

the job done. I am hopeful this year will be different for several reasons.

First, our seniors need our help now more than ever. They shouldn't have to make tough decisions about which prescriptions they can afford to fill each month, or whether or not they should divide pills or skip meals.

This is one of the biggest issues we hear about from our constituents. There are a lot of Kentuckians who would benefit. Almost 144,000 seniors in Kentucky are below 200 percent of poverty, and almost 58,000 are below the poverty level.

Second, this budget resolution sets aside $400 billion over the next 10 years to create a medicare drug program. This is a great increase over what the President proposed before and shows his dedication to this issue.

In fact, the President proposed $153 billion for Medicare prescription drugs in his fiscal year 2002 budget.

For fiscal year 2003, this number increased to $190 billion.

And for fiscal year 2004, President Bush has more than doubled last year's amount to $400 billion.

For Congress's part, this $400 billion figure is also a substantial increase.

In the fiscal year 2001 budget resolution, we set aside $40 billion over five years for a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

In the fiscal year 2002 budget resolution, Congress allocated $300 billion over 10 years.

Of course, last year, we didn't pass a budget. And, this year, we have set aside $400 billion over 10 years.

Third, the finance committee will be allowed to consider and report a bill to the floor this year. And I am hopeful we can avoid many of the problems we encountered last year.

Last year we voted on four prescription drug proposals. But because the bill didn't come from the finance committee as it should have, all these proposals required 60 votes to pass. Needless to say, none came close.

Also, these four proposals ranged widely in price from as low as $295 billion to over $600 billion. The tri-partisan plan, which I and many of my colleagues voted for, was estimated to cost $370 billion over 10 years.

We have a real chance for a bipartisan effort this year. An overwhelming majority in this body have indicated their support for a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this resolution. It will create jobs if we can pass it with the President's job and tax package in tact. And the Medicare prescription drug benefit package it includes is what seniors not only need, but what they deserve.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TALENT). Who yields time?

The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I yield to my colleague.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield back our time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

Mr. NICKLES. I thank my colleague from North Dakota.

We have now completed the debate and discussion time for consideration of the budget resolution. The statute calls for 50 hours. We have yielded back a few hours, but for the most part we have probably spent some 40-odd hours on the floor of the Senate debating and discussing various amendments. It has been a very high level debate. We considered several amendments. We have adopted amendments. We have agreed to adopt additional amendments.

Unfortunately, as sometimes happens in budget resolutions, when we conclude the scheduled time for debate, the 50 hours, we have not dealt with all the pending amendments. We still have many amendments. Sometimes that leads to a lot of votes. So tomorrow we will begin that. We will begin it at 9:45.

I urge all my colleagues to be here and, for the most part, to stay on the floor. We will work with all of our colleagues who have amendments filed or pending or feel that they are compelled to offer amendments. We encourage them not to. But knowing a little history, I would expect a lot of rollcall votes tomorrow. I will say on behalf of colleagues on my side and others, we will be happy to work with colleagues. I would hope that maybe we could get some amendments accepted by voice vote, or maybe the sponsors of the amendment might decide it might be a better time to offer their amendment at another date for which we would give them great credit and applause. Regardless, I expect that we would have a lot of votes beginning at 9:45 tomorrow morning.

I expect the time for the votes will be limited to 10 minutes for the information of our colleagues. We will provide periodic breaks for individuals so they can have maybe some chance for us to regroup and reconsider the order and priority of amendments.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that 9:45 the Senate proceed to votes in relation to the following amendments in the order mentioned: Schumer amendment No. 299; Cochran on homeland security; Feingold on war reserve; Lautenberg on defense; Hollings on no tax cut; Sarbanes on a water related amendment; Crapo on a water related amendment; Conrad on IDEA, Gregg on IDEA; and Senator MIKULSKI on long-term care.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CONRAD. No objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. NICKLES. I thank my colleague, Senator CONRAD. He has been a pleasure to work with through the first several days of this resolution. I expect that we might have a long day tomorrow. I hope not. But we will be in as long as necessary to complete this resolution, and I encourage all of our colleagues, tomorrow is a good day to attend if you want to improve your voting record. It is not a good day to miss if you want to have a good voting record for the year.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, let me thank my colleague, the chairman of the committee. He has been gracious throughout this process and a gentleman. I have very much enjoyed working with him.

The fact is, now we have over 90 amendments pending at the desk—I think 93. At 10 minutes apiece, that is over 15 hours of voting, and that is if we voted every 10 minutes. We all know that won't occur. So we would be talking about a very long day tomorrow.

I will just send a message out to any of our colleagues or any of their staffs who are listening, to those who have amendments pending: If this is something that you think is a good idea but you really don't need to do now, that you could offer on an appropriations bill or some other vehicle, we encourage you to do that.

This is a very difficult process. I think the record is 34 votes in a day. I remember that day. I think the chairman remembers that day. It was not pretty. I don't look forward to a replication. But that is what the rules are. That is where we are. The only way it is going to be better is if we use restraint. I just hope colleagues and staffs are listening and that tomorrow restraint is demonstrated. We don't need to vote on every one of these 93 amendments.

The chairman and I will work diligently to try to clear amendments, to get agreement on amendments, to work through amendments that could be accepted. We ask our colleagues, we implore them to work with us tomorrow, to avoid this being an unpleasant and unproductive experience.

Again, I thank the chairman and our colleagues who have worked cooperatively today to make progress.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I thank my friend and colleague, the ranking member of the Budget Committee. He is exactly right. There are 90-some amendments. I would hope most of them would not be called up, and I hope the balance will be voice voted, and maybe we will have a couple rollcall votes and finish at decent hour.

I would like the Senate to conduct itself in a way that we would be proud. In years past that has not always been the case, when we are doing these rapid fire amendments.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to a period for morning business.
