The House met at 10 a.m.
The Reverend Dr. Eric Anthony Joseph, Chaplain and Dean, Langston University, Oklahoma, offered the following prayer:

The Biblical psalmist says, “I will make Your name to be remembered in all generations; therefore the people shall praise You forever and ever” (Psalm Chapter 45:16 and 17).

Let us ask God to govern our hearts and minds and Nation as we pray:

Dear heavenly Father, in a world in which many would claim our allegiance and seek our praise, we recognize that You alone are worthy of our praise.

For since the first Continental Congress opened in 1774 with 2⅔ hours of prayer, various ministers and guest chaplains and politicians have graced this transit House to appeal to You, as our sovereign Lord, to play an integral role in the Government of our then young Nation.

In 1789 we had 65 House Members and 26 Senators. In 1800 we moved the seat of power to the District of Columbia near the residence of our first President, General George Washington; and since 1911 we have grown to 435 House Members and today we have 100 Senators.

Therefore, Lord, as we grow as one Nation under Your providential jurisdiction, we beseech You to give these anointed House Members and servants to Thy people the fruit of Your omnipotent Holy Spirit.

May the House of Congress serve with love, joy, peace, patience, goodness, kindness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control, as well as justice, humility, and compassion.

Guide and bless these men and women who have been elected by Your grace to direct us to the center of Your will. We openly ask these things in the name of Your Son, the living Saviour and Lord, Jesus the Christ. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker’s approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the Speaker’s approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Monahan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed bills of the following titles in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 210. An act to authorize the integration and consolidation of alcohol and substance abuse programs and services provided by Indian tribal governments, and for other purposes.

S. 1344. An act to provide training and technical assistance to Native Americans who are interested in commercial vehicle driving careers.

WELCOMING DR. ERIC ANTHONY JOSEPH

(Mr. ISTOOK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ISTOOK. Mr. Speaker, it is my privilege and my honor to welcome today our guest chaplain, Dr. Eric Anthony Joseph, the chaplain of Langston University in Langston, Oklahoma, which is in my congressional district in our State. Langston University is named for the first African-American office holder in American history, and of course it is one of the premier Historically Black Colleges and Universities about which we will be honoring today with a special resolution.

Dr. Joseph is a man of learning, a man of experience, and a man of strong faith. He has received many degrees, including a doctorate of philosophy in intercultural education, a Masters of Divinity, a Masters of Arts in Christian education, a Bachelor of Arts in Communication, and two fine arts degrees. Dr. Joseph has used his talents in a variety of ways to help bring people closer together and closer to God. He has served as a minister, a teacher, a chaplain, as a consultant, an athlete, and as a writer. Dr. Joseph has dedicated his life to ministering to people and strengthening their faith.

I join the Speaker and all of our colleagues in welcoming today Dr. Eric Anthony Joseph to the U.S. House of Representatives; and I thank him for his service, his leadership, and providing us this day with our opening prayer.

UNFETTERED INSPECTIONS INIRAQ

(Mr. FOLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, Saddam Hussein has not yet let weapons inspectors into Iraq and the United Nations; and the world community says, all right. He is agreeing and he is cooperating.

Well, we have been down that road before. Saddam Hussein years ago promised unfettered inspections. However, when the inspectors got there, they were told, not now, not at night, not in the palaces, not in certain locations, nor where we do not want you to go.

President Bush laid out a compelling argument to the United Nations on the need for forcible inspections; and if that does not change the attitude of Saddam Hussein, then that regime must go. They are in violation of the United Nations Council. They have violated numerous articles, and they need to be brought to bear the responsibility that the United Nations has in this effort.

Now, if we are going to continue to pay dues to this organization, we better expect and demand, as the President suggested, that they play a vital role and a meaningful role in world affairs. If they are going to just sit there and gather in New York for cocktails and coffee, then what is the point of spending millions and billions of dollars to keep the organization alive?

Saddam Hussein is a menace. He has proven it so. Let us fight with the President.

EDUCATING COMMUNITIES ONMISSING AND EXPLOITED CHILDREN

(Mr. LAMPSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow in Texas I am co-hosting on the Beaumont Police Department and the Jefferson County Sheriff’s Academy a seminar on missing-and-exploited-children cases. And while we work here in Washington to pass legislation to protect children at home and across America, I also think it is important for us to make sure law enforcement officers have the training that they need.

The seminar is a day-long event run in conjunction with the National Center For Missing and Exploited Children. The first 3 hours of the seminar will cover topics regarding the duties of the first responder and law enforcement resources. In the latter 4 hours, we will discuss the investigation of crimes against children with specific emphasis on physical and sexual abuse, abduction and missing children.

Sixty-nine officers will attend this conference, and that is 69 officers who will be better equipped to deal with the terrible call from a parent saying, My child is missing.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that passing legislation is not our only duty as Members of Congress. I also believe that we must work to educate and assist our communities. This is a great first start.

PASSING A RESPONSIBLE BUDGET

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, when American families face difficult times, they set priorities. Today the United States is fighting a war and facing a slow economy. These are difficult times, and they call for clear priorities. President Bush and Republicans have done just that.

In March, Republicans in the House, led by the gentleman from Illinois (Speaker HASTERT), passed the President’s budget plan that clearly outlined spending priorities.

We are keeping our commitment to education, Social Security, Medicare and, most importantly, national defense and homeland security. But Democrats have offered no plans and have set no priorities. The only clear message coming from them is let us spend more.

We must focus on what we need, not what we want. The American people have been consistent in making the economy their top concern. The President and respected Alan Greenspan have said that the way to promote a strong economy is to control government spending. The President and Republicans have presented a responsible budget that meets our Nation’s priorities. It is time for the Democrats to get on board.

HONORING JULIA FAIRFAX

(Mr. DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Speaker, as a graduate of a historically black college, I too want to add my welcome to our guest chaplain, Dr. Eric Joseph. But I really rise to pay tribute to a grand lady of my community, Miss Julia Fairfax, 93 years old, who passed away just last week.

The amazing thing about her, though, is she was actively engaged and involved with all levels of community activity up until about 6 months ago. A grand lady, a grand dame, a lady that we shall always remember, admire and respect, Miss Julia Fairfax.

FIXING BROKEN BANKRUPTCY LAWS

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, for more than 5 years Congress has been working to fix our Nation’s broken bankruptcy laws. And now when we are just 1 yard from the line, one Senator’s extraterritorial views on abortion have placed this bill in jeopardy. I still have not found anyone who can explain to me what abortion has to do with bankruptcy. Nevertheless, there it is, right in the middle of the bill, language that would single out pro-life protesters for unique punishment while leaving other debtors unaffected.

Mr. Speaker, this is completely wrong. We believe in treating people equally in this country, no matter what their politics, no matter what they believe.

Well, no one should be surprised that this bill is now in jeopardy. Fifty-five of us have been on record since May saying that we could not support this bill if it contained the Senate’s poison pill.

Mr. Speaker, we need to fix this bill first by taking out the abortion language and then pass it.

WHAT IS SADDAM HUSSEIN HIDING?

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, since the end of the Persian Gulf War, Iraq has violated U.N. sanctions and resolutions 16 times. Sixteen times they have thumbed their nose at the United Nations and their resolutions.

Now, I commend President Bush on addressing these issues with the United Nations last Thursday. It is time to enforce all United Nations resolutions, and it is time to put weapons inspectors back in Iraq with unfettered access. This hard line must be taken.

Iraq cannot be given another decade to comply. All U.N. resolutions must be enforced, and this cannot be negotiable.

Mr. Speaker, if Iraq has no weapons of mass destruction, then what are they afraid of? If Iraq complied with the United Nations’ resolutions, sanctions would be lifted; and they could make $120 billion a year in their oil sales; but Saddam Hussein has foregone $120 billion a year to hide something. We must have U.N. inspectors inside Iraq, and they must have complete access to see everything to see just what Saddam Hussein is hiding from the rest of the world.

NO MORE IRAQI OIL

(Mr. REHBERG asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. REHBERG. Mr. Speaker, America is at war against terrorists; yet, we... buy our oil from nations that harbor the very same terrorists our sons and daughters bravely fight.

In the first 6 months of this year, America gave Saddam Hussein a staggering $2.3 billion for Iraqi oil. I do not want my 12-year-old son or the sons and daughters of the people of Montana to the Middle East to fight for terrorist oil, especially when we have oil available here at home.

We have bought enough Iraqi oil. No more.

DECLARING WAR ON IRAQ
(Mr. PENCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PENCE. Mr. Speaker, when the USS Maine was detonated in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, and the United States of America believed Spain to be responsible, we did not pass a resolution in this body authorizing the use of force for a regime change in Spain. We declared war on Spain and we won.

When Pearl Harbor was decimated through a dastardly attack by the imperial government and military of Japan, we passed a resolution authorizing a regime change in this Congress. We declared war on Japan.

Now, in the wake of 9/11, when there is enormous circumstantial evidence to suggest complicity with al Qaeda and Iraq, we are about to debate a resolution authorizing military force for a regime change, seemingly unwilling to use the term “declare war,” discharging our constitutional duty.

Mr. Speaker, a Nation that does not possess the courage to use a word possess the will to wage a war? If the facts are there to prove complicity with terrorism and al Qaeda, and even with 9/11, the nation of Iraq, let us do no less than our duty. Let us pass a resolution to declare war.

WELFARE REFORM
(Mr. CUNNINGHAM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, in 1993, we took up the welfare reform bill. Many on the other side fought the welfare reform bill, but I want my colleagues to know that the events that took place and the successes of welfare reform, I had a meeting with over 100 men and women that had been previously welfare recipients in San Diego. Every single one of them lauded the bipartisan support of that welfare bill.

I had a doctor who came to my office and said that a lad with a 14-, a 13-, and a 12-year-old girl. The 14-year-old had two children. The 13-year-old had a child. The 12-year-old, the mother wanted to know what was wrong because her 12-year-old could not have a child. We changed those kinds of things and bettered it for children.

What we are asking is for the other body to take up the welfare reform bill that has been passed by our colleagues and passed the welfare bill on the Senate side. We will be taking up a resolution this week, and we hope that both sides of the aisle will help to help the people that need it the most.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DAN MILLER of Florida). The Chair would like to remind the gentleman that he should not be urging action upon the other body, the Senate, in his comments on the floor of the House.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE
Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, the Chair will postpone further proceedings today on motions to suspend the rules on which a recorded vote or the yeas and nays are ordered, or on which the vote is objected to under clause 6 of rule XX.

Any record votes on postponed questions will be taken tomorrow.

RECOGNIZING CONTRIBUTIONS OF HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES
Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 523) recognizing the contributions of historically Black colleges and universities.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Res. 523
Whereas there are 105 historically Black colleges and universities in the United States;
Whereas historically Black colleges and universities provide the quality education so essential to full participation in a complex, highly technological society;
Whereas historically Black colleges and universities have a rich heritage and have played a prominent role in American history;
Whereas historically Black colleges and universities have allowed many students to attain their full potential through higher education;
Whereas the achievements and goals of historically Black colleges and universities are deserving of national recognition; and
Whereas the third week in September is an appropriate time to express that recognition.
Now, therefore, be it
Resolved,
SECTION 1. RECOGNITION OF HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES.
The House of Representatives—
(1) recognizes the significance of historically Black colleges and universities;
(2) recognizes that historically Black colleges and universities provide scholarships and fellowships to historically Black colleges and universities to continue their efforts to recruit, retain, and graduate students who might otherwise not pursue a postsecondary education;
(3) commends the Nation’s historically Black colleges and universities for their commitment to academic excellence for all students, including low-income and educationally disadvantaged students;
(4) urges the President, the Vice President, the Secretary of Education, and other Federal agencies to provide scholarships and fellowships for graduate and professional students.

Since 1995, Congress enacted the Higher Education Amendments to make improvements to programs designed to help HBCUs strengthen their institutions and graduate and professional programs under the Higher Education Act, and these changes included allowing institutions to use Federal money to build their own endowments and to provide scholarships and fellowships for graduate and professional students.

In 1998, Congress enacted the Higher Education Amendments to make improvements to programs designed to help HBCUs strengthen their institutions and graduate and professional programs under the Higher Education Act, and these changes included allowing institutions to use Federal money to build their own endowments and to provide scholarships and fellowships for graduate and professional students.

Since 1995, Congress has increased its financial support of HBCUs by 89 percent, and President Bush’s fiscal year 2003 budget, passed by this House in March, included $213 million, a $7 million increase over the current fiscal year, to strengthen HBCUs across the country.
Mr. Speaker, over the last 2 years leaders here in Congress have continued to demonstrate their commitment to historically Black colleges and universities. The Committee on Education and the Workforce has visited a number of HBCU campuses within the last year to discuss issues and concerns of minority-serving institutions to better address their needs through Federal education programs. Tomorrow we will continue our series of hearings on this very important topic.

I would like to thank and commend my colleagues on the Committee on Education and the Workforce, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA), the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER), the ranking Democrat, the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) and others for their leadership on this issue and for their tireless efforts in promoting HBCUs in the House.

I would like to say today that I do not have the opportunity or, given the opportunity for those who would normally stand here and pretend that we have in this collection of colleges. The House leadership has failed to keep its promise to move the education appropriations bill, and they have a lot at stake in that bill. Even worse, the Republican proposal includes only a 3.6 percent increase for Black colleges. Over the past 5 years, these institutions have received a 15 percent annual increase. The increase this year is far less than it was before.

We appreciate this resolution. We appreciate the special recognition being given to historically Black colleges and universities, but they are in need of substantial support.

The Republican leadership has also failed to schedule H.R. 1606, which is the gentleman from South Carolina’s (Mr. CLYBURN) bill to preserve historic landmarks on Black college campuses. H.R. 1606 was approved by the Committee on Resources and has been on the House calendar since June. We would like to see some action on that.

The House has not even held any hearings on H.R. 1606, even though it has 120 sponsors. H.R. 1162 is a comprehensive initiative of minority-serving colleges introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume. I am pleased to join my colleagues in honoring the contributions of our Nation’s historically Black colleges and universities. I am a graduate of Morehouse College and of Atlanta University, both historically Black colleges.

I think it is very important to note that in the constellation of the higher education Dancing in America, the 105 historically Black colleges and universities are only a small part. There are more than 3,000 colleges and universities in the United States at this point. It is very important that we understand the value of this treasure that we have in this collection of colleges.

Our Nation continues to struggle with a great gap in college opportunity. Only 59 percent of African American high school graduates enroll in college compared to 66 percent of white high school graduates. I am not going to stand here and pretend that the bulk of the African American students who do go to college are going to go to historically Black colleges and universities. That is not the case. We have more students enrolled, of course, in other institutions. However, these institutions have a special role in going after an underserved, hard-to-reach group.

Historically Black colleges and universities have a unique track record of success in expanding college opportunity for those who would normally not get the opportunity or, given the opportunity, would need special assistance. Historically Black colleges and universities enroll 16 percent of all African American college students, but they are responsible for a full 40 percent of African American college graduates.

The greater percentage of African Americans that get Ph.D.s are far greater among the graduates of historically Black colleges and universities. They have developed innovative academic strategies, supported cutting-edge research institutions and launched the careers of millions of today’s leaders, including scientists, doctors, teachers, lawyers, artists, entrepreneurs, community and religious leaders. They were there when there was nothing else, especially in the segregated South.

These institutions were created out of the efforts of local people using very basic grassroots methods. Sometimes tuitions were paid in terms of bushels of corn, barrels of cotton. They improved and survived over the years, and even now many of these historically Black colleges and universities have a very difficult time financially. They are not secure at all. Very few of them have endowments which are adequate for the purposes of today’s financing.

Despite broad bipartisan support, they still receive only 4 percent of the $29 billion in Federal funds for universities each year.

The House leadership has failed to keep its promise to move the education appropriations bill, and they have a lot at stake in that bill. Even worse, the Republican proposal includes only a 3.6 percent increase for Black colleges. Over the past 5 years, these institutions have received a 15 percent annual increase. The increase this year is far less than it was before.

We appreciate this resolution. We appreciate the special recognition being given to historically Black colleges and universities, but they are in need of substantial support.

The Republican leadership has also failed to schedule H.R. 1606, which is the gentleman from South Carolina’s (Mr. CLYBURN) bill to preserve historic landmarks on Black college campuses. H.R. 1606 was approved by the Committee on Resources and has been on the House calendar since June. We would like to see some action on that.

The House has not even held any hearings on H.R. 1606, even though it has 120 sponsors. H.R. 1162 is a comprehensive initiative of minority-serving colleges introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), the ranking Democrat on the Republican conference.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, the resolution before the House today recognizes the importance and the significance of the 105 historically Black colleges and universities in America, commonly referred to as HBCUs.

One-third of all black students in college go to HBCUs. These distinguished educational institutions give the chance to place doctors, lawyers, legislators, educators, business owners, community leaders and America’s black middle class into the mainstream of society. What were once the only options for African Americans who want to receive post secondary education are now attractive options where students can learn in a rich, historic environment.

So many young citizens have been given the opportunity to attain their full potential because of HBCUs. Many of them are from underserved communities. These are students who may have never had the chance to go to college. I am a graduate of Morehouse College, but I know many of these historically Black colleges and universities have a unique track record of success. muddy to see some action on that.

The House leadership has failed to keep its promise to move the education appropriations bill, and they have a lot at stake in that bill. Even worse, the Republican proposal includes only a 3.6 percent increase for Black colleges. Over the past 5 years, these institutions have received a 15 percent annual increase. The increase this year is far less than it was before.

We appreciate this resolution. We appreciate the special recognition being given to historically Black colleges and universities, but they are in need of substantial support.

The Republican leadership has also failed to schedule H.R. 1606, which is the gentleman from South Carolina’s (Mr. CLYBURN) bill to preserve historic landmarks on Black college campuses. H.R. 1606 was approved by the Committee on Resources and has been on the House calendar since June. We would like to see some action on that.

The House has not even held any hearings on H.R. 1606, even though it has 120 sponsors. H.R. 1162 is a comprehensive initiative of minority-serving colleges introduced by the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), the chairman of the Republican conference.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, the resolution before the House today recognizes the importance and the significance of the 105 historically Black colleges and universities in America, commonly referred to as HBCUs.

One-third of all black students in college go to HBCUs. These distinguished educational institutions give the chance to place doctors, lawyers, legislators, educators, business owners, community leaders and America’s black middle class into the mainstream of society. What were once the only options for African Americans who want to receive post secondary education are now attractive options where students can learn in a rich, historic environment.

So many young citizens have been given the opportunity to attain their full potential because of HBCUs. Many of them are from underserved communities. These are students who may have never had the chance to go to college were it not for the presence of historically Black colleges and universities in their respective States around the country.

As one that used to play a little football, I am particularly thankful to HBCUs for producing the first black quarterback to be drafted in the National Football League, Paul ‘Tank’ Younger. About 100 NFL players right now have HBCU roots, including the Tennessee Titans’ very distinguished quarterback Steve McNair, a fantastic quarterback who hails from Alcorn State in Mississippi.

Congress, both Democrats and Republicans, has recognized the importance of historically Black colleges and universities and voted to increase funding by 41 percent over the next 5 years. President Bush has continued this dedication by supporting similar increases so many more students can aspire to achieve their hopes and their dreams.

As most of the presidents of HBCUs from around the Nation gather in Washington this week, it is fitting to showcase the many benefits derived from a unique and distinguished network of schools. This resolution urges the White House to issue a proclamation calling on others to support HBCUs with appropriate activities, ceremonies, financial contributions and programs.

Nearly half a million students attend historically Black colleges and universities. We must do everything possible to further promote their role in higher education and the contributions they make to better the lives of so many young Americans. I urge the House to adopt this important resolution.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, Mr. Speaker, I cannot help but recall a number of years ago when I, as a 16-year-old, left home to go to the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff. Not a university at that time, it was Arkansas AM&N College. I recall having $20 in my pocket, scarce as I could possibly be, having never been away from home that much; but I also remember being able to go and register on credit. I also recall being able to pay as I go and borrow books and borrow the room with virtually no money.

Then as time went on, I have six brothers and sisters who also attended the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, four nieces and nephews. Then I look back to my 彼日板の へじり in which I served the people to work with and for me, there are seven individuals who work with me who have attended Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Wilberforce, Morehouse, Howard, UAPB, Jackson State. The reality is that for thousands and thousands of individuals, without these institutions being available, well equipped, ready, prepared, many of the individuals who have managed to rise above the individuality of their circumstances would have had nowhere to do so.

So I commend my colleague for introducing the resolution. I also share the comments of my colleague from New York who suggests that the best way to pay tribute to these institutions is to make sure that they have adequate resources, that they are adequately funded, that there are resources to rebuild, in some instances, their infrastructures. Some of them I have visited their campuses, and they are still in need of repair because of them have virtually no equipment.

Mr. Speaker, as we pay tribute, the best way to do that is to make sure that these institutions are able to continue to grow, to develop, to thrive, and provide the opportunity for the thousands and thousands of students who otherwise would not be able to make it.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 523, Recognizing the Contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. There are about 105 historically black colleges and universities in the United States—the first being Cheyney University of Pennsylvania, which was founded in 1837. This measure commends the Nation’s historically black colleges and universities for their commitment to educating all students, including low-income and educationally disadvantaged students, and recognizes the significance of title III of the Higher Education Act (PL 105-244), which strengthens the academic quality, management, and accountability of historically black land-grant universities, thereby improving a wide range of academic offerings.

I am a graduate of the Arkansas Agricultural, Mechanical, and Normal College, which is a 1890 land-grant institution known today as University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff. The HBCUs constitute some of the largest and most prestigious institutions of higher education in the nation. Several of the 1890s offer degrees and/or professional degrees in engineering, business, agriculture, veterinary medicine, commerce, and science and other areas of national need. Six public HBCUs produce nearly 20 percent of all of the nation’s bachelor degree recipients in engineering and the 1890s graduate over 80 percent of all Black recipients of bachelor degrees in agricultural sciences. Tuskegee University alone has trained more than 80 percent of the Nation’s African-American veterinarians. These universities have been in the forefront of educating youth-at-risk, producing research vital to the quality of life and the environment, and addressing the social and economic needs of inner cities and rural communities. The HBCUs contributions to the Nation’s productivity and economic growth have been significant. Our HBCUs must have increase funding to continue to serve the low-income, and disadvantaged students in our country. After all, “a mind is a terrible thing to waste.”

Mr. Speaker, I urge all my colleagues to support H. Res. 523, Recognizing the Contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities.
strong support of House Resolution 523 because it recognizes the major role that Historically Black Colleges and Universities have played and continue to play in the education of African Americans and people of all racial and ethnic identities.

I emphasize that the HBCUs have always been open to people of all races and have always educated people of all races. We are fortunate in the District of Columbia to have two great HBCUs here, Howard University and the University of the District of Columbia. Most Members know something about Howard, so I want to discuss the University of the District of Columbia, one of the oldest HBCUs, but the last to be funded as an HBCU. Even though it has long been a HBCU, the UDC was funded only in 1999. That occurred as part of a bill passed by this House, the College Access Act, where this House decided that because D.C. only had one university, an open-admissions university, students could not be able to go to any public institution in the United States at low in-state tuition and to private universities here in the city and in the region.

There were some at the UDC who believed higher education to more students would undermine UDC itself. The fact is the opposite has occurred. There is now new interest in UDC, not only because it is now a funded HBCU, but because there is new interest in higher education in the District of Columbia.

Talking about going to college and about the College Access Act has had the effect of raising the profile of the University of the District of Columbia. At its lowest point in 1997, we did not know if the UDC, which had been the step-child of education in the District of Columbia, was going to continue. Now, in no small part because of the College Access Act, which has helped us to educate the next generation of District of Columbia, there has been a 13 percent increase in enrollment at this newest of the funded HBCUs, the University of the District of Columbia.

It would have been tragically wrong to restrict D.C. students given this opportunity of going to colleges, public colleges anywhere in the United States. That is the kind of zero-sum game you never want to play, especially with higher education.

Fortunately, and for the record, the students, the UDC, and the faculty understood and supported the College Tuition Access Act to open public universities to all our residents. Now we understand that having done that, we have increased enrollment at our own State university. We are pleased, therefore, to support this resolution.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time and for bringing this bill to the floor. I thank my colleagues on the Committee on Education and the Workforce on both sides of the aisle, and I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) for bringing this issue to the floor.

Of course, I rise in support of H. Res. 523, which recognizes the contributions of Historically! Black Colleges and Universities. I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS). For the last 3 years he has brought the presence of Historically Black Colleges and Universities here to the Capitol where we have been able to discuss issues of importance in the form of promoting the work that is being done at these colleges and universities.

Currently, there are 105 Historically Black Colleges and Universities that have all provided quality education, specifically in the fields of technology. Historically Black Colleges and Universities have played a prominent role in American history, have enabled thousands of students to obtain their full potential through higher education, and have made important contributions at the cutting edge of the world.

Financial support for Historically Black Colleges and Universities has increasingly been a problem since enrollment has been double compared to the national average. In Maryland, there are four Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Bowie State University, Coppin State University, Morgan State University, and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

One of the greatest issues facing our Nation this decade will be the pressing need to ensure that U.S. workers are prepared to compete in the technology-driven workforce of the future. As we enter the 21st century, U.S. jobs continue to grow fastest in areas that require knowledge and skills stemming from a strong grasp of science and technology. In fact, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has estimated that of the top 10 fastest-growing occupations, the top five are computer-related.

Now more than ever, it is important that we cultivate the scientific and technical talents of all citizens, not just those who have traditionally worked in these fields. Today women, minorities, and persons with disabilities constitute a little more than two-thirds of the U.S. workforce, and yet their presence in the science and technology work force is unacceptably low. As a result, the largest pool of potential workers continues to be isolated from science, engineering, and technology careers. While this is a challenge facing all institutions of higher learning, Historically Black Colleges and Universities have led the way to educating the under-represented minorities in these science, engineering, and technology fields.

There is a disproportionate positive contribution that HBCUs have made to the development of the Nation's technical talent. The National Science Foundation data indicates that HBCUs account for nearly one out of three science and engineering degrees granted to African Americans. In addition, a high percentage of African Americans who go on to pursue an advanced degree in the science, engineering, and technology fields receive their undergraduate degree at Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

In 1998, I introduced legislation, which became law, creating the Commission on the Advancement of Women and Minorities in Science, Engineering, and Technology Development. The purpose of the commission was to look at why women and minorities are not pursuing an education or career in the science and technology fields at the same rate as their traditionally white, male counterparts.

The commission felt that, if we continue to fail these groups in their quest to prepare and participate in the new, technology-driven economy, we put at risk our Nation’s economic and national security. As a result, the major recommendations of the commission were to establish a nongovernmental organization to serve as a clearinghouse of very best practices for educating all ages of women and minorities in the SET fields and also to provide grants for carrying out these best practices.

On that call to action, the BEST initiative was formed, BEST: building, engineering and science talents. It was launched in September 2000 as a public-private partnership. The features that set BEST apart from other initiatives are its national scope, its comprehensive and systematic approach, its engagement of public and private sector leaders, and its vision of aligning key groups that make up America’s underrepresented majority.

As co-chairs of the National Leadership Council of BEST, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON) and I have looked to the leadership of HBCUs. Nationally recognized scholars and practitioners from HBCUs are participating in our blue ribbon panels on BEST practices. Two that have made important contributions are Dean Orlando Taylor of Howard University and Professor Melvin Webb of Clark Atlanta University.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities play an integral role in ensuring that we meet our Nation’s technology and labor needs. By providing students with access to technology and engineering education, they will not only be prepared to use the technology required in most jobs today, but will also be encouraged to pursue careers on the technology forefront. Mr. Speaker, these prestigious institutions of higher learning deserve our highest honors, and I join the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) and others in this Chamber in supporting this legislation and urging passage.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT).
Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I join with my colleagues in supporting H. Res. 523, recognizing the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. I know I am not the only gentlewoman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON) for bringing this forward because it is a good recognition of the thousands of young Americans who have received quality education at the historically black colleges. These institutions have produced the majority of black professionals in the Nation, and the adoption of this resolution will affirm the United States' support of these and critical contributions that their alumni make to our society.

But it is worth pointing out that we must go beyond empty words of praise. We must, this year, work to restore the purchasing power of Pell grants. We must increase the supplemental equal opportunity grants by really several hundred million dollars if we are truly going to pay respect to and help the HBCUs. We should be increasing Federal work study by several hundred million dollars. We should keep in fact, enhance the program leveraging educational assistance partnerships to help with State scholarships. I cannot fail to point out that although we do not know what will be in the appropriations bill coming up, we do know what the President has requested and what the Committee on Appropriations is working with and that is what would for HBCUs be, in effect, a cut in Federal funding. Yes, it is a small increase, but it is not an increase that keeps up with inflation.

So I ask my colleagues to support H. Res. 523, recognizing the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. I praise the dedicated work of the teachers and administrators of these schools. But I ask my colleagues to go beyond words of praise and provide real resources to allow HBCUs to achieve their promise and to allow the students of these colleges and universities to achieve their promise.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the resolution. Most of my life I have been in education. I was a teacher and a coach, both in high school and in college. I have seen what a good education can do. For my parents and I, if there is a single event either athletic or academic that my brother and I went to, so the responsiveness of the families is critical. The President, to have a President that focuses on education and leaving no child behind. If a child from this qualifies to go to college, there should be no child whether it is a historically black college or any group, that should be left behind. Because the consequences are a devilmint themselves.

We must, this year, work to restore the supplemental equal opportunity grants by really several hundred million dollars if we are truly going to pay respect to and help the HBCUs. We should be increasing Federal work study by several hundred million dollars. We should keep in fact, enhance the program leveraging educational assistance partnerships to help with State scholarships. I cannot fail to point out that although we do not know what will be in the appropriations bill coming up, we do know what the President has requested and what the Committee on Appropriations is working with and that is what would for HBCUs be, in effect, a cut in Federal funding. Yes, it is a small increase, but it is not an increase that keeps up with inflation.

So I ask my colleagues to support H. Res. 523, recognizing the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. I praise the dedicated work of the teachers and administrators of these schools. But I ask my colleagues to go beyond words of praise and provide real resources to allow HBCUs to achieve their promise and to allow the students of these colleges and universities to achieve their promise.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).
provides that the grantee must provide from funds derived from non-Federal sources an amount that is equal to 30 percent of the total cost of the project for which the grant is provided. H.R. 1066 enjoyed significant support in Congress and among the African American community, as evidenced by the recommendation for the funding of the project included in the report by the Committee on Resources on May 22, 2002, and has been pending on the House calendar since the committee report was filed on June 20, 2002. I would like to make a plea from both sides of the aisle to support the placing on the calendar and bringing to the floor a vote for H.R. 1066, the preservation of historic buildings on the campuses of Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me thank Chairman Watts for this bill that highlights the significance and the importance of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. They are unique institutions in our country that serve the African American community and populations that have been historically underserved. Congress’ role over the last several decades in terms of providing funding to strengthen these institutions has continued to increase. As I mentioned earlier, funding for these institutions from Congress has increased some 89 percent since 1995. That does not include the $7 million increase that is called for by the President in this fiscal year’s appropriation bills. When we finally come to some resolution on these, I fully expect that that number will be met in the appropriations process.

As I said before, these are unique institutions, and they deserve our support.

Ms. MILLENDER-McDONALD. Mr. Speaker, it is a great privilege for me to offer my support of H. Res. 523 which recognizes the significant achievements of our nation’s 105 historically Black colleges and universities.

For more than 100 years, historically Black colleges and universities have educated, guided, and nurtured generations of this country’s preeminent scholars, physicians, educators, business and other professionals. In particular, historically Black colleges and universities have educated and opened the doors of higher education to scores of economically disadvantaged students who might not otherwise have had access to a college or graduate degree.

Today, I want to remind my colleagues of the critical importance of Title III of the Higher Education Act which shores up the academic quality, financial health and administrative capacity of traditionally Black educational institutions.

It is my hope that the President will support H. Res. 523 by issuing a proclamation that will inform and motivate citizens and organizations nationwide to similarly demonstrate support for our historically Black colleges and universities.

Mr. RODRIGUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 523, a resolution that recognizes the many contributions of historically Black colleges and universities to American society. The 105 historically Black colleges and universities throughout the United States provide a diverse community of students with a high caliber and quality education, a necessary tool in our competitive workforce. Not only do historically Black colleges and universities have a strong history of educational achievement, they also provide students with exposure to a rich heritage and significant historical perspective.

It is imperative that all students feel that they have access to institutions with allow them to attain their full potential through the pursuit of higher education. Historically Black colleges and universities have demonstrated success throughout their 100 years of educating our youth, proving that they are worthy of our national recognition and praise. Historically Black colleges and universities have provided many economically and educationally disadvantaged students with critical educational training and guidance—necessary components to building bridges to opportunity and access. The inroads made by these institutions have historically been forgotten or dismissed.

We are fortunate in the 28th Congressional District of Texas to have an outstanding institution which exemplifies the rich tradition of historically Black colleges and universities. St. Philip’s College, founded in 1898 by Bishop James Steptoe Johnston of St. Philip’s Episcopal Church of the West Texas Diocese. The school, which opened on March 1, 1898, began as a sewing class for girls with fewer than 20 students in a house located in the historically black community of Antoinette, 3 miles south of San Antonio.

Today, St. Philip’s College has been a vibrant multi-campus institution of the Alamo Community College District, joining three other colleges—San Antonio College, Palo Alto College and Northwest Vista College—in meeting the educational needs of San Antonio’s growing and diverse community. A Historically Black College and a Hispanic Serving Institution with a semester enrollment of more than 8,000, St. Philip’s is among the oldest and most diverse community colleges in the nation and one of the fastest growing in Texas.

I urge the presidents, faculty, and staff at historically Black colleges and universities around the country to continue their impressive work, providing a caring, nurturing, and respectful environment in which all may learn. We must all be dedicated to the education of all of our youth, and in particular those whose families have historically been shut out of educational opportunity, for leadership and service to our Nation and global community.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in proclaiming September 15–September 21, 2002, as National Historically Black Colleges and Universities week.

The quest for reasonable parity in the American social order for African Americans rests with education. It is fair to state that the HBCUs of America have been and continue to be the equal opportunity colleges and universities of the higher education institutions in America. The racial progress made socially, economically, politically and educationally by African-Americans has been made because of the existence of historically Black colleges.

Currently, there are 118 historically black colleges and universities in the United States. A brief review of the history of education for African-Americans in this country will reveal that the HBCUs were elementary schools for the freed slaves and their progeny.

They were secondary schools for African-Americans when there was not a public education system. And HBCUs became colleges to provide higher education programs for African-Americans. Because appropriate and education could be sustained by a critical mass of African-Americans who had graduated with secondary education achieved. They were only a group of colleges and universities which produced a critical mass of teachers, lawyers, doctors, ministers, social workers, pharmacists, etc. for leadership in the Black community.

Because of the existence of the schools, repressive segregated laws were challenged, our right to vote was achieved, as well as our right to participate in every facet of the American society. As such, these institutions have proven their ability to transform the prospective and quality of life for African-American citizens. They stood poised now to provide an outstanding education to America and to African-American people.

The HBCUs are ready to respond to the call of our President to leave no child behind. We propose now to engage the HBCUs in a national urban thrust to equalize the college going rate for urban youth. In so doing, we transform urban America.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities have been proclaimed the salvation of black folks. HBCUs are credited with making higher education financially attainable for those whom the public institutions could not afford to educate. They tout significant success rates because they are good at providing remedial preparation for students who start out with weak high-school backgrounds.

These institutions provide a supportive social, cultural and racial environment for people of color who are seeking a college education and perform a remarkable task of educating almost 85 percent of the country’s Black College graduates.

Historically Black Colleges and Universities have educated 75 percent of Black Ph.D.s, 46 percent of all Black business executives, 50 percent of Black engineers, and 80 percent Federal judges. In addition, the historically Black health-professional schools have trained an estimated 40 percent of the nation’s Black dentists, 50 percent of Black pharmacists and 75 percent of the nation’s Black veterinarians.

HBCUs have educated an estimated 50 percent of the nation’s Black attorneys and 75 percent of Black Military officers. They have produced Congressional representatives, state legislators, congresswomen, writers, musicians, actors, engineers, journalists, teachers, scholars, judges, pilots, activists, business leaders, lawyers and doctors.

Today I ask that my fellow members of Congress salute and acknowledge Historically Black Colleges and Universities, the presidents, faculty, staff, and the thousands of our historically Black colleges and universities for their vigorous and persistent efforts in support of equal opportunity in higher education.

I also ask that Congress further commend the students who benefit from Historically Black Colleges and Universities for their pursuit of academic excellence and request that the President issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States and interested groups to conduct appropriate ceremonies, activities, and programs to demonstrate support for historically black colleges and universities in the United States.

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of my constituents in the United States Virgin Islands, many of whom would not have had the opportunity for a college education were it not for a Historically Black College or University, as well as my two children who are both graduates of some of these fine institutions. I am pleased to support H. Res. 523, recognizing the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

Mr. Speaker for over a century, Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) have played an important role in providing opportunities for higher education to millions of African-Americans. Many of these colleges and universities were founded during the era of slavery or when American society was deeply segregated.

Although social conditions have changed radically since these colleges and universities were founded, the HBCU’s have remained committed to serving African-American students with superb educational opportunities.

Almost 300,000 African Americans are currently enrolled in HBCU’s, and among their alumni are Members of Congress, hundreds of elected officials, military officers, physicians, teachers, business leaders, judges, ambassadors, and business executives.

I want to particularly call your attention to the key role that these institutions play in eliminating disparities in health care.

The recent Institute of Medicine report, entitled “Dying from Controlling Racial and Ethnic Disparities in Health Care”, clearly demonstrated the need for more health care providers of racial, ethnic and linguistic backgrounds to meet the need of our increasingly diverse population as one of its major recommendations.

In the wake of anti-affirmative action movements across this country medical school enrollment in majority medical schools have dropped significantly over the last ten years. Were it not for minority health professional schools, the percentage of minority health care professional would be even less than the four percent currently represent across the different health professions.

Another reason for our drop in health professions students is our poor and under-supported public school system. The worst public schools and the most ignored are in communities of color. As a result, our students graduate ill prepared for college.

Only because of the commitment of our HBCU’s to work with primary and secondary schools to eradicate the system of education and other programs designed by to remediate what is missing are our students given a chance to preserve their communities in the critical area of health care and all of the others that are so important to improving our quality of life.

The Subcommittee on National Parks and Public Lands of which I serve as the Ranking Democrat, earlier this year considered and passed H.R. 1606, which was introduced by my colleague Jim Clyburn and which I am proud to be an original cosponsor, to build upon the work started in 1956 with the passage of the National Historic Sites Act and other provisions for the preservation and other programs designed to preserve our country’s historic legacy and black colleges and universities’ historic preservation program.

This program has been the catalyst for the preservation of historic structures at these institutions of higher education. Unfortunately, the program has used up all of its existing authorization of funds and while its accomplishments to date have been great, the work that still needs to be done is even greater.

Many of the buildings that have been and will be assisted by this program are integral elements of the institution and their preservation will not only preserve buildings but also the history and spirit of these pioneering institutions.

To address this problem H.R. 1606 would authorize additional appropriations for historically black colleges and universities, to decrease the matching requirement related to such appropriations. I urge my colleagues to support passage of H.R. 1606 when it comes on the floor for a vote later this month.

So I join my colleagues in recognizing these fine institutions, especially the University of the Virgin Islands, in my district, for contributing immeasurably to all of our well-being.

I thank and commend my colleagues, Congressman J.C. WATTS and EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON, for their leadership in bringing H. Res. 523 to the floor.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure for me to join my colleagues in supporting H. Res. 523, which recognizes Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU). Mr. Speaker, we honor the 105 HBCUs, like Morgan State University, which houses the Morgan State University College of Medicine, located in my district, and the 13 predominantly black institutions of higher learning, like Baltimore’s Sojourner Douglass College. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to point out that I am a graduate of Howard University, an HBCU.

This week, Presidents, Chancellors, and representatives from HBCUs attended a conference with Congressional and business leaders and members of the Administration to identify opportunities to advance HBCUs.

HBCU’s have been educating students for more than 100 years by making higher education affordable to all students, especially African-Americans. HBCU’s have educated almost 85% of all African-American college graduates in the United States. Throughout their history, HBCUs have served as fillers of the void of excellence for African Americans. These institutions of higher learning have a rich history of providing quality education that have allowed many students to attain their full potential.

HBCUs have performed a remarkable task of providing the educational training for a significant number of African-American politicians, federal judges, lawyers, doctors, engineers, educators, researchers, entertainers, and business executives, thus providing an opportunity for African Americans to participate and make exemplary contributions in all walks of life.

Often acclaimed, “the salvation of black folks,” HBCUs have engraved in American history the opportunity for freedom through education. The benefits of an educational experience at an HBCU are significant and cannot be duplicated. Students develop intellectually and build life skills and personal confidence about their identity, heritage, and mission to society.

This record of outstanding achievement comes despite daunting challenges—not the least of which is the shortage of financial resources. In fact, I must note that in comparison with other colleges and universities, HBCUs are often underfunded. However, these institutions have maintained their commitment to excellence in higher learning.

Mr. Speaker, as I stated earlier, there are two HBCUs in my district of Baltimore.

Coppin State College has become a beacon in the community, working with school children, while also providing services to small businesses in cooperation with the Small Business Administration. It has also sponsored workshops, health fairs, concerts, and other activities that enable the college to serve as a repository for African-American culture.

Likewise, Morgan State University provides avenues for students to compete in the global marketplace by steering them toward nontraditional careers such as transportation at their National Transportation Center. Morgan has also become a premier institution in Maryland and the country for its engineering and science programs. These are just two examples of HBCUs working to fulfill their commitment to academic excellence.

In the continuing struggle, the course is not to dismantle or compromise the HBCU, but to help them in higher education and integrity. These great institutions of higher learning merit full support in continuing their missions. So, in conclusion as we honor the Nations’ HBCUs, let us really show our gratitude by supporting an increase in financial resources for higher education and integrity. The Administration has proposed new HHS, Education appropriations bill and the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act.

Mr. RILEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 523, and to call the attention of my colleagues to one of the premier historically Black universities in the Nation, Tuskegee University. This week, Tuskegee University celebrates a week recognizing Historically Black colleges and Universities (HBCUs), I want to take a few moments to bring to light some of the reasons I am proud to represent Tuskegee in Congress.

Since its humble beginning days under Dr. Booker T. Washington in the 1880’s, Tuskegee has educated many fine leaders in a variety of fields. Militarily, Tuskegee has taken the lead in spawning many successful protectors of our country. The first African-American four star General, Daniel “Chappie” James, was educated at Tuskegee. The school has produced African-American general officers in the military than any other institution. And most notably, Tuskegee was home to the famed Tuskegee Airmen that bravely fought for the United States in World War II.

Tuskegee has also produced that first African-American winner of the National Book Award (Ralph Ellison), and a number of African-American experts in the fields of aerospace, electrical, and chemical engineering. While achieving all these military and academic successes, Tuskegee has been able to achieve a high level of athletic excellence, as well. The men and women of Fighting Tigers athletics have made Tuskegee the Nation’s winningest Historically Black College, and University.

The school currently enrolls some 3000 students, who represent most states in the country and several foreign countries. Currently, degrees are offered at the bachelor’s, master’s, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) levels. The students at Tuskegee receive world class educations in... fields such as architecture, business, computer engineering, liberal arts, teacher education, agricultural science, nursing, and veterinary studies. Some of its most notable programs range from studies of the Human Genome Factor to aerospace science engineering, to growing food crops and to the center for Food Biotechnology Research. And most recently, the publication U.S. Black Engineers & Information Technology listed Tuskegee as one of the top schools in the Nation for African Americans in engineering.

Mr. Speaker, the motto of Tuskegee University is: ‘Educating the Quest for Excellence in Teaching, Research and Service.’ Every day on their campus in Alabama, the students, faculty, and staff of Tuskegee carry out this vision of Dr. Washington. I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the contributions of Tuskegee University, and of all Historically Black Colleges and Universities, by supporting H. Res. 523.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate Historically Black Colleges and Universities and their proud history of educating African-Americans for 165 years.

The contributions of HBCUs to this country are of such significance that it has become tradition for the President to proclaim a week in September as Historically Black Colleges and Universities week. This year the observance is taking place of the week of September 15th.

In the early part of the 20th century, HBCUs offered educational opportunities to blacks when most schools would not admit them. But even as the doors of other higher education institutions began to open to black students over the past few decades, HBCUs continue to offer a quality education to thousands of young Americans.

The first black college, now known as Cheyney University of Pennsylvania, was made possible by a Quaker philanthropist named Richard Humphreys who bequeathed $10,000 to establish a school to educate African-Americans. The school was founded as the Institute for Colored Youth in Philadelphia in 1837, almost 30 years before the Emancipation Proclamation would make it illegal to own slaves. The University has since outgrown its original mandate and now offers degrees in more than 30 disciplines for people of all races.

Following the success of Cheyney University, over 100 Historically Black Colleges and Universities in the United States have been established, educating people of all races in every discipline from liberal arts to medicine to business.

It is important to note that while Historically Black Colleges and Universities should be credited for about 3 percent of all colleges and universities, nearly 30 percent of all bachelor’s degrees awarded each year to African Americans are earned at those institutions.

I am proud of the State of Maryland’s part in this evolution of black higher education, and I am privileged to represent Bowie State University (BSU), the oldest of Maryland’s four HBCUs. (The three other HBCUs located in Maryland are Morgan State and Coppin State, both in Baltimore, and the University of Maryland-Eastern Shore.)

Bowie State descends from the first school opened by the Baltimore Association for the Moral and Educational Improvement of Colored People in Baltimore in 1865. BSU now has eighteen undergraduate academic programs, sixteen graduate programs at the master’s level and recently established its first doctoral program in Education Leadership.

Some Historically Black Colleges and Universities are facing financial hardships and several have closed during the past few years. The Federal Government must recognize that the contributions made by these institutions have not occurred in a vacuum benefiting only a small segment of the population. Rather, the entire country has gained from the educational opportunities they offer to African-Americans.

Congress and the President can acknowledge this by adequately funding the programs that support the efforts of these important institutions. The President has requested a four percent increase in funding for the Strengthening Historically Black Colleges program and the Strengthening HBCU Graduate Institutions for fiscal year 2003. This increase will do no more than help the programs keep up with inflation. As a member of the Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations, I urge my colleagues to help these programs receive more funding to help them continue their mission and tradition of educating African-Americans.

Marion Wright Edelman, founder of the Children’s Defense Fund, said that “Education is for improving the lives of others and for leaving your community and world better than you found it.”

Ms. Edelman’s observation clearly illustrates how important HBCUs have been to America’s black community and the Nation as a whole. Not only have they educated and improved the lives of individuals, but they have empowered those individuals to bring their knowledge back to their communities and improve the lives of others. And America is the better for it.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me this week in saluting the contributions of America’s Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a great American, Charles B. Chuck Harmon. I urge my colleagues to extend this Congressional Tribute to the Negro Leagues. Negro League baseball players were at the vanguard of efforts to demonstrate that what matters most is not the color of a person’s skin, but character, skill, and determination. Negro League players surmounted obstacles of the day to prove their skills as ball players and the character of the American spirit.

Chuck Harmon was one of twelve children born to Sherman and Rosa Harmon on April 23, 1924 in Washington, Indiana where he attended his elementary school. He attended the University of Toledo for three and one-half years between 1942 and 1949 and served with honor in the United States Navy. Mr. Harmon has been married to Darrell Woodley Harmon for 54 years and has three children, Charlene, Charles Jr., and Cheryl. He also has two grandchildren, Danielle and Justin.

Chuck Harmon was honored on May 15, 1997 by the City of Cincinnati, a day designated to honor both Jackie Robinson and Chuck Harmon on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of Jackie Robinson breaking the color barrier in Major League Baseball. The day doubled as a Golden Anniversary for Mr. Harmon, who signed his first professional baseball contract in 1947. Seven years later in 1954, Mr. Harmon broke the color barrier of the Cincinnati Reds baseball team.

Chuck Harmon has maintained courage and composure throughout many adverse situations, being the first and only African American to play for several segregated Major League teams. Mr. Harmon’s strength of character and achievements have resulted in many honors and awards. He has been honored by the Governor of Ohio, GEORGE VOINOVICH, the Greater Cincinnati Urban League, the Cities of Golf Manor, Ohio and Washington, Indiana who have named streets and a park in his honor, and other sport teams for which he played. For the past 25 years, Mr. Harmon has focused on public service within the First Appellate District Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Charles B. Harmon has lived a life characterized by a strict code of personal and public ethics, self respect, and respect for others. Mr. Speaker, it gives me great pleasure to rise today, and join with my congressional colleagues in congratulating player of the Negro Leagues and a great American from the State of Ohio Mr. Charles B. ‘Chuck’ Harmon.

Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA. Mr. Speaker, as members of Congress, I believe it is incumbent upon us to support the efforts of Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) to recruit, retain, and graduate students who might not have otherwise had the opportunity to pursue a post-secondary education.

It is a known fact that Historically Black Colleges and Universities have played a vital role in giving our Nation’s youth the tools necessary to forge their way in today’s society. More importantly, Historically Black Colleges and Universities have provided historically disadvantaged students with the opportunity to determine for themselves how best to combine their rich cultural heritage with demands of today’s scientific and technological society. Historically Black Colleges and Universities have also forged the way for all minority groups to recognize the importance of education and the need for our children to make their mark in today’s world.

I would like to commend the leaders and students of both past and present, of Historically Black Colleges and Universities for their tireless efforts in giving voice to those whose voices would have otherwise been made mute. I commend them for their perseverance and diligence. I thank them for teaching us that we can make a difference in society by remaining true to ourselves and embracing who we are.

As the only member of Congress of Samoan ancestry, I have a special affinity for the struggle of minorities. I have a special affinity for a Nation’s Historically Black Colleges and Universities. You can believe that as long as I am a Member of Congress, I will always stand in support of Historically Black Colleges and Universities and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the 523rd Congress, which recognizes the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs)

Education has always been key to economic opportunity in America. HBCUs have been a catalyst for educational and economic opportunity for generations of African-Americans. These institutions were born of the belief that post-Civil War freedoms should become immediately educated. They continue to provide quality higher education and professional nurturing to a broad mixture of diverse individuals.

In the days of slavery, slave owners made it a point to keep slaves from reading and having access to education. One only has to read Frederick Douglass to fully comprehend what slave owners believed and held about the idea of education. We have bought upon ourselves if slaves would have received an education. Even after the Emancipation Proclamation, during the days of Jim Crow laws, there were numerous efforts to keep blacks from having access to education.

As we look at the growth and success of HBCUs, the vast majority of African Americans with bachelor’s degrees in engineering, computer science, life science, business and mathematics have graduated from one of the 105 HBCUs. These graduates make up the majority of our Nation’s African American military officers, physicians, Federal judges, elected officials, and business executives. The distinguished faculty members of HBCUs serve as role models and mentors, challenging students to reach their full potential.

Many historically black institutions—Florida A&M University, I wanted to be a physician, but I could not attend graduate school of African American academic leaders and professionals. For those of my generation, HBCUs were our sole lifeline for economic opportunity and advancement.

Today, HBCUs remain a critical part of our education system. These institutions have significantly increased educational access for thousands of economically and socially disadvantaged Americans, particularly young African Americans. It is wonderfully appropriate that today we honor HBCUs with our words. It is even more important that we honor them with our deeds. In our Appropriations process, we must recognize the indispensable role that HBCUs play in our educational system and fund them properly.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate our HBCUs for their record of achievement and commend Representative Watts for offering this important resolution.

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, today, the House passed House Resolution 523, a resolution recognizing the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs). Historically Black Colleges and Universities have a long, proud history of educating some of the brightest minds in America and tapping into the talent and potential of African-American students at a time in our Nation’s history in which African-Americans did not enjoy the rights and freedoms of other Americans.

The 16th Congressional District of Pennsylvania is the home of two historically black universities: Lincoln University and Cheyney University. Lincoln University, named after President Abraham Lincoln, was founded in 1854 as an institution dedicated to providing higher education for African-American men. Lincoln University boasts several famous graduates, including renowned poet Langston Hughes and Former Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall.

Founded in 1837, as the Institute for Colored Youth, Cheyney University is the oldest historically black university in America. Cheyney University was founded through the help of a Quaker benefactor who was committed to ensuring that African-American students could receive a high quality higher education. Cheyney University also has a long list of distinguished graduates, including “60 Minutes” journalist Ed Bradley and Philadelphia Tribune publisher John H. Boyd, Sr.

Since the founding of Lincoln and Cheyney Universities, African-Americans have achieved many important milestones in various academic disciplines. Yet, Historically Black Colleges and Universities continue to carry the mantle of American-African scholarship for future generations.

Finally, I want to commend Dr. Ivory V. Nelson, President of Lincoln University, and Dr. W. Clinton Pettus, President of Cheyney University, for their leadership and vision.

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 523, which recognizes the important contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. These institutions are rich sources of history and knowledge that continue to serve communities across the nation. Virginia’s 4th Congressional District is home to two historically Black institutions of higher education.

Virginia State University, located near the historic center of the City of Petersburg, was founded on March 6, 1882 when the legislature passed a bill to charter the Virginia Normal and Industrial School, the University’s first academic year, 1883-84, saw a student body of 126 and a faculty of only seven. By the centennial year of 1982, the University was fully integrated, with a student body of nearly 5,000 and a full-time faculty of 250.

Dr. James H. Johnson founded Saint Paul’s Normal and Industrial School in 1888. In 1941 the institution was granted authority to offer a four-year degree program. In 1957 the name was changed to Saint Paul’s College, the name it bears today. Saint Paul’s College boasts a characteristically small college atmosphere with a student body of 600, allowing for both diversity and camaraderie.

Virginia’s history and desire for academic excellence are indelibly linked to the success and achievement of these institutions. For this reason, I rise in support of this resolution to recognize the Historically Black Universities and Colleges of our Nation.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of House Resolution 523 recognizing the contributions of Historically Black Colleges and Universities. This legislation acknowledges the significance of the United States’ Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs).

Historically Black Colleges and Universities are institutions of higher learning established prior to 1964 to educate African-Americans. The principal mission of these institutions was, and is, the education of African-Americans. Toward this end, these institutions boast a proud and long-standing tradition of producing some of the United States’ most prominent African-Americans in law and politics, including Thurgood Marshall, Martin Luther King, Jr., and countless other individuals, who have devoted their lives to the service of traditionally disenchanted communities throughout our Nation.

According to a number of sources, there are reportedly more African-American students attending HBCUs than at any other time in United States’ history. In fact, as reported by the National Center for Educational Statistics, there was a 26 percent increase in HBCU enrollment between 1976 and 1994. For the years 1993 through 1994, roughly 28 percent of Black bachelor degree recipients received their degrees from Historically Black Colleges and Universities. With regards to this time span, Historically Black Colleges and Universities were responsible for awarding another 15 percent African-American master degree recipients, 9 percent of blacks earning a doctorate, and 16 percent of black professional degree recipients.

The State of Texas has been fortunate to have these Historically Black Colleges and Universities educate a significant portion of its residents and other students from a wide array of places throughout the world. From Texas’ first Black college, Paul Quinn College, to colleges and universities such as Prairie View A&M University, Texas Southern University, and Wiley College, historically Black institutions throughout the State still play a critical role in the granting of undergraduate, graduate, and professional degrees to minorities.

Due to the existence of these institutions, Prairie View A&M University has made a significant contribution to the education of many of Texas’ minority educators, and Texas Southern University has played an enormous role in educating many black attorneys and pharmacists.

Overall, as these institutions continue progressing toward claiming their stake in the mainstream of U.S. education, their missions and purposes for existing become more inclusive, as these important institutions adjust to the changing demographic compositions of their student bodies. It is a fact that more students from other racial and ethnic groups are attending.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my Colleagues to support this legislation. Historically Black Colleges and Universities not only are deserving of recognition, but they also are necessary to the vitality of our Nation’s higher educational system. This legislation recognizes this very fact by acknowledging historically Black institutions’ commitment to sustaining a viable education for students for over 100 years.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Allison W.,
the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 337) recognizing the teams and players of the Negro Baseball Leagues for their achievements, dedication, sacrifices, and contributions to baseball and the Nation.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Con. Res. 337

Whereas even though African-Americans were excluded from playing in the major leagues of baseball with their Caucasian counterparts, the desire of some African-Americans to play baseball could not be repressed;

Whereas African-Americans began organizing their own professional baseball teams in 1880;

Whereas the Negro Baseball Leagues, known collectively as the Negro Baseball Leagues, were organized by African-Americans between 1920 and 1960;

Whereas the Negro Baseball Leagues included exceptionally talented players;

Whereas Jackie Robinson, whose career began in the Negro Baseball Leagues, was named Rookie of the Year in 1947 and subsequently led the Brooklyn Dodgers to 6 National League pennants and a World Series championship;

Whereas by achieving success on the baseball field, African-American baseball players helped to change social barriers and integrate African-Americans into all aspects of society in the United States;

Whereas during World War II, more than 50 Negro Baseball League players served in the Armed Forces of the United States;

Whereas during an era of sexism and gender barriers, 3 women played in the Negro Baseball Leagues;

Whereas the Negro Baseball Leagues helped teach the people of the United States that what matters most is not the color of a person’s skin, but the content of that person’s character and the measure of that person’s skills and abilities;

Whereas only in recent years has the history of the Negro Baseball Leagues begun re-ceiving the recognition that it deserves; and

Whereas baseball is the national pastime and reflects the history of the Nation: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That Congress recognizes the teams and players of the Negro Baseball Leagues for their achievements, dedication, sacrifices, and contributions to baseball and the Nation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LATOURETTE) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LATOURETTE).

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on House Concurrent Resolution 337.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This resolution, Mr. Speaker, recognizes the teams and players of the Negro baseball leagues for their achievements, dedication, sacrifices and contributions to baseball and to the Nation. I want to commend the distinguished sponsors of this resolution, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) and the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), for introducing this important legislation.

Until the mid-20th century when Jackie Robinson and Larry Doby, and parenthetically I would say Larry Doby of the Cleveland Indians, broke the color barrier, African Americans were excluded from playing major league baseball. Despite the desire that some African Americans had to play baseball professionally could not be repressed.

African Americans began organizing their own professional baseball teams. In 1920, the Cuban Giants from New York became the first professional African American baseball team.

In 1920, Rube Foster, known as the “Father of Negro Baseball,” organized the Negro National League by adopting an organized league structure. Between 1920 and 1960, six separate baseball leagues known collectively as the Negro Leagues were formed. The Negro Leagues maintained the high level of professional skill and, some believe, became centerpieces for economic development in many African American communities.

Teams such as the Pittsburgh Crawfords, which played in Pittsburgh’s Hill District, reflected this high level of skill. The Crawfords won the 1935 Negro National League with future Hall of Famers James “Cool Papa” Bell, Oscar Charleston, Josh Gibson, Judy Johnson and the legendary Satchel Paige.

Again, Mr. Speaker, parenthetically, there is a book I had the pleasure of reading last year called Crooked River Burning, which, sadly, is about some of the sadder days in Cleveland, Ohio, but it is the story of a young Polish fellow who grew up on the west side of Cleveland and follows his life. But it begins in 1948 when he sneaks out of his uncle’s house to go down to Municipal Stadium and sees the debut of Satchel Paige and the Cleveland Indians uniform, and over 70,000 people were in attendance on that evening.

Starting in 1935, the black teams began all-star game competition. The game was known as the East-West Game and was played each summer in Chicago’s Comiskey Park. The Negro Leagues also had their own world series, but according to the Negro League Baseball Players Association, the East-West Game was considered more important than the world series and annually attracted between 20,000 and 50,000 fans.

In 1945, major league baseball started signing players from the Negro Baseball Leagues to its minor leagues for the first time since 1919. By 1950, five major league teams had black players; by 1953, seven clubs had 20 players; and by 1957, 14 clubs had 36 players.

As players in the Negro Baseball Leagues signed to play with the major leagues and attendance at Negro League games dropped, the Negro Baseball Leagues folded in 1960.

Events such as the 1991 opening of the Negro Leagues Baseball Museum in Kansas City, Missouri, reflect the recognition that the Negro Baseball Leagues and its players deserve. As this resolution notes, the Negro Baseball Leagues helped teach the country that people are judged not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character and the measure of their skills and abilities. In fact, Mr. Speaker, gender roles also fell in the Negro leagues, because three women played in them.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all Members of the House to support this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, as a member of the Committee on Government Reform, I am proud to be an original co-sponsor of H. Con. Res. 337, recognizing the teams and players of the Negro Baseball Leagues. This is a measure that is long overdue.

Mr. Speaker, I have been an avid baseball fan since I was a young person, and actually 50 years after the fact I can still recite the starting lineup of the old Brooklyn Dodgers. So when my colleague, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), approached me several months ago to cosponsor a resolution with him honoring the Negro Baseball Leagues and players, it was not exactly a hard sell. Likewise, I am sure, it was not difficult for the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL) and Senators SANTORUM and MIKULSKI to join us.

I am reminded of Harlan Williams’ observations in Jim Crow at Bat: Apartheid in Baseball, when he wrote that baseball is a game of innocence. It was invented here, flourished here, and has been exported all around the world.

As a national phenomenon, baseball has long served to mirror cultural currents and national attitudes. And from its inception, baseball’s racial attitudes have mirrored those of society.”

In 1872, John “Bud” Fowler became the first African American to enter organized baseball. At the time, Sporting Life magazine called him “one of the best general players in the country. If he had had a white face,” they said, “he would be playing with the best of them.” He was joined by a handful of other black players.

However, by the end of the 1800s, the door to organized baseball was slammed shut to African Americans. We are here today to celebrate the response to this closed door.

In 1920, Andrew “Rube” Foster, the inductee father of Negro baseball, convinced seven other team owners to join with his team, the Chicago American Giants, to form the Negro National League. In fact, in 1981, “Rube”
Foster was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, New York, where he is considered to be one of baseball’s greatest renaissance men.

In the years following the establishment of the Negro National League, other Negro Baseball Leagues were formed. The skill of the play and the players was extraordinary, as was the colorful array of their nicknames: Satchel Paige, “Cool Papa” Bell, “Double-Duty” Radcliffe, “GroundHog” Thompson, and the list goes on and on.

Of the 254 members of the National Baseball Hall of Fame, 18 were players who had only played in the Negro leagues. Still others, including Willie Mays and Jackie Robinson, had first played in the Negro Leagues, then went on to play in the major leagues, and were later inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame. In fact, the caliber in the Negro Leagues was so high that many of the players who later moved on to the major leagues actually had better statistics playing in the Negro leagues than they did in the major leagues.

The electrifying decision by Branch Rickey to sign Jackie Robinson to play for the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947 pushed open the closed door. As the best of the black baseball players joined the major leagues, the Negro Baseball Leagues declined. The last teams folded in the early 1960s.

Some people shake their heads and say that the Negro League players came out of the shadows, but I think they opened the door too late.

But then it is never too late to right what has been wrong, to create equal opportunity and to open the doors for the Luke Easters, Minnie Minoso, Kirby Puckett, Barry Bonds, Sammy Sosas, Frank Thomases and countless others who have thrived and delighted us with their skill.

It is never too late to make America what it was meant to be, but must be. Opening the doors and recognizing the contributions that African Americans have made to baseball is a step in the right direction.

“Thomas Wolf is reported to have said, ‘To every man his chance, his golden opportunity, to become whatever his talents, manhood and ambitions combine to make him. That is the promise of America.’”

This bill is a step in the right direction, I commend the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) for introducing it, and I urge its swift passage.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), the author of the concurrent resolution.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. I thank the chairman for yielding me time, and I also want to commend and thank my friend from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) for his assistance in this effort.

Mr. Speaker, when the National Association of Baseball Players on December 11, 1868, voted unanimously to bar “any club which may be comprised of one or more colored persons,” a racial barrier was built, but an opportunity was born.

A few years later, the Cuban Giants in New York became the first black professional baseball team. The men in this fledgling organization played independently of any structured league, but started what would become a model for the first half of the 20th century.

There are actually some black players on integrated teams in the late 1800s. Brothers Moses Fleetwood Walker and Welday Walker played in the major leagues in 1884. But as a new century dawned, the systematic exclusion kept a lot of good talent off a lot of diamond-shaped fields.

In 1920, a man by the name of “Rube” Foster founded the eight-team Negro National League at a YMCA in Kansas City, Missouri. To this day, he is referred to as the Father of Black Baseball. Foster, a pioneer named Ed Bolden formed the Eastern Colored League.

In 1933, echoing the major league structure, the Negro National League and the Negro American League were formed. For the most part, an all-star game was formed. Playing in Chicago’s Comiskey Park, Negro League players garnered between 20,000 and 50,000 fans, who would come and watch the greatest black athletes of the day. Camden Yards, a baseball stadium in Baltimore, holds less than 49,000 people.

Up until 1948, the Negro League World Series was played 11 times in all, surviving even the ruins of the Great Depression.

We work to educate the public on the rich and awesome history of the Negro Leagues, we also must reflect on the progress that has been made in such a relatively short amount of time.

Today we think nothing of seeing a black man at the plate hit home run after home run on teams like the Dodgers and the Yankees and the Giants and the Braves. It is difficult to realize that we would not see that same player a half century ago.

Jacques Barzun, a French American historian and former dean of Columbia University’s graduate school, astutely observed in his book God’s Country and Mine in 1994. “Whoever wants to know the heart and mind of America had better learn baseball.”

Mr. Speaker, baseball is America. Along with apple pie and jazz and automobiles, it symbolizes who we are as a Nation. But let us not forget about who played in the shadow of the big leagues when our country subscribed to the ideology of separation.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this resolution to honor the players and the teams of the Negro Baseball Leagues.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, so I will simply close by indicating that it is a thrill and delight. There are still a number of ex-members of the Negro League who live around and in my congressional district, and three or four of them often convene at a McDonald’s restaurant and sort of hold court. Individuals kind of move around and come by to talk with them and to see them. “Double-Duty” Radcliffe recently passed away.

But one of the teaching instruments that takes place as people realize who these men are and what their contributions have been, they stand there at “McDonald’s University” and soak in all of the knowledge and information.

So, again, I want to commend my colleague, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), for introducing H. Con. Res. 337, recognizing the teams and players of the Negro Leagues.

And as we recognize these teams and these players, I also want to acknowledge and recognize all of the parents and coaches who are involved in Little League baseball players. There is nothing better than watching a group of young people in organized Little League activity learning, growing, developing, reaching a level of understanding about teamwork, positive attitudes, and not only on the field but understanding who is involved. I want to commend all of them to play out of the limelight. I also want to commend them to do that listening to the sound of the crack of the bat.

So I commend the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) for this resolution, and I urge its passage.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LATOURETTE. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS) and the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) for sponsoring this important resolution and working so hard to bring it to the floor.

This resolution pays tribute to the contributions of many fine athletes who did not get the recognition they deserved during their playing careers or, in many cases, during their lifetimes, because segregation required them to play out of the limelight.

Nevertheless, the players in the Negro Leagues were among some of the most accomplished who ever played our national pastime. Some went on to make their marks in the newly integrated major leagues. But all of them contributed to baseball history and helped pave the way for today’s stars.
venue for some of the game’s greatest players, Jackie Robinson, Satchel Paige, Willie Mays, and Hank Aaron were giants of the game of baseball—all got their start in the Negro Baseball Leagues.

More important than their impact on the game was the symbolic value of the Negro Baseball Leagues. In an era where being black meant second-class status in America, the players of the Negro Baseball Leagues gave African-American children role models and helped to integrate the all-white American pastime.

Mr. Speaker, the struggle from segregation to full racial integration—a struggle that continues to this day—is the story of brave men and women who broke racial barriers by challenging the social, political, and economic norms of their time. The players of the Negro Baseball Leagues were such people.

Today, we commemorate the Negro Baseball Leagues and the indelible mark they made not only on baseball, but also on American society.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.C.R. 337 and particularly wish to recognize the Negro League teams that played in Florida and the players who now reside in our great State.

While there were other minor or semi-professional teams in our State, Florida’s most recognized Negro League team was the Jacksonville Red Caps, who played in the Negro American League.

Their numbers are dwindling, there are now only 150 or so former Negro League players left in the entire country, so it is important that, as with H.C.R. 337, I also recognize former players of the Negro Leagues who now live in Florida.

While I’m sure my list of Florida’s remaining Negro League players is not complete, each year the Jacksonville Suns honor former Negro League players, and on June 9 of this year they met at Wolfson Park and honored the following former Negro League players:

Herb Barnhill, who began his baseball career in 1936 and played for the Jacksonville Red Caps in 1938 and 1941–42;

Herby Clark, who began his baseball career in 1955 at the age of 16 with the Kansas City Monarchs;

Art Hamilton, a catcher who started with the Indianapolis Clowns in 1953, played with the Detroit Stars and closed his career with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1961; and Harold “Buster” Hair Jr., who played for the Birmingham Black Barons in 1953, was drafted and played in Canada and then in 1958 played with the Kansas City Monarchs.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker. It is my pleasure to join colleagues today in recognizing the contributions of these African-American baseball players who now reside in Florida, and their surviving Negro League teammates. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LA Tourette. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Dan Miller of Florida). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. LA Tourette) that the House suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 337.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. LA Tourette. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

CONSUMER RENTAL PURCHASE AGREEMENT ACT

Mr. Linder. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 528 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 528

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for consideration of H. Res. 528 to amend the Consumer Credit Protection Act to assure meaningful disclosures of the terms of rental-purchase agreements, including disclosures of all costs to consumers under such agreements, to provide certain substantive rights to consumers under such agreements, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour, with 50 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Financial Services and 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

General debate over, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. It shall be in order to consider as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Financial Services, as amended by the amendment recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary, as printed in the bill, shall be considered as read. No amendment offered by the proponent of the amendment shall be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole. This rule waives all points of order against the amendments printed in the report.

Finally, H. Res. 528 provides for one motion to recommit, with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in support of this fair rule, which would enable the House to work its will on H.R. 1701, and two separate amendments, one offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. LaFalce) and another offered by the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Waters).

In summary, H.R. 1701 seeks to create uniform national disclosure standards for rent-to-own transactions, and provides greater cost information to consumers who are considering rental purchase agreements.

I would like to commend the work of the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Jones) for being the primary author of this measure.

Again, in closing, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this fair rule so that the House can proceed to consider the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to this rule and to the underlying bill, H.R. 1701, a bill to amend the Consumer Credit Protection Act to establish Federal disclosure requirements for rental purchase businesses.

Traditionally, rent-to-own businesses cater to low- and moderate-income individuals who either do not have the money or do not have the credit to purchase goods for their homes. These individuals turn to businesses such as Rent-A-Center or RentWay with the idea that renting is a reasonable alternative to purchasing their household goods; and although this may be true in some instances, that is not always the case.

Mr. Speaker, to quote the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), who will speak on her own measures that she offered, one of which was accepted. The other were categorically rejected, she said this is special-interest legislation at its worst. For a number of reasons, this legislation fails to protect those consumers who depend on rental purchase businesses from being taken advantage of. And while the measure does implement necessary contracts, store tag, and advertising disclosure, it fails by preempting existing State consumer protection laws that treat rent-to-own transactions as credit sales and, therefore, require the disclosure of the cost of credit and annual percentage rates. A footnote right there, Mr. Speaker: in some of these failed disclosure situations, triple digit interest rates are being charged to people. This bill might have had a chance of being a great piece of legislation, had the four amendments of my good friend and colleague, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), and the second amendment of the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) been accepted; and I was in full and complete support of both being allowed. As a result, this legislation in my judgment is not worth the paper it is drafted on. It is not curative. When the question was put yesterday to the relevant subcommittee chairman, who I am sure will speak and thus speak passionately regarding this matter, when the question was put to him whether or not it was curative, he stated that it was "helpful." But pretty much nothing.

Worse yet, the Committee on the Judiciary chairman, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER), is quoted as saying, "The bill is unnecessary and unwise and is a misguided attempt to preempt the existing law of virtually every State." The regulation of the rent-to-own industry is a State issue and all those who disagree, in my opinion, are misguided too.

How can H.R. 1701 fulfill its stated purpose to protect consumers against unfair rental purchase agreements and predator financial services if it does not require individuals to disclose the interest rates in the leasing contract? Would any of us accept a bank loan without the APR being stated in the contract?

Mr. Speaker, one of our duties as Members of Congress is to make accessible the highest quality of life for all those who live within our great country's borders. H.R. 1701 would work against that continuous goal, if passed as is; and I urge my colleagues to vote against H.R. 1701 and against this closed rule.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for the attention that he paid to this particular piece of legislation in the Committee on Rules. I thank him for taking the time to understand it and to try and help me to make it a better bill with the amendments that I presented at the Committee on Rules.

I had four amendments in the Committee on Rules to H.R. 1701; only one was accepted and, of course, I thank the members for that. However, I think I was right. I think, well, we did something; but certainly, this does not cure what is wrong with this bill.

Let me tell my colleagues about the other amendments that I proposed that were not accepted. One of the amendments that I had was a very simple amendment. The sponsors of the bill had indicated that they wanted this bill to be a floor rather than a ceiling when it comes to State laws, and my amendment would strike a single subsection that would have accomplished that goal. Let me just share with my colleagues that 52 of the State Attorneys General earlier signed on to a letter objecting to this bill and, specifically, the preemption section. The Attorneys General stated: "Any State law that affords consumers the benefit of disclosures in rent-to-own agreements beyond those required by H.R. 1701 would be invalidated."

This is simply State preemption. I am surprised that those who are advocating State preemption would do so when oftentimes we find they are standing up to protect States' rights and the State to protect its ability to make public policy in the interest of that State.

As initially considered in committee, the bill would have preempted all inconsistent Federal and State laws, regardless of whether they provided greater or lesser protection for consumers. This has been revised to preempt only those State laws or regulations that treat rent-to-own transactions as credit sales and apply credit-like regulation, including disclosure of annual percentage rates and cost limits based on APRs. This would provide for automatic preemption of the laws of four States: Wisconsin, New Jersey, Minnesota, and Vermont, which currently apply credit state and regulations to rent-to-own transactions. It would also preempt all States from imposing credit-like restrictions on rent-to-own transactions in the future.

A letter written to the Committee on Financial Services by 52 State and territorial Attorneys General expressed strong opposition to any language which "expressly preempts any State law that regulates a rent-to-own transaction as a credit sale or similar arrangement that requires the disclosure to consumers of an effective interest, annual percentage, or singular rate."

This is outrageous, and we should be ashamed that a bill like this could get this far in the Congress of the United States. Most of those people out there as consumers expect us to protect them. Why would we fight to keep this industry from disclosing the interest rates on rent-to-own contracts? I think I know why. Why would we not want to treat them like credit sales? I think I know why. But it is unconscionable and unreasonable that Members of the Congress of the United States of America would use their power to work against consumers in this way with an industry that has some really questionable practices.

Let me tell my colleagues about the third amendment that they rejected. It would have added a new subsection to prohibit any unfair or deceptive disclosure or practices and abusive collection by the rental purchase industry.

Mr. Speaker, for years the industry has resisted being classified as a sale so that it would not be subject to protections governing credit sales transactions. At the same time, it has also resisted coming under protections of the Consumer Leasing Act. I think it is unconscionable that a Federal law purporting to regulate this industry would fail to include basic protections against unfair or deceptive practices.

Let me tell Members a little bit about this industry. Some of the more outrageous examples include rent-to-own employees struggling with the customer in the home over the possession of the television set, and picking up a nearby object and smashing the set. This happened in Maryland in 1983.

An employee was breaking and entering a customer's home, only to be shot and killed as a result, in Nebraska in 1985.

In a number of instances, rent-to-own dealers have been found liable for tort claims such as assault, battery, and trespass.

Against a Texas jury returned a verdict of nearly $130,000 against a rental company for injuries to a customer which occurred during an attempted repossession.
Many rent-to-own dealers, when faced with an incident of wrongful re-possession, will attempt to accuse the employee of unforeseen misconduct. It goes on and on and on, but my attempt to clean up the legislation were rejected.

Lastly, let me tell the Members about the fourth amendment, which was so reasonable. It would have placed a cap on total price.

Twelve States currently require an early exchange option in rent-to-own contracts: California, Connecticut, Delaware, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, and West Virginia. All of these States employ a formula to determine how much equity is acquired in the product over time, and the difference between the figure and the cash price.

Six States impose substantial limits on rental purchase prices: Connecticut, Iowa, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. My amendment is based on the New York law.

I would ask that we reject this rule because it has done nothing to make this a credible bill.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to add emphasis, in closing, to what the gentlewoman said. She had one amendment that brought to the attention of this body that when a person that is renting pays 133 percent of the total purchase price that they would own the property. Now, any of that pay 133 percent of something ought to at least own 75 percent of something by the time that we do that. For us not to have made that amendment in order, in my judgment, is a mistake.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to point out that if one is buying a house, in the typical payment, one is paying roughly 8 percent of the cost of the house after it is over. Most people are not complaining.

And to the gentlewoman from California, who said twice she has a list of 92 attorneys general writing in against this, I would love to see that list.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DAN MILLER of Florida). The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes had it.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present. The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 238, nays 178, not voting 16, as follows:

Mr. MCNULTY, Ms. ESHOO and Mr. DAVIS of Florida changed their vote from ‘yea’ to ‘nay.’

Mr. HOYER and Mr. DOOLITTLE changed their vote from ‘nay’ to ‘yea.’

The resolution was agreed to.

Mr. Speaker, I yielded my time as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DAN MILLER of Florida). Pursuant to House Resolution 528 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 1701.

In the Committee of the Whole

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 1701) to amend the Consumer Credit Protection Act to assure meaningful disclosures of the terms and rental-purchase agreements, including disclosures of all costs to consumers under such agreements, to provide certain substantive
Mr. Chairman, I speak to the whole House when I say that the subject of the legislation we find ourselves debating on the floor here today is the rent-to-own industry and the need to have some floor of regulations over that industry.

There are 15 million citizens who annually use rent-to-own stores. There has been an exhaustive study, a survey of rent-to-own by the Federal Trade Commission. In fact, they made several suggestions and proposals. They outlined abuses in the industry.

Let me tell you more about this rent-to-own industry. That industry is an industry, like many others, that people, their only connection with it is they drive by a store, and we see more and more rent-to-own stores in their neighborhood or in their city, but they do not know much about it. What the survey found is that people of all educational levels apparently are using rent-to-own. The number of people that have graduate school degrees, a good percentage of those people are using these stores.

Some people go in and they rent equipment, rent furniture for as little as a month or 2 months, or even 2 weeks. I recently talked to someone that said they had gone in a rent-to-own store, and their explanation was that they were going to be in a city for 2 months and they simply did not want to get a U-Haul. They checked on the U-Haul rate, and it was $900 out and $900 back, and so they made a decision to spend $1,800 on furniture.

Many members, such as the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Jones) and the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Maloney), felt there ought to be some protection for consumers. There are State laws in 40 percent of the States that have protections; but this will establish in all 50 States a floor of protection. With the floor of protection we do not, and I want to repeat this, we do not preempt State consumer laws. We do not preempt State consumer laws. So there will be 15 States, if we enact this legislation, that will have stronger laws than this legislation. There will be approximately 35 that have weaker laws.

This is special interest legislation at its worst, because the people who will be ripped off in these schemes are little people. They are poor people. They are working people. They are people without very much money.

We talk a lot about trying to do something about predatory lending. That is, some of us. But, Mr. Chairman, this rent-to-own industry falls in the category of the check cashers and the payday lenders and even the tax preparers that are ripping off the most vulnerable of our society.

Let me tell you more about this rent-to-own industry. They are presented by its industry proponents as pro-consumer, as not preemptive of State law. That is absolutely not true. The bill has one purpose and one purpose only, to circumvent stronger consumer protections in the Federal Truth in Lending Act and in statutes of a handful of States that the rent-to-own industry had not been able to overturn.

As originally introduced, H.R. 1701 sought to preempt all inconsistent State laws. This included all current or future State laws that attempt to regulate rent-to-own transactions as credit or installment sales as well as industry-enacted State rent-to-own statutes that provide stronger, but inconsistent, protections for its consumers. As you know, the amended bill has narrowed the scope of the bill's preemption somewhat, the bill would still preempt the best of the State laws in New Jersey, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Vermont that seek to provide meaningful protections against unfair predatory practices; and it would still prevent these and other States from strengthening consumer protections in the future by treating rent-to-own transactions as credit sales.

The industry has good intentions, they would have supported my amendments in the Committee on Rules. I went in there and I asked for four simple amendments that I talked about during the debate on the rule. I suppose the worst of these is this preemption. Why would the Congress of the United States of America wish to preempt State laws that give strong protection to their people against this rip-off industry? The stories about what happens in the rent-to-own industry are absolutely outrageous and unconscionable. The idea that you could go in and rent a television that cost about $100, we checked this out, and end up paying $800 or $900 for that television set through one of these contracts, and on top of it, be forced to pay insurance that would protect the company from any damages that they may have caused in addition to what you may have caused is just simply outrageous.

Let me just say this. We are elected to come here to do a number of things. The least of that is to protect poor people and working people and voters and our constituents from being ripped off by industries that we know are ripping them off. We know what this is all about. Consumers must ask the question. Why would my Representative not protect me from this kind of rip-off? I want the consumers to ask that question.

Mr. Chairman, we have a lot of Members here, some Members here, who want to add their voices to try to protect consumers.
Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this bill. There is no overriding national need, no overriding public policy purpose, no overriding crisis that requires the Congress to federalize the regulation of the rent-to-own industry. The rent-to-own industry supports this legislation, and it is understandable why they do so. The fiscal note that is contained in the report of the Committee on the Judiciary says that the Federal Trade Commission intends to hire five new attorneys and investigators to investigate and enforce violations of this bill. That is five people nationwide looking into violations of the rent-to-own provisions that are contained in H.R. 1701.

That makes enforcement a joke. Because if you have five cops regulating this pugnacious industry nationwide, you know that the law is not going to be enforced. So we are passing a piece of paper here supposedly in the name of consumer protection that the enforcing agency says that they will be able to enforce with just five people in the entire United States of America. I think that blows the cover on this being consumer protection legislation.

Let me tell you what this bill does to Wisconsin. It is the Wisconsin Consumer Act. It is the Wisconsin Consumer Credit Act by judicial construction has said that a rent-to-own contract is a credit transaction. This bill overrides that definition, and says it is a lease transaction and that eviscerates the enforcement by the Wisconsin attorney general's office of the rent-to-own industry. That is where the preemption is particularly harmful to consumers not only in my State but also in New Jersey, Minnesota, North Carolina, and Vermont.

Let me point out that enforcement has done in the States that have this preemption: $16 million worth of recoveries in Wisconsin, $30 million in Minnesota, and $56 million in New Jersey. So the rent-to-own industry knows that it is going to get a get-out-of-jail-free card should this legislation be passed. Furthermore, the Wisconsin legislature has been lobbied incessantly by this industry to pass an exemption: $16 million worth of recoveries in Wisconsin, $30 million in Minnesota, and $56 million in New Jersey. So the rent-to-own industry knows that they only have five cops regulating this industry nation-wide, to make whatever amendment might be necessary. We should not have a Federal preemption even of a small amount in this legislation. I would urge the legislation to be defeated.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me simply respond to some of the arguments that we have heard here today. And I do not think those arguments have a lot of validity. They sound good. The gentleman from Wisconsin has said, "We don't think there's a national problem," but the gentlewoman from California stood up and talked about all sorts of abuses in all sorts of States. The Federal Trade Commission outlined abuses in several States. We have almost 20 States that have no regulation. The gentlewoman from Wisconsin says, "I take this up to the States," and the States ought to do something about this. When it came to homeowners, when it came to people that transact business with financial institutions, with Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, Truth in Lending Act, Consumer Lease Act, Electronic Funds Transfer Act, we felt like the American consumer, the American customer, was entitled to some Federal protection.

There is no Federal protection.

The gentleman did say that Wisconsin has acted, and acted in a tough way. Let me submit something to you. If we pass this legislation, there is nothing new in this. New Jersey, there is nothing that prevents Wisconsin, there is nothing that prevents Minnesota, there is nothing that prevents any of these States from banning these transactions. They can outlaw them. They can pass any type of tough legislation.

The gentlewoman from California is going to offer an amendment to basically put the California law as the law of all 50 States because she says California has the best protection and we want it in this bill. It will still be the law after we pass this legislation. It will still be the law in California. But to get enough support to pass this legislation, we have set a floor.

The gentlewoman from California talks about the attorney generals, that they wrote, all 50 of them, she said. But what you did not hear is that was to an attorney general that the committee that I chair. When it came to the committee that I chair, we put in a provision that it does not preempt tougher consumer protection laws in those States that have it. In fact, my own office of the Federal Reserve told me that letter wrote me September 13 and now says this legislation before us today will offer important new consumer protections for the citizens of my State. I do not have any protections now. The people of my State do not have any protections.

The gentlewoman from California, and I applaud her, and another gentlewoman from California and one of the gentlemen from Florida said, "In 40 States, you walk in these stores and there is not even a price tag on there. There is not even a disclosure as to the price." That is true. What did we do? We put a provision in that we are considering which, if it passes today, will require that in all 50 States, something that two of the States of the four that call this a credit sale do not even have today. And if we pass this bill, they will have said this important protections a consumer ought to have. They will have that even in two of these States, including North Carolina.

Several things that North Carolina does not have if this law passes, they will have a much stronger law. Yes, we are outmaneuvering a judge in four States because we have to have a national standard. This does not work. You have to either call it a lease if you are going to have a Federal statute, or you have to call it a credit sale. Forty-six legislatures have said it is a credit sale. Those States, not legislatures, 46 States, including the majority of legislatures that have looked at it say it is a lease. None of the legislatures have said it is a credit sale. Four judges sitting in four courts in four States have said it is a credit sale. The FTC, the Federal Reserve said this could be confusing. The IRS says it is not, that it is a lease. That is how we have come down. We have come down on the side of every legislature that has looked at this, the two Federal agencies that have looked at this, we have come down on that side. We have disagreed with four judges sitting in four courtrooms across the country because we believe that it is a lease. What we are doing is strengthening the protections in 36 States. We are absolutely not preempt any law that California has on the books today or other States, the 15 that have stronger laws except the credit sales thing.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFAULCE).

(Mr. LAFAULCE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAFAULCE. Mr. Chairman, I regret that I must come to the well of the House to oppose the bill that is before us today. Even with these amendments, the two amendments that have been permitted by the Committee on Rules, should pass, I would still have to vote against it as inadequate. I do this with some mixed emotions, however, because I believe it is important for us to pass additional consumer protections for rent-to-own transactions. I do this not opposed to the concept of a rent-to-own transaction whatsoever. For certain individuals at certain times, they can be valuable. But before we pass a Federal law, it should meet a very solid standard. This bill simply does not do that.
We have a delicate balance that we have to reach whenever we pass Federal legislation given the dual sovereignty under which we exist. We have to have it, it seems to me, minimal Federal standards, but permit States to be even more protective, not less, so that we can have competition for the best standard rather than a lowering of the standards.

This bill just does not do this. Now, the gentleman from Alabama has said there are approximately 20 States that do not have any protections and that this bill would, therefore, be an improvement for them. I think the gentleman is right, and that is one side of the coin.

The other side of the coin, though, is that we do preempt things that the gentleman says we do not preempt, and we ought not to. The amendment that I proposed to the Committee on Rules which would deal with the preemption issue in a very good manner was simply not permitted by them, so we cannot bring it to the floor so we could have a debate on it. I think the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) will be offering a motion to recommit with her own preemption provision. It will differ a little from mine. We will see.

But who is for this bill and who is against it? First of all, it is called consumer rent-to-own. I think that is a misnomer, because no consumer groups support this bill. As a matter of fact, they all oppose it. The group Consumer Action opposes it, the Consumer Federation of America opposes it, Consumer Union opposes it, the Consumers League of New Jersey opposes it. The Consumers Union opposes it, the Consumer Federation of America opposes it, Consumer Action opposes it, the Consumer Federation of America opposes it. They all oppose it. The group Consumer Action opposes it, the Consumer Federation of America opposes it, Consumers League of New Jersey opposes it, the Consumers Union opposes it, the National Association of Consumer Advocates opposes it, the National Consumer Law Center opposes it, the U.S. Public Interest Research Group opposes it.

What favors it? It is the rent-to-own industry, that has put the word “consumer” in the front of the bill. So I think this is a little bit deceptive in its marketing and its advertising.

Now, what about the attorneys general of the various States? I do know that the original bill as introduced was opposed by every single attorney general of every single State.

The bill has been amended and it has been improved, there is no question about that. But I do not know of no rules general who has privately or publicly changed his or her opinion. Maybe you do. But all I do know is that at least with respect to the original bill, every single attorney general opposed it. So I think that is of some relevance, too, as we determine whether we want to pass a bill, especially if that bill will be preemptive.

Now, the question is, is the bill preemptive or not? You have differences of opinion, so let us go to the language of the bill. In paragraph 1245, standing the provisions of subsection (a), this title shall supersede any state law that, (1) regulates a rental purchase agreement as a security interest, credit sale, retail installment sale, conditional sale or any other form of consumer credit, or that imposes upon a rental-purchase agreement the creation of a debt or extension of credit, or, (2) requires the disclosure of a percentage rate calculation, including a time-price differential, an annual percentage rate as an effective annual percentage rate.”

The States that have that will be superseded, and every single State in the Union will be precluded from doing that in the future. I say to the gentleman from Alabama, if that is not preemption, I do not know what it is.

Now, there are a lot of other difficulties, too, other than the issue of preemption. The issue of cash price is one of them. There have been studies done by the Consumer Federation of America, who have calculated for who do not really rent, but ultimately wind up owning. The studies can be interpreted differently and they differ, but, suffice to say, a significant number do wind up owning.

The fact of the matter is, if they were to go to some department store, they might be able to buy a TV set for $200, and, unfortunately, they wind up paying closer to $800 or $1,000 for it, and they think they are getting a good deal. They need to be protected. Some States attempt to protect them, and we would preclude that, and we certainly would apply that to all the States.

If we are going to have Federal legislation, we must deal with that cash-price issue. We must deal with what the total cost of ownership would be, because too many individuals across America are being taken to the cleaners right now.

We have an important business in our society, the rent-to-own business. It should exist and it can serve a valuable function for certain clients, but only if certain legislative protections are made, I think that in the future. I say to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS). I do not know if we had three or four, but I know there were several discussions. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) was very proactive. I disagree, but I respect her ability and her position on this issue.

I think that the rent-to-own business, quite frankly, has wanted to work with the Congress on this legislation. Does it go far enough? Maybe not, but is it a step in the right direction? I think it is. Several comments have been made about the rent-to-own industry and just how bad some people think it is, and I would like to read just a couple of survey comments from the Federal Trade Commission, survey of the rent-to-own industry. This is April of 2000. I believe that the Clinton administration was the administration in the year 2000.

Let me read, in a couple of minutes, some of their surveys of those people who do rent the rent-to-own equipment. Sixty-seven percent of consumers intended to purchase the merchandise when they began the rent-to-own transaction, and 87 percent of the customers intending to purchase actually ended up purchasing, and this is April of 2000. I believe that the Clinton administration was the administration in the year 2000.

I believe that the Clinton administration was the administration in the year 2000.

Let me tell just briefly the history of this issue as it relates to legislation dealing with the rent-to-own business. This goes back to a bill that was introduced 10 years ago by Congressman LoRocco from the West. That was 10 years ago, and, finally, after 10 years, and having successfully gone this legislation to the floor. I certainly respect my friends on the other side of this issue, and I mean that most sincerely.

This consumer rent-to-own purchase agreement act, I do want to restate, represents the largest category of consumer transactions currently unregulated by the Federal Government. I mention that because we held hearings in the subcommittee of the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS). I do not know if we had three or four, but I know there were several discussions. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) was very proactive. I disagree, but I respect her ability and her position on this issue.

from Maryland (Mr. Wynn), the gentle- man from Louisiana (Mr. Jeffers- son) and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Clyburn). They sent a letter out on September 17. That is this week, obviously. I want to read, in closing, only a bit more adventuresome and ordered a double-decaf-triple-blend-nondairy-double-latte-hazelnut-cappuccino. But when I got my customized drink, I had to sift through a thick layer of fluffy foam in order to get to a few sips of coffee that were actually in my cup. I get to them let me say that it is real- lly wonderful that the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Wynn), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Jeffers- son), and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Clyburn) close this way, by saying to their colleagues, “We urge you to consider the merits of H.R. 1701 carefully, and we seek your support for its passage.”

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Chairman, I re- serve my time.

Ms. WATERs. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. Jones).

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman from Cali- fornia for yielding me this time. I have prepared comments, but before I get to them let me say that it is rea- lly wonderful that the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Wynn), the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Jeffers- son), and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Clyburn), and the gentleman from New York (Mr. Meeks) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. Towns) would write a letter, but I am the gentle- woman from Ohio and there is the gentle- woman from California (Ms. Water- s) and the gentlewoman from Cali- fornia (Ms. Lee) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. LaFalce) and a number of great Members of this Con- gress who oppose this legislation. We care what a survey said about 67 percent intending to pur- chase or 87 percent did purchase. They are consumers, and as a Member of Congress, I am here to protect the con- sumers from the State of Ohio, Cali- fornia, New York, and anywhere else, and just because they responded to a survey as such does not mean they are being protected.

A few days ago, Mr. Chairman, I stopped by one of those fancy coffee shops that serve enough coffee vari- ations for nearly everybody’s peculiar tastes. Instead of going with my usual black with two sugars, I decided to be a bit more adventuresome and ordered 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Lee). Ms. Lee, Mr. Chairman, I want to thank my colleague, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Waters), for yielding me this time and also for her clarity in leading the charge against this bill. Ms. Waters and I fully oppose this legis- lation. Her hard work and clear un- derstanding of this legislation has rea- lly brought focus to this debate and to this very deceitful bill. I also want to thank our ranking member on the com- mittee, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LaFalce), for his leadership and his dedication to really try to fix this very badly broken bill.

Now, when our committee considered this bill, I supported numerous amend- ments, to improve it, to no avail. Last night Members sought an opportunity to offer several mean- ingful amendments to the bill here today, but the Committee on Rules only allowed two. So what are we left with? A bad, broken bill that is in des- perate need of repairs.

That is why I rise today in strong op- position to the underlying bill, the so- called rent-to-own bill, and in strong support of the Waters and LaFalce amendments. A more accurate name for the bill in its present state might be rent-at-your-own-risk or rent-until- you-could-have-owned-it-three-times- over, because this bill fails to provide real consumer protections against un- scrupulous operators who charge exor- bitant rates to low-income people for items really that a wealthy person could buy with their credit card for a mere fraction of the price.

Concerns over the business practices of the rent-to-own industry are very real. These interest-rate vulner- able low- and moderate-income con- sumers to acquire household goods with no credit checks, no qualification, and low payments, and disguise the true cost of the transaction. Here are just a few of the entice- ments commonly used: we have no doubt heard them before: “Bad credit? No problem”; “Need a TV? Come on down”; “Get it today, enjoy it to- night”; “The sooner you come in, the more money you’ll save.”

Well, perhaps on the other hand, if you do not live in a minority neigh- borhood, you may have never heard these ads. These aggressive and alluring ads stress affordability and immediate re- wards, only while completely ignoring the actual cost of acquiring the mer- chandise over the contract’s term, which usually ends up being signifi- cantly higher than the cost of buying the same product the conventional way.

Though much of this bill merely dup- licates existing weak rent-to-own laws in many States, it really has an insidious core. At the heart of this bill lies preemption language that would kill stronger State laws in four States, Minnesota, New Jersey, Wisconsin, and Vermont, that still treat rent-to-own as a credit transaction. So if this bill were enacted it would be required to treat rent-to-own sales as if they were leases subject to minimum disclous-ures, and the few remaining consumer protections in those four States would actually be lessened.

No wonder this bill is opposed by all of the consumer groups, including Consumers Union, Consumers Federation of America, National Consumer Law
Center, ACORN, U.S. PIRG, and others.
No wonder all 52 State attorneys general oppose this bill.

Congress should really be working for true consumer protections for all Americans in rent-to-own transactions, not assaulting the laws of four States and creating a Federal ceiling on the regulation of the industry.

Frankly, this bill is simply another in the long line of well-titled, good-sounding, anti-consumer bills that the majority deems appropriate to spend our time discussing when the end of the fiscal year is imminent and the controller and the majority of this Chamber’s work on appropriations has yet to be done.

So I urge all Members to stand up for consumers today by voting for the Water Acquisition Rights Act before us today.
I rise to urge my colleagues to stand up for the Consumer Rental Pur-

Mr. MALONEY. Mr. Chairman, my Democratic colleague the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. JONES) and my Committee on Financial Services colleagues on both sides of the aisle for their constructive input in producing a bipartisan, consumer-friendly piece of legislation.

Let me be clear. This bill establishes a Federal floor for rent-to-own disclosures and consumer rights, and preserves States’ options to regulate costs and other disclosures. That is, States still can apply further economic and substantive safeguards such as regulating maximum rental costs, allowable fees, and fair collection practices, should they decide to do so.

In April of 2000, the Federal Trade Commission issued a staff report that addresses many of the issues surrounding the rent-to-own industry.
Generally speaking, the FTC report concluded that clear and comprehensive disclosures of the rental-purchase transaction would benefit both the industry and consumers. That is what this bill does.

Additionally, the FTC made some recommendations regarding the types of disclosures that would benefit the Consumer Rental Purchase Agreement Act before us today begins to implement those recommendations. Let me quote or cite a few examples.

Again, H.R. 1701 establishes a Federal floor, assuring that more protective State laws continue in force and can be enacted in the future. Secondly, the bill expands and assures that the con-sumer’s acquisition rights will be preserved after a missed payment if the consumer acts to reinstate the lease within a specified period of time. The bill prohibits mandatory charges for damage waiver. It requires price tags and labels and clarifies what should be included on those price tags and labels.
It requires more accurate cost disclosures and disclosure of the disposal of whether or not the equipment is new or used.

The bill prohibits merchants from imposing a balloon payment or any other special fee to acquire ownership, for the benefit of the industry, and provides stringent liability and enforcement mechanisms. The bill gives enforcement power to both the FTC and to the State attorneys general, and the bill ties criminal and civil liabilities directly to the Truth in Lending Act and the Consumer Leasing Act.

My good friends who oppose this legislation are simply wrong. This legislation creates a Federal floor. For all of the good things that they would like to achieve, in addition to what this bill does, can in fact be done at the State level; and I would submit to them that right now there is no Federal structure for the regulation of this industry.
What this bill does is creates the Federal structure for the regulation of this industry, for the benefit of the consumer, and creates an opportunity in the future to add additional protections as those protections are argued successfully through the congressional process. So this is a great opportunity for the consumer that we offer here today in this legislation.

Is this bill good for industry? Of course it is good for industry, because it creates that mandatory minimum Federal floor which helps create the national marketplace in which this activity can take place. That is the benefit of a continental market. But is it good for the consumer? Of course it is good for the consumer, because it establishes rights that consumers do not have now, takes no rights away, and gives the opportunity for additional rights, either to be granted by the States or to be granted by the Congress of the United States.

Mr. Chairman, this is a very important step forward for consumers in this country, as well as a step forward for our economy.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to correct a few things. My colleague, the gentleman from Alabama, listed the FTC and cited the FTC report I think as support for the legislation. The FTC responded that they did not support a need for Federal legislation at this time. I just wanted to clear the record of that.

Also, I want to clear up some statements that were made by my colleague relative to preemption. We have a letter from the State of Wisconsin that says that this proposal would block all future State efforts to protect rent-to-own customers within the context of consumer credit regulation. They also go on to say that the substitute’s approach to preemption is in conflict with the fundamental principle underlying the attorneys general letter of

So I do not want the Members of Congrress to believe that somehow preemption is not a question. It certainly is still a question and, certainly, there is preemption.

Mr. Chairman, I want to share with my colleagues that some of the amendments that I attempted have been al-cluded to by other Members who have talked about this bill. I want to share with my colleagues that I tried to amend this legislation that would basically place a cap on total price. My amendment was based on New York and Iowa, which requires that a percentage of the periodic payment be devoted to equity. My amendment would have provided that 75 percent of each payment would count as an ownership interest in the property, and that the customer would acquire full ownership of the property when he or she had paid an amount equal to 133 percent of the cash price.

Well, that was opposed; and that is why some of my colleagues were talking about when they talked about the exorbitant prices.

Also, I would like to point out that I tried desperately to do something about the abusive practices with an amendment, and I cited some of the things that happened with these repossessions. Many of the rent-to-own contracts have clauses which attempt to sanction the entry into the customer’s residence when the customer is not even at home. The contract currently unambiguously gives a large company pawedies, and I quote, that “the lessor shall have the right forthwith and without prior notice to enter any premises where said property is located and take immediate possession of said property without the necessity of any legal or judicial proccess,” and “the lessee shall be obligated to reimburse the lessor for any and all expenses related to any reasonable ef-tort to repossess the property, including reasonable attorneys’ fees.

This industry is unconscionable.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. La-Falce).
Mr. LaFalce. Mr. Chairman, there are a number of difficulties with this bill. We could deal with those difficulties if we had more time and willingness, and if we were negotiating it, rather than an attempt to negotiate it with the industry. If we just proceed with this bill, I think it is dead for this Congress. I do not think it will see the light of day in the Senate.

What are some of the issues? Well, first of all, preemption is an issue. I read off the specific provisions of the bill to rent-to-own contracts. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Sensenbrenner), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, wrote an excellent opinion explaining the difficulties he has because of preemption. These are not make-believe arguments; they are consumer protections that are preempted. States cannot do it. State laws are superseded. We need to deal with that issue.

Now, I actually do not think that those are the primary concerns of the rent-to-own industry. What are their primary concerns which probably only even be aware of?

First, it is not so much the APR consumer protections, it is the treatment, the tax treatment of the rent-to-own contract. It is not that the IRS has said the rent-to-own contract is to be treated as a lease. It is to be written off for 3 years. It is that the rent-to-own industry got Congress to put a provision in the Tax Code that says a rent-to-own contract shall, by definition, be a lease, and shall be allowed a 3-year write-off. They are afraid that some provision of the Federal or State law might alter that treatment. We can deal with that.

They are also concerned, too, about if it is considered to be a credit sale, it might not be considered an asset of theirs. If it was not an asset of theirs, they might not have the security that they might have because of preemption. States cannot do it. State laws are superseded. We need to deal with that issue.

In other words, we could deal with their business problems while still having good Federal standards for consumer protection and allowing the States to go further. This bill does not do it.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY).

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. Bachus) for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1701. This is bipartisan legislation which would create a nationwide floor for rent-to-own contracts. In turn, this floor would create greater opportunities and flexibility for consumers to choose from when acquiring new products.

What kind of flexibility? Rent-to-own consumers do not need to commit to any specified amount of time to use these products. One example would be consumers who like to test out different products before deciding which product they will purchase. Rent-to-own gives them an opportunity to do that by just allowing the consumers to determine what is best suits their needs before purchasing that product.

In addition, rent-to-own allows consumers to obtain products they may only need for a short time. For instance, consumers could purchase a giant screen TV for just the fall football season. They could engage in a rent-to-own contract for the fall, and at the end, simply return the TV, no questions asked, and end the agreement right on the spot.

Another example is particularly helpful for parents of children interested in playing sports. These parents can make payments. Many school districts in the United States of America have this sort of thing in place.

Rent-to-own represents a viable and simple alternative for many Americans not looking to purchase a product. However, rent-to-own also represents an option for many Americans who lack credit or who do not have the funds to purchase a product. People who otherwise would be unable to obtain, so they do it slowly, with a rent-to-own contract.

In essence, this legislation is about ensuring greater options for consumers. As a body, I believe it is our mission to create more and not limit choices and opportunities for consumers.

Those opposed to this legislation claim the bill would override State law and harm consumers. That is a gross distortion. While this legislation would create a new floor for consumer protections in the States, in no way would the bill change any State law which is stronger than the standards written in the bill, nor would this bill prevent any State from enacting even stronger consumer protections for these leasehold agreements. What the bill does is create a floor of strong consumer protections from which States can work to help consumers who want to take advantage of rent-to-purchase opportunities.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join us in support for this legislation to give all consumers better protections in these contracts, and a lot more options in the market.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, what is behind this bill? Not a desire to create a Federal floor of consumer protections for rent-to-own customers, as the majority views allege. If Members really believe that the rent-to-own people are in here doing all of this fighting because they want to provide consumer protection for the people that they have been literally ripping off and abusing all of these years, then I guess I do have a bridge I want to sell them.

This is an effort to avoid hundreds of millions of dollars in penalties imposed by courts from precisely those States whose laws it would preempt. Since 1997, legal actions responding to State consumer law violations have produced legal judgments and settlements against the Nation’s largest rent-to-own chain, La-Z-Boy, Inc., incorporated, amounting to $30 million in Minnesota, $16 million in Wisconsin, and more than $60 million in New Jersey.

Unable to win under these State laws, to or overturn them at the State level, the rent-to-own industry is simply calling on Congress to preempt them. All of the national consumer organizations oppose H.R. 1701, as has been indicated, as an inadequate stand-alone proposal, not to mention a pothole for consumers from misleading lease arrangements that really mask installment sales at exorbitant rates of interest. That is what this is all about.

If Members travel through Washington, D.C., or any of these cities, Members will see the check cashing industry, the payday loan industry, the rent-to-own industry, where they put their operations, where people are the poorest and most vulnerable people who are desperate, who do not ask the questions, and who are willing to do everything they can to make those weekly payments without asking, what is the bottom line? What do they add up to?

Mr. Chairman, we cannot allow the Congress of the United States to be used to shield these rip-off rent-to-own dealers. We cannot allow this industry, I do not care how powerful they think they are, how much money they think they really mask installment sales at exorbitant rates of interest. If we cannot stop this legislation on the floor of Congress, we are not worth our salt. I would simply say to the Members of Congress, it is preemption, it is abusive, it is exorbitant. This is the worst of the worst.

Again, for all people who went home and said to their constituents, forgive me about Enron, I did not know any better; forgive me about WorldCom, I did not know any better; yes, I am going to be about corporate responsibility; no, I will not allow the rip-off of the citizens of the country anymore, what are they going to tell their constituents and their citizens when they go home after they have voted for this?

We are not going to let Members forget it. This is an area that some of us are going to have to spend priority time on protecting our people, helping people that fall under that banner, they have had free rein in America for too long, and people are suffering from it.
The assets, the hopes, and aspirations are being drained out of poor communities. They will never catch up. They will never be able to have a savings account. They will never have money to pay down on a home because they have been ripped off, dribble by dribble, buck by buck.

I do not care whether it is Democrats or Republicans, this is not a bipartisan bill. Do not give me the name of any Democrats who support it, because they are just as bad as those on the opposite side. If you support this, I do not care what color they are. I do not care where they come from. As a matter of fact, I intend to expose every legislator, black, green, purple, I do not care what they are, that supports this kind of legislation. They have too much power. The people have invested too much in the Members of Congress for them to take their power and use it in this fashion. Not only is it unconscionable, but I daresay it is criminal to do so.

So they can name all the people who they want to name who supposedly support it, they can fashion their arguments in any way they want to call preemption, nonpreemption. They do not do it to try to defend the abuses. They do not even try to defend against the exorbitant price because they cannot. It is just that bad.

Shame on us if we allow this legislation to get out of here. Shame on us who are elected by the people of this country, expecting us to give them some minimal protection. Many of them do not know about all of the fancy, highfalutin corporate relationships we have around here, but many of them do know that on a day-to-day basis they have to go to these little businesses because they think they have no place else to go to get a little help. They think we are looking out for them. I ask the Members of Congress to reject this bill.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I am not sure whether I am sort of tan or yellow or whatever I am, but whatever I am, I want to agree with the gentleman from California (Ms. WATERS) about one thing. She has outlined a number of abuses. They think we are looking out for businesses because they think they can make those intelligent decisions, and they do have more protections. This is pro-consumer in Texas and across the country.

Ironically, the opponents of a uniform Federal standard for the rent-to-own industry, which would regulate the industry under the Truth-in-Lending Act, are usually the most forceful advocates of federal protections for consumers. Far from being a radical weakening of consumer protections, as some opponents of this measure contend, H.R. 1701 merely codifies rulings by both the Federal Reserve Board and Internal Revenue Service that treat rental purchase tax credits as lease sales.

This is pro-consumer, it is pro-protection. It increases the ability of consumers to have information to make intelligent decisions about the purchases they have, and it gives the poor, the disadvantaged, the unfortunate an opportunity to access to consumer products that they could get absolutely no other way.

I urge my colleagues to pass this long-overdue measure that will help the most financially vulnerable Americans and rental purchase consumers across the country.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 1701, the so-called Consumer Rental Purchase Agreement Act. This bill has nothing to do with protecting consumers. It doesn’t help the most financially vulnerable Americans that often rely on rent-to-agreements just to afford some of the most basic necessities for their families.

This bill is more about letting the $5 billion a year rent-to-agreement get out of consumer protection standards in force in several states. This shouldn’t come to anyone’s surprise considering the Republican leadership’s track record of giving corporate interests a free ride at the expense of America’s working families.

Proponents of this bill are right in pointing out that rent-to-agreements are not subject to any federal standard. But, their effort to create a new national standard is severely misguided. Not only does it overturn tougher consumer protection laws already in place in many states. But, it also prevent some states from regulating these transactions altogether.

In addition, this bill doesn’t include important disclosure requirements mandating that rent-to-businesses inform consumers of the total cost of entering into these agreements. This undermines the basic principle of a free market by barring Americans from shopping competitively and making informed choices.

We should do more to demand accountability from the rent-to-agreement. This bill simply gives them a shelter to play games with financing gimmicks and impose hidden fees on vulnerable consumers.

I think Congress owes more to America’s working families than to conspire in another corporate scam. I urge my colleagues to stand up for consumers and vote down this misguided bill.

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 1701. I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing this anti-consumer bill. I want to thank my good friend Representative WATERS for her tireless work on behalf of consumers. Every national consumer rights organization and 52 state and extraterritorial Attorney Generals oppose this bill. I should also note that there is bipartisan opposition to this bill. The Judiciary Committee Chairman told me that H.R. 1701 is a misguided attempt to preempt the existing laws of virtually every state. 1 could not agree more.

This legislation sacrifices consumer protections for the sake of a politically connected industry that is notorious for exploiting consumers. We should not preempt strong consumer protection laws in Minnesota, New Jersey, Wisconsin, and Vermont. This bill would also effectively stop states from passing strong consumer protections in the future. The $5 billion a year rent to own industry offers goods to people who did not have the credit or money to buy goods at the regular sales price. I should note that this industry that already receives special treatment by the IRS. The IRS grants the Rent to Own Industry a three-year depreciation schedule. The highest percentage increase is the rent to own industry that has a three-year depreciation schedule. This legislation will give this industry even more “special treatment.”

H.R. 1701 effectively allows the rent to own industry to hide the true costs of its transactions by hiding interest rates. Consumers should know the final cost of a deal they have agreed to.

This industry provides goods to those who are unable to conventionally purchase goods. We in Congress should work to strengthen and not weaken protections for families that are struggling to make ends meet. Low-income people predominately use this market. It is estimated that over 30% receive some form of public assistance, 59% earn less than $25,000 and 75% have a high school degree or less. Rent to own consumers frequently are paying 10 to 15 times the rental price. On average it takes a consumer 77 weeks to own the good.

Consumers are deceived by low monthly installment rates. People should absolutely know what they are getting into when they agree to buy an item over a long period of time. This legislation will make it even harder for consumers to get fair and accurate information about their obligations. We in Congress should work to strengthen, not weaken protections for working families. This legislation weakens consumer protections while protecting the rent to own industry.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Chairman. H.R. 1701, the Consumer Rental Purchase Agreement bill, rewriters every rent to own contract in the nation to conform to the dictates of federal politicians and bureaucrats. This bill thus represents another usurpation by Congress of powers reserved by the 9th and 10th amendments of the Constitution to the states and the people. Rent-to-own transactions provide many low-income individuals an affordable means of obtaining durable goods, such as furniture, appliances and computers. Rent-to-own also provides a way of obtaining luxury items for a short time. For example, someone who cannot afford a big screen TV can use a rent-to-own contract to obtain such a TV to watch the Super Bowl.

Proponents of H.R. 1701 admit the benefits of rent-to-own but fret that rent-to-own transactions are regulated by the states, not the federal government. Proponents of this legislation claim that state regulations are inadequate, thus making federal regulations necessary. My concern is the fact that Congress has no legitimate authority to judge whether or not state regulations are adequate. This is because the Constitution gives the federal government no authority to regulate this type of transaction. Thus, whether or not state regulations are adequate is simply not for Congress to judge.

Some may claim that H.R. 1701 respects states’ rights, because it does not preempt those state regulations acceptable to federal regulators. However, Mr. Chairman, this turns the constitutional meaning of federalism on its head. As a member of the Consumer Protection Subcommittee, I assert that this legislation does not limit its protections to state laws approved by the federal bureaucracy. In addition to exceeding Congress’s constitutional authority, H.R. 1701, like all federal regulatory schemes, could backfire and harm the very people it was intended to help. This is because any regulation inevitably raises the cost of doing business. These higher costs are passed along to the consumer in the form of either higher prices or fewer choices. The result of this is that marginal customers are priced out of the market. These consumers may prefer to sign contracts that do not meet federal standards as opposed to not having access to any rent-to-own contracts, but the Congress will deny them that option. According to the proponents of H.R. 1701, if people cannot obtain desired goods and services under terms satisfactory to the government, they are better off being denied those goods and services. Mr. Chairman, this type of “government knows best” legislation represents the worst type of paternalism and is totally inappropriate. In conclusion, H.R. 1701 exceeds Congress’s constitutional authority by regulating areas constitutionally left to the states. It also raises the cost of forming rent-to-own contracts and thus will deny those contracts to consumers who desire them. I therefore urge my colleagues to reject this paternalistic and unconstitutional bill.

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Chairman, the rent-to-own industry provides an important service for those who cannot afford the initial expense of enduring goods. Such items as furniture, washing machines, and televisions, and for those who are looking for temporary home furnishings. Many Mississippians rely on the convenience and accessibility of rent-to-own products. Nationally, rental and rent-to-own transactions total $5.3 billion each year. Because the rent to own industry provides such a vital service to so many people across the U.S., I am proud to support the Consumer Rental-Purchase Agreement Act on the floor of the House today.

The Consumer Rental-Purchase Agreement Act of 2002 (H.R. 1701) protects those consumers who opt to rent or rent to own. Because these types of transactions are short-term leases not covered by the Consumer Leasing Act or the Truth in Lending Act, H.R. 1701 fills a gap in federal regulation of consumer transactions. H.R. 1701 regulates the rent-to-own industry by establishing federal regulatory framework for rent-to-own transactions. This legislation exceeds Congress’s authority to implement the best type of consumer protection for rent-to-own consumers in every state. This federal “floor” provides for consumer disclosures while still allowing states to impose price caps, fee limits, and other protections.

My H.R. 1701 protects consumer rights. The bill extends the reinstatement period that preserves a consumer’s acquisition rights after missing payments. It restricts the types of fees that merchants may charge, such as balloon payments for multiple late fees. The bill prevents merchants from requiring that customers purchase their damage waiver or insurance as a condition of the rental. It also prohibits abusive collection practices and protects customers from waiving their legal claims. H.R. 1701 protects states’ rights to regulate and establish business standards in the rent-to-own industry, because it guarantees existing rent-to-own retail standards in more than 40 states but assures that more protective state laws continue in force. States can and do restrict rental costs and require further disclosures. H.R. 1701 also ensures the uniformity of state regulations while allowing states to impose price caps, fee limits or other protections. This type of federal legislation achieves a better balance between state authority and federal authority than might have been achieved had Congress attempted to preempt state regulations.

I am a proud cosponsor of this bipartisan legislation, which raises the standards of disclosure in the rent-to-own industry and ensures that consumers are protected during these transactions. As a member of the Committee on Financial Services, I voted in favor of this legislation on June 27th, which passed the committee with bipartisan support and was reported favorably to the full House, 29–9.

I am proud to support this bill on the floor of the House today because I believe that the relationship between rent-to-own retailers and consumers maintains its integrity and best serves each side’s financial stake in rent or rent-to-own transactions.

Mr. JACOBSON-LIEBER of Texas. Mr. Chairman, today I speak out in opposition to H.R. 1701. This bill does great harm to our nation’s consumers while protecting the rent-to-own industry with weak regulations that are not suited to the true nature of the type of transaction these contracts really represent—credit-sales contracts.

Once again, we hasten to pass a bill that unfairly places the interests of common consumers below the interests of industry and business. Unfortunately, there are those in the rent-to-own business who create these contracts without providing full disclosure to the consumers who use them—consumers who ultimately intend to own the television, furniture or other good contemplated in the rent-to-own agreement. When these consumers fail to understand their obligations or the terms and conditions of the contract, the contract may be void. The measure also raises another issue that Republicans often use as a battle cry when they support regulation that oppresses the rights of individuals or threatens what they term as undue burdens on business and industry. I cannot count the number of times that I have heard Republicans raise the issue of states rights arguing that states know best and decrying Federal encroachment upon state matters. However, when they want to elevate the rights of our nation's industries over the rights of individual consumers, states rights go right out of the door. This measure tramples on the rights of states regulators to regulate rent-to-own contracts as credit sales and turns federalism on its head. H.R. 1701 would preempt strong state laws regulating rent-to-own contracts from New Jersey, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Vermont. This measure preempts stronger state laws regulating rent-to-own contracts and is opposed by 52 state and territorial Attorneys General.

Consumer advocates oppose this measure. Furthermore, all of the government witnesses during the House Committee on Commercial and Administrative Law on this bill, including witnesses representing the Wisconsin Attorney General, the Federal Trade Commission and the Federal Reserve declined to recommend action on H.R. 1701, further making the argument that this is nothing more than a giveaway to the industry. Yet, we still see this measure progressing in the House. I do not believe at this juncture, in our nation's history, that this legislation reflects Congressional concern for a nation with a stagnant economy and teetering on the brink of war. At a time when all of our nation's citizens are particularly concerned for their well being we should not pass legislation that will allow industry to capitalize on those citizens with the most exposure to these turbulent times. For these reasons I do not support H.R. 1701, and if present, I would have voted "no."

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. Hefley). All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on Financial Services, amended by the amendment recommended by the Committee on the Judiciary, printed in the bill shall be considered as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the 5-minute rule and shall be considered as read.

The text of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Consumer Rental Purchase Agreement Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND DECLARATION OF PURPOSE. (a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds as follows: (1) The rental-purchase industry provides a service that meets and satisfies the demands of many consumers who have low or no credit. (a) RECIPIENT OF DISCLOSURE.—A merchant shall disclose to any person who will be a signatory to the rental-purchase agreement the required disclosures, as required by sections 1004 and 1005.

(b) TIMING OF DISCLOSURE.—The disclosures required under sections 1004 and 1005 shall be made at the time of entering into a rental-purchase agreement and clearly and conspicuously in writing as part of the rental-purchase agreement to be signed by the consumer.

(c) CONSPICUOUSNESS.—As used in this section, the term ‘clearly and conspicuously’ means that information required to be disclosed to the consumer shall be worded plainly and simply, and appear in a type size, prominence, and location as to be readily noticeable, readable, and comprehensible to an ordinary person.

SEC. 1004. RENTAL-PURCHASE DISCLOSURES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For each rental-purchase agreement, the merchant shall disclose to the consumer the following, to the extent applicable:

(1) The date of the consummation of the rental-purchase transaction and the identities of the merchant and the consumer.

(2) A brief description of the rental property, which shall be sufficient to identify the property to the consumer, including an identification or serial number, if applicable, and a statement indicating whether the property is new or used.

(3) A description of any fee, charge or penalty, including any periodic payment, the amount of any security deposit required under the agreement, which shall be separately identified. In the case of a rental-purchase agreement involving the rental of 2 or more items as a set, the total dollar amount necessary to acquire ownership of each item may be reduced to an amount that the consumer reasonably may expect to pay for the set as a whole.

(4) A clear and conspicuous statement that the transaction is a rental-purchase agreement and that the consumer will not obtain ownership of the property until the consumer pays the total cost to acquire ownership.

(5) The amount of any initial payment, which includes the first periodic payment, and the total amount of any fees, taxes, or other charges, required to be paid by the consumer.

(6) The amount of the cash price of the property that is the subject of the rental-purchase agreement, and, if the agreement involves the rental of 2 or more items as a set as may be defined by the Board in regulation, a statement of the aggregate cash price of all items shall satisfy this requirement.

(7) The amount and timing of periodic payments, and the total number of periodic payments necessary to acquire ownership of the property under the rental-purchase agreement.

(8) The total cost, using that term, and a brief description, such as ‘This is the amount you would pay the merchant if you make all periodic payments to acquire ownership of the property.’

(9) A statement of the consumer’s right to terminate the agreement without paying any fee or charge not previously due under the agreement by voluntarily surrendering or returning the property in good repair upon expiration of any lease term.

(10) Substantially the following statement: OTHER IMPORTANT TERMS. See your rental-purchase agreement for other important information or early termination procedures, purchase option rights, responsibilities for loss, damage or destruction of the property, warrant- ances, maintenance responsibilities, and other charges or penalties you may incur.

(b) FORM OF DISCLOSURE.—The disclosures required by paragraphs (4) through (10) of subsection (a) may be included in the rental-purchase agreement, or if the same property is not available, a substitute item of comparable price, quality and condition may be provided by the merchant or the consumer is responsible for obtaining another comparable substituted item. In the case of a rental-purchase agreement provided in subsection (a) of section 1006, or by exercise of any early purchase option provided in the rental-purchase agreement, the merchant shall clearly and conspicuously disclose to the consumer the total cost to acquire ownership, as provided in section 1001(17), and as disclosed to the consumer before the consummation of a rental-purchase agreement, or if the same property is not available, a substitute item of comparable price, quality and condition may be provided by the merchant or the consumer is responsible for obtaining another comparable substituted item.

(c) DISCLOSURE RELATING TO INSURANCE PREMIUMS AND LIABILITY WAIVERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A merchant shall clearly and conspicuously disclose to the consumer the information required by paragraphs (4) through (10) of subsection (a) of section 1006, or by exercise of any early purchase option provided in the rental-purchase agreement.

(2) ACCURACY OF DISCLOSURE.—If the merchant fails to disclose the information required by paragraphs (4) through (10) of subsection (a) of section 1006, or by exercise of any early purchase option provided in the rental-purchase agreement, the merchant shall disclose to the consumer the terms for refund of such security deposit to the consumer; except that, the Board may, by regulation or order, exempt any independent small business (as defined by the Board by regulation) from the requirement of providing the required disclosures.

SEC. 1005. OTHER AGREEMENT PROVISIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Each rental-purchase agreement shall—

(1) provide a statement specifying whether the merchant or the consumer is responsible for loss, theft, damage, or destruction of the property;

(2) provide a statement specifying whether the merchant or the consumer is responsible for maintaining or servicing the property, together with a brief description of the responsibility;

(3) provide that the consumer may terminate the agreement without paying any charges not previously due under the agreement by voluntarily surrendering or returning the property that is the subject of the rental-purchase agreement upon expiration of any rental period; and

(4) contain a provision for reinstatement of the agreement, which at a minimum—

(A) permits a consumer who fails to make a timely rental payment to reinstate the agreement, without losing any rights or options which exist under the agreement, by the payment of all past due rental payments and any other charges then due under the agreement and a payment for the next rental period within 7 business days after failing to make a timely rental payment if the consumer pays monthly, or within 3 business days after failing to make a timely rental payment if the consumer pays more frequently;

(B) if the consumer returns or voluntarily surrenders the property covered by the agreement, other than through judicial process, during the applicable reinstatement period set forth in subparagraph (A), permits the consumer to reinstate the agreement during a period of at least 15 days after failing to make a timely rental payment for the rental of the property by the payment of all amounts previously due under the agreement, any applicable fees, and a payment for the next rental period; and

(5) permit a consumer who fails to make a timely rental payment to reinstate the agreement during a period of at least 15 days after failing to make a timely rental payment for the rental of the property by the payment of all amounts previously due under the agreement, any applicable fees, and a payment for the next rental period; and

(b) PAYMENT OF TOTAL COST.—The consumer shall acquire ownership of the rental property upon payment of the total cost of the rental-purchase agreement, as such term is defined in section 1001(17), and as disclosed to the consumer in the rental-purchase agreement pursuant to section 1002.

(c) ADDITIONAL FEES PROHIBITED.—A merchant shall not require the consumer to pay, as

H6330 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE September 18, 2002
SEC. 1007. PROHIBITED PROVISIONS.

(a) A rental-purchase agreement may not contain—

(1) a confession of judgment;

(2) a negotiable instrument;

(3) a transfer or any other claim of a property interest in any goods, except those goods the use of which is provided by the merchant pursuant to the agreement;

(4) a provision requiring the waiver of any legal claim or remedy created by this title or other provision of Federal or State law;

(5) a provision limiting the interest or any other claim of a property interest in any goods, except those goods the use of which is provided by the merchant pursuant to the agreement;

(6) a provision requiring the purchase of a card, tag, or label, to pay an amount in excess of the least of—

(A) the fair market value of the property, as determined by the Board in regulation;

(B) any early purchase option amount provided in the rental-purchase agreement; or

(C) the actual cost of repair, as appropriate to print, video, audio, and computerized advertising, reflecting the principles and factors typically applied in each medium, and no audio, video, or print technique shall be used that is likely to obscure or detract significantly from the communication of the disclosures required.

Nothing contrary to, inconsistent with, or detracting from a disclosure that can be determined to be incomprehensible to the ordinary consumer.

(b) FORM OF DISCLOSURE.

(1) In general.—A merchant may make the disclosure required by subsection (a) in the form of a list of all such disclosures, as appropriate to print, video, audio, and computerized advertising, so as to be readily noticeable and comprehensible to the ordinary consumer.

(2) Statutory and other requirements.

For purposes of this section, the term ‘clearly and conspicuously’ means that required disclosures shall be presented in a type, size, shade, contrast, prominence, location, and manner, as applicable to different mediums for advertising, so as to be readily noticeable and comprehensible to the ordinary consumer.

(c) REGULATORY GUIDANCE.—The Board shall prescribe regulations on principles and factors, including any requirements that the Board shall finds necessary to acquire ownership under subsection (a) in the form of a list of all such disclosures, as appropriate to print, video, audio, and computerized advertising, reflecting the principles and factors typically applied in each medium, and no audio, video, or print technique shall be used that is likely to obscure or detract significantly from the communication of the disclosures.

(3) LIMITATION.—Nothing contrary to, inconsistent with, or detracting from a disclosure that can be determined to be incomprehensible to the ordinary consumer.

SEC. 1010. POINT-OF-RENTAL DISCLOSURES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In any rental-purchase transaction refers to or states in any advertisement the following:

(1) A brief description of the property.

(2) Whether the property is new or used.

(3) The cash price of the property.

(4) The amount of each rental payment.

(5) The total number of rental payments necessary to acquire ownership of the property.

(b) FORM OF DISCLOSURE.

(1) In general.—A merchant may make the disclosure required by subsection (a) in the form of a list of all such disclosures, as appropriate to print, video, audio, and computerized advertising, so as to be readily noticeable and comprehensible to the ordinary consumer.

(2) CLEARLY AND CONSPICUOUSLY.—As used in this section, the term ‘clearly and conspicuously’ means that information required to be disclosed to the consumer shall appear in a type size, prominence, and location as to be noticeably, readable, and comprehensible to an ordinary consumer.

(c) PROHIBITION.—An advertisement for a rental-purchase transaction that includes, but is not limited to, a violation of this section in an action to collect an obligation arising from a rental-purchase agreement, which was brought after the end of the 1-year period beginning on the date the last payment was made by the consumer under the rental-purchase agreement.

(2) RECoupment on SET-OFF.—This subsection shall not bar a consumer from asserting a violation of this title in an action to collect an obligation arising from a rental-purchase agreement, which was brought after the end of the 1-year period beginning on the date the last payment was made by the consumer under the rental-purchase agreement.

(3) VIOLATIONS.—A civil money penalty of such amount as the court may determine, based on such factors as the court may determine to be appropriate.

(4) APPARENT VIOLATIONS.—An action under section 1012 or 1013 for a violation of this title may be brought against an assignee only if the violation appears on the face of the rental-purchase agreement.

(5) APPARENT VIOLATIONS.—An action under section 1012 or 1013 for a violation of this title may be brought against an assignee only if the violation is apparent on the face of the rental-purchase agreement.

(6) LIABILITY OF ASSIGNOR.—The assignor is liable for an apparent violation if the violation was not known to, and could not have been known to, the assignor.

SEC. 1011. RENTAL-PURCHASE ADVERTISING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—If an advertisement for a rental-purchase transaction includes, but is not limited to, a violation of this title, a consumer may bring an action to enforce sanctions against the merchant, including—

(1) an order to cease and desist from such practices; and

(2) a civil money penalty of such amount as the court may determine, based on such factors as the court may determine to be appropriate.

SEC. 1013. ADDITIONAL GROUNDS FOR CIVIL LIABILITY.

(a) INDIVIDUAL CASES WITH ACTUAL DAMAGES.—Any merchant who fails to comply with any requirements imposed under section 1010 or 1011 with respect to any consumer who suffers actual damage from the violation shall be liable to such consumer as provided for in section 1014.

(b) PATTERN OR PRACTICE.

If a merchant engages in a pattern or practice of violating any requirement imposed under section 1010 or 1011, the Board, in consultation with the appropriate State attorney general, in accordance with section 1016, may initiate an action to enforce sanctions against the merchant, including—

(1) an order to cease and desist from such practices; and

(2) a civil money penalty of such amount as the court may determine, based on such factors as the court may determine to be appropriate.

SEC. 1014. LIABILITY OF ASSIGNEES.

(a) ASSIGNEES INCLUDED.—For purposes of section 1013, and this section, the term ‘merchant’ includes an assignee of a merchant.

(b) LIABILITIES OF ASSIGNEES.

(1) APPARENT VIOLATION.—An action under section 1012 or 1013 for a violation of this title may be brought against an assignee only if the violation is apparent on the face of the rental-purchase agreement.

(2) APPARENT VIOLATION.—An action under section 1012 or 1013 for a violation of this title may be brought against an assignee only if the violation is apparent on the face of the rental-purchase agreement.

(3) APPARENT VIOLATION.—An action under section 1012 or 1013 for a violation of this title may be brought against an assignee only if the violation is apparent on the face of the rental-purchase agreement.

(4) APPARENT VIOLATION.—An action under section 1012 or 1013 for a violation of this title may be brought against an assignee only if the violation is apparent on the face of the rental-purchase agreement.

(5) INVOLUNTARY ASSIGNMENT.—An assignee has no liability in a case in which the assignee is involuntary.
“(4) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—No provision of this section shall be construed as limiting or altering the liability under section 1012 or 1013 of a merchant assigning a rental-purchase agreement.

“(b) PROOF OF DISCLOSURE.—In an action by or against an assignee, the assignee’s written acknowledgment of receipt of a disclosure, made as part of the rental-purchase agreement shall be conclusive proof that the disclosure was made, if the assignee had no knowledge that the disclosure had not been made when the assignee acquired the rental-purchase agreement to which it relates.

SEC. 1015. REGULATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Board shall prescribe regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of this title, and to aid the consumer in understanding the transaction by utilizing readily understandable language to simplify the technical nature of the disclosures. In devising such regulations, the Board shall consider the use by merchants of data processing or similar automated equipment. Nothing in this title may be construed to require a merchant to use any such model disclosure forms.

(b) MODEL DISCLOSURE FORMS.—The Board may publish model disclosure forms and clauses for common rental-purchase agreements to facilitate compliance with the disclosure requirements of this title and to aid the consumer in understanding the transaction by utilizing readily understandable language to simplify the technical nature of the disclosures. In devising such model disclosure forms, the Board shall consider the use by merchants of data processing or similar automated equipment. Nothing in this title may be construed to require a merchant to use any such model disclosure forms.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE OF REGULATIONS.—Any regulation prescribed by the Board, or any amendment or interpretation thereof, shall not be effective before the October 1 that follows the date of publication in the Federal Register of the final form of such regulation.

SEC. 1016. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) FEDERAL ENFORCEMENT.—Compliance with the requirements imposed under this title shall be enforced under the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 41 et seq.), and a violation of any of such requirements shall be a violation of a requirement imposed under that Act. All of the functions and powers of the Federal Trade Commission under the Federal Trade Commission Act are available to the Commission to enforce compliance by any person with the requirements of this title, irrespective of whether that person is engaged in commerce or meets any other jurisdictional test.

(b) STATE ENFORCEMENT.—In any action to enforce the requirements imposed by this title, any person may be brought by the appropriate State attorney general in any appropriate United States district court, or any other court of competent jurisdiction.

SEC. 1017. EFFECT ON GOVERNMENT AGENCIES.

No civil liability or criminal penalty under this title may be imposed on the United States or any of its departments or agencies, any State or political subdivision, or any agency of a State or political subdivision.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore, Pursuant to House Resolution 528, the gentleman from New York (Mr. LaFalce) and a Member opposed each shall control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. LaFalce).

Mr. LaFalce. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself to Mr. LaFalce asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. LaFalce. Mr. Chairman, before I get to the specifics of the amendment before us, let me just make a couple of points.

Some individuals have said there is no Federal protection; therefore, we need something to protect consumers. Let me underscore again the fact that every single consumer organization that I am aware of opposes this bill, and they are very pro-consumer. These organizations such as Consumers Union, the Consumers Federation of America, et cetera, they are pretty pro-consumer and they are adamantly opposed to this bill. So when individuals come to the floor and say that this is a consumer bill, there is a disconnect. And I ask people to draw their own conclusions as to what the cause of the disconnect is.

Secondly, some individuals keep bringing up here and saying there is no pre-emption whatsoever; the States can do anything they want to. Again, I ask them to go to page 32 of the bill and lines 20 through 7 on page 33 where it specifically says that notwithstanding the provisions of the rest of the bill, this State shall supersede any State law that does the following, and then it ticks it off including the disclosure of a percentage rate calculation, including a time-price differential, an annual percentage rate, an effective annual percentage rate, that, if a State law calls for it, eliminates a State law. If a State wants to pass legislation, it is precluded.

Do not come to this floor with a straight face and say that the States can do anything they want when this language is in here. If you come to the floor, read this language.

Unfortunately, the Committee on Rules is not offering us the opportunity to correct those deficiencies with an appropriate amendment. That means whatever happens with respect to the amendment the bill is still going to be defective.

They have permitted me to deal with one issue and that is the issue of cash price. And this is a rather large issue. It is going to be a controversial one, I understand that. But such a significant percentage of consumers who rent do wind up owning, that we have to ask what is the correct ownership, and are they aware of it, and should we permit the rental industry to charge such an enormous price to the consumers, most of whom are the poorest in our society?

First and foremost, let us ask, well, what does it usually cost to own something? There have been a few studies. First of all, let me quote to you from a document put out by the U.S. PRG, the Public Interest Research Group. They did a study of a store and the average selling price for a 19-inch color TV at a department store would be $217; at a rent-to-own, $415. The average cost to rent to own a 19-inch color TV, that is outright; but the average cost at the department store $217. At the rent-to-own, $746. That is the total average cost, $746 as opposed to $217 at a department store. And I could go on and on.

More recently, a study was done by a professor of Binghamton University, Professor Robert Mann. He wrote the book “Credit Card Nation.” He has a chapter in that book dealing with the rent-to-own industry. He says that the total Circuit City credit cost for a 19-inch Magnavox television was $231, whereas, the total cost under the rental purchase contract was $779. Unbelievable.

For a $190 Fisher 4-head VCR, the total retail credit cost at Circuit City would be $366.22 versus a total cost of $935.33 at Rent-A-Center.

This is unconscionable. Almost everybody who winds up owning property, and that is a significant number, and the gentleman himself has used figures of around 70 or 80 percent. I am not sure exactly what the accurate percentage is but it is significant, are winding up paying three, four, five times the cost of what it would be someplace else. I think we need to deal with that.

At present there are at least 12 States that currently impose some form of restriction on the cost consumers must pay to acquire ownership of rent-to-own merchandise. Over half these States impose limits on total rental costs and fees, while others provide an early purchase option that permits consumers who have access to cash to reduce the overall cost of the transaction.

But by far the simplest approach I have found for limiting total ownership cost under rent-to-own arrangements is that included in New York State law as well as in the rent-to-own statutes of Ohio and Nebraska. Under this approach, a consumer is assured of acquiring ownership of the rental property whenever their total rental payments reach an amount that is equal to two times or twice the stated cash price of the property. Now, this can be accomplished by making all scheduled payments or by a lump sum early-purchase option payment. This approach helps to limit the costs consumers must pay to own a product while also assuring a reasonable return for the merchants of roughly twice the retail cost.

Now, unfortunately, even this approach has run into problems in my own State of New York as rent-to-own merchants have sought to inflate the cash price of products in order to increase the total purchase price. So a product might be $200 at a department store, they call the cash price $400; and, therefore, they are able to charge $800 rather than the $200. So despite the intent of the law to make sure the cash price reflect local retail prices, rent-to-own merchants have often set the cash price at a much higher level than they would charge consumers to purchase the product outright.

Inflating the cash prices serves two purposes for rent-to-own merchants. It inflates the total cost consumers will ultimately pay to acquire ownership of the rental property, and it discourages consumers from making outright purchases of merchandise. It encourages longer term, more costly rentals.

My amendment would make the ownership cost limitation in New York and Ohio State law presently the minimum standard of protection in the bill. Consumers who have made rental payments equal to twice the cash price of the rental property would be entitled to full ownership of the property.

But in order to make this work as a national standard, the amendment would also direct the Federal Reserve Board, who would be responsible for the total cost of this legislation, to issue regulations providing detailed criteria for a formula calculating the cash price for rental property together with additional criteria for adjusting the cash price.

The Federal Reserve Board has acted in other circumstances to promulgate regulations dealing with truth and lending, et cetera, so I think they certainly would be able to do this. Now, let me first say that with respect to preemption, this bill would not preempt the State laws dealing with cash price. I will get that out front.
Unfortunately, this approach has run into problems in New York as rent-to-own merchants have sought to inflate the cash price of products in order to increase the total purchase price. The intent of the law to have the cash price reflect local retail prices, rent-to-own merchants often set the cash price at a much higher level than they would charge consumers to purchase the product outright.

Inflating the cash prices serves two purposes for rent-to-own merchants—it inflates the total cost consumers will ultimately pay to acquire ownership of the rented property, and it discourages consumers from seeking outright purchases of merchandise and encourages, longer term, more costly, rentals.

My amendment would make the ownership cost limitation in New York and Ohio State law the minimum standard of protection in the bill. Consumers who have made rental payments equal to twice the cash price of the rental property would be entitled to full ownership of the property.

To make this work as a national standard, the amendment also directs the Federal Reserve Board to adopt either de-tailed criteria or a formula calculating the cash price for rental property, together with additional criteria for adjusting the cash price for previously used property. The Board would, in effect, provide a basis for determining cash price. I think it a matter of common sense that if we were to establish a national standard for determining annual percentage rates (APR) calculations for credit transactions thirty years ago.

Under the amendment, the calculation provided for Board would assure a cash price at least to two times the merchant’s acquisition cost, plus any supplemental costs the Board considers appropriate. The cash price would be set more uniformly at or near comparable retail prices for consumers in all parts of the country. And it would assure a total return for the merchants at somewhere near four times acquisition costs—a rate of return that most retail merchants would envy.

I would emphasize again that this is only the minimum standard for protecting consumers; it does not preclude the States from adopting some cash price laws and we are not going to support legislation until that is done.

Now, I would not have co-sponsored this if I had not liked it. It came to my committee and at that time before 4 or 5 days of hearing, that is what they came to me and said. They said, Absolutely we will not support it unless that is in it. Put that in it and we will talk to you. We had Members on both sides that did not like the fact that we preempted those States with stronger laws and we are not going to support legislation until that is done. As far as the consumer groups that we keep hearing about, when this legislation was introduced, they came to the Hill en mass and they said, We like some of what is in here, but I will tell you what we do not like, we do not like preempting those States with stronger laws.

As I have said repeatedly on the floor of this House in this debate here today, the only thing, the only thing that is preempted is the decision by four judges in four States, three or four times there is a question of the States, whether to call this credit sales. And we have come down on the side of what the great body of evidence, all the State legislatures who have considered this as for tax treatment, IRS, how they have treated it, as a lease. And as I said, we have to make that decision if we are to have Federal regulation. We have done that. And in those four States, there are three States, they are absolutely right, and they have not had the opportunity for consumers in this State then that is taken away. However, I will tell you that in Wisconsin because of legislation, all the rent-to-own stores are closing or have closed so they are not able to make a profit in that approach, did not give them any choice. It basically drove the industry out.

I applaud the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) for her honesty. She has said, I do not like this industry. I do not want to see it thrive. And she has been upfront about that. As far as the consumer groups that we keep hearing about, when this legislation was introduced, they came to the Hill en mass and they said, We like some of what is in here, but I will tell you what we do not like, we do not like preempting those States with stronger laws and we are not going to support legislation until that is done.

They said, Absolutely we will not support it unless that is in it. Put that in it and we will talk to you. They are not preempted.
other gentlewoman from California in that they have been opposed to this legislation and that they will be opposed to this legislation from now on. They want these stores closed. And there may be others that want price restrictions. Twelve States have opted for it. I really do not understand this. I do not understand how 38 States have said we do not want price restrictions. Yet the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFAULCE). We are proposing what four States have done, now gets up with an amendment that changes the law in 38 States. Where is the consistency there?

When this proposal came up we went to the Federal Reserve. The gentleman from New York has said the Federal Reserve will set these cash prices formulas that we may imagine when the Federal Reserve heard about this amendment that the Federal Reserve would have to start taking all their time and going around and setting these maximum prices? Do I need to instill in this body they are opposed to having to do this? Absolutely they are opposed to it.

As the FTC concluded in its report, and I have it on page 98, we talked about all these exorbitant and excessive profits. The FTC looked at that, page 98, and what they said is they said there are almost no barriers to entering this business. They said a person can get a store front, a delivery truck and an inventory of household merchandise, and they can enter the industry. They said because there are no barriers to entering this industry, if people are making a big profit, somebody else will come in down the street and open up, and they said that excessive profits can be maintained only if there are significant barriers to entering, to collusion, or some type of anti-competitive barrier. There do not appear to be any significant barriers to entry that would prevent new firms from entering the rent-to-own industry. That is what they concluded.

They said no evidence that excessive profits, and they said, therefore, and the issue here was price restrictions, until it is shown that there are some barriers to introduction in this industry or that it is a direct barrier to people getting into the industry, and I know of none, that price restrictions that are contemplated, they should be explored more fully but they should not be enacted.

Another thing, the consumer groups, and my colleagues know these same consumer groups, it is interesting, if we look back at some of the important legislation that this Congress has passed, legislation including the Consumer Leasing Act, Fair Debt Collection, the Fair Reporting Act, these consumer groups, it never was good enough for them. They always opposed them. They always wanted a little more. They push for it but they wanted something else and they urge, and they will continue even though we have 46 States, we do nothing about strong protection, we increase protection. We increase protections in all 50 States. As I said, some of the four States that call this a credit sale do not require people to put a price tag on there. We require that.

One of the consumer groups said the terrible abuse, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) pointed out, her credit, was that these people go in and they do not know what they are paying for this. There are 40 States throughout who do not require any disclosure today at where the item is as to the price they are paying, 40 States, including some that set the price.

This legislation requires point-of-rental disclosures as to price, something that the consumer groups say is badly needed. This legislation does it. They oppose that.

They say they want preemption because 12 States have gone beyond what we establish. They do not want us to interfere with those 12 States. So we did not. They are still opposed to it and they will be opposed to it ad infinitum, and that is okay. That is their right, but the one thing that we do not need in this body is we do not need to misrepresent this thing as a bill that does not increase consumer protection because it absolutely does. In 46 States it absolutely does. If you have the credit sales thing, one can argue that that effectively keeps people from going to rent-to-own stores. So in those four States, it might aid the industry, but in the other States it will not because it establishes new requirements, and because I am one of those 46 States I will be on the floor voting for this.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. HEFLEY). All time for debate has expired.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFAULCE). The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. LAFAULCE. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 6 of rule XVIII, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFAULCE) will be postponed.

It is now in order to consider Amendment No. 2 printed in House Report 107-661.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MS. WATERS

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 2 offered by Ms. Waters: Page 19, line 12, insert “(a) IN GENERAL.—A rental-purchase agreement and insert “(a) IN GENERAL.—A rental-purchase agreement.”
rent-to-own business. The merchant sells a liability damage waiver to the customer which effectively makes customers pay for responsibility that is not theirs. This amendment would ban this shifting of the liability to the consumer and prohibits the charging of a fee for insurance that is not necessary to prevent loss. There is an exception for loss, damage or destruction that is deliberately caused by the consumer that is a result of consumer negligence.

Imagine this. A person has got this contract with the rent-to-own industry. They need this television or whatever it is, refrigerator, whatever. Not only do they have an arrangement that is not considered a credit sales contract arrangement and so they do not have to disclose what the interest is on it, and this industry just can charge whatever they want to charge that person. Then they say to the person, now, they are responsible for this item and we have a little something that is built into this contract that we want the person to pay. We want the person to pay some amount. What amount? Any amount that they decide. In some States the amount that they charge the customer is equal to the amount that they are paying weekly to rent this particular item, but they can do this, and they do not have to disclose it.

It was so bad that in committee, what did we do? We said, well, at least they have to tell the consumer that they are going to charge them this damage waiver liability coverage in the contract. In my home State of California, we forbid this practice altogether. We forbid it altogether. It is wrong that they should shift this liability all to the consumer and the rent-to-own company takes no responsibility, charges whatever it wants, does not have to disclose it, and we just let this practice go on.

So what with this amendment to stop the practice altogether. I know that it seems that we cannot say much more about the bad practices. Why would we preempt the States from taking the opportunity to fix what is wrong? We do not need to come over the top with some Federal legislation that would then preempt them from doing it the way they want to do it.

This business about saying that we are helping the States and we are helping the consumer, we are not preempting them, is absolutely misleading the Members of Congress about what this is all about. If we really want to help the States, allow them to present public policy that will work in their States. For those States that do not have it, they will. Give them a chance. Do not preempt them. Do not create this so-called floor that my colleagues are talking about.

I have seen any one industry with so much that is wrong with it, and I sincerely believe that some of my colleagues who are trying to help the industry may have been duped. They did not know it was this bad. They did not understand that it really was preemption. They did not know about some of these abusive practices. They did not know about this, what do we call it, LDW. They did not know that people were being given contracts where they had no idea about the product, and most people, even if we tell them, if they want it, we are going to charge a person whatever amount they decide to charge them as a fee just in case they damage this equipment, they do not know they could say no, even if we put it in the bill. They just assume that if they do not do it they will not be able to get this desperately needed item that they are going after.

This amendment was made by the Committee on Rules. I could come to the floor and take it up. I do not know if my friends on the opposite side of the aisle are going to oppose it or if they are going to support it. It is just one other thing that I would like to point out and that is that if we do not do it the way they want to do it, as we wrap up today on this floor, all of the problems with rent-to-own.

I hope that they would just show a sign of support for the consumers and say we will give my colleagues this one, because we do not make any difference. It is still a bad bill. It is still a terrible bill with all of the preemption in it, with all of the abusive practices allowed, all of which we have talked about so much today.

Again, I would again thank my colleague on the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER), the chair of the Committee on the Judiciary. He would not come to this floor and oppose this legislation unless it was serious. He would not come to this floor and easily embrace those on the opposite side of the aisle that he is oftentimes in disagreement with unless he felt very strongly about it. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER) does not simply oppose his colleagues. He does not do that without giving serious thought to it. When he came here today and said this is a bad bill, something is wrong with this bill, I would hope that the Members on the opposite side of the aisle would respect the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary who, too, had this bill in the Committee on the Judiciary.

We are talking about two committees here today, the Committee on Financial Services, and it was in the Committee on the Judiciary.

This is not something that he is speculating; he is speculating as to which industry is the premier. They should be number one. We do not like the business. I am here because I know that this business is friends with, what letters the Congress of the United States got from what sector or section. The fact of the matter is our constituents should be premier. They should be number one. Because if we were going to err on the side of the constituents. If Members think for a moment there are bad things in this industry, as the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS) has said and yes, there are some bad things. He agreed to that, but then err on the side of the constituents. My colleague from Alabama said I do not like this business. That is an understatement. I am not here simply because I do not like the business. I am here because I have the power as one Member of Congress to go on the floor of Congress and say what is wrong with them. They are ripping off our constituents.

There is no disclosure, and we should not let them do it.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 6 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY).

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Chairman, before I address the Waters amendment, let me say a few things about the LaFalce amendment.

The LaFalce amendment runs counter to our economy and would sub-vert the free market. The amendment requires rent-to-own merchants all to offer the same cash price for their products, and these prices would be set by the Federal Reserve Board. I have to wonder why we have to impose such a duty on the Federal Reserve Board. The Federal Reserve is tasked with broad mandates to ensure the overall health of the economy through sound monetary policy. The last thing we need is for the Federal Reserve to be an appraiser and set prices for the rent-to-own industry.

Second, the amendment would harm competition in the rent-to-industry. I do not see anyone advocating that a car lease would have a cash price set by the Federal Reserve. Why? Because we know that a competitive car lease market benefits the consumer. When an industry all has the same base price for a product, that is known as collusion, not fairly setting a price on their own but being required to set it at their competition’s level, that is illegal. When airlines set their ticket prices, it is legal. When they put such a practice in a rent-to-own lease, it is also wrong. I think that my colleagues should join me in support of the free market and oppose the LaFalce amendment.

Mr. Chairman, now let me speak to the Waters amendment, which I also oppose. My colleague from California has here an amendment that would re-to care for the merchandise that they received through a rental purchase agreement. The agreement would effectively preempt contract law that is already in place and established in 49 States. In effect the merchant, who is not responsible for the property, would be responsible for the damage done to it. This amendment would take away any responsibility for the consumer to care for the product that they are renting. Does anyone know of any agreement in which the holder of a rental piece of property is not responsible for the damage that they do to it while it is in their possession?

I believe the amendment would effectively kill the industry; and in these slow economic times, I do not think we should be looking to eliminate more jobs. The rental purchase industry is a credible option for many Americans who would not otherwise have the opportunity to obtain the products that they need.

Personally, I learned to play the violin on a rent-to-own violin. It provided an enormous amount of joy in my life because my folks could not afford to buy me a violin when I was in grade school. They did a rent-to-purchase agreement. There are kids all over the Nation who do this.

Our mission in Congress should be to increase opportunities for people, not to limit consumer opportunities. Let me be clear on another point. Because of an amendment from the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. Jones), the bill allows merchants to include liability damage waivers as part of the rental purchase contracts only after disclosing to the consumer that they need not purchase this coverage in order to enter into the rental purchase agreement itself. The bill is clear that the consumer has been given the choice, and we need to support the choice by voting against the Waters amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, one thing I would like to point out. I have great respect for the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. Sensenbrenner), who did speak against this legislation. I would point out to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Waters) that what the gentleman said was we do not need any Federal legislation regulating this industry. That is not what the gentlewoman (Ms. Waters) has said or what the gentleman from New York said, or what all of these consumer groups have said.

What they have said is we need to regulate this industry. There is certainly not disagreement among the opponents. I think some of the opponents want the present state of affairs where there is absolutely no regulation in a number of States to continue. There are others that want to put this industry out of business, and then there are those of us who believe, since this is a legitimate business, we may never go there as customers. There are a lot of stores I do not go in as a customer, but I do not try to close them down because 15 million Americans do go there. There are Members of this body who think if they do that they are crazy and we ought to protect them by stopping them from going in those stores.

I would say to the gentleman from New York (Mr. LaFalce) that I went in a store in Manhattan a few weeks ago. There were a lot of things in that store I cannot afford. I simply turned around and walked out because the price was not right. There are people that might want to pay that. There were many people paying that much for those items. I could not do it. I made a decision. People are free to come in and leave. People are free to make choices in America.

There does need to be some minimum protection for those customers. Whether this legislation passed or not, people are going to continue to go into rent-to-own stores. They are going to continue to operate in our States. When they do, I think they ought to be protected. And this legislation does not preempt any of the strong consumer protection laws that exist. It preempts none of them except the characterization as a credit sale, and we have been over and over that in those four States. It does that.

Now, let me talk about the amendment for a minute because this amendment is another example of we do not want to preempt, but here is an amendment that we want to use to preempt. It is a preemption agreement. It preempts the law of 49 States.

What the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Waters) has offered here is an amendment that would overturn the long-established contract law in 49 States and make the law of California the national standard. It would apply the law of California.

Right now in the legislation we have, what she is advocating is the law of California and once this passes, if it passes, will continue to be the law in California. But we will not put that law on the other 49 States because what California does, it says when there is a rent-to-own agreement or a rent-to-purchase agreement, or the consumer leases something, they cannot shift the liability for that property onto the customer except, and there is an exception, and I do not want to misrepresent it. There is a basic responsibility. If a customer deliberately causes damage to the item or it occurs due to the consumer's negligence, then the merchant can get his money back.

The gentlewoman and I agree on that. If somebody goes out and they rent a TV, they get home and they get mad at their wife and throw the TV at their wife or husband, they have to pay for the television. She and I agree that is the thing to do. But we do not agree if the husband or the wife rents the TV, the husband or the wife takes it home, the husband picks up the TV and throws it out the window, then I think the merchant ought not have to pay for that. She says no, no. That was not the customer, that was the husband of the customer.

I believe when something is rented and taken home, if the next door neighbor comes in and they destroy it, or the renter's son or daughter destroys it, the renter has it and it is destroyed, I think the renter ought to be responsible for that, and 49 States say they ought to be responsible for that.

I can tell Members, if I rent something to somebody and their dog chews it up or their wife breaks it, or the next door neighbor destroys it, or even somebody comes in and steals it from them, I do not feel like that is the merchant's responsibility. I feel it is the customer's responsibility. I happen to believe that.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. Heffley). The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Ms. Waters. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

been found to be gaming the system, corporations that put their pensioners at risk. People who were paying into their 401(k)s thought they had protected their future; but, in fact, they had been supporting their companies while the heads of those corporations, the members of those corporations were literally exercising their stock options and getting richer and richer.

Well, we can tell the American people that we really did not understand, that we really were not paying attention; but we cannot keep doing it. We cannot keep saying, oh, I made a mistake.

Right on the heels of this great debacle in America, we find ourselves confronted with predatory lenders that come in all stripes and sizes. We know that the pay-day lenders are on every corner in inner cities and little towns and now lined up outside of our American Army bases where they are luring people in to get these small loans. That is their scheme.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman’s time has expired.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I would respectfully request that I be allowed the time that has been interfered with by the Members on the floor who have not respected the Speaker’s gavel. The Speaker has taken up at least a minute of my time, and I would like to have it restored to me.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) is recognized for 30 additional seconds to conclude her remarks.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, the rent-to-own industry has come to this House, and they have gotten support to try and preempt States that have stronger consumer protection laws. We should not allow it to happen. It is unconscionable that we are allowing them to rip off the most vulnerable in our society with these rent-to-own contracts that are charging $500 and $900 for a $169 television, and on and on it goes.

We have the opportunity to do something about it today. I would ask that we allow this bill to be recommitted so that it can be fixed.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to seek time in opposition.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Alabama (Mr. BACHUS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BACHUS. Mr. Speaker, the body has just heard a lot of information. It was probably about equally divided between information that is not relevant to the issues of us and misinformation about the legislation. It is very hard in 5 minutes to rebut all of that.

First, let me say that this has nothing to do with WorldCom, Enron, and Quest. Those companies are not in the rent-to-own industry, so any confusion, I hope we dispel that right up front.

What the gentlewoman is talking about is the rent-to-own industry. It is the largest industry in America that is not regulated. The States are pretty much divided: one-third of them have no regulation, one-third of them have weak-to-moderate regulation, and one third of them have strong regulation.

What does it do? It leaves in place all consumer protection legislation at the State level, all. It leaves all those laws passed by the State legislature, all, and I will explain that, all of them in place. It simply has a floor. It requires certain things. If the State has a stronger law than that is applicable. If the State has a weaker provision, the Federal standard applies.

Today, over 40 States do not require that they put a price tag on a rent-to-own item. Every consumer group has condemned this. This legislation will require a price tag so the consumer knows what he is paying, what it is costing him.

In every State, in 46 States, the legislatures have looked at these transactions, and they have said that it is not a consumer credit sale. It is not a credit sale, it is a lease or a lease-purchase or a rent-to-own. It is not a credit sale.

But judges in three courts around the country have said, no, it is a credit sale. It is a consumer credit transaction, and we are going to apply all the Federal law that applies to those transactions to this. We are going to apply all the Federal laws that apply to those transactions, including an APR statement, a disclosure statement.

The FTC, in a fairly exhaustive study, looked at that, and the Federal Reserve and the FTC said that requiring for credit sales, when we apply these APR statements and these disclosure statements and they have said that it is not a consumer credit sale. It is not a credit sale, it is a lease or a lease-purchase or a rent-to-own. It is not a credit sale.

This legislation does change the law in Wisconsin, New Jersey, and one other State, Vermont. It changes it in those three States by saying that it is not a credit sale. It does not repeal any law that the legislatures passed. It does invalidate a judge-made law in those States. But in no case, in no case other than in those four States, three or four States, does it make any change in the law.

Furthermore, Mr. Speaker, and I have said that repeatedly during this debate, there is nothing in this legislation that prevents a State from passing any law that they want to pass to ban these sales, except to mischaracterize it as a consumer credit transaction. These people are going in and they are renting property, that is what they say, and they do not think that they are applying for credit and regulations should not apply to them.

The gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) has asked us to really apply the law of four States to the law of 46 States. I say, resist this motion to recommit and let us get on with protecting the 15 million Americans that use these rent-to-own transactions. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit. The question was taken; and the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 9 of rule X, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for any electronic vote on the question of passage.

This will be a 15-minute vote followed by a 5-minute vote.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were 190 ayes, 227 noes, not voting, 15 as follows:

[Roll No. 394]
The result of the vote was announced as above recorded. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES ON H.R. 3295, HELP AMERICA VOTE ACT OF 2001

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct the conferees on the Help America Vote Act, H.R. 3295.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk reads as follows:

Ms. WATERS moves that the managers on the part of the House at the conference on H.R. 3295, the election reform legislation, be instructed to take such actions as may be appropriate to ensure that a conference report is filed on the bill prior to October 1, 2002.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Ms. WATERS) will be recognized for 30 minutes and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Ms. WATERS).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

This motion instructs the conferees on H.R. 3295, the election reform legislation, to complete their work and file a conference report prior to October 1, 2002. Mr. Speaker, it has been almost 2 years since the 2000 Presidential election, an election that created a crisis of confidence in our Nation's election system. It has been more than 9 months since the House of Representatives passed the Help America Vote Act, H.R. 3295. It has been more than 5 months since the Senate passed its version of the election reform legislation, S. 565, the Martin Luther King, Jr. Equal Protection of Voting Rights Act of 2002 by a vote of 99 to 1. Yet the conferees still have not completed their work.

The 2000 Presidential election lost between 500,000 and 1.2 million votes because of faulty machines, confusing ballot designs and questions, reported voter intimidation, and other human and mechanical impediments to the voting process. According to the United States Elections Project pollination survey, 2.8 percent of the 40 million voters who did not vote in 2000 stated they did not vote because of problems with polling place operations such as long lines and inconvenient hours or locations. Many of those who did vote in 2000 found themselves wondering whether their vote was counted and whether they actually voted for the candidate of their choice. It is already begun for us to observe similar problems in the 2002 primary election in several States, not to mention Florida one more time.

Mr. Speaker, in February of 2001, because of all of this, House Democratic leader Richard Gephardt asked me to lead the Democratic Caucus Special Committee on Election Reform. The committee was given the responsibility to travel throughout America and examine our Nation's voting practices and equipment. Over a 6-month period of time, this committee held six public-filled hearings in Philadelphia, San Antonio, Chicago, Jacksonville, Cleveland, and Los Angeles. We heard from election experts and hundreds of voters about what is wrong with our election system. It was brought to my attention by the outpouring of interest and support we received from our Nation's voters. Our committee released a comprehensive report on November 7, 2001, the 5th anniversary of the 2000 election debacle. The comprehensive report, entitled Revitalizing our Nation's Election System, set forth targeted minimal standards for Federal elections in order to guarantee that every vote will count. This report became part of the foundation for H.R. 3295, the Help America Vote Act of 2001.

Mr. Speaker, not only did Leader GEPHARDT appoint me to lead the Democratic Caucus Special Committee on Election Reform, many other committees around this country were working to try to find out what went wrong, what is wrong with our election system, what is it we have not paid attention to, what caused us to get to the point of such dysfunction in that election. The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights held hearings. There was a Carter-Ford Commission, and then, of course, this legislation was taken up by the Congress of the United States. We agree that there should be an overwhelming vote of 362 to 63. You represent the House of Representatives on December 12, 2001, by an overwhelming vote of 362 to 63. You can see, Mr. Speaker, it is time for us to do something. It is time for the conferees to act. We need to get this conference report done and reported out.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I rise in support of the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) motion to instruct, the one offered by the distinguished Member. I want to thank her for offering the motion.

I believe that the conferees, Mr. Speaker, on the election reform bill are within sight of an agreement that will bring critically needed assistance to improve elections in the United States, and I believe this motion to instruct will have a positive effect of reconciling the conferees on both sides of the aisle that reasonable negotiations are critical to getting this conference report done in the very near future. It is not that we need reminding, but I think this helps. We simply cannot afford to deadlock this conference because either side makes unrealistic demands at the last minute.

Let us talk for a minute about what both sides agree on, and I think it is important to note. We agree that we should authorize substantial sums of Federal dollars to modernize election systems in the next few years. We agree that obsolete voting systems like punch cards and lever machines should be replaced as rapidly as possible. We agree that voters in all States should have their rights protected by imposing basic requirements. We agree that those requirements should include guaranteed access to voting machines and ensure ballot access and secrecy for those who have a form of a disability. We agree that they should guarantee a voter's right to review his or her ballot to correct errors before that ballot is cast. We agree that they should guarantee a right to provisional ballots so no voter is turned away from the polls in the United States. We agree that there should be an election assistance commission to help States comply with these requirements. We agree that there should be strong enforcement by the Department of Justice to ensure that these provisions are fully complied with as the law of the land. We agree there should be research and pilot programs to develop and test new technologies to improve our voting systems.

We also agree, Mr. Speaker, there should be programs to encourage both college and high school students across America to volunteer as poll workers or assistants where local election officials need them on a nonpartisan basis. We agree the rights of military and overseas voters should be protected and enhanced.

In addition to taking steps to make it easier to vote, we have agreed that steps must be taken to make it harder to cheat.

Leaders on both sides of the Capitol stand behind the antifraud provisions passed overwhelmingly by their prospective Houses. I am confident that these provisions to improve the integrity of our political process, along with the many other requirements we all agree upon should be imposed, will be included in a final package.

There are some who doubt that agreement can be reached. They say judgments have been made by some and that a partisan issue for the 2002 elections may be more valuable than the improvements in the process that would be achieved by this bill, and shame on anybody on either side of the aisle or anybody across the country that would want to politicize this.

I believe the basic core of this institution on both sides of the aisle and the basic core of advocacy groups across the Nation want to produce a product, and I know the conferrees also do.

I reject the analysis that has been made that this will be held up because of an issue versus a product that is good for people. I know that we can set aside partisanship and get this bill passed, and we must. I want to take this opportunity to praise the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), the ranking member on the Committee on House Administration.

I want to also praise members of the conference committee, Senators DODD, MCCONNELL, BOND, SCHUMER, the input of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS), and on our side of the aisle, members of the Committee on House Administration that produced this product and other conferrees, including the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. BLUNT) who has been extremely helpful.

I want to say something about the process for a little bit. There was debate on a select committee which I did not think the idea, it was meant to mutually on a bipartisan basis, and after the give-and-take and public debate over the issue, the bill and the idea came to our committee, frankly, from the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) to have the Help America Vote Act.

We diligently worked on it. Despite campaign finance reform, despite anthrax in the buildings, we continued to work on it. Why does it take so long? It is a complex bill that is going to have gotamifications down the road, and it needed to be intensely worked on. It is a bill that I believe we can be proud of.

Without the help and assistance of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), we would not be close to agreement; and I count on the gentleman's continued help and assistance to ensure that this bill is enacted before the end of the year.

Throughout the discussions, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) has insisted that we focus on the top priorities, such as getting this bill done as soon as possible so States can start to plan for the 2004 elections. Both sides of the aisle recognize the importance of getting money out to local and State officials as rapidly as possible without a time-consuming and burdensome Federal bureaucracy getting in the way. We understand that there is no single issue that can be allowed to prevent this bill from passing. We are continuing to communicate and talk.

I also thank all of the groups who have encouraged and supported our efforts to get this bill passed, including the National Federation of the Blind, the National Association of Secretaries of State, the National Association of Counties, the National Association of Clerks and Recorders, the Election Center, and the advocacy groups that are our theaters with disabilities, civil rights and all of the other groups across this country that have had hearings and made input into the system.

There is much work left to be done, and I know we are running out of time, but I believe we can meet that challenge. I look forward to being on the floor in the near future and enacting a bill with broad bipartisan support, a bill that makes it easier to vote and harder to cheat, a bill that would demonstrate to all Americans that this Congress can put aside partisanship and improve the election process for all of our citizens.

There is a lot of talk across the country, and knowing the rules of the House, we will just say nothing is going up and down the hallways and coming back here and there. Let me say on this particular issue, we want to make sure that all the bodies of the Congress work together and enact something that is going to be the road for generations, something to be proud of and something which ensures integrity in our system.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) for yielding me this time, and for her fashion that has been extraordinary since November 2000 working on this issue. I also want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON), the chairwoman of the Democratic Caucus of the House, and the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LANGEVIN) whom I mentioned, who has tirelessly championed the cause of reform, as has the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS), the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) and the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON).

As chairwoman of the Democratic Caucus Social, Civil, and Election Reform, of which I was a member, the gentlewoman from California held hearings all over this country to learn what ails our election system. Many of the recommendations of her committee are included in the bill that was drafted.

As last week's primary in Florida confirms, the problems of the 2000 election will not go away until the Congress and the States enact meaningful national standards and offer States and local authorities the resources to improve their election infrastructure.

Mr. Speaker, I have said not too long ago on this legislation, and they have. But frankly, thanks in large measure to my indefatigable colleague from Ohio, we have made the progress that we have. We are closer than ever to enacting the most comprehensive major elections reforms since the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) has been an unswerving advocate of reform, a strong proponent of the provisions that he believes are important to be in this bill; and frankly, expressing concerns about those provisions he thinks ought not be in the bill, but always focused on passing legislation that will assist the States and assist our voters in making our democracy even more perfect.

He has been an advocate of reform that will require States to offer provisional ballots to all registrants, for one reason or another, is not properly included on the rolls; reform that will require States to maintain statewide computerized registration lists to ensure the most accurate, up-to-date rolls and minimize the number of voters who are incorrectly removed from voters' rolls; reforms that will reward States for retiring obsolete voting machines, especially the notorious punch card machines and their dangling chads, that prompted this Congress to act in the first place. And I might add that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and others have brought to our attention as well the problems that the lever machines cause because of the unavailability of parts to repair those particular machines.

This bill includes reforms that require voting systems to be accessible for individuals with disabilities, a cause that the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN) has been...
Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN).

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I first want to commend the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and, of course, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for offering this motion to instruct today and for their leadership on this very important issue. I also want to echo the comments of the gentleman from Maryland and thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and our hard work on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, as we enter the closing days of the 107th Congress, the House faces a number of legislative initiatives that we would like to complete. While many of these are necessary to keep our government running and to protect the American people, we must not forget our responsibility to protect the fundamental right to vote. The election debacle of November 2000 was not an isolated incident. Last week's primary in Florida demonstrated that we still have serious problems with the administration of our election systems.

I know that many States, including Rhode Island, have been at the forefront in order to initiate substantial election reforms but are merely waiting for the Federal Government to issue guidelines and provide funding. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) have been instrumental in crafting H.R. 3295 which passed the House with strong bipartisan support.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the Waters motion to instruct. Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the motion to instruct election reform conferences being offered today by the gentlemen from California (Ms. WATERS) for her leadership and his chairmanship of this committee, we would not be as far along as we are.

At the urging of the chairman of the Committee on House Administration, as well as the distinguished gentleman from Connecticut, Senator Dodd, Members will be happy to know that the principal conference members and their staffs have been meeting diligently long hours to resolve the outstanding issues that remain.

Frankly, Mr. Speaker, at the beginning everyone sort of circled everyone; but I can assure Members there was honest, open, positive discussion occurring.

Motions to instruct are often intended to urge conference members to head back and they may not want. This motion directs us to move in a direction we want to move. I thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) for her leadership and for this motion. I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) for his commitment to the passage of this legislation. America will be a better place for this legislation having been adopted.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) for his comments and his integrity and sincerity on this issue.

I am a bit put out that in this same body where all of us stood with former Vice President Gore presiding, all of us that were here on that day to say that an election had been free and fair, are somewhere now scattered throughout the Nation, and I recognize that Members have other agendas, but I am alarmed that this room is not full.
Elections are the foundation of our representation. Representation is the foundation of our democracy. Thus, we must never find ourselves again questioning the methods by which we choose our leaders. I say, if the House can create a Department of Homeland Security, then the election reform conference committee can certainly reach an agreement in a year.

Mr. Speaker, as I was walking over to the Capitol this afternoon to speak in support of the gentlewoman from California’s motion, I was trying to think of how many times I have spoken out for election reform. Quite frankly, I cannot remember; but I know it is too many times.

Too many times have the American people’s cries for fairness and democracy in our election system gone unanswered. Too many days have passed by since our last Federal election left former President Jimmy Carter proclaiming, “if the Carter Center were to grade the election system, it would fail.” Too many opportunities have passed when Congress has gone home early for the week before assuring Americans that their votes will always count. Before long, we will be saying, “if the American people were to grade the election system, it would fail.” Too many elections occurred while Americans continue to vote on an election system that we know is broken. That is a notion that I am not willing to even consider and neither are the American people. If we fail to act, it is an outrage.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY).

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I join together on the floor today with my colleagues from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) because I too have spoken at each of our occasions here on the floor, with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOVER) and others in urging passage of this important legislation.

What happened in Florida’s primary election this year is an example of exactly why we need to complete this conference as soon as possible. The Florida legislature passed legislation that outlawed punch cards, included new technology, called for improved election management practices and policies and introduced a statewide computerized registration system. The State was not afraid to spend money to improve the election system. They set aside $32 million to improve the way elections were run. The counties responded with approximately an additional $50 million of local money designed to complement this statewide initiative. It is very difficult for anyone to argue that Florida was not committed to changing the way elections were run in their State. In fact, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) and his staff spent the last 2 years studying elections across the country, talking to election officials and other experts in the field. Based on what they learned, Florida spent more money on new voting equipment than any other State in the country during the last 2 years. They also made significant improvements in election management policy, including the introduction of provisional voting, second-chance voting, definitions of what constitutes a vote, and other improvements.

So what happened in Florida? Sixty-seven counties in Florida comprise our State. We heard about major problems in two counties, Dade and Broward. For those who tried to lay the blame at Governor Bush’s feet, it is worth noting that the officials actually responsible for running those elections in these two counties are Democrats. The good news is that the overwhelming majority of Florida counties got it right. In addition to implementing new legislative districts, they changed the way they keep track of voter registration records, introduced new voting technology, they trained poll workers and educated voters on how this technology works.

Let me remind Members of my home county, Palm Beach County, where our supervisor of elections, Teresa LePore, who was much criticized during the 2000 election, with every last bit of energy, decided to take the new voting technology to virtually every group that would have her. She went to Kiwanis, she went to Rotary, she went to synagogues, she went to mosques. She actually went to churches and displayed the new touch screen voting technology. She trained her workers. She educated her workers and her poll workers and her deputy. She actually had mock elections outside of public notice at the precinct. They even went to the Committee on House Administration. They even went to the House Administration Committee. In fact, we had a 98.5 percent success rate in Palm Beach County. The process worked.

In the 2000 election, Florida was not able to execute what happened in Dade and Broward. I was exercised that not every vote counted in the 2000 election, and I am convinced that some people should have been more vocal and vociferous because of what happened in Dade and Broward.

The gentleman from Ohio’s staff of the Committee on House Administration on the fraud in the 2000 election. Mr. HASTINGS, as I do others in the House, urge the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. BROWN) and others who have also been vociferous in wanting to improve the election system not only in our home State but in every State of the Union. This is critical, it is timely, it is urgent; and I urge the conference to report out the bill.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for all the work he did on the special committee on reform. He supported it 100 percent.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON).

Ms. BERNICE JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the motion to instruct conferees on election reform. Mr. Speaker, the most fundamental issue facing all of us during this Congress is restoring the public’s faith in democracy. To restore that faith in democracy, we must make sure that every vote cast is counted. Equal protection of voting rights laws requires an electoral system in which all Americans are able to register as voters, remain on the rolls once registered, and vote free from the harassment. Ballots must not be misleading. And, again, every vote must count.

In the 2000 election, Florida was not the only State where American citizens were denied the full exercise of their constitutional franchise. It happened all over this Nation. Moreover, most of those excluded from democracy were Americans of color. That is why election reform has been the number one legislative priority of the Congressional Black Caucus. We will not be silenced on this issue. American citizens have had this call. This is not, however, a black issue or a white issue or a brown issue. It is an American issue. It is a red, white, and blue issue. The survival of our democracy depends on the accuracy and integrity of our election system. Just last week, we received yet another wake-up call from the Sunshine State reminding us that the time for election reform is now and that we must do whatever it takes to pass this election reform bill immediately.

I would like to thank Senator Dodd, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Conyers), the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Hoyer), the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ney) and Senator Dodd have spent working very closely with, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Waters), and all the others, most especially the African American delegation from Florida, for bringing the information and offering to be available to answer any questions at any time. I know that this election reform conference committee has been working diligently and they have come close to a compromise on this issue. I hope, Mr. Speaker, that soon, before we recess this conference report will come out for us to vote on in an acceptable manner.

Now that we have come so close to compromise and now that the next round of Federal elections is right upon us, even though it probably will not affect it, the price for not passing election reform during this Congress is far too high. It is imperative that the conference committee continue its hard work and come to an agreement before the end of this month. We cannot afford to have another opportunity slip away.

I know, Mr. Speaker, how many hours the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Hoyer) and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ney) and Senator Dodd have spent working on this issue. I have talked to someone every day on it. It is time for us to finalize this conference report and bring it forth.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Shaw).

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman yield?

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman to please repeat the number of people that failed to show up at the Broward County polls that were workers that were allegedly hired by the Broward County Supervisor of Elections. Was it 150?

Mr. SHAW. One hundred fifty people.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, this is something I wanted to elaborate on. I think the gentleman has done a great job on it. The county elects their own supervisor who is charged and mandated with the task of carrying out the elections.

Mr. SHAW. The gentleman is correct. In Dade County, it is appointed by the Dade County Commission, so it is different. It is the way the charter is set up.

Mr. FOLEY. If the gentleman will yield further, one other thing I would like to elaborate on is the Secretary of State, Jim Smith, who has recently been appointed, warned the Democratic Party officials about problems in Broward County, brought it to their attention. The State offered resources, the State tried to help, and the Broward County elected supervisor rejected all efforts to assist in the election.

This is different. Things were done, attempts were made to try to help during this critical and important election following 2000. All offers were rebuffed. I think that official bears sole, complete responsibility for the election outcome in Broward County, and Dade County has the same problem to address.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would like to conclude by saying that the Governor and State officials in Florida are doing everything possible. Our County Commission in Broward County is doing everything possible to be sure they get a full count in Broward County.

Interestingly enough, all but one of our County Commissioners is a Democrat, the Voter Registrar is a Democrat, Broward County will deliver a big Democrat vote for the Democrat nominee for Governor, and the Republican Governor, Jeb Bush, is doing everything in his power to assure that all the people, Democrats and Republicans in Broward County, get a fair count this time, that they do not go through the fiasco that we went through last Tuesday.

So I would like to just conclude with that, that I wish our Registrar all the best on November 5. It is going to be close I know, but I think with all the assistance we are getting that the Registrar will have a great day and a great evening, and we will end up all being very proud of what is going to happen in Broward County. Republicans and Democrats want to be sure every vote gets counted.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON).

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time, and especially thank her for bringing this motion to instruct to the floor so we will not be put in the shameful position of perhaps going home again, we cannot go home again, without doing something about this bill.

Virtually every primary is over. We are 2 years past the worst election crisis in the United States of America. We have heard defense of Florida, we have heard partisan comments about the counties involved. The point of crisis has shifted from the States to the Congress of the United States.

We are sitting here with our thumbs in our mouths, knowing full well that Florida and every State of the Union cannot do it by themselves. That is really all Florida says to me. Florida is like a canary in the coal mine. Just as it was in the presidential election, we never learned from the fiasco of the 2000 election that we have broken election systems throughout the United States of America.

Florida redux is shameful, to be sure; to have the same crisis emerge in similar counties is shameful, to be sure. But we are going to have that over and over again unless we do our job.

Why name the President of the United States? Because he is the President of the United States, and it was his election that is at stake. Because he has the bully pulpit, that is why. Because he ought to step up and say to the conference committee what the gentlewoman from California is saying: ‘Hey, shake it loose so we don’t do it again.’ Yes, it is his responsibility, and it is especially our responsibility.

It is shameful that the NAACP has to go retail. It has had to go county by county to just settle a suit there on such basics as, I remember one of the provisions where you have to prove an alternative way to vote in case you are challenged at the polls? Really? In 2002 we are just saying that?

In Virginia, I have read thousands of different things that have happened county by county as counties go by themselves trying to fix their system in Virginia. One county that had 600 overvotes was reduced to one last year. How many overvotes must there have been throughout the United States that nobody even knows about now because they have not been dealt with?

If you want to know what we have to do with Florida, it is known as congressional leadership, Federal leadership, and it is known as the right to vote. And that buck, yes, I say to the gentlewoman, stops at the top, and we are the top of that pyramid.

We did not know until Florida. My friends, not until then. That is new to us, we are responsible. Any disagreement, as I have heard there is on voter ID, I just want to say right here is the most shameful, the most shameful cause of disagreement. The notion about just how much ID you ought to have before you vote, will you yourself can cast your vote, exercise your right to vote? It is a chilling reminder of years past.

I want to say right up front: this is a civil rights issue, only this time everybody understands the civil rights is not for African Americans alone. In Florida we saw people of all races and backgrounds, all educational backgrounds, got caught in what African Americans have been caught in for decades.

Let us free the American people and let them all vote. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 4 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentlewoman and gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to thank the gentlewoman from California for this motion to instruct and for her leadership in chairing the Election Reform Task Force, which I had the pleasure of joining her on in several cities throughout the Nation. This is an important motion to instruct, but it is also an important conference.

I would like to add my appreciation to the gentlewoman from Ohio (ChairmanNEY) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), who work so well together, will look at the idea of a national ID, will also provide training dollars which are so desperately needed.

I have to go home this weekend and test the machine. Others have tested it, as I have encouraged them to do, but I have to test it, because there is a problem. I believe this legislation has the ability to bring consistency and bring to people the privilege of voting that the Constitution and citizenship bestows upon them.

I hope that the leadership of this House and the gentleman from Ohio (ChairmanNEY) and the ranking member, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER), who work so well together, will look at the idea of a national ID, that we happen to have avoided in the immigration legislation and even to a certain extent in Homeland Security, that there is not a chilling effect, if you will, for people who come to the polls to vote, that you are able to vote, that we have standards, that we have uniform voting procedures, that we have requirements, that we have Federal oversight, but we do not chill people from voting, as did happen to all people in the last election.

Disabled people were prohibited from voting in particular areas, and Florida comes to mind. This legislation opens the doors to disabled persons.

I hope we can work through the question of purging, though I think there is a great response to the purging question. What that means is people being thrown off the rolls and not knowing that they have been thrown off the roles and legitimately wanting to cast their vote.

This is a civil rights question, but it is an American question, and I believe the members of the conference, including the chairman and ranking member and the leadership in the other body, if I might add, the chairman of the Committee on Rules in the other body, all have considered this an important challenge, and I hope by October 1st we will finish our work and finish it together and have a bill, not for partisanship, but for all Americans, to protect the civil rights of all Americans.

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank my esteemed colleague, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS), for bringing this to our attention. I have a very short comment to make. Number one, it is time, regarding the instructions she has given to the conferees, it is time we had fair voting in Florida. It is time we do not depend on the machine. We need leadership. The Governor of Florida, the Dade County Elections Commission, none of them have acted in good faith. We need this. We need the Federal Government to come in and say, look, we want a fair election. It is time for one. We cannot pass the buck. Even with the machines, if we do not have the proper leadership to direct this, it cannot run in the right way.

We know that Florida has been cheated, we know that this country has been cheated, so I will not stand here and say everything's fine anywhere. We need this instruction that the good Congresswoman has passed on to the conferees. It is time that they listen for once and pass this and make sense when they do it and not look for some bipartisan kind of thing that is going to please everybody. Please the American public. Please the people who work so hard for the vote. Please the people who died for the vote. So I make no amends for any of them.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this Motion to instruct the Election Reform Conference to produce a Conference Report before October 1, 2002, and I commend my good friend Congresswoman MAXINE WATERS for offering it.

Mr. Speaker, election reform is long overdue. How many more election day catastrophes, like last week's voting in Florida, will be required for this Congress to get the message that our people need a real election reform bill and they need it now?! I don't have the time to detail all of the problems that occurred voting in South Florida, but the problems were extremely serious.

I have read the same newspaper and magazine accounts that all of you have read suggesting that the election reform conferences have not yet been able to work out their differences and make a real election reform bill, it is time to die for this Session of Congress. Mr. Speaker, this outcome is absolutely unacceptable. This Congress will have failed the American people if it does not pass a strong election reform Conference Report, and send it to the President for his signature before this Session ends.

Mr. Speaker, last week's voting revealed that the many problems that plagued the 2000 Presidential election in South Florida are continuing, I didn't just hear about the problems from my constituents, I experienced some of the problems myself.

Miami-Dade County allowed early voting in advance of the September 10th primary. Yet when I stopped by a library branch in my precinct to cast my ballot, I was delayed from voting for more than 30 minutes because the only computer available was not working and the election officials on duty said that they couldn't verify that I was an eligible voter! Even though I presented my driver's license, my new voter registration card and other photo identification, I still was not allowed to vote for over thirty minutes while poll workers attempted to check Election Department records to verify my eligibility.

While these poll workers tried to follow new Miami-Dade procedures to contact the main elections office in the case of a computer glitch, they were unable to contact the Elections Supervisor to verify my eligibility. During this thirty minute period, I saw at least two voters who wanted to vote early leave the polling place without voting.

As all of you know, I'm not easily deterred, especially when my rights are being threatened, so even though I was extremely unhappy with the Department's inability to verify my eligibility during this delay, I did not leave the polling place. Instead, I had my District Office contact the County Elections Supervisor and his staff. While I did not speak with the Election Supervisor himself, I understand that Elections Department staff advised the Elections Supervisor checked the department's records personally to verify my eligibility, and therefore I was told which absentee ballot I should be given.

Mr. Speaker, if a Senior Member of Congress with a long history of voting in each election, and someone who knows how to assert herself, had this type of problem when trying to vote, all of us know the problems that new or infrequent voters, or those voters who speak a different language such as Haitians, are facing.

Mr. Speaker, we can and must do better than this. We need to fund the best election technology available and make it available on an equal basis to all of our communities. Yet, Mr. Speaker, we need more than just new and fancy machines. We need to ensure that our poll workers are properly trained in how to operate those machines, and in election law and procedure. We must continue our commitment to seeing to it that all of our people have an equal chance to vote and to have their vote counted. In short, Mr. Speaker, our elections officials must do more to make real election reform a reality for all of our people.

And then the poll workers were told which absentee ballot I should be given. Mr. Speaker, I, a Senior Member of Congress, who has served for more than 30 years, who has cast a ballot in every election, was told which absentee ballot I should be given.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the remaining time.

Elections are the heart of our democracy. We cannot afford to allow another Federal election to come and go without addressing the myriad problems in our election system. We must complete action on election reform legislation. We must complete it before we adjourn for the November election. It is time for Congress to assure the American people that every vote will count in the United States of America.

We do this for all of America, but African Americans are particularly sensitive on this subject, we fought hard for the right to vote. I can tell my colleagues in that election where we saw a database identifying so-called felons where people who had never been arrested in their lives found themselves on that list, where people could not cast their vote because they could not find their names on the rolls, it was reflections of yesteryear by a different name. We have our forefathers and foremothers who were made to pay poll taxes, who were intimidated, who were forced to have to read the Constitution in order to prove their literacy. We cannot afford to have America not fix this election system that is obviously broken and has been demonstrated to be such.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support this motion and tell the conferees to complete their work before October 1.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion.

There was no objection. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct the conferees to complete their work before October 1. Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. FRANK addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

A POLITICAL MISTAKE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I have for years advocated a moral and constitutional approach to our foreign policy.
This has been done in the sincerest belief that a policy of peace, trade, and friendship with all nations is far superior in all respects to a policy of war, protectionism, and confrontation. But in the Congress I find, with regards to foreign affairs, no interest in following the precepts of the Constitution and the advice of our early Presidents.

Interventionism, internationalism, inflationism, protectionism, jingoism and bellicosity are much more popular in our Nation’s capital than a policy of restraint.

I have heard all the arguments on why we must immediately invade and occupy Iraq and have observed that there are only a few hardy souls left in the Congress who are trying to stop this needless, senseless, and dangerous war. They have adequately refuted every one of the excuses for this war of aggression; but, obviously, either no one listens, or the unspoken motives for this invasion silence those tempted to dissent.

But the tragic and most irresponsible excuse for the war rhetoric is now emerging in the political discourse. We now hear rumbles that the vote is all about politics, the November elections, and that the U.S. Congress, that is, the main concern is political power.

Can one imagine delaying the declaration of war against Japan after Pearl Harbor for political reasons? Can one imagine forcing a vote on the issue of war before an election for political gain? Can anyone believe there are those who would foment war rhetoric for political gain at the expense of those who are called to fight and might even die if the war does not go as planned?

I do not want to believe it is possible, but rumors are rampant that looking weak on the war issue is considered to be unpatriotic and a risky political position in coming November elections. Taking pleasure in the fact that this might place many politicians in a difficult position is a sobering thought indeed.

There is a bit of irony over all of this political posturing on a vote to condone a war of aggression and force some Members into a tough vote. Guess what, contrary to conventional wisdom, war is never politically beneficial to the politicians who promote it. Pearl Harbor and Roosevelt were reelected by promising to stay out of war. Remember, the party in power during the Korean War was routed in 1952 by a general who promised to stop the bloodshed. Vietnam, which started with overwhelming support and hype and jingoistic fervor, ended President Johnson’s political career in disgrace and humiliation. The most significant plight on the short term of President Kennedy was his effort at regime change in Cuba and the fate he met at the Bay of Pigs. Even Persian Gulf War 1, thought at the time to be a tremendous victory, with its aftermath still lingering, did not serve President Bush, Sr.’s reelection efforts in 1992.

War is not politically beneficial for two reasons: innocent people die, and the economy is always damaged. These two things, after the dust settles from the hype and the propaganda, always make the peace look better. The euphoria associated with the dreams of grandiose and painless victories is replaced by the stark reality of death, destruction, and economic pain. Instead of euphoria, we end up with heartache as we did after Vietnam, Korea, Vietnam, Somalia, and Lebanon.

Since no one wants to hear anymore of morality and constitutionality and justice, possibly some will listen to the politics of war, since that is what drives so many. A token victory at the polls this fall by using a vote on the war as a lever will be to little avail. It may not even work in the short run. Surely, history shows that war is never a winner, especially when the people who have to pay, fight, and die for it are not the ones who initiate the war; it was not even necessary and had nothing to do with national security or fighting for freedom, but was promoted by special interests who stood to gain from taking over a sovereign country.

Mr. Speaker, peace is always superior to war; it is a political winner.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. NORTON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear heretofore in the Extensions of Remarks.)

GROWING CONCERN OF CHILD MODELING ON THE INTERNET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to discuss an issue that is of prime importance, I hope, to many American families and their children; and it is as a member of the Congressional Caucus on Missing and Exploited Children that I rise today, because I have introduced legislation that deals with a growing concern of child modeling on the Internet.

What occurs is that young girls, 10, 12, 13 years old, are encouraged by their parents and aided and abetted by individuals to display themselves on the Internet for viewership, if you will, people who pay a fee, a monthly fee in order to view the site. I am not going to mention the names of the sites, because I do not want to encourage anybody to go, but to understand the gravity of the situation we are facing. The girls initially pose in not very suggestive positions on the Internet, but the pedophiles, they are often, the people that are paying $19 a month to view these sites are pedophiles. They are often people who are depraved and who are looking at 11- and 12-year-old girls, and they are e-mailing each other and saying, why do you not do this or pose like this. It is such a serious problem that I have designed legislation that I hope will answer some of the concerns.

Today on John Walsh’s show we talked for an hour about this very topic, and Mr. WALSH had on two mothers, two daughters, and two of the promoters of these Web sites in order for us all to hear from them why they thought this was an appropriate and legitimate act for their child to pursue. Sometimes they said it was to raise money for the child’s college, even though one of the girls on the show quit school and was now being homeschooled because she was ashamed and could not conduct the hard work of school because of her condition. Nonetheless, she would find time in her day to be a child model. What we heard was startling, that they would allow their child to be put out and into contact of people of such ill repute.

Now, again, I urge people to listen to what I am saying. I am not suggesting that young girls cannot be models, and I am not suggesting that there is not an appropriate place for young people to display their talents; but what we are finding on these particular Web sites, and it was first brought to my attention by a local NBC affiliate in Florida, Mr. WALSH had done an investigation on somebody who actually happened to live in my district and they went on to find these cases where the girl was posing. All I want to suggest to people is first, to my colleagues, look at the legislation.

There has been much written about this legislation in the mainstream media. There has been much discussed, in fact, on national radio shows about the topical issue and the legislation I have sponsored. We hope we can generate the debate in order to have parents hear our voices on what I hope is a clarion call for them to be very, very careful of what they subject their young children to.

If we look at almost every case of abduction, every case of rape, every instance where a child has gone missing,

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHHEY) is recognized for 5 minutes. (Mr. HINCHHEY addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

Mr. SHOWS addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I stand today in opposition to the President's efforts to launch an illegitimate first strike against Iraq. The President's war four years ago waged against thousands of American soldiers and Iraqi civilians, ignores international law, undermines our fight against terrorism, and may make average Americans less safe. Yet, the President pressures for an invasion.

It is true that Saddam Hussein is a dictator. He is a bad man, and the world would be better off without him. But the world will also be better off if the United States works within the scope of international institutions instead of launching an unprovoked first strike against Iraq.

America's greatest asset is our moral authority, not our military power. Attacking a sovereign country unprovoked foreshadows that authority completely.

It is true that Saddam has repeatedly violated United Nations resolutions, but it is also true that only the United Nations has the authority to enforce those resolutions. Furthermore, none of those resolutions call for regime change in Iraq, an often-stated goal of the President.

On top of all of that, a first strike invasion of Iraq could actually undermine America's vital interests in the Mideast and around the world. It is unfortunate but true that Iraq's neighbors mistrust the United States even more than they mistrust Saddam Hussein.

Invading Iraq could have drastic repercussions by energizing extremists looking to overthrow governments across the Mideast. Such an outcome is even more likely if Saddam Hussein responds to an invasion by retaliating against Israel. If he succeeds in killing Israelis and polarizing the Mideast, what then?

The President claims Iraq's weapons of mass destruction are more than can be justified for aggression. In America, we must hold ourselves to a higher standard. Those weapons programs are frightening, but policy must be based on fact, not fear.

It is believed that Saddam's nuclear weapons program was 95 percent destroyed by 1998, when the U.N. inspections were pulled out. There is no reason to think that a new round of weapons inspectors will not be just as effective. Meanwhile, President Bush has sent a message of his own by backing out of the ABM treaty, refusing to sign the Kyoto treaty, withdrawing the U.S.'s signature to the International Criminal Court treaty, and embracing the use of mini nukes.

Is it any wonder that other nations hesitate to support a first strike invasion when we in the United States ignore the same international standards that we accuse Saddam Hussein of disregarding? We must take a long, hard look at our own policies to ensure that we do not violate the same rules we expect others to follow.

As a Nation, it is our responsibility to live up to our own democratic ideals. We owe it to our children to exercise the full range of diplomatic options in Iraq so we can prevent a war that will cost thousands of lives while at the same time giving a boost to our real enemies: The terrorists who planned September 11.

War represents a failure of civilization. It is a last resort. America's strength is our commitment to moral action, and a government based on the rule of law. That law must never be silent, and our sensibilities must never be intimidated.

UNANSWERED QUESTIONS REGARDING ADMINISTRATION PLANS FOR IRAQ

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PUTNAM). Under a previous order of the House, Mr. DEFAZIO is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, today, before the Committee on Armed Services, Secretary Rumsfeld, who has made up his mind, said that the President has not yet made up his mind about war and an invasion and occupation of Iraq.

Now, when the Secretary was asked how he reconciled that with the rush to adopt a resolution authorizing the use of force here in the House if the President had not yet made up his mind and could not articulate the case, he really did not answer the question. To tell the truth, I was a bit put off by that, but that is a key question which needs to be answered.

On September 5, I sent the President a letter signed by 17 other Members of the United States House of Representatives. We were pleased that the President had recognized the authority of the Congress, the sole authority of the Congress for declarations of war and use and initiation of force, except in the immediate defense of the United States, as per the Constitution and the War Powers Act; but that we felt that the President had a number of very important questions to answer before Congress should even begin the debate on such a resolution.

I fear they are really putting the cart before the horse here. They want a resolution without making the case. The President gave an eloquent speech at the U.N. last week, but many of the things he talked about, the offenses of Saddam Hussein were in fact things that had happened during the Reagan administration, during the administration of Bush I, in fact, such as the horrible gassing of people within his own country and the U.S., aiding him in his war against Iran before we dropped our friendship and support of his horrible regime. Many of these things took place then.

They went on to make the case for the U.N. resolutions which have been violated. We agree there, that this is an odious individual. He is not worthy of leading any nation. He has gassed and killed his own people, promoted religious and ethnic strife, murdered all his potential political opponents. I wish he could be deported to another planet, but right now, he is in power in his country. Hopefully, some people in his country will find a way to overthrow him and him.

But the question for us in the United States Congress is, should we authorize the first ever preemptive war in the history of the United States, and what is the immediate and serious nature of the threat that would have us break from all previous history and all the precedents of international law? Those are the questions that are embodied in this letter.

Quite truthfully, thus far in both unclassified and classified briefings, and I cannot talk about what they did talk about in classified briefings, but I can tell Members what they do not talk about in classified briefings. They have not talked about anything in the classified briefings that we have not read in USA Today or heard on CNN, so they have yet to make an effective case that somehow we have surrendered from this reprehensible dictator in a mostly impoverished developing or Third World country to this incredible and immediate threat to the integrity of the United States of America.

They can find no links to al Qaeda, who is already a threat to this country. They are aggrieved that they did not then so-called ‘find’ Hussein from the United States of America. In fact, I would say that we are being distracted, as are many of our allies and friends, and not-so-good allies and friends around the world, from the pursuit of al Qaeda and wiping out that threat by propping up suddenly this new threat.

I think a lot of this, unfortunately, is probably left over from his father’s administration. Many of the foremost advocates of this preemptive war served in Bush’s father’s administration, and are aggrieved that they did not then so-called ‘find’ Hussein.

But the same problems that confronted Colin Powell then confront us now. Probably his military is not that significant; maybe, maybe not. Maybe there will not be a lot of casualties. Maybe this can be done without a lot of civilian casualties. Sure, we can work through all of that. But then what? Then what?

I heard one Senator say that we are going to rule Iraq. We are going to rule Iraq, a country of more than 60 million people with an unbelievably fractious history, in the middle of the most volatile region on Earth, with the problems with the Shi’as and the Sunnis and the Kurds and the Turks and all those other things, and we are going to rule Iraq?

They have to have not only an entrance strategy and a rationale for this war, they need an exit strategy that they have to do for American people and this Congress before they should receive any sort of authorization to do anything in that area.
when he turned them on the Iraqis. We were encouraging him. We did not like this bunch over in Iran, Ayatollah Khomeini and all that bunch. So we said, Hey, Saddam, go get him and we will give you some weapons, and we knew what he was going to do.

When this country decides they are going to take out a leader somewhere, one ought to look at history. There was a country called Iran, and the leader was a guy named Mossadegh. He had been elected by the people. He was the Prime Minister elected in Iran. The United States Government did not like him because his politics were kind of a little bit to the wrong direction, whatever that was. So they decided to take him out and install a king. They brought back the Shah of Iran and put him on the throne. So in 1979 things erupted there. Somebody said to me, Well, gee, Jim, we got away with 25 years of Iraq. Is that the kind of foreign policy this country wants to pursue? Do we want to say we are going to go to any country and we are going to take out whatever is there and put in our guy and then we will use him? The reason we do not like Saddam Hussein, it all has to do with oil, who has control of the oil. Mossadegh was talking about nationalizing. Saddam did. This is not an issue for us to do a regime change, simply on oil. We must be careful.

SEEKING PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PUTNAM). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I think that we all are in agreement that the world and the Iraqi people would be better off if Saddam Hussein were not in power, but I also think we all can agree on the fact that we would not be better off with a peaceful resolution to the current crisis and one which respects the rule of law and the role of the United Nations. That is why I rise tonight, Mr. Speaker, to urge this Congress and our country to renew our commitment to working with the United Nations and our friends and allies to advance peace and security in the Persian Gulf region. We need to act, but we do not have to rush to war. We have alternatives.

We have been told by President Bush and other members of the administration that we have to attack Iraq because our Nation is in imminent danger from Saddam Hussein. However, neither the administration nor any other member of the administration have been shown evidence of that or linking Saddam Hussein to 9-11. We have received no proof that Iraq has the means or intent to use weapons of mass destruction against us. We have not been told why the danger is greater today than it was a year or 2 ago or why we must rush to war rather than pursuing other options.

So tomorrow I will introduce a resolution offering a road map to such an alternative. This resolution emphasizes the importance of working through the United Nations to assure Iraq’s compliance with U.N. Security Council resolutions and cease-fire agreements and to advance a peaceful resolution throughout the region beginning with full, unfettered inspections.

During the 1990’s, United Nations inspections teams succeeded in destroying tons of Iraq’s attempts to obstruct their mission. They were on a search and destroy mission and they accomplished that. Today we need to renew that inspections process in the interest of our own security. We do not know the extent of Iraq’s possible development of weapons of mass destruction and thus the extent of risk to us. That is why we need inspections. The President has called on the United Nations to assume its responsibilities. In fact the United Nations was supposed to deal with just such international crises. So let us work with them to make that happen.

But still on the other hand, the administration and others call for a preemptive first strike against Iraq. The cost of such action would be enormous, starting with a grave risk to American servicemen and women and to Iraqi civilians who will be caught in the crossfire. A preemptive first strike would also seriously damage our relationship with friends and allies of whom we are strongly opposed to an assault. State men such as Kofi Annan and Nelson Mandela have beseeched us to turn away from this disastrous course. Many Middle Eastern countries that supported the United States in the Gulf War will not support this attack and warn of long-term catastrophic consequences.

Such a war carries enormous cost. The Wall Street Journal estimates that the cost may cost from $100 billion to $200 billion. When we have no proof that Iraq was tied to 9-11 and no proof that we are in imminent danger, why would we rush to spend $200 billion that could be invested in health care, education, housing, domestic security, and other vital needs here at home? Why are we rushing into a war with such a huge price tag for our foreign relations and our own budget when we have viable and many more effective alternatives? Why would we set such a devastating precedent?

There are what, eight known nuclear powers in the world? At least two of them, India and Pakistan, have long been on edge with each other. According to the doctrine of preemption, either of those countries could launch an attack because they are afraid of what the other might do. Is that the kind of world we want to live in? Is that the precedent that we want to take? We will be setting that. We will be setting a new standard.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, to urge this Congress and our country to renew our commitment to working with the United Nations and our friends and allies to advance peace and security in the Persian Gulf region. We need to act, but we do not have to rush to war. We have alternatives.

We have been told by President Bush and other members of the administration that we have to attack Iraq because our Nation is in imminent danger from Saddam Hussein. However, neither the administration nor any other member of the administration have been shown evidence of that or linking Saddam Hussein to 9-11. We have received no proof that Iraq has the means or intent to use weapons of mass destruction against us. We have not been told why the danger is greater today than it was a year or 2 ago or why we must rush to war rather than pursuing other options.

Is that the precedent that we want to take? We will be setting that. We will be setting a new standard.

President Bush laid out an axis of evil consisting of Iran, Iraq, and North Korea. Which dictator will be next?

Where does preemption end? So the resolution that I will introduce tomorrow resolves that the United States should work through the United Nations to seek a peaceful resolution to the crisis in Iraq through mechanisms such as inspection negotiation, and regional cooperation. We do not have to go to war. We still have alternatives. It is up to us to pursue them.

Mr. Speaker, I urge Members to co-sponsor my resolution and join us in taking this message to the American people.

PRESCRIPTION DRUGS FOR AMERICAN SENIORS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker’s announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, there is a lot that is important to the American people that is being lost in the current focus on the situation in Iraq and the administration’s plans for regime change and military invasion. And I want to spend this evening talking about one of those issues that is getting less attention than it deserves.

I am talking about the fact that in my home State of Maine and all across this country, seniors who need prescription drugs in many cases simply cannot afford to buy them. In my office, my district office in Maine, people are coming in all the time, calling on the phone or stopping into the office and basically saying, What can I possibly do? I can no longer afford my prescription drugs.

People who have a Social Security check each month of $300 to $1,200 can wind up with $400, $500 a month in prescription drug costs, and the math just does not work. They cannot do it. People are, in fact, giving up food in order to buy their medicine or giving up their medicine in order to pay the rent or buy food.

We have been dealing with this problem for years. Back in 1998 I introduced a bill that would provide a 30 percent discount to all Medicare beneficiaries and the cost of all of their prescription drugs at no significant cost to the Federal Government. But the pharmaceutical industry weighed in, lobbied heavily, described the plan as price controls even though it is one that is widely employed by other industrialized nations and nothing has happened on that front.

The Democratic Caucus year after year has proposed a Medicare prescription drug benefit. That is a benefit for Medicare beneficiaries operating in the way that part B of Medicare does, the way doctors, the expenses for physicians is covered, that is, seniors would pay a certain amount per month and get a significant portion of their expenses covered, both by the amount they pay and by contributions from general revenues. Well, that is what we thought ought to appear here.
But tonight I want to spend some time talking about what really goes on here in Washington, what really goes on out in the field, and why we do not have even a discount for Medicare beneficiaries or a Medicare benefit. And we may remember. It has been a long time since they met. And in one of the debates, one of the Presidental debates in the year 2000, President Bush said, I support a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

I knew what he meant. Lots of people in the press knew what he meant. But never in the past 2 years has the administration presented a plan for a Medicare prescription drug benefit. Not one.

Let us look at a little bit of what has been going on in the Congress and why we have not been able to accomplish what we should. Let us look for a moment at the last election cycle, 1999 to 2000. The pharmaceutical industry in that time period, according to the consumer group Public Citizen, spent $177 million lobbying Members of Congress and $20 million in campaign contributions. So that is $200 million that the pharmaceutical industry spent in those 2 years in order to try to get its way.

At the same time they employed in the year 2000, 625 lobbyists here in Washington. Think about it. There are only 335 Members of the Senate and the House put together, but the pharmaceutical industry hired 625 lobbyists to make sure that their views were well represented in the Congress.

But that is not the end of the story. In the same time period, that election cycle, the pharmaceutical industry was the largest interest group spending money on political ads, so-called issue ads, of any group in the country. They spent $50 million. And we can be sure, we can be sure based on their advertising so far in this cycle that they will far exceed that number.

Let us take a look at how these groups operate. The pharmaceutical industry not only has legions of professional lobbyists, but it is also funding what they call grass roots groups. A lot of us call this Astroturf lobbying because the grass is manufactured. And I want to call attention to a couple of those groups.

One group is the 60 Plus Association, which not so long ago did an ad in the Houston Chronicle thanking the majority whip, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY), for his work on a Medicaid prescription drug plan. And the advertisement of the 60 Plus Association, we need to know, is funded by the pharmaceutical industry. It sounds like a grass roots group, but it is not. It is funded by the pharmaceutical industry. Here is what the ad said. It said: “Results, not politics, for American seniors.” And it goes on and on about this particular public relations campaign, Mr. Speaker, is that 2 days after the House Republicans unveiled their prescription drug plan back in June, a plan that was backed by the pharmaceutical industry, pharmaceutical companies were among 21 donors paying $250,000 each for special treatment at a GOP fund-raising gala headed by President Bush.

That same week, a senior House Republican leadership aide was quoted in the newspaper as saying that Republicans are “working hard behind the scenes on behalf of PHARMA,” the industry association, “to make sure that the party’s prescription drug plan for the elderly suits drug companies.”

In fact, the House Committee on Energy and Commerce during markup of the Republican prescription drug bill had to break early that day so that Republican law makers could attend the dinner, and that was reported in the Washington Post on June 19, 2002. At that time, the drug lobby had financed a massive $1.6 million issue ad campaign in 18 competitive districts, some of them held by Republicans.

This September one ad in the Houston Chronicle written by a citizen from Texas (Mr. DELAY) for the plan he supports is really a remarkable document. The pharmaceutical industry wrote the bill, wrote the Republican prescription drug bill. It passed by a very narrow majority, having watched it pass here and we really want to provide prescription drug insurance to seniors, a group that represents 12 percent of the population but buys 33 percent of all prescription medications.

Then the fourth claim in this ad run by the astroturf organization in favor of the pharmaceutical industry is that it will provide complete protection against catastrophic drug costs but it says that $2,000 and $3,700 a person pays 100 percent out of pocket, and the catastrophic protection assumes that again there will be an insurance company to provide the benefits.

The final claim here is that there is no government bureaucrat between a person and their doctor, but there is someone between them and their doctor, and that will be the private insurance company, the HMO who will decide what drugs will be available under what plans. One of the problems with that is, unlike Medicare, where the benefits are reasonably stable, known in advance, consistent from year to year, where the premium changes only once a year, when it comes to HMOs and private insurance companies, what will happen, as has it in the Medicare+Choice market, is every year people will be laid off from their jobs, when it comes to HMOs, and as someone who comes from another rural State, is highly unlikely.

The bottom line is real simple. Having written the bill for the Republican majority, having watched it pass here in the House, now the pharmaceutical industry is out running ads under the name of other organizations, trying to persuade the American people that Republican Members of Congress who are the majority in lockstep with the pharmaceutical industry should be congratulated by seniors, ostensibly for doing what seniors want, but in fact, doing not tell us is that those seniors with drug costs between $2,000 and $3,700, within that group, will have to pay 100 percent out-of-pocket if the insurance companies, given the subsidy, offer the plan that is assumed by the Republican prescription drug bill, all of which is highly unlikely. what the pharmaceutical industry wants. I notice my colleague from Arkansas, a tireless advocate for seniors, is here, and at this time I would be happy to yield to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY). Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my good friend, the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN), and not only for his great friendship but for his leadership in this Congress and in the time that we have served together on this issue.

Here we are again, and it is a sad day in America. America is better than this. We can do better. We know how to do better. This issue is not something we do not know how to fix. We know what to do. This Congress is full of good people on both sides of the aisle. We know what to do about this issue. It is just simply not that complicated.

Here we are today, late in the session, and it made it possible where the President of the United States, with the stroke of a pen, can allow the American people, not just senior citizens, all Americans to buy their medicines at the world price. That is all he has got to do is say let us do it, and we are still getting robbed.

We are still paying three times as much. Every country in the world gets their medicine cheaper than we do. It is not right, it is not fair, and we can do something about it. We have already passed a law in the House that serve their constituents, and they do it with a dedication and determination and in an honorable way, are willing to let another year pass and let the prescription drug companies of this country continue to rob the American people over and over again. It just absolutely astounds me, but nothing is happening. Nothing is happening.

The American people pay three times as much for their medicine as any other Nation in the world. Why would we allow that to go on? Why would we allow those companies to make great profits? We want them to be profitable. We want them to be successful. It is greedy. It is greed. When there is so much lack of accountability if we keep letting these drug companies run over us in this country like they are now.

I think it is an absolute, unmitigated, pitiful shame that we stand in this House today and there is nobody else here willing to come down here and do the right thing for the American people. That is not the American way. That is not the reason that these members of this House were elected, and it is time that we do something about it.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, there are two words that sum up why we cannot get done here what needs to be done. Greed and money together are the answer.

There was an article in the Wall Street Journal on September 16, just a couple of days ago. Let me just read a couple of paragraphs. The title is this: Drug Industry Steps Up Campaign to Boost Image Ahead of Elections. ‘Here we go again, the pharmaceutical industry, will spend millions of dollars on feel-good ads to boost their image before the election, and in the part of what they are doing, of course, not just boosting their own image but supporting Republican candidates.’ Let me read these two paragraphs.

“More than $8 million has been committed to ads in recent months promoting nearly two dozen House candidates favoring industry-backed legislation and encouraging a Senate vote on the same bill, according to Charles Jarvis, chairman and chief executive of United Seniors Association, which is airing the spots. He acknowledged that most of the costs associated with the effort, including an additional $4 million Internet and direct mail campaign, are supported by a ‘general educational grant from PhRMA.’ All but a few of the two dozen or so United Seniors ads running this year thank Republican Members of Congress for supporting an industry-backed bill to provide medicine to seniors.”

It is money. It is greed. When there is as much money as we have in the pharmaceutical industry, and its obvious willingness to spend unlimited amounts of money on lobbyists, on campaign contributions and on television ads, we have in effect the people’s House taken over by one industry group and blocking the steps that need to be taken.

There is an article in the Hill, a local newspaper, and one of the things, and this is a column by Bruce Freed saying basically that the drug industry needs more transparency. On the one hand they will run ads, lobby people in Congress and say it takes $600-800 million to bring a drug to market, but you cannot find in our figures, we will not advertise, in the ads they give you enough information about our costs to prove what we are saying. He is saying, look, there is so much lack of confidence now in large American corporations because of the way they have handled their accounting that this cannot be believed. The industry really needs more transparency.

One pricing expert that he quotes says that prescription drugs are priced to generate the greatest profit to the companies. That is independent of any historical research and development spending on that product or any other product. That is not news to us, but it might be news to the Americans people because the industry has been so relentless in trying to say we need these profits, these profits that make us year after year the most profitable industry in the country. We need all of those profits in order to do research and development, but the cold, hard truth is they spend more on marketing than they do on research and in many respects they have become marketing companies.

Find a drug, tweak it a little bit, get a new patent and spend millions in television advertising trying to persuade seniors and others that this particular medication is the one that they absolutely have to have. I have heard from doctors saying that more and more people are into these drugs, saying not what should I do for my condition, but saying I want this particular drug that I have seen on television. This is not a healthy development for our seniors and certainly not for the government.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN) makes an outstanding point. When I think of the Republican drug bill that was passed on this House floor a few months ago, and I think of the memos that were being sent around on the other side of the aisle, and basically what they were saying is that the American people are tired of being robbed by the drug companies, they may be of the details, but they know that they are being taken advantage of. They also know that the senior citizens are being put into great disadvantage, and some of them thrown into poverty because of the cost of prescription drugs. So just vote for something. Tell people when you go back home, I voted for a prescription drug bill. It does not amount to a hill of beans, but tell them that is what you did. That so-called prescription drug bill is passed on the details, and it was a deceitful thing, but what it makes me think of is a little restaurant which I saw in rural Arkansas.

There were two restaurants close together in this community. One of them had been offering an all-you-can-eat special, and he was really making life tough on the fellow down the street. So the fellow down the street decided he would be competitive. He put up a sign that said all you can eat for $100. That is prescription drug bill that was passed by the Republicans works. Let us just make them think that they are going to get something, do not worry about the details. Just pass anything, put your name on the board and let us move on. Hope for the best.

What they also do not tell us is that the United States taxpayers pay for the biggest part of the research and development that drug companies do. We want them to do research. Their profits are such that they can do research. There is no problem with that. But everybody ought to know that the American taxpayer pays for the biggest part of it. Why should we give these guys such a sweet deal? This is absolutely a ridiculous situation.

On the floor of this House just a few weeks ago, we had a very close, highly contentious vote on trade. I believe in trade. I think we ought to trade across borders. The administration came down here and did all of the arm-twisting they could do to get that fast track trade bill passed; but yet when the President himself holds it within his power where the stroke of a pen or instigation of a stroke of a pen could stop all of this drug advertising, the Food and Drug Administration will allow us to fair-trade drugs in this country and get a good price for our people, he refuses to do it. What is good about that? Nothing. This is corporate greed at its most unspeakable level. We should not allow this to go on.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, what the gentleman is really talking about is what we often call reimportation, and that is legislation which has been passed where drugs can be re-imported from Canada. Just to give an example, from a recent bus trip up in Maine where a group of seniors went over the border to Canada, got their prescriptions filled by a Canadian physician. 25 people saved $1,600 in one bus trip.

Just to give one example of a critical drug, Tamoxifen is a drug for breast cancer, and many women who are going through a fight against breast cancer are fighting for their pocketbooks as well. Tamoxifen in Maine costs $112-114 for a month’s supply. In Canada, it is about $13. There is a 10-1 differential for Tamoxifen for fighting breast cancer.

When we look at other countries, the prices are much lower elsewhere. Why? Because the governments in those countries do not allow their seniors to be taken advantage of. All of those governments one way or another set some kind of cap on what the pharmaceutical industry can charge. We have the anomaly here in the United States, Medicare, 30 million beneficiaries, the largest health care plan in the United States, they do not have prescription drug coverage, they do not have the Federal Government negotiating lower prices for them. They are on their own.

For those of us who are still working and have some sort of health insurance, we get our prescription drug coverage through our health insurer. No matter who our health insurer is, that insurer is negotiating with the pharmaceutical companies to get a reduced price. How much, we do not always know, but they are getting a reduced price from the pharmaceutical industry. It is a scandal that seniors cannot get the best price in the country. They are part of the largest group. They use medicines more than any other group and might have the kind of leverage over price that will give seniors the price that they are leveraged, that their marketing position deserves. But when it comes to developing a Medicare prescription drug plan of any kind down here, the gentleman from Maine (Mr. BERRY) to explain this particular chart.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, this is a copy of an ad that was run in Congress Daily this morning. It is an attempt to convince Members to do everything they can to discourage generic drug use and to help the pharmaceutical manufacturers in this country continue to be able to overcharge and rob the American people.

I yield this chance Members can see it has, of course, the words at the top, Pray for a Miracle. That is one thing in this ad that I agree with. I think that we should, indeed, pray for a miracle because I think that is what it will take on the floor of this House and in this Congress and with this administration to achieve a situation that will allow us to let the American people buy their medicine at a fair price and to make sure that the senior citizens of this country have the necessary medicine that they need to stay healthy, have a decent lifestyle, and to not have to go to bed hungry at night because they had to spend all of their money on medicine and could not afford to buy any food. That is an idea that I think the American people will be ashamed of. We are a better country than that. We are a better people than that, and we are a better Congress than that because we represent good people.

It is time, and I say the time and over again, I say it because I believe it, it is time for this Congress to present to this administration the opportunity to do the right thing, to do the right thing and let the American people get a fair deal when they buy their medicine, to let our senior citizens have the same opportunity to have a fulfilling life and not get robbed when they have to go buy their medicine.

I also want to make one point in a very strong way. We need to recognize the community pharmacies in this country. These people have to pay these exorbitant prices, make almost no profit, scramble like crazy to try to stay in business, and sell their products to their customers as cheap as they can, and they do heroic work trying to provide this expensive medicine at the lowest possible price to our senior citizens, and I think they need to be recognized for the great work that they do.

I thank the gentleman for his comments. I might call attention again to that advertisement. It says, “Pray for a miracle because generic drugs will never cure him.” It is an ad run by PhRMA, the pharmaceutical industry association or the association for the brand-name prescription drugs.

The reason that ad is being run right now is that the Senate has passed a bill, basically, to encourage more competition and, therefore, lower prices between the generic industry and the brand-name pharmaceutical industry. A lot of important drugs have gone off-patent lately and some more are to follow and the generic companies are providing exactly the same medication, exactly the same medication; but typically once they are in the market, once they are able to compete, the price of the brand-name drops precipitously and prescription drugs go down.

We have the same kind of bill, bipartisan bill, that is here in the House. It is called the Prescription Drug Fair Competition Act, H.R. 5272. But the Republican majority, the Republican leadership is not willing to bring this to the Democratic side of the aisle, we are going to start a discharge petition to bring this bill to the floor, to see if we can get enough signatures so we can actually have a vote to do what the Senate did.

Let me just say a couple of things. In recent years, the brand-name companies have really been gaming the whole patent system to keep generics off the market for months and even years beyond what is required. It was introduced by the Congress when it passed legislation in 1984. The bill that we are going to try to get to the floor on the Democratic side here is intended to prevent abuses of the existing law and allow competitive generic drugs to reach the marketplace more quickly. The Congressional Budget Office has looked at this bill and has estimated that this bill, the Prescription Drug Fair Competition Act, would reduce total spending on prescription drugs by $60 billion, or 1.3 percent. That does not include the enormous savings that would accrue if a Medicare prescription drug benefit is enacted.

There have been so many ways that the brand-name pharmaceutical industry has really lifted the cost of prescription drugs. When there is a patent lawsuit going on, and it is easy to get a patent lawsuit going on, then they can get repeated delays so that the FDA is not able to approve a generic application for sometimes 30 months; and sometimes they can stack these 30-month periods one after the other and make the delays run on. There is a bill that would provide early resolution of some patent disputes. It would also prevent these collusive agreements that sometimes the brand-name companies have paid generic companies not to bring a competing drug to market. The result of that is the generic company gets some money, the pharmaceutical company, the brand-name pharmaceutical is able to charge much higher prices for an additional 6 months or longer, and the only people who are being harmed, who are being harmed are the consumers, the public.

This legislation would prevent that from happening. This is good legislation. There is some Republican support for this bill. It ought to be something that would be supported by the Republican-led Senate. If they passed it, we would be able to do this, but right now we are sitting here not doing anything on appropriations bills.

I told people back home during the August recess that when we came back in September we were going to be very busy because we had only passed five of the appropriations bills, it looks like. So we are not doing any of the appropriations bills, it looks like. So we are not doing anything on appropriations bills.

I told people back home during the August recess that when we came back in September we were going to be very busy because we had only passed five of the appropriations bills and we would be working hard on that. We are now almost at the end of our third week since we came back, and we have not seen a sign of an appropriations bill anywhere in this Chamber. They are not about to bring up any of the appropriations bills, it looks like. So we are not doing the work we were sent here to do. We ought to have a bill with prescription drugs. It is a sorry state of affairs. A large part of the reason has to be that the pharmaceutical industry, at least with respect to prescription drugs, a large part of the reason is so much money is being spent on lobbying, campaign contributions and on ads.

You cannot watch television without seeing ads from the pharmaceutical industry. Now they will not just be feel-good ads with people running through fields of clover, but they will be ads touting particular candidates; and you can be quite sure that if they are praising a candidate, it is probably a Republican in most cases and if they are attacking a candidate, it is probably a Democrat in almost all cases. As a result, the people’s will, what people over and over again want in Arkansas and Maine and around this country, a Medicare prescription drug benefit, a discount on their prescription drugs, the people in this country and the people in other countries with lower rates, all of these approaches are being stymied and the will of the people in this country is being frustrated by a majority that is locked into the pharmaceutical industry and doing the bidding of the pharmaceutical industry. It is a national scandal.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Maine is absolutely right. It is a national scandal. A few months ago, we had these corporate scandals. We were having, it seemed like, one or two a week. We had corporations that had been caught not telling the truth. Apparently we had some executives who might have even taken money that did not belong to them. We found out all of a sudden that these companies did not have the assets they said they had. They were not worth what they said they were worth. They could not do what they said they could do.

We just rushed to the floor of this House, we could not get here quick enough, and passed a law that said we are going to punish them some more. We should have said we are going to punish them to do this, but right now we are sitting here not doing anything on appropriations bills.

I believe the gentleman from Maine referred to the idea that the drug companies had decided they needed to improve their image. Boy, you are right about that. If there is anybody in this country that ought to improve their image, it is the pharmaceutical industry. It is a national scandal.
I will say once again, America is better than this. The American people are better than this. This Congress is better than this, than to let it keep going on and on.

Mr. ALLEN. I thank the gentleman for his comments. I will make just one final comment. We have been talking a lot about prescription drugs for seniors this evening and what a serious problem it is for Medicare beneficiaries because they do not have a Medicare prescription drug benefit at all. But back home, what we are finding is that the small business community is now getting hit by very steep increases in their health insurance premiums. Small business men and women in my State are seeing health insurance premium increases of 30 percent, 40 percent, sometimes 50 percent; and this is the third successive year in which that is happening. The viability of many small businesses in Maine is really being threatened by rapidly rising prescription drug costs because that is the major component that is driving up their health insurance premiums.

This is a big and complicated issue. The fairness of our health care system, the ability of people to get access to the health care need is a national issue of enormous importance, and it is one that is being neglected in this House because we are paying far too much attention to the industry itself and not to the people. I want to thank the gentleman from Arkansas for participating in this Special Order tonight.

TARIFF ON STEEL IMPORTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PUTNAM). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 3, 2001, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I am going to make some comments on the tariff on steel imports. Several companies in my congressional district, the Seventh Congressional District of Michigan, which is roughly the bottom center of Michigan, have come to me as steel users and said that they have got a huge problem. The steel suppliers are saying, We don't care about the contract. We're going to increase the cost of the steel and you have to pay us double what the contract was. The company says, Well, we can go to court. The steel suppliers say, Well, you can do that. We'll probably fight it in court for 3 years, but tomorrow we're not going to deliver the steel that you need to meet your contracts.

What is the solution? President Bush approved the new tariffs on steel imports. I think, to help give the steel industry and our American steelworkers a real chance to make changes so they might compete in the long term. I suspect the President, who as a business man did the hard physical work in the oil fields, wanted to give a chance to save some of the jobs of the people that do the hard physical work in the steel industry. However, the high tariff restrictions on steel imports have turned out to be a mistake with a potential of losing more jobs than they save.

The price of steel in the United States has risen since March by 30 percent to 50 percent. In addition to the large price increases, there has been a reduction in the amount of steel available because of the reduced imports coming in. This has made it impossible for many steel-consuming industries to find the steel they need on the one hand and they are obligated to pay this new higher price that means that in many cases they are actually losing money filling their particular contracts. Domestic steel producers have in many cases reneged on the long-term contracts now that the steel prices have leapfrogged, with the result that the consuming industries have been forced to pay that higher price than the agreed-on prices or have been forced into the volatile spot market for steel.

The President's action, I think, turns against what he said on free trade and on taxes. First, by definition, free trade implies that it is unencumbered by demands of third parties. When government imposes tariffs on products, it reduces the ease with which they come across borders, either way, back and forth. Second, tariffs are just taxes by another name. Steel tariffs raise the cost of buying products that contain steel. For instance, just as raising the sales tax on those products would. So it means not only are they in trouble, but once they produce the goods to the extent that they are able to pass that increased price on, American consumers pay the cost of that higher tax or tariff.

The new Bush tariff is expected to hike the cost of steel products by 6 to 8 percent in the first 12 months, and in our State of Michigan, Michigan citizens will be hit hardest.

Here is why: One of the most basic propositions of economics is the inverse relationship between price and quantity demanded. When the price of some goods, steel in this case, rises, less of it is going to be demanded, and the result is fewer sales of products containing steel and fewer jobs are going to be available for those industries that use that steel, the steel user industry that are ultimately making those finished goods with steel.

This harms the Michigan workers and it harms the American workers in fact, it harms a number of industries. American producers lose out because they are now competing with foreign companies that have access to cheaper steel. So I have got some companies in my district that say, well, we are considering moving to Mexico, Canada or wherever, but they are paying a much lower price for steel. They are paying the world market price, where here in the United States, because we restrict the availability of steel and held out, the competition, the foreign competition, if you will, are paying a much higher price. Their products then become relatively more expensive because the steel in them costs so much more than the American steel.

Second, many American firms have simply had trouble securing sufficient supplies of steel in quantities to keep the factory operating. I have had layoffs in my district because plants have closed for the lack of steel.

The third point I would make: It gives American firms, I think, a powerful incentive to move production out of the United States to foreign plants where steel is available at the lower world market price. This is so they can compete and can survive as a company. So it is hard to blame them, if that is their only recourse to survive.

So that is what we are being threatened with in Michigan. These companies moving out of the State, and that is what is happening in many other areas of the United States where steel users are faced with a problem.

A couple of economists, Francois and Laura Baughman, working on behalf of the Consuming Industries Trade Action Coalition, have estimated the impact of the Bush tariffs on the American economy in terms of their economic benefits and costs. For instance, they found that every State in the Union will suffer net job losses as a result of the tariffs. Ironically, the biggest job losses will occur in the Steel Belt, states such as Pennsylvania, such as Michigan. For example, the Michigan Steel Industry would save as a result of the tariff, eight jobs will be lost in all sectors of the economy.

Another point: The steel-producing industry would save between 4,400 and 4,800 jobs at a cost of about $439,500 to $451,000 per steel job saved. Higher prices for steel products and related inefficiencies would decrease U.S. national income someplace around $500 million, at a time when policymakers are talking about ways to improve the U.S. economy.

Again, back in my State of Michigan, Michigan will suffer from the negative consequences of tariffs, and these economists found that Michigan will lose more jobs in steel-related industries than every State in the Union, save California. Under the most conservative scenario, Mr. Speaker, Michigan will lose almost five jobs in steel-consuming industries for every one job that is saved in Michigan steel-producing industries.

Here is the point: There are 57 workers employed in the steel-using companies, 57 workers employed in the steel-using companies, for every one worker that is employed in the steel industry. Steel-using industries account for more than 13 percent of gross domestic product. Steel-using industries account for more than 13 percent of GDP, where the steel industry accounts for only about one-half of 1 percent of GDP. So the result, thus, the steel tariff has threatened many more jobs than it has protected.
The Bush administration, I think, has recognized some of the distress that the steel tariffs are causing, so it has issued rulings that exclude 727 products from the tariff. Of course, this has set off a frenzy of lobbying as some of the steel-using companies angle for exemptions. That is what is happening now. This causes distortions not only in the cost of foreign and domestic producers, but also in Michigan and the United States between competing domestic producers as well.

The decision to impose the tariff is also a problem. Steel imports into the United States have been declining. Steel imports, after reaching a high of 4 million tons in August of 1999, had declined by 36 percent to 2.6 million tons in November of 2001. Moreover, the market share of foreign steel producers has fallen from 28 percent in 1998 to 21 percent in 2001. This made the imposition of the tariff less pressing, and maybe we could have gone along without it.

The challenge has got to be on the steel industry, and I think on government as well, as we look at how can we help this industry without hurting so many other workers and so many other industries that are using steel.

It has been argued that the real threat to most of the domestic steel industry is not foreign steel at all. Steel is manufactured in the United States at mini-mills and integrated steel mills. It is the integrated mills that are having the greatest difficulty in making a profit right now.

Mini-mills are much more efficient at producing steel than the integrated steel mill and have a 25 percent cost advantage over producing steel than the integrated mills do. As a result of their cost advantage, mini-mills have increased their market share from 10 percent in the 1970s to about 50 percent today. Over the same time period, the share of the United States market has increased by only 10 percent. Therefore, the real threat to the integrated steel mills are not imports, but our own American mini-mills.

Finally, the steel tariff encourages retaliation from our trading partners. If you look at the European Commission, it is now threatening retaliatory tariffs of 100 percent on a 22-page list of goods ranging from rice to grapefruit to shoes to brassieres to nuts to bib overalls to billiard tables to ballpark pens. This goes on. So retaliation could develop into the kind of price war that is going to hurt the United States a great deal.

The Japanese, for example, are also looking for ways to retaliate, and has said we are going to fence out the U.S. chickens that are coming into Russia. Even though Russia does not produce chickens, they are looking for ways to do it. Hopefully that issue is going to be resolved.

Mr. Speaker, we can ask if the tariff has done that much for the steel industry. I would mention that I was going to mention that Florida is a significant steel-using state, but I see our Speaker has changed. But I will mention that steel-using industries are all over the United States.

Over the past 30 years, the Federal Government has been implementing policies to keep the steel industry in business, despite its inefficiencies. These policies have included voluntary quotas and antidumping, and that is the thing that has got to continue. If we can buy something below the cost of production, then we are going to stop that kind of dumping. So that is going to take place and should take place, regardless of whether we lift the current restrictions on imports.

The countervailing duty measures are another. Some of the companies have moved up and are now competitive, but much of the industry, instead of resulting in a stronger manufacturing efficiency, these policies are allowing America to continue with production methods, with labor contracts, that keep it perpetually at the risk of dissolution and keep it out of reach of real competition with other mills in the United States and the international markets.

Standard and Poor, for example, was not optimistic when the President announced the tariff restrictions on steel imports, and they responded to the tariffs by refusing to raise the industry’s credit rating.

The steel tariff has turned out to be a mistake that is harming many industries, both in my State of Michigan and across the country. It is having the result of losing American jobs.

We need to repeal this kind of tariff restriction to allow our steel-manufacturing companies to again be competitive and keep those companies in the United States. We need to start reviewing the kind of overzealous regulations and overregulation that is put on the steel industry. So let us look at the tax imposition that we put on our steel manufacturing industries without challenging and disrupting the many workers in America that are working the steel-using industry.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to also make a couple comments on our spending and our budget.

Right now we got a challenge of where do we go on spending. We are in a war. We are going to be required to make sure that, to the greatest extent possible, we assure the safety of American citizens. We are probably going to waste a lot of effort, a lot of talent, a lot of money, and, in some cases, go further than we really would have needed to go in terms of protecting ourselves against terrorists. But the challenge, of course, for Members of Congress, and especially for the President and for the Congress and for the President is making sure that we go far enough in our protections to have the greatest assurance possible.

As we spend a tremendous amount of money in our war against terror, and the President is approaching it, I think we have got to remind ourselves that we are in a war and that some of the other traditional spending, some of the maybe less important spending, needs to be held only to a modest increase.

Nobody is suggesting a cut in how we spend money, but we are suggesting that we hold the line and we hold tight to the President’s budget suggestions so that discretionary spending is not going to continue to spiral, if you will, out of control.

The 10-year spending history on discretionary spending has gone from a little over $500 billion to approaching someplace between $750 billion, based on President has suggested for discretionary spending, compared to the Senate is now looking at $770 billion for discretionary spending.

We hear some people suggest, ‘Well, boy, you should not have had that tax cut. The tax cut is really what has caused all this problem of the deficit of the budget so that we do not have all this extra money.’ Let me just point out that the tax cut represents only 13 percent of the problem of overspending.

We are looking at overspending this year that is going to approach $150 billion. Not good. We recently increased the debt limit, and I think when we do that, we need to make sure that someplace down the road we are going to be able to say to our kids and our grandkids that we are going to start paying this debt down again.

We have paid about $500 billion down on the debt held by the public over the last half a dozen years. I mean, that is good news. That was good. We said we were not going to spend the surplus coming in from Social Security; but now, with the war on terror, we started spending the surplus on Social Security again, and we have increased the allowable debt limit of this country. And it should be just somehow a strong message from every fiscally responsible individual in Congress and around the United States to say, hey, look, we are in a war, it is time that we held the line on increased spending in other areas.

Let me give my colleagues some quick examples. We have 13 appropriation bills that handle the discretionary spending. The Labor-HHS-Education bill, under the House plan, spending would grow 60.5 percent since 1998. That is almost between five and six times the inflation rate. So with the problem of a tremendously progressive tax system, we are in a situation where, according to the Heritage Foundation, over 50 percent of the benefits from Federal spending go to individuals who pay less than 5 percent of the income tax. So the old safeguard, if you are going to have more government spending, somebody has to pay for it, we have to now in our collective efforts divide the wealth and try to make sure that there is a good distribution, to make sure that people are not going to go hungry and have a home, and our welfare systems and our food systems and, at the same time, reducing the amount of tax that low-income people pay. We have redistributed wealth to the extent where most of the top 10 percent of taxpayers pay approximately 90 percent of the total income taxes in this country.

As we look at the challenges of where we go on spending, there are a lot of people in this district that say, well, we would like you to spend a little more on this program or that program; and quite often, these individuals, and that represents maybe 50 percent of the constituency of many of us in Congress. So, looking at a situation where it does not cost them very much in their income taxes, so their willingness to call for increased spending is at little or no cost to themselves.

We have had a system from the founding of our country, and it was interesting that we went up to New York, the first time this Congress left session in Washington, D.C., in over 200 years and went to the Federal building up in New York where George Washington was first sworn in and where, in 1789, the first Congress presided and we passed the Bill of Rights. We have had a country that sort of has the motivation, the incentive that those that learn, that they, that save and invest end up better off than those that don't. I mean, that has been our motivation. As we keep trying to divide the wealth, where we lose that kind of motivation, we are going to lose some of the incentives that have caused such a great success, I think, in the American economy over the 234 odd years that we have been in existence.

Let me briefly look at some of the other increases in spending, and these dramatic increases in spending have even been during a Republican major-
I would say that no gentleman has worked harder than the gentleman from Cleveland, Ohio, to talk to the American people and to present the information that is very important. I know this will be an exchange tonight, and I will go back and forth; but it is probably important to put in some context what happened about one year ago, 9-11, 2001 when 17 individuals, international criminals from Saudi Arabia, 17 of 19 created carnage in our country in New York, over Pennsylvania, 9/11, here in Washington, from the al Qaeda network, which is a Middle Eastern terrorist network.

Their supposed leader, Osama bin Laden, made the statement at that time that these crimes were being committed against the American people because he wanted Western infidels out of Saudi Arabia. Iraq was not even on the table. Iraq is not an issue. Our major confrontation has been with al Qaeda; and, of course, they took refuge inside of Saudi Arabia. The Saudis will have to deploy troops from our districts currently deployed, Navy, Army, Air Force, and Marines in that region of the world and here at home protecting the American people and defending our freedom. But it is important to remind ourselves that in terms of world terrorism, in other words, it is very religious. They have a sacred rage that has turned their views highly political and highly dangerous into the international realm, and they do not have a presence in Iraq, because Iraq is a secular state.

Al Qaeda has not been known to use Iraq as a base of operations. So there is a disconnect between the policies that we are pursuing in order to bring to justice those who have done so much harm globally through al Qaeda, and also there has been an ignorance of Saudi Arabia’s role in permitting the Saudis to operate inside Saudi Arabia and then promoting madrassas outside of Saudi Arabia as well, producing hate-filled young boys who ultimately become terrorists in years hence in places like Pakistan and Afghanistan, in Malaysia, indeed around the world. So I wanted to just place on the record as we begin who the enemy is in terms of September 11 and subsequently, and all of a sudden emerging then through this summer we begin to hear about war with Iraq, and we ask ourselves the questions and we have gone to all the security briefings here on the Hill, what is the connection? What has Iraq done in the last 4 months different than the prior 4 years? Will it be anticipated over the next 4 months or 8 months or 1 year different than what happened over the last 5 or 10 years? And no evidence. We have been presented with no photographs, with no intelligence information to give us any connection between what has happened relative to al Qaeda and the enemy we are fighting and Iraq, and yet there is this tremendous drumbeat toward going to war with Iraq.

The President said at the United Nations last September very clearly that President Bush went to the United Nations because we have still been engaged as one of 189 nations in the world, the international community, he said that Iraq presented a grave and gathering threat. Not an imminent threat, a gathering threat to the world. So those words I listened to very carefully. I asked myself what is really going on here?

I also want to place on the record tonight an article that was in the Washington Post on Sunday entitled An Iraqi War Scenario, Oil Is Key Issue. I think it is important for the American people to know that even though technically the President wants to go to war with Iraq, today 8 percent of the oil we consume here in the United States is from Iraq. That may sound like a paradox. If you say, the Saudis, Iraq presents the largest oil fields in the world and in fact has proven reserves of 112 billion barrels of crude oil. This article talks about the reshuffling of the world petroleum markets related to any change of regime in Iraq, and I think it is important to follow the business pages which today showed that with the possibility of Iraq’s regime changing, oil prices in the world were beginning to actually drop because, as this article states, five permanent members of the Security Council, the United States, Britain, France, Russia, and China, have international oil companies with major stakes in a change of leadership in Baghdad.

“We’re pretty straightforward,” said former CIA director R. James Woolsey, who has been one of the leading advocates of forcing Hussein from power. “France and Russia have oil companies and interests in Iraq. They should be told that if they are of assistance in moving Iraq toward decent government, we’ll do the best we can to ensure that the new government and American companies work closely with them. If they throw in their lot with Saddam, it will be difficult to the point of impossible to persuade the new Iraqi government to work with us.”

Indeed, the mere prospect of a new Iraqi government has fanned concerns by non-American oil companies that they will be excluded by the United States, which almost certainly would be the dominant foreign power in Iraq in the aftermath of Hussein’s fall. Representatives of many foreign oil companies have been meeting with leaders of the Iraqi opposition to make their case for a future stake and to sound them out about their intentions.

Since the Persian Gulf War in 1991, companies from more than a dozen nations, including France, Russia, China, India, Italy, Vietnam and Algeria, have either reached or sought to reach agreements to participate in developing Iraqi oil fields, refurbish existing facilities or explore undeveloped tracts. Most of the deals are on hold until the lifting of U.N. sanctions.

But Iraqi opposition officials made clear in interviews last week that they will not be bound by any of the deals.

“We will review all these agreements, definitely,” said Faisal Qaraqoli, a petroleum engineer who directs the London office of the Iraqi National Congress, an umbrella organization of opposition groups that is backed by the United States. “Our oil policies should be decided by a government in Iraq elected by the people.”

Ahmed Chalabi, the INC leader, went even further, saying he favored the creation of a U.S.-led consortium to develop Iraq’s oil fields, which have reserves of more than a decade of sanctions. “American companies will have a big shot at Iraqi oil,” Chalabi said.

The INC, however, said it has not taken a formal position on the structure of Iraq’s oil industry in event of a change of leadership, a Bush Administration campaign against Hussein is presenting vast possibilities for multinational oil giants, it poses major risks and uncertainties for the global oil markets, according to industry analysts. Access to Iraqi oil and profits will depend on the nature and intentions of a new government in Baghdad. A resolution of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, for example, or seeks an independent OPEC without the OPEC cartel, will have an impact on oil prices and the flow of investments to competitors such as Russia, Venezuela and Angola.

While companies such as Lukoil have a major financial interest in developing Iraqi fields, the low prices that could result from a flood of Iraqi oil into world markets could back Russian government efforts to attract foreign investment in its untapped domestic fields. That is because world low oil prices could make costly ventures to develop Siberia's far less appealing.

Bush and Vice President Cheney have worked in the oil business and have longstanding ties to the industry. But despite the buzz about the future of Iraqi oil among companies, the administration, preoccupied with the immediate threat of terrorism about Hussein's potential threat, has yet to take up the issue in a substantive way, according to U.S. officials.

The future of the Iraqi oil industry, a task force set up at the State Department, does not have oil on its list of issues, a department spokesman said. Meanwhile, the National Security Council declined to say whether oil had been discussed during consultations on Iraq that Bush had had over the past week with Russian President Vladimir Putin and Western leaders.

On Friday, a State Department delegation concluded a three-day visit to Moscow in connection with negotiations on a proposed $40 billion service contract to drill at the Tuba field, reportedly includes opportunities for Russian companies to explore for oil in Iraq's western desert. The French company Total Fina Elf has negotiated for rights to develop the huge Majnoon field, near the Iranian border, which may contain up to 30 billion barrels of oil. But in July, a Russian announces it would no longer give French firms priority in the award of such contracts because of its decision to abide by the sanctions.

Officials of several major companies said they were taking care to avoiding playing any role in the debate in Washington over how to proceed on Iraq. "There's no real upside for American oil companies to take a very aggressive stance at this stage. There'll be plenty of time in the future," said James Lucier, an oil analyst with Prudential Securities.

But with the end of sanctions that likely would come with Hussein's ouster, companies such as ExxonMobil and ChevronTexaco would almost assuredly play a role, according to officials. "There's not an oil company out there that wouldn't be interested in Iraq," one analyst said.

Mr. KUCZYNSKI, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPUR) and again repeat what an honor it is to serve with her in this House and I thank her for enabling me to be in this House because she assisted in that effort.

Mr. Speaker, I want to raise this question, and that is why is war with Iraq being presented as inevitable? Is it not time to insist that our leaders suspect this incessant talk of preemptive war, of assumed right to unilateral action, and is it not time for insistence upon preventative diplomacy and our obligations to work with the world community on matters of global security? Why is this war being presented as inevitable?

The headlines from the New York Times of September 12, 2002, read: Bush to Warn UN, Act on Iraq or U.S. Will. He Leads Nation in Mourning at Terror Sites. Mr. Speaker, there is no credible evidence linking Iraq with al Qaeda. There is no evidence linking Iraq with the anthrax attacks on this Nation. There is no credible evidence that Iraq has usable weapons of mass destruction, the ability to deliver those weapons or the intention to do so. When Iraq responded to the question, they did it with the knowledge and sometimes with materials from the United States.

During the administration of Ronald Reagan, 60 helicopters were sold to Iraq. Later reports said Iraq used U.S. helicopters to spray Kurds with chemical weapons. We have heard about that. We have heard about the Kurds being attacked by Iraq with chemical weapons, but what we have not heard is that U.S. helicopters were used.

According to the Washington Post, Iraq used mustard gas against Iran with the help of intelligence from the CIA. Now, we heard that Iraq used mustard gas against Iran, but we did not hear that they did it with the help of intelligence from the CIA. Intelligence reports cited the use of nerve gas by Iraq against Iran. What was Iraq's punishment? At that time, the United States made diplomatic efforts to isolate and discontinue ties, believe it or not, around Thanksgiving of the year 1984, for the fans of George Orwell.

Throughout 1989 and 1990, U.S. companies, with the permission of the administration of President Bush, sent the government of Saddam Hussein tons of mustard gas precursors, live cultures for bacteriological research, helped to build a chemical weapons factory, supplied West Nile virus, supplied fuel air explosive technology and hydrogen cyanide precursors, and computers for weapons research and development, and vacuum pumps and bellows for nuclear weapons parts.

Now, we have to recognize that our country made a mistake in its past dealings with Iraq; that America made a mistake giving biological weapon capabilities, and chemical weapon capabilities and nuclear weapon capability to Saddam Hussein. That was a mistake.

But we also have to recognize that the Gulf War destroyed most of that capability; that through 7 years of war, Scott Ritter, an arms inspector, determined that 95 percent of what they were able to track down in terms of Iraq's weapons have been eliminated through that weapons inspection process, and anything else was obiterated during the war. So there is a good reason to believe that Iraq does not have any usable weapons of mass destruction.

I want to conclude this part, and then go to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), and then back to the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPUR).

There is a way out of this. We do not have to go to war. It is important that we get those inspectors in Iraq on a timely basis. There is a comprehensive solution to the crisis in Iraq. It appropriately involves the United Nations.

Inspections for weapons of mass destruction should begin immediately, and inspectors should have free and unfettered access to all sites; but, also, we need new negotiations concerning the counterproductive policies of regime change and sanctions. Emergency foreign aid could be expedited free trade, except in arms, must be permitted; foreign investments must be allowed; and the assets of Iraq abroad must be stored.

So, in conclusion, on this segment, Mr. Speaker, this whole idea about war being inevitable is wrong. War is not inevitable. We do not have to send America's sons and daughters to perish in the streets of Baghdad. We do not have to have that. There is a way out of this, and the American people have a right to expect that we solve this without going to war. They have a right to expect it.
I want to thank my colleague, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), who has been articulate and passionate and learned in her explanation of this issue, as she is in her explanation of all issues; who serves honorably and with great integrity on the Committee on the Judiciary.

I want to say what a pleasure it is to have the participation of the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) in this discussion. I thank the gentlewoman for her presence, and I yield to her.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) and the distinguished gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR).

May I remind those who are here today that this could almost be the debate, if you will, since yesterday was the celebration or commemoration of the signing of the Constitution, we could almost drift back to how seriously the Founding Fathers, though some of the mothers were missing, took the debate in establishing this country.

As I recall, if we would read some of the history books on this, this was not a shot in the dark. The writings of the Constitution was not short-lived. So I want to say to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH), my applause to him for being the curdles, if you will, and it sounds like I am saying ‘kernel’ because I have a cold, but curdles in the milk to cause this to rise to the level of hearing of the United States.

I think it is important before I begin my remarks, and I will try to be concise, to let my colleagues who are listening to this debate realize that most of us have been in Iraq meetings all day long, and in fact, all week long.

I think part of our difficulty is to convey to the American people that there is percolating in a broad spectrum of thought across party lines and body lines, House and Senate, there are voices who are raising the thought processes of what we believe the American people would like to us to engage in, raising questions of either skepticism or reason around this very monumental decision.

I do not wish to call colleagues’ names who are probably in meetings as we speak, but I remember a meeting this morning in a long meeting on his own soil. Let us look.

The times we have stepped over the line, we have questioned that policy. And I raise Vietnam because I remember very clearly the domino theory. That is why we went in allegedly. We were fearful of communism spreading, but in the end we lost 56,000. And I am not sure the final conclusion of that, though we never, never, never in any way condemned the young men and women and how we lost our lives to the valor of our heroes who served us in Vietnam. I will never undermine their services. They are my heroes.

But I took from that a greater responsibility whenever I made a decision as a Member of this body to go to war. And so the point that should be made is that we have an alternative and there is an alternative voice. I believe that voice is free of politics. I, in essence, believe that the American people and we have heard voices on both sides of the aisle, Republicans, Democrats, and Independents.

For that reason, I believe a very profound statement by one of our distinguished colleagues, one of the ranking members of an important committee, the Committee on International Relations, should be heard, that we should have a special session in order to let everyone have the time to deliberate as the Founding Fathers did, so that the members of this Nation can listen to deliberative thought on what the next step should be.

I believe, further, that we have heard a response and we should claim victory or bring victory by the end of this year. Congress is now engaged based upon the voices that were raised a few weeks ago; and, of course, I think we as Members raised our voices, many of us, even before the recess; and so it was heard and Congress has now actively engaged.

The second victory is that the President of the United States, who I will give applause to, did go to the United Nations. We gave, if you will, the world the chance that we do play on the world stage in a unified manner because we will only stand together or fall together. We must give credibility to that decision where the United Nations joined us in saying to Saddam Hussein, we must have unfettered entry into your country. And then what do we get in the last 24 hours? A response back, yes, you can.

Now, we can always reject the bride, the fiance, I do not know what we wish to call this position, but I have heard this before. But how unfortunate it would be if peace looks us in the eye or some reconciliation looks us in the eye and we do not accept it. I believe it is important that we go with a thousand U.N. inspectors unfettered and immediately respond to Iraq’s invitation, get there now and begin to challenge him on his own soil. Let us look.

I do not believe we should spin it, that he is not serious, that this is just a stopgap measure. We are now headed towards war. And the reason why I say that, as I try to conclude on some elements of where many of us are thinking, is because another colleague today in a long meeting on Iraq mentioned his constituents who traveled a mighty long way to plead with him of the desperate need of prescription drug benefits through Medicare, guarantee of, nursing homes that are closing, of hospitals that may be closing, of Social Security issues that we are facing, and of course, there are many millions of dollars in stocks and 401(k)’s that we have not responded to, and they asked us to put a reasonable restraint on going to war because they asked us about the money. I believe he might have responded, I am not putting words in his mouth, that we are already spending a billion dollars a day in Afghanistan. And then he had to contrive that the article and the statement from Lawrence Lindsey, Bush economic aid says on September 17 that the cost of the Iraq war may top $100 billion.

The importance of this debate is so vital, and that is why the voice of those who have been in meetings all day long for fear that nobody is reporting the seriousness of these discussions. I have said this two or three times, this is why we have got to be able to get the attention of the American public and as well the President, that we have an action item, U.N. inspectors, and we do not need to take it to the next level of a war. If I believe if we can engage the American people, we will find the respect of the world because there is no doubt of this Nation's military power. We have to make no excuses for what we have the ability to accomplish.

Our greater, our greater results will be our ability to coalition in the world arena, to be successful in the agenda of ridding Iraq of these weapons of mass destruction in the manner of the world family and the United Nations, and saying to this country, we will send no son and daughter into harm's way into the evils of war without deliberative thought and all manner of diplomacy tried, and all efforts of each and every one of us and the administration working together.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentlewoman because when she spoke of sons and daughters, that is what this is really about. This is about the sons and daughters of American people. It is about the sons and daughters of the Iraqi people who have to suffer this dictator, Saddam Hussein; and it is also about future generations. And so I thank the gentlewoman for participating in this discourse and she is welcome to stay if she can.

I want to go back to our good friend and my colleague, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), who has ended the last discussion. We were talking about the impact on oil as an issue here, and I thought she raised some good points; and I wanted to thank her and if the gentlewoman would continue.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, it is always a pleasure to join the gentlewoman from Houston, Texas (Ms. JACKSON–LEE), and center her highly for the forum that will be held in Houston on Iraq and should America go to war. As always she is in the forefront of the leadership in this institution and in our country.

Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to follow up on something that the gentlewoman had stated regarding reasons of war and to point out to those who are listening that there is in this post-Cold War world that there is a shifting of relationships, and nations are trying to find their way forward with new alliances, and the United States in that context has to be careful in order to not appear to be a Nation that would commit naked aggression. That is something the United States fought for the entirety of the 20th century. Rather, a Nation that always engages for justified wars, justifiable purposes. And there is a distinction, and we should not abrogate our heritage. It is what has gained us the stature that we do have internally and externally.

Mr. Speaker, I also wanted to follow on something the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH) who was discussing a war in which we were discussing the internal state of Iraq, their economy and their military. I think it is important to put on the record that two-thirds of Saddam Hussein's forces were leveled in the Persian Gulf War. In other words, the force is one-third of what it used to be.

The American people should not have the illusion that over the 10 years during which we and other countries have sent our Armed Forces to Iraq, there has not been constant bombing and constant economic sanctions that have made life difficult for people inside that country, and, indeed, children dying, not enough food, extrdornary poverty among so many people. The conditions inside Iraq are abysmal.

In addition to that, Iraq essentially is an oil state. And as I mentioned earlier, it has the largest reserves outside of Saudi Arabia. Prior to the Persian Gulf War, Iraq had been pumping 3.5 million barrels a day. Today she pumps 1.7 million barrels a day. That says that not only are the sanctions hurting her, but the lack of production is hurting her.

And Iraq does not operate in a vacuum. She operates in a part of the world where not everyone is her friend. And certainly she has had historic rivalries with Iran, and we all know about the invasion of Kuwait. Iraq is a secular nation in that part of the world that also has tried to defend herself from fears relating to relations with surrounding countries. So I think it is important to be realistic about what is going on there.

Therefore, we read in the Wall Street Journal, September 17, Lawrence Lindsey, the President's head of the White House National Economic Council, making the following statement. "When there is a regime change in Iraq, you could add 3 million to 5 million barrels of production to world supply each day." Mr. Lindsey estimated. "The successful prosecution of the war would be good for the U.S. economy." Mr. Speaker, the entire article is as follows:

[From the Wall Street Journal, Sept. 17, 2002]

BUSH ECONOMIC AIDE SAYS COST OF IRAQ WAR MAY TOP $100 BILLION

(By Bob Davis)

WASHINGTON.—President Bush’s chief economic adviser estimates that the U.S. may have to spend between $100 billion and $200 billion to wage a war in Iraq, but doubts that the hostilities would push the nation into recession or a sustained period of inflation.

Lawrence Lindsey, White House’s National Economic Council, projected the “upper bound” of war costs at between 1% and 2% of U.S. gross domestic product or perhaps the $30 billion to $50 billion per year, that translates into a one-time cost of $100 billion to $200 billion. That is considerably higher than a preliminary, private Pentagon estimate of about $50 billion.

In an interview in his White House office, Mr. Lindsey dismissed the economic concerns about the cost of waging a war that wouldn’t have an appreciable effect on interest rates or add much to the federal debt, which is already about $3.6 trillion. “One year of additional spending? he said. “That’s nothing.”

At the same time, he doubted that the additional spending would give the economy much of a lift. “Government spending tends not to be that stimulative,” he said. “Building weapons and expending them isn’t the basis of sustained economic growth.” Administration officials were unwilling to talk about the specific costs of a war, preferring to discuss the removal of Mr. Hussein in foreign-policy or even moral terms. Discussing the economics of the war could make it seem as if the U.S. were going to war over oil. That could sap support domestically and abroad, especially in the Midwest and the upper tier of the U.S. of wanting to seize Arab oil fields.

Mr. Lindsey, who didn’t provide a detailed analysis of the costs, drew an analogy between the potential war expenditures with an investment in the removal of a threat to the economy. “It’s hard for me to see how we could be concerned about the world where terrorists with weapons of mass destruction are running around,” he said. If you weigh the cost of the war against the removal of a “huge drag on global economic growth for a foreseeable time in the future, there’s no comparison.”

Other administration economists say that their main fear is that an Iraq war could lead to a sustained spike in prices. The past four recessions have been preceded by the price of oil jumping to higher than $30 a barrel, according to BCA Research.com in Montreal. But the White House believes that removing Iraqi oil from production during a war—which would likely lead to a short-term rise in oil prices—would be insufficient to tip the economy into recession. What is worrisome, economists say, is if the war widens and another large Middle East supplier stops selling to the U.S., either because of an Iraqi attack or out of solidarity with Saddam Hussein’s regime.

Mr. Lindsey said that Mr. Hussein’s ouster could actually ease the dual problem by increasing supplies. Iraqi production has been constrained somewhat because of its limited investment and political factors. When Iraq is at war, the regime changes, and you could add three million to five million barrels of production to world supply” each day, Mr. Lindsey estimated. “The successful prosecution of the war would be good for the economy.”

Currently, Iraq produces 1.7 million barrels of oil daily, according to OPEC figures. Before the Gulf War, Iraq produced around 3.5 million barrels a day.

Mr. Lindsey’s cost estimate is higher than the $100 billion number projected by the Pentagon in its conversations with Congress. The difference shows the pitfalls of predicting the cost of a military conflict: Nobody is sure how long it will be. Whatever the bottom line, the war’s costs would be significant enough to make it harder for the Bush administration to climb out of the budget-deficit hole it faces because of the economic slowdown and expense of the war on terrorism.

Mr. Hoagland outlined the specifics of the spending and didn’t make clear whether he was including in his estimate the cost of rebuilding Iraq or installing a new regime. His estimate, in line with the $58 billion cost of the Gulf war, which equaled about 1 percent of GDP in 1991. During that war, U.S. allies paid $10 billion of the cost, says William Hoagland, chief Republican staffer of the Senate Budget Committee.

This time it is far from clear how much of the country’s allies would be willing to bear. Most European allies, apart from Britain, have been trying to dissuade Mr. Bush from launching an attack, at least without a United Nations resolution or approval. But if the U.S. decides to invade, it may be able to get the allies to pick up some of the tab only if they help their companies cash in on the bounty from a post-Saddam Iraq.

Toppling Mr. Hussein could be more expensive than the Persian Gulf War if the U.S. has to send a big number of troops into the country to stabilize it once Mr. Hussein is removed from power. Despite the Bush administration’s aversion to nation building, Gen. Tommy Franks, commander of U.S. troops in the Middle East and Central Asia, recently said that the U.S. troops in Afghanistan likely would remain for years to come. The Pentagon to be in Iraq. Keeping the peace among Iraq’s fractious ethnic groups almost certainly will require a long-term commitment of U.S. troops.

During the Gulf War, the U.S. fielded 500,000 troops. A far smaller force is anticipated for a new attack on Iraq. But then Mr. Hoagland said the costs would be higher because of the expense of a new generation of smart missiles and bombs. In addition, the nature of the assault this time is expected to be different. During the Gulf War, U.S. troops bombed from above and sent tank-led troops in for a lighting sweep through the Iraqi desert. A new Iraqi war could involve prolonged fighting in Baghdad and other Iraqi cities—even including house-to-house combat.

The Gulf War started with the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in August 1990, which prompted a brief recession. The U.S. started bombing Iraq on Jan. 16, 1991, and called a halt to the ground invasion in the middle of February. With Iraq’s invasion, oil prices spiked and consumer confidence in the U.S. plunged. But Mr. Lindsey said the chance of that happening again is “small.” U.S. diplomats have been trying to get assurances from Saudi Arabia, Russia and other oil-producing states that they would make up for any lost Iraqi oil production. In addition, Mr. Lindsey said that the pumping equipment at the nation’s Strategic Petroleum Reserve has been improved so oil is easier to tap, if necessary. Both Pentagon and energy administration officials, he said, wanted to “make sure you can pump oil out quickly.”

On Thursday, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said he doubted a war would lead to recession because of the reduced dependence of the U.S. economy on oil. “I don’t think that the effect of oil as it stands at this particular stage, is large enough to impact the economy unless the hostilities are prolonged,” Mr. Greenspan told the House Energy and Commerce Committee. “If we go through a time frame such as the Gulf War, it is unlikely to have a significant impact on us.”

“The U.S. economy also has become less dependent on foreign oil,” said Andrew Zandi, chief economist at Economy.com, an economic consulting group in West Chester, Pa. A larger percentage of economic activity comes from services, as compared with energy-intensive manufacturers, he said. Many of those manufacturers also use more energy-efficient equipment.

We have to begin to connect the dots here with the President’s advisers and with what is really going on, knowing the internals of Iraq, the nations that she relates to, her internal economic situation, and keeping our eye on the Treasury, who was responsible for the World Trade Center, for the Pentagon and for the disaster over Pennsylvania. It is al Qaeda. They do not have roots in Iraq.

We have persistently asked the administration for any ties that they can see there; and I would just urge, as I know my colleagues are, the American people to distinguish between hearsay and evidence regarding what al Qaeda has done and what Iraq’s record might be.

Now, is Iraq a perfect country? I daresay not. It is not my favorite form of government. No repressive state is. But in that part of the world there is not a single democracy or functioning democratic republic. It simply does not exist. This is for the new generation, to embrace this part of the world in ways that builds more open societies. But, certainly, naked aggression by a superpower with no evidence presented to this Congress is not a way to make friends in that part of the world where, frankly, America needs to make friends.

Mr. Speaker, I would just like to put on the record tonight if there are any officials who may be listening, and I am sure my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH), would agree with this, from the government of Iraq. I, as one Member of Congress, and I know some of my colleagues would join me in this, would certainly entertain a request from the government of Iraq, from Saddam Hussein to meet with Members of this Congress to negotiate the terms of inspection, respecting the role of the United Nations, having members of the United Nations team join us for that; but to extend an open hand to the people of Iraq as we move into this 21st century, to write a new page in history.

We know we do not have a great deal of trust, but one has to confront one’s enemies. One has to be able to talk. Only with that kind of negotiation or does one avoid war. Whether it is through third parties first and then we move to that step, as I as one Member of Congress would certainly be open to it. And I think that a number of my colleagues would join me in that effort.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, the gentlemanwoman is correct in suggesting that we should open up discussions and negotiations. I mean, is that not our purpose as a Nation to find a way to communicate with other nations and with the community through time about global security? Certainly when any one nation in that community of nations wants to stand apart and threaten the safety and the peace of the community of nations, that needs to be regarded. That is why we need arms inspectors in Iraq.

But I want to go back to something I said initially, and that is that Iraq has not been connected to the anthrax or any connection at all. There is no connection between Iraq and al Qaeda.

Even the CIA had to admit that. There is no connection between Iraq and the anthrax attacks. Americans are still grieving about 9-11, but I do not think there is a single person in this country who said, we should attack a Nation as a payback for 9-11 when they did not have anything to do with it, and yet some people in this confusion are turning around and connecting Iraq with 9-11.

We need because Saddam Hussein, we already know from the work that Scott Ritter did that there are not any usable weapons of mass destruction in Iraq. They do not have the ability to deliver such weapons to attack the United States. If Israel thought they had the ability to deliver such weapons to Israel, Israel has the military force to destroy that Iraq capability if they had it.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KUCINICH. I yield to the gentlewoman from Ohio.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I just want to mention that in the Persian Gulf War when I served here and Iraq was able to launch some SCUD missiles into Israel, at that time, she could have equipped them with chemical weapons, with biological weapons, but it was not done, and why would that be? I think because Saddam Hussein, as military leader in his own country, recognized that he and his Nation would face annihilation if that happened. So there is a rational military mind working there.

Mr. KUCINICH. The gentlewoman is correct, and we go back to this, that there is a way out of this mess that we are in. We need a comprehensive solution to the crisis in Iraq, and that solution appropriately involves the world community through the United Nations.

Those inspections ought to begin immediately, and we should work cooperatively with all nations to rid Iraq of any weapons of mass destruction or does one avoid war. Whether it is through third parties first and then we move to that step, as I as one Member of Congress would certainly be open to it. And I think that a number of my colleagues would join me in that effort.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, the gentlewoman is correct in suggesting that we should open up discussions and negotiations. I mean, is that not our purpose as a Nation to find a way to communicate with other nations and with the community through time about global security? Certainly when any one nation in that community of nations wants to stand apart and threaten the safety and the peace of the community of nations, that needs to be regarded. That is why we need arms inspectors in Iraq.

But I want to go back to something I said initially, and that is that Iraq has not been connected to the anthrax or any connection at all. There is no connection between Iraq and al Qaeda.
American people have a right to expect that we do something about these issues that affect their domestic economy, but because of all this war talk, because of this talk of an imminent threat from Iraq, which does not have usable weapons of mass destruction, because of the rush to war and the inability to deliver those weapons, which has not indicated an intent to do so, which did not have anything to do with 9-11, which did not have anything to do with al Qaeda, which did not have anything to do with any of these weapons attacks, because of this imminent threat by Iraq, we somehow are supposed to forget all of the concerns of the American people who are suffering in this economy and an economy which is slowing down. We are supposed to forget all that because Iraq is an imminent threat.

Iraq is not an imminent threat, but the destruction of the American economy, the destruction of people's 401(k)s, the destruction of a family livelihood and the loss of their homes, they cannot pay for it, that is an imminent threat, and we in this country have an obligation. We should demand that this country start focusing on the real problems which affect the daily lives of middle-class Americans. Did we not come here to have to cast a vote on a bogus war against Iraq to let the real human concerns of my people in my district go wanting.

As the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee) said, $100 billion and more will be spent on this war and my senior citizens in my district are splitting their pills so they can make their prescriptions last because they cannot afford the cost of a prescription drug.

I would only add, when the gentleman talks about imminent threat, that if one looks at why we are in the current recession and what triggered it, it was rising oil prices, as happened during the 1970s, when the Arab oil embargo twice delivered blows to this economy and we had prices skyrocket. The price of oil doubled per barrel until the OPEC nations said, gosh, this is not so good if we make America fall to its knees because of imported oil. Then it started to control prices. So the countries, all those countries, and then we moved into the Persian Gulf War in the early 1990s when Iraq invaded Kuwait, and again, why? Because of the threat to the world economy, especially our own, and the instability inherent in these oil economies.

Then just 2 years ago next month, the suicide bombing of the USS Cole in Yemen harbor, our destroyer. What was she doing there? Guarding the pipelines as the oil tankers come out of the Persian Gulf into the West here, upload, and then it is redefined here. Now, with Iraq and all these statements being made by the Bush administration, which has enormous ties to oil, it is no secret that Kenneth Lay and Enron were the largest contributors to the Bush campaign, we have this drumbeat for more U.S. involvement in that part of the world. Where is there every single one of those countries, whether it is Saudi Arabia, whether it is Iraq, whether it is Kuwait.

We really start looking around and saying, oh and with Afghanistan, the pipeline has to run from the Caspian Sea through Afghanistan in order for that crude oil to reach its destination. One of the imminent threats to the United States where over half of our oil is now imported, 25 percent of it from that part of the world, about 28 percent actually, we have to become energy self-sufficient here at home.

So I would say to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Kucinich) thanks for all the research that you have done to move into renewable energy supplies from a hydrocarbon economy to a carbon-generate, a photovoltaic economy, moving into fuel cells and new forms of power for this country so we can cut our military cord to the places in the world that have undemocratic regimes, and every time a consumer in our country goes to the gas pump, half the money they pay for that fuel goes to Saudi Arabia, Iraq. It goes to places in the world that have undemocratic regimes, and places in the world that have no democracy among them.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I have a report here that was done by Miriam Pemberton, who is with the Institute for Policy Studies. She delivered this to a congressional briefing. She said that fears that the U.S. might go ahead with an attack on Iraq have already begun to affect oil prices. When people are going around to the pumps, just the talk of war is starting to affect oil prices. Oil is already close to an 18-month high of $30 a barrel. Ten months ago, according to this report, we forget, but 10 months ago, the price was half that. So within 10 months, oil has doubled in the price per barrel.

As the war fever keeps going, in effect what we have, the war fever has created a premium. So the oil companies are making more money on the war talk, and each time a U.S. official comes out and says something, she says in this report, that suggests an attack, it actually increases or is likely to happen, oil prices spike.

Vice President Cheney made the first of two such speeches on August 26, for example, and by the end of the day the price of each barrel sold on the U.S. market had jumped 65 cents. Think about that, what war talk does.

What does a real war do? The last invasion of Iraq, right after it, oil prices doubled. They stayed high, according to this report, for the better part of a year. A repeat would create ripple effects throughout our economy. Miriam Pemberton says that estimates by Wall Street analysts indicate that a $10 per barrel rise in oil prices, that would be half the amount of the last Gulf War, would over a year’s time reduce U.S. GDP growth by about half a percent and add nearly 1 percent to inflation.

She goes on to say the economic drag from this oil price shock is being felt most strongly in the manufacturing sectors, and she also says that most analysts expect that a U.S. attack on Iraq would send the price of oil beyond $50 a barrel. In other words, more than three times what it was 10 months ago.

So I think that we need to understand that the cost of war is not only in our tax dollars, not only in this horrible cost of the lives of the young men and women we send over there, but also when we combine it with the tax cut and the large increases in military spending, we are looking at a disaster for our economy. Slower growth, a recession. So we should be very concerned about the economic impact, the immediate impact of this war, and we should be concerned about the long-term economic impact of this war.

This is still about the economy, and remember, all of these debates get swept aside with the war talk. Each time the administration stands up and talks about war, we pay for it at the gas pump.

If we go to war, the prices are going to go up three times what they were 10 months ago. These are the concerns I have.

Mr. Speaker, in the closing few minutes I would like to, with my colleagues, the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), talk about what I am hearing from my constituents in Cleveland. When they ask me what can we do, what can anyone do about this rush towards war, talk about a few things that are possible. I hear from the people in my community, they do not want a war. They expect us to solve this without going to war. They expect that we have the talent and the ability to solve these very difficult problems with other nations, particularly with a nation that used to be a good friend over in the gulf and to whom we sold chemical and biological and nuclear weapons capabilities; and if we could do that a few years ago, why not solve this. Look at the battlefields of World War II. We were at war with Japan and Germany, and they are our good friends now.

We need to work with the international community now. Let us suppose this effort, despite all of our work, just keeps moving along. What can people do, they ask me. Here is what can be done. There needs to be meetings all over this Nation in city councils, town halls, in labor halls and community centers. People need to come together, and they need to talk about how they feel about this. They need to organize.

When I was elected to city council in Cleveland many years ago, I got elected by knocking on doors. I did not have any money. I just went door to door and talked to people. We need to talk to each other again. We need an up-lifting of our civic consciousness. We need to recreate our civic soul in this country. We need to recreate our national sense of community. We need to do it by talking to each other, by organizing door to door. Go to your neighbors, create a place for a meeting. Take the information door to door about the meeting. Let people know where they can get involved. Tell them to hold a meeting. Talk about gathering more and more people. Gather by the thousands in your town squares. This is what I tell my constituents.

We need a national revival of this concept of government of the people. Government of the people works because people stay involved. Lincoln’s prayer, the prayer that he gave at Gettysburg, a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, the way it is realized is when people get involved. So knock on doors. Put a piece of literature in people’s hands, I tell my constituents. Tell them how they can come to a meeting. Tell them that they are needed. People together set an agenda, invite your Member of Congress or other government officials. Invite church leaders to moderate it. We need it talk to each other about this. We can avoid this war. It is not inevitable. We need to connect again with each other.

Each of us is an architect of the world, and our thoughts and words and our deeds are part of that structure of the world. We can recreate the world right now. War is not inevitable. Peace is inevitable if we begin talking to each other and organize at a community level.

There are polling lists available. You can go to a board of elections and find out who the voters are in your precinct, and you can get a list of phone numbers and call people and go back to contacting people, hold those meetings and hold those rallies. I believe, as I talk about this, that we can turn this around, that we are not stuck with war; but we need to hear from the American people. And my constituents, I tell them, if you talk to your neighbors about it, we can catalyze a change in this country. And I know that the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) works closely with her constituents and tells them how they can make a difference.

Ms. KAPTUR, one of the best forums that we have involved a combination of universities, church leaders, community activists, citizens, just inviting ordinary citizens to learn. Many people feel powerless. They feel this is foreign policy, what can I do about that. I think they underestimate their own power.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentlewoman is right. Today we have this most intricate of the Web. They say I do not know how to use it. I say ask your kids. They have computers. They can get you on a site and you can start to talk to people. went to the Post. I am not sure which way it happened, but somehow or other they got together and decided to write a story about a family, the Apodaca family. They decided to highlight a particular individual, a young man that is the old man of the family, I believe, who is graduating from high school in Aurora, Colorado, in my district, who has evidently been a model student with very good grades who is now faced with a dilemma. The dilemma that I know about is, how is he going to pay for it.

Mr. Speaker, across the country there are several attempts being made to change State laws with regard to illegal immigrants’ access to higher education. I believe several States have actually changed their laws that will allow in-state tuition for kids who are themselves illegal or parents of illegal immigrants. This is a major push on the part of the Mexican Government through the Mexican consuls throughout the country, and it is expected that push by immigration advocates all over the country and groups like La Raza and others who want a variety of things, including free K-12 education which they already have, free or tax-payer public school in public schools which they do not now have, and driver’s licenses and welfare and a number of other things that would add up to citizenship. That is really the point of all of this.

The attempt is being made to erase anything that would be a distinguishment of someone being here illegally. Because after all, if you can come to the United States illegally, put your kids into school, which you can today under Supreme Court rulings, have them educated at taxpayer expense, if you can eventually get taxpayers to subsidize their higher education, if you can get taxpayers to subsidize welfare, to pay for welfare for illegal aliens into the country, if you can get State legislatures to change their laws to provide driver’s licenses to people who are here illegally, then what happens, after a while there is nothing that separates you from anyone who is here legally.

If you are present, if you are physically present in the country that we call the United States, you will have all of the benefits of being a citizen, and it does not matter how you got here. This is the hope; this is the plan. To some extent it has been successful, as I say, in several State legislatures. I think California is one, perhaps Utah is another. But the same thing is going on in Colorado.

So there was this plan, if you will, to begin a lobbying process to change our laws in Colorado to allow people who are here, who are in the country and in Colorado in this particular case illegally, to have access to higher education. So the Mexican consul provided the names of a family, the Apodaca family, to the Denver Post. This was a particularly sympathetic case because apparently these folks came here 7 or 8 years ago, by their own admission illegally, but have so far lived the lives of model citizens. They send their kids to school. They are employed, or at least the husband is employed; and so they are now in this precarious position. They are trying to figure out what to do about the problem they face. How do you send your kids to higher ed, to the University of Colorado?

So about a month ago, as I say, the Denver Post highlighted these people. They in fact put them on the front page of the Denver Post, this family, put in a picture and ran this very, very long story about the family and said, gee, these people, yes, they are here illegally, but they are not concerned about that. They are, as I say, giving their names and locales to the paper and we should in fact now be, of course, cognizant of and sympathetic to their plight.

I read this story as did hundreds of thousands of other people in Colorado and thought, is it not interesting that we are now at the point where people who have been here so long are now being so brazen as to make that known publicly without the slightest fear of any sort of negative ramifications? Is it not amazing, I thought, that the Mexican consul would be so audacious as to become involved in the United States? And, more importantly, is it not an affront to every single person who has come to this country legally? Is it not a slap in the face to every single person in this country who has gone through the brain damage and the expense of coming here through the legal process?

Mr. Speaker, I have been able to go up to Commerce City, Colorado, where we have had and where they still have ceremonial occasions to recognize people who are now taking their oath of citizenship to the country. They are becoming new citizens. I have gone there and I have spoken to these groups and I have said, first of all, I want to welcome you to the United States. Secondly, I want to thank you for doing it the right way, for going through the process, for spending the time, the money, for being inconvenienced as I know you are, for trying to learn the language as you are supposed to do. I want to thank you all of that, because you are acting as good citizens. And every time that we do things like provide amnesty for people who come here illegally, it is a slap in the face to all those who have done it the right way.

Mr. Speaker. I have in my office as I know you do and every Member of this Congress, we have lists of people who have applied for some sort of change in their immigration status and they have asked us to help. And we have. Well over 100 I saw at last count in our office. It is certain that in other districts, certain other congressional districts, the numbers are higher; but in mine, a relatively suburban district, 100, that is quite a few for us. We have actually two people assigned to helping those folks come into the United States or if they are here, to get their status adjusted under the law. That is a resource allocation that I think is unique. I do not believe I have two people in my staff who have a single responsibility or at least have some partial responsibility for a single issue. But that is the load we have, and that is the dedication I have to trying to help.

I thought to myself when I read this story on the front page of the Denver Post that it is amazing that we are so blatant, so fearless about the fact that you do not have to go through that process; that, in fact, you are suckers if you do; that you are being naives if you try to abide by the laws; that you will become celebrities. You will be on the front page of the Denver Post. You will be characterized as heroes because you have lived a good life and you have done what is expected of you in America, you have had a job and you send your kids to school; and therefore because you are an “A” student, we should ignore the fact that you are here illegally and tell everyone in America who is here because they came the right way that they have been suckers.

It also tells everybody in the world who is waiting for the opportunity to come to the United States legally that they should simply ignore the bureaucracy, which can be daunting in terms of the obstacles it sets up, and they should simply go to the head of the line. They should simply pass by everybody waiting and enter the gate. That is what amnesty does and that is what we tell people when we showcase them for being here illegally.

Mr. Speaker, I do not know the Apodacas. From everything I have read, they seem to be very fine people who have, as I say, tried to come to the United States for the same reasons that my grandparents, perhaps yours, came here, looking for a better life. I do not blame them for wanting it. But I must admit to you that when the decision was made by the Denver Post and the family and the Mexican consul to showcase these people, they put those folks in jeopardy. Because somebody is going to say, Is this right that you can violate the laws of the Nation with such impunity? Is it right that all those who have attempted to do it the right way should be so insulted? I certainly did not think so when I read the story.

So I waited about 3 weeks or more and finally I called the INS office in Denver and I said, can I please speak to the head of the agency? It was a gentleman by the name of Mr. Comfort. Again, a very nice fellow whom I have met with in the past. I asked him in the beginning of our conversation, I said, Mr. Comfort, you as the head of the regional office for the INS, if you walked out of the office and were heading over to lunch at a restaurant across the street and somebody came up to you on the street and said, I want to tell you something if you don’t mind. I am a person who is a good citizen. I have a job. I have never been in trouble with the law. I had just talked to the INS and I said to someone that the Denver Post is very upset about the fact that I did this. I have tried to explain to them that really what I did was what hundreds of other citizens I know have tried to do and that is to talk to the INS, get them to look into the situation, the situation that individuals may feel exists out there in terms of illegals being here and that the INS routinely ignores those inquiries and/or reports from John Q. Citizen. In this case because I was able to get the head of the INS on the phone and speak to him directly, they were perhaps less able to ignore my request to them to look into the issue.

I did not demand, I should say, anyone else. I am talking about the Apodaca family, who was the young man that was identified in this story as being the “A” student who is looking for a college education, or anyone else. I simply said, Would you look into this, would you simply send a letter and ask these people to come in and talk to you? But the press has portrayed this in a way, as you might imagine, to make it appear as though I have taken it upon myself to become the head of the INS and “bully,” I think is the word they use most often, and “mean-spirited.” Another one that they throw in there.

Then yesterday we got a call from the same reporter who had done this story, and he said, we have found out because of good reporting that Congressman TANCREDO has hired people to work in his home, in his home, in this case to finish a basement, and they were illegal, they were here illegally, and they wanted to know whether we had a response. My response was, I fact did hire a company, a very reputable company to finish my basement and to put in a home theater for a Christmas present to my family. It was truly an expensive one, but it is one that we were able to pay for by refinancing my home, which is what we did. I went to a company in Denver, I purchased the equipment, and I asked if they also installed. They said yes. I also need the basement to be finished for this. They said they could do that. Part of their company was also a construction company.

I hired them for this purpose. They were quite poor, truth be told. But we checked out their references and they were good. And we felt because they had promised me to get it done by Christmas last year, that we would go ahead and pay the extra money that we thought we were paying compared to other estimations of what it was going to cost us. We got it done and the family themselves choose not to complain about whatsoever. Now, I do not know exactly what the point of it is, but I know they are very upset about the fact that we have called them on this issue of highlighting the Apodaca family. So, as a “result of good reporting,” they have uncovered some illegals who are in Colorado, and they are going to publish a story tomorrow about that.

Now, I have to tell you, Mr. Speaker, that I have not been called mean-spirited, I have not been called mean-spirited, because I called the INS and asked them to look into the Apodaca story, which had been printed in the paper serial several weeks before. But, Mr. Speaker, I have to also tell you that I do not seek out people who are here illegally. I do not ask not ask people who may be serving me at a restaurant, who may be doing my lawn work or putting on the roof of my house, or, in this case, the laborers of a company that I hired to put in a home theater system and finish my basement. I do not ask them to show me proof of the fact that the people, I do not say, you know, the waiter that you sent me last night could not speak English well, or the cab driver that I got when I came over here could not speak English very well, so I would like to see whether or not they are here illegally, I do not do that. I think that would be sort of mean-spirited, frankly. I do not do that. I got into this issue, became so acquainted with the Apodaca family, because the Post and Mexican Consul and the family themselves choose to make themselves known to me and to the rest of the people in Colorado, the entire citizenry.

So, I do not know, Mr. Speaker, frankly, I have not the foggiest idea of whether or not the people who were employed by the company that I hired were illegal. I know they were good workers and did a great job. That is all we were to do. Denver Post continues to press this, if they identify people and companies, then, of course, I would tell the INS the same thing:
“Look, the Denver Post is once again pointing out people who are here illegally. Are you going to do something about it?”

But I want to try to just make people understand the nature of this debate. I know theangling rows. I know that I am going to be vilified in the paper. Tomorrow I am sure that the article that the Denver Post writes about me will not be complimentary. But, you know, I guess I am really thinking what is real here with you tonight, and that is, who is really the bully? Who is really mean-spirited here?

I hope that we will enforce our immigration laws in this country. I hope that we will stiffen those laws. I hope that we will in fact even put military troops on the border to help enforce immigration laws. But I will tell you, Mr. Speaker, quite honestly, that if this Nation decides that it does not wish to enforce immigration laws, that if we do not wish to have a border that requires somebody to get permission to cross, that is okay with me. It is not okay, I would be a no vote on that bill, but let us assume for a moment that this House and the Senate, the other body and the President agree that we should abandon this whole concept of border security and immigration policy. If it is the will of the majority, I would live by it.

The idea that we can have a law in place where everybody enters the country illegally, but, on the other hand, if you do, and if you are a nice guy and if you have got a kid who is an A student, I do not know, if he is a B student, I am not sure we would cut him slack, or C or D or F, or maybe if he does not go to school at all, maybe then we should try to deport him. So maybe we should make an immigration policy that depends upon someone’s grade point average, or whether or not they have simply been in the country a while and kept a job and stayed out of trouble.

You know, whatever we do, whatever this Congress and the Senate decide to do, the other body decides to do, and the President agrees to, that is the law of the land and I certainly would abide by it. But if we, unfortunately for the Apodacas, have a law that says if you come into the country illegally you are subject to deportation, even if your child is an A student, even if you have lived in the country as model citizens, you do not have the right to citizenship, as long as that is the law of the land, then let me ask you, is it being a bully to ask the INS to enforce the law?

Now, again, Mr. Speaker, I want to say we know there are between 9 million and 13 million people who are here illegally. That is true. I have not the foggiest idea how many people I may have hired in the past as taxi drivers, as waiters, waitresses, house improvement people. I have not the foggiest idea how many of those people may have been here illegally, and it is not my job to ask them. In fact, Mr. Speaker, it is against the law to do so. You could be sued under the Civil Rights Act if you go out and ask people that have been hired by somebody else if they are here illegally or not. I do not do that, I do not inquire.

If you go to the Denver Post or any other newspaper and you say, “I am here illegally and here is the benefits that I want,” then, of course, I think it is a different situation, and the Denver Post and the Apodacas. What and this family have to have some responsibility for making the choice to become prominently displayed on the front page of a major newspaper.

Now, I know that this is a very controversial and very emotional issue. It is not a question of being here and discussing it. Frankly, there are other things that are also important to me, other issues; the tax policy of the country, the war, the potential war with Iraq, there are a whole bunch of things I may consider very heavily and weigh on my mind, as I know they do on yours, Mr. Speaker, and every other Member of this body.

But I must admit to you that what is happening here by attempts in this case by the Mexican Consul and sympathetic news media, the attempts to characterize illegal immigration as benign, that is wrong and it is dangerous. The Apodaca family, certainly from all accounts, the Apodacas, are no danger to the United States. They pose no danger. They seem like good people. People would be happy to have as neighbors and friends. But it is irrelevant to the issue as to whether or not they have broken the law to come into the country.

What is the most discouraging or disconcerting aspect of this whole thing is that when trying to characterize and personify the illegal immigration issue by using the Apodacas, what you do is ignore another face of illegal immigration that is much, much uglier, much nastier. That is the face of illegal immigration that you confront on the borders of this country, both the Canadian border and the Mexican border. It is the face of murder, it is the face of infiltration into the country of people who are coming to do us great harm, it is the face of drug smuggling. It is the face of rape and robbery, because when the people come into the United States, in this case from Mexico, into the United States, they charge them sometimes $1,000 or $1,500 to bring them into the United States illegally, and when they get to the borders they rape the women, they steal the money, they force the people into the United States into one of the most inhospitable parts of the country in terms of the desert, and they die out there. This is an ugly thing.

It is the face of murder, where a little over a month and a half ago a young man by the name of Kris Eggle, who was a Park Service employee, he was a Park Ranger in the Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument in Arizona, and Chris, who was 28 years old, along with a colleague in the Border Patrol, stopped two Mexicans who had come across the border after having murdered four people in Mexico in some sort of drug deal, and this drug deal was not just a drug deal that went away, or they were hit men for some cartel. I do not know all of the details. But they came into the United States. They were stopped by this young man, 28 years old, and when he got out of the car, he was killed. They opened up on him with automatic weapons and killed him.

I went to his funeral in Ajo, Arizona, where I saw his mother and his father, I saw all of his colleagues from the Border Patrol, the Park Service, from the Customs agency, all of them coming to pay their respects. But I saw no one else from the government. I saw no members of the media to talk about this face of illegal immigration into this country.

I have not heard a thing about the fact that a short time ago, maybe less than a week ago, two FBI agents on the border near El Paso, I believe, were ambushed, dragged, murdered, and battered almost to death. They are both in the hospital in Texas in critical condition. I have seen nothing about that face of illegal immigration.

I have seen nothing about the fact that hundreds and hundreds of thousands of pounds of illegal narcotics are confiscated on our borders with both Canada and Mexico every year, and I have seen nothing about the fact that agents are routinely placed in harm’s way. Border Patrol agents, U.S. Forest Service personnel, are placed in harm’s way and injured and in fact killed in defense of the Nation’s immigration policy, so-called immigration policy.

I have seen nothing about that in the Denver Post.

I have seen nothing about the fact that I received the following message from someone who will remain anonymous, but here is what he says: “Sir: Until about 5 months ago I was a U.S. Border Patrol agent. I was recently informed by a friend who is still with the U.S. Border Patrol of another Ramirez-type incident that Border Patrol agents had been ordered not to talk about and that the Border Patrol is desperately trying to keep away from the media. A Catholic nun was recently raped and murdered in Oregon by a Mexican illegal alien who was apprehended earlier by U.S. Border Patrol agents in Deming, New Mexico. The IDENT/ENFORCE system worked and the system alerted the agent that the alien was a violent criminal. The subject was released back into Mexico where he promptly made his way back into the United States, traveled to Oregon and raped two nuns, one of which was almost murdered. The Border Patrol has put the word out to its agents that this information is not to be divulged to anyone outside the U.S. Border Patrol. The patrol agent in charge of the Deming, New Mexico station has been relieved and temporarily assigned to the sector headquarters in El Paso, Texas. The killing of the nun made the news, but the fact that the killer is an illegal alien recently captured and released by the Border Patrol did not. Hopefully, you can change that. Keep up the good work.

Well, thank you, sir, for your courage in telling me and telling, therefore, the country about this. Because I can assure my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, that this will not be on the front page of the Denver Post tomorrow. The fact that I hired a company that purportedly hired illegal aliens to work on my base- ment, according to what we were told tonight by the Post, but this will not, although the story has certainly made news earlier, they said it was news in Oregon, it will not be there, because this is not the face of illegal immigra- tion that the press wants to present to the American public. However, this is the face of illegal immigration on our borders.

Mr. Speaker, I have come to this floor many times. I have no doubt that my concerns about illegal immigra- tion, about the immigration issue have made the face of very powerful ene- mies. I have no doubt that they will from this point on hound me, dog me, find out who delivers the milk to my house, who cuts our lawn. I mean, I have no idea to what extent they will go to. They will try to make me to bring this message. I guess, of course, it is an intimidating thing, but I also know that, because I have to ask myself and my own conscience, is this the right thing to do. I have to search my own conscience, Mr. Speaker, about why I do it. Is it out of some sort of animosity or animus that I have? I truly do not believe that is the case. I know that I would be doing essentially the same thing, as millions of others who are seeking a better life in the United States, I would be looking for a way into the country.

I do not necessarily blame the people who come here illegally. I blame our own government for encouraging it on the one hand by refusing to actually secure our borders, and periodically giving amnesty so as to tell people all over the world that the message is, by the way, to come into the United States, and for not cracking down on people who illegally hire workers, knowingly hire somebody who is here illegally, then, of course, there is a price to pay. And I only suggest that if we want to have an immigration policy that establishes what the borders of the United States are and that one must ask permission to come across them, as we must do going to either Canada or Mexico, that the law, and that those borders, ought to be actually upheld.

It is amazing to me and incredibly ironic in a way that the Mexican con- sul has been so actively involved with trying to change our immigration sta- tus. It is amazing to me that the Mexi- can consul and advocates for immigra- tion policies, for liberal immigration policies continually ignore the laws that are in place in our neighboring countries, Canada and Mexico. I have yet to see in the Mexican press or the Canadian press negative stories about those borders, because if you enter illegally, you can be prosecuted for that. I have yet to see a story in the press about the fact that neither Cana- da nor Mexico, nor any other country of which I am aware, will allow you to transport people to the northern border. How does this add to the taxpayers’ expense of that country, go on to higher education at the tax- payers’ expense of that country, if you are not a citizen of that country.

I have never seen an article written attacking any country for their mean- spirited immigration policy. I have never seen the Mexican consul speak out in the United States, and certainly I would be amazed if they did, of course, against the repressive actions taken by the Mexican Government against Guatemalans who periodically come into the country of Mexico ille- gally. Often, the Mexican Government will send troops to that southern bor- der, to their southern border and they will round them up, and I mean that in the ugliest sense of the words, round up illegal Guatemalans, illegal aliens into Mexico from Guate- mala, they will round them up, send them back, they will incarcerate them. Mr. Speaker, I would be truly surprised to see the kind of detention facilities in Mexico for peo- ple who have entered their country ille- gally. They are not nice places. I as- sure my colleagues that the detention facilities that we have in the United States are more like Hilton hotels than in comparison to the detention facility for illegal entrance into Mexico. But there has not been a word of concern about that, has there? Have I missed it? Has any paper in the United States attacked the Government for their attitude about illegal immigrants into Mexico? Has any media outlet in this country suggested that Mexico should begin educating all children who go to Mexico, regardless of where they are from, at the expense of the Mexican taxpayer? We do that. We do that because the Supreme Court has ruled that if you are here, even if you are illegal, we need to give you a K–12 education.

Now, so far they have not ruled that we have to give you a higher education at taxpayers’ expense, but that is what they are seeking. That is what the peo- ple that support a liberalized immigra- tion policy, that is what they are seek- ing. I have never heard anybody else, the fact that in these countries if you do not do what they are demand- ing of us. So is it mean-spirited, truly, for me to suggest that if we have an immigration policy, we should uphold it; if we do not wish to do so, we should abandon it?

I assure my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, and I have said this on the floor many times, that I wish there was someone with the courage to introduce a bill into this House that says we will aban- don our borders, there is no need for them, we want the free flow of goods, services, and people. And if it passes, over my “no” vote, if it passes and if it passes the other body, and if it is signed by the President of the land, and I walk away from the issue. But if, on the other hand, we pre- tend that we have borders and that for some reason that is important, which I think it is, then should we not do ev- erything possible to uphold the law about those borders, especially, espe- cially, Mr. Speaker, in times like these, in times that present the United States with the potential for cata- strophic terrorist activity, cata- strophic events that could be per- petrated by people who have come across our borders illegally? Should we not try to defend those borders? Should we not try?

When we go to the American public, either the administration or the Con- gress goes to the American public and says we are trying to do whatever we can, we are doing everything we can to protect you, can we be truthful in that, Mr. Speaker? Do we believe that we are doing everything we can to protect America? If that is the case, then why is it still possible for someone to come into the country and border illegally, go to school at their expense, at the expense of that country, if you happen to agree with? I mean, I agree that he is a threat and that we should depose him. But is it not just as impor- tant for us to defend our own country at the closest point of vulnerability, that point is the southern, eastern and western borders of the United States? I cannot for the life of me understand why we do not pur- sue that as aggressively as we do a war with Iraq.

If we go to war with Iraq, does any- one not believe that the danger to the United States is infinitely larger, that the danger will not come on the battlefields of Iraq necessarily, al- though that is certainly a dangerous place, but it will also come as a result of increased infiltration into the United States of fundamentalist is- lamic cells designed and with the pur- pose, I should say, of doing us great harm? Would that not be only logical to assume as a possibility? And should any country not do the rational thing and try to actually defend those bor- ders, even if it is the cost to do ev- erything possible to uphold the law about those borders?
But, Mr. Speaker, we cannot set up a sieve that distinguishes that. We cannot really expect people on the border to go, I see you coming across here, you look to me to be someone who is just coming across for a job and a better education for your kids. I am going to stop you by. But you, you look like someone who might be coming across to do us great harm. No, of course, we cannot do that. I mean, even if we tried, the ACLU would go crazy and call it racial profiling or something, we do that. We either defend our borders or we do not.

Either walk away from this and stop putting our Border Patrol, or Forest Service people, our Park Service employees, our Customs agents, stop putting them in jeopardy of their lives for a principle one is not willing to uphold. One or the other. Mr. President and Mr. Speaker, one or the other. Uphold the law or abandon the law, repeal the law. Those are our choices. But this half-baked approach is the worst possible way to deal with it.

And I will suffer the slings and arrows of an angry media and of angry constituents. That is the way it should be. We make a decision on behalf of our constituents. That is the way it should be. That is the way it should be. We vote on it. We defend our borders or we do not.

DEFEND OUR BORDERS

Mr. Speaker, that this issue eventually resolves itself so that our Nation is defended and that the idea of sovereignty is upheld and the hopes and dreams of millions of people seeking to come here will be fulfilled, seeking to come here legally.

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable Jack Reed, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island.

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Our gracious God, we praise You for the privilege of being alive. Thank You for the gift of breath. We breathe in Your grace and breathe out stress and worry. We feel our pulses beat reminding us of the gift of circulation. Our minds form the images of thought about the opportunities of this new day. We are grateful for our intellects, the education we've had in this free land, and the opportunity to think creatively today. You have created us with emotions so we could love, feel deeply for others, and rejoice in our friendship with You, our Creator and Friend. And so we accept this day as a gift and join the psalmist in exulting, Bless the Lord, O my soul and forget not all of his benefits!—Psalm 103:1. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable Jack Reed led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE

The Presiding Officer. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Byrd).

The legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. Senate
President pro tempore
Washington, DC, September 18, 2002.
To the Senate:

Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Jack Reed, a Senator from the State of Rhode Island, to perform the duties of the Chair.

Robert C. Byrd,
President pro tempore.

Mr. Reed thereupon assumed the Chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The Acting President pro tempore. The acting majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, there will be a period of morning business that will begin at 11:30 today, with the first half hour under the control of Senator Daschle and the second half under the control of Senator Lott. We are now going to be back on the Interior appropriations bill. There is not a great deal that can be done because of the procedural quagmire in which we find ourselves because cloture was not invoked. At 12:30 we will go off Interior and go back to the homeland security bill. At that time, Senator Byrd will be recognized to offer his amendment regarding the orderly transition of the new Department. Cloture was filed under the Lieberman substitute amendment to the Homeland Security Act. Because of this, all first-degree amendments will have to be filed prior to 1 p.m. today.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The Acting President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2003

The Acting President pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of H.R. 5093, which the clerk will report. The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 5093) making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2003, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Byrd Amendment No. 4472, in the nature of a substitute.

Byrd Amendment No. 4480 (to Amendment No. 4472), to provide funds to repay accounts from which funds were borrowed for emergency wildfire suppression.

Craig/Domenici Amendment No. 4518 (to Amendment No. 4480), to reduce hazardous fuels on our national forests.

Dodd Amendment No. 4522 (to Amendment No. 4472), to prohibit the expenditure of funds to recognize Indian tribes and tribal nations until the date of implementation of certain administrative procedures.

Byrd/Stevens Amendment No. 4532 (to Amendment No. 4472), to provide for critical emergency supplemental appropriations.

Daschle motion to reconsider the vote whereby cloture was not invoked on Byrd Amendment No. 4480 (to Amendment No. 4472).

The Acting President pro tempore. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. Burns. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The Acting President pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Enzi. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum be rescinded.

The Presiding Officer (Mr. Miller). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Enzi. Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment introduced by my colleagues, Senators Craig and Domenici, that I feel is critical to the survival of many forests in Wyoming and across the rest of the United States.

This amendment gives the Secretaries of Agriculture and Interior the ability to recognize emergency conditions that exist on many of our forests and then allows land managers to act to protect them from the extreme threat of wildfire, specifically in those areas suffering from drought and high tree mortality resulting from insect infestation, disease, invasive plant species, or other catastrophic natural events. In other words, it allows land management agencies to clean up their tinder boxes before they explode.

Wyoming is currently suffering its third year of drought, and our neighbor to the north, Montana, is in its fifth year. In the southeastern United States, drought lingered six months on record from December to May. And South Dakota had the driest June on record.

More than half the United States is considered to be in drought conditions, and some estimates place this drought in the West to eventually be worse than the Dust Bowl years of the 1930s.

When these dry conditions combine with the dense fuel loads that exist in our National Forest System, we get a fire storm that sets new records for intensity, for severity, and for extent. In fact, things are so hot and dry in Wyoming, we have considered outlawing corduroy pants.

Already, the 2002 fire season has burned more than 6,418,302 acres, or, in other words, 10,032 square miles, or—to put it a little differently—a 4-mile-wide strip from Washington, DC, to Los Angeles, CA. And that is packed into the Western States. This has already cost our National Forests millions of dollars, and it will cost us millions more before the fire season is over.

Earlier this year, Forest Service Chief Dale Bosworth was forced to notify his forest supervisors that his agency expects to meet—and I would say to exceed—the record of 2000 fire season, where more than 8.4 million acres burned, and we spent more than $1.3 billion. As was noted earlier, 2002 has already, with that crown being lit, surpassed the 2000 fire season that sets new records for intensity, for severity, and for extent.

When a wind is created by the burning trees upslope from it, fire burns up. The fire even creates a wind that moves the fire faster. If the fire happens to be in a sloping ravine—one of these canyons—the ravine creates a wind tunnel that amplifies the speed of the wind. The ravine provides a chimney effect that further dries the trees and warms them so they are more combustible.

To fight the fires, it is necessary to get the firefighters to the fire. If the fire starts to move fast, it is also necessary to be able to get the firefighters out quickly. We are eliminating roads necessary to be able to get the firefighters out, I will talk about that a little bit later. The bigger the fire, the harder it is to contain and the more dangerous it is to the lives of those fighting it.

Mr. President, I think we get that much per month out here, sometimes, in Washington. They do not understand the difference between drought in an arid area and drought in a rain forest. Because we have less moisture, the undervegetation is different and is dry. It is often pine needles and pine needles easily combust.

The West is mostly pine trees instead of hardwoods. The ground is steeply sloped. We get these storms out in Wyoming, not the rolling hills, we call mountains here in the East. So the ground is steeply sloped and it has ravines; those are small canyons. Some of them are pretty good-sized canyons. Pines grow easier than hardwoods because they are more porous and are dryer. The trees have needles instead of leaves. When bark beetles infect a pine tree, they kill the pine, but the needles do not drop off like leaves would drop off of a normal tree. They dry out. They turn a rust color. And they stay on the tree for at least a year. They ignite even easier on the tree because the air can get to the needles. Even the bark on the trees is different. Hardwoods have a denser bark, which is harder to ignite so it makes really good tinder. It peels off the tree pretty easily. Even controlled burns, prescribed burns—the burns that we set intentionally in the forests—can kill trees; and they do. Many of the prescribed burns get out of control. These are such tinder boxes that they get out of control; they race through and kill the trees, not just the underbrush they are supposed to kill.

And a lot of it has to do with the difference in the vegetation.

If a beetle-killed pine is at the bottom of a hill, it easily fires up all the trees upslope from it. Fire burns up. The fire even creates a wind that moves the fire faster. If the tree happens to be in a sloping ravine—one of these canyons—the ravine creates a wind tunnel that amplifies the speed of the wind. Third, when ‘let it burn’ really worked was only when the western pop—unpop—ulation lived in tepees. They started a lot of fires. They started fires to make meadows for the wild game and to produce some plants that need more open space. But they lived in tepees. And when a fire started up in their home and they moved out of range. When the fire was over, they found more beautiful land and they started again.

Today there isn’t that flexibility of moving or of land availability. No one wants their home to burn down. In fact, no one even wants to save their cabin if the only view they will have for the next 20 years is charred and limbless trees. Not only is the view ruined by a fire, but on the slopes we have out West, consider a 1,200-year-old forest, it is a natural fire. We have to let it burn. When a fire starts, the American dream is recognized in the Forest Service. When a fire starts, they fold up a tent and get out of the way. When a fire starts, they fold up a tent and get out of the way.

The bigger the fire, the harder it is to contain and the more dangerous it is to the lives of those fighting it.

Second, an isolated fire that is allowed to burn becomes a huge wildfire very difficult to put out. I will talk about that a little bit later. The bigger the fire, the harder it is to contain and the more dangerous it is to the lives of those fighting it.

small business, when you do all ends of the thing. She owns a Montana logging firm. Two years ago, during those terrible fires we had in 2000, she testified at a special hearing that Senator Burns and Senator Craig held in Billings, MT. One of the big points she made was that there is a difference between what she does and what Mother Nature does, and it is primarily that her firm respects the rule banning timber activities within 400 feet from a stream. A fire burns right down to the stream, and so the erosion can go clear to the stream.

She also brought in a little bit of a sample of some wood. I should have brought it this morning—except we are not supposed to have three-dimensional items on the floor—to show what some of these diseased trees are like. It is a core of wood about that big around. It has pine beetles in it, but it still would make homes.

So the big difference between having a conscientious firm do the work and Mother Nature do the work is that the firm respects the 400 feet from the stream.

I recently ran across a book called "Fire on the Mountain." It is by John N. Maclean. Some of you are probably more familiar with his dad who wrote a book that became a movie called "A River Runs Through It." It has some great pictures of the West in there and some great fishing pictures as well. I recommend "A River Runs Through It." But for knowledge of fires, I recommend to everybody, even in cities, that they read "Fire on the Mountain," which is very well done. It is from 5 years' worth of research about a fire on Storm King Mountain in Colorado. It was in the south canyon and in sight of the I-70 interstate and Canyon Creek Estates. It happened on July 3, 1994, and resulted in the death of 14 fire-fighters, professional firefighters, one who had heard about the fires like the one in Mann Gulch. These are people who know how fast these things can go but still have trouble believing it.

I want to read a couple of excerpts from this book because it will give us a little bit of an idea of what it is like when one of these pine forests catches fire. On September 1, a motorist, driving through heavy rain on I-70 past the foot of Storm King, heard "a whossoothing like a real strong wind going through the mountains." Hundreds of tons of mud, blackened trees, and scorched ground were seen as the fire, slide down gullies, spilled across I-70, and poured into the Colorado River. The mud engulfed 30 vehicles. Traffic on I-70 was backed up for 4 miles. Several people and vehicles were swept into the river. Two people were injured, but [fortunately] no one was killed.

That is the aftermath effect of a forest fire. That is another reason we are trying to stop forest fires, particularly in these mountainous areas. They destroy the mountain.

Now, so far we have been lucky that some of our most dangerous areas haven't caught fire. We have not been lucky in deaths caused by these forest fires. I think we are up to 22 deaths so far caused by the forest fires this year alone. Not all of those could have been avoided, but many could have been avoided by having healthy forests.

We really need a discussion in this country about what a healthy forest is. We have to move away from thinking one side wants every tree cut down and the other side wants no trees cut down. We have to get to where we are thinking about the health of the forests and the beauty we want our kids to be able to see in several years.

One of the areas I am particularly concerned about is just east of Cody, WY, the Shoshone National Forest, it lies right next to Yellowstone National Park. This is an area considered critical habitat for wolves, grizzlies, whooping cranes, elk, bison, mule deer, and several other animals that spend their time living in Yellowstone National Park when the snows get deep in Wyoming. The area is also home to a very severe pine beetle infestation that threatens to ignite and cause extreme damage to the park, the forest, and the surrounding communities.

This summer, the National Forest Foundation—these are individuals who believe in putting their money where their mouth is. They put money into a foundation, and occasionally, they get matching money. They do pilot projects that allow experiments to be done in forests to make them as healthy as possible. I want to challenge any environmental group out there to do that. But, with me there is no number. I guess how much of the money they collect goes to actually solving the problem they are talking about—not going into court actions to stop other people from doing anything, but actually working on the ground. Then, I would happily congratulate the National Forest Foundation for putting their money where their mouth is. I got to see some of these projects which have created habitat, primarily for elk, and where most importantly they were able to drive out of the fire danger, making some beautiful areas in Wyoming, getting rid of these rust-colored abominations that we have.
A year ago there was a fire in Yellowstone Park. I went to that fire. I wanted to see how the new fire plan was working. I have to tell you that every firefighter I talked to was thankful that we have a policy now of stopping the burn as fast as we can. We used to have a policy of let it burn and then when it started getting in the area of structures, we started to worry about it. Often the flames were maybe as high as 150 feet, and we could not do anything about it. So they really like this new policy. It is much safer for them to go in as soon as the fire starts and put it out.

On the Storm King fire, as I mentioned, they noticed flame from these Canyon Creek Estates on July 3, and it was 3 days later before anybody went to take care of the fire. It was just a small plume of smoke quite a ways from homes. In a matter of a few minutes, it turned and became a danger to those homes. People living at the bottom of these areas are not very pleased to have a fire going alongside their homes, even if it is quite distant.

They showed me some of their maps and, from where we were, we could actually see what they were talking about. For some reason, there are concentrating 80 percent of their fire suppression efforts on one small part of Yellowstone Park, right at the edge of the park. The reason they were doing that was there was this big pine beetle infestation next to that. It is very interesting to hear that from Yellowstone into the infestation, it would have taken out the lodges and homes and the Boy Scout camp between there and the reservoir near Cody. They had meetings with people in the lodges and in the homes and made sure they had an evacuation plan.

If you are a tourist in a lodge, and the owner of the lodge is explaining the forest fire evacuation plan to you, it doesn't make it any less relaxing to just listen. And when you go home, you don't say: There is this great place outside of Yellowstone I would like to visit, but you have to watch out for forest fire evacuations.

At any rate, the firefighters there wanted to know what I was going to do about removing those pine beetle trees because they are a huge danger to the forest. Nobody wants to drive through charred trees to get to Yellowstone Park. There are the trees that need to be taken out. They run through some ravines. What I talked about could actually happen with the area just outside of Yellowstone Park. Fortunately, we have the National Forest Foundation making some headway at getting a little bit of corrective work there. But it is nothing compared to what we need.

Another example can be found in the Black Hills National Forest, where forest managers have been extremely lucky not to have to deal with fires in the Beaver Park roadless area or the Norbeck Wildlife Preserve. These areas are suffering from severe storm-related damage and a mountain pine beetle infestation that has left acres of dead and dying trees. When trees are filled with dense and now dry underbrush, it creates a terminal condition for the entire ecosystem should something happen and a fire start in either of these areas. As I said earlier, we have been lucky those areas have not already caught fire.

One fire did get close. The Deadwood fire came within a mile and a half of these areas. It also burned down some structures. We have to give you a report on that because, most recently, there has been a huge mud slide there. Mother Nature didn't observe some of our federal rules limiting erosion.

Fortunately, the Senator from South Dakota, Mr. Daschle, was able to include language in the emergency supplemental military bill that will allow the Black Hills National Forest to address this situation. If we are lucky, it will be done in a timely manner and before it is too late. I only hope we can provide the protection for the areas in Wyoming and the other Western States.

Back when I was a Boy Scout, one of the requirements I had to complete to earn the rank of first class on my way to earning the Eagle Scout Award was to start a campfire using not more than two matches. I became very good at starting campfires and was well known for winning water-boiling contests at scout camporees. There are a number of reasons that led me to develop in starting campfires. I had my own system that helped me to win. But no matter who you are, or what your trick may be, there are three basic elements to every fire—oxygen, fuel, and heat.

Oxygen comes from the air and is readily available. Fuel is found in the wood, particularly dry wood that burns easily when enough heat is applied. Heat comes from a spark, match, possibly friction—not corduroy pants, however. We cannot do anything about oxygen. The fuel—we can do and should do something about fuel. Usually, we cannot do anything about heat unless it is manmade.

The best way to apply enough heat to start a successful campfire is to properly organize the wood in a way that allows flames to climb from the bottom of the firepit where you put the smaller, quick-burning sticks and tinder—to the larger, longer burning logs. We start with the tinder and carry out the smaller and intermediate trees, thereby leaving a forest that is healthy, more biodiverse, more resilient and able to support a mix of old and younger trees so the whole forest does not die off at once.

To start a successful fire, I began by carefully putting the wood shavings at the bottom of the fire—the leaves to be light tinder, or the first rung of the fire ladder. I then built a small teepee of sticks over my tinder—about the size of a Ravine—and I added larger sticks, which is what catches fire when everything else happens. The larger pieces of wood go on the top. They draw the heat from the flames of the intermediate sticks below them. If you did it correctly, you would start your fire and boil a can of water before anybody else.

What does this have to do with our national forests? If you go out on the ground now and look at the density of our national forests, they are laid out just like the campfires I was trained to build when I was a Boy Scout. At the bottom of every forest lies a collection of small dried out brush, leaves, and fallen bark. Over this pile of tinder is the next rung, which is made up of small to intermediate trees. These intermediate trees are then crowded in between the larger and older trees that make up the top rung, or crown, of the forest fuels ladder.

This problem wasn't always bad as it is now. There was a time when Mother Nature and the Native Americans left nothing but the oldest of the forests by regularly starting wildfires. Because the fuel loads weren't allowed to grow as dense as they are today, the fuel ladder didn't reach all the way to the big trees. Fire would burn up the tinder and thin out the intermediate and dead and dying trees. This promoted biodiversity, kept the intensity of the forests down, and in times of drought the competition for limited water resources was dramatically less than it is today.

We now have forests that historically had 40 or 50 tree stems per acre that are now over 200 stems per acre. That is a 300-percent increase.

When a fire starts in forests this dense, it quickly climbs the fuel ladders and races out of control. These crown fires are all but impossible to stop. The heat generated from all rungs burning at once sterilizes the soil and leaves, killing all vegetation in its wake. This is only made worse with the added factor of drought.

By adding to the mix stands of dead trees that are as dry and volatile as the tinder on the forest floor, one can increase the threat that we can have on the forests and their surrounding communities, and there are more and more communities, more and more homes, more and more structures.

It is a much better conservation practice, therefore, to step in and duplicate the effect historic, healthy fires had on our forests by using what we call mechanical thinning. This is a practice where our land management agencies hire experienced timber companies to remove the dense underbrush and carry out the smaller and intermediate trees, thereby leaving a forest that is healthy, more biodiverse, more resilient and able to support a mix of older and younger trees so the whole forest does not die off at once.

The alternative is to allow Mother Nature to step in and conduct one of her catastrophic clearcuts, and when Mother Nature does a clearcut, as I already mentioned, she does not care about riparian zones or raptor nesting sites.
Another factor that must also be considered, now that we are fighting the war on terror, is that these catastrophic clearcuts we are suffering in the West also pose a serious threat to our national security. It requires an enormous amount of resources and time to fight these fires and often includes military support. The Air National Guard facilities in Wyoming have been detailed as a support base for dispatching air tankers, and a lot of our Nation’s airspace is now off limits to anyone but firefighting aircraft.

We also have a report that the fires pose a serious threat to our Nation’s communications facilities and to the power grid. There is no way to build an extensive communication and power system in the West without putting some of it on Federal public lands, including forests. The Federal Government is the largest landowner in the West, and we have rights of way crossing all over it. When we have fires such as the one this year, they are, at one time or another, going to threaten our Nation’s utilities.

We cannot afford in this day and age to surrender our Nation’s greatest assets in fighting the war on terror; namely, our technological advantage created by our extensive energy and communications networks.

In closing, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this amendment and in giving our Federal land managers the tools they need to decrease the serious threat of fire on our forests caused by the dangerous combination of drought and infestation. It is a very limited bill. I would even hesitate to call it a pilot project. But it is essential to get started and to get started now. If we can establish some good examples, we can show there can be healthy, beautiful forests, the way we envisioned them and dreamed of our kids and our grandkids and our great-grandkids being able to see them. We have a stewardship of our forests than what we are doing right now, and it does include cutting some trees.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, for the last good number of minutes, I have been listening to the Senator from Wyoming talk about forest fires. A fire is made; it must tell you, it was not only fascinating but an issue he and I, as westerners who live in forested States, have grown to develop some knowledge about over the years.

I like the Senator’s approach to Forest Fire 101. It was appropriate, and it well defines the great problems we face, not just in the West today, although conifer trees—or pine trees, fir trees, all that the Senator was speaking about—have a different characteristic in fire than do the broadleafs.

What is fascinating to me now is that in March, which oftentimes are the dryer seasons on the Eastern seaboard, we are beginning to see more and more fires in our broadleaf forests because of the fuel loading that is occurring. It starts in the brush and in the leaf flora and goes up to the trees that are not yet leafed out and green.

The point I make, and why we are talking about this as a national fire policy and why it is important for the Senate to stop, as we have, to focus on the need to reshape public policy in this critical area, is it is now of national importance and a magnitude we have never seen before.

We are not used to allocating $2 billion a year of taxpayers’ resources to put out fires that are lost. What are we going to be doing this year. It is what we did last year and the year before. The American public ought to be scratching their heads a bit and asking a fundamental question of their policymakers, who are an entire state wiped out in Arizona, an entire community threatened in Oregon this year with severe fire.

It is appropriate, while the Senate would wish to rush on to other issues, that we deal with this issue in some form. It is a national crisis. Nowhere can we say that the loss of 6.5 million acres of our forested lands is anything but a crisis. As I have said, if this had been Hurricane Andrew—and I am not sure Andrew did much more damage than that years ago in Florida—we would rush down there with all possible Federal resources to help the community, to turn the power on, to rebuild the homes, to clean up the debris.

Here we step back and say—or at least some do—this is all but an act of nature in a normal sense. It is not an act of nature to see abnormal fires of the kind the Senator from Wyoming has spoken so clearly about, with heat intensities in a multiple of hundreds of degrees hotter than a normal fire, burning everything in its path, leaving nothing behind. That is not a normal forest fire. That is an abnormal forest fire that is a creation of public policy that was disallowed the thinging and cleaning by mankind that was once done by fire, before we eliminated fire from the ecosystem about 90 to 100 years ago.

We became extremely active in fire management in a post-World War II era when a bunch of young men came home who had learned how to jump out of airplanes. They could put a shovel and a pulaski on their back and file in a Ford trimotor out across the forests of the West and jump off to a lightning start and dig a line of dirt on it and put it out and they became known as smoke jumpers. That was the beginning of a scenario on our western public land forests to put fire out. We got better and better at it over the years, to the point where we have nearly eliminated the fires, and in eliminating fire, which was the natural cleanser of our forests at that time, we did not replace it with a fire-like, man-created presence.

So the fuels begin to build and the small trees begin to grow and the brush begins to multiply to the point we have added acres of such magnitude that scientists tell us that they are fuels equivalent in BTU's to tens of thousands of gallons of gasoline per acre in explosive character or ignitable capability. That is the reality of many of these public land forests today.

In the White Forests of Arizona, where 100 years ago stood 25 trees per acre in a relatively pastoral setting, with grass growing beneath, wildlife ambled across the landscape, in that very forest this June, instead of 25 or 30 trees per acre, there were 700 trees per acre—big trees, little ones, 6 to 8 inches through. A forester would call those weed trees, no value except to do exactly what the Senator from Wyoming said—create that ignition of fire that starts from the bottom and sweeps upward to the crown of the tree along the natural coning shape of a conifer, a fur, a spruce, or a pine.

It is the characteristic of fire that we do not want to speak to today. We just want to ignore it because some groups have said it is natural, leave it alone, burn it. That, walk away. They want to because they do not want us in there. It has been in the name of the environment. You cannot call this anything but now an environmental disaster, a total wipeout of the watershed. It has been in the name of the multiple use base of our national forests, and wiped every-thing out in the process. Because fires of the kind the Senator from Wyoming spoke of, by magnitudes of large numbers of acres—of smoke.

So the fuels begin to build and the brush begins to multiply to the point we have added acres of such magnitude that scientists tell us that they are fuels equivalent in BTU's to tens of thousands of gallons of gasoline per acre in explosive character or ignitable capability. That is the reality of many of these public land forests today.

Our forests are important to our ecosystem. They are great sequesters of carbon that flows out of the air as a result of the human presence and great storehouses of water that then feed out over the course of a year, to be used by us for life-sustaining purposes, not to slide down mountains in the form of mud and ash and broken, burned trees, of a kind that you will now see all over the West this winter in those 6.5 million acres that have already burned. It is a disaster that has happened.

To not stand here on the floor and shout about it would be a failure of anyone who represents those areas. It is not natural. It is a creation or a result of public policy that has allowed that.

I am suggesting we not look backwards and start pointing fingers and blame, but we look forward. We know the conditions today. We know the problem. We also know a solution. And every forest scientist will line up and tell you exactly what to do. Most all of them will agree. It is not clear cutting. It is not logging. It is not all of the kinds of things that some accuse us of wanting to do. It is a systematic cleaning and the testing of health, and replacing fire with man's presence in a fire-like way. By that, I mean the thinning, cleaning process.

No, I am going to be an advocate of green sales, an advocate of a logging program as a part of a multiple use base of our national forests, but that is a different argument and a separate issue from the issue of forest health. When we have hundreds of millions of acres of forests across our Nation today, and we know there are over 94 million acres that are in some form of health problems, and there are nearly 30 million that are at crisis today by big kill of the kind that the Senator from Wyoming spoke of, by dead and dying trees, by large fuel loading that creates the kindling of the fires that swept across and are continuing to burn in the West today, that is where we ought to focus. That is where we are focusing with the Craig-Domenici amendment. It is why we have invited all of our colleagues to become involved and help us work out these problems, instead of simply saying no, because some special interest group said, tell them no.

There are two fires today in the West. No means we will continue to burn. And every year we will burn 5 or 6 or 7 million acres—every year for the next 10 years, 20 years, 30 years. That is a magnitude of environmental disaster of the kind this country has never seen. It is one of which I do not want to be a part; it is one the Senator from Wyoming does not want to be a part. It is why we are working so hard to strike a compromise, to make a small step forward, to change the thinking just a little bit. The Craig-Domenici amendment selects urban wildlife interface, municipal wilderness, and an unlimited number of those 30 million acres of the critical dead and dying—less than 10 million acres in total.

We have said, let us make this small step forward and watch the U.S. Forest Service—bring the cameras in—prove that there is a way we can reestablish the health of these forests. And it is not by someone else's definition of logging. That it is not evil and clandestine and somehow a subterfuge to get loggers back into the woods and reestablish those things with loggers in the woods, nothing wrong at all. But this is not that issue. This is a forest health issue. If we do the right logging in the right areas and we sustain ourselves, we can always have a healthy forest. But today we ignore it.

The last 3 years I fought the effort of the former President, President Clinton, to lock up 94 million acres of roadless lands. I guess it was about 1994. We succeeded in stopping him. But he wanted to lock it up again at the advice of some interest groups, and then ask America to simply turn their back on it and let it sit.

That is where all these fires are starting today. Many of the fires that started in the roadless class 3 lands today are the ones that swept out of those, into class 2 and class 1 high-quality forest lands, and wiped everything out in the process. Because fires of the kind the Senator from Wyoming spoke about know no bounds. The Senator said it: All they know is heat, fuel, oxygen. And in a drought-like environment where humidity is dramatically low, kindling points drop dramatically and forests literally do explode.

Those who have seen the great forest fires of the West, have seen the devastation, have seen the plumes of smoke going 12,000, 14,000, 20,000 feet into the atmosphere. This mushroom cloud, this atomic bomb, will never forget what they saw.

When the White Forests were burning this year, I was flying from Dallas to Denver. Somewhere out over northwest New Mexico we began to hit the cloud plume and the smoke rolling off the fires in Arizona. The pilot came on the intercom—we were at 35,000 feet, and the airplane was in smoke—and he said to the passengers on the plane: As a pilot, I have never experienced this before, but we are in the smoke from the forest fires of Arizona.

We were in smoke from that time, as that plane flew out of New Mexico, across Arizona, and into Colorado, until we landed in Denver and then the winds had shifted; Denver had cleared, but from Denver south, it was all full of smoke.

But to have an airline pilot say he has never experienced that, to me, is a simple description of the magnitude of these fires, the intensity of them, the phenomenal fuel consumption, the tremendous release of carbon into the air, that smoke cloud that literally spread across the United States at high altitude.

That is the crisis to which we speak. Some would like to rush to judgment, ignore these problems, walk away from them. Shame on us if we do. Shame on us if we do not work to make one small step toward correcting these problems. If we then, by that small step, can prove to the American public that we have the right things—allow the public to see whether we will be able—then will they allow us to make another step? I hope that is the case. That is what we are going to try to get accomplished, and I think we can get that accomplished today. I hope we can.

What I would appreciate, if we are wrong, is to have the opposition come speak on the floor and tell us why we are wrong. I have heard no one come to the floor this year and try to justify the fires that have burned across America’s public forests this year. In fact, they are cowering in the smoke, wishing not to speak out. They will vote for the special interests that ask them to vote no, but they will not come out and openly express what that happens when Arizona and Colorado and California this year, and parts of Oregon, is all but a natural process and 2,100 homes and 22 or 25 lives and $2 billion is an acceptable reality to America’s forest environment.

I don’t want people to think we are filibustering. We are trying to get a vote. We want a vote. But there are all kinds of tactics being used to stop us from getting a vote on whether we ought to have healthy forests, because everybody in this body knows how everybody in this body ought to vote on healthy forests. They ought to vote for them.

We need a lot more dialog on what a healthy forest is. I admit that. I want to pay tribute to us. We are still talking about is not even of significance to be a pilot project. It has virtually wiped out the chance to really do the job in our forests. But it does give us a chance to start showing what we could do in the forests. It is a shame anybody thinks that is worth stopping—just a small, pilot project.

I did have a couple of other thoughts as the Senator from Idaho was speaking. We have covered quite a bit about what a waste fire is. It brings to mind a little controversy that was happening at the time I came to the Senate, and that was a discussion about timbering. There was a discussion about how we were doing the timbering in this country being done wrong.

I am the only accountant in the Senate. I love looking at numbers. So when somebody starts talking about below-cost timber sales, that is in my category, that is something in which I am interested. So I took a look, to see how much it was costing us, as American taxpayers, to have timbering in the national forests. I saw some of the greatest gymnastics of accounting I have ever seen. We are taking corporates on long—long—that are below-cost accounting—and they should be, if they are doing it wrong. But, by golly, somebody ought to take a look at the Government accounting while they are at it. They ought to take a look at timbering and the terrible accounting that was done there.

You know, you really should not be able to take all of the costs of a national forest, which include a whole variety of different things and are supposed to include a whole variety of different activities, some of which are recreation. Did you know that recreation has costs? We provide a lot of services to people who are recreating in the national forests, and we should. But we should not take those costs of recreating and charge them to timbering, to show that it is a bad deal.

Let me tell you what kind of a bad deal we have going right now. Right now, there are a whole bunch of Federal employees to go in and clean up forests. There is a whole bunch of people out there who are already experienced at doing this. Yes, if you go back a few years in the methods they use, they may have used some of those methods. We need to make sure those methods never happen again. But there is a right way to do it, and there are people out there who know the right way to do it, and do it the right way. Instead of having to pay for the whole job and throwing away whatever is taken out of the forests, they would pay for that right to cut out some of this dead timber.

Some of this has already happened, over by Rapid City. The forests come and clear away and try to put it back to hard. But, by golly, they were worried about it burning the city up, so they hired some people to come in and do some logging. They hired another crew to come in and clean out the underbrush. The ones who did the first logging said: We could have done both jobs for almost the same cost because the setting up costs money.

I would like to tell you what kind of a bad deal we have going out there. We are doing some really poor stewardship things in this country by not having a big trend and getting the people involved who know how to do the things, because they have done them. There are jobs out there that could be done with credits for the lumber that might be usable. I have to tell you a little bit about the lumber that might be usable.

It used to be that you had to have a pretty big tree to get anything usable for housing. There is an innovative company in Sheridan, WY, I learned about after the problem over by Rapid City. They are able to take the core of small trees and laminate them together to make beams for houses, 2 by 4’s for houses, table tops. They have some phenomenal ingenuity, and they have some products that will be released—again, with bits and pieces of very small trees. These are small businesses.

I am really proud of small businesses in this country because I know that is where the ingenuity of the Nation comes from. If a company gets a really good idea, they may be bought out by a bigger company. The start of these ideas usually comes from one person having a great idea, being willing to put their money where their mouth is, take on all the risks for it, and prove that it needs it. We have several of those small operations in Wyoming. You can take almost anything you can call wood and put it to use in something that will drive down housing costs and make some beautiful features. We need to be doing that. As I mentioned, they are paid to cut the trees, but they are paid to clean up the forests. So if you want to save a little bit of money, put people to work, and make sure we don’t have the terrible waste because of fires, that is how we can do it.

I hope everyone will support this amendment. It is not the amendment I would offer. It is far too small. It doesn’t even do the barest care of the problem. But I ask that you support the amendment and consider all of these things we have been saying. At least give some counterarguments, if there are any counterarguments. When we do these cloture amendments which are designed to eliminate this amendment without a vote, I hope everybody will continue to oppose that too.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator for Georgia?

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to speak as if in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

HOMELAND SECURITY

Mr. MILLER. Madam President, very shortly, we will be back on the subject of homeland security. As this debate on homeland security goes on, I hope no one will forget that it is being held in the shadows of the fallen towers of the World Trade Center.

The smoldering fires may have gone out, the acrid smell may no longer burn our nostrils, the strains of “Amazing Grace” from the bagpipes may no longer fill the air, but, make no mistake about it, the need to protect this country and prevent this from ever happening is just as urgent.

How does the Senate meet this, one of the greatest challenges of our time? I will tell you.

We talk and talk and talk. Then we pause to go out on the steps of the Capitol to sing “God Bless America” with our best profile to the camera. Then we come back inside and show our worst profile to the country.

I have not seen many cloture resolutions I did not like. I can’t remember the last time I voted against one because I am almost always in favor of speeding things up around here.

Too often, the Senate reminds me of William Shakespeare’s words:

Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow Creeps in this pace from day to day.

But the cloture vote that is before us now is one that I cannot support. We have wasted so many precious days, days that we could ill afford to waste, days that gave our enemies more time to plot their next attack. And now, all of the same laws we want to invoke cloture to stop the debate in its tracks.

Well, I will vote “no.” Because, make no mistake about it, invoking cloture will prevent this Senate from having a choice, a choice between a bill the President will sign and one that he will veto.

We must give the President the flexibility to respond to terrorism on a moment’s notice. He has to be able to shift resources, including personnel, at the blink of an eye.

So why do we hold so dear a personnel system that was created in 1883 and is as outdated as an ox-cart on an expressway? I will tell you why. Because by keeping the status quo, there are votes to be had and soft money to be pocketed. This is the dirty little secret.

When the civil service was established well over a century ago, it had a worthy goal—to create a professional work force that was free of political cronyism.

Back then, it was valid. But too often in government we pass laws to fix the problems of the moment and then we keep those laws on the books for years and years without ever following up to see if they are still needed.

The truth of the matter is that a solution from the 19th century is posing a problem in the 21st, especially when this country is threatened in such a different and sinister way.

Presently, we are operating under a system of governmental gout and personnel paralysis.

Despite its name, our civil service system has nothing to do with civility. It offers little reward for good workers. It provides lots of cover for bad workers.

Hiring a new federal employee can take 5 months–5 months. Firing a bad worker takes more than a year— if it is even allowable—because of the mountains of paper work, hearings, and appeals.

A Federal worker caught drunk on the job can’t be fired for 30 days, and then he has the right to insist on endless appeals.

Productivity should be the name of the game. And we lose productivity when bad folks hold onto jobs forever or when jobs go unfilled for months.

It is no wonder there is resentment among out many good employees. I would be resentful, too, if I watched bad workers kept on the payroll and given the same pay raises by managers who are intimidated by the complicated process of firing or even disciplining them.

A few years ago, there was a best selling book entitled, “The Death of Common Sense,” written by a man named Phillip Howard.

I liked it so well and thought it was so on target that I gave all my agency heads a copy and had them read it. Then, I had Mr. Howard come to Georgia.

I took him so well and thought it was so on target that I gave all my agency heads a copy and had them read it. Then, I had Mr. Howard come to Georgia.

His thesis was that “universal requirements that leave no room for accommodation by managers are intimidating and restrictive.”

I quote this now, “When the sole point is to ensure fairness,” to use his very words. It is still very timely and even more pertinent to the Federal Government than to State government.

President Bush has called his efforts to bring security to our Nation and justice to our enemies a “relentless march.”

This Senator is ready to fall into formation with our President’s “relentless march.”

Because when it comes to protecting the jobs of Federal workers or protecting the lives of American citizens, I know where I stand.

This is a country with 8,500 miles of border; a country that 500 million people enter each year; a country where 16 million containers a year enter our ports from foreign countries, and where more than 1.2 million international flights occur.

The daunting task of securing this country is almost incomprehensible.

Let’s not make it more difficult by tying this President’s hands and the hands of every President who comes after him.

Why are some automatically assuming that the folks who will run this Department will abuse their positions and mistreat Federal employees?

Instead of assuming the worst, why aren’t we seeking to create the strongest, most efficient Department we can create?

And don’t forget this: Many previous Presidents—beginning with President John F. Kennedy—have found it necessary to exempt agencies from unionization and collective bargaining systems when it was in the interest of national security.

Dozens of Federal agencies are currently not covered by the Federal Labor Management Relations Act: the CIA, the FBI, the Secret Service, the air marshals within the FAA, and the list goes on. And yet the tens of thousands of employees in these agencies have been treated fairly and well.

Today, there are some 800 pages in the Federal Code that already generously guarantee rights, benefits and protections for employees—800 pages worth.

Now, I respect and thank the many good, hard-working Federal employees. And I have tried to imagine myself in these workers’ places at this particular time in history.

I am an old believer in that line by that wonderful Georgia songwriter, Joe South, “Before you abuse, criticize or accuse, walk a mile in my shoes.”

But perhaps it is because I have worked for $3 a day and was glad to have a job that I find their union bosses’ refusal to budge for the greater good of this country so surprising.

Union politics may be important, but it should never take the place of national security. We are at a most serious time in the history of this land.

Our country, our people are in mortal danger.

And as I look at what is transpiring around me, this old history teacher who once accused me of being too timid and indecisive Neville Chamberlain was told by a Member of Parliament as he was being dismissed as the Prime Minister of Great Britain. "You have sat too long for the good that you have done," the Member told him. "You have sat too long for the good that you have done."

I am sorry to say it, but on this question of homeland security, I believe that few people think that this Senate has sat too long for the good that we have done.

And as Chamberlain slunk away that historic day, the crowd shouted after him, "Go, go, go."

They will remember, Winston Churchill, who had been a voice in the wilderness warning for years about the threat of Hitler, became Prime Minister.

And in that famous speech to Parliament in May of 1940, he uttered those famous words, "I have nothing to offer but blood, tears, toil, and sweat."

Madam President, does this Senate have to offer? What do we have to offer in this time of crisis? How about the citizenship, perhaps? That is too much to ask, is it, compared to blood, tears, toil, and sweat?

Because, as Churchill continued in that speech, "We have before us an ordeal of the most grievous kind." We certainly have one today, an ordeal of the most grievous kind.

Churchill went on:

We have before us many long months of struggle and of suffering. You ask what is our policy? I will say: It is to wage war, by sea, land and air with all our might and with all the strength that God can give us; to wage war against a monstrous tyranny, never surpassed in the dark, lamentable catalogue of human crime. That is our policy.

You ask what is our aim? I can answer in one word—victory—victory at all costs, victory in spite of terror, victory, however long and hard the road may be; for without victory there is no survival. Without victory, there is no survival.

And then Churchill said this:

At this time I feel entitled to claim the aid of all, and I say "Come, then let us go forward together with our united strength."

Then, Clement Attlee, the leader of the opposing Labor Party, joined with Churchill as his Deputy Prime Minister and they worked together during the course of the war.

Why can't we have something like that around here now? Is that too much to ask when we are in a death struggle for the soul of mankind?

So, Madam President, I have made my choice. When it comes to choosing between an aged, arthritic civil service system filled with stumbling blocks and booby traps, or an agile agency that is nimble and responsive on the threats of the future, we face every day that we would have an effort in the Senate to actually take power away from the President. This is power that President Carter had, power that President Reagan had, power that President Bush had, power that President Clinton had, and power that President Bush has today, I wouldn't have believed it.

Who would believe that a bill that could not have been passed before 9/11, a bill that literally strips away the power of the President to designate a national emergency and in the process waive work rules that impede efficiency and jeopardize lives? Who would have believed, after thousands of our citizens were dead, after millions of our citizens are in danger, that the Senate would come forward with a bill that says: What is our response to 9/11? Our response is the President has too many national security powers.

That is exactly what the Lieberman bill does.

Incredibly, the President today has the power, in the name of national security, to set aside union work rules. The majority leader said yesterday:

Show me one time in history when the circumstances threatening our country demanded we forgo the protections built into laws for Federal workers.

Well, let me give you, very quickly, some concrete examples of exactly why, after 9/11, we need to preserve the powers the President has today. Let me remind my colleagues, today, prior to 9/11, the President had used these powers, as President Clinton did, to set aside work rules in the FBI, the CIA, the National Security Agency, the Air Marshals Office of the Federal Aviation Administration, the Office of Criminal Enforcement, and the Office of Enforcement and Intelligence at the Drug Enforcement Agency.

Workers in those offices today are working under the procedures the President has asked that he be allowed to continue to exercise.

What kinds of problems do you run into with these silly union work rules? Let me say to my colleagues, I don't see how anybody with a straight face can stand on the floor of the Senate and defend the civil service system as it exists today, when you are talking about threats to the lives of our children and our families. It is not as if we have not been warned. The Grace Commission warned us. The Volcker Commission stated:

The current system is slow. It is legally trampled and intellectually confused. It is impossible to explain to potential candidates. It is almost certainly not fulfilling the spirit of our mandate to hire the most meritorious candidates.

That is Paul Volcker, and that is in 1989.

Our colleague, Senator Rudman headed the U.S. Commission on National Security. We all know Warren Rudman. We all know he is no union basher. We all know he has good judgment and good sense. This is what he said:

Today's Civil Service system has become a drag on our national security. The morass of rules, regulation and bureaucracy prevent the government from hiring and retaining the workforce that is required to combat the threats of the future.

I could go on. For example, the Brookings Institution has shown study after study that the system is broken.

Now, after giving President Carter, President Reagan, President Bush, President Clinton, and the current President Bush the power to set aside these union work rules for national security reasons, and after the events of 9/11, the majority brings forth a bill that says: Well, we gave this power to President Clinton and we gave the power to President Carter, but after 9/11, we are going to take away security powers of the President.

That is offensive and ludicrous on its face, and when the American people discover it, they are going to go absolutely crazy. When they discover that we currently have eight agencies operating under these rules today, and the Congress, in its response to 9/11, wants to say: Well, we are going to take away these powers from President Clinton needed and President Carter needed—I don't think so. I don't think people are going to buy it.
What kinds of impediments are we talking about? Well, let me touch a few. These are actual cases. I am not talking about theoretical cases. The majority leader says, show him examples of where these work rules interfere with national security. Let me quickly give you a handful of them.

We had an effort in Customs, in 1987, to change the makeup of the office in order to make it more efficient in fulfilling the functions of Customs. Guess what? Customs tried to change the configuration of the room. The public employee labor union, representing Customs officials, appealed to the Federal Labor Relations Authority, and the power of the Administration to change the configuration of the inspection room was rejected.

Do we really want some work rule negotiated prior to 9/11 to prevent us from having people on board who is carrying a bomb on a plane with your momma? Have people gone completely crazy? What is going on here?

Let me touch on a couple of these. Union work rules prohibited an agency from going to the recruiter to get out the border. Literally, as our former drug czar Barry McCaffrey pointed out, the union work rules prohibited one of the agencies from opening trunks. The drug smugglers were aware of it, had people watching, and decided to move drugs based on those work rules.

What if that is poisonous gas or biological weapons or a nuclear weapon coming into New York Harbor? We are going to go to the National Labor Relations Authority to renegotiate a union contract when millions of lives are at stake? I don’t think so. And the idea that our colleagues would believe such a thing is possible just shows you how out of touch some people are with their job.

The choice is as stark as a choice can be. The bill that is before us literally takes power away from the President that every President since Jimmy Carter has had to use national security waivers. It takes that power away from the President in the aftermath of 9/11. The American people will never understand that, and they will never accept it. They will never accept a compromise on it.

When the American people realize we were concerned enough about the Internal Revenue Service’s operation that we gave President Clinton personnel flexibility to hire and fire and promote, because we thought it was necessary, but we are going to give President Bush the same flexibility to protect the lives of our people, I don’t think they are going to take kindly to that.

The plain truth is that we have a bill before us that protects everything except national security. It protects every special interest group in the American Government. The plain truth is, the people who work for the Government want these changes. An OPM poll looking at the acceptance of Federal Government. By very large margins, two-thirds of the people who are Federal workers believe that Federal performers are not adequately disciplined. Nearly half of all workers believe job performance has little or nothing to do with promotion and raises, and 99 percent of people who got bad evaluations last year in the Federal Government got pay raises.

When we are talking about national security, we are looking at the aftermath of 9/11. It is time for change. It is not time for the same old special interests.

So what we are asking, in essence, is very simply—and I will conclude on this—let this President keep the power that every President since Jimmy Carter has had, which is to use national security waivers. That hardly seems extreme given the attack on America and the deaths of thousands of our people. Give this President the same flexibility in national security and homeland security that we gave Bill Clinton with the Internal Revenue Service. If that sounds extreme, you are looking at things differently than I.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 11:30 a.m. having arrived, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 12:30 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

Mr. GRAMM. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 10 minutes.

Mrs. BOXER. I object. I ask if the Senator can complete in 5 minutes.

Mr. GRAMM. Yes, I can do it in 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas is recognized.

Mr. GRAMM. Madam President, the President wanted the ability to do things such as promote that FBI agent because, had we been able to get through that massive, incoherent system in which we are working, we might have prevented the attacks.

I also think we might want to fire the people at INS who gave visas to the people who had flown a plane into the World Trade Center after their picture had been on every television in the world and on the front page of every newspaper.

We have, as a Senate, approved those flexibilities, those powers, for the Transportation Security Administration, the Internal Revenue Service, the FAA, and we did that prior to 9/11. But after 9/11, we are told that the President, under national security circumstances, with a declaration of a clear and present danger to our people, cannot have the kind of flexibility in homeland security that we gave to a previous President for the Internal Revenue Service. To make the Internal Revenue Service more responsible, we gave President Bill Clinton, personnel flexibility. But now, to protect the lives of our people in homeland security, are we not willing to give the same flexibility to President Bush?

When people finally discover what is going on here, they are going to be outraged, and they are going to discover it because, despite our best efforts of saying let’s work together, let’s do this on a bipartisan effort, it is clear now that there is going to be a battle. It is clear now that we are going to have to choose between the status quo, the old way of doing business, and the health, safety, and life of our people.

The American people will never understand that, and they will never accept it. They will never accept a compromise on it.

When the American people realize we were concerned enough about the Internal Revenue Service’s operation that we gave President Clinton personnel flexibility to hire and fire and promote, because we thought it was necessary, but we are going to give President Bush the same flexibility to protect the lives of our people, I don’t think they are going to take kindly to that.

Mr. REID. Madam President, my friend from Texas got an extra 5 minutes. I ask that it be charged against the Republicans’ time in morning business.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2003—Continued

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now continue with the Department of the Interior appropriations bill.

The pending Craig amendment will be temporarily set aside.

The Senator from California is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4573 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4572

Mrs. BOXER. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk. It has been cleared on both sides.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senate from California [Mrs. BOXER], for herself, Mr. ENOWEY, and Mr. CAMPBELL, proposes an amendment numbered 4573 to amendment No. 4572.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To clarify the effect of certain provisions on the application of a Federal appellate decision and the use of certain Indian land)

On page 64, between lines 15 and 16, insert the following:

SEC. 1. EFFECT OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS ON DECISION AND INDIAN LAND.

(b) USE OF CERTAIN INDIAN LAND.—Nothing in this section permits the conduct of gambling under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (25 U.S.C. 2701 et seq.), on land described in section 123 of the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2001 (114 Stat. 944), or land that is contiguous to that land, regardless of whether the land or contiguous land has been taken into trust by the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. BURNS. Madam President, this amendment provides that nothing in section 134 of the fiscal year 2002 Interior bill shall impact ongoing litigation involving the Department of the Interior and the Sac and Fox Nation. This language has previously been passed by the Senate and addresses the inadvertent impact of language adopted in conference on the fiscal year 2002 bill. I recommend its adoption.

Mr. REID. There is no objection on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no further debate, without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4574) was agreed to.

Mr. BURNS. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mrs. BOXER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4574 TO AMENDMENT NO. 472

Mr. BURNS. Madam President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mrs. BOXER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask that now we move to morning business.

Mr. BURNS. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that on completion of morning business, the Craig amendment be the pending business when we reopen discussions on the appropriations bill.

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object, would that be the order anyway?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is the order.

Mr. BURNS. I did not know.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to a period for morning business as under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senate is in a period for morning business

The Senate majority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I will use my leader time. I ask unanimous consent to extend the time, should that be required, to complete my presentation this morning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE STATE OF ECONOMIC SECURITY

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, we had a very good discussion this morning with the President about national security in several contexts—of course, the war on terror and the important challenges this country faces in continuing to make this country and the world a safer place in which to live. The arrests over the weekend and the cooperation we got from Pakistan ought to be particularly noted, and we ought to thank the Government of Pakistan for their cooperation. We talked about that this morning.

One serious article of concern, if I may, is the threat it poses to us. We talked about the need for cooperation when dealing with the threats posed by Iraq, not only within the Congress and the country, but in the international community. So we had a very good discussion about national security, and I believe it ought to be uppermost in the minds of all people, and certainly the Congress as we continue to complete our responsibilities in the second session of the 107th Congress.

Let me also say, just as we properly recognize the threat that exists in more traditional national security areas, we, as a country and particularly a government, would be remiss in our responsibilities were we not to address economic security, were we not to recognize the peril this country is in economically. So, in addition to acknowledging the importance of our defensive capabilities, we have a very significant responsibility and I think even say tragic, economic trend in this country over the course of the last 18 months.

I have a number of charts that reflect more graphically some of these concerns, and I want, if I may, to walk through some of them at this time.

If we look at the record of this administration over the past 18 months, perhaps it is best summarized in the very first chart: Record job losses; weak economic growth; declining business investment; falling stock market; shrinking retirement accounts; eroding consumer confidence; rising health care costs; escalating foreclosures; vanishing surplus; and higher resulting interest costs; raiding the Social Security trust fund; record executive pay; and stagnating minimum wage.

If you were going to use the shortest list with the greatest concern, this chart is it.

Let me go through many of these individual concerns a little more thoroughly. Over the last 2 years—actually the last 18 months—we have lost 2 million jobs—private sector jobs in this country.

If there is any one criteria that would, more than any other, illustrate the health of the economy, it would be job growth. And the economy is growing, jobs are going to be there. If it is contracting, if the economy is weak or contracting, the jobs will not be there. We have lost 2 million jobs in 18 months.

People might say: Well, that just happened; other administrations have lost jobs.

If you wanted to go back and look at what other administrations have actually done, you would probably have to go all the way back to the 1930s to see the last time in our Nation’s history when we last witnessed a loss in private sector jobs over the course of the life of an administration. Private sector jobs during this administration have declined by 1.2 percent on an average annual basis.

Over the last 50 years, in every administration since Dwight Eisenhower, we have seen private sector job growth. It was not much in the Eisenhower administration. It was even less under the first Bush administration. It was really high under the Clinton administration in the 1990s, the Carter administration in the 1970s, and the Clinton administration in the 1990s.

We gained in the first few years of the current administration. We have actually seen a decline in the number of private sector jobs for the first time in 50 years.

One can look at it another way. It is not only how many jobs are lost. It is also important to see how many people have been trying to find jobs for long periods of time and have been unable to do so, those who have been out of work for more than 6 months, the so-called long-term unemployed. Some who lose their job are able to quickly find another one. For those who are unable to do so, such as those who fall into the category of long-term unemployed, we continue to come to this Chamber and press for the passage of unemployment compensation extensions.

In January of 2001, the number of long-term unemployed was 648,000. In August of this year, that number had more than doubled to 1,474,000 people. That is one of the most tragic figures. There is a human story behind every one of those numbers. Not only is that individual unemployed, but most likely that person and perhaps their family are without income. Most likely it is a family trying to survive on what meager retirement compensation they have, looking for odd jobs, doing whatever they can to make ends meet. And today you have more than 1.4 million people who have suffered as a result of this administration’s economic policies for the last 18 months.

The larger picture beyond employment that is frequently used to gauge the performance of the economy is the change in our real gross domestic product. That is probably the most traditional economic indicator for assessing the strength of the economy. In the first 18 months of this administration, the economy has grown by 1 percent. The rate of growth was twice that figure under the Clinton administration. But those are the two lowest economic performances, the most meager economic performances we have seen in the last 50 years. President Eisenhower had economic growth of 2.4 percent; Kennedy, 5.4 percent; Johnson, 4.9 percent; the Clinton administration, 3.6 percent. We have seen growth, fortunately, in every administration.

But in all those administrations with all the economic ups and downs we have seen, it is clear this administration has the worst performance in terms of real economic growth that we have seen in the last 50 years. That anemic economic performance has had huge consequences in national terms as well as for the working family, the individual worker, American businesses, and American pension holders.

This chart shows what has happened to the value of investments at the New York Stock Exchange and the NASDAQ stock market under this administration. When this administration took office in January, 2001, the overall market value, the market capitalization in those two markets alone, was $12.4 trillion. That was an all-time high. We had never seen anything close to that level. Under the Clinton administration, the markets had been booming. We saw growth in an unprecedented way.

We expected, everyone expected, that growth to continue. But that is not what happened. What happened, instead, was over the last 18 months that $16.4 trillion piece has now shrunk to $11.9 trillion. We have lost $4.5 trillion in market capitalization just in 18 months.

I defy anyone to find a record more abysmal when it comes to overall market valuation that is even comparable to the enormous loss we have seen in just the past 18 months. It goes beyond that. If you look at an individual worker’s retirement savings—that is what we are talking about when we talk about the loss of market capitalization—the impact is profound. The retirement fund invested in the market in 2001 and kept it there during the 18 months this administration has been in office, that loss in market capitalization would mean the worker saw the value of his retirement savings decline by more than $31,000. In other words, the worker in just 18 months has lost nearly a third of the nest egg he was counting on for the balance of his retirement, all of their retiring years. One-third of his retirement savings meant for a life time of security has gone up 15 percent. But what has happened to the costs of their basic goods and services?

Workers’ payments for health insurance provides an excellent example of how strapped these people are. In just the past 18 months since this administration took office, the cost of an average family’s health insurance coverage, that need for all families, has gone up 16 percent. Single coverage has gone up 27 percent. That is the kind of record we are talking about.
We can move this to other aspects of health care. We see a similar trend when we look at the rising cost of prescription drugs. While the Consumer Price Index has gone up 1.6 percent since this administration took office, the prescription drug index has grown by 5.7 percent, almost four times greater than the overall inflation rate.

We also have seen something else we never thought we would see a dramatic increase in the number of foreclosures. A number of our colleagues have followed this even more closely than I and have noted we are not just talking here about minimum wage workers when we talk about foreclosures. We are not just talking about people at the lowest end of the economic scale. What has happened is a phenomena we have not seen in a long time in this country. Middle-class workers, people with good incomes when working, are watching their mortgages foreclose. The thousands of layoffs we have seen can increase the number of them to suffer in another way, the personal pain of losing their home. At the end of last year, 1.15 percent of mortgage loans were in foreclosure. By the second quarter of this year, that number had grown to 1.63 percent, an increase that affects not only lower income workers but workers across the economic scale.

Another tragic aspect of this administration’s economic policies can be seen when we look at its impact on our fiscal circumstances. We have talked about market capitalization. We have talked about the loss of jobs. We have talked about the economic pain our working families are feeling as they see their own pension security come down. As they see unemployment rolls go up, as they see the long-term unemployed numbers continue to climb, as they see all of that on one side and higher costs for health care and prescription drugs on the other, they ask why.

How in the world could all of this happen in such a short period of time? There are a lot of answers to that question. But if I could point to one in particular, it would be this. If there is one reason we have seen the dramatic turn in such a short period of time, the historic turn in the economy, it is the unprecedented reversal in the federal government’s fiscal picture. When President Bush took office, the Congressional Budget Office projected a $5.6 trillion surplus. As a result of what the President has signed into law or is currently proposing, the surplus projection becomes a $100 billion deficit. What does that do to economic confidence? What does that do to market capitalization? What does that to long-term projections? To long-term interest rates? What does that do to the overall psychology in the economy, to see this precipitous a decline?

I was a journalist the other day, about what history will say about the last 2 years. I hope to have something to say about the way it is written. I am excited about a project I am working on in that regard. But he said, as we consider all of the historic moments of the last 2 years, the one that he believes has the greatest consequence for our country is the President’s tax cut proposal. You know, a lot of people in this room think the President is right. The tragic set of financial and economic circumstances we are witnessing today, is directly connected to the tragic decline in our fiscal circumstances. This can be illustrated another way. At the beginning of last year, CBO projected the publicly held debt would be $36 billion by the year 2008. In fact, members actually came to the Senate floor to argue we were paying down the debt too quickly, and we would pay a price for having done so. Let me say that problem is no longer a concern. There is no way we are going to have to worry about paying off anything too quickly because in the space of 18 months, the total debt has grown from $36 billion to the new projection issued last month of $3.8 trillion. That is the record.

We have gone from a projected $5.6 trillion surplus to a $400 billion deficit. The total debt has grown from $1 trillion surplus. As a result of what the President has done, our national debt is now $2 trillion. Since this administration took office, we have seen the cost of prescription drugs go up 1.6 percent, an increase that affects not only lower income workers but workers across the economic scale.

Another tragic aspect of this administration’s economic policies can be seen when we look at its impact on our fiscal circumstances. We have talked about market capitalization. I am excited about a project I am working on in that regard. But he said, as we consider all of the historic moments of the last 2 years, the one that he believes has the greatest consequence for our country is the President’s tax cut proposal. You know, a lot of people in this room think the President is right. The tragic set of financial and economic circumstances we are witnessing today, is directly connected to the tragic decline in our fiscal circumstances. This can be illustrated another way. At the beginning of last year, CBO projected the publicly held debt would be $36 billion by the year 2008. In fact, members actually came to the Senate floor to argue we were paying down the debt too quickly, and we would pay a price for having done so. Let me say that problem is no longer a concern. There is no way we are going to have to worry about paying off anything too quickly because in the space of 18 months, the total debt has grown from $36 billion to the new projection issued last month of $3.8 trillion. That is the record.

We have gone from a projected $5.6 trillion surplus to a $400 billion deficit. The total debt has grown from $1 trillion surplus. As a result of what the President has done, our national debt is now $2 trillion. Since this administration took office, we have seen the cost of prescription drugs go up 1.6 percent, an increase that affects not only lower income workers but workers across the economic scale.
and all that money, and you know where their friends are. You know who their defenders are.

(Mr. JOHNSON assumed the Chair.)

Mr. SARBANES. Will the Senator yield for a question on that chart moment—

Mr. DASCHLE. I am happy to yield.

Mr. SARBANES. If I understand this chart, the Senator from New Jersey remembers this. But I can't find the Republican leader yield for a question?

Mr. JOHNSON. I yield the floor.

Mr. SARBANES. The distinguished Senator from New Jersey makes a very good point. Probably no one can make that point with greater credibility than he can.

Let me just simply compare this chart. You have seen an increase in the size of the Social Security trust fund. We put those resources into this tax cut, providing $53,000 per year to the top 1 percent of income earners in this country. You have seen an increase in the size of the Social Security trust fund. It is just hard to believe. Mr. DASCHLE. I know the Senator from New Jersey remembers this.

Mr. CORZINE. If the leader will bear with me a second, if we look at the table he has with regard to the second level, it looks as though some of the individuals who will benefit the most from this tax cut—it is almost inconceivable that we are using payroll taxes for men and women at WorldCom and Enron. It is just hard to believe.

Mr. DASCHLE. I know the Senator from New Jersey remembers this. But I recall the House passed their economic stimulus package, and part of that package included a $254 million retroactive tax cut for Enron. The administration saw no problem with that. Our Republican friends were anxious to vote for it. In fact, when we stopped it, we were called obstructionists. But that was the kind of obstructionism that stopped Enron from getting $254 million from their taxes.

To summarize, what ought to be going up is coming down and what ought to go down is coming up. What ought to go down is the raid on the Social Security trust fund. It is going up. What ought to go down are interest costs, but they are going up. What ought to go down is the national debt, but it is going up. What ought to go down are foreclosures, health care costs, and job losses, but they are going up. What ought to go up—economic growth—is going down. What ought to go up is business investment, the market, retirement accounts, consumer confidence, and the minimum wage. We have to do what we did in the 1990s—have an economic performance that gives people the sense that they can live in dignity and in confidence, knowing their retirement accounts and Social Security checks are going to be there.

We have to end the job loss, deal with health care costs, and make sure we reduce the raid on the Social Security trust fund.

I hope Republicans and Democrats can do for economic security what we are attempting to do for our national security—recognizing that this won't change unless we do it together, and recognizing that while this national security issue dealing with Iraq may be accomplished with one resolution, it is going to take a lot more than one resolution to turn our economy around. It is going to take the same kind of discipline we demonstrated in the 1990s. It is going to take the same kind of commitment on a bipartisan basis for these issues to be addressed, and a lot more consequential.

As busy as we are and as important as the effort on Iraq is, I hope this administration will dedicate some of its time this week to economic security as well, to these declining numbers, to this atrocious record, to a recognition that it takes leadership not only with regard to international and foreign policy but leadership here at home and economic policy as well. We haven't seen it to date, and the time has come for leadership on this as well.

I yield the floor.

EXTENSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the time the majority used in excess of our half hour be extended to the minority for morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Maryland.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFIT INSURANCE

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished majority leader for his excellent presentation with respect to the state of our economy. He has described in very straightforward terms the serious economic problems we confront: weak economic growth, rising job losses, declining business investment, a faltering market, eroding consumer confidence, and a deteriorating Federal Government fiscal position.
Just this morning, the Wall Street Journal reported:

What looked like a brief dip in economic activity a month ago looks increasingly like a protected slowdown. . . . The Federal Reserve's most important index of industrial production fell 0.3 percent in August from July, the first decline since December, when the recession was ending.

The majority leader made a compelling case, in my view, for focusing the attention of Congress and the President on the urgent economic challenges we confront at home, as well as the significant security and foreign policy challenges we confront abroad.

I wish to take a few moments to focus briefly on a very pressing economic challenge that is before us right now and which ought to be addressed before the end of the year: the problem of the long-term unemployed and the need to extend unemployment insurance benefits. I believe the administration to submit to the Congress a proposal for the extension of unemployment insurance benefits.

On September 9, the New York Times ran a front page story entitled, "Long-Term Unemployment Jumps by 50 Percent Last Year." The article stated—and I now quote from it—"... the number of people who have been jobless for months has climbed to a level more typical of a deep downturn. Almost three million people nationwide have been out of work for at least 15 weeks, up more than 50 percent from a year ago. Half of them have not worked for at least 6 months. Another one million appear to have dropped out of the labor force in each of the past two years, no longer looking for work or counted as unemployed. . . . Many people who have not worked in months have begun spending retirement savings that were already diminished by the stock market's fall. Others are considering low-wage jobs at a fraction of their former pay. In either case, their stretches of unemployment could define their financial futures for years.

It goes on to say:

Many unemployed people . . . see little sign that labor will soon begin to add in large numbers. And some are growing increasingly nervous because unemployment benefits that were extended . . . will expire soon.

I want to make a very simple but important point in light of this rise in the long-term unemployed and the challenge that it presents. I strongly urge the administration to address it and to send the proposal to the Congress.

We extended unemployment compensation program earlier this year to provide an additional 13 weeks beyond the basic 26 weeks. But this program is scheduled to end on December 31 of this year, which means that someone who is then in the 27th week of their benefits at the end of 2002 would receive no further unemployment benefits. This program is scheduled to end at the very time when the number of long-term unemployed is not coming down, but is increasing.

The projections on the unemployment front are not encouraging. The CBO predicts the unemployment rate will remain near 6 percent until the second half of next year. When we enacted the extension, it was at 5.7 percent. Unemployment is projected to stay high well into next year, while the extension is scheduled to expire on December 31 of this year.

Now, in previous recessions—and it is important to note this—we extended the increase in the time period to collect unemployment benefits. Back in the recession of 1990–1991, unemployment benefits were extended five separate times. In fact, not only were they extended for over 50 weeks, but they then the period was lengthened again to between 52 and 59 weeks. I am very frank to tell you I think we have to confront this situation.

States are reporting larger increases in the exhaustion of unemployment benefits during this recession than during the last recession. So for those people who have been thrown out of work—and I am not going to go through the litany of it; much of it has hit the dot-com industry—they either have or are close to having exhausted their unemployment benefit payments. They are going to be in even deeper trouble once they cross that threshold and exhaust their unemployment benefit payments.

I am not seeking anything that is out of the ordinary in terms of past experience, but I think these benefits must be extended.

Let me make one final point. The temporary provision of additional Federal benefits to the unemployed, in the wake of economic downturns, has long served a dual purpose. Beyond providing needed income support to those whose spells of unemployment are lengthened by recessionary conditions, it is also very well designed to give the economy a boost.

Unemployment benefits are quickly injected into the economy. Benefits can be paid immediately through the existing unemployment insurance system. They are targeted to areas where the downturn has hit the hardest. They go to areas with large concentrations of newly unemployed who qualify for benefits. They stimulate demand where it has deteriorated the most. They are very effective in boosting the economy.

And, of course, they come to the rescue of people who have found themselves out of work and are under extreme stress in order to meet the financial demands of supporting themselves and often their families.

So we need to extend unemployment benefits. We need to fill in the weaknesses in the system. We need to give the people who have lost their jobs, and are now confronting a very severe situation, some support in these trying circumstances.

We have extended unemployment benefits before repeatedly. It has worked. It has been seen to work. We need to act now again. I very strongly urge the administration to face this challenge and to send to the Congress—promptly and immediately—a proposal with respect to unemployment insurance benefits that would help to assure that the millions of people across the country, who already have or may in the future exhaust their unemployment benefits, will not find themselves without any income support at the same time that they are confronting an economy in which job restoration is not taking place.

If job restoration were taking place, and the economy was on the upswing, and one could reasonably say to people, well, opportunities are returning and, therefore, you can find work. But that is not what is happening. You have people facing an economy which is softening, as the Wall Street Journal reported just this morning, as they said, "What looked like a brief dip in economic activity a month ago looks increasingly like a protracted slowdown."

We must at a minimum provide this assistance.

I yield the floor.

EXTENSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. REID. I want to make sure the record is clear. I asked earlier, what time Senator DASHIELLE used be given to the Republican side in morning business, so that their morning business time would be extended by whatever time we went over morning business, which had been a half hour, plus whatever extra time he used.

How much time would that be, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time used by Senator DASHIELLE, the time used by Senator SARBANES would be given to the Republicans so they could speak in morning business, and that would delay our going to the homeland security bill for whatever additional time that is? I ask unanimous consent that be the order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I listened intently as the majority leader and the minority leader, Senator SARBANES, referred to the homeland security bill and the debate that was going on. I ask unanimous consent that a statement be made in the record of one of my colleagues, the Senator from Texas, Mr. THOMAS, in which he will speak in favor of a vote on the homeland security bill.

I don’t think it ever does any harm, however, to talk about the fact that the country has additional challenges. I suggest we use the opportunity to face these challenges and to send to the Congress—promptly and immediately—a proposal with respect to unemployment insurance benefits that would help to assure that the millions of people across the country, who already have or may in the future exhaust their unemployment benefits, will not find themselves without any income support at the same time that they are confronting an economy in which job restoration is not taking place.
In terms of welfare reform, the 1996 reforms were the greatest success in public policy in the postwar period. Now, the President has proposed a welfare reform bill. The House has adopted a welfare reform bill. But there is no action on welfare reform in the Senate. Final budget proposals appropriation. Not one appropriations bill in its final form has passed the Congress, and only three have passed the Senate.

I would have to say there is a missing ingredient in the Majority Leader's speech when he talks about all the programs we face economically. When you look at the record of the Senate, let's begin at home. Let's begin to solve the problem where we live. That program is in the Senate.

I will address two other issues because I know our Republican Leader wishes to speak. I would have to take exception, as I said last Tuesday that I would, on the issue about deficits. I do not buy the argument that some of my colleagues can continue to stand up and moan and grow and cry about deficits as if they come from heaven, as if somehow God just said: We are going to have deficits. Deficits don't come from heaven; they are stood right here on the floor of the Senate.

I would have to say that when we are talking about a commitment not to raid Social Security, when we are talking about concern about the deficit, I remind them Tuesday I stood right at that desk and raised a point of order that we were taking $6 billion right out of the Social Security Trust Fund. The Majority Leader led the fight to take it out.

Today, he is alarmed about the deficit. Today, he is upset about the deficit. Today, he is bemoaning the deficit. But Tuesday he helped create the deficit.

You can't have it both ways. You can't keep spending as if there is no tomorrow and then complain about the deficit.

Let me remind my colleagues, lest they think that suddenly the Government has become so tightfisted we are hurting our people: Over the last 5 years, inflation has been 1.8 percent on a year on average. Average family income has risen by 4.5 percent. And yet the discretionary spending of the Federal Government, driven largely by automatic tax cuts, is growing at a rate that is not even changing about Medicare and Social Security and mandatory programs; I am talking about discretionary spending, something every family understands—at the time when family income was growing by 4.5 percent, discretionary spending, not counting the September 11 emergency funding, was growing by almost 7 percent.

When you look at what that means by program, this is the inflation rate, this red line, and this, by parts of the Government that have grown as compared to inflation: six times as fast for Labor-HHS; five times as fast for Interior, five times as fast for Treasury. It goes on and on.

Yet the Majority Leader comes to the floor of the Senate today and says: We have a crisis. We need, in essence, to raise taxes—taxes are too low—so we can fund more spending.

Anyone who looks at the facts is going to conclude that not only have higher taxes and higher spending never helped any economy anywhere, but they are already having us spending and that we are creating these deficits as we go every day in the Senate.

Finally, I have to respond to this constant effort to try to pit people against each other based on their income. Every destroyed ancient Athens; it destroyed ancient Rome. It is a dangerous thing for Americans to use, and it is outrageous, unfair, and unjustified.

Look at the people who make up the Senate and look at the families they come from and give me an argument that somehow there is some kind of elitism in America. It won't hold water. And we hear all this talk that these rich people are getting all these tax cuts—the top 1 percent. Senator DASCHLE reminds us they get the $50,000 tax cut. He didn't bother to point out that they are paying $400,000 in taxes. And as far as the low-income people who are not getting tax cuts are concerned, he didn't point out that they are not paying any taxes. Income tax cuts are for taxpayers. We have already been funding programs for non-taxpayers.

We had not had a real tax cut of any significance since 1981. And the reality is that our tax cut made the Tax Code more progressive and not less progressive. Under our tax cut, the top 1 percent of income earners will pay more taxes as a percentage than they pay now.

So I think what we are seeing here is that some of our colleagues are obviously embarrassed about the fact that we are not getting the job done in the Senate, and that these people want a homeland security bill passed. I don't think changing the subject helps our effort.

In the end, if we are really concerned about those things—and we should—we ought to go back and adopt a budget. We need to address these concerns the American public has. But it is never going to be enough to say that there is unhappiness in the country. Ultimately, you have to say what your program is to deal with it. The only program I heard today is we need more spending.

When Alan Greenspan was asked before the House Banking Committee what one thing we could do that would help the economy the most, he said: "Stop spending." Yet, last Thursday, we added $6 billion to the deficit, led by the very people who, today—last Thursday, they were for deficits; today, they are against deficits. But you cannot be for something on Tuesday and against it last Thursday and have any credibility in that debate.
So, in the end, we have work to do here. In my opinion, we need to pass a homeland security bill. That is lives today. We have to deal with the Iraq situation. And nothing would make me happier than to do something to help the economy. But that something is not spending and it is not tax increases. In fact, it would be exactly the opposite.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The President is recognized.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, how much time do we have in the designated time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 30 minutes remaining.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I will not take that much time, I am certain.

I feel a need to respond to Senator Daschle’s comments a few minutes ago.

Before he leaves the Chamber, I want to say how much I appreciate, and the Senate appreciates, the Senator from Texas. He is going to be leaving this year. Maybe that is one of the reasons he is even more articulate than usual. He is the really feels and thinks and is holding nothing back.

As I have said before—and I mean it sincerely—I don’t know what we will do without him. We are going to have to create another one, although I am not sure it is possible. On behalf of the taxpayers of this country, and even the ones who may disagree with him sometimes, I say to the Senator that I appreciate him very much. He has certainly become a legend in this institution. We thank him for all he has done and all we know he is going to do. We hope he is very successful and pays his fair share of the taxes, which we hope to cut as the years go by.

Let me come back to what was said earlier. I think it was summed up in a headlining about the fact that Senator Daschle was going to make this speech. It says: “Daschle to Attack Bush Fiscal Policies.” Unfortunately, that is all it was. It was a litany of complaints, citing certain statistics in certain areas where there might be a concern.

My first reaction is, even if you accept all of that as being a problem—and a lot of it is—what is your plan? What do you plan to do about it? What is the legislation you advocate? What do you recommend we pass in the 3 weeks or so we have left here?

The President has had an agenda. The President sent a budget here, but it was all foreordained that we would come to this point this year when we got no budget resolution on the floor and voted on. I asked, why did we not have a budget resolution? We had one for 27, 28 years in a row. Now, all of a sudden, we will not have one. I was told, it is because when the Senate is this closely divided. In 2001, when the Senate was divided 50/50, we wound up passing a budget resolution by a wide margin, including, I think, a dozen Democrats who voted with most, if not all, Republicans.

So while every Senator has a right to point out concerns about the economy and the country, I think they ought to be in a position of saying, OK, what are you going to do about that? What is your plan to deal with that? At the time we had no budget agreement, I made note of the fact that we were going to have some sort of meltdown at the end of the fiscal year; we were not going to have endorsement mechanisms; it was going to be hard and it was going to be done.

The other thing that really bothers me is, not only is there no real plan from the Senate, in instance after instance the House passed good legislation and the Senate has not taken it up—over 50 bills. I am not talking about bills to create a “watermelon recognition day”; I am talking about serious issues that are being reformed. Surely we should have taken the next step to help people get off welfare, get training and education, and get what they need to get into a real job and pay taxes. That is the way you help the American people. By the way, welfare reform, the Senate is not going to act on that. We are still now working on homeland security.

Part of what we need to do for our economy in America is to reassure people that we are going to be safe and we are going to have the protections they need at home. They need to know that life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness and the opportunity to make a decent living are going to be protected.

We are into the third week. Senator Daschle filed cloture to cut off a filibuster. Who is filibustering? It is not this side. There have been not more than three substantive amendments that have been given an opportunity to even be debated. Yet homeland security is languishing here in the Senate. Hopefully, we will get it done this week, or next week, or sometime, so we can get it before we go out.

We have not made the tax cut permanent. We should do that. The ridiculousness of the uncertainty of not knowing whether the tax cuts are going to be applicable in the years to come—when I go around the country, people say: Explain this to me. How can you do such a thing, have a tax cut and not know for sure whether it is going to be in place down the road? We have not done that.

Prescription drugs: We should have had an agreement if we had gotten a prescription drug measure together and debated it and voted on it in the Finance Committee. We could have reported out a bipartisan bill that would have come to the floor and would have passed. We could have a bill probably out of conference now that would help low-income people who do need this help in the future.

So in instance after instance, as Senator Gramm pointed out, the Senate has not produced any results. There has been no plan. We have done three appropriations bills. We are on the fourth one. Not one bill will go to the President by the end of the fiscal year. I know it is tough because, as majority leader, year after year I had to wrestle with whether we could get them done; usually, one by one we got them through the process. In 1996, we actually got them all done, and I think we got them done very close to the end of the fiscal year. It was harder and harder after that.

But how can you complain about what is happening in the economy when you have such uncertainty in the Government—what is going to be available for transportation, education, health and housing? That is all out there with no result.

The only proposal I have heard from some Democrats as to what we should do to be helpful within the economy is to spend more—always add more money no matter what. Whenever a proposal is made by the President or by Republicans, Democrats say: We will double you or triple you. They think that is the way you create jobs—more Government spending. I do not think that is the way to do it. We have not done anything in many instances because of the pressure of the tax burden, regulatory burdens, and all the other problems that come out of having these deficits.

So their only proposal is: Let’s spend more, and they tip-toe around it, but they cannot quite bring themselves to say what they want to do is stop the tax cuts; they want tax increases.

We need to be giving more incentives for the economy to grow. Let me talk a bit about what has been done. I will show my colleagues the difference.

It has been very difficult, but we have gotten some of the President’s very important agenda through both the Senate and the House or into conference.

One of the things we could do to help the economy and create more jobs is to have increasing trade. We need to open trade. We need to make sure our companies, our farmers, and ranchers have access to markets all over the world in a truly open and free trade arrangement. We did get that through, although I think it took us 7 weeks to get the trade bill done. It was a long stretch of time, once again, because of the way it was brought up.

We also did get an energy bill through the Senate. It is still pending in conference. I think that took us about 4 weeks.

We did pass effective tax relief to help Americans keep more of their money to buy what is needed for their children at the beginning of the school year. In fact, while I had my doubts about it at the time, the rebate that was included in the tax cuts in 2001 started hitting in August. September, October; we are seeing the effects of not only a recession that started in 2000, but also the aftereffects of what happened on September 11. As that money got into consumers’ hands, they continued to buy what was needed for their families, and they have been the strongest part of the economy during a critical time.

We also had passed—and this is a case where it was bipartisan—tough corporate accountability legislation.

There are some other issues we still could do in the waning hours of this session, but I think to just make speeches and be critical of fiscal policies without offering any alternatives is the height of what we should not be doing in the Senate.

The emperor has no clothes, Mr. President. The leadership has not passed a budget. It has not passed appropriations bills. The Senate has not passed the prescription drug bill. We have not been able to get any traction on homeland security, and we have not even done pension reform. I would like people to know more about what they can count on with regard to putting money in IRAs or maybe taking money out of IRAs for education and what we are going to do in the future in terms of protecting 401(k)s and how stock options will be done. But that has not been brought up, and I am not sure it ever will be.

We have the opportunity in the next 3 weeks to do what must be done for our country: We can pass the Defense and military construction appropriations bills to make sure our men and women have what they need to do the job to protect America at home and abroad. We can pass this homeland security bill, create this Department that will bring some focus to our homeland security, and we can help with economic security by controlling spending and by passing such bills out of conference as the energy bill. If we do not deal with the energy needs of this country for the future, if we do not have an energy policy and someday we have an energy shortfall, that could have a quick negative effect on our economy.

Those are the issues on which we can work in the next 3 weeks. Of course, we are going to need to stand up to our responsibilities and address the Iraq situation also. I think we will do that. We should focus on those issues we can do, where we can find agreement, and quit being critical without offering any alternatives.

Mr. President, I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, what is the business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

HOMELAND SECURITY ACT OF 2002

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 1 o’clock having arrived, the Senate will now resume consideration of H.R. 5005, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read the following:

A bill (H.R. 5005) to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Lieberman amendment No. 4471, in the nature of a substitute.

AMENDMENT NO. 4644

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, for the information of my colleagues, I have no intention of speaking at great length. I think that other Senators will come to the floor and engage me—not necessarily engage me, but Senators will come to the floor and speak on the amendment either for or against.

I would like to see other Senators who, I am sure, are as concerned about homeland security legislation through both Houses and put it on the President’s desk before much time is to be had for debate and for a clear elucidation of the pros and cons with respect to my amendment. And there are other amendments by other Senators waiting. I also have some other amendments.

I do invite other Senators on both sides of the aisle to come to the floor and participate with reference, hopefully, to my amendment.

Yesterday, the administration and the congressional Republican leadership again chastised the Senate for not acting quickly enough to pass the President’s homeland security measure.

Said the very able Senate minority leader:

I fear the Senate Democrats are fiddling while Rome has the potential to burn.

“‘It’s being talked to death,’” added White House spokesman, Ari Fleischer. We are said to have been debating this bill for 3 weeks now, 10 days of debate—3 weeks.

Ten days of debate is not too long, something like 3 weeks. It takes 3 weeks to hatch an egg. I believe the distinguished Senator from Tennessee would agree with me; we are both from the hill country. He is from the hill country of Tennessee, and I am from the hill country of West Virginia. It does not make any difference how much heat you apply to that egg, it still takes at least 3 weeks for that egg to hatch out. If I am wrong in that, I would like my colleague from Tennessee to tell me.

We are talking about something that was hatched by four men, are we not, in the dark subterranean caverns of the White House?

I think a bill of this importance should be debated long enough that the Senate will know what will happen to this legislation. I think we will know what we are talking about, what we are about to pass. This is no small piece of legislation. It is not legislation of little moment. It is very important legislation. In my speaking on this measure thus far, I have tried—a great deal of apathy. I do not believe much attention is being paid to this bill. I had urged that we not act too fast to have this bill on the President’s desk before the August recess or by the time the August recess began, and then there was the idea that we ought to pass it by September 11, the first anniversary of that tragic event which occurred in New York City. And I said, no, we need to take longer. I hoped that Senators would read the bill and that the people over at the Congressional Reference Service, the legislative people over in the Library of Congress, would have an opportunity to read this bill before we voted on it. We have been debating this now for a few days. We look ahead to the appropriations bills that must be passed before the end of the fiscal year, the proposed adjournment date of October 6, and the November midterm elections. It seems to be a long deliberation on one bill, but merely having a bill on the floor or on the calendar and actually debating it are two different things. To have the bill before the Senate and to actually debating it are two different things.

I have my eye further ahead, years ahead, to future Congresses and future generations of Americans. I am trying to look ahead. To my way of thinking, the attention which this bill has received on this floor seems exceedingly brief. We are in the midst of an enormous undertaking. We are talking about enacting a massive reorganization of the Federal bureaucracy, a radical overhaul of our border security and immigration system, and a powerful new intelligence structure that may forever change the way Americans think about their own freedoms. It is a mighty huge responsibility that we are taking on, and we are endeavoring to do it all in one fell swoop: do it now, do it here. We have heard the White House on television: Do it now, do it here.

I understand the pressures to move quickly today. We live in an age of instant coffee, instant replays, and instant messages. I suppose the drive for instant legislation is a natural outgrowth. But I prefer the taste of slow brewed coffee. And I like to study the fine print in legislation I am being asked to support.

I would like to know, for instance, just exactly how many Federal workers will be employed at this new Department. I saw a recent article in The Washington Post that mentioned that the new Transportation Security Administration was slated to employ 28,000 Federal screeners when it was first created by Congress just last November. But, its Inspector General has determined that the agency will actually employ 170,000 screeners. As for how many Federal workers are from my State, I would like to know just how many of the total number of affected Federal workers are from my State. Exact numbers are from each State? I think every Senator has a legitimate interest in knowing the answer to that and many other questions.

Since we have seen the Transportation Security Agency employment figures rise so rapidly, I would be interested in learning if we can bank on that figure of 170,000 employees for the new Department or if that is just a rough "guesstimate."

While we are at it, I would like to know just exactly why these particular 28 Federal agencies and offices were selected, out of the more than 100 that have homeland security functions, to be part of this grand new Department. The administration crafted its homeland security plan in secret, so the Congress has little knowledge of why the Lieberman substitute bill is the 28 agencies and offices to be transferred. Why these offices? Why these agencies? Why not other agencies?

The Lieberman bill, like the House-passed bill, proposes to transfer to the Department the same 28 agencies and offices outlined in the President's plan. But the Governmental Affairs Committee has not developed any sort of criteria for why these agencies were chosen to be moved, other than the fact they were identified in the President's proposal. Certainly, the Congress needs a better reason than that for transferring 28 agencies and offices and 170,000 employees.

I considered the possibility that the answer to my question might lie in the definition of "homeland security" but then I do not believe I found in the Lieberman substitute bill a definition of homeland security. It may be there, but I am not sure. I have been studying this Lieberman bill and the House bill. The House bill is an improvement over the House bill. It is leap years ahead of the House bill, but I cannot remember having found a definition of homeland security in the Lieberman bill.

Thinking, by the way, that such a definition was a pretty important thing to have in a piece of landmark legislation intended to address one of our Nation's most pressing challenges, I included a definition in my amendment.

I would be interested to know why some of the Assistant Secretaries called for in this bill have no defined function. Under Title I, the Lieberman bill creates five assistant secretary positions within the new Department, all of whom would have to be confirmed by the Senate, but grants the President the authority to define the functions and responsibilities of these assistant secretary positions when the President submits his appointees to the Senate for confirmation. Once confirmed by the Senate, the Lieberman plan authorizes the Homeland Security Secretary to assign those functions that the Secretary shall define.

The Congress should understand how the President plans to utilize these assistant secretaries before it creates their positions. What's more, it should define those responsibilities and functions. Under the Lieberman plan, the President can broadly define the role of an assistant secretary, outside of the law, and, after the appointee has been confirmed by the Senate, the Secretary can alter that role, without regard to the intent of the Congress.

I would like to inquire for workers in the chemical industry and the trucking industry just exactly who is going to determine how they are supposed to deal with hazardous materials. Will the Transportation Department still make rules for trucking hazardous cargo or will all that now fall under the purview of the new Department? Are chemical plants to be subject to the powers at Homeland Security or the Environmental Protection Agency? The House did not address any of these regulatory matters be sorted out in arm-wrestling matches?

I do not believe that we have taken enough care in this bill to clearly define what we are authorizing the executive to do, and that is exactly how the President would have it. The administration wants us to be careless in our legislation so it can be reckless in its implementation. The administration does not want to be constrained by a specific plan, whether crafted in the White House or in the Congress, because the administration does not want to be pinned down on the details of its policies or the specifics of its actions.

A favorite piece of reading material for this administration apparently is "Gulliver's Travels," where we read about the Lilliputians. That is a great piece of literature; I have liked it over the years. But we have heard various Secretaries in this administration and other high officials in this administration talk about Gulliver's Travels. But they are irritable by the fact they are being asked to abide by certain rules. These have been longstanding rules. So the administration does not want to be tied down by any rules. We have heard them tell the story of the Lilliputians a number of times. So they do not want to be pinned down. This administration does not want to be pinned down by any rules, not pinned down by the details of its policies or the specifics of its actions.

President Bush has pressured Congress to act quickly on his proposal, insisting that because homeland security has become his top priority for the Federal Government, Congress must immediately provide him the resources and flexibility that he is demanding.

The House of Representatives passed legislation approving most of the proposal only 38 days after he submitted it to Congress. The House of Representatives passed the legislation in 2 days. Why, it would take longer than that in some communities in this Congress, some cities in this country. It would take longer than that to get a sewage permit. It would take longer than 2 days to get a sewage permit in some parts of the country. And perhaps for good reason. They passed a piece of legislation such as this with its far-reaching ramifications in 2 days in the other body.

I cannot see how either House of Congress can properly consider the merits of a new Department of Government and the transfer of 28 Federal agencies in 1 month's time, especially when the stakes are so high. But here we are, possibly with a bill before us; the clock is ticking.

I know Chairman LIEBERMAN and his committee have spent many hours on this bill. They have far more expertise on the subject matter than I have. I am not a member of that committee. I am not a member of any committee that has jurisdiction over this subject matter per se. Senator STEVENS and I were very concerned about some of the language that the House approved, in his administration proposal, about what would happen to the legislative process, how the constitutional process, the power of the purse, was being changed by the proposed legislation. So Senator STEVENS and I wrote to Senator LIEBERMAN and to Senator THOMPSON and asked that change be made in their legislation before they reported it to protect the legislative process as we have known it for over two centuries. They worked hard. Senator LIEBERMAN and Senator THOMPSON worked very hard to craft the best bill they could craft under the circumstances. They have made a number of important improvements to the bill passed by the House. I thank the committee again, as I have thanked the committee before on several occasions, and its staff, for their efforts. But the stakes are so high and I believe we would be better off if we took further opportunities to look at the details, to study the details, to us the details.
structure of the new Department but also the relationship that Congress will have with the Department during its lengthy transition period and throughout the process of making and implementing homeland security policy. This legislation is going to be around quite a long time, and I suspect that, for the most part, the protections that I am interested in having in this legislation are protections for the rainy day, as well as for the day of sunshine, protections for our vital infrastructure—are the things that will be with us a long time. Whether it is a Democratic administration or a Republican administration, I should think we would all want to see what is best for the country, what is best for our children and grandchildren. If we are going to pass something, let it be well thought out, knowing, as I do know, that this legislation is going to be around for a long time.

We have heard that the war on terrorism is going to be a long time in its duration. But I doubt that. We have spent nearly $20 billion in Afghanistan thus far, and we don’t know whether Bin Laden is alive or dead. So this will be around for a long time.

This President and his administration, as they have just pointed out, have not turned this matter over to them, nor may not be around. Who knows? This President may be here 2 more years after this year or he may be here 6 more years or he may be here 8 more years. Who knows? There may be a Democratic President, a Democratic administration, there may be a Democratic House at some point. So I think we should not act with our blinders on and act only for partisan reasons because at the moment there is a Republican administration in the White House. We must not hurry this through just to get a bill through, to meet a certain date.

As Senator LIEBERMAN and I and others have said, let’s do it right. That is what I assume is the responsibility of every Senator, to do what he can to improve this bill, if it can be improved. I have never seen a bill that came to the Senate floor that couldn’t be improved. Every appropriations bill that was reported to the Senate floor by my Appropriations Committee, of which I am the chairman, is always subject to amendments, and many amendments are offered and acted upon favorably. So we have room for improvement.

I do not come here as an adversary of Senator LIEBERMAN. I do not think my amendment is adversarial to his bill. I think that, even though his bill is a great improvement over the House bill, there is room for further improvement. That is not saying anything I think anyone would be offended by on my committee. I have heard of no such offense.

This is our job here, to do the best we can to come out at the end of the day with the finest product, the best product this Senate is capable of. We are talking about homeland security, the security of the people in this country. We must recognize that there is real work to be done by the Senate to make sure that all of the agencies are moved into the Department and that it is all done in a responsible way.

I understand the President’s desire to pass a strong bill in order to make a strong statement. We all want to assure the public that we are acting decisively to secure the public’s safety. No one wants to be portrayed as standing in the way of greater security on American soil. If the President believes he can simply create this Department out of thin air, as if by magic. It wasn’t too long ago that this President and the Director of Homeland Security, Mr. Ridge, were saying: We don’t need another Department. Why have another Department? Why have another Department?

Well, that is a long story. We went about, up the hill and down the hill, on the administration’s plan of Homeland Security, come up before the Senate Appropriations Committee and testify on the budget. And of course the administration put its foot down hard. They didn’t want that done. So we have sought that in Appropriations. Committee, Mr. STEVENS and I—we have on one occasion put language into an appropriations bill requiring the Director of Homeland Security to be confirmed by the Senate.

Now, when the administration saw that this mashed truck coming down the road—that bill was brought to the Senate, and it passed by a majority, a great majority; 71 Senators voted for it. Not one Senator objected to that language. Not one Senator offered an amendment to strike that language. So the administration saw that Mack truck coming down the road—that bill was brought to the Senate, and it passed by a majority, a great majority; 71 Senators voted for it. Not one Senator objected to that language. Not one Senator offered an amendment to strike that language. So the administration saw that Mack truck coming down the road, and lo and behold, the administration decided: Oh, we have to get in front of that wave. And then they came up with this marvelous piece of brainwork. It came down from the bowels in the bowels of the White House. They came up with this marvelous piece of magic. And now they want it passed in a hurry to create this Department of Homeland Security—which, not too long ago, as I say, the President did not seem to want to create a Homeland Security Department, nor did Mr. Ridge.

Well, a little wave of his magic wand, a few magic words to the press, and poof, the President pulls a new Department out of his hat.

That is the old vaudeville stunt, a new rabbit out of the hat. Don’t watch my right hand, watch my left hand. Watch what my left hand is doing. Don’t pay any attention to my right hand. All of a sudden, he pulls a rabbit out of the hat.

The President pulls a new department out of his hat. But after the President’s sleight of hand is over and the smoke clears from the stage, the task of replacing political magic with real management will begin.

I have often urged my colleagues to look to history as a guide to the future. There is much to be learned from the successes and the failures of our forefathers and we would do well to take the countenance of the past. I realize that everybody shares my love of history or see the past’s connection with today and I am disappointed. But I hope that we all will not fail to learn from our own experiences.

Last October, nearly half the Senate was thrown into disarray as the Hart Building was closed due to anthrax contamination. All of my office. My staff were shut out of my office in the Hart Building. Many Senators were shut out of their offices, barred from our mainframes, our fax machines, our files. Our staffs were relocated, with new phones, new computers, new fax machines. Staff members couldn’t reach each other, let alone our constituents. We scrambled to find ways to ensure a continuation of constituent services.

I believe how difficult it was to set up new quarters and make our offices functional again. But this bill before us is our anthrax experience many times over. And this time, the work that will be interrupted may be work that would prevent another Bin Laden or even Bin Laden’s life in another terrorist attack. I think it is worth the time to ensure that this agency is formed in the right way, from the ground up. We should take the time to work out the kinks before launching it.

Like so many government reorganizations before it, this legislation lumps together a number of disparate agencies and slaps a new sign across them. It does nothing to fill in the details of a very sketchy plan. It does nothing to resolve the inevitable problems that lie ahead. It is an opportunity to get off the hook easily. Pass something; claim the credit for passing the legislation in the upcoming election. Congress is not in the business of greater security on American soil. If the President believes he can simply create this Department of Homeland Security—if we pass the bill that has been adopted by the committee chaired so ably by Mr. LIEBERMAN.
The President and the Secretary of Homeland Security will have to transfer 28 agencies—some say 22, some say 30—create 6 new directorates, and coordinate information and resources from countless Federal, State, and local agencies and private corporations. The administration expects Congress to hand over a blank check. They may do that in some States. Maybe the President is accustomed to having it that way in Texas. I do not know. I suppose he has been Governor in West Virginia who believed they might be entitled to a blank check on something. But we are not talking about something at the State level. This is the Federal level, and it is the Federal Constitution to which we have to pay very close attention.

The Administration expects Congress to hand over a blank check to craft this Department without additional guidance during implementation. This expectation is not only unrealistic, it is irresponsible.

If the Senate adopts the President’s proposal without making further efforts, we will have handed it out! If this Senate is not willing to put in the time and attention that this new Department undoubtedly requires, I have to wonder whether we are really serious about investing responsibly in a long-term federal response to homeland security threats at all. I hope this is not all just for show.

Is that what it is? Is it all for show? Just rush the bill through so that we can say to the voters: Oh, the Senate has passed the homeland security bill. I hope it is not all for show!

The Senate must take a responsible approach toward enacting the President’s proposal. If the Department of Homeland Security is worth doing, it is worth doing right, and both Houses of Congress must act deliberately to see that this Department gets up and running properly and expeditiously.

To ensure that all of these agencies and functions are being coordinated to the right places for the right reasons, we will have to set the stage for our work after this bill is enacted. If we give the President blanket authority to transfer and reorganize these agencies without further action by Congress, the Department’s transition will certainly suffer under a clumsy, trial-and-error approach that has been the death knell for so many other important government efforts before it. It will be crucial for Congress to get this Department where it needs to be, and Congress should not buy in to the empty promises of a one-time fix for all of the federal government’s homeland security functions. We must sign up for the long haul now.

Any good carpenter knows that he will save himself a lot of headaches if he takes the time to measure twice and cut once. But in the midst of this enormous building project we have undertaken, a new department of government, no one is bothering to make even a rough measure of the actions we are taking.

Even if we wanted to do so, we would have nothing to measure against, because the President has not given us any workable blueprints laying out the architectural details of the Homeland Security Department. The President just shouts at us to keep building, because he takes the time to measure for his secret war as soon as possible.

And by including all of these hurried agency transfers in his proposal, President Bush is trying to move in the further criticism he has even finished putting a roof over the Department. Given his success in pushing through his proposal, this may truly be the house that George built, and, if we don’t hold our own feet to the flames, Congress will spend years making repairs to this hastily designed and poorly built structure. If his commitment to protecting homeland security is not strong enough to endure congressional involvement and public scrutiny, then our security is in serious jeopardy. If the President’s policies are not sound enough to survive the constitutional process, then we would probably be more secure without them.

Securing the safety of the American people in their own homeland will be the most important challenge of our time, and it will require responsible leadership both from the White House and from the Congress. Such leadership does not consist of hollow political solutions and public campaigns. When the lives of our citizens are on the line, we have a duty to rise above the petty, and we have a duty to rise above the hard decisions about how best to protect the country’s long-term interests. The President is asking us to establish the Department of Homeland Security without making these decisions, and without any clear evidence from the White House that he is willing to make the hard decisions under the processes required by the Constitution. Congress must require of the President that he himself make the hard decisions about how best to protect the country’s long-term interests.

The amendment that I shall offer requires the President to establish the Department of Homeland Security without making these decisions, and with any clear evidence from the White House that he is willing to make the hard decisions under the processes required by the Constitution. The Byrd amendment gives Congress additional opportunities to work through the details about worker protections, civil liberties, privacy, secrecy, and about which agencies and functions should be transferred to the new Department.

Additionally, the Byrd amendment would give Congress the opportunity to gauge and modify how the new Department is being implemented, while it develops legislation to transfer additional functions and agencies. The Byrd amendment would provide Congress with additional means to head off problems that traditionally plague and delay massive reorganizations.

I have defined as well as I could in this time my amendment. I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia (Mr. Byrd) proposes an amendment numbered 4644.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today’s RECORD under “Text of Amendments.”)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

At the moment there is not a sufficient second.

The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Madam President, I rise to speak against the amendment which the distinguished Senator from West Virginia has offered. I do so, of course, with great respect for him personally, for his record of service to our country, for his record of leadership in the Senate, and for all that this Senator—and I would say every Senator—learns from him just about every day here.

I rise to speak against the amendment. I am going to try to speak clearly on why I feel so strongly against this amendment, but I certainly hope the Senator from West Virginia will understand, and colleagues as well, that I do it with great respect.

Senator BYRD has been good enough to express his appreciation for many parts of the amendment which is the proposal that emerged from the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, which I am privileged to chair, by a 12-to-5 bipartisan vote at the end of July. I appreciate those kind words.

But I must say that though Senator BYRD has said his intentions are not adversarial to the committee-reported proposal for a Department of Homeland Security, it seems to me that adoption of Senator BYRD’s amendment would eviscerate our proposal. It would, as he has said, create a superstructure, a kind of house—that would not be much in the house. There might be an attic, with the Secretary and some of the executives up there, but nothing underneath for at least a year, and probably well beyond that, to better protect the security of the American people here at home.

So this amendment, though it preserves the superstructure, strikes at the heart of what the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee has been working to bring forth for well over a year now.

We began our investigations on the problem of homeland security before September 11 of last year. We held hearings on matters related to homeland security before September 11. In fact, we had a hearing scheduled for September 12 on one aspect of homeland security, and we went forward with it as best we could. Half the witnesses could not make it to Washington, and I admire him for that, and I appreciate that. And I think he reached a conclusion that it would take more than an office—without statutory power, without budget authority—to meet the threat from terrorists placed on his shoulders, and ours, to protect the security of the American people.

My friend and distinguished colleague from West Virginia said the President pulled this bill out of a hat. Well, if he pulled it out of a hat, it was a hat that belonged to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee because so much of the proposal that the President ultimately made is exactly the same as the bill that was reported out of our committee in May.

That is why I have said, all along, that probably 90 percent of the various proposals here—the committee proposal, the President’s proposal—are in agreement with one another. And we are arguing over a small number of issues, not insignificant issues, but relatively small in number compared to all we agree on. We worked to take some of the ideas the President had and add them to the bill. Still, it is about the same bill that our committee reported out at the end of May.

Then at the end of July—July 24 and 25—we had two very productive, extensive days of committee deliberation, of so-called markup, in which we were quite open to suggestions that had been made by Members of the Senate. I myself consulted with the various chairmen of relevant committees. Senator THOMPSON spoke to the ranking Republicans on the committees. We built a package and reported it on July 25. Not perfect. As the Senator from West Virginia quite accurately says, no legislation that is brought before this Senate is perfect; it always can stand amendment, including this proposal.

But I must say again, with all respect, that the Byrd amendment would basically pull out of the bill most of the guts of the hard work our committee has done. It would again frame questions that our committee has worked on over almost a year to answer and has presented to the Senate the best considered judgment about what the answers to those questions should be. And the basic question is, How can we best protect the security of the American people after September 11 against terrorism and threats to their security?

Senator BYRD’s amendment reminds me of those board games I played as a child, and sometimes occasionally still do with children or grandchildren, where, when you hit a certain box, they tell you to go back to the beginning and start all over again. That is what adoption of this amendment would do. It would obliterate all the work we have done. It would essentially say that the answers we came up with were not adequate. And it would establish a system where the administration over the next year would basically try to fill a house that is now empty in the Byrd amendment. Underneath the attic, where the Secretary and a few of the executives are, there is nothing to protect the security of the American people.

The administration would be required to submit—beginning early in February of next year, and every 4 months thereafter—proposals for filling in that structure. But the requirements of the Byrd amendment say that not earlier than February 3 of next year, and succeeding 120 days thereafter, would the administration be able to submit the inner workings of the Department. And there is no clear time as to when this Department would be up and running.

I gather that the Senator has modified or will modify his amendment to say that Congress must act on the administration’s proposals for what will happen in five of the divisions of the Department by 13 months after the effective date of the underlying legislation—that date chosen, I presume, 13 months, because our legislation says that the full Department must be up and running 13 months after the effective date.

The passage of the Byrd amendment would give the American people no guarantee that they would have a Department of Homeland Security, protecting them better than we protected them on September 11, in any time that is measurable.

I have a personal sense of urgency. Senator BYRD has spoken to it. We want to better protect the security of the American people. It is an important assignment we have taken on to create this Department. But this is an assignment that comes with a sense of urgency.

The terrorists are out there. We read every day about it, either about apprehensions or arrests of terrorists in various parts of the world. As I have said before on the floor, we defeated the Taliban in Afghanistan. We disrupted the al-Qaida bases there. But so many of these bad actors are still there. They are not an army that we can see as a conventional army on battlefields. They are not in ships that we can observe at sea. They are hiding in the shadows of this world, in foreign countries, in our country. That is why I say that every day we go without a better organization of the various critical departments that are supposed to be protecting the homeland security of the American people is a day of greater danger for the people.

It is with that sense of urgency that our committee has brought forward our proposal. And this amendment, if passed, would take the heart out of the proposal and delay its implementation to a day that cannot be measured. That is wrong. I oppose the amendment with the greatest respect but with the greatest sincerity and intensity.

I ask my colleagues, any of whom are thinking about voting for this amendment, to explain on the floor and to their constituents how they could support this amendment and still say they are committed to the creation of a Department of Homeland Security with a sense of urgency that the reality of the terrorist threat requires.

This amendment would establish a Department of Homeland Security and a Secretary with the missions and responsibilities virtually preserved. It would also retain the basic administrative structure of the Department, as the Governmental Affairs Committee proposal has proposed. The amendment also creates the same six directorates as in our bill, each to be headed by an Under Secretary. But as I have said, there is nothing else in this amendment within five of those six directorates. The one exception is the Immigration and Naturalization Service directorate. There are no responsibilities, no mission statements effectively, no transferred agencies.

The amendment does call, as I have said, for the Secretary of the new Department to submit to Congress, over the course of the next year, a series of legislative proposals to further the mission of the Department, including recommendations for the transfer of "autonomous agencies, personnel, assets, agencies, or entities into the various directorates."

These proposals to be provided to the Congress by the Secretary would be responsible for setting in the house. That included directorates in the precise list of agencies and programs to be transferred to the new Department but an enumeration of all the responsibilities of the new Department, including the funding responsibilities, decisions about the Immigration and Naturalization Service directorate. There are no responsibilities, no mission statements effectively, no transferred agencies.

I have talked about the deadline for Congress to act. It is unusual, I say with some humility, for one Congress to attempt to bind another Congress to act. Is it enforceable? Can we have any sense of assurance, if the Byrd amendment passes, that Congress would act on the various proposals of the President 13 months after the effective day, which would probably take us to 2003? I don't think so. In this amendment, remember, in the underlying committee proposal, the Department is created.

The effective date of the legislation begins 30 days after it is signed and becomes effective. The Department begins. The administration then has 12 months after that to complete the full implementation of the new Department, to bring all the 170,000 employees together to get the Department up and running, to overcome theencies, to bridge the gaps that exist, to create the new directorates of this Department that we desperately need.

As to intelligence, for instance, there is still no place in our Federal Government where all the proverbial dots are connected from law enforcement and intelligence. That is an urgent need we have.

If the committee's proposal is adopted, the new Secretary of Homeland Security would be authorized to do that immediately. All we say is by the expiration of 12 months from the effective date of the legislation; therefore, 13 months after the President's signature, all of this would work.

Set that aside from what would happen in the case of the Byrd amendment, in which the only guarantee we have is essentially a hope that Congress will have acted on the administration's proposals 13 months after the Department is created. That is just not enough.

This is no time for us to replace the carefully considered bipartisan legislation that emerged from our committee with the agenda of content that may never turn into a genuine Homeland Security Department, with the power, the personnel, and the resources it needs to protect the American people from terrorism.

Mr. Vice President, I did not want to interrupt the distinguished Senator. I will be happy to wait until he finishes his statement, but whenever he is ready to be interrupted, I would like to get his attention.

Mr. Dixon of West Virginia. I would like to complete my statement. Then I will be glad to respond to any comments or questions he has.

Let me make three general points about what troubles me about the amendment.

First, the amendment destroys what might be called the holistic design of a new Department. By that I mean the whole will be greater than the sum of its parts. From the very beginning, the entire purpose of formulating this Department has been to create a cohesive and unified organization in which all the pieces fit together tightly with all the other pieces. We have strived to bring to our legislation a global understanding of the capabilities our Government has and the capabilities it currently lacks. We have thought carefully about the interrelationships of the different agencies and directorates that will make up the Department.

The result, I am confident, is a Department in which the six constituent divisions strengthen one another such that the whole is greater than the sum of the parts. Splitting this Department into a number of separate pieces that will be created in organizational isolation from each other will undercut the wide angle focus that is necessary for us to best meet the terrorist threat.

We will revert to essentially creating a number of different divisions that are linked to one another in name but not necessarily in function. In the process, I fear the Byrd amendment will threaten one of the core purposes of a single Department of Homeland Security under a unified chain of command; that is, namely, to leverage the benefits of bringing together these 28 different agencies and programs in a synergy, in a way that the whole is greater than the sum of the parts.

Pulling the pieces apart and rebuilding them will lose that understanding of our capabilities. Just think about the pieces of the new Department that we need to work together every day. I cite the intelligence directorate again. It is going to communicate with the directorate on critical infrastructure protection and on border transportation security, and it is going to need to develop threat assessment and threat dissemination systems and protocols.

The directorate on science and technology will need to learn from the directorate on emergency preparedness and response precisely what technologies the Federal and local level, and then we will have to develop an action plan to deploy those technologies. Every directorate in the organization will have to draw on the science and technology directorate's expertise for critical analysis and decision-making regarding scientific or technical issues.

This Department should work like a carefully crafted machine with interlocking gears. If we conceive of it as six separate gears turning in isolation from one another, we are going to drastically diminish its effectiveness. I fear the process that the Byrd amendment would set up will do just that.

Thank you. I know there was a concern expressed on the floor and off the floor that the committee's proposal for a new Department of Homeland Security fails to put in adequate checks and balances on executive authority. I disagree. Those checks and balances are typical for our system of government were very much in our mind as we proceeded with this legislation. In fact, we gained great insight and assistance from Members of the Senate as we crafted this legislation, particularly the senior Senators from West Virginia and Alaska who brought not only their considerable experience but their love for the Senate and devotion to the concept of checks and balances, which assisted us in crafting our amendment.

So we have gone to great lengths to ensure that the Congress will remain actively engaged in the life of this Department—not just in the traditional way in which Congress, in some senses, always has the last word, which is through the appropriations process, but through the transition process as this legislation becomes law. We have very important work to do with the executive branch and the transition process of this new Department. We have to work together every day. We have to make further changes in law, if and when such changes are needed. We have to the new Department, consistent with its needs, as determined in the first instance by the Appropriations Committees of both bodies and, of course, by the membership of both bodies. And we have to make sure that critical, non-homeland security functions of the cancerous 40 percent that don’t fall through the bureaucratic cracks.

That is why we have specifically required that the administration come back to Congress at least every 6 months during the reorganization process to tell the American people on the progress being made and, if necessary, to request that we make additional amendments and improvements. The committee members are well aware of the complexity and the enormity of what we are proposing. So these required reports during the reorganization process should give Congress an opportunity—our committee first and then Congress—to assess the progress and make necessary adjustments.

The important point here is to get started. No one—least of all—thinks this is going to be a perfect proposal. It will be a work in progress. To make it progress as rapidly and perfectly we want Congress to have to work together—Executive and Congress—in making that so. Our interest in guaranteeing proactive congressional oversight is spelled out in even more detail in our proposal.

Concerned about the President’s proposal, which originally sought to give the executive branch unchecked authority to reorganize the constituent agencies within the new Department and unprecedented power to move between 3 and 5 percent of funds appropriated to the constituent agencies of this Department, we have taken a very different path and rejected those requests from the administration. We will insist on the accountability of the appropriations process, understanding that the Constitution gives Congress—and only Congress—the responsibility to appropriate the expenditure of the public’s money.

So we have specifically rejected the administration’s calls for broad, unchecked power to move public money around without the consent of Congress. We have said that while the administration can reorganize agencies within the new Department to the extent that was already proposed under existing law, if the administration wants to change existing law, contrary to its proposal originally, we require it to come back to us for approval to do that. Congress cannot delegate to the Executive the authority to obviate statutes that are on our books without the consent of Congress. That, of course, is an affirmation of the importance of ongoing congressional involvement in an approval of the reorganization process.

I know he has a historic and proud concern about Congress yielding too much authority to the executive branch, and I share that concern. My strong reassurance to him, and to the other Members of the Senate, is that the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee proposes no such thing. It was proposed since its creation, since its beginning, which is to legislate, create a new Department, but not to give that Department unchecked authority to go forward but to require it to come back to us to propose what it requires it to live within the law. And if it decides, as it goes forward, that it needs to alter the law, then, of course, it must come back to us and not be allowed to waive laws and repeal them on its own, as it originally asked to do. Congress will remain, under our proposal—a careful, measured proposal—an active and aggressive board of directors overseeing this merger every step of the way.

Third, this amendment is based on the conclusion we have reached, after we have written our legislation hastily, without due consideration of exactly how the Department ought to be structured. As I said at the outset, the fact is we have been working for nearly a year and, in some cases more than a year, to determine what this Department should look like, and to do everything humanly possible to prevent another September 11-type attack.

We have studied these issues exhaustively. We have reviewed the implications rigorously, and we have written this legislation carefully. Now, any Member of the Senate has the right, of course, to come out and say that a given part of our proposal is not quite right and not what it should be, and that is what the amendment process is all about.

Of course, there have been many amendments filed that go exactly to that point. What Senator BYRD’s amendment does is to remove those fruits—all the fruits pretty much—from the tree, except the very few at the top, that we have nourished and worked so hard to cultivate over this year.

(Mrs. CLINTON assumed the Chair.)

Mr. LIEBERMAN, Madam President, long before September 11, our committee had been interested in homeland security. In July of 2001, we held a hearing on FEMA’s role on managing the terrorist emergency. In July of 2001, we had been studying whether our Government was adequately organized to protect critical infrastructure and, unrelated to the attacks, had scheduled a hearing on that subject for September 12. The day after the planes crashed into the Pentagon, the World Trade Center Towers and the field in Pennsylvania, that hearing was held in a context we never could have imagined.

About a year ago, we began crafting the precursor to the legislation we are now considering. On October 11 of last year, Senator SPECTER and I introduced our bill to create a Cabinet-level Homeland Security Department. In May, we merged it with strong legislation that had been proposed in September by Senator GRAHAM of Florida. And on May 22, we reported that legislation out of committee by a vote of 9 to 7.

Since the President announced his support for a Department of Homeland Security on June 6, we have worked closely and collaboratively with committee chairs and ranking members, with fellow members of the Governmental Affairs Committee without regard to party, with experts in the field, and with the White House.

We have incorporated bipartisan proposals for restructuring the INS and reforming the civil service system—the first proposed by Senators KENNEDY and BROWNBACK; the second proposed by Senators AKAKA and VOINOVICH—drawing on years of effort to build a consensus on those key issues.

All told, we held in our committee 18 hearings and heard from 85 witnesses on these issues. Even so, we have been open to and accepted sensible compromises and incorporated new ideas recommended by people inside and outside the committee based on merits, based on the purpose of this legislation, based on post-September 11 of protecting the security of the American people.

The bill that emerged from this process earned the strong bipartisan support of the Governmental Affairs Committee. It is not a perfect process. That is work that has been done by the committee over a long period of time.

I would say, as I consider Senator BYRD’s amendment, I am reacting as a proud chairman, one who has worked very hard with members of both parties in committee to bring forth this legislation. It is not perfect. It is open to amendment. Let the body have its will. But I ask Senator BYRD and any other Member of the Senate, chairman or ranking member, to think how they would react if, after having worked so hard on a piece of legislation that they drafting, they got up and saw that least of the security of the American people, they were faced with an amendment that took most of it out. It would be as if an appropriations sub-committee bill came to the floor and a Senator got up and kept the sum total but switched all the money around or, more relevant, said: A little bit at the top can be spent; the rest cannot be spent until the administration comes back next year and tells us how they want to spend it.

If I am feeling deeply about this amendment, with all respect to its sponsor, it is because I feel deeply about the need for a Department of Homeland Security as soon as possible. As another example, the directorate applied the attention paid to intelligence capabilities in the President’s initial proposal, but working to do, I believe we will not have fulfilled to that recommended by the Hart-Rudman Commission. It included the Coast Guard, Customs, and the Border Patrol. But over time, in our committee, came to be educated and to a conclusion that the original proposal was not adequate, was not complete.

We were advised over and over again in our hearings that in this dif-culty, the best defense really is an offense, and the offense is intelligence, to know through our considerable intel-lence community effort and our law enforcement effort, nationally, and at State, county, and local levels of government, to be able to gather all that information, put it together on that one proverbial board so the same sets of eyes see it and they have the capac-ty to see a pattern which will tell them a threat is coming, and that they will act, therefore, to stop that threat before it happens.

We have taken a year to deliberate the threat is not going to vanish overnight. It is not going to give us the time this amendment would require to fix these problems. We have been living with the threat of terrorism for years.
The scale has never approached, of course, the horror of September 11, but there were those who warned us that day, September 11, was coming.
We knew the collapse of the Soviet Union was coinciding with the rise of other enemies, including subnational en-mies; that advanced technology would be falling into their hands. We knew they were plotting. We suffered deadly attacks, both at home and abroad.

It is time now to act. If we wait to attempt reform any longer, if we delay, as this amendment would effectively
do, I believe we will not have fulfilled
our responsibility to the American people. The threat is not going to vanish overnight. It is not going to give us the time this amendment would require to contemplate perfect reforms. We have not choice but to begin organization with the ongoing efforts to strengthen our homeland defense capabilities.

The fact is the advances we have made since September 11 have been, in some senses, in spite of the system, not because of it, because the system remains terribly disorganized and inefficient. The fact is that we need to act now. That is why I oppose this amendment.

We have taken a year to deliberate and made dozens of difficult decisions about what kind of department we want to create. This debate has been productive thus far on the committee’s proposal overall. I am pleased the majority leader filed a cloture petition yesterday which will ripen tomorrow, because it is time to begin to narrow the debate—not to close it off but to narrow it so we can see an end point by which this body will act.

This amendment would force us to start again, forcing us to revisit every arduous decision we have already made without a clear end date by which the American people could have some sense of security that a department would be up and working to protect their security.

Last year, former Senator Hart, who worked with former Senator Rudman, was so instrumental in our committee’s proposal and the White House proposal. I heard Senator BYRD refer to those four men who were sitting in the basement of the White House secretly crafting the President’s proposal. I apologize for the immodesty of this, but I think if any of our committee members would have the good fortune to live in the same building as President Bush, they would readily state that the old folks have known the proposal for a long time. The idea of a Department of Homeland Security, which sat on a back burner, even on an earlier day, when the Senator from Connecticut introduced legislation for a Department of Homeland Security, which sat on a back burner, even on an earlier day, when the Senator from Connecticut introduced legislation for a question?

Mr. SPECTER. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I yield.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania?

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, the question to the Senator from Connecticut is on the issue of the timeliness of action by Congress. My question is: Does the Senator from Connecticut think it important to move on the issue having sat on the back burner having been resisted by the President, that we think it important to move—

Mr. SPECTER. The Senator is absolutely right. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. I believe the clerk earlier read, when I offered the amendment, the clerk misstated the number to be 4644. Has that now been corrected? It was No. 4641, which I think the clerk stated, but the amendment is numbered 4644.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is correct. It is 4644.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair. Madam President, I do not intend to take the floor long, but I had understood that Mr. LIEBERMAN would allow me to address some questions to him at a point while he held the floor. He must have let that slip his mind because he yielded to others, which is all right; I want him to do what he wants to do if they have questions to ask, and now I have the floor. I will address just a few of the points that the distinguished Senator made.

Of course, the distinguished Senator has pride in the work of his committee, under his chairmanship and under the cochairmanship of the ranking member, Mr. THOMPSON. Of course he has pride. And he has great expertise, his committee does, certainly, with all the Members of it, great expertise in the subject matter of the legislation.

I am a committee. I said that before. I come as just an ordinary Senator. I am not a member of the committee. I am not an elected part of the leadership. I am President pro tempore by virtue of my long service here in my party and in the Senate, but I am an ordinary Senator who is committee. It comes to this legislation. I just came in the house out of the rain. I can understand the distinguished Senator's pride in his work. Who wouldn't be proud after spending all these months? I know that he is proud. But are we supposed to accept a piece of legislation without amending it because of the pride of authorship of a chairman of the committee, or any other Senator?

The distinguished Senator has asked me, asked my committee, how would I feel about bringing a piece of legislation—I think my words are being spoken in the spirit of what I think the Senator was saying. Unlike most other Senators, I cannot write down rapidly and clearly, what Senators are saying. I have a little trouble remembering exactly what they said, and if I misstate the portent of his question to me during his statement, I would be happy if I were corrected. I understood the distinguished Senator of committee which has jurisdiction over the pending matter, I understood him to ask me, as chairman, how would I like to bring a bill out of my committee to the floor that has a certain amount of moneys for this and for that and had funds, line items, for certain programs, certain projects, how would I like it if someone offered an amendment to take all that away and change that to direct those funds to some other agencies. I assure Members I would like for that work of my committee, along with Senator STEVENS and the other 13 Republican members and the other 14 Democratic members, to be taken as something that did not, was not worthy of the attention of the Senator and to take all that and just give a blank check. Instead of allocating the monies the committee had determined, just change it all and say make it a blank check. No, I wouldn't like that. And I don't like the blank check that we are about to give the administration in this bill.

The distinguished Senator says he has pride in the work of the committee and doesn't want to see it changed. I would hope it would not be changed by my amendment, certainly, he says.

What did the distinguished Senator and his committee do? They wrote a blank check. They gave it to the administration: Here, we will pass this bill, and we are going to turn it over to you, lock, stock, and barrel. We are going to move off to the sidelines, and you can do it as you will. Here are the bureaus. Here are the directorates. Here is the superstructure, they say. Now give to the administration, over the next 13 months, without any further action by the Congress, the transfer of the various agencies, functions, and employments into the new Department. It is yours. We will have no further say in it.

Oh, you can come up. You can come before us and submit reports and all that. But by this law we are passing, that is all we will do. Here it is. Take it all. You have a blank check.

No, I wouldn't want to have someone take an appropriations bill that came out of my committee and strike out all of the line items, all of the provisions, all of the functions and money for functions, and so on, and say just give them a blank check. No, I am not for that. But that is what is being done by the bill of the distinguished Senator from Connecticut. Byrd amendment. I am going out of the details which my amendment would write in. My amendment would keep the Congress involved. Congress would have oversight, and time and again we would require, in my amendment, the administration make its recommendations for legislation and those recommendations would go back to the committee, chaired by Mr. LIEBERMAN, and he would have an opportunity to take a new look at it and review it. Congress could conduct oversight.

But he is not going to allow that under his proposal. He is going to say: Here it is. Mr. President, we are not going to fill in the dots. We leave all that to you. You have 13 months in which to do it. You have 13 months to fill in the dots, fill in the details, determine which agencies will go into the Department, and there it is.

Also, the distinguished Senator talks about how the appropriations committee has done a lot of work. I have already indicated to the distinguished Senator from Connecticut, Mr. THOMPSON, I know his committee has put a lot of work into this bill. But after he has laid out a litany of actions, a litany of hearings, and so on and so on, all of that doesn't really compare with the time that was put into the creation of the National Security Act, the creation of the Defense Department.

So here I can't understand why someone would say: Oh, we have done all this work. Of course, the committee has done a lot of work. I have already indicated to the distinguished Senator from Connecticut, Mr. THOMPSON, I know his committee has put a lot of work into this bill. But after he has laid out a litany of actions, a litany of hearings, and so on and so on, all of that doesn't really compare with the time that was put into the creation of the National Security Act, the creation of the Defense Department.

The distinguished Senator from Connecticut says this is a work in progress. So apparently the work in progress is going to be done by the administration over the next 13 months.

My amendment seeks to flesh out the Department, flesh out the directorates, and do it in an orderly way and with Congress conducting oversight throughout.

So I have listened with great interest to the distinguished Senator and his defense of this bill. But I say that any time a bill comes out of my committee...
I hope the Senator knows I trust him and I have great faith that he and his committee will expedite this action, that they will do a much better job, will keep the hand on the wheel, and the American people to whom the distinguished Senator has so properly referred will be much better protected. I think they would much more trust the elected representatives who are involved on that committee to do a good job and to see that the work is more expeditiously done.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Madam President, responding to the Senator from West Virginia, I thank him for his trust that we will be able to get the work done next year. But the Senator from Connecticut believes that the committee I am privileged to chair has gotten the job done. I am happy with what we have presented to the Senate.

The Senator's amendment would not expedite our work. It would in fact block it. It would stop it from implementation. It would extinguish all we have done in these five years.

I said in my earlier remarks that the committee and I certainly have no claim to perfection. Amendments are in order. As the Senator from West Virginia has said, it is the greatness of this body that it has the right and power to amend. We have a right to submit the amendment that he has, and I respect him. I have a responsibility to my constituents, to my committee, and to my conscience to describe it. With all respect, it appears to me to be an evisceration of what our committee has done. One might just as well vote against the committee's proposal to support the amendment of the Senator from West Virginia. That is how conclusive I think it is.

Mr. BYRD. Will Senator yield?

Who are the people underneath in the Senator's amendment? I will tell you who the people are underneath. They are people I am afraid of. The people underneath in the Senator's amendment is a very agency, though I don't know what agencies there are. The distinguished Senator from Connecticut hasn't yet told us what agencies are going to be put into the directorates.

I think the Senator wonders about the 13-month deadline. I have said that my amendment would complete the action in the Department and directorates; and, of course, it doesn't have title I or title II. That was taken out by the fine Senator on the Republican side of the aisle. Those two titles have been eliminated. They were moved out of this bill, and I am so proud those two titles are gone. They are gone.

Here it is, lock, stock, and barrel, and you take it and fill it out. You have 13 months in which to do it. Here it is. Take it and fill it up. This is the Byrd amendment. I don't want that because that would fill in some of the details. Congress, the representatives of the people, would fill in the details, some of the details with the directorates.

I am sorry the distinguished Senator from Connecticut is totally, I would say, misapprehensive of my amendment. It plainly states what it will do. I am sorry. He is a good lawyer. He can take the easy side of the debate and make a different case. He can take an apple, shine it up, and make it so you would think it were an orange. He is a good lawyer. I don't speak disrespectfully of him. There are lots of good lawyers in this country. He is trying to tell the American people that the Byrd amendment would rip the heart out of his amendment. It doesn't do that. It makes his proposition better.

I think the Senator wonders about the 13-month deadline. I have said that my amendment would complete the action in the Department and directorates; and, of course, it doesn't have title I or title II. authority we would give to this administration if—and I hope when—we adopt a bill creating a Department of Homeland Security is no different than Congress gave, I believe it was, the Carter administration during which the Department of Energy was created.
It created Secretary and gave President Carter and his administration the opportunity to administer it.
We maintain the power of appropriations and oversight.

That is exactly what we would be doing here as a result of suggestions made by the Senator from West Virginia and the Senator from Alaska to our committee and components we included at their suggestion in our committee proposal. We have rejected attempts by the administration to have more authority over appropriations and reorganization.

So I wanted to just say—

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Senator. I thank the Senator for doing that.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I think the Senator from West Virginia for the suggestions because I thought they had great merit.

I just want to say this is a chart which describes who is under there. As I said a few moments ago, we worked real hard on this. Under the Directorate of Border and Transportation Protection, the Customs Service; Animal, Plant and Health Inspection Service from the Department of Agriculture; the Transportation Security Administration; the Federal Law Enforcement Training
Center—these are people we trust.

You and I agree these are people the administration seems to want to deprive of some of their existing civil service protections.

Mr. BYRD. Yes. Let me ask the Senator a question. In what titles of the bill does the Senator deal with this on the chart?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I will come back and give you the exact—

Mr. BYRD. He doesn’t do it in title I, does he?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. No. Titles II and
III, incidentally, are in the White House office.

Mr. BYRD. I know. These charts here, all this work the distinguished chairman is talking about, all these items, these agencies that he has on these charts, these are not the people underneath that are created by title I, are they?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Yes. They are in fact created by title I. These are existing agencies that are brought from where they are now to be coordinated in the Department. The exception—

Mr. BYRD. How do we know those agencies are among the 28 agencies that are going to be brought into the Department?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Responding to the Senator from West Virginia, they are quite literally transferred—I mean, literal words to the point of being put before you from our committee.
Each one of these is spelled out and asigned to the particular directorate which the chart shows it is located under.

Mr. BYRD. Would the Senator from Connecticut show the Senator from West Virginia and the Senate where my amendment takes those very agencies out?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Well, as I read your amendment, in the Directorate of Border and Transportation Protection, what your amendment would do is first remove the definition of the mission of that directorate, and then it would eliminate all this underneath and say to the executive branch: Come back—incidentally, not by February 3, but not before February 3—and tell us what you want in this directorate. The same is true of the Critical Infrastructure Directorate or the Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate.

So everything below what I have called the attic is eliminated, and basically these are generals without soldiers. These are admirals without sail-
ers. They are just top executives, and they have to wait until the administration makes the recommendations—not before the dates which you have set, and until the Congress acts.

And we know Congress has a lot of ways to not act.

So the Senate may disagree with the structure, obviously. That is not only his right, I understand if he does, but this was our best judgment as to how to make homeland security work.

And I believe your amendment takes the heart out of our recommendation and delays drastically the date by which we would have a Department of Homeland Security protecting the American people. That is why I oppose it.

Mr. BYRD. Well, I appreciate what the distinguished Senator says. We have only to look at some of the—let’s take the agency that was created, the Transportation Security Administration; that we just took the chain left the track, how much in error, how many mistakes were made, how that agency went awry.

It should teach us that under the proposals of the distinguished Senator from Connecticut there is liable to be much of that happen throughout this whole Government when we are talking about 170,000 employees and 28 agencies.

I don’t know if anybody in the legislation knows what the 28 agencies would be, is what the full number of the 28 agencies. The Senator may be absolutely correct in that, but I think that under any legislation that is passed, it is going to take many a prayer to have it come out right at the end of 13 months.

I have read recently that it is going to be impossible to meet the deadline of December 31 with respect to some of the protections that are going to be provided to the traveling public in the air. And the Senator already said, well, that can’t be met.

So I think at the end of the day we are going to find, under the proposal of the Senator from Connecticut, as well as under mine, if you want to make it that way, we are going to be subject to finding that we have heard that we did not provide enough time, that things are going wrong. And then when we introduce the magnitude of what we have already seen go wrong with reorganization proposals and find that here was 170,000 employees, I think there is going to be a lot of extending deadlines in the end.

But I am very sorry the Senator continues to believe that my amendment is taking the heart out of his proposal.

Now here is a chart. May I suggest to the Senator that all kinds of charts can be written, and all kinds of charts can be displayed.

Here, if anyone can read, with 20/20 vision, and getting up close, the number of agencies that are affected by this homeland security proposal of the ad-mnistration—this is the existing bureaucratic structure we are talking about dealing with. This is the existing bureaucratic structure for all homeland security agencies. Here it is.

Well, my goodness, just to read the names of those would take even the Senator, who has good eyesight, several minutes—several minutes, I mean, 15 minutes at least, from the top down.

Look at this. Look at this chart. And all I am saying to the Senator is that we leave in his hands, in the hands of his good committee, the oversight of the creation of this Department, all of the directorates which his committee has proposed.

That is all I am saying. Let’s leave it in the Senator’s hands, not turn it over to the people in the executive department. I want the people to have secu-ry, real security. That is why I want to trust his committee.

Does the Senator have anything further?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Senator from West Virginia. I want to say that it is because of the complexity of the agencies that we have charged at various agencies that have something to do with homeland security or the war against terrorism—you see the Department of State here, Director of Central Intelligence, the Department of Defense, it goes beyond just homeland security and security generally—it is that chart, with all its unconnected pieces, that has motivated our work on this bill.

For instance, all the agencies that have something to do with border security. As we heard testimony in our committee, you go to a point of entry into the United States of America, you have three or four Federal agencies.
Each one of them has their own office.
Each has their own telephones. They cannot communicate rapidly with one another. The same is true of critical infrastructure protection, of the capacity of Federal, State, and local agencies to work together on emergency response, if you forbid a terrorist attack. That is the whole purpose of the Department we brought forward.
As I have said, you mentioned my use of the word “pride.” It is not so much personal. It is both for the committee, and it is not to ask colleagues to support our proposal because we reported it out. I think it is the best proposal we could make at this time. Therefore, it is the right place to deal with the threat of terrorism and insecurity here at home.

Is it perfect? No way. Would it benefit from amendment on the floor? It would and will. Will the Department, once it begins going, when we pass this, still require the oversight of Congress, working with the executive branch to make it work better and better? Yes, it will.

My concern about the Senator’s amendment is that it doesn’t build on the work we have done. It eliminates it. In that sense, it does set up a procedure which really will delay the date by which we make—let me describe it this way—our first, best effort, which is what I believe our bipartisan committee has done to create a Department of Homeland Security which will close the vulnerabilities that those evil terrorists took advantage of on September 11. That is why I have my sense of urgency about it.

Mr. President, I will yield the floor shortly. May I just say two things. One, I respect deeply the right of the Senator from Connecticut to disagree. I respect very deeply his own deep feeling of conscience that his approach is the better. I respect that. I respect what he is doing. I salute him for it. But to say that the amendment I am offering does not build on the work that he and his committee have done is borne of misconception, misunderstanding possibly, of my amendment.

It builds precisely on that rock. It uses the same superstructure. It was not my idea that we have five directorates in title I. It was not my idea that there are six under secretaries or seven assistant secretaries. These were not my ideas. I took the product that the distinguished Senator from Connecticut brought out from his committee, and I have attempted to build upon that good work, build upon that rock and improve it.

I shall yield the floor on that and say thank you to my friend and let someone else have the floor.

I will shake hands with him so everybody will know that we are not really angry with one another. We may use all these fighting words. We get out our oratorical knives and we flash them. And they glint in the Sun. I am ready to sit down. I am not mad. I am not angry with the Senator at all.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Senator from West Virginia. The truth is, this was an important exchange, an important debate. It does put in clear focus and does give the Senate a decision to make about whether they are prepared to get support and adopt the amendment, the proposal the committee has brought out, or whether they want to basically take the superstructure, if I may use your word respectfully, and then come back to fill it in next year or the year after.

It is not so bad to have a little emotion expressed on the floor of the Senate because we both feel strongly about our points of view. Hopefully, from that heat will come some light for all concerned.

I am honored to have participated. I thank the Senator.

I yield the floor. Senator THOMPSON has been waiting so patiently during this discussion. I regret he has left the floor. Pending his return, I yield the floor to the Senator from Michigan.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CARPER). The Senator from Michigan.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I appreciate Senator THOMPSON allowing me to speak for a few moments on this critical issue before he speaks. I have very much appreciated the exchange between my two friends and colleagues. I rise in support of an amendment to the homeland security bill. I stress that I very much support a Homeland Security Department. I commend Senator LIEBERMAN, who is the first author. We speak of it now in terms of the administration’s proposal, but the Department of Homeland Security was conceived to recognize that it was the bill of the Senator from Connecticut originally. He is the one who brought this forward to us, and I congratulate him. I tend to support a Department. I think it is important to have the amendment on the floor. Pending his return, I yield the floor.

It is very important that Congress have a continuing say in the creation of any Department of Homeland Security, precisely because it is so important. I believe the Byrd amendment does that.

Simply put, the mission of this new Department is just too important to be rushed into law. Senator BYRD has noted that in the past when we reorganized various military departments under the Department of Defense the planning took years. Clearly, we don’t have years to create a Department of Homeland Security. I would not suggest that. But that doesn’t mean we should not proceed in a thoughtful and deliberate manner to make sure we get it right. This is so important.

In fact, if I could make a historical observation, it was September 17, 1787, that our Constitution was signed by a majority of delegates to the Constitutional Convention. We said let’s create a Department of the Interior but rejected it at that time.

Before those Cabinet posts were created, George Washington and his Vice President, John Adams, were pretty much the only executive branch of Government. But that first Congress wanted to take the time to get it right. I suggest that we need to do the same. Many questions remain, and if the public is to have confidence in this new Department, these questions must be answered. For instance, which agency should be transferred into the new Department, and why? What criteria is the administration using to determine what agencies or parts of agencies to transfer to or not to transfer to the new Department?

Almost all of the agencies being transferred have other functions that are unrelated to homeland security. How will those functions be affected? Senator, those things over whether or not the Coast Guard will have sufficient resources to deter terrorists trying to sneak into our country by boat and still fulfill its crucial role in search and rescue operations and ship inspections. The Coast Guard is critical to Michigan. These issues are very real for us.

In earlier discussions about a Homeland Security Department, the Department of Agriculture’s Animal Plant Health Inspection System, APHIS, has moved to the new Department.

While it is reasonable that the border inspection mission of this agency be a part of the new Homeland Security Department, it is critical that the Department consider the rationale for the administration’s decision. Specifically, the health of American consumers, remain within the U.S. Department of Agriculture. If the transfer of APHIS to the Department of Homeland Security were to be proposed again, I would like to have the chance to debate that and vote, because I oppose that transfer.

What about the workforce? Will our Federal employees lose the civil service protections created to keep politics out of the Federal workplace? How do we merge all of the different personnel and salary procedures of these different organizations?

Mr. President, I suggest that Senator BYRD is correct. These are huge decisions that will take a lot of time. And I believe the Byrd amendment does that. Simply put, the mission of this new Department is too important to be rushed into law. Senator BYRD has noted that in the past when we reorganized various military departments under the Department of Defense the planning took years. Clearly, we don’t have years to create a Department of Homeland Security. I would not suggest that. But that doesn’t mean we should not proceed in a thoughtful and deliberate manner to make sure we get it right. This is so important.

In fact, if I could make a historical observation, it was September 17, 1787, that our Constitution was signed by a majority of delegates to the Constitutional Convention. We said let’s create a Department of the Interior but rejected it at that time.
Intelligence and the Directorate of Critical Infrastructure Protection. Then next fall—again, about 120 days after the second presentation—the Secretary of Homeland Security would again return to Congress with details for the DHS of Emergency Preparedness and Response, and for the Directorate of Science and Technology.

This more disciplined process will help us create a Department that is cohesive, responsible, and effective, with its duties and missions clearly defined. I believe this is the best approach to make sure that an effective Department actually is created and is one that is in the best interest of our citizens. I strongly support the Byrd amendment and urge my colleagues to do the same.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee is recognized.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I think it is important for us to understand where we will move ahead with a comprehensive reorganization plan to reorganize in a way that will greater protect our country—a plan that is supported by the administration, a plan that was approved by the Governmental Affairs Committee, or whether we go in another direction that I believe Senator LIEBERMAN is correct on, which would move us away and down the road toward delay. It would delay addressing the crucial questions that I think are before us, and it would constrict us with regard to how we best address our security in the future.

By nature, I tend to want to agree with the Senator from West Virginia when he says that we sometimes move too rapidly and without due consideration with regard to certain important matters that come before this body. I agree with that. I agree with it as I watch amendments to appropriations bills come forth that have not been considered by committees; that have not been subject to committee hearings; that have hardly been debated on the floor, and spend tens of billions of dollars; that grant and take away broad ranges of authority, as amendments and bills are passing through because they are deemed to be convenient vehicles. We do that all the time, unfortunately.

So what we have done with regard to this homeland security bill, in comparison to the way we do on a regular basis, makes it look as if we are moving at a snail’s pace—not too fast, but at a snail’s pace—compared to the short shrift we give and the rapidity with which we pass sweeping amendments to these appropriations bills and other bills that come through here, circumventing the committee process as we do it.

I imagine my friend, the Senator from Connecticut, believes it somewhat ironic that it is suggested he has been giving the administration a blank check on the one hand, when so many have accused his approach as being one of micromanaging what the administration is doing. I must agree with him that the suggestion that this is broad and sweeping, and the implication that it is somewhat unprecedented power to the administration, is unjustified. I think he is right when he talks about the merging of departments or any other broad range of administrative activity. The administration is a part of a separate branch of Government, after all. Any time we do that we are granting authority, but it is hardly a blank check.

When we determine such things as there being a Secretary at the top who is answerable—and, first of all, confirmable—to this body, and is answerable under oversight, and creating under secretaries—there are, I believe, 17 individuals created by this legislation, if it passes, which are confirmable by this body, that is hardly granting broad, sweeping authority to the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

As my friends from West Virginia and Connecticut were talking about which end of the avenue they trusted the most, I was beginning to fear that they were going to come to agreement on an amendment to this debate, but it didn’t quite happen. So I feel better about that.

We have 17 confirmed positions in this bill, 6 directorates, pulling 22 agencies together that have already been created by this Congress, with their duties delineated. We give permission, as it were, for those to be brought together. We delineated in this bill the responsibilities of these directorates, the duties of these positions that we create.

We are certainly not going to lose our oversight duties and responsibilities, if we choose to exercise them. We are certainly not going to circumvent the annual appropriations process.

This bill does get into the details of our intelligence operations. Goodness knows we need improvement in that regard, and we can have a good debate as to how best is to be done. But when Congress in a bill gets down to the business of saying this particular information shall go here and this particular officer shall have the right to this officer’s information and this particular information, agencies that the President can step in here but he cannot step in there, that is hardly granting a blank check.

One could argue we need to do more of that type of intelligence even in more detail, but one can hardly argue we are creating a blank check and certainly one that is inconsistent with what we have done, I think, as a Congress many times in setting forth other important intelligence matters. Reference has been made to the National Security Act, which was created in 1947. Congress acted then after due deliberation. I presume most folks think we went through the proper process and deliberated sufficiently before we created that agency in 1947.

As I understand it, Congress has subsequently acted 43 times since then. So we should make no pretense whether we do it today or tomorrow or next year or 2 years from now that that is going to be the end of it. It is going to be the beginning of a process to do the best we can. Senator LIEBERMAN said it will be the end. I do not believe that.

The question gets back to one I posed in the beginning: Do we do it now or do we do it later? I have some difficulty with certain parts of the bill that came out of committee. I certainly cannot argue with the detail which addresses the seriousness of the components of this new agency that is being created. It is a 347-page bill. There is some other historic legislation that has been passed by this body that is a fraction of that amount.

In sum and substance on that particular point, I will simply conclude that we are at least in the middle of the road in exercising our congressional authority in setting up a new Department as to whether or not we are satisfied with our say as to be done versus just handing it over to the executive branch and saying: You fill in all the blanks. I respectfully submit the Congress has not done that.

We go down to the practical proposition that this Congress has relatively few days remaining in this year. We all know we are not going to stay around here too much longer. It is an election year. We may be in the first week of next month; we may be in the second week of next month. Nobody knows exactly how much longer we have. We have several important pieces of legislation still pending which we have to address one way or another—appropriations bills, Defense appropriations. We are going to be considering an Iraq resolution. These are important issues, eminent issues that we cannot avoid, must not avoid, and we will not avoid. We will take up those issues.

The question becomes, again, with regard to homeland security: Do we go ahead and consider these amendments and get on about our business, have a debate on these amendments and let everybody have their say on these amendments, fashioned the best we can, or do we put it over to next year and take it up again next year? Do we really want to go into next year, after having set aside the time to consider this, after about a year, since the start of hearings? Do we really want to conclude we want to put this bill off, in many respects, until next year? It is to be feared that very important commissions started telling us facts we did not really want to hear, and that was that we were in danger. that our country was vulnerable; that we needed to address the issue of terrorism; and that a part of the way we must address it had to do with the way our Government was organized.

In December of 2000, the Gilmore Commission released its report. In February of 2001, the Hart-Rudman Commission released its report. Of all the many positive aspects of this body, the most disturbing aspect is how many reports and warnings and how much information we have to get sometimes before we get their attention. We could not get in this room all the GAO reports and commission reports and other similar reports and comments over the past few years telling us and warning us, generally speaking, of what was coming and what was looming out there, not to mention intelligence information, about which we might or might not be able to talk.

Public bipartisan independent reports were coming in at least a year before even started our hearings. We have we had the benefit of those reports.

Would that we took that much time on other important issues facing our Nation as we pass amendments to appropriate bills, even started our hearings. We have to way on what we are voting, issues on which we have had no hearings, on which we have had no committee action, and we do it heller-skeltier sometimes. Compare that to the process we have been through with regard to this issue. So we are here at the end of that time and we are on the bill. We are facing important issues with regard to this bill.

We have considered one of them: the question of whether or not the person who is going to be in the White House is going to be Senate confirmed or not. We had a vote on that. The Senate expressed its opinion, expressed its will on that issue in a pretty convincing fashion. In essentially a bipartisan vote, we decided that would not be a position subject to Senate confirmation and, do we it heller-skeltier sometimes. Compare that to the process we have been through with regard to this issue. So we are here at the end of that time and we are on the bill. We are facing important issues with regard to this bill.

The President deserved counsel inside the White House separate and apart from the Senate-confirmed position. We decided that, but we took it up early last week. We only got a vote on it yesterday.

We have issues concerning the President's national security authority. This bill would actually take away authority that the President has traditionally had with regard to the exercise of his power in instances concerning national security. That is a portion of the bill with which I disagree, and in one form or another I want to debate that issue on the floor of this body.

We have the issue of management flexibility, whether we want to adopt the same old management tactics and techniques and laws that were passed back in the 1950s in the paper age where we have all of these multitasked people that go through in their careers. They go into the Government at a certain level and work their way up and stay with the Government 20 years and then they are out. That is a totally different era than we live in today.

Do we want to preserve those practices to homeland security or do we want to do it a different way? This is an extremely important issue. How are they going to be able to get anyone to take that job and feel that there is 100 percent necessary to do that job, under a system that can take years in the resolv-ing of disputes over worker competence and things of that nature? The chance over the last 5 years of a person being dismissed and actually removed from Government because of incompetency is three-tenths of 1 percent. Government workers themselves, the overwhelming number of which are good, competent people, would like some opportunity to make better pay and have some kind of system that would allow them to easily and to get hired sooner. Surveys will tell us there is more than three-tenths of 1 percent who might want to find another line of work. Do we want to address that now? We all know it is a problem.

Go down to the Brookings Institution and they will tell you—we all know it—that it is an outdated system. Do we want to address that? Do we want to address the issue of intelligence? That is the problem we have seen, before and since September 11, is the problem we have had with the collection, analysis, and dissemination of intelligence material. What could be more important to this country than that? We have a provision in this bill that has to do with that, and we need to discuss it. What is the best thing to do about that?

These are important issues facing the country and this body at the heart of those problems. We are not getting to that until a later time because we have only had a year since we have started the process in this body? I do not think we can do that.

The problem is that we have not had the opportunity to consider those issues. After we considered the issue of whether the White House person is going to be confirmed by the Senate, I stated that I wanted to ask for the yeas and nays, get a vote on it and move to the next amendment. We have not been able to move, since that time, until today. Senators have exercised their rights under the rules of the Senate, and as we came to address this issue yesterday none of those issues—national security authority of the President, management flexibility, what kind of intelligence operation we are going to have, the reorganization authority of the President—have been brought up.

I had the opportunity, and my colleagues have not had the opportunity, to address those issues at all, when everyone knows they are at the heart of this bill and they have to be addressed. What happened? Cloture was filed on the bill, which if passed would cut off a vote on all of those amendments.

So on the one hand, we are saying we want due deliberation, we have not had enough time to consider all of these important issues, and then on the other hand we want to have cloture so consideration of those issues are cut off, at least for the foreseeable future. That is the dilemma we have now. There is no way that colleagues can have it both ways. I could not agree more that we need to take an appropriate amount of time, but simply waiting and watching the clock tick-tock, tick-tock does not make us any wiser. We need to consider the substance of these issues. That might make us a little bit wiser. We need to get on with it, in other words. That is why cloture is so inappropriate on something such as this. That is why we need to discuss and consider these amendments certainly longer if we do not de-bate and washing our hands of it. We certainly should not be putting it off until another year.

How long has it been since we have known we have had problems with respect to intelligence, with regard to our ability to penetrate these foreign cells that wish us so much harm? How long has it been since we have known we have had problems in that area? A long time. A long time.

This is not news to us. We do not have to study that problem any longer. We know we have it.

How long has it been since we have known we have had problems at the border? A long time. How long has it been since we have known we have had problems at the IRS—INS? Well, IRS, too, especially, but the INS. We have known of those problems for a long time. They still exist. It is time we did something about it. I do not think the American people want us to wait until next year.

We have spent considerable time in these 18 hearings, and dozens more in the Senate and House committees. Congress and the President have had the benefit of inclusions and re-commendations of several commissions, such as the Gilmore Commission and the Hart Commission, that have studied this problem extensively.

Frankly, it is going to be years before this Department is functioning, as it is, and certainly longer if we do not fix the flexibility problems I referred to earlier. If creating this new Department is really the right thing to do, the last thing we need to do is to put off its implementation.

Some would have us wait and deliberate until we get it perfect, but I submit that day will never come. Reorgan-ization of this size is clearly going to require further action by Congress in the future.

The National Security Act of 1947 was not perfect. According to CRS, we have had to amend it 43 times since it was passed. Continuous oversight and legislative action is a part of the process of governing, which we should be prepared to do. I think it is instructive to look at the chronology over the last couple of years. I mentioned the Gilmore Commission in 2000; Hart-February 2001; September 11, of course, our country was attacked. From September through June, our committee held 18 hearings. Other committees did the same. In October of 2001, the President established the Office of Homeland Security and charged it with creating a national strategy. In October of that year, Senator Lieberman introduced S. 1534, a bill creating the Homeland Security Department. In May of 2002, Senator Lieberman introduced S. 2453, a bill creating a Homeland Security Department and a White House office. In May of 2002, there was a markup in Governmental Affairs. I did not support the marking up of that bill at that time. I probably said some of the same things Senator from Connecticut, Virginia said at that time. The thing that I was most concerned about at that time was that we did not have a national strategy. I thought a strategy as to how to approach a problem should proceed with that bill dealt with the problem. I still feel that way.

In July of this year, the President released a national strategy. Also, in July of this year, the Governmental Affairs Committee received recommendations from several other Senate authorizing committees regarding the homeland security bill. This was a composite of the studied considerations and recommendations of other authorizing committees. It may be true that not many Members in terms of a percentage of the whole body know a great deal about the details of this bill, but there are Members and there are other committees who do and have been a part of this process.

If the bill is truly a structural problem with the House bill or the substitute, we ought to consider it. We ought to take it up. We ought to talk about it. See what it is. See if we can do better. See if we need to set it aside. See if we can do that. But so far, with the disagreements that we have on management flexibility and national security authority and things of that nature, most Members who have looked at it are in the same structural comment. And the parts we have a problem with, we are trying to deal with on the floor. So it comes down to the question of whether or not we want the Department right now. I believe it is the right thing to do and the responsible course is to act while we have the momentum.

There are a couple of points that are properly characterized as ‘‘lesser’’ that I think are worth noting. This amendment also strikes language that allows the Department some flexibility in the procurement of temporary services of experts and consultants. This language was a compromise offered by Senator Lieberman in committee. It is important language that allows the Secretary access to the full panoply of experts he will undoubtedly need. Even under the limited structure envisioned by this amendment, he may need consultants to help determine the Department’s needs for certain legislative projects or for the INS Directorate, which is not limited by the amendment we are now considering.

In addition, the amendment strikes the visa issuance force of the substitute. This is a provision that was added in House passage. It provides the Secretary of Homeland Security authority to issue visas which would be exercised through the Secretary of State. All 19 of the 9/11 hijackers came to the United States with legal visas; 3 of these obtained their visas through their travel agents through the State Department’s visa express office. Many people who come to this country obtain their visas through the State Department. Striking this provision takes away the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to coordinate the visa issuance with the rest of the Department, maintaining consistent rules and policies.

With all due respect, I hope we will not adopt this amendment. I hope we can proceed with the important issues we have before the Senate that we have not had a chance to get before cloture was filed: The issues of whether the President’s national security authority will be reduced; the issues of whether the new Secretary who is going to be taking on this broad responsibility will have the management tools with which to get the job done; the important issue of what kind of intelligence apparatus do we want within this Department; the issue of reorganization. All of these issues have been discussed in committee and have been discussed in some detail, many of them, by various commissions for some time. It is time for the Senate to discuss these issues. I continue to make them in passing as we are considering other amendments, but we have not had the opportunity to discuss these things. If we want more time to discuss these important issues, these aspects of the bill, I suggest we take that time. We have it. We have it right now. These are all issues that need to be debated and discussed before this body. I don’t know why we would want to wait any longer with regard to that which we know is so deficient.

I suggest we get on about that and we be allowed to consider them in however much length or detail we want, with everyone exercising their full rights but talking about the substance of these issues that are before the Senate, that are staring us in the face, and are begging for our consideration.

Mr. BYRD. Will the Senator yield before he yields the floor?

Mr. THOMPSON. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. BYRD. I see other Senators wish to speak. I compliment the distinguished Senator on his statement. I say again, he is an excellent lawyer, I believe. Yes, he is.

Mr. THOMPSON. The lawyer part, anyway.

Mr. BYRD. He is an excellent lawyer. I think he has made from his point of view, certainly, an excellent statement about how he does not like. He does not like this bill. He did not vote for this bill when it was in the committee. That is what I call a good lawyer. Here he is on the floor making an impassioned speech.

Mr. THOMPSON. It will get better. BYRD. A very careful speech. It is thoughtful and I like that about him.

I think there was one item; the Senator, I believe, asked the rhetorical question, Do we want to wait until next year? Let me just say right here that the people who are providing security for our country, and are on the job for all of us, are on the job right now. They are out there when we are sleeping, and they are good people. They are very dedicated people. They are at the ports of entry; they are at the airports; they are on the 75,000 miles of northern and southern borders in this country. They are on the job.

I believe they arranged for the arrest of six persons in New York just a few days ago. We did not have a new Department of Homeland Security. Those people are on the job right now. They are doing the work.

So I think we have time to think this thing through and try to do the job right.

Again, I compliment the distinguished Senator. There are other Senators who wish to speak. Senator Gramm from Texas is here. May I just say I know that Senators BOXER, CANTWRIGHT, DORGAN, LEVIT, and others want to speak on this amendment—not necessarily tonight but maybe in the morning. I thank the distinguished Senator again.

Mr. THOMPSON. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Nelson of Nebraska). The Senator from Texas.

Mr. Gramm. Mr. President, I spoke earlier today under our time limit and I was grateful for the opportunity and said much of what I wanted to say on this subject today. But I wanted to come over this afternoon to talk a little bit about the Byrd amendment and to focus in on where I think our problem is, in coming to what I believe should be a bipartisan consensus.

Let me, first, say that Senator Byrd has spoken at great length on this issue. On Friday I was running on a treadmill—coming as close to running on a treadmill as an old man comes, to exercise my mind as well as my body— I listened to Senator Byrd speak for almost an hour. I had, on two occasions, listened before and I want to make the following observations.

First, there is one point that I am convinced on by Senator Byrd and that is... is the point about appropriations. Senator BYRD has talked about the Constitution and talked about our responsibility as an independent and equal branch of the Government. I think no one has his argument been stronger and more to the point than on the issue of the purse. In the morning we are going to put out a substitute that we have been working on intensively for some 3 weeks.

One of the changes we have made is we have eliminated this 5-percent flexibility in appropriations. I believe that for every one problem that we have in trying to deal with homeland security and deal with a massive new Government agency, for every one problem we have where the President would want to reprogram funds unilaterally, we are probably going to have 500 problems with administrative flexibility and with the ability to put the right person in the right place at the right time.

So in listening to Senator BYRD and working with Senator STEVENS, at least in terms of what we are offering as an alternative that we believe has some bipartisan appeal, that takes much of what is done in this bill and in the House bill, we have been convinced that Senator BYRD is correct in noting that a fundamental power of Congress is the power of the purse. It is a power that the Congress has to be very jealous about relinquishing, and it is something that should not be done.

I am also convinced, as we begin the process of making this new Department work, that we can come up with a process whereby efforts to reprogram funds can be dealt with on an expedited basis. I had the privilege of being a subcommittee chairman for 2 years at the Commerce, Justice, State Appropriations subcommittee. I do not think there was ever a time where any of those agencies asked for reprogramming of funds that we ended up denying them. So I think that is something that can be worked out.

I think the points that were raised were strong points. It is an area where I find myself in agreement with Senator BYRD, and it is something that I believe we can and will fix. And the administration does support this substitute.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield for a moment?

Mr. GRAMM. I am happy to yield.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the distinguished Senator for what he has said. I appreciate so much his good work on the Appropriations Committee when he was a member of the committee. And our loss is the Senate Finance Committee's—I believe—of Senator Finance Committee go. I am flattered by his remarks. But he and I both know that he agreed with the Constitution on the power of the purse more so than with Senator BYRD. I thank him. That was part of his statement, but it was part of the Constitution that we both revere and respect, not only to that matter but certainly to that matter. And the Senator has ably addressed himself to that. I thank him.

Mr. GRAMM. I thank the Senator for his kind comments. I will say, in my 6 years on the Appropriations Committee I learned more about how Government really works than in any other part of what I have liked, how it worked. In some cases I didn't like how it worked.

Let me now turn to the other issues.

I want to begin with the following point that I think in a reasoned way we all agree with. One of the interesting things about public life and public service, and serving the greatest country in the history of the world, is that it constantly comes home to me that good people with the same facts, as Senator LIEBERMAN pointed out, are prone to come to different conclusions. There are several areas where I have come to a very different conclusion than Senator BYRD, and a very different conclusion than Senator LIEBERMAN. I would like to explain why I have reached the conclusions I have reached.

These areas have to do with what I think goes to the heart of homeland security.

I think it is very instructive to note that there have been areas where the Congress has already decided that the civil service system, in those critical areas, needed to be changed. It is not as if we have not had many warnings about the inadequacy of the civil service system.

The other day I was using some facts and there was an extra part to the story, but I want to repeat them with the rest of the story in it. I think they bring home the point.

In 2001, we had 18 million people working for the Federal Government. Based on the performance of those 1.8 million, we immediately terminated 3 people. Under the previous administration, 64,340 Federal workers were estimated, or at least judged by that administration, to be poor performers. Of those 64,340 out of 1.8 million, we went through the process of removal with only 484. And that process takes up to 18 months. Currently, in OPM polls of Federal employees, the very people who many of our colleagues and many of the unions which oppose the President's bill claim to be representing, in opinion polls taken of Government employees, two-thirds of Federal workers today believe that poor performers are not adequately disciplined by the current system. That is two-thirds of the people who work for the Federal Government in random sample polling believe that job performance has little or nothing to do with their chances of promotion.

So, first, I think it is important, in looking at what we are asking in terms of powers to promote national security and to protect it, to note that the current civil service system is far from perfect.

Second, we have had study after study conclude that we needed a dramatic change in the civil service system. Senator Byrd, in the Government Reorganization Act in 1983 and the Volcker Commission report. As we are all aware, Paul Volcker, former Chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank, certainly no union basher in the political phrase of our era and that bill, concluded that "today's civil service system has become a drag on our national security. The morass of rules, regulations, and bureaucracy prevent the Government from hiring and retaining the workforce that is required to combat the threats we will face in the future."

Not only are people in the system registering their unhappiness, but we have consistently had commissions headed by Democrats and headed by Republicans that have called for a dramatic reform of the system. Interestingly enough, we have responded.

When we decided to federalize inspectors at airports, in that bill we gave the President power in terms of personnel flexibility to hire and fire. We gave him the ability to get around the procedures that requires up to 6 months to hire somebody. We gave him the ability to fire for incompetence and to promote, to some degree, on merit.

We have done the same thing in the past with the Federal Aviation Administration. But, in this instance, in one area we have granted a tremendous amount of flexibility, when we decided to reform the Internal Revenue Service, we gave the executive branch of Government tremendous flexibility in hiring, firing, pay and promotion, because we were so concerned about the inefficiency and the potential corruption in the Internal Revenue Service.

I ask my colleagues: If we believed that the current system was failing us in the Internal Revenue Service and that we had a problem which required a different approach and more flexibility with regard to our sensitivity at the Internal Revenue Service with people who know our intimate financial information and who look at our tax returns. If we believed that flexibility to hire and fire was necessary—and we did, and we adopted it and it is the law of the land today—

I wonder what people back home would think when we said we thought flexibility was required at the Internal Revenue Service in terms of personnel because of its sensitivity and because of the lack of efficiency, but we don’t think similar or greater flexibility should be provided to the President and to the Secretary of Homeland Security. If we thought the problems at IRS justified a new approach, a new flexibility, the ability to hire and fire and promote merit outside the Civil service system in terms of special procedures, how, after 9/11 and after terrorist attacks that killed thousands of our citizens, can we not believe that homeland security is at least as important as the Internal Revenue Service? When we granted flexibility for the Transportation Security Administration in the hiring, firing, and promotion of people who inspect your carry-on terrorist attacks in New York—lying to provide security, does anybody believe it made sense to give flexibility to the Transportation Security Administration but it doesn’t make sense to give even more flexibility to the Department of Homeland Security? I don’t think American in 100 would agree with the thesis that the IRS is more important and that we are more concerned about its ability to do its job than we are concerned about the ability of the Coast Guard to keep a nuclear explosive from being brought into New York Harbor.

But, incredibly, I think we got off into the ditch on this bill was that, while Congress has already granted some flexibility to the President in the Transportation Security Administration, Internal Revenue Service, and Federal Aviation Administration, for some remarkable reason—even after the terrorist attack in New York—in this bill, a decision was made that the President should have less flexibility in managing the Department of Homeland Security than he does in managing the Internal Revenue Service. I think the American people will find that unbelievable and I think they will find they are unable to accept it.

Another place that I think we got off into the ditch on this bill was taking away power that the President now has. If you went out and did a poll, and if you asked people: Do you believe, in light of the attacks on September 11, we should give the President more power in the ability to run the Department of Homeland Security after the attacks than he had before?—if you posed that question, I don’t believe there would be 1 American in 1,000 who would have said: No, let us take national security power away from the President. Not 1 in 1,000 would have said: No, why don’t we just leave it like it is? I think probably over 900 out of 1,000 would have said: Yes, we ought to give the President more power.

But, remarkably, unexplainable reason, the bill that is before us actually takes power away from the President which he has today.

I remind my colleagues, when the President is asking for the ability, for national security purposes, to override union contracts in terms of work rules, that is a power the President has today—unabated in those areas that the President has said: No, let us take national security power away from the President. The President has that power today. The current and previous Presidents have used that power, and that power is currently in effect. The waiver of collective bargaining agreements has occurred in eight different Government agencies as we debate this issue about whether the President should have this power. Every President since Jimmy Carter has had this power, and they have used it. Currently, in the following agencies, collective bargaining agreements of one form or another have been waived: The FBI, the CIA, the National Security Agency, the Secret Service, the Air Marshals Office, the Transportation Security Administration, the Criminal Investigation Division at the IRS, the Office of Criminal Enforcement at the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, and the Office of Enforcement and Intelligence at the Drug Enforcement Agency. In those eight Government agencies today, we are operating under rules that the President has asked for power to use in the new Department of Homeland Security.

I would have to say that never once in the Carter administration, in the Reagan administration, in the first Bush administration, in the Clinton administration—never in any of those administrations, so far as I am aware, did anybody propose taking away those national security powers.

As I have said, these powers are currently in force in eight different Government agencies. Yet, remarkably, after the attack on 9/11, and in a bill we wrote to respond to it, this bill takes away power that President Carter had, that President Reagan had, that Bush 41 had, that Clinton had. I just would like to note that I do not remember—and I can’t even imagine since the last 2 years of the Carter administration - but I do not remember, in any of those administrations: That is too much power for the President to have. He ought not to have that power, and we ought to take it away from him.

But yet, remarkably, in a bill we have written to respond to the crisis we face, and the mortal risk we face, and in a follow-on to thousands of our citizens being killed in a terrorist attack, for a sensible and incomprehensible reason, the bill that is before us says we are actually going to take power away from the President to have a national security waiver of work rules under this new law and in this new Department.

I do not believe, if the American people really understood that is what the bill is trying to do, there would be 1 American in 100 who would be for this bill. And the President has said he is not for it, and he will veto it.

Let me explain what we are talking about in terms of these waivers. We are not talking about waiving worker protections in terms of the basic rights of people and their constitutional rights. We are talking about work rules that have been negotiated as part of union contracts that interfere with our ability to do the job in the new Department.

Let me, very briefly, go through a few of those work rules that have impeded our ability to do things similar to the things we would like to do in the name of homeland security. Let me do it with a couple of them and then I will just mention the others.

In 1987, the Customs Service in Boston decided they wanted to reorganize the inspection room. They concluded they could be more efficient in inspecting things coming into the country. So they set about the process of remodeling the inspection space.

The Treasury Employee Labor Union filed a complaint with the Federal Labor Relations Authority claiming that it did not have the right to reorganize, to reconfigure it, without renegotiating the union contract, violated the union contract. It ended up going to the Federal Labor Relations Authority, and—guess what—they ruled that it violated the union contract and the Customs Service could not restructure the inspection area.

Now, look, after 3,000 people died in downtown New York, if we conclude, with this new Department, that we need to change this area at the airport, are we going to go through 18 months of negotiating with the National Labor Relations Authority as to whether we can do it, when the lives of our people are at stake? Absolutely not. Nor would anybody in their right mind suggest that we should. That is the kind of waiver authority for which the President is asking.

I will give you another example.

Under the work rules that govern border inspection, for some unexplainable reason—you all will remember Barry McCaffrey, the good general who was the drug czar during the Clinton administration—he observed, in the San Francisco Examiner that under these work rules for Customs and INS, there were some things they each could and could not do under these contracts. He observed officials at one agency were actually forbidden to open the trunks of cars, a policy well known among the drug dealers. Then he asked how actually knowing these work rules allowed the drug dealers to game the system.

Now, let me switch to the Coast Guard. Are we willing to let work rules and what some people will and will not do prevent us from searching a barge that might bring a nuclear device into New York Harbor? Does anybody really believe, in the Department of Homeland Security, the President should not have the power to waive those work rules that might be killing our people? Nobody believes that. But that is what we are debating here. That is what this debate is about.
Let me give you another example. In 1990, INS wanted to add an extra shift at the Honolulu Airport to deal with a surge in international flights in the afternoon. They had a backlog and had people waiting in line, so they wanted to add another shift in the afternoon to do that.

But there was only one problem. The American Federation of Government Employees said: No, you are not going to add that shift because we have a union contract that says we have a role in whether more personnel come on board to do part of our job. And you have already guessed it: The union took the case to the Federal Labor Relations Authority and, they ruled that the INS could not add the shift.

Now fast forward through 9/11. Take into account that people died at the Pentagon and the World Trade Center. Are we really going to allow a union agreement that would make us go back and renegotiate the contract before we could get the people in place—people we believe there is a clear and present danger to the lives of our citizens? Obviously, some people think we should. That is what the debate is about. But I cannot believe most Americans would not have the power to say: Now look, this is no Sunday picnic we are going through here. People’s lives are at stake. We need more people here, and we need them today, and we are putting up with what we have if you don’t like it, go work somewhere else.

Now, that may seem extreme to some people, but I don’t see it as extreme. If somebody is coming through Customs in Savannah, and they might kill my mother, I feel pretty strongly about it. And when we are dealing with homeland security, these kinds of issues have to be taken on and addressed.

Now, I have gone through enough of them in detail. Let me just touch briefly on two others: Prosecution against special task forces operating in the Border Patrol. Listen to this, we have union agreements that prohibit us from stationing Border Patrol agents in any period of time, where there are not suitable eating places, drug stores, barbershops, places of worship, cleaning establishments, and similar places necessary for the sustenance and comfort and health of employees. And I generally agree with that. We have a lot of great people who work in the Border Patrol, when lives are at stake, when you have extraordinary circumstances, we cannot be required to go back and renegotiate a union work rule because an area where terrorists might cross the border does not have a dry cleaner. Dry cleaning is important, but it isn’t that important.

You get the idea, in listening to some of our colleagues, that when the President is asking for the right to suspend these work rules, it is just willy-nilly, wholesale, you like your looks, you are out of work.

We are talking about being able to put a Border Patrol agent where there is no dry cleaner in an emergency; not that we want him to go off and live in a tent. But if he has to live in a tent for a few weeks or a few months to protect our citizens from being killed, I think they would willingly do it. I don’t think it is asking too much to ask them by 20 percent. Why in the world would you have a provision such as that in this bill? Why would you apply this provision called Davis-Bacon?

It is explained in one way; it operates in another. The way it operates is, you look at the highest wage paid anywhere in that region, which can be a huge swath of the country, and then anything that the Government does in emergency construction in that area, it has to pay that wage, whether there are good people willing to work for less or not, whether everybody else is paying less or not.

Why in the world would you put that provision in this bill? How could it possibly make any sense? The obvious answer is it doesn’t make any sense. Nor are you going to hear people stand up and defend it.

I have talked longer than I meant to talk. Let me conclude by simply making a few points.

A bill that is supposed to respond to an attack on our country and the great vulnerability we have as a result of that threat, that actually takes power away from the President to provide security, we say: It was all right for Bill Clinton to do it prior to 9/11, but now we are going to take that power away from George Bush.

No, you are not. That is not going to happen—not in this life. That is just not going to happen. And there is not going to be a deal cut on it. We are not going to adopt a bill that gives the President less power to respond to 9/11 than he had the day before it happened. It is just inconceivable and totally unacceptable.

No, 2, the President has asked for some flexibility in putting the right person in the right place at the right time. He doesn’t want to have to wait 6 months to hire somebody.

The FBI agent, Colleen Rawley, who sent the cable into the home office of the FBI saying, we have people with terrorist links taking flight training and maybe somebody ought to look at it. Don’t you think that maybe the President ought to be able to go back and promote that agent and give her a good pay raise? Also, I would have to say that after the picture of these people who flew these planes in the World Trade Center was on every television set in America with their names, for the INS to turn around several weeks later and grant them a visa to come into the United States, I think the President should have had the power to do it without having to go to the INS to turn around several weeks later and grant them a visa to come into the United States with their names, for the INS to turn around several weeks later and grant them a visa to come into the United States. I think the President should have had the power to do it without having to go to the INS to turn around several weeks later and grant them a visa to come into the United States.

Finally, there is just a lot of piling on in this bill. This Davis-Bacon provision is piracy; it is just piracy. When we are spending more money on emergencies than we have ever spent, the idea that we are going to make the Government pay a 20 percent premium—something we didn’t have to do before this bill passed but now we are going to make them do it—it is absolute piracy. I think people ought to be ashamed that it is in there. I haven’t heard many people bragging about it being there, but sure enough, it is there.

I wonder if we could not have had a bipartisan bill, if we had just started out with a set of principles: No. 1, what was the President had before 9/11 he would still have when this bill was written; No. 2, any flexibility we have ever given the President with regard to the Internal Revenue Service and its operation, the President ought to have, at a minimum, that flexibility, and No. 3, provisions that actually make the job harder ought to be debated another day. I believe if we had started with a set of principles—those 3—we would have had a bipartisan bill and the members of the Senate would have voted for it. But for some reason, which I do not understand and cannot comprehend, we now have an issue which has become largely partisan. It all revolves around an effort to take away from the President powers he had before 9/11.

The real stumbling blocks on this bill boil down to three things: An effort to take power from the President in terms of national security waivers, which is not going to happen; then, a refusal to give the President personnel flexibility greater but similar to what we have already done in the IRS; finally, gratuitous provisions, I guess, in this piling on mentality such as putting Davis-Bacon requirements onto FEMA something we have not done before.

Those things represent our problem, and I think as people understand them, I don’t believe the provisions of this bill can be sustained. I do not believe that, if the public really understood what we are going on here, they would put up with it.

I am hopeful that we can have an opportunity to vote on these issues. I think we will have a substitute that will try to deal with them. I am sure the vote is going to be very close. But I think it is important that people understand the issues. Something is really wrong when we cannot even get an amendment accepted that says the President can do something other than what he has today. I mean, that is almost unimaginable, but this bill does that. I think when people understand it, they are going to be very unhappy about it.

I think the President’s position is not that in dealing with the and too far on appropriations, but I think that can be fixed. I think on the key elements we are talking about now, the President is on the side of the angels. It is clear to me he is not going to budge, and so if we are unwilling to let the President have the power that every President since Jimmy Carter has had, then I guess we will have an opportunity to explain it to people, and I am sure they will ask for the explanation.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Mr. KYL. First of all, the discourse of the Senator from Texas has really volunteered the problems here.

They are both political and substantive. The political problem is that there are those who have a different agenda than the President of the United States, who is simply trying to reorganize Government to deal with the threat of terrorism, to create homeland security for the American people.

Instead of cooperating in that effort, there are those who would settle old scores, create new agendas, or add new things. Everybody’s motives are pure in this. The problem is that by getting the legislation so complicated, so convoluted, and so loaded down with other things, they are going to destroy the one thing we are trying to streamline the process and make it easier to deal with the threat of terrorists.

My grandmother had great sayings, and one was: Too many cooks spoil the broth. It is not that we all should not have a hand in the drafting of the legislation, but I do think when you are trying to create something such as a new Homeland Security Department, you have to give some deference to the people in the executive branch who have experience in making executive offices work, and to the President who has an idea of what he wants to do here. Instead, we have a lot of extraneous ideas floating around that I think, in the end, complicate it and add extraneous matters that don’t have to be in there, such as Davis-Bacon requirements, which will add costs to construction.

Ironically, they have the effect—I cannot believe this is the intent of the authors—but it has the effect of giving the President less power to deal with these problems than he has today. Right now, the President would be better off with the agencies as they exist, coupled with his authority, from an administrative or executive point of view, to move people around within those agencies; he would be better able to achieve his goals than by adopting the legislation that is before us. There are a couple of other examples of why this is true. Senator GRAMM had several examples in areas of the bill he was looking at. Let me refer to another area. For some time, there has been an appreciation of the fact that in dealing with the immigration issues, we really have two separate types of issues, and while both are dealt with as a part of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which is under the Justice Department, I think some consensus has been developing that, in some way, we need to separate the border control function, which includes entities such as the Border Patrol, and the investigative services, and so on.

Governments those out—those are sort of law enforcement, border protection functions—to separate those from the more customer-oriented—I don’t like that word but that is the word in vogue now—customer-oriented services, such as student visas, and the legal immigration into the country, in other words—there is some sense to that division of responsibility. This is something the President had offered. Initially, it looked as if the Lieberman-Warner bill contained a version of that division of authority. But as it turns out, under the Lieberman proposal, it gets a lot more complicated than that. I don’t know whether this is really intended, and there doesn’t seem to be any particular rhyme or reason why it is done this way, but it ends up being convoluted, very complicated, unnecessarily bureaucratic, ineffective, and confusing at end of the day.

Let me describe precisely what I am talking about. Division B of the Lieberman bill creates the Immigration Affairs Directorate. That includes all immigration functions of the U.S. Government. So far so good.

Division A of the bill creates, among other things, the Border and Transportation Affairs Directorate. So far so good. That is supposed to be the entity that deals with the Border Patrol—basically controlling illegal immigration and terrorism threats on our border.

Under the Lieberman bill, it goes off track right after that because this Immigration Affairs Directorate is supposed to handle the visas, citizenships—all immigration functions, including all immigration enforcement functions, intelligence investigations, detention, Border Patrol, and border inspections. All of those are moved into this immigration affairs box.

One might say: What is left in the other box? I cannot find much that is left. The remains are purely routine.

The problem is, we thought we had a solution to a problem. I thought everybody agreed to it. Now we are going right back to the problem we had in the first instance by putting all of the law enforcement, antiterrorism, Border Patrol, investigations, detention, inspections—all of that—right back into the Immigration Affairs Directorate.

One of the biggest priorities the President, in addition to dealing with terrorism, in the homeland security bill is to streamline the process at the border. Coming from a border State, I can tell my colleagues this is critical, and it goes all the way from Customs, which we have talked about here, to INS and all the related agencies.

We have two somewhat contradictory needs that come together at the border. We have a big security need. We want to make sure no illegal immigrants, no illegal contraband, drugs, weapons, and the like are smuggled into the country. We saw recently how we were able to check out a ship that we suspected had cargo that was radioactive and we were able to have it stand offshore until we had an opportunity to run the equipment over it to make sure there was not a bomb or something radioactive on board. That happens every day at our borders, at our seaports and at our airports many hundreds of times—in fact, thousands of times. There is specialized equipment to make sure nothing is brought in that should not come into this country. That is critical to both the security of the country from a terrorism standpoint, as well as a law enforcement standpoint.

At the same time, we want to enhance commerce. We do not enhance commerce by having long lines of trucks or cars or people waiting to be checked out before they can come into the country. On my border in Arizona, we have a huge problem with long lines, with trucks having to literally park on the Mexican side of the border and wait overnight to come through customs. That is detrimental to trade, commerce, to people and their lives.

I was reacquainted with a former staffer from Tucson, AZ, whose family lives in both Nogales, AZ, and Nogales, Mexico—two towns on either side of the border. She told me how hard it was going back and forth visiting family and friends. She had to wait in line literally hours. Therefore, we have these two competing needs, and we have to streamline the process.

Kudos to the Bush administration. They were coming up with a lot of good ideas about how to expedite the process of crossing for family and trade, while also making sure that we protect against contraband, illegal immigration, and terrorists entering the country. The Lieberman bill, by contrast, gets us all the way back to where we started by refusing to move the enforcement function out of the immigration affairs box and into the Border Affairs Directorate where it belongs. Instead of streamlining our activity at the border, I fear it will be the same mess it has been in the past. I hate to describe it that way, but that is exactly the way it is.

The administration’s proposal, by contrast to what Senator Gramm and the Border Transportation Protection Directorate, and that is where all of the Border Patrol activity, investigations, and the like, is embodied. As I said, under the Lieberman bill, all of that has been put into this immigration affairs box.

One might ask: Can’t reasonable adults work on this and get this straight? We have tried.

What I am saying, Mr. President, is there will be a substitute offered. Senator Gramm has mentioned this, as has Senator Thompson. The substitute is a compromise of what the President proposed and of the Lieberman bill, and I suspect, also features of the Byrd amendment. I believe this issue is pretty well straightened out in this compromise substitute that is going to be offered. It puts most of these functions back into the Border Patrol and border inspections functions should be included in the border and transportation affairs box. One might ask: Can’t reasonable adults work on this and get this straight? We have tried.

Let me mention one other problem before I finish. It is a related problem with this division B, the immigration affairs. It has language included which would abolish the Executive Office for Immigration Review and create within the Justice Department an independent agency for immigration judges. Immigration law is complicated enough. There are a whole series of precedents. There is a process by which you have a decision made, a review of that decision, and eventually the final review all the way up to the chain in the Department of Justice by the Attorney General of the United States. There is a body of case law built around this. There are procedures that are built around it. As far as I know, those procedures are working. I do not know of any reason, for homeland security, why we would want to change that. This legislation fundamentally alters the Homeland Security Act.

It seems at the very least the language, which designates when and how this new Executive Office for Immigration Review operates, needs to be changed so the precedents that exist today in the Department of Justice will either continue to exist there or in the new Homeland Security Department.

Unfortunately, this simply has not been written in a way that will guarantee we have the same kind of review and fairness and justice in the immigration process.

There are other things. I have a 5 o’clock engagement, so I am not going to go into more detail at this time. As I said, I do not question at all the motives of those who come up with different ideas on how to do different functions.

The problem is we all have our own wonderful ideas about how everything should be fixed, and if we try to do that all in the homeland security bill, we may be biting off more than we really need to chew. We may need to get back to the basic task, where we can protect against terrorism and have real homeland security and have a reorganization of Government that enables us to do that and not take on every other issue that people have that they have wanted to deal with and settle up over the years and use this bill for the opportunity to do that.

Those things that work well enough the way they are, leave well enough alone. When we put the group of people who do that work in a box or a division or directorate which has other responsibilities. This is arguably one of the most critical functions of the reorganization of homeland security, and we have to get it right. I am hoping my colleagues will consider, when we offer the substitute that I believe fixes this and gets it back more to the original intention, that whatever else they may think about aspects of the Byrd amendment or the Lieberman bill, they will recognize this is an improvement and support that feature of the substitute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Bayh). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, earlier I spoke at some length expressing my opposition to the amendment introduced by Senator Breaux. Members have come to the floor and have spoken not so much on the amendment offered by the Senator from West Virginia as they have on another question which engages some considerable debate among Members of the Senate, and that is the question of civil service and management flexibility. I want to respond to the statements of the Senator from Texas and the Senator from Arizona and, to some extent, my friend, the Senator from Tennessee.

I have been disturbed and disappointed by the criticisms of the legislation that came out of our Governmental Affairs Committee, which are based on the claim that it fails to give the President and the new Secretary of Homeland Security the authority they need to manage an effective Department. That is a serious charge and one that I respectfully say is simply not right.

Those who have followed the development of this proposal through our committee know my intention since the beginning has, in fact, been the opposite, which is to give the President and the Secretary all the power they need to build a strong, efficient, and effective Department; in fact, more power to do so than this President wanted for some period of months. Ever since last October, along with other Members of the Senate, I have been asking for a Cabinet Department with authority and accountability. And our reason, in fact, was to convince the President’s initial creation of an Office of Homeland Security, headed by Governor Ridge, without statutory authority or budget authority, was too weak to get the job done.

It seems ironic to me now that the President, who for months resisted the idea of a Department of Homeland Security and said that the Office of Homeland Security, headed by a coordinator, was all we needed to safeguard the Nation, now says that the Department we would create gives him inadequate authority. I think this debate is really a detour from what should be our urgent common cause, and that is the creation of a new Department that will protect the security of the American people, about which we agree on the majority of its components.

This is a debate that is being conducted in a kind of inside-the-beltway vocabulary, not in good old, plain spoken English.

On civil service rights, union rights, appropriations, and transition authority, the President claims he deserves flexibility, but legislation denies him flexibility by threatening to handcuff him and the Secretary from exercising their rightful authority, but the President’s plea for flexibility are, in fact, a request, in my view, for broad and unchecked authority in this regard. If we in the Congress do not provide that broad and unchecked and, in my opinion, often unprecedented authority to this President and Secretary, we are being branded as inflexible.

Congress has a duty to the American people in this case to write the civil service laws. If we in the Senate turn over all that responsibility and authority to the executive branch, simply because the President urged us to do so, I suggest it might streamline things somewhat but we would be very much like a board of directors yielding all authority to the management—and we have seen in recent times what can happen when boards of directors yield all authority to the management.

President Bush and Governor Ridge suggest our legislation will create an ineffective Department of Homeland Security because we decided not to give them the authority they requested in the President’s bill to unilaterally waive and rewrite civil service law. That is what they want. Extraordinary new powers. And they claim that without that authority this Department is somehow not even worth creating, and they are wrong. They do not get exactly their way on these provisions. That, in my opinion, is a distortion of the facts and a confusion of priorities.

The fact is, the Department of Homeland Security our legislation envisions will be a modern, performance-driven Federal agency, one that the Secretary and the President will have extensive authority to manage. The committee-endorsed bill contains flexible civil service provisions, including a broad, bipartisan civil service reform package, provisions that strengthen the administration’s hand when it comes to managing the new Department.

But we have incorporated these reforms responsibly, not haphazardly, preserving the central idea of the civil service system, which is accountability in the workplace. That is at the core of the civil service system that was codified in law more than 20 years ago. It would preserve the appropriate authority in the legislature to write these laws.

I ask my colleagues to look carefully and honestly at what the civil service system is, what kinds of reforms we provide in our legislation, and what the amendments being discussed to alter the civil service and collective bargaining rights of Federal employees, as protected in our committee’s work, would do.

The civil service system, first, is often derided, but rather than taking the road of caricature, let’s try to understand what it does and why it was developed. Once upon a time in government the rule used to be to the victor goes the spoils—all the spoils. Most of us know about the age of the spoils system officially ushered in by Andrew Jackson, in which elected officials used the Federal payroll to reward their friends and supporters who, not surprisingly, were not always the most prepared people to fulfill those particular functions. That may have been good for the politicians of their day, but it wasn’t good for the American people because it produced a government with minimal professional memory, minimal incentive for meritorious employees to work hard, to rise through the ranks, and with both of those, minimal public trust.

The civil service system changed then, changing the executive branch from a spoil system to a merit system with limits on favoritism and cronyism and to a transparent framework for attracting and retaining the most talented public servants. That system has evolved over time, and it is still designed to shield most public servants and the public they serve—from the forces of partisanship and favoritism and special interest influence that can erode the merit-based workplace in any administration. When the opponents of this legislation deride the civil service system, these are the principles they deride. They see—when they mock the system, these are the values they mock.

Today, at the top echelons of Departments are subject to political appointment, as they should be, to allow a President to select the loyal agency leadership he needs and deserves. But the bulk of public employees are protected against the whims of changing political climates. We now understand that effective Departments are made up of both types of employees, working closely together and depending on one another. Career civil servants who develop expertise, know how to do their jobs, who know the ins and outs of Government, and carry on the vital work of our Government from one administration to the next, on the one hand; and political appointees who lead the Departments, set high-level policy and advance the agenda of the President’s administration, on the other hand.

I will not stand here and defend every phase or clause of the civil service system, just as I doubt anyone would stand and defend every clause of the Tax Code. At times the system has been too slow or too rigid to adapt to the changing workplace, to recognize and reward excellence and to root out failure. Some of the flaws have been fixed over time. Others have not and remain challenges.

I strongly support the system’s fundamental principle which is to provide a check on the politicalization and patronage to which Government agencies will not always be susceptible in any administration. Civil service laws not only assert that personnel decisions should be based on considerations of merit, but they provide procedures and remedies if those principles are violated.

Think for a moment what it could mean to lose the public accountability assured by the civil service system. Talented senior managers, who dedicated their careers to public service, could be pushed out and replaced with patronage appointees. Potential whistleblowers at all levels of the organization would know they have little or no real protection against retaliation. Remember, we all praised Colleen Rowley when, in the courageous memo, she exposed evidence so grave she knew he was suspend by his Department. His union came to his defense and he was given back his job because a suspension for blowing a whistle in pursuit of the public interest was irrational, unfair.

Employees’ union representatives, if allowed at all, could be stripped of much of their ability to protect rank-and-file workers against abusive or self-protective political appointees. Veterans and minorities under the proposals made by the President for so-called management flexibility can see their statutory rights ignored or left with insufficient remedies. That is why our committee did not just deride the system. We tried to fix it, and I think made some real progress. Rather than just handing the President the authority to eliminate whole chunks of existing civil service protections, we developed the details for the key reforms we need to make this new Department work well.

I believe existing laws also give the President and Secretary far more authority and flexibility to run an efficient, effective, and performance-based Department of Homeland Security than the President and Governor Ridge have acknowledged. The administration says that the new Department cannot function without ripping up the civil service system and starting from scratch. That is a myth. The General Accounting Office reported a few years ago describing the civil service law as codified in title 5 of the United States Code:

We found that, over the years, Title 5 has evolved to give federal agencies more flexibility than they once had—and often, more than they realize—to tailor their personnel approaches to their needs.

In a similar vein, last year the Bush administration’s own Office of Personnel Management issued a handbook entitled “Human Resources Flexibilities and Authorities in the Federal Government.” That handbook painted a much different picture of the civil service law than we are now hearing from the administration:

We have designed this handbook to communicate with you about the myriad human resources (HR) flexibilities currently available and how they can be used to manage your human capital challenges. We serve as a resource for you as you use existing HR flexibilities to strategically align human resource management systems with your mission. Through this handbook, you may be surprised to discover how flexible Title 5 is in meeting your organizational needs.

I respectfully suggest to the White House that perhaps, if they looked at this handbook out by their own Office of Personnel Management, they, to use the words of the handbook, would be:

...surprised to discover how flexible title 5 is in meeting your organizational needs.

If we in Congress were to believe the administration’s recent claims that the civil service system is a hidebound anachronism, we, too, might be surprised to discover how flexible title 5 actually is.

There is substantial flexibility in existing law, as I have said. But to rise to the challenge of the war against terrorism, we wanted our legislation to go further. So we have incorporated sensible consensus reforms to improve the way Government manages personnel.

We have updated the civil service system to give the Secretary of Homeland Security and the President all the human resources tools they need to build the most effective Department of Homeland Security without compromising the underlying values of the civil service system. In fact, if our legislation, as currently before the Senate from our Governmental Affairs Committee, is adopted, the Secretary of Homeland Security will literally have more management flexibility than any Secretary has today.

Incidentally, I want to give special credit to Senators VOINOVICh and AKAKA, who worked together over a long period of time to develop the reforms in our bill. We have adopted these significant and governmentwide improvements in the civil service system.

To support research and development, we also authorized the Secretary to use innovative techniques to hire personnel in the new Science and Technology Directorate, for instance. Taken together, this package gives the Secretary the ability to speed up staffing of new employees, to recruit and retain top science and technology talent, to reshape the Federal workforce, to procure temporary services outside the civil service system when there is a critical need, to provide more effective bonuses for exemplary service, and to make other valuable changes to help the new Department attract, maintain, and motivate the best people.

Senator VOINOVICh has been a tireless advocate on behalf of a principle and a reality that does not get much attention around here but is critically important to the functioning of the Federal Government and that, again, is described in a Washington term, “human capital management.”

The point is, how do we get the best people to come to work for the Federal Government and then get them to have the widest latitude for their talents and encouragement to continue in Federal service? Part of that clearly is the protections offered by the civil service system.

I cannot emphasize enough that the provisions contained in our legislation mesh well with the time with many contentious issues being carefully and, I might say, cooperatively resolved in a bipartisan fashion. We all know how detailed this can be and how much care rewriting the law demanded. The reforms incorporated, the Voinovich-Akaka reforms, reflect collaboration, consensus building, and the input of countless experts.

I want to say particularly that Senator AKAKA, our distinguished colleague from Hawaii who is chair of the Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on International Security Proliferation and Federal Services, has now been working hard for 3 full years, with Senator VOINOVICh of Ohio and others, to adapt the civil service system to the demands of the modern workforce and contemporary Government. They are unsung heroes in bringing human capital management into the 21st century. Out of their collaboration has emerged a bipartisan package of sensible civil service reforms that are incorporated in the bill that came out of the Governmental Affairs Committee.

Now, on the other hand, the administration wants to throw everything out. Our bill has done, I think, the difficult work—but the work that Congress has an obligation to do—of separating the good from the bad, discarding the chaff and keeping the wheat. In fact, our reforms do more to constructively change what is commonly viewed as one of the most inflexible areas of civil service law—namely, the ability to swiftly hire top-flight talent—than any other proposal I have seen, and certainly any other that is on the table.

The President would wreak havoc on the current framework and cut nothing in its place. I hope critics of the approach the committee has taken will look carefully at these flexibilities I have described, which are substantial indeed. Let me elaborate just a bit more on what some of those authorities are.

First, we give the administration the power to put the right people in the right place at the right time. Existing law allows the Secretary to move employees around in the Department, either by permanent reassignment or temporary detail. I would guess that most Members do not appreciate that. Existing law allows the Secretary to move employees around in the Department, either by permanent reassignment or temporary detail. Collective bargaining agreements may not affect the authority of a manager to assign employees and to assign work. Any employee who refuses to be reassigned can be fired, and existing law allows managers to offer recruitment bonuses, special leave for temporary hire and even higher compensation to attract high-quality employees.

New provisions in our legislation significantly simplify hiring so that employees can be hired with little or no red tape. A government-wide amendment offered by the aforementioned Senators Voinovich and Akaka allows for the direct appointment of candidates to positions that have been publicly notified. This has been determined by OPM that there is a severe shortage of candidates and a critical hiring need.

A second Voinovich-Akaka amendment will allow agencies to select employees without applying the rule of three, under which agencies may not look beyond the three top-scoring candidates for a competitive position.

To accommodate special needs of the Department, the Secretary may procure personnel services whenever necessary, due to an urgent homeland security need, for periods of not more than a year, without regard to the usual pay caps. Let me go back. Our legislation says to the Secretary of the new Department of Homeland Security: You can actually enter into a contract with people for services for not more than a year without regard to the usual pay caps when you say there is an urgent homeland security need to do that.

Finally, in this regard, to support research and development, the Secretary, as I mentioned, is authorized to use innovative techniques to recruit top science and technology talent.

In fact, the bipartisan package of flexibilities in our legislation offers more in the area of hiring than does even the bill that passed the House, which does not include the direct hire authority in cases of critical need.

Second, the Governmental Affairs Committee amendments before the Senate gives the Secretary new authority to reward good performance so we can create a Department that encourages excellence among all its employees. Starting under existing law, the civil service law provides managers numerous avenues for providing incentives and rewards for good performance. Managers can decide, for instance, whether employees have earned performance bonuses based on exceptional performance, and can award further “quality step increases” for exceptional performance. Managers can also grant incentive awards for overall high performance or for exceptional work on a particular project.

Managers can pay special bonuses to help with retention or relocation of particularly desirable employees.

Contrary to what some in the Administration have been saying, civil service rules impose no cumbersome processes for managers to gain approval of a pay raise. President Bush and the new Secretary will be free to fashion as streamlined a process for giving merit raises as they can.

The bipartisan Voinovich-Akaka amendments included in our legislation strengthen performance bonuses for senior managers, by revising outdated rules that had required that bonuses for senior employees be spread over two years.

Finally, it is critical to recognize that under existing law, the Administration has the power it needs to discipline and remove poor performers.

Under civil service law, during the first year of employment, a Federal worker may be fired for virtually any reason without notice. Following the one-year probationary period, under civil service statutes, an agency must grant the employee a reasonable time to improve performance, after which the agency owes the employee 30 days’ notice of a decision to demote or fire. And contrary to stereotype, outside appeals are handled after an employee is off the payroll.

If a manager is sufficiently concerned about an employee’s poor performance or misconduct, the employee can be pulled from duty immediately, without hesitation or red tape. If necessary for national security, the employee may be suspended without pay immediately. After investigation and review, if necessary, the employee can then be fired without appeal. The President can authorize any agency head to suspend and fire where necessary for national security, and the President has this power to the new Secretary of Homeland Security.

The allegations which have been made on the floor that we will limit the powers of the President regarding national security just do not take into consideration this provision in the law. The President can authorize any agency head to suspend and fire where necessary for national security immediately and without pay.

I have some concerns. Some members of our approach contend that under our legislation, incompetent, irresponsible, or even intoxicated employees couldn’t be removed from duty. This is simply wrong. And I regret that this myth is being stated as fact occasionally by one or another representative of the administration. The truth is, under current law, such an employee can be removed from duty immediately, without hesitation or red tape, if the employee can be taken immediately off the payroll if the Secretary determines that he or she might endanger national security.

But that is not all. We understand the Secretary may need more authority down the road. That is why we explicitly leave the door open for the executive branch to get more power, as needed—because neither we, nor I believe, the administration, yet knows what the experience of assembling this new Department will teach its managers about the specific modifications to the Department’s personnel system that may prove necessary. We want to give the Secretary the opportunity to tailor additional authorities and flexibilities to the specific circumstances we face.

And they are free to come back and make that case to us. During the initial 18-month startup period for the new Department, additional personnel authorities specifically requires the Secretary to submit to Congress semi-annual legislative recommendations that will help integrate the disparate personnel systems in the new Department and will provide any further personnel authority or flexibility that is necessary to meet the needs of the new Department.

All we ask is that these requests are based on some experience, not on ideology or assumption. We want them to be specific, not hopelessly broad. And we want the process to respect the proper role of Congress to consider the proposals and write that law.

It is not appropriate for Congress—it has a familiar ring to it. I say to Senator BYRD—to write a blank check for a new Department regarding the civil service law allowing them to disregard that law—no more appropriate than it would be for us to write a blank check for it to give a new Department blanket exemption, for instance, from environmental law, civil rights law, or protection of the rights of the disabled. Rather, what we should do—and what we do in our bill—is to provide a swift and acceptable mechanism to provide any further personnel authorities if and when the administration makes the case that they need them.

In developing the provisions of our bill that invite the Secretary to come back to Congress with requests for further personnel flexibility if he deems it necessary, our committee was influenced by my experience working with the Comptroller General when he asked a couple of years ago for additional personnel authority at GAO. He advocated the Governmental Affairs Committee that the existing flexibilities he received might not be appropriate for other Federal agencies, but that the process he and Congress undertook to justifying that legislation would be appropriate. I would like to read an excerpt from Mr. Walker’s testimony on that subject:

Congress can play a defining role in determining the scope and appropriateness of addition, and human capital flexibilities agencies may seek through legislation. For agencies that request legislative exceptions from current civil service constraints, Congress can require agencies to make a sound business case based on rational and fact-based analyses of their needs, the constraints under which they presently operate, and the flexibilities available to them. For example, before we submitted human capital legislative proposals for GAO last year, we applied the due diligence only to identify in our own minds the flexibilities we need to better manage our human capital, but also to give Congress a clear indication of our needs, our rationale, and the steps we were committed to taking in order to maximize the benefits while managing the risks. The process we followed included a thorough analysis of our human capital needs and flexibilities, clear standards of implementation, and multiple opportunities for employee involvement and feedback.

GAO’s advice on this subject was even clearer in another submission to the committee, which said, “agencies should be required to prepare a business case and take steps to address their challenges within existing law before being granted any additional legislative flexibility.”

In other words, Comptroller General Walker laid out the case for what reforms he needed. He asked for specific authorities—not for a blanket exemption. We respected his request, and we gave him what he wanted.

That is the way it ought to work. That is the way our committee’s proposal regarding civil service would have it work.

Some of my colleagues have claimed that in our bill, we gave less personnel flexibility and authority to the Secretary of Homeland Security than we did in Congress gave to the heads of the FAA, the IRS, and the TSA. That is just simply not true. Congress simply granted personnel flexibility to the heads of those agencies. To the contrary, the personnel flexibilities that GAO provided for those agencies is shared through a collective bargaining process between agency managers and the Federal employee unions at those agencies.

And in the best companies in our country today, following modern management techniques, the old labor-management divisions have ended. People are working together in a cooperative fashion.

I visited an automobile parts company in Ypsilanti, MI, a couple of years ago. There were no remarkable changes. The workers made the same sound business decision for a set period of time. They could reelect him or not. The executives moved out of their offices and turned their office space into a fitness center for all employees. Management moved their offices to the floor where they are working together.

That is the standard for modern management practice. That is what we adopted for the IRS. For example, we granted several authorities that can be applied to unionized employees. There is real management flexibility—there is a written agreement between the union and the IRS. I have received assurances from some of our colleagues who say they are upset about our civil service provisions which basically protect existing law and ask for more reforms. They have cited the IRS as an example of what good can be done when an agency is given authority to act.

But, again, we gave the IRS authority to carry out management flexibilities with the written agreement of their employees’ union, and it has worked. At the FAA, for instance, agency managers must bargain with Federal employee unions over wages, and also must negotiate with the unions in developing and making any changes to the agency’s personnel management system.

So in some ways the IRS and the FAA follow much more of a private sector model today, which is very progressive, with lessening of civil service controls in certain areas, and with a corresponding increase of the role of unions in establishing the terms and conditions of employment.

It is true that our legislation does not in fact go down that road, but of course neither does the administration’s proposal for the Department of Homeland Security. Some of the proposals I have seen, from the White House and elsewhere, including from colleagues in the Senate, would empower the Secretary to cut back on the rights and roles that Federal employees and their unions would have at this new Department.

I have not seen a proposal from the administration for the Department that would replace civil service protections like them, I think we might have the basis for a bipartisan agreement.

Let’s give the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security broad authority to enact further civil service reforms with the written agreement of the unions representing his or her employees. It has worked at the IRS and FAA, and it might well work at the Department of Homeland Security.

As I said, President Bush does not seek to soundly reform the civil service system or make a solid business case for any new authorities. Instead, he really seeks to rip out big chunks of civil service law and to push that reform in the context of this urgent common cause of creating a new Department of Homeland Security.

Though the House, in its bill, has done a bit more homework, it still falls short of what we are seeking. The House bill states that several fundamental civil service provisions will apply to the new Department. Those include requirements to provide a preference in hiring and retention of veterans, which the President’s proposal would eliminate; the provisions which in the President’s proposal would eliminate: it prohibits nepotism, favoritism, and other forms of discrimination, which the President’s proposal would eliminate; and it protects the rights to bargain and other aspects of the President’s proposal would also eliminate.

However, almost all of these rights are provided in name only in the House bill, unfortunately. In major areas, the House bill would then turn over, again, a blank check to this administration to waive or rewrite civil service protections and procedures, with the administration having given us no indication of how they will use this extraordinary power.

Second, the House bill states that employees would be able to join unions, but then allows the administration to unilaterally rewrite all the statutory rules of collective bargaining that give unionization whatever significance it has under existing law.

Third, the House bill would also turn over power to the administration to rewrite other central elements of the civil service system, including performance appraisal, discipline, and job classifications and pay. These aspects of civil service provide for fairness across Government, avoid destructive bidding wars among agencies, and provide employees protection, most importantly, against unfair, arbitrary, or discriminatory decisions. The House bill essentially throws out all of those.

Finally, under the House bill, as the proposed new rules are developed for the Department, the bill relegates union representatives to the role of reclassification and pay. These aspects of civil service provide for fairness across Government, avoid destructive bidding wars among agencies, and provide employees protection, most importantly, against unfair, arbitrary, or discriminatory decisions. The House bill essentially throws out all of those.

When Congress enacted legislation, again, allowing the FAA and IRS to develop alternative personnel rules, we specified that the unions would have a place at the bargaining table regarding those issues. That is progressive, that is productive, and that is modern. The House provision limiting the role of employees and their representatives is unfair and unacceptable.

Finally, the choice before us on civil service is simple: Improve it or remove it. Make it better or rip it up. While our legislation lives up, in my view, to Congress’s responsibility to improve the civil service system, the alternatives proposed by the administration in the House bill don’t meet that responsibility. They, to use a word familiar to us during this season, punt. They leave it all to the administration.
They would have Congress leave it all to the administration to rewrite the law.

That would be problematic in just about any realm, but it is particularly problematic here, as the administration represents management, one of the parties directly affected by the law.

Powers are strictly separated in our constitutional system for a reason. I have not hesitated to make clear that I believe the President, in his role as Commander in Chief, for instance, should have the authority to determine when and how we take military action to protect national security. But rewriting laws is the job of Congress, the responsibility of Congress. Indeed, the separation of powers is especially important in the case of civil service law, again, for the reason I have stated: Because the administration is the management, it is one of the two parties directly affected by the law. Congress, in effect, must play the role of a fair and honest mediator, broker and legislator. Only Congress should change the law.

So we have two choices here: To embrace significant reforms, as included in our bill, and leave additional changes that may seem to be necessary, after some experience, for consideration in the future, based on a solid business case made by the Secretary is one choice. On the other hand, we can simply abdicate and give the administration the right to rewrite the current civil service system by administrative fiat. That, of course, is an easy choice for me.

Also, I would state, in response to the underlying amendment the Senator from West Virginia has proposed, what we have done here in civil service is very much similar to what we have done in most of the rest of the bill; that is, we have tried to dispatch Congress’s responsibility to write the law, not to give the administration a blank check in any area, to respect the executive branch and the need for authority in the executive branch, but to understand that constitutionally we have the responsibility to legislate. That is exactly what we have done in a progressive fashion with regard to the civil service laws for our Federal workers.

I had not intended to speak on this this afternoon, but those of our colleagues who have come to speak not on the Byrd amendment but against the civil service provisions in the committee’s proposal required a response on this day.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, today we have tried to come up with some type of resolution of the fire suppression amendment that has been holding up this Interior appropriations bill for some time. We have been unable to do that. As I have spoken with Senator Byrd—I do not think the Interior appropriations bill is going to move forward.

Until there is some way to resolve that amendment, I ask unanimous consent that the order with respect to consideration of the Interior appropriations bill be modified so that the bill may be temporarily laid aside and that it recur upon the disposition of the homeland security bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I appreciate the frustration the assistant leader is going through at this moment trying to resolve an issue on the Interior appropriations bill about which he and I are concerned and move it forward and then at some time move homeland security forward.

Today we have worked to facilitate both of those bills, and I have encouraged the majority leader and the assistant leader to allow a vote on my amendment concerning the Homeland Security Act, which is to be considered as an amendment to the Interior appropriations bill or, if not, a stand-alone vote, and then to allow a side by side, with their alternative, by a majority vote of either. That is not what they apparently want to do at this moment.

I do not want to see the Interior appropriations bill laid aside. We have critical fire money in the bill. We have critical drought money in the bill for agriculture. The Interior appropriations bill is the biggest of all the appropriations bills.

At the same time, we must bring this Senate together on some way of dealing with the crisis in our forests today that has resulted in devastating fires across the West. I feel very strongly about that. At the same time, I know the leader has worked hard to facilitate homeland security. Certainly it is very evident this side is not holding up that bill at this moment. We want the votes. We want to move the issue, deal with it, send to the President’s desk before we adjourn or recess for the November elections. Under those considerations, dual track is important.

I say to the leader, give me a vote. Give me a vote on the Craig-Domenici amendment up or down. However, I do believe we need a vote. I do believe it is critically important that the Senate of the United States express its will on a 6.5-million-acre loss to wildfire this year and thousands of homes and well over 25 lives. We must deal with the issue.

This situation has cost us—and I think Senator Reid will agree—$800 million extra in this budget, to fight fires or to pay the debt of the fires that have already been fought. We will spend well over $1 billion of extra money this year. With that, I must object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is held.

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I am disappointed in that I believe we need to move forward with homeland security and stop treading water on this Interior appropriations bill. The Interior appropriations bill is as important to Nevada as any appropriations bill we do. There are many provisions in this bill that will help Nevada, and other issues that are waiting to be approved by the two managers. I would love to have the Interior appropriations bill done.

For my friend, the distinguished Senator from Idaho, to say he wants a vote on his amendment, I agreed, more than a week ago, to have side-by-side amendments: their amendment, our amendment. There would have to be a 60-vote threshold because, whether we like it or not, the rules of the Senate are here, and on matters of importance—I should not say of importance. We have a lot of issues that are important that do not require 60 votes. Matters that are in controversy take 60 votes. This is one of those matters that are in controversy. We simply have to go forward on that basis. That is why we have a majority leader vote on their amendment or our amendment, because we cannot get 60 votes on our amendment and they cannot get 60 votes on their amendment. It is hard for me to comprehend why, when just a few days ago we approved money for drought assistance, which received 79 votes. As we speak, ranchers and farmers throughout America are in deep need of these moneys, and until this legislation passes, they are in grave danger of not getting that money. So those people who voted for that drought assistance are now preventing us from going forward.

That does not mean, Mr. President, if we get off this bill, we will not somehow be able to do the Interior appropriations bill. Maybe we can. Also, what it does not mean is, if we do not do the fire amendment, as my friend from Idaho thinks it should be done this year in this bill, that it will not be there a week later, in the same other bill. I hope that as time goes on, we are going to be able to spend full time on homeland security. If we do not, it is going to be hard to finish that bill, especially if on the Interior appropriations bill we are treading water and accomplishing nothing. We have all these other appropriations bills we need to do.

I, frankly, see the picture very clearly. It seems to me the majority does not want us to pass any appropriations bills. They are looking forward to a continuing resolution. That may be what it comes to. That will be the decision of the two leaders. At least, if they do not want to complete any appropriations bills, let us finish homeland security. We will not dual-track anything else if we do not want it. We will stay off the appropriations bills at least until we finish homeland security. If we have to spend a half a day doing nothing, it is going to be extremely hard to finish homeland security.

I spoke with the two managers of the bill yesterday. Both sides have amendments they want to offer. They are creditable. No one at this stage is trying to stall the bill. I think we would be well advised to do what the majority leader has indicated and vote to invoke cloture on this bill tomorrow. From the word I have received, that does not appear to be what the minority is going to let us do. Again, it requires 60 votes. We would take a simple majority vote on that. But that will not happen. Things do not work that way here. We require 60 votes to continue.

So unless my friend has more to say, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DAYTON). Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENTS NO. 4554, 4599, 4623, 4552, 4588, AND 4563, EN BLOC

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to report that Senator THOMPSON and I have been working with various other Members of the Senate, and we have reached agreement on a series of amendments that both sides have cleared.

Before I make the actual motion, I will indicate what they are. The first is amendment No. 4554 on behalf of Senators SARBANES, MIKULSKI, WARNER, and ALLEN, which would create within the Department of Homeland Security an office for national capital region coordination which would provide a single Federal point of contact to help integrate the plans and preparedness activities of the Federal agencies and entities in the District of Columbia with the efforts of State, local, and regional authorities in the Greater Washington area.

The second amendment is No. 4599 on behalf of Senators HARKIN and LUGAR. This amendment more effectively transfers the border inspection functions of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service to the new Department.

Next is amendment No. 4623, which would, on behalf of Senator THOMPSON and myself, add the E-Government Act of 2002 to this legislation. This would give the Federal Government the tools and structure to reform its information technology systems, one of the greatest vulnerabilities of agencies now tasked with homeland security missions. This E-Government Act, I note for the record, was originally cosponsored by Senator BURNS and many others. It is the result of months of productive negotiations with Senator THOMPSON and the administration.

Next is amendment No. 4552 on behalf of Senators CLINTON and SPECTER. This would require the Directorate of Critical Infrastructure Protection to assess the vulnerabilities of, identify priorities and support protective measures for and develop a comprehensive national strategy to secure not only the critical infrastructure in the United States but also its key resources. This is an attempt to make clear that key resources include National Park sites identified by the Secretary of the Interior that are so universally recognized as symbols of the United States that they would likely or might possibly be identified as targets of terrorist attacks.

Also, amendment No. 4588, on behalf of Senators ROCKEFELLER and TIMOTHY, which consists of a series of technical changes to existing law to ensure that the Coast Guard members retain all of the benefits they are now entitled to under the Montgomery GI bill, once the Coast Guard is moved to the new Department.

And finally, amendment No. 4563, on behalf of Senators BAYH, SHELBILL, and others, which would improve the protection of the Department of Defense storage depot for lethal chemical agents and munitions by strengthening temporary flight restrictions on the airspace near these depots.

I, therefore, ask unanimous consent that it be in order to consider the following amendments: 4554, 4599, 4623, 4552, 4588, and 4563, and that Senator THOMPSON be added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 4623; that these amendments be considered and agreed to, and that the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments were agreed to, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 4554

(Purpose: To create an Office of National Capital Region Coordination within the Department of Homeland Security)

On page 114, between lines 20 and 21, insert the following:

SEC. 141. OFFICE FOR NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION CoORDINATION.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

(1) in general.—There is established within the Office of the Secretary of the Office of National Capital Region Coordination to oversee and coordinate Federal programs for and relationships with State, local, and regional authorities in the National Capital Region, as defined under section 2674(f)(2) of title 10, United States Code.

(2) DIRECTOR.—The Office established under paragraph (1) shall be headed by a Director, who shall be appointed by the Secretary.

(3) COOPERATION.—The Secretary shall cooperate with the Mayor of the District of Columbia, the Governors of Maryland and Virginia, and other State, local, and regional officers in the National Capital Region to integrate the District of Columbia, Maryland, and Virginia into the planning, coordination, and execution of the activities of the Federal Government for the enhancement of domestic preparedness against the consequences of terrorist attacks.

(b) RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Office established under subsection (a)(1) shall—

(1) coordinate the activities of the Department of Homeland Security relating to the National Capital Region, including cooperation with the Homeland Security Liaison Officers for Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia within the Office for State and Local Government Coordination;

(2) assess, and advocate for, the resources needed by State, local, and regional authorities in the National Capital Region to implement efforts to secure the homeland;

(3) provide State, local, and regional authorities in the National Capital Region with regular information, research, and technical support to assist the efforts of State, local, and regional authorities in the National Capital Region in securing the homeland;

(4) develop a process for receiving meaningful input from State, local, and regional authorities and the private sector in the National Capital Region to assist in the development of the homeland security plans and activities of the Federal Government;

(5) coordinate with Federal agencies in the National Capital Region on terrorism preparedness, to ensure adequate planning, information sharing, training, and execution of the Federal role in domestic preparedness activities;

(6) coordinate with Federal, State, local, and regional agencies, and the private sector in the National Capital Region on terrorism preparedness to ensure adequate planning, information sharing, training, and execution of domestic preparedness activities among these agencies and entities; and

(7) serve as a liaison between the Federal Government and State, local, and regional authorities, and private sector entities in the National Capital Region to facilitate access to Federal grants and other programs.

(c) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Office established under subsection (a) shall submit an annual report to Congress that includes—

(1) the identification of the resources required to fully implement homeland security efforts in the National Capital Region;

(2) an assessment of the progress made by the National Capital Region in implementing homeland security efforts; and

(3) recommendations to Congress regarding the additional resources needed to fully implement homeland security efforts in the National Capital Region.

(d) LIMITATION.—Nothing contained in this section shall be construed as limiting the power of State and local governments.

AMENDMENT NO. 4587
(Purpose: To improve the protection of Department of Defense storage depots for lethal chemical agents and munitions through strengthened temporary flight restrictions.)

TITLE VI—STRENGTHENED TEMPORARY FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS FOR THE PROTECTION OF CHEMICAL WEAPONS STORAGE DEPOTS

SEC. 601. ENFORCEMENT OF TEMPORARY FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS.

(a) IMPROVED ENFORCEMENT.—The Secretary of Defense shall request the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration to enforce restrictions applicable to Department of Defense depots for the storage of chemical agents and munitions.

(b) ASSESSMENT OF USE OF COMBAT AIR PATROLS AND EXERCISES.—The Secretary shall assess the effectiveness, in terms of deterrence and capabilities for timely response, of current restrictions on carrying out combat air patrols and flight training exercises involving combat aircraft over the depots referred to in such subsection.

SEC. 602. REPORTS ON UNAUTHORIZED INCURSIONS INTO RESTRICTED AIRSPACE.

(a) REQUIREMENT FOR REPORT.—The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall submit to Congress a report on each incursion of an aircraft into airspace in the vicinity of Department of Defense depots for the storage of lethal chemical agents and munitions in violation of temporary flight restrictions applicable to that airspace. The report shall include a discussion of the actions, if any, that the Administrator has taken or is taking in response to or as a result of the incursion.

(b) TIME FOR REPORT.—The report required under subsection (a) regarding an incursion described in such subsection shall be submitted not later than 30 days after the occurrence of the incursion.

SEC. 603. REVIEW AND REVISION OF TEMPORARY FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS.

(a) REQUIREMENT TO REVIEW AND REVISE.—The Secretary of Defense shall—
   (1) review the temporary flight restrictions that are applicable to airspace in the vicinity of Department of Defense depots for the storage of lethal chemical agents and munitions, including altitude and radius restrictions; and
   (2) request the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration to revise the restrictions, in coordination with the Secretary, to ensure that regulations are sufficient to provide an opportunity for—
      (A) timely detection of incursions of aircraft into such airspace; and
      (B) timely disrupt such agents and munitions effectively from threats associated with the incursions.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the actions taken under subsection (a). The report shall contain the following:
   (1) The matters considered in the review required under that subsection.
   (2) The revisions of temporary flight restrictions that have been made or requested as a result of the review, together with a discussion of how those revisions ensure the attainment of the objectives specified in paragraph (2) of such subsection.

AMENDMENT NO. 4623

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I would like to make some additional comments regarding the inclusion of amendment number 4623 in this legislation.

The E-Government Act of 2002 is vitally needed to enhance our homeland security, and is particularly relevant to the goal of ensuring improved homeland security. The bipartisan bill, originally cosponsored by Senator BURNS, is the result of months of productive negotiations with Senator THOMPSON and the administration. It passed the Senate as S. 803 by unanimous consent in June. The Committee on Governmental Affairs produced an extensive report, Report No. 107-174, to which I refer my colleagues for more information about the bill.

The E-Government Act will give the Federal Government the tools and structure to transform its IT systems, overcome some of the greatest vulnerabilities of agencies now tasked with homeland security missions. As we’ve seen through dozens of depressing revelations over the last year, we have a desperate need for more effective and systematic information sharing between agencies like the FBI, CIA, Department of State, the INS, and state and local authorities. The E-Government Act will help the federal government get that job done, by establishing more effective IT management, establishing mandates for action, and authorizing funding.

The bill will also substantially enhance the ability of the Federal Government to quickly provide information and services to citizens to help them prepare for, respond to, and recover from terrorism, natural disasters, and other homeland threats. In the hours and days after the terrorist attacks of September 11, Americans flooded Government websites in record numbers, looking for information greater than what the media was providing: what was happening; how they should respond to protect themselves from possible future attacks; how they could help victims; and how people who were victims themselves could seek assistance.

The E-Government Act will substantially enhance the ability of the Federal Government to quickly provide information and services to citizens to help them prepare for, and respond to, terrorism, natural disasters, and other homeland threats.

Finally, the bill will make permanent the Thompson-Lieberman Government Information Security Reform Act, which is about to expire. Weak computer security has been a widespread problem in the Federal Government, with potentially devastating consequences. In response, the Senate passed this important information security legislation last Congress, but that legislation is scheduled to expire in November.

I thank the Chair, Senator THOMSON, staff, and all others who have cooperated to allow us to move forward with these amendments. Noting my friend and colleague on the floor whom we all welcome back to Washington after some surgery, he looks younger and more knowledgeable than ever, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. BAKES. Mr. President, I rise to commend my chairman, Senator LIEBERMAN, for his outstanding work and his extraordinary leadership in the committee, and to mention that it was after Senator LIEBERMAN began his ini-

As we are debating the creation of a new Department of Homeland Security, we must make sure that providing new flexibilities does not compromise the mission of the agency. In providing the agency with the tools to effectively manage their workforce, we must make sure that agencies have a strategy in place to meet their missions and keep employees satisfied. If our dedicated workers do not feel valued by the agency, the mission will fail. Without sufficient union participation and civil service protections, our homeland will not be secure.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I hereby submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report prepared by the Congressional Budget Office under Section 308(b) and in aid of Section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended.

This report shows the effects of congressional action on the budget during fiscal year 2002, show that current level spending in 2002 is below the budget resolution by $12.1 billion in budget authority and by $18.8 billion in outlays. Current level revenues are below the revenue floor by $0.4 billion in 2002.

I ask unanimous consent to print the following in the RECORD:

The following objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, September 13, 2002.

Hon. KENT CONRAD,
Chairman, Committee on the Budget,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The attached tables show the effects of congressional action on the 2002 budget and are current through September 11, 2002. This report is submitted under section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act, as amended.

The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended.

Since my last report dated May 22, 2002, the Congress has cleared and the President has signed the following acts that changed budget authority, outlays, or revenues for 2002: the Mychal Judge Police and Fire Chaplains Public Safety Officer Benefits Act of 2002 (P.L. 107–196), and the Trade Act of 2002 (P.L. 107–210). The effects of these actions are identified in Table 2. At the request of the Budget Committee, the funds designated as contingent emergencies in P.L. 107–206 have been removed from current level. The President announced that these funds will not be released.

Sincerely,

BARRY B. ANDERSON
(For Dan L. Cippen, Director.)

Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation introduced with Senator KENNEDY in March of last year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred April 13, 2002 in Temecula, CA. Two black women were assaulted in a restaurant parking lot. The assailants, described as a group of drunken white men, surrounded the victims’ car, pounded dents into it, taunted the women with racial slurs, and attacked one of them physically, ripping her clothing.

I believe that government’s first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation and changing current law, we can change hearts and minds as well.

New Administration Regulations to Cut Services to Veterans

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about the latest action by the Administration to cut services to veterans.

For years when we looked at the health care budget, we focused on the declining veteran population and declining demand. We are in a totally different predicament today. More veterans are turning to the VA health care system, and that is a success story. In recent months, however, unacceptably long waiting times for care have materialized. Cutting services to veterans who now depend more upon VA, is a perverse reaction to the problem.

In 1996, Congress enacted eligibility reform which allowed all veterans to come to the VA health care system. At the time, I spoke about the dilemma that we would face in opening up the doors and providing a rich benefit package and how, down the road, we would have to face the consequences.

In my view, the administration has a choice: Either own up to the demand for health care services and provide funding—my preference—or manage enrollment. The administration has chosen a completely different course.

In its budget request, the administration proposed charging a $1,500 deductible to higher-income veterans as a means to “reduce demand.” In July, VA issued a mandate prohibiting all enrollment–generating activities, such as health fairs. Yesterday, regulations were issued to require VA to give priority for health care services to veterans with service-connected conditions. No veteran who is enrolled with VA for health care should have to endure long waiting times for care. Thus, the administration’s latest action changes the way veterans access health care services, and in doing so, not only circumvents current law regarding eligibility for care, but will also create serious hardships for hundreds of thousands of veterans who depend upon VA. These regulations should be rescinded. Today, several other Senators and I wrote to the President and asked that he do so.

These regulations will almost certainly increase—rather than decrease—the waiting times facing hundreds of thousands of veterans. Let me repeat that: The recent regulations will do nothing for the more than 300,000 veterans waiting to be seen by VA clinicians, and in fact, the new priority system could more than double the time they are forced to wait for care. I ask unanimous consent that VA’s list of waiting times be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Col A: Number of new enrollees waiting for first appointment where an appointment has not been scheduled. Represents a manual count of Veterans who have enrolled and requested an appointment but the Veteran’s preferred site of care cannot schedule the appointment within six months. Therefore, the veteran is placed on a wait list. An electronic wait list is being developed that will allow more accurate data collection.

Col B: Number of established patients on a wait list or new and established patients scheduled for appointments requiring a wait of 6 months or more. Includes: (1) a manual count of established patients (patients have been seen at least once) who are on a wait list (cannot be scheduled within 6 months) for follow-up care for a Primary Care Clinic or Specialty Care Clinic visit. (Examples would include veterans waiting for reassignment to a new Primary Care Provider, or patients waiting for consults in Specialty Care Clinics.) Also includes (2) a count of veterans scheduled electronically for appointments, however the wait time meets or exceeds six months. (This also includes those patients who have either voluntarily canceled their appointments or had their appointment canceled by the VA.)

Note: This data includes approximately 80 percent of VHA’s workload. All Primary Care Clinics are included and 5 major Specialty Care Clinics (eye, urology, cardiology, orthopedics, audiology). The electronic wait list capability will allow for additional clinic to be included.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. The Paralyzed Veterans of America, too, is very concerned about these new regulations, as the new system “completely ignore[s] the other key missions of the VA health care system to care for the poor and medically indigent and those veterans with special disabilities such as spinal cord dysfunction, blindness, and mental illness.” I ask unanimous consent that the full text of PVA’s letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PARALYZED VETERANS OF AMERICA, Washington, DC, September 13, 2002.

Hon. John D. Rockefeller, IV, Chairman, Committee on Veterans’ Affairs, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN ROCKEFELLER: On behalf of the Paralyzed Veterans of America (PVA), I am writing to express our grave concerns over the attempts by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) to move forward with an interim final rule that has insufficient statutory grounding.

VA Secretary Anthony Principi has proposed an interim final rule dispensing with notice-and-comment requirements under the Administrative Procedures Act. These fast track regulations dramatically alter existing eligibility for VA health care services. Faced with woefully inadequate funding requests from the Bush Administration and the Congress for the veterans’ health care system, the new regulations would give hospital administrators the authority to ration care by establishing a priority for treatment for certain veterans with service connected disabilities. Veterans with service connected disabilities rated 50 percent and above and veterans seeking care for their service connected disabilities would get access to treatment before any other veteran is served. No one can argue that service-connected disabled veterans do not deserve the highest priority for veterans benefits and services. However, by allowing admitting clerks to give them front-of-the-line access, the regulations inherently give these same clerks the authority to deny care to veterans in other categories when budgets remain tight. This is the real intent of the proposed regulations, and we believe, contrary to VA opinions, that the VA lacks the statutory authority to deny care to higher-priority veterans in lieu of the Secretary’s granted authority to disenroll lower-priority veterans.

PVA, along with every other major veterans service organization worked for nearly a decade to enact legislation that would standardize veterans’ eligibility for health care services. Prior to enactment of eligibility reform legislation in 1996, access to health care services was governed by a fragmented bureaucratic tangle of regulations governed primarily by fiscal considerations. Some veterans could get some services; some veterans could get others but only under certain circumstances and under certain conditions governed in part by veteran status, not health care need. The veterans organizations argued that such a system was unfair, did not provide the optimum health care services needed by veterans, was a bureaucratic nightmare and, more importantly, was medically unethical.

Eligibility reform legislation brought simplicity to the process. Veterans would be enrolled in the system based on veterans status and economic need in seven categories. Once enrolled, each veteran was entitled to the complete VA health benefits package on an equal basis. This was not only good policy; it was good medicine. Veterans with service-connected disabilities were included in the highest enrollment categories to ensure comprehensive access to the system. In fact, because of their service-connected disabilities they were even exempted from enrollment requirements. If these high-priority veterans are having difficulty according VA health care now, as the Secretary has stated, then the problem lies in the inability of the Administration to fund the VA properly and the incompetence of VA admitting clerks who ignore current eligibility law and the high priority these veterans already have. Both of these problems should be rectified without the issuance of new regulations. The $270 million in emergency supplemental funding that the White House refused to allocate to the VA last month could have gone a long way to ease the burden on the system.

The re-characterization of health care access in the proposed regulations is a major step backward toward the chaos that existed in the pre-eligibility reform days.

There is no question that the VA is grossly overburdened. A product of its own success, the system, because of the quality and accessibility of health care services it provides, has attracted unprecedented numbers of new veteran users. While eligibility reform has been blamed for opening the gates to the system, the cause of this influx of patients are the new health care markets VA has established through 800 outpatient clinics across the country. Among other factors are the private health insurance system that is pricing itself out of reach of most Americans and a Medicare plan that ignores the need for a quality prescription drug benefit for seniors and people with disabilities.

VA is pulling in the reins, attempting to ration care and dissuade veterans from coming into the system. These new regulations are only one step in that direction. We are certain to see other proposals in the months ahead. If we go down the road of pitting one group of veterans in the health care queue against other groups of veterans where does it stop?

These regulations completely ignore the other key missions of the VA health care system to care for the poor and medically indigent and those veterans with special disabilities such as spinal cord dysfunction, blindness and mental illness. With these regulatory restrictions on hospital admittance, VA could logically ignore these responsibilities as well in contravention of direct statutory requirements.

Finally, we seriously question the VA’s opinion that is has sufficient authority under existing statutes to move forward with these interim final rules. The VA’s sophisticated argument ignores the plain language of the statute providing the VA limited flexibility in managing the enrollment system established by Congress in 1996.

All in all, we do not see why veterans should be denied an accessible, quality health care product just because it is unattainable or unaffordable elsewhere, and the Administration and the Congress do not want to come up with the dollars to fund it adequately.

Sincerely,

DELATORRO L. MCNEIL
Executive Director.

Mr. ROCKETEFELLER. Finally, Mr. President, we have seen a rush by the Administration to implement these new regulations, without the normal comment period for Congress, veterans, or veterans’ groups to make their views known. I believe VA’s finding, that it has “good cause” to dispense with a normal notice-and-comment period, is without factual merit. If an emergency situation exists, the Administration could have surely provided the $270 million in additional funds which Congress already appropriated to deal with the unacceptably long waiting times.

We must work together to find a better solution for veterans and these regulations must be rescinded to protect access to care for all veterans.

RESCUE OF MINEWORKERS BY FMC

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I know all of us in this Chamber shared in the profound sense of relief and elation which accompanied the heroic rescue of nine mine workers from the Quecreek Mine near Somerset Pennsylvania earlier this summer. It was truly a remarkable story which combined the very best of the human spirit with the most modern medicine and rescue technologies and produced nothing short of a miracle.

Somewhat lost in the press accounts after the rescue was the role played by the Mine Safety and Health Administration, which at its own expense sent employees to Somerset to assist in the rescue. One of MSHA’s important missions is to prepare mine workers and local health and safety officials for responding to the sort of near disaster that we witnessed last month. The rescue in Pennsylvania was a natural emergency. It was the result of thousands of man-hours dedicated to salvaging the best from the worst. We all saw firsthand how it works.

I am very proud to be able today to recognize that a group of individuals from my own state has won this year’s National and International Mine Rescue Contest. The Mine rescue competitions are designed to test the knowledge of miners who might be called upon to respond to mine emergency. The contest requires six-member teams to solve a hypothetical mine emergency problem such as a fire, explosion or cave-in while judges rate them on their adherence to mine rescue procedures and how quickly they complete specific tasks.

This year a team from Green River Wyoming, representing FMC Corporation, which operates a mine in my state, won this prestigious competition. The individuals who make up the FMC Mine Rescue Team are the very best of the human spirit with the courage and skill of the human spirit, and also remind us of the precious frailty of life.

Let me read the letter in its entirety:

Today is a sad day for our family. Not just our family, but also families just like the Vauk family, the Conaty family, the Andrews family, and thousands of others. It’s a sad day for our American family as we all remember and pay tribute to the thousands of friends, family, and fellow Americans that lost their lives one year ago. It is a day that many will remember as the day we learned that heroes aren’t found only in comic books. No, there are heroes greater than Superman and my brother is one of them.

Brady Kay Howell loved this country. He was an Eagle Scout. He loved children and taught the youth in Sunday School classes while living in New York and later Virginia. He loved his family and actually had plans to return to Idaho that following weekend for a wedding party for my parents and for my wedding reception. He loved his wife, Liz, to whom he’d been married for only six years. He loved his family and actually had plans to return to Idaho that following weekend for a welcome home party for my parents and for my wedding reception. He loved his wife, Liz, to whom he’d been married for only five short years.

Brady was working in naval intelligence as an intern. Shortly before his death, he and I had a telephone conversation. In it he told me that one of his goals in his life was to have top-secret clearance. I’m proud to say that he accomplished that goal.

I could go on and on about how great my brother was. But, if it were he speaking here today, he wouldn’t use this opportunity to talk about what a great country this is that we live in and how proud he was to serve and protect all of us.

Let me read the letter in its entirety:

The work that Brady and many others did that day was good medicine. Veterans with service-connected disabilities were included in the highest enrollment categories to ensure comprehensive access to the system. In fact, because of their service-connected disabilities they were even exempted from enrollment requirements. If these high-priority veterans are having difficulty according VA health care now, as the Secretary has stated, then the problem lies in the inability of the Administration to fund the VA properly and the incompetence of VA admitting clerks who ignore current eligibility law and the high priority these veterans already have. Both of these problems should be rectified without the issuance of new regulations.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Finally, Mr. President, the terrorism of September 11 changed America forever, and it profoundly changed Americans, as well as the veterans lost left behind legacies, the compilation of the meaningful things they accomplished throughout their lives, actions and words that still touch their friends and families after their deaths. Those legacies inspire all of us with the bravery and courage of the human spirit, and also remind us of the precious frailty of life.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, the terrorism of September 11 changed America forever, and it profoundly changed Americans, as well as the veterans lost. The loss of our friends like Brady Howell to commemorate the one year anniversary of that terrible event, articulates the legacy Brady left behind. I would like to enter this letter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD so all my colleagues can remember the great example these Americans are to us. In the words of Carson Howell, “The men and women who perished that day are not heroes because of how they died; they are heroes because of how they lived.”

Let me read the letter in its entirety:

Today is a sad day for our family. Not just our family, but also families just like the Vauk family, the Conaty family, the Andrews family, and thousands of others. It’s a sad day for our American family as we all remember and pay tribute to the thousands of friends, family, and fellow Americans that lost their lives one year ago. It is a day that many will remember as the day we learned that heroes aren’t found only in comic books. No, there are heroes greater than Superman and my brother is one of them.

Brady Kay Howell loved this country. He was an Eagle Scout. He loved children and taught the youth in Sunday School classes while living in New York and later Virginia. He loved his family and actually had plans to return to Idaho that following weekend for a welcome home party for my parents and for my wedding reception. He loved his wife, Liz, to whom he’d been married for only five short years.

Brady was working in naval intelligence as an intern. Shortly before his death, he and I had a telephone conversation. In it he told me that one of his goals in his life was to have top-secret clearance. I’m proud to say that he accomplished that goal.

I could go on and on about how great my brother was. But, if it were he speaking here today, he wouldn’t use this opportunity to talk about what a great country this is that we live in and how proud he was to serve and protect all of us.

The work that Brady and many others did that day was good medicine.
that they could best be informed of how to protect us the American public. Everyday he was protecting our country. Everyday he was fighting for our freedoms that we enjoy. To Brady, if you love America, how much of the country you had, it didn’t matter what the color of your skin was, it didn’t matter which religion you believed. To Brady, what mattered were the people.

Ongoing community service initiatives to commemorate Brady’s commitment to public service are conducted in the Washington, DC area and there are plans for at least one such initiative in Utah. Generous contributions from all over the country have allowed us to establish an endowed memorial in Brady’s name to continue the influence of his story. These contributions will also support an endowed lecture series in Brady’s name, which has been established and approved by the BYU-Idaho Board of Trustees.

I miss Brady very much. I remember with fondness building bases and battling with our G.I. Joe action figures, waking up early Saturday morning to watch the Bugs Bunny and Tweety Show together, and climbing trees together. I always looked up to Brady and felt his influence was always a hero. As his story is told, others are hearing about the hero whom I was privileged enough to call brother.

September 11th wasn’t the first day that this country has known heroes, nor has it been the last. We should take this time to pay tribute to the heroes of September 11th, but all of the heroes that have fought for freedom. Thousands of men and women are working today to protect us from evil. Some men and women who perish that day are not heroes because of how they died; they are heroes because of how they lived. Heroes are the men and women who have put themselves in harm’s way for the cause of democracy and freedom since long before September 11, 2001. Heroes are the men and women who serve each day to protect people they will never know. Heroes are the men and women who spend more waking hours caring for and about others than they do for themselves. Let us remember the heroes of September 11, 2001, along with the heroes who stood before, who stand now, and who are preparing to stand against evil. Because it is to all of you who have served this country, that we owe our children for the service of America, and are currently serving that we, the American people, pay tribute today this day; the fire fighters, the police officers, the emergency medical crews, and the soldiers of freedom.

If the mark of a hero is one that cares about and fights for others, I hope that the destruction of September 11th has facilitated the construction of tomorrow’s heroes. Wouldn’t the greatest honor that we could pay to those that perished be if we could follow those example and give of ourselves as they did? We may not be called upon to die for this country, but we are all called upon to live with integrity and courage. We may not have become martyrs, but this country could use more doers.

Tens of thousands have given their time and talents and thousands have given their lives for America; this one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. To be one nation, we need to be one state, one neighborhood, one community. Let us rededicate ourselves as we did after September 11th, to being Americans. Never in my life before September 11th, had I seen such a display and act of patriotism. We were frailer, we were more patient, and we looked out for each other. I wish that those who died that day could have seen the America that we became strong and united. We showed forth the America that we always should have been; the America that those men and women sacrificed their lives for. Let us honor all of the heroes of America by not letting their sacrifices be in vain. Let us continue their legacies. Let us live for what they died for The United States of America.

RECOGNITION OF THE ENTERPRISE FOUNDATION’S 20TH ANNIVERSARY

- Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize The Enterprise Foundation as it celebrates its 20th year of building America’s communities and creating opportunities for low-income people across America.

The Enterprise Foundation was founded in 1982 by renowned developer James Rouse and his wife, Patty, who were inspired by the commitment of members of the Church of the Saviour in Washington, D.C. to create safe housing in one of the most challenged neighborhoods in the District.

More than 65,000 hours of volunteer time and $500,000 in gifts were invested to clean out rats and garbage and to repair, paint and correct more than 940 housing code violations to create these first 90 apartments affordable to low-income families.

Since that humble start, Enterprise has grown to become a national nonprofit with offices in 16 cities, five subsidiaries and a staff of more than 450. Enterprise works with private sector and public partners through a network of more than 2,200 community-based organizations in 820 U.S. locations to provide affordable housing, safer streets and access to jobs and quality child care.

Since 1982, The Enterprise Foundation has raised and committed more than $3.9 billion in equity, loans and grants to build or renovate more than 132,000 homes affordable to low- and very low-income people, more than $4.0 billion in total development. Enterprise has partnered with more than 170 corporate investors and more than 580 nonprofit and for-profit developers to provide affordable homes for families, the elderly and people with special needs.

Enterprise’s job training and placement programs have helped more than 32,000 low-income residents qualify for employment. More than 4,500 children have benefited from the Home-Based Child Care Program. Enterprise Child Care has awarded more than $4.5 million in grants and loans since 1999.

My own State of Maryland has benefited greatly from the work of the Enterprise Foundation. I have personally seen the results of the Enterprise Foundation’s work in the Druid Heights, Lauraville and Garrison/Forest Park neighborhoods in Baltimore. Their proactive approach to neighborhood redevelopment is what makes Enterprise an asset in Maryland, and in the Nation.

Today I ask that we pay tribute to Mr. Rouse’s legacy and to the profound impact that The Enterprise Foundation has had on the lives of thousands of low-income Americans and their communities.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS
By Mr. BAYH (for himself and Mr. LUGAR)
S. 2952. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to extend the Lewis and Clark National Historic Trail; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BAYH. Mr. President, next year America will celebrate the bicentennial of the cross-country expedition of Meriwether Lewis and William Clark.

With what became known as the Corps of Discovery, Lewis and Clark embarked on an epic journey to chart an overland route to the Pacific Ocean, developing a record of its native people and resources. They catalogued varieties of never before seen plant and animal life. In fact, their expedition is seen as a critical precursor to America’s great movement to the West.

Less known, but of no less significance to the expedition, are the historic events that occurred at the outset of the journey. I rise today, with my colleague from Indiana, Senator LUGAR, to introduce legislation that recognizes the importance of these events by adding the Falls of the Ohio, in Clarksville, IN, that Meriwether Lewis and William Clark met and formed their famous partnership. It was there that they spent 12 days recruiting and enlisting men for their Western expedition, which would become the Corps of Discovery.

One of the many accounts of the formation of the Corps of Discovery is included in historian Stephen E. Ambrose’s work on the expedition, Undaunted Courage. Mr. Ambrose writes that: “At the foot of the rapids on the north bank, was Clarksville, Indiana Territory. . . . On October 15, Lewis hired local pilots, who took the boat and pirogues into the dangerous but short passage on the north bank. Safely through, Lewis tied up at Clarksville and set off to meet his partner.”

“When they shook hands, the Lewis and Clark expedition began.”

Mr. Ambrose continues: “Word has spread up and down the Ohio, and inland, and young men longing for adventure and ambitious for a piece of land of their own set out for Clarksville to sign up. . . . Those selected were sworn into the army in solemn ceremony, in the presence of General Clark, and the Corps of Discovery was born.”

The National Park Service agreed with Mr. Ambrose and other historians that the events at the Falls of the Ohio are of important historical significance. The National Park Service certified the Falls of the Ohio State Park as an official site associated with the Lewis and Clark National Historic Trail.

My legislation would simply reiterate the Park Service’s conclusion that the events at the Falls of the Ohio are a significant part of the history of the Lewis and Clark expedition and would include the Falls of the Ohio among the areas designated for recognition on the Lewis and Clark National Historic Trail.
The National Council of the Lewis and Clark Bicentennial designated the Falls of the Ohio as the second signature event of the bicentennial, which will be held in October 2003. The Falls of the Ohio is an integral part of the Lewis and Clark story, which will be uniquely celebrated next year. It is my hope that we can move quickly to pass this legislation to insure that the recognition occurs in time for the much anticipated 200th anniversary of the trail. That way the citizens of Clarksville and Louisville can honor and preserve their local heritage and all students of history can fully follow in the footsteps of Lewis and Clark and experience the birth of the Corps of Discovery at the Falls of the Ohio.

By Mr. CAMPBELL:

S. 2953. A bill to redesignate the Colonnade Center in Denver, Colorado, as the “Cesar E. Chavez Memorial Building”; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to name the Federal building located at 1244 Speer Boulevard, Denver, Colorado, shall be known and designated as the “Cesar E. Chavez Memorial Building.”

Cesar E. Chavez was an ordinary American who left behind an extraordinary legacy of commitment and accomplishment.

Born on March 31, 1927 in Yuma Arizona on a farm his grandfather homesteaded in the 1880’s, he began his life as a migrant farm worker at the age of 10 when the family lost the farm during the Great Depression. Those were desperate years for the Chavez family as they joined the thousands of displaced people who were forced to migrate throughout the country to labor in the fields and vineyards.

Motivated by the poverty and harsh working conditions, he began to follow his dream of establishing an organization dedicated to helping these farm workers. In 1962 he founded the National Farm Workers Association which would eventually evolve into the United Farm Workers of America.

Over the next three decades with an unwavering commitment to democratic principals and a philosophy of non-violence he struggled to secure a living wage, health benefits and safe working conditions. He was an advocate for and a member of the most exploited work force in our country, that they might enjoy the basic protections and workers right to which all Americans aspire.

In 1945, at the age of 18 Cesar Chavez joined the U.S. Navy and served his country for two years. He was the recipient of the Martin Luther King Jr. Peace Prize as well as the Presidential medal of Freedom, the highest award this country can bestow upon a civilian.

Chavez’s efforts brought dignity and respect to this country’s farm workers and in doing so became a hero, role model and inspiration to people engaged in human rights struggles throughout the world.

The naming of this building will keep alive the memory of his sacrifice and commitment for the millions of people whose lives he touched.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2963

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION OF CESAR E. CHAVEZ MEMORIAL BUILDING.

The building known as the Colonnade Center, located at 1244 Speer Boulevard, Denver, Colorado, shall be known and designated as the “Cesar E. Chavez Memorial Building”.

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the building referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the Cesar E. Chavez Memorial Building.

By Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. DAYTON):

S. 2954. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to permit States and local educational agencies to obtain a waiver of certain testing requirements, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, as millions of public school students and teachers around the country settle into the new school year, I am introducing a bill that would help to return a measure of local control that was taken from school districts and State educational agencies with the enactment of the No Child Left Behind Act earlier this year.

I am pleased to be joined in this effort by Senators Jeffords, Wellstone, Leahy, and Dayton.

I strongly support maintaining local control over decisions affecting our children’s day-to-day classroom experiences. I also believe that the Federal Government has an important role to play in supporting our State educational agencies and local school districts as they carry out one of their most important responsibilities, the education of our children.

I voted against the recently-enacted No Child Left Behind Act in large part because of the new annual testing mandate for students in grades 3-8. While I agree that there should be a strong accountability system in place to ensure that public school students are making progress, I strongly oppose over-testing students in our public schools. I agree that some tests are needed to ensure that our children are keeping pace, but taking time to test students has to take a back seat to taking the time to teach students in the first place.

I have heard a lot about these new annual tests from the people of Wisconsin, and their response has been almost universally negative. My constituents are concerned about the additional layer of testing for many reasons, including the cost of developing and implementing these tests, the loss of teaching time every year to prepare for and take the tests, and the extra pressure that the tests will place on adults and teachers, schools, and school districts.

I share my constituents’ concerns about this new Federal mandate. I find it interesting that proponents of the No Child Left Behind Act say that it will return more control to the States and local school districts. In my view, however, this massive new Federal testing mandate runs counter to the idea of local control.

Many States and local school districts around the country, including Wisconsin, already have comprehensive testing programs in place. The Federal Government should leave decisions about the frequency of using high quality assessments to measure and improve student achievement up to the States and local school districts that bear the responsibility for educating our children. Every State and every school district is different. A uniform testing policy may not be the best approach.

I have heard from many education professionals in my state that this new testing requirement is a waste of money and a waste of time. These people are dedicated professionals who are committed to educating Wisconsin’s children, and they don’t oppose testing. I think we can all agree that testing has its place. What they oppose is the magnitude of testing that is required by this law.

Beginning in the 2005-2006 school year, the No Child Left Behind Act will pile more tests on our Nation’s public school students. And of course, when these tests are piled on students, they burden our teachers as well, because teachers must spend more and more time preparing students to take these exams.

This kind of teaching, sometimes called “teaching to the test,” is becoming more and more prevalent in our schools and is increasingly common. The dedicated teachers in our classrooms will now be constrained by teaching to yet more tests, instead of being able to use their own judgment about what subject areas the class needs to spend extra time studying. This additional testing time could also reduce the opportunity for teachers to create and implement innovative learning experiences for their students.

Teachers in my State are concerned about the amount of time that they will have to spend preparing their students to take the tests and administering the tests. They are concerned that these additional tests will disrupt the flow of education in their classrooms. One teacher said the preparation for the tests Wisconsin already requires in grades 3, 4, 8, and 10 can take up to a month, and the administration of the test takes another week. That is five weeks out of the school year. And now the Federal Government is requiring teachers to take a huge chunk out of instruction time each year in grades 3-8. In my view, and in the view of the people of my State, this time can be better spent on regular classroom instruction.

The legislation that I introduce today, the Student Testing Flexibility Act of 2002, would give State educational agencies, SEAs, and local educational agencies, LEAs, that have demonstrated academic success the flexibility to apply to waive the new annual testing requirements in the No Child Left Behind Act. SEAs and LEAs with waivers would still be required to administer high quality tests to students, reading language arts and mathematics at least once in grades 3-5, 6-9, and 10-12 as required under the law.

This bill would allow SEAs and LEAs that meet the same specific accountability standards outlined for State-level excellence under the State Academic Achievement Award Program to apply to the Secretary of Education for a waiver from the new annual reading or language arts and mathematics tests in grades 3-8. The waiver would be for a period of three years and would be renewable, so long as the SEA or LEA met the criteria.

To qualify for the waiver, the SEA or LEA must have significantly closed the achievement gap between a number of subgroups of students as required under Title I, or must have exceeded their adequate yearly progress, AYP, goals for two or more consecutive years. The bill would require the Secretary to give waivers to SEAs and LEAs that meet these criteria and apply for the waiver. LEAs in states that have waivers would not be required to apply for a separate waiver.

The Federal Government should not impose an additional layer of testing on states that are succeeding in meeting or exceeding their AYP goals or on closing the achievement gap. Instead, we should allow those States that have demonstrated academic success to use their share of Federal testing money to help those schools that need it the most.

The bill I introduce today would do just that by allowing States with waivers to retain their share of the Federal funding appropriated to develop and implement the new annual tests. These important dollars would be used for activities that these states deem appropriate for improving student achievement at individual public elementary and secondary schools that have failed to make AYP.

I am pleased that this legislation is supported by the National PTA, the National Association of Elementary School Principals, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, the Wisconsin Education Association Council, the Wisconsin Association of School Boards, the Milwaukee Teachers’ Education Association, and the Wisconsin School Administrators Association, which includes the Association of Wisconsin School Administrators, the Wisconsin Association of School District Administrators, the Wisconsin Association of School Business Officials, and the Wisconsin Council for Administrators of Special Services.

While this bill focuses on the over-testing of students in our public schools, I would like to note that my constituents have raised a number of other concerns about the No Child Left Behind Act that I hope will be addressed by Congress. In particular, many of my constituents are concerned about the new adequate yearly progress requirements and about finding the funding necessary to implement all of the provisions of this new law. I hope that my bill, the Student Testing Flexibility Act, will help to focus attention on the perhaps unintended consequences that the ongoing implementation of the No Child Left Behind Act will have for States, school districts, and individual schools, teachers, and students.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 2964

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Student Testing Flexibility Act of 2002”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS. Congress finds that—

(1) State and local governments bear the majority of the cost and responsibility of educating public elementary school and secondary school students;

(2) State and local governments often struggle to find adequate funding to provide basic educational services;

(3) the Federal Government has not provided its share of funding for numerous federally mandated elementary and secondary education programs;

(4) underfunding Federal education mandates increase existing financial pressures on States and local educational agencies;

(5) the cost to States and local educational agencies to implement the annual student academic assessments required under section 1111(b)(3)(C)(vii) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)(3)(C)) remains uncertain;

(6) public elementary school and secondary school students take numerous tests each year, from classroom quizzes and exams to standardized other tests required by the Federal Government, State educational agencies, or local educational agencies;

(7) multiple measures of student academic achievement provide a more accurate picture of a student’s strengths and weaknesses than does a single score on a high-stakes test; and

(8) the frequency of the use of high quality assessments as a tool to measure and increase student achievement should be decided by State educational agencies and local educational agencies.

SEC. 3. WAIVER AUTHORITY.

Section 1111(b)(3) of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 6311(b)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(E) WAIVER AUTHORITY.—

“(i) STATES.—Upon application by a State educational agency, the Secretary shall waive the requirements of subparagraph (C)(vii) for a State if the State educational agency demonstrates that the State—

“(I) significantly closed the achievement gap between the groups of students described in paragraph (2); or “(II) exceeded the State’s adequate yearly progress, consistent with paragraph (2), for 2 or more consecutive years.

“(ii) LOCAL EDUCATIONAL AGENCIES.—Upon application of a local educational agency located in a State that does not receive a waiver under clause (i), the Secretary shall waive the application of the requirements of subparagraph (C)(vii) for the local educational agency, if the local educational agency demonstrates that the local educational agency—

“(I) significantly closed the achievement gap between the groups of students described in paragraph (2); or “(II) exceeded the local educational agency’s adequate yearly progress, consistent with paragraph (2), for 2 or more consecutive years.

“(iii) PERIOD OF WAIVER.—A waiver under clause (i) or (ii) shall be for a period of 3 years and may be renewed for subsequent 3-year periods.

“(iv) UTILIZATION OF CERTAIN FEDERAL FUNDS.—

“(I) PERMISSIVE USES.—Subject to subclause (II), a State or local educational agency granted a waiver under clause (i) or (ii) shall use funds, that are awarded to the State or local educational agency, respectively, under this Act for the development and implementation of annual assessments under subparagraph (C)(vii), to carry out educational activities of the educational agency or local educational agency, respectively, that fail to make adequate yearly progress, consistent with paragraph (2), for 2 or more consecutive years.

“(II) NONPERMISSIVE USE OF FUNDS.—A State or local educational agency granted a waiver under clause (i) or (ii) shall not use funds, that are awarded to the State or local educational agency, respectively, under this Act for the development and implementation of annual assessments under subparagraph (C)(vii), to pay a student’s cost of tuition, room, board, or fees at a private school.”.

By Mr. BROWNBACK (for himself and Mr. GREGG):

S. 2955. A bill to improve data collection and dissemination, and treatments and research relating to cancer, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, today, I am proud to join with the ranking member of the Senate HELP Committee, Mr. HARKIN, in introducing the National Cancer Act of 2002. We believe that this is the proverbial first step of the thousand mile journey toward the goal of making cancer death rare by the year 2015.

First, I would be remiss if I failed to point out that we are not the first in the Senate to drop a cancer bill. Indeed, fired the first salvo in our Na- tion’s cancer war with the passage of the National Cancer Insti- tute Act back in 1937. This law, established the National Cancer Institute, (NCI), within the public health service and directed the Surgeon General to promote cancer research and control.

In 1971, responding to the call of President Nixon, Congress officially declared war on cancer with the passage of the National Cancer Act of 1971. This law established the Director of the Na- tional Cancer Institute as one of two Presidential appointment posts within all of the National Institutes of Health. In addition, the ’71 Act gave the Director the ability to bypass the normal budget process and submit the NCI budget directly to the President, a privilege that is entirely unique throughout the Executive Branch. With our declaration of war our Nation saw the establishment of the Presi- dent’s Cancer Panel, the National Can- cer Advisory Board, the International Cancer Data Bank, and the first cancer center. The stated goal of the country that had just landed a man on the moon was to cure cancer within a decade.

Since 1971, we have seen 31 years pass, six Presidents sworn in, 15 ses- sions of Congress, and ten different bills signed into law with the goal of ending the prolonged war on cancer. This year over half a million Ameri- cans will die from cancer. It is for them, and for the 1.2 million Ameri- cans who will be diagnosed with can- cer, and for the millions of cancer sur- vivors who are living beyond this dis- ease that we introduce this bill today. Ours is the time is history when we must reinvigorate the battle. Thanks to advances in treatment and increased screening and early detection, between 1990 and 1997, for the first time in his- tory, the number of cancer deaths and diagnoses have declined. However, to whom much is given, much is expected. The National Cancer Act of 2002, an- swers the call and lays out a battle plan for the next, and hopefully final attack in the war on cancer.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I am very pleased this morning to introduce this bill with my good friend Senator BROWNBACK. Our bill, the National Can- cer Act of 2002, is an important step forward in making survivorship of can- cer the rule in this Nation and cancer mortality the rare exception. I want to thank our good friends in the cancer and pain care communities who have provided critical feedback during the development of the Act. Our bill will: Enhance coordination between State registries and between those registries and local control and cancer search efforts, with a focus on develop- ing interoperability and compatible hardware/software infrastructure. Re- authorize the successful CDC Breast and Cervical Cancer screening pro- gram, with expansion encouraged for colorectal cancer screening. Improve NIH efforts in the area of pain and palliative care research and dissemination of information for patients and provid- ers. Expand access for patients to experimental therapies, both in NIH-funded clinical trials, privately-funded manufacturer trials and access for ter- minal patients to therapies that have not yet been approved by FBA. Encour- age Congress and the Administration to address several of the most signifi- cant cancer-related problems in the Medicare system.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on the HELP Committee to move this important piece of legisla- tion this year. I know that we all share the agenda of combating this public health problem facing so many Ameri- cans.

By Mr. FEINGOLD:

S. 2956. A bill to require the Sec- retary of Homeland Security to submit a semi-annual report to Congress re- garding the effectiveness with which information is exchanged between the Department of Homeland Security, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and State and local law enforcement au- thorities; to the Committee on the Ju- diciary.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, first let me commend the Chairman and Ranking Member of the Governmental Affairs Committee for all of their ef- forts in crafting the Homeland Secu- rity measure before the Senate today.

As I have listened to the various pro- posals to create a Department of Homeland Security one of my primary concerns is what are we going to do to improve the role of the FBI as an intel- ligence gathering agency. I rise today to introduce legislation on this matter, and I send a copy of this legislation to the desk.

I also rise to offer the same legisla- tion as an amendment to the Homeland Security bill, and I send a copy of the amendment to the desk.

The need for this amendment is clear. We have heard, over and over again, that one of the chief purposes of the new Department is to enable one agency to serve as a central clearing- house for all terrorism related infor- mation, regardless of the source. For the consumers of intelligence informa- tion, like the Department of Homeland Security, it should not matter whether the information comes from a CIA agent in the Middle East, an FBI agent listening to a wire-tap from overseas or a cop on a street corner in New York City.

I am concerned that we have not done enough to insure that the rele- vant information gathered by the FBI is passed on to those who can analyze it and evaluate a potential threat against our Nation’s safety. Simply put, I wonder about what type of infor- mation the FBI will be providing to the new Department and what the new De- partment will do with the information. I am concerned about the lack of poli- cies and procedures in place for the new Department to request follow-up investigation from the FBI and local law enforcement.

I have offered this amendment, enti- tled the Intelligence Analysis Reporting Act of 2002, to assist Congress in determining if the division of inves- tigative responsibilities between the Department of Homeland Security and the FBI is working effectively. This amendment will provide Congress with the information necessary to deter- mine if the FBI is taking competent steps to provide information to the new Department and to respond to intel- ligence requests in a useful manner.

Presently, the FBI does not have the technological nor personnel capacity to provide information to the Depart- ment of Homeland Security or to any other intelligence agency in a highly useful form. This is because criminal investigations, which involve grand jury testimony, witness interviews and wire-taps, are not conducive to the standards of intelligence gathering which require some sifting of the material before it is disseminated to con- sumers like a Department of Homeland Security.

This amendment would require the new Department to report to Congress on policies and procedures imple- mented to insure that it can ade- quately request information and inves- tigation from the FBI and local law en- forcement. In addition, it requires the Department of Homeland Security to report on what types of intelligence in- formation have been turned over such as summary interviews, transcripts and warrants from the FBI and other law enforcement agencies.

I firmly believe that no matter how many agencies are moved into a De- partment of Homeland Security or how much money we spend on putting up a new building, the only test of our suc- cess will be how effective we are in pro- tecting ourselves against future threats. This amendment will allow us to determine if the critical intelligence information we need to prevent a pos- sible attack is being provided to people at the Department of Homeland Secu- rity who can act on it promptly and ef- fectively.

I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

By Mr. JOHNSON:

S. 2963: A bill to reform the United States Army Corps of Engineers; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2963

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Rep- resentatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,
SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Corps of Engineers Reform Act of 2002.’’

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.
In this Act:
(1) CORPS.—The term ‘‘Corps’’ means the Corps of Engineers.
(2) SECRETARY.—The term ‘‘Secretary’’ means the Administrator.

SEC. 3. INLAND WATERWAY REFORM.
(a) CONSTRUCTION.—Section 102(a) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2212(a)) is amended—
(1) in the first sentence, by striking ‘‘One-half of the costs of construction’’ and inserting ‘‘Forty-five percent of the costs of construction’’;
(2) in the second sentence and inserting—
‘‘Forty-five percent of those costs shall be paid only from amounts appropriated from the Inland Waterways Trust Fund.’’
(b) OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE.—Section 102 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2212) is amended by striking subsections (b) and (c) and inserting the following:
‘‘(b) OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE.—
(A) GENERAL FUND.—In the case of a project described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) with respect to which the cost of operation and maintenance is less than or equal to 1 cent per ton mile, or in the case of the portion of the project authorized by section 844 that is allocated to inland navigation,
(i) the Federal share of the cost of operation and maintenance shall be 100 percent in the case of—
(I) a project described in paragraph (1) or (2) of section 844;
(II) the portion of the project authorized by section 844 that is allocated to inland navigation;
(ii) FIFTY PERCENT OF THE COST OF CONSTRUCTION.—In the case of a project described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) with respect to which the cost of construction is greater than 1 but less than or equal to 10 cents per ton mile—
(I) 45 percent of the Federal share under paragraph (1) shall be paid only from amounts appropriated from the general fund of the Treasury;
(II) 55 percent of the Federal share under paragraph (1) shall be paid only from amounts appropriated from the general fund of the Treasury; and
(III) 55 percent of the Federal share under paragraph (1) shall be paid only from amounts appropriated from the Inland Waterways Trust Fund.
(B) INLAND WATERWAYS TRUST FUND.—In the case of a project described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) with respect to which the cost of operation and maintenance is less than or equal to 1 cent per ton mile, 100 percent of the Federal share under paragraph (1) shall be paid only from amounts appropriated from the general fund of the Treasury; and
(II) 55 percent of the Federal share under paragraph (1) shall be paid only from amounts appropriated from the Inland Waterways Trust Fund.’’

SEC. 4. INDEPENDENT REVIEW.
(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:
(1) AFFECTED STATE.—The term ‘‘affected State’’, with respect to a water resources project, means a State or portion of a State that—
(A) is located, at least partially, within the drainage basin in which the project is carried out; and
(B) would be economically or environmentally affected as a result of the project.
(2) DIRECTOR.—The term ‘‘Director’’ means the Director of Independent Review appointed under section (1).
(b) PROJECTS SUBJECT TO INDEPENDENT REVIEW.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall ensure that each draft feasibility report, draft general reevaluation report, and draft environmental impact statement for each water resources project described in paragraph (2) is subject to review by an independent panel of experts established under this section.
(2) PROJECTS SUBJECT TO REVIEW.—A water resources project described in paragraph (2) is—
(A) a water resources project that is to be reviewed under subsection (f) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2283(a)), as amended;
(B) an amendment to a project; or
(C) a project that the Secretary determines under paragraph (3) of the proposed project is controversial.
(3) WRITTEN REQUESTS.—Not later than 30 days after the date on which the Secretary receives a written request from an interested party, or on the initiative of the Secretary, the Director shall determine whether a water resources project is controversial.
(c) DIRECTOR OF INDEPENDENT REVIEW.—
(1) APPOINTMENT.—The Secretary shall appoint the Director from among individuals who are distinguished experts in biology, hydrology, engineering, economics, or another discipline relating to water resources management.
(2) QUALIFICATIONS.—The Secretary shall select the Director from among individuals who are distinguished experts in biology, hydrology, engineering, economics, or another discipline relating to water resources management.
(d) LIMITATION ON APPOINTMENTS.—The Army Inspector General shall not appoint an individual to serve as the Director if the individual has a financial interest in or close professional association with any entity with a strong financial interest in a water resources project, that, on the date of appointment of the Director, is—
(A) under construction;
(B) in the preconstruction engineering and design phase; or
(C) under feasibility or reconnaissance study by the Corps.
(3) TERMS.—
(A) IN GENERAL.—The term of a Director appointed under this subsection shall be 6 years.
(B) TERM LIMIT.—An individual may serve as the Director for not more than 2 consecutive terms.
(4) DUTIES.—The Director shall—
(A) establish a panel of experts to review each water resources project that is subject to review under subsection (b); and
(B) submit to the Congress the recommendations of the panel.
(e) ESTABLISHMENT OF PANELS.—The Director shall establish a panel of experts to review each water resources project that is subject to review under subsection (b).
(f) MEMBERSHIP.—A panel of experts established under this section for a water resources project under this section, the panel shall complete each required review of the project and all other duties of the panel relating to the project.
(g) FINAL ISSUANCE OF REPORTS AND STATEMENTS.—After completing a final feasibility report, final general reevaluation report, or final environmental impact statement for a water resources project, the Secretary shall—
(1) take into consideration any recommendations contained in the report described in subsection (e)(3) for the water resources project; and
(2) prepare and include in the final feasibility report, final general reevaluation report, or final environmental impact statement—
(A) the report of the panel; and
(B) any recommendations of the panel not adopted by the Secretary, a written explanation of the reasons why the recommendations were not adopted.
(h) COSTS.—The cost of conducting a review of a water resources project under this section—
(1) shall not exceed $250,000;
(2) shall be considered to be part of the total cost of the project; and
(3) shall be a Federal expense.
(i) APPLICABILITY OF FEDERAL ADVISORY COMMITTEE ACT.—The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall apply to a panel of experts established under this section.

SEC. 5. MITIGATION.
(a) CONCURRENT MITIGATION.—Section 906(a) of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2283(a)) is amended—
(1) by striking ‘‘(a)(1) In the case’’ and inserting the following:
‘‘(a)(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case’’;
(2) in paragraph (1), by indenting subparagraphs (A) and (B) appropriately;
(3) in paragraph (2), by striking ‘‘For the purposes’’ and inserting the following:
‘‘(2) COMMENCEMENT OF CONSTRUCTION.—For the purposes’’; and
(4) by inserting after paragraph (1) the following:

The Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall apply to a panel of experts established under this section.
The National Aquatic Invasive Species Act of 2002 (NAISA)

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, I would like to express my strong support for the National Acquisitive Invasive Species Act of 2002 (NAISA).

Last year, I introduced S. 1034, the Great Lakes Ecosystem Protection Act, which sought to curb the influx of invasive species into the Great Lakes. This is an immense task, as more than 87 nonindigenous aquatic species have been accidentally introduced into the Great Lakes in the last 80 years. I am proud to say that this bill had strong bipartisan support with 12 Great Lakes Senators as original cosponsors.

Today, I am proud to join Senator Levin as an original cosponsor of NAISA which will provide a national strategy for preventing invasive species from being introduced in the Great Lakes and our Nation’s waters. I am also pleased that NAISA incorporates the idea of the Great Lakes Ecology Protection Act in formulating a national standard.

Invasive species have had a devastating economic and ecological impact on the Great Lakes ecosystem and already damaged the Great Lakes in a number of ways. They have destroyed thousands of fish and threatened our clean drinking water. For example, Lake Michigan once housed the largest self-reproducing lake trout fishery in the entire world. The invasive sea lamprey, which was introduced from ballast water almost 80 years ago, has contributed greatly to the decline of lake trout and whitefish in the Great Lakes by feeding on and killing native trout species.

Today, lake trout must be stocked because they cannot naturally reproduce in the lake. Many Great Lakes states have had to place severe restrictions on catching yellow perch because invasive species such as the zebra mussel disrupt the Great Lakes’ ecosystem and compete with yellow perch for food. The zebra mussel also increase water clarity, which may be making it easier for predators to prey upon the yellow perch. Moreover, tiny organisms like zooplankton that help from the base of the Great Lakes food chain, have declined due to consumption by exploding populations of zebra mussels.

We have made progress on preventing the spread of invasive species, but we have not yet solved this problem. NAISA will create a national ballast water management program to prevent the introduction of invasive species into our waters, as well as, encourage the development of new ballast treatment technology to treat invasive species. It will also greatly increase research funding for these treatment and prevention technologies, and provide necessary funding and resources for invasive species rapid response plans. In addition, the bill will increase education to recreational boaters and the general public on how to prevent the spread of invasive species.
As Members of the U.S. Congress, we have a responsibility to share in the stewardship of our Nation’s natural resources. As a Great Lakes Senator, I feel a particularly strong responsibility to protect a resource that is not only a source of life-saving drinking water for more than 30 million people in the Great Lakes, but is vital to Michigan’s economy and environment. I am proud to support a bill that will provide innovative solutions and necessary resources to this long-standing environmental problem, and will also protect water resources for the enjoyment and benefit of future generations of Americans.

By Mr. KENNEDY (for himself, Mr. FRIST, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. HARKIN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. BOND, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. REID, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. DODD, Mrs. CLINTON, Mr. HOLLINGS, and Mr. EDWARDS):

S. 2965. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to improve the quality of care for cancer, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, it is an honor to join my distinguished colleagues, Senators FRIST, HARKIN, HUTCHISON, BIDEN, LANDRIEU, REID, BINGAMAN, DODD, CLINTON, HOLLINGS, and EDWARDS in introducing the “Quality of Care for Individuals with Cancer Act.”

The goal of this important bipartisan legislation is to help close the gap between what modern medicine can do today to reduce cancer deaths, and the actual medical care that cancer patients receive.

In the past two decades, the nation has made extraordinary progress in treating and curing cancer. In fact, we have made so much progress that our greatest challenges in health care today is taking the scientific breakthroughs in the laboratory and bringing them to the bedside of the patient.

Too often, we cannot say that American cancer patients are receiving the best possible care. Our goal is to match the nation’s excellence in cancer research with state-of-the-art excellence in cancer care.

The reward will be seeing a young mother with breast cancer live to be a grandmother, enable a toddler with leukemia grow up to be President, or a father win the Tour de France for a fourth time.

Many examples of inadequate care could be cited. For example, only a third of all Americans over age fifty have had proper colorectal cancer screenings in the last two years. Clearly, there are far too many needless and correctable failures in our current system of cancer care.

By creating uniform ways to measure the quality of care, and establishing new, improved and better coordinated ways to monitor care, we can do more to see that cancer patients receive state-of-the-art care, no matter where they live.

In response to the needs of cancer survivors, and with the help of the Lance Armstrong Foundation, this bipartisan bill will also establish new forums and mechanisms to ensure the availability and delivery of services to cancer patients and their families.

Just as importantly, we want to make the best cancer care easier for patients to find and will improve the networking of the doctors and other providers to whom patients go for their care.

Many of us know family members and friends suffering from cancer. We are all too familiar with the feelings of shock, denial, hope, fear, and vulnerability that comes when a loved one, especially a child, is found to have cancer.

Dealing with the challenges is never an easy task for any family. But the continuing breakthroughs in medical research make clear that much more can be done to save and enhance the lives of cancer patients. We need to do all we can to make this care available and affordable.

Make no mistake about it, we have come a long way. But much more must be done to improve the lives of cancer patients.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senators KENNEDY, HUTCHISON, and others in introducing the “Quality of Care for Individuals with Cancer Act”. This bill represents our next step in the battle against cancer. It is crucially important that we move to timely, quality health care.

Cancer is the second leading cause of death among Americans, claiming one life each minute. Most of us know someone who has cancer, or who has died from cancer. One out of every four Americans will die from this terrible disease. We have done a tremendous job investing in cancer research in this country. We must now make sure the knowledge and progress investments are being applied, and that research advancements are translated into improved patient care.

If you have cancer, the quality of care you receive should not be affected by where you live, where you get your care, or whether you have health insurance coverage. You should have access to quality care whether you have just been diagnosed with cancer, are a cancer survivor, or are dying from this disease. The care you receive should take the patient’s values and concerns into account and should be provided in a culturally competent manner.

Based on a recent Institute of Medicine report, “Improving Quality Cancer Care”, this bill would coordinate the development and collection of information on quality cancer care using quality measures that examine care from diagnosis through the end-of-life. Clearly, a better system is needed to rapidly integrate key results of ongoing research with quality implications and ensure that this is transferred into daily medical practice.

Individuals with cancer receive care from a number of specialists during the course of their cancer, and the responsibility for navigating through the system often rests on the individual. Comprehensible and ongoing communication among health care providers is essential to coordinated care. There are two demonstration projects authorized by this legislation to help improve the coordination of care. One demonstration project provides individual cancer care managers to better coordinate care within the health care system or to help get patients into the system. The second attempts to improve coordination between providers and hospitals so that individuals with cancer receive seamless care throughout their course of treatment.

While receiving care, some individuals with cancer do not receive care known to be effective for their condition, such as the delivery of palliative care. Many of the symptoms associated with cancer and its treatment could be alleviated if currently available symptom control measures and other aspects of palliative care were more widely used. This bill authorizes demonstration projects that will provide care at any stage of cancer care and train health care providers in symptom management. The legislation also seeks to help provide better pain and other symptom relief so that individuals can manage the consequences of their disease or treatment.

For the nine million Americans living with cancer, this bill will provide hope in improving the quality of life for individuals with cancer by translating what is already known to be effective care to all individuals with cancer.

For those areas in which we need to investigate, demonstration projects will further our knowledge.

I am pleased to introduce this important legislation, and I look forward to its ultimate enactment into law.

I want to thank my colleagues, Senators KENNEDY, HUTCHISON, and others, for their work on this bill. I ask that the summary, section-by-section, and list of supporting organizations be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the additional material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

QUALITY OF CARE FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH CANCER ACT—KENNEDY-FRIST

Cancer is a dreaded disease and the second leading cause of death. Over the preceding decades much progress has been made on how to detect, treat and cure individuals who have cancer and those who are affected. But too often, the typical standards of care fall short of the best standards of care.

Unfortunately, many cancer patients are getting inappropriate care—too little care, too much care in the form of unnecessary procedures, or the wrong care. Simple screening procedures are underutilized and radical interventions are often needlessly performed. Receiving quality care should not be determined by zip code, or the part of the country where they get their care, or whether or not they have health insurance.
this is not the case, and variations in quality of care can have dire outcomes. A recent study found that women on Medicaid are likely to be diagnosed with cancer at a later stage and have less access to care. Women on Medicaid are more likely to die of breast cancer than women not on Medicaid.

The problem: Even with tremendous advancements in treatment and diagnosis, individuals with cancer are still not receiving quality care. Due to lack of data, the magnitude of inadequate care is not known. Comprehensive data systems do not currently exist with which to measure quality and there is no national cancer care program or system of care within the United States.

Our solution: Collect better information to discover where problems exist and create state-wide plans to address the problems. The bill will draw together Federal agencies and private entities to coordinate the development and collection of information on quality of care. States will receive funds to expand state cancer registries to collect information on quality of care and develop and improve state-wide cancer control programs that address particular needs for each state.

The Problem: Individuals with cancer often have difficulties negotiating through a complex and often confusing process; like other chronically ill, efforts to diagnose and treat cancer are centered on a variety of individual physicians and can be in multiple settings. Coordination of care is often lacking, and the responsibility for navigating through the system often rests on the individual with cancer. Improving coordination can save lives; research has shown that cooperation among pediatric oncologists has resulted in cure rates increases of 30 percent even in the absence of new therapeutics to treat disease.

Our solution: Provide case-managers to guide patients during treatment and improve the coordination of care. Two programs will be developed to help individuals with cancer receive coordinated care. The first provides individuals case-managers to help get patients in the right oncologist or to manage contacts throughout their care and assist with information, referrals, and care coordination within the system. The second program provides for reimbursement for oncology, hospice, and other health care professionals so that individuals with cancer receive seamless care throughout their treatment plan.

The Problem: While research has produced new insights into the causes and cures of cancer, efforts to manage the symptoms of the disease have not kept pace. Palliative care, which includes pain and symptom management and psychosocial care, is an area where individuals with cancer have traditionally received relatively poor quality care. For example, less than half of individuals with cancer who suffer from pain receive adequate relief of their pain, and only a very small percentage of cancer patients are offered referrals for palliative care.

Our solution: Improve palliative care. The bill will develop programs to provide palliative care and train professionals to provide better palliative care for both adults and children.

The Problem: Cancer survivors continue to need quality care while living with, through, and beyond cancer. Although 1.5 million people die each year, the number of individuals increasing, and individuals with cancer survive their disease. The more than nine million cancer survivors in the United States need unique care, including post-treatment programs and support, which are often inadequately addressed by a system focused on diagnosis and disease treatment.

Our Solution: Initiate programs to address the unique needs of survivors. The bill develops post-treatment programs including follow-up care and monitoring to improve the long-term quality of life for cancer survivors, including children.

The Problem: Significant attention is being paid to individuals with cancer in the final stages of their disease. One-half of those diagnosed with cancer die of the disease. Unfortunately, end-of-life medical and social support, which would help maximize the quality of life for these individuals and their families, is often unavailable. This is particularly true for children.

Most physicians do not receive adequate training on the provision of appropriate end-of-life care. A 1998 study found that 90 percent of attending physicians wanted more support in dealing with issues surrounding the death of a patient.

Our solution: Avoid needless pain and suffering by improving end-of-life care. The bill provides grants to coordinate end-of-life cancer care and train health care providers in end-of-life care. Pilot programs will also be developed to address the special needs of children.

QUALITY OF CARE FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH CANCER ACT—KENNEDY-FRIST, SECTION-BY-SECTION SUMMARY

Title I—Measuring the quality of cancer care

Seeks to facilitate a contract to a national consensus organization to investigate the validity of existing quality measures and to then establish recommendations for core sets of quality cancer measures. These recommendations would be published within AHRQ’s annual report and, after four years, the General Accounting Office will evaluate the effectiveness of using private sector health care delivery programs have incorporated these quality measures.

Title II—Enhancing data collection

Serves to reauthorize the CDC’s National Program of Cancer Registries, including new provisions to monitor and evaluate quality cancer care and to increase linkages with various entities to examine disparities in quality cancer care. It also authorizes the CDC’s National Program of Cancer Registries—Cancer Surveillance System to advance the development, expansion, and evaluation of cancer registries and encourage the CDC to work with states to meet North American Association of Cancer Registries certification.

Title III—Monitoring and evaluating the quality of cancer care and outcomes Supports research to measure, evaluate, and improve the quality of cancer care, and funds private/public partnerships to enhance the quality of cancer care; evaluate access to clinical trials; and analyze gaps in and impediments to quality of cancer care. An additional long-range IOM report will provide a follow-up assessment of the bill’s success in achieving its initiatives.

Submitters' Resolution

Senate Concurrent Resolution 140—Recognizing the teams and players of the Negro baseball leagues for their achievements, dedication, sacrifice, and contributions to baseball and the nation

Mr. SANTORUM submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. CON. RES. 140

Whereas even though African-Americans were excluded from playing in the major leagues of baseball with their Caucasian counterparts, the desire of some African-Americans to play baseball could not be repressed; Whereas African-Americans began organizing their own professional baseball teams in 1885; Whereas 6 separate baseball leagues, known as the Negro Baseball Leagues, were organized by African-Americans between 1920 and 1960; Whereas the Negro Baseball Leagues included exceptionally talented players; Whereas Jackie Robinson, whose career began in the Negro Baseball Leagues, was named Rookie of the Year in 1947 and subsequently became the first African-American to play in a National League pennant and a World Series championship; Whereas by achieving success on the baseball field, African-American baseball players helped break down color barriers and integrate African-Americans into all aspects of society in the United States; Whereas during World War II, more than 50 Negro Baseball League players served in the Armed Forces of the United States; Whereas during an era of sexism and gender bias, the Negro Leagues were some of the only places to play baseball for African-Americans; Whereas the Negro Baseball Leagues helped teach the people of the United States that the Negro Leagues were not just a place to play baseball, but a place to live. Make the world more secure and a better place to live.

On page 211, between lines 9 and 10, insert the following:

TITLE VI—STRENGTHENED TEMPORARY FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS FOR THE PROTECTION OF CHEMICAL WEAPONS STORAGE DEPOTS

SEC. 601. ENFORCEMENT OF TEMPORARY FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS.

(a) Improved Enforcement.—The Secretary of Defense shall request the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration to enforce temporary flight restrictions applicable to Department of Defense depots for the storage of lethal chemical agents and munitions.
(b) Assessment of Use of Combat Air Patrols and Exercises.—The Secretary shall assess the effectiveness, in terms of deterrence and capabilities for timely response, of current requirements for carrying out combat air patrols and flight training exercises involving combat aircraft over the depots referred to in such subsection.

SEC. 602. REQUIREMENTS CONCERNING UNAUTHORIZED INCURSIONS INTO RESTRICTED AIRSPACE.

(a) Requirement for Report.—The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall submit a report to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, to ensure that the restrictions are sufficient to provide an opportunity for—

(1) determining that the restrictions described in section 258 of the Transportation Appropriations Act, 2004 (49 U.S.C. 447 note) have been effective in the storage of lethal chemical agents and munitions in violation of temporary flight restrictions applicable to that airspace. The report shall include a discussion of the actions, if any, that the Administrator has taken or is taking in response to or as a result of the incursion.

(b) Time for Report.—The report required under subsection (a) regarding an incursion described in such subsection shall be submitted not later than 30 days after the occurrence of the incursion.

SEC. 603. REVIEW AND REVISION OF TEMPORARY FLIGHT RESTRICTIONS.

(a) Requirement To Review and Revise.—

The Secretary of Defense shall—

(1) review the temporary flight restrictions that are applicable to airspace in the vicinity of Department of Defense depots for the storage of lethal chemical agents and munitions, including altitude and radius restrictions; and

(2) request the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration to revise the restrictions, in coordination with the Secretary, to ensure that the restrictions are sufficient to provide an opportunity for—

(A) timely detection of incursions of aircraft into such airspace; and

(B) planning to protect such agents and munitions effectively from threats associated with the incursions.

(b) Report.—Not later than 120 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the actions taken under subsection (a). The report shall contain the following:

(1) An assessment of the progress made in implementing the requirements of section 602.

(2) The revisions of temporary flight restrictions that have been made or requested in response to the review, together with a description of the restrictions that have been made or requested in response to the review, together with a discussion of the actions, if any, that the Administrator has taken or is taking in response to or as a result of the incursion.

SA 4565. Mr. FEINGOLD submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4471 proposed by Mr. LIEBERMAN to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

(11) any violation of any law, rule, or regulation; and

(12) any violation of any law, rule, or regulation; and

(13) any violation of any law, rule, or regulation; and

(14) conduct, or cause to be conducted, an investigation of an employee or applicant for employment because of any activity protected under this section.”; and

(3) BOARD AND COURT REVIEW OF ACTIONS RELATING TO SECURITY CLEARANCES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 77 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 7702 the following:

“§ 7702a. Actions relating to security clearances

(a) In any appeal relating to the suspension, revocation, or other determination relating to a security clearance, the Merit Systems Protection Board or a court—

(1) shall determine whether section 2302 was violated;

(2) may not order the President to restore a security clearance; and

(3) shall determine whether section 2302 was violated;
"(3) subject to paragraph (2), may issue declaratory relief and any other appropriate relief.

"(b)(1) If, in any final judgment, the Board or a court determines that any suspension, revocation, or other determination was made in violation of section 2302, the affected agency shall conduct a review of that suspension, revocation, or other determination, giving great weight to the Board or court judgment.

"(2) Not later than 30 days after any Board or court judgment declaring that a security clearance suspension, revocation, or other determination was made in violation of section 2302, the affected agency shall issue an unclassified report to the appropriate member committee of Congress (with a classified annex if necessary), detailing the circumstances of the agency's security clearance suspension, revocation, or other determination. A report under this paragraph shall include any proposed agency action with regards to the security clearance.

"(c) An allegation that a security clearance was revoked or suspended in retaliation for a protected disclosure shall receive expedited review by the Office of Special Counsel, the Merit Systems Protection Board, and any reviewing court.

"(B) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 77 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 7702 the following:

"...(7702a. Actions relating to security clearances.)

"(e) EXCLUSION OF AGENCIES BY THE PRESIDENT.—Section 2302(a)(2)(C) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking clause (ii) and inserting the following:

"...((ii) the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Imagery and Mapping Agency, the National Security Agency; and

"...((ii) as determined by the President, any Executive agency or unit thereof of the principal function of which is the conduct of foreign intelligence or counterintelligence activities, if the determination (as that determination relates to a personnel action) is made by an agency action;

"(f) ATTORNEY FEES.—Section 120(m)(1) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "agency involved" and inserting "agency involved or any former or current employee or anyone for whose benefit the case is brought".

"(g) COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—Section 1214(g)(2) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting "compensatory or punitive" after "forfeizable".

"(h) DISCIPLINARY ACTION.—Section 1215 of title 5, United States Code, is amended in subsection (a), by striking paragraph (3) and inserting the following:

"...(3)(A) A final order of the Board may impose disciplinary action consisting of removal, suspension, debarment from Federal employment for a period not to exceed 5 years, suspension, reprimand, or assessment of a civil penalty not to exceed $10,000.

"...(B) In any case in which the Board finds that an employee has committed a prohibited personnel practice under section 2303(b) or (8), the Board shall impose disciplinary action if the Board finds that protected activity was a significant motivating factor in the decision to take, fail to take, or threaten to take or fail to take a personnel action, unless that employee demonstrates, by preponderance of evidence, that the employee would have taken, failed to take, or threatened not to take the same personnel action, in the absence of such protected activity.

"(l) DISCLOSURES TO CONGRESS.—Section 2302 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"...((l)(1) Except as provided under paragraph (2), any review by the Director must be conducted in accordance with paragraphs 2302(b)(8) or subchapter III of chapter 73.

"(j) AUTHORITY OF SPECIAL COUNSEL RELATING TO CIVIL ACTIONS.—Section 2302(b)(8) or subchapter III of chapter 73, as applicable, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"...(8) and (9), the Board shall impose disciplinary action of any final order or decision of the Board shall be filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any petition for review must be filed within 60 days after the date of the Board's decision or final order decision of the Board.

"(B) During the 5-year period beginning on February 1, 2003, a petition for judicial review of any final order or decision of the Board shall be filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any petition for review must be filed within 60 days after the date of the Board's decision or final order decision of the Board.

"(C) During the 5-year period beginning on February 1, 2003, this paragraph shall apply to any final order or decision of the Board....
SEC. 5A567. Mr. LEVIN (for himself and Mr. MCCONNELL, submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to the bill S. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

1. IN GENERAL.—
(A) REQUIREMENT.—Each agreement in Standard Forms 312 and 4141 of the Government and any other nondisclosure policy, form, or agreement that is to be executed by a person connected with the conduct of an intelligence or intelligence-related activity, other than an employee of the United States Government, may contain provisions appropriate to the particular activity for which such document is to be used. Such form or agreement shall, at a minimum, require that the person will not disclose any classified information received in the course of such activity unless specifically authorized to do so by the United States Government. Such nondisclosure forms shall also make it clear that such forms do not bar disclosures to Congress or to an official of an intelligence agency or the Department of Justice that are essential to reporting a substantial violation of law.

2. PERSONS OTHER THAN FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a nondisclosure policy, form, or agreement that is to be executed by a person connected with the conduct of an intelligence or intelligence-related activity, other than an employee of the United States Government, may contain provisions appropriate to the particular activity for which such document is to be used. Such form or agreement shall, at a minimum, require that the person will not disclose any classified information received in the course of such activity unless specifically authorized to do so by the United States Government. Such nondisclosure forms shall also make it clear that such forms do not bar disclosures to Congress or to an official of an intelligence agency or the Department of Justice that are essential to reporting a substantial violation of law.

3. SECURITY SERVICES.—The term "security services" means acts to protect people or property as defined by regulations promulgated by the Attorney General.

4. STATE IDENTIFICATION BUREAU.—The term "State identification bureau" means an entity designated by the Attorney General for the submission and receipt of criminal history record information.

5. CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORD INFORMATION SEARCH.—
(A) SUBMISSION OF FINGERPRINTS.—An authorized employer may submit to the State identification bureau of a participating State fingerprints or other means of positive identification, as determined by the Attorney General, of an employee of such employer for purposes of a criminal history record information search pursuant to this section.

(B) EMPLOYEE RIGHTS.—
(i) PERMISSION.—An authorized employer shall obtain written consent from an employee before submitting to the State identification bureau of a participating State the request to search the criminal history record information of the employee under this section.

(ii) The employee shall provide to the employee confidential access to any information relating to the employee received by the authorized employer pursuant to this section.

(C) PROVIDING INFORMATION TO THE STATE IDENTIFICATION BUREAU.—Upon receipt of a request for a criminal history record information search from an authorized employer pursuant to this section, submitted through the State identification bureau of a participating State, the Attorney General may—

(i) search the appropriate records of the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and

(ii) promptly provide any resulting identification and criminal history record information to the submitting State identification bureau requesting the information.

(D) USE OF INFORMATION.—
(i) IN GENERAL.—Upon receipt of the criminal history record information from the Attorney General by the State identification bureau, the information shall be used only as provided in clause (ii).

(ii) TERMS.—In the case of—

(I) a participating State that has no State standards for qualification to be a private security officer, the State shall notify an authorized employer as to the fact of whether an employee has been convicted of a felony, and shall not issue an individual an individual an individual identification card if the conviction occurred during the previous 10 years, or an offense involving the use or attempted use of physical force against the person of another if the conviction occurred during the previous 10 years; or

(II) a participating State that has State standards for qualification to be a private security officer, the State shall use the information received pursuant to this section in applying the State standards and shall only notify the employer of the results of the application of the State standards.

(E) FREQUENCY OF REQUESTS.—An authorized employer or employer may request a criminal history record information search for an employee only once every 12 months of continuous employment by that employee unless the authorized employer has good cause to submit additional requests.

(F) REGULATIONS.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall issue such final or interim final regulations as may be necessary to carry out this section, including—

(A) measures relating to the security, confidentiality, accuracy, dissemination, and destruction of information and audits, and recordkeeping;

(B) standards for qualification as an authorized employer; and

(C) the imposition of reasonable fees necessary for conducting the background checks.

4. CRIMINAL PENALTY.—Whoever falsely certifies that he meets the applicable standards for an authorized employer or who knowingly and intentionally uses any information obtained pursuant to this section other than for the purpose of determining the suitability of an individual for employment as a private security officer shall be fined up to $10,000, imprisoned for not more than 2 years, or both.

5. USER FEES.—(A) IN GENERAL.—The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation may—

(i) collect fees pursuant to regulations promulgated under paragraph (2) to process background checks provided for by this section;

(ii) notwithstanding the provisions of section 3302 of title 31, United States Code, receive such fees and any other expenses incurred in providing such processing; and

SEC. 170. REVIEW OF TRANSPORTATION SECURITY EFFORTS.—The Comptroller General shall conduct a detailed, comprehensive study which shall:

(1) review all available intelligence on terrorist threats against aviation, seaport, rail, motor carrier, motor coach, pipeline, highway, and transit facilities and equipment; and

(2) review all available information on vulnerabilities of the aviation, seaport, rail, motor carrier, motor coach, pipeline, highway, and transit modes of transportation to terrorist attack; and

(3) review the steps taken by public and private entities since September 11, 2001, to improve aviation, seaport, rail, motor carrier, motor coach, pipeline, highway, and transit security to determine their effectiveness at protecting passengers, freight (including hazardous material), and transportation infrastructure from terrorist attack.

(b) REPORT.—

(1) Time frame—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall prepare and submit to Congress, the Secretary, and the Secretary of Transportation by a comprehensive report, without compromising national security, containing—

(A) the findings and conclusions from the reviews conducted under subsection (a); and

(B) proposed steps to improve any deficiencies found in aviation, seaport, rail, motor carrier, motor coach, pipeline, highway, and transit security, including, to the extent possible, the cost of implementing the steps.

(2) FORMAT.—The Comptroller General may submit the report in both classified and redacted formats if the Comptroller General determines that such action is necessary or appropriate.

(c) RESPONSE OF THE SECRETARY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date on which the report under this section is submitted to the Secretary, the Secretary shall provide to the President and Congress—

(A) the response of the Department to the recommendations of the report; and

(B) the implementation of the Department to further protect passengers and transportation infrastructure from terrorist attack.

(2) FORMATS.—The Secretary may submit the report in both classified and redacted formats if the Secretary determines that such action is necessary or appropriate.

(d) REPORTS PROVIDED TO COMMITTEES.—In furnishing the report required by subsection (b), and the Secretary’s response and recommendations required by the Congress, the Comptroller General and the Secretary, respectively, shall ensure that the report, response, and recommendations are transmitted to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works, and the House of Representatives Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

On page 147, after line 25, add the following:

(e) INFORMATION ANALYSIS REPORT.—

(1) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this subsection are—

(A) to require the Secretary, for the first 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act, to submit a semi-annual report to Congress on—

(i) the specific policies and procedures governing the sharing of law enforcement, intelligence, and other information relating to threats of terrorism against the United States and other threats to homeland security with the Federal Government, State and local governments, and intelligence agencies; and

(ii) the specific policies and procedures for the exchange of information between the Department and the Federal Government, and between the Federal Government, State and local governments, and intelligence agencies;

(B) to provide relevant information to Congress to assist in determining if the sharing between the Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation is working efficiently and effectively; and

(C) to enable Congress to accurately determine if the Department is working effectively with the Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies so that an accurate exchange of information occurs between the Department and such agencies.

(2) REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Department shall submit a report to Congress—

(i) at the end of each fiscal year, and

(ii) at such other times as may be directed by the Secretary—

(1) describing the Department’s activities to improve, increase, and sustain the sharing of information and data for the purpose of homeland security and counterterrorism, and

(2) describing the Department’s actions to improve the accuracy, quality, and timeliness of such information and data; and

(B) REPORTS.—In each report submitted to Congress under paragraph (1), the Comptroller General shall review—

(i) the accuracy, completeness, and usefulness of information and data shared by the Department with other Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies; and

(ii) any recommendations of the Department to improve the sharing of information and data with other Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies.

SEC. 173. REQUIREMENT FOR AN ANNUAL REPORT TO CONGRESS ON THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY TO IMPROVE INTERDEPARTMENTAL COMMUNICATION AND CoMMUNICATION AMONG THE DEPARTMENTS OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall submit to the Congress an annual report on the effectiveness of the Department of Homeland Security to improve interdepartmental communication and communication among the departments of the Federal Government, and between the Federal Government and State and local governmental entities, and between the Federal Government and the private sector, to identify and address any impediments to the sharing of information and data and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of such sharing of information and data.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—The annual report submitted under subsection (a) shall include—

(I) a description of the programs, policies, and practices of the Department to improve interdepartmental communication and communication among the departments of the Federal Government, and between the Federal Government and State and local governmental entities, and between the Federal Government and the private sector, to identify and address any impediments to the sharing of information and data and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of such sharing of information and data; and

(II) a description of any additional programs, policies, and practices that the Department may recommend to Congress to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of such sharing of information and data.

(c) REPORT DUE.—The annual report required under subsection (a) shall be submitted not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act.

(d) FUNDING.—The Secretary shall submit to Congress a budget request for fiscal year 2003, and for each subsequent fiscal year, that includes funding for programs to improve interdepartmental communication and communication among the departments of the Federal Government, and between the Federal Government and State and local governmental entities, and between the Federal Government and the private sector, to identify and address any impediments to the sharing of information and data and to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of such sharing of information and data.

SA 4571. Mr. NELSON of Nebraska submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table.

In the amendment strike all after the first word and insert the following:

SEC. 2. EMPLOYEE RIGHTS.

(a) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘primary job duty’ means a job duty that occupies not less than 25 percent of the job duties of an employee of the Department.

(b) TRANSFERRED EMPLOYEES.—The Department, or a subdivision of the Department, that includes an entity or organizational unit, that transfers to the Department under this Act, or performs functions transferred under this Act shall not be excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, after July 19, 2002.

(c) EXCLUSION OF EMPLOYEES.—An employee, or class of employees who share the same job duties, transferred to the Department under this Act, in an appropriate unit under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, prior to the transfer, shall not be excluded from a unit under subsection (b)(6) of that section, unless—

(1) the primary job duty of the employee or class of employees has materially changed after the transfer;

(2) the primary job duty of the employee or class of employees after such change consists of intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to the investigation, intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties of an employee of the Department.

(d) OTHER AGENCIES AND EMPLOYEES.—

(1) EXCLUSION OF SUBDIVISION.—Subject to subsection (c), an employee of the Department shall not be excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, under section 7103(b)(1) of that title, unless—

(A) the subdivision has, as a primary function, intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to terrorism investigation; and

(B) the provisions of that chapter cannot be applied to that subdivision in a manner consistent with national security requirements and considerations.

(2) EXCLUSION OF EMPLOYER.—Subject to subsection (c), an employee of the Department or class of employees of the Department shall not be excluded from a unit under section 7121(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code, unless—

(A) the primary job duty of the employee or class of employees consists of intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to terrorism investigation; and

(B) it is demonstrated that membership in a unit and coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, cannot be applied in a manner that would not have a substantial adverse effect on national security.

(e) PRIOR EXCLUSION.—Subsections (b) through (d) shall not apply to any entity or organizational unit, or subdivision thereof, transferred to the Department under this Act that, on July 19, 2002, was excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, under section 7103(b)(1) of that title.

(f) REMOVAL FROM UNIT DURING PENDENCY OF PROCEEDING.—No employee or class of employees of the Department shall be a member of a unit during the pendency of any proceeding before the Labor Relations Board, or any other labor relations body in which the Authority in which the Department has asserted that the employee or class of employees may not be included in a unit under section 7121(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code.

(g) NATIONAL SECURITY SHOWING REBUTTABLE ONLY BY CLEAR AND CONVINCING EVIDENCE.—In any proceeding referred to in subsection (f), if the Department has made the showing regarding national security as set forth in subsection (c)(3) and subsection (d)(2)(B), the rebuttal is limited only by clear and convincing evidence.

(h) EXPEDITED REVIEW.—The Authority shall establish a priority consideration to the exclusion petition with respect to which the Department asserts that any employee or class of employees may not be included in a unit under section 7121(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code. In any such proceeding, the parties shall follow the following expedited procedures:

(1) The Department shall provide any information requested by the Regional Director of the Authority within 10 days after the request is made.

(2) A hearing on the petition shall be commenced within 15 days of receipt of the requested information, if any, by the Authority and the parties.

(3) If briefs are filed after the conclusion of the hearing, the Regional Director shall issue a decision within 30 days after the receipt of the briefs, and if no briefs are filed, no later than 45 days after the conclusion of the hearings.

(4) The parties shall have 15 days to appeal after the receipt of the decision of the Regional Director.

(5) If the Authority does not accept the appeal within 30 days, the Regional Director’s decision becomes final.

(6) If the Authority accepts the appeal, a decision by the Authority shall issue within 30 days.

(7) There shall be no judicial review of the decision of the Authority.

SEC. 3. PREEMPTED PROVISIONS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, including any effective date provision, the following provisions of this Act shall not take effect:

(1) SEC. 109(f).

The provisions of this section shall take effect one day after the date of this bill’s enactment.

Subtitle B—Whistleblower Protection

SEC. 621. INCREASING PROTECTIONS FOR FBI Whistleblowers.

Section 2303 of title 5, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

‘‘§ 2303. Prohibited personnel practices in the Federal Bureau of Investigation

‘‘(a) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘personnel action’ means any action described in clauses (1) through (x) of section 2302(a)(2) of title 5:

‘‘(b) PROHIBITED PRACTICES.—Any employee of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who has the authority to take, direct others to take, recommend, or approve any personnel action, shall not, with respect to such authority, take or fail to take a personnel action against any employee of the Bureau or because of—

‘‘(1) any disclosure of information by the employee to the Attorney General (or an employee designated by the Attorney General for such purpose), a supervisor of the employee, the Inspector General for the Department of Justice, or a Member of Congress that the employee reasonably believes evidences—

‘‘(A) a violation of any law, rule, or regulation or

‘‘(B) mismanagement, a gross waste of funds, an abuse of authority, or a substantial and specific danger to public health or safety.

‘‘(2) any disclosure of information by the employee to the Special Counsel of information that the employee reasonably believes evidences—

‘‘(A) a violation of any law, rule, or regulation; or

‘‘(B) mismanagement, a gross waste of funds, an abuse of authority, or a substantial and specific danger to public health or safety.

If such disclosure is not specifically prohibited by law and if such information is not specifically required to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or the conduct of foreign affairs.

‘‘(c) INDIVIDUAL RIGHT OF ACTION.—Chapter 12 of title 5 shall apply to an employee of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who claims that a personnel action has been taken under this section against the employee as a reprisal for any disclosure of information described in subsection (b)(2).

‘‘(d) REGULATIONS.—The Attorney General shall prescribe regulations as necessary for the effective implementation of this section, which shall provide for the enforcement of such regulations in a manner consistent with applicable provisions of sections 1214 and 1221, and in accordance with the procedures set forth in sections 554 through 557 and 701 through 706.’’.

SEC. 622. DIRECTOR OF THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the authority, direction, and control of the Attorney General, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (referred to in this subtitle as the ‘‘Director’’) shall carry out all powers, functions, and duties of the Attorney General with respect to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(b) POLICY IMPLEMENTATION.—The Director shall ensure that the procedures set forth in subsections (a) and (b) are implemented throughout the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

SEC. 623. SECURITY CAREER PROGRAM BOARDS.

SEC. 624. SECURITY MANAGEMENT POLICIES.

The Attorney General shall establish policies and procedures for the effective management (including access, education, training, promotion, and career development) in security positions in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

SEC. 631. SECURITY MANAGEMENT POLICIES.

The Attorney General shall establish policies and procedures for the effective management (including access, education, training, promotion, and career development) of security positions in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(b) Designation Board.—The security career program board shall include—

(1) the Director of Security (or a representative of the Director of Security);
(2) the senior officials, as designated by the Director, with responsibility for information management;
(3) the senior officials, as designated by the Director, with responsibility for personnel management;
(4) the senior officials for the intelligence community as the Director may designate;
(c) Chairperson.—The Director of Security (or a representative of the Director of Security) shall be the chairperson of the board.

SEC. 635. DESIGNATION OF SECURITY POSITIONS.

(a) Designation.—The Director shall designate, by regulation, those positions in the intelligence community as the Director may designate, for purposes of paragraphs (1) and (2), as security positions.

(b) Required Positions.—In designating security positions under subsection (a), the Director shall include, at a minimum, all security-related positions in the areas of—

(1) personnel security and access control;
(2) information systems security and information assurance;
(3) physical security and technical surveillance countermeasures;
(4) operational, program, and industrial security; and
(5) information security and classification management.

SEC. 636. CAREER DEVELOPMENT.

(a) Career Paths.—The Director shall ensure that appropriate career paths for personnel who wish to pursue careers in security are identified in terms of the education, training, experience, and assignments necessary for career progression to the most senior security positions and shall make available published information on those career paths.

(b) Limitation on Preference for Special Agent.—(1) In General.—Except as provided in the policy established under paragraph (2), the Attorney General shall ensure that no requirement or preference for a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that is not required for such a position by the Federal Bureau of Investigation is considered in the selection of a Special Agent.

(2) Policy.—The Attorney General shall establish a policy that permits a particular security position to be designated as a Special Agent position by the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in consultation with the Director and the Secretary of Defense, as necessary for another compelling national security interest.

(c) Opportunities to Qualify.—The Attorney General shall ensure that all personnel, including Special Agents, are provided the opportunity to acquire the education, training, and experience necessary to qualify for senior security positions.

(d) Best Practice.—The Attorney General shall ensure that the policies established under this title are designed to provide for the selection of the best qualified individual for a position, consistent with other applicable law.

(e) Assignments Policy.—The Attorney General shall establish a policy for assigning Special Agents to security positions that provides for a balance between—

(1) the need for personnel to serve in career enhancing positions; and
(2) the need for personnel in sensitive positions for sufficient time to provide the stability necessary to carry out effectively the duties of the position and to allow for the establishment of responsibility and accountability for actions taken in the position.

(f) Length of Assignment.—In implementing the policy established under subsection (b), the Director shall provide, as appropriate, for longer lengths of assignments to security positions than assignments to other positions.

(g) Performance Appraisals.—The Director shall provide an opportunity for review and performance appraisal of any assignment to a security position.

(h) Balanced Workforce Policy.—In the development of security workforce policies under this title with respect to any employees or applicants for employment, the Attorney General shall, consistent with the merit system principles set out in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 2301(b) of title 5, United States Code, consider the need for maintaining a balanced workforce in which women and members of racial and ethnic minority groups are appropriately represented in Government service.

SEC. 637. GENERAL EDUCATION, TRAINING, AND EXPERIENCE REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General.—The Director shall establish education, training, and experience requirements for each security position, based on the level of complexity of duties carried out in the position.

(b) Qualifications Requirements.—Before being assigned to a position as a program manager or deputy program manager of a significant security program, a person—

(1) must have security program management experience that is accredited by the Intelligence Community-Directorate of Defense Joint Security Training Consortia or is determined to be comparable by the Director; and
(2) must have not less than 6 years experience in security, of which not less than 2 years were performed in a similar program office or organization.

SEC. 638. EDUCATION AND TRAINING PROGRAMS.

(a) In General.—The Director, in consultation with the Department of Defense, shall establish and implement education and training programs for persons serving in security positions in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(b) Other Programs.—The Director shall ensure that programs established under subsection (a) are designed to be consistent with the programs of the Intelligence Community and the Department of Defense.

SEC. 639. OFFICE OF PERSONNEL MANAGEMENT.

(a) In General.—The Attorney General shall submit any requirement that is established under section 637 to the Director of the Office of Personnel Management for approval.

(b) Final Approval.—If the Director does not approve the requirements established under section 637 within 30 days after the date on which the Director receives the requirement, the requirement is deemed to be approved by the Director of the Office of Personnel Management.

This title does not affect the authority of the Metropolitan Police Force of the District of Columbia with respect to FBI buildings and grounds.

Subtitle F—Reports

SEC. 661. REPORT ON LEGAL AUTHORITY FOR FBI PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 31, 2002, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a report describing the statutory and other legal authority for all programs and activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(b) CONTENTS.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall describe—

(1) the titles within the United States Code and the statutes for which the Federal Bureau of Investigation exercises investigative responsibility;

(2) each program or activity of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that has express statutory authority and the statute which provides that authority; and

(3) each program or activity of the Federal Bureau of Investigation that does not have express statutory authority, and the source of the legal authority for that program or activity.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall recommend whether—

(1) the Federal Bureau of Investigation should continue to have investigative responsibility for each statute for which the Federal Bureau of Investigation currently has investigative responsibility;

(2) the legal authority for any program or activity of the Federal Bureau of Investigation should be modified or repealed;

(3) the Federal Bureau of Investigation should have express statutory authority for any program or activity of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for which the Federal Bureau of Investigation does not currently have express statutory authority; and

(4) the Federal Bureau of Investigation should—

(A) have authority for any new program or activity; and

(B) express statutory authority with respect to any new programs or activities.

SEC. 662. REPORT ON FBI INFORMATION MANAGEMENT AND TECHNOLOGY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 31, 2002, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a report on the information management and technology programs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation including recommendations that may be necessary to enhance the effectiveness of those programs.

(b) CONTENTS OF REPORT.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall provide—

(1) an analysis and evaluation of whether authority for waiver of any provision of procurement law (including any regulation implementing such a law) is necessary to expeditiously and cost-effectively acquire information technology to meet the unique needs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to improve its investigative operations in order to respond better to national law enforcement, intelligence, and counterintelligence requirements;

(2) the results of the studies and audits conducted by the Strategic Management Council and the Inspector General of the Department of Justice to evaluate the information management and technology programs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, including any recommendations by such Council or Inspector General; and

(3) a plan for improving the information management and technology programs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(c) RESULTS.—The results provided under subsection (b)(2) shall include an evaluation of—

(1) information technology procedures and practices regarding procurement, training, and systems maintenance;

(2) record keeping policies, procedures, and practices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, focusing particularly on how information is inputted, stored, managed, utilized, and shared within the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(3) how information in a given database is retrievable when compared to, or, in relation with, information in other technology databases within the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(4) the effectiveness of the existing information technology procurement law (including any regulation implementing such law) to meet proper requirements.

(5) the information technology infrastructure of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, focusing on how the Federal Bureau of Investigation—

(A) selects its information technology projects;

(B) ensures that projects under development deliver benefits; and

(C) ensures that completed projects deliver the expected results; and

(6) the security and access control techniques for classified and sensitive but unclassified information systems in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(d) CONTENTS OF PLAN.—The plan provided under subsection (b)(3) shall ensure that—

(1) appropriate key technology management processes for the Federal Bureau of Investigation are filled by personnel with experience in the commercial sector;

(2) access to the most sensitive information is audited in such a manner that suspicious activity is subject to near contemporaneous security review;

(3) critical information systems employ a policy of key infrastructure between users and recipients of messages or records;

(4) security features are tested by the National Security Agency to meet national information systems security standards;

(5) all employees in the Federal Bureau of Investigation receive annual instruction in records and information management policies and procedures relevant to their positions;

(6) a reserve is established for research and development to guide strategic information management and technology investment decisions;

(7) unnecessary administrative requirements for software purchases under $2,000,000 are eliminated;

(8) full consideration is given to contacting with an expert technology partner to provide technical support for the information technology program for the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(9) procedures are instituted to procure products and services through contracts of other agencies, as necessary; and

(10) a systems integration and test center, with the participation of field personnel, tests each series of information systems up-front in order to assure their operational deployment to confirm that they meet proper requirements.
SEC. 663. GAO REPORT ON CRIME STATISTICS REPORTING.
(a) In General.—Not later than 9 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives an annual report to the President of the United States relating to the issue of crime statistics.
(b) Contents.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall include—
(1) an evaluation of the accuracy, completeness, and consistence of crime statistics submitted pursuant to section 528 of title 28, United States Code, or otherwise required by law or regulation, and the need for correcting deficiencies in any such statistics;
(2) the reasons why crime statistics are not completed or submitted in a timely manner;
(3) the reasons why crime statistics are not available for any areas for which Federal agencies have jurisdiction;
(4) the number of crimes, as defined in section 528 of title 28, United States Code, or otherwise required by law or regulation, which occur on public transportation systems;
(5) an analysis of the effectiveness of Federal crime control and prevention programs;
(6) the extent to which the Federal Government is participating in efforts to develop uniform crime statistics;
(7) recommendations for any legislation, regulations, or other actions necessary to improve crime statistics; and
(8) such other information as the Comptroller General considers appropriate.

(1) $7,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;
(2) $7,500,000 for fiscal year 2004; and
(3) $8,000,000 for fiscal year 2005.

Title VII—Effective Date

SEC. 701. EFFECTIVE DATE.
SA 4579. Mr. MURKOWSKI submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4471 proposed by Mr. LIEBERMAN to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:
Section 7542 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking “for more than 14 days”.

SEC. . NATIONAL DEFENSE RAIL CONN:NEC:TION—UTILITY CORRIDOR.
(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—
(1) A comprehensive rail transportation network is a key element of an integrated transportation system for the North American continent, and federal leadership is required to address the needs of a reliable, safe, and secure rail network, and to connect all areas of the country for national defense and economic development, as previously done for the interstate highway sysnoting the current ownership of the proposed corridor and associated land.

(3) In identifying the corridor under paragraph (1), the secretary shall consider, at a minimum, the following factors:

(A) The proximity of national defense installations and national defense considerations;

(B) The location of and access to natural resources that could contribute to economic development of the region;

(C) Grade and alignment standards that are compatible with rail and utility construction standards and that minimize the prospect of at-grade railroad and highway crossings;

(D) Availability of construction materials;

(E) Safety;

(F) Effects on and service to adjacent communities and potential intermodal transportation connections;

(G) Environmental concerns;

(H) Use of public land to the maximum degree possible;

(I) Minimization of probable construction costs;

(J) An estimate of probable construction costs; and

(K) Methods of financing such costs through a combination of private, state, and federal sources; and

(L) Appropriate utility elements for the corridor, consistent with limited public utility product pipelines, fiber-optic telecommunication facilities, and electrical power transmission lines, and

(M) Prior and established traditional uses.

(4) The Secretary may, as part of the corridor identification, include issues related to the further extension of such corridor to a connection with the nearest appropriate terminus of the North American rail network in Canada.

(c) NEGOTIATION AND LAND TRANSFER.—

(1) The Secretary of the Interior shall—

(A) upon completion of the corridor identification, negotiate the acquisition of any lands in the corridor which are not federally owned through an exchange or by the federal government elsewhere in Alaska; and

(B) upon completion of the acquisition of lands under paragraph (A), the Secretary shall convey to the Alaska Railroad Corporation, subject to valid existing rights, title to lands contained in subsection (b) as necessary to complete the national defense railroad-utility corridor, on condition that the Alaska Railroad Corporation construct in the corridor a railroad system to the vicinity of the proposed national missile defense installation at Fort Greely, Alaska, together with such other utilities, including but not limited to fiber optic transmission lines and electrical transmission lines, as it considers necessary and appropriate. The Federal interest in lands conveyed to the Alaska Railroad Corporation under this Act shall be the same as in lands conveyed pursuant to the Alaska Railroad Transfer Act (45 USC 1201 et seq.).

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF OTHER LAWS.—

(E) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

There is hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act.

SA 4580. MR. MURkowski submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4471 proposed by Mr. LIEBERMAN to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. 172. AIRLINE PASSENGER SCREENING.

Section 46091(b) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking “All screening of passengers” and inserting “(D) in general—All screening of passengers”;

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(D) Treatment of Passengers.—Screening of passengers shall be carried out in a manner that—

(A) is not abusive or unnecessarily intrusive;

(B) ensures protection of the passenger’s personal property; and

(C) provides adequate privacy for the passenger, if the screening involves the removal of clothing (other than shoes) or a search under the passenger’s clothing.”.

SA 4581. Mr. MURkowski submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4471 proposed by Mr. LIEBERMAN to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . FOOD AND DRINKING WATER SUPPLY SECURITY PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) section 410 of title 14, Code of Federal Regulations, shall not apply;

(a) In General.—(1) The President may exercise the discretionary authority to indemnify contractors and subcontractors under Public Law 85–804 (50 U.S.C. 1431 et seq.) for a procurement of an anti-terrorism technology or an anti-terrorism service for the purpose of preventing, detecting, identifying, otherwise deterring, or recovering from acts of terrorism.

(b) Exercise of Authority.—In exercising the authority under subsection (a), the President may include, among other things—

(1) economic damages not fully covered by private liability insurance within the scope of the losses or damages of the indemnification coverage;

(2) a requirement that an indemnification provision included in a contract or subcontract be negotiated prior to the commencement of the performance of the contract or services; and

(3) the coverage of information technology used to prevent, detect, identify, otherwise deter or recover from acts of terrorism; and

(c) Coverage of the United States Postal Service.

SEC. 522. APPLICATION OF INDEMNIFICATION AUTHORITY TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONTRACTORS.

(a) In General.—Subject to the limitations of subsection (b), the President may exercise the discretionary authority to indemnify contractors and subcontractors under Public Law 85–804 (50 U.S.C. 1431 et seq.) for a procurement by a State or unit of local government of an anti-terrorism service for the purpose of preventing, detecting, identifying, otherwise deterring, or recovering from acts of terrorism.

(b) Exercise of Authority.—The authority of subsection (a) may be exercised only—

(1) for procurements of a State or unit of local government that are made by the Secretary or a contractor under contract or subcontract pursuant to the authority of section 523.
(2) with written approval from the Secretary, or any other official designated by the President, for each procurement in which indemnification is to be provided; and
(3) when required by the Secretary: (A) amounts of losses or damages not fully covered by private liability insurance and State or local government-provided indemnification; and (B) liabilities arising out of other than the contractor’s willful misconduct or lack of good faith.

SEC. 523. PROCUREMENTS OF ANTI-TERRORISM TECHNOLOGIES AND ANTI-TERRORISM SERVICES BY STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS THROUGH FEDERAL CONTRACTS.

(a) In general.—
(1) Establishment of program.—The Secretary shall establish a program under which States and units of local government may procure through contracts entered into by the Secretary anti-terrorism technology or an anti-terrorism service for the purpose of preventing, detecting, identifying, otherwise deterring, or recovering from acts of terrorism.

(b) Responsibilities of the Secretary.—In carrying out the program established by this section, the Secretary shall—
(1) produce and maintain a catalog of anti-terrorism technologies and anti-terrorism services suitable for procurement by States and units of local government under this program; and
(2) establish procedures in accordance with subsection (c) to address the procurement of anti-terrorism technologies and anti-terrorism services by States and units of local government under contracts awarded by the Secretary.

(c) Required procedures.—The procedures required by subsection (b)(2) shall implement the following requirements and authorities:

(1) Required procedures;—
(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), each State desiring to participate in a procurement of anti-terrorism technologies and anti-terrorism services through a contract entered into by the Secretary shall submit to the Secretary in such form and manner and at such times as the Secretary prescribes, the following:
(i) Request.—A request consisting of an enumeration of the technologies or services, respectively, that are desired by the State and units of local government within the State.
(ii) Payment.—Advance payment for each request of technology or service in an amount determined by the Secretary based on estimated or actual costs of the technology or service and administrative costs incurred by the Secretary.

(B) Award by Secretary.—The Secretary may award and designate contracts under which States and units of local government may procure through contracts anti-terrorism technologies and anti-terrorism services directly from the contract holders. No indemnification may be provided under the authorities set forth in section 522 for contracts that are made directly between contractors and States or units of local government.

(2) Permitted catalog technologies and services.—A State may include in a request submitted under paragraph (1) only a technology or service listed in the catalog produced under subsection (b)(1). The Secretary shall require the State or unit of local government to reimburse the Department for the actual costs it has incurred for such procurement.

(3) Coordination of local requests with in State.—The Governor of a State (or the Mayor of the District of Columbia) may establish a relationship with the Governor (or the Mayor of the District of Columbia) to consider appropriate for administering and coordinating requests for anti-terrorism technologies or anti-terrorism services between units of local government within the State.

(4) Shipments and transportation costs.—A State requesting an anti-terrorism technology or anti-terrorism services shall be responsible for arranging and paying for any shipment or transportation costs necessary to deliver the technology or services, respectively, to the State and localities within the State.

(d) Reimbursement of actual costs.—In the case of a procurement made by or for a State or unit of local government under the procedure established under this section, the Secretary shall require the State or unit of local government to reimburse the Department for the actual costs it has incurred for such procurement.

(e) Time for implementation.—The catalog and procedures required by subsection (b) of this section shall be completed as soon as practicable and no later than 210 days after the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 524. CONGRESSIONAL NOTIFICATION.

(a) In general.—Notwithstanding any other law, a Federal agency shall, when exercising the discretionary authority of Public Law 85–804, as amended by section 522, to reimburse contractors and subcontractors, provide written notification to the Committee identified in subsection (b) within 30 days after a contract clause is executed to provide indemnification.

(b) Submission.—The notification required by subsection (a) shall be submitted to—

(4) the Animal Health Protection Act (7 U.S.C. 8301 et seq.);

(b) Transfer.—

(1) In general.—Subject to paragraph (2), there is transferred to the Secretary of Homeland Security the functions of the Secretary of Agriculture relating to agricultural import and entry inspection activities under each covered law.

(2) Ineffectiveness of Certain Activities.—The functions transferred under paragraph (1) shall not include any quarantine activity carried out under a covered law.

(c) Use of Funds.—

(1) Compliance with Department of Agriculture Regulations.—The authority transferred under subsection (b) shall be exercised by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with the regulations, policies, and procedures issued by the Secretary of Agriculture regarding the administration of each covered law.

(2) Rulemaking Coordination.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall coordinate with the Secretary of Homeland Security in any case in which the Secretary of Agriculture prescribes regulations, policies, or procedures for administering the functions transferred under subsection (b) under a covered law.

(d) Effective Administration.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture, may issue such directives and guidelines as are necessary to ensure the effective use of personnel of the Department of Homeland Security to carry out the functions transferred under subsection (b).

(e) Transfer Agreement.—

(1) In general.—Before the completion of the transition period (as defined in section 181), the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Homeland Security shall enter into an agreement to carry out this section.

(2) Required Terms.—The agreement required by this subsection shall provide for—

(A) the supervision by the Secretary of Agriculture of the training of employees of the Secretary of Homeland Security to carry out the functions transferred under subsection (b);

(B) the transfer of funds to the Secretary of Homeland Security under subsection (e);

(C) authority under which the Secretary of Homeland Security may perform functions that—

(i) are delegated to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of the Department of Agriculture regarding the protection of domestic livestock and plants; and

(ii) are transferred to the Secretary of Homeland Security under subsection (b); and

(D) authority under which the Secretary of Agriculture may use employees of the Department of Homeland Security to carry out activities delegated to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service regarding the protection of domestic livestock and plants.

(f) Review and Revision.—After the date of execution of the agreement described in paragraph (1), the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Homeland Security—

(A) shall periodically review the agreement; and

(B) may jointly revise the agreement, as necessary.

(g) Periodic Transfer of Funds to Department of Homeland Security.—

(1) Transfer of Funds.—Subject to paragraph (2), out of any funds collected as fees under sections 2508 and 2509 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 (21 U.S.C. 136a, 136a), the Secretary of Agriculture shall periodically transfer to the Secretary of Homeland Security, in accordance with the Transfer Agreement, (d), funds for activities carried out by the Secretary of Homeland Security for which the fees were collected.

(2) Limitation.—The proportion of fees collected under sections 2508 and 2509 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990 (21 U.S.C. 136, 136a) that are transferred to the Secretary of Homeland Security under paragraph (1) may not exceed the proportion that—

SEC. 174. COORDINATION OF INFORMATION AND INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.

(a) Definition of Affected Agency.—In this section, the term ‘‘affected agency’’ means—

(1) the Department of Homeland Security;

(2) the Department of Agriculture;

(3) the Department of Health and Human Services; and

(4) any other department or agency determined to be appropriate by the Secretary of Homeland Security.

(b) Coordination.—Consistent with section 171, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in coordination with the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, and the head of each other department or agency determined by the Secretary of Homeland Security, shall submit to Congress—

(1) a report on the progress made in implementing this section; and

(2) a plan to complete implementation of this section.

SA 4600. Mr. TORRICELLI submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

At the end of subtitle C of title XI of division B, insert the following new section:

SEC. 1124. VISA ISSUANCE.

(a) Report on Identity Authentication.—Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report relating to the establishment of an identity authentication system to screen aliens applying for visas to the United States. The report shall consider the utility of commercially available domestic and global data sources and technology and scoring and modeling methods to generate risk scores based on the information supplied by the alien.

(b) Coordination Plan.—

(1) Requirement for Plan.—Not later than one year after the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall implement a plan based on the findings of the report under subsection (a) to establish an identity authentication system to screen aliens applying for visas to the United States. Such a system shall be consistent with title III of the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Reform Act, (Public Law 107–173). The system shall also be consistent with the Aviation Transportation and Security Act’s Computer Assisted Passenger Prescreening System (CAPPS II) e-government programs, and other appropriate programs requiring authentication of identity.

(2) Consultation Requirement.—In the preparation and implementation of the plan under subsection (a), the President shall consult with the appropriate committees of Congress.
(3) PROTECTION REGARDING INFORMATION AND USES THEREOF.—The plan under this subsection shall be consistent with the protection and penalties established under section 201(c)(3) of the Enhanced Border Security and Visa Reform Act, (Public Law 107–173).

(c) AUTHENTICATION.—In this section, the term "authentication" means a knowledge-based system that employs available personal identifying information to validate personal information supplied by an alien applying for a visa. A knowledge-based system is one where persons are recognized by demonstrating they are in possession of certain information that only that person would be expected to know.

(a) Establishment.—There is established within the Department the Directorate of Border and Transportation Protection.

(b) Under Secretary.—There shall be an Under Secretary for Border and Transportation, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

(c) Exercise of Customs Revenue Authority.—

(1) In General.—

(A) Authorities Not Transferred.—Authority that was vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by law to issue regulations related to customs revenue functions before the effective date of this section under the provisions of law set forth under paragraph (2) shall not be transferred to the Secretary by reason of this Act. The Secretary of the Treasury, with the concurrence of the Secretary, shall exercise this authority. The Commissioner of Customs is authorized to engage in activities to develop and support the issuance of the regulations described in this paragraph. The Secretary shall be responsible for the implementation and enforcement of regulations issued under this section.

(B) Report.—Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit a report to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives of proposed conforming amendments to the statutes set forth under paragraph (2) in order to determine the appropriate allocation of legal authority described under this subsection. The Secretary of the Treasury shall also identify those authorities vested in the Secretary of the Treasury that are exercised by the Commissioner of Customs on or before the effective date of this section.

(C) Liability.—Neither the Secretary of the Treasury nor the Department of the Treasury shall be liable for or named in any proceeding to enforce any provision of law referred to under paragraph (1) or any rule or order issued under such provision, or any penalties due on imported merchandise, including classifying and valuing merchandise and the procedures for “entry” as that term is defined in the United States Customs laws; provided, however, that the administrative determination of the Secretary of the Treasury that the provisions of law referred to under this paragraph (2) shall not be transferred to the Secretary by reason of this Act shall be subject to judicial review.

(2) Applicable Laws.—The provisions of law referred to under paragraph (1) are those set forth in the following statutes that relate to customs revenue functions:

(F) Section 251 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (19 U.S.C. 6).

(G) The Foreign Trade Zones Act (19 U.S.C. 81a et seq.).

(H) Section 1 of the Act of March 2, 1911 (19 U.S.C. 198).

(J) The Import Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 2301 et seq.).

(K) The Antidumping Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1671 et seq.).

(P) Any other provision of law vesting customs revenue functions in the Secretary of the Treasury.

(3) Definition of Customs Revenue Functions.—In this subsection, the term ‘customs revenue functions’ means—

(A) assessing, collecting, and refunding duties (including any special duties), excise taxes, fees, and any liquidated damages or penalties due on imported merchandise, including classifying and valuing merchandise and the procedures for ‘‘entry’’ as that term is defined in the United States Customs laws; and

(B) administering reciprocal trade agreements and trade preference legislation.

(d) Preserving Coast Guard Mission Performance.—

(1) Definitions.—In this subsection:

(A) Non-Homeland Security Missions.—The term ‘non-homeland security missions’ means the following missions of the Coast Guard:

(2) Maintenance of Status of Functions and Assets.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the authorities, functions, assets, organizational structure, units, personnel, and non-homeland security missions of the Coast Guard shall be maintained intact and without reduction after the transfer of the Coast Guard to the Department, except as specified in subsequent Acts.

(3) Certain Transfers Prohibited.—None of the missions, functions, personnel, and assets (including for purposes of this sub-section ships, aircraft, helicopters, and vehicles) of the Coast Guard may be transferred to the operational control of, or diverted to the principal and continuing use of, any other organization, unit, or entity of the Department.

(4) Changes to Non-Homeland Security Missions.—

(A) Prohibition.—The Secretary may not make any substantial or significant change to any of the non-homeland security missions of the Coast Guard in order to provide for the capabilities of the Coast Guard to carry out each of the non-homeland security missions, without the prior approval of Congress as expressed in a subsequent Act.

(B) Waiver.—The President may waive the restrictions under subparagraph (A) for a period of not exceeding 1 year, and such waiver under this paragraph shall include a detailed justification for the declaration and certification, including the reasons and specific information that demonstrates that the Coast Guard cannot respond effectively to the national emergency if the restrictions under subparagraph (A) are not waived.

(5) Annual Review.—

(A) In General.—The Inspector General of the Department shall conduct an annual review that assesses thoroughly the performance by the Department of the Coast Guard in all missions of the Coast Guard (including the non-homeland security missions) with a particular emphasis on examining the non-homeland security missions.

(B) Report.—The report under this paragraph shall be submitted not later than March 1 of each year to:

(i) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

(ii) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives;

(iii) the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives;

(iv) the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate; and

(v) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

(e) Direct Reporting to Secretary.—Upon the transfer of the Coast Guard to the Department, the Commandant shall report directly to the Secretary without being required to report through any other official of the Department.

(f) Operation as a Service in the Navy.—None of the conditions and restrictions in this subsection shall apply when the Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy under section 3 of title 14, United States Code.

(a) In General.—Not later than December 31, 2002, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a report on the information management and technology programs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, including systems, policies, procedures, practices, and operations; and

(b) CONTENTS.—The report submitted under subsection (a) shall provide:

(1) an analysis and evaluation of whether authority for waiver of any provision of procurement law (including any regulation implementing such a law) is necessary to expeditiously and cost-effectively acquire information technology to meet the unique need of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to improve its investigative operations in order to respond better to national law enforcement, intelligence, and counterintelligence requirements;

(2) the results of the studies and audits conducted by the Strategic Management Council and the Inspector General of the Department of Justice to evaluate the information management and technology programs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, including systems, policies, procedures, practices, and operations; and

(3) a plan for improving the information management and technology programs of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(c) Results.—The results provided under subsection (b)(2) shall include an evaluation of—

(1) information technology procedures and practices regarding procurement, training, and systems maintenance;

(2) the adequacy of, policies, procedures, and practices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, focusing particularly on how information is inputted, stored, managed, utilized, and shared within the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(3) how information in a given database is related or compared to, or integrated with, information in other technology databases within the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(4) the effectiveness of the existing information technology infrastructure of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in supporting and accomplishing the overall mission of the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(5) the management of information technology projects at the Federal Bureau of Investigation, focusing on how the Federal Bureau of Investigation—

(A) selects its information technology projects; and

(B) ensures that projects under development deliver benefits; and

(C) ensures that completed projects deliver the expected results; and

(6) the security and access control techniques for classified and sensitive but unclassified information in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(d) CONTENTS OF PLAN.—The plan provided under subsection (b)(3) shall ensure that—

(1) appropriate management positions in the Federal Bureau of Investigation are filled by personnel with experience in the commercial sector;

(2) access to sensitive investigative information is audited in such a manner that suspicious activity is subject to near contemporaneous security review;

(3) critical information systems employ a public key infrastructure to validate both users and recipients of messages or records;

(4) security features are tested by the National Security Agency to meet national information systems security standards;

(5) all employees in the Federal Bureau of Investigation receive annual instruction in records and information management policies and procedures relevant to their positions;

(6) a reserve is established for research and development of investigative information management and technology investment decisions;

(7) unnecessary administrative requirements for software purchases under $2,000 are eliminated;

(8) full consideration is given to contacting an expert technology partner to provide technical support for the information technology procurement for the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

(9) procedures are instituted to procure products and services through contracts of other agencies, as necessary; and

(10) a systems integration and testing center, with the participation of field personnel, tests each series of information systems upgrades or application changes before their operational deployment to confirm that they meet proper requirements.

SEC. 663. GAO REPORT ON CRIME STATISTICS REPORTING

(a) In General.—Not later than 9 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Committees on the Judiciary of the Senate and the House of Representatives an annual report to be completed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Office of Professional Responsibility and provided to the Inspector General, which sets forth—

(1) basic information on each investigation completed by that Office;

(2) the findings and recommendations of that Office for disciplinary action; and

(3) what, if any, action was taken by the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation or the designee of the Director based on any such recommendation.

(b) CONTENTS.—In addition to all matters already included in the annual report described in subsection (a), the report shall also include an analysis of—

(1) whether senior Federal Bureau of Investigation employees and lower level Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel are being disciplined and investigated similarly; and

(2) whether any double standard is being employed to more senior employees with respect to allegations of wrongdoing.

’(B) The Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs shall provide administrative and other support for the Council.

’(d) The Council is designated the principal interagency forum for improving agency practices related to the design, acquisition, development, modernization, use, operation, sharing, and disposal of Federal Government information resources.

’(e) In performing its duties, the Council shall consult regularly with representatives of State, local, and tribal governments.

’(f) The Council shall perform functions that include the following:

’(1) Develop recommendations for the Director on agency information resources management policies and requirements.

’(2) Share experiences, ideas, best practices, and innovative approaches related to information resources management.

’(3) Assist the Administrator in the identification, development, and coordination of multiagency projects and other innovative initiatives of the Director in preparing performance through the use of information technology.

’(4) Promote the development and use of common processes for managing agency information resources management under this chapter and title XXXII of the E-Government Act of 2002.

’(5) Work as appropriate with the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the Administrator to develop recommendations on information technology standards developed under section 20 of the National Institute of Standards and Technology Act (15 U.S.C. 278q–3) and promulgated under section 5131 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (40 U.S.C. 1411), as follows:

’(A) Standards and guidelines for interconnectivity and interoperability as described under section 3604.

’(B) Consistent with the process under section 3207(d) of the E-Government Act of 2002, standards and guidelines for categorizing Federal electronic information to enable efficient use of technologies, such as through the use of extensible markup language.

’(C) Standards and guidelines for Federal Government computer system efficiency and security.

’(6)(A) Work with the Office of Personnel Management to assess and address the hiring, training, classification, and professional development needs of the Government related to information resources management.

’(7) Work with the Archivist of the United States to assess how the Federal Records Act can be addressed effectively by Federal information resources management activities.

3604. E-Government Fund

’(a)(1) There is established in the Treasury of the United States the E-Government Fund.

’(2) The Fund shall be administered by the Administrator of the General Services Administration to support projects approved by the Administrator, assisted by the Administrator of the Office of Electronic Government, that enable the Federal Government to expand its ability, through the development and implementation of innovative uses of the Internet or other electronic methods, to conduct activities electronically.

’(b) Projects under this subsection may include efforts to—

’(A) make Federal Government information and services more readily available to members of the public (including individuals, businesses, grantees, and State and local governments);

’(B) make it easier for the public to apply for benefits, receive services, pursue business opportunities, submit information, and otherwise conduct transactions with the Federal Government; and

’(C) enable Federal agencies to take advantage of information technology in sharing information and conducting transactions with each other and with State and local governments.

’(c)(1) The Administrator shall—

’(A) establish procedures for accepting and reviewing proposals for funding;

’(B) consult with interagency councils, including the Chief Information Officers Council, the Chief Financial Officers Council, and other interagency management councils, in establishing procedures and reviewing proposals; and

’(C) assist the Director in coordinating resources that agencies receive from the Fund with other resources available to agencies for similar purposes.

’(2) When reviewing proposals and managing the Fund, the Administrator shall observe and incorporate the following procedures:

’(A) A project requiring substantial involvement or funding from an agency shall be approved by a senior official with agency-wide authority on behalf of the head of the agency, who shall report directly to the head of the agency.

’(B) Projects shall adhere to fundamental capital planning and investment control processes.

’(c) Agencies shall identify in their proposals resource commitments from the agencies involved and how these resources would be coordinated with support from the Fund, and include plans for potential continuation of projects after all funds made available from the Fund are expended.

"(D) In considering the recommendations of the interagency councils, the Director, assisted by the Administrator, shall have final authority to determine which of the candidate projects shall be funded from the Fund.

"(E) Agencies shall assess the results of funded projects.

"(F) In determining which proposals to recommend for funding, the Administrator—

"(1) shall consider criteria that include whether a proposal—

"(A) identifies the group to be served, including citizens, businesses, the Federal Government, or other governments;

"(B) indicates what service or information the project will provide that meets needs of groups identified under subparagraph (A);

"(C) ensures proper security and protects privacy;

"(D) is interagency in scope, including projects implemented by a primary or single agency that—"(i) could confer benefits on multiple agencies; and

"(ii) have the support of other agencies; and

"(E) has performance objectives that tie to agency missions and strategic goals, and interim results that relate to the objectives; and

"(2) may also rank proposals based on criteria that include whether a proposal—

"(A) has Governmentwide application or implications;

"(B) has demonstrated support by the public to be served;

"(C) integrates Federal with State, local, or tribal approaches to service delivery;

"(D) demonstrates resource commitments from nongovernmental sectors;

"(E) identifies resource commitments from the agencies involved;

"(F) uses web-based technologies to achieve objectives;

"(G) identifies records management and records access strategies;

"(H) supports more effective citizen participation in and interaction with agency activities that further progress toward a more citizen-centered Government;

"(I) improves Government information and services to the public or provides the infrastructure for delivery;

"(J) supports integrated service delivery;

"(K) promotes business processes across agencies that will reflect appropriate transformation simultaneous to technology implementation; and

"(L) is new or innovative and does not supplant existing funding streams within agencies.

"(d) The Fund may be used to fund the integrated Internet-based system under section 3201 of the E-Government Act of 2002.

"(e) None of the funds provided from the Fund may be transferred to any agency until 15 days after the Administrator of the General Services Administration has submitted to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives, and the appropriating committees of the Senate and the House of Representatives, a notification and description of how the funds are to be located and how the expenditure will further the purposes of this chapter.

"(f)(1) The Director shall report annually to Congress on the operation of the Fund, and the report established under section 3605.

"(2) The report under paragraph (1) shall describe—

"(A) all projects which the Director has approved for funding from the Fund; and

"(B) the projects that have been approved by the Administrator, in accordance with the recommendations of the interagency councils, that have not been approved for funding from the Fund.

"(g)(1) There are authorized to be appropriated to the Fund:

"(A) $455,000,000 for fiscal year 2003;

"(B) $50,000,000 for fiscal year 2004;

"(C) $100,000,000 for fiscal year 2005;

"(D) $150,000,000 for fiscal year 2006; and

"(E) such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2007.

"(2) Funds appropriated under this subsection shall remain available until expended.

SEC. 3605. E-Government report

"(a) Not later than March 1 of each year, the Director shall submit an E-Government status report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

"(b) The report under subsection (a) shall contain—

"(1) a summary of the information reported by agencies under section 3202(f) of the E-Government Act of 2002;

"(2) the information required to be reported by section 3604(f); and

"(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of chapters for title 44, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to chapter 35 the following:

SEC. 3201. DEFINITIONS.

Except as otherwise provided, in this title the definitions under sections 5002 and 5001 of title 44, United States Code, shall apply.

SEC. 3202. FEDERAL AGENCY RESPONSIBILITIES.

(a) In general.—The head of each agency shall be responsible for—

"(1) complying with the requirements of this division (including the amendments made by this Act), the related information resource management policies and guidance established by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, and the related information technology standards promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce;

"(2) ensuring that the information resource management policies and guidance established under this division by the Secretary of Commerce are communicated promptly and effectively to all relevant officials within their agency; and

"(3) supporting the efforts of the Director and the Administrator of the General Services Administration to develop, maintain, and promote an integrated Internet-based system of delivering Federal Government information and services to the public under section 3304.

"(b) PERFORMANCE MEASURMENT.—

"(1) Agencies shall develop performance measures that demonstrate how electronic government is being used to achieve agency objectives, strategic goals, and statutory mandates.

"(2) In measuring performance under this section, agencies shall rely on existing data collections to the extent practicable.

"(3) Areas of performance measurement that agencies should consider include—

"(A) customer service; and

"(B) agency productivity; and

"(4) Adoption of innovative information technology, including the appropriate use of commercial best practices.

"(4) Agencies shall link their performance goals to key groups, including citizens, businesses, and other governments, and to internal Federal Government operations.

"(5) As appropriate, agencies shall work collectively in linking their performance goals to groups identified under paragraph (4) and shall use information technology in delivering Government information and services to those groups.

"(c) AVOIDING DIMINISHED ACCESS.—When promulgating policies and implementing programs regarding the provision of Government information and services over the Internet, agency heads shall consider the impact on persons without access to the Internet, and shall, to the extent practicable—

"(1) ensure that the availability of Government information and services has not been diminished for individuals who lack access to the Internet; and

"(2) pursue alternate modes of delivery that make Government information and services more accessible to individuals who do not own computers or lack access to the Internet.

"(d) ACCESSIBILITY TO PEOPLE WITH DISABILITIES.—All actions taken by Federal departments and agencies under this division shall be in compliance with section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794d).
the relevant policies and procedures issued of electronic signatures are compatible with fulfillment of the objectives of the Government Paticular and consistent with law.

SEC. 3201. COMPATIBILITY OF ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.

(a) Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to achieve interoperable implementation of electronic signatures for appropriately secure electronic transactions with Government.

(b) ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—In order to fulfill the objectives of the Government Paperwork Elimination Act (Public Law 105–277; 112 Stat. 2681–749 through 2691–751), each Executive agency (as defined under section 105 of the Ethics in Government Act) must ensure that its methods for use and acceptance of electronic signatures are compatible with the relevant policies and procedures issued by the Director.

(c) AUTHORITY FOR ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES.—The Administrator of General Services shall support the Director by establishing a framework to allow efficient interoperability among Executive agencies when using electronic signatures, including processing and issuance of agencyspecific bridge certification authority for digital signature compatibility, or for other activities consistent with this section, $8,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for each fiscal year thereafter.

SEC. 3202. FEDERAL INTERNET PORTAL.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) PUBLIC ACCESS.—The Director shall work with the Administrator of the General Services Administration and other agencies to maintain and promote an integrated Internet-based system providing the public with access to Government information and services.

(2) CRITERIA.—To the extent practicable, the integrated system shall be designed and operated according to the following criteria:

(A) The provision of Internet-based Government information and services directed to key groups including citizens, business, and other governments, and integrated according to function or topic rather than separated according to the boundaries of agency jurisdiction.

(B) An ongoing effort to ensure that Internet-based Government services relevant to a given citizen activity are available from a single point.

(C) Access to Federal Government information and services consolidated, as appropriate, with Internet-based information and services provided by State, local, and tribal governments.

(D) Access to Federal Government information and services consolidated, as appropriate, with Internet-based information and services provided by State, local, and tribal governments.

(3) MONITORING.—The Administrator of the General Services Administration shall explore the feasibility of technology to deliver Government information and implementation of policies and procedures issued by the General Services Administration $15,000,000 for the maintenance, improvement, and promotion of the integrated Internet-based system for fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are necessary for fiscal years 2004 through 2007.

SEC. 3203. FEDERAL COURTS.

(a) INDIVIDUAL COURT WEBSITES.—The Chief Justice of the United States, the chief judge of each circuit and district, and the chief bankruptcy judge of each district shall establish with respect to the Supreme Court or the respective court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district, a website that contains the following information or links to websites with the following information:

(1) Location and contact information for the courthouse, including the telephone numbers and email addresses for the clerk’s office and judiciary chambers or judges’ chambers.

(2) Local rules and standing or general orders of the court.

(3) Individual rules, if in existence, of each justice or judge in that court.

(4) Access to docket information for each case.

(5) Access to the substance of all written opinions issued by the court, regardless of whether such opinions are to be published in the official court reporter, in a text searchable format.

(6) Access to all documents filed with the courthouse in electronic form, described under subsection (c).

(7) Any other information (including forms in a format that can be downloaded) that the court determines useful to the public.

(b) MAINTENANCE OF DATA ONLINE.—(1) UPDATE OF INFORMATION.—The information and rules on each website shall be updated regularly and kept reasonably current.

(2) CLOSED CASES.—Electronic files and docket information for cases closed for more than 1 year are not required to be made available online, except all written opinions with a date of issuance after the effective date of this section shall remain available online.

(c) ELECTRONIC FILINGS.—(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), each court shall make any document that is filed electronically publicly available online. A court may convert a document that is filed in paper form to electronic form. To the extent such conversions are made, all such electronic versions of the document shall be made available online.

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—Documents that are filed that are not otherwise available to the public, such as documents filed under seal, shall not be made available online.

(d) DOCKETS WITH LINKS TO DOCUMENTS.—The Judicial Conference of the United States shall employ the feasibility of technology to post online dockets with links allowing all filings, decisions, and rulings in each case to be obtained from the docket sheet of that case.

(e) COST OF PROVIDING ELECTRONIC DOCKETING INFORMATION.—Section 303(a) of the Judiciary Appropriations Act, 1992 (2 U.S.C. 1992) is amended by striking “shall hereafter” and inserting “may, only to the extent necessary,”.

(f) TIME REQUIREMENTS.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the websites under subsection (a) shall be established, except that access to documents filed in electronic form shall be established not later than 4 years after that effective date.

(g) DEFERRAL.—(1) IN GENERAL.—(A) EXCEPTION.—(B) NOTIFICATION.—The Chief Justice of the United States, a chief judge, or chief bankruptcy judge may submit a notification to the Judicial Conference of the United States Courts to defer compliance with any requirement of this section with respect to the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or the bankruptcy court of a district.

(ii) CONTENTS.—A notification submitted under this subparagraph shall state—

(I) the reasons for the deferral; and

(II) the online methods, if any, or any alternative methods, such court or district is using to provide greater public access to information.

(B) EXCEPTION.—To the extent that the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district maintains a website under subsection (a), the Supreme Court or that court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district shall comply with subsection (b)(1).

(g) Dockets with links to documents. The Judicial Conference of the United States shall employ the feasibility of technology to post online dockets with links allowing all filings, decisions, and rulings in each case to be obtained from the docket sheet of that case.

(h) COST OF PROVIDING ELECTRONIC DOCKETING INFORMATION. Section 303(a) of the Judiciary Appropriations Act, 1992 (2 U.S.C. 1992) is amended by striking “shall hereafter” and inserting “may, only to the extent necessary,”.

(i) TIME REQUIREMENTS. Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the websites under subsection (a) shall be established, except that access to documents filed in electronic form shall be established not later than 4 years after that effective date.

(j) DEFERRAL. (1) IN GENERAL.—(A) EXCEPTION.—(B) NOTIFICATION.—The Chief Justice of the United States, a chief judge, or chief bankruptcy judge may submit a notification to the Judicial Conference of the United States Courts to defer compliance with any requirement of this section with respect to the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or the bankruptcy court of a district.

(ii) CONTENTS.—A notification submitted under this subparagraph shall state—

(I) the reasons for the deferral; and

(II) the online methods, if any, or any alternative methods, such court or district is using to provide greater public access to information.

(B) EXCEPTION.—To the extent that the Supreme Court, a court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district maintains a website under subsection (a), the Supreme Court or that court of appeals, district, or bankruptcy court of a district shall comply with subsection (b)(1).

(g) Dockets with links to documents. The Judicial Conference of the United States shall employ the feasibility of technology to post online dockets with links allowing all filings, decisions, and rulings in each case to be obtained from the docket sheet of that case.

(h) COST OF PROVIDING ELECTRONIC DOCKETING INFORMATION. Section 303(a) of the Judiciary Appropriations Act, 1992 (2 U.S.C. 1992) is amended by striking “shall hereafter” and inserting “may, only to the extent necessary,”.

(i) TIME REQUIREMENTS. Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the websites under subsection (a) shall be established, except that access to documents filed in electronic form shall be established not later than 4 years after that effective date.

SEC. 3210. COMMON PROTOCOLS FOR GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SYSTEMS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) reduce redundant data collection and information, and

(2) promote collaboration and use of standards for government geographic information.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘‘geographic information’’ means information that is geographically referenced local or spatial data, such as maps or other geospatial information resources.

(c) IN GENERAL.—

(1) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The Secretary of the Interior, working with the Director and through an interagency group, and working with private sector experts, State, local, and tribal governments, commercial and international standards groups, and other interested parties, shall facilitate the development of common protocols for the development, implementation, acquisition, maintenance, distribution, and application of geographic information. If practicable, the Secretary of the Interior shall incorporate intergovernmental and public private geographic information partnerships into efforts under this subsection.

(2) INTERAGENCY GROUP.—The interagency group under paragraph (1) shall include representatives of the National Institute of Standards and Technology and other agencies.

(d) DIRECTOR.—The Director shall oversee—

(1) the interagency initiative to develop common protocols;

(2) the coordination with State, local, and tribal governments, commercial and international standards groups, and other interested persons on effective and efficient ways to align geographic information and develop common protocols; and

(3) the adoption of common standards relating to the protocols.

(e) COMMON PROTOCOLS.—The common protocols under paragraph (1) shall—

(1) maximize the degree to which unclassified geographic information from various sources can be made electronically compatible and accessible; and

(2) promote the development of interoperable geographic information systems technologies that shall—

(A) allow widespread, low-cost use and sharing of geographic data by Federal agencies, State, local, and tribal governments, and the public; and

(B) improve enhancements of services using geographic data.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of the Interior such sums as are necessary to carry out this section, for each of the fiscal years 2003 through 2007.

SEC. 3211. SHARE-IN-SAVINGS PROGRAM IMPROVEMENTS.

Section 5311 of the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996 (divisions D and E of Public Law 104-106; 110 Stat. 599 (S.C. 1401) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) by striking ‘‘the heads of two executive agencies to carry out’’ and inserting ‘‘heads of executive agencies to carry out a total of 5 projects under’’;

(B) by striking ‘‘and’’ at the end of paragraph (1);

(C) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting ‘‘; and’’; and

(D) by adding at the end the following:

(3) encouraging the use of the contracting and reporting requirements described in paragraphs (1) and (2) by allowing the head of the executive agency conducting a project under the pilot program—

(A) to retain, until expended, out of the appropriation accounts of the executive agency in which savings computed under paragraph (2) are realized as a result of the project, up to the amount equal to half of the excess of—

(i) the total amount of the savings; over

(ii) the total amount of the portion of the savings paid by a contractor source for such project under paragraph (2); and

(B) to use the retained amount to acquire additional information technology;'

(2) in subsection (b), by inserting ‘‘authorized to carry out’’ after ‘‘to carry out’’;

(3) in subsection (c), by inserting before the period ‘‘and the Administrator for the Office of Electronic Government’’ ‘‘the Director of the Office of Information Technology, affiliated with the National Institute of Standards and Technology and the National Technical Information Service’’;

(4) by inserting after subsection (c) the following:

(d) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—After 5 pilot projects have been completed, but no later than 3 years after the effective date of this subsection, the Director shall submit a report on the results of the projects to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

(2) CONTENTS.—The report under paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a description of the reduced costs and other measurable benefits of the pilot projects;

(B) a description of the ability of agencies to determine the baseline costs of a project against which savings would be measured; and

(C) recommendations of the Director relating to whether Congress should provide general authority to the heads of executive agencies to use a share-in-savings contracting approach to the acquisition of information technology solutions for improving mission-related or administrative processes of the Federal Government.

SEC. 3212. INTEGRATED REPORTING STUDY AND PILOT PROJECTS.

(a) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) enhance the interoperability of Federal information systems;

(2) assist the public in understanding Federal and State governmental agencies, public-private partnerships, and the public; and

(3) reduce the burden of reporting and strengthen public access to Federal information within databases established under Federal statute without reducing the quality, accessibility, scope, or utility of the information contained in each database.

(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the term—

(1) ‘‘agency’’ means an Executive agency as defined under section 105 of title 5, United States Code; and

(2) ‘‘person’’ means any individual, trust, firm, partnership, association, State, municipality, commission, political subdivision of a State, interstate body, or agency or component of the Federal Government.

(c) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director shall oversee a study, in consultation with agencies, the regulated community, public interest organizations, and the public, and submit a report to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives on progress toward integrating Federal information systems across agencies.

(2) CONTENTS.—The report under this section shall—

(A) address the integration of data elements used in the electronic collection of information within databases established under Federal statute without reducing the quality, accessibility, scope, or utility of the information contained in each database; and

(B) address the feasibility of developing, or enabling the development of, software, including Internet-based tools, for use by reporting persons in assembling, documenting, and valuating the accuracy of information electronically submitted to agencies under nonvoluntary, statutory, and regulatory requirements;

(C) address the feasibility of developing a distributed information system involving, on a voluntary basis, at least 2 agencies, that—

(i) provides consistent, dependable, and timely public access to the data holdings of 1 or more agencies, or some portion of such holdings, including the underlying raw data, without requiring public users to know which agency holds the information; and

(ii) allows the integration of public information held by the participating agencies;

(D) address the feasibility of incorporating other elements related to the purposes of this section at the discretion of the Director; and

(E) make recommendations that Congress or the executive branch can implement, through the use of integrated reporting and information systems, to reduce the burden on reporting and strengthen public access to databases within and among agencies.

(d) PILOT PROJECTS TO ENCOURAGE INTEGRATED COLLECTION AND MANAGEMENT OF DATA INTEROPERABILITY OF FEDERAL INFORMATION SYSTEMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to provide input to the study under subsection (c), the Director shall designate, in consultation with agencies, a series of no more than 5 pilot projects that integrate data elements. The Director shall consult with agencies, the regulated community, public interest organizations, and the public on the implementation of the pilot projects.

(2) GOALS OF PILOT PROJECTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each goal described under subparagraph (B) shall be addressed by at least 1 pilot project each.

(B) GOALS.—The goals under this paragraph are to—

(i) reduce information collection burdens by eliminating duplicative data elements within 2 or more reporting requirements; and

(ii) create interagency linkages among public databases managed by 2 or more agencies using technologies and techniques that facilitate public access; and

(E) make recommendations to the Congress and the executive branch on the development of, software to reduce errors in electronically submitted information.
(3) INPUT.—Each pilot project shall seek input from users on the utility of the pilot project and areas for improvement. To the extent practicable, the Director shall consult with affected agencies and State, tribal, and local governments in carrying out the report and pilot projects under this section.

(e) PRIVACY PROTECTIONS.—The activities authorized under this section shall afford protections for—

(1) confidential business information consistent with section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law; (2) personal privacy information under sections 552(b) (6) and (7)(C) and 52a of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law; and

(3) other information consistent with section 552(b)(3) of title 5, United States Code, and other relevant law.

SEC. 3213. COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purposes of this section are to—

(1) study and enhance the effectiveness of community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public; and

(2) promote awareness of the availability of on-line government information and services, to users of community technology centers, public libraries, and other public facilities to gain access to computer technology and Internet access to the public.

(b) STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the effective date of this title, the Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, the Secretary of Commerce, the Director of the National Science Foundation, and the Director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services, shall—

(1) conduct a study to evaluate the best practices of community technology centers that have received Federal funds; and

(2) submit a report to the Senate—

(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

(B) the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate; and

(C) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives; and

(D) the Committee on Education and the Workforce of the House of Representatives.

(c) CONTENTS.—The report under subsection (b) may consider—

(1) a study on disparities in the best practices being used by successful community technology centers;

(2) a strategy for—

(A) the National evaluation of best practices used by community technology centers; and

(B) establishing a network to share information and resources as community technology centers evolve;

(3) the identification of methods to expand the use of best practices to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public;

(4) a database of all community technology centers that have received Federal funds, including—

(A) each center’s name, location, services provided, director, other points of contact, number of people served, and performance; and

(B) other relevant information;

(5) an analysis of whether community technology centers have been deployed effectively in urban and rural areas throughout the Nation; and

(6) recommendations of how to—

(A) enhance the development of community technology centers and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public;

(B) establish a network to share information and resources; and

(C) cooperate.—All agencies that fund community technology centers shall provide to the Department of Education any information and assistance necessary for the completion of the study and the report under this section.

(e) ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Department of Education shall work with other relevant Federal agencies, and other interested persons in the private and nonprofit sectors to—

(A) assist in the implementation of recommendations; and

(B) identify other ways to assist community technology centers, public libraries, and other institutions that provide computer and Internet access to the public.

(2) TYPES OF ASSISTANCE.—Assistance under this subsection may include—

(A) contribution of funds;

(B) donations of equipment, and training in the use and maintenance of the equipment; and

(C) the provision of basic instruction or training material in computer skills and Internet usage.

(f) ONLINE TUTORIAL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Education, in consultation with the Director of the Institute of Museum and Library Services, the Director of the National Science Foundation, other relevant agencies, and the public, shall develop an online tutorial that—

(A) explains how to access Government information and services on the Internet; and

(B) provides a guide to available online resources.

(g) PROMOTION OF COMMUNITY TECHNOLOGY CENTERS.—In consultation with other agencies and organizations, the Department of Education shall promote the availability of community technology centers to raise awareness within each community where such a center is located.

(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation, other relevant agencies, and the public, as is necessary for fiscal year 2003.

SEC. 3214. ENHANCING CRISIS MANAGEMENT THROUGH ADVANCED INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to improve how information technology is used in coordinating and facilitating information dissemination, response, and recovery, while ensuring the availability of such information across multiple access channels.

(b) STUDY ON ENHANCEMENT OF CRISIS RESPONSE.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall enter into a contract to conduct a study on using information technology to enhance crisis response, preparedness, and recovery, and consequence management of natural and manmade disasters.

(2) CONTENTS.—The study under this subsection shall address—

(A) a strategy for effective use of information technology in crisis response and consequence management, including the more effective use of technologies, management of information technology research initiatives, and incorporation of research advances into the information and communications systems of—

(i) the Federal Emergency Management Agency; and

(ii) other Federal, State, and local agencies responsible for crisis preparedness, response, and consequence management; and

(B) opportunities for research and development on enhanced technologies into areas of potential improvement as determined during the course of the study.

(3) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which a contract is entered into under paragraph (1), the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall submit a report to the Senate, including findings and recommendations to—

(A) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(B) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 3215. DISPARITIES IN ACCESS TO THE INTERNET.

(a) STUDY AND REPORT.—

(1) STUDY.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director of the National Science Foundation shall request that the National Academy of Sciences, acting through the National Research Council, enter into a contract to conduct a study on disparities in Internet access for online Government services.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Director of the National Science Foundation shall submit to the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives a final report of the study under this section, which shall set forth the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the National Research Council.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation for research under this subsection, such sums as are necessary for fiscal year 2003.

(2) how the increase in online Government services, including a review of—

(A) the nature of disparities in Internet access; and

(B) the affordability of Internet service; and

(C) the incidence of disparities among different groups within the population; and

(D) changes in the nature of personal and public Internet access that may alleviate or aggravate effective access to online Government services; and

(2) how the increase in online Government services is influencing the disparities in Internet access and how development or diffusion trends may offset such adverse influences; and
(3) related societal effects arising from the interplay of disparities in Internet access and the increase in online Government services.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report shall include recommendations on actions to ensure that online Government initiatives shall not have the unintended result of increasing disaffection in public access to Government services.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Science Foundation $950,000 in fiscal year 2003 to carry out this section.

SEC. 3216. NOTIFICATION OF OBSOLETE OR COUNTERPRODUCTIVE PROVISIONS.

If the Director of the Office of Management and Budget makes a determination that any provision of this division (including any amendment made by this division) is obsolete or counterproductive to the purposes of this Act, as a result of changes in technology or any other reason, the Director shall submit notification of that determination to—

(1) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(2) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

TITLE XXXIII—GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SECURITY

SEC. 3301. INFORMATION SECURITY.

(a) ADDITION OF SHORT TITLE.—Subtitle G of title II of the D. D. Snow National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2001 (as enacted into law by Public Law 106–398; 114 Stat. 1654A–266) is amended by inserting after the heading for the subtitle the following new section:

SEC. 1060. SHORT TITLE.

‘‘This subtitle may be cited as the ‘Government Information Security Reform Act.’’’

(b) CONTINUATION OF AUTHORITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 3536 of title 44, United States Code, is repealed.

(2) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 35 of title 44, United States Code, is amended by striking the item relating to section 3536.

TITLE XXXIII—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS AND EFFECTIVE DATES

SEC. 3401. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Except for those purposes for which an authorization of appropriations is specifically provided by this title or XXXII, including the amendments made by such titles, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out titles XXXI and XXXII for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2007.

SEC. 3402. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) Titles XXXI and XXXII.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under paragraph (2), titles XXXI and XXXII and the amendments made by such titles shall take effect 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) IMMEDIATE ENACTMENT.—Sections 3207, 3214, 3215, and 3216 shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) Titles XXXIII and XXXIV.—Title XXXIII and this title shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

SA 4624. Mr. STEVENS (for himself, Ms. COLLINS, Ms. SNOWE, and Mr. HOLINGS) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4471 proposed by Mr. LIEBERMAN to the bill S. R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to be printed, and which was ordered to be laid on the table; as follows:

On page 114, between lines 5 and 6, insert the following new section:

SEC. 140. UNITED STATES COAST GUARD.

(a) TRANSFER.—There are transferred to the Department the authorities, functions, personnel, and assets of the United States Coast Guard.

(b) PRESERVING COAST GUARD MISSION PERFORMANCE.—

(1) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(A) NON-HOMELAND SECURITY MISSIONS.—

The term “non-homeland security missions” means the following missions of the Coast Guard:

(i) Marine safety.

(ii) Search and rescue.

(iii) Aids to navigation.

(iv) Living marine resources (e.g., fisheries law enforcement).

(v) Marine environmental protection.

(vi) Ice operations.

(B) HOMELAND SECURITY MISSIONS.—The term “homeland security missions” means the following missions of the Coast Guard:

(i) Ports, waterways and coastal security.

(ii) Drug interdiction.

(iii) Migrant interdiction.

(iv) Defense readiness.

(v) Other law enforcement.

(2) IMMEDIATE ENACTMENT.—Sections 3207, 3214, 3215, and 3216 shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

(3) TRANSFER.—There are transferred to the Department the authorities, functions, personnel, and assets of the United States Coast Guard.

(4) CHANGES TO NON-HOMELAND SECURITY MISSIONS.—

The Department shall maintain intact and with respect to a change to the capabilities of the Coast Guard to carry out each of the non-homeland security missions, the restrictions in this paragraph shall apply when such change shall result in an increase in those capabilities.

(B) WAIVER.—The President may waive the restrictions under paragraph (A) for a period of not to exceed 90 days upon a declaration by the President to Congress that a clear, compelling, and immediate state of national emergency exists that justifies such a waiver.

(5) ANNUAL REVIEW.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Inspector General of the Department shall conduct an annual review that shall assess thoroughly the performance by the Coast Guard of all missions of the Coast Guard (including non-homeland security missions and homeland security missions) with a particular emphasis on examining the non-homeland security missions.

(B) REPORT.—The Inspector General shall submit to the Senate and House of Representatives the report required by the preceding subsection at the end of—

(i) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

(ii) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives;

(iii) the Committee(s) on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives;

(iv) the Committee(s) on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate;

(v) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

(6) DIRECTOR REPORTING TO SECRETARY.—

Upon the transfer of the Coast Guard to the Department, the Commandant shall report directly to the Secretary without being required to report through any other official of the Department.

(7) COORDINATION WITH DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION.—The Coast Guard shall continue to coordinate with the Department of Transportation concerning regulatory matters that will remain under the authority of the Department of Transportation, but for the purposes of ensuring effective liaison, coordination, and operations of the Coast Guard and that entity or organization: Provided, That the total number of individuals detailed or assigned in this capacity may not exceed 50 during any fiscal year.

(8) CHANGES TO NON-HOMELAND SECURITY MISSIONS.—

(A) PROHIBITION.—The Secretary may not make any substantial or significant change to any of the non-homeland security missions of the Coast Guard, or to the capabilities of the Coast Guard to carry out each of the non-homeland security missions, without the prior approval of Congress as expressed in subsequent Act: Provided, That, with respect to a change to the capabilities of the mission areas to the readiness levels that existed before September 11, 2001; and
(ii) describes the services provided to the Department of Defense after September 11, 2001, states the cost of such services and identifies the Federal agency or agencies providing funds of those services.

(B) ANNUAL REPORT.—Within 30 days after the end of each fiscal year, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House a report identifying resource allocations on an hourly and monetary basis for each non-homeland security and homeland security Coast Guard mission for the fiscal year just ended.

(2) STRATEGIC PLAN.—(A) Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commandant of the Coast Guard shall submit a strategic plan to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House identifying targets for each Coast Guard mission for fiscal years 2003, 2004 and 2005 and the necessary targets to achieve those goals. Such plan shall also provide an analysis and recommendations for maximizing the efficient use of Federal resources and technologies to achieve all mission requirements.

(B) The Commandant shall consult with the Secretary of Commerce and other relevant agencies to ensure the plan provides for, e.g., coordinated development and application of communications and other technologies for use in meeting non-homeland security mission targets, such as conservation and management of living marine resources, and for setting priorities for fisheries enforcement.

(C) The Inspector General shall review the final plan, and provide an independent report with its views to the Committees within 90 days after the plan has been submitted by the Commandant.

(3) OPERATION AS A SERVICE IN THE NAVY.—None of the conditions and restrictions in this section shall apply when the Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy for non-homeland security and homeland security missions.

(d) Authorization to Share Grand Jury Information—
(1) AUTHORITY TO SHARE GRAND JURY INFORMATION.—Section 2332c(a) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—
(A) in clause (i)(V), by inserting after "national security official" the following: "or to law enforcement personnel of a State or political subdivision of a State (including the chief executive officer of that State or political subdivision who has the authority to appoint or direct the law enforcement officer of that State or political subdivision);"

(B) in clause (ii), by inserting "law enforcement personnel of a State or political subdivision of a State (including the chief executive officer of that State or political subdivision who has the authority to appoint or direct the law enforcement officer of that State or political subdivision)" after "local authorities";

(C) in paragraph (6)—
(i) in subparagraph (A), by inserting "or such law enforcement personnel of a State or political subdivision of a State (including the chief executive officer of that State or political subdivision) who has the authority to appoint or direct the chief law enforcement officer of that State or political subdivision)" after "States Code)."

TITLE VI—NATIONAL COMMISSION ON TERRORIST ATTACKS UPON THE UNITED STATES

SEC. 601. ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION.

There is established the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States (in this title referred to as the "Commission").

SEC. 602. PURPOSES.

The purposes of the Commission are to—

(1) examine and report upon the facts and circumstances surrounding the attacks on September 11, 2001, occurring at the World Trade Center in New York, New York and at the Pentagon in Virginia;

(2) ascertain, evaluate, and report on the evidence developed by all relevant government agencies regarding the facts and circumstances surrounding the attacks;

(3) build upon the investigations of other entities, and avoid unnecessary duplication, by reviewing the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of (A) the Joint Inquiry of the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives regarding the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001;

(B) other executive branch, congressional, or independent commission investigations into the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the 9/11 Commission Report; and

(4) make a full and complete accounting of the circumstances surrounding the attacks, and terrorism generally:

(a) conduct an investigation that—

(A) investigates relevant facts and circumstances relating to the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including any relevant legislation, Executive order, regulation, plan, policy, practice, or procedure; and

(B) may make relevant facts and circumstances relating to—

(i) intelligence agencies;

(ii) law enforcement agencies;

(iii) diplomacy;

(iv) immigration, nonimmigrant visas, and border control;

(v) the flow of assets to terrorist organizations;

(vi) commercial aviation; and

(vii) other areas of the public and private sectors determined relevant by the Commission for its inquiry;

(b) identify, review, and evaluate the lessons learned from the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, regarding the structure, function, and procedures of the Federal Government, and, if appropriate, State and local governments and nongovernmental entities, relative to detecting, preventing, and responding to such terrorist attacks; and

(c) submit to the President and Congress such reports as are required by that. In preparing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations as the Commission shall determine, including proposing organization, mission, funding, management arrangements, procedures, rules, and regulations.

SEC. 605. POWERS OF THE COMMISSION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Commission or, on the authority of the Commission, any subcommittee or member thereof, may, for the purpose of carrying out this title—

(1) hold such hearings at such times and places, and receive such evidence, administer such oaths; and

(2) require, by subpoena or otherwise, the appearance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, memoranda, papers, and documents, as the Commission or such designated subcommittee or designated member may direct.

(b) SUBPOENAS.—Subpoenas issued under paragraph (1)(B) may be issued under the signature of the chairperson of the Commission, the chairperson of any subcommittee created by a majority of the Commission, or an individual designated by a majority of the Commission, and may be served by any person designated by the chairperson, subcommittee chairperson, or member.

(c) ENFORCEMENT.—In the case of (1) refusal of any person to obey a subpoena issued under paragraph (1)(B), the United States district court for the judicial district in which the subpoenaed person resides, is served, or may be found, or where the subpoena is returnable, may issue an order requiring such person to appear at any designated place to testify or to produce documentary or other evidence. Any failure to obey the order of the court may be punished by the court as a contempt of that court.

(d) ADDITIONAL ENFORCEMENT.—In the case of the failure of any person to obey a subpoena or to testify when summoned under authority of this section, the Commission may, by majority vote, certify a state or local grand jury to the appropriate United States attorney, who may bring the matter before the grand jury for its action, under the same statutory authority and procedures as if the United States attorney had received a certification under sections 102 through 104 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (2 U.S.C. 192 through 194).

(b) CLOSED MEETINGS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Meetings of the Commission shall be closed to the public under section 552(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code, for the same period of time as provided under section 552(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code, for meetings of the United States attorney.

(2) ADDITIONAL AUTHORITY.—In addition to the authority under paragraph (1), section 106 of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (5 U.S.C. App.) shall not apply to any portion of a Commission meeting if the President determines that such portion or portions of that meeting is likely to disclose matters that could endanger national security. If the President makes such determination, the requirements relating to a determination under section 106(d) of that Act shall apply.

(c) CONTRACTING.—The Commission may, to such extent and in such amounts as are necessary, enter into contracts to enable the Commission to discharge its duties under this title.
The Administrator of General Services shall provide to the Commission on a reimbursable basis administrative support and other services for the performance of the Commission's functions.

This title may be cited as the "Homeland Security Information Sharing Act".

Section 03. FINDINGS AND SENSE OF CONGRESS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Federal Government is required by the Constitution to provide for the common defense, which includes terrorist attack.

(2) The Federal Government relies on State and local personnel to protect against terrorist attack.

(3) The Federal Government collects, creates, manages, and protects classified and sensitive but unclassified information to enhance homeland security.

(4) Some homeland security information is needed by the State and local personnel to prevent and prepare for terrorist attack.

(5) The needs of State and local personnel to have access to relevant homeland security information to combat terrorism must be reconciled with the need to preserve the protected status of such information and to protect the sources and methods used to acquire such information.

(b) PROCEDURES FOR SHARING OF HOMELAND SECURITY INFORMATION.—Under procedures prescribed by the President, all appropriate agencies, including the intelligence community, shall, through information sharing systems, share classified information with appropriate State and local personnel to the extent such information may be shared, as determined in accordance with subsection (a), together with assessments of the credibility of such information.

(1) Each information sharing system through which information is shared under paragraph (1) shall:

(A) have the capability to transmit unclassified or classified information, though the procedures and recipients for each capability may differ;

(B) have the capability to restrict delivery of information to specified subgroups by geographic location, type of organization, position of an organization or, if appropriate, a recipient's need to know such information;

(C) be configured to allow the efficient and effective sharing of information; and

(D) be accessible to appropriate State and local personnel.

(2) Each information sharing system shall establish conditions on the use of information shared under paragraph (1)—

(A) to limit the redissemination of such information to ensure that such information is not used for an unauthorized purpose;

(B) to ensure the security and confidentiality of such information;

(C) to protect the constitutional and statutory rights of any individuals who are subjects of such information; and

(D) to provide data integrity through the timely removal of obsolete or erroneous names and information.

(3) The procedures prescribed under paragraph (1) shall ensure, to the greatest extent practical, the sharing of homeland security information through which information is shared under such paragraph include existing information sharing systems, including, but not limited to, the National Law Enforcement Telecommunications System, the Regional Information Sharing System, and the Terrorist Threat Warning System of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(4) Each appropriate Federal agency, as determined by the President, shall have access to each information sharing system through which information is shared under paragraph (1), and shall therefore have access to all information, as appropriate, shared under such paragraph.

(5) The term "homeland security information" means any information possessed by a Federal, State, or local agency that—

(A) relates to the threat of terrorist activity;

(B) relates to the ability to prevent, interdict, or disrupt terrorist activity;

(C) would improve the identification or investigation of a suspected terrorist or terrorist organization; or

(D) would improve the response to a terrorist act.

(6) The term "intelligence community" has the meaning given such term in section 3(4) of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 401a(4)).

(7) The term "State and local personnel" means any of the following persons involved in prevention, preparation, or response for terrorist attack:

(A) State Governors, mayors, and other locally elected officials.

(B) State and local law enforcement personnel.

(C) Public health and medical professionals.

(D) Regional, State, and local emergency management agency personnel, including State adjutant generals.

(E) Other appropriate emergency response agency personnel.

(8) The term "Federal agency" means any agency of the Federal Government, including any executive department, independent agency, or national laboratory.

(9) The term "intelligence community" includes any independent agency, commission, or other entity that is engaged in the collection, analysis, and destruction of intelligence.

(b) PROCEDURES FOR SHARING OF HOMELAND SECURITY INFORMATION.—Under procedures prescribed by the President, all appropriate State and local personnel are authorized to use such information sharing systems:

(A) to access information shared with such personnel; and

(B) to share, with others who have access to such information sharing systems, the homeland security information of their own jurisdictions, which shall be marked appropriately as pertaining to potential terrorist activity.

(7) Under procedures prescribed jointly by the Director of Central Intelligence and the Attorney General, each appropriate Federal agency, as determined by the President, shall review and assess the information shared under paragraph (6) and integrate such information within the appropriate intelligence.

(c) SHARING OF CLASSIFIED INFORMATION AND SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED INFORMATION.—(1) The President shall prescribe procedures under which Federal agencies may, to the extent the President considers necessary, share appropriate State and local personnel homeland security information that remains classified or otherwise protected after the determinations prescribed under the procedures prescribed under paragraph (6) are made.

(2) It is the sense of Congress that such procedures may include one or more of the following means:

(A) Carrying out security clearance investigations with respect to appropriate State and local personnel.

(B) With respect to information that is sensitive but unclassified, entering into non-disclosure agreements with appropriate State and local personnel.

(C) Increased use of information-sharing partnerships that include appropriate State and local personnel, such as the Joint Terrorism Task Forces of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Joint Task Forces of the Department of Justice, and Regional Terrorism Early Warning Groups.

(D) Other appropriate means.

(3) The term "intelligence community" means any agency of the Federal Government, including any executive department, independent agency, or national laboratory, that is engaged in the collection, analysis, and destruction of intelligence.

(4) The term "State and local personnel" means any of the following persons involved in prevention, preparation, or response for terrorist attack:

(A) State Governors, mayors, and other locally elected officials.

(B) State and local law enforcement personnel.

(C) Public health and medical professionals.

(D) Regional, State, and local emergency management agency personnel, including State adjutant generals.

(E) Other appropriate emergency response agency personnel.

(5) The term "Federal agency" means any agency of the Federal Government, including any executive department, independent agency, or national laboratory.

(6) The term "intelligence community" includes any independent agency, commission, or other entity that is engaged in the collection, analysis, and destruction of intelligence.

(b) PROCEDURES FOR SHARING OF HOMELAND SECURITY INFORMATION.—Under procedures prescribed by the President, all appropriate State and local personnel are authorized to use such information sharing systems:

(A) to access information shared with such personnel; and

(B) to share, with others who have access to such information sharing systems, the homeland security information of their own jurisdictions, which shall be marked appropriately as pertaining to potential terrorist activity.

(7) Under procedures prescribed jointly by the Director of Central Intelligence and the Attorney General, each appropriate Federal agency, as determined by the President, shall review and assess the information shared under paragraph (6) and integrate such information within the appropriate intelligence.

(c) SHARING OF CLASSIFIED INFORMATION AND SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED INFORMATION.—(1) The President shall prescribe procedures under which Federal agencies may, to the extent the President considers necessary, share appropriate State and local personnel homeland security information that remains classified or otherwise protected after the determinations prescribed under the procedures prescribed under paragraph (6) are made.

(2) It is the sense of Congress that such procedures may include one or more of the following means:

(A) Carrying out security clearance investigations with respect to appropriate State and local personnel.

(B) With respect to information that is sensitive but unclassified, entering into non-disclosure agreements with appropriate State and local personnel.

(C) Increased use of information-sharing partnerships that include appropriate State and local personnel, such as the Joint Terrorism Task Forces of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Joint Task Forces of the Department of Justice, and Regional Terrorism Early Warning Groups.

(D) Other appropriate means.

(3) The term "intelligence community" includes any agency of the Federal Government, including any executive department, independent agency, or national laboratory, that is engaged in the collection, analysis, and destruction of intelligence.

(4) The term "State and local personnel" means any of the following persons involved in prevention, preparation, or response for terrorist attack:

(A) State Governors, mayors, and other locally elected officials.

(B) State and local law enforcement personnel.

(C) Public health and medical professionals.

(D) Regional, State, and local emergency management agency personnel, including State adjutant generals.

(E) Other appropriate emergency response agency personnel.

(5) The term "Federal agency" means any agency of the Federal Government, including any executive department, independent agency, or national laboratory.

(6) The term "intelligence community" includes any independent agency, commission, or other entity that is engaged in the collection, analysis, and destruction of intelligence.
this Act, the President shall submit to the congressional committees specified in subsection (b) a report on the implementation of section 93. The report shall include any recommendations for additional measures or appropriation requests, beyond the requirements of section 93, to increase the effectiveness of sharing of information among Federal, State, and local entities.

(b) SPECIFIED CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEES.—The congressional committees referred to in subsection (a) are the following:

(1) The Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence and the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives.

(2) The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate.

In division A, redesignate title VI as title VII, and redesignate section 701, and insert after title V the following new title:

TITLE VI—NATIONAL GUARD

SEC. 601. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the “Guaranteed a United and Resolute Defense Act of 2002” or the “GUARD Act of 2002.”

SECTION 6. FUNDING ASSISTANCE FOR HOMELAND SECURITY ACTIVITIES OF THE NATIONAL GUARD.

(a) In General.—Section 112a of title 32, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 112 the following new section:

“§ 112a. Homeland security activities

“(a) FUNDING ASSISTANCE.—(1) The Secretary of Defense may provide funds to the Governor of a State to provide to the Secretary a homeland security activities plan satisfying the requirements of subsection (b).

“(2) To be eligible for assistance under this subsection, a State shall have a homeland security activities plan in effect.

“(3) Any funds provided to a State under this subsection shall be used for the following:

“(A) Pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, travel, legal services, personnel costs, and equipment costs authorized by State law, of personnel of the National Guard of the State for service performed for the purpose of homeland security while not in Federal service.

“(B) Operation and maintenance of the equipment and facilities of the National Guard of the State that are used for the purpose of homeland security.

“(C) Procurement of services and the purchase or leasing of equipment for the National Guard of the State for use for the purpose of homeland security.

“(D) HOMELAND SECURITY ACTIVITIES PLAN REQUIREMENTS.—The homeland security activities plan of a State—

“(1) shall specify how personnel and equipment of the National Guard of the State are to be used in homeland security activities and include a detailed explanation of the reasons why the National Guard should be used for the specified activities;

“(2) shall describe in detail how any available National Guard training facilities, including any distance learning programs and projects, are to be used;

“(3) shall include the Governor’s certification that the activities under the plan are to be conducted at a time when the personnel involved are not in Federal service;

“(4) shall include the Governor’s certification that participation by National Guard personnel in the activities under the plan is service in addition to training required under section 592 of this title;

“(5) shall include a certification by the Attorney General of the State (or, in the case of a State with no position of Attorney General, a civilian official of the State equivalent to a State attorney general) that the use of the National Guard of the State for the activities proposed under the plan is authorized by, and is consistent with, State law;

“(6) shall include the Governor’s certification that the Governor or a civilian law enforcement official of the State designated by the Governor has determined that any activities to be carried out in conjunction with Federal law enforcement agencies under the plan serve a State law enforcement purpose; and

“(7) may provide for the use of personnel and equipment of the National Guard of that State to assist the Director of Immigration Affairs of the Department of Homeland Security in the transportation of aliens who have violated a Federal or State law prohibiting terrorist acts.

“(d) EXAMINATION AND APPROVAL OF PLAN.—The Secretary of Defense shall examine the adequacy of each homeland security activities plan of a State and, if the plan is determined adequate, approve the plan.

“(e) ANNUAL REPORT.—(1) The Secretary of Defense shall submit to Congress each year a report on the assistance provided for this section during the preceding fiscal year, including the activities carried out with such assistance.

“(2) The annual report under this subsection shall include the following:

“(A) A description of the homeland security activities conducted under the homeland security activities plans with funds provided under this section.

“(B) An accounting of the funds provided to each State under this section.

“(C) An analysis of the cost of personnel and equipment of the National Guard of the State to perform activities under the homeland security activities plans.

‘‘(e) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as limiting the authority of any official of the Service, the Immigration and Nationality Act for the placement of unaccompanied alien children. The Director is authorized to hire personnel to carry out the duties under paragraph (3), the Director shall have the power to—

(A) contract with service providers to perform the services described in sections 1222, 1223, 1231, and 1232; and

(B) compel compliance with the terms and conditions set forth in section 1223, including the power to terminate the contracts of providers that are not in compliance with such conditions and reassign any unaccompanied alien child to a similar facility that is in compliance with such conditions.

(5) AUTHORITY TO HIRE PERSONNEL.—The Director is authorized to hire and fix the level of compensation of an adequate number of personnel to carry out the duties of the Office. In hiring such personnel, the Director may seek the assistance of, relevant federal agencies employed by the Department of Justice in connection with the functions transferred by section 1213.

(b) NO EFFECT ON SERVICE, EOIR, AND DEPARTMENT OF STATE ADJUDICATORY RESPONSIBILITIES.—Nothing in this title may be construed to transfer the responsibility for adjudicating benefit determinations under the Immigration and Nationality Act from the authority of any official of the Service, the Executive Office of Immigration Review (or successor entity), or the Department of State.

SEC. 1212. ESTABLISHMENT OF INTERAGENCY TASK FORCE ON UNACCOMPANIED ALIEN CHILDREN.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established an Interagency Task Force on Unaccompanied Alien Children.

(b) COMPOSITION.—The Task Force shall consist of the following members:

(1) The Assistant Secretary, Administration for Children and Families, Department of Health and Human Services.

(2) The Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization (or, upon the effective date of title XI, the Under Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security for Immigration Affairs).

(3) The Assistant Secretary of State for Population, Refugees, and Migration.

(4) The Director.

(5) Such other officials in the executive branch of Government as may be designated by the President.

(c) CHAIRMAN.—The Task Force shall be chaired by the Assistant Secretary, Administration for Children and Families, Department of Health and Human Services.

minations, rules, regulations, permits, grants, loans, contracts, recognition of labor organizations, agreements, including collective bargaining agreements, certificates, licenses, and privileges—
(1) that have been issued, made, granted, allowed to become effective by the President, Attorney General, the Commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, their delegates, or any other Government official, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, in the performance of any function that is transferred pursuant to this section; and
(2) that are in effect on the effective date of such transfer (or become effective after such date pursuant to their terms as in effect on such effective date); shall continue in effect according to their terms until the effective date of division A of this Act.
(2) Special rule for contiguous countries.—
Any child who is a national or habitual resident of a country that is contiguous with the United States and that has an agreement in writing with the United States providing for the safe return and admittance of unaccompanied alien children who are nationals or habitual residents of such country shall be treated in accordance with the provisions of this section. The Director shall promptly make arrangements that a child in the custody of the been retained or assumed by the Service pursuant to paragraph (1) (B) or (C), immediately following a determination that the child no longer meets the description set forth in such paragraph.

(B) Transfer to the service.—Upon deter-mation that a child in the custody of the Of-ice, the Director shall retain or assume the custody and care of any unaccompanied aliens who—
(i) the child cannot make an independent determination of whether such child enhances the national security of the United States.
(C) Age determination.—In any case in which the age of an alien is in question and the resolution of questions about such alien’s age would affect the alien’s eligibility for treatment under the provisions of this title, a determination of whether such alien meets the age requirements of this title shall be made in accordance with the provisions

Subtitle B—Establishment of Directorates and Offices

SEC. 131. DIRECTORATE OF BORDER AND TRANSPORTATION PROTECTION.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Department the Directorate of Border and Transportation Protection.

(b) UNDER SECRETARY.—There shall be an Under Secretary for Border and Transportation Protection, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

(c) EXERCISE OF CUSTOMS REVENUE FUNCTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) AUTHORITIES NOT TRANSFERRED.—Authority that was vested in the Secretary of the Treasury by law to issue regulations relating to customs revenue functions before the effective date of this section under the provisions of law set forth under paragraph (2) shall not be transferred to the Secretary of this Act. The Secretary of the Treasury, with the concurrence of the Secretary, shall exercise this authority. The Commissioner of Customs is authorized to engage in activities to develop and support the issuance of the regulations described in this paragraph. The Secretary shall be responsible for the implementation and enforcement of regulations issued under this section.

(B) REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Treasury shall submit a report to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives of proposed conforming amendments to the statutes set forth under paragraph (2) in order to determine appropriate allocation of legal authorities described under this subsection. The Secretary of the Treasury shall also identify those authorities vested in the Secretary of the Treasury that are exercised by the Commissioner of Customs on or before the effective date of this section.

(C) LIABILITY.—Neither the Secretary of the Treasury nor the Department of the Treasury shall be liable for or named in any legal action concerning the implementation and enforcement of regulations issued under this paragraph on or after the date on which the United States Customs Service is transferred under this division.

(2) APPLICABLE LAWS.—The provisions of law referred to in paragraph (1) are those sections of the following statutes that relate to customs revenue functions:

(B) Section 249 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (19 U.S.C. 3).

(C) Section 2 of the Act of March 4, 1923 (19 U.S.C. 6).

(E) Section 251 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (19 U.S.C. 66).

(G) The Foreign Trade Zones Act (19 U.S.C. 81a et seq.).

(H) Section 1 of the Act of March 2, 1911 (19 U.S.C. 191).

(L) The Uruguay Round Agreement Act (19 U.S.C. 3501 et seq.).

(P) Any other provision of law vesting customs revenue functions in the Secretary of the Treasury.

(3) DESIGNATION OF CUSTOMS REVENUE FUNCTIONS.—In this subsection, the term “customs revenue functions” means—

(A) assessing, collecting, and refunding duties (including any special duties), excise taxes, fees, and any liquidated damages or penalties due on imported merchandise, including classifying and valuing merchandise and the procedures for “entry” as that term is defined in the United States Customs laws;

(B) administering section 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930 and provisions relating to imports and the marking of imported merchandise, and providing Customs Recordations for copyrights, patents, and trademarks; and

(C) collecting accurate import data for compilation of international trade statistics; and
(D) administering reciprocal trade agreements and trade preference legislation;

(d) Preserving Coast Guard Mission Performance.

(1) Definitions.—In this subsection:

(A) Non-homeland security missions.—The term ‘non-homeland security missions’ means the following missions of the Coast Guard:

(i) Maritime safety.

(ii) Search and rescue.

(iii) Aid to navigation.

(iv) Living marine resources (fisheries law enforcement).

(v) Marine environmental protection.

(vi) Law enforcement.

(2) Maintenance of Status of Functions and Assets.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the authorities, functions, assets, organizational structure, units, personnel, and non-homeland security missions of the Coast Guard shall be maintained intact after the transfer of the Coast Guard to the Department, except as specified in subsequent Acts.

(3) Certain Transfers Prohibited.—None of the transfers of functions, personnel, and assets (including for purposes of this subsection ships, aircraft, helicopters, and vehicles) of the Coast Guard may be transferred to the operational control of, or diverted to the principal and continuing use of, any other organization, unit, or entity of the Department.

(4) Transfers to Non-homeland Security Missions.—

(A) Prohibition.—The Secretary may not make any substantial or significant change to any of the non-homeland security missions of the Coast Guard, or to the capabilities of the Coast Guard to carry out each of the non-homeland security missions, without the prior approval of Congress as expressed in a subsequent Act.

(B) Waiver.—The President may waive the restrictions under subparagraph (A) for a period of not to exceed 90 days upon a declaration and certification by the President to Congress that a clear, compelling, and immediate emergency exists that justifies such a waiver. A certification under this paragraph shall include a detailed justification for the declaration and certification after taking into account the reasons and specific information that demonstrate that the Nation and the Coast Guard cannot respond effectively to the national emergency if the restrictions under subparagraph (A) are not waived.

(5) Annual Review.—

(A) In General.—The Inspector General of the Department shall conduct an annual review that shall assess thoroughly the performance by the Coast Guard of all missions of the Coast Guard (including non-homeland security missions and homeland security missions) with a particular emphasis on examining the non-homeland security missions.

(B) Report.—The report under this paragraph shall be submitted not later than March 1 of each year to

(i) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate;

(ii) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives;

(iii) the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives;

(iv) the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate; and

(v) the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives.

(6) Direct Reporting to Secretary.—Upon the transfer of the Coast Guard to the Department, the Commandant shall report directly to the Secretary without being required to report through any other official of the Department.

(7) Operation as a Service in the Navy.—None of the conditions and restrictions in this subsection shall apply when the Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy under section 3 of title 14, United States Code.

SEC. 132. Directorate of Intelligence.

(a) Establishment.—There is established within the Department a Directorate of Intelligence which shall serve as a national-level focal point for information available to the United States Government relating to the plans, intentions, and capabilities of terrorists and terrorist organizations for the purpose of supporting the mission of the Department.

The Directorate of Immigration Affairs shall be established and shall carry out all functions of that Directorate in accordance with division B of this Act.

SEC. 137. Office for State, and Local Government Coordination.

(a) Establishment.—There is established within the Office of the Secretary the Office for State and Local Government Coordination, to oversee and coordinate departmental programs for and relationships with State and local governments.

(b) Responsibilities.—The Office established under subsection (a) shall—

(1) coordinate the activities of the Department relating to State and local government;

(2) assess, and advocate for, the resources needed by State and local government to implement the national strategy for combating terrorism;

(3) provide State and local government with regular information, research, and technical support to assist local efforts at securing the homeland; and

(4) develop a process for receiving meaningful input from State and local government to assist the development of the national strategy for combating terrorism and other homeland security activities.

(c) Homeland Security Liaison Officers.

(1) Chief Homeland Security Liaison Officer.—

(a) Appointment.—The Secretary shall appoint a Chief Homeland Security Liaison Officer to coordinate the activities of the Homeland Security Liaison Officers, designated under paragraph (2).

(b) Annual Report.—The Chief Homeland Security Liaison Officer shall prepare an annual report, that contains—

(i) a description of the current State and local priorities in each of the 50 States based on discovered needs of first responder organizations, including law enforcement agencies, fire and rescue agencies, medical providers, emergency service providers, and relief agencies;

(ii) a needs assessment that identifies homeland security functions in which the Federal role is duplicative of the State or local role, and recommendations to decrease or eliminate inefficiencies between the Federal Government and State and local entities;

(iii) recommendations to Congress regarding the creation, expansion, or elimination of any program to assist State and local entities to carry out their respective functions under the Department; and

(v) the location of Department headquarters, including a timeframe for relocating to the new location, an estimate of cost for this relocation, and information about all personnel of the various agencies that will be located at headquarters;
(vi) unexpended funds and assets, liabilities, and personnel that will be transferred, and the proposed actions and disposition within the Department; and
(vii) the costs of implementing the transition;
(B) with respect to human capital planning—
(i) a description of the workforce planning undertaken for the Department, including the projected demands and competencies available to the Department, to identify any gaps, and to plan for the training, recruitment, and retention policies necessary to develop and retain a workforce to meet the needs of the Department;
(ii) the past and anticipated future record of the Department with respect to recruiting, hiring, and retaining personnel; plans or progress reports on the utilization by the Department of existing personnel flexibility, provided by law or through regulations of the President and the Office of Personnel Management, to achieve the human capital needs of the Department; and
(iv) the separation and reassignment of redundant employees within the Department resulting from the consolidation under this division of functions, entities, and personnel previously covered by disparate personnel systems; and
(v) efforts to address the disparities under clause (iv) using existing personnel flexibility;
(C) with respect to information technology—
(i) an assessment of the existing and planned information systems of the Department; and
(ii) a report on the development and implementation of enterprise architecture and of the plan to achieve interoperability;
(D) with respect to programmatic implementation—
(i) progress in implementing the programmatic responsibilities of this division;
(ii) the progress in implementing the mission of each entity, organizational unit, and function transferred to the Department;
(iii) recommendations of any other governmental entities, organizational units, or functions that need to be incorporated into the Department in order for the Department to function effectively; and
(iv) recommendations of any entities, organizational units, or functions not related to homeland security transferred to the Department that need to be transferred from the Department or terminated for the Department to function effectively;
(d) LEGISLATIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.—
(1) Inclusion in report.—The Secretary, after consultation with the appropriate committees, shall include in the report under this section, recommendations for legislation that the Secretary determines is necessary to—
(A) facilitate the integration of transferred entities, organizational units, and functions into the Department;
(B) reorganize agencies, executive positions, and the assignment of functions within the Department;
(C) address any inequitable disparities in pay or working conditions among employees within the Department resulting from the consolidation of agencies, functions, and personnel previously covered by a law or by or against any agency, or by or against any individual in the official capacity of such individual as an officer of an agency, that will be abated by reason of the enactment of this title; and
(E) otherwise help further the mission of the Department; and
(F) make technical and conforming amendments to existing law to reflect the changes made by titles of this Act.
(2) Separate submission of proposed legislation.—The Secretary may submit the proposed legislation under paragraph (1) to Congress before submitting the balance of the report under this section.
SEC. 183. SAVINGS PROVISIONS.
(a) CONTINUING EFFECT OF LEGAL DOCUMENTS.—All orders, determinations, rules, regulations, permits, agreements, grants, contracts, recognitions of labor organizations, collective bargaining agreements, certificates, licenses, registrations, privileges, and other administrative actions—
(1) which have been issued, made, granted, or allowed to become effective by the President, the Secretary, or any other duly authorized official, by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law; or
(2) which are in effect at the time this division takes effect, or were before the effective date of this division and are to become effective on or after the effective date of this division;
shall, to the extent related to such functions, continue in effect according to their terms until modified, terminated, superseded, canceled, or rescinded in accordance with law by the President, the Secretary or other authorized official, or a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law.
(b) PROCEEDINGS NOT AFFECTED.—The provisions of this title shall not affect any proceedings, including notices of proposed rulemaking, or any application for any license, permit, or other authorization, pending before an agency at the time this title takes effect, with respect to functions transferred by this title but such proceedings may be updated and conditions and requirements shall be issued in such proceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and payments shall be made pursuant to such orders, as if this title had not been enacted. In any such proceedings shall continue in effect until modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by a duly authorized official, by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law. Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to prohibit the discontinuance or modification of any such proceeding under this title until the same extent that such proceeding could have been discontinued or modified if this title had not been enacted.
(c) SUITS NOT AFFECTED.—The provisions of this title shall not affect suits commenced before the effective date of this division, and in all such suits, proceedings shall be had, appeals shall be taken, and orders issued in the same manner and with the same effect as if this title had not been enacted.
(d) NONABATEMENT OF ACTIONS.—No suit, action, or proceeding commenced by or against an agency, or by or against any individual in the official capacity of such individual as an officer of an agency, shall be abated by reason of the enactment of this title.
(e) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTIONS RELATING TO PROMULGATION OF REGULATIONS.—Any administrative action relating to the preparation or promulgation of a regulation by an agency relating to a function transferred under this title may be continued by the Department resulting from the consolidation of agencies, functions, and personnel previously covered by a law or by or against any agency, or by or against any individual in the official capacity of such individual as an officer of an agency, that will be abated by reason of the enactment of this title; and
(f) EMPLOYMENT AND PERSONNEL.—
(1) EMPLOYMENT RIGHTS.—
(A) TRANSFERRED AGENCIES.—The Department, in a subdivision of the Department, that includes an entity or organizational unit, or subdivision thereof, transferred under this Act, or performs functions transferred under this Act, shall not be excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, as a result of any order issued under section 7102(b)(1) of title 5, United States Code, after July 19, 2002.
(B) TRANSFERRED EMPLOYEES.—An employee transferred to the Department under this Act, who was in an appropriate unit under section 7112(b) of title 5, United States Code, prior to the transfer, shall not be excluded from a unit under subsection (b)(6) of that section unless
(i) the primary job duty of the employee is materially changed after the transfer; and
(ii) the primary job duty of the employee after such change consists of intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to the investigation of terrorism, if it is clearly demonstrated that membership in a unit and coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, cannot be applied in a manner that would not have a substantial adverse effect on national security.
(C) TRANSFERRED FUNCTIONS.—An employee of the Department who is primarily engaged in carrying out a function transferred to the Department under this Act, for which substantially similar to a function so transferred shall not be excluded from a unit under section 7112(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code, unless the function prior to the transfer was performed by an employee excluded from a unit under that section.
(D) OTHER AGENCIES, EMPLOYEES, AND FUNCTIONS.—
(i) EXCLUSION OF SUBDIVISION.—Subject to paragraph (A), a subdivision of the Department shall not be excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, under section 7103(b)(1) of that title unless
(A) the subdivision has, as a primary function, intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to terrorism investigation; and
(B) the provisions of that chapter cannot be applied to that subdivision in a manner consistent with national security requirements and considerations.
(ii) EXCLUSION OF EMPLOYEES.—Subject to subparagraphs (A) and (C), an employee of the Department shall not be excluded from a unit under section 7112(b)(6) of title 5, United States Code, unless the primary job duty of the employee consists of intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to terrorism; and
(iii) the provisions of that chapter cannot be applied to that employee in a manner consistent with national security requirements and considerations.
(E) EXCLUSION.—Subparagraphs (A) through (D) shall not apply to any entity or organizational unit, or subdivision thereof, transferred to the Department under this Act, that includes an entity or organizational unit under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, after July 19, 2002.
the terms and conditions of employment, including compensation, of any employee so transferred.

(3) CONDITIONS AND CRITERIA FOR APPOINTMENT.—The President shall designate the persons to be appointed to positions under this section, and the criteria required by law for appointments to a position in an agency, or subdivision thereof, transferred to the Department under this title, and shall ensure that an appointment be made by the President, and by the Senate, in accordance with section 3302(b) of title 31, United States Code.

(4) WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION.—The President may not exercise any function, or authority, or discretion vested in him by law in this section or any other provision of law, with respect to the appointment, duties, powers, or responsibilities of an employee or official of the Department.

(g) NO EFFECT ON INTELLIGENCE AUTHORITIES.—The transfer of authorities, functions, personnel, and assets of elements of the National Security System to the Department under this title, or the assumption of such authorities and functions by the Department under this title, shall not affect the transfer of authorities, or the assumption of such authorities, functions, personnel, and assets engaged in intelligence activities as defined in the National Security Act of 1947, or affect any functions of the Central Intelligence Agency, the Department of Defense, or the President, or any other authority of the United States established by law for the purpose of conducting intelligence activities.

(h) USE OF APPROPRIATED FUNDS.—(a) APPLICABILITY OF THIS SECTION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or any other law, this section shall apply to all transfers of funds, property, and personnel, under this Act, and to all actions taken, before or after the effective date of this Act, to facilitate the transfer of funds, property, and personnel, under this Act, to the Department.

(b) USE OF TRANSFERRED FUNDS.—Except as may be provided in an appropriation Act in accordance with subsection (d), balances of appropriations and any other funds or assets transferred under this Act—

(1) shall be available only for the purposes for which they were originally available;

(2) shall remain subject to the same conditions and limitations provided by the law originally appropriating or otherwise making available the amount, including limitations and notification requirements related to the reprogramming of appropriated funds; and

(3) shall not be used to fund any new position established under this Act.

(c) NOTIFICATION REGARDING TRANSFERS.—The President shall notify Congress not less than 15 days before any transfer of any appropriation balances, other funds, or assets under this Act.

(d) ADDITIONAL USES OF FUNDS DURING TRANSITION.—Subject to subsection (c), amounts transferred to, or otherwise made available to, the Department may be used during the transition period for purposes in addition to those for which they were originally available (including by transfer among accounts of the Department), but only to the extent such transfer or use is specifically permitted in advance in an appropriations Act and only under the conditions and for the purposes specified in such appropriations Act.

(e) DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY.—(1) STRICT COMPLIANCE.—If specifically authorized to dispose of real property in this or any other Act, the Secretary shall exercise this authority in strict compliance with section 204 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 485).

(2) DEPOSIT OF PROCEEDS.—The Secretary shall deposit the proceeds of any exercise of property disposal authority into the miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury in accordance with section 3302(b) of title 31, United States Code.

(f) GIFTS.—Gifts or donations of services or property of or for the Department may not be accepted, or disposed of, unless specifically permitted in advance in an appropriations Act and only under the conditions and for the purposes specified in such appropriations Act.

(g) BUDGET REQUEST.—Under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, the President shall submit to Congress a detailed budget request for the Department for fiscal year 2004.

Subtitle F—Administrative Provisions SECTION 191. REORGANIZATIONS AND DELEGATIONS.

(a) REORGANIZATION AUTHORITY.—(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may, as necessary and appropriate—

(A) allocate, reallocate, and realign functions of the Department; and

(B) establish, consolidate, alter, or discontinue organizational entities within the Department.

(2) LIMITATION.—Paragraph (1) does not apply to—

(A) any office, bureau, unit, or other entity established by law and transferred to the Department;

(B) any function vested by law in an entity referred to in subparagraph (A) or vested by law in an officer of such an entity; or

(C) the alteration of the assignment or delegation of functions assigned by this Act to any officer or organizational entity of the Department.

(b) DELEGATION AUTHORITY.—(1) SECRETARY.—The Secretary may—

(A) delegate any of the functions of the Secretary; and

(B) authorize successive redelegations of functions of the Secretary to other officers and employees of the Department.

(2) OFFICERS.—An officer of the Department may—

(A) delegate any function assigned to the officer by law; and

(B) authorize successive redelegations of functions of the officer by law to other officers and employees of the Department.

(c) NOTIFICATION REGARDING TRANSFERS.—The President shall notify Congress not less than 15 days before any transfer of any appropriation balances, other funds, or assets under this Act.

SEC. 192. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

(a) ANNUAL EVALUATIONS.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall monitor and evaluate the implementation of the Annual Performance Plan for the Department and the homeland security related activities of the Department, every 3 years.

(1) PERFORMANCE PLAN.—The Secretary shall—

(A) prepare an annual performance plan for the Department and the homeland security related activities of the Department; and

(B) report the performance plan to Congress not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act.

(2) PERFORMANCE REPORT.—The Secretary shall report to Congress an annual performance report for the Department and the homeland security related activities of the Department, not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act.

(3) REPORTS.—The Secretary shall—

(A) prepare a report to Congress on the implementation of the performance plan for the Department and the homeland security related activities of the Department;

(B) report the performance report to Congress not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act; and

(C) report to Congress an annual performance report for the Department and the homeland security related activities of the Department, not later than 1 year after the effective date of this Act.

(b) ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION, SAFETY, AND HEALTH REQUIREMENTS.

The Secretary shall—

(1) ensure that the Department complies with all applicable environmental, safety, and health statutes and regulations; and

(2) develop procedures for meeting such requirements.

SEC. 193. LABOR STANDARDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—All laborers and mechanics engaged in the performance of construction work financed in whole or in part with assistance received under this Act shall be paid wages at rates not less than those prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act (40 U.S.C. 276a et seq.).

(b) SECRETARY OF LABOR.—The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the enforceable standards under subsection (a), the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Number 14 of 1950 (5 U.S.C. App.) and section 2 of the Act of June 16, 1946 (48 Stat. 948, chapter 482; 40 U.S.C. 276c).

SEC. 195. PRESERVING NON-HOMELAND SECURITY MISSIONS AND RESPONSIBILITIES.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE.—The term ‘‘critical infrastructure’’ has the meaning given that term in section 1016(e) of the USA PATRIOT ACT of 2001 (42 U.S.C. 2138c).

(2) FURNISHED VOLUNTARILY.—

(A) DEFINITION.—The term ‘‘furnished voluntarily’’ means a submission of a record that—

(i) is made to the Department in the absence of authority of the Department requiring that record to be submitted; and

(ii) is not submitted or used to satisfy any legal requirement or obligation or to obtain any grant, benefit, service (such as agency forbearance, loans, or reduction or modification of agency penalties or rulings), or other approval from the Government.

(B) BENEFIT.—In this paragraph, the term ‘‘benefit’’ does not include any warning, alert, or other risk analysis by the Department.

(b) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a record pertaining to critical infrastructure (such as attacks, response, and recovery efforts) that is furnished voluntarily to the Department shall not be made available under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, if—

(1) the provider would not customarily make the record available to the public and

(2) the record is designated and certified by the provider, in a manner specified by the Department, as confidential and not customarily made available to the public.

(c) RECORDS SHARED WITH OTHER AGENCIES.

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) RESPONSE TO REQUEST.—An agency in receipt of a record that was furnished voluntarily to the Department shall provide to the person requesting the record after deletion of any portion which is exempt under this section.

(B) SHREDDABLE PORTION OF RECORD.—Any reasonably segregable portion of a record shall be provided to the person requesting the record after deletion of any portion which is exempt under this section.

(d) DISCLOSURE OF INDEPENDENTLY FURNISHED RECORDS.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), nothing in this section shall prohibit an agency from making available under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, any record that the agency receives independently of the Department, regardless of whether or not the Department has a similar or identical record.

(e) WITHDRAWAL OF CONFIDENTIAL DESIGNATION.—The provider of a record that is furnished voluntarily to the Department under subsection (b) may at any time withdraw, in a manner specified by the Department, the confidential designation.

(f) PROCUREMENT.—The Secretary shall prescribe procedures for—

(1) the acknowledgement of receipt of records furnished voluntarily;

(2) the designation, certification, and marking of records furnished voluntarily as confidential and not customarily made available to the public;

(3) the care and storage of records furnished voluntarily;

(4) the protection and maintenance of the confidentiality of records furnished voluntarily; and

(5) the withdrawal of the confidential designation of records under subsection (d).

(g) REPORT.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Committees of Congress specified in paragraph (2) a report on the implementation and use of this section, including—

(A) the number of persons in the private sector, and the number of State and local agencies, that furnished voluntarily records to the Department under this section;

(B) recommendations as the Comptroller General considers appropriate regarding improvements in the collection and analysis of sensitive information held by persons in the private sector, or by State and local agencies, relating to vulnerabilities and threats to critical infrastructure, including the response to such vulnerabilities and threats;

(C) such recommendations as the Comptroller General considers appropriate regarding improvements in the collection and analysis of sensitive information held by persons, or by State and local agencies, relating to vulnerabilities and threats to critical infrastructure, including the response to such vulnerabilities and threats;

(2) COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS.—The committees of Congress specified in this paragraph are—

(A) the Committees on the Judiciary and Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(B) the Committees on the Judiciary and Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives.

(h) LIMITATIONS.—The report shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

SEC. 196. FUTURE YEARS HOMELAND SECURITY PROGRAM.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE.—The term ‘‘critical infrastructure’’ has the meaning given that term in section 1016(e) of the USA PATRIOT ACT of 2001 (42 U.S.C. 2138c).

(2) STORAGE.—The term ‘‘storage’’ means the performance of the entity in all of its activities, recruitment and retention programs, modernization programs, projects, and annual fiscal resources to enable the entity to accomplish its non-homeland security missions without any diminishment; and

(t) functions, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, capabilities, personnel assets, and other approval from the Government.

(b) IN GENERAL.—For each entity transferred into the Department that has non-homeland security functions, the respective Under Secretary in charge, in conjunction with the head of such entity, shall report to the Secretary, the Comptroller General, and the appropriate committees of Congress on the performance of the entity in all of its missions, with a particular emphasis on examining the continued level of performance of the non-homeland security missions.

(c) CONTENTS.—The report referred to in subsection (a) shall—

(1) to the greatest extent possible, provide an inventory of the non-homeland security functions, the respective Under Secretary, and identify the capabilities of the entity with respect to those functions, including—

(A) the number of employees who carry out those functions;

(B) the budget for those functions; and

(C) the flexibilities, personnel or otherwise, currently used to carry out those functions;

(2) contain information related to the roles, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, capabilities, personnel assets, and other approval from the Government.

(3) contain information regarding whether any changes are required to the roles, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, modernization programs, projects, activities, recruitment and retention programs, and annual fiscal resources to enable the entity to accomplish its non-homeland security missions without diminishment.

(c) REPORT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a record pertaining to critical infrastructure (such as attacks, response, and recovery efforts) that is furnished voluntarily to the Department shall not be made available under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, if—

(1) the provider would not customarily make the record available to the public and

(2) the record is designated and certified by the provider, in a manner specified by the Department, as confidential and not customarily made available to the public.

(d) RECORDS SHARED WITH OTHER AGENCIES.

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) RESPONSE TO REQUEST.—An agency in receipt of a record that was furnished voluntarily to the Department and subsequently shared with the agency shall, upon receipt of a request under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, for the record—

(i) not make the record available; and

(ii) refer the request to the Department for processing and response in accordance with this section.

(B) SHREDDABLE PORTION OF RECORD.—Any reasonably segregable portion of a record shall be provided to the person requesting the record after deletion of any portion which is exempt under this section.

(e) DISCLOSURE OF INDEPENDENTLY FURNISHED RECORDS.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), nothing in this section shall prohibit an agency from making available under section 552 of title 5, United States Code, any record that the agency receives independently of the Department, regardless of whether or not the Department has a similar or identical record.

(f) WITHDRAWAL OF CONFIDENTIAL DESIGNATION.—The provider of a record that is furnished voluntarily to the Department under subsection (b) may at any time withdraw, in a manner specified by the Department, the confidential designation.

(g) PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall prescribe procedures for—

(1) the acknowledgement of receipt of records furnished voluntarily;

(2) the designation, certification, and marking of records furnished voluntarily as confidential and not customarily made available to the public;

(3) the care and storage of records furnished voluntarily;

(4) the protection and maintenance of the confidentiality of records furnished voluntarily; and

(5) the withdrawal of the confidential designation of records under subsection (d).

(h) REPORT.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Committees of Congress specified in paragraph (2) a report on the implementation and use of this section, including—

(A) the number of persons in the private sector, and the number of State and local agencies, that furnished voluntarily records to the Department under this section;

(B) recommendations as the Comptroller General considers appropriate regarding improvements in the collection and analysis of sensitive information held by persons in the private sector, or by State and local agencies, relating to vulnerabilities and threats to critical infrastructure, including the response to such vulnerabilities and threats;

(C) such recommendations as the Comptroller General considers appropriate regarding improvements in the collection and analysis of sensitive information held by persons, or by State and local agencies, relating to vulnerabilities and threats to critical infrastructure, including the response to such vulnerabilities and threats;

(2) COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS.—The committees of Congress specified in this paragraph are—

(A) the Committees on the Judiciary and Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

(B) the Committees on the Judiciary and Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives.

(form.)—The report shall be submitted in unclassified form, but may include a classified annex.

TITLE DISASTER RELIEF AND EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE

SEC. 01. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ‘‘Homeland Security Block Grant Act of 2002’’.

SEC. 02. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) in the wake of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on our country, communities across the United States found themselves on the front lines in the war against terrorism on United States soil.

(2) We recognize that these communities will be forced to shoulder a significant portion of the burden that goes along with that responsibility. We believe that local governments should not have to bear that responsibility alone.

(3) Our homeland defense will only be as strong as the weakest link at the State and local level. By providing our communities with the resources and tools they need to bolster emergency response efforts and provide for other emergency response initiatives in their areas, we will prepare our homeland for a new America.

SEC. 03. DEFINITIONS

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this title:

(1) USE OF THE TERM ‘‘DIRECTOR’’ MEANS THE DIRECTOR OF THE FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY (FEMA).

(2) CITY.—The term ‘‘city’’ means any consolidated city that is classified as a municipality by the United States Bureau of the Census; or

(3) URBAN COUNTY.—The term ‘‘urban county’’ means any city, county, town, township, parish, village, or other general purpose political subdivision of a State; a combination of such political subdivisions is recognized by the Director; and the District of Columbia.

(b) BASIS AND MODIFICATION OF DEFINITIONS.—Where appropriate, the definitions in subsection (a) shall be based, with respect to any fiscal year, on the most recent data compiled by the United States Bureau of the Census and referable to the same point or period of time.

(1) DEFINITION.—The term ‘‘State’’ means any State of the United States, or any instrumentality thereof approved by the Governor; and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Samoa, Guam, and the Northern Mariana Islands.

(b) UNIT OF GENERAL LOCAL GOVERNMENT.—The term ‘‘unit of general local government’’ means any city, county, town, township, parish, village, or other general purpose political subdivision of a State; a combination of such political subdivisions is recognized by the Director; and the District of Columbia.

(c) DESIGNATION OF PUBLIC AGENCIES.—One or more public agencies, including existing Federal agencies, operating under the direction of the chief executive officer of a State or a unit of general local government to undertake activities assisted under this title.

(d) LOCAL GOVERNMENTS, INCLUSION IN URBAN COUNTY POPULATION.—With respect to program years beginning with the program year for which grants are made available from amounts appropriated for fiscal year 2002 under section 604(c) as an urban county, the term ‘‘urban county’’ includes the city, town, or township that is recognized by the chief executive officer of a State or a unit of general local government to undertake activities assisted under this title.

(e) COUNTY GOVERNMENT.—Any county seeking qualification as an urban county, including any county seeking to continue such qualification, shall notify, as provided in this subsection, each unit of general local government to undertake activities assisted under this title.

(f) UNIT OF GENERAL LOCAL GOVERNMENT.—The term ‘‘urban county’’ means any county within a metropolitan statistical area as defined in the United States Code, prior to the repeal of such chapter.

(g) METROPOLITAN AREA.—The term ‘‘metropolitan area’’ means a standard metropolitan statistical area as established by the Office of Management and Budget.

(h) METROPOLITAN CITY.—The term ‘‘metropolitan city’’ means—

(i) a city within a metropolitan area that is the central city of such area, as defined by the Office of Management and Budget; or

(ii) any other city, within a metropolitan area, which has a population of eighty thousand or more.

(i) PERIOD OF CLASSIFICATION.—Any city that was classified as a metropolitan city for at least 2 years for any 2 program years beginning with the program year in which its population was first so included and shall not otherwise be eligible for a grant as a separate entity, unless the urban county does not receive a grant for any year during such three-year period.

(j) URBAN COUNTY.—Any county seeking qualification as an urban county, including any county seeking to continue such qualification, shall notify, as provided in this subsection, each unit of general local government, which is included therein and is eligible to elect to have its population excluded from that of an urban county, of its opportunity to make such an election. Such notification shall, at a time and in a manner prescribed by the Director, be provided so as to provide a reasonable period for response prior to the period for which such qualification is sought. The population of any unit of general local government which is provided such notification and which does not inform, at a time and in a manner prescribed by the Director, the county of its election to exclude its population from that of the county shall, at a time and in a manner prescribed by the Director, be included in the population of such urban county as provided in subsection (d).
SEC. 04. GRANTS TO STATES, UNITS OF GENERAL LOCAL GOVERNMENT AND INDIAN TRIBES; AUTHORIZATIONS.

The Director, working in consultation with the Attorney General is authorized to make grants to States, units of general local government, and Indian tribes to carry out activities with the provision of this title. For purposes of assistance under section 07, there is authorized to be appropriated $3,000,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2003, 2004, and such additional sums as are authorized thereafter. For purposes of assistance under section 08, there is authorized to be appropriated $500,000,000 in fiscal year 2003, and such sums as are authorized thereafter.

SECTION 05. STATEMENT OF ACTIVITIES AND REVIEW.

(a) APPLICATION.—Prior to the receipt in any fiscal year of a grant under section 07(b) by any metropolitan city or urban county, as determined in section 07(d), the statement of projected use of funds shall consist of proposed homeland security activities. In the case of States receiving grants pursuant to section 07(d), the statement of projected use of funds shall consist of the method by which the States will distribute funds to units of general local government. In preparing the statement, the grantee shall consider any view of appropriate law enforcement, and emergency response authorities and may, if deemed appropriate by the grantee, modify the proposed statement. A copy of the final statement shall be furnished to the Director, the Attorney General, and the Office of Homeland Security together with the certifications required under subsection (b) and, where appropriate, subsection (c). Any final statement of activities may be modified or amended by the Director in accordance with the same procedures required in this paragraph for the preparation and submission of such statement.

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF PERFORMANCE CRITERIA BY GRANTEE TO SECRETARY.—Any grant under section 07 shall be made only if the grantee certifies to the satisfaction of the Director that—

(1) it has developed a homeland security plan pursuant to section 03 that identifies both short-term and long-term homeland security needs that have been developed in accordance with the primary objective and requirements of this title; and

(2) it has, in general, complied with the other provisions of this title and with other applicable laws.

(c) SUBMISSION OF ANNUAL PERFORMANCE REPORTS AND ADJUSTMENTS.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Each grantee shall submit to the Director, at a time determined by the Director, a performance and evaluation report of the use of funds made available under section 07, together with an assessment by the grantee of the relationship of such use to the objectives identified in the grant agreement under section 05(a).

(2) IN GENERAL.—The Department shall encourage and assist national associations of grantees eligible under section 07, national associations of State associations of general local government, and general local government in nonqualifying areas to develop and recommend to the Director, within 1 year after the effective date of this section, uniform recordkeeping, performance reporting, evaluation reporting, and auditing requirements for such grantees, States, units of general local government, respectively. Based on the Director's approval of these recommendations, the Director shall establish such requirements for use by such grantees, States, and units of general local government.

(2) REVIEWS AND AUDITS.—The Director shall, at least on an annual basis, make such reviews and audits as may be necessary or appropriate to determine—

(A) in the case of grants made under section 07(b), whether the grantee has carried out those activities and its certifications in accordance with the requirements of this title and with other applicable laws, and whether the grantee has a continuing capacity to carry out those activities in a timely manner; and

(B) in the case of grants to States made under section 07(d), whether the State has distributed funds to units of general local government in a timely manner and in accordance with the same procedures described in its statement, whether the State has carried out its certifications in compliance with the requirements of this title and with other applicable laws, and whether the State has made such reviews and audits of the units of general local government as may be necessary or appropriate to determine whether the grantee has satisfied the applicable performance criteria described in subparagraph (A).

(3) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Director may make appropriate adjustments in the amount of the annual grants in accordance with the Director's findings under this subsection. With respect to assistance made available to units of general local government under section 07(d), the Director may adjust, reduce, or withdraw such assistance, or take other action as appropriate in accordance with the Director's reviews and audits under this section, except that funds already expended on eligible activities under this title shall not be recaptured or deducted from future assistance to such units of general local government.

(d) AUDITS.—(1) As soon as they relate to funds provided under the provisions of financial transactions of recipients of such funds may be audited by the General Accounting Office under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the director of the General Accounting Office. The representatives of the General Accounting Office shall have access to all books, accounts, records, reports, files, and other papers, things, or property belonging to or in use by such recipients pertaining to such financial transactions and necessary to facilitate the audit.

(2) The review systems for metropolitan cities and urban counties. Except as otherwise specifically authorized, each metropolitan city and urban county shall be eligible for funds only if it has provided to the Director, to the extent authorized beyond fiscal year 2002, from such allocation in an amount not exceeding its basic amount computed pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b).

(3) COMPUTATION OF AMOUNT ALLOCATED TO METROPOLITAN CITIES AND URBAN COUNTIES.—The Director shall determine the amount to be allocated to each metropolitan city located in the United States, and to each urban county, based on the population of that metropolitan city.

(4) EXCLUSIONS.—In computing amounts or exclusions under this section with respect to any urban county, there shall be excluded any urban county located in that metropolitan city that is not counted in determining the eligibility of the urban county to receive a grant under this subsection, except that there shall be included any urban county, as defined by the Bureau of the Census—

(A) is not part of any county;
(B) is not eligible for a grant pursuant to subsection (b)(1);
(C) is contiguous to the urban county;
(D) has entered into cooperation agreements with the urban county which demonstrate that the urban county is to undertake or to assist in the undertaking of essential community development and housing assistance activities with respect to such independent city; and
(E) is not included as a part of any other unit of general local government for purposes of this section.

Any independent city that is included in any fiscal year for purposes of computing amounts pursuant to subsection (d) shall not be eligible to receive assistance under subsection (d) with respect to such fiscal year.

4. INCLUSIONS.—In computing amounts under this section with respect to any urban county, there shall be included all of the area of any unit of local government which is part of, and is not located entirely within, the boundaries of, such urban county if the part of such unit of local government which is within the boundaries of such urban county would otherwise be included in computing the amount for such urban county under this section, and if the part of such unit of local government which is within the boundaries of such urban county is not included as a part of any other unit of local government for the purpose of this section. Any amount received by an urban county under this section may be used with respect to the part of such unit of local government that is outside the boundaries of such urban county.

5. POPULATION.—(A) Where data are available, the amount determined under paragraph (1) for a metropolitan city that has been formed by the consolidation of one or more independent cities with an urban county shall be equal to the sum of the amounts that would have been determined under paragraph (1) for the metropolitan city or cities and the balance of the consolidated government, if such consolidation had not occurred. This paragraph shall apply only to any consolidation that—
(i) included all metropolitan cities that received grants under this section for the fiscal year preceding such consolidation and that were located within the urban county;
(ii) were an urban county that received a grant under this section for the fiscal year preceding such consolidation; and
(iii) made a written request after January 1, 2002.
(B) The population growth rate of a metropolitan city referred to in section 43 shall be based on the population of—
(i) metropolitan cities other than consolidated governments the grant for which is determined under this paragraph; and
(ii) cities that were metropolitan cities before their incorporation into consolidated governments. For purposes of calculating the entitlement share for the balance of the consolidated government under this paragraph, the city shall be considered to have been an urban county.

(5) REALLOCATION.—
(I) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), any amounts allocated to a metropolitan city or an urban county pursuant to the preceding provisions of this section that are not received by the city or county due to its failure to meet the requirements of subsections (a) and (b) of section 65, or that otherwise became available, shall be reallocated in the succeeding fiscal year to the other metropolitan cities and urban counties in the same metropolitan area that certify to the satisfaction of the Director that they would be adversely affected by the loss of such amounts from the metropolitan area. The amount of the share of funds reallocated under this paragraph for any metropolitan city or urban county shall bear the same ratio to the total of such reallocated funds in the metropolitan area as the amount of such reallocated funds for the fiscal year in which the reallocated funds become available bears to the total amount of funds awarded to all metropolitan cities and nonqualifying areas of the same metropolitan area for that fiscal year.
(II) TRANSFER.—Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (I), the Director may reallocate the 15 percent responsibility to any metropolitan city for the administration of any amounts received, but not obligated, by the Director pursuant to paragraph (1) for the urban county in which such city is located if—
(A) such city was an included unit of general local government in such county prior to the qualification of such city as a metropolitan city;
(B) such amounts were designated and received by such county for use in such city in accordance with the provisions of such city as a metropolitan city; and
(C) such city and county agree to such transfer of responsibility for the administration of such amounts.

(6) ALLOCATION TO STATES ON BEHALF OF NONQUALIFYING COMMUNITIES.—
(I) IN GENERAL.—In computing the amount approved in an appropriation Act under section 94 that remains after allocations pursuant to paragraphs (1) and (2) of subsection (a), 30 percent of the total amount appropriated for each fiscal year for use in nonqualifying areas. The allocation for each State shall be based on the population of that State, relative to the population of all States, excluding the populations of qualifying communities. The Director shall, in order to compensate for the discrepancy between the total of the amounts appropriated for qualification purposes and the estimated total of the amounts available under such paragraph, make a pro rata reduction of each amount allocated to the nonqualifying communities in each State so that the nonqualifying communities in each State will receive an amount that represents the percentage of the total amount available under such paragraph as the percentage which the nonqualifying areas of the same State would have received under such paragraph if the total amount available under such paragraph had equaled the total amount which was allocated under such paragraph.

(II) DISTRIBUTION.—(A) Amounts allocated under paragraph (1) shall be distributed to units of general local government located in nonqualifying areas of the States to carry out activities in accordance with the provisions of this title—
(i) by a State that has elected, in such manner and at such time as the Director may prescribe, to distribute such amounts consistent with the statement submitted under section 05(a); or
(ii) by the Director, in any case described in subparagraph (I) in which the rules adopted by the Director to carry out paragraph (2) are consistent with the general rules adopted by the Director in accordance with paragraph (3)(B).
(B) The Director shall distribute amounts allocated under paragraph (1) if the State has not elected to distribute such amounts.
(C) To receive and distribute amounts allocated under paragraph (1), the State must certify to the Director that the State has in place a homeland security board or agency, or a similar board or agency, and that the State has in place, or is in the process of establishing, an emergency management organization in each county or other political subdivision that has the legal authority to receive and distribute grants made available under this section.

(7) DEDUCTION.—From the amounts received under paragraph (1) for distribution in nonqualifying areas, the State may deduct an amount, not to exceed 1 percent of the local government to meet its homeland security objectives, except that this clause may not be considered to prevent a State from establishing priorities in distributing such funds based on the basis of the activities selected; and
(ii) has consulted with local elected officials from among units of general local government located in nonqualifying areas of that State in determining the method of distribution of funds required by subparagraph (A).

(8) TO RECEIVE AND DISTRIBUTE AMOUNTS ALLOCATED.—(A) The State shall certify that each unit of general local government in the State has complied with the requirements of this section.

(B) To receive and distribute amounts allocated under paragraph (1), the State shall certify that each unit of general local government in the State has complied with the requirements of this section.

(C) Any amounts allocated for use in a State under paragraph (1) that are not received by the State for any fiscal year because of failure to meet the requirements of subsection (a) or (b) of section 65 shall be added to amounts allocated to all States under paragraph (1) for the succeeding fiscal year.

(9) SINGLE UNIT.—Any combination of units of general local governments may not be required to obtain recognition by the Director pursuant to the provisions of this section if such combination is recognized by the Director as a single unit of general local government for purposes of this subsection.

(10) FROM THE TOTAL AMOUNT.—From the amounts received under paragraph (1) for distribution in nonqualifying areas, the State may deduct an amount, not to exceed 1 percent of the... amount so received, to provide technical assistance to local governments.

(7) APPLICABILITY.—Any activities conducted with amounts received by a unit of general government under subsection (a) shall be subject to the applicable provisions of this title and other Federal law in the same manner and to the same extent as activities with amounts received by a unit of general local government under subsection (a).

(e) QUALIFICATIONS AND DETERMINATIONS.—The Director shall fix such qualifications or submission dates as he determines are necessary to permit the computations and determinations required by this section to be made in a timely manner, and all such computations and determinations shall be final and conclusive.

(f) PRO RATA REDUCTION AND INCREASE.—If the total amount available for distribution in any fiscal year to metropolitan cities and urban counties under this section is insufficient to provide the amounts to which metropolitan cities and urban counties would be entitled under subsection (b), and funds are not otherwise appropriated to meet the deficiency, the Director shall meet the deficiency through a pro rata reduction of all amounts determined under subsection (b). If the total amount available for distribution in any fiscal year to metropolitan cities and urban counties under this section exceeds the amounts to which metropolitan cities and urban counties would be entitled under subsection (b), the Director shall distribute the excess through a pro rata increase of all amounts determined under subsection (b).

SEC. 08. STATE AND REGIONAL PLANNING, COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEMS.

(a) In General.—Pursuant to section 04, $500,000,000 shall be used for homeland defense planning within the States by the States, for interstate, multistate or regional authorities, and within regions through regional cooperations; the development and maintenance of Statewide training facilities and homeland best-practices clearinghouses; and the development and maintenance of communications systems that can be used between and among first responders, including law enforcement, fire, and emergency medical personnel to carry out the following:

(1) $255,000,000 to the States, and interstate, multistate or regional authorities for homeland defense planning, coordination, and implementation;

(2) $50,000,000 to regional cooperations for homeland defense planning and coordination;

(3) $50,000,000 to the States for the development of Statewide training facilities and best-practices clearinghouses; and

(4) $75,000,000 to the States for the States and for local communities for the development and maintenance of communications systems that can be used between and among first responders at the State and local level, including law enforcement, fire, and emergency personnel.

(b) ALLOCATIONS.—Funds under this section to be awarded to States shall be allocated among the States based on the population of each State relative to the populations of all States. The ‘‘minimum amount’’ provision set forth in section 07(d)(3) shall apply to funds awarded under this section to States. With respect to subsection (a)(4), at least 30 percent of the funds awarded must be used for the development and maintenance of local systems.

(c) REGIONAL COOPERATIONS.—Funds under this section to be awarded to regional cooperations shall be allocated among the regional cooperations based upon the population of the areas covered by the cooperations.

SEC. 09. NONDISCRIMINATION IN PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES.

No person in the United States shall be denied any program or activity funded or carried out with funds made available under this title. Any prohibition against discrimination on the basis of age under the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (42 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.) or with respect to an otherwise qualified handicapped individual as provided in section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 794) shall also apply to any activity covered under this section.

SEC. 10. REMEDIES FOR NONCOMPLIANCE WITH REQUIREMENTS.

If the Director finds after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing that a recipient of assistance under this title has failed to comply substantially with any provision of this title, the Director, until he is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure to comply, shall—

(1) terminate payments to the recipient under this title;

(2) reduce payments to the recipient under this title by an amount equal to the amount of such payments which were not expended in accordance with this title; or

(3) limit the availability of payments under this title to programs, projects, or activities not affected by such failure to comply.

SEC. 11. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General.—Not later than 180 days after the close of each fiscal year in which assistance under this title is furnished, the Director shall submit to Congress a report which shall contain—

(1) a description of the progress made in accomplishing the objectives of this title;

(2) a summary of the use of such funds during the preceding fiscal year; and

(3) a description of the activities carried out under section 07.

(b) REPORTS TO THE DIRECTOR.—The Director is authorized to require recipients of assistance under this title to submit to him such reports and other information as may be necessary in order for the Director to make the report required by subsection (a).

SEC. 12. CONSULTATION BY ATTORNEY GENERAL.

In carrying out the provisions of this title including the issuance of regulations, the Director shall consult with the Attorney General on matters of concern to the Department of Justice (including the law enforcement community at the State and local level), the Office of Homeland Security, and other Federal departments and agencies administering Federal grant-in-aid programs.

SEC. 13. INTERSTATE AGREEMENTS OR COMPACTS; PURPOSES.

The purpose of the Congress is hereby given to any two or more States to enter into agreements or compacts, not in conflict with any law of the United States, for cooperative effort and mutual assistance in support of homeland security planning and programs carried out under this title as they pertain to interstate areas and to localities within such areas, to establish such agencies, joint or otherwise, as they may deem desirable for making such agreements and compacts effective.

SEC. 14. MATCHING REQUIREMENTS; SUSPENSION OF REQUIREMENTS FOR ECONOMICALLY DISTRESSED AREAS.

(a) REQUIREMENTS.—Grant recipients shall contribute from funds, other than those received under this title, 10 percent of the total funds received under this title. Such funds shall be added to the grantee’s statement of homeland security objectives.

(b) ECONOMIC DISTRESS.—Grant recipients that are deemed economically distressed shall be waived from the matching requirement set forth in this section.

SEC. 188. RAIL SECURITY ENHANCEMENTS.

(a) EMERGENCY AMTRAK ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Transportation for the use of Amtrak—

(A) $375,000,000 for systemwide security upgrades, including the reimbursement of extraordinary security-related costs determined by the Secretary of Transportation to have been incurred by Amtrak since September 11, 2001, and including the hiring and training of additional police officers, canine-assisted security units, and surveillance equipment;
(B) $778,000,000 to be used to complete New York tunnel life safety projects and rehabilitate tunnels in Washington, D.C., and Baltimore, Maryland; and

(2) $55,000,000 for the emergency repair, and returning to service, of Amtrak passenger cars and locomotives, upon a determination by the Secretary of Transportation that such emergency repairs are necessary for safety and security purposes.

(2) AVAILABILITY OF APPROPRIATED FUNDS.—Amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1) shall remain available until expended.

(3) PLAN REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Transportation may not obligate amounts available to Amtrak for obligation or expenditure under paragraph (1)—

(A) for implementing statewide systemwide security programs; (B) for the emergency repair of passenger cars and locomotives, until Amtrak has submitted to the Secretary of Transportation, and the Secretary has approved, an engineering and financial plan for such projects; and

(C) for the emergency repair of passenger cars and locomotives, until Amtrak has submitted to the Secretary of Transportation and the Secretary has approved, an engineering and financial plan for such projects;

(4) FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTION FROM OTHER TUNNEL USERS.—The Secretary of Transportation shall, taking into account the need for the timely completion of all life safety portions of the tunnel projects described in paragraph (3)(B)—

(A) the extent to which rail carriers other than Amtrak use the tunnels;

(B) the feasibility of seeking a financial contribution from those other rail carriers toward the costs of the projects; and

(C) obtain financial contributions or commitments from such other rail carriers if feasible.

(5) REVIEW OF PLAN.—The Secretary of Transportation shall complete the review of the plan required by paragraph (3) and approve or disapprove the plan within 45 days after the date on which the plan is submitted by Amtrak. The Secretary shall determine that the plan is incomplete or deficient, the Secretary shall notify Amtrak of the incomplete items or deficiencies and Amtrak shall, within 30 days after receiving the Secretary’s notification, submit a modified plan for the Secretary’s review. Within 15 days after receiving a modified plan from Amtrak, the Secretary shall either approve the modified plan, or, if the Secretary finds the plan is still incomplete or deficient, the Secretary shall approve the portions of the plan that are complete and disapprove the deficient items or deficiencies, and Amtrak shall execute an agreement with the Secretary within 15 days thereafter to process the remainder of the portions of the plan.

(6) FIFTY PERCENT TO BE SPENT OUTSIDE THE NORTHWEST CORRIDOR.—The Secretary of Transportation shall ensure that at least 50 percent of the amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1)(A) is obligated or expended for projects outside the Northeast Corridor.

(7) ASSESSMENTS BY DOT INSPECTOR GENERAL.—(A) INITIAL ASSESSMENT.—Within 60 days after the enactment of this Act, the Inspector General of the Department of Transportation shall transmit to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure a report—

(i) identifying any overlap between capital projects for which funds are provided under such funding documents, procedures, or arrangements and capital projects included in Amtrak’s 20-year capital plan; and

(ii) indicating any adjustments that need to be made in that plan to exclude projects for which funds are appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1).

(B) OVERLAP REVIEW.—The Inspector General shall, as part of the Department’s annual assessment of Amtrak’s financial status and capital funding requirements review the obligation and expenditure of funds under each such funding document, procedure, or arrangement to ensure that the expenditure and obligation of those funds are consistent with the purposes for which they are provided under this Act.

(C) OBTAIN FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTIONS OR COMMITMENTS.—Each amount authorized by paragraph (1) shall be reduced by any appropriated amount used by Amtrak for the activity for which the amount is authorized.

(D) COORDINATION WITH EXISTING LAW.—Amounts made available to Amtrak under this sub-section shall not be considered to be Federal assistance for purposes of part C of title V of the United States Code.

(9) REDUCTION OF AUTHORIZATIONS.—Each amount authorized by paragraph (1) shall be reduced by any appropriated amount used by Amtrak for the activity for which the amount is authorized.

SA 4662. Mr. SMITH of Oregon submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

SEC. 1. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) Even before the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, American citizens were a target of choice for terrorist organizations.

(2) The United States has a strong interest in protecting the civil rights and civil liberties of the victims of terrorism, and in protecting the civil rights and civil liberties of Americans.

(3) Under United States law, individuals who commit acts of international terrorism outside of the United States may be prosecuted.

(4) Despite vigorous, sustained diplomatic efforts and financial assistance, little has been done to apprehend, convict, prosecute, and convict individuals who have committed acts of international terrorism.

(5) In conjunction with other appropriate Federal agencies, seek justice for individuals who have committed acts of international terrorism described in paragraph (1), whether through indictment, effective prosecution abroad, or extradition to the United States.

(6) Contact the families of victims of acts of terrorism described in paragraph (1) and provide regular updates on the progress to apprehend, indict, prosecute, and convict the individuals who commit such acts.

(7) In any country or territory in which a terrorist act against an American occurs, providing training for an appropriate number of United States officials abroad to carry out the effective execution of paragraphs (1) through (6).

(8) In consultation with the Secretary of State, provide information and a full report on the status of apprehension, indictment, and prosecution of individuals who commit acts of terrorism against Americans abroad as part of the Department’s annual "Patterns of Global Terrorism" report established in section 2566a(a) or Title 22 of the United States Code.

(b) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term ‘international terrorism’ has the meaning given such term in section 2331(1) of title 18, United States Code.

SEC. 2. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—There are appropriated to be appropriated for fiscal year 2003 and each subsequent fiscal year such sums as may be necessary to carry out this Act.

(b) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts appropriated pursuant to the authorization of appropriations under subsection (a) are authorized to remain available until expended.

SEC. 168. RAIL SECURITY ENHANCEMENTS.

(a) EMERGENCY AMTRAK ASSISTANCE.—(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of Transportation for the use of Amtrak—

"(A) $375,000,000 for systemwide security upgrades, including the reimbursement of extraordinary security-related costs determined by the Secretary of Transportation to have been incurred by Amtrak since September 11, 2001, and including the hiring and training additional police officers, canine-assisted security units, and surveillance equipment;

"(B) $778,000,000 to be used to complete New York tunnel life safety projects and rehabilitate tunnels in Washington, D.C., and Baltimore, Maryland; and

"(C) $55,000,000 for the emergency repair, and returning to service, of Amtrak passenger cars and locomotives, upon a determination by the Secretary of Transportation that such emergency repairs are necessary for safety and security purposes.

(b) AVAILABILITY OF APPROPRIATED FUNDS.—Amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1) shall remain available until expended.

(c) PLAN REQUIRED.—The Secretary of Transportation shall complete the tunnel safety and rehabilitation projects until Amtrak has submitted to the Secretary of Transportation, and the Secretary has approved, after consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security, a plan for such upgrades;

(d) COMPLETION OF LONG-TERM IMPROVEMENTS.—The Secretary of Transportation shall complete the tunnel safety and rehabilitation projects until Amtrak has submitted to the Secretary of Transportation, and the Secretary has approved, an expenditure plan and financial plan for such projects; and

(e) AMTRAK TO SUBMIT RECORD.—Amtrak has submitted to the Secretary of Transportation such additional information as the Secretary may require in order to ensure full accountability for the obligation or expenditure of amounts made available to Amtrak for the purpose for which the funds are needed.

(4) FINANCIAL CONTRIBUTION FROM OTHER TUNNEL USERS.—(A) The Secretary of Transportation shall, taking into account the need for the timely completion of all life safety portions of the tunnel projects described in paragraph (3)(B), consider the extent to which rail carriers other than Amtrak use the tunnels;

(B) the feasibility of seeking a financial contribution from other rail carriers toward the costs covered by this section; and

(C) obtain financial contributions or commitments from such other rail carriers if feasible.

(5) REVIEW OF PLAN.—The Secretary of Transportation shall complete the review of the plan required by paragraph (3) and approve or disapprove the plan within 45 days after the date on which the plan is submitted by Amtrak. If the Secretary determines that the plan is incomplete or deficient, the Secretary shall notify Amtrak of the incomplete items or deficiencies and Amtrak shall, within 30 days after receiving the Secretary's notification, submit a modified plan for the Secretary's review. Within 15 days after receiving a modified plan from Amtrak, the Secretary shall either approve the modified plan, or, if the Secretary finds the plan is still incomplete or deficient, the Secretary shall approve the portions of the plan that are complete and sufficient, release associated funds, and Amtrak shall execute an agreement with the Secretary thereafter on a process for completing the remaining portions of the plan.

(6) 50-PERCENT TO BE SPENT OUTSIDE THE NORTHEAST CORRIDOR.—The Secretary of Transportation shall ensure that up to 50 percent of the amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraph (1)(A) is obligated or expended for projects outside the Northeast Corridor.

lowing:

SEC. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the "Emergency Communications and Competition Act of 2002".

SEC. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are as follows:

(1) To facilitate the deployment of new wireless telecommunications networks in order to provide direct access to emergency Alert System (EAS) to viewers of multi-channel video programming who may not recieve Emergency Alert System warnings from other telecommunications technologies.

(2) To ensure that emergency personnel have priority access to communications facilities in times of emergency.

(3) To promote the deployment of low cost multi-channel video programming and broadband Internet services to the public, without causing harmful interference to existing telecommunication services.

(4) To ensure the universal carriage of local television stations, including any Emergency Alert System warnings, by multichannel video programming distributors in all markets, regardless of population.

(5) To advance the public interest by making public pay new local and metropolitan video services to unserved and underserved populations, including schools, libraries, tribal lands, community centers, senior centers, and low-income housing.

(6) To ensure that new technologies capable of fulfilling the purposes set forth in paragraphs (1) through (5) are licensed and available promptly—such technologies have been determined to be technologically feasible.

SEC. LICENSING.

(a) GRANT OF CERTAIN LICENSES.—(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Communications Commission shall assign licenses in the 12.2-12.7 GHz band for the provision of fixed terrestrial services using the rules, policies, and procedures used by the Commission to assign licenses in the 12.2-12.7 GHz band for the provision of international or global satellite communications services in accordance with section 257 of the Open-market Reorganization for the Betterment of Inter-

(b) DELEGATION.—The Commission shall accept for filing and grant licenses under paragraphs (1) and (2) to any applicant that is qualified to receive a license under paragraphs (1) and (2) within six months after the date of the enactment of this Act. The preceding sentence shall not be construed to preclude the Commission from granting licenses under paragraphs (1) and (2) after the deadline specified in that sentence to aplicants that qualify after that deadline.

(b) QUALIFICATIONS.—(1) NON-INTERFERENCE WITH DIRECT BROAD-

CAST SATELLITE SERVICE.—A license may be granted under this section only if operations under the license will not cause harmful interference to direct broadcast satellite service.

(2) ACCEPTANCE OF APPLICATIONS.—The Commission shall accept an application for a license to operate a fixed terrestrial service in the 12.2-12.7 GHz band if the applicant—

(A) successfully demonstrates the terrestrial technology it will employ under the license with operational data that it furnishes, or has furnished, for independent testing pursuant to section 102 of the Launching Our Communities' Access to Local Television Act of 2000 (47 U.S.C. 1110); and

(B) certifies in its application that it has authority to use such terrestrial service technology under the license.

(3) CLARIFICATION.—Section 102(a)(1) of the Launching Our Communities' Access to Local Television Act of 2000 (47 U.S.C. 1110(a); 111 Stat. 2762A–141) is amended by inserting "or files," after "has filed".

(4) PCS OR CELLULAR SERVICES.—A license granted under this section may not be used for the provision of personal communications Service or terrestrial cellular telephony service.

(c) PROMPT COMMENCEMENT OF SERVICE.—In order to facilitate and the prompt deployment of service to unserved and underserved areas and to prevent stockpiling or warehousing of spectrum by licensees, the Commission shall require that an licensee under this section commence service to consumers within five years of the grant of the license under this section.

(d) EXPANSION OF EMERGENCY ALERT SYS-

TEM.—Each license under this section shall disseminate Federal, State, and local Emergency Alert System warnings to all subscribers of the licensees under the license under this section.

(e) ACCESS FOR EMERGENCY PERSONNEL.—
(1) REQUIREMENT.—Each licensee under this section shall provide immediate access for national security and emergency preparedness personnel to the terrestrial services covered by the license under this section as follows:
(A) Whenever the Emergency Alert System is activated.
(B) Otherwise at the request of the Secretary of Homeland Security.
(2) NATURE OF ACCESS.—Access under paragraph (1) shall ensure that emergency data is transmitted to the public, or between emergency personnel, at a higher priority than any other data transmitted by the service concerned.
(3) ADDITIONAL PUBLIC INTEREST OBLIGATIONS.—
(1) ADDITIONAL OBLIGATIONS.—Each licensee under this section shall—
(A) adhere to rules governing carriage of local television station signals and rules concerning obscenity and indecency consistent with section 614, 615, 616, 612(d)(2), 630, 640, and 641 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 354, 355, 356, 544(d)(2), 559, 560, and 561);
(B) make its facilities available for candidate for public office consistent with sections 312(a)(7) and 315 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 312(a)(7) and 315); and
(C) allocate 4 percent of its capacity for services that promote the public interest, in addition to the capacity utilized to fulfill the obligations required of subparagraphs (A) and (B), such as—
(i) telemedicine;
(ii) educational programming, including distance learning;
(iii) high speed Internet access to unserved and underserved populations; and
(iv) specialized local data and video services intended to facilitate public participation in local government and community life.
(2) LICENSE BOUNDARIES.—In order to ensure compliance with paragraph (1), the Commission shall establish boundaries for licenses under this section that conform to existing television markets, as determined by the Commission for purposes of section 652(b)(1)(C)(i) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 362(b)(1)(C)(i)).
(g) REDESIGNATION OF MULTICHANNEL VIDEO DISTRIBUTION AND DATA SERVICE.—The Commission shall designate the Multichannel Video Distribution and Data Service (MVDDS) as the Terrestrial Direct Broadcast Service (TDBS).

SEC. 4670. Mr. CONRAD (for himself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. HELMS, Mr. JOHN-son, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. BREAUX, and Mrs. CARNAN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to amendment SA 4471 proposed by Mr. LIEBERMAN to the bill H.R. 5005, to establish the Department of Homeland Security, and for other purposes; which was ordered to lie on the table; as follows:

S. 155. NATIONAL EMERGENCY TELEMEDICAL COMMUNICATIONS.

(a) TELEHEALTH TASK FORCE.—
(1) CREATION.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall establish a task force to be known as the “National Emer- gency Telehealth Task Force” (referred to in this subsection as the “Task Force”) to advise the Secretary on the use of telehealth technologies to prepare for, moni-tor, manage, and respond to events of a biological, chemical, or nuclear terrorist attack or other public health emergencies.
(2) FUNCTIONS.—The Task Force shall—
(A) conduct an inventory of existing telehealth initiatives, including—
(i) the specific location of network compo-nents;
(ii) the medical, technological, and com-munications capabilities of such compo-nents; and
(iii) the functionality of such components;
(B) make recommendations for use by the Secretary in establishing standards for regional interoperating and overlapping infor-mation and telehealth networks, and re-sources in an emergency; and
(C) recommend any changes necessary to integrate telehealth and clinical practices.
(3) TERMINATION.—The Task Force shall terminate upon submission of the final report required under paragraph (4)(B).

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF STATE AND REGIONAL TELEHEALTH NETWORKS.
(1) PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—
(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, is authorized to award grants to 3 regional consortia of States to carry out pilot programs for the development of statewide and regional telehealth networks that build on, enhance, and seamlessly link existing State and local telehealth programs.

(2) DURATION.—The Secretary shall award grants under this subsection for a period not to exceed 3 years. Such grants may be renewed.

(c) STATE CONSORTIUM PLANS.—Each regional consortium of States desiring to receive a grant under subparagraph (A) shall submit to the Secretary a plan that describes how such consortium shall—
(i) interconnect existing telehealth sys-tems in a functional and seamless fashion to enhance the ability of the States in the region to prepare for, monitor, respond to, and manage the events of a biological, chemical, or nuclear terrorist attack or other public health emergencies; and
(ii) link to other participating States in the region via a standard interoperable connection using standard interconnections.

(3) PRIORITY.—In making grants under this subsection, the Secretary shall give priority to regional consortia of States that demonstrate—
(i) the interest and participation of a broad cross section of relevant entities, including public health clinics, emergency preparedness offices, and health care providers;
(ii) the ability to connect major population centers as well as isolated border, rural, and frontier communities within the region to provide medical, public health, and emergency services in response to a biological, chemical, or nuclear terrorist attack or other public health emergencies;
(iii) an existing telehealth and telecommunications infrastructure that connects relevant State agencies, health care providers, universities, and relevant Federal agencies; and
(iv) the ability to quickly complete develop-ment of a region-wide interoperable emer-gency telehealth network.

(d) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Secretary may make grants to 3 regional consortia of States to carry out pilot programs under this subsection that establish—
(A) a national telemedical network and test-bed to evaluate the capabilities of such communications in a functional and seamless fashion to enhance the ability of the States in the region to prepare for, monitor, respond to, and manage the events of a biological, chemical, or nuclear terrorist attack or other public health emergencies; and
(B) the ability to connect major population centers as well as isolated border, rural, and frontier communities within the region to provide medical, public health, and emergency services in response to a biological, chemical, or nuclear terrorist attack or other public health emergencies; and
(C) an existing telehealth and tele-communications infrastructure that connects relevant State agencies, health care providers, universities, and relevant Federal agencies; and

(3) FUNCTIONS.—Once established, a regional telehealth network...
under this subsection shall test the feasibility of recommendations (including recommendations relating to standard clinical information, operational capability, and associated technology and information standards) described in subparagraphs (B) through (E) of subsection (a)(3), and provide reports to the task force established under subsection (a)(2) on the technology's ability, in preparation of and in response to a biological, chemical, or nuclear terrorist attack or other public health emergencies, to support each of the following functions:

(A) Rapid emergency response and coordination.
(B) Real-time data collection for information sharing at all levels.
(C) Environmental monitoring.
(D) Early identification and monitoring of biological, chemical, or nuclear exposures.
(E) Situationally relevant expert consultative services for patient care and front-line responders.
(F) Training of responders.
(G) Development of an advanced distributed learning network.

(H) Distance learning for the purposes of medical and clinical education, and simulation training.

(4) REQUIREMENTS.—In awarding a grant under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall—

(A) require that each regional network adopt, maintain, and report on ongoing training, technical approaches for seamless interoperability and to protect the network's confidentiality, integrity, and availability, taking into consideration guidelines developed by the task force established under subsection (a); and

(B) require that each regional network inventory and report to the task force established under subsection (a), the technology and technical infrastructure available to such network.

(5) FUNDING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Of the amount appropriated under section 199, the Secretary shall make available not to exceed $150,000,000 for the 3-fiscal year period beginning with fiscal year 2003 to carry out this section. Amounts made available under this paragraph shall remain available until expended.

(2) LIMIT ON ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—Not more than 5 percent of the amount made available for each fiscal year under paragraph (1) shall be used for Task Force administrative costs.

SEC. 101. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY.

Subtitle A—Establishment of the Department of Homeland Security

SEC. 101. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY.

(a) In General.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall be the head of the Department. The Secretary shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. All authorities, functions, and responsibilities transferred to the Department shall be vested in the Secretary.

(b) Responsibilities.—The responsibilities of the Secretary shall be the following:

(1) To develop policies, goals, objectives, priorities, and plans for the United States for the promotion of homeland security, particularly with regard to terrorism;

(2) To administer, carry out, and promote the other established missions of the Department.

(c) To develop a comprehensive strategy for combating terrorism and the homeland security response;

(4) To plan, coordinate, and integrate those Federal Government activities relating to border and transportation security, critical infrastructure protection, all-hazards emergency preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation.

(5) To serve as a national focal point to analyze all information available to the United States related to threats of terrorism and other homeland threats.

(d) To establish and manage a comprehensive risk analysis and risk management program that directs and coordinates the support of risk analysis and risk management activities of the Directorates and ensures coordination with entities outside the Department engaged in such activities.

(6) To identify and recommend key scientific and technological advances that will enhance homeland security.

(7) To include, as appropriate, State and local governments and other entities in the full range of activities undertaken by the Department to promote homeland security, including—

(A) providing State and local government personnel, agencies, and authorities, with appropriate intelligence information, including warnings, regarding threats posed by terrorism in a timely and secure manner;

(B) facilitating efforts by State and local law enforcement and other officials to assist in the collection and dissemination of intelligence information related to terrorism, to provide information to the Department, and other agencies, in a timely and secure manner;

(C) coordinating with State, regional, and local government entities, and other authorities and, as appropriate, with the private sector, other entities, and the public, to ensure adequate planning, team work, coordination, information sharing, equipment, training, and exercise activities; and

(D) systematically identifying and removing obstacles to developing effective partnerships between the Department and the other United States agencies, and State, regional, and local government personnel, agencies, and authorities, the private sector, other entities, and the public to secure the homeland.

(10)(A) To consult and coordinate with the Secretary of Defense and make recommendations concerning organizational structure, equipment, and positioning of military assets determined critical to homeland security.

(B) To consult and coordinate with the Secretary of Defense regarding the training of personnel to respond to terrorist attacks involving chemical or biological agents.

(11) To establish effective day-to-day coordination of homeland security operations, and establish effective mechanisms for intergovernmental, interagency, and intersectorial cooperation, planning, and coordination to assure the effective, efficient, and secure performance of the Department's activities, and to ensure that the Department has the capabilities to provide effective and comprehensive response to contingencies that require the substantial support of military assets.

(12) To direct the acquisition and management of all the information resources of the Department, including communications resources.

(13) To designate 1 official who shall perform in such capacity, and in such manner and with such authority as the Secretary of Homeland Security determines critical to homeland security, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

(14) To oversee and ensure the Department's implementation of an enterprise architecture for information technology and communications systems, facilities, property, equipment, and other material resources; and

(15) To oversee and ensure the Department's implementation of updated versions of the Department's architecture, and the effective, efficient, and secure operation of the data assets, systems, and applications operated or maintained by the Department.

(16) To oversee and ensure implementation of the Department's information security policies, and to require the submission of an annual report to Congress on the Department's implementation of policies and procedures for safeguarding information systems and information assets.

(17) To oversee and ensure that the Department's information security policies are implemented in accordance with the National Institute of Standards and Technology's guidelines and standards, and with the standards prescribed by the National Cybersecurity and Communications Integration Center.

SEC. 104. UNDER SECRETARY FOR MANAGEMENT.

There shall be in the Department an Under Secretary for Management, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

(b) Responsibilities.—The Under Secretary for Management shall report to the Secretary, who may assign to the Under Secretary such functions as are related to the management and administration of the Department as the Secretary may prescribe, including—

(1) the budget, appropriations, expenditures of funds, accounting, and finance;

(2) procurement;

(3) human resources and personnel;

(4) information technology and communications systems;

(5) facilities, property, equipment, and other material resources;

(6) security for personnel, information technology and communications systems, facilities, property, equipment, and other material resources; and

(7) identification and tracking of performance measures relating to the responsibilities of the Department.

SEC. 105. ASSISTANT SECRETARIES.

(a) In general.—There shall be in the Department not more than 5 Assistant Secretaries (not including the 2 Assistant Secretaries appointed under division B), each of whom shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate.

(b) Responsibilities.—(1) In general.—Whenever the President submits the name of an individual to the Senate for confirmation as an Assistant Secretary under this section, the President shall describe the general responsibilities that such appointee will exercise upon taking office.

(2) Assignment.—Subject to paragraph (1), the Secretary shall assign to each Assistant Secretary such functions as the Secretary considers appropriate.

SEC. 106. INSPECTOR GENERAL.

(a) In general.—There shall be in the Department an Inspector General. The Inspector General shall be subject to the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.).

(b) Establishment.—Section 11 of the Inspector General Act of 1978 (5 U.S.C. App.) is amended—

1. In paragraph (1), by inserting “Home land Security,” after “Health and Human Services,”; and

2. In paragraph (2), by inserting “Home land Security,” after “Health and Human Services.”;

(c) Review of the Department of Homeland Security.—The Inspector General shall designate 1 official who shall—

1. Review information and receive complaints alleging abuses of civil rights and civil liberties by employees and officials of the Department;

2. Publicize, through the Internet, radio, television, and newspaper advertisements—

(A) information on the responsibilities and functions of the official; and

(B) instructions on how to contact the official; and

3. On a semi-annual basis, submit to Congress, for referral to the appropriate committees of Congress, a report—

(A) describing the implementation of this subsection;

(b) detailing any civil rights abuses under paragraph (1); and

(c) accounting for the expenditure of funds to carry out this subsection.

d) Provision for Independent Oversight.—In carrying out this responsibility, the Inspector General shall have the same powers as provided by section 502 of title 18, United States Code, to—

1. Obtain from or require the return of any document or written or oral information relevant to the performance of its responsibilities;

2. Interview and examine any person having information relevant to the performance of its responsibilities (appropriately classified, if necessary) within the limits of any publication restriction or other applicable law; and

3. Obtain and inspect copies of records, documents, and other information relevant to its responsibilities (appropriately classified, if necessary) and may prohibit the Inspector General from carrying out or completing any audit or investigation, or from issuing any subpoena, after such Inspector General has decided to initiate, carry out, or complete such audit or investigation or to issue such subpoena, if the Secretary determines that such prohibition is necessary to—

(A) prevent the disclosure of any information described under paragraph (1);

(B) preserve the identities or identities of confidential sources or confidential informants; or

(C) prevent significant impairment to the national interests of the United States.

e) Additional Provisions with Respect to the Inspector General of the Department of Homeland Security.—The Inspector General shall have the same powers as provided by section 502 of title 18, United States Code, to—

1. Obtain from or require the return of any document or written or oral information relevant to the performance of its responsibilities;

2. Interview and examine any person having information relevant to the performance of its responsibilities (appropriately classified, if necessary) in the limits of any publication restriction or other applicable law; and

3. Obtain and inspect copies of records, documents, and other information relevant to its responsibilities (appropriately classified, if necessary) and may prohibit the Inspector General from carrying out or completing any audit or investigation, or from issuing any subpoena, if the Secretary determines that such prohibition is necessary to—

(A) prevent the disclosure of any information described under paragraph (1);

(B) preserve the identity or identities of confidential sources or confidential informants; or

(C) prevent significant impairment to the national interests of the United States.

g) Other Matters.—The Inspector General shall have the same powers as provided by section 502 of title 18, United States Code, to—

1. Obtain from or require the return of any document or written or oral information relevant to the performance of its responsibilities;

2. Interview and examine any person having information relevant to the performance of its responsibilities (appropriately classified, if necessary) in the limits of any publication restriction or other applicable law; and

3. Obtain and inspect copies of records, documents, and other information relevant to its responsibilities (appropriately classified, if necessary) and may prohibit the Inspector General from carrying out or completing any audit or investigation, or from issuing any subpoena, if the Secretary determines that such prohibition is necessary to—

(A) prevent the disclosure of any information described under paragraph (1);

(B) preserve the identity or identities of confidential sources or confidential informants; or

(C) prevent significant impairment to the national interests of the United States.

"(2) The head of each other office described under paragraph (1) shall promptly report to the Inspector General the significant activities being carried out by such office.

"(3) Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), the Inspector General may initiate, conduct, and supervise such audits and investigations in the Department (including in any subdivision referred to in paragraph (1)) as the Inspector General considers appropriate.

"(4) If the Inspector General initiates an audit or investigation under paragraph (3) concerning a subdivision referred to in paragraph (1), the Inspector General may provide the head of the other office performing internal investigatory or audit functions in the subdivision with written notice that the Inspector General has initiated such an audit or investigation. If the Inspector General issues such a notice, no other audit or investigation shall be initiated into the matter under audit or investigation by the Inspector General, and any other audit or investigation of such matter shall cease.

"(c) Report required to be transmitted—(1) a report required to be transmitted by the Secretary to the appropriate committees or subcommittees of Congress under section 9(d) shall also be transmitted, within the 7-day period specified under that subsection, to—

"(1) the President of the Senate;

"(2) the Speaker of the House of Representatives;

"(3) the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and

"(4) the Committee on Government Reform of the House of Representatives.

Subtitle C—National Emergency Preparedness Enhancement

SEC. 151. SHORT TITLE. This subtitle may be cited as the ‘‘National Emergency Preparedness Enhancement Act of 2002’’.

SEC. 152. PREPAREDNESS INFORMATION AND EDUCATION.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT OF CLEARINGHOUSE.—There is established in the Department a National Clearinghouse on Emergency Preparedness (referred to in this section as the ‘‘Clearinghouse’’). The Clearinghouse shall be headed by a Director.

(b) CONSULTATION.—The Clearinghouse shall consult with such heads of agencies as the Under Secretary for Homeland Security determines to be appropriate, including information relevant to homeland security.

(c) DUTIES.—

(1) DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.—The Clearinghouse shall ensure efficient dissemination of accurate emergency preparedness information.

(2) CENTER.—The Clearinghouse shall establish a one-stop center for emergency preparedness information, which shall include a website, with links to other relevant Federal websites, a telephone number, and staff.

(d) MISSION.—The Clearinghouse shall consult with such heads of agencies as the Under Secretary for Homeland Security determines to be appropriate, regarding the need for Federal information sharing related to homeland security.

SEC. 153. PILOT PROGRAM.

(a) EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS ENHANCEMENT PILOT PROGRAM.—The Department shall award grants to private entities to pay for the Federal share of the cost of improving emergency preparedness, and educating employees and other individuals using the entities’ facilities about emergency preparedness.

(b) USE OF FUNDS.—An entity that receives a grant under this subsection may use the funds made available through the grant to—

(1) develop evacuation plans and drills;

(2) plan additional or improved security measures, with an emphasis on innovative technologies or practices;

(3) deploy innovative emergency preparedness technologies; or

(4) educate employees and customers about the development and planning activities described in paragraphs (1) and (2) in innovative ways.

(c) FEDERAL SHARE.—The Federal share of the cost described in subsection (a) shall be no more than 50 percent, up to a maximum of $250,000 per grant recipient.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2003 through 2005 to carry out this section.

SEC. 154. DESIGNATION OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS WEEK.

(a) NATIONAL WEEK.—

(1) DESIGNATION.—Each week that includes September 11 is ‘‘National Emergency Preparedness Week’’.

(2) PROCLAMATION.—The President is required to issue every year a proclamation calling on the people of the United States (including State and local governments and the private sector) to observe the week with appropriate activities and programs for personnel performing border security functions;

(b) FEDERAL AGENCY ACTIVITIES.—In conjunction with National Emergency Preparedness Week, the head of each agency, as appropriate, shall coordinate with the Department to inform and educate the private sector and the general public about emergency preparedness activities, resources, and tools, giving a high priority to emergency preparedness efforts designed to address terrorist attacks.

Subtitle D—Miscellaneous Provisions

SEC. 161. NATIONAL BIO-WEAPONS DEFENSE ANALYSIS CENTER.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Department of Defense a National Bio-Weapons Defense Analysis Center (in this section referred to as the ‘‘Center’’).

(b) MISSION.—The mission of the Center is to develop countermeasures to potential attacks by terrorists using biological or chemical weapons that are weapons of mass destruction (as defined under section 103 of the Defense Against Weapons of Mass Destruction Act of 1996 (50 U.S.C. 2303(1))) and conduct research and analysis concerning such weapons.

SEC. 162. REVIEW OF FOOD SAFETY.

(a) REVIEW OF FOOD SAFETY LAWS AND FOOD SAFETY ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE.—The Secretary shall enter into an agreement with and provide funding to the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a detailed, comprehensive study which shall—

(1) review all Federal statutes and regulations affecting the safety and security of the food supply to determine the effectiveness of the statutes and regulations at protecting the food supply from deliberate contamination; and

(2) review the organizational structure of Federal food safety oversight to determine the efficiency and effectiveness of the organizational structure at protecting the food supply from deliberate contamination.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the National Academy of Sciences shall prepare and submit to the President, the Secretary, and Congress a comprehensive report containing—

(A) the findings and conclusions derived from the reviews conducted under subsection (a); and

(B) specific recommendations for improving—

(S8853)
(i) the effectiveness and efficiency of Federal food safety and security statutes and regulations; and
(ii) the organizational structure of Federal food safety oversight.

2 CONTENTS.—In conjunction with the recommendations under paragraph (1), the report under paragraph (1) shall address:
(A) any assignment with which Federal food safety statutes and regulations protect public health and ensure the food supply remains free from contamination;
(B) violations of the Commandments, and inconsistencies in Federal food safety statutes and regulations;
(C) application of resources among Federal food safety oversight agencies;
(D) the effectiveness and efficiency of the organizational structure of Federal food safety oversight; and
(E) overburden of a unified, central organizational structure of Federal food safety oversight.

3 RESPONSE OF THE SECRETARY.—Not later than 90 days after the date on which the report under section (a)(1) of this heading is submitted to the Secretary, the Secretary shall provide to the President a response to the recommendations of the Department to further protect the food supply from contamination.

SEC. 163. EXCHANGE OF EMPLOYEES BETWEEN AGENCIES AND STATE OR LOCAL GOVERNMENTS.
(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—
(1) information sharing between Federal, State, and local agencies is vital to securing the homeland against terrorist attacks;
(2) Federal, State, and local employees working cooperatively can learn from one another and resolve complex issues;
(3) Federal, State, and local employees have specialized knowledge that should be consistently shared between and among agencies at all levels of government; and
(4) providing training and other support, such as staffing, to the appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies can enhance the ability of an agency to analyze and assess threats to the homeland, develop appropriate responses, and inform the United States public.

(b) EXCHANGE OF EMPLOYEES.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may provide for the exchange of employees of the Department and State and local agencies in accordance with the provisions of subsection (c) of section 2302(a)(2)(B)(ii) of title 5, United States Code.
(2) CONDITIONS.—With respect to exchanges described under this subsection, the Secretary shall ensure that—
(A) any assigned employee shall have appropriate training or experience to perform the work required by the assignment;
(B) an assignment occurs under conditions that appropriately safeguard classified and other sensitive information;

SEC. 164. WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION FOR CERTAIN AIRPORT EMPLOYEES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 42121(a) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—
(1) by striking—
"(i) any Federal employee hired as a security screener under subsection (e) of section 49305 of title 49, United States Code; or
(ii) an applicant for the position of a security screener under that subsection.
"(2) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1)—
(i) section 2302(a)(b)(ii) of title 5, United States Code, applies with respect to any security screener; and
(ii) chapters 12, 21, and 75 of that title shall apply with respect to a security screener to the extent necessary to implement clause (i).

(c) COVERED POSITION.—The President may not exclude the position of security screener under section 2302(a)(2)(B)(ii) of title 5, United States Code, to the extent that such exclusion would prevent the implementation of subparagraph (B) of this paragraph.

SEC. 165. WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION FOR CERTAIN AIRPORT EMPLOYEES.
(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 42121(a) of title 49, United States Code, is amended—
(1) by striking—
"(i) any Federal employee hired as a security screener under subsection (e) of section 49305 of title 49, United States Code; or
(ii) an applicant for the position of a security screener under that subsection.
"(2) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1)—
(i) section 2302(a)(b)(ii) of title 5, United States Code, applies with respect to any security screener; and
(ii) chapters 12, 21, and 75 of that title shall apply with respect to a security screener to the extent necessary to implement clause (i).

(b) APPLICABLE EMPLOYERS.—Paragraph (1) shall apply to—
(A) an air carrier or contractor or subcontractor of an air carrier;
(B) an employer of airport security screening personnel, other than the Federal Government, including a State or municipal government, or an airport authority, or a contractor of such government or airport authority;
(C) an employer of private screening personnel described in section 49191 or 49202 of this title.

SEC. 166. BIOTERRORISM PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE DIVISION.
Section 319D of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 247d-4) is amended—
(1) by redesigning subsection (c) as subsection (d); and
(2) by inserting after subsection (b), the following:
"(c) BIOTERRORISM PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE DIVISION.—
(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Office of the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention a Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Division (in this subsection referred to as the 'Division').
(2) MISSION.—The Division shall have the following primary missions:
(A) To lead and coordinate the activities and resources of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention with respect to countering bioterrorism.
(B) To coordinate and facilitate the interagency coordination of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention personnel with personnel from the Department of Homeland Security and, in so doing, serve as a major contact point for 2-way communications between the jurisdictions of homeland security and public health.
(C) To train and employ a cadre of public health personnel who are dedicated full-time to the countering of bioterrorism.
(D) RESPONSIBILITIES.—In carrying out the mission under paragraph (2), the Division shall assume the responsibilities of and budget authority for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention with respect to the following programs:
(A) The Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Program.
(B) The Strategic National Stockpile.
(C) Such other programs and responsibilities as may be assigned to the Division by the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.
(4) DIRECTOR.—There shall be in the Division a Director, who shall be appointed by the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Homeland Security.

SEC. 167. COORDINATION WITH THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES UNDER THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT.
(a) IN GENERAL.—The Federal response plan developed by the Secretary under section 102(b)(14) shall be consistent with section 319 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 247d).
(b) DISCLOSURES AMONG RELEVANT AGENCIES.
SEC. 168. RAIL SECURITY ENHANCEMENTS.
(a) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department, for the benefit of Amtrak, for the 2-year period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act—
(1) $375,000,000 for grants to finance the cost of enhancements to the security and safety of Amtrak rail passenger service; and
(2) $778,000,000 for grants for life safety improvements to 6 New York Amtrak tunnels.
built in 1910, the Baltimore and Potomac Amtrak tunnel built in 1872, and the Washington, D.C. Union Station Amtrak tunnels built in 1904 under the Supreme Court and House and Senate Office Buildings; and
(3) $55,000,000 for the emergency repair, and returning to service of Amtrak passenger cars and locomotives.

(b) INCOME FROM FUNDS.—Amounts appropriated under subsection (a) shall remain available until expended.

(c) COORDINATION WITH EXISTING LAW.—Amounts available to Amtrak under this subsection shall not be subject to paragraph (1) of section 203(a)(1) of the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970 (49 U.S.C. 1393(a)(1)).

SEC. 169. GRANTS FOR FIREFIGHTING PERSONNEL.

(1) by redesignating subsections (c), (d), and (e) as subsections (d), (e), and (f), respectively;
(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following:

"(c) PERSONNEL GRANTS.—
"(1) EXCLUSION.—Grants awarded under subsection (b)(1) shall not be used to hire employees engaged in 'fire protection', as that term is defined in section 3 of the Fair Labor Standards Act (29 U.S.C. 203), shall not be subject to paragraph (5) of subsection (b), shall be used for costs of training, and shall be used to hire employees who have been laid off.

"(2) DURATION.—Grants awarded under paragraph (1) shall be for a 3-year period.

"(3) MAXIMUM AMOUNT.—The total amount of grants awarded under paragraph (1) shall not exceed $100,000 per firefighter, indexed for inflation, over the 3-year grant period.

"(4) FEDERAL SHARE.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding subsection (b)(6), the Federal share of a grant under paragraph (1) shall not exceed 75 percent of the total salary and benefits for additional firefighting personnel, as determined by the Department.

"(B) WAIVER.—The Secretary may waive the 25 percent non-Federal match under subparagraph (A) for a jurisdiction of 50,000 or fewer residents or in cases of extreme hardship.

"(5) APPLICATION.—In addition to the information under subsection (b)(5), an application for a grant under paragraph (1) shall include:

"(A) an explanation for the need for Federal assistance; and

"(B) specific plans for obtaining necessary support under subsection (h) following the conclusion of Federal support.

"(6) MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT.—Grants awarded under paragraph (1) shall only be used to hire employees engaged in 'fire protection', as that term is defined in section 3 of the Fair Labor Standards Act (29 U.S.C. 203), shall not be subject to paragraph (5) of subsection (b), shall be used to obtain funding allocated for personnel from State and local sources; and

"(7) in subsection (f) (as redesignated by paragraph (1)), by adding at the end the following:

"(8) $1,000,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2003 and 2004, to be used only for grants under subsection (c)."

SEC. 170. REVIEW OF TRANSPORTATION SECURITY ENHANCEMENTS.

(a) REVIEW OF TRANSPORTATION VULNERABILITIES AND FEDERAL TRANSPORTATION SECURITY EFFORTS.—The Comptroller General shall conduct a detailed, comprehensive study which shall—
(1) review all available intelligence on terrorist threats against aviation, seaport, rail and transit facilities;
(2) review all available intelligence on vulnerabilities at aviation, seaport, rail and transit facilities; and
(3) review the steps taken by agencies since September 11, 2001, to improve aviation, seaport, rail, and transit security to determine their effectiveness at protecting passengers and transportation infrastructure from terrorist attack.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to the President and Congress a comprehensive report containing—
(1) the findings and conclusions from the review conducted under subsection (a); and
(2) proposed steps to improve any deficiencies found in aviation, seaport, rail, and transit security including, to the extent possible, the cost of the steps.

(c) RESPONSE OF THE SECRETARY.—Not later than 90 days after the date on which the report under this section is submitted to the Secretary, the Secretary shall provide to the President and Congress—
(1) the response of the Department to the recommendations of the report; and
(2) recommendations of the Department to further protect passengers and transportation infrastructure from terrorist attack.

SEC. 171. INTEROPERABILITY OF INFORMATION SYSTEMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary and affected entities, shall develop—
(1) a comprehensive enterprise architecture for information systems, including communications systems, to achieve interoperability between and among information systems of agencies with responsibility for homeland security; and
(2) a plan to improve interoperability between and among information systems, including communications systems, of agencies with responsibility for homeland security and those of State and local agencies with responsibility for homeland security.

(b) TIMETABLES.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary and affected entities, shall establish timetables for development and implementation of the enterprise architecture and plan referred to in subsection (a).

(c) IMPLEMENTATION.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary and acting under the responsibilities of the Director under law (including the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996), shall ensure the implementation of the enterprise architecture developed under subsection (a)(1), and shall coordinate, oversee, and evaluate the management and acquisition of information technology by agencies with responsibility for homeland security to ensure interoperability consistent with the enterprise architecture developed under subsection (a)(1).

(d) AGENCY COOPERATION.—The head of each agency with responsibility for homeland security shall fully cooperate with the Director of the Office of Management and Budget in the development of a comprehensive enterprise architecture for information systems and in the management and acquisition of information technology consistent with the comprehensive architecture developed under subsection (a)(1).

(e) CONTENT.—The enterprise architecture developed under subsection (a)(1), and the information systems managed and acquired under the enterprise architecture, shall possess the characteristics of—
(1) rapid deployment;
(2) a highly secure environment, providing data access only to authorized users; and
(3) the capability for continuous system upgrades in technology while preserving the integrity of stored data.

(f) UPDATED VERSIONS.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary, shall oversee and ensure the development of updated versions of the enterprise architecture and plan developed under subsection (a), as necessary.

(g) REPORT.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in consultation with the Secretary, shall annually report to Congress on the development and implementation of the enterprise architecture and plan referred to under subsection (a).

(h) CONSULTATION.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall consult with information system management experts in the public and private sectors, in the development and implementation of the enterprise architecture and plan referred to under subsection (a).

(i) PRINCIPAL OFFICER.—The Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall designate, with the approval of the President, a principal officer in the Office of Management and Budget whose primary responsibility shall be to carry out the duties of the Director under this section.

SEC. 172. PROHIBITION ON CONTRACTS WITH CORPORATE EXPATRIATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may not enter into any contract with a foreign incorporated entity which is treated as an inverted domestic corporation under subsection (b), or any subsidiary of such entity.

(b) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, a foreign incorporated entity shall be treated as an inverted domestic corporation if, pursuant to a plan or series of related transactions—
(1) the entity has completed the direct or indirect acquisition of substantially all of the properties held directly or indirectly by a domestic corporation or substantially all of the properties constituting a trade or business of a domestic partnership,
(2) after the acquisition at least 50 percent of the stock (by vote or value) of the entity is held—
(A) in the case of an acquisition with respect to a domestic corporation, by former shareholders of the domestic corporation by reason of holding stock in the domestic corporation, or
(B) in the case of an acquisition with respect to a domestic partnership, by former partners of the domestic partnership by reason of holding a capital or profits interest in the domestic partnership, and
(3) the expanded affiliated group which after the acquisition includes the entity does not have substantial business activities in the foreign country in which or under the laws of which the entity is organized when compared to the total business activities of such expanded affiliated group.

(c) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

(1) RULES FOR APPLICATION OF SUBSECTION (b).—In applying subsection (b) for purposes of subsection (a), the following rules shall apply:

(A) CERTAIN STOCK DISBELIEVED.—There shall not be taken into account in determining ownership for purposes of subsection (b)(2)—
(i) stock held by members of the expanded affiliated group which includes the foreign incorporated entity or
(ii) stock of such entity which is sold in a public offering related to the acquisition described in subsection (b)(1).

(B) PLAN DISBELIEVED IN CERTAIN CASES.—If a foreign incorporated entity acquires directly or indirectly substantially all of the properties of a domestic corporation or partner- ship during the 4-year period beginning on the date which is 2 years before the ownership requirements of subsection (b)(2) are met, such actions shall be treated as pursuant to a plan.

(C) CERTAIN TRANSFERS DISBELIEVED.—The transfer of properties or liabilities (including by contribution or distribution) shall be disregarded if such transfers are part of a plan a principal purpose of which is to avoid the purposes of this section.

(D) TRANSFER OF RIGHTS OF RELATED PARTNERSHIPS.—For purposes of applying subsection (b) to the acquisition of a domestic partnership, except as provided in regulations, all partnerships, entities, or functions which are under common control (within the meaning of section 482 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) shall be treated as 1 partnership.

(2) EXPANDED AFFILIATED GROUP.—The term "expanded affiliated group" means an affiliated group as defined in section 1504(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (without regard to section 1504(b) of such Code), except that section 1504(a) of such Code shall be applied by substituting "more than 50 percent" for "at least 80 percent" each place it appears.

(3) FOREIGN INCORPORATED ENTITY.—The term "foreign incorporated entity" means any entity which is, or but for subsection (b) would be, treated as a foreign corporation for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

(4) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—The terms "person", "domestic", and "foreign" have the meanings given such terms by paragraphs (1), (4), and (5) of section 7701(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, respectively.

(d) WAIVER.—The President may waive subsection (a) with respect to any specific contract if the President certifies to Congress that the waiver is required in the interest of national security.

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall take effect 1 day after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 173. EXTENSION OF CUSTOMS USER FEES.

Section 13033(c)(3) of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (19 U.S.C. 58c(c)(3)) is amended by striking "September 30, 2003" and inserting "March 31, 2004".

Subtitle E—Transition Provisions

SEC. 181. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle:

(A) AGENCY.—The term "agency" includes any organization, unit, or function transferred or to be transferred under this title.

(B) TRANSITION PERIOD.—The term "transition period" means the 5-year period beginning on the effective date of this division.

SEC. 182. IMPLEMENTATION PROGRESS REPORTS

(a) IN GENERAL.—In consultation with the President and in accordance with this section, the Secretary shall prepare implementation progress reports and submit such reports to—

(i) the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives for referral to the appropriate committees; and

(ii) the Comptroller General of the United States.

(b) REPORT FREQUENCY.—

(1) INITIAL REPORT.—As soon as practicable, and not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit the first implementation progress report.

(2) SEMIANNUAL REPORTS.—Following the submission of the report under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall submit additional implementation progress reports not less frequently than once every 6 months until all transfers to the Department under this title have been completed.

(3) FINAL REPORT.—Not later than 6 months after all transfers to the Department under this title have been completed, the Secretary shall submit a final implementation progress report.

(c) CONTENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Each implementation progress report shall contain, on the progress made in implementing titles I and XI, including fulfillment of the functions transferred under this Act, and shall include all of the information specified under paragraph (2).

(2) SPECIFICATIONS.—Each implementation progress report shall contain any required information not yet provided.

(d) LEGISLATIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.—

(1) INCLUSION IN REPORT.—The Secretary, after consultation with the appropriate committees of Congress, shall include in the report under this section, recommendations for legislation that the Secretary determines is necessary to—

(A) facilitate the integration of transferred entities, organizational units, and functions into the Department;

(B) reorganize agencies, executive positions, and the assignment of functions within the Department;

(C) address any inequitable disparities in pay or other terms and conditions of employment among employees within the Department resulting from the consolidation of agencies, functions, and personnel previously covered by disparate personnel systems;

(D) enable the Secretary to engage in procurement essential to the mission of the Department; and

(E) otherwise further the mission of the Department; and

(F) make technical and conforming amendments to existing law to reflect the changes made by titles I and XI.

(2) SEPARATE SUBMISSION OF PROPOSED LEGISLATION.—The Secretary may submit the proposed legislation under paragraph (1) to Congress before submitting the balance of the report under this section.

SEC. 183. SAVINGS PROVISIONS.

(a) CONTINUING EFFECT OF LEGAL DOCUMENTS.—All orders, determinations, rules, regulations, grants, contracts, recognitions of labor organizations, collective bargaining agreements, certificates, licenses, registrations, privileges, and other administrative actions—

(i) which have been issued, made, granted, or allowed to become effective by the President, any Federal agency or official thereof, or by a court of competent jurisdiction, in the performance of functions which are transferred under this title; and

(ii) which are in effect at the time this division becomes effective, or which will not be in effect before the effective date of this division and are to become effective on or after the effective date of this division, shall continue in effect according to their terms until modified, terminated, superseded, set aside, or revoked in accordance with law by the President, the Secretary, or other authorized official, or a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law.

(b) PROCEEDINGS NOT AFFECTED.—The provisions of this title shall not affect any proceeding, including notices of proposed rulemaking, or any application for any license, permit, certificate, or financial assistance before an agency with the title takes effect, with respect to functions transferred by this title but such proceedings... and applications shall continue. Orders shall be issued in such proceedings, appeals shall be taken therefrom, and payments shall be made pursuant to such orders, as if this title had not been enacted and orders issued in any such proceedings shall continue in effect until modified, terminated, superseded, or revoked by a duly authorized official, by a court of competent jurisdiction, or by operation of law. Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to prohibit the discontinuance or modification of any such proceeding under the same conditions and in the same manner as if this title had not been enacted.

(d) TRANSFER OF EMPLOYEES.—No suit, action, or other proceeding commenced by or against an agency, or by or against any individual as an officer or an agency, as if this title had not been enacted.

(e) TRANSFER OF EMPLOYEES.—An employee transferred to the Department under this Act that, on July 19, 2002, was excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, under section 7103(b)(1) of title 5, United States Code, unless the primary job duty of the employee consists of intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigatory duties directly related to terrorism investigation; and

(i) the subdivision has, as a primary function, intelligence, counterintelligence, or investigative duties directly related to terrorism investigation; and

(ii) the provisions of that chapter cannot be applied to that subdivision in a manner consistent with the national security requirements and considerations.

(4) WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION.—The provisions of this Act that, on July 19, 2002, were excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, United States Code, under section 7103(b)(1) of that title, shall be available only for the purposes specified in such appropriations Act and only under the conditions and for the purposes specified in such appropriations Act.

(5) DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY.—

(a) REORGANIZATION AUTHORITY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act or any other Act, this section shall apply to—

(ii) shall remain subject to the same conditions and for the purposes specified in such appropriations Act.

(b) USE OF FUNDED FUNDS.—Except as may be provided in an appropriations Act in accordance with subsection (d), balances of appropriations and any other funds or assets transferred under this Act that, on July 19, 2002, were originally available (including by transfer among agencies, entities, or other organizations transferred to the Department under this Act), shall not be available for the purposes for which they were originally available (including by transfer among agencies, entities, or other organizations transferred to the Department under this Act).

(c) NOTIFICATION REGARDING TRANSFERS.—The President shall notify Congress not less than 45 days before any transfer of appropriations balances, other funds, or assets under this Act.

(d) ADDITIONAL USES OF FUNDS DURING TRANSITIONS.—Subject to paragraphs (c), amounts transferred to, or otherwise made available to, the Department may be used during the transition period for purposes in addition to those for which they were originally available (including by transfer among agencies, entities, or other organizations transferred to the Department under this Act).
unit of the Department or to the head of an organizational unit of the Department may not be delegated to an officer or employee outside of that unit.

B. The Secretary shall not delegate any function vested by law in an entity established by law and transferred to the Department or vested by law in an officer of such an entity may not be delegated to an officer or employee outside of that entity.

SEC. 192. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

(a) ANNUAL EVALUATIONS.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall monitor and evaluate the implementation of titles I and XI. Not later than 15 months after the effective date of this division, and every year thereafter for the succeeding 5 years, the Comptroller General shall submit a report to Congress containing—

(1) an evaluation of the implementation progress reports submitted to Congress and the Comptroller General by the Secretary under section 192;

(2) the findings and conclusions of the Comptroller General of the United States resulting from the monitoring and evaluation conducted under this subsection, including evaluations of whether successfully the Department is meeting—

(A) the homeland security missions of the Department; and

(B) the other missions of the Department; and

(3) any recommendations for legislation or administrative action the Comptroller General considers appropriate.

(b) BICENNIAL REPORTS.—Every 2 years the Secretary shall submit to Congress—

(1) a report assessing the resources and requirements of executive agencies relating to border security and emergency preparedness issues; and

(2) a report certifying the preparedness of the United States to prevent, protect against, and respond to natural disasters, cyber attacks, and incidents involving weapons of mass destruction.

(c) POINT OF ENTRY MANAGEMENT REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the effective date of this division, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report outlining procedures to consolidate management authority for Federal operations at key points of entry into the United States.

(d) RESULTS-BASED MANAGEMENT.—

(1) STRATEGIC PLAN.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than January 30, 2003, the Comptroller General shall prepare a strategic plan for the Department with the requirements of section 306 of title 5, United States Code, the Secretary, in consultation with Congress, shall prepare and submit to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and to Congress a strategic plan for the program activities of the Department.

(B) DETAILED IMPLEMENTATION.—

(1) the greatest extent possible, provide an inventory of the non-homeland security functions of the entity and identify the capabilities of the entity with respect to those functions, including—

(A) the number of employees who carry out those functions;

(B) the budget for those functions; and

(C) the flexibilities, personnel or otherwise, currently used to carry out those functions;

(2) contain information related to the roles, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, capabilities, personnel assets, and annual budgets, specifically with respect to the capabilities of the entity to accomplish its non-homeland security missions without any diminishment; and

(3) contain information regarding whether any changes are required to the roles, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, modernization programs, projects, activities, recruitment and retention programs, training programs, and policies that enable the entity to accomplish its non-homeland security missions without any diminishment;

(C) TIMING.—Each Under Secretary shall furnish a report to the Secretary under subsection (a) annually, for the 5 years following the transfer of the entity to the Department.

(2) PERFORMANCE PLAN.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—In accordance with section 1115 of title 31, United States Code, the Secretary shall prepare an annual performance plan covering each program activity set forth in the budget of the Department.

(B) CONTENTS.—The performance plan shall include—

(i) the goals to be achieved during the year;

(ii) strategies and resources required to meet the goals; and

(iii) the means used to verify and validate measured values.

(C) SCOPE.—The performance plan shall describe the planned results for the non-homeland security related activities of the Department and the homeland security related activities of the Department.

(D) RESULTS-BASED MANAGEMENT.—

(1) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(a) CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE.—The term "critical infrastructure" has the meaning given that term in section 1016(e) of the USA PATRIOT ACT of 2001 (42 U.S.C. 5195(e)).

(a) IN GENERAL.—All laborers and mechanics employed by contractors or subcontractors in the performance of construction work financed in whole or in part with assistance received under this Act shall be paid wages at rates not prevailing on similar construction in the locality as determined by the Secretary of Labor in accordance with the Davis-Bacon Act (40 U.S.C. 276a et seq.).

(b) SECRETARY OF LABOR.—The Secretary of Labor shall have, with respect to the performance of labor standards under subsection (a), the authority and functions set forth in Reorganization Plan Number 14 of June 13, 1950 (5 U.S.C. App.) and section 2 of the Act of June 13, 1934 (48 Stat. 948, chapter 482, 40 U.S.C. 276c).

SEC. 195. PRESERVING NON-HOMELAND SECURITY MISSION PERFORMANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—For each entity transferred into the Department that has non-homeland security functions, the respective Under Secretary in charge, in conjunction with the head of such entity, shall report to the Secretary, the Comptroller General, and the appropriate committees of Congress on the performance of the entity in all of its missions, with an emphasis on examining the continued level of performance of the non-homeland security missions.

(b) CONTENTS.—The report referred to in subsection (a) shall—

(1) to the greatest extent possible, provide an inventory of the non-homeland security functions of the entity and identify the capabilities of the entity with respect to those functions, including—

(A) the number of employees who carry out those functions;

(B) the budget for those functions; and

(C) the flexibilities, personnel or otherwise, currently used to carry out those functions;

(2) contain information related to the roles, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, capabilities, personnel assets, and annual budgets, specifically with respect to the capabilities of the entity to accomplish its non-homeland security missions without any diminishment; and

(3) contain information regarding whether any changes are required to the roles, responsibilities, missions, organizational structure, modernization programs, projects, activities, recruitment and retention programs, training programs, and policies that enable the entity to accomplish its non-homeland security missions without any diminishment.

(c) TIMING.—Each Under Secretary shall furnish a report to the Secretary under subsection (a) annually, for the 5 years following the transfer of the entity to the Department.

SEC. 196. FUTURE YEARS HOMELAND SECURITY PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Each budget request submitted to Congress for the Department under section 1105 of title 31, United States Code, and each budget request submitted to Congress for the National Terrorism Prevention and Response Program shall be accompanied by a Future Years Homeland Security Program.

(b) CONTENTS.—The Future Years Homeland Security Program under subsection (a) shall be structured, and include the same type of information and level of detail, as the Future Years Defense Program submitted to Congress by the President and the Congress for the Department under section 221 of title 10, United States Code.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall take effect with respect to the preparation and submission of the fiscal year 2005 budget request for the Department and the fiscal year 2005 budget request for the National Terrorism Prevention and Response Program, and for any subsequent fiscal year.
whether or not the Department has a similar or identical record.
(d) WITHDRAWAL OF CONFLICT DESIGNATION.—The provider of a record that is furnished voluntarily to the Department under subsection (b) may at any time withdraw, in a manner specified by the Department, the confidential designation.
(e) PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall prescribe procedures for—
   (1) the acknowledgement of receipt of records furnished voluntarily;
   (2) the designation, certification, and marking of records furnished voluntarily as confidential and not customarily made available to the public;
   (3) the care and storage of records furnished voluntarily;
   (4) the protection and maintenance of the confidentiality of records furnished voluntarily; and
   (5) the withdrawal of the confidential designation of records under subsection (d).
(f) EFFECT ON STATE AND LOCAL LAW.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as preempting or otherwise modifying State or local law concerning the disclosure of any information that a State or local government receives independently of the Department.
(g) REPORT.—(1) REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the committees of Congress specified in this paragraph a report on the implementation and use of this section, including—
      (A) the number of persons in the private sector, and the number of State and local agencies, that furnished voluntarily records to the Department under this section;
      (B) the number of requests for access to records granted or denied under this section; and
      (C) such recommendations as the Comptroller General considers appropriate regarding improvements in the collection and analysis of sensitive information held by persons in the private sector, or by State and local agencies, relating to vulnerabilities of and threats to critical infrastructure, including the response to such vulnerabilities and threats.
   (2) COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS.—The committees of Congress specified in this paragraph are—
      (A) the Committees on the Judiciary and Governmental Affairs of the Senate; and
      (B) the Committees on the Judiciary and Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Quinault Permanent Fisheries Fund Act”.

SEC. 2. DISTRIBUTION OF JUDGMENT FUNDS.

(a) FUNDS TO BE DEPOSITED INTO SEPARATE ACCOUNTS.—Subject to section 3(c), the funds appropriated on September 19, 1989, in satisfaction of an award granted to the Quinault Indian Nation under Dockets 772–71, 773–71, 774–71, and 775–71, and the United States Claims Court, less attorney fees and litigation expenses, and including all interest accrued to the date of disbursement, shall be disbursed by the Secretary of the Interior and deposited into 3 separate accounts to be established and maintained by the Quinault Indian Nation (hereinafter in this Act referred to as the “Tribe”) as follows:

(1) An account for the principal amount of the judgment funds. Such funds shall be used to create a Permanent Fisheries Fund. The principal funds expended by the Tribe and shall be invested by the Tribe in accordance with the Tribe’s investment policy.

(2) An account for the investment income earned on the Permanent Fisheries Fund from the date that the funds are disbursed under this section. These funds shall be available for fisheries enhancement projects and the costs associated with administering the Permanent Fisheries Fund. The specific fisheries enhancement projects for which such funds are used shall be specified in the Tribe’s approved annual budget.

(3) An account for the investment income earned on the judgment funds from September 19, 1989, the date of the disbursement of the funds to the Tribe under this section. These funds shall be available to the Tribe for tribal government activities. The specific tribal government activities shall be specified in the Tribe’s approved annual budget.

(b) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT OF FUNDS AVAILABLE.—The Quinault Business Committee, as the governing body of the Tribe, has the discretion to determine the amount of funds available for expenditure under paragraph (2) of subsection (a) provided that the amounts are specified in the Tribe’s approved annual budget.

(c) ANNUAL AUDIT.—The records and investment activities of the 3 accounts specified in subsection (a) shall be maintained separately by the Tribe and shall be subject to an annual audit.

(d) REPORTING OF INVESTMENT ACTIVITIES AND EXPENDITURES.—Not later than 120 days after the close of the Tribe’s fiscal year, a full accounting of the previous fiscal year’s investment activities and expenditures from all funds subject to this Act, which may be in the form of the annual audit, shall be made available to the tribal membership.

SEC. 3. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

(a) DEADLINE FOR DISBURSEMENT OF FUNDS.—Not later than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, all funds subject to this Act shall be disbursed to the Tribe.

(b) UNITED STATES LIABILITY.—Upon disbursement to the Tribe of the funds pursuant to this Act, the United States shall no longer have any trust responsibility or liability for the investment, supervision, administration, or expenditure of the judgment funds.

(c) APPLICATION OF LAW.—All funds distributed under this Act are subject to the provisions of section 7 of the Indian Tribal Judgment Funds Use or Distribution Act (25 U.S.C. 1407), relating to the use or distribution of certain judgment funds awarded by the Indian Claims Commission or the Court of Claims.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember September 18th, 1988, a day fourteen years ago that a totalitarian military regime in Burma brutally shot, stabbing, and tortured its way to control. The regime killed an estimated 10,000 innocent people who marched on the streets and called for democracy, including women, children, students, Buddhist monks, teachers and others from all walks of life. To this day, the 50 million people of Burma still suffer gross human rights abuses. According to credible organizations including the United Nations, U.S. State Department, and Amnesty International, the Burmese regime press for millions of persons into forced labor, holds over a thousand political prisoners, and organizes systematic, mass rapes in the Shan state. Evidence shows that Burma’s military regime is among the world’s most brutal.

In fact, the regime is so fearful of its own people that it has established a military intelligence service to squash free thinking and prevent even the discussion of ideas like freedom and democracy. On August 17th and 18th of this year, 15 students from the Rangoon University and Rangoon Institute of Technology, all under age 21, were arrested by the regime. Thirteen were arrested simply for forming a literary study group without permission of the authorities. Two others, Thet Naung Soe and Khin Maung Win, were arrested in front of Rangoon City Hall for handing out leaflets calling for the realization of democracy. It is expected that they will be sentenced to long prison terms where they are likely to be in serious danger of torture.

In July, two youth members of the rightfully elected National League for Democracy were arrested for possessing a secretive pro-democracy journal. They were beaten severely by the police and later sentenced to seven years imprisonment in a summary trial held in the infamous Insein prison.

In July, two youth members of the rightfully elected National League for Democracy were arrested for possessing a secretive pro-democracy journal. They were beaten severely by the police and later sentenced to seven years imprisonment in a summary trial held in the infamous Insein prison.

At the same time the regime has abused its own people, it has initiated an international diplomatic charm offensive to curry favor with its own people, it has initiated an international diplomatic charm offensive to curry favor with the United States and other countries. The regime announced to the world on May 6, 2002. "We shall recommit ourselves to allowing all of our citizens to participate freely in the life of our political process."

The United States should not be fooled by false propaganda of the regime while the people of Burma sacrifice for the freedom and democracy I believe in. The United States has always supported the struggle for freedom in Burma. Now, at this critical time, we must do all that is in our power to increase international pressure on this regime. 1991 Nobel Peace Prize recipient Daw Aung San Suu Kyi has courageously held together her country’s freedom movement for the past 14 years, and she and the people of Burma deserve our ongoing support. Fourteen years into the struggle for freedom and Burma, I commend the courageous people of Burma who have never allowed their call for freedom to be crushed. Freedom united their cause. Courage gave it life. Tyranny tried to crush it. But to this day, hope inspires the people of Burma to continue in their struggle for democracy.

Mr. Speaker, Susan Fuller is an exceptional, respected and admired community leader and friend. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring this distinguished woman for all she has done for the public library system. We are a better county, a better country, and a better people because of her.

Throughout his life, Archie was involved in numerous organizations including: as past president and life member of the New City Volunteer Ambulance Corps, as a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, past president of the Lake Lucille Property Owners’ Association and former president of the Rockland County Association of Postmasters.

Archie was extremely active in his duties as Postmaster attending crucial congressional hearings held at Bear Mountain in the 1970’s that targeted ways in which to improve the U.S. Postal Service.

After retiring, Archie continued to serve his community by becoming a public school bus driver. For almost twenty years, he assisted in driving for the Clarkstown School District.

Archie’s legacy will live on in the community of Clarkstown and will long be remembered by the people of the 20th District of New York.

As we mark the passing of Archie C. Davidson, let us remember his commitments and let his legacy and accomplishments live through his family. His legacy continues with his four children, five grandchildren, and three great grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, embody these proceedings.

and historian, who last month marked his 5th year of work at the Tampa Tribune.

In a world of 24-hour-a-day news stations, wireless phones and Internet connections, it is easy to get so wrapped up in the here-and-now that we forget the history that shaped our community and our lives. For 50 years, Leland Hawkes has worked to remind Tampa Bay residents of where we came from and how we got here.

Every Sunday, Tampa Tribune readers are treated to Leland’s “History and Heritage” page where he passes on a wealth of knowledge about Tampa Bay’s rich and vibrant culture. Leland’s detailed stories restore the color and texture to the events that we may vaguely remember, and open the door to a fascinating past that we had long forgotten. Most importantly, Leland and his stories make us proud of our community, our history and our heritage.

Those fortunate enough know Leland personally have only the best things to say about him. During his career at the Tribune, he has earned the utmost respect as an award-winning journalist, a kind mentor to young reporters, a gentleman, and a loyal friend.

On behalf of the Tampa Bay community, I would like to express my deep appreciation to Leland for his dedication to telling our story, telling it well, and preserving our history for future generations.

HONORING DETROIT SHOREWAY COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and recognition of the Detroit Shorway Community Development Organization, and neighborhood volunteers and community leaders, as they celebrate the success of the Bridge Square Project and the renovation of the historic Courtyard Building.

This tangible evidence of community renewal, fostered by the hard work, vision, and persistence of the public and private sector within and surrounding the Detroit Shorway community, shines within the spirit of the neighborhood—from house to house, and street to street. Hope has risen in the form of the Bridge Square Project—twenty-nine new homes have been built, and over one hundred housing units have been renovated. This significant accomplishment is an example of the sustainability of the Detroit Shorway neighborhood, and other neighborhoods within the Cleveland and Greater Cleveland area.

The preservation and renovation of the Courtyard Building, built in 1897, is also a testament to the renewed hope, energy and possibility of this neighborhood. This structure, once a dilapidated magnet for criminal activity, is now a monument to the focus and work of a neighborhood, whose unity, action and determination have made Detroit Shorway better, safer, and brighter place for everyone.

Mr. Speaker and colleagues, please join me in honoring and celebrating the residents and leaders of the Detroit Shorway neighborhood, the Detroit Shorway CDO, and all individuals and agencies connected to the rejuvenation of this historical, diverse and significant community. Due to the collective efforts of those who live and work in the Detroit Shorway neighborhood—an effort that spans many years—a community has been reborn. Out of the darkness of illegal drug activity, blighted neighborhoods, and streets in decline, hope has risen in the form of those dedicated to their community—and accomplished one neighborhood meeting at a time, one nail at a time, and one brick at a time—rebuilding the heart and soul of this neighborhood.

CALLING ON UKRAINIAN LEADERS TO ENSURE AND DEFEND FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION, AND TO RESOLVE AND BRING TO JUSTICE THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE MURDER OF HEORHIY GONGAZDE ON THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF HIS DISAPPEARANCE AND SUBSEQUENT MURDER

HON. BOB SCHAFFER
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to read my address to the attendees of a meeting-requiem, commemorating the memory of murdered Ukrainian journalist Heorhiy Gongadze and calling for freedom of speech in Ukraine. This event took place on Sunday, September 15, 2002, in Washington, D.C.

On behalf of the Congressional Ukrainian Caucus, I extend my greetings to those assembled today in Washington, DC on this anniversary of the brutal and tragic murder of Ukrainian journalist, husband and father, Heorhiy Gongadze. Your presence at this important observation, and your individual participation sends a clear message about our common commitment to the unalienable right to freedom of speech. Your compassion is proof of this, and I commend your compassion. Your sincerity inspires my colleagues and me in the Congress to pledge our continued and tireless support for a mature and durable democracy in Ukraine.

May God bless you all and may He bless Ukraine and the United States of America.

IN MEMORY OF EDITH SCHERMER FREIDENRICH

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of a very special woman, Edith Schermer Freidenrich who passed away on January 4, 2001.

Edith, the daughter of Joseph and Jenny Schermer, was born in Seattle, WA, on March 14, 1910. She studied nursing at the University of Washington before moving to San Francisco, where she married her husband of 44 years David Freidenrich on December 17, 1933.

Mr. Speaker, Edith’s family was her pride and joy. She was the mother of three sons, David Jr., John, and Dennis, the grandmother of seven and great grandmother to three.

Edith was an active school volunteer, an avid reader, a bridge player, and seasoned traveler. She was passionately engaged in the Democratic party and its principles. She passed on this love of politics and compassion to her children who continue their mother’s legacy of community and political activism.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all my colleagues in the House to join me in honoring the memory of Edith Schermer Freidenrich and to give thanks for all she did throughout her life to make her community and our country better for human kind.

WELCOMING MADAME CHEN WU SUE-JEN

HON. BENJAMIN A. GILMAN
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am introducing today H. Res. 533, a resolution welcoming Madame Chen Wu Sue-jen of Taiwan to Washington. Madame Chen’s visit comes at an important moment in our Nation’s relationship with Taiwan and the People’s Republic of China, PRC. Although the United States has repeatedly asked Beijing to resolve its difficulties with Taiwan through peaceful means, the Chinese military has placed hundreds of ballistic missiles on the coast of China aimed at Taiwan. To make matters worse China is building more and more of them. The communist authorities portray the peaceful cause of Taiwan independence as a terrorist movement. Nothing could be further from the truth. Taiwan is a free country. On the contrary Taiwan has been 100 percent supportive of the war against terrorism and generously gave humanitarian support for the new Afghan Government. China on the other hand helped the Taliban build a 14,000 secure telephone line system.

China has also assisted Iraq in building a fiber optic communications network that is used by the Iraqi military. It is clear who supports terrorism and who does not.

First Lady Chen Wu will be bringing with her a strong message from her husband and the people of Taiwan that Taiwan’s cooperation with the United States in the antiterrorism campaign will continue and be strengthened further. This is the sort of mature behavior that the world has come to expect from Taiwan. We hope that Beijing will soon follow in Taiwan’s footsteps and become a truly cooperative, responsible member of the world community. Such a change in behavior will benefit the Chinese and Taiwanese people and the region and the world as a whole. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to vote for HR. Res. 533, and welcome Madame Chen to the United States. I ask that the full text of HR. Res. 533 be printed at this point in the RECORD.

Whereas Taiwan’s First Lady Chen Wu Sue-jen, wife and partner to her husband President Chen Shui-bian, has been unwaveringly and courageously striving for justice, human rights, and democracy in Taiwan and has herself held a seat in the Legislative Yuan;

Whereas Taiwan is now a model vibrant democracy an one of the top ten trading partners of the United States;

Whereas supporting democracy, human rights, and free market economies has been a longstanding policy of the United States;

Whereas government and people in Taiwan have consistently provided tremendous support and generous contributions to the United States after the terrorist attacks against the United States that occurred on September 11, 2001;

Whereas First Lady Chen Wu was one of the main forces behind Taiwan’s charity and humanitarian assistance for the victims of the terrorist attacks;

Whereas First Lady Chen Wu will visit the United States beginning on September 22, 2002, and will meet with her a strong message from her husband and the people of Taiwan that Taiwan’s cooperation with the United States in this joint anti-terrorism campaign will continue and be further strengthened;

Whereas First Lady Chen Wu, on behalf of President Chen Shui-bian, visited France in 2002, and will bring with her a strong message from her husband and the people of Taiwan that Taiwan’s cooperation with the United States in the antiterrorism campaign will continue and be further strengthened.

CONCLUDING CRISIS IN FOSTER CARE

HON. GEORGE MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, most of us favor federal spending to promote the safety, well-being, and stability of children in the child welfare system. Yet in too many states, federal funds are being used to finance dysfunctional child welfare systems, often operating in violation of federal laws. We cannot continue to perpetuate a system that fails to protect children or their families or provide necessary services and safeguards.

In the following article, The Miami Herald reports that 183 employees of Florida’s Department of Children and Families (DCF) had committed felonies, including child molestation, child abuse, sex crimes and drug dealing. In the report, a DCF official acknowledges that “the most vulnerable people in our community are trusted to people in circumstances where there is a potential for these kinds of badgone.”

In Florida and across the nation, state, county and local agencies are facing difficulties in recuiting, retaining and supervising child welfare workers. Having poorly trained, incarcerated and mobbane workers leads to massive turnovers, which, in turn, exacerbates the challenge of accountability in a system responsible for safety and well being of children.

The child welfare system must be reformed to improve the delivery of mandated services, enhance efficiency of accountability systems, and successful permanent placements for children. In addition, there must be immediate and sustained oversight of the child welfare programs by the Department of Health and Human Services, and by state governments.

The article follows:

[From the Miami Herald, Sept. 8, 2002]

STATE CHILD-WELFARE PAYROLL INCLUDES EMPLOYEES WHO HAVE CRIMINAL PASTS

(By David Kidwell, Jason Grotto and Tere Figuera)

Florida’s embattled child-welfare agency—the Department of Children and Families—employs at least 183 people who have been arrested and punished for an array of felonies including child molestation, child abuse, sex crimes, drug dealing, even welfare fraud against the agency itself, a Herald investigation has found.

For instance, the head of the agency’s data-security team in Tallahassee is listed on the state’s list of sexual predators for molesting a 5-year-old boy.

In other cases, the crimes committed by DCF employees are directly relevant to the positions of trust they now hold.

In Miami, the director of rehabilitative services for a mental hospital has twice been arrested for cocaine buys.

In Chattahoochee, a man who supervises mental patients was charged with attempted first-degree murder in 1986 for firing a shot at his wife while he was still on house arrest for molesting a 5-year-old boy in his care. According to police records, he admitted to the charges and pleaded no contest to lesser charges that he covered with their son in a closet. He pleaded no contest to lesser charges.

In Kissimmee, the DCF hired a child-abuse investigator who six years earlier was convicted of violating a restraining order issued after she threw a brick through her ex-boyfriend’s living room window and smashed his car windshield with a tire iron.

In Gainesville, a night Supervisor at a home for the developmentally disabled was convicted in 1994 in a plot to kidnap six b habitualues at an apartment complex where her job as a maid gave her access to a pass key.

In Tampa, a family services counselor was also kept to keep her job where she beat up her 68-year-old mother in the front yard during an argument.

Administrators of the DCF had already been beleaguered by criticism over the agency’s handling of cases involving missing children that led to the resignation of department director Kathy Langer. It is also clear that they have worked hard to screen employees.

In most cases, they say, the agency was aware of the charges and thoroughly reviewed the backgrounds of employees to make sure their lives were back on track and that DCF clients would not be imperiled. “In a perfect world, none of our employees would have any kind of criminal past,” said Tim Bottcher, a DCF spokesman in Tallahassee.

“But we just know that is unrealistic. In reality, we are no different than any other large organization.” The 183 employees found by the Herald should be considered in the context of an enormous agency with 29,000 employees statewide. “When it comes to the attitude on employees who have broken the law, we have considered the offenses and acted accordingly.”

The DCF, however, had not complied with Herald requests to provide personnel files to verify many of the agency’s actions in these cases. DCF administrators acknowledged that in some cases the agency did not know about the criminal pasts of its employees.

This week, three submitted their resignations after Herald inquiries. They include the Miami rehabilitative services director, a human services worker from the DCF Hospital in Chattahoochee who pleaded no contest to selling cocaine in 1994, and a human services analyst in Miami caught in an insurance-fraud scheme in 1997.

DIDN’T DISCLOSE

DCF administrators said each of them failed to disclose their arrests to the DCF as required by the agency. Among the 183 employees charged were three who have been punished for child abuse, 22 for grand theft, seven for aggravated battery, two for fighting, three for dealing drugs, 10 for aggravated assault with a weapon and nine for welfare fraud.

Herald also found one man, a $61,446-per-year supervisor in the DCF’s data-processing center in Tallahassee, on Florida’s registry of sexual predators.

Carl Avery Anderson, 43, was hired in 1998 while he was still on house arrest for molesting a 5-year-old boy in his care. According to police records, he admitted to the charges and pleaded no contest to lesser charges that he tricked him into a confession. “I have never been in trouble in my life,” he told The Herald. “If I had tried to fight that . . . maybe I could have gotten off. I pleaded because I was ignorant. People who know me know I didn’t do this.”

DATA SECURITY

He is now head of the DCF’s data-security team where he supervises others and is responsible for making sure the agency’s enormous stockpile of sensitive and private information remains that way.

“I have been an employee who has been promoted during his career here,” Bottcher said. “It would be a concern of ours.
if he had direct contact with clients, but we don’t feel his job is relevant to the crimes. “He does have security clearance that would allow him to access client information,” Bottcher said. “We did not consider him to be a risk.”

Some of the names on The Herald’s list entered pretrial diversion programs, in which prosecutors agreed to drop the cases after the charges were filed and the people completed a program of probation, counseling or special substance abuse treatment. Among them: Bart Harrell, 40, who was hired as a patient-activities coordinator at the Chattahoochee mental hospital less than seven years ago when he was charged in 1996 with sexual battery on a person younger than 18 in Alabama, according to records and interviews.

Not Required

Employees were not required to disclose arrests to the DCF before a policy change in 1994, said Walt Cook, the DCF’s assistant director of human resources. Harrell declined to speak about the case but said: “Those records are supposed to be sealed and expunged. You are about to ruin my life again over something that didn’t happen 13 years ago.”

Among others who were hired or kept their jobs after agoing to pretrial intervention: Sabria发展 in the child-protective investigation in Kissimme. In 1996, police reports say, she smashed an ex-boyfriend’s windshield and threw a brick through his window. Barnett is a convicted violator of violent and domestic violence injunction after another confrontation with the same man.

Susan Arnick Alston, 55, a family services counselor in Tampa. According to police, she beat up her 68-year-old mother in the front yard in 1993.

In both cases, DCF administrators say they were aware of the charges. “People make mistakes in their lives, and there’s such a thing as rehabilitation,” said Yvonne Vassel, a DCF spokeswoman in Barnes’ district. “The process was followed, and she was truthful with her disclosures to the state.”

Alston, who licenses foster homes, was put on administrative duties until the completion of her court case. “Had she pleaded guilty or no contest, She Would have been disqualified from her employment,” said Shauna Donovan, spokeswoman for the agency’s field office. “But since the charges were dismissed, she was allowed to return to her normal duties.”

In Miami, two employees resigned Friday amid The Herald investigation.

Calvin Eugene Dandy, 54, the $45,000-per-year Miami director of rehabilitative services at the South Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center. He resigned after being confronted by district administrators about a 1999 arrest for buying cocaine that he failed to report.

All employees are required to disclose any arrests immediately, and employees in sensitive “caretaker” positions—those who spend more than 10 hours a week in direct contact with DCF clients—are reassigned until the criminal case is closed.

If prisoners in diversion program positions are convicted or plead no contest to most felonies and first-degree misdemeanors, they will be fired unless they apply for and are granted an exception by the agency.

Lucian Bledsoe, the agency’s human- resources director in Miami, said Dandy failed to disclose his 1999 arrest, which came 14 months after he was granted an exception for a similar charge from 1993. He was sentenced to probation in 1993. In 1999, the charges were dropped because lab reports on the home burglary in time for a crucial court date, according to Miami-Dade state attorney’s office records.

Dandy did not return repeated messages left at his home and office.

“The bottom line is he knew his responsibility to disclose that arrest, and he didn’t do it,” Harrell said.

Also resigning Friday: Mercedes Medina, 52, a $32,000-a-year human-services analyst in Miami, who was charged in 1996 for insurance fraud. She pleaded no contest to a string of staged auto accidents, court records show. “I was trying to help some people out,” told The Herald. “But it was so stupid. The stupidest thing I have ever done in my whole life.” Medina acknowledged she never told the DCF about the insurance fraud allegations against her for drunken driving. She said she didn’t think it was required.

The Herald found two DCF employees in caretaker positions who have been charged and punished for child abuse, including Jennie Arnett Barkley, now 54, another supervisor who oversees mental patients at Chat- tahoochee. She pleaded no contest and served two years’ probation on 1986 charges of grand theft and child abuse after she took her 15-year-old daughter on a shoplifting spree at Gayfer’s, court records show. Barkley declined to be interviewed.

The Herald also found nine current employees who were charged and punished for defrauding the agency itself out of welfare money, including one woman who was hired in June while still on probation for the charge.

Recent Hire

Another recent DCF hire was 27-year-old Amy Curtis, who in May became a night supervisor at the South Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center. He was now taking responsibility. Dickens told The Herald the gun went off accidentally.

Mr. COMBEST. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor the girls and leaders of the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council in Texas for exemplary service in their communities. Working through the “90 Days of Service” project, these Girl Scouts joined with their Texan sisters to provide 356,737 hours of service throughout the state.

Juliet Low founded Girls Scouts of the USA in Savannah, Georgia in 1912. In honor of the 90th anniversary of the organization, many Girl Scout Councils participated in a 90 day long service project. The girls and leaders of the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council worked to improve the environment through Adopting Highways, cleaning up parks, desert lands and beaches, recycling, and working in a graffiti abatement program. They sought to aid the less fortunate through collections for Lions Clubs, food banks, humane societies, homeless programs, and children and baby organizations. These dedicated young women contributed to society by planting flowers, working with Habitat for Humanity, tutoring senior citizens in computer skills, making quilts for the needy, painting murals, rewiring lamps and providing flag ceremonies. Through hours of hard work, these girls celebrated their own special anniversary by giving others reasons to celebrate.

It is with great pleasure, Mr. Speaker, that I honor these dedicated young women for their selfless service to their community. The Girl Scouts of the Permian Basin Girl Scout Council demonstrate the promise of America’s youth. I wish to congratulate these girls for their hard work and dedication in serving fellow Americans.

On Introducing the “Reducing Education Loan Repayment Act”

HON. STEVE ISRAEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. ISRAEL. Mr. Speaker, earlier this month, millions of American parents sent their children off to college. For many of them, however, the worry about how to pay for college dampered their excitement. To case that burden for parents and students alike, I rise today to introduce legislation that will make the interest on college loans fully tax deductible, permanently, for every student.

Over the course of a lifetime, a college graduate can expect to earn $1 million more than someone with a high school diploma alone. Yet, as higher education has become more necessary, it has become more expensive. A study released in May by the National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education shows that the price of tuition is now beyond the reach of many working families. Private colleges are just plain unaffordable, and public colleges are becoming less affordable each year. To pay these high costs, students and their parents increasingly take out larger and larger educational loans. The average college graduate with loans begins working with $11,000–$18,000 of debt.

I believe that education is the single most important investment we can make in our children’s future. Our government believes that home ownership is an investment that the government should support, and it allows the interest on home interest loans to be tax deductible. Congress should extend the same kind of support to student loan interest.

CONGRATULATING COLORADO STATE UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL

HON. BOB SCHAFFER
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Colorado State University football team for winning the 2002 Rocky Mountain Showdown. On August 31, in front of a crowd of 75,531 fans packed into Invesco Field at Mile High, the Rams defeated in-state rival University of Colorado 19–14. This win is a result of great offensive play, with two touchdowns from running back Cecil Sapp and one from quarterback Bradlee Van Pelt. In addition, the Rams determined defense helped beat the University of Colorado by capturing four turnovers. Although Colorado State was a seven-and-a-half point underdog going into the game, by the end they proved themselves a team not to be underestimated. The Rams have won the Showdown rivalry three of the last four seasons and are compelled to challenge their 18-54-2 record against the University of Colorado football team. Dedicated and powerful, Colorado State players are headed by Coach Sunny Lubick’s skillful leadership, which will continue to drive their dominance.

I commend the starting line up for a great game. Starting for the defense Peter Hogan LE, Brvan Save NT, Patrick Goodpastor DT, Andre Sommorsell RE, Jeff Flora, Drew Wood MLB, Eric Pauly OLB, Dexter Wynn LCB, Landon Olson FS, David Vickers SS, Rhett Nelson RCB. This starting offensive line up: Bradlee Van Pelt QB, Cecil Sapp RB, Joey Cuppuri WR, Chris Pittman WR, Joel Dreessen HB, Matt Bartz TE, Aaron Green OL, Morgan Pears WG, Mark Dreyer C, Albert Bimper SG, Erik Pears ST. Also, playing special teams: Joey Huber P, and Jeff Babcock PK. In addition, I congratulate the other team members and coaches who contributed to the CSU victory: Rahssan Sanders RB, Eric Hill WR, Adam Wade LB, Brandyn Hohs WR, Steve Tufte DB, Jason Hepp, Benny Mastropietro DB, Henri Childs RB, Miles Kockever DB, Hayward Adam LB/S, J.J. Stepien WR, Doug Head LB, Courtney Jones LB, Lavell Ward OL, Jamine McCormack OL, Michael Brisie OL, Russell Sprague WR, Thomas Wallace DE, Brandon Alconcel TE, James Sondrup TE, Jonathon Simon DL, Chris Kiffin, Assistant Coaches John Benton, Mick Delaney, Tom Ehlers, Dan Hammerschmidt, Larry Kerr, Matt Lubick, Marvin Sanders, Brian Schneider, and the in-state rival University of Colorado.

In my opinion, the CMS also needs to designate an individual that fiscal intermediaries or hospital associations can contact regarding critical access hospital issues. This individual needs to understand how a CAH operates, as well as policies and procedures changed by the CMS. I am certain that any critical access hospital in Nebraska would be glad to host this individual for a tour and orientation of how a CAH operates.

Mr. THOMAS SCULLY,
Administrator of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, the CMS has instructed Nebraska hospitals to bill for CRNA services on a UB-92 form rather than to the Medicare Part B carrier through the use of revenue code 379 in lieu of revenue code 964, which is a generic “anesthesia” revenue code. This will at least allow the hospital claims to be paid. I am asking that you designate an individual that fiscal intermediaries or hospital associations can contact regarding critical access hospital issues. This individual needs to understand how a CAH operates, as well as policies and procedures changed by the CMS. I am certain that any critical access hospital in Nebraska would be glad to host this individual for a tour and orientation of how a CAH operates.

Mr. SPEAKER, I respectfully request that you address this CRNA billing issue immediately, as it seriously curtails the financial viability of rural hospitals. I look forward to your prompt response and for your favorable action. I intend to place this letter in the Congressional Record.

Best wishes,

DOUG BERERUTER,
Member of Congress.

IN RECOGNITION OF TOUCHPOINT HEALTH PLAN

HON. MARK GREEN OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin, Mr. Speaker, today I’d like to recognize and honor, before this House, Touchpoint Health Plan for receiving an “Excellent” Accreditation Status by the National Committee for Quality Assurance (NCQA) for its commercial managed care organization.

Being named the “highest performing plan in the nation overall,” Touchpoint established itself as one of the premier managed care plans in the country, setting four national benchmarks in the areas of Breast Cancer Screening, Beta Blocker Prescribing, Heart Attack and two measures of diabetic care.

No plan in the nation has distinguished itself more consistently in terms of performance measures than Touchpoint. It has a proud history of providing superior care to folks in a region that includes a large rural community.

According to NCQA, this accreditation places Touchpoint among an “elite group of

A CALL FOR ACTION: THE CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID SERVICES NEEDS TO ADDRESS CRNA BILLING ISSUE IMMEDIATELY

HON. DOUG BERERUTER

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. BERERUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member wishes to submit, for the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, a letter to Mr. Thomas Scully, Administrator of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS), requesting that he address a Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist (CRNA) billing issue immediately. This Member is asking for your immediate attention. In my opinion, the CMS also needs to designate an individual that fiscal intermediaries or hospital associations can contact regarding critical access hospital issues. This individual needs to understand how a CAH operates, as well as policies and procedures changed by the CMS. I am certain that any critical access hospital in Nebraska would be glad to host this individual for a tour and orientation of how a CAH operates.

Mr. Speaker, I respectfully request that you address this CRNA billing issue immediately, as it seriously curtails the financial viability of rural hospitals. I look forward to your prompt response and for your favorable action. I intend to place this letter in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Chairman Smith for his leadership in moving this important legislation towards final passage. I also want to thank Chairman Smith, members, and staff in both chambers for preserving H.R. 3254, the Medical Education for National Defense (MED) Act for the 21st Century in the final package. That language is incorporated in Section 3 of H.R. 3253, as amended, and is entitled: Education and Training Programs on Medical Responses to Consequences of Terrorist Activities.

Section 3 of H.R. 3253, as amended, would establish an education program to be carried out through the Department of Veterans Affairs. The education and training curriculum developed under the program shall be modelled upon the F. Edward Hebert School of Medicine of the Department of Defense’s Uniformed Services University of Health Sciences (USUHS) core curriculum, which includes a program to teach its students how to diagnose and treat casualties that have been exposed to chemical, biological, or radiological agents.

As a Nation, we must be prepared for the near future of terror that has been forced to confront in the aftermath of the September 11th attacks. What has become all too clear is that our health care providers are not resourced or trained with the proper tools to diagnose and treat casualties in the face of biological, radiological, and chemical weapons. It is imperative that such a program be disseminated to the Nation’s medical professionals and current medical students. This section of the bill takes advantage of the nexus that already exists between the medical education provided by VA. Currently, 107 medical universities are affiliated with a VA medical center. This nexus is already in place and that is what we plan to exploit. The VA’s extensive infrastructure of 163 medical centers, 800 clinics, and satellite broadcast capabilities, will enable the current and future medical professionals in this country to become knowledgeable and medically competent in the treatment of casualties that we all hope will never materialize.

We cannot afford to assume that our country will be protected by its current infrastructure against a biological, chemical, or radiological attack on the American people. We must, as elected Representatives, act to ensure that if the worst of our fears are realized that the country’s medical professionals will be ready and able to deal with these situations.

It is not the intent of this legislation to create new community standards of practice. We must recognize that diseases such as smallpox, botulism, and the plague are not normally treated or recognized in this country. It is extremely important that all of our health care professionals are familiar with and able to diagnose and treat suspected exposure to weapons of mass destruction.

The American Medical Association endorsed H.R. 3254, and the American Association of Medical Colleges has thrown its full support behind this program. These two organizations know how vital it is to receive this important educational curriculum that addresses the medical aspects of biological chemical and radiological attacks, and they have recognized that the VA is in a unique position to assist with the dissemination of the information to the Nation’s medical community.

It is often said that knowledge is power, and in this instance nothing could be more accurate. The knowledge that would result from the implementation of this act is critical. Our medical professionals need to be offered training methods that would enable them to save lives . . . and I can think of no greater power than that.

Please, join with me and support final passage of this important piece of legislation.

THE INTRODUCTION OF THE AQUATIC INVASIVE SPECIES RESEARCH ACT (H.R. 5395)

HON. VERNON J. EHLERS OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to introduce today a bill that is critical to solving the economic and environmental problems posed by aquatic invasive species—the Aquatic Invasive Species Research Act. This Act authorizes funding to continue to support our efforts to detect, prevent and eradicate invasive species. It complements a bill being introduced today by Mr. Gilchrest in the House and Mr. Levin in the Senate to reauthorize the National Invasive Species Act. Many people may wonder what an invasive species is and why it is so crucial to keep them out of U.S. waters and so I will start off with some background.

The introduction of non-native invasive species is not new to United States. People have brought non-native plants and animals into the United States, both intentionally and unintentionally, for a variety of reasons since the New World was discovered. Some examples include the introduction of nutria (which is a rodent similar to a muskrat) by trappers to bolster the domestic fur industry, and the introduction of the purple loosestrife plant to add rich color to gardens. Both nutria and purple loosestrife are now serious threats to wetlands. Non-native species may also be introduced unintentionally, such as through species hitching rides in ships, crates, planes, or soil coming into the United States. The zebra mussels, for example, came into the Great Lakes through ballast water from ships.

Not all species brought into the country are harmful to local economies, people, and/or the environment. In fact, most non-native species do not survive because the environment does not meet their biological needs. In many cases, however, the new species will find favorable conditions (such as a lack of natural enemies or an environment that fosters propagation) that allow it to survive and thrive in a new ecosystem. Only a small fraction of these non-native species become an ‘invasive species’—defined as a species that is both non-native to the ecosystem under consideration, and whose introduction causes or may cause economic or environmental harm or harm to human health. However, this small fraction can cause enormous damage—both economic and environmental.

Aquatic invasive species can be very costly to our economy. Estimating the total economic impact of harmful non-native species is extremely difficult. No single organization accumulates such statistics. However, researchers at Cornell University estimate that invasive species cost Americans $137 billion annually. This includes the cost of... control, damage to property values, health costs and other factors. Just one species can cost government and private citizens billions of dollars. For example, zebra mussels have cost the various entities in the Great Lakes basin an estimated $3 billion during the past 10 years for cleaning water intake pipes, purchasing filtration equipment.

Beyond economic impacts, invasive species cause ecological costs that are even more difficult to quantify. For example, sea lamprey control measures in the Great Lakes cost approximately $10 to $15 million annually. However, we do not have a good measure of the cost of lost fisheries due to this invader. In fact, invasive species are now the number two threat to endangered species, right behind habitat loss. Quantifying the loss due to extinction of these species is nearly impossible.

To protect our environment and our economy, it is critical that we prevent the introduction of aquatic invasive species to U.S. waters and eradicate any new introduction before the species can become established (once an invasive species is established, it is almost impossible to eradicate it). Spending millions of dollars to prevent species introductions will save billions of dollars in control, eradication and restoration efforts once the species become established. Prevention requires careful, concerted management, but it also requires good research. For example, it is impossible to know how to prevent invasive species from entering the United States without a good understanding of how they get here, an understanding that we would develop through the pathway surveys conducted under this bill. We cannot plan the importation of non-native species for ones that may invade without a thorough understanding of the characteristics that make a species invasive and an ecosystem vulnerable, a profile that would be created in this bill. Finally, we can’t prevent invasive species from entering our waters through ships’ ballasts (a known pathway) without good technologies to eradicate species in ballast waters. This bill supports the development and demonstration of technologies to detect, prevent and eradicate invasive species.

In fact, research underlies every management decision aimed at detecting, preventing, controlling and eradicating invasive species; educating citizens and stakeholders; and restoring ecosystems. Research is also crucial to ensure that resources are optimally deployed to increase the effectiveness of government programs. This bill sets up a comprehensive research program to support efforts to detect, prevent and eradicate invasive species through informing and reviewing management initiatives. Now, let me explain some of the details of the bill.

The bill is divided into six sections. In the first three sections of the bill, a comprehensive research program is established through the United States Geological Survey, the Smithsonian Environmental Research Center and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to conduct surveys and experimentation on invasive species, and analyze and disseminate the results. The goal of this program is to support efforts to prevent the introduction of, detect and eradicate invasive species. This will be done by quickly detecting rapid response efforts, informing relevant policy questions, and assessing the effectiveness of implemented policies. For instance, information about new invasive species discovered in the monitoring effort will be directly disseminated to those agencies that can respond rapidly. And policy makers will learn about the pathways and practices that are most responsible for bringing invasive species into U.S. waters so that they can set up targeted responses to reduce the risk posed by those pathways.

In the fourth section of the bill, a research, development and deployment program is set up to promote environmentally sound technologies that prevent the introduction of, and eradicate invasive species. This includes programs to develop dispersal barriers, and the expansion of a program geared toward demonstrating technologies that prevent invasive species from being introduced by ships. The fifth section of the bill focuses on setting up research to directly support the Coast Guard’s efforts to set standards for the treatment of ships with respect to preventing them from introducing invasive species. The National Academy of Sciences will be asked to make recommendations for standards, and researchers will be asked to evaluate the effectiveness of any standard and recommend protocols to test technologies on ships to make sure they meet that standard. Finally, invasive species research depends on strong academic programs in systematics and taxonomy and so the National Science Foundation will be given funding to support academic research in those areas.

Preventing aquatic invasive species from entering U.S. waters and eradicating them upon entry are critical to our economy and environment, and good policy decisions depend on good scientific research. I urge all of my colleagues to support this very important bill.

TRIBUTE TO MORRIS MICHAEL SCIONTI

HON. JIM DAVIS OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in honor of Morris Michael Scionti, a passionate political activist who lived every moment of his life with tremendous enthusiasm and flair. As Chair of the Hillsborough County Democratic Executive Committee, Mike displayed unwavering loyalty to his country and his party.

Mike first shared his love for the political process in the classroom. For thirty years, he taught high school civics and history classes with the same affection and conviction that he later brought to politics. After teaching, Mike dove full force into politics, playing an integral role in Lawton Chiles’ successful campaigns for U.S. Senate and Governor, among other races. He then went on to work for the Division of Business and Professional Regulation and as executive director of the Florida Ath-

HON. MIKE THOMPSON OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 18, 2002

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize John and Ann Marie Woolley, two extraordinary citizens of Humboldt County, California who have dedicated their lives to public service. They are being honored for their life-long contribution to one of the nation’s most precious rights—participation in the political system. Their contributions are worthy of appreciation and recognition.

Ann Marie Woolley, a member of the faculty of College of the Redwoods, is Coordinator of the California Early Childhood Pro- gram. She has served as Head Start Coordi- nator and Regional Supervisor, North Coast Children’s Services and is a full time instructor of Early Childhood Education at College of the Redwoods. She has been an advocate for services for young children for 25 years. In addition, she has coordinated and directed parent workshops and consumer homemaking programs. Ann Marie Woolley was named Col- lege of the Redwoods Outstanding Associate Faculty Member of the Year, 2001–2002. She is an accomplished member of an environmental newspaper and written music reviews and is a member of numerous envi- ronmental and social justice organizations.

John Scott Woolley, Third District Super- visor, County of Humboldt, has been actively involved in community service projects throughout his career. At Humboldt State Uni- versity, the Center for Community Develop- ment, John was responsible for the initial de- velopment of community programs that assisted seniors, women and children throughout the region. As the Community Economic De- velopment Planner at the Northern California Indian Development Council, John coordinated statewide programs which included federal tribal recognition petitions, an American Indian health satellite clinic and labor and business training in natural resources improvement con- tracting. He is an outstanding county super- visor who works hard for his district and rep- resents the county on the boards of the North Coast Emergency Medical services, North Coast Railroad Authority, Whole Child Inter- agency Council, and North Coast Unified Air Quality Management District. His civic and philanthropic contributions to our community are numerous.

They share the happiness of family life with their two sons, James and Kevin. John and Ann Marie are being recognized for their outstanding contribution to the political process by the Humboldt County Democratic Central Committee as “Democrats of the Year, 2002.”
SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules Committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Thursday, September 19, 2002 may be found in the Daily Digest of today’s RECORD.
