Whereas polio remains a public health threat in today's world, despite being easily preventable by vaccination;

Whereas polio is now limited to 10 countries, with the distinct possibility that it can be once and forever extinguished as an affliction on mankind by ensuring the vaccination of all children in these countries under the age of 5;

Whereas a Global Polio Eradication Initiative exists that seeks to once and forever end polio as an illness, which includes efforts underway by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention; and

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, over 200 years ago, there was a dream that was America for a group of individuals who were brought to our shores in shackles. A dream so powerful that compelled a race of people to fight for the liberty of others when they were in bondage themselves. A dream that not only served as a catalyst for physical liberation in the African-American community but removed societal shackles from our culture and enabled us to realize the ideals set before us in the Constitution—that all men are created equal under God.

Today, I am proud to stand here with my colleagues, from both the House and the Senate, and announce the passage of the National Museum of African-American History and Culture Act. After over 70 years, we have finally created a museum to honor—nationally—the contributions and sacrifice of African Americans in this country.

I would specifically like to thank Senator DODD, who was committed to honoring this history and has worked hard to get us to this point today.

I would also like to thank Senator TRENT LOTT for his unwavering support to move this bill through the Committee of Jurisdiction. As well as Senator TED STEVENS for his leadership and commitment to this project.

Additionally, I would like to recognize Senator SANTORUM for his continued unwavering commitment to this bill as well as the majority leader of the Senate, Senator BILL FRIST. It means a great deal to have such widespread support and I am grateful.

Perhaps most important, I would like to thank Representative JOHN LEWIS for championing this bill for over 15 years. It has been a pleasure for me to work with you, JOHN, on this bill.

With the creation of this museum, we will celebrate a rich and magnificent history. A history of a people's quest for freedom that shaped this Nation into a symbol of freedom and democracy around the world. I am proud to
