STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. CORNYN (for himself and Mr. LOTT):

S. 1820. A bill to authorize the States to implement such mechanisms as are necessary to endure the continuity of Congress in the event that one-fourth of the members of either the House of Representatives or the Senate are killed or incapacitated; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I rise to say a few words about the continuity of Government. More than 2 years since the terrible events of September 11, Congress has not taken any steps necessary to protect the Nation by ensuring continuity of Government operations should there be another attack and the tragic loss of life or disability on the part of Members of the United States Congress. The Founders of this country rightly required a majority of each House to constitute a quorum to do business, to ensure a nationally representative Congress. But the Constitution does not provide, I should say, adequate mechanisms to assure a continuing, functioning Congress if a majority of the Members are incapacitated or killed by a terrorist attack.

Our current system of providing for the continuity of Government in the event of a disaster is simply inadequate to meet the realities of a post-9/11 world. As unthinkable as another attack of that magnitude might be, we must be ready for the worst.

In fact, we have a duty as the elected Representatives of our respective States to do everything within our power to provide for a stable continuance and function of Government, despite all possible catastrophes. We must not leave our Nation's citizens without representation, without order, and without defense. We simply owe it to the American people to ensure that our Government will remain strong and stable, even in the face of disaster.

It is my conviction that this issue deserves more than just token attention. It is not something we can or should put off until another day. It is urgent and it is a critical element of our ongoing fight against terror.

Today, I have offered a proposal to provide for the continuity of congressional operations. In coming weeks, I will submit legislation to address the problems of our current system of Presidential succession as well.

Earlier this year, the bipartisan Continuity of Government Commission,
