RED TIDE EMERGENCY RELIEF
ACT OF 2005

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. 1316 introduced earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1316) to authorize the Small Business Administration to provide emergency relief to shellfish growers affected by toxic red tide losses.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today Senator SNOWE and I have introduced a bill to help a group of nearly 300 fishermen, known as aquaculturists, who are falling through the cracks of the Government's disaster assistance programs. Right now these businesses are prohibited from receiving SBA disaster loans, and they are eligible for USDA disaster loans only under limited circumstances.

To our dismay, we have learned that SBA has come across this dilemma many times in the past, most recently last year in Connecticut, and yet no one at that agency has ever tried to coordinate with the Department of Agriculture. To make matters worse, the SBA waited two weeks to let us know that they wouldn't be able to serve all our small businesses. So even in those cases in which these harmed small businesses would be eligible for loans from the USDA, hundreds of small businesses are left waiting for the Secretary of Agriculture to go through the same hoops to certify a disaster and make that agency's disaster loans available. I appreciate all the Farm Service Agency has done to expedite the process, and compliment their staff for being so responsive. However, this isn't right.

Our State has been hit by the worst case of red tide in more than 30 years. These small business owners have seen their income disappear because they can't sell their inventory. With no income they can't pay their bills, invest in seeds to plant future crops, and they can't afford to maintain their current crops. They need access to these low-cost loans to help them makes ends meet until the Government opens the shores and declares shellfish once again safe to eat.

Businesses in trouble can't, and shouldn't have to, wait for this redtape to be resolved. To make sure this doesn't happen in the future, I am joining Senator SNOWE to make it possible for aquaculturists to be eligible for SBA economic injury disaster loans. This will complement what the Department of Agriculture's Farm Services Agency can offer in disaster loans. I want to also assure my colleagues that businesses are only eligible for loans through the SBA or Farm Service Agency but not both. This is already prohibited by law, and the agencies have in place procedures to protect against misuse. I than Senator SNOWE for working with me to help our fishermen hurting from red tide.

I ask unanimous consent that an article on this problem be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SHELLFISH GROWERS FEEL SNUBBED BY "RED TIDE" LOAN PROGRAM

(By Michael Kunzelman)

BOSTON.—Shellfish grower Barbara Austin has been out of work, just like hundreds of shellfishermen, ever since a toxic "red tide" closed shellfishing areas across the state earlier this month.

The difference is that she and nearly 300 other aquaculturists aren't eligible for the same low-interest loans to help them weather the financial storm.

Austin, of Wellfleet, pursued a loan from the Small Business Administration before learning they're reserved for the state's roughly 1,500 shellfishermen. The state's 287 licensed aquaculturists, who plant and harvest shellfish, aren't eligible because the SBA considers them farmers, not fishermen.

Austin said the rule was "kind of a slap in the face."

"If they're going to make offers like this, they should have been clear about what they're really offering," she said Tuesday.

In response, members of the state's congressional delegation Tuesday sent a letter to Agriculture Secretary Mike Johanns, urging him to make emergency financial assistance available to aquaculturists and fish farmers in eight Massachusetts counties.

Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who also spearheaded a letter to Federal Emergency Management Agency Director Michael Brown asking him to meet with the delegation, said FEMA should coordinate the federal disaster relief for those affected by the red tide.

The shellfishermen, said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., "shouldn't be blocked from receiving low interest loans because of bureaucratic red tape."

The SBA's enforcement of an "obscure rule" was a surprise, said Mark Forest, district director for U.S. Rep. William Delahunt, D-Mass.

"Obviously, we are not pleased," Forest said. "We're working to get the problem fixed quickly."

Efforts to reach SBA regional director William Leggerio weren't immediately successful Tuesday.

On June 9, Gov. Mitt Romney declared a state of emergency and asked the SBA for disaster assistance for the shellfishing industry, which is losing an estimated $3 million a week. Less than a week later, the SBA announced that it would offer loans of up to $1.5 million with a 4 percent interest rate.

Other forms of financial assistance could be available soon. The state also is asking for disaster aid from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

In the meantime, most of the shellfish beds shut down along the coast of Massachusetts will remain closed for at least four to five more weeks, state shellfish biologist Michael Hickey said Tuesday.

Hickey said the size and intensity of the toxic algae bloom is dropping in the waters off the North Shore and Cape Cod, but it could take two more weeks for the bloom to completely disappear. After that, he added, it would take two to three more weeks before shellfish beds can reopen.

"The good news is that areas we do have open are safe. The shellfish on the market is safe. The beaches are safe," Hickey said. "The bad news is, it's not over. (The bloom) is not going to be over for another couple of weeks."

The red tide algae contaminates shellfish such as clams and mussels, making them unsafe for people and animals to eat. The outbreak is the region's worst since 1972.
