uses Medicare to make drugs affordable and provides a universal voluntary benefit for all seniors.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Jones) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JONES of North Carolina addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

HOMELAND SECURITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. SOUDER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, last week the hearings began on the new Department of Homeland Security. Yesterday my Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy and Human Resources held a hearing titled “Homeland Security Reorganization: What Impact on Federal Law Enforcement and Drug Interdiction Efforts?” The Committee on Government Reform and our Subcommittee on Civil Service and on National Security held a joint committee hearing, the first ones on homeland security. I wanted to share a few of the things that we had already learned through these hearings. As in the media the last few days, because we are starting these and we may be actually moving the markup through committee next week. So we are on a fast track.

Many people are reacting, “Aren’t you moving awfully fast?” The answer is yes. The biggest problem we face in the government whenever you tackle one of these things is bureaucratic inertia combined with congressional committee inertia. I believe that everybody can find many reasons not to go ahead. Unless we put this on a fast track to get it out of committee by the July break and out of the full House and Senate by the August break, the likelihood is that this government reorganization will die just like they have every other year. In fact, the class of 1994 came in committed to all sorts of reforms of government, and anything we did not achieve that first year was very difficult to achieve the following year, and the inertia combined with congressional committee inertia is very hard to overcome.

But it also means that we need to understand certain basic trade-offs we are making and go into this with our eyes wide open. The witnesses yesterday at our hearing were all nongovernmental, which meant that they had the ability to speak out without any restrictions.

They included the former Commandant of the Coast Guard, Admiral Kramek; the former Director of DEA; Mr. Peter Nunez, former Assistant Secretary for Enforcement of the Treasury Department; Mr. Doug Kruhm, former Assistant Commissioner for the U.S. Border Patrol in INS; Mr. Sam Banks, former Acting Commissioner, U.S. Customs; and Dr. Stephen Flynn from the Council on Foreign Relations, who had worked with the Rudman-Hart Commission.

Among the things that they pointed out and said the most thought, is this agency not in, why is this agency not in, why is this agency not in, why is it done this way, and that is if you look at this, and this is the way the Rudman-Hart Commission looked at it and clearly was behind the President’s thought, is this really deals with catastrophic security.

It is our basic function of every department to provide for security, and most of those are homeland security. We cannot have one Cabinet agency have everybody in it. So you look at this as catastrophic. Furthermore, the agencies that have been combined in the Department of Homeland Security are basically the meet-and-greet, in Dr. Flynn’s words, basically; in other words, a border agency. So if you called this the Department of Border Catastrophic Security, we would understand why INS is there, why Border Patrol is there, why Customs is there, why the Coast Guard is there, and the logic behind the system that we are about to address. Because if you view it as a terrorist and every policeman in, you can have every enforcement division in, you can have every sort of organization in this. FEMA is also in this. It deals with the catastrophic results. So although it is not border, it also deals with catastrophe security. If we broaden this too much, we will not have any agency that makes any sense. But there are some things that possibly should go in it, and there are some things we need to look at.

Number one, by putting Customs, Coast Guard, Border Patrol and INS in, we now multiply the number of these agencies and changed their primary mission to homeland security away from their previous mission.

I would like to insert at this point an article from Newsday newspaper that ran today by Thomas Frank that picks up a couple of the difficulties on multi-tasking. I wanted to touch on a few of those, and then I have another insertion at the end of my remarks.

GETTING ‘LOST IN THE SHUFFLE’, CONCERNS ON NONTERROIR DUTIES

(Thomas Frank)

WASHINGTON—A group of former top federal officials warned yesterday that President George W. Bush’s proposed new Department of Homeland Security could weaken other federal law-enforcement activities, such as drug interdiction.

The concerns arise because the new department would take in 22 federal agencies that have been combined in the Rudman-Hart Commission that was designed to block a repeat of the catastrophic security. If we broaden this too much, we will not have any agency that makes any sense. But there are some things that possibly should go in it, and there are some things we need to look at.

A major concern in a reorganization like this is that their nonterrorism duties are going to get lost in the shuffle,” Peter Nunez, a former assistant secretary for enforcement, told a congressional panel studying the proposed department. Adm. Robert Kramek, a former Coast Guard commandant, said that the $379-billion Bush has requested for the Department of Homeland Security could weaken other federal law-enforcement activities, such as drug interdiction.

The concerns arise because the new department would take in 22 federal agencies that have been combined in the Rudman-Hart Commission that was designed to block a repeat of the catastrophic security.

The answer is yes. The biggest problem we face in the government whenever you tackle one of these things is bureaucratic inertia combined with congressional committee inertia. I believe that everybody can find many reasons not to go ahead. Unless we put this on a fast track to get it out of committee by the July break and out of the full House and Senate by the August break, the likelihood is that this government reorganization will die just like they have every other year. In fact, the class of 1994 came in committed to all sorts of reforms of government, and anything we did not achieve that first year was very difficult to achieve the following year, and the inertia combined with congressional committee inertia is very hard to overcome.

But it also means that we need to understand certain basic trade-offs we are making and go into this with our eyes wide open. The witnesses yesterday at our hearing were all nongovernmental, which meant that they had the ability to speak out without any restrictions.

They included the former Commandant of the Coast Guard, Admiral Kramek; the former Director of DEA; Mr. Peter Nunez, former Assistant Secretary for Enforcement of the Treasury Department; Mr. Doug Kruhm, former Assistant Commissioner for the U.S. Border Patrol in INS; Mr. Sam Banks, former Acting Commissioner, U.S. Customs; and Dr. Stephen Flynn from the Council on Foreign Relations, who had worked with the Rudman-Hart Commission.

Among the things that they pointed out and said the most thought, is this agency not in, why is this agency not in, why is this agency not in, why is it done this way, and that is if you look at this, and this is the way the Rudman-Hart Commission looked at it and clearly was behind the President’s thought, is this really deals with catastrophic security.

It is our basic function of every department to provide for security, and most of those are homeland security. We cannot have one Cabinet agency have everybody in it. So you look at this as catastrophic. Furthermore, the agencies that have been combined in the Department of Homeland Security are basically the meet-and-greet, in Dr. Flynn’s words, basically; in other words, a border agency. next year to scale back functions not related to domestic security, such as drug and migrant interdiction, maritime safety and fisheries enforcement.

"We also need to have to put some money where our intention is to make sure this is done right," Kramesd said, echoing members of Congress who have called for additional funding for homeland security that would be moved into the new department. White House officials have said more money could be added after Congress adopts an initial 2003 budget for the new department.

The hearing marked the beginning of an intense period of deliberations as Congress debates the new department by the end of the fiscal year, either by Sept. 11, as proposed by House Minority Leader Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.).

The chart also shows the redeployment of the customary missions of the Coast Guard. The chart also shows the redeployment of the customary missions of the Coast Guard.

Several agencies say they would affect federal law enforcement—one of many questions Congress will debate as it decides what agencies should be included and under what conditions.

"There will be a profound impact on federal law-enforcement agencies unrelated to terrorism," said Rep. Mark Souder (R-Ind.), chairman of the subcommittee on the reorganization of the Treasury Department.

Rep. David Obey (D-Wis.) said he would like to talk about those. I include my opening statement from June 17 for the RECORD.

Today's hearing is the first we have heard since the Sept. 11th attacks. It is evident that there is a new setting in the Treasury Department, which has been a major player in this career, and for practical purposes these warnings could be any water anywhere in the United States.

But let us say we have a boat that is watching along the northern and southern borders of the United States, I have personally visited several ports, other ports of entry, and we have had two Washington hearings on the implications of homeland security. The House has carefully considered the relationship of these law enforcement missions with the demands of homeland security.

The Administration has defined the mission of the proposed new Department solely as one of preventing and responding to acts of terrorism. The concept of "homeland security" has been broadly to include the many other diverse threats to our nation which are handled on a daily basis by these agencies, as well as other law enforcement activities. It is clear that there is simply too much else at stake for our nation to define the missions solely as one of terrorism. However, I do have a brief but very clear example of the risks which could be poised when resources are allocated single-mindedly. This map illustrates the deployment of a large number of boats. And for operations that could be deployed to the border, and for practical purposes these warnings could be any water anywhere in the United States.

The GAO report specifically examined the Corps’ economic justification for the Delaware River channel deepening project. It found “miscalculations, invalid assumptions and outdated information” led the Corps to overestimate the benefits by over 300 percent. It found that the Corps had violated basic economic principles in its economic feasibility studies, projecting benefits of over $40 million a year, when, in fact, the GAO found the benefits would be approximately one-third of that amount.

According to the GAO, the Corps had “misapplied commodity growth rate projections, miscalculated trade route distances, and continued to include benefits for some import and export traffic that has declined dramatically over the last decade.”

One of the most egregious examples of bad economics in the report found that the Corps assumed the same oneway distance for each of several trade routes around the country that meet certain criteria, actually speeding up the study investigation and construction process. Posing would not lengthen the Corps control system was “ineffective in identifying significant errors and analytical problems.”

In order to restore the public confidence in the Corps, we need to ensure that other Corps projects around the country do not suffer from the same economic errors. It is clear that the system currently in place is not functioning correctly if it failed to catch such errors as the Delaware project’s. That is why I am working with my colleagues in the Corps Reform Caucus to propose a system of independent peer review for Corps projects. Many of the mistakes identified by the GAO report could have been identified and remedied by independent peer review.

This process that my colleagues in the House and the Senate and I are proposing would not lengthen the Corps’ investigation and construction process. Indeed, contrary to the claims of some critics, a streamlined review process could be applied to Corps projects around the country that meet certain criteria, actually speeding up the study and construction process. Take the Delaware River project, for example. It has been studied for 10 years, since 1992. Now the GAO is recommending after a decade that the Corps prepare a new and comprehensive economic analysis of the project’s costs and benefits, address uncertainties, engage an external independent party to review the economic analysis, and then resubmit that to Congress. This extra review could take years to complete and could have been avoided entirely with independent peer review.

The Army Corps of Engineers has made enormous contributions to our Nation’s history, to its infrastructure development, and continues to play an essential role in water resources management. However, as the GAO report pointed out, this is one of several incidents that have eroded the public’s trust in this planning process.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to make sure all the Corps projects are economically justified and based on sound environmental science. Currently our Subcommittee on Water Resources of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure is working on the reauthorization of the Public Development Act, which directs these Corps operations. This is a timely opportunity to develop legislative language to achieve these reforms.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased that the President’s homeland security bill was delivered today. I am on two committees that have been considering homeland security, so I particularly welcome the President’s work. Some of us have been there for over a year now, even a year before September 11.

All or parts of some agencies are, of course, to go together in a new department. When I say “all or parts,” I am indicating simply one of the details to be decided. The devil may be in the details, but so are the angels.

I would like to tease out three issues that I think can be dealt with if we look them squarely in the face and understand they should not be barriers.

First, there is the unfortunate issue of silence or delay on Civil Service protection for the thousands of workers that would be coming. We could begin by, it seems to me, conceeding that wholesale denial of Civil Service status would create an unnecessary issue and could be very unfortunate.

We are talking about people who do many different kinds of things, most of them not related to anything that could remotely be considered the Nation’s security. The mantra will be, “Hey, let’s decide all of that later.” That creates needless uncertainty and opposition to this bill. Most of these employees will be doing what they have always been doing. The few who will be handling truly confidential information should be treated accordingly.

We must not let homeland security become like the use of other overbread terms, like “executive privilege” or “national security.” There ought to be a presumption in favor of Civil Service status for these employees. If you can overcome it, that is one thing. Let us not begin by saying let us strip these workers of their Civil Service status.

Let me raise two other concerns. District of Columbia concerns. Wisely, the District and the President have understood that the District of Columbia is the first responder for the entire Federal presence, the White House, the Convention Center, all the Federal facilities, 200,000 of them, all of those facilities.

In one of the bills I was able to place the District at the table so that the District can coordinate all that is necessary in order to be a first responder. In fact, the Justice Department Terrorism Task Force has been working just that closely with the District.

In the President’s bill I will seek to insert such an understanding. The President, I think, already understands this. Right now, the President’s own Mayor, Tony Williams, to be a part of his Homeland Commission that he just formed this week, so I think he understands that the first responder has to be in on the details from the beginning. How do we direct the Federal response to locate the Department. The troubling word in the Washington Post today is about the possible location outside the District of Columbia. It was said this was only in the discussion phase. Let it stop there. I bring to the floor not only my own parochial concerns, that is the Nation’s Capital, and this is where important Cabinet agencies should be.

There have executive orders for decades now indicating that. But I have a more important reason to offer.

The United States Government owns and controls 180 acres 3 miles from the Capitol with all the possibility for the setbacks. We probably only need 20 or 30 of those acres. It is the old Saint Elizabeth’s Hospital campus, with some of the best views in Washington. FEMA is already looking at this land for its new headquarters. It is close in. It would not cost us any money. If you try to go somewhere outside of Washington, you will get wholesale opposition from the communities because they do not want their land off the tax rolls. Ours is already off. The Federal Government already owns it. The District is making use of the east campus for a new public safety communications facility. It makes sense for us to look very closely at the Saint Elizabeth’s campus, this huge campus, if we are talking about placing another huge agency under the aegis of our own government.

There are matters that should not become issues. They will require study. They will mean that we have to take our time to get at the details, put them on the table and consider all the options, instead of jumping to conclusions about where to locate the agency or who to strip of his job protection.

Let us put unnecessary issues on the table. There will be many hard
BRINGING DOWN THE COST OF PRESCRIPTION DRUGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SCHROCK). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I will start off by yielding to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT).

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I want to come back to something that the gentleman from Georgia just said, and think it is pertinent to comment. What we are talking about now is the prescription drug benefit under Medicare that will benefit seniors, and it will benefit seniors. We are going to put $550 billion into a program and that clearly will benefit seniors. But it will do nothing for those families right now who are struggling to pay for expensive drugs because they have a sick child. That is where, if we allowed re-importation, we could dramatically bring down the price of drugs, not just for seniors, but for everybody.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, here is a letter from a woman in Colorado who says that she actually is now getting her Tamoxifen from Canada. It took a little longer to get the prescription filled, but it is $160 savings every 2 months, $80 a month savings. That is a lot of money for somebody on a fixed income.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, that is almost $1,000 a year.

Mr. KINGSTON. Absolutely. There are some other things that we have talked about that we think Congress should do to continue to decrease the price of drugs. We mentioned re-importation; we mentioned the prescription drug benefit on Medicare. But there are also issues such as malpractice reform, patent reform, decreasing the time for drug approval that it takes the FDA to sign off on a new drug, and also to look into the over-prescription. The gentleman may know that the University of Minnesota has actually done studies on this where they have found as high as 40 percent of the drugs taken by seniors no longer need to be taken, or the prescription is actually wrong, and that is costing millions and millions of dollars each year.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I think we have to attack this problem on many fronts. The more you hear about it, the more we realize there are an awful lot of problems.

One of them is all of the money that the pharmaceutical companies are spending on marketing. I happen to be in free speech, so they ought to be able to advertise; but we ought to at least know how much of that drug dollar is going to advertising. They ought to have to disclose that to people like us so that seniors know how much they are spending on marketing.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, there are some companies who are actually leading the way. Eli Lilly, to their... credit, has stopped this practice of going to a doctor's office and buying the whole staff lunch for the day, and then leaving them with trays and trays of free prescriptions for samples. I think Eli Lilly should be commended for leading the way into a different way of doing business, and I think other drug companies should take a look at that.

I want to talk just real briefly on patents. Prozac went off patent last August, and the price of Prozac fell 70 percent. The question is, when we pay for so much of the research and development on a new drug as American taxpayers, should drug companies still be given a 17-year patent? I think that should be something that we should discuss. Maybe it should be longer. Maybe it should only be 5 years, though.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I think if we are paying for most of the research, and something else most Americans don't know, and that percent of all of the money spent on basic research in the world is spent by Americans and American companies.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, it is something we should look at.

Finally, this approval process, sometimes it takes as long as 8 years to get FDA to approve a new drug. We should reduce that, particularly for drugs that are often being used in European countries that are already on the market. There is a track record for them, and the FDA is still holding them up. We have to ask ourselves how many people are dying or suffering or are in pain during this approval process that had they been living in another country, then they could get access to their medicine.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, coming back to the cost of research, I think we in the United States ought to be willing to pay our fair share for research. Look at the drug business, clearly we should not be required to subsidize the starving Swiss.

Mr. KINGSTON. Again, Mr. Speaker, these drugs are things that seniors are paying too much for right now. We have a woman in our office who has a relative in El Paso. To get a prescription filled in El Paso it is $90. To go over the border to Juarez is $29 for Lipitor. It is such a tremendous savings. But we see some of these drug companies are slick; they are expensive, they are enticing, I have no problem with them spending that money that way; but I do have a problem with saying we can import our tomatoes, we can import all of our other groceries from Mexico or Canada or any other countries, but when it comes to drugs, even FDA-approved drugs, we have special roadblocks for that, and it hurts American consumers. We have the North American Free Trade Agreement; and by golly, we ought to be able to lead the country, go over to Windsor, Ontario, and buy drugs.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, in the era of the Internet, NAFTA and world trade, the FDA should not be allowed to stand between American consumers and lower drug prices.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's hard work on this, and I look forward to working with him on this legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. PAYNE addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia (Ms. MCKINNEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. MCKINNEY addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. WATSON of California addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

BLUE DOGS HAVE THE RIGHT PLAN FOR FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I want to compliment my colleagues, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) and the gentlewoman from Georgia (Mr. KINGSTON), for their presentation a few moments ago regarding the high cost of prescription drugs and their support for legislation that would allow the reimportation of drugs to allow our seniors to get the prices that are now offered in Mexico, Canada, and the citizens of every other country in the world, except the United States.

I want to make it very clear that all of us on the Democratic side of the aisle have supported that legislation, and we really think we should go further and that we should provide fairness in drug pricing to all American seniors by requiring our drug manufacturers to end that practice of price discrimination that results in the very problem that they are talking about. That is to say drug manufacturers are selling the same medicine in the same bottle with the same label, on average, about half the price in every country in the world except the United States where we pay the premium.

Our seniors in California are hurting today because they cannot afford the $400 and the $500 and the $600 and the $700 prescription drug cost. That is why Democrats have proposed not only fairness in drug pricing by our drug manufacturers, but we have supported a universal prescription drug benefit as a part of the Medicare program to be sure that all seniors can have their prescription medications as a part of the prescription drug coverage that has worked so well in this country for our seniors for so many years.

I come to the floor today during this Special Order hour on behalf of the Blue Dog Democrat Coalition. That coalition consists of 33 fiscally conservative Democrats in this House who believe very strongly that this country is going in the wrong direction with regard to its fiscal affairs. We believe in balanced budgets and paying down our almost $5 trillion national debt. We believe that it is time to face up to the reality that we are now robbing the Social Security trust fund to run the rest of the government, something that this Congress a year ago pledged not to do. And so, we are calling on this Congress to pass the largest tax cut in the history of America. I voted for that tax cut because I believe people need tax relief. But when I voted for it, we were projecting over $3 trillion in excess funds that would flow into the Treasury of the United States over the next 10 years. The tax cut took about half of that estimated surplus.

The problem is that we stand here today 1 year after the enactment of the tax cut and the remaining balance of that estimated surplus is also gone. In fact, we are back at the point where we are not projecting surpluses over the next decade; we are projecting deficits. So once again, the Congress of the United States and the administration is putting the operations of our Federal Government on a credit card, a credit card that will be passed on to our children and our grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, I have a chart that will depict what has happened. What this chart shows us is the history of the Federal budget since the last years of the administration of President Lyndon Johnson.

It traces the history through the Nixon years and the Ford years, the Carter years, the Reagan and Bush I years, the Clinton years, to the present administration. What this chart shows is the history of the Federal budget deficit, and we are talking about the deficit outside of the Social Security Trust Fund, the Medicare Trust Fund, and the other trust funds of the government that the law says shall be protected for those uses.

The American people and this Congress agreed a long time ago that when people filled up taxes in the Social Security Trust Fund, that money ought to be used for people’s Social Security benefits, not to run the rest of the government. Unfortunately it has been that way. But the general budget of the Federal Government’s history is depicted here, and so what we have had over time is a history of deficits. Congress went for 30 years before 1996 with deficits every year, and the trend shown on this chart. This chart shows that deficits got really big during the Reagan and Bush I years, and in 1991 when President Clinton assumed office, we began to pull our way out of deficit spending.

Until the last year of the Clinton administration, we actually had in the Federal Government a true, genuine surplus outside of the Social Security Trust Fund and other trust funds. We had a genuine surplus for 1 year in fiscal year 2000. President Bush came into office and said that we had to give some money back to the American people as if to say it was in the bank, when it really was no more than a projection of a future surplus that has turned out to be an incorrect estimate. The surplus went away.

As I said, about half of it was taken by the tax cut, but the other half disappeared, and because the trend shown on this chart south on us. We actually experienced, as my colleagues know, a recession. We also had September 11, which has required a significant amount of Federal dollars in order to fight the war against terrorists and to protect the security of our homeland. So the surplus is gone, and the estimates are that we are back into deficits. And here are the projections for the next 5 years showing how deeply into debt the Federal Government will go. We are projecting that we might even be in a situation that we will be paying off our national debt too quickly, and that we will have to pay a premium in order to pay it off before it is really due.

All that sounds really amusing in retrospect, because today the Secretary of the Treasury tells us that unless we raise the statutory debt ceiling this month, or in fact, really just a few weeks, we will default on obligations of the United States Government. We will not be able to pay people’s Social Security checks, and we will not be able to pay the Federal Government’s bills. Because we will not have the statutory authority to incur the debt; that is, to borrow the money to pay those bills. So the administration says we need to increase the debt limit, and they want us to increase it by $750 billion.

Now, the Blue Dog Democrats understand the reality of where we are today, and we understand that the debt ceiling will have to be raised in order to pay the legitimate obligations of our government. But Blue Dog Democrats believe that when we vote for that increase, number one, it should be a modest increase, so we are not writing a blank check to the Congress and the President to keep incurring more and more debt.

It should be a modest increase, and it should be coupled with a requirement that the President submit to the Congress a new budget to put us back into a balanced budget situation by the year 2007. We would like it to be quicker, but the reality is that we are in a position where we are projecting deficit spending at such a level that unless there are changes in our tax structure, we cannot possibly get back into a balanced budget until 2007. So we are telling the President, yes, we will give an increase in the debt limit, but as a condition to do it, we want the President and the Congress to adopt a new budget to show the American people we can get our fiscal house in order by 2007.

We also want that increase in the debt limit to be subject to passage of legislation that would continue some budget enforcement mechanisms, we call them pay-go rules, that require this Congress to operate on a pay-as-you-go basis, and make sure that we do not increase spending unless we understand that there is revenue for it.

Finally, we believe that as part of any agreement to raise the debt ceiling, that we should have a responsible and reasonable limit on what we call discretionary spending. That is the debate that we should focus on this year in a whole series of appropriations bills. We believe there ought to be caps and reasonable limit on what we call pay-go rules, that require this Congress to adopt a new budget to show the American people we can get our fiscal house in order.

Those three requirements we think are reasonable requests before we cast a vote to increase the statutory debt limit.

To show another chart that will depict our fiscal condition, I would like to direct Members’ attention to this chart entitled “From Debt-Free to $2.8 Trillion in Debt in 2011.”

Before we passed the tax cut last June, the projections were that we actually would have a surplus over the 10-year period. That is why we were able to vote for the tax cut. What we projected was that the debt that this country owes, much of which is owed to the public, these people out there that are buying all these Treasury notes, Treasury bills, and Treasury bonds every time the Treasury has an auction, we projected a year ago that there would be no debt held by the public after 10 years. That is how rosy the picture was projected to look. In fact, we projected we would have a total elimination of the debt held by the public.

Here we are a year later, and the current projections are that by 2011 there will be $2.79 trillion owed by our Federal Government to those people who will buy those Treasury bills, Treasury notes, and Treasury bonds. That is how dramatic the change in the Federal financial picture is over just 1 year’s time.

Now, some people would like to say that, well, this is all okay, and do not get worried about this because we are in a war on terrorism, and we have had... to spend a lot of money. That is true, but the reason we are going to have $2.8 trillion in publicly held debt in 2011 is not totally due to the war. Some estimate that maybe 20 percent of this number might be due to what we expect to spend over the next decade on protecting the homeland and fighting the war. Nobody really knows.

But the truth is that the tax cut that we passed last June took away about half of our estimated surplus, and the recession and the change in the economy took away about one-fourth of it, and maybe one-fourth of it disappeared because of what we are having to spend to fight the war.

The bottom line is this: This Congress and this administration have not told the American people that the circumstances that existed when we passed the major tax cut have dramatically changed, and this country is now headed towards some of the deepest deficits and largest debt that we have ever seen in our history.

Blue Dog Democrats believe that we have an obligation to run the Federal Government just like the Members and I try to run our households and our own personal businesses. We do not incur debt unless we know how we can repay it within a reasonable time. The Federal Government does not seem to understand that. The Federal Government, as Members know, has no requirement in law for a balanced budget. And Blue Dog Democrats believe that with a constitutional amendment, because most all of us served in our State legislatures, where they have a provision in State Constitutions that says that we have to balance the budget, and we cannot incur debt unless we have a popular vote of the people to issue bonds for whatever purpose.

But in Washington there has never been such a requirement. We can spend the money all day long and do not have to pay the interest on it because that is charged to the credit card. The only constraint that exists today is this Federal debt ceiling that we are now bumping up against that the President is asking us to increase by $750 billion. That is the only constraint on unrestrained spending, and the only restraint on ever-increasing debt.

Another chart which I would like to show my colleagues is what I like to call the greatest waste in Federal spending that I believe this can point to; and will be the first to tell my colleagues, I believe the Federal Government wish we could spend that money, and cut some costs and eliminate waste, but one of the biggest categories of waste in our Federal Government is what we spend every year just on interest because the Federal Government has run up this almost $6 trillion national debt.

Then there are the estimated interest payments on our national debt is going to be. It shows us what the estimated interest payments were last year when we had that estimated surplus, and that was $709 billion interest cost over 10 years; but as I mentioned, things have changed since last June. We have had September 11. We had the war on terrorism. We have found that our hard-earned tax money just can’t be spent on cutting the interest on the $6 trillion national debt that we owe.

Blue Dog Democrats believe that is a terrible waste of taxpayer money, and the sooner we can get the national debt paid down and quit paying this kind of interest, the better off our children and our grandchildren are going to be. So the Blue Dog Democrats say, yes, we understand that we are bumping up against the Federal debt ceiling. We understand that we have got to do something to prevent default on all the Social Security checks and other obligations that the Federal Government owes; and we know that that debt limit is being reached within the next few weeks, but Blue Dog Democrats say we need a blank check on ever-increasing debt.

We say we will increase the debt in a modest amount, only if there is a commitment on the part of the President and the Congress for the President to submit a new budget that will be in balance by the year 2007, if we pass legislation ensuring that we continue our budget enforcement mechanisms that keep us on a pay-as-you-go basis and if we have reasonable caps on the various categories of spending for this year’s budget. It is no more than someone would do at their home or in their business. We think we ought to do it in Washington. So that is what the Blue Dog Democrats are proposing to this Congress.

There are 33 members of the Blue Dog Coalition. They work hard every day, trying to be sure that the taxpayers are getting every bit of value out of every tax dollar that we pay. We believe that the American people understand the finances of our Federal Government so that the pressure of the American people will be brought upon this President and this Congress to say enough is enough; and if we are not applying all of our obligations and all of our expenditures on a credit card for our children and grandchildren, we want it to stop. That is what the Blue Dog Democrats believe, and that is what we are working hard for in this Congress.

Another way to describe our deteriorating fiscal picture is to share the recent estimates of the Congressional Budget Office with my colleagues. The Congressional Budget Office is that arm of the Congress that gives us our official numbers when we come down here and we debate tax cuts and we debate spending, we talk about debt. We are relying on the numbers that the Congressional Budget Office gives us. That keeps us all honest. It is a bipartisan body.

The Congressional Budget Office says that for the first 8 months, the first 8 months of this fiscal year, our Federal Government has run a deficit of $149 billion. Contrast that with what was going on during the first 8 months of the last fiscal year, 2001, where we were running a surplus of less than $18 billion. So the President’s time move from running a surplus in the first 8 months of the fiscal year of $137 billion, to the current fiscal year during those first 8 months of running a deficit of $149 billion. That is a dramatic swing in the fiscal condition of our Federal Government.

Tax receipts are running much lower than anyone anticipated. The recession has been longer and slower to turn around than we had expected, and we are pleased to yield to the distinguished gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY), who speaks with about as much clarity and common sense as anybody I have ever met in Congress, and I am pleased to yield to yield to the gentleman to talk on this very important issue.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my distinguished friend from Texas. The gentleman has been a great leader on the Blue Dogs and a great leader for the State of Texas and this country; and we appreciate the effort he is making here today, also.

Mr. Speaker, it is a sad day when we have to come back to this floor when only a little over a year ago we still had surpluses. We had been presented with an opportunity in this country to clear up the debt. We knew that if we were prudent, if we operated in a fiscally responsible manner, if we followed or had followed the Blue Dog plan, which said, first, take care of Social Security and Medicare and pay off the debt that we owe, and let us do that, and then let us take a little bit of the money, all of the money that had been projected, let us take a little bit of that money and do the things we know we should do for our military, do the things that we know we should do for our senior citizens, make the necessary investment to be sure that this country continues to be successful economically, make the necessary investments to be sure we are... secure, and then let us provide some tax cuts, let us take part of it and provide some tax cuts, we had a list of priorities there.

We now have a disastrous situation facing us. In a little over a year, we are told we have borrowed an additional $300 billion in less than a year, and it is going to take, by the time we get to the end of this year, another $450 billion to keep the country floating, to keep us solvent. That is $750 billion in debt in a little over a year. We have other top-priority issues that the Nation must deal with. Prescription drugs for our senior citizens. We know how to do these things. We can set the priorities and balance this budget and protect Medicare and Social Security and not pass an enormous debt on to our children and grandchildren.

I cannot imagine a situation where anyone would intentionally pass a debt to their next generation just because they were too irresponsible to deal with it themselves. This is something that the Blue Dogs have great concern about.

I will never forget, and I have mentioned this several times, the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, Mr. Daniels, came to the Blue Dog meeting; and he very confidently told us the greatest fear we have, the thing we most concerned about, is that the real thrust of the debt, the economy is going to be doing so well that we are going to pay off all of the debt and no one will be able to buy a U.S. Treasury bond. That is almost laughable. In fact, we would laugh about it, most certainly. It is not a serious matter.

It is not a laughing matter when we talk about passing this horrendous debt on to our children and grandchildren. It is not a laughing matter when we talk about we are squandering the opportunity to make Social Security and Medicare permanent, make sure that Social Security and Medicare are there for the senior citizens that are going to come into the program in the next 15 to 20 years. This is not a laughing matter. It is a very serious matter.

So, Mr. Speaker, what we are asking for is let us sit down at the table altogether. Let us work this problem out. Let us do the right thing for America. Let us do the right thing for our nation and grandchildren. Let us do the right thing for this country, and let us honor the people that founded this country, the people that fought for this country, the people that gave their lives so that this great Nation of freedom, our liberty, our constitution, let us not squander this opportunity that we still have to do the right thing.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Arkansas for his comments and for his strong leadership for fiscal responsibility. He speaks with a great deal of common sense and enjoys the respect of the entire Congress.

Next, I yield to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. MATHESON), another member of the Blue Dog Coalition who has worked very, very hard trying to get this Federal Government back on a course of fiscal responsibility, who sponsored legislation to do that, who has been a real leader in this House; and it is an honor to yield to him.

Mr. MATHESON. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman from Texas. I am a freshman, and I am in my first term in Congress. I had the opportunity to consider different groups to affiliate with and issues to focus on. And before I ever got here as a candidate, I was talking about the notion of fiscal responsibility, about what a great opportunity the Blue Dogs take our Federal budget and really work in a good way to reduce debt and to reduce the burden of debt on future generations. The Blue Dog message was one that was so consistent with mine, it was a great experience for me to learn about this group and be affiliated with them.

But that is only one reason why I am happy to be a Blue Dog. The reason I am happy to be a Blue Dog is that the Blue Dogs have a reputation for being very straight up. We put the figures and facts out on the table, and we are happy to work with people. And we do that in an honest way. We are prepared to work across the aisle and work with anybody in this House, regardless of party, regardless of ideology. We want to work with them to come up with good ideas for being fiscally responsible.

We have gone through some tough times this past year in this country, and our circumstances have changed. No question about that. We all are supporters of the fact that we have to put in significant resources in terms of this war on terrorism to increase homeland security. These are tough issues, and we have not resolved them yet. In fact, the needs for this war on terrorism and the needs associated with homeland security are going to be developed for a very long time, probably, in terms of us knowing where we are going to be.

So that is a significant factor, as I said, and we support committing those resources. I know the Blue Dog coalition, in particular, was a supporter of defending our borders and defending our people. But with that change in circumstance, clearly, it seems to me, that calls for reassessing where we are in terms of our total Federal budget because we have just had this significant change in our requirements, and coupling that with an economic downturn and revenues being down and projected deficits coming in, those are all reasons why we need to look at this.

My concern is that while we have been talking about this, that people are not taking it seriously and looking at it. This is our opportunity now, because we are running up against our credit limit. We have not had to take a vote here in Congress on the debt limit for a number of years because we were running surpluses. Now we will have to take a vote on this. And the Blue Dogs are not trying to say we are not going to raise the debt limit. The Blue Dogs are very supportive of defending our borders and defending our people. But with that change in circumstance, clearly, it seems to me, that calls for reassessing where we are in terms of our total Federal budget because we have just had this significant change in our requirements, and coupling that with an economic downturn and revenues being down and projected deficits coming in, those are all reasons why we need to look at this.

people in the Congress, on both sides of the aisle, do not want that to be their legacy, but I am concerned that is the direction we are going.

Now, we sit here and talk about this. I recognize there is no easy way out of that, you know, that direction we are going in. We are asking people to take a lot of work and a lot of smart people getting together to try to work through this, to get our budget situation going from a path of increasing deficits to where we are back on the path of fiscal responsibility. Nobody has any solutions on all the good ideas are around here, not one individual, not one party, but as Blue Dogs, we are sincere in our request that people sit down with us.

We are ready to roll up our sleeves and work hard, and ready to face the tough decisions. That is why our constituents elected us. We are supposed to take on the tough issues, and this is a tough issue. My concern is that right now Congress is not willing to address where we are, at the same time we are too concerned about short-term considerations in the next election. We need to be looking at the next generation in the way we make our decisions.

So as Blue Dogs, every week, we come to the House floor to try to highlight this issue, because it is such an important issue to us. It is such an important issue to my constituents. I hear about it all the time when I go back home. So, as I say, we are sincere in our request. We have been out here many times. People have not taken us up on it yet, but we are getting to the point where this debt limit is going to be hit. The Senate has already passed a debt limit bill to raise the debt limit, and now it is our time. It is our time here in the House.

Now, if we turn this into a partisan situation, I suppose the majority party, if they can reach consensus, can pass a debt limit increase without Democratic votes. We, as Blue Dog Democrats, are prepared to offer a vote in favor of raising that limit, as I said earlier, as long as it includes with it some sense of a plan or a process by which we are going to come up with a plan to get us away from this path of deficit spending. That is what we are asking.

That, to me, is such a common-sense request, because if you are in the private sector, whether it be your house- or hold in your request. We have been out here in the business world, if you are spending out more than you are taking in, you know you have to change something over the long run. You just cannot keep doing that over time because it does not work. And particularly if you want to borrow more money, it does not work, because nobody will lend you that money because you do not have a good story to tell how you are going to get out of that pattern. So when you go for that car loan or you go for that home mortgage, the banker will look in the eye and say, tell me how you are going to pay me back. A very reasonable request.

I think the citizens of this country ought to be asking Congress how are you going to pay us back? How are you going to pay back this debt? That is a fair question, and it is incumbent upon us to take that on.

So here we are again today. Week after week we raise this issue. I make the request one more time. I ask Members of the House, let us get away from the rhetoric, let us sit down and let us work together on this very difficult issue. Let us do the right thing for future generations. Let us do the right thing to get our budget back on track. That is what the Blue Dogs are all about, and I hope that people will take us up on this offer.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I will yield back to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Utah, and again I thank him for his leadership on this issue. The gentleman represents a new generation of leaders in the Congress, leadership that I believe has the right thing to get our budget back on track. That is what the Blue Dogs are all about, and as an understanding that we have to pay the bills.

That reminds me of the diversity of the Blue Dog coalition. We have Members from all over the country now, from Texas, from California, to Utah. We have Anglos, Hispanics, African Americans. We have Congressmen and Congresswomen all committed to the central principle of the Blue Dogs, and that is we need to balance the Federal budget, pay down this $6 trillion national debt, and ensure that we do not pass that on to our children and to our grandchildren.

One other Member of the Blue Dog coalition that has joined us on the floor here today is the gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF). He is an outstanding member; has been a leader on many issues of fiscal responsibility. He came to the Congress after a distinguished career in the California Assembly, and I am very pleased to yield to him.

Mr. SCHIFF. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me and for his sustained leadership in dealing with the country’s fiscal situation.

Mr. Speaker, it was not so long ago, in fact it was just last year, that the administration was warning Congress of the dangers of paying down the debt too fast. We were entertaining scenarios where the Nation would have no balance between Federal budget, pay down this $6 trillion national debt, and ensure that we do not pass that on to our children and to our grandchildren.

Mr. SCHIFF. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me and for his sustained leadership in dealing with the country’s fiscal situation.
The Speaker: Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. Schiff) for his comments. And I think the gentleman from California (Mr. Schiff) would like to do that are competing for the same resources, but we have to recognize that if we do work together and we do take down this national debt, pay it off, reduce our deficits, that means that those billions of dollars a day that we are spending in interest we can spend one day's worth of that interest on building new schools in your neighborhoods. We can spend another day of that interest providing prescription drug benefits to seniors. We can spend another day of that interest on fixing potholes in the roads. We can spend another day of that interest in making sure that we expand health care access to children. We can give another day of that interest back to the taxpayer and help them pay their personal debts and their personal obligations. And this is just with a week's worth of interest, $7 billion that can be provided in the form of additional tax cuts or that can be provided in the form of additional services for the American people. So we do not saddle ourselves with nonproductive debt, and that is the challenge.

And I want to applaud my colleagues who have worked so hard and for many years to bring about a sense of fiscal discipline in this body, to restore the commitment that we have made, both parties, to provide valuable services to the people we represent, to not encumber the future of this country and our children's future in a debt they cannot climb out from under. This is our time, this is our challenge, and I think we are up to it.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. Schiff) for his comments. And I think the reality of our current fiscal condition is certainly as he stated, and I think every Blue Dog Democrat believes we need to give the American people as much tax relief as we can afford to give them. But he is exactly right that we do have a lot of tax cuts proposed on the floor of this House week after week, the reality is whatever tax cuts are approved today over and above what we have already done for the American people in the largest tax cut in our history that was passed last June, those additional tax cuts will just be paid for with borrowed money. So we are going to take money out of the Social Security trust fund or borrow money from the public so we can claim it is cutting taxes and give these additional tax cuts.

That is not fiscally responsible, and I certainly appreciate the fact that all of us want to be able some day to vote for additional tax cuts. I certainly do. But I think that what the Blue Dog Democrats stand for is first making sure that we are paying the obligations of the United States Government, whatever they may be; and it is a tragedy to think that the course that we are now following will result over the next decade in an additional $1 trillion dollars a year in interest costs to the American taxpayer, wasted money just paid out on interest just because of the course of fiscal irresponsibility that we are now embarked upon.

I pointed out this chart early in our hour, and I want to point it out as we close. Just 1 year ago when the President submitted his budget, it was estimated that we would not reach the statutory debt limit set by this Congress until the year 2008.

Mr. Speaker, we now know that we are bumping up against that debt limit, too. If we continue along the path of the President's budget submitted to us in January/February of this year, we will see record increases in the debt owed by the taxpayers of this country to the extent of an increase of over $2 billion over the next decade. That is a course that we should not follow.

That means that the young men and women fighting for our freedom today in Afghanistan and other far-off places will not only sacrifice in the battles that they fight for our freedom today, but when they come home someday, when they are in their middle years, their highest income earning years, they will have to pay the bill for the very war that they went today to fight.

The sacrifices that will be required of the people of this country to win this war on terrorism are indeed great, and they are sacrifices that all of us must be ready to share in. The Blue Dog Democrats are here to remind Congress and the President that somebody has got to be willing to pay the bills. Today the debt collector is at the door, and he is knocking. He is telling us that we are running this government off the Social Security trust fund at a time when Social Security will be under the greatest stress in its entire history. As the baby boom generation retires and becomes eligible for Social Security is just the time that we see the projections of an ever-increasing Federal debt and growing deficits in our annual Federal budgets.

We need to be honest with the American people. We need to be willing to tell them the truth, and we need to be able to act in a bipartisan way recognizing the reality of our current fiscal situation and recognizing that every one of us is going to have to do everything necessary to win the war on terrorism to protect the security of this country, and together we must be willing to pay the bill.

So we have come here today and shared together in this hour of time on this floor to simply say to this Congress and this President, let us work together to balance our budget, to pay our bills, and to be sure that we do not pass the costs of today's government and today's war on to our children and our grandchildren.

PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. KENNEDY of Minnesota). Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, as we speak tonight, there is a committee marking up the prescription drug bill which will provide prescription drug coverage for all seniors in this country. I believe it is one of the most pressing issues in health care that we face today, and so I am glad that we are going to spend this next hour talking about the House prescription drug plan; and I thank the gentleman from Louisiana (Chairman TAUzin), and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILLRAKIS), the chairman of the subcommittee, for their leadership in bringing this bill to the floor and making sure that we have a plan that is reasonable, doable, and will provide immediate relief for seniors.

I am accompanied by some of my colleagues today, and at this time I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. WHITFIELD). I know this has been an important issue that the gentleman has worked on.

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Speaker, prescription drugs for seniors on Medicare, this is an issue which has been before the Congress for quite some time. There has been a discussion about it for a number of years. If Members will recall, last year for the first time the House of Representatives under our leadership did pass a meaningful prescription drug benefit for senior citizens throughout the country. We all know how difficult it is for some of these seniors to pay for the prescription drugs that they have been prescribed for their particular condition.

One of the disappointing things about last year was that although we passed a meaningful prescription drug benefit, the Senate did not pass one. So we found ourselves back this year at the same place that we started last year. So we made it very clear on the Republican side of the aisle that we were committed to a meaningful prescription drug benefit for senior citizens that would not bankrupt the country. Because, obviously, we can spend a trillion dollars over 10 years, or $2 trillion over 10 years, but that certainly would not be fair to the young men and women who are out working today with children.

Their employer does not provide health insurance for them, and they have made too much money for Medicare to provide them with coverage, and they are not old enough for Medicare yet they are paying taxes that go for the Medicare beneficiary and the Medicaid beneficiary. We tried to be reasonable about this to get a prescription drug benefit on the books to get started in a meaningful way, and our proposal will spend $350 billion over 10 years. I have a chart here that shows the House Republican principles on this issue.

On, we obviously want to strengthen Medicare, and we are committed to a prescription drug benefit.

Two, we want to lower the cost of prescription drugs now. We want to guarantee that for all seniors, prescription drug coverage will be covered under Medicare.

We want to improve Medicare with more choices and savings, and obviously we want to strengthen Medicare for the long-run.

The other side of the aisle has made a lot of arguments that we are not spending enough money on prescription drugs. As I stated earlier, many of us agree with that. But when we have a Nation at war against terrorism, when we are just coming out of a recession, it is important that we get this on the books and that we be reasonable in our approach; and I think that is precisely what we are doing.

But yet I want to make it very clear because the other side of the aisle has indicated that meaningful or significant savings from a prescription drug benefit program, which I would disagree with. But if, for example, you are a single person on Medicare today under our bill, if your salary is $33,000 and below, then all of your prescription drugs will be paid for by Federal Government. If you are a married couple and your joint income is $17,910 or less, then all of your prescription drugs will be paid for by the Federal Government.

And if you are married and you are making about $21,000 a year, under our proposal even some of that will be subsidized for you in addition to the other benefits that will be there for you.

So I am quite excited that tomorrow the Committee on Energy and Commerce will begin marking up this important legislation to provide finally prescription drugs for our senior citizens. My only hope is, and I am convinced, by the way, that the House of Representatives will pass it again, and my hope is that the U.S. Senate will step up to the plate and not make this a political issue just because we are approaching an election but will step up to the plate and enter into meaningful dialogue so that they too can pass a prescription drug benefit that we can send to the President; and I know that President Bush has indicated time and time again that he will sign the legislation.

I think tomorrow is a big day for senior citizens throughout the country and for all of us who have parents and aunts and uncles who need this benefit, because, as I said, we will begin marking this up tomorrow and I think with the work that it will be done by our committee and then hopefully going to the floor, I appreciate very much the gentleman yielding to me this evening. I look forward to working with him tomorrow and the next 2 to 3 days as we try to finish this matter up.

Mr. FLETCHER. I thank the gentleman from Kentucky for coming and joining us tonight. You were talking about the Democrats and some people talking about this is not a big enough plan, but it is interesting if we look just to a year ago, there was an amendment offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), a Democrat, that set aside only $303 billion and we have a list, and I think this is virtually every Democrat, voted for that. Yet now 1 year later, in a political year, in an election year, we have a political statement that it is not enough, even though we increased it from $303 billion in our budget, set aside for prescription enhancing and improving Medicare, to $350 billion. All of a sudden in an election year we hear this demagoguery, it is not enough. I really appreciate what you have said on that.

Mr. WHITFIELD. If I may make an additional comment. You are exactly correct. We are being challenged, also, of trying to raid the Social Security trust fund to pay for this. I would point out, Mr. Speaker, that between 1990 and 1995, a period that was controlled by Democrats except for about 4 years, they spent over $800 billion from the Social Security trust fund; and no one raised questions about it. The objective was not until 1994 when the leadership of this House changed were we able to start reversing that.

One other comment that I would make is that the U.S. Senate clearly of what they are going to do is they are going to put out a prescription drug plan that may be in the trillions of dollars, who knows what it will be, which is very easy for them because they did not pass a budget on their side of the aisle. And so they are not bound by any constraints whatsoever. So for them to criticize us about spending too much money and bankrupting Social Security, which has a false alliteration in it, it is not do not have budget. And so they are going to send a plan over here that we know will be so expensive that we will not be able to adopt it. But this is a very starting point. You have provided great leadership on this issue since you took up this in Congress. I want to commend you for that.

Mr. FLETCHER. I thank the gentleman from Kentucky.

Next I would like to recognize another gentleman that has joined us this evening on this discussion, a very important subject, prescription drugs, one of our newer Members who has taken a leadership role on this, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. SULLIVAN). We are glad to have him here this evening. Certainly hope him coming and sharing his remarks as we address this very important issue.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Kentucky for all his hard work on this very important subject. and only been in Congress for about 4 months. When I was campaigning, I would go door to door. One of the biggest issues I heard from seniors was about Social Security, people living on fixed incomes, maybe had a small pension or had a small pension it was about prescription drugs. One lady that did not live too far from me, I remember going to her house. She said that she got about $900 a month from Social Security and her husband had passed away, he had a small pension from the railroad, and she was paying $1,000 a month for prescription drugs. Luckily she had a son that had an okay job and was helping her out. We need to change that.

Over the recess, this last recess we had, I went home and visited many senior centers in Tulsa and the surrounding areas. After meeting with thousands of seniors, it became clear that prescription drugs is definitely needed. It is a simple fact that every senior should have access to the prescription drugs they need. Yet we know that “simple” is not always synonymous with “easy.” I firmly believe that it is important to pass legislation that will help seniors pay for their prescription drugs for 50 to 70 years like the Democrat plan, but for generations and future generations to come. Therefore, as this body of Congress debates legislation, we must be responsible. The bill must be fiscally achievable this year, next year and for years to come. We must not fail on seniors today, tomorrow or 50 years from now.

The legislation that has been introduced by the House Republicans provides a guideline that accomplishes these goals by offering coverage on a voluntary basis to all seniors. Most seniors pay between $1,800 and $1,900 per year on their prescriptions. This bill will cover the majority of seniors’ costs, including 80 percent of the first $1,000 after a deductible and 50 percent on the next $1,000.

This plan is workable, this plan is simple, and this plan is right for American seniors. I urge my colleagues to work in a common-sense approach to ensuring our seniors have the prescription drug coverage they need and deserve. I would like to again thank the gentleman from Kentucky for all his hard work.

Mr. FLETCHER. I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma. Before he leaves, let me just ask him a question and make a remark. It certainly sounds like you have had a number of town hall meetings. As I go around my district in central Kentucky and I have had some town hall meetings with seniors, I really hear that this is probably the most pressing issue. You mentioned that illustration of the $1,000 a month of income. I hear this, especially from widows, women that have worked very hard all their life but they worked in the home. They are left with Social Security, which is very inadequate to provide for all the things they need in addition to prescription drugs. I just want to thank you and see if you have any comments on that and this plan that we brought out here that would pay virtually 100 percent of coverage for those individuals that you talked about.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. Speaker, a lot of women are outliving men, too. You hear a lot of that at these meetings as well. A lot of times, too, they say, Well, John, we have heard this a lot about prescription drugs and we know you can’t just give drugs to everybody. We want a plan that you can actually do. I have told them that we passed a budget, we put the money in this budget to accomplish this goal, and we can get this done in this Congress. This is not pie in the sky; this is a doable plan that we can do this year and for years to come. We must be responsible. The bill must be fiscally achievable this year, next year and for years to come. As we go through our committee process this week. The major components of what we are suggesting is that it is time to quit talking and to put in place a real and sustainable entitlement program within Medicare that will provide access to drugs at more affordable cost to the seniors of America who must depend upon drugs today for their daily and annual health care needs. The same way seniors in the 1960s depended upon hospitals and clinics, seniors now depend upon drugs to maintain their lives in successful quality time.

Those of us who still enjoy parents and grandparents, I still have a mother whom I love dearly, know that were it not for the Medicare system being there for her and the amazing advances of drug therapies and the capabilities of modern pharmaceuticals to continue to make her life not only comfortable and enjoyable but vibrant and alive, understand how critical it is we change Medicare to create this benefit.

Unlike the Senate bill, which they can outbid us on the dollars they can spend because they are not bound by any budget, they have never passed a budget, and I should say the other body; just as the other body can outbid us on our individual states in the House we outbid us if they do not want to abide by the budget numbers. But the budget numbers provide us with $350 billion.
We were charged with crafting an entitlement program, a program that would last forever, that would not be sunsetted, that would be available to seniors and they would know it is available for the rest of their lives. That is the first thing we did. We crafted a program within Medicare that truly was an entitlement.

The second thing we did was to make it voluntary, just as part B is, just to make sure that seniors know that if they have it, they can sign up and accept the benefits of it or they can consider they would rather not have it, they would rather have a private insurance plan that they are enrolled in or perhaps not invest in this plan at all.

What we know from those who have looked at our plan is that we expect, from the managers of Social Security and from CBO estimates, that as many as 93 to 97 percent of the seniors of America will likely take advantage of this new drug benefit. Why? First of all, because any senior living below 175 percent of poverty, the plan provides total subsidy of the premium, in other words, total subsidy support, total support within this $350 billion that we are going to spend over 10 years, enough for the purchasing of this drug coverage for them.

Secondly, we know that seniors are going to like this. Even though they may not get all of the drug cost covered in the first $1,000 and $2,000 under the plan, they are going to like it for one very important reason, because it includes catastrophic coverage. Because it says at some point, whatever we decide it is doable, at some point the dollars available to us in the budget, this drug benefit program but also the needs of the provider community to make sure that, in fact, doctors and nurses and hospitals are still available to carry out ordinary Medicare services to folks like my mom and to folks like your seniors in your community.

Last of all, in the bill we obviously want to make sure that the seniors that have been available and are still available as an option to seniors in this great country are still available. So we help make sure we stabilize those programs within this bill.

In other words, we want to make sure that seniors have as many options as possible, options in Medicare+Choice, where it is available, and hopefully stabilize it so it continues to be available; secondly, options to continue to receive health care through Medicare at the hospitals and clinics, through the nurses and doctors and providers of our Medicare system; and, most importantly, to add this important new drug benefit option to seniors.

Now, can we get it done? You betcha. Can we get it done this year, pass it into law this year? Yes, we can. This is doable. This is not a program that ends in 5 years, as the other body would provide. It is not a program that goes over our budget. It is within our budget, and it is doable.

We pass it on this floor next week, and the other body has all the time in the world to get their act together and meet us in a conference and make it happen this year for the seniors of America.

Listen, this is not a benefit that can wait. Seniors are desperate for some help in their drug coverage. Seniors are desperate for us to pass this into law, and we have got our chance next week. I want to thank the gentleman and all the Members of the Committee on Energy and Commerce who began the markup process today and are going to work with me through the next 3 days to make sure we produce a product that this House can act on next week. I want to thank the gentlemen and the cliffs and the walls that some of these providers are about to hit. And so this bill addresses, within the confines of the dollars available to us in the budget, this drug benefit program but also the needs of the provider community to make sure that, in fact, doctors and nurses and hospitals are still available to carry out ordinary Medicare services to folks like my mom and to folks like your seniors in your community.

I thank the gentlewoman for her sterling work on the Committee on Energy and Commerce and for calling this special order tonight.

Mr. FLETCHER. I thank the gentlewoman from Louisiana (Chairman Tauzin). It is certainly a privilege to serve with the gentlewoman. Again, I want to thank the gentlewoman for the endless hours that she has put into it, him and his staff and the other members on the committee, to put together this bill. It is the culmination of several years' work.

We have improved on the bill we passed a year-and-a-half or 2 years ago. We made some tremendous improvements, as the gentleman stated. That is why it is estimated that 93 to 97 percent of the seniors would find this plan so attractive that they would take advantage of it, just as the gentleman's mother said.

Let me thank the gentlewoman also for his leadership. The Committee on Energy and Commerce has historically taken a very strong leadership role in health care, and the gentlewoman has continued not only that, but enhancing that leadership role, and it is a privilege to serve with the gentlewoman. I thank her for coming and sharing the time with us this evening.

As we continue to look at this, the chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce mentioned that we set $350 billion, and yet the Democrats, the minority party, did not offer any particular number for a budget. They did not offer any kind of plan to set aside any money at all for prescription drugs for our seniors. Yet they are beginning to roll out a plan that will probably spend between $800 billion over 10 years to $1.2 trillion.

They offered no plan to pay for that. They have not said whether they are going to cut education, national security or homeland security. Are they going to cut health benefits to other individuals? Where are they going to get the money? Or are they going to offer an accompanying tax increase bill, because that is what they are talking about. They constantly talk about the fact of the tax relief that we passed for the American people.

So it would only make sense if they are offering a bill that rings up deficits as far as the eye can see, they would have to offer either offsets in education, health care, national defense, homeland security, something to offset that, or offer a tax increase. I just do not see that happening.

I am additionally glad to have the gentlewoman from Pennsylvania, around the Pittsburgh area, with us also. She was here the other evening and shared some time. She has taken a leadership role on this. I know she has a lot of seniors in her district that she is very close to and concerned about. The gentlewoman from Pennsylvania (Ms. HART), we are glad to have you here this night. I yield to the gentleman.
Ms. HART. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) for spending time on this issue.

People around the country are learning what our plan is all about. They are beginning to understand that we are responding to the concerns they have expressed with us, our principles: that we lower the cost of prescription drugs for every senior; that we guarantee that the prescription drug coverage is available to them under the Medicare plan they are so used to receiving their health care through; that we improve Medicare, the whole plan, with more choices for them and more savings for them; and also that down the road Medicare will still be there, that we make sure we strengthen it for the future.

But the prescription drug issue is one that is new to Medicare, and it is one that as I know in the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER) traveled in his district and those of us who have had an opportunity to speak today have all experienced the discussions with our constituents about this issue. It all began in Pennsylvania, where we actually currently have a State prescription drug plan. It is a very good plan, but it does not cover every senior. The concerns that I heard while I served in the State senate before I came here to Washington included the concerns that said, “You know, I am a senior citizen. I am not poor, but my prescription drug costs are so high that they are making us poor.” It is couples that make the choices that you do not want anyone to say they are making because some level of sustainence and the prescription drugs they need to keep their health. It was clear to me that no matter whether a person in our roundtable discussion had a very low income or someone with more moderate or higher means, that they believed that the Medicare system should certainly address the issue of prescription drugs. That is why we have gone in that direction. It is important for us to do that.

People have come to rely on Medicare as their health coverage once they reach retirement. It is something that gives them peace of mind. They know they will be taken care of if they go to the hospital, if they see their doctor. Those issues that take a little bit of that concern away from them also, I think, help with their health. Unfortunately, many of them have faced as a result of not knowing how to pay for their prescription drugs has caused a lot more problems for them.

Our rundtable discussion gave me the opportunity to talk to the senior citizens in my district about what they really want to see. They said they like the idea we will make the coverage available to everyone, but please do not force them into a plan they do not want. We are not forcing any of that coverage, because if they have a good pension, and a lot of people in my district are doing okay, have a decent pension from their retirement that gives them some drug coverage, and they like what they want to keep it. So it is a voluntary plan. That is one of the other important things. We do not force anybody into a plan they are not interested in being part of, but it is available to everyone.

The group wanted to know if it would cover every senior, not just the low-income seniors that were covered under Pennsylvania’s current plan. I said, of course. The plan was to look at what was working well in the States that have those kinds of plans, but beef up with other coverage for those who may not be covered by some of the States that have plans, like ours. It is called the PACe program. Like I said earlier, it is comprehensive.

As you see, if you have a certain low level of income, under our Medicare prescription drug coverage plan, you will be covered for free. It will be very similar to our program at home. But what is better about the Medicare drug coverage plan that we have, that the Republicans have proposed, is that it does not stop here. It would provide prescription drug coverage for those who are higher income so that part of their costs would be covered.

I think it is important that we note that Pennsylvania’s plan has helped a lot of folks and continues to help a lot of folks, our plan is more comprehensive. I recently held a roundtable discussion at home, and a gentleman who was with us that day talked to us about the maintenance and the prescription drugs that his wife needed to take for an ailment that she had and how they were making the choices that you do not want anyone to say they are making because they are made to some level of sustainence and the prescription drugs they need to keep their health. It was clear to me that no matter whether a person in our roundtable discussion had a very low income or someone with more moderate or higher means, that they believed that the Medicare system should certainly address the issue of prescription drugs. That is why we have gone in that direction. It is important for us to do that.

is help him do it, because he is perfectly willing. I am sure, to take the medications that he needs to maintain his health. We just need to give him the wherewithal to get those medications.

Mr. FLETCHER. Absolutely. One of the things I find out with these seniors in my experience, in practicing medicine with some of these seniors, they are very proud people. They are not used to having to come up and saying, I cannot afford this for the rest of the month, because they worked very hard. We put them in a very awkward position, and so it is very difficult for them to come.

With this kind of plan, it would be within Medicare. Just like the plan they receive now, it would be something that is an entitlement, they earn this, and it would prevent that from happening.

The gentleman is absolutely right. We appreciate her being here. I know the Pennsylvania people are very proud to have her represent them.

Next as we continue this discussion, I want to just say as we look at Medicare, it was established in 1965. The next gentleman has not been here that long, seven years longer than I have, and he is a very distinguished member of the Committee on Energy and Commerce. He represents southern Illinois, and in his new district actually he will be bordering my home State of Kentucky.

I yield to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS). We are glad to have him here tonight. We appreciate his leadership on the Committee on Energy and Commerce, as well as his leadership on the prescription drug effort and this bill and being with us here this evening.

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. It is an honor to have the gentleman on the Committee on Energy and Commerce, and his expertise helps us move important health care legislation.

Mr. Speaker, we do have the best health care in the world, but it has problems, and it has challenges. Really one of the most frustrating things for me is to try to address how the Federal Government is a good or bad partner in all the different aspects of health care.

A lot of my colleagues have spent a lot of time talking about the prescription drug benefits in this plan, but there are some other benefits in this package that I also want to make sure that we highlight and address.

One is, of course, a little self-serving, is my own piece of legislation, H.R. 4013, which we are going to include, the Rare Diseases Act. Being the sponsor of the bill, it encourages better treatment, better diagnostic procedures and cures for large numbers of rare diseases and disorders.

These are diseases that are very catastrophic to the individual; but in terms of the number of population, it is based upon a large population of the country, it is a very small percentage. So there are great challenges, and people who want to try to invest to find a cure, since the population is so small, we have to really encourage people to do the research and the development, and we have to really encourage them to try to find the new medicines to help do that.

Although each of these illnesses affects less than 200,000 people, a total of 25 million Americans, one in nine, today suffer from at least one of the 6,000 known rare diseases. A lot of the familiar ones that we have heard about, Lou Gehrig's disease is one of these diseases, Tourette syndrome is another one, that if not included in this provision, would probably get left out, and then we would not have the incentive to help this segment of the population that are afflicted by some of these terrible diseases.

So that is why I am excited about the markups that are occurring in actually two committees and the Committee on Ways and Means. They are very similar, I think there will be some differences, but we will work them out when we bring that bill to the floor.

But I want to appreciate the fact that our bill meets the budgetary guidelines, and that is no small task. We pass a budget, we fight over the budget, that fight is over. We pass it on the floor, and then we have that slice of the financial pie to be able to address a prescription drug issue and some reform provisions. It is no small task, and I applaud the leadership on both sides, from the Committee on the Budget to the chairman, for making that happen.

Again, the other thing that I wanted to highlight really quickly are some of the other provisions in here that are very, very beneficial, especially to rural and small communities throughout the country. Someone who does not deliver those services, all hospitals will see increasing payments in 2003 for hospitals by reducing the market basket, inflation adjustment rate.

Sole community hospitals will increase payments in 2003 for rural hospitals by the full market basket resulting in a 3.3 percent increase.

There is a lot of terminology here. I come from the military, from an Army background; and we had acronyms out the wazoo. The most important is the DSH payments, which stand for disproportionate share. This bill will increase the DSH payments for rural and small hospitals in urban areas by increasing the cap from 5.7 to 10 percent over 5 years beginning next year. It addresses an issue of critical access hospitals wherein it reinstates special cash-flow provisions, fixes special physician payment adjustments; and we can see the complexity of health care in here when we have all of these specific areas that the administration is trying to fix with this legislation. The legislation imposes flexibility in the size requirement as defined by the number of beds, and reauthorizes rural flexibility grants.

Home health. It benefits home health care, which is a major provider of something we believe in and that has really taken a beating since 1997. It also increases funds for hospice care. As an individual, and as many families have concerns when someone is dying in the family and hospice comes. It is a great service. We need to help that service. It is a great way to ease someone into the transition to the next stage of their life to the next by having care and concern at home, and hospice gets reinforced financially.

It helps direct graduate medical education. It helps teaching hospitals in rural areas and in small cities to receive additional direct graduate medical education assistance.

In studies of geographic adjustment for physicians, there is a differential in payments for physicians. This will help to quantify and qualify for that.

But I also appreciate the fact that we highlight and address the financial pie to be able to address a prescription drug issue and some reform provisions. It is no small task, and we are going to include, the Rare Diseases Act, which we are going to include, the bill, it encourages better treatment, better diagnostic procedures and cures for large numbers of rare diseases and disorders.
Mr. SHIMkus. Mr. Speaker, we have been working with the State government in sharing what information we have about the bill being presented, and they are very excited about it, not just the benefit of that provision, but also because of the assistance with the prescription drugs. The States are in financial crisis. Illinois, I think, had a $1.2 billion shortfall which they have been wrangling with now for months, and they have had to make some tough decisions. We, through this legislation, will be able to help bring more flexibility and more support for rural health care.

Health care in America again is a very frustrating thing, if one is really following the dollars and cents. I think the only way we survive is through partnering, through working with local community hospitals. There is a lot of hospitals that are writing off millions of dollars of uncompensated care, and they are providing a great public service. Maybe not just a public service, maybe a lot of them are religious affiliated hospitals and that is part of their mission, but they are still writing it off and they are real dollars. So by working with the State and the Federal Government partnering, by working with community hospitals, whether they are tax-supported or faith-based organizations, we can continue to provide that this country expects us to provide, not just for those of us who are employed and have good plans, but for those who are less fortunate or are retirees or are those who are in transition away from work at this time.

Again, I thank the gentleman for the time, and I think the State will be very excited to get this bill out of committee and on to the floor. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kirk) may make some comments about how the State of Illinois will also benefit.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Kirk). We thank him for his leadership and the experience that he has brought, not only to this issue, but to Congress in general in his work in the past, representing the suburbs of Chicago. We thank the gentleman for coming and joining us this evening.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I am absolutely in awe of the gentleman’s work product and what the gentleman has done. I want to help the gentleman in every way possible.

Mr. Speaker, when Medicare was established in 1965, prescription drugs given outside the hospital did very little. Republicans and Democrats both left it out of a Medicare program. Today, prescription drugs given outside of the hospital carry much of the load in medical care. Republicans and Democrats agree on a bipartisan basis that it is time to add prescription drugs to Medicare for needy seniors. Many States, such as my own home State of Illinois, already have done so; but it is time for the Federal Government to do its part.

The real difference between the two parties, Mr. Speaker, is one of cost. The minority’s plan would create an open-ended entitlement to subsidize even very wealthy seniors who are ready to take part and already have a prescription drug plan. Costs would skyrocket, dipping into Social Security and limiting funding to restore our national security. The minority’s price tag for their plan could exceed $800 billion. Do we sacrifice homeland security or national defense or Social Security or education to pay for their plan?

Last year, in a nonelection year, most minority members voted for a prescription drug plan that cost $325 billion over 10 years. Now, in an election year, the number has nearly tripled. But if we are to adopt a plan which costs so much, eventually, we will have to break a promise made to seniors.

The majority plan cares for needy seniors without putting financial pressure on Social Security or denying the needs of our men and women in uniform in Afghanistan’s front lines. Our plan is balanced. It protects needy seniors and does not break the bank. I just want to close by saying that by not breaking the bank, our plan means that a promise made to America’s seniors by this Congress cannot be kept, and we need to design a plan we can afford to keep so that seniors can count on this.

I applaud the leadership of the gentleman on the bill, and I thank him for all he has done to bring this plan before the House of Representatives.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I think he has made some very good points, points that are new and the first time they have been made here tonight, and that is, if the plan previously was enough, not only in an election year, how are they going to pay for that? Particu-
Let me read some of the names: the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GERHARDT), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. DINGELL), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR), the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), and the gentleman from California (Mr. STRADA). Members there will hear talk about this $350 billion not being enough. Why? I think clearly we see that they want to make a political statement in an election year.

Our plan, again, is very doable, very reasonable. The dilemma here is that we have in America is that no senior should have to choose between food and medicine. I think any of us who have been out to our senior citizen centers, those who have practiced medicine, have seen that dilemma.

Now, in practicing medicine, we try to give samples, and pharmaceutical companies have certainly given away free medication. But we have a plan here that will make sure that this is not the day in and day out. What do we have in the day in America: that we will eliminate this dilemma by providing coverage to those seniors who are having to make that choice now.

We have gone over some of the principles:

One, it is a voluntary plan; very important. Members have heard that 93 to 97 percent of seniors will take advantage of this because this plan is so atttractive.

It provides choice; it is a voluntary plan. This is unlike the Democrats’ plan, the minority plan, which provides one single formula. Now imagine that. That means a bureaucrat is going to be managing every single pharmaceutical plan. This is unlike the Democrats’ plan, the minority plan, which provides one single formula. Now imagine that. That means we politicize every single new product that comes out that is produced.

Of all the wonderful medications that we have had, and that is the reason we have high prices of drugs, is because we have had tremendous tech-ological advances in pharmaceutical agents, imagine every one of those agents being politicized to the point of deciding are we going to add this to the formulary or not.

We would have the House of Repstatives and the Senate and bureaucrats micromanaging this sort of thing when it really needs to be out there where patients and seniors have a choice, and plans, and how they choose the plans will drive what medications are on those plans. That is why choice is extremely important.

This plan guarantees every senior will have at least two choices; at least two, minimum. We anticipate they will have more than that.

It is a guaranteed plan. It is not something we put up and say, we can afford this very large plan for a few years, and then we are going to have to sunset it. That is like putting a chair out and asking the senior to have a seat, and then right at the time they begin to sit down, we pull it right out from under them. We do not think that is responsible, and it is not something we could even fathom doing to our senior citizens. So this is a guaranteed entitlement that will go on and extend.

It also provides immediate savings. The CBO has estimated in the past it will be up to 30 percent. We do not know exactly what the number is, but we do know it will provide immediate relief. That is now for seniors as they walk in.

If we have an employer-based insurance plan, we walk in and get a reduction on our pharmaceutical drugs, but seniors do not. They pay sometimes up to 25 percent more. That is not fair. By the power of negotiating, we can reduce that and give them savings immediately.

It also provides catastrophic coverage. Anybody who has out-of-pocket expenses of over $4,500 will get those expenses fully covered. What does this prevent? It prevents individuals from having to bankrupt themselves and those who have to runaway drug costs. This is a protection we find when we talk to seniors that most of them, and overwhelmingly the majority of them, desire.

So this lowers drug costs now, and guarantees all seniors will have coverage under Medicare. It is under Medicare. It will improve Medicare with more choices and more savings. We talked about the provider changes, the hospital changes, and some of the other changes.

We did not talk a lot about the Medicare+Choice, which has about 5 million Americans participating in that plan. We want to make sure they continue to have the coverage they have, and it will strengthen Medicare for the future.

We talked about, for those low-income individuals, about those making $17,910 for couples or $13,290 for singles, this will fully cover their expenses, so we will have no low-income seniors or seniors on fixed incomes having to decide between food and medicine.

There are a couple of other charts I would like to get here. Let me say, who thinks that $350 billion is enough for Medicare? One, the House Democrats thought that. On the Spratt amendment, the gentleman from South Caroolina (Mr. SPRATT) offered House amendment No. 21 to the fiscal year 2002 bud-et resolution which said $350 billion is enough. Again, they have changed their tune on that. The tripartisan Senate group June 7, 2002, said in Congress Daily $350 billion is adequate.

Next, I talked about the expenditures: Why is reasonable, what is doable. The House Democrats triple Medicare spending in just 1 year. If we look, it goes from 400- to over $1.2 trillion in 1 year.

Now, they talk about tax breaks, and they do a lot of talking about the tax relief bill that we gave, yet when we look at that, many of the Democrats voted for that tax relief bill. Now they are talking about the fact that our prescription drug bill is not affordable because of the tax relief we gave to the American people.

They are offering a bill that triples the expenditures of Medicare. They talk about, with class warfare as part of that discussion, that they are not able to afford that because we gave some tax relief to the hard-working Americans.

Well, I would like for them to step up and say how are they going to pay for this triple expenditure that they have, and is it doable? There are some on the Senate side who have offered a bill and sunset it after a few years because they know they cannot afford it, particularly in the outlying years. Again, that is not. I think, a morally reasonable thing and a doable thing that we can enact here. We need to enact a bill that is responsible and doable.

Next, let me point again to tell Members that the Senate Democrat plan expires in 2010. We see an expiration. Ours is a continuing entitlement that will be for seniors from now on. It is a responsible way of doing a bill and will continue to provide those benefits that we have talked about.

Who supports this bill? We could go through: the 60 Plus Association, the Alliance to Improve Medicare, the ALS Association, the American Academy of Dermatology Association. We could go right on down and look at number of associations. The Kidney Cancer Association, the Health Association of New York State. Florida AIDS Action sponsors this and supports this bill. There is the Society for Anesthesia, United Seniors Association, the Visiting Nurses Associates. We also have American Urological, American Association of Cataract and Refractive Surgery. That is what we have is an overwhe-ing number of the providers that are actual taking care of patients and seniors, groups that actually are speaking on behalf of seniors who support this bill.

In conclusion, let me say that this bill is a very responsible bill. Again, I want to thank the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUSIN) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) for their work. The Committee on Energy and Commerce will be beginning to mark up a bill tomorrow to provide a Medicare prescription drug benefit for every senior in America.

I want to close out. I appreciate the opportunity to speak this evening on the very important subject. I am very hopeful that we can get this passed and pass it on to the next body to take it up, and pass this bill for the seniors across America.

FY 2003 FUNDING TO PAKISTAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ISSA). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to raise my concerns regarding U.S. financial assistance to Pakistan.

Mr. Speaker, I understand that after September 11, the U.S. needed to coordinate with President Musharraf because of Pakistan’s proximity to Afghanistan. Although the U.S. worked with Musharraf in the war on terrorism, I was skeptical, and I still remain skeptical, that Musharraf could fight both global terrorism and local terrorism by Islamic fundamentalists that still take place in Kashmir and India.

It is now clear that Musharraf’s promises to crack down on terrorists at the line of control in Kashmir and to crack down on terrorist camps and schools in Pakistan were just promises that went unfulfilled. When a leader says he will crack down on terrorism, but in the same breath make statements like, “Kashmir runs in our blood,” or will refer to terrorists as freedom fighters, that should be evidence enough that he is not truthful with regard to terrorism.

Regardless of his empty promises on fighting terrorism in Kashmir, and despite his lies about holding democratic elections, the U.S. in fiscal year 2002 allocated millions of dollars to Pakistan in both economic and military aid. The U.S. provided $600 million in economic assistance in fiscal year 2002, $73 million for border security, $75 million in FMF in the supplemental, and $50 million in military assistance.

In addition, the recently passed supplemental contained $40 million for Pakistan, and an additional $250 million is being sought by the administration for economic development and assistance.

I agree that Pakistan is in dire need of economic and humanitarian assistance, but I strongly objected to the military assistance provided to Pakistan especially considering the fact that Pakistan was not and is not a democracy.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is important for us to evaluate the situation in Pakistan before setting aside further money in fiscal year 2003 for economic aid to Pakistan, and certainly for military assistance to Pakistan. The atmosphere post-September 11 was different, and it was appropriate for the U.S. to provide aid to Pakistan since Musharraf was helpful to the U.S. in fighting the Taliban.

At this point in time, however, the violence in Kashmir has escalated, and the overall situation of terrorism in Kashmir and throughout India charges Musharraf with responsibility once and for all to stop infiltration at the border in Kashmir and to eliminate terrorist training camps and schools.

With violence against civilians in Kashmir taking place on a nearly daily basis, and with nearly 1 million troops lined up along the Pakistan and India border, Musharraf has no choice but to keep his promise of stopping infiltration of Islamic fundamentalists who now claim “Kashmir Jihad” from entering Kashmir. I do not think it is appropriate for the U.S. to provide any further aid to Pakistan if this promise is not kept.

In addition, Musharraf needs to go further than stopping infiltration. He must shut down terrorist camps and schools operating in Pakistan. These schools breed terrorists, and in order to permanently end terrorism in Kashmir, Musharraf must go to the heart of the problem and put an end to the breeding of terrorism, i.e., terrorist camps.

In addition, there must be some system for ensuring that Pakistan is accountable for the money that is allocated by the U.S. We should demand evidence that although economic aid may be going to schools and other social projects, that the investment is not then freeing up money that is reallocated towards weapons for Islamic militants and resources at terrorist training camps.

Regardless of Musharraf’s promises to crack down on terrorism in Kashmir and to eliminate terrorist camps.

Mr. Speaker, I am so concerned about the U.S. providing further funds to Pakistan without Musharraf holding his word that I am planning on sending a word to the foreign ops appropriators to apprise them of the current situation and to encourage them to provide economic aid to Pakistan only on the condition that Musharraf does, in fact, take concrete steps to alleviate terrorism in Kashmir and to eliminate terrorist training camps.

In addition, I would like to note that I plan to encourage the appropriators to steer clear of providing any military aid to Pakistan, regardless of the progress Musharraf makes on terrorism prevention.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed an amendment in which the condition of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 4560. An act to eliminate the deadline for spectrum auctions of spectrum previously allocated to television broadcasting.

TRADE, TRADE POLICY IN THE UNITED STATES, AND AMERICA’S RECORD TRADE DEFICITS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I scheduled this time to come to the floor tonight and talk about the issue of trade, trade policy in the United States, and our record trade deficits, the impact on the economy, and in the future.

Before I engage in that, I could not resist. I had to sit through a good part of the previous hour, and I would like to express that I support the points made by the gentlemen before me on the issue of prescription drug coverage.

First off, they said it has a fiscally huge cost, the Democratic alternative. It would cost $800 billion. Guess what? That is the cost of the estate tax which they tried to permanently repeal last week over 10 years, $800 billion. So we could have a trade-off. We could have a prescription drug benefit for every American eligible for Medicare, or we could give back $800 billion to the wealthiest of the wealthy in this country.

Even if we adopted the alternative, which I supported, which would have given a $6 million exemption, I think $6 million is quite enough tax free, we could have saved half that money, $400 billion. So if we matched it to the $350 billion, we could again have had a more generous plan.

Mr. Speaker, also, there is a glaring deficiency. In fact, I am a bit critical of the Democrat proposal, also, because neither bill takes on the immensely powerful and wealthy pharmaceutical companies head on. Americans are paying 40 to 80 percent more than citizens of other highly industrialized, developed nations. Our neighbors in Canada pay about half what we do for drugs manufactured in the U.S. by U.S. firms, Mexican even less. The European countries all pay less.

The Republican bill would do nothing to control these outrageous costs, which means we are not going to get much of a benefit. If we do not crank down the obvious costs of pharmaceuticals, we are not going to get much of a benefit. We could spend the entire Federal budget within a few years, and we would not get much of a benefit. We have got to do something about the runaway pharmaceutical costs, but I do not think there is a lot of will on that side. Tomorrow night’s $25 million Washington, D.C. fundraiser for the Republicans in the House and the Senate, the lead fundraiser is the head of GlaxoSmithKline, a large pharmaceutical company, one of the largest in the world, J.P. Garnier would not want to upset him too much when he is out raising money.

Now they say, well, the rising costs are because of advances in new drugs. Actually, if one lifts up the covers and looks underneath where they are spending their money, the pharmaceutical companies are spending more money on their CEO salaries, administration, and advertising than they are on research. In fact, all their blockbuster drugs for profits are makeovers of drugs they invented 20 years ago. This is what they provide for their employees, that they are trying to get legislation through Congress, knock through a number of bills to continue their monopoly on Claritin, they finally developed another dodge which is get the doctors to prescribe this new drug which is not any different but has a different name and they can charge ten times as much for it. So if we do not deal with the costs, we can get what is the meaningless prescription drug benefit. But I see no reason that side of the aisle to deal with that issue.

Back to trade, let us talk a bit about trade. Later this week perhaps or next week, the House will take up at least perhaps an extraordinary proposal by the gentleman from California (Mr. THOMAS) of the Committee on Ways and Means to adopt an arcane procedure called a self-executing rule on a motion to go to conference. Why is that? Because they are trying to help push through this fast track bill for President Bush. I opposed fast track authority for President Bush the First. I opposed fast track authority for President Clinton, and I oppose fast track authority for President Bush today. This is a bad idea. The United States Congress gives up all of its authority to amend, modify, or meaningfully review these trade agreements and instead says they will be adopted with an up or down vote only, no amendments allowed. Why would we do that? We would do that because these are really bad deals for the American people. That is why we would do that. That is the WTO which we opposed, the GATT, that was a really bad deal for the American people, done through a fast track process. The NAFTA, total disaster. We are running over a $40 billion trade deficit with Mexico. That was done on one of these fast track deals. But what they said was, oh, Congressman, you cannot mean you want to vote to amend that. Well, in fact, first of all, you cannot vote to amend it, and, why, if you voted to amend it, the other countries who are agreeing to this is not.

Come on. They want access to our markets. Reasonable amendments to deal with labor and the environment, consumers, those things would not be a problem in these trade agreements, but they want to keep those things out because the real people who dictate the trade agreements are multinational corporations who have had a direct pipeline to the last four Presidents of the United States, Reagan, Bush I, Clinton, and Bush II. They have had virtually identical, in their position in trade.

Is our trade policy working so well that we should rubber-stamp it yet one more time? That is what this House of Representatives will be asked to do, rubber-stamp one more round of fast track for the free trade of the Americas. Let us bring in all of the nations into the western hemisphere, into this wonderful construct that we have under NAFTA. Would that not be peachy? Can we get more labor in Bolivia than we can in Mexico because some people are demanding as much as a dollar an hour down there in Mexico now, Bolivia and Argentina. They might be more desperate. Maybe they could take more American jobs at a lower price than the Mexicans.

I am about to be interrupted again, but I will certainly be happy to yield or suspend for the purposes of a unanimous consent request on the part of the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. TAUZIN).

AUCTION REFORM ACT OF 2002

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 4560) to eliminate or modify the spectrum auctions of spectrum previously allocated to television broadcasting, with a Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Senate amendment: Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Auction Reform Act of 2002”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS. Congress finds the following:

(1) Circumstances in the telecommunications market have changed dramatically since the auctioning of spectrum in the 700 megahertz band was originally mandated by Congress in 1997, raising serious questions as to whether the original deadlines, or the subsequent revision of the deadlines, are consistent with sound telecommunications policy and spectrum management principles.

(2) No comprehensive plan yet exists for allocating additional spectrum for third-generation wireless and other advanced communications services. The Federal Communications Commission should have the flexibility to auction frequencies in the 700 megahertz band for such purposes.

(3) The study being conducted by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration in consultation with the Department of Defense to determine whether the Department of Defense can share or relinquish additional spectrum for third generation wireless and other advanced communications services will not be completed until after the upper 700 megahertz auction date for the upper 700 megahertz band, and long after the applications must be filed to participate in the auction, thereby creating further uncertainty as to whether the frequencies in the 700 megahertz band will be put to their highest and best use for the benefit of consumers.

(4) The Federal Communications Commission is also in the process of determining how to resolve the interference problems that exist in the 800 megahertz band, especially for public safety. One option being considered for the 800 megahertz band is the 700 megahertz band. The Commission should not hold the 700 megahertz auction before the 800 megahertz interference issues are resolved or a tenable plan has been conceived.

(5) The 700 megahertz band is currently occupied by television broadcasters, and will be so until the transfer to digital television is completed. This situation creates a tremendous amount of uncertainty concerning when the spectrum will be available and reduces the value placed on the spectrum by potential bidders. The enactment of the 700 megahertz band would reduce both the amount of money that the auction would be likely to produce and the probability that the spectrum would be purchased by the entities that construct the most use and would put the spectrum to its most productive use.

(6) The Commission’s rules governing voluntary mechanisms for vacating the 700 megahertz band by broadcast stations—

(A) produced no certainty that the band would be vacated for advanced mobile communications services, public safety operations, or other wireless services any earlier than the existing statutory framework provides; and

(B) would cause the construction of digital television and must not result in the unjust enrichment of any incumbent licensee.

SEC. 3. ELIMINATION OF STATUTORY DEADLINES FOR SPECTRUM AUCTIONS.

(a) FCC TO DETERMINE TIMING OF AUCTIONS.—Section 309(i) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(i)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

(15) COMMISSION TO DETERMINE TIMING OF AUCTIONS.—

(A) COMMISSION AUTHORITY.—Subject to the provisions of this subsection (including paragraph (1)), but notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Commission shall determine the timing of and deadlines for the conduct of competitive bidding under this subsection, including the timing of and deadlines for qualifying for bidding; conducting auctions; collecting, depositing, and reporting revenues; and completing licensing processes and assigning licenses.

(C) EXCEPTION.—

(i) BLOCKS EXCEPTED.—Subparagraph (B) shall not apply to the auction of—

(I) the C-block of licenses on the bands of frequencies located at 710–716 megahertz, and 746–751 megahertz; or

(II) the D-block of licenses on the bands of frequencies located at 716–722 megahertz.

(ii) ELIGIBLE BIDDERS.—The entities that shall be eligible to bid in the auction of the C-block and D-block licenses described in clause (i) shall be those entities that were qualified entities, and that submitted applications to participate in auction 44, by May 8, 2002, as part of the original auction 44 short form filing deadline.

(iii) AUCTION DEADLINES FOR EXCEPTED BLOCKS.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (B), the auction of the C-block and D-block licenses described in clause (i) shall be commenced no later than August 19, 2002 or September 19, 2002, and the proceeds of such auction shall be deposited in accordance with paragraph (8) not later than December 31, 2002.

(iv) REPORT.—Within 60 days after the date of enactment of this paragraph, the Commission shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) specifying when the Commission intends to reschedule auctions 31 and 44 (other than the blocks excepted by clause (i)); and

(2) describing the progress made by the Commission in the digital television transition and in the assignment and allocation of additional spectrum for advanced mobile communications services that warrants the scheduling of such auctions.

(D) RETURN OF PAYMENTS.—Within one month after the date of enactment of this paragraph, the Commission shall return to the bidders the deposits in the A-block and E-block of auction 44 the full amount of all up-front payments made by such bidders for such licenses.

(B) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(3) CONSOLIDATED APPROPRIATIONS ACT.— Paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 213(a) of H.R.
Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, back in 1997, there was no objection. There was no objection.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, back in 1997, there was no objection. There was no objection. Mr. TAUZIN (during the reading). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DeFazio) for his courtesies this evening and hope he will excuse my interrupting him.

Mr. DeFazio. Mr. Speaker, whenever I can help the powerful chairman of the Committee on Energy and Commerce, I may have something small to ask in return.

If I could continue here, this is a very serious subject. So the question before the House is, will we rubber-stamp existing trade policy? Is it so good, is it working so well for the American people that we should say, hey, let us just keep doing more of that? No, it is time we reevaluated our trade policies.

Our trade deficit is the largest in the history of the world. It came from $66 billion in 1991, 1.7 percent of our gross domestic product, to $417 billion last year, 4.1 percent of our gross domestic product. That is pretty extraordinary. People say, well, a minute, our exports are expanding. They are right. Our exports over the last decade have gone up 17 percent; but guess what, the imports went up 44 percent because of this misguided trade policy.

Our trade deficit is the largest in the history of the world. People say, well, a minute, our exports are expanding. They are right. Our exports over the last decade have gone up 17 percent; but guess what, the imports went up 44 percent because of this misguided trade policy.

Current estimates say that our trade deficit could reach $600 billion by the end of this year, $536 billion by 2003, and their prediction, it could reach 7 percent of gross domestic product, $800 billion by the year 2005. That means the loss of tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands more jobs in this country; and in fact, it means a trade deficit that is not sustainable.

Essentially, if we move toward those numbers, the United States of America becomes the next Argentina; and the World Bank and the IMF will be in here dictating to us about our budget priorities and how we are going to clean up our house and how we are going to meet our obligation of our $2 trillion overseas debt. Yes, we will owe $2 trillion overseas in the very near future because of these persistent trade deficits.

It is not sustainable. In fact, when it is prolonged, their trade deficit would be only 4.5 percent of their gross domestic product. Similarly, in South Korea, and economists everywhere said, well, that is understandable. My God, no one can have trade deficits that large a percentage. We are talking about the United States of America may go to 7 percent in the near future if we maintain the current trade policies.

The question becomes, who would want to maintain this falling trade policy? Well, not too many of the American workers who have lost their jobs, seen their wages depressed. They are probably not real enthusiastic about it. In fact, I come from a State where when I first raised questions about trade, they said, oh, no, you are from Oregon, you are a great trader. You are right there on the Pacific Rim; your people are going to benefit from this free trade policy of the United States, as I was told by President Bush first, President Clinton and President Obama, the opposition to it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

The restriction in subsection (a) shall not apply to a station licensee that is seeking authority (either by waiver or otherwise) to vacate the frequencies that constitute television channel 63, 64, 68, or 69 to utilize any television household for digital broadcasting in order to continue analog broadcasting during the transition to digital broadcasting, the Federal Communications Commission may not, either at the time of the grant or thereafter reduce—(1) the spacing requirements provided for analog broadcasting licenses within channels 2-51 as required by section 73.610 of the Commission’s rules (and the table contained therein) (47 CFR 73.610), or (2) the interference standards provided for digital broadcasting licenses within channels 2-51 as required by sections 73.622 and 73.623 of such rules (47 CFR 73.622, 73.623).

The House sat up for an up or down vote, no amendments allowed? Let us look at the result of our existing trade policy.

Our trade deficit is the largest in the history of the world. It came from $66 billion in 1991, 1.7 percent of our gross domestic product, to $417 billion last year, 4.1 percent of our gross domestic product. That is pretty extraordinary. If such waiver or reduction will result in any degradation in or loss of service, or an increased level of interference from any television household except as the Commission’s rules would otherwise expressly permit, exclusive of any waivers previously granted.

(b) EXCEPTION FOR PUBLIC SAFETY CHANNEL CLEARING.—The restrictions in subsection (a) shall not apply to a station licensee that is seeking authority (either by waiver or otherwise) to vacate the frequencies that constitute television channel 63, 64, 68, or 69 in order to make such frequencies available for public safety purposes pursuant to the provisions of section 337 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 337).

Mr. TAUZIN (during the reading). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Louisiana?

There was no objection.

Mr. Speaker, back in 1997, and again in 2000, over the Committee on Energy and Commerce’s objections, the budget committees of the Congress commanded the management of the Nation’s airwaves. They set auction deadlines that were asinine, their numbers, the United States of America may go to 7 percent in the near future if we maintain the current trade policies.

What else did trade deficits do? Well, they shift the composition of the workforce. They say, do not worry, everybody is going to wash dishes; we are going to become a service economy. We do not need to manufacture things. I do not believe that. I do not believe we can export manufacture things and continue to be a great Nation. In fact, during the Gulf War, officials down at the Pentagon were in a panic because they needed some high-tech stuff. They could only get it from Japan, and Japan was not delivering on the schedule that our national security demanded. Imagine that. Do my colleagues think China, who is now producing some of those same critical components, is going to be real helpful in the future? They have been so friendly and helpful so far. I do not think so, particularly if we are in a conflict with them, which I think is very possible within the next 25 years.

Manufacturing has lost 1.5 million jobs in the last 18 months. So we are having a huge change in the composition of our workforce from high-wage, high-benefit manufacturing jobs, to much lower-benefit jobs in the service sector or other components of manufacturing.

What else is impacted? Stagnant wages. Average U.S. wages adjusted for inflation are about the same as they were when Jimmy Carter was President of the United States, and one of the biggest factors in dragging that down is U.S. workers are being asked to compete with people in Mexico who are preferably willing to work for a dollar a day; and if President Bush is successful, he will have created jobs, and they are not real high skilled and get cheaper wages.

They are required so they will have to go to countries like Argentina. Other times they are asked to hock to other countries and foreign interests borrowing those dollars in order to fuel this economy. The flip side of the fact that is 40 percent, over 40 percent now of our public debt is owned by foreign investors. It is a drag on economic growth, this $400 billion-a-year trade deficit. Our export output falls. Domestic demand that could be met by domestic output is instead satisfied by higher imports. As I said earlier, our exports are up by 17 percent. You can’t do that. We are losing the jobs that could create that.

So that is another result. I do have a few more points, and then I will yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), who is a tremendous leader on these issues.

If we look at our economic growth, this $400 billion-a-year trade deficit, our export output falls. Domestic demand that could be met by domestic output is instead satisfied by higher imports. As I said earlier, our exports are up by 17 percent. You can’t do that. We are losing the jobs that could create that.

We are increasingly reliant on foreign investors. We have to import nearly $2 billion a day from foreign investors, and perhaps later I will get into a list of those foreign investors are. I think it will shock some of the Members of this caucus in terms of national security and economic security, but 40 percent of our U.S. Treasury debt, 40 percent of the debt of the United States of America, the collective debt of all of us, is owned by foreigners. That is an extraordinary number. It erodes our defense manufacturing base. We are going to saddle our children with future debt and interest payments, and it hurts our long-term spending on research and development.

These are some of the grand successes of the current trade policy that this Congress is going to be asked to rubber-stamp by once again giving up all its authority to shape trade and trade policy and rubber-stamp a fast track bill to give the President the authority to secretly negotiate this agreement and bring it back here for a hurrying up or down vote.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), who has been a tremendous leader in the House in opposing these falling trade policies.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to express deepest appreciation for the yielding of my esteemed colleague, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO); and though I am not for human cloning, I just wish that somehow we could clone more of him to serve in this Chamber, and the people of Oregon are very fortunate to have an honest and very, very able Member serving their interests and indeed America’s interests.

I was listening to the gentleman’s comments on fast track, which I always call the wrong track, and felt compelled to come here to the floor to at least try to attempt to gain just a few moments to discuss these issues with the gentleman. My colleague has mentioned that huck to other countries and foreign interests borrowing those dollars in order to fuel this economy. The flip side of the fact is that 40 percent, over 40 percent now of our public debt is owned by foreign investors that we have to pay them, and this year that number will total close to $400 billion. It is between $300 and $400 billion, which is almost as much as we will spend on the defense of the United States of America to pay on our borrowings and the interest that is owed on those.

So I think that the underside of this trade equation is the fact that piece by piece we are selling ourselves off, the public interest and the private interest.

I think the American people really have a sense of this. They go to the store and they look on the bottom of a cup or they look on the label on a piece of clothing and they sort of ask themselves, well, is anything made in America anymore? Everything from hedges trimmers to automobiles to clothing. We import over half of the oil, which we should totally displace by domestically produced new fuels. We are not independent. This was a Nation formed with the great ideal of independence and self-sufficiency, and piece by piece, at the end of this past century and now into the new one, we are frittering away that national endowment.

Now, the bill that was supposed to have come before the House for the second time in 2 weeks has not made it to the floor. And the reason the fast track bill is not here today and was not here last week is because the motion lacks the votes necessary for passage. The problems with the fast track proposal are so numerous that the rule that they have adopted is self-executing. In other words, we cannot really change anything in the bill.

And what are some of the things that are bad about it, in addition to its fundamental architecture, which is only going to increase more imports into this country? Well, first of all, the displaced workers that will occur in this country.

And we know it is going to happen. It happened with NAFTA, it happened with PNTR with China. Every time we sign one of these agreements, more companies close in our country. It does not take a mental giant to figure out what is going on with displaced production. The money that was supposed to be in the bill to help the workers who lost a good part of their work was lowered, and there were lower levels of trade adjustment assistance in this fast track measure.

In addition to that, there were several provisions embedded in this fast track bill to try to protect the seats of certain Members of this institution in a very tough election year.

In addition to that, there were provisions that had been put in that would have protected industries in this country from illegal dumping of foreign goods, such as steel, and those were taken out.

In addition, worker health provisions, those people who lose their job and then lose their health benefits, there were provisions in the Senate bill to protect the health benefits of our workers at least for a period of time. Those were taken out.

And so those are just some of the few irresponsible ploys that were included by my colleagues from the other side of the aisle. And I would have to say to the gentleman, and I appreciate his yielding to me, really one of the issues that we have to consider is, how, when we get up here everthing happened at this time of Enduring Freedom, or any time when we should be considering the independence of this country, are we either strengthening or destroying our national defense?

We, as we look at our security, border security, industrial security, economic security, all of those together comprise what we take an oath to defend: the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic.

Those were taken out.

Now, the bill that was supposed to have come before the House for the second time in 2 weeks has not made it to the floor. And the reason the fast track bill is not here today and was not here last week is because the motion lacks the votes necessary for passage. The problems with the fast track proposal are so numerous that the rule that they have adopted is self-executing. In other words, we cannot really change anything in the bill.

And what are some of the things that are bad about it, in addition to its fundamental architecture, which is only going to increase more imports into this country? Well, first of all, the displaced workers that will occur in this country.

And we know it is going to happen. It happened with NAFTA, it happened with PNTR with China. Every time we sign one of these agreements, more companies close in our country. It does not take a mental giant to figure out what is going on with displaced production. The money that was supposed to be in the bill to help the workers who lost a good part of their work was lowered, and there were lower levels of trade adjustment assistance in this fast track measure.

We already have growing deficits with Argentina and Brazil and Venezuela. If this is passed, it will only grow worse because that has been the pattern. If we look at a country like Argentina, I found it very ironic that the President went to Argentina in 1995, and said we will buy to product down there. But if we look at what is happening, Ohio’s beef producers are being wiped off the map. They cannot get access to market. We are importing Argetinian beef into the United States that we have bought with Argentina. They are sending us more than we are sending them, and they were not about to buy any more of our beef. They want to sell us their beet.

And in terms of Brazil and Venezuela, if we look at the steel industry, when we are hemorrhaging jobs all over the world, and our trade deficit will be over $360 billion more this year?

So I want to thank the gentleman very much for the opportunity to join him this evening and again compliment the very wise voters of the State of Oregon for sending the gentleman here. I have long admired his independence and his innovativeness as a Member of Congress.

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman, and, of course, the people of Ohio also have shown extraor-diary wisdom in returning her, for more years than I have been here, to the House of Representatives. The gen-tlewoman has been tremendous on this fight. Although we have been losing, the margin is getting closer and closer.

The gentlewoman will certainly remember that last fall, after an extraor-diary effort by the Republican lead-ship in this House, the President and all his Cabinet and others, they only prevailed by a one-vote margin in getting through the fast track trade bill. A number of Members on that side had to change their vote, and voted reluctantly, as those from the South and textile States, and they got what are thus far some pretty hollow promises in return. Certainly the voters in those States are going to have to look to see what it is that their elected Representatives have brought by proposing to do more and more and more of the same.

Under this legislation, Free Trade of the Americas Act would be one of the things negotiated, and we would go to a few of the very few countries in the Western Hemisphere, where the United States is currently running a trade def-cit, where we do not have this kind of a perverted free trade agreement in place, and we would give them the opportunity to join most other nations on Earth who are running huge trade surpluses with the United States, notably Uruguay, Argentina, and Brazil. A very large economy in Brazil would fall under this new free trade authority, and Brazil is a major manufacturer of automobiles, certainly something close to the gentlewoman’s heart, and other very sophisticated goods.

So we can fully expect that under this legislation the interests of the side they would find those products coming from Brazil where labor is indeed much, much cheaper than it is in the United States.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, I would just want to point out that Ar-getina and Brazil, we are already in deficit with them. And if we look at what has happened with Canada and Mexico post-NAFTA, we used to have surpluses with those countries. Then, when NAFTA kicked in, we moved into gigantic deficits with both countries, where they are sending us more goods than we are sending them.

product on an assembly line with a large number of workers, and I want my workers to be able to buy it. And we did phenomenally well as a country. The managers, the owners of capital, and the workers all kind of came out the winners. The biggest winner was the workers, they always did better, and the owners even did better yet, but there was some proportionality. The workers could afford to buy the products, and it created tremendous wealth for our Nation. It created an industrial base. That won World War II and was the envy of the world.

We rebuilt the world after World War II, led the race to space, and everything else, all those things. That was American technology based on sort of this formula of equality. But now greed has taken over as we have seen in so many ways in corporate America, and if they can get the labor, desperate labor somewhere else a little cheaper, and avoid environmental restrictions, that is where they want to manufacture. And their vehicle is these free trade agreements. They can do it without the imprints and the approval of the President of the United States secretly negotiating deals that favor the export of their capital and their manufacturing jobs to these other countries.

The problem is ultimately it is going to collapse; but they will not care, like the managers of Enron who had already lost the company and are living in their seven, seven or eight mansions, and they may have to sell one of their mansions.

Ms. KAPTUR. If the gentleman would yield, many of those mansions are not in the United States of America, nor are their major funds. They are offshore.

Mr. D. EFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, this long-term trade deficit is not sustainable. With depressed wages in this country, we are buying up huge amounts of this on credit, and the credit is overseas. We are getting close to $2 trillion of debt. Forty percent of the Treasury debt of the United States is owned by foreigners. Our number one trade deficit is with China, not the country with the best interests of the United States in mind, in my opinion, anyway. I do not consider China to be a great ally or friend of the United States. Number two is Japan. Number three is Canada, obviously a close relationship with the United States. Then Mexico, Germany, Taiwan, Italy, South Korea, Malaysia, and Ireland. Those are the countries with whom we are accumulating this huge and growing debt. This is of tremendous consequence.

As we undermine the buying capacity of the American people and the industrial might of the United States, and ultimately when they one day ask for their money, their $2 trillion that they are owed, they are going to have the IMF and the World Bank dictating terms because this is not a sustainable system. We cannot borrow money year after year after year.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, Alan Greenspan has said fundamentally to the Congress, this is unsustainable. We cannot keep displacing production and bringing it in from elsewhere without ultimately having an impact on your ability to produce and create not just more wealth, but a competitive wealth. We can print a lot of money, but what is standing behind it is the productive wealth of a society. That is what we are displacing.

Mr. D. EFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, Alan Greenspan said in an article in Business Week that over the past 6 years, 40 percent of the increase in the U.S. capital stock was financed by foreign investment, a pattern that will require an ever-larger flow of interest payments going out to foreigners. He said, “Countries that have gone down this path invariably have run into trouble.”

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I was thinking about this today and reading the headlines about Afghanistan, and the trade deficit that can pull together a government and it is not very easy to do. But assuming they could pull the government together, through Afghanistan will come an oil pipeline from the Caspian Sea. Then we see the President of the United States secretly negotiating deals with whether or not certain forces will be used to destabilize the government of Iraq, and we recall the Persian Gulf War and that oil field that lies between Iraq and Kuwait.

Then we saw the Bush administration a few weeks ago give mixed messages to this Congress and the world about Venezuela and which government the administration was supporting or not supporting in Venezuela.

What do Iraq, Venezuela and Afghanistan all have in common? They have in common the oil imperative. So many times when you see the United States become dependent, as we are in this oil arena, very bad things can happen. In the end, we are not independent. I think it is important what the gentleman is presenting in terms of the financial condition of our country and who we owe. The first phone call I made after 9–11 was to Alan Greenspan, and I wanted to know from an economical standpoint who can pull our bonds internationally. I said, I want you to assure me that we can hold it together because 40 percent of the debt of this country is now owned by foreign interests. He said, We can track that back to the London markets. And I said, What does that tell me? He said, I do not think you need to worry, but he could not actually tell me who holds our debt.

I think he might know, I am not sure, but he was not able to tell me. But when we owe $400 billion a year to interests that we do not even have a list of, we know that it is traded in the London markets, if we could theorize, China is now the largest holder of our dollar reserve. The trade deficit is a reciprocal for that. Japan is number two. So our fate lies in the hands of Saudi Arabia, and the OPEC countries, number three. So behind the scenes, they have enormous leverage when the United States is frittering away its economic independence.

Mr. D. EFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, we ran a trade deficit last year of $40 billion in 2001. No OPEC countries, same countries that are fixing oil prices to stick it to American consumers and the remaining industry that we have in this country with extortionately high prices for fuel; and the Bush administration, they are trade. They love the WTO, the secret tribunals. They want to get hormone-laced beef in from Europe, and other things that are in favor of corporate America; but guess what, they will not file a complaint with the WTO against OPEC for price fixing which is prohibited by the World Trade Organization and by GATT. Why not?

Well, maybe there is something to do with the oil industry that I am not quite aware of, but we are running a $40 billion trade deficit. These people are making no secret of the fact that they are restraining production to drive up the price, and that violates the WTO. It is an open and shut case. All the U.S. has to do is file it on behalf of its consumers. When the United States cannot file a case. Even those industries that are still left in this country cannot file a case. Only the Bush administration can file the case, and they are refusing to take on the OPEC countries and file against them for price gouging of the American people.

Also on that list, kind of interestingly enough, we ran a $754 billion trade deficit with Iraq. The President is talking about invading Iraq, and we are running a $5.750 billion trade deficit with them. There is something weird about that.

Ms. KAPTUR. If the gentleman would yield, I was speaking to my local press in my district, and they asked what did the President mean about Iraq. I said would it surprise you, in spite of what the headlines are saying in Washington, today we are importing 8 percent of our petroleum from Iraq. They were stunned. How could this be happening at the same time the no-fly zone is maintained over Iraq?

The relationships that have made us more and more dependent on petroleum imports than we were 25 years ago is the OPEC countries that are fixing prices. We are being taken for a ride by OPEC. I think he might know, I am not sure, but he was not able to tell me. But when we owe $400 billion a year to interests that we do not even have a list of, we know that it is traded in the London markets, if we could theorize, China is now the largest holder of our dollar reserve. The trade deficit is a reciprocal for that. Japan is number two. So our fate lies in the hands of Saudi Arabia, and the OPEC countries, because too often oil has been serving as a proxy for our foreign policy, and our trade deficit is a sign of our growing lack of independence.

Mr. D. EFAZIO. Again, returning to the OPEC countries, a $7.4 billion trade deficit with Saudi Arabia, and now we find out that some of the most wealthy Saudis are the biggest backers of al-Qaeda.
 Qaeda and other terrorist groups and have been funding this network of schools training Islamic fundamentalist radicals around the world, and we are helping to finance that. It is U.S. consumers who are being extorted at the gas pump by price gouging and production leveling by OPEC, who are sending almost $33 billion a year to Saudi Arabia and Iraq.

This is extraordinary to me; and what is the Bush administration response to this; we should do more of the same with trade policies and are working so well, price gouging the American consumers, undermining our industrial base, lower wages and productivity in the United States, we should do more of exactly the same, despite the fact that we are heading toward a $2 trillion debt overseas within the next 2 years.

Mr. Speaker, $2 trillion of U.S. dollars are outstanding around the world, and the gentlewoman is right. What if the Chinese people say, look, we are going to take a dispute over Taiwan or something else with the U.S. and they want to slow us down or hurt us, and they demand payment, for say, their $700 billion worth. Suddenly the U.S. is in a big credit crunch. We cannot afford to make those sorts of payments.

Of course, there is one other point that is interesting. I befuddled an economist the other evening. It was Paul Krugman from the New York Times. He is an interesting man, but blind on trade. He said the dollar will collapse. We asked him if a $400 billion-a-year trade deficit is sustainable.

He said, oh, no, that is close to what Indonesia had before they collapsed. It is not sustainable.

He asked, How is that going to rectify itself? He said the dollar will collapse.

And so I said the idea is that the dollar collapses, we pay more for goods, U.S. goods are cheaper. Right?

Yes.

But I said, guess what, if we do not manufacture anything anymore, it just means everything you are importing to run your economy has become a lot more expensive, like oil, critical high-tech components, everything that we are buying, all of the shoes and clothes, all becomes more expensive here in the United States; and our trade deficit might even go up.

We have turned away from me and did not want to continue the conversation. We are defying conventional wisdom here. The conventional wisdom is if our dollar tanks, yes, it hurts a little bit; but we will turn our sights inward and buy from our own manufacturers. But guess what, our own manufacturers have been sold out by these trade agreements.

Try and buy some running shoes made in America. There is apparently one company that makes men’s shoes in the United States. Try to buy a suit made in the United States of America.

Ms. KAPTOR. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would yield, do not try to buy slab specialty steel made by domestic manufacturers in the heartland of America that I represent because the last one just closed. If you are an independent machine toolmaker, you cannot find that product. It is a very, very serious situation.

In terms of recession, if we think about the recession that we are crawling our way out of, and some parts of America are still in, what triggered it? Rising oil prices for imported fuel. People have forgotten that.

Before September 11, we were already struggling with a hammerlock on this economy; and then after September 11 when the OPEC countries and some of the other oil exporting countries got worried, they lowered prices. Then they are coming back up again. This is a very manipulated price scheme, and that is because of the Trade Commission in some of the initial investigations done as we entered this recession.

The American people should remember that rising petroleum costs and imports, the rising cost of imports, can really kick this economy in the shins. If we think back to the 1970s and what happened in those decades with the Arab oil embargoes and the severe depression that this country was thrown into because of the costs of rising imports, we are doing more than we did back then. Yes, we are conserving more at the same time, but we have not created the new fuels here at home. What we need to do on the public and private sides, we have been bunting rather than hitting three-base hits.

It has made a huge difference in our ability to handle our economy in a way that preserves our independence and does not do as much harm here at home.

The other word I wanted to just say a word about, if I could, and that is repression, because some of the very countries that receive the dollars when our people go to the gas pump, for example, and they buy petroleum that is refined into gasoline from other countries, those dollars go to them. What do they use them for? The gentleman from Oregon mentioned Saudi Arabia. Most of the terrorists were born or spent time in Saudi Arabia. That is a very repressive regime. And our dollars support it. What did Osama bin Laden say? He said that he wanted U.S. troops out of Saudi Arabia. What are U.S. troops doing in Saudi Arabia? Thous-

The word recession at home and repression abroad and what kind of a political endowment we are bequeathing to the future.

Mr. DeFAZIO. I thank the gentlewoman from Ohio for assisting in this special order this evening. We will have opportunities to discuss this again. You have certainly opened up the door to discuss energy self-sufficiency and energy policy which I think is one of the strongest steps we could take to make this country secure for the next century, both militarily and economically. I would love to engage in a special order on that subject some evening.
Ms. KAPTUR. I would enjoy that opportunity as you are such a leader in all those areas.

Mr. DeFazio. I thank the gentlewoman. I realize she has to leave and I am almost done myself.

I would like to and reiterate a couple of points. In my own State, 41,000 jobs lost to trade in the last decade, a number in wood products, some in textiles, others in other industries. This is a loss that did not need to happen. We did not need to lose these industrial wage jobs with good benefits to unfair trade. But unfortunately it was done under auspices of United States law. That is, agreements that were pushed through, started in the Reagan administration, continued in the first Bush administration, brought to fruition by the Clinton administration and now the next Bush administration, the current Bush administration wants to expand on those failing policies.

Think of that. How much bigger do they want the trade deficit to be? How many more millions of U.S. manufacturing jobs do they want to export? There are not many left. We already know that the deficit is not sustainable. The growth of our merchandise trade deficits over the last 10 years, 1990 to 2001, with our free trade partners, Mexico, 1,861 percent growth; China, 713 percent growth; the WTO membership generally that is from the Uruguay Round, 300 percent; the Caribbean Basin Parity Act, 131 percent; and sub-Saharan Africa, 64 percent. Those are numbers from our own international trade commission. That is an outline of the success of these trade policies. They are a success for multinational corporations or corporations that were formerly U.S. corporations but now do not want to think of themselves or act in that manner anymore, who are exporting our wealth and our jobs.

I have a couple of more quotes. This one is from one of my favorite groups, the International Monetary Fund, and that was said sarcastically. I think they have done more damage to the world economy than virtually any other organization, but they are now saying: "The sustainability of the large U.S. current account deficit hinges on the ability of the United States to continue to attract sizable capital inflows. Up to now these inflows in large part have reflected the perceived attractiveness of the U.S. investment environment but such perceptions are subject to continuous reappraisal."

And with the questions about the bookkeeping and the real profitability of many firms on Wall Street, with the rapid decline of the U.S. dollar, those perceptions are changing very quickly. In fact, the United States of America, not one of the corrupt companies like Enron or the United States of America has been put on the Standard & Poor's watch list for 20 countries that are vulnerable to a credit bust. Why is that? Because Americans are not working hard? No. Because we are a resource poor country? No. Because we have a totally failed trade policy and the current President and the majority in the House of Representatives, the Republican party, quite more of the same medicine to cure that ill. We are talking about the potential to bankrupt the United States of America, to turn us into a yet larger Argentina. They were the miracle of South America, the Mexico of South America. A European country in South America is what they were called for many years and now they are a basket case, because of the dictates of the IMF, because of policies that are similar to the ones that are engaging in here in the United States with trade.

This is not sustainable. These policies must be changed. It will be un conosciable. And the fact that we are not working here tonight, we are just chattering and in fact the House got out of here at 3 o'clock today and are rumored to be out at 2 o'clock tomorrow and maybe 1 o'clock on Thursday and noon on Friday, because the Republicans cannot together do the votes to jam through one more time a bill to rubber stamp this totally discredited and failed trade policy. The President is probably on the horn right now to some reluctant Members saying, "Oh, I know it's going to hurt you at home. I know it's going to put people in your district out of work. I know this is a real problem for you, but I'll do something to make it up." Those are the kind of phone calls that are going on on that side of the aisle. They want their Members to vote against the interests of the people living and working in their districts and in the United States of America in the interest of a few very powerful multinational corporations, the oil industry and others who are essentially dictating trade policies through this administration, and, sadly, as they did through the Clinton administration and the predecessor Presidents for the last 25 years, once we started running huge and growing trade deficits, our trade policy has been run by corporate America and intellectual elite that do not see reality and do not want to regard reality and do not want to look at sustainability.

I am hoping that a majority of my colleagues here in the House of Representatives will see that issue for what it is, the lies for what they are, and vote to adopt a new trade policy for this country, one that will serve us better and turn our deficits and our hemorrhaging of industrial jobs around.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Simmons). Pursuant to clause 12 of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

Accordingly (at 7 o'clock and 11 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.
EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 8 of rule XII, executive communications were taken from the Speaker as referred as follows:

7437. A letter from the Deputy Secretary, Department of Defense, transmitting a report on the confirmed retirement of Vice Admiral John R. Ryan, United States Navy, and his advancement to the grade of vice admiral on the retired list; to the Committee on Armed Services.

7440. A letter from the Deputy Director, Defense Security Cooperation Agency, transmitting notification concerning the Department of Defense’s proposed Letter of Offer and Acceptance (LOA) to Japan for defense articles and services (Transmittal No. 06-26), pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(b); to the Committee on International Relations.

7441. A letter from the Director, International Cooperation, Department of Defense, transmitting a copy of Transmittal No. 19-92 which informs the intent to sign Amendment Number One to the Arrow System Improvement Program (ASIP) between the United States and Israel, pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2767(f); to the Committee on International Relations.

7442. A letter from the Secretary, Department of Transportation, transmitting the annual Management Report for the period October 1, 2001 through March 31, 2002, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. app. (Insp. Gen. Act) section 5(b); to the Committee on Government Reform.

7443. A letter from the Assistant Director, Executive and Political Personnel, Department of Defense, transmitting a report pursuant to the Federal Vacancies Reform Act of 1998; to the Committee on Government Reform.

7444. A letter from the Assistant Director for Executive and Political Personnel, Department of Defense, transmitting a report pursuant to the Federal Vacancies Reform Act of 1998; to the Committee on Government Reform.

7445. A letter from the Assistant Director for Executive and Political Personnel, Department of Defense, transmitting a report pursuant to the Federal Vacancies Reform Act of 1998; to the Committee on Government Reform.

7446. A letter from the Assistant Director for Executive and Political Personnel, Department of Defense, transmitting a report pursuant to the Federal Vacancies Reform Act of 1998; to the Committee on Government Reform.

7447. A letter from the Assistant Director for Executive and Political Personnel, Department of Defense, transmitting a report pursuant to the Federal Vacancies Reform Act of 1998; to the Committee on Government Reform.

7450. A letter from the Deputy Assistant Secretary, Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department’s final rule—National Natural Landmarks Program (RIN: 1024-AD58) received June 14, 2002, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

7451. A letter from the Director, Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, transmitting the Department’s final rule—Endangered and Threatened Wildlife and Plants; Military Lands; and Grizzly Bear (G. r. DELETIONS OF SPONSORS FROM PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were deleted from public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 1479: Mrs. Clayton.
The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable Mark Dayton, a Senator from the State of Minnesota.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:
Almighty God, You give us what we need and not always what we want. You have programmed us for greatness. You will not flatter those who want flattery, but seek to show us that lasting joy is being servant leaders. Lead us out of the quagmire of self-aggrandizement and show us the path of self-sacrifice. Free us of demanding love on our terms and help us to do what love demands. May our quest for recognition be replaced by a quiet recognition that You are pleased. Help us to play our lives to an audience of One: You, dear Lord.

May the demands of public service become a delight and not a duty. Help us not to miss the joy that today holds, but become a delight and not a duty. Help us to live for You, not for the approval of men. May the demands of public service become a delight and not a duty. Help us to play our lives to an audience of One: You, dear Lord.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The Honorable Mark Dayton led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE
The Presiding Officer. The clerk will please read a communication from the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Byrd).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,
To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Mark Dayton, a Senator from the State of Minnesota, to perform the duties of the Chair.

Robert C. Byrd, President pro tempore.

Mr. Dayton thereupon assumed the chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The Acting President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE ACT OF 2002
The Acting President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of S. 2600, which the clerk will report. The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2600) to ensure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism.

Pending:
Brownback amendment No. 3843, to prohibit the patentability of human organisms.
Ensign amendment No. 3844 (to amendment No. 3943), to prohibit the patentability of human organisms.

The Acting President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 9:45 a.m. shall be equally divided between the two managers.

The Senator from Nevada.
Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the vote occur at 9:50 a.m. rather than 9:45 a.m., and that the time be equally divided.

The Acting President pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Connecticut.
Mr. Dodd. Mr. President, I yield 2 minutes to my colleague from Nevada.
Mr. Reid. Mr. President, this is a banking bill. This is a bill that came from the Banking Committee. It deals with a very important issue to the business community of this country. The Chamber of Commerce, for example, is going to score this. Their 3 million members believe this is important, as do the members of the Business Roundtable.

We have the support of organizations that are as diverse as the Taxicab-Limousine & Paratransit Association to the American Banking Association. This legislation is important to the financial well-being of this country. We have construction projects that are being stopped. We have construction projects that can’t start.

I say to my friends, no matter how strongly their beliefs may be relating to cloning and therapeutic stem cell research, whatever we want to term it, it has nothing to do with this legislation. If the amendment becomes part of this legislation, the bill will be gone by the time it hits that backdoor. It has nothing to do with the underlying legislation. Terrorism insurance, which is so badly needed.

I express my appreciation to those who have worked so hard to get to this point. Senator Dodd has made statements on the floor time and time again indicating how important this legislation is. When he speaks, he speaks for the business community. Remember, the business community employs working men and women. This is important to the country. It is some of the most important legislation that has come before the Senate all year. We should invoke cloture, and we should do it when the vote starts at 9:50 today.

Mr. Dodd. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time run equally against both sides.

The Acting President pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Dodd. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, let me thank my colleague from Nevada, the distinguished majority whip, for his assistance on this matter, the terrorism insurance legislation.

In a few minutes we will be voting on cloture on this bill. I can't speak for the leadership, obviously, but I do know that as of last Friday at least, my sense was there was a consensus between the two leaders, based on the comments made on the floor, that even though the distinguished minority leader might under other circumstances be somewhat reluctant to support a cloture motion, I certainly interpreted his remarks to indicate that he understood why the majority leader was filing a cloture motion and asking for such a vote.

Last week we started debating the terrorism insurance bill on Thursday morning. By Friday, we had dealt with two amendments dealing with the substance of the bill. I was dealing with every other issue but terrorism insurance.

Now we have a cloning proposal before us. I have tried all weekend to draw some nexus between cloning and terrorism insurance, and my imagination fails me here. I don't see the linkage at all. My hope is, while there are certainly some strong views on cloning, the issue of terrorism insurance requires the attention of this body, it requires this body to respond to this particular need and vote up or down on the matter. If they want to vote against it, vote against it.

My fear is, if we don't invoke cloture, we will then move to the Department of Defense authorization bill. After all the work that has been put into this effort over the last months, we may see the last of the terrorism insurance proposal.

For those out there who believe this issue deserves to be considered and resolved one way or the other, I strongly urge them to vote to invoke cloture.

I also want to say that an article in this morning's Washington Post, "Firms Warned on Terrorism Insurance," be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, June 18, 2002]

FIRMS WARNED ON TERRORISM INSURANCE
(By Jackie Spinner)

GMAC Commercial Mortgage Corp., one of the nation's largest lenders, is notifying its borrowers that they must have terrorism insurance or risk defaulting on their loans, the latest example of how a shortage of such coverage is hurting commercial real estate financing.

David E. Creamer, chairman and chief executive of GMAC Commercial Holding Corp., the mortgage company's corporate parent, said 85 percent to 90 percent of the loan agreements the company has reviewed this year are not in compliance because the property was not insured against terrorist when they renew their policies, putting the agreements in technical default.

"Almost every policy coming in doesn't have terrorism coverage," Creamer said. He declined to specify how many of GMAC's 40,000 mortgages have been reviewed so far as part of a routine check of their insurance policies.

Creamer said GMAC does not plan to foreclosure on the properties that lack the coverage. But he said the company will work with the borrowers to get terrorism insurance, a course that some borrowers have avoided because of the high price and difficulty of obtaining coverage after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

In March, Simon Property Group Inc. sued GMAC Mortgage Corp., trying to force the lender to obtain terrorism insurance for its portfolio of shopping centers, including the Mall of America near Minneapolis. The suit was settled after Simon purchased two policies with $10 million limits.

According to the Bond Market Association, $7 billion worth of commercial real estate loan activity has been suspended or canceled because of a shortage of coverage.

Creamer said GMAC has turned down requests for more than $1 billion in new loans this year because most of the projects were not insured against terrorism.

"The real problem is not your bread-and-butter properties," Creamer said. "It's your very property in a metropolitan U.S.A."

The difficulty in obtaining insurance has prompted a call for federal action from insurers and the American Insurance Association. The Senate resumed debate yesterday on a bill that would create a one-year federal underwriting program to help pay the insurance costs of a future terrorist attack. Under the terms of the bill, insurance companies would have to pay a portion of claims resulting from a terrorist attack. The amount would vary according to each insurer's market share. The government would then pay 80 percent of the remaining claims if the attack cost less than $10 billion and 90 percent if claims totaled more than $10 billion.

Sen. Majority Leader Thomas A. Daschle (D-S.D.) plans to force a vote today on a procedural issue that would end debate on the bill. If he gets 60 votes, a final vote on the bill could come later in the day or tomorrow.

The House passed a competing measure last year that would require insurers to cover the first $1 billion in losses arising from a terrorist attack. The government would pay 90 percent of additional claims. The insurers would eventually have to repay the money.

"There's a lot of lifting to be done yet," said Julie Rochman, senior vice president for the American Insurance Association, a trade group that supports a federal backup.

In the meantime, a growing number of lenders such as GMAC are trying to assess their risks in lending money to uninsured properties.

"I'd be surprised if there was a lender in this country who did not grapple with this issue," said Darrell Wheeler, a commercial mortgage backed securities analyst at Salomon Smith Barney Inc.

As lenders, "it is their responsibility to make sure their borrowers are in compliance with their loan documents," Wheeler said. "At the same time, if I'm a borrower, I'm facing very expensive insurance premiums. Most borrowers are trying to avoid that additional expense."

Mr. DODD. This article makes the case that GMAC, the commercial mortgage corporation, one of the largest lenders, is notifying borrowers that they must have terrorism insurance or risk defaulting on their loans; again, making the point we made over and over that this issue of terrorism insurance is real.

I have talked about the problems occurring in the commercial mortgage-backed securities. We have had comments from the President, Governors from across this country, and others who have been involved in this issue. There is a list in the newspaper this morning of organizations as wide ranging as real estate and chambers of commerce to labor groups calling on this body to vote this bill out and get to conference so we can resolve the differences with the other body.

There is a list this morning: Vote for S. 2600, Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2000. I will not bother at this point to read the names, but there is a long list of groups and organizations that represent thousands and thousands of workers who, if we do not deal with this bill, run the risk of losing their jobs.

The US Chamber of Commerce has said that "It is vital to pass this important legislation expeditiously," talking about the cloture vote.

From insurance agents and brokers:

Support cloture and oppose Gramm amendment to remove per company retentions.

The Real Estate Roundtable:

We are writing to urge unanimous cloture on and for final passage of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002. These two votes will be scored as key votes for our organization.

The American Insurance Association:

The same message.

The National Association of Realtors. This is a "key" vote for cloture on S. 2600.

Mr. President, we made the case over and over for many months as we have gone back and forth on this bill that each day that goes by, the case grows more serious and demands our attention.

I have had letters from 30 of our colleagues, from 18 Governors across the country, repeated letters and comments from the President of the United States and the Secretary of the Treasury, and others who urge us to step up to the plate and bring up amendments, which we were willing to do last week without cloture. Now we have no other choice because we have received proposals, with all due respect to our colleagues from Kansas and others, to bring up matters that the Senate may or may not grasp. The Senate may or may not grasp. To hurl these matters at this bill as we are trying to wrap up business we think is a huge mistake.

This is probably the last chance. For those who think there is going to be another day in this Congress on terrorism insurance, I fear there will not be. This is it. So in about 10 minutes, my colleagues will have a chance to decide whether we give final consideration to this bill or move on to other matters.

For those who vote against cloture, understand if things do happen, then the finger of culpability clearly gets pointed in the direction of those who denied us an opportunity to vote on this bill. I urge support of the cloture motion, and I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time? The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I intend to vote against cloture. I urge my colleagues to also vote against cloture.

This boils down to two issues, and two real issues. No. 1, the President has said he will not sign a bill that will make victims of terrorism subject to attacks by plaintiff’s attorneys and subject to punitive damages. We think it is vitally important that we have an opportunity to deal with this issue and to have at least one more vote on it.

Secondly, we are in a situation now where this bill has evolved to the point that what we are doing is virtually the payor of first resort, not last resort. When this bill was initially put together in a bipartisan compromise, supported by the administration, we had a terrorist attack at $10 billion of cost. The insurance industry had to bear before the Federal Government came in to pick up the tab.

This was critical for two reasons. No. 1, it provided incentives for insurance companies to syndicate, so no one insurance company insures the Empire State Building. There may be a lead company and then they syndicate to other companies to spread the risk.

No. 2, it was vitally important in terms of the taxpayer. What has happened now, by going to a retention level by individual companies, is that we have reached a point where the taxpayer is put at exposure very early in the process. I think it circumvents what we as taxpayers do.[...]

My biggest concern is, if we adopt this bill in its current form, that we are setting up sort of a hot-house plant that cannot exist and grow and work without permanent Government involvement.

I remind my colleagues, our objective was to have a 2- or 3-year program to bridge this gap to create a situation where the reinsurance market would emerge, where syndication would become the norm in high profile projects so that the Federal Government could get out of this industry and so that the cost of terrorism in terms of risk would be built into the term structure of interest rates.

The problem with this bill—and this bill made sense in December when we had 3 weeks before 80 percent of the insurance premiums in America were going to be due and the existing policies were going to expire, but today much of that insurance has been written, premiums have been collected, and to adopt a bill with retention rates as low as we have in this bill is to create economic windfalls and to destroy the incentive of the industry to do the things that would be done to get the Government out of this business.

I remind my colleagues that I have been among the earliest and strongest supporters of having a bill, but what has happened now is the nature of this bill does not fit the reality of the world in which we live, in the world at the end of June when policies have been sold, premiums have been collected based on no Government backup, and now we are in situations where retention levels that are so low that in some cases the Federal Government is going to begin to pay when losses are in the tens of millions.

When we seriously contemplated this bill, when the administration signed off on a compromise, there was a $10 billion retention. Mr. President, $10 billion was made by the people who collected the premiums before the taxpayer paid. That has now been dramatically changed with retention levels set on a company-by-company basis. I think this encourages companies to take on full projects, I think it moves us in exactly the wrong direction, and I think we have an opportunity to fix this bill.

The retention levels that do not create windfall gains and retention levels that encourage the development of reinsurance and syndication, something that is absolutely essential to get the Federal Government out of this business within 2 or 3 years. I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I wanted to come to the floor for a moment to express the hope that we can get cloture, that both Republican and Democratic Members can vote for cloture this morning and move on. I remind all of my colleagues that there will be at least potentially available to Senators with germane amendments. So there is absolutely no reason to vote against cloture.

I might just say for the record, prior to the time we take this vote, we began negotiations on this matter months and months ago. We have offered virtually every conceivable proposal I can think of to be able to bring this bill to the floor under unanimous consent. We asked unanimous consent on many occasions and were unable to get that consent. We even offered to bring up the House bill with a limit of five relevant amendments on either side, and that was not successful.

I am at a loss for how we will proceed under these circumstances if we are not able to get cloture today. My intention would be to put the bill back on the calendar and move directly to the Defense authorization bill if we fail to get cloture today. Only after we have had the number of Senators required to bring the bill back would I be able to reschedule this legislation. So this is our chance. This is our window. This is our opportunity.

Colleagues on both sides of the aisle have made it very clear it is important we take up the Defense authorization bill. So we are not going to extend the debate on this legislation. We will either get cloture, deal with germane amendments, and move on or we won’t get cloture, and we will move on in any case.

So that is our option this morning, and I am very hopeful we can achieve that. I hope colleagues will understand that we have been too patient, we have been innovative, and we have been imaginative. I can’t think of anything else we can be in an effort to get this job done.

I know there is a great deal of interest in it. But the time has come for us to bring this to closure. If, indeed, Senators want a terrorism insurance bill this work period.

So I urge my colleagues to vote for cloture, and I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I yield myself temporarily under leader time. I know it is time for us to vote, but I will be brief.

First of all, I believe we are close to finishing this bill. I understand there are very few remaining issues we would actually have to dispose of even though there were some 41 amendments filed on this legislation: 14 on the Republican side of the bill, 27 on the Democratic side. I am not sure how many of them are germane or how many would actually have to be offered. I know the manager of the legislation filed 21 of them, and perhaps some of them have been accepted. I don’t know how many of those have been worked through. But clearly there were some problems with this legislation that needed to be addressed.

It is my hope we can complete this important legislation and get it to conference and then get a bill that we can accept and the President can sign.

There is a little bit of revisionist history that has been going on here. You remember last year in December very good work was done by members of the committee on both sides of the aisle, a bill that could probably have whizzed right through here. But over a period of time, the limits on liabilities were taken out, which is a concern of a number of Members on this side, and also the per-company limits were changed, or they were put into place in the legislation at a very low level where Federal funding would actually get to kick in.

Those are two of the major problems that still exist. Those could have been worked out if we had gone to the Senate that was originally offered in committee or over these many months we have been trying to get an agreement on how to proceed.

We have been unable to debate this measure at much length, although I said last week that I understood why Senator DASCHLE filed cloture.
We have other issues we need to go on to, but I think in this case cloture may actually delay it a day. If we get cloture, it could take us sometime into tomorrow. It looks to me as if there is only four, maybe five amendments that actually would have to be debated and considered.

I think we could probably get an agreement on the number of amendments and get a time limit and actually get votes on those amendments, perhaps not. But they are certainly relevant even though I am not sure whether they would be germane postcloture. I know Senator MCCONNELL has two or three, Senator GRAMM has one, Senator BROWNBACK one; there may be two or three on that side. But I believe we could work this out and actually get the legislation completed today.

I continue to hope that would be the result, and if cloture is not invoked, I will try to get a consent that we just take up these three or four amendments and move to conclusion. So, obviously, we would like to get this work done, but it still has some problems and some amendments that really do need to be considered.

With that, I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. I have 2 remaining minutes, I believe; is that right?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator is correct.

Mr. GRAMM. I yield those 2 minutes to Senator MCCONNELL.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, we are very close to completing this bill. By invoking cloture we are going to be shut out of an opportunity to offer a few more amendments, just a handful as the Republican leader has indicated, that need to be considered. On the liability issue, we have a clear letter from the administration indicating that if we don’t deal with that properly, this bill will not become law. I do not think any of us believe, at this already late stage of the session, we ought to be clogging up legislative days with exercises in futility. So there are a couple more amendments on the liability issue that need to be voted upon.

I strongly urge our colleagues to vote against cloture and then let the Republican leader talk about how we can wrap this bill up in short order.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator yield back his time?

Mr. GRAMM. How much more time do we have?

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. One minute.

Mr. GRAMM. Let me address for 1 minute issue about retention. When we started this debate, the Federal Government was going to be the backup insurer. We were going to have substantial retention by the private companies that have sold policies and collected premiums. They were going to pay up front, and in big losses the taxpayer was going to pay. When we got into December and 80 percent of the insurance policies were expiring, there was a movement toward individual and group policies to dramatically reduce the amount companies had to pay before the Government paid.

Now we are at the end of June. Companies have sold insurance policies. They have collected premiums. To comply with this bill will result in retention levels in the tens of millions instead of tens of billions is to create an unintended, and I believe unwise and unfair wealth transfer but, more importantly, it discourages the kind of risk sharing that we need to ultimately get the Government out of this business.

I believe if the bill became law as it is now written, we would end up with the Government permanently in the terrorism insurance business. I think that would be unwise.

I urge my colleagues to vote no.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. I yield 2 minutes of my leader time to the Senator from Connecticut.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, very briefly, this is a 2-year bill. In fact, it is only a 1-year bill with the possibility of an extension of another 12 months. We are going to have a chance to debate the Gramm amendment if we get to cloture. If we don’t have cloture, then, as the leader has indicated, we are going to move on to the Department of Defense authorization bill. So if you want to have a debate about what my colleague from Texas is proposing or my colleague from Kentucky, the only way to do this is to invoke cloture.

We have been at this since last fall trying to resolve these matters. My hope is we can. If we don’t invoke cloture, then it is very difficult to get to these matters. We have the cloning issue and others that have been added to this debate, and it makes it very difficult to deal with the underlying issue.

I have indicated earlier that from the APL-CIO to major groups in the country that are dealing with commercial lending they tell you this is an important piece of legislation. Every day we waste is jobs lost and more economic difficulty. So my hope is we can invoke cloture, debate the Gramm amendment, debate the amendment of my friend from Kentucky and others, and resolve this matter. Either vote for this bill or vote against it, but let’s get it completed.

I yield back my time.

CLOTURE MOTION

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the clerk will report the motion to invoke cloture.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

We, the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on Calendar No. S. 8, 2000, the terrorism security bill:

Harry Reid, Hillary Rodham Clinton, Jean Carnahan, Charles Schumer, Kent Conrad, Tom Daschle, Richard Durbin, Jack Reed, Byron L. Dorgan, Christopher J. Dodd, Debbie Stabenow, Jay Rockefeller, Maria Cantwell, Jeff Bingaman, Daniel K. Akaka, Evan Bayh, Joseph Lieberman.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. By unanimous consent the mandatory quorum call under the rule is waived.

The question is, is it the sense of the Senate that debate on S. 8, 2000, a bill to insure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism shall be brought to a close?

The yeas and nays are required under the rule. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. NELSON of Nebraska). On this vote, the following Senators voted yea:

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 65, nays 31, as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. NELSON of Nebraska). On this vote, the nays are 65, the nays are 31. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn having voted in the affirmative, the motion is agreed to.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that our two colleagues from Michigan be recognized to speak as if in morning business for a period not to exceed 10 minutes on a very important matter to the State of Michigan.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I ask the Senator from Connecticut to modify his request so that this time will count against postcloture time.

Mr. DODD. I so modify the request. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. LEVIN. I thank the Chair. (The remarks of Mr. LEVIN and Ms. STABENOW pertaining to the submission of S. Res. 267 are located in today’s RECORD under “Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions.”)

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I have a markup with the members of the Banking Committee coming up. Given that last vote, it is not my intention to try to offer an amendment. The amendment I wanted to offer, which was a 3-year program, would not be germane postcloture because of the third year.

I want to sum up what I believe to be the chronology of this debate and express my concerns.

Senator MCCONNELL and I will offer amendments if the House bill is brought up in an effort to substitute this bill for it, and potentially on the naming of conference. But I think, in terms of today and this bill, it is clear where the votes are.

Let me remind my colleagues that in the wake of 9-11, there was great skepticism in Congress about the need for terrorism insurance. I think any checking of the RECORD will show that I was one of the early supporters of an effort to have terrorism insurance. I believe now that we need a bridge from our current situation where terrorism insurance is hard to get for high-profile projects, where it is expensive as we go through this process of rational investors determining what the real risks are.

I thought it was important we have a bridge program to give a Federal backup for a fairly short period of time until the market could adjust to this new reality and the threat of terrorism could be built into the structure of insurance. I believe now that in the entire debate over the bill, the role of the Federal Government has been a role of a backup, where the Federal Government paid only in cataclysmic kinds of circumstances.

In the fall of last year, we reached a bipartisan compromise that was worked out among the leaders of the Banking Committee, the committee I chair, and the Chairman of the Finance Committee and by the leadership of the Banking Committee. We agreed in that to ban punitive damages against the victims of terrorism. We had a press conference. It looked as if we had come up with a bipartisan consensus. Then there was objection to the ban on punitive damages against the victims of terrorism, and the bill did not go forward.

Then in December, in a last ditch effort, in which I am proud to say I participated, we offered a bridge program in a bill that would deal with a situation where, we were already halfway through December; 80 percent of the insurance policies in America—at least we were told at the time—were expiring on January 1, and so we would not have time for reinsurance to develop. There would not be time for extensive syndication, a basic procedure whereby an insurance company would insure the Empire State Building but then perhaps would lay off the risk to 20 other companies. In December, we offered a bill that had individual company reten-tion. For the largest companies in the industry, that retention is pretty substantial, over $1 billion. For small companies, that retention is quite small, in the tens of millions of dollars.

There are two problems with the bill before us which is based on the December draft. The first problem is, the situation and the threat of terrorism has changed in December. Those policies did expire, and many were renegotiated at substantially higher premiums. It is now 7 months later. Insurance has been sold. Premiums have been collected. Those premiums are based on substantially higher risk than the Federal backup. Now we are being asked to pass a bill that maintains those retention levels that might have made sense in December, when 80 percent of the policies in the country were expiring and there was no time to reinsurance or syndication.

But in my opinion, to adopt this bill 7 months later when substantial numbers of policies have been sold at substantially higher prices, and those higher prices are permanent—I am not complaining about them because risks are higher—the point is, we are dramatically changing risk by having the Government pay 90 percent of the claim above these retention levels, and I offered a bridge bill which would split the difference, which would have individual company retention the first year, for the first 12 months after the bill is signed into law. Then it would go to a $10 billion industry retention, and then it extended the program 1 more year, it would have a $20 billion retention.

Why is that important? It is important for two reasons. One is equity. These retention levels put the taxpayer at a level of exposure, and the Federal Government, that retention is quite small, in the tens of millions of dollars.

The Senator from Michigan is recog-nized.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

end up being dispersed not just among all the insurance companies in America but literally all the insurance companies in the world.

As that market develops, there is another alternative called syndication whereby there is no insurer at all but then they syndicate by having other companies take a piece of it. They in essence become the reinsurer.

Why is all this important? Why would anybody care about all these things? Why is it that we in the Congress are responsible for this? If we don’t have substantial industry retention, we are dramatically reducing the incentive for the reinsurance market to develop. If we don’t have substantial industry retention, we are creating an incentive for companies to take a larger share of risk because they are not having to bear the risk.

They have their industry retention, which for smaller companies can be in the tens of millions of dollars, and then the Federal Government comes in and pays a portion of the cost.

If we don’t develop reinsurance, if we don’t develop syndication as the norm, then we simply continue a system where the bulk of the risk is borne by the taxpayer. Two years from now, if we default on this bill, we are going to be back here, and the same people who are saying today we have to have this bill are going to say: You have to extend this bill for another 2 years, another 10 years, forever.

The problem with the structure of the bill is that it acts as a disincentive to do things the industry has to do in order to get the Federal Government out of the insurance business.

I am not yelling; I am not complaining about the insurance companies. I am not trying to put them in a position where I am vilifying them. I would say when we came out with our bill last October, there was great joy and celebration in that the insurance industry was going to have to have a $10 billion retention, but the Federal Government was going to pay 90 percent of anything above that.

It was my perception, in talking to people, listening to people, that people thought that could be made to work. Granted, there were people who wanted the Government to bear more of the risk. The point is, there was a perception that this was something that could be made to work.

Now we have a situation where the retention level has been reduced dramatically. If we were running an insurance company, I would want the retention level to be zero. If we were running an insurance company, I would want to sell the insurance, collect the premium, and I would want the Government to pay the claims. So I never expect people to do what is not in their interest. If you do that, you are going to be disappointed.

But what has actually happened here is that we wrote a bill in December for an emergency situation where it was going to go into effect in less than 3 weeks. There was no time for reinsurance pools to develop; 80 percent of the policies in the country were going to expire on January 1. So in order to try to accommodate that short timeframe, we agreed, or at least many were willing to agree—the body never agreed—to retention levels that were dramatically lower.

I know nobody knows what “retention” means. It means the Government pays sooner and more.

That may have made sense in January, but does not make any sense at the end of June when insurance policies have been sold and premiums have been collected based on no Government backup. So the whole reason for the lower retention levels in December has now passed.

What happened was, quite frankly, the industry saw these lower retention levels in December and said: That is what we want; we do not want those higher retention levels we agreed to in October; we want the lower retention levels.

The problem is they only made sense in January. They do not make sense in June. My lament—and that is all it is at this point because it is clear from the last vote that we are going to pass this bill today is to put the taxpayer at a much greater risk than is justified.

It is amazing to me that in October, the very people who thought the retention level at $10 billion was too low now are supporting retention levels that are a small fraction of the $10 billion retention we had agreed to in October. This creates tremendous inequity for the taxpayer. It creates an unintended wealth transfer. I think it is a problem, and I believe it should be fixed.

The second problem is much greater, however, and that is we are reducing, not eliminating, the incentive of the industry to syndicate and to develop reinsurance, and in the process, I believe we are taking a step toward having Government permanently in the insurance industry.

I am not going to convince anyone else—I think I have convinced about 35 Members of that, and I think that is probably the high water mark. I am not going to try to offer an amendment. I am ready to let this bill pass. But I will say that I still believe we are making a mistake. I still believe we need to go back to the October retentions, but at least we need something between the two.

We will have an opportunity, if the House bill is brought up to amend it, with this bill, to vote on punitive damages. The President has said he will not sign a bill unless we deal with punitive damages. We will have an opportunity at some point to address these issues again. But to continue to debate it today, uses up Senate time.

We should get on with the Defense authorization bill. I have a markup in 5 minutes on another issue of equal importance. As a result, I do not intend to try to use up the Senate’s time. The Senate spoke on the cloture motion, and I am ready to pass the bill and address these issues some other day as we proceed in the process that ultimately leads toward a bill.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, the Senator from Texas and I, despite our disagreement at this particular moment, are good friends on the Banking Committee, and there is, as he points out, a very important markup occurring.

So I might get an understanding of where we are, are there amendments that will be offered to this bill, or can we get to third reading?

Mr. GRAMM. I am ready to go to third reading on the bill. I do not think we are going to achieve anything by offering amendments. I cannot offer the amendment I would like to because it brings in the third year, and it would not be germane. At this point to offer an amendment would be to simply delay something rather than to seek a constructive change. The thing to do is to move to third reading and pass the bill. I would be willing to do it on a voice vote. Then we will take it from there.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I will take some time to respond to the comments my colleague from Texas, and he raises not illegitimate concerns.

I say to my colleague from Texas, we have always known we were sailing in uncharted waters. We have never done anything like this. I would be the last one to stand before these colleagues and say with absolute certainty what we proposed is going to work as perfectly as we would like it to work.

My colleague from Texas raises some legitimate questions, questions I really cannot answer because we do not absolutely know what is likely to occur over the next 12 months or 24 months if the bill is extended. I am not at this moment going to challenge it, in fact, even these assumptions.

At some point, I will respond to it in a way that raises some concerns if we do not have retention caps, and it is a complicated matter for most Members to understand what happens in light of smaller companies that cannot necessarily withstand the kind of hits that could come with a major terrorist attack. There is an argument on the other side of retaining what we have in the bill.

I also make the point to my colleague, which I have made repeatedly, we are going to go to conference with the House. They have a different bill. These are matters, clearly, that need to be brought up and thought about. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.
The Presiding Officer was an insurance commissioner in his State. He knows the matter, but even he has to say these are complicated matters in light of what has happened.

I appreciate the spirit in which my friend has made the suggestion we get past this bill and go to conference, but he has my commitment, Mr. President, and my word that I do not consider this to be the final word; that we have work to do before we come to agreement has not changed, and I have made the point that I do not want to see this go on. I do not want the Federal Government to be in the insurance business. I want to make sure we get off this as fast as we can.

I, like him, am concerned that 2 years may be unrealistic, but I also understand the tolerance level of my colleagues. That number was chosen as much for political reasons about how much our institution should be involved to be realistic, as it was over the realities of what the marketplace is like in trying to cost this kind of a product.

Getting to conference is helpful. We will hammer out the matters and hopefully bring back a bill that is even improved from what we have before us today.

With that, I am going to yield to the distinguished majority whip and the leadership. To determine what they want to do. My colleague from New York is here as well and may want to make comments, and then we can figure out whether to have a recorded vote or a voice vote on this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I first ask a question of my friend from Texas without losing my right to the floor, and that is, the Senator from Texas would be willing not in any way object to the appointment of conferees?

Mr. GRAMM. We are not ready, Mr. President, to name conferees. I have to sit down with my colleagues who have been involved in this debate and talk about how we want to go about it. I would be willing to step aside today and let the bill be passed, but in terms of bringing up a House bill or substituting this bill for it or naming conferees, we are going to have to have some meetings.

Part of our problem this morning—and I understand in trying to run the railroad that you have to set a time schedule—we did not get an opportunity this morning—we talked with Republicans—before we had this vote. It is just going to be essential that it has an opportunity to sit down with our people.

My suggestion is we go ahead and pass the bill, and then we will have an opportunity to go to the Defense authorization bill, and then we will have an opportunity to sit down and my colleagues on the other side of the aisle will have an opportunity to sit down and maybe something can be worked out.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, there are some amendments, technical in nature, that the Senator from Connecticut will take a little time to do. I hope during the next few minutes we can work out a unanimous consent agreement to have a vote on this bill sometime this afternoon, perhaps allowing the Senator from Tennessee to do the housekeeping chores he has and to make sure there are no other amendments people wish to offer.

AMENDMENT NO. 3844

Mr. REID. Mr. President, what is the pending business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending business is the Ensign second-degree amendment to the Brownback first-degree amendment.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I make a point of order that the Brownback amendment No. 3843 is not germane.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order is sustained. The amendment falls.

Mr. REID. And with it falls the Ensign amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I yield whatever time my colleague from New York may consume.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. SCHUMER. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I want to thank the Senator from Texas for at least at this point—one never knows—seeing the handwriting on the wall. Sometimes that handwriting seems to become an invisible ink, but at least at this point we have seen.

I wish to make a couple of points. The Senator from Texas sees the bill one way, and I respect that, and that is the balance between private industry and Government. Obviously, he has built a whole career on minimizing the Federal Government role in every walk of life. It is a philosophy he espouses with a great deal of integrity, intelligence, and fervor, and he has been mighty successful at it, a little too successful, in my view.

However, there is another way to look at this bill, and that is in our post-9-11 world. We are so uncertain of what will be happening next: will there be other terrorist incidents? How will they affect us? How many lives will be lost? What should we do to protect ourselves now that we are in a totally brave new world?

The bottom line is a simple one. I say to my colleagues, and that is, our No. 1 one goal should be keeping the economy on track during this brave new world. If that means altering the balance between Government involvement and private involvement, so be it.

I do not buy the theory that the insurance industry make unnecessary or excessive profit; no question about it. Under the present situation, their profits are quite large, and how much of that is due to terrorism insurance and how much of that is due to just the natural business of the insurance business is a matter of debate.

The bottom line for me is this: That under the present situation, billions of dollars of projects are not going forward, particularly in large economic concentrations, particularly in large cities, none suffering more than my own.

The bottom line is this: Further billions of dollars of refinancing is not occurring, all because the uncertainty means that for an insured to offer a policy at all, they err on the side of caution and charge such high rates that there is a huge crimp on economic policy.

If this happened because of some market phenomena, so be it; that is the market. This is happening because of an untold, if you will, geopolitical phenomenon. This new world of terrorism in which we live. Therefore, to look simply from the prism of how much Government involvement there ought to be, without looking at the larger effects on the economy that our problems since 9-11 have caused the insurance industry—and it has ricocheted to the economy as a whole. The fact is that the insurance industry was not clamping for this bill at all. They were sort of happy to let the present situation continue for a while.

It was really the banking industry and, above all, the real estate industry which saw so many new projects go by the wayside that put pressure to make this bill happen. The insurance industry wisely, is going along with this, but they were not the impetus post-January 1 when they learned that they could continue to be viable in terms of their responsibilities to their shareholders but perhaps not be viable in terms of the broader responsibility to keep our economy going and not give the terrorists a victory.

There, therefore, yes, there is the age-old conflict between government and the private sector. But something transcends that. That is the fear, the uncertainty, that we all have. Those are the classic times when Federal Government involvement is more called for. In wartime, naturally, the Federal Government has more say over our economy. No one has ever fought that notion. We are in wartime, whether we have declared war or not. We all know it. Every time we hear a loud explosion, even a car backfiring, people turn around and ask, What is this? We are in wartime.

The bottom line is this: That under the present situation, billions of dollars of projects are not going forward, particularly in large economic concentrations, particularly in large cities, none suffering more than my own.

the Pacific, and the Germans controlled the European continent. All they knew was, for this country to survive in a war setting, the Government would have to be fully involved.

I urge my colleagues to look at this on the spot and ask for a disposition of an ideological notion blur the view of what we have to do. I hope we will move this bill quickly.

I thank my colleague from Texas, again, for understanding this bill should move forward, even if he vehemently disagrees with it. I thank all of my colleagues, including the Senator from Connecticut, who has worked long and hard, along with the chairman of our committee, Senator CORZINE, as well as my 17 Republican colleagues who made it clear they were going to put the prosperity of our economy above any ideological notion or notion of party.

We are finally beginning to see the light at the end of the tunnel. We have a way to go. The Senator from Texas is one of the most skilled parliamentarians around, and I guess he will have a few other tricks up his sleeve. For the moment, I hope the bipartisan coalition we put together which says if we do not increase the Federal role, not only will the insurance industry suffer—it may not; it is doing well—but, more importantly, our economy will stumble. That is something we cannot afford. That is a victory for the terrorists themselves.

I look forward to moving this bill, to come to a conference where we can solve this problem, not just looking at the balance between Government and the insurance industry but, rather, the broader effects on the whole wide economy, and get something on the President's desk to help those who lost their jobs in the construction industry, those in the projects that are not going forward, the uncertainty in the economy. Money is being sucked out because insurance rates are going through the roof. So many in my city and other cities need this bill quickly.

Yes, the Senate has spoken. I hope it will be allowed to speak by helping move legislation law quickly. For our economic viability, we need it.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER (Mr. Nelson of Florida). The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Before my colleague from New York leaves—and we are heading in the same direction to the Banking Committee to deal with accounting reform which is being marked up today—I express my gratitude to him and to Senator CORZINE as well.

Obviously, the Senator from New York speaks about this issue of terrorism insurance with a voice that adds a bit more clarity, if I may say so, than other Members. I am a friend of a neighboring State. We lost people in Connecticut, as were lost in the Pentagon and the airline that went down in Pennsylvania, but particularly for the people of New York and particularly the people of New York City, the events of September 11 have a poignancy that the rest of the country understands.

We deal with this issue of terrorism insurance, and there is a tendency to get lost in the trees, be arguing about whether the Government will be an insurance company and how this will work. Those are not insignificant questions. I know my colleagues believe those are important issues. Sometimes I feel that there is an economic slowdown occurring and people have a heightened sense of anxiety because of the events of September that we did not have before.

We may talk about the failure of the intelligence community and the like, that may or may not be true, but certainly what was true was a failure almost of imagination that something such as this could happen on our own shores. What are we trying to do with this bill? This bill from New York was so critically important in helping to put this together, is to see if we can get back on our feet to offer our constituents a sense of confidence that, despite the events of September 11, we are trying back and trying to do that in so many different areas.

One critical area is the economy because, in addition to what this may cost—God forbid our country is attacked again—in terms of lives lost and hardship suffered, is the cost in terms of the price of premiums on insurance policies. Our Presiding Officer has raised legitimate concerns about that. We know that in the absence of this bill, the prices are apt to go much higher. In fact, I am confident they would.

One of the goals of this bill is to try to dampen down that demand for the increased price of these premiums so our constituents, the owners of these buildings, the people who rent, the people who work in these buildings, the people who rent to open up shops and the like, are going to have less of a cost than they might have otherwise.

We have tried to fashion this in a way that will make it possible to occur without just setting a premium cost that would be outrageous. And so I am grateful to the Senator from New York and others who have made at least getting the bill out of the Senate possible, and I am concerned and his concerns about whether or not we can actually finish this up and get a bill to the President that will allow us to complete this work.

As he has said, and I repeat, this is about a 1-year bill, maybe a 2-year bill. It is conceived of in the minds of some people we argue we need a third year, 36 months, and I would not argue too strenuously against that for all the obvious reasons.

This is a very limited proposal to try to jump-start this critically important element in our economy. The longer we delay, the harder it is to do that. So my hope is the Senator from Texas and others would allow us to go forward, get a conference done, get a bill to the President, and see if we can't make a difference for this bottleneck that has occurred in our economy that makes it possible for the flow of commerce to occur. And if we don't have the President to get back on our feet as a nation.

So, again, I will respond more directly at another time to the concerns raised by the Senator from Texas about the retention rates and the fear I would have that, if we did not have some individual company retention rate caps, what that could do to the ability of smaller companies to actually be in the marketplace. This could end up being just a bill that is good for four or five hopefully companies, and there are many out there that are not big but would like to be in this market, need to be in this market that could not afford to be in this market without having some realistic caps on an individual company-wide basis. There is a strong argument for that approach that should not be lost on our colleagues when that debate occurs.

When that does occur, we will make the case and hopefully finish this bill. Again, I thank my colleague from New York.

Mr. SCHUMER. If my colleague will briefly yield, again, I thank him, as I have before, for his leadership, for his steadfastness. This is not an issue, this is not one where you can go home and make a stem-winder of a speech. It is not a crowd pleaser, but it is necessary. His leadership on this has been top of the line, and I thank him for it and hope we can work together and get a law.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, as I understand it, just to inform the Presiding Officer, there will be a vote on this bill sometime a little later today. I know there are some technical amendments that are being worked on right now to resolve those if we can. And then the leadership will set the time and the circumstances when that vote would occur that my guess is it will be a little later in the day. In the meantime, I know there is some consideration about laying this bill aside temporarily and moving to another matter, possibly the Department of Defense authorization bill, but I leave it for the distinguished majority whip and the majority leader to make the announcements as to how we will proceed. But at this point I would assume that debate on this bill, at least for the next several days, is over and there will be a recorded vote on the underlying Senate bill sometime later this afternoon.

With that, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT OFFICER (Mrs. CARNANAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.
HISPANIC EDUCATION

Mr. REID. Madam President, we speak frequently of America’s security needs and we do it with understanding. It is important to understand, though, that the strength and security of our Nation requires more than bombs and bullets and our brave men and women in uniform. The future of our great country will be determined by our children and our grandchildren, and their futures in turn will be shaped by the education they receive today.

So what is a higher priority for America than educating our children and making sure all children have the tools and opportunity to succeed?

In the future, classrooms and communities all across America will resemble those we already see in the State of Nevada where students from racial and ethnic minorities comprise an increasing percentage of the school population. The Presiding Officer knows about which I speak, being from the State of Florida which is diverse in nationalities, ethnic groups, religions. It is a State of great diversity, as is Nevada.

This is new in Nevada. It has been longstanding in Florida. Nevada’s schools now serve a large and rapidly growing number of Latino students, including many with limited English language proficiency. The Clark County School District, Las Vegas, is the sixth largest school district in America, with about 240,000 students, over 25 percent of whom are Hispanic and we support programs that provide all students the resources they need. Therefore, we must keep in mind the educational needs of Hispanic children. They have special needs in many instances.

My Democratic colleagues and I will host our third annual Hispanic Leadership Summit this week. We have invited 100 Hispanic leaders from across the country to share their ideas and work together on key issues facing the Hispanic community. Certainly education will continue to be a top priority for the Democratic caucus.

Health care, jobs, the economy, immigration, and civil rights will also be among the priorities on our agenda, and we will speak about these subjects with Hispanic leaders who will come to Washington this week.

Though education is viewed as a local issue, decisions are made by local leaders, school boards, principals, teachers and parents, the Federal Government should and does play an important role in helping to educate our youth.

Congress and President Bush agreed last year to work together to improve the quality of education in America’s public schools. We worked in a bipartisan manner to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and passed a strong educational reform program that requires States to set high standards for every student and strengthen Federal incentives to boost low-performing schools and significantly improve educational achievement.

The legislation even had a catchy name: The No Child Left Behind Act. Unfortunately, though, President Bush has not backed up his rhetoric with the resources needed. Just 1 month after signing educational reform into law, the so-called No Child Left Behind Act, he proposed a budget to cut almost $100 million in funding for the No Child Left Behind Act. To highlight the impact of the Federal budget, for every single school that applied, I hosted an Appropriations Committee field hearing in Las Vegas this spring. We heard compelling testimony about programs that have worked and passionate appeals for continued support.

I, for one, will do all I can to restore funding for successful educational programs that President Bush wants to cut. My Democratic colleagues will join with me in this effort.

The Secretary of Education conducted town hall meetings in Las Vegas shortly after our hearing—actually north of Las Vegas—as part of the President’s Commission on Education Excellence for Hispanic Americans.

I am pleased Secretary Paige visited Las Vegas last year about the challenges that teachers and students face. While the entire Nation is struggling with overcrowded classrooms and teacher shortages, these problems are particularly severe in Nevada, the fastest growing State in the country.

At the hearing that I held, one of the witnesses was a young man by the name of Alberto Maldonado. This was a hearing of the Appropriations Committee. Alberto was born in Mexico City and moved to Las Vegas when he was 15 years old. At age 15, he did not speak a word of English, and he was mainstreamed into the schools. He enrolled in the 10th grade at Las Vegas High School.

On the first day of school, Alberto was terrified. He walked into the school not understanding a word of English or certainly much of our culture. He now recalls with gratitude, he testified, the names of his teachers in his English Language Learners Program and how they influenced his life. Ms. Hernandez and Ms. Williams taught him English words and sentence construction. Mr. Luna helped him learn about English culture, and Ms. Monroy helped him learn to write English and to read advanced materials.

Just 1 year after this young man, who could not speak a word of English, enrolled in his new school, he passed the Nevada High School Proficiency Examination in reading, writing, and mathematics. In his senior year, he served as vice president of the Student Organization of Latinos. After graduating from Las Vegas High School, Alberto attended community college and works part time as a mentor for the other students who are more likely than any other students to drop out of high school and, consequently, less likely than others to attend and complete college. I have a hard time understanding how, as our Latino population continues to increase, the President wants to freeze funding for yet another program that is critical to the long-term success of Hispanic Americans. But this is yet another example of saying the right thing without paying for it.

The No Child Left Behind Act provides a blueprint for educational reform. Real reform cannot occur without real resources. Without adequate funding, it is reform in name only. That is not enough. We can do better. We must do better.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that at 4:30 p.m. the bill now before the Senate be read the third time and the Senate vote on final passage, without intervening action or debate, with the 30 minutes prior to the vote equally divided between Senators Dodd and Gramm, or their designees, and paragraph 4 of rule XII being waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Madam President, there are a number of Senators who have expressed a desire to offer amendments. We are anxious to have them come forward. For example, Senator SPECTER can come anytime he wants, except between 12:30 and 2:15, to offer his amendment. We look forward to that. If other Senators wish to do the same, the floor is open for those Senators.

I say to my Republican colleagues, this is the efficient way to do business. We know it was a tightly contested vote to obtain cloture. Senator Gramm did the right thing in saying we will try to do things in conference or at some later time. This will expedite getting to the Defense authorization bill, which is so important for the country, something that the President and Secretary Rumsfeld have said time and again we need to do. We will do that. The bill, the Defense authorization bill, should have adequate time to have a full and complete debate. It is always a bill that is controversial, just because of its nature and the size of it in dollars. It is something we will get to and complete before the July 4 recess.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. EDWARDS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the question call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. EDWARDS. Madam President, are we in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We are not.

Mr. EDWARDS. I ask unanimous consent I be allowed to speak for up to 7 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE ETHICAL RESPONSIBILITY OF LAWYERS AFTER ENRON

Mr. EDWARDS. Madam President, I want to say a few words about the responsibilities of lawyers in corporate America.

In recent weeks we have learned about high-flying corporations that came crashing to the ground after top executives paid fast and loose with the law. And we have heard how ordinary employees and shareholders can lose their life savings when millionaire managers break the rules.

For most of the public, the law has focused on the role of the managers and the accountants in allowing this kind of misconduct to happen, and of course that is critical.

But the truth is that executives and accountants do not work alone. Whenever a corporation is at risk because of its nature and the size of it, there are a number of Senators who have expressed a desire to offer amendments. We are anxious to have them come forward. For example, Senator SPECTER can come anytime he wants, except between 12:30 and 2:15, to offer his amendment. We look forward to that. The American Bar Association Model Rules of Professional Responsibility have not recognized mandatory and unambiguous duties in such reporting, in part because the American Bar Association opposed their efforts.

In the wake of the Enron scandal, the public has focused on the role of accountants in maintaining the integrity of our free market system. In my view, it is time to scrutinize the role of lawyers as well. When corporate managers are engaged in damaging illegal conduct, the lawyers who represent the corporation can sometimes simply by reporting it to the corporate board of directors. Yet lawyers do not always engage in such reporting, in part because the lawyers’ duties are frequently unclear. While the lawyers’ inaction may be good for the inside managers, it can be devastating to the ordinary shareholders who own the corporation.

indicated that, absent congressional action, the SEC would leave this matter to state authorities.

It seems to me that a lawyer with knowledge of managers’ serious, material, and unremediated violations of federal securities law should have an obligation to inform the board of those violations. Particularly in view of the increasing recognition that modifying ABA and state rules, my view is that this obligation should be imposed as a matter of federal law or regulation. Recognition and enforcement of this important but limited obligation could prevent substantial harms to shareholders and the public.

I would appreciate receiving your answers to the following two questions at your earliest convenience:

1. Absent further congressional action, does the SEC plan to act to enforce a minimum standard of professional conduct for lawyers in securities practice along the lines I have suggested?

2. If your answer to the preceding question is no, would you be willing to assist me in carefully crafting legislation to impose this duty on lawyers?

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours Sincerely,

JOHN EDWARDS.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate stands in recess until 2:15.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 12:30 p.m., recessed until 2:15 p.m. and reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. BAYH).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the vote now scheduled for 4:30 be set at 4:45 today, with the remaining provisions of the unanimous consent agreement in effect.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed for 5 minutes.

IN MEMORY OF DR. RICHARD J. WYATT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, it is with great sadness that I rise today to remember a man who played such an important role in mental health. I would like to make a few remarks to honor Dr. Richard J. Wyatt, a friend of mine and my wife, Nancy, we wish to express our heartfelt condolences to Richard’s friends and family. To his wife, Kay, we send our greatest sympathies for the loss of your husband, and we thank you for your words, Dr. Wyatt’s strength of character, and his compassion and work on behalf of the mentally ill will truly be missed.

EXHIBIT No. 1

[From the Washington Post, Feb. 13, 2001]

Words To Live By

Drawing on knowledge born of hard experience, Washington psychiatrist Richard J. Wyatt penned this personal note of advice after a close friend and fellow physician was diagnosed with cancer. A cancer veteran himself, he describes his use of aggressive radiation and chemotherapy to fight Hodgkin’s disease in his thirties. When at age 68 he was diagnosed with Burkitt’s lymphoma, he sought treatment at one of the world’s premier cancer centers, the National Institutes of Health. On Friday, June 7, 2002, the mental health community lost an inspirational researcher and leader in the field of mental health to a long battle with cancer. Throughout his career, Dr. Wyatt received numerous awards and honors from the world’s leading psychiatric organizations. He served as the chief of the Neuropsychiatry Branch at the National Institutes of Mental Health.

For 33 years, Richard played a leading role in understanding the biological basis of mental illness. His work pioneered the view that Schizophrenia is not the result of bad parenting or frailty of character, but it is due to a diagnosable and treatable disorder of the brain. This revolutionary understanding of the basis of brain disease led to new treatments with antipsychotic medicines easing the burden of the disease.

In addition, Richard and his wife, Dr. Kay Jamison, worked to end the stigma attached to schizophrenia. Richard focused on research and the biological effects of Schizophrenia. Kay wrote books about her personal struggles with depression and how to overcome it. Together, they co-produced a series of public television programs that provided information on manic depression. All of their efforts helped to raise public awareness of brain disorders.

Not only did Dr. Wyatt receive praise for his work on mental health, but he was a strong and courageous individual who fought a lifelong battle with cancer. In a letter to a friend diagnosed with cancer, Dr. Wyatt candidly discussed his experiences and shared his insights into overcoming this disease.

Mr. President, I ask for unanimous consent that the February 13, 2001, Washington Post article entitled, “Words to Live By” be printed in the RECORD following my remarks. I believe this article is truly inspiring and exemplifies the qualities of this extraordinary individual.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit No. 1.)

Mr. DOMENICI. From myself and my wife, Nancy, we wish to express our heartfelt condolences to Richard’s friends and family. To his wife, Kay, we send our greatest sympathies for the loss of your husband, and we thank you for your words, Dr. Wyatt’s strength of character, and his compassion and work on behalf of the mentally ill will truly be missed.

Sincerely,

received for Hodgkin’s disease. It burned up a lot of me. Twenty-seven years after my radiation treatments, I still do not have any inconvenient sweat glands. I can wear my shirt tucked in and not worry about any telltale odor. And since both of us are academics, not one of us will ever notice the wrinkles.

Get your finances in order. Make sure everything is done where your wife can find it, and in a form she can understand. I note that the night before Sen. John McCain had surgery for his melanoma, he said that his wife Cindy, was going through their insurance policies. It got a laugh, but she was right. I have all my financial papers in a black leather portfolio that I take with me. I update it pretty often. Visit your accountant to see if you are over the limits you can leave a spouse and kids without it being taxed. Money and fame, and so forth are a must. Do not forget your friends.

Nausea and vomiting. This time the chemother-apy is mild and fairly innocuous. Even a year ago, despite undergoing rather rigorous treatment, I had very little nausea or vomiting—a big difference from 27 years ago. Today there are good medications to prevent nausea. Most of the time I got my IV dose a few minutes before receiving the day’s medications. The pill form also worked well, even when they were dumped into my belly or directly into my cerebral spinal fluid. Burkit’s cells are apparently scoundrels: If there allowed to, they hide in the brain.

I think you will want to start the pill form of anti-nausea medication an hour before treat-ment, and take it about every eight hours for the next 24 hours. Your anti-cancer drugs can make your gastrointestinal tract act like a bypass, and you may get a bitter taste in your mouth. I have tried, I find I am as good at pushing food around a plate as I was when I was a child. Tastes and foods. I developed strong averged. Of these, I like the idea of marijuana the best, but it is illegal and, despite a real effort under a porch when I was 14, I never learned to inhale. No matter what I have tried, I have not been able to smoke food and allow it to pass around a plate as I was when I was a child. Dry mouth. You will have it. Ice chips work well. A great gift was a Chop Stick. I have used it as a mubble and it is the only one I never lost.

Amusement. Get a comfortable chair for homework light for reading and a good TV videotapes. Those should not be in the bedroom (see below). The best gifts I received during this time were books about food and tape player. If you have not al- ready done so, start with Harry Potter. Apparently, flowers attack you when your immunity is at their target receptors within a few minutes.

An aside about spinal taps: If you need to have one, to prevent headaches, remember to lie on your back for two or more hours after each tap. Out of nine spinal taps, I had only one mild headache, but it did last about a week.

Although by previous standards there was essentially no nausea or vomiting, I rec-Comend carrying a purple surgeon’s glove in your pocket at all times, just in case. I am not sure why all the gloves have suddenly be-come a pervasive influence. I had to use the glove only once, but it saved my wife’s car from that indelible stain. Since you have had much less hair loss than I have, therefore perhaps you do not have my Olympic-quality aim, you might want something larger than a surgeon’s glove. Think leaf bag.

Tastes and Foods. I developed strong aversions to many foods and tastes I normally like. One of the most surprising was my sud-den dislike of chocolate. I have since learned that this reaction is quite individualized. I think I almost drove my wife to murder det to see if you are over the limits you can

Cancer talk. This issue is one that may be left over from our parents’ generation. They didn’t talk much about cancer. I have always been willing to talk about mine. This is a secret I did not want to try to keep. And just how do you explain sudden baldness, needle tracks and a great imitation of Casper the Ghost?

Some of my best discussions have been in oncologists’ waiting rooms. There is almost always someone waiting to meet others going through more or less the same thing. At least for me and my wife, the time spent in oncologists’ waiting rooms has helped me to understand the personal and emotional form of group therapy, and I have never met a person there I did not like. It is rather remarkable how being in James made appearances in Las Vegas, and controversial gunman "Doc" Holiday performed a stint as the town's dentist.

Though the town was established by a land grant from the Mexican government to several families, Gen. Stephen Kearny of the U.S. Army arrived on the scene in 1846 by way of the Santa Fe trail and sparked the Mexican American War by declaring the town's residents to be citizens of the United States. Henceforth, the town clung tenaciously to its roots, resulting in a vibrant and authentic Hispanic community unlike any other in the Southwest.

Although the boom begun by the railroad left Las Vegas behind, and stagnation sometimes haunted the town's economy, Las Vegas continued to embrace its home-grown values and place an emphasis on preservation as it sought other means of development. I believe Las Vegas, true to its history and charm, is poised for a 21st century renaissance. It has the ingredients—a ready workforce, access to transportation and metropolitan services, a higher-education base, and the desire to be a part of a community. I have worked through my Rural Payday initiative to help bring new telecommunications-related jobs to Las Vegas, and we are working on other projects to bring more jobs to the area. The social information super-highway, like the railroads of the 1800s, can be the region'snext conduit for growth.

The people of Las Vegas and San Miguel County hold a very special place in my heart. They make New Mexico particularly proud for staying true to their values and heritage. Possibly no other locale so purely embodies the real historic and cultural elements that distinguish our state from any other community in the Southwest. I commend Las Vegas' residents for their active preservation efforts, and congratulate this community on its remarkable place in New Mexico's cultural life.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the Los Angeles Times article from June 16, 2002, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the action was ordered to be printed in the RECORD as follows:

No Sin City, This Vegas Savors Its Rich Heritage

The small community in northern New Mexico treasures its old buildings, unlike its glittery namesake in the Nevada desert.

(By Tom Gorman)

This is the other Las Vegas—not where 40-year-old casinos are implanted because they're no longer fashionable, but where 100-year-old storefronts still have purpose.

The mob missed this place, but not the ruthless bully who ran out of town after pistol-whipping the sheriff, and bank robber Jesse James, who relaxed in its hot mineral baths. Probably neither visited the town dentist, "Doc" Holiday.

Nevada's Las Vegas may have its conventions, but it was here where Theodore Roosevelt and his Roughriders held a reunion, attracting 10,000 admirers, a year after they stormed San Juan Hill in 1898. Hotel guests in Nevada's Vegas include flash-in-the-pan personalities, but the Old Montezuma Castle mineral springs resort here played host to Ulysses S. Grant and Emperor Hirohito of Japan.

Las Vegas, in fact, has so much history, the town's not sure what to do with it all.

More than 900 buildings in this city of 1,750 are listed on New Mexico and U.S. registers of historic buildings. Most are clustered downtown, still used as homes, offices and storefronts, just as they were more than a century ago when this was New Mexico's booms town.

But more buildings were constructed here from 1880 to 1900 than have existed today.

"In other cities, old buildings are torn down in the name of progress and are replaced with big new buildings," Mayor Henry Sanchez said. "But we were too poor to tear our buildings down poverty saved our History."

Now the city treasures its old buildings, and it has created a national heritage program in districts where the demolition of historic structures is banned.

"The city is struggling to find tenants for the new empty buildings of the day, but investors wary of water restrictions in the drought-ridden Southwest are afraid to launch businesses here and because of the cost of renovation.

Civic leaders also say they want to preserve the town's heritage and don't want to become another Santa Fe, 64 miles to the west, which is chided by Las Vegas as having forsaken its roots in favor of becoming a tony arts colony.

"Santa Fe is no longer a practicing Hispanic community," said Bob Mischler, an anthropologist professor at New Mexico High-lands University here. "Santa Fe has been taken over by outsiders who have created a whole new environment. We don't want to do that."

The challenge here, Mischler said, is to preserve and capitalize on Las Vegas' Latino and European heritage.

Las Vegas was settled by Mexican sheep and cattle ranchers in 1835, attracted by the U.S. military soliders who gave the town its Spanish name.

Army Gen. Stephen Kearny, following the Santa Fe Trail, arrived here in 1846 and stated the Mexican claim by proclaiming the town's residents to be American citizens. No shots were fired, and in time town commerce flourished by trading with nearby Ft. Union.

The economy that traders generated along the Santa Fe Trail through Las Vegas fur ther enriched the town's merchants but was nowhere compared to that of the rail road in 1879, fostering 20 years of heated growth.

The town grew as two distinct halves—Latinos around the historic plaza, Eas terners and Europeans around the rail district. Entrepreneurs from both cultures prof ited, and Las Vegas presented a confluence of architectural styles—from adobe and Calif ornia mission to Queen Anne and Italianate—that grace the town to this day.

"Las Vegas has very few landmarks of the frontier boomtown architecture," said Elmo Baca, until recently New Mexico's his toric preservation officer.

For the turn of the century, Las Vegas' fortunes waned as railroads extended their reach to Albuquerque and other West ern towns. Baca, a Las Vegas native, said the town added 9,000 to 10,000 in the 1890s.

"Ever since Kearny came here, we've had a healthy suspicion of outsiders," he said.
“We’ve held on dearly to our cultural heritage, perhaps at the expense of economic development.”

The frontier buildings were neither nor ignored. In the city’s economy stagnated during the last century. Few businesses moved here: a factory made paraphernalia during World War II, and today the biggest industry is tourism.

Not that progress isn’t being made.

The city is renovating the railroad depot, at a cost of $560,000, the Montezuma Castle resort was renovated and is now used as one of 10 Aramark Hammer United World College campuses around the world.

And the citizens committee for historic preservation purchased an 1886 mercantile building for its own use, investing about $500,000 to turn it into a Santa Fe Trail interpretive center.

Slowly, building owners are renovating their structures, although some remain empty. Among them: two century-old storefronts owned by the Maioff family, which settled here in 1892 and became wealthy New Mexico business owners and bankers. Today, one branch of the family owns the Sacramento Kings professional basketball team and a local inn.

Among the town’s boosters is Anne Bradford, who moved here from Carlsbad, Calif., nine years ago and spent $150,000 to turn a 109-year-old home into a bed-and-breakfast inn.

Her guests, she said, enjoyed this Las Vegas for what it is. “People will always recognize this as Las Vegas,” she said. “But it doesn’t always have to be a little bit behind. That’s part of its charm.”

PAYING TRIBUTE TO DR. FRANK C. HIBBEN

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, today I rise to pay tribute to Dr. Frank C. Hibben who passed away this past Tuesday, June 11, in my State.

Dr. Hibben was a world-renowned archeologist, anthropologist, big-game hunter, author, and philanthropist. He also held the title of Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at the University of New Mexico.

As a lifelong hunter and conservationist, Dr. Hibben played a key role in many of New Mexico’s conservation and restoration programs. For 30 years, Dr. Hibben served on the New Mexico Fish and Game commission, including 28 years as chairman. In this capacity, he spearheaded efforts to introduce endangered, and exotic new species to the State of New Mexico in an effort to protect these dwindling game herds from around the world.

As an archeologist and professor, Dr. Hibben wrote numerous articles and books with an emphasis on big-game hunting and the American Southwest. For his work, he was awarded the University of New Mexico’s Zimmerman award, a notable award given by the university to honor an alumnus who has contributed significantly to the university and the world at large.

However, in spite of his many achievements in archeology and conservation, I believe Dr. Hibben will be most remembered for his philanthropy. He was the founding Director of the UNM Maxwell Museum of Anthropology and played a key role in its development. In addition, he has been the lead advocate for the development of the Hibben Archaeological Research Center which is currently in development. Dr. Hibben donated $4 million of his own funds to construct this new center which would showcase the 1.5 million animals that went to Chaco Culture National Historic Park.

New Mexico has lost an invaluable treasure in a man who’s accomplishments cannot be overstated in their importance both to UNM and the State and the world at large. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3862

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 3862.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read the amendment as follows:

The Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SPECTER] proposes an amendment numbered 3862.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To provide for procedures for civil actions, and for other purposes)

On page 29, strike line 1 and all that follows through page 30, line 17, and insert the following:

SEC. 10. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CIVIL ACTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for claims arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and the remedy for such claims, except as provided in subsection (f).

(2) PREEMPTION OF STATE ACTIONS.—All State causes of action of any kind for claims arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that are otherwise available under State law, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action described in subsection (a)(1) shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the State in which the act of terrorism giving rise to the action occurred, except to the extent that—

(1) the law, including choice of law principles, of another State is determined to be applicable to the action by the district court hearing the action; or

(2) otherwise applicable State law (including that determined under paragraph (1), is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the date of the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for claims arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions for claims arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for claims arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for claims arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for claims arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary after consultation by the Secretary with the Attorney General.

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—(1) IN GENERAL.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available for any losses in any action described in subsection (a)(1), including any settlement described in subsection (d), except where—

(A) punitive or exemplary damages are permitted by applicable State law; and

(B) the harm to the plaintiff was caused by a violation of an act or course of conduct which the defendant was convicted under Federal or State criminal law, including a conviction based on a guilty plea or plea of nolo contendere.

Conviction under subparagraph (B) shall estab-lish liability for punitive or exemplary damages resulting from the harm referred to in subparagraph (B) and the assessment of such damages shall be determined in a civil lawsuit.

(2) PROTECTION OF TAXPAYER FUNDS.—Any amounts awarded in, or granted in settle-ments of, an action described in subsection (a)(1) that are attributable to punitive or exemplary damages allowable under paragraph (1) of this subsection shall not count as in-sub-stantive losses for purposes of this Act.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way be construed to limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, govern-ment, or other entity that was a partici-pant in, organizer and abetor of, any act of terrorism.

(g) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions described in subsection (a)(1) arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism that occur during the effective period of the Program, including any applicable extension period.
SEC. 11. CRIMINAL OFFENSE FOR AIDING OR FACILITATING A TERRORIST INCIDENT.

(a) In general.—Chapter 113B of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"§ 2339C. Aiding and facilitating a terrorist incident

"(a) OFFENSE.—Whoever, acting with willful and malicious disregard for the life or safety of others, by such action leads to, aggravares, or is a cause of property damage, personal injury, or death resulting from an act of terrorism as defined in section 3 of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 shall be subject to a fine not more than $10,000,000 or imprisoned not more than 15 years, or both.

"(b) PRIVATE RIGHT OF ACTION.—A per- son may request the Attorney General to initiate a criminal prosecution pursuant to subsection (a). In the event the Attorney General refuses, or fails to initiate such a criminal prosecution within 90 days after receiving a request, upon petition by any person, the appropriate United States District Court shall appoint an Assistant United States Attorney pro tem to prosecute an offense described in subsection (a) if the court finds that the Attorney General abused his or her discretion by refusing, or fails to initiate such a criminal prosecution pursuant to subsection (a).

(b) CHAPTER ANALYSIS.

The chapter analysis for chapter 113B of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"§ 2339C. Aiding and facilitating a terrorist incident."

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, last week I voted against tabling the McConnell amendment which would have conditioned punitive damages for private parties arising out of a terrorist attack to situations where there had been a criminal conviction establishing malicious conduct. Had the McConnell amendment not been tabled, I intended to offer a second-degree amendment which I am now discussing. Since the McConnell amendment was tabled, I am now calling my amendment up as a first-degree amendment.

This amendment establishes a crime for anyone acting with willful and malicious disregard for the life or safety of others, by such action leads to, aggravates, or is a cause of, property damage, personal injury, or death resulting from an act of terrorism.

This amendment further provides for a private right of action as follows: Any person may request the Attorney General to initiate a criminal prosecution of the criminal offense I just described. In the event the Attorney General refuses or fails to initiate such a criminal prosecution within 90 days, upon petition by any person, the ap- propriate U.S. district court shall appoint an Assistant United States Attorney pro tem to prosecute the criminal offense if the court finds that the Attorney General abused his or her discretion by refusing or failing to prosecute.

In considering legislation to provide for Federal Government assumption of some of the losses resulting from ter- rorist attacks in order to provide in- surance coverage, there has been a consensus to curtail punitive damages. Understandably, the bill pre- cludes punitive damages against the Federal Government.

In one sense, there is no more reason to preclude punitive damages against private defendants in this situation than in any other. For example, if a building owner chain-locked emergency exits, why should he or she be exonerated from punitive damages be- cause the victim is killed or injured by terrorist attack instead of by fire? Per- haps this is just another chapter in the continuing effort to reduce civil remed- ies for tortious conduct.

There is another sense that everyone should be held accountable and some form of accountability is needed in dealing with terrorists. In any event, this situation presents an opportunity to deal in a more meaningful way with malicious conduct causing injury or death.

It is my judgment that punitive dam- ages have not been an effective deter- rent for malicious conduct. Punitive damages are consistently reversed or reduced. Cases involving automobiles such as the Ford Pinto and the Chev- rolete Malibu and others in which the driver was killed or injured or the innocent subjecting consumers to the risk of death or grievous bodily injury because it is cheaper to pay civil damages than to fix the deadly defect.

In the case of Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Company, 770 F.3d 1215, started in 1989, the driver died and a passenger suffered permanent disfiguring burns on his face and entire body when the Pinto's gas tank exploded in a rear-end colli- sion. When attorneys got into Ford's face and entire body when the Pinto's gas tank exploded in a rear-end colli- sion. When attorneys got into Ford's face and entire body when the Pinto's gas tank exploded in a rear-end colli- sion. When attorneys got into Ford's face and entire body when the Pinto's gas tank exploded in a rear-end colli- sion. When attorneys got into Ford's face and entire body when the Pinto's gas tank exploded.

Similarly, the Malibu verdict of $4.8 billion in punitive damages was reduced by the California Supreme Court to $2.4 billion on appeal. That case resulted in a verdict of punitive damages of $150 million in a case tried in Reno, NV, and later reduced to $99 million. Years have passed and the matter is still under appeal.

The effective way of dealing with this kind of malicious conduct is to provide a criminal penalty. A criminal penalty was provided in a case involving Fire- stone tires, which were mounted on Ford vehicles which had disclosed nu- merous problems in 1998 and 1999. Some 888 people were killed, hundred- eres were injured, and there was a cal- culation was made that it is cheaper to pay the damages than it is to cor- rect the defect.

the Firestone tires on the Ford cars. It is one of the really great tragedies. I had introduced legislation to make that conduct a crime.

With some modifications that provision was incorporated in Public Law 106-4, enacted December 21, 2000, creating a 15-year sentence for officials where they withhold information on defective products from governmental regulators.

Mr. President, in offering the amendment which I am currently discussing, the effort is being made to substitute an effective remedy which would hold corporate officials liable for the damages which they cause as a result of malfeasance.

The provisions which were offered by Senator MCCONNELL in the amendment which was tabled last week required that a criminal conviction be established before someone would be liable for punitive damages. I believe that it is true the punitive damage possibility is a factor on leveraging settlement, but there have been enormous objections to punitive damages, and they have created quite a lot of public furor, as one can see in the $5 billion punitive damage award I discussed this morning. There is a business being paid with real money; whereas, in fact, when we trace them down, the funds are not paid.

I think we need a comprehensive analysis. There is none to my knowledge as to what has resulted when punitive damages are sought. Where punitive damages are obtained on a verdict, and what happens, how many of them are actually collected. It would be a good deal more difficult to quantify the effect of leverage on settlements, but I think that, too, would be worthy of study.

Most importantly, the justice system ought to be able to reach people who are malicious. Wanton disregard for the safety of another constitutes malice and supports a prosecution for murder in the second degree, which can carry a term up to 20 years. This bill carries a penalty up to 15 years because in the Federal system, that is the equivalent of a life sentence. Following the precedent—presumably the matter, the 15-year penalty was provided.

I know this amendment is subject to being stricken as being non-germane. When the cloture motion was offered this morning, I voted in support of it, and it was agreed to. Sixty-five Senators voted in favor of it; 31 Senators voted against it. Voting in favor of the cloture motion, I was well aware that were it to pass, this amendment would be struck. As precious as much as it is, it is more important to get this bill moving to a conference so that we can have the Government standing behind certain insurance policies so we can move ahead with very important commercial transactions in this country which are now being held up.

It may be that this format will be useful in the conference committee where I believe the House has stricken punitive damages.

This may be an accommodation where punitive damages would still be available, but there would first have to be a criminal conviction. A more important part of the provision would be that those who are malicious and cause death or injury to other people would be held for a very serious criminal sanction.

To summarize, then, litigation on the issue of punitive damage can—and does—stretch over a period of years. Appellate cases show a pattern of at least 4-6 years and longer, as in the case of Exxon Valdez and Cooper Industries. Recent trends have caused one commentator to state as follows: “The Supreme Court’s . . . decision [in Cooper], with its mandate of de novo appellate review of punitive damages jury verdicts in such cases, may consign the federal courts to an endless round of institutional second-guessing.

R.J. Rev. 979, 986 (2001)(emphasis added). Thus, the “endless” nature of punitive damages litigation will—at least according to this commentator (a tobacco litigation plaintiffs’ attorney)—only get worse.

There are several states that through statute or care precedent allow a court to appoint a special prosecutor in the event that the district attorney is unable or unwilling to prosecute a case. The following is a summary of the applicable laws in several states authorizing the replacement of prosecutors.
Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask for permission to recap, if I may, previous statements I made on this subject. The Feinstein-Kennedy approach, which basically would be asking the Senate, if you will—and why I am not supporting that approach—and Congress to consider, for the first time, sanctioning or legalizing human cloning.

I do not think there is enough information for us to make that decision. I do not give you a green light to go forward with human cloning—try to make a distinction between human cloning and therapeutic cloning or reproductive cloning or nuclear transfer.

One of the points I want to make is that human cloning is human cloning and many of us are involved, and for which we are trying to come up with some solutions. This is the very important issue involving the subject of cloning. It involves a number of potential research in cloning. So, I believe this is a subject Congress is going to have to address, and we are attempting to address it. There are many differences of opinion about how to do that. So I come to the floor to speak for a minute on a very important bill that would basically create a moratorium of some type—or long term, short term, or intermediate term—because we believe this is an issue with serious ethical considerations and one that we, as a Congress, and the public, should give very careful consideration to before we would go forward.

That has been the essence of our approach, just trying to slow things down so we could get enough information to say that we should not, at any time, under any circumstance, go forward with human cloning. But the basis of our approach has been a moratorium to give us more time to get some of this important information out to the public.

This is an issue of great concern to the public. Generally, I think people want to be supportive of ethical kinds of research, particularly the development of cures for diseases. Juvenile diabetes comes to mind; also cures for cancer and spinal cord injuries.

We want to be very supportive of ethical approaches to research to provide cures for people who are suffering: children, adults, older people. I think this Senate has gone on record, in a truly bipartisan fashion, supporting the increase in funding for the National Institutes of Health, and it has been a remarkable increase, not only for cancer treatment, for one, have been very strongly supportive of that funding and want it to continue.

But I want to spend a moment talking about some of the problems—ethical and otherwise—associated with the process of human cloning and to suggest that the Feinstein-Kennedy approach, which basically would be asking the Senate, if you will—and why I am not supporting that approach—and Congress to consider, for the first time, sanctioning or legalizing human cloning.

I do not think there is enough information for us to make that decision. I do not give you a green light to go forward with human cloning. Try to make a distinction between human cloning and therapeutic cloning or reproductive cloning or nuclear transfer.

First of all, some of the proponents of human cloning—people who say we should go forward with human cloning—try to make a distinction between human cloning and therapeutic cloning or reproductive cloning or nuclear transfer.
is human cloning. It is just a matter of where you stop the process. The process is exactly the same. Terms have been used to describe it in a variety of different ways. There may be many terms, but there is just one process. There may be many names, but there is one process.

As shown on this chart, it is the one process that we are talking about. There are not two or three or four processes; there is one process. That process involves an unfertilized egg from a cell from an adult stem cell. The nucleus is removed and put into this unfertilized egg, and it becomes basically an embryo.

The Feinstein-Kennedy-Specter approach says that we should basically authorize this for the first time, say it is legal, authorize it, and engage in the creation of a human embryo—not a plant, not an animal, but a human embryo; and then just say at a certain point—whether it is 12 days or 14 days or before Dolly would have been destroyed, basically before it is implanted. That is the Feinstein-Kennedy-Specter approach.

Senator BROWNBACK and I—because of many similar concerns and some different ones—believe the line should be drawn at this point until we can make a better determination about the risks and benefits associated with human cloning; that is, to stop the process before it begins.

One of the reasons we believe this—although the law might try to draw a line here after the embryo has been created—is because it is going to be very difficult, if not impossible, to enforce this line because somewhere, some time, that line is going to be pierced and we will end up having a cloned embryo implanted. Then the question is, What do you do then?

The possibilities of passing any kind of so-called compromise that would legalize and authorize human cloning for the first time in our Nation’s history could get us on to a very slippery slope. That is why some of us are urging to slow it down, have more study, and have a short-term moratorium, which even President Clinton, in his term as President, said—of course, when Dolly, the sheep, was created—that is exactly what we should do until we get more information about the benefits and risks associated with cloning.

So it is not only President Bush who is urging us to slow down, but both Democrat and Republican administrations. And you can understand why. It puts us on a very slippery slope if we—and I hope we do not; and I am going to fight to make sure we do not—start with the premise that we can legalize human cloning, authorize it, potentially even fund it with Government funding; that we at least legalize it so that millions of private dollars flow into the research on human cloning, harvesting millions of these millions of embryos in labs all around the country and supporting their development in labs all around the world—harvesting them and destroying them, harvesting them and destroying them, harvesting them and destroying them.

Then, at some point, because these are not Government-run labs, these are private sector labs, these are people who will be giving everybody the benefit of the doubt, let’s say most people are working on some potential cures for diseases, although they may be far in the distance, but it is not inconceivable, and it is common sense to believe that at some point somebody—a scientist, a patient, a woman, a couple—is going to push the envelope, implant what is a legal clone, and then look at us or go call a press conference and say: Now what? It is a clone that has been created because we have legalized it. It is a clone. We will have legalized it, if we pass a bill that does legalize it. And then the question is, What are you going to do about it?

Once a clone is implanted, what do we do if it is delivered or born healthy? The sheep, the abattoir—you if it is born grossly mutilated, which is probably, based on the Dolly, the sheep, experiment and research, going to happen because 275 embryo trials were used to create Dolly, the sheep. All of them consider that kind of a blow to the creature, the clone being created, and then finally a clone was successfully delivered.

For us to think that this is the time—there has been only one hearing in a Senate on this subject, at least in recent years; perhaps there were some many years ago, but I don’t think so—to move forward with a bill that would authorize human cloning is at best premature and, frankly, in my opinion, at this particular point, wholly unproven technology with tremendous ethical questions and great difficulty in trying to police what would basically be an authorized legal process of creating for the first time in America human embryos.

That is as simple as I can state it. There is not a difference between therapeutic cloning or nuclear transfer. There are many names for it, but it is one process. It is the same process. The issue is, should we start that process and, if so, where should we stop it. Another question is, Could you really stop it once it is started?

The other reason I am suggesting a pause, a moratorium of some nature, may be 2 years, enough time for us to develop a blue ribbon panel of scientists, not with preordained notions but truly a group of scientists who can help us as a nation figure out what would be, if any, benefits of human cloning, we have to realize that right now in the body of the law we are not even engaging in the full range of stem cell research that holds tremendous potential for the discovery of cures for many of these diseases.

We have very limited research on stem cells going on in this country, either adult or embryonic stem cells. Why? Because we have not even come to a consensus on that. Human cloning takes us many steps past that issue. We can work on nonclones. We can work on noncloned embryos and still get a tremendous amount of benefit without the terrible ethical consideration this raises.

The third issue is, if you think about it, even in a macro sense, even those of us who are not trained as doctors or scientists could understand that one issue that might concern, a family, a grieving parent over a fatally ill child or a spouse over another fatally ill spouse would be if the research or the benefits could not be derived from regular embryos or from stem cells on nonclones, and the only way to cure this person’s particular disease would be to get something harvested from a clone. That is the rejection issue.

If everything else has been exhausted, none of the other methods or procedures is working in other areas, then perhaps we would have to get tissue or research or some piece of a cell from a cloned embryo. We are so far from making that determination. I have not read one scientifically, one legitimate group of scientists anywhere, not any prize winners, not any research has been done or even theorized that that would be the only way, the rejection issue, to overcome the objections to cloning.

Those of us who are urging a moratorium are not against research. We are strongly—many of us—supportive of stem cell research. But to rush headlong into a process that we have never been legal to human cloning because there might be a slight benefit, which is totally unproven, to get over a rejection issue by using a human clone is a real stretch, and it is very premature.

What I am hoping is that we can continue this debate for Members to come to the floor and speak about some of these issues at the appropriate time. We don’t want to hold up other important bills. But this is a very important bill for our Nation. It will set a pace, a direction for our research.

I am hoping in the next several days and weeks we can come up with a compromise on this issue that will not authorize the creation of clones but that will allow us some more time to study the benefits of human cloning. If there are any, if it can be proven, and if those benefits outweigh the grave risk, then I think it might be worth considering legalizing human cloning, and then trying to stop the implantation of the clones. I think it puts our society at a great risk, at a great disadvantage, to try to regulate something we have not even gotten to regulate before.

The Feinstein-Kennedy approach is not a ban on human cloning; it is an exception to the ban on human cloning. It would authorize and legalize human cloning for the first time in our Nation’s history. We have to be very careful before we open what could be a Pandora’s box or at least get us on a slippery slope towards a system where we have actually legalized and authorized the development of human clones. If this study comes out and the research suggests the only way to find cures for this disease for this particular individual might be to explore the benefits of exploring the opportunity to clone the disease in order to study whether ethical considerations would be outweighed if a life could be saved or if this is the only way to save a life. But we are not anywhere near that.

I urge my colleagues to take a very close look at what Senator Brownback and Senator Frist and I will suggest as a compromise to get us through these next years, using our good values and our common sense and our ethics, always promoting good research and good science, but not getting ourselves in a direction where we cannot pull back and causing our population to have to deal with the birth of a first human clone.

To then have to ask ourselves, why did they do something more than this and what do we do now that we have the first clone alive and in the world—we have to think about it.

I hope we can come to terms with this issue. That is why I wanted to spend some time speaking about it. It is a very exciting time in science. We are exploring and inventing and discovering things people even 25 or 30 or 40 years ago thought could never possibly be. There are some wonderful things about science and discovery, but there are benefits that sometimes need to be placed. We have now for the first time in human history come to terms with the fact that we can create not a plant clone, not an animal clone, but the potential to create a human clone.

The question before the Congress is, Should we start that process? I am saying as simply as I can, before we start, we had better be sure of what we are going to do, when basically the line we draw is breached, as surely as it will be one day, and maybe we can draw a line to prevent that. We lack a comprehensive framework in place that minimizes the chances of a human clone being born in our lifetime or forever.

I think it is definitely worth debating and worth considering. It is held back the remainder of my time. I see my colleagues from the great State of Connecticut with us.

Before I yield the floor, I ask unanimous consent to have two articles by Charles Krauthammer printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

RESEARCH CLONING? NO. (By Charles Krauthammer)

Proponents of research cloning would love to turn the cloning debate into a Scopes monkey trial, a struggle between religion and science. It is not.

Many do oppose research cloning because of deep, valid beliefs that destroying a human embryo at any stage violates the sanctity of human life. I respect that view, but I do not share it. I have no theology. I do not believe that personhood begins at conception. I support stem cell research. But I oppose research cloning.

It does no good to change the nomenclature. The Harry and Louise ad asks, “Is it cloning?” and answers, “No, it uses an unfertilized egg.” But fusing the (nucleus of) a “somatic” cell (such as skin) with an enucleated egg cell is precisely how you clone. That is how Harry and Louise (who is not taken from the skin but from the udder). And that is how pig, goat, cow, mouse, cat and rabbit clones are created.

The scientists pushing this research go Harry and Louise one better. They want to substitute the beautifully sterile, high-tech sounding term SCNT—“somatic cell nuclear transfer” for cloning. Indeed, the nucleus of a somatic cell is transferred into an egg cell to produce a clone. But to say that is not constructed being “biologically sexless.” It is just penile vaginal intromission.” Describing the technique does not change the nature of the enterprise.

The clinching argument then was this: Look, we are simply trying to bring some good from embryos that would otherwise be discarded in IVF clinics. This is no slippery slope we have to worry about. Indeed, the scientists that some have testified that jeopardizes all the other ethical barriers we have constructed around human cloning. This is not just my view. This was the view just months ago of those who, like me, supported federally funded stem cell research.

Yesterday it was yes to stem cells with solvem assurances that there would be no embryo manufacture. Today we are told: Forget what we said about embryo manufacture; we can solely only pledge to embark on only the tiniest cloned embryo, and never grow it—and use it—beyond that early “blastocty stage.”

Who can one possibly have in these new assurances? This is not a slip down the slippery slope. This is downhill skiing. And the way to stop it is to draw the line right now at this and the manufacture that is cloning—not just because that line is right, but because the very notion of drawing lines is at stake.

A NIGHTMARE OF A BILL (By Charles Krauthammer)

Hadn’t we all agreed—we supporters of stem cell research—that it was morally okay to destroy a tiny human embryo for its possibility curative stem cells because these embryos from fertility clinics were going to be discarded anyway? Hadn’t we also agreed that human embryos should not be treated solely for the purpose of being disembodied and then destroyed for the benefit of others? When Senator Orrin Hatch found his brilliant presentation on the floor of the Senate supporting stem cell research, he included among his conditions a total ban on creating human embryos for cell farms. Why, then, are so many stem cell supporters in Congress lining up behind a supposedly “anti-cloning bill” that would, in fact, legalize the creation of cloned human embryos solely for purposes of research and destruction?

Sound surreal? It is.

There are two bills in Congress regarding cloning. The Weldon bill bans the creation of cloned human embryos for any purpose, whether for growing them into cloned human children or for using them for research or for their parts and then destroying them.

The competing Greenwood “Cloning Prohibition Act of 2001” prohibits only the creation of a cloned child. It protects and indeed codifies the creation of cloned human embryos for industrial and research purposes.

Under Greenwood, points out the distinguished bioethicist Leon Kass, “embryo production is explicitly licensed and treated like drug manufacture.” It becomes an industry complete with industrial secrecy protections. Greenwood, he says correctly, should really be called the “Human Embryo Cloning Registration and Industry Facilitation and Protection Act of 2001.”

Greenwood is a nightmare and an abomination. First of all, once the industry of cloning human embryos has begun, thousands are being created, grown, bought and sold, who is going to prevent them from being implanted in a woman and developed in a cloned child?

Even more perniciously, when that inevitably occurs, what is the federal government going to do: Force that woman to abort the child?

Greenwood sanctions licenses and protects the launching of the most ghoulish and dangerous enterprise in modern scientific history: the creation of a cloned human life for the sole purpose of its exploitation and destruction.

What does one say to stem cell opponents? They laughed about the slippery slope. They said: Once you start using discarded embryos, the next step is creating embryos for their parts. Frist and I and others have argued: No, we can draw a purpose: “creating embryos in order to conduct stem cell research.” for stem cell research, we find stem cell supporters and their biotech industry allies trying to pass a bill that would cross the line—not in some slippery-slope future, but right now.

Apologists for Greenwood will say: Science will march on. Human cloning will be performed. Might as well give in and just regulate it, because a full ban will fail in any event.

Wrong. Very wrong. Why? Simple: You're a brilliant young scientist graduating from medical school, but your dream is to work in biotechnology, where peer recognition, publications, honors, financial rewards, maybe even a Nobel Prize await you. Where are you going to spend your career? Working there on an outlawed procedure? If cloning is outlawed, procedure? If cloning is outlawed, will you devote yourself to research that cannot see the light of day, that will leave you ostracized and working in shadow, that will render you liable to arrest, prosecution and disgrace?

True, some will make that choice. Every generation has its Kevorkian. But they will be very small in number. And like Kevorkian, they will not be very bright.

The movies have hit it wrong. The mad scientist is no genius. Dr. Frankensteins invariably produce lousy science. What is Kevorkian's great contribution to science? A suicide which your average Hitler Youth could have turned out as a summer camp project.

Of course you cannot stop cloning completely. We will still have illegal and you have robbed it of its most important resource: great young minds. If we act now by passing Weldon, we can retard this monstrosity in the direction that seems most likely to return our moral equilibrium—and the recognition that the human embryo, cloned or not, is not to be created for the sole purpose of being poked and prodded, strip-mined for parts and then destroyed.

If Weldon is stopped, the game is up. If Congress cannot pass the Weldon ban on cloning, then stem cell research itself must be doomed. And we have all seen in advance to be a fraud.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair. Madam President, I rise to speak in favor of S. 2600, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002. Before I get to the substance of the measure, I thank and praise my colleague and friend from Connecticut, Senator Dodd, for his extraordinary work in drafting a practical, effective solution to the terror insurance crisis.

As we all know, this has been an arduous and, at times, frustrating process. Senator Dodd has proven to be not only tenacious but almost divinely patient in pursuit of this legislation. I commend him and thank him for the success that I am confident this bill will enjoy when it is voted on a little more than an hour from now.

I wish to speak for a moment about why this is so important, perhaps as a summary as we approach the vote.

Property and casualty insurance is not an optional matter for businesses in our country. Nearly every business I know of buys insurance to protect its equipment, its property, its stock, to guard against liability, and to safeguard its employees, for instance, under State workers' compensation laws. Property and casualty insurance is required by companies to protect their shareholders. Of course, it is required by banks that lend for construction of new buildings or other projects.

In the event property and casualty insurance is not available or is prohibitively expensive, businesses face very painful choices and, in fact, will probably end up being paralyzed. Construction projects will come to a halt, and banks will not lend. If one multiplies this across an economy, the impact will be quite severe and particularly difficult and painful at this time as our economy remains uncertain and flat.

We are here today because the ability of our companies to negotiate insurance will be placed at severe risk if we fail to address the way life and risk have changed since the attacks on America of September 11. Underwriting an insurance policy obviously requires companies to assess the risks and to estimate damages in a way that is much more tangible than most of us will have done, although we know our lives and our history were changed on September 11.

For those in business and in the business of insurance or reinsurance, this comes down to an attempt to evaluate that risk in terms of probabilities and ultimately dollars and cents. In the case of claims for damages caused by terrorist attacks, there is obviously no easy way to do this. There are so many uncertainties, but one thing is certain, and that is that losses from terrorist attacks, as we have already seen, can cost tens of billions of dollars, and under worse case scenarios, possibly hundreds of billions of dollars.

Insurance is a very competitive industry, but Americans, although most have contact with some form of insurance, may not realize that it is insurance companies need and buy their own insurance. In other words, they are dependent on so-called reinsurers that help them spread the risks that they assume when they sell insurance to us and cover their losses.

When reinsurers will not renew their contracts unless they contain terrorism exclusions or limitations, there is no longer a market for reinsurance companies that will not be able to provide terrorism coverage, in most cases not at any cost but in other cases only at a prohibitive cost. That is not just a possibility today; that is a very real possibility.

Across the country, insurers are in danger of losing their contracts with reinsurers because of the reinsurers' unwillingness to accept the risks of possible terrorist attacks. If this happens, the insurers are not able to include terrorism exclusions or limitations, insurers may not be able to offer any policy at any price.

This is not a matter of speculation anymore. Notices have effectively gone out, discussions have occurred, letters have been exchanged between reinsurers and insurers and those who are insured, as we read in the paper today. That uncertainty on the part of the insurance industry has come to the point where it is haunting consumers and will hurt consumers, purchasers of insurance, developers, businesses, and real estate owners. American businesses will not be able to get those policies they need at a reasonable price. They will not be able to get the financial protection they require.

There is nothing we can do in Congress within the limits of our Constitution, as I read it, to require by law that insurance companies write policies that they do not want to write because of what they evaluate to be a market and financial factor, but we can and must avoid creating the conditions that force reinsurers to drop insurers and companies to reinsurers to charge such exorbitant rates that they may as well be dropping them off their rolls.

We have to intervene in this process to create a backup, to create enough insurability in the market and for insurers to continue to insure American businesses and keep them going and growing hopefully at this stage in our economic history.

In recognition of this serious crisis, State regulators and Congress as a whole, considering terrorism exclusions, as they must, consistent with their responsibilities to oversee the solvency of the insurance industry, but State laws will only patch the problems and leave businesses without the insurance they need to continue operating. They will not eliminate the crisis. It is clear, therefore, that we in Congress have to act, and this sensible legislation is clearly the way to do it. This legislation will provide both the opportunity to buy insurance against terrorist claims and to do so in the private market as well. It would establish a temporary Federal backstop for insurance to cover against damages resulting from terrorist attacks, a program that would last for a year and give the Secretary of the Treasury authority to extend the program for another year.

This temporary backstop is intended to provide the insurance industry with the time to assess the risks dramatically changed risk of claims resulting from terrorist attacks.

As the industry determines how to price the risk and determine appropriate premium levels for terrorism insurance, hopefully the need for the Federal emergency backstop we are creating will lessen.

I do point out that what this legislation will accomplish is not unprecedented. In fact, the Federal Government has a history of partnering, if I can put it that way, with the insurance industry to provide coverage for risks that are just too big or unpredictable or uninsurable, literally, for the industry to handle alone. I cite as examples the flood insurance programs, the crop insurance programs, or the nuclear liability insurance programs that the Federal Government is involved in as a supplement or assistance to backstop private insurance industries. Those risks are, in some ways, actually more insurable than terrorism, but in each case the Federal Government stepped in because we understood the very real risk of people having their policies dropped and being left without basic protection.

In the interest of economic security and in some sense of consistency, we now have to offer the American people a similar guarantee after September 11 that insurance coverage will be offered in the case of terrorism.

Again, I congratulate Senator Dodd and all those who have worked with him, as well as members of the Banking Committee, and, not surprisingly, because of the suffering endured in New York in human and economic terms, our colleagues from New York, Senator Schumer and the occupant of the chair, Senator Clinton. I thank them all for their leadership. I thank everyone for the understanding and accommodation that will, I am confident, allow this bill to pass. We need it to become law as soon as possible, and I am hopeful that today’s action will be to exactly that result before it is literally too late.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Ms. Stabenow. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FAIRDRUGPRICES.ORG

Ms. Stabenow. Madam President, I appreciate my colleague from Connecticut speaking about the bill that is before us, and I certainly share his beliefs about the need for terrorism insurance and hope we will be passing this bill shortly. I found, though, that as I was listening to him today, I was thinking about another kind of terror, and insurance we need to be providing, and that is the terror that too many of our citizens, particularly our seniors, experience when they find themselves in a situation with an illness and they cannot afford the medications they need to be well.

I think of the terror a breast cancer patient feels when she is told she needs tamoxifen and cannot afford the $136 a month, which it is in Michigan, to purchase that tamoxifen. I think of the terror a family with a disabled child feels when they cannot get the medicine they need, or the terror of a small business man or woman when they see their health care premiums rise 30 to 40 percent, in a situation with an illness and they cannot afford the medications they need to be well.

I am very concerned when I see the numbers, about what is happening. The bills that are being put forward by the Republicans appear to have very little understanding of the reality of what our citizens could expect if they were to vote on this bill even be argued to hurt the situation. Families USA has come up with an analysis, and I will quote from their analysis, about the percentage of out-of-pocket expenditures that seniors would have at various levels of their drug costs under the House Republican plan. For a senior who needed to spend $1,000 a year, they would find they would still pay 81 percent of that $1,000 under the House plan. If they had a $2,000 bill per year, they would still pay about 65 percent. If they had a $3,000 bill per year, they would pay about 77 percent out of their pocket. If they had a $4,000 bill per year, they would be paying 83 percent of it. I cannot believe all of our colleagues in the House that is going into passing this kind of prescription drug legislation for our seniors. That is not good enough. We can do better.

I am so pleased our leader has made a personal commitment to make sure we bring this bill up in July and we vote on this bill for Medicare prescription drug coverage. I am very pleased our bill would in fact provide real coverage of 60 percent, 70 percent, of the bill, would cover the majority of the prescription drug bill for our seniors.

So I am urging once again that our citizens across the country get engaged in this debate to make sure that what happens in the Congress is the right action. There are a number of consumer groups and senior groups that have come together across the country to form a Web site, fairdrugprices.org. I urge people to go to this Web site, log on, and sign the petition that they will have 20 percent of the costs of prescription drugs. I urge everyone who is listening today to do that.

I am very concerned that as we are debating the priorities of the country— and last week we were debating whether or not to extend a tax cut that we know overwhelmingly to those at the very top in terms of the estate tax and the extension of the tax cut that was put into place for 10 years.

It bothers me when I see that in the year 2012, when this would be extended, the tax cut would cost $229 billion, which is three times more than they want to dedicate in the House for prescription drug help, three times more than what they are willing to provide for our seniors and people who are disabled or families who have disabled family members. But because we have chosen to cut to the very wealthiest Americans who, it is my guess, are not worried about whether or not they can buy their medicine. They are not having to struggle and go into the pharmacy, look at the bill after they give their prescription, and walk away with the pills still sitting on the counter because they were not able to afford to pay for them.

My guess is that is the folks who are being proposed for another tax cut are not deciding whether they are going to cut their pills in half or take them every other day or not at all.

I support efforts on tax relief, and I support our family-owned businesses and farmers not having to pay the estate tax, but I also know there is a way to set priorities that will make sure we are keeping the promise of Medicare that was set up in 1965.

In 1965, one of the great American success stories was passed by this Congress, and that was the promise of health care coverage for our seniors and the disabled. But because we have changed the way we provide health care today, people are not going into the hospital, probably not going in for an operation; instead, they have the ability—all of us do, and a blessed opportunity—to remain at home, to receive prescriptions rather than having an operation. But Medicare does not cover those outpatient prescriptions.

So the great American success story that was passed in 1965 is no longer providing the promise of health care. We are committed to making sure that we modernize Medicare, that we update it to cover the prescription drugs. I worry, as I see all of the effort going on in the other side of the building by our Republican colleagues, all of the effort of not only one committee but two committees, and two bills, and then we look at what they are providing, and recognize that what is being proposed is providing 20 percent of the costs of prescription drugs. That means 80 percent is being paid for out of the pockets of our seniors. I suggest that is not the best priority for our country.

I am very concerned that this is a complicated system they are setting up. There are gaps between $2,000 of out-of-pocket expenses a year and $4,500 or $5,000. We are not sure which number they will end up with—but that gap leaves no help for a senior with a bill from $2,500 to $5,000. That gap between $2,000 and $5,000 is a gap leaving seniors to pay the premium while receiving no help.

There are serious problems. I am told half of Medicare beneficiaries will receive no drug coverage for at least part of the year. Half of the Medicare beneficiaries will receive no help for at least part of the year under the proposal now being considered in the House of Representatives.

I am also concerned that rather than relying on the Part B premium as we have? They provide health care to this point to a private sector/private sector-public sector working together on Medicare, they are discussing having private insurance companies create prescription drug-only policies and relying on public insurance companies to provide this coverage.

We hear the insurance companies do not want to write those policies. If those were profitable policies, they would already be writing the policies. It is not profitable to write prescription-only policies for people who need prescriptions. The idea is to spread the risk between those who are healthy and those who need care. Those who are healthy and would not normally want an insurance policy for prescription drugs probably are using prescription drugs. Insurance industry folks say they are not interested.

What do our Republican colleagues do? They give dollars to the insurance companies to provide this coverage rather than providing it under Medicare. The Republican bill allows Medicare to pay insurance companies more in order to write these policies rather than using the Medicare process that has worked so well.

There are a lot of flaws. They are using a structure that does not work with private insurance companies rather than having the clout of 40 million seniors under Medicare, enabling a lowering of the prices, using a system that is tried and true; they want to bring in a new system. The reality is there is no interest in the private sector to provide this type of insurance.

We see on the other side of the aisle, and the other side of the building, two committees working on legislation that, in fact, will do little to help our seniors, those with disabilities who need care to pay insurance companies more rather than providing it under Medicare.

We see on the other side of the aisle, the Senate Democrats have a plan that can be criticized but is definitely workable. The House Republicans, by contrast, have a plan that would quickly turn into aiasco—but not, of course, until after the next election.

He then goes on to say: Senate Democrats have a plan that is sensible and workable, but House Republicans surely won’t agree to anything resembling that plan. Senate Democrats might be bullied into setting the House Republican plan, but since that plan is completely unworkable, that’s the same as getting no drug plan at all—which, I suspect, is what the Republican leaders really want in any case.

We are not going to be bullied into a plan that does not do the job. There is no doubt in my mind. We have a commitment. Our seniors have heard for the last ten or more years that Medicare will cover prescription drugs. I know a lot of seniors are saying nothing will ever change. Yet the prices keep going up, the need for care keeps going up, and the choices the seniors have are getting bigger and bigger.

We can do better than that. We in the Senate are committed to doing better than that. I urge everyone listening today to engage in this fight with us. There are six drug company lobbyists for every one Member of the Senate. We need the people’s voice. We are willing and able and determined to bring a comprehensive Medicare prescription drug bill to the floor of the Senate in July. We urge everyone to get involved in this debate.

There are substantive differences in plans and how they will affect seniors and families. We need to get through some of these issues in the House and the Senate. There are a lot of opponents on the right of the aisle. We are saying to both candidates to vote no. But I want to try to explain the problem I have and explain a little bit of the history of this bill so people know where we are coming from.

I think we have about 14 minutes each. Is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas has approximately 10 minutes 30 seconds.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, when there is no insurance was first proposed, the whole logic was that we were going to have the Federal Government step in to help provide insurance coverage and pay claims when there was a cataclysmic event.

When we first started debating this issue in the House of Representatives, insurance companies had to pay back money that was paid by the Federal Government over $1 billion. When we debated it in the Senate, we concluded that if it had to be paid back, you were not providing the assistance we sought, but we were sure when we initially debated this subject we had a very substantial amount of money that the companies had to pay before the Federal Government got in the business of having to pay. The companies have to pay before the Federal Government starts paying is called ‘‘retention.’’

When we first started to debate this issue, and when we reached an initial bipartisan agreement, I believe it was that companies were required to pay $10 billion before the Federal Government came in to pay claims. Above that $10 billion, the Federal Government was to pay 90 percent of the next $30 billion. The logic of the retention—the amount that the insurance companies had to pay—was basically, No. 1, that the insurance companies are selling this insurance and collecting premiums. The fact that they would cover the initial cost was immi-

No. 2, we wanted to protect the taxpayer unless there was a cataclysmic event.

Thirdly, the whole objective of our bill was to try to encourage the development of reinsurance and to encourage syndication so that no one insurance company would write an insurance policy on the Empire State Building. There might be a lead insurance company that would write the policy. But then they would syndicate and sell off part of the insurance to other companies, or they would simply go into a reinsurance market and sell all or part of the policy—the idea being to distribute the risk not just throughout the United States but throughout the world.

When we reached an agreement in October, the companies had to pay $10 billion before the taxpayer got involved. Many Members of the Senate thought that was too low. We reached an agreement. We announced it, and the White House signed off on it.

We also protected victims of terrorism from punitive damages and potential losses.

In December, we still had not passed a bill. We were 3 weeks away from 80 percent of the insurance policies in America expiring. There was a belief that if we did pass a bill right at the end of the session there would not be enough time for syndication and reinsurance to develop. So the bill that was written at that time had an individual company retention but not a $10 billion retention.

This is still very much confused by the media in writing on this subject. The net result is that the biggest insurance company in America—AIG—has a retention of about $1.6 billion. The smallest insurance companies in the country might have a retention that would be in the tens of millions. That means that is what they have to pay before the taxpayer pays.

That has several problems. No. 1, companies have already collected premiums. Premiums have gone up. They had to go up because risks have gone up. But premiums have gone up, and insurance companies have collected these premiums. When they wrote the insurance policy, they had no taxpayer backup whatsoever. Now we are coming along, and instead of having $10 billion that the industry has to pay before the taxpayer pays, in some cases some insurance companies will have to pay only millions of dollars before the taxpayer steps in and pays.

It doesn’t take a great knowledge of economics or arithmetic to figure out that when people wrote policies and collected premiums based on having to pay the whole cost if a claim was paid, and the Government is going to come in and pay 90 percent of the claim above only a few million dollars in the case of some insurance companies, that you are going to create a very substantial shifting of wealth from the taxpayers to the people who have written the policies, if there is a major claim. And, at a minimum, you are shifting a substantial amount of risk from the insurance company to the Federal Government.

I am one of a handful of Members of the Senate who thought we ought to do a bill. In fact, at one point, I was one of the few people willing to stand up and say so.

I have always believed if we were going to do a bill we had to have a substantial industry retention so the people collecting the premiums paid first, and also so that we had an incentive for industry to syndicate to spread the risk, and an incentive to develop reinsurance.

I am very concerned that the bill, as it is now written, represents an unwarranted shift of risk from the insurance companies to the taxpayer. If there is, God forbid, another attack, it will mean the shifting of billions of dollars from the taxpayer to the insurance companies.

But the biggest concern I have is not about taxpayer risk or about the unintended shift of billions of dollars to private insurance to the taxpayer. The biggest concern I have is that by reducing the amount that the companies have to pay before the Government pays, that we are going to reduce the incentive that companies will have to spread the risk to syndicate, to develop reinsurance, and that 2 years from now, when the bill expires, none of these secondary markets will have developed, the Government will have become the primary risk taker, and we will end up extending this indefinitely.

In World War II we had a Government program, but we knew World War II was going to end with the signing of a peace treaty. This war is going to end with the death of some terrorist, and we are not going to know he was the last terrorist in the world.

So I am very concerned that unless we raise this retention level, unless we make companies that have collected the premiums pay a substantial amount of money before the taxpayer pays, that we are never going to get the Government out of this area of insurance.

Our whole focus from the beginning—in fact, I have never heard a Democrat or Republican suggest otherwise—has been that this was a bridge to help us get through this period of great uncertainty so that ultimately these risks could be built into insurance rates. That has several problems. We are making a mistake by not requiring the people who collected these premiums to pay a substantial amount of money first. I think we are planting the seeds to get Government permanently in the insurance business.

Something happened, and it is perfectly reasonable that it would happen. When we were talking about the industry having to pay $10 billion before the taxpayer paid, the industry was delighted that they were going to have the backup of the taxpayer. But in December it was suggested that the industry could pay tens of millions of dollars before the taxpayer paid. And even though all those insurance policies expired on January 1, many of them were rewritten at substantially higher premiums. I am not complaining. Premiums have to go up because risks have gone up. But now to suggest that we should not make the industry pay up to $10 billion before the taxpayer pays, I think, is basically going back on the deal in which we engaged.

I do not doubt that if I were in the insurance business I would probably want to collect the whole claim, and I would want to collect the policy, I would want to collect the premiums. But I think we have a gross overreach here that puts the taxpayer at risk at an unjustifiable level.

Finally, and most importantly, I am concerned that the incentives we are creating here will induce companies not to syndicate, not to spread risk as much as they would; and, as a result, the Government will pay sooner. I am worried that the secondary markets will not develop and the Government will not be able to get out of the insurance business. And I am very much concerned that 2 years from now we will be right back here, and the argument will be made that there is no syndication, that there is no secondary market, and, therefore, the Government has to stay in the terrorism insurance business.

I can fix that by changing this bill. We have not done that. That is why I am opposed to it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, if I may, I want to engage, before some final comments, in a couple of housekeeping matters.

Amendment No. 3862

First, Mr. President, what is the pending business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending business before the Senate is amendment No. 3862.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I make a point of order that the Specter amendment is not germane post clausure. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order is well taken and the amendment falls.

Amendments Nos. 3872, 3874 through 3879, 3881, 3883, 3884, 3885 through 3887, 3889, and 3890

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent it be in order for the Senate to consider en bloc the following amendments; that the amendments be considered and agreed to en bloc, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc, without further intervening action or debate: amendments Nos. 3872, 3874 through 3879, 3881, 3883, 3884, 3885 through 3887, 3889, and 3890.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GRAMM. Will the Senator yield? Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Did the Senator include 3887?

Mr. DODD. I did.

Mr. GRAMM. I would just like to say that we do not have any objection. These are amendments that were agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments (Nos. 3872, 3874 through 3879, 3881, 3883, 3884, 3885 through 3887, 3889, and 3890) were agreed to, as follows:

Amendment No. 3872

On page 5, line 3, insert “or vessel” after “air carrier”.

Amendment No. 3874

On page 9, line 19, strike “the period” and all that follows through line 22 and insert the following: “the 1-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act; and”.

Amendment No. 3875

On page 10, beginning on line 2, strike “the period” and all that follows through “2003” on line 3, and insert “the 1-year period beginning on the day after the date of expiration of the period described in subparagraph (A)”.

Amendment No. 3876

On page 10, line 17, insert before the semicolon “, including workers’ compensation insurance”.

June 18, 2002
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—SENATE
S5665
This is an important moment. This particular proposal or ideas like it have been sought by a very diverse group of people in the country. Organized labor to real estate, insurance companies, small businesses and large—the list is very long of real estate consumers who have demanded that we act in this area.

And why? Very simply, there is a major problem continuing to grow out there that we have seen every day. There was a headline even today in the local newspaper here in Washington talking about a major problem with the number of mortgage holders, the GMAC Corporation.

We begin the one day from the commercial mortgage-backed security industry, and the some $7 billion in decline they have experienced in the first quarter. We have a real bottleneck occurring in major construction projects, real estate, and development projects across the country in cities large and small.

Yesterday, in my home State of Connecticut, Simon Konover, a wonderful developer in my State, has a small hotel that needs a large amount of insurance. He is one of the people who has been consistently interested in trying to get something done here over these many months. It has taken us a long time. This is an arcane subject matter. We are literally doing something we have never done before. I know of.

Back in World War II, for acts of war, the Federal Government acted as an insurance company. But, obviously, we are not duplicating that here. We are trying to provide a temporary backstop, if you will, to allow this market to redevelop as it has been.

Mr. President, if I may, I would like to begin by thanking my good friend from Texas. Mr. President, let me point out, one of these amendments is an amendment that was raised by our colleague from Florida, Senator BILL NELSON. I thank him for his work on that amendment. I appreciated his consultation with the Senator from Texas to agree to that change we made in the legislation. Mr. President, if I may, I would like to speak on this bill in the few remaining minutes we have before the vote. This bill has been months in the process.

I would like to begin by thanking my colleague from Texas. We began together on this legislation a long time ago, a few weeks after the tragic events of September 11. In fact, I recall, very vividly, my friend from Texas leaning over to me and saying we ought to do something in the area of terrorism insurance, not that called it that at the time, but it was the same idea of essentially calling for the legislation before the Senate today.

So despite whatever differences we may have at this particular moment, I would like to acknowledge his active involvement with this issue. He is one of the few people who was consistently interested in trying to get something done here over these many months. It has taken us a long time. This is an arcane subject matter. We are literally doing something we have never done before. I know of.

Mr. DODD. I thank my colleague from Texas. On page 21, line 15 through page 22, line 14 and insert the following:

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Program shall terminate 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, unless the Secretary of the Treasury under paragraph (1) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, beginning on the day after the date of expiration of the initial 1-year period of the Program; and

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

On page 23, line 21, strike the period and insert the following:

"(D) in the case of any policy that is issued for insured losses under the Program shall be reduced by the amount of compensation provided by the Federal Government for those insured losses under any other Federal insurance or reinsurance program.

And so I thank my colleague from Texas. Our colleagues believe that 2 years is appropriate for this particular program. So remember, this is really the only line item, free up that bottleneck, to get the process moving again.

We will know shortly whether or not what we have done is going to provoke that response. We believe it will. This is a 12-month bill with a possible 12-month extension. It is going to take a Herculean effort to get more than that. Our colleagues believe that 2 years is about what they are willing to try at this particular program. So remember, we are talking about 12 months with a possible extension of 12 more in order to get this moving.

This legislation is critically important for American workers. We hope it... will dampen the tremendous increase that could occur, in the absence of this bill being done, in premium costs. And it is going to make available a product that we think is going to be critically important so that people such as Simon Konover in my State will be able to obtain and finance against terrorist acts. It is going to mean that smaller insurance companies can be involved in this, not just large insurers.

One of the reasons we put retention caps on - individual companies is because without doing that you force insolvency upon smaller insurance companies. Consumers would have very limited choices where that product was unavailable, God forbid we do have an event. The idea that insurers are going to go out and gouge their customer base for 1 year with the hopes then of retaining that customer base after this bill expires is unrealistic, in my view.

I have told my colleague from Texas that, as we go into conference, if we can go to conference, I am willing to try to work out something that will at least deal with some of the issues he has raised with the potential problems he sees in the retention area.

On tort reform, the House has significantly how some have tort reform in this bill. All of us understand we are going to probably come back with some additional limited tort reform. That is the way things work out when you have a conference between the House and the Senate. I am confident that will be the case as well. I hope our colleagues will support this effort.

As I said, it has been 7 months. We are hearing from various groups all across the country that believe this is an important issue to address. We know we are trying to deal with homeland security to protect our personal security from terrorist attack. We also need to be talking about economic security and restoring the confidence that will be the case as well. I hope our colleagues will support this effort.

Mr. DODD. I would be happy to.

Mrs. BOXER. I thank the Senator. This bill would preempt state law with regard to the prior approval or a waiting period on terrorism risk insurance. Specifically, section 7 states, “rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable.”

This language would preempt the law of the State of California and 21 other States where prior approval mechanisms for increases in insurance rates have been put into place to keep insurance companies from gouging consumers.

The bill before us does allow States to invalidate excessive rates after the fact. But it will do nothing for consumers who have already paid too much. Prior approval mechanisms are the only way to protect consumers before sky-high rates go into effect.

I understand that my colleagues who support this legislation want terrorism insurance made available as quickly as possible. And that is the reason for his preemption—to speed up the process. I agree.

So to meet both the need for quick insurance availability and the desire to allow states to review rates for at least some period before they go into effect, I had proposed an amendment to replace the blanket State preemption language in the bill with more narrow language. My amendment would have said that terrorism risk insurance would not be subject to a waiting period greater than 60 days under any State law.

This would allow California and other States to retain oversight for prior approval over egregious increases in terrorism insurance rates while also making sure that the insurance is made available quickly.

Given the number of Americans involved, the taxpayer exposure to risk, and the leverage that insurers will have over consumers, I believe we must have State to protect consumers. I hope my colleague from Connecticut will be willing to work with me on this.

Mr. DODD. One of the guiding principles of this bill is that, to the extent possible, State insurance law should not be overridden. To that end, the bill respects the role of the State insurance commissioners as the appropriate regulators of policy terms and rates.

Due to the urgency of the problems that currently exist in the marketplace for terrorism coverage, however, the bill requires that once the Federal program is in place, the States must allow rates for terrorism coverage to take effect immediately, without being subject to a preapproval requirement or a waiting period. The States would, of course, retain full authority to disapprove any rates that violate State laws, which are inadequate, unfairly discriminatory, or excessive.

I understand that my colleagues from California, Senator BOXER, has some concerns about this provision and its effects. I appreciate her interest in this issue, and I want to assure my colleague that I will work with her as this bill moves to conference to try to address her concerns, and to ensure that this provision is as narrowly crafted as possible.

Clarification of Legislative Language

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I would like to correct the Record on a point that I made during a brief floor discussion between myself and Senator SPECTER.

At the time, I was under the impression, given a previous understanding with the leadership, that my legislative language on the issue of human cloning had been provided to the majority leader. Included in my legislative language is a section that pertains to the patenting of human embryos.

I am now informed that apparently that legislative language was never exchanged.

I apologize for any confusion that this misunderstanding may have caused.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I would like to take this time to express my support for the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act.

Exposure to terrorism is not only a threat to our national security, but is also a threat to the United States and global economies. The full extent of insured losses from September 11 has been estimated at $50 billion.

There is no doubt that these terrorist attacks have resulted in the most catastrophic loss in the history of property and casualty insurance. Even though the insurance industry committed to pay losses resulting from the attacks, they have indicated a reluctance to continue offering terrorism insurance because the risk of future losses is unknown.

Many top staff have heard from my constituents in California, who have already suffered from this constriction of the terrorism insurance industry.

Some are insurance providers, who have written to say that they are afraid that their companies will not survive if they are forced to endure another terrorist event without a Federal backstop for terrorism reinsurance.

Some are businesses whose premiums have risen so drastically in the past 6 months that they too, risk insolvency.

San Francisco’s own Golden Gate Bridge, Highway, and Transportation
Mr. REID. If the Senator will yield to me for a moment, I would ask unanimous consent that the time be extended for 3 minutes on the amendment because it may yet surface in the conference. Senator McCONNEL had offered an amendment which would have eliminated punitive damages unless there was a criminal conviction. I supplemented that amendment by putting in the event the prosecuting attorney did not act, that a private citizen could petition the court on the failure or refusal of the Attorney General to act so that would activate a criminal prosecution and provide a basis for punitive damages but, more importantly, to move to an area where there is real responsibility for somebody who acts maliciously, resulting in the death of another person.

Punitive damages doesn't reach real responsibility, punitive damages, as I amplified earlier today, are seldom granted but, where they are, come out of the pockets of the shareholders. To hold someone liable to go to jail where they are malicious, resulting in someone's death, that is a sanction which provides something. That would provide the basis then for a later punitive damage claim.

This may be the basis for action in conference. I wanted to take a brief period of time to explain that provision. I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, before I yield to my colleague from New York, I wish to thank several staff people as well—we don't do that enough here—Alex Sternhell and Jessica Byrnes from my own staff. Sarah Kline, Aaron Klein, Steve Kroll, Wayne Abernathy, Stacie Thomas, Ed Pagano, Jim Ryan, Jonathan Adelstein, Jim Williams, Kate Scheeler, Roger Hollingsworth. I would also like to thank Laura Ayoud with Senate Legislative Counsel for her contribution to this process. We thank all of them for their efforts, the leadership staff as well for their support.

Is Senator CORZINE going to seek any time at all? We have 4 minutes remaining on this side; is that correct?

Mr. SCHUMER. Let me, once again, thank the Senator from Connecticut for his leadership and steadfastness, his sensibility. I also thank my colleague from Texas who has been, even though he didn't get his way on everything, a very constructive force in moving this legislation work, which I spent a lot of time working on in the early days, has stayed in the bill. I am particularly grateful that the city I represent, New York, and its metropolitan area, will have this bill because terrorism has had a crimp in the economic development of the city in terms of higher costs, lost new projects, and delays in existing projects.

This legislation is probably as vital to New York as just about anything we will consider this year. If I fail to make the point, that is the generosity that this body and the other have shown to New York in terms of the funding we have received.

Most importantly, this has been a test, a test of whether we can meet the post 9-11 challenge. It will be like many tests in the future. First, government is going to have to play a larger role.

The ideology that anything the government does is bad and we must shrink it at all cost is over in many areas. The private sector could not solve this problem alone, plain and simple. That is why we came to bipartisan agreement that the Federal Government's role should be increased. We can quibble about how much and who paid, but it was needed. That will be repeated in years to come.

Second, this is a problem where the legislature stepped to the plate. The bottom line is this: There was not clamoring from the average citizen for this proposal. Yes, real estate developers, some bankers, some insurance companies, but not much else. Given the division we had here, it would have been easy to forget it.

But we did step to the plate. We are passing what I consider to be not the ideal bill—my ideal bill would have had the Federal Government write all terrorist insurance, something I worked on with Treasury Secretary O'Neill. But we did step to the plate. We are passing what I consider to be not the ideal bill—my ideal bill would have had the Federal Government write all terrorist insurance, something I worked on with Treasury Secretary O'Neill, should, God forbid, the next attack occur—because it is a good product, it is a reasonable product, and it does the job in the short term.

Over and over, we are going to be asked as a government to step forward and solve a problem before it gets out of control without the public impurifying us to do it. That will occur on an issue such as nuclear security. That will occur on an issue such as making our health supply system better. It is the kind of challenge we face in the post 9-11 world: Real, but anticipateable, dealing with a problem which could get worse and spiral out of control if we do not act, and we have to show the leadership because it will not be our constituents pushing us.

As you know, the Senator from Connecticut, the Senator from Texas, the Senator from New Jersey, and all my colleagues who worked so hard on this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I second the salutes of the Senator from Connecticut. This is a tremendous step... forward in protecting our economy, not protecting insurance companies. This is about jobs. It is about making sure we have economic growth going forward. It is a bridge. It is not a long-term creation of an insurance function by the Government, but it is a response that the Government needs to build a bridge to a better marketplace and a more secure economy. This will make a difference to all of America’s economic growth, not just regionally.

I am really quite pleased we are going to have a chance to vote in a minute to do something that will move our economy forward in the post-September 11 period.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the majority leader will be here shortly. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to Calendar No. 232, H.R. 3210, the House-passed terrorism insurance bill; that all after the enacting clause be stricken; that the text of S. 2600, as amended, if amended, be inserted in lieu thereof; that the bill be read a third time and the Senate vote on passage of the bill; that upon passage, the Senate insist on its amendment, request a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, and the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate, without further intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GRAMM. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. We might come to a point where we are ready to do this. We are not ready to do it now, and I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. REID. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient sec-

The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the bill pass? The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. REID. I announced that the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KERRY) is necessarily absent.

Mr. NICKLES. I announced that the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MILLER). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 84, nays 14, as follows:

The bill (S. 2600), as amended, was passed as follows:

S. 2600

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002”.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PUR-POSE.
(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—
(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;
(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interdependent world;
(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States is a major factor in the recovery from terrorist attacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;
(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make valid estimates of the probability and cost of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by acts of terrorism;
(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and
(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial compensation to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems, mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable private sector market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism, in order to—
(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and
(2) allow for a transitional period for the private market to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.
In this Act, the following definitions shall apply:

(1) ACT OF TERRORISM.—(A) CERTIFICATION.—The term “act of terrorism” means any act that is certified by the Secretary, in concurrence with the Secretary of State, and the Attorney General of the United States—
(i) to be a violent act or an act that is dan-gnerous to—
(1) a human life; or
(2) property; or

(A) to begin at 12:01 a.m. on that date; and

(B) to end at midnight on that date.

SEC. 4. TERRORISM INSURED LOSS SHARED COMPENSATION PROGRAM.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM.—There is established in the Department of the Treasury the Terrorism Insured Loss Shared Compensation Program.

(b) AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of State or Federal law, the Secretary shall administer the Program, and shall pay the Federal share of compensation for insured losses in accordance with the Program, without regard to any Federal law, the Secretary shall administer the Program, and shall pay the Federal share of compensation for insured losses in accordance with the Program.

(c) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection (e), unless—

(A) a person that suffers an insured loss, or a person acting on behalf of that person, files a claim with a participating insurance company; and

(B) the participating insurance company provides clear and conspicuous disclosure to the policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program—

(A) in the case of any policy that is issued on or after the date of enactment of this Act, on a separate line item in the policy, at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of the policy; and

(b) in the case of any policy that is issued before the date of enactment of this Act, as a line item described in paragraph (A), not later than 90 days after that date of enactment.

(3) the participating insurance company processes the claim for the insured loss in accordance with its standard business practices and procedures that the Secretary may prescribe; and

(4) the participating insurance company submits to the Secretary, in accordance with reasonable procedures that the Secretary may establish—

(A) a claim for payment of the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(b) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made for insured losses; and

(c) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) MANDATORY PARTICIPATION; MANDATORY AVAILABILITY.—Each insurance company that meets the definition of a participating insurance company under section 3—

(1) shall participate in the Program;

(2) shall make available in all of its property and casualty insurance policies (in all of its participating lines), coverage for insured losses; and

(3) shall make available property and casualty insurance coverage for insured losses that does not differ in any material respect from the terms, amounts, and other coverage limitations applicable to losses arising from events other than acts of terrorism.

(d) PARTICIPATION BY SELF INSURED ENTITIES.—

(1) DETERMINATION BY THE SECRETARY.—The Secretary may, in consultation with the NAIC, establish the terrorism insurance program by municipalities and other governmental or quasi-governmental entities (and by any other entity, as the Secretary deems appropriate) operating through self insurance arrangements that were in existence on September 11, 2001, but only if the Secretary makes a determination with regard to participation by any such entity before the occurrence of an act of terrorism in which the entity incurs an insured loss.

(2) PARTICIPATION.—If the Secretary makes a determination under paragraph (1), the participating insurance company shall apply to any such entity, as determined to be appropriate by the Secretary.
Program to be paid by the Secretary for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the 1-year period beginning on the date of expiration of the Program.

(b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall issue interim final rules or procedures specifying the manner in which—

(1) participating insurance companies may file, review, and certify claims under the Program;

(2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise publicly announce the applicable percentage determination and the responsibility of any participating insurance company and the percentage that is the responsibility of the Federal Government under the Program;

(3) the Federal share of compensation for insured losses will be paid under the Program, including payments based on estimates of or actual aggregate insured losses; and

(4) the Secretary shall seek in any manner to or from any participating insurance company, based on estimates of insured losses under the Program, a final netting provisions contained in section 4;

(5) each participating insurance company that incurs insured losses shall pay its proportion of insured losses, in accordance with section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, as well as payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the 1-year period with respect to any payment made by the United States under the Program.

(c) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS. —This Act is

(1) prevents the Secretary from taking, or causing to be taken, such actions under section (d) of this section and sections 4(e)(4), 4(e)(5), 5(a)(1), 5(c)(4), and 5(e) of this Act, on or before the date of enactment of this Act, in accordance with the provisions of section 4 and regulations promulgated thereunder.

(2) to prevent the availability of funding under section 9(b) during any period in which the Secretary's authority under this subsection (d) of this section is in effect; or

(3) to prevent the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b).

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b).

(e) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress that states the preliminary determination and the reasons therefor.

(f) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination and the reasons therefor shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(1) IN GENERAL.—In determining when the Program shall terminate 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary—

(2) PROMPTLY NOTIFIES THE CONGRESS.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1) after the date of commencement of that extension, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress that states the preliminary determination and the reasons therefor.

(g) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the Secretary should make any determination under subsection (d) in sufficient time to enable participating insurance companies to include coverage for acts of terrorism in their policies for the second year of the Program, if the Program is extended in accordance with this section.

(h) REPORTS REGARDING TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE PREMIUMS.—

(1) REPORT TO THE NAIC.—Beginning 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 6 months thereafter, each participating insurance company shall submit a report to the NAIC that states the premiums charged by that participating insurance company during the preceding 6-month period for insured losses covered by acts of terrorism occurring during the 1-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act.
the Program, and includes an explanation of and justification for those rates.

(2) REPORTS forwarded.—The NAIC shall promptly forward copies of each report submitted by the NAIC to Congress and to the Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and the Comptroller General of the United States.

(3) TIMING.—The reports required under subparagraph (A) shall be submitted—

(1) 9 months after the date of enactment of this Act; and

(2) 12 months after the date of submission of the first report under clause (1).

(4) GAO EVALUATION and REPORT.—

(A) EVALUATION.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall evaluate each report submitted under paragraph (3), and upon request, the Secretary, the Secretary of Commerce, the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and the NAIC shall provide to the Comptroller all documents, records, and any other information that the Comptroller deems necessary to carry out such evaluation.

(B) REPORT to CONGRESS.—Not later than 90 days after receipt of each report submitted under paragraph (3), the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to Congress a report of the evaluation required by subparagraph (A).

SEC. 7. PRESERVATION of STATE LAW.

Nothing shall affect—

(A) the definition of the term ‘‘act of terrorism’’ in section 3 shall be the exclusive definition of that term for purposes of compensation provided under this Act, and shall preempt any provision of State law that is inconsistent with that definition, to the extent that such provision of law would otherwise apply to any type of insurance covered by this Act;

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending at midnight, December 31, 2002, rates of any terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, except that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory;

(C) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and for so long as the Program is in effect, as provided in section 6 (including any period during which the authority of the Secretary under section 6(d) is in effect), books and records of any participating insurance company that are relevant to the Program shall be provided, or caused to be provided, to the Secretary or the designee of the Secretary, upon request by the Secretary or such designee, notwithstanding any other provision of the laws of any State prohibiting or limiting such access.

SEC. 8. SENSE of the Congress REGARDING CAPACITY BUILDING.

It is the sense of Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide affordable property and casualty insurance coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. AUTHORIZATION of APPROPRIATIONS; PAYMENT AUTHORITY.

(a) ADMINISTRATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary, out of funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of the Program, to remain available until expended.

(b) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts, and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal Government for the insurance of insured losses under the Program.

SEC. 10. PROCEDURES for CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE of ACTION.—

(1) In GENERAL.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for such property damage, personal injury, or death, except as provided in subsection (d).

(2) PREEMPTION of STATE actions.—All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (d).

(b) GOVERNING Law.—The substantive law for deciding a claim described in subsection (a)(1) shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the State in which the act of terrorism giving rise to the action occurred, except to the extent that—

(1) the law, including choice of law principles, of another State is determined to be applicable to the action by the district court hearing the action; or

(2) otherwise applicable State law (including that determined pursuant to paragraph (1), is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.

(c) PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—Any amounts awarded in a civil action described in subsection (a)(1) that are attributable to punitive damages shall not count as insured losses for purposes of this Act.

(d) CLAIMS against costs.—Nothing in this section shall in any way be construed to limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government, or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

(e) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions described in subsection (a)(1) arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period provided for under section 6.

SEC. 11. SATISFACTION of JUDGMENTS from FROZEN ASSETS of TERRORISTS, TERRORIST ORGANIZATIONS, and STATE SPONSORS of TERRORISM.

(a) In GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and except as provided in subsection (b), in every case in which a person has obtained a judgment against a terrorist party on a claim based upon an act of terrorism, a terrorist party is not immune under section 1605(a)(7) of title 28, United States Code, the blocked assets of that terrorist party (including any property in the United States), and the proceeds of any such use; or the proceeds of such use; or

(b) PRESIDENTIAL WAIVER.—

(1) In GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), upon determining on an asset-by-asset basis that a waiver is necessary in the national interest, the President may execute or cause to be executed the requirements of subsection (a) in connection with (and prior to the enforcement of) any judicial order directing attachment in aid of execution or execution against any property subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations.

(2) EXCEPTION.—A waiver under this subsection shall not apply to—

(A) property subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations that has been used by the United States for any non-diplomatic purpose (including use as rental property), or the proceeds of such use; or

(B) the proceeds of any sale or transfer for value to a third party of any asset subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations.

(c) SPECIAL Rule for CASHERS Against IRAN.—Section 2002 of the Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act of 2000 (Public Law 106–386; 114 Stat. 1542) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(2)(A)(ii), by inserting ‘‘July 27, 2000’’ before the following: ‘‘or before October 28, 2000.’’;

(2) in subsection (b)(2)(B), by inserting after the date of enactment of this Act the following: ‘‘(less amounts therein as to which the United States has an interest in subrogation pursuant to subsection (c) arising prior to the date of entry of the judgment or judgments to be satisfied in whole or in part hereunder).’’;

(3) by redesignating subsections (d), (e), and (f) as subsections (e), (f), and (g), respectively; and

(4) by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection (d):

(d) DISTRIBUTION of FOREIGN MILITARY SALES Funds Inadequate to SATISFY Full AMOUNT of COMPENSATORY AWARDS AGAINST IRAN.

‘‘(1)(A) In the event that the Secretary determines that the amounts available to be paid under subsection (b)(2) are inadequate to pay the entire amount of compensatory damages awarded, including as of the date of the enactment of this subsection in cases identified in subsection (a)(2)(A), the Secretary shall, not later than 60 days after such amount is made, pay such an amount to the person to which this subsection applies under any procedure described in subsection (b)(2) to each party to which such judgment has been issued a share of the amounts in that account which are not subject to subrogation to the United States under this Act.

‘‘(B) The amount so paid to each such person shall be calculated by the adjustment that the amount of compensatory damages awarded in a judgment issued to that particular person bears to the total amount of compensatory damages awarded to all persons to whom judgments have been issued in cases identified in subsection (a)(2)(A) as of the date referred to in subparagraph (A).

‘‘(2) Nothing herein shall bar, or require delay in, enforcement of any judgment to which this subsection applies under any procedure or against assets otherwise available under execution or under any other provision of law.

‘‘(3) Any person receiving less than the full amount of compensatory damages awarded to him in violation of any provision of this subsection applies shall not be required to make the election set forth in subsection (a)(2)(C) in order to qualify for payment hereunder.’’.

(c) STATE SPONSORS of TERRORISM.—In this Act—

(1) the term ‘‘terrorist party’’ means a terrorist, a terrorist organization, or a foreign

(2) The term “blocked asset” means any asset seized or frozen by the United States in accordance with law, or otherwise held by the United States in accordance with claim of ownership by the United States.

(3) The term “property subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations” and the term “asset subject to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations” and the term “asset” mean any property or asset. Respectively, the attachment in aid of execution or execution of which would result in a violation of an obligation of the United States under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations or the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations, as the case may be.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, I voted today for passage of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act. While it is not perfect, it provides temporary backstop to allow the private insurance marketplace to adjust to the new threat of terrorist attacks. Because I had serious concerns about a lack of protection for property in the original bill, I offered two amendments, one to guard against price gouging, the other requiring the industry to separately disclose to policyholders the amount of premium due to terrorism risk. The first amendment was rejected by the Senate June 13. But the provision was added to the bill today. This provision gives regulators an essential tool to safeguard against excessive price hikes, and it provides industry observers of the opinion that, given time, the insurance industry will develop the capacity and the experience that will allow them to underwrite the terrorist risk. However, those conditions do not exist today. In the interim, a Federal reinsurance backstop of limited duration would give the insurance markets the necessary time to stabilize.

I know that there are still many steps between now and final enactment of the legislation. We look forward to continuing to work with the administration on this issue, as we have done since shortly after the attacks. Again, I want to underscore the importance of this legislation and of the actions that the Senate has taken today to move it forward.

VOTE EXPLANATION

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, due to a longstanding commitment I was necessarily absent for the vote on cloture on the Terrorism Reinsurance bill, S. 2600, and on final passage of the Terrorism Reinsurance bill. Although my votes would not have affected the outcome, had I been present, I would have voted for cloture on the bill and for final passage.

MARITIME TRANSPORTATION ANTI-TERRORISM ACT OF 2002

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives with respect to S. 1214, the port security bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the House of Representatives:

Resolved, That the House insist upon its amendment to the bill (S. 1214) entitled "An Act to amend the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, to establish a program to ensure greater security for United States seaports, and for other purposes", and ask a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That the following Members be the managers of the conference on the part of the House:

From the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, for consideration of the Senate bill and the House amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. Young of Alaska, Mr. Coble, Mr. LoBiondo, Mr. Hunter, Mr. Donnelly, Mr. Akin, Mr. Rooney, Mr. McCaul, and Mr. Wilson of South Carolina.

From the Committee on Ways and Means, for consideration of sections 112 and 115 of the Senate bill, and section 108 of the House amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. Thomas, Mr. Crane, and Mr. Rangel.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate disagree to the House amendment, agree to the request for a conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, and that the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

The being no objection, the President appointed Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. KERRY, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. CLELAND, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. McCAIN, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. LOTT, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Ms. SNOWE, and Mr. GRAHAM to the Oregon conference on the part of the Senate; for matters in section 108 of the House amendment and sections 112 and 115 of the Senate bill, Mr. GRAHAM and Mr. GRASSLEY for the part of the Senate.

AUCTION REFORM ACT OF 2002

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 390, H.R. 4560.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4560) to eliminate the deadlines for spectrum auctions of spectrum previously allocated to television broadcasting.

The Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 3893

Mr. DASCHLE. I understand Senators ENSENCE, KERRY, and STEVENS have a substitute amendment at the desk. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate consider and agree to the amendment, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, the bill as amended be read three times, passed, the motion to reconsider be laid on the table, and any statements relating thereto be printed in the RECORD without further intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 3893) was agreed to, as follows:

Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

"This Act may be cited as the "Auction Reform Act of 2002"."

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:
S5674

Congressional Record — Senate

June 18, 2002

(1) Circumstances in the telecommunications market have changed dramatically since the auctioning of spectrum in the 700 megahertz band was originally mandated by the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 337). The Commission is now in the position of having to decide whether the original deadlines, or the subsequent revision of the deadlines, are consistent with sound telecommunications policy and management principles.

(2) No comprehensive plan yet exists for allocating additional spectrum for third-generation wireless and other advanced communications services that warrant the Commission giving the Department of Defense the flexibility to auction frequencies in the 700 megahertz band on a voluntary basis.

(3) The study being conducted by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration in consultation with the Department of Defense should determine whether the Department of Defense can share or relinquish additional spectrum for third-generation wireless and other advanced communications services that will not be completed until after the June 19th auction date for the upper 700 megahertz band, and long after the applications must be filed to participate in the auction. The uncertainty as to whether the frequencies in the 700 megahertz band will be put to their highest and best use for the benefit of consumers.

(4) The Communications Commission is also in the process of determining how to resolve the interference problems that exist in the 700 megahertz band, especially for public safety. One option being considered is the 800 megahertz band which would involve the 700 megahertz band. The Commission should not hold the 700 megahertz auction before the 800 megahertz interference issues are resolved or a tenable plan has been conceived.

(5) The 700 megahertz band is currently occupied by television broadcasters, and will be so until the transition to digital television is completed. This situation creates a tremendous amount of uncertainty concerning when the spectrum will be available and reduces the value placed on the spectrum by potential bidders. The encumbrance of the 700 megahertz band reduces both the amount of money that the auction would be likely to produce and the probability that the spectrum would be purchased by the entities that value it the most and put the spectrum to its most productive use.

(6) The Commission’s rules governing voluntary mechanisms for vacating the 700 megahertz broadcast stations.

(a) produced no certainty that the band would be available for advanced mobile communications services, public safety operations, or other wireless services any earlier than the existing statutory framework provides; and

(b) should advance the transition of digital television and must not result in the unjust enrichment of any incumbent licensee.

SEC. 3. ELIMINATION OF STATUTORY DEADLINES FOR SPECTRUM AUCTIONS.

(a) FCC To Determine Timing of Auctions.—Section 309(j)(2) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)(2)) is amended by adding at the end of the following paragraph:

"(15) COMMISSION TO DETERMINE TIMING OF AUCTIONS.

(A) COMMUNICATION AUTHORITY.—Subject to the provisions of this subsection (including paragraph (11)), but notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Commission shall determine the terms and deadlines for the conduct of competitive bidding under this subsection, including the timing of and deadlines for qualifying for bidding; conducting the auction; depositing auction revenues; and completing licensing processes and assigning licenses.

(C) EXCEPTION.—(1) BIDDER EXCEPTION.—Subparagraph (B) shall not apply to the auction of—

(1) the C-block of licenses on the bands of frequencies located at 710–718 megahertz, and 749–756 megahertz.

(2) The D-block of licenses on the bands of frequencies located at 716–722 megahertz.

(2) ELIGIBLE BIDDERS.—The entities that shall be eligible for inclusion in the C-block and D-block licenses described in clause (1) shall be those entities that were qualified entities, and that submitted applications to participate in auction 44, by May 8, 2002, as part of the original auction 44 short form filing deadline.

(3) AUCTION DEADLINES FOR EXCEPTED BLOCKS.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (B), the auction of the C-block and D-block licenses described in clause (1) shall be commenced no earlier than August 19, 2002, and shall conclude at a time that ensures all proceeds of such auction shall be deposited in accordance with paragraph (8) not later than December 21, 2002.

(4) RETURN OF PAYMENTS.—Within one year after the date of enactment of this paragraph, the Commission shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) specifying when the Commission intends to reschedule auctions 31 and 44 (other than the blocks excepted by clause (1)); and

(2) describing the progress made by the Commission in implementing the digital transition and the assignment and allocation of additional spectrum for advanced mobile communications services that warrants the scheduling of such auctions.

(5) RETURN OF PAYMENTS.—Within one month after the date of enactment of this paragraph, the Commission shall return to the bidders for licenses in the A-block, B-block, and E-block of auction 44 the full amount of all upfront payments made by such bidders for such licenses.

(b) Conforming Amendments.

(2) BALANCED BUDGET ACT OF 1997.—Section 307 of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (111 Stat. 269) is amended by striking paragraph (2) and section 3 of section 213(a) of H.R. 3425 of the 106th Congress, as enacted into law by section 1009(a)(5) of an Act making consolidated appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2000, and for other purposes (Public Law 106–113; 113 Stat. 1501A–205), is repealed.

(c) Consolidated Appropriations Act,

SEC. 4. COMPLIANCE WITH AUCTION AUTHORITY.

The Federal Communications Commission shall conduct rescheduled auctions 31 and 44 prior to the expiration of the auction authority under section 309(j)(11) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)(11)).

SEC. 5. PRESERVATION OF BROADCASTER OBLIGATION.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to relieve television broadcast station licensees of the obligation to complete the digital television service conversion as required by section 309(j)(11) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)(11)).

SEC. 6. INTERFERENCE PROTECTION.

(a) Interference Waivers.—In granting a request by a television broadcast station licensee assigned to any of channels 2–51 to utilize any channel of channels 2–51 that is assigned for digital broadcasting in order to continue analog broadcasting during the transition to digital broadcasting, the Federal Communications Commission may not, either by waiver or otherwise, or in any other manner, waiving or otherwise reduce the space required for analog television broadcasting.

(b) Exception for Public Safety Channel Clearing.—(1) The restrictions in subsection (a) shall not apply to a station licensee that is seeking authority (either by waiver or otherwise) to vacate the frequencies that constitute television channel 63, 64, 68, or 69 in order to make such frequencies available for public safety purposes pursuant to the provisions of section 337 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 337). The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, the bill (H.R. 4560), as amended, was read the third time and passed.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2003

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to Calendar No. 370, S. 2514, the Department of Defense authorization bill; that there be debate only on the bill during today’s session; further, that the Senate resume consideration of the bill at 11 o’clock on Wednesday, June 19.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the bill by title. The Assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2514) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2003 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, in behalf of the Armed Services Committee, I am pleased to bring the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003 to the floor.

This bill would fully fund the fiscal year 2003 budget request of the administration of $393.3 billion for the national security activities for the Department of Defense and the Department of Energy.

In the first 41 days of congressional session this year, the Armed Services Committee held 41 hearings to examine the administration’s budget request and related issues. Last month, after marking up for 3 days, the committee approved S. 2514, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003.
I thank all the members of committee for their hard work on this bill. There were two close votes on two funding issues that caused a few of our members to vote against the bill at the end, which, of course, we regret. But except for these two issues, I think we probably would have had a unanimous vote on our committee.

As we take up this bill, America’s Armed Forces are engaged around the world as never before. In the months since September 11, we have dispatched troops not only to Afghanistan but also to Pakistan, the Philippines, the countries of central Asia and the Persian Gulf. We called up the National Guard to assist in contingency operations and to assist in safeguarding our borders and protecting our airports. All of this has been done without relieving our soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines of ongoing deployments in Korea, the Balkans, Colombia, and elsewhere.

This year, as much as ever before, we owe it to our men and women in uniform to act on this bill with dispatch. The events following September 11 have once again shown that the U.S. military is the most capable fighting force in the world. The success of our forces in Afghanistan has been remarkable. Osama bin Laden—if he is alive—is on the run and in hiding. Many of his al-Qaeda terrorists have been captured or killed. The Taliban regime that has bared and defended Afghanistan is in place. Nations around the world have been put on notice: America is determined to protect itself from more attacks and to bring terrorists to justice.

From Europe to the Persian Gulf to the Korean Peninsula, the presence of U.S. military forces and their contributions to regional peace and security continue to reassure our allies and deter potential adversaries. Over the last several years, forces have increased in every mission assigned to them, including not only Operation Enduring Freedom, but also the 1999 NATO air campaign over Kosovo and ongoing enforcement of the no-fly zones over Iraq; humanitarian operations from Central America to Africa; and peacekeeping operations from the Balkans to East Timor.

The excellence behind that success was not built in months. The success of our condominium is a result of the hard work of the men and women of the Armed Forces and the investments in national defense that Congress and the Department of Defense have made over many years. Future success on the battlefield will likewise depend upon the success of Congress and the Department in preparing, training, and equipping our military for tomorrow’s missions.

The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003 builds on the considerable strengths of our military forces and their record of success. The Armed Services Committee identified five priorities to guide us in preparing this bill. These were to:

No. 1. continue the improvements in the compensation and quality of life of the men and women in the Armed Forces, retirees and their families; and
No. 2. sustain the readiness of the military services to conduct the full range of their assigned mission, including the current war on international terrorism; and
No. 3. improve the efficiency of Defense Department programs and operations and apply the savings toward high-priority programs of national importance, including not only Operation Enduring Freedom; and
No. 4. improve the ability of the Armed Forces to meet nontraditional threats, including terrorism and weapons of mass destruction; and
No. 5. promote the transformation of the Armed Forces to meet the threats of the 21st century.

First, compensation and quality of life: The bill reflects the committee’s highest priority—ensuring that our military personnel and their families receive the compensation and quality of life they deserve. Toward that end, we added more than $1.2 billion to the budget request for pay and quality of life initiatives. Specifically, the bill adds $411 million or 4.1 percent across-the-board pay raise for all military personnel, with an additional targeted pay raise for the mid-career force; adds $460 million above the budget request to improve and replace facilities on military installations; and authorizes a new permanent incentive pay of up to $1,500 per month to reward military members who agree to serve in difficult-to-fill assignments.

The bill would also begin to address a longstanding inequity in the compensation of military retirees by authorizing the concurrent receipt of retired pay and veterans’ disability compensation for military retirees with disabilities rated at 60% or more. During our markup, the committee approved a separate amendment that would authorize concurrent receipt of retired pay and veterans’ disability compensation for all disabled military retirees for non-disability retirement. Senator WARNER and I plan to offer this amendment in the final version of the bill.

With regard to readiness, we propose to set aside $10 billion, as requested by the administration, to fund ongoing operations. In particular, we would add more than $1.1 billion to the Navy’s shipbuilding accounts to refuel a nuclear submarine and pay for advanced procurement of an aircraft carrier, a Virginia-class submarine, a DDG–51 class destroyer, an LPD–17 class amphibious transport dock.

The bill would also add $105 million for funding for research and development on the Army’s Future Combat System and more than $100 million for science and technology needed to help the Army achieve its Objective Force. It would fully fund the $5.2 billion requested by the Department for the F—22, the $3.5 billion requested for continued research and development on the Joint Strike Fighter, and more than $600 million requested for Air Force unmanned aerial vehicles.

It would add more than $300 million to the science and technology budget, bringing the Department closer to the Secretary's goal of devoting 3 percent of all defense funds to the programs that promise to bring us the revolutionary technologies that will be needed to prevail in future conflicts.

Relative to the Crusader Artillery System, in the middle of our committee markup of this bill the Secretary of Defense announced that he intended to terminate the Crusader Artillery System. This is a system which the Department of Defense had strongly supported until just a few days earlier. Because the committee had no opportunity to review the reasons for this sudden reversal, we did not address this issue. Instead, we conducted a hearing with the Secretary of Defense and the Army Chief of Staff to consider the merits of the program.

At that hearing, the Secretary of Defense favored termination. The Army Chief of Staff testified that the system was very important and very necessary and, as a matter of fact, an important part of transformation. He has been a very strong supporter of transformation. The Chief of Staff is a very strong supporter of transformation.

I think this—a perhaps we will be debating the Crusader System—should recognize the contribution of the Army Chief of Staff to the transformation of the Army. He is not one who has resisted transformation. He has been a very strong supporter of transformation, and he views the Crusader Artillery System—or viewed this at the time he testified—as an important part of that transformation.

On June 13, the committee met to discuss the Crusader Artillery System. At that time, the committee voted 13 to 6 to recommend an amendment that would do two things. First, it would take the $475 million out of the Crusader program and put the money into a separate funding line for future combat systems research and development. This is the Army's armored systems modernization line. Second, we would require the Army Chief of Staff, in our amendment, for the program, following the receipt of the Army's analysis which was truncated. The Army, in late April, was told that it could complete its analysis by the end of this fiscal year. And then, in early May, it was told that it could have until the end of May to complete this analysis.

I emphasize the importance of this analysis. The Army's analysis is intended to answer seven questions. I am not going to go through them all, but I am simply going to say these are important questions. These are important questions for the future well-being of the men and women in the Army. They are critical questions. They have to do with the future readiness of the Army. The only way to answer these questions is by proceeding. What are the risks in canceling? These are questions which the Army was in the middle of analyzing when suddenly, a few days into May, despite the earlier decision to allow the completion of this analysis by the end of May, the Secretary of Defense simply said: We are going to terminate.

Seven questions were to be answered. And I emphasize, these are questions which can be life-and-death questions for the men and women in the future armies of this country. They were going to analyze these questions in six combat scenarios. They were going to look at four different alternatives. We believed that answers to the questions in that analysis should be completed. The amendment, which I will offer on behalf of the committee, as I promised to the committee I would offer early in this debate, was adopted, as I said, by a 13-to-6 vote.

We hope the Senate will approve this amendment. We think it is the correct balance. Not only should we have that information before we or the Defense Department either one of us—finally decide on termination, that analysis is important as to how best to spend that money. Where should we jump to? Even if we, this Nation, decide to jump from Crusader, even if we take whatever risks are involved—and there are risks involved in that—the decision also involves, Where do we then allocate those funds? How do we allocate those funds? And that analysis is critically important to that issue as well. We hope our amendment will address both those issues in a rational, thoughtful way.

Congress has a responsibility also to ensure that the resources our taxpayers provide for national defense are spent wisely. The administration has not complied with statutory requirements to provide Congress with a national security strategy and an annual report outlining detailed plans for the size, structure, shape, or transformation of the military. In the absence of that required by law, the Department of Defense is going to have difficulty establishing a clear vision for the future for our Armed Forces.

But a year ago, the Secretary of Defense testified before us saying: "We have an obligation to taxpayers to spend their money wisely." He said that he had "never seen an organization, in the private or public sector," to use his words, "that could not, by better management, operate at least 20 percent better given that money is well spent."

He testified that that $15 billion of savings from management efficiencies could be used to: increase ship procurement from six to nine ships a year; to procure several hundred additional aircraft annually rather than 189. He could meet the target of a 67-year rate, that those savings could increase defense-related science and technology funding from 2.7 percent to 3 percent for the Department of Defense budget.

To this date, it has been disappointing that the Department has identified less than $150 million of the $15 billion annual savings projected by the Secretary. Despite the largest proposed increase in defense spending in 20 years, the budget request would fund just 5 ships and 166 aircraft, way below the goals; replace facilities at a 122-year rate instead of the 67-year rate, which is desirable. It would leave the rate of defense-related science and technology uncharged at just 2.7 percent of the Department of Defense budget instead of the 3-percent target which is desirable.

Short, despite the proposed $48 billion increase in defense spending, management efficiencies are needed now more than ever to ensure the taxpayers' money is well spent.

Our bill includes a number of provisions to help address this problem, including a major initiative, based on recommendations of the Defense Science Board and the DOD Director of Operational Test and Evaluation, to address budget shortfalls and organizational shortcomings in the Department's test and evaluation infrastructure that have led to inadequate testing of major weapons systems.

It would provide for a continuation of last year's initiative by the committee to improve the way in which the Department manages its $50 billion of services contracts with resulting savings of $850 million. We include a provision that would address the Department's inability to use the financial information and achieve $400 million of savings by deferring spending on new financial systems that would be inconsistent with a comprehensive financial management enterprise architecture currently being developed by the Department. We include a provision requiring the Department to establish new internal controls to address recurring problems with the abuse of purchase cards and travel fraud by military and civilian personnel.

In the area of missile defense, the bill would reallocate $812 million for missile defense expenditures that appear to be unjustified or duplicative to high-priority areas. This includes a transfer $690 million from missile defense activities to fund advanced procurement of a second Virginia-class submarine as soon as fiscal year 2005; advanced procurement for a second LPD-17 warship as soon as fiscal year 2004; and advanced procurement for a third DDG-51 Arleigh Burke-class destroyer in fiscal year 2004.
Every defense budget requires choices, as every other budget of every other Department. Even with more than $390 billion to spend for national security activities, the administration was not able to fund every important national security priority. Each of the military services came to us with a long list of unfunded priorities, items not included in their budget, which they believe to be important to the national defense.

There was unanimous agreement among the members of the Armed Services Committee that the President’s budget did not provide adequate resources to maintain the Navy’s surface fleet or attack submarines. The committee received extensive testimony from DOD and Navy witnesses and numerous DOD and Navy reports indicating that the Navy should be building 8 to 10 ships per year to recapitalize its current fleet. A number of Navy witnesses, including the Chief of Naval Operations, have argued that they believe the Navy should be building a fleet with as many as 375 ships in order to meet the requirements the Navy faces today.

Two years ago, the Navy’s shipbuilding plan called for 23 ships between 2003 and 2005. This year’s plan calls for only 17 ships during that period. The Department’s proposed budget for missile defense was not even reviewed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Earlier this week, each of the six military service chiefs testified before the Armed Services Committee that they had not been asked for their views on the funding for missile defense programs relative to other priorities in the budget—all those unmet requirements that they told us about. They were not asked to weigh the importance of the missile defense budget against those other needed items.

The committee, and the subcommittee chaired by Senator John W. Warner, conducted an exhaustive examination of the proposed missile defense budget, holding two strategic subcommittee hearings alone on missile defense, reviewing 400 pages of missile defense budget documentation, and participating in more than 25 hours of staff briefings by the Department of Defense. Based on this lengthy review, the committee recommended funding the vast majority of the Department’s missile defense requests, an amount that is sufficient to aggressively fund all of the specific systems that the Department has said it wants to develop.

However, at the same time the committee identified $810 million of the missile defense request, which is 11 percent of the total asked for, that could not adequately be justified by the Department despite a detailed review of available documentation and repeated requests at hearings and in briefings.

For example, the budget request included $1.1 billion in the ballistic missile defense program element. That is an increase of $250 million over the current funding level. The major purpose of this program element is to develop an integrated architecture of BMD systems. While this is an important goal, most of the systems that will comprise the BMD architecture are years away from being deployed, making the development and definition of a detailed architecture impossible at this point.

After receiving more than $800 million for this program element in fiscal year 2002, the Missile Defense Agency has yet to provide to Congress any indication of what the overall ballistic missile defense architecture might be. In fact, the committee learned that of the $800 million appropriated for that program element in fiscal year 2002, only $50 million had been spent by the end of March, halfway through the fiscal year.

Because of this slow execution, the Missile Defense Agency informed us that $400 million of these fiscal year 2002 funds will be available for expenditures not yet approved by that agency. That is $400 million appropriated in 2002 for that program element is not going to be spent. It is going to be available next year. Under those circumstances, it is hard to see why the Department would need a $250 million increase in that program element in fiscal year 2003.

In short, we made a choice to make careful, well-justified reductions in missile defense programs to fund increases to the Department’s shipbuilding accounts. We did not justify these critically important accounts, which are strongly supported by most members of the uniformed Navy and by members of the committee. The choice was the right one.

One of the things we used the money for, one of the important areas that we used that funding for, was greater security of our Department of Energy nuclear facilities. The greatest threat we face is a terrorist threat. Those facilities are critically important accounts, which are strongly supported by most members of the committee. We believed could not be justified, not just to build more ships, which are necessary, but also to give greater security to our Department of Energy nuclear facilities which are so critically important to be defended.

Secretary Rumsfeld has written us that the Department opposes these changes and he would recommend that the President veto the bill if this change in missile defense funding remains in the bill. But again, this veto threat not only is addressed at the funding cuts in the bill but, in effect, is addressed at the items that we added into the bill which are an imperative to the national security of this country.

We believe our bill would provide the Missile Defense Agency as much money as can reasonably be executed for the missile defense program in this year and would ensure that this money is expended in a sound manner.

Mr. President, finally, I wish to say a few words on two items that are not included in this bill. First, the budget request of the administration included $15 million in the Department of Energy to begin studying the feasibility of the new robust nuclear earth penetrator. We had doubts about the need for this new nuclear weapon, particularly as we are trying to convince other countries to forgo the development of nuclear weapons, and we adopted an amendment deleting funding for the robust nuclear penetrator and instead we directed the Department of Defense, in consultation with the Secretary of Energy, to submit a report to Congress on the requirements for this new nuclear weapon—how it would be deployed, what categories of targets it would be used against, and whether conventional weapons could effectively address such targets.

Second, less than a month before we began our markup, the Department of Defense sent us a legislative proposal to support a certain amount of nuclear facilities and activities from the Endangered Species Act, the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, the Marine Mammal Protection Act, the Clean Air Act, the Solid Waste Disposal Act, and the Comprehensive Environmental Response and Compensation Liability Act, or CERCLA.

We did not consider those proposals because all those statutes fall outside the jurisdiction of the Armed Services Committee and do not affect our security and our vital interests around the world, and to win any conflict decisively. Our bill builds on the considerable strength of our military forces and their record of success by preserving a high quality of life for U.S. forces and their families, sustaining readiness, transforming the Armed Forces to meet the threats and challenges of tomorrow.

I hope our colleagues will join us in supporting this important legislation. For the President, the Congressional Budget Office is required to prepare a cost estimate for spending legislation reported by committees. The cost estimate for the bill reported by the committee, S. 2514, was not finished at the time the report on this bill was filed. The CBO cost estimate is now available. I ask unanimous consent that the Congressional Budget Office cost estimate for the Defense authorization bill reported by the Committee on Armed Services be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
The bill would specifically authorize appropriations totaling $391.5 billion in 2003 (see Table 2) and additional amounts as may be necessary for supplemental appropriations for defense in 2002, which CBO estimates would total $14 billion based on the Administration’s request. Most of those costs would fall within budget function 050 (national defense). S. 2514 also would specifically authorize appropriations of $70 million for the Armed Forces Retirement Home (function 600—income security).

The estimate assumes that the estimated authorization amount for 2002 is appropriated by the end of June 2002, and that the amounts authorized for 2003 will be appropriated before the start of fiscal year 2003. Outlays are estimated based on historical spending patterns. The bill also contains provisions that would affect various costs, mostly for personnel, that would be covered by the fiscal year 2003 authorization and by authorizations in future years. Table 3 contains estimates of those amounts. In addition to the costs covered by the authorizations in the bill for 2003, these provisions would raise estimated costs by $5.6 billion over the 2004–2007 period. The following sections describe the provisions identified in Table 3 and provide information about CBO’s cost estimates for those provisions.
Multiyear Procurement. In most cases, purchases of weapon systems are authorized annually, and as a result, DoD negotiates a separate contract for each annual purchase. In a small number of cases, the law permits multiyear procurement; that is, it allows DoD to enter into a contract to buy specified annual quantities of a system for up to five years. In those cases, DoD can negotiate lower prices because its commitment to purchase the weapons gives the contractor an incentive to find more economical ways to manufacture the weapon, including cost-saving investments. Annual funding is provided for these multiyear contracts, but potential termination costs are covered by an initial appropriation.

Section 131 would authorize the Secretary of the Air Force to enter into a multiyear contract to purchase C-130J aircraft beginning in 2003 after the Secretary certifies that the C-130J has been cleared for worldwide, over-the-horizon capability. Based on information provided by the Air Force, CBO assumes that DoD will procure 64 aircraft over the 2003–2007 period—40 CC-130J aircraft for the Air Force and 24 KCC-130J aircraft for the Marine Corps. CBO also assumes that the CC-130J and KC-130J aircraft would be purchased under one contract administered by the Air Force and covering six years of production beginning in 2003. CBO estimates that savings from buying these aircraft under a multiyear contract would total $473 million, or about $90 million a year, over the 2003–2007 period. CBO also estimates that additional savings of $182 million would accrue in 2008.

Finalizing a contract to purchase C-130Js would raise costs in 2003 because the KC-130J did not receive advance procurement in 2002 in anticipation of multiyear procurement starting in 2003, and because the Air Force would not receive advance procurement in 2002 in support of the reserves. The bill would specifically authorize appropriations of about $94 billion for the costs of military pay and allowances in 2003. The authorized endstrength represents a net increase of 2,400 servicemembers that would boost costs for salaries and other expenses by $37 million in the first year and about $190 million annually in subsequent years, compared to the authorized strengths for 2002.

The bill would authorize an endstrength of 9,000 in 2003 for the Coast Guard Reserve. This authorization would cost about $327 million and would fall under budget function 400 (transportation). Section 402 would allow the Secretary of Defense to increase endstrength by 2 percent above the level authorized by the Congress. The provision would also allow an increase in endstrength equal to the number of personnel within the reserve components that are on active duty in support of a contingency operation. While there is the potential for increased costs, CBO believes that DoD would still have to manage their resources given the finite amount of money appropriated each year for the reserve personnel. As such, CBO estimates that this provision would not significantly increase costs.

Compensation and Benefits. S. 2514 contains several provisions that would affect military compensation and benefits for uniformed personnel. Military Pay Raises. Section 601 would raise basic pay by 4.1 percent across-the-board and authorize additional targeted pay raises, ranging from 9.9 percent to 4.4 percent, for individuals with specific ranks and years of service at a total cost of about $2.3 billion in 2003. Because the pay raises would be above those projected under current law, CBO estimates that the incremental costs associated with the larger pay raise would be about $276 million in 2003 and total $1.9 billion over the 2003–2007 period.

Expiring Bonuses and Allowances. Several sections would extend DoD’s authority to pay certain bonuses and allowances to current personnel. Under current law, most of these authorities are scheduled to expire in December 2002, or three months into fiscal year 2003. The bill would extend these authorities through December 2003. Based on data provided by DoD, CBO estimates that the costs of these extensions would be as follows:

Payment of reenlistment bonuses for active-duty personnel would cost $327 million in 2003 and $191 million in 2004; enlistment bonuses for active-duty personnel would cost $133 million in 2003 and $361 million in 2004; Various bonuses for the Selected and Ready Reserve would cost $99 million in 2003 and $114 million in 2004; Special payments for aviators and nuclear-qualified personnel would cost $97 million in 2003 and $72 million in 2004; Retention bonuses for officers and enlisted members with critical skills would cost $29 million in 2003 and $19 million in 2004; Accession bonuses for new officers with critical skills would cost $14 million in 2003 and $5 million in 2004; and Authorities to make special payments and give bonuses to certain health care professionals would cost $37 million in 2003 and $34 million in 2004.

Most of these changes would result in additional, smaller costs in subsequent years because payments are made in installments.

Retirement Pay. Section 871 would authorize a new pay scale and a new two-tier retirement system for uniformed personnel.

Education and Training. Section 821 would allow the military services to increase the number of students at each of the service academies from the current ceiling of 4,000 to 4,400 students. Based on information provided by DoD, CBO estimates that the special incentive pay would average $300 a month and that 11,250 servicemembers would receive this special pay by 2005. Given expected personnel turnover, CBO estimates that this provision would cost $1 million in 2003 and $46 million over the 2003–2005 period.

According to DoD, the additional cost to bring on 100 extra students at the Naval Using information from DoD, CBO estimates that the military retirement trust fund (an outlay is enacted, the yearly contribution to the trust fund, based on an estimate of the appropriated funds to the military retirement trust fund, would increase to $17.3 billion over the 2003-2012 period for increased outlays from the fund. CBO’s estimates of the additional cost associated with this provision would cost $7 million in 2003, $18 million over the 2003–2007 period. Be-
Section 1102 would provide DoD with the authority to offer voluntary retirement incentives of up to $25,000 to its civilian employees who voluntarily retire or resign through fiscal year 2006. Current buyout authority for DoD is scheduled to expire on September 30, 2003. Based on discussions with DoD staff, CBO assumes that about 15,500 DoD employees would participate in the buyout program in 2004 through 2006. CBO estimates that the buyout payments would total $86 million in 2004 and $141 million over the 2004-2006 period. The estimated payments would equal 15 percent of the final basic pay of each employee and come out of the agency’s appropriated funds. Assuming an average final salary for the affected workers of $45,000, CBO estimates that these payments would cost DoD $24 million in 2004 and $118 million over the 2004-2006 period.

Section 1103 would provide DoD with authority to offer voluntary retirement incentives of up to $25,000 to employees who voluntarily retire or resign through fiscal year 2004. Current buyout authority for DoD is scheduled to expire on December 31, 2003. Based on information from DoD, CBO assumes that about 350 DoD employees would participate in the buyout program in calendar year 2004. Current buyout authority for DOE is scheduled to expire in fiscal year 2004. CBO estimates that the cost of the buyout payments would total $6 million in 2004. This cost would also be required to make a payment to the Civilian Service Retirement and Disability Fund (CS RDF) for every employee who takes a buyout. The payments would equal 15 percent of the final basic pay of each employee and come out of the agency’s appropriated funds. Assuming an average final salary for the affected workers of $75,000, CBO estimates that these payments would cost DOE $3 million in 2004 and $1 million in 2005. CBO estimates that enacting this section also would increase direct spending for federal retirement and health care benefits by a total of $8 million over the 2003-2006 period. CBO’s estimate of those outlays is discussed below under the heading of “Direct Spending.”

Section 1104 would provide DOE with the authority to offer voluntary retirement incentives of up to $25,000 to employees who voluntarily retire or resign through fiscal year 2004. Current buyout authority for DOE is scheduled to expire in fiscal year 2004. CBO estimates that the cost of the buyout payments would total $6 million in 2004. This cost would also be required to make a payment to the CSRDF for every employee who takes a buyout. The payments would equal 15 percent of the final pay of each employee and come out of the agency’s appropriated funds. Assuming an average final salary for the affected workers of $45,000, CBO estimates these payments would cost DOE $24 million in 2004 and $118 million over the 2004-2006 period. CBO estimates that enacting this section also would increase direct spending for federal retirement and health care benefits by a total of $8 million over the 2003-2006 period. (CBO estimates that enacting this section also would increase direct spending for federal retirement and health care benefits by a total of $188 million over the 2003-2006 period. (CBO estimates that enacting this section also would increase direct spending for federal retirement and health care benefits by a total of $24 million. Assuming an average final salary for the affected workers of $75,000, CBO estimates that these payments would cost DOE $3 million in 2004 and $1 million in 2005. CBO estimates that enacting this section also would increase direct spending for federal retirement and health care benefits by a total of $8 million over the 2003-2006 period. CBO’s estimate of those outlays is discussed below under the heading of “Direct Spending.”

Section 1105 would direct DOE and the Office of Personnel Management to compute the cost of extending this provision into fiscal year 2007 that allows DOE employees to participate in the buyout program in calendar year 2004. Based on information from DoD and the Office of Personnel Management, CBO estimates that this provision would affect about 500 people a year at an average annual cost of $5,500 per person over the 2003-2007 period. CBO estimates that extending this provision into fiscal year 2004 would cost $2 million in 2004 and $11 million over the 2004-2007 period, assuming appropriation of the estimated amounts.

Section 1106 would allow school districts with a large percentage of children from military families to continue to receive heavy impact aid when military installations are temporarily appropriated. Heavy impact aid is federal funding ear marked for school districts with large military populations. Many military families in those school districts live on federal installations and do not contribute to the local property tax base that is used to finance local schools. This aid helps to offset this loss of local tax revenue. Under current law, schools can only receive heavy impact aid for those counties that contain more than 4,000 federal residents located in their districts, local tax rates, and per pupil expenditures. Because of population relocation of the non-military households as a result of military family initiatives, some school districts will temporarily be unable to meet these criteria and will lose their heavy impact aid for several years.

Based on data from the Department of Education and the Military School Districts Association, CBO estimates that about four school districts would initially be affected by housing privatization and that these school districts receive about $18 million in heavy impact aid. Because applications for heavy impact aid are based on school district statistics from three years prior, CBO estimates that the cost of implementing this provision would occur until 2006. After adjusting for the changes in student population within the affected districts, CBO estimates that restoration of this aid would cost about $1 million per year. Since the requirements of the School Impact Aid program are not always fully funded, CBO expects that cutback in these aid formulas would likely fund this increase through reductions in aid to other school districts. CBO expects this cost would recoup annually for eight years for the privatization effort within the affected school districts, which CBO estimates to be about three years.

Section 1107 would also allow coterminous school districts (school districts whose boundaries are the same as a military base) to change the method for calculating heavy impact aid. CBO estimates that implementing this provision would change the calculation of heavy impact aid for about 200 students in two school districts and that the impact aid for these students would increase by about $2,300 per student. CBO estimates allowing this provision would cost $1 million over the 2004-2007 period. CBO expects this cost would reoccur annually for those years.

Revitalizing DoD Laboratories. Section 241 would provide DOE with the authority to establish a new three-year pilot program beginning in March 2003 allowing laboratories to enter into long-term contracts for environmental remediation services. Under current law, the total cost of any multiyear remediation service contracts and those contracts produced savings of about 5 percent on average, multiyear contracting for environmental remediation services would save about $500 million annually after a five-year phase-in period. Disposition of Surplus Plutonium. In January 2002, the Secretary of Energy announced that the federal government plans to convert roughly 34 metric tons of surplus weapons grade plutonium currently located at various DOE facilities, including the Hanford Site in Richland, Washington, into mixed-oxide (MOX) fuel that would be suitable for use in U.S. commercial nuclear reactors. The federal government would ship the surplus plutonium to a mixed-oxide fuel fabrication facility at the Savannah River Site in Aiken, South Carolina. DOE plans to start construction of the facility in 2004 and expects that construction would be complete by 2007. The facility would be able to convert about 3.5 metric tons of plutonium a year and would complete the conversion in about 12 years.

School Impact Aid. Section 1064 would allow school districts whose school population includes a significant number of children from military families to continue to receive heavy impact aid even if the military base is closed temporarily. Heavy impact aid is federal funding earmarked for school districts with large military populations. Many military families in those school districts live on federal installations and do not contribute to the local property tax base that is used to finance local schools. This aid helps to offset this loss of local tax revenue. Under current law, schools can only receive heavy impact aid for those counties that contain more than 4,000 federal residents located in their districts, local tax rates, and per pupil expenditures. Because of population relocation of the non-military households as a result of military family initiatives, some school districts will temporarily be unable to meet these criteria and will lose their heavy impact aid for several years.

Based on data from the Department of Education and the Military School Districts Association, CBO estimates that about four school districts would initially be affected by housing privatization and that these school districts receive about $18 million in heavy impact aid. Because applications for heavy impact aid are based on school district statistics from three years prior, CBO estimates that the cost of implementing this provision would occur until 2006. After adjusting for the changes in student population within the affected districts, CBO estimates that restoration of this aid would cost about $1 million per year. Since the requirements of the School Impact Aid program are not always fully funded, CBO expects that cutback in these aid formulas would likely fund this increase through reductions in aid to other school districts. CBO expects this cost would recoup annually for eight years for the privatization effort within the affected school districts, which CBO estimates to be about three years.

Section 1064 also would allow coterminous school districts (school districts whose boundaries are the same as a military base) to change the method for calculating heavy impact aid. CBO estimates that implementing this provision would change the calculation of heavy impact aid for about 200 students in two school districts and that the impact aid for these students would increase by about $2,300 per student. CBO estimates allowing this provision would cost $1 million over the 2004-2007 period. CBO expects this cost would reoccur annually for those years.
Based on delays in developing the construction plans for the proposed MOX facility, and delays in similar programs such as the Nuclear Waste Repository Site at Yucca Mountain, Nevada, and the Waste Isolation Pilot Program at Carlsbad, New Mexico, CBO believes that there is some chance that construction of the MOX facility could be delayed for several years beyond the 2007 planned completion date and that construction would not be completed by 2011. If DOE does not remove the required surplus plutonium from the state of South Carolina, DOE would need to pay up to $100 million a year to the state starting in 2011.

Direct Spending

The bill contains provisions that would increase direct spending, primarily from the phase-in of concurrent payment of retirement annuities with veterans’ disability compensation to retirees from the military and the other uniformed services who have service-connected disabilities rated at 60 percent or greater. The bill also contains a few provisions with smaller direct spending costs. In total, CBO estimates that enacting S. 2514 would result in an increase in direct spending totaling $5.6 billion over the 2003-2007 period (see Table 4).

Disability Retirees. Servicemembers who are found to be unable to perform their duties because of service-related disabilities may be granted a disability retirement. Section 641 would allow eligible disability retirees to receive retirement annuities based on their type of retirement and veterans’ disability benefits with no offset in 2007, and partial concurrent receipt of these payments in 2003 through 2006. Disability retirees would be eligible to obtain concurrent receipt of their retirement annuity and veterans’ disability compensation if they served 20 or more years in the uniformed services and had a disability rating of 60 percent or greater. Data from the uniformed services indicate that in 2001 the prohibition on paying both benefits concurrently caused about $1.3 billion to be withheld from the annuity payments of about 74,000 eligible DoD retirees with nondisability retirements, and about 900 eligible Coast Guard, PHS, and NOAA retirees. Using current rates of net growth in the population of new beneficiaries, CBO estimates that enacting the legislation would result in an increase in direct spending totaling $5.6 billion over the 2003-2007 period (see Table 4).

Retirement Annuities: Special Compensation for Severely Disabled

Table 5 provides an overview of the bill’s changes in federal outlays for retirement annuities and veterans’ disability benefits with no offset in 2007, and an increase in the annual future benefit payments will increase consistent with current rates of growth in average disability levels and also increase from cost-of-living adjustments. After phasing the benefits in over five years as specified in the legislation, CBO estimates that enacting the legislation would increase direct spending on retirement annuities for nondisability retirees of the uniformed services by $942 million in 2003, $4.7 billion over the 2003-2007 period, and $15.2 billion over the 2003-2012 period.

* Less than $500,000.
Repeal of Special Compensation for Severely Disabled Retirees. Section 641 also would repeal a special compensation program that currently pays a fixed benefit of $150 per month to retired military service retirees who were determined to be 60 percent to 100 percent disabled within four years of their retirement. These special payments were authorized under section 641. Based on information from DoD and assuming the population growth trends continue, CBO estimates that about $7,000 per month of the DoD’s $32 million retirement annuity outlays for these retirees would increase over the next two years to $172 a month. CBO estimates that the savings from repealing this program would be $49 million in 2003, $12 million in 2005–2007 period, and $600 million over the 2003–2012 period.

Increase in Accrual Payment Financing. The military retirement system is financed in part by an annual payment from appropriated funds (an outlay in budget function 550) to the Military Retirement Fund, based on an estimate of the future value of the benefits accruing to active-duty military personnel. This approach provides a smooth means of financing the retirement system. If the active-duty military personnel were not taxed on their annuities, there would be no incentive for the military to save for retirement, which might offset the benefits of the retirement system. In addition, DoD estimates that its civil service retirees are also not taxed on their annuities, there would be no incentive for the military to save for retirement, which might offset the benefits of the retirement system.

Veterans’ Disability Compensation. Data from DoD indicates that an additional 15,100 disability retirees of the uniformed services—14,500 from DoD and about 600 from the other uniformed services—do not currently receive VA disability benefits that they are entitled to receive. Many of these retirees are both disabled and quite elderly. CBO estimates that about 7,000 disability retirees might be eligible for concurrent receipt under section 641 because many of these retirees are both disabled and quite elderly. CBO expects that only about half of that number would actually become aware of this program and would apply for and be awarded these benefits. CBO estimates that about 3,500 disability retirement annuitants would increase their monthly premium to the U.S. Treasury. These payments are recorded as offsetting receipts (a credit against direct spending) to DoD and as offsetting payments to the Special Compensation to Severely Disabled Fund. Based on an estimate of the system’s accrual liabilities, CBO estimates that about $56 million per year would be transferred from the current law, some individuals would fail to obtain the necessary preauthorization from Tricare and would have to pay the copayments and deductibles on their own. Because this would result in additional spending, CBO estimates that the frequency or costs of inpatient mental health care for Medicare-eligible retirees and dependents. CBO extrapolated this data from the Federal Employee Health Benefits (FEHB) program. Section 702, CBO estimates that in 2003 TFH will cover the copayments and deductibles for about 600 additional people at an average cost of about $1,700 per person. Thus, CBO estimates that section 702 would raise direct spending by $1 million in 2003, $5 million over the 2003–2007 period, and $15 million over the 2003–2012 period.

Voluntary Separation and Early Retirement Incentives. Section 703 contains language that would authorize the DoD to offer voluntary separation incentives to their civilian employees. Taken together, CBO estimates that enacting these provisions would increase direct spending for federal retirement and retiree health care benefits by $34 million in 2004 and $196 million over the 2003–2012 period.

Section 1102 would provide DoD with authority to offer its civilian employees voluntary retirement incentive payments of up to $2,000 to those who retire or resign in fiscal years 2004 through 2006. Current buyout authority for DoD is set to expire on September 30, 2003. CBO estimates that enacting section 1102 would increase direct spending for federal retirement and retiree health care benefits by about $3 million in 2004 and about $8 million during the 2004–2012 period.

DoD Retirement Spending. CBO assumes that about 16,500 DoD employees would participate in the buyout program over the three-year period and that many workers who take a buyout would begin collecting federal retirement benefits earlier than they would under current law. CBO expects that the probable increase in total retirement outlays for DoD over the 2003–2012 period. (The discretionary costs associated with these payments are discussed earlier in the “Spending Subject to Appropriation” section under the heading of “Education Benefits.”)

Mental Health Benefits. Section 702 would remove a statutory requirement that inpatient mental health care be preauthorized for retirees and dependents who are eligible for Medicare. Under current law, Tricare for Life (TFL), another medical program run by DoD, pays all Medicare copayments and deductibles for those benefits that are covered by both programs. Beginning in 2003, TFL spending for Medicare-eligible retirees and dependents will be considered direct spending. Under current law, Medicare does not require a preauthorization for inpatient mental health care but Tricare does. Removing this requirement would reduce the mental health benefits identical and reduce confusion among beneficiaries and health care providers.

Although most individuals would seek preauthorization before receiving inpatient mental health care, CBO expects that, under current law, some individuals would fail to obtain the necessary preauthorization from Tricare and would have to pay the copayments and deductibles on their own. Because this would result in additional spending, CBO estimates that the frequency or costs of inpatient mental health care for Medicare-eligible retirees and dependents. CBO extrapolated this data from the Federal Employee Health Benefits (FEHB) program. The government’s share of the premium for these retirees—unlike current employees—is mandatory spending. Because many of those accepting the buyouts would convert from being an employee to being a retiree under current law, mandatory spending for FEHB premiums would increase. CBO estimates those additional FEHB benefits would increase direct spending by $7 million in 2004 and $2 million over the 2004–2012 period.

DOE Retiree Spending. CBO assumes that about 350 DOE employees would accept a buyout in the pilot program and that their retirement would increase direct spending by $4 million in 2004 and $7 million a year. Assuming costs fall midway within that range, CBO estimates that federal borrowing would be about $6 million starting in 2004 and total about $15 million over the 2004–2006 period.

Expenditures. The budget for each year cash proceeds collected by the corporation from the public. Any payments from federal agencies would be expected to be lower than in 2004 and would have no net budgetary impact. In contrast, any proceeds accruing to the corporation from nonfederal entities would be recorded in the federal budget. CBO estimates that proceeds from nonfederal sources would not be significant.

Land Conveyance and Other Property Transactions. Title XXVIII would authorize a variety of property transactions involving both large and small parcels of land. Section 2824 would allow the Secretary of the Army to convey 20 acres and 133 housing units located at Westover Reserve Air Base to the city of Chicopee, Massachusetts, without receiving payment for this property. Under current law, the Navy will soon declare this property excess and transfer it to the General Services Administration (GSA) for disposal. GSA sells property not needed by other federal agencies or by nonfederal entities in need of property for public-use purposes such as parks or educational facilities. Information from GSA indicates that the housing and land will likely be sold under current law after the entire parcel is screened for other uses for disposal. Under normal procedures, GSA’s expected to in the foreseeable future. Hence, the property will be sold under the pilot program and that its sale would increase direct spending by less than $500,000 a year.

Revitalizing DOE Laboratories. Section 241 would allow DOE to establish a new three-year pilot program beginning in March 2003 at various DOE laboratories to improve performance and development work at these laboratories. The section also would extend through 2006 authorizations for similar pilot projects that will expire in 2003. Finally, section 241 would permit laboratories participating in this new pilot program to enter into public-private partnerships and other business arrangements with private firms to achieve improved efficiencies. The authority to enter into such partnerships would expire in 2006.

CBO has little information about how this limited liability corporation would be structured, but one of the purposes of this corporation is to improve efficiencies to DoD’s research, test, and evaluation functions. CBO considers such hybrid entities as governmental. Hence, their activities should be recorded in the federal budget. Given the assets that are expected to be contributed by the private party as borrowed by the federal government, borrowing authority is treated as budget authority in the year and in the amounts that CBO estimates the private party would contribute to the limited liability corporation. This budgetary treatment is consistent with the recommendations of the President’s 1967 Commission on Budget Concepts, which suggests that entities jointly capitalized with private and public assets be included in the federal budget until they are completely privately owned.

CBO assumes that DoD would need about one year to develop the policies and regulations for the new corporation that would be authorized under section 241. Based on information provided by DoD, CBO estimates that the additional expenses of the limited liability corporation could total between $4 million and $7 million a year. Assuming costs

Other Provisions. The following provisions would have an insignificant budgetary impact on direct spending:

- Section 111 would extend through 2004 the authority for a pilot program that allows in-kind facilities to sell manufactured goods to the private sector even if the goods are manufactured in the domestic market. Section 111 also would direct the availability of the program. CBO estimates, however, that there would likely be less than $5 million in annual spending under this pilot program over the 2003–2004 period, based on data provided by the Army, and that since the industrial facilities are allowed to spend any sales proceeds, the net effect on direct spending would be insignificant.

- Section 622 would increase the retirement annuity of enlisted servicemen who are in the military after service before December 31, 1945. CBO estimates that enacting section 622 would increase direct spending by less than $500,000 a year.

- Section 1063 would extend through 2006 DoD’s authority to sell aircraft and aircraft parts for use in responding to oil spills. However, information from DoD indicates that DoD does not anticipate any transactions would occur under this authority.

- Section 3151 would require that the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the city of West Wendover, Nevada, and Tooele County, Utah, without consideration, two parcels of federal land located in those states and identified in the bill. According to the Bureau of Land Management, those lands, which are withdrawn for military purposes, currently generate no offsetting receipts and are not expected to in the foreseeable future. Hence, CBO estimates that conveyance would result in forgone receipts totaling about $3 million in 2004.

- Section 2828 would authorize the Secretary of the Navy to convey 30 acres and 133 housing units located at Westover Reserve Air Base to the city of Chicopee, Massachusetts, without receiving payment for this property. Under current law, the Navy will soon declare this property excess and transfer it to the General Services Administration (GSA) for disposal. GSA sells property not needed by other federal agencies or by nonfederal entities in need of property for public-use purposes such as parks or educational facilities. Information from GSA indicates that the housing and land will likely be sold under current law after the entire parcel is screened for other uses for disposal. Under normal procedures, GSA’s Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: S. 2514 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Previous CBO estimate: On May 3, 2002, CBO transmitted a cost estimate for H.R. 4546, the Bob Stump National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003 that cost $392 billion in defense funding for fiscal year 2003 ($10 billion less than S. 2514 would authorize for 2003) and an estimated $14 billion in additional defense funding for 2002 (as also contained in S. 2514).

Both H.R. 4546 and S. 2514 would increase direct spending over the 2003-2007 period, but the Senate bill contains about $20 million less spending. Both bills contain provisions that would phase in over five years total or partial payment of retirement annuities together with veterans’ disability compensation to retirees from the uniformed services who have service-connected disabilities rated at 60 percent or greater but the provisions specify different rates and schedules for phasing in these payments. Differences in the other estimated costs reflect differences in the legislation.

Mr. LEVIN. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I thank my good friend and colleague, and I look forward to hearing what he is going to say. It is no exaggeration to say that this will be our 24th year—of working together on the authorization bill.

Mr. President, I simply say to my good friend, the chairman, he mentioned that the Bush administration has yet to provide a formal national security strategy. I note that the timetable for submitting this document is not unusual. The Clinton administration did not submit its first national security strategy until well into its second year in office. In my contacts with the administration, they will soon begin submitting that national security strategy.

I thank Chairman LEVIN for the work he has done on the bill which is before the Committee. I want to thank my colleagues on the committee for their wise counsel and efforts, as well as the tremendous efforts of our committee staff. In large measure, this Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003 is a good bill and an important step forward in national security. In this time of national emergency it is essential that we provide our President and our armed forces the vital resources they need to defend our Nation, and to fight the scourge of terrorism at home and abroad.

In the end, I joined with seven of my Republican colleagues on the committee in voting against this bill in committee—primarily due to the glaring omission of $4 billion in defense funding for the Bush administration’s top priority—missile defense. Having worked hard for a year on the many critical issues related to this bill, I considered my vote against the bill necessary, but regrettable.

Despite the fact that I voted against this bill, I support most of what is contained in this legislation. It represents the bipartisan work of all committee members—working together to support our men and women in uniform, and their families.

The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2003 contains the largest defense increase in over 20 years—an increase of $45.0 billion over the fiscal year 2002 appropriated level. The good news story associated with the bill is that it has the full, bipartisan support of the Senate. While there is disagreement over how some of the money is allocated in this bill, there is virtually no dissent about the need for this significant increase in the defense budget and for defense. This is a remarkable display of unity behind our President, so important and fitting with our nation at war. In line with the request of the President, the bill significantly increases all major defense accounts over the fiscal year 2002 appropriated levels:

- It increases spending on military personnel by over 12 percent, including a 4.1 percent pay raise for our servicemen and women.
- It increases funding for operations and maintenance by over 15 percent, providing the necessary resources to fully fund our war effort.
- It increases the procurement account by almost 10 percent. This will enable us to procure the equipment they need to replace aging and heavily used assets, as well as to buy the things they need to protect our facilities, infrastructure and people in these increasingly uncertain and dangerous times.

Additionally, the bill increases spending on research and development by almost 9 percent, ensuring that investment is being made in the future to develop the capabilities we need to stop missile attacks and emerging threats to our national security.

The bill also sets aside a $10.0 billion reserve fund, as requested by the President, to pay for ongoing and future military operations in the global war on terror.

The threats to our Nation and the ongoing war on terrorism demand this increased investment in national security, both now and in the future.

The bill contains many key provisions which I support to improve the quality of life of our men and women in uniform, our retirees, and their families. In addition to the 4.1 percent pay raise for our uniformed personnel I mentioned earlier, additional funding is included for facilities and services that will greatly improve the quality of life for our service personnel and their families, at home and abroad. The bill includes a legislative provision that calls for the phased repeal of the prohibition on non-disability retired military pay and veterans disability pay for our military retirees with disabilities rated at 60 percent or higher. The committee also approved a provision sponsored by Senator Bob Smith, which will soon be considered by the full Senate, to repeal fully and immediately, the prohibition on concurrent receipt, a step which will allow all nondisability-retired veterans with VA disability ratings to collect the full amount they have earned. This action is long overdue.

It is important to note that this bill, with the exception of the cuts made to missile defense, supports and fully funds virtually all of the priorities established by the Department and the President for the development and procurement of major weapons systems, including Joint Strike Fighter, F-22 and the Army’s future combat system. In addition, I was pleased that we were able to add $229 million to the CVN(X) new generation aircraft carrier to restore the original development and fielding schedule for this essential program. The carrier proved its worth once again in Afghanistan—war which relied on carrier-based assets. This bill supports acceleration of this important program.

Despite the very favorable aspects of this bill, however, I cannot support the bill in its current form. I was joined by seven of my Republican colleagues in opposing the bill as reported by the committee.

For the second consecutive year, the Senate Armed Services Committee disagreed with the administration over the issue of missile defense. Sincere, good-faith efforts were made by Republican Members to find common ground and compromise on this issue, but these efforts were voted down. The national defense authorization bill for fiscal year 2003 that we have before us, in my view, fundamentally alters the President’s national security priorities and fails to send a clear message, on the issue of missile defense, to America’s allies and adversaries that the United States is serious about protecting our facilities, infrastructure and people in these increasingly uncertain and dangerous times.

The bill is important, but it is not the bill that the President and our troops need to win the war on terrorism. I urge my colleagues to pass a bill that is more consistent with our national security strategy.
our feeling of safety within our shores, our borders, behind two vast oceans. But from our darkest hour, our nation has quickly emerged stronger and more united than ever. Our President has rallied our country and many nations around the world to fight the evil of terrorism. As we begin our floor debate on the national defense authorization bill for fiscal year 2003, our nation is at war. U.S. soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines, together with their coalition partners, are engaged on the front lines in the global war against terrorism, with a mission to root out terrorism at its source in the hopes of preventing future attacks. Our armed forces have responded to the call of duty in the finest traditions of our nation. It is critical that the Congress keep faith with our troops by providing the resources and capabilities our President—our Commander in Chief has requested.

Homeland security is now, without a doubt, our top priority. We have a solemn obligation to protect our Nation and our citizens from all known and anticipated threats—whatever their source or means of delivery. As a candidate and as President, George W. Bush promised our Nation that homeland security was his most urgent priority.

Our President submitted a responsible, prioritized budget request for fiscal year 2003 that addressed our most important security needs. The bill before us reflects the urgent security needs of our Nation by doubling the funding for combating terrorism at home and abroad. It invests in new technologies to detect weapons of mass destruction and to deter their development. The bill provides funding and authorities for the establishment of new organizations within the Department of Homeland Defense, including the formation of Northern Command, North American Aerospace Defense Command, the maritime, air and defense of the United States. As we re-look and re-evaluate our security needs, it is especially important to remember that protection of our nation, our citizens, our deployed troops and our allies from ballistic missiles is also an integral part of homeland defense and an overall sense of security.

The budget request for missile defense was reasonable. It was a request that would progressively increase the current year's funding level, and a request that was less than two percent of the defense budget. We must use these resources to move forward now, without artificial limitations—either fiscal or legislative—to develop and deploy adequate missile defenses.

The national defense authorization bill for fiscal year 2003, as reported out of committee, contains a drastic reduction, of over $800 million, from the President's request for missile defense programs, including over $300 million in reductions to theater missile defense programs. In addition, the bill contains a number of restrictions and excessive reporting requirements that will further hamper the rapid development of missile defenses. Together, these actions have resulted in a letter from the Secretary of Defense informing the Senate that he would recommend a veto of this legislation if the reductions and restrictions on missile defense remain.

Three years ago, by a vote of 97 to 3, this body approved the National Missile Defense Act of 1999—the Cochran bill. This act established two clear goals: to deploy an effective ballistic missile defense for the United States, "as soon as technologically feasible;" and, to seek further negotiated reductions in Russian nuclear forces. Last month, President Bush signed a landmark arms control agreement, in Moscow, that will ultimately reduce the number of U.S. and Russian deployed nuclear warheads by two-thirds over the next 10 years. The second goal of the Cochran bill has been achieved. This bill formally withdrew the United States from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty—a 30-year-old treaty—which had hampered the U.S. missile defense program. With this action, all artificial restrictions have been removed from the United States to protect United States to protect the United States and our interests, and our international partners who stand with us against terrorism. I thank the distinguished chairman. I am going to a meeting on this bill tonight as to how we can order the amendments tomorrow on which I will work with the chairman.

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, one of my most important responsibilities throughout my almost 48 years in the Senate has been to vote on the annual national defense authorization bill. Congress should not apply new artificial limitations on the rapid, cost-effective development of defenses to protect our nation and deployed troops from missile attack. The funding reductions and program constraints contained in the bill before us are a significant step backward in our efforts to improve the security of our nation.

The threat of missile attack against the United States and U.S. interests is real and growing. According to the January 2002 national intelligence estimate published by the president, "The probability that a missile with a weapon of mass destruction will be used against U.S. forces or interests is higher today than during most of the cold war, and will continue to grow as the capabilities of potential adversaries mature." Dozens of nations already have short- and medium-range ballistic missiles in the field that threaten U.S. interests, military forces, and allies; and others are seeking to acquire similar missiles. We must be prepared to protect our nation.

I am also concerned with other key areas in the bill, particularly the level of funding for shipbuilding. While I understand the tough choices that our defense leaders must make in establishing priorities and putting forth budget recommendations, shipbuilding was severely underfunded in the President's budget request. The bill we are now considering provides some additional funding for shipbuilding, but I believe more must be done to reverse the downward trend in shipbuilding. We all know that we are not currently building enough ships to maintain an adequate Navy for the future. Ultimately, there will be a high price to pay in the event that this trend is not reversed. It is with these concerns in mind that I urge my colleagues to join me in constructive dialogue as a way to restore the President's fundamental national security priorities and to ensure we are making the right investments in future capabilities. It is imperative that we send our President, our citizens and the world a message that we are making the right investments.

Before discussing the bill, I want to congratulate Chairman LEVIN, and the ranking member, Senator WARNER, for their leadership of the Senate Armed Services Committee. The challenges they face in pulling together this annual bill are immense, yet, year after year, they remain undaunted in their efforts to provide the necessary tools, equipment, and adequate Navy for the future. The Cochran bill that the Senate so soundly withdrew from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty—a 30-year-old treaty—which had hampered the U.S. missile defense program. Congress should not now apply new artificial limitations on the rapid, cost-effective development of defenses to protect our nation and deployed troops from missile attack. The funding reductions and program constraints contained in the bill before us are a significant step backward in our efforts to improve the security of our nation.

It is imperative that we send our President, our citizens and the world a message that we are making the right investments.

Like all bills there are provisions that cause me concern. The most egregious in this bill is the reduction to the President’s request for missile defense. By reallocating more than $800 million requested for missile defense to other programs, the bill fundamentally alters the President’s priorities and leaves open the possibility that we will not adequately defend our Nation against a missile threat that will not go away. I urge the Senate to reverse this flawed provision.

Mr. President, in closing I remind my colleagues that this bill also provides vital funding to support our forces currently engaged in the war against terrorism. It protects our troops and our allies abroad and helps to pay for the salaries and benefits of our military personnel. It is a serious and grave mistake to request reduction in national security funding of this magnitude.

The ABM Treaty affected only defenses against intermediate-range and shorter-range missiles. It served to prevent an arms race and to enhance strategic stability. It also stated that the two Presidents “agree on the essential contribution of the ABM Treaty to reductions of offensive forces and reaffirm their commitment to continuing it as a cornerstone of strategic stability.” It also stated that “The Presidents re-affirm their commitment to continuing efforts to strengthen the ABM Treaty and to enhance its viability and effectiveness in the future, taking into account any changes in the international security environment.”

Last December 13, President Bush announced that the United States would unilaterally withdraw from the treaty. The treaty permits either side to withdraw from the treaty upon six months notice if either side decides that “extraordinary events related to the subject matter of this Treaty have jeopardized its supreme interests.” Although President Bush and members of his administration said they would try to modify the treaty to permit the development, testing and deployment of missile defense systems, in the end they did not offer an amendment to the Russians.

When he was campaigning for the presidency, then-Governor Bush gave a speech at The Citadel on September 23, 1999, in which he said: “we will offer Russia the necessary amendments to the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty—a centerpiece of the Cold War confrontation.” He went on to say: “If Russia refuses the changes we will give prompt notice, under the provisions of the Treaty, that we can no longer be a party to it.”

That seems to be a clear and straightforward position. Candidate Bush said that he intended to offer amendments to the Russians to modify the treaty so as to permit the deployment of missile defense systems, and if Russia refused the amendments the President would withdraw the United States.

But the administration didn’t propose any amendments to the treaty that would permit it to remain in effect in a modified form that, in turn, would have permitted the testing and deployment of limited missiles defenses.

Instead, we tried to sell Russia on the idea of abandoning the treaty, not modifying it. That was something the Russians were never going to accept.

Last year it was difficult to get a clear answer from the administration on its missile defense plans for fiscal year 2002, and whether they would be consistent with the ABM Treaty. First, Lieutenant General Ronald Kadish, director of the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization told us in June that he knew of no planned missile defense testing activities that would conflict with the treaty. Then in July, Deputy Defense Secretary Wolfowitz said that our planned missile defense activities would inevitably “bump up” against the treaty in a manner of months, not years. He also said that by the time a planned missile defense activity encounters ABM Treaty constraints, “we fully hope and intend to have reached an understanding with Russia” on a new security framework with Russia that would include missile defenses.

Next came an announcement on October of last year by Secretary Rumsfeld that several planned missile defense tests were being postponed because they could have violated the treaty, even though one of the tests had already been postponed previously for entirely different technical reasons.

Finally, the President announced on December 13th that the United States would unilaterally withdraw from the ABM Treaty to permit testing and deployment of missile defenses, something Deputy Secretary Wolfowitz had previously called a “less than optimal” choice.

During all months of discussions and negotiations with the Russians we never heard details of any amendments proposed by the United States to modify the permit limited missile defenses. At the end we didn’t offer an amendment to the treaty.

Secretary of State Colin Powell acknowledged this fact in a letter dated May 2, 2002 after I wrote him in January to ask whether the United States had, in fact, ever presented Russia with any proposed amendments or modifications to the treaty. “The direct answer to your first question,” Secretary Powell, “is that we did not table a proposed amendment to the ABM Treaty.”

The administration has made much of the argument that the ABM Treaty was the reason we could not develop and test missile defense technologies adequately, and thus the treaty was keeping us defenseless against ballistic missiles.

Madam President, now that the ABM Treaty has ceased to exist, I expect the administration to assert that they are finally free to make unconstrained progress toward defenses against long-range ballistic. As one example, they plan to begin construction of a missile defense test facility in Alaska, even though that would have been permitted under the treaty. Congress authorized this construction last year, and they could have begun construction while the treaty was still in force. I expect they will also seek to construct a number of other bases that would not have been permitted under the treaty, but which will not significantly advance the state of missile defense technology in the near term.

This may make good political theater, but it will not suddenly make possible rapid progress toward effective missile defenses because it wasn’t the treaty that was preventing such progress; if these technologies prove workable, it will still take many years of rigorous development, integration, testing, and refinement, and probably hundreds of billions of dollars, to produce operationally effective missile defenses—event without the ABM Treaty.

And or course, even if they prove to be technologically feasible and affordable, limited missile defenses still could be readily overwhelmed or spoofed by decoys and countermeasures that Russia or China might develop and pass on to others. In 1999, the intelligence community stated publicly that “Russia and China each have developed numerous countermeasures and probably are willing to sell the requisite technologies.” This would only make the task of developing missile defenses more difficult, more time consuming and more expensive.

So although the ABM Treaty will come to an end after 30 years, its absence will not suddenly permit effective missile defenses. That task will remain inherently difficult, expensive, and time consuming.

Furthermore, there may be long-term consequences of our withdrawal that may not yet foresee, but which may make us less secure. For example, two weeks ago it was reported that Japanese officials indicated the possibility that Japan may feel a need to pursue its own nuclear weapons. This was in response to Japanese concerns about China’s increasing nuclear forces, which in turn seems to be, at least in part, a Chinese response to our pursuit of defenses against long-range ballistic missiles. Our security will not be enhanced if it accelerates its nuclear missile forces, or if Japan then decides to pursue its own nuclear weapons.

Madam President, this is just one recent example of the kind of repercussions or consequences that may result from our unilateral withdrawal from the ABM Treaty. Other nations will act in their own self interest, and if our actions make other nations feel less secure, they will act in a manner designed to preserve their security even if it is secure. In a world with nuclear weapons, the United States cannot be secure by making other nations feel insecure. If our ballistic missile defense efforts make other nations feel less secure, they could take actions that would reduce our security.

We cannot yet foresee all the long-term reverberations from our decision to withdraw from the ABM Treaty. By taking a unilateral approach, it makes it more likely that others will act unilaterally as well. That is not the best way to increase mutual security and international stability.

Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the correspondence between Secretary of State Powell and myself on this matter be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF STATE,
Hon. CARL LEVIN,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: Thank you for your recent letters to Secretary of State for Legislative Affairs in response to your letter to the Russians concerning an amendment to the Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty.

The direct answer to your question is that we did not table a proposed amendment to the ABM Treaty. Although we did have ideas on what an amendment might look like and discussed them at length with Russia, the discussions never reached the point that such a proposal would have been appropriate. We were prepared to entertain any proposal, to include an amendment, that would allow us to do the missile defense testing we needed to do. The Russians, in the end, made it clear that, in their view, such testing would be inconsistent with the Treaty and any amendment to permit such testing would vitiate the Treaty.

The way out of this impasse was for us to leave the Treaty as provided for by the Treaty. The Russians regretted our decision, but recognized our right to withdraw.

The President was faithful to his 1999 campaign statement. We spent ten months trying to find a way to conduct our testing within the Treaty, with or without amendment. We could not find a way to do so and, therefore, we withdraw.

This issue is now behind us and we are working with the Russians on a new strategic framework.

Sincerely,

COLIN L. POWELL,
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

Hon. CARL LEVIN,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: I received a letter dated February 4, 2002 (attached) from Mr. Powell, Secretary of State, regarding your letters of January 10, 2002, concerning the Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty. Mr. Kelly’s letter did not answer my questions.

These are important questions and I feel it is essential to receive clear written answers to them. To this end, I am asking you to provide answers to these questions:

1. Did the United States ever present to the Russian government any written proposal or offer to amend or modify the ABM Treaty? If so, what specific proposal(s) did the U.S. present, where and on what date(s)?

2. If the United States did present any specific proposal(s) to the Russian government, what was the response of the Russian government to the U.S. proposal(s)?

3. If the United States did not ever present to the Russian government any proposals to modify or amend the ABM Treaty, please explain why that is the case, especially given President Bush’s comment to Russia concerning the “necessary amendments” to the ABM Treaty.

I look forward to your answers to these questions.

Sincerely,

CARL LEVIN,
Chairman.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE,

Hon. CARL LEVIN,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, U.S. Senate.

Dear Mr. Chairman: Thank you for your letters dated January 10, 2002, concerning Russia concerning the Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) Treaty.

As you know, the Administration has been engaged in intensive discussions with the Russians on a broad range of strategic issues including the best way to meet the President’s objective of moving beyond the ABM Treaty. The President made clear from his first meeting with President Putin last July, his determination to devise a new U.S. strategy that would ensure better protection against rogue state or terrorist threats. He explained how the ABM Treaty was hindering our government’s ability to develop ways to protect people from future terrorist or rogue state missile attacks. We discussed with the Russians a number of ways in which we could devise a new structure that included the Treaty in many meetings over subsequent months but, in the end, we concluded that the best way to proceed was for the United States to withdraw unilaterally. We provided notification of our decision to withdraw from the ABM Treaty on December 13. As President Putin made clear, Russia disagreed with our decision, but was not surprised by it, and judged that it was not a threat to Russian security.

Our discussions with Russia on strategic reductions were given added impetus by President Bush’s declarations of our intention to reduce our operationally deployed weapons to 1700-2200 and by President Putin’s positive response and similar intention.

We will be continuing our discussions with the Russians in the months ahead, with the objective of reaching further agreements codifying the strategic nuclear reductions we have been decided to pursue by providing for transparency and confidence-building measures relating to missile defenses.

We would be happy to provide additional briefings or information if you have further questions.

Sincerely,

PAUL V. KELLY,
Assistant Secretary, Legislative Affairs.

U.S. SENATE, COMMITTEE ON ARMED SERVICES,

Hon. COLIN POWELL,
Secretary of State, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Secretary: On September 23, 1999, at a speech at The Citadel, then-Governor and presidential candidate George W. Bush stated the following:

“At the earliest possible date, my Administration will deploy anti-ballistic missile systems, both theater and national to guard against attack and blackmail. To make this possible, we will offer Russia the necessary assurances that any new system we deploy will not render the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty an artifact of the Cold war confrontation. . . . If Russia refuses the changes we will give prompt notice, under the provisions of the Treaty, that we can no longer be a party to it.” (emphasis added)

On December 13, 2001, President Bush gave notice of his intent to withdraw the United States from the ABM Treaty. Please provide answers to the following questions:

Did the United States ever present to the Russian government any written proposal or proposals to amend or modify the ABM Treaty? If so, what specific proposal(s) did the U.S. present, where and on what date(s)?

If the United States did present any specific proposal(s) to the Russian govern-ment, what was the response of the Russian government to the U.S. proposal(s)?

If the United States did not present any pro-specific proposal(s) to the Russian government, please explain why that is the case, especially given President Bush’s commitment to offer Russia “the necessary amendments” to the ABM Treaty.

I would appreciate your prompt response to these questions.

Sincerely,

CARL LEVIN,
Chairman.
LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT
OF 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Madam President, I rise today to speak about hate crime legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY in March of last year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred March 9, 2002 in Huntington Beach, CA. Aris Gaddvang, 25, a Filipino-American store manager, was beaten in a parking lot as he prepared to unload some merchandise. The assailants shouted racial slurs and yelled “white power” before beating him with metal pipes.

I believe that government’s first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the crimes that commit acts of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

SESRIBAN MINISTRY OF INTERIOR SUPPORT FOR CRIMINALS IN KOSOVO

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, the International Crisis Group, ICG, recently issued a report on the instability and unrest in Mitrovica caused, in part, by the Serbian Ministry of In-terior’s, MUP, support of parallel securitry and administrative structures in northern Kosovo.

According to the report, Serbian officials have publicly admitted to providing salaries to over 29,800 people in Kosovo, including Serb “bridge-watchers” over the river Dan who were responsible for monitoring 26 United Nations Missions in Kosovo, UNMIK, police officers in a shootout 2 months ago.

Five Americans serving with UNMIK were injured in that incident. While my thoughts and prayers are with the po-llicemen as they recover, I find it completely unacceptable that Serbian government-backed goons have committed destabilizing acts of violence with virtual impunity. The roadblocks, armed other criminals in northern Kosovo must be brought to justice—a job per-based best handled by UNMIK police officers backed by NATO-led KFOR troops.

Now is not the time for a change in U.S. policy toward Kosovo. America must publicly and forcefully condemn any covert or overt efforts to partition
Mitrovica from the rest of Kosovo.

I encourage the State Department to find its voice on this issue, and to publicly condemn the actions of the bridgewatchers and their supporters in Belgrade. This issue should not be left to the gentle massage of quiet diplomacy—this is a cancer that must be treated in an aggressive and forthright manner.

It seems clear to me that if Serbia has 50,000,000 Euro to support the partition of Kosovo, the U.S. Congress should consider reducing future foreign assistance to Serbia by an equivalent amount.

The reformers in Serbia know they have my full support and encouragement. However, Serbia would be wise to invest its revenues in its own political, economic, legal, and social reforms rather than fomenting and sponsoring regional unrest.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

DISABLED VETERAN OF THE YEAR

Ms. MIKULSKI. Madam President, today I pay tribute to Thomas E.
Bratten, Jr., the National Disabled
Veterans of the Year. Captain Bratten has distinguished himself as a champion for vet-ers and the disabled throughout his career as a public servant and in his volunteer contributions to the com-unity. Captain Bratten’s dedication continues today through his service as the Secretary of Maryland’s Department of Veterans Affairs.

As an Army artilllary liaison officer in the Americal Division, the famous 5th Battalion 6th Infantry, Secretary
Bratten served under Colonel Norman Schwarzkopf. They were serving together on May 28, 1970, when Secretary
Bratten lost both his left arm and leg when a land mine exploded while they attempted to aid wounded soldiers. But that didn’t prevent Secretary Bratten from continuing to serve his country.

Secretary Bratten has improved his nation and community through an impressive number of volunteer appointments. He served on the Garrett County Criminal on Abuse, the Governor’s Commission for Employment of the Handicapped, the Governor’s Commission to Study the Needs of the Handicapped, the Maryland
World War II Memorial Commission, the Maryland Military Monument Commission, and the Maryland Veterans Memorial Commission.

As one of Maryland’s most highly decorated veterans, Secretary Bratten is a member of the honor society and congressionally chartered veterans organizations, including the Military Order of Foreign Wars, the American Veterans Association and the distinguished Military Order of the Purple Heart. He has served as the Director of the Maryland Veterans Commission, is a member of the National Association of State Directors of Veterans Affairs, and has sat on countless other committees dedicated to improving the lives of America’s veterans.

I am so proud of Tom. His record of service in America’s military and in Maryland civic life as an advocate for veterans and the disabled are unique and unparalleled. He is the best example of what Marylanders can accomplish when they dedicate themselves to their communities, state, and country, no matter what the circumstances. He has served America with honor. I congratulate Tom as he continues to bear the mantle of leadership and service as the DAV’s veteran of the year.

ROCKY FLATS SECURITY TEAM—SIMPLY THE BEST

Mr. ALLARD. Madam President, I am proud to announce that the Rocky Flats Closure Project security team was named the DOE’s “Team of the Year” by placing first out of 12 teams representing nuclear facilities at the 30th Annual Security Police Officer Training Competition at Oak Ridge,
TN earlier this month. The Wackenhut Services security police officers team won the competition when they dedicate time to their communities, state, and country, and environmental cleanup and

TRIBUTE TO KAHUKU HIGH AND INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

Mr. INOUYE. Madam President, I wish to pay tribute to Kahuku High and Intermediate School for its successful participation in the We the People: The Citizen and the Constitution national competition. Kahuku recently won the top award in the contest’s Unit 3 category called “How the Values and Principles Embodied in the Constitution Shaped American Institutions and Practices.”

The three-day competition, sponsored by the Center for Civic Education in Washington, DC, provided an opportunity for students throughout the country to apply constitutional principles and historical facts to contemporary situations. The Kahuku students joined hundreds of other students nationwide in illustrating their knowledge of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights before simulated congressional committees made up of constitutional scholars, lawyers, journalists, and government leaders. Students who participate in this program honor the rights afforded them by the Constitution, and they accept and practice their civic responsibilities.

Hawaii is proud of these students’ award-winning performance. I commend them for their hard work in pursuit of worthy goals. I hope that their knowledge and understanding of America’s ideals and values will guide them as they become our future leaders.

My colleagues may be interested to know that a team from Kahuku High and Intermediate School represented Hawaii in eight of the past 10 national competitions. Their success is a testament to the inspirational efforts of Kahuku High and Intermediate School teacher Sandra Cashman. I also wish to acknowledge the contributions of District Coordinator Sharon Kauhi and State Coordinator Lylla Berg.

THOMAS A. ATHENS

Mr. DURBIN. Madam President, it is with sadness that I speak today about the death of a distinguished citizen of Illinois, Thomas Athens, who is survived by his wife, Irene, and their three children. Mr. Athens had a lifetime of outstanding achievement and service to God, this great nation, his home state of Illinois, and his fellow countrymen.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Athens attended Northwestern University and then served in the United States Army during the Second World War. Outside of his military service, Mr. Athens strove constantly to be engaged in philanthropic activity. Whether it was the Greek Orthodox Church, the United Hellenic American Congress, UHAC, or the National Steel Distributors, Mr. Athens used his time and magnetic personality to build and support these organizations.

As a member of the Board of Directors and finance chairman of UHAC since 1975, Mr. Athens’ dynamism helped the group to stay true to the ideals of Hellenism, while reaching sound levels of financial stability. He also served as the National Treasurer of the Association of Steel Distributors, receiving its Steel Man of the year Award in 1969. In addition, Mr. Athens has served as the National Chairman of the Lake Forest College Parent’s Fund and is an Honorary Trustee of Deree-Pierce College.

Mr. Athens had a deep-seated passion for his Church. He was a founding member of the Archbishop Iakovos Leadership 100 Fund, an endowment fund for the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese in America and was instrumental in building its initial member base. He was also a founder of Saints Peter and Paul Greek Orthodox Church in Glenview, Illinois, and served on the parish council for many years. Mr. Athens has been the recipient of numerous awards, demonstrative of his passion for service to his Church and community. Among them may have been The Ellin Island Medal of Honor Award in 1999 and the Knighthood of Mikros Stravroforos of the Knights of the Orthodox Crossbearers of the All Holy Sepulchre recognition from the Patriarchate of Jerusalem in 1982. He has also received the Medal of St. Andrews in 1980 and the Medal of St. Paul in 1979 from the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese and the office of “Archon Deputatos” from the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople in 1977.

Mr. Athens, with his brother Andrew, co-founded Metron Steel Corporation, one of the largest independent steel service centers, in 1950. He served as the Executive Vice President until he retired in 1985.

The Greek-American community and the people of Illinois have lost someone who spent his life making a contribution to the values and organizations he loved. And many of us have lost a friend.

NATIONAL FACILITY OF THE YEAR AWARD

Mr. HOLLINGS. Madam President, I wish to commend the air traffic controllers of the Columbia Air Traffic Control Tower, which was selected as the National Facility of the Year for ATC level 7. The award will be presented to them on Wednesday, June 26, 2002.

These controllers have shown a distinct dedication to their work and should be very proud of this high honor. The award is given annually to the Air Traffic Control Tower which demonstrates superiority in operational efficiency, customer service, communications, employee development, external relations, resource management and human relations. The professionalism and positive employee attitude which contributed to this award were also cited as factors in honoring them with this award.

In this time of threat to our nation, I am very proud of the Columbia Air Traffic Controllers in South Carolina for maintaining the necessary support, setting a new standard for the rest of the nation.

I greatly appreciate their hard work over the past year. I am confident that they will continue to operate in a superior manner and know they understand that the citizens of this country appreciate what they do. I know I do every time I fly in and out of Columbia, our State Capital.

TRIBUTE TO TOBY MILBERG NEEDLER

Mrs. CLINTON. Madam President, I rise today to honor Toby Milberg Needler, an outstanding New Yorker, who has served the students of New York City’s public schools for more than 30 years. On June 27, 2002, Ms. Needler will retire from her position as Vice Principal of the esteemed Washington Irving High School where she also served as Director of the school’s distinguished Arts program.

The success of the Arts Program is largely the result of Ms. Needler’s dedication and resolve. Skillfully combining the support of private business with her education plan, established an inspiring level of credibility with her supervisors and peers. This greatly benefited the program she both developed and administered.

She was most revered, however, for the special relationships she developed with her students. Ms. Needler has been a listener, a protector, an advocate and a constant source of energy for young people who confront the challenges that adolescence may bring.

Ms. Needler’s career is marked by her creative effort to integrate the world of arts into the lives of her students. Many of those who are familiar with the Washington Irving High School’s Arts Program, attribute its success to Ms. Needler’s vision, hard work and commitment. Since her arrival the program has expanded beyond bounds. Nearly 100 percent of its graduates are admitted to four-year colleges. We owe a great debt of gratitude to Ms. Needler’s dedication.

Ms. Needler’s legacy will endure in the hearts and minds of those whose lives she touched. I commend Ms. Needler for her tremendous achievements. She exemplifies the high-quality of teaching and public service that we aspire to instill in all those dedicated individuals entrusted with the education of our nation’s young people.
RECOGNITION OF NATIONAL BLUE RIBBON SCHOOLS IN MARYLAND

Mr. SARBANES. Madam President, I am proud to recognize the four schools throughout Maryland that were selected as Blue Ribbon School Award winners in 2002. These schools are among only 172 schools nationwide to be honored with the most prestigious national school recognition for public and private schools.

According to the Department of Education, Blue Ribbon Schools have been judged as particularly effective in meeting local, state and national goals. These schools also display the qualities that are necessary to prepare our young people for the challenges that will face our nation in the years to come. Blue Ribbon status is awarded to schools which have strong leadership; a school community with a clear vision and shared sense of mission; high-quality teaching; a challenging and up-to-date curriculum; policies and practices that ensure a safe and learning conducive environment; a solid commitment to family involvement; evidence that the school helps students achieve high standards; and a commitment to share best practices with other schools.

The designation as a Blue Ribbon School is a ringing endorsement of the successful practices that enable the students of these schools to succeed and achieve. After a screening process by appropriate state and local departments, the Blue Ribbon School nominations were forwarded to the U.S. Department of Education. A panel of outstanding educators from around the country then reviewed the nominations, selected schools for site visits, and made recommendations to the Secretary of Education.

Over the past few years, I have tried to visit Blue Ribbon Schools in my State and have always been delighted to witness the strong interaction between parents, teachers, and the community, a characteristic shared by all of these successful schools. As I carry out my visits, I look forward to personally congratulating the students, teachers and staff for achieving this exceptional accomplishment.

The four winning Maryland schools are:

Our Lady of Good Counsel, located in Montgomery County, is an outstanding example of a school willing to go to great lengths to prepare its students for higher education. Good Counsel prides itself on the quality of its academic offerings, faculty, students, and unique community spirit. In an effort to ensure all students are college-ready, Good Counsel undertook an immense mission when it established the Ryken Program: a college preparatory program for motivated students with learning disabilities. Unique to Good Counsel, compared to other private schools in the metro area, is its program of technology in the classroom, including three state-of-the-art computer labs, seven departmental technology rooms, and a laptop in each classroom. The successes that Good Counsel graduates find in college and careers attest to the school’s overall excellence.

Phillips School, Laurel, has been a staple of special education, providing services to students with a variety of learning, emotional, and behavioral disabilities. Over the past few years, Phillips School greets the challenge of teaching children with special needs with open arms, addressing not only the needs of the student, but the needs of the family as well. The Phillips staff also includes a technology counselor, so that working with students is a team effort and the needs of each and every student are addressed throughout the entire school day. By providing a program of education, family support services, community education and advocacy in a supportive environment, Phillips works hard to ensure its students will be able to succeed in the next stage of life.

Wootton High School, located in Montgomery County, is a public high school with a college preparatory and high student motivation. Established in 1970, Wootton has a long history of excellence in academics and student participation. Wootton strives to create an exceptional learning environment supporting pride and achievement. Student involvement has been one of the primary focuses at Wootton in recent years, encouraging students not only to participate in school activities themselves, but also to lead others. Historically, 90 percent of Wootton graduates go on to attend college. This statistic is a direct reflection of the school wide dedication of Wootton staff to work with all students to support and ensure their success. As Wootton’s enrollment and diversity expand, it continues its dedication to ensuring all students excel.

Windsor Knolls Middle School, located in Frederick County, is a public middle school embodying a challenging, multifaceted learning community. Their strong commitment to success is easily quantified by student statistics, high scores on the CRBS tests, Maryland Functional tests, CTBS, and MSPAP tests. However, a better understanding of the excellence at Windsor Knolls can be gained by observing students. They are consistently immersed into a world of education through programs involving cultural awareness, character education, community interaction, and many other groundbreaking programs. These techniques and outstanding dedication by the community are key to Windsor Knolls’ consistent success.

Again, I congratulate all of the students, teachers and parents from these outstanding schools for receiving the National Blue Ribbon School Award. It is a well-deserved tribute to their dedication and commitment.

As the school year closes, I wish all of them an enriching and restful summer and continued success in the future.

DRAFT OF PROPOSED LEGISLATION ENTITLED “HOMELAND SECURITY ACT OF 2002”—PM 92

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Government Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

The President hereby transmits this proposed legislation to create a new Cabinet Department of Homeland Security.

Our Nation faces a new and changing threat unlike any we have faced before—the global threat of terrorism. No nation is immune, and all nations must act decisively to protect against this constantly evolving threat.

We must recognize that the threat of terrorism is a permanent condition, and we must take action to protect America against the terrorists that seek to kill the innocent.

Since September 11, 2001, all levels of government and leaders from across the political spectrum have cooperated like never before. We have strengthened our aviation and tightened our borders. We have stockpiled medicines to defend against bioterrorism, and improved our ability to combat weapons of mass destruction. We have dramatically improved information sharing among our intelligence agencies, and we have taken new steps to protect our critical infrastructure.

Our Nation is stronger and better prepared today than it was on September 11. Yet, we can do better. I propose the most extensive reorganization of the Federal Government since the 1940s by creating a new Department of Homeland Security. For the first time we would have a single Department whose primary mission is to secure our homeland. Soon after the Second World War, President Harry Truman recognized that our Nation’s fragmented military defenses needed reorganization to help win the Cold War. President Truman proposed uniting our military forces under a single entity, now the Department of Defense, and creating the National Security Council to bring together defense, intelligence, and diplomacy. President Truman’s reforms are still helping us to fight terror abroad, and today we need similar dramatic reforms to secure our people at home.

President Truman and Congress reorganized our Government to meet a very visible enemy in the Cold War. Today our nation must once again reorganize our Government to protect against an often-invisible enemy, an enemy that hides in the shadows and an enemy that can strike with many different types of weapons. Our enemies seek to obtain the most dangerous and deadly weapons of mass destruction, and use them against the innocent. While we are winning the war on terrorism, Al Qaeda and other terrorist organizations still have thousands of trained killers spread across the globe plotting attacks against America and the other nations of the civilized world.

Immediately after last fall’s attack, I used my legal authority to establish the White House Office of Homeland Security, directed Homeland Security Advisor Tom Ridge to study the Federal Government’s organization, and directed the Secretary of Homeland Security to determine if the current structure allows us to meet the threats of today while preparing for the unknown threats of tomorrow. After careful study of the current structure, coupled with the experience gained since September 11 and new information we have learned about our enemies while fighting a war, I have concluded that our Nation needs a more unified homeland security structure.

I propose to create a new Department of Homeland Security by substantially transforming the current confusing patchwork of government activities into a single department whose primary mission is to secure our homeland. My proposal builds on the strong and growing consensus among Members of Congress. As a result, the Department of Homeland Security Advisory Commission concluded that our Nation needs a single department whose primary mission is to secure our homeland. My proposal builds on the strong and growing consensus among Members of Congress. My proposal builds on the strong and growing consensus among Members of Congress.

The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur.

Today no Federal Government agency has homeland security as its primary mission. Responsibilities for homeland security are dispersed among more than 100 different entities of the Federal Government. America needs a unified homeland security structure that will improve protection against today’s threats and be flexible enough to help meet the unknown threats of tomorrow.

The mission of the new Department would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur.

Our enemies today seek to acquire our most powerful weapons—chemical, biological, radiological, and nuclear weapons. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur.

The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur. The Department of Homeland Security would be to prevent terrorist attacks within the United States, to reduce America’s vulnerability to terrorism, and to minimize the damage and recover from attacks that may occur.
against new weapons. It would consolidate and prioritize the disparate homeland security-related research and development programs currently scattered throughout the executive branch, and the Department would assist State and local public safety agencies by evaluating equipment and setting standards.

INFORMATION ANALYSIS AND INFRASTRUCTURE PROTECTION

For the first time, the Government would have under one roof the capability to identify and assess threats to the homeland, map those threats against our vulnerabilities, issue timely warnings, and take action to secure the homeland.

The Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection division of the new Department of Homeland Security would complement the reforms on intelligence-gathering and information-sharing already underway at the FBI and CIA. The Department would analyze information and intelligence from the FBI, CIA, and many other Federal agencies to better understand the terrorist threat to the American homeland.

The Department would comprehensively assess the vulnerability of America’s key assets and critical infrastructure, including food and water systems, agriculture, health systems and emergency services, information and telecommunications, banking and finance, energy, transportation, the chemical and defense industries, postal and shipping entities, and national monuments and icons. The Department would integrate its own and others’ threat analyses with its comprehensive vulnerability assessment to identify protective priorities and support protective steps to be taken by the Department, other Federal departments and agencies, State and local agencies, and the private sector. Working closely with State and local officials, other Federal agencies, and the private sector, the Department would help ensure that proper steps are taken to protect high-risk potential targets.

OTHER COMPONENTS

In addition to these four core divisions, the submitted legislation would also transfer responsibility for the Secret Service to the Department of Homeland Security. The Secret Service, which would report directly to the Secretary of Homeland Security, would retain its primary mission to protect the President and other Government leaders. The Secret Service would, however, contribute its specialized protective expertise to the fulfillment of the Department’s core mission.

Finally, under my legislation, the Department of Homeland Security would consolidate and streamline relations with the Federal Government for America’s State and local governments. The new Department would contain a unified Office of State and Local Affairs, an office to coordinate Federal homeland security programs with State and local officials. It would give State and local officials one primary contact instead of many when it comes to matters related to training, equipment, planning, and other critical needs such as emergency response.

The consolidation of the Government’s homeland security efforts as outlined in my proposed legislation can achieve great efficiencies that further enhance our security. Yet, to achieve these efficiencies, the new Secretary of Homeland Security would require considerable flexibility in procurement, personnel issues. My proposed legislation provides the Secretary of Homeland Security with just such flexibility and managerial authorities. I call upon the Congress to implement these measures in order to ensure that we are maximizing our ability to secure our homeland.

Even with the creation of the new Department, there will remain a strong need for a White House Office of Homeland Security. Protecting America from Terrorism will remain a multi-departmental issue and will continue to require interagency coordination. Presidents will continue to require the confidential advice of a Homeland Security Advisor, and I intend for the White House Office of Homeland Security and the Homeland Security Council to maintain a strong role in coordinating our nation-wide efforts to secure the homeland.

THE LESSONS OF HISTORY

History teaches us that new challenges require new organizational structures. History also teaches us that critical security challenges require clear lines of responsibility and the unified effort of the U.S. Government.

President Truman said, looking at the lessons of the Second World War: “It is now time to discard obsolete organizational structures. It is time to provide for the future the soundest, the most effective, and the most economical kind of structure for our armed forces.” When skeptics told President Truman that this proposed reorganization was too ambitious to be enacted, he simply replied that it had to be. In the years to follow, the Congress acted upon President Truman’s recommendation, eventually laying a sound organizational foundation that enabled the United States to win the Cold War. All Americans today enjoy the inheritance of this landmark organizational reform: a unified Department of Defense that has become the most powerful force for freedom the world has ever seen.

Today America faces a threat that is wholly different from the threat we faced during the Cold War. Our terrorist enemies hide in shadows and attack civilians with whatever means of destruction they can access. But as in the Cold War, meeting this threat requires the unity of our country and the unified efforts of government at all levels—Federal, State, local, and tribal—the private sector, and all Americans. America needs a homeland security establishment that can help prevent catastrophic attacks and mobilize national resources for an enduring conflict while protecting our Nation’s values and liberties.

Years from today, our world will still be fighting the threat of terrorism. It is my hope that future generations will be able to look back on the Homeland Security Act of 2002—as we now remember the National Security Act of 1947—as the solid organizational foundation for America’s triumph in a long and difficult struggle against a formidable enemy.

History has given our Nation new challenges—and important new assignments. Only the United States Congress can create a new Department of Government. We face an urgent need, and I am pleased that Congress has responded to my call to act before the end of the current congressional session with the same bipartisan spirit that allowed us to act expeditiously on legislation after September 11.

These are times that demand bipartisan action and bipartisan solutions to meet the new and changing threats we face as a Nation. I urge the Congress to join with me in creating a permanent department with an overriding and urgent mission—securing the homeland of America and protecting the American people. Together we can meet this ambitious deadline and help ensure that the American homeland is secure against the terrorist threat.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS—JUNE 17, 2002

By Mr. INOUYE.

S. 2630. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to improve benefits for Filipino veterans of World War II and surviving spouses of such veterans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce legislation that would amend title 38 of the United States Code to provide health care and burial benefits to all Filipino veterans of World War II and their spouses who reside in the United States.

Many of you are aware of my continued advocacy on the importance of addressing the plight of Filipino World War II veterans. As an American, I believe the treatment of Filipino World War II veterans is bleak and shameful. The Philippines became a United States possession in 1898, when it was ceded from Spain following the Spanish–American War. In 1934, the Congress enacted the Philippine Independence Act, Public Law 73-127, which provided a 10-year time frame for the independence of the Philippines. Between 1934 and final independence in 1946, the United States retained certain powers over the Philippines, including the right to call all military forces organized by the newly-formed Commonwealth government into the service of the United States Armed Forces.

The Commonwealth Army of the Philippines was called to serve with the United States Armed Forces in the Far East during World War II under President Roosevelt's July 7, 1941, military order. The Filipinos who served were entitled to full veterans' benefits by reason of their active service with our armed forces. Hundreds were wounded in battle and many hundreds died in battle. Shortly after Japan's surrender, the Congress also enacted the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1945 for the purpose of sending Filipino troops to occupy enemy lands, and to oversee military installations at various overseas locations. These troops were not allowed to receive pay and allowances for services performed throughout the Western Pacific. Although hostilities had ceased, wartime service of these troops continued as a matter of law until the end of 1946.

Despite all of their sacrifices, on February 18, 1946, the Congress enacted the Recession Act of 1946, now codified as section 107 of title 38 of the United States Code. The 1946 Act deemed that the service performed by these Filipino veterans would not be recognized as "active service" for the purpose of any U.S. law conferring "rights, privileges, or benefits." Accordingly, section 107 denied Filipino veterans access to health care, particularly for non-service-connected disabilities, and pension benefits. Section 107 also limited service-connected disability and death compensation to 50 percent of what is received by their American counterparts.

On May 27, 1946, the Congress enacted the Second Supplemental Surplus Appropriations Recession Act, which duplicated the language that had eliminated Filipino veterans' benefits under the First Recession Act. Thus, Filipino veterans who fought in the service of the United States during World War II have been precluded from receiving most of the veterans' benefits that had been available to them before 1946, and that are available to all other veterans of our armed forces regardless of race, national origin, or citizenship status.

The Health Care for Filipino World War II Veterans Act includes four provisions: health care and nursing home care access for Filipino veterans residing in the United States; dependency and indemnity compensation for surviving spouses of certain Filipino veterans, provided the surviving spouse lived in the United States; an increase in the payment amount from 50 to 100 percent of the disability compensation for new Philippine Scout veterans residing in the United States and burial benefits for new Philippine Scout veterans. All these measures will assist Filipino veterans in their twilight years, and the bill is fully supported by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Throughout the years, I have sponsored several measures to redress the lack of appreciation America has shown to those gallant men and women who stood in harm's way with our American soldiers and fought the common enemy during World War II. It is time that we, as a Nation, recognize our obligations and our friendship with the Philippines. The legislation I introduce today will remove the burden of health care and burial costs for a very deserving group of highly decorated individuals: members of the Philippine Commonwealth Army and new Philippine Scouts who valiantly fought with the Allied forces in the Second World War. These groups have been neglected by the United States Congress.

Heroes should never be forgotten or ignored. Let us not allow our backs on those who sacrificed so much. Let us now work to repay all of these brave men and women for their sacrifices by providing them the veterans' benefits they deserve. I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2630

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the "Health Care for Filipino World War II Veterans Act."

SEC. 2. ELIGIBILITY FOR HEALTH CARE OF CERTAIN ADDITIONAL FILIPINO WORLD WAR II VETERANS RESIDING IN THE UNITED STATES.

The text of section 1734 of title 38, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) The Secretary shall furnish hospital and nursing home care and medical services to individuals described in subsection (b) in the same manner, and subject to the same terms and conditions, as apply to the furnishing of such care and services to individuals who are veterans as defined in section 101(2) of this title. Any disability of an individual described in subsection (b) that is a service-connected disability for purposes of this subchapter (as provided for under section 1735(2) of this title) shall be considered to be a service-connected disability for purposes of furnishing care and services under this preceding sentence.

(b) Subsection (a) applies to any individual who:

(1) is a Commonwealth Army veteran or new Philippine Scout and who—

"(A) is residing in the United States; and

(B) is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence.

SEC. 3. RATE OF PAYMENT OF DEPENDENCY AND INDEMNITY COMPENSATION FOR SURVIVING SPOUSES OF CERTAIN FILIPINO VETERANS.

(a) RATE OF PAYMENT. — Subsection (c) of section 107 of title 38, United States Code, is amended by inserting "and under chapter 13 of this title," after "chapter 12 of this title."
the date of enactment of this Act and shall apply to benefits paid for months beginning on or after that date.

SEC. 4. RATE OF PAYMENT OF COMPENSATION BENEFITS FOR NEW PHILIPPINE SCOUTS RESIDING IN THE UNITED STATES.

(a) RATE OF PAYMENT.—Section 107 of title 38, United States Code, as amended by section 3(a), is further amended—

(1) in the second sentence of subsection (b), by striking "50 percent" and inserting "75 percent"; and

(2) in subsection (c)—

(A) by inserting "or (b)" after "subsection (a)" the first place it appears; and

(B) by striking "subsection (a)" the second place it appears and inserting "the applicable subsection".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and shall apply to benefits paid for months beginning on or after that date.

SEC. 5. BURIAL BENEFITS FOR NEW PHILIPPINE SCOUTS.

(a) BENEFIT ELIGIBILITY.—Subsection (b)(2) of section 107 of title 38, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "and" and inserting "or"; and

(2) by striking clause (23) and clause (24) (to the extent provided for in section 2402(b) of this title) after "1312(a)"

(b) BENEFIT RATE FOR CERTAIN PERSONS IN THE TERRITORIES.—Subsection (d) of such section is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting "or subsection (b), as the case may be," after "subsection (a)"; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by inserting "or whose service is described in subsection (b) and who dies on or after the date of the enactment of this Act" after "subsection (a)".

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 2402(b) of such title is amended by inserting "or 107(b)" after "107(a)

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply with respect to deaths occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS—JUNE 18, 2002

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself and Mrs. MURRAY).

S. 2631. A bill to amend the temporary assistance to needy families program under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act to provide grants for transitional jobs programs, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Madam President, I rise today to introduce the STEP Act on behalf of myself and Senator MURRAY.

This bill is a companion to the Education Works Act, which I introduced a couple of weeks ago. Both bills address the same issue, the need to support state efforts to use welfare to work strategies that combine work with a flexibility mix of education, training, and other supports. Study after study has demonstrated that states that use a combination of activities to help families move from welfare to work are more successful. For many welfare recipients, vocational training and post-secondary education led to work and, through substantial increases in earnings and job quality, long-term financial independence. This is important because although many have left welfare for several years, many have returned or live in poverty dependent on other government supports because they are working at low wages with limited benefits. In addition, many with multiple barriers remain in the rolls. As we move forward with the reauthorization process, we must do more to support state efforts to help these people find work and to ensure that all individuals leaving welfare are moving to employment that will provide long-term financial independence. The STEP Act and the Education Works Act will do just that.

The Education Works Act deals with increasing state flexibility to determine the right mix of work with education, training, and other supports. The STEP Act provides resources to States seeking to implement effective programs that combine work with education and training. One of the most effective types of these programs, particularly for the most difficult to serve TANF recipients, are transitional job programs. Transitional job programs provide subsidized, temporary, wage-paying jobs for 20 to 35 hours per week, along with access to job readiness, basic education, vocational skills, and other barrier-removal services based on individualized plans. The STEP Act would provide states with funding to implementing these programs and other training and support programs.

Existing transitional job programs are achieving great outcomes. A Mathematical study released last month demonstrated that between 81 to 94 percent of those who had completed transitional job programs move to unsubsidized jobs with wages. Most of these participants moved into unsubsidized employment, median hours worked was 40 hours. Another survey revealed that transitional job programs completers reported average wages at placement into unsubsidized employment between $7 and $10 per hour.

Transitional jobs programs can be particularly effective with the hardest to serve welfare recipients. Transitional jobs program often focus primarily on welfare recipients who have struggled and failed in unemployment and training programs without successfully finding steady employment. The reasons for their inability to find and sustain meaningful employment are complex and varied. For people who face barriers, or who lack the skills or experience to compete successfully in the labor market, paid work in a supportive environment, together with access to needed services provides a real chance to move forward. While more expensive than other work first strategies, if these programs are able to do what their cheaper and less intensive counterparts have not, help the most difficult to serve TANF participants find stable, permanent employment.

Additional support for transitional job programs is needed. The TANF and Welfare-to-Work block grants have been the principal sources of funding for transitional jobs programs. Welfare-to-Work funds have been exhausted in many parts of the country and must be spend completely during the next year or two. In addition, with an ever growing competition for TANF funds in a period of rising caseloads and declining State revenues, it will be increasingly difficult to fund transitional job programs solely with TANF funds.

I believe that transitional job programs are good investments because they serve as stepping stones to permanent employment and decrease government expenditures on health care, food stamps, and cash assistance. Transitional jobs programs can be particularly important in economically depressed and rural areas because they increase work opportunities for hard-to-employ individuals, they reduce dependence on local emergency systems and, they provide income that stimulates local economies.

Our legislation also supports "business link" programs that provide individuals with fewer barriers or individuals who have only been able to access very low wage employment with intensive training and skill development activities designed to lead to long-term, higher paid employment. These programs are based on partnerships with the private sector.

In my home State, just such a program is producing great results. The Teamworks program. Teamworks provides training in life skills, as well as employment skills, during a 12 week course. The program also provides necessary support to participants such as childcare and transportation. Teamworks also assists participants in their job search and provides ongoing support for 18 months after job placement. The results are impressive. The average wage of those completing the program is $1.50 per hour higher than other programs, and job retention rates are 20 percent higher. This experience is not unique. Welfare programs that combine work with education and training with support services are more likely to result in work leads to self-sufficiency. The legislation that I am introducing today will give States the tools to implement what works. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting both the STEP Act and the Education Works Act. I as unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

Act may be cited as the "Support, Training, Employment Programs Act of 2002" or the "STEP Act of 2002".
SEC. 2. TRANSITIONAL JOBS GRANTS.

Section 403(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 603(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(b) AUTHORITY TO MAKE GRANTS.—Each transitional jobs program shall be coordinated with the States and other relevant agencies to ensure that such funds are used for the purposes stated in subsection (a), and to enhance the opportunity to make the transition to unsubsidized employment.

"(c) ELIGIBILITY.—Eligible applicants for grants under this section shall be the public or private nonprofit organizations in the States that apply for grants under this section and that meet the requirements of subsection (b).

"(d) USE OF FUNDS.—Funds made available under this section shall be used to provide transitional jobs programs that are in demand within the States of the recipients of such funds.

"(e) LIMITATIONS ON USE OF FUNDS.—Funds made available under this section shall not be used to provide transitional jobs programs for the construction or acquisition of physical facilities.

"(f) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the use of funds made available under this section.

SEC. 3. TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAMS.

Section 402(a)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 602(a)(4)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(C) TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAM.—The term 'transitional jobs program' means a program that is administered by a public or private nonprofit organization in the United States that is eligible to receive a grant under section 403(a) of the Social Security Act.

"(D) TRANSITIONAL JOBS GRANTS.—A State to which a grant is made under this section may use such funds for the purposes stated in subsection (b). Such grants shall be made to States for the purpose of providing transitional jobs programs for the construction or acquisition of physical facilities.

"(E) LIMITATIONS ON USE OF FUNDS.—Funds made available under this section shall be used to provide transitional jobs programs that are in demand within the States of the recipients of such funds.

"(F) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this section, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the use of funds made available under this section.

SEC. 4. TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAMS.

Section 403(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 603(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(C) TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAM.—The term 'transitional jobs program' means a program that is administered by a public or private nonprofit organization in the United States that is eligible to receive a grant under section 403(a) of the Social Security Act.
where work is performed directly for the program operator, who perform comparable work at the worksite where the individual is placed. If no other employees perform the same or similar work then wages shall be set, at a minimum, at 50 percent of the Lower Living Standard Income Level (in this subparagraph referred to as the ‘LLSIL’), as specified in (20) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, for family of 3 based on 33 hours per week.

(VIII) Participants shall receive supervisory duties of the employer or program operator consistent with the goal of addressing the limited work experience and skills of program participants.

(ii) CONSULTATION.—An application submitted by an entity seeking to become a program operator shall include an assurance by the appropriate local service provider that the proposed program will be carried out by the applicant as follows:

(I) Provide in the design, recruitment, and operation of the program for broad-based input from the community served and potential participants in the program and community-based agencies with a demonstrated record of experience in providing services, programs, and opportunities for the development of career-related skills and other opportunities for work and business development. The Secretary shall by regulation develop procedures for the prompt consideration and resolution of requests by a State to exceed the 20 percent limitation under clause (v)(I) if necessary because of the limited number of placement opportunities in public and nonprofit organizations in rural areas of the State, but only if the State includes in its plan a request to exceed such limitation and provides specific information describing why such a request is necessary because of the limited number of placement opportunities.

(ii) Prior to the placement of participants, consult with the appropriate local labor organization, if any, representing employees in the area who are engaged in the same or similar work as that proposed to be carried out by such program to ensure compliance with the nondisplacement requirements specified in subparagraph (L).

(iii) FOR OTHER WORK SUPPORT.—Participating entities shall be eligible for any support that is available to an individual in an unsubsidized position at the completion of the transitional job program participant, provided that the transitional jobs participant job performance has been satisfactory; and

(iv) TO PROVIDE THE PARTICIPANT WITH ACCESS TO EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES.—To provide the participant with access to employer benefits that would be available to an individual in an unsubsidized position of the employer within 12 months of the participant’s initial placement in the unsubsidized position.

(iii) EXCEPTION TO 20 PERCENT LIMITATION ON PRIVATE SECTOR PLACEMENTS.—(I) A private, for-profit entity may exceed the 20 percent limitation under clause (v)(I) if necessary because of the limited number of placement opportunities in public and nonprofit organizations in rural areas of the State, but only if the State includes in its plan a request to exceed such limitation and provides specific information describing why such a request is necessary because of the limited number of placement opportunities.

(ii) LIMITATION REMAINS IN NON-DESIGNATED AREAS.—If a request to exceed such 20 percent limitation is approved, the 20 percent limitation shall not apply in those areas of the State that have been designated to exceed such limit, but shall continue to apply in those areas of the State not so designated.

(iv) INCLUSION OF INFORMATION IN ANNUAL REPORT.—With respect to any year in which a State exceeds the 20 percent limitation, a State shall report on the number and geographic location of private sector slots used during the year in addition to the placement required to be reported by the State under clauses (vii) and (viii) of subparagraph (c).

(v) GENERAL ELIGIBILITY.—(I) Not less than 5 percent of the participants in a transitional job program within a State during a fiscal year shall be individuals who have attained at least age 18 and for whom at least 1 of the following conditions applies:

(ii) receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part;

(iii) custodial parents of a minor child who meet the financial eligibility criteria for assistance under the State program funded under this part that are provided to the child but who are unemployed, and who were recipients of assistance under a State program funded under this part within the immediately preceding 12-month period;

(iii) Administration.—Section 416 shall not apply to the programs under this paragraph.

(iv) PROHIBITION AGAINST USE OF GRANT FUNDS FOR ANY OTHER FUND MATCHING REQUIREMENT.—An entity to which funds are provided under this paragraph shall not use any portion of the funds provided to fulfill any obligation of any State or political subdivision under subsection (b) of this section or 418 or any other provision of this Act or other Federal law.

(j) ENDLINE FOR SUBSIDIZED WORK.—Include any entity to which funds are provided under this paragraph shall remit to the Secretary of...
Labor any part of the funds that are not expended within 3 years after the date on which the funds are so provided.

(vi) REGULATIONS.—Within 90 days after the date of the enactment of this paragraph, the Secretary of Labor, after consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall prescribe such regulations as are necessary to implement this paragraph.

(vii) REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretaries of Health and Human Services, shall establish requirements for the collection and maintenance of financial and participation data, and the reporting of such information by entities carrying out activities under this paragraph. Such reporting requirements shall include, at a minimum, that the States report disaggregated data on individual participants that include the following:

(I) Demographic information about the participant including education level, literacy level, and prior work experience.

(II) Identity of the program operator that provides or provided services to the participant, or organization(s) of participation.

(III) The nature of education, training or other services received by the participant.

(IV) Reason for the participant’s leaving the program.

(V) Whether the participant secured unsubsidized employment during or within 60 days after the employment of the participant in a transitional job, or if so, the date on which the participant’s unsubsidized employment including industry, occupation, starting wages and hours, availability of employer sponsored health insurance, sick and vacation leave.

(VI) The extent to which subsidized and unsubsidized placements are in jobs or occupations identified in the State’s plan as being in demand in the local economy and offering the opportunity for advancement and wage growth.

(viii) ADDITIONAL REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—States shall collect and report follow-up data for a sampling of participants reflecting their employment and earning status 12 months after entering unsubsidized employment.

(ix) ANNUAL REPORT TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary of Labor shall submit an annual report to Congress on the activities conducted with grants made under this paragraph. The report shall include information regarding the employment and earning status of participants in such activities.

(x) NATIONAL COMPETITIVE GRANTS.—

(I) The Secretary of Labor shall award grants in accordance with this subparagraph, in fiscal years 2003 through 2007, for transitional jobs programs proposed by eligible applicants, based on the following:

(I) The extent to which the proposal seeks to provided services in multiple sites that include employment opportunities.

(II) The extent to which the proposal seeks to provide services in a labor market area or region that includes portions of more than 1 State.

(III) The extent to which the proposal seeks to provides transitional jobs in a State that is not eligible to receive an allotment under subparagraph (D).

(IV) The extent to which the applicant proposes to provide transitional jobs in other rural areas or areas where there are a high concentration of residents with income that is less than the poverty line.

(V) The effectiveness of the proposal in helping individuals who are least job ready move into jobs that are transitional and pathways to stable employment and livable wages.

(ii) ELIGIBLE APPLICANTS.—In this subparagraph, the term ‘eligible applicant’ means a local workforce investment board established under section 117 of the Workforce Investment Act of 1998 (29 U.S.C. 285), a political subdivision of a State, or a private entity.

(iii) FUNDING.—For grants under this subparagraph, specified in clause (i), there shall be available to the Secretary of Labor an amount equal to 13.5 percent of the sum of—

(I) the amount specified in subparagraph (K) for the fiscal year;

(II) any amount available for the immediately preceding fiscal year that has not been obligated or allotted; and

(III) any funds available under this paragraph that have not been allotted due to a determination by the Secretary of Labor that the State has not qualified as a transitional jobs State.

(I) FUNDING FOR INDIAN TRIBES.—5 percent of the amount specified in subparagraph (K) for each fiscal year shall be reserved for grants to Indian tribes under subparagraph (P).

(2) FUNDING FOR EVALUATIONS OF TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAMS.—5 percent of the amount specified in subparagraph (K) for each fiscal year shall be reserved for use by the Secretary to carry out subparagraph (O).

(K) APPROACH.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated grants under this paragraph:

(I) $250,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;

(II) $375,000,000 for fiscal year 2004; and

(III) $500,000,000 for each fiscal years 2005 through 2007.

(ii) AVAILABILITY.—The amounts made available pursuant to clause (i) shall remain available for such period as is necessary to make the grants provided for in this paragraph.

(L) WORKER PROTECTIONS.—

(I) NONREPLACEMENT.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Assistance provided through a grant made under this paragraph shall be used only for a program that does not duplicate, and is in addition to, an activity otherwise available in the locality of such program.

(ii) PRIVATE, NONPROFIT ENTITY.—Assistance provided through a grant made available under this paragraph shall not be provided to a private nonprofit entity to conduct activities that are the same or substantially equivalent to activities provided by a State or local government agency in the area in which such entity resides, unless the requirements of clause (ii) are met.

(iii) NONREPLACEMENT.—

(I) An employer shall not displace an employee or position (including partial displacement such as reduction in hours, wages, or employment benefits) or impose on an employee collective bargaining agreements, as a result of the use by such employer of a participant in a program receiving assistance under a grant made under this paragraph, and no participant shall be assigned to fill any established unfilled position vacancy.

(II) JOB OPPORTUNITIES.—A job opportunity shall not be created under this section that will infringe in any manner on the promotional opportunity of an employed individual.

(i) LIMITATION ON SERVICES.—

(II) SUPPLANTATION OF HIRING.—A participant in any transitional job program that receives funds under a grant made under this paragraph shall not perform services or duties, or activities with respect to which an individual has recall rights pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement or applicable personnel procedures, or which has been performed to or by any employee who recently resided or was discharged, any employee who is subject to a reduction in force, any employee who is on leave (sick, personal, family medical emergency, or sick), or any employee who is on strike or who is being locked out.

(iii) CONCURRENCE OF LOCAL LABOR ORGANIZATION ACTIVITIES.—No work undertaken under a transitional job program that receives funds under a grant made under this paragraph shall be made until the program operator has provided a list of transitional jobs to a local labor organization representing employees who are engaged in the same or substantially similar work as that proposed to be performed by any employee with whom a participant is placed.

(iv) APPLICATION OF WORKER PROTECTION LAWS.—No participant in any transitional jobs created under a transitional job program that receives funds under a grant made under this paragraph shall be considered to be an employee for all purposes under Federal and State law, including laws relating to health and safety, civil rights, and worker’s compensation.

(i) ELIGIBLE APPLICANTS.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—The State shall establish and maintain a grievance procedure for resolving complaints by unsubsidized employees of program operators or worksite employers or such employees of program operators or worksite employers alleging violations of clause (i), (ii), or (iii) of subparagraph (L), or by participants alleging violations of clause (ii), (iii), or (iv) of such subparagraph.

(ii) LIMITATION.—Except in the case of a grievance that alleges fraud or criminal activity, a grievance shall be made not later than 60 days after the date of the alleged occurrence of the event that is the subject of the grievance.

(iii) HEARING.—A hearing on any grievance made under this subsection shall be conducted not later than 30 days after the filing of the grievance.

(iv) DEADLINE FOR DECISION.—A decision on any grievance made under this subsection shall be made not later than 60 days after the filing of the grievance.

(v) BINDING ARBITRATION.—

(I) IN GENERAL.—In the event of a decision on a grievance that is adverse to the party who filed such grievance, or, in the event on noncompliance with the 60-day period required under clause (iv), the party who filed such grievance may submit the grievance to binding arbitration before a qualified arbitrator who is jointly selected and independent of the interested parties.

(ii) SELECTION OF ARBITRATOR.—If the parties cannot agree on an arbitrator, the chief executive officer of the State shall appoint an arbitrator from a list of qualified arbitrators approved by the parties within 15 days after receiving a request for such appointment from a party to the grievance.

(vi) DEADLINE FOR PROCEEDING.—An arbitration proceeding shall be held not later than 45 days after the request for the arbitration proceeding, or, if the arbitrator is appointed by the chief executive officer of the State, not later than 30 days after the appointment of such arbitrator.
(IV) DEADLINE FOR DECISION.—A decision concerning a grievance that has been submitted to binding arbitration under this clause shall be made not later than 30 days after the date the arbitration proceeding begins.

(V) COST.—

(aa) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in item (bb) of this subparagraph, the cost of an arbitration proceeding shall be divided equally between the parties to the arbitration.

(bb) EMPLOYEE PREVAILING PARTY.—If an employee whose representative prevails under a binding arbitration proceeding under this clause, the State agency shall bear the costs of such proceeding and the attorneys' fees of such employee or representative.

(vi) REMEDIES.—Remedies for a grievance filed under this subparagraph include—

(I) prohibition of the work assignment in the program funded under a grant made under this paragraph;

(II) reinstatement of the displaced employee to the position held by such employee prior to displacement;

(III) payment of lost wages and benefits of the displaced employee;

(IV) reestablishment of other relevant terms, conditions, and privileges of employment of the displaced employee; and

(V) such other relief as is necessary to make the displaced employee whole.

(vii) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—An action to enforce a remedy or an arbitration award under this paragraph brought in any district court of the United States, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties to the action.

(viii) NON-EXCLUSIVE PROCEDURES.—The grievance procedures specified in this subparagraph are not exclusive and an aggrieved employee or participant in a program funded under a grant made under this paragraph may use alternative procedures available under applicable contracts, collective bargaining agreements, or Federal or State laws.

(N) PRE-EMPTION OF STATE LAW.—The provisions of subparagraphs (L) and (M) of this paragraph shall not be construed to preempt any provision of State law that affords greater protections to employees or to other participants engaged in work activities under a program funded under a grant made under this paragraph than is afforded by the provisions of this paragraph.

(O) EVALUATION OF TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAMS.—

(I) EVALUATION.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor—

(1) in general. —The Secretary shall evaluate the extent to which transitional jobs programs funded under this paragraph have been effective in promoting sustained, unsubsidized employment for each group of eligible participants;

(2) may evaluate the use of such grants by such grantees as the Secretary deems appropriate to achieve the overall objectives of this subsection;

(3) shall include the following outcome measures in the plan developed under subclause (I):

(aa) placements in unsubsidized employment;

(bb) placements in unsubsidized employment that last for at least 12 months, and the extent to which individuals are employed continuously for at least 12 months;

(cc) earnings of individuals who obtain employment at the time of placement;

(dd) earnings of individuals one year after placement.

(II) EVALUATION OF TRANSITIONAL JOBS PROGRAMS.—

(I) EVALUATION.—The Secretary shall award a grant in accordance with this subparagraph to such an organization that meets the following requirements:

(1) The Indian tribe has submitted to the Secretary a plan which describes how, consistent with an Indian tribe's policy, such an Indian tribe will use any funds provided under this subparagraph during the fiscal year. If the Indian tribe has a tribal family assistance plan, the plan referred to in the preceding sentence shall be in the form of an addendum to the tribal family assistance plan.

(II) The Indian tribe is operating a program under which transitional jobs programs funded under this part.

(III) The Indian tribe has submitted to the Secretary a plan which describes how, consistent with an Indian tribe's policy, such an Indian tribe will use any funds provided under this subparagraph during the fiscal year.

(IV) The Indian tribe has submitted to the Secretary a plan which describes how, consistent with an Indian tribe's policy, such an Indian tribe will use any funds provided under this subparagraph during the fiscal year.
Today I am introducing a bill for Beth and the other “Forgotten Widows.”

Bob James proudly served his country as an active member of the Army and Army Reserves for 35 years, until he passed away in 1977. Bob’s service began with combat infantry in North Africa and Italy in World War II. As a junior officer, Bob James landed with the Third Division near Casablanca, and later served with the 34th Division through the North African and Tunisia campaigns as well. Then, as in amphibious landings at Solerno, Italy, the battle of Mt. Casino and four crossings of the Volturno River. He was awarded the Bronze Star medal for the Rome-Arno campaign and was given a battlefield promotion to First Lieutenant.

After five years in World War II, he carried a mobilization designation as part of his 30-year reserve duty with the Selective Service Unit in Cedar Rapids that he proposed and was asked by the Secretary of Defense. In fact, Bob served longer than the usual 30 years because General Hershey personally requested that he remain in active Reserves until he reached the age of 60.

When Bob became ill, he continued to attend Reserve meetings. His wife, Beth, now age 83, remembers Bob telling her on April 9, 1977, Easter Sunday, “I only have to live another six months and then I can take my retirement benefit after he passed away. He knew he had to turn 60 before his 60th birthday.

Under the military’s Survivor Benefit Plan, members who choose to enroll in the military’s Survivor Benefit Plan for Beth after he passed away. Unfortunately, Bob was not able to hold on. Lieutenant Colonel William R. James, USAR, died at age 59% in 1977, 5 months before his 60th birthday.

Under the military’s Survivor Benefit Plan, members who choose to enroll in the military’s Survivor Benefit Plan for Beth after he passed away. Unfortunately, Bob was not able to hold on. Lieutenant Colonel William R. James, USAR, died at age 59% in 1977, 5 months before his 60th birthday.

While the annuity for certain military surviving spouses created in 1997 was certainly a step in the right direction, it is by no means adequate. The forgotten widows currently receive about $185 per month, after cost of living increases since 1997. In comparison, the average RC-SBP benefit for 1998 is about $380 for beneficiaries over 62 and the monthly RC-SBP benefits average about $325 for beneficiaries over 62.

The current benefit for forgotten widows is not enough to live on. First, the fiscal year 1998 legislation initially set the ACMESS benefit at the minimum allowable amount a service member could elect, even though most members participate at a higher level. Second, the 1997 legislation did not take into account cost of living increases that the widows would have received for more than two decades. If these widows had been enrolled in these programs in 1972 at the minimum level, their monthly benefit today would be approximately $434 rather than $185.

The Forgotten Widows’ Benefit Equity Act of 2002 amends the Annuity for Certain Military Surviving Spouses program established in the fiscal year 1998 Defense Authorization Bill. It does not change the eligibility criteria for the program. It directs the Department of Defense to calculate each surviving spouse’s annuity assuming that the member had enrolled in the SBP before he died and had elected a base amount of his retired pay. For almost all forgotten widows this will be much more than the current annuity; if it is not, the survivor will continue to receive the current benefit. This approach ensures that the survivors’ annuities take into account the members’ rank and years of service, and the past cost of living increases.

It is possible that some of the members would not have elected to participate in the SBP, or would not have chosen a base amount of 100 percent of retired pay. For almost all forgotten widows this would have received a lower benefit. However, they were never given that choice. And most members today do choose to participate at or near the highest level. In addition, this legislation is not retroactive; the forgotten widows will not be compensated for the thousands of dollars of benefits they would have received for over 20 years.

The widows, whose husbands died over 20 years ago, found their lives defending our freedoms and some of whom received no pensions of their own, were abandoned by our government for at least 20 years. While Congress recognized our responsibility to them in 1972, it did not fully meet our obligation to provide them with an adequate, fair benefit. We can and must do better. We must stand by our Memorial Day promises to remember those who sacrificed for our country. I ask my colleagues to do what is right and support passage of the Forgotten Widow’s Benefit Equity Act of 2002.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2632
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Forgotten Widows’ Benefit Equity Act of 2002.”

SEC. 2. EQUITABLE AMOUNT OF SURVIVOR ANNUITIES FOR CERTAIN MILITARY SURVIVING SPOUSES.

(a) FORMULA.—Subsection (b) of section 644 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1998 (Public Law 105-85; 10 U.S.C. 1448 note) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

“(1) An annuity payable under this section for the surviving spouse of a deceased member shall be equal to the higher of $76 per month, as adjusted from time to time under paragraph (3), or the applicable amount as follows:

“(A) In the case of the surviving spouse of a deceased member described in subparagraph (A) of subsection (a)(1) who died before September 21, 1972, the amount computed under the SBP program, from the day after the date of death, as if—

“(i) the member had effectively elected to provide the maximum survivor annuity for the surviving spouse under the SBP program; and

“(ii) the member had been 60 years of age on that day; and

“(iii) the member had effectively elected to provide the maximum survivor annuity for the surviving spouse under the SBP program; and

(2) in paragraph (3), by inserting after “the annuity that is payable under this section” the following: “in the amount under paragraph (1) that is adjustable under this paragraph.”

(b) SBP PROGRAM DEFINED.—Subsection (d) of such section is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(3) The term ‘SBP program’ means subsection II of chapter 73 of title 10, United States Code.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE AND APPLICATION.—

(1) The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) shall take effect on October 1, 2002.

(2) The Secretary concerned shall recomputable under section 644 of Public Law 105-85 (as amended by subsections (a) and (b)) the amounts of the survivor annuities that are payable under such section for months beginning after the effective date under paragraph (1).

(3) No benefit shall be payable for any period before the effective date under paragraph (1) by reason of the amendments made by subsections (a) and (b).

By Mr. BIDEN (for himself, and Mr. GRASSLEY).

S. 2633. A bill to prohibit an individual from knowingly opening, maintaining, managing, controlling, renting, leasing, making available for use, or profiting from any place for the purpose of manufacturing, distributing, or using any controlled substance, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, over the past several years, I have become increasingly concerned with the trafficking and use of the newest fad drug, Ecstasy. All across the country, thousands of teenagers are treated for overdoses and Ecstasy-related health problems in emergency rooms each year. And recent statistics from the Partnership for a Drug Free America show that teen use of Ecstasy has increased 71 percent since 1999. Unless we mount a major education campaign across schools and campuses nationwide, we may not be able to counter the widespread misconception that Ecstasy is harmless, fashionable and hip.

Much of the abuse of Ecstasy and other club drugs happens at all-night dance parties known as “raves.” A few months ago in the Caucus on International Narcotics Control I held a hearing to take an in-depth look at the phenomenon of these all-night dance parties and recent efforts at the Federal, State and local levels to crack down on rave promoters who allow rampant drug use at their events and do everything they can to profit from it.

It is common for rave organizers to go to great lengths to portray their events as safe so that parents will allow their kids to attend. They advertise them as alcohol-free parties and sometimes hire off-duty police officers to patrol outside the venue. But the truth is that many of these raves are drug dens where use of Ecstasy and other “club drugs,” such as the date rape drugs Rohypnol, GHB and Ketamine, is widespread.

But even as these promoters work to make parents think that their events are safe, they send a different message to keep their promotional flyers make clear that drugs are part of the party by prominently featuring terms associated with drug use, such as the letters “E” or “X,” street terms for Ecstasy, or the term “rollin,” which refers to an Ecstasy high. They are, in effect, promoting Ecstasy along with the rave.

By doing so, the promoters get rich as they exploit and endanger kids. Many supplement their profits from the $10 to $50 cover charge to enter the club by selling popular Ecstasy paraphernalia such as baby pacifiers, glow sticks, or mentholated inhalers. And party organizers know that Ecstasy raises the core body temperature and makes the user extremely thirsty, so they sell bottles of water for $10 apiece. Some even shut off the water faucets so club goers will be forced to buy water or pay admission to enter an air-conditioned “cool down room.”

Despite the conventional wisdom that Ecstasy and other club drugs are “no big deal,” a view that even the New York Times Magazine espoused in a cover story, these drugs can have serious consequences, and can even be fatal.

After the death of a 17-year-old girl at a rave party in New Orleans in 1998, the Drug Enforcement Administration conducted an assessment of rave activity in that city which showed the close relationship between these parties and club drug overdoses. In a two year period, 52 raves were held at the New Orleans State Palace Theater, during which time approximately 400 teenagers overdosed and were treated at local emergency rooms. Following “Operation Rave Rollin,” the DEA obtained in the arrest of several rave promoters and closing the city’s largest rave, overdoses and emergency room visits dropped by 90 percent and Ecstasy overdoses have been eliminated.

State and locals governments have begun to take important steps to crack down on rave promoters who allow their events to be used as havens for illicit drug activity. In Chicago, where Mayor Daley has shown great leadership on this issue, it is a criminal offense to knowingly maintain a place, such as a rave, where controlled substances are used or distributed. Not only the promoter, but also the building owner and building manager can be charged under Mayor Daley’s law. The State of Florida has a similar statute making such activity a felony.

And in Modesto, California, police officers are offering “rave training classes” to parents to educate them about the danger of raves and the club drugs associated with them.

And at the Federal level, there have been four cases in which Federal prosecutors have used the so-called “crack house statute” or other Federal charges to go after rave promoters. These cases, in Little Rock, AR, Boise, ID, Panama City, FL, and New Orleans, LA, have had mixed results, culminating in two wins, a loss and a draw, suggesting that the lead may be a need to tailor the Federal statute more precisely to the problem at hand. Today I am proposing legislation, Reducing Americans’ Vulnerability to Ecstasy Act, or the “RAVE” Act, which will do just that. I am pleased to have Senator Grassley as my co-sponsor.

The bill tailors the crack house statute to address rave promoters’ actions more specifically so that Federal prosecutors will be able to use it to prosecute individuals who allow rampant drug use at their events and seek to profit from putting kids at risk. The legislation also addresses the low penalties for trafficking gamma hydroxybutyric acid, GHB, by directing the United States Sentencing Commission to examine current penalties and consider increasing them to reflect the seriousness of offenses involving GHB.

But the answer to the problem of drug use at raves is not simply to prosecute irresponsible rave promoters and those who distribute drugs. There is also a responsibility to raise awareness among parents, teachers, students, coaches, religious leaders, etc. about the dangers of the drugs used and sold at raves. The RAVE Act directs funds to that purpose. Further, the bill authorizes nearly $6 million for the DEA to hire a Demand Reduction Specialist, or other Federal agents, to go after the lat-est methods drug dealers are using to profit from putting kids at risk. The legislation that we introduce today is the result of information gathered during a series of hearings held by the Caucus on International Narcotics Control. It will help U.S. attorneys shut down raves and prosecute rave promoters who knowingly maintain a place where drugs are used, kept, or distributed. The statute would only be applicable to events where drugs will be “manufactured, stored, distributed, or used.” This legislation will not eliminate all rave-related problems. Provided rave promoters and sponsors operate such events as they are so often advertised, as places for people to come dance in a safe, alcohol-free environment, then they have noth-ing to fear from this law. But this legis-lation will give law enforcement the tools needed to shut down those rave promoters and operators who use raves as a cover to sell drugs.

I hope that my colleagues will join me and support this legislation.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Madam President, I am pleased to join my colleague Senator BIDEN today in introducing the RAVE Act, or Reducing America’s Vulnerability to Ecstasy Act of 2002. I believe this legislation will help America’s law enforcement go after the latest methods drug dealers are using to push drugs on our kids. As drug dealers discover new drugs and new methods of pushing their poison, we must make sure our legal system is adequately structured to react appropriately. I believe this legislation does that.

Many young people perceive Ecstasy as harmless and it is wrongly termed a recreational or “kid-friendly” drug. This illegal substance does real damage to real lives. Although targeted at teenagers and young adults, its use has spread to the middle-aged population and rural areas, including my own State of Iowa. Ninety percent of all drug treatment and law enforcement experts say that Ecstasy is readily accessible in this country. We cannot continue, as drug dealers are doing, to turn a blind eye to this drug or ignore the consequences of its use.

The sale of illicit narcotics, whether on a street corner here in Washington, D.C., on a college campus, or in a rave, is a multimillion dollar business to drug traffickers. Ecstasy is an illegal drug that has extremely dangerous side effects. In general, Ecstasy raises the heart rate to dangerous levels, and in some cases the heart will stop. It also causes severe dehydration, a condition that is exacerbated by the high levels of physical exertion that happens at raves. Users must constantly drink water in an attempt to cool off, a fact that some rave promoters take advantage of by charging fees for bottles of water. Too often, users col-lapse and die because their bodies over-heat. And even those who survive the short-term effects of Ecstasy use can look forward to long-term problems such as depression, paranoia, and confusion, as scientists have learned that Ecstasy causes irreversible changes to the brain.

The legislation that we introduce today is the result of information gathered during a series of hearings held by the Caucus on International Narcotics Control. It will help U.S. attorneys shut down raves and prosecute rave promoters who knowingly maintain a place where drugs are used, kept, or distributed. The statute allows the closure and prosecution of crack house operators.

The statute would only be applicable if the rave promoters or location own-ers “knowingly and intentionally” either use or allow the use of an environment for an event where drugs will be “manufactured, stored, distributed, or used.” This legislation will not eliminate all rave-related problems. Provided rave promoters and sponsors operate such events as they are so often advertised, the places for people to come dance in a safe, alcohol-free environment, then they have nothing to fear from this law. But this legis-lation will give law enforcement the tools needed to shut down those rave promoters and operators who use raves as a cover to sell drugs. Innocent own-ers or proprietors will remain exempt from prosecution.

This legislation is an important step, but a careful one. Our future rests with the young people of this great nation and America is at risk. Ecstasy has shown itself to be a formidable threat and we must confront it on all fronts, not only through law enforcement but education and treatment as well. I hope my colleagues will join us in supporting the RAVE Act, and help us work towards its quick passage.
explanations of benefits can add anywhere from $10 to $85 per transaction.

In fact, estimates are that $250 billion is spent each year on medical claims paperwork. Paper claims processing amounts to $28,000 per physician and $12.7 billion for all physicians each year. Conducting these transactions online could cut that figure tenfold. We are clearly not getting much bang for our buck. The eHealth Care Act will provide the standards needed for health plans, providers, and patients to realize both the cost savings and better billing and claims transactions.

But the cost to the health care system is not just monetary. The eHealth Care bill will also set standards for physicians ordering prescription medications. Medication errors are responsible for over 7,000 deaths annually, but doctors currently write only 1 percent of prescriptions electronically. By requiring adoption of computerized systems for writing prescriptions, errors due to mistaken prescriptions or illegible handwriting will be reduced. There is no excuse for patients to be harmed and even die when we have the technology to save them.

I look forward to working with my colleagues here in the Senate to get this very important legislation passed.

By Mr. KENNEDY (for himself and Mr. CORZINE):

S. 2639. A bill to provide health benefits for workers and their families; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, today I am introducing the Health Care for Working Families Act, a bill that will make the basic human right to health care a reality for millions of working Americans and their families.

The tragedy of September 11 created a special obligation to address the injustices that have festered for far too long within our national family. The brave passengers of Flight 93 fought and died to save the lives of thousands. Construction and health workers braved the treacherous fire and debris to rescue survivors and recover the remains of those who lost their lives. Police and firefighters, and ordinary citizens, gave their lives so that others might live. And thousands of Americans all over the country lined up to donate blood to help the victims.

I believe that the most enduring legacy of September 11 attacks is a new sense of community among all Americans. A nation that has united to battle a terrorist threat from abroad can also unite to vanquish the conditions here at home that curtail the opportunities and aspirations of so many of our fellow citizens. Just as the British people came together after World War II to provide health care for all citizens of the United Kingdom, we should do the same.

Americans are rightly proud to be at the forefront of medical and scientific advancement. In the past year, we successfully mapped the human genome. We developed new pharmaceuticals to target specific cancers. We have seen the promise stem cell research gives to millions of people with chronic diseases. We clearly recognize the value of scientific achievement and have always been supportive of the great institutions and individuals that are driving our progress.

But our successes in the science of medicine must not blind us to the great failure of our health care system, the failure to provide affordable, quality health insurance to all our people. We lead the world in medical research. We lead the world in our capacity to cure and treat the most complex and deadly illnesses. But we lag behind every country in the industrial world in guaranteeing all our people access to the best medical care we can offer. And today we face health care crisis as the number of the uninsured has begun to rise and rise rapidly.

Health care is not just another commodity. It is not a gift to be rationed based on the ability to pay. The state of a family’s health should not be determined by the size of a family’s wealth.

Yet, thirty-nine million Americans now have no health insurance at all. Over the course of a year, 30 million more will fall for an extended period. It is unacceptable that any American is uninsured. It is shameful that thirty-nine million Americans are uninsured. And it is intolerable that the number of uninsured is now rising again and, if we do nothing, could reach more than 52 million by the end of the decade.

Who are the 39 million uninsured Americans who must go without the health care they need because they cannot afford insurance they deserve? Over 80 percent are members of working families. They are grocery baggers, car mechanics, construction workers. They are factory workers, nurses and nurses aides, secretaries and the self-employed. They are child care workers and waiters and cooks. They are teachers and social workers. They are veterans. They are people who wake up every morning and go to work. They work hard 40 hours a week and fifty-two weeks a year, but they cannot buy them the health insurance they need to protect themselves and their families, because they can’t afford it and their employers don’t provide it.

They play by the rules. They stand by their families and their country. But when it comes to health insurance, America has let them down.

A recent report by the Institute of Medicine lays out the stark result of America’s failure to provide health insurance. Cancer can be treated by eliminating heart diseases, leukemia, AIDS, and other serious illnesses know nothing about insurance, or economic class or race or creed. They can strike anyone equally. And when they do, the uninsured are left out and left behind. In hospital or out, young or old, black or white, the uninsured receive less care, suffer more pain, and die at higher rates than those who are insured.

Nearly 4 in 10 uninsured Americans will simply go without care when they get sick instead of seeking medical attention. They stop and ask themselves whether their symptoms or their children’s symptoms are truly worth a doctor’s visit. Could it be pneumonia? Or could it be strep throat? Is this pain in my bones indicative of something more serious or will it eventually go away if I ignore it? Millions of families are forced to decide between their health and other necessities of life. They ration health care for themselves and their children, and too often they pay a terrible price.

Every year, 8 million uninsured Americans fail to take their medications because they can’t afford to pay for their prescriptions. 300,000 children with asthma never see a doctor. Uninsured women diagnosed with breast cancer are 50 percent more likely to die from the disease because their cancer is diagnosed later. 32,000 Americans with heart disease go without life-saving bypass surgery or angioplasty. The chilling bottom line is that Americans without health insurance are one-quarter more likely to die prematurely solely because they lack coverage.

The legislation I am introducing today is a major step forward toward the day when all Americans will enjoy the health insurance that should be their birthright. This measure will require every firm with more than 100 workers to provide health insurance coverage for employees and their dependents. This coverage must be as good as the coverage now provided for Federal employees. If good health insurance coverage is available to every member of the Senate, to every member of the House, and every other of the United States, it ought to be available to every other American too.

This measure alone would assure coverage for more than a third of today’s uninsured workers.

For generations we have required employers to contribute to Social Security and then to Medicare. Now it is time to say, at least for large firms, that they also have an obligation to contribute just as much to health insurance for their employees. The vast majority of large businesses already do so, and the rest should fulfill that obligation, too.

Later this year, after broad consultation with affected groups, I will introduce legislation to assure that the protections we work so hard to get them, wherever they live, have the quality, affordable health insurance coverage they deserve.

Health care is a defining test of our commitment and our national character. Congress has shown that they are ready for great missions. They are the creators of the new spirit of September 11. Now, we in public life must live up to the standards they have set.

We must strive to do what is best, in health and education as well as national defense, and we must measure our success by what we accomplish not just for one political party or another, not for this or that interest group, but for America and its enduring ideal of liberty and justice for all.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN:

S. 3640. A bill to provide for adequate support to Yosemite National Park, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Madam President, I am pleased to introduce this legislation to authorize the Interior Department to provide critical services to three national parks in my home State of California.

With the passage of this bill, Yosemite, Manzanar, and Golden Gate National Parks will receive the Federal support needed to continue to offer a broad range of services to the millions of tourists and Californians who visit these national treasures each year.

This bill meets four distinct needs in these parks: it authorizes the Interior Secretary to designate Federal emergency funds to small schools in Yosemite National Park, allows the Yosemite Area Regional Transportation System, YARTS, to continue operating and extend the Manzanar and Golden Gate National Park Regional Areas, GGNRA, Advisory Commissions for ten more years.

The first component of this bill provides critical funds to three small schools nestled in the heart of Yosemite National Park. Approximately 126 children of park service employees are taught in the quaint one-room buildings of Wawona, El Portal, and Yosemite Valley elementary schools. The remote location of these schools, along with their small sizes and California’s unique method for funding education, have all contributed to the schools amassing a combined deficit of $241,000. In their efforts to continue to provide basic educational services to students, the school district is looking to cut support for instruction that would normally be available to students taught outside of the Park.

In light of these facts, this bill allows the Interior Secretary to assist these schools if their combined state funding falls below $75,000. It also clarifies how funds will be used by limiting allocations to providing general upkeep, maintenance, and classroom instruction.

Furthermore, this legislation allows the Park Service to allot federal funds for the continuing operation of the Yosemite Area Regional Transportation System, YARTS. YARTS is a bus service that gives visitors the option of taking a free shuttle through Yosemite National Park instead of driving on their own. Since it began operating in 2000, this service has played a crucial role in improving visitor accessibility to the Park’s attractions, alleviating traffic congestion on access roads and reducing the amount of air pollution emitted by incoming cars.

The Federally funded demonstration project that allowed YARTS to offer services on a temporary basis expired in May and since then, YARTS has leveraged local funds to ensure that services were not discontinued.

Both the Park Service and YARTS are supportive of continuing their mutually beneficial agreement. This legislation would do just that by taking the burden off local entities and providing the necessary assistance that this service needs.

The last component of this bill will extend the advisory commissions of the Manzanar Historic Site and Golden Gate National Recreation Area for ten more years.

Both of these commissions have active committees that represent a wide range of user groups from bicyclists to bird watchers to outdoor enthusiasts. They provide a vital communications link between the Park Service and the surrounding communities that enjoy these sites and which some of these national sites have to offer. Without these commissions, the Park Service would be hard pressed to provide the same level of service and attention to the broad interests and diverse communities that they serve.

I continue to be a strong advocate for public involvement in Park Service decisions. I believe that these commissions have been essential in ensuring that the Park Service upholds its commitment to allow community participation in its decision making process, particularly when it comes to contentious issues.

California’s national parks are truly invaluable, each one of the parks that this bill supports offers an opportunity for visitors and residents to enjoy unique national habitats and open spaces. This legislation mark the beginning of a process that I hope will result in the Park Service and the community working together not only to maintain but also to safeguard the interests of the nearby communities. I invite my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill.

By Mrs. MURRAY (for herself, Mr. BAUCUS, Ms. CANTWELL, Mr. DAYTON, and Mr. WELLSTONE):

S. 2641. A bill to amend the Toxic Substances Control Act to reduce the health risks posed by asbestos-containing products; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. MURRAY. Madam President, today I rise and join my colleagues Senators BAUCUS, CANTWELL, DAYTON, and WELLSTONE in introducing legislation to improve protections for workers and consumers against a known carcinogen: asbestos. The primary purpose of the Ban Asbestos in America Act of 2002 is to require the Environmental Protection Agency, EPA, to ban the substance by 2005.

Most Americans believe that asbestos has already been banned. People have this misconception in part because EPA tried to ban it in 1989, and the ban was well publicized. But what wasn’t so publicized was the fact that in 1991, the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned EPA’s ban, and the first Bush Administration didn’t appeal the decision to the Supreme Court. While new uses of asbestos were banned, existing ones were not.

People also believe asbestos has been banned because the mineral has been heavily regulated, and some uses are now prohibited. But the sweeping ban that EPA worked for ten years to put in place never went into effect. As a result, products such as asbestos clothing, pipeline wrap, roofing felt, vinyl-asbestos floor tile, asbestos-cement shingle, disc brake pads, gaskets and roof coatings still contain asbestos today. Had EPA’s ban gone into effect, these products would no longer be allowed to contain this deadly substance.

This morning I met with three people who wish there had been better protections in place against the dangers of asbestos years ago. I had the honor of meeting Mr. Vento, the son of the beloved Congressman Bruce Vento from Minnesota who died from a disease caused by asbestos in October of 2000 at the age of 60. Representative Vento was exposed to asbestos when he worked in factories in St. Paul during college.

I also had the privilege of meeting Lt. Col. James Zumwalt, the son of the legendary Navy Admiral Elmo Zumwalt who also died in 2000 of mesothelioma, a rare form of cancer of the lungs and internal organs caused by asbestos. Like so many others who served in the Navy, Admiral Zumwalt was exposed to asbestos during his military service.

In addition, I had the pleasure to meet Mr. Brian Harvey, a former English teacher from Washington State University and a survivor of the deadly disease. Like Congressman Vento, Mr. Harvey was exposed to asbestos working summers during college, only Mr. Harvey worked full time in a timber mill in Shelton, WA instead of in factories in St. Paul. Mr. Harvey received aggressive treatment from the University of Washington, and his triumph over the deadly disease offers all of us hope. You don’t have to tell Mrs. Vento, Lt. Colonel Zumwalt or Mr. Harvey that asbestos can kill, or that it hasn’t been banned. Unfortunately, they already know.

I have also heard from other Washington State residents about the devastating effects that asbestos exposure can have on people’s lives. I’d like to take a moment to tell you about an email recently received from two constituents, Mr. Charles Barber and his wife, Ms. Karen Mirante, who live in Seattle. They wrote to me last year to express support for my efforts on asbestos. Mr. Barber and Ms. Mirante had just recently learned that both of their fathers were diagnosed with mesothelioma, the same deadly disease that Mr. Mirante, was a retired truck driver who was active in labor issues. While he never complained and continued to work as he could.

At many plants where vermiculite from Libby was processed, waste rock left over from the expansion process was given away for free, and people used it in their yards, driveways and gardens. Some used it in insulation for homes or in materials shipped to over 300 sites nationally for industrial use.

Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, ATSDR discovered a picture taken of two daring little boys, Justin and Tim Jorgenson, playing with waste rock given out by Western Minerals, Inc. in St. Paul, MN sometime in the late 1970s. According to W.R. Grace records, this rock contained between 2 and 10 percent tremolite asbestos. This rock produced airborne asbestos concentrations 135 times higher than the Occupational Safety and Health Administration’s current standard for workers. Thankfully, neither Justin nor Tim has shown any signs of disease, but their risks of developing asbestos diseases, which have latency periods of 15 to 40 years, are increased from their childhood exposures.

People may still today be exposing themselves to harmful amounts of asbestos in vermiculite. As many as 35 million homes and businesses may have insulation made with harmful minerals from Libby. And EPA has also tested agricultural products, soil conditioners and fertilizers, made with vermiculite, and determined that some workers have been exposed to dangerous concentrations of tremolite asbestos.

As I learned more about Libby, and how asbestos has ended up in products such as home insulation and soil additives. EPA and the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, ATSDR, have determined that 22 sites are still contaminated today, including one in Washington State.

At many plants where vermiculite from Libby was processed, waste rock left over from the expansion process was given away for free, and people used it in their yards, driveways and gardens. Some used it in insulation for homes or in materials shipped to over 300 sites nationally for industrial use.

That is why today I am introducing the Ban Asbestos in America Act of 2002. The legislation has four main parts. First and foremost, this bill protects public health by doing what the ban on asbestos has not yet done: ban asbestos in the United States. The bill requires EPA to ban it by 2005. Like the regulations EPA finalized in 1989, companies may file for an exemption to the ban if there is no substitute material available: if there is no substitute material available and EPA determines the exemption won’t pose an unreasonable risk to public health or the environment.

Second, the bill requires EPA to conduct a public education campaign about the risks of asbestos products. Within 6 months of passage, the EPA and the Consumer Product Safety Commission will begin educating people about how to safely handle insulation made with vermiculite. I believe the government needs to warn people that their insulation, if made with vermiculite, may be contaminated with asbestos. Home owners and workers may be unknowingly exposing themselves to asbestos. EPA has agreed to remove vermiculite insulation from homes in Libby, the agency currently has no plans to do this nationwide.

The legislation also requires EPA to conduct a survey to determine which foreign and domestic products being consumed in the United States today have been made with asbestos. There is no solid, up-to-date information about which products contain it, although EPA has estimated that as many as 3,000 products still do.

The survey will provide the foundation for a broader education campaign so consumers and workers will know how to handle it safely as possible asbestos products that were purchased before the ban goes into effect.

Third, the legislation requires funding to improve treatment for asbestos diseases. The bill directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services, working through the National Institutes of Health, to ‘expand, intensify and coordinate programs for the conduct and support of research on diseases caused by exposure to asbestos. The Ban Asbestos in America Act requires the creation of a National Mesothelioma Registry to improve tracking of the disease. If there had been an asbestos disaster tracking system in place, public health officials would have detected the asbestos disaster in Libby much sooner, and may have saved lives.

In addition, the bill authorizes funding for 7 mesothelioma treatment centers nationwide to improve treatments for and awareness of this fatal cancer. As was the case with Mr. Harvey, who received treatment from the University of Washington, early detection and proper treatment make the difference between life and death. This bill authorizes $500,000 for each center for five years. This means more mesothelioma patients will receive treatments that can prolong their lives.

In response to the EPA Inspector General’s report on Libby, Montana, EPA committed to create a Blue Ribbon Panel on asbestos and other durable fibers. However, because of insufficient resources, EPA has now narrowed the focus of the Panel to address issues surrounding only the six regulated forms of asbestos. The bill requires EPA to expand its Blue Ribbon Panel on asbestos to address issues beyond those surrounding the six regulated forms of asbestos.

The Ban Asbestos in America Act of 2002 expands the Blue Ribbon Panel’s scope to include manmade fibers, such as ceramic and carbon fibers. The Blue Ribbon Panel’s recommendations are due 2 years after enactment of the Act.

Our Federal agencies need to do a better job of coordinating and working together on asbestos, which will mean less confusion for the public and improved protection for everyone.

The toll that asbestos has taken on people’s lives in this country is staggering. And while Senators Baucus, Cantwell, Dayton, Wellstone, and I continue to mourn the loss of Congressman Bruce Vento, Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, and other people from Libby and thousands of others, today our message is one of hope.

Our hope is that by continuing to work together, we will build support for the Ban Asbestos in America Act. If we can get this legislation passed, fewer people will be exposed to asbestos, fewer people will contract asbestos diseases in the first place, and those who already have asbestos diseases will receive treatments to prolong and improve their lives. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the Ban Asbestos in America Act of 2002 be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 2641

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Ban Asbestos in America Act of 2002”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(a) asbestos is a naturally occurring mineral in the environment and occurs in several deposits throughout the United States; and

(b) in 1976, Congress passed the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 et seq.);

(4) in 1989, the Administrator promulgated final regulations under title II of the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2641 et seq.) to phase out asbestos in consumer products by 1997;

(5) in 1991, the United States Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit reviewed the regulations, and the Administrator did not appeal the decision to the Supreme Court;

(6) as a result, new uses of asbestos were banned, asbestos is still being used in some consumer and industrial products in the United States;

(7) available evidence suggests that asbestos is a known human carcinogen;

(8) many people in the United States incorrectly believe that—

(A) asbestos has been banned in the United States; and

(B) there is no risk of exposure to asbestos through the use of new commercial products;

(9) asbestos has been banned in Argentina, Australia, Belgium, China, Croatia, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Latvia, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United Kingdom;

(10) asbestos will be banned throughout the European Union in 2005;

(11) the World Trade Organization recently upheld the right of France to ban asbestos, with the United States Trade Representative filing a brief in support of the right of France to ban asbestos;

(12) in the 1999 brief by the United States Trade Representative stated, “In the view of the United States, chrysotile asbestos is a toxic material that presents a serious risk to human health.”;

(13) people in the United States have been exposed to harmful levels of asbestos as a contaminant of other minerals;

(14) in the town of Libby, Montana, workers and residents have been exposed to dangerous levels of asbestos for generations because of mining operations at the W.R. Grace vermiculite mine located in Libby; and

(15) the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry found that over a 20-year period, mortality from mesothelioma resulting from asbestos exposure in New York City in the early 1970s was approximately 40 to 60 times higher than expected. Mesothelioma mortality was also elevated.

This Act may be cited as the “Ban Asbestos in America Act of 2002”.

SEC. 3. ASBESTOS-CONTAINING PRODUCTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title II of the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2641 et seq.) is amended—

(1) by inserting before section 201 (15 U.S.C. 2641) the following:
and (2) by adding at the end the following:

"Subtitle B—Asbestos-Containing Products"

SEC. 221. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(1) ASBESTOS-CONTAINING PRODUCT.—The term ‘asbestos-containing product’ means any product (including any part) to which asbestos is deliberately or knowingly added or in which asbestos is deliberately or knowingly contained.

(2) CONTAMINANT-ASBESTOS PRODUCT.—The term ‘contaminant-asbestos product’ means any product that contains asbestos as a contaminant of any mineral or other substance, in any concentration.

(3) COVERED PERSON.—The term ‘covered person’ means:

(A) any individual;

(B) any corporation, company, association, firm, partnership, joint venture, sole proprietorship, or other for-profit or non-profit business entity (including any manufacturer, importer, distributor, or processor);

(C) any Federal, State, or local department, agency, or instrumentality; and

(D) any interstate body.

(4) DISTRIBUTE IN COMMERCE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘distribute in commerce’ has the meaning given the term in section 3.

(B) EXCLUSIONS.—The term ‘distribute in commerce’ does not include—

(i) an action taken with respect to an asbestos-containing product in connection with the end use of the asbestos-containing product by a covered person that is an end user;

(ii) distribution of an asbestos-containing product by a covered person solely for the purpose of disposal of the asbestos-containing product;

(5) DURABLE FIBER.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘durable fiber’ means a silicate fiber that—

(i) occurs naturally in the environment; and

(ii) is similar to asbestos in—

(I) resistance to dissolution; and

(II) leaching; and

(iii) other physical or chemical processes expected from contact with lung cells and fluids.

(6) INCLUSIONS.—The term ‘durable fiber’ includes—

(i) richterite;

(ii) winchite;

(iii) erionite; and

(iv) nonasbestiform varieties of chrysotile, crocidolite, amosite, anthophyllite, tremolite, and actinolite.

(6) FIBER.—The term ‘fiber’ means an acicular single crystal or similarly elongated polycrystalline aggregate particle with a length to width ratio of 3 to 1 or greater.

SEC. 222. PANEL ON ASBESTOS AND OTHER DURABLE FIBERS.

(a) PANEL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall continue the panel (established by the Administrator and in existence on the date of enactment of this subtitle) to study asbestos and other durable fibers.

(2) PARTICIPATION.—The Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, and the Chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission shall participate in the activities of the panel.

(b) Duties.—The panel shall study and, not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this section, provide the Administrator recommendations for, public education programs relating to—

(i) the need to establish, for use by all Federal agencies—(A) a uniform asbestos exposure standard; and

(B) a protocol for measuring and detecting asbestos;

(ii) the current state of the science relating to the human health effects of exposure to asbestos and other durable fibers;

(iii) implementation of subtitle A;

(iv) granting of subsection A;

(v) revisions to the national emissions standards for hazardous air pollutants promulgated under the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.); and

(vi) legislative and regulatory options for improving consumer and worker protections against harm (other than death) from exposure to asbestos and durable fibers;

(7) whether the definition of asbestos-containing material, meaning any material that contains more than 1 percent asbestos by weight, should be modified throughout the Code of Federal Regulations;

(8) the feasibility of establishing a durable fibers testing program;

(9) options to improve protections against exposure to asbestos from asbestos-containing products in buildings;

(10) current research on and technologies for disposal of asbestos-containing products and contaminant-asbestos products; and

(11) at the option of the panel, the effects on human health from exposure to asbestos-containing products that are in the United States.

(b) ISSUES.—In conducting the study, the Administrator shall examine—

(1) how consumers, workers, and businesses use asbestos-containing products and contaminant-asbestos products that are entering commerce as of the date of enactment of this subtitle; and

(2) whether consumers and workers are being exposed to unhealthful levels of asbestos through exposure to products described in paragraph (1).

(c) REPORT.—Not later than January 1, 2004, the Administrator shall submit to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the Senate a report on the results of the study.

SEC. 224. PROHIBITION ON ASBESTOS-CONTAINING PRODUCTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (b), the Administrator shall promulgate—

(1) not later than January 1, 2004, proposed regulations that prohibit covered persons from manufacturing, processing, or distributing in commerce asbestos-containing products; and

(2) not later than January 1, 2005, final regulations that prohibit covered persons from manufacturing, processing, or distributing in commerce asbestos-containing products.

(b) EXEMPTIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Any person may petition the Administrator for, and the Administrator may grant an exemption from the requirements of subsection (a) if the Administrator determines that—

(A) the person would not result in an unreasonable risk of injury to public health or the environment; and

(B) the person has made good faith efforts to develop a substitute, or identify a mineral, that—

(i) does not present an unreasonable risk of injury to public health or the environment; and

(ii) may be substituted for an asbestos-containing product.

(c) CONCLUSIONS AND CONDITIONS.—An exemption granted under this subsection shall be in effect for such period (not to exceed 1 year) and subject to such terms and conditions as the Administrator may prescribe.

SEC. 225. PUBLIC EDUCATION PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than March 1, 2005, and subject to subsection (c), the Administrator shall establish a program to increase awareness of the dangers posed by asbestos-containing products and contaminant-asbestos products in the marketplace, including homes and workplaces.

(b) GREATEST RISKS.—In establishing the program, the Administrator shall—

(1) base the program on the results of the study conducted under section 223;

(2) give priority to asbestos-containing products and contaminant-asbestos products used by consumers and workers that pose the greatest risk of injury to human health; and

(3) at the option of the Administrator on receipt of a recommendation from the panel, include in the program the conduct of projects and activities to increase public awareness of the effects on human health that may result from exposure to—

(A) durable fibers;

(B) ceramic, carbon, and other manmade fibers;}
“(c) Minimal Risks.—If the Administrator determines, on the basis of the study conducted under section 223, that asbestos-containing products used by consumers and workers do not pose an unreasonable risk of injury to human health, the Administrator shall not be required to conduct a program under this section.

(d) Authorization of Appropriations.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003 and each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 4. Asbestos-Caused Diseases.

Subtitle title IV of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 285 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

SEC. 417D. RESEARCH ON ASBESTOS-CAUSED DISEASES.

(a) In General.—The Secretary, acting through the Director of NIH and the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention shall establish a national campaign to educate consumers concerning:

(1) the dangers of vermiculite insulation, particularly asbestos; and

(2) measures that homeowners and business owners can take to protect against those dangers.

(b) Administration.—The Secretary shall carry out this section:

(1) through the Director of NIH and the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; and

(2) in collaboration with the Administrator of the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry and the head of any other agency that the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(c) Registry.—

(1) In General.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this section, the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, in cooperation with the Director of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health and the Administrator of the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, shall establish a National Mesothelioma Registry.

(2) Contents.—The Registry shall contain information caused by exposure to asbestos, particularly mesothelioma.

(d) Authorization of Appropriations.—In addition to amounts made available for the purposes described in subsection (a) under other law, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003 and each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 417E. Mesothelioma Treatment Programs.

(a) Funding.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Director of NIH and the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, shall provide not to exceed $500,000 for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2007 to each institution described in subsection (b) to strengthen the mesothelioma treatment programs carried out at those institutions.

(b) Institutions.—The institutions described in this subsection are the following:

(1) The Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, New York, New York.

(2) The Karmanos Cancer Institute at Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan.

(3) The University of California at Los Angeles Medical School, Los Angeles, California.

(5) The University of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

(6) The University of Texas, through the M.D. Anderson Cancer Research Center Houston, Texas.

(8) The University of Southern California, Los Angeles, California.

(9) The University of Illinois, Chicago, Illinois.

(10) The University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

(11) The University of California, Los Angeles, California.

(12) The University of California, San Francisco, California.

SEC. 5. Conforming Amendments.

The table of contents in section 1 of the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. prece. 2601) is amended by inserting before the item relating to section 201 the following:

“Subtitle A—General Provisions”:

and by adding at the end of the items relating to title II the following:

“Subtitle B—Asbestos-Containing Products

Sec. 221. Definitions.

Sec. 222. Prohibits asbestos and other durable fibers.

Sec. 223. Study of asbestos-containing products and contaminant-asbestos products.

Sec. 224. Prohibition on asbestos-containing products.

Sec. 225. Public education program.”

By Mr. NELSON of Florida (for himself, Mr. THOMAS, Mrs. FINKELSTEIN, and Mr. BAYH):

S. 2642. A bill to require background checks of all flight school applicants without regard to the maximum certificated weight of the aircraft for which they seek training, and to require a report on the effectiveness of the requirement; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Madam President, in the wake of the September 11 terrorist attacks, it was discovered that many of the hijackers received flight training in the United States. On August 29, 2002, Zacarias Moussaoui, the alleged “20th hijacker,” was apprehended by investigators in Minnesota after accounts that he was only interested in learning to fly, not land, an airplane.

Section 113 of the Aviation and Transportation Security Act requires background checks of all foreign flight school applicants seeking training to operate aircraft weighing 12,500 pounds or more. While this provision should ensure that events like the September 11 attacks are not performed by U.S.-trained pilots using hijacked jets in the future, it does nothing to prevent different types of potential attacks against our domestic security.

The FBI released a terrorism warning indication that small planes might be used to carry out attacks. We need to ensure that we are not training terrorists to perform these activities. We can’t allow critical warnings to go unheeded.

Today I am introducing legislation that would close this dangerous loophole by requiring background checks on all foreign applicants to U.S. flight schools, regardless of the aircraft on which they plan to train. I am joined in this effort by Senators THOMAS, FINKELSTEIN, and BAYH, and I look forward to the Senate’s prompt consideration of this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2642

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. Flight School Background Checks.

Section 4929(a) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking “having a maximum certificated takeoff weight of 12,500 pounds or more”.

SEC. 2. Report on Effectiveness of Background Check Requirement.

Within 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation and the Attorney General shall submit a joint report to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure evaluating the effectiveness of activities conducted under section 4929 of title 49, United States Code.

Mr. LEVIN (for himself and Ms. STABENOW) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 287

Whereas on June 13, 2002, the Detroit Red Wings (in this resolution referred to as the “Red Wings”) defeated the Carolina Hurricanes, 3-1, in game 5 of the National Hockey League championship series;

Whereas this victory marks the Red Wings’ third Stanley Cup Championship, continuing the team’s reign as the most storied American hockey team;

Whereas this victory marks the Red Wings’ third Stanley Cup Championship in the past 6 years, establishing them as one of the great dynasties in the history of the National Hockey League;

Whereas the Red Wings, who average over 30 years of age, proved once again that talent and experience can triumph over more youthful competition;

Whereas the Red Wings had the best record in the National Hockey League for the decade of the 1990s as well as this past year;

Whereas Nicklas Lidstrom, who has anchored the Detroit Defense for 11 years, became the first European-born player to win the Conn Smythe Trophy for the most valuable player in the playoffs;

Whereas Marian and Mike Ilitch, the owners of the Red Wings and community leaders in Detroit and Michigan, have returned Lord Stanley’s Cup to Detroit yet again;

I congratulate the Detroit Red Wings, who have played in Detroit since 1926, continue to hold a special place in the hearts of all Michiganders;
Whereas Detroit, otherwise known as ‘Hockeytown, U.S.A.’, is home to the most loyal fans in the world;

Whereas the Red Wings are indebted to retiring head coach Scotty Bowman, who has brought the Red Wings to the playoffs 7 times in the last 8 years and who, with this year's victory, has earned his ninth Stanley Cup victory, surpassing his Detroit Blaine for the most championships in league history;

Whereas the Red Wings are fortunate to have had the team captained by Steve Yzerman, who along with being one of the most respected athletes in all of sports, completed one of his best seasons ever despite a serious leg injury which will require surgery at the end of the season; and

Whereas each one of the Red Wings will be remembered on the most illustrious sports trophy, the Stanley Cup, as follows: Pavel Datsyuk, Boyd Devereaux, Kris Draper, Sergei Fedorov, Igor Larionov, Jason Williams, Steve Yzerman, Tomas Holmstrom, Maxim Kuznetsov, Niklas Lidstrom, Fredrik Olausson, Jiri Sieger, Jesse Wallin, Dominik Hasek, and Many Legace; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Senate congratulates the Detroit Red Wings on winning the 2002 National Hockey League Stanley Cup Championships.

Mr. LEVIN. Madam President, I am submitting today, along with my colleague Senator STABENOW, a resolution congratulating the Detroit Red Wings, who on June 13th, 2002, defeated the Carolina Hurricanes 3–1 to win their third Stanley Cup in six years. With this victory, the Wings have further solidified their position as one of the most storied teams in all sports by bringing Lord Stanley’s Cup home to Hockeytown for a 10th time.

Few doubted that this year’s team could make a run at the Cup. Many have argued that this was the greatest hockey roster ever assembled. The last names alone evoke hockey greatness. Along with head coach Scotty Bowman, stars like Yzerman, Fedorov, Lidstrom, and Shanahan, this season’s team included future hall of famers by the names of Hull, Robitaille, and Hasek. It was a team assembled to win, and in the end, that goal was reached.

This is not a story of individual talent, though surely there was a surplus of that. This is a story of teamwork and dedication. Despite the phenomenal play by Detroit’s stars, they would not have succeeded had it not been for the contributions of players like Igor Larionov, Tomas Holmstrom, Kris Draper, Darren McCarty, and Steve Duschesne. Their selfless dedication was exemplified by Duschesne, who sat out only one shift, about ten minutes, after losing six teeth to an errant puck.

During the season many critics claimed that while Detroit had talent, the team was too old to endure the grueling playoffs, which last for over two months. They claimed that younger competition. However, as the playoffs progressed, the team only grew stronger. All questions were put to rest in game three of the playoffs when 41 year old Igor Larionov scored two goals including the game winner in the third overtime period. For this third overtime goal, Yzerman, who along with being one of the most championship victories in major sports, is the motivational leader of the team. When things were going poorly in the series against Vancouver, it was Yzerman who gave the motivational speech which led to a 4–1 victory over the Canucks. That victory was all the more meaningful because it was Yzerman’s 10th Stanley Cup in total that the Detroit Red Wings have won. We are pleased we are only behind the Montreal Canadiens, that have won it 23 times, and the Toronto Maple Leaves, that have won it 13 times. They are the only two teams that have won more Stanley Cups than our own Detroit Red Wings, of which we are so proud.

We also, yesterday, saw a wonderful tribute to the head coach and the entire coaching staff, but particularly to Scotty Bowman, who has now won the Stanley Cup in his 30 years, and 9 years with Detroit. This is the most for any coach in the NHL. Sports Illustrated has called him the best coach in any sport. That is high praise.

Yesterday, the fans, of whom we have many—in fact, we in Detroit and in Michigan believe we have the best fans in the country, and indeed in the world. In Hockeytown everyone joined in rousing support and thanks to Scotty Bowman for all he has done during the past two months, and also for leading a group of men who are role models both in their sport on the ice as well as in their own communities and personal lives.

We are sorry to see Scotty leave, but we are grateful that he has spent this time in Detroit and that he has given his all to help our team achieve the very highest honors possible.

Interestingly, we know the Stanley Cup was named after Lord Stanley of Preston, the Governor General of Canada. In 1893, he started this award by purchasing a small, gold-plated, silver bowl from a London silversmith for $50.
The bowl was awarded to the best hockey team in Canada. The original cup is actually in a museum.

It was a great honor, yesterday, for me to see our Stanley Cup, to see the names that are engraved there, to know that Detroit has such a high place of honor, and that the Detroit Red Wings have once again brought the cup home to Detroit.

So congratulations to the Red Wings. We are so proud of you. It is my great pleasure to stand with Senator Levin in salute to our Detroit Red Wings today.

SA 3893. Mr. DASCHLE (for Mr. ENSIGN (for himself, Mr. KERRY, and Mr. STEVENS)) proposed an amendment to the bill H.R. 4560, to eliminate the deadlines for spectrum auctions of spectrum previously allocated to television broadcasting; as follows:

―(1) FCC TO DETERMINE TIMING OF AUCTIONS.—Section 309(j) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)) is amended by inserting at the end the following new paragraph:

“(15) COMMISSION DETERMINE TIMING OF AUCTIONS.—The Commission shall determine the deadlines for qualifying for bidding; conducting auctions; collecting, depositing, and reporting revenues; and completing licensing processes and assigning licenses.
“(B) Termination of portions of auctions 31 and 44.—Except as provided in subparagraph (C), the Commission shall not commence or conduct auctions 31 and 44 on June 19, 2002, and March 20, 2002, respectively, for the public notices of March 19, 2002, and March 20, 2002 (DA 02–62 and DA 02–63).

“(C) Exception.—Subparagraph (B) shall not apply to the auction of—

“(i) the C-block of licenses on the bands of frequencies located at 716–716 megahertz, and

“(1) Eligible bidders.—The entities that shall be eligible to participate in the auctions of the C-block and D-block licenses described in clause (i) shall be those entities that were qualified entities, and that submitted applications to participate in auction 44, by May 8, 2002, as part of the original auction 44 short form filing deadline.

“(2) Exception for public safety channel clearing.—The restrictions in subsection (a) shall not apply to a station licensee that is seeking authority (either by waiver or otherwise) to vacate the frequencies that constitute television channel 63, 64, 68, or 69 in order to make such frequencies available for public safety purposes pursuant to the provisions of section 337 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 337).

“§ 1414. Members eligible for retired pay who have service-connected disabilities; payment of retired pay and veterans’ disability compensation

“(a) In general.—Section 1414 of title 10, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

“(b) Special rule for chapter 61 career retirees.—The retired pay of a member retired under chapter 61 who has service-connected disabilities that were incurred or aggravated in the line of duty as a member of the Armed Forces shall be reduced by—

“(i) the amount of retired pay which would have been entitled under any other provision of law based upon the member’s service in the uniformed services if the member had not been retired under chapter 61; and

“(ii) any amount required to be paid to the member under section 503 of title 38, United States Code, in lieu of retired pay.

“(c) Exception.—Subsection (a) does not apply to a member retired under chapter 61 of title 10 with less than 20 years of service who has been entitled under section 503 of title 38; but only to the extent that the amount of the member’s retired pay under chapter 61 of this title exceeds the amount of retired pay to which the member would have been entitled under any other provision of law based upon the member’s service in the uniformed services if the member had not been retired under chapter 61.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

CONVENTION ON RIGHTS OF THE CHILD ON INVOLVEMENT OF CHILDREN IN ARMED CONFLICT—TREATY DOCUMENT NO. 106-37A

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate
The Senate advises and consents to the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict, subject to the following understandings and conditions, as agreed to:

Resolved (two-thirds of the Senators present concurring)

SEC. 1. ACCEPTANCE AND CONSENT TO RATIFICATION OF THE OPTIONAL PROTOCOL TO THE CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD ON THE INVOLVEMENT OF CHILDREN IN ARMED CONFLICT, SUBJECT TO UNDERSTANDINGS AND CONDITIONS.

The Senate advises and consents to the ratification of the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict, opened for signature at New York on May 25, 2000 (Treaty Doc. 106-37; in this resolution referred to as the “Protocol”), subject to the understandings and conditions set forth in section 2 and the conditions in section 3.

SEC. 2. UNDERSTANDINGS.

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the following understandings, which shall be included in the United States instrument of ratification of the Protocol:

(A) ASSUMPTION OF OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD.—The United States understands that the United States assumes no obligations under the Rights of the Child by becoming a party to the Protocol.

(B) IMPLEMENTATION OF OBLIGATION NOT TO PERMIT CHILDREN TO TAKE DIRECT PART IN HOSTILITIES.—The United States understands that, with respect to Article 1 of the Protocol—

(i) the term “feasible measures” means those measures that are practical or practically possible, taking into account all the circumstances ruling at the time, including humanitarian and military considerations;

(ii) means immediate and actual action on the battlefield likely to cause harm to the enemy because there is a direct causal relationship between the activity engaged in and the harm done to the enemy; and

(iii) does not mean indirect participation in hostilities, such as gathering and transmitting military information, functioning as transporters, weapons, munitions, or other supplies, or forward deployment; and

(C) any decision by any military command, in its own interest, or other person responsible for planning, authorizing, or executing military action, including the assignment of military personnel, shall only be judged as violative of this Protocol if the department in charge of the relevant circumstances and on the basis of that person’s assessment of the information reasonably available to the person at the time the person planned, authorized, or executed the action under review, and shall not be judged on the basis of information that comes to light after the action was taken.

(D) means that the United States understands that nothing in the Protocol establishes a basis for jurisdiction by any international tribunal, including the International Criminal Court.

SEC. 3. CONDITIONS.

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the following conditions, which shall be included in the United States instrument of ratification of the Protocol:

(A) INITIAL REPORT.

Not later than 90 days after depositing the instrument of ratification, the Secretary of Defense shall submit to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate a report describing the measures taken by the military departments in implementing that obligation.

(B) SUBSEQUENT REPORTS.

(1) SUBSEQUENT INITIAL REPORT.—The Secretary of State shall submit to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate a report on the implementation of Article 3 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child pursuant to Article 8 of the Protocol.

(C) REPORT BY THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE.—Not later than 30 days after any significant change in the policies of the military departments in implementing the obligations set forth in the Protocol, the Secretary of Defense shall submit a report to the Committee on Foreign Relations and the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate describing the change and the rationale therefor.

CONVENTION ON THE RIGHTS OF THE CHILD ON THE SALE OF CHILDREN, CHILD PROSTITUTION AND CHILD PORNOGRAPHY—TREATY DOCUMENT NO. 106-37B

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Executive Calendar No. 6, the Optional Protocol No. 2 to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography; that the protocol be considered as having advanced through its parliamentary stages up to and including the presentation of the resolution of ratification; and that the reservation, understandings, declarations, and condition be agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Madam President, I am very pleased that today the Senate is approving two Optional Protocols to the U.N. Convention on the Rights of the Child. The Optional Protocol on Involvement of Children in Armed Conflict, also known as the Child Soldiers Protocol, aims to prevent children under the age of 18 from directly participating in hostilities. The second treaty, the Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography aims to strengthen efforts to put a stop to the trafficking and exploitation of children.

Last March, I chaired a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing on these two Protocols that featured members of the State, Justice, and Defense Departments. I appreciate the cooperation the committee received from these agencies in making ratification of these two treaties possible. The hearing also featured a panel of private witnesses that was led by Jo Becker, a tireless advocate on the issue of banning the use of child soldiers.

During her testimony, Ms. Becker pointed out that in Pakistan, two generations of children have been subject to recruitment, first into the resistance to Soviet forces, and then into various warring factions. It is well-known that the Taliban recruited children from the religious schools in Pakistan.

The Child Soldiers Protocol requires parties to the treaty to (1) take “all feasible measures” to ensure that individuals under the age of 18 do not take a direct part in hostilities; (2) ban involuntary recruitment into the armed forces for those under the age of 18; and (3) raise the minimum age for voluntary recruitment into the armed forces.
forces from the current benchmark of 15 years of age to that of 16 or higher. Under current law, the minimum age for voluntary recruitment in the U.S. is already set at 17.

Why is ratification of the child Soldiers Protocol in Sierra Leone Right now, an estimated 300,000 children under the age of 18 are currently fighting in more than 30 conflicts around the world. In places like Sierra Leone, children have been kidnapped by rebel groups, given drugs, and forced to commit atrocities. Children can only lose their childhood, they develop psychological scars, they suffer physical injuries, and, in the worst cases, they die.

Listen to the story of a 16-year-old girl who was abducted by the Lord's Resistance Army in Uganda:

One boy tried to escape, but he was caught . . . his hands were tied, and they made us, the other new captives, kill him with a stick. I felt sick. I knew this boy from before. We were from the same village. I refused to kill him and they told me they would shoot me. They pointed a gun at me, so I had to do it. The boy was asking me, "Why are you doing this?" After we killed him, they made us smear his blood on our arms . . . They said we had to do this so we would not fear death and so we would not try to escape from their camp. I told the boy from my village who I killed. I see him in my dreams, and he is talking to me and saying I killed him for nothing, and I am crying.

Here is another story from a former child soldier in Sierra Leone:

"Most times I dream, I have a gun. I'm firing, I'm killing, amputating. I feel afraid thinking that perhaps these things will happen to me again. Sometimes I cry..."

Another boy says, "my schoolmates and I met our old teacher, and we knocked him down. We killed the teacher and we took his books and burned them."

I am proud that the Senate is taking action on this issue. I hope that the Senate will endorse these treaties. Formally adopting the protocol’s standards for U.S. military operations will enable the U.S. to be effectively pressure other governments and forces to end the use of children within their own military ranks.

The second treaty the Senate is approving today is the Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography. The Sale of Children Protocol requires parties to the treaty to make sure that these acts are fully covered by penal or criminal law.

The abuse of children is a global problem. Millions of boys and girls under the age of 18 are bought and sold each year. Girls are particularly vulnerable. According to the United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF), girls appear to be forced into the sex industry at increasingly younger ages, partly as a result of the mistaken belief that younger girls are unlikely to be infected with HIV or AIDS.

Let me mention just a few atrocious examples:
A 15-year-old boy from Mali watched the torture and subsequent deaths of two other forced laborers who tried to escape from a coffee plantation in the Ivory Coast.
A 14-year-old girl from Mexico was brutally raped and then prostituted for months by traffickers in Florida who lured her there by promising a job in the restaurant industry.
An 11-year-old in Thailand was included in a sexually explicit videocassette produced by a pornographer in the United States.

Under the Protocol, countries are encouraged to cooperate to protect children trafficked across borders. The Optional Protocol also calls on nations to ensure that children who have been sexually trafficked, exploited or sexually abused receive services to ensure a complete physical and psychological recovery.

Ratification of this treaty is important to protect these vulnerable children. These children cannot often get help on their own—not only because of their young age but also because they have no birth certificates or official documents. They are, in effect, “invisible.”

Earlier this year, both of these protocols attained the necessary 10 ratifications to make them operative. The Child Soldier Protocol entered into force on February 12. The Sale of Children Protocol entered into force on January 18.

Once again, I am pleased that the United States is joining its name as a ratifying party to these two treaties and I hope that more nations join us in expanding international protections for children.

Mr. REID. I ask for a division vote.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. A division has been requested.

SEC. 3. UNDERSTANDINGS.

The advice and consent of the Senate upon ratification of the Optional Protocol, and to the United States instrument of ratification of the Protocol, that, to the extent that the domestic law of the United States does not provide for jurisdiction over an offense described in Article 3(1) of the Protocol if the offense is committed by a person on board a ship or airplane registered in the United States, the obligation with respect to jurisdiction over that offense shall cease to have effect as to the United States at such time as the United States may notify the Secretary-General of the United Nations that United States domestic law is in full conformity with the requirements of Article 4(1) of the Protocol.

(6) IMPLEMENTATION OF THE PROTOCOL IN THE FEDERAL SYSTEM OF THE UNITED STATES.—The United States understands that the Protocol shall be implemented by the Federal Government to the extent that it exercises jurisdiction over the matters covered therein, and otherwise by the State and local governments. To the extent that State and local governments exercise jurisdiction over such matters, the Federal Government shall, as necessary, take appropriate measures to ensure the fulfillment of the Protocol.

SEC. 4. DECLARATION.

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the declaration that—

(A) the provisions of the Protocol (other than Article 5) are non-self-executing; and

(B) the United States will implement Article 5 of the Protocol pursuant to chapter 209 of title 18, United States Code.

The Chair, on behalf of the Vice President, pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 3355(a), appoints the following Senators to the Board of Visitors of the U.S. Naval Academy:

The Senator from Mississippi (Mr. Cochran), from the Committee on Appropriations;

The Senator from Arizona (Mr. McCain), designated by the chairman of the Committee on Armed Services;

The Senator from Maryland (Ms. Mikulski), from the Committee on Appropriations; and

The Senator from Maryland (Mr. Sarbanes), at large.

MEASURES INDEFINITELY POSTPONED—H.R. 2586 and S. 1779

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the following calendar items be indefinitely postponed: Calendar No. 170, H.R. 2586, and Calendar No. 293, S. 1779.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 417, S. Con. Res. 104.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. CON. RES. 104

Whereas, founded in 1852, the American Society of Civil Engineers is the oldest national engineering society in the United States;

Whereas civil engineers work to constantly improve buildings, water systems, and other civil engineering works through research, demonstration projects, and the technical codes and standards developed by the American Society of Civil Engineers;

Whereas the American Society of Civil Engineers incorporates educational, scientific, and charitable efforts to advance the science of engineering, improve engineering education, maintain the highest standards of excellence in the practice of civil engineering, and protect the public health, safety, and welfare;

Whereas the American Society of Civil Engineers represents the profession primarily responsible for the design, construction, and maintenance of the roads, bridges, airports, railroads, public buildings, mass transit systems, resource conservation, water systems, waste disposal and treatment facilities, dams, ports, waterways, and other public facilities that are the foundation on which the economy of the United States stands and grows; and

Whereas the civil engineers of the United States, through innovation and the highest professional standards, preserve and improve the quality of life for the people of the United States; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That Congress—

(1) recognizes the American Society of Civil Engineers on the occasion of the 150th anniversary of its founding;

(2) commends the many achievements of the civil engineers of the United States; and

(3) encourages the American Society of Civil Engineers to continue its tradition of excellence in service to the profession of civil engineering and to the public.

The concurrent resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. CON. RES. 387

Whereas the American Society of Civil Engineers incorporates educational, scientific, and charitable efforts to advance the science of engineering, improve engineering education, maintain the highest standards of excellence in the practice of civil engineering, and protect the public health, safety, and welfare;

Whereas the American Society of Civil Engineers is a registered 501(c)(3) non-profit corporation, incorporated in the State of Delaware; and

Whereas civil engineers work to constantly improve buildings, water systems, and other civil engineering works through research, demonstration projects, and the technical codes and standards developed by the American Society of Civil Engineers;

Whereas the American Society of Civil Engineers represents the profession primarily responsible for the design, construction, and maintenance of the roads, bridges, airports, railroads, public buildings, mass transit systems, resource conservation, water systems, waste disposal and treatment facilities, dams, ports, waterways, and other public facilities that are the foundation on which the economy of the United States stands and grows; and

S5720

The preamble was agreed to.

REFERRAL OF MEASURE—S. 1272

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that S. 1272, the Prisoner Of War Assistance Act of 2001, be discharged from the Veterans Affairs Committee and then referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONGRATULATING THE DETROIT RED WINGS

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to S. Res. 287, submitted today by Senators LEVIN and STABENOW.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 287) congratulating the Detroit Red Wings on winning the 2002 National Hockey League Stanley Cup Championship and again bringing the Cup home to Hockeytown.

Whereas the Red Wings, who average over 30 years of age, proved once again that talent and experience can triumph over more youthful competition;

Whereas the Red Wings had the best record in the National Hockey League for the decade of the 1990s as well as this past year;

Whereas Nicklas Lidstrom, who has anchored the Detroit Defense for 11 years, became the first European-born player to win the Conn Smythe Trophy for the most valuable player in the playoffs;

Whereas Marian and Mike Ilitch, the owners of the Red Wings and community leaders in Detroit and Michigan, have returned Lord Stanley’s Cup to Detroit yet again;

Whereas the Red Wings, who have played in Detroit since 1926, continue to hold a special place in the hearts of all Michiganders;

Whereas Detroit, otherwise known as “Hockeytown, U.S.A.”, is home to the most loyal fans in the world;

Whereas the Red Wings are indebted to retiring head coach Scotty Bowman, who has brought the Red Wings to the playoffs 7 times in the last 8 years and who, with this year’s victory, has earned his ninth Stanley Cup victory, surpassing his mentor Toe Blake for the most championships in league history;

Whereas the Red Wings are fortunate to have the leadership of team captain Steve Yzerman, who along with being one of the most respected athletes in all of sports, completed one of his best seasons ever despite a serious leg injury which will require surgery at the end of the season; and

Whereas each one of the Red Wings will be remembered on the most illustrious sports trophy, the Stanley Cup, as follows: Pavel Datsyuk, Boyd Devereaux, Kris Draper, Sergei Fedorov, Igor Larionov, Jason Williams, Steve Yzerman, Tomas Holmstrom, Luc Robitaille, Brendan Shanahan, Sean Avery, Ladislav Kohn, Brett Hull, Darren McCarty, Kirk Maltby, Chris Chelios, Mathieu Dandenault, Steve Duchesne, Jiri Fischer, Uwe Krupp, Maxim Kuznetsov, Nicklas Lidstrom, Fredrik Olausson, Jiri Slegr, Jesse Wallin, Dominik Hasek, and Many Legace: Now, therefore, be it

ORDERS FOR WEDNESDAY, JUNE 19, 2002

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until tomorrow at 10 a.m., Wednesday, June 19; that following the prayer and the Pledge of Allegiance, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and there be a period of morning business until 11 a.m., with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the first half of the time under the control of the majority leader or his designee, and the second half of the time under the control of the Republican leader or his designee; and that at 11 a.m. the Senate resume consideration of the Department of Defense authorization bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. REID. Madam President, tomorrow we should get well into the Defense authorization bill. It is very important legislation. It is literally for the security of this country. I hope Senators who have amendments will come and offer them. We have, really, with a bill of this importance, limited time to complete it. I hope everyone will help us expedite passage. There is so much more we need to work on.

Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR SIGNATURE

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator Reid of Nevada be authorized to sign an enrolled bill today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 10 A.M. TOMORROW

Mr. REID. Madam President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:30 p.m., adjourned until Wednesday, June 19, 2002, at 10 a.m.
Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, it is my great pleasure to invite my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to my friend, Sten Carlson of Burlingame, California, on the occasion of his ninetieth birthday. I want to acknowledge his public service and lifetime of accomplishments.

Mr. Carlson was born on June 27, 1912 in Fort William, Ontario, Canada, of Swedish immigrant parents. Sten’s early life was spent farming in Saskatchewan. He immigrated to the United States in 1951 where he met and later married Elizabeth. They have been happily married for the past forty-five years and are the proud parents of Eric, an automobile executive, and Frank, who was killed in a horrible violent crime in San Francisco shortly after his marriage.

Mr. Speaker, Sten Carlson was a model employee of MacDonald Aircraft where he built the Mosquito aircraft, a low flying plane used for observing troop movement and low level bombing. Known as the “Flying Coffin,” the aircraft was made of balsa wood and glue, and powered by Rolls Royce Engines. He then worked for 25 years as a ground mechanic for United Airlines in San Francisco. Although he retired in 1977, Sten has continued to be active in the local labor community, becoming a lifetime member of the International Association of Machinists Local 1781. To this day, Sten still serves as a member of the Board of Directors of Retirees. He has been a strong voice for retirees and for protecting pensioners.

I am grateful to have the privilege of paying tribute to a man so dedicated to the enrichment of his community. Mr. Carlson is a tireless volunteer at San Francisco’s public television station, KQED, and has given over 15 years of volunteer service to Peninsula Medical Center. He is currently involved in implementing the medical center’s Lifeline Program, which provides local seniors with a transmitter placed in a necklace. If the senior is in need of medical assistance and unable to reach the phone they can then push a button on the medallion, sending a signal to local emergency medical services that they need assistance.

These efforts are typical of Sten Carlson, as he has always made time in his life for community service. His own personal tragedy, the loss of a son in a senseless violent crime, has been the motivation for his long-standing focus on victim support groups, a commitment spanning over three decades. Sten Carlson lives a life that serves as a testimony to integrity, fidelity, honor, ethical courage, and devotion to family, friends, and country.

Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues to join me in saluting and congratulating this extraordinary individual, Sten Carlson, as he and his family gather to celebrate his 90th birthday.
for its recent decision to open a U.S. Embassy in Malabo, Equatorial Guinea. Indeed, the investment of Federal funds and State Department personnel for representation in the small African country may pay huge dividends in the form of American lives saved and U.S. national interests protected.

According to the State Department, over 1,500 Americans live and work in Equatorial Guinea—primarily in the oil industry. Additionally, U.S. investment in Equatorial Guinea is over $5 billion. As the U.S. presence increases, it is critical that the U.S. provide services and assistance to our citizens. For example, in the case of a natural disaster, access to American embassy officials who can serve as liaisons between Americans and the local hospital could mean the difference between life and death for those Americans caught in the country during the emergency. Also, maintaining a U.S. embassy in Equatorial Guinea would allow U.S. businesses to explore future investment opportunities in the country. Such investments would be important for a region which is struggling to build economic stability for the long term.

DR. HELLER NAMED FIRST DIRECTOR OF CENTER FOR HEALTH WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to advise my colleagues that Dr. Barbara R. Heller, a former constituent, and friend, who served in my office as a legislative fellow, will leave her position as Dean of the University of Maryland School of Nursing. She will be accepting a position as the first Executive Director of the newly formed Center for Health Workforce Development and the first Rauschenbach Distinguished Professor, an endowed professorship dedicated to the improvement of nursing and nursing education.

Dr. Heller will leave behind a significant legacy after twelve years of visionary leadership at the University of Maryland School of Nursing. During her tenure, the school has received four consecutive top 10 rankings by U.S. News & World Report, its premier public institution. Dr. Heller’s leadership has transformed the School of Nursing into a nationally recognized leader in both enrollment and diversity due to aggressive strategies of outreach, enhanced scholarship support, marketing and student recruitment. In fact, the School’s minority student population has more than doubled in the past dozen years, from 15% to 35%.

On June 20, 2002, Dr. Heller and elected officials, University of Maryland faculty, staff, students, alumni and friends will honor Dr. Barbara Heller for her many years of leadership. I Join them in saluting her for her critical role in preparing nurses for the 21st century.

HONORING NATIONAL HISTORY CONTEST WINNERS

HON. BETTY MCCOLLM OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Ms. McCOLLUM. Mr. Speaker, it is always a privilege when I have the opportunity to recognize a young person for a special accomplishment. Today, I feel especially fortunate to acknowledge a group of students who have used their talents to explore a wide variety of historical topics. I want to congratulate eight young women from the Fourth District of Minnesota who have embraced the subject of history and taken it one step further. These students not only participated in this year’s National History Day competition, but also came away with national prizes. These bright, ambitious students worked as true historians in creating their projects—they were actual documentarians, playwrights, researchers, and curators. They applied what they learned in the classroom and used it in a real world setting.

Anna Rice, a tenth grader from Central High School in St. Paul, took the prestigious Grand Prize in the National History Day competition by submitting a top-notch research paper. Anna should be very proud to be recognized as the Nation’s top young historical writer.

Melissa Brown, Kaitie Cochrane and Lindsey Jans, seventh graders from Sunrise Park Middle School in White Bear Lake, walked away with a national prize for their performance of “Separate But Equal: Brown v. Board of Education.” These students also had the honor of performing their project at the Smithsonian Institution’s National Museum of American History in Washington, DC.

I am very proud of all the students who participated in this year’s contest. The time and dedication they have committed to their projects should be commended. It is wonderful that these eight students received special recognition for their work. The fact that they were singled out among over half a million participants nationwide is astonishing.

I will continue to lend my support to this important competition. Events such as the National History Day Competition not only give young people a chance to shine, but allows them to use their talents and creativity to make a difference in their communities.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MRS. ALMA V. WHITE OF GARY, INDIANA

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, on occasion, I am fortunate enough to come to the floor to congratulate a person who has dedicated her entire life to improving the lives of others. Today, I am proud to congratulate Mrs. Alma V. White of Gary, Indiana, as she retires from her position as Assistant Director of the Lake County Department of Family and Children, after serving more than 18 years in this position and 48 years in service to the residents of Lake County. Her presence in the discipline of social services will not be easily replaced. Throughout her life, Mrs. White has helped many of the less fortunate in her community overcome their difficult circumstances.

In addition to her career in public service, Mrs. White has also been involved with numerous community organizations. She is a member of Grace United Methodist Church, as well as such noble organizations as the American Red Cross and the National Council of Negro Women, among many others. Mrs. White’s commitment to her community has consistently earned the praise of her peers. She has been named “Woman of the Year” three times by the Gary Business and Professional Women Organization and has received numerous other awards of achievement throughout her exceptional career.

Amidst the celebration of her career, there is sadness that the services of such a great woman will be unable to be matched in the future of the Department of Family and Social Services. Not only does Mrs. White diligently work to provide for the needs of her community, but she also cares about the vital issues that she encounters on a daily basis. This combination of commitment and compassion distinguishes Mrs. White from her stellar colleagues, and the people of Lake County are fortunate to have such a devoted individual working on their behalf. Her services to the Lake County Division of Family and Social Services will be sorely missed.

But, Mr. Speaker, I am confident that Mrs. White will continue to serve her community for many years to come. It cannot be disputed that Mrs. White has improved the lives of countless people. This is the mark of a true public servant.

Mr. Speaker, I hope that you and all of my colleagues will join with me in congratulating Mrs. Alma White for her 48 years of distinguished service and wish her a happy and healthy retirement. Although she may be retiring from the Division of Family and Children, the residents of Lake County will continue to reap the rewards of her benevolent spirit.

WAR CLOUDS GATHERING IN SOUTH ASIA

HON. DAN BURTON
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, the danger of war in South Asia concerns us all.
Such a war would be useless, dangerous, and a disaster for Pakistan, India, the minorities of the subcontinent, and the world.

Many South Asia’s watchers speculate that India needs a war to keep its multinational empire together and to divert attention away from domestic problems. They have even speculated that India’s collapse is not a fantasy, and that even L.K. Advani, the militant Hindu Home Minister of India, is worried about India’s territorial integrity.

How, then, could South Asia become the trigger that brings freedom to the minority nations such as the Sikh homeland of Khalistan, predominantly Christian Nagaland, Kashmir, and others, just as World War I brought independence to many nations living under the aegis of the British Empire and the Ottoman Empire. The end of the Cold War brought freedom to many nations which had been living under Soviet rule, including Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and others. A war in South Asia could have a similar effect on the nations and peoples of the subcontinent.

The Council of Khalistan recently called on Sikh soldiers not to fight for India, but to fight to free their homeland, Khalistan. Given the oppression that has killed over 250,000 Sikhs since 1984 according to the Punjab State Magistrate, who hold 52,588 political prisoners, the Movement Against State Repression reported that the Indian government has admitted to, that has killed over 80,000 Muslims, over 200,000 Christians in Nagaland, thousands upon thousands of other minorities such as Bodos, Dalit “Untouchables,” Tamils, Assamese, Manipuri’s, and others, why should any of these minorities fight for the Indian state?

The Council of Khalistan’s recent Open Letter contains much more information on this. To help my colleagues and constituents stay fully informed about the sentiments of many Sikhs within India, I would like to put that open letter into the Record at this time.

COUNCIL OF KHALISTAN,

OPEN LETTER TO THE SIKH NATION
CLOUDS OF WAR BETWEEN INDIA AND PAKISTAN GATHER; INDIA IS ON THE VERGE OF DISINTEGRATION—Sikh Soldiers and Officers Should Not Fight for India But to FREE KHALISTAN. IT IS THE PROPER TIME TO LAUNCH SHANTMAI MORCHA TO LIBERATE KHALISTAN

DEAR KHALSA JI: WAHE GURU JI KA KHALSA, WAHE GURU JI KA PATHEH

War clouds are gathering in South Asia. War between India and Pakistan looks imminent. It is expected to break out this fall. Troops have been gathering on the borders, and the recent killings in Kashmir provide the Indian government with an excuse to attack Pakistan. The killing of Abdul Ghani Lone, the Kashmiri freedom movement, merely heightens the tensions.

Remember that the fanatic BJP leaders are on record that they want to make an “Akhand Bharat” by defeating Pakistan and incorporating it into India. Their aggression in Kashmir is internationally known. They will not hold a plebiscite in Kashmir even if they promised to do in 1948. It is India that launched the nuclear arms race in South Asia and has nuclear weapons pointed at Pakistan. How can a government that is seeking union with India, then seek to influence the political parties in Pakistan?

Sikhs should take this opportunity to reclaim our lost sovereignty and liberate our homeland, Punjab, Khalistan, from Indian occupation.

L.K. Advani has said that when Kashmir goes, India will fall apart, and he is right. We must take advantage of this situation to reclaim our sovereignty. Sovereignty is our birthright. The Guru Sahib gave us the right to the Khalsa Panth. (‘In grieb Sikh ko deon Patshahi,’) Banda Singh Bahadur established the first Khalsa rule in Punjab from 1710 to 1716. The Khalsa projected an image of perdition of the Sikhs. Again Sikhs established a sovereign, independent rule from 1765 to 1849, when they lost the Sikh homeland, Punjab, into British India.

This is a wake-up call for the Sikh Nation. The massacre of Muslims in Gujarat is a test of whether the Sikh Nation to ensure their safety, we must free our homeland, Khalistan. Given the Indian government’s ongoing efforts to destroy the Sikh religion is to achieve independent rule from 1765 to 1849, when they lost the Sikh homeland, Punjab, into British India.

About 80 percent of the sacrifices during the fight to regain freedom from the British were Sikhs. Sikhs formed only 1.5 percent of the Indian population at the time. At the time of India’s independence, Sikhs were equal signatories to the transfer of power. The Sikh Nation’s leadership should have gotten an independent country for the Sikhs at that time, but they were fooled by the Hindu leadership of Nehru. Sikhs are share and share alike as a nation and to enjoy a prosperous future.

Without political power, nations perish.

We have seen this blow of freedom in the form of the attack on the Golden Temple in June 1984, when over 20,000 Sikhs were killed in Punjab in a single month. Sikhs can never forget or forgive or forget the desecration of the Golden Temple. This is the history and tradition of the Sikh Nation.

The next massacre of Sikhs occurred after the assassination of Indira Gandhi in Delhi. There was a mass murder of Sikhs throughout India, including Delhi. The Sikhs were pulled out of trains and burned alive. Sikh farmers were burned in their trucks. Hindu militants put tires around their necks and burned them to death. Sikh police officers were disarmed and confined to their barracks. This is what happened recently to the Muslims in Gujarat.

Human Rights Watch Asia has clearly stated that the Indian government orchestrated the recent genocide in Gujarat. Policemen stood and watched while Muslims were attacked and murdered. One policeman said that he was ordered not to fire his weapon.

This is the same modus operandi that the Indian government control. Their betrayal of the ideals of the Khalsa Panth. (‘In grieb Sikh ko deon Patshahi,’) Banda Singh Bahadur established the first Khalsa rule in Punjab from 1710 to 1716. The Khalsa projected an image of perdition of the Sikhs. Again Sikhs established a sovereign, independent rule from 1765 to 1849, when they lost the Sikh homeland, Punjab, into British India.

The Badal government was forced to conduct an inquiry by three Punjab police officials under the leadership of DIG Tiwari into the killing of Jathedar Kaunke. As of today that report has not been made public.

The next solution is the formation of a Khalsa Raj Party under new, honest, dedicated, and committed leadership. Now is the time to do it. Let’s not waste time and prolong the suffering and agony of the Sikh Nation. The only remedy is to sever our relationship with Delhi completely, declare independence from India and start a peaceful agitation to free the Sikh homeland, Punjab, Khalistan.

Such a war would be useless, dangerous, and that even L.K. Advani, the militant Hindu Home Minister of India, is worried about India’s territorial integrity.

THE MORE THINGS CHANGE, THE MORE THEY REMAIN THE SAME: ERIC HOFFER ON ISRAEL IN 1968

HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I recently came across an article by the American social philosopher Eric Hoffer, about the double standard to which the world holds Israel. The sad irony is that this extraordinary piece was written 34 years ago, and it is just as relevant today as it was then. Mr. Hoffer’s insightful analysis was published in the Los Angeles Times on May 26, 1968.

Eric Hoffer was an American social philosopher, author of nine books and a winner of the Presidential Medal of Freedom. His first book, The True Believer, published in 1951, was widely praised as a masterpiece.

This article, which as I mentioned appeared in 1968, describes the trend of international scorn focusing solely on Israel; whether it is the status of refugees, fighting in self-defense, or ending armed conflict, Israel is consistently held to a standard that is different from that which is applied to the rest of the world. Put simply, what other nations freely do, Israel cannot.
Although he was not Jewish, Mr. Hoffer championed a strong U.S.-Israel relationship and understood the geopolitical importance of Israel. Furthermore, Mr. Hoffer recognized the moral responsibility of the international community to support the world’s only Jewish state in light of worldwide inaction and indifference to the Holocaust that had occurred just 23 years before this article was written.

[From the Los Angeles Times, May 26, 1968]

ISRAEL’S PECULIAR POSITION
(By Eric Hoffer)

The Jews are a peculiar people: things permitted to other nations are forbidden to the Jews.

Other nations drive out thousands, even millions of people and there is no refugee problem. Russia did it; Poland and Czecho- slovakia did it; Turkey threw out a million Greeks, and Algeria a million Frenchmen. Indonesia threw out heavens knows how many Chinese—and no one says a word about refugees. But in the case of Israel the displaced Arabs have become eternal refugees. Everyone insists Israel must take back every single Arab. Arnold Toynbee calls the displacement of the Arabs an atrocity greater than any committed by the Nazis.

Other nations when victorious on the battlefield do not hold grudges. But when Israel is victorious it must sue for peace.

Everyone expects the Jews to be the only real Christians in this world. Other nations when they are defeated may not survive and recover, but should Israel be defeated, it would be destroyed. Had Nasser triumphed last June he would have wiped Israel off the map, and no one would have lifted a finger to save the Jews. No commitment to the Jews by any government, including our own, is worth the paper it is written on.

There is a cry of outrage all over the world when people die in Vietnam or when two people are executed in Rhodesia. But when Hitler slaughtered Jews, no one remonstrated with him. The Swedes, who are ready to break diplomatic ties with America because of what we do in Vietnam, did not let out a peep when Hitler was slaughtering Jews. They sent Hitler choice iron ore and ball bearings, and serviced his troop trains to Norway.

The Jews are alone in the world. If Israel survives, it will be solely because of Jewish efforts and Jewish resources. Yet at this moment Israel is our only reliable and unconditional ally. We can rely more on Israel than any committed by the Nazis.

When the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act expires in 2011, my constituency of middle-class families who have decided to get married will be forced to pay more taxes simply because they chose to marry. I do. When the government tells married couples they will be punished because of their wedding vows, we are sending a dangerous message to younger generations about the importance of marriage.

When Congress fails to make permanent the marriage tax penalty relief, this country will see 21 million married couples suffer because their taxes will be increased.

I am especially concerned that if Congress does not act, any of our low-income married taxpayers will see their Earned Income Credit simplified or completely eliminated. This unfairly discriminates against poorer families who have made a commitment before both God and man to remain faithful in marriage to one another. I am appalled that any member of the United States Congress would support such discrimination against the institution of marriage.

Most marriage penalties occur when the spouse earning the higher wage makes between $20,000 and $75,000 per year. We are not talking about the rich, we are talking about low and middle class families who are working hard just to make ends meet.

I would also like to remind my colleagues today that with passage of this bill, we will be further helping low-income taxpayers by preventing Earned Income Credit simplifications from disappearing in 2011. Failure to pass this bill will increase taxes on married couples by $5.7 billion in 2010 and by $10.4 billion in 2011.

Mr. Speaker, let’s respect the sanctity of marriage by eliminating these shameful marriage taxes.

TRIBUTE TO JACK TEICH
HON. NITA M. LOWEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in tribute to Jack Teich, CEO and Co-Chairman of the Board of the Acme Architectural Company. Mr. Teich was honored this past October at The Friars Foundation Annual International Gala Dinner and Ball, along with legendary writers and lyricists Betty Comden and Adolph Green. It is in the spirit of this occasion that I am pleased to call to the attention of my colleagues the many contributions Mr. Teich has made to his community and the Friars organization, and to congratulate him today.

Mr. Teich, a resident of Harrison, NY, in my district, is the President and CEO of Acme Architectural Products Inc., a leading manufacturer of building products, which has offices and manufacturing plants throughout New York State. His sons Marc and Michael have recently joined their father in the family business.

Mr. Teich is also involved with several philanthropic organizations. He is a member of the Chief Executive Organization and the World Presidents Organization, of which he is Vice-Chairman of the New York chapter. He is also a Trustee of the Pension and Welfare Funds of Local 2947 Carpenters Union, and is active with the Personal Enterprise program with Cornell University. He and his wife Janet are on several charity boards including the Pediatric Cancer Foundation. Janet is also a board member of The Rye Art Institute.

Jack has been active with the Friars Club since 1974, and serves on its Finance Committee. His family has also been and continues to be deeply involved in the Friars Foundation, which gives performing Arts Scholarship Grants to 12 colleges in New York State to young people studying one of the performing arts.

For his commitment and many contributions to his community and his State, it is my privilege to join the Friars Club in honoring Mr. Jack Teich on this special occasion.

—PROPOSING A TAX LIMITATION AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES—

SPEECH OF
HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 12, 2002

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.J. Res. 96, the Tax Limitation Amendment of 2002. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

H.J. Res. 96 amends the U.S. Constitution to require that any bill, resolution, or legislative measure that proposes to change Internal Revenue laws must have the approval of two-thirds of those voting in the House of Representatives and the Senate. This requirement would not apply when a declaration of war is in effect, or when the United States is engaged in a military conflict which causes an imminent and serious threat to national security as found by both Chambers and the President.

Mr. Speaker, in his famous McCulloch v. Maryland opinion, Chief Justice John Marshall stated that “The power to tax is the power to destroy.” This amendment sets out to make it more difficult for the Congress to arbitrarily raise taxes, and presumably, make the Federal Government more efficient and less bloated with unnecessary spending.

History has shown that it is far easier for Congress to raise taxes to cover spending deficits than it is to reduce that spending to reasonable levels. This is all the more true today. Neither party wants to be held responsible for any future return to peacetime deficit spending. Should such an event appear likely to occur, the temptation to raise taxes to cover any potential deficit would be overwhelming.

The enactment and ratification of this amendment would prevent a return to the situation which existed in our Nation 25 years ago. During the 1970s middle-class families were struggling to get by under crippling high marginal tax rates, which, thanks to high inflation and bracket creep, reached deeper into the working class ranks with every passing year.

This amendment forces those who want to raise taxes, for whatever reason, to do their homework beforehand, and convince two-thirds of their colleagues in Congress of the need to do so. For this reason, it is a fiscally prudent idea, and one that merits being sent to the States for ratification.

RECOGNITION OF BONITA AND KEVIN SCHAEFFER
HON. BILL SHUSTER OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Bonita and Kevin Schaeffer for their truly remarkable commitment to providing care to individuals with severe mental retardation, physical disabilities, and disease. On July 29th, 2002 Mrs. and Mrs. Schaeffer will be celebrating 20 years with Family Care Services, Inc. located in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania. During this time they have provided complete care to numerous individuals and continue to do so today. They currently care for five individuals that require assistance with almost all aspects of daily living.

The story of the Schaeffers starts 20 years ago, before there were regulations to govern this type of care. They were the first family in the nation to obtain a C-1 license from the Department of Health and Human Services, Inc. located in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania. This license is the same one nursing homes are required to obtain. They continue to provide this high level of care with very little assistance from other direct care staff. This translates into long hours and limited time to themselves. However, Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer have chosen this arrangement happily and without complaint demonstrating a level of commitment worthy of thanks and praise.

The Schaeffers are an excellent example of people who have chosen to live a life of service to others. They have opened their home and put the needs of others before their own for 20 years. Through personal sacrifice they are giving gifts of hope, strength, and love to those they care for. Although these gifts cannot cure the ailments of the body, they are a powerful medicine for the heart. I encourage others to follow the example the Schaeffers are setting by giving of themselves and helping others in any way they can. President George W. Bush, in his last State of the Union Address, challenged all of us to give two years of their lives to service. Today, neither party wants to be held responsible for any future return to peacetime deficit spending. Should such an event appear likely to occur, the temptation to raise taxes to cover spending any potential deficit would be overwhelming.

The enactment and ratification of this amendment would prevent a return to the situation which existed in our Nation 25 years ago. During the 1970s middle-class families were struggling to get by under crippling high marginal tax rates, which, thanks to high inflation and bracket creep, reached deeper into the working class ranks with every passing year.

The accusation is that while he was a Congressional staff member, Attorney R. Allen Sinclair shovved $2500 a month in cash kickbacks under the office door.

R. Allen Sinclair was convicted as part of my Congressional staff in 1998. At that time he purchased a brand-new van for $25,000–$30,000, he leased another car for $290 a month, bought between $50,000 and $60,000 worth of media advertising and purchased a $273,000 home, which a Delaware bank financed for $276,000. Additionally, it’s unspoken that types of school loan payments were outstanding for his legal education.

Oddly enough, during his employment with the House, Attorney Sinclair made monthly deposits of $2500 into his IOLTA Account with the Home Savings and Loan Company. Once he left my employ, there were no $2500 deposits made for twelve to twenty-two consecutive months.

Natural force of investigation of me, agents interviewed Attorney Sinclair. His FBI 302 states in pertinent part:

SINCLAIR was not surprised with the thought of losing this license and possibly facing jail that he created this testimony of supposed kickbacks.

He also stated that he never wore a wire or tapped our conversations because he feared me; when all of the staff testified that there was no fear. And, he had previously taped Attorney Matavich to get information about me. He advised that he would use any ploy to gain admissions regarding one of its targets and without a doubt they did so in my case. But obviously the information the FBI gathered in the Sinclair matter was exculpatory and all they could attempt was to present a circumstantial paper trail.

Having already suffered a license suspension and a fraud scheme hanging over his head and the government allowed Attorney Sinclair to escape any punishment for his participation in any wrongdoing and provided a shield from a civil suit involving the money he owed to his partner in order to support his perjured testimony against me. Not surprising, Attorney Sinclair continues to practice law.

Again, the government provided no physical evidence, no wiretaps, no tapes, no hidden microphones and no fingerprints on more than 1,000 documents. How is it possible to reach a conclusion beyond a reasonable doubt with only circumstantial evidence, and the testimony of felons and other dubious witnesses? In a RICO case, no less.

TRIBUTE TO MR. JOHNNY WINTERS

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mrs. MEEK of Florida, Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Mr. Johnny Winters for his long-time and selfless commitment to the South Florida community. Mr. Winters is the founder and executive director of Get Out And Live (GOAL), Inc., which has provided 30 exceeding accomplished years of social, educational, cultural and religious activities for homebound handicapped adults.

Mr. Winters’ tremendous entrepreneurship and dedication have resulted in the servicing of over 50 handicapped clients and a nationwide membership of over 4,000.

He is an awe-inspiring motivational speaker to handicapped and non-handicapped students in private and public schools. His compassion extends to educating students in special education classes to prepare them for future challenges. He has also made radio appearances on the Larry King Talk Show to further his cause.

It is not surprising that Mr. Winters’ humanitarianism has been recognized on several occasions. His work has been acknowledged with awards from numerous fraternal, civic, religious and governmental organizations. For example, on February 27, 1988 he was the honored guest at the Miami Shores Mayor’s Ball, where he received the Mayor’s Award for Outstanding Commitment to the Handicapped People of Miami Shores. He has also received the Legion of Honor Award from the Miami Shores Kiwanis Club.

Recently the city and citizens of North Miami celebrated Mr. Winters’ humanitarian commitment by proclaiming Sunday, April 21, 2002, ‘Johnny Winters Day’. I ask my colleagues to join with me in congratulating Mr. Johnny Winters for his outstanding service to our community. We are fortunate to have noble citizens like him to provide essential services and support to our community.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO JANICE STRAUSS

HON. MAURICE D. HINCHEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Janice Strauss, teacher and child advocate, upon her retirement.

Jan was born on December 17, 1946 in Pittsburgh, PA to Dorothy and Fred Little. The family moved to Niagara Falls, NY on June 6, 1952. Jan is the eldest of 5 children, Kathleen, Michael, Douglas and Nancy being her siblings. She taught herself to read at four years of age and taught her youngest sister, Nancy, to read. Jan went to St. John the Baptist Catholic School until 8th grade, and then finished her public school education at Niagara Wheatfield Schools. She was an exchange student to Ecuador during the summer between her junior and senior years. This is when her love of Spanish and other cultures began to flourish.

Jan went to Harpur College where she majored in Spanish and graduated in January 1968. It was around that time that she met her husband Geoffrey. They were married on May 18, 1968 and they have two children, Micah and Alicia. Jan earned her Masters of Arts in Teaching Spanish at SUNY Binghamton in 1970 and is certified to teach Spanish. She is also a certified English As A Second Language Teacher.

Jan is first and foremost a “people person.” When she was a senior in high school, she convinced her mother that they should take care of their maternal grandmother in their home. She also insisted in bringing her grandmother-in-law into her home rather than put her in a nursing home. When her daughter Micah was born, the lack of credible information about breastfeeding led her to enter into a rigorous training program to become a La Leche League Leader to help other nursing mothers. Over the years, she has welcomed numerous foreign exchange students into her home to enjoy and learn about their cultures and make them feel welcomed and loved in our country. As her children entered public school, wanting to increase the value and quality of the public school experience for children, she became involved in the PTA holding various offices on the local and regional levels. To advocate for the rights and dignity of children, residents and employees, she ran for and won a position on the Union-Endicott School Board.

Next to being a mother, the ultimate example of her love of children and people is her teaching. She cares about each student, always striving to help each student succeed, even those students “written off” by others. She considers any student’s lack of success a personal loss.

Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to salute Jan for her many years of distinguished services and devotion to our community. She has left a fine mark in the teaching profession and our community and I join her family, colleagues and friends in thanking her and wishing her all the best on her well-deserved retirement.
Mr. ROGERS of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Cynthia Wilbanks and Joetta Mial on being named Women of Distinction by the Girl Scouts of the Huron Valley Council of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Cynthia and Joetta were awarded this distinguished honor for their excellence in business ethics and volunteerism through a philosophy which parallels that of the Girl Scout movement. Currently, Cynthia is Vice President of Government Relations at the University of Michigan. Joetta is a retired Ann Arbor Huron High School principle, and began her career as a teacher in the school system. Both women are intensely involved as leaders in community service, serving as members of numerous organizations to enhance the well-being of the Ann Arbor population. Their dedication should serve as inspiration to the entire community, reminding us that service is an important part of American life.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Cynthia Wilbanks and Joetta Mial on being named Women of Distinction. We wish them continued success in their future endeavors.

HON. BILL LUTHER MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. LUTHER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to acknowledge the contributions of Operation Appreciation, an organization whose hard work has helped improve the lives of those entrusted to protect our nation.

Operation Appreciation was the direct result of a loving mother, Diana Low, and her two sons, Cody and Casey, wanting to show their gratitude for the men and women in charge of keeping this great nation safe. Diana wanted to teach her children the importance of voicing their thanks and admiration. She has no idea that this lesson would unite people from all over the country in the simple goal of saying thank you.

After September 11th, I launched a similar program known as Letters from the Homeland. This program called on the people of Minnesota to write letters to the soldiers overseas. The outpouring of support was remarkable.

Operation Appreciation took the idea to the next level. Through the efforts of the Low family, Operation Appreciation began with the heartfelt words of appreciation from children and then expanded to include classrooms in Minnesota. Now, similar letter writing campaigns have started in California, Illinois, Arizona and Wisconsin. Thousands of children have voiced their gratitude for the men and women serving our nation in Afghanistan.

Initiatives such as Operation Appreciation and Letters from the Homeland are an excellent way to tell the men and women in the armed forces their efforts are not going unnoticed. From the kids in the classroom to the soldiers in the field, everyone benefits.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing individuals involved in Operation Appreciation for their exceptional work in conveying the nation’s support for our military personnel.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Cynthia Wilbanks and Joetta Mial on being named Women of Distinction by the Girl Scouts of the Huron Valley Council of Ann Arbor, Michigan.
Mr. Speaker, the importance of Kazakh oil fields to the U.S. cannot blind us to President Nazarbayev’s ongoing assault against the liberties of the men and women of Kazakhstan. I call upon President Nazarbayev to live up to his stated commitments to human rights and an independent media. And I call on this Administration to press for a resumption of a free press and tolerant government in Kazakhstan.

THE FIRST TEE RESOLUTION

HON. JOHN A. BOEHNER
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing a resolution recognizing the efforts of The First Tee, a youth character building organization with programs located throughout the country that provides young people of all backgrounds an opportunity to develop, through both the game of golf and character education, values and character traits that will positively impact their lives and experiences in school.

The First Tee programs are community-based and are implemented through a partnership of parents, civic and corporate leaders, state and local governments, youth-serving agencies, schools, and the golfing community. This week, President and Mrs. Bush are hosting a conference at the White House on the importance of character education to our Nation’s youth. This resolution reflects the House’s continuing commitment to ensuring that positive values are instilled in all children at a young age, and recognizes one community-based program that is making a real difference for disadvantaged children across the country.

Many children throughout the United States face difficult circumstances in their lives. Broken homes, poverty, drugs, alcohol, and violence are everyday factors that many of today’s youth continually face. A structured activity, the enjoyment of sport, and the teaching of positive values and character traits can be a tremendous experience and welcome respite in the lives of these young people.

The First Tee, an innovative model of public-private partnership, is working to make the game of golf more affordable and accessible to young people throughout the Nation by opening up golf courses and providing instruction for free and reduced rates to children of all socioeconomic backgrounds. By the year 2005, The First Tee will serve more than 500,000 children in 250 programs throughout the United States. In my state of Ohio, there are currently four First Tee facilities that serve more than 1,500 hundred children.

And just as importantly, the golf-related exercises are paired with The First Tee Life Skills program, through which young people learn the importance of maintaining a positive attitude, considering the consequences of their decisions, setting and achieving objectives, holding themselves to high standards, and applying to their everyday values such as responsibility, honesty, integrity, respect, confidence and sportsmanship.

One student in particular, Amber Davis, has been involved with The First Tee of Atlanta since April of 2000. Her dedication and enthusiasm have helped her graduate through the first three levels of The First Tee certification process. She has participated at both of The First Tee Life Skills and Leadership Academies at Kansas State University over the past two summers, and received the Renee Powell Award for Female Leadership during the inaugural academy. She currently spends her spare time volunteering as a mentor for 13 of the young female participants in The First Tee program. An accomplished golfer, she has competed in several local, regional, state and national tournaments, and was the only female in the inaugural academy. She credits The First Tee program with helping her to develop her strong leadership skills.

Again, I am pleased to bring attention to The First Tee and am grateful for its work in our Nation’s communities. I ask for my colleagues support and urge them to join me as a cosponsor of this resolution.

FRANK H. DAVENPORT: A LIFE-LONG ADVOCATE FOR PUBLIC EDUCATION

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Frank H. Davenport as he prepares to close the chapter on his 24 years of service as a member of the Essexville-Hampton Public Schools Board of Education. Frank’s devotion to children and his dedication to improving the quality of education in Essexville will serve for many years as a model for all who choose to volunteer their time and talents to their community.

Frank’s passion for education began in 1954 as a civics teacher at Essexville Schools, where stayed for 10 years before heading to the Bangor School District to work with Special Education students. After eight years, Frank again was ready for a new challenge, spending the next 13 years at the Bay Arecac Skill Center, now known as the Career Center, from which he retired in 1985 as Curriculum Coordinator. His work earned him a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America.

Frank was elected to the Essexville-Hampton Board of Education for the first time in 1967, where he served until 1971. He returned in 1982 and has been a board member ever since, including terms as Board President during the 2001-02 school year and as Board Secretary from 1996 to 2000 and again during the 2001–02 school year. He also has served on the Bay-Arenac Intermediate School District Board of Education since 1989.

Frank’s enthusiasm for starting young people off on the right path led him to become the first President/Manager of the Essexville-Hampton Little League. He also was the original President of the Garber Athletic Association. His eagerness for improving his community also prompted Frank to serve on the City Commission and the City Planning Commission in the 1960s.

Naturally, the magnitude and longevity of Frank’s community service required the encouragement and support of his family. Gloria, Frank’s wife for 51 years, and their seven children, Frank III, Thomas, Charles, David, James, Beverly and Daniel also deserve our gratitude for having been an integral part of his efforts.

Finaly, Mr. Speaker, I wish to applaud Frank Davenport for his years of commitment to young people. He has served our community well. I ask my colleagues to join me in expressing thanks to Frank for his many years of service and in wishing him the best in all future endeavors.

TRIBUTE TO RABBI IRWIN GRONER

HON. SANDER M. LEVIN
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, on Thursday, June 20 there will be a celebration of the 70th birthday of Rabbi Irwin Groner and the 40th anniversary of his service to Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield, Michigan.

Shaarey Zedek has a long and distinguished history in the Detroit metropolitan area. It has served as a spiritual home for tens of thousands of families, including my own beginning with my beloved grandparents and so many others after their arrival from Europe and continuing with our parents of blessed memory and their generation.

Rabbi Groner came to the leadership of Shaarey Zedek after the tragic death of Rabbi Morris Adler. He continued, indeed deepened, the tradition of meeting the needs of individual spirituality and serving both the Jewish community and the broader community of metropolitan Detroit.

During his 40 year tenure, Rabbi Groner has responded to the needs of all whether in times of joy or moments of bereavement, whether encouraging the young in search of knowledge, new families seeking guidance and support for their aspirations, or older persons. His sermons over the years have been marked by their insightfulness, wisdom, and wit, delivered with the brilliance of his unique oratory. As said by his colleagues, he is “a brilliant orator and original thinker.”

Even more significant still has been Rabbi Irwin Groner’s endeavors one on one. For thousands, he filled gaps when there was a deep vacuum and provided strength at times of weakness.

He has reached out to the broader community on national issues, on state issues, serving as the Chairman of the Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission, and on metropolitan Detroit issues, having been active in programs of interfaith dialogue and honored at the annual Dine Dinner, along with Detroit Cardinal Adam Maida.

It is an honor to be able to present in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, on behalf of so
TRIBUTE TO MILLIE BENSON
HON. MARCY KAPTUR
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in sad acknowledgment of the passing from this life of a national heroine and true Toledo treasure. Millie Benson, author of the original Nancy Drew series of books and lifelong adventurer, passed away on Tuesday, May 28, 2002, the age of 96 years. She had spent the day at her desk at The Blade newspaper completing her regular column. That last column, published on May 29, 2002, discussed the history and importance of the public library system. It is a fitting end to the storied career of a woman who inspired a lifelong passion for reading, as she herself had, in generations of youngsters.

Millie Benson was born in the town of Ladora, Iowa to Dr. J.L. and Lillian Augustine on July 10, 1905. In addition to being a voracious reader, she also excelled at athletics. She pursued both while a student at the University of Iowa, where she was a champion diver, a reporter for the local newspaper, and a published author. Her first story was published in 1919 in The Nicholas Magazine of New York. It was when completing her Master's Degree that she began her famous book series, and under a pen name wrote the first 23 books of the Nancy Drew mysteries. Paid little and required to sign away the rights, Mildred Benson remained in obscurity as the books' author until a legal battle in 1983 revealed her identity.

In the meantime, Mildred Benson, who had married Asa Wirt in 1928, kept busy with many other pursuits including the writing of several other series for children and novels, obtaining both commercial and instrument rated private pilot licenses (in her sixties!), and traveling into such remote outposts as the jungles of Mexico and South America and archeological sites in Central America, where she pursued her hobby exploring Mayan civilization. After Mr. Wirt's passing, in 1950 she married George Benson. Mr. Benson was editor of the Toledo Times newspaper. Thus began her revived career as a reporter. When the Toledo Times ceased publication in 1959, she became the Blade's headliner.

The 1990s brought her renewed acclaim as the author of the Nancy Drew series. Although in her eighties and nineties, she was a guest of many national and worldwide conferences, publications, and televised broadcasts. In 1993, she was the feature of the University of Iowa's Nancy Drew conference. Recognized by her alma mater not only for her journalism, she was also remembered as the first woman to receive a master's degree in journalism from that institution, an accomplishment she achieved in 1927. She was inducted into the Iowa Women of Fame and received her alma mater's highest alumni award. Other recognitions included lifetime achievement awards from the Ohio Newspaper Women (1997) and The Blade (1999), an honorary Doctor of Letters Degree from Adrian College in Michigan (1999), and the Ohio Library Association's recognition of her "distinguished and creative contributions to children's literature" (1989). Even while living this full and creative life, Millie Benson never forgot her fans. She answered all the letters, honored each request for an autograph, and always had time to talk to her fans.

Everyday of Mildred Benson's life was spent living to life's absolute fullest. Her example inspired those around her. Her unfailing enthusiasm for her chosen profession was infectious and her zest for life unsurpassed. Perhaps Blade publisher John R. Block summarized her best, saying "Millie Benson was one of the greatest women writers and journalists of the 20th century. She was gutsy and daring, a living embodiment of her Nancy Drew heroine." Our deepest condolences go now to her daughter Peggy. Yet Mildred Benson's lasting legacy remains through her books and the millions of lives her writing and her life have influenced.

In a 1973 issue of Books At Iowa describing her career, Millie Benson wrote of writing for the ages and not just a place in time, but her passion for her chosen profession was infectious and her zest for life unsurpassed. The "Ghost of Ladora" is actually the finest tribute to her life's passage, "So now it is time for the final chapter, seemingly one destined from the beginning. A fadeout becomes the most difficult of all, for the story is finished, the reader led to believe that the very best lies directly ahead. New worlds to conquer! New horizons to explore! . . . and all the pilots of fantasy suddenly take shape before our eyes, their winging wings flashing the personal messages "Come fly with me." Such challenge cannot be denied. Work forgotten, we hasten to the nearby airport where a small plane awaits its all-too-willing passenger. Eagerly we take off, climbing high above the smog, the petty perplexities of life. The sky is blue. The wind blows free. Here at last, far above the earth, age and youth imperceptibly blend, and stem reality dissolves into the ultimate Magnificent Dream.

HONORING PROFESSOR YAN XIN
HON. MICHAEL M. HONDA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the contributions and achievements of Professor Yan Xin on the twelfth anniversary of the professor's introduction of the "Yan Xin Life Science Technology" to the American public. Working as a physician, a professor and a scientist, Professor Yan Xin has had an integral role in major breakthroughs in experimental research, which have led to new methods of preventing disease and promoting the health of humanity.

Professor Yan Xin has long been recognized as a leader in the fight against cancer, AIDS, and diseases associated with the aging process. He has been certified as a chief physician by the Ministry of Health in China and has conducted collaborative research with several renowned medical institutions and universities. Professor Yan Xin has been a blessing to his colleagues and those who have benefited from his healing, so much so that Presidents George H.W. Bush, William J. Clinton and George W. Bush have all met with him personally and praised his work.

The key to Professor Yan Xin's success is his ability to combine modern scientific procedures with traditional healing and fitness methods. Yan Xin Life Science Technology utilizes elements of traditional Chinese culture such as acupuncture and medicines derived from herbs, products, then incorporate Western health treatments and the research of Professor Yan Xin and his peers in the modern scientific community. This blend of intuitive and empirical thinking serves as an example for all of those who are working improve the lives of others.

Mr. Speaker, I commend Professor Yan Xin both personally and on behalf of all those whose lives have been improved as a result of his work. Professor Yan Xin's career is far from over, and we can all look forward to continuing successes in his many areas of expertise.

TRIBUTE TO DR. BENJAMIN REED
HON. MARCY KAPTUR
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, this month brings us the retirement of Dr. Benjamin Reed, long time county coroner in Fulton County, Ohio. I am pleased to recognize Dr. Reed, who ended his service April 1, 2002 after nearly four decades.

A physician in the finest sense of the word and true public servant, Dr. Reed is known by everyone in Fulton County and is doctor to all in his hometown of Delta and to so many more in Northwest Ohio. A friend and confidante to all who knew him, his energetic attitude and dedication to his profession are unsurpassed.

The practice of medicine runs deep in Dr. Reed's family. He followed in his grandfather's footsteps, obtaining his medical degree from the University of Louisville. He began his practice in Kentucky, then moved to West Virginia where he doctored to the people of a coal mining town. There he learned to put his skills to the best as he practiced everything from obstetrics to cardiology to surgery. It was soon after moving to Delta that he began working in the coroners office, to which he was elected after seven years. In 1994, his neighbors recognized him as Delta's Citizen of the Year.

In addition to his practice and his coroner's work, Dr. Reed held offices with the Ohio State Medical Association, the Fulton County Medical Society, and the American Heart Association's Northwest Ohio Chapter. As he ends his public life, may Dr. Reed enjoy the serenity of family life and the peace which comes from a job well done. We wish him a very enjoyable retirement as he spends time on his own schedule and preferred activities, and with the family and friends dear to him.

Thank you Dr. Reed, for your exemplary service to us all!

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall Nos. 230, 231 and 232, I was unavoidably detained with matters important to my district. Had I been present, I would have voted “yea” on rollcall votes 230, 231 and 232.

TRIBUTE TO HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH IN TOLEDO, OHIO

HON. MARCY KAPTUR
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 18, 2002

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to recognize a momentous occasion soon to be celebrated by Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Toledo, Ohio. On June 11, 2002, the church will have achieved its 100th year. A special anniversary celebration commemorating this milestone will be held on Sunday, June 9, 2002, when the bishop of the Northwest Ohio Synod E.L.C.A. will conduct a centennial church service.

Soon after its 1902 inception, Dr. G. Neiffer was installed as the church’s first pastor in 1904. Having outgrown its initial site, the present building’s cornerstone was laid in 1924, followed by a 1949 groundbreaking. In 1951, Pastor C.A. Hackenberg formally dedicated the church. Through the years it has grown to meet the needs of its congregation, so that the church facilities include an education wing, a multi-purpose gymnasium, and a day care center. Youth and senior activities, intergenerational services, small group ministries, and retreats serve today’s active membership.

Holy Trinity Lutheran Church’s mission states the church is “committed to follow Christ’s command to be fishers of men and to feed His sheep so that Christ may be alive in the lives of all.” Living this calling, Holy Trinity’s faithful have maintained a consistent Christian presence in the neighborhood and our community, seeking to live the Gospels and Christ’s teachings so that all are made whole. At the same time, the church has evolved with an ever-changing society over the century, so that it has remained a vibrant and integral part of the lives of its congregants and our community.

For the members of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church both past and present, this anniversary will be a time of introspection, remembrance, and reflection. But even as its members look back across a century of worship, good works, and communion, I know that they will also look forward to a new century fulfilling its mission to ensure “that Christ may be alive in the lives of all.”
