

One exists today, already, to give to those families and the men and women who paid the ultimate sacrifice in such a brave way on 9/11.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment. My dad was a policeman in the city of Philadelphia over 28 years. We will, one, accept the amendment, and what we will do is try to do more than that. We will try to work with the gentleman and his office and call down to the Justice Department.

I will personally place a call to see, I mean, why should we wait until this bill gets signed? Why should we not do something next month, do something in September, do something quickly?

So, one, we will accept the amendment, so it is accepted; but, two, we will make a call and work with the gentleman's office, if he can work with our staff, and we will try to see if we can make a call by the end of this week so he will get some sense of relief.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the chairman's demonstration of desire to make this a reality by what he has just said on the floor, and I too am the son and the grandson of a police officer. And I think most people know that my first cousin was killed on 9/11, John Moran, as well as numerous friends of mine who were police officers and fire fighters. So there is a personal element to this issue as well.

I do appreciate the gentleman's offer to verbally contact the administration and the Attorney General's Office, and I hope, again, that something can be done after 2½ years of really, if nothing else that I can describe, just dragging feet. I wish I had a better answer as to why this has not taken place already. It is not the Senate. It certainly is not you, Mr. Chairman, or anyone in this House.

We have spoken unanimously in the past, and as I said before, this is the third time on the floor that we will have spoken. So I appreciate the gentleman's advice and his counsel on what he will do on his side to make this a reality before this goes any further.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, my father's badge number was 3990, and we will get the gentleman an answer by Friday if we can.

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to commend the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY), my friend and colleague, for this effort. Our eyes do not deceive us. It is not $50 million. It is not $50 billion. It is $50,000. But in so many ways it is trillions, because it affects people who have been hurt. And while the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) is not to wear this on his sleeve, I happen to know that, as we all do, his family was touched by this tragedy. And so the support that he continues to give the victims and the families is one that makes a lot of sense to all of us.

Again, we have done so much to honor those folks who have served and who gave their lives and the families that were touched; and yet this little symbol, and it is little in the sense of what it costs and yet gigantic in what it means to people, is something that should move ahead.

Mr. FOSSELLA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I commend the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) and commend the chairman for doing this. There is nothing that can bring back those brave heroes from September 11, but clearly for so many who lost their lives from Staten Island, Brooklyn, and throughout the city and region, this is one way that our country continues to honor them. I think it is fitting, appropriate and overdue.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY). The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) that the report accompanying this bill calls for an external review of the NOAA laboratories and of the management of NOAA's research activities. As the gentleman knows, these issues have been of great interest to the Committee on Science, and indeed are addressed in an NOAA Organic Act that I recently introduced.

Our committees have worked together on these issues of research management, and I would like some assurance from the chairman that our committees will continue to work together on this matter. I would not want to see any directive coming from the Committee on Appropriations in this or any other bill regarding the management and structuring of science at NOAA that did not reflect agreement between our respective committees.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOEHLERT. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, we thank the gentleman for his comments. I appreciate our cooperative relationship, particularly since I have known the gentleman since he was a staffer for Mr. Pirnie and I was a staffer for Mr. Biester a long time ago. Absolutely, I can assure the gentleman we will not direct NOAA to make any changes in the structure of its science programs that the gentleman's committee would not approve.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for that cooperation and assurance.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. KING of Iowa) having assumed the chair, Mr.

HASTINGS of Washington, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4754) making appropriations for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2005, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

REPORT ON H.R. 4766, AGRICULTURE, RURAL DEVELOPMENT, FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2005

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose earlier today, the bill was open for amendment from page 2, line 6, through line 22.

Are there further amendments to this paragraph?
