

Foreign Relations Committee on September 9, Secretary Powell declared that "the evidence corroborates the specific intent of the perpetrators to destroy 'a group in whole or in part.'" This begs the question: if Darfur, why not Armenia? Did the Ottomans not seek to destroy the Armenians to this same extent?

Although Americans of Armenian origin, many of whom came to this country fleeing persecution and looking to rebuild, make up a relatively small community among the multitudes that comprise our Nation, they have enriched our national life beyond proportion to their numbers, in the arts and sciences, in medicine, in business, and in the daily life of communities across the Nation. I support Americans of Armenian origin in calling for recognition of the genocide committed against their relatives 90 years and just a few generations ago. In recognizing this tragedy, we reinforce our commitment to building a world in which history will not repeat itself.

SENATOR GAYLORD NELSON AND EARTH DAY

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, today I rise to recognize one of our most prominent Wisconsinites, Gaylord Nelson, the founder of Earth Day—and a man who was a driving force for the way the American people and the world view the environment and environmental conservation.

Gaylord Nelson was truly a pioneer who had the vision of starting a national day to protect and celebrate our environment when it was not politically popular. What started out as an idea in the early 1960s blossomed into a national day of observance with an estimated 20 million demonstrators participating in the first Earth Day in 1970. Today there will be an estimated 500 million people in 167 countries taking part in Earth Day.

All over the country, Americans heard about the dangers of lead in our water and air, pesticides in our drinking water, and chemicals in our soil. An informed public brought pressure on Congress and the President to act. The movement that started that first Earth Day led to the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, and Superfund legislation. These are the foundation of our environmental law today, and they would not have been possible without the work and vision of Senator Gaylord Nelson.

Senator Nelson entered public service in 1948, after serving 4 years in the military during World War II. He served as a Wisconsin State senator, Governor, and then as a U.S. Senator for 18 years. As Governor, he was known for conservation efforts and preserving wetlands long before those causes became popular nationally. As a Senator, he built on his environmentalist reputation to further issues including the preservation of the Appalachian Trail corridor and the creation of the national trail system.

Earth Day also reminds us that we need to work internationally. We need to engage developing economies like China, India, and Russia to head off major environmental disasters. We are not on this planet alone, and we can no longer pretend that environmental damage around the globe does not come back to haunt us. Senator Nelson understood that lesson almost 40 years ago, and he has been teaching it to the rest of us ever since.

The ideas of Gaylord Nelson are just as important today as they were 35 years ago. The progress that followed in the wake of the first Earth Day must not be forgotten. As a nation and as neighbors in the world we must continue to demand for higher accountability and higher environmental standards. Today is a reminder for all people to recommit themselves to environmental stewardship and to thank Gaylord Nelson for focusing us on how we impact the environment that sustains us—and the legacy we owe to the generations that follow us.

"GENTLEMAN" JIM JEFFORDS

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to our friend and colleague from Vermont, JIM JEFFORDS, who announced on Wednesday that he will not seek re-election to a fourth term in the Senate in 2006.

If anyone has earned the right to retire from politics, it is JIM JEFFORDS. JIM began his public service in 1956, when he was just 22. He joined the Navy and served on active duty until 1959, when he entered Harvard Law School. He was elected to the Vermont State Senate in 1966, nearly 40 years ago. Two years later, he was elected State attorney general, and he served in that capacity until 1973.

He was elected to the United States House of Representatives in 1974. I think that was a testament to the respect and affection that Vermonters have for JIM. As my colleagues may recall, 1974 was a pretty tough year for Republicans to get elected.

JIM served in the House for 14 years, distinguishing himself on the Agriculture Committee and the Education and Labor Committee. He showed his fiercely independent streak in 1981 when he was the lone House Republican to vote against President Reagan's tax cuts that caused budget deficits to explode.

In 1988, JIM was elected to the Senate, replacing another esteemed Vermont Republican, former Senator Robert Stafford. In three terms in the Senate, JIM has chaired the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee and the Environment and Public Works Committee.

It is customary for Members of Congress to focus on a few issues during their career. JIM is unusual because he has significant accomplishments in so many areas.

Over the course of his 30-year career in Congress, JIM has had an enormous impact on every education and job training bill, including the elementary and secondary education and the higher education reauthorization bills and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, IDEA; every farm bill; the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact; and every environmental protection bill, including the landmark 1990 Clean Air Act amendments that established the "cap and trade" program for sulfur dioxide that has done so much to reduce acid rain in our part of the country. JIM has also been one of the staunchest and most effective advocates for the arts, humanities, libraries, and museums. And he has been a tireless champion of the women, infants and children, WIC, nutrition program.

Back home in his beloved Vermont, he is known as "Gentleman Jim." And he is a gentleman, one of the most decent and thoughtful Members ever to have served in the Senate.

Because he is so soft-spoken and moderate, people underestimate him. Or at least they did, until he decided that President Bush and the Republican majorities in Congress were taking our country in the wrong direction.

I know that leaving the Republican Party and becoming an Independent was one of the toughest decisions JIM has ever made. But he believed it was the right thing to do, so he did it, with his characteristic humility and without any rancor.

The Senate will be a poorer place without JIM JEFFORDS' expertise and civility. But as I said a moment ago, if anyone has earned the right to retire, it is JIM JEFFORDS.

I know he wants to get back to Vermont and help his wife Liz battle cancer. Liz lost her sister recently, and their son-in-law will be deployed to Iraq soon. So JIM and Liz and their family are especially in our thoughts and prayers right now.

We will miss JIM JEFFORDS, but history will mark his heroism and his enormous contribution to life in America. For that, we are eternally grateful.

RECOGNITION OF DARLEEN HORTON

• Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I speak today in honor of Darleen Horton, a teacher at Chenoweth Elementary in Louisville, KY. Ms. Horton was recently selected by President Bush to receive the Presidential Award for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching. Ms. Horton was chosen based on her passion for her subjects and her dedication to her students.

The Presidential Award for Excellence in Mathematics and Science Teaching identifies outstanding mathematics and science teachers in all 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Territories and the U.S. Department of Defense Schools. This year the awards focused on K-6th grade teachers. Each teacher receives $10,000 and a trip to our Nation's Capital.

The requirements for this award are difficult to attain and demand a great deal of effort on the part of the teacher. It is only given to those teachers who embody excellence in teaching, demonstrate devotion to the students, and are able to uphold the high standards that exemplify American education at its finest. It recognizes the important contributions teachers make to American young people and to the promise of America's future.

I am very proud of this Kentucky teacher's accomplishments. Since she began teaching in 1958, she has been an inspiration to many students. In the news release concerning the Award, one of Ms. Horton's students was quoted as saying, "Teaching is the art of making learning irresistible." I have no doubt which teacher that student was talking about. I congratulate Ms. Horton on her ability to make learning irresistible and I thank her for the work she has done to educate the next generation of Americans.●

CONGRATULATING THE AMERICAN LEGACY FOUNDATION ON RECEIVING THE EPA CHILDREN'S ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH AWARD

● Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President. I congratulate the American Legacy Foundation on the occasion of yesterday's announcement by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency that the Foundation is a recipient of the agency's Children's Environmental Health Award.

The widespread use of tobacco and devastating effects of secondhand smoke create a serious environmental health risk for America's children. Since its inception 5 years ago, the American Legacy Foundation, a nonprofit health organization dedicated to building a world where young people reject tobacco and anyone can quit, has worked to discourage adult and youth tobacco use and reduce the effects of secondhand smoke.

Passive exposure through secondhand smoke, or environmental tobacco smoke, puts children at risk for a range of negative health consequences including asthma, ear infections, bronchitis, pneumonia, reduced lung function, respiratory infection, and other chronic respiratory symptoms. According to current population survey data, 13.8 million kids ages 0 to 17 are exposed to secondhand smoke and 22 percent of middle school students and 24 percent of high school students are exposed to secondhand smoke in the home. American Legacy's campaigns and programs to reduce smoking are helping to reduce the number of young people breathing environmental tobacco smoke.

The Environmental Protection Agency is recognizing the Foundation because of its initiatives to address the negative health effects of tobacco. Outreach efforts include public awareness campaigns and initiatives designed to educate and empower youth to take action against the environmental health threat that smoking and secondhand smoke poses to them.

It is with great pleasure today that I commend the agency for its program of recognition and the American Legacy Foundation for its award. ●

RANDY WHITE: AN IDAHO HERO

● Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, many times over the past few years that our military men and women have served in Iraq and Afghanistan, we have heard the accounts of combat, injury and death. Sometimes, we can lose sight of the fact that there are people here at home who put their lives on the line every day in the execution of their law enforcement duties. In September 2003, Randy White, a courageous police officer and 16-year veteran of the Minidoka County Sheriff's Office put his life on the line to protect innocent bystanders and fellow officers from injury and death. In the course of apprehending a fugitive from an Idaho bank robbery in Jackpot, NV, Randy sustained gunshots to his abdomen and legs, one of which was at point-blank range. He still suffers from these injuries, but returned to work very shortly following his harrowing experience and has not allowed the extent of his injuries to derail his work and activities.

Randy and his wife SunDee have four children, Jared, Jordan, Michelle and Dalen. Randy is active in the LDS church in Rupert, ID, serving as high priest group leader. He has devoted many years to the Boy Scouts, first serving as a Cub Scout Master for 10 years and then a Scout Master for 8. He now holds the position of Scout Committee Chairman. A third generation Idahoan, Randy spent 10 years on active duty with the Navy and 19 years in the Navy Reserves. His active duty time included a tour in Vietnam. Along with his devotion to his family and dedication to his job and community, he has retained his sense of humor, even in the recent trauma he experienced. He said this when asked about the shooting, "I spent two years in Vietnam and was shot at many times but never hit. I came back to sleepy Idaho and rural Nevada and got shot three times!" Randy is a courageous, hard-working father, husband and community leader. I wish him well as he continues his recovery, and congratulate him on his selection to be the new Rupert Chief of Police. Today, he is being awarded the FBI Shield of Bravery and Star Award in Rupert, ID. I am honored to recognize Randy's bravery and courage today in the United States Senate, as well as the bravery and courage of all other Americans in law enforcement across our country. Randy embodies the spirit of the great State of Idaho. We are all extremely fortun-nate that individuals like this exceptional man we honor today protect our freedom here at home. ●

HONORING THE CAREER OF SECRETARY JAMES ELLENBECKER

● Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, it is with great honor that I recognize the leadership and many achievements of South Dakota Secretary of Social Services James Ellenbecker. Secretary Ellenbecker embodies the highest qualities of public service and has deservedly earned the respect and admiration of all those who have had the opportunity to work with him. After 35 years of public service, Secretary Ellenbecker is retiring as South Dakota's Secretary of Social Services, leaving behind an extraordinary legacy.

Secretary Ellenbecker began his career with the South Dakota government in 1970, and has since dedicated his life to serving the citizens of South Dakota. Working for the State Planning Agency and then the Department of Labor, he ultimately found himself in the Department of Social Services after providing then-Governor Bill Janklow with information he urgently needed late one Friday afternoon. Following their encounter, Governor Janklow appointed James Secretary of Social Services in 1980, a post he has held ever since.

During his 25 year tenure as secretary, under the leadership of four different governors, Secretary Ellenbecker played a vital role in enhancing South Dakota's Social Services infrastructure. As head of one of the largest and most complex agencies in the state, he promoted innovations which significantly enhanced its treatment of the elderly, children and single parent families. His influence on South Dakota's 1988 Elderly Initiative resulted in a responsive, efficient, and cost-effective long-term care system for the elderly, thus easing the burdens many families face both financially and emotionally. Under this new plan, more aged residents could live at home and maintain their independence.

Secretary Ellenbecker is also responsible for transforming South Dakota's welfare program. As a result of his vision and dedication, South Dakota has one of the most successful child support programs in the country. His strategy improved the lives of countless single parents by holding absent parents financially responsible for their children. Similarly, 67,000 uninsured children in South Dakota gained access to health care as a result of Secretary Ellenbecker's diligent management of South Dakota's medical services program.

I had the privilege of working with Secretary Ellenbecker during my years of service in the South Dakota Legislature. Throughout my years in Congress, when constituents contacted my office with issues involving the South Dakota Department of Social Services, I could always rely upon Secretary
