The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
November 18, 2005.
I hereby appoint the Honorable MICHAEL K. SIMPSON to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

"Tomorrow is the anniversary of President Abraham Lincoln’s famous Gettysburg Address. Lord, Lincoln spoke of the ‘‘mystic chords of memory.’’ He believed the revered dead make distinct demands on us, the living.

In honoring those who gave their lives to preserve the sacred union of this Nation and to uphold the emancipated freedom of all peoples, Lincoln said, ‘‘We take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion.’’

So at Gettysburg then, so again, now, we the living are obliged to be ‘‘highly resolved that the dead shall not have died in vain.’’

By Your grace, Lord, and only by fulfilling present obligations to strengthen national unity and assure equal justice, will we the living pay fitting tribute to ‘‘the honored dead.’’ Each generation of Americans must see to it ‘‘that this Nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom.’’

This must be our resolve, Lord, with Your help now and forever. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof. Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Texas (Mr. POE) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. POE led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to five 1-minute speeches per side.

DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO SEE PROGRESS IN IRAQ

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. FOXX. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to talk about something that Democrats are incapable of speaking about, and that is the progress that is being made in Iraq.

As of late last month, 210,400 Iraqi security forces have been trained and equipped. Thirty-six Army battalions and three combat support battalions are leading the fight in their areas, a 71 percent increase since March. More than 50,800 Iraqi police have completed the basic training course. And, adding to that, the progress of the Iraqi people towards democracy has been tremendous. They are now holding free elections instead of the fake ones that Saddam Hussein forced on them for many years.

Yet, I do not hear many Democrats speak of this progress. All they talk about is how we are in a ‘‘quagmire’’ and that the war has been a ‘‘grotesque mistake.’’

Our men and women are not only fighting terrorists over in Iraq, but they are also setting up roads and schools. But Democrats would rather have cut and run and, in the process, undo all the good work that has been done.

COURAGE OUTWEIGHS POLITICS

(Mr. BLUMENAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, yesterday was the most significant day in the war in Iraq since we first began our attack. As President Bush is learning that our few allies are withdrawing their troops, Congressman JACK MURTHA has publicly concluded it is time to bring our troops home.

Despite attacks by some who never had a hint of his military service, whose own mismanagement, not just of the information that got us into this effort, but whose inept mismanagement of the war itself left us with few good options, JACK MURTHA remains the single most knowledgeable and respected Member of this House dealing with military affairs.

I have not seen eye-to-eye with JACK from the beginning, when I opposed attacking Iraq, to a statement I just posted, after weeks of thought, for a more gradual withdrawal. But I and every Member who is thinking honestly about this sad episode will reconsider my conclusion because of JACK MURTHA’s courageous and heartfelt statement. He is the only Member of Congress who has earned the right to be listened to . . .
AMERICANS ARE DYING BECAUSE OF FLAWED IMMIGRATION POLICY (Mr. POE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, Officer Brian Jackson loved his job. He had been a member of the Dallas Police Department since 2001. He moved to Dallas from Rhode Island because he wanted to “be a big city cop.”

But in the early morning hours of last Sunday, the last 15 minutes of his shift, Officer Brian Jackson, 28, responded to one last call. His shift was basically over, but he agreed to answer one more emergency.

It was not only his last call of the night, but it was his last call ever. Officer Jackson was responding to a domestic disturbance call when he was murdered, allegedly by an illegal alien from Mexico named Juan Lizcano.

But this crime could have been avoided. This illegal alien had been arrested twice in the last year, but because of safe haven sanctuary laws in Dallas, he was never deported. Because of these preposterous laws, a dedicated police officer, husband, and friend lost his life.

Officer Jackson and his newlywed wife had just returned from a delayed honeymoon in Hawaii.

Americans are dying because the government does not protect our borders. This is yet another example of our Nation’s flawed immigration policy. This ought not to be.

REPUBLICANS CUT CRITICAL PROGRAMS (Mr. DEFAZIO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. DEFAZIO. Well, the Republicans are preparing for Thanksgiving, like many Americans. But early this morning they slaughtered the turkey. They chopped student loans, school lunch, foster care, long-term care, and Medicaid for struggling families. Now they are preparing to serve a huge portion, with gravy, to Americans with generous new tax breaks and extended tax cuts to those who earn more than $300,000 a year and who clip coupons for a living, hard-working Americans them.

They are a little worried about kind of the mixed metaphor here, whether or not they will be called Scrooge, and some people will confuse Thanksgiving and Christmas. So they might put the bird back in the freezer and wait until closer and hope that the struggling students and families forget what was taken from them to help those who earn over $300,000 a year.

So that is the big decision on the Republican side of the aisle today. When does the turkey, composed of benefits that should have gone to struggling families, as a gift to the wealthy, get delivered, Thanksgiving or Christmas? Tough choice. Stay tuned.

WE MUST FINISH OUR MISSION IN IRAQ (Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, last month, Ayman Zawahiri, al Qaeda’s number two leader, said that the United States was too expel the Americans from Iraq.” Yesterday, this statement was echoed when Democratic Congressman JOHN MURTHA called for U.S. troops to be withdrawn from Iraq.

Instead of proposing winning solutions for the Global War on Terrorism, some Democrats are throwing up their hands and waving the white flag of surrender. As our brave men and women in uniform continue to protect our country, NANCY PELOSI, JOHN MURTHA, and other Democrats should have learned from last week’s mass murders in Jordan that we face a global enemy, following the bus bombings in London and New Delhi.

As a 31-year veteran and the father of a son who served in Iraq, I know our troops and brave Iraqi patriots are making tremendous progress protecting American families. Americans recognize we will face the terrorists on the streets of Iraq or we will face them again in America.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September 11.

DEMONSTRATING THE COURAGE OF OUR CONVICTIONS (Mr. McGOVERN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, the American people want this Congress to debate the war in Iraq. We should have had a debate before we entered into this war. Instead, we rushed into it.

Yesterday, Congressman JACK MURTHA, a man of conscience, a decorated Vietnam veteran, one of the leading advocates for the military here in the United States Congress, stood up and told it like it is, that the situation in Iraq is getting worse, not getting better, and we, our huge U.S. presence, is a major part of the problem. We have become the focus. We have become the people who are being attacked.

Congressman MURTHA deserves credit. Rather than engaging in a debate, what we hear from the other side and from the White House is more and more smear tactics, those who claim that they are somehow being unpatriotic. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Dissent in the face of policies that you disagree with is patriotism. To remain silent as you see this country going down the wrong path is not patriotism, it is moral cowardice.

I praise Congressman JACK MURTHA for having the courage of his convictions and standing up and leading the way to get us out of this war in Iraq.

WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2528, MILITARY QUALITY OF LIFE AND VETERANS AFFAIRS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006 (Mr. GINGREY, Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 564 and ask for immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 564

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to the bill (H.R. 2528) making appropriations for military quality of life functions of the Department of Defense, military construction, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived.

The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlemen from Massachusetts (Mr. McGOVERN), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

House Resolution 564 waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration, and it provides that the conference report shall be considered as read.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of House Resolution 564 and the underlying conference report for H.R. 2528, the Military Construction and Veterans Affairs and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for fiscal year 2006.

Today, this House has the opportunity to pass a conference report that will provide $45.4 billion to fund the very important needs of our service-men and women, our veterans, and our military infrastructure.

This conference report provides an all-inclusive look at the programs that are related to the quality of life of those who currently serve America in the armed forces, their families, and those men and women who have sacrificed so much for our freedom in the past.

Mr. Speaker, by providing $45.4 billion, this conference report actually marks an increase of $3.1 billion from fiscal year 2005, and it is an increase of $300,000 from the President’s request.

The bill funds the Department of Veterans Affairs at $22.5 billion, $1.7 billion above the fiscal year 2005 enacted level, and $575 million above the 2006 budget request by the President. Particularly important is the funding for veterans’ medical services that includes the $1 billion strictly allocated for specialty mental health care on top of a doubling for funding of mental health research.
Mr. Speaker, I should note that over the past 2 years, funding for veterans medical care has increased by 18 percent. Let me repeat: Funding for veterans medical care has increased over the past 2 years by 18 percent. The conference provides a particular victory for veterans back home in northwest Georgia, my district, and across the Nation. This bill does not, and I repeat, does not, contain any new fees for veterans medical services or prescription drugs. This conference report provides $62.2 billion for military construction, $5.1 billion for Active Duty construction, and $1.1 billion for Reserve components.

Mr. Speaker, I will conclude my statement by acknowledging Subcommittee Chairman Lewis for their overall vision and dedication to completing this bill, both here in the House and in the conference, for the sake of our servicemen and women, past and present.

Mr. Speaker, I look forward to this debate. I encourage my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my friend the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrey) for yielding me the customary 30 minutes to speak. I look forward to this debate. I encourage my colleagues to support the rule and the underlying conference report.

Mr. Speaker, this is the first conference report that the House will consider as a military quality of life-VA appropriations bill. As we all know, as a result of the subcommittee realignment this year by the Appropriations Committee, military construction, Defense Department health programs and all veterans programs are now contained in this one appropriations bill. I want to express my respect and voice my praise for the work of Chairman Walsh and Ranking Member Edwards for their work on this bipartisan-supported conference report.

This final conference report is a significant improvement over the earlier House-passed bill, especially in the areas of medical care and benefits for our veterans. Veterans medical services are funded at $22.5 billion, which has long been the position on this side of the aisle as the minimum amount of funding required to meet our veterans health needs. This total is $575 million above the President’s budget request and $1.7 billion more than last year.

Mr. Speaker, over the last 2 years, the funding amount needed to meet veterans medical care has increased by 18 percent, so while I welcome this increase in veterans medical services, I remain concerned about the total amount of funds that will actually be required over the remaining years of this decade to fulfill our needs. We still need to find additional funds next year to meet the fiscal year 2006 medical needs of our veterans.

Other important actions taken by the conferees are the specific targeting of $2.2 billion for specialty mental health care for our veterans and fully funding the requested amounts for posttraumatic stress disorders. In addition, this bill creates three Centers of Excellence for mental health and PTSD medical care.

Mr. Speaker, last week I was at a forum in western Massachusetts, and I met a Massachusetts father whose son had served and told me about the difficulty his son had attempting to reintegrate himself back into civilian life following his tour of duty. One night during a conversation, his son broke down in tears and laid his head in his father’s lap and cried. The father told me at that forum that the next time he held his son’s head in his lap was a couple of weeks later when he cut the rope that his son had used to hang himself in their basement.

Mr. Speaker, we need to recognize the vast need and increasing need, for counseling services for the men and women returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. The New England Journal of Medicine reported earlier this year that one in five of our soldiers are suffering from posttraumatic stress disorder and other mental health problems. We have to make their ability to receive counseling and support simple and seamless. We have to make sure that they do not run into bureaucratic walls or receive the runaround just when they need help the most.

I know that this is something that the chairman and ranking member think about a great deal, and I simply want to express my support for their efforts to confront this growing crisis.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report also increases the amount of funding for military construction and housing over the President’s request and over the amount in the House-passed bill. Even so, at this level of funding, if we fail to meet the needs currently identified by the Pentagon for military housing and modern basing and training facilities, we will say the bill does not provide the funds to provide our uniformed men and women the housing and training facilities that they need in order to prepare for the deadly duties we demand of them.

This is a matter of priorities. This is a statement of values and principles about whether and how we really do believe our troops and our veterans merit the very best this Nation can provide. We just cannot stand here year after year and praise the conferences for doing the best they could within the budget allocation that was given. It is the Congress that determines the amount of that budget allocation for our veterans, for our military housing and construction, for our military’s quality of life. As my good friend and colleague from Illinois Jesse Jackson, Jr., said yesterday on the floor of this House, it’s like a farmer saying the summer harvest is bad when he failed to plant seeds in the spring.

Mr. Speaker, like all of my House colleagues, I will be supporting this conference report, but we simply have to do better in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Gingrey. Mr. Speaker, I would like to close this morning by saluting those men and women who so proudly and bravely serve our country. Their sacrifices and their families’ sacrifices are beyond the average American’s comprehension. We must acknowledge that without these individuals, the rest of us could not enjoy the freedoms we so often discuss in this Chamber.

The appropriation conference report that will be passed today does not provide enough for those who are veterans of military service. Well, in a way, Mr. Speaker, I would agree with that. Honestly do not believe we can ever do enough to support our military men and women. They deserve so much more than we will ever be able to afford to give. It is truly an unbalanced relationship. They sacrifice everything for our liberties. We can only repay a small portion of that debt.

So, Mr. Speaker, I will finish my remarks simply by saying thank you to our troops, thank you to our veterans, and may God bless you and keep you safe.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

WAVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 3058, TRANSPORTATION, TREASURY, HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT, THE JUDICIARY, THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, AND INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2006

Mr. Lincoln Diaz-Balart of Florida. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 565 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 565 Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report accompanying the bill (H.R. 3058) making appropriations for the Departments of Transportation, Treasury, and Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary and Related Agencies, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MATSUI), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 565 is a standard, traditional rule for consideration of a conference report for the fiscal year 2006 Departments of Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary, District of Columbia, and Independent Agencies appropriations conference report. The rule waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration.

The underlying legislation before us, Mr. Speaker, makes appropriations for the departments that I have mentioned. The bill is fiscally sound. It represents our commitment to provide the necessary resources for programs and projects throughout the Nation ranging from transportation to housing and to the Executive Office of the President and the District of Columbia.

It is well-known that our transportation infrastructure is the backbone of the economy. Obviously, its continued strength is essential to economic growth, and the bill ensures that we continue to have a reliable and stable transportation infrastructure that will help the economy continue to grow. The bill includes almost $37 billion in funds for our highway system, an increase of $1.6 billion. These funds will serve the American people by contributing to a fast, safe, efficient, accessible and convenient highway system that meets the vital national interests and enhances the quality of life.

The underlying legislation includes $13.8 billion for the Federal Aviation Administration. Included in this amount is $25 million to hire and train 586 new air traffic controllers. This is a vital and important aspect of this legislation and is critical as air traffic controllers begin to retire, and, nevertheless, air traffic continues to increase.

Certainly in my district, home to Miami International Airport, the third largest international airport in the country, we are very well aware of how important the air traffic controllers are. Without an increase in the number of air traffic controllers, MIA would not be able to continue its projected growth and serve as really the hub of the Americas.

Housing and Urban Development is funded at $34 billion. That is an increase of $2.1 billion over last year. The funds will permit the Department to administer programs that assist the public with housing needs, economic and community development, fair housing opportunities, and will also empower low- and moderate-income families to own their own homes and buy their own homes. Under HUD, the bill includes funding for such important programs as Tenant Based Rental Assistance, also known as section 8, and other important programs.

H.R. 3058, Mr. Speaker, provides $5.8 billion for the Judiciary. It is an increase of 6 percent. This will fully fund the Judiciary’s request for security improvements at Federal facilities and will enable the courts, obviously, to continue to effectively carry out their duties to guarantee the rule of law.

This is a good bill, Mr. Speaker. I think it is essential to our continued commitment to our transportation needs and the needs obviously encompassed, dealt with, by the other departments that we are funding today.

I want to thank Chairman Lewis, Chairman KNOLLENBERG and everybody who has worked so hard on this legislation. I know it has been a tough, tough battle, and I have a lot of work left. I urge my colleagues to support both the rule and the underlying legislation. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, we are considering a rule for H.R. 3058, which will appropriate funding for a broad section of the Federal Government, including the Departments of Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, as well as the Federal judiciary and the District of Columbia. I commend all the conferees and particularly Chairman KNOLLENBERG and Ranking Member OLVER for their dedication to completing the conference report on this sprawling piece of legislation. It is a tremendous challenge to achieve consensus on such a broad range of priorities, and I believe this bill reflects outstanding leadership, considering the allotted resolution time. I was particularly pleased with the final funding for Amtrak, especially when you consider where we started. While the original House bill provided funds at a level that would have decimated the Nation’s passenger rail system, the conference report funding level will allow Amtrak to continue running its current operations. In my hometown of Sacramento, Amtrak is heavily relied upon, and I know my constituents will be relieved that the conferees have provided this funding.

From the housing portion of the bill, I would like to highlight the importance of the Community Development Block Grant Program. CDBG is a highly effective program that provides the resources to improve, energize and revitalize communities across the Nation. Like hundreds of cities across the country, in Sacramento CDBG has enabled transformative improvements to our city and the quality of life. I thank the appropriators for recognizing the vital nature of CDBG in providing this funding.

Another vital community resource funded in this bill is the housing choice voucher program known as section 8. This program allows low-income families, senior citizens and citizens with disabilities to obtain affordable housing.

On several occasions, my constituents have told me that were it not for these vouchers, they would have faced the fear and uncertainty associated with not knowing if tomorrow they have somewhere to call home. It is clear that this program makes a difference in people’s lives. I hope that when we come back next year and start to put together the FY 2007 budget, we remember the positive impact that these programs have on the lives of our constituents and all Americans.

Even though we will again face limited resources, I hope that when the time comes to construct the budget, we will begin by determining who truly needs the government’s help the most and which programs are most effective at delivering positive results. If we make that our top priority, I am sure this Congress and the Nation will be satisfied with the results.

Again, I thank the appropriators for their hard work and leadership this year on this conference report and throughout the year. I hope my colleagues will support the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PROVIDING FOR AN ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF THE TWO HOUSES

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 307) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 307
Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), that when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Friday, November 18, 2005, or Saturday, November 19, 2005, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader

Resolved that the House do then adjourn to meet anew on the legislative day of Monday, November 21, 2005, at 11:00 a.m. or his designee, it stand adjourned until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, December 6, 2005, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whenever occurs first; and that when the Senate recesses or adjourns on any day from Friday, November 18, 2005, through Wednesday, November 23, 2005, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution by its Majority Leader or his designee, it stand recessed or adjourned until noon on Monday, December 12, 2005, or Tuesday, December 13, 2005, or until such other time on either of those days, as may be specified by its Majority Leader or his designee in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.

Sec. 2. The Speaker of the House and the Majority Leader of the Senate, or their respective designees, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate if, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The concurrent resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include tabular and extraneous material on the conference report to accompany H.R. 2528.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2528, MILITARY QUALITY OF LIFE AND VETERANS AFFAIRS APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 564, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 2528) making appropriations for military quality of life functions of the Department of Defense, military construction, the Department of Veterans Affairs, and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 564, the conference report is considered read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of November 17, 2005. Book II.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I do intend to be brief, but this is an important bill for our military and I would like to expand a little bit on some of the points within it.

But before I do that, I would like to describe the conference that we had with the Senate as successful. I would like to thank my ranking member, Mr. EDWARDS of Texas, who has been at my shoulder all the way through this process. We worked very, very closely together. We have had the same priorities and we have tried to work out any disagreements that we had along the way.

I would also like to thank Chairman Lewis for his leadership and his forethought in realigning the jurisdiction of this subcommittee.

The House bill included the accounts for basic allowance for housing, facilities management, restoration and modernization, environmental restoration and the Defense Health Program. This was designed as a first step toward examining military quality of life as a whole, from active duty through retirement.

We have received nothing but positive feedback from the senior non-commissioned officers all the way up to the four-star service chiefs. I would hope that our colleagues in the other body would take a look at what the House has done and follow suit, but for this year, while the subcommittee retains jurisdiction over these four accounts, the conference report before the House today does not contain that funding.

The funding will be included in the Defense appropriations bill and will return to the Military Quality of Life and Veterans Affairs bill next year.

The conference report provides $0.2 billion for military construction, including quality of life facilities such as child care centers, medical facilities and training facilities. It also provides $1 billion for family housing construction and maintenance. This funding will continue moving toward the goal to eliminate inadequate family housing for our military, through both the privatization program and traditional construction. In addition, the bill includes $1.7 billion to maintain readiness and transform the military through the base realignment and closure process, the Army’s modularity initiative, and the global repositioning of our forces.

For the Department of Veterans Affairs, the agreement provides a total of $22.547 billion for medical services. This amount includes the original budget request, plus $1.1 billion to reverse policy proposals included in the budget request, but not endorsed by the conference. These are $496 million for long-term care; $202 million for pharmacy copays; and $454 million for enrollment fees.

In addition, the agreement provides for workload increases and corrections of errors as identified in the budget amendment submitted on July 14, 2005. A portion of these additional funds are only available upon submission of a revised budget amendment by the President which declares the funding an emergency. This is necessary for us to effectively provide these funds and still remain within our 302(a) allocation from the Budget Committee.

The conference agreement also includes a number of reporting requirements so that the committees will be fully informed about potential problems that the Department may encounter throughout the year of execution before it is too late.

Other significant changes to the budget request include:

The creation of an Information Technology Systems account to allow us to keep track of information technology programs at the Department of Veterans Affairs.

$2.2 billion of medical services funding is fenced to be used only for specialty mental health care, a priority of many members of the committee and the House. We received testimony after the conference encouraging us to make sure that a minimum amount was provided for mental health care, and that is what we have done.

$15 million for research into Gulf War Illness.

$19 million over the President’s request for medical and prosthetic research.

$85 million for grants for State Extended Care facilities. This is $85 million above the President’s request.

We have fully funded the cost-of-living allowance of 4.1 percent for veterans compensation.

We also provide an increase of $273 million for medical services for veterans returning from Iraq.

$200 million is included to cover workload growth in priority 1–6 veterans.

$600 million is provided to correct errors in the calculation of funding needed for long-term care.

Mr. Speaker, I will close by saying I think we have a good bill to put before the Congress. I am very grateful to our Appropriations Committee staff for their professional work and their patience as we worked through this process and for the late hours that they spent preparing the bill. I believe it is a bill everyone can support.

Note: The numbers reflect adjustments and allocations made to the budget for the FY 2006 Military Quality of Life - Veterans Affairs Appropriations Bill.
Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBERRY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, let me say, first of all, I want to congratulate the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) was blocked from bringing up an amendment to add $1.3 billion for veterans health care, and that effort was rejected.

On June 23, 2005, we learned how wrong that original mark had been. The administration admitted they were a billion dollars short and even admitted that the majority could not even bring it to the House floor. It ended up getting wrapped up into the omnibus.

On September 29, 2004, I again offered a motion to recommit on the first CR, trying to add $1.3 billion for veterans health care, and that effort was rejected. On June 23, 2005, we learned how wrong that original mark had been. The administration admitted they were a billion dollars short and even admitted that the majority could not even bring it to the House floor. It ended up getting wrapped up into the omnibus.

After that failed, I offered a motion to recommit with instructions to include the $1 billion for veterans. Again, I was blocked.

On June 29, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) was blocked again from bringing up an amendment to add $1.3 billion. This time we tried to use the transportation appropriation bill as the vehicle. And now we come to the subject of this conference for 2006. When the request came at the beginning of the year, the administration was only asking for $20 billion for medical services. On the other hand, veterans organizations’ independent budgets said that $22.5 billion would be needed.

In May 2005, the subcommittee increased the medical care account to $21 billion, a half step in the right direction. In full committee, I offered an amendment that would have added $1.5 billion to this medical care account, plus increased funding to some other areas. That would have brought us pretty much to where we are today, except that my amendment would have been paid for because I proposed reducing somewhat the tax cut that was scheduled for the wealthiest of Americans, those making over $400,000 a year. This agreement before us uses an emergency designation so the costs will go directly to the deficit. The majority defeated my amendment.

Then, in July of this year, the administration finally admitted that the 2006 bill was short as well. They amended the VA budget request, asking for an additional $2 billion.

Some of the carryover funds from the additional $1.5 billion that was provided last summer is being used, and some of the carryover where the majority prevented the House from doing what it really knew needed to be done on both sides of the aisle. And I had a strong suspicion needed to be done, and when the numbers finally were revealed, it has become difficult for people to avoid reality, and so I think this bill reflects reality.

I will say that with one caveat. I hope that we can count on the numbers that are coming from OMB and the Veterans Administration on this bill. I hope we can count on them, because if we cannot, then we will have to be back here again asking for yet more money. It is not enough for us to applaud the troops when they are leaving to go to war, when the bands are playing, when everyone’s blood is up. What we have to be willing to do is to re-member our fundamental obligation to those troops when they return.

I do not believe that we are doing enough to meet our obligations to those troops, but this bill is certainly a good-faith effort, and I congratulate the gentleman from New York for the role he has played in trying to get here.

I most especially want to congratulatate the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), the subcommittee ranking member. There is no one in this House who has had a more dedicated history of fighting for the needs of veterans on the health care front and on so many other fronts than has the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), and I am pleased to stand in for him temporarily this morning.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I appreciate very much the kind comments of the ranking member of the Appropriations Committee regarding our work product today, and I note that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), my colleague, has joined us, and I look forward to his comments also.

I think that the gentleman from Wisconsin made some points that I would like to give my reflection on.

First of all, we agree. Both parties and every individual Member of the

In full committee, Mr. EDWARDS in July 2004 offered an amendment to try to do the right thing and bring the VA medical services account up another $1.3 billion. He was defeated on a party-line vote. Of course, the bill had so many problems that the majority could not even bring it to the House floor. It ended up getting wrapped up into the omnibus.

House holds our veterans in the highest regard, and the House, having the power of the purse, establishes its priorities by setting funding levels. Clearly, there is no budget within the Federal Government which has grown faster or been more plentifully supplied with funds than the Veterans' Affairs health care budget.

It is the fastest growing budget, I believe, within the entire Federal budget, and that is as it should be because we have a growing number of veterans whose health care becomes more and more expensive, and we have struggled every year to meet those needs.

Now, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) pointed out that within the last year and a half or so there have been some disagreements about the dollar amount required to meet those needs, and he is right about that. What we found was that the model that was being used for Veterans Administration was wrong. It was inaccurate, and the resultant changes in the budget, the funding level over that period reflect that, but I would like to add that each and every year that I have chaired appropriations bill for veterans, we have had similar disagreements about how much money is actually needed to meet the needs of the Veterans Health Administration.

I can cite year after year when the gentleman from New York (Mr. FARZAD) and others came to the floor and said there is not just enough money for the veterans budget, for veterans health care, and I remember saying over and over and over we are providing record increases for the Veterans Health Administration.

I think out of this, I believe now 7 years that I have chaired this subcommittee, we have had that debate every time, and other than this year, I think it is pretty clearly documented that we have been right, that the dollar amounts that we have provided have been sufficient, in some cases more than sufficient, to meet the needs of our veterans health care.

So while we did have a glitch in the model, we have actually put language in the bill and provided resources to try to remedy that situation so that does not happen again. That was an aberration. We have been very solid in our every policy to support of it through our budgeting of the Veterans Health Administration, and that always is the key aspect of this budget because of our concern about keeping the commitments that this Nation has made to our veterans.

So, I do not think the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) was saying that we do not care enough about our veterans to provide those resources. I do not think he was saying that the White House does not care enough. I think he is saying quite to the contrary, bipartisanship, bicausally, and compared by the differences between the executive branch and legislative branch, we are all in agreement: Our veterans are our highest priority, and we have funded our veterans benefits and our veterans health care accordingly.

There have been disagreements in the past. There will be disagreements in the future, but not over our commitment to keeping our commitments to our veterans.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

Mr. Speaker, at long last we are supporting America's veterans with our deeds and not just with our words, and in that process, I want to salute the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), my colleague friend and chairman of the Veterans' Affairs, Military Quality of Life Subcommittee in that effort.

This is a good bill that takes positive steps to redress the wrongs done to veterans over the last several years when, in fact, we were cutting veterans services during a time of war, something that many of us on this House floor and again said was immoral.

This bill increases VA medical services by $2.5 billion over the President's original request. I salute this committee and the House and its leadership for doing that. I also would point out that it itself suggests that the administration has woefully underfunded veterans health care needs during a time of war. Never again should our country send young Americans into war and then scrimp on supporting those who have given so much to their service during that war.

This bill specifically sets aside $2.2 billion for VA mental health care medical services, and on that particular point, the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) deserves special recognition for taking the initiative to see that the VA does put more resources into helping those young Americans, men and women alike, who have paid a serious mental health care price for their brave defense of this country. The fact is that we have and the VA has been underfunding mental health care services to our veterans.

Third, this bill restores funding of $35 million for State nursing home construction for an aging of the veterans population. I guess I had a great difference with the administration in its original proposal to cut by as much as two-thirds the number of veterans that we provide for in long-term nursing home care with the big mistake of the administration.

I salute the bipartisan effort in this bill to reject the administration's proposal to have a $250 enrollment fee for every veteran wanting to sign up for VA health care services. Many of us have long felt that our veterans have paid their enrollment fee when they put on our country's uniform and went into harm's way in protection of all of us. I am glad this committee rejected the administration proposal to double prescription copays for veterans, veterans who are struggling every month to make ends meet.

I think a very important part of this bill that was put together somewhat at my urging, but truly on a bipartisan basis, and that is, that no longer are we going to just be completely dependent upon the VA Secretary or OMB to tell us whether we are cutting veterans services during a time of war. This bill has some very stringent reporting requirements to be done on a quarterly basis, where the VA must provide this Congress with information about whether we are reducing staff, cutting services, or being underfunded for veterans, especially during a time of war. I think this Congress has a moral responsibility to make its own independent judgment about whether we are adequately supporting our veterans and not have to be completely dependent upon what the Director of OMB or the Secretary of the VA have said.

Having said all of that about the very positive things in this bill for veterans, I must just for a brief moment add to what the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) said about this process.

I hope this step forward for America's veterans in a tangible way ends what I think has been a sad chapter over the last 2 years. How ironic it is that the funding for veterans health care in this bill is equivalent to the funding called for over 2 years ago by Republican Congressman CHRIS SMITH of New Jersey who chaired the Veterans' Affairs Committee. How did the House Republican leadership, not this committee, how did the Republican leadership respond to the gentleman from New Jersey's call to adequately support veterans health care? Did they thank him? Did they salute him? Did they award him? No. They fired him. They took away his chairmanship of the Veterans Affairs Committee and even took him off the committee itself. That was a sad moment in the history of this House in our service to veterans, and I hope never again will a chairman of the Veterans Affairs Committee be fired for standing up for veterans and putting his commitment to veterans above his commitment to partisan loyalty.

I salute this bill and the chairman of this subcommittee for the step forward in military construction. It provides about $2 billion more than we spent on military construction last year. These commands, our House, our House, our House, our House, and much-needed quality-of-life improvements for our service men and women.
Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. Lewis), chairman of the full Appropriations Committee, a gentleman who had the great vision to assemble new jurisdiction for this committee and create this subcommittee and a personal mentor of mine.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, to the chairman and to my colleagues, Mr. Edwards, from beautiful downtown Texas, I want to congratulate both of them for this very fine piece of legislation. It reflects a great deal of the variety of mix that we needed to be able to focus upon in a very special way in the arena that involves the military. Not just the rights of our veterans, but beyond that, the families of the men and women who serve us and oftentimes put their lives on the line, questions like their housing, other kinds of benefits that are very important to their being able to have decent lives with the kind of spinal injury on all those issues within one subcommittee, I think, is going to produce real results down the line. The bipartisan spirit that is a part of this committee, and we can see it reflected in the House today, is very much a part of that.

I would like to mention just one thing to my colleagues, an item that has been of concern to me for most of my career here. In the past, Mr. Speaker, I had the privilege of chairing the subcommittees that did the funding for our veterans. One of my concerns during those years was that oftentimes within the community that is Washington, DC, we expressed great support for our veterans, raised funds to try to improve the funding flows, and then did not do very much about following the money when it went down to the communities where veterans are served.

Particularly, I have been concerned over the years with the kind of treatment that oftentimes took place at the hospitals. And I have been urging the veterans service organizations to do more than just to go and get the money that is appropriated here, but rather make sure that money is used in a quality way in terms of the service at the other end of the line. We are beginning to do some things like involving clinics in rural areas where there are open spaces and the hospitals are not close by. All of that, I think, portends well for the future here.

But I would raise just one cautionary note: It is very important that we continue to put pressure on those organizations whose design and purpose is to support our veterans, to help us follow the money down to the local communities, make sure that it is being spent well. It has increased dollar flows, but throwing money at problems is not always the solution. We all know that. So in this instance, I would say to my ranking member, Mr. OBEY, as well as to the chairman and ranking member of the subcommittee, together we ought to form a partnership to make certain every one of those dollars is spent well on behalf of our veterans at the local community.

With that, congratulations on your work. It is a very fine product.

Mr. WALSH. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. Farr).

Mr. Farr. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Edwards) for yielding me this time.

When we left here last night, we had spent the evening in bitter rancor over serious political issues, however we arrived this morning, and the first thing we do is take up a bill where we all agree on something. And I think that is the beauty of the United States Congress. We can disagree and we can have fights, but when we have in common, and that is that we all support the people who volunteer to serve in our United States military and support the veterans who have served in that military, and the benefits that they should receive afterwards. It is sort of promises made and promises kept.

I think, also, that the reason why we do not have any rancor on this legislation is, we have two of the finest Members of Congress, Mr. Edwards and Mr. Walsh, Mr. Edwards as ranking member and Mr. Walsh as Chair, of a committee where the divergent members come together. We still have strong political differences on either side. We have different backgrounds, life experiences that we bring to the committee. In fact, I think it is kind of ironic that Mr. Walsh and I, who are former Peace Corps volunteers, are now very active in the committee that deals with the quality of life for the military, but I think that the things we have learned in the Peace Corps about service to human beings are very important to the subject matter in this committee.

I would like to thank the chairman of the committee, Mr. Lewis, and the ranking member, Mr. Obev, because they have given us sort of that parental consent to go ahead and do the best we can do with the money allocated.

There are a lot of good things in this bill mainly because we have added money to it, and Congress has been more supportive than the administration. Has our veterans service organizations the right that ought to be made very clear. We are providing a second increment of $1.5 billion in addition to what Congress has already passed, $1.2 billion in emergency money. But now there is still some talk that there is going to be an across-the-board cut. We cannot provide the services that Mr. Lewis just talked about one day and then come back here later and provide a cut to those services. That is total hypocrisy. We do not like to see that across-the-board cut affect our veterans and our active duty members of our services.

This committee has a lot of issues that we have to deal with. Are we going to provide enough care for our returning service members? I have been out to Bethesda and to Walter Reed Hospital, talking to the people who have been injured. We have seen a difference between the rehabilitation care that is supplied to our soldiers than that of the ones that are amputees, and we ought to try to bring coordination to one place, that they both get the same kind of rehabilitative care.

Are we doing enough to reduce the waiting period for veterans for health care? Is there enough money to meet the staggering mental health care, some have never fully put enough focus on? Posttraumatic syndrome, how long does it take sometimes? Veterans and active Reservists and National Guardsmen who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan may not develop their mental problems from that for many years after they leave the service. Is there going to be adequate mental health care for them?

How about the price tag for prosthetics? Our centers for our wounded military are quality centers of excellence in trying to develop the latest technology in prosthetics. Yet we do not spend enough time looking at it and making sure that those things are funded well, because the private sector just cannot meet that responsibility. This is the responsibility of the United States Congress. And are we hiring enough people to make sure that we can serve those who need that service, whether it be in a health care clinic or whether it be at the military hospitals? These are questions that we have got to address.

We also have got to address the fact that we have closed military bases, and in those bases we have a lot of unexploded ordnance. Those are ordnance that could only be cleaned up by people that have Federal special training, a very limited specialty field, and yet it is one of the lowest priorities of the military. Obviously, their duty is to train people to defend our country, not necessarily to do environmental cleanup, but we cannot turn that real estate over for subsequent use to the community unless there are enough funds to clean it up, and we have been sorely lacking in enough funds. Fortunately, the chairman and rank-and-file of this committee have really worked with me in trying to get additional funds for cleanup, although we are way short of the billions of dollars that are needed.

So today is the day where we bring together the differences that we had last night and show that Congress can, indeed, unanimously support the needs of the men and women in uniform and all voluntary service.

I am very proud to have served on this committee. I am proud of its leadership and, I would urge that all my colleagues support the men and women in uniform, support the quality of life that we provide for our services, and help the veterans of the United States by approving this appropriations bill.

Thank you.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I will conclude with several comments. First, I could not agree more with Mr. Lewis, the chairman of the full Appropriations Committee, that it would be a positive step for all of us to work in carrying out our responsibility for congressional oversight over VA health care programs, and I would add to that, over military construction programs. I know that is something the chairman of the subcommittee has worked on and actually started the process on, and I look forward to continuing it. It is important that we not only adequately fund veterans health care and other veterans programs, the quality-of-life programs for military servicemen and women and their families, we need to be sure that those are being spent in the way that Congress intended them to be spent.

I want to thank several groups. First, I want to thank our veterans service organizations, made up of millions of men and women who have served our country proudly in uniform during World War II. It is like so many veterans, when they take that uniform off, their love of country does not wane, and their continuing commitment to service is an inspiration to all of us.

Without the strong leadership over the last 2 years of the veterans service organizations over here let us in saying it would be wrong, and it is wrong, to cut veterans health care services during a time of war, I am not sure we would be at this funding level today. So I salute them.

I also want to salute the incredibly able staff of this subcommittee. On the Democratic side, Tom Forhan and Bob Bonner. On the Republican side, hard-working, dedicated employees as well: Carol Murphy, the staff director of this committee; Tim Peterson; Sarah Young; Walter Hearne; and Mary Arnold. What a privilege it is for the chairman and me to be able to work with a staff that at every step of the way is simply asking one question: What is the right thing to do for our servicemen and women and their families and what is the right thing to do for our veterans?

Like so many of our veterans that are not honored with memorials in this Nation's Capitol, this subcommittee staff is working every day behind the scenes to make a positive difference for very, very deserving people, and I want to thank all they do day in and day out, without any expectation of public acclaim.

My final note is left to honor a veteran. As we approach Thanksgiving and in a few minutes pass this bill, I cannot help but think, Mr. Speaker, about a young veteran, 20 years old, that I had the pleasure of meeting Army Hospital on Thanksgiving morning 2 years ago. He had come back from Iraq with an amputated leg, sitting in his room alone with the exception of being there with his mother. When I walked in and saw his condition, the first thing he said was, 'Sir, I don't want anyone to feel sorry for me. I'm proud to have served my country, and I would be proud to serve it again.'
marines, thank you for your service, God bless you, and come home safe and sound.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Hastings of Washington). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include tabular and extraneous material on the conference report to accompany H.R. 3058.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Ms. Curtis, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed without amendment a joint resolution of the House of the following title:

H.J. Res. 72. Joint Resolution making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate has passed bills of the following titles in which concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 467. An act to extend the applicability of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002.

S. 1418. An act to enhance the adoption of a nationwide interoperable health information technology system and to improve the quality and reduce the costs of health care in the United States.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 565, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 3058) making appropriations for the Departments of Transportation, Treasury, and Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary, District of Columbia, and independent agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 565, the conference report is considered read.

(For conference report and statement, see prior proceedings of the House of November 17, 2005.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG).

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I bring to the House the first-ever conference report for Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary, the independent agencies, plus the District of Columbia. This is a complex bill, but an important bill, making appropriations for our Nation’s important infrastructure: roads, airports and rail, for our Nation’s capital, for our Nation’s housing needs, and for our Nation’s judiciary. We have met the needs for fiscal year 2006, all the while staying within our 302(b) allocation of $65.9 billion, and total spending of $133.4 billion.

I would like to thank my friend and ranking member, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER), for all of the hard work and the keen interest in the programs in this bill. He has proven to be a valuable partner, and I want to commend him. He has made significant contributions to this bill, and I thank him for his support.

I would also like to thank the members of the subcommittee for their hard work during the hearing process and in creating the bill. I certainly want to mention and point out that this staff, the entire staff, has really done some extraordinary things over the last several days, and they have had some sleepless nights, and so they are prepared to leave here tonight and catch up on some needed sleep.

This is a good bill, a clean bill, and one that I urge a “yes” vote to pass the Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary, and the District of Columbia bill.

Notes:
- Amounts in thousands.
- Conference vs. Enacted reflects the difference between the conference total and the enacted amount.
- The conference total includes the enacted amount plus any additional funds approved by the conference committee.
- The conference total is the sum of the request, house, and senate amounts for each item.
- The table provides a detailed overview of the budget for the Department of Transportation for fiscal years 2005 and 2006.

Note: The table above provides a snapshot of the appropriations for the District of Columbia and the President's executive office. The data includes various categories such as salaries, operating expenses, and specific programs funded under the respective titles. The table also indicates the appropriations for the architectural and transportation barriers compliance board, consumer product safety commission, election assistance commission, federal deposit insurance corporation, federal election commission, federal labor relations authority, and federal maritime commission. Additionally, it highlights the federal buildings fund, detailing the limitations on availability of revenue for construction and acquisition, repairs and alterations, instalment acquisition payments, rental of space, and building operations. The repayment of debt is also listed for the year.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am surprised, I think we must be on the train headed for Turkmenistan like that because I expected to have my chairman to have a good many more comments to say than he has done.

Mr. Speaker, at the outset I would like to thank the staff on both sides for their exceedingly diligent work in putting this conference report together. I want to recognize our committee clerk Dena Baron and her excellent majority staff, including Cheryl Tucker, Dave Gibbons, Steve Crane, Dave Napollito, Christian Jones and Tammy Hughes.

And for the minority, I thank the committee staff Mike Malone and Michelle Burket, and Shalanda Young; and from my own staff, Matt Washington and Nora Kaitfors.

All have a particularly difficult circumstances to complete this bill and deserve our gratitude for a job well done.

I also want to thank Chairman KNOLLENBERG for his hard work and dedication to this effort. This has been a collaborative way in which the majority and the minority staff worked on this bill together, and congratulate the chairman because he has not simply allowed, but encouraged collaboration, and the collaboration has gotten stronger and more effective throughout the workings of the subcommittee in the hearings, then the Appropriations Committee process, then floor consideration, then the conference, and today the conference report. So I am particularly grateful to him for that collaboration.

This is a very complex bill. There are nine titles to this bill really covering the conference report. So I am particularly grateful to him for that collaboration.

This is the third straight year that we have had a very complex bill. There are nine titles to this bill really covering the conference report. So I am particularly grateful to him for that collaboration.

The allocation for this overall subcommittee was below both the House and the Senate, by more than a billion dollars below the House number and more than a half a billion dollars below the Senate’s number. All or part of a billion dollars would have made a great difference where holes remain in this bill. But that was the allocation that we were given, and so we had to deal with it.

With that I want to just point out first that in the matter of the District of Columbia, which is a separate division within this bill, as I mentioned, it is an important and sometimes overlooked portion of the bill, perhaps partly so because of the different jurisdictions in the House and the Senate. It makes up only a small portion of the appropriation in the combined bill, but the value of the initiatives funded through this bill cannot be understated.

I am pleased that we were able to provide valuable funding for important initiatives that include the Anacostia River Trail, the Water and Sewer Authority and for elementary and secondary and postsecondary education. I particularly regret the continuing rider forbidding the use of local funds for needle exchange programs. I think they are an important tool in a city such as our Capital which has a high HIV incidence. But I do commend the chairman for ensuring no new social riders were placed on the District of Columbia.

Mr. Speaker, if one looks at this legislation because of the allocations being low, I think if you have a primary interest in the judiciary, you are going to find good and bad provisions in that that the judiciary. If your primary interest is in housing, you may find good and bad there. If it is in transportation, you may find good and bad there. But I believe that no one can legitimately find the view of every one. In my view, an inadequate allocation is disproportionately borne by any one title or subtitle within the bill.

In housing, for instance, the sections that were so hotly contested on the floor when the House bill was under consideration here back in July, that section, most of those hotly contested items have been included simply by balancing halfway, reaching halfway between the two branches. One in particular, if I remember in particular, the shop program, it was in the House bill and not in the Senate, and the House number is the one that is used in the final report. So these provisions are fairly dispersed.

In the transportation section, probably the most hotly contested issue was the issue of Amtrak. And in this conference report, we have provided the largest number of dollars for Amtrak that has ever been provided by going halfway between the House and the Senate numbers.

But at the same time, we have used what I think are very valuable fire walls between capital spending and debt financing and operating subsidy, and put also language that should lead to important and significant reforms in the operation of Amtrak. So, I think that too is very fair. In fact, my comments about there being, for those who might be interested in only one title, or primarily in one title, should also apply to the good in my view, that the titles which are the part of the 60 or 70 or so outside sections, those sections are included in the two titles that are general provisions for the agencies in this bill alone, and then general provisions that apply to all of government.

I want to mention just a couple of those because in one case, the case of Cuba language, we fought a war in Vietnam against the Communist North Vietnamese, the Viet Cong, in which more than 50,000 American young men and women died. Yet we have normalized relations with Vietnam by following an engagement communication trade and travel policy.

Similarly, we fought a war against China, which is virtually to the day now 55 years ago, started 55 years ago on the Korean peninsula, and we have again followed the engagement communication trade and travel policy with Communist China. And China, it goes so far as to now have China with the largest trade surplus with respect to us. Obviously our largest trade deficit is with Communist China, and China holds the second largest amount of our national debt that is held by a foreign nation.

Again, this year, the House and the Senate passed, by roll call votes in each branch, identical language to bring to a national communication trade and travel policy in Cuba, which has been so successful in the case of Vietnam and China. You will not find any such language in this conference report. I regret that deeply because what I believe is that America will continue its hyperventilated tantrum against Cuba for another year, and that is unfortunate that we are putting off the normalization of our relations with Cuba. And the same goes, I regret, that I see elsewhere other provisions that are in the so-called general provisions, which are very good. The conference report includes corporate expatriates language that was in the Senate bill which prohibits Federal agencies which are part of this act from contracting with corporations that located outside the United States to avoid paying corporate taxes. This language has been fought over year after year in this House of Representatives, and I am glad that we have gone along with the Senate’s language and included it in this conference report.

This report provides a level playing field for our dedicated Federal employees by including language that deals with the Federal employee contracting out protections often referred to as “A-76.” This is the third straight year that conferees negotiated a compromise provision; however, this year the provision remains, and once again the intent of this House is carried out. And I thank Chairman KNOLLENBERG for that.

On balance, I believe that this is a very good bill. Under Chairman KNOLLENBERG’s guidance the staff has produced a fair and proportionate bill, and I hope that the conference report will be adopted overwhelming.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 1⁄2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. PETRI), the ranking member on the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee.
Mr. PETRI. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my outrage that this conference report substantially weakens provisions providing greater consumer protection for victims of unscrupulous movers that were part of the transportation bill that was signed into law less than 4 months ago.

Let me first say thank you to Chairman KNOLLENBERG and also to the Speaker. And I want to thank the staff, as well, for the consideration that they gave to the authorizing committees and for providing such strong support for as long as was possible. I appreciate your efforts.

But it is simply wrong that this conference report contains provisions that were specifically rejected by the Senate when it was considering its transportation bill earlier this year and that were rejected during the conference on the transportation bill this past summer.

For years I have worked to provide relief to the many citizens from all across this country who call my office and other offices around here seeking help because they have been victimized and find they have nowhere to turn. The most egregious of these situations is where a company holds all of their earthly possessions until they pay thousands of dollars in excess of the original estimate, basically extortion. These people find themselves in a strange city with no goods and no recourse.

The Department of Transportation is simply not suited to police the 1.5 million interstate moves that occur each year. Until recently, a total of three people were assigned to handle complaints, and they could do little about them. States which want to get involved and oversee intrastate moves with little controversy have been told by the courts that they have no jurisdiction since this is interstate commerce.

I am a little concerned that in the conference report on SAFETEA–LU created partnership with the States by allowing them to enforce Federal consumer protection rules, a model that works well in other areas.

It is disheartening that only a few months after these new authorities were put in place, before they could really even take effect, some in the Senate have seen fit to reopen these provisions and basically neuter the consumer protection provisions included in SAFETEA–LU, a course that they did not take in the original estimate, basically extortion. These people find themselves in a strange city with no goods and no recourse.

The increases in transportation will help citizens like Detroit to invest in and maintain their transportation infrastructure and enhance the mobility of the traveling public to move to their jobs and make our communities more livable.

Amtrak is funded at $1.313 billion, which will enable the national passenger rail system to maintain current operational requirements. The bill contains a number of mandates on the system: find savings in food and beverage service, first class service, and commuter rail fees. Amtrak also would be barred from marketing ticket discounts of more than 50 percent in peak hours: includes a new discretionary spending for the Departments of Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the District of Columbia and Independent Agencies. This is $5.2 billion above the request and $2.7 billion more than the previous year.

SURFACE TRANSPORTATION

Under the bill, highways and transit receive healthy increases under the conference report. The following the conference report on SAFETEA–LU for surface transportation projects. It provides a $36.0 billion highway obligation limitation, which is a $1.6 billion increase over FY05 and a $1.3 billion increase over the President’s request.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the bill, and I want to commend Chairman KNOLLENBERG, Ranking Member OLVER and the staff of the Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the District of Columbia and Independent Agencies Subcommittee for their hard work in getting this bill to the House floor. This bill provides a total of $137 billion in total budgetary resources and $65.9 billion in discretionary spending for the Departments of Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the District of Columbia, and Independent Agencies. This is $5.2 billion above the request and $2.7 billion more than the previous year.
The bill funds the Federal Aviation Administration at $13.8 billion—$276 million above the fiscal year 2005 level and $1.105 billion above the President’s request. This includes $3.55 billion for the Airport Improvement Program. The bill includes $25 million to hire and train 595 new traffic controllers, and an additional $12 million for the requirement to hire and train safety inspectors in the office of aircraft certification and flight standards.

The House report contained language that requires the FAA to provide the Committee with a report on its effort to remediate a Black Mold problem in the control tower at the Detroit Metropolitan and Wayne County Airport. My colleagues in Southeast Michigan have received complaints from the people who work in the tower that this problem is causing workers to become ill and unfit for work. I am looking forward to receiving FAA’s response.

HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is funded at $34.0 billion; $2.1 billion above last year’s level and $4.9 billion above the President’s request. I am disappointed that the conference failed to address the problem of the unfair distribution of renewal funding for the Section 8 Housing Choice Voucher Program.

The trend of the past few years has been to base budget allocations on a 3-month “snapshot.” This arbitrary snapshot creates a disparity where some housing agencies wind up with more money than they need and others have to turn families out into the cold because their under-estimated budgets could no longer support the same number of vouchers.

At a time when rising energy costs are driving utility costs up, and job markets are fluctuating, particularly in areas like Michigan, we cannot ignore the impact of yearly market changes on subsidy needs.

TREASURY

Department of Treasury is funded at $11.7 billion, $400 million above FY05 and $50 million above the President’s request.

The Internal Revenue Service is funded at request level of $10.7 billion, $434 million above FY05. A bulk of the increase is for the tax enforcement activities of the IRS.

Federal Election Commission is funded at the budget request of $55 million, $3 million above FY05 and the Election Assistance Commission is funded at $16 million.

Mr. KOLNENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield as much time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), the chairman of the full Appropriations Committee.

Mr. LEWIS of California, Mr. Speaker. Kolnemberg, my colleague from Massachusetts (Mr. OLVER) I rise simply to express my deepest appreciation for the work that you have been about on this newly organized subcommittee that has a variety, a mix, of complex issues that can conflict with each other, issues that if taken the wrong way, can cause bills to be stymied and no progress made. You have done a very, very fine job of establishing a tone that says that we can work together. And where Appropriations work is when we reach across the aisle and recognize that while we do not have to agree 100 percent of the time, there is little doubt that a real solution comes when we do think about these alternatives, talking to one another as human beings and people who represent citizens across the country as well.

The bill is a very fine bill, a great job. I want to congratulate the staff, especially, as we have gone through this transition. They have done wonderful work. I congratulate the entire subcommittee.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK), the ranking member of the Financial Services Committee.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the good work that was done by members of the subcommittee, and I am going to vote for the bill in recognition of the very good efforts. I believe the chairman, operating within the constraints that he had to operate within, did a reasonable job. I very much agree with the gentleman from Michigan who lamented some of the decisions that were made with regard to HUD, and I appreciate the work that has been done by my colleagues from Massachusetts in a number of areas.

Just briefly, I want to comment on one subject, and that is the question of earmarks in transportation. The Governor of my State put out a transportation plan for the entire State earlier this year. The only two highway projects for the entire region of the State in southeastern Massachusetts that several of us represent came because of some of the constraints that were in the bill in recognition of the very good efforts. I believe the chairman, operating within the constraints that he had to operate within, did a reasonable job. I very much agree with the gentleman from Michigan who lamented some of the decisions that were made with regard to HUD, and I appreciate the work that has been done by my colleagues from Massachusetts in a number of areas.

Mr. KOLNENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT), a member of the subcommittee.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, I want to bring to light an issue that several of my colleagues on the subcommittee and I, gentlemen from California (Mr. DOOLITTLE) feel should be a critical concern of the American taxpayer. I want to ensure that the IRS understands the intent of Congress that is stated in the report language of this bill.

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman very much; he has been extremely generous in listening to our concerns. I thank the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) as a member of the subcommittee for working on this and working with me as well.

This Return-Free’’ tax filing system, Mr. Speaker, would create a conflict of interest because making the IRS not only the tax collector and the enforcer, but also the tax preparer. The loser in such a scenario would be the American taxpayer. Return-free creates, by definition, a fundamental conflict of interest by making the same agency that collects the taxes, writes the tax regulations, collects the revenues, performs audits, and enforces compliance, now also becomes the tax preparer.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, is it the chairman’s understanding that the IRS is bound from setting up tax preparation services, and does the chairman agree that it is the intent of the subcommittee that the IRS and the Treasury must abide by the Free File agreement and not go into the business of preparing taxes for taxpayers?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I do indeed.
There is language in the bill addressing the Free File Alliance stating that “the conferences are aware that the IRS and the FFA have signed a new 4-year agreement under which the IRS continues to agree not to enter the tax preparation market.”

The conferences direct IRS to abide by the terms and conditions of the agreement.

We believe that this will ensure that the IRS adheres to the agreement and will not enter the tax preparation mar-et.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would like to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. Doolittle) for addressing this important issue in a fair and balanced manner. If the IRS does deviate from this agreement, then we will seek to stop them through statutory language to prevent tax preparation originating within the IRS.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to a member of the subcommittee and the minority whip, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, today we consider the conference report on the Taxes Act of 2005, H.R. 1. That in and of itself is a remarkable achievement, given that in recent years the tendency has been to circumvent the established appropriation process.

I want to commend Chairman
KNOLLENBERG and Ranking Democrat
Olver for working diligently and cooperatively on a bill that is profoundly important to every American. We have seen much conflict over the last few days, if not years, I think, a happy event that we can come to the floor and be supportive of a bill that was worked on in a bipartisan, cooperative way; and I think that is a testament to Mr.
KNOLLENBERG and to Mr. OLVER, and thanks to them as well.

Now, they would agree, and we all agree, this is not a perfect conference report, hardly any conference report is, and there are limited resources. Crit-cial social programs are hurt. Public housing, Hope VI, people with AIDS, rural housing and economic development, Community Development Block Grants, brownfields, and the HOME program all face, frankly, fewer resources than I would hope they would have. But that is the reality of the dol-ars that were given to Mr. KNOLLEN-BERG and Mr. OLVER to deal with.

I am pleased that the transportation bill report includes an adjustment for our Federal civilian employees in their cost of living consistent with the pay adjustment proposed for the military personnel. It is essential that we provide this adjustment as recognition of the generous contributions made by these Federal civilian employees and military personnel to the safety and security of the Nation. It also allows us to recruit and and indeed retain those that we need to carry out important and vital services for our citizens.

I am also pleased that the President’s request for the FDA consolidation is in this bill. These funds will go a long way in helping to relocate FDA employees from their current substandard facilities into modern, state-of-the-art facilities.

I am enormously grateful, and I want to say this publicly, I have said it privately, to Chairman KNOLLENBERG for his leadership on this key reimbursement issue to the American taxpayer. If the agreement under which the IRS continues to provide outreach and training to the small business community who operate small airports and, for security reasons, were shut down by the Federal Government and sustained substantial losses. We have been working on this for many years, and Mr.
KNOLLENBERG and Mr. OLVER have now ensured that we resolve this, and I thank the chairman for that. The failure to provide these small businesses with compensation in the years past has caused great difficulty, and this will be a welcome addition to this bill.

I also want to commend the conferees for withholding pressure from the White House, including the Bond-Mikulski reform provision, which will facilitate fundamental flaws in the contracting-out provisions. Simply put, the provision will eliminate waste and save taxpayer money while, at the same time, preserving appropriate resources for the government and providing the private sector to get the most efficient and effective results for our taxpayers.

I want to close by saying that I am concerned about what I believe to be be one very significant provision that is not in this bill, or funding that is not in this bill. As the sponsor of the Help America Vote Act with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Ney), it was overwhelmingly supported on this side, Senator McConnell and Senator Dodd being the main proponents. With the strong support, we promised the States some $3.8 billion in funding. We have given $3 billion to get our technology up to date, to ensure that every voter has access to the polls, that our registration rolls are up to date, and our States that are American is precluded from voting because of in-efficiencies in the registration system, and we required the States to have statewide registration systems, a centralized database so that no Maryland resident, no Boston resident, no Michigander would be shut out of the process because they were not properly included on the rolls.

That is an expensive process, and the States are required to have it in place by January 1 of 2006. We have short-changed them to this date $800 million of the promised $3.8 billion. Mr. Spea-er, $3 billion is a large sum of money; but when you spread it throughout 50
States, it diminishes.

Mr. Speaker, I would hope that we could work together with the White House that has been helpful in the past that Speaker Hastert, who has been very helpful in the past; Mr. Obey and Mr. Olver have both been helpful in making sure that next year we can work with the administration to try to get this funding at the level that it ought to be at, and that is what we promised the States and, but for that, it will be an unfunded mandate.

So, again, in closing, I thank the chairman, I thank Mr. Olver, Mr.
Obey and Mr. Lewis for working together to bring this bill to the floor, and I will certainly be supportive.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. Jackson-Lee).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr.
Speaker, let me thank the distinguished ranking member from Massachusetts for a tough job, a tough task, and very good work. I add my appreciation to the chairman, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG).
I could not imagine a more combined challenge than the appropriations bill that we have before us. Unfortunately, in tough times we have tough choices, and many times some along the way are affected by those tough choices.

So, Mr. Speaker, I add my appreciation for a number of aspects of this bill. First of all, I think that the combined Texas delegation and, as I said, the ranking member and chairman of the subcommittee, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Culberson) in particular, on at least providing for New Start monies for Metro in Houston.

Mr. OLVER knows that this has been a long journey. We have had discussions on the floor in sessions past when we have not made it. We have had conflicting views coming out of the Houston delegation. But I can stand proudly and say that the Houston money, $12 million for New Starts, will not go unused and unappreciated, because that is what we promised the States and, but for that, it will be an unfunded mandate.

We have a system that is one of the most used New Starts in America, with very large numbers of utilization; and it is important that we get started and continue to commit.

Mr. Speaker, I add my appreciation for the efforts on behalf of the combined Texas delegation, both Mr. OBEY and Mr. LEOY for working to-together, Mr. OLVER and Mr. LEOY have both been helpful in the past;
Mr. OBEY and Mr. LEOY have both been helpful in making sure that next year we can get this funding at the level that it ought to be at.

We have a system that is one of the most used New Starts in America, with very large numbers of utilization; and it is important that we get started and continue to commit.

I am grateful for the judiciary, or the Justice Department, has been fund-d in aspects where the staff has been kept. I do raise a point about an overuse of the national security letters by the FBI and hope that we may look at that in the future.

But the real issue, Mr. Speaker, is to talk about HUD, which really has become a bank for this bill, as hard as my colleagues have worked. The bad news is that CDBG funds have been cut; that is the very heart of many of our communities, and we see that it has been cut by 10 percent.

The voucher question is severe. The section 8 vouchers have been cut. Unfortunately, public housing authorities will come up short this year. Even though we have used the House formula of a snapshot of a few years back, we are going to face a crisis because Houston is an example where we have thousands of Hurricane Katrina survivors and Rita survivors, and we are short of vouchers for housing as we speak. FEMA has shut off the doors for the hotels by December 1. We hope to press them to realize that that is an untenable position.

I also hope the elderly repair housing dollars are protected because the elderly are some of our most vulnerable populations.

Then we do not even have Section 8 vouchers for the 25,000 backlog list that we already have in Houston.

I am disappointed that the brownfields are effectively zeroed out. That has been an effort to clean up many of the dastardly conditions in urban and rural areas, particularly some of the chemical plants that have been in our inner cities.

This is a bill that took a lot of choices and I know a lot of hard work. I wish we could have done better the housing area, Mr. Speaker, and I hope we do so in the future.

GENERAL LEAVE

north-central Indiana as this project has developed from a design plan, to the first groundbreaking, to this latest step in bringing efficiency and safety to North Central Indiana. I commend Congressman Chris Chocola who has provided leadership in the completion of this project and commend the $1.3 million he secured for the Cass County-Carroll County segment.

Included in this bill is a $1.5 million designation for the Hoosier Heartland’s most dangerous segment yet to be completed between Lafayette and Delphi. This project continues to be a priority for me and many other community leaders and elected officials along the route.

Also included in this conference report is $750,000 to continue the Lafayette Bus Replacement plan that I have worked on the past several years with CityBus’s Marty Sennett and State Senator Brandt Hershman. Earlier this year the, Transportation Authorization bill included $500,000 for FY 2006 and this appropriation places us on schedule to meet $2.5 million by FY 2009.

Finally, Johnson County is one of the fastest growing counties in the state and significant traffic congestion exists and will only get worse. To assist in local efforts to keep traffic moving and doing so safely, $1 million is included in the conference report to help ease this congestion through a feasibility study for the proposed East/West Corridor. These investments in Indiana’s infrastructure will improve safety and efficiency and create opportunity for Hoosiers.

Mr. OBST. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the Conference Report on H.R. 3058, the FY2006 Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary, District of Columbia, and Independent Agencies Act.

This Conference Report, and the process by which this Body considers it, are another disappointing chapter in the Republican’s leadership’s management of this House.

At 5:30 a.m. this morning, the House Appropriations Committee filed this Conference Report. At 8:00 a.m., the Rules Committee met in emergency session to report a rule waiving all points of order against a bill that no one, other than Members of the Appropriations Committee and the Republican Leadership, had seen or read. The Rules Committee waived all points of order against the Conference Report and its consideration. Within hours, the House is now forced to vote on the bill. This process, requiring Members to vote on bills they have never seen nor read, has become the all too common practice of this majority.

The days of filing a conference report, giving Members an opportunity to read it, and allowing the House to consider it without all points of order waived against the bill are a distant memory of a Democratic majority. When Democrats were the majority party of the House, under House Rules, provisions that were beyond the scope of an Appropriations Conference Report were subject to a separate vote. A Member could vote against these types of riders without killing the Conference Report. In the early 1990’s, I recall how proud then Appropriations Committee Chairman Natcher was to bring appropriations bills to the Floor with no authorizing provisions and no points of order waived. Clean bills and transparency are no longer the goal. The new order is to ram through this House the Majority’s agenda.

Although there is much in this Conference Report that I support, I regret that the Committee on Appropriations, with no consultation with the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, has made changes to the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficient Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users (SAFETEA-LU), just months after the President signed the Act.

The Conference Report alters the SAFETEA-LU formula for distribution of funds to the States to provide more than $600 million in earmarks at 100% federal funding for the chosen few. The Report cuts funding for the National Highway System, Interstate Maintenance, Bridge, Surface Transportation Program, Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality Improvement, Equity Bonus, Appalachian Development Highway System, and Federal Lands programs in order to finance these earmarks. Simply earmarking every available dollar of the Department of Transportation’s discretionary funding is apparently not enough; we also have to skim highway formula dollars too. The earmarks are 100 percent Federally funded and subject to no reduction like other programs and projects. There appears no limit to the majority’s insatiable appetite for highway and transit earmarks.

I also regret that the Appropriators, with the concurrence of the Republican Leadership, have enabled Members and Senators to revisit issues that were clearly decided in the Conference on SAFETEA-LU. We appear to be moving from a time when an agreement could be secured with a handshake to a period in which an agreement is only for today: there is always the opportunity, with an appropriations rider, to get another “bite at the apple”—fair compromise be damned.

The Conference Report’s household goods appropriations rider provides a telling example. The Report overturns SAFETEA-LU’s consumer protection provisions that give States the power to enforce federal consumer laws on interstate moving companies. Just three months ago, the President signed SAFETEA-LU with important consumer protection provisions to address the serious problem of fraud by unscrupulous moving companies. Fraud in the household goods moving industry affects thousands of victims each year, as documented in hearings of the Surface Transportation Subcommittee. Unscrupulous movers offer low estimates, then later inflate the price of the move and hold the customer’s goods hostage until they pay the inflated price.

The frequency of such scams increased after federal agencies that oversaw long distance moving were transferred from the Interstate Commerce Commission to the Department of Transportation (DOT) in 1995. These responsibilities fell to the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) and later to the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA). FMCSA’s primary mission is safety, and the agency has few resources to focus on consumer protection. Corrupt movers increasingly exploited this regulatory gap.

In March of 2001, the General Accounting Office (GAO) reported that complaints of consumer fraud by the non-DOT movers rose dramatically from 1996 to 1999. Complaints to DOT rose 107 percent and the number of requests for arbitration rose on the American Moving and Storage Association went up 750 percent.

In response, and after much discussion in the Conference Committee, we included language in SAFETEA-LU that provided greater protection against unscrupulous “rogue” movers. The law authorized state attorneys general and state consumer protection agencies to enforce federal regulations governing the interstate movement of household goods.

Today, the Transportation-Treasury Appropriations Conference Report undoes this protection. The new language prevents state authorities from taking action against established moving companies who violate federal motor carrier safety regulations, regardless of how flagrantly these companies violate consumer protection laws. It also prevents state consumer protection agencies from taking administrative action against unscrupulous movers, and limits these agencies to filing cases in United States District Courts.

I am disappointed that the Appropriations Committee and the Republican Leadership would not honor the agreements of SAFETEA-LU and allow such a rider to be added.

Although the Conference Report includes dozens of other surface transportation authorizing provisions that were included without the concurrence of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, I will focus on only one other provision—which I find truly indefensible. Section 1926 of SAFETEA-LU requires the Department of Transportation to provide budget justification documents to the Transportation Committee and the Committee on Environment and Public Works of the U.S. Senate with the President’s annual budget submission. The budget justification documents provide the line-item detail of the President’s Budget that helps the Transportation Committee analyze the programs within our jurisdiction. Although the Transportation Committee routinely receives these budget documents from non-DOT agencies within the Committee’s jurisdiction, the Department of Transportation has been reluctant to provide the information without express authorization. Thus, SAFETEA-LU specifically required that DOT provides the documents to the Committee with the President’s budget, in February each year.

The Conference Report amends this provision to prevent our Committee from receiving these documents until June, four months after the President’s Budget is submitted. Why would the Committee on Appropriations not want an authorizing Committee to have the necessary information to conduct budgetary oversight over the agencies within its jurisdiction? Does the Committee on Appropriations believe that it is the only committee entitled to such budget information? The Conference Report’s provision is indefensible and I can assure you that the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, which provides the mandatory budget authority for the highway, transit, highway safety, and aviation programs, has every right to this information and will restore the SAFETEA-LU provision.

The Conference Report also disregards the aviation budgetary firewalls established under Vision 100—Century of Aviation Reauthorization Act. The Report cuts the capital investment guaranteed in Vision 100 by more than $500 million.

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. SMITH) at 4 o'clock and 10 minutes p.m.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. ANDERSON of Georgia, announces that the Senate has passed without amendment a concurrent resolution of the House of the following title:

H. Con. Res. 307. Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment of the House of Representatives and a conditional recess or adjournment of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate has passed with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 4133. An act to temporarily increase the borrowing authority of the Federal Emergency Management Agency for carrying out the national flood insurance program.

The message also announced that the Senate requests a further conference relative to the bill (H.R. 3010) "An act making appropriations for the Department of Defense, the Department of Homeland Security, and the Department of Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes, and appoints Mr. SPECTER, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. GREGG, Mr. CRAIG, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. DAVIS, Mr. DeWINE, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. REID, Mr. KOHL, Mrs. MURRAY, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. BYRD, to be conferees on the part of the Senate.
Mr. McGovern. Could the gentleman just tell me generally what the topic is going to be?

Mr. Gingrey. The amendment would basically say, "A resolution relating to United States forces in Iraq." Mr. Speaker, re-claiming my time, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, this is a very sad day in the House. This House, I think, is about to embark on a process that should dismay every single Member of this House. The only way keeping us from going down this road is I think I want to vote down this martial law rule. While I have many strong objections, and many of us on this side have strong objections, to martial rules in general, we have been accommodating in the past when they come to matters like important conference reports or emergency pieces of legislation that we need to get done before the recess. But this martial rule does not qualify in that category. In fact, we just received a copy of the resolution just a couple of minutes ago about what they plan to bring up here.

This is not about a debate on Iraq. This is about politics, clear and simple. I will go further to say that I believe this is a deliberate effort to attack a Member of this House and his views because the majority is afraid of this man and afraid of his views and afraid of his words, so they believe that somehow he has been attacked, that we need to take some quick action here on the House floor.

Mr. Speaker, we should have a debate on Iraq. We should have had a debate on Iraq a long time ago. But what we are about to have is not a debate on Iraq. This will not be able to be amended, there will be a limited amount of time for Members to be able to express their views, and, quite frankly, it is demeaning to this institution, it is demeaning to our American people, and for the sake of an agenda of which all Americans can be proud. Mr. Speaker, I want to encourage all of my colleagues to support this resolution and the underlying legislation for which it provides.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Gingrey. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes.

I thank my friend the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. Gingrey) for yielding me the customary 30 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, before I begin, let me ask my friend from Georgia, does his leadership plan to amend this martial law rule in any way to add any other issues besides the ones that have been put forward?

Mr. Gingrey. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McGovern. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. Gingrey. Mr. Speaker, in response to the gentleman from Massachusetts, yes, we will have an amendment to the rule, which I will present at the end of the debate.
the aisle even have what is known as the “Out of Iraq Caucus.” I do not know if the gentleman from Massachusetts is a part of that membership or not, but we have, this side of the aisle, have heard repeatedly from Members on both sides of the aisle, and not just one high-profile ranking member with strong defense credentials. Oh, no. No. We have heard every night of the first session of the 109th Congress from the 30-something Group, several Members on this side of the aisle, pounding this President, coming within an inch or less, Mr. Speaker, of accusing the President of lying, of out and out lying, repeatedly accusing the President of misleading the public about Iraq, demanding the immediate pullout of our troops.

Mr. Speaker, they are going to have the opportunity today on the floor of this House to vote yes or no, do they want us to immediately pull our troops out of Iraq and that is all this amendment is about.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, anybody who believes that what we are doing today is not in response to the comments by one single Member of this Congress, a Member who is highly respected by both sides of the aisle, a Member who is a decorated Vietnam War veteran, a Member who is an expert on military and defense issues, anybody who believes we are not doing this in response to that, quite frankly, defies credibility. This is a personal attack on one of the best Members, one of the most respected Members of this House, and it is outrageous.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, how dare you. How dare you. Yesterday, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURRHYA), the ranking Democrat on the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, a 27-year marine, a veteran of, I believe, three tours in Vietnam, a well-known conservative hawk, announced that he was introducing a resolution that was meant to stimulate a thoughtful and profound debate on how we salvage a failed policy in Iraq. That resolution was meant to stimulate the kind of hearings that Bill Fulbright ran during the Vietnam War, hearings which could bring military minds and the best experts on the Middle East to try to help us find a new direction to American policy in Iraq.

The reaction of the Republican leadership of this House is nothing short of disgraceful, and, in my view, that reaction dishonors the traditions of this House and this democracy.

This resolution, which is now going to be offered as an amendment to this rule, our side of the Rules Committee, is nothing less than an effort to drive a stake through the heart of the Murtha resolution, without any effort to get at the facts with respect to Iraq.

For the House to be asked to vote on whether or not we ought to withdraw immediately from Iraq without having the benefit of those thoughtful hearings is a disgraceful abdication of our responsibility to think this issue through clearly and with judgment. I am absolutely appalled, I am absolutely appalled, I am appalled by this action. It is a cheap political stunt that does a disservice to every serviceman and woman fighting in Iraq today, and whoever thought up this pipe dream should be ashamed of himself. This brings incredible shame to this House.

If I have to choose between supporting the Murtha resolution, even without those hearings, and the failed, discredited policy that we are now pursuing in Iraq that dead-end nowhere-going policy, I would happily endorse it as an alternative the Murtha amendment.

It is irresponsible of the House to be dealing with this in this manner. What this House deserves to set aside the cheap political tricks and to address the thought behind the Murtha proposal. This House, instead of politicizing this issue, ought to try to find a way for once to bring people in this institution together to divide them by phony, cynical, political, outrageously tricky and sneaky maneuvers like this.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to reiterate that this amendment to the resolution basically says, “Resolved, that it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the deployment of United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately.” It does not reference any Member whatsoever.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN).

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in favor of the rule and in strong opposition to the underlying resolution. Our mission in Iraq is clear: Peace through strength, victory through resolve. Those who would have us retreat immediately have forgotten what appeasement does to the Islamic extremist madmen and murderers. Our goal in Iraq is honorable and wise. We must see this through to our victorious end. The choice is that simple, yet that important.

In his 2005 speech commemorating Veterans Day, President Bush affirmed that it is courage that is the defining characteristic of all Americans. The insurgents realize that the biggest threat to mission accomplishment depends on what our fellow Americans do. The insurgents realize full well that the only choice they have of defeating the U.S. military is to weaken the will of the American public.

He adds, The insurgents in Iraq maim and kill the less protected Iraqis, but the real target is that portion of the American public that is shaped by the news media.

Let us heed the message from our men and women in our Armed Forces serving in Iraq. They are in the best position to assess what we need to do, and they are asking us not to pull out of Iraq at this juncture. Iraq is at one of the epicenters of the U.S. comprehensive strategy to fight terrorism worldwide.

Our ability to project major Armed Forces to the very heart of the Middle East provides the United States and our allies in the war against terrorism the ability to directly address the tactical and ideological challenges of Islamic extremists. Through the promotion of an incipient Iraqi democracy, we continue our concerted efforts to counter the root causes of Islamic extremists in the region. These radical religious movements have been able to emerge because freedom threatens them. Democratic governments deny them the funds, the weapons, and the sanctuary that they need to survive. Democracy denies them the new recruits that they need.

As such, Mr. Speaker, we must continue to support the people of Iraq in their efforts to strengthen their emerging democratic institutions. For example, the emergence of a new and democratic Iraq will inevitably threaten their very survival because freedom threatens them. Democratic governments deny them the funds, the weapons, and the sanctuary that they need to survive. Democracy denies them the new recruits that they need.

MR. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, with all due respect to the gentlewoman who just spoke, I
Mr. Speaker, let me say to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY), for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. RANGEL).

(Mr. RANGEL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, this is a sad day for me as an American, as a Member of Congress, to see that we have reached a point that those who want to be critical of the President’s entrance into this war and how it is being conducted now have to be called cowards and we are cutting and running and we are not deserving of being called Americans.

The vicious attacks that are taking place by people who never served their country is really something that is really painful.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) has earned the right to have an opinion. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) has served this country. The gentleman has served not only in the Army but he served right here in this Congress. And what is he up against? Who are these people making these dirty, nasty remarks against his character and those who support him? They are people who say that we are going to stay in this war until we win; that we are going to fight and die in this war until we win; and we are not going to leave until we win and not one day sooner.

Fight who? Who is going to surrender? What are the conditions? If you can be critical of what the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) is going to say, how can you not be critical of the confused way in which we are getting involved in this war where we do not know what flag they look like, we do not know what the enemy looks like, we do not know what flag they carry, we do not know who is going to surrender.

It is time for us to be civil. If you want to be concerned about our troops, you have to be concerned about why they are there. And for the President of the United States on Veterans Day, the day that all of us veterans hold so true and that brings us together, to attack his political opponents on that day and then to send out with his tucked-away Vice President as someone to attack other people, other Americans, this is a sad day.

But the bottom line is if you love these troops like the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) loves these troops, you will be supporting this legislation.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The gentleman on the other side complained about not having enough time to debate the resolution. We will have a minimum, Mr. Speaker, of 3 hours. We are debating right now the same-day rule. Then we will debate the rule on House Resolution 571 and then have the debate on the resolution itself. So there will be plenty of time for Members on both sides of the aisle to express their opinions on this hugely important issue.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT). Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, this is an issue that has a lot of passion; and when a lot of passion is embracing an issue, it is said that it is very harsh and I think at times untrue. Earlier we heard that there were quote/unquote dirty, nasty remarks against him, referring to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA). No one is saying that about the gentlemen from California.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I must say, Scoop Jackson must be spinning in his grave. The talk from the Democrat side will be shocked to see his party has been taken over by Michael Moore and Cindy Sheehan and the radical extremists on the left who do not like George Bush so much that now they are going to put danger to our troops by siding with the terrorists that it is time for an immediate pullout. I plan to vote “no” on the Democrat resolution for immediate pullout. I think it is irresponsible, and it definitely sends the wrong message to our troops.

I represent the 3rd Infantry Division. I am proud to represent the 3rd Infantry Division. I know many of these soldiers. I have dealt with them. I have gone to their funerals. I have gone to their services, and I would like to quote what the leading General said, General Webster, who spoke of the 3rd Division troops on the ground, and I am proud to say is a friend of mine, and I am proud to say is an extremely thoughtful and patriotic, brave American. General Webster said, “We are responding to a call for immediate withdrawal. “Setting a date would mean that the 221 soldiers I’ve lost this year, that their lives would have been lost in vain.”

He continued to say that Iraq’s asylum factions would likely take a cue from a timetable for a U.S. withdrawal to lie low, gathering their strength and laying plans for renewed conflict as soon as Americans leave. In fact, the Democrat Party now seems to be taking their cue from France: Lose, leave and wait.

The Democrats seem to want to cut and run and dishonor the sacrifices of those who are doing such a great job today. The President has said, and as much as the Democrats hate sometimes, it appears, the President’s policies, he said, “Our strategy is to clear, hold, and build.”

We are doing is we have rounded up 116 al Qaeda rulers. A number of tips from the indigenous folks on the ground have risen from 424 in February Zawahiri is the number two man in al Qaeda, the spiritual leader of Osama bin Laden, his advisor. Al-Zarqawi is al Qaeda’s director of jihadist attacks. He has been in Iraq since before Operation Iraqi Freedom.

In a letter from al-Zawahiri to al-Zarqawi, al Qaeda’s director of jihadist attacks, al-Zawahiri says, We have four goals. The very first goal is to expel Americans from Iraq.

If this legislation were to pass today, it would be headline news on al Jazeera TV. They would declare victory in al Qaeda, and it would jeopardize every American across the face of the globe. We have to get this battle right. We have to get this battle to go take place. Is it going to be in Iraq where every American carries a gun, or will it be on the streets of New York and Washington, D.C.

I say we vote this resolution down for the safety of our troops and our citizens.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, if people do not like this resolution, they can vote against it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. HARMAN), the ranking member on the House Intelligence Committee.

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Earlier today, the Democratic members of the House Intelligence Committee issued a letter to the chairman of our committee protesting his decision to shut down a bipartisan investigation into the intelligence failures that led us into war. Failure to learn from the mistakes of the past is an abdication of our responsibility to the American people and dangerous for our country. If we do not learn lessons, we will repeat mistakes.

It is likewise the responsibility of this House to conduct rigorous oversight over our policy in Iraq. There is now broad consensus in the country that we need to change course.

Many of us have offered thoughtful suggestions to do just that. Let me name not our troops who have failed. They are performing heroically, as are our intelligence personnel. A month ago, on my most recent visit to Iraq, I had dinner with troops from California who are part of Task Force Baghdad. They are doing an outstanding job.

Reasonable people can differ on how we should redeploy troops in 6 months or 16 months and what events should drive that redeployment, but today we stand united that a change of course is urgently needed. We stand united behind the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), our colleagues in Iraq who has had his patriotism attacked by the White House, but who is not backing down, and we stand united that the Republican leadership should not use a stunt like this to score political points.

In case anyone missed it, the terrorists do not care whether we are Democrats or Republicans. They are not going to check our party registration before they blow us up.

I take a back seat to no one in my efforts to craft bipartisan solutions to problems. Iraq policy is failing, and it is time for this House to be bipartisan as the Senate was earlier this week, and it is way past time for this White House to give us a serious strategy and to clarify its intentions with respect to permanent bases, no design on Iraq and a plan to help build true power sharing among the ethnic factions and true operational capability in the Iraqi security forces.

I urge my colleagues to vote “no” on this measure. This resolution is intended to divide us, to set partisanship in the way of patriotism.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. KNOXROGERS). Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I must say, Scoop Jackson must be spinning in his grave. The talk from the Democrat side will be shocked to see his party has now been taken over by Michael Moore and Cindy Sheehan and the radical extremists on the left who do not like George Bush so much that now they are going to put danger to our troops by siding with the terrorists that it is time for an immediate pullout.

I plan to vote “no” on the Democrat resolution for immediate pullout. I think it is irresponsible, and it definitely sends the wrong message to our troops.

I represent the 3rd Infantry Division. I am proud to represent the 3rd Infantry Division. I know many of these soldiers. I have dealt with them. I have gone to their funerals. I have gone to their services, and I would like to quote what the leading General said, General Webster, yesterday, who is in charge of the 3rd Division troops on the ground, and I am proud to say is a friend of mine, and I am proud to say is an extremely thoughtful and patriotic, brave American. General Webster said, “We are responding to a call for immediate withdrawal. “Setting a date would mean that the 221 soldiers I’ve lost this year, that their lives would have been lost in vain.”

He continued to say that Iraq’s asylum factions would likely take a cue from a timetable for a U.S. withdrawal to lie low, gathering their strength and laying plans for renewed conflict as soon as Americans leave. In fact, the Democrat Party now seems to be taking their cue from France: Lose, leave and wait.

The Democrats seem to want to cut and run and dishonor the sacrifices of those who are doing such a great job today. The President has said, and as much as the Democrats hate sometimes, it appears, the President’s policies, he said, “Our strategy is to clear, hold, and build.”

What we are doing is we have rounded up 116 al Qaeda rulers. A number of tips from the indigenous folks on the ground have risen from 424 in February to 3,341 today. That is cooperation by the Iraqis themselves. We have trained 210,000 Iraqi security forces, and we have more than 20 operating bases that are ready that they are doing a good job of. We have rebuilt 3,404 schools, 304 wastewater and sewage treatment facilities, 257 fire/police stations, and 149 health services. This is progress.

Mr. Speaker, they just overwhelmingly passed a resolution adopting a new Constitution October 15, and in December, they are going to have their own elections for their own government. That is progress. Do not cut and run. Stand firm with our troops.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, parliamentary inquiry. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). The gentleman may inquire. Mr. MCGOVERN. The gentleman from Georgia just referred to this as a facsimile or proxy of JACK MURTHA this way, a great American. He is a patriot. He is a man over defense and military matters has increased every year. He is a real American. He is a patriot. He is a marine. He is the best embodiment of Semper Fidelis that I have ever known. He made a proposal yesterday that I, myself, do not fully agree, but I have profound respect for the man who made it, and I watched the pain that he experienced as he agonizingly laid out what the conclusions were that he had come to. To take this proposal and trash it, trivially, is not good. To treat JACK MURTHA this way, a great American, a wonderful patriot, is beneath contempt.

This resolution takes a profound issue we face, whether and when we wage war, and makes it another cheap shot in the political process. You present a resolution that purports to be a facsimile or proxy of JACK MURTHA’s resolution when it is nothing of the kind, nothing of the kind, and then you dare to call it something it is not, a Democratic resolution or process. This is outrageous, Mr. Speaker, and all I can say is, at long last, have you no shame?

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. DAVIS). Mr. DAVIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for the time. I believe it is imperative in this body that we have an open and frank dialogue on issues that are of concern to us. I am disturbed and disappointed, frankly, by some of the rhetoric I have heard, because we are judged and we are acquitted and/or we are found guilty by those words, but the luxury we have is simply words here.

The impact of those words, though, on the other side of the ocean, in the AOR, in Iraq and Afghanistan, is that in this small world, not only do our friends but also our enemies watch, and they do not understand our concept of openness, of tolerance, of free speech and spirited dialogue.

Indeed, sometimes remarks that have been made in this Chamber have been used for the recruiting of suicide bombers. I think that one thing, and I would have to say quite candidly, is in our oversight: It is also important that we have oversight on our own words. The comments that were made yesterday by a man with a distinguished military record, who I do not fault one bit, fly in the face of the comments of hundreds of soldiers, ranging from junior enlisted personnel across the AOR to my West Point classmates who are commanding brigades on the ground and have oversight on their parts. The phone calls that I got last night, including one from the commander of America’s premier counterterrorism organization, who asked what in the world was happening here to make those kind of comments to encourage our enemies.

However, remarks irresponsibly given, not based on facts, simply do this: They place policy over politics while our young men and women are on the front line and unwittingly cooperating with and emboldens our enemies.

Liberal leadership has stated that they do not have a policy on Iraq, as one of your leaders said yesterday, but will have one in an appropriate time, I am sure in time for the 2006 election. Because we are accountable for our words, I urge a yes on this rule to bring this resolution to the floor so the time for tough talking will end, and there will be accountability. If people want to disagree categorically, they can be accountable for their words because of this. Because of our words, our troops are going to endure the consequences of those statements, and I urge all of you to be accountable for the statements that have been made and all those that have been itching for a fight for a long time from the way their comments have sounded, and now they would like women are in harm’s way without hearings, without giving it any thought, without any careful thinking or examination, but thrusting it, thrusting us into voting on a resolution that is, as the gentleman from Georgia said, three lines long.

As we have been saying that “this dog don’t hunt,” and it does not hunt. This political strategy speaks to an observation that was made to us in a hearing recently by General Kelley from the Army. He said, We are a Nation at war. We are a Nation at war except in Washington, where they do not understand we have a flawed strategy where we are being subjected to a mentality of “The Charge of The Light Brigade!”

So I went back and I looked up “The Charge of The Light Brigade” by Lord Tennyson, and I will just read a portion of it:

Half a league, half a league,
All in the valley of Death.
Rode the six hundred.

Forward, the Light Brigade!
Charge of the guns! he said:
Into the valley of Death.
Rode the six hundred.

Forward, the Light Brigade!
Was there a man dismay’d?
Not tho’ the soldier knew
Some had blunder’d;
Their’s not to make reply,
Their’s not to reason why,
Their’s but to do and die:
Rode the valley of Death.
Rode the six hundred.

Every day our men and women are riding convoys into that valley of death. Shame on us for this resolution. Vote against it.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mrs. BLACKBURN).

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, my Democratic colleagues are coming down here and accusing us of slandering our friend and fellow Member, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), and that is absurd. It is not about him, and it is not about any of us. It is about foreign policy and national security, and, quite frankly, this idea on the left that we can and should immediately withdraw is not only a bad idea, it is dangerous. How do you tell a 19-year-old American, fighting, bleeding for their country, that it is all pointless? How dare you do such a thing?

You may not agree with the way things are being managed, but do not minimize the importance of what we are doing in Iraq. You all on the left talk to the American people, and they do not want to hear the rhetoric, they want to hear the facts, and now they would like
Mr. MURTHA, I voted for that war. In the last ten days, however, it has become incontrovertibly clear that a key piece of evidence you and other Administration officials have cited regarding Iraq’s efforts to obtain nuclear weapons is a hoax. What's more, the Central Intelligence Agency questioned the veracity of the evidence at the same time you and other Administration officials were using it in public statements. This is a breach of the highest order, and the American people are entitled to know how it happened.

As you know, I voted for the congressional resolution condemning Iraq and authorizing the use of force. Despite serious misgivings, I supported the resolution because I believed Congressional leaders would significantly improve the likelihood of effective U.N. action. Equally important, I believed that you had access to reliable intelligence information that merited deference.

Like many other members, I was particularly influenced by your views about Iraq’s nuclear intentions. Although chemical and biological weapons can inflict casualties, no argument for attacking Iraq is as compelling as the possibility of Saddam Hussein brandishing nuclear bombs. That, obviously, is why it figures in its file summary, and why so many have looked to you for honest and credible information on Iraq’s nuclear program.

The evidence in question is correspondence that indicates that Iraq sought to obtain nuclear material from an African country, Niger. As you know, this evidence was a part of the U.S. case against Iraq. On December 19, the State Department filed a response to Iraq’s disavowal declaration to the U.N. Security Council. The State Department response stated: “The Declaration ignores efforts to procure uranium from Niger.” A day later, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld told reporters at a news briefing that “the evidence that Iraq had sought to obtain uranium from Niger was very, very strong.”

It has now been conceded that this evidence was a forgery. On March 7, the Director General of the International Atomic Energy Agency, Mohamed ElBaradei, reported that the evidence that Iraq sought nuclear materials from Niger was “not authentic.” As subsequent investigations have shown, the evidence contained “crude errors,” such as a “childlike signature” and the use of stationery from a military government in Niger that was no longer in power.

Even more troubling, however, is the CIA, which has been aware of this information since 2001, has never regarded the evidence as reliable. The implications of this fact are profound: it means that a key part of the case you have been building against Iraq is evidence that your own intelligence experts at the Central Intelligence Agency do not believe is credible.

It is hard to imagine how this situation could have developed. The two most obvious explanations—deception or unfathomable incompetence—both have immediate and serious implications. It is thus imperative that you address this matter without delay and in a transparent fashion, if there is one.

The rest of this letter will explain my concerns in detail.

USING BAD EVIDENCE BY US OFFICIALS

The evidence that Iraq sought to purchase uranium from an African country was first revealed by the British government on September 24, 2002, when Prime Minister Tony Blair reported that the British government had intercepted communications that indicated Iraq had attempted to acquire uranium and other weapons of mass destruction. As the New York Times reported in a front-page article, one of the two “chief new elements” in the report was the claim that Iraq had “sought to acquire uranium in Africa that could be used to make nuclear weapons.”

This evidence subsequently became a significant part of the U.S. case against Iraq. On December 7, Iraq filed its weapons declaration to the U.N. Security Council. The U.S. response relied heavily on the evidence that Iraq had sought to obtain uranium from Africa.

For example, this is how the New York Times began its front-page article on December 13 describing the U.S. response: “American intelligence agencies have reached the conclusion that Iraq’s 12,000-page declaration of its weapons program fails to account for chemical and biological agents missing when inspectors left Iraq four years ago. American officials and United Nations diplomats said today...

“In addition, Iraq’s declaration on its nuclear program, they say, leaves open a host of questions. Among them is why Iraq was seeking to buy uranium in Africa in recent years.”

The official U.S. response was provided on December 19, when Secretary of State Colin Powell appeared before the Security Council. As the Los Angeles Times reported, “A one-page CIA summary listing what Washington considers the key omissions and deceptions in Baghdad’s Dec. 7 weapons declaration.” One of the eight “key omissions and deceptions” was the failure to explain Iraq’s attempts to purchase uranium from an African country.

Specifically, the State Department fact sheet contains the following points under the heading “Nuclear Weapons”:

“...that the IAEA and the U.N. Security Council, the Congress, and the American people to rely on information from your own experts knew was not credible.

Your statement to Congress during the State of the Union, in particular, raises a host of questions. The statement is premised in a way that suggests it was carefully crafted to be both literally true and deliberately misleading at the same time. The statement implied that the British government has learned that Saddam Hussein recently sought significant quantities of uranium from Africa. The Washington Post reported the next day, “the president seemed quite specific as he ticked off the allegations last night, including the news that Iraq had secured uranium for the purpose of making nuclear bombs.”

A day later, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld told reporters at a news briefing that “the evidence that Iraq was seeking significant quantities of uranium from Africa from...The Washington Post reported the next day, “the president seemed quite specific as he ticked off the allegations last night, including the news that Iraq had secured uranium for the purpose of making nuclear bombs.”

To date, the White House has avoided explaining why the Administration relied on this forged evidence in building its case against Iraq. The White House press secretary, Ari Fleischer, was asked about this issue at a White House news briefing on March 13, but...

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON) would advise Members that it is improper to walk in front of a Member speaking in the well.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, the troops in this country are going to be surprised to find out that the Republican chairman of the House Armed Services Committee filed a resolution saying that it is the sense of the House of Representatives, apparently as he sees it, that the deployment of the United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately. Apparently, the Republican chairman of the House Armed Services Committee thinks that we should not have an orderly withdrawal; thinks that we should not provide for their safety and protection on the withdrawal, thinks that we should not do the things that Mr. MURTHA suggested that we do.

It is either that, sir, or there are going to be some things that are going on here. This is some sort of a trick, that you filed this so that we would have been looking at something that Mr. MURTHA did not want us to look at. Because if you are concerned about what the message is that the troops in Iraq, you would, in fact, have a full-fledged debate here so that Mr. MURTHA and other Members of both parties could express clearly and succinctly what it is they believe ought to happen in terms of policy.

But that is not what we are seeing here. You should have a chance for Mr. MURTHA to discuss his idea on protecting the troops when there is a redeployment or redeploying to over the horizon so that there will not be a spread of terrorism, of making sure that any redeployment is made with the protection and the safety of the troops. But I do not think that is what is going on here.

You talk about your respect for Mr. MURTHA. You talk about his known knowledge for the military, and yet it is you, sir, who comes down here and says that the Republican chairman of the House Armed Services Committee proposes that the Republicans put their statement and their resolution that we should deploy immediately from Iraq and not protect our troops, apparently, because it does not say that, and not provide for their safety, not provide for redeployment somewhere over the horizon so that we will be sure that terrorism does not spread there and we will be ready for any emergency.

If instead you want the troops to get the message that the Chair is what we want, then why did you not work with your delegation over there to make sure that Mr. MURTHA's resolution could be proposed and debated and explained fully and then this country could have the benefit of a full discussion of where the policy is going, because this administration, apparently, has no clue and has no idea. They politicized the lead going into the area, and now you are politicizing how it is we are going to get this country back in order and out of there.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would also advise Members to address their remarks to the Chair and not to other Members.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

And let me make this point: that the resolution is written in precisely the way that I think describes the essence that the message that has been emanated from Washington, D.C. This is a message that has been sent to our troops; and if you look at the e-mails coming in, I think the question is well described, and I think that it manifests what a lot of people now think, especially uniformed people in the Iraq theater, and it is precisely the question before the House that the gentleman will have an absolute right to vote on; and I would hope that this is not Mr. MURTHA's position. He will have a chance to vote "no" on it.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 seconds to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand it to ever be the habit of this institution for a Member on one side taking it upon himself to interpret the meaning of a resolution of a Member on the other side without giving that Member the opportunity and the respect of allowing them to put forward what the meaning and intention of their own resolution is. I think, sir, you are playing games.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, let me just reiterate to my friend, he said this should not be about Mr. MURTHA, and it is not about Mr. MURTHA. It is about the message that has been sent around the world, as evidenced by e-mails coming in from our troops now who think that the Congress is pulling the rug out from under the mission.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would ask Members to respect the gavel and the time yielded.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).

Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from California why he introduced a counterfeit Murtha resolution rather than allowing us to vote on the real Murtha resolution, if he wanted to terminate the war.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, let me answer my friend.

This is a letter from an army captain in Iraq. He says in this e-mail: "I am a U.S. Army captain currently serving in Iraq, and I am shocked and appalled by Rep Murtha's call for an immediate withdrawal. Please, please, please convince your colleague to let us finish this critical job. He is correct that the deployments and service and casualties are hard on all of us. He is wrong about what is demoralizing to us. What is demoralizing is a Congress which no longer stands behind the armed forces around the world.

That is why we are offering this resolution. That is obviously the message that is going out to thousands of servicemen around the world.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

For 24 hours you maligned a great Member of this House, a decorated Vietnam War veteran. You should be ashamed of yourselves.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, in response to the speech of one decorated veteran of this institution, the Republican chairman of the Committee on Armed Services has taken this position of that Member, and he has written this abbreviated, interpreted version which mischaracterizes the position of Mr. MURTHA. This is a letter from an army captain of our own Armed Services Committee with his signature on it.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from California why he introduced a counterfeit Murtha resolution rather than allowing us to vote on the real Murtha resolution, if he wanted to terminate the war.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, let me answer my friend.

This is a letter from an army captain in Iraq. He says in this e-mail: "I am a U.S. Army captain currently serving in Iraq, and I am shocked and appalled by Rep Murtha's call for an immediate withdrawal. Please, please, please convince your colleague to let us finish this critical job. He is correct that the deployments and service and casualties are hard on all of us. That is why we are offering this resolution. That is obviously the message that is going out to thousands of servicemen around the world.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

For 24 hours you maligned a great Member of this House, a decorated Vietnam War veteran. You should be ashamed of yourselves.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).
But if you will not, maybe you can start doing your job: Hold a few hearings and a little bit of oversight in what is going on in Iraq, and maybe we can even act like the bipartisan Senate and ask that the President report to us on his goals, objectives and progress in Iraq. But what has happened in this House is the only substantive action you have taken on Iraq since we went in there, and you should be awfully ashamed.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. MCCOTTER).

Mr. MCCOTTER. Mr. Speaker, first, I wish to make it clear on my part that it is impossible to impugn the character of the gentleman from Pennsylvania because we could not do it if we so intended. Like so many of our citizen soldiers, their service did not end with their military career, and they continue to serve our country.

But I would hope that this rule would be accepted, because this is a question that we have all had to answer. My constituents have asked it. It is incumbent upon me to respond, and I would think it would be no different today.

But I would hope the consequence of this rule being passed and this resolution being debated with free vote of conscience on either side of the aisle is that should it fail, is that we then strive to find a bipartisan plan for victory in Iraq, and an articulation of our war aims that can motivate the American people to galvanize behind it. For this cause will be gone, and our cause will stand for the safe and the orderly withdrawal. It has not served as a coequal check. It has not served as a coequal branch of government. This Republican Congress is only interested in covering up for this administration. We have lost over 2,000 American men and women in Iraq. Thousands more are wounded. We have spent hundreds of billions of dollars in this war effort, and credibility around the world is at an all-time low, and this is the best that you can do for our soldiers, this resolution? Is this? This is our debate on Iraq? This is what the American people get for all of what they have gone through, all the sacrifices that have been made?

As for this legislation by the gentleman from California, which hasn’t had a hearing and hasn’t had a markup, if it comes up, I am going to vote against it. I think all of us are going to vote against it. I think it is a lesson for the American people that if it comes up, I am going to vote against it and hold this administration accountable, which we are supposed to do, then you should oppose this rule.

If you oppose the rule, we are not going to have to deal with this lousy bill. We will come back and do it right. To vote for this rule is to politicize a war and that is a mistake. All of us whether we are for this war or against this war, whether Republican or Democrat or liberal or conservative, we should not want to politicize this war. To do so is tragic.

Mr. Speaker, by moving ahead with this resolution, we demean the service of our soldiers. We demean the families who have lost loved ones in this war. We demean this institution. We need to do our job. This is not about a game of political gotcha. This is about doing the right thing, making sure we are on the right course, that we can disagree about that, but we can respect each other’s opinions without trying to smear one another.

And so I would urge all my colleagues for the sake of collegiality, for the sake of civility in this House, for the sake of doing the right thing for the people of this country and especially for our troops overseas vote down this rule. Vote down this rule. Let’s end this right now, and let’s come back and let’s do it right and let’s get the American people what they deserve, honest debate and discussion on the war in Iraq.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield back my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I close this debate by thanking the various Members of this body from the chairmen who have shepherded these legislative initiatives to the conference whose hard work has given this House the opportunity to move our legislative agenda for the process may not be perfect, Mr. Speaker, it is at the end of the day a process in which Members can work together through compromise and long hours to complete the work of the American people.

This is good governance; and, Mr. Speaker, this good governance is never easy, but it never should be. This is serious work and the American people deserve every ounce of our attention and every ounce of our labor to see their agenda realized. Again, I would like to welcome my colleagues to join me in supporting this resolution.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the misguided Hunter troop withdrawal resolution. How irresponsible this is.

Instead, let me thank Congressman and Marine JACK MURTHA.

Thank you for your patriotism.

Thank you for your honorable discernment of duty . . . to America . . . to our troops . . . to the cause of victory and freedom in Iraq. Your judicious resolution deserves hearing by the American people, our troops and this House.

Yesterday, you stood high on this Hill. Your message reached the American people. And it reached our troops and their commanders. Unlike the Bush Administration, you have a plan for victory. It is real. It says:

Within six months, redeploy our troops consistent with their safety.

Create a quick reaction force in the region.

Back that up with an over-the-horizon presence of Marines.

Push the diplomacy button hard to secure and stabilize Iraq.

You don’t want America’s soldiers to be viewed as the enemy of freedom. For indeed they are its champions.

You spoke the truth when you said our soldiers were being made the victims of freedom in a growing counterinsurgency movement inside Iraq caused by the Bush-Cheney Administration’s bungling, misleading, and propagandizing of this war.

You were right in letting the American people know that since Abu Ghraib the Bush-Cheney Administration has lost U.S. moral authority in the Middle East. Since Abu Ghraib, American casualties have doubled. Since last year, insurgent incidents have increased from about 150 per week to over 700 last year.

Yes, winning means winning the hearts and minds of the people over there, not just here. Victory means political victory as well as military victory. Our military has done everything asked of them. Our diplomats have been missing in action. Our troops were not led to believe that their lives would be lost in a counterinsurgency movement. Our troops are trained to fight force on force. The challenge America faces in the Islamic and Arab world is being made worse every day by the Bush Administration’s miscalculations and misleading arguments. And nearly half of the Iraqi population believe attacks against American troops are justified. This is not a prescription for victory. The time for the Murtha Plan to begin is now.

Thank you Jack Murtha for placing your life in the line of fire for our troops and for freedom. Your resolution has a right to be heard and debated as a way forward to freedom.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GINGREY

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GINGREY of Georgia:

Add at the end the following:

(b) A resolution relating to U.S. forces in Iraq.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I offer the amendment.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I think a number of people on this side of the aisle and maybe on the other side of the aisle did not hear what the amendment is. Could it be repeated, please?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Clerk will re-report the amendment.

There was no objection.

The Clerk re-reported the amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous—

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I restate the right to object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The previous question is ordered on the amendment. A vote will occur on the amendment to the resolution. Mr. MCGOVERN. I withdraw my reservation of objection, Mr. Speaker.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment. Mr. MCGOVERN. I withdraw my reservation of objection, Mr. Speaker.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker pro tempore. The House is debating a rule that would end this right now, and let’s come back and let’s do it right and let’s get the American people what they deserve, honest debate and discussion on the war in Iraq.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House is debating a rule that would enable the debate of a resolution.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, if I might restate, if this resolution is voted on and it succeeds, is there then the opportunity to have by unanimous consent the resolution itself withdrawn? Does this block the withdrawal of the resolution?
Mr. FORTENBERRY changed his vote from "nay" to "yea." So the resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated against:

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, due to a death in the family, I was unable to vote on H. Res. 563. Had I been present, I would have voted "no.”

NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACEx ADMINISTRATION AUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2005

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the Senate bill (S. 1281) to authorize appropriations for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for science, aeronautics, exploration, exploration capabilities, and the Inspector General, and for other purposes, for fiscal years 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, and 2010, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 1281

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as "National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2005.”

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this Act is as follows:

(a) APPROPRIATIONS—

Sec. 102. Fiscal year 2007.
Sec. 103. Fiscal year 2008.
Sec. 104. Fiscal year 2009.
Sec. 105. Fiscal year 2010.
Sec. 106. Evaluation criteria for budget requests.

(b) ENABLING COMMERCIAL SPACE PROGRAMS—

Sec. 201. Commercial launch vehicle programs.
Sec. 203. Technology development program.
Sec. 204. Commercial space transportation program.
Sec. 205. Development of new space transportation systems.

(c) INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION—

Sec. 301. International Space Station at low Earth orbit.
Sec. 302. International Space Station construction.
Sec. 303. International Space Station crew and station operations.
Sec. 304. International Space Station crew and station operations.
Sec. 305. International Space Station crew and station operations.

(d) FACILITIES AND VEHICLES—

Sec. 401. Space research facilities.
Sec. 402. Space telescopes.
Sec. 403. Space technology research facilities.
Sec. 404. Space transportation facilities.
Sec. 405. Space communication facilities.

(e) SCIENCE PROGRAMS—

Sec. 501. Exploration programs.
Sec. 502. Science programs.
Sec. 503. High priority aeronautics research.
Sec. 504. High priority aeronautics research.
Sec. 505. High priority aeronautics research.
Sec. 506. High priority aeronautics research.

(f) SPECIAL PROGRAMS—

Sec. 601. Programs to advance national security.
Sec. 602. Programs to advance national security.
Sec. 603. Programs to advance national security.
Sec. 604. Programs to advance national security.
Sec. 605. Programs to advance national security.

(g) NATIONAL SECURITY—

Sec. 701. National security programs.
Sec. 702. National security programs.
Sec. 703. National security programs.
Sec. 704. National security programs.
Sec. 705. National security programs.
Sec. 706. National security programs.

(h) ADMINISTRATION—

Sec. 801. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.
Sec. 802. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.
Sec. 803. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.
Sec. 804. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.
Sec. 805. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.
Sec. 806. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

(i) FUNDING AUTHORIZATIONS—

Sec. 132. Biennial reports to Congress on space programs.
Sec. 133. Status report on Hubble Space Telescope servicing mission.
Sec. 134. Develop expanded permanent human presence beyond low Earth orbit.
Sec. 135. Ground-based analog capabilities.
Sec. 136. Space launch transition capabilities, and development.
Sec. 137. Lessons learned and best practices.
Sec. 138. Safety management.
Sec. 139. Creation of a budget structure that aids effective oversight and management.
Sec. 140. Earth observing system.
Sec. 141. NASA healthcare program.
Sec. 142. Assessment of extension of data collection from Ulysses and Voyager spacecraft.
Sec. 143. Program to expand distance learning in rural underserved areas.
Sec. 144. Institutions in NASA’s minority institutions program.
Sec. 145. Aviation safety program.
Sec. 146. Atmospheric, geophysical, and rocket research authorization.
Sec. 147. Orbital debris.
Sec. 148. Continuation of certain educational programs.
Sec. 149. Establishment of the Charles "Pete" Conrad Astronomy Awards Program.
Sec. 150. GAO assessment of feasibility of Moon and Mars exploration missions.
Sec. 151. Workforce.
Sec. 152. Major research equipment and facilities.
Sec. 153. Data on specific fields of study.

SUBTITLE C—LIMITATIONS AND SPECIAL AUTHORITIES

Sec. 161. Official representative funds.
Sec. 162. Facilities management.

TITLE II—INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION

Sec. 201. International Space Station completion.
Sec. 202. Research and support capabilities on International Space Station.
Sec. 203. National laboratory status for International Space Station.
Sec. 204. Commercial support of International Space Station operations and utilization.
Sec. 205. Use of the International Space Station and annual report.

TITLE III—NATIONAL SPACE TRANSPORTATION POLICY

Sec. 301. United States human-rated launch capacity assessment.
Sec. 302. Space Shuttle transition.
Sec. 303. Commercial launch vehicles.
Sec. 304. Secondary payload capability.
Sec. 305. Power and propulsion reporting.
Sec. 306. Utilization of NASA field centers and workforce.

TITLE IV—ENABLING COMMERCIAL SPACE PROGRAMS

Sec. 401. Commercialization plan.
Sec. 402. Commercial technology transfer program.
Sec. 403. Authority for competitive prize program to encourage development of advanced space and aeronautical technologies.
Sec. 404. Commercial goods and services.

TITLE V—AERONAUTICS RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Sec. 501. Governmental interest in aeronautics.
Sec. 502. National policy for aeronautics research and development.
Sec. 503. High priority aeronautics research and development programs.
The National programs are leading contributors to the Nation's leadership. A national effort is needed to ensure that NASA maintains United States leadership. Any erosion or diminishment of this preeminence is not in the national interest of the United States, including maintenance of the United States segment of the ISS in low-Earth orbit are in the national policy interest.

The Congress finds the following:

(1) Maintaining the capability to safely send humans into space is essential to United States national and economic security, United States preeminence in space, and inspiring the next generation of explorers.

(2) The gap in United States human space flight capability is harmful to the national interest.

(3) Exploration and other lawful uses, is in the interest of the United States.

(4) The exploration, development, and permanent habitation of the Moon will inspire the Nation, spur commerce, imagination, and excitement around the world, and open the possibility of further exploration of Mars. NASA should return to the Moon within the next decade.

(5) The establishment of the capability for consistent access to and stewardship of the region between the Moon and Earth is in the national security and commercial interests of the United States.

(6) Commercial development of space, including commercial and other lawful uses, is in the interest of the United States and the international community at large.

(7) Research and access to capabilities to support a national laboratory facility within the United States is of the United States.

(8) NASA should develop vehicles to replace the Shuttle orbiter’s capabilities for transporting crew and heavy cargo while utilizing the existing program’s resources, including plans, capabilities, and infrastructure. Using these resources can ease the transition to a new space transportation system, maintain an essential industrial base, and minimize technology and safety risks.

(9) The United States must remain the leader in aeronautics and aviation. Any erosion of this preeminence is not in the Nation’s economic or security interest. NASA should align its aerospace leadership to ensure United States leadership. A national effort is needed to ensure that NASA’s aeronautics programs are leading contributors to the Nation’s civil and military aviation needs, as well as to its exploration capabilities.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ADMINISTRATOR.—The term ‘‘Administrator’’ means the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

(2) ISS.—The term ‘‘ISS’’ means the International Space Station.

(3) NASA.—The term ‘‘NASA’’ means the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

(4) SHUTTLE-DERIVED VEHICLE.—The term ‘‘shuttle-derived vehicle’’ means any new space transportation vehicle, piloted or uncrewed, that—

(A) is capable of supporting crew or cargo missions; and

(B) uses a major component of NASA’s Space Transportation System, such as the solid rocket booster, external tank, engine, and orbiter.

(5) IN-SITU RESOURCE UTILIZATION.—The term ‘‘in-situ resource utilization’’ means the technology or systems that can convert indigenous or locally-situated substances into useful materials and products.

Title I—Authorization of Appropriations

Subtitle A—Authorizations

SEC. 101. FISCAL YEAR 2006.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for fiscal year 2006, $18,556,400,000, as follows:

(1) For science, aeronautics and exploration, $9,669,600,000, for the following programs (including amounts for construction of facilities).

(2) For exploration capabilities, $6,863,000,000, (including amounts for construction of facilities), which shall be used for space operations, and out of which $100,000,000 shall be used for the purposes of section 202 of this Act.

(3) For the Office of Inspector General, $32,400,000.

SEC. 102. FISCAL YEAR 2007.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for fiscal year 2007, $17,052,900,000, as follows:

(1) $10,549,800,000 for science, aeronautics and exploration (including amounts for construction of facilities).

(2) For exploration capabilities, $6,469,600,000, for the following programs (including amounts for construction of facilities, of which $6,469,600,000 shall be for space operations).

(3) For the Office of Inspector General, $33,500,000.

SEC. 103. FISCAL YEAR 2008.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for fiscal year 2008, $17,470,900,000.

SEC. 104. FISCAL YEAR 2009.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for fiscal year 2009, $17,995,000,000.

SEC. 105. FISCAL YEAR 2010.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, for fiscal year 2010, $18,534,900,000.

SEC. 106. EVALUATION CRITERIA FOR BUDGET REQUEST.

It is the sense of the Congress that each budget of the United States submitted to the Congress after the date of enactment of this Act should be evaluated for compliance with the findings and actions taken on this Act and the amendments made by this Act.

Subtitle B—General Provisions

SEC. 131. IMPLEMENTATION OF A SCIENCE PROGRAM THAT EXTENDS HUMAN KNOWLEDGE AND UNDERSTANDING OF THE EARTH, SUN, SOLAR SYSTEM, AND THE UNIVERSE.

The Administrator shall—

(1) conduct a rich and vigorous set of science activities aimed at better comprehension of the universe, solar system, and Earth, and ensure that the various areas within NASA’s science programs are developed and maintained in a balanced and healthy manner, and, as part of this balanced science research program, provide, to the maximum extent practicable, support and funding for the Magnetospheric Multiscale Mission, SIM-Planet Quest, and Future Explorers programs, including determination whether these missions and planned missions can be expedited to meet previous schedules, and may place a greater emphasis on science. Incumbent programs described in this paragraph, throughout the fiscal years for which funds are authorized by this Act (and for this purpose, of the funds authorized by section 101(1) of this Act, no less than $5,341,200,000 shall be for science, and of the funds authorized by section 102(1) of this Act, no less than $5,900,300,000 shall be for science;

(2) plan projected Mars exploration activities in the context of planned lunar robotic precursor missions, ensuring the ability to conduct a broad set of scientific investigations and research around and on the Moon’s surface;

(3) upon successful completion of the planned return-to-flight schedule of the Space Shuttle, determine the schedule for a Shuttle servicing mission to the Hubble Space Telescope and other science missions within the United States segment of the ISS, of which at least one mission would compromise astronaut or safety or the integrity of NASA’s other missions;

(4) ensure that, in implementing the provisions of this section, appropriate inter-agency and commercial collaboration opportunities are sought and utilized to the maximum feasible extent;

(5) seek opportunities to diversify the flight opportunities for scientific Earth science instruments and seek innovation in the development of instruments that would enable greater flight opportunities;

(6) develop a long term sustainable relationship with the United States commercial remote sensing industry, and, consistent with applicable policies and law, to the maximum practical extent, rely on their services;

(7) in conjunction with United States industry, and universities, develop Earth science applications to enhance Federal, State, local, and tribal governments that use government and commercial remote sensing capabilities to respond to Earth observation and geospatial information to address their needs;

(8) plan, develop, and implement a near-Earth object survey program to detect, track, catalogue, and characterize the physical characteristics of near-Earth asteroids and comets in order to assess the threat of such near-Earth objects in impacting the Earth; and

(9) ensure that, of the amount expended for aeronautics, a significant portion is directed toward the Vehicle System Program, as many aeronautics, and innovative research in aeronautical disciplines is performed within that program.

SEC. 132. BIENNIAL REPORTS TO CONGRESS ON SCIENCE PROGRAMS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act and every 2 years thereafter, the Administrator shall transmit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science setting forth in detail—

(1) the findings and actions taken on NASA’s assessment of the balance within its science portfolio and any efforts to adjust that balance; and

(2) the findings and actions taken on NASA’s assessment of the balance within its science portfolio and any efforts to adjust that balance among science program areas, including the areas referred to in section 131;
(2) any activities undertaken by the Administration to conform with the Sun-Earth science and applications direction provided in section 131; and
(3) the need to use near-Earth object detection and observation.

(b) External Review Findings.—The Administrator shall include in each report submitted to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science a one-time status report on a Hubble Space Telescope servicing mission.

SEC. 134. DEVELOP EXPANDED PERMANENT HUMAN PRESENCE BEYOND LOW-EARTH ORBIT.

(a) In General.—As part of the programs authorized under the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2451 et seq.), the Administrator shall establish an agenda to develop a permanently sustained human presence on the Moon, in tandem with an extensive precursor program, to support security, safety, and scientific purposes, and as a stepping-stone to future exploration of Mars. The Administrator is further authorized to develop and conduct international collaborations in pursuit of these goals, as appropriate.

(b) Requirements.—In carrying out this section, the Administrator shall—
(1) develop an effective exploration technology program that is focused around the key needs to support human and robotic operations;
(2) submit to the Congress a one-time status report on a Hubble Space Telescope servicing mission.

SEC. 135. GROUND-BASED ANALOG CAPABILITIES.

(a) In General.—The Administrator shall establish a ground-based analog capability in remote United States locations in order to assist in the development of life support systems, to mitigate and store resources, life support, and in-situ resource utilization experience and capabilities.

(b) Locations.—The Administrator shall select locations for subsection (a) in places that—
(1) are regularly accessible;
(2) have significant temperature extremes and range; and
(3) have access to energy and natural resources (including geothermal, permafrost, volcanic, and ice resources).

(c) Involvement of Local Populations; Private Sector Partners.—In carrying out this section, the Administrator shall involve local populations in the planning, design, and implementation of the activities, and industrial partners as much as possible to ensure that ground-based benefits and applications are encouraged and developed.

SEC. 136. SPACE LAUNCH AND TRANSPORTATION TRANSITION, CAPABILITIES, AND DEVELOPMENT.

(a) Post-Orbital Transition.—The Administrator shall develop an implementation plan for the transition to a new crew exploration system. The plan shall focus on reusing elements that use the existing orbital infrastructure and structure of the Space Shuttle to the fullest extent possible and addresses how the space shuttle will accommodate the docking of the crew exploration vehicle of ISS.

(b) Automated Rendezvous and Docking.—The Administrator is directed to pursue aggressively automated rendezvous and docking capabilities that can support ISS and other mission requirements and include these activities, progress reports, and plans in the implementation plan.

(c) Congressionally Mandated Action.—Within 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act the Administrator shall submit a copy of the implementation plan to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science.

SEC. 137. LESSONS LEARNED AND BEST PRACTICES.

(a) In General.—The Administrator shall provide an implementation plan describing NASA’s approach for obtaining, implementing, learning, and leveraging the lessons learned and best practices for its major programs and projects within 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act. The implementation plan shall be updated and maintained to ensure that it is current and consistent with the burgeoning culture of learning and safety within the agency. The plan shall include an evaluation of NASA’s safety culture and any external review recommendations of the Columbia Accident Investigation Board.

(b) Required Content.—The implementation plan shall contain as a minimum the lessons learned and best practices requirements for programs and projects, including sharing and leveraging lessons learned and best practices by employees, projects, and programs; as well as penalties for programs and projects that are determined not to have demonstrated use of those resources.

SEC. 138. SAFETY MANAGEMENT.

Section 6 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act, 1968 (42 U.S.C. 2477) is amended—
(1) by inserting “(a) In General.—” before “There”; and
(2) by striking “and” inserting “to it,” and inserting “including evaluating NASA’s compliance to the extent feasible, with the Earth’s best practice and recommendations of the Columbia Accident Investigation Board.”;

(3) by inserting “and the Congress” after “advise the Administrator”;
(4) by striking “and with respect to the adequacy of proposed or existing safety standards, and with respect to management and culture. The Panel shall also”; and
(5) by adding at the end the following:
“(b) Annual Report.—The Panel shall submit an annual report to the Administrator and the Congress. In the first annual report submitted after the date of enactment of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2005, the Panel shall include a recommendation of NASA’s safety management culture.
“(c) Sense of the Congress.—It is the sense of the Congress that the Administrator should—
“(1) ensure that NASA employees can raise safety concerns without fear of reprisal;
“(2) continue to follow the recommendations of the Columbia Accident Investigation Board for safely returning and continuing to fly; and
“(3) continue to inform the Congress from time to time of NASA’s progress in meeting those recommendations.”.

SEC. 139. CREATION OF A BUDGET STRUCTURE THAT AIDS EFFECTIVE OVERSIGHT AND MANAGEMENT.

In developing NASA’s budget request for inclusion in the Budget of the United States for fiscal year 2007 and thereafter, the Administrator shall—
(1) include line items for—
(A) science, aeronautics, and exploration;
(B) exploration capabilities; and
(C) the Office of the Chief Financial Officer;
(2) enumerate separately, within the science, aeronautics, and exploration account, the requests for—
(A) aeronautics;
(B) Earth science; and
(C) cislunar space;
(3) include, within the exploration capabilities account, the requests for—
(A) the Space Shuttle; and
(B) the ISS; and
(4) enumerate separately the specific requests for the independent technical authority within the appropriate account.

SEC. 140. EARTH OBSERVING SYSTEM.

(a) In General.—Within 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator, in consultation with the Administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the Director of the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency, shall submit a plan to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science to ensure the long-term viability of the earth observing system at NASA.

(b) Plan Requirements.—The plan shall—
(1) address such issues as—
(A) out-year budgetary projections;
(B) technical requirements for the system; and
(C) integration into the Global Earth Observing System of Systems; and
(2) evaluate—
(A) the need to proceed with any NASA missions that have been delayed or canceled;
(B) plans for transferring needed capabilities from some canceled or de-scoped missions to the National Polar-orbiting Environmental Satellite System; and
(C) the technical base for exploratory earth observing systems, including new satellite architectures and instruments that enable effective, day and night imaging of the Earth’s surface with the highest standard of measurement.
(E) the need to strengthen the approach to obtaining important climate observations and data records.
(c) EARTH OBSERVING SYSTEM DEFINED.—In this section, the term ‘‘earth observing system’’ means the series of satellites, a science component, and a data system for long-term global observations of the land surface, biophysical processes, and oceans.

SEC. 141. NASA HEALTHCARE PROGRAM.

The Administrator shall develop policies, procedures, and plans necessary for—
(1) the establishment of a lifetime healthcare program for NASA astronauts and their families; and
(2) the study and analysis of the healthcare data collected in order to understand the longitudinal health effects of space flight on humans better.

SEC. 142. ASSESSMENT OF EXTENSION OF DATA COLLECTION FROM ULYSSES AND VOYAGER SPACECRAFT.

(a) ASSESSMENT.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall carry out an assessment of the costs and benefits of extending, to such date as the Administrator considers appropriate for purposes of the assessment, the duration of data collection from the Ulysses spacecraft and the Voyager spacecraft.
(b) REPORT.—Not later than 30 days after completing the assessment required by subsection (a), the Administrator shall submit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House Committee on Science.

SEC. 143. PROGRAM TO EXPAND DISTANCE LEARNING IN RURAL UNDERSERVED AREAS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall develop or expand programs to extend science and space educational outreach to rural schools and communities through video conferencing, interactive exhibits, teacher education, classroom presentations, and student field trips.
(b) PRIORITIES.—In carrying out subsection (a), the Administrator shall give priority to existing programs, including Challenger Learning Centers.
(1) that seize community-based partnerships in the field;
(2) that build and maintain video conferencing and high-speed capacity;
(3) that travel directly to rural communities and serve low-income populations; and
(4) with a special emphasis on increasing the number of women and minorities in the science and engineering professions.

SEC. 144. INSTITUTIONS IN NASA’S MINORITY INSTITUTIONS PROGRAM.

The matter appearing under the heading “SMALL AND DISADVANTAGED BUSINESS” in title III of the Department of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1990 (42 U.S.C. 2473b; 103 Stat. 863) is amended by striking “Historically Black Colleges and Universities and” and inserting “Historically Black Colleges and Universities that are part B institutions as defined in section 322(2) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1061(2)), Hispanic-serving institutions (as defined in section 322(a)(1) of that Act (20 U.S.C. 1101a(a)(5)), Tribal Colleges or Universities (as defined in section 316(b)(3) of that Act (20 U.S.C. 1059c(b)(3)), Alaska Native-serving institutions (as defined in section 317(b)(2) of that Act (20 U.S.C. 1059d(b)(2)), and Native Hawaiian-serving institutions (as defined in section 317(b)(4) of that Act (20 U.S.C. 1059d(b)(4))”.

SEC. 145. AVIATION SAFETY PROGRAM.

The Administrator shall make available upon request satellite imagery of remote terrain to the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, or the Director of the Five Star Medallion Program, for aviation safety and aerial photography programs and research as determined by the Administrator to address the challenging topographical features of such terrain.

SEC. 146. ATMOSPHERIC, GEOPHYSICAL, AND BUDGET RESEARCH AUTHORIZATIONS.

There are authorized to be appropriated to the Administrator for atmospheric, geophysical, or basic research at the Poker Flat Research Range and the Kodiak Launch Complex, not more than $1,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2006 through 2010.

SEC. 147. REPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator, in conjunction with the heads of other Federal agencies, shall take steps to develop or acquire technologies that will enable NASA to decrease the risks associated with orbital debris.

SEC. 148. CONTINUATION OF CERTAIN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS.

From amounts appropriated to NASA for educational programs, the Administrator shall ensure continuation of the Space Grant Program, the Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research, and the NASA Explorer School to motivate and develop the next generation of explorers.

SEC. 149. ESTABLISHMENT OF THE CHARLES ‘‘PETE’’ CONRAD ASTRONOMY AWARDS PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall establish a program to be known as the Charles ‘‘Pete’’ Conrad Astronomy Awards Program.
(b) AWARDS.—The Administrator shall make an annual award under the program of—
(1) $3,000 to the amateur astronomer or group of amateur astronomers who in the preceding calendar year discovered the intrinsically brightest near-Earth asteroid among the near-Earth asteroids that were discovered during that year by amateur astronomers or groups of amateur astronomers; and
(2) $3,000 to the amateur astronomer or group of amateur astronomers who made the greatest contribution to the Minor Planet Center’s mission of cataloging near-Earth asteroids during the preceding year.
(c) QUALIFICATION FOR AWARD.—
(1) RECOMMENDATION.—These awards shall be made based on a recommendation of the Minor Planet Center of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.
(2) LIMITATION.—No individual who is not a citizen of the United States at the time of that individual’s discovery or contribution may receive an award under this program.

SEC. 150. GAO ASSESSMENT OF FeASIBILITY OF MoON AND MASy EKPLORATION MISSIONS.

Within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall transmit to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House Committee on Science an assessment of the feasibility of NASA’s planning for exploration of the Moon and Mars, giving special consideration to the long-term cost implications of program architectures and the requirements of this section; and the Comptroller General shall include in this assessment the short- and long-term impact of the exploration programs on other NASA programs and priorities and the benefits that may be gained from prioritizing these programs.

SEC. 151. WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall develop a human capital strategy to ensure that NASA has a workforce of the appropriate size and with the appropriate skills to carry out the programs of NASA, consistent with the policies and plans developed pursuant to this section. The strategy shall ensure that the different personnel are utilized, to the maximum extent feasible, in implementing the vision for space exploration and NASA’s other programs. The strategy shall cover the period through fiscal year 2007.
(b) CONTENT.—The strategy shall describe, at a minimum—
(1) any categories of employees NASA intends to reduce, the expected size and timing of those reductions, the methods NASA intends to use to make the reductions, and the reasons NASA no longer needs those employees;
(2) any categories of employees NASA intends to increase, the expected size and timing of those increases, the methods NASA intends to use to recruit the additional employees, and the reasons NASA needs those employees;
(3) the steps NASA will use to retain needed employees; and
(4) the budget assumptions of the strategy, which for fiscal years 2006 and 2007 shall be consistent with the authorizations provided in section 502(a) of the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2006, and the total costs or savings from the strategy by fiscal year.
(c) SCHEDULE.—The Administrator shall transmit the strategy required under this section to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House Committee on Science not later than the date on which the President submits the proposed budget for the Federal Government for fiscal year 2007 to the Congress. At least 60 days before transmitting the strategy, NASA shall provide a draft of the strategy to its Federal Employee Unions for a 30-day consultation period after which NASA shall respond in writing to any written concerns provided by the Unions.
(d) LIMITATION.—
(1) IN GENERAL.—NASA may not initiate any buyout offer after the date of enactment of this Act until 60 days after the strategy required by this subsection has been transmitted to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House Committee on Science in accordance with subsection (c). NASA may not implement any reduction-in-force thereafter unless the President approves the strategy (except for cause) prior to June 1, 2007, except as provided in paragraph (2).
(2) EXCEPTIONS.—
(A) SPECIFIC BUY-OUTS.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), NASA may make exceptions can be made for specific buy-outs on a case-by-case basis, if NASA provides information to the Committee that justifies those specific buy-outs, including why the relevant employees could not be utilized to fulfill other NASA missions.
(B) EMERGENCY REDUCTIONS-IN-FORCE.—NASA may also request an exception for an emergency reduction-in-force of management personnel by transmitting to the Committee—
(i) a detailed rationale for the proposed reduction-in-force;
(ii) an explanation of why the proposed reduction-in-force cannot wait until after the workforce strategy has been transmitted to the Committees in accordance with the requirements of this section; and size and timing of those reductions, the methods NASA intends to use to make the reductions, and the reasons NASA no longer needs those employees;
(iii) an explanation of why the relevant employees could not be utilized to fulfill other NASA missions.

SEC. 152. MAJOR RESEARCH EQUIPMENT AND FACILITIES IN NASA’S GENERAL RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT BUDGET.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the National Science Foundation may use funds in the major research equipment and facilities construction account for the design and development of projects that—

(1) have been given a very high rating by relevant scientific peer review panels in the relevant discipline;

(2) have substantial cost-sharing with non- Foundation sources; and

(3) have passed a critical design review.

(b) NATIONAL SCIENCE BOARD APPROVAL.—Nothing in subsection (a) shall be construed to eliminate the need for approval by the National Science Board before such equipment and facilities are eligible for acquisition, construction, commissioning, or upgrading.

SEC. 153. DATA ON SPECIFIC FIELDS OF STUDY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The National Science Foundation shall collect statistically reliable data through the American Community Survey on the field of degree of college-educated individuals.

(b) ADDITIONAL CENSUS QUESTION.—In order to facilitate the implementation of subsection (a), the Secretary of Commerce shall expand the American Community Survey to include a question to elicit information concerning the field of study in which college-educated individuals are employed. The Director of the Bureau of the Census shall consult with the Director of the National Science Foundation concerning the wording of the question or questions to be added to the Survey.

Subtitle C—Limitations and Special Authority

SEC. 161. OFFICIAL REPRESENTATIONAL FUND.

Amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 161 may be used, but not to exceed $70,000, for official reception and representation expenses.

SEC. 162. FACILITIES MANAGEMENT.

NASA shall use the facilities investment plan through fiscal year 2015 that takes into account uniqueness, mission dependency, and other studies required by this Act.

TITLE II—INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION

SEC. 201. INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION COMPLETION.

(a) ELEMENTS, CAPABILITIES, AND CONFIGURATION.—The Administrator shall ensure that the ISS will be able to—

(1) fulfill international partner agreements and provide a diverse range of research capacity, including the high rate of habitable area, medical research, protocols, countermeasures, applied biotechnology, technology and exploration research, and other priority areas;

(2) have an ability to support crew size of at least 6 persons;

(3) support crew exploration vehicle docking and undocking and logistics of cargo vehicles or modules launched by other heavy-lift or commercially-developed launch vehicles; and

(4) be operated at an appropriate risk level.

(b) IMPROVEMENT PLAN.—The transpor-tation plan to support ISS shall include contingency options to ensure sufficient logistics and on-orbit capabilities to support any potential hiatus between Space Shuttle availability and follow-on crew and cargo systems, and provide sufficient pre-positioning of spares and other supplies needed to accommodate any such hiatus.

(c) CERTIFICATION.—Within 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, and before making any change in the ISS assembly sequence, the Administrator shall certify in writing to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House Committee on Science on NASA’s plan to meet the requirements of subsections (a) and (b).

(d) COST LIMITATION FOR THE ISS.—Within 6 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit to the Congress information pertaining to the impact of the ISS on the implementation of full cost accounting on the development costs of the International Space Station. The Administrator shall also identify any changes to section 202 of the NASA Authorization Act of 2000 to address those impacts.

SEC. 202. RESEARCH AND SUPPORT CAPABILITIES ON INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall—

(1) within 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, provide an assessment of biomedical and life science research planned for implementation aboard the ISS that includes the identification of research which can be performed in ground-based facilities and then, if appropriate, validated in space; and

(2) ensure the capacity to support ground-based research to address those impacts.

(b) ADDITIONAL CENSUS QUESTION.—The Administration shall consult with the Director of the National Science Foundation concerning the wording of the question or questions to be added to the Survey.

SEC. 203. NATIONAL LABORATORY STATUS FOR INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In order to accomplish the purposes of this Act, and to place the United States segment of the ISS is hereby designated a national laboratory facility.

(b) NATIONAL LABORATORY FUNCTIONS.—The Administrator shall seek to use the national laboratory facility to increase the utilization of the ISS by other national and commercial users and to maximize available NASA funding for research through partnerships, cost-sharing agreements, and arrangements with non-NASA entities.

(c) IMPLEMENTATION PLAN.—Within 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science for establishment of the ISS national laboratory facilities, which, at a minimum, shall include—

(1) proposed on-orbit laboratory functions;

(2) proposed ground-based laboratory facilities;

(3) detailed laboratory management structure, concept of operations, and operational feasibility;

(4) detailed plans for integration and conduct of ground and space-based research operations;

(5) description of funding and workforce resource requirements necessary to establish and operate the laboratory;

(6) plans for accommodation of existing international partner research obligations and commitments; and

(7) detailed outline of actions and timeline necessary to implement and initiate operations of the laboratory.

(d) U.S. SEGMENT DEFINED.—In this section the term ‘‘United States Segment of the ISS’’ means those elements of the ISS manufactured by—

(1) by the United States; or

(2) for the United States by other nations in exchange for funds or launch services.

SEC. 204. COMMERCIAL SUPPORT OF INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION OPERATIONS AND UTILIZATION.

The Administrator shall purchase commercial services for support of the ISS for cargo and other needs, and for enhancement of the scientific capabilities of the ISS, to the maximum extent possible, in accordance with Federal procurement law.

SEC. 205. USE OF THE INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION AND ANNUAL REPORT.

(a) POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States—

(1) to ensure diverse and growing utilization of benefits from the ISS; and

(2) to increase commercial operations in low Earth orbit and other areas on the ISS, which are supported by national and commercial space transportation capabilities.

(b) USE OF INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION.—The Administrator shall conduct broadly focused scientific and exploration research and development activities. The Administrator shall conduct research and development activities using the ISS in a manner consistent with the provisions of this title, and advance the Nation’s exploration of the Moon and beyond, using the ISS as a test-bed and outpost for operations, engineering, and scientific research.

(c) REPORTS.—No later than March 31 of each year the Administrator shall submit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science for any purposes associated with the use of the ISS, with implementation milestones and associated results.

Congressional Record: House, 110th Congress, 2nd Session, November 18, 2005, H10975.
TITLE III—NATIONAL SPACE TRANSPORTATION POLICY

SEC. 301. UNITED STATES HUMAN-RATED LAUNCH CAPACITY ASSESSMENT.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Administrator shall, within 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, provide to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science a full description of the transportation requirements needed to support the space launch and transportation transition implementation plan required by section 136 of this Act, as well as for the ISS, including—

(1) the manner in which the capabilities of any proposed crew and launch vehicle meet the requirements of the implementation plan under section 136 of this Act; and

(2) a retention plan of skilled personnel from the legacy Shuttle program which will sustain the level of safety for that program through the final flight and transition plan that will ensure that any NASA programs can utilize the human capital resources of the Shuttle program, to the maximum extent practicable;

(3) the implications for and impact on the Nation's industrial base;

(4) the manner in which the proposed vehicles contribute to a national mixed fleet launch and flight capacity;

(5) the timing of the transition from the Space Shuttle to the workforce, the proposed vehicles, and any related infrastructure;

(6) support for ISS crew transportation, ISS utilization, and lunar exploration architecture;

(7) for any human rated vehicle, a crew escape system that has substantial protection against orbital debris strikes that offers a high level of safety;

(8) development risk areas;

(9) the schedule and cost; and

(10) the relationship between crew and cargo capabilities; and

(11) the ability to reduce risk through the use of currently qualified hardware.

SEC. 302. SPACE SHUTTLE TRANSITION.

(a) POLICY STATEMENT.—It is the policy of the United States to possess the capability for assured human access to space. The Administrator shall ensure that the United States retains that capacity on a continuous basis. The Administrator shall conduct a study to assess the feasibility of replacing the Space Shuttle orbiter to a replacement capacity in a manner that efficiently uses the personnel, capabilities, and infrastructure that are currently in place.

(b) PROGRESS REPORT.—Within 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act and annually thereafter, the Administrator shall report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science on the progress and the estimated amount of time that is required to transition to the next generation of human-rated NASA spacecraft which will demonstrate crewed, orbital spaceflight.

(c) POLICY COMPLIANCE REPORT.—If, 1 year before the final flight of the Space Shuttle orbiter, the United States has not demonstrated a replacement human space flight system, the Administrator shall certify that the United States cannot uphold the policy outlined in subsection (a) and shall provide a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science describing—

(1) United States strategic risks associated with the hiatus or gap;

(2) the length of time during which the United States will not have independent human access to space;

(3) what steps will be taken to shorten that length of time; and

(4) what other means will be used to allow human access to space during that time.

(d) TRANSPORTATION TRANSITION.—After providing the information required by section 301 to the Committees, the Administrator shall transmit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science containing a detailed and comprehensive Space Shuttle transition plan, including an assessment of the transition plan and certification, including requirements, assumptions, and milestones, in order to utilize the Space Shuttle orbiter beyond calendar year 2010.

SEC. 303. COMMERCIAL LAUNCH VEHICLES.

It is the sense of Congress that the Administrator should use current and emerging commercial launch vehicles to fulfill appropriate mission needs, including the support of low-Earth orbit and lunar exploration operations.

SEC. 304. SECONDARY PAYLOAD CAPABILITY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In order to help develop a cadre of domestic launch vehicles to provide more routine and affordable access to space, the Administrator shall provide the capabilities to support secondary payloads on United States launch vehicles, including free flyers, for satellites or scientific payloads weighing less than 500 kilograms.

(b) FEASIBILITY STUDY.—The Administrator shall conduct feasibility study for establishing a National Free Flyer Launch Center as a means of consolidating and integrating secondary launch capabilities, launch opportunities, and external孤立.

(c) ASSESSMENT.—The feasibility study included in this section shall include an assessment of the potential utilization of existing launch and launch support facilities and capabilities in the states of Montana and New Mexico and their respective contiguous states, and the state of Alaska, and shall include an assessment of the feasibility of integrating the potential National Free Flyer Launch Center within the operations and facilities of an existing non-profit organization such as the Center for Space Alliance in Missoula, Montana, or similar entity.

SEC. 305. POWER AND PROPULSION REPORTING.

The Administrator shall, within 180 days of the enactment of this Act, provide to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science, a description of plans to develop and utilize nuclear power and nuclear propulsion capabilities to achieve agency goals and any requirements that are necessary for the performance of the Vision for Space Exploration and the President's Space Transportation Policy Directive.

SEC. 306. UTILIZATION OF NASA FIELD CENTERS AND WORKFORCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In budgeting for and carrying out elements of this title, the Administrator shall make the most effective use of existing research, development, testing, and operations capabilities. The Administrator shall utilize the expertise and facilities resident within NASA field centers.

(b) RESPONSIBILITIES OF FIELD CENTERS.—The Administrator shall take appropriate action to balance responsibilities between the field centers for leading the development of systems relevant to the Vision for Space Exploration and the President's Space Transportation Policy Directive.

TITLE IV—ENABLING COMMERCIAL ACTIVITY

SEC. 401. COMMERCIALIZATION PLAN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator, in consultation with the Associate Administrators of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Director of the Office of Space Commercialization of the Department of Commerce, and any other relevant agencies, shall develop and implement a commercialization plan to support the human missions to the Moon and Mars, to support Low-Earth orbit space science mission and applications, and to transfer science research and technology to society. The plan shall identify opportunities for the private sector to participate in research and development activities, including opportunities for partnership between NASA and the private sector in the development of technologies and services, shall emphasize the utilization by NASA of advancements made by the private sector in space launch and orbital hardware, and shall include opportunities for innovative collaborations between NASA and the private sector under existing authorities of NASA for reimbursable and non-reimbursable agreements under the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2451 et seq.).

(b) REPORT.—Within 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit a copy of the report required by subsection (a) to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science.

SEC. 402. COMMERCIAL TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall execute a commercial technology transfer program with the goal of facilitating the exchange services, products, and intellectual property between NASA and the private sector. This program shall be maintained in a manner that provides benefits for the agency, the domestic economy, and research communities.

(b) PROGRAM STRUCTURE.—In carrying out the program described in paragraph (a), the Administrator shall maintain the funding and program structure of NASA's existing technology transfer and commercialization organizations through the end of fiscal year 2006.

SEC. 403. AUTHORITY FOR COMPETITIVE PRIZE PROGRAM AND DEVELOPMENT OF ADVANCED SPACE AND AERONAUTICAL TECHNOLOGIES.

(a) AUTHORITY.—Title III of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2451 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 316. PROGRAM ON COMPETITIVE AWARD OF PRIZES TO ENCOURAGE DEVELOPMENT OF ADVANCED SPACE AND AERONAUTICAL TECHNOLOGIES.

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may carry out a program to award prizes to stimulate innovation in basic and applied research, development, and prototype demonstration that have the potential for application to the performance of the space and aeronautical activities of the Administrator.

"(2) USE OF PRIZE AUTHORITY.—In carrying out the program, the Administrator shall seek to develop and support technologies that are not yet identified in section 134 of this Act or other areas that the Administrator determines to be providing impetus to NASA's overall exploration and science architecture and plans, such as providing efforts to detect and map near Earth objects and, where practicable, utilize the prize winner's technologies in fulfilling NASA's missions. The Administrator shall not conduct under the program and must include advertising to research universities."
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
H10977
November 18, 2005

"(3) COORDINATION.—The program shall be implemented in compliance with section 138 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2005.

(b) GRANTS AND GRANT AGREEMENTS.—

"(1) COMPETITIVE PROCESS.—Recipients of prizes under the program under this section shall be selected through one or more competitions conducted by the Administrator.

"(2) ADVISING.—The Administrator shall widely advise any competitions conducted under the program.

"(3) ASSUMPTION OF RISK.—

"(1) REGISTRATION.—Each potential recipient of a prize in a competition under the program under this section shall register for the competition by the date of the competition.

"(2) REGISTRATION.—In registering for a competition under paragraph (1), a potential recipient shall assume any and all risks, and waive claims against the United States Government and its related entities, for any injury, death, damage, or loss from participation in the competition, whether such injury, death, damage, or loss arises in connection with the race, except in the case of willful misconduct.

"(3) RELATED ENTITY DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term "related entity" includes a contractor at any tier, a supplier, user, customer, cooperating party, grantee, investigator, or detailed.

"(4) LIMITATIONS.—

"(1) NO LIMITATION ON CASH PRIZES.—The total amount of cash prizes awarded for award in competitions under the program under this section in any fiscal year may not exceed $50,000,000.

"(2) NO LIMITATION ON CASH PRIZES.—No competition under the program may result in the award of more than $1,000,000 in cash prizes without the approval of the Administrator or a designee of the Administrator.

"(e) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER AUTHORITY.—The Administrator may utilize the authority in this section in conjunction with or in addition to the utilization of any other authority of the Administrator to acquire, support, or stimulate basic and applied research, technology development, or prototype demonstration projects.

"(f) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Funds appropriated for the program authorized by this section shall remain available until expended."
as to enable the introduction of new systems for vehicles that can take advantage of an improved, modern air transportation system. In pursuing research and development in this area, the Administrator shall align the projects of the Airspace Systems Research Program so that they directly support the objectives of the Joint Planning and Development Office's Generation Air Transportation System Integrated Plan.

(4) AVIATION SAFETY AND SECURITY RESEARCH.—The Aviation Safety and Security Research Program shall pursue research and development activities that directly address the safety and security needs of the National Airspace System and the aircraft that fly in it.

SEC. 504. TEST FACILITIES.
(a) Prior to completion of the National Aeronautics Policy described in section 502 and transmittal of such policy pursuant to subsection (d) of that section, the Administrator may not close, suspend, or terminate contracts for the operation of major aeronautical test facilities, including wind tunnels, unless the Administrator—

(1) certifies in writing that such closure will not have an adverse impact on NASA's ability to continue its aeronautics efforts and in part achieve the goals described in that Policy; and

(2) provides notification to and receives concurrence of the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate, the House Committee on Science, and the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation 60 days in advance of such action.

SEC. 505. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.
(a) WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT.—The Administrator shall encourage the development of a skilled and diverse aeronautics research workforce using appropriate available tools such as grants, scholarships for service, and fellowships.

(b) ALIGNMENT OF PROGRAMS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, the Administrator shall align NASA's aeronautics program with priorities established by the Joint Planning and Development Office and by the National Aeronautics Policy described in section 502 of this Act.

SECOND PART Administrative Improvements

SEC. 601. EXTENSION OF INDEMNIFICATION AUTHORITY.

SEC. 602. INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY PROVISIONS.
Section 309 of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2457) is amended by inserting after subsection (f) the following:

“(g) ASSIGNMENT OF PATENT RIGHTS, ETC.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Under agreements entered into pursuant to paragraph (5) or (6) of section 233(c) of this Act (42 U.S.C. 2473(c)(5) or (6)), the Administrator may—

“(A) grant or agree to grant in advance to a participating party, patent licenses or assignment, or options thereto, in any invention made in whole or in part by an Administrator employee under the agreement; or

“(B) subject to section 209 of title 35, grant a license to an invention which is Federally owned that application was filed before the signing of the agreement, and directly within the scope of the work under the agreement, for reasonable compensation therefor.

“(2) EXCLUSIVITY.—The Administrator shall ensure, through such agreement, that the participating party has the option to choose an exclusive license for a pre-negotiated field of use for any such invention under the agreement or, if there is more than 1 participating party, that the participating parties are offered the option to hold licensing rights that collectively encompass the rights that would be held under such an exclusive license by one party.

“(3) CONDITIONS.—In consideration for the Government’s contribution under the agreement, grants under this subsection shall be subject to the following conditions:

“(A) A nonexclusive, nontransferable, irrevocable, paid-up license from the participating party to the Administration to practice the invention or have the invention practiced throughout the world by or on behalf of the Government. In the exercise of such license, the Government shall not publicly disclose trade secrets or commercial or financial information that is privileged or confidential within the meaning of section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, or which would be considered as such if it had been obtained from a non-Federal party.

“(B) If the Administrator assigns title or grants an exclusive license to an invention, the Government shall retain the right—

“(i) to require the participating party to grant to a responsible applicant a nonexclusive, partially exclusive or exclusive license to use the invention in the applicant’s licensed field of use, on terms that are reasonable under the circumstances; or “(ii) if the participating party fails to grant such a license, to grant the license itself.

“(C) The Government may exercise its right retained under paragraph (B) only in exceptional circumstances and only if the Government determines that—

“(i) the action is necessary to meet health or safety needs that are reasonably satisfied by the participating party; or

“(ii) the action is necessary to meet requirements for public use specified by Federal regulations, and such requirements are not reasonably satisfied by the participating party; or “(iii) the action is necessary to comply with an agreement containing provisions described in section 12(c)(4)(B) of the Stevenson-Wydler Technology Innovation Act of 1980 (15 U.S.C. 3710(c)(4)(B)).

“(4) APPEAL OF DETERMINATION.—A determination under paragraph (3)(C) is subject to administrative appeal and judicial review under section 203(b) of title 35, United States Code.

SEC. 603. RETROCESSION OF JURISDICTION.
Title III of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958, as amended by section 602 of this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 317. RETROCESSION OF JURISDICTION.

“Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Administrator, whenever the Administrator considers it desirable, relinquish to a State all or part of the legislative jurisdiction of the United States over lands or interests under the Administrator’s control in that State. Relinquishment of legislative jurisdiction under this section may be accomplished (1) by filing with the Governor of the State concerned a notice of relinquishment to take effect upon acceptance thereof, or (2) as the laws of the State may otherwise provide.’’

SEC. 604. RECOVERY AND DISPOSITION AUTHORITY.
Title III of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958, as amended by section 603 of this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 318. RECOVERY AND DISPOSITION AUTHORITY.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) CONTROL OF REMAINS.—Subject to paragraph (2), when there is an accident or mishap resulting in the death of a crewmember of a NASA human space flight vehicle, the Administrator shall take control over the remains of the crewmember and order autopsies and other scientific or medical tests.

“(2) TREATMENT.—Each crewmember shall provide the Administrator with his or her preferences regarding the treatment accorded to his or her remains and the Administrator shall, to the extent possible, respect those stated preferences.

“(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

“(1) CREWMEMBER.—The term ‘crewmember’ means an astronaut or other person assigned to a NASA human space flight vehicle.

“(2) NASA HUMAN SPACE FLIGHT VEHICLE.—The term ‘NASA human space flight vehicle’ means a space vehicle, as defined in section 308(f)(1), that—

“(A) is intended to transport 1 or more persons;

“(B) designed to operate in outer space; and

“(C) is either owned by NASA, or owned by a NASA contractor or cooperating party and operated under the control of the NASA mission or a joint mission with NASA.”.

SEC. 605. REQUIREMENT FOR INDEPENDENT COST ANALYSIS.
Section 301 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 2459b) is amended—

(1) by striking “Phase B” in subsection (a) and inserting “implementation”;

(2) by striking “Chief Financial Officer” each place it appears in subsection (a) and inserting “Administrator”; and

(3) by inserting “and consider” in subsection (a) after “shall conduct”; and by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

”SEC. 319. ELECTRONIC ACCESS TO BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.
Title III of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958, as amended by section 604 of this Act, is further amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 319. ELECTRONIC ACCESS TO BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may implement a pilot program providing for reduction in the waiting period between publication of notice of a proposed contract announcement and release of procurement conducted by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

“(b) APPLICABILITY.—The program implemented under subsection (a) shall apply to non-commercial acquisitions—

“(1) with a total value in excess of $100,000 but not more than $5,000,000, including options;

“(2) that do not involve bundling of contract requirements as defined in section 3(o) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632(o)); and

“(3) for which a notice is required by section 8(e) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637(e)) and section 18(a) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 416(a)).

“(c) NOTICE.—
“(1) Notice of acquisitions subject to the program authorized by this section shall be made accessible through the single Government-wide point of entry designated in the Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement, consistent with section 30(c)(4) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 416(c)(4)).

“(2) Providing access to notice in accordance with subsection (a) satisfies the publication requirements of section 8(e) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637(e)(3)(A)) and section 18(a)(3)(A) of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S.C. 416(a)).

“(d) Solicitation.—Solicitations subject to the program authorized by this section shall be made accessible through the Government-wide point of entry consistent with requirements set forth in the Federal Acquisition Regulation, except for adjustments to the wait periods as provided in subsection (e).

“(e) Wait Period.—

“(f) Implementation.—

“(1) Nothing in this section shall be construed as modifying regulatory requirements set forth in the Federal Acquisition Regulation, except with respect to—

“(A) the applicable wait period between publication of notice of a proposed contract action and release of the solicitation; and

“(B) the deadline for submission of bids or proposals for procurements conducted in accordance with the terms of this pilot program.

“(2) This section shall not apply to the extent the President determines it is inconsistent with any international agreement to which the United States is a party.

“(g) Study.—Within 18 months after the effective date of the program, NASA, in coordination with the Small Business Administration, the General Services Administration, and the Office of Management and Budget, shall evaluate the impact of the pilot program and submit to Congress a report on—

“(1) sets forth in detail the results of the test, including the impact on competition and small business participation; and

“(2) over the period of the pilot program should be made permanent, continued as a test program, or allowed to expire.

“(h) Regulations.—The Administrator shall publish proposed revisions to the NASA Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement necessary to implement this section in the Federal Register not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2005. The Administrator shall—

“(1) make the proposed regulations available for public comment for a period of not less than 60 days; and

“(2) grant the deadline for the submission of bids or proposals for procurements conducted in the Federal Register not later than 240 days after the date of enactment of that Act.

“(i) Effective Date.—

“(1) In compliance with the pilot program authorized by this section shall take effect on the date specified in the final regulations promulgated pursuant to subsection (h)(2).

“(2) The Administrator shall establish a point of contact at NASA to ensure that the wait periods as provided in subsection (d) simultaneously with the issuance of the notice is accessible electronically in accordance with the terms of this pilot program.

“SEC. 607. REPORTS ELIMINATION.

“(1) Section 201 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 2451 note).”

“(b) Amendment.—

“(1) Section 315 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Authorization Act of 1908 (42 U.S.C. 2459h) is amended by striking subsections (a) and redesignating subsection (b) through (f) as subsections (a) through (e).

“(2) Section 313(a) of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1993 (42 U.S.C. 2487a(c)) is amended by striking subsection (c) and redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (c).

“(3) Section 323 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2000 is amended by striking subsection (a).”

“SEC. 608. SMALL BUSINESS CONTRACTING.

“(a) Plan.—In coordination with the Small Business Administration, the Administrator shall develop a plan to maximize the number and amount of contracts awarded to small business concerns in an amount given that term in section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632) and to meet established contracting goals for such concerns.

“(b) Priority.—The Administrator shall establish, as a priority, meeting the contracting goals developed in conjunction with the Small Business Administration to maximize the number of prime contracts thus awarded in dollars, in each fiscal year by NASA to small business concerns within the meaning given that term in section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632).”

“SEC. 609. GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABILITY OFFICE REVIEW AND REPORT.

“(a) Review.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a review of NASA’s policies, processes, and procedures in the planning and management of applications research and development implemented in calendar years 2001 to 2005 within the Applied Sciences Directorate and former Earth Science Applications Program. A formal and transparent process that instills public and stakeholder confidence in NASA’s sponsored applications research and development programs is important and the process by which this program defines requirements, scopes programs, selects peer reviewers, manages the research competition, and selects proposals is of concern. The review shall include—

“(1) the program planning and analysis process used to formulate applied science research and development program requirements, priorities, and solicitation schedules, including changes to the process within the period under review, and the effects of such changes on the quality and clarity of applied sciences research announcements;

“(2) the peer review process including—

“(A) membership selection, determination of expertise, and use of NASA and non-NASA reviewers;

“(B) management of conflicts of interest, including reviewers funded by the program with a significant consulting or contractual relationship with NASA, and individuals who both review proposals and participate in the submission of proposals under the same solicitation announcement;

“(C) compensation of non-NASA proposal reviewers;

“(3) the process for assigning or allocating applications research to NASA researchers and to non-NASA researchers; and

“(4) alternative models for NASA planning and management of applied science and applications research, including an evaluation of—

“(A) the National Institutes of Health’s intramural and extramural research program structure, peer review process, management of conflicts of interests, compensation of reviewers, and the effects of compensation on reviewer efficiency and quality;

“(B) the Department of Agriculture’s research programs and structure, peer review process, management of conflicts of interest, compensation of reviewers, and the effects of compensation on reviewer efficiency and quality; and

“(C) the ‘best practices’ of both in the planning, selection, and management of applied sciences research and development.

“(b) Report.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit a report to the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science describing the results conducted under subsection (a), including recommendations for NASA best practices.

“(c) Implementation.—Not later than 90 days after receipt of the report required under subsection (a), the Chief Financial Officer shall provide the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House of Representatives Committee on Science a plan describing the implementation of those recommendations.”

“MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BOEHLELT

Mr. BOEHLELT. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

Mr. Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BOEHLELT of New York moves to strike all after the enacting clause of S. 1281 and insert in lieu thereof the text of H.R. 3070 as passed by the House, as follows:

S. 1281.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.
The Congress finds the following:
(1) The United States should honor its international commitments to the United Nations and the International Space Station.
(2) The United States should continue to support robust programs in space science, aeronautics, and earth science as it moves forward with plans to send Americans to the Moon, Mars, and beyond.
(3) The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's programs can advance the Sun-Earth connection through the development and operation of research satellites and other means.
(4) The National Aeronautics and Space Administration should continue to support robust programs in space science, aeronautics, and earth science as it moves forward with plans to send Americans to the Moon, Mars, and beyond.
(5) The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's programs can advance the Sun-Earth connection through the development and operation of research satellites and other means.
(6) The United States should honor its international commitments to the International Space Station.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.
The term ‘‘NASA’’ means the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

TITLE I—GENERAL PRINCIPLES AND REPORTS

Sec. 101. Responsibilities, policies, and plans.
(1) PROGRAMS.—The Administrator shall ensure that NASA carries out a balanced set of programs that shall include, at a minimum, programs in:
(A) human space flight, in accordance with subsection (b);
(B) aeronautics research and development, and
(C) scientific research, which shall include, at a minimum—
(i) scientific missions to study planets, and to deepen understanding of astronomy, astrophysics, and other areas of science that can be productively studied from space;
(ii) earth science research and research on the Sun-Earth connection through the development and operation of research satellites and other means.
(iii) support of university research in space science, earth science and microgravity science.
(iv) research on microgravity, including research that is not directly related to human exploration.
(2) CONSULTATION AND COORDINATION.—In carrying out the programs of NASA, the Administrator shall—
(A) consult and coordinate to the extent appropriate with other relevant Federal agencies, including through the National Space and Technology Council;
(B) work closely with the private sector, including by—
(i) encouraging the work of entrepreneurs who are seeking to develop means to launch satellites, crew, or cargo;
(ii) contracting with the private sector for crew and cargo services to the extent practicable, and
(iii) using commercially available products (including software) and services to the extent practicable to support all NASA activities; and
(C) involve other nations to the extent appropriate.
(b) VISION FOR SPACE EXPLORATION.—The Administrator shall manage human space flight programs to strive to achieve the following goals:
(1) Returning Americans to the Moon no later than 2010.
(2) Launching the Crew Exploration Vehicle as close to 2010 as possible.
(3) Increasing knowledge of the impacts of long-duration stays in space on the human body using the most appropriate facilities available.
(4) Enabling humans to land on and return from Mars and other destinations on a timetable that is technically and fiscally possible.

(c) AERONAUTICS.—

(1) In general.—The President of the United States, through the Administrator, in consultation with other Federal agencies, shall develop a national aeronautics policy to guide the aeronautics programs of NASA through 2020.

(2) Content.—At a minimum, the national aeronautics policy shall describe for NASA—

(A) the priority areas of research for aeronautics through fiscal year 2011;

(B) the budget and the process by which priorities for ensuing fiscal years will be selected;

(C) the facilities and personnel needed to carry out the aeronautics program through fiscal year 2011; and

(D) the budget assumptions on which the national aeronautics policy is based, which for fiscal years 2006 and 2007 shall be the authorized level for aeronautics provided in title II of this Act.

(3) Considerations.—In developing the national aeronautics policy, the President shall consider the following issues, which shall be discussed in the transmittal under paragraph (6):

(A) The most important scientific questions in space science and earth science.

(B) The relationship between NASA’s space and earth science and activities and those of other Federal agencies.

(C) The budget assumptions on which the national aeronautics policy is based, which for fiscal years 2006 and 2007 shall be the authorized level for aeronautics provided in title II of this Act.

(d) SCIENCE.

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall develop a human capital strategy to ensure that NASA has a workforce of the appropriate size and with the appropriate skills to carry out the policy consistent with the policies and plans developed pursuant to this section. The strategy shall cover the period through fiscal year 2011.

(2) CONTENT.—The strategy shall describe, at a minimum—

(A) any categories of employees NASA intends to reduce, the expected size and timing of those reductions, and any expected additional research, and the expected dates for doing so;

(B) any facilities NASA intends to significantly modify, and the expected dates for doing so;

(C) any facilities NASA intends to close, and the expected dates for doing so;

(D) any transaction NASA intends to conduct to sell, lease, or otherwise transfer the ownership of a facility, and the expected dates for doing so;

(E) how each of the actions described in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D) will enhance the ability of NASA to carry out its programs;

(F) the expected costs or savings expected from each of the actions described in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

(G) the priority order of the actions described in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D); and

(H) the budget assumptions of the plan, which for fiscal years 2006 and 2007 shall be consistent with the authorizations provided in title II of this Act; and

(I) how facilities were evaluated in developing the plan.

(3) SCHEDULE.—The Administrator shall transmit the plan developed under this subsection to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate not later than the date on which the President submits the proposed budget for the Federal Government for fiscal year 2008 to the Congress.

(f) WORKFORCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall develop a human capital strategy to ensure that NASA has a workforce of the appropriate size and with the appropriate skills to carry out the policy consistent with the policies and plans developed pursuant to this section. The strategy shall cover the period through fiscal year 2011.

(2) CONTENT.—The strategy shall describe, at a minimum—

(A) any categories of employees NASA intends to reduce, the expected size and timing of those reductions, and any expected additional research, and the expected dates for doing so;

(B) any facilities NASA intends to significantly modify, and the expected dates for doing so;

(C) any facilities NASA intends to close, and the expected dates for doing so;

(D) any transaction NASA intends to conduct to sell, lease, or otherwise transfer the ownership of a facility, and the expected dates for doing so;

(E) how each of the actions described in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D) will enhance the ability of NASA to carry out its programs;

(F) the expected costs or savings expected from each of the actions described in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D);

(G) the priority order of the actions described in subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (D); and

(H) the budget assumptions of the plan, which for fiscal years 2006 and 2007 shall be consistent with the authorizations provided in title II of this Act; and

(I) how facilities were evaluated in developing the plan.
H10982

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

November 18, 2005

(b) BUDGETS.—The proposed budget for NASA submitted by the President for each fiscal year shall be accompanied by documents showing—

(1) a Cost estimate for each element of the human space flight program;
(2) the budget for aeronautics;
(3) the budget for space science;
(4) the budget for earth science;
(5) the budget for microgravity science;
(6) the budget for education;
(7) the budget for technology transfer programs;
(8) the budget for the Integrated Financial Management Program, by individual element;
(9) the budget for the Independent Technical Authority, both total and by center;
(10) the budget for public relations, by program;
(11) the comparable figures for at least the 2 previous fiscal years for each item in the proposed budget;
(12) the amount of unobligated funds and unexpended funds, by appropriations account—

(A) that remained at the end of the fiscal year prior to the fiscal year in which the budget was being presented; and
(B) that are estimated will remain at the end of the fiscal year in which the budget is being presented; and
(C) that are estimated will remain at the end of the fiscal year for which the budget is being presented; and
(13) the budget for safety, by program.

(i) GENERAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—NASA shall make available, upon request from the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives or the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, information on Corporation and Center General and Administrative Costs and Service Pool costs, including—

(1) the total amount of funds being allocated for those purposes for any fiscal year for which the President has submitted an annual budget to the Congress;
(2) the amount of funds being allocated for those purposes, for each center, for headquarters, and for each directorate; and
(3) the major activities included in each cost category.
(ii) NASA TEST FACILITIES.—The Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy shall commission an independent review of the Nation’s long-term strategic needs for test facilities and shall submit the review to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate. The review shall include an evaluation of the facility needs described pursuant to subsection (c)(2)(C).

(ii) LIMITATION.—The Administrator shall not close or mothball any aeronautical test facilities identified in the 2003 independent assessment by the RAND Corporation, entitled “Wind Tunnel and Propulsion Test Facilities: An Assessment of NASA’s Capabilities to Serve National Needs” as being part of the minimum set of those facilities necessary to retain and manage to serve national needs as any other non-aeronautical NASA test facilities that were in use as of January 1, 2004, until the review conducted under paragraph (1) has been transmitted to the Congress.

SEC. 102. REPORTS.

(a) IMMEDIATE ISSUES.—Not later than September 30, 2005, the Administrator shall transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate a report on each of the following items:

(1) The research agenda for the ISS and its proposed final configuration.
(2) The number of flights the Space Shuttle will make before its retirement, the purpose of those flights, and the expected date of the final flight.
(3) A description of the means, other than the Space Shuttle, the Administrator plans to use to ferry crew and cargo to and from the ISS.
(4) A plan for the operation of the ISS in the event that the Iran Nonproliferation Act of 2000 is not extended.
(5) A description of the launch vehicle for the Crew Exploration Vehicle.
(6) A description of any heavy lift vehicle NASA intends to develop, the intended uses of that vehicle, and whether the decision to develop that vehicle has undergone an interagency review.
(7) A description of the intended purpose of lunar missions and the architecture for those missions.
(8) The program goals for Project Prometheus.
(9) A plan for managing the cost increase for the James Webb Space Telescope.
(10) A CREW EXPLORATION VEHICLE.—The Administrator shall transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate a report on each of the following:

(A) the expected cost of the Crew Exploration Vehicle through fiscal year 2020, based on the specifications for that development contract;
(B) the expected budgets for each fiscal year through fiscal year 2040 for human space flight, aeronautics, space science, and earth science;
(C) first assuming inflationary growth for the budget of NASA as a whole and including costs for the Crew Exploration Vehicle as projected under paragraph (1); and
(D) then assuming inflationary growth for the budget of NASA as a whole and including at least two cost estimates for the Crew Exploration Vehicle that are higher than those projections (1), based on NASA’s past experience with cost increases for similar programs, along with a description of the reasons for selecting the cost estimates used for the calculations under this subparagraph and the probability that the cost of the Crew Exploration Vehicle will reach those estimated amounts; and
(3) the extent to which the Crew Exploration Vehicle will allow for the escape of the crew in the event of an emergency.

(c) SPACE COMMUNICATIONS STUDY.—(1) STUDY.—The Administrator shall develop a plan for updating NASA’s space communications architecture for both low-Earth orbital operations and deep space exploration so that it is capable of meeting NASA’s needs over the next 20 years. The plan shall also include life-cycle cost estimates, milestones, estimated performance capabilities, and 5-year funding profiles. The plan shall also include an estimate of the amounts of any reimbursements NASA is likely to receive from other Federal agencies during the expected lifetime of the upgrades described in the plan. The plan shall include a description of the following:

(A) Projected Deep Space Network requirements for the Crew Exploration Vehicle, including those in support of human space exploration missions.
(B) Upgrades needed to support Deep Space Network requirements.
(C) Cost estimates for the maintenance of existing Deep Space Network capabilities.

(2) CONSULTATIONS.—The Administrator shall consult with other relevant Federal agencies in developing the plan under this subsection.

(d) REPORT.—The Administrator shall transmit the plan under this subsection to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate not later than February 17, 2007.

(e) PUBLIC RELATIONS.—Not later than December 31, 2005, the Administrator shall transmit a plan to the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives, and to the Committee on Appropriations and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, describing the activities that will be undertaken as part of the national awareness campaign required by the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives accompanying the Science, State, Justice, Commerce, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 2006, and the expected cost of those activities. NASA may undertake activities as part of the national awareness campaign prior to the transmission required by this subsection, but not until 15 days after notifying the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate of any activity. The plan required by this subsection shall include the estimated costs of any activities undertaken pursuant to notice under the preceding sentence.

(f) JOINT DARK ENERGY MISSION.—The Administrator and the Director of the Department of Energy Office of Science shall jointly transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, not later than the date the President submits the proposed budget for the Federal Government for fiscal year 2007, a report on plans for a Joint Dark Energy Mission. The report shall include the amount of funds each agency intends to expend on the Joint Dark Energy Mission for each of the fiscal years 2007 through 2011, and any specific milestones during the development and launch of the Mission.

(g) SHUTTLE EMPLOYEE TRANSITION.—The Administrator shall consult with other appropriate Federal agencies and with NASA contractors and employees to develop a transition plan for Federal and contractor personnel engaged in the Space Shuttle program. The plan shall include actions to assist Federal and contractor personnel to take advantage of training, retraining, job placement, and relocation programs, and any other actions that NASA will take to assist employees. The plan shall describe how the Administrator will ensure that NASA and its contractors will have an appropriate complement of employees to allow for the safest possible use of the Space Shuttle through its final flight. The Administrator shall transmit the plan to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate not later than February 1, 2006.

(h) OFFICE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY POLICY.—The Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy shall conduct a study to determine—
November 18, 2005

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

H10983

(A) if any research and development programs of NASA are unnecessarily duplicating aspects of programs of other Federal agencies, and

(b) if the research and development programs of NASA are neglecting any topics of national interest that are related to the mission of NASA.

(2) BASELINE REPORT.—The first Major Program Annual Report for each major program shall include--

(a) the purposes of the program and key technical characteristics necessary to fulfill those purposes;

(b) an estimate of the life-cycle cost for the program, with a detailed breakout of the development cost, program reserves, and an estimate of all other costs until the development is completed;

(c) the schedule for the development, including key events;

(d) the plan for mitigating technical, schedule, and cost risks prepared in accordance with subsection (a)(1)(A); and

(E) the name of the person responsible for making notifications under subsection (c), who shall be an individual whose primary responsibility is overseeing the program.

(c) NOTIFICATION.—

(1) REQUIREMENT.—The individual identified under subsection (b)(2)(D) shall immediately notify the Administrator any time that individual has reasonable cause to believe that, for the major program for which he or she is responsible—

(A) the development cost of the program is likely to exceed the estimate provided in the Baseline Report of the program by 15 percent or more; or

(B) a milestone of the program is likely to be delayed by 6 months or more from the date provided for it in the Baseline Report of the program.

(2) REASONS.—Not later than 7 days after the notification required under paragraph (1), the individual identified under subsection (b)(2)(D) shall transmit to the Administrator a written notification explaining the reasons for the change in the cost or milestone of the program for which notification was provided under paragraph (1).

(3) NOTIFICATION OF CONGRESS.—Not later than 5 days after a notification is received under paragraph (2), the Administrator shall transmit the notification to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate.

(d) FIFTEEN PERCENT THRESHOLD.—Not later than 30 days after receiving a written notification under subsection (c)(2), the Administrator shall determine whether the development cost of the program is likely to exceed the estimate provided in the Baseline Report of the program by 15 percent or more, or whether a milestone is likely to be delayed by 6 months or more. If the determination is affirmative, the Administrator shall—

(1) transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, not later than 14 days after making the determination, a report that includes—

(A) a description of the increase in cost or delay in schedule and a detailed explanation for the increase or delay;

(B) a description of actions taken or proposed to be taken in response to the cost increase or delay; and

(C) a description of any impacts the cost increase or schedule delay will have on any other programs within NASA; and

(2) if the Administrator intends to continue with the program, promptly initiate an analysis of the program, which shall include, at a minimum—

(A) the projected cost and schedule for completing the program if current requirements of the program are not modified;

(B) the projected cost and the schedule for completing the program after instituting the actions described under paragraph (1)(B); and

(C) a description of any impacts the cost and schedule for, a broad range of alternatives to the program.

NASA shall complete an analysis initiated under subsection (f) no later than 90 days after the date the Administrator makes a determination under this subsection. The Administrator shall transmit the analysis to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate not later than 30 days after its completion.

(e) THIRTY PERCENT THRESHOLD.—If the Administrator determines under subsection (d) that the development cost of a program will exceed the estimate provided in the Baseline Report of the program by more than the lower of 30 percent or $1,000,000,000, then, beginning 18 months after the date the Administrator transmits a report under subsection (d), the Administrator shall not expend any additional funds on the program, other than termination costs, unless the Congress has subsequently authorized continuation of the program enacted subsequent to a report being transmitted as considered an authorization for purposes of this subsection. If the Congress has not subsequently authorized continuation of the program, the Administrator shall submit a new Baseline Report for the program no later than 90 days after the date of enactment of the Act under which Congress has previously authorized continuation of the program.

(f) DEFINITIONS.—For the purposes of this section—

(1) the term “development” means the phase of a program following the formulation phase and beginning with the approval to proceed to implementation, as defined in NASA’s Procedural Requirements 7120.5c, dated March 22, 2005;

(2) the term “development cost” means the total of all costs, including construction of facilities and civil servant costs, from the period beginning with the approval to proceed to implementation through the achievement of operational readiness without regard to funding source or management control, for the life of the program;

(3) the term “life-cycle cost” means the total of the direct, indirect, recurring, and nonrecurring costs, including the construction of facilities and civil servant costs, and other related expenses incurred or estimated to be incurred in the design, development, verification, production, operation, maintenance, support, and retirement of a program over its planned lifespan, without regard to funding source or management control; and

(4) the term “major program” means an activity approved to proceed to implementation that has an estimated life-cycle cost of more than $150,000,000.

SEC. 104. PRIZE AUTHORITY.

The National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2451, et seq.) is amended by--

PRIZE AUTHORITY

“SEC. 314. (a) IN GENERAL.—The Administration may carry out a program to competitively award cash prizes to stimulate innovation in basic and applied research, technology development, and prototype demonstration that have the potential for application to the performance of space and aeronautical activities of the Administration. The Administration may carry out a program to award prizes only in conformity with this section.

"(b) Topics.—In selecting topics for prize competitions, the Administrator shall consult with the space and aeronautical communities, and submit their comments to the Administrator prior to selection. Comments shall be considered in selecting topics for prize competitions, and the Administrator shall notify all interested parties of the decision to award prizes.

"(c) Advertisements.—The Administrator shall widely advertise prize competitions to encourage participation.

"(d) Requirements and Registration.—For each prize competition, the Administrator shall publish a notice in the Federal Register announcing the subject of the competition, the rules governing eligibility and participation, the amount of the prize, and the date by which a winner will be selected.

"(e) Eligibility.—To be eligible to win a prize under this section, an individual or entity—

"(1) shall have registered to participate in the competition pursuant to any rules promulgated by the Administrator under subsection (d);

"(2) shall have submitted a proposal and not been selected as a winner of any prior prize competition under this section; and

"(3) shall have paid any required fees or taxes.

"(f) Liability.—Participants must agree to indemnify the Federal Government from claims by third parties arising from or related to competition activities.

"(g) Judges.—For each competition, the Administrator shall select a panel of qualified judges to select the winner or winners of the prize competition. The panel shall be composed of technical experts in relevant fields.

"(h) Administration of the Competition.—The Administrator may enter into an agreement with a private, nonprofit entity to administer the prize competition, subject to the provisions of this section.

"(1) Funding.—(i) The Administrator may accept contributions from agencies and institutions in the United States and abroad. Contributions shall be used to fund the prize competition.

"(ii) The Administrator may enter into an agreement with a Federal agency or a foreign governmental entity to sponsor the prize competition, subject to the provisions of this section.

"(2) Notwithstanding any provision of law, funds appropriated for prize awards under this section shall remain available until expended, and may be transferred, reprogrammed, or expended for other purposes only after the expiration of 60 fiscal years after the fiscal year for which the funds were originally appropriated.

"(3) The Administrator may offer a prize in an amount greater than $100,000,000 unless 30 days after written notice has been provided to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the Congress and the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology of the Congress, the Administrator shall not have entered into an agreement to award a prize under this section.

"(4) No prize competition under this section may offer a prize in an amount greater than $100,000,000 unless 30 days after written notice has been provided to the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the Congress and the Committee on Science, Space, and Technology of the Congress.

"(i) Use of NASA Name and Insignia.—A registered participant in a competition under this section may use the Administration's name, initials, or insignia only after prior review and written approval by the Administrator.

"(j) Compliance with existing law.—The Federal Government shall not, by virtue of offering or providing a prize under this section, be responsible for compliance by registered participants in a prize competition with Federal law, including licensing, export control, and regulation enforcement laws and regulations.

"(k) Annual report.—The Panel shall submit an annual report to the Administrator and to the Congress. The annual report shall include an evaluation of the Administration's compliance with the recommendations of the Columbia Accident Investigation Board.

SEC. 107. LESSONS LEARNED AND BEST PRACTICES.

"(a) In General.—The Administrator shall transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate an implementation plan describing NASA's approach for obtaining, implementing, and sharing lessons and best practices for its major programs and projects not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act. The implementation plan shall be updated and maintained to ensure that it is current and consistent with the burgeoning culture of learning and safety that is emerging at NASA.

"(b) Required Content.—The implementation plan shall contain a minimum of the lessons learned and best practices requirements for NASA, the organizations or positions that are responsible for enforcement of the requirements, the reporting structure, and the objective performance measures indicating the effectiveness of the activity.

"(c) Incentives.—The Administrator shall provide incentives to encourage sharing and implementation of lessons learned and best practices by employees, projects, and programs, as well as penalties for programs and projects that are not shown to have demonstrated use of those resources.

SEC. 108. COMMERCIALIZATION PLAN.

"(a) In General.—The Administrator, in consultation with other relevant agencies, shall develop a commercialization plan to support the human missions to the Moon and Mars, to support Low-Earth Orbit activities and Earth science missions and applications, and to transfer science research and technology to society.

"(b) Implementation Plan.—The implementation plan shall be submitted after the date of enactment of this Act, including the space transportation policy and the technology development, to proactively translate results of space exploration to Earth benefits, to advance United States economic interests, and to support the vision for exploration.

"(c) Report.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit a copy of the plan to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate.
SEC. 109. STUDY ON THE FEASIBILITY OF USE OF GROUND SOURCE HEAT PUMPS.
(a) In General.—The Administrator shall conduct a study on the use of ground source heat pumps in future NASA facilities or substantial renovation of existing NASA facilities involving the installation of heating, cooling, and water heating or ventilating and air conditioning systems. Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall transmit the study to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate.
(b) Contents.—The study shall examine—
(1) the life-cycle costs, including maintenance costs, of the operation of such heat pumps compared to generally available heating, cooling, and water heating equipment;
(2) barriers to installation, such as availability and suitability of terrain; and
(3) such other issues as the Administrator considers appropriate.
(c) Definition.—In this section, the term “ground source heat pump” means an electric-powered system that uses the Earth’s relatively constant temperature to provide heating, cooling, or hot water.

SEC. 110. SPACE SHUTTLE RETURN TO FLIGHT.
It is the sense of Congress that, in keeping with the President’s Vision for Space Exploration, the Space Shuttle should return to flight as soon as the Administrator determines that a flight can be accomplished with an acceptable level of risk to health or safety.

SEC. 111. WHISTLEBLOWER PROTECTION.
Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall transmit to the Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation of the Senate a plan describing steps to be taken for NASA to protect employees of NASA who raise or have raised concerns about a potentially catastrophic risk to health or safety.

TITLE II—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 201. STRUCTURE OF BUDGETARY ACCOUNTS.
Section 313 of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2456g) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 313. BUDGETARY ACCOUNTS. — Appropriations for the Administration for fiscal years after fiscal year 2005 shall be made in four accounts, ‘Science, Aeronautics, and Education’, ‘Exploration Systems’, ‘Space Operations’, and an account for amounts appropriated for the Office of the Inspector General. Appropriations shall remain available for two fiscal years, unless otherwise specified in law. Each account shall include the planned full costs of Administration activities.”

There are authorized to be appropriated to NASA for fiscal year 2006 $16,965,650,000, as follows:

(1) For Science, Aeronautics and Education (including amounts for construction of facilities), $7,331,600,000 of which—
(A) $980,000,000 shall be for Aeronautics; and
(B) $24,000,000 shall be for the National Space Grant College and Fellowship Program;
(2) For Exploration Systems (including amounts for construction of facilities), $4,514,000,000;
(3) For Space Operations (including amounts for construction of facilities), $5,847,700,000;
(4) For the Office of Inspector General, $31,500,000.

There are authorized to be appropriated to NASA for fiscal year 2007 $17,726,800,000, as follows:

(1) For Science, Aeronautics and Education (including amounts for construction of facilities), $7,331,600,000 of which—
(A) $980,000,000 shall be for Aeronautics; and
(B) $24,000,000 shall be for the National Space Grant College and Fellowship Program;
(2) For Exploration Systems (including amounts for construction of facilities), $4,154,000,000;
(3) For Space Operations (including amounts for construction of facilities), $5,487,700,000;
(4) For the Office of Inspector General, $31,500,000.

SEC. 204. ISS RESEARCH.
The Administrator shall allocate at least 15 percent of the funds budgeted for ISS research that is not directly related to supporting the human exploration program.

SEC. 205. TEST FACILITIES.
(a) Charges.—The Administrator shall establish a fund to recover the full costs of the operation of those facilities from the users. The Administrator shall not impose charges for the full cost recovery for a facility until at least 30 days after transmitting a notice to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate.
(b) Funding Account.—The Administrator shall establish a funding account that shall be used for all test facilities. The account shall be sufficient to maintain the viability of test facilities during periods of low utilization.

SEC. 206. PROPORATIONALITY.
If the total amount appropriated for NASA pursuant to section 202 or 203 is less than the amount authorized under such section, the amounts authorized under each of the accounts specified in such section shall be reduced proportionately.

SEC. 207. LIMITATIONS ON AUTHORITY.
Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, no amount appropriated pursuant to the provisions of this Act in excess of the amount actually authorized for the particular program by section 202 or 203, unless a period of 30 days has passed after the receipt, by the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, of notice given by the Administrator containing a full and complete statement of the action proposed to be taken and the facts and circumstances relied upon in support of such action. NASA shall keep the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate fully and currently informed with respect to all activities and responsibilities within the jurisdiction of those Committees.

SEC. 208. NOTICE OF REPROGRAMMING.
If any funds appropriated by this Act are subject to a reprogramming action that requires notice to be provided to the Appropriations Committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate, such action shall be concurrently provided to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate.

SEC. 209. COST OVERRUNS.
When reprogramming funds to cover unanticipated cost growth within a program, the Administrator shall, to the maximum extent practicable, protect funds intended for fundamental and applied Research and Analysis.

SEC. 210. OFFICIAL REPRESENTATIONAL FUND.
Funds appropriated on or after the date of enactment of this Act may be used, but not to exceed a total of $35,000 in any fiscal year, for official reception and representation expenses.

SEC. 211. INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION COST CAP.
Section 202 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 2451) is amended as follows:

Title III—Science

Subtitle A—General Provisions

SEC. 301. PERFORMANCE ASSESSMENTS.
(a) In General.—Performance of each discipline in the Science account of NASA shall be reviewed and assessed by the National Academy of Sciences at 5-year intervals.
(b) Timing.—Beginning with the first fiscal year following the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall transmit a report to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate—
(1) setting forth in detail the results of any external review under subsection (a); and
(2) setting forth in detail actions taken by NASA in response to any external review;
and
(3) including a summary of findings and recommendations from any other relevant external reviews of NASA’s science mission priorities and programs.

SEC. 302. STATUS REPORT ON HUBBLE SPACE TELESCOPE.
It is the sense of the Congress that the Hubble Space Telescope is an extraordinary instrument that has provided, and should continue to provide, answers to profound scientific questions. In accordance with the recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences study titled “Assessment of Options for the Future of the Hubble Space Telescope”, all appropriate efforts should be expended to complete the Space Shuttle servicing mission. Upon successful completion of the planned return-to-flight schedule of the Space Shuttle, the Administrator shall determine the schedule for a Space Shuttle servicing mission to the Hubble Space Telescope such a mission would compromise astronaut safety. Not later than 60 days after the landing of the second Space Shuttle mission for return-to-flight certification, the Administrator shall transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate a status report for a Hubble Space Telescope servicing mission.

SEC. 303. INDEPENDENT ASSESSMENT OF LANDSAT-NPOESS INTEGRATED MISSION.
(a) Assessment.—In view of the importance of ensuring continuity of Landsat data and in view of the challenges facing the National Polar-Orbiting Operational Environmental Satellite System program, the Administrator shall seek an independent assessment of the costs as well as the technical, cost, and schedule risks associated with incorporating the Landsat instrument on the first National Polar-Orbiting Environmental Satellite System (NPOESS) to be developed and built by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). The assessment shall also include an evaluation of the budgetary requirements of each of the options under consideration.

(b) The Administrator shall submit the independent assessment to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, and to the appropriate subcommittee on Space, Seagrant, and Competitiveness of both Committees, not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 302. ASSESSMENT OF SCIENCE MISSION EXTENSIONS.

(a) ASSESSMENT.—The Administrator shall carry out annual termination reviews within each of the Science disciplines to assess the cost and benefits of extending the date of the termination of data collection for those missions which are beyond their primary goals. In addition:

(1) Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall prepare a joint assessment of the following missions: FAST, TIMED, Cluster, Wind, Geotail, Polar, TRACE, Ulysses, and Voyager.

(2) For those missions that have an operational component, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration shall be consulted and the potential benefits of instruments on missions which are beyond their primary goals taken into account.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than 30 days after completing the assessment required by subsection (a), the Administrator shall transmit a report on the assessment to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate.

SEC. 303. MICROGREYWATER RESEARCH.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall:

(1) not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, provide to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate an assessment of microgreywater research planned for implementation aboard the ISS that is beyond the primary goals taken into account.

(2) ensure the capacity to support ground-based research leading to space-based basic and applied scientific research in a variety of disciplines with potential direct national benefits and applications that can advance significantly from the uniqueness of microgravity and the space environment; and

(c) carry out, to the maximum extent practicable, basic, applied, and commercial ISS research activities such as molecular crystal growth, geophysical research, basic fluid physics, combustion research, cellular biology, low temperature physics, and cellular research at a level which will sustain the existing scientific expertise and research capabilities.

(b) ON-ORBIT CAPABILITIES.—The Administrator shall carry out the on-orbit analytical capabilities of the ISS sufficient to support any diagnostic human research and on-orbit characterization of molecular crystal growth. The assessment shall include research and other research that NASA believes is necessary to conduct, but for which NASA lacks the capacity to return the materials that need to be analyzed.

(c) ASSESSMENT OF POTENTIAL SCIENTIFIC USERS.—The Administrator shall assess further potential scientific uses of the ISS for other applications, such as technology development, development of manufacturing processes, Earth observation and characterization, atmospheric research, and space science.

SEC. 304. COORDINATION WITH THE NATIONAL OCEANIC AND ATMOSPHERIC ADMINISTRATION.

(a) JOINT WORKING GROUP.—The Administrator and the Administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration shall appoint a Joint Working Group, which shall hold meetings with the two agencies to ensure maximum coordination in the design, operation, and transition of missions. The Joint Working Group shall also prepare the transition plans required by subsection (c).

(b) COORDINATION REPORT.—Not later than February 15 of each year, the Administrators of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and NASA will be coordinated during the fiscal year following the fiscal year in which the report is transmitted.

(c) COORDINATION OF TRANSITION PLANNING AND REPORTING.—The Administrator, in conjunction with the Administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, shall perform a mission assessment for their potential operational capabilities and shall prepare transition plans for all existing and future Earth observing systems found to be of potential use. The plans shall be transmitted to the Administrators of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration operational space-based systems.

(d) LIMITATION.—The Administrator shall not transfer any NASA earth science mission to Earth observing system to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration until the transition plan required under subsection (c) has been approved by the Administrators of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and NASA.

(e) REPORT.—Each recipient of a grant under subsection (a) shall transmit a report to the Administrator on the results of the pilot project within 180 days of the completion of that project.

(f) PROGRAM EVALUATION.—The Administrator shall evaluate the effectiveness of the program established under this section, and shall report the results of the evaluation to the appropriate committees in the Senate and House of Representatives.

SEC. 310. REMOTE SENSING.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) the term ‘geospatial information’ means knowledge and distributions of physical and cultural features on the landscape based on analysis of data from airborne or spaceborne platforms or other types and sources of data;

(2) the term ‘remote sensing’ means the utilization of data from airborne or spaceborne platforms or other types and sources of data for the purposes of acquiring measurable information about the earth and its environment; and

(b) EFFECTIVENESS EVALUATION.—Not later than December 31, 2009, the Administrator shall transmit to the Congress an evaluation of the effectiveness of the program established under section 312 in exploring and promoting the integrated use of sources of remote-sensing and other geospatial information to address State, local, regional, and tribal agency needs. Such evaluation shall have been conducted by an independent entity.

SEC. 311. PROGRAM EVALUATION.

(a) ADVISORY COMMITTEE.—The Administrator shall establish a permanent advisory committee, consisting of individuals with appropriate expertise in State, local, regional, and tribal agencies, the university research community, and the remote sensing and other geospatial information industry, to review the program established under this section. The advisory committee shall, consistent with the Federal Geographic Data Committee and other appropriate industry representatives and organizations, establish procedures for the annual review of the program established under this section. The advisory committee established under this subsection shall remain in effect until the termination of the program established under section 312.

(b) REPORT.—Each recipient of a grant under subsection (a) shall, not later than 180 days after the completion of the pilot project, conduct at least one workshop for potential users to disseminate the lessons learned from the pilot project as widely as feasible.

SEC. 313. DATA AVAILABILITY.

The Administrator shall ensure that the results of each of the pilot projects commissioned under section 312 shall be retrievable through an electronic, Internet-accessible database.

SEC. 314. EDUCATION.

The Administrator shall establish an education and outreach program to increase awareness at institutions of higher education and State, local, regional, and tribal education.
agencies of the potential applications of remote sensing and other geospatial information.

Subtitle C—George E. Brown, Jr. Near-Earth Object Survey

SEC. 321. GEORGE E. BROWN, JR. NEAR-EARTH OBJECT SURVEY.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the “George E. Brown, Jr. Near-Earth Object Survey Act.”

(b) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Near-Earth objects pose a serious and credible threat to humankind.

(2) Similar objects have struck the Earth or passed through the Earth’s atmosphere several times in the Earth’s history and pose a similar threat in the future.

(3) Several such near-Earth objects have only been discovered within days of the objects’ closest approach to Earth, and recent discoveries of such large objects indicate that many large near-Earth objects remain undiscovered.

(4) The efforts taken to date by NASA for detecting and characterizing the hazards of near-Earth objects are not sufficient to fully determine the threat posed by such objects to cause widespread destruction and loss of life.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section the term “near-Earth object” means an asteroid, a comet, or a perihelion distance of less than 1.3 Astronomical Units from the Sun.

(d) NEAR-EARTH OBJECT SURVEY.

(1) SURVEY PROGRAM.—The Administrator shall plan, develop, and implement a Near-Earth Object Survey program to detect, track, catalogue, and characterize the physical characteristics of near-Earth objects equal to or greater than 100 meters in diameter in order to assess the threat of such near-Earth objects to the Earth. It shall be the goal of the Survey program to achieve 90 percent completion of its near-Earth object catalogue (based on statistically predicted populations of near-Earth objects) within 15 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

(2) AMENDMENTS.—Section 102 of the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 (42 U.S.C. 2451) is amended—

(A) by redesignating subsection (g) as subsection (h); and

(B) by inserting after subsection (f) the following new subsection:

“(g) The Congress declares that the general welfare and security of the United States require the development and enhancement of the Aeronautics and Space Administration's capability to detect, track, catalog, and characterize near-Earth asteroids and comets in order to provide warning and mitigation of the potential hazard of such near-Earth objects to the Earth.”; and

(C) in subsection (h), as so redesignated by subparagraph (A), by striking “and (f)” and inserting “(f), and (g)”.

(3) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Administrator shall transmit to the Congress, not later than February 28 of each of the next 5 years beginning after the date of enactment of this Act, a report that provides the following:

(A) A summary of all activities taken pursuant to paragraph (1) for the previous fiscal year.

(B) A summary of expenditures for all activities pursuant to paragraph (1) for the previous fiscal year.

(4) INITIAL REPORT.—The Administrator shall transmit to Congress not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act an initial report that provides the following:

(A) An analysis of possible alternatives that NASA may employ to carry out the Survey program as a combination of ground-based and space-based alternatives with technical descriptions.

(B) A recommended option and proposed budget to carry out the Survey program pursuant to the recommended option.

(C) An analysis of possible alternatives that NASA could employ to divert an object on a likely collision course with the Earth.

TITLE IV—AERONAUTICS

SEC. 401. DEFINITION.

For purposes of this title, the term “institution of higher education” means the National Institute of Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001).

Subtitle A—National Policy for Aeronautics Research and Development

SEC. 411. POLICY.

It shall be the policy of the United States to reaffirm the National Aeronautics and Space Act of 1958 and its identification of aeronautical research and development as a core mission of NASA. Further, it shall be the policy of the United States to promote aeronautical research and development that will expand the capacity, ensure the safety, and increase the efficiency of the Nation’s transportation system, protect the security of the Nation, protect the environment, and retain the leadership of the United States in global aviation.

Subtitle B—NASA Aeronautics Breakthrough Research Initiatives

SEC. 421. ENVIRONMENTAL AIRCRAFT RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE.

(a) OBJECTIVE.—The Administrator may establish an initiative with the objective of developing, and demonstrating in a relevant environment, within 10 years after the date of enactment of this Act, technologies to enable revolutionary improvements to the fundamental areas of aeronautical research, the Nation maintains needed capabilities in fundamental areas of aeronautical research, and technologies that are not tied to specific development projects.

(b) ASSESSMENT.—The Administrator shall enter into an arrangement with the National Research Council to conduct a study to identify and characterize new markets and technologies likely to be in effect at the time of this aircraft’s introduction.

SEC. 423. ROTORCRAFT AND OTHER RUNWAY-INDEPENDENT AIR VEHICLES RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE.

The Administrator may establish a rotorcraft and other runway-independent aircraft vehicles initiative with the objective of developing and demonstrating in a relevant environment, within 10 years after the date of enactment of this Act, technologies that are not tied to specific development projects.

(c) REPORT.—The Administrator shall transmit the assessment, along with NASA’s response to the assessment, to Congress not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act.
Airspace Systems Research program so that they directly support the objectives of the Joint Planning and Development Office’s Next Generation Air Transportation System Integrated Plan.

SEC. 433. AVIATION SAFETY AND SECURITY RESEARCH.

(a) OBJECTIVE.—The Aviation Safety and Security Research program shall pursue research and development activities that directly address the safety and security needs of the National Airspace System and the aircraft that fly in it. The program shall develop prevention, intervention, and mitigation technologies aimed at causal, contributory, and circumstantial factors of aviation accidents.

(b) PLAN.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall transmit to Congress a 5-year plan to support the conduct of research and development programs aligned with the objectives of the Joint Planning and Development Office’s Next Generation Air Transportation System Integrated Plan.

SEC. 434. ZERO-EMISSIONS AIRCRAFT RESEARCH.

(a) OBJECTIVE.—The Administrator may establish a zero-emissions aircraft research program that shall be to develop and test concepts to enable a hydrogen fuel cell-powered aircraft that would have no hydrocarbon or nitrogen oxide emissions into the environment.

(b) APPROACH.—The Administrator may establish a program of competitively awarded grants available to teams of researchers that may include the participation of individuals from universities, industry, and government for the conduct of this research.

SEC. 435. MARS AIRCRAFT RESEARCH.

(a) ADMINISTRATOR.—The Administrator may establish a Mars Aircraft project whose objective shall be to develop and test concepts for an uncrewed aircraft that could operate for sustained periods in the atmosphere of Mars.

(b) APPROACH.—The Administrator may establish a program of competitively awarded grants available to teams of researchers that may include the participation of individuals from universities, industry, and government for the conduct of this research.

SEC. 436. HYPERSONICS RESEARCH.

The Administrator may establish a hypersonics research program whose objective shall be to explore the science and technology of hypersonic flight using air-breathing propulsion through the use of theoretical work, basic and applied research, and development of flight research demonstration vehicles.

SEC. 437. NASA AERONAUTICS SCHOLARSHIPS.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall establish a program of scholarships for full-time graduate students who are United States citizens and are enrolled in, or have been accepted by and have indicated their intention to enroll in, accredited Masters degree programs in aeronautical engineering at institutions of higher education. Each such scholarship shall cover the costs of room, board, tuition, and fees, and may be provided for a maximum of 2 years.

(b) ELIGIBILITY.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall publish regulations governing the scholarship program under this section.

(c) COOPERATIVE TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES.—Students who have been awarded a scholarship under this section shall have the opportunity for paid employment at one of the NASA Centers engaged in aeronautics research and development during the summer prior to and during the first year following the receipt of their Master’s degrees, and shall be eligible to receive a scholarship under this section in the second year, if applicable.

SEC. 438. AVIATION WEATHER RESEARCH.

(a) OBJECTIVE.—The Administrator may carry out a program of collaborative research with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to improve weather forecasting through the goal of significantly improving the reliability of 2-hour to 6-hour aviation weather forecasts.

(b) CONTINGENCY PLAN.—The transportation plan to support ISS shall include contingency options to ensure sufficient logistics and on-orbit capabilities to support any potential period during which the Space Shuttle or its follow-on crew and cargo systems is unavailable, and require sufficient resources to sustain orbiter prepositioning of spares and other supplies needed to accommodate any such hiatus.

(c) CERTIFICATION.—Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, and before making any change in the ISS assembly sequence in effect on the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate an assessment to meet the requirements of subsections (a) and (b).

(d) CENTRIFUGE.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to prohibit the installation of the centrifuge on the ISS.

SEC. 502. HUMAN EXPLORATION PRIORITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall—

(1) construct an architecture and implementation plan for NASA’s human exploration program that is not critically dependent on the achievement of milestones by fixed dates; and

(2) determine the relative priority of each of the potential elements of NASA’s implementation plan for human exploration in case funding shortfalls or cost growth necessitate the adjustment of NASA’s implementation plan.

(b) PRIORITIZATION.—Development of a Crew Exploration Vehicle with a robust crew escape system, development of a launch system for the Crew Exploration Vehicle, and definition of an overall architecture and prioritized implementation plan shall be the highest priorities of the human exploration program over the period governed by this Act.

SEC. 503. GAO ASSESSMENT.

Not later than 9 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall transmit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate an assessment of the milestones and estimated costs of the plans submitted under section 102(a)(7).

TITLE VI—OTHER PROGRAM AREAS

Subtitle A—Space and Flight Support

SEC. 601. ORBITAL DEBRIS.

The Administrator, in conjunction with the heads of other Federal agencies, shall take steps to develop, as necessary, the technologies that will enable NASA to decrease the risks associated with orbital debris.

SEC. 602. SECONDARY PAYLOAD CAPABILITY.

The Administrator is encouraged to provide the capabilities to support secondary payloads on United States launch vehicles, including freefliers, for satellites or scientific payloads.

Subtitle B—Education

SEC. 611. INSTITUTIONS IN NASA’S MINORITY INSTITUTIONS PROGRAM.

The matter appearing under the heading ‘‘NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION, SMALL AND DISADVANTAGED BUSINESSES’’ in title III of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1990 (42 U.S.C. 2473b; 103 Stat. 863) is amended by striking ‘‘Historically Black Colleges and Universities’’ and inserting ‘‘Historically Black Colleges and Universities that are part B institutions’’ (as defined in section 322(2) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1063)) and ‘‘Hispanic-serving institutions’’ (as defined in section 502(a)(9) of that Act (20 U.S.C. 1063)).
SEC. 612. PROGRAM TO EXPAND DISTANCE LEARNING IN RURAL UNDERSERVED AREAS.

(a) In General.—The Administrator shall develop or expand programs to extend science and space educational outreach to rural communities and schools through video conferencing, virtual exhibits, teacher education, classroom presentations, and student field trips.

(b) Program.—In carrying out subsection (a), the Administrator shall give priority to existing programs—

(1) that utilize community-based partnerships in the field;

(2) that build and maintain video conferencing and exhibit capacity;

(3) that travel directly to rural communities and serve low-income populations; and

(4) with a special emphasis on increasing the number of women and minorities in the science and engineering professions.

SEC. 613. CHARLES PETE’ CONRAD ASTRONOMY AWARDS.

(a) Short Title.—This section may be cited as the “Charles Pete’ Conrad Astronomy Awards Act.”

(b) Definitions.—For the purposes of this section—

(1) the term “amateur astronomer” means an individual whose employer does not provide any funding, payment, or compensation to the individual for the observation of asteroids and other celestial bodies, and does not include any individual employed as a professional astronomer;

(2) the term “Minor Planet Center” means the Minor Planet Center of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory;

(3) the term “near-Earth asteroid” means an asteroid with a perihelion distance of less than 1.3 Astronomical Units from the Sun; and

(4) the term “Program” means the Charles Pete’ Conrad Astronomy Awards Program established under subsection (c).

(c) Pete Conrad Astronomy Award Program.—

(1) In General.—The Administrator shall establish the Charles Pete’ Conrad Astronomy Awards Program.

(2) Awards.—The Administrator shall make awards under the Program based on the recommendations of the Minor Planet Center.

(3) Award Categories.—The Administrator shall make one annual award, unless there are no eligible discoveries or contributions, for each of the following categories:

(A) The amateur astronomer or group of amateur astronomers who in the preceding calendar year discovered the intrinsically brightest near-Earth asteroid among the near-Earth asteroids that were discovered during that year by amateur astronomers or groups of amateur astronomers.

(B) The amateur astronomer or group of amateur astronomers who made the greatest contribution to the Minor Planet Center’s mission of cataloging near-Earth asteroids during the preceding year.

(4) Award Amount.—An award under the Program shall be in the amount of $3,000.

SEC. 614. REVIEW OF EDUCATION PROGRAMS.

(a) In General.—The Administrator shall enter into an arrangement with the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences to conduct a review and evaluation of NASA’s science, technology, engineering, and mathematics education program. The review and evaluation shall be documented in a report submitted to the Administrator and shall include such recommendations as the National Research Council determines will improve the effectiveness of the program.

(b) Review.—The review and evaluation under subsection (a) shall include—

(1) an evaluation of the effectiveness of the overall program in meeting its defined goals and objectives;

(2) an assessment of the quality and educational effectiveness of the major components of the program, including an evaluation of the adequacy of assessment metrics and data collection requirements available for determining the effectiveness of individual programs;

(3) an evaluation of the funding priorities in the program, including a review of the funding level and funding trend for each major component of the program and an assessment of whether the resources made available are consistent with meeting identified goals and priorities; and

(4) a determination of the extent and the effectiveness of coordination and collaboration between NASA and other Federal agencies that sponsor science, technology, engineering, and mathematics education activities.

(c) Report to Congress.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall submit to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate the report required under subsection (a).

SEC. 615. EQUAL ACCESS TO NASA’S EDUCATION PROGRAMS.

The Administrator shall strive to ensure equitable access for minority and economically disadvantaged students to NASA’s Education programs. Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, and every 2 years thereafter, the Administrator shall submit a report to the Committee on Science of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate on the progress of efforts by NASA to ensure equal access for minority and economically disadvantaged students under this section, and the results of such efforts. As part of the report, the Administrator shall provide data on minority participation in NASA’s education programs, at a minimum in the following categories: elementary and secondary education, undergraduate education, and graduate education.

SEC. 616. MUSEUMS.

The Administrator may provide grants to, and enter into cooperative agreements with, museums and planetariums to enable them to enhance programs related to space exploration, aeronautics, space science, earth science, or maritime science.

SEC. 617. REVIEW OF MUST PROGRAM.

Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall transmit a report to Congress on the status of the Motivating Undergraduates in Science and Technology program. If the report concludes that the program is in compliance with the laws of the United States, NASA shall implement the program, as planned in the July 5, 2005 National Research Announcement.

SEC. 618. STRATEGIC HUMAN RESOURCES PROGRAM.

The Administrator shall carry out a strategic human resources program for the management of NASA’s workforce. The Administrator shall submit to the Committees on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Science of the Senate a report on the progress of efforts by NASA to ensure equal access for minority and economically disadvantaged students under this section, and the results of such efforts. As part of the report, the Administrator shall provide data on minority participation in NASA’s education programs, at a minimum in the following categories: elementary and secondary education, undergraduate education, and graduate education.

SEC. 619. NASA SCHOLARSHIPS.

(a) Amendments.—Section 9809 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(2) by striking “Act.” and inserting “Act (42 U.S.C. 2458c)”;

(2) in subsection (c) by striking “require,” and inserting “require to carry out this section”;

(3) in subsection (f)(1) by striking the last sentence; and

(4) in subsection (g)(2) by striking “Treasury of the United States”.

(b) Repeal.—The Vision 100—Century of Aviation Reauthorization Act is amended by striking section 703 (42 U.S.C. 4273e).

SEC. 704. INDEPENDENT COST ANALYSIS.

Section 301 of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Authorization Act of 2000 (42 U.S.C. 2458c) is amended—

(1) by striking “Phase B” in subsection (a) and inserting “implementation”;

(2) by striking “Chief Financial Officer” in subsection (b) and inserting “Administrator”;

(3) by inserting “and consider” in subsection (a) after “shall conduct”; and

(4) by striking subsection (b) and inserting the following:

“(b) Implementation Defined.—In this section, the term ‘implementation’ means all activity in the life cycle of a project after preliminary design, independent assessment of preliminary design, and approval to proceed into implementation, including critical design, development, certification, launch, operations, disposal of assets, and, for technology programs, development, testing, analysis and communication of the results.”

SEC. 705. LIMITATIONS ON OFF-SHORE PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS FOR THE PROCUREMENT OF GOODS AND SERVICES.

(a) Conversions to Contractor Performance of Administration Activities.—Except as provided in subsection (c), an activity or function of the Administration that is converted to contractor performance under Office of Management and Budget Circular A-76 may not be performed by the contractor or any subcontractor at a location outside the United States.

(b) CONTRACTS FOR THE PROCUREMENT OF Services or Supplies.—(1) In general.—If, as provided in subsection (c), a contract for the procurement of goods or services that is entered into by the Administrator may not be performed outside the United States unless it is to meet a requirement of the Administration for goods or services specifically at a location outside the United States.

(2) The President may waive the prohibition in paragraph (1) in the case of any contract for which the President determines in writing that it is necessary in the national security interest of the United States for goods or services under the contract to be performed outside the United States.

(d) Consistency With International Agreements.—The Administrator may waive the provisions of this section (c), if necessary, if such waiver is consistent with obligations of the United States under international agreements.

(e) Exception.—Subsections (a) and (b)(1) shall not apply to the extent that the activity of the contracts was previously performed by Federal Government employees outside the United States.

(f) Security Interests of the United States.—Except as provided in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts with the Federal Government or that is being used pursuant to a contract with the Federal Government; or

(g) A crew member or passenger of any space vehicle described in this subsection.

(h) Deadline for Establishment.—The President shall issue an executive order establishing a Commission not later than 7 days after an incident specified in subsection (a).

(i) Tasks of the Commission.—A Commission established pursuant to this subsection shall, to the extent possible, undertake the following tasks:

(1) Investigate the incident.

(2) Determine the cause of the incident.

(3) Identify all contributing factors to the cause of the incident.

(4) Make recommendations for corrective actions.

(5) Provide any additional findings or recommendations deemed by the Commission to be important, whether or not they are related to the specific incident under investigation.

(6) Prepare a report to Congress, the President, and the public.

Subtitle C—Organization and Operation of Commissions

SEC. 831. COMPOSITION OF COMMISSIONS.

(a) Number of Commissioners.—A Commission established pursuant to this title shall consist of 15 members.

(b) Selection.—The members of a Commission shall be chosen in the following manner:

(1) The President shall appoint the members, and shall designate the Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Commission from among its members.

(2) Four of the 15 members appointed by the President shall be selected by the President in the following manner:

(A) The majority leader of the Senate, the minority leader of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the minority leader of the House of Representatives shall each provide to the President a list of candidates for membership on the Commission.

(B) The President shall select one of the candidates from each of the 4 lists for membership on the Commission.

(3) In the case of a Commission established under subsection (b)(8), the President shall select one candidate from a list of candidates for membership on the Commission provided by the President of the collective-bargaining organization including the largest number of NASA engineers.

(4) No officer or employee of the Federal Government shall serve as a member of the Commission.

(5) No member of the Commission shall have, or have pending, a contractual relationship with NASA.

(6) The President shall not appoint any individual as a member of a Commission under this section who has a current or former relationship with the Administrator that the President determines would constitute a conflict of interest.

(7) To the extent practicable, the President shall ensure that the members of the Commission include some individuals with experience relative to human carrying spacecraft, as well as some individuals with investigative experience and some individuals with legal experience.

(8) To the extent practicable, the President shall seek diversity in the membership of the Commission.

SEC. 832. POWERS OF COMMISSION.

(a) Collection of Information.—The Commission may, to such extent and in such amounts as are provided in appropriation Acts, enter into contracts to enable the Commission to discharge its duties under this title.

(b) Information From Federal Agencies.—(1) In General.—A Commission may secure information from any executive department, bureau, agency, board, commission, office, independent establishment, or instrumentality of the Government, information, suggestions, estimates, and statistics for the purposes of this title. Each department, bureau, agency, board, commission, office, independent establishment, or instrumentality shall, to the extent authorized by law, furnish such information, suggestions, estimates, and statistics directly to the Commission.

(2) Handling, Storage, and Dissemination.—Information shall only be received, handled, stored, and disseminated by members of the Commission and its staff consistent with all applicable statutes, regulations, and Executive orders.

(d) Assistance from Federal Agencies.—

(1) General Services Administration.—The Administrator of General Services shall provide to a Commission on a reimbursable basis administrative support and other services for the performance of the Commission’s tasks.

(2) Other Departments and Agencies.—In addition to the assistance prescribed in paragraph (1), departments and agencies of the United States may provide to the Commission such services, funds, facilities, staff, and other support services as they may determine advisable and as may be authorized by law.

(3) NASA Engineering and Safety Center.—The NASA Engineering and Safety Center shall provide data and technical support as requested by a Commission.

SEC. 833. PUBLIC MEETINGS, INFORMATION, AND HEARINGS.

(a) Public Meetings and Release of Public Versions of Reports.—A Commission shall—

(1) hold public hearings and meetings to the extent appropriate; and

(2) release public versions of the reports required under this Act.

(b) Public Hearings.—Any public hearing of a Commission shall be conducted in a manner consistent with the protection of information provided or developed for or by the Commission by any applicable statute, regulation, or Executive order.

SEC. 834. STAFF OF COMMISSION.

(a) Appointment and Compensation.—The Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Commission, in consultation with Vice Chairman, in accordance with rules agreed upon by a Commission, may appoint and fix the compensation of a staff director and such other personnel as may be necessary to enable the Commission to carry out its functions.

(b) Details.—Any Federal Government employee, except for an employee of NASA, may be detailed to a Commission without reimbursement from the Commission, and such detailee shall retain the rights, status, and privileges of his or her regular employment without interruption.

(c) Consultant Services.—A Commission may pay fees of experts and consultants in accordance with section 3109 of title 5, United States Code, but at rates not to exceed the daily rate paid a person occupying a similar position in level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315 of title 5, United States Code. Any consultant or expert whose services are procured under this subsection shall disclose any contract or association it has with NASA or any NASA contractor.

SEC. 835. COMPENSATION AND TRAVEL EXPENSES.

(a) Compensation.—Each member of a Commission may be compensated at not to exceed the daily equivalent of the annual rate of basic pay in effect for a position at level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315 of title 5, United States Code, for each day during which that member is engaged in the actual performance of the duties of the Commission.

(b) Travel Expenses.—While away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Commission, members of a Commission shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, in the same manner as persons employed intermittently in the Government service are allowed expenses under section 5703(b) of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 836. SECURITY CLEARANCES FOR COMMISSION MEMBERS AND STAFF.

The appropriate Federal agencies or departments shall cooperate with a Commission in expeditiously providing to the Commission members and staff appropriate security clearances to the extent possible pursuant to existing procedures and requirements. No person shall be provided with access to classified information under this title without the appropriate security clearances.

SEC. 837. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS AND TERMINATION.

(a) Interim Reports.—A Commission may submit to the President and Congress interim reports containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations for corrective actions as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members.

(b) Final Report.—A Commission shall submit to the President and Congress, and make concurrently available to the public, a final report containing such findings, conclusions, and recommendations for corrective actions as have been agreed to by a majority of Commission members. Such report shall include any minority views or opinions not reflected in the majority report.

(c) Termination.—

(1) In General.—A Commission, and all the authorities of this title with respect to that Commission, shall terminate 60 days after the date on which the final report is submitted under subsection (b).

(2) Administrative Activities Before Termination.—A Commission may use the 60-day period referred to in paragraph (1) for the purpose of concluding its activities, including providing testimony to committees of Congress, reviewing the interim and final reports and disseminating the final report.

The motion was agreed to. The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the House insist on its amendment to S. 1281, and request a conference with the Senate thereon.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York? The Speaker hears none, and without objection, appoints the following conferrees:

From the Committee on Science, for consideration of sections 111 and 615 of the House amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Messrs. BOEHLERT, CALVERT, HALL, SMITH of Texas, GORDON, UDALL of Colorado, and HONDA.

Provided, that Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas is appointed in lieu of Mr. HONDA for consideration of sections 111 and 615 of the House amendment, and modifications committed to conference.

From the Committee on Government Reform: Mr. T. Stafford Discretionary; sections 153 and 606 of the Senate bill, and section 703 of the House amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Messrs. TOM DAVIS of Virginia, TURNER, and WAXMAN.

For consideration of the Senate bill and House amendment, and modifications committed to conference: Mr. DELAY.

BETTY DICK RESIDENCE PROTECTION ACT

Mrs. MUSGRAVE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the Senate bill (S. 584) to require the Secretary of the Interior to allow the continued occupancy and use of certain land and improvements within Rocky Mountain National Park, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Colorado?

Mr. KANJORSKI. Objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

PREDISASTER MITIGATION PROGRAM REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2005

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure be discharged from further consideration of the bill (H.R. 6324) to amend the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act to reauthorize the predisaster mitigation program, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Mr. KANJORSKI. Objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Objection is heard.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM FURTHER ENHANCED BORROWING AUTHORITY ACT OF 2005

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order to consider a motion to take from the Speaker’s table the bill (H.R. 4338) to temporarily increase the borrowing authority of the Federal Emergency Management Agency for carrying out the national flood insurance program, with Senate amendments thereto, and concurrent, and that the motion be debatable for not to exceed 20 minutes, equally divided between myself and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows:

Senate amendments:

On page 2, line 12, strike “8,500,000,000” and insert “18,500,000,000”.

On page 2, after line 12, insert:

SEC. 3. EMERGENCY SPENDING.

The amendment made under section 2 is designated as emergency spending, as provided under section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95 (109th Congress).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY) and the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) each will control 10 minutes.
Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4133, a bill that would temporarily increase the borrowing authority of the Federal Emergency Management Agency National Flood Insurance Program.

This bill was introduced by our friend and colleague from Pennsylvania (Mr. Fitzpatrick) in response to the terrible destruction that has resulted from Hurricane Katrina. The original version of this bill increased the borrowing authority of the National Flood Insurance Program from $3.5 billion to $8.5 billion. However, the extra $5 billion would have only allowed FEMA to make claims and payments through next week.

The Senate amended the bill to increase the borrowing authority to $18.5 billion and designate the funds as emergency spending. That amended version is now before us for consideration.

FEMA has run out of money to pay claims arising from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita and has directed the insurance companies to stop paying the estimated $22.5 billion that was paid by the National Flood Insurance Program. This total for one hurricane season, Mr. Speaker, will surpass the $22 billion that was paid for both hurricanes.

It is much needed by the people back home both because we have had an unprecedented level of loss from flooding and because insurance companies have pushed all the emphasis down on the wind-driven rain that would cover them under their homeowners insurance, consequently creating more pressure to pay on the flood insurance that the people have.

Sixty thousand of these will probably have to be gotten rid of because they cannot be cleaned up and put back into commerce. We have had the insurance companies take the position that every instance of damage was caused by flooding as opposed to the wind-driven rain that would cover them under their homeowners insurance, consequently creating more pressure to pay on the flood insurance that the people have.

For these two reasons, I would urge that we adopt this provision because it is much needed by the people back home both because we have had an unprecedented level of loss from flooding and because insurance companies have pushed all the emphasis down on the wind-driven rain that would cover them under their homeowners insurance, consequently creating more pressure to pay on the flood insurance that the people have.

I urge the House to adopt this because we need it so much in our area.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Fitzpatrick).

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Oxlery) for his support on this. This is critically important for the folks down in the gulf region that they get compensated under their insurance program that they paid premiums into FEMA for. This is an obligation by the Federal Government to make sure that those people are paid. FEMA is out of money as I speak. We need to get this done. I would ask the House’s cooperation in this effort.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, along with the chairman, I have a sense of deja vu. A couple of years ago we agreed, the chairman and I and members of our committee, to support the efforts of our former colleague from Nebraska, Mr. Bereuter, our current colleague from Oregon (Mr. Blumenauer), to reform the flood insurance program. We made substantial progress. We did not get everything we wanted; there was some resistance.

Then came Katrina, and suddenly the point we were making about the need both to compensate people but also to be environmentally and fiscally responsible in what we promised became somewhat relevant. Our committee had a good mark-up earlier this week and passed out a bill, not a perfect bill from any one standpoint, but which would accomplish reforms along with the money. And then the Senate, as it did last time, showed a certain reluctance to go along with the reforms.

They sent us a bill which is simply the additional money.

The additional money is needed and the additional money is to compensate people who have already been flooded, so there is no necessary connection between that and going forward. I, therefore, do not support the request, and I hope we will vote the money that has been asked to compensate the people already hurt.

But it is also important that we reform the program. I appreciate the commitment which the gentleman from Ohio has freely given the House, that we are both going to work hard to try to bring the reform package up early next year.

So we will acknowledge the importance of getting the money in the hands of the people who need it, and I will be yielding to some of my colleagues from the area; but we do want to note that we will go forward with the money now, but we have not lost interest in further reforming the program; and we will be back on the floor I hope, and I know the gentleman from Ohio will be working diligently on that in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to thank my good friend and ranking member, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank), for his support on this. This is critically important for the folks down in the gulf region that they get compensated under their insurance program that they paid premiums into FEMA for. This is an obligation by the Federal Government to make sure that those people are paid. FEMA is out of money as I speak. We need to get this done. I would ask the House’s cooperation in this effort.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank). Mr. Speaker, I do not want to impose on the House’s time except we are killing time anyway while you try to figure out what you are going to do with that foolish resolution of yours.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. Jefferson), who has been at the center of the effort to deal with this tragedy. I will say as the ranking member on our side of the committee, he has been constantly in touch with us and has advised us and impressed us on the importance of action, and I am very grateful for his willingness to work with us in the midst of all the stress that has accrued to his district.

Mr. Jefferson. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Oxlery) for the work that he has done on the bill and for the entire committee and all who have had a hand in it.

Like the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Frank), I would like to have seen this bill involve the reforms we have talked about to make it easier for people to make claims once they have them. We have had the unprecedented flooding in our area, which is the reason why this bill is needed. FEMA is out of money for the very clear reason that we have had flooding that nobody could have possibly anticipated. We have claims far beyond what anyone had imagined. There have been 220,000 homes, just homes in our area, that have been affected by flooding; 108,000 of these have been rental units, and the rest are single residences. It is unheard of.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FitzPatrick).

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Oxlery) for his leadership on issues regarding the National Flood Insurance Program.

Mr. Speaker, on Wednesday of this week, the House passed by voice vote H.R. 4133, the National Flood Insurance Program Further Enhanced Borrowing Act of 2005. This important piece of legislation will empower residents of the Gulf Coast by increasing the National Flood Insurance Program’s ability to borrow $5 billion in additional funds from the United States Treasury to cover claims resulting from the recent devastating hurricanes of Katrina and Rita.

Today, the Senate amended and passed H.R. 4133, raising the amount the NFIP can borrow from the Treasury from $8.5 billion to $18.5 billion, an increase that will remain in place until over $40 billion after the September 11th attack.

Mr. Speaker, this legislation is a necessary stop-gap measure to ensure the solvency of the National Flood Insurance Program. For this hurricane season alone, FEMA estimates that more than 220,000 Katrina and Rita claims will be filed with a total cost exceeding $22 billion. This total for one hurricane season, Mr. Speaker, will surpass the total amount paid by the National Flood Insurance Program since its inception in 1968.

Mr. Speaker, I represent a section of Philadelphia, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, that has sustained two floods...
Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I rise troubled. I must say, by this legislation, I appreciate the chairman’s commitment to reform and also the ranking member. They have been steering, I think, a good course with Financial Services, and I am encouraged by their words that we are going to go ahead and attempt to continue the process of reforming the flood insurance program.

But today in signing off on $22 billion that cannot be supported simply by the premiums by the individuals that are covered and probably personally think is a tremendous lost opportunity.

We heard a lot of rhetoric the last couple of days. People come to the floor talking about how to save taxpayer dollars, but we have not undertaken to make reforms that would protect taxpayers in the first place.

Our colleague from Mississippi has been focusing on the problem with flood insurance not being available to a whole range of people. No expectation there.

People behind levees are not required to have flood insurance. We have not dealt with subsidized insurance for areas that are vacation homes, second homes.

I am concerned that there is never really a good time to be able for us to seize this opportunity. While I say I am heartened by what I have heard from the ranking member and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. OXLEY), and certainly they steered a difficult course last time in being able to make some of these achievements, but I think there was ever a time that the attention of this Congress should be on the dangers of the way that the program works now and the people that are in harm’s way, the opportunity to not just save money but save lives by these reforms.

Nonetheless, I look forward to working with the ranking member and the Chair, and anything in my power, but I would hope the House does not ever again allow something like this to come forward and miss such an opportunity.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR), who has worked harder in the aftermath of this that I have ever seen any Member work in trying to deal with the desperate situation imposed on the people he represents.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, as I speak, one of the greatest legal scams in American history is being perpetrated on the people of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama, honest Americans who purchased insurance policies to protect their families and their property and their elevations premiums for decades. They are being told one by one “we are not going to pay your claim.”

See, in a typical insurance policy known as a “wind policy,” you would think it would be from the 140- to 160-knot breezes of Hurricane Katrina; but somehow buried in that policy is small language that says they are not going to pay for wind-driven water.

Now, for most of us, you would think of wind-driven water as maybe the water driven under the stoop of your door in a rain storm, or if you have an older house like I had, under the window, maybe get some curtains wet or the sheet road under that window.

So if the wind blew a tree into your house, you could file a claim. If the wind blew a car into your house, you could file a claim. But if the wind generated a 30-foot wall of water, well, then the American insurance industry mass is telling those people in Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and the Alabama gulf coast, You’re out of luck. We took your money. You’re a chump.

Our Nation has a flood insurance policy separate from that where the credibility of this Nation is at stake. I have already told you what I have thought the private sector is doing to my people. But this is us. We also collected people’s money in good faith that when there was a flood of their homes that would be paid. We acted an unprecedented natural disaster.

Now, two things can happen. We can go the way of the private sector which is doing everything they can to scam my constituents, and please use that word, or we can honor our claims, because a person or a nation is only as good as its word. Our Nation gave our word that we would pay these claims if substantiated. Those claims have been substantiated. Let us set a precedent that hopefully the insurance industry will follow and pay our claims.

I want to commend Chairman OXLEY. I want to commend Ranking Member FRANK for bringing this to the floor in a timely manner. I very much want to commend the other body for passing this up so that we can fulfill our obligation as a Nation for those people who had flood insurance policies, that we will pay those claims in a timely manner.

At the same time I want to go on record as saying that I think there ought to be a national registry of child molesters and, at the moment, insurance industry executives because I think Americans ought to know if they live near one.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, for my remaining 30 seconds, I want to send a message to FEMA.

The gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. MELANCON) has called to our attention a delay on the part of FEMA in telling people what elevations are required for new construction or replacement construction in the flooded areas. Until they have those elevations, they cannot proceed with the construction, and the gentleman told me we have been told there is a delay of perhaps up to 2 years. That is clearly unacceptable. So had we been able to bring a substitute bill to the floor, we were going to address that issue.

I hope FEMA will listen. I think I speak for both sides. I know the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. BAKER) agreed with this when we raised it in committee that FEMA will promptly do the elevations necessary so that construction can proceed.

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I have no further speakers, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SIMPSON). Pursuant to clause 12(a) of rule I, the Chair declares the House in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

Accordingly (at 6 o’clock and 31 minutes p.m.), the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. TERRY) at 7 o’clock and 57 minutes p.m.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H. RES. 571, EXPRESSING SENSE OF HOUSE THAT DEPLOYMENT OF FORCES IN IRAQ BE TERMINATED IMMEDIATELY

Mr. GINGREY, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109-312) on the resolution (H. Res. 572) providing for consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 571) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the deployment of United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately and providing for consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 308) directing the Clerk of the House of Representatives to make a technical correction in the enrollment of H.R. 3058, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 572 and ask for its immediate consideration. The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 572

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order without intervention of any point of order to consider in the House the resolution (H. Res. 571) expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the deployment of United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately. The resolution shall be considered as read. The purpose of debate shall be considered as ordered on the resolution to final adoption without intervening motion except: (1) one hour of debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on International Relations; and (2) one motion to recommit which may not contain instructions.

Sec. 2. Upon adoption of this resolution, House Concurrent Resolution 308 is hereby adopted.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. GINGREY) is recognized for 1 hour.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his inquiry.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, given that the subject of this issue deals with the solemn subject of war, my question is, would I be in order to ask for unanimous consent that each Member of the House be allowed up to 5 minutes to speak or her conscience on this war-related resolution?

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I yield 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consider sufficient. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 572 provides for the consideration of House Resolution 571, expressing the sense of the House of Representatives that the deployment of the United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately. Section 2 of the rule provides that upon adoption of the rule House Concurrent Resolution 308 is hereby adopted.

Tonight, Mr. Speaker, this House, the people’s House, stands at a crossroads. In one direction lies the forced retreat and dishonor for our troops who have placed their lives on the line for our country and the mission, and in the other direction, Mr. Speaker, we can stand together as one Nation, as one Congress, in celebration of those who have made an unparalleled commitment to their country.

For this Member of Congress who represents the eleventh district of Georgia, I know which direction I will choose. I know which course I will take. I will stand here tonight with our servicemen and -women who spend their days and nights fighting in the desert of Iraq to secure the freedom of a new democracy. Their Nation called them to arms. Their Nation called upon them for help in time of war. And, Mr. Speaker, they answered that call. They departed their country. They left their homes, their families to fight a war on foreign soil against an enemy that despises everything they and everything their country stands for.

They went to fight a tyrant by the name of Saddam Hussein who had murdered his own people, sought to conquer the Middle East for his own empire, and would have sought the destruction of the West and the values that we hold so dear. This tyrant was and is an enemy of liberty, and he had to be stopped.

Mr. Speaker, nightly on the floor of this House, some Members imply that the President misled our Nation, and they demand an immediate withdrawal of troops from Iraq, ceding victory to the enemy. And now we have to answer the call of those who would besmirch their mission, who would besmirch their sacrifice.

Mr. Speaker, I stand prepared, along with my colleagues, to debate this rule and the underlying resolution. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consider sufficient.

(Ms. SLAUGHTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, the speed with which the majority has sought to challenge the frank and honest appraisal of the war in Iraq offered yesterday by my friend, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), proves that what he said resonated with the American people.

Over 60 percent of our Nation no longer believes that we are headed in the right direction in Iraq. When Mr. MURTHA spoke yesterday, he spoke for the majority of our country. Concerns such as those voiced by Mr. MURTHA are not ancient virtues, nor are they the product of a failure of resolve or willingness to cower before adversity as many administration apologists have suggested.

Rather, they follow from a logical assessment of one of the most respected military affairs in international relations experts that we have in all of these United States, and that is exactly what has this congressional leadership and this White House so condemned.

That is why they have gone out of their way in the last 24 hours to attack the gentlemen from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA). It amounts to nothing more than another swift boat attack on an American hero.

After all, attacking those who have the temerity to challenge this White House is what Republicans in Congress do best. But they have chosen a formidable target in Jack Murtha.

Unlike our President, our Vice President, our Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State or the vast majority of the Members in this House, Jack Murtha knows combat. At the age of 34, he did not have to go to Vietnam. Mr. Murtha is a decorated veteran and an American hero at a time when many others were shirking any possibility of going to Vietnam.

He knows our troops and he cares for them deeply and he has regularly visited them in the hospitals. There he has seen their wounds. He has stood by them during their time of need and listened to their hopes and fears. He has been to Iraq and seen the state of the nation with his own eyes. He is a true patriot and wants only the success of the United States and the Iraqi people, and that is why he spoke with such passion yesterday.

Representative Murtha spoke for the American people when he said that the time has come for a change in direction, and everyone in this Chamber knows that because Jack Murtha is one of the most widely respected Members in this House. No matter the attack that this majority chooses to employ against those who would question them, the reality on the ground is obvious to all who wish to see it.

America’s continued military occupation of that nation will not bring stability. Our forces are drawing fire, not suppressing it; and their presence on foreign soil is serving as a catalyst for all of those who wish to do us and Iraq harm. Insurgent attacks are on the rise, and more American and Iraqi lives are lost every single day. We can no longer continue this path, unwavering with no end in sight.

We can no longer ask Americans and Iraqis to give up their lives for a goal which we are making less sustainable by the hour. We must chart a new course.

Mr. Murtha’s redeployment plan comes from an experienced statesman and soldier who has and will continue to do whatever he thinks is best for this nation.

I implore my colleagues across this aisle to realize that continued Republican attacks which seek to dismiss and to discredit the valuable critiques of knowledgeable legislators, as well as the heartfelt will of the American people, will succeed in silencing neither. Nor will they change the reality on the ground in Iraq.

More Republican assaults will not hide the gross mismanagement and corruption which have plagued the administration’s attempt to prosecute the war, and they will not mollify America’s growing concerns over flawed intelligence, broken trust, subverted values, and shameful acts of torture, all forced by the hand of an administration that answers in half-truths and obfuscations.

These cynical and all-too-typical Republican attempts to silence dissent, stifle debate, and discredit those who dare to hold them accountable will only serve to elevate the power of the message that Mr. Murtha is delivering to this government and to the American people and to our troops. The Republicans today by attacking him either success only in betraying themselves.

The dramatic nature of their panicked response has clearly demonstrated how incredibly valued Mr. Murtha’s judgement is to military experts at the Pentagon, to Members of Congress, and to the American intelligence community.

And the strangest thing that I shall ever see is the people who believed that they were rewriting Mr. Murtha’s resolution with a rendezvous with withdrawal, had nothing even remotely like the resolution we are debating this evening, which is the Republican resolution written by the gentleman from California (Mr. Hunter) which calls for the immediate withdrawal of the troops in Iraq. I believe they have got some explaining to do.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Pitts).

(Mr. Pitts asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. Pitts. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule and in strong opposition to the underlying resolution.

I too am a Vietnam veteran. I flew 116 combat missions in B-52s in Vietnam, and I was deeply troubled to hear my colleague from Pennsylvania (Mr. Murtha) being attacked as he has in 1978 Congressman Sonny Montgomery who led a group of us to Vietnam to bring back remains of those who had died in combat. I remember the reverence with which the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Murtha) treated those 14 coffins of his former colleagues who were killed in action in Vietnam.

I have seen in the 29 years I have been in Congress his supporting our troops, supporting under the Constitution our duty to raise and maintain a wonderful force to protect our freedoms. He has a resolution. He introduced it. He represents the people of Pennsylvania.

I admire his assessment of the war. We disagree on the outcome. I have a different view of myself. I voted with the President on October 20 setting forth, the only person that has set a formula, for three Iraqi brigades of level number one, one American brigade may be deployed.

It is interesting to note that there has been no hearing on this resolution, no hearing on similar issues that are of utmost importance to our country. Now, though mistakes have been made, and they have, such as allowing the looting and disbanding the Iraqi Army rather than giving them a pick and shovel and a small paycheck, and as a result many of them became insurgents against the Americans, no one here as spoken of the success that is needed in Iraq.

If we are not successful, if the Iraqi military is not successful, Iraq will be a snake pit for terrorists, every bit as bad as the Taliban had in Afghanistan, and I and behold the problems it may raise in stability for Jordan and Saudi Arabia. It is important that we have success.

But it is also important that we have fair and full debate. It is important that we have hearings in the Congress on issues such as this, which we have not had. Hearings yes, but not on the war issues as we need them discussed in a full hearing with proper witnesses as we can ask questions of them.

At least, Mr. Speaker, let me say that we have wonderful young people in uniform representing us in Iraq and Afghanistan and across the globe. I am so proud of them. I am so proud of what they do in bringing the fight to a successful conclusion.

And the issue of redeployment, whether I agree with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Murtha) or not, and I do not, because my formula
I think it is the best and I have had positive results in my home State with positive unsolicited newspaper articles saying that it was a good and reasonable method of redeploymet, we must do our best to have success there and proper redeployment of our troops from Iraq.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. BARRETT).

Mr. BARRETT of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule, H. Res. 572, and we have talked a lot about exit strategy, about withdrawal. If I can say one thing tonight, Mr. Speaker, I want to say do not believe all the crap that you see on the TV. Do not believe all the crap that you see on the news.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT), the chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Mr. WATT. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to speak on behalf of the 42 members of the Congressional Black Caucus. By doing so, we wish to make clear positions the Congressional Black Caucus has consistently taken from before the Iraq conflict began and to put those positions in the RECORD. Our votes tonight will not be misinterpreted or mischaracterized.

As early as July 27, 2005, the top United States commander in Iraq stated that a transition of U.S. troops from Iraq could begin as early as this spring. Iraq’s interim Prime Minister echoed General Casey’s sentiments and added that “the time has arrived to plan a coordinated transition from American to Iraqi military control throughout the country.”

The members of the Congressional Black Caucus reaffirm our Statement of Principles as to War against Iraq, issued in October 2002, which will place in the RECORD at this point.

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES AS TO WAR AGAINST IRAQ, OCTOBER 2002

We oppose a unilateral, first-strike action by the United States without a clearly demonstrated imminent threat of attack on the United States. Only Congress has the authority to declare war. Every conceivable diplomatic option must be exhausted.

A unilateral first-strike would undermine the moral authority of the United States, destabilize the Middle East region and undermine the ability of our Nation to address urgent domestic issues. Further, any post-strike plan for maintaining stability in the region would be costly and require a long-term commitment.

Mr. Speaker, we reaffirm our Further Statement of Principles as to President’s Request for Appropriations for Efforts in Iraq issued in September 2003, which I ask to insert into the RECORD at this point.

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS FURTHER STATEMENT OF PRINCIPLES AS TO PRESIDENT’S REQUEST FOR APPROPRIATIONS FOR EFFORTS IN IRAQ, SEPTEMBER 2003

In October 2002, before the President made the decision to proceed to war, the Congressional Black Caucus (CBC) issued a “Statement of Principles as to the War Against Iraq.”

In light of the President’s request for $87 billion for the continuing operations in Iraq, the CBC believes that it is desirable to issue these Further Principles that will guide our evaluation of the President’s request for additional funds.

1. We reaffirm our Statement of Principles issued in October 2002 (copy attached).

2. Despite the President’s failure to follow our original Statement of Principles in his decisions leading to the war, we express our full resolve to support and protect our troops and their families.

3. The Administration should provide an accounting of all funds expended to date that were previously appropriated by the Congress, including funds for major contracts for work in or related to Iraq.

4. The President should provide sufficient details about how the proposed funding will be spent to enable Congress and its Committees to evaluate separately funding proposed for the protection and maintenance of our troops and funding proposed for rebuilding Iraq. Congress should vote on these funding proposals separately.

5. The President should provide full details about how the efforts will be paid for, including a full accounting of Iraq resources (covered and anticipated) and how the President proposes to use those resources to reduce or reimburse the U.S. obligation.

6. The President should provide full details about the future obligations of the United States (personnel, funding and decision-making) and about how responsibility and authority for these obligations will be shared with the United Nations and/or other nations going forward.

7. The Administration should provide to Congress full details of information relied on by the President in his decision to go to war.

8. The President should provide details of how the Administra- tion will determine when he will expect to be met to bring U.S. troops home and of his exit strategy.

The members of the Congressional Black Caucus further urge President Bush to end the deployment of U.S. Armed Forces in Iraq expeditiously by submitting to Congress a detailed plan to withdraw U.S. forces from Iraq and redeploy those forces at the earliest practicable date:

To accelerate the training of Iraqi security forces to prepare them to accept full responsibility for maintaining internal security in Iraq and transfer responsibility for internal security to the Iraqi Government;

To incorporate the United Nations and other international organizations in the transition and reconstruction process;

To pursue security and stability in Iraq through diplomatic and economic means;

To assure that there will be no permanent military bases in Iraq.

And to ensure full support of our military families and our veterans, particularly with respect to service benefits and health care.

Our vote tonight, our votes, 42 of us, will not be misinterpreted and not be mischaracterized. This is our position. We have submitted it for the RECORD. That is what we stand on, and that is what we say to this House and to the President of the United States of America.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART), the distinguished vice chairman of the Rules Committee.

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for the time.

Sometimes subtleties are lost, especially when we are dealing with very difficult, critical issues, such as war and peace, and unfortunately, the message has gone out quite clearly to the world press, as recorded throughout the world today by the media, that there is a serious diminution in support for the mission that the United States of America is engaged in Iraq here in Congress.

So I think that this resolution today is very important to eliminate any confusion that may exist by virtue of a very clear message that has spread around the world today of a serious diminution of the mission of our troops, and that this resolution will clear up that confusion.

Let us say very clearly with this resolution, with the overwhelming defeat of the Iraq resolution, with the clear message of support, that we stand with the troops and that we stand with the mission of the troops; of being in Iraq until there is a stable, democratic government there. That is critical for the security not only of the Iraqi people, but of all of the neighborhood in that area and of the United States.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY).

(Mr. CROWLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from New York for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, bringing this resolution to the floor this evening, it is not about the withdrawal of our troops from Iraq. It is about the Republicans playing politics and questioning the patriotism of one of Congress' most decorated veterans.

The Republicans are doing what they do best, creating a smoke screen to hide the fact that this administration has misled our country into war.

This was rushed to the floor in the Republicans' hopes of dividing Democrats, but unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, what it has proven to be is a device to divide Americans.

I will not stand here and let Republican patriotism of Mr. MUKHTA or any Democrat.

In America, it is not unpatriotic to question a war in which almost 2,100 Americans have lost their lives and some 25,000 Americans have been gravely injured. When a mother who has lost her son camps out in Crawford, Texas, wanting only to speak to the President, she was called unpatriotic. When a POW GOP Senator offered an amendment to ban the use of torture, he was called unpatriotic.

Now, when one of the most decorated veterans in America questions the planning and the direction of this war, what is he called? Unpatriotic.

I do not believe the Republican Caucus is unpatriotic, but I do believe this evening they are pathetic. Our country demands answers about how to win this war and to get our troops home safely.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE).

Ms. GINNY BROWN-WAITE of Florida. Mr. Speaker, what we have before us tonight is not an attack on any one Member. It is not about politics, but it is about whether or not you support our troops who are in harm's way.

When I was in Iraq, I will never forget a nurse coming up to me in a hospital that had been pretty darn damaged and neglected by Saddam Hussein, and she said, please do not leave. I thought she was talking about me not leaving the hospital, and I said to her, I have to go. She said, no, I do not mean you; I want your troops to stay until our country is safe, until our country is secure. I will never forget that.

That message has been relayed time and time again from the troops who come home, who say we cannot leave prematurely. We do have an exit strategy. It is when the Iraqi people can control their own country. When the Iraqi people stand up, we will stand down. That nurse will never disappoint.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I spent 3 years making the case against the war in Iraq, working with other Members of the committee to forge a resolution to end the war, developing the strategy once we got in, working with colleagues on both sides of the aisle on plans to withdraw from Iraq, to bring our troops home, but I will vote against this resolution because it is a fraud.

What more does anyone need to know but that the sponsor himself has called for defeat of his own proposition? If his real intention is to bring the troops home right now, why would he vote against his own bill?

Wake up, America. The American people are fed up with politicians who say one thing and do another. Everyone of conscience and intelligence knows the magnitude of withdrawing 150,000 troops.

The American people deserve a real debate on Iraq. Where are the WMDs? Where is Osama bin Laden? What did Iraq have to do with 9/11?

This Congress, which is a coequal branch of government, which has the war power, has the oversight responsibility and has a moral obligation to find out why almost everything of significance we were told about the war turned out to be false. Instead, those who raise questions have their military service or their honor impugned.

They took JOHN KERRY on a swift boat. We are not going to let them take JACK MUKHTA on a swift boat, nor are the American people. We have to stand up and expose the fakery when we see it.

ANALYSIS OF JOINT RESOLUTION ON IRAQ BY DENNIS J. KUCINICH

The following is an analysis of the resolution which took America to war in Iraq.

October 2, 2002. Whereas in 1990 in response to Iraq's war of aggression against an illegal occupation of Kuwait, the United States forged a coalition of nations to liberate Kuwait and its people in order to defend the national security of the United States and enforce United Nations Security Council resolutions regarding Iraq; whereas the United States then launched a cruise missile attack against Iraq 48 hours after the United Nations deadline expired; whereas the United States continued its punitive missile attacks; whereas the United States in the first week of the Gulf War had already launched nearly 700 cruise missiles; whereas the United States continued to hit targets in Iraq for 78 days; whereas Iraq both poses a continuing threat to the national security of the United States and international peace and security, declared Iraq to be in material and unacceptable breach of its international obligations; and urged the President “to take appropriate action, in accordance with the Constitution and relevant laws of the United States, to bring Iraq into compliance with its international obligations” (Public Law 105-235). Whereas Iraq posses a continuing threat to the national security of the United States and international peace and security in the Persian Gulf region and remains in material and unacceptable breach of its international obligations by, among other things, continuing to possess and develop a significant chemical and biological weapons capability, actively seeking a nuclear weapons capability, and supporting and harboring terrorist organizations; and whereas Iraq persists in violating resolutions of the United Nations Security Council by continuing to engage in brutal repression of its civilian population thereby threatening international peace in the region, by refusing to release, repatriate, or account for non-Iraqi citizens wrongfully detained by Iraq, including an American serviceman, and by failing to return property wrongfully seized by Iraq from Kuwait;

Mr. Speaker, what has happened in Iraq is a device to divide Americans. It is when the Iraqi people can control their own country, when the Iraqi people stand up, we will stand down.

Key issues: Mr. Speaker, what has happened in Iraq is a device to divide Americans. It is when the Iraqi people can control their own country, when the Iraqi people stand up, we will stand down. This was rushed to the floor in the Republicans' hopes of dividing Democrats, but unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, what it has proven to be is a device to divide Americans. It is when the Iraqi people can control their own country, when the Iraqi people stand up, we will stand down. This was rushed to the floor in the Republicans' hopes of dividing Democrats, but unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, what it has proven to be is a device to divide Americans.
mass destruction. Though in 2002 at the Arab Summit, Iraq and Kuwait agreed to bilaterally negotiate to work out all claims relating to stolen property and prisoners of war. This use-of-force resolution enabled the President to commit U.S. troops to recover Kuwaiti property.

Whereas the current Iraqi regime has demonstrated continuing hostility toward, and willingness to attack, the United States, including by attempting in 1993 to assassinate President Bush and within hours of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, to attack United States Armed Forces, the United States, acting on behalf of the United Nations Security Council, has repeatedly resolved to take all necessary means to enforce United Nations Security Council Resolution 660 and subsequent resolutions.

Whereas Congress in the Authorization for Use of Military Force Against Iraq Resolution (Public Law 102-11) has authorized the President “to use United States Armed Forces to repel any armed attack against the United States or its Armed Forces in response to an attack against United States Armed Forces requesting such response, or to deter such an attack if the President determines that Iraq has planned, authorized, committed, or aided the terrorist attacks that occurred on September 11, 2001, or harbored such persons or organizations.”

Key issue: The Administration has not provided Congress with any proof that Iraq is in any way connected to the events of 9/11. The President and Congress are determined to continue to take all appropriate actions against international terrorist organizations and terrorist organizations, including Al Qaeda, which threaten the lives and safety of American citizens.

Key issue: The Administration has not provided Congress with any proof that Iraq is in any way connected to the events of 9/11. The President and Congress are determined to continue to take all appropriate actions against international terrorist organizations and terrorist organizations, including Al Qaeda, which threaten the lives and safety of American citizens.

Key issue: Congress has taken steps to pursue vigorously the war on terrorism through the Authorization for Use of Military Against Iraq Resolution of 2002. Congress recognized in the joint resolution on Authorization for Use of Military Force (Public Law 107-40); and

Key issue: This resolution was specific to 9/11. It was limited to a response to 9/11. Whereas in the national security of the United States to restore international peace and security to the Persian Gulf region;

Key issue: If by the “national security interests of the United States” the Administration means oil, it ought to communicate such to the Congress. A unilateral attack on Iraq by the United States will cause instability and chaos in the region and sow the seeds of future conflicts all over the world. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE. This joint resolution may be cited as the “Authorization for the Use of Military Force Against Iraq.”

SEC. 2. SUPPORT FOR UNITED STATES DIPLOMATIC EFFORTS The Congress of the United States supports the efforts by the President to:

(a) strictly enforce through the United Nations Security Council all relevant Security Council resolutions applicable to Iraq and encourages him to pursue such enforcement; and

(b) obtain prompt and decisive action by the Security Council to ensure that Iraq abandons its strategy of delay, diversion and noncompliance and promptly and strictly complies with all relevant Security Council resolutions.

The Congress of the United States can and should support this clause. However Section 3 (which follows) undermines the effectiveness of this Key issue: The Iraqi regime has never attacked nor does it have the capability to attack the United States. The “no fly” zone was not the result of a UN Security Council directive. It was illegally imposed by the United States, Great Britain and France and is not specifically sanctioned by any Security Council resolution.

Whereas members of al Qaida, an organization bearing responsibility for attacks on the United States, its citizens, and interests, including the attacks that occurred on September 11, 2001, are known to be in Iraq.

Key issue: There is no credible intelligence that connects Iraq to the events of 9/11 or to participation in those events by assisting Al Qaeda.

Whereas Iraq continues to aid and harbor other international terrorist organizations, including those organizations that threaten the lives and safety of American citizens;

Key issue: Any connection between Iraq and the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks is an argument for focusing great resources on legislation to work for the necessary resolutions, to achieve the goals of United Nations Security Council Resolution 660 and subsequent resolutions.

Whereas in December 1991, Congress expressed its sense that it “supports the use of all necessary means to achieve the goals of United Nations Resolution 660 and to ensure that Iraq does not obtain weapons of mass destruction and any other means of delivering them to international terrorists who would do so, and that Congress does not support the use of all necessary means to achieve the goals of United Nations Security Council Resolution 660 and subsequent resolutions except as consistent with the Authorization for Use of Military Force Against Iraq Resolution (Public Law 102-11), that Iraq’s continued denial of its association with international terrorists is contrary to United Nations Security Council Resolution 668 and constitutes a continuing threat to the peace, security, and stability of the Persian Gulf region;” and that Congress, “supports the use of all necessary means to achieve the goals of United Nations Security Council Resolution 660 and subsequent resolutions.”

Key issue: This clause demonstrates the proper chronology of the international process, and contrasts the current march to war. In 1991, the UN Security Council passed a resolution asking for enforcement of its resolution. Member countries authorized their troops to participate in a UN-led coalition to enforce the UN resolutions. Now the President is asking Congress to authorize a unilateral first strike before the UN Security Council has asked its member states to enforce UN resolutions.

Whereas the Iraq Liberation Act (Public Law 105-338) expressed the sense of Congress that it should be the policy of the United States Armed Forces to support independent Iraqi forces to secure freedom from the power the current Iraqi regime and promote the emergence of a democratic government to replace that regime.

Key issue: This “Sense of Congress” resolution was not binding. Furthermore, while Congress supported democratic means of removing Saddam Hussein it clearly did not endorse the use of force contemplated in this resolution, nor did it endorse assassination as a policy.

Whereas on September 12, 2002, President Bush committed the United States to “work with the United Nations Security Council to meet our common challenge” posed by Iraq and to “work for the necessary resolutions...” while also making clear that “the Security Council resolutions will be enforced, and the just demands of peace and security will be met, or action will be unavoidable”;

Whereas the United States is determined to prosecute the war on terrorism and Iraq’s ongoing support for international terrorists, the development of weapons of mass destruction in direct violation of its obligations under the 1991 ceasefire and other United Nations Security Council resolutions.

Whereas it is in the national security interests of the United States and in furtherance of the war on terrorism that all relevant United Nations Security Council resolutions be enforced, including through the use of force if necessary; section. Any peaceful settlement requires Iraq compliance. The totality of this resolution indicates the Administration will wage war against Iraq no matter what. This underlines the President’s decision to use U.S. armed forces against Iraq as he determines to be necessary and appropriate in order to:

1. Defend the national security of the United States against the continuing threat posed by Iraq; and

Key issue: This clause is substantially similar to the authorization that the President originally sought.

It gives authority to the President to act prior to and even without a UN resolution, and it authorizes the President to use U.S. troops to enforce UN resolutions even without UN request for it. This is a violation of Chapter VII of the UN Charter, which reserves the ability to authorize force for that purpose to the Security Council, alone.

SEC. 3. AUTHORIZATION FOR USE OF UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES.

Authorization.—The President is authorized to use the Armed Forces of the United States as he determines to be necessary and appropriate in order to:

1. Defend the national security of the United States against the continuing threat posed by Iraq; and

The Security Council may decide that military force would be required to use the Armed Forces of the United States as he determines to be necessary and appropriate in order to:

1. Stop or prevent the use of weapons that are expected to be required after such actions are completed, including those actions described in section 7 of Public Law 106-338 (the Iraq Liberation Act).
2. Protect U.S. nationals and interests.
3. Take such action by air, sea, or land as may be necessary and appropriate.
4. Conclude and in accordance with a special agreement add to the request of the United Nations Security Council Resolutions regarding Iraq.

The President shall, at least once every 30 days, submit to the Congress a report on the status of planning for efforts that are expected to be required after such actions are completed, including those actions described in section 7 of Public Law 106-338 (the Iraq Liberation Act).

The President is authorized to use the Armed Forces of the United States as he determines to be necessary and appropriate in order to:

1. Enforce all relevant United Nations Security Council Resolutions regarding Iraq, and
2. Act pursuant to this resolution in accordance with the United States and other countries continuing to take the necessary actions against international terrorists and terrorist organizations.

The President is authorized, committed or aided the terrorist attacks that occurred on September 11, 2001.

(c) War Powers Resolution Requirements.

1. Specific statutory authorizing.—Consistent with the War Powers Resolution, the Congress declares that this section is intended to constitute specific statutory authorization within the meaning of section 5 (b) of the War Powers Resolution.

2. Applicability of other requirements.—Nothing in this resolution supersedes any requirement of the War Powers Resolution.

SEC. 4. REPORTS TO CONGRESS.

(a) The President shall, at least once every 60 days, submit to the Congress a report on matters relevant to this joint resolution, including actions taken pursuant to the exercise of authority granted in section 2 and the status of plans that are expected to be required after such actions are completed, including those actions described in section 7 of Public Law 106-338 (the Iraq Liberation Act), such reports may be submitted as a single consolidated report to the Congress.

(b) To the extent that the submission of any report described in subsection (a) coincides with the submission of any other report on matters relevant to this joint resolution otherwise required to be submitted to Congress pursuant to the reporting requirements of Public Law 93-148 (the War Powers Resolution), such reports may be submitted as a single consolidated report to the Congress.

(c) To the extent that the information required by section 3 of Public Law 106-1 is included in the report required by this section, such report shall be considered as meeting the requirements of section 3 of Public Law 106-1.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Mrs. MILLER).

Mrs. MILLER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I certainly thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, since the start of Operation Iraqi Freedom, the goal of this Nation has been the same, to topple the dictatorship of Saddam Hussein and bring freedom to the Iraqi people.

Our coalition forces were successful in bringing down Saddam, and today he is facing the justice of the Iraqi people in a country that is beginning to understand and to live under the rule of law, not the rule of a barbaric and brutal dictator.

Today the people of Iraq have elected an interim government that drafted a Constitution, subsequently approved by the Iraqi people, and on December 15 they will again go to the polls to elect a permanent Parliament. None of this could have been achieved without the sacrifice of the brave men and women who serve in our armed services.

While we have been working to establish a democratic government, we have also been working to reestablish the Iraqi Army and security forces, and when the Iraqi forces are ready, our troops will come home, their mission accomplished.

The question before the Congress today is shall we pull our troops out now before their mission is complete. Let us examine just for a second the consequences of such action.

If our forces leave now, we would empower terrorists such as Zarqawi to spread violence against innocent civilians, unchecked. Iraq could then devolve into anarchy and become a base of terror operations. That is the question, and that is the risk, and I believe that this fight for the sake of democracy is the heart of their power, not in the streets of America.

Mr. Speaker, many of the same Members who voted in 2002 to support this effort now say that the President misled them. If they actually believe such an outrageous allegation, why did the President not just simply plant weapons of mass destruction in Iraq while he was at it? This whole train of thought is абсолютно nuts. That just looked at the same intelligence, and they cannot simply rewrite history.

Mr. Speaker, with our assistance Iraq is making remarkable progress, and when our American forces do come home, they will come home as heroes, and our Nation will be more secure. I urge my colleagues to support this rule.

Mrs. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 1 ½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS).

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I represent over 40,000 patriotic Americans who have served in Iraq. Over 200 Army soldiers have given their lives there. I revere them, their service and their sacrifice, and that is exactly why I believe a vote on war is the single most solemn responsibility we ever have as a Member of Congress.

Yet tonight the House leadership, on a partisan basis, has forced each Member of Congress on average 7.8 seconds. That is right, 7.8 seconds to speak his or her conscience on whether or not we should keep or remove our troops from Iraq.

This process, especially without a single hearing, a single witness, on a resolution just introduced a few hours ago, does a disservice to the enormity of the issue of war and peace before us, to the integrity of this House, and to the sacrifice of our service men and women now in harm’s way.

In 1991, when this House debated whether to go to war in Iraq, and I was in that debate, Speaker Foley gave each Member of the House 5 minutes, and the country was mesmerized by the voices of conscience on each side. What was the result? When the vote was cast, the country was united and the troops I represented knew their Nation was behind them.

But this partisan process tonight does a disservice to our troops. It divides our Nation, and it divides this Congress. If we are going to debate the issue, the solemn issue of war and peace, let us do it the right way. Vote "no" on this resolution and let every Member of the House have the right to voice his or her conscience.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. RENZI), a proud veteran.

Mr. RENZI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding me this time.

I want to be honest with a lot of people in this House. My father served this Nation for 34 years. He has been friends with Jack Murtha for 20 years. Our families have known each other for over 20 years.

Jack Murtha’s resolution calls for a redeployment. Jack Murtha’s Web site talks about redeployment. DUNCAN HUNTER’s resolution talks about immediate withdrawal. They are two separate issues. Both men do not impugn each other’s character.

The President has taken Mr. Murtha’s idea and spun it into immediate withdrawal, and that message may not be the message that our troops need to hear from this Congress. We need to be straight, and we need to be honest with each other.

Leading up to this, there have been individuals who have come down here and have been insightful. We have got some tough guys in the House who want to say that this President manipulated prewar intelligence. Sandy Berger said, Saddam Hussein will use his weapons of mass destruction and he will use them again probably 10 times. Madeleine Albright said, He jeopardizes his weapons of mass destruction and he will and he will use them in our region.

But I ask this question: Why have I not heard any objections to our operations in Afghanistan? Twenty-five million people liberated and free and living on free soil, voting for their own freedom and their own national destiny, a cost of 200 American lives. Nobody set a value on that. How many is too many in Afghanistan?

Twenty-five million Iraqis free, voting on free soil for the first time in their real lives, and what does this mean to America? It means that we have erased some of the habitat that breeds terror. Do we not understand that?

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. KING).

Mr. KING of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding me this time. I appreciate the opportunity to address this House and the opportunity for us all to sit and listen to this debate.

I hear a couple of different numbers, 25,000 wounded but 15,000 wounded coming from the same side of the aisle. I am wondering if that is indicative of something else besides the other statistics that we have heard.

But I ask this question: Why have I not heard any objections to our operations in Afghanistan? Twenty-five million people liberated and free and living on free soil, voting for their own freedom and their own national destiny, a cost of 200 American lives. Nobody set a value on that. How many is too many in Afghanistan?

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EMANUEL).

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, in the last week, two Vietnam veterans, one Democrat, one Republican, one in the House, one in the Senate, came to the same conclusion: the present course is not succeeding and is not working. Both have different solutions and different recommendations. Senator Hagel has his. Congressman Murtha has his. Congressman McCain has his. But what all of them have in common is that the present course is not succeeding. Doing more of the same and expecting a different result is failing our troops and failing our country.

These policies and the policies the President has are not succeeding. But the reason each of these men has come forward with a recommendation is because we are offered is more of the same. It is a policy void of leading us to a strategy of success and victory and departure. This is not a discussion about relitigating the past. It is a debate about how we succeed and exit, not about how we are in, but how we get out with victory.

Now, I would think that after a series of the last 2½ years, what we can be criticized for here in this House is not for raising questions but for not having raised questions. We have given the administration an appropriated $450 billion, everything they have asked for. They have gotten everything from this Congress. Our role is to appropriate. We have appropriated. What we have not demanded and we deserve criticism for not having had oversight, not having asked questions. That is where the fault lies in this House, because we did not ask the questions.

What do we have? We appropriated $450 billion, 2,000 troops in Iraq, 200 more in Afghanistan, 15,000 fellow citizens wounded, and we have a single Iraqi battalion to show for it?

We have a job to ask the questions in oversight. We abdicated our response. This is a course tonight to begin to ask and to begin debate because for 2½ years this Congress was silent in its role and the American people have asked us and demanded of us to speak up to the responsibility in our sworn oath and responsibilities.

Whether it is Kevlar vests; whether it is Humvees; whether it is the Secretary of Defense, who originally said only 75,000 troops were needed; whether it was the President, who said this would be 7 days and a short war, our men and women deserve a policy of success and victory and exit so they can come home to their families. And tonight we are having, finally, some debate, but we also need an utterance of our responsibility and some oversight of what goes on.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Wilson).

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague from Georgia for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I am here in the role of a parent. I am very proud that my oldest son served in the field artillery of the Army National Guard for a year in Iraq. He saw the progress of building a civil society in Iraq to protect American families. I am also grateful my fourth son has indicated that next year he will be enlisting in the marines.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. Biggert).

But first I want to state for the record that I have a great deal of respect for the gentleman from Pennsylvania. I do not believe that this resolution is about him or anyone else in this Chamber. This resolution is about our troops, our mission, and our commitment to finishing the job in Iraq and Afghanistan. This resolution is about communicating to the world where the Members of this Chamber stand on immediate withdrawal of our troops from Iraq.

A number of my colleagues and I visited with the women of the armed forces in Iraq and Afghanistan. One woman lost her son and her bodyguard to assassination. Another was kidnapped and finally returned after a ransom was paid for her. Still others told harrowing stories about the pressures brought upon them simply because they were exercising the kind of rights that we take for granted.

Mr. Speaker, the one thing that these brave women told us repeatedly was this: do not leave us. Do not leave us until we have a stable government. Do not leave us like you did before in 1990 after the gulf war, and do not leave us until we have the security that a stable government will provide.

Let us honor this commitment. Let us honor our troops. Let us be clear of our intentions. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and reject the undermining resolution.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDO).

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, please let us tonight think about what we have accomplished, not in terms of what we have up in front of us, but what we have accomplished so far.

Did we know that 42 countries have reestablished embassies in Iraq? Did the Members know that 3,100 schools have been renovated? Did the Members know that Iraq’s higher education structure consists of 20 universities, 46 institutes or colleges, and four research centers, all operating? Did the Members know that 25 Iraqi students departed for the United States in January to reestablish the Fulbright program? Did the Members know that the Department of Defense has three operational bases in Iraq? Did the Members know that the Iraqi Air Force consists of three operational squadrons? Did the Members know that Iraq has a counterterrorist unit and a commando battalion?

Did the Members know that the Iraqi police service has over 55,000 fully trained and equipped police officers? Did the Members know that there are five police academies in Iraq that produce over 3,500 new officers every 8 weeks? Did the Members know that Iraq’s independent media, which consists of 75 radio stations, 180 newspapers, 10 television stations? Did the Members know that two candidates in the Iraqi presidential election had a televised debate recently?

We have accomplished a great deal. We are on the road to success. I, like every other American, I am sure everybody in this room, want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow. I want every American home tomorrow.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. JONES).

Mr. JONES of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, today my heart has ached more than it has in 12 years in being in the United States Congress. It has ached during this debate, because we should be having this debate, but not at this time of day, it should happen after the recess, but because the gentleman from Pennsylvania whom I think is a great American, and it has hurt my heart that he has been under attack unfairly.

Surely anyone who has ever worn the uniform for this Nation should be able to express themselves. And if you have not worn the uniform, you should be able to express yourself. Our Armed Forces are in Iraq and Afghanistan tonight fighting for freedom.

Let me share with Members what James Webb, Secretary of Navy under Ronald Reagan and Vietnam veteran, wrote me when I joined my colleagues on the other side and the Republican side in voting for the House Resolution 55, bipartisan, he wrote me this letter, and I will read three sentences. “When American citizens are being asked to war, it is their most basic right that the strategic issues be explained in an understandable manner. And if the endpoint cannot be clearly explained, there is, in fact, no really strategy.”

That is what Mr. MURTHA is asking for. That is what Senator FINGOLD is asking for. That is what Walter Jones and Ron Paul and Dennis Kucinich and Neil Abercrombie are asking: Tell us what the strategy is.

I close with this. This is so ironic that we are having this debate tonight because on April 9, 1999, Governor Bush criticized President Clinton for not having a strategy. This is his quote in the Houston Chronicle: “Victory means exit strategy, and it is important for the President to explain to the American people what the exit strategy is.” That is all we are asking for.

My last quote is from the New York Times on June 6, 1999. “I think it is also important for the President to lay out a timetable as to how long they will be involved and when they will be withdrawn.” That is Governor Bush asking President Clinton. Tonight we are asking President Bush the same thing he asked President Clinton.

God, please bless our men and women in uniform; and please, God bless America.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds.

Mr. Speaker, I remind the gentleman from North Carolina that this resolution is not an attack on any Member of this body. This resolution is about an attack on those Islamic Fascist terrorists who would destroy the men and women who are defending this country.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN).

(Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, calling for the immediate withdrawal or even a phased, detailed plan for withdrawal from Iraq is a recipe for absolute disaster. It is the wrong message for our soldiers and marines who are truly doing the work of freedom in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Frankly, I am concerned, as we all should be, that such talk will only embolden the terrorists and demoralize our warfighters, those who literally put their lives on the line each and every day. Domestic politics should not trump our promises to the people of Iraq and Afghanistan that we would be loyal to their aspirations for freedom, that we would see them through the difficult steps of constituting new governments and laying the groundwork for free elections.

Our only exit strategy from Iraq should be victory. Anything less than that virtually guarantees the next battle and may be closer to home. We need to support our troops, these young troops. We cannot cut their feet out from underneath them. They need our support, and they need it tonight.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GENE GREEN).

Mr. GENE GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, Jack Murtha is a decorated Vietnam war veteran. He is a United States Marine, retired colonel. This debate is not about the Iraq war, it is about silencing the opinion of a respected veteran marine and Member of Congress.

I supported the Iraq war resolution and voted for every defense appropriation for that effort, and I am voting against this resolution. But we know with each casualty from Iraq that something is wrong. Our men and women in uniform are fighting heroically, and I honor them and their families for their sacrifice.

It is civilian leadership and this administration and the Department of Defense that did not prepare to fight this war with either material or enough troops. I may not totally agree with my colleague from Pennsylvania, but I know him as a respected, decorated war veteran and a Member of Congress, and he has earned that right to be able to give his opinion without having a resolution attack him or have the Members attack him personally.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Nevada (Mr. GIBBONS).

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, as a veteran of two wars, I know that our military men and women fighting overseas watch what we do right here all the time. They see this on TV, they hear it on the radio, and they read our words in the newspapers. I know our brave men and women want to see their brave leaders, us, those of us in Congress here at home, have the political fortitude, yes, indeed the political stomach, to support their actions abroad.

Like many in this Chamber from both sides of the aisle, I have been to Iraq, I have been to Afghanistan, I have met with our troops there, and I have met with them as they have returned home to Nevada. They know, see, hear and read what we are doing in Congress, and they are listening to us today.

What message do you want to send these soldiers on the front line? A message of surrender or a message of strength and support, that will bring us victory. Some call this vote simply symbolic or political. Well, you call it what you want, but I want our troops overseas to read about this vote.

To hear about this vote.

I hope we can demonstrate not through just words, but our actions, that we are with them in this hour.

We will remain with them, and supply them, and support them, until the job is done, until we are victorious, and until we can proudly bring them home and applaud their victory.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, how do you withdraw from the war on terror when we have been attacked over and over and over again? We were attacked at the World Trade Centers, the first time by a bomb. Then our African embassies were attacked; the Khobar Towers in Saudi Arabia where our young men and women were killed; the Cole naval vessel; and then 9/11.

How do you tell Osama bin Laden and Zarqawi that we do not want to participate, we do not want to fool with these men on the front line?

The last administration tried that, and we felt the pain of death and destruction on 9/11 from terrorist murderers' hands. We have to win in Iraq. By the way, we won the war in Iraq. Now we are fighting with our allies in Iraq to defeat terror. If we do not win in Iraq, we will fail in the greater Middle East, and what happens if Pakistan falls? What happens if Saudi Arabia falls? Weapons of mass destruction in the hands of Islamic extremists will be a disaster for the world.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST).

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I would like to remind the Member what the focus of our attention should be: David Branning, Dale Burger, Robert Guy, Jason Mileo, Adam Mooney, Samuel Bowen, Jarrett Thompson, Patrick Adle, Neil Prince, and Keith Mariotti.

They are the dead, short days ago they lived, felt dawn and saw sunset glow, and now they lie in Flanders Field, from my district.

What are they asking us with a sense of urgency for the living? What are the quick and the dead asking us to do: Know more than they did.

Why are our troops successful in harm's way? Because our troops bond together with an integration of integrity bound with trust.

Let us debate how to finish the war, not how to continue to fight the war.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, a little over 24 hours ago, an American military hero suggested to this country that this Congress should debate the current policy in Iraq. He had some suggestions on how that policy should be changed. He believed, as we believe him, that he was doing this for the sake of our troops, for the sake of our country, for security in the Middle East, and the security of this country.

In those 24 hours, he has come under unrelenting attack, characterizing him as an individual, as a Member of Congress, as to his motives, as to what he proposed, as opposed to what he said he proposed. Those attacks came from the President of the United States, from the Vice President of the United States, from the Speaker of the House, and from so many Members of this body who challenged his patriotism, who proposed his character and challenged his integrity because he simply dared to kick open the doors of Congress and suggest that we debate the pressing question of this Nation that the people of this Nation want us to debate. Not that we would win that debate, but that we would have that debate to take place, and that for that, all of his years of service to this country were openly challenged and mis-characterized and slandered.

I do not know where we went wrong. I do not know where we went wrong because I went through the debates in this Congress in Vietnam and Central America, and Mr. MURTHA and I could not be on more opposite sides of those issues. And many people I served with in the history of this Congress, but never in those debates did people assassinate the character of one another. We challenged the evidence, we challenged the assumptions. We challenged what was said, but we never ever, ever, did respect one another because we respected one another, having differing views coming from different parts of the country with different backgrounds.

Where did we go wrong? Maybe tonight Mr. MURTHA gave us another gift. Sometimes when you hit bottom, you change the ways you do business. Maybe Mr. MURTHA gave us this. After all that he suffered over this last 48 hours, maybe this Congress will be a better place, because everyone sitting in this Congress knows who knows JACK MURTHA what has been said about him in the last 24 hours would not be said from this place. They call him a hero. That man is a hero to this Nation. You know it and the whole Nation knows it.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

H11003

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER).

Mr. ROHRABACHER. With all due respect to my friends on the other side of the aisle, especially my friend who just left, I applaud you at its worst. I can remember the very people now crying these crocodile tears and the vilification that they put forward on Ronald Reagan for trying to stop the Communists in Latin America, trying to end the Cold War. He was vilifying a war hero, et cetera, by the very people who now are making these statements.

Let me note JACK MURTHA. I have the greatest respect for him. He is a patriot. But let me thus note that how many times have the people who are saying this have been down here calling our President a liar and vilifying the President of the United States. Come on. Let’s be fair to one another here. The fact is there is a disagreement between us and it will break when we see in the newspaper that four or five more Americans have lost their lives. That does not mean the cause that they are fighting for is unjust.

You had an opportunity tonight to discuss that cause if you were opposed to the war. But instead what we have heard is this type of rhetoric, getting around the issue of the discussion that we should be talking about, the war, and then, in partisan terms, trying to make it partisan saying that we are losing our troops and then, in partisan terms, trying to say the cause if you were opposed to this, the war.

I hope that we reject this rule and this resolution.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GOHMERT).

Mr. GOHMERT. John Adams wrote to Abigail back in the summer of 1776, “The thing that philosophers up to now have only dreamed about is within our grasp, the concept of self-government.”

And, folks, in the cradle of mankind there in Trible mere is willed by our grasp because of what we have done in the name of liberty and destroying terrorism, it is so close. This is not about one Member of Congress who was a hero in Vietnam. This is about a message that is being sent to the world. Right after the majority leader’s district that she represents and leads told the world, The military is beneath us. Mamas, don’t let your babies grow up to defend this Nation and the liberty. San Francisco said no recruiters in our city, a terrible view. I view this bill by let’s get our troops out and not support them.

Join with us as you did in singing a prayer, God Bless America. Let the terrorrists know. We don’t want to divide you. We want to unite you with us.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. OSBORNE).

Mr. OSBORNE. The leadership of this Congress has been a continuing disappointment for the liberal party. It suggests an alternative war, let it be personal. No, let it be partisan saying that we are losing our sons and daughters and then, in partisan terms, trying to stop the Communists in Latin America, trying to end the Cold War. But instead what we have heard is this type of rhetoric, getting around the issue of the discussion, that we should be talking about, the war, of cause if you were opposed to this, the war. But instead what we have heard is this type of rhetoric, getting around the issue of the discussion, that we should be talking about, the war, and then, in partisan terms, trying to make it partisan saying that we are losing our troops and then, in partisan terms, trying to say the cause if you were opposed to this, the war.

I hope that we reject this rule and this resolution.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. FORTENBERRY).

Mr. FORTENBERRY. (Mr. FORTENBERRY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Army Captain Joel Cahill was buried in Arlington Cemetery today. Captain Cahill was killed in Iraq by an explosive device. He grew up near Omaha. He leaves behind Mary his wife and their two little girls.

Army Specialist Darren Howe was laid to rest in Beatrice, Nebraska last week. He died in Iraq by an explosive device. He grew up near Omaha. He leaves behind Mary his wife and their two little girls.

I spoke with JoDee, Darren’s mom, in what had to be some of her most difficult hours following Darren’s death.
Mr. Speaker, the Republican Senator from Ohio, Robert Taft, who would become the Republican leader of the Senate said, “Criticism in a time of war is essential to the maintenance of any democratic government. Indeed, Mr. MURTHA’s courageous action to speak truth to power is a great act of patriotism.

As one who has always had the interests of America’s men and women in uniform as his top priority, Mr. MURTHA has acted as always does: in their interests. Let us all join him in saluting our troops for their courage, their patriotism, and the sacrifice that they are willing to make, and thank Jack Murtha for his loyalty to them.

Mr. GINGREY, Mr. Speaker, in closing, it is important to restate for the morale of our troops that this Congress and this country remain resolved in the war against terrorism. From the streets of Iraq to the mountains of Afghanistan, America will never leave any spider hole, no palace, no bunker overlooked as we help freedom-loving people fight the terrorist insurgencies of Islamofascists and protect democracy worldwide.

Our greatest loss would be to withdraw our troops, thereby ceding victory to cowardly terrorists who murder and hide under the cover of shadows.

Mr. Speaker, over 2,000 of our best and bravest have fought and sacrificed their lives in defense of democracy and in the face of these terrorists. These individuals deserve our thanks and their families need to know that they did not die in vain.

Mr. Speaker, a lot of words have been thrown about in this Chamber tonight, but talk is often cheap. And while cheap talk abounds, unfortunately, cheap talk is not bounded, it is not insulated by oceans or mountains, and certainly not now.

The words of this Congress and its Members echo out beyond this hallowed Chamber, beyond these hallowed Halls to every household and to every foreign shore.

Our troops are listening, Mr. Speaker. They hear those who denigrate their mission. They hear those who rely on the false pillar of semantics, seeking to divide the American people.

Well, Mr. Speaker, our troops are listening tonight, and while talk is cheap, our vote is sacrosanct. So I call on my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to put their vote on the RECORD and put the rhetoric aside.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the rule. Let us have this debate for the sake of our troops.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TERRY). The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 210, nays 202, not voting 22, as follows:
Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois changed 2 minutes left in this vote.
this war should end. The consequences of our retreat have not been discussed here tonight, but they deserve consideration.

This debate has been a report card on Jack Murtha, and I give him an A-plus as a member of this body. For showing his many fine qualities, infallibility is not one. And on Iraq I prefer my country not to retreat, not to run to the high grass.

I prefer the counsel of John McCain, who said last week, "If we leave Iraq prematurely, the jihadists will interpret the withdrawal as their great victory against our great power. Osama bin Laden and his followers believe that America is weak, unwilling to suffer casualties in battle. They drew this lesson from Lebanon in the 1980s and Somalia in the 1990s, and today they have their sights set squarely on Iraq."

The recently released letter from Ayman al-Zawahiri, bin Laden's lieutenant, and Osama al-Zarqawi, draws out the implications.

The Zawahiri letter is predicated on the assumption that the United States will leave Iraq and that al Qaeda's real game begins as soon as we abandon the country.

In his missive, Zawahiri lays out a four-stage plan: establish a caliphate in Iraq, extend the "jihad wave" to the secular countries neighboring Iraq, clash with Israel, none of which shall commence until the completion of stage one: expel the Americans from Iraq.

Zawahiri observes that the collapse of American power in Vietnam "and how they ran and left their agents, of American power in Vietnam, the epicome of patriotism, not of the oratorical type, but patriotism on the field of battle."

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA) the balance of the time for him to control.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TERRY). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I think what we are doing tonight has a very valuable message. It is not necessarily a message to diplomats or to the President or even to our adversaries; although I am sure that they will read about it. But it is a message to that specialist in Tikrit, to that lance corporal in Fallujah, to that sergeant in Baghdad who feels by looking at the mass of press over the last several days that somehow we are slipping away from our warfighters.

We have an opportunity to do something tonight by very simply voting "no" on this question of whether we should leave Iraq immediately to at least cut through that ambiguity, to at least cut through that confusion, and you know, words mean something.

Wars have been started because we said the wrong words. Confusion is not something that is good to sow among your enemy or your friends.

In this case, even those who may feel that somehow the troops are not fused by this mixed message that is coming out of the United States must agree that it is right now to send that specialist in Tikrit or that lance corporal in Fallujah or that sergeant in Baghdad a clear and convincing "no" vote on the question of whether we leave Iraq immediately.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON).

(Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks regarding this resolution.)

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose this resolution. I have been in this body 19 years, and I did not support setting artificial dates to remove our troops from Bosnia, Somalia, Kosovo, East Timor, Macedonia and all the other times that we have deployed our troops.

In fact, even when we were told back in 1999 that the year after we removed Bosnia, that our troops would be home by Christmas, I did not rise to bring them home. We were told in Christmas of 1998 they would be home and Christmas of 1999. The fact is we still have troops in the Balkans. They have been there 10 years, even though it was not part of the original plan.

Mr. Speaker, all of us support our troops, but I want to tell my colleagues, in my 19 years I learned a lesson of supporting the troops from the gentleman from Pennsylvania. He took me under his wing when I came here as a freshman 19 years ago. I have traveled with him around the world. I have seen his personal dedication to the men and women who serve in this body.
have tried to do that in the other 48 deployments in the 19 years that I have been here, but it is wrong. Mr. Speaker, that a gentleman with the reputation and leadership of JACK MURTHA should have to wait 5 months to get a response to a letter expressing his concerns to the administration. That is not right.

So, Mr. Speaker, I would hope we would all come together, and I would hope that our Commander in Chief would invite the good gentleman from Pennsylvania to the White House to have a discussion about how we can move forward together to support the troops and win the day in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Somebody walked by not long ago, and they said, I do not have to go to your funeral because I paid my dues today with all these people giving these accolades.

I have to tell you this story. When you start getting all these accolades, you think you are a big shot. I remember one time President Carter asked me to go with him to Europe to watch the World Series with him. Tip O'Neill and I went down, and there were only 4 of us and 15 Secret Service people in the plane.

We got in this helicopter and, of course, flew over all these other people going to the ballgame. Well, Carter was not the most pleasant guy to be with. He wanted to talk all business, and Tip O'Neill wanted to talk nothing but baseball.

So we get about halfway there, and it is not a very long trip to Baltimore. Tip finally got him warmed up. We land, and we only land a block away from the stadium, but we had to have an armored car drive us in. So the President said, you sit in the middle there, Murtha, and Tip sat on the left side, and the President sat on the right side. Some guy yelled out some obscenities. He said, My God, they must have synchronizing lights in the car.

Let me say, this resolution today is not what I envisioned, not what I introduced, and let me read what I introduced on November 17.

Whereas Congress and the American people have not been shown clear, measurable progress toward establishment of stable and improving security in Iraq or of a stable and improving economy in Iraq, both of which are essential to promote the emergence of a democratic government;

Whereas additional stabilization in Iraq by U.S. military forces cannot be achieved without the deployment of hundreds of thousands of additional U.S. troops, which in turn cannot be achieved without a military draft;

Now, let me say this. There were two of us who voted for a military draft, so I do not think that is an option. When you go to the high schools, they say, you are for a draft. I said, yes, but there is not too many of us, so I do not think you have to worry about it.

Whereas more than $277 billion has been appropriated by the United States Congress to prosecute U.S. military action in Iraq and Afghanistan;

Whereas, as of the drafting of this resolution, 2,079 U.S. troops have been killed in Operation Iraqi Freedom;

Whereas U.S. casualties become the target of the insurgency;

Whereas, according to recent polls, over 80 percent of the Iraqi people want the U.S. forces out of Iraq;

Whereas polls also indicate that 45 percent, the British poll, but the Defense Department support this British poll or confirm this British poll, of the Iraqi people feel that the attacks on U.S. forces are justified;

Hear what I am saying. Forty-five percent of the Iraqi people feel it is justified to attack Americans.

Whereas, due to the foregoing, Congress finds it evident that continuing U.S. military action in Iraq is not in the best interests of the United States of America, the people of Iraq, or the Persian Gulf Region, which were cited in Public Law 107–243 as justification for undertaking such action;

I did not write about intelligence. I did not say anything about the President. All these statements that have been made viliying me today did not say anything like that.

Therefore be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the deployment of United States forces in Iraq, by direction of Congress, is hereby terminated and the forces involved are to be redeployed at the earliest practicable date.

Section 2. A quick-reaction U.S. force and an over-the-horizon presence of U.S. Marines shall be deployed in the region.

The United States of America shall pursue security and stability in Iraq through diplomacy.

That is what I said. I have never had in the 32 years that I have been in Congress such an outpouring from this country. I went to the White House, and I talked to the President. I cannot even call my office if you tried, because we were so unhappy. This was in May. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. Young) and I put a criteria for success in the bill. It was a Moran amendment, because we were not happy with the results. Nobody was talking to us. Nobody would tell us what was going on, and we felt it was absolutely necessary that we put this into writing.

I went to Iraq about 2 months ago, and I talked to the commanders, and all of you know the commanders are very hesitant to say anything that is not in the policy of the White House, that is what it is run by the civilians. That is the way it should be, but I could tell how discouraged the commanders were.

The one Marine commander said, I do not have troops to put on the border, the Syrian border. Now, why did they not have enough troops? Because of the deployment, because of the small number of people that are serving in our Armed Forces. This is not a military draft.

We told them, the Armed Services Committee, under DUNCAN HUNTER's leadership, said you can take 30,000 more people. They cannot recruit to that. They have fallen 10,000 short; and not only does the Iraqi fall 10,000 short, they are now taking 20 percent category 4s, which they said in the voluntary Army would never happen.

The war's not going as advertised. The American public is way ahead of us. If you heard the World War II veterans, if you heard the Vietnam veterans, the wives and the widows on the phone crying to my staff and myself when I am talking to them, if you heard them reaching out and asking for a bipartisan solution. When I introduced this resolution, I did not introduce this as a partisan resolution.

I go by Arlington Cemetery every day, and the Vice President, he criticizes Democrats. Let me tell you, those gravestones do not say Democrat or Republican. They say American, and DICK CHENEY'S a good friend of mine. He was a good Secretary of Defense.

Our military is suffering. The future of our country is at risk. We cannot continue on the present course. It is evident that continued military action in Iraq is not in the best interests of the United States of America, the Iraqi people and the Persian Gulf region. That is my opinion.

General Casey said in a September 2005 hearing, the perception of occupation in Iraq is a major driving force behind the insurgency. Hear what I am saying. General Abizaid said on the same date, reduced visibility of the coalition forces in Iraq is part of our counterinsurgency strategy.

For 2 1⁄2 years, I have been concerned about our policy and the plan in Iraq. I have addressed my concerns to the administration and the Pentagon.

I have spoken out in public about my concerns in going to war.

A few days before the start of the war, I was in Kuwait. They drew a red line around Baghdad; and they said, the Americans have a red line, they will attack us with weapons of mass destruction, meaning biological and chemical weapons. I believed that. They believed it. The military commanders believed it. And when they went in, though, they felt they had sufficient protection gear, and that they could overcome it. The heat would dissipate some of the gas and so forth, and it would be no problem for our forces, they felt. They even thought they had cell phones monitored so they could tell if it was there. It turned out not to be true.

Let me tell the Members this: BILLY CONGREN and I have been on the Defense Subcommittee for 25 years. We spend more money on intelligence than all the countries in the world put together and more on intelligence than most countries’ GDP. But the intelligence concerning Iraq was wrong. It is not a world intelligence failure. It is a U.S. intelligence failure.

I have been visiting our wounded troops at Bethesda, and only two people, I think, visit any more than I do, and that is BILL YOUNG’s wife and BILL YOUNG. They go there as often as I do, and I think it’s more often.

Now, let me tell the Members what demoralizes the troops. Going to war with not enough troops and equipment to make the transition to peace, the devastation caused by IEDs, being deployed to Iraq when their homes have been ravaged by hurricanes, being under second and third deployment and leaving their families behind without a network of support.

The threat posed by terrorism is real, but we have other threats that cannot be ignored. We must be prepared to meet all these threats. The future of our military is at risk. Our military and their families are stretched thin. A very small percentage of people in this country and this country care about this and support this. Many say the Army is broken. Some of our troops are on their third deployment. Recruitment is down. Defense budgets are being cut. $5 billion this year, $5 billion cut from the defense budget; and the chairman and I are concerned they are going to cut another percentage point, which is $4 billion more, from the defense budget.

Personnel costs are skyrocketing, particularly in health care. And choices have to be made. We cannot allow a promise that we have made to our military families in terms of service benefits, in terms of their health care to be negotiated away. Procurement costs that ensure our military dominance cannot be negotiated away. We must be prepared.

The war in Iraq has caused huge shortfalls in our bases in the United States. I visited four bases, four Southern bases, premier bases. Every one of them was short, short radios, short mortars, short ammunition even. Our troops were C-4, which means the lowest state of readiness, because they did not have the equipment to train right before they are deployed to Iraq. And much of our ground equipment is worn out and in need of serious overhaul.

I have said to all these CEOs that come to see me, Folks, do not think you are going to build 12 next year. Do not believe that. But I will tell the Members one thing we have to do is rehabilitate this equipment. A $50 billion bill, in my estimation, and I do not know where the money is going to come from and the going to build 12 next year. Do not believe that. But I will tell the Members one thing we have to do is rehabilitate this equipment.

George Washington said: “To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace.” I do not know what the threat is, but I will tell you it takes 18 years to get a weapons system out there, and we had better well get those systems put together now. We had better start them right now because we do not have them. They have a system right now they are thinking back, the Europeans invested a lot of money in it. Billions of dollars have been invested in this weapon system, JSF. If they cut back the buy, the cost to increase, the Europeans will cut back on their buy, and they think they can skycrket the price; and we will have to reduce the number of airplanes that we buy. We must rebuild our Army.

Our deficit is growing out of control. The Director of the Congressional Budget Office recently admitted to being “terrified” about the budget deficit in the coming decades. This is the first prolonged war we have fought with 3 years of tax cuts, without full mobilization, without the burden of war has not been shared equally, and the military and their families are shouldering this burden.

Our military has been fighting a war in Iraq for over 2 1/2 years. Our military leaders have said it can end this, and that is its duty. Our military captured Saddam Hussein, captured or killed his closest associates. But the war continues to intensify. And you know the deaths and you know they estimate that not only do we have 15,000 that have been wounded, but we have 50,000 that we think may suffer from what I call battle fatigue.

I just recently visited Anbar Province, and I just said, and I became convinced that we had to take some action. I became convinced that I needed to say something about what was going on. I needed to introduce a resolution which would bring this to a head so we could come to a bipartisan resolution to fight this war and deal with the security situation. How do we support them, and that resolution calls for a redeployment of our troops. I said over a year ago now, the military and the administration agree, Iraq cannot be won militarily.

We can say it here in these air conditioned offices, but let me tell you something. It cannot be won militarily. It has got to be won politically, and we have to turn it over to the Iraqis and give them the incentive to take back their own country.

Our troops have become the primary target of the insurgency. They are united against U.S. forces. We have become the catalyst for violence. U.S. troops are the common enemy of the Sunnis, the Saddamists, and the foreign jihadists. I believe with U.S. troop redeployment, the Iraqi security forces will be incentivized to take control. A poll recently conducted shows 80 percent of the Iraqis oppose the presence of coalition troops. I believe we need to move out of there, but I believe the Iraqi elected for mid-December, the Iraqi people in the emerging government must be put on notice: the United States will immediately redeploy. All of Iraq must know that Iraq is free, free from United States occupation. I believe this will send a signal to the Sunnis to join the political process for a good and free Iraq.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), chairman of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, the gentleman who spends so much of his time with our Nation’s wounded.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, Americans can sleep well tonight because our soldiers are out there on the front line against terror making sure that we can do that. And we owe them a lot. We owe them our thanks. We owe them our appreciation. We owe them the necessary equipment to do their mission, to protect themselves while they are doing that, and we owe them our support. And it is important that we let them know without any doubt that we support them, that this Congress supports them. And that is what we are doing.

Incidentally, in case the Members have not noticed, JACK MURTHA spent more time tonight speaking on the floor than he has in the last 2 years combined presenting the appropriations bills.

Jack and I have been friends for a long time, as he suggested, and we have worked together. He was my chairman for a long time. I have been his chairman for a long time. We work together for the best interest of our Nation and for those who protect our Nation. And he deserves many accolades tonight and properly so.

Chairman HUNTER, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, also deserves accolades. He was willing to offer this resolution, which we all are going to vote against, I hope. Chairman HUNTER was an airborne soldier in Vietnam, and he led a platoon of Rangers in Vietnam. Chairman HUNTER deserves an awful lot of thanks and appreciation for the work that he did during the war, and that is what we are doing tonight here on the floor.

Mr. Speaker, this is not about JACK MURTHA tonight, and it is not about DUNCAN HUNTER. This is about 296 of us who voted to support the President going into Iraq to fight terror, to fight Saddam Hussein and his vicious armies. Once you have committed to a war or to a battle, it is like some other things in life, once you are committed, you are committed, like it or not. And we got committed when we voted to send troops to Iraq.

Now, how do you get out of a commitment like that? Well, you can win. That is the preferred way. Or you can lose. We do not like that. You could retreat, or you could surrender. I do not think we like either one of those two.

Or there is another way: we could negotiate our way out. But in a case of global terrorists, whom do you negotiate with? They hide. They sneak. Would you negotiate with Osama bin Laden, Saddam Hussein, Al-Zarqawi? Whom do you negotiate with? You do not have anybody to negotiate with because they are pure and simple terrorists.

Mr. Speaker, there are many things that have been said tonight on both sides of the aisle that are very important. There has been a little bit of spin here and there, but that is not unusual for a legislative body like this. But, Mr. Speaker, there is no place, when we are dealing with the security of our Nation and the security of the American people, there is no place for politics on either side.

So tonight, Mr. Speaker, we need to send a strong message, to our troops and to their families. For those families who are dealing with the loss of a loved one, for those families who are dealing with a seriously wounded soldier or marine who might be at Walter Reed Hospital or at Bethesda Hospital or at Landstuhl in Germany, we need to let them know that we are here to support them.

In a few short days when we will be back to legislative business, there is another issue that we have to deal with, to take advantage of this extra minute to tell the Members what it is. Somebody in the Pentagon has ruled that if Jack Murtha and I go to hospital with my wife, Beverly, which we do on occasion, and she makes us empty our wallets to help a family that is struggling to meet their expenses, some regulation at the Pentagon says that is illegal, that is bribery. What can I bribe a wounded soldier to do? He has already done everything that he can do for me. So we need to change that.

So we need to change that. Chairman Hunter and I and Mr. Murtha and I have worked together with our counterparts in the Senate, and we intend to fix this on the first legislative or appropriations bills we have access to. So that is what this is about tonight, to let our troops win this war against terror not only in Iraq, but in Afghanistan and anywhere else that terrorists raise their ugly heads. This is not limited to Iraq. Iraq is one of the major battlefields. Afghanistan is one of the major battlefields.

My friends, we are in it for the long haul against the threat of terrorism, and it is important that we prevail and support those on the front line against terror and vote "no" tonight on this resolution that does not do any of what I just said.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Hefley), the chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee and does so much for the quality of life for our troops.

Mr. Hefley. Mr. Speaker, we have just heard from two giants of this body, men that we are all very, very proud of. If we had any sense, we would all sit down right now and take the vote; and I will give up my time if everybody else will give up theirs, and we will vote. I am told no, that is not going to work. So let me try to be brief. Both of these gentlemen expressed the conflicting views in a most sincere way, and I think we respect both of them.

But, Mr. Speaker, I do rise today in opposition to H. Res. 571. I want us to withdraw the moment the job is done, and that is what our troops are telling us, too. They want to stay there until it is done. That is what most of the Iraqi people tell us, do not leave us until it is done.

Mr. Speaker, there are some out there insisting that the mission on Iraq has been a failure, and our presence in Iraq has not been properly run, and we are not winning the peace. Frankly, I do not think that and it only serves to lower the morale of the men and women fighting in Iraq while encouraging the terrorists who hate America.

The fact is those who assert that the Iraqi policy is failing frankly fail to recognize the many successes that have occurred on a daily basis over there. What we are talking about is fighting terror and liberating a people. Look at just the polls. They have had two elections, and those two elections, most of those people had never voted in a free election in their entire lives. On October 15, they adopted a Constitution. They did not know what a Constitution was, and 78 percent of the voters backed the charter of the Constitution.

We are making enormous progress toward liberty and democracy for the Iraqi people. How do I see that? I see it in the new Constitution. They did not know what a Constitution was, and 78 percent of the voters backed the charter of the Constitution.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the resolution. I am proud to be a Vietnam veteran. I am proud to have spent almost 4 years in that country with the U.S. Army and the Central Intelligence Agency, but I was not proud when Members of Congress, Members of this body, criticized us in the course of that war publicly back here at home. Their critical comments were demoralizing and undercut our efforts. It encouraged our enemy, and it placed us at risk.

At some point in the 1970s, our national will broke down, we cut and ran. We left our friends behind, my colleagues, my counterparts. And we abandoned Southeast Asia to unprecedented slaughter and destruction.

Now 30 years later I find myself on this same floor talking about the "immediate redeployment" of our troops from a foreign battlefield where they are fully engaged in a difficult and dangerous mission.

More than anyone else, this Vietnam veteran wants to see our troops come home safely, successfully and soon. But now is not the time for immediate withdrawal. Now is the time to support our troops and the values they fight for.

Mr. Murtha. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. Normally the soldiers cannot speak for themselves. I do not believe we are making the progress that is articulated in many cases. Everything I see, oil production is below prewar level; electricity production is below prewar level; incidents have increased from 150 a week to 770 a week in Iraq.

But let me read a letter from a young soldier at Walter Reed. Everybody says when you go to Walter Reed, they all want to go right back, and they usually do not complain. Let me read this letter.

"I am sure you are extremely busy today with the announcement of your support for the withdrawal of troops from Iraq. We have been trying unsuccessfully to reach you by phone.

"My husband is an injured Iraq soldier who so highly commends you for speaking out about this disastrous war and its aftermath on U.S. troops. Though we are now living in Washington, D.C., on the Walter Reed campus, we are originally from your 12th District in Pennsylvania. Congressman Murtha actually pinned my husband’s Purple Heart. We are so proud that he was the man to honor my husband for what he did in Iraq. It may serve Mr. Murtha more to remind him that my husband is the 24-year-old guardman who lost part of a leg in a suicide car bomb attack in April of this year."

"We were shocked and overjoyed that Murtha spoke out against the Bush administration’s handling of the war. Unlike what many say is a blow to troop morale by questioning the war, his frank call for attention to the subject brought nods and applause from the injured soldiers at Walter Reed’s Mologne House. It is the first that my husband and I feel that a politician has stood up for the most personally affected by the war in Iraq."

"We send the soldiers to the war. We are the ones that make that decision. We also have to speak out when we do not think the war is going in the right direction."

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Simmons), who served multiple tours in Vietnam.

Mr. Simmons. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the resolution. I am proud to have spent almost 4 years in that country with the U.S. Army and the Central Intelligence Agency, but I was not proud when Members of Congress, Members of this body, criticized us in the course of that war publicly back here at home. Mr. MURTHA talks about one political occupiers instead of liberators. Iraq. By staying in Iraq, we have been son was killed.

We believe the best way to support the troops is through a responsible and well-thought-out foreign policy.

Not stay the course, but a thought out, and this is from a woman whose son was killed.

“We do not have that policy today in Iraq. By staying in Iraq, we have become occupiers instead of liberators.” And 80 percent of the Iraqis think that.

“Today we are called un-American because we are obligated to disagree with the President. We want better for our son’s comrades. It is our obligation to stand up and be counted to support the troops, to speak for those that are not free to speak for themselves, to show their bravery and sacrifice wisely.” You, sir, are a man of our heart. God knows why the rest of the Democratic Party is not rallying around you, but we are. Even as we stand alone, it is the right thing to do. Our support is unequivocal for you, sir, in this dangerous and lonely time.”

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER), chairman of the Veterans’ Affairs Committee, and who is a colonel in the Army Reserve and a Gulf War veteran.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I have great respect for Mr. MURTHA and Mr. HUNTER. And I am uncomfortable when Mr. MURTHA talks about one political party rallying round something. I do not want Republicans or Democrats rallying around anything. You moved me when I was in my office and you talked about going to Arlington. All of us have been there; all of us have been to our Nation’s cemeteries and seen the white crosses and Stars of David.

The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. BROWN) and I were privileged to represent our country this past May, and I am sure Mr. MURTHA has been there, standing on the cliffs of Normandy at Omaha. We gave the Memorial Day address representing our Nation. I was there with my 20-year-old son, and I could feel the envy of souls because I thought about what their last days had been like. And as I strained among these thousands of graves, if I permitted the eyes of my mind to have a vision I could actually see, if I permitted the ears of my heart to listen, I could hear.

And what did they say? They said, What we did on this day was worthy. You see, they came to a continent to free it from tyranny on that day. They came to a land where they had never been to fight for a people they had never met. Does that not sound familiar? And we speak of the sacrifice of what we refer to as the greatest generation. How are we now yet defining ourselves when our men and women are faced with something very similar.

We should be here tonight talking of our strategy of victory, defined by our perseverance to an enduring freedom throughout the world. To discuss withdrawal from Iraq tonight before our mission is even the wrong strategy at the wrong time. Why? Because freedom is on the move.

We, the people of the United States, we are a great Nation with a great vision. We seek to preserve the blessings of liberty for all those around the world who recognize the God-given right of freedom.

Today our Nation is truly engaged in an epic struggle for freedom in Iraq. Whether you believe how we got there is true, the struggle among us is evident here tonight. What we do not want is what Mr. HYDE referred to as our enemies to take advantage of our weaknesses. The painful lessons, whether it was Vietnam or Lebanon or Somalia, North Korea, Iran, or Qaeda, they watch, and it is part of what they want to do to envelope our weaknesses.

You see, Clausewitz had it right. He said, The use of our military force is the instrumentality of a political decision. We then expect our military to act on the field of battle with great valor, courage and commitment. You, see, they are an extension of us. And in return, our soldiers ask what of us? Loyalty. And they expect us to have the very same resolve that we expect from them. If I may look at you and say, when it gets hard, when it gets tough, can you hang with us, Congress? That is a very pertinent question for a soldier to ask of us.

So I respect Mr. MURTHA, but this is the wrong time for your resolution.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TERRY). The gentleman may state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I understand, Mr. Speaker, that we are debating Mr. MURTHA’s resolution or Mr. HUNTER’s resolution?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pending is House Resolution 571.

Mr. LANTOS. The previous speaker referred to Mr. MURTHA’s resolution. That is not before the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. That is a matter for debate—a matter that may be addressed by debate.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I have a further parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Please state your parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LANTOS. We on this side of the House are under the impression that we are debating the Hunter resolution. Please correct us if we are wrong.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is right. He may make that point by debate.

Mr. MURTHA. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER).
House this evening from one of the commanders of America’s premier counterterrorism organization. He shared with me his great dismay at much of the rhetoric that had emanated from this body today, making them the pawns in a political battle over sending our troops abroad, a battle that they are winning. He wants to make success on the front lines. Please, your shouting and your rhetoric sends echoes to our enemies as well as to our soldiers and our friends.

It is honest to have a debate, my friends, and I am asked on the floor of this house, why are you doing to us what was done to so many veterans here by Members of this body during Vietnam, when I am told repeatedly of their successes, my friends who I served with over nearly 30 years ago and who are serving now on the front lines commanding the units, leading the units and who are serving as junior enlisted soldiers, hundreds of soldiers whose opinions fly in the face of those who talked tonight.

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH). (Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues, here we are in America’s House, having a debate that is altogether appropriate, because as our founders stated the goal, it was to form a more perfect union. And because we are human beings, there is always a gulf between the real and the ideal. This is not a personal debate to be personal-ized about the gentleman from Pennsylvania. He offered a point of view yesterday. Whatever his intent, here is how it was reported. The Washington Post called it immediate withdrawal. The New York Times called it immediate withdrawal. More omin-ous and sadly, Al Jazeera called it immediate withdrawal.

The problem is this, ladies and gentlemen, as has been articulated. Another e-mail, my colleagues:

“I am a U.S. Army captain currently serving in Iraq and I am shocked and appalled by Representative Murtha’s call for immediate withdrawal. Please, please, please convince your colleagues to let us finish this critical job.”

That is what is at stake. Vote “no” on immediate withdrawal.

Mr. HUNTER. Let me ask, Mr. Speaker, we have the right to close on this side?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. TRENT). Yes.

Mr. HUNTER. We have got only one speaker left, so I would ask my col-league from Pennsylvania to choose on his side if he could.

Mr. MURTHA. Who has the right to close?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentle- man from California has the right to close.

Mr. MURTHA. This is his resolution.

The first encounter with the casual-ties in this war, I had two young wid-ows come to my office. They wanted to go to Walter Reed because they lost their husband and they wanted to talk to the soldiers and tell them how much they were still alive. One was 23 with two children. One was 19 without any children. I thought how proud I was of them. An-other young man from my district was blinded and lost his foot. They did ev-erything they could do for him in Wal-ter Reed, but because they thought his father was in jail. His mother had not seen him. There was no one at home and he was by himself. The VA has done everything they could to help him. They sent him to Johns Hopkins to see if there is a possibility for him to see and found out that he could not see. And then they started sending bills. Collection agencies sent him bills. Imagine, he is by himself in his own home and a collection agency from Johns Hopkins sends him a bill. Obvi-ously we straightened it out, but that is the kind of thing that happens when you forget about the veteran.

I had a soldier that lost both legs and an arm. Bill has seen the young fellow from mental health ward. You know what they said to me? Fifty thousand of them are going to have some kind of battle fati-gue. They said that we don’t get Pur-ple Hearts. We don’t get any recogni-tion at all. I get shunned aside as if we were cowards.

A young woman from Notre Dame lost her arm and she was worried about her husband losing weight. She was the one that lost her arm. It makes me so proud. A Seabee was lying in intensive care with his three children and his mother and his wife in tears because he was paralyzed from the neck down. This young Marine, his father had been a Marine. His father was there. His fa-ther was in the hospital. He was rushed. He says, please get my son’s brother home. He wants to see his brother. I called the Marine Corps. The Marine Corps said, he doesn’t want to come home. So I went back and told his father. He said, please get him home. So I told the Marine Corps and they got him home. I said, you get him out of that country blank-blank right now, and they did.

Another Marine lost both his hands, blinded. I went to the hospital. After I talked to him, as proud as I do to all of them, how proud I was of them. Is there anything you can do for them. I said? He said, yeah, get him a Purple Heart. Why wouldn’t he get a Purple Heart? Because he was demobil-izing from the friendly bomblets that had been dropped and hadn’t exploded. Thousands of them. Finally one of them blew up, blew his hands off and killed the guy behind him and blinded him. The Marine Corps said, we have regula-tions about Purple Hearts. It was friendly fire so he can’t get a Purple Heart.

I told the commandant, if you don’t give him the Purple Heart, I’m going to give him one of mine. I was going to go out on Thursday, the commandant went out on Wednesday and he got his Purple Heart. Our troops have become the enemy.

Folks, it is easy to sit here in your air-conditioned offices and say, send them home, go home. It is easy to sit here in the Capitol of the United States and say, stay the course. But when there is not a plan, when the families write to me and say there is not a plan, when they don’t understand, when they be-lieve that Captain Fishhak came to see me, he says, You’re complicit with the administration in torture, Congress is, because you’re looking the other way. I said, We didn’t know a thing about it.

And one of the things that turned the Iraqis against us was the tragedy that happened at Abu Ghraib. Because we in Congress are charged with sending our sons and daughters into battle, it is our responsibility, our obligation to speak out for them and that is why I am speaking out.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, in a few minutes we are going to send a mes-sage to our troops. And for our last speaker, we have a gentleman who knows a lot about freedom. He knows a lot about a lack of freedom. He knows a lot about American resolve and some-times the lack of American resolve. He has been awarded two Silver Stars, two Legions of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Bronze Star with valor, two Purple Hearts, four air med-als and three outstanding unit awards. He is one of our real heroes, SAM JOHN-son of Texas.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Thank you. Mr. HUNTER. You are a great man yourself.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today on behalf of the American men and women in uniform and their families. I did spend 29 years in the Air Force, and I served in Korea and Vietnam and spent 7 years as a POW in Vietnam and more than half of that in solitary confinement. I know what it is like to be far from home, serving your country, risking your life, hearing that America doesn’t care about you as happened in Viet-nam.

Your Congress does not care about you. Your Congress just cut off all the funding for your war. They are packing up, going home, and leaving you here.

When I was a POW, I was scared to death when our Congress talked about pulling the plug that I would be left there forever. I know what it does to morale, I know what it does to the mis-sion, and so help me God, I will never, ever let our Nation make that mistake again.

The men and women in uniform need our full support. They need to know that when they are in Iraq driving from Camp Blue Diamond to Camp Victory that the Congress is behind them, to give them the best armored trucks they can drive, the best weapons they can fire, and the best ammunition they can use. They need to have full faith that a few nay-sayers in Washington will not cut and run and leave them high and dry. They need to know these things because it is mandatory for mission success and troop morale.

America, and the Congress, must stand behind our men and women in uniform because they stand up for us every minute of every day. And they do so much as a murmur, of leaving now just emboldens the enemy and weakens the resolve of our troops in the field. That is dangerous. If you do not believe me, check out Al Jazeera. The withdrawal story is on the front page. We cannot do that to our fellow Americans over there.

Mr. Speaker, we are making great progress in Iraq. Remember in January how we saw pictures from Iraq of that first election. For weeks, the media predicted a disaster. Remember that? What did we see? We watched people as they waited in line for hours, defying death threats just to cast their vote for democracy.

Remember the picture of the woman in the black hair cover flashing her purple finger in the “V” after voting in the first Iraqi elections? It was a breakthrough for democracy, and it was just the beginning.

Remember the recent vote on the referendum where people came out in droves to make their voices heard? You would not have known about it because there was so little mention of it in our press, but the people got out there and they voted and they showed their support for democracy, a new government, hope, and a future.

These people are thirsting for something more. They are risking their lives in the name of a new government, and we must stay the course if we want to foster democracy in Iraq and create hope for millions in the Middle East.

Our work is paying off, not just at the ballot box. Remember when we were waking up that Sunday morning after voting in the second election? We saw pictures from Iraq of that election, and we saw pictures of the people voting and they showed their support for democracy.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

them. They took his resolution and deformed it: in a cheap effort to silence dissent in the House of Representatives.

The Republicans should be roundly criticized for this reprehensible act. They have perpetrated a fraud on the House of Representatives just as they have defrauded the American people.

By twisting the issue around, the Republicans are trying to set a trap for the Democrats. A “no” vote for this Resolution will obscure the fact that there is strong support for withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq. I am voting “yes” on this Resolution for an orderly withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq despite the convoluted motives behind the Republican Resolution. I am voting to support our troops by bringing them home now in an orderly withdrawal.

Sadly, if we call for an end to the occupation, some say that we have no love for the Iraqi people, that we would abandon them to tyrants and thugs.

Let us consider some history. The Republicans waxed giddy about Saddam Hussein’s use of chemical weapons against the Iranians and the Kurds. But when that attack was made in 1988, it was Democrats who moved a resolution to condemn those attacks, and the Reagan White House quashed the bill in the Senate, because at that time the Republicans were reticent about Saddam one of our own. So in 1988, who abandoned the Iraqi people to tyrants and thugs?

In voting for this bill, let me be perfectly clear that I am not saying the United States should exit Iraq without a plan. I agree with Mr. Murtha that an orderly withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq should be pursued through diplomacy. I simply want to vote yes to an orderly withdrawal from Iraq. And let me explain why.

Prior to its invasion, Iraq had not one (not one!) instance of suicide attacks in its history. Research shows a 100 percent correlation between suicide attacks and the presence of foreign combat troops in a host country. And experience also shows that suicide attacks abate when foreign occupation troops are withdrawn. The U.S. invasion and occupation has destabilized Iraq, and the trend is likely to return to stability once this occupation ends.

We must be willing to face the fact that the presence of U.S. combat troops is itself a major inspiration to the forces attacking our troops. Moreover, we must be willing to acknowledge that the forces attacking our troops are able to recruit suicide attackers because suicide attacks are largely motivated by revenge for the loss of loved ones. And Iraqis have lost so many loved ones as a result of America’s two wars against Iraq.

In his book, State Madeleine Albright said on CBS that the lives of 500,000 children dead from sanctions were “worth the price” of containing Saddam Hussein. When pressed to defend this reprehensible position she went on to explain that she did not want U.S. troops to have to fight the Gulf War again. Nor did I. But what happened? We fought a second Gulf War. And now over 2,000 American soldiers lie dead. And I expect the voices of concern for Iraqi civilian casualties, whose deaths the Pentagon likes to brush aside as “collateral damage,” are not few, either. A report from Johns Hopkins suggests that over 100,000 civilians have died in Iraq since the March 2003 invasion, most of them violent deaths and most as “collateral damage” from U.S. forces. The accuracy of the 100,000 can and should be debated. Yet our media, while quick to cover attacks on civilians by insurgent forces in Iraq, have given us a blackout on Iraqi civilian deaths at the hands of U.S. combat forces.

Yet let us not forget that the United States and its allies imposed a severe policy of sanctions on the people of Iraq from 1990 to 2003. UNICEF and World Health Organization studies based on infant mortality studies showed a 500,000 increase in mortality of Iraqi children under 5 over trends that existed before sanctions. For example, it was assumed that over 1 million Iraqi deaths for all age groups could be attributed to sanctions between 1990 and 1998. And not only were there more 5 years of sanctions before the invasion, but the war since the invasion caused most aid groups to leave Iraq. So for areas not touched by reconstruction efforts, the humanitarian situation has deteriorated further. How many more Iraqi lives have been lost through hunger and deprivation since the invasion?

And what kind of an occupier have we been? We have all seen the photos of victims of U.S. torture in Abu Ghraib prison. That’s where Saddam used to send his political enemies to be tortured, and now many Iraqis quietly, cautiously ask: “So what has changed?”

A recent video documentary confirms that U.S. forces used white phosphorous against civilian neighborhoods in the U.S. attack on Fallujah. Civilians and insurgents were burned alive by these weapons. We also now know that U.S. forces have used MK77, a napalm-like incendiary weapon, the use of which has been outlawed by the United Nations.

With the images of tortured detainees, and the images of Iraqi civilians burned alive by U.S. incendiary weapons now circulating the globe, our reputation on the world stage has been severely damaged.

If America wants to win the hearts and minds of the Iraqi people, we as a people must be willing to face the pain and death and suffering we have brought to the Iraqi people with bombs, sanctions and occupation, even if we know our actions were driven by the most altruistic of reasons. We must acknowledge our role in enforcing the policy of sanctions for 12 years after the extensive 1991 bombing in which we bombed infrastructure targets in direct violation of the Geneva Conventions.

We must also be ready to face the fact that the United States once provided support for the tyrant we deposed in the name of liberating the Arab people. These are events that our soldiers are too young to remember. I believe that, despite the disaster, there can be some positive change in Iraq. The United States is one of the finest members of this body and has given his heart to our nation and his wisdom to this Congress. But underlying concerns about the process tonight, is the critically important issue regarding the future of U.S. involvement in Iraq. The United States’ commitment to a stable and democratic Iraq is essential for the future of the region, for the larger war on terrorism and for the Iraqi people.

In my ten trips to Iraq, four times outside the umbrella of the military, I’ve had the opportunity to talk with hundreds of Iraqis and can tell you with some certainty about their greatest fear . . . it is not the suicide bombs and other terrorist attacks brought against their countrymen. It is the concern that the United States, which has helped them give a taste of freedom and democracy, will leave them before they are ready to fend for themselves.

Tonight we have the opportunity to proclaim, “We will not leave you.” When I hear the critics on this floor or in the news media say our policy in Iraq is a disaster, they do not understand the message in Iraq. I think of the transfer of power in June 2004, the election in January 2005, the referendum this past October and what I believe will be a huge success in December with the election of a permanent Iraqi government. I am in awe of what the Iraqis have accomplished in such a short period of time.

Regrettably, the administration has done a very poor job explaining to the American people why we are there and when and how we intend to leave, but this does not mean we don’t have an exit strategy. We have a strategy, but regrettably, Mr. Lieutenant, it has had to be amended more than once.

The United States’ strategy is to assist the Iraqis in creating a secure environment so they can develop their new democratic government with a competent police, border patrol and army to defend that government. American forces will be reduced when enough Iraqi security forces can take our place and their new government is fully functioning.

Having learned from the 1983 bombing of the marine barracks in Beirut that if we leave without finishing the job those that wish us harm will come at us again?

Didn’t we learn any lessons from the attacks against our personnel in Saudi Arabia and our diplomats in Africa and our sailors on the USS Cole? And didn’t we learn that the Islamist extremists would come at us again when they attacked the Twin Towers, the Pentagon and attempted to attack our Capitol on September 11, 2001?

Yes they will be back again and again.

If we leave Iraq without completing our mission, what type of message will this send to the people who need our help? To them and the rest of the world the message will be clear...if you put up a strong enough resistance, the United States will eventually tire of its efforts and leave before its mission is accomplished.

John McCann was correct when he asked the same questions during debate of the Defense Authorization bill: “Are these the messages we wish to send? Do we wish to respond to the millions who have braved bombs and threats to vote, who have put their faith and trust in American and the Iraqi Government, that our number one priority is now bringing our people home?”

Mr. Speaker, although some may feel otherwise, this is a serious debate about a serious issue. I strongly urge all members to vote against this resolution and against the premature withdrawal of our troops from Iraq.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, today’s debate should not be about the character of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. Murtha, whose service to his country is above reproach. It should also not be about a resolution introduced by one member ascribing it to the position of another. It should be about the profoundness of the dilemma we face in our Iraqi policy.

All wars evoke analogies to prior conflicts. Vietnam is on everyone’s mind. My sense is that references to our Southeast Asian experience are somewhat oblique, but important to ponder. Of particular relevance is the advice of a former Vermont Senator, George Aiken, who suggested we just declare victory and get out of Vietnam. Aiken’s advice was rooted in frustration, but wise as it was, represented more spin than reality. Given the strategies in play, victory wasn’t close at hand.

For me, including me, the war in Iraq has been difficult to justify. But all Americans, except perhaps a few who may be partisan vindictive, should want as positive a result as possible, given the circumstances we now face. The decision to go to war may have been the right one, but the strategies involved in conducting it, mistake-ridden; nonetheless there should be clarity of purpose in ending the conflict, with the goal neither to cut and run, nor simply to cut losses. At this junction of involvement we should define cogently our purposes and by so doing create a basis both for a new conflict and for a coalition alliance in engagement that respects the sacrifices of those who have served so valiantly in our armed forces and those of our coalition allies.

The key at this point is to recognize the WMD threat proved not to be a compelling rationalization for the war and emphasize instead the moral and philosophical case for overturning a repressive and cruel regime and replacing it with a constitutional democracy. This latter emphasis need not suggest or imply that there are no other reasons for intervention, nor that regime change is the principal American way, nor that other rationales for intervention don’t exist. But it is the case for intervention that shows the most concern for the Iraqi people as they look both to their past and to the new challenges of Al Qaeda.

Accordingly, in today’s circumstances, my advice, as one who voted against authorizing military intervention in Iraq, is for the Administration to emphasize its commitment to democracy, not as a rationale for continuing the war, but as the reason for disengagement. Let me amplify.

All Americans, however wary they may be of the political judgments that have to date been made, should concur that the world is safer because of our efforts and that it is positive that a dictatorial regime is being replaced with a democratically elected government. The cost of the undertaking may have been too high and the results counter-productive in many ways, but before the international community abandons hope that the administration would be wise, perhaps noting with pride the elections to be held under a constitution this December, to announce that a new sovereign circumstance allows for comprehensive troop drawdowns next year. The more definitive and forthright the plan the better, but announcing a precise time table is less important than making a firm commitment to leave, with articulation of a clear rationale for so doing. If we don’t get out of Iraq at a time of our own choosing and on our own terms, we will eventually be asked to leave, perhaps ignominiously, by the Iraqi government, or be seen as forced to leave because of terrorist acts, which can be expected to continue as long as we maintain a military presence in the heart of the Muslim world. The key is that we must control and be seen as controlling our own outcome. All Americans should be respectful of the sacrifices of our men and women in uniform. They have been placed in an untenable situation. If they had not been so heroic and in many cases so helpful in rebuilding neighborhoods and schools, the U.S. would face a far more difficult dilemma today.

But we have no choice except to assess whether Osama Bin Laden and his movement have not been given added momentum by our intervention in Iraq, and whether the ideologically advocated policy of establishing long-term bases or one of returning our troops home is likely to be the more effective strategy in prevailing in the world-wide war on terror.

Here, it should not be hard to understand that prolonged occupation of a country which encompasses the axis of evil, and where one of the world’s oldest civilizations prospered is humiliating to a proud people and those else-where who share its great religion. It should also not be hard to understand that the neocon strategy of establishing a long-term military presence in Iraq with semi-permanent bases raises the risk of retaliatory terrorist attacks at home and abroad.

Indeed, according to the University of Chicago scholar, Robert Pape, in his definitive book on suicide bombers, Dying to Win, the principal reason anarchists choose to wrap themselves in explosives and kill innocent civilians is to register martyred objection to the occupation of countries or territories by the armed forces of Western or other Democratic governments. Suicide bombing, by implication, will continue as long as the occupation continues.

In this regard, a note about Al Qaeda is in order. Just as neither Iraq with its secular leanings nor any Iraqis were responsible for 9/11, so Saddam Hussein apparently considered Osama Bin Laden to be his soul brother. It is Western military intervention that has precipitated Al Qaeda’s rapid growth in Iraq and elsewhere, creating a “cause celebre” for its singularly malevolent actions. If American withdrawal policy comes to turn on the question of anarchy—i.e., troops can’t be drawn down as long as suicide bombers continue to wreak havoc—we place ourselves in a catch 22 and, in effect, hand over decision-making discretion to those who wantonly kill. We allow the radical few to use our presence as the reason for their actions and at the same time cause our involvement to be held hostage to their villainy. The irony is that as conflicted as the Iraqi police and army appear to be, they are fast reaching a stage where the anarchists may be more credibly dealt with by Iraqis themselves, particularly if the principal rationale for violence—i.e., the American presence—disappears.

Hence, the case for a change in strategy is compelling, not as the resolution under consideration tonight envisages, but in an orderly manner, protecting our troops, our values and the regimes we have helped make for the Iraqi people.

Sometimes it is as difficult to know when to end as it is when to start a war. In this context I am hard pressed to believe anything except that a mistake of historical proportions will occur if the administration fails to recognize the opportunity presented by next month’s elections to effectively bring our involvement in this war to a close. It may be true as the Secretary of State told the Senate several weeks ago, that democratic elections alone don’t create a stable government, but that the Secretary, however valid, should not be used as a rationale for an unending American occupation.

It is possible, of course that civil strife will ensue when we withdraw, but this is just as likely to be the case in 2026 as 2006. In any regard, civil union is for the Iraqi people to manage. It’s not for American troops to sustain. The authorization to this Congress gave to the Executive to use force contemplated the clear prospect of military intervention in Iraq. It did not, however, contemplate prolonged occupation.

This is not understood by the Executive branch, the current overwhelming Iraqi polling sentiment favoring American troop withdrawal will be more than matched by shared American sentiment. In a democracy no one can be a leader without followers. The issue is no longer, as is so frequently implied that all repressive regimes are fair game for military intervention in Iraq, is for the Administration to place itself in a position where who share its great religion. It should be understood the question of anarchy—i.e., troops can’t be drawn down as long as suicide bombers continue to wreak havoc—we place ourselves in a catch 22 and, in effect, hand over decision-making discretion to those who wantonly kill. We allow the radical few to use our presence as the reason for their actions and at the same time cause our involvement to be held hostage to their villainy. In a democracy no one can be a leader without followers. The issue is no longer, as is so frequently implied, the need to “stay the course;” it is to avoid “overstaying” our presence.

Mrs. WILSON of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, just last month, the Iraqi people, including large numbers of Sunni Iraqis, voted in a referendum for a new constitution. The Iraqi people are choosing to participate in the political process that can eventually undermine support for the indigenous insurgency in Iraq.
The next step in building Iraq’s political future is elections in December under this new, completely Iraqi Constitution. Broad participation in these elections will continue to build political momentum for a new self-governing Iraq at peace with its neighbors.

While the political process moves forward, the United States and its allies must continue to train Iraqi police and security forces so that week by week, month by month, more neighborhoods, towns and provinces are patrolled and controlled by Iraqis.

We must continue to conduct military operations against insurgents and foreign fighters in Iraq, particularly al Qaeda in Iraq. There are still difficult days ahead and much work to be done—much of it done by our men and women in the military.

I expect U.S. forces will continue to stay in Iraq through December’s elections at roughly their current level. But as I’ve said, if political and security progress continues on roughly the course we are on, American forces should be taken apart being drawn down significant numbers during the course of next year. These redeployments should be based on conditions in the field. As the Iraqis stand up, we can stand down.

Affirming the call on September 11, 2001, we made a decision to play offense in fighting the war on terror, to track down enemies who would kill Americans and give them no place to hide. Our troops are doing a fantastic job, and terrorists know they have no hope of defeating our troops in the field. They know that the center of gravity in their fight is to undermine the will of the American people.

I would rather have American soldiers hunting down terrorists over there, than have American firefighters and police officers responding to attacks at home.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, our military men and women are doing a tremendous job in Iraq, as they work with Iraqis to secure their country and combat the terrorists who want so desperately to prevent freedom from taking root.

Our troops earned the right to hear messages of strong support and thanks from us—not calls for withdrawal that merely give hope to the enemy. Given a chance, the Iraqi military and political system will become strong enough to defend the Iraqi people on its own.

We have not had an honest debate over the war in Iraq here in the House even as we have seen more than 2,000 young American die in battle.

We have not had an honest debate over the quality of information that we were given before the start of the war, or about the inability of Secretary Rumsfeld and the Bush Administration to give us any serious indication of our current objectives or a time line for the ultimate re-deployment of American troops out of Iraq. As I am acutely disappointed in the thorough debate, as I am sure all of my colleagues in the Democratic party would. But what we are doing today is a political motivated exercise that insults that integrity and cheapens the reputation of the House itself.

There are many troubling aspects of our involvement in Iraq that we should be debating, including the discovery just this week that some of the Iraqi security forces that we are training—paying for—were engaged in the same type of torture of Iraqi citizens that characterized the reign of Saddam Hussein himself.

What we should not be doing is considering a disingenuous resolution that is merely intended to elicit sound bites for conservative talk radio shows and which is a thinly veiled attempt to insult one of the most courageous and dedicated members of the House, Mr. MURTHA. We can do better, Mr. Speaker, and we should resoundingly reject this measure.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, my colleague from Pennsylvania, Mr. MURTHA said yesterday in questioning that the U.S. has been asked of them, the U.S. cannot accomplish anything further in Iraq militarily. It is time to bring them home.” I know Mr. MURTHA to be a man of honor and integrity and I am sure he is sincere in his belief that there is not more to accomplish and withdraw our troops, I could not disagree more with his assessment.

We must stay in Iraq to finish the job and leave with honor. To cut and run now would leave with our tail between our legs would send the message to terrorists around the world that America has lost its will to win the War on Terrorism. This would merely embolden our terrorist enemies and lead to openason on America and our allies. We cannot allow this to happen. We must stay the course in Iraq and finish the job. The stakes are too high to fail.

Throughout American history, we have been tested in times of war many times. But virtually every time, we stayed the course and prevailed.

We did not experience quick victory in the American Revolution. In fact, it took our Founding Fathers years to win our hard-fought independence. We were defeated at the Battles of Long Island, Harlem Heights, White Plains and others, and we will never forget the dark days at Valley Forge, yet we did not give up our desire for freedom.

“Mr. Speaker, let’s not forget World War II, where we suffered rapid and repeated defeats at Guam, Wake Island, the Philippines and Kasserine Pass.

But when General Douglas Macarthur was forced to leave the Philippines, he did not say, ‘I would have an immediate withdrawal of all American troops.” Instead, he uttered the immortal words: “I shall return.”

And we aren’t even losing in Iraq! We are winning, and making a difference. Because of our intervention in Iraq, a murderous dictator and a totalitarian regime have been overthrown, free elections have been held, and a new constitution has been drafted and ratified.

This is an important and emotional debate. When to send our servicemen and women to war and when to bring them home is perhaps the most difficult decision we as Member face. I have been to Iraq and everybody I met was enthusiastic, about doing their job and helping the Iraqi people.

We must fight this temptation to set an artificial deadline to withdraw our troops home. This will do is allow the terrorists time to regroup and lay in wait until we leave. But do not take my word for it. Take the word of a top American commander in Iraq who called setting a deadline for troop withdrawal “a recipe for disaster.”

Army Maj. Gen. William Webster, whose 3rd Infantry Division is responsible for security in three-fourths of Iraq’s capital said “Setting a date would mean that the 221 soldiers I’ve lost this year, that their lives will have been lost in an armed faction would likely take a cue from a timetable for a U.S. withdrawal to lie low, gathering their strength and laying plans for renewed conflict when the Americans leave.”

Mr. Webster went on to say “They believe they are doing the right thing. The soldiers believe they’re helping.”

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle have been saying that the war in Iraq has been a dismal failure and a mistake. Let me ask them, is it a sign that our troops have vaccinated over 3 million children under age 5 to help these children fight polio. Or that we screened more than 1.3 million children under age 5 for malnutrition.
Mr.Speaker, we are at a crossroads in Iraq. History will not define this great nation by deviation from its core values, nor will it define us by the proper response from those who make baseless allegations and engage in pointless political stunts. The Republicans don’t demean Mr. MURTHA, can’t begin to demean Mr. MURTHA, when they make baseless allegations and engage in pointless political stunts. They demean themselves and they demean the integrity of this House of Representatives. Shame on you. I urge my colleagues to vote against this resolution.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, the definition of ‘immediate termination of United States forces in Iraq’ must mean the following as set forth by Representative JOHN MURTHA:

‘My plan calls:

—To create over-the-horizon presence of Marines.
—To diplomatically pursue security and stability in Iraq.

You may call this a position, a program, or an exit strategy but this is the Murtha message which set in motion the current proceedings on the floor of the House of Representatives. This is the declaration heard from Representative MURTHA by the American people and around the globe. By all standards of decency and by popular decree the Republican leadership is mandated to respect the precedent setting language of this most detailed of all proposals for new and creative action in Iraq.

For this reason I urge all of my colleagues to examine closely the resolution before us. ‘That the deployment of United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately.’ In view of the fact that the wording of this resolution distorts the plan set forth by Congressman MURTHA, I urge my colleagues to condemn this dirty trick by voting ‘present.’

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues, there is nothing—nothing—more serious that we will do in our lives as well as our country’s history to send our men and women to war. And there is no one in this body who understands the consequences of that decision more than JACK MURTHA who served 37 years in the Marines, won two Purple Hearts in battle, and loves without reservation our soldiers in uniform.

Over 2,070 Americans and tens of thousands of civilian Iraqis are dead, thousands more are horribly injured in this war that many of us believe to be completely unjustified. Yet the House Republicans are so morally bankrupt they would turn to cheap, political stunts in order to undercut Congressman MURTHA’s conscience-driven call for an end to the Iraq war, which he calls “a flawed policy wrapped in illusion.”

But there is not a person in this House who is man or woman enough to ever undercut the credibility of JACK MURTHA, no matter how many accusations they may throw at him, no matter how many names they call him, and no matter how many “clever” tactics they try. Shame on the Republican leadership for thinking it’s ok to turn this war into a game and Representative MURTHA into a political football. Shame on the Speaker for accusing JACK MURTHA of insulting and demoralizing our troops. Mr. MURTHA, this decorated war hero, is right when he says “what demoralizes them is going to war with not enough troops and equipment to make the transition to peace; the devastation caused by IEDs; being deployed to Iraq when their homes have been ravaged by hurricanes; being on their second or third deployment and leaving their families behind without a support network.”

The Republicans don’t demean Mr. MURTHA, can’t begin to demean Mr. MURTHA, when they make baseless allegations and engage in pointless political stunts. They demean themselves and they demean the integrity of this House of Representatives. Shame on you.

I support JACK MURTHA’s resolution to stop sending our soldiers to die in Iraq. I support him when he says, “It is time to bring them home.” The proper response from those who disagree with this revered Marine would be to have serious discussion about how we got into Iraq, about the conduct of the war, and about how we get out. Instead we see the typical slash-and-burn personal attacks that are the mainstay of the Republicans, especially when they know they are wrong. And you are wrong.

But you are no longer fooling the American people. In overwhelming numbers they think it was a mistake to go to war in Iraq; they think the Bush Administration mishandled the war; they don’t trust the President to tell the truth; and they don’t support this war. On the eve of Thanksgiving, even as our troops are doing their very best far from home and family, the Republicans have chosen to pull a cheap, de-meaning political stunt. Shame on you.

Mr. Speaker, we went to war in Iraq in an irresponsible way; we should leave Iraq in a responsible way.

The Administration’s slogan of “stay the course” is not a strategy. More of the same is unacceptable. We must change course. The Bush Administration has tried to stifle debate here at home by shamelessly challenging the patriotism of those who question their approach. The time has come for a serious debate on this issue of utmost importance to the American people. We should bring our troops home. It is safer as possible. Bringing our troops home is only part of a successful strategy for leaving Iraq. We must deploy our troops in a way that does not unleash even more bloodshed and killing in Iraq, and does not create a vacuum that will be exploited by the terrorist element.

Our nation went to war in Iraq based on false information and gross distortions of the facts made by President Bush and others in his Administration. Before the invasion, a number of us gave speeches on the floor of this House outlining the dangers of going to war in Iraq. The Bush Administration and the Congress chose to disregard the warnings that were raised by many people who had experience on foreign policy issues regarding the Persian Gulf region.

We have made many mistakes during the war, but many of the results of our invasion were predictable. As I said on this floor prior to the war: “The President has presented a utopian vision of democracy breaking out in the Middle East after we invade Iraq. It is just as easy to imagine a scenario where difficulties in Iraq and the American action there fuel resentment toward occupying American troops and inflame the region against us, strengthening the hands of radical Islamic fundamentalists and making it more difficult to promote democracy and other U.S. goals in the region.”

Now, more than two and half years after the invasion of Iraq, those predictions have unfortunately proved true. The Administration utterly failed to understand the dynamics and history of Iraq. They failed to understand the opening that Sunni grievances and old rivalries would give to our enemies, to Al Qaeda and others. The Administration built its actions on a foundation of sand—on rosy scenarios and wishful thinking. We never had a plan to deal with the forces we were unleashing in Iraq and we are dealing with the consequences now. There have been over 2,079 confirmed American deaths in Iraq. Over 15,500 have been seriously injured. There have been reports of at least 30,000 Iraqi civilian deaths.

Having invaded Iraq, the United States has a moral and national security obligation to do everything possible to prevent the situation from spiraling even farther out of control. We must devise a plan to leave Iraq in a way that maximizes the chances for stability and minimizes the possibilities of a full scale civil war erupting.

The insurgency today consists primarily of former Baathists who lost their grip on power and who fear for their future security in a country where they have recently been re-sorted to a bloody campaign of terrorist attacks to prevent the establishment of a central government. The Bush Administration has failed to develop a political strategy that will end the violence.

This conflict will not be resolved by military force. It requires a diplomatic and political solution. Any resolution must address the Sunni fears that are feeding much of the violence. At the same time, any resolution must recognize the facts on the ground—the Kurds will never again allow themselves to be victimized by a central government in Baghdad and the Shia, by virtue of their majority status, will never again allow themselves to be dominated by others.

The Bush Administration’s efforts to achieve a political solution have been grossly inadequate. However, the prospects for a political and diplomatic resolution are less likely in the face of a total immediate withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq. The more likely result would be a surge in killings of innocent Iraqis as different groups compete for power in the vacuum left by the immediate and total departure of American forces. That bloodshed would be a great stain on our nation and a terrible blow to our already shattered credibility. Moreover, just as the precipitous U.S. disengagement from Afghanistan following the Soviet withdrawal from that country opened the door to the Taliban regime, the immediate and total withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq—without a political plan in place—would most benefit extremist and terrorist groups.

Our strategy for leaving Iraq must also recognize that Iraq’s neighbors—Iran, Turkey and Syria—all have strong interests in the future of Iraq. Our plan must ensure that the United Nations and the international community will work to prevent others from exploiting the situation in Iraq at the expense of the Iraqi people and the security of the region and the United States.

The Senate Democrats, under the leadership of Senators HARRY REID and CARL LEVIN have proposed a path for bringing our troops home in an orderly way that minimizes the likelihood of an outbreak of a full scale civil war in Iraq.

In the aftermath of the terrible attacks of September 11, 2001, the world rallied to our side. The international community supported our decision to go into Afghanistan to root out Al Qaeda. The Bush Administration squandered that international goodwill. Instead, it began a war of choice against Iraq. As many predicted before the invasion, that war has fueled the ranks of Al Qaeda and strengthened the jihadists. We must not compound the blunder of the Bush Administration by creating the conditions for even more bloodshed in Iraq and allowing it to become a haven and launching pad for terrorist activities.

This Congress has not had a serious debate on Iraq. Instead, the Republican leadership in this House has worked to hide from the American people the gross incompetence of the Bush Administration’s policies on Iraq. The time is long overdue for us to have a serious discussion on this issue of the greatest importance to the American people. Our troops and their families deserve no less.

Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of a colleague, a friend and someone whose judgment I respect. JOHN MURTHA had seen a lot of battles before he came to Congress. A decorated Vietnam Veteran with two Purple Hearts, a Bronze Star in 37 years of service in the Marines.

I did not know him then, but I know him now. He is a Member who carries with him a full, lived, a perspective formed by experience and understanding. He has accrued wisdom, which is seldom seen in a person who carries it in such a dignified and unassuming manner.

He was one of the first gentlemen of the House to support the “Women In Military Service For America Memorial.” I asked him for his support on this project, but I did not have to explain it. He understood the contributions women and other minorities have made in the military. He takes a comprehensive and inclusive view of situations. This man’s actions define who he is. I find this refreshing. He speaks from a position of knowledge. I say this because tonight we are debating a severely amended version of the Murtha Resolution.

If we are going to seriously debate the war in Iraq, we must do so in the scope that represents the full spectrum of the American people. This resolution tonight is not the debate the American people have asked for or need to hear. The American people want a comprehensive and inclusive debate that reflects the complexity of the situation our country finds itself in.

While agreeing with the Murtha Resolution, I do so primarily because he has given this situation great thought and because I trust that the author had every intent of fully debating his resolution whether members agreed to it or not—and is willing to listen constructively. We should follow his lead on opening up this debate—not smothering it. Mr. Speaker, I ask that this Friday night be set aside for the Thanksgiving season to be with family and friends and to give thanks, let us give dignity to a true debate about this war in Iraq.

The American people deserve better. RANGEL, Mr. Speaker, today I rise with a heavy heart to enter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD my observations regarding the shameless acts of the Republicans who have hijacked the House of Representatives and have become so arrogant, so deaf to any voices but their own do not hear the voices of the American people. My friend and colleague, JOHN MURTHA, a true American patriot and decorated Marine Corps veteran of Vietnam combat, spoke from his heart yesterday on behalf of those he cares most about: the men and women in uniform of the United States of America and the people of this country he has served all his life.

Congressman JOHN MURTHA, the leading Democrat on the House Appropriations Committee’s defense subcommittee, reached a point where he felt this country’s continued occupation of Iraq was a source of the violence in Iraq. Congressman Murtha had the courage to do what few have been able to do. He faced the people at a press conference and accused the Bush Administration of the worst. A decorated Vietnam Veteran who has done all they can in Iraq, but it is time for a change in direction. Our military is suffering. The future of our country is at risk. We can not continue on the present course. It is evident that continued military action in Iraq is not in the best interests of the United States of America, the Iraqi people or the Persian Gulf Region.

Congressman Murtha supported his conclusion by truths we know. The reasons we were given for going to war were all false. There were no weapons of mass destruction and no nuclear weapons; there was no imminent danger. We were not welcomed by flowers in Baghdad. We had not brought Democracy in Iraq. Congressman Murtha cited the key indicators in order to assess the “progress” of Iraq. According to reports recently submitted to his committee by the Secretary of Defense, Congressman Murtha learned some disturbing news. “Oil production and energy in Iraq are below prewar levels. Our reconstruction efforts have been crippled by the security situation. Only $9 billion appropriated for reconstruction has been spent. Unemployment remains at about 60 percent. Clean water is scarce. Only $500 million of the $2.2 billion appropriated for water projects has been spent. And most importantly, insurgent incidents have increased from about 150 per week to over 700 per week in the last year.”

Congressman Murtha pointed out that the American people do not want us in Iraq. A British poll found that 80 percent of Iraqis do not want us occupying their country. Of the 80 percent of the Iraqis who don’t want us in Iraq, 44 percent felt attacks on Americans were justified. Drawing on his experience in Vietnam, Congressman Murtha said there is no way to win a war with insurgents when the people tell the insurgents what moves you are going to take.

Congressman Murtha repeated what he has been saying. The war in Iraq cannot be won militarily. The administration is now saying the same thing. Congressman Murtha stated that our military has done its duty, but the war continues to intensify.

Congressman Murtha’s proposal was not to “cut and run” as the Republicans have said. His proposal provides for redeployment from Iraq of our troops, and a rapid deployment force to deal with any genuine terrorist threat in the region.

To equate a criticism of the President’s failed policy with a lack of support of our troops is beneath contempt. It is appalling to see the President, the Vice President, and Senate Republican leadership disingenuously twisted Mr. Murtha’s words, making a mockery of the democratic principles that we hope to instill throughout the world.

Article I, Section 8 of the Constitution grants Congress the right to oversee the operations of the military. As a member of the House Armed Services Committee, it is a responsibility I take very seriously. Instead of seeking a plan for victory, the Republican leadership has given the American people silence and the status quo. If we do not endeavor to provide the answers that so many demand, we will have failed our responsibility.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this resolution and to demonstrate that we will not play politics on an issue of such magnitude. Mr. DeFazio. Mr. Speaker, I have been in Congress for nearly 20 years. And in all that time, I don’t think I have ever been more ashamed of the House of Representatives than I am today.

Deciding issues of war and peace should be one of the most solemn obligations we confront in Congress. Instead, what is going on today is political gamesmanship. Such gamesmanship demeans the sacrifice of our men and women in uniform, demeans our country’s tradition of democratic debate, and is a total abdication of our responsibilities as Members of Congress. Rather than holding vigorous oversight hearings and having a full, open and honest discussion about the future of U.S. involvement in Iraq, the Republican leadership has pushed a resolution to the floor today that deliberately mischaracterizes the views of many Democratic members. Honorable Representative Jack Murtha, a decorated marine who served in both Korea and Vietnam, who have called for a safe and orderly withdrawal of U.S. troops over the next six months to a year.

Let me be clear, I have not supported an immediate withdrawal from Iraq. But, I do believe that in the wake of the December parliamentary elections in Iraq that the U.S. should negotiate a timeline with the new Iraqi government for the withdrawal of U.S. troops next year.

I was heartened when millions of Iraqis, even at risk of life and limb, voted in late January to establish an interim government and constitutional assembly and again in October in support of a new Constitution. I wrote to President Bush just after the January election, suggesting that the U.S. negotiate a timetable for a phased withdrawal of U.S. troops with the newly elected government. I felt it would be an ideal time to signal to the Iraqi people in a concrete way that the U.S. has no long-term designs on their country. While the President ignored my advice, I renewed my call and ask that following the December elections in Iraq, the U.S. negotiate a timetable to withdraw from Iraq next year.

While some have argued that announcing a timetable for withdrawal would undermine our troops and allow the insurgents to wait us out, I disagree.

Negotiating a timeline for withdrawal with the Iraqi government elected next month would show that democracy ended the U.S. occupation of Iraq, not terrorist or insurgent violence, and would allow our troops to come home with honor. Announcing the termination of the opened U.S. military commitment in Iraq and... providing a concrete plan, including a timeline negotiated with the Iraqi government, for withdrawal could also undermine support for insurgents who have stoked the wide variety of grievances of ordinary Iraqis arising from the occupation to generate popular support for their cause. Thus, maintaining a withdrawal plan and timeline would remove one of the chief causes of instability in Iraq, the occupation itself, by separating nationalist Iraqi insurgents trying to end the occupation, both Sunni and Shia, from foreign elements in Iraq for their own reasons. To the extent that a specific withdrawal plan, with benchmarks for measuring success in stabilizing Iraq, would turn Iraqis, both Sunni and Shia, against the foreign terrorists operating in Iraq, it could be a key turning point in stabilizing the country. Remembrance, the insurgents are made up of two primary camps—nationalist Sunnis and foreign terrorists. These two camps have different motivations and different goals.

A timeline and withdrawal plan negotiated with the Iraqi government would also boost the Iraqi government’s legitimacy and claim to self-rule and would force the Iraqi government to take responsibility for itself and its citizens.

Just as importantly, a specific plan and timeline for withdrawal would provide much needed certainty to U.S. service members, their families and provide some certainty to U.S. taxpayers regarding the ultimate financial burden they’ll be forced to bear.

A plan for withdrawal could also help the United States in its broader fight against Islamic extremism and global terrorism, notably al-Qaeda, by taking away a recruiting tool and training ground. Porter Goss, the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, testified to Congress earlier this year that, “Islamic extremists are exploiting the Iraqi conflict to recruit and train members of their military in terrorist tactics. These terrorists, who survive will leave Iraq experienced and focused on acts of urban terrorism.” He went on to say, “The Iraq conflict, while not a cause of extremism, has become a cause for extremists.” And, the Commander of U.S. forces in Iraq, General Casey, testified to Congress earlier this year that, “The perception of occupation in Iraq is a major driving force behind the insurgency.”

Finally, establishing a firm timeline for withdrawal could accelerate the development of Iraqi security forces and deepen their commitment to defending their own country and their own government by eliminating the conflicted feelings they now feel by working with an occupying force. It would allow them to be defending a sovereign Iraqi government, rather than fighting on the side of an occupation force.

The House should be debating this important issue and strategies for moving forward in Iraq instead of politically motivated straw man resolutions.

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I want our troops home as soon as anyone here, but I will not let the sacrifices of those who will never come home from Iraq and Afghanistan be wasted or forgotten. We have made a commitment to defend our freedom and protect our way of life.

Our brave men and women went to battle to bring freedom to Iraq and Afghanistan, and to take the fight to the terrorists so that we do not have to fight them here at home. This is a fight for the free world. It is a fight that we must win, and it is a fight that we will win only when we support our troops.

Let us work across the aisle to help them succeed and get them home safely, and let us honor their sacrifice by continuing to support their vital mission.

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in disgust at the level of cynicism that is represented by this resolution.

This exercise by the House Republican leadership is about as un-American and contemptuous as it gets.

I support Mr. MURTHA’s resolution to bring about an end to U.S. operations in Iraq in—and I quote—at the earliest practicable date.” The resolution before us is not about that.

This resolution is a blatant political effort to make it look like the President’s Iraq policy has broad support in Congress and among the public—which it obviously does not.

Worse, it transforms the sacrifice of our brave troops into crass political exercise.

Mr. Speaker, I have opposed this war from the beginning.

I wasn’t convinced of the need for it and deeply concerned about the potential fallout that it could precipitate.

Sadly, many of my concerns have been borne out as nearly 2,100 brave Americans have lost their lives and many thousands more have been wounded.

Today, the insurgency continues unabated and now Iran is a hotbed of terrorist activity.

We are less secure today than before we invaded.

As a result, America’s position and influence in the world have suffered greatly in the process.

I believe it is long past time that the administration produce an exit strategy for Iraq and I am deeply disappointed that all we have seen is more of the same inexperience and incompetence that got us here in the first place.

I am not surprised by Representative MURTHA’s statement yesterday.

Mr. MURTHA’s distinguished military career, and his decades of public service, have given him a level of expertise on defense issues virtually unparalleled in today’s Congress.

He understands the troops and their leadership, and the challenges faced by the military in times of war and peace far better than most.

I am sure his announcement is the result of long and careful consideration and demands the attention of all thinking Americans.

I am shocked, but not surprised, by the shameful response of some of my Republican colleagues in Congress and by officials in the White House who have sought to besmirch Mr. MURTHA’s motivations and accquen.

Today’s action by the House leadership is more of the same—an attempt to smear a man of honor who commits the unpardonable sin of disagreeing with them.

Fortunately, as time goes on Mr. MURTHA’s call for a serious reassessment of our position in Iraq will be recognized as thoughtful analysis of a policy in deep trouble and need for change.

I only hope that President Bush and his administration will discover that truth before more lives are lost in this tragic situation.

Speaker J. DENNIS HASTERT declared: “MURTHA and Democratic leaders have adopted a policy of cut and run. They would prefer that the United States surrender to the terrorists who would harm innocent Americans. To add insult to injury, they have done while the President is on foreign soil.”

Majority Leader ROY BLUNT informed MURTHA that his views “only embolden our enemies” and lamented that “Democrats undermine our troops in Iraq from the security of their Washington, DC, offices.”

At a rival news conference called four hours after MURTHA’s appearance, Representative J.D. HAYWORTH, who like HASTERT and BLUNT does not have military service on his résumé, alerted the 73-year-old MURTHA that “the American people are made of sterner stuff.” And Representative JOHN CARTER said the likes of MURTHA want to take “the cowardly way out and say, ‘We’re going to surrender.’”

In a broadside issued Thursday night, Bush spokesman Scott McClellan said that it is “baf-fling that [Pennsylvania Representative JOHN MURTHA] is endorsing the policy positions of Michael Moore and the extreme liberal wing of the Democratic party.”

MURTHA, whose brand of hawkishness has never been qualified by the word “chicken,” was expecting the attacks. “I like guys who’ve never been there to criticize us who’ve been there. I like that,” the burly old marine said, handing a bucket. Referring to Vice President CHENEY, he continued, “I gave him a level of expertise on defense issues vir-

I voted against giving the President the authority to go to war in Iraq. I have been an outspoken critic of the President’s handling and planning for the Iraq War, and have criti-ized both the pro-war intelligence used by the President and the failure of the President to plan a realistic transition from a dictatorship to a democracy in Iraq with our allies.

I commend the Senate for the debate it had this week in which real options were reviewed in a serious and responsible manner. I agree that 2006 should be a period of significant transition to full Iraqi sovereignty, and that Iraqi security forces must take the lead in protecting its citizens. U.S. military forces should not stay in Iraq any longer than required, and Congress must insist on measurable benchmarks for bringing our troops home.

Our soldiers have paid the heaviest price in Iraq; thousands are dead, and tens of thousands are wounded. The American taxpayer has already invested hundreds of billions of dollars. Mr. Speaker, our soldiers deserve better than this—better than the resolution we are considering this evening. The American people deserve a Congress that will give serious consideration to how we can safely bring our soldiers home.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this resolution, which is nothing more than an effort to politicize one of the most serisous policy issues facing the United States today. It is nothing more than an effort to dis-glory a vote by the House in a cloak of partisan rhetoric—the fact that our Iraq policy is failing.

The facts are clear: Even as our brave men and women in uniform have done their best, the Administration has failed at every turn to execute the war in Iraq competently. The President rushed to war based on false and faulty intelligence against the protests of the vast majority of our allies. Warnings from U.S. commanders about troop levels and equipment were disregarded, haphazard decisions were made, and the earliest stages which seriously damaged our efforts to restore peace and security in Iraq. Our troops have become targets of an ever-strengthening insurgency. This Administration’s horrid judgment has put us in an untenable situation—damaging our ability to deal with other emerging threats around the world and threatening the stability of the Middle East.

The solution to Iraq’s problems will be political in nature, not military. The various factions in Iraq need to come together to decide what shape the future of their country will take and to execute that decision. Every diplomatic avenue must be pursued to engage the international community in bringing stability and security to Iraq and reconstructing critical infrastructure. We must assure the Iraqi people that we do not intend to stay in Iraq indefinitely, and that we will redeploy troops in a way that assures their safety and on a schedule pegged to successes in security force training and other criteria. Iraqi security forces must take control of their own country as soon as the U.S. military is able to do so.

This redeployment must be carried out in a way that does not leave Iraq as a playground for Iran, Syria, and al-Qaeda. It must be carried out at the earliest possible time we are reasonably assured that the conditions exist to ensure redeployment will leave U.S. interests in the Middle East and around the world more, rather than less, secure.

Mr. Speaker, hasty decision-making is what got us into this mess in the first place. The war in Iraq, and the men and women in uniform who are fighting the war, deserve more than ad hoc, 11-hour debates over political power plays. I urge my colleagues to oppose the resolution.

Mrs. DAVIS of California. Mr. Speaker, this Republican withdrawal resolution was drafted in haste.

No matter how you feel about getting into this war, our kids are there now. They’re in the middle of harm’s way, right now. As many thousands of families, friends and loved ones can tell you—they’ve been over there a long time.

I’m a member of the Armed Services Committee. I voted against going to war with Iraq without exhausting all our diplomatic efforts. But here we are. We didn’t do that.

I’ve been to Iraq. I’ve sat through scores of hearings on Iraq. I’ve spoken to the Secretary of Defense. I’ve spoken with our military commanders. Like everyone here tonight, I’ve lost sleep over it. I’ve given it a lot of thought. I know my colleagues have too. I know that.

Let’s calm down for a second. Let’s look at the choice before us tonight.

On one hand, House Republican DUNCAN HUNTER is asking us to withdraw our troops immediately without protection or support. On the other hand, the White House is asking us just to keep our troops on the same course.

I can’t choose either of these options in good conscience. Honestly, I don’t see how any of us can.

To put it simply, we have more options than “all or nothing” here tonight.

We should be looking for the “better course” not the “same course.”

There is no military solution to Iraq. We’ve got to look to diplomacy and joint civilian-military efforts. This war has demonstrated the need for trained civilian professionals who can provide continuity and hand-in-glove partnerships with the military.

Everywhere I’ve gone and everyone I’ve talked to has cited the need for this.

It was obvious early on that the future of Iraq depends on Iraqis. And yet, the administration is only now beginning to place an emphasis on building and deploying Iraqi security forces.

James Fallows of the Atlantic Monthly wrote recently, “an orderly exit from Iraq depends on the development of a viable Iraqi security force. But the Iraqis aren’t even close. The Bush administration doesn’t take the problem seriously—and it never has.”

We have other options besides this draconian resolution. It’s too bad we’re not able to have hearings on those. It’s too bad we’re not able to consider these other options tonight.

Mr. SCHWARTZ of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Pennsylvania, Mr. MURTHA, has correctly observed that at present, our policy in Iraq is “a flawed policy wrapped in illusion,” and that we cannot continue on this present course, because to do so is to court disaster. Based on visits to Iraq, I have accused him—as they have others who dare to question their failed policy in Iraq—of being unpatriotic. Sadly, this is a tactic we have seen before. But it is deeply corrosive and it must stop. Every American has the right to question their leaders, period.

There is a reason the majority and the President don’t want to be questioned about Iraq. There are several reasons, in fact. This war was started based on faulty and misrepresented intelligence. It has been prosecuted without the number of troops or the amount of equipment that was known to be necessary before it started. And today, it continues without broad international cooperation or an exit strategy. Answering questions about any and all of these is admittedly difficult. But hiding from the answers is not only cowardly, it is irresponsible. I too have visited our troops in Iraq, and they are best served if we face the truth—with the humility that come from recognizing their valor, dedication, and sacrifice.

As the gentleman from Pennsylvania has said, things are not going as advertised in Iraq, and the American people know it. Three years of mistakes and missteps—about the threat Saddam posed, about the ease of total victory, about how Iraqi oil would pay for reconstruction, about the cost to America’s military and budget, among others—have finally caught up with this Administration and the Congressional leadership. The gentleman from Pennsylvania offers a plan for getting us out of Iraq strategically, methodically, and successfully. It outlines a way forward for our country to deal with the number one moral and political issue confronting our nation today. We should be debating his proposal, not rejecting it.

Meeting the challenge that faces us in Iraq requires courage and honesty. The actions of the majority show neither today. I am sorely disappointed that they have chosen to act so irresponsibly.

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, there has never been a time like this in America’s history.

Never before has a full-scale assault been launched on Americans who offer a different point of view about the policies of an administration, especially when it concerns a war on foreign soil.

Almost 3 years ago, I went to Iraq as part of a humanitarian delegation. When I said in... response to a media question that the President would mislead America into war, the White House immediately launched a relentless attack on me. They spared no political or public relations weapon, surrogate or ploy, in their attempt to silence me.

Republicans, at the direction of the White House, launched a full-scale assault on me, because they feared what might happen if the American people actually had an opportunity to consider an alternative point of view. If they could shout me down, they could silence anyone’s question about the evidence before waging a war.

In the last 24 hours, a similar campaign has been launched against Representative John Murtha of Pennsylvania. Here is an esteemed Member of Congress, a decorated combat veteran, a conservative known for his strong stand on defense, and the Republicans and their cronies launch an offensive that, itself, is offensive.

Representative John Murtha stood up yesterday and spoke on behalf of the American people. He called for the deployment of U.S. soldiers to fight in the war against terrorism, rather than being engaged in a war of occupation in Iraq.

The American people overwhelmingly want a solution for Iraq that is negotiated by diplomats from the Arab world, not dictated by a flawed and futile mission.

The conduct of the Republican Party and its surrogates is despicable, but it is out in the open, in the light of day. Now, the American people understand the lengths to which the Republican Party will go to silence dissent in America. Now, the American people know that there is a war being fought in America over the war in Iraq.

The American people are demanding an end to the presence of U.S. soldiers in Iraq. The American people know there is no such thing as a military victory in an urban, guerrilla warfare. There is only occupation, and the American people want no part of that flawed and futile mission.

The American people overwhelmingly want a solution for Iraq that is negotiated by diplomats from the Arab world, not dictated by a President from the western world.

Representative John Murtha has set forth a plan for winning the peace. He understands the American people, and that’s what frightens the White House. Therefore, the attacks will not stop unless and until Republicans can silence dissent in America.

There is a plan now for winning the peace in Iraq. It may have been submitted by a Member of Congress, but it is the voice and will of the American people. The American people get it: You are not strong on defense, by strong arming a defenseless—and senseless—war.

I support the Murtha plan to win the peace in Iraq.

Mr. Udall of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, for over 2 years, the Bush administration has failed to offer the American people a truthful and meaningful dialogue on the war in Iraq. We have lost thousands of troops and we have spent billions of dollars, and yet the President refuses to offer a credible strategy for success. The President has misled the public and he refuses to acknowledge the truth of the reality in Iraq.

Hundreds of Members of Congress and millions of Americans have voiced very serious and very real concerns with the decisions being made by the White House. Although I voted against the war, once the President took us to war, I have supported the men and women in uniform who are serving our Nation. However, I continue to believe that unless we have a clear strategy, we will continue to see the loss of American lives in Iraq with no end in sight.

Mr. Udall. Bununally, today, instead of having a legitimate debate about strategy and consequences, the majority has chosen to waste the time of this body and the American people by bringing forth a blatantly political resolution that is difficult to take seriously. My colleague from Pennsylvania, a decorated combat veteran decorated with two Purple Hearts and a Member of the House for three decades, Mr. Murtha, yesterday offered a well thought out, principled resolution calling for the redeployment of the forces in Iraq at the “earliest practicable date.” In addition, despite what some in the majority have characterized during today’s debate as cutting and running, Mr. Murtha’s resolution calls for a continued military presence in the region through the deployment of a quick-reaction force and an over-the-horizon presence of U.S. Marines. Also, the resolution states throughly the truth of the reality in Iraq. It may have been submitted by a Member of Congress, a decorated combat veteran, a conservative known for his strong stand on defense, and the Republicans and their cronies launch an offensive that, itself, is offensive.

The conduct of the Republican Party and its surrogates is despicable, but it is out in the open, in the light of day. Now, the American people understand the lengths to which the Republican Party will go to silence dissent in America. Now, the American people know that there is a war being fought in America over the war in Iraq.

The American people are demanding an end to the presence of U.S. soldiers in Iraq. The American people know there is no such thing as a military victory in an urban, guerrilla warfare. There is only occupation, and the American people want no part of that flawed and futile mission.

The American people overwhelmingly want a solution for Iraq that is negotiated by diplomats from the Arab world, not dictated by a President from the western world.

Representative John Murtha has set forth a plan for winning the peace. He understands the American people, and that’s what frightens the White House. Therefore, the attacks will not stop unless and until Republicans can silence dissent in America.

There is a plan now for winning the peace in Iraq. It may have been submitted by a Member of Congress, but it is the voice and will of the American people. The American people get it: You are not strong on defense, by strong arming a defenseless—and senseless—war.

I support the Murtha plan to win the peace in Iraq.

Mr. Udall of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, for over 2 years, the Bush administration has failed to offer the American people a truthful and meaningful dialogue on the war in Iraq. We have lost thousands of troops and we have spent billions of dollars, and yet the President refuses to offer a credible strategy for success. The President has misled the public and he refuses to acknowledge the truth of the reality in Iraq.

Hundreds of Members of Congress and millions of Americans have voiced very serious and very real concerns with the decisions being made by the White House. the difficult steps of constituting a new government, laying the groundwork for free elections.

Our only ‘exit strategy’ from Iraq should be victory. Anything less than that virtually guarantees the next battleground may be closer to home!

Mr. Speaker, we have to choose where we want to fight the global war on terrorism—in Iraq and Afghanistan or on Main Street in America.

And we must never forget that it is our brave young warfighters—men and women of the Army, Marines, Navy and Air Force—who are taking the fight to the terrorists overseas! They are all volunteers—doing the unheralded work of rebuilding shattered nations.

If not for their service, Saddam Hussein would still be in power with all his trappings—the secret police, the torture chambers, the mass graveyards. God bless these young people.

If not for their service, Iraq would be a nation engulfed in civil war or in the hands of fanatical terrorists.

The targets of these terrorists are more often than not other Muslims—worshippers at Friday prayers inside their mosque slaughtered by suicide bombers—today—and moderate Muslims who reject their extremist views and work to provide for their families, run businesses or serve in the government. Indeed, the terrorists’ victims include thousands of Muslims in Iraq—many killed simply because they’ve chosen to be free.

Mr. Speaker, with our support, the Iraqis have made great progress. They established an interim government. They elected members of a constitutional conference. They’ve drafted a constitution and conducted a referendum to endorse that constitution. And in 3 weeks, they will hold a full-fledged parliamentary election.

None of this would have been possible without the contribution of our young warfighters.

Of course, at times like these, we are reminded that freedom is not free. America has paid a heavy price.

Many of us visit soldiers at Walter Reed Army Medical Center and the Bethesda Naval Medical Center on a regular basis. Many of us have attended painful funerals and comforted grieving families. Time and again, those families of wounded soldiers speak proudly of their loved ones’ service in Iraq—their humanitarian efforts to protect the innocent, rebuild schools and hospitals, repair the infrastructure of a civil society.

Let’s support our troops—and their families.

And let’s applaud their service and heroism.

I urge adoption of this rule and the underlying resolution.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, the Republican leadership today demonstrates that they have no sense of decency left. No question before Congress requires a more measured, thoughtful discussion than matters of war and peace. Our national security and the lives of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines depend on our ability to fulfill our constitutional responsibilities with dignity and respect.

That measured, thoughtful discussion will not occur today, because the Republican leadership does not want it to occur. They want a quick vote, on a substitute resolution that they hope will divide Democrats. They have taken Representative JACK MURTHA’s proposal, rewritten to make it irresponsible, and brought it to the floor for a vote.

Almost everything we were told by the advocates of invading Iraq before the war has turned out to be false. This administration and its congressional allies hype the threat and manipulated American intelligence about Iraq’s nuclear program and its alleged connection to al Qaeda.

Today, there is only one question about our occupation of Iraq. It weighs on the minds of almost all Americans, especially those with loved ones in the military. That question is simply, when and under what conditions will we withdraw our troops and bring them home?

Opinions differ. After 2 1/2 years, over 2,000 deaths and 15,000 wounded, millions of Americans and many Members of Congress believe it is time for us to start the process of withdrawal from Iraq. Some believe in a date certain for beginning or completing the withdrawal. Some believe our withdrawal should be tied to achievement of certain benchmarks of progress. President Bush appears to believe that only total ‘victory over the terrorists,’ whatever that is, would justify withdrawal.

The historic task of this Congress in foreign policy is to participate in a constructive debate that will inform the decisions of the administration and others.

The Republican leadership has dishonored the people’s House by foregoing debate on alternatives, not just debate but hearings, in favor of bringing one resolution to the floor in the hope of dividing critics of the administration’s ‘stay the course’ war strategy. I voted against giving President Bush the authority to invade Iraq without building a broad international coalition and obtaining explicit U.N. authority. I did not believe he would do anything, given the authority from Congress, but rush to war. And that is what he did.

No Member of Congress is more respected or more knowledgeable about the American military than JACK MURTHA of Pennsylvania. His statement yesterday calling for withdrawal of our troops from Iraq, including his conviction that our troops are simply, when and under what conditions will we withdraw our troops and bring them home?

Instead, JACK MURTHA, decorated Marine, distinguished Member of Congress, has been vilified by the Speaker of this House, who wrongly accused him of adopting “a policy of cut and run” and preferring that “the United States surrender to the terrorists.” The White House spokesman accused Mr. MURTHA of endorsing “Michael Moore and the extreme liberal wing of the Democratic Party.” I doubt that anyone knows Michael Moore, and no one here that I know ever called him a liberal. We call him Mr. MURTHA because he is one tough Marine.

If I were the author of his resolution, I would have written it somewhat differently. I would have called for the withdrawal of American forces to begin next year and be concluded except for a very small training force of advisors in 2007. We cannot allow Iraq to become a failed state where al Qaeda forces can be trained with impunity. Therefore, some rapid reaction force in the region, as RANDALL BISHOP suggested, is necessary.

But on the big picture, JACK MURTHA is right. Our troops have become not only the targets of the insurgents, but the inspiration for the insurgency. Political success for the Iraqi government and people is still possible, but it will have to be won largely by political means. The Administration is, as he said, pursuing “a flawed policy wrapped in illusion.”

The Republican Leadership has hijacked this debate to serve their own political interests. I believe that the Murtha resolution calling for withdrawal is the right policy going forward, though we should continue to debate timing and benchmarks. A vote against the Murtha resolution, if it were offered, could be interpreted as support for an ill-conceived, flawed and failed ‘stay the course’ policy.

JACK MURTHA is on the right track. The President is not. Our national security and the lives and well-being of our troops depend on changing course, not doing the same old thing in Iraq.

If the Murtha Resolution had been brought to the floor today, I would have voted in favor of it.

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I voted to give President Bush the authority to go into Iraq, I’m not on the left; I’m not on the right. I’m on the side of our country and I’m on the side of our troops. I can’t imagine why the Republicans have brought this Bush-Hunter resolution to the floor. How does this help our troops serving in Iraq? How does this help make our Nation safer?

For the past two years, the Republicans have taken any criticism of this war and labeled it as unpatriotic and as an attack on our troops. Criticizing the way the war has been prosecuted—criticizing the way it has been bungled—is not unpatriotic. It is the ultimate act of patriotism.

JOHN MURTHA is a 37-year veteran of the Marine Corps. He served in Vietnam. He was awarded the bronze star. He received two purple hearts. Now Mr. MURTHA has provoked an important debate—one we should be having in this body. Mr. MURTHA has the right to have these ideas discussed. Our troops have the right to have these ideas discussed. The American public has the right to have these ideas discussed.

We send young men and women to war. We are responsible for them. They must be dilligent in our oversight. That’s our duty.

We are doing here a process that is a waste of time and does a tremendous disservice to our troops. Talk about patriotism—this is not patriotism. This is a cheap political stunt and an affront to those serving our Nation so far from home.

The President wants to stay the course. What does that mean? 700 attacks a week against our troops; no winning strategy; no plan; no end in sight.

Let us not embarrass ourselves any further, and, against the House resolution.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I am disgusted by the course of events today. As the daughter of a veteran of two wars I am offended and outraged by this personal assault on decorated war veteran Congressman JOHN MURTHA.

The House Majority has lost any sense of decorum or decency. Their abuse of power is obscene. There will be a reckoning though. Because the American people want accountability, not more Republican cover-ups. The American people want honesty, not more misleading and manipulation. They want an end to this ersatz and senseless war, not a policy of ‘stay the course’ that has no goals, no benchmarks, no plans, and no end.
The Republican majority’s effort in distorting and politicizing the resolution offered by a decorated war veteran is nothing short of despicable. The reality is that these are desperate actions by a desperate majority and a desperate administration. This last minute effort isn’t about a debate on the issues the Murtha resolution put forward about how to bring our troops home. It shouldn’t be. It isn’t about how we are going to bring our troops home. But it should be. This resolution is just about politics.

I support the Murtha resolution and this is not the Murtha resolution. Reject this cynical resolution which was more of a political stunt than a serious reflection of views in the Congress.

Our brave soldiers have put their lives on the line in serving in Iraq. Each of them deserves a Congress of effective leadership rather than the shrill squabbling that broke out on the House floor today. We need to come together on an exit strategy for our soldiers based upon the transition of security to the Iraqis themselves in order to give the new democratic government of the people of Iraq a fair chance of success. It is my hope the partisan screamers holding forth on the House floor today would lower their voices, travel to the area, learn as much as possible and then participate constructively in the difficult decisions we face in Iraq.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, the U.S. House of Representatives is sinking to a new low today. What is happening on the floor is not intended to be an open and honest debate on our policy in Iraq. It is about the politics of personal destruction—a swift-boat attack by Congressional Republicans on a 37-year veteran of the Marine Corps for giving his honest assessment about the situation in Iraq.

Republicans will try to claim—falsely—that this is about an idea, not a person—but everyone here in this room—whether or not they will admit it—knows the truth of what is going on today. This is about changing the subject and dodging responsibility. House Republicans are exposed and embarrassed by the Senator’s recent vote to demand benchmarks from the White House. The President refused to level with the American people on Iraq, or present his ideas, and apparently House Republicans are of the same mind. They would rather tear someone down.

Our troops—putting their lives on the line—deserve better from this country. Today is clearly not the time for these brave men and women. It is about political attacks.

JACK MURTHA is one of the most respected members of the U.S. Congress on U.S. military policy—an expert he has built from his first-hand knowledge of military and defense issues. He is a 37-year veteran of the Marine Corps, who retired at the rank of colonel in 1990. He is one of the most respected member of the U.S. Congress on the U.S. military, on a bipartisan basis. To question JACK MURTHA’s commitment—his patriotism to this nation—or our troops is ludicrous. No one has been as devoted as JACK to our men and women in the military—he’s made weekly visits to Walter Reed, visits to Iraq and has poured over the Defense Department’s own assessments of the situation on the ground in Iraq. I will vote against the GOP’s characterization of Congressman MURTHA’s opinions on Iraq, because I cannot support personal, political attacks and I believe that we should have a free and open discussion.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this Republican stunt and their efforts to embarrass a decorated Vietnam War Veteran.

Yesterday, Congressman JOHN MURTHA, a Democrat with impeccable military credentials and honored military record, suggested that U.S. troops leave Iraq at the earliest practicable date. Today, I cosponsored that resolution. His knowledgeable and respected voice joins the loud and clear pleas of the Out of Iraq Caucus as we demand a swift and sure end to this war.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this Republican stunt and their efforts to embarrass a decorated Vietnam War Veteran.

I fully support legitimate initiatives which have seen emerge from this troubled region. We were prepared to defeat Saddam Hussein’s military but the administration and congressional leaders were never prepared to win the peace.

Not only was the premise for the war flawed, but the administration has made the wrong military, political, and diplomatic choices at every turn. The members of our armed services make up the finest fighting force in the world and they have done their duty with great distinction and honor, yet the administration has failed them.

I take no satisfaction in my worst fears having been proven correct. The administration’s spectacular failures in executing this war have set back our efforts against terrorism and left America with no good options in Iraq. But, as one political analyst is being quoted as saying—damaged and Iraq faces increasingly difficult prospects for democracy and stability, staying the course is simply not an option.

Until now, I have resisted advocating for an accelerated pullout because of my fear of the disruption of the fragile transition that has followed the withdrawal of U.S. forces. Yet this is a question that must be faced sooner rather than later, and it’s hard to imagine a policy that would be more destabilizing than the administration’s current mismanagement of the war effort and continued estrangement from reality.

There is no longer any basis for the hope that a sustained American military occupation will stabilize Iraq. Instead, we continue to lose credibility and influence in the region and with our allies, as well as strengthen the hands of those extremists who wish to do us harm. Even many of those who initially supported military action have come to admit that the administration’s strategy has failed and that a large United States military presence inhibits the development of a stable and democratic Iraq. Iraqis in key positions are arguing for at least some withdrawal of U.S. forces. Most telling is a recent poll of Iraqis themselves, commissioned by the British Ministry of Defense, which showed that 82 percent of Iraqis were “strongly opposed” to the presence of foreign troops and 62 percent believe the threat of occupation is helping to drive Iraqis away from democracy.

Iraq’s future depends on creating a secure space for politics and the rule of law to replace violence. This is a process at which only Iraqis themselves can succeed, with America and the international community playing a supportive role. If the United States and its allies seize the opportunity to begin the withdrawal of American troops, a focused U.S. effort, and transfer of responsibility to Iraqis, American forces should be redeployed out of Iraq in two phases. First, let’s bring the 46,000 National Guard and Reserve forces home immediately. These elements in our total force have been most overburdened by... ever-increasing deployments and are most needed here in the United States.

Continued U.S. aid and military support must be tied to performance objectives for the Iraqi government and military. On that basis, the rest of the American forces should be withdrawn next one to two years, based on a detailed plan for the sector in question and the transfer of security responsibility. The majority of these troops should be brought home. Others should be redeployed to Afghanistan to create a larger security footprint and help prevent the reemergence of the Taliban. A small rapid-reaction force should be left in Kuwait that can protect against any destabilizing coups.

The administration must reengage diplomatically by seeking a new United Nations resolution that supports international efforts to stabilize Iraq and by beginning a regional security dialogue with Iraq’s neighbors. We should also work with the Arab League to facilitate a renewed effort towards a political solution within Iraq by engaging with nationalist faction leaders who might be a force for stability in that country if U.S. troops were withdrawn.

We must also change the nature of our economic assistance. By shifting reconstruction aid to Iraq away from large projects undertaken by foreign contractors towards small, locally oriented projects run by Iraqis, we create jobs, give Iraqis a greater investment in their success, and minimize corruption and price gouging.

President Bush’s model of “go it alone, do it cheap, and put it on a credit card” has not only led to grave instability in Iraq, it is crippling our ability to deal with the more serious strategic threats, from Iran and North Korea to a terrorist movement that we have inadvertently strengthened. We must now do our best to salvage what we still can of American credibility, military readiness, democratic ideals, and Iraqi stability through a change in strategy and the beginning of a responsible phase-down of American troops and the orderly transfer of authority from Iraq.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, the definition of “immediate termination of United States forces in Iraq” must mean the following as set forth by Representative JOHN MURTHA:

—My plan calls for:
—To immediately redeploy U.S. troops consistent with the safety of U.S. forces.
—To create a quick reaction force in the region.
—To create over-the-horizon presence of Marines.
—To diplomatically pursue security and stability in Iraq.

You may call this a position, a program, or an excuse, but this is the MURTHA message which set in motion the current proceedings on the floor of the House of Representatives. This is the declaration heard from Representative MURTHA by the American people and around the world. By all standards of decency and by popular decree the Republican leadership is mandated to respect the precedent setting language of this most detailed of all proposals for new and creative action in Iraq.

For this reason I urge all of my colleagues to vote “yea” for the next one to two years. “That the deployment of United States forces in Iraq be terminated immediately.”

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this resolution and in the strongest possible opposition to the Republican smear campaign against my friend and colleague, Congressman JACK MURTHA.

Jack Murtha is a patriot. He has served this country in wartime and peacetime and has earned an unparalleled record as a champion for our troops and their families. Jack Murtha is a retired Marine Colonel with more than thirty years of distinguished military service. He earned two Purple Hearts and a Bronze Star for action under enemy fire in Vietnam. He served as a USMC drill instructor at Parris Island, South Carolina boot camp. And as a foremost Congressional expert on defense matters, he has spent more than three decades helping to build a military force that is second to none in the entire world. I have been proud to serve in Congress with Jack Murtha for nearly ten years, and I had the honor of hosting him in my Congressional District and of joining him in visiting wounded veterans of the Iraq war at Walter Reed Army Medical Hospital.

Yet despite his standing and stature, Congressman MURTHA has been viciously attacked, libeled, and vilified. Mr. Speaker, it is not for having the temerity to raise important questions about this Administration’s policies regarding Iraq. Yesterday, the Republican Speaker DENNIS HASTERT, who never served in the military, called Jack MURTHA a coward. Other Republicans, and the White House, have called Jack MURTHA a traitor and accused him of giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

Mr. Speaker, the Republican attack machine has gone too far. Regardless of one’s view of the Administration’s Iraq policies, Members of Iraq, Mr. MURTHA believes that the continued presence of American troops in Iraq has retarded Iraqi efforts to unify the country and that Iraqis will not take the necessary steps to restore security as long as American troops remain in the country in large numbers.

But instead of addressing the serious deficiencies in the Administration’s military strategy, the majority offers this counterfeit resolution that precludes any debate on how we can improve our chance of success in the war effort.

Although there are differences within our caucus as to what our course of action in Iraq should be, we are united in our belief that the present course being followed by the administration is not working, and we must find a new course.

But how have the Vice-President and the Republican Majority in this House treated the sincere misgivings of a man who has shed blood for his country and been a staunch supporter of our men and women in the military? They have launched a vicious smear attack on Mr. MURTHA’s patriotism that the President, Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, yesterday my colleague from Pennsylvania, a man whom I deeply respect and admire for his lifetime of service and sacrifice to the Nation, made a serious statement about the prosecution of the war effort by the President. His speech yesterday morning and the resolution that he introduced were heartfelt expressions that he no longer believes that we can stay the course in Iraq.

Mr. MURTHA through his soul-searching. Despite any disagreements any of us may have on policy, we should not come together tonight to single him out as the object of ridicule. I will not be a party to this. In fact, I voted for the Hunter Resolution.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to express my deep dismay over the resolution being brought before the House tonight. The leadership of this House has responded to criticism of the war in Iraq by forcing a meaningless vote in order to frame the debate around one that I critique, my good friend Jack MURTHA.

Jack is a patriotic American of the highest order, contrary to the way our colleagues on the other side of the aisle may try to portray him. He has dedicated his life to the service of his Nation, defending it for 37 years as a Marine and soldier. For it, he has earned a better place through his 31 years as a Member of this institution. During that time, he has earned two purple hearts, a bronze star, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry and become one of the most respected leaders on military and Veterans issues.

Rather than listening to the wise words of a man who knows better than almost any of us what our soldiers need in a time of war, many of my colleagues have taken to questioning his motives and even his character, and now House leadership has twisted his words and offered this resolution as a vehicle to humiliate this proud, honorable, and decent man. They are holding this House hostage and answering his principled and heart-felt proposal with a petulant, and empty, and emasculated one sentence, was not considered or debated, and was offered under the most egregious terms.

I will not be participating in this charade tonight; if I were, I certainly would vote against the resolution. It is not a serious attempt at crafting public policy since it denies the best policy and leads to the best outcome for our troops and their families.

Mr. SCHIFF. Mr. Speaker, yesterday my colleague from Pennsylvania, a man whom I deeply respect and admire for his lifetime of service and sacrifice to the Nation, made a serious statement about the prosecution of the war effort by the President. His speech yesterday morning and the resolution that he introduced were heartfelt expressions that he no longer believes that we can stay the course in Iraq. Mr. MURTHA believes that the continued presence of American troops in Iraq has retarded Iraqi efforts to unify the country and that Iraqis will not take the necessary steps to restore security as long as American troops remain in the country in large numbers.

But instead of addressing the serious deficiencies in the Administration’s military strategy, the majority offers this counterfeit resolution that precludes any debate on how we can improve our chance of success in the war effort.

outcomes, in war as well as in peace. The courage to question a powerful but imperfect government is much more the essence of patriotism than a coerced silence.

The administration’s prosecution of the war effort has suffered from deficient planning that took the maxim of preparing for the worst and hoped for the best and turned it on its head. It failed to consider how the Sunni minority would react to being stripped of its privileged status, even as they underestimated the consequences of decades of totalitarian rule and the atomization of Iraqi society under Saddam Hussein.

Many of my colleagues and I have repeatedly called upon the President to do what should have been done a long time ago by laying out a strategy and vision for success in Iraq that will not condemn the Iraqi people to anarchy or turn Iraq into a haven for jihadis. We have called for proper oversight of the war effort by Congress to make certain that our troops in Iraq are properly equipped and that we are doing everything in our power to ensure their safety and success.

This House, this Congress and this Nation stand at the precipice that reasoned debate can produce wise policies that will best “provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.” Mr. Speaker, this resolution should be withdrawn.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 572, the resolution is considered read and the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 3, noes 403, answered “present” 6, not voting 22, as follows:

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, first I would like to commend my colleagues on the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, Chairman Pete Stark and Subcommittee Democratic Ranking Member NORTON, for all of their work on this important bill. H.R. 4324, Predisaster Mitigation Act Reauthorization Act of 2005, provides funding for a competitive grant program to assist States and local governments in implementing cost-effective hazard mitigation activities that complement a comprehensive mitigation program.

The Predisaster Mitigation Grant Program (PDM) will provide funds to states, and local governments and communities for hazard mitigation planning and the implementation of mitigation projects prior to a disaster event. Funding these plans and projects reduces overall risks to the population and structures, while also reducing reliance on funding from actual disasters. This program funds activities like, the seismic strengthening of buildings and infrastructure, the construction of levees and the building of “safe rooms” in houses and other structures to protect against high winds. It is important to note that this program complements another Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Management Act post mitigation program—the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program (HMPG) which provides funds to reduce the risk of future damage, hardship, loss or suffering in any area affected by a major disaster.

Over the last twenty-five years, this country has had over one thousand presidential disaster declarations in the United States and the Insular Territories. These disasters have cost our nation billions of dollars and taken an untold number of lives. In the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, Rita and Wilma, we have all become acutely aware of the devastation natural disaster can bring. We know that these natural disasters will continue to occur and bring damage and destruction but we also know that mitigation programs like the Predisaster Mitigation Program will help save lives and property.

According to the Multihazard Mitigation Council of the National Institute of Building Sciences which conducted an independent study on the costs benefits of mitigation for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA)—mitigation saves lives and tax dollars. For every $1 spent from the United States Treasury for mitigation, we will save $3.65 for taxpayers when disaster strikes. Mitigation reduces property damage, reduces business interruption, reduces environmental damage and most importantly, it reduces societal losses, including casualties and homelessness. Moreover, the benefits of FEMA hazard mitigation grants significantly exceed their costs—by a 4 to 1 margin. In addition to providing broad-based benefits to society, FEMA hazard mitigation grants enhance community safety and well-being.

Mr. Speaker, it is unmistakably true that we must act now to save lives, property and taxpayer funds. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RESIGNATION AS CLERK OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I am writing to tender my resignation as Clerk effective upon the appointment of my successor November 18, 2005.

It has been an honor to serve this Institution, its people and the Nation for more than 20 years. I leave knowing the incredible ability of the people here, and their commitment to the people they represent.

I will especially depart with a deep sense of admiration and respect for the individuals working in and with the Office of the Clerk.

I wish to thank them for their efforts over the last seven years during my tenure as Clerk of the House.

With best wishes, I am, Sincerely, JEFF TRANDAHL.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the resignation is accepted. There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT AS CLERK OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to section 208 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 (2 U.S.C. 75a–1), and the order of the House of January 4, 2005, the Chair announces the Speaker’s appointment as Clerk of the House of Representatives Mrs. Karen L. Haas of Maryland.

Sincerely,

JEFF TRANDAHL.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the appointment is approved. There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Under Clause 2(c) of Rule II of the Rules of the U.S. House of Representatives, I herewith designate Mr. Gerasimos C. Vans, Deputy Clerk, to sign any and all papers and do all other acts for me under the name of the Clerk of the House which he would be authorized to do by virtue of this designation, except such as are provided by statute, in case of my temporary absence or disability.

If Mr. Vans should not be able to act in my behalf for any reason, then Ms. Marjorie C. Kelaher, Assistant to the Clerk, should similarly perform such duties under the same conditions as are authorized by this designation.

These designations shall remain in effect for the 109th Congress or until modified by me.

With best wishes, I am, Sincerely, KAREN L. HAAS, Clerk of the House.

APPOINTMENT OF HON. TOM DAVIS AND HON. FRANK R. WOLF TO ACT AS SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE TO SIGN ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS THROUGH DECEMBER 6, 2005

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, November 18, 2005. I hereby appoint the Honorable Tom Davis and the Honorable Frank R. Wolf to act as Speaker pro tempore to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions through December 6, 2005.

J. DENNIS HASTERT
Speaker of the House of Representatives

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the appointment is approved. There was no objection.

COMMUNICATION FROM CHIEF OF STAFF OF HON. WILLIAM J. JEFFERSON, MEMBER OF CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from Nicole Venable, Chief of Staff of the Honorable William J. Jefferson, Member of Congress:

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: This is to notify you formally, pursuant to Rule VIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, that I have been served with a grand jury subpoena for documents issued by the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

After consultation with the Office of General Counsel, I have determined that compliance with the subpoena is inconsistent with the precedents and privileges of the House.

Sincerely,

NICOLE VENABLE,
Chief of Staff.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR

WASHINGTON, DC, November 18, 2005. Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday, December 7, 2005.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentle-woman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

TRIBUTE TO JEFF TRANDAHL
(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, obviously with the very exciting day that we have had, to the Clerk, my 1-hour Special Order changed to a 5-minute Special Order, now to a 1-minute. I just want to say thank you for the work you have done. The 32nd Clerk of the House, a native of Spearfish, South Dakota, again over 20 years of service.

We had a great reception last night where your loyal supporters and friends and folks that have worked for you were there to say thanks for a tremendous effort. You give great credit to the professional staff and working in what has to be a very challenging environment, dealing with politicians and our whims and our foibles.

We want to thank him for that. He has brought great credit to that in a long line of Clerks who served honorably, and we just wish for his successor great success and blessings as she takes on this great challenge in this new role.

BACKGROUND

32nd Clerk of this House.
Native of Spearfish, South Dakota.
Twenty years of House service.
Aide to: James Abdor (R-SD) in House and Senate; Virginia Smith (R-NE); Pat Roberts (R-KS); Committees on Appropriations and House Administration.
Assistant to the Clerk, Acting Chief Administrative Officer, Deputy Clerk, appointed Clerk December 1998 and elected Clerk 106th through 109th Congresses.
Graduate of University of Maryland.
 Begins appointment as Executive Director of National Fish and Wildlife Foundation on November 21, 2005.

HIGHLIGHTS AS CLERK

Guided major House information technology initiatives to including introduction of XML technology to standardize creation and exchange of legislative information.
Oversaw creation and management of first permanent and professional House curatorial and archival services.
Oversaw flourishing of House Page Program with construction of new Page Residence Hall, and enhanced academic status and national recognition of the House Page School.
Instrumental in creation of House Office of Emergency Preparedness and leader in establishing and improving continuity of operations planning for the House.
Implemented program to expand House portrait collection of historical House figures, including the first woman, the first African-American, and the first Hispanic-American in Congress.
Implemented the first electronic filing program for the House.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my appreciation to Jeff Trandahl, the departing Clerk of the House. We are going to miss Jeff who has given over 20 years of faithful service to the United States Congress. After rising through the ranks in Member and committee offices, in 1994 Jeff became a principle assistant to the transition team of the new Republican majority, helping to set up the first new majority in almost five decades. Jeff served as an assistant to the Clerk and then as the Acting Chief Administrative Officer of the House. In December 1998, I selected Jeff as my first officer appointment and the 32nd Clerk of the House. Jeff was subsequently re-elected to the two consecutive 2-year terms. He served on four occasions as the presiding officer for the opening of the House, overseeing the seating of Members and the election of the Speaker.

As the chief legislative official of the House, Jeff has been responsible for the daily legislative operations of the House from the day's Journal to our voting system. He has led the House Page Program, which under Jeff's leadership was recognized as a top educational institution, and he has managed the House's historical, curatorial, and archival needs.

Jeff has also been instrumental in the development of the Capitol Visitor Center project, especially the future exhibit space. Jeff has provided valuable leadership to the House Fine Arts Board, the Capitol Preservation Commission, and the National Archives Advisory Committee on the Records of Congress.

Jeff's tenure as Clerk has coincided with extraordinary events, including 9/11 and anthrax. Thanks to Jeff and the other Officers of the House, the House was prepared with contingency plans. Jeff was also instrumental in making the ceremonial session in New York City to mark the 1 year anniversary of 9/11 a tremendously moving and historical event.

On both sides of the Capitol building and on both sides of the aisle, Jeff is known for his fairness, his dedication, and his hard work. As I have said before, Republican and Democratic Members of Congress alike have enor-mous respect for Jeff's vast institutional knowledge, his utter professionalism, and his ability to get things done—traits which have made him a very effective and successful Clerk.

I join my colleagues in wishing Jeff all the best.

Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Members and staff of the U.S. House of Representatives, I express our sincere gratitude for Jeff's long and faithful service.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 4, 2005, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

TROOPS IN IRAQ AND DIRE CONSEQUENCES

Mr. FRANKS of Arizona, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take the Special Order time of the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arizona?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FRANKS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRANKS of Arizona, Mr. Speaker, it has been a meaningful and historic night. But it still deeply concerns me that there are Members of this body who have been misleading the public about pre-war intelligence on Iraq and demanding time-tables for troop withdrawal. They seem to be wholly unaware of the dire consequences of even talking about pulling our troops out, let alone doing it.

Our brave men and women in uniform have always fought desperately to preserve those unalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness endowed by the Creator Himself. And they are exactly what they are doing now in Iraq, and we should all be deeply grateful for that.

Mr. Speaker, one of the things that I am so desperately worried about is whether the people in this chamber and in this Republic truly understand what we are facing, not only as a Nation, but as Western Civilization.

The question we must ask ourselves is not whether we can win this war. We must win this war. The question now is what will happen if we do not.

Mr. Speaker, I am so concerned that this Nation does not yet understand that we are at war with an ideology, an ideology that threatens the existence of the Free World. This war did not begin on 9/11. This war began many years ago when certain Muslim extremists embraced a divergent Islamist dogma that dictates that all infidels must die.

Our Nation was first attacked during its very early beginnings in the late 1700s by the Barbary terrorists of the day. More recently, we were attacked in 1979 in Iran. Our embassy and our marine barracks were attacked in Beirut in 1983. The first World Trade Center attack was in 1993. Mr. Speaker; and we still did not wake up to what was happening at the time. Our military complexes and soldiers have been targeted throughout the world. The Khobar Towers in Saudi Arabia in 1996. Our embassies were blown up in Kenya and Tanzania in 1998. We witnessed the attack on the USS Cole in 2000. Mr. Speaker, 1 year later on September 11, terrorists murdered nearly the 3,000 American civilians on our own soil, and I wonder tonight have we forgotten that.

Since then our soldiers and our contractors have been kidnapped and executed, their bodies mutilated and dragged through the streets.

And we are not alone, Mr. Speaker. This has taken place throughout the world. In Serbia and Bosnia, soldiers, POWs, and civilians were beheaded by mujahideen. In Beslan, Russia, 186 children and 158 teachers and parents were slaughtered in a terrorist assault against a grade school. And just weeks ago, Mr. Speaker, in Indonesia, three young women were convicted and sentenced to death for committing suicide attacks and beheaded by Muslim extremists. Their names, Mr. Speaker, their names were Theresia, Ida, and Alfrita.

Churches are being attacked. Pastors have been kidnapped, tortured, and beheaded. And it seems there is not a day that goes by without a suicide or a car bomb attack in Iraq.

We have witnessed the horrific bombings in Spain, London, Indonesia, Jordan, and Israel. Rioters have completely disrupted hundreds of cities in France.

We simply cannot deny that we are fighting a war against enemies with an evil ideology that is bent on the destruction of the Western World. They are committed to killing us, Mr. Speaker, and any others that hold in their mind to be infidels.

Mr. Speaker, we truly are at war, and to undermine the sacrifice and blood-bought advancement of our valiant American soldiers who are at this very moment fighting terrorists in Iraq and across the world is unconscionable. A nation divided against itself simply cannot stand, Mr. Speaker. And those of us in this body, along with all Americans, must unite against this evil. We must win the war in Iraq. We must give our troops unequivocal support and everything else in our power to help them finish this job. Our troops have never failed us, and we must not fail them.

Mr. Speaker, if freedom is to survive, to allow Islamist terrorists to declare war and victory in Iraq is not an option. We must win and we cannot leave before the job is done. Because if we leave now, Mr. Speaker, we will not be able to go on with our daily lives as we once did. Because the world has truly changed. And those without conscience are relentlessly seeking to destroy us, and we must not let them ever have even the slightest hope of victory. Not ever, Mr. Speaker.

DIPLOMATICALLY PURSUING STABILITY AND SECURITY IN IRAQ

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDERMOTT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, I come to the well tonight after a long day of debate on whether or not we should redeploy our troops from Iraq.

A careful reading of the gentleman from Pennsylvania’s resolution, had we debated it, would have pointed out that the fourth point that he raised was that we should diplomatically pursue security and stability in Iraq. It is that issue I want to talk about because the question is always raised. If we leave, will it not get worse? Will it not just explode into civil war? We have already got that. And the question must be answered as we talk about deployment from out of the country.

At the same time, we have to decide to call on the Arab League or Egypt to engage and persuade all the members of the community of Iraq: the Sunnis, the Shias, the Kurds, the Turkomens, the Assyrians. All of them need to come together in a conference to resolve this. We have the idea that there is one constitution and that because it works here, we can just insert it into an Arab culture that has never worked under those circumstances.

We want to talk about because the question is always raised. If we leave, will it not get worse? Will it not just explode into civil war? We have already got that. And the question must be answered as we talk about deployment from out of the country.

At the same time, we have to decide to call on the Arab League or Egypt to engage and persuade all the members of the community of Iraq: the Sunnis, the Shias, the Kurds, the Turkomens, the Assyrians. All of them need to come together in a conference to resolve this. We have the idea that there is one constitution and that because it works here, we can just insert it into an Arab culture that has never worked under those circumstances.

What we need to do is recognize how Arabs have resolved problems for hundreds, thousands of years, if you will. It is called reaching an atwa.

If two villages, and this story was told to me by an iman, a high ranking Iraqi, he said many years ago two villages had a brother and sister and they married across these two towns. One went to one village, the other went to the other village. The village the wife was fertile and quickly had three children. In the other, the wife was barren and had no children. The village made fun of her. They ridiculed her. They said she was a terrible woman, and that she was very great that she killed herself by throwing herself into the village well.

Now under Arabic custom, that village that lost this woman has a right to go and extract blood within 24 hours. As those two villages came together for this bloodletting that was going to happen, they called and got them all to sit down and they decided how they were going to resolve this situation.

The decision was made that the village that had had the young woman die in it would give $20,000 to the other village and that there would be no contact between those villages for 20 years. They reached an atwa, A-T-W-A.

What that is in the Arabic culture is an arrangement, not a peace treaty. In the West we think of peace treaties where I agree with you and you agree with me, and we sign a bunch of pieces of paper. In the Arab culture where there is honor, people say I will stay here for 20 years and you will stay there.

The gentleman who told me the story said I was there 20 years later when the money was brought back from the first village back to its original place. He said within 2 years, there were marriages between the young people from the two villages. Even though they were 6 kilometers apart, for 20 years there had been no contact.

Now, Arabs have been resolving these kinds of things for thousands of years in the desert. They have no need for the Sunnis, the Shias and the Kurds and the Turkomens to come together, but it cannot be driven by the United States. We cannot say you come over here and come to this conference that we are going to have in some hotel somewhere. It has to be called by the Arab League.

This same thing could have prevented the gulf war back in 1991. When Saddam Hussein went into Kuwait, the Arab League said before this attack, let us settle this among the Arab community. This is a fight among us. Saddam Hussein thought he had fought in Iran because he was defending Kuwait and the Saudis, and he thought from that came something. He said give me some money, and they said no. And so he said all right, then I am going to move in and take Kuwait.

It could have been resolved if we had the patience to let this happen and the mentality in the White House that can allow Iraq to develop its own peaceful society. We have removed Saddam Hussein. We are all glad, but we now must let the Arabs resolve the situation in a way that makes sense to them.

REMOTE LING ULENBO RN

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DANIEL E. LUNGREN of California). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember a beloved former Congressman from Illinois who passed away October 30, Representative John Erlenborn. John was a member of this body for nearly 20 years. Throughout his distinguished service in Congress, he became an expert on labor and pension issues and helped shape our Nation during a formative time in our history.

Born and raised in suburban Chicago, Mr. Erlenborn enlisted in the U.S. Navy as a 17-year-old during World War II. He studied at the University of Illinois, the University of Illinois, and Loyola University in Chicago from which he later received his law degree.

John went on to practice law at a firm he founded before he began his life in public service as an assistant state’s attorney for Illinois’ DuPage County. This inspired John to run for elected office. He went on to serve for 8 years in the Illinois General Assembly before coming to Congress in 1965.

John earned a spot as the Republican ranking member of the House Education and Labor Committee where he became known as Mr. ERISA after avidly working to pass the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, which created corporate pension plan standards that continue to protect American workers today.

When John retired from Congress in 1985, he did not leave behind his compassion and motivation to help those less fortunate than himself. Instead of fully enjoying retirement, John continued to give back and was appointed to serve on the board of directors and selected to serve as president of the ognized for 5 minutes.

ABLE DANGER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr.
Speaker, I include material regarding Able Danger for the RECORD:

H.J. RES. 73

Mr. Murtha introduced the following joint resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services:

Whereas polls also indicate that 45 percent of the American people believe that you do not question Congress and the American people for this brief moment by telling them of a story of a young woman I saw in a hospital in Germany who had just been shipped from Iraq. She was burned from head to toe. She laid in a hospital bed; and, yes, as a soldier, she was valiant and courageous, and her only concern was for her mother.

I use that example because we have heard it on the floor tonight, how our soldiers want to go back into battle and how our soldiers want us to have the resolve to stay the course.

But, Mr. Speaker, it is our responsibility as Members of Congress and policy makers whenever we send our soldiers into battle, we must send them for the right reasons.

We heard tonight that the American intelligence did not prove there were weapons of mass destruction, in fact, there were none; that the troops are in fact fodder for the insurgents, and health care is no longer promised to our soldiers coming home; that we are now sending troops that are at the C-4 level, the lowest state of readiness;
50,000 may suffer from battle fatigue.
It is important that we stand together for a solution to bring our troops home.

I voted “nay” against the Hunter resolution because it was not a serious debate. It was not a serious statement to our soldiers, and I want them to know that I am willing to stay the course, but I want them to come home, and I want them to come home now with a full plan. It can be offered by Mr. MURTHA in H.J. Res. 73, a plan that suggests that the troops should be in a small number in the region, but our troops in large numbers should come home from Iraq. We must turn the government of Iraq over to Iraq.

This is the debate we should have:

H.J. Res.

To Redeploy U.S. Forces from Iraq.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

November 17, 2005

Mr. Murtha introduced the following joint resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services:

Whereas Congress and the American People have not been shown clear, measurable progress toward establishment of stable and improving economy in Iraq of a stable and improving economy in Iraq, both of which are essential to “promote the emergence of a democratic government”;

Whereas additional stabilization in Iraq by U.S. military forces cannot be achieved without the deployment of hundreds of thousands of additional U.S. troops, which in turn cannot be achieved by military draft;

Whereas more than $277 billion has been appropriated by the United States Congress to prosecute U.S. military action in Iraq and Afghanistan;

Whereas, as of the drafting of this resolution, 2,079 U.S. troops have been killed in Operation Iraqi Freedom;

Whereas U.S. forces have become the tar-et of the insurgency;

Whereas, according to recent polls, over 80 percent of the Iraqi people want the U.S. forces out of Iraq;

Whereas polls also indicate that 45 percent of the Iraqi people feel that the attacks on U.S. forces are due to the insurgency;

Whereas, due to the foregoing, Congress finds it evident that continuing U.S. military action in Iraq is not in the best interest of the United States of America, the people of Iraq, or the Persian Gulf Region, which were cited in Public Law 109-243 as justification for undertaking such action;

Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That:

SEC. 1. The deployment of United States forces in Iraq, by direction of Congress, is hereby terminated and the forces including U.S. Marines shall be deployed in the region.

SEC. 2. A quick-reaction U.S. force and an over-the-horizon presence of U.S. Marines shall be deployed in the region.

SEC. 3. The United States of America shall pursue security and stability in Iraq through diplomacy.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Georgia (Ms. MCKINNEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.
It was interesting to hear from the 9/11 Commission again on Tuesday. This self-perpetuating, grandstanding, back-seat driver who was obviously focused on hurricanes, nuclear weapons, the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel and even the New York subway system three weeks before the attack, has now returned to the ‘front seat’ of American politics.

There are other questions that need answers. Was Able Danger intelligence provided to the 9/11 Commission prior to the finalization of its report? If so, why wasn’t it included? Why was it not historically significant? This astounding conclusion—in combination with the failure to investigate Able Danger and incorporate it into its findings—raises serious challenges to the commission’s credibility and, if the facts prove out, might just render the commission historically insignificant itself.

Nevertheless, the final 9/11 commission report, released on July 22, 2004, concluded that the intelligence was "unaware of Mr. Atta until the day of the attacks." This now looks to be embarrassingly wrong. Yet amazingly, commission leaders acknowledged on Aug. 12 that their staff in fact met with a Navy officer 10 days before releasing the report, who "asserted that a highly classified intelligence operation, Able Danger, had identified Mohammed Atta to be a member of an al Qaeda cell located in Brooklyn." (Capt. Philpott says he briefed them in July 2004.) The commission's statement goes on to say that the staff determined that "the officer's account was not sufficiently reliable to warrant revision of the report or further investigation." And that the intelligence operation "did not turn out to be historically significant," despite substantial corroboration from other seasoned intelligence officers.

This dismissal of an apparently unsupported conclusion would have us believe that a key piece of evidence was summarily rejected in less than 10 days without serious investigation. This conclusion, at the very least, should have interviewed the 80 members of Able Danger, as the Pentagon did, five of whom say they saw the chart. But this would have required admitting that the late-breaking news was inconveniently raised. So it was grossly neglected and the commission's hand-picked conclusion, drawn in only 10 days without any real investigation, simply ignores what looks like substantial direct evidence to the contrary coming from our own trained military intelligence officers.

Two members of Congress, Curt Weldon and Dan Burton, have also publicly stated that shortly after 9/11 attacks they provided then-Deputy National Security Adviser Steve Hadley with an intelligence briefing slide that identified the al Qaeda director of operations, confirming the preattack information collected by Able danger about al Qaeda, a spokesperson for the White House has confirmed that Mr. Hadley met with Mr. Cheney in ‘recollects in that time period but . . . did not recall whether he saw it during a meeting . . . and that a search of National Security Council files had failed to produce such a chart.

Thomas Kean, the chairman of the 9/11 Commission, reacted to Able Danger with a statement released Aug. 17. He blasted out at the Bush administration and demanded that the Pentagon conduct an ‘investigation’ to evaluate the ‘credibility’ of Col. Shaffer and what he had done, and then demand a substantive investigation into what failed in the first place. This from a former New Jersey governor who, along with other commissioners, routinely appeared in public espousing his own conclusions about 9/11 long before the commission’s inquiry was completed and long before all the facts were in! This while dismissing out of hand the major conflicts of interest on the commission itself about obstructions to information-sharing within the intelligence community.

Yet this is also a good time for the country to make some assessments of the 9/11 Commission itself. Why was it completed and long before all the facts were in? This while dismissing out of hand the major conflicts of interest on the commission itself about obstructions to information-sharing within the intelligence community.

The facts relating to Able Danger finally started to be reported in mid-August. U.S. Army Special Operations Command, confirmed “Atta was identified by Able Danger by January-February of 2000.”

On Aug. 18, 2005, the Pentagon initially stated that “a probe” had found nothing to back up Col. Shaffer’s claims. Two weeks later, however, Defense Department officials acknowledged that “inquiry” never did exactly “three more people who recall seeing an intelligence briefing slide that identified the ring leader of the 9/11 attacks a year before the Pentagon and White House knew about it” and same officials also stated that “documents and electronic files created by . . . Able Danger were destroyed under standing orders that prohibited the regular use of intelligence gathered about people in the United States.” Then, in September 2005, the Pentagon doubled back and blocked several military officers from testifying at an open congressional hearing about the Able Danger program.

Two members of Congress, Curt Weldon and Dan Burton, have also publicly stated that shortly after 9/11 attacks they provided then-Deputy National Security Adviser Steve Hadley with an intelligence briefing slide that identified the al Qaeda director of operations, confirming the preattack information collected by Able danger about al Qaeda, a spokesperson for the White House has confirmed that Mr. Hadley met with Mr. Cheney in ‘recollects in that time period but . . . did not recall whether he saw it during a meeting . . . and that a search of National Security Council files had failed to produce such a chart.

Thomas Kean, the chairman of the 9/11 Commission, reacted to Able Danger with a statement released Aug. 17. He blasted out at the Bush administration and demanded that the Pentagon conduct an ‘investigation’ to evaluate the ‘credibility’ of Col. Shaffer and what he had done, and then demand a substantive investigation into what failed in the first place. This from a former New Jersey governor who, along with other commissioners, routinely appeared in public espousing his own conclusions about 9/11 long before the commission’s inquiry was completed and long before all the facts were in! This while dismissing out of hand the major conflicts of interest on the commission itself about obstructions to information-sharing within the intelligence community.

Nevertheless, the final 9/11 commission report, released on July 22, 2004, concluded that the intelligence was "unaware of Mr. Atta until the day of the attacks." This now looks to be embarrassingly wrong. Yet amazingly, commission leaders acknowledged on Aug. 12 that their staff in fact met with a Navy officer 10 days before releasing the report, who “asserted that a highly classified intelligence operation, Able Danger, had identified Mohammed Atta to be a member of an al Qaeda cell located in Brooklyn.” (Capt. Philpott says he briefed them in July 2004.) The commission’s statement goes on to say that the staff determined that “the officer’s account was not sufficiently reliable to warrant revision of the report or further investigation.” And that the intelligence operation “did not turn out to be historically significant,” despite substantial corroboration from other seasoned intelligence officers.

This dismissal of an apparently unsupported conclusion would have us believe that a key piece of evidence was summarily rejected in less than 10 days without serious investigation. This conclusion, at the very least, should have interviewed the 80 members of Able Danger, as the Pentagon did, five of whom say they saw the chart. But this would have required admitting that the late-breaking news was inconveniently raised. So it was grossly neglected and the commission’s hand-picked conclusion, drawn in only 10 days without any real investigation, simply ignores what looks like substantial direct evidence to the contrary coming from our own trained military intelligence officers.

No wonder the 9/11 families were outraged by these revelations and called for a “new” commission to investigate. “I am angry that my son’s death could have been prevented,” seethed Diane Horning, whose son Matthew was killed at the World Trade Center. On Aug. 18, 2005, the 9/11 Commission chairman acknowledged as the September 11 Advocates rightly blasted 9/11 Commission leaders Mr. Kean and Lee Hamilton for pooh-poohing Able Danger before it was even significant. “I find this whole episode quite significant,” Advocate Mindy Kleinberg aptly notes. “They [the 9/11 Commission] somehow made a determination that this was not important, that somehow, there was not enough information. And if I’m questioning the judgment of this one case, what other things might they have missed?”

This is a stinging indictment of the commission by the 9/11 families.

The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Arlen Specter, has led the way in cleaning up the 9/11 Commission’s unfinished business. Amid a very full plate of responsibilities, he has stood firm in demanding that the Pentagon conduct an ‘investigation’ to evaluate the ‘credibility’ of Col. Shaffer and what he had done, and then demand a substantive investigation into what failed in the first place. It would be a very serious breach not to have that information passed along . . . or we ought to get to the bottom of it. Why were we not told? Indeed we should get an ‘F’ grade incomplete—for its dereliction regarding Able Danger. The Joint Intelligence Committee should have known, in addition to Able Danger team members, we should have the 9/11 commissioners appear as witnesses so the families can hear their explanation why this doesn’t matter.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN WELDON:

I write again to thank you for all you are doing to uncover the “Able Danger” story. I lost my brother, Carl, in the USS Cole explosion in Yemen. We have been trying to get a meeting with him and the 17 families and the White House will not even acknowledge. I’ve been saying things like your new saying that ‘9/11 happened the way it did for a reason’ and NO one in government will talk to us. The FBI has lied to us on several facts and my own Congressmen will do anything for me except a meeting with the President. President Clinton did nothing to go after those that attacked the Cole and if he had of they would have uncovered numerous facts out there about what was going to happen on 9/11. We sure would like to talk to you.

elected officials who actually serve the public instead of themselves. You have my family’s backing and full support and we pray to God that more and more elected officials join you in your fight to expose Able Danger and in your fight to keep our Nation safe and secure, so no other family has to endure what we did on 9/11, and what we continue to endure since because of the acts of hate filled cowards.

Thank you again Congressman Weldon and God bless! Please keep up the good fight on Able Danger.

You remain in our thought & prayers, as does our President and our Brave Troops!

Sincerely,

A proud American,

JOHN P. OWENS,

Loving brother of Peter J. Owens, Jr.

DISCHARGE PETITIONS

Under clause 2, rule XV the following discharge petition was filed:

The Senate met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. STEVENS).

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

O God, our Father, fountain of every blessing, during this season of gratitude we pause to thank You for the gifts You have given us and all humanity. Thank You for all the beauty You have placed in our world, for the loveliness of the Earth, sea, and sky. Thank You for great art to see, great music to hear, great books of prose and poetry to read. Thank You for the nimbleness of minds and hands that enable people to find ways of defeating diseases and easing pain. Thank You for generous hearts that give to help the less fortunate. Thank You for our power to love and for the opportunities to lose ourselves in a great cause. Thank You for the ability to harness nature’s forces and to make fertile the desert. Thank You for our Senators and for all who labor many hours with them for a world at peace. Thank You for our military and the courageous sacrifices of our men and women in harm’s way.

Above all else, we thank You for saving us by giving us Yourself. Accept this, our sacrifice of thanksgiving and of praise.

Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, today we will get off to a quick start in the Senate. We actually left not that many hours ago, and we are making real progress in terms of moving the Nation’s business forward. This will be a very busy day.

In a moment I will call up the continuing resolution which will keep Government operations funded beyond midnight tonight. We are starting that early. We are voting early this morning, in large part to get it completed here and sent to the President so it can be signed by midnight tonight.

Senator HARKIN will have an amendment which we expect to vote on at or around 9:30. After that, I will have more to say on the schedule itself. But we do have the continuing resolution, we will have the Harkin amendment, we are waiting for several pieces of legislation from the House of Representatives and several conference reports: MilCon or Military Quality of Life, the Patriot Act, the Patriot Act. We also have an adjournment resolution we must pass later today and several other conference-related matters.

It is going to be a very busy day. I do ask for the cooperation and patience of all Senators as we cover a lot and have a number of rollovers votes over the course of the day.

In terms of the schedule for tomorrow, or Sunday, or Monday—as the day proceeds, as soon as I have information brought to me and we determine the best way to handle that on the floor, I will be making those announcements over the course of the day.

MAKING FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 2006

Mr. FRIST. I now ask unanimous consent the Senate begin consideration of H.J. Res. 72, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ISAKSON). Is there objection?

The Senator from Louisiana.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I am reserving the right to object, to speak with the leader for a moment about a situation that is developing at home and one of which he is certainly aware. I understand that the motion that has been put forward would allow the Congress to go home for approximately 30 days and to come back in the middle of December to finish our business. I wanted to ask the leader if it is his intention when we come back to press forward for the supplemental bill that the senior Senator from Mississippi, Senator COCHRAN, and others have been working on for relief for the gulf coast. It is a very important piece of legislation, and many people, individuals and businesses, large and small, have been waiting for some direct, significant funding. I wanted to ask the leader from Tennessee what his intentions are when we get back, at least as he can press the Senate and press our colleagues in the House to move that piece of legislation.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, the issues the distinguished Senator from Louisiana comments on and mentions are something we take very seriously here. As she well knows, my personal commitment, the commitment of leadership on both sides of the aisle, is to address the issues. We have worked very hard, both in a personal sense and in an institutional sense. With regard to the latter, we passed 21 separate pieces of legislation that have responded to many of the immediate needs. I well recognize these needs are ongoing. We are going to need to stay on top of them, which I pledge and leadership pledges to continue to do.
We will be coming back in December, depending on the outcome of today, in all likelihood, and we will continue to address these very important issues. Several issues we will be addressing over the course of the day as well.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I ask the leader, if I could, please. I understand, I want the leader to know, we have passed 21 pieces of legislation. I take him at his word. It has been very hard to follow as these things have moved so quickly, in some cases, and stay quickly in others.

But I want to make you aware, I am going to ask the leader that. Because we pass legislation does not necessarily mean it has been effective. Sometimes Congress has a way of passing legislation, but that is not any guarantee it is actually working.

As the Senator from Tennessee knows, the members of the Louisiana delegation, joined at times by members of the Mississippi delegation, have consistently said that money given to FEMA was not only in the hands of people in businesses. As the leader knows, the housing money has been very difficult for people to get. Shelter has been very difficult to get, housing has been very difficult to get. Many businesses that have applied for loans that are authorized have not yet received a response from FEMA or the Small Business Administration.

For the record, I say it is not the quantity of legislation but the quality that is why the supplemental Senator COCHRAN has been crafting is so important. We think this may be the first major piece of legislation that actually gets money into the hands of people who can do something with it other than having it sit in bank accounts while people are suffering and trying to get their lives back together. I understand the Senator from Tennessee is aware of these great needs. He himself has been down to our State, and he has been appreciative of that. But that is the point. If I could get a comment about the importance of the supplemental, that would be of some comfort to the people of the gulf coast.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I obviously am committed not only to what is in the supplemental, but I think we need to make it very clear to our colleagues and to the people in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama, where I have personally visited very early on and have had the opportunity to see what that again and again, that in terms of responsiveness, we have been responsive in many ways. When I say 21 pieces of legislation, people say, What does that mean? Let me give examples. In terms of things that have been enacted or cleared for the President, we have passed the emergency supplemental, No. 1, which was $10.5 billion in Public Law 109-61. We passed another emergency supplemental for $61.8 billion. We passed a Katrina short-term tax relief bill for $61 billion in insurance buying authority, H.R. 3669, for $2 billion; the TANF disaster relief bill for $3 billion; the unemployment insurance provisions for $16 billion. We passed a bill for redistribution of campus student aid, another bill for Pell grant relief, another bill for the Community Disaster Loan Act, for a total of $70.9 billion.

Those are the things that have passed the Senate and the House. If you look at the things passed by the Senate, there are another nine bills for $9 billion: the Deficit Reduction Act, Sarbanes housing amendment, the Snowe small business amendment, the Katrina education reimbursement bill, the Rockefeller unemployment amendment, the Byrd unemployment HHS IG amendment, the Harkin legal services amendment—all of which have been passed by the Senate, this body.

I want my colleagues and the American people to understand we are acting and we are moving. We have a lot more to do, which I think is the importance of the supplemental. The distinguished chairman, who is here on the floor, knows we are focused on it and will try our best to work more assistance there in order to renew and rebuild and respond. This body understands the importance. We are absolutely committed to that continued support for our appropriate renewal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Ms. LANDRIEU. The Senator has been very patient. I realize we have to move forward. But if he would grant me a few more questions—one or two—

I understand the Senator from Tennessee and the leader of the Appropriations Committee will reflect that this morning, that this time, we do have a package that the Administration will accept. I understand the Senator from Tennessee, and I want to thank him for the work that is being done to get this package through. I want to thank him for the work that is being done to get this package through.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?
Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I call up my amendment, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is in order.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment numbered 2672.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To increase the amount appropriated to carry out under the Community Services Block Grant Act.)

At the end of the resolution, insert the following:

SEC. 2. COMMUNITY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT ACT.

Notwithstanding section 101 of Public Law 109-77, for the period beginning on October 1, 2005 and ending on December 17, 2005, the amount appropriated under that Public Law to carry out the Community Services Block Grant Act shall be based on a rate for operations that is not less than the rate for operations carried out under such Act for fiscal year 2005.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I understand that under the order, I will be recognized for 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. HARKIN. I might reserve a little bit of time. I may have other colleagues who will come over to speak.

Just to refresh memories, when this continuing resolution was passed at the end of September, I came on the floor and offered an amendment that would have kept whole the Community Services Block Grant program. That is a program that administers the LIHEAP program, administers a lot of Head Start programs, Even Start programs under Americans Act programs, elderly transportation programs, emergency shelter programs, weatherization assistance—you get the idea. Most of the programs really help a lot of poor people in this country. Last year’s level was $636.8 million.

The amendment I offered in September would have kept the funding of the Community Services Block Grant program at that level. You might say that was a continuing resolution. A continuing resolution keeps things at last year’s level. Then lies the problem.

The House sent us a continuing resolution that said: We will continue programs at last year’s level or at the level of the House budget, whichever is less. The House budget cut the Community Services Block Grants Program down to less than $320 million. They cut it in half. That is the level it was in 1986.

I said in September that it was unfair for poor people to have to have theirs cut right away down to that level because winter was coming and you need the heating energy assistance and things like that.

At that time at the end of September, there was a lot of talk. We couldn’t accept this amendment because the House had gone out. As long as the House was out and if we changed the continuing resolution, that meant the entire House of Representatives would have to come back to Washington, DC, and do something about this. I said at the time on the floor, big deal. They came back for a lot of other things; they could come back for this, too.

Obviously, my arguments did not prevail. The amendment was defeated; whereupon, however, the chairman of the Appropriations Defense Subcommittee, the Senator from Alaska, Mr. Stevens, is going to take my amendment that continues the community services block grants at last year’s level and put it on the Defense appropriations bill, which he did and for which I commended him.

We all thought that the Defense appropriations bill would zing through here right away. Fine.

Here we are. It is November 18, and the Defense appropriations bill has not been passed—and we don’t know when; probably next month, I suppose, before the end of the year.

We have another continuing resolution. The continuing resolution expires today at midnight. We know that. The continuing resolution is the same. It is either the level the House budget level, whichever is less. That means the Community Services Block Grant program is still cut down to the level it was in 1986.

The amendment I am offering today basically says—it is the same amendment, basically—for the purposes of this continuing resolution, the community services block grant shall be based on the rate that it was last year, which is $636.8 million.

On Saturday, barely a week and a half ago, 58 Senators from both sides of the aisle cosigned a letter saying we want to keep the Community Services Block Grant program at the Senate level, at last year’s level. That is what we did in our bill, and 58 Senators a week and a half ago signed this letter to keep it at the same level. Yet today we are going to pass a continuing resolution that cuts it in half. This continuing resolution is until December 18.

There is another unique feature about the Community Services Block Grant Program that I wish to bring to the Senate’s attention. Unlike a lot of programs, such as education, for example, wherein the money goes out basically next summer, if we use that language—the lower of the House level—it doesn’t mean a lot because the money is not going to go out until next summer, and we probably will fix this prior to going home for Christmas. I think we don’t know. We have had CRs going into January and into February. That is not unusual around here.

So we have a continuing resolution before us today that says, until December 18, and we think it will be done by then. It may not be. I don’t know how many people around here would like to bet a dollar to a dime on that one. Maybe yes; maybe no; get it done by December 18. It could go into next year.

Here we have a situation, unlike education, where the money goes out next summer, and we will fix it before then, certainly. The Community Services Block Grant program goes out quarterly. Every quarter it goes out and is used. That means right now we are about 7 weeks into this quarter, and the entire nationwide Community Services Block Grant program has been operating at the level of $320 million. That is not enough that after another month, it could be disastrous, or another 2 months, because it is not like they can draw down some money somewhere and say: We are going to get it next year, we will make up for it. That is not going to happen. They can’t just go to the bank and borrow the money. They do not have it. If they don’t have the money for weatherization or for Head Start programs or for low-income energy assistance programs, they just do not do it.

We have had vote after vote here when Members supported the Low-Income Energy Heating Assistance Program. It is vitally needed. But if you do not have the people to administer the program and get the goods and hire the people to administer it, what good does it do? That is what the Community Services Block Grant program does.

You may hear talk that the Community Services Block Grant program is just one part of the picture because there are State and local governments that help. That is true. There are private charities that help. That is true. That is the good thing about this program—it brings a lot of different stakeholders into play. But there is the administration thing. If there is not the money, it is not going to go. If that is not there, they do not even have the people to go out and do anything.

I ask Senators to think about this. Here is a program that is widely supported; 58 Senators signed a letter a week and a half ago. We passed it in our Labor, Health and Human Services Appropriations Subcommittee when it was on the floor at last year’s level, $636.8 million. No one talked against that. It just passed. I will support it if it is in the final. If I am mistaken, I think it was later supported by the House, even though their numbers were less. The conference report... that was rejected by the House at least had this high figure in it.

So we find ourselves in an odd situation with another continuing resolution in the dead of winter when the homeless need a lot of help, when poor people are put to the extreme in terms of buying enough food, energy to heat their homes, get clothes for their kids, finding enough money for rent, going to food banks when the food stamps run out.

Any Senator here who has been to the food banks in their State knows that the food bank demand is up over what it was last year because food stamps are running out about the third week of the month, and poor families are going to the food banks to get food. I say to any Senator, go to your food bank—any State, I don’t care which one you go to—and see what is going on. I was there last week in Iowa. I have been several times since we cut it back to $320.6 million, that means there are 13 States—Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Maine, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, and Wyoming—that are not going to exempt from the 50-percent cut of the House of Representatives is Community Services Block Grant program.

The argument that was made in September is why not do this because the House would have to come back, and they cannot do it, la-de-da, and all that stuff. Well, the House is in session today—they may be in session tomorrow, I don’t know. But they are in session today. We could pass this amendment and have them bring it up and pass it and send it to the President. The argument that we could not do it because of the time pressures does not hold any longer.

This is just a matter of simple justice. If this were a program that could make up the money later on next year, it would be different. This is now. People need help now for housing, for rental assistance, heating or energy assistance, Head Start, foster grandparents, rental assistance.

One of the things the Community Services Block Grant program does for people includes if they are evicted and they need someplace to stay. Think of the apartment mother with two or three children. The husband has left her and gone off someplace. They have been in an apartment, maybe there has been an illness in the family for which they are not covered—who knows what kind of calamities could have hit—and they find themselves evicted. They can go to the local community action agency in their area. One of the things they will do is they will find them a place to live. They will give them rental assistance to get them established and a place to live. That is what this program does. What I just described happens 10 times a day in 1,000 cities across America—100,000 times a day.

I hope we can pass this amendment. It is very simple and straightforward. Leave the Community Services Block Grant program at last year’s level. We have all said that is where we want it. We need to get that money out there. The House is in session. They can pass it and send it to the President.

How much time remains? The PRESDING OFFICER. The Senator has 14 minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. How much time total? The PRESDING OFFICER. Five minutes sixteen seconds. The Senator was originally yielded 20 minutes, and the Senator has used 14 minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. How much time on the other side?

The PRESDING OFFICER. There is no time on the other side.

Mr. HARKIN. Parliamentary inquiry: I understand I had 20 minutes to speak and there is no time on the other side to speak on this amendment?

The PRESDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. HARKIN. There are a couple of other points.

The amendment is a straight failure. Senators understand it. But I will point out, because of a quirk in the law there, are some States that are cut more than others.

Here is what that means. This gets a little complicated, but I think the States that are going to be voting need to know this. If the total funding for a fiscal year is less than $345 million, then no State shall receive less than one-fourth of 1 percent. Now, last year, since we cut it back to $320.6 million, that means there are 13 States—Alaska, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Maine, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, and Wyoming—that are not cut by 50 percent; they are cut by 75 percent. Because of a quirk in the law, 13 of our smallest States have a 75-percent cut. That is what they are operating at right now in those States.

I say to the Senators from those States, this may not be knowledge to a lot of Members. I happen to know about this program because I am on both the committees that administer it, but this is a program that helps the poorest in our country.

I anticipate there may be some other reasons people do not want to vote for this, but as long as 58 Senators signed the letter a week and a half ago, as long as the House is in session, it seems to me we could vote on this and let the House do it.

As I said, this is the dead of winter. We were told at the end of September that the Defense appropriations bill would be acted upon. This amendment was included. But it has not been acted on. We are now told we have a continuing resolution until December 18, but will we really act on it by December 18? As I said, who can bet on that around here?

These are the poorest of our poor people. Can’t we at least say we are going to hold them a little bit harmless in this? It is not that we are holding them harmless, we are holding them at last year’s level, which means it is cut a little bit simply because of the cost-of-living increase. But to be cut 50 percent, and in 13 States to be cut by 75 percent, is grossly unfair.

Let’s do the moral thing. Let’s do the right thing. This is a very small matter, a small thing to do, to pass this amendment and send it to the House and have them pass it on.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letter I discussed.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. ARLEN SPECTER, Chairman, Senate Subcommittee on Labor, HHS, Education, Appropriations, Washington, DC.

Hon. TOM HARKIN, Ranking Member, Senate Subcommittee on Labor, HHS, Education, Appropriations, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS SPECTER AND HARKIN: We applaud the Senate Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations Subcommittees (Labor HHS) for restoring funding to the Community Services Block Grant (CSBG). In the face of budget constraints and competing priorities, we urge you to uphold the Senate funding level of $637 million in negotiations with the House on H.R. 3010, the Labor-HHS Appropriations bill.

As you know, CSBG helps to strengthen communities by helping low-income individuals and families to become self-sufficient. Nearly one-fourth of Americans living in poverty receive services from CSBG grantees located in 90 percent of the nation’s counties. Please enable these entities to continue their vital assistance to families and communities.

We urge you to insist on the Senate position in CSBG, $637 million, during final negotiations on H.R. 3010. Thank you for your continued efforts on this issue.

Sincerely,

Mr. MCCONNELL. I move to lay that motion on the table.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 30 seconds.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 30 seconds.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, earlier this morning we had a colloquy that expressed concerns.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will be advised that all time for debate has expired.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 30 seconds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The amendment was not agreed to.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was not agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to reconsider the vote and to lay that motion on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, in a few moments, I will propose a unanimous consent request. In essence, what we will be doing in about an hour is having another vote on going to conference on the HHS appropriations bill. We will ask unanimous consent for that shortly and divide up the time accordingly. It will be approximately an hour from now that we will have another rollcall vote. As soon as we have the word on the unanimous consent request, I will be propounding that.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DEPARTMENTS OF LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2006

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask that the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House to accompany H. R. 3010, the Labor-HHS appropriations bill; provided further, that the Senate request a conference with the House, and that the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees. I further ask that prior to the Chair appointing the conferees, Senator SPECTER be recognized in order to make a motion to instruct the conference on the issue of LIHEAP; provided further, that there be debate divided with Senators as follows: 10 minutes for Senator REED, 7 minutes for Senator HARKIN, 5 minutes for Senator SPECTER, 5 minutes for Senator COCHRAN. I further ask that following that time, the motion be temporarily withdrawn and Senator DURBIN be recognized to make a motion to instruct relating to NIH, and there be 15 minutes for debate for Senator DURBIN on that motion, and that following the use or resolution because our job is not finished, and these vital concerns are not settled.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution having been read the third time, the question is, Shall it pass?

The joint resolution (H. J. Res. 72) was passed.

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote and to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

The amendment (No. 2672) was rejected.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was not agreed to.

The amendment was not agreed to.
yielding back of debate time, the Senate vote on the motions to instruct in the order offered, and following those votes, the Chair then immediately appoint conference on the part of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, I ask for one modification, that Chairperson SPECTER be given 5 minutes to speak on the motion to instruct relating to NIH following Senator DURBIN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Isakson) laid before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives, having had under consideration the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 3010) entitled "An Act making appropriations for the Departments of Labor and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes."

Resolved, That the House insist upon its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT

Mr. Specter. Mr. President, I move that the managers, on the part of the Senate to the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the Senate amendments to the bill, H. R. 3010, be instructed to insist that $2,183,000,000 be available for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program and that such funds shall be designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of H. Con. Res. 95, of the 109th Congress, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for fiscal year 2006.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The motion to whom yields time?

The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. Reed. Mr. President, the instructions that the Senator from Pennsylvania sent to the Chair, in my understanding, would designate the full amount of LIHEAP funding that is currently in the appropriations bill as emergency spending.

I understand the motivation. This bill is underfunded. There are valuable programs that need additional resources, Senator from Pennsylvania and the Senator from Iowa strove mightily to try to provide those resources. They are attempting today to try to free up about $2 billion to classify some money as emergency spending. LIHEAP money. I understand the motivation, but I think it is extremely poor policy.

This LIHEAP program is composed of two components. There is a regular formula program which each and every year every State in this country depends on to provide heating and cooling assistance to its citizens.

The application process begins before the heating and cooling season. It is usually conducted from community action centers. This whole infrastructure suddenly now is going to be declared an emergency process. That would send a terrible signal throughout this country about our commitment to low-income heating assistance. It would open a situation of unceasing problems that would be counterproductive to helping poor people struggling with heating bills in the winter and cooling bills in the summer.

This would in my view, create a terrible precedent. We have over the last several weeks in this Chamber supported funding of LIHEAP, not on an emergency basis, but on a full authorization basis of $5.1 billion. We did it last year. Unfortunately, because of procedural obstacles, we needed 60 votes. Last evening, a majority of this Senate voted to increase LIHEAP funding to $5.1 billion, offsetting it by a temporary windfall profits tax. Previously, even a larger majority of the Senate voted simply to appropriate $5.1 billion. Today we are on this floor saying not only are we not talking about $5.1 billion, we are talking about the regular formula money in the regular program suddenly is an emergency. That is going to throw a monkey wrench into the normal operating of the LIHEAP program.

One of the real problems is, because we call it an emergency, no funds can be disbursed until the President declares an emergency. When will that declaration take place? Will it take place in August so these community action agencies can start requesting applications, processing applications, or will it take place in October or November or January? If it does, then this is going to cause chaos.

We were looking weeks ago at the chaos caused in the wake of Katrina because Federal programs were not realistically grounded in what was happening. This policy is going to throw a monkey wrench into the normal operations of the LIHEAP program.

It also sends a terrible signal, if it is adopted, because we are saying that no longer do we have a regular program committed to helping poor people—Seniors, the disabled—with their heating and cooling bills. What we have is something that may or may not exist every year.

I know people will stand up and say, Oh, come on, the reality is they are going to have to declare it this year as an emergency. I do not entirely agree. But more importantly, when next year we are looking, under excruciating budget pressure, for additional resources, there will be the susceptibility to say, we will use this gimmick again. I suspect the administration—I am not the expert in budgets, but I expect the administration will say: This is a great deal they have handed us. We can send up the programs we like in the regular budget and say all of this LIHEAP is just emergency.

I am terribly concerned about this. Again, I have seen several works in this body, on a bipartisan basis, a majority of our colleagues saying not only is this not an emergency program, this is a program that should be funded even more than $2.1 billion.

I must express opposition to this proposal. I immensely respect Senator Harkin and Senator Specter. I know they are laboring under excruciating budget constraints that are squeezing out money for programs that are necessary for America’s families, America’s children, America’s health care, America’s future. But in this desperate moment, it is not a time to undercut a program that serves every State in this country well and serves people who need help, particularly as the winter approaches. I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. Harkin. Mr. President, first, I thank my colleague from Rhode Island for bringing this out. This is anything about which I disagree with him. I think he is right. This is not the way to do business, normally.

These are not normal times, however. We have a small space in which we might be able to do more, and we have to take advantage of it. I say to my friend from Rhode Island, I think it is instructive for all of us that there is only one appropriations bill cut from last year’s level—one. Not Commerce, State, Justice, not Transportation, not the Housing and Urban Development, not all of the rest—only one appropriations was cut. Guess what it deals with: health; human services; education; labor. That has been cut. What kind of message are we sending to Americans?

We had a vote on whether to continue the Community Services Block Grant program at last year’s level. I pointed out a week and a half ago, 58 Senators signed a letter—please keep it at last year’s levels. A week and a half ago they voted to cut it, in some cases 75 percent. That is why I put the letter in the RECORD right after the vote. I want people to see the vote and read the letter and see how people signed the letter and then how they voted. It is one thing to sign the letter around here and I guess another thing to vote.

I guess what I am expressing is this is a terrible appropriations bill that we have, for the needs of the American people, for education; for structure of health care and public health, for NIH, for basic medical research. This is the first time since 1970 that we have flat-lined funding for the National Institutes of Health—35 years. That is the history of the Senator Specter and I are faced with.

What we are trying to do is find some way of getting some money for health, trauma care, rural emergencies—rural emergency medical services was completely eliminated—health community access program, community health centers—we will not be able to open one new community health center next year under this bill that we go to conference on. No Child Left Behind is underfunded; Pell grants are kept at the same level for the fourth year in a row. For kids with disabilities, IDEA, we are going backward. How many times have we heard, on both sides of the aisle, that underfunded and Demon and Democrats get out here and say we have to fully fund IDEA. This bill actually goes backward, from 18.6 percent to 18 percent.

That is why Senator SPECTER and I decided to take this step of having a motion to instruct the conferees to take the slightly less than $2.1 billion in LIHEAP and designate it as an emergency for this one time only in order for us to get to conference, to put pressure on the House to come up with some more money. I am not saying this will stay as an emergency in the final bill. My hope is we will be able to find the money and come up with something so it does not.

But again I have to say I do not want anybody around here hiding behind the skirts of the Budget Committee. They say the reason we got a bad bill, the reason our bill, the one that funds Health and Human Services and Education and Labor—the reason it is cut is because the Budget Committee gave us a bad budget.

Fine. But did you vote for it? Did you vote for the budget? If you voted for the budget, you own this bill. Don’t hide behind the skirts of the Budget Committee. If you voted for the budget, you own it. You bought it. So anyone who voted for the budget, this is what you got.

I share a little frustration on this, also, as you can probably tell. But I think in this one case we desperately, drastically need to meet the human needs of the people of our country. We are up against almost an intransigent House, and Senate, a House, and Senate, and a Senate. And Democrats and Republicans, and Democrats and Republicans.

But I hope we work our way out of this morass and impasse with approval of this resolution and ultimate approval by both bodies.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. McCAIN. I understand, under the unanimous consent agreement, there are Senators who have been given time prior to the vote, I ask those Senators to come over. Otherwise, under the rules of the Senate, the time is running as we speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Parliamentary inquiry: Can the Chair state how much time is remaining on all sides?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will attempt to determine that number.

At the outset of the subtraction of the proportional time, the Senator from Rhode Island controlled 5 minutes 42 seconds; the Senators from Mississippi and Pennsylvania each controlled 5 minutes; approximately 4 minutes have been consumed, of which 2 will be charged against the Senator from Rhode Island and 1 each to the Senators from Pennsylvania and Mississippi. And the clock continues to run.

The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be given 2 minutes prior to the completion of the time so I could respond to the comments of the Senator from Pennsylvania and Senator HARKIN. I think it appropriate that I be able to respond to his comments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, the appropriations bill on Labor, Health, Human Services and Education, in my judgment, as I have said repeatedly, is vastly underfunded. The Senate passed a bill within the context of our allocation. Working with my colleague, Senator HARKIN, and our very energetic and devoted staff, we did the very best we could with the limited funding. But there simply wasn’t enough money to do the job.

Health is our major capital asset. Without health, we can’t function. Education is our major capital asset for the future, to give opportunity for labor market workforce.

We made the allocations as best we could, but the bill was underfunded. I made an effort, joined by Senator HARKIN and by the subcommittee, to put LIHEAP in an emergency classification for the $3 billion.

I said in the conference that we would enable us to improve the bill—not where it ought to be but improve it substantially.

I conferred with Chairman REGULA and considered the projects—or so-called earmarks—which are $1 billion, where, as a matter of longstanding tradition, the Members in both the House and Senate, Democrats and Republicans, are enabled with an allocation to designate within their districts or States because we know more about our States and our districts than, in many instances, do the officials who run the bureaucracy of the U.S. Government.

So I said we could not get the $2.83 billion emergency declaration for LIHEAP that it was going to be my position that we ought not to include the earmarks for the projects. When we could not get that emergency declaration we struck the earmarked projects.

That was a very tough decision. We are paid to make tough decisions around here. I can’t think of one in the time I have been here more disappointing to a lot of people in America who are relying on these projects. Although, the $1 billion spread around the country, here and there, is not unimportant—a lot of people were disappointed. Many Members were disappointed that the traditional allocations were not made.

It is my hope that we can put the $2.83 billion into LIHEAP. We are facing a drastic situation with fuel costs, as we all know, and as significantly occasioned by Hurricane Katrina, which is an emergency. If there were ever a clear-cut emergency, it is what the consequences of Hurricane Katrina are. The fuel costs are a direct result of that. This is a classical, quintessential emergency. I think we have the 51 votes to pass it here in the Senate. The difficulty is going to be in getting our House colleagues to agree to it.

But I hope we work our way out of this morass and impasse with approval of this resolution and ultimate approval by both bodies.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I respect immensely the Senator from Pennsylvania and the Senator from Iowa who tried to take a budget that is inadequate and fulfill many programs. But I strenuously object to the classification of LIHEAP in this way as an emergency program.

There are two components of LIHEAP. This is a program that has been appropriated for years and years and has been locked-in annually in every State to go ahead and solicit applications and to process the applications. They have to have some sense that this program is going to be in place, not depending upon our Presidential emergency declaration at some time thereafter.

There is another component which is emergency. That is additional funds. But we are creating bad policy and bad precedent.

There are a number of programs in this Labor-HHS bill that could also been declared emergencies.

We have a children's vaccination program that provides vaccines. The States have offices that have to deal with it. They have to predictably know they are going to have these funds.

This is bad policy and bad precedent. It is being forced because the budget is inaccurate. I think it is a desperate moment to do this. It would send a terrible signal to people throughout this country and State and local community agencies that are dedicated to this program that they can no longer depend upon the formula for LIHEAP funds which they have been now for almost 30 years.

I hope my colleagues will reject this proposal.

I yield the floor.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending motion be set aside and that I may be permitted to file a motion at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

Mr. DURBIN moves that the managers on the part of the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill making appropriations for the Departments of Labor, Health, and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2006, and for other purposes be instructed to insist on retaining the Senate-passed provisions relating to funding for the National Institutes of Health.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, what I am doing with this motion is making a statement of policy that I think most American families would support. It is this:

In this troubled time, when we are having difficulties with our budget, the one area we absolutely must protect is medical research at the National Institutes of Health.

Over the last 10 years or more, we have made a concerted effort in America to invest more money in medical research, to ultimately save—save vast amounts of money going into medical research. It is a heroic effort, and it is the right thing to do under Presidents of both political parties because we understand how vulnerable each and every one of us and every member of our family could be with one diagnosis from a doctor.

I salute the chairman of the committee, Senator SPECTER, and Ranking Member HARKIN of Iowa. I can’t find any stronger advocates for medical research than these two Senators.

The bill that we are considering that came to us from conference is a bill which turns its back on all the progress that we’ve made by putting money into medical research. Unfortunately, this bill would result in our funding the National Institutes of Health at a level inconsistent with the pattern of growth that we have seen over the last several years.

Let me be as specific as I can. I have heard from people across Illinois about how important medical research is to them and their families. My family knows that, and the families of everyone watching know it, too.

Eight-year-old Claire Livingston, who is living with type II diabetes, came by my office. More and more children are affected by diabetes. Claire checks her blood glucose level several times a day and adjusts her medication. She is bright and happy. Her mother wakes her up in the middle of the night to make sure she is going to be alive in the morning.

That is the reality. They only ask one thing of me. Please make sure that we continue the research into diabetes at the National Institutes of Health.

Autism: Are you aware of the fact that 1 out of every 165 children in America now suffers from autism? I don’t know why. We are not certain why.

Do we want to stop asking the important questions? You know the struggle these children go through and their families go through to cope with their terrible condition. If the world were better off, what would we step away from medical research funding in this area?

The autism research NIH supports is looking at biological factors that cause autism but also looking at interventions—what works and what doesn’t work. We owe it to the NIH to allow them to continue their work. The list goes on and on.

Members of the Senate and the House are visited on a regular basis by individuals and families who are suffering from diseases and maladies. They ask us to do something, please—whether it is cancer or heart research or diabetes or asthma. Please make sure the funding levels continue.

NIH-supported research into muscular dystrophy is promising. Children are living longer. We cannot back off. We cannot lose sight of the enormous role that NIH research plays in the discovery of treatments and cures for the life-threatening illnesses that afflict millions of Americans each year—such as heart disease, cancer, and stroke.

NIH research grants have moved us to the forefront of the world’s scientific community. We take a backseat to no one when it comes to medical research. If we pass budgets such as the ones sent to us by the NIH, we will be weakening our commitment.

The bill the House rejected just yesterday includes only a $150 million increase in National Institutes of Health funding, the lowest increase in 36 years. You say to yourself, well, $150 million more in these times cannot hurt. Considering the rate of biomedical inflation, we need to do more. It is a heroic effort, and it is amount of money going into medical research, to ultimately double the medical research at the National Institutes of Health.

I urge my colleagues to join me in charging the conferees to retain the Senate-approved increase in National Institutes of Health funding. This increase represents a cut in funding. Assuming no change in committed resources, it means there will be 505 fewer research projects next year at the National Institutes of Health than there were this year.

Could one of those important projects, projects that have been carefully evaluated, be that critical project for you, your family, your children, or someone you love? If it is, is this not a false economy, to cut this budget at this moment when in this January we really afford to shortchange our Nation’s premier research institution when illnesses such as heart disease and stroke continue to be leading causes of death? When so many people are affected with diseases such as cancer? These diseases will cost our country $394 billion in medical expenses and lost productivity in this year alone.

In simple dollar terms, the amount of money we are alleging we will save by cutting medical research just means more people afflicted with disease, more medical expenses for them and for our Nation.

Increased investment in NIH research can yield extraordinary breakthroughs.

We can maintain our leadership role in the world in medical research. We can further the missions we have started at the National Institutes of Health. We need to significantly increase medical research funding now. We need to support our Nation’s researchers. They need to know we stand behind them. These men and women working in the laboratories, as I stand and speak in the Senate, need to know this budget process is not going to move from left to right and up and down. They need to know there is continuity and commitment from our Government so they can dedicate their lives to this important work.

I urge my colleagues to join me in charging the conferees to retain the Senate language, which increases the budget of the National Institutes of Health by $1 billion. A billion could not be better spent in this economy. Any who have had the misfortune of learning of a serious illness in the family say a little prayer to God, then try to find the best doctor and hospital we can find. We walk into that doctor’s office, frightened with what we are about to hear, hoping that doctor will say something that will make it better. If the doctor says they are not quite there yet, this illness that we are concerned about is one that they do not have a
We are on the vanguard of enormous advances on some classifications of cancer, on the research on many maladies which confront America.

It is something of sharper focus this year to me than in the past, although I have steadfastly supported NIH during my entire tenure in the Senate. This is a modest addition. I believe this Senate will instruct the conference, and we will have more than 50 votes. The difficult part is getting it done in conjunction with the House. It is a good amendment. I urge my colleagues to support it.

I yield the floor and yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion made by the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask for the yeas and nays on the pending motions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is objection to requesting the yeas and nays on two motions concurrently.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield back all remaining time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. I ask for the yeas and nays on the pending motions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to requesting the yeas and nays on two motions concurrently? Without objection, it is so ordered.

There is a sufficient second.

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SPECTER. Parliamentary inquiry: Do I have 5 minutes on the Durbin motion?

Mr. DURBIN. The following Senator has the floor. Mr. THUNE. The clerk will call the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time was yielded back.

Mr. SPECTER. The time was yielded back.

Senator DURBIN did not have the authority to yield back my time.

I understand he did not have that authority. I am obliged it was not Senator DURBIN. It was unnamed conspirators that I will deal with later.

I support the amendment of the Senator from Illinois to reinstate the Senator from Nevada. It is a good amendment. I urge my colleagues to support it.

I yield the floor and yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to instruct offered by the Senator from Illinois.

The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. The following Senator was necessarily absent: the Senator from Nevada (Mr. ENSIGN).

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN), the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. CORZINE), the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. INOUYE), the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. NELSON), and the Senator from Michigan (Ms. STABENOW) are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. NELSON) and the Senator from Michigan (Ms. STABENOW) would vote “aye.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 58, nays 36, as follows:

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. COCHRAN. I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was agreed to and to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Chair appoints Mr. SPECTER, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. GHEGG, Mr. CRAIG, MRS. HUTCHISON, MR. STEVENS, MR. DEWINE, MR. SHELBY, MR.
MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be able to proceed for 10 minutes, to be followed by the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. KERRY, for 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be able to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Idaho is recognized.

ENERGY CONSERVATION

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, for the last several weeks, those of us who serve on the Subcommittee on Health and Natural Resources have been trying to find adequate resources amongst other resources to fund LEHAPP, the money necessary to help low-income families provide for their comfort this winter. I thought it would be an appropriate way to talk about that for a little bit because I think Americans need to understand they are not without power to do a few simple things over the course of the next several months of this winter to help themselves as it relates to the heating of their own homes. Americans spend more than $160 billion—that is right, $160 billion—a year on heat, cooling, lights, and living in their homes. That is an awful lot of money necessary to help low-income families provide for their comfort this winter. That memory is gone.

We hear about record natural gas prices and 30- and 40- and 50-percent increases in heating bills this winter for those who heat with natural gas. We know those who heat with home heating oil in the Northeast are going to pay a little bit more than what I imagine the people who heat with home heating oil in the West are going to pay. The President wants to do something about it. He did not come to this moment light-handedly. He did not come to this moment in a way that would say, you turn down your thermostat by 2 degrees and that in itself would drive prices down. Americans have power to help themselves if they simply would turn their thermostats down by 2 degrees.

I am not going to do a “Jimmy Carter” on you, put on a sweater, but if you did turn your home heating thermostat down by 2 degrees and if you did put on a sweater and if you are a couple living by yourself in a large home and you turn off the radiators in some of your bedrooms that you are not using and close the doors, there could literally be a dramatic savings across this country.

If you want to change your gas price experience at the pump, instead of driving 70 and 75 or 80 miles per hour on the freeway, why don’t you go back to 60 or 65? And if you turned it down and slowed it down, oil consumption could drop in a day—a day—in this country by 1 million barrels of consumption. That is the power of the American consumer. What is the American consumer wants to do something about it instead of pointing fingers and blaming—and there is plenty of that going around, and we deserve to take some of it. The consumer is not without power. Let me suggest, time remaining, Senator BINGAMAN and I would like to help in that effort. So we are going to provide conservation packages, packets of information to our colleagues so that they can send out in their letters to their constituents advising and assisting in this kind of conservation effort. We hope you do it. If every Senator and all Senate staffs turn off their computers when they go home at night, shut them down, hit the off switch, turn out the lights in your office. If that were done across America today, heating bills and energy bills would drop precipitously.

But we are in this mode of everything on, all the lights on, the thermostat turned up because we are still living in the memory of surplus and inexpensive energy. That memory is gone. The reality is that the world has changed significantly, and while we scramble to catch up and provide increased availability of supply in the market—and that is what we are doing and that is what the national energy policy passed in August is attempting to do—while that is happening, you know what we can do: We can help ourselves.

So once again I say to America, turn your thermostat down a few degrees, put on a sweater, shut portions of your house down and take literally tens, if not hundreds, of dollars off your heating bill in the course of a winter. If we do it collectively across America, by spring, natural gas prices could be down dramatically, and we would not see the kind of job loss that is occurring today in the chemical industry as large manufacturing plants are shut down, but we can turn down our thermostats, and we can help yourself. America, you can help yourself. America, you can drive a little slower, you can turn your thermostats down, and if we were all to do that collectively, it would have a dramatic impact on the marketplace and on consumption.

Does it have to be mandated by law? Need there be a law to tell you that you can save a little money by those actions? I would hope not. I would hope that the wisdom of the pocketbook would suggest that we be prudent as to a procedure to follow.

Senator BINGAMAN and I are going to supply packets to the offices of our colleagues. We hope our colleagues will proceed for such time as I may consume in order to finish my statement.

We hope our colleagues might take the time to do a public service announcement over the course of the next month, talking to their folks at home about the opportunity and what is available. I think it is appropriate, and I think it is the right thing to do.

Senator BINGAMAN and I have coalesced with industry to see if they cannot collectively begin to produce a greater message of clarity about the opportunity in the marketplace to conserve and to save in doing, to lower the overall cost of energy and its impact upon the American economy.

Want to give yourself a Christmas gift? Put on a sweater and turn the thermostat down 2 degrees. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent I be permitted to proceed for such time as I may consume in order to finish my statement. It will not be much more than 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KERRY. Subsequently, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Arizona, Mr. KYL, be recognized to speak after me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

JACK MURTHA, AN AMERICAN PATRIOT

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, yesterday, as all of us know, JACK MURTHA, one of the most respected Congressmen on national security issues, a former marine drill sergeant and a decorated Vietnam veteran, spoke out on our policy in Iraq. Whether one agrees or disagrees with Congresswoman MURTHA is not the point. He did not come to this moment light-ly. Any one of us who knows Congressman MURTHA or anybody who has worked with him over these years, Republican or Democrat, respects this man, respects his personal commitment to our country, respects his understanding of these issues, and understands he did not come to that moment lightly.

He spoke his mind and he spoke his heart out of love for his country and out of absolute and total unconditional support for the troops, of which he was once one. I do not intend to stand for, nor should any of us in the Congress stand for, another Swiftboat attack on the character of Jack Murtha. It frankly disgusts me that a bunch of guys who never chose to put on the uniform of their country now choose in the most personal way, in the most venal, to question the character of a man who did wear the uniform of his country and who bled doing it. It is wrong. He served heroically in uniform. He served heroically for our country.

Hayworth says, there is no sterner sense in this institution and in this city? No matter what J.D. Hayworth says, there is no more stuff than the backbone and courage that defines Jack Murtha’s character and his conscience.

Denis Hastert, the Speaker of the House, who never chose to put on the uniform of his country and serve, called Jack Murtha a coward and accused him of wanting to cut and run. On its face, looking at the record, looking at his life, Jack Murtha has never cut and run from anything. Jack Murtha was not a coward when he put himself in harm’s way for his country in Vietnam and he earned two Purple Hearts. He was a patriot then and he is a patriot today. He deserves his views to be respected, not vilified.

Jack Murtha did not cut and run when his courage earned him a Bronze Star, and his voice ought to be heard today, not silenced by those who would actually choose to cut and run from the truth.

Just a day after Vice President Dick Cheney, who himself had five deferments from service to his country because, as he said, he had other priorities than serving his country, just a day after he accused Democrats of being unpatriotic, the White House accused Jack Murtha of surrendering.

Jack Murtha served 37 years in the U.S. Military. Jack Murtha does not know how to surrender, not to enemy combatants and not to politicians in Washington who say speaking one’s conscience is unpatriotic.

The other day we celebrated what would have been the 80th birthday of Robert Kennedy. When Robert Kennedy opposed the war in Vietnam, despite the fact that his brother and the administration he was in had been involved in articulating that policy, he talked about how there was ‘too much at stake for that.’ He also said the sharpest criticism often goes hand in hand with the deepest idealism and love of country.

Chuck Hagel showed that he has not forgotten that when he said: The Bush administration must understand that each American has a right to question our policies in Iraq and should not be demonized for disagreeing with them.

Too many of us have forgotten that long ago and too many of our friends on the other side of the aisle somehow think that asking tough questions is pessimism. It is not pessimism. It is patriotism. It is how one lives in a democracy. We are busy trying to lose the war in Afghanistan and take to the world the democracy we love and we are somehow unwilling to fully practice it at home.

We have seen the politics of fear and smear too many times. Whenever challenged, there are some Republican leaders who engage in the politics of personal destruction rather than debate the issues. It does not matter who one is. When they did it to John McCain, we saw that it does not matter what political party one is in. When they did it to Max Cleland, we saw that it does not matter if one’s service put them in a wheelchair. And when they did it to Jack Murtha yesterday, perhaps the most respected voice on military matters in Congress, we saw that some in this administration and their supporters will go to any lengths to crush any dissent.

Once again, some are engaged in the lowest form of smear-and-fear politics because I guess they are afraid of actually debating a senior Congressman who has advised Presidents of both parties on how to best defend our country. They are afraid to debate the substance with a veteran who lives and breathes the concerns of our troops, not the empty slogans that sent our troops to war without adequate body armor, without adequate planning, without adequate strategy.

Maybe they are terrified of actually leveling with American people about the way that they did, in fact, mislead the country into war or of admitting that they have no clear plan to finish the job and get our troops home.

Whether one agrees with Jack Murtha’s policy statement yesterday is irrelevant. The truth is there is a better course for our troops and a better course for America in Iraq. The Senate itself went on record this week as saying exactly that. Every Senator in this body votes one way or the other to express their feelings on Iraq.

I intend to keep fighting, along with a lot of other people, to make certain we take that better course for the good of our country.

American families who have lost or who fear the loss of their loved ones plain deserve to know the truth about what we have asked them to do, what we are doing to complete the mission, and what we are doing to prevent our forces from being trapped in an endless quagmire. I mean, all one has to do is visit with them when they come here and they talk about their sons, their husbands, and their fathers who are over there. They are concerned and want an open debate about what will best support the troops and how to get them home the fastest with the job done the most effectively.

The only way to get it done right in Iraq, the only way to get our sons and daughters home, is to open the debate.

I mean, all one has to do is visit with them when they come here and they talk about their sons, their husbands, and their fathers who are over there. that the insurgency was in its last throes.

All of these mistakes tell us something. They scream out for a debate. They scream out for a dialogue. They scream out for a policy that gets it right.

We are in trouble today precisely because of a policy of cut and run where the administration made the wrong choice to cut and run from established procedures of gathering intelligence and criteria; to cut and run from shared executive orders with the Congress; to cut and run from the best military advice; to cut and run from sensible wartime planning; to cut and run from their responsibility to properly arm and protect our troops; to cut and run from history's clear lessons about the Middle East and about Iraq itself; to cut and run from common sense. That is the debate some people appear to want to avoid in this country.

Instead of letting his cronies verbally blast away, the President ought to finally find the will to debate the real issue instead of destroying anyone who speaks truth to power as they see it.

It is time for Americans to stand up and fight back against this kind of politics and let it be clear that it is unacceptable to do this to any leader of any party anywhere in our country at any time. We can disagree, but we do not have to engage in this kind of personal attack and personal destruction.

I hope my colleagues will allow me to get off the floor and engage in this debate. Our country will be stronger for it. That is what we ought to do instead of attacking the character of a man such as Jack Murtha. Believe me, that is a fight nobody is going to win in our America. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arizona.

Mr. KYL. I ask unanimous consent to continue the Senator from Massachusetts on the floor of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I am going to speak in a moment about the PATRIOT Act, but before I do, I want to respond to a couple of comments that were made by the Senator from Massachusetts.

I served with Congressman Murtha when I was in the House of Representatives, and there is no greater patriot in the House than Congressman Murtha. In that, the Senator from Massachusetts and I agree. I disagree with Congressman Murtha's opinions, but that is a matter of debate and that is one of the reasons we have the kind of open society that we do.

I do not think anyone is trying to crush debate or dissent or prevent questions from being asked. But it is a fact that when the President of the United States is accused of deliberate manipulation of intelligence to bring us into a war, the House is asked to give him the authority to do it—without conditions, with the view to bring us into war—that deserves response. That is part of a healthy debate.

When the President spoke in response, I think he was entitled to be listened to and not ridiculed and not condemned for criticizing those who disagreed with him. Neither side need back away from making their arguments. It is only that the other side is wrong. But of course no one should be questioning anyone else's patriotism. It is assumed anyone who serves this Government, and certainly anyone who has put on the uniform of this Government, is a patriot. In the case of Congressman Murtha, I would be the first to assert that fact.

I think there are two critical facts with respect to this dispute. The first set of facts is that our intelligence, and that of virtually every other nation in the world, believed that Saddam Hussein was a threat to the world and had weapons of mass destruction and in some cases was developing capability for additional weapons of mass destruction, such as nuclear weapons. Some of that intelligence turned out not to be correct. But it does not mean that the people who debated the issues were liars or deliberately misrepresenting the facts. I daresay, if you took comments made on the floor of the Senate from Massachusetts made on the floor of the Senate, they would align pretty closely. They were pretty similar because they were based on the same intelligence.

The same thing was said by other Democrats, by people in administration, by people in the former administration. I do not think it is appropriate to assign deliberate motives to mislead to any of those people.

I myself believe that the information was not correct with respect to the weapons of mass destruction but that the people who were giving it to us honestly believed it was correct. So I don't even think the people in the CIA were deliberately trying to deceive you; they turned out to be wrong. Can't we agree that people make mistakes, especially with respect to that murky area of intelligence where nothing is ever black and white, where everyone is always gathering bits and pieces of information and trying to construct a jigsaw puzzle out of it when a lot of pieces are missing and where the enemy is deliberately trying to deceive you? It is very difficult business, because if you are wrong, that is wrong.

Mr. KYL. I am happy to.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I respect the comments of the Senator and I appreciate the way he has approached it and I am grateful to him and thank him. I am sure that for his comments about Congressman Murtha. I know he would agree with me that those who suggested what he is saying is cowardly or suggested that is surrender, that those words probably inappropriate in this debate. I think the Senator would agree with me that those characterizations have no place here. And he is right about the question of how everybody approached the intelligence. We all did have a unified belief about the existence of weapons—most of us.

But I disagree with the Senator. I would ask him if he does not agree that there are legitimate areas of inquiry, which the Intelligence Committee is now pursuing, with respect to what happened to certain intelligence that came to the Congress? For instance—about five areas. One was the speech that was made by the President, where he referenced nuclear materials coming from Africa which, in fact, the CIA on three different occasions, both verbally and in writing, informed the White House: Don't use this. But nevertheless it was used.

Whether that was intentional or inadvertent, all we know is that winds up being misleading because the CIA disagreed with the evidence.

Likewise, telling America they could deliver biological, chemical weapons within the period of 45 minutes, which was disagreed with in the intelligence community, was not signed off within the intelligence community.

Likewise, suggesting Iraq had trained al-Qaida in the creation of bombs, before making, another creation—not agreed by the intelligence community—in fact, erroneous.

Likewise, as the Vice President said on several occasions, that there was a meeting between Iraq and al-Qaida opened a meeting that the intelligence community did not substantiate, which we now know did not take place.
Those are, on their face, misleading representations made to us, which Members of the Congress operated on. I would assume the Senator would agree the mere fact that there were no weapons of mass destruction means we were all misled. Whether it was intentional is the issue of discussion.

I can't tell you whether it was intentional. But I certainly know that when you ignore the CIA's warnings, don't use this intelligence, and nevertheless it winds up in the State of the Union message, it opens a disconnect that raises the most serious questions, that leaves a lot of us wondering.

I ask the Senator, does he not agree that those instances where the intelligence community is in disagreement and they don't tell us they are in disagreement and we don't get the same intelligence, provides some serious questions?

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I was very happy to have the Senator from Massachusetts speak in this debate because he has every right to say: You can't just look to the consensus opinion. As I said, you are absolutely right. There is a devil's advocacy going on. There is too much “group think” within the intelligence community. So it is a good thing to have that intelligence questioned.

I remember there was actually criticism of Vice President Cheney because he went down to the CIA headquarters and had the temerity to ask these agents: Are you sure about this? Are you sure about this intelligence?

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KYL. Let me make my point here. They have a very careful way of expressing their views. In the public debate, I have noted the political people are not nearly as nuanced and careful in expressing these views as the member of the intelligence community is.

Second, with respect to that, ordinarily the way that views were expressed to us, and specifically in this case, they represented the majority opinion or the consensus within the intelligence community. Where there were significant questions or differences of opinion within the intelligence community, those were noted and sometimes with respect to some issues, there were divisions. Without getting into a lot of detail, there has been an indication that the Senator did not raise, the so-called aluminum tubes. Without getting into a big debate about it, you had the majority of the intelligence community believing that those were for one purpose related to production of nuclear materials. And you had a couple of other agencies that had expertise in the area saying they didn't think so. I am not certain anyone has ever concluded which were actually correct, or not, but a lot of information has been thrown out that clearly the majority opinion was wrong. I don't know that one can say that.

So I think we have to be careful. There are frequently, in intelligence estimates, little caveats: We are not sure how good this particular source is; we are not sure about this particular element.

But usually a consensus is reached. That consensus is what was briefed to us and that is what we were relying on. With respect to the four specific points—with respect to the issue of yellowcake coming from Niger, it was a fact that the United States had not was nearly as conclusive as the intelligence from Great Britain, and therefore the President was advised—not the President himself directly but his speechwriters were advised—not to suggest that our intelligence service which, in fact, had concluded that the attempt had been made. That was the British service and in that speech. The British service still stands by its position.

With respect to the bioweapons, there was very good evidence to suggest, prior to the war, that Saddam Hussein not only had a viable bioterrorism program but that he had even mobilized—in one respect, mobilized that program.

I am not certain we can say, from the Senate floor, how we have finally evaluated the intelligence with respect to that. I think it would be probably difficult for any Senator to discuss the issue in great length. I would be willing to acknowledge that, certainly, questions have been raised about whether it turns out that there were mobile units devoted to creation of bioweapons.

Third, with respect to the intelligence that Iraqi agents had actually instructed terrorists in bomb making and poison making, that information was very clear. It was issued by the CIA Director George Tenet. It was public information, so that can be discussed on the floor of the Senate, and I am aware of nothing that draws any question about that particular evidence. I do not recall whether it specifically related to al-Qaida or terrorists or al-Qaida-connected terrorists. I probably should not speak to that issue because I am not certain how much is classified. But it is absolutely certain in public testimony, and in a letter George Tenet wrote to Attorney General Ashcroft. He discussed the issue of Iraq training terror- orist bomb makers in the art of chemical weapon-making.

Finally, in regard to this alleged meeting that never actually occurred, if it is the meeting in Czechoslovakia that the Senator was referring to, that is a matter of dispute. I don't think it has ever been resolved one way or the other of the intelligence.

The point of all of this is it is one thing to say the intelligence was inconclusive and in some cases that there were disputes in the intelligence community and in some cases it was not accurate. It is quite another to allege that mistakes by one people, intelligence were misleading other people.

Certainly, I was not deliberately misleading anyone, and I am certain the Senator from Massachusetts was not deliberately misleading anyone when we said roughly the same thing based upon the same intelligence that suggested that Saddam Hussein was a threat and had weapons of mass destruction.

The final point on this, and then I do want to turn to the PATRIOT Act, there is a bit of a double standard in that critics of the administration are now saying: You can't just look to the consensus opinion, you need to look at some of those within the intelligence community who were not a part of that consensus opinion, you need to look at some of the intelligence community's representations made to us, which Members of the Congress operated on. I can't tell you whether it was intentional. But I certainly know that when you ignore the CIA's warnings, don't use this intelligence, and nevertheless it winds up in the State of the Union message, it opens a disconnect that raises the most serious questions, that leaves a lot of us wondering.

I ask the Senator, does he not agree that those instances where the intelligence community is in disagreement and they don't tell us they are in disagreement and we don't get the same intelligence, provides some serious questions?

Mr. KYY. Mr. President, I was very happy to have the Senator from Massachusetts speak in this debate because he has every right to say: You can't just look to the consensus opinion. As I said, you are absolutely right. There is a devil's advocacy going on. There is too much “group think” within the intelligence community. So it is a good thing to have that intelligence questioned.

I remember there was actually criticism of Vice President Cheney because he went down to the CIA headquarters and had the temerity to ask these agents: Are you sure about this? Are you sure about this intelligence?

They said: What's he doing that for? He is a so-called consumer of the intelligence. He has every right to say: Are you absolutely certain?

People within the administration should be questioning as well. That is why I think it is so unfortunate that there is, literally, a cabal to attack the Defense Department for questioning some of the intelligence community's estimates—not all of which turned out to be right, as we know. But there is an investigation that has been actually formally requested. In order to get it resolved, the Defense Department has agreed to conduct an inspector general's investigation of the offices of the Department of Defense, into the question of whether it should have questioned the intelligence of the CIA and taken its analysis and its questions to other people within the Defense Department or the national security apparatus of the administration.

Why not? The whole point of these commission recommendations is people ought to be asking questions. The CIA is not a monastery of monks who get manipulated intelligence that nobody else ever looks at. The whole point of gathering intelligence is so our policymakers can use it and make decisions based upon it. When the policymakers have access to the facts, they have every right to ask those questions. And when there is some evidence that suggests the intelligence is not exactly accurate, they have a duty to raise that kind of issue.

There is a bit of a double standard going on that when one wants to criticize the administration and wants to play devil’s advocate, there was a little bit of evidence over here that contradicted the consensus in the community, which the Administration has paid very little attention to that. Maybe so. You can’t turn around and criticize those, in this case, in the Department of Defense who saw the same infirmities, and who had questions about the CIA intelligence and which was criticized because they had the temerity to raise those questions. You can’t have it both ways.

In reality, intelligence is an imperfect proposition at best, and we ought to be playing devil’s advocate and be asking tough questions about it. But I daresay, unless you get very good evidence that someone was deliberately lying or misleading, you shouldn’t throw those kinds of words around.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. KYL. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. SESSIONS. I hope every Senator was listening to Senator KYL’s explanation of the important issues that have been raised. I hope the American people are listening. He served on the Intelligence Committee. He has been through these debates from the very beginning. He is a man of integrity, and he will be responsible in summarizing the matters that came before us.

He indicated that we heard allegations that things were black and white, when those of us who heard the briefings didn’t hear them that way. They weren’t black and white. The aluminum tubes—I ask the Senator from Arizona, so eloquently has pointed out, the choice was when, not if, we would face Saddam Hussein. The question was, would we do it on his terms or on ours? We chose to do it on ours. The result is Saddam Hussein today stand trial for mass murder. The Iraqi people have an opportunity for freedom, and we have an opportunity to transform that region of the world into one that supports peace and opposes evildoers and terrorists as opposed to one which we were stuck when Saddam Hussein was in charge.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, again, I thank the Senator for his thoughtful and thorough analysis of how we came to know what we knew and how we came to make the decisions about matters that came before us. We think there is no doubt that Saddam Hussein used weapons of mass destruction against his own people. We know that. That intelligence went beyond what we were presented. Where it went subsequently I don’t know, and people are shocked that we have not found them. We know that the French intelligence agency—the French Government opposed our entry into the war—believed he had weapons of mass destruction.

Those matters were very important. And what I am so glad about is people have heard what Senator Kyl said and discussed, which is relevant to this Senate. We knew these things, fellow Senators. We discussed these things. Grown people make decisions based on the best evidence they have.

We had many hearings, top secret briefings, and every Senator could go. We had a secret amendment. We heard the evidence. We cross-examined, and we heard the uncertainties and certain levels expressed by the authorities that came before us. Then we came into this body and we voted to send our soldiers to execute that policy. And we owe those soldiers our support. We don’t need to be undermining the President, or even ourselves and our system, as in this circumstance making the policy. We voted by a 78-to-22 vote to make it more difficult to achieve and to place our soldiers at greater risk.

I thank the Senator for his wonderful comments.

THE PATRIOT ACT

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I want to get to the matter I came to speak on, the PATRIOT Act.

The Senator from Massachusetts spoke to us about avoiding any calumny or suggesting—what is, in fact, a patriot and who certainly should never be called a coward. I also want to ask that same deference to those in the Defense Department and others who were doing their duty for our country, who could have been in the private sector making a lot of money and taking care of their families but chose to serve their country in another way in later life by acting on behalf of those matters of national security. The Secretary of Defense, Don Rumsfeld, Paul Wolfowitz, Doug Pfeal, who headed the office I spoke of, these are patriots. And for anyone to suggest that someone like Doug Pfeal or Don Rumsfeld or Paul Wolfowitz were misleading anyone is, frankly, about as low as you can get. And even loose words such as “unlawful” have been thrown about.

This is a very bad state of affairs that we have come to when that is the kind of discourse we have in talking about people who have served our country honorably. I hope my colleagues will join me in trying to elevate the rhetoric rather than taking it down further. And that applies to everyone—Democrat and Republican Members of Congress, or the administration.

I came to talk about the PATRIOT Act. I would like to make some comments because we are in the middle of a big debate in the Senate and House about the reauthorization of the PATRIOT Act. If we don’t reauthorize the PATRIOT Act, all of the tools that we have given to our law enforcement and our intelligence people have the tools they need to carry out the mission of this Patriot Act.

In the war on terror, intelligence and the ability to use it in the law enforcement community are critical to our success.

On the greatest things we accomplished after 9/11 in passing the PATRIOT Act was to tear down the wall that had been created between our intelligence-gathering organizations and law enforcement. They couldn’t talk to each other. One could gather information, but they couldn’t give it to the other, and vice versa.

As a result, neither were able to do their job in getting information about terrorists and putting out that information to proper and good use.

There is virtually no disagreement that I know of that this part of the PATRIOT Act has been critical to our success since 9/11. Yet there are those on both sides of the aisle in this body who are threatening to hold up the reauthorization of the PATRIOT Act because they haven’t gotten their way on every little thing that they want, and some of them don’t even know what the conference committee has been negotiating. I am on that conference committee and I know what we have discussed, and I know what is still a matter of issue out there.

I want to talk a little bit about the PATRIOT Act because there is a great deal of ignorance about what this important matter is called—PATRIOT. And we cannot be ignorant, even though it is a matter of law and a little bit complicated. We don’t have the luxury of being ignorant about this. We have to understand it to appreciate it. I will speak to that for a little bit.

I believe, like some great controversies of the time, history books will record that the controversy over the PATRIOT Act was actually something we will look back on and say, What was all the fuss about? It is a little bit like when President Reagan talked about tearing down the wall and calling the Soviets the “Evil Empire.” There was great handwringing. This was not going to be good for our foreign policy. We look back on it now and say, What was all the fuss about? He was right. It was a good thing.

Those who are threatening to hold up the reauthorization of the PATRIOT Act should have pretty much the same words spoken to them about the wall. This time we are talking about the wall between intelligence and law enforcement. I say to them, “Tear down this wall.” We did it in the PATRIOT Act. They should have pretty much the same words spoken to them about the wall. If we don’t reauthorize the PATRIOT Act expire because they have some view that every little thing they want has not gotten accomplished in the PATRIOT Act.

This is important business. For those who are threatening to prevent the reauthorization of the PATRIOT Act, I challenge them to come to the Senate today, tomorrow. I will be here. Let’s have the debate.

Mr. Kyl. The biggest is the wall coming down, as I said. There is no disagreement about that. Yet, it is going to go right back up if we do not act.

The second provision of the PATRIOT Act that people have focused on is the so-called section 215 which allows a FISC, Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court, to issue subpoenas to produce business records. That authority has been in the law for a long time. But we added it to the PATRIOT Act in order to allow the FBI to seek an order from this special court that was created for: . . . the production of tangible things (including books, records, papers, documents, and other items) for an investigation to obtain foreign intelligence information.

Not to obtain foreign intelligence information. And FISC defines “foreign intelligence” as information relating to foreign espionage, foreign sabotage, or international terrorism.

Section 215 is basically a form of subpoena authority, such as that allowed for numerous other types of investigation. A subpoena is merely a request for particular information. Unlike a warrant—and this is important—a subpoena does not allow a government agent to enter somebody’s property and take things. It is only a request. If the recipient objects, the Government must go to court and defend the subpoena and seek an order for its enforcement. Most Federal agencies have the authority to issue subpoenas, and many agencies have multiple subpoena authorities.

The Justice Department has identified over 335 different subpoena authorities in the United States Code. One can hardly contend that although the Federal Government can use subpoena authority to compel information. If it suspects he is committing Medicare fraud that it should not be allowed to use the same powers if it suspects he is planning to fly airplanes into buildings. What sense would that make?

like some of the other subpoenas. But even subpoenas issued to investigate the industries are used to request information from persons outside the industry. For example, the Small Business Administration is authorized to use such subpoenas to aid its fraud investigations. When the FBI seeks to use it, it can and often does request information from others doing business—from anyone doing business—with the recipient of the SBA loan.

In one important way, the authority in section 215 of the PATRIOT Act is even narrower than the authority given by most subpoena statutes. This is critical. Unlike these other authorities, a section 215 order must be preapproved by a judge. Many people who debate the PATRIOT Act ignore this or do not know it. They say, you do not even have to get a court order. It must be preapproved by a judge. Even grand jury subpoenas, despite their name, are simply issued by a prosecutor conducting a grand jury investigation with no judicial review prior to their issuance.

Chief among the complaints made by critics of this section is that it could be used to obtain records from bookstores or libraries. Some of these critics even alleged that section 215 would allow the FBI to investigate someone simply because of the book he borrows from the library. Section 215 could, in fact, be used to obtain library records even if it is not any other provision of the PATRIOT Act specifically mentioned libraries or in any way is directed at libraries. Section 215 does authorize court orders to produce tangible records and that could theoretically include library records.

Where the critics are wrong is in suggesting a section 215 order could be obtained because of the books that someone reads or Web sites he visits. Section 215 does not do that. Instead, it allows an order to obtain tangible things as part of an investigation to obtain foreign intelligence information, information relating to foreign espionage or terrorism or relating to a foreign government or group and national security.

By requiring a judge to approve such an order, section 215 assures these orders will not be used for an improper purpose. And as an added protection against abuses, neither it nor any other provision requires that the FBI fully inform the House of Representatives and the Senate every 6 months. These checks and safeguards leave FBI agents little room for the types of witch hunts the PATRIOT Act critics conjure up. Any use of the subpoena in other words, must be reported to us.

Further, and I ask Members to think about this for a moment, especially in view of some of the criticism that has been leveled at the act, I would like to emphasize there are very good and legitimate reasons why an intelligence or criminal investigation might extend to a bookstore or a library. One example of former Deputy Attorney General Comey has cited is the investigation of the Unabomber, Ted Kaczynski. Remember that the Unabomber’s brother had related to libraries, of course. Section 215 also could have been used directly to investigate the perpetrators of the September 11 attacks. How so? We now know that in August of 2001 individuals using Internet accounts registered to Nawaf al Hazmi and Khalid al Midhar used public access to computers in the library of a State college in New Jersey. The computers in the library were used to shop for and review airline tickets on an Internet travel reservation site. Al Hazmi and Al Midhar were hijackers aboard American Airlines flight 77 which took off from Dulles Airport and crashed into the Pentagon.

The last documented visit to the library occurred on August 20, 2001. On that occasion, records indicate that a person using Al Hazmi’s account used the library’s computer to review Sept.ember 11 reservations he had previously booked.

In August of 2001, Federal agents knew that al Midhar and al Hazmi had entered the United States. They initiated a search for these individuals because they knew they were associated with al-Qaida. Had the investigators caught the trail of these individuals—and by the way, one of the criticisms in the 9/11 Commission Report was that our Government did not adequately pursue such leads—had they pursued it, that there was a lot of evidence they could have pieced together. They didn’t follow it. They let them out of their sights, at which point they were gone. They knew they were here, but they could not find them. Had they followed the trail of the individual and had the PATRIOT Act already been law, the investigators would have likely used a section 215 to use the library records to see the Internet trail, and history might have been different.

Finally, over half a dozen reports submitted by the Inspector General of the Department of Justice have uncovered no instances of abuse involving section 215. The latest public report indicates this authority has been used approximately three dozen times—not all related to libraries, of course. Section 215 is not used very often. But we know that when Federal agents do use it, it is for an important purpose. I cannot imagine that any one of us would want to stop Federal agents from using section 215 in the way it has been used. There were those who said we should have some additional restrictions on section 215; even though it is an important tool, we need it further restricted. So the conference committee said, all right, let’s first make sure we have a new statutory relevance standard so there is no question the information obtained has got to be relevant to the four specifically enumerated). Another concession made was that there would be a three-part additional test which would be put in place to presume relevancy if you can satisfy this three-part test. It is going to further complicate the judicial process. But delay things. It is not going to be easy for the Justice Department to prove.

Moreover, another layer of bureaucracy was imposed with so-called minimization standards. The Department of Justice would be required to put into regulation limits on how long the material could be kept, who it could be given to, and so on and so on.

Those who had concerns about section 215 brought those concerns forward and those have been negotiated. I know of no further issue relating to section 215 in the conference report. Members of either side of the aisle have brought forward. So those of my colleagues who have said we are going to filibuster the conference report on the PATRIOT Act because, among other things, it has this section about library records. They ought to get informed about the section, and they also ought to appreciate the fact that the people who have negotiated this on both sides of the aisle, on both sides of the Capitol, have concluded they are now done with this section. We have put everything in there we need to to further ensure it can never be abused, but we want to retain it as an important part of our tools in fighting terrorism.

The second of the three sections I discuss is section 213, the delayed notices and searches. This is so-called “sneak and peek” search. It is an unfortunate name. Section 213 of the act merely codifies judicial common law, allowing investigators to delay giving notice to the target of a search that a search warrant has been executed against him. Section 213 allows delayed notice of a search for evidence of any Federal criminal offense if a Federal court finds reasonable cause to believe that immediate notice may result in endangering the life or physical safety of an individual, flight from prosecution, destruction, or tampering with evidence, intimidation of potential witnesses, or would otherwise seriously jeopardize the investigation. Notice still must be provided within a reasonable time before the warrant’s execution, though this period may be extended for good cause.

The ACLU, in particular, has been critical of section 213. One might think an organization seeking to find fault with this section that deals with the FBI’s ability to conduct something other than this particular PATRIOT provision because all it does is codify authority that has been allowed by the Federal courts for several decades. This is not new. The ACLU alleges that section 213 expands the Government’s ability to search private property without notice to the owner. It also states that section 213:

... mark[s] a sea of change in the way search warrants are executed in the United States.

And it finally has charged that as a result of the section 213 authorization of delayed notice, “you may never know what the government has done.” No one of the allegations is true. First, the target of a delayed notice search will always eventually “know what the government has done” because section 213 expressly requires that the Government give the target notice of the execution of the warrant “within a reasonable period of its execution.” Section 213 clearly and explicitly authorized only delayed notice, not no notice.

Further, section 213 neither “expands the government’s ability” to delay notice nor can it even remotely be described as a “sea change” in the law. Twenty-five years ago the U.S. Supreme Court established that “covert entries are constitutional in some circumstances, at least if they are made pursuant to a warrant.” That citation is Dalia v. U.S. Congress first authorized delayed notice searches 35 years ago in the 1968 Omnibus Crime Control Act. These searches repeatedly have been upheld as constitutional. In 1990, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit held:

Certain times of searching or surveillance depend for their success on the absence of premature disclosure. The use of a wiretap, or a “bug,” or a pen register, or a video camera would likely produce little evidence of wrongdoing if the wrongdoers knew in advance that their conversation or actions would be monitored. When nondisclosure of the authorized search is essential to its success, neither Rule 41 nor the Fourth Amendment prohibits covert entries.

You can see why this is so. There are certain circumstances where you cannot let the “bad guy” know you are listening in on his conversations.

To the extent the ACLU intends to suggest that delayed notice searches are unconstitutional, it bears mention that the U.S. Supreme Court has already addressed that view. I mentioned the 1979 Dalia case in which the Supreme Court described that argument as “foolish.”

If anyone would still wish to argue that section 213 is controversial, I would note that on this point, too, the conference committee has resolved the only issue that was in contention. The Senate passed a bill that substantially reenacted section 213 with no restrictions on authority. The bill was, by the way, reported out of the Judiciary Committee on a unanimous roll call vote, which means even the most vocal critics agreed to it, and it later passed the House unanimously.

The only debate in the conference over section 213 is what the presumptive time limit should be for investigators to return to court to renew the delay-in-notice provision. The Senate bill included a presumptive delay of 7 days, the House bill a presumptive delay of 180 days, with no provision for longer delay in particular cases. The conference committee has agreed to 30 days. I suggest that is an eminently reasonable compromise. And for all the huffing and puffing about so-called “sneak and peek,” this is what the real debate has come down to.

I have one, and I will conclude very quickly, Mr. President.

The other section, the third section, is this one on roving wiretaps. It simply allows terrorism investigators to obtain a wiretap for any phone that a suspect uses rather than limiting the wiretap to a particular phone. Criminal investigations already have this authority. The PATRIOT Act simply updates the law to give terror investigators the tools they need to fight terrorism. It brings down the wall that prevented them from cooperating in the past. It provides adequate safeguards to ensure that no liberties are being denied only to enable the investigation of terrorism and crimes by terrorists against the citizens of the United States. It would be a pity if we did not move forward to reauthorize this important piece of legislation.

I renew my challenge to my colleagues. If anyone wants to discuss this, or debate it, I will be here today. I will be here tomorrow. For that matter, I will be here Monday if they want to do it. We got this done and leave here until we have given our law enforcement officials the tools they need to protect us.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, the current consideration by the Congress of a rewire of the USA PATRIOT Act is a significant event. These are important issues, and they have become increasingly important to the American people.

This bill, more than any other, must have the confidence of the American people. I understand that and Chairman SPECTER understands that. I commend the chairman for his commitment to work in a bipartisan manner, and have become increasingly important.

The PATRIOT Act suffers from an image problem. This perception problem stems in large measure because of the rhetoric, practices and secrecy of the Bush administration and the Ashcroft Justice Department. The antidote is clear and it is simple—less secrecy, more congressional oversight, more judicial review and an adjusted balance that better protects the rights and liberties of all Americans.

That is what we produced here in the Senate when first the Senate Judiciary Committee and then the House unani-ous adopted our PATRIOT Act reauthorization bill. We worked together and did so in a timely manner, completing our work in July. The Senate appointed conferees immediately. Regrettably, the House did not follow suit. They delayed more than 3 months until November 9, just last week and just a week before Congress was scheduled to recess. We lost 3 months that we could have used to find common ground and reach a bipartisan, bicameral agreement. We made some progress over the weekend on important issues, reaching a tentative agreement on improved reporting requirements that would shine some light on the use of certain surveillance techniques. I believed that were close to striking a reasonable balance on the core civil liberties issues raised by the PATRIOT Act.

But on Sunday, the Bush administration stepped in and, with the acquiescence of congressional Republicans, the bipartisan negotiations were abruptly ended. The curtain came down, Democratic participation was excluded from the process. As a result the tentative agreements were scuttled based on Bush administration demands.

Further, the impeding image problem of the conference report was being loaded up with controversial provisions that had nothing to do with the PATRIOT Act, terrorism, or anything in either the House or Senate-passed bills. The PATRIOT Act suddenly was being used as a vehicle of convenience to pass laws that could not be passed on their own merit. This overreaching by the House Republican leadership caused more time to be lost, and at the late stages of what should have been—can what could have been—an open and bipartisan conference conference report is not what it should be.

The needless and divisive chapter in the late stages of what should have been—can what could have been—an open and bipartisan conference conference was close to a compromise that could have been acceptable to almost all members of Congress and to the American public. This is not that conference report. I am not sure that this conference report can win the confidence of the American people. Rather than seek common ground with the Congress and with the American people that we represent, the Bush administration and Republican conference have taken and abused their power and taken terrible advantage.

Just 2 months ago, we observed the fourth anniversary of the horrific attacks of September 11, 2001. In the aftermath of those attacks, we moved quickly to pass anti-terrorism legislation. The fires were still smoldering at Ground Zero when the USA PATRIOT Act became law on October 30, 2001, just 6 weeks after the attacks.

Many of us here today worked together in a spirit of bipartisan unity and resolve to craft a bill that we had hoped would make us safer as a nation. Freedom and security are always in tension in our society, and especially so in those somber weeks after the attacks. We tried our best to strike the right balance. One of the fruits of that bipartisanism was the sunset provisions contained in the PATRIOT Act. These sunset provisions have allowed us some opportunity to obtain key information Americans have a right to know or trust what the government is doing.

Working with Chairman SPECTER, we are insisting on modifications to the conference report that will make it more protective of civil liberties and increase opportunities for oversight, including a 4-year sunset.

I thank Senators KENNEDY, ROCKEFELLER, and LAVIN for their efforts to improve the draft circulated to us this week. I know that some Senate Republican conference were not satisfied that the draft fully protected Americans' civil liberties and thank them for working on this issue. I also especially thank my ranking member, Senator FEINSTEIN, for her constant support and willingness to work together. I thank her staff as well: Christian Evans, B.G. Wright, and Chad Schulten for their hard work and professionalism, and with my great staff, Tammy Cameron, Dennis Balkham, and Sean Knowles. It has been a team effort and I appreciate that so much.

The military construction portion of our bill provides $1.225 billion for active component construction, $5.1 billion of which is for active component construction, and $1.1 billion for reserve component construction. It also includes $4 billion for family housing. There is $1.75 billion for BRAC implementation and $1.1 billion for Reserve Component construction. It also includes $4 billion for family housing. We have created three Centers of Excellence for medical care for the country's veterans. The VA's recent budgetary shortfall by putting in place stringent financial reporting requirements in an effort to avoid the repeat of budget crises witnessed this summer in VA health care. The conference report provides the first piece to the most recent BRAC round. With the funds provided, it places priority on those funds which are critical to carrying out BRAC, while providing the necessary financial oversight of the resources provided.

For our veterans, we have fully funded the President's request for veterans benefits and health care. This has not been easy. House and Senate conference have provided $22.67 billion for medical services, which includes $1.23 billion for emergency funding to meet the President's amended request for medical care for the country's veterans. This conference has strongly responded to the VA's request for additional funding to fully meet the VA's request for medical care for the country's veterans. The conference report also provides necessary services for our service men and women and their families, not only enabling them to effectively do their jobs, but also providing an important opportunity for our veterans and their families. This is important for many reasons. Of course, it is the right thing to do for our military. It is also the smart thing to do with our tax dollars. In this time of war and frequent deployments, recruiting and retention, maintaining a ready and available workforce is very much on the minds of our military leaders. We often say, in the words of an All-Veterans song, ‘You can recruit individuals, but you retain families.’ The quality-of-life improvements that make our military communities great places to live are crucial in the retention of military families. Within this conference report, we fund projects that will improve the lives of those families. We fund 11 family housing privatization projects, which will provide high-quality, market-standard housing for nearly 15,000 military families; 39 barracks projects that will get our single soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines out of substandard living conditions, or, in some cases, off ships and into first-rate facilities; and schools, child development centers, and family support centers that will ensure our service members' children and spouses a care for, are included in this bill.

These improvements make it easier for troops to deploy, to focus on their day-to-day jobs, while giving them the peace of mind that comes with knowing their families and homes are taken care of, so they can give their attention to the job we are asking them to do—protecting America. them fully ambulatory and able to function in the rest of their lives.

The conference takes the unprecedented step of providing $15 million specifically dedicated to Gulf War Illness research for this year and the next 4 fiscal years, fulfilling the Research Advisory Committee's recommendations on Gulf War Illness. This is a disease for which we must determine the cause so we can treat the one in six who returned from the Gulf War with these symptoms and protect future service men and women from contracting this disorder.

The conference report before you today establishes a new account within the VA dedicated to information technology systems. Not only does this new account provide for increased oversight and consolidated information technology efforts within the VA, it codifies the new position of a VA Chief Information Officer and subsequent reorganization. I believe this is a critical step for the VA to ensure its success in medical recordkeeping and medical record availability. Its HealtheVet-electronic patient records project paid great dividends during the recent hurricanes.

In this spirit, the conference report has also responded to the recent hurricanes by providing the VA authority to establish an Assistant Secretary for Disaster Preparedness, something which will enable the VA to better respond to future disaster situations.

Finally, we have provided $1 million over the President's request for the American Battle Monuments Commission for an environmental study to save the eroding monument at Normandy Cemetery.

All in all, I believe the conference report before the Senate provides much-needed resources and does so while maximizing our limited resources in meeting the greatest needs of our military, their families, and our veterans.

On a personal note, I want to say I have worked very closely with Secretary Jim Nicholson of the VA, and I know of his dedication to doing what is right for our veterans, something we all wish to do. I appreciate his leadership. We owe our active-duty military, our Guard and Reserves, who stand ready to serve, and our veterans, who have served, the care of our country. We have achieved these goals in the conference report today.

Therefore, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this conference report.

Mr. President, I yield to my ranking member, Senator Feinstein.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I am very pleased to join my chairman, Senator Hutchison, in recommending this 2006 Military Construction, Veterans Affairs, and Related Agencies appropriations conference report to the Senate. This conference report, the first year that MILCON has added dramatically to its portfolio, and I want to compliment the chairman of our committee, and I want to compliment her staff for what has been, I think—on what could have been a very difficult bill—a very bipartisan, constructive, team-like, problem-solving effort. I only wish we had more of it in the Senate. But I want the chairman to know how much I greatly appreciate his leadership, and I want her staff to know that as well.

I also thank Chairman Cochran—what Senator Hutchison said was right about the amount of money—and also Senator Burns for the leadership and diligence in getting this bill through conference and to the Senate floor.

As the chairman said, the conference report before us today is a first. It provides for the infrastructure needs of our military and the health care and other needs of our veterans.

The bill is a big one. It is an $82.57 billion bill. It includes $12.167 billion for MILCON, family housing, environmental cleanup; $70.25 billion for veterans' benefits that health-care costs is the big addition—and $157.6 million for several related agencies.

Of the many vital programs the Senator elucidated as funded in this conference report, none is more important than the funding to meet the medical needs of our Nation's veterans. As a Senator from a State with the largest population of veterans in the Nation, I cannot overstate the importance of this issue. We have to support our veterans to the fullest extent possible.

The conference report before us today provides $22.547 billion for veterans medical services. Included in that level is $1.225 billion in contingent emergency funding to make up the projected shortfall in the President's original budget request. The Senate had sought a higher level of funding, and it was my sincere hope that the House, which had zero emergency funding for veterans in its version of the bill, would have agreed to our position and accepted the full amount provided in the Senate bill. That did not happen. But given the huge disparity between the House and Senate funding proposals, the level of funding provided in the conference report is a good start. I commend, again, the chairman for her hard work—for the cooperation of Senator Cochran, chairman of the Appropriations Committee—in bridging the enormous gap between the two bills and ensuring conference report did not shortchange our veterans. I do not believe it does shortchange our veterans.

The proposed funding for VA medical services is equal to the level of funding the administration has said it needs for fiscal year 2006. That is clearly a good start. But it offers—and it has to be pointed out—no safety net to our veterans, should the VA's budget once again prove to be wrong. This is a worrisome prospect. Hopefully, the administration can assure that the funding will be sufficient, but everyone should know that we will be watching. Additionally, there is much talk floating around the Capitol of an across-the-board cut to discretionary programs. I would like to be clear to everyone, any across-the-board cut to VA medical services will mean cuts in health care for veterans. There is no other way around it. We can't allow it to happen.

As I noted earlier, the medical services proposal includes the $1.225 billion in contingent emergency funding. This means the administration will have to designate the funding as an emergency appropriation for the VA. I want to send this message loud and clear to the administration: Do not sit on this funding and force the VA to have to begin rationing health care. We will not stand for that.

The MILCON portion of the report provides $12.17 billion to fund state-of-the-art facilities. The Senator has mentioned some of them—barracks, housing for military families, and other vital infrastructure for service members around the world.

Army projects were increased by 19 percent; Air Force, by 18 percent; and the Navy, by nearly 8 percent. When enacted, this bill will fund Active-component MILCON at $5.1 billion. We were able to provide significant increases in funding for Reserve-component MILCON. This is important at a time when our Reserve Forces are being asked to do more than ever before and, in many cases, are being deployed to combat zones overseas multiple times. Ensuring that these troops have adequate facilities in which to train and maintain their equipment is crucial to the success of their mission.

To that end, the conference agreed to increase funding for Army Guard projects by 60 percent, a substantial amount; for Air Guard projects by 83 percent over the President's budget request. In fact, overall funding for Reserve components was increased by 52 percent over the President's budget request, doubling the level of funding for Reserve bases. That is important, and it means that this committee has done an excellent job in recognizing the need.

In summary, I once again thank my chairman, Senator Hutchison. I not only enjoy her collegiality but her friendship as well. I want her to know that that means a great deal to me. I thank Chairman Cochran and Senator Byrd for their leadership. And I would like to thank our staffs who really worked in what I like to believe is a hallmark, sometimes, of this great body, which is bipartisanship. They have shown an unfailing spirit of cooperation. So thank you, Tammy Campbell, Sean Kent, overseas Dennis Baltham for Senator Hutchison, and Christine Evans, B. G. Wright, Chad Schulken, and Chris Thompson of my staff.

I yield the floor.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, collegiality and bipartisanship is a two-way street. You can’t do it if only one person wants to do the right thing.
I have worked with Senator FEINSTEIN.
She has been chairman of our committee, and I have been ranking member. I have been chairman, and she has been ranking member. We have always come together to do what is right for the military personnel who are defending our country as we speak today. We both believe in quality of life, good housing, good health care facilities, good child care facilities, and all the things that we have to provide in the purvue of our bill. And now we have the veterans, which has been added to our bill this year, which is a great opportunity for us to continue to say thank you to those who have preserved the freedom for our generation.

We have come together on the goals, and I could not ask for a better partner.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I so appreciate that we can do this in the Senate, which is what we ought to be doing in every committee. I hope by our ability to do this—frankly, the Appropriations Committee, in general, does so—we will be able to create a better America for all of our constituents.

I thank the Chair and yield back all of my time.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. I do, as well, Mr.
President.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, we have already passed the resolution.
When it comes from the House, we have demanded that it would be passed here.

With that, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the question be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THE PATRIOT ACT

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I would like to share some thoughts on the PATRIOT Act which, unfortunately, seems to have reached an impasse. That is distressing to me. I can’t imagine that we have allowed this to happen. It is very disappointing. The American people need to understand how important the act is and how little it impacts the liberties which we cherish and how carefully it was crafted so as to not impact our liberties. I would like to share a few thoughts about that.

Many of the key provisions of the act are scheduled to sunset at the end of this year. We will now presumably have to try to come back, in the few days we have in December, to complete the work. That is a very risky thing.
We should complete this work today.
Remember, those who do not sign up for this legislation, this conference report, or support it and do it today, giving us time to vote on it before we leave for the year, are risking letting the PATRIOT Act expire. And with its expiration, the walls that prohibited our governmental agencies from sharing critical intelligence information will fall back. Those are the very walls that were structured between the FBI and the CIA and other agencies that blocked the sharing of intelligence information that, in retrospect, we believe could possibly have allowed the attackers of 9/11 to continue. Perhaps not, but those walls, those failures to be able to share intelligence between those agencies were a critical factor in our lack of cooperation prior to 9/11.

We passed the PATRIOT Act to fix that. It has worked extremely well. We should not go back to that time of the great walls.

The PATRIOT Act has, with out doubt, made us immeasurably safer. I fully support the provisions as originally passed. The main goal of the act was then, and remains today, very simple: to give Federal law enforcement officers, the FBI, and other agencies the same tools to fight terrorists as the government as a whole does.
We added tools that they have—and virtually every law enforcement officer at the county, city and State level have—to fight other type criminals, drug lords, murderers, and even white collar tax evaders.

I do not believe we acted too hastily in passing the PATRIOT Act. We were focused on this act. We made a commmitment not to alter any of the great protections that we had. We negotiated it intentionally. People made the most outrageous allegations and had the most incredible misinformation about what was in it. By the time we completed the intense negotiations and debate for weeks, it was voted for in the full Senate by a huge bipartisan majority of 98 to 1. The House voted it with a huge majority also, 357 to 66.
This year we passed the bill unani-ously out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, a contentious committee, a committee which has civil libertarians on the right and the left. We voted it unanimously out of that committee, and the Senate passed it by unanimous consent. As originally drafted, the PA-TRIOT Act does nothing to harm the civil rights and liberties of Americans.
I fully support the act as the target of the wiretap, the target of the foreign intelligence court, to authorize the wiretap.

The way it is monitored and managed is incredibly important because you have to listen to it constantly. If they talk about their family, you are supposed to turn it off. You have to have people listening all the time so that you can catch the evidence you are seeking. It is very expensive. You don’t do it unless it is very important.

So I have to say, Mr. President, it is so important in a investigation that agents have this tool when they are on to a group or entity that is not just selling drugs, as bad as that is,
but are intent on blowing up and killing thousands of American citizens.

And when you are on to them and they start using this phone and the wiretap and that phone and you have run back to court with your 60-page memorandum and find a judge and set up a hearing date and all that, by that time he has maybe gone to another phone,
a cell phone, a pay phone, a phone in a motel, wherever he moves.

So it is perfectly appropriate to have a wiretap if it is approved by a court

Let me mention a few of the provisions of the act that give us the tools that are so important. One is the roving wiretap provision. Roving wiretaps have been available for criminal investigators for many years. But section 206 of the PATRIOT Act made sure that this tool was also available for fighting terrorism. It allows the FISA court, the special foreign intelligence court, to authorize a wiretap to move from device to device as the target of the wiretap, the target of the foreign intelligence investigation, changes modes of communication.

The other thing to point out is that this has been approved as a legitimate law enforcement tool, and should continue to be a law enforcement tool, it is not that easy to obtain, you really have to prove you need a roving wiretap. I was a prosecutor for 18 years, now a U.S. attorney, and I personally supervised and prosecuted a lot of cases. Let me just tell you how it works.

In my 12 years as U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Alabama, I maybe we have 5, 10, 15 wiretaps.
These are very difficult to obtain.
You have to have probable cause to believe that a person is involved in criminal activity. You have to identify how he is using communication devices and then submit to the court a memorandum—and the ones that I have seen were 60 to 100 pages of facts—to prove to the judge’s satisfaction that we are not snooping on somebody who is innocent, but we are actually attempting to uncover the scope of major criminal activity.

The way it is monitored and managed is incredibly important because you have to listen to it constantly. If they talk about their family, you are supposed to turn it off. You have to have people listening all the time so that you can catch the evidence you are seeking. It is very expensive. You don’t do it unless it is very important.

So I have to say, Mr. President, it is so important in a investigation that agents have this tool when they are on to a group or entity that is not just selling drugs, as bad as that is,
but are intent on blowing up and killing thousands of American citizens.

And when you are on to them and they start using this phone and the wiretap
and that phone and you have run back to court with your 60-page memorandum and find a judge and set up a hearing date and all that, by that time
he has maybe gone to another phone,
a cell phone, a pay phone, a phone in a motel, wherever he moves.

So it is perfectly appropriate to have a wiretap if it is approved by a court

November 18, 2005

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
upon sufficient showing of probable cause. That is no doubt. All this does is to say that you can get the ability to intercept communications on that individual and then can use whatever phone he is using. Previously, the traditional way you would have been wiretapping on a single telephone number. This makes it clear that the court decisions allowing roving wiretaps are the law of the land, and it also creates a standard as to how they should be approved and utilized.

So I think that is an important tool for investigators. Can you imagine how important that is to an investigative team that may be working on a dangerous terrorist cell? It could be the difference of life and death for thousands of American citizens.

Let me mention another provision of the act. The objections to this one are so amazing to me. It just breaks my heart that people seem to have as much confusion about it as they do. This is the delayed notice search warrant. Under section 213, the PATRIOT Act created a nationally uniform process and standard for obtaining delayed notice search warrants. This statutory standard applies to delayed notice warrants sought in any type of investigation, not just terrorism investigations. Delayed notice warrants are explained by the August 29, 2005 letter from the Department of Justice. They said:

"A delayed notice search warrant differs from an ordinary warrant only in that the judge authorizes the officer executing the warrant to wait for a limited period of time before notifying the subject of the warrant because immediate notice would have an adverse result as defined by statute."

We must remember that delayed notice search warrants have been around for decades. As a matter of fact, I was reading a book not long ago about an organized crime matter that occurred years ago and they referred to a delayed notice search warrant. They didn't have any statutory standards for it at that time but they asked the judge to allow them to delay notice, and the judge allowed it, and that process has been approved constitutionally.

The PATRIOT Act did not create any new authority or close any gap in the delayed notice law because there was really no gap to close. It simply set a uniform statutory standard for getting permission to delay notice.

It is absolutely false to imply, as many have, that these warrants are a way for the Government to "sneak and peak" into a civilian's home, papers, or effects without ever telling them. The truth is that they have to be told, but there is a delay between the search and when they are told. The objections have continued to suggest that these warrants are done without approval of a court, they want you to believe that because of the PATRIOT Act, the government can go into your house without a warrant and see what you have and never tell anybody that they have been there.

Nothing could be further from the truth. That is why this bill passed 98 to 1. We didn't write those kinds of broad provisions in this bill. We maintained the classic standard of approval of a search warrant, the probable cause standard and all that goes with it. The PATRIOT Act simply set an objective uniform standard for delayed notice.

"Why is this important? Well, I could go into detail, but I would just ask you to imagine that one is surveilling a group that you have probable cause to believe is going to blow up an area of the United States and that you have probable cause to believe that they have planned to make a bomb. You could go in this residence while nobody is there pursuant to a search warrant on probable cause issued by a Federal judge and conduct a search. Normally, the only difference in these warrants is that you would normally tell the person whose house is searched immediately, and immediately report back to the Court. Here you have make a report but you don't have to tell the person you have searched their house until a later date set by the judge."

"You may find in their house bomb-making papers on how to make a bomb, explosive devices, triggers, and those kinds of things. And it may be that from that you could obtain information from their house on who else is involved in the cell, to identify the entire ring, the entire cell, and arrest them all at once at an appropriate time. If you have to tell the person immediately, in some cases you risk tipping the whole group off and having them spread out like a covey of quail. That is what too often happens if you don't have this kind of tool. It is critically important to investigators trying to protect the United States of America that we preserve this section of the PATRIOT Act."

Section 215 of the PATRIOT Act allows the FBI to seek an order for the production of tangible things—books, records, papers, documents, and other items for an investigation to obtain foreign intelligence information. Basically, they are a form of subpoena authority. Section 215 orders must be preapproved by a judge and cannot be used to investigate ordinary crimes or even domestic terrorism. Opponents of section 215 have tried to create the impression that the FBI is using 215 to visit libraries nationwide in some sort of dragnet to check the reading records of everyday American citizens.

"That is not true. We have no interest in that whatsoever. Why would they? They are not doing that. I did get a letter from Rebecca Mitchell, director of the Alabama Public Library Service, who was critical of some of her colleagues who have been objecting to these provisions in the act. Her August 15 letter to me stated:"

"I want to personally thank you for your strong leadership stand on the PATRIOT Act. Our library be a tool for terrorism. I know you have received negative comments from the American library association on your stand but this is not the attitude of librarians across the nation. In your opinion must be protected our State. Please continue to fight to keep our Nation safe.

Please understand that no provision of the PATRIOT Act, including section 215, even mentions libraries or is directed at libraries. Nevertheless, as Director Mitchell points out, it is important that library records remain obtainable. An American citizen has an expectation of privacy and it is the right of an American under the Constitution to be free from unreasonable—unreasonable—search and seizure is guaranteed by our Constitution. Where do you have privacy rights? If you give someone your personal papers, you turn them over to them, do you still have privacy rights if they were to read them? Certainly not. So the law has developed many years in this fashion. You have an expectation of privacy in those areas of your life where you have control over the inside of your automobile, the trunk of your car, the glove compartment of your car, your desk at your office, any part of your house, your garage, an outbuilding around your house that you have exclusive control over. Those are areas over which you have exclusive control, and you have an expectation of privacy. People cannot go into those places and seize anything you have there without probable cause or else it would be an unreasonable search and seizure.

But if you go to a motel and fill out a motel receipt and give it to the motel operator, it is not yours. It is the motel’s document, it is a business record. If you go to a bank and you open an account and keep all of those records of that account, they are the bank’s records, not yours. Every person in that bank has access to those documents and records. If you make a telephone call, the words you use are yours, if you do not have an expectation of privacy between you and the person who receives the call. But the fact that you make a telephone call and the telephone company prints out a billing statement that has telephone numbers on it, then that is a business record. That is not your record, it is their record. So you do not have the same privacy expectations, that is all.

The court has always understood that. This has never been in dispute. Every district attorney in America, all kinds of law enforcement officers, State and Federal, through subpoenas, without court approval, have been able to obtain those kinds of documents if the documents are relevant to an investigation they are undertaking.

I received telephone toll records in drug cases I prosecuted. These kinds of records could be relevant in a terrorist case, make no mistake about it. You check the telephone numbers they call, and they are calling a certain number in New York City. Maybe you have records from another person, and they are calling that same number at various times of the day, and maybe right before or after an attack occurred. That is a fact; they are calling a certain number. Right after an attack occurred, phone calls are going back and forth. That is real evidence of who may be involved in a terrorist cell or criminal drug enterprise. That is how investigators work every day. That is what juries expect to see when cases are prosecuted. To have this great fear that there is something in this act that in a significant way alters those classical powers of investigators to find out those who may be trying to kill us—it is just not true. It is an exaggeration. It is a concern that is not real.

This PATRIOT Act is about to expire. It would be an abdication of our responsibility as the Senate not to move this bill forward before the end of the year. Let’s move it now. If we need to stay over the weekend, I am willing to do so. We can stay next week: I am willing to do so. It is important that we not allow this legislation to fall. I encourage the Senate to work toward achieving that goal.

TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM SMITH
Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I wish to take a personal minute to share some thoughts and to bid farewell to my chief counsel on the Judiciary Committee, William Smith, who is sitting beside me. I know the Presiding Officer, the Senator from Georgia, knows Mr. Smith and admires him. He has been a great friend and a tremendous asset to this Senate. He will be returning to Alabama to practice at one of our State’s most outstanding and prestigious law firms, Starnes & Atchison. Importantly, he will return to Alabama, accompanied by his soon-to-be bride, Diamond, to whom he will be married in early January.

But I am going to feel a great loss. The things he has done for me are innumerable, including helping us to prepare and pass this great act, the PATRIOT Act. Each day we have worked together, William has shown an unwavering dedication to his State, to his country, to me, and to the values we share. His sharp intellect, his strong legal mind, and his commitment to the rule of law is unwavering. I trust his judgment, and I have relied on him to manage our staff and our issues, confident that his work ethic and his ideals are beyond reproach.

Before joining the Senate, William had a distinguished legal career, having served as staff attorney on the Alabama Supreme Court and having taught at both Duke University School of Law and the University of Southern California School of Law.

In 2001, he moved to Washington, DC, to be my deputy chief counsel on the Subcommittee on Administrative Oversight and the Courts. He became my chief counsel the following year.

When William leaves the Senate at the end of this session, he will begin a practice focusing primarily on medical malpractice defense and commercial litigation. I have no doubt he will do well. It will be a great loss to me, and I have no doubt his principled approach, work ethic, and dedication are going to be difficult for this Senate to replace.

It is obvious my loss will be the State’s gain. His presence in Washington was a great gain. William’s work on the Senate Judiciary Committee is almost legendary. The Judiciary Committee takes an enormous number and wide variety of complex and sometimes controversial issues. It is one of the most demanding committees in the Senate.

To be successful as an attorney on that committee, you must not only be hard working and intelligent, but a public servant who routinely works long hours. You must also be a tough negotiator, able to frame your arguments in a strong but respectful and intellectually honest way. William does all of this with seemingly effortless ease.

Evidence of William’s dedication to influence on the committee and its staff can most clearly be seen by simply looking at what his colleagues say about him.

Ed Haden, my former chief counsel of the Courts Subcommittee and currently a lawyer with Balch & Bingham in Birmingham, says:

William Smith is an example of a man who walks his principles. He is a Christian who lives it. He is a conservative who means it. He is a friend who is there for you. In a legislative body that fosters compromise, he will compromise on details, but not on his principles. How fortunate the United States Senate, the Judiciary Committee, and all of us who have worked for Senator Sessions have been to know and love this man.

Rita Lari Jochem, chief counsel for Senator GRASSLEY, says this:

William Smith is a lawyer, a shrewd strategist, a dedicated public servant, and an all around great guy. He sticks to his principles and values, and has been a rock solid role model for many of us. The Senate will miss a much respected colleague, and I will miss a true friend. Even though he will no longer be walking the halls of the Capitol, he will not be forgotten.

Chip Roy, chief counsel of the Judiciary Committee on Terrorism, Technology and Homeland Security, chaired by Senator JON KYL, says this:

William Smith has an incredible love for this country and a great passion for his job. He is a devoted public servant and a forceful advocate for Senator Sessions.

Mary Chesser, chief counsel of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Corrections and Rehabilitation, chaired by Senator TOM COBURN, says this:

William is a great American, leader, mentor, and friend. His presence in the committee constantly inspires his colleagues. I feel honored to have worked with him. He has always represented Senator Sessions and the people of Alabama with impeccable character, wisdom, and insight. He will be missed.

Chip Roy, senior counsel for the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration, Border Security and Citizenship, chaired by Senator JOHN CORNYN, says this:

William Smith has served the U.S. Senate admirably and with conviction. He personifies conservatism and the simple idea that there ought to be a limit to what we do here in Washington. While, many staffs and members alike, Democrat and Republican, seem to succumb to the misguided notion that more government is better, William stands solidly on his belief that this simply is not the case. I will miss his strong sense of patriotism and his strong Christian faith, each of which serve as an example for all.

James Galyean, chief counsel on the Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime and Drugs, chaired by Senator LINDSEY GRAHAM, says this:
Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to make an observation rather than ask a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, William has many friends in the Senate, both Senate staffers and Members of the Senate. I was listening to my friend from Alabama discuss William’s distinguished career on my television monitor, and I decided to come over and make an observation, if it is appropriate.

I remember running into William one time. I said:

What is your principal duty with Senator Sessions?

He said:

Well, it’s to keep him from drifting off to the left.

I say to our friend William: You have done a good job of keeping Senator Sessions from drifting off to the left. You have had a distinguished run here in the U.S. Senate, and I am sure I am not the only Member of the Senate who hopes we will see you again in public service some day. I wish you well in your new endeavor.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator from Kentucky for his remarks. So many of the Senators whom I have talked to feel the same way. Many have come by, Chairman SPECTER, Senator DOMENICI, and others to speak to William.

He will be here a few more weeks, but we will be out most of that time so this is probably our last time to get together.

Let me keep reading what William’s colleagues have told me about him.

Wendy Fleming, legislative counsel to Senator DAVID VITTER, says this:

Three of the things Americans cherish the most are God, country, and family. That is as true for William as anyone. Every day he lives his Christian faith. He works with a love of this country and defends the Constitution. Now he is leaving to start a family. William has been a great friend and teacher to me, and I am better for knowing him.

Chris Jaarda, legislative assistant for Senator JIM BUNNING, says this:

Every American should know the name William Smith and the character that he possesses while working on their behalf. His commitment to principle and respect for the rule of law, is unquestioned. Were William your lawyer, you would be served by a skilled advocate, committed to the highest standard of ethics and professionalism. Were William your judge, you would observe someone with the utmost respect for the Constitution and our laws. Were William your friend, as he is mine and countless others who serve in this body, I would be blessed; better for knowing him.

Chad Groover, counsel to Senator CHUCK GRASSLEY, says this:

William Smith is a tenacious advocate, a skilled lawyer, a real leader. He will be missed.

Amy Blankenship, legislative counsel to Senator SAM BROWNBACK, says this:

Perhaps William’s greatest gift is teaching. He exemplifies the kind of staffer we all want to have—thorough, prepared, and committed. Though some may disagree with his views, no one can question his commitment to uphold the principles he believes in.

The respect, loyalty, and friendship William has shown from his colleagues extend well beyond the Senate Judiciary Committee and its staff.

Alan Hanson, my legislative director, says this:

Exceeding his commitment to the United States and its Constitution, which is indeed great, William Smith is a committed Christian and friend—both of which are in far too short supply in this day and age. His happy departure is to the United States Senate’s unfortunate loss.

Steven Duffield of the Senate Republican Policy Committee says this:

William is a real American who loves his country and cherishes the Constitution. He never hesitates to stick his neck out to defend both.

Allen Hicks, chief counsel for Senate Majority Leader BILL Frist, says:

William is an anchor for conservative principles in the midst of shifting political winds. No one who could count on him to represent views on issues clearly and articulately, without hesitation or equivocation. The Senate will miss his candor and his passion, and we wish him and his future abide the best all.

Ed Corrigan, executive director of the Senate Steering Committee, says this:

William Smith is known on Capitol Hill for his wisdom, cheerful manner, and an unflinching commitment to principle. Even his political adversaries have come to respect and admire him. The Senate will miss William, as will the large number of us who are fortunate to call him friend.

John Abegg, legal counsel for Majority Whip MITCH McCONNELL, whom I see on the floor, said:

I have enjoyed working with William very much indeed, a man of high principle. He is devoted to the Constitution and to his country. He is an excellent lawyer, a straight shooter, and a real leader. He will be missed.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, will the Senator from Alabama yield?

Mr. SESSIONS. I will be pleased to yield.
If I could have the indulgence of doing that before I serve as the Presiding Officer, I would appreciate that from the Senator.

Mr. DOMENICI. Obviously, we have to get consent because I am next.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator MURkowski be given 3 minutes at this point and then the Senator from New Mexico be recognized for up to 10 minutes, followed by Senator HARKIN. Is that correct, the Senator wants to be next after the Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. HARKIN. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

RURAL TEACHER HOUSING ACT OF 2005

Ms. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I appreciate the indulgence of my colleagues this afternoon.

I rise today to talk about a bill that I introduced last week that will have a profound effect on the retention of teachers, administrators, and other school staff in remote and rural areas of Alaska. This bill is the Rural Teacher Housing Act of 2005.

In rural areas of Alaska, we have school districts that face enormous challenges of recruiting and retaining teachers, administrators, and other school staff. The challenges lie primarily in the lack of housing. In one particular year, in the Lower Kuskokwim School District in western Alaska, they hired one teacher for every six who decided not to accept job offers. Half of those applicants who did not accept a teaching position in that district indicated that their decision was related to the lack of housing. When we talk about lack of housing, it is not they cannot find an apartment that is to their liking or to their liking, the fact of the matter is there is no housing available.

In 2003, I had the opportunity to travel through rural Alaska with then-Secretary of Education Rod Paige. I took him there because I wanted him to see the challenges of educating children in such a remote and rural environment.

We went to the village school in Savoonga. We met the principal there. Secretary Paige was overwhelmed when the principal showed him the broom closet in the school, not to show him the school supplies but to let him know that this is where the principal of the school lived, in the broom closet in the school. This was because there was no housing in Savoonga for the teachers.

We met the special education teacher at the school, and she brought out the mattress that she sleeps on in her classroom, which served as her bed. She does not have a home to go to. She does not have a space to call her own. Her classroom is her room, her house, her bed.

The other teachers at the school shared housing in a single home.

When one thinks about that in terms of what the teachers do, needless to say there is no place for their spouse, so these teachers who are married—the teachers might be married, but the spouse might be living in another part of the State or, in the principal’s case, his wife lived out of State.

Unfortunately, Savoonga is not an isolated example of the teacher housing situation in rural Alaska. Rural Alaska school districts experience a high rate of teacher turnover due primarily to the lack of housing. Turnover is as high as 30 percent each year in some of the rural areas with housing issues being a major factor.

So the question is, How can we expect our kids to receive a quality education when we cannot get good teachers to stay? How can we meet the mandates of No Child Left Behind in such an educational environment?

Clearly, the lack of teacher housing in rural Alaska is what must be addressed in order to ensure that children in the rural parts of the State receive the same level of education as their peers in more urban settings.

My bill authorizes the Department of Housing and Urban Development to provide teacher housing funds to the Alaska Housing Finance Corporation, which is the State of Alaska’s public housing agency. In turn, the corporation is authorized to provide grant and loan funds to rural school districts in Alaska for teaching housing projects. This legislation will allow the school districts in rural Alaska to address the housing shortage in the following ways: They can construct housing units, purchase housing units, lease housing units, rehabilitate, purchase or lease property on which the units can be constructed, have guaranteed loans secured for teacher housing projects and conduct other activities normally related to the construction, purchase, and rehabilitation of the teacher housing projects.

This also includes transporting construction equipment and materials to and from the communities in which these projects occur, which in the State is a particular concern because most of these communities are accessible only by air or water. Eligible school districts that accept funds under this legislation will be required to provide the housing to teachers, administrators, other school staffs, and members of their households. It is imperative that we address this important issue and allow the disbursement of funds to be handled at the State level. The quality of the education of our rural students is at stake.

I thank my colleagues and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from New Mexico is recognized.
where we will be starting to find out what is up there in terms of producing oil for the United States. That bill was a big achievement, $36 billion in deficit reduction. I guarantee that could not have been done without the help of the majority leader. He got that done also with his usual exacting attention, his enlightened approach to getting people together. We barely did that, and without his help it would not have happened.

Finally, literally scores of small bills that are part of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee have passed the Senate within the last 2 days, for various things around the country. We thank him for getting that done. Yesterday, we passed big legislation and who would have thought 6 weeks ago we could pass it. It is the tax provisions of the Budget Act. We all know that that was hard. That extended the alternative minimum tax so it affects far less Americans in a negative way on the tax we owe to the Government. It extended research and development tax credits for American business so they can continue to invest in research. That whole bill had many items in it that are good for America's future. It passed. There are some things in it, obviously, that I do not like, and I hope some of those are not continued, because I think some of them are negative to the production of oil in the future, but overall, by an overwhelming majority, we passed it. That is a great feather in the hat of the Senate because it has taken so long to get there. For that, we have to say to our majority leader: Thank you for your leadership. It is terrific.

The highway bill—let's leave aside the pieces of the highway bill. Let's talk about the overall funding of the highway system of America by the gasoline tax imposed on our citizens. That was tied up. It was supposed to have been on the floor 3 years ago. It got passed after that period of time. I think the absolute commitment it would get done, and the power of a majority leader's office, got us there. That is very important.

The Senate has passed all of its appropriation bills. It looks as though we may have been able to avoid an omnibus appropriation bill—or we are going to. Let's hope so. If we do, that will be a very big credit. But at least we are talking about it, and the House just passed it. They all passed in both Houses, but they have all cleared this institution, which is a credit at this time of year. We don't do that very often. So that is another thing we can say that demonstrates we have had good leadership, good direction, and good pressure, the kind of positive pressure the Republican leader brings.

I am going to wrap up by talking about judicial appointments. I would be remiss if I did not say that the United States of America has a new Chief Justice. It is pretty fair to say that the extraordinary patience and persistence of the majority leader got us to this place. The country is pleased with it. That is obvious. While they do not know everything about these nominees, they learn about our Supreme Court nominees because there is much openness. This man is ultimately a credit to the President for nominating him, the Senate for finally doing what he should have done for our majority leader for pushing it as he did.

Everybody has to acknowledge there are three or four things we must get done. They, too, are being looked at with the precision and the dedication, and stick-in-ness of our leader. They are right there on the horizon for next year.

I understand the asbestos quagmire is something people wouldn't think is big enough to be listed among the most pressing pending legislation. Let me say there is no question it is. Asbestos liability, for better or for worse, the reality of it, brings to the American economic system a chance, an opportunity, a probability of real job loss, fantastic economic degradation, and it must be resolved.

The leader has played a big role. Two Senators have been working on it on the majority side for years. Senator Snowe and Senator Lieberman are doing an amazing job of helping our majority leader, to getting a package that can be bipartisan. That is next.

We know broad immigration reform is right up on the screen. That is very difficult. I say, and predict, that the majority leader says it is going to get done this coming year, I believe those who have been waiting are going to be able to say it will be done. I believe so. Obviously, much more must be done. Other things we have passed are not very publicly known yet, and should be. I can't do much about it. But essentially, a bill on health technology passed last night without much ado. I say it is a giant step.

I ask unanimous consent for 2 additional minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Murkowski). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. It is a giant step in the modernization of the delivery system, which will save money. I won't take much time, except to say the majority leader had a lot to do with that.

I failed to mention that while all of this was going on, that I mentioned the Senate passed an important bill, the free trade agreement, the American Free Trade Agreement. Who would have thought 6 months ago that this, too, would be in this litany of successes? But it is.

All in all, in spite of all the noise, in spite of all the bickering, in spite of everything that seems to be moving toward polarization and politicization in the Senate, we did get a lot done. I particularly think much of that is attributable to the distinguished majority leader, Senator Frist. I want to again indicate to him, from this Senator, my great appreciation for his work and my admiration for how he does that.

PROVIDING FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate now proceed to the consideration of H. Con. Res. 307, the adjournment resolution, provided that the concurrent resolution be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 307) was agreed to, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 307

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That, when the House adjourns on the legislative day of Friday, November 18, 2005, or Saturday, November 19, 2005, on a motion offered pursuant to this concurrent resolution, the Speaker or his designee, it stand adjourned until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, December 6, 2005, or until the time of any reassembly pursuant to sec-section 2 of this concurrent resolution, which ever occurs first; and that when the Senate recesses or adjourns on any day from Friday, November 18, 2005, or Tuesday, December 12, 2005, or Tuesday, December 13, 2005, or until such other time on either of those days, as may be specified by its Majority Leader or his designee in the motion to recess or adjourn, or until the time of any re-assembly pursuant to section 2 of this concurrent resolution, whichever occurs first.
Signed at the seat of the House of the Majority Leader of the Senate, or their respective designees, acting jointly after consultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate if, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.
Mr. DOMENICI. I yield the floor.
Mr. DODENI. I yield the floor.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

PAKISTAN'S RECOVERY FROM EARTHQUAKES

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, it has been nearly 6 weeks since Pakistan was devastated by one of the most powerful and deadly earthquakes in modern times. More than 140,000 people were killed or injured in the disaster.
The earthquake left 5 million people homeless. Half of those children were left without schools. More than a million jobs were wiped out.
I have come to the floor this afternoon to remind my colleagues that as we are prepared to leave town to spend the holidays with our families, to enjoy a wonderful Thanksgiving meal with turkey and all the trimmings, as we sit around our dining tables and warm houses with family and friends close by, and we give thanks for all our blessings, let's also pause and remember those halfway around the world who will not even have enough to eat that day, will not have a warm house, and who are facing a winter ahead of cold and deprivation. These are the people of Pakistan, one of our most important strategic allies in Asia, especially in the war against terrorism.
There are many difficult months and years ahead for the Pakistani people and for our country. The danger is that the winter snows will now soon make relief efforts in Kashmir difficult and in some places all but impossible, even by helicopter. Americans can be very proud of the role our Armed Forces have played in relief operations in the earthquake zones. Immediately after the disaster struck, the United States offered Pakistan $156 million in aid. We deployed 950 soldiers as well as 24 helicopters. As I speak, a U.S. Army motible surgical hospital is operating in Muzaffarabad, providing medical care to thousands of quake victims.
To give our colleagues and viewers watching on C-SPAN a better idea of the devastation in Pakistan, I share several photographs taken by a former member of my staff, Mr. Sam Afridi, who now works for the International Labor Organization in Geneva. Earlier this month he visited some of the most hard-hit areas, including Muzaffarabad, and Balakot. These pictures speak for themselves.
Here is Balakot police station with hardly a stone standing on top of another stone.
Here is another—devastation in the local neighborhood. As you can see, the resilience of the people—they are already setting up their fruit and vegetable stands to help out one another.
This is another indication of the devstation. Here you can see the U.S.
Army Chinooks flying overhead in this picture.
Here is a picture of the Hizwan public high school. The earthquake killed 50 students, including the principal's son.
You see all the clothes and the backpacks still left there.
Here is a project Mr. Afridi was involved in, the International Labor Organization's Emergency Employment.
They are trying to clean up the debris and move the debris out of the roads. They are working to clean up the devastation.
Here is a young child caught in the rubble in a full body cast. We hope he is going to be all right, but the child may be disabled for the rest of his life.
Here is a young boy, showing the crutches and the fact that, while we hope he can walk again, we don't know if he will ever walk again.
These are some of the images from a country that has been a great friend of ours and a great ally of ours for a long time. Even back during all of the years of the Cold War, Pakistan we could always count on as a key strategic ally. They have fought beside us, side by side, in every war we have had, from the Korean war on.
We have done some things, as I mentioned, but we must do more. The Washington Post editorial pointed out this morning that, after the Indian Ocean tsunami that killed 200,000 people, the United States sent nearly $1 bildon in government aid, 16,000 soldiers, 57 helicopters, 42 aircraft, and 25 ships.
After the Kashmir quake, the United States has offered Pakistan $156 million in aid, including military equipment; deployed 950 soldiers; and sent 24 helicopters available for immediate relief needs has been especially slow in coming. The United Nations has appealed for $550 million in emergency aid, but donors have pledged only $150 million.
The tsunami triggered a tsunami of generosity because it hit during the holiday season and because Western tourists were affected. But the logistics of getting relief into the Himalayas are more daunting; the weather is more punishing. While no deaths were linked to disease and hunger following the tsunami, the risk of an after-disaster in Kashmir is real. Add in Pakistan's two-headed role as an ally in the war on terrorism and an anchor of the war against terrorists, and the case for scoring a combined humanitarian-foreign policy success by delivering more relief faster should be obvious. President Bush has sent General Hughes, his chief of public diplomacy, to Pakistan. But sending another fleet of helicopters would be even more helpful.
Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, as the editorial points out, we have a big stake in delivering much more gen-erosous relief to Pakistan. Largely because of the war in Iraq, America's standing in the Muslim world has fallen dramatically in recent years.
According to a recent Pew Center poll, only 22 percent of Pakistanis expressed a favorable view of the American people.
So clearly the aftermath of the earthquake is a chance for us to put our best foot forward, demonstrating our compassion, generosity, our friendship for the Pakistani people.
By reaching out to them in their disaster, we can show the people of Pakistan that we see their country as more than a base for operations against terrorists.
To that end, I urge President Bush, Secretary of State Rice, and the Government to take a more assertive leadership role in rallying the international community to assist Pakistan. We can begin tomorrow at the International Conference on Somalia in Islamabad. To date, the international community has only provided a quarter of the emergency relief that the United Nations requested for earthquake assistance in Pakistan.

Let me repeat that. The United Nations has appealed for $550 million in assistance for Pakistan, but donor nations have pledged only one-fourth of that amount.

In contrast, 1 month after the Indian Ocean tsunami, the U.N.'s emergency appeal was 99 percent filled. Now it is only a quarter filled.

Some good things are happening. For example, as I pointed out, the International Labor Organization has set up an emergency cash-for-work program in the region. People are being put to work making infrastructure repairs, removing debris, improving sanitation.

This is a picture of the International Labor Organization and their emergency employment and what they are doing.

The aim of this program is to inject cash back into the local economy, while helping people get back to work to support themselves.

According to my former staff member, Mr. Afribi, one of the participants in this program said to him, “For every rupee we get for this work, it feels like 10 because we have earned it.”

So clearly these are people of pride and dignity and they are willing to work hard. They are looking for a handup, not a handout. It behooves us to do more—again, both in terms of short-term relief and long-term reconstruction.

Time and again, Pakistan has been there for us. Time and time again, from the beginning of the Cold War, when they allowed our U-2 flights to fly from Peshawar over the Soviet Union, all through the Cold War, the Korean war, the Vietnam war, Haiti, everywhere we have been, the Pakistanis have been by our side. Now it is our turn to be there for the people of Pakistan in their hour of need. During this Thanksgiving week, let us resolve to do better than we have done in the past.

I urge the President and the Secretary of State at the Donors’ Conference tomorrow in Islamabad to step forward to lead the international community to do better than they have done in the past.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. COLEMAN). The Senator from West Virginia is recognized.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the Chair.

IRAQ

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, as we look out the window in most of our great country, we can witness the season change, the change in the season, and we can feel it. The air has become crisp with autumnal chill. The leaves on the trees change their color; from the exuberant, green lushness of the summer months to the tired, brown, yellow, and red of the autumn, much like the graying hair of a man advancing in age.

Nature can sometimes mimic human events with a subtlety that no words can quite convey. As our country heads into the season that is celebrated with a subtlety that no words can quite convey. As our country heads into the season that is celebrated with a subtlety that no words can quite convey. As our country heads into the season that is celebrated with a subtlety that no words can quite convey. As our country heads into the season that is celebrated with a subtlety that no words can quite convey.
The question is, now, when will they come home? The administration has so far laid out only a vague policy, saying our troops will come home when the Iraqi Government is ready to take responsibility for its country. When our troops are no longer needed, when the job is done, they will come home. We will not stay a day longer than we are needed.

That sort of political doublespeak is small notice to the mothers and fathers of our fighting men and women, the mothers and fathers who turn and toss upon their pillows, whose tears wet the pillows, whose prayers break the silence of night. Oh, when will they come home? Oh, God, this awful war.

Wednesday evening the Vice President of the United States, even claimed that criticism of the administration’s war in Iraq was dishonest and reprehensible. Did you hear that? Hear me, now; let me say that again: On Wednesday evening the Vice President of the United States, the man who is within a heartbeat of being the President of the United States, the Vice President of the United States, claimed that criticism of the administration’s war in Iraq was “dishonest and reprehensible.”

Since when are we not to lift our voices? Are the American people not to lift their voices in criticism of the administration’s war in Iraq? Is it dishonest on the part of the American people to do that? Is it reprehensible on the part of mothers and fathers of sons and daughters who were sent to that most dangerous country in the world? Is it reprehensible? Did the Vice President measure his words? The Vice President’s comments come on the heels of comments from President Bush, who said:

What bothers me is when people are irresponsibly using their positions and playing politics. That’s exactly what is taking place in America.

Listen to that. The President and the Vice President need to reread the Constitution, take another look at that inimitable document. Asking questions, seeking honesty and truth, and pressing for accountability is exactly what the Framers had in mind. What would George Washington say? What would Alexander Hamilton say? What would James Madison say? What would Governor Morris say? What would James Wilson say?

Questioning policies and practices, especially ones that have cost this Nation more than 2,000 of her bravest sons and daughters, is the responsibility of every American and is also a central role of Congress as our duty as the elected representatives of a free people. We—you, you, and I—we are the elected representatives of the American people, the people all over this vast land, its plains, its prairies, its mountains, its valleys, its lakes, its rivers, its seas. Yes, we are the men and women who are tasked with seeking the truth. Is that irresponsible to seek the truth?

But instead of working with the Congress, instead of clearing the air, the White House falls back to the irksome practice of attack, attack, attack; obscure, obscure, obscure; attack. The American people are tired of these reprehensible tactics. If anything is reprehensible, it is the White House manipulation. My colleagues on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence have nothing but praise for their strategy to win back the Senate and keep control of the House in this year’s midterm elections. Does the Vice President have anything to say about that?

Let me say that again. On January 19, 2002—I read about it at the time; I did not miss it—the Washington Post reported that Karl Rove—get this—advised Republicans to “make the president’s handling of the war on terrorism the centerpiece of their strategy to win back the Senate and keep control of the House in this year’s midterm elections.” That was on January 19, 2002. That was quoted in the Post on that date. Yes, does the Vice President have anything to say about that?

The Vice President also lashed out at those who might deceive our troops:

The saddest part is that our people in uniform have been subjected to these cynical and pernicious falsehoods day in and day out.

Now, listen to that. Was the Vice President trying to clarify some of his past statements on Iraq? Was he?

On March 24, 2002, the Vice President said that Iraq “is actively pursuing nuclear weapons at this time.” There was no doubt about it. I listened to the Vice President—no doubt.

On August 26, 2002, the Vice President said:

Simply stated, there is no doubt that Saddam Hussein now has weapons of mass destruction. There is no doubt that he is amassing them to use against our friends, against our allies, and against us.
Let me go back and read the quote. Let me repeat it.

On August 26, 2002, here is what the Vice President said:

Simply stated, there is no doubt—

Get that—

Simply stated, there is no doubt that Sadd- dam Hussein now has weapons of mass destruction. There is no doubt that he is amassing them to use against our friends, against our allies, and against us.

That is the end of the quotation.

On March 16, 2003, the Vice President said:

We will, in fact, be greeted as liberators.

Do you remember that?

On March 16, 2003, there it is, the Vice President said:

We will, in fact, be greeted as liberators.

Are these the "pernicious falsehoods" that the Vice President believes our troops have been subjected to? That is, of course, a rhetorical question. Far from questioning his own statements about the war in Iraq, the Vice President’s statements are a ham-handed attempt to squelch the questions that the American people out there are asking about the administration’s policies in Iraq. The American people should not be cowed. They should not be intimidated. And Senators should not be intimidated by these attempts to intimidate. The American people should not allow the subject to be changed from the war in Iraq to partisan sniping in Washington.

Instead, the American people must raise their voices—hear us—the American people should raise their voices— hear us, listen to us—the American people must raise their voices even louder to ask the administration the same simple questions: What is your policy for Iraq? Answer that. What is your policy? Is it stay the course? When will the war be over? How many more lives will this war cost? When will our troops return home?

Mr. President, the holiday season is almost upon us. Americans will soon sit down at their Thanksgiving tables. They will gather together to give thanks to Almighty God, give thanks to Him for the blessings that have been bestowed upon America’s families. As we gather, there will be an empty seat at many tables. Some chairs will be empty because a service member is serving his or her country in a faraway land. Other seats will be empty as a silent tribute to those who will never, never return.

Each of these troops has fought to protect our freedoms, including the freedom of Americans to ask questions—yes, the freedom to ask questions. Our troops have fought for that freedom—people back home, their families, might ask questions, their friends might ask questions—the freedom to ask questions of their Government, the people’s Government.

The whole picture, the truth is that the continued occupation of Iraq only serves to drive that country closer to civil war. They do not want us there. They do not want us there.
Count your garden by the flowers,
Never by the leaves that fall.
Count your days by the sunny hours,
And not remembering clouds at all.

Never by the leaves that fall.

I conclude my remarks by again congratulating Senator Stevens on his 82nd birthday and on his beautiful daughter’s marvelous work. I thank Ted for being a superb colleague and a great friend, a great servant of his people in Alaska, and for sharing Lily’s article with me.

I ask unanimous consent to print the article in the RECORD.

The material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE MESSAGE OF THE DOME: THE UNITED STATES CAPITOL IN THE POPULAR MEDIA, 1885-1946

(By Lily Stevens)

Anyone who has spent a considerable amount of time in the nation’s capital has a particular experience with the white building on the Hill. Growing up in Washington D.C., I was never lost the wonder and excitement of visiting the Capitol. I cannot remember the first time I entered the building, as it was in my infancy, carried by my father. He was elected to represent the state of Alaska in the Senate before I was born. As a little girl, I loved walking up the marble stairs within the building, feeling the grooves worn into the center of each step. I would run my hand along the shiny brown banisters attached to the wall and shuffle my feet along after the step. The Capitol was a wondrous place that always seemed to be changing. I could have run for hours around the big tile circles on the floor, following one pattern until it made me dizzy that I lay on the ground laughing, staring at the tall ceiling, until I got up to start my game again.

There were just so many things to look at: the massive balconies that towered above me, the paintings on the walls and ceilings, the many people who crowded the halls. Every time I walked into the Rotunda, I would lay my head down on the white circle that represents the center of Washington so that I could see all of the figures on the ceiling. My next stop in the Rotunda would be my favorite painting so that I could count the eleven toes on one barefooted man. In Statuary Hall, I would look for King Kamehameha, with his brilliant gold clothes. When I was young, I would spend hours looking up at his enormous face, looming over six feet above mine. As I grew older, I knew every ghost story, and loved to tell the tale of the spirit spotted in his tall hat before stepping through walls, of the large cat that would appear in the Rotunda and continually grow larger until it would finally disappear. I knew where alcohol was hidden during Prohibition, where the bomb had gone off in the early 1980s, and where to stand to hear the whispering secrets of Statuary Hall.

My fascination with the Capitol led me to this project. In honor of my thesis at Stanford University, I wanted to explore the many ways in which the Capitol has served and communicated with the general public. I interviewed many tourists who had visited the Capitol, and what they were looking to find. In my thesis, I explored what the Capitol had symbolized to Americans through the years and how it had changed over time. I thought of the many images and references to the Capitol that I had seen in the popular media and wondered how they evolved and described since its construction. In this excerpt, which include the first chapter, “All Roads Lead to Washington,” we will look at Washington as a figurative center of the country, as the destination for anyone interested in learning more about the government and the nation.

Authors throughout the early part of the twentieth century described Washington as a natural destination for any traveler. In 1940, Marion Burt Sanford advised her readers: “The first day in Washington should be given to the Capitol.”

It is perhaps not as relevant to the idea of visitors to the Capitol, but the reference to the founding of the United States is poignant in this context. As the federal capital, it is a destination for the early European settlers of the United States who fled their countries, suffering hardships on their trip across the ocean to be able to practice religious freedom and democracy. They were mothers, fathers, husbands and wives looking for a religious tone and a reminder of the country’s history. In one definition of the word, pilgrims are religious devotees, often covering large distances to a particular sacred spot. In his essay on “Geography and Pilgrimage,” Surinder Bhardwaj defined the religious pilgrim in terms of three characteristics: “The religiously motivated individual, the intended sacred goal or place, and the act of making the spatial effort to bring about their conjunction.” Pilgrims can also be travelers in search of a spiritual revelation or enlightenment, wanderers without a destination. This definition for “pilgrim” declares that the word is applicable to any traveler, whether on a religious mission or not. A pilgrim can be anyone who leaves home behind to make a journey. In another definition, the term “pilgrim” labels the early European settlers of the United States who fled their countries, suffering hardships on their trip across the ocean to be able to practice religious freedom and democracy. They were mothers, fathers, husbands and wives looking for a religious tone and a reminder of the country’s history. In one definition of the word, pilgrims are religious devotees, often covering large distances to a particular sacred spot. the government. The idea behind many of these trips was that the complex structure of the United States Government and its three branches could somehow be slightly decolonized, slightly more understood if one traveled to Washington. Seeing parts of the government in action, whether Justices presiding in the Supreme Court or Senators arguing on the floor, provided a deeper understanding of the functions of the government. Along with the live experience of viewing the Congress within the Capitol came the opportunity to gain experience with architectural, artistic, and historic elements of the building. Not only did the Capitol present highlights of the country’s history, but it also held memories of great events that took place within its walls, whether joyful or sorrowful. While some who entered the Capitol and saw government in action did so only as “average citizens” as a given, and described aspects of the Capitol or Washington for the pilgrim. Behind all of these articles was the idea that both the people and the building themselves were somehow better, more knowledgeable citizens by being pilgrims, thus partaking in a common experience with many other Americans. Although the Capitol had a complex experience of visiting the Capitol, each individual might have found a different interest. Writing for the National Geographic Magazine, Mildred Sandison Fenner suggested: “The Capitol means many things to many people.” Her article appeared during the dedication of the new wing of the Washington National Gallery of Art, which had become a center of focus for the world. She used the Capitol, as a house of government and a national monument, to reach out to many types of Americans and world citizens. She divided people into seven categories and addressed a section to each, explaining what aspects of the U.S. Capitol would suit them. Her categories: travelers, architects, artists, historians, teachers, “all American citizens,” and “all citizens of the world.” Fenner wrote, “The history of the Capitol is an even more understandable if one travels to Washington by suggesting knowledge of the basic appearance and dimensions of the Capitol, as well as speak of the architect who contributed to the building. She would also be interested in the “paintings and sculptures of great historic and patriotic interest.” Her passage “to Historians” was the longest, mentioning several moments in the Capitol’s history. She wrote of the laying of the cornerstone, the move of the national capital to Washington, the burning of the Capitol in 1814 by the British, the completion of the dome during the Civil War, and more. According to Fenner, the Capitol embodied a variety of meanings for the various visitors. For example, on their trips to Washington, the Capitol could be seen as a key to a broad history. “To teachers,” she wrote, “the Capitol is an even broader one, embracing the history of the country itself.” Of course, she also admitted that “[t]o all American citizens,” the Capitol represented the basic actions of government, the legislative body and the basic process of democracy. She expanded this idea in her last section, addressing “all citizens of the world” as well. As a symbol of hope and prophecy, the Capitol became a “national shrine,” a term that “has been raised to its present level when the hall was converted into barracks.” The national shrine has included many churches and notables that took place in the room through sculpture. Aside from memorializing American history through art, the history of events within the Capitol itself reflected important moments in the development of the United States. As the National Education Association, Fenner declared, “The history of the Capitol is the history of our country.” Memories of the great and disappointing moments of the past that occurred in the building created various aspects of the nation’s history. “If you study this building long enough,” Beverly Smith wrote for the Saturday Evening Post, “you can learn America’s history since Washington’s day. In the very first Congress which sat here, Jefferson was elected over the devious Burr on the thirty-sixth ballot, so the young republic knows what oblique destiny. Here Andrew Jackson escaped assassination when two pistols missed fire. Here Representative—formerly President—John Quincy Adams died on that couch now in South Trumbull’s office. In this building were voted all our wars since 1800. Lincoln worked here as a congressman. Here was Wilson pleased to see Franklin Roosevelt spoke, tired and tense in his chair, after his return from Yalta.” Her readers received a crash course in some highlights and low points of American history and pride. Notable events include the deaths of officials within the building, the actions of the Congress, and the presence of notables. These events are readily apparent to the tourist. In order for a visitor to appreciate what history the building held, they had to have a tour guide, or a literary tour guide such as Smith, explain these moments.

Many of these articles gave an insider’s account of the past, including both popular and little-known stories of the Capitol’s history, for it was not through the casual pilgrimage that a person could notice these spots and instinctively know what happened in them. Gilbert Grosvenor also included some stories of moments past in “The Wonder Building of the World.” He wrote of Statuary Hall, the former chamber of the House of Representatives. “Miss Florence Page Quinncy Adams, Horace Greeley and Andrew Johnson served in the same Congress. Here Henry Clay welcomed Lafayette, who replied in a speech said to have been written by Clay. Here John Marshall administered the oath of office to Madison and Monroe. The preservation of history, memory, and the arts was a vital part of the early Senate. In his 1824 article, "The Statuary Hall," Fenner described the Hall as the "national shrine". The Hall's collection of statues was intended as a "monument of American freedom, labor, and genius, and a reminder of the sacrifices of the heroes of our country." Fenner wrote that the Hall was "the most beautiful place in Washington." He continued, "The Hall is a place where every visitor can feel the spirit of the nation." Fenner also described the Hall as a "national shrine" through the tradition of placing the coffin of the Unknown Soldier in Statuary Hall. This ritual has continued to this day and is a symbol of American sacrifice and remembrance.

which the democracy was founded. As a British citizen, he brought a slightly different perspective to his view of the Congress, but his attack reflects the basic right to offer criticism. Though he did not admire the actions of these particular leaders, he was valuing an ideal that the “national shrine” was intended to represent.

Just as Dickens criticized the government openly and thereby enjoyed one of the privileges of democracy, so have millions of Americans come to the Capitol in order to express their grievances. Their roads led to Washington for a different purpose: for a pilgrimage of protest. These protests could easily be the subject of an entire paper, and so I will just take a look at one of the protests as an example of the many that have occurred. In an article for New Republic in 1931, John Dos Passos used a “hunger march” that took place at the Capitol. The situation was tense as a group of men proceeded up Constitution Avenue to the expanse between the Capitol and the Library of Congress. Dos Passos gave a picture of the scene to the reader:

“The marchers fill the broad semicircle in front of the Capitol, each group taking up its position in perfect order, as if the show had been rehearsed . . . Above the heads of the marchers, with slogans fixed out: ‘in the last war we fought for the bosses: in the next war we’ll fight for the workers . . . $150 cash . . . full pay for unemployed insurance.’

These men had come to the Capitol to seek government aid during the Great Depression, and though the banners may have changed for each different group that came to protest, the general process of a protest pilgrimage was familiar. This group had come to Washington, like many, to raise awareness about their plight and to get the attention of lawmakers within the Capitol. In his article, Dos Passos took a highly cynical tone, describing the dome of the Capitol that “bulges smugly” and the Senate Chamber as a “terrible nest under glass.” He also suggested that the Capitol building itself played an active role in the protest, for as the men shouted their demands, Dos Passos claimed that “a deep-throated echo comes back from the Capitol facade a few beats later than each shout. It’s as if the status and the classical revival of the Capitol was not everything the protest was shouting too.” For Dos Passos, the Capitol took on a human quality, with the same meaning as the march itself. The pilgrimage of protest, such as this “hunger march” was but another way that the ideals embodied in the Capitol, the “national shrine,” could be expressed.

Underlying many of the articles that discussed the Capitol as a pilgrimage’s destination was the building belonging to the American public. These articles attempted to relate a more human side to the Capitol, one that could describe the formal white walls of the Capitol in American public should think of the building as theirs. Beverly Smith suggested throughout her article that though the Capitol was a shrine, it should also be thought of as accessible, even as “a friend.” She quoted a fellow journalist: “I am not one of those who can sneer at the Capitol,” wrote Mary Clemmons Ames, a lady correspondent in Washington 70 years ago. “Its faults, like the faults of a friend, are sacred.” Her entire article contrasted the Capitol as shrine with the Capitol as a building, which she described as a picture of the building as a national space that should be a comfortable place for pilgrims. She declared that the building was a friend of the people, and no longer a bugaboo idea that appeared in other representations of Washington from the time. Similarly, in an article entitled “Nerve Center of the World,” Albert Parry wrote that Washington could still be thought of as a small town, even though its importance was growing on the national and international scene. “For anything,” he wrote, “Washington is a charming Southern town which has grown large and cosmopolitan without losing its draw.” In an article on the Capitol and Washington, journalists were demystifying the formal ideal of the Capitol, making it a more accessible place.

Smith in said that for thousands of Americans to see in which way the Capitol belonged to them. In one story she related a physical way in which everyday Americans left their mark on the building.

By day in the sunshine or at night under its floodlights, the great dome looms white and pure. But, if you climb the long spiral stairs to the little galleries around the dome, you see that every inch of the surface within human reach is covered with writing, in pencil, ink, crayon and lipstick—all the small familiar chirography of the American people. Jimmy loves Marge . . . Kilroy was here . . . Mr. and Mrs. G. Wallace Shiffbaur, of Minnesota . . . Hubba, hubba, Hearts and arrows. Periodically the writing is painted out, but a month later visitors and honeymooners covers it up again, quick as magic. “What can you do?” says a guard. “It’s their Capitol.”

Though the dome appeared to be completely “white and pure,” she informed her readers that upon closer look, it was filled with graffiti, the kind that normally covered bathrooms and college hangouts. It was quite an image that she presented; as a whole, the Capitol seemed formal, pure, and static. But they saw the dome was partially made up of the marks of everyday Americans. The guard who watched people daily write upon the dome merely shrugged his shoulders. “He saw no problem with the signatures, as he believed the building upon which they were writing was their property as citizens of the country.

The Capitol as a destination and a place for pilgrimage drew countless number of Americans to its step. The roads and paths of many different types of pilgrims led to Washington and to the Capitol. Pilgrims to the Capitol were sometimes eager, sometimes critical. They came to see their leaders in action, to wander the halls, to view the site where events had occurred, and to participate in the democratic process. They encountered or red about a space that could become as familiar to them as some old companion. By appealing to different interest, these journalists made the building understandable and intriguing to all types of readers and visitors. The Women of Washington Post on how to organize a trip to Washington and the Saturday Evening Post wrote stores full of human interest, particularly of the little-known facts. Besides the stories of the Capitol’s interior: paintings and sculptures that tell the history of the United States and great leaders past. Mentor published articles specific to its readers, focusing on the art within the Capitol. The Saturday Evening Post reached out to readers to make the Capitol more accessible to all.

The civic space, the “shrine,” offered visitors and readers alike a glimpse into the past and to the future. We can all celebrate the tremendous outpouring of support that spontaneously erupted from the hearts, hands, and wallets of Americans outside the gulf coast disaster zone and from friends around the world who were glad to come in their turn to our assistance as the United States has in the past come to theirs. Communities all along the periphery opened their doors to welcome refugees from the storms, and volunteers flooded into the area in such force that relief organizations were overwhelmed. The public response to the gulf coast disaster was inspiring and heartwarming. It improved that a core value of this Nation, its sense of community, remains strong and vital.

We can also celebrate the ability of our Nation’s first responders to learn from their mistakes. While the planning and response to Hurricane Katrina was in most people’s estimates pretty abysmal, the preparation for and response to Hurricane Rita was a little better. And, unfortunately for the people of Florida, they have gotten a lot of practice in the last few years, and their preparations for and response to hurricanes is well rehearsed. There is much we can learn from these terrible events, and hope that we take those lessons to heart.

The brightest spot in the war in Iraq is the performance of our troops. Day after dangerous day, they do their duty. They patrol, they seek out insurgencies, providing a safe environment for the rebuilding of that nation. Day after day, they face down their own fears and travel those lethal roads to take the battle to the enemy. However one may feel about the path that led us to Iraq, we can feel nothing but love, pride, and respect for our men and women in uniform. Whatever the circumstances under which we sent them there, through misread intelligence or misleading rhetoric, the U.S. military has gone, and gone again and again, and performed their duties with courage and dedication.

Even the scandal that now haunts the White House, and which is beginning to wash over the President’s closest advisors, may give us cause for celebration, and not for any partisan reasons. As Americans, we may be thankful for living in a nation in which no man is king, to rule at his own whim and to undermine his detractors at will and without consequence. We may consider our system of government, with its checks and balances between the three branches of government firmly established in our Constitution. And we may celebrate the wisdom of guaranteeing freedom of expression and the existence of a free press.

Though the wheels of government may sometimes grind exceedingly slowly, we can be grateful that they still can be pushed and cajoled into conducting their oversight functions and asserting those checks and balances. That is what keeps this country strong. President Abraham Lincoln said “Let the people know the truth and the country is safe.” Whatever may be the outcome of the investigation into possible retribution by the White House against Ambassador Wilson and his wife for Wilson’s role in the war in Iraq, the Nation is safer and better off for having the means for citizens, acting through their elected officials and their legal system, to challenge possible abuses of power.

So even in these dark days, there is cause for Thanksgiving. I hope that the recent dip in gasoline prices will allow families to come together, pull out the good china and set a beautiful table overflowing with all the dishes that make this feast so memorable and so mouthwatering: turkey, roast, grilled, smoked, barbequed or deep fried; stuffing in all its regional variations with herbs or oysters or sausage or cornbread; hams coated in pineapples and cloves or cured with smoke or sugar; cranberries served jellied or chopped; vegetables or not; a cornbread casserole with a crown of fried onions; yeast rolls or biscuits dripping with butter or gravy; sweet potatoes in casserole or with marshmallows and brown sugar; and pies—glorious pies with spicy pumpkin topped with whipped cream, and fruit pies in flaky shells, topped with cheese or ice cream. Americans know how to cook, and all the actions that make our traditional Thanksgiving meal surely mean that this feast will never settle into routine. Thanksgiving. Can there be a better day? It starts with parades to watch for the youngsters. Then the action in the kitchen heats up, competing with football games and the happy arrival of guests for our attention with a whole array of enticing aromas and clattering noises. The meal itself is wonderful, with family and friends around the table giving thanks and meaning it. And after the meal, in the warm glow of a full stomach, there is time for companionship as the leftovers are put away and the dishes are washed. The evenings are primed for walks in the cool weather, or short naps, or other pursuits that make our leftovers make their first reappearance. There are few days like this, devoted entirely to family without the distraction of, say presents at Christmas or Easter egg hunts. Thanksgiving is the one time we can really focus on how lucky we have to be, thankful for just by looking around that table. My wife Erma and I have so much to be thankful for, and I know that she joins me in wishing a very happy thanksgiving to all Americans.

Mr. President, I wish you a happy Thanksgiving. I would like to close with a poem by Charles Frederick White, written in November 1895. His words serve to remind us that Thanksgiving past were not very different than today.

THOUGHTS OF THANKSGIVING
Thanksgiving Day is coming soon,
That long remembrance of our forefathers' hand;
When nature gives her blessed boon
To all America.
On that glad day, in all our land,
The people, in their wake,
Give thanks to God, whose mighty hand
Deals blessings good and great.
The roast goose, steaming on the plate,
The sweet potato cobbler,
The cranberry sauce, the pudding baked,
The seasoned turkey gobbler.
All these delights and many more,
From north, south, west and east,
Do all the nation keep in store
For this Thanksgiving feast.
Alas, for those who are denied
This blessed boon of God!
May all the needy be supplied
Like Israel, by the hand of God.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

TRIBUTE TO SENATOR SUSAN COLLINS
Mr. McConnell, Mr. President, I rise this afternoon to pay tribute to one of the most effective and outstanding Members of the Senate, Senator Susan Collins of Maine. Today, Senator Collins cast her 2,942nd consecutive vote as a Senator, breaking the record of the former Senator from Maine, Margaret Chase Smith. In doing this, Senator Collins has maintained a perfect voting record, a record that was sworn in to the Senate in January 1997.

Senator Collins recently honored Margaret Chase Smith just a few weeks ago during a ceremony to unveil an official portrait of Senator Smith, a portrait entitled “The Great Lady From Maine” which now proudly hangs in the U.S. Capitol. As Senator Collins said in a tribute to Senator Smith at that unveiling:

“[For every woman serving in the Senate, Margaret Chase Smith blazed the path, but she was a special inspiration to me.]

Senator Collins met Margaret Chase Smith as a senior in high school, participating in a Senate youth conference here in Washington. She remembers Senator Smith telling her to ‘stand tall for what you believe.’ Senator COLLINS continues to use this advice today as she chairs the Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee and working for the people of Maine.

I know I speak for all of my colleagues on the Senate when I congratulate her on this truly remarkable accomplishment.”

AFGHANISTAN
Mr. McConnell, Mr. President, freedom continues to advance in Afghanistan. Of course, they are a great ally in the war on terror. In fact, I recall visiting Afghanistan just a little over 2 years ago with the current occupant of the Chair, and we had an opportunity to see firsthand the progress they had made at that time, not to mention how far they have come since.

A few days ago the results of that country’s historic parliamentary election were officially certified. At the time that Senator Burns and I were there, they had not yet had the election of the President, not officially. They have since had that election. Now they have had a parliamentary election. Those results are now certified. A joint Afghan and United Nations election commission has declared the winners in races for 249 seats in the lower parliamentary house, as well as members of 34 provincial councils around the country.

Afghanistan’s continued progress toward democracy is obviously a victory in the war on terror. Four years ago, the ruthless Taliban regime ruled Afghanistan with an unyielding, murderous intolerance, and they laid down in the war on terror. Four years ago, Afghanistan was ruled by a regime so intolerant that as part of an effort to erase any trace of Afghanistan’s history before the rise of Islam in the seventh century, the Taliban destroyed two priceless Buddhist statues. These statues had been carved into the face of a cliff outside the Afghan city of Bamiyan. These ancient wonders that had endured for centuries were instantly turned into dust. The Taliban was literally trying to erase history. But now the Taliban itself is history.

Amid the quick defeat of the Taliban, the rescue of the Afghan people out from under their wicked thumb and the quick transformation of Afghanistan into a burgeoning democracy in just 4 years is nothing short of amazing.

Today a democratically elected parliament and a democratically elected, President Hamid Karzai, are charting a new course for our country. I am proud to say that a new day has dawned in Afghanistan. Where there was repression, now there is liberty.

For instance, reports indicate that 68 of the new legislators are women. Four years ago little girls weren’t allowed to go to school, and women had no rights whatsoever. Four years ago women were called on to go to war. Today we were called from jobs and educational opportunities by the Taliban. These 68 women legislators make up over a quarter of their chamber. That is significantly higher than the proportion of women in our Congress and in the United States.

Afghanistan will continue to make progress toward freedom and democracy. The provincial councils are now in the process of selecting 68 members of the House of Elders, which is the upper parliamentary house. Those selections will be completed soon. Then with President Karzai’s selection of an additional 34 members to the upper house, the full Afghan Parliament is scheduled to convene for the first time in the third week of December.

I ask my colleagues to join me in saluting the people of Afghanistan as they move forward toward freedom and democracy. I ask all of us to join in pledging the full support of the United States, as the people of Afghanistan continue to fight the last vestiges of an extreme terrorist element, and as they continue to stand with the grand coalition of free nations who are waging the war on terror.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

TRANSPORTATION, TREASURY, HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT, THE JUDICIARY, THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, AND INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to 1 hour of debate in relation to the conference report to accompany H.R. 3058, the Transportation-Treasury-HUD bill; provided further that Senator Coburn be in control of up to 30 minutes of debate. I further ask consent that the two managers have up to 15 minutes each and that following the use or yielding back of the time, and when the Senate has received the conference report, it then be agreed to, with the motion to reconsider laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The conference report, it then be agreed to, with the motion to reconsider. The yeas and nays were ordered recorded on the vote on the conference report, it then be agreed to, with the motion to reconsider. The yeas and nays were ordered recorded on the vote.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I thank all our colleagues. This has been a long and interesting path that we have trod.

Today I stand in support of Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I thank all or our colleagues. This has been a long and interesting path that we have trod. Today I stand in support of the Transportation, Treasury, HUD, and Independent Agencies fiscal year 2006 appropriations bill. This bill also includes the District of Columbia fiscal year 2006 appropriations act. Before getting into the details of the bill, I thank Chairman KNOLENBERG and his ranking member, Mr. OLIVER, on the House side. Particularly, I express my sincere appreciation to my ranking member, Senator MURRAY, for her hard work. Chairman KNOLENBERG made an approach to drafting a good bill, and her unwavering commitment to getting the bill done on an expedited schedule as mandated by the leadership. As all who follow this place know, we have had some bumps on the road over the last several weeks in both House and Senate to work throughout a number of nights this week while completing a blitkrieg schedule in order for us to be able to vote on this measure today. Despite these bumps, we have completed our work, and I compliment Congressman KNOLLENBERG on his commitment and perseverance to work with me to overcome these problems.

I do express my sincerest gratitude and thanks to our excellent staffs; on the Senate side, on the subcommittee; on my side, Jon Kamarck, Paul Doerr, Cheh Kim, Lula Edwards, Josh Manley, and Matt McCordle; on Senator MURRAY’s side, Peter Rogoff, Kate Manley, and Matt McCardle; on the Senate side, on the subcommittee, Diana Hamilton, and Meaghan McCarthy. We understand the bumps as well to the House side staffs.

Now, Mr. President, the staff had to work extremely hard, in a bipartisan manner, to make our recommendations and instructions a reality. This is not a simple bill. Yet it is likely a Rube Goldberg machine with many complex moving parts.

This bill is the first real appropriations product of a new subcommittee that grew out of the reorganization of the Senate Appropriations Committee earlier this year. It is a substantial and complex bill that will have a significant and positive impact on every State and community in the Nation as it covers, among other things, every mode of transportation, financial services, and IRS requirements as guided by the Department of Treasury; it funds the Federal Government’s role in housing and economic role under HUD; it funds the Federal Bureau of Investigation; it funds the President, Federal judicial system, and funds other related agencies such as the General Services Administration, Office of Personnel Management, and the Postal Service.

I believe that given the circumstances and our budget allocation, this is a good bill. We started with a budget that was severely underfunded for infrastructure as which Members would want and certainly some areas not as much as I want. But I think all Members will understand and appreciate our efforts to fund the programs and activities that enjoy the greatest support.

I wish to express a very special thanks to our chairman, Senator COCHRAN, who demonstrated his understanding and sensitivity to the needs of the Transportation-Treasury Appropriations Subcommittee, his great efforts to achieve a significantly less budgetary authority for the conference, without Chairman COCHRAN’s help the House would have demanded a much harsher and unrealistic reduction in our allocation, with the results we saw included in the House bill. HHS fiscal year 2006 funding bill yesterday in the House.

In particular, despite our fiscal limitations, we have worked diligently to ensure the transportation programs in this bill are adequately funded. One of my highest priorities in fashioning this bill was to provide the needed funding for the safety, construction, and maintenance of our highways, transit systems, and airports. Funding for our Nation’s transportation infrastructure, and especially for our highways and road network, creates jobs and promotes economic growth. More importantly, it continues the continued maintenance and growth of our economic infrastructure, which supports markets throughout the Nation and ultimately the world. The transportation system is the heart and arteries by which we pump our goods and products which guarantee our current and future prosperity in the national and international marketplace, and we cannot afford to shortchange this system.

We also removed the designation on the Alaskan bridges. The funds remain with Alaska to meet their priority needs. These bridges were getting unreasonable and unwarranted attention which was beginning, in many ways, to undermine the very good work and the very necessary projects in this highway bill.

In addition, this bill provides $14.4 billion for the Federal Aviation Administration, which is approximately $400 million more than the request. This recommendation includes $14.3 million to hire safety inspectors and to inspect and inspecting staffing levels on an accelerated basis. It also adds $4 million to restore engineering and inspector staffing at the Office of Certification so that new equipment and technologies can be approved for use in aviation and our Nation can retain its leadership in aviation. I am pleased also to announce that the bill does not cut the Airport Improvement Program, as proposed in the budget request.

I also wish to report we have been able to fund Amtrak at $1.315 billion, while making some incremental steps to reforming how Amtrak conducts its business. These reforms are critical, and it is my hope that these improve both will move to jump-start the efforts of Senator Lott, Senator Stevens, and others to pass a truly comprehensive reform package.

Mr. President, I was troubled by the administration's demand of Amtrak reform with a budget request of $390 million. A $360 million-a-year appropriation would likely jolt Amtrak directly into bankruptcy, a costly financial and emotional blow to the Nation and send Amtrak into chaos. Many Members, including the occupant of the chair, our distinguished Senator from Virginia, and Members throughout the Senate asked us to take strong action to avoid that problem. Thankfully, we were able to scrap enough funds together to ensure the continued existence of the problem. It is through significant amounts of funding to include them.

Mr. President, I also should touch on another issue in the conference report, and that is the ongoing efforts to improve protection consumers have from being preyed upon by rogue household movers. I think we all know they are a small group of fly-by-night companies that purport to pack and transport family household possessions and then stealing them and holding them hostage for exorbitant fees or make unreasonable demands. This could be a devastating blow.

In this past year’s highway bill, additional requirements on movers were included, along with new provisions granting State officials, particularly attorneys general, the authority to help enforce the Federal law. Part of the problem has been the lack of the Federal enforcement. The Federal agencies, the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, has not had sufficient resources and the U.S. attorneys, with the State officials, have had to work through this by gaining the necessary funds.

First, we provided additional resources to the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration to help them do their job better. We restored $1 million to the Education and Outreach Program in order to help them train State officials as to how to look and find the risky carriers. We also reinitiated our support for the strong State-Federal partnership which had been included in the highway bill to ensure effective Federal-State cooperation. Where we and some of our colleagues part company is on the scope and the nature of Federal law should be enforced in Federal court, and thus the key provisions in the conference report will ensure that that will occur. There will be Federal enforcement on the major interstate activities. State law violations will continue to be enforced in Federal court. Federal law violations will continue to be enforced in Federal court.

In order to ensure that the States target those typical rogue movers who we know are very difficult to catch, we amended the language, and thus are slipping through the cracks, the language makes clear that the responsibilities of the State agencies are focused on what carriers they have jurisdiction over. Namely, these are the highest risk, fly-by-night carriers. I believe we have added one more of the following: The carrier is unregistered; or the license of the carrier or broker has been revoked for safety or lack of insurance; three, the carrier is unrated or received a conditional or inoperable rating from the DOT; or the carrier has been licensed for less than 5 years.

This then accomplishes all the goals we have been discussing—tougher Federal law, additional consumer protections, and new authority to the Department of Transportation and other State agencies have been granted the authority to be a cop on the beat to help enforce the Federal law. Their targets are the fly-by-night rogues and their venue is the Federal court and they are being asked to help enforce Federal law.

Now, Mr. President, moving on to some of the other areas in the bill, for the Department of the Treasury, this bill provides $11.7 billion for 2006. This is $425 million above the budget request and some $475 million above the fiscal year 2005 enacted level. We think it is very important to provide resources for the Treasury's efforts to fight the war on terrorism, and we provided full funding for the Treasury's Office of Terrorism and Financial Intelligence. I know how important the Treasury’s Antiterrorism efforts are, and I strongly believe they play a vital role in cutting off financial assistance to terrorist organizations.

Next, to keep our eyes on the so-called tax gap, where those people who pay taxes as they should voluntarily have to carry a heavy burden for the small percentage who do not, we have provided $10.7 billion for the IRS, including $0.9 billion for taxpayer services. This amount is $433 million above the fiscal year 2005 enacted level. These additional funds will help ensure there will be less fraud and that honest taxpayers will have a greater level of confidence in our tax system.

We also have provided full funding for IRS’s modernization efforts through their Business Systems Modernization Program. This program is correctly IRS’s highest management and administrative priority.

For the Federal judiciary, the bill includes a total appropriation of $5.7 billion, a 6-percent increase over the previous year, and this represents the funding necessary to meet the judiciary fiscal year 2006 funding needs.

For HUD, the bill provides some $38.2 billion for fiscal year 2006, an increase of $2.1 billion over the request. These funds include almost $4.22 billion for the Community Development Fund and CDBG, which was slotted for elimination through a reduction of over 30 percent of its funding and a consolidation of its activities along with other programs into a new grant program within the Department of Commerce.

The bill also increased the Senate-proposed rescission of “excess” section 8 funds from $1.5 billion to $2.05 billion. After further review of the account, we found some of these funds were needed to maintain our national security, which is generally higher than the request.

In addition, I am happy to report we have adequately funded HUD programs at a level of $38.2 billion, which is $3.9 billion above the President’s level which is generally higher than the request.

was working on the details with the appropriate staff and others. She was communicating with Senators’ offices. We only came to the floor today because she had worked with other Senate offices, as Senator Murray and her staff had, to clear away objections which might have been made.

So it is with great thanks that I note the contributions to this, her last appropriations bill, of Julie Dammann and wish her all the best.

I also note that my partner, the Senator from Washington, Mrs. Murray, has been working extremely hard on this. She helped clear the way of the remaining problems. I cannot think of how she could have been more helpful or more productive in this effort.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has used 15 minutes.

Mr. BOND. I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleague, Senator Bond, in supporting the conference report on the Transportation, Treasury, Housing and Urban Development, the Judiciary and Independent Agencies Appropriations for fiscal year 2006.

This bill is the product of many hours’ work since the Senate passed the bill on October 20. First, I want to express my sincere gratitude for the cooperative spirit that my colleague, Chairman Bond, along with our House colleagues, Chairman Knollenberg and Representative Olver, brought to bear during our conference negotiations.

I am pleased to say that the conference agreement, like the Senate-passed bill, restores many of the more punitive cuts that were included in the President’s budget for transportation, housing and drug law enforcement.

We have funded airport grants at $3.55 billion rather than accept the President’s proposal to cut this program by half a billion dollars.

While the President sought to move the Community Development Block Grant program to another department and cut it by more than a third, this bill restores most, but not all of the annual funding for CDBG.

While the President’s budget effectively zeroed out Amtrak and proposed to eliminate rail service in our country, this conference agreement provides Amtrak with a $100 million increase and includes many of the forms that were agreed to and included the bill reported by the Senate committee.

This is a good bill that addresses many of the urgent needs facing our country. It includes critical investments in our Nation’s transportation infrastructure and provides much needed housing assistance to our most vulnerable.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I recently announced a major railroad initiative of three different cities in my home State of South Dakota—Sioux Falls, Huron, and Rapid City. This particular project is the result of legislation I authored as part of the recently enacted Transportation reauthorization bill. My amendment was improved and incorporated in large part through work with Senator Lott, who chairs the Senate Commerce Committee’s Surface Transportation and Merchant Marine Subcommittee. I believe the changes that Senator Lott and I made, both during Senate consideration as well as conference deliberations, will have a major positive impact on my State and others. This has not been easy and I think significantly alleviates some of our Nation’s rail infrastructure problems.

Much of the language that ended up in the final Railroad Rehabilitation Investment Financing—or RRIF—program originated from past legislation that Representative Don Young introduced. Building on Representative Young’s bill language, Senator Lott and I made a number of changes to the original version that provided a very solid foundation upon which to build.

The South Dakota project itself actually involves a major national initiative to build a second rail line into the Powder River Basin (PRB), of Wyoming. The Dakota, Minnesota & Eastern Railroad DM&E, announced this project in 1997 and filed an application with the Surface Transportation Board, STB, in February 1998 to obtain regulatory approval. That process will be concluded in the near future, which I hope will allow the DM&E railroad to apply for a RRIF loan to finance construction of the project.

This project is strongly supported by virtually all of South Dakota’s existing rail shippers and by the agriculture and economic development organizations throughout the State. It is also supported by the vast majority of communities that will benefit from the new rail line. It also had overwhelming support from the press events I participated in earlier this month—as noted in the Rapid City Journal article that I will later ask to be made part of the RECORD—even many of the landowners directly affected by the construction support it. I have supported this project since it was first announced in 1997, when I was serving in the House of Representatives, and have supported the project ever since in both the public and private sectors. It is incredibly important to the future of my State.

But on a national scale, it is also extremely important to our country’s entire capacity-constrained rail system and to our national energy policy in particular.

Our national energy policy specifically states that: (d)emand for clean coal from Wyoming’s Powder River Basin is expected to increase because of its location, however, ever, rail capacity problems in the Powder River Basin have created a bottleneck in the coal transportation system . . . There is a need to eliminate bottlenecks in the coal transportation system.

The new RRIF legislation requires the Secretary to prioritize projects that:

(8) would materially alleviate rail capacity problems which degrade provision of service to shippers and fulfill a need in the national rail system.

The national “need” criteria of the legislation was written specifically with this nationally articulated energy policy “need” in mind.

The new RRIF legislation also requires the Secretary to prioritize projects that:

(7) enhance service and capacity in the national rail system.

Mr. President, as the National Energy Policy clearly notes, there is an overwhelming rail capacity problem in Wyoming’s PRB. The Powder River Basin corridor is one of the most heavily traveled rail corridors in the world. Over 400 million tons of coal per year are shipped out, virtually all of it by rail. That number is expected to exceed 500 million tons soon, and to grow beyond that if capacity allows. It is therefore clear that, if completed, this 1,300-mile project in the West and Midwest would have a material impact on rail capacity in this region and throughout the country.

We also have a critical rail capacity problem throughout the entire United States. What happens in the PRB profoundly affects capacity elsewhere. It also affects the movement of grain and industrial commodities and general merchandise intermodal traffic.

When this incredible flow of coal traffic increasingly merges with all this other rail traffic as it continues its flow eastward, it has a big impact. First and foremost, immediate and obvious traffic congestion occurs the further “downstream” into the traffic flow you go. The train of merchandise goods making its way from the west coast to Chicago has to pull off to the siding to allow another train to pass. Or less obvious, perhaps because of a crew or locomotive power shortage, the railroad will have to dedicate limited and locally available resources to one train over another. That has a cascading effect because it makes it hard to recover when too many of your sidings are being used to park trains instead of being used for a quick meeting point so they can pass in the opposite direction.

A less obvious problem is the drain on resources from other regions to accommodate spot problems. Right now, for example, we are seeing a rail capacity shortage across the board. In addition to the long haul traffic that is moving into these congested lines, areas of the country that never come into direct physical contact with these lines are affected by their congestion problems. When those lines “bottle up” as they are doing now, it takes more locomotive power just to move trains. So resources are shifted. For example, we have dozens of loaded grain trains standing today with no power to move them. Grain orders are a month or more behind in my State and throughout the country.

Locomotive power and other resources are being diverted to the PRB and elsewhere to address problems there, and our farmers are suffering as a result. The same can be said for virtually every traffic commodity out there today—including coal and general merchandise traffic.

With the completion of this new rail line and the traffic it is designed to handle, we will relieve pressure on one of the biggest problem spots, which in turn relieves pressure on the system throughout the country. This project will only add more physical track to our system and greatly improve existing track, it will also result in more locomotives and equipment and people. Across the board, this project will relieve pressure on the rail system from northeast corridor to the southwest reaches of the United States.

In a very basic sense, the national railroad system is well beyond its capacity today. There is not a railroad in this country that is not backed up on its orders. We have more traffic to move than the system can handle. And, adding to that, the U.S. Department of Transportation projects that railroad freight traffic demand generally will rise 55 percent by the year 2020. We need to add capacity. That requires major investments of the kind envisioned by the DM&E project.

The changes made to that program did more than authorize the amount that can be loaned. The improvements were specifically tailored to encourage larger and longer-term investments envisioned by the DM&E project. After all, a large-scale investment is needed if we want to have a material impact on the national capacity problem. For that reason, I think this project is critically important to the country. I hope others will follow suit and develop projects that are national in scope. Nothing is more important to our national rail system in my view than this basic need for capacity.

On related issues, the rail industry has gone through a massive consolidation on a national scale. Thousands of miles have been torn up in recent decades and are never to be recovered. This has certainly increased efficiency on single line segments up to this point. But in the process, at least from a national rail system perspective, we have lost important redundancy in the system. If we have a problem in one area, it quickly ripples through the rest of the country because of traffic backs that nowhere else to go. We need more pressure relief valves, and more alternatives that allow the national system a little more flexibility to recover from spot problems. We have seen melt down after melt down in the national rail system. That problem is never going to get better unless we have some alternative emergency routings developed. The DM&E project will also be of great help in providing a fairly dramatic pressure relief valve for this critical part of the national system. So be warned from a national rail system perspective, this project reaches well beyond its immediate track geography.

Going on to other aspects of the new RRIF program, perhaps the most significant change we made was in regard to the valuation and treatment of collateral. This legislation requires the Secretary to use the more realistic approach, that is, the use of a "net liquidation" value. The Secretary has used in the past in relation to collateral. This is important because collateral value is a critical component of the credit risk premium calculation. This language is intended to ensure that the Secretary applies a "going concern," or market value, to the collateral when determining whether and to what extent a credit risk premium is required. In short, the question becomes, what could the government reasonably expect to get for the value of the collateral if it were sold in a "going concern" business? In the past, the Secretary has used a "net liquidation" or "scrap" valuation approach. But in the real world if we are facing a default situation, under that system the Secretary is not going to "scrap" the collateral. He is going to sell it for its highest and best use value. So that is the way it should be valued when considering collateral during the application process. Under the new law, the Secretary should be using private sector lending practices. It provides protection for the Government, and also encourages greater rail infrastructure investment by avoiding artificial credit risk premium payments when they are not necessary. It also requires the Secretary to take into consideration what the value will be after giving effect to the improvements that will be made with the loan. That of course will be discounted based on the overall cost of capital for the project.

Along those same lines, another feature that was added to the original Young RRIF language was to provide for the loan repayment schedule "to commence not later than the sixth anniversary date of the original loan disbursement." The intent was that this discretion should be used for those large-scale projects that require several years of construction before revenues are generated and where the revenue "ramp up" may be gradual. This is a pretty standard feature in large private sector loans, but under the former law the Secretary did not have any flexibility to do that. Under the new law, interest would accrue and compound on the outstanding loan balance. It was primarily my intent to provide a reasonable breathing period so that a solid revenue flow would be established before payments would be required.

Senator LOTT and I also added a provision to the legislation to allow the Secretary to charge, and for the FRA to collect and retain, a fee to evaluate loans. This provision was included because we want the process to be efficient, and not be a drain on the government. The best solution was to have the Secretary help, and charge the cost to the applicant. It is hoped that this will make it easier to expedite these loans, and the expectation is that FRA will undertake best efforts to keep these fees to a minimum. The point here is to help expedite the process and give FRA a little more flexibility to get the job done quicker. The former RRIF Program was notorious for a long time to process the slower, particularly bad history there, which I think the FRA has already improved substantially. This, hopefully, will give them the tools they need to take the next step.

The $35 billion authorization level was in Representative YOUNG's original legislation, as was the provision that prohibited the Secretary from limiting the size of a single loan, and the 90-day review period. Those were important provisions that we wanted to retain because they all go to this concept of encouraging major new rail infrastructure investment in this country, and I appreciate the efforts by the Senator from Mississippi and his staff to retain them and add my language. As closing, the original RRIF Program got off to a very slow start, owing in large part I think to a certain degree of resistance from OMB. I am very hopeful that everyone recognizes this effort as a good faith attempt by Congress to send a clear message that we are trying to encourage major rail infrastructure investment in the United States rather than think up reasons to not do it. This is a program that is very much in the national interest, as former director of the South Dakota Rail Division, I believe strongly in the importance of and urgent need for major rail infrastructure investment in this country. I think most Members of Congress feel the same way, and I hope our colleagues in the administration receive this message and will support our recent action to strengthen the RRIF Program. I hope they will now join in the effort to make RRIF a strong engine for rail infrastructure investment as was originally intended and as directed in the recently enacted legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that articles describing the proposed rail project—which appeared in the November 6, 2005 editions of the Sioux Falls Argus Leader, and the Huron Daily Plainisman, and the Rapid City Journal—be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Argus Leader, Nov. 6, 2005] In DM&E, BACKERS SEE JOBS, PROSPERITY

Rail boss Kevin Schieffer and Sen. John Thune toured South Dakota on Saturday announcing a plan to seek a $2.5 billion federal loan to reconstruct 1,300 miles of line in the state and replace Wyoming's Powder River Basin coal fields.

The reaction in their wake ranged from the dogged determination of opponents to continued fighting the3080

November 18, 2005
This is huge for us, huge for us," said Lisa Richardson, executive director of the South Dakota Corn Utilization Council and South Dakota Corn Growers Association.

Having clearance to seek the loan is a quantum leap for the Dakota, Minnesota and Eastern Railroad and Schieffer, its chief executive.

"It's seen as a small piece of a bigger puzzle. At a Sioux Falls news conference Saturday, Schieffer develop- ed that theme. "The end game is not building a railroad," he said. "The railroad is the means to an end."

The project would create 3,000 construction jobs over three years and permanently em- ploy 2,000 new DM&E workers and create as many new jobs for contractors working for the road.

But Schieffer said: "The direct jobs here are the tip of the iceberg. The real action is in the economic development.

Schieffer said the railroad's presence already has attracted new businesses. The DM&E's presence in Brookings brought Rainbow Play Stations and 500 jobs to that community. If the railroad can transform itself into the nation's newest, most technolo- gically advanced Class I carrier, "I see dozens of business like hundreds of millions of dollars of Play Stations springing up along the line," he said. $286.4M PROJECTED IN REVENUE FIRST YEAR

With a $2.5 billion capital investment, the DM&E is itself a railroad with metaphors at both ends of the line. In re-counting the railroad's history, Schieffer said the DM&E's acquisition of a sister line several years ago gave it an eastern ter-minus at railroading's Rome. "For railroads, Chicago is Rome. All roads lead there," he said.

He also called the Powder River Basin coal fields "the Holy Grail" of railroading.

Pursuit of the Holy Grail has kept the DM&E a project in controversy. The goal of expanding to Wyoming is to let the DM&E grow beyond its status as the coun- try's largest Class II regional carrier and join the Union Pacific and BNSF railroads in hauling vast quantities of low sulfur coal to power plants in the Midwest and East. West America has seven Class I railroads, based on annual revenue of $200 million. When the project is complete "absolutely and imme-diately we will become the first Class I that can haul coal to power plants farther east at the rate it is needed. Because it deals with that need, the DM&E's $2.5 billion loan request to the Railroad Rehabilitation and Improvement Finan-cing Program would be given high pri-ority, Thune said.

This will not stop the Mid State's Coa- lition from trying to block the loan, Darnell promised.

"We'll certainly look into that. That will be a stone that will not be left unturned," she said.

LAWSUITS, OTHER BARRIERS COULD DELAY START

The news the DM&E might have broken the longstanding logjam on project funding left some opponents scrambling. Raymond Schmitz is the attorney for Minnesota's Olmstead County. The county, city of Rochest- er and the Mayo Clinic there all have op-posed the DM&E's effort to haul coal through Rochester.

"It is my understanding the city and Mayo Clinic will be taking whatever steps they can to continue their opposition," Schmitz said Saturday. "Whether the county board elects to do anything is a decision they have to make. The county's posi-tion to this all along has been the impact of this on the county was way out of proportion to the benefits.

Schieffer praised Thune for including in the 2005 federal transportation bill provi-sions that make it possible for the DM&E to get a federal loan for its reconstruction and expansion.

"Obviously, at this point, we don't know what that legislation says," Schmitz ac-knowledged. "It will be carefully buried in the transportation bill. Whether there is a vehi-cle to raise the issue is something that is going to have to be explored.

When the Surface Transportation Board approved the DM&E project in 2002, the Mid States Coalition sued the STB, claiming its decision was flawed. The U.S. 8th Circuit Court ruled the STB decision was essentially sound. The court did, however, require the board to further analyze the environmental effects of rail vibration and horn noise, and to potential increased coal consumption, be-fore drafting a final environmental impact statement and issuing a final decision of ap-proval. That review is ongoing. It might take six or more years before the rail-road's progress toward securing a loan, since regulatory issues must be resolved before the Federal Railroad Administration can con- sider a DM&E application.

"I don't see where they can do anything until they finish that EIS process," said Sam Clauson, a South Dakota Sierras Club dele-gate in Rapid City. "The final EIS is due out this fall. There's an appeal period on that. We're going to probably appeal it.

Thune said he hoped to complete the loan application this year or early next and have a decision from the rail administration on the loan by next spring. That would let construction begin nearly 14 years after the project was first approved by the Surface Transportation Board.

Even as they laid out a future for South Dakota as an El Dorado of economic develop- ment, following off some controversial project, Thune and Schieffer acknowledged the ongoing controversies and promised to resolve them.

"We are legitimate concerns. This is a small state. We're neighbors," Schieffer said. "We need to work these things out, and we will.

Thune said of the project: "Yes, it's great for South Dakota. But it is not unanimously supported. There is some work to do, there are some issues to address. Issues indeed. Fred Seymour lives on Derdall Drive near the DM&E tracks in Brookings.

"Nobody has a keener idea of the situation than me. I expect if the railroad comes through town you will see property values drop by 40 percent," he said. Seymour was one of the earliest rail反对者 to bypass Brookings with its coal trains. But as the project has dragged on, the momentum of opposition has slowed, he said.

In one view, the railroad opponents the railroad have gotten older and crackered and have perhaps not promoted their own interests too well," he said. He antici-pates within a month Brookings will re-solve its differences with the DM&E, and from his vantage near the tracks he predicts with what sounds like cynical satisfaction "I would expect the DM&E is coming right through here."

Opponents did not rule the day as Schieffer and Thune made their way to news confer- ences in Sioux Falls, Huron and Rapid Citi.

POTENTIAL WINDFALL FOR ETHANOL AND FARMERS

News that the DM&E project has taken a long step toward becoming real also was widely praised Saturday. Schieffer said the railroad would build an operations center in Huron which has "biggest new business. Huron lawyer Ron Volesky said Friday he is seeking the Democratic nomina-tion for governor, and he hailed the DM&E announcement that the federal government is finan-cing for the Powder River Basin project.

"That is terrific news for Huron," he said. "I have always been a big supporter of the expansion project, and I am very pleased to see these positive developments come about."

At the same time, Volesky said, as gov-ernor he would try to broker compromise be-tween the DM&E and its opponents. "The governor has responsibility as the political leader of the state to help where he can to get things done about as much consensus as possible," he said.

Gov. Mike Rounds could not be reached for comment Saturday. But he endorsed the DM&E project Friday, and said: "I will con-tinue to work with the DM&E to help make this proposal a reality and address outstanding concerns at the state level."

The state's burgeoning ethanol industry has almost swamped its existing rail facili-ties, which lends urgency to a DM&E expan-sion plan according to Ron Lamberty, vice presi-dent for market development for the Ameri-can Coalition for Ethanol.

"What we had was not built for this," he said. A project such as the DM&E's "is prob-ably something that's a necessity in the long term," he said.
Richardson of the corn growers association peers toward the horizon Lambert identified and sees an even brighter future. A rebuilt DM&E will aggressively compete with the state's existing commodity carrier, the Burlington Northern Santa Fe, and will result in lower shipping rates for farmers, she said.

And there is this: 'I was visiting with some people in the ethanol industry who said we will see coal-fired plants in the next 18 months,' Richardson said. At some point, Wyoming coal hauled by the DM&E could provide the energy to distill ethanol from South Dakota corn at new ethanol plants built here, she suggested.

'It's huge,' Richardson said of the DM&E's improved prospects for securing money for its Powder River Basin project. 'We really hope it happens.'

DM&E LOAN COULD HELP S.D. ECONOMY
(By Jan Kaus)

RAPID CITY—If a $2.5 billion federal loan request by the Dakota, Minnesota & Eastern Railroad is approved, construction on South Dakota's largest railroad project could begin as early as next year, according to DM&E president Kevin Schieffer.

That's the kind of news that came in a news conference Saturday at Rushmore Plaza Holiday Inn, where Schieffer and Sen. John Thune, R-S.D., spoke to a group of several dozen people about the financing that only recently became an option—in a transportation bill that expands railroad rehabilitation funding.

The plan would allow DM&E to build or rehabilitate more than 1,300 miles of rail, the majority of which would be in South Dakota.

That would have on the whole state is huge,' Thune said Saturday, calling the railroad infrastructure "an economic development magnet."

"Who even knows the kinds of industry we could bring in? Literally, the sky is the limit in terms of what this could mean," Thune said.

He said that it would not only provide thousands of jobs in South Dakota, but would also address a pressing national need—affordable and abundant energy.

"For the First time in the history of the country's electricity is fueled by coal," Thune said.

Schieffer added: "And it's not just about coal. This is about wheat, cement, clay out of Belle Fourche, timber and a lot of other things."

Although most who spoke Saturday were in support of the railroad, property owner Veronica Edoff said she doesn't see where the proposal is going to be fair to people who, she said, are giving up everything to put money in DM&E pockets.

Other landowners, including Leonard Benson and Richard Papusek said the company has been more than willing to negotiate and work with the ranchers.

Wall Mayor Ralph Hahn thanked Thune and Schieffer for what the railroad could do for the state and its people, judging the plan a "good move."

Thune said it would enable South Dakota to diversify and grow the economy in a way no single industry can. After the recent battle to save Air Force Base, he said, that need is more obvious than ever.

"There's a lot of work ahead of us yet, but I can tell you, it's a lot further along than it was yesterday," Schieffer said.

Schieffer emphasized that the funding is a loan—not a grant or taxpayer-funded program.

"We would have to pay it back, but the key thing is that it would be stretched over a longer period of time."

Thune called the project "hands-down the biggest single investment ever made in South Dakota."

The Federal Railroad Administration has 90 days to review the proposal together to approve the loan application. The project would likely take about three years to build, Schieffer said.

COMMITTED TO HURON
(By Roger Larsen)

They came here by seven long years of waiting for the start of a project unprecedented in state history in terms of scope and jobcreating significance would be over.

Dakota, Minnesota & Eastern Railroad President Kevin Schieffer couldn't specifically say when the first spike in the $2.5 billion expansion and reconstruction project will be driven into the ground.

But he could tell them something nearly as promising.

"We feel very good about where things are right now," Schieffer told a Huron crowd estimated at 250 on Saturday.

And for the first time since the project to access the Powder River Basin coal fields in eastern Wyoming was proposed in 1998 there is also this:

Thanks to a change in the law that now allows that DM&E seek the $2.5 billion in federal loans, Schieffer is in a position to say that if the application is approved some construction would start in 2006.

Until now, there was no specific timetable. As each year has passed, there has been hope the next one would bring construction crews to the region. But the largest hurdle has been a lack of private financing, and that is no longer the problem.

Sen. John Thune, R-S.D., authored a provision in the recently passed highway bill that expanded the Transportation Infrastructure Financing program from $3.5 billion to $35 billion.

Of that, $7 billion is set aside for Class II and Class III railroads.

Based on the traffic load, DM&E is one of 50 Class II railroads in the country.

Project completion would make it the sixth Class I railroad.

While financing can now be sought in terms of a loan, "it doesn't mean it's going to get done, doesn't mean it's approved, doesn't mean it's a done deal," Thune cautioned.

"But it does provide a financing option that was not available prior to the passage of that legislation which works for this project," he said. A federal funding source means the project has expanded from $1.4 billion prior to $2.5 billion, with new west and east branches, Schieffer said.

Huron would be home to an operations center, where cars and locomotives are fueled and serviced. The area would see 300 to 500 new railroad jobs, based on traffic loads, and there would be 3,000 to 5,000 construction jobs over the next three years.

Other servicing facilities would likely be near Wall, the Wyoming border and New Ulm, Minn.

"There's a lot of moving parts to this thing," Schieffer said.

"Facilities will change and move as time goes forward so its hard to pin anything down with any certainty but one thing isn't going to change.

"Huron, South Dakota is going to be the operational heartbeat of this enterprise when it's done and that is something that's not going to change."

He said that decision is based on personal and political criteria. An enthusiastic crowd of 250 at Saturday's presentation one of three Thune and Schieffer hosted in the state will keep the project on track.

"There's a lot of incentive to keep this thing going, but just remembering pictures of people that provided me with a map I can I can even convey to you," Schieffer said.

Throughout seven years of ups and downs, "Huron has been a steady rock of support," he said.

Thune's background and knowledge of railroad issues put him in a unique position to understand DM&E's needs. He served as South Dakota Railroad Authority director and worked on railroad issues while on former Sen. Jim Abdnor's staff.

His support has also become evident since the early days, Schieffer said. "It's easy for him and it's easy for me to stand in front of this crowd today because there's such enthusiastic support for it," he said. "Seven years ago, that man stood in front of a crowd about this big, but most of them were angry landowners who were opposed to the project." Schieffer said.

He said Thune listened to them, empathized with them and pledged to make sure the DM&E acted responsibly. But he also said they must understand the project is too important to the state not to be built.

"That took courage and some leadership. That's the kind of thing you don't see in the early days," Schieffer said.

There are still hurdles to overcome. Opposition still exists west of the Missouri River, and in Pierre and Brookings.

"We've got issues still to address up and down the line," Schieffer said. "I think some of them will be successful and we'll still be able to do things and some we won't.

The regulatory issues are pretty much over and don't have to be revisited with the new application for funding.

Schieffer said he doesn't want to raise false expectations, "but this legislation is very potent stuff."

Railroads like the Union Pacific and Burlington Northern had made use of federal funds in the past, but the law had expired and when it was renewed the rules were changed so DM&E didn't qualify.

Not only does the Thune provision set the clock back so the railroad qualifies, if it meets the criteria the secretary of transportation must give it priority and preference to make the project happen.

Instead of an open-ended time frame, the government must make a decision on the loan application within 90 days, which is expected in a couple of months. Some time in the second quarter of next year, the fate of the project should be known.

Schieffer said he thinks the DM&E project is the only one in the country that fits the criteria. Applicants must be able to prove their projects will have a material impact on the capacity in the country and will serve a compelling national need.

"This is the only rail project I know about out there that will have a material impact on the rail capacity in the country and there is a very clear national need in the federal energy policy.

"We have a very strong case to make," Schieffer said. "We still have to make it, we still have to get it through." But the legislation gives the railroad a great advantage.

"Absolutely everything we have hoped for," he said.

Debate in the county has been raging about not having enough energy, generation and transmission, Thune said.

"We would be prime positioned to benefit from some utility plants and additional power generation that could result if this railroad project is built.

The project would create a synergy between transportation and energy, he said.
Low sulfur coal is in great demand because of the environmental benefits.

"We get 40 percent of our electricity from coal," Thune said. "The Powder River Basin has literally unlimited reserves of resources." Competition in the basin would also relieve bottlenecks, he said. By 2020, it's estimated there will be a 55 percent increase in rail traffic in the country.

In answer to a question, Schieffer said without the need for private investors "this gives us control of our destiny much more."

He said greater independence would mean the DAM&E could become a publicly traded company.

There has also been concern that the DAM&E forgets its ag producers and shipper. But the project has strong support from commodity groups, and service will not only improve, but will expand.

"They know what it means to them," Schieffer said. "It's going to be a huge benefit."

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, Congress has a moral obligation to make difficult decisions about spending priorities as we fight the war on terror, recover from natural disasters, and struggle to shore up Medicare and Social Security. Last year in fiscal year 2005 our national debt increased by $338 billion, or $1,139 per man, woman and child.

The American people, therefore, are justifiably outraged when Congress engages in an earmark spending free-for-all. Pork projects tend to be allocated outside of the regular priority-setting debate that governs the rest of the budget process. This is wrong. Members of this body should not be asking what right one Senator might have to question another Senator's projects. Instead, we should be listening to the American people who are asking what right we have to force them to finance questionable projects in all 50 States. Every pork project should be balanced against other national priorities. Pork is not a civil right for politicians.

There are more than 1,100 earmarks. Some of those earmarks include: $150,000 for the Alaska Botanical Garden in Anchorage, Alaska for expansion and renovation of its infrastructure; $750,000 for the construction of the Tongass Coast Aquarium; $100,000 to the city of Guntersville, for renovations to the Whole Backstage Theater; $250,000 for the Greenville Family YMCA for child care facility acquisition, renovation, and construction in Greenville, Alabama; $200,000 for the Lowndes County Library Foundation for construction of a new library in Hayneville, Alabama; $250,000 for the Cleveland Avenue YMCA for facility expansion in Montgomery, Alabama; $150,000 to the El Dorado Public Schools in El Dorado, Arkansas for the expansion of a recreational field; $200,000 for Audubon Arkansas for the development of the Audubon Nature Center at Gillam Park in Little Rock, Arkansas; $350,000 to the City of Douglas, Arizona for facilities renovations to the City; $350,000 to Valley of the Sun YMCA in Phoenix, Arizona for facilities construction of a YMCA; $250,000 to the City of Banning, CA for city pool improvements; $350,000 to the City of Beaumont, CA for the construction of the Beaumont Sports Park; $350,000 to the City of El Monte, California for construction of a community gymnasium; $250,000 to the City of Lancaster, California for installation of the baseball complex; $150,000 to the City of Long Beach, California to develop an exhibit to educate the public on the importance of ports; $200,000 to the City of Oxnard, California for Gold Bug Park renovations; $100,000 to the City of San Bernardino, California for Renovations to National Orange Show stadium; $125,000 to the City of Tehachapi, California for design and construction of a performing arts center; $350,000 to the City of Yucaipa, California for development of the Yucaipa Valley Regional Sports Complex; $250,000 to the Lake County Arts Council in Lakeport, California for renovation of the Lakeport Cinema to a Performing Arts Center; $175,000 for the San Francisco Fine Arts Museums, CAY for M.H. de Young Memorial Museum construction; $350,000 to the City of Bridgeport, Connecticut for relocations of the New Britain Center for the Humanities to a now-vacant department store; $300,000 to the University of Hartford in Hartford, Connecticut for facilities construction and renovation of the Hart Performing Arts Center; $150,000 to the City of Troy, Michigan for renovations to National Orange Show stadium; $250,000 to the City of Lakeport, California for development of the Young Center for the Performing Arts; $175,000 to the City of Muncie, Indiana to revitalize the downtown square; $200,000 to the City of Joliet, Illinois for repairs to Rialto Square Theater; $250,000 to the City of Paducah, Kentucky for construction of the Grand Opera House; $200,000 to the City of Meridian, Mississippi for the construction of the Mississippi Arts and Entertainment Center; $750,000 to the City of Placerville, California for Gold Bug Park renovations; $200,000 to the City of Guntersville, Alabama for the development and construction of a performing arts facility; $100,000 to the City of Louisville for construction and development of a park; $100,000 to the City of Fort Myer, Virginia for construction of a playground in Shawnee Park; $600,000 for the Kentucky Commerce Cabinet to develop a visitor center at the Big Bone Lick State Park in rural Kentucky; $750,000 to the Audubon Nature Institute for the Audubon Living Science Museum and Wetlands Center in New Orleans, Louisiana; $100,000 to Greenfield Community College in Greenfield, Massachusetts for a feasibility study; $220,000 for the City of North Adams, MA for the renovation of the historic Mohawk Theater; $260,000 for the City of Lawrence, MA for the redevelopment of the Lawrence In-Town Mall site; $200,000 for the American Visionary Arts Museum, Maryland $350,000 to the City of Saginaw, Michigan for renovation of the YMCA of Saginaw; $250,000 to Walsh College in the City of Troy, Michigan for a library expansion; $500,000 to the City of Cape Girardeau, Missouri for the construction, design, and development of visual and performing arts at Southwest Missouri State University; $200,000 to the City of Meridian, Mississippi for the construction of the Mississippi Arts and Entertainment Center; $750,000 to the City of Colton, Mississippi for construction of the Pontotoc County Sportsplex.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I want to congratulate subcommittee Chairman Bono and Ranking Member Murray for successfully concluding this conference report. I would like to note that this is the first time this subcommittee, as currently constituted, has brought a conference report to the Senate and, in my view, this report is a worthy achievement and I intend to support it.

I note, in particular, the strong title on Transportation funding in the report. We all worked very hard to pass a Transportation authorization bill earlier this year that maintains a balanced transportation program, ensuring adequate funding for both our Nation's highways and transit programs. In my view, both of these components are extremely important to the future economic growth of our country, and I am happy to note that the conference report being brought to us this afternoon is largely faithful to the provisions included in SAFETEA-LU.

The report's provisions regarding Federal employees are also to be commended. The report includes language that will help Federal employees to compete on a more level playing field with contractors in cases where Federal agencies decide to consider contracting out jobs. The report ensures pay parity for all Federal employees—military and civilian alike. It also provides over $125 million to consolidate the FDA at White Oak, and ensures that 61 Taxpayer Assistance Centers, Funding 4 in Maine remain open until after the inspector general completes a report to determine the impact proposed closures would have on both employees and clients. I thank the managers of the bill for their hard work on these important issues.

I also want to talk about the appropriation for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, HUD. At the outset, I express my strong support for the nomination of Senator BOND for his commitment over many years to maintaining strong and effective housing programs. Senator MURRAY, who has not served as Ranking Member on the Subcommittee dealing with housing issues for several years, this year, has proven to be a very valuable addition to this effort and has shown a deep understanding of, and commitment to, these important programs.

The key problem that the Conferences faced in putting together this report is that they were not given enough money to fund the housing programs at a fully adequate level. For example, the HOME and CDBG program, both very flexible programs, used to build and rehabilitate housing, create new homeownership and create new jobs, suffer modest cuts in the report.

Public Housing, the Nation’s basic housing program for the poor, is inadequately funded as both to its day-to-day operations, and its long-term capital needs. The figures are very close to last year’s appropriations—and I recognize that this was no easy task for the conferences—but we need more to maintain our basic investment in this fundamental program. HOPE VI is cut by nearly one-third, though I commend the managers for getting this much, given the administration’s repeated efforts to kill the program altogether.

Finally, I want to express my deep disappointment that the conference report adopts the funding formula for renewal of Section 8 vouchers put forward by the House instead of the far more effective formula adopted by the Senate in the bill we passed earlier this year. Section 8 is the largest housing program funded by the Federal Government, serving over 2 million low-income people. On the positive side, the conference report we are considering today does provide an increase in funds over last year that will help to restore at least some of the vouchers that were lost.

On the other hand, by adopting the House formula voucher renewals, we are likely to see the loss of thousands of valuable housing vouchers in fiscal year 2006. In several years, voucher funding for each housing authority has been allocated based on the prior year’s cost and utilization of vouchers at each housing authority around the country. The Senate would have used as a base for this calculation the most recent 12-month period. By contrast, the House formula, which has been adopted by this report, uses only a 3-month snapshot. As you might expect, the Senate provision gives a much more accurate picture of both the housing authority’s voucher costs and voucher utilization and in most cases extremely impractical. Let me explain.

One of the most common forms of abuse is what is commonly called “hostrate goods.” This abuse was described by the Department of Transportation’s Inspector General at a hearing I held in the Commerce Committee to look at this problem. Let me quote from his testimony:

... household goods moving fraud is a serious problem, with thousands of victims who have fallen prey to these scams across the country. Typically, an operator will offer a low-ball estimate and then refuse to deliver or release the household goods unless the consumer pays an exorbitant sum, sometimes ten times the original estimate. In one case, for example, a New York husband and wife in their seventies were quoted a price of $2,800 to move their household goods to Florida. Once the movers had loaded about half of the goods, the foreman advised the couple that they had paid the new price of $9,800 they would never see their goods again. Forced to let the moving crew might physically hurt them, the couple paid the vastly inflated fee.

In such a case, trying to find an attorney and then proceed to court for your wrongs is on a truck heading to Florida is not especially practical.

This is not an isolated incident. Since 2001, consumers have filed over 10,000 official complaints with the Department of Transportation. Since 2000, the Inspector General has investigated allegations of fraud associated with approximately 8,000 victims.

In the recently completed highway bill, Congress included provisions to try to tip the scale to the side of the consumer. The provisions that were included in the highway bill conference report were almost identical to the provisions in the Senate bill and to the provisions that were included in the highway bill that passed the Senate in the last Congress. The basic point of these provisions was to allow State attorneys general and State consumer protection officials to intervene on behalf of consumers to enforce Federal law and regulations dealing with moving companies.

The appropriations conference report we are considering today basically puts these proconsumer provisions on a hold for a year, and allows State officials to intervene in only the most limited of circumstances.

Finally, let me be clear. Most of the companies and individuals engaged in the moving industry are hard-working and honest. It is a small minority of companies that engages in unscrupulous behavior and it is these companies that need to be reined in.

Unfortunately, this conference report allows unscrupulous movers to continue to defraud consumers with little practical recourse for our constituents that have been mistreated.

Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I rise today to voice my disappointment and frustration with provisions included in this bill that weaken critical consumer protection law for those that ship household goods using commercial movers.
As the ranking member of the Commerce Committee's Consumer Affairs, Product Safety, and Insurance Subcommittee, as a former State attorney general, and as a leading member of the Committee's Surface Transportation Subcommittee for motor carrier issues, I must say that this conference report undermines the consumer protections for victims of unscrupulous movers that were part of the transportation bill, known as SAFETEA–LU, signed into law less than 4 months ago.

These provisions were inserted despite commitments I received to the contrary. We had an agreement that we would not seek to modify the household goods consumer protection language within the Commerce Committee's jurisdiction beyond an amendment that was offered as part of the floor consideration of this appropriations bill in the Senate.

Instead, over the objections of myself, Senator Inouye, Senator Stevens, Senator Lott, and the leadership of the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, this new language was forced into the conference report in order to protect a few big moving companies from increased public accountability.

Adding insult to injury, provisions that were specifically rejected during the conference on the transportation bill this summer were included in addition to language that goes well beyond those items and further undercuts the work Congress did to aid consumers who face fraud, extortion, and abuse at the hands of unregulated moving companies.

As a former State attorney general, I know the public benefits from local and State officials who are dedicated to protecting consumers. Over the past year, picking up on work begun by Senator McCain, and working with Senators Inouye and Stevens, I have tried to find ways to assist the many citizens from all across this country who have been victimized by moving companies and have nowhere to turn.

The most outrageous situation is when a moving company holds all of a consumer's possessions until they pay thousands of dollars in excess of the original estimate for the move. This practice, known as "hostage goods," is extortion, plain and simple. And it leaves consumers helpless in a strange city, with none of their possessions and no recourse.

I say helpless because, although there are some Federal laws to protect consumers when shipping their goods in interstate commerce, there are none that we enhanced with the passage of SAFETEA–LU—the Department of Transportation, DOT, is simply not suited to police the 1.5 million interstate moves that occur each year.

In 1995, the successor of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration, FMCSA, assumed the regulatory duties of the household goods moving industry previously carried out by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Until recently, FMCSA had a total of 3 personnel assigned to handle all of the consumer complaints for the entire Nation and could do little about them. I understand that FMCSA has not received a single complaint since January 2001. They have taken little action in this area because FMCSA contends that its limited resources must be focused on truck safety, the agency's primary mission.

State authorities that already regulate intrastate movers and require that the States involved and already oversee consumer protections for the intrastate movement of household goods with little controversy, have been told by the courts that they have no jurisdiction in this area, since it involves interstate commerce. The net result is that moving companies operating in interstate commerce face no regulation of their commercial behavior, and therefore, continue to take advantage of consumers.

To address this glaring problem, the SAFEȚEA–LU created a partnership with the states by allowing them to enforce certain Federal consumer protections rules as determined by the Secretary of Transportation—a model that works well in other areas.

It is so disheartening that only a few months after these new authorities were put in place—before they could even take effect and be put to use to protect consumers—these provisions have been totally gutted—put on behalf of a few big moving companies that want to keep operating without real oversight.

The household goods provisions added to this conference report will: limit a State attorneys general's ability to initiate an action to enforce Federal household goods consumer protection law to only cases involving new moving companies or those who egregiously violate Federal motor carrier safety laws. If this provision is to totally insulate most movers, particularly larger and more-established moving companies, from even the threat of action by a State, regardless of how outrageous their violation of Federal consumer protection law may be.

Further, the provisions will: apply these same enforcement limitations to State authorities that already regulate intrastate movers and require that the State consumer agencies enforcing Federal household goods consumer laws bring their cases in Federal courts only, where they would languish on average for 3 more years. What are consumers supposed to do while everything they own is being held hostage by a mover duplicating laws?

I believe these provisions go well beyond anything the Commerce Committee would ever have agreed to, had we the opportunity to consider these directly. The only thing positive I can say about them is that they are set to end after Fiscal Year 2006.

This language is an affront to all authorizing committees that—after years of discussion—agreed upon these provisions. It is wrong that those who did not get what they wanted—were rejected both in the Senate and in conference—can then hijack the consumer protection provisions that this Congress approved in July.

State attorneys general and State consumer protection agencies are much more likely than the Federal Government to doggedly pursue justice for their citizens in these cases. A letter from the National Association of Attorneys General on January 21, 2004, proves this point, by indicating the association's full support for States enforcing Federal household goods consumer protections. The letter, signed by State attorneys general, specifically rejects complaints from the moving industry against this new authority.

In conclusion, let me say that I appreciate the work of the other House and Senate appropriations conferees and my colleagues on the Senate Commerce Committee for trying to keep these provisions out of their bill. It is unfortunate that they ended up being included, and I plan to work to see that they are overturned.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I ask that I be recognized for a few minutes and that the time not come out of the time that is currently allotted on this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I regret seriously that I was not here at the beginning of the statement made by the distinguished Senator from West Virginia, Senator Byrd. I was in an interview, as a matter of fact. My staff came to tell me the Senator was speaking about the article I gave to him that my daughter Lily wrote. I have come to the floor to thank him for his courtesy and generosity in speaking about that article.

Mr. President, I have one of my children, the last of my children. As the Senator from West Virginia indicated, she is in law school at Boalt Hall. She wrote her thesis at Stanford about the history of this Capitol. I gave a copy of that to the Librarian of Congress, James Billington, and he passed it on to the National Capitol Historical Society. They determined they would print part of it in their current bulletin, which pleased me very much.

I shared with the Senator from West Virginia, as any proud father would, particularly with the Senator from West Virginia because of our great friendship and the time we have been here together. He is the senior Senator on his side of the aisle, and I am now the senior Senator on this side of the aisle. I will forever be his junior in terms of not only age but service and the admiration I have for him.

I knew Senator BYRD would be interested in the way Lily described this Capitol life history, and its importance to this country. It is a beautiful article, I think, and I am doubly proud of her and extremely pleased that he would take the time and do us both the honor of putting that article in the RECORD.

I invite my friends and colleagues to read that article. Lily had a different life than most of my other five children. She literally grew up here from the time she was a very small baby, and came to the Senate quite often and sat on my shoulder when we were in conference meetings.

Senator BYRD has always been very gracious about coming to her birthday parties which we held here during the 8 years I was the whip on this side of the aisle. All of our family has such a great admiration for the Senator and for his great history.

I think many people do not realize that he is not only the most senior Senator, but he is the only Senator who went through both the university level and law school level while serving in the Congress. He has a prodigious memory. I think of times when, for instance, we were at the U.S.-British Parliamentary Conference when I encouraged the Senator to tell us some of his memories of serving in the Capitol when we were with our fellow legislators from the Parliament of Britain. We have great memories of that.

I also have a memory of the time when we were in West Virginia when one member of the Parliament made the mistake of saying that Americans didn’t know much about the history of our mother country and those who have served Britain and their monarchy. Senator BYRD proceeded to tell us in detail about every single person who ever served in that position, including the husbands and wives of the monarchs of Britain.

I have so many great memories of service with Senator BYRD. I have already ordered a copy of the transcript and the tape of this presentation to send to Lily. I can think of no nicer birthday present to me than that the Senator from West Virginia would honor my daughter and the article she has written about the place we both love, the Capitol of the United States. I thank the Senator very much for his courtesy.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, if the distinguished Senator will yield briefly—and I am not going to keep my friend from Texas waiting. He has been standing and waiting to be recognized.

It was a pleasure, may I say to my friend, to call to the attention of Senators this beautiful article written by Senator STEVENS’ daughter Lily. She is a really precocious child. I have watched her from almost day one. I admire her. She is a well-bred woman. She is the flower of womanhood. She is seeking always to enlarge her mind and doing a great job of it.

I am pleased the Senator feels that he rejoices that her article has been mentioned by me. I want to assure him that he is entitled to every plaudit I can bring to bear on this subject. I hope he conveys my love and my admiration to his daughter Lily.

And may I say to the Senator, “Thou art my guide, philosopher, and friend.” as the Pope once said. I mean every word of that. I treasure our friendship, I say to Senator STEVENS, and may his beautiful daughter continue to do her work and complete her studies and go on to higher things. She is a fine model, and many of us can learn from her efforts to improve herself. I will certainly do that myself. I thank the Senator. I thank him very much.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, the Senate twice honors me. I do thank the Senator very much. Those of us who have had the privilege of serving here more than a short time develop relationships that I think the rest of the body and perhaps the country don’t understand. Very clearly my commitment in terms of friendship and devotion to my friend from West Virginia is equal to his for me. I am very pleased and proud to have that relationship with him.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I also ask unanimous consent that after I am recognized, Senator COBURN and Senator DEWINE be recognized for up to 30 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CORNYN. I thank the Chair.

CHIL<BR>SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I talk about two subjects that are very near and dear to my heart. The first is the matter of child support enforcement. My colleagues might wonder how does that issue arise. The fact is, last night, the House of Representatives passed their version of the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005. As each of us knows, the purpose of that Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 is to actually bring down the Federal deficit by finding cuts in the Federal budget that currently comprises something in excess of $2.5 trillion a year.

This is a very important exercise. This represents the first time, I believe, since 1997 when we have seen real and meaningful cuts in Federal spending. The challenge, of course, is that about a third of the money the Congress spends is discretionary spending. Half of that third is defense spending, and the rest of it is homeland security and other discretionary programs. But some of that you can tell by the mere description is hardly discretionary because it is important to our national security.

My point is that two-thirds of the Federal budget is not, even under any conception or definition, discretionary spending. It is Medicaid, Medicare, and Social Security, and we simply have to come to grips with that so-called entitlement or nondiscretionary spending in order to draw the reins in on a Federal Government that continues to grow day by day in its scope and size and expense.

I am here to say I think there are some cuts that make more sense than others and some cuts make no sense whatsoever. I consider child support money that goes to assist the States in collecting child support to fall into that last category—cuts that make no sense whatsoever. Let me explain.

The House bill will cut $5 billion in Federal funds from the child support program over 5 years—$5 billion over 5 years. It will cut $15.8 billion, almost $16 billion, over 10 years. This translates into a 40-percent reduction in Federal spending for the child support program. My State of Texas would lose $258 million over 5 years and $824 million over 10 years.

I ask unanimous consent that a chart prepared by the Center for Law and Social Policy which lays out the proposed cut to Federal child support funding State by State be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, those are the cuts, $5 billion over 5 years, $16 billion roughly over 10 years.

What is the impact of these cuts on child support collected? This will reduce child support collections by $7.9 billion over 5 years and $24.1 billion over 10 years.

That is right, for a $5 billion cut, it eliminates $7.9 billion in child support collections. For a $16 billion cut, it eliminates $24.1 billion in collections over 10 years. In my State of Texas these cuts will reduce child support collections by $411 million over 5 years and $1.25 billion over 10 years.

At this point, I ask unanimous consent that a chart also prepared by the Center for Law and Social Policy, which states the projected impact on child support collections State by State, be printed in the RECORD.

So in addition to money that is a good return on investment, $4.38 for every dollar, this money actually avoids additional expenditures of tax dollars by creating individuals who are qualified for other Government programs at a lot more expense to the Federal taxpayer.

The problem with these cuts is that they are likely to reverse dramatic improvements in the child support program’s performance over the past decade, and they may well force many families back on the welfare rolls.

This means former welfare families and working families of modest income will lose an important source of income that now enables them to maintain financial self-sufficiency and thereby having to draw on Government resources through public assistance programs.

The reason I feel so passionately about these particular cuts and the effectiveness of the child support enforcement program is that for 4 years before I came to the Senate I served as attorney general of Texas. It was my job, on behalf of approximately 1.2 million children, to see that they got the child support that they deserved, that they needed, and that they were legally entitled to.

I am proud to say that my State ranks second in the Nation in terms of total collections, collections of about $1.8 billion in fiscal year 2005, and an increase of 83 percent of collections since fiscal year 2000.

Now, that did not happen by accident. The reason it did happen is because of the great work being done by the men and women in the child support enforcement division of the State of Texas. It also happened because of the money that is provided by the Federal Government to help fund this necessary function. Due to the good work of these hard working men and women in the child support division, obligations, that is court orders, establishing support have risen from 55 to 82 percent of the qualifying population, and the cost-effectiveness in Texas has gone from $1.96 to $6.81.

I mentioned the national average of $4.38 for every dollar spent. In Texas, we now collect $6.81 for every dollar spent.

If the financial benefits, if the cost-effectiveness of this program, and if the avoidance of other costs to the Federal taxpayer were not enough, there are other intangible benefits to a strong and effective child support enforcement program. I have seen with my own eyes that too many families, when they divorce, reach a tacit agreement with regard to their children. Moms who frequently are the ones who have custody of the children sometimes reach a tacit agreement with their ex-spouse, typically the father, that if they do not exercise their visitation rights that the mother will not press the father for the financial support to which their children are legally entitled.

What happens is that these children become two-time losers. Not only are they denied the financial benefits that the law says they are entitled to, they are denied contact with both parents that every child needs in order to have the best chance of success.

Indeed, one of the intangible benefits of an effective child support program is not just the money collected, it is not just lifting children who would otherwise be in poverty out of poverty, it is not just avoiding the additional expenses of Government programs that would otherwise be invoked if that support was not there, it is literally the benefit of having a mother and a father both engaged, involved, and committed to their children.

I can think of no more important purpose that our efforts could serve than to reunite mothers, fathers, and children in a collective effort to improve the status of our children and their bright futures.

So I hope in the conference on the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005 our colleagues in the House will reconsider, and I hope our colleagues in the Senate will persuade them that all of the cuts they might have chosen these were the least deserving and that the money should be reinstated. I am confident throughout the $2.5 trillion Federal budget that there are other programs, other waste, other fat, other ineffective programs that could be more effectively cut and with far less damage to the most vulnerable among us.

PATRIOT ACT

Finally, just for a couple of minutes, maybe 5, I want to speak about another subject that I served on the USA PATRIOT Act. It has been more than 4 years since our country was hit on September 11 by terrorists who care nothing for our way of life and nothing for the laws of war. They have attacked, because they could, innocent civilians in their jihad against those who have different ways of life and different views.

We know the PATRIOT Act has been largely responsible for making America safer. It put a lid on the wall that prevented the sharing of information between law enforcement and intelligence agencies, by making available to our FBI and other intelligence-gathering bodies the same sort of techniques that are currently used against organized crime members and other criminals. Simply, what this body did in the PATRIOT Act was make sure that we used every legal and reasonable means to root out terrorism, to investigate it, and to stop it before it killed Americans.

The PATRIOT Act was passed shortly after September 11 by a strong bipartisan vote of 98 to 1 in the Senate and 357 to 66 in the House. As I said, the PATRIOT Act enhanced law enforcement and intelligence agencies’ ability to gather and analyze intelligence information and to use the most modern communications technologies, such as e-mail, cellular telephones, and the Internet, and it has strengthened criminal laws and penalties against terrorists.

As always, we must be concerned with the right balance between the need to protect innocent American lives and the need to preserve our civil liberties. Deprivations of some groups, the PATRIOT Act has not eroded any of our rights that we hold near and dear as Americans. To the contrary, the PATRIOT Act has enabled the Justice Department, the FBI, and the CIA and other Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies to cooperate and to share information and thereby save American lives and protect what is perhaps the most important civil liberty of all, and that is freedom from terrorist attacks.

I serve on the Judiciary Committee, and we have held 25 oversight hearings to date within the Judiciary Committee to ensure that we have both the tools we need and that we struck the right balance between civil liberties and our national security. As all of our colleagues know, several sections of the PATRIOT Act are set to expire, sections 203 and 218, on December 31, 2005. These are the very provisions that have been instrumental in bringing down this wall which separated different agencies of the Federal Government in getting information that is needed in order to save American lives and to stop terrorist attacks.

I would just read briefly from recent testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee by Peter Fitzgerald, the U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, who has recently been in the news. He has recounted from personal experience how this wall between law enforcement and intelligence personnel have operated in practice. He said:

I was on a prosecution team in New York that began a criminal investigation of Usama Bin Laden in early 1996. The team—prosecutors and FBI agents assigned to the criminal case—had access to a number of sources. We could talk to citizens. We could talk to local police officers. We could talk to witnesses. We could talk to foreign police officers. Even foreign intelligence personnel. And foreign citizens. And we did all those things as often as we could. We did not call al Qaeda members—and we did. We actually called several members and associates of al Qaeda to testify before a grand jury in New York. And we even debrifed al Qaeda members overseas who agreed to become cooperating witnesses. But there was one group of people who we were not permitted to talk to. Who? The FBI agents and prosecutors assigned to the street warriors in lower Manhattan assigned to a parallel intelligence investigation of Usama Bin Laden and al Qaeda. We could not learn what information they had gathered. That was "the wall."

Well, people who remember the hearings before the 9/11 Commission will remember that there were a number of high-profile witnesses from Janet Reno, the former Attorney General of the United States, to former Attorney General John Ashcroft, who served during the first term of the Bush administration, and FBI Director Mueller. With clarity with which I saw before with cold-eyed clarity and not be swayed by scare tactics or emotional appeals.

I am astonished, when I look at the reality of how the PATRIOT Act has made our Nation safer, that there are people who would use scare tactics to try to convince them that America's civil liberties are somehow imperiled. In fact, the American Civil Liberties Union, time and time again, through angry appeals, has misrepresented the PATRIOT Act in a way that I believe has frightened the American people. They happen to use it to raise money in their direct mail campaign, but it has had the disservice of breaking American resolve and confusing the American people about exactly what is at stake and what the benefits of the PATRIOT Act are.

Perhaps the most telling manifestation of the effectiveness of their scare tactics and their public campaign is that approximately 300 different municipalities across America have passed resolutions calling for the repeal of the PATRIOT Act. I think we have to mark that off to a lack of good information, or perhaps the gullibility of those who would use scare tactics to American people. They happen to use it in a way that I believe has frightened the American people. They happen to use it for their own personal ends and not eroded any of our rights that we hold near and dear as Americans.

It is that same wall that will be restored if the PATRIOT Act is reauthorized on time. It will imperil the civil liberties of the American people, and they did not come up with a single example.

I hope, as we continue to work on a conciliatory report to reauthorize the PATRIOT Act, that the Members of the Senate will do our jobs with a clarity of mind based upon evidence and not yield to the scare tactics by those who want to create a disinformation campaign and perhaps confuse the American people about the importance of the PATRIOT Act. It is absolutely critical that we reauthorize this act, that we not allow that wall to be resurrected because the truth is, we owe it to the American people and we owe it to those whose lives will literally be lost unless we do our job and reaffirm the PAPRIOT Act before provisions of that act expire on December 31, 2005.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION AND VETERANS AFFAIRS, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DeMINT). Under the previous order, the Senate having received a conference report on H.R. 2328, that report is considered agreed to and the motion to reconsider that act is laid on the table.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, at this time, under the regular order and a unanimous consent request, the distinguished Senator from Ohio was to be recognized. He has acquiesced in my behalf that I may be recognized for 15 minutes. I ask unanimous consent that I may speak as in morning business for 15 minutes, to be followed by the Senator from Ohio, and that the Senator from Ohio be recognized after 329 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.").

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The remarks of Mr. ROBERTS pertaining to the introduction of S. Res. 239 are located in today's RECORD under "Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. DeWINE. I thank the Chair.

The remarks of Mr. DeWINE pertaining to the submission of S. Res. 321 are located in today's RECORD under "Submission of Concurrent and Senate Resolutions."

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES

ARMY PRIVATE FIRST CLASS HARRISON J. MEYER

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I rise this evening on the floor of the U.S. Senate to pay tribute to a brave, young Ohioan, who lost his life while serving in Operation Iraqi Freedom. Army Private First Class Harrison J. Meyer, a combat medic from Worthington, OH, was killed on November 26, 2004, while attempting to tend to a wounded comrade during a firefight. Born on Veterans Day—November 11, 1984—he was barely 20 years old at the time of his death.

When I think about the sacrifices of our men and women in uniform, I am reminded of something President Ronald Reagan said about the strength of the American people. He said this:

"Putting people first has always been America's secret weapon. It's the way we've kept the spirit of our revolutions alive—a spirit that drives us to dream and dare, and take risks for the greater good.

Harrison Meyer was always taking risks for the greater good—always putting others first and selflessly giving of himself for his fellow man. According to Medical Platoon Sergeant Randolph L. Nurtu:

[Private First Class Meyer] fully knew what the dangers were and willingly accepted them in order to save others' lives. He made the ultimate sacrifice so that others may live. Six other soldiers are still alive directly due to his actions.

Indeed, Mr. President, Harrison Meyer—Harry to his friends and family—embodied the true American spirit that President Reagan described.

Harry grew up in Worthington and attended Thomas Worthington High School. He graduated in 2003. While in high school, Harry belonged to the track team for 3 years. He competed as a pole-vaulter. Andy Cox, a U.S. history teacher and track coach at Thomas Worthington, remembers Harry as a "teddy bear who made everybody laugh. He was a real team player—always wanting to help people."

Coach Cox went on to say that 'Harry was the kid who was trying to make all the other kids relax, feel good about competing.'

Harry often brought homemade treats to the track meets for the entire team. Coach Cox emphasized the popularity of his cheesecake. As he affectionately recalls, '"[Harry] was a great cook!"

Harry did not join the track team during his senior year because he wanted to focus his attention on his upcoming military career. Still, however, he attended all the track meets. According to Coach Cox 'he'd always bring something homemade for the team.'

Harry was also a member of the school's choir, and for four summers, Harry worked at the Worthington municipal pool doing various jobs, including serving as a lifeguard.

According to his mother, Harry was deeply affected by the September 11th terrorist attacks. He enlisted in the Army's pre-graduation program, and shortly after graduation, he was inducted. He was stationed in Korea and assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 503rd Infantry Regiment, 2nd Infantry Division, Camp Howze, before leaving in August 2004, for Iraq. His mom said that Harry's selflessness was one of the reasons he decided to become a medic after joining the Army.

In fact, according to Chris Begin, a good friend of Harry's, Harry wanted to go to medical school after returning from Iraq.

While in Iraq, Harry and his comrades faced danger daily. Harry's mom recalls that before he was killed, Harry had treated a dozen seriously wounded soldiers. She said that "he knew (insurgents) were targeting medics. He indicated it was a very dangerous place. "But, he always told me—'Don't worry, Mom.'"

The dangers became too great on November 11, 2004, when Harry was deployed to Iraq. Marine Corporal Nathan R. Anderson—posted on an Internet tribute for service members who have been killed in either Operation Iraqi Freedom or Operation Enduring Freedom. A friend of Harry's—Pamela Moorehead from Worthington—posted the following email message:

"Harry, I was thinking about you today. I'm not sure what made me think of you. I think I was just reminded by something someone said. It's September 26, 2005, so in one month you will have been gone for a year. Everyone still misses you. The memories from pole vaulting with you and hanging out with you and Brandon make me both happy and sad. To your family—Harry is one of my heroes, and I will still think about him. We miss him and continue to keep him and all of you in our thoughts and prayers.

Harrison Meyer was a kind soul, with a warmth that touched many people. I am proud to know Fran and I keep Harry's family—his parents Deborah and William; and his three sisters—Lynn, Bronwyn, and Kelley, in our prayers.

I would like to close my remarks with an excerpt from a poem titled "American Hero," written by Harry's cousin Jordan Michael Meyer. The poem is in remembrance of Harry:

He is out there on the front lines.
He knows the risk.
He knows the sacrifice.
He is going to put it all on the line and role the dice.
The man is fighting for a better life.
The American soldier found his home after this brutal fight.
Now looking down upon us he sets flight.
Always keeping us in sight.
He won't stop protecting us, day and night.
He is an American soldier, brought up on love, alone, feeling none.
He hides his fear, doing anything to protect those who are dear, knowing death is near.
He is a young man taking upon the sacrifice of a nation he holds dear.
Harrison Meyer held his Nation dear, and we hold dear his memory. We will never forget him.

MARINE CORPORAL NATHAN R. ANDERSON

Mr. DeWINE. Mr. President, I rise today on the floor of the United States Senate to pay tribute to the brave Marine. With the Lord on his side, Nate left this Earth on November 11, 1984—his parents Deborah and William; and his three sisters—Lynn, Bronwyn, and Kelley, in our prayers.

According to Chris Begin, a good friend of Harry's, Harry wanted to go to medical school after returning from Iraq.

While in Iraq, Harry and his comrades faced danger daily. Harry's mom recalls that before he was killed, Harry had treated a dozen seriously wounded soldiers. She said that "he knew (insurgents) were targeting medics. He indicated it was a very dangerous place. "But, he always told me—'Don't worry, Mom.'"

The dangers became too great on November 11, 2004, when Harry was deployed to Iraq. Marine Corporal Nathan "Nate" Anderson made sure to write his family back home in Howard, OH, as often as he could. After witnessing the death of a good friend, Nate wrote that "the service of freedom demands sacrifice." He tried to calm his family's fears as he continued, "No worries. I will be fine wherever I end up. I have the Lord on my side and guardian angels on both shoulders. I am good to go."
of all our friends. He was the one who tried to keep us all together after graduation. He was an amazing person. We all loved him, and will miss him very much.”

Nate’s sisters remember him with great love, affection and respect. His sister Traci describes her brother as “soaring on wings like eagles. I salute you, my brother. I salute the way you lived. I salute your sacrifice. I will always be in your debt.”

Nate’s family recalled the pride that was an honest guy—the heart and soul of our Nation. When he told her that they would be on a special mission. Meg said that Nate told her “it’d be two weeks and not to worry. He said he’d be home soon.”

At Nate’s funeral service, held at North Bend Church of the Brethren, 400 mourners gathered to say goodbye. As the Reverend Patrick Bailey said, “There is no one that son, an awesome brother, a great friend, a fellow [marine] and hero.”

Nate was all of those things and more. He loved his family. He loved his country. He fought for freedom. And, we will forever miss him. His parents, Mary and Neil Shaw and Richard Anderson; sisters Meg, Traci, and Kelly; and his brother Adam all remain in our thoughts and in our prayers.

I would like to conclude my remarks by reciting an e-mail message that was posted on an Internet tribute to Nate. Someone who just signed her e-mail as “Amy of Ohio” wrote the following:

Thank you Nate for your sacrifice—for protecting me and my children and for being our hero. We hope and pray that your reward will be great in Heaven. To Nate’s family— we pray for you and will never forget your son’s courage or the price he paid for our great country. May you find peace in God’s love and know your son will always be with you, and you will one day be reunited. I hope and pray that all Americans are grateful of our men and women, sons, daughters, mothers, parents, aunts, uncles, dads, brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, and grandchildren who are fighting for our freedom while we enjoy our lives in the comfort of our own homes. Nate will never be forgotten and will be our hero forever and always. God bless you and your family and God bless America.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I rise to discuss the situation in Iraq.

Critics of the Bush administration have recently gone out of their way to try to convince the American people that the President misled our nation about Iraq. Some are arguing most vociferously that President Bush purposely withheld intelligence information from Congress. Others accuse the President of using the intelligence for his own agenda. A few even suggest that the President had some kind of personal vendetta against Saddam Hussein and was willing to do whatever it took to remove him from power.

I can accept criticism leveled at our intelligence agencies for providing inaccurate intelligence. I can accept criticism that the Department of Defense for not sufficiently preparing for an Iraqi insurgency.

I can even accept criticism that the Bush administration did not appropriately prepare the American people for the cost of the war.

What I cannot accept, what I feel is so irresponsible, and what is so damaging to our nation are accusations that suggest that President Bush deliberately lied to the American people about either the intelligence or about his reasons for going to war.

I was a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee when the President requested Congressional authorization for the use of force against Iraq in 2002. I participated in numerous open and classified, bipartisan hearings and briefings on our intelligence regarding Iraq’s weapons of mass destruction. The conclusions that I reached, that President Bush reached, and that many Democrats reached, was the same.

We all agreed that Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction. We all agreed that he had used such weapons in the past against Iran and Iraq’s Kurdish population. And, we all agreed that he should not hesitate to use them against the United States in the future.

The U.S. Congress and President Bush were not alone in this assessment. The intelligence agencies of Britain, Germany, Russia, China, and even France all believed Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction. The entire international community watched as Saddam used those weapons to murder thousands of his own people. Even Chief United Nations weapons inspector, Hans Blix, thought the chemical weapons he discovered prior to the war in Iraq were the “tip of a submerged iceberg”.

The fact is that the debate in Congress over whether to authorize the use of force was never about Iraq’s weapons of mass destruction. Everyone thought Saddam Hussein had them. In fact, even those who voted against the use of force in Congress never questioned the veracity of our intelligence information.

That is not because the Bush administration manipulated the intelligence that was presented to Congress, as some have alleged. Indeed, a number of independent commissions since the war began have investigated this issue and found the Bush administration did not distort intelligence information. The best known investigation was the bipartisan Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, which stated unequivocally that the “Committee did not find any evidence that Administration officials attempted to coerce, influence or pressure analysts... to change their judgments related to Iraqi weapons of mass destruction capabilities.”

Therefore, if we agree that the President did not lie about our intelligence on Iraq’s WMD programs, then the critics could see that the President’s Bush’s rationale for going to war at the time of the Congressional debate was somehow flawed and unjustifiable. Here I would again disagree.

During the debate, I joined with a large majority of the Members of Congress on both sides of the aisle who voted to authorize force. We did so because of two important facts—the same two facts offered by the President.

First, Saddam Hussein was in breach of more than a dozen United Nations Security Council resolutions. He continued to refuse to cooperate with U.N. inspectors even after a decade of sanctions. He rejected proposal after proposal to conduct fair and transparent inspections. When he finally allowed inspections, Saddam did everything he could to undermine, cajole, and otherwise manipulate the inspections process. He gave every appearance of hiding large stockpiles of weapons of mass destruction.

Second, a large bipartisan majority of Members of Congress, including nearly 30 Senate Democrats and 81 House Democrats, voted to authorize the use of force against Iraq because, after September 11, it was clear that America could no longer afford to allow imminent threats to our nation go unhindered and unopposed. In most minds, Iraq represented a highly dangerous nexus between terrorism and weapons of mass destruction. In the context of Saddam’s decade-long defiance, it was a nexus that Members of both sides of the aisle in both the Senate and the House was no longer willing to ignore.

When critics try to cover up their vote in support of the use of force against Iraq, they damage the credibility of our government overseas and send a disheartening message to our soldiers, sailors, airmen, and marines who are bravely defending freedom in Iraq and Afghanistan.

When they falsely accuse the President of misleading the American people, they encourage the enemy who believes America will throw in the towel and give up when the fighting gets tough to overcome obstacles.

It is time for the President’s critics in Congress to remember why they voted to authorize force against Iraq in 2002. It is time for them to acknowledge the progress our soldiers are making now in Iraq and Afghanistan. It is time for them to recognize the success we have had against global networks of terror.

And most of all, it is time for these critics to lay aside their own political ambitions and do what is right for America. It is time for them to join our Commander-in-Chief in the fight against those who wish to destroy our Nation.

An agenda of disunity and surrender will never lead to victory. We need to unite behind our Commander-in-Chief if we are to defeat this enemy. It is my hope that the President’s critics will see this imperative and finally do what is best for our Nation.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. TALENT. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DEFENSE BUDGET

Mr. TALENT. Mr. President, I decided to come to the Senate for a few minutes this evening to speak to the Senate because of growing concern over the defense budget and, in particular, the growing likelihood that we are going to see cuts in the defense budget next year. The President’s budget is lower than what the President had proposed for fiscal year 2007.

I am moved especially by a recent “Inside Defense” column which reports that because of pressure from the Office of Management and Budget, and the Deputy Secretary of Defense may well require that the service chiefs take $7.5 billion out of next year’s budget and $32 billion in cuts over the next 5 years—this at the end of the budget cycle, not as a result of an assessment of military need or necessity. As I will show in a minute, one could hardly in any dispassionate view of our military needs believe we could absorb $7.5 billion in cuts next year because of procedures that are budget driven. When I see that it reminds me of other things I have been hearing lately. I felt it was deja vu all over again, as Yogi Berra might have said.

I remember the days in the 1990s when military needs were determined by the budget rather than the budget being determined by military needs. When the Berlin Wall fell and the Cold War ended, our country was justifiably pleased. We believed there was a peace dividend available. The Clinton Administration took a lot of money out of the defense budget. I will go into that in a minute. They took too much out of the defense budget, and left a force that by the end of the 1990s was hollowing out. Our military was not as prepared as it should have been. As I will show in a minute, one could hardly in any dispassionate view of our military needs believe we could absorb $7.5 billion in cuts next year because of procedures that are budget driven. When I see that it reminds me of other things I have been hearing lately. I felt it was déjà vu all over again, as Yogi Berra might have said.

As I will show in a minute, one could hardly in any dispassionate view of our military needs believe we could absorb $7.5 billion in cuts next year because of procedures that are budget driven. When I see that it reminds me of other things I have been hearing lately. I felt it was déjà vu all over again, as Yogi Berra might have said.

I remember the days in the 1990s when military needs were determined by the budget rather than the budget being determined by military needs. When the Berlin Wall fell and the Cold War ended, our country was justifiably pleased. We believed there was a peace dividend available. The Clinton Administration took a lot of money out of the defense budget. I will go into that in a minute. They took too much out of the defense budget, and left a force that by the end of the 1990s was hollowing out. Our military was not as prepared as it should have been. As I will show in a minute, one could hardly in any dispassionate view of our military needs believe we could absorb $7.5 billion in cuts next year because of procedures that are budget driven. When I see that it reminds me of other things I have been hearing lately. I felt it was déjà vu all over again, as Yogi Berra might have said.
grew. Look at legacy aircraft, the A-10, the “Warthog,” 24 year old; the B-52 bomber, 44 years old; the C-130 transport, 33 years old; the KC-135 tanker, 43 years old. The procurement holiday left us with equipment that was too old.

Well, what happened? Beginning at the end of the 1990s, Congress and the President at the end of the Clinton administration, and especially with the beginning of the Bush administration—began. The Chairman explained to the point where people who didn’t get it earlier finally saw what we were talking about. The decision was made to increase spending enough to sustain the volunteer force, to re-capitaliz the basic equipment that we had not bought in the 1990s, and to begin designing and producing the new generation of systems that the men and women in our military would use for decades to come.

The plan was to increase defense spending by a modest amount above inflation, beginning around the year 2001, so that these needs could be met. There were many of us who were concerned that was not enough money. The Department of Defense has traditionally been rather optimistic in its estimation of costs. The CBO traditionally has claimed we needed between $20 billion and $30 billion more than even was estimated at that time. But at least we had a plan. It was a beginning. It was based on an actual projection, if perhaps optimistically estimated of need.

Unfortunately, the plan has not been as effective as we hoped in achieving its goals, and particularly in recapitalizing the force. There are a lot of reasons for that. One is that op tempo, operational tempo, has been even higher than we expected after what we experienced in the 1990s. It is what the military calls “mission creep,” a significantly expanded number and variety of missions, which drive up operation and maintenance costs because they stress the force. Operations and maintenance costs go up, readiness costs go up. Just staying in place, just keeping the force you have and the equipment you have maintained and ready becomes more difficult.

But what was the mission creep? The September 11th attacks had something to do with that, and then Afghanistan and Iraq. Our Armed Forces have become more confrontational. We have homeland security missions now that we never anticipated. Contingency peace enforcement missions around the world, special ops, and ongoing training operations. Operational tempo is at a historic high. It is likely to remain so.

This means not only that we are sucking up more money in operations and maintenance, it means the equipment we have is being used up even faster. Even if you maintain it properly, if you are using it at a greater rate than you anticipated, it is not going to last as long. We face a situation where we are going to have to reset or reconstitute the basic equipment in the force.

In addition, personnel costs have been higher than we anticipated because we wanted to do right by the men and women in America’s military. We voted and we should have. We have increased housing allotments. We have met the obligations we promised our retirees regarding health care. Those were good things. I supported them. But adjusted for inflation, personnel costs have increased from $109 billion to $139 billion annually. That alone would eat up any of the real increases we had planned and have been able to give the military in the last 5 years.

In addition, we are facing a threat, at least sooner, and certainly more seriously—or a potential threat—that we thought we would have to face; and that is, the rising military power of China. China is engaged in a comprehensive effort to profoundly improve its military capabilities and to develop a comprehensive anti-access capability in order to prevent the American military from having access into the western Pacific.

I am not saying that China is going to become, or need become, an enemy of the United States. I am saying that China is rising as a world power. It is very deliberately, according to plan, increasing in particular its naval strength. If we are to deter some kind of aggression or combat, we need to be strong—not provocative, but we need to be strong in response. We did not anticipate, 5 or 6 years ago, that they would grow so strong so quickly.

Their most significant advances are in submarines. China will take delivery of 11 submarines in 2005. We are going to buy one. Its fleet includes an increasing number of the following vessels: the Type 93 nuclear-powered attack submarine; Type 94 nuclear-powerdd attack missile submarine, which carries an ICBM with a range of more than 5,000 miles; and Russian-built “Kilo”-class diesel electric attack submarines.

By the year 2010, they may be able to deploy a fleet of up to 50 modern submarines to confront us, should they choose to do so. Remember, they can concentrate that power in the Western Pacific.

Among China’s surface combat vessels, the most notable is the growing number of Russian-built missile destroyers which carry the SS-22 “Sunburn” anti-ship missile, and the Type 72 large amphibious assault ship. In addition, China is developing and producing its own advanced fighter aircraft. It is procuring hundreds of advanced Russian-built Sukhoi fighters. China has deployed over 700 land-attack ballistic missiles opposite Taiwan. It is adding over 100 new missiles each year.

I could go on for a considerable period of time. The upshot of that is, by the end of the decade, China may be able to field, as I said before, 50 submarines, all concentrated in the Western Pacific. They are closing the technology gap and working steadily to develop an area denial capability which is aimed directly at American strength.

I am not saying they are going to use it. I do believe strongly that the more they believe we are going to be prepared and ready, the more likely they will seek peaceful redress of whatever concerns they may have, the more likely it is we are going to be able to avoid the other developing confrontational relationship with them.

For all these reasons, we have not completed the task of redressing procurement shortfalls from the 1990s. We need 160 aircraft per year to keep the average age in the inventory stable. Instead, we are purchasing 80 aircraft.

The current plan is to purchase less than one-half the number of new F/A-22s the Air Force says it needs. This is important because The Navy is at 283 ships, and that number is going down. We purchased an average of 5.6 ships per year over the past 10 years. You assume a 30-year service life. At that rate, it is eventually going to be a fleet of a few ships.

The last time the Department of Defense estimated the number of ships we needed to be secure, it was 375. I expect that a reasonable Quadrennial Defense Review, looking at this, will produce a number lower than that. We are not purchasing ships at anywhere near the rate we have to in order to sustain the Navy at that level. At that rate, our submarine force will drop below 40 in the next decade. Every recent study identifies the need for 55 to 76 submarines at a minimum. We need to get the shipbuilding budget up, and estimates range from $14 billion to $18 billion a year to maintain a Navy at approximately 300 ships. We are not there yet.

Now, additional reductions are being proposed. Those reductions, if implemented, will mean the defense budget again will not grow, at least in real terms. Most of the Department’s budget is basically committed. You cannot cut short operations and maintenance. You cannot short readiness. You must pay your people. You must provide the benefits you have committed to provide. That means any budget cuts must come from somewhere other than the platforms, the ships and planes and tanks and vehicles that we have been designing and developing to provide the new generation of capabilities that our men and women need to be able to defend us.

So proposals are afoot and rumors are out that the Army is going to cancel the Future Combat System. That is the Army’s system to replace the older tanks, the Bradley fighting vehicles, to make sure the technology is adequate, the information technology is networked together. FCS is the system designed to give us the most modern ground combat capabilities. All of this is potentially on the chopping block. The next generation destroyer, the DD(X), may not get built. That is the ship that is going to provide naval surface fire to support troops going ashore. The Joint Strike Fighter, our stealthy air-to-ground strike fighter, which we have been developing for years, is on the chopping block. The new tanker is imperiled. The need for additional airlift is imperiled. This situation is serious.

What do we do? The Department is engaged right now in a Quadrennial Defense Review. Every 4 years the Department looks at its needs and is supposed to analyze what it needs and then project those needs in terms of military needs, not fiscal constraints. In other words, the way the law reads, they look at what structure of forces, what package of capabilities they need to defend the United States, and then we try to come up with the money to pay for that.

Well, I am concerned that the analysis they have been looking at is flawed. They may be given a figure, a budget number, and told to come up with a force structure and a package of capabilities that meet that budget number. They must be allowed to assume reasonable and adjusted increases in the defense budget for the future and then be allowed to build the package of capabilities and force structure needed to defend the United States.

That Quadrennial Defense Review needs to be military driven, not budget driven. Then, in the meantime, while we wait for that review, we should stick with the planned figure for fiscal 2007. Every year, the Department sends in its budget. It’s clear, of course, that the key number is the number for the upcoming fiscal year, but it is always a 5-year defense plan. In the first few years of the Bush administration, to the credit of the Department and the administration, it did stay very close to those projections year by year, with fairly minor deviations.

The figure for fiscal 2007 that we were given last year is $443 billion, and that is the figure that should come over. We should ensure our defense requirements for deficit concerns. Whatever your feelings about the deficit and about how we ought to resolve the deficit, it is not caused by the defense budget.

The defense budget is 48 percent of discretionary spending. It was just about the same in the Carter era. The defense budget as a percentage of the total budget is 17 percent, which is 6 percent less than it was in the Carter era. As a percentage of gross domestic product, it is 3.6 percent which, again, is less than it was in the Carter era. The military budget has not caused the deficit that we are dealing with today. In fact, it is just sustained discretionary spending at 4 percent of the gross domestic product, which would be an historic low, that would be more than adequate for us to build the kind of force structure that we need to defend our country. That is not too big a sacrifice to pay for this Nation’s security.

I said at the beginning of my remarks that reducing the defense budget in the name of reducing the deficit is a false economy. I ask Senators to consider the world situation today. The stability of the international order in the world depends on the reality and the perception of American military power. For the world, the more hospitable it is to freedom and to our interests, the faster our economy will grow, and the more money we will have available, not just for defense spending but, indeed, for all other obligations of the Government. That is something President Reagan understood. When he became President in 1981, he began building up America’s defenses. He had double-digit spending increases in the military budget. He knew that was a key aspect of winning the Cold War. He got the attention of the Soviets. After a few years, they decided it was not worth it to try to compete with the United States in that arena. That was one of the key factors that led to the fall of the Soviet Union. And the reason for that, resulted from that, the end of the isolation of Eastern Europe, the opportunities that were unleashed on the world are one of the reasons that we had unparalleled economic growth all throughout the 1990s, which then enabled us to balance the budget and eventually get to a surplus.

If, as a result of budget-driven decisions, we reduce the defense budget beneath what is minimally adequate, we are going to lose our influence in the world, a doubt about our resolution to protect our freedom. If that even minimally increases the possibility of a confrontation somewhere in the world, it will affect our economic opportunities and our economic growth far more than anything we could possibly save by reducing the defense budget, to put it on just as low and cold a level as possible. A strong defense, the perception of American capabilities is good for the economy. It is necessary if we are going to grow as a country, create jobs, and generate the kind of revenue that will allow us to address the deficit.

I offer a personal note on behalf of this issue. The men and women who defend us in our military are the finest people who have ever served in any military service at any time in the Nation’s history. They know the obligations that we ask them to undertake it willingly. Over Veterans Day, I attended a few rallies around Missouri. I like to do that in commemoration of the men and women who have served. I was in Lebanon, MO, and met a number of our service personnel who were there. One of them was a recent enlistee in the National Guard, a young man who was proud to wear his country’s uniform, proud at the prospect that he might be actively involved, as I am sure he will be, in helping our Nation win the war against terror.

We had an opportunity to visit. He understood that in doing that, he was doing something very important, very large. He was sacrificing, and his sacrifice was a measure of the value he placed on the freedom of his country and the security of his family.

Those young men and women in America’s military will keep faith with us. They are going to do what we ask and expect them to do to protect us. We owe it to them, particularly in the Congress. We owe it to them, to keep faith with them. They protect us. They count on us to protect them, to do what we know is necessary to provide them with what they need to do their jobs.

Let’s live up to that. Let’s have confidence that doing the right thing, meeting our obligations with regard to the national defense, is the best way to approach the future, both economically and as a matter of foreign policy and as a matter of the Nation’s security.

I yield the floor.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, Thursday night, on the eve of Veterans Day, we passed the Foreign Operations appropriations bill with near unanimous, bipartisan support. I commend my colleagues for their support on this bill which is so critical to America’s security.

I especially recognize Senator Mitch McConnell for his steady leadership.

Diplomacy and foreign policy are essential pillars of our national security. They reflect America’s values, principles, and vital interests.

This $21 billion appropriations bill promises to promote democracy, stability, and prosperity, and strengthen America’s security here at home and around the world.

It also promotes America’s leadership in the arena of international aid. Targeted foreign assistance is an invaluable instrument for spreading democratic values, and improving the health and welfare of our neighbors close to home and around the world. It can promote economic growth and opportunity in even the poorest of nations.

The Foreign Operations appropriations bill includes several provisions that advance these efforts. I would like to take a moment to share some of them.

The defeat of Global HIV/AIDS is one of the world’s greatest humanitarian challenges. In many countries, an entire generation of productive adults has been wiped out by this one, tiny, malicious virus. The funds set aside to battle the HIV/AIDS virus target relief where it can do the most good and make the biggest difference.

Under this legislation, America is committed to providing $2.82 billion for Global HIV/AIDS relief. That includes: $2 billion for the Global HIV/AIDS Initiative; $250 million for HIV/AIDS from the Child Survival and Health Programs Fund; and a $450 million contribution to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, tuberculosis, and malaria.
By providing this desperately needed help, we save lives, strengthen alliances, and promote peace and stability. I have often talked about humanitarian aid as a currency for peace. The Foreign Operations appropriations bill wisely sets aside targeted funding for global health programs to advance that cause.

Along with tackling the Global HIV/AIDS crisis, the Foreign Operations appropriations bill supports the Child Survival and Health Programs Fund. These funds help reduce child mortality and morbidity, and combat other, serious public health problems.

One of the most important public health crises this bill addresses is the lack of clean, drinkable water in many regions of the world. Every 15 seconds a child dies because of a disease contracted from unclean water. Fully, 90 percent of infant deaths can be attributed to this one, basic cause.

In total, water-related disease kills 14,000 people a day. That is over 5 million people a year, not counting the millions who are debilitated and prevented from leading healthy lives.

Cholera, typhoid, dysentery, dengue fever, trachoma, intestinal helminth infection, and schistosomiasis can all be prevented by simply providing clean, drinkable water and proper sanitation.

Funding for the Safe Water: Currency for Peace Act, which I cosponsored earlier this year, will go a long way to providing this simple, but profound necessity.

In addition to providing Foreign Operations needed and targeted humanitarian aid, the Foreign Operations appropriations bill advances the critical work of stopping the spread of WMD. We are working closely with our friends and allies to secure stockpiles of WMD-related materials and technology and to make sure our allies have the ability to protect these sensitive materials.

The Foreign Operations appropriations bill provides over $410 million toward our nonproliferation, anti-terrorism, and demining efforts.

One of the gravest threats we face is the threat of WMD falling into the enemy’s hands.

We cannot, we must not, let this happen.

Ultimately, the goal of each and every one of our foreign operations programs must be to promote America’s security and America’s values. And as the last century taught us, our security and our values must go hand in hand.

Whether for humanitarian, diplomatic, or security purposes, effective foreign assistance advances our vital interests and protects the homeland.

The United States remains committed to eliminating poverty, expanding prosperity, and strengthening domestic institutions abroad. And by doing so, we advance our security and prosperity right here at home.

TRIBUTE TO MR. BEN WORTHINGTON

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a dedicated steward of our national forests, Mr. Ben Worthington. Last month, Ben retired from the National Forest Service after 32 years of service. For the last 10 years, Ben served as District Ranger on the Kentucky State Forest. Ben was fortunate to have him serve as forest supervisor of the Daniel Boone National Forest.

Ben began his forestry career at Washington State University, where he earned a degree in forest management. After graduating, he joined the Peace Corps and was relocated to Costa Rica for 2 years. Upon his return, he worked for the Forest Service in his home State of Oregon and eventually in Washington State and California. Before moving to Kentucky, he was the deputy forest supervisor at Bridger Teton National Forest in Wyoming.

As forest supervisor of the Daniel Boone National Forest, Ben oversaw the day-to-day management and preservation of Kentucky’s only national forest. The Daniel Boone National Forest covers over 700,000 acres of land from the northeastern part of the Commonwealth of Kentucky all the way to the Tennessee State line, and also includes some noncontiguous counties in eastern Kentucky. This Kentucky treasure has something for every outdoor enthusiast. With over 600 miles of trails, it can be hiked, biked, and explored on horseback, by car, on foot, by snowshoe, or even by canoe.

Before moving to Kentucky, he was the deputy forest supervisor at Bridger Teton National Forest in Wyoming.

I had the privilege to team up with Ben by securing funds over the years to help with the marijuana eradication operations on or near the national forest land. Ben and his staff have worked in lockstep with the local sheriff’s departments, the Kentucky State Police, and the Kentucky National Guard to identify and destroy marijuana plants. They have done a good job, and I know that Ben’s success will be carried on by his successor.

After working for 32 years in the Forest Service, Ben plans to remain in Kentucky. His wife is active in their local community of Winchester, his mother now calls Kentucky home, and his two children attend Western Kentucky University. Ben’s work ethic, dedication, and love of the land will be greatly missed, but it is time for him to start a new chapter, and I wish Ben the best in his retirement.

HONORING SGT. JOHN BASILONE, "A PLAIN SOLDIER" AND THREE OTHER MARINE LEGENDS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, last week, on the 230th anniversary of the U.S. Marine corps, the U.S. Postal Service unveiled a long-awaited set of postage stamps honoring four of the corps’ greatest heroes:

Today, a new generation of Americans are risking their lives to serve this Nation. Nearly 2,100 Americans have died in Iraq, and more than 15,000 others have been injured. It is important that we honor their sacrifices and the sacrifices of those who came before them. I would like to take a few moments to talk about the four legendary marines commemorated on the new stamps.

LTG John A. Lejeune is probably the best known of this fabled four. Regarded as “the greatest of all leathernecks, Lieutenant General Lejeune made history in World War I as the first marine to lead what was predominantly an Army division. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal from both the Army and the Navy, as well as the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with Palm for his service during World War I. He is best known, however, for his foresight and determination to enhance the Marine Corps by introducing specialized amphibious assault capabilities.

Along with tackling the Global HIV/AIDS crisis, the Foreign Operations appropriations bill advances the critical work of stopping the spread of WMD. We are working closely with our friends and allies to secure stockpiles of WMD-related materials and technology and to make sure our allies have the ability to protect these sensitive materials.

The Foreign Operations appropriations bill provides over $410 million toward our nonproliferation, anti-terrorism, and demining efforts.

HONORING SGT. JOHN BASILONE, "A PLAIN SOLDIER" AND THREE OTHER MARINE LEGENDS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, last week, on the 230th anniversary of the U.S. Marine corps, the U.S. Postal Service unveiled a long-awaited set of postage stamps honoring four of the corps’ greatest heroes:

Today, a new generation of Americans are risking their lives to serve Marine GySgt John Basilone was 1 of 10 children of an Italian-born tailor, Salvatore Basilone, and his wife Dora. He was born in Buffalo, NY and raised in Raritan, NJ.

He enlisted in the Army when he was 18 and learned to fly. One day, while in the cockpit of a B-24, he picked up the nickname “Manila John.” He fought as a light weight-pricefighter in the Army, going undefeated in 19 fights. He received an honorable discharge after completing his 3-year enlistment, returned home, and worked briefly as a truckdriver.

In July 1940, sensing war clouds on the horizon, John Basilone enlisted in the Marine Corps. In October 1942, he was serving with the 1st Battalion, 7th Marines, 1st Marine Division, on Guadalcanal. For 6 months, the Army and Marines had fought a bloody battle to hold a critical airfield on that island. On October 24, GySgt John Basilone and 14 other marines were ordered to hold back many times that number of elite Japanese troops on the fringes of the island.

A private first class serving under him would later recall that, “Basilone had a machine gun on the go for three days and three nights without sleep. He fired machine guns, fixed guns, and crawled through Japanese lines to get more ammunition. When the sun rose the next morning, the marines still held the airfield, and John Basilone was credited by his men with giving them the will to fight on the most terrifying night of their lives.

For his heroism at Guadalcanal, John Basilone was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor and ordered home to take part in a war bonds tour. The tour brought in $1.4 million in pledges. He crisscrossed the country, met Hollywood startlets, and even met migrant workers. He crisscrossed the country, met Hollywood startlets, and even met migrant workers. He crisscrossed the country, met Hollywood startlets, and even met migrant workers.

I recently received a letter in the mail from Ms. Ann Sensenich of Boiling Springs, PA. Ms. Sensenich wrote to me:

DEAR Mr. SANTORUM: Enclosed is a copy of a letter I received from one of our soldiers serving our country in Iraq. I am forwarding this to you as I feel this is a letter that should not be viewed by only my eyes.

I have been sending packages to my employer’s son in Iraq and he forwards them on to his soldiers and this is one of the responses I received.

Please share this letter with anyone you feel would appreciate the service of this and all our U.S. soldiers defending our country and keep in mind he indicated he would go back seven times before he would let terrorism on our soil.

Thank you for reading this and please share his words with others.

Sincerely,

ANN B. SENSENICH

Attached to Ms. Sensenich’s correspondence is the letter that a deployed servicemember wrote to her when her package was shared with fellow servicemembers. He wrote:

DEAR ANN SENSENICH, I am deployed with the 33 ACR. We received your package, and I just wanted to take a little bit of my time to say thanks.

Your package helped with the morale of a lot of soldiers. Due to the feedback we get from the media and people back home, it is nice to receive a package from someone who supports us and what we do.

People like you are the reason why we fight this war. We sit over here day to day risk getting shot at or having mortar rounds dropped in on us so that the back home (like yourself) can keep on enjoying the freedoms that a lot of people take for granted everyday. I, myself used to take those things for granted also until I was deployed.

Thank you for your unselfishness, and don’t ever feel bad for the soldiers that are over here fighting this war. This is our job! This is what we were trained to do. I would come back over here seven more times before I let these terrorists on our soil. You can sleep safe in your home tonight, enjoy every warm meal you have, enjoy every shower tonight, and wake up to a free world tomorrow because we are over here fighting for you and your family.

Once again—Thanks! I just wanted you to know how your package that you sent did not go unnoticed.

Mr. President, these stories need to be told. Our soldiers are sacrificing their lives for us; they are putting themselves in harm’s way each and every day, and making invaluable time with their families and loved ones. They need to know that we support them, and that their bravery and hard work is not going unnoticed.

We cannot allow critics here in the United States to influence the mentality of our troops. They need to know that we stand with them and that we support their invaluable mission.

WHAT’S AT STAKE FOR U.S. AGRICULTURE IN THE NEXT TWO MONTHS?

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, our top U.S. trade negotiators traveled this week to Hong Kong, and to Southeast Asia. They are making a concerted effort to encourage certain influential countries among our 148 trading partners in the World Trade Organization to put meaningful agricultural offers on the table in Geneva. We are coming down to the wire in the most recent round of multilateral trade negotiations, referred to as the Doha Development Round. The offers that our trading partners put on the table in the next month or two are the starting point for agricultural negotiations. That deal in agriculture will be combined with the results of similar negotiations in the manufacturing and services sectors of the economy. Together, they constitute the outcome of the round by which the process will have gone on for the last 4 years. Without a deal in agriculture, however, the Doha Development Round will fail.

While bilateral trade agreements are beneficial to U.S. exporters, it is through multilateral negotiations that across-the-board tariff reductions can be achieved. That is why the Doha Development Round is so crucial.

The agricultural negotiations are significant to all of us representing states with agricultural constituencies. In the case of Pennsylvania, production agriculture generated $1 billion in cash receipts in 2003, according to USDA statistics. That’s $1 billion for the producers of livestock and commodities in my State. Pennsylvania generates only 2 percent of agricultural cash receipts received by producers nationwide, so you can imagine how important agriculture is to the 31 States with larger agricultural economies. Then there is the added value to the Pennsylvania economy of processing and manufacture of food products and their export. Virtually every State has a stake in these negotiations.

The producers of U.S. food and fiber no longer are producing for the U.S. market alone. Those days are gone forever. Our farmers are part of the global economy. In fact, because they are so efficient, they produce in excess of what they need here at home and must gain access to global markets to expand sales opportunities.

Yet many markets overseas remain closed to U.S. producers because of high tariffs on U.S. exports. Particularly egregious are the tariffs imposed by the European Union and Japan among developed economies and by certain developing countries such as India and Brazil, where they constitute a protective mechanism. Those tariffs do not make major advances in certain sectors of their economies.

These issues have been discussed at the WTO during the past 4 years of the current Doha Development Round. We have now reached a point in the negotiations where the outcome of the round is so crucial. That is why the Doha Development Round is so crucial.

The rationale behind the offer is that U.S. producers are so efficient that they require minimal domestic subsidies, allowing them greater access to expanding markets. Those markets increasingly are found overseas where the increased prosperity of growing middle classes demands the kind of dietary diversity and convenience that already serves special protection. How can the dairy farmers of the U.S. be convinced that overseas market access is the key to increased profitability if the European market remains unavailable behind high tariff walls? I am concerned that agriculture will lose patience with the trade negotiation process and return to familiar domestic farm programs to augment its income because the world market could not. What do responsible Members of Congress do then, facing the kind of fiscal consequences we do in 2005, just as existing farm programs expire?

There is real potential under those circumstances for backlash. Testimony by commodity groups earlier this week in the House has telegraphed that already. What, of course, producers all expressed reservations at the degree of ambition and commitment to trade liberalization shown by U.S. trading partners, particularly the European Union and the G-20 group of developing nations, as evidenced by their counter proposals to the U.S. proposal in the WTO. U.S. producers are savvy. They see the inadequacy of those offers by our trading partners and have no intention of venturing too far in the direction of liberalized trade alone without a very strong safety net. The weaker the commitment to reform among our trading partners, as evidenced by the degree of success in the Doha Development Round, the more expensive will be the net required by our producers. That’s bad news for those in Congress wishing to lead their agricultural producers toward a more productive and profitable model based on increased markets overseas, where 95 percent of the world’s consumers live.

A recent study by Australia, a leading member of the Cairns Group of trade-liberalizing nations within the WTO, underscores the potential loss if the more robust proposal of the U.S. in this December at the Hong Kong ministerial meeting so negotiators are able to assemble the final package of tariff reductions and subsidy cuts in the next year. They will need every minute to do so.

After last week in Europe, the Secretary of Agriculture and the U.S. Trade Representative were far from optimistic that the Hong Kong ministerial meeting would grapple with the type of formulas to be used in cutting tariffs or with the number of ‘sensitive’ products that countries could declare protected behind a high tariff.

And what happens if there is no agreement or a face saving agreement with minimal substance? That’s what worries me and should worry American farmers. U.S. production agriculture has been a partner in the international effort of our trade negotiators to gain market access. But how long can the U.S. producers put on the table in the dairy farmers of the U.S. be convinced that overseas market access is the key to increased profitability if the European market remains unavailable behind high tariff walls? I am concerned that agriculture will lose patience with the trade negotiation process and return to familiar domestic farm programs to augment its income because the world market could not. What do responsible Members of Congress do then, facing the kind of fiscal consequences we do in 2005, just as existing farm programs expire?

There is real potential under those circumstances for backlash. Testimony by commodity groups earlier this week in the House has telegraphed that already. What, of course, producers all expressed reservations at the degree of ambition and commitment to trade liberalization shown by U.S. trading partners, particularly the European Union and the G-20 group of developing nations, as evidenced by their counter proposals to the U.S. proposal in the WTO. U.S. producers are savvy. They see the inadequacy of those offers by our trading partners and have no intention of venturing too far in the direction of liberalized trade alone without a very strong safety net. The weaker the commitment to reform among our trading partners, as evidenced by the degree of success in the Doha Development Round, the more expensive will be the net required by our producers. That’s bad news for those in Congress wishing to lead their agricultural producers toward a more productive and profitable model based on increased markets overseas, where 95 percent of the world’s consumers live.

A recent study by Australia, a leading member of the Cairns Group of trade-liberalizing nations within the WTO, underscores the potential loss if the more robust proposal of the U.S. in this December at the Hong Kong ministerial meeting so negotiators are able to assemble the final package of tariff reductions and subsidy cuts in the next year. They will need every minute to do so.

After last week in Europe, the Secretary of Agriculture and the U.S. Trade Representative were far from optimistic that the Hong Kong ministerial meeting would grapple with the type of formulas to be used in cutting tariffs or with the number of ‘sensitive’ products that countries could declare protected behind a high tariff.

And what happens if there is no agreement or a face saving agreement with minimal substance? That’s what worries me and should worry American farmers. U.S. production agriculture has been a partner in the international effort of our trade negotiators to gain market access. But how long can the U.S. producers put on the table in the dairy farmers of the U.S. be convinced that overseas market access is the key to increased profitability if the European market remains unavailable behind high tariff walls? I am concerned that agriculture will lose patience with the trade negotiation process and return to familiar domestic farm programs to augment its income because the world market could not. What do responsible Members of Congress do then, facing the kind of fiscal consequences we do in 2005, just as existing farm programs expire?

Representative John Murtha's Speech

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about Representative John Murtha's statement on Iraq. John Murtha is right. We need an exit strategy from Iraq. The administration should have had one before the war.

As I and other Members of Congress consistently requested before Operation Iraqi Freedom, OIF, began, it was imperative for the administration to have a plan for both entering and, now more importantly, for exiting Iraq. We are 2 years into OIF with no clear end in sight. There is no excuse for not having one now.

We must provide the Iraqi people with the tools necessary to stand on their own. Only the Iraqi people can rebuild Iraq. Only the Iraqi people can defend Iraq. We cannot do it for them. We cannot want it more than they want it. What we must do is provide them with the means to accomplish this, but what we are unable to do is to give them the will.

Whether we enter Iraq tomorrow, or in 6 months, or longer, the President needs to tell the American people when and how we will be able to withdraw our troops. We cannot afford to lose more Americans in Iraq.

John Murtha is a great patriotic American. His service in the military and in the U.S. Congress cannot be measured. Those who disparage him tarnish only themselves.

Everyone who knows John Murtha knows that he believes in his heart and soul in the American military and he will do everything he can to help them. He should be listened to for what he has done, for who he is, and because he is right.

National Security Personnel System Regulations

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I am very disappointed with the U.S. Department of Defense and Office of Personnel Management's final regulations for the National Security Personnel System, NSPS, that will affect more than 350,000 defense civil service employees throughout our Nation. What makes the new system dangerous is that upon a cursory glance, it would almost appear "acceptable" in the name of national security. Scratch the surface, however, and it becomes very alarming.

The rhetoric does not match reality. U.S. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld in public testimony stated that these new regulations "would not end collective bargaining," but, rather, would "bring collective bargaining to the national level" to avoid duplication and inefficiency. This has not occurred, nor do I believe there is a sincere interest in the Pentagon to pursue national unity. In fact, I would suspect that the Pentagon's plan is just the opposite—to substantially remove from the table the number of subjects for good faith collective bargaining.

For this reason, I am pleased that the employee unions have gone to Federal court to challenge the regulations, in the same fashion that they challenged the Department of Homeland Security regulations. I hope they will prevail in their call for injunctive relief, as they did in the Homeland Security case, as well as to prevail in the final disposition of both cases.

While I would be the first to say that the Federal civil service system is not perfect, it is a system that has withstood the test of time as fair and impartial. To overhaul it in favor of vesting the subjective power to hire, fire, discipline and promote in the hands of a few political appointees is very dangerous. At this point, the "seemingly acceptable" national security rationale for the wholesale stripping of employees' rights fast begins to lose its luster. It is no longer reasonable. There seems to be an inherent conflict. In the name of national security, this administration is willing to deny its own workers a small modicum of security—employment and family security—especially when I do not believe it is necessary to achieve our goal of national security. I call into question the motivations behind their actions.

My position on the Pentagon's issuance of the NSPS regulations is what I believe any decent fellow would say. Now is the time for our Nation to come together in support of our armed services abroad. To do so, we must stand behind our civilian defense force from whom we are demanding great productivity in support of our troops.

Now is not the time to be divisive and punitive of our Federal workforce. It creates low morale, mistrust, and a decreasing level of respect between worker and management. The consequences stemming from instability, could be dire. For me, the stakes in terms of human lives are too high to be taking such a gamble. United we stand—civilian and military together. Divided we could fall.

National Defense Authorization Act

Ms. SOWNE. Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of my amendment No. 2062 to the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2006, to provide targeted size standard relief for small U.S. contractors incurring extraordinary security and protection costs on foreign battlefields in the global war on terrorism.

Right now, in Iraq and Afghanistan, there are many brave, small contracting businesses working alongside our uniformed soldiers in many cases. Employees of these small contracting firms get shot at and encounter roadside bombs, suicide attacks, ambushes, and kidnappings. Yet, in order to provide our military with desperately needed goods and services, these small battlefield firms diligently endure these daily risks. These daily dangers force small conflict zone firms to hire well armed, private security guards, and to incur extraordinary security expenses in order to protect employees. The violence toward civilian contractors in Iraq and Afghanistan has become so prevalent that the government often requires companies to provide security services for these outsourced extraordinary security costs as reimbursable contractor expenses. These security expense reimbursements do not increase or expand small contracting firms’ core business capabilities. Instead the money the government pays to small battlefield contractors for security expenses is passed directly through to the security subcontractor providing protection to the small firms’ employees.

Unfortunately, the Government’s valid survival, it also harms the U.S. Government’s ability to secure contracts for much needed goods and services that are used to support our troops in war zones. This ultimately reduces the Federal Government’s access to experienced contractors and hamsters the Government’s efforts to comply with the Government’s annual statutory small business contracting goals. My amendment directs the SBA to conduct a study and provide a report to Congress on the fairness of exempting reimbursement for subcontracts for private security services from the size standards capable to small firms that perform contracts and subcontracts on overseas battlefields. I urge my colleagues to support our small battlefield contractors currently in harms’ way by retaining this important amendment in the Defense authorization conference report.

SCIENCE, STATE, JUSTICE, AND COMMERCE APPROPRIATIONS

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, earlier this week the Senate passed the Appropriations Conference Report accompanying H.R. 2862, the Science, State, Justice and Commerce Appropriations Act for fiscal year 2006.

As the ranking member on the Appropriations Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, and Science, I rise today to explain how this legislation is critical to spurring economic innovation in our Nation and how the bill protects communities and saves lives and livelihoods.

I believe this appropriations bill is an important step in making our country more competitive in the global economy. The future of our economic security as well as our national security will depend upon our ability to innovate. This bill is a major Federal investment in innovation through science and technology, and it will help make America stronger by investing in our future.

Innovation begins with basic research. H.R. 2862 funds the National Science Foundation, NSF, at $5.6 billion, a $180 million increase over last year.

The key to innovation is investing in basic research in the physical sciences—biology, chemistry, physics and the cutting edge interdisciplinary initiatives in nanotechnology, biotechnology and information technology. The National Academy of Sciences, the Council on Science and numerous other organizations have all called for a substantial increase in our investment in basic scientific research. This bill makes a down payment on that investment.

The technology of tomorrow will create the jobs of tomorrow. But if we don’t invest in research, the technology and the jobs will go overseas.

But it is not just about investing in research, we also have to invest in education. This bill preserves funding for graduate student stipends at $30,000 per year. NSF funds critical programs to make America stronger by investing in our future.

As the ranking member on the Appropriations Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, and Science, I rise today to explain how this legislation is critical to spurring economic innovation in our Nation and how the bill protects communities and saves lives and livelihoods.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, NOAA, is responsible for the National Weather Service as well as critical research into oceans, fisheries and the Earth’s atmosphere. For NOAA, we have provided $3.9 billion, a $20 million increase over last year. Whether it is warning us about severe weather so we can secure our property and get out of harm’s way, or helping to restore our fisheries that are so critical to our economy, NOAA saves lives and communities every day.

In space, this appropriations bill fully funds the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, NASA, and the cutting edge scientific and technological research that only NASA can do.

For NASA, we have provided $16.4 billion, which is a $295 million increase over last year. This includes $271 million for the Hubble Space Telescope, $50 million over the President’s budget request to accommodate a servicing mission to Hubble, should the Administrator determine that the space shuttle is safe to use.

The servicing of Hubble will involve replacing batteries, gyroscopes and installing new scientific instruments to make Hubble more powerful than ever. Hubble is the very symbol of innovation and discovery and our nation’s proudest achievements.

We continue our investment in the Mars program and fully fund the next generation of launch vehicles to replace the space shuttle.

Funding for science programs are funded at the President’s request level or higher including the Living With A Star program which is crucial to understanding the Sun’s effects on the Earth.

While NSF, NOAA, NIST and NASA are all integral to our nation’s ability to innovate, along with our other federal agencies, it is the private sector that is responsible for most of the innovation that drives our economy.

The Patent and Trademark Office, PTO, plays a central role in protecting our nation’s valuable intellectual property. The PTO has a backlog of applications waiting to be processed. H.R. 2862 funds the PTO at a record $1.7 billion, a 4 percent increase.

This record increase will go a long way towards helping the PTO reduce the backlog of patent applications so we can properly protect our intellectual property and maintain our competitiveness.

But as we invest in our future, this legislation also takes care of our day-to-day needs especially when it comes to protecting our neighborhoods and communities.

In making our country safer, the Department of Justice is our front line. This bill provides $21 billion to the Justice Department, $800 million more than last year. The Justice Department accounts for almost 50% of the entire bill. This includes funding for the FBI, DEA, ATF, U.S. Marshals, U.S. Attorneys as well as the Federal Prison System.

The Justice Department provides assistance to our state and local law enforcement and help communities fight gang violence. It also protects us from terrorists and protects our neighborhoods and communities. Specifically, the FBI will receive $5.7 billion in 2006, a $500 million increase over last year. Most of this increase has been devoted to counterterrorism.

H.R. 2862 also increases funding to fight sexual predators who prey upon our children. The bill provides $48 million to continue and expand the Missing and Exploited Children Program. It also funds a Cyber-Tipline, an online resource where people can report leads and tips about child sexual exploitation.

Finally, the bill provides $2.7 million for the FBI’s innocent images program to investigate and capture child pornographers who use the Internet to prey on children.

In addition to sexual predators, gangs are becoming a growing local, regional, and national problem. We have provided increases to the ATF, U.S. Attorneys, and the FBI to help fight against gangs in our schools and communities.

Any anti-gang strategy must focus on three principles: prevention, intervention and suppression. In my own State of Maryland, in Montgomery and Prince George’s Counties, and around the State, gangs are a growing problem.

This bill provides $2 million for Montgomery and Prince George’s Counties to deal with gang violence and fund prevention programs. It also provides another $2 million to combat gang violence and gang prevention programs around the State of Maryland. The purpose of this funding is to bring federal resources to the local level to help stop and prevent further gang violence from afflicting our neighborhoods and communities.

Mr. President, the President’s budget cut state and local law enforcement by $1.4 billion. We were able to restore $1.1 billion of that cut in this bill.

I know how important our local police are to fighting crime and gangs. Our police are among the first responders. If we were not subjected to strict limits on spending that were imposed on us by the Budget Resolution, we would have provided additional funding for state and local law enforcement.

But with the need to increase funding for counterterrorism and counterintelligence, plus the need to address the growing problems of both methamphetamine abuse and regional and even international gang violence, we had to make difficult choices, under very difficult circumstances.

Mr. President, the Science, State, Justice, and Commerce Appropriations bill is about investing in science and technology to spur innovation in our economy, protecting our Nation, and saving communities, lives, and livelihoods.

Investments in innovation are critical so America will retain its competitiveness as well as its economic and national security. Through the Department of Justice and its major law enforcement bureaus, we are increasing our commitment to protecting children from sexual predators and making our neighborhoods and communities safer from gang violence and street crime.

I look forward to working with my colleagues next year to continue the progress we have made and increase our commitment to innovation, science and technology.

LIHEAP

Mr. Kennedy. Mr. President, winter is coming, and it could easily become a perfect storm of high energy prices, bitter cold, and too little heat for those in need.

Households heating primarily with natural gas will pay an average of $396 more this winter for heat, an increase of an incredible 41 percent over last year. Those relying primarily on oil for heat will pay $325 more, an increase of 27 percent.

The poor, the elderly, and the disabled need our help and they need it now.

Wilhelmina Mathis is one example of what is happening to the most vulnerable in our society. Wilhelmina is 71 years old and lives alone. All last winter she kept her thermostat set at 60 degrees to save money. She hopes the Federal Government will come through with more LIHEAP money. She says: ‘I turn down the thermostat as low as I can and sometimes I turn it off and put on extra sweaters. I don’t know how much longer I can keep doing this.’

We have tried four times this year to increase funds for LIHEAP, and all four times we were defeated by the overwhelming Republican majority who voted in lock-step to reject it.

The failure of the Republican Congress to increase LIHEAP funds continues to put millions of our fellow citizens at risk. But the Bush administration and the Republican Congress are telling the elderly, the disabled, and the poor across America that it doesn’t matter if they have no heat this winter—they aren’t a priority.

In fact, the Republican leadership is forcing us to make impossible choices. Look at the Labor-HHS bill. The Republican leadership is telling us that if we fund LIHEAP, we must cut health care for seniors, cut education for our children, cut essential job training funds for people trying desperately to enter the workforce and attain a level of self-sufficiency.

It is unconscionable. Why are we being forced to help one family at the expense of another? We must increase LIHEAP funds and fight against cuts to other essential health, education, and labor programs. It is time for Congress to stand up for the American people.

We tell them we hear them and understand their struggle, now it is time to put our money where our mouth is. We need to stop the rhetoric and take action. The American people deserve nothing less.

Mr. Kohl. Mr. President, I rise as a cosponsor of the amendment offered yesterday by the Senator from Rhode Island to the tax reconciliation bill. This amendment addresses a concern that is on the mind of many Wisconsinites as winter quickly approaches—the increased cost of home heating.

The timing of this amendment could not be more relevant. This week, executives from several major oil companies attempted to defend their record-breaking profits over the last quarter, in a hearing before the Senate Commerce and Energy Committees. Despite their efforts, they were unable to provide adequate answers. More importantly, they were unable, or unwilling, to provide solutions that would ease the burden on American consumers.

I would like to remind my colleagues that while prices at the pump have declined slightly, we are not yet in the clear. Winter is just around the corner, and with colder temperatures comes higher heating bills. I know my constituents in Wisconsin care not only about the costs of filling their cars, but also the costs of heating their homes. As the profits of these oil companies continue, what answers can I provide to these constituents, these hard-working American families, about how they will pay their heating bills?

I believe the amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island was a first step towards offering my constituents some piece of mind when it comes to heating their homes. This amendment would have created a temporary, 1-year levy on the excess profits of U.S. oil companies to provide $2.92 billion for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program. Because the levy would only be in place for 1 year, and only effect profits made in 2005, this amendment would have no effect on gas prices or do anything to increase dependence on foreign oil. The amendment offered a simple, short-term solution that would provide real help to those who will need it most, when the temperature starts to drop.

The Energy Information Administration has forecasted significantly increased home heating costs. For those using home heating oil, the average increase in price will be $325 over last year. While that might not be much to the oil executives, I can assure you that it could mean going without heat for some families in Wisconsin. I believe it is the responsibility of the Federal Government to protect consumers when the market fails to do so.

I am deeply disappointed that the amendment failed to receive a majority vote. I assure my constituents that I will continue to work towards a comprehensive solution to high heating costs.

Mr. Carper. Mr. President, I am pleased to voice my support for the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program and for the Reed amendment that I cosponsored to S.2020, the tax reconciliation bill. The Reed amendment would have fully funded LIHEAP in fiscal year 2006 and would have paid for the increased funding with a temporary tax on the windfall profits of major oil companies.
The Senate fiscal year 2006 Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations bill took an important first step toward providing adequate LIHEAP funds by including $2.183 billion for the program for next fiscal year. This is a good starting point.

However, $2.183 billion represents only a very slight increase over fiscal year 2005 levels and is likely not enough to meet the needs of LIHEAP beneficiaries in the coming winter.

For this reason, I have worked to find ways to increase funding for the LIHEAP program and to do so in a manner that is fiscally responsible. The Reed amendment would have added $2.92 billion to the LIHEAP program and paid for this increase by taxing the windfall profits of major oil companies.

Some have criticized this windfall profits tax. Yet I believe that a temporary, limited tax on the windfall profits of companies is a reasonable way to help the least fortunate among us pay for their home energy needs.

Indeed, I believe that the country’s oil producers can afford to help pay for LIHEAP. In the month they reported record profits, ExxonMobil reported that their profits rose 75 percent, and in just 3 months they made $9.92 billion in profit. Similar record profits have been reported by all of the major integrated companies. Some of this increase in profit is due to oil prices that started to rise this summer even before Hurricanes Katrina and Rita struck the gulf coast. After the hurricanes, though, the price of gasoline, diesel, jet fuel and other refined oil products soared.

Our Nation is still struggling to recover from the disasters along the gulf coast. All Americans have had to make sacrifices as a result. This winter the country faces another crisis, record energy prices and associated increased household heating bills.

According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration, consumers who heat their homes with natural gas prices—about 55 percent of U.S. households—are expected to see their heating bills rise by 48 percent this winter. Those who heat with oil will pay 32 percent more, those who heat with propane will pay 30 percent more, and those who heat with electricity will pay 5 percent more.

These increases will take the greatest toll on the least fortunate among us. Low-income Americans will have a harder time heating their homes and may turn their heat down dangerously low in hopes of being able to pay their monthly bills.

That is why the LIHEAP program is so important. LIHEAP provides vital home energy assistance to low-income families to help them weatherize their homes and pay their energy bills.

The Reed amendment would have asked the oil companies that have profited so much from recent rising energy prices to help ease the burden of this winter’s high prices.

I am pleased with the approach taken by the Reed amendment because I believe that we should try to pay for increases in spending. I have been uncomfortable supporting some previous amendments to increase funding for the LIHEAP program because they did not find a way to pay for the increased spending.

Senator Reed has found a way not only to fund his vital program, but to pay for it as well.

Unfortunately, Senator Reed’s amendment was not accepted by the full Senate during consideration of the tax reconciliation bill. The amendment needed 60 votes to overcome a point of order and received only 59.

We will keep trying though.

The LIHEAP program serves a vital function in helping as many as 5 million low-income households who need a bit of help paying their energy bills or weatherizing their homes. I’m pleased to have been a cosponsor of the Reed amendment and I will continue to look for ways to increase funding for the LIHEAP program.

INTERNET GOVERNANCE

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise to say a few words about the resolution I submitted and which was approved by unanimous consent last Friday. I introduced this resolution this week, in support of the President’s position on Internet governance at the U.N. Summit on the Information Society. I thank the cosponsors on this resolution: Senators STEVENS, INOUYE, LEAHY, SMITHERS, SUNUNU, BILL NELSON, HUTCHISON, INHOFE and CRAIG. And I also acknowledge Senator COLEMAN for all his good work on this issue.

No one can really control the Internet. It is not supposed to be controlled. It is an archetypal and libera-ratively, of freedom—freedom of information, of speech, of interconnection, of religion. Because the Internet was developed and commercialized in the United States, it reflects those core American values, and boosts them all around the world. And the United States should be proud of the way it has handled the growth of the Internet—particularly in the way it has kept the private sector experts in charge, and government bureaucrats out.

I have been particularly concerned about the status of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers, ICANN, the private, expert body that oversees and manages the Internet’s "plumbing" that makes each Internet site unique and keeps the Internet a global unitary network. The United States created ICANN and its unique model of oversight, with the input of international stakeholders and U.S. government oversight. ICANN has been critical in making ICANN more responsive and more capable of carrying out its important technical mission. ICANN is not perfect. I have been critical of its shortcomings in the past, and will continue to do so in the future.

But I strongly support its model of governance that leaves the private-sector experts in charge.

The preliminary result from the U.N. conference seems to be good. Some of the worst ideas, such as creating a new U.N. bureaucracy instead of ICANN, or to direct ICANN, seem to have been avoided. But I will look closely at the final result and make sure that nothing have been agreed that could damage the Internet. I hope to hold a hearing in the Commerce Committee early next year about this, and I look forward to hearing the testimony of the key stakeholders at that time.

THE SUCCESS OF THE 1994 BRADY ACT

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, statistics released last month by the Department of Justice indicate that the 1994 Brady Act has had a meaningful impact on keeping firearms out of the hands of criminals. The Annual Bureau of Justice Statistics bulletin titled “Background Checks for Firearms Transfers” reported that nearly 125,000 firearm transactions to prohibited individuals were prevented in 2004 alone.

As my colleagues know, the 1994 Brady Act requires individuals seeking to acquire firearms from a federally licensed firearms dealer to undergo a background check. This process requires the applicant to provide a variety of personal information, which is not retained longer than 4 days unless the person is prohibited by law from receiving firearms. The primary factors that disqualify individuals from receiving firearms include felony or domestic violence convictions, identification as a fugitive or illegal alien, substance abuse, and serious mental illness. Unfortunately, membership in a known terrorist organization does not automatically disqualify an applicant from receiving or possessing a firearm under current law. This is one of the loopholes in our gun safety laws that should be addressed by Congress.

The Department of Justice reports that since enactment of the 1994 Brady Act, more than 1.2 million applications for firearms transfers have been rejected because disqualification was uncovered during a background check of the applicant. Of the applications that were rejected in 2004, 41 percent were rejected because the applicant had been convicted of or was adjudicated a felon. Unfortunately, in addition, 16 percent were rejected because of domestic violence convictions or a related restraining order.

According to the Department of Justice statistics, almost 80 percent of the rejected applicants in 2004 had a serious criminal history, had been involved in domestic violence, or were identified as a fugitive. This means that nearly 100,000 times last year, criminals and... known domestic abusers were denied access to dangerous firearms because of background checks required by the 1994 Brady Act.

Unfortunately, not all firearms transactions are subject to a background check. The law requires background checks on all transfers that involve a federally licensed firearms dealer. According to the Coalition to Stop Gun Violence: “two out of every five guns acquired in the United States; including guns bought at gun shows, through classified ads, and between individuals; change hands without a background check.” The Coalition to Stop Gun Violence also estimates that “extending criminal background checks to all gun transactions in the United States could prevent nearly 120,000 additional illegal gun sales every year.”

It is important that we do not infringe on the rights of law-abiding citizens. However, with those rights in mind and protected, we should not allow those with a violent or serious criminal record to acquire dangerous firearms. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of commonsense gun safety legislation, such as the 1994 Brady Act, that will make our nation safer.

AIR FORCE ACADEMY

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, in an era when college football players are almost universally derided as troublemakers, stories about football players who become leaders and role models off the field are indeed hard to find. One such leader currently exists at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Earlier this week the Air Force Academy announced that Andy Gray, a senior cadet, has been selected to take over as the commander of the entire 4,000-strong cadet wing next semester. In this selection Andy will serve as the chief liaison between the academy’s leadership and the cadet student body, akin to a student body president.

However, Andy is different than the average student body president. He has received extensive leadership training along with his fellow cadets. He has endured the rigorous cadet schedule of academics and military training. And, he has done it all while excelling as a member of the NCAA Division One Air Force Academy Falcon football team.

Andy is only the sixth football player to be chosen for this leadership role, and the first in 16 years. The last academy athlete to serve as the cadet wing commander was Delavane Diaz who played volleyball for the Falcons in 2003.

Andy Gray entered the academy in 2000 and played quarterback and defensive safety for much of his cadet career. In the fall of 2004, he was No. 1 on the depth chart as quarterback for the Falcons. That past season he played safety and had a big interception in the Air Force Academy’s victory over UNLV.

Becoming a cadet wing commander is not easy and requires candidates to go through a rigorous screening process. Only the top two cadets from each of the academy’s 35 squadrons are nominated to be considered. Then the pool is narrowed down to 20. Each of the surviving candidates is closely interviewed by a board that includes members of the academy’s leadership.

I commend Andy for his selection to be the academy’s cadet wing commander as a real honor for him, and I know he will not take his new responsibilities lightly. I wish Andy the best as he takes up this important leadership position.

I also applaud the academy’s football coach, Fisher DeBerry, for being such an outstanding role model for cadets like Andy. Coach DeBerry is a man of character who, for over 22 years, has turned hundreds of cadets into leaders while running a top-notch football program. I look forward to seeing in the future many more Academy football players become leaders in our Air Force.

THE SITUATION IN NEPAL

Mr. LEAHY. It may seem strange that on a day when the Congress is debating the budget resolution, I would be asking the Senate to turn its attention for a moment to the remote and tiny nation of Nepal.

I do so because for the past several years, a ruthless Maoist insurgency and a corrupt, repressive monarchy have brought this impoverished but breathtakingly beautiful country to the brink of disaster. It is important for the Nepalese people to know that while they may live half a world away, the difficulties they are facing have not gone unnoticed by the U.S. Congress.

It has been almost 9 months since Nepal’s King Gyanendra dismissed the multi-party government, suspended civil liberties, and arrested the prime minister along with other opposition political leaders, human rights defenders, pro-democracy student activists, and journalists.

The king’s explanation was that democracy had failed to solve the Maoist problem. He said that he would take care of it himself and then restore democracy after 3 years. It is true that Nepal’s nascent democracy has been replaced by the Maoist problem. Neither had the king. In the 4½ years since King Gyanendra assumed the throne and became commander-in-chief of the Nepalese army, the Maoists have grown from a minor irritant to a national menace. While the Maoists use threats and violence to extort money and property and they abduct children from poor Nepalese villagers, the army often brutalizes those same people for suspicion of supporting the Maoists. Like most armed conflicts, defenseless civilians are caught in the middle.

What the Nepalese people desire most is peace. Despite the king’s autocratic maneuvers on February 1, many would have given him the benefit of the doubt if he had a workable plan to quickly end the conflict. Nine months later, it is clear that he does not. One can only wonder why King Gyanendra thought that he could defeat the Maoists by disregarding the rule of law, disabling civic liberties, and surrounding himself with a clique of elderly advisers from the discredited, feudalistic Panchayat era.

For the United States, Great Britain, and India criticized the king’s actions and have urged him to negotiate with Nepal’s political parties to restore democratic government. Unfortunately, although he has released most political prisoners and reinstated some civil liberties, the king has increasingly behaved like a despot who is determined to consolidate his own power.

In the meantime, the Maoists declared a ceasefire. The violence has reportedly decreased, although abduction and extortion remain. Whether the ceasefire is a sinister ploy or a sincere overture for peace may never be known, however, because it is due to expire next month and neither the king nor the army has indicated a willingness to end the conflict.

Against this disheartening backdrop, the Congress, on November 10, 2005, approved my amendment to impose new restrictions on military aid for Nepal. On November 14, President Bush signed it into law. I want to briefly review what we did, and why.

The amendment says that before the Nepalese army can receive U.S. aid, the Secretary of State must certify that the Government of Nepal has “restored civil liberties, is protecting human rights, and has demonstrated, through dialogue with Nepal’s political parties, a commitment to a clear timetable to restore multi-party democratic government consistent with the 1990 Nepalese Constitution.”

This builds on an amendment that was adopted last year, which required the Secretary of State to certify that the Nepalese army was providing unimpeded access to places of detention and cooperating with the National Human Rights Commission, NHRC, to resolve security related cases of people in custody. Unfortunately, the Secretary was not able to make the certification. Not only were the NHRC’s methods replaced with a process that was contrary to Nepal’s constitution, the International Committee of the Red Cross suspected its visits to military detention centers because it was denied the free access it requires.

The Nepalese Government objects to any conditions on U.S. aid, arguing that the army needs help to fight the Maoists. The army does need help, but it also needs to respect the law and the rights of the Nepalese people. The Congress took this action only after it became clear that the king was no longer committed to an end of arbitrary arrests, disappearances, torture and extrajudicial killings by the army. The army’s abusive conduct, coupled with the king’s repressive actions since February 1, have contributed to a political crisis that threatens not only the future of democracy but the monarchy itself.

Economic aid to support health, agricultural, and other programs through nongovernmental organizations is not affected by my amendment. If the situation changes and the Secretary of State certifies that the conditions in U.S. law have been met, military aid can resume. But that alone will not solve the Maoist problem. The Maoists are expert at intimidating the civilian population and carrying out surprise attacks and melting back into the mountains. While they do not have the strength to defeat the army, neither can they be defeated militarily.

The only feasible solution is through a democratic political process that has the broad support of the Nepalese people. Perhaps seeking to placate his critics, the king, without consulting the political opposition parties, announced municipal elections for February 8, 2006. Not surprisingly, the parties say they will not participate in an electoral process dictated by the palace and the army, and the king’s handpicked representatives have taken control of local affairs and are unlikely to relinquish power.

The U.S. Embassy is skeptical of the Maoists’ intentions and has publicly discouraged the army and the king from reaching an accommodation with the Maoists. This is understandable, since the Maoists have used barbaric tactics that should be universally condemned. But this conflict cannot be won militarily. The people of Nepal, who for centuries have suffered the Maoists’ intentions and have publicly denounced them, are taking to the streets. It may not be long before the army is faced with a fateful choice. Will it continue to fight and when the army and the king’s handpicked representatives have taken control of local affairs and are unlikely to relinquish power.

Mr. President, last Tuesday the open enrollment period for the Medicare Part D prescription drug program began. This program has been praised by the administration as a great benefit for seniors, but I can tell you that seniors are not so sure. According to a survey conducted by the Kaiser Family Foundation, only 20 percent say they will sign up. Over one-third say they won’t, and the rest don’t know what they are going to do.

One thing we do know for sure is that seniors are confused and scared. I have received over 4,000 letters from them telling me so. And why wouldn’t they be. They have a series of complicated decisions to make.

First, they have to decide whether they want drug coverage. Do they already have drug coverage that is better or just as good as what is offered under the plan? And if they don’t, do the costs of the plan exceed the benefits? And what will happen in the future? Should they sign up now to avoid the penalty for signing up late?

Second, if they do decide to join the program, what plan do they choose? In California, 18 companies are providing 47 stand-alone prescription drug plans. These plans all have different premiums, copays, and lists of drugs they will cover. For those in managed care plans, if they choose one of the stand-alone drug plans instead of their managed care plan, they will lose their health coverage.

In addition, seniors must make sure that their neighborhood pharmacy accepts the plan. Otherwise, they will end up having to find a new pharmacy that is probably less convenient. And after all that, any plan can—on 60 days notice—change the list of drugs it covers.

Seniors, however, can change their plans only once a year. If seniors decide to participate, the benefit itself is meager. There is a large coverage gap—the so-called donut hole—so seniors must pay 100 percent of drug costs once they spend $2,250 and before they spend $5,100. Moreover, there is nothing in the program that will actually lower the cost of prescription drugs, and, in fact, Medicare is expressly prohibited from negotiating for lower prices.

Mr. President, the seniors who are the sickest and poorest have the most to lose with this new program. Those 6.1 million seniors are eligible for both Medicaid and Medicare. They are known as dual eligibles. Currently, State Medicaid programs cover their drug costs, but as of January 1, they will be switched to the less generous Medicare program, and the States will be prohibited from using Medicaid to provide better coverage.

We need to make changes to the program now so that our seniors do not suffer. That is why I am a proud co-sponsor of several bills that will change the harshest parts of this program. We must allow Medicare to negotiate on behalf of seniors to lower drug prices. We must allow States to use Medicaid to improve the drug coverage of the sickest and poorest seniors. We must end the coverage gap for all seniors. We must allow seniors more time to understand the program before they are required to enroll.

Mr. President, these changes are needed—and needed now. Without them, the promise of a Medicare prescription drug benefit may turn out to be a hollow one.

THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES EDUCATION ACT

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Chairman, I was proud to serve on the Education Committee when it recommended the original Education for the All Handicapped Children Act in 1975, and I am proud to join Senator ENZI today as a sponsor of this resolution, which recognizes the major impact of the law on the lives of disabled children and their families across the Nation, by guaranteeing the right of every disabled child to a free public education.

We know that disabled does not mean unable. Children with disabilities have the same dreams as every other child in America to grow up and lead a happy and productive life. We know that IDEA helps them fulfill that dream.

It says children cannot be cast aside or locked away because they have a disability. Those days are gone in America—hopefully forever.

Children with disabilities have rights like every other child in America, including the right to learn with other children in public schools and prepare themselves for the future.

But even as we celebrate 30 years of continuing success in the education of disabled children, we continue to hear objections to the act’s high cost, its paperwork, and the burden of litigation. These are important considerations, but we can’t let them overwhelm the vast benefit of IDEA.

The act is about disabled children and their rights. It is about their hopes and dreams of living independent and disabled children, but don’t have the support or training they need to fulfill it.

IDEA is our declaration as a nation that these children matter and that we will do all we can to help their parents and teachers and communities achieve their education goals. That is why the government should make a clear commitment to provide adequate funds for special education. What is needed is a solid education plan for each child, a way to chart the child’s progress, and a way to hold schools accountable if they fall short. That is not placing an unfair burden on schools. It is the correct expectation of a decent school system in America.

Brown v. the Board of Education struck down school segregation by race, and said that all children deserve equal access to education under the Constitution. But it wasn’t until the passage of the Education for the Handicapped Act in 1975 that the Brown decision had real meaning for children with disabilities.

Only then did we finally end school segregation by disability and open the doors of public schools to disabled children. Only then did the Nation’s 4 million disabled children begin to have the same opportunities as other children to develop their talents, share their gifts, and lead productive lives.

We must never go back to the days when disabled children were denied public education, when few if any pre-school children with disabilities received services, and when the disabled were pushed off to institutions and sub-standard schools to be kept out of sight and out of mind.

We have made immense progress since those days. Six and a half million children with disabilities now receive special education services. Almost all of them—96 percent—are learning alongside their nondisabled fellow students. The number of young children with early development problems who receive childhood services has tripled in the past 30 years. More disabled students are participating in State and national academic programs. Dropout rates and college enrollment rates for disabled students are steadily rising.

The opportunities for further progress are boundless. We know far more about disability today than a quarter century ago. We have much greater understanding of childhood disabilities, and how to help all such children to learn and achieve. We are finding out more and more each year about the power of technology to enable these children to lead independent lives. It means they can communicate with others, explore the world on the Internet, and move in ways we couldn’t have imagined 5 years ago, much less in 1975 when the law was first enacted.

I hope all our colleagues will join us in recognizing the extraordinary role of IDEA in protecting the rights and broadening the opportunities available to children with disabilities. Let’s work together to renew our commitment to IDEA and fulfill its great promise of hope for the future.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEDICATION AND OPERATION OF THE U.S. AIR FORCE ACADEMY

Mr. ALLARD. I rise today to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the dedication and operation of the U.S. Air Force Academy, located in my home State of Colorado. It is a privilege for Colorado to host the Academy for more than five decades. The Academy’s outstanding record of turning cadets into officers of integrity and honor is a source of pride for many in Colorado.

Yet sometimes when we drive on I-25 and pass the Air Force Academy’s beautiful campus, we assume that Academy has always been there. It is easy to forget the hard work it took to get the Academy to Colorado in the first place.

It all began in May of 1949 when then-Secretary of Defense James Forrestal appointed a commission to evaluate the general policy of military service. This commission was chaired by Robert L. Stearns, president of the University of Colorado and father-in-law of Supreme Court Justice Byron White. The commission also included other notables such as GEN. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was then president of Columbia University. The Stearns Board quickly agreed that the U.S. Air Force needed an academic institution where such an Academy should be established without delay.

Congress authorized the creation of the Air Force Academy in 1954. To determine the new institution a site had to be chosen. President then-Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott, appointed a team of individuals to assist him. The Academy Site Selection Board, as it was called, reviewed more than 580 locations in 34 States, and narrowed the field down to 7.1 of which was Colorado Springs, CO. A year later, the majestic 14,000 acre area in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains near Colorado Springs was chosen by Secretary Talbott to be the site for the new U.S. Air Force Academy.

The selection of the site, however, would prove to be easy part. The design and construction of the permanent location would take years to complete. In the meantime, the Air Force had to find an alternate site so classes and training could begin. Lowry Air Force Base in Denver took on this mission and hosted the Academy until permanent buildings could be constructed.

The Academy staff was activated in the summer of 1954 when LTG Hubert Harmon, who had previously served as special assistant for Air Force Academy matters and was a member of the 1949 Air Force Academy Site Selection Board, assumed command. President Eisenhower, a West Point classmate and close personal friend of General Harmon, personally selected him as the first superintendent, stating “Doodles” Harmon would be the best man for the job.

The staff had only 11 months to prepare for the arrival of the first class in the summer of 1955. Due to space limitations, only 306 young men were admitted into the first class, the class of 1959. Thousands of applications were reduced to a few hundred, and those selected were truly America’s “cream of the crop”.

Dedication Day began with the arrival of 306 young men on July 11, 1955. The morning was spent processing such as fitting uniforms and getting haircuts. By 11 a.m. they were all lined up for intensive drill instruction. That afternoon, the stands were filled with some 1,145 cadets marching from West Point and Annapolis, press, and parents. With a flight of B-36 bombers flying overhead and the USAF Band playing, the 306 cadets marched on the field in a near perfect formation.

At the time no one could have predicted that this small class would turn out Rhodes Scholars, numerous general officers and even All-American football players. Surprisingly, before they were to graduate, they would lead their football team to an unbeaten season and a tie in the 1959 Cotton Bowl, one of the most underrated achievements in the history of major college sports.

LTG Hubert Harmon retired with lung cancer before the first class graduated in 1959. He will be remembered for his tireless devotion to the establishment of the Academy. He was the first person interred at the Air Force Academy Cemetery and is recognized by many as the “Father of the Air Force Academy.”

Major General Briggs took over as the Academy’s second superintendent, and the magnificent new campus opened on September 8, 1959.

Many more cadets have graduated from the Academy. The achievements of those who have graduated from the Academy have been many: 315 of these graduates have become general officers, to include former Chiefs of Staff of the Air Force, Generals Ronald Fogelman and Mike Ryan, 32 cadets have been selected as Rhodes Scholars, and 539 have entered medical school.

Even more important, 128 graduates have given their lives in the defense of our Nation, and 36 have been prisoners of war. We honor those who have served our Nation with such sacrifice and patriotism.

Over the years, the Air Force Academy has had to confront several difficult challenges. The Academy has risen above these challenges and, in its quest for excellence, has become a model for other academic institutions.
to follow. The Air Force Academy continues to be recognized as an invaluable proving ground for tomorrow’s military leaders.

As we look back at the establishment of the Academy, we cannot help but be thankful to the work so hard and support the institution’s effort to train officers of integrity and honor. We salute the Air Force Academy’s 50 years of success and look forward to many more decades to come.

PREVENTING TAX INCREASES

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I want to take some time to discuss the importance of extending tax increases that are scheduled to occur over the next several years.

The budget resolution conference agreement reached in April provides reconciliation protection for $70 billion of tax cuts over 5 years, with the direction that the allocation be used to prevent tax increases during the budget window. This sent a signal to investors that capital gains and dividends tax rates would be extended through 2010. I am disappointed that the legislation potentially underfunded and did not meet that expectation. Fortunately, the bill approved by the Ways and Means Committee in the other body does, and I pledge to all investors that I will continue to work for that outcome. Indeed, the Senate majority leader pledged that he would not bring the bill back from conference without an extension of these investment tax rates. Similarly, the administration released its Statement of Administration Policy on the bill, which urged Congress to extend the lower rates for capital gains and dividends, noting, “These extensions are necessary to provide certainty for investors and businesses and are essential to sustaining long-term economic growth.”

The tax reconciliation bill is intended to prevent tax increases by extending “widely applicable” tax provisions. My colleagues might find it interesting that more taxpayers benefit from extending the dividends and capital gains than benefit from any of the provisions included in the tax reconciliation bill approved by the Senate. For example, nationwide, fewer than 8 million filers were helped by the AMT hold-harmless provisions in 2003, while more than 36 million filers reported dividend income and more than 22 million reported capital gains income. Of all filers reporting capital gains income in 2003, 30 percent had adjusted gross income under $30,000 compared to just 8.7 percent who had AGI of $200,000 or more. In Arizona, 18 percent of all filers reported capital gains income, and of those reporting capital gains income, 32 percent had AGI under $30,000.

The story is similar for tax filers reporting dividend income. Nationwide, 23 percent of all filers reported dividend income in 2003. Of all filers reporting dividend income in 2003, 30.6 percent had AGI under $30,000 compared to 6.9 percent who had AGI of $200,000 or more. In Arizona, 22 percent of all filers reported dividend income and, of those filers reporting dividend income, 32 percent had AGI under $30,000.

But beyond the number of taxpayers who have benefited directly, the most important thing to know about these lower rates that were enacted in 2003 is that they are working. At the lower rates, the tax penalty imposed on the additional investment earnings—the reward from taking on additional risk—is smaller, and thus makes the risk more attractive. When investors get to keep more of their reward, they are encouraged to invest more: with more investment, businesses have an easier time attracting the capital they need to expand and also create more jobs. It is all of this additional economic activity that creates economic growth.

All Americans have benefited as the economy has rebounded with the help from the dividend capital gains tax cuts that you endorsed. These extensions are necessary to provide certainty for investors and businesses and are essential to sustaining long-term economic growth.

The strong economy has had a very positive effect on the Government’s finances, as more revenue is flowing into the Treasury even at the lower tax rates. As a share of the Nation’s GDP, the 2005 deficit was 2.6 percent—down from 4.1 percent in 2004. In fiscal year 2005, taxpayers sent $274 billion more in revenue to Washington than the year before and $100 billion more than the Congressional Budget Office predicted. Clearly the American taxpayers are doing their part.

Yet some of my colleagues claim that we cannot afford to keep these lower rates, even though they have spurred economic growth, because we are still running a deficit. If we are to keep these tax rates, they argue, we must raise taxes someplace else. What they are seeking is a flawed formula of budget discipline called paygo or pay-as-you-go. I am consistently rated one of the most fiscally responsible Senators by nonpartisan watchdog groups, but I don’t support paygo because it has nothing to do with budget discipline when applied to taxes. The fact is, paygo simply does not work. Americans are not undertaxed; our problem is that Congress spends too much and paygo will do nothing to control the fastest growing part of the Federal budget: mandatory spending. Paygo only applies to new spending or tax cuts; it does not apply to existing mandatory programs that are locked in for 1 more year the increased exemption amounts for the alternative minimum tax that are scheduled to expire at the end of the year. Clearly, Congress must address the problem of the AMT in a comprehensive way, but until we can agree on a solution we must not allow these exemption amounts to fall back to their pre-2001 levels, millions of middle-income American families will get hit by the AMT. The bill also prevents the AMT from eroding certain credits.

The tax reconciliation bill also includes an extension of the increased small business expenses amounts. Under current law, small businesses can deduct the cost of qualified investments in the first year they are made, up to $100,000 indexed for inflation. After 2007, this amount will drop back to $25,000. The bill extends the increased amount through 2009. Allowing them to expense a greater portion of their investments enables small businesses, which create most new jobs, to invest and grow.

The bill also includes an extension of the saver’s credit. The saver’s credit is a nonrefundable tax credit that encourages low-income taxpayers to make contributions to an employer-provided retirement savings plan or an IRA. The tax reconciliation bill extends the credit through 2009; it is currently scheduled to expire at the end of 2006.

The bill also extends the above-the-line deduction for college-tuition expenses. Under current law, the provision that allows a taxpayer to take an above-the-line deduction that reduces the cost of college tuition expires at the end of 2005. The tax reconciliation bill would extend it through 2009, which will
BUDGET SCOREKEEPING REPORT

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I hereby submit to the Senate the budget scorekeeping report prepared by the Congressional Budget Office under Section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, as amended. This report meets the requirements for Senate scorekeeping of section 5 of S. Con. Res. 32, the first concurrence resolution on the budget for 1986.

This report shows the effects of congressional action on the 2006 budget through November 16, 2005. The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions of the 2006 concurrent resolution on the budget, H. Con. Res. 95. Pursuant to section 402 of that resolution, provisions designated as emergency requirements are exempt from enforcement of the budget resolution. As a result, the attached report excludes these amounts.

The estimates show that current level spending is under the budget resolution by $26.874 billion in budget authority and by $10.974 billion in outlays in 2006. Current level for revenues is $17.308 billion above the budget resolution in 2006.

Since my last report, dated September 26, 2005, the Congress has cleared and the President has signed the following acts that changed budget authority, outlays, or revenues: An act making continuing appropriations for Fiscal Year 2006, P.L. 109-77; Natural Disaster Student Aid Fairness Act, P.L. 109-86; Community Disaster Loan Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-88); Homeland Security Appropriations Act, 2006 (Public Law 109-90); Medicare Cost Sharing and Welfare Extension Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-91); Agriculture Appropriations Act, 2006 (Public Law 109-97); An act to extend the special postage stamp for breast cancer research for two years (Public Law 109-100); and Foreign Operations Appropriations Act, 2006 (Public Law 109-102).

In addition, Congress cleared, and sent to the President for his signature, the Energy and Water Appropriations Act, 2006 (H.R. 2419) and the State, Justice, and Commerce Appropriations Act, 2006 (H.R. 2862).

I ask unanimous consent that the report be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The enclosed tables show the effects of Congressional action on 2006 budget and are current through November 16, 2005. This report is submitted under section 308(b) and in aid of section 311 of the Congressional Budget Act, as amended.

The estimates of budget authority, outlays, and revenues are consistent with the technical and economic assumptions for fiscal year 2006 that underlie H. Con. Res. 95, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 2006. Pursuant to section 402 of that resolution, provisions designed as emergency requirements are exempt from enforcement of the budget resolution. As a result, the enclosed current level report excludes these amounts (see footnote 1 on Table 2).

Since my last letter, dated September 22, 2005, the Congress has cleared and the President has signed the following acts that changed budget authority, outlays, or revenues:

- An act making continuing appropriations for Fiscal Year 2006 (Public Law 109-77);
- Natural Disaster Student Aid Fairness Act (P.L. 109-86);
- Community Disaster Loan Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-88);
- Homeland Security Appropriations Act, 2006 (Public Law 109-90);
- Medicare Cost Sharing and Welfare Extension Act of 2005 (Public Law 109-91);
- Agriculture Appropriations Act, 2006 (Public Law 109-97);
- An act to extend the special postage stamp for breast cancer research for two years (Public Law 109-100); and

In addition, Congress cleared, and sent to the President for his signature, the Energy and Water Appropriations Act, 2006 (H.R. 2419) and the State, Justice, and Commerce Appropriations Act, 2006 (H.R. 2862).

The effects of the actions listed above are detailed in the enclosed tables. The tables also reflect an adjustment to exclude administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration, which are off-budget.

Sincerely,

DONALD B. MARRON
(For Douglas Holtz-Eakin, Director).

1. H. Con. Res. 95, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 2006, assumed the enactment of emergency supplemental appropriations for fiscal year 2006, in the amount of $50 billion in budget authority and approximately $6.4 billion in outlays, which would be exempt from the enforcement of the budget resolution. Since the current level totals exclude the emergency appropriations reported in Public Laws 109-103, 109-44, 109-49, 109-52, 109-53, 109-57, 109-77 and 109-88 (see footnote 1 on Table 2), the budget authority and outlay totals specified in the budget resolution have also been reduced (by the amounts assumed for emergency supplemental appropriations) for purposes of comparison.

2. Current level is the estimated effect on revenue and spending of all legislation that the Congress has enacted or sent to the President for his approval. In addition, full-year funding estimates under current law are included for entitlement and mandatory programs requiring annual appropriations even if the appropriations have not been made.

3. Excludes administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration, which are off-budget.

1. H. Con. Res. 95, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 2006, assumed the enactment of emergency supplemental appropriations for fiscal year 2006, in the amount of $50 billion in budget authority and approximately $6.4 billion in outlays, which would be exempt from the enforcement of the budget resolution. Since the current level totals exclude the emergency appropriations reported in Public Laws 109-103, 109-44, 109-49, 109-52, 109-53, 109-57, 109-77 and 109-88 (see footnote 1 on Table 2), the budget authority and outlay totals specified in the budget resolution have also been reduced (by the amounts assumed for emergency supplemental appropriations) for purposes of comparison.

2. Current level is the estimated effect on revenue and spending of all legislation that the Congress has enacted or sent to the President for his approval. In addition, full-year funding estimates under current law are included for entitlement and mandatory programs requiring annual appropriations even if the appropriations have not been made.

3. Excludes administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration, which are off-budget.
Mr. President, when it comes to energy, the Federal Trade Commission, FTC, is basically out of the consumer protection business.

Well over a year ago, I released a report documenting the Federal Trade Commission's campaign of inaction when it comes to protecting consumers at the gas pump. My report documented how the FTC has refused to challenge oil industry mergers that the Government Accountability Office says have raised gas prices at the pump by 7 cents a gallon on the West Coast. My report also documented how the FTC failed to act when refineries have been shut down or to stop anti-competitive practices like redlining and zone pricing.

Since then, nothing has changed. Despite the recent record-high prices for consumers and record profits by big oil companies, we are seeing a record level of inaction by the Federal Trade Commission, FTC, on behalf of energy consumers.

In the last few months, when the price of gasoline soared to an all-time record-high level, the FTC has been invisible. As far as I can tell, the FTC failed to take any action at all in the wake of hurricanes in the gulf that sent the price of gasoline skyrocketing to over $3 a gallon nationwide.

If you do a Google search on the “FTC and gasoline prices,” nothing comes up that shows the FTC is taking any action on behalf of energy consumers.

What you will find are statements by the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission arguing against giving the agency additional authority to protect consumers against price gouging at the gas pump. For example, the FTC Chairman recently made statements opposing Federal price gouging laws, because “they are not simple to enforce” and that they could do more harm to consumers.

But 28 States already have price gouging laws on their books and two state attorney General testified at last week’s joint hearing by the Senate Energy and Commerce Committees that these laws are more beneficial than harmful to consumers.

In her testimony before the joint Senate hearing last week, FTC Chairman Majoras described what I consider to be an astounding theory of consumer protection when she essentially said there is no need for Federal price gouging laws no matter how high the price goes. She argued that gasoline price gouging was a “local issue” even if the price gouger was a multinational oil company.

FTC officials also recently testified before Congress that the agency has no authority to stop price gouging by individual oil companies. Despite this clear gap in the agency’s authority, the FTC has refused to say what additional authority it needs to go after price gouging by individual oil companies.

FTC officials also recently testified before Congress that the agency has no authority to stop price gouging by individual oil companies. Despite this clear gap in the agency’s authority, the FTC has refused to say what additional authority it needs to go after price gouging, as I have pressed them to do for years.

Mr. President and colleagues, there is gasoline price gouging going on today and it didn’t start with Hurricane Katrina. As The Wall Street Journal documented in September, gasoline prices have increased twice as fast as crude oil price during the past year. Clearly, the oil companies are not simply passing on higher crude oil costs but are also adding on substantial increases to the cost of gasoline above and beyond the higher crude costs.

Since the early 1970s, there has never been the kind of disparity between increases in the price of gasoline and the increase in the price of crude oil that we are seeing today. We didn’t see this great of a price difference even in the days of the longest gas lines following the OPEC embargo.

Over the past 30 years, gasoline prices never rose more than 5 percent higher in a year than the cost of crude increased. But in the past year, gas price increases outpaced crude by 36 percent. And since Hurricane Katrina, the price difference has soared even higher to 68 percent.

Further evidence of price gouging can be found in what happened on the west coast immediately following Hurricane Katrina when prices surged 15 cents per gallon overnight. For years, oil industry officials, the Federal Trade Commission and other government agencies have maintained that the west coast is an isolated gasoline market from the rest of the country.

West Coast supplies were not affected by the hurricane. The west coast gets almost none of its gasoline from the gulf. If the west coast is an isolated market as the oil industry has claimed for years, then Katrina is no justification for jacking up gas prices on the west coast immediately after the hurricane hit.

The FTC is the principal consumer protection agency in the Federal Government. It is the Federal agency that... can and should take action when gasoline markets are going haywire as they have both before and since Hurricane Katrina.

But instead of action, we have excuses. In the past, the FTC often claimed that it was studying the problem or monitoring gasoline markets as an excuse for its inaction on gas pricing.

Recently, the FTC’s campaign of inaction extended to its studies. The FTC Chairman testified last week that a study of gas price gouging that Congress required the FTC to complete by this month would not be ready until next spring.

Mr. President, the FTC’s campaign of inaction is approaching the point of paralysis!

The FTC has continued its program of inaction on behalf of gasoline consumers despite findings by the U.S. Government Accountability Office, GAO, that the FTC’s policies are raising prices at the gas pump.

In May 2004, GAO released a major study showing how oil industry mergers threatened to go through during the 1990’s substantially increased concentration in the oil industry and increased gasoline prices for consumers by as much as seven cents per gallon on the West Coast.

Specifically, GAO found that during the 1990’s the FTC allowed a wave of oil industry mergers to proceed, that these mergers had substantially increased concentration in the oil industry and that almost all of the largest of the oil industry mega-mergers examined by GAO each had increased gasoline prices by one to two cents per gallon. Essentially, the GAO found that the FTC’s oil merger policies during the 1990’s had permitted serial price gouging.

Two years ago, when the current FTC Chairman, Deborah Majoras, came before the Senate for confirmation, I asked her to respond to the GAO’s report. Despite her promise to do so, I have yet to receive any response from Chairman Majoras.

The GAO is not alone in documenting how FTC regulators have been missing in action when it comes to protecting consumers at the gas pump. Since 2001, oil industry mergers totaling $19.5 billion have been unchallenged by the FTC, according to an article in Bloomberg News. The article also reported that these unchecked mergers may have contributed to the highest gasoline prices in the past 20 years.

According to the FTC’s own records, the agency imposed no conditions on 28 of 33 oil mergers since 2001.

You can see the results of the FTC’s inaction at gas stations in Oregon and across America. Nationwide, the GAO found that between 1994 and 2002, gasoline market concentration increased in all but four States. As a result of FTC merger policies, 46 States’ gasoline markets are now moderately or highly concentrated, compared to 27 States in 1994.

The FTC, oil industry officials and consumer groups all agree that in these concentrated markets, oil companies don’t need to collude in order to raise prices. The FTC’s former General Counsel William Kovacic has said that “It may be possible in selected markets for individual firms to unilaterally increase prices.”

Recently, the FTC General Counsel basically admitted that oil companies in these markets can price gouge with impunity. Mr. Kovacic is one of the two nominees for FTC Commissioner who is now before the Senate.

Despite all this evidence that gasoline markets around the country have become more concentrated and, in these concentrated markets, individual firms can raise prices and extract monopoly profits, the FTC has failed to take effective action to check oil industry mergers. In the vast majority of cases, the FTC took no action at all.

In addition to its inaction in merger cases, the FTC has failed to act against proven areas of anti-competitive activity.

Major oil companies are charging dealers discriminatory “Azone prices” that make it impossible for dealers to compete fairly at company-owned stations or even other dealers in the same geographic area. With zone pricing, one oil company sells the same gasoline to its own brand service stations at different prices. The cost to the oil company of making the gasoline is the same. In many cases, the cost of delivering that gasoline to the service stations is the same, but the price the service stations pay is not the same. And the station that pays the higher price is not the FTC.

Another example of anticompetitive practices now occurring in gasoline markets is a practice known as “redlining.” This involves oil companies making certain areas off-limits to independent gasoline distributors known as jobbers who could bring competition to the area.

The Federal Trade Commission’s own investigation of west coast gasoline markets found that practice of redlining was rampant in west coast markets and that it hurt consumers. But the FTC concluded it could only take action to stop this anti-competitive practice if the redlining was the result of out-and-out collusion, a standard that is almost impossible to prove in court.

In my home State of Oregon, one courageous gasoline dealer took on the oil company and won a multi-million dollar court judgment in a case that involved redlining. This dealer gave the evidence he used to win his case in court to the Federal Trade Commission. But the Federal Trade Commission concluded that a consumer protection agency in the Federal Government failed to do anything to help this dealer or reign in the anti-competitive practices at issue in his case.

In areas other than energy, the Federal Trade Commission has been a great consumer protection agency. It has not hesitated to move aggressively to act on behalf of consumers.

To give one example, the FTC created a “Do Not Call” program to prevent consumers from being hassled at home by telemarketers. With its “Do Not Call” program, the agency pushed to protect consumers to the limits of its authority and even went beyond what the courts said it had authority to do.

But in the case of energy, the FTC has a regulatory blind spot. And this has been true in both Democratic and Republican administrations. It’s been a bipartisan blind spot that keeps the agency from looking out for gasoline consumers.

The FTC won’t even speak out on behalf of consumers getting gouged at the gas pump. The agency won’t use its bully pulpit to even say that record-high gasoline prices are an issue of concern, that they will be looking at closely.

The FTC’s approach on gas prices has got to change. I’m not going to support the business as usual approach on energy we’ve seen for too long at the FTC. So, I have asked the Senate leadership for additional time to study the views of the two nominees to the Federal Trade Commission, Mr. William Kovacic and Mr. Majoras. I have just received detailed letters and other documents from each of them.

I have asked the leadership for time for consultation on these two nominations, as it is not my intent at this time to lodge a formal objection to a unanimous consent request to consider them. I will use the time between now and when the Senate returns in December to examine their records more carefully and reach a decision as to whether these individuals are committed to and will in fact work aggressively toward changing the culture of inaction at the FTC regarding consumer protection in the energy field.

TRIBUTE TO EARL LEE MONHOLLAND

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise today to mark the loss of one of my staff members and to make a statement for The CONGRESSIONAL RECORD about the good work of this individual for the people of Iowa. Earl Lee Monholland died at home on October 31, 2005, due to heart illness, at the age of 37. Earl worked on my staff for 12 years and is aconstituent specialist in Davenport, Cedar Rapids, and Washington, DC. He was a dedicated public servant who thoroughly enjoyed helping Iowans. He was committed to providing assistance in a responsive and timely manner and to making sure that whatever could be done got done on behalf of a constituent having problems with the Federal bureaucracy. Earl also was an outstanding colleague to his fellow staff members, going out of his way to make things work for the constituents and to assist the computer systems. I greatly appreciate the fine work that Earl did during the last 12 years and the unassuming way he got the job done. There is no doubt that Earl Monholland will be missed by his friends and colleagues on the Grassley staff.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF J. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, Dr. Allan Goodman, President of the Institute for International Education, recently passed along a speech that Senator John F. Kennedy delivered in Pembroke College commemorating the 100th Anniversary of the Birth of J. William Fulbright.

Senator LUGAR is one of the finest statesmen in the Senate, and I have enjoyed working closely with him on a number of issues. His speech at Pembroke College highlights his leadership and insight on U.S. foreign policy.

I ask unanimous consent that his speech be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD so that all Senators can see these thoughtful remarks.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH OF J. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT

My Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen, it is an honor to have the opportunity to deliver this address as we commemorate the 100th anniversary of Senator J. William Fulbright’s birth and celebrate the achievements of a visionary statesman, humanitarian, and son of Pembroke College. It is particularly moving to be here in a place that meant so much to Senator Fulbright and to which he so often returned.

Last year, I joined 25 of my classmates for the 50th reunion of the entering Class of 1954 at Pembroke College, and we have continued that tradition through our correspondence. I was the only American in the College in 1954, but was elected President of the JCR the following year in a most generous spirit of Trans-Atlantic cooperation. The election provided a spur to my vivid imagination of what might happen in years to come.

THE EXAMPLE OF SENATOR FULBRIGHT

Soon after I arrived at Pembroke, my tutor, Professor R.B. McCallum, told me about his tutorial work with Senator William Fulbright of Arkansas. I did not have the pleasure of serving with Senator Fulbright in the Senate, but I wrote to Master McCallum about him in 1974, two years before I was elected to represent Indiana. But his influence on my career and development was profound and permanent.

Senator Fulbright and I shared a remarkable number of common experiences, though generally these occurred decades apart. Both of us served on the Senate Foreign Relations Scholarships after earning our bachelor’s degrees. Both of us chose to study at Pembroke College. Both of us focused much attention on government leadership while at Oxford. And both of us were blessed with the same tutor, R. B. McCallum. Senator Fulbright studied under the Master near the beginning of his career, while I was tutored much later.

Both of us were elected to the Senate from our home states—Arkansas in his case, and Indiana in mine. Both of us served on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which has oversight of U.S. foreign policy and diplomacy. Both of us, ascended to the chairmanship of this Committee.

Senator Fulbright, in fact, holds the record as the longest serving chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, a remarkable tenure from disarmament and economic development.

Since the beginning of the United States Senate, there have been only 1884 Senators. Of these, only 48 have served five complete terms. So Senator Fulbright was a member of this exclusive club, having served from 1945 through 1974. At the end of next year, I would join this group of Senators who have served at least five terms.

Like Senator Fulbright, I discovered the extraordinary challenges and opportunities of international education at Pembroke College—indeed, across the United States. The parameters of my imagination expanded enormously during this time, as I gained a sense of how large the world was, how many talented people there were, and how many opportunities one could embrace.

In my first year of residence at Pembroke College, embodied by Master McCallum’s Fulbright stories, I decided to write to Senator Fulbright. He was in the midst of an embattled relationship with Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, and he shared with me his thoughts on the McCarthy era in a series of letters as our correspondence expanded. I was deeply moved that he took the time to write to me and even more astonished to learn, years later, that he had kept my letters.

He was especially generous to me when I became Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee in 1985 for the first time. He wrote: “It is an unusual coincidence that two Rhodes men from Pembroke should be Chairmen of the Committee of the United States. The parameters of my imagination expanded enormously during this time, as I gained a sense of how large the world was, how many talented people there were, and how many opportunities one could embrace.”

In my judgment, the impact of the Fulbright program—bears his name each year, approximately 2,600 international students receive scholarships to study in the United States through the Fulbright program. Simultaneously, it provides approximately 2,000 American students the opportunity to study abroad. In addition, 1,000 American scholars and 700 international students teach and conduct research each year under Fulbright grants. Since Senator Fulbright’s legislation passed in 1946, the program has provided more than 250,000 participants the chance to study, teach, and conduct research in a foreign country. As Master McCallum declared in 1963, “Fulbright is responsible for the greatest movement of scholars across the frontiers of the world since the fall of Constantinople in 1453.”

Fulbright students and scholars are selected according to academic achievement and leadership potential. Alumni of the program have received 35 Nobel Prizes, 65 Pulitzer Prizes, 22 MacArthur Foundation “genius” awards, and 15 U.S. Presidential Medals of Freedom.

The Fulbright Program’s remarkable contributions to the development of the 290,000 participants provide ample justification for its continued support. Fulbright expected much more. He was unabashed in his advocacy of the program as a foreign policy tool. For him, the Fulbright Program was intended to give participants a chance to learn, years later, how they had kept my letters.

The Fulbright Program at Work

Last year, I traveled to Georgia and met with President Saakashvili of Georgia. I asked our Embassy in Rabat to set up a meeting with Moroccan opinion leaders to discuss bilateral ties and regional issues. The meeting has been more successful than I expected. In most nations, such groups of opinion leaders will contain Fulbright alumni. Sure enough, two of the seven guests had benefited from study in the United States through the Fulbright program—a college President who had done research at Princeton University and a law professor who had done research at George Washington University.

In my judgment, the impact of the Fulbright program as a foreign policy tool has extended well beyond the accomplishments of Senator Fulbright and his successors. It has been the most influential large-scale model for promoting the concept of international education, and it has been the primary planning tool for the American university system to the rest of the world.

In the United States, we have criticized and lamented some aspects of our public diplomacy since the end of the Cold War. But hosting foreign students has been an unqualified public diplomacy success. In numerous hearings and debates on public diplomacy, the Foreign Relations Committee has heard reports of the impact of foreign exchanges. Of the 12.8 million students enrolled in higher education in the United States during the last academic year, almost 600,000—some 4.6 percent—were foreign undergraduate and graduate students. My home state of Indiana currently is the temporary home of about 13,500 foreign students. The success of American universities with foreign students would not have been as pronounced without the stimulation of foreign interest in American higher education provided by the Fulbright program.

Last year, I traveled to Germany and met with President Bush and President Chirac. President Saakashvili received his law degree from Columbia University, where he studied under the Muskie Fellowship program. In fact, almost all of his cabinet had attended an American college or university during their academic careers.
The result was that the leadership of an important country had a personal understanding of the core elements of American society and governance. Perhaps more importantly, the education of the populace from generation to generation of alliances and friendships between nations is making could make up for a lack of military strength or even skillful decision-making. A particular nation must continue to invest in its own power is a sign of God's favor.''

Senator Fulbright understood that a great nation had a personal understanding of the world is incomplete. It is particularly susceptible to the idea that its itself with virtue and a great nation is particularly susceptible to the idea that its power is a sign of God's favor.''

Senator Fulbright understood that a great nation must continue to invest in its own wisdom and capabilities for human interaction. He understood that no amount of military power and even skillful decision-making could make up for a lack of alliances, trading partners, diplomatic capabilities, and international respect. Maintaining alliances and friendships between nations is hard work. No matter how close allies become, centrifugal forces generated by basic differences in the size, location, wealth, histories, and political systems of nations tend to pull nations apart. Alliances work over long periods of time only when leaders and citizens continually reinvigorate the union and its purposes.

THE BUILDING BLOCKS OF FOREIGN POLICY

Often we need to pause to remember that the practice of foreign policy is not defined by a set of decisions. Unfortunately, report- ers, and even most scholars, often portray foreign policy as the geopolitical chess game or a series of great diplomatic events. This perception is reinforced by books and movies that dramatize diplomatic history, like the Cuban Missile Crisis. These events capture our imagination, because we relive the struggles of leaders during times of great risk as they weigh the potential consequences of their actions. We ask whether Presidents and Prime Ministers were right or wrong in adopting a particular strategy.

But Senator Fulbright understood that crisis decision-making is a very small slice of a nation's foreign policy. He understood that a successful foreign policy depends much more on how well a nation prepares to avoid a crisis. When a nation gets to the point of having a serious disease depending on good nutrition, conditions, and the environment. Whether a body will recover depends on how well a nation prepares to avoid a crisis.

The destruction of a decaying nuclear warhead, the links between international epidemiologists, and the training of an individual scholar appear to be small matters in the context of global affairs. But these are exactly the kinds of building blocks on which international security and human progress depend.

THE SOURCE OF NATIONAL POWER

Since September 11, 2001, the United States has been engaged in a debate over how to apply national power and resources most ef- fectively as the United States has made a deep commitment to national security. Recent foreign policy discussions have often focused on whether to make concessions to world opinion or whether to pursue a more assertive posture. What we needed was an understanding that interests unencumbered by the need to seek the counsel and support of the international community. But this is a false choice. National se- curity can raise, however, on the support of the international community, only because American resources and influence are finite.

Throughout this process, I have been making the point that we are not placing suffi- cient weight on the diplomatic and economic tools of national power. Even as we seek to capture key terrorists and destroy terrorist cells, we must be working with many nations to perfect a longer term strategy that re- chief that are not conducive to terrorist recruitment and influence.

To survive and to prosper in this century, the United States must assign U.S. economic and diplomatic capabilities a larger role. We must commit ourselves to a sustained program of repairing and building alliances, expanding trade, fighting disease, pursuing resolutions to re- solve conflicts, fostering democratic develop- ment, and building alliances, expanding trade, controlling weapons of mass destruction, and explaining our values to the world.

Very fortunately, leaders of the United Kingdom have been thinking with us and working with us during these years of world- wide terrorist threats and severe challenges to human values. Earlier this year, I enjoyed a breakfast meeting with Prime Minister Tony Blair at the British Embassy in Wash- ington. I think it and later a conversation with President Bush in his offices at 10 Downing Street. We discussed development assistance and debt forgiveness in Africa; democracy building in Iraq; the many challenges we face in confronting threats to the United States, Great Britain, and many other places; and how to maintain U.S.-UK. solidarity, even in the midst of po- litical partisanship. During his visit to the House of Commons and the U.S. Congress, Foreign Minister Jack Straw has been a frequent vis- itor to my Senate office, and I will enjoy ad- ditional visits with British officials in Lon- don in the next few days.

In addition to the vision of William Ful- bright, which we celebrate today, I am cer- tain that he would join me again in the vision of Cecil Rhodes as he established the Rhodes scholarships, which brought us to Pembroke. In the years of our selection, Sen- ator Fulbright and I were one of 22 young Americans who were given an extraordinary opportunity through the generosity of the Rhodes Trust to come to Oxford University. We both chose Pembroke College and were admitted to this College. That opportunity changed the horizons of our lives, our expec- tations, and what we understood and our obligations to assume more risks and to un- dertake more challenges in the service of others.

Many of my Rhodes Scholar scholars put it very bluntly when he asked, ‘‘Why should we put Rhodes Trust money on you as opposed to any of the thousands of talented young Americans we could choose?’’

A host of circumstances finally made it possible for both of us to serve as a U.S. Sen- ator and as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. I cannot help but wonder if I would have enjoyed these opportu- nities without those remarkably formative two years at Pembroke College, I feel safe in saying that neither I, nor I would have approached international scholar- ships, international diplomacy, and a pas- sionate quest for world peace with the same inspiration and tenacity. My Rhodes Scholar experiences at Pembroke College, Oxford University.

As Senator Fulbright explained in a 1945 Senate speech, just before the end of the war in Europe, ‘‘Peace does not consist merely of a solemn declaration or a well-drafted Con- vention. It is the beginning of a con- tinuing process that must go on from day to day, from year to year, so long as our civiliza- tion shall last.’’

The process of such peacemaking will de- pend on our willingness to prepare for the long-term future as Senator Fulbright did—

NATIONAL PRIDE AND NATIONAL HUMILITY

Funding a great foreign exchange program is a sign of both national pride and national humility. Implicit in such a program is the audacious view that people from other nations view one’s country and educational institutions view one’s country and educational system as a beacon of knowledge—as a place where thousands of top international scholar- ships, international diplomacy, and a pas- sionate quest for world peace with the same inspiration and tenacity. My Rhodes Scholar experiences at Pembroke College, Oxford University.

EARLIER THIS WEEK, I PRESIDED OVER A HEARING OF THE SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE THAT WAS CONCERNED WITH THE POTENTIAL THREAT FROM AVIAN INFLUENZA. IF THE H5N1 VIRUS DE- VELOPS INTO A DISEASE THAT IS EFFICIENTLY TRANSMISSIBLE BETWEEN HUMANS, TENS OF MILLIONS OF LIVES WORLDWIDE WILL BE AT RISK. NO NATION IS LIKELY TO BE SPARED THE EFFORTS OF SUCH A DISEASE AND THE WORKING GROUPS COME TOGETHER TO DETECT THE EMERGENCE OF NEW STRAINS AND TO CONTAIN QUICKLY AN OUTBREAK COULD GREATLY MITIGATE THE RISK. IN A VERY REAL AND CONCRETE WAY, WE NEED TO COMMUNICATE AND WORK WITH EACH OTHER ACROSS BORDERS MAY WELL DETERMINE THE FATE OF MILLIONS OF PEOPLE. THE EFFECTIVENESS OF OUR RE- SISTANCE TO TERRORISM, FOSTERING DEMOCRACY AND DEVELOPMENT WORLDWIDE, CONTROLLED WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION, AND EXPLAINING OURSELVES TO THE WORLD. VERY FORTUNATELY, LEADERS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM HAVE BEEN THINKING WITH US AND WORKING WITH US DURING THESE YEARS OF WORLD- WIDE TERRORIST THREATS AND SEVERE CHALLENGES TO HUMAN VALUES.

EARLIER THIS YEAR, I JOYED A BREAKFAST MEETING WITH PRIME MINISTER TONY BLAIR AT THE BRITISH EMBASSY IN WASH- INGTON. I THINK IT AND LATER A CONVERSATION WITH PRESIDENT BUSH IN HIS OFFICES AT 10 DOWNING STREET. WE DISCUSSED DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE AND DEBT FORGIVENESS IN AFRICA; DEMOCRACY BUILDING IN IRAQ; THE MANY CHALLENGES WE FACE IN CONFRONTING THREATS TO THE UNITED STATES, GREAT BRITAIN, AND MANY OTHER PLACES; AND HOW TO MAINTAIN U.S.-UK. SOLIDARITY, EVEN IN THE MIDST OF POLITICAL PARTISANSHIP.

DURING HIS VISIT TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS AND THE U.S. CONGRESS, FOREIGN MINISTER JACK STRAW HAS BEEN A FREQUENT VIS- ITOR TO MY SENATE OFFICE, AND I WILL ENJOY ADDITIONAL VISITS WITH BRITISH OFFICIALS IN LONDON IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS.

IN ADDITION TO THE VISION OF WILLIAM FUL- BRIGHT, WHICH WE CELEBRATE TODAY, I AM CERTAIN THAT HE WOULD JOIN ME AGAIN IN THE VISION OF Cecil Rhodes AS HE ESTABLISHED THE RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS, WHICH Brought US TO PEMBROKE. In THE YEARS OF OUR SELECTION, SENATOR FULBRIGHT AND I WERE ONE OF 22 YOUNG AMERICANS WHO WERE GIVEN AN EXTRAORDINARily OPPORTUNITY THROUGH THE GENEROSITY OF THE RHODES TRUST TO COME TO OXFORD UNIVERSITY.

WE BOTH CHOSE PEMBROKE COLLEGE AND WERE ADMITTED TO THIS COLLEGE. THAT OPPORTUNITY CHANGED THE HORIZONS OF OUR LIVES, OUR EXPECTATIONS, AND WHAT WE UNDERSTOOD AND OUR OBLIGATIONS TO ASSUME MORE RISKS AND TO UNDERTAKE MORE CHALLENGES IN THE SERVICE OF OTHERS.

MANY OF MY RHODES SCHOLAR SCHOLARS PUT IT VERY BLUNTLY WHEN HE ASKED, ‘‘WHY SHOULD WE PUT RHODES TRUST MONEY ON YOU AS OPPOSED TO ANY OF THE THOUSANDS OF TALENTED YOUNG AMERICANS WE COULD CHOOSE?’’

A HOST OF CIRCUMSTANCES FINALLY MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR BOTH OF US TO SERVE AS A U.S. SENATOR AND AS CHAIRMAN OF THE SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE.

SOMALIA

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I wish to express my deep concern regarding recent news reports about piracy off the coast of Somalia. As we all know, Somalia has been without a central, recognized government for well over a decade. It has been over 3 years since I chaired a series of hearings in the Foreign Relations African Affairs Subcommittee on weak and failing states in Africa, one of which focused on the dire situation in Somalia and inadequate U.S. policy there. Years later, U.S. policy is still stagnant, I am sorry to report, and the danger persists, as these news reports indicate. The time is long overdue for the U.S. to make a long-term commitment to addressing this potential trouble spot.

I have consistently urged the Administration to be vigilant in focusing on weak states and their role in the global fight against terrorism. All the characteristics of some of Africa’s weakest states—manifestations of lawlessness such as piracy, illicit air transport networks, and traffic in arms and gemstones—can make the region attractive to terrorists and international criminals. Regrettably, Somalia is still not on the administration’s radar.

According to recent press reports, pirates off the coast of Somalia are building strength and growing comfortable in expanding their attacks. Despite a lull in pirate attacks over the last 2 years, in just the last 6 months there have been 25 attacks off the coast, according to the International Maritime Bureau. Attacks are no longer confined to the coast but reportedly include raids on ships hundreds of miles from the coast of the Indian Ocean. The resources and the audacity of the pirates appear to be growing. The attacks pose a tremendous threat to stability and economic development in the region, including neighboring countries such as Kenya and Djibouti that rely on maritime trade and tourism. The more organized the pirates become, the more creatively their crimes, the more we are faced with another potential front in the fight against terrorism, one involving a state-less network of some of the worst international actors.

The State Department 2004 report on counter terrorism in Africa states that the Somalia-based al-Ittihad al-Islami, AIAI, “has become highly factionalized and diffuse, and its membership is difficult to define” and that “some members are sympathetic to and maintain ties” with al-Qaeda. State Department officials also acknowledge that AIAI is financing basic civil society needs in Somalia, including schools and basic health care. The international community is failing to empower Somali civil society. Without our attention and support, how long do we expect this community to refuse basic human needs funded by terrorist organizations? And what are the consequences of groups like AIAI being perceived by the Somali people as generous benefactors? The U.S. must work harder at providing an alternative to such extremist influences in Somalia.

We can no longer insulate ourselves from weak and failing states in Africa, one of which focused on the dire situation in Somalia and inadequate U.S. policy there. Years later, U.S. policy is still stagnant, I am sorry to report, and the danger persists, as these news reports indicate. The time is long overdue for the U.S. to make a long-term commitment to addressing this potential trouble spot.

I have consistently urged the Administration to be vigilant in focusing on weak states and their role in the global fight against terrorism. All the characteristics of some of Africa’s weakest states—manifestations of lawlessness such as piracy, illicit air transport networks, and traffic in arms and gemstones—can make the region attractive to terrorists and international criminals. Regrettably, Somalia is still not on the administration’s radar.

According to recent press reports, pirates off the coast of Somalia are building strength and growing comfortable in expanding their attacks. Despite a lull in pirate attacks over the last 2 years, in just the last 6 months there have been 25 attacks off the coast, according to the International Maritime Bureau. Attacks are no longer confined to the coast but reportedly include raids on ships hundreds of miles from the coast of the Indian Ocean. The resources and the audacity of the pirates appear to be growing. The attacks pose a tremendous threat to stability and economic development in the region, including neighboring countries such as Kenya and Djibouti that rely on maritime trade and tourism. The more organized the pirates become, the more creatively their crimes, the more we are faced with another potential front in the fight against terrorism, one involving a state-less network of some of the worst international actors.

A multifaceted approach is necessary for the future of Somalia and for the future of our own campaign against terrorism. We cannot stand by as terrorist threats cross borders and destabilize the Horn of Africa. The international community must intensify its maritime vigilance. The U.S. long-term policy should include coordinating with regional actors in Africa and the international community to aid positive actors working in Somalia, build institutional capacity and legitimacy, promote national reconciliation, and sever community dependency on terrorist funding for basic services. These are difficult challenges, but Somalia is non-hostile terrain. Governments and opposing factions are requesting international mediation and attention. They are asking us to act, and we must answer the call, for their sake as well as ours.

CSBG

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, no one is more committed to the Community Services Block Grant than I am. The Community Services Block Grant program helps to strengthen communities through services for poor individuals and families, assisting these low-income individuals to become self-sufficient. CSBG provides critical services to poor families throughout the country. Services offered by CSBG entities can help support these important social services programs such as: Head Start, Low Income Home Energy Assistance Programs, LIHEAP, weatherization, literacy and job training programs, child health care, after-school programs, housing and homeownership services, financial literacy and asset development, and food pantries and meal programs. In FY 2002, the 1,100 community action network served more than 13 million individuals in more than 4 million families nationwide.

Over the past few months, I have received dozens of letters from Community Action Agencies from across the country, thanking me for my efforts on behalf of the Community Services Block Grant. I along with Senator Chris Dodd, spearheaded a letter, signed by 56 of our colleagues, Republicans and Democrats alike, urging Senate conferees to the Labor/HHS/Education Appropriations bill to uphold the Senate position of $637 million. I understand that the conference report on the Labor/HHS/Education Appropriations bill includes $637 million for CSBG.

I hope that the conference report on the Labor/HHS/Education Appropriations bill will be enacted soon and that these vital resources will be directed to important services for low income individuals.

Moreover, I cannot support the Harkin amendment because if that amendment passed, it would result in an interruption of funding not only for CSBG, but for all the social spending programs that low income individuals count on that is not a responsible course of action.

We should not make support for CSBG a partisan issue—we should work together to enact the Labor/HHS/Education Appropriations Conference Report that will provide money that can be appropriately directed to fund these important services.

COMMERCJE-JUSTICE-SCIENCE APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I want to express my disappointment in the cuts that the conference report for H.R. 2862, the Departments of Commerce, Justice, Science, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2006, made to important grant programs that assist State and local law enforcement agencies. I voted in favor of H.R. 2862 because of the other important programs that it funds, but I have grave concerns about these particular grant funding cuts.

I believe that Congress, in partnership with States and local communities, has an obligation to provide the tools, technology, and training that our Nation’s law enforcement officers need in order to protect our communities. I have consistently supported a number of Federal grant programs, including the Community Oriented Policing Services, COPS, Program, which is instrumental in providing funding to train new officers and provide crime-fighting technologies. I also have long supported funding for the Byrne Grant Program, which provides funding to help fight violent and drug-related crime, including support to multijurisdictional drug task forces, drug courts, drug education and prevention programs, and many other efforts to reduce drug abuse and drug offenders. I know how important these programs have been to Wisconsin law enforcement efforts, in particular with regard to fighting the spread of methamphetamine abuse. Both of these programs suffered funding cuts in the conference report for H.R. 2862, which the Senate passed on November 16, 2005.
Funding for the COPS Program has been reduced dramatically in recent years. In fiscal year 2003 the COPS Program received $929 million in Federal funding. In fiscal year 2004, that level was reduced to $756 million, only to drop again in fiscal year 2005 to $666 million. And, for fiscal year 2006, the funding level has again been reduced to a mere $487.3 million, a dramatic decrease just over the last 3 fiscal years. This is unacceptable. Funding for these grant programs has continued to be critical, even as the needs of law enforcement officers, our first responders, grow.

Funding cuts like the ones to the COPS Program have been mirrored in cuts to Byrne grants. For fiscal year 2006, the administration’s budget proposal would have completely eliminated this critical law enforcement program in full. Congress rightly rejected the administration’s unjustified attempt to entirely do away with this important program, but unfortunately the funding level provided this year is inadequate. In fiscal year 2003, Byrne and the local law enforcement block grants, which have now been merged into one program, received a total of $900 million in Federal funding. By fiscal year 2005, that number was reduced to $634 million. This year, the Byrne program will receive a meager $416 million in Federal funding. It is irresponsible to habitually take the rug out from under our hard-working law enforcement officers by taking away their access to the funding they need to keep our communities across the country safe.

It is my hope that in the next fiscal year, the administration and Congress will work together to repair the damage done and increase critical funding to these and other programs that assist our State and local law enforcement officers on a daily basis.

THE KENNEDY CENTER HONORS
TONY BENNETT

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I welcome the opportunity to join in commending one of America’s greatest artists who will receive a Kennedy Center Honors Award next month. Tony Bennett is renowned and revered by millions because of his extraordinary talent and outstanding musical career which spans a half century, and he will always be a part of America’s musical legacy. His performances are part of our national songbook—tunes each of us know by heart and love to hear time and again. His distinctive voice and inspiring interpretations have set the standard for musical artists across the years. His signature song, “I Left My Heart in San Francisco,” was released over 40 years ago, but it is as fresh today as it was in 1962, the year it won three Grammy awards.

His album “MTV Unplugged” captured the hearts of a new generation and was awarded a Grammy for Album of the Year in 1994. It was also one of the most successful recordings in a career that includes countless other musical awards and accomplishments. He has left his heart in communities far beyond San Francisco. Still today, he remains forever young at heart, as one of America’s most beloved musical icons who continues to entertain us and enrich all our lives.

It is gratifying to know that his remarkable career will be recognized in the Honors upstairs at the Kennedy Center next month as a tribute to his enduring contributions to our national cultural heritage.

Countless lives have been touched by his artistry. This year at the Kennedy Center Honors, the country will have the opportunity to thank him for all that he has done so well for so long.

KENNEDY CENTER SALUTES ROBERT REDFORD

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, each year the Kennedy Center pays tribute to distinguished artists who have made extraordinary contributions to the American cultural experience. The Nation will be delighted to know that this year Robert Redford will receive one of these prestigious awards.

Mr. Redford exemplifies the record of achievement and accomplishment that define the Kennedy Center Honors Awards. With special grace and great talent, he has become a legend in film. His roles as an actor are among the most memorable ever on screen. He can be charming, as he was in Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, The Sting, and Barefoot in the Park. He can be serious, as he was in The Candidate and All the President’s Men. And he is always compelling—never more so than in The Great Gatsby and A River Runs Through It.

Mr. Redford is equally accomplished as a director and producer. Whether he stars, directs, or produces—and sometimes all three—a Redford project is always remarkable for its integrity, beauty, and power.

In 2003, he was in Washington to deliver the annual Nancy Hanks Lecture on the role of the arts in public policy. This lecture is a tribute to the memory of Nancy Hanks, who served as the early chair of the National Endowment for the Arts, and Mr. Redford’s lecture was a privilege to hear him believe so deeply in the fundamental importance of the arts in our public policy.

His passionate belief in arts education has been a continuing part of his outstanding career. He founded the Sundance Institute as a part of his lifelong commitment to expand opportunities for new works and new artists to ensure a vigorous American cultural legacy for future generations.

I commend all that he has accomplished. I am proud to join in congratulating him on this well-deserved award from the Kennedy Center. I am sure my brother would be proud of him.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, on roll-call vote No. 347, I was recorded as not voting. It was my intention to vote “yea.”

TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE EXTENSION ACT

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, this week the Senate Banking Committee reported out S. 467, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Extension Act of 2005 which will extend for 2 years the terrorism risk insurance program that is due to expire on December 31. I suspect the insurance industry is breathing a collective sigh of relief that this bill has finally passed in the Senate. All Americans concerned about economic growth should also feel some relief.

This bill represents a compromise between the very strong views of the administration and the approach originally set forth in the bill as introduced. I must commend Senators DODD and BENNETT and their staffs for their tireless work on this legislation, as well as Chairman SHELBY and Ranking Member SARBANES, I understand that this policy will serve without its challenges. Nevertheless, we arrived at a bipartisan compromise.

There are still some who believe that we do not need a terrorism insurance program with a Federal backstop; that the capacity of the industry to provide this insurance has improved, and the program has achieved its goals. Frankly, I am not convinced. Because of the random and unpredictable nature of terrorism, I am not yet convinced that the private sector can adequately or accurately assess terrorism risk in the absence of a Federal backstop.

It has been 4 years since the September 11 attacks that prompted the passage of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act. And while we have been fortunate here in the United States that no events have triggered the use of this Federal backstop, the bombings in London this summer, the Madrid train bombing last year, the nightclub bombing in Bali in 2002, and the alarming increase in suicide bombers in the Middle East serve as painful reminders of the reality of the ongoing war on terror, and the fact that attacks can happen anywhere at anytime.

Prior to September 11, the risk of terrorism was not a factor when insurers wrote policies. However, in the post-9/11 environment, the availability of affordable insurance for terrorism risks has become a necessity. The war on terror involves protecting our homeland and protecting our citizens. In light of the current environment, it would be both unrealistic and premature to conclude that a Federal backstop is no longer necessary. I think it was irresponsible for the administration to suggest that it is now time to abandon the responsibility of insuring against the risk of terrorist attacks solely to the private insurance market.
We accepted the recommendations of the administration by dropping several lines of insurance from the program. However, there is one very critical line that has never been included, and one that I am disappointed is not part of this compromise bill, and that is group life. Mr. President, on occasion, it is critical that we create conditions that permit the private insurance markets to continue to offer group life insurance coverage to employees at high risk of attack.

Selling insurance is not usually fought to include group life insurance in the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program. I was disappointed, at that time, that the Bush administration chose to focus its efforts on insuring buildings against terrorism but was dismissive of the critical role that group life insurance plays for tens of thousands of families at the highest risk of terrorist attack.

We saw vividly, post-9/11, the suffering of so many families, and while the immediate grieving was started by the loss of human life, the harsh reality is that many families lost their livelihood as well. In a time of loss, a life insurance policy can mean the difference between having to sell the family home, pulling the kids out of college, or even, in some cases, having enough money to put food on the table.

Moreover, the lack of affordable reinsurance for group life products calls into question the administration's position that TRIA has created a situation that would otherwise enable the industry to offer insurance for terrorism risk without a governmental backstop. Reinsurance has essentially evaporated for the group life sector, which Treasury specifically chose not to include in the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program, and thus was not hindered in its pursuit of market innovations. We ought to be working to create a marketplace where reinsurance can be sold to group life insurers rather than jeopardize the TRIA-facilitated appearance of reinsurance for products, like workers compensation, which are comparable to group life.

I certainly appreciate that innovations within the insurance industry may be part of the long-term solution, and we certainly must facilitate that as we go forward. The time has come for Congress to review the current regulatory landscape of the insurance industry to ensure that it does not unnecessarily restrict innovation. I believe that this legislation is consistent with that objective—extending TRIA for a period of time sufficient for Congress to begin looking at modernizing the regulatory scheme for insurance while it also reviews longer-term solutions to the challenge of insuring against acts of terror.

I am pleased that this legislation requires the Presidential Working Group to do a study on the long-term viability of the Terrorism Risk Insurance and the affordability of inclusion of group life insurance. I look forward to reviewing the Presidential Working Group's recommendations, and it is my hope that it recommends inclusion of group life in the program.

Additionally, I am satisfied with the "make available" provisions in this bill. At the end of the day, this program is about the insurance industry; it is about the ability of American businesses to have access to insurance protection. That should be the very minimum required of an industry that enjoys the type of protection we have provided. The Estimation of the likelihood of attacks or the extent of loss is difficult, if not impossible. Now is not the time for the administration or Congress to leave the private insurers to go it alone. I am pleased that last night the Senate passed this important legislation. Doing nothing would not have been acceptable.

Mr. NELSON of Nebraska. Mr. President, although the Senate's passage of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Extension Bill is a good start to ensuring continuity within our financial markets in the event they are impacted by another terrorist attack, I am disappointed the Act failed to include group life insurance.

Over 160 million working Americans have coverage through a group life policy. For many, this coverage is their only form of life insurance. Loss of this benefit would threaten their families' financial stability.

Group life reinsurance poses unique risks to the carriers that provide it. Much like workers' compensation insurance, the high level of risk concentration by employer and workforce makes group life insurance particularly vulnerable to large-scale losses from events such as terrorist attacks.

Before the September 11 tragedy, group life insurers protected against large-scale losses through the purchase of catastrophe reinsurance. Since that time, they have experienced a decreased availability of catastrophe reinsurance coverage. At the same time, the cost of this limited coverage and its related deductible have increased to the point where the coverage is cost-prohibitive. Additionally, it is not uncommon for catastrophe re-insurers to exclude terrorism on most quotes.

Opponents of group life's inclusion argue that free market participants would be better off paying the price on an actuarial commodity. But this mindset ignores the fact that group life insurers do not operate in a truly free market. Even if group life insurers wanted to exclude coverage for terrorist acts—which many, for good public policy reasons, reject as an option—they currently are prohibited from doing so.

Ordinarily, insurers would control their risk exposure through the premiums they charge. However, in the context of terrorism, this mechanism also is no longer available for group life insurers. The lack of historical data on the incidence rate of terrorism in the United States prevents insurers from pricing for this risk. Moreover, the very nature of terrorism—a non-natural event—makes it a risk for which actuarial have no basis to price.

The bill's required analysis of the long-term availability and affordability of insurance for terrorism risk, including group life coverage, simply offers the distant hope of a solution for group life insurers. Daily reminders of the continued threat of terrorism require an immediate solution.

For these reasons, I strongly urge members of the conference committee to look beyond the buildings the act would protect and protect the people inside those buildings by including group life in the extension.

TAX RELIEF ACT OF 2005

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, they say that timing is everything. And the timing of the Congress' actions in the days is indicative of our priorities. Yesterday, the House rightly voted against the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education Appropriations bill that included major cuts in working, education and health care. Last night, the House voted to pass a reconciliation spending package that would cut programs such as child support, food stamps, and Medicaid. Also last night, the Senate approved $90 billion worth of tax cuts.

What does that say to hard working Americans about the priorities of this Government? I want to make it clear to my colleagues that I support many of the provisions that are included in this legislation. I support tax provisions aimed at helping Gulf States recover from Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. I support extending the tuition deduction, the research and development tax credit, and a deduction for home mortgage interest. And I strongly support the extension of the increased exemption amounts for the alternative minimum tax.

In fact, I would support much broader changes of the Act. I want to make it clear to my constituents that I am not opposed to tax cuts—when the time is right—when we are in surplus. In 2001, I supported the tax cut legislation, based on the fact that we were running a surplus. It stands to reason, then, that during these times of record deficits, that we can ill afford the tax package the Senate approved yesterday.

I want to repeat what I just said—I am not opposed to tax cuts. That is supported by the package of extensions offered by Senator CONRAD. This amendment contained nearly identical extension provisions. The amendment even went further on the AMT then the underlying bill, ensuring that no taxpayer pays the tax over 2005. The difference? The alternative was fully paid for, through a series of offsets.
It remains a mystery to me why so many of my colleagues chose to add to the deficit rather than responsibly extend these important provisions. I would have hoped that more of my colleagues that voted against this alternative would have come to the floor and give their reasons. Adding $60 billion to the deficit is not something any of us should take lightly. When we are cutting fundamental programs in order to reduce the deficit, when we are faced with continued costs associated with rebuilding from our hurricanes, when costs associated with Iraq and Afghanista continue to mount—is that the time to extend tax cuts without paying for them?

For me, the answer is a resounding no. Timing is everything. When we were in surplus, I supported tax cuts. Times have changed, and we can no longer afford to adopt tax legislation without paying for it. Yesterday, the Senate had a chance to show our constituents that we can make difficult budget decisions. Just as so many American families do every month. But instead, the Senate chose to pass the buck on that decision, and add $60 billion to our growing deficit.

Therefore, Mr. President, and I yield the floor.

Mr. INHOFE. With this week's consideration of the tax reconciliation act, the United States Senate engaged in a heated exchange over the reinstatement of the windfall profits tax on American oil. The key question in this debate, which my colleagues have not been able to answer, is how can a tax increase on oil and gas production reduce prices? It can't and history proves it.

First enacted under President Jimmy Carter in 1980, Congress imposed an excise levy on domestic oil production called the windfall profits tax. The result was inevitable. According to a 1990 report from the nonpartisan Congressional Research Service, the results of Carter's WPT were hugely counterproductive: "The WPT reduced domestic oil production between 3 and 6 percent, and increased oil imports from between 8 and 16 percent. . . . This made the U.S. more dependent upon imported oil."

The stakes for Oklahoma are huge considering that oil and gas production is our largest single industry. During debate on the bipartisan compromise, my colleagues and I added nine amendments to provide relief for the oil industry, many of which were soundly defeated or withdrawn. Over the past few months, Democrats have fired a barrage of unfair rhetoric maligning all those who work in the oil and gas business. With one breath they demand Congress reign in the recent high oil prices, with the next they resist on tax increases to punish those who they claim are responsible. With so many friends, acquaintances, and constituents in the business, I find these reckless demands and accusations unfair and dangerous for Oklahoma.

As a teenager, I worked as a tool dresser on a drilling rig for a man by the name of Burt Swift. Many in Oklahoma know his name, but few in this Chamber would. Like many who have operated in oil and gas, he ran a thirsty and tight operation but was eventually taxed out of business. This same man in his final years reflects on rig explosion claimed his life but spared mine. Sacrifices, such as his, are often a part of the harsh realities faced by many in the oil business.

Oklahoma would be especially hard hit by a WPT. Currently, well over two-thirds of the State's oil production comes from marginal wells. A marginal well is typically defined as one which produces less than 10 barrels of oil or 60 Mcf of gas a day. These are called "marginal" because their profitability is at times just at the margin, depending upon production costs and current market prices.

As oil prices decrease many of these wells become uneconomical and are increasingly "shut in" or "plugged and abandoned." However, as oil prices increase, Oklahoma's independents increasingly drill for and produce from marginal wells. The added cost of a windfall profits tax would drastically harm the economic viability Oklahoma's marginal wells.

Outside of the damage a WPT would inflict upon Oklahoma, this tax would only further harm our Nation's shrinking energy independence. America's major oil companies already pay the second highest corporate tax rate in the industrialized world. How are they to compete internationally with an additional Conoco, Phillips or Chevron Texaco compete with Total (French), BP (British), and Royal Dutch Shell (British/Dutch) not to mention government owned and operated oil giants like Saudi Arabia, China National Offshore Oil Corporation, Petro China, CNOOC (China National Oil Company), Gazprom (Russia), and dozens more. With enactment of a WPT, American companies would be hard pressed to effectively compete in the competitive global market for exploration and production. The WPT gives all foreign owned oil companies a strong competitive advantage.

With more than 2,100 firms and 60,000 people the oil and gas industry is the most critical component of Oklahoma's economy. Many of those in the business have in the past lost their business, their savings and their livelihood. As oil prices have fallen, we saw most pignantly in the 1980s. For the jobs in Oklahoma and the consumers at the pump, let's reject WPT.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise to speak about the tax reconciliation bill before the Senate today.

Today, Americans are saddled with more than $8 trillion in national debt, an obligation being passed on to our children and grandchildren. And our Nation's expenditures—because of the War in Iraq, the global war on terrorism, Hurricane Katrina and other natural disasters, and countless other challenges our Nation is confronting and outstripping its means.

The current administration has placed passing tax cuts for the few ahead of targeted tax cuts for the middle class and to grow business and has made us less able to address other important priorities, homeland security, paying for the war in Iraq, our nation's infrastructure, health care, and education.

I believe we need a tax system that is fiscally responsible, helps business grow, and provides maximum relief to the middle class. That is why I support tax policies that work to achieve those goals, and that is why I voted for the Conrad substitute amendment, which would have fully paid for the cost of tax cuts to the middle class.

Mr. President, I am deeply concerned about passing a $60 billion tax cut bill at a time when we are cutting Medicaid, food stamps, student loans, and other domestic programs that will spur economic growth among Americans. Just 2 weeks ago, the Senate Republican leadership brought a spending cut to the floor to cut $35 billion from areas like healthcare and education.

The budget that passed this body contains $40 billion in painful cuts on working families, as I said at the time.

Mr. President, too many working families in America don't feel secure. They are worried about high gas prices and how they are going to heat their homes this winter. They are worried about how they will pay for their health insurance and their prescription drugs. And they are worried they won't be able to afford a home or college tuition for their children.

Given all this, why would the Congress pull the rug from under these working Americans at exactly the time they need our support? The answer is before us today to make room for more tax cuts. Now, some of the tax cuts contained in the tax reconciliation bill are certainly helpful. The research and development tax credit, the deduction of State and local sales tax, and the deduction for teacher's expenses are all important provisions and should be extended. I have voted for and cosponsored bills that extend or make permanent some of these provisions. In fact, I voted to extend these tax provisions and all those expiring at the end of the year when I voted for the Conrad substitute amendment. That amendment fully paid for the tax cut extensions and the Hurricane tax relief over 10 years and did not cost the Federal Treasury a dime.

I urge my colleagues to consider extending tax relief to those facing the burden of our tax receipts. They are certainly helpful. The research and development tax credit, the deduction of State and local sales tax, and the deduction for teacher's expenses are all important provisions and should be extended. I have voted for and cosponsored bills that extend or make permanent some of these provisions. In fact, I voted to extend these tax provisions and all those expiring at the end of the year when I voted for the Conrad substitute amendment. more than $1 million, are not in the current version of this bill. But I know that when the tax reconciliation bill comes back from conference, it will have those provisions. We all heard Senate Majority Leader Frist when he said, and I quote, "I will not bring a conference report to the Senate floor that does not include this extension."

So, Mr. President, we have a choice to make: will we invest in priorities like health care, education, transportation and job training that spur economic growth and keep families out of poverty, or will we continue to conduct business as usual and pass tax cuts in a fiscally irresponsible way? Based on the vote 2 weeks ago to cut $35 billion in critical help for Americans in the most need, it appears that the Republican-controlled Congress has chosen the latter.

I understand the importance of a responsible Federal budget. Our nation’s annual deficit is more than $300 billion. Foreign owned debt has increased by more than 100 percent over the last 5 years, and we will soon be asked to increase the country’s debt ceiling by another $761 billion. At a time when we are enduring tremendous budget pressures and an increasing deficit, I think it would be wise to heed the words of Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, who said during testimony before the Budget Committee last year: "If you are going to lower taxes, you should not be borrowing essentially the tax cut. That over the long run is not a stable fiscal situation."

Unfortunately, the tax reconciliation bill before us will increase the deficit and borrow money to do so. The Senate was presented with the option to extend the tax provisions expiring at the end of this year and pass the hurricane tax relief in a fiscally responsible manner. Unfortunately, the sound Democratic alternative we offered failed on a party line vote.

Mr. President, these are very challenging times for our country and our people. Working families don’t feel secure about their jobs, their health care, their pensions or their future. Many Americans are making tremendous sacrifices by serving in our military. We need to show that we are on their side. We need to help make America strong again. The way to do that is to invest in our people invest in their education, their job training, and their future. The Republican budget does just the opposite: it cuts out those critical investments so that they can reduce taxes for a few at the top. Those are the wrong priorities. I believe America can do better, and America deserves better, and therefore I will vote against this misguided budget.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

PROFESSORS OF THE YEAR

- Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate the winners of the United States Professor of the Year Award. Since 1981, this prestigious honor has been awarded to professors who show an exceptional dedication to teaching. This year, professors from 40 States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico received this award. Their disciplines are varied; they come from both private and public institutions. But they have one thing in common, and that is dedication to teaching.

These undergraduate professors do more than teach information. They impart their classes by inspiring students to excel. They think up new and inventive ways for their students to learn. They create programs that allow students to learn through work and teaching experience. Sometimes these professors go as far as establishing new departments in their institutions, broadening academic choices for undergraduates. College professors contribute so much to their institutions and surrounding communities, and often these vast contributions go unnoticed by society. I am proud that we are taking time today to honor these inspiring professors.

2005 U.S. PROFESSORS OF THE YEAR, NATIONAL WINNERS

Outstanding Baccalaureate Colleges Professor
W.A. Hayden Schilling, Robert Crichtfield Professor of English History, The College of Wooster, Ohio.

OF DUTY, HONOR AND SERVICE

- Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, in the spring of this year, I had the remarkable experience of hosting a recording of a history for the Library of Congress Veterans History Project. A distinguished, elderly Idahoan recounted his experiences as a supply officer during World War II, notably in one of the units that liberated the Nazi concentration camp, Dachau.

Ralph Lesenburg is 86 years old and lives in St. Anthony, ID with his beloved wife, Nancy. When visiting my office, he stopped in Wisconsin, WI to visit the 60th anniversary of the campaign to liberate the Americans. After taking part in the commemoration ceremony, he stopped in Washington, DC to visit the World War II Memorial and pay respects to his fallen comrades.

Ralph was drafted in 1944 when he was a young married man with three children: living in Layton, UT. That young man was evident in the wizened gentleman who sat in my office some months ago, his experiences of those difficult times surprisingly vivid in his blue eyes. He spent time in France and then in Germany assigned to the 42nd Quartermaster Company of the Army. He remembers the bombings that cleared Wersberg, Germany, and bringing in supplies of food, clothing and ammunition for the soldiers.

Clearly, the most difficult time was to come, for it was just months later on April 29, 1945, around 6 or 7 p.m. in the evening that his company followed the troops into the liberated camps with two truckloads of food for the survivors, who were in their thousands. In this interview, Ralph had shared his experiences in great detail, telling of dates, places and times with remarkable acuity. When asked about what he saw that night, Ralph paused for a long minute and said, "Well, it's just something you don't like to talk about." At that moment, he was thousands of miles and years away from my office in the Dirksen Building. His blue eyes, glistening with the shine of old tears, reflected the stark horror of that day, the memory too overwhelming to put to words.

Ralph continued to serve until 1946, when he returned to his wife and children. Looking back, he said that he remembered paying attention to the lifestyle of the people in the countries where he served, and remarked that "We are blessed to be in this nation, a nation of human rights and humanitarian service." When asked about serving his country, Ralph said only this: "It wasn't easy to leave my wife and children, but I served my country where I was called, and I knew why I was called." He would like to offer my support and gratitude for Ralph and his family for their sacrifice and service so many years ago. It was a tremendous honor for me to have this particular member of "the greatest generation" in my office that day.

HONORING NATIONAL ADOPTION DAY

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I rise today in honor of National Adoption Day. If the events of the last few months have done nothing else, they have reminded us of the importance of family, friends, and faith in a time of crisis. Not a moment has gone by without an image of a mother searching for her son or a daughter looking for her grandmother. Families bring people together, create the fabric of our society, and help to define our individual strengths.

This year, the focus on families is broader than ever before. National Adoption Day is a day for the courts to intervene for children who need a loving, nurturing family that will help them to grow, bring out their unique personalities, and transform them into beautiful adults.

Today, on National Adoption Day, I have faith that this can be done and we must continue to be the catalyst. The miracle of adoption has been explained, but the loving parents that are holding their children for the first time today are living examples of how dreams can be realized. As an adoptive mother myself, I cannot really explain the miracle of it, but I can only take a moment to offer my most humble thanks, gratitude, and appreciation to all those across the Nation who have given their Saturday to help find waiting children safe and loving homes.

Let us continue to celebrate when National Adoption Month and Day ends that there are still thousands of children like D’Vonte and Reva who need that sense of permanency. I challenge Congress to make these children their first priority and to help them to finally realize that dream.

TRIBUTE TO HILTON A. WICK

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about Hilton Wick, a great Vermonter who was recently honored at a dedication ceremony in Burlington, VT. As a token of thanks for his tireless fundraising efforts on behalf of Fletcher Allen Health Care, the plaza in front of Fletcher Allen’s Ambulatory Care Center will now bear Hilton’s name. For decades, Hilton Wick has committed his talents and energy to improving his community, raising awareness, and inspiring volunteers to support community development projects. Not only Burlington but all of Vermont can be grateful for his outstanding leadership and enormous generosity.

I would like to share with my colleagues an article from the October 28, 2005, edition of the Burlington Free Press which magnificently describes the contributions of Hilton Wick. I ask that the article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Burlington Free Press, Oct. 29, 2005]

HILTON WICK GIVES HIS ALL TO COMMUNITY

It is a fitting tribute to Burlington’s Hilton Wick that the plaza in front of Fletcher Allen Health Care’s new Ambulatory Care Center is being named after him. The dedication for the Hilton A. Wick Plaza on Sunday honored a man who has been one of the most generous and steadfast community builders Burlington has known.

When the hospital’s Renaissance Project was announced in December 1999, with community fund-raising efforts despite the adversity, convinced that the goal of a
CONGRATULATING SALLYSVILLE GRADE SCHOOL

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, today I rise to congratulate Sallysville Grade School of Sallysville, KY. Sallysville Grade School is recognized as a 2005 No Child Left Behind Blue Ribbon School.

The Blue Ribbon Schools Program has been celebrating high achieving schools for over 20 years. Established in 1982 by the U.S. Department of Education, the program has recognized more than 3,000 schools since its inception. PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petition or memorial was laid before the Senate and was referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated:

EC–4755. A communication from the General Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts relative to the early termination

S13359

November 18, 2005 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE fees imposed by cellular telephone companies; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Whereas, the issue of early termination fees imposed by cellular phone companies is of great importance to the citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; and

Whereas, lawsuits by customers adversely affected by early termination fees have been filed in courts in California, Florida and Illinois; and

Whereas, a “petition of the Cellular Telecommunications and Internet Association for an expedited declaratory ruling” has recently been filed with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC); and

Whereas, cellular telephone companies are now mounting efforts to preempt strong State consumer protection statutes in an effort to circumvent legal challenges in a number of States by their petition to the FCC on March 15, 2005; and

Whereas, this petition from the cellular phone industry requests that early termination fees not be defined as penalties designed to restrict consumer choice, but rather as part of the rates that the companies charge their customers for cellular phone services; and

Whereas, recent reports dispute the industry’s claims and find that 89 percent of consumers believe that early termination fees are unfair penalties to prevent consumers from shopping for better, more fairly-priced service; now therefore be it

Resolved, that the Massachusetts General Court joins and asks the Federal Communications Commission to deny the “petition of the cellular telecommunications and Internet association for an expedited declaratory ruling” and that the FCC not recognize early termination fees as part of a company’s rate structure and allow for continued State action; and be it further

Resolved, that the Massachusetts Senate memorializes the Federal Communications Commission, the Bush Administration, and Congress of the United States not to take any steps requested by cellular phone companies of their industry representatives that are designed to prevent cellular phone companies from being held legally accountable at the local, State, and Federal levels, for the negative impacts of early termination fees; and be it further Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted forthwith by the Clerk of the Senate to the Federal Communications Commission, President George W. Bush, and the members of the United States Congress from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

S. 2066

At the request of Mr. DEWINE, the name of the Senator from Vermont (Mr. LEAHY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2066, a bill to establish a National Methamphetamine Information Clearinghouse to promote sharing information regarding successful law enforcement, treatment, environmental, social services, and other programs related to the production, use, or effects of methamphetamine and grants available for such programs, and for other purposes.

S. RES. 302

At the request of Mr. BINGAMAN, the name of the Senator from Indiana (Mr. BAYH) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 302, a resolution to express the sense of the Senate regarding the impact of medicaid reconciliation legislation on the health and well-being of children.

S. RES. 319

At the request of Ms. MIKULSKI, the names of the Senator from Maryland (Mr. SARRASES), the Senator from New Mexico (Mr. BINGAMAN) and the Senator from New York (Mrs. CLINTON) were added as cosponsors of S. Res. 319, a joint resolution commending relief efforts in response to the earthquake in South Asia and urging a commitment by the United States and the international community to help rebuild critical infrastructure in the affected areas.

AMENDMENT NO. 2365

At the request of Mr. BINGAMAN, the names of the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. KOHL) and the Senator from Vermont (Mr. JEFFORDS) were added as cosponsors of amendment No. 2365 proposed to S. 1932, an original bill to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 202(a) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006 (H. Con. Res. 104).

AMENDMENT NO. 2601

At the request of Mr. NELSON of Florida, the name of the Senator from Connecticut (Mr. LIEBERMAN) was added as a cosponsor of amendment No. 2601 proposed to S. 209, an original bill to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 202(b) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2006.

ST HuAMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mrs. CLINTON (for herself, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. OBAMA, and Mr. SMITH):

S. 2056

S. 2056.' Mr. JEFFORDS, at the request of Mrs. CLINTON (for herself, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. OBAMA, and Mr. SMITH), asked that the following amendment be printed in the RECORD:

(5) Current Federal lead abatement programs, such as the Lead Hazard Control Grant Program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, only have resources sufficient to protect approximately 7,000 homes lead-safe each year. In many cases, when State and local public health departments identify a lead-poisoned child, resources are insufficient to reduce or eliminate the hazards.

(6) Old windows typically pose significant risks because wood trim is more likely to be painted with lead-based paint, moisture causes paint to deteriorate, and friction generates lead dust. The replacement of old windows that contain lead-based paint significantly reduces lead poisoning hazards in addition to producing significant energy savings.

(7) Childhood lead poisoning can be dramatically reduced by the abatement or complete removal of all lead-based paint. Empirical studies also have shown substantial reductions in lead poisoning when the affected properties have undergone so-called "interim control measures" that are far less costly than abatement.

(c) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to encourage the safe removal of lead hazards from homes and thereby decrease the number of children who suffer reduced intelligence, learning difficulties, behavioral problems, and other health consequences due to lead-poisoning.

SEC. 2. HOME LEAD HAZARD REDUCTION ACTIVITY TAX CREDIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart B of part IV of subchapter A of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to foreign tax credit, etc.) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 30D. HOME LEAD HAZARD REDUCTION ACTIVITY TAX CREDIT.

"(a) ALLOWANCE OF CREDIT.—There shall be allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year an amount equal to 50 percent of the lead hazard reduction activity cost paid or incurred by the taxpayer during the taxable year for any eligible dwelling unit.

"(b) LIMITATION.—The amount of the credit allowed under subsection (a) for any eligible dwelling unit for any taxable year shall not exceed—

"(1) either—

"(A) $3,000 in the case of lead hazard reduction activity cost incurred for lead treatment measures described in clauses (i), (ii), (iv) and (v) of subsection (c)(1)(A), or

"(B) $1,000 in the case of lead hazard reduction activity cost incurred for lead control measures described in clauses (i), (iii), (iv), and (v) of subsection (c)(1)(A), reduced by—

"(2) the aggregate lead hazard reduction activity cost taken into account under subsection (a) with respect to such unit for all preceding taxable years.

"(c) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section:

"(1) LEAD HAZARD REDUCTION ACTIVITY COST.

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'lead hazard reduction activity cost' means, with respect to any eligible dwelling unit—

"(i) the cost for a certified risk assessor to conduct an assessment to determine the presence of a lead-based paint hazard,

"(ii) the cost for performing lead abatement measures by a certified lead abatement subcontractor, including the removal of paint and dust, the permanent enclosure or encapsulation of lead-based paint, the replacement of painted surfaces, windows, or fixtures, or the removal or permanent covering of soil when lead-based paint hazards are present in such paint, dust, or soil, “(iii) the cost for performing interim lead control measures to reduce exposure or likely exposure to lead-based paint hazards, including specialized cleaning, repairs, maintenance and lead contaminant, ongoing monitoring of lead-based paint hazards, and the establishment and operation of management and resident education programs. Only if such measures are evaluated and completed by a certified lead abatement supervisor using accepted methods, are conducted by a qualified contractor, and have an expected useful life of more than 10 years.

“(iv) the cost for a certified lead abatement supervisor, those working under the supervision of such supervisor, or a qualified contractor to perform all preparation, cleanup, disposal, and clearance testing activities associated with the lead abatement measures or interim lead control measures, and

“(v) costs incurred by or on behalf of any occupant of such dwelling unit for any relocation which is necessary to achieve occupant protection (as defined under section 35.1345 of title 24, Code of Federal Regulations).

“(B) LIMITATION.—The term ‘lead hazard reduction activity cost’ does not include any cost the cost is funded by any grant, contract, or otherwise by another person (or any governmental agency).

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘eligible dwelling unit’ means, with respect to any taxable year, any dwelling unit—

(i) placed in service before 1980,

(ii) located in the United States,

(iii) in which resides, for a total period of not less than 50 percent of the taxable year, at least 1 child who has not attained the age of 6 years or 1 woman of child-bearing age, and

(iv) each of the residents of which during such taxable year has an adjusted gross income of less than 85 percent of the poverty line (as determined for such taxable year in accordance with criteria established by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget).

“(B) DWELLING UNIT.—The term ‘dwelling unit’ has the meaning given such term by section 280A(f)(1).

“(C) LEAD-BASED PAINT HAZARD.—The term ‘lead-based paint hazard’ has the meaning given such term by section 745.61 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations.

“(D) CERTIFIED LEAD ABATEMENT SUPERVISOR.—The term ‘certified lead abatement supervisor’ means an individual certified by the Environmental Protection Agency pursuant to section 745.236 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations, or an appropriate State agency pursuant to section 745.325 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations.

“(E) CERTIFIED INSPECTOR.—The term ‘certified inspector’ means an inspector certified by the Environmental Protection Agency pursuant to section 745.226 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations, or an appropriate State agency pursuant to section 745.325 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations.

“(F) CARRYFORWARD ALLOWED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the credit amount allowable under subsection (a) shall be reduced by the amount of such credit (determined without regard to subsection (d))

(2) RULES.—Rules similar to the rules of section 33 of chapter 1 of such Code relating to the limitation under section 33 of such Code are applied.

(3) EXEMPTION.—The term ‘credit carryforward under paragraph (1)’ means the amount of the credit carryforward under paragraph (1).

(4) CERTIFIED LEAD ABATEMENT SUPERVISOR.—The term ‘certified risk assessor’ means a risk assessor certified by the Environmental Protection Agency pursuant to section 745.226 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations, or an appropriate State agency pursuant to section 745.325 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations.

“(H) QUALIFIED CONTRACTOR.—The term ‘qualified contractor’ means any contractor who has successfully completed a training course on lead safe work practices which has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Environmental Protection Agency.

“(B) DOCUMENTATION REQUIRED FOR CREDIT ALLOWANCE.—No credit shall be allowed under subsection (a) with respect to any eligible dwelling unit for any taxable year unless—

(1) after lead hazard reduction activity is complete, a certified inspector or certified risk assessor provides written documentation to the taxpayer that includes—

(i) evidence that—

(A) the eligible dwelling unit passes the clearance examinations required by the Department of Housing and Urban Development under part 35 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations,

(B) the eligible dwelling unit does not contain lead paint abated by section 745.227(e)(8)(viii) of such title 40, or

(C) the eligible dwelling unit meets lead hazard evaluation criteria established under an authorized State or local program, and

(ii) documentation showing that the lead hazard reduction activity meets the requirements of this section, and

(2) the taxpayer files with the appropriate State agency and attaches to the tax return for the taxable year—

(i) the documentation described in subparagraph (A),

(ii) documentation of the lead hazard reduction activity costs paid or incurred during the taxable year with respect to the eligible dwelling unit,

(iii) a statement certifying that the dwelling unit qualifies as an eligible dwelling unit for such taxable year.

“(C) BASE REDUCTION.—The basis of any property for which a credit is allowable under subsection (a) shall be reduced by the amount of such credit (determined without regard to subsection (d)).

“(D) LIMITATION BASED ON AMOUNT OF TAX.—The credit allowed under subsection (a) for the taxable year shall not exceed the excess of—

(1) the sum of the regular tax liability (as defined in section 38(b)(1)) plus the tax imposed by section 55, over

(2) the sum of the credits allowable under subparagraph (A), section 27, 29, 30, 3A, 3B, and 30C for such taxable year.

“(E) CARRYFORWARD ALLOWED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If the credit amount allowable under subsection (a) shall be reduced by the amount of such credit (referred to as the ‘unused credit year’ in this section), such excess shall be allowed as a credit carryforward for each of the 20 taxable years following the unused credit year.

(2) RULES.—Rules similar to the rules of section 33 of chapter 1 of such Code relating to the credit carryforward under paragraph (1).

“(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to lead hazard reduction activity costs incurred after December 31, 2005, in taxable years ending after that date.

“Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, today I rise in support of Senator Clinton’s amendment to the Domestic Security Appropriations bill which would provide up to $1,000 to $3,000 to property owners who eliminate or contain lead-based paint hazards in homes where low-income young children or women of child-bearing age live.

“Children who eat lead paint chips ingest a highly toxic substance that can produce a range of health effects including reduced IQ, reading and learning disabilities, reduced attention spans, kidney damage, and hyperactivity. The sad fact is that there are still over 400,000 children suffering from lead poisoning in this country, many of them poor and many of them minorities. My home State, Illinois, is the State with the highest number of these children.

“The loss of IQ and ability to learn affects these children and their families for the rest of their lives and imposes an economic burden on the rest of us because of their reduced productivity. The large number of college students from Senators CLINTON, SMITH, DEWINE, and me in preventing future lead poisonings by giving property owners a tax incentive to eliminate this problem.

“By Mr. KERRY. S. 2055. A bill to amend titles 10 and 14, United States Code, to provide for the use of gold in the metal content of the Medal of Honor; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

“Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I introduce a bill requiring that the Congressional Medal of Honor be made out of 90 percent gold instead of gold-plated brass as is currently the case.

“The Congressional Medal of Honor is the highest award our country bestows for valor in action against an enemy force. Its recipients are ordinary Americans who perform extraordinary deeds in battle, often giving their lives.

“This is the medal awarded posthumously to Sergeant First Class Paul R. Smith. Under attack at Baghdad International Airport, Sergeant Smith quickly organized the defense of his position, engaged a company-sized enemy force. He showed no concern for his own personal safety when in the face of hostile fire he mounted an armored personnel carrier and manned a .50 caliber machine gun. As the citation for the Medal of Honor notes, ‘In total disregard for his own life, he maintained his exposed position in order to engage the attacking enemy force. During this action, he was mortally wounded. His courageous actions helped defeat the enemy attack, and results in as many as 50 enemy soldiers killed, while allowing the safe withdrawal of numerous wounded soldiers.’
This is the medal won by Captain Humbert Roque Versace. During an intense attack by the Viet Cong in the Xuyen Province, Captain Versace was wounded twice while engaging the enemy but continued to fight until exhaustion and lack of ammunition led to his capture. The following day, accompanied by his men, he landed amidst his men. The battle went to a sudden and unexpected end. The enemy suddenly changed tactics and retired. Versace, an American fighting man, had the unique opportunity to experience how this ingenious system of federalism plays out in every action we take as leaders.

This legislation that I am introducing today will allow us to redesign and proof all American currency. This will allow the United States to have a strong national government that is unrivaled in the world. It also preserves the power in the States to decide how to govern themselves. As governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia and United States Senate, I have always believed in the United States Senate and the power it is given to sit down and actually read this historic document. By placing the headings of the articles and the amendments on the back of the dollar bill, all people will have the chance to look at the provisions. I sincerely hope that when children take a look at the reverse side of a dollar bill, they will take the time to ask their parents about what they can gain a better understanding of our great Nation and the principals our country was founded.

By looking at the order of the amendments to the Constitution, students also trace the history of our country. The amendments to the Constitution embody the four pillars of a free and just society. The first of these pillars is freedom of religion, this important freedom is protected by the First Amendment allowing all people of all religions to freely practice their chosen religion without fear of government interference. The second pillar is the freedom of expression, which again is protected in the First Amendment.

Looking at the remaining amendments one can trace the evolution of the Constitution and the United States from the Thirteenth Amendment prohibiting slavery, to the Fifteenth Amendment granting women the right to vote regardless of race, the Nineteenth Amendment granting women the right to vote and the Twenty Fourth Amendment prohibiting the poll tax.
that we do all we can to publicize what these freedom are that we hold so dearly.

Before I yield the floor I would like to recognize the contributions of one of my constituents, Mr. Randy Wright who teaches at Liberty Middle School in Hanover, VA. Mr. Wright brought this idea to my attention several years ago and he along with his students over the years have been instrumental in providing support for this piece of legislation. I therefore urge my colleagues to join me in support this legislation.

By Mrs. CLINTON (for herself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, Ms. LANTOREN, Mr. LAUTENBERG, and Mr. INOuye):

S. 2057. A bill to establish State Infrastructure banks for education, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation co-sponsored with Senator HARKIN that would begin to rebuild America’s schools. If approved, the Investing for Tomorrow’s Schools Act would develop State Infrastructure Banks—a flexible and inexpensive way to finance school construction and renovation. This approach offers an innovative solution to the urgent problem of fixing deteriorating schools. Every dollar invested in State Infrastructure Banks would be reused to support project after project in the form of loans and credit support.

According to the National Center for Education Statistics, three in four schools in America need assistance to come into “good overall condition.” Repairs and modernizations will cost, according to the National Education Association, $322 billion. New York State has a greater need than any other state, estimated at $31 billion. Just in New York City, schools are estimated to need $21 billion. The city’s schools are so old that they would nearly qualify for social security, averaging 61-years-old.

Acute need for school repair and modernization exists nationwide. Need is estimated at $33 billion in California, $25 billion in Ohio, $22 billion in New Jersey, $13 billion in Texas, and $10 billion each in Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Utah. Nation-wide costs add up to $322 billion.

In 2005, an estimated $19.6 billion was spent nation-wide on school construction. At that rate, it will take more than 16 years to modernize school buildings. Last year in New York, $384 million was spent on school construction. At that rate, it will take more than 50 years to modernize New York’s schools—and that’s assuming that in the meantime we don’t need to build more new schools and that no schools fall apart.

When students attend schools in disrepair, the consequences are all too clear.

An article from 2004 in the Poughkeepsie Journal described how, in Hyde Park, New York along the Hudson River, ventilation problems at the 45-year-old Franklin D. Roosevelt High School sickened students and staff causing watery eyes, headaches, nausea, and diarrhea. I would like to include this article in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. State Infrastructure Banks would make funding available to address environmental hazards including poor ventilation and bad air quality. They would help schools become healthy and high-performing.

An article in Newsday newspaper described how, in Hempstead New York, on Long Island, Prospect Elementary, a 180-year-old school, was closed in the fall of 2003 after administrators discovered a rodent problem, mold in the cafeteria, and a crumbling chimney in a classroom.

The Marguerite Golden Rhodes Elementary School was closed after state education officials found a gap between the floor and the ceiling where the paint on the walls ended and where the ceiling began—an indication that either the wall or the ceiling was moving.

Hempstead High School was closed for a week, after a blackboard fell off a wall exposing asbestos left over from a botched cleanup in 1990. I’d like to include this article in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

The school closures worsened overcrowding, as parents Celia Ridely and Olive Warner pointed out to Newsday and the New York Times. With schools in such poor condition, is it surprising that just 38 percent of students in Hempstead graduate from high school? In Washingtonville, 54 miles north of New York City, the roof over a classroom in 44-year-old Taft Elementary collapsed. Fortunately the catastrophic collapse occurred in August of 2004, before the school year began, and no one was injured.

Unfortunately, the U-shaped joist which contributed to the collapse was popular in school construction across New York and throughout America from 1990 to the early 1970s. Many of these schools are still in operation. New York’s Department of Education took the precaution of advising school districts to check similar joists to make sure they are in good condition.

The lack of funding for school construction continues to cut off maintenance. Paul Abramson, a consultant based in Westchester County, New York, told a school construction website, “What happens, unfortunately, is that school districts cut down on maintenance.”

Barbara Knapp-Michelson of the American Association of School Administrators said, “It comes down to the issue of resources. If school administrators had unlimited resources, [maintenance] would be at the top of the agenda.”

We can do better. Schoolchildren should not have to contend with falling-down schools. The lack of adequate school buildings hampers today’s most promising and innovative efforts to boost student achievement.

Charter schools hold the promise of expanding the supply of high-quality public schools, especially in disadvantaged communities. But most charter schools have limited credit histories and lack access to public school facilities or traditional funding streams such as bonds. One in three charter school operators report that school construction costs are a major obstacle to their schools’ success.

The No Child Left Behind Act promised that children in underperforming schools would have the opportunity to transfer to better public schools. But in many communities, more students seek transfers than there are spaces available. In New York City last year, 33,000 students applied to transfer out of underperforming schools but only 7,000 could be accommodated.

Charter school operators should have access to affordable financing for school construction. Schoolchildren promised public school choice should be able to exercise that right. Innovative reforms should not be blocked by inadequate school buildings.

In 2004, an editorial in Newsday newspaper on Long Island wrote, “School construction is one area where the federal government could do more. Little has been heard on the subject since the late 90s—that’s a shame. Money must be found to keep schools safe, functional, and welcoming places.”

Senator HARKIN and I agree. That’s why today we are introducing the Investing for Tomorrow’s Schools Act. At the heart of our proposal is the creation of State Infrastructure Banks, which would improve financing for school construction. This financing mechanism has been used since the Reagan Administration to help local authorities fund water and clean water facilities and transportation projects. For example, my own State of New York received $2.48 billion in Federal support for its Clean Water State Revolving Fund between 1989 and 2004. It leveraged that money into more than $10 billion of loans to local communities.

For example, State Infrastructure Banks would offer school districts a flexible menu of loan and credit enhancement assistance, such as low interest loans, bond financing, insurance, credit guarantees, and credit support for financing projects, which result in lower interest rates.

State Infrastructure Banks would not strain Federal Treasury or the American taxpayer. After initial funding, they would require no ongoing Federal appropriations. As each loan is repaid, the money can be offered as a new loan.

Passage of this bill would lay the groundwork for a robust system of State Infrastructure Banks that provide immediate aid to the neediest schools and help local communities fund affordable construction far into the future.

This modest proposal is one piece of the school construction solution. I ask my Senate colleagues to join me today to pass this legislation without delay.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that 2 articles be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

VENTILATION BLAMED FOR FDR HIGH ILLESSES

(By John Davis)

Ventilation problems were the cause of a rash of complaints about the air at Franklin D. Roosevelt High School in October and November, according to health officials.

After weeks of testing and monitoring conditions at the Hyde Park high school, Dutchess County Health Commissioner Dr. Michael Caldwell recently relayed his findings in a letter to Hyde Park schools Superintendent Carole Pickering.

"The reported symptoms and effects among students and staff in the school are consistent with those reported in a building with inadequate ventilation," Caldwell wrote.

In response to the complaints by students and staff reporting headaches, dizziness and watery eyes, the county health department considered a number of factors as being the source of the problem.

"The health department has ruled out mold, toxic agents or germs as being the culprit. Recent modifications made to the school's ventilation system appear to have had a beneficial effect upon the FDR high school community," Caldwell noted in his letter.

Pickering expressed sympathy Wednesday for those who suffered during the period of the air problem.

"I regret that even one single person was ill due to the air quality problems over the last seven weeks," Pickering said in a prepared statement Wednesday. "We will continue to monitor FDR and to proactively assess heating and ventilation systems in all our buildings."

IT'S A FOOL SCHOOL—FIRES, FROGS AND A SICKLE IN HEMPSTEAD

(By Laura Williams)

It already seemed more than the Hempstead School District could bear. Asbestos and mold forced school closings. The school board abruptly fired the superintendent. Board members were suing each other amid accusations of corruption.

Then last week came word that the State Education Department is launching an investigation into financial improprieties by school board members. That revelation, in fact, was welcome news to fed-up parents.

The school board's "cannot get through a school board meeting without arguing about which friend is going to benefit and how they're going to get money back from the district," said Mazile, co-chairwoman of Hempstead Parents Community United.

The investigation will be conducted in addition to an in-depth audit of the district's books being done by State Controller Alan Hevesi.

As if all that weren't enough, a Hempstead High student was stabbed to death near the school Tuesday. A former gang member was arrested, and cops were seeking two more suspects last week.

And there's still more: the school district is facing $100 million worth of lawsuits, included in these are suits filed by school employees making charges of sexual harassment and discrimination.

In addition, school board member Thomas Parsley is suing colleague Ralph Schneider over something personal.

Parsley himself was charged in September with stealing an ATM card from a principal, though he has said the charge was politically motivated.

Neither the district superintendent nor any of the five board members returned repeated calls.

The 600-student district is struggling with the problems that plague so many financially-strapped communities. Almost three-quarters of the Hempstead district's students qualify for free lunch.

Less than 40% of its high school students graduate, compared to wealthy next-door neighbor Garden City, where 99% graduate. Reading and math scores continue to lag behind the county average.

And school buildings have not been properly maintained.

Prospect Elementary was closed last year after mold was discovered in the cafeteria. Marguerite Golden Rhodes Elementary School also was closed after it appeared the building was shifting dangerously. Both schools' students are attending classes held in trailers.

Last year, a problem with the hot water heater sickened 800 students and staff at Alverna Elementary School in Mineola, which also was found to be serving spoiled food in its cafeteria. And Hempstead High was shut down for a week last year after a chalkboard fell, exposing asbestos.

Amid all these problems, the school board last month fired Superintendent Nathaniel Clay, replacing him with Susan Johnson.

Johnson, the district's director of personnel just two months before getting the top job, had launched her own lawsuit against the district, charging wrongful termination.

Parents are planning a Dec. 4 rally and march—from Village Hall to school district offices—in an attempt to get local school leaders to perform dutifully.

"Taxpayers, parents and students are fuming," Mazile said. "We're going to hold their feet to fire."

By Mr. FEINGOLD:

S. 2058: A bill to promote transparency and reduce anti-competitive practices in the radio and concert industries; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce legislation today that will promote openness and fair competition in the radio and concert industries.

I have followed the changes in the radio and concert industries since the 1996 Telecommunication Act with great concern. For years, I have heard complaints from my constituents about the increasing concentration of ownership in the radio and concert industries and, in turn, the increasingly uneven playing field for small radio stations and independent concert promoters.

For consumers this has meant less diversity, less local content and growing dissatisfaction with the radio and concerts they are offered.

Most recently in the last Congress, I introduced broad legislation to address ownership consolidation and the anti-competitive practices common in the industry. These practices include tacit or explicit pay-for-play, or "payola," payments, and corporate radio stations putting untoward pressure on artists to play the same commercials or venues use affiliated concert promoters. While I continue to be concerned by consolidation and believe this centralization exacerbates the potential for abuse, the bill I introduce today focuses instead on the anti-competitive practices, whether they occur at a radio station group of a handful of stations or one that owns thousands of stations.

Some might question why we need additional scrutiny and accountability for the radio and concert industries specifically. Besides the unique role radio plays for communication and entertainment in each American's life, radio also is, in a sense, a public-private partnership. With radio's use of the public airwaves, it also has a responsibility to serve the public good.

The abuses within the radio and concert industry are not entirely new. In fact, problems similar to what finally sprang up almost throughout the entire history of the medium. There almost seems to be a cyclical pattern as the payola is rooted out and then several years later is reinvigorated in slightly different form to grow to become pervasive again. So while the original payola practices predated the recent rapid consolidation in the industry, the concentration of power has made the problem more widespread and effects possibly more severe on local stations, promoters, artists and consumers.

While paying a radio station or radio station employee to play a certain song without telling the audience has a long history in radio, this does not make the fraud and bribery any more acceptable. In the 1950s, the practice was relatively simple. Artists, their labels or managers would often directly bribe DJs to play their songs either in cash or through other consideration. When this practice became public, there were investigations and Congress and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) took actions to block this payola.

The most recent incarnation of payola takes a more complicated and sophisticated—corporate, if you will—approach to skirt the current rules that prevent direct pay-for-play. Indirect payments through music promoters have been an open secret, as have more direct payments, as the ground-breaking investigation of New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer demonstrates. While the Spitzer investigations through music promoters have been an open secret, as have more direct payments, as the ground-breaking investigation of New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer demonstrates. While the Spitzer investigations through music promoters have been an open secret, as have more direct payments, as the ground-breaking investigation of New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer demonstrates. While the Spitzer investigations through music promoters have been an open secret, as have more direct payments, as the ground-breaking investigation of New York Attorney General Eliot Spitzer demonstrates. ownership sets up a situation where the same corporation that is negotiating a contract for an artist to perform at its concert also controls the lifeblood of that artist’s success—airplay of his or her songs. The result can and does occur on a regular basis. Airplay radio station-promoted shows and, often, to do so for less than the normal rate. This practice hurts the artist, hurts competing independent stations and promoters and, ultimately, hurts the listeners. It is a clear-up choosing from songs on the radio that have been selected based on where and for whom the artist is performing a concert, and for the songs’ artistic merit. Moreover, for any artist who deigns to refuse the direct or implied extortion from the conglomerate, as Don Henley’s courageous testimony in a 2003 Commerce Committee hearing clearly explained, there is the risk of retaliation—either immediately or by boycotting the next single or album the artist promotes. And with the consolidation in the industry, that boycott might not just be in one station in one market; it could be forty stations in many markets. Facing this kind of potential threat, you can see why even the weightiest popular acts are afraid to speak publicly.

The bill I introduce today proposes a multi-faceted approach to the various entrenched forms of payola. The bill would simultaneously strengthen the FCC’s ability to prove and punish violators, close the loophole allowing indirect payola, prevent cross-ownership from hindering fair competition, and, perhaps most importantly, increase transparency through disclosure of the payments to radio stations from artists, labels, promoters and others who may have an interest in improperly influencing airplay decisions.

The bill improves the FCC’s ability to enforce payola violations through several means. It requires radio stations to make transactions with entities like record labels that might have an interest in influencing airplay on an “arm’s length basis.” Moreover the bill requires record-keeping of such transactions and makes the records available to the FCC in the event of an investigation. In addition, the bill significantly increases penalties for payola violations and allows the FCC to consider revoking a station’s license. As we have seen in the realm of irregularity, multimillion dollar companies do not blink at the current fines of $10,000 per violation, but the prospect of putting a license in jeopardy will get their attention.

As I’ve already mentioned, the current payola rules were put in place for an earlier, simpler incarnation of the practice—the direct bribing of DJs and stations. Payola has changed, often going through third parties such as independent music promoters or under the guise of legitimate transaction. The bill broadens the current rules to include these indirect payments, so no matter what tortured path money or other consideration travels, if it is for airplay and not disclosed, it is payola.

Cross-ownership of radio stations and concert promoters or venues poses a serious problem for fair competition. Without controls, the relationship in- jects artificial cost and, in some cases, not artistic merit into airplay decisions. The bill would either prohibit this, in the case of cross-ownership, or place controls to ensure fair competition in the concert promotion industry. The final element of the bill—increased transparency—will have the biggest impact by deterring payola in all its past, present and future incarnations. The bill requires radio stations to disclose all receipts of payments or consideration that could be used as a front for payola along with a list of the songs played every month, broken down by label and artist. While corporations may not fear the current hard-to-prove $10,000 fines, they do understand public relations. The potential for increased publicity to use these records to connect the dots should have a chilling effect on the practice and may mean that the FCC Enforcement Bureau will rarely even need to be involved. But if problems persist, the Bureau can send the Bureau with better powers and evidence to combat payola in all its forms.

Finally let me put this in context and remind my colleagues that radio stations use a public resource, the airwaves, to reach their listeners. With this use comes a responsibility to the public and an understanding that they accept a degree of increased scrutiny. My legislation strives to ensure that the public knows when it hears a song on the radio that it is because the station, the DJ, the public, or even a focus group, believes it has artistic merit and that it is something the listeners will enjoy. Too often, today’s radio listeners are left to wonder whether a song was purchased by the station manager, got a new laptop or because the station’s parent company is producing the artist’s upcoming concert. It boils down to choices. This bill will reinstate choices, the fundamental basis of competition: choice for the artists to pick which concerts to play and who they want to promote their concerts; choices for the radio stations to play songs based on merit, or at least not based on narrow financial interests, to ultimately choices for consumers as artistic merit instead of the ability to pay carefully disguised bribes broadens the field of artists who can compete.

I am pleased that my bill has been endorsed by the following groups, and I am grateful for the input they have provided about problems in the radio and concert industries: the American Association of Independent Music/ A2IM; the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists; the American Federation of Musicians of the United States and Canada; Consumers Union; Free Press; the Future of Music Coalition; the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, Inc.; and the Recording Artists’ Coalition. I urge my colleagues to join me and support this legislation to promote fair competition in the radio and concert industries. S. 2066. A bill to amend the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 to further improve the safety and health of working environments, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. ENZI (for himself, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. ISAKSON, Mr. BURR, Mr. SESSIONS, and Mr. GREGG):

S. 2067. A bill to assist chemical manufacturers and importers in preparing material safety data sheets pursuant to the requirements of the Hazard Communication standard and to establish a Commission to study and make recommendations regarding the implementation of the Globally Harmonized System of Classification and Labeling of Chemicals; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I am pleased today to announce the introduction of legislation designed to improve our workplace health and safety. The Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, that I chair, has a broad range of responsibilities. None of them is more important than the oversight of our occupational safety and health laws.

In the past decade or so we have witnessed steady progress toward safer and healthier workplaces. For example, in 1992, approximately 9 out of every 100 American workers suffered a workplace injury. By 2003, that injury rate had been cut nearly in half. Over the same period we have seen more than a 20 percent decline in the annual rate of fatalities from workplace injuries.

As encouraging as this progress is, however, it should not be cause for anyone to become complacent. The number of work-related deaths and injuries remains unacceptably high. For example, last year, despite the efforts of all concerned, some 4.4 million workplace injuries and illnesses, with 1.3 million of those injuries involving lost work days. Such workplace injuries continue to bring hardship to employees and their families and to impose significant burdens on our economy. In this context, it is essential to continue our efforts to improve workplace safety.

If we are to be successful in our efforts we must be prepared to cast aside old assumptions, be willing to embrace new ideas, and be candid enough to agree on some fundamental realities. First among these realities is the overwhelming number of employers who are concerned about the welfare of their employees and are fully prepared to comply with laws aimed at enhancing their safety on the job. The notion that employers care little about worker safety, or are prepared to sacrifice worker health in the pursuit of higher profits is a dangerously inaccurate myth. It is dangerous because it promotes and perpetuates an adversarial relationship between employers and government safety agencies at the very time that we need precisely the opposite. Cooperation, not confrontation is essential in making our workplaces safer.

It is fortunate that most employers want to do the right thing since without the cooperation of the employer community there is little hope of continuing to improve workplace safety. That is the second fundamental reality we must accept. Where the vast majority of employers are committed to establishing and maintaining a safe workplace, it makes little sense to perpetuate a system built largely on a system of inspections and sanctions. Any system aimed at fostering workplace safety that relies principally on such measures is not only improperly focused; it cannot, as a practical matter, even hope to achieve its intended goal.

Simple mathematics makes it clear that we cannot inspect or sanction our way to greater job safety. Today, the total number of OSHA inspectors, including those employed by the states, as well as those employed by the Federal Government, is less than 2,400. Each of these individuals conducts an average of about 40 inspections a year. In other words, there will be less than 100,000 work sites inspected by State and Federal OSHA combined in any given year. At the present time, there are over seven million workplaces in the United States. At current inspection rates, we would need nearly 170,000 OSHA inspectors in order to inspect all U.S. work sites just once a year. In addition, since most industrial accidents occur in a split second, and since many are caused by unsafe acts rather than unsafe conditions, even an army of inspectors could not adequately address the issue.

It is my view that any practical approach to addressing the issue of workplace safety must recognize these realities and be designed to encourage and assist employers in achieving this end—not merely punish them for failing to do so. For these reasons, the legislation that I have introduced today contains a number of provisions designed to enhance voluntary compliance, and to provide technical assistance to the vast majority of employers that strive every day to ensure the health and safety of their employees. Thus, these bills contain provisions that encourage employers to engage the services of highly qualified third-party safety consultants to assist them in creating safer workplaces. The legislation also seeks to capitalize on the benefits of such worthwhile initiatives as the current Voluntary Protection Plan to smaller employers; and it increases the level of government outreach and technical help to employers seeking assistance. It is my hope that today’s legislation will make our workplaces safer.

It also provides for increased training of OSHA personnel and fosters a greater understanding of specific workplace

SEC. 14. UNANTICIPATED CONDUCT.

Section 9 of the Act (29 U.S.C. 658) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(d) No citation may be issued under this section for any violation that is the result of actions by any person that are contrary to established, communicated, and enforced work rules that would have prevented the violation. This subsection shall not be construed to prevent the Secretary from granting an extension of time that is subject to a showing of information and proof currently required to support a citation.

SEC. 15. ADOPTION OF NON-GOVERNMENTAL STANDARDS.

The Act (29 U.S.C. 651 et seq.) is amended by adding after section 4 the following:

"SEC. 4A. ADOPTION OF NON-GOVERNMENTAL STANDARDS.

"The Commission shall not promulgate or enforce any finding, guideline, standard, practice, interpretation, or similar action, if such action is subject to incorporation by reference, or modification, as the result of a determination reached by any organization, unless the Secretary affirmatively finds that such determination has been made by an organization and procedure that complies with the requirements of section 9(b). Such finding and a summary of its basis shall be published in the Federal Register and shall be deemed a final agency action subject to review by a United States District Court in accordance with section 706 of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 16. EMPLOYEE RESPONSIBILITY.

The Act (29 U.S.C. 651 et seq.) is amended by adding after section 9 the following:

"SEC. 9A. EMPLOYEE RESPONSIBILITY.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, an employee who, with respect to employer-provided personal protective equipment, willfully violates any requirement of section 5 or any standard, rule, or order promulgated pursuant to section 6, or any regulation prescribed pursuant to this Act, may be assessed a civil penalty, but not to exceed $50 for each violation.

"(b) OTHER VIOLATIONS.—If, in the course of an inspection or investigation, the Secretary or the authorized representative of the Secretary believes that an employee of an employer has, with respect to employer-provided personal protective equipment, violated any requirement of section 5 or any standard, rule, or order promulgated pursuant to section 6, or any regulation prescribed pursuant to this Act, may be assessed a civil penalty, but not exceeding $50 for each violation.

"(c) NOTIFICATION.—The Secretary shall notify the employer of the right of such employee to seek judicial review.

"(1) The notification described in paragraph (1)(A) shall be made not later than 30 days after issuance of the order.

"(2) ISSUANCE OF FINAL ORDER.—The Commission, after a hearing described in paragraph (1), shall issue an order, based on findings of fact, affirming, modifying, or vacating the Secretary's citation or proposed penalty, or directing other appropriate relief. Such order shall become final 30 days after issuance of the order.

(E) 1 shall be the Chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission;

(F) 1 shall be the Administrator of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration;

(G) 1 shall be the Chairman of the Chemical Safety and Hazard Investigation Board (or his or her designee);

(H) 1 shall be appointed by the Secretary of Labor, of whom—

(i) 2 shall be representatives of manufacturers of hazardous chemicals, including a representative of small businesses;

(ii) 2 shall be representatives of employers who are extensive users of hazardous chemicals supplied by others, including a representative of small businesses;

(iii) 2 shall be representatives of labor organizations;

(iv) 2 shall be individuals who are qualified in an occupational health or safety field by an organization whose program has been accredited by a nationally recognized private accreditation organization or by the Secretary, who have expertise in chemical hazard communications;

(v) 1 shall be a representative of mining industry employers; and

(vi) 1 shall be a representative of mining industry employees; and

(vii) 1 shall be a safety and health professional with significant experience in mining.

(3) CHAIR AND VICE-CHAIR.—The members of the Commission shall select a chair and vice-chair from among its members.

(4) STAFF.—

(A) STUDY AND RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Commission shall conduct a thorough study of, and shall develop recommendations on, the following issues relating to the global harmonization of hazardous chemical communication:

(i) Whether the United States should adopt any or all of the elements of the United Nation’s Globally Harmonized System of Classification and Labeling of Chemicals (referred to in this subsection and the ‘‘Globally Harmonized System’’);

(ii) How the Globally Harmonized System should be implemented by the Federal agencies with relevant jurisdiction, taking into consideration the role of the States acting under delegated authority.

(iv) The impact of adopting the Globally Harmonized System on the consistency, effectiveness, efficiency, cost and benefits, and comprehensibility of chemical hazard communication in the United States.

(v) The impact of adopting the Globally Harmonized System on occupational safety and health in the United States.

(vi) The impact of adopting the Globally Harmonized System on tort, insurance, and workers compensation laws in the United States.

(vii) The impact of adopting the Globally Harmonized System on the ability to bring new products to the market in the United States.

(viii) The cost and benefits of adopting the Globally Harmonized System to businesses, including small businesses, in the United States.

(ix) How effective compliance assistance, training, and outreach can be used to help chemical manufacturers, importers, and users, particularly small businesses, understand and comply with the Globally Harmonized System.

(B) REPORT.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to the appropriate committees of Congress a report containing a detailed statement of the findings and conclusions of the Commission, together with its recommendations for such legislation as the Commission considers appropriate.

(5) POWERS.—

(A) HEARINGS.—The Commission shall hold at least one public hearing, and may hold additional hearings, sit and act at such times and places, take such testimony, and receive such evidence, as the Commission considers advisable to carry out this section. The Commission shall, to the maximum extent possible, use existing data and research to carry out this section.

(B) INFORMATION FROM FEDERAL AGENCIES.—The Commission may secure directly from any Federal department or agency such information as the Commission considers necessary to carry out this section. Upon request by the Commission, the head of such department or agency shall promptly furnish such information to the Commission.

(C) POSTAL SERVICES.—The Commission may use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as other departments and agencies of the Federal Government.

(6) PERSONNEL MATTERS.—

(A) COMPENSATION; TRAVEL EXPENSES.—Each member of the Commission shall serve without compensation but shall be allowed travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, at rates authorized for employees of agencies of the United States Government under chapters 59 and 63 of title 5, United States Code, while away from their homes or regular places of business in the performance of services for the Commission.

(B) STAFF AND EQUIPMENT.—The Department of Labor shall provide all financial, administrative, and staffing requirements for the Commission including—

(i) office space;

(ii) furnishings; and

(iii) equipment.

(7) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate on the date that is 90 days after the date on which the Commission submits the report required under paragraph (3)(B).

(8) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Department of Labor such sums as may be necessary to carry out this subsection.

(c) HAZARD COMMUNICATION DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 20(a) of the Act (29 U.S.C. 657(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

‘‘(8) Subject to the availability of appropriations, the Secretary, after consultation with the Chairs and ranking members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, shall carry out projects during the first 2 years of enactment of this Act to develop, implement, or evaluate strategies or programs to improve chemical hazard communication in the workplace through the use of technology, which may include electronic or Internet-based hazard communication systems.’’

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the amendment made by paragraph (1).

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself, Mr. VOINOVICH, and Mr. AKAKA):

S. 268. A bill to preserve existing judgeships on the Superior Court of the District of Columbia; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, today I am pleased to introduce legislation that would preserve existing seats on the District of Columbia Superior Court. I am pleased to be joined in this effort by Senators VOINOVICH and AKAKA.

The Superior Court is the trial court of general jurisdiction over local matters in the District of Columbia. The elective judges are selected through a two-step review process. When a vacancy on the court occurs, usually because of a retiring judge, the District of Columbia Judicial Nominations Commission solicits applicants to fill the vacancy. The commission narrows the possible number of candidates to three and sends those three names to the President. The President then selects one of those three candidates and sends the nominee to the Senate. Existing law caps the total number of judges on the superior court at 59.

Unfortunately, two nominees currently pending in the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs and an additional candidate expected to be nominated in the coming months may not be able to be seated on the court even if they are confirmed by the Senate. The three seats that these candidates are intended to fill were left vacant by retiring judges so they are not new seats on the court.

The cause of this unusual problem is the District of Columbia Family Court Act, enacted during the 107th Congress. That act created three new seats for the family court, which is a division of the superior court, but failed to increase the overall cap on the number of judges seated on the court. As a result, the Family Court Act effectively eliminated three existing seats in the other divisions of the court, criminal and civil divisions.

As a result of this situation, the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs currently has two nominations pending for the superior court but no seats left to fill. I also understand that there is yet another nomination expected in the coming months. Since existing law sets strict requirements on both the DC Judicial Nominations Commission as well as the White House on how quickly they must process potential candidates and make a nomination, it is unclear if they have legal grounds to halt their processes.

This is a highly unusual situation for this body to have nominations pending before it for which there are no open positions. The bill I introduce today would rectify this problem by amending the District of Columbia Code to increase the cap on the number of associate judges on the superior court. This is not intended to create new seats on the Court; it is already done when the DC Family Court Act was enacted. Instead, this would preserve existing seats on the court and remedy a problem that is affecting not only the court but the Senate as well.

I believe it is also important to not only remedy the immediate problem before the Senate but also to ensure that all of the divisions of the superior court are fully staffed. This is more than just a procedural issue. It is also important for the citizens of the District of Columbia to know that all of the divisions, including criminal and civil, are operating at full capacity. Eliminating existing seats in the criminal and civil divisions will not improve the administration of justice in the District, but can only result in an increased judicial caseload and delays at the courthouse.

The legislation I introduce today is similar to legislation that was favorably reported by the Committee on Governmental Affairs and subsequently passed by the Senate by unanimous consent during the 108th Congress. I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting this important legislation.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself, Mr. BINGAMAN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. DORGAN, and Mr. ROCKEFELLER):

S. 2071

A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to clarify congressional intent regarding the counting of residents in the nonhospital setting under the medicare program; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Community and Rural Medical Residency Preservation Act of 2005, which will serve to ensure the continued viability of medical residency training programs in our local communities. I am particularly pleased to introduce this bill with several of my colleagues, Senators BINGAMAN, COLLINS, DORGAN, and ROCKEFELLER, who share my concerns about the need to clarify congressional intent so that teaching hospitals will be able to offer these essential residency training programs in the community and so that medical residents, as well as many who live in these communities, will be able to continue to benefit from these programs.

Many medical residency training programs have traditionally operated in sites located outside the hospital setting for their educational programs. These nonhospital settings are, in fact, where most of this type of physician training occurs. The community and rural sites which operate these programs include physician offices, nursing homes, and community health centers—cornerstones of ambulatory training for graduate medical education, GME, programs. These programs often rely upon volunteer physician faculty to provide educational opportunities in practice settings which are similar to those in which these physicians in training will ultimately practice.

Congress clearly stated support for this concept as part of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, when they reformed the GME formula to allow funding for residents training in non-hospital settings. However, recent rule-making, agency interpretations, and guidance issued by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CMS, are creating confusion for these training programs. Teaching programs across the Nation are facing audits and scrutiny as a result of confusing and unclear CMS policies and guidance on this issue. This has happened in my State, as well as many others, and is posing a serious threat to our future physician workforce and to teaching hospitals and medical schools which offer these programs.

If these agency policies are not halted and reversed, teaching hospitals throughout the country will be forced to train all residents in the hospital setting or potentially eliminate their residency programs. Not only does this do a disservice to medical residents, who are able to obtain practical experience and be exposed to settings where they may ultimately practice, but these programs provide individuals living in medically underserved and rural areas with access to health care which might otherwise not be available.

Training medical residents outside the hospital setting is sound educational policy and a worthwhile public policy goal that Congress clearly mandated when it enacted the DC Family Court Act, which already determined that teaching hospitals and entities operating in nonhospital settings. The hospital to be considered to have incurred all, or substantially all, of the costs for the training program must be determined by the hospital and the entity operating the nonhospital setting. The hospital is not required to pay the entity any amounts other than those determined by the hospital and the entity in order for the hospital to be considered to have incurred all, or substantially all, of the costs for the training program in that setting.

Instead, this would preserve existing seats in the criminal and civil divisions will not improve the administration of justice in the District, but can only result in an increased judicial caseload and delays at the courthouse.

The legislation I introduce today is similar to legislation that was favorably reported by the Committee on Governmental Affairs and subsequently passed by the Senate by unanimous consent during the 108th Congress. I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting this important legislation.

Amendments to the Medicare and Medicaid programs have resulted in confusion about funding for residents training in non-hospital settings. It is unclear to me whether the recent changes in Medicare and Medicaid policy are intended to support the development of new non-hospital settings for training residents or potentially eliminate their residency programs. The future of medical education and the health care workforce will depend upon our ability to improve the administration of justice in the District.

Hon. OLYMPIA J. SNOWE, S. 2071

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Community and Rural Medical Residency Preservation Act of 2005.’’

SEC. 2. CLARIFICATION OF CONGRESSIONAL INTENT REGARDING THE COUNTING OF RESIDENTS IN A NONHOSPITAL SETTING.

(a) D-GME.—Section 1886(h)(4)(E) (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(h)(4)(E)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentences: ‘‘For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘all, or substantially all, of the costs for the training program’ means the stipends and benefits provided to the resident and other amounts, if any, as determined by the hospital and the entity operating the nonhospital setting. The hospital is not required to pay the entity any amounts other than those determined by the hospital and the entity in order for the hospital to be considered to have incurred all, or substantially all, of the costs for the training program in that setting.’’

(b) IME.—Section 1886(d)(5)(B)(iv) (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(d)(5)(B)(iv)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentences: ‘‘For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term ‘all, or substantially all, of the costs for the training program’ means the stipends and benefits provided to the resident and other amounts, if any, as determined by the hospital and the entity operating the nonhospital setting. The hospital is not required to pay the entity any amounts other than those determined by the hospital and the entity in order for the hospital to be considered to have incurred all, or substantially all, of the costs for the training program in that setting.’’

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on January 1, 2005.
65,000 osteopathic physicians represented by the AOA, thank you for your tireless efforts to protect and promote quality graduate medical education.

A redesign of osteopathic residency programs, in all specialties, use non-hospital settings in their educational programs. These sites, which consist of physician offices, nursing homes, community health centers, and other ambulatory settings, provide resident physicians with valuable experiences in settings similar to those in which they ultimately will practice. This concept is a cornerstone of osteopathic graduate medical education.

The training of residents in non-hospital settings is sound educational policy and a worthwhile public policy goal that Congress clearly mandated in 1997. It continues to enjoy strong Congressional support. Congress endorsed this concept as part of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, when the graduate medical education, GME, funding formulas were reformed to allow funding for residents training in non-hospital settings with volunteer faculty.

However, recent rule-making, agency interpretations, and guidance issued by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CMS, has an adverse effect on residency training programs. If CMS policy is not halted, hospitals will be forced to train all residents in the hospital setting or potentially eliminate programs. Teaching programs across the nation face audits and scrutiny as a result of confusing and unclear CMS policy on this issue.

Your legislation establishes, in statute, clear and concise guidance on the use of ambulatory sites in teaching programs. If enacted, it will preserve the quality education of resident physicians originally envisioned by Congress in 1997. The AOA and our members stand ready to use all available resources to ensure enactment of this important legislation.

Sincerely,

PHILIP SHETTLE, D.O.,
President

ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN MEDICAL COLLEGES

Washington, DC, November 18, 2005.

Hon. OLYMPIA J. SNOWE,
Russell Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR SNOWE: On behalf of the Association of the American Medical Colleges, AAMC, I write to endorse the “Community and Rural Medical Residency Preservation Act of 2005.” The AAMC represents 125 accredited U.S. medical schools; approximately 400 major teaching hospitals and health systems, 94 academic and professional societies, representing 109,000 faculty members; and the nation’s 67,000 medical students and 109,000 residents.

Your bill would ensure that CMS regulations and guidance no longer impede the ability of teaching programs to train resident physicians in ambulatory and rural settings. As you know, ambulatory training is a vital aspect of every resident’s training and is designed to expose residents to a variety of rural, suburban and urban settings in which they ultimately choose to practice such as physicians offices, nursing homes, and community health centers. Such training is coordinated by program directors at teaching hospitals in conjunction with community health centers. Many of these physicians spend a significant portion of their time as a professional commitment to train the next generation of physicians.

Special attention is required for those supervising physicians in non-hospital settings who would be allowed to volunteer their teaching time. It also ensures that any teaching costs associated with supervising physicians in non-hospital settings are not volunteers would be based on negotiations between the hospital and the non-hospital setting, rather than a complicated formula requiring unreasonable administrative burdens on both the teaching programs and non-hospital training settings.

We appreciate your interest in this issue and your efforts to ensure the viability of community and rural residency programs, and we are committed to continuing to work with you and your staff to advance this important legislation.

Sincerely,

JORDAN COHEN, M.D.

ACADEMIC FAMILY MEDICINE ADVOCACY ALLIANCE

November 11, 2005.

Hon. OLYMPIA J. SNOWE,
Russell Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR SNOWE: On behalf of the undersigned academic family medicine organizations I would like to commend you for introducing the “Community and Rural Medical Residency Preservation Act of 2005,” legislation intended to solve a longstanding problem in Medicare regulations that deals with volunteer teachers of residents in non-hospital settings.

We have appreciated your support through your continued efforts to find a solution to the problem. As you know, the Balanced Budget Act, BBA, included a change in statute that allowed for the counting of training time in non-hospital settings to be included in Medicare cost reports for both IME and DME PTE counts. As part of that change, the statute stated that a hospital must incur "substantially all" the costs of the training in that setting. In the implementing regulations CMS (then HCFA) included the faculty costs to the already included residents’ salary and benefits, and required a written agreement between the hospital and the non-hospital site.

This change in regulation, and the interpretations of it that CMS has used during audits have caused many hospitals to lose the ability to count residents that train in non-hospital settings, and required them to refund large sums of IME and DME money to CMS.

Congress made the change in statute, to encourage training in rural and underserved settings. Unfortunately, CMS’s actions have had a dampening effect on training in the non-hospital setting— including rural rotations. It has resulted in many hospitals being brought back into the hospital, ironically both at a time when accrediting bodies are requiring more training outside the hospital, and contrary to the original goal of Congress.

As you are well aware, several of the Family Medicine residency programs in Maine are at risk of closing due to the financial implications of CMS’s interpretations. We are also aware of similar situations throughout the United States. For example, in Oregon, several residency programs have been brought back into the hospital, in part a result of CMS’s actions. In Ohio, four of the eight Family Medicine training programs are at risk of closing in the next couple of years. In Oregon, several residency programs are at risk of losing Medicare PTE’s, including Internal Medicine, Surgery, OB/Gyn, and Emergency Medicine. In Montana, the only Family Medicine residency program in the state is in danger of losing funding due to CMS’s outside rotations due to CMS’s unreasonable requirements related to non-hospital rotations. Across the country, residency programs are at risk. CMS has had several years to solve the problem. The report of the Office of Inspector General (OIG) that was required by the Balanced Budget Act has yet to be released.

We appreciate your efforts to put an end to this war of attrition. Please count on us to support your efforts at resolving this situation legislatively. Thank you for your help in this area. We look forward to your moving this legislation forward.

By Mr. REID:

S. 2072. A bill to provide for the conveyance of certain public lands in and around historic mining townsites in Nevada, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Nevada Mining Townsite Conveyance Act, which addresses an important public land issue in rural Nevada. As you may know, the Federal Government controls more than 87 percent of the land in Nevada. That is more than 61 million acres of land. This fact makes it necessary for our State and our communities to pursue Federal remedies for problems that in other States can be handled in a much more expeditious manner.

The residents of Ione and Gold Point in Nevada have asked for our help in settling longstanding trespass issues that affect these historic mining communities. These communities have been continuously occupied for over 100 years. Many residents live on land that their families have possibly owned for several decades. These citizens have paid their property taxes and made improvements to their properties, rehabilitated historic structures and built new ones.

The documents by which many of these people claim possession of the properties date back many years. In fact, some of the deeds are historic documents themselves. Yet because many of these documents do not satisfy modern requirements for demonstrating land title, they have been deemed invalid. In other words, the Bureau of Land Management has determined that some of the residents of Ione and Gold Point are trespassing on Federal land. This unfortunate situation puts the residents of Ione and Gold Point in Nevada, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.
as a means of promoting responsible resource management. All of the land included in this bill has been identified by the BLM for disposal.

This legislation represents the first of a two-part solution. Under this bill, special lands within the historic mining townsites of Ione and Gold Point would be conveyed to the respective counties. Under the provisions of a State law passed several years ago in Nevada, the counties will then re-convey portions of these lands to those people or entities who can demonstrate ownership or longstanding occupancy of specific parcels.

My bill conveys, for no consideration, approximate acreages in the communities of Ione and Gold Point from the BLM to Nye and Esmeralda Counties. As a condition of the conveyance, all historic and cultural resources contained in the townsites will be protected and preserved under applicable Federal and State law. It should also be noted that approximately 145 acres of the total land conveyed to Nye County will stay in county hands in order to simplify management of a cemetery, a landfill and an airstrip. These lands will benefit the agencies that manage Nevada’s vast Federal lands as well as the proud citizens of our rural communities.

I sincerely hope that my colleagues will support this legislation. It is a practical solution that deserves swift passage. We salute the Bureau of Land Management, the counties, and the local residents for their cooperation and hard work in crafting a reasonable solution to this problem.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORd.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORd, as follows:

S. 2072

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Nevada Mining Townsite Conveyance Act’’.

SEC. 2. DISPOSAL OF PUBLIC LANDS IN MINING TOWNSITES, ESMERALDA AND NYE COUNTIES, NEVADA.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The Federal Government owns real property in and around historic mining townsites in the counties of Esmeralda and Nye in the State of Nevada.

(2) While the real property is under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Bureau of Land Management, all conveyance of a mining townsite, without consideration, is difficult to manage under multiple use policies and creates a continuing source of friction and unease between the Federal Government and local residents.

(3) As a result of the confused and conflicting policies, very little real property is difficult to manage under multiple use policies and creates a continuing source of friction and unease between the Federal Government and local residents.

(4) All of the real property is appropriate for disposal for the purpose of promoting administrative efficiency and effectiveness, and the Bureau of Land Management has already identified certain parcels of the real property for disposal.

(5) Some of the real property contains historic and cultural values that must be protected.

(6) To promote responsible resource management of the real property, certain parcels should be conveyed to the county in which the property is situated in accordance with land use management plans of the Bureau of Land Management so that the county can, among other things, dispose of the property to persons residing on or otherwise occupying the property.

(b) MINING TOWNSITE DEFINED.—In this section, the term ‘‘mining townsite’’ means real property in the counties of Esmeralda and Nye, Nevada, that is owned by the Federal Government, but upon which improvements were constructed because of a mining operation on or near the property and based upon the belief that—

(1) the property had or would be acquired from the Federal Government by the entity that operated the mine; or

(2) the person who made the improvement had a valid claim for acquiring the property from the Federal Government.

(c) CONVEYANCE AUTHORITY.—
(1) In general.—Notwithstanding sections 202 and 203 of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1712, 1713), the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Bureau of Land Management, shall convey, without consideration, all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to mining townsites (including improvements thereon) identified for conveyance on the maps entitled ‘‘Original Mining Townsite, Ione, Nevada’’ and ‘‘Original Mining Townsite, Gold Point, Nevada’’ and dated October 17, 2005.

(2) AVAILABILITY OF MAPS.—The maps referred to in paragraph (1) shall be on file and available for public inspection in the appropriate offices of the Secretary of the Interior, including the office of the Bureau of Land Management located in the State of Nevada.

(d) RECEIPIENTS.—
(1) ORIGINAL RECIPIENT.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the conveyance of a mining townsite under subsection (c) shall be made to the county in which the mining townsite is situated.

(2) RECONVEYANCE TO OCCUPANTS.—In the case of a mining townsite conveyed under subsection (c) for which a valid interest is proven by one or more persons, under the provisions of Nevada Revised Statutes Chapter 244, the county that received the mining townsite under paragraph (1) shall reconvey the property to that person or persons by appropriate deed or other legal conveyance as provided in that State law. The county is not required to recognize a claim under this paragraph submitted more than 10 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(e) PROTECTION OF HISTORIC AND CULTURAL RESOURCES.—As a condition on the conveyance or reconveyance of a mining townsite under subsection (c), all historic and cultural resources (including improvements) on the mining townsite shall be protected and preserved in accordance with applicable Federal and State law.

(f) VALID EXISTING RIGHTS.—The conveyance of a mining townsite under this section shall be subject to valid existing rights, including any easement or other right-of-way, or lease in existence as of the date of the conveyance. All valid existing rights and interests of mining claimants shall be maintained, and the interests are deemed abandoned and void or null and void under—

(1) section 2320 of the Revised Statutes (30 U.S.C. 21 et seq.);

(2) the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.); or

(g) SURVEY.—A mining townsite to be conveyed by the United States under this section shall be sufficiently surveyed to legally describe the land for patent conveyance.

(h) RELEASE.—On completion of the conveyance of a mining townsite under subsection (c), the United States will be relieved from liability for, and shall be held harmless from, any and all claims arising from the presence of improvements and materials on the conveyed property.

(1) AUTHORIZATION OF APPORTIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary of the Interior such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this Act and any appropriations required by this section, including funds to cover the costs of cadastral and mineral surveys, mineral potential reports, hazardous materials, biological, cultural and archaeological clearances, validity examinations and other expenses incidental to the conveyances.

By Mrs. CLINTON:

S. 2073. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a tax credit for property owners who remove lead-based paint hazards; to the Committee on Finance.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss a serious, persistent, and entirely preventable threat to the health and well-being of our children. Lead is highly toxic and continues to be a major environmental health problem in the United States, especially for infants, children, and pregnant women. A CDC survey conducted between 1999– 2000 found a level of blood lead poisoning more than 100 times higher in inner-city African American children under age 5 than in suburban white children. Though New York State has made considerable progress in prevention and early identification of childhood lead poisoning, more needs to be done to ensure that every child is healthy, well-nourished and able to achieve his or her full potential.

The most common source of lead exposure for children today is lead paint in older housing and the contaminated lead dust it generates. Despite a ban on lead paint in 1978, there are still over 24 million housing units in the United States that have lead paint hazards, about 35 percent of homes that were built prior to 1950 and more than 40 percent of housing units available for occupancy by any other State.

Though New York State has made considerable progress in prevention and early identification of childhood lead poisoning, more needs to be done to minimize the risk of lead exposure in the home, by our kids. About 5 percent of New York children screened for lead poisoning... poisoning at age 2 were found to have elevated levels of lead in the blood, more than twice the national average. Minority and poor children are disproportionately at risk, as these groups are more likely to live in older housing with lead-based paint, provide a safe environment, where the risk of lead paint hazards are greater. Low-income children are eight times more likely to develop lead poisoning than more affluent children, and African-American and Mexican-American children are five and a half times more likely, respectively, to have toxic blood lead levels than white children. In New York City, about 95 percent of children with elevated blood levels were African American, Hispanic or Asian.

I am glad that the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services considers lead poisoning to be a priority, and established a national goal of ending childhood lead poisoning by 2010. However, Federal programs only have resources to deal with lead-based paint hazards from less than 0.1 percent of the 24 million housing units that have these hazards. At this pace, we will not be able to end childhood lead poisoning by 2010, let alone 2010.

We need a stronger childhood lead poisoning unless we get lead out of the buildings in which children live, work, and play. In Brooklyn, more than a third of the buildings in one community have children's paint hazard. Parents of children with lead poisoning are being told that nothing can be done until their children’s lead poisoning becomes worse. How can we ask parents to watch and wait while their sons and daughters suffer from lead poisoning before we remove the lead from their homes?

That is why today, I am proud to introduce the Home Lead Safety Tax Credit Act of 2005 with my colleagues, Senators DeWINE, OBAMA, and SMIRN. This legislation would provide a tax credit to aid and encourage homeowners and landlords to engage in the safe removal of lead-based paint hazards from their homes and rental units. Specifically, it would change the IRS Code of 1986 to provide a tax credit for 50 percent of the allowable costs paid by the taxpayer, up to a maximum of $3000 and $1000 for lead abatement and interim control measures, respectively. Interim control measures, which can include, for example, reconditioning, decontamination, and other interventions that can reduce exposure to lead but do not provide a complete removal of lead-based paint. The credit is targeted to homes that contain children less than 6 years of age or a woman of childbearing age, low-income residents, and to buildings built before 1960, as these include more than 96 percent of all units where lead-based paint is prevalent. In Massachusetts, a similar tax credit helped reduce the number of new cases of childhood lead poisoning by almost two-thirds in a decade.

The Home Lead Safety Tax Credit Act of 2005 would help homeowners make over 80,000 homes each year safe from lead, which is more than 10 times the number of homes made lead safe by current Federal programs. It would accomplish this, in part, by providing the Nation of the significant problem of childhood lead poisoning. I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation, which will provide needed incentives for property owners to ensure that our homes are safeguarded against environmental hazards that detrimentally affect the health and safety of our children. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

Here being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE; FINDINGS; PURPOSE. (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the “Home Lead Safety Tax Credit Act of 2005”.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that:

(1) Of the 98,000,000 housing units in the United States, 38,000,000 have lead-based paint.

(2) Of the 38,000,000 housing units with lead-based paint, 25,000,000 pose a hazard, as defined by Environmental Protection Agency and Department of Housing and Urban Development standards, due to conditions such as peeling paint and settled dust on floors and windowsills that contain lead at levels above Federal safety standards.

(3) Three million children in the United States ages 1 through 5 with blood levels higher than the Centers for Disease Control action level of 10 micrograms per deciliter have estimated levels of 300,000, lead poisoning remains a serious, entirely preventable threat to a child’s intelligence, behavior, and learning.

(4) The Secretary of Health and Human Services has established a national goal of ending childhood lead poisoning by 2010.

(5) Current Federal lead abatement programs, such as the Lead Hazard Control Grant Program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, only have resources sufficient to make approximately 7,000 homes lead safe each year.

(6) Old windows typically pose significant risks because wood trim is more likely to be painted with lead-based paint, moisture causes paint to deteriorate, and friction generates lead dust. The replacement of old windows that contain lead based paint significantly reduces lead poisoning hazards in addition to producing significant energy savings.

(7) Childhood lead poisoning can be dramatically reduced by the complete removal of lead-based paint. Empirical studies also have shown substantial reductions in lead poisoning when the affected building is temporarily or completely isolated from the rest of the home by so-called control measures that are far less costly than abatement.

(c) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to encourage the safe removal of lead hazards from homes and thereby decrease the number of children who suffer reduced intellectual development difficulties, behavioral problems, and other health consequences due to lead-poisoning.

SEC. 2. HOME LEAD HAZARD REDUCTION ACTIVITY TAX CREDIT. (a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart B of part IV of subsection A of chapter I of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to foreign tax credits, etc.) is amended by inserting in line 87 of subsection A the following: 35.1345 of title 24, Code of Federal Regulations.

(b) LIMITATION.—The amount of the credit allowed under subsection (a) for any eligible dwelling unit for any taxable year shall not exceed—

(1) either—

(A) $3,000 in the case of lead hazard reduction activity cost including interim control measures described in clauses (i), (ii), (iv) and (v) of subsection (c)(1)(A), or

(B) $2,000 in the case of lead hazard reduction activity cost including interim lead control measures described in clauses (i), (iii), (iv), and (v) of subsection (c)(1)(A), reduced by

(2) the aggregate lead hazard reduction activity cost taken into account under subsection (a) with respect to such unit for all preceding taxable years.

(c) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section:

(1) LEAD HAZARD REDUCTION ACTIVITY.—

(A) ‘‘Lead hazard reduction activity’’ means, with respect to any eligible dwelling unit:

(i) the cost for a certified risk assessor to conduct an assessment to determine the presence of a lead-based paint hazard.

(ii) the cost for performing lead abatement measures by a certified lead abatement supervisor, including the removal of paint and dust, the permanent enclosure or encapsulation of lead-based paint, the replacement of painted window surfaces, windows, or fixtures, or the removal or permanent covering of soil when lead-based paint hazards are present in such paint, dust, or soil.

(iii) the cost for performing interim lead control measures to reduce exposure or likely exposure to lead-based paint hazards, including specialized cleaning, repairs, maintenance, painting, temporary containment, ongoing monitoring of lead-based paint hazards, and the establishment and operation of management and resident education programs not only if such measures are evaluated and completed by a certified lead abatement supervisor using accepted methods, are conducted by a qualified contractor, and have an expected useful life of more than 10 years.

(iv) the cost for a certified lead abatement supervisor, those working under the supervision of such supervisor, or a qualified contractor to perform all preparation, cleanup, disposal, and clearance testing activities associated with the lead abatement measures or interim lead control measures.

(v) costs incurred by or on behalf of any occupant of such dwelling unit for any relocation which is necessary to achieve occupant protection under section 35.1345 of title 24, Code of Federal Regulations.
provisions within the Medicaid Program that devote special attention to Native Americans, the Indian Health Service, IHS, tribal health organizations, and urban Indian health organizations. These provisions would:

- Codify protections that American Indians and Alaska Natives have obtained over the years in the Medicaid program, such as the requirement that states consult with tribes and tribal health organizations prior to seeking a federal Medicaid waiver.

No. 2, clarify that American Indians and Alaska Natives are not subject to additional cost sharing or benefit limitations within Medicaid that will result in nothing more than a cost shift from the Medicaid program to IHS or tribal health providers:

- Codify critically important provisions that provide protections against states or the federal government subtracting from the 6 percent Medicaid matching payments that are delivered to Native Americans at urban Indian health clinics.

American Indians and Alaska Natives continue to suffer enormous disparities in the health and medical care they receive. It should not come as a surprise to anyone at the Federal level that health care funding for American Indians and Alaska Natives, AI/AN, is well below what it should be, and, consequently, Native Americans received less-than-adequate health care services that deny them access to the quality and medically necessary health care services.

However, year after year, budget and appropriations amendments are offered to more fully fund health care for Native Americans but both the administration and Congress routinely fail to provide adequate funding. The result is a continued and growing divide between the health of American Indians and Alaska Natives compared to that of the general population.

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, USCCR, held meetings in Albuquerque, NM, and visited the Gallup Indian Medical Center in 2003 as part of a fact-finding mission to review the current disparities in the health status and outcomes of Native Americans. What they found served as a basis for the release of their report in September 2004 entitled Broken Promises: Evaluating the Native American Health Care System. The opening line in that report reads, "Today, in Indian Country, health-related problems and the lack of adequate health care are the enemy." This is in large part due to the fact that the IHS operates at only 57 percent of the budget it needs and had more than $3 billion in unmet needs in 2003. USCCR cites estimates by the Department of Health and Human Services, IHS, that per capita health spending for all Americans is $4,065, while IHS spent about $1,914 per person and average spending on Navajo patients is just $1,187.

By Mr. BINGAMAN (for himself, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. DORGAN, Mrs. MURRAY, Ms. CANTWELL, and Mr. JOHNSON):

S. 2074. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to provide for fair treatment of services furnished to Indians under the medicaid program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be introducing the Indian Medicaid Health Act of 2005 with Senators BAUCUS, MURRAY, CANTWELL and JOHNSON.

This legislation addresses a number of technical but critically important
The USCCR adds, “In fact, the federal government spends nearly twice as much money for a federal prisoner’s health care than it does for an American Indian or Alaska Native.”

Consequently and not surprisingly, this disparity and funding shortfalls have caused severe health disparities for Native Americans. For example, life expectancy is 6 years less than the rest of the U.S. citizens. Tuberculosis rates are four times the national average. Complications due to diabetes are almost five times the national average and death rates exceed the Healthy People 2010 targets by 233 percent. Infant mortality rates are 1.7 times higher than the rate for white infants.

In recognition of these facts, the National Indian Health Board has said, “The travesty in looking at the deprived health of American Indians and Alaska Natives is recognizing that the poor health indicators could be improved if funding was available to provide a level of care.”

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights adds, “In this light, this report should be considered a clarion call to those who inexplicably fail to acknowledge the present state of Native American health care and to those who lack a commitment necessary to address the overwhelming need for clear and decisive action. Such a call is certainly appropriate for our political leadership and the message is clear—it is finally time to honor our nation’s commitment to protecting the health of Native Americans.”

Such an agenda is actually a fairly simple one. It would include:

No. 1, full funding for the Indian Health Service and tribal health organizations, which should include conversion of IHS into an entitlement program;

No. 2, increased numbers and funding of urban Indian health organizations;

No. 3, reauthorization of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act;

No. 4, coverage of as many American Indians and Alaska Natives who qualify for federal health programs, such as Medicare and Medicaid, as possible to ensure they are enrolled and receiving benefits in order to augment funding to IHS facilities; and

No. 5, targeted efforts to address health disparities in Indian Country, such as diabetes.

For this reason, I strongly support the annual budget and appropriations efforts, which have been led by Senator Daschle in the past and Senator Dorgan this year, to increase funding for the Indian Health Service. Unfortunately, those efforts continue to be voted down in the Congress.

I also strongly support reauthorization of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, IHCIA, which is led by Senators McCain and Dorgan. This effort has been ongoing for 6 years and it is long past time for the Congress to take up and pass IHCIA. Unfortunately, due to continued opposition to certain provisions by the administration, the legislation continues to be bottled up in the Congress and has not even been reintroduced in the House of Representatives.

As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, one area that I have been able to focus on in recent years is to improve coverage for Native Americans in both Medicare and Medicaid. I was able to pass legislation, the Native American Breast and Cervical Cancer Treatment Technical Amendment Act of 2001 Public L. 107-123, to correct the problems whereby Native American women had previously been wrongly denied coverage under Medicaid’s breast and cervical cancer treatment option. After a year of work, we were able to pass legislation to correct that outrageous and discriminatory error.

I was also able to pass two provisions in 2003 from my bill, the Medicare Indian Health Fairness Act of 2003, that were incorporated into the substantial appropriations bills for the Department of Health and Human Services, HHS, for the period of 2004 and 2005. These provisions included, in 2004, an $8.4 million increase in Indian Health Service, CHS, program. As with any policy, one step forward and two steps back with respect to Indian health care policy, it is in the area of Medicare, Medicaid and the State Children’s Health Insurance Program, SCHIP, policy that we have been making some progress. The legislatively required funding for IHS and tribal health providers for all Medicare Part B services and limited the amount that providers outside the IHS system can charge for services delivered to Native Americans through the contract health option. For that reason, it is with anything related to Native Americans in this Administration, the Department of Health and Human Services, HHS, continues to fail to publish regulations necessary to implement the latter provision, because of the law required publishing of those regulations in December 2004.

Although most involved in Indian health feel frustrated and argue that we are taking two steps forward and one step back with respect to Indian health care policy, it is in the area of Medicare, Medicaid and the State Children’s Health Insurance Program, SCHIP, policy that we have been making some progress. The legislation I am introducing today, the Medicaid Indian Health Care Act of 2005, seeks to protect the gains that have been made and to take another few steps forward.

For one, while IHS funding continues to fall further behind what is needed, one bright spot is that collections from third party payers has increased over time with Medicaid playing a fundamental role in that growth.

IHS was first authorized to seek Medicaid payment for services delivered in Indian health facilities, whether operated by the IHS directly or by tribes as part of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act of 1976 or Public Law 94–437. As Indian health experts Mim Dixon and Kris Locke said, “This entitlement funding was expected to provide critical resources to improve the quality of health care and to reduce the health status disparities. To support this outcome, there is an additional provision in the IHCIA that Medicaid and Medicare revenues shall not offset Congressional appropriations for the IHS, so that the total amount of funding for Indian health care would increase and not merely be shifted from one funding stream to another.”

With regard to that requirement, however, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights adds, “Congress included language to articulate the express intent that increased collections not be used to justify lower appropriations levels. Congress has not abided by this clear mandate. Only enhanced collection efforts have made up for shortfalls created by inflation and population growth, and prevented a continuous decline from 1991 until today.”

According to the Government Accountability Office, GAO, in its August 2005 report entitled Health Service: Health Care Services Are Not Always Available to Native Americans, “In fiscal year 2004, IHS-funded facilities obtained approximately $628 million in reimbursements, with 92 percent collected from Medicare and Medicaid and 8 percent from private insurance.”

Medicaid collections, alone, have been $446 million, which is 71 percent of the total third party collections reported by IHS. Medicaid collections decreased by another $8.4 million in fiscal year 2006. The Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board estimates it will take $371 million to maintain current services for IHS and tribally operated health programs. Therefore, the administration's ridiculously low proposed increase for IHS combined with their estimated increase in Medicare and Medicaid collections will still fall $300 million short of providing current services.

Whether intentional or not, as direct IHS funding continues to fail to cover inflation or population growth year after year, Medicaid collections are now a growing and critical component of the Indian Health Service's revenues collected by IHS and tribal health organizations. Yet, while Medicaid has become critically important to the health of American Indians and Alaska Natives, Native Americans constitute a small share of overall Medicaid costs. As the Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board has found, Medicaid accounts for almost 20 percent of the IHS budget but less than 0.5 percent of Medicaid expenditures go to Indian health.

Consequently, the legislation I am introducing today with Senators Baucus, Dorgan, Murray, Cantwell, and Johnson entitled the ‘Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005’ is primarily an attempt to prevent the Federal Government and States from inflicting harm on the health and well-being of American Indians and Alaska Natives, but it also seeks to take a few steps forward as well.

What is at stake? First, from the ‘do no harm’ prescriptive, both the National Governors’ Association, NGA, and the House of Representatives budget reconciliation legislation contemplate major changes to the Medicaid program to achieve $10 billion or more in proposed budget cuts to Medicaid and Medicare. Unfortunately, it is clear that neither the NGA nor the House of Representatives considered the tremendous impact that the cuts they propose will have on the health and well-being of Native Americans across this Nation.

For example, both the NGA and the House budget reconciliation package provide for States being able to impose additional cost-sharing, copayments, and other forms of cost-sharing on low-income Medicaid beneficiaries, including Native Americans. Such changes can have enormous consequences for AI/ANs as well as the Indian Health Service, urban Indian, I/T/U providers, which is not an appropriate use of Federal funds for Medicaid services delivered to American Indians and Alaska Natives from cost sharing including co-pays, premiums and any form of cost sharing. It makes little sense to Indian people to sign up for a health program that charges them for health care services that their tribe gave up lands and others considerations to secure for all generations. The practical effect is that they will not sign up for Medicaid and the IHS funded programs will end up paying all the costs of their health care. If this becomes the case, CMS will save the federal government millions of dollars, but renege on rights guaranteed by law and treaties.

In order to address these important points, one need look no further than the State Children’s Health Insuranceregulations exempting Native Americans or tribal property by States through the Medicaid Program. Furthermore, section 8 of the legislation would explicitly prohibit imposing such things as premiums, deductibles, coinsurance, or copayments or AI/AN children enrolled in their SCHIP programs. There is no comparable regulatory protection for AI/AN children or adults enrolled in Medicaid.

Consequently, to prevent harm to the health and well-being of Native Americans, section 3 of the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005 would explicitly prohibit imposing such things as premiums or other forms of cost sharing on Native Americans within Medicaid, just as SCHIP already does. Section 4 adds a prohibition on the recovery of Federal and Indian Health Services funds for Medicaid services delivered to Native Americans or tribal health programs. Although the Medicaid statute currently provides for 100 percent Federal Medicaid matching funds for services delivered to AI/ANs through IHS facilities and a subsequent Memorandum of Agreement, MOA, in 1996 clarified those payments also apply to services delivered through tribally owned facilities, the 100 Percent Federal Medical Assistance Percentage, FMAP, does not apply to urban Indian clinics.

In short, if an AIAN Medicaid beneficiay received services from an IHS or tribal facility, the Federal Government is paying 100 percent of the cost, but if the same individual received the same services from an urban Indian health program, the Federal Government shifts part of the costs of that care to the State in proportion to the State’s share of the FMAP. There is no justification for this cost shift. Just as IHS and tribal facilities are part of the I/T/U delivery system for Native Americans, so are urban Indian health programs and, as part of the “Federal trust responsibility,” States should not be required to subsidize any element of this system.

Section 6 of the legislation would simply ensure that I/T/U providers that do not have the status of federally qualified health centers, FQHCs, receive the same level of reimbursement for services delivered to Medicaid beneficiaries, MCOs, as they would if they were a FQHC. If Medicaid MCOs are continued to be allowed to pay I/T/U providers less for the same services that they pay other network providers, the I/T/U providers effectively, be subsidizing the MCO or other network providers, which is not an appropriate use of limited federal IHS resources.
And finally, section 7 of the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005 ensures that IHS spending on behalf of a Native American does not disqualify them for Medicaid coverage under the "medically needy option." Current policy prohibits such care from counting toward the "spend down" requirements for qualifying as "medically needy" in Medicaid. Receiving services at an IHS facility should certainly not disqualify anybody from Medicaid coverage and, once again, IHS should not be subsidized by Medicaid.

In total, the provisions in the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005 that at first glance appear to be a hodgepodge of provisions related to both Medicaid and Indian health. However, they are not. They reflect a concerted effort on behalf of Native American people to protect the gains that have already been made within the Medicaid Program for American Indians and Alaska Natives and the need to make additional improvements in the delivery of health services throughout Native people, including those in urban areas, through Medicaid.

Furthermore, this is just the first in a series of bills addressing Indian issues and Medicaid and Medicare Programs. The next two will focus, respectively, on improving the Medicare Program and fixing problems with respect to the Medicare prescription drug program for Native Americans and Indian health providers.

As part of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act of 1976 report, the Congress said, "The most basic human right must be the right to enjoy decent health. Certainly, any effort to fulfill Federal responsibilities to the Indian people must begin with the provision of health services. In fact, health services must be the cornerstone upon which all rest the other Federal programs for the benefit of Indians. Without a proper health care program directed toward the Indian people, they will be unable to fully avail themselves of the many economic, educational, and social programs already directed to them or which this Congress and future Congresses will provide them."

The Federal Government has a "Federal trust responsibility" to Indian people that it is simple not fulfilling. This administration and this Congress can and simply must do better. Part of that multipart plan agenda should include a reauthorization of the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005.

This could occur in a variety of ways. First, the provision from this bill could be incorporated in any budget reconciliation conference report package. Consequently, during Finance Committee consideration of the Senate's version of the budget reconciliation package on October 25, 2005, I offered an amendment that included a number of the provisions from this bill. Opponents of the amendment, which failed on a 9-11 vote, later voted with Democrats in favor and Republicans opposing it, argued at the time that the budget reconciliation package was not the right vehicle but that we should look to the reauthorization bill for the Indian Health Care Improvement Act to attach these provisions instead.

Two days later, on October 27, 2005, the Committee on Indian Affairs took up and passed S. 1057, the Indian Health Care Improvement Act Amendments of 2005, but did not include any of the Medicaid provisions I have been discussing as part of this bill. They were told that inclusion of Medicaid provisions within HICIA was objected to by both the administration and the Senate Finance Committee. However, in the Senate Finance Committee's failure to take up the amendment earlier this month, another possible vehicle might be the reauthorization bill for the Indian Health Care Improvement Act when it comes to the Senate floor.

And finally, if we fail to get these provisions included in either of those legislative vehicles, we will push to get the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005 passed as a free standing piece of legislation. Medicaid has become such a crucial and necessary piece in maintaining and improving the health and well-being of American Indians and Alaska Natives that it is unacceptable that the various Senate committees point to each other as being in charge while not taking the necessary responsibility to get these important protections for Native Americans passed into law.

The Federal Government and the States also point figures at each other as to who is in charge. As Jim Crouch, executive director of the California Rural Indian Health Board, has said, "The joint operation of the Medicaid program by federal and state authorities often ignores the governmental status of Tribes and the unique needs of Tribal citizens. It is always appropriate for the federal government to establish special provisions that are in the best interest of Tribes and American Indians due to the governmental status of federally recognized tribes."

Mr. President, it is well past time to enact legislative initiatives such as the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005 and reauthorization of HICIA. Years of broken promises to Indian Country must come to an end. Passage of the provisions in both the Medicaid Indian Health Act of 2005 and HICIA reauthorization are just two of the pieces that the Federal Government must take in order to fulfill the Federal trust responsibility and make real progress at providing the full array of medically necessary health services that have been long promised to American Indians.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill and a fact sheet describing the various provisions in the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. APPLICATION OF 100 PERCENT FMAP FOR SERVICES FUNNELED THROUGH AN INDIAN HEALTH SERVICE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The third sentence of section 1905(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396b(b)), is amended by inserting, after the period at the end of the following: "or through an urban Indian health program receiving funds under title V of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 1911(c) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396c(c)), is amended by inserting "or through an urban Indian health program receiving funds under title V of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act" after "facilities."

SEC. 3. PROHIBITION ON IMPOSITION OF PREMUMS, DEDUCTIBLES, CO-PAYMENTS, AND OTHER COST-SHARING ON INDIANS.

Section 1916 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396m) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by inserting "(other than such individuals who are Indians (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act)" after "such individuals";

(2) in subsection (b), in the matter preceding paragraph (1), by inserting "or who are Indians (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act)" after "other such individuals";

(3) in subsection (c)(1), by inserting "(other than such an individual who is an Indian (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act))" after "(other than such individual)".

SEC. 4. PROHIBITION OF RECOVERY AGAINST ESTATES OF INDIGENT DECEASED INDIANS.

Section 1917(b)(1) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396b(b)(1)) is amended, in the matter preceding subparagraph (A), by inserting "who is not an Indian (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act)" after "an individual" the second place it appears.

SEC. 5. REQUIREMENT FOR CONSULTATION WITH INDIAN TRIBES IN AMENDMENT OF INDIAN HEALTH CARE IMPROVEMENT ACT.

Section 1105 of the Indian Health Act (42 U.S.C. 1315) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(g) In the case of an application for a waiver of compliance with the requirements of section 1902 (or a renewal or extension of such a waiver) that is likely to affect members of an Indian tribe (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act) or a tribal health program (whether operated by an Indian tribe or a tribal organization (as so defined) serving such members, the Secretary shall, prior to granting such a waiver under subsection (a) or extending or renewing such a waiver under subsection (e), consult with each such Indian tribe.".

SEC. 6. REQUIREMENT FOR FAIR PAYMENT BY MEDICAID MANAGED CARE ENTITIES TO INDIAN HEALTH PROGRAM PROVIDERS.

Section 1909(m)(2)(A)(ii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396m(2)(A)(ii)) is amended to read as follows:

"(ii) such contract provides, in the case of an entity that has entered into a contract for service with an Indian tribe or tribal organization whether operated by the Service or an Indian tribe or tribal organization (as defined in section section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act) or an urban Indian health program receiving funds under title V of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, that is not a freestanding health clinic, a rural health clinic, or a freestanding rural health clinic, that the entity shall provide payment that is not less than the highest level and amount of payment that the entity would otherwise provide against their income, enable them to enroll in the Medicaid program under Title XIX and qualify as "medically needy" by incurring high medical expenses that, when applied against their income, enable them to spend down into eligibility. Any premiums or copayments imposed on this group must be "nominal" in amount, as defined in federal regulations. States should not be required to subsidize the costs of long-term care services (nursing facilities, home and community-based services, and related hospital services and prescription drugs) paid for by Medicaid on behalf of AI/AN beneficiaries. The state may not recover against an individual's estate until the death of any surviving spouse and so long as there is not a child under 21 or an adult child who is blind or disabled. Under federal administrative guidance, certain AI/AN property is exempt from estate recovery.

Proposed Change

Exempt the property/estates of deceased AI/AN beneficiaries from recovery for costs correctly paid by Medicaid.

Justification

The Federal government, through the IHS, has the responsibility to provide health care to AI/ANs eligible for its services. Because the IHS, due to funding limitations, generally does not have the capacity to furnish long-term care services, low-income AI/ANs who are eligible for IHS services must turn to Medicaid for coverage for this care. To recover Medicaid costs correctly paid from the estates of these individuals violates the Federal government's responsibility to them. Tribal lands and property should not be threatened by federal or state governments.

SEC. 5. REQUIRING TRIBAL CONSULTATION PRIOR TO APPROVAL OF SECTION 1135 WAIVERS

Current Law

Under section 1115 of the Social Security Act, the Secretary of HHS has the authority to waive certain requirements of federal Medicaid law to enable states to conduct demonstrations that, in his judgment, "is likely to assist in promoting the objectives of" the Medicaid program. Section 1115 contains no requirement that the Secretary consult with Indian tribes prior to approval of Medicaid demonstration waivers that may adversely affect their members or their tribal health programs. The January 2005 HHS

Proposed Change

Prohibit states from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements in any amount on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

Justification

The Federal government, through the IHS, has the responsibility for providing health care free of charge to AI/ANs eligible for its services. Thus, if a state imposes any cost-sharing, nominal or otherwise, on certain services (e.g., emergency services and family planning services and supplies) and certain population groups, State SCHIP programs are prohibited by regulation from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

Proposed Change

Prohibit states from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements in any amount on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

Justification

The Federal government, through the IHS, has the responsibility for providing health care free of charge to AI/ANs eligible for its services. Thus, if a state imposes any cost-sharing, nominal or otherwise, on certain services (e.g., emergency services and family planning services and supplies) and certain population groups, State SCHIP programs are prohibited by regulation from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

Thus, if a state imposes any cost-sharing, nominal or otherwise, on certain services (e.g., emergency services and family planning services and supplies) and certain population groups, State SCHIP programs are prohibited by regulation from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

Proposed Change

Prohibit states from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements in any amount on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

Justification

The Federal government, through the IHS, has the responsibility for providing health care free of charge to AI/ANs eligible for its services. Thus, if a state imposes any cost-sharing, nominal or otherwise, on certain services (e.g., emergency services and family planning services and supplies) and certain population groups, State SCHIP programs are prohibited by regulation from imposing deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance requirements on AI/AN Medicaid beneficiaries.

tribal consultation policy does not specify that consultation is required in these specific circumstances, although the previous July 2001 guidance had.

Proposed Change

Require the Secretary, prior to approval of any new section 1115 waiver or renewal of any existing section 1115 waiver to consult with tribes whose members or tribal health programs could be affected by the waiver.

Justification

Section 1115 waivers are commonly negotiated by the Secretary (acting through CMS or the Governor of the state seeking the waiver through his Medicaid or Budget director). Affected Indian tribes have no formal role in these negotiations, even when those negotiations result in reductions in Medicaid eligibility, benefits, and/or reimbursement or increases in premiums and cost-sharing, that have an adverse impact on tribal members or tribal health programs.

SEC. 6. REQUIRE FAIR PAYMENT BY MEDICAID MCOs TO I/T/U PROVIDERS

Current Law

Managed care organizations (MCOs) contracting with Medicaid on a risk basis are required to pay health care providers, whether in- or out-of-network, on a timely basis for covered services provided to Medicaid beneficiaries. Although there are generally no minimum payment requirements, in the case of federally qualified health centers (FQHCs) and rural hospital clinics (RHCs), MCOs are required to pay the same amount for a covered service as they would if the provider were not an FQHC or RHC. In addition, the State Medicaid agency is required to pay the difference, if any, between: (1) the MCO’s payment to the FQHC or RHC; and, (2) the prospective payment amount to which the FQHC or RHC is entitled under Medicaid law. There is no similar protection for I/T/U providers that are not FQHCs or RHCs.

Proposed Change

Require that MCOs to pay I/T/U providers that are not FQHCs or RHCs the same amount that the MCO would pay for the same service to a non-I/T/U provider.

Justification

Current law protects I/T/U providers that are FQHCs or Rural Health Clinics against underpayment by Medicaid MCOs. This provision does not protect these providers from other I/T/U providers. If Medicaid MCOs are allowed to pay I/T/U providers less than the same services that they pay other network providers, there would be less incentive to subsidizing the MCO or other network providers. This is not an appropriate use of limited federal IHS resources.

SEC. 7. TREATMENT OF IHS OR TRIBAL PAYMENTS AS INCURRED MEDICAL EXPENSES

Current Law

States have the option of extending Medicaid coverage to individuals who are medically needy—individuals who “spend-down” by incurring high medical expenses that, when subtracted from their incomes, reduce their incomes to below the state’s established level. If the IHS or a Tribe pays the health care costs of an AI/AN, that individual is not considered to have “incurred” the cost for purposes of meeting the “spend-down” requirements for qualifying as medically needy.

Proposal

Allow medical expenses paid by the IHS or a Tribe to count as costs “incurred” for medical care for purposes of establishing eligibility for Medicaid in states with “medically needy” programs.

Justification

Current policy has the effect of disqualifying AI/ANs from Medicaid eligibility as “medically needy” individuals. This, in turn, results in IHS, Tribes, and tribal organizations paying for services that Medicaid would otherwise cover once these individuals establish Medicaid eligibility. Subsidizing Medicaid is not an appropriate use of limited IHS and Tribal resources.

SEC. 8. OPTION FOR STATES TO EXEMPT INDIANS FROM REDUCTIONS IN ELIGIBILITY OR BENEFITS

Current Law

CMS policy has been to acknowledge the federal government’s unique responsibilities under the trust obligation and to take into account special circumstances of American Indians and Alaska Natives in Medicaid and SCHIP programs. As such, states have historically been allowed to include special provisions for Indian participation in the Medicaid program. This Act prohibits waiver provisions containing special provisions for Indian participation in the Medicaid program.

Proposed Change

Secretary shall not disapprove a state Plan amendment, or deny a state request for a waiver under section 1115, on the grounds that the amendment or waiver would exempt eligible Indians (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Health Care Improvement Act) from: (1) any restriction on eligibility for medical assistance under this title that would otherwise apply under the amendment or waiver; (2) any imposition of premiums, deductibles, copayments or other cost-sharing that would otherwise apply under the amendment or waiver; or (3) any reduction in covered services or supplies that would otherwise apply under the amendment or waiver.

Justification

The federal government should continue to acknowledge the federal government’s unique responsibilities under the trust obligation and to take into account and allow special circumstances of American Indians and Alaska Natives in Medicaid and SCHIP programs.

S. 2075.—To amend the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 to permit States to determine State residency for higher education purposes and to authorize the cancellation of removal and adjustment of status of certain aliens who are long-term United States residents and who entered the United States as children, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) INSTITUTION OF HIGHER EDUCATION.—The term “institution of higher education” has the meaning given that term in section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001).

(2) UNIFORMED SERVICES.—The term “uniformed services” has the meaning given that term in section 101(a) of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 3. RESTORATION OF STATE OPTION TO DETERMINE RESIDENCY FOR PURPOSES OF HIGHER EDUCATION BENEFITS

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 505 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1623) is repealed.

(b) IMPLEMENTATION.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall take effect as if included in the enactment of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

SEC. 4. CANCELLATION OF REMOVAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF STATUS OF CERTAIN LONG-TERM RESIDENTS WHO ENTERED THE UNITED STATES AS CHILDREN

(a) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN LONG-TERM RESIDENTS WHO ENTERED THE UNITED STATES AS CHILDREN.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as otherwise provided in this Act, the Secretary of Homeland Security may cancel removal of, and adjust the immigration status of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence to a conditional lawful permanent resident to the conditional basis described in section 5, an alien who is inadmissible or deportable from the United States, if the alien demonstrates that—

(A) the alien has been physically present in the United States for a continuous period of not less than 5 years immediately preceding the date on which the alien first became unlawfully present in the United States; and

(B) the alien has never been under a final order of deportation, or removed, unless the alien has demonstrated that—

(i) the order was not final at the time the violation was committed; and

(ii) The alien has not been physically present in the United States for a continuous period of not less than 5 years immediately preceding the date on which the alien first became unlawfully present in the United States; and

(ii) is not deportable under paragraph (1)(E), (1)(G), (2), (3)(B), (3)(C), (3)(D), (4), or (6) of section 237(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)), or, if deportable solely under subparagraphs (C) or (D) of paragraph (3) of such subsection, the alien was under the age of 16 years at the time the violation was committed; and

(ii) the alien was age 16 or over and was present in the United States for a continuous period of not less than 5 years immediately preceding the date of the alien’s unlawful presence in the United States; and

(iii) the alien is physically present in the United States at the time of the application.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The repeal under subsection (a) shall take effect as if included in the enactment of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.
regulation allowing eligible individuals to apply affirmatively for the relief available under this subsection without being placed in removal proceedings.

(b) REMOVAL OF CONDITION.—For purposes of this section, any period of continuous residence or continuous physical presence in the United States of an alien who applies affirmatively for the relief available under this subsection shall not terminate when the alien is served a notice to appear under section 239(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1229a(a)).

(c) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN BREAKS IN PRESENCE.—(1) In general.—An alien shall be considered to maintain continuous physical presence in the United States under subsection (a) if the alien has departed from the United States for any period in excess of 90 days or for any periods in the aggregate exceeding 180 days.

(2) EXTENSIONS FOR EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES.—The Secretary of Homeland Security may extend the time periods described in paragraph (1) if the alien demonstrates that the failure to timely return to the United States was due to exceptional circumstances. The exceptional circumstances determined sufficient to justify an extension shall be no less compelling than serious illness of the alien, or death or serious illness of a parent, sibling, or child of the alien.

(d) EXEMPTION FROM NUMERICAL LIMITATIONS.—Nothing in this section may be construed to apply a numerical limitation on the number of aliens who may be eligible for cancellation of removal or adjustment of status under this section.

(e) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall publish proposed regulations implementing this section. Such regulations shall be effective immediately on an interim basis, but are subject to change and revision after reasonable time after publication of the interim regulations in accordance with paragraph (a) of section 6.

(2) INTERIM, FINAL REGULATIONS.—Within a reasonable time after publication of the interim regulations in accordance with paragraph (a), the Secretary of Homeland Security shall publish final regulations implementing this section.

(3) REMOVAL OF ALIEN.—The Secretary of Homeland Security may, in the Secretary's discretion, remove any alien who has a pending application for conditional status under this Act.

SEC. 5. CONDITIONAL PERMANENT RESIDENT STATUS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—(1) CONDITIONAL BASIS FOR STATUS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and except as provided in section 6, an alien whose status has been adjusted under section 4 to that of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence shall be considered to have attained the status of a lawful permanent resident upon adjustment to such status subject to the provisions of this section.

(2) NOTICE OF REQUIREMENTS.—(A) IN GENERAL.—An alien who has been lawfully admitted for permanent residence shall receive written notice of the requirements described in paragraphs (B) through (E) of subsection (b).

(B) REMOVAL OF CONDITION IF ADVERSE DETERMINATION.—If the Secretary determines—

(i) The alien has acquired a degree from an institution of higher education in the United States during the period in which the petition is pending;

(ii) The alien has served in the uniformed services for at least 2 years and, if discharged, has received an honorable discharge;

(iii) The alien has provided a list of all of the secondary educational institutions that the alien attended in the United States;

(iv) The alien has been a conditional permanent resident under section 231(d) of the Act (8 U.S.C. 1115(d)); and

(v) The alien has satisfied the requirements of paragraphs (A), (B), and (C) of section 1227(a)(3)(B) of the Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(3)(B)).

(3) TIME TO FILE PETITION.—An alien may petition to remove the conditional basis to lawful permanent resident status during the period beginning 180 days before and ending 2 years after the date of the granting of conditional permanent resident status or any other expiration date of the conditional permanent resident status as extended by the Secretary of Homeland Security in accordance with this Act.

(4) TREATMENT OF PERIOD FOR PURPOSES OF NATURALIZATION.—For purposes of title III of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1431 et seq.), in the case of an alien who is in the United States as a lawful permanent resident under this section, the alien shall be considered to have been admitted as an alien lawfully admitted for permanent resident status in the United States as an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence. However, the conditional basis must be removed before the alien may apply for naturalization.

(5) SEC. 6. RETROACTIVE BENEFITS UNDER THIS ACT.

If, on the date of enactment of this Act, an alien has satisfied all the requirements of subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 4(a)(1) and section 5(d)(1)(D), the Secretary of Homeland Security may adjust the status of that alien to that of a lawful permanent resident in accordance with section 4. The alien may petition for removal of such condition at the end of the conditional residence period in accordance with section 5(c) if the alien has met the requirements of subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of section 5(d)(1) during the entire period of conditional residence.

SEC. 7. EXCLUSIVE JURISDICTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall have exclusive jurisdiction to determine eligibility for relief under this Act, except where the alien has been placed into deportation, exclusion, or removal proceedings either prior to or after filing an application for relief under this Act, in which case the United States shall have exclusive jurisdiction and shall assume all the powers and duties of the Secretary until proceedings are terminated, or if a final order of deportation, exclusion, or removal is entered the Secretary shall assume all powers and duties delegated to the Secretary under this Act.

(b) Stay of Removal of Certain Aliens Enrolled in Primary or Secondary School.—The Attorney General shall stay the removal of an alien who—

(1) meets all the requirements of subparagraphs (A), (B), (C), and (E) of section 4(a)(1);

(2) is at least 12 years of age; and

(3) is enrolled full time in a primary or secondary school.

(c) Employment.—An alien whose removal is stayed pursuant to subsection (b) may be employed by the applicant of any additional fee for such expedited processing.

Whoever files an application for relief under this Act and willfully and knowingly falsifies or conceals a material fact or makes any false or fraudulent statement or representation, or makes or uses any false writing or document knowing the same to contain any false or fraudulent statement or entry, shall be fined in accordance with title 18, United States Code, or imprisoned not more than 3 years, or both.

SEC. 9. Confidentiality of Information.

(a) Prohibition.—No officer or employee of the United States may—

(1) use the information furnished by the applicant pursuant to an application filed under this Act to initiate removal proceedings against any persons identified in the application;

(2) make any publication whereby the information furnished by any particular individual pursuant to an application under this Act can be identified; or

(3) authorize any officer or employee of the United States Government or, in the case of applications filed under this Act with a designated entity, to examine applications filed under this Act.

(b) Required Disclosure.—The Attorney General or the Secretary of Homeland Security shall disclose the information furnished under this section, and any other information derived from such furnished information, to—

(1) a duly recognized law enforcement entity in connection with an investigation or prosecution of an offense described in paragraph (2) or (3) of section 212(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)), when such information is requested in writing by such entity; or

(2) an official coroner for purposes of adjustment of status under section 4(a).

(c) Penalty.—Whoever knowingly uses, publishes, or permits information to be examined in violation of this section shall be fined not more than $10,000.

SEC. 10. Expedited Processing of Applications.

Regulations promulgated under this Act shall provide that applications under this Act will be considered on an expedited basis and without regard to the amount of time required by the applicant of any additional fee for such expedited processing.

SEC. 11. Higher Education Assistance.

Notwithstanding any provision of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001 et seq.), with respect to assistance provided under title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1070 et seq.), an alien who adjusts status to that of a lawful permanent resident under this Act shall be eligible only for the following—

(1) Student loans under parts B, D, and E of such title IV (20 U.S.C. 1071 et seq., 1087a et seq., 1087aas et seq.), subject to the requirements of such parts;

(2) Federal work-study programs under part C of such title IV (42 U.S.C. 2751 et seq.), subject to the requirements of such part;

(3) the length of their careers would be a tremendous victory for the American people. This legislation would improve public safety for all by ensuring a strong, knowledgeable, and experienced crop of prosecutors at the federal level.

I want to thank Senators HATCH, MIKULSKI, DURBIN, DEWINE, BIDEN, FEINGOLD, SMITH, DODD, CHAMBLISS, ROCKEFELLER, LIEBERMAN, BOXER, WYDEN, NELSON, and CORZINE, for cosponsoring this important legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

S. 2076

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. Short Title.

This Act may be cited as the ‘‘Assistant United States Attorney Retirement Benefit Equity Act of 2005.’’

SEC. 2. Retirement Treatment of Assistant United States Attorneys.

(a) Civil Service Retirement System.—

(1) ASSISTANT UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS.

(A) an assistant United States attorney; and

(B) an assistant United States attorney;

(ii) by striking the period and inserting ‘‘;’’;

(i) by striking ‘‘(29)’’ and inserting ‘‘(30)’’;

(4) the number of aliens whose conditional permanent resident status was removed under section 5.

By Mr. LEAHY (for himself, Mr. HATCH, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. BIDEN, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. DODD, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. WYDEN, Mr. NELSON of Florida, and Mr. CORZINE):

S. 2076. A bill to amend title 5, United States Code, to provide for assistant United States attorneys the same retirement benefits as are afforded to Federal law enforcement officers; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. LEAHY of New York is ready to join with Senator HATCH in introducing the Assistant United States Attorney Retirement Benefit Equity Act of 2005.

This bill was previously introduced in the 107th and 108th Congresses. A House companion bill, H.R. 3183, has already been introduced and currently has 43 bipartisan cosponsors.

Fairness is the driving force behind this legislation. The bill would correct an inequity that exists under current law, whereby AUSAs receive substantially less favorable retirement benefits than nearly all other people involved in the Federal criminal justice system. The bill would increase the retirement benefits given to AUSAs, as well as other designated attorneys employed by DOJ who act primarily as criminal prosecutors by including them in the Civil Service Retirement System. This change would bring their retirement benefits in line with thousands of other employees involved in the Federal criminal justice system.

Enhanced retirement benefits will allow us to attract and retain the best and the brightest for these vital posi-
(2) RETIREMENT TREATMENT.—Chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding after section 8331 the following:

"§ 8352. Assistant United States attorneys

"Except as provided under the Assistant United States Attorneys Retirement Benefit Equity Act of 2005 (including the provisions relating to the non-applicability of mandatory separation requirements under section 8335(b) and 8425(b) of this title), an assistant United States attorney shall be treated in the same manner and to the same extent as a law enforcement officer for purposes of this chapter.

(3) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—(A) The table of sections for chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 8331 the following:

"8352. Assistant United States attorneys."

(B) Section 8333(a) of such title is amended by striking "8331(29)A)" and inserting "8331(30)A)".

(b) FEDERAL EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM.—

(1) ASSISTANT UNITED STATES ATTORNEY DESIGNATION.—Section 8401 of title 5, United States Code, is amended—

(A) in paragraph (34), by striking "and" at the end; (B) in paragraph (35), by striking the period and inserting "; and"; and (C) by adding at the end the following:

"(36) ‘assistant United States attorney means—"

"(A) an assistant United States attorney under section 542 of title 28; and"

"(B) any other attorney employed by the Department of Justice (including a position designated by the Attorney General upon finding that the position—"

"(i) involves routine employee responsibilities that are substantially similar to those of assistant United States attorneys; and"

"(ii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission.”

(2) RETIREMENT TREATMENT.—Section 8402 of title 5, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(h) Except as provided under the Assistant United States Attorneys Retirement Benefit Equity Act of 2005 (including the provisions relating to the non-applicability of mandatory separation requirements under section 8335(b) and 8425(b) of this title), an assistant United States attorney shall be treated in the same manner and to the same extent as a law enforcement officer for purposes of this chapter.

(ii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(iii) is to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(iv) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(v) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(vi) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(vii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(viii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(ix) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(x) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xi) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xiii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xiv) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xv) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xvi) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xvii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xviii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xix) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xx) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(3) MANDATORY SEPARATION.—Sections 8335(b) and 8425(b) of title 5, United States Code, are amended by adding at the end the following:

"The preceding provisions of this subsection shall not apply in the case of an assistant United States attorney as defined under the Act of 2005 (including the provisions relating to the non-applicability of mandatory separation requirements under section 8335(b) and 8425(b) of this title).

(4) DETERMINATION.—The determination referred to in paragraph (3) shall be made by the Attorney General in consultation with the Department of Justice, as if the amendments made by this Act had never been enacted.

(5) ELECTION REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 9 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall order measures reasonably designed to provide notice to incumbents—

(1) their election rights under this Act; and

(2) the measures of making or not making a timely election under this Act.

(6) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall take effect 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 3. PROVISIONS RELATING TO INCUMBENTS.

(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section—

(1) the term ‘assistant United States attorney’ means—

(A) an assistant United States attorney under section 542 of title 28, United States Code; and

(B) any other attorney employed by the Department of Justice occupying a position designated by the Attorney General upon finding that the position—

(i) involves routine employee responsibilities that are substantially similar to those of assistant United States attorneys; and

(ii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(iii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(iv) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(v) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(vi) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(vii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(viii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(ix) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(x) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xi) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xiii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xiv) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xv) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xvi) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xvii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xviii) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xix) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(xx) is critical to the Department’s successful accomplishment of an important mission; and

(2) the term ‘incumbent’ means an individual who elects (or is deemed to have elected) the option under subsection (d)(1)(A), all service performed by such individual pursuant to an appointment under sections 541, 543, and 546 of title 28, United States Code, shall—

(A) to the extent performed on or after the effective date of that election, be treated in accordance with applicable provisions of subsection (d)(4)(C) of chapter 3 or chapter 84 of title 5, United States Code, as if the amendments made by this Act had then been in effect.

(3) NO OTHER RETROACTIVE EFFECT.—Nothing in this Act (including the amendments made by this Act) shall affect any of the terms or conditions of an individual’s employment (apart from those governed by subsection (e)) after the effective date of this Act.

(b) DESIGNATIONS.—The designation of any attorney as an assistant United States attorney described under section 3(a)(1)(B) shall be at the discretion of the Attorney General.
gives the NIGC authority to issue complaints against any individual or entity, not just against tribes or management contractors, that violate IGRA or federal regulations; and requires all tribes to pay fees to the NIGC. When IGRA was enacted in 1988, Indian gaming was a $200 million dollar industry. Today, the industry earns $19 billion a year and is spread throughout the nation. The amendments reflect the need to re-evaluate what constitutes appropriate regulation of this vastly changed enterprise. I have always been and continue to be a supporter of the rights of Indian tribes to conduct gaming, a right guaranteed by the Supreme Court in the Cabazon decision and codified in IGRA, but I also continue to believe that effective regulation of these enterprises are critical to tribes’ continued success.

Ensuring that the NIGC is able to continue its oversight of Class III gaming is necessary to this effective regulation. On August 24, 2005, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia issued its decision in California v. Cabazon ("CRIT"), ruling that the National Indian Gaming Commission ("NIGC") does not have the authority to issue to Class III Minimum Internal Controls Standards ("MICS"). These standards regulate day-to-day operations of gaming. Specifically, they provide rules that designate how cash is handled by the gaming operation, prescribe surveillance over game play, and provide auditing procedures.

Until the Court’s decision, the NIGC had been regulating Class III gaming through MICS since 1999. The regulations applied both to Class II gaming—that is, bingo and games similar to bingo—and to Class III gaming—including slot machines and table games—which represents the largest source of revenue for Indian gaming. Following the CRIT decision this summer, however, some tribes have challenged NIGC’s authority to issue or enforce the MICS. Although without NIGC authority, oversight of Class III gaming may be provided by tribal-State compacts, States’ roles in enforcement varies widely and many have left such regulation to NIGC. In a Nationwide industry, uniform federal minimum internal control standards are appropriate. This amendment clarifies that the NIGC continues to have the authority it has exercised until now to issue and enforce MICS, including the ability to inspect facilities and audit premises in order to assure compliance.

Protecting the integrity of Indian gaming also requires that the NIGC’s authority to review manager contracts be expanded. IGRA originally identified only one kind of contract that was subject to NIGC approval: management contracts. History has shown, however, that without NIGC review, some contracts have been fashioned as “consulting” contracts or “development” contracts, i.e., something other than “management” contracts that require NIGC review. In these cases, tribes run the risk that contractors will enforce unfair contract terms, and tribes and patrons run the risk that the tribe will contract with unsuitable management contractors. This amendment extends NIGC approval to all significant gaming operation-related contracts so that the Indian gaming industry remains, as far as possible, free from unscrupulous and unsuitable contractors.

Related to the integrity of Indian gaming is the issue of off-reservation gaming. When enacted in 1988, IGRA generally banned Indian gaming that was not located on reservations, however, in the interest of fairness, several exceptions to this ban were provided. Exploitation of these exceptions, not anticipated at the time, has led to a burgeoning practice by unscrupulous developers seeking to profit off Indian tribes desperate for economic development. Predictably, these developments have invited a backlash against Indian gaming generally. These amendments to IGRA will put an end to the most troublesome of these proposals by eliminating the authority of the Secretary to take land into trust off-reservation pursuant to the so-called “two-part determination” provisions of Section 20.

In addressing concerns about other exceptions in Section 20 for land claims, initial reservations and established reservations, these amendments strike a balance by curbing potential abuses of these exceptions, while not unfairly penalizing those who lost their lands through no fault of their own, or even had them taken illegally—often by force. Thus, newly recognized and restored tribes may still obtain lands, and conduct gaming on them, but such lands must be in the area where the particular tribe has its most significant ties. This has been the case for tribes reclaiming and restored lands, and surely is not unfair to impose on all similarly situated tribes. For tribes that successfully reclaim lands taken illegally and want to conduct gaming on them, these amendments will require congressional confirmation and the lands must be within the state where the tribe has or had its last reservation. This provision does not impair any tribe’s legal rights to reclaim lands, but will discourage attempts by creative non-Indian developers to turn a tribe’s legal rights into a form of extortion.

Ensuring that penalties are appropriate and can be brought against the responsible party is another means of protecting the integrity of Indian gaming. To this end, the bill clarifies that civil penalties can be imposed on any violator of IGRA, not just Indian tribes or management contractors.

Finally, this bill will ensure fairness in the regulation of Indian gaming by assuring that all tribes bear their appropriate share of the cost of regulation so that the industry, as a whole, continues to prosper. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 278

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Indian Gaming Regulatory Act Amendments of 2005”.

SEC. 8. GAMING-RELATED CONTRACTS.

Section 12 of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (25 U.S.C. 2711) is amended to read as follows:

“(a) IN GENERAL.—To be enforceable under this Act, a gaming-related contract shall be—

“(1) in writing; and

“(2) approved by the Chairman under subsection (c).

“(b) CONTRACT REQUIREMENTS.—In general, a gaming-related contract under this Act shall provide for the Indian tribe, at a minimum, provisions relating to—

“(1) accounting and reporting procedures, including, as appropriate, provisions relating to verifiable financial reports;

“(2) the access required to ensure proper performance of the gaming-related contract, including access to, with respect to a gaming activity—

“(i) daily operations;

“(ii) real property;

“(iii) equipment; and

“(iv) any other tangible or intangible property used to carry out the activity;

“(C) assurance of performance of each party to the gaming-related contract, including the provision of bonds under subsection (d), as the Chairman determines to be necessary; and “(D) the reasons for, and method of, terminating the gaming-related contract.

“(2) TERM.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the term of a gaming-related contract shall not exceed 5 years.

“(B) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), a gaming-related contract may have a term of not to exceed 7 years if—

“(i) the Indian tribal party to the gaming-related contract submits to the Chairman a request for such a term; and “(ii) the Chairman determines that the term is appropriate, taking into consideration the circumstances of the gaming-related contract.

“(3) FEES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Withholding the payment terms of a gaming-related contract, and except as provided in subparagraph (B), the fee of a gaming-related contractor or beneficiary of a gaming-related contract shall not exceed an amount equal to 30 percent of the net revenues of the gaming operation that is the subject of the gaming-related contract.

“(B) EXCEPTION.—The fee of a gaming-related contractor or beneficiary of a gaming-related contract may be in an amount equal to not more than 40 percent of the net revenues of the gaming operation that is the subject of the gaming-related contract.

“(C) APPROVAL BY CHAIRMAN.—

“(1) GAMING-RELATED CONTRACTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—An Indian tribe shall submit each gaming-related contract of the tribe to the Chairman for approval by not later than the earlier of—

“(i) the date that is 90 days after the date on which the gaming-related contract is executed; or “(ii) the date that is 90 days before the date on which the gaming-related contract is scheduled to be completed.

“(B) FACTORS FOR CONSIDERATION.—In determining whether to approve a gaming-related contract under this subsection, the Chairman may take into consideration any information relating to the terms, parties, and beneficiaries of—

“(i) the gaming-related contract; and “(ii) any other agreement relating to the Indian gaming activity, as determined by the Chairman.

“(C) DEADLINE FOR DETERMINATION.—
(I) IN GENERAL.—The Chairman shall approve or disapprove a gaming-related contract under this subsection by not later than 90 days after the date on which the Chairman makes a determination regarding the suitability of each gaming-related contractor under paragraph (2).

(ii) EXPEDITED REVIEW.—If each gaming-related contractor has been determined by the Chairman to be suitable under paragraph (2) on or before the date on which the gaming-related contract is submitted to the Chairman, the Chairman shall approve or disapprove the gaming-related contract by not later than 30 days after the date on which the gaming-related contract is submitted.

(II) FAILURE TO DETERMINE.—If the Chairman fails to make a determination by the date described in subclause (I), a gaming-related contract described in that subclause shall be considered to be approved.

(III) AMENDMENTS.—The Chairman may require the parties to a gaming-related contract considered to be approved under subclause (II) to amend the gaming-related contract, as the Chairman considers to be appropriate to meet the requirements under subsection (b).

(IV) REQUIREMENTS FOR DISAPPROVAL.—The Chairman shall disapprove a gaming-related contract under this subsection if the Chairman determines that

(aa) the gaming-related contract fails to comply with any requirement under subsection (b);

(aa) a gaming-related contractor is unsuitable under paragraph (2);

(bb) the gaming-related contract will be amended as the Chairman considers to be appropriate to meet the requirements under subsection (b);

(bb) a gaming-related contract that is determined to be approved under subclause (I) if the Chairman determines that

(aa) adequate bonds have been provided under paragraph (2)(G)(iii) and subsection (d); and

(bb) the gaming-related contract will be amended as the Chairman considers to be appropriate to meet the requirements under subsection (b).

(V) REQUIREMENTS FOR DISAPPROVAL.—The Chairman shall disapprove a gaming-related contract under this subsection if the Chairman determines that

(I) the gaming-related contract fails to meet any requirement under subsection (b);

(ii) a gaming-related contractor is unsuitable under paragraph (2);

(iii) a gaming-related contractor or beneficiary of the gaming-related contract—

(aa) unduly interfered with or influenced, or attempted to unduly interfere with, a decision or process of an Indian tribal government relating to the gaming activity for the benefit of the gaming-related contractor or beneficiary; or

(bb) a gaming-related contract, or any party to a guarantor acceptable to the Chairman; or

(VI) further decisions that the gaming-related contractor is unsuitable, in accordance with the duties of skill and diligence of the trustee.

(VI) TEMPORARY SUITABILITY.—A gaming-related contractor may be temporarily suitable to carry out any gaming activity that is the subject of the gaming-related contract, for the benefit of the gaming-related contractor, or beneficiary, if the Chairman determines that

(I) the gaming-related contractor—

(aa) is an elected member of the governing body of an Indian tribe that is a party to the gaming-related contract;

(bb) has been convicted of—

(aa) a felony; or

(bb) any offense relating to gaming;

(bb) knowingly and willfully provided any materially important false statement or other information to the Commission or an Indian tribe that is a party to the gaming-related contract; or

(bb) failed to respond to a request for information under this Act;

(bb) unduly interfered, or attempted to unduly interfere, with any determination or governing process of the governing body of an Indian tribe relating to a gaming activity, for the benefit of the gaming-related contractor, or beneficiary; or

(ii) duly and substantially failed to comply with—

(aa) the gaming-related contract;

(bb) a tribal gaming ordinance or resolution adopted and approved pursuant to this Act;

(iv) the gaming-related contractor is temporarily suitable to carry out the gaming activity that is the subject of the applicable gaming-related contract.

(VII) DEFAULT'S CONSEQUENCES.—(i) The Chairman may determine that a gaming-related contractor is temporarily unsuitable, in accordance with the duties of skill and diligence of the trustee.

(ii) A determination of temporary unsuitability to carry out the gaming activity that is the subject of the applicable gaming-related contract shall be considered to be suitable to carry out the gaming activity that is the subject of the applicable gaming-related contract.

(iii) A determination of temporary unsuitability to carry out the gaming activity that is the subject of the applicable gaming-related contract shall be considered to be suitable to carry out the gaming activity that is the subject of the applicable gaming-related contract.

(iii) if the Chairman determines that—

(I) the gaming-related contractor—

(aa) is an elected member of the governing body of an Indian tribe that is a party to the gaming-related contract; or

(bb) any offense relating to gaming;
“(C) CONCURRENCE.—If the Commission concurs with a determination of the Chairman under this subsection, the determination shall be considered to be a final agency action.

“(D) DISSENT.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—If the Commission dissents from a determination of the Chairman under this subsection, the Chairman shall—

“(I) rescind the determination of the Chairman; or

“(II) on a finding of immediate and irreparable harm to the Indian tribe that is the subject of the determination, maintain the determination.

“(ii) FINAL AGENCY ACTION.—A decision by the Chairman to maintain a determination under clause (i)(II) shall be considered to be a final agency action.

“(3) APPEAL OF COMMISSION DETERMINATION.—An Indian tribe, a gaming-related contractor, or a beneficiary of a gaming-related contract, or a party to a gaming-related contract may appeal a determination of the Commission under paragraph (2) to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

“(f) CONVEYANCE OF REAL PROPERTY.—No gaming-related contract under this Act shall transfer or otherwise convey any interest in land or other real property unless the transferee or conveyee—

“(i) is authorized under law; and

“(ii) is specifically described in the gaming-related contract.

“(g) CONTRACT AUTHORITY.—The authority of the Secretary under section 2303 of the Revised Statutes (25 U.S.C. 81) relating to contracts under this Act is transferred to the Commission.

“(h) NO EFFECT ON TRIBAL AUTHORITY.—This section does not expand, limit, or otherwise affect the authority of any Indian tribe or any party to a Tribal-State compact to investigate, license, or impose a fee on a gaming-related contractor.

SEC. 9. CIVIL PENALTIES.

Section 14 of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (25 U.S.C. 2713) is amended—

“(1) by striking the section designation and heading and adding the following as subsection (a) and inserting the following:

“SEC. 14. CIVIL PENALTIES.

“(a) PENALTIES.

“(1) VIOLATION OF ACT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—An Indian tribe, individual, or entity that violates any provision of this Act or any rule or regulation of the Commission and any Indian tribal regulation, ordinance, or resolution approved under section 11 or 13 in carrying out a gaming-related contract may be subject to, as the Chairman determines to be appropriate—

“(i) an appropriate civil fine, in an amount not to exceed $25,000 per violation per day; or “(ii) an order for the Chairman for an accounting and disgorgement, including interest.

“(B) APPLICATION TO INDIAN TRIBES.—An Indian tribe shall not be subject to disgorgement under subparagraph (A)(ii) unless the Chairman determines that the Indian tribe grossly violated a provision of this Act.

“(2) APPEALS.—The Chairman shall provide, by regulation, an opportunity to appeal a determination relating to a violation under paragraph (1).

“(3) WRITTEN COMPLAINTS.—

“(A) In general.—If the Commission has reason to believe that an Indian tribe or a party to a gaming-related contract may be subject to a penalty under paragraph (1), the final closure of an Indian gaming activity, or a modification or termination order relating to a gaming-related contract, the Chairman shall provide to the Indian tribe or party a written complaint, including—

“(i) a description of any act or omission that is the basis of the belief of the Commission; and

“(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking ‘‘(A)’’ and inserting the following:

“(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking ‘‘Secretary or the Chairman to be eligible to be used for purposes of gaming shall continue to be eligible for those purposes.’’

S. 2079. A bill to improve the ability of the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of the Interior to promptly implement recovery treatments in response to catastrophic events affecting the natural resources of Forest Service land, Bureau of Land Management Land, respectively, to support the recovery of non-Federal land damaged by catastrophic events, to assist impacted communities, to revitalize Forest Service experimental forests, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Forests for Future Generations Act, because it addresses a very serious problem in our National Forests. I am not sure how many people in this body have witnessed the devastation of a catastrophic wildfire, but I recommend that everyone tour a burned over forest. It is a sobering reality, often resulting in a moonscape.

The worst fire year in recent Montana history was the summer of 2000, when we burned 945,000 acres of productive Montana land. After months of smoke-filled air, we were left with decimated wildlife habitat, charred hillsides, sediment-filled streams, and millions of board feet of dead, standing timber. Active forest management would require that restoration of these fragile soils and ecosystems begin as soon as possible, but that is almost never the case on national forest land.

Instead, we spend millions of dollars and thousands of hours writing a plan to restore the burned area, which is inevitably appealed, challenged, and litigated by an environmental group. We end up arguing in the courtroom when we should be working in the forest.

I have seen side-by-side sections of land where private landowners or even the State of Montana has taken quick action and removed some dead or dying timber then replanted the forest. News is better on the national forest land before any of the Federal timber is even harvested. It is amazing to me, and it makes absolutely no sense. For that reason I am happy to cosponsor this bill, because it is time to reintroduce some common sense into a system that has gone far off the tracks.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 320—CALLING ON THE PRESIDENT TO ENSURE THAT THE FOREIGN POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES REFLECTS APPROPRIATE UNDERSTANDING AND SENSITIVITY CONCERNING OFFENSES RELATING TO HUMAN RIGHTS, GENOCIDE, CLEANSING, AND GENOCIDE DOCUMENTED IN THE UNITED STATES RECORD RELATING TO THE ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

Mr. DURBIN (for himself and Mr. DURBIN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res 320

Whereas the Armenian Genocide was conceived and carried out by the Ottoman Empire from 1915 to 1923, resulting in the deportation of nearly 2,000,000 Armenians, of whom 1,500,000 men, women, and children were killed, 500,000 survivors were expelled from their homes, and which succeeded in the elimination of more than 2,000-year presence of Armenians in their historic homeland;

Whereas, on May 24, 1915, the Allied Powers issued a joint statement of England, France, and Russia that explicitly charged, for the first time ever, another government of committing “a crime against humanity”;

Whereas that joint statement stated the “Allied Governments announce publicly to the Sublime Porte that they will hold personally responsible for these crimes all members of the Ottoman Government, as well as those of their agents who are implicated in such massacre”;

Whereas the post-World War I Turkish Government, with the top leaders involved in the “organization and execution” of the Armenian Genocide and in the “massacre and destruction of the Armenians”;

Whereas the trials and convictions of officials of the Young Turk Regime were not enforced; those of their agents who are implicated in those crimes are still open and widely available to the public and interested institutions;

Whereas President Woodrow Wilson agreed with such Concurrent Resolution and encouraged the formation of the organization known as Near East Relief, which was incorporated by the Act of August 6, 1919, 66th Congress (41 Stat. 273, chapter 32);

Whereas, from 1915 through 1930, Near East Relief contributed more than $110,000,000 to aid survivors of the Armenian Genocide, including aid to approximately 132,000 Armenian orphans;

Whereas Senate Resolution 359, 66th Congress, agreed to May 11, 1920, stated in part, “the testimony adduced at the hearings conducted by the subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations have clearly established the truth of the reported massacres and other atrocities from which the Armenian people suffered”;

Whereas such Senate Resolution followed the report to the Senate of the American Military Mission to Armenia, which was led by General James Harbord, dated April 13, 1920, that stated “[m]utilation, violation, torture, and death have left their haunting memories in a hundred beautiful Armenian valleys, and the traveler in that region is seldom free from the evidence of this most colossal crime of all the ages”;

Whereas, as displayed in the United States Holocaust Memorial, Adolf Hitler, on ordering his military commanders to attack Poland without provocation in 1939, disregarded assurance that “to have another war, to have death and destruction in Europe, to have war after all, speaks today of the annihilation of the Armenians?” and thus set the stage for the Holocaust;

Whereas Raphael Lemkin, who coined the term “genocide” in 1944, and who was the earliest proponent of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Genocide, invoked in Armenian case as a definitive example of genocide in the 20th century;

Whereas the first resolution on genocide adopted by the United Nations, United Nations Resolution 96(1), was adopted on November 9, 1946 (which was adopted at the urging of Raphael Lemkin), and the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Genocide, done at Paris December 9, 1948, recognized the Armenian Genocide as the type of crime the United Nations intended to prevent and punish by codifying existing standards;

Whereas, in 1948, the United Nations War Crimes Commission invoked the Armenian Genocide as “precisely . . . one of the types of offenses on which ‘crimes against humanity’ is intended to cover” and as a precedent for the Nuremberg tribunals;

Whereas such Commission stated that “[t]he April 24, 1915 day of remembrance for all the victims of the ArmenianGENOCIDE, especially the one and one-half million people of Armenian ancestry”;

Whereas Proclamation 4838 of April 22, 1981 (95 Stat. 1813) issued by President Ronald Reagan, stated, in part, “[]like the genocide of the Armenians before it, and the genocide of the Cambodians which followed it—and like too many other persecutions of too many other peoples—one of the lessons of the Holocaust must never be forgotten”;

Whereas House Joint Resolution 247, 98th Congress, adopted by the House of Representatives on September 10, 1984, resolved that “the proclamation calling upon the people of the United States to observe such day as a day of remembrance for all the victims of genocide, especially the one and one-half million people of Armenian ancestry”;

Whereas such report also explained that “[a]lmost 1,000,000, and possibly well over half of the Armenian population, are reliably estimated to have disappeared marched by independent authorities and eyewitnesses and this is corroborated by reports in United States, German, and British archives, and of contemporaries in the Ottoman Empire, including those of its ally Germany”;

Whereas the United States Holocaust Memorial Council is an independent Federal agency that serves as the board of trustees of the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum pursuant to section 2302 of title 36, United States Code, and, on April 30, 1981, that the Museum would exhibit information regarding the Armenian Genocide and the Museum has since done so; and

Whereas, reviewing an aberrant 1982 executive order and an independent United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in 1993, after a review of documents pertaining to the policy record of the United States, noted that the administration of United States President Ronald Reagan, in response to a request from the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum on April 9, 1982, to accept a report entitled “Study of the Question of the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide”, which stated “[t]he Nazi aberration has unfortunately not been the only case of genocide in the 20th century. Among other examples which can be cited as qualifying are . . . the Ottoman massacre of Armenians”;

Whereas such report also explained that “[a]lmost 1,000,000, and possibly well over half of the Armenian population, are reliably estimated to have disappeared marched by independent authorities and eyewitnesses and this is corroborated by reports in United States, German, and British archives, and of contemporaries in the Ottoman Empire, including those of its ally Germany”;

Whereas the United States Holocaust Memorial Council is an independent Federal agency that serves as the board of trustees of the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum pursuant to section 2302 of title 36, United States Code, and, on April 30, 1981, that the Museum would exhibit information regarding the Armenian Genocide and the Museum has since done so; and

Whereas, reviewing an aberrant 1982 executive order by the Department of State (which was later retracted) that asserted that the facts of the Armenian Genocide may be amenable to the United States appeals court record about the Armenian Genocide “contradacted longstanding United States policy and was eventually retracted”;

Whereas the House of Representatives adopted an amendment to H.R. 3540, 104th Congress (the Foreign Operations,
We will remember, and in doing so, cultivate the knowledge—and the wisdom—necessary to act to prevent a repetition of these terrible crimes. Because the problem isn’t simply a matter of knowing, but about knowing when and how to act.

Senator ENZI and I have submitted a resolution that acknowledges the suffering of those destroyed by the Armenian genocide. It calls on the President to remember the hard lessons of the Armenian genocide in the conduct of U.S. foreign policy and to assure that our knowledge of this terrible crime informs our human rights policies.

As I said, the Armenian genocide was the first genocide of the 20th century. It was also the first time that the American public found itself confronting such a cruel, man-made catastrophe.

America closely followed the crisis. In 1915, the New York Times alone published 145 articles on the Armenian massacres, roughly one every 2½ days. Disturbed by the reports, American diplomats tried to end the carnage. Our ambassador to Constantinople, Henry Morgenthau, played an important role in bringing the massacres to the attention of the outside world.

The Near East Relief Organization, founded in 1919 to assist Armenian refugees, provided more than $116 million for the cause during its 10-year lifetime—the equivalent of more than $1 billion in today’s money. We need to recapture that energy and determination because the best way to honor those who suffered and to acknowledge their suffering and dedicate ourselves to preventing such a destruction of entire communities in the future.

Recognizing the Armenian genocide takes on added importance in the face of the genocide occurring right now in the Darfur region of Sudan. As we pause to reflect upon this grievous example of man’s inhumanity to man, let us honor the victims of the Armenian genocide and all crimes against humanity not only by acknowledging their suffering, but also by acting to halt similar atrocities that are occurring now before our very eyes.

SENATE RESOLUTION 321—COMMEMORATING THE LIFE, ACHIEVEMENTS, AND CONTRIBUTIONS OF ALAN A. REICH

Mr. DEWINE (for himself and Mr. HARKIN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. Res. 321

Whereas Alan Reich devoted his life to civic involvement and efforts to improve the quality of life for individuals with disabilities;

Whereas Alan Reich was born in Pearl River, New York, was a well-respected and beloved member of his family, and served as an inspirational figure in the disability community;

Whereas Alan Reich—

(1) graduated from Dartmouth College in 1952, where he was an all-American track and field athlete;

(2) received a Master’s degree in Russian literature from Middlebury College in 1953;

(3) was awarded a diploma in Slavic languages and Eastern European studies from the University of Oxford;

(4) received an M.B.A. from Harvard University in 1959; and

(5) was a brilliant linguist who spoke 5 languages;

Whereas Alan Reich served in the Army from 1953 to 1957 as an infantry officer and a combat medical intern in Germany, and was named as a member of the United States Army Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame;

Whereas Alan Reich married Gay Forsythe Reich, and shared with her 50 years of marriage and a deep commitment to each other and their three children, James, Jeffery, and Elizabeth;

Whereas from 1969 to 1970, Alan Reich was employed as an executive at Polaroid Corporation when, at age 32, he became a quadriplegic due to a tragic skiing accident, and used a wheelchair as a result of his injury;

Whereas although Alan Reich was told he would not drive or write again, he relearned both skills and returned to work at Polaroid Corporation;

Whereas Alan Reich served in the Department of State from 1970 to 1975 as a Deputy Assistant Secretary for Educational and Cultural Affairs;

(2) later served as Director of the Bureau of East-West Trade for the Department of Commerce;

(3) was named the President of the United States Council for the International Year of Disabled Persons in 1978; and

(4) was the first person to address the United Nations General Assembly from a wheelchair when the United Nations opened the International Year of the Disabled in 1981;

Whereas in 1982, Alan Reich transformed the Council for the International Year of Disabled Persons into the National Organization on Disability, an organization that actively seeks on national, State, and local levels full and equal participation for individuals with disabilities in all aspects of life;

Whereas Alan Reich—

(1) founded the Bimillennium Foundation in 1984 to encourage national leaders to set goals aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities for the year 2000;

(2) served as past Chairman of the People-to-People Committee on Disability; and

(3) worked to advance research in regeneration of the central nervous system as Chairman of the Paralysis Cure Research Foundation and as President of the National Paraplegia Foundation;

Whereas Alan Reich, who used a wheelchair for 43 years, led an effort that raised $1,650,000 to add the statue of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in a wheelchair to the memorial of the former President in Washington, D.C.;

Whereas Alan Reich stated in 2001, “The unveiling is a major national moment, the removal of the shroud of shame that cloaks disability. The statue will become a shrine to people with disabilities, but it will also inspire everyone to overcome obstacles. When you see the memorial that follows the statue, what will be in your mind is that he did all this from a wheelchair.”;
Whereas in July 2005, Alan Reich received the George H. W. Bush Medal, an award established to honor outstanding service under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.);

Whereas Alan Reich is survived by his wife, partner, and best friend, Gay, their 2 sons James and Jeffery, their daughter Elizabeth, and 13 grandchildren;

Whereas Alan Reich passed away on November 8, 2005, and the contributions he made to his family, community, and his nation will not be forgotten: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) honors the life, achievements, and contributions of Alan Reich;

(2) extends its deepest sympathies to the family of Alan Reich for their loss of this great and generous man; and

(3) respectfully requests the Secretary of the Senate to transmit a copy of this resolution to the family of Alan Reich.

Mr. D'WINE. Mr. President, I am pleased today join with Senator HARKIN to submit a resolution commemo-rating the many contributions and achievements of Alan Reich, who was an inspirational figure in the disability community. Alan Reich devoted his own life to the improving the quality of life for so many others—especially individuals with disabilities. He recently passed away on November 8, 2005, at the age of 75. Alan Reich was the founder of the National Organization on Disability. This organization is active on a local, State, and national level in efforts to seek full and equal participation for people with disabilities in all aspects of life. You see, at the young age of 32, Alan became a quadriplegic following a swimming accident. He used a wheelchair as a result of this injury. While Alan was told he would not drive or write again, he relearned both skills and went on to become an inspiration for all those in the disability community. In 1990, he received the George H.W. Bush Medal for outstanding service under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Alan Reich is probably best known for leading an effort that raised $1.65 million to add the statue of FOR in a wheelchair at the FDR Memorial. He spearheaded critical research to track the progress of Americans with disabilities in key areas of life. He founded and chaired the Paralysis Cure Research Foundation; was president of what became the National Spinal Cord Injury Association; and he founded the National Task Force on Disability. Alan also led the way in taking the disability rights movement into the international arena. He chaired the World Committee on Disability, and was the first individual using a wheelchair to address the United Nations General Assembly. For these and many other achievements, Alan was awarded the George Bush Medal this past July.

I want to express my own profound respect for this remarkable individual and for all that he accomplished in his life. He played a pivotal role in the disability rights revolution that has transformed this country in important ways in recent decades. He improved the lives of countless individuals with disabilities, both in this country and throughout the world. And, perhaps best of all, he has left a living legacy in the form of the advocacy organizations he founded, which will now continue his work into the future.

Alan Reich was a wonderful advocate and a great American. He fought with all his heart to win equity, access, and opportunity for people with disabilities. He changed countless lives, and made America a much better and fairer society. For all these reasons, the United States Senate honors Alan Reich, today, with this resolution expressing our respect and appreciation.

My wife Fran and I extend our deepest sympathy to Alan Reich's family for their loss.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I am honored to be the lead Democratic co-sponsor of this resolution to commemorate the life, achievements and contributions of Alan Reich.

I was greatly saddened, last week, to hear about the passing of this great and passionate advocate for the rights of people with disabilities. As many Senators know very well, Alan was the founder and president emeritus of the National Organization on Disability. Over the past 25 years, both he and the National Organization on Disability have been tremendously effective advocates for the full and equal participation of persons with disabilities in all aspects of American life.

The achievements of Alan Reich, and the sheer breadth of his activism and leadership, are simply remarkable. While president of the National Organization on Disability, he built a broad coalition of disability groups that successfully fought for the inclusion of a statue of President Roosevelt in a wheelchair at the FDR Memorial. He spearheaded critical research to track the progress of Americans with disabilities in key areas of life. He founded and chaired the Paralysis Cure Research Foundation; was president of what became the National Spinal Cord Injury Association; and he founded the National Task Force on Disability. Alan also led the way in taking the disability rights movement into the international arena. He chaired the World Committee on Disability, and was the first individual using a wheelchair to address the United Nations General Assembly. For these and many other achievements, Alan was awarded the George Bush Medal this past July.

I want to express my own profound respect for this remarkable individual and for all that he accomplished in his life. He played a pivotal role in the disability rights revolution that has transformed this country in important ways in recent decades. He improved the lives of countless individuals with disabilities, both in this country and throughout the world. And, perhaps best of all, he has left a living legacy in the form of the advocacy organizations he founded, which will now continue his work into the future.

Alan Reich was a wonderful advocate and a great American. He fought with all his heart to win equity, access, and opportunity for people with disabilities. He changed countless lives, and made America a much better and fairer society. For all these reasons, the United States Senate honors Alan Reich, today, with this resolution expressing our respect and appreciation.

Whereas the United States supports the development of democracy, civil society, and the rule of law in the Russian Federation; and whereas the rule of law and the guarantee of equal justice under law are fundamental attributes of democratic societies; whereas the trial, sentencing, and imprisonment of Mikhail Khodorkovsky and Platon Lebedev have raised troubling questions about the impartiality and integrity of the judicial system in Russia; whereas the Department of State 2004 Country Report on Human Rights Practices in Russia stated that the arrest of Mr. Khodorkovsky was "widely believed to have been prompted, at least in part, by the considerable financial support he provided to opposition groups;" whereas Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice has remarked that the "departure of Mr. Khodorkovsky and the dismantling of his company have "raised significant concerns" about the independence of the judiciary in Russia; whereas the independent non-governmental organization Freedom House has asserted that the conviction of Mr. Khodorkovsky "undermined the seriousness of the rule of law and growing intolerance for political dissent in Russia;" whereas upon concluding an investigation of the facts surrounding the case of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev, the Human Rights Committee of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe determined that the two men were "arbitrarily singled out" by the Russian authorities, violating the principle of equality before the law; whereas in May 2005, a Moscow court sentenced Mr. Khodorkovsky to serve 9 years in prison; whereas Article 73 of the Russian Criminal Penitentiary Code stipulates that except under extraordinary circumstances, prisoners serve their terms of deprivation of liberty on the territory of subjects of the Russian Federation where they reside or were convicted; whereas on or about October 16, 2005, Mr. Khodorkovsky was sent to prison camp YG 19/10 in the Chita Region of Siberia; whereas on or about October 16, 2005, Mr. Lebedev was sent to penal camp number 98/3 in the arctic region of Yamal-Nenets; whereas the transfer of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev constitutes an apparent violation of Russia law and hearing back to the worst practices and excesses of the Soviet era; whereas a broad coalition of human rights advocates and intellectuals in Russia have appealed to Vladimir Lukin, the Human Rights Commissioner of the Russian Federation, to investigate and rectify any abuse of Russia law associated with the transfer of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev; and whereas the selective disregard for the rule of law by officials of the Russian Federation further undermines the standing and status of the Russian Federation among the democratic nations of the world: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that:...
(1) the criminal justice system in Russia has not accorded Mikhail Khodorkovsky and Platon Lebedev fair, transparent, and impartial treatment under the laws of the Russian Federation;

(2) the standing and status of the Russian Federation among the democratic nations of the world would be greatly enhanced if the authorities of the Russian Federation were to take the necessary actions to dispel widespread concerns that—
   (A) the criminal cases against Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev, and their associates are politically motivated;
   (B) the transfer of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev to prison camps thousands of kilometers from their homes and families represents a violation of the norms and practices of Russia law; and
   (C) in cases dealing with perceived political threats to the authorities, the judiciary of Russia is an instrument of the Kremlin and such judiciary is not truly independent; and

(3) notwithstanding any other disposition of the cases of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev, and without prejudice to further disposition of same, Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev should be transferred to penal facilities with locations that are consonant with the norms and general practices of Russia law.

SENATE RESOLUTION 323—EXPRESSIONS OF CONCERN OVER THE VIOLENT ARREST OF MIKHAIL KHODORKOVSKY AND PLAGTON LEDBEV AND THE THAT THE UNITED STATES WILL NOT BE ABLE TO EXERCISE CONTROL OVER THE Internet

Mr. COLEMAN (for himself, Mr. WARNER, Mr. PYOR, Mr. SMITH, Mr. DEMINT, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. NELSON of Florida, Mr. KYL, Mr. ALLEN, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. BUNNING, and Mr. CHAMBLISS) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 323

Whereas market-based policies and private sector leadership have given the Internet the flexibility to evolve;

Whereas the government of the Internet to the global economy, it is essential that the underlying domain name system and technical infrastructure of the Internet remain stable and secure;

Whereas the Internet was created in the United States and has flourished under United States supervision and oversight, and the Federal Government has followed a path of transferring Internet control from the defense sector to the civilian sector, including the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) with the goal of full privatization;

Whereas the developing world deserves the access to knowledge, services, commerce, and communication, the accompanying benefits to economic development, education, and health care, and the informed discussion that is the bedrock of democratic self-govern-ment that the Internet provides;

Whereas the explosive and hugely beneficial growth of the Internet did not result from government involvement, but from the opening of the Internet to commerce and private sector innovation;

Whereas on June 30, 2008, President George W. Bush declared that the United States intends to maintain its historic role over the master “root zone” file of the Internet, which lists all authorized top-level Internet domains;

Whereas the recently articulated principles of the United States on the domain name and addressing system of the Internet (DNS) are that—
   (1) the Federal Government will—
      (A) preserve the security and stability of the DNS;
      (B) take no action with the potential to adversely affect the effective and efficient operation of the DNS; and
   (C) maintain a historic role of the United States regarding modifications to the root zone file;
   (2) governments have a legitimate interest in the management of country code top level domains (ccTLDs);
   (3) the United States is committed to working with the International community to address the concerns of that community in accordance with the stability and security of the DNS;
   (4) ICANN is the appropriate technical manager of the Internet, and the United States will continue to provide oversight so that ICANN maintains focus and meets its core technical mission; and
   (5) dialogue relating to Internet governance should continue in multiple relevant fora, and the United States encourages an ongoing dialogue with all stakeholders and will continue to support market-based approaches and private sector leadership;

Whereas the formal report issued by the Working Group on Internet Governance (WGIG), established by the United Nations Secretary General in accordance with a mandate given during the first World Summit on the Information Society, and comprised of 40 members from governments, private sector, and civil society, issued a possible model, 1 of which envisages a Global Internet Council that would assume international Internet governance;

Whereas that report contains recommendations for relegateing the private sector and nongovernmental organizations to an advisory capacity;

Whereas the European Union has also proposed transferring control of the Internet, including the global allocation of Internet Protocol number blocks, procedures for changing the root zone file, and rules appli-cable to DNS, to a “new model of international cooperation” which would confer significant leverage to the Governments of the United States and Canada and impose an undesirable layer of politicized bureaucracy on the operations of the Internet that could result in an inadequate response to the rapid pace of technical innovation;

Whereas some nations that advocate radical changes in the structure of Internet governance censor the information available through the Internet and abuse the Internet as a tool of surveillance to curtail legitimate political discussion and dissent, and other nations operate telecommunications systems as state-controlled monopolies or highly-regulated and highly-tax ed;

Whereas some nations in support of transferring Internet governance to an entity affiliated with the United Nations, or another international entity, might seek to have such an entity endorse national policies that block legitimate political discussion, and maintain outmoded communications structures;

Whereas the structure and control of Internet governance to an entity affiliated with the United Nations, or another international entity, might also re-affirm and agree to:

Whereas the United Nations Secretary General stated the objective of the 2005 World Summit on the Information Society in Tunis is to ensure “benefits that new information and communication technologies, including the Internet, bring to economic and social development” and “that to defend the Internet is to defend freedom itself”; and

Whereas discussions at the November 2005 World Summit on the Information Society may include discussion of transferring control of the Internet to a new intergovernmental entity, and could be the beginning of a prolonged international debate regarding the future of Internet governance: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) calls on the President to continue to oppose any effort to transfer control of the Internet to the United Nations or any other international entity;

(2) applauds the President for—
   (A) clearly and forcefully asserting that the United States has no present intention of relinquishing the historic leadership role the United States has played in Internet governance; and
   (B) articulating a vision of the future of the Internet that places privatization over politicization with respect to the Internet; and

(3) calls on the President to—
   (A) recognize the need for, and pursue a continuing and constructive dialogue with the international community on, the future of Internet governance;
   (B) advance the values of an open Internet in the broader trade and diplomatic conversations of the United States.

S. Res. 324

Whereas on December 26, 2004, Sri Lanka was struck by a tsunami that left some 30,000 dead and hundreds of thousands of people homeless; Whereas the United States and the world community recognized the global importance of preventing the spiraling into an uncontrolled disaster and sent aid to Sri Lanka to provide immediate relief;
Whereas the massive tsunami reconstruction effort in Sri Lanka creates significant challenges for the country;

Whereas the democratic process in Sri Lanka is further compromised by the recent activities of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, a group that the Secretary of State has designated as a Foreign Terrorist Organization, to remove Sri Lanka as a means of effecting political change;

Whereas, on August 12, 2005, the Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Lakshman Kadirgamar was assassinated at his home in Colombo in a brutal terrorist act that has been widely attributed to the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam by officials in Sri Lanka, the United States, and other countries;

Whereas democratic elections are scheduled to be held in Sri Lanka on November 17, 2005; and

Whereas the United States has an interest in a free and fair democratic process in Sri Lanka, and the peaceful resolution of the insurgency that has afflicted Sri Lanka for more than two decades: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) expresses its support for the people of Sri Lanka, a country suffering from the devastating tsunami that occurred on December 26, 2004, and the assassination of the Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Lakshman Kadirgamar on August 12, 2005;

(2) expresses its support for the courageous decision by the democratically-elected Government of Sri Lanka, following the assassination of Foreign Minister Kadirgamar, to remain in discussions with the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam in an attempt to resolve peacefully the issues facing the people of Sri Lanka; and

(3) urges all parties in Sri Lanka to remain committed to the negotiating process and to make every possible attempt at national reconciliation.

SENATE RESOLUTION 325—TO AUTHORIZE THE PRINTING OF A REVISED EDITION OF THE SENATE ELECTION LAW GUIDEBOOK

Mr. LOTT submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 325

Resolved, That the Committee on Rules and Administration hereby approve a revised edition of the Senate Election Law Guidebook, Senate Document 106-14, and that such document shall be printed as a Senate document. Sec. 2. There shall be printed, beyond the usual number, 500 additional copies of the document specified in the first section for the use of the Committee on Rules and Administration.

SENATE RESOLUTION 326—DESIGNATING NOVEMBER 27, 2005, AS “DRIVE SAFER SUNDAY”

Mr. CHAMBLISS (for himself, Mr. ISAKSON, and Mrs. LINCOLN) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. Res. 326

Whereas motor vehicle travel is the primary means of transportation in the United States;

Whereas everyone on the roads and highways needs to drive more safely to reduce deaths and injuries resulting from motor vehicle accidents;

Whereas the death of almost 43,000 people a year in more than 6 million highway crashes in America has been called an epidemic by Transportation Secretary Norman Mineta; Whereas according to the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration, leaving a seat belt saved 12,434 lives in 2004; and Whereas the Sunday after Thanksgiving is the busiest highway traffic day of the year: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) encourages—

(A) high schools, colleges, universities, administrators, teachers, primary schools, and secondary schools to launch campus-wide educational campaigns to urge students to be careful on the road and report to law enforcement any unsafe behaviors of their peers;

(B) national trucking firms to alert their drivers to be especially focused on driving safely during the heaviest traffic day of the year, and to publicize the importance of the day using Citizen’s Band (CB) radios and in truck stops across the Nation;

(C) clergy to remind their members to travel safely when attending services and gatherings;

(D) law enforcement personnel to remind drivers and passengers to drive particularly carefully on the Sunday after Thanksgiving; and

(E) everyone to use the Sunday after Thanksgiving as an opportunity to educate themselves about the importance of driving safely and to take appropriate steps to ensure the safety of themselves and their loved ones.

(2) designates November 27, 2005, as “Drive Safer Sunday”.

SENATE RESOLUTION 327—REMEMBERING AND COMMEMORATING THE LIVES AND WORK OF MARYKNOLL SISTERS Maura Clarke and Ita Ford, Ursuline Sister Dorothy Kazel, and Cleveland Lay Mission Team Member Jean Donovan, Who Were Executed by Members of the Armed Forces of El Salvador on December 2, 1980

Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself, Mr. DODD, and Mr. LEAHY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations;

S. Res. 326

Whereas on December 2, 1980, 4 churchwomen from the United States, Maryknoll Sisters Maura Clarke and Ita Ford, Ursuline Sister Dorothy Kazel, and Cleveland Lay Mission Team Member Jean Donovan, were violently and executed by members of the National Guard of El Salvador;

Whereas in March 1993, the United Nations Commission on the Truth for El Salvador determined that General Jose Guillermo Garcia, then Minister of Defense, made no serious effort to conduct a thorough investigation of responsibility for the murders of the churchwomen;

Whereas the families of the 4 churchwomen from the United States continue their efforts to determine the full truth surrounding the murders of their loved ones, appreciate the cooperation of United States Government agencies in disclosing and providing documents relevant to the churchwomen’s murders, and pursue requests to release to the family members the few remaining undisclosed documents and reports pertaining to this case;

Whereas the families of the 4 churchwomen from the United States have, for the past 25 years, served as inspiration to continue to inspire Salvadorans, Americans, and people throughout the world to answer the call to service and to pursue lives dedicated to addressing the needs and aspirations of the poor, the vulnerable, and the disadvantaged, especially among women and children;

Whereas the lives of these 4 churchwomen from the United States have, for the past 25 years, served as inspiration to continue to inspire Salvadorans, Americans, and people throughout the world to answer the call to service and to pursue lives dedicated to addressing the needs and aspirations of the poor, the vulnerable, and the disadvantaged, especially among women and children;

Senate Resolution 328—Recognizing the 30th Anniversary of the Enactment of the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 and Reaffirming the Commitment of Congress to the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act So That All Children with Disabilities Receive a Free Appropriate Public Education in the Least Restrictive Environment

Whereas the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 established the Federal priority of ensuring that all children, regardless of the nature or severity of their disability, have the opportunity to receive a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment; Whereas the Education of the Handicapped Act Amendments of 1990 (Public Law 101–476) renamed the Education of the Handicapped Act as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (referred to in this resolution as "IDEA") (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.); Whereas IDEA currently serves an estimated 269,000 infants and toddlers, 679,000 preschoolers, and 6,000,000 children aged 6 to 21; Whereas IDEA has helped reduce the number of children with developmental disabilities who must live in State institutions away from their families; Whereas the number of children with disabilities who complete high school with standard diplomas has significantly increased since the enactment of IDEA; Whereas more students with disabilities are participating in national and State testing programs, and graduation rates for students with disabilities are continuously rising, since the enactment of IDEA; Whereas the number of children with disabilities who enroll in college as freshmen has more than tripled since the enactment of IDEA; Whereas IDEA promotes partnerships between parents of children with disabilities and education professionals in the design and implementation of the special education and related services provided to children with disabilities; Whereas the integration of students with disabilities in the classroom, learning alongside their peers without disabilities, has heightened the awareness of the needs and capabilities of students with disabilities; Whereas the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004 further enables special education teachers, related services providers, and other educators to effectively meet the educational and developmental needs of all children; Whereas Federal and State governments support effective, research-based practices in the classroom to ensure appropriate services and supports for children with disabilities; and Whereas IDEA continues to marshal the resources of this Nation to implement the promise of full participation in society for children with disabilities: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the 30th anniversary of the enactment of the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 (Public Law 94–142); (2) acknowledges the many and varied contributions of children with disabilities and their parents, teachers, related services providers, and other educators; and (3) reaffirms the commitment of Congress to the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.) so that all children with disabilities receive a free appropriate public education.

Be it enacted by the Senate of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of Education shall include, in the materials distributed by the Department of Education, a statement to the effect that the Department is charged with monitoring and enforcing Federal law prohibiting discrimination against children with disabilities, and that the Department is committed to ensuring that children with disabilities are provided with a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment.

Whereas the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 (Public Law 94–142) was signed into law 30 years ago on November 29, 1975, and amended the State grant program under part B of the Education of the Handicapped Act; Whereas the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 established the Federal priority of ensuring that all children, regardless of the nature or severity of their disability, have the opportunity to receive a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment; Whereas the Education of the Handicapped Act Amendments of 1990 (Public Law 99–457) to create a preschool grant program for children with disabilities aged 3 through 5 and an early intervention program for infants and toddlers with disabilities under 3 years of age and their families; Whereas the Education of the Handicapped Act Amendments of 1990 (Public Law 101–476) renamed the Education of the Handicapped Act as the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (referred to in this resolution as "IDEA") (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.); Whereas IDEA currently serves an estimated 269,000 infants and toddlers, 679,000 preschoolers, and 6,000,000 children aged 6 to 21; Whereas IDEA has helped reduce the number of children with developmental disabilities who must live in State institutions away from their families; Whereas the number of children with disabilities who complete high school with standard diplomas has significantly increased since the enactment of IDEA; Whereas more students with disabilities are participating in national and State testing programs, and graduation rates for students with disabilities are continuously rising, since the enactment of IDEA; Whereas the number of children with disabilities who enroll in college as freshmen has more than tripled since the enactment of IDEA; Whereas IDEA promotes partnerships between parents of children with disabilities and education professionals in the design and implementation of the special education and related services provided to children with disabilities; Whereas the integration of students with disabilities in the classroom, learning alongside their peers without disabilities, has heightened the awareness of the needs and capabilities of students with disabilities; Whereas the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004 further enables special education teachers, related services providers, and other educators, and State and local educational agencies to focus on promoting the academic and functional achievement of children with disabilities; Whereas the Individuals with Disabilities Education Improvement Act of 2004 strengthens IDEA’s focus on the educational results of children with disabilities; and Whereas Federal and State governments support effective, research-based practices in the classroom to ensure appropriate services and supports for children with disabilities.

RESOLVED, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the 30th anniversary of the enactment of the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975 (Public Law 94–142); (2) acknowledges the many and varied contributions of children with disabilities and their parents, teachers, related services providers, and other educators; and (3) reaffirms the commitment of Congress to the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.) so that all children with disabilities receive a free appropriate public education.
Before 1790, there was little toleration for anyone who was different. Persons with disabilities were often abused, condemned as incapable of being able to participate in social activities, and simply forgotten. In 1817, Thomas Gallaudet, and a small group of individuals who are deaf, opened a school for people who are deaf in Connecticut. This was the first school in America designed to serve individuals with disabilities. In 1850, at a time when many were believed that persons with disabilities needed to live in institutions apart from their families, a school for youth with cognitive disabilities was opened in Massachusetts.

In the late 1800s, the number of children with disabilities attending public schools increased dramatically due to education and child labor laws. Many public schools developed special education for children with disabilities, however, this usually involved creating separate classes. In 1899, Michigan was the first State to introduce these classes statewide, and by the 1920s, special education had become well established throughout the Nation.

For the next 50 years, special education took place mostly in isolated classrooms where children with disabilities seldom mixed with their non-disabled peers. It is against this backdrop that advocates in the disability community worked tirelessly to affect the passage of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. It also against this backdrop that this Congress had the wisdom and understanding to fully comprehend the nature of the problem and the resolve and determination to act. Similar to May 17, 1954, when the U.S. Supreme Court announced the Brown v. the Board of Education decision that “separate educational facilities are inherently unequal” with the signing of the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, families, Congress, and the President believed that a segregated form of education for students with disabilities was inappropriate and narrowed what children with disabilities could learn and become in society.

As President Ford noted when he signed the Education for the Handicapped Act into law: “Everyone can agree with the objective stated in the title of this bill—educating all handicapped children. Our Nation has always been advanced on the equally simple and equally compelling notion that segregation was the answer and all people should have the opportunity to receive a free and appropriate public education. It is therefore fitting that we take a moment to remember all those men and women who worked with such purposefulness and passion to ensure that such a simple yet enduring value of our culture was properly reflected in our education laws.

Since the passage of the IDEA, we have seen significant improvements in the educational employment and economic well-being of citizens with disabilities. According to the Department of Education, IDEA currently serves almost 7 million schoolchildren, preschoolers, and infants and toddlers with disabilities along side their counterparts without disabilities. What was unheard of 30 years ago is now reality for millions of students with disabilities across the Nation: a right to receiving a free and appropriate education in their neighborhood school. Because of IDEA and other similar laws, the education that students with disabilities is providing to such individuals with the skills necessary to succeed in postsecondary environments, work, pay taxes, live independently, and pursue the American dream.

However, anniversaries are not just for looking back, and celebrating the achievements of the past. They must also be an occasion for looking forward in anticipation of the challenges that still lie ahead. We should be proud of the accomplishments embodied in the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, but no one should believe our work is done. Indeed, there is still more to do.

For example, a report by the Institute for Higher Education Policy in 2004 focusing on the education level of students with disabilities in the United States contains some disturbing data. It notes that while 91 percent of the general adult population has a high school diploma, only 78 percent of adults with disabilities do. Even more disturbing is the fact that only 57 percent of youths with disabilities received standard high school diplomas. Although the 78 percent graduation rate represents a significantly higher rate than 15 years ago, it remains inadequate, and significantly behind the rate for individuals without disabilities.

The National Educational Longitudinal Study reported in 2000 that 73 percent of high school graduates with disabilities enrolled in some form of postsecondary education compared to 59 percent of their peers without disabilities. However, students with disabilities who were highly qualified academically enrolled in 4-year colleges at the same rate, 79 percent, as their peers without disabilities.

The lesson here is a simple one. When we believe in and have high expectations for all Americans, Americans with disabilities can compete at the same level as Americans without disabilities. With the passage of the No Child Left Behind Act, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and possibilities available within the soon to be reauthorized Higher Education Act, we have the opportunity to make significant changes at the edge of the playing field. As elected officials, it is our responsibility to ensure that students, teachers, school systems, and teacher education programs are all held to high standards, improving the education levels, graduation rates, and postsecondary achievements of all students, including students with disabilities.

It is fitting that today, in this place, we recognize and celebrate the anniversary of legislation that says so much about who we are as a people and what we stand for as a nation when it comes to educating all of our citizens. It is the responsibility of those of us who follow to ensure that the brightness never fades, the promise of opportunity never wanes, and our rights to education, life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness apply equally and fully to all Americans, including those with disabilities.

SENATE RESOLUTION 329—CONGRATULATING COACH BILL SNYDER FOR HIS ACHIEVEMENTS DURING 17 YEARS AS THE HEAD FOOTBALL COACH OF THE KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY WILDCATS

Mr. ROBERTS (for himself and Mr. BROWNBACK) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

Whereas, on November 30, 1998, Bill Snyder was named as the 22nd football coach at Kansas State University;

Whereas upon his hiring, Kansas State had experienced years of unsuccessful seasons and in the 52 years prior to his hiring, the Kansas State University football team had a combined record of only 134 wins;

Whereas Bill Snyder directed and orchestrated a football program success and turnaround that is now considered by many to be the greatest in the history of collegiate athletics;

Whereas Bill Snyder coached the Kansas State Wildcats to 11 consecutive postseason bowl appearances;

Whereas the teams coached by Bill Snyder won the Big 12 North Division title on 4 occasions and appeared in 3 Big 12 Championship games;

Whereas the 2003 team coached by Bill Snyder was crowned the Big 12 Champion;

Whereas Bill Snyder coached 42 National Football League draft picks, 45 All-America selections, and 68 first team all-conference honorees at Kansas State University;

Whereas Bill Snyder was named National Coach of the Year in 1991, 1994, and 1998;

Whereas Bill Snyder was named the Bear Bryant and Football Writers Association of America National Coach of the Year in 1998;

Whereas in the best sense of collegiate athletics, Bill Snyder has been a mentor and, through his own actions, a role model of leadership and personal responsibility to young men;

Whereas Bill Snyder has changed the course of history at Kansas State University, including contributing to an increased enrollment from 18,120 at his hiring in 1988 to nearly 24,000 in 2005; and

Whereas Bill Snyder and his family have given of themselves and contributed numerous hours and resources to charitable causes throughout the State of Kansas to the betterment of numerous individuals and the State as a whole; and

Whereas Bill Snyder has instilled a new sense of pride in the State for all current and native Kansans;

That the Senate—

1. Recognizes and honors Coach Bill Snyder for his contributions to Kansas State University, the State of Kansas, and the community of Manhattan;

2. Recognizes and honors Coach Bill Snyder for the accomplishments he has made as the head football coach of the Kansas State University Wildcats during the past 17 years;

3. Recognizes and honors Coach Bill Snyder for his role in increasing the enrollment by 6,000 students at Kansas State University during the course of his tenure;

4. Recognizes and honors Coach Bill Snyder for his role in improving the athletic competitiveness of Kansas State University;

5. Recognizes and honors Coach Bill Snyder for his role in increasing the alumni giving to the University; and

6. Commends Coach Bill Snyder for the leadership and positive role he has played as an ambassador for Kansas State University.

Passed November 18, 2005
Whereas the Kansas State Board of Regents has recognized the contributions of Coach Bill Snyder and his family to the State of Kansas and Kansas State University by renaming stadium "Bill Snyder Family Football Stadium"; and

Whereas the contributions of Bill Snyder to Kansas State University, the State of Kansas, and young adults in general, through displaying the heartland values of honesty, integrity, and humility; and

Whereas many to be the greatest in the history of collegiate athletics.

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) congratulates Coach Bill Snyder and his family upon his planned retirement on November 18, 2005, as the most successful coach in Kansas State University history with a current record of 135 wins;

(2) commends Coach Bill Snyder for his mentoring and teaching of leadership and values to young men and women;

(3) commends Coach Bill Snyder and his family for their selfless support of Kansas State University and their charitable activities throughout the State of Kansas, waiving the current record of 135 wins;

(4) respectfully directs the Enrolling Clerk of the Senate to transmit an enrolled copy of this resolution to—

(A) Bill Snyder and his family; and

(B) Kansas State University President Jon Wefald.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, today I am submitting a Senate Resolution commending the contributions and record of a most unique and deserving man, the retiring football coach of Kansas State University Wildcats, Bill Snyder.

I suppose some, especially non sports fans, might raise an eyebrow or question the State Resolution congratulating a football coach, no matter how successful in wins and losses—after all, as some have said, "it's only a game." But in the case of Coach Bill Snyder his contributions transcend his outstanding record of wins and losses; they represent being a mentor and teacher of leadership and values to young men during a time when collegiate athletics and sports in general face many challenges. The unceasing conduct and worse. Coach Snyder's contribution—football is a game of course but in the case of Bill Snyder one of its greatest contributions has been to enable young men to play the game of life by being responsible citizens.

And, this unique ability on the athletic field became a catalyst for alumni interest and a renewal of financial support throughout the university enabling all students in all academic fields to benefit.

Much has been said in Kansas and throughout the football sports world about the amazing turnaround Coach Snyder achieved at K-State: directing and orchestrating a football program success story that is now considered by many to be the greatest in the history of collegiate athletics.

The record in the resolution I have introduced speaks for itself; three time national coach of the year, 11 post season bowl games, only the second program in college football history to win 11 games in a 7-year span, 42 NFL draft picks, 45 All America selections, and 68 first team all conference players. That is quite a record.

The coaches that first started their careers at K-State under Coach Snyder now read like a "Who's Who" in college football.

But great as those and the rest of the records are, that does not really tell the Bill Snyder story. Simply put, this is a man who restored and instilled a new sense of pride in a university and throughout our State. This is a man and his family who have given of themselves and contributed countless hours and resources to charitable causes throughout Kansas.

With all of his successes and attributes, this is a man who is humble, self effacing and who knows you can get a lot more done if you don't care who gets the credit.

In many ways, Bill Snyder is a private man who has God given ability to with the thousands of families. He has taught his players that in the games of football and life, success is never final, failure is never fatal and that in the end its courage that counts. By his example, he showed them the true meaning of character and reputation are not old fashioned. On the playing field and in life he instilled the truism that if you don't drop the ball you won't have to complain about the way the ball bounces. The same is true regarding his individual player marching orders, never say bad things about your opponent win or lose, take care of your self, conduct yourself in your best interests and that of your university and teammates. A coach on the field and in life.

I want to get back and emphasize this restoring pride achievement on a more personal basis. I know my example is replete with similar experiences with the thousands of families who make up what is now referred to in the sports pages as the "Wildcat Nation." My Dad was a proud graduate of Kansas State as I was and my son attended Kansas State as I was and my son attended and his parents and his family to the State of Kansas and Kansas State University, the State of Kansas and his players and fans have been the beneficiaries.

Thanks Coach. "Every Man A Wildcat!"

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 67—URGING JAPAN TO HONOR ITS COMMITMENTS UNDER THE 1986 MARKET-SELECTIVE (MOSS) AGREEMENT ON MEDICAL EQUIPMENT AND PHARMACEUTICALS, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

Mr. COLEMAN submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. CON. RES. 67

Whereas the revolution in medical technology has improved our ability to respond to emerging threats and prevent, identify, treat, and cure a broad range of diseases and disabilities, and has the proven potential to bring even more valuable advances in the future;

Whereas medical technology has driven dramatic productivity gains for the benefit of patients, providers, employers, and our economy;

Whereas investment from the United States medical technology industry supports almost 350,000 Americans in high-value jobs located in every State, and was historically a key industry, as it was a net contributor to the United States balance of trade with Japan, which was a trade surplus of over $7,000,000,000 in 2001, and continued to be a surplus until 2005, when the trade balance became a trade deficit of $1,300,000,000, due in part to changes in the policies of Japan that impact medical devices;

Whereas Japan is one of the most important trading partners of the United States;

Whereas United States products account for roughly ½ of the global market, but garner only a ½ share of Japan’s market;

Whereas Japan has made little progress in implementing its commitments to cut product review times and improve their reimbursement system in bilateral consultations on key changes under the Market-Selective (MOSS) Agreement on Medical Equipment and Pharmaceuticals, signed

November 18, 2005

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
on January 9, 1986, between the United States and Japan;

Whereas, although regulatory reviews in Japan remain among the lengthiest in the world, thus slowing innovation and job growth due to certain factors in the medical technology sector, and inefficiencies in Japanese distribution networks and hospital payment systems and unique regulatory burdens result in the slowest approval and adoption of new medical technologies by actively promoting policies that encourage innovation and eliminating policies based on inappropriate comparisons to markets outside Japan.

Discriminatory practices targeting the medical device industry directly affect the competitiveness of many constituents. This is due to the fact that Minnesota is the proud home to a thriving medical technology industry. Minnesota’s medical alley is a rich corridor of more than 8,000 medical-related companies—12 percent of our workforce—and is home to over 520 FDA-registered medical technology manufacturers. Employment in the industry increased 33 percent from 1991 to 2001, adding over 23,000 jobs to the State of Minnesota. The jobs produced by the medical technology industry represent a lucrative opportunity for my constituents, as the aggregate figure for wages exceeds $1.3 billion an average of over $56,000 per employee.

The benefits that Minnesota has derived from being home to a flourishing medical technology industry are well-deserved and a product of hard work. Minnesota ranks second only to California in device companies, and our State is home to many technology firsts: the first implantable cardiac pacemaker, artificial heart valve, implantable drug transfusion pump, wireless cardiac monitoring system, blood pump, anesthesia monitor and many more examples. The success we have had in Minnesota is also indicative of the positive trends that have been experienced by the entire industry throughout the U.S.

The positive trends of American medical technology and innovation in performance in domestic and international markets are not reflected in their experience with the Japanese market. The fact of the matter is that U.S. medical technology companies are discriminated by Japanese policies. There are numerous more examples of these policies, but I will only briefly mention a few.

Japan has adopted a foreign reference pricing system to reduce reimbursement prices in Japan’s health system, a tool long opposed by the U.S. Government and the medical technology industry. This system calls for the establishment and revision of reimbursement rates on the basis of prices paid for medical technology products in the U.S., France, Germany, and the U.K. This pricing policy therefore fails to account for the higher costs of bringing advanced technologies to the Japanese market, and instead bases prices on arbitrary conditions that exist outside of Japan.

In addition, Japan’s system for approving the use of new medical technologies is the slowest and most costly in the developed world. The backlog in processing applications for medical technology products is staggering, and may be primarily related to the lack of staff dedicated towards the review of applications. Importantly, the end result has been that the medical technologies used to treat patients in Japan are often several generations behind the products utilized in the U.S. These and other regulatory hurdles embedded in the Japanese medical technology industry and regulatory commitments made to the U.S. under the MOSS trade agreement. They also contradict the philosophy underpinning the Global Harmonization Task Force, to which the U.S., Europe and Japan are a party. Even our friends need to be held accountable to the agreements they sign, otherwise they become less valuable than the paper they are printed on.

I urge our friends in the Japanese Government to take aggressive action to remedy this clearly unfavorable situation. Non-tariff regulatory and reimbursement policies discriminate U.S. manufacturers. While these policies hurt U.S. manufacturers’ economically, ultimately the biggest losers of these policies are Japanese patients.

Innovative medical technologies offer the possibility of key health solutions to all nations, including those that face severe health care budget constraints and the demands of aging populations. Past experience has demonstrated that the Japanese are capable to overcome challenges that arise in our relationship, thus making it stronger. I think that both countries stand to gain significantly if the principles of the resolution I am presenting today are upheld.

I urge my fellow colleagues to join me in Japan to honor its commitments under the 1986 Market-Oriented Sector-Selective, MOSS, Agreement on Medical Equipment and Pharmaceuticals by supporting this resolution.

S. Con. Res. 67

Whereas the resolution on medical technology has improved our ability to respond to emerging threats and prevent, identify, treat, and cure a broad range of diseases and disabilities, and has the proven potential to bring even more valuable advances in the future;

Whereas medical technology has driven dramatic productivity gains for the benefit of patients, providers, employers, and our economy;

Whereas investment from the United States medical technology industry produces the majority of the $220,000,000,000 global business in development of medical devices, diagnostic products, and medical information systems, allowing patients to lead longer and more productive lives;

Whereas the United States medical technology industry supports almost 350,000 jobs located in every State, and was historically a key industry, as it was a net contributor to the United States balance of trade with Japan, which, in a trade deficit of $7,000,000,000 in 2001, and continued to be a surplus until 2005, when the trade balance became a trade deficit of $1,300,000,000, due in part to changes in the policies of Japan that impact medical devices;

(1) urging Japan to honor its commitments under the Market-Oriented Sector-Selective (MOSS) Agreement on Medical Equipment and Pharmaceuticals, signed on January 9, 1986, between the United States and Japan (in this resolution referred to as the ‘‘MOSS Agreement’’), by—

(A) reducing regulatory barriers to the approval and adoption of new medical technologies; and

(B) meeting or exceeding agency performance goals for premarket approvals and postmarket system consistent with globally accepted practices;

(2) urging Japan to honor its commitments to—

(A) implementing fair and open processes and rules that do not disproportionately harm medical technologies products from the United States; and

(B) providing opportunities for consultation with trading partners.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED AND PROPOSED

SA 2672. Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. STABENOW, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. KERRY, Mr. PRYOR, Mr. CARPER, Mr. KOHL, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the joint resolution H.J. Res. 72, Official Title Not Available; as follows:

SEC. 2. COMMUNITY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT ACT.

TEXT OF AMENDMENTS

SA 2672. Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. STABENOW, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. KERRY, Mr. PRYOR, Mr. CARPER, Mr. KOHL, Mr. LEAHY, and Mr. LEVIN) proposed an amendment to the joint resolution H.J. Res. 72, Official Title Not Available; as follows:

SEC. 2. COMMUNITY SERVICES BLOCK GRANT ACT.

Notwithstanding section 101 of Public Law 109-77, for the period beginning on October 1, 2005, and ending on December 17, 2005, the amount appropriated under that Public Law to carry out the Community Services Block Grant Act shall be based on a rate for operations for activities carried out under such Act for fiscal year 2005.
the atrocities occurring in the Darfur region of Sudan are genocide.

(2) On September 9, 2004, Secretary of State Colin L. Powell stated before the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate that "genocide" has been committed in Darfur and...the Government of Sudan and the (Janjaweed) bear responsibility—and genocide may still be occurring.

(3) On September 21, 2004, in an address before the United Nations General Assembly, President George W. Bush affirmed the Secretary of State's statements and stated that "this is a world in which..." the world is witnessing terrible suffering and horrible crimes in the Darfur region of Sudan. Crimes my government has concluded are genocide.

(5) On September 18, 2004, the United Nations Security Council passed Security Council Resolution 1564, determining that the Government of Sudan had failed to meet its obligations under Security Council Resolution 1556, calling for a military flight ban in and over the Darfur region, demanding the names of Janjaweed militiamen disarmed and arrested for verification, establishing an International Commission of Inquiry on Darfur to investigate violations of international humanitarian law, and threatening sanctions should the Government of Sudan fail to fully comply with Security Council Resolutions 1556 and 1564, including such actions as...the Sudan's petroleum sector or individual members of the Government of Sudan.

(6) The Report of the International Commission of Inquiry on Darfur established that the "Government of the Sudan and the Janjaweed are responsible for serious violations of international human rights and humanitarian law, amounting to crimes against humanity," and that Sudanese officials and other individuals may have acted with "genocidal intent".

(7) The Report of the International Commission of Inquiry on Darfur further notes that, pursuant to its mandate and in the course of its work, the Commission had collected information relating to individual perpetrators of acts constituting "violations of international humanitarian law and international humanitarian law, including crimes against humanity, war crimes, and crimes against humanity," and that Sudanese officials and other individuals may have acted with "genocidal intent".

(8) On March 24, 2005, the United Nations Security Council passed Security Council Resolution 1590, establishing the United Nations Mission in Sudan (UNMIS), consisting of up to 10,000 military personnel, civilian police and tasked with supporting implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan and "closely and continuously coordinating" at all levels with the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) with a view towards expeditiously reinforcing the effort to foster peace in Darfur.

(9) On March 29, 2005, the United Nations Security Council passed Security Council Resolution 1591, extending the military embargo established by Security Council Resolution 1556 to all the parties to the N'djamena Ceasefire Agreement and any subsequent accords, creating the African Union Mission in Darfur, South Darfur, and West Darfur, calling for an asset freeze and travel ban against those individuals who impede the peace process, criminalizing international military cooperation in Darfur and the region, committing violations of international humanitarian or human rights law or other atrocities, are responsible for offensive military activity, or violate the military embargo, and establishing a Committee of the Security Council and a Panel of Experts to assist in monitoring compliance with Security Council Resolutions 1556 and 1591.

(10) On March 31, 2005, the United Nations Security Council passed Security Council Resolution 1593, referring the situation in Darfur since July 1, 2002, to the prosecutor of the International Criminal Court and calling on the Government of Sudan and all parties to the conflict to cooperate fully with the Court.

(11) In remarks before the G-8 Summit on June 30, 2005, President Bush reconfirmed that "there has been clear genocide" and "the human cost is beyond calculation".

(12) On July 30, 2005, Dr. John Garang de Mabior, the newly appointed Vice President of Sudan and the leader of the Sudan People's Liberation Movement/Army (SPLM/A) for the past 21 years, was killed in a tragic helicopter crash in southern Sudan, sparking riots in Khartoum and charging the commitment of all the people of Sudan to the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan.

SEC. 4. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the genocide unfolding in the Darfur region of Sudan is characterized by atrocities involving mass killings, war crimes, murder, rape, and sexual violence committed by the Janjaweed and associated militias with the complicity and support of the National Congress Party-led faction of the Government of Sudan; and

(2) all parties to the conflict in the Darfur region have continued to violate the N'djamena Ceasefire Agreement of April 8, 2004, and the Abuja Protocols of November 9, 2004, and violence against civilians, humanitarian aid workers, and personnel of the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) is increasing;

(3) the African Union should rapidly expand the size and amend the mandate of the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) to authorize such action as may be necessary to protect civilians and humanitarian operators, protect civilians and humanitarian operators, and deter violence in the Darfur region within existing resources;

(4) the international community, including the United Nations, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), the European Union, the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, and the African Union, should take additional and immediate action to safeguard the peace process in Darfur and address instability elsewhere in Sudan, including efforts to implement the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan and urge rapid implementation of its terms; and

(5) the new leadership of the Sudanese People’s Liberation Movement (SPLM) should—

(A) seek to transform the SPLM into an inclusive, transparent, and democratic political party;

(B) reaffirm the commitment of the SPLM to bringing peace not only to southern Sudan, but also to the Darfur region, eastern Sudan, and northern Uganda, and pursue a truly comprehensive peace throughout the region; and

(C) remain united in the face of potential efforts to undermine the SPLM.
SEC. 5. SANCTIONS IN SUPPORT OF PEACE IN DARFUR.

(a) BLOCKING OF ASSETS AND RESTRICTION ON VISAS OF CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS IDENTIFIED BY THE PRESIDENT.—

(1) BLOCKING OF ASSETS. Beginning on the date that is 30 days after the date of enactment of the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act of 2006, and in the interest of contributing to peace in Sudan, the President shall, consistent with the authorities granted in the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.), block the assets of any individual who the President determines is complicit in, or responsible for, acts of genocide, war crimes, or crimes against humanity in Darfur, including the former United States Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations of the House of Representatives on June 24, 2004.

(b) WAIVER.—Section 6(d) of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as redesignated by subsection (a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: ‘‘The President may direct the Secretary of State to waive the application of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (c) with respect to an individual if the President determines and certifies to the appropriate congressional committees a notification of the waiver that includes the name of the individual and the reasons for the waiver.’’

(c) SANCTIONS AGAINST CERTAIN JANJAWEED COMMANDERS AND COORDINATORS.—The President should immediately consider imposing the sanctions described in section 6(c) of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as added by subsection (a)) against the Janjaweed commanders and coordinators identified by former United States Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes before the Subcommittee on Africa of the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives on June 24, 2004.

SEC. 6. ADDITIONAL AUTHORITIES TO DETER AND SUPPRESS GENOCIDE IN DARFUR.

(a) UNITED STATES ASSISTANCE TO SUPPORT AMIS.—Section 7 of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (Public Law 108–497; 50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended—

(1) in the heading, by striking ‘‘stantial’’ and inserting ‘‘substantial’’; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsections:

‘‘(b) Assistance to Support AMIS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the President is authorized to provide assistance, on such terms and conditions as the President may determine and in consultation with the appropriate congressional committees, to the government of Sudan and to the United Nations Mission in Sudan (AMIS), and to the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as added by subsection (a)) against the former United States Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations of the House of Representatives on June 24, 2004.

(b) WAIVER.—Section 6(d) of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as redesignated by subsection (a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: ‘‘The President may direct the Secretary of State to waive the application of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (c) with respect to an individual if the President determines and certifies to the appropriate congressional committees a notification of the waiver that includes the name of the individual and the reasons for the waiver.’’

(c) SANCTIONS AGAINST CERTAIN JANJAWEED COMMANDERS AND COORDINATORS.—The President should immediately consider imposing the sanctions described in section 6(c) of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as added by subsection (a)) against the Janjaweed commanders and coordinators identified by former United States Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes before the Subcommittee on Africa of the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives on June 24, 2004.

SEC. 7. MULTILATERAL EFFORTS.

The President shall direct the United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations to use the voice and vote of the United States to urge the adoption of a resolution by the United Nations Security Council which—

(1) supports the expansion of the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) so that it achieves the mandate, size, strength, and capacity needed to protect civilians and humanitarian operations, and deter and defeat fighting and violence in the Darfur region and elsewhere, and to reinforce states of the United Nations to accelerate political, material, financial, and other assistance to the African Union toward this end;

(2) authorizes the African Union to negotiate peace talks between the Government of Sudan, the Sudan Liberation Movement/Army (SLM/A), the Justice and Equality Movement (JEM), and any other similarly positioned armed groups in the Darfur region, calls on the Government of Sudan, the SLM/A, and the JEM to abide by their obligations under the National Peace Agreement of April 8, 2004 and subsequent agreements, urges all parties to engage in peace talks without preconditions and seek to resolve the conflict, and strongly condemns all attacks against humanitarian workers and African Union personnel in the Darfur region;

(3) imposes sanctions against the Government of Sudan, including sanctions against individual members of the Government of Sudan, and entities controlled or owned by officials of the Government of Sudan or the Sudan Liberation Movement/Army (SLM/A), and sanctions against Sudan, including sanctions against the Government of Sudan and any other similarly positioned armed groups in the Darfur region, that are in violation of the embargo imposed pursuant to United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1556 and 1591, to immediately cease and desist; and

(4) acting under Article 5 of the Charter of the United Nations, calls upon those member states of the United Nations that continue to undermine efforts to foster peace in Sudan by providing military assistance and equipment to the Government of Sudan, the Sudan Liberation Movement/Army (SLM/A), and associated armed groups in the Darfur region in violation of the embargo on such shipments;...

SA 2675. Mr. MCCONNELL (for Mr. PRYOR) proposed an amendment to the bill H.R. 358, to require the Secretary of the Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the desegregation of Little Rock Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas, and for other purposes; as follows:

S13407

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE

This Act may be cited as the “Little Rock Central High School Desegregation 50th Anniversary Commemorative Coin Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS

Congress finds the following:

(1) September 2007, marks the 50th anniversary of the desegregation of Little Rock Central High School in Little Rock, Arkansas.

(2) In 1957, Little Rock Central High was the site of the first major national test for implementation of the historic decision of the United States Supreme Court in Brown, et al. v. Board of Education of Topeka, et al., 349 U.S. 483 (1954).

(3) It was an important victory of “the Little Rock Nine” (Ernest Green, Elizabeth Eckford, Melba Pattillo, Jefferson Thomas, Carolette Walls, Terrence Roberts, Gloria Ray, Thelma Mothershed, and Elizabeth Eckford), who stood in the face of violence, was influential to the Civil Rights movement and changed American history by providing an example on which to build greater equality.

(4) The desegregation of Little Rock Central High by the 9 African American students was recognized by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. as a significant struggle for civil rights that in May 1958, he attended the graduation of the first African American from Little Rock Central High School.

(5) A commemorative coin will bring national and international attention to the lasting legacy of this important event.

SEC. 3. COIN SPECIFICATIONS

(a) DENOMINATIONS.—The Secretary of the Treasury (hereinafter in this Act referred to as the “Secretary”) shall mint and issue not more than 500,000 $1 coins each of which shall—

(1) weigh 26.73 grams;
(2) have a diameter of 1.500 inches; and
(3) contain 90 percent silver and 10 percent copper.

(b) LEGAL TENDER.—The coins minted under this Act shall be legal tender, as provided in section 5103 of title 31, United States Code.

(c) NUMISMATIC ITEMS.—For purposes of section 5136 of title 31, United States Code, all coins minted under this Act shall be considered to be numismatic items.

SEC. 4. DESIGN OF COINS

(a) DESIGN REQUIREMENTS.—The design of the coins minted under this Act shall be emblematic of the desegregation of the Little Rock Central High School and its contribution to civil rights in America.

(b) DESIGNATION AND INSRIPTIONS.—On each coin minted under this Act there shall be—

(1) a designation of the value of the coin; and
(2) an inscription of the year “2007”; and
(3) an inscription of the words “Liberty”. [In General.]

(c) SELECTION.—The design for the coins minted under this Act shall be—

(1) a design accepted by the Secretary after consultation with the Commission of Fine Arts; and

(2) the Secretary, in consultation with the Commission of Fine Arts; and

(b) by redesignating subsection (e) as redesignated as subsection (d); and

(c) by redesignating subsection (c) as subsection (d); and

(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

“(2) REPORT ON SANCTIONS IN SUPPORT OF PEACE IN DARFUR.—Section 8 of the Sudan and National Humanitarian Law in Darfur.—Section 8 of the Sudan Peace Act (Public Law 107–245; 50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is further amended—

(1) a designation of the value of the coin; and
(2) a designation of the year “2007”; and
(3) an inscription of the words “Liberty”. [In General.]

(c) SELECTION.—The design for the coins minted under this Act shall be—

(1) a design accepted by the Secretary after consultation with the Commission of Fine Arts; and
(2) reviewed by the Citizens Coinage Advisory Committee established under section 5135 of title 31, United States Code.

SEC. 5. ISSUANCE OF COINS.

(a) General.--Coins minted under this Act shall be issued in uncirculated and proof qualities.

(b) Commencement of Issuance.--The Secretary of the Treasury may initiate sales of such coins, without issuance, before such date.

(c) No Surcharge.--No coins shall be minted under this Act after December 31, 2007.

SEC. 6. SALE OF COINS.

(a) Sale Price.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the coins issued under this Act shall be sold by the Secretary at a price equal to the sum of the face value of the coins, the surcharge required under section 7(a) for the coins, and the cost of designing and issuing such coins (including labor, materials, die, use of machinery, overhead expenses, and marketing).

(b) Bulk Sales.—The Secretary shall make bulk sales of the coins issued under this Act at a reasonable discount.

(c) Discount.—(1) In general.—The Secretary shall accept prepaid orders for the coins minted under this Act before the issuance of such coins.

(2) Discount.—Sale prices with respect to prepaid orders under paragraph (1) shall be at a reasonable discount.

SEC. 7. SURCHARGE.

(a) Surcharge Required.—All sales shall include a surcharge of $10 per coin.

(b) Distribution.—Subject to section 5134(f) of title 31, United States Code, and subsection (d), all surcharges which are received by the Secretary from the sale of coins issued under this Act shall be promptly paid to the Secretary of the Interior for the protection, preservation, and interpretation of resources and stories associated with Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site, including the following:

(1) Site improvements at Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site.

(2) Development of interpretive and education programs and historic preservation projects.

(3) Establishment of cooperative agreements to restore the historic character of the Park Street and Daisy L. Gatson Bates Drive corridors adjacent to the site.

(c) Limitation.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), no surcharge may be included with respect to the issuance under this Act of any coin during a calendar year if, as of the time of such issuance, the issuance of such coin would result in the number of commemorative coin programs issued during such year to exceed the annual 2 commemorative coin program issuance limitation under section 5112(m)(1) of title 31, United States Code (as in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act). The Secretary of the Treasury may issue guidance to carry out this subsection.

(d) Creditable Funds.—Notwithstanding any other provision of the law and recognizing the unique partnership nature of the Department of Interior and the Little Rock School District at the Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site and the significant contributions made by the Little Rock School District to preserve and maintain the historic character of the high school, any non-Federal funds expended by the school district (regardless of the source of the funds) for improvements at the Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site, to the extent such funds were used for the purposes described in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subsection (b), shall be deemed to meet the requirement of funds from private sources of section 5134(f)(A)(II) of title 31, United States Code, with respect to the Secretary of the Interior.

SA 2676. Mr. MCCONNELL (for Mr. SUNUNU) proposed an amendment to the bill S. 1047, to require the Secretary of the Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of each of the Nation's past Presidents and their spouses, respectively, and in commemoration of the $1 coin, to create a new bullion coin, and for other purposes; as follows:

On page 6, strike lines 6 through 11, and insert the following:

"(b) Continuity Provisions.—"(i) in general.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A) of section 5112(b)(1) of title 31, United States Code, with respect to the Secretary's discretion, may prescribe''.

"(ii) Circulation Quantity.—Beginning January 1, 2007, the following:"

On page 17, lines 6 and 7, strike "transportation and".

On page 17, lines 7, 11, 18, and insert "entities".

On page 17, lines 2, 24, strike "prominently".

On page 23, line 13, strike "$20" and insert "$50".

On page 24, line 2, strike "$30" and insert "$50".

On page 24, line 3, strike "proof" after "bullion".

On page 24, line 4, strike "not to exceed 500,000 in any year" and insert "in such quantities, as the Secretary, in the Secretary's discretion, may prescribe".

On page 25, line 11, strike "the face value of the coins; and insert "the market value of the bullion at the time of sale; and".

On page 26, between lines 9 and 10, insert the following:

"(b) Protective Covering.—"(A) in general.—Each bullion coin having a metallic content as described in subparagraph (a)(1) and a design specified in paragraph (2) shall be sold in an inexpensive covering that will protect the coin from damage due to ordinary handling or storage.

"(B) Design.—The protective covering required under subparagraph (A) shall be readily distinguishable from any coin packaging that may be used to protect proof coins minted and issued under this subsection.

AUTHORITIES FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE, SCIENCE, AND TRANSPORTATION

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation be authorized to meet on Friday, November 18, 2005, at 10 a.m., on Senate experience.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Finance be authorized to meet in open Executive Session during the session on Friday, November 18, 2005, immediately following a vote on the Senate Floor (tentatively scheduled to occur at 9:30 a.m.), in the President's Room, S-216 of the Capitol, to consider favorably reporting S. 8, the U.S.-Bahrain Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The minority leader is recognized.

MISPLACED PRIORITIES

Mr. REID. Mr. President, as elected representatives of the American people, we have a responsibility to work with each other and to focus on their needs. This is an obligation that Democratic Senators have not taken lightly.

We have spent the last 11 months trying to make a difference for each American citizen. Democrats fought to protect Social Security when those in the majority, the Republicans, tried to destroy it through their risky privatization scheme. Democrats fought for a budget that honors America's values. When Republicans passed a terrible budget, leading religious leaders called it immoral. They called it immoral because of its deep cuts and irresponsible tax breaks. Why did they do that? One only needs to look at the Old Testament or the New Testament to find why.

In the 112th Psalm we are told that: He hath given to the poor; his righteousness will endure forever. In the New Testament, in the Book of Galatians, second chapter, 10th verse: Only that we should remember the poor. That is why leading religious leaders of this country have called the budget an immoral one.

We moved quickly to help Katrina's victims, when that storm exposed the Bush administration's incompetence. It became clear that Republicans were going to sit on their hands. Democrats tried to help families with energy prices, when prices spiked and congressional Republicans only seemed to care about their friends in the oil industry.

We stood for the troops, veterans, and a success story in Iraq, when it became clear that Republicans were blocking our efforts and decided to focus on the narrow interests of a special few. In fact, if you want to see the misplaced priorities of the Republican Party, look no further than the agenda they set for the Senate.
If the Senate could spend over 30 days debating extreme judges and devote days to the tragic affairs of the Schiavo family, Republicans should have been able to find a few days to help millions of Americans with health care, education, and, of course, the skyrocketing price of gasoline, heating oil, and natural gas.

While some of the work we have done this year is important, more important is the work that we have missed. Consider the latest example: Katrina relief. Democrats introduced a comprehensive Katrina relief package. It was a good package. It was done hours after the storm had passed. The legislation, S. 1637, included proposals to ensure that displaced families received the health care, housing, and financial relief they needed. Republicans talked a good game about helping victims. Yet over 2 months later, you only have to pick up any newspaper to know that tens of thousands of Americans still need housing, health care, and financial help. Democrats have tried to act on these families’ behalf, but every time Republicans have found something better to do.

Of course, this is a pattern all too familiar. Last month, Republicans wanted to discuss health care and education. Republicans decided to debate changing Senate rules so they could pack the courts with some extreme nominees. When Democrats wanted to help families struggling with rising oil prices, Republicans gave billions in tax breaks to oil companies that are already making obscene profits. And when Democrats wanted to help the neediest among us, Republicans decided to make deep cuts to programs working families depend on so they could give tax breaks to special interests and the very elite of our country.

America can do better than these misplaced priorities. Whether it is supporting or providing relief for rising health and energy costs, it is time for the Senate to get its priorities straight. The Democratic agenda is one that deals with health care, energy costs, and, in effect, getting our priorities straight.

When we return next session, we should not waste more time putting the needs of the special few ahead of the priorities of the American people. Let’s pass fiscally responsible tax relief to help families being squeezed between declining wages and rising prices. The rich are getting richer; the poor are getting poorer. The middle class is getting squeezed. Let’s move forward on issues like energy dependence, real security, and affordable health care. Let’s build on the progress we made on Tuesday with our vote on Iraq.

On Tuesday, Democrats and Republicans voted overwhelmingly to express no confidence in the administration’s Iraq policy. We voted not to trust the President because it is clear that he has no interest in taking the Senate’s advice.

Instead of changing course, as the Senate demanded, the White House has decided to reignite the Cheney-Rove smear machine and attack its critics instead. We saw it yesterday with President George W. Bush and yesterday, with White House Press Secretary Ari Fleischer. So, yesterday was an important day.)

It is much in the news these days. The Senate spoke clearly this week that it is not in favor of cutting and running. On a bipartisan basis, the Senate said we will not cut and run in Iraq. That is the message of the votes that we had earlier this week. We intend to stay the course. We are winning in Iraq, and the policy is to win.

How do you measure success in Iraq? You measure it by the election last January which brought into office a major democratic movement. Everyone remembers the ink-stained index fingers that were held up proudly by the Iraqis as they, at risk to their own lives, went to the polls and elected an interim government.

The days and months ahead should be used to do the people’s business. We can’t change the past, but we can change the future.

Next year we need to focus on the priorities of American families. Together, we can do better and give our citizens a government as good and honest as its people.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TALMUD). The Senator from Kentucky.

A SUCCESSFUL FIRST SESSION

Mr. McCONELLI. Mr. President, I listened carefully to my good friend, the Democratic leader, give his evaluation of the first session of the 109th Congress. We’re coming to a conclusion. Let me just suggest that I, not surprisingly, see it somewhat differently. In my couple of decades here in the Senate, this has been quite possibly the most successful first session of a Congress in my time here.

We began the year by passing a much needed class action reform bill that was long overdue to deal with one of the areas of the litigation craze that is bad for American business and bad for American consumers. It is marred by the bankruptcy reform act, long in the making, way overdue, to deal with people who have increasingly decided not to accept their responsibilities and pay their debts.

We passed a budget, which is never easy around here, tax cuts, a Central American free-trade agreement, an energy bill, and a highway bill. We confirmed a new Justice to the Supreme Court. We passed a terrorism insurance measure and a pension reform bill.

It has been an extraordinarily successful first session of a Congress, and we have much to be proud of as we go toward the Thanksgiving holiday.

Even though my assessment of our accomplishments here differs dramatically from that of the Democratic leader, let me say to all our colleagues, Democrats and Republicans alike, we should continue to succeed dramatically. Hopefully, in the new year, we will be able to do a better job of getting out the entire story in Iraq, which is that dramatic progress is being made. After all, when this democratic government is elected on December 15, it will be less than 3 years from the time Saddam Hussein was toppled to the election of a permanent democratic government in Iraq. It took us 11 years to get to that point from the Declaration of Independence to the writing of the Constitution in our first democratic election.

We are very impatient for immediate success. In fact, the Iraqis have come a long way in a short period of time. We are proud of them and, most of all, we are proud of our troops who made it possible for that to happen.

With that, Mr. President, I think it is time to begin to wrap up in the Senate.

First, I congratulate the House of Representatives and the Senate. We will shortly be passing a bill to honor a great American, Rosa Louise Parks, by placing a statue of her in the Capitol. I am very pleased that the swift action of the House, followed on by the Senate tonight. We have assured that Americans who visit this place 100 years from now will see her statue and reflect on how one woman’s courage altered a nation.

I am also pleased and grateful to my colleagues, particularly Senator Dodd in the Senate and Representative Jesse Jackson Jr., in the House, who took the lead over there for moving quickly to accord Ms. Parks the honor she so richly deserves. I look forward to the day when her statue is unveiled alongside other American heroes.

Ms. Parks’ passing on October 24, just a few weeks ago, left us with sadness, but also with deep gratitude to the gift she left all of us.

I am reminded of Dr. Martin Luther King’s conviction that human progress never rolls in on the wheels of inevitability. It comes through the tireless efforts of men. Today this Congress has taken steps to ensure Parks’ achievements will never be forgotten.

RECOGNIZING 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF ROSA LOUISE PARKS’ REFUSAL TO GIVE UP HER SEAT

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of H. Con. Res. 208, and that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 208) to recognize the 50th anniversary of Rosa Louise Parks’ refusal to give up her seat on the bus and the subsequent desegregation of American society.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the concurrent resolution be printed in the Record, without further intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 208) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

AUTHORIZING EXTENSION OF UNCONDITIONAL AND PERMANENT NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Finance be discharged from further consideration of S. 632, and that the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 632) to authorize the extension of unconditional and permanent nondiscriminatory treatment (permanent normal trade relations treatment) to the products of Ukraine, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (S. 632) was read the third time and passed, as follows:

S. 632

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that Ukraine—

(1) allows its women the right and opportunity to emigrate, free of any heavy tax on emigration or on the visas or other documents required for emigration and free of any tax, levy, fine, fee, or other charge on any citizens as a consequence of the desire of such citizens to emigrate to the country of their choice;

(2) has received normal trade relations treatment since concluding a bilateral trade agreement with the United States that entered into force on June 23, 1992, which remains in force and provides the United States with important rights;

(3) has been found to be in full compliance with the freedom of emigration requirements under title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 since 1997;

(4) has committed itself to ensuring freedom of religion and preventing intolerance;

(5) has committed itself to continuing its efforts to return religious property to religious organizations in accordance with existing law;

(6) has taken significant steps demonstrating its intentions to build a friendly and cooperative relationship with the United States including participating in peacekeeping efforts since 1997;

(7) has made progress toward meeting international commitments and standards in the most recent Presidential runoff elections, including in the implementation of Ukraine’s new elections laws.

SEC. 2. TERMINATION OF APPLICATION OF TITLE IV OF THE TRADE ACT OF 1974 TO UKRAINE.

(a) PRESIDENTIAL DETERMINATIONS AND EX- TENSION OF UNCONDITIONAL AND PERMANENT NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT—Notwithstanding any provision of title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2431 et seq.), the President may—

(1) determine that such title should no longer apply to Ukraine; and

(2) after making a determination under paragraph (1) with respect to Ukraine, proclaim the extension of unconditional and permanent nondiscriminatory treatment (permanent normal trade relations treatment) to the products of Ukraine, and for other purposes.

DIRECTING THE JOINT COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY TO OBTAIN A STATUE OF ROSA PARKS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to immediate consideration of H. R. 4145, which was received from the House and is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 4145) to direct the Joint Committee on the Library to obtain a statue of Rosa Parks and to place the statue in the United States Capitol in National Statuary Hall, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, last night, the House of Representatives passed H.R. 4145, a bill to direct the Architect of the Capitol to obtain a statue of Rosa Parks and to place the statue in the United States Capitol in National Statuary Hall. Today, the Senate unanimously passed this legislation, and I rise to thank my colleagues in this body and in the House of Representatives for their leadership and support for this important legislation, which sends a message of hope and freedom to the American people.

Earlier this week a resolution sponsored by Senator MCCONNELL and Senator DODD passed this body to honor Mrs. Parks. I thank Senators MCCONNELL and DODD for their leadership on this issue and considering my concerns. I supported Mr. MCCONNELL’s and Mr. DODD’s measure because I believe it is important that that the Parks statue be in our Capitol. However, I wanted to be clear that her statue should be in Statuary Hall, and I was glad to join Representatives JESSE JACKSON JR. of Illinois in his effort to open.

Largely regarded as the mother of the modern day Civil Rights movement, Mrs. Parks’ act of courage on December 1, 1955, inspired a movement that eventually brought about laws to end segregation, ensure voting rights, end discrimination in housing, and create a greater equality throughout this nation. Moreover, it taught us all that one individual can help to channel the world from the way things are to the way things ought to be. With the passage of this legislation, we ensure that her memory is enshrined in the most hallowed halls of our Government. On November 3, 2005, I introduced S. 1959, the companion legislation to Representative Jackson’s H.R. 4145, which would also place a statue of Rosa Parks in Statuary Hall in the Capitol. This is a location of great significance, particularly on this occasion and particularly with this individual. While there are memorials for prominent African Americans in the Capitol Collection, none of those are located in the hall that gives a State-by-State account of our country’s history.

This week, Representative Jackson and I began a national week of action to pass our legislation honoring Rosa Parks with a statue in National Statuary Hall. I thank Representative Jackson for his leadership on this important effort. It was through his vision and dedication that we were able to reach our goal of having this legislation pass Congress by December 1, 2005—the 50th anniversary of Rosa Parks’ courageous decision not to move to the back of the bus. I also thank Senators McConnell and Dodd for helping to make that happen. It could not have been enacted without their support.

Finally, I thank Senator Obama, Senator Smith and my other Senate colleagues who cosponsored S. 1959 for their support in raising the awareness and helping to ensure the passage of this legislation. Mrs. Parks’ legacy, and that of the movement she began, has been served well by this bipartisan effort.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read three times and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statement relating to the bill be printed in the Record, without intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4145) was read the third time and passed.

EXPRESSING SENSE OF SENATE ON TRIAL, SENTENCING AND IMPRISONMENT OF MICHAEL KHODORKOVSKY AND PLATON LEBEDEV

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. Res. 322 submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 322) expressing the sense of the Senate on the trial, sentencing and imprisonment of Michael Khodorkovsky and Platon Lebedev.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution. Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating thereto be printed in the Record, without intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 322) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 322

Whereas the United States supports the development of democracy, civil society, and the rule of law in the Russian Federation; Whereas the rule of law and the guarantee of equal justice under the law are fundamental attributes of democratic societies; Whereas the trial, sentencing, and imprisonment of Mikhail Khodorkovsky and Platon Lebedev have raised troubling questions about the impartiality and integrity of the judicial system in the Russian Federation; Whereas the Department of State 2004 Country Report on Human Rights Practices in Russia stated that the arrest of Mr. Khodorkovsky was “widely believed to have been prompted, at least in part, by the considerable financial support he provided to opposition groups;” Whereas Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice has remarked that the arrest of Mr. Khodorkovsky and the dismantling of his company have raised “significant concerns about the independence of the judiciary in Russia;” Whereas the independent non-governmental organization Freedom House has asserted that the conviction of Mr. Khodorkovsky “underscores the serious erosion of the rule of law and growing intolerance for political dissent in Russia;” Whereas upon concluding an investigation of the facts surrounding the case of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev, the Human Rights Committee of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe determined that the two men were “arbitrarily singled out” by the Russian authorities, violating the principle of equality under the law; Whereas in May 2005, a Moscow court sentenced Mr. Khodorkovsky to serve 9 years in prison; Whereas Article 73 of the Russian Criminal Penitentiary Code stipulates that except under extraordinary circumstances, prisoners serve their terms of deprivation of liberty on the territory of the Russian Federation where they reside or were convicted; Whereas on or about October 16, 2005, Mr. Khodorkovsky was sent to prison camp YG 14/10 in the Chita Region of Sibera; Whereas on or about October 16, 2005, Mr. Lebedev was sent to penal camp number 98/3 in the Arkhangelsk Region; Whereas the transfer of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev constitutes an apparent violation of Russian law and hearkens back to the worst practices and excesses of the Soviet era; Whereas a broad coalition of human rights advocates and intellectuals in Russia have appealed to the Department of State, the Russian Rights Commissioner of the Russian Federation, to investigate and rectify any abuse of Russia law associated with the transfer of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev; and Whereas the selective disregard for the rule of law by officials of the Russian Federation further undermines the standing and status of the Russian Federation among the democratic nations of the world: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the criminal justice system in Russia has not accorded Mikhail Khodorkovsky and Platon Lebedev fair, transparent, and impartial treatment under the laws of the Russian Federation; (2) the standing and status of the Russian Federation among the democratic nations of the world would be greatly enhanced if the authorities of the Russian Federation were to take the necessary actions to dispel widespread concerns that—

(A) the criminal cases against Mr. Khodorkovsky, Mr. Lebedev, and their associates are politically motivated; (B) the transfer of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev to prison camps thousands of kilometers from their homes and families represents a violation of the norms and practices of Russia law; and (C) in cases dealing with perceived political threats to the authorities, the judiciary of Russia is an instrument of the Kremlin and such judiciary is not truly independent; and

(3) notwithstanding any other disposition of the cases of Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev, and without prejudice to further disposition of same, Mr. Khodorkovsky and Mr. Lebedev should be transferred to penal facilities with locations that are consonant with the norms and general practices of Russia law.

EXPRESSING SENSE OF SENATE THAT UNITED NATIONS AND OTHER INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS NOT BE ALLOWED TO EXERCISE CONTROL OVER INTERNET

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 323, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 323) expressing the sense of the Senate that the United Nations and other international organizations should not be allowed to exercise control over the Internet.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution. Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 323) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 323

Whereas market-based policies and private sector leadership have given the Internet the flexibility to avoid government control; Whereas given the importance of the Internet to the global economy, it is essential
November 18, 2005

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE
S13411

that the underlying domain name system and technical infrastructure of the Internet remain stable and secure;

Whereas the Internet was created in the United States and has flourished under United States supervision and oversight, and the Federal Government has followed a path of transferring Internet control from the defense and military sector, including the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) with the goal of full privatization;

Whereas the developing world deserves the access to knowledge, services, commerce, and communication, the accompanying benefits to economic development, education, and health; and the informed discussion that is the bedrock of democratic self-government that the Internet provides;

Whereas the explosive and hugely beneficial growth of the Internet did not result from increased government involvement but from the opening of the Internet to commerce and private sector innovation;

Whereas on June 30, 2005, President George W. Bush announced that the United States intends to maintain its historic role over the master ‘root zone’ file of the Internet, which lists all authorized top-level Internet domains;

Whereas the recently articulated principles of the United States on the domain name and addressing system of the Internet (DNS) are that—

(A) preserve the security and stability of the DNS;

(B) take no action with the potential to adversely affect the effective and efficient operation of the DNS; and

(C) maintain the historic role of the United States regarding modifications to the root zone file;

(2) governments have a legitimate interest in the management of country code top level domains (ccTLD);

(3) the United States is committed to working with the international community to address the concerns of that community in accordance with the stability and security of the DNS;

(4) ICANN is the appropriate technical management of the Internet, and the United States will continue to provide oversight so that ICANN maintains focus and meets its core technical mission; and

(5) dialogue relating to Internet governance should continue in multiple relevant fora, and the United States encourages an ongoing dialogue with all stakeholders and will continue to support market-based approaches and private sector leadership;

Whereas the final report issued by the Working Group on Internet Governance (WGIG), established by the United Nations Secretary General in accordance with a mandate given during the first World Summit on the Information Society, and comprised of 40 members from governments, private sector, and civil society, issued 4 possible models, 1 of which envisages a Global Internet Council that would assume international Internet governance;

Whereas that report contains recommendations for relegating the private sector and nongovernmental organizations to an advisory capacity;

Whereas the European Union has also proposed transferring control of the Internet, including the global allocation of Internet Protocol number blocks, procedures for changing the root zone file, and rules applicable to DNS, to a ‘new model of international cooperation’ which could confer significant leverage to the Governments of Iran, Cuba, and China, and could impose an undesirable layer of politicized bureaucracy on the operations of the Internet that could result in an inadequate response to the rapid pace of technological change;

Whereas some nations that advocate radical changes to the structure of Internet governance censor the information available to their citizens through the Internet and use the Internet as a tool of surveillance to curtail speech and dissent, and other nations operate telecommunication systems as system-controlled monopolies or highly-regulated and highly-taxed entities;

Whereas some nations in support of transferring Internet governance to an entity affiliated with the United Nations, or another intergovernmental organization, to have such an entity endorse national policies that block access to information, stifle political dissent, and maintain outdated communications structures;

Whereas the structure and control of Internet governance has profound implications for homeland security, competition and trade, democratization, free expression, access to information, privacy, and the protection of intellectual property, and the threat of some nations to take unilateral actions that would fragment the root zone file would result in a less functional Internet with diminished benefits for all people;

Whereas in the Declaration of Principles of the First World Summit on the Information Society, held in Geneva in 2003, delegates from 175 nations declared the “common desire and commitment to build a people-centered, inclusive and development-oriented Information Society, where everyone can create, access, utilize and share information and knowledge”;

(A) recognize the need for, and pursue a constructive dialogue with, the international community on, the future of Internet governance; and

(4) advance the values of an open Internet in the broader trade and diplomatic conversations of the United States.

EXPRESSING SUPPORT FOR PEOPLE OF SRI LANKA

Mr. MCCONNELL. I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 324, which was submitted earlier today.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report the resolution by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 324) expressing support for the people of Sri Lanka in the wake of the tsunami and the assassination of the Sri Lankan Foreign Minister and urging support and respect for free and fair elections in Sri Lanka.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution (S. Res. 324) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. Res. 324

Whereas, on December 26, 2004, Sri Lanka was struck by a tsunami that left some 30,000 dead and hundreds of thousands of people homeless;

Whereas the United States and the world community recognized the global importance of preventing that tragedy from spiraling into an uncontrolled disaster and sent aid to Sri Lanka to provide immediate relief;

Whereas the United States has an interest in a free and fair democratic process in Sri Lanka, and the peaceful resolution of the insurgency that has afflicted Sri Lanka for more than two decades: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) expresses its support for the people of Sri Lanka as they recover from the devastating tsunami that occurred on December 26, 2004, and the assassination of the Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Lakshman Kadirgamar on August 12, 2005;

(2) expresses its support for the courageous decision by the democratically-elected Government of Sri Lanka, following the assassination of Foreign Minister Kadirgamar, to remain in discussions with the Liberation
Tigers of Tamil Eelam in an attempt to resolve peacefully the issues facing the people of Sri Lanka; and

(3) urges all parties in Sri Lanka to remain committed to the negotiating process and to make every possible attempt at national reconciliation.

AUTHORIZATION FOR PRINTING OF SENATE ELECTION LAW GUIDEBOOK

VEssel Hull Design Protection Amendments of 2005

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 1785 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1785) to amend chapter 13 of title 17, United States Code (relating to the vessel hull design protection), to clarify the distinction between a hull and a deck, to provide factors for the determination of the protectability of a revised design, to provide guidance for assessments of substantial similarity, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, Senator CORKIN and I have already worked together on significant Freedom of Information Act legislation and on counterterrorism legislation during the first session of this Congress. Today, we pass yet another bill and take our partnership to the high seas, or at least to our Nation’s boat manufacturing industry, with the Vessel Hull Design Protection Act Amendments of 2005.

Designs of boat vessel hulls are often the result of a great deal of time, effort, and financial investment. They are afforded intellectual property protection under the Vessel Hull Design Protection Act that Congress passed in 1998. This law exists for the same reason that other works enjoy intellectual property rights: to encourage and continued innovation, to protect the works that emerge from the creative process, and to reward the creators.

Recent courtroom experience has made it clear that the protections Congress passed 7 years ago need some refinement to ensure they meet the purposes we envisioned. The Vessel Hull Design Protection Act Amendments shore up the law, making an important clarification about the scope of the protections available to boat designs.

We continue to be fascinated with, and in so many ways dependent on, bodies of water, both for recreation and commerce. More than 50 percent of American trade by weight involves sea travel. I would like to thank Senators KOHL and HATCH for cosponsoring this legislation. Protecting boat designs and encouraging innovation in those designs are worthy aims, and I am grateful that we have moved to pass this bipartisan legislation.

Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid on the table with no intervening action or debate, and any statements be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (S. 1785) was read the third time and passed, as follows:

S. 1785

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Vessel Hull Design Protection Amendments of 2005”.

SEC. 2. DEFINITIONS.

Section 1301(a) of title 17, United States Code, is amended by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

“(2) Vessel, features. The design of a vessel hull or deck, including a plug or mold, is subject to protection under this chapter, notwithstanding section 1302(4).”.

SEC. 3. PROTECTIONS.

Section 1301(b) of title 17, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in paragraph (2), by striking “vessel hull, including a plug or mold;” and inserting “vessel hull or deck, including a plug or mold;”;

(2) by striking paragraph (4) and inserting the following:

“(4) A hull is the exterior frame or body of a vessel, exclusive of the deck, superstructure, masts, sails, yards, rigging, hardware, fixtures, and other attachments.”;

and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

“(7) A deck is the horizontal surface of a vessel that covers the hull, including exterior cabin and cockpit surfaces, and exclusive of masts, sails, yards, rigging, hardware, fixtures, and other attachments.”.
Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 282, H.R. 680.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent the bills be read a third time and passed as follows:

A bill (H.R. 680) to direct the Secretary of Interior to convey certain land held in trust for the Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah to the City of Richfield, Utah, and for other purposes.

Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 680) was read the third time and passed.

DESIGNATING THE HOLLY A. CHARETTE POST OFFICE

DESIGNATING THE RANDALL D. SHUGHART POST OFFICE BUILDING

DESIGNATING THE VINCENT PALLADINO POST OFFICE

DESIGNATING THE WILLIE VAUGHN POST OFFICE

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee be discharged from further consideration, and the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. 1989, H.R. 2062, H.R. 2183, and H.R. 3653, all en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senate will proceed to the consideration of the measures on bloc.

Mr. McCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent the bills be read a third time and passed and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 2062) was read the third time and passed.

The bill (H.R. 2183) was read the third time and passed.

The bill (H.R. 3853) was read the third time and passed.

The bill (S. 1989) was read the third time and passed as follows:

S. 1989

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. HOLLY A. CHARETTE POST OFFICE.

(a) DESIGNATION—The facility of the United States Postal Service located at 57 Rolfe Square in Cranston, Rhode Island, shall be known and designated as the “Holly A. Charette Post Office”.

(b) REFERENCES.—Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the facility referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the “Holly A. Charette Post Office”.

DARFUR PEACE AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT OF 2005

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Committee on Foreign Relations be discharged from further consideration of S. 1462 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1462) to promote peace and accountability in Sudan, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, today the Senate has passed the bipartisan Darfur Peace and Accountability Act introduced by my colleague, Senator BROWNBACK, and myself. This legislation is a critical step in finally stopping the genocide raging in Darfur and bringing lasting peace to the region.

It has been 15 months since the Congress declared the atrocities in Darfur to be genocide, and over a year since the administration made the same declaration. Yet far too little has been done to live up to our moral obligation to actually save lives. Fellow human beings are being mercilessly slaughtered. We have the capacity to protect them. If we do not, history will forever condemn our failure. That is what this bill is about.

This is the second time a version of this bill has passed the Senate. In April, the bill was included as an amendment to the emergency supplemental appropriations bill but was stripped out in conference. This time, however, I am hopeful that the bill will be passed into law. A dedicated, bipartisan group of House members, including Congressman PAYNE, have pushed this legislation. Through their efforts and with the support of leadership, we can pass this bill.

That’s when the work will really begin. This legislation outlines the policies and provides the authorities necessary to stop the genocide.

First, the bill recognizes that roots on the ground are needed to provide security. It authorizes the President to impose a partial arms embargo.

Second, the bill authorizes the President to provide assistance to African Union, AU, forces in Darfur. We must, however, provide actual resources to the AU for it to be effective. Just a few weeks ago, a Senate amendment to the Foreign Operations appropriations bill for $50 million was removed in conference, leaving the AU with an ever-increasing shortfall at precisely the worst moment. By passing this legislation, the Senate has once again stressed the need for greater U.S. assistance. The Administration must now follow up by requesting significant funding for the AU in its next supplemental request.

While we must provide all necessary resources to the AU, we should also recognize its limitations. This bill identifies specific areas where NATO should provide assistance, including training, logistics, command and control, and intelligence.

The message is clear: the AU’s failure will be ours. And, as the genocide continues to unfold, there will be only one question. Were all available resources expended to stop it?

The second part of the bill insists that the United States work to impose sanctions currently available under existing U.N. Security Council resolutions and seek to pass a new, more effective resolution. The U.N. must impose the targeted sanctions promised under previous resolutions. And it must extend the arms embargo to include all of Sudan and thus truly ensure that weapons do not end up in Darfur.

The bill grants the President the authority to impose real sanctions—blocking of assets and denial of visas—on to those responsible for genocide, war crimes and crimes against humanity, and requires that he report to Congress any waiver of those sanctions. Individual accountability changes behavior. This is a powerful tool, and I am hopeful that the President will use it to its fullest.

This bill has other critical provisions. It denies entry to our ports to ships working with Sudan’s oil sector. It prohibits assistance to countries violating the arms embargo. And it calls for a Presidential envoy to bring the full weight of this administration to bear on stopping the genocide and resolving the crisis engulfing Sudan and the region.

Darfur must be a priority. The United States has faced resistance to multilateral sanctions against Sudan. But the answer is not to give up. The issue should be raised in bilateral and multilateral settings. It is a priority that we do business with Sudan and seek to shield the government from sanctions need to understand that we are absolutely committed to stopping genocide and that our bilateral relations are at stake.

There is no time to lose. The situation in Darfur is deteriorating by the day. AU troops have been attacked, held hostage and killed. IDP camps have been overrun in recent weeks and dozens have been lost. Hundreds of thousands of internally displaced persons can no longer be reached by humanitarian organizations. The conflict has spread into Chad, which already is straining to support 200,000 Darfur refugees. We are looking at the complete meltdown of the region. What positive efforts have been made in the last year and a half, the incredible work of NGOs, the important efforts of a couple thousand AU troops in a region the size of Texas, could soon be reversed.

I am grateful to my colleagues on both sides of the aisle who have supported this bill and have joined me in... demanding that we end this genocide. I must also recognize the incredible efforts of civic and student groups, people of faith of all religions and denominations, and Americans from all over the country and from all walks of life who have come together on this issue. I have visited the IDP camps of Darfur and camps for Darfur refugees in Chad. But in our time, when news of human misery crosses the globe in an instant, none of us can pretend that we don’t see, or that why so many of our citizens have risen up and demanded action, not just words.

The American people understand what Elie Wiesel said about Darfur well over a year ago. He asked:

"How can a citizen of a free country not pay attention? How can anyone, anywhere not feel outraged? How can a person, whether religious or secular, not be moved by compassion? And above all, how can anyone who remembers remain silent?"

Elie Wiesel was referring of course to the Shoah, the Holocaust from which the moral imperative of our day was borne: “never again.” Never again will we stand by. Never again will we forget our common humanity. Never again will we turn away.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the Brownback amendment at the desk be agreed to, the bill as amended be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any state-in Sudan so that it achieves the size, strength, and capacity necessary for protecting civilians and humanitarian operations, and ending the continued violence in the Darfur region;

(5) if an expanded and reinforced African Union Mission in Sudan fails to stop genocide in the Darfur region, the international community should add additional, dispositive measures to prevent and suppress acts of genocide in the Darfur region;

(6) acting under Article 5 of the Charter of the African Union, the African Union Security Council should call for suspension of the Government of Sudan’s rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly and by the Security Council with the approval of the Government of Sudan; and

(7) the President should use all necessary and appropriate diplomatic means to ensure the full discharge of the responsibilities of the Committee of the United Nations Security Council and the Panel of Experts established under the United Nations Security Council Resolution 1591 (March 29, 2005);

(8) the United States should not provide assistance to the Government of Sudan and marginalized areas in northern Sudan (including the Nuba Mountains, Southern Blue Nile, Abiey, Eastern Sudan (Beja), Darfur, and Nuba), as well as marginalized populations in and around Khartoum, for the purposes of contributing to peace in Sudan, until such time as the Government of Sudan has honored pledges to cease attacks upon civilians, demobilize the Janjaweed and associated militias, grant free and unfettered access for deliveries of humanitarian assistance in the Darfur region, and allow for safe, unimpeded, and voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons;

(9) the President should seek to assist internally displaced persons in the United States by establishing a student loan forgiveness program for those individuals who commit to return to southern Sudan for a period of 7 years for the purpose of contributing to the reconstruction of southern Sudan;

(10) the President should appoint a Presidential Envoy for Sudan to provide stewardship of efforts to implement the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan, seek ways to bring stability and peace to the Darfur region, and allow for safe, unimpeded, and voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons;

(11) in order to achieve the goals specified in paragraph (9), the President should use all available means to provide the necessary humanitarian assistance, including by prohibiting entry at United States ports to cargo ships or oil tankers that have provided or are providing assistance in the oil sector of Sudan or involved in the shipment of goods for use by the armed forces of Sudan, until such time as the Government of Sudan has honored its commitments to cease attacks on civilians, demobilize and demilitarize the Janjaweed and associated militias, and allow for safe and voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons;

(12) the international community should strongly condemn attacks against humanitarian workers and demand that all armed groups refrain from such attacks;

(13) the United States should fully support the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan and urge rapid implementation of its terms; and

(14) the new leadership of the Sudan People’s Liberation Movement (SPLM) should—

(A) seek to transform the SPLM into an inclusive, transparent, and democratic political body;

(B) reaffirm the commitment of the SPLM to bring peace not only to southern Sudan, but also to the Darfur region, eastern Sudan, and the other regions of Sudan;

(C) remain united in the face of potential efforts to undermine the SPLM.

SEC. 3. SANCTIONS IN SUPPORT OF PEACE IN DARFUR.

(a) BLOCKING OF ASSETS AND RESTRICTION ON VISAS.—Section 6 of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (Public Law 108–497; 50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended—

(1) in the heading of subsection (b), by inserting “OF APPROPRIATE SENIOR OFFICIALS OF THE SUDANSENESE GOVERNMENT” after “ASSETS”;

(2) by redesignating subsections (c) through (e) as subsections (d) through (f), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

“(c) BLOCKING OF ASSETS AND RESTRICTION ON VISAS OF CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS IDENTIFIED BY THE PRESIDENT.—

(1) BLOCKING OF ASSETS.—Beginning on the date that is 30 days after the date of the enactment of the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act of 2005, and in the interest of contributing to peace in Sudan, the President shall, consistent with the authorities granted in the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.), block the assets of any individual who the President determines is complicit in, or responsible for, acts of genocide, war crimes, or crimes against humanity in Darfur, including the family members or any associates of such individual to whom assets or property of such individual was transferred on or after July 1, 2002.

(2) RESTRICTION ON VISAS.—Beginning on the date that is 30 days after the date of the enactment of the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act of 2005, and in the interest of contributing to peace in Sudan, the President shall deny visas and entry to any individual who the President determines is complicit in, or responsible for, acts of genocide, war crimes, or crimes against humanity in Darfur, including the family members or any associates of such individual to whom assets or property of such individual was transferred on or after July 1, 2002.”;

(b) WAIVER.—Section 6(d) of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as redesignated by subsection (a)) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: “The President may waive the application of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (c) in the case of an individual who is a member of the United Nations Security Council, on such terms and conditions as the President shall determine.”

(c) SANCTIONS AGAINST CERTAIN JANJAWEED COMMANDERS AND COORDINATORS.—The President should immediately consider imposing the sanctions described in section 6(c) of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (as added by subsection (a)) against the Janjaweed commanders and coordinators for the purpose of assisting the Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes before the Subcommittee on Africa of the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives on June 24, 2004.

SEC. 4. ADDITIONAL AUTHORITIES TO DETER AND SUPPRESS GENOCIDE IN DARFUR.

(a) UNITED STATES ASSISTANCE TO SUPPORT AMIS.—Section 7 of the Comprehensive Peace in Sudan Act of 2004 (Public Law 108–497; 50 U.S.C. 1701 note) is amended—

(1) by striking “Notwithstanding” and inserting “(a) GENERAL ASSISTANCE.—Notwithstanding”;

and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(b) ASSISTANCE TO SUPPORT AMIS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the President is authorized to provide assistance, on such terms and conditions as the President may determine and in consultation with the appropriate congressional committees, to reinforce the deployment and operations of an expanded African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) with the mandate, size, strength, and capacity to protect civilians and humanitarian operations, stabilize the Darfur region of Sudan and dissipate and deter air attacks directed against civilians and humanitarian workers, and not limited to providing assistance in the areas of logistics, transport, communications, material support, technical assistance, command and control, aerial surveillance, and intelligence.”;

(b) NATO ASSISTANCE TO SUPPORT AMIS.—The President should instruct the United States Permanent Representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to use the voice, vote, and influence of the United States at NATO to advocate NATO reinforcement of the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS), upon the request of the African Union, including but not limited to the provision of assets necessary to deter and dissipate air strikes directed against civilians and humanitarian workers in the Darfur region of Sudan and other logistical, transport, communications, material support, technical assistance, command and control, aerial surveillance, and intelligence support.

(c) DENIAL OF ENTRY AT UNITED STATES PORTS TO CERTAIN CARGO SHIPS OR OIL TANKERS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The President should take all necessary and appropriate steps to deny the Government of Sudan access to United States revenues, including by prohibiting entry at United States ports to cargo ships or oil tankers that have provided or are providing assistance in the oil sector of Sudan or involved in the shipment of goods for use by the armed forces of Sudan, until such time as the Government of Sudan has honored its commitments to cease attacks on civilians, demobilize and demilitarize the Janjaweed and associated militias, and allow for the safe and voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons.

(2) EXCEPTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply with respect to cargo ships or oil tankers involved in an internationally-recognized demobilization program or the shipment of goods for use by the government of the United States or United Nations and shall not apply to the delivery of humanitarian assistance or the delivery of United States assistance under the terms of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan.

(d) PROHIBITION ON ASSISTANCE TO CONDUCT VIOLATION OF UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTIONS 1556 AND 1591.

(1) PROHIBITION.—Amounts made available to carry out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151 et seq.), the Arms Export Control Act of 1976 (22 U.S.C. 4851 et seq.), and the Department of State, General and Military Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2151 et seq.) may not be used to provide assistance to the government of a country that is in violation of the embargo on military assistance with respect to Sudan pursuant to United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1556 (July 30, 2004) and 1591 (March 29, 2005).
(2) Waiver.—The President may waive the application of paragraph (1) if the President determines and certifies to the appropriate congressional committees that it is in the national interests of the United States to do so.

SEC. 7. MULTILATERAL EFFORTS.

The President shall direct the United States Permanent Representative to the United Nations to use the voice and vote of the United States to urge the adoption of a resolution by the United Nations Security Council that:

(1) supports the expansion of the African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) so that it achieves the mandate, size, strength, and capacity necessary to protect civilians and humanitarian operations, and disperse and deter fighting and violence in the Darfur region of Sudan, and urges member states of the United Nations to accelerate political, material, financial, and other assistance to the African Union toward this end;

(2) reinforces efforts of the African Union to negotiate peace talks between the Government of Sudan, the Sudan Liberation Movement/Army (SLM/A), the Justice and Equality Movement (JEM), and associated armed groups in the region, calls on the Government of Sudan, the SLMA, and the JEM to abide by their obligations under the N’Djamena Ceasefire Agreement of April 8, 2004 and subsequent agreements, urges all parties to engage in peace talks without preconditions and seek to resolve the conflict, and strongly condemns all attacks against humanitarian workers and African Union personnel in the Darfur region;

(3) imposes sanctions against the Government of Sudan, including the sanctions against individual members of the Government of Sudan, and entities controlled or owned by officials of the Government of Sudan or the National Congress Party in Sudan until such time as the Government of Sudan has honored its commitments to cease attacks on civilians, demobilize and demilitarize the Janjaweed and associated militias, grant free and unfeathered access for deliveries of humanitarian assistance, and allow for the safe and voluntary return of refugees and internally displaced persons;

(4) extends the military embargo established by United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1556 (July 30, 2004) and 1591 (March 28, 2005) to include persons or entities that provide a total provision of military equipment on the sale or supply of offensive military equipment to the Government of Sudan, except for use in an internationally-recognized armed conflict or for nonlethal assistance necessary to carry out elements of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement for Sudan;

(5) calls upon those member states of the United Nations that continue to undermine efforts to foster peace in Sudan by providing military assistance and equipment to the Government of Sudan, the SLMA, and associated armed groups in the Darfur region in violation of the embargo on such assistance and equipment, as called for in United Nations Security Council Resolutions 1556 and 1591, to immediately cease and desist; and

(6) acting under Article 5 of the Charter of the United Nations, including sanctions against individual members of the Government of Sudan’s rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly until such time as the Government of Sudan ceases to engage in attacks against civilians, and associated armed groups, militias, and associated military forces, in the Darfur region, and associated armed groups, in the region, and associated armed groups in the Darfur region, in the region

SEC. 8. CONTINUATION OF RESTRICTIONS.

Restrictions against the Government of Sudan that were imposed or are otherwise applicable pursuant to Executive Order 13067 of November 18, 1997 (62 Fed. Reg. 59989), title III and sections 508, 512, 527, and 569 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 2007 (Public Law 109–447), or any other similar provision of law, should remain in effect and should not be lifted pursuant to such provisions of law until the President transmits to the appropriate congressional committees a certification that the Government of Sudan is acting in good faith:

(1) to peacefully resolve the crisis in the Darfur region of Sudan;

(2) to disarm, demobilize, and demilitarize the Janjaweed and all government-militarized militia;

LITTLE ROCK CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL DESEGREGATION 50TH ANNIVERSARY COMMEMORATIVE COIN ACT

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 358, and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk reads as follows:

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Pryor amendment at the desk be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the measure be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 2675) was agreed to, as follows:

(Purpose: To provide a complete substitute) Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:
SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Little Rock Central High School Desegregation 50th Anniversary Commemorative Coin Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) September 2007, marks the 50th anniversary of the desegregation of Little Rock Central High School.

(2) In 1957, Little Rock Central High was the site of the first major national test for the implementation of the historic decision of the United States Supreme Court in Brown, et al. v. Board of Education of Topeka, et al., 347 U.S. 483 (1954).

(4) The desegregation of Little Rock Central High by the 9 African American students was recognized by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. as such a significant event in the struggle for civil rights that in May 1958 he attended the graduation of the first African American from Little Rock Central High.

(5) A commemorative coin will bring national and international attention to the lasting legacy of this important event.

SEC. 3. COIN SPECIFICATIONS.

(a) Denominations — The Secretary of the Treasury (hereinafter in this Act referred to as the “Secretary”) shall mint and issue not more than 500,000 $1 coins each of which shall—

(1) weigh 26.73 grams;

(2) have a diameter of 1.500 inches; and

(3) contain 90 percent silver and 10 percent copper.

(b) Legal Tender — The coins minted under this Act shall be legal tender, as provided in section 5134(f)(1) of title 31, United States Code, except as provided in subsection (c).

(c) Numismatic Items — For purposes of section 5136 of title 31, United States Code, all coins minted under this Act shall be considered to be numismatic items.

SEC. 4. DESIGN OF COINS.

(a) Design Requirements — The design of the coins minted under this Act shall be emblematic of the desegregation of the Little Rock Central High School and its contribution to civil rights in America.

(b) Designation and Inscriptions — On each coin minted under this Act there shall be—

(1) a designation of the value of the coin;

(2) an inscription of the year “2007”;

(3) inscriptions of the words “Liberty”, “In God We Trust”, “United States of America”, and “E Pluribus Unum”.

(c) Selection — The design for the coins minted under this Act shall be—

(1) selected by the Secretary after consultation with the Commission of Fine Arts; and

(2) reviewed and approved by the Citizens Coinage Advisory Committee established under section 5135 of title 31, United States Code.

SEC. 5. ISSUANCE OF COINS.

(a) Quality of Coins — Coins minted under this Act shall be issued in uncirculated and proof qualities.

(b) Commencement of Issue — The Secretary may issue coins minted under this Act beginning January 1, 2007, except that the Secretary may initiate sales of such coins, without issuance, before such date.

(c) Termination of MInting Authority — No coins shall be minted under this Act after December 31, 2007.

SEC. 6. SALE OF COINS.

(a) Sale Price — Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the coins issued under this Act shall be sold by the Secretary at a price equal to the face value of the coins, the surcharge required under section 5(a) for the coins, and the cost of designing and issuing the coins (including labor and material costs, dies, use of machinery, overhead expenses, and marketing).

(b) Bulk Sales — The Secretary shall make bulk sales of the coins issued under this Act at a reasonable discount.

(c) Prepaid Orders at a Discount —

(1) In General — The Secretary shall accept prepaid orders for the coins minted under this Act before the issuance of such coins.

(2) Discount — Sale prices with respect to prepaid orders under paragraph (1) shall be at a reasonable discount.

SEC. 7. SURCHARGES.

(a) Surcharge Required — All sales shall include a surcharge of $10 per coin.

(b) Distribution — Subject to section 5134(f) of title 31, United States Code, and subsection (d), all surcharges which are received by the Secretary from the sale of coins issued under this Act shall be promptly paid by the Secretary to the Secretary of the Interior for the protection, preservation, and interpretation of resources and stories associated with Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site, including the following:

(1) Site improvements at Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site.

(2) Development of interpretive and education programs and historic preservation projects.

(3) Establishment of cooperative agreements to preserve or restore the historic character of the site and Daisie L. Gatson Bates Drive corridors adjacent to the site.

(c) Limitation — Notwithstanding subsection (a), no surcharge may be included with respect to the issuance under this Act of any coin during a calendar year if, as of the time of such issuance, the issuance of such coin would result in the number of commemorative coin programs issued during such year to exceed the annual 2 commemorative coin program issuance limitation under section 5134(f)(1) of title 31, United States Code (as in effect on the date of enactment of this Act). The Secretary of the Treasury may issue guidance to carry out this subsection.

(d) Creditable Funds — Notwithstanding any other provision of the law and recognizing the unique partnership nature of the Department of Interior and the Little Rock School District at the Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site and the significant contributions made by the Little Rock School District to preserve and maintain the historic character of the high school, any non-Federal funds expended by the school district (regardless of the source of the funds) for improvements at the Little Rock Central High School National Historic Site, to the extent such funds were used for the purposes described in paragraph (1), (2), or (3) of subsection (b), shall be deemed to be credited to pay the requirement of funds from private sources for improvements at the site. The bill (H.R. 335), as amended, was passed.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will return to legislative session.

PRESIDENTIAL $1 COIN ACT OF 2005

Mr. MCCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar 190, S. 1047.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1047) to require the Secretary of the Treasury to mint coins in commemoration of each of the Nation’s past Presidents and their spouses, respectively to improve the circulation of the $1 coin, to create a new bullion coin, and to require the Secretary annually to mint and issue $1 coins which bear any design in effect before the issuance of coins as required under this subsection.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar 190, S. 1047.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will return to legislative session.

The amendment (No. 2676) was agreed to, as follows:

On page 6, strike lines 6 through 11, and insert the following:

“(1) In general.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall continue to mint and issue $1 coins which bear any design in effect before the issuance of coins as required under this subsection (including the so-called ‘Sacagawea-design’ $1 coins).

“(ii) have a design on the reverse selected in accordance with paragraph (2)(A).

“(3) The Secretary shall meet the following design requirements:

“(A) COIN REVERSE.—The design on the reverse shall—

“(i) not to exceed 500,000 in any year and insert ‘bullion’.

“(ii) include the image of the United States; and

“(iii) have inscriptions which will protect the coin from damage due to ordinary handling or storage.

“(B) COIN OBVERSE.—The design on the obverse shall contain—

“(i) basic information about the President and First Spouse and the names of the Presidents and their spouses, respectively to improve the circulation of the $1 coin, to create a new bullion coin, and to require the Secretary annually to mint and issue $1 coins which bear any design in effect before the issuance of coins as required under this subsection.

“(C) Edge-incused inscriptions.—The inscription of the year of minting or issuance of the coin shall be in such quantities, as the Secretary, in the Secretary’s discretion, may prescribe.

“(D) PROTECTIVE COVING.—(A) The so-called ‘Sacagawea-design’ $1 coin having a metallic content as described in subsection (a)(11) and a design specified in paragraph (2) shall be sold in an inexpensive covering that will protect the coin from damage due to ordinary handling or storage.

“(B) Edge.—The protective covering required under subparagraph (A) shall be readily distinguishable from any coin packaging that may be used to protect proof coins minted and issued under this subsection.

“(2) Design requirements.

“(A) In general.—Notwithstanding subsection (d) and in accordance with the provisions of this subsection, $1 coins issued during the period beginning January 1, 2007, and ending upon the termination of the program under paragraph (8), shall—

“(ii) have designs on the obverse selected in accordance with paragraph (2)(A); and

“(3) The Secretary shall meet the following design requirements:

“(B) COIN OBVERSE.—The design on the obverse shall—

“(i) not to exceed 500,000 in any year and insert ‘bullion’.

“(ii) include the image of the United States; and

“(iii) have inscriptions which will protect the coin from damage due to ordinary handling or storage.

“(B) COIN OBVERSE.—The design on the obverse shall—

“(i) not to exceed 500,000 in any year and insert ‘bullion’.

“(ii) include the image of the United States; and “(C) Edge-incused inscriptions.—The inscription of the year of minting or issuance of the coin and the inscriptions ‘E Pluribus Unum’ and ‘In God We Trust’ shall be edge-incused into the coin.

(ii) PRESERVATION OF DISTINGUISHED EDGE.—The edge-incusing of the inscriptions under clause (i) on coins issued under this subsection shall be done in a manner that preserves the edge of the coin so that the denomination of the coin is readily discernible, including by individuals who are blind or visually impaired.

(iii) DESIGN EXCLUDING LIBERTY.—Notwithstanding the second sentence of subsection (d)(1), because of the use of a design bearing the likeness of the Statue of Liberty on the reverse of the coin, the coin shall bear or have imprinted on the reverse of each coin issued under this subsection adequately conveys the concept of Liberty, the inscription of ‘Liberty’ shall not appear on the coins.

(iv) DESIGN EXCLUDING PRESIDENTS.—No coin issued under this subsection may bear the image of a living former or current President, or of any deceased former President during the 2-year period following the date of the death of that President.

(v) DESIGN EXCLUDING PRESIDENTS.—

(A) ORDER OF ISSUANCE.—The coins issued under this subsection commemorating Presidents of the United States shall be issued in the order of the period of service of each President, beginning with President George Washington.

(B) TREATMENT OF PERIOD OF SERVICE.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), only one coin design shall be issued for a period of service of any President, no matter how many consecutive terms of office the President served.

(ii) NONCONSECUTIVE TERMS.—If a President served in 2 or more non-consecutive periods of service, a coin shall be issued under this subsection for each such nonconsecutive period of service.

(vi) LIMITATION ON NUMBER OF 4 PRESIDENTS DURING EACH YEAR OF THE PERIOD.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The designs for the 1 coin each year of the period referred to in paragraph (1) shall be emblematic of 4 Presidents until each President has been so honored, subject to paragraph (2)(E).

(B) NUMBER OF 4 CIRCULATING COIN DESIGNS IN EACH YEAR.—The Secretary shall prescribe, on the basis of such factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, the number of 1 coin each design selected for each year of the period referred to in paragraph (1).

(vii) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—The coins minted under this title shall be legal tender, as provided in section 5103.

(8) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

The coins minted under this title shall be legal tender, as provided in section 5103.

(d) FIRST SPOUSE BULLION COIN PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—During the same period described in subsection (n), the Secretary shall issue under this subsection are emblematic of the spouse of each such President.

(A) have the same diameter as the $1 coins described in subsection (n);

(B) weigh 0.5 ounce;

(C) contain 99.99 percent pure gold.

(3) DESIGN REQUIREMENTS.—

(A) COIN OBVERSE DESIGN.—The design on the obverse of each coin issued under this subsection shall contain—

(i) the name and likeness of a person who was a spouse of such President during the President’s period of service;

(ii) an inscription of the years during which such person was the spouse of a President during the President’s period of service; and

(iii) a number indicating the order of the period of service in which such President served.

(B) COIN REVERSE DESIGN.—The design on the reverse of each coin issued under this subsection shall bear—

(i) images emblematic of the life and work of the First Spouse whose image is borne on the obverse; and

(ii) the inscription ‘United States of America’.

(4) DESIGNATED DENOMINATION.—Each coin issued under this subsection shall bear, on the reverse, in the inscription of the nominal denomination of the coin which shall be ‘$10’.

(5) DESIGN IN CASE OF NO FIRST spouse.—

In the case of any President who served without a spouse—

(i) the image on the obverse of the bullion coin corresponding to the $1 coin relating to such President shall contain image emblematic of the concept of ‘Liberty’;

(ii) as represented on a United States coin minted.

(6) QUALITY OF COINS.—The bullion coins minted under this Act shall be of a design representative of themes of the United States, within 1 year after the month in which the ore from which it is derived was mined.

(7) PRICE OF GOLD.—The Secretary shall pay not more than the average world price for the gold mined under subparagraph (A), other than the cost of any coins or currency that may strike and sell bronze medals that bear the likeness of the bullion coins authorized under this subsection, at a price, size, and weight, and with such inscriptions, as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(8) LEGAL TENDER.—The coins minted under this title shall be legal tender, as provided in section 5103.

(9) TREATMENT AS NUMISMATIC ITEMS.—For purposes of section 5103 and 5106, all coins minted under this subsection shall be considered to be numismatic items.”.

SEC. 104. REMOVAL OF BARRIERS TO CIRCULATION OF $1 COIN.

(1) ACCEPTANCE BY AGENCIES AND INSTITUTIONALITIES.—Beginning January 1, 2006, all agencies and instrumentalities of the United States, and any government instrumentality, including on each vending machine.

(a) The Secretary, in consultation with consumer groups, media outlets, and schools to ensure an adequate amount of news coverage, and other means of increasing public awareness, of the inauguration of the Presidential $1 Coin Program established in subsection (n), that consumers know of the availability of the coin.

“(3) COORDINATION.—The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System and the Secretary shall take all steps necessary to ensure that an adequate supply of $1 coins is available for commerce and collectors at such places and in such quantities as are appropriate by-the-time as the Secretary determines to be appropriate to ensure that a maximum number of $1 coins are issued under this subsection (n), as well as all other circulating coins, from time to time but no less frequently than annually, with a coin users group, which may include—

(i) representatives of coin manufacturers;

(ii) vending machine and other coin acceptor manufacturers;

(iii) vending machine operators and vendors;

(iv) transit officials;

(v) municipal parking officials;

(vi) depository institutions;

(vii) coin and currency handlers;

(viii) armored-car operators;

(ix) car wash operators; and

(x) coin collectors and dealers;

and submit an annual report to the Congress containing—

(i) an assessment of the remaining obstacles to the efficient and timely circulation of coins, particularly $1 coins;

(ii) an assessment of the extent to which the goals of subparagraph (C) are being met; and

(iii) such recommendations for legislative action the Board and the Secretary may determine to be appropriate;

(C) consulting with industry representatives of coin users, distribution facilities, vending machines and other automated coin-accepting devices in the United States to accept coins issued under the Presidential $1 Coin Program established under subsection (n) and any coins bearing any design in effect before the issuance of coins required under subsection (n) (including the so-called "Sacagawea-design" $1 coin), and to include notices on the machines and devices of such acceptability;

(D) ensuring that—

(i) during an introductory period, all institutions that want uninsured supplies of each newly-issued design of $1 coins minted under subsection (n) and any coins bearing any design in effect before the issuance of coins required under subsection (n) (including the so-called "Sacagawea-design" $1 coin), and to include notices on the machines and devices of such acceptability; and

(ii) circulating coins will be available for ordinary commerce in packaging of sizes and types appropriate for such use by ordinary commerce, including rolled coins;

(E) working closely with any agency, instrumentality, system, or entity referred to in paragraph (1) to facilitate compliance with the requirements of such paragraph; and

(F) identifying, analyzing, and overcoming barriers to the robust circulation of $1 coins minted under subsections (n) and (o), including the use of demand prediction, improved methods of distribution and circulation, and improved public education and awareness campaigns.

(4) BULLION DEALERS.—The Director of the United States Mint shall take all steps necessary to ensure that a maximum number of reputable, reliable, and responsible dealers are qualified to offer for sale all bullion coins struck and issued by the United States Mint.

(5) REVIEW OF CO-CIRCULATION.—At such time as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, and after consultation with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Secretary shall notify the Congress of its assessment of issues related to the co-circulation of $1 coins bearing any design, other than the so-called "Sacagawea-design" $1 coin, in effect before the issuance of coins required under subsection (n), including recommendations on the acceptance and use of $1 coins, and make recommendations to the Congress for improving the circulation of $1 coins.

SEC. 105. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) the enactment of this Act will serve to increase the use of $1 coins generally, which will include the so-called "Sacagawea-design" $1 coins that have been and will continue to be minted and issued;

(2) the continued minting and issuance of the so-called "Sacagawea-design" $1 coins will serve as a lasting tribute to the role of women and Native Americans in the history of the United States;

(3) the full circulation potential and cost-savings benefit projections for the $1 coins are not likely to be achieved unless the coins are delivered in ways useful to ordinary commerce;

(4) the coins issued in connection with this title should not be introduced with an overly expensive taxpayer-funded public relations campaign;

(5) in order for the circulation of $1 coins to achieve maximum potential—

(A) the coins should be as attractive as possible; and

(B) the Director of the United States Mint should take all reasonable steps to ensure that all $1 coins minted and issued remain tarnish-free for as long as possible without incurring undue expense; and

(6) if the Secretary of the Treasury determines to include on any $1 coin minted under section 102 of this Act a mark denoting the United States Mint facility at which the coin was struck, such mark should be edge-incised.

TITLE II—BUFFALO GOLD BULLION COINS

SEC. 201. GOLD BULLION COINS.

Section 512 of title 1, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by adding at the end the following:

"(11) A $50 gold coin that is of an appropriate size and thickness, as determined by the Secretary, weighs 1 ounce, and contains 99.99 percent pure gold.," and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

"(O) GOLD BULLION COINS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 6 months after the date of enactment of the Presidential $1 Coin Act of 2005, the Secretary shall commence striking and issuing for sale such number of $50 gold bullion and proof coins as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate, in such quantities, as the Secretary, in the Secretary's discretion, may prescribe.

(2) INITIAL DESIGN.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided under subparagraph (B), the obverse and reverse of the gold bullion coins struck under this subsection during the first year of issuance shall bear the original design by James Earle Fraser, which appear on the 5-cent coin common obverse and reverse to as the 'Buffalo nickel' or the 1912 Type 1.

(B) VARIATIONS.—The coins referred to in subparagraph (A) shall—

(i) have inscriptions of the weight of the coin and the nominal denomination of the coin incused in that portion of the design on the reverse of the coin commonly known as the 'grassy field';

(ii) bear such other inscriptions as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

"(3) SUBSEQUENT DESIGNS.—After the 1-year period described to in paragraph (2), the Secretary may—

(A) after consulting with the Commission of Fine Arts, and subject to the review of the Citizens Coinage Advisory Committee, change the design on the obverse or reverse of gold bullion coins struck under this subsection; and

(B) change the maximum number of coins issued in any year.

"(4) SOURCE OF GOLD BULLION.—IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall acquire gold for the coins issued under this subsection by purchase of gold mined from natural deposits in the United States, or in foreign countries, and sold to the United States, within 1 year after the month in which the ore from which it is derived was mined.

"(B) PRICE OF GOLD.—The Secretary shall pay not more than the average world price for the gold mined under subparagraph (A).

"(5) SALE OF COINS.—Each gold bullion coin issued under this subsection shall be sold for an amount the Secretary determines to be appropriate, but not less than the sum—

(A) the market value of the bullion at the time of sale; and

(B) the cost of designing and issuing the coins, including labor, materials, dies, use of machinery, overhead expenses, marketing, and shipping.

"(6) LEGAL TENDER.—The coins minted under this title shall be legal tender, as provided in section 5134.

"(7) TREATMENT AS NUMISMATIC ITEMS.—For purposes of section 5134 and 5136, all coins minted under this subsection shall be considered to be numismatic.

"(8) PROTECTIVE COVERING.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each bullion coin having a metallic content as described in subsection (1) and a circulation in paragraph (2) shall be sold in an inexpensive covering that will protect the coin from damage due to ordinary handling or storage.

(B) DESIGN.—The protective covering required under subparagraph (A) shall be readily distinguishable from any coin packaging that may be used to protect proof coins minted and issued under this subsection.

TITLE III—ABRAHAM LINCOLN BICENTENNIAL 1-CENT COIN REDESIGN

SEC. 301. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Abraham Lincoln, the 16th President, was one of the Nation’s greatest leaders, demonstrating true courage during the Civil War, one of the greatest crises in the Nation’s history.

(2) Born of humble roots in Hardin County (present-day LaRue County), Kentucky, on February 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln rose to the Presidency through a combination of honesty, integrity, intelligence, and commitment to the United States.

(3) With the belief that all men are created equal, Abraham Lincoln led the effort to free all slaves in the United States.

(4) Abraham Lincoln had a generous heart, with charity toward none, and with charity toward none.

(5) Abraham Lincoln gave the ultimate sacrifice for the country he loved, dying from an assassin’s bullet on April 15, 1865.

(6) America’s民life is a study from studying the life of Abraham Lincoln. For Lincoln’s life is a model for accomplishing the “American dream” through honesty, integrity, egalitarianism, and a lifetime of education.

(7) The year 2009 will be the bicentennial anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

(8) Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, grew to adulthood in Indiana, achieved fame in Illinois, and led the nation in Washington, D.C.
(9) The so-called “Lincoln cent” was introduced in 1909 on the 100th anniversary of Lincoln’s birth, making the obverse design the most enduring on the nation’s coinage.

(10) President Theodore Roosevelt was so impressed by the talent of Victor David Brenner that the sculptor was chosen to design the likeness of President Lincoln for the coin. Adopting a design from a plaque Brenner had prepared earlier.

(11) In the nearly 100 years of production of the “Lincoln cent”, there have been only 2 designs on the reverse: the original, featuring 2 wheat-heads in memorial style enclosing mottoes, and the current representation of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C.

(12) On the occasion of the bicentennial of President Lincoln’s birth and the 100th anniversary of the production of the Lincoln cent, it is entirely fitting to issue a series of 1-cent coins with designs on the reverse that are emblematic of the 4 major periods of President Lincoln’s life.

SEC. 302. REDESIGN OF LINCOLN CENT FOR 2009.

(a) In General.—During the year 2009, the Secretary of the Treasury shall issue 1-cent coins in accordance with the following design specifications:

(i) OBVERSE.—The obverse of the 1-cent coin shall continue to bear the Victor David Brenner likeness of President Abraham Lincoln.

(ii) REVERSE.—The reverse of the coin shall bear 4 different designs each representing a different aspect of the life of Abraham Lincoln, such as—

(A) his birth and early childhood in Kentucky;
(B) his formative years in Indiana;
(C) his professional life in Illinois; and

(D) his presidential life in Washington, D.C.

(b) ISSUANCE OF REDESIGNED LINCOLN CENTS IN 2009.—

(1) ORDER.—The 1-cent coins to which this section applies shall be issued with 1 of the 4 designs referred to in subsection (a)(2) beginning at the start of each calendar quarter of 2009.

(2) NUMBeR.—The Secretary shall prescribe, on the basis of such factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, the number of 1-cent coins that shall be issued with each of the designs selected for each calendar quarter of 2009.

(c) DESIGN seLectioN.—The designs for the coins specified in this section shall be chosen by the Secretary after consultation with the Abraham Lincoln Bicentennial Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts; and

(2) after review by the Citizens Coinage Advisory Committee.

SEC. 303. REDESIGN OF REVERSE OF 1-CENT COINS AFTER 2009.

The design on the reverse of the 1-cent coin proposed under subsection (a)(2) of section 302 shall bear an image emblematic of Presidential Lincoln’s preservation of the United States of America as a single and united country.

SEC. 304. NUMISMATIC PENNIES WITH THE SAME METALLIC CONTENT AS THE 1909 PENNY.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall issue 1-cent coins in 2009 with the exact metallic content as the 1-cent coin contained in 1909 in such number as the Secretary determines to be appropriate for numismatic purposes.

SEC. 305. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the original Victor David Brenner design for the 1-cent coin was a dramatic departure from previous American coinage that should be reproduced using the original form and relief of the likeness of Abraham Lincoln, on the 1-cent coins issued in 2009.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM FURTHER ENHANCED BORROWING AUTHORITY ACT OF 2005

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4133, which was received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4133) to temporarily increase the borrowing authority of the Federal Emergency Management Agency for carrying out the national flood insurance program.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment at the desk be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 2673) was agreed to, as follows:

SEC. 3. EMERGENCY SPENDING.

(a) the third time and passed.

Mr. McCONNELL. So Mr. President, we are near the end of this session.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, DECEMBER 12, 2005

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment under the provisions of H. Con. Res. 307 until 2 p.m. on Monday, December 12. I further ask consent that following the prayer and pledge, the morning hour be deemed expired, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and then the Senate proceed to a period of morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, we have had a busy and productive week, and I believe we are now ready to adjourn for the Thanksgiving break. As I indicated, we will return to business on Monday, December 12. We expect to have some additional conference reports from the House, including the PATRIOT Act conference report. I do not anticipate votes on Monday, December 12 or Tuesday, December 13. However, Senators should be ready for a busy week beginning on Wednesday. That would be December 14. Votes are expected as early as Wednesday morning.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY, DECEMBER 12, 2005, AT 2 P.M.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the provisions of H. Con. Res. 307.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 6:19 p.m., adjourned until Monday, December 12, 2005, at 2 p.m.

INTRODUCING THE SOUTHERN NEVADA READINESS CENTER ACT

HON. JON C. PORTER
OF NEVADA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today, along with my colleagues, Representative Jim Gibbons and Representative Shelley Berkley, to introduce the Southern Nevada Readiness Center Act.

The purpose of the Southern Nevada Readiness Center Act is to convey a 35–50 acres of land from the McCarran Airport Cooperative Management Area Boundary to the Nevada National Guard for the purpose of building the Nevada National Guard Readiness Center. This Readiness Center will allow Henderson and southwest Las Vegas, and will allow the Nevada National Guard to have better access to the facilities and equipment they need for training.

The National Guard is our Nation’s first line of defense in an ever-changing world. As the Guard’s role expands, it is important that they are given the facilities and equipment they need to protect both Nevada and America at large. This Readiness Center will help Nevada’s National Guard to achieve this goal, and I look forward to working with Congress to pass this bill into law.

RECOGNIZING THE 60TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE DISAPPEARANCE OF THE 5 NAVAL AVENGER TORPEDO BOMBERS OF FLIGHT 19

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 16, 2005

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 500, recognizing the 60th anniversary the disappearance of five Avenger warplanes and one of the rescue aircraft sent to retrieve the lost pilots. The six planes flying out of the Naval Air Station of Banan River on December 5, 1945 contained a total of 27 men. These brave men have never been recovered. Their planes and all of their equipment have never been found, either.

As an interesting point, the disappearance of the planes happened somewhere off the eastern coast of Florida. The strange disappearance of these aircraft was the first incident in the lore of what became the story of the Bermuda Triangle. To date, the incident which we are acknowledging today is still the most cited example of strange occurrences in the Bermuda Triangle.

Mr. Speaker, we should remember the bravery of these 27 men by acknowledging the anniversary of their disappearance. It is a tragedy that for so many years, the cause of the disappearance has remained unknown, leaving the families of the fallen pilots without answers.

For over 225 years, the freedom of America has been maintained by the fighting men and women of our Nation’s Armed Forces. These courageous soldiers, sailors and marines put their lives on the line every day to preserve the safety and security of our Nation. In honoring the 27 men lost on December 5, 1945, we also honor the hundreds of thousands of men and women of America’s Armed Forces whose heroic actions go unheralded every day.

In passing this resolution, we also honor the families of the fallen pilots, whose sacrifices on behalf of our country will never be forgotten.

I strongly support H. Res. 500, and I encourage my colleagues to do the same.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. JIM KOLBE OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, on November 16, I missed the vote H. Con. Res. 268, expressing the sense of the Congress regarding oversight of the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (#594). I intended to vote “aye.”

CONGRATULATING DR. ULYSSES S. CURRY

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dr. Ulysses S. Curry of Fresno, as the honored recipient of the Community Health Champion Award from West Fresno Health Care Coalition.

Dr. Curry has dedicated over 30 years of continuous medical service to Fresno and continues to devote his time to the community. Ever a generous doctor, Ulysses has donated much of his time to assist in the progression of the medical community in the Central Valley.

Upon graduation from Central High School in Omaha, Nebraska, Dr. Curry immediately attended the University of Kansas in 1939. Ulysses went on to Howard University to pursue his Master’s Degree, followed by Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tennessee from which he attained his medical degree. He did his internship at Saint Agnes Hospital in Raleigh, North Carolina immediately following medical school.

It was a residency program that originally brought Dr. Curry to California. After completing his residency in pediatrics at Fresno County General Hospital in Fresno, Dr. Curry moved to Denver, Colorado to finish his residency in internal medicine at Denver Veterans Administrative Hospital. Dr. Ulysses Curry permanently returned to Fresno and opened his General/Family Practice at which he continues to practice medicine.

Dr. Curry is affiliated with many hospitals in the Central Valley, such as Fresno Community Hospital, Clovis Community Hospital and Serrra Community. Ulysses also has memberships with many professional medical associations. He is an active member of Fresno-Madera Medical Society, John Hale Medical Forum, California Medical Association as well as a lifetime membership to the California Academy of Family Physicians and the American Academy of Family Physicians.

It is obvious from his extensive career that Dr. Ulysses S. Curry is worthy of such recognition from the West Fresno Health Care Coalition. It is with great pleasure that I stand today and congratulate Dr. Curry for all of his achievements.

HONORING RICHARD H. SHAPIRO

HON. ROBERT W. NEY
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Richard H. Shapiro, Executive Director of the Congressional Management Foundation, CMF. Since 1988, Rick has tirelessly provided important and needed services in support of the institution of Congress. As Executive Director, Rick has become a leading expert on improving operations in the U.S. Congress. He has utilized that expertise in support of individual Member offices, in the training of literally thousands of Congressional staff, in providing research and best-practices information to House Administration, Committee and Member offices, and in writing landmark books and studies on Congressional management.

Mr. Speaker, Rick’s involvement with Congress began in 1978, when he was a staff investigator at the former U.S. Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations. While investigating Department of Defense procurement practices, Rick came to understand the importance of Congressional oversight. Effective oversight requires effective management, and as Rick came to understand this relationship, he came to appreciate the importance of good management in Congress.

Following graduate school, Rick returned to Congress as the Staff Director of the former House Post Office and Civil Service Subcommittee on Investigations, and subsequently as Staff Director at the House Small Business Subcommittee on Regulation and Business Opportunities. In those positions, he managed congressional staff and workload, laying the groundwork for his move to the Congressional Management Foundation as Deputy Executive Director in 1988. One year later, he became its Executive Director.
Mr. Richard H. Shapiro.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor for me to recognize a leader of our police force and a worthy leader of our community. Mr. Jerry Dyer has devoted his entire professional career to public service in Fresno and the variety of roles in which he has served. As Police Chief, he has led the Fresno Police Department to be a model of excellence and has promoted public service as a means of improving the lives of all residents of the City of Fresno.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Police Chief Jerry Dyer of Fresno, California for receiving 2005 Excell- ence in Public Service Award. The Fresno Bee, The Fresno Business Council and the Maddy Institute at California State University, Fresno sponsored this prestigious award.

A dedicated advocate of justice, Jerry Dyer has used the forums of public service to improve the lives of our community. The honor of receiv- ing this award is well deserved and well deserved.

Mr. Dyer received his Bachelor’s Degree in Criminology from California State University, Fresno and his Master’s Degree in Management from California Polytechnic University at Pomona. He is a graduate of the California Command College, where his peers chose him as the Most Inspirational Student.

Chief Dyer has served with the Fresno Police Department for 26 years. His hire decision to pursue public service did not go unrecognized and on August 1, 2001 he was named Chief of Police. During his tenure as Police Chief, the Fresno community has experienced three consecutive years of decrease in crime, which resulted in a 53-year-low in crime for the City.

Traffic safety has also been made a top priority of the Fresno Police Department since the appointment of Mr. Dyer as the Chief of Police; guided by the wisdom of Chief Dyer, the Fresno Police Department has received national and state recognition for its traffic safety efforts, which include the prestigious California Highway Patrol Commissioner’s Award. The department has also received many other honors, such as first place in the International Association of Chiefs of Police “Law Enforcement Chief’s Challenge” and “Impaired Driving Enforcement Award,” as well as three consecutive first place awards in the “California Law Enforcement Chiefs Challenge.”

Chief Jerry Dyer has worked tirelessly to make the Fresno Police Department one of the state’s outstanding law enforcement organizations. He has initiated rigorous processes to have the Department nationally accredited through the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies. In 2005 the Fresno Police Department was awarded accreditation status by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement agencies in the United States. He has earned this honor.

Chief Jerry Dyer personifies a hero in every aspect of the term. His sacrifices and belief in justice are admirable. The community of Fresno is honored to have a loyal, honest, and trustworthy leader of our police force and we applaud his dedication to providing a safe environment for our community.

Mr. Speaker, for 16 years, Rick has worked tirelessly with staff on both sides of the aisle to improve the management of Congress. I believe that his contribution to the functioning of this body has been extraordinarily valuable, and my purpose in rising today is to express my appreciation for his years of good work.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great honor for me to recognize one of the most important contributors to the effective management of Congress. Mr. Richard H. Shapiro.

CONGRATULATING POLICE CHIEF JERRY DYER

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Police Chief Jerry Dyer of Fresno, California for receiving the 2005 Excellence in Public Service Award. The Fresno Bee, The Fresno Business Council and the Maddy Institute at California State University, Fresno sponsored this prestigious award.

A dedicated advocate of justice, Jerry Dyer has devoted his entire professional career to safeguarding his community. The honor of receiving this award is well deserved and well deserved.

Mr. Dyer received his Bachelor’s Degree in Criminology from California State University, Fresno and his Master’s Degree in Management from California Polytechnic University at Pomona. He is a graduate of the California Command College, where his peers chose him as the Most Inspirational Student.

Chief Dyer has served with the Fresno Police Department for 26 years. His hire decision to pursue public service did not go unrecognized and on August 1, 2001 he was named Chief of Police. During his tenure as Police Chief, the Fresno community has experienced three consecutive years of decrease in crime, which resulted in a 33-year-low in crime for the City.

CONGRATULATING THE CONCORD HIGH SCHOOL MARCHING MINUTEMEN ON THEIR SECOND IN THREE YEARS CLASS B STATE BAND CHAMPIONSHIP

HON. CHRIS CHOCOLA OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. CHOCOLA. Mr. Speaker, I usually am not one to experience deja vu, but today I find myself in a familiar situation. Two years ago, I rose to congratulate the Concord Marching Minutemen on their 2003 Class B Indiana State School Music Association Championship.

Today, I rise again to congratulate them on winning their second ISSMA championship in the past three years. On October 22, 2005, these young men and women won the 2005 Class B state marching band championship, edging out nine other competitors. This is the band’s third championship, and in 2002 and 2004, they were state runner-up.

The “All Aboard,” train-themed program included “Tempered Steel” by composer Charles Young, and classic jazz hits “Take the ‘A’ Train” and “Happy Go Lucky Local” from Duke Ellington and Billy Strayhorn.

I’d like to congratulate drum majors Ashley Hardy, Jeremy Parker, and Laura Pauwels for leading their band to victory.

Schnaas, Andrew Stevens, Kurt Tahara, Amber VanderReyden, Blake Varab, Mark Wyrick; Bass: Ben Jarvis; Sound Tech: Dawn Supper; Color Guard: Elise Arvidson, Marlene Arvidson, Tiffany Baker, Karen Berndt, Veronica Boggs, Heather Dean, Mikala Ellsworth, Ashley Elsasser, Laken Fordyce, DeAnna Jackson, Danielle Johnson, Lianne Johnson, Brittany Kauffman, Yolo Lopez-Perez, Alyssa Lung, Anne Lypka, Emily Mathieu, Jessica Meade, Alisa Peffley, Julie Reusser, Evanna Rodriguez, Brittany Rushing, Jessica Scott, Rachel Sirinek, Madeline Vallee, Krista Weaver, Megan Whitacre, Chellie Zou, Sara Zou.

The people behind the performers also deserve a note of congratulations. They include Director of Music Gay Burton, Assistant Band Directors Scott Spradling, Bryan Golden, April Oppenheim, and Steve Peterson, Dance & Color Guard instructor Colleen Molnar, Sound Technician Scott Preheim, and Percussion Specialist Derek Felix. Your hard work leading up to and throughout the season, planning the program, scheduling practices, and leading the band in competitions have been rewarded through their accomplishment. Shirley Dyer also deserves a note of thanks for helping make things run smoothly.

Mr. Speaker, as the parent of two teenagers myself, I would be remiss if I didn’t also acknowledge the parents that help the band run efficiently. Your dedication to your children shows through on the field of competition in their award-winning performance.

Again, on behalf of very proud parents and the citizens of the Second Congressional District, I would like to congratulate the Concord Marching Bandmen on their Class B State championship.

CONGRATULATING HARRY ARMSTRONG

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Clovis City Council member Harry Armstrong of Clovis, California for re-electing the Rose Ann Vuich Ethical Leadership Award. The Fresno Bee, The Fresno Business Council and The Maddy Institute at California State University, Fresno sponsor this prestigious award.

Harry Armstrong was born in Merced, California. Upon graduation from Merced Union High School he joined the American Armed Forces and fought in the Korean War. He is married to Jeanine and has three children: Tom, an attorney; Jim, a businessman; and Megan, a teacher.

The basic characteristics to be considered as a candidate for the Rose Ann Vuich Ethical Leadership Award are integrity, strength of character, exemplary ethical behavior, ability to build consensus, serving the public interest and vision for enhancing the community. Mr. Armstrong embodies every one of these characteristics and has set a standard by which all future public servants should use as a guide in their own service to the community.

Harry Armstrong is noted as standing firm against forces that would sweep aside the freedoms and ethics of our democratic form of government. Never did he blink or stray from his standards and beliefs in the process of public involvement in honest government. He has shown his strength of character in steadily standing by his morals and values.

A member of the Clovis City Council since 1970, Harry is the longest serving council member in the State of California. He was elected Mayor of Clovis on four occasions. Mr. Armstrong’s leadership is not limited, however, to the Clovis City Council. He has also served on numerous boards and committees, President of the League of California Cities, Chair of the Fresno County Transportation Authority and the Clovis Planning Commission.

Mr. Armstrong’s ability to stand up for what is right and encourage others to do the same is what has given him the continued, never straying, support of the community. His history of involvement and knowledge has created an environment for others to listen and learn.

The leadership and commitment Mr. Armstrong has shown for the community has for Harry Armstrong and stand to show our appreciation.

FREEDOM FOR RICARDO RAMOS PEREIRA

HON. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak about Ricardo Ramos Pereira, a political prisoner in totalitarian Cuba.

Mr. Ramos Pereira is a member of the November 30 Democratic party and a member of the pro-democracy opposition in totalitarian Cuba. Unfortunately, those who believe that freedom, liberty, and the right to worship are the birthright of all men and women are targeted by the tyrant’s machinery of repression.

According to an article for the Information Bridge Cuba Miami (IBCM), Mr. Ramos Pereira was arrested on January 25, 2002 for participating in a mass offered on behalf of all the political prisoners in Cuba. IBCM also reports that on February 28, 2002, Mr. Ramos Pereira was arrested for simply participating in a civic activity at the Catholic Church of the Passionists. More than 2 years later, in a sham trial, he was sentenced to 5 years in the totalitarian gulag.

Let me be very clear, Mr. Ramos Pereira is currently languishing in the deplaved conditions of the totalitarian gulag for his belief in freedom. The U.S. State Department describes the conditions in the gulag as, “harsh and life threatening.” The State Department also reports that police and prison officials beat, neglect, isolate, and deny medical treatment to detainees and prisoners. It is a crime of the highest order that people are imprisoned in these nightmarish conditions simply for their belief in democracy and freedom of religion.

Mr. Ramos Pereira is one of the many heroes of the peaceful Cuban democratic movement who are locked in the dungeons of the dictatorship for their beliefs. They are symbols of freedom and democracy who will always be remembered when freedom reigns again in Cuba. President Bush addressed those brave men and women who spread the light of freedom in the darkest corners of the world when he said, in his second inaugural address, “Democratic reformers facing repression, prisoners like Mr. Ramos Pereira can know: America sees you for who you are: the future leaders of your free country.”

Mr. Speaker, it is a profound embarrassment for mankind that the world stands by in silence and acquiescence while political prisoners are systematically tortured in totalitarian gulags. My Colleagues, we must demand the immediate and unconditional release of Ricardo Ramos Pereira and every political prisoner in totalitarian Cuba.

A TRIBUTE TO SGT. 1ST CLASS JAMES “JIM” S. OCHSNER

HON. MIKE MCINTYRE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. MCINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Sgt. 1st Class James “Jim” S. Ochsner of Hope Mills, North Carolina, for serving his country valiantly with the 2nd Battalion, 3rd Special Forces Group (Airborne) at Fort Bragg, NC in Operation Enduring Freedom.

On November 15, 2005, Sgt. 1st Class Ochsner sacrificed his life when an improvised explosive device was detonated while traveling near Lawara, Afghanistan. He was courageously serving his fourth tour of duty in Afghanistan, and our prayers and heartfelt thanks go to his family in this time of grief.

At an early age, Jim had a desire to serve in the military. His father was a Green Beret who served two tours of duty in Vietnam. Jim was proud of his father’s service and commitment and strived to be just like him. In 1987, he enlisted in the U.S. Army as an artilleryman and served three years in Bamberg Germany with the 2nd Battalion 14th Field Artillery. Jim later served in the 82nd Airborne and completed a tour in South Korea before serving as an Airborne Special Forces Soldier. In 2001, he graduated from the Special Forces Operations and Intelligence Course and served as an intelligence specialist with the 2nd Battalion, 3rd Special Forces Group.

Jim is a highly decorated soldier, receiving the Bronze Star Medal with oak leaf cluster, the Army Commendation Medal for valor, the Army Commendation Medal for service, the Army Achievement Medal, the Good Conduct Medal and the National Defense Service Medal. In addition, he received the Afghanistan Campaign Medal, the Global War on Terrorism Medal, the Korean Defense Service Medal, the NCO Professional Development Ribbon, the Army Service Ribbon, the Overseas Service Ribbon, the Kuwait Liberation Medal (Saudi Arabia), the Kuwait Liberation Medal (Kuwait), the Combat Infantryman Badge, the Expert Infantry Badge, the Parachutist Badge, the Air Assault Badge, the Driver and Mechanic Badges, and the Special Forces Tab.

Jim loved his family, and he is survived by his parents, Ann and Nancy; his sister Megan, who heard from him often during his deployments. He is also survived by his parents, Robert and Sandra, of Beach Park, Illinois, and his brother MSG Robert Ochsner II.
As a member of the U.S. Army, Jim dedicated his career to defending the values this nation holds dear. By risking his life to ensure the safety of others, John made the ultimate sacrifice. His valiant actions and steadfast service remind us of the gratitude we feel toward him and all the other servicemen and women who have lost their lives serving as guardians of this great country. John was indeed a man of courage and integrity.

Mr. Speaker, may the memory of Sgt. 1st Class James “Jim” Ochsner live on in our hearts, and may God’s strength and peace be with his family.

CONGRATULATING MR. VERNON CONRAD

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Mr. Vernon Conrad of Reedley, California, as the honored recipient of the Greater Fresno Area Chamber of Commerce “Agriculturist of the Year” award.

The Greater Fresno Area Chamber of Commerce recognized an individual who exemplifies leadership and integrity in the Central Valley’s agricultural business community every year at their awards luncheon. This year the organization could not have chosen an individual who is more deserving of this prestigious honor.

Mr. Conrad is a fourth generation Californian and his family has deep roots in east Valley agriculture; dating back to the late 1800s. He is a lifelong resident of Fresno County as a Reedley community member where he grows grapes and tree fruits. It is from this background that Vernon emerged as a respected agriculturist in the community. His leadership with the Fresno County Farm Bureau and Fresno County Board of Supervisors sets the bar high for those who follow in his footsteps.

Mr. Conrad served two terms as Fresno County Farm Bureau President and during his time with the Farm Bureau Mr. Conrad worked tirelessly to promote the Valley’s agriculture agenda on a national level. He traveled to Washington, DC twice to testify before Congress on some of the Farm Bureau’s major issues, such as concerns over water and acreage.

His concerted efforts on policy and advocacy eventually led Mr. Conrad down another path of activism as a Fresno County Supervisor. As a three term board member, Vernon, tackled various county dilemmas with renewed energy each time a new problem emerged. He focused on improving the efficiency of Fresno County operations, dealt with funding challenges and land use and zoning issues.

As if overcoming obstacles faced by the county and the farming community wasn’t enough, Vernon also found time to serve on various committees and associations to work actively with agriculture groups. He was a board member of the Alta Irrigation District, Kings River Conservation District, Regional Water Quality Control Board and the Kings River Water Association. Through his work with these organizations, Mr. Conrad earned a seat representing California on the American Farm Bureau Federation’s Natural Resources and Water Committee, on which he served as chair for five years.

Vernon Conrad’s extensive efforts as an advocate of agriculture and the community have earned him the respect and admiration of his colleagues. It is with great pleasure that I stand today to congratulate Mr. Conrad for all of his achievements, and thank him for his commitment to our Valley.

A TRIBUTE TO PASTOR KENNY FOREMAN

HON. ZOE LOFGREN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Ms. LOFGREN of California. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to recognize the achievements and life of Pastor Kenny Foreman. I’ve had the privilege of knowing Pastor Foreman for many years, and can personally attest to his lasting legacy of achievement through selfless ministry. His is the epitome of a life dedicated to serving others.

Pastor Foreman has been in ministry for over 50 years and has served as pastor of the Cathedral of Faith in San Jose, California for 35 years. Originally from Crowley, Louisiana, he has built the Church from just a few members to 10,000, offering over 70 vital ministries to meet the needs of the community.

Born the youngest of three children to Han- sel and Mabel Foreman in Crowley, Louisiana, he was on the road ministering full-time as an evangelist by age 17. Pastor Foreman married Shirley Lowry in 1957, who has been his partner in commitment to ministry. Later, they would be joined by their two sons, Ken and Kurt, who are also part of the Cathedral of Faith team.

In 1965 he came to San Jose as the Pastor of The Friendly Bible Church, and soon after produced a weekly half-hour television program entitled, “Kenny Foreman Presents Abundant Living,” which was syndicated nationally. Today, Kenny Foreman is the only local minister and programmer who has remained on the air for 35 years. Throughout these years he has never received any income for his television ministry; all financial support received is funneled back into the operations of the ministry.

It soon became evident from the growth that the church would have to build. Thus, the Cathedral of Faith, a sanctuary that would seat nearly 3,000 people and its accompanying support structures, was conceived in Pastor Foreman’s spirit. Eventually, the Grand Opening of the Cathedral of Faith was celebrated on March 15, 1981.

Pastor Foreman and Cathedral of Faith have an absolutely amazing record of community involvement. The work of the church has exploded into over 70 active Ministries including Reaching Out, a food assistance program which operates from a 16,000 foot distribution complex serving 50,000 families annually, and providing food for 200,000 people; California Youth Outreach, originally founded as Break-out Prison Outreach in 1982 in order to meet the needs of young men and women that had fallen prey to gangs and drugs; it also serves on the Mayor’s Advisory Council; and Chaplaincy Ministry a program consisting of over 200 trained Chaplains who visit rest homes and convalescent hospitals each week.

Pastor Foreman’s lifelong commitment to service has been honored by many organizations, and I am delighted to offer my heartfelt congratulations and gratitude to Pastor Kenny Foreman on his 40th Ministry Anniversary at the Cathedral of Faith in San Jose, California and to call Kenny Foreman and Shirley friends.

HONORING CAPTAIN MICHAEL NOBLE

HON. KENNY MARCHANT
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. MARCHANT. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to take the opportunity to honor Captain Michael Noble. Born into a military family in Dallas, Texas in 1977, Mike Noble has experienced much in his short lifetime. His father, MG William Noble (USA, retired) and mother, Imogene, are no strangers to serving their country. William was a founding member of the 101st Airborne and served the division throughout World War II.

Mike graduated from St. Mark’s High School in 1997, and then went on to the University of Texas. He entered the Army ROTC program and graduated with honors in 1998. Upon receiving his commission he went into Military Intelligence School and, subsequently, the Army Language Institute. After completing jump school, Mike followed in his father’s footsteps and was assigned to the 902nd MI group of the 101st Airborne, a special honor.

Mike served with the NATO and U.N. peace-keeping forces in Kosovo. On September 11, 2001, Mike was working with NATO Command in Brussels. When he received news of the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington, D.C., he was immediately flown back to the United States, going to work at the Pentagon while it was actually still on fire. He would not leave the building for 17 days.

Most recently Mike was active in Afghanistan and involved with the liberation of Iraq. He was severely wounded on April 13, 2003 and medically retired from the military. I am proud to employ this two-time Purple Heart recipient as the military and veterans affairs liaison in my Irving office. His dedication to his country is commendable; Mike Noble is a true American hero and an inspiration to us all.

IN MEMORY OF MR. PAUL C. WHITE

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Mr. Paul C. White of Fresno, California. He is survived by his beloved wife of 38 years Sheila White, their six children: Paul II, Crystal, LaShelly, JePah, Brandon, and Bryson, and his five grandchildren; Paul III, Asia, Kennedy, Darion, and Jordan.

As a past Assistant Executive Director for the Fresno County Economic Opportunities Commission, Paul is remembered by all who knew him for his commendable service to the
Mr. White learned from personal experience what certain sacrifices economically disadvantaged people are forced to make. He was born in Oklahoma City in 1947 as one of six children, raised by their mother in a house without running water or electricity. Paul's mother passed on when he was 11 and his grandparents raised all six children in Fresno.

Not to be overcome by tragedy, Paul graduated from Edison High School in 1962 as a star basketball player and school leader. He immediately began his college career at Fresno City College, where he received his Associate in Arts degree in 1968. Dedicated to being better equipped in life, Paul furthered his education at California State University, Fresno where he received his Bachelor of Arts in Public Administration and his Masters in Public Administration.

Paul always made sure everyone around him appreciated the many wonders life had to offer. In January of 1983, Paul had complete kidney failure. In 1986 his then 14-year-old daughter LaShell had complete kidney failure as well. That same year, both Paul and LaShell received a kidney transplant from the same donor. To think of the generosity of strangers during their time of loss, was very humbling to the family. Paul and his loved ones endured incredible health hardships, which allowed for his appreciation of life to grow and be passed on to the many lives he touched. Paul’s family triumphed over dialysis as well as kidney transplants making their ties even stronger with each other.

Mr. White has served the Fresno community for over 30 years. His record of community service is quite long and includes membership in many different organizations. He was a member of the United Network for Organ Sharing, Minority Affairs Committee, California Donor Transplant Network, California Department of Health Services and Leadership Committee for the Black Infant Health Project. Paul was on the Board of Directors for West Fresno Health Care Coalition, Inc, the Marjaree Mason Center and the Boy Scouts of America.

His contributions have not gone unnoticed; some of his most notable awards include the Fresno Metro Ministry Award for “Living Out the Values of Justice in our Community,” State of California Lieutenant Governor Cruz M. Bustamante, “Commendation,” California State Senate and Assembly “Certificate of Recognition,” California Transplant Donor Network “Excellence Award,” and United Black Men of Fresno “President’s Award” and “Certificate of Appreciation.”

It goes without saying that Mr. Paul White was a positive influence in this community. His commitment to help those in need will forever live on in the lives of the people he so graciously touched.

CONGRESSIONAL TRIBUTE TO SERGEANT DENNIS KOZIKOWSKI

HON. BART STUPAK
OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding member of the Menominee County Sheriff's Department, Sergeant Dennis Kozikowski. This year, Sgt. Kozikowski retired as the Road Patrol Sergeant for the Menominee County Sheriff's Department. During his retirement, he plans to continue another passion of his—working to promote veteran rights. Sgt. Kozikowski's 30 years as a law enforcement officer and his leadership for veteran causes stands as a shining example to us all.

Born to John and Lilian Kozikowski in Menominee, Michigan, Sgt. Kozikowski graduated from Menominee High School in 1965. He immediately joined the Army and requested to serve in the Vietnam War. By completing his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri, Sgt. Kozikowski spent time serving at posts in Alabama and California before receiving his orders to serve in Vietnam.

Sgt. Kozikowski's 15-month tour in Vietnam impacted him in a way that changed his life. Sgt. Kozikowski earned the Army Commendation Medal, two Air Medals with "V" Devices for Valor Under Fire, Air Medals with 19 Oak Leaf Clusters because of 2000 aerial combat hours, Medal of Good Conduct, and medals awarded by the Republic of Vietnam including the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with a Bronze Star, the Vietnam National Defense Ribbon and Vietnam Campaign Medal. Even as a decorated soldier, Sgt. Kozikowski recalls struggling to adjust upon his return. Although this transition served as a challenging time in his life, he credits this ability to eventually adjust back to civilian life as an experience that enabled him reach out to other veterans.

Sgt. Kozikowski found his calling in 1975 under the direction of colleague and mentor Sheriff Dean R. Burns. Sheriff Burns urged Dennis Kozikowski to consider law enforcement as a career based on his expert military training and courage under fire. Sgt. Kozikowski joined the Menominee County Sheriff's Department where he would spend the next 30 years in skilled positions such as the Marine Patrol, a Department Diver, Snow Patrol, and with Marine Safety. Sgt. Kozikowski received many letters of commendation for critical incidents he handled while a member of the Sheriff's Department.

When asked to talk about his brave deeds during his service, Sheriff's Department Sgt. Kozikowski humbly recalls a story of a Vietnam Veteran who had become frustrated with his inability to adjust to civilian life. The man went into a local bar and began shooting. Although the patrons inside were not injured, the 'emergency response units concluded that force would be necessary to remove the armed man. Sgt. Kozikowski bravely entered the building, disarmed the man and took him into custody peacefully.

Sgt. Kozikowski said that he was successful in communicating with the frustrated veteran because of the common factors they shared. Sgt. Kozikowski not only used that common factor to help talk him out of the threatening incident, but after the fact he helped the veteran file a disability claim to receive veterans benefits. Noting the challenges veterans face upon return from Vietnam, Sgt. Kozikowski understood that he had a knack for reaching out to veterans to help them understand that resources were available to assist their needs. From that one incident, Sgt. Kozikowski began a decade of advocacy on behalf of veterans on a variety of issues. As a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 1887 and a lifetime member of the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Chapter 25 serving as the Legislative Chair, Sgt. Kozikowski works to promote veteran rights for better benefits.

This year, Sgt. Kozikowski was forced to retire due to a spinal injury that has made his challenging work in law enforcement nearly impossible. A testament to his dedication to public service, he will tell you that this day came far too soon as he is sure he could serve for another 30 years easily. However, Sgt. Kozikowski looks forward to spending additional time with his two sons, John and Joe, who have followed valiantly in their father's footsteps. John as a member of the 82nd Airborne during Desert Storm; and Joe as a Carney-Nadeau Volunteer Fire Department and a member of the Menominee County Rescue Squad. Sgt. Kozikowski also looks forward to spending time with his two granddaughters, Kaitlin and Hanna, as well as a new grandchild on the way!

Although Sgt. Kozikowski's career with the Menominee County Sheriff's Department has ended, he will continue to serve the public as a true advocate for veteran rights. In fact, he is currently lobbying Congress to support legislation to provide mandatory funding for veterans health care. He has also been encouraging the members of veterans' organizations to write letters to Congress urging their support.

On a personal note, Mr. Speaker, as a former Michigan State Police Trooper myself, I have had the pleasure of knowing Sgt. Kozikowski over the years. As a resident of Menominee County, I have always trusted his dedicated service to the people of our community. I am also comforted to know that such a powerful advocate is working to strengthen veteran's legislation for our men and women of past and present wars.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the House of Representatives to join me in thanking Sergeant Dennis Kozikowski for his 30 years of service to the people of the State of Michigan and in wishing him well in his retirement endeavors. His commitment to community and to justice has been a model of public service. Dennis will be missed by the members of the Menominee County Sheriff's Department and the people he so competently and bravely served.

CONGRATULATING DR. NOEL SMITH

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dr. Noel Smith of Fresno, California as the honored recipient of the Community Health Champion Award from West Fresno Health Care Coalition. Dr. Noel Smith has been an outstanding contributor in the Fresno community for the past 50 years and found a place in the hearts of all who know him.

Noel was born in La Brea, Trinidad in the West Indies. He attended Howard University in Washington, DC, where he received both his Bachelor’s and Medical Degree. He was a Magna Cum Laude graduate and a member of the Honor Society.

His professional desire to reside in the State of California and his ambition to train in a public hospital led him to Fresno in 1951 where he interned at Fresno’s University Medical Center.

After Dr. Noel Smith completed his internship, he completed his residency at the University Medical Center in Obstetrics-gynecology. Although he joined the private sector in 1958, Noel never stopped giving back to his community. He has been an active member on various committees such as the Supervisors Minority Adoption Committee, Model Cities Board Committee and Mayors Bi-Racial Committee.

Dr. Noel Smith has received many honors for his extraordinary public service to the community of Fresno. The 1990 Health Award from the NAAACP Fresno Board, Portraits of Success Award from KSEE channel 24, the United Black Men Apple Award and the Education from the Black Men United are just a few of the honors he has received.

Dr. Smith understands the power of education; for this reason he and his wife have made considerable educational contributions to the community. They founded the Children-A-Go-Go at Carver Middle School in Fresno, “Young Men and Young Women of Tomorrow” at Bethune Elementary School of Fresno and made various presentations at local High Schools on “Developmental Education.”

We could go on and on about the remarkable contributions that Dr. Noel Smith has made to his grateful community. He is loved by family and friends, appreciated by his patients and admired by his colleagues. It is with great pleasure that I stand today and congratulate Dr. Noel Smith for all of his achievements.

COLLABORATIVE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE NATIONAL PARK SERVICE AND SPRINGFIELD TECHNICAL COMMUNITY COLLEGE

HON. RICHARD E. NEAL
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I am introducing legislation today authorizing the National Park Service to enter into a cooperative agreement with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts on behalf of Springfield Technical Community College. Over 30 years ago, in 1974, my predecessor, Congressman Edward Boland, and Senator Edward Kennedy were successful in creating the Springfield Armory National Historic Site. This legislation set in motion three decades of cooperation between the National Park Service, which manages the Armory Museum, and Springfield Technical Community College. The Park Service and the college are neighbors that together occupy the National Historic Site.

Let me tell you a little bit about this site. The Springfield Armory was the first national armory in the United States. In fact, the armory was founded in 1777, when the site was selected as the location for laboratory specializing in the development, production and storage of guns and powder during the American Revolution.

Following the American Revolutionary War, in 1794, Congress officially established the Springfield Armory. George Washington visited the site, which was also the site of Shay's Rebellion. Physically, the Armory abuts Springfield's historic State Street, the city's main east-west thoroughfare, which was Ben Franklin's famed mail route. For much of the 19th century, the Springfield Armory developed, manufactured and supplied most of the small arms used by the United States armed services. The Springfield Armory National Historic Site has a rich heritage that is an integral part of our nation's history.

In 1968, the Armory was deactivated as a military installation and in 1974, Congress established the National Historic Site. The National Park Service has operated the Armory Museum on these grounds, and it houses the most outstanding historically significant arms collection in the country.

The future and fate of both the Armory Museum and Springfield Technical Community College are inextricably linked. Many of the buildings which house the college are actually located on the college’s property, not on National Park Service land, although a visitor to the campus would not be able to tell where NPS property ends and college property begins. This land outside the portion of the site administered by NPS is known as the “Preservation Control Area.” These college-owned buildings are subject to strict architectural and preservation rules. Many of these historic buildings owned by the college must be preserved and maintained pursuant to standards defined by the Secretary of the Interior. But these historic buildings are in a state of great disrepair and the college cannot easily move to maintain and preserve them absent the full participation of the Park Service. Not only does this deterioration of the facilities hurt the college, but also undermines the attractiveness of the National Park Service area, including the Armory Museum.

My legislation seeks to recognize and update the partnership that has existed over these many years between the Park Service and the college by authorizing the Park Service to enter into a cooperative agreement with the Commonwealth. It allows for the National Park Service to provide financial assistance to the College for the purpose of maintaining, preserving, renovating and rehabilitating the many historic structures within the Springfield Armory National Historic Site. The Park Service frequently enters into such cooperative agreements where the object of the agreement is of direct benefit to the Park Service and its mission, or for other public purposes. If these great historic buildings on the site can be renovated with the assistance of the Park Service, it will bring forward a more vibrant and attractive Historic Site and Museum. The Park Service and the college will be able to partner on many joint educational ventures that utilize these revitalized historic facilities.

The Springfield Armory National Historic Site is a treasure to the city of Springfield, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and to the Nation. The site is in desperate need of renovation, and enactment of this legislation is the first step towards ensuring the preservation of a site, which has played so vital a role in America’s history.

INTRODUCING WE THE PEOPLE

HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce the We the People Act. The We the People Act forbids Federal courts, including the Supreme Court, from adjudicating cases concerning State laws and policies relating to religious liberties or ‘‘privacy,’’ including cases involving sexual practices, sexual orientation or reproduction. The We the People Act also protects the traditional definition of marriage from judicial activism by ensuring the Supreme Court cannot abuse the equal protection clause to redefine marriage. In order to hold Federal judges accountable for their powers, the act also provides that a judge who violates the act’s limitations on judicial power shall either be impeached by Congress or removed by the President, according to rules established by the Congress.

The United States Constitution gives Congress the authority to establish and limit the jurisdiction of the lower Federal courts and limit the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. The Founders intended Congress to use this authority to correct abuses of power by the Federal government.

Some may claim that an activist judiciary that strikes down State laws at will expands individual liberty. Proponents of this claim overlook the fact that the best guarantor of true liberty is decentralized political institutions, not a great power that strikes down State laws at will.

In recent years, we have seen numerous abuses of power by Federal courts. Federal judges regularly strike down State and local laws on subjects such as religious liberty, sexual orientation, family relations, education, and abortion. This government by Federal judiciary causes a virtual nullification of the Tenth Amendment’s limitations on Federal power. Furthermore, when Federal judges impose their preferred policies on State and local governments, instead of respecting the policies adopted by those elected by, and thus accountable to, the people, republican government is threatened.

Article IV, section 4 of the United States Constitution guarantees that only a republican form of government. Thus, Congress must act when the executive or judicial branch threatens the republican governments of the individual States. Therefore, Congress has a responsibility to stop Federal judges from running roughshod over State and local laws. The Founders would certainly have supported congressional action to rein in Federal judges who tell citizens where they can and can’t place manger scenes at Christmas.

Mr. Speaker, even some supporters of liberal abortion laws have admitted that the Supreme Court’s Roe v. Wade decision, which overturned the abortion laws of all 50 States, is flawed. The Supreme Court’s Establishment Clause jurisdiction has also drawn criticism from across the political spectrum. Perhaps more importantly, attempts to resolve, by judicial fiat, important issues like abortion and the expression of religious belief in the public square increase social strife and conflict. The only way to resolve controversial social issues like abortion and school prayer is to restore respect for the Constitution of the United States and local governments to adopt polices that reflect the beliefs of the citizens of those jurisdictions. I would remind my colleagues and the Federal judiciary that, under our Constitutional system, there is no reason why the people of New York and the people of Texas should have the same polices regarding issues such as marriage and school prayer.

Unless Congress acts, a State’s authority to define and regulate marriage may be the next victim of activist judges. After all, such a decision would simply take the Supreme Court’s decision in the Lawrence case, which overturned all State sodomy laws, to its logical conclusion. Congress must launch a preemptive strike against any further Federal usurpation of the States’ authority to regulate marriage by removing issues concerning the definition of marriage from the jurisdiction of Federal courts.

Although marriage is licensed and otherwise regulated by the States, government did not create the institution of marriage. Government regulation of marriage is based on State recognition of the practices and customs formulated by private individuals interacting in civil institutions, such as churches and synagogues. Having Federal officials, whether judges, bureaucrats, or congressmen, impose a new definition of marriage on the people is an act of social engineering profoundly hostile to liberty.

It is long past time that Congress exercises its authority to protect the republican government of the States from out-of-control Federal judges. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to cosponsor the We the People Act.

CONGRATULATING DR. EDWARD R. MOSLEY

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dr. Edward R. Mosley of Fresno, as the honored recipient of the Community Health Champion Award from West Fresno Health Care Coalition.

The life of Dr. Edward Mosley has been extraordinary in every aspect. He has broken barriers, opened doors and won the hearts of all who know him.

Dr. Mosley was born in Chicago, Illinois in 1924. He grew up in a time where his skin color was the determining factor for his career goals. However, Edward continued on in his quest to reform the outlook of many African Americans in the Nation. He is truly a revolutionist in this regard and has not slowed down since.

Education has been a primary focus of Dr. Mosley since the age of 4 when he begged his grandmother to teach him how to read. He began school at age 6 and immediately excelled in all subjects. He became the “talk of the town” because of his intelligence. His school quickly adapted to their new star student by providing him with an advanced education. Edward graduated from high school at the age of 17 and was forced to take a year off before attending college. However, never deterred, he resumed his academic career and attended the University of Illinois. Ever the steadfast student, he worked to put himself through college and graduated to attend Mehary Medical School. He completed his medical internship at Harlem Hospital in New York and his residency at Tuskegee Veterans Hospital in Alabama. Dr. Mosley also spent two years in the United States, where he was in charge of a prisoner of war camp in Korea.

It was the desire to live in California that initially brought Edward to Fresno. He established a medical office in the private sector and eventually collaborated with other doctors in the community to create the Westview Convalescent Hospital in Fresno. In recognition of Edward’s accomplishments, he was the first African American elected official in Fresno when he was elected to serve on the State Community College Board of Trustees. Edward also served on many other boards in the community in efforts to advance the San Joaquin Valley.

Dr. Mosley has an impressive résumé that details his extensive professional career; however, it has been his outstanding devotion to community service and contributions to the medical community of Fresno for which he is being honored now. He has received many honors and recognitions, including being a Delegate to the Presidential Electoral College appointed by Governor Reagan in 1972, and being named honorary Mayor of Fresno for Contributions to the Community.

It is a tremendous honor to stand today and publicly recognize Dr. Edward Mosley for all of his contributions to the community. It is a privilege to extend congratulations to Dr. Mosley on behalf of the 20th District of California.
by Dale Douglas and his wife. The idea for the foundation stemmed from the experience of Douglas’ father, H. E. Douglas, Sr., who was a poor fieldworker who did not own a new pair of shoes until he was sixteen years old.

Nine years ago, Dale and his wife decided to turn their annual Christmas party into a call for new shoes for the area schools to collect the correct shoe sizes for needy students so that they can be matched with the right pair of shoes. The foundation has also partnered with The Colony Police Department to increase its outreach. Last year, the organization collected and distributed 377 new pairs of shoes to area schoolchildren.

It is with great honor that I stand here today to recognize the H. E. Douglas, Sr. Memorial New Shoes for Little Feet Foundation. It is the dedication that is personified by this organization that makes us certain that the future is bright for our nation and for our communities.

THE FRED F. HOLMES AWARD

HON. JAMES P. McCGOVERN
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, the Fred F. Holmes award was established by the Veterans’ Council of North Attleboro, Massachusetts, to recognize individuals who have had a positive effect on the lives of local veterans. On November 11, 2005, Veterans Day, it was my great pleasure to attend a ceremony honoring this year’s recipient of the Holmes award, Mr. Joseph K. “Joey Irish” Clougherty.

Mr. Clougherty was born in Brookline, Massachusetts, in 1948. His family settled in South Boston, where he graduated from high school in 1966. Mr. Clougherty enlisted in the United States Army in May 1967, and arrived in Vietnam later that November. Mr. Clougherty spent a year in Vietnam as part of the 5th Light Equipment Maintenance Company Long Binh and Headquarters Co. 185th Heavy Equipment Maintenance Battalion. After extending his stay in Vietnam for a total of twenty months, Mr. Clougherty returned to make his home in Dorchester, Massachusetts.

Mr. Clougherty spent ten years of service in the City of Boston Department of Public Works and Fire Department before eventually settling down in North Attleboro. Since 1995, Joe has served as the North Attleboro Assistant Veterans Agent, solving problems for the entire veteran community and their families.

Those who know Joe know he is a man of great compassion and loyalty, with an endless capacity for assisting those in need. This dedication is exemplified by the tremendous counseling and supportive services he has provided to the over 2,200 veterans of North Attleboro over the past decade.

The citizens of North Attleboro, and especially its veterans, are fortunate to have a person like Joe Clougherty in their midst. I know all my colleagues will join me in offering Mr. Clougherty our deep gratitude and heartfelt congratulations as this year’s recipient of the Fred F. Holmes award.

HON. MARSHA BLACKBURN
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, the Lord knew what he was doing when he sent us Adrian Rogers. And we’re so very thankful for that gift.

Dr. Rogers lived a life of service. He lived a life of grace. And we cannot help but be inspired by his accomplishments. For 32 years he preached a message of love, hope, and salvation. His inspirational leadership was on display each Sunday as anyone of the 30,000 Bellevue Baptist Church members can tell you.

Dr. Rogers not only reached out into his community, he reached out across America and this world to spread God’s message. His years at Bellevue spreading the Word to millions through his Love Worth Finding ministry and his leadership of the Southern Baptist Convention will be remembered in the lives he changed and the example he set.

He was a great, great shepherd and a humble servant.

Regardless of the titles and leadership positions, we all know that Pastor Rogers was most proud to be a loving husband, father, and grandfather. On this day our prayers are with his family whom he loved so much. We thank the Rogers family for sharing him with us all these years.

We will miss Pastor Rogers but we are grateful for his life. I rise today to mark the passing and recognize the service of a beloved Tennessean.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 3058

SPEECH OF

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I support the Conference Committee Report on the Transportation, Treasury, HUD, Judiciary Appropriations Act 2006, which provides essential funding for important infrastructure projects in Oregon and the rest of the nation. The bill provides $18 million to complete the Interstate MAX light rail project, which has been an incredible success in North Portland. Additionally, $5 million for a commuter rail project between Wilsonville and Beaverton will provide further transportation alternatives in the region and anchor important development projects in each of these suburban cities.

I was heartened to see the $1.3 billion set aside for Amtrak. I am concerned, however, that the bill separates Amtrak’s operations funding from its capital funding, essentially allowing the Department of Transportation to serve as a steward for Amtrak’s capital money, handing out grants for approved projects. I am wary of this being yet another attempt by the administration to dismantle America’s passenger rail system.

I am relieved to see that the Conference Committee did not eliminate funding for valuable HUD programs such as Community Development Block Grants and the HOPE VI program. I am concerned, however, that many of these programs continue to be underfunded. The many individuals and families displaced by Hurricane Rita will increase demand for these valuable programs.

While Republicans claim this bill is necessary to offset the costs incurred by Hurricane Katrina, their actions do not match their words. Months before Hurricane Katrina struck, Republicans in the House voted for a budget that cut $15 billion more than the bill we are voting on today. The programs the Republicans are attempting to cut, like Medicaid and food stamps, are the very programs that benefit those who have been affected by the hurricanes.

While Republicans claim this bill is necessary to offset the costs incurred by Hurricane Katrina, their actions do not match their words. Months before Hurricane Katrina struck, Republicans in the House voted for a budget that cut $15 billion more than the bill we are voting on today. The programs the Republicans are attempting to cut, like Medicaid and food stamps, are the very programs that benefit those who have been affected by the hurricanes. Not a single dollar cut in H.R. 4241 will actually go towards offsetting hurricane costs and reducing the deficit. Instead, today’s cuts will fund the upcoming tax cut, but in typical Republican fashion, the spending cuts won’t even cover the entire cost of the tax cuts they have planned.

While I am disappointed that we are voting on this bill at all, I am especially upset by a few specific provisions. First, this budget reconciliation will have a devastating impact on millions of low-income seniors, children, and people with disabilities across the country. This bill proposes billions in cuts to Medicaid, and Rhode Island alone will lose more than $66 million. Ultimately, these cuts are paid for by raising prices for those on Medicaid. Imposing cost sharing requirements on people who simply can’t afford them will not save money. Instead, these cuts will result in patients waiting longer to seek care, longer lines in our emergency rooms, and greater burdens on doctors and hospitals who will struggle to provide for this population. In the end, we will all pay for this mistake in some form. The Medicaid program provides access to health services for more than 51 million Americans—most of whom are among the most vulnerable members of our society. Now is the time to stand up for America’s families, not weaken it with arbitrary and harmful cuts.

I am also appalled by the message this bill sends to the millions of American students — who rely on financial aid and federal student loan programs to gain access to higher education. By cutting spending on student loan programs by more than $10 billion, we are negating on a commitment to these young Americans. At a time when college costs are rising faster than inflation, the bill proposes the largest cut in the history of the student loan programs.

Food stamps are an important layer of protection to ensure the very poor are able to feed themselves and their families, the most basic necessity. However, today’s bill will reduce the food stamp assistance by approximately $800 million over five years, and more than 200,000 people will lose their eligibility.

I am please to see that Republicans have removed the provision permitting drilling for oil in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. However, this was not a response to the public’s overwhelming opposition to ruining this pristine wilderness area. Rather, it is a cynical ploy to gain a few votes from Members who would not otherwise vote for this bill.

I have outlined only a few of the many reasons why I would oppose this legislation. So many of its other cuts would have negative impacts on our communities, such as reduced child support enforcement, which means more than $50 million in lower payments for Rhode Island’s single parents. If ever there was a balanced budget, which this bill does not even begin to provide, they should learn from the past and reinstate what works: PAYGO budget rules and responsible tax and spending policies. Together, America can do better. We should be working together to address true priorities, like access to health care and soaring energy prices. I urge my colleagues to reject this travesty and instead focus on meaningful deficit reduction based on fairness and shared sacrifice.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE COLONY, TX FOR HOSTING THE WALL THAT HEALS EXHIBIT

HON. MICHAEL C. BURGESS
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize The Colony, TX, for hosting the moving exhibit The Wall That Heals, honoring the 58,349 fallen soldiers of the Vietnam War who paid the ultimate price in service to our country. The exhibition features a half-scale replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, DC.

“Bringing The Wall Home” to communities throughout our country allows the souls enshrined on the memorial to exist, once more, among family and friends in the peace and comfort of familiar surroundings. The traveling exhibit, known as The Wall That Heals, allows the many thousands of veterans who have been unable to cope with the prospect of “facing The Wall” to find the strength and courage to do so within their own communities, thus allowing the healing process to begin.

The Wall That Heals also features a Traveling Museum and Information Center providing a cohesive educational component to enrich and complete visitors’ experiences. The museum chronicles the Vietnam War era and the unique healing power of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, while the information center serves as a venue for people to learn about friends and loved ones lost in the war.

It is with great honor that I stand here today to recognize The Colony for hosting The Wall That Heals. I urge you to represent a city dedicated to promoting education about the impact of the Vietnam War.

HONORING THE LIFE OF JOHN LEE
HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to note with sadness the passing of John Lee of Attleboro, MA. Mr. Lee died on October 22 at the age of 85.

John Lee was an academic and athletic star at Attleboro High School and later at Providence College. After serving his country in World War II as a captain in the Army Air Corps, he returned home to establish a successful, 53-year law practice. A towering pillar of his community, John Lee served as Attleboro city solicitor, legal counsel to the towns of Plainville and West Bridgewater and the Norton, Foxboro and Seekonk School Departments. He also served as a member of the Attleboro School Committee.

As Plainville Selectwoman Andrea Soucy recently said, Mr. Lee was not only a brilliant lawyer, but also a person of the highest character. “He had tremendous integrity. He had the highest of ethics. He was very, very special,” Ms. Soucy said.

In addition to his beloved wife Muriel, Mr. Lee is survived by 7 of his children and 16 grandchildren. Mr. Lee could always be seen at his grandchildren’s games and activities. John Lee represented the very best of citizenship, honor and integrity. I know that all of my colleagues in the House join me in sending our condolences to Muriel, the entire Lee family and all of those who knew and loved him.

HONORING THE 278TH REGIMENTAL COMBAT TEAM OF THE TENNESSEAN NATIONAL GUARD
HON. MARSHA BLACKBURN
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mrs. BLACKBURN. Mr. Speaker, few words sound as good as “welcome home.” This is especially true for our men and women in uniform returning from the Middle East where they’ve been battling terrorism.

In Tennessee we’re celebrating the return of our State’s 278th Regimental Combat Team. We couldn’t be prouder of them, and we want them to know how grateful we are.

Their service and dedication should inspire us all. They placed others above themselves. They fought not to conquer but to free. They fought to put right a terrible evil in this world. They fought so that others might know hope and freedom.

And they fought so that future generations of Americans would not have to live with the terror that we know all too well.

Their deeds placed them among the elite few in American history—in world history. As Tennesseans, we know the separation has been rough and the days have seemed longer with them so far from us.

Their return has answered our prayers and we are so glad to have them back where they belong.

We are proud of the brave and noble thing they have done for us, and for our country. And we can’t thank them enough. We will never forget those 10 among them who aren’t returning, those 10 who made the ultimate sacrifice. They will live on in the freedom they’ve helped preserve. Their families and friends are in our thoughts and prayers.

From a grateful, grateful Nation we salute them, and we salute their families.

God Bless America and our 278th.

NORTH AMERICAN POLLINATOR PROTECTION CAMPAIGN
HON. EARL BLUMENAUER
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank certain organizations and individuals for their outstanding work on the important, but often overlooked, issue of pollinators. As you know, pollinators are vital to food and medicine production, and their irreplaceable ecosystem services and declining populations merit attention and protection.

I am happy to say that significant progress is being made. On October 21, the North American Pollinator Protection Campaign, NAPPC, signed a joint memorandum of understanding with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The agreement proposes protecting pollinators on the nearly 100 million acres of habitat over which the Fish and Wildlife Service has jurisdiction. These lands, combined with another 200 million acres protected by the U.S. Forest Service, attest to the growing momentum behind this issue.

The successes of these organizations are impressive and encouraging, as is the dedication of certain individuals. On October 20, four such individuals were awarded the First Annual NAPPC Pollinator Advocate Award.

Don Pedro Cahun Uh, of Mexico, was recognized for his outstanding efforts to preserve not only traditional Mayan culture, but also the declining populations of the Yucatan Peninsula’s native stingless bees.

Dale Bosworth, chief of the USDA Forest Service, pioneered pollinator awareness among U.S. Government agencies and paved the way for the protection of native plants and their pollinators on almost 200 million acres of land.

Bruce Knight, chief of the USDA Natural Resource Conservation Service, exhibited exemplary leadership in the creation of a highly successful pollinator habitat program.

Ron Krystynak, of the Canadian Embassy, was recognized for taking a lead role in North American pollinator conservation, and for his holistic approach to sustainable agriculture and ecology.

These individuals represent a variety of perspectives and a singularly effective leadership on this issue. Their achievements will carry us closer to the goal of sustainable ecosystems and communities.
RESOLUTION RECOGNIZING THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF AVID

HON. SUSAN A. DAVIS
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. DAVIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize a tremendous and extremely valuable asset to public education in the United States. I am referring to the Advancement Via Individual Determination or AVID program that began in my hometown of San Diego 25 years ago.

Since then, it has helped hundreds of thousands of underachieving students across the United States learn the study habits and the skills needed for college. It has also helped thousands of students excel in the core subjects of reading, math, and the sciences.

Mary Catherine Swanson, a school teacher at San Diego’s Clairemont High, created AVID in 1980 because she wanted to find a way to help students with mediocre academic records.

What has happened since then is nothing short of amazing. AVID has grown from one classroom to 2,200 middle and high schools in 36 states. The program emphasizes individual achievement while teaching new study habits. In addition, AVID encourages goal setting and works to lift self-expectations and self-esteem in students.

Nearly 260,000 students have benefited tremendously from these ground-breaking teaching methods. Amazingly, over 95 percent of those who complete the AVID program attend college and nearly all of these students return for their sophomore year.

It is difficult to choose from the thousands of success stories produced by AVID. I am inspired each time I hear one of these stories. Please allow me to share just a few of these stories with you today.

Some of you may remember Joanna Hayes from Delaware, a student from the University of California at San Diego who was a master engineer and applied math and mechanical engineering. She attended UCLA and became a world-class athlete and knew she could likely land an athletic scholarship.

Unfortunately, her grades were low and she did not possess the academic credentials to attend her dream school, UCLA. Joanna’s high school guidance counselor told her about the AVID program and how it had helped a number of students greatly improve their grades.

She signed up and her grades began to improve dramatically.

She attended UCLA and became a world-class athlete attributing a great deal of her success to AVID. She was also moved by the story of Truong-Son Vinh who arrived in the United States when he was 9 years old.

He fled Saigon just before it fell into the hands of the North Vietnamese in 1975. Tragically, his father was killed during the war.

Truong-Son Vinh’s family ended up in San Diego where he found the AVID program. With the help of AVID, he maintained an “A” average and excelled in math and the sciences throughout high school.

He applied the skills and study habits he learned through AVID and earned degrees in mechanical engineering and applied math from the University of California at San Diego and a master’s degree from Cal. Tech.

This was just the beginning for Truong-Son Vinh. After college, he went to work for NASA and contributed to the Space Shuttle program during the 1980s. He later returned to school and earned a Ph.D and an MBA. Mr. Speaker, it is stories like Joanna Hayes and Truong-Son Vinh’s that have inspired me to introduce a resolution recognizing AVID and honoring the program on its 25th anniversary.

I am pleased to have the opportunity to introduce this resolution with my friend and colleague from Delaware, Congressman CASTLE.

Because of AVID, thousands of students have had the opportunity to achieve in our public schools and have had the opportunity to go on to college.

Again, this program has far exceeded anyone’s expectations.

I thank Mary Catherine Swanson for having a vision and working hard to implement this vision beginning with one classroom at Clairemont High.

In addition, please allow me to thank the administrators of the AVID program for their hard work promoting the program on a national level.

Also, the work the teachers and tutors do in the AVID program is nothing short of amazing. Because of their dedication, AVID has turned the lives around of thousands of our young people.

Finally, I would just like to take a moment to recognize the students who had the courage to take on the rigorous academic track required by AVID and who had the desire to go on to college.

I introduce this resolution today to honor AVID and all it has accomplished. If we are to eliminate the achievement gap in the United States, I believe we need to build upon the programs that have already decreased the size of the gap successfully.

AVID is clearly one of these programs. We will also need to turn to AVID and other proven programs already showing success in assisting our kids make gains in the areas that our nation is lagging far behind. I refer specifically to math and the sciences.

If we are to be competitive in the world economy, we need programs such as AVID to help our children excel in math, the sciences, and other key programs.

HAPPY 101ST BIRTHDAY TO MAGGIE KATIE BROWN KIDD

HON. DAVID SCOTT OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. SCOTT of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to fulfill an annual obligation to wish a happy birthday to Mrs. Maggie Katie Brown Kidd. This year, it is my distinct pleasure to wish Ms. Kidd a happy 101st birthday. Although her birth date is December 8th, she will be celebrating with her family on November 25, 2005.

Ms. Kidd has led a long life of devoted service, always lending a helping hand to any of her relatives or neighbors. She carries on the tradition of her beloved husband “Doc” who earned that nickname precisely for such a reputation. So in addition to celebrating her birthday, we are celebrating another year of her contributions to our community. To mark this occasion and her contributions I am awarding her a “Certificate of Special Congressional Recognition.”

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me, Maggie’s children, her grandchildren and her great-grandchildren in wishing her a happy 101st birthday.
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — Extensions of Remarks

HON. WILLIAM M. THOMAS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 40th anniversary of the founding of the Economic Opportunity Commission of San Luis Obispo County (EOC), which will be celebrated on December 9th. I would like to congratulate the board members, staff and volunteers of the EOC for all they have accomplished and wish them well as they continue to serve the residents of San Luis Obispo and nine other counties in California.

The EOC is a private, nonprofit public benefit community action agency (CAA) that was designated by the San Luis Obispo County Board of Supervisors as the CAA for the County in December 1965. The EOC strives to address and alleviate poverty in San Luis Obispo County, in part through community-based programs designed to help individuals and families develop the skills needed to enhance their stability and economic independence. In addition, the EOC also uses strong community partnerships with churches, county government, and other service providers to assist the local community.

I appreciate the assistance the EOC provides to the residents of San Luis Obispo County. Its Board of Commissioners, employees, and volunteers are to be commended for their efforts, which have helped thousands of people over the past 40 years. Accordingly, I ask my colleagues to congregate at the EOC as they celebrate their 40th anniversary.

REGARDING WASHINGTON STATE PROFESSOR OF THE YEAR BRUCE PALMQUIST

HON. DOG HASTINGS OF WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I wish to pay tribute to 2005 Washington State Professor of the Year—Mr. Bruce Palmquist.

The U.S. Professors of the Year awards, sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, recognize college and university professors for their excellence in undergraduate teaching and mentoring.

For over a decade, Mr. Palmquist has taught science to students at Central Washington University using innovative teaching strategies to actively engage his students in learning. He has taught his students to embrace the University’s motto “by teaching, we learn.” This teaching approach has motivated students to achieve a higher standard.

Mr. Palmquist recognizes the importance of access to higher education. He worked to establish a teacher education program at a community college one hundred miles from Central Washington University, so that students could more easily access higher education.

Mr. Palmquist’s dedication to the program and students is apparent as he travels over 200 miles per week to advise enrolled and potential students, promote the program, and help students with course work.

In a society where teachers do not always receive the appreciation they deserve, I am pleased to honor and commend Mr. Palmquist for his dedication to students in Central Washington. Mr. Palmquist is a teacher who is willing to work hard for his students, and expects his students to work hard for him in return.

To Mr. Palmquist and the professors across America that are educating tomorrow’s leaders, thank you.

AZERBAIJANIAN ELECTIONS

HON. ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to share a few thoughts with my colleagues on recent elections in Azerbaijan.

While the recent November 6th parliamentary elections in Azerbaijan failed to meet U.S. and international standards for a free and fair process, there were some notable improvements over the previous elections.

According to the State Department, the Government of Azerbaijan: allowed large numbers of candidates to register; provided candidates with greater access to the media; allowed exit polls and extensive monitoring by domestic and foreign observers; improved voter lists; and took steps to ensure that veteran candidates were not barred from running.

Just this week, it was reported that Aliyev dismissed Vazif Ragimov, the governor of Zagatala, a region in western Azerbaijan near the border with Georgia, for alleged interference in ballot counting. Two days earlier, after a three-hour discussion, the Central Election Commission (CEC) reportedly canceled results in the #110 Zagatala constituency in response to reported violations in a majority of the polling stations.

Ragimov was reportedly the third governor to be dismissed for attempted vote tampering.

These are positive steps but further corrective actions must be taken. For example, investigations should not be limited exclusively to election day problems but must address reports of post-election crackdowns and suppression of dissent.

I therefore urge Mr. Aliyev to continue to work closely with the United States, the rest of the international community, and all segments of Azerbaijani society to undertake the necessary reforms to provide for a future in which free, fair and transparent elections are regularly held in a fully democratic Azerbaijan.
Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, this bill does not deserve to pass and I certainly will not vote for it.

That’s not because I think all is well with the budget—far from it. Even before the hurricane winds and waves arrived and the levees broke, the Federal budget was already on a dangerous course marked by tidal waves of red ink and towering piles of debt. Since 2001, the budget surplus that President Clinton and a Republican Congress bequeathed President Bush had been erased and our country was now in debt to the tune of $8 trillion, or $25,000 for every American man, woman and child.

And then, as they brought death and destruction, Katrina and Rita delivered another blow to the Federal budget—and sounded a wake-up call about the fiscal and economic risks we have been running. I had hoped that the result might be recognition by both the Bush Administration and Congress that now we needed to face hard reality and not continue with budget policies based on defying the laws of fiscal gravity. It’s about time. But this bill—which would implement part of an overall Republican budget—goes in exactly the wrong direction.

As it comes to the floor, the bill would cut more than $50 billion over 5 years from a wide variety of programs—not because they are no longer needed and not because they are wasteful, but because the Republican leadership has decided the Americans served by these programs must sacrifice in order to help offset the cost of over $106 billion in tax cuts. And, after imposing these penalties on millions of America, the overall plan—service cuts for many Americans, tax cuts for relatively few—will not result in reduced deficits and more delay in correcting our fiscal course.

In short, the Republican prescription for our budget problems is a toxic compound of misguided priorities and fiscal irresponsibility—in other words, more of the same mistakes as before, except worse.

And it’s not like there aren’t better ways to approach our budgetary problems. For example, there is H.R. 3966, the Stimulating Leadership In Cutting Expenditures (or “SLICE”) Act, a bill I introduced last month that is cosponsored by Members on both sides of the aisle and endorsed by the American Conservative Union, Americans for Tax Reform, Citizens Against Government Waste, Freedom Works, the Small Business Enterprise Council, and the National Taxpayers Union.

Its purpose is to promote Presidential leadership and Congressional accountability on proposals to reduce other spending in order to offset the costs of responding to the recent natural disasters. Toward that end, it would authorize the President to identify specific items of Federal spending that he thinks should be cut and would require Congress to vote on each of those items. It would apply not only to regular appropriations, but also to the transportation bill that was passed and signed into law earlier this year. In each case, if the president proposes a cut, Congress would have to vote on it—we could not ignore the proposal, as can be done under current law—and if a major appropriations bill included a cut, it would take effect.

As our budget situation has grown worse, there has been a lot of talk about “earmarks,” meaning funding allocations initially proposed by Members of Congress rather than by the Administration. Some people are opposed to all earmarks—but I am not one of them. I think Members of Congress know the needs of their communities, and that Congress as a whole can and should exercise its judgment on how tax dollars are to be spent. So, I have sought earmarks for various items that have benefited Colorado and our neighbors.

The new report from the Rand Corporation spells out the great benefits that can come from oil shale development. It says that Colorado and other relevant States, as well as with local communities to provide needed services.

That’s why in the Resources Committee I offered an amendment that would have revised the oil shale sections in several important ways. Unfortunately, the Republican leadership of the committee opposed any changes to those sections, and my amendment was defeated.

What is the significance of that? Well, to begin with, current law says the Interior Department has to consult with the Governor of Colorado and other relevant States, as well as with local governments and other interested parties, before going ahead with large-scale oil shale leasing. The bill repeals that requirement for consultation. My amendment would have retained it.

In addition, current law permits an orderly, measured program for oil shale development. But this bill would mandate a massive development program on a crash basis. It says Interior must lease a minimum of 35% of the oil shale lands in Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming within just a one-year period. It’s not clear if this means 35% of the three-state total or 35% of the oil-shale lands in each state. Either way, it’s a requirement for a fast and massive commercial leasing program:

The Interior Department says there are about 6.5 million acres of oil shale lands in Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming combined. That’s more than 10 million acres, and about 72% of that is federal land. So, even if the intent is to require leasing 35% of the three-state total, not 35% in each state, that’s more than 2.5 million acres—all in one year.

Mandating leases for that much land, that fast, risks putting a big part of Northwestern Colorado on the fast track to becoming a national sacrifice zone. It’s like a trip in a time machine back to the 19th century when we mistakenly crashed development policy of the Carter Administration. That was a mistake then and it would be a mistake now. That’s why my amendment would have deleted that requirement, allowing current law to stand.

Also, the bill requires the Interior Department to prepare a programmatic environmental impact statement (EIS) on oil shale, with a tight deadline for completion. That’s the right thing to do. Work has started on that EIS, and Coloradans look forward to reading it. But reading something before evaluating it must not be good for the student’s “self-esteem,” but it doesn’t ensure careful work. And careful work on oil shale is essential because the stakes are so high for Colorado’s land, water, and communities. That’s why my amendment would have deleted that and allowed current law to stand.

Finally, current law tells the Interior Department to set oil-shale royalty rates that will do two things—encourage development of oil shale and also ensure a fair return to the taxpayers. But the bill would repeal this, replacing it with specific rates to be charged for the first 10 years of commercial oil shale production, and requiring that after that the rates must be adjusted according to a formula tied to certain oil prices. This is a blatant example of micromanagement, with nothing to show it is fair to the taxpayers. My amendment would have deleted that and set at long-term political price—$0.10 per acre—and replaced it with the language of the current law.

The Congressional Budget Office’s report on these oil shale provisions estimates that they will not do much to raise revenue or otherwise help balance the budget. So, there is no budgetary reason to include them in this bill, while from the standpoint of what is best for Colorado and its communities there is every reason to change them in the way that my amendment would have done—and I cannot support them unless such changes are made.

As Westerners know all too well, that law—dating from the administration of President Ulysses S. Grant—still governs the mining of gold, silver, and other “hardrock” minerals on federal lands. It still allows private companies to get a patent—an ownership deed—to public lands containing valuable minerals for a mere $2.50 to $5.00 per acre, the same prices that were set in 1872, without paying the taxpayers a fee like that paid for the Federal Oil, gas, or other mineral deposits under most modern law. Since 1872, more than $245 billion worth of minerals have been extracted from public lands at these bargain-base prices, and nearly as much land as in the entire state of Connecticut has been sold to the mining industry for less than $5 an acre.

Because the mining industry doesn’t need patents—they can and do mine on unpatented claims and because there are so many problems associated with patenting, annually since 1994 I have revised a moratorium on the patenting of mining claims. But this bill would repeal that moratorium. And while the bill would raise the price of patents, it would not require payments that reflect the value of the minerals involved. So, according to the Congressional Budget Office, this provision would raise only about $158 million over the next five years. This is not real reform—it is a continued subsidy for the “hardrock” mining industry. But other provisions in this part of the bill are worse.

For example, the bill would allow claim holders to patent land without proving there is a valuable mineral deposit as long as they already have a permit to mine or have reported to the SEC that there is a “probable” mineral reserve there. This means that claim holders can purchase public land without having to prove that they can or will construct a viable mine. And it allows the sale of “mineral development lands”—meaning any land with a valuable mineral deposit as well as lands that were once mineralized and were previously mined—for the purpose of “sustainable economic development.” According to John Leshy, who served as Solicitor of the Interior and who is an expert on the mining law, the bill will result to “put in the hands of corporations the keys to privatize millions of acres of federal land”—setting the stage for a massive fire sale of Federal lands for bargain-base royalty prices.

And in Colorado, a state with a long and rich mining history, the results could be dramatic. As the Denver Post has noted, “Coloradoans could unexpectedly see suburban sprawl on mountainsides they thought were protected open spaces... It’s an invitation to condo developers, mini-mansion home builders and other speculators to snatch up federal lands that otherwise would never leave public ownership... Just in Colorado, old mining patents encompass 123,000 acres. Most existing claims are next to or surrounded by national forests, parks or other public lands. Many also are near former mining towns that have become pricey resorts such as Aspen, Telluride, Breckenridge and Crested Butte. Twenty-three of Colorado’s 24 ski areas are on national forests and so are vulnerable under the proposal.”

In short, as the Denver Post’s editors rightly observe, these provisions “really aren’t about mining; they’re about real estate speculation,” which is why they have called on us to “erase them from the budget reconciliation bill.”

But of course, since no amendments are permitted, we can’t erase that part, or any other part of the legislation. The only choice before us is to vote yes or no on the entire bill.

And, as I said, the bill is just one part of a larger budget plan—one that insists on pushing ahead on the same course that has led to the serious fiscal problems that now confront us—setting the stage for more top-heavy tax cuts while we are putting the costs of war and everything else the government does on the national credit card. This cannot go on forever. Sooner or later, something has to give.

So, Mr. Speaker, there is an urgent need to rethink and revise our budget policies, including both taxes and spending. But this bill reflects a refusal to do that rethinking. And for me the only viable choice is to vote no—no on the oil shale provisions, no on the mining provisions, and no on all the rest of this very unnecessary, very unbalanced, very short-sighted, and very unwise legislation.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. LEE TERRY
OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, as the House of Representatives considers passage of the Deficit Reduction Act, I rise in overall support of H.R. 4241. As the process moves forward, I urge my colleagues in this chamber and in the conference to consider some additions and changes.

The actual estimated average cost to a community retail pharmacy to dispense prescription drugs ($9.25) is greater than the minimum multi-source dispensing fee established by H.R. 4241 ($8.00). Because H.R. 4241 does not establish a dispensing fee for single source medications, commonly known as brand-name drugs, I urge my colleagues to consider an increase in dispensing fees for both single source and multisource medications that adequately compensates community retail pharmacies for their cost to dispense prescription drugs within the Medicaid program. In addition, I urge my colleagues to encourage the states to conduct mandatory comprehensive studies to determine actual distribution expenses incurred by community retail pharmacies participating in the Medicaid program so that fair and equitable distribution reimbursement rates can be established.

We should also do all we can to provide incentive to increase the use of generic therapeutic equivalent drugs when they are available. While our bill provides higher dispensing fees for generics based on Retail Average Manufacturers Price (RAMP) plus cost, I still do not feel that there is enough incentive in our model to encourage effective use of generics. I encourage continued work in conference to increase the utilization of generics, which in itself has significant savings potential.

H.R. 4241 establishes a new benchmark formula for establishing reimbursement rates for community retail pharmacies participating in the Medicaid program. The benchmark formula, known as RAMP, can often be significantly out of date because it is updated on a quarterly basis and it often is not determined and posted for another quarter. Because pharmaceutical prices are updated on a daily basis, the RAMP has the potential to be as much as six months out of date. Accordingly, I urge my colleagues to consider modifying requirements related to RAMP from a quarterly recalculation basis to a monthly basis so that community retail pharmacies do not have to absorb significant financial losses due to fluctuations in real cost.
Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor my good friend and constituent Albert Spada for his distinguished professional career and impressive record of community service. Al retired earlier this year as Ulster County Clerk, a position he has held since 1967. I would like to recognize and thank him for his outstanding leadership in Ulster County both as an elected official and an active and dedicated member of the community.

Al was elected to the office of Ulster County Clerk at the age of 34, the youngest county clerk in New York at the time. Prior to his election, Al served as Deputy Clerk for Ulster County and legislative aide to New York State Assemblyman Kenneth Wilson and New York State Senator E. Ogden Bush. Prior to that, Al served in the United States Air Force during the Korean Conflict as a Staff Sergeant. After serving as chief of the Air Force supply depot in Japan, he received an honorable discharge from military service.

For more than 35 years, Al served the people of Ulster County with distinction and honor. His responsiveness and accessibility to county residents defined his tenure in office. Al established himself as the preeminent advocate for Ulster County residents on matters pertaining to the functions of his office and other county government business. Over the many decades that he was in office, Al’s personal efforts have positively affected the lives of countless Ulster County residents. All of these attributes contributed to Al being the longest serving County Clerk in Ulster County since George Clinton held the position in the late 18th century.

Al has received numerous honors over the years including the Lifetime Achievement Award from the New York State Association of County Clerks and the Man of the Year Award from the local chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Al has been a member of the New York Association of County Clerks since 1966 and has served on the boards of Benedicteine and Kingston Hospitals, the New York State Advisory Board of Public Works and the Kingston Housing Authority, where he currently sits as chairman. He has served on the Heritage Advisory Committee, the New York State Sports Authority and the Ulster County United Way. Most notably perhaps, Al has been a lifetime member of the Gloaco Volunteer Fire Department.

In addition to the many accomplishments and accolades that Al has received over the years, he is widely regarded as a friend to many people throughout the community. His loyalty and generosity, as well as his extraordinary sense of humor, have endeared him to countless Ulster County residents and while his presence in the county building will be greatly missed, we will all take comfort in knowing that he will remain an active member of our community.

Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to congratulate my friend Albert Spada and his family on the occasion of this well-deserved retirement after so many years of dedicated service to the residents of Ulster County. I offer him my warmest personal wishes for a healthy and happy retirement along with my deep appreciation for his friendship and his longstanding commitment to public service.

A TRIBUTE TO THE BERKSHIRE JUVENILE COURT

HON. JOHN W. OLVер
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to recognize and honor the Berkshire Division of the Juvenile Court Department of the Trial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on this, National Adoption Day, for their dedication to the hundreds of children in foster care in Berkshire County, Massachusetts, and for their promotion of adoption, which allows over 30 children per year to enter into loving and nurturing families.

Today, in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, sixteen adoptions will be performed in honor of National Adoption Day and in recognition of November as Adoption Awareness Month throughout the United States.

I want to thank the Berkshire Juvenile Court, under the guidance of the Honorable First Justice Paul E. Perach, for their dedication and commitment to the children and families of Berkshire County, Massachusetts.

RECOGNIZING THE OUTSTANDING EFFORTS OF BALTIMORE FIRE CAPTAIN KENNETH HYDE, SR.

HON. C.A. DUTCН RUPPERSBERGER
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. RUPPERSBERGER. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to recognize the outstanding efforts of one heroic individual who has greatly impacted the safety of the Baltimore community. He stands by 24 hours a day, 7 days a week in case of emergency. Whether he’s disturbed from his slumber or called away from a family dinner, Baltimore Fire Captain and Riveria Beach Fire Chief Kenneth Hyde, Sr. readily awaits his next call to action.

Mr. Hyde holds two very demanding positions as he is the Baltimore City Fire Captain and the head of the Riveria Beach Volunteer Fire Company. That means he rarely enjoys a day of rest. However, he never complains, and neither do his crews. He has participated in the rescue of passengers of the water taxi, Lady D which overturned last year in Baltimore’s Inner Harbor. He has assisted with the recent Hurricane Katrina cleanup, as well as countless other disasters.

While he primarily focuses on local mishaps, his interest lies in terrorism preparedness. He develops strategies for possible attacks, and devotes many of his weekends to either attending or conducting training sessions.

Mr. Hyde comes from a long line of firemen; his father, both grandfathers, brother, andnow son, are all firemen. In addition, his wife is a dispatcher for the Baltimore City Fire Department, and his sister is in charge of the cadet program for the Riveria Beach Fire Department. It’s obvious the Hyde family is dedicated to the safety of the citizens of Maryland.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you rise with me today to applaud the incredible efforts of Mr. Kenneth Hyde in his selfless commitment to protecting the people of the United States.
help mothers and their children receive the child support that is owed to them. Cutting funding to States for child support enforcement is obviously moving in the wrong direction.

As Members of Congress we cannot continue to allow ill-timed and badly targeted tax cuts for the wealthy while at the same time cutting government programs that help people improve the quality of their lives and their wellbeing.

If we continue along this path we will be shortchanging our children, our grandchildren and their children. They will inherit a government and a country that turned its back on the people who needed them most and they will be forced to pick up the pieces.

We cannot let this happen. I am committed to serving the people of the Second District of Maryland and I will not support legislation such as this that will negatively impact my constituents or the United States as a whole.

This legislation is just plain wrong and I urge my colleagues to oppose the bill.

VETERANS DAY COMMEmORATION AT DODONA MANOR

HON. FRANK R. WOLF
OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Thank you, Jake . . . Mr. Price, fellow veterans and American citizens . . . as a descendent of the Rector family on nearby Goose Creek, I am proud to join you here at Dodona Manor, the home of one of our greatest veterans, General George Marshall, in paying tribute to the service of America’s veterans.

This is the day we remember our debt to those who’ve worn the uniform of the United States. This is the day we thank and honor ALL who have served honorably in the military—in wartime or peacetime. We honor them for their patriotism, their love of country, and their willingness to serve and sacrifice for the common good. And we thank them for their service in expressing our appreciation of their contributions to national security, and recognizing that all who served have sacrificed and done their duty. Today, all veterans can be certain that the Nation they served and the people they defended are grateful.

It is appropriate, indeed, to observe Veterans Day here at Dodona Manor, the home of General Marshall, who was born just 125 miles from here on New Year’s Eve 125 years ago. . . Having lived next door to General Marshall in Washington in 1938, having seen him speak at West Point, and having served in the Army’s War Plans Division that he headed 20 years before, I’ve been inspired by numerous stories of this man whom President Roosevelt considered to be the Pershing of World War II and whom President Truman said was the greatest military man the Nation ever produced.

General Marshall’s 50 years of public service epitomize the selfless service so distinctive of America’s most distinguished soldiers of World War I, General Pershing in and after World War I, General Marshall commanded troops in China, the Philippines, and at Fort Evanston, Wyoming, became Army Chief of Staff and exemplified selfless service in his gracious acceptance of President Roosevelt’s keeping him in Washington during World War II. Instead of acceding to his desire to command troops in Europe. . . He gave selfless service again when heading toward well-deserved retirement in 1945. . . When a telephone call came from President Truman asking him to forego his first vacation in years and devote many months as a special messenger, he agreed to chair the American Battle Monuments Commission. And in 1953, upon his retirement, he became a special envoy to receive the Nobel Peace Prize, he typically credited it to others, telling reporters it was a tribute (quote) “to the American people.’’ Indeed, all of us veterans are proud to count General Marshall as one of us!

Our veterans have borne the cost of America’s wars and stood watch over America’s peace. Among the 42 million veterans of American wars, over 600 thousand died in battle and over 2 million were wounded. Today some 20 million living Americans owe their peace. This includes a few dozen survivors of World War I, over 3 million of World War II, 3 million of the Korean War, 8 million of the Vietnam War, and 2 million of the Wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Fortunately to have a number of veterans with us here today, I want to acknowledge them . . . so I ask all veterans present to please stand for us to recognize you . . . (APPLAUSE). Thank you. . . .

And whoever answers with the Biblical reply of “Here am I. Send me” will return a veteran. Let us honor that veteran and resolve on this Veterans Day to remember that he or she goes for us and deserves our support and respect.

HON. DALE E. KILDEE
OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to stand before you today on behalf of one of my district’s premier human service organizations, the Child Advocacy Center of Genesee County. On Thursday, November 10, the Center will hold its inaugural Awards Dinner, where they will acknowledge several individuals who have shown tremendous courage, kindness, and selflessness through acts of goodwill toward our young people.

Polly Sheppard will have the distinction of being awarded the first Volunteer of the Year Award.

The honor of the Mental Health Therapist of the Year Award will be presented to Penny Lantz.

The cooperation between the CAC and the Michigan Department of Human Services will be shown, as Linda Crouch and Director Denise Chambers will receive DHS Worker of the Year.

The CAC will recognize its friends in law enforcement, as Detective Matt Bade of the Burton Police Department, and Detective Diana Mills of the Mt. Morris Police Department will be honored as Police Officers of the Year. John Greene and Marcie Baty will be honored as Prosecutors of the Year.

The Sponsor of the Year Award will be presented to the Ruth Mott Foundation.
Additionally, Dr. Edwin Gullickson will be honored as the CAC 2005 Physician of the Year.

Mr. Speaker, I applaud these wonderful men and women for all they have done for others. Through their actions, they ensure that our children are able to enjoy healthy, productive, and safe lives, and I look forward to working with my colleagues in the 109th Congress to please join me in recognizing their heroic efforts.

HONORING CUB SCOUT PACK 88 OF THE BSA’S DES PLAINES VALLEY COUNCIL AND THEIR 60 YEARS OF SERVICE

HON. DANIEL LIPINSKI
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Cub Scout Pack 88 of the Boy Scouts of America’s Des Plaines Valley Council on their 60th anniversary.

In 1930, the Boy Scouts of America created a new opportunity called Cub Scouting for boys younger than Boy Scout age. A year-round, home-centered program used by chartered organizations, Cub Scouting emphasizes involvement between boys and their parents, adult leaders, and friends. In the multidimensional plan of the Boy Scouts of America, Cub Scouting is where it all begins.

For the past 60 years, Cub Scout Pack 88 has been a cornerstone of service in the Des Plaines Valley communities. They have combined fun with educational activities and life-long values. Parents and sons of Pack 88 spend quality time together going places, doing projects, talking, and reading. Pack 88 also provides a healthy, safe environment in which boys learn important values and develop self-confidence.

For these reasons, it is my honor to recognize Cub Scout Pack 88 on their 60th anniversary. I look forward to many more years of their continued service to our community and our youth.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. ELIOI L. ENGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. ENGLE. Mr. Speaker, the majority should be absolutely ashamed of the bill before us today. It is simply unconscionable that the majority is not only moving forward with reconciliation but that they are increasing cuts all under the guise of paying for Hurricane Katrina relief. Under their rules, they won’t even allow amendments to this monstrosity—shutting down any meaningful opportunity of offering even slight improvements to this bill.

The fact of the matter is that the irresponsible tax cuts for the wealthy have run our country’s fiscal order into the red with over $10 trillion in debt. Even before Hurricane Katrina, the budget was estimated for $35 billion in cuts to programs for the poor to partially offset the $106 billion in tax cuts in the same budget resolution. The math simply doesn’t add up.

It is interesting that the majority continues to use terms like personal responsibility when justifying the draconian cuts to services, cruel penalties and cost sharing for the poor that will essentially block access to care while failing to exercise the same responsibility in their own fiscal stewardship. This year, as a result of the Government of the United States is paid for with borrowed money, over $1 billion a day. To make ends meet while continuing to pass tax cuts, we borrow heavily from China, Japan and other foreign nations, knowing full well our children and grandchildren will one day be saddled with our debt. In the meantime, we pretend we can shore up our economy with a few simple reforms that will have devastating consequences for the most vulnerable children, seniors and other impoverished people, which won’t really affect the trillions of dollars of debt created by the majority’s fiscal irresponsibility.

What is irresponsible are the billions of dollars in cuts the majority is making to the Medicaid program. Without Medicaid and SCHIP, the percentage of uninsured Americans, including children, would be a lot higher. As we all know, health care coverage isn’t meaningful unless it is accessible and affordable. The proposals included in this bill will undoubtedly prove to be a barrier to care as it permits States to significantly increase the amounts Medicaid beneficiaries pay for pocket for premiums and copayments for healthcare services, again, all in the name of personal responsibility.

Mr. Speaker, but what about the low-income mother trying to care for her family by stretching her budget to cover housing, electricity, clothing and now increased cost-sharing and copayments for medical care? Why are we setting her up for failure when she has to make choices between her medical care and her children and her utility bills, all important to the wellbeing of her and her family? How have we fulfilled our professional responsibility if we cut her in the position of making these impossible choices? I can assure you, these mothers are as familiar with personal responsibility and strapped budgets as any Member of Congress in this room.

Part of the problem that I have with these proposals are that the “reforms” are budget driven in that the solutions offered are far less important than the anticipated savings associated with them. I urge this committee to scrap these massive changes to Medicaid. While there are certainly ways to modernize, improve, and reform this program, it must be done with the compassion and thoughtful consideration it deserves.

A sensible improvement to this bill would be to permit early treatment under Medicaid to HIV positive people who are under the Medicaid rules. Most HIV positive people must meet both an income standard and be disabled—by AIDS—before they can receive access to Medicaid provided care and treatment that could have prevented them from becoming ill so quickly. This proposal required Federal HIV treatment guidelines which call for early access to medical care and treatment including the use of combination antiretroviral therapy. Medical costs for those with advanced AIDS are significantly higher than costs for caring for HIV positive people, and this is a burden on the States’ Medicaid budgets.

I offered an amendment in the Energy and Commerce Committee markup for Medicaid reform to give States the OPTION of amending their Medicaid eligibility requirements to include uninsured, pre-disabled low-income people living with HIV. ETHA, which has been introduced by Leader Pelosi in prior Congresses and Senator SMITH and Senator CLINTON in the Senate, is modeled after the successful Breast and Cervical Cancer Prevention and Treatment Act, BCCA, that allows States to provide early access to Medicaid to women with cancer. Forty nine States have implemented the BCCA, designed to preserve health and prevent unnecessary and high-cost medical interventions. But, unlike the BCCA, ETHA includes an enhanced Federal match rate of 65 percent to 83 percent to encourage States to participate in offering the services.

Although my amendment failed in committee, Senators CLINTON and SMITH successfully offered a demonstration version of the Early Treatment for HIV Act on the Senate floor. I tried to offer that amendment on the House floor but the Republican leadership would not permit any amendments. It is my fervent hope that this provision survives conference.

Outside of the jurisdiction of the Energy and Commerce Committee, on which I serve, are even more cruel cuts to working families and vulnerable populations. Billions in cuts to student aid programs, child support enforcement, foster care and SSI disability payments. They cut food stamps, eliminated national school lunch and breakfast programs for hundreds of thousands of families and children—the list goes on.

Mr. Speaker, you should be ashamed to allow our Congress to even consider such proposals. It’s time that we continue to promote tax cuts for the wealthy. I vote “no” on this monstrosity and urge my colleagues to do the same.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. ELIJAH E. CUMMINGS
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the Budget Reconciliation Bill, H.R. 4241, reported on a partisan basis by the House Committee on the Budget.

My colleagues have already highlighted many of the harsh cuts that would be made in this bill. These include, but are not limited to, cuts in Medicaid spending of nearly $12 billion, cuts in the student loan program of more than $14 billion, $840 million in cuts in the food stamp programs, $4.9 billion in cuts to the State child support enforcement programs, $577 million in cuts to the foster care program and $470 million in cuts to the Federal housing and rehab program.

Let’s be very clear on this point. These cuts will do nothing to reduce our growing deficit and, despite what many Republicans have tried to claim, they will not offset the costs we will rightly incur to recover from the catastrophic devastation of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

In fact, while cutting almost $50 billion in much needed social programs for the most needy, the bill “reconciles” another $70 billion in tax cuts for the absolute least needy—adding another $16–20 billion to the Federal deficit. So I ask, what sense does this heartless bill make?

While I am glad the manager’s amendment tries to soften the blow to the vulnerable by making sure that children who currently receive food stamps will not be cut off, as well as by making other small vote garnering changes to the Medicaid and food stamp programs, these are small pluses that do very little to outweigh the many minuses of this bill. Mr. Speaker, to achieve this deficit increase, the budget reconciliation bill before us today would cut precisely those programs that help the poor, the sick, the weak, and the young so that the wealthiest among us can receive additional tax cuts.

Let me review for a moment what the tax cuts already enacted have done to our Nation.

According to the Urban Institute-Brookings Institution Tax Policy Center, as a result of the tax cuts implemented by the administration and by the Republican leadership in Congress to date, households with incomes exceeding $1 million can expect to receive tax cuts this year that will average $103,000.

According to the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, after adjusting for inflation, the after-tax income of the 1 percent of tax filers with the highest incomes rose by nearly $49,000 in 2003 while the lowest 75 percent of tax filers saw their incomes decrease in 2002.

Not surprisingly, as income disparity has grown, the poverty rate in this Nation has increased from 11.7 percent in 2001 to 12.7 percent in 2004, and there are now more than 37 million Americans living in poverty in this Nation, including 13 million children.

Further, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, last year there were more than 38 million individuals living in households that at some point during the year were food “insecure,” meaning that they were unable to afford to buy enough food to feed themselves.

On September 16, President Bush traveled to New Orleans to announce a bold and ambitious plan to rebuild the gulf coast region following Hurricane Katrina. During his speech, the President acknowledged that poverty and indifference had left so many of our fellow Americans vulnerable to the hurricanes in the gulf region.

Unfortunately, the budget reconciliation bill before us illustrates in the starkest possible terms that as the storm and its revelations about our society begin to fade from the front pages to the back pages, the Republican leadership of this House has chosen to repudiate the President’s commitment to address poverty.

Rather than embrace the President’s call for action, the Republican leaders of this House have put forward a bill that will continue policies of neglect and indifference in service to what they see as the greater good: continued tax cuts for the wealthiest in this Nation.

The budget reconciliation act before us presents a stark choice for all Members of the House of Representatives—between supporting tax cuts for the wealthiest among us or opposing reductions in our already thin social safety net.

I urge my colleagues to make the moral choice today. Budgets reflect the moral compass of a nation. This budget reconciliation package is devoid of humanity and compassion and would take our Nation far off course of helping its neediest citizens. I urge my colleagues to stand with the children, the elderly, and the vulnerable of our Nation by voting against this reconciliation act.

If its passage occurs, I implore the congressmen to be compassionate and fair and to restore and maintain the social safety net for our neediest citizens.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my opposition to and concern about the devastasting cuts to essential services passed in this House today as part of the budget reconciliation package.

The cuts this body adopted today will have disastrous impacts on the western New York communities I represent. The unnecessary cuts to health, education and children’s programs will be particularly hard felt in and among the working families of Erie and Chautauqua Counties.

The ranks of the uninsured continue to swell in this country, and more and more Americans are concerned that someday they may find themselves without health insurance and unable to afford needed care. In fact, over 45 million Americans are without health insurance. Medicaid represents this government’s promise to provide health care to Americans who can least afford it. Over 4 million New Yorkers are enrolled in this quite literally life-saving program, including 1.8 million children. I voted against the bill today because it will cut Medicaid spending by more than $11 billion. That’s an $11 billion cut from caring for children suffering from leukemia, from pregnant mothers struggling to survive and from mentally disabled men and women trying to make a place for themselves in our communities; we should not make our budget cuts on their backs. Instead, we should be increasing health care access to more Americans, not fewer. If Medicaid is expanding, it’s because fewer Americans can afford health insurance, let’s not deny them the only access to care available to them.

I am also concerned that this legislation cuts over $14 billion from successful Federal student loan programs—the largest cuts ever to student aid. This is the wrong cut at the wrong time, because college costs continue to skyrocket and the gap between the rich and poor continues to grow.

Further, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, over 470,000 students across the State, depend on these loans to attend college and they depend on college as the key to economic opportunity. These cuts will needlessly deny that opportunity to young people in western New York who want to go to Medaille, Canisius, the University of Buffalo, my alma mater, Buffalo State, and others.

The reconciliation package is also an abdication of our responsibility to children. The bill cuts child support enforcement by almost $5 billion, abandoning single parents and rolling back the progress our society has made in this field. Children are not responsible for divorce or for parents abandoning their families. Let’s not turn back the clock and make them carry that responsibility. The bill cuts $577 million from foster care programs. And perhaps most troubling, it cuts $796 million from food stamps, which represent our promise that none of our children will ever go hungry. Mr. Speaker, I pledge to do better for the people of Western New York. Frankly, they do not deserve this bad budget.

Mr. Speaker, I object to the cuts this House adopted today, and I object to the slight of hand used to sell them.

SPEECH OF

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, most Americans watching their televisions looked on in horror at the extent of the destruction and suffering among the victims of Hurricane Katrina. President Bush and congressional Republicans apparently looked at these pictures with indifference and disdain.

I am forced to believe this because their budget bill—the so-called Deficit Reduction Act—aims to cut more than $50 billion from nearly every poverty program this country offers for the sake of later passing approximately $60 billion in tax breaks for the wealthiest Americans.

None of their recent actions fit neatly with their track record. Since the Republicans gained control of both the White House and Congress in 2001, 1.7 million more Americans live in poverty, average median income has declined $1,700, and the minimum wage—worse, not been increased since 1997—has its lowest purchasing power since 1990.

This budget continues the Republican trend of failing the American people in every possible way.

The Republican budget requires poor mothers and children under age 6 to double their weekly work hours from 20 to 40 in order to remain eligible for job training and vocational education. Yet, it fails to provide $10.5 billion for childcare funding which the non-partisan
HONORING THE LIFE OF LIEUTENANT COLONEL THOMAS A. WREN

HON. TOM DAVIS
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of Lieutenant Colonel Thomas A. Wren and to recognize his service to our Nation.

Lt. Col. Wren graduated from George Mason University and received a commission in the Army Reserve through the Reserve Officer Training Corps. He joined the 80th Division Army Reserve unit in 1984 and held positions in Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and Pennsylvania. He was called to active duty four times since 2000, serving in Bosnia, Afghanistan and Iraq. While not on active duty, Lt. Col. Wren worked as a project manager at Sytel working on projects at USAID, USDA, Army Research Laboratory as well as the State Department. His numerous decorations include two Bronze Stars.

Most recently, his assignment was assisting with the training of the Iraqi military. Tragically, Lt. Col. Wren was killed in an accident on November 5, 2005 in Talil, Iraq, in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Words cannot express the gratitude we feel to those who have made the ultimate sacrifice for our country. This is a debt that can never be repaid. I know words are not much comfort for the family of Lt. Col. Wren, who are no doubt suffering in the wake of the loss of this intelligent and dedicated man. I hope they will take some solace in knowing that we will never forget Lt. Col. Wren’s sacrifice or the sacrifices made by other patriots like him in defense of our Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I call upon my colleagues to remember in our minds and in our hearts the bravery and sacrifice of Lt. Col. Thomas A. Wren, as well as that of all the men and women of the armed services who honorably protect the American people.

COERCED STERILIZATIONS IN THE CZECH REPUBLIC AND SLOVAKIA

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, last week, the district court in the Czech town of Ostrava reached a very important decision. The court concluded that, in 2001 after the birth of her second child, a local Romani woman was sterilized without informed consent. In fact, since last year, the Czech Ombudsman has been examining dozens of similar cases. Although he has not yet issued any public report, it is expected that the Ombudsman will confirm that many other Romani women experienced similar violations of their rights, as documented by several Czech human rights groups and the European Roma Rights Center.

Sadly, the issue of sterilizations without informed consent is not new in this region. As early as 1977, the dissident group Charter 77 reported on systematic efforts to target Romani women in Czechoslovakia for coerced sterilization. While the vast majority of sterilizations in the Czech Republic and Slovakia since 1989 were performed with informed consent, the Ostra case demonstrates that the practice of performing sterilizations without informed consent did not completely end with the fall of the communist regime.

That precedent-setting court decision sheds light on a number of legal points in one specific case. At the same time, there are many larger questions still at issue, including whether racism against Roma contributed to the abuse. Frankly, given the large percentage of Romani women among the victims, the issue of coerced sterilization without informed consent compared with the small percentage of the Czech population that Roma constitute, it is hard for me to believe that that race did not play some role. There are, of course, other possible factors to consider: what role did a poor quality of medical care or training play in those cases of medical malpractice? Did a lack of respect for an individual’s liberty—a hold-over mentality from the totalitarian period—also contribute to the abuse?

I welcome the Ostra court’s decision and commend the plaintiffs, including Helena Ferencikova, for their courage in bringing it forward. I have also been heartened by the apparent seriousness of the Ombudsman’s investigation into this difficult and sensitive matter.

Unfortunately, similar issues in neighboring Slovakia continue to be met with government denials and stonewalling. In 2003, the Slovak Government concluded a year-long investigation into allegations that some Romani women were sterilized without informed consent, even after the fall of communism. That investigation was deeply flawed. At one point, for example, a spokesperson for the Minister for Human Rights threatened that anyone bringing forward allegations of sterilization without informed consent would go to jail, one way or another. This is not the way to foster confidence in an investigation or to encourage victims to speak out.

Significantly, the Czech investigation and the Slovak investigation both revolved around the same 1992 Czechoslovak law on sterilization, but in place before the two countries split apart. Czech authorities have understood that law as requiring that sterilizations had to be requested by the person who was going to be sterilized, that there had to be evidence of consent by that person, and that consent had to be meaningfully informed. Being “informed,” means, for example, that the expectant mother must be told why the procedure is necessary. If someone was given false information about the procedure, which was the case in many instances, then she was not meaningfully “informed.”

When interpreting the same law, however, Slovak authorities maintained that consent did not have to be “informed.” Accordingly, Slovak investigators examined numerous cases where there was no informed consent but still concluded there was no violation of the 1992 law because, according to their twisted logic, consent didn’t have to be informed.

In reality, the Slovak Government seemed to organize its investigation into the sterilization cases in a way that was designed to obfuscate the magnitude of the problem. The Slovak Government’s investigation revealed seven cases of Romani minors who were sterilized in violation of the then-existing Slovak law. In reality, the Slovak Government’s... interpretation of the concept of “consent” could not be reconciled with modern health norms and had to be changed to explicitly require that consent is informed. (The new law went into effect at the beginning of this year.) In reality, numerous international officials have repeatedly expressed concern over the sterilization policies in the Slovak Republic and the inadequacy of the Slovak Government’s response to them, including in the April 2005 report on the situation of Roma issued by the Council of Europe’s Human Rights Commission.

In light of all this, it is extremely frustrating to read that Slovak officials have, in recent months, made misleading statements about this important issue. Apparently one official has even declared that “illegal sterilizations of Romani women never happened in Slovakia.”

Mr. Speaker, when the institutions of justice are perceived to follow one set of rules for the majority and another for minorities, this is a recipe for social unrest—as we know from our own painful history.

I understand that it is always a difficult exercise for any government to admit its own wrongdoing or the wrongdoing of the majority society—we know this, too. But Romani mistrust of government institutions will only deepen if the Slovak Government persists in denying the wrongs perpetrated against their community.

Cinderella story. Runners-up in 2004, the Wheatley, this band of sisters turned a potential championship into their own. They refused to accept the loss; instead, they worked tirelessly to raise $71,000. The combined $420,000 has been distributed. Tessa has already accomplished a lifetime of charitable work. Tessa has created a highly successful charitable organization operated by children, known as Euphoria, because, as she stated, “I wanted an organization where kids could decide how they wanted to help other people. I wanted the community to see that we aren’t just followers, but a group of motivated youth seeking to make Columbia a better place.” Among their many volunteering activities, Tessa and her friends have collected books for schools, shelters and hospitals, gathered food for the homeless and entertained seniors living in retirement communities.

Tessa was recently recognized for her efforts. Every year, Nestlé honours outstanding young women and men for philanthropic activities in their local community. Out of 158 applicants, Nestlé selects 24 young people for their Very Best in Youth award. This year, Nestlé picked Tessa as one of the nation’s Very Best in Youth. I could not be prouder of this young woman. Not only has she dedicated significant amounts of her free time to helping out those who are less fortunate, Tessa has also amassed an impressive academic record, including earning straight A’s, receiving prestigious academic achievements and winning an award in the National PTA Reflections Essay Contest. I have no doubt she will be highly successful in whatever career she pursues, although a budding passion for literature and creative writing can also be expected to become a novelist. These volunteering experiences will surely provide Tessa excellent material to draw from in her writing.

After seeing the devastation of Hurricane Katrina, Tessa organized a Ride/Walk fundraising event in Columbia to help those in the Gulf Coast affected by the hurricane. Nestlé generously agreed to match whatever funds were raised. Out of the $210,000 raised nationwide, Tessa and her Ride/Walk event netted $71,000. The combined $420,000 has been donated to the American Red Cross Hurricane Katrina Relief Fund, which has been invaluable to aiding the plight of storm victims. I am always amazed at the generosity, benevolence and leadership of to day’s youth. With people like Tessa and the other Nestlé youth recipients, I strongly believe the future of our nation is in good hands.

I hope my colleagues share in my admiration of Tessa’s good works and encourage all Americans to follow her lead and get involved with charitable works in communities and neighborhoods across our great land.

To this collection of Cinderellas, I offer my congratulations.

CONGRATULATING THE VENICE HIGH SCHOOL LADIES’ VOLLEYBALL TEAM

HON. KATHERINE HARRIS
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate the Venice High School Lady Indians volleyball team, on their recent victory in the 2006 Class 5A state volleyball championship.

The team’s 26–7 regular season record and championship victory certainly deserve applause; however, the manner in which they achieved their goal truly makes them champions.

Under the leadership of Coach Brian Wheatley, this band of sisters turned a potentially disappointing season into a modern-day Cinderella story. Runners-up in 2004, the Wheatley, this band of sisters turned a potential championship into their own. They refused to accept the loss; instead, they worked tirelessly to raise $71,000. Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the life and memory of Dennis B. Underwood, an esteemed Western water expert and chief executive officer and general manager of the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California. Mr. Underwood passed away November 2 at his home in Alta Loma, California.

In commemorating the life of Dennis Underwood, I would like to highlight some of the notable contributions of his career as a humble public servant of this great nation. With a career that spanned nearly four decades, Mr. Underwood took part in water resource development and management at both the state and federal levels. Perhaps his biggest contribution to California’s water supply was during his role as the Metropolitan Water District’s vice president of Colorado River resources, which he was instrumental in the development of a plan that would bring the state’s water use in compliance with its legal appropriation of usage from the Colorado River. Additionally, Mr. Underwood played a central role in negotiating one of the nation’s largest habitat conservation programs covering 27 species along approximately 450 miles of the lower Colorado River. During his brief tenure as CEO and general manager of the Metropolitan Water District, Mr. Underwood launched initiatives that sought to further enhance relationships with public agencies as well as seeking new partners to preserve California’s water future.

Dennis Underwood’s desire to serve his country expanded beyond public service as he honorably served in the military during the Vietnam War as a captain with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Mr. Underwood won the admiration of his colleagues through his respectful interaction and clear sense of leadership; qualities which he carried with him later in life.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in honoring the life of Dennis B. Underwood and recognizing the lasting contributions and accomplishments that highlighted his career in water resource development and management.

Ms. WASSERMAN SCHULTZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my support and admiration for the American and International Societies for Yad Vashem, which will convene for their Annual Tribute Dinner on November 20th in New York. The American and International Societies for Yad Vashem are the development arms of Yad Vashem, the Holocaust Martyrs’ and Heroes’ Remembrance Authority in Jerusalem, Israel.

LEGISLATION TO ABOLISH AVIATION BARRIERS

HON. JON C. PORTER
OF NEVADA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, today I am proud to have introduced the “Abolishing Aviation Barriers Act of 2005”.

Currently there are two laws governing commercial aviation in the U.S. based on miles of flight restrictions. One governs the use of New York’s LaGuardia Airport (LGA) and the other governs usage of Washington, D.C.’s Reagan National Airport (DCA). Restrictions exist at LaGuardia on the departure or arrival of non-stop flights to or from airports that are farther than 1,500 miles from LGA. Reagan National has a similar restriction for non-stop flights to or from airports 1,250 miles from DCA. These restrictions are commonly referred to as “perimeter rules.”

The original purpose of these perimeter rules was to restrict LGA and DCA airports to business travelers flying to and from East Coast and Midwest cities and to promote traffic to other, newer airports by diverting long haul flights to Newark and Kennedy airports in the New York area and Dulles airport in the Washington, D.C. area. However, over the years, the federal government has made many changes to the perimeter rules for numerous exceptions to the perimeter rule at DCA because the air traveling public is eager for travel options.

Today, there are nonstop flights between Washington Reagan National and Denver, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Salt Lake City and Seattle. LGA’s rule was enacted by the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey with an exception already contained therein— for flights between Denver and LGA. It was justified on the basis of ground congestion, i.e. automobiles. The old road network that gave rise to this excuse has long since been replaced with the help of federal money.

In fact, a 1999 study by the Transportation Research Board stated that perimeter rules “no longer serve their original purpose and have produced too many adverse side effects, including barriers to competition . . . The rules arbitrarily prevent some airlines from extending their networks to these airports; they discourage competition among the airports in the region and among the airlines that use these airports; and they are subject to chronic attempts by special interest groups to obtain exemptions.”

That same year, the Government Accountability Office (GAO) stated that the “practical effect” of the perimeter rule “has been to limit entry” of other carriers. The GAO found that fares at LaGuardia and Washington National are approximately 50 percent higher on average than fares at similar airports unconstrained by the perimeter rule.

Mr. Speaker, I have introduced this legislation to promote more consumer choice and lower airfares for not only my own constituents, but for all of our air travelers.

GULF OPPORTUNITY ZONE PUBLIC FINANCE RELIEF ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. WILLIAM M. THOMAS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 16, 2005

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following correspondence for the RECORD.

HON. WILLIAM M. THOMAS,
Chairman, Committee on Financial Services,
Washington, DC, November 17, 2005.

Dear Mr. Speaker:

I am writing concerning H.R. 4337, the “Gulf Opportunity Zone Public Finance Relief Act of 2005,” which passed the House last night.

In fact, a 1999 study by the Transportation Research Board stated that perimeter rules “no longer serve their original purpose and have produced too many adverse side effects, including barriers to competition . . . The rules arbitrarily prevent some airlines from extending their networks to these airports; they discourage competition among the airports in the region and among the airlines that use these airports; and they are subject to chronic attempts by special interest groups to obtain exemptions.”

COMMEMORATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SOROPTIMIST WOMEN OF GARLAND

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the Soroptimist Women of Garland. Soroptimist International was founded in 1921 as an international organization of business and young professionals who work to improve the lives of fellow women and girls. In 1954, the Soroptimist Club of Garland was chartered with Mrs. Lillie Alma Bradfield serving as the first president.

Today the Soroptimist Women of Garland are dedicated to providing service opportunities to women focusing their service endeavors on the local community. They support community projects ranging from renovating domestic violence shelters and providing mammograms for low-income women, to sponsoring self-esteem workshops for teenage girls. In addition, the Soroptimist Women of Garland raise funds to support charities such as Meals on Wheels and scholarships for students from the Garland Independent School District.

The Soroptimist Women of Garland are truly helping make our community and our country a better place to live. As the Congressional representative for this outstanding service organization, it is my pleasure to honor them as they celebrate their 50th anniversary.

HONORING RETIRING GREEN COUNTY LEGISLATOR JEANNE Z. CHASE

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the public service of Erie County Legislator Jeanne Z. Chase, who has served the residents of the Erie County Legislature’s 12th Legislative district, which currently includes the towns of Boston, Brant, Eden, Evans, Hamburg, and North Collins, since her initial appointment in 1997, and who will leave the Legislature at the conclusion of her current term at the end of this year.

Jeanne Chase has been, above all else, someone dedicated to the sound and effective representation of her constituents, all of whom are also residents of the 27th Congressional district. It is her commitment to her constituents and to her community at large that has always impressed me about Jeanne Chase, and it is why I am delighted to honor her service to Erie County today.

Jeanne Chase is a lifelong resident of the Town of Evans. A graduate of Immaculata Academy, and SUNY Fredonia, Jeanne worked in the private sector for many years before seeking appointment to the 12th district seat upon the resignation of then-Legislator Bert Villarin in 1997. Jeanne defeated a well-known and well-funded challenger in her first election in 1997 and won re-election to her seat in three succeeding elections.

Jeanne Chase is a longtime member of the Legislature’s Public Safety committee, and has always placed the safety of her constituents as a top priority. As Chair of the Legislature’s Public Safety committee from 2002 to 2005, Erie County moved forward with the construction of the state-of-the-art Public Safety Campus, which, when completed, will become the communications center and focal point for all police, fire and emergency services in our region. A longtime supporter of crime victims’ rights, Jeanne has supported initiatives that increase protection for crime victims throughout New York State, and worked to establish a Domestic Violence Satellite Office in the Southtowns. Jeanne has seen many public accomplishments but cites as her greatest accomplishments her family. Husband Rob and daughter Chelsea are proud of Jeanne’s service to her constituents, and we are as well.

Jeanne Chase has chosen not to leave public service. She is applying her experience in the field of real estate to her service as Town Assessor in the Town of Evans. I am proud and grateful, Mr. Speaker, to call to the House’s attention the dedicated public service of Erie County Legislator Jeanne Chase, and I am certain that the whole House would join me in offering to Jeanne and to her entire family wishes of good luck and Godspeed in the months and years to come.

TRIBUTE TO THE CHURCH OF THE EPHYPANY 100TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues here in the House of Representatives to join me as I rise to acknowledge the Church of the Epiphany which will launch a year-long celebration of events and activities celebrating 100 years as a parish in Orange, New Jersey on Sunday, November 20, 2005.

On December 14, 1986, following the dissolution of Grace Church by the Diocese of Newark, Epiphany moved to the old Grace Church building at 105 Main Street. In an effort to honor and retain Epiphany’s history and create a new home that would provide a place for worship, fellowship, education and outreach, the congregation incorporated a marble, pipe, organ, and other furnishings from Epiphany’s original properties into the renovated church. With pride, Epiphany celebrated its first service on Main Street in January 1987.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues agree that the Church of the Epiphany has every right to be proud of the lasting contributions that it has made to the residents of Orange. Overcoming obstacles caused by segregation and demographic change, and addressing the needs of its neighbors are the legacy of Epiphany’s forefathers and mothers. I rise today to honor Epiphanyites, who for 100 years have steadfastly and faithfully created a community of worship and service in Orange.

RECOGNITION OF THE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL VOLLEYBALL TEAM

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding group of young women from Southern Illinois. The Central High School volleyball team from Breese, Illinois, won the 2005 Class A State championship on November 12, after going through the State finals without losing a single game. The Cougars finished the season with 33 wins and 9 losses.

Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate Head Coach Jim Cook and assistant coach Kelly Potthast on a truly outstanding season. Most of all, I want to recognize the members of the 2005 State champion Breese Central Cougars volleyball team: Britni Holtmann, Melanie Gartsdie, Bethany Becker, Sarah Barth, Megan Winkel, Cassy Becker, Lindsay Holtmann, Amanda Backes, Lauren Endres, Kelsi Scheer, Kelsey Straeter, Lauren Budde, Cassandra Deiters, Brittany Schrage, Kassi Scheer.

These young women did an exceptional job of representing themselves, their school and their community, and I wish them best of luck in all of their future endeavors.
Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the extraordinary life and achievements of David P. Kramer of Oakland, California.

Serving the working people of California for 34 years, David Kramer has been known throughout his career for his dedication to civil rights as well as his unwavering commitment to the labor movement. Today our community comes together to celebrate his career and achievements on the occasion of his retirement from SEIU Local 535 in Berkeley, California.

David Kramer was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in 1941. After graduating from Scott High School in North Braddock, Pennsylvania in 1959, he attended the Carnegie Institute of Technology, now known as Carnegie Mellon University, where he graduated with a Masters of Social Work degree in Community Organizing in 1967.

As part of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), David was involved in countless picketing and protest efforts that were aimed at achieving integration and equal employment. He was part of a crew of 60 involved in testing and enforcing the Civil Rights Act of 1964 through the integration of public facilities and voter registration procedures in Monroe, West Monroe, New Rhodes, and Baton Rouge, among other places in Louisiana. When he returned to Detroit in the spring of 1965, he became the first community organizer to work for the West Central Organization, which rallied members of the African American and rural Appalachian communities, together with neighborhood churches, union halls, block clubs, and social organizations. This coalition organized around issues such as school and police community relations, tenant rights, and urban renewal.

In 1967, David enrolled in the University of Michigan Graduate School of Social Work, where he graduated with a Masters of Social Work degree in Community Organizing in 1968. As part of his studies, he served in the Wayne County Office of Equal Opportunity and Detroit People Against Racism (PAR), an organization of which he eventually served as the executive director. During this time he also became deeply involved in the anti-Vietnam War movement and participated in demonstrations across the country, including at the Democratic Convention in 1968.

In 1969 he worked as a “lumper” on the night shift in a warehouse in Detroit, where he began to get more involved with the labor movement as the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was implemented. By strike involving 5,000 members took place, the longest county-wide strike in California history. In October 1967, he became the Executive Director of SEIU Local 616, where he served until May of 1980. He ultimately resigned from 616 in order to pursue a career as a self-employed carpenter.

In 1982, David returned to the labor movement and joined the Alameda County Tri-Local agency shop campaign to serve as an organizer, and in 1983 he once again became an organizer for Local 535, albeit for only a short period of time. During this time, he aided in the largest union security election in the history of the labor movement to date, involving more than 80,000 State workers and four bargaining units, of which 3 were won.

When David permanently returned to Local 535, he succeeded in organizing the North Bay Regional Center. He also made negotiations for the first contract for the Clinica de la Raza, and served the San Francisco chapter of Local 535 for 2 years. In November 1988, he became the regional director of Local 535, where he supervised 14 field staffs in 535’s Sacramento, Oakland, Santa Clara, and Fresno offices. David Kramer was eventually named Executive Director of Local 535 in the fall of 1996. Less than a year later in June of 1997, he was elected to serve on the SEIU’s International Executive Board, a position he will continue to hold until February 2006.

David also serves our community on the Oakland Board of Port Commissioners, a post to which he was nominated by former Oakland Mayor Eliku Harris. He has been reappointed three times since, making his record fourth appointment a first in the history of the Port of Oakland, and making David the Port’s longest serving commissioner. Today David Kramer’s family, friends and colleagues come together to celebrate the impact of his life and work not only on the innumerable lives, particularly the lives of working people, he has touched here in Alameda County, but the lasting effects his dedication and leadership have had and will continue to have on our community. On behalf of the 9th Congressional District of California, I salute and thank David Kramer for his invaluable contributions to the people of Alameda County, the 9th Congressional District, the State of California and our entire country.

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Mr. Michael Miller of West Covina, California. Mr. Miller was first elected to serve the citizens of West Covina in March of 2001 and has continued his service as Mayor to the city this December.

Mr. Miller has a long history of service to his community. Mr. Miller worked for the City of Garden Grove for 8 years and continued his service for the City of West Covina serving in the planning and development of the community. His distinguished service of 24 years in the City of West Covina’s Office of Planning, Public and Environmental Services was followed by an elected position to West Covina City Council for 4 years marked by merit. Mr. Miller also owns a small consulting business which addresses environmental and municipal issues affecting cities, individuals and small businesses.

Mr. Miller’s service extends beyond his duties as an elected official and city staff member. He serves as Director and Board Member of the California Waste Association; Director and Board Member of Southern California Waste Management Forum; and member of the Southern California Council for Environment and Economic Development. Mr. Miller is a member of the Lyons Club, serving as President from 1977–1978; member of the Citrus Valley Health Foundation 2100 Club, serving as President from 1999–2000; Director and Board Member of the West Covina Historical Society; House Supervisor for the Heritage House Restoration; Committee Member of the City of West Covina Chamber of Commerce Economic Development and Government Affairs; Committee Member of the YWCA Women of Achievement; and Committee Member of the West Covina Rose Parade Float.

For his many contributions, Mr. Miller has been named West Covina Citizen of the Year (1998), West Covina Volunteer of the Year, Recreational Services (1999) and CovinaWest Covina Coordinating Council Volunteer of the Year (1999).
In addition to his service to the community, Mr. Miller has been a devoted and loving husband to his wife Rosella of 37 years and father to his two children Melissa and Kevin. It is with pleasure that I recognize Mr. Michael Miller for his significant contributions and noteworthy dedication and service to his community.

TRIBUTE TO GAIL JOYCE BEAGLE

HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, my distinguished colleagues; it is a special honor that I pay tribute today to a great American and distinguished career in appointive public service, but since her retirement, continues to work for the public good in a variety of capacities.

Born in Beaumont, Texas on November 25, 1935, she was reared at Nederland on land her maternal grandfather, Martin Block, had earlier farmed for many years. Upon graduation from high school, she entered Texas Woman’s University at Denton where she graduated with a bachelor’s degree in journalism in 1958. At TWU she held various positions, including Day Editor, on the campus newspaper, the Daily Lass-O. Her academic standing in journalism resulted in her selection for membership in the honorary fraternity for women in journalism called Theta Sigma Phi (now called Association of Women in Communications). (At the turn of the last century women were not allowed in the then all-male journalism societies so it was necessary to establish a separate journalism fraternity for women—with its beginnings at the University of Washington at Seattle.)

When Gail, journalism professors in 1957 told her she could not editorialize in the campus newspaper as to why TWU accepted young women as students from all over the world, but no black women were at the State institution of higher learning, she, in turn, posed this question in an editorial in the Methodist Student Movement’s newsletter as to why there were no black women at TWU. During that time she was president of the Methodist college group for both TWU and North Texas State University.

As the result of this effort, the TWU president and a few of his advisory committee faculty members were not happy with her, but she weathered the storm, and continued her integration effort. While working in 1959 for my father, the late Henry B. Gonzalez, then a State senator, who represented San Antonio at Austin, she got a nice telegram from a TWU history professor, congratulating her and telling her that TWU was to accept its first black female students in the fall of 1959.

During the summer of 1957, she was a Texas Daily Newspaper Association intern in the San Antonio newspaper, but after college graduation, she did not immediately return to San Antonio, but landed her first job in Austin in late summer 1958. Earlier that summer, working out of her parents’ home, she had a brief stint as Jefferson County volunteer campaign manager for my father’s unsuccessful bid to be Governor of Texas.

In the Fall of 1961, she returned to San Antonio as a permanent resident and campaigned in my father’s bid to be the first Hispanic from Texas to be elected to Congress where he served in the House for 37 years, and for the most part of those years, Gail served him and the 20th Congressional District of Texas as the Chief of Staff and Press Secretary in Washington, returning home to San Antonio from time to time. Among many achievements for the people, as well as for my father, she was instrumental in his decision to be the first Member of Congress, south of the Mason Dixon line, to hire the first black congressional staff member. The staff member was the late Cora Faye Clayton, a graduate of Our Lady of the Lake University in San Antonio, who served for 30 years, first in Washington and then in San Antonio, with honor and distinction. Additional milestones for Gail included completion of a Master of Arts degree in Legislative Affairs (MALA) from George Washington University.

Earlier in Austin, Gail had served on the State Executive Committee of the Young Democrats of Texas and was involved in many civil rights demonstrations in 1959–61, including several at a University of Texas campus area movie house which would not sell tickets to blacks, even if they were students at UT. Further, the restaurants there would not serve blacks unless they had a UT student ID card. Gail says a State senator one time got out of his car, walked down the line observing the young demonstrators at the movie house, and then harassed them, as he walked away denouncing them, under his breath, as a “bunch of communists.” When Gail came to Washington with my father in late 1961, she, as well as other women, was denied membership in several organizations, including the Texas Breakfast Club, a Washington discussion group. It took years for those barriers for women to come down!

Currently, Gail is president of the Henry B. Gonzalez Foundation for Inspiring Public Service which seeks to establish, at the downtown campus of the University of Texas at San Antonio, a center, named for my father, for Public Service, Integrity and Courage. She is also the Democratic chair for my precinct, and is active in many social, religious, and public service endeavors. For a few months she was the interim director of the Guadalupe Community Center that serves a poor neighborhood in my district.

Gail, your record of service and achievements could fill a book. I congratulate you and wish you a happy and healthy 70th birthday, with many more to come!

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. JEFF FORTENBERRY
OF NEBRASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Speaker, on Thursday, November 17, 2005, I was unavoidably detained due to a death in my family and thus missed rollcall vote No. 600. Had I been present, I would have voted “aye.”

HONORING THE CEDAR CREEK ROTARY CLUB

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to help celebrate two significant anniversaries of Rotary International. This year, Rotary International celebrated its 100th anniversary. From its humble roots in Chicago, Illinois, Rotary has grown into a worldwide organization of business and professional leaders who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build good will and peace in the world. Since 1943, Rotary International has distributed more than $1.1 billion to combat Polio, promote cultural exchanges and encourage community service.

I also want to recognize the Cedar Creek Rotary Club for their 19 years of service to Henderson County. Throughout its history, the Cedar Creek Rotary Club has achieved great success in carrying out the mission of Rotary International.

The Cedar Creek Rotary Club has raised money to provide scholarships for local youth, exchange programs, and faculty and student luncheons. Their support in the community can be seen through their involvement in local organizations. They helped start the Genesis Center for abused women. In addition, they strongly support organizations, such as the Rainbow Room, Toys for Tots, local school programs and the YMCA.

Through these initiatives, the Cedar Creek Rotary Club exemplifies the values of service and charity that lie at the heart of American society. As the Congressional representative of the members of this outstanding organization, it is my distinct pleasure to honor them today in the United States House of Representatives.

HONORING RETIRING ERIE COUNTY LEGISLATOR TIMOTHY WROBLEWSKI

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor a friend and fellow public official whose service has been exemplary and whose commitment to the residents and taxpayers of the towns of West Seneca and Cheektowaga, and the residents of the county of Erie at large, has been commendable. Today, I wish to honor the service of retiring Erie County Legislator Timothy Wroblewski.

Tim Wroblewski began his career as an elected official as a member of the West Seneca Town Board. During that service, Tim worked with local officials to make West Seneca’s government among the most efficient and effective local governments in New York State—forging relationships across party lines and working cooperatively with civic, government and community leaders to make West Seneca government the envy of local governments statewide.

With an open-seat election for the ninth legislative district seat available in 2004, Tim Wrobleswski entered the race for the County Legislature and took office in January 2004. Since his election to the legislature, Tim served as a strong voice on behalf of Erie County’s taxpayers. Tim’s commitment to his constituency was admirable, and I have always valued his friendship, both on a personal as well as a professional level.

The residents of the towns of West Seneca and South Cheektowaga are better for the service provided to them by Tim Wrobleswski, and I want to thank you, Mr. Speaker, for this opportunity to recognize the accomplishments of a responsible and effective public official.

TRIBUTE TO MS. JORDAN ROWAN

HON. DONALD M. PAYNE
OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to rise today to congratulate an extraordinary employee of mine who is unfortunately leaving our office this Thursday, November 17, 2005. Ms. Jordan Rowan will be leaving our office to join her future husband, Mr. Coleman Fannin, in Dayton, OH, as well as to pursue other professional opportunities.

Jordan joined my office in fall 2003 as an intern and through her hard work, she advanced and through her hard work, she advanced to legislative assistant. Among her many areas, she handled environmental issues for me. We share a great love for the environment and for its preservation. Therefore, she has been an indispensable asset to me as the Congress has debated many critical environmental bills this year.

Over the 2 years that she has worked for me, she also has gained the necessary skill of deciphering my cryptic questions with even vaguer clues. Any time I needed her to find an obscure factoid, I could readily rely upon her.

She has a big empathetic heart that, many times, has helped to ground myself and others in my office when a larger perspective was greatly needed. In fact, when most other brides chose the dresses for wedding gifts to supplement their new lives, she wanted to help others by registering with Heifer International, an organization that provides live stock to families in developing countries. Like Heifer International, she believes in giving but giving with the purpose of empowering others to better themselves economically and socially.

Mr. Speaker, I invite my colleagues here in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in congraulating Ms. Jordan Rowan as she moves on to the next important stage of her life. While exemplifying professionalism and integrity, Jordan has not only brightened my office but also has assisted me legislatively on many important issues. I am proud to have had her work in my office and wish her never-ending success in her future endeavors.

TRIBUTE TO DETECTIVE MIKE METZLER

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS
OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Detective Mike Metzler of Alton, IL. Detective Metzler, a 10-year veteran of the Alton Police Department, was recently awarded the Pastor Paul-Gerhard Braune Award for his work on the department’s Crisis Intervention Team, CIT. This State-level award is from the National Alliance on Mental Illness of Illinois. CIT officers, like Detective Metzler, respond to situations where people in a crisis situation. Detective Metzler has used his training at a CIT to prevent individuals from committing suicide and has also helped to bring calm to other dangerous situations.

Aside from his work as a CIT officer, he also serves as the Alton public school police-school liaison. As well, he travels to other States to train officers about crisis intervention.

I am pleased to thank Detective Metzler for his outstanding work. I congratulate him on his award.

HONORING SUEY GEE

HON. BARBARA L.李
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the extraordinary life and achievements of World War II veteran Suey W. Gee of Oakland, CA. This weekend Mr. Gee celebrates his 79th birthday, his 80th birthday according to the Chinese lunar calendar. On this special occasion his friends and family will gather to honor him for his noteworthy contributions he has made not only to their lives, but also to our country.

Suey W. Gee was born in Canton, China on November 19, 1926. As a youth, he emigrated to the United States with his father to find work and help support his family back in China. In March 1945, at the age of 19, he enlisted into the U.S. Army to aid his newly adopted country during World War II. He served in the 128th infantry and trained as an anti-aircraft gunner. His unit was ultimately deployed to Hiroshima, Nakasaki and Okinawa following the atomic bombings that destroyed those cities, where he served as part of the occupation army and helped to facilitate the disarmament of Japan.

Mr. Gee was honorably discharged from military service on November 22, 1946. Though Mr. Gee was awarded the World War II Victory Medal, the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal and the Army of Occupation Medal under President Franklin D. Roosevelt, due to the metal shortage during the war era, in addition to the fact that he moved around frequently in search of work, he did not receive his medals at that time.

In 1948, Mr. Gee traveled back to China where he married Sue King Gee, and they subsequently returned to the U.S. together. Mr. Gee became a proud citizen of the United States on September 18, 1957, and Mrs. Gee became a citizen soon after.

Like many immigrant families who come to America, Mr. and Mrs. Gee faced many obstacles, overcoming poverty, hardship and discrimination as they persevered toward achieving their dreams. They worked in the food service, canning and sewing industry for over 58 years, Mr. and Mrs. Gee have three daughters and one son, all of whom are currently living or working in the city of Oakland as active and productive members of our community.

Mr. Gee is retired now and spends his time keeping up with local and national politics. At almost 80 years old, he still votes regularly and remains civically engaged in the country that he served in the U.S. Army more than 60 years ago.

On this very special occasion, Mr. Gee’s friends and family will come together not only to celebrate his birthday, but to present him with his hard-earned and well-deserved military service medals over six decades after his honorable discharge. On behalf of California’s Ninth Congressional District, I would like to take this opportunity to salute and thank Mr. Suey W. Gee for his brave service to our country, and for his invaluable contributions to our community.

RECOGNIZING MR. BENJAMIN S. WONG

HON. HILDA L. SOLIS
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. SOLIS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Mr. Benjamin S. Wong of West Covina, California. Mr. Wong was first elected to serve the citizens of West Covina in April 1992 and served as mayor from 1997–1998. He is currently the mayor pro tempore and is completing his service to the city as an elected official this December.

Ms. Wong has a long history of service to the community with membership to various organizations and boards. He is a member of the West Covina Lyons (1981–1994); Board of Directors and former President of the Chamber of Commerce; the Queen of the Valley Foundation; the Queen of the Valley Men’s Club; the Intercommunity Medical Center Men’s Club, member of the 2100 Club; and First Federal Savings and Loan of San Gabriel Valley Board of Directors, 1991–present.

Mr. Wong’s service to the residents of West Covina includes a broad spectrum of boards and municipal organizations, all of which address issues of commerce, urban development and revitalization. This service includes the Redevelopment Agency Relocation Appeals Board; Citizens Committee on Public Services and Facilities; Police Commander Interview Board; San Gabriel Valley Business and Citizens Consortium Board Member, 1992–present; vice president from 1993–1994; and Foothill Transit Executive Board Member, 1994–present.

In addition to his service to the community, Mr. Wong is a devoted and loving husband to his wife Deborah of 26 years and father to his three children: Courtney, Justin and Adam. It is with pleasure that I recognize Mr. Benjamin S. Wong for his significant contributions and noteworthy dedication and service to his community.
HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005
Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Charles Reed, RN, BSN, CNRN, Patient Care Coordinator for the University Health System in San Antonio, Every year, thousands of nurses across the country are nominated for the 2005 Nursing Excellence Awards. The RNs are nominated by their colleagues, peers, and managers and selected by a panel of nurse leaders. The Nursing Excellence Awards exemplify the best that professional nursing has to offer. They bring initiative, ingenuity, and inspiration to their workplaces and communities, setting the standards for accomplishment in communities, setting the standards for accomplishment in nursing.

In addition, the Nursing Excellence Awards recognize extraordinary nurses who represent the countless other dedicated nurses who play a crucial role in the nation’s health care system. Mr. Reed’s outstanding performance earned him a finalist position in this year’s competition.

Mr. Reed rose through the ranks from student nurse to patient care coordinator in the health system and now has duties ranging from meeting staffing needs and coaching, counseling, and mentoring nurses to managing patient care. He ensures clinical practice is kept to the highest standard, frequently by working one-on-one with nurses, and he often meets with ICU patients once staying over an additional 4 hours to be sure a family’s concerns were addressed.

I commend Mr. Reed for all the hard work and dedication he gives to his patients at University Health System and I wish him the best of luck next year.

HONORING THE WHITE ROCK ROTARY CLUB

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005
Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to celebrate two significant anniversaries of Rotary International. This year, Rotary International celebrated its 100th anniversary. From its humble roots in Chicago, Illinois, Rotary has grown into a worldwide organization of business and professional leaders who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build goodwill and peace in the world. Since 1943, Rotary International has distributed more than $1.1 billion to combat Polio, promote cultural exchanges and encourage community service.

I also want to recognize the White Rock Rotary Club for their 45 years of service to the community. Throughout its history, the White Rock Rotary Club has achieved great success in carrying out the mission of Rotary International.

The White Rock Rotary Club has raised money to support charities and programs, such as Journey of Hope. The White Rock Rotary Club has also been very involved in a local community project building a picnic pavilion in conjunction with two other local rotary clubs in honor of Rotary International’s 100th Anniversary. In addition, they support community endeavors such as tutoring programs and nursing home visits for seniors without family members.

Through these initiatives, the White Rock Rotary Club exemplifies the values of service and charity that lie at the heart of American society. As the Congressional representative of the members of this outstanding organization, it is my honor to honor them today in the United States House of Representatives.

HONORING RETIRING ERIE COUNTY LEGISLATOR ELISE M. CUSACK

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005
Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor the 4 years of elective service by retiring Erie County Legislator Elise M. Cusack. Legislator Cusack was elected in 2001, replacing a man who was then the longest-serving member, William A. Pauly. Legislator Cusack’s district includes the towns of Amherst and Tonawanda, but includes a small portion of the town of Cheektowaga, which is located within the 27th Congressional District.

Elise Cusack has been an energetic representative of her constituents, maintaining a full service district office and garnering a reputation for effective constituent service. Although Legislator Cusack and I sit on different sides of the political aisle, I have always respected her intellect and her demonstrated commitment to her constituents.

Beginning on January 1, 2006, Elise Cusack will be able to don her other governmental hat—that of a member of the Board of Trustees of the New York Power Authority. For a full-time basis. As someone with a keen interest in the actions of that public authority, I look forward to many anticipated future opportunities to interact with Legislator Cusack in a professional capacity.

In closing, I appreciate this opportunity, Mr. Speaker, to rise and honor the service of Legislator Elise Cusack and I want to offer to her, her husband and children my very best wishes of good luck and Godspeed in all of her future endeavors.

TRIBUTE TO BRENDA DENIS O’CONNOR ON THE OCCASION OF HIS 50TH BIRTHDAY

HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005
Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, as Congress prepares to recess today for the Thanksgiving holiday, I wish to take a moment to congratulate my friend Brendan O’Connor on the recent occasion of his 50th birthday, November 3, and to express my gratitude for his extraordinary contributions to the greater Worcester, Massachusetts community. In a place rich with kind people and colorful characters, Brendan stands apart but certainly not alone. His quick wit, brilliant sense of humor and boundless compassion have endeared him to countless admirers both near and far. This was never more evident than at the spectacular 50th birthday celebration his wonderful wife Claire and devoted sons Rory and Eamon hosted for him at Worcester’s historic Tuckerman Hall on Saturday, October 22, 2005. My wife Lisa and I were honored to attend that unforgettable evening with scores of Brendan’s family and closest friends. The night was made truly special by the presence of Brendan’s father, Sean, who traveled from the family’s native Limerick City, Ireland; and all four of his siblings—his brothers, John, Kevin and Declan, and his sister, Carmel. And while Brendan’s dear departed mother Joan (Horgan) O’Connor was not able to be there in person, her spirit was felt in the festive atmosphere that continued well into the night. All in all, the birthday party was an incredible tribute to Brendan but it does not reveal the full measure of the man.

Mr. Speaker, in addition to being a great human being, Brendan O’Connor is also a very successful entrepreneur. As proprietors of the renowned O’Connor’s Restaurant and Bar in Worcester, Brendan and Claire have graciously welcomed thousands upon thousands of hungry and thirsty patrons to their establishment. Every customer that comes through their doors is treated to excellent cuisine accompanied by the sterling service and warm hospitality the Irish have made famous. In fact, O’Connor’s has grown from more than just a popular dining destination. It has become an institution deeply embedded in the fabric of the Worcester community. This is due in large part to Brendan’s remarkable gift for making everyone he encounters feel special and at home.

However, it is important to note that Brendan does not reserve his gifts and talents for his patrons alone. He has generously given his time and energy to numerous civic and charitable causes. As a long-time board member and past-president of the Emerald Club of Worcester County, Brendan has raised enormous financial support for the clients of the Mercy Centre through the promotion of Irish cultural events. His tireless efforts on behalf of the Emerald Club and the Ancient Order of Hibernians earned him the well-deserved honor of having been previously selected as the Grand Marshal of Worcester’s annual Saint Patrick’s Day Parade. Brendan has also shared his talents with the Worcester area youth as a volunteer soccer coach for many years. His unbridled passion and skillful teaching of the sport have produced numerous championship teams at various competitive levels. More importantly, he has been a positive guiding force in the lives of an untold number of young people.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I would like to simply say that Brendan O’Connor is among the most beloved figures in my hometown of Worcester, Massachusetts. His charm is exceeded only by his devotion to his family and fellow man. I look forward to celebrating many more happy occasions with he and his wife.
Claire and congratulate him again on this important milestone in his life.

COMMENDING THE FEDERATION OF FAMILIES FOR CHILDREN'S MENTAL HEALTH

HON. MADELEINE Z. BORDALLO OF GUAM

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and congratulate the Federation of Families for Children’s Mental Health (FFCMH) upon the occasion of their 17th Annual Conference. Their conference will be held this weekend in Washington, D.C., and will be hosted by I Famagu’on-ta, the chapter and delegation from Guam. The Federation is a national family-run network of community-based organizations dedicated to improving mental health services for children through advocacy, training, family support, and engagement in the public policy process. I commend the Federation for their support, service and commitment to children with mental health needs and their families throughout the United States.

In January of 2002, Guam advocates for families reached out to the Federation for assistance as resources and support for children with mental needs and their families in our community were largely unavailable on island. The association with Guam was born of the efforts initiated by Mary-Therese Edgeedge, who at that time was a concerned parent on Guam. Through her vision and dedication, a family organization for parents whose children experience serious emotional disturbances or S.E.D. was established in the territory.

Through its former executive director, Barbara Huff, the Federation lent extraordinary assistance and key backing to Guam advocates in the early efforts to organize on behalf of children with mental health needs. Barbara personally saw to it that the Federation grew to include membership and organization in Guam. As a result of the collaboration between Guam advocates and Federation leaders, Guam’s families began to learn and understand their rights and the many possibilities and programs that could be developed to help their children affected by S.E.D.

Sandra Spencer, the current Federation executive director, has been equally supportive of Guam. Under her direction and guidance, Guam has been blessed with ongoing leadership training through Lisa Conlan, the technical assistance partnership and peer mentor. The various board, individualized evaluation plan, crises, and family partners train-the-trainer programs, as well as their technical support, have provided invaluable expertise and assistance to the families and most especially, the children of Guam. The Federation staff members have given of their time willingly and unselfishly, as have other Federation Chapters, to provide Guam with much needed support, resources and information. In particular, I would like to recognize Sue Smith from the Parent Support Network in Georgia for her steadfast dedication and assistance to the Guam Federation.

With the benefit of a $180,000 statewide Family Network Grant award in October 2002, the Guam Chapter successfully identified and strengthened local families through early program development stages. This work has resulted in a $9.5 million grant. The Child Mental Health Initiative Cooperative Agreement with the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration was entitled Project I Famagu’on-ta or “Our Children,” in support of children and families impacted by S.E.D. As a result of Federation training, Guam Identifies Families Terrific Strengths, Inc., or G.I.F.T.S. was awarded tax-exempt status as a 501(c)(3) non-profit charitable organization in October 2003.

The development and implementation of legislation in Guam has further helped to shape and create a nationally recognized system of care on Guam. This legislation has also helped form G.I.F.T.S. as a new Federation chapter. It is this territorial chapter that is hosting the registration of the Federation of Families National Conference this weekend. The establishment of G.I.F.T.S. marks the beginning stage of an association providing much needed services to children and families on Guam.

I commend and congratulate the Federation of Families for Children’s Mental Health for their unselfish devotion, commitment and support provided to those affected by S.E.D. I further express my sincere and heartfelt gratitude for their outstanding work in making a difference in the lives of the families and children of Guam and in other communities throughout the nation. Through the efforts of the Federation our nation has the ability to foster healthy emotional development for our children in need. I wish the Federation a successful and productive conference. Dankulo na Si Yu’os Ma’ase and thank you.

HONORING THE ROWLETT ROTARY CLUB

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to help celebrate two significant anniversaries of Rotary International. This year, Rotary International celebrated its 100th anniversary. From its humble roots in Chicago, Illinois, Rotary has grown into a worldwide organization of business and professional leaders who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build goodwill and peace in the world. Since 1943, Rotary International has distributed more than $1.1 billion to combat Polio, promote cultural exchanges and encourage community service.

I also want to recognize the Rowlett Rotary Club for their 20 years of service to the community. Throughout its history, the Rowlett Rotary Club has achieved great success in carrying out the mission of Rotary International.

The Rowlett Rotary Club has raised money to provide scholarships for local youth. They have been involved in local community projects, such as a community sleeping bag collection to provide over 100 sleeping bags for the homeless. They also work with neighborhood organizations like Jonathan’s Place, a home for children who are victims of drug and alcohol abuse. In addition, they support charities such as Equest, New Beginning’s Center, and Rowlett Needy Children’s Fund.

Through these initiatives, the Rowlett Rotary Club exemplifies the values of service and charity that lie at the heart of American society. As the Congressional representative of the members of this outstanding organization, it is my distinct pleasure to honor them today in the United States House of Representatives.

HONORING RETIRING ERIE COUNTY LEGISLATOR STEVEN P. McCARVILLE

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor the service of a public official with more than fourteen years of continuous service as a elected official. I rise to honor the distinguished service of my friend, Erie County Legislator Steve McCarville.

Steve McCarville is a lifelong resident of the town of Orchard Park, and began his public service as a member of the Orchard Park Village Board in 1991. Serving as Village Trustee from 1991 to 1997, Steve was part of a village team, including then-fellow trustee and current New York State Supreme Court Justice John Curran, that oversaw a transformation in the village of Orchard Park into what we see today—a vibrant, bustling village environment in one of Erie County’s most successful suburban towns.

In 1997, Steve won election to the Orchard Park Town Board, a position he held until his appointment to a vacant 13th District seat in the Erie County Legislature. In 2001, Steve was appointed to serve the balance of a two year term and was later elected in his own right to represent the 13th district, which encompasses the towns of Aurora, Colden, Collins, Concord, and Orchard Park.

In the Legislature, Steve’s work has been marked by a strong deliver of constituent services. In addition, he has secured funding for vital county road repairs in his district, opened the first Satellite Office in the town of Boston, and has worked to revitalize the Emery Park Inn.

Steve McCarville and I have an interesting past, in that he was my first opponent for a seat in the New York State Assembly in 1998. Although it was a tough and hard fought contest, Steve always kept his standards and integrity that we were able to resume our friendship at the end of that contest. Politics is politics, Mr. Speaker, but I am pleased to know that in the area of serving the public and the people who elected us to our respective offices, Steve McCarville and I were able to work cooperatively and effectively. We checked our politics at the door, and the public was better served for it.

Steve has at all times, expressed a sincere and steadfast intention to effectively represent the residents and taxpayers of Erie County in general and of his district in particular. He has served well, Mr. Speaker, and I am honored and privileged to call the House’s attention to that service here today, and am grateful to have this opportunity to honor him.
Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, today I am happy to congratulate Suresh and Jay Maniam of Arlington, Virginia, on the birth of their new baby boy. Deccan West Venkat Maniam was born on November 4, 2005 at 8:02 AM, weighing 6 pounds, 13 ounces and measuring 19 inches long. Deccan has been born into a loving home, where he will be raised by parents who are devoted to his well-being and bright future. His birth is a blessing.

HONORING THE MESQUITE ROTARY CLUB

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Today, I would like to help celebrate two significant anniversaries of Rotary International. This year, Rotary International celebrated its 100th anniversary. From its humble roots in Chicago, Illinois, Rotary has grown into a worldwide organization of business and professional leaders who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build goodwill and peace in the world. Since 1943, Rotary International has distributed more than $1 billion to combat Polio, promote cultural exchanges and encourage community service.

I also want to recognize the Mesquite Rotary Club for their 46 years of service to the community. Throughout its history, the Mesquite Rotary Club has achieved great success in carrying out the mission of Rotary International.

The Mesquite Rotary Club has raised money to provide scholarships for local youth and worked with Rotary International to help eradicate polio. They have assisted the Mission East Dallas Charity Clinic as well as donating to a program that distributes wheelchairs all over the world. In addition, they have been very involved in local community projects, such as the Centennial Project, Annual Bike Ride and improving a new playground and making it accessible for children with special needs.

Through these initiatives, the Mesquite Rotary Club exemplifies the values of service and charity that lie at the heart of American society. As the Congressional representative of the members of this outstanding organization, it is my distinct pleasure to honor them today on the floor of the United States House of Representatives.

HONORING RETIRING LACKAWANNA COUNCILMAN RICARDO ESTRADA

HON. BRIAN HIGGINS
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to honor retiring Lackawanna City Councilman Ricardo Estrada, who will on December 31, 2005, complete 8 years of service as a member of the Lackawanna City Council.

Ricky Estrada is a leader of significance in the city of Lackawanna and in his beloved first ward that he has served so well. Consistently re-elected by his constituents, Ricky Estrada has been a strong voice for an economically challenged community, and it is his leadership that will allow for the resurgence of Lackawanna's first ward in the years to come.

It would be hard for me, Mr. Speaker, to imagine a group of elected leaders who support our vision for the reform of the transportation infrastructure of Buffalo and Lackawanna's waterfront areas than the elected leaders of the city of Lackawanna. Leaders like Ricky Estrada have long recognized the need to offer greater public access to our region's waterfront, and his support and that of his colleagues has been outstanding and meaningful, and effective for the people he represents.

While my friend Councilman Estrada will be succeeded on the Lackawanna City Council by an effective community leader, it is unquestioned that his retirement will be a loss for the city council in general and for the city as a whole. It is my fervent hope that Ricky Estrada will remain an active member of our community, so that we may continue to work together toward the betterment of our region.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for this opportunity to honor Councilman Estrada, and his faithful service to the residents and taxpayers of the city of Lackawanna.

WITNESS FOR JUSTICE: UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to enter into the RECORD “Witness for Justice #223” entitled The Sons and Daughters... published on July 18, 2005, by the United Church of Christ of Cleveland, Ohio. The article eloquently written by Bernice Powell Jackson, the Executive Minister of this Church on 700 Prospect Avenue in Cleveland, addresses an issue that should be in the hearts and on the lips of every minister, rabbi and imam when he or she stands before a congregation.

The subject of The Sons and Daughters article was the difficulty the U.S. Army was having recruiting enough men and women to meet recruiting goals. At the time Minister Jackson wrote this article the Army was experiencing sufficient difficulty that they were raising the promotion of high school dropouts, dropping standards and, as could be found, as she put it, circulating “vulnerable young men and women like hawks flying over little chicks.”

Minister Jackson did not question the patriotism of the young people failing to sign up with recruiters. She speculated the young people had gotten wiser. Perhaps she thought these men and women were looking at certain realities about the pre-emptive war they would fight if they enlisted. At the time of this article these young people had experienced 2 years “of watching a war which has so far resulted in nearly 1800 deaths and ten times that many injuries.” Perhaps they were thinking how much life they had before them at the age of 18, 19, 20 or 21. Maybe they knew someone who had been burned or had lost both of his or her legs and faced a life time of disability at the age of 21.

Or, Minister Jackson thought, perhaps these young people had begun to detect the varying rationales and purposes stated by the Bush administration for why the United States was fighting in Iraq. The purpose of the War, according to the President, was to save our country from “imminent danger” from weapons of mass destruction that might come in the form of “a mushroom cloud.” But 2 years on, there were no weapons of destruction and no imminent danger; so different reasons for the war were being substituted for the war in Iraq. We were fighting in Iraq to stop the terrorists. However, many were saying the American presence in Iraq was creating terror.

Of course, Minister Jackson speculated that these young people might not want to sign up for a war when the statements of the Secretary of Defense, Donald Rumsfeld, could not be relied upon for any certainty about when there would come home, and for how long. Secretary Rumsfeld’s statements about how long the United States would be in Iraq changed almost daily. Secretary Rumsfeld could not articulate a coherent plan for the war and neither could the President of the United States.

Young people, Minister Jackson speculated, might be frightened by the tactics used by recruiters to pressure young, vulnerable youths whose personnel information, including their names, social security numbers, race, ethnic background and telephone numbers the Defense Department received because one of the provisions of the No Child Left Behind Act was being shared by the Defense Department with a sharing with a private contractor who sold goods and products to young men about the age of those being recruited.

The tactics of the Pentagon are enabled by the No Child Left Behind Act as currently written. Minister Jackson pointed out that parents have to opt out of the program to get the military to leave their child off the potential recruitment list. Some in Congress have tried to change this law so that the parents would have to opt in so their child would be on the recruitment list. Those attempts failed because they were voted down by the Republican hawks in Congress. Minister Jackson noted in a column by Bob Herbert of the New York Times the statement: “There are always plenty of hawks in America. But the hawks who sent their wars fought with other people’s children.”

Minister Jackson wrote “our young people are in danger.” She advised all of us to write our President, Secretaries of Defense and Education, our Congressperson and Senators and let them know about these recruiters and these lists.

This statement by Minister Jackson goes to the heart of what is wrong with this war. The entire burden is shared by a tiny percentage of citizens of this country. Not one tax cut has been repealed and absent a draft only those who are poor, underemployed or with no hope of a job or college are enlistling. The people of this country do not see the flag draped coffins at Dover Air Force Base. They do not see the young soldiers who have lost their sight and their limbs or who are in comas from head wounds or burned beyond recognition. They do not give up a job to sit by the bedside of a son who does not recognize them or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs at the age of 16. They do not attend the funerals of a 20 year old or an 18 year old who is dead just out of high school.

For most people in this country there is no war. There were complaints of how veterans were treated when they returned from Vietnam. Think of how veterans returning from Iraq must feel when they realize no one in their country felt any impact of a war in which they lost so much.

HONORING EDUCATION SUPPORT PROFESSIONALS

HON. PETER A. DEFAZIO
OP ORPON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. DeFAZIO. Mr. Speaker, this week is American Education Week and I would like to take this opportunity to recognize and honor all the men and women across the country who serve as Education Support Professionals, ESP, in our Nation’s public schools. Education Support Professionals are essential school employees who interact daily with students, teachers, parents and the community every day. Bus drivers are the first and final link in the daily chain of events for every student in a school district.

Standards of performance for bus drivers in a given day will include but not be limited to: checking all safety and communications equipment on the bus at the beginning and end of each day, protect children from unsanitary conditions, returning lost and found student personal property, manage emergency situations, handle and stabilize student behavior which may put them and other students or staff at risk.

Take a moment to appreciate and recognize this fine group of Americans who are dedicated, loyal and committed to our future and the educational enhancement of all public school students.

PLACEMENT OF STATUE OF ROSA PARKS IN NATIONAL STATUTORY HALL

SPEECH OF
HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON
OP MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize the life and legacy of Rosa Lee Parks, whose refusal to give up her bus seat to a white man sparked the modern civil rights movement. She was 92 at the time of her death.

In tribute to Mrs. Parks, I would like to submit the following excerpt from the Washington Post Article, “Bus Ride Shocked a Nation’s Conscience,” written by Patricia Sullivan on Tuesday, October 25, 2005.

“Rosa was a true giant of the civil rights movement,” said U.S. Representative JOHN CONVYRS JR. (D-Mich.), in whose office Parks worked for more than 20 years. “There are very few people who can say their actions and conduct changed the face of the nation, and Rosa Parks is one of those individuals.”

Parks said that she didn’t fully realize what she was starting when she decided not to move on that December 1, 1955, evening in Montgomery, AL. It was a simple refusal, but her arrest and the resulting protests began the complex cultural struggle to legally guarantee equal rights to Americans of all races.

Within days, her arrest sparked a 380-day bus boycott, which led to a U.S. Supreme Court decision that desegregated her city’s public transportation. Her arrest also triggered mass demonstrations, made the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. famous, and transformed schools, workplaces and housing.

Her son was “an individual expression of a timeless longing for human dignity and freedom,” King said in his book “Stride Toward Freedom.”

“She was planted there by her personal sense of dignity and self-respect. She was anchored to that seat by the accumulated indignities of days gone by and the boundless aspirations of generations yet unborn.”

She was the perfect test-case plaintiff, a fact that activists realized only after she had been arrested. Hardworking, polite and morally upright, Parks had long seethed over the everyday indignities of segregation, from the menial day-to-day indignities of segregation, from the menial jobs classmates did not give up a job to sit by the bedside of a son who does not recognize them or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs.

Rosa was a true giant of the civil rights movement, whose refusal to give up a job to sit by the bedside of a son who does not recognize them or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs or at the bedside of a daughter who has lost her legs.

Mr. Speaker, I take great pride in commending Mrs. Rosa Lee Parks for her outstanding and historical contributions to the State of Alabama, the State of Michigan, the Civil Rights Movement, and national politics.

HONORING THE GARLAND ROTARY CLUB

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OP TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to help celebrate two significant anniversaries of Rotary International. This year, Rotary International celebrated its 100th anniversary. From its humble roots in Chicago, IL, Rotary has grown into a worldwide organization of business and professional leaders who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build goodwill and peace in the world. Since 1943, Rotary International has distributed more than $1.1 billion to combat polio, promote cultural exchanges and encourage community service.

I also want to recognize the Garland Rotary Club for their 78 years of service to Dallas County. Throughout its history, the Garland Rotary Club has achieved great success in carrying out the mission of Rotary International.

The Garland Rotary Club has been a strong supporter of the Garland Independent School District, GISD. Their annual Christmas and the Spring Casino Parties benefit underprivileged children and support student scholarships. This year, they have provided over $3,000 for Garland college scholarships and the Garland Rotary Club also supports local charities such as the New Beginnings Center, Achievement Center of Texas, and the Garland Habitat for Humanity.

Through these initiatives, the Garland Rotary Club exemplifies the values of service and charity that lie at the heart of American society. As the Congressional representative of the members of this outstanding organization, it is my distinct pleasure to honor them today in the U.S. House of Representatives.

LEGISLATION TO PROMOTE AN ADEQUATE STOCKPILE OF ANTI-AVIAN FLU DRUGS

HON. THOMAS H. ALLEN
OP MAINE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation to ensure that the United States has a sufficient supply of drugs to combat avian flu in the event of a pandemic. My bill authorizes the importation of generic medicines when the U.S. patent holder cannot make enough medicine to meet domestic public health needs, and removes a trade policy barrier to such imports.

The prospect of an avian flu pandemic has gripped health officials around the world. Part of the response would involve treating victims with drugs to lessen the spread of the flu virus. The World Health Organization has urged all nations to stockpile reserves of antiviral flu drugs, and the Infectious Diseases Society of America has recommended that the United States stockpile enough drugs to treat 25 to 40 percent of the population.

The drug believed to be most effective against the flu is Tamiflu. The exclusive right to sell Tamiflu is held by Roche, a pharmaceutical manufacturer based in Switzerland.

As Health and Human Services Secretary Michael Leavitt testified before the Energy and Commerce Committee on November 8, Roche has insufficient manufacturing capacity in the U.S. to meet the stockpile needs. At its maximum output, Roche could only produce 13 million treatment courses by the end of this year, far short of the 75 million we need to treat 25 percent of the population.

If Roche does not voluntarily license other companies to produce Tamiflu, the U.S. government could only issue compulsory licenses to gain access to other sources of production of the drug. India, Taiwan, China, Thailand, Malaysia, Vietnam, the Philippines, South Korea and Argentina are among the countries considering plans to manufacture versions of Tamiflu to prepare for a possible flu pandemic.

Americans facing a pandemic today could not get anti-flu drugs from those countries, because in 2003 the U.S. Trade Representative agreed to make the U.S. ineligible to import drugs produced abroad under compulsory licenses.

World Trade Organization rules allow for countries with “insufficient” manufacturing capacity in the pharmaceutical sector to import pharmaceutical products produced under a compulsory license in other countries in order to meet public health needs. This authority is contained in paragraph 6 of the 2001 “Doha Declaration” on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) and public health. The August 30, 2003, decision of the WTO TRIPS Council spelled out implementation of this authority.

At the urging of U.S. negotiators, the August 30 decision created an “opt out” list, whereby countries could voluntarily agree not to use the import authority. The U.S. is on the “opt out” list. As a result, we find ourselves in a situation where the United States government voluntarily restricted its access to critical drugs to fight a pandemic. That makes no sense.

The solution is simple. We can “opt in” to the system. That is what my bill does. It directs the U.S. Trade Representative to notify the WTO that the U.S. declares itself an “opt in” country and thus eligible to import drugs made under compulsory licenses in order to meet public health needs. It also affirms that the President has the authority to import such drugs in such cases, as long as the drugs are approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

Americans should have the comfort of knowing that if the public needs a particular drug to stop an avian flu pandemic, the U.S. government will have access to all available production sources for the drug. My bill would make sure that our government can do what it takes to combat an avian flu pandemic or other health emergency.

CONGRATULATIONS TO CHAIRMAN DAVE HOBSON

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to congratulate Chairman DAVE HOBSON (R–OH) for his bold, principled stance to eliminate federal funding for the bunker buster bomb. It was a major victory for the United States and the world.

This achievement means the United States will send the message of responsibility to other nations who are considering building nuclear weapons. The United States can continue to advocate for the Non-Proliferation Treaty, whereby the United States and other nuclear powers pledge to disarm in return for other nations not seeking nuclear weapons.

Because nuclear bunker-busters would be seen as tactical nuclear weapons, the development of these weapons would make it more difficult to encourage Russia to dispose of its arsenal of over 4,000 tactical nuclear weapons. Chairman HOBSON has given the United States more clout to pressure Russia to eliminate its tactical nuclear weapons.

Again, I commend Chairman HOBSON for his defense of our Nation.

[From the Columbus Dispatch, November 13, 2005]

HOBSON WILL KEEP BUSTING NUCLEAR WEAPON

– (By Jonathan Riskind)

The battle of the bunker buster, round two, goes to Rep. David L. Hobson. But the Springfield Republican isn’t so sure the Bush administration, especially Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld and others in the defense community, has given up on building a nuclear-tipped missile able to penetrate underground bunkers.

This is a saga that has played out in this space a year ago. Then, too, Hobson, as chairman of the House Appropriation Committee’s energy and water subcommittee, successfully fought the administration’s push to build a specialized tactical nuclear weapon.

Pursuing new nuclear weapons when the United States is pushing nonproliferation around the world is wrong headed and dangerous, Hobson believes. And he’s been told by scientists and candid members of the military that a nuclear bunker buster is likely to kill innocent people and inflict such harm on the environment that no president would “OK” its use.

So Hobson refused to include $4 million Rumsfeld wanted in the 2006 energy bill for bunker-buster research.

Hobson’s counterpart in the Senate is Pete Domenici of New Mexico, who chairs the Senate Appropriation Committee’s energy subcommittee. Domenici favors going ahead with the research, but he told the Albuquerque Tribune that the administration has abandoned its plans for a nuclear bunker buster.

He said that, however, after Hobson won the fight; the final 2006 House–Senate agreement on energy and water bill being sent to the White House reflects Hobson’s views.

So while it’s “over in my bill for this year,” Hobson said, his attention is focused on whether the Defense Department will try to include bunker-buster money in the still pending 2006 defense-spending bill.

“I have to watch in the defense bill to try and make sure they don’t go around me,” said Hobson, who is a senior member of the defense-spending subcommittee.

This is one example of how public policy is enmeshed in the fabric of the annual spending bills. Hobson’s measure, for instance, tackles the post-Katrina issue of improving the efficiency with which the Army Corps of Engineers spends the money Congress doles out to it, though part of the solution is making sure lawmakers have the “corps’ hands with a plethora of pet projects. One tack seen in the energy and water spending bills is to limit the ability of the corps to take money intended for one project and spend it on another, only to later come back and request yet more money for the first project. Hobson also hopes the bill will force the corps to do more long-term planning and to do a better job moving projects along.

He cites a dam on the Ohio River between Illinois and Kentucky that was authorized in 1968 at a cost of $775 million over about eight years. Completion is now scheduled for 2015, at a revised estimated cost of $1.4 billion.

“Instead of trying to bring business management to the way the corps conducts business,” Hobson said.

But the most far-reaching policy platform in Hobson’s bill amounts to a nuclear nonproliferation stand that bucks the notoriously stubborn Rumsfeld.

“We had a meeting and he made his views known and I made my views known,” Hobson said. “He said there will be another day. I don’t think they’ve given up.”

Hobson vowed to include the bunker-buster proposals for as long as he’s a committee chairman. He has three more years to head the energy subcommittee before chairmanship term limits set in, and intends to run for re-election to a ninth term next year and serve all three of those terms.

“They aren’t changing my mind,” Hobson said. “It is bad foreign policy to build a new type of nuclear weapon at the same time you are telling everyone else in the world, don’t you do it.”

INTELLIGENCE FAILURE AND MANIPULATION

HON. RUSH D. HOLT
OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, today I and my Democratic colleagues on the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence publicly discussed a critical item of unfinished business for this House—specifically, the need for the committee to undertake a detailed examination of the Iraq weapons of mass destruction (WMD) intelligence failure.

We need to undertake this inquiry because this is not the last time that we will need intelligence that’s based on good methods, critical thinking—in fact, skeptical thinking that really looks at the uncertainties in the intelligence.

We have to learn to get this right. There will be other times when we need it.

Now, the President said that those who are raising questions about the war in Iraq and how we got there are trying to rewrite history. Actually, that’s not true. History is not being rewritten. History cannot be written because no one has allowed the facts to be assembled. That is what we are talking about here. We have tried, but we have been blocked repeatedly in our attempts to do so.

This matter is of critical importance. And it is, of course, at a time when we are fighting a war in the name of democracy and the freedoms, including freedom of speech and freedom of inquiry, that here we are styedm in our freedom of inquiry.

And it is freedom of inquiry not for political points or our personal curiosity. It is so that we can, for the future, have an intelligence system that is based on critical thinking, skeptical thinking and good methods. That is the point.

Let me just say that the line that we hear is, "There is not much that needs to be investigated, there is not much need for oversight, because you knew all this all along. And furthermore, it is unpatriotic."

It is unimportant, and yet if you ask for it, you are unpatriotic. I say to my friends on the other side of the aisle, you can't have it both ways.

I wish I could say that the refusal to investigate the Iraq intelligence failure is an isolated case. It is not.

For over 2 years, I've pressed this House to investigate how it was that the name and cover status of a serving CIA Clandestine Services officer made its way from the CIA to the White House political office and thence to the press.

Eight separate times in eight separate votes, the leadership of this Congress shut down any effort to get the information about the release of the identity of an intelligence employee. Conducting oversight of this matter is something that is central to our responsibility to look after the wellbeing and effectiveness of those people that we ask to take risks for us around the world.

Yet in eight separate votes, it was shut down.

Mr. Speaker, it's time—and indeed well past time—for this Congress to do its job and conduct oversight of these and other intelligence matters. We cannot protect our Nation from future threats if we do not learn the full lessons of conflicts past, and this is especially critical in the realm of intelligence. I urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to join us in this effort.

HONORING THE GARLAND LAKESIDE ROTARY CLUB

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to help celebrate two significant anniversaries of Rotary International. This year, Rotary International celebrated its 100th anniversary. From its humble roots in Chicago, Illinois, Rotary has grown into a worldwide organization of business and professional leaders who provide humanitarian service, encourage high ethical standards in all vocations, and help build good will and peace in the world.

Since 1943, Rotary International has distributed more than $1.1 billion to combat Polio, promote cultural exchanges and encourage community service.

I also want to recognize the Garland Lakeside Rotary Club for their 30 years of service to Dallas County. Throughout its history, the Garland Lakeside Rotary Club has achieved great success in carrying out the mission of Rotary International.

The Garland Lakeside Rotary Club is in the process of raising funds and building a medical clinic called the Friendship House. In the past they have supported local charities, including the Salvation Army and the YMCA.

Through these initiatives, the Garland Lakeside Rotary Club exemplifies the values of service and charity that lie at the heart of American society. As the Congressional representative of the members of this outstanding organization, it is my distinct pleasure to honor them today on the floor of the United States House of Representatives.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. CAROLYN C. KILPATRICK
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Ms. KILPATRICK of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, some of the cuts proposed in this "Deficit Reduction Act" include Medicaid, student loans, child support enforcement, child foster care, supplemental security income, farm conservation, and many more.

Republicans have offered over $50 billion in cuts to much needed programs for America's families. The pretext of these program cuts is to bring down the deficit, but all they do is offset the cost of the $56.6 billion tax cut package that will come to the floor of the House soon. Do not be misled into believing that the budget cuts being contemplated are to cover the cost of rebuilding the Gulf Coast states. They are being used to offset the raid that is taking place on the Treasury.

The Republicans are employing a two-pronged strategy for this fiscal charade. Today they want us to vote on $50 billion in spending cuts and later they will ask us to vote on a $50 billion tax cut for the wealthiest top one-tenth of one percent of Americans. It is their hope that the American people will not see the connection between the two actions. Show the people that you are cutting spending on one hand; then cut taxes for your supporters with the other. That is their game. I am appalled the Republicans will cut programs for children, the hungry, the sick and the vulnerable for tax cuts to the wealthiest and wealthiest Americans.

Since 2001, the Republicans have done an excellent job of spinning their tax cut packages. They said we could have it all: Medicare prescription drug coverage, the War on Terror, huge tax cuts, and still produce budget surpluses as far as the eye can see. It is a great pitch, but there is only one hitch to their argument: it did not happen that way. Now Republicans are doing all they can to dodge the responsibility for the fiscal situation in which the country finds itself. In fact, the President and my Republican colleagues take pride that last year's budget deficit was $320 billion, the third largest deficit in history. They take it as a record of accomplishment that the deficit was not higher. Now that is spin.

Last year's deficit may be lower than the $412 billion deficit reached in fiscal year 2004, but that hardly entitles the Republicans to bragging rights over their fiscal stewardship. Under their leadership, a Republican president and Republican Congress have produced a string of record setting budget deficits.

By bringing this bill to the floor, the folk on the other side of the aisle have the temerity to say that the program cuts being recommended will offset the cost of added spending for Hurricane Katrina and Rita. That argument is not even close to the truth. That is budgeteering by Merlin the Magician. I hope the American people will be able to look behind the curtain of their arguments and see them for what they are: simply a means to hide from their record of fiscal irresponsibility.

The President and the Republican majority are adept. Record deficits? Not the fault of the party in power. Blame 9/11, or blame the economy, or blame Katrina, or blame Saddam Hussein and Iraq, or blame the terrorists, or blame whatever. Just do not blame the Republicans or the Republican tax cuts for the horrible financial situation our country is in. That is the gist of the Republican message we hear today.

For a President and a party that is artful in avoiding blame for the country's fiscal state, for the failure to execute a successful war strategy in Iraq, the failure to respond rapidly during Hurricane Katrina, the failure to catch Osama bin Laden, the failure to find weapons of mass destruction, the failure to provide affordable energy, the failure to hire competent people to handle crises, the failure to prepare for a possible bird flu pandemic, for all the failures that have occurred upon the watch of this President and this Republican Congress, can there be little reason why they want to avoid the "blame game"?

We can do better. There is no reason why we freely spend to rebuild Baghdad but struggle to rebuild Biloxi. When it comes to taking care of our own, where is the parity? Why are we applying a tougher standard on our own than we are in Afghanistan and Iraq? The budget cuts that will be voted under this bill violate the principle of parity, it puts the welfare of others ahead of our own American people. This budget is symbolic of the spending priorities of this administration: It puts America and Americans last. That is a shame and that is why this bill does not deserve our support. I strongly urge my colleagues to join me in voting down this unfortunate bill.

CONDEMNING TERRORIST ATTACKS IN JORDAN

SPEECH OF
HON. ALLYSON Y. SCHWARTZ OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, November 16, 2005

Mrs. SCHWARTZ of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 456, a resolution to vehemently condemn the terrorist attacks that occurred in Amman, Jordan.

On November 9, 2005, hundreds of innocent Jordanians gathered to celebrate a wedding ceremony—one of the greatest tributes to life, family and humanity, for virtually every culture in the world. Yet what was supposed to be a joyous celebration was brutally cut short when followers of the terrorist Abu Musab al-Zarqawi carried out four simultane- nous terrorist attacks. These unbridled and hateful acts killed 59 people, including the mother and father of the bride and the father of the groom.

Mr. Speaker, the line between good and evil could not be clearer. The line between those who cherish life versus those who seek to destroy it could not be clearer.

The line between those with compassion in their hearts versus those with hatred could not be clearer.

The attacks in Jordan, just like those before it in Indonesia, Egypt, Spain and the United States, demonstrate that terrorism does not discriminate by race, ethnicity or region. Instead, terrorists indiscriminately target those seeking to live a peaceful, loving and free life.

All across Jordan, innocent and freedom-loving Jordanians fully understand this. Thou- sands of Jordanians have taken to the streets in protest of Zarqawi, “the coward.” In the wake of these attacks, King Abdullah has an- nounced a “National Agenda,” which seeks to instill a more free and democratic political process and society.

We must hunt the terrorists down and kill them. There is no other way to respond to those so committed to the destruction of life. We must also stand with the Jordanian people and the Jordanian Government. And, this res- olution does just that—making it clear that Congress and the American people are behind them during this difficult period.

TRIBUTE TO SPECIALLIST MARK THOMPSON

HON. ED WHITFIELD OF KENTUCKY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to highlight one of my extraordinary constitu- ents who is currently serving in Iraq. Specialist Mark Thompson from Tompkinsville, Kentucky recently wrote to me to express his thoughts on the situation in Iraq and I was truly moved by his articulate letter. I would like to share his letter finds you well. Politics seems heated as usual in the States and many new challenges are facing you and our country’s other leaders. However, I am sure you are taking it all as it comes and continuing to try and find the most appropriate direction as issues arise.

I am currently serving in the Army at Camp Habbaniyah, Iraq. A huge change from my position as hospital administrator in Tompkinsville as you can imagine. But it has been a good experience to actually be here in this very troubled part of the World and be a part of this, first hand.

We are in the “Sunni Triangle” as this area has been described with a name, Ramadi and Fallujah are within 10 to 15 miles of our base with as roughly in the middle. Both are noted hotbeds for insurgent activity as it is this entire area of Northwest Iraq. We are experiencing much of the same that you see on TV back home.

I am sure one of those huge issues you are grappling with is what to support in regards to Operation Iraqi Freedom. I ask you to consider we are still making progress and this is a worthy cause at this point. We do far more good on a daily basis than is ever portrayed back home. Just Saturday (Day of the Voting) our troops helped a very sick 4 month old child get medical care in Bagdad. Also, we are actively training Iraqi troops to ultimately replace us and takeover complete operations of Camp Habbaniyah. Yes, there is much to be discouraged by on a regular basis but the momentum and atmos- phere as a whole continues moving forward.

The worst thing we can do is leave too soon and risk losing it all to civil war. At the same time we must let the Iraqi Army con- tinue to take over responsibility for areas as soon as possible and the new government as well.

I see it like welfare. If we take on the re- sponsibility for people too long they can li- terally fail to progress and be hampered by growing too dependent. We see that very real, negative potential as we work with sol- diers and civilians.

The hard part is how much and when to pull back our support. I know that is what thing you are being challenged to help deter- mine. Please, listen to sound military lead- ers as you sort that out. Please do not allow it to be a “politically correct” decision. We stand to lose so much more from a bad decision. The Iraqi people stand to lose the most.

Finally, the vast majority of the people here are very worthy of what we are trying to help them achieve. It is the few that con- tinue to make it so hard. I have attached a simple poem that I was inspired to write not long after coming here. I still believe that our primary intentions should be this simple and straight forward.

My best wishes to you as always.

Sincerely,

SPC. MARK THOMPSON

That Is Why We Came
As we crossed the Iraqi Border, our lives never to be the same.
That’s when it all seemed clearer,
why we left our families and came.
The harsh land layout before us, with things we have yet to see.
But kids waving on roadsides, unlocked hope inside for me.
Not much do they have and own,
but gestures that tell their soul.
Two young yet to know true hate, faith, hope and love are still in control.
Who knows where freedom will take them, and will elders allow it to last?
Can they hold onto it with passion, and never repeat the past?
It is the children we came for,
their love should govern this land.
Who knows where their dreams can take us,
if not poisoned with History’s Brand.
I pray tonight for a new World, where all kids are safe from harm.
That these children can play like mine,
in a neighborhood, friendly and warm.
They are the reason we came,
their hope from faith we must let soar.
With love let’s finish the task, and for them leave open the door.

HONORING BAYLOR UNIVERSITY MEDICAL CENTER

HON. JEB HENSARLING
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today, I would like to help celebrate the 20th anniver- sary of the establishment of the first adult liver transplant program serving Tarrant County and Baylor University Medical Center at Dal- las. In 1985, Baylor University Medical Center recruited Dr. Goran B. Klintmalm, a highly skilled surgeon to begin the new adult liver transplant program and to enhance each facility’s medical and surgical capabilities.

Baylor University Medical Center has trans- planted more than 4,500 organs in patients around the world. The program has been rep- licated at Baylor All Saints Medical Center in Fort Worth, allowing Baylor Health Care Sys- tems to expand their services to Tarrant Coun- ty.

I would like to honor Baylor University Med- ical Center, along with the doctors, nurses and hospital administration that make extraordinary organ transplants possible. Their dedication to the medical profession and their commitment to saving lives is to be commended.

SPECIAL TRIBUTE TO KENNETH “BLUE” BALCOMB—A FIERCE DE- FENDER OF WATER RIGHTS IN COLORADO

HON. JOHN T. SALAZAR
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my condolences to the Balcomb fam- ily of Glenwood Springs, Colorado who recently experienced a tragic loss with the death of Kenneth “Blue” Balcomb. He passed away on November 17th.

Recently, I had the opportunity to get to know Ken. He was a brilliant, devoted and tal- ented person. Because of his genius, water on the Western Slope of Colorado will be pro- tected for generations. Mr. Balcomb died Thursday and will be missed by all who had the pleasure of knowing and working with him.

Ken Balcomb was General Counsel for the Colorado River Water Conservation District from the early 1960s until 1981 when the Dist- rict hired in-house counsel. Under Mr. Balcomb’s advice and leadership, the River District successfully fought back aggressive water filings by Front Range cities and irriga- tion districts thirsting for West Slope water. It also fought federal intrusion into Colorado’s state-run water rights system, ensuring that the federal government adjudicate its water rights like everyone else through Colorado’s water courts. On this point, Mr. Balcomb rep- resented the River District on three occasions before the U.S. Supreme Court, leaving vic- torious each time.

I grew to know Ken over the last year and he never hesitated to offer his experience, knowledge and assistance to myself and oth- ers.

Ken was certainly an inspiration to me and to everyone who had the opportunity to meet
Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, ten years ago this month a genocidal conflict was brought to an end in the Balkans. By initiating a “General Framework for Peace” at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, on November 21, 1995, Bosnia and Herzegovina emerged from almost four years of that conflict wondering whether it could survive as an independent unitary state and recover from the utter destruction not only of its towns and cities but of its own, multi-ethnic society.

Time dulls our recollection of what the carnage in Bosnia was really about, so I believe it important to recall the nature of this, the most horrific phase of Yugoslavia’s violent and bloody demise. Active on the Helsinki Commission which I co-chair today, I took part in many sobering hearings which documented the atrocities and discussed policy responses.

The Bosnian conflict was, in large part, characterized not by military forces but by groups of thugs, armed and orchestrated by the Milosevic regime in Serbia, wreaking havoc on innocent civilians. Tens of thousands were raped or tortured in detention centers and camps across the country. Although these figures may vary substantially, the death toll is commonly estimated at about 200,000, while two million people—half the country’s population—were displaced. We can only remember the photos of emaciated detainees at Omarska, the remains of the shelling and siege of Sarajevo, and the recently released video footage of the execution of captured young men near Srebrenica.

While the decreasing advantages enjoyed by the Serb militants by late 1995 made a settlement possible, the Dayton Agreement did, in fact, help to bring this nightmare to an end. At the same time, we cannot ignore the fact that its compromises reflect a failure by the international community, including the United States, to intervene much earlier in the conflict in response to clear violations of international principles and what many, including myself, consider a genocide.

The international community repeatedly failed to take decisive action, including the credible threat of the use of force, to compel the brazen Serb militants to stop their aggression. Instead, time was spent deploying peacekeeping forces under United Nations auspices when there was no peace to keep. UNPROFOR’s presence thwarted more effective responses, such as the arms embargo which denied the sovereign country of Bosnia and Herzegovina its right, as a member of the United Nations, to defend itself. As town after town, including some declared to be “safe-havens” by the United Nations, fell to the forces of ethnic cleansing, the international community acquiesced to a reality, codified by Dayton, of a country divided into two political entities characterized by an ethnic bias unworthy of 21st century democracy. One entity is a Bosnian Federation forged by the United States in 1995 between Bosnia and Herzegovina, the other entity, Republika Srpska, is dominated by Serbs and represents what the militants among them started the conflict to create.

The compromises accepted at Dayton, influenced by years of international inaction, also have made subsequent implementation difficult, and extremely expensive in terms of personnel, equipment and funds. Many persons indicted for war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide for years, some to wreak havoc later in Kosovo and elsewhere, and some like Ratko Mladic and Radovan Karadzic, remain at large. With the economy destroyed and both organized crime and official corruption rampant, the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina became passive and dependent on the international community for their very survival.

Perhaps the greatest flaw in the Dayton Agreement was its heavy reliance on Slobodan Milosevic himself to follow its terms, which he did only under considerable pressure. Betting on the man most responsible for the most horrific phase of Yugoslavia’s violent and bloody demise. Active on the Helsinki Commission which I co-chair today, I took part in many sobering hearings which documented the atrocities and discussed policy responses.
which are necessary for the long-term stability of southeastern Europe. Many of us worked hard to correct this flaw in the immediate post-Dayton years, and continue to encourage democratic forces in Serbia to reckon fully with the Milosevic legacy.

Fortunately, along with the eventual ouster of Slobodan Milosevic in Serbia, we have seen more vigorous and positive action to move ahead in Bosnia and Herzegovina during the past five years. More of the displaced have returned to their original homes than was thought possible when Dayton was negotiated. It hasn't been easy for many who return as members of a minority population, but determination has helped them to prevail. More and more individuals indicted by the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia, including Milosevic, have been transferred to The Hague, and, at a recent Helsinki Commission briefing, we learned that Bosnia's own War Crimes Chamber has been established and is ready to conduct sensitive trials in accordance with the rule of law. Srebrenica is being acknowledged as the crime that it was, Defense and police reform are underway, helping to pave the way for Bosnia's further Euro-Atlantic and European integration. The region around Brcko, so brutally contested during the conflict that not even Dayton could determine its status, now provides a model of multietnic cooperation and economic recovery for the rest of the country. There are now discussions of constitutional reforms which, if adopted, will hopefully make the country of Bosnia and Herzegovina a sum of its citizens and not a balance of its ethnicities.

If the Dayton Agreement succeeded in anything, Mr. Speaker, it was because its detailed provisions and improved implementation have provided the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina with both the parameters of a state and enough time to bring their country back from the abyss. I have increasing confidence that they will succeed in moving from what was admittedly a "General Framework for Peace" to a solid basis for unity, freedom, prosperity and integration.

In the meantime, the international community has much it still needs to learn and to develop. The conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina also gave new purpose to NATO and enabled it to begin operating out of area. Fifty years after the Holocaust, those who commit war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide no longer operate with complete impunity. Still, the international community—whether the United States and its allies, regional bodies or the United Nations—remains slow in responding to human suffering, or in recognizing the implications massive human rights violations can have on international security. It too readily accepts the reality of innocent people being attacked, brutalized and killed. Look at the response during the assault on Srebrenica and then at the response to Darfur today; the similarities are strong.

I therefore hope, Mr. Speaker, that Dayton's tenth anniversary is commemorated in a way that includes not only encouragement for Bosnia and Herzegovina to move beyond the agreement's limiting provisions, but encouragement for all policymakers to learn from the lessons of inaction in the face of evil.

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 17, 2005

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I speak today in opposition to H.R. 3010, the Labor-HHS-Education Conference Report. First and foremost, I am highly disturbed that the report has no earmarks for Member programs. Unfortunately, this conference report invests nearly $1.5 billion less in critical education, health care and job assistance than last year. In fact, Republicans will spend more on tax cuts this week, $70 billion, than they will on all education and labor programs over the entire coming year, $68 billion. The conference report reflects the most recent report evidence that Republicans are out of touch with the priorities of the American people. Together, America can do better.

With a record 55 million children in public schools and state budgets stretched thin, No Child Left Behind is funded by $784 million. Title I, which is the core of NCLB's efforts to improve reading and math skills, receives the smallest increase for Title I in 8 years—only $100 million—which means 3.1 million low-income children will be left behind. Further, even as a cut of a 4-year public college education has increased $3,095, 34 percent, since 2001, the maximum Pell Grant is frozen for the fourth straight year, and no new funding for all other student financial aid and support programs is provided. These cuts are unthinkable, and the American people do not deserve this treatment.

In addition to other horrible cuts, in an age where being tech-savvy is a necessity not a privilege, the digital divide just got bigger as the bill cuts the Education Technology Program by $221 million or 45 percent. Republicans will actually cut the Federal share of special education costs from 18.6 percent in FY 2005 to 18.0 percent by providing the smallest increase for the Individuals with Disabilities Act in a decade. The bill provides $4 billion less than Republicans promised for IDEA. It is hard to imagine, but with 7.4 million Americans out of work, Republicans cut the Community College Initiative's efforts to train workers for high skill, high paying jobs by $125 million and rescind $125 million from ESEA funds provided last year, denying this assistance to only 20 percent of the recipients and cutting job search assistance through the Employment Service by $89 million, 11 percent. To further add injury to insult, state Unemployment Insurance and Employment Service offices are cut by $245 million, 7 percent, eliminating help for 1.9 million people. With concerns expected to rise sharply this winter, Republicans still failed to increase funding for LIHEAP home heating assistance, which helps keep the heat on for low-income seniors and children.

Only about 18 percent of physicians in America practice in rural areas despite the fact that one-fourth of the U.S. population lives in these areas. There are significant shortages of health care providers in urban, underserved areas, but training grants for healthcare professionals are cut $206 million, 69 percent. Further, nearly 46 million Americans are without health insurance yet Republicans provide virtually no funding for new Community Health Centers beyond those approved last year. Republicans also eliminate funding health Communities Access Program, $83 million, and state planning grants to improve health care coverage, $11 million. Preventive Health Block Grants to state health departments help address critical public health problems. The bill provides less for responding to disease outbreaks, immunizing children, and improving care for people with chronic diseases, when it cuts these grants by $31 million or 24 percent.

In addition, The International Labor Affairs Bureau will have a hard time protecting American workers from being undercut by child and slave labor abroad after being cut by $20 million or 21.4 percent.

In closing let me note that I was disappointed that the bill did provide earmarks for Member projects. However, I was pleased to see that this action by the Republicans was the straw that broke the camel's back, and as a result, the Conference Report was voted down. I hope once conference return to the drawing board; they get it right once and for all.

CIVIL RIGHTS AND THE RULE OF LAW

HON. ELIJAH E. CUMMINGS
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, when our new Attorney General, Alberto Gonzales, pledged earlier this year that enforcement of our civil rights laws would be one of his priorities, we all wished him well in fulfilling that commitment.

When leaders here in Washington—Democrats and Republicans alike—have expressed support for extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, our hopes for a better and more just society have been encouraged.

When this Nation rose as one and bowed our heads in respect for the life of Ms. Rosa Parks, the “Mother of Civil Rights in America,” we also were re-dedicating ourselves to the ideals of equality, opportunity and civility that are the foundation of American society. I remind the House of these promising, non-partisan expressions of our Nation's shared values, Mr. Speaker, for a very important reason.

Last Sunday, the Washington Post published a news article that outlined some deeply disturbing assertions about the operation of the Department of Justice’s Civil Rights Division.

The article entitled Civil Rights Focus Shift Rolls Staff at Justice, written by Mr. Dan Eggen, reported that nearly 20 percent of the Civil Rights Division’s non-political attorneys resigned or retired during fiscal year 2005.

We also learned that significant disagreements exist between career civil rights attorneys within the Department and administration appointees about the priority that should be given to the enforcement of our civil rights laws.
These policy disagreements—at the core of many ramifications—have included the Department’s decisions to approve redistricting plans in Mississippi and Texas, as well as the controversial decision to approve a new Georgia statute that would require voters to present government-issued photo identification cards at the polls.

In October, Judge Harold Murphy of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia granted an injunction last month to lawyers for Common Cause of Georgia, the ACLU, the NAACP and other groups who have challenged the Georgia photo identification statute under the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Judge Murphy ruled that the petitioners have shown a substantial likelihood that they will ultimately prevail in establishing that it "unduly burdens the right to vote" and "constitutes a poll tax." Recently, a three-judge appellate panel, made up of one Democratic and two Republican appointees, confirmed this reasoning by upholding the lower court’s injunction.

Why, we must ask, does the policy leadership of our Department of Justice not agree?

Consider, also, this revealing fact. The Department’s own statistics confirm that prosecutions for the racial and gender discrimination crimes traditionally handled by the Civil Rights Division have declined by 40 percent over the past 5 years.

The Department has vigorously disputed both the significance of the policy disagreements within its Civil Rights Division and the exodus of so many career attorneys.

However, the facts indicate that Attorney General Gonzales faces some very real obstacles to his promise about renewed civil rights priority.

Mr. Speaker, we know from history that the legitimacy of any government rests upon the fairness of its laws and willingness to vigorously uphold the rule of law.

We cannot overlook patterns of systematic neglect within the agency entrusted to enforce our laws.

These failures threaten our most fundamental legal guarantees.

Mr. Speaker, we believe that Attorney General Gonzales must not be hesitant to seek the answers to the hard questions, the questions that the people we represent are asking.

Why have civil rights cases declined so precipitously in recent years?

Why have career attorneys in the Civil Rights Division been reassigned to other duties?

Why are so many career lawyers leaving the Department of Justice?

What must Congress do to better support America’s chief law enforcement officer in fulfilling his commitment to make enforcement of our civil rights laws a priority?

Mr. Speaker, let the discord within the Department of Justice serve as a bellwether to all Americans who believe in the principles of civil rights.

A renewed vigor and more certain direction are desperately needed in the enforcement of civil rights.

We must remain vigilant. We must move forward with a sense of urgency.

If America is to serve as the beacon of democracy for the rest of the world, it is the imperative that we enforce justice, equality and the rule of law within our own country.

HONORING PROFESSOR LAWRENCE F. ROBERGE

HON. JOHN B. LARSON OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. LARSON of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Professor Lawrence F. Roberge for being awarded the 2005 U.S. Professor of the Year for the State of Connecticut by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, CASE.

Professor Roberge earned this award for his work as the associate professor and chair of the Science Department at Goodwin College located in East Hartford, CT in my district. As a dedicated educator for nearly 20 years, Professor Roberge has taught a variety of college science and technology courses. Professor Roberge’s expertise and skills aided him in also designing and teaching online educational courses.

During his tenure as chair of the Science Department at Goodwin College, Professor Roberge developed multi-media and computer-based teaching tools to aid in the development and training of the Science Department teaching staff. In addition, Professor Roberge was responsible for designing the science curriculum and labs for the nursing program.

Professor Roberge was an inspiration in the classroom while he taught courses in chemistry, anatomy and physiology, and microbiology.

The Council for Advancement and Support of Education and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching award four university and college professors as national winners and also recognize a State Professor of the Year in 40 States, the District of Columbia and Guam. These professors are recognized for their outstanding commitment to teaching undergraduate students and their influence on fellow colleagues.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me today in congratulating Professor Lawrence F. Roberge for receiving this prestigious award. As a former educator, I am honored to recognize Professor Roberge for his exceptional commitment and service to teaching undergraduate students in the State of Connecticut.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. MARTIN T. MEEHAN
OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. MEEHAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to oppose the Republican budget bill.

Unfortunately, this bill is just another example of the disdain that this administration and this Congress has shown for the most vulnerable in our society. While the wealthy are lavished with tax cuts, critical social services are being reduced.

Under the guise of offsetting the costs of Katrina and deficit reduction, House Republicans are severely cutting important programs that millions of Americans rely on for education, health care, and poverty alleviation. The $50 billion in Republican cuts will have a devastating impact on families across America and in my home State of Massachusetts.

At the same time, Republicans are pushing a $70 billion tax package that will overwhelmingly benefit the most wealthy Americans and actually increases the deficit by $16 billion.

Now, I support the idea of shared sacrifice but the only sacrifice in this bill is by those that need our government’s support the most: $14.3 billion, cut from student loans; $11.4 billion, cut from Medicaid; $4.9 billion, cut from child support; $844 million, cut from food stamps.

Republicans will cut student loan funding by $14.3 billion. This represents the largest single cut in the history of the student aid program at a time when the cost of tuition has risen 28 percent at public colleges and 17 percent at private colleges in the last five years.

In my home State of Massachusetts there are 172,640 student loan borrowers. Under the Republican plan, the average student borrower in Massachusetts, with $17,500 in loans will be forced to pay an additional $5,800.

The Republican budget bill cuts of $11.4 billion from Medicaid. This $11.4 billion cut includes $6.5 billion in cuts that are borne directly by Medicaid enrollees—who include low-income children and seniors, as well as individuals with disabilities.

Massachusetts ranks 12th in the country for Medicaid enrollment with over 1.2 million enrollees. The cuts would harm millions of low-income people across the U.S. and thousands in Massachusetts who rely on Medicaid for health coverage.

Child support enforcement will be cut by $4.9 billion. The Congressional Budget Office, CBO, estimates that this will result in reducing child support collections by $24.1 billion over the next 10 years.

Experts agree that child support is a cost effective way of reducing poverty. In 2002, 1 million Americans were lifted out of poverty through child support payments. For every $1 spent on child support enforcement programs, $4.38 in child support is collected.

Massachusetts would lose $88 million in Federal support over 5 years, rising to $282 million over 10 years. The estimated loss in child support collections would be $140 million over 5 years, rising to $428 million over 10 years.

Nearly 250,000 Massachusetts children currently receive child support enforcement services. This will have a devastating effect on the Commonwealth’s children who live in single-parent families.

Finally, this bill as originally drafted would cut food stamps by $844 million and will result in over 200,000 people losing assistance.

Where are our priorities when we put tax cuts for the wealthy above the elderly, low-income families, students, and children? Vote “no” on the Republican budget bill.

GJERGJ KASTRIOTI "SKENDERBEU"
HON. DANA ROHRABACHER
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I wish to place in today’s CONGRESSIONAL RECORD
From 1443, when he returned in triumph to Kruja after his death at Lezha in 1468, Skenderbeg left an indelible legacy of great heroism in the defense of freedom. Gjergj Kastrioti lived and died for what he firmly believed were the sacred values of honor, freedom, courage, and love of country. These universal values are clearly displayed in his correspondence and speeches, along with his deep philosophy of life and his incredible deeds. Who was Gjergj Kastrioti? Why is he an important historical figure? What can Albanians today learn from his life and deeds? Why has he not better known around the world?

Kastrioti was the son of an Albanian prince, Gjon Kastrioti, who ruled the Albanian lands in the Balkan Peninsula at the end of the 14th century and the beginning of the 15th century. Gjon had kept the invading Ottoman Turks at bay for more than twenty years when he was forced into a deceptive peace treaty in 1422 with Sultan Murad II to secure the rear of the Turkish army in Southeast Europe and spare the Ottoman lands in the Balkan Peninsula at the end of the 14th century and the beginning of the 15th century. Gjon had defied and frustrated the Ottomans for more than fifty years and the Sultan grew suspicious of Skenderbeg's potential to take his father's place in trying to perpetuate a free Albania even after Greece, Bulgaria, Romania, and Serbia had been conquered by the Ottomans. Sultan Murad II invaded Albania in 1436 with the intention of finally reaching twenty years of age. Skenderbeg's military successes against the enemies of the Ottoman Empire became legendary, as were the decorations and gifts bestowed on him after each incredible triumph.

1912, it was unfairly divided so that only half of the seven million Albanians who live in the Balkans today live in the State of Albania, with the other half living on their borders in five nations. The State of Yugoslavia was created after World War I on the backs of the Albanian people and on their land. Then Communism again submerged Albanian people—this time throwing them into a political and economic “black hole,” stretching from Belgrade to Tirana, for almost fifty years after World War II. It is a wonder that the Albanian people kept their language, their history, and their hope alive throughout the last six hundred years of occupation and resistance. It is a wonder that the national spirit and personal sacrifice, that Gjergj Kastrioti has not been forgotten altogether. But he has not been forgotten, and it is a tribute to his greatness and that of the Albanian people that, against all odds, Albanians are standing free today, in Albania and Kosova. And that the sons and daughters of Skenderbeg continue to adopt him as their national hero and liberator, and are building even more memorials to his past and present glory and significance—even, with a U.S. Congressional Resolution (H. Res. 221), in the capital of the only superpower in the world today, Washington, DC.

The battle of Apulia in the southern part of the Italian Peninsula, near Naples, is of special significance to me and my family. In 1461, after Skenderbeg and his elite cavalry helped save the Kingdom of Naples from French domination, the future security of the Kingdom was assured when Gjergj Kastrioti decided to leave two thousand horsemen there, while he returned to Albania to continue to defend the Albanian people from Ottoman Turkish domination. As an inducement for Skenderbeg to agree to what must have been a difficult decision for him, the King of Naples awarded the Albanian soldiers an area about forty miles east of Naples, including a high mountain-top village called Greci. Greci had been formed by Greek merchants and had since declined after most Greeks abandoned the area that they had controlled in the first millennium. Albanians changed the name of the village to “Katundi,” which is the name used today by the Albanian residents, even though the Italians still call it Greci. Mr. Speaker, I have before me a drawing by Joseph, Sr. immigrated to America from Katundi in 1929 at the age of fifteen. His family is descended from one of Skenderbeg’s two thousand soldiers, and this is a family tradition that the seeds of Skenderbeg are still spreading across the oceans of the world today.

IN MEMORY OF ADMIRAL BARRY K. ATKINS, U.S. NAVY (RET.)

HON. ERIC CANTOR
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. CANTOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the late Admiral Barry K. Atkins of Richmond, Virginia, who passed away on Tuesday, November 15, 2005. Admiral Atkins spent a lifetime in service to his country and should be honored today.

In 1932 Admiral Atkins graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy and began his distinguished career as a Naval officer. During World War II, Admiral Atkins took over command of the USS Melvin, a Navy destroyer. Admiral Atkins and his men were stationed in the Pacific and participated in the Battle of Leyte Gulf in the Philippines. In one engagement, the Battle of Surigao Strait, the USS Melvin fired a torpedo that hit the Japanese battleship Fusoe, splitting it in half and eventually sinking it. According to historical reports, the USS Melvin was the only destroyer to sink a battleship in World War II. For his heroism and leadership aboard the USS Melvin, Admiral Atkins was awarded the Navy Cross. In 1959, Admiral Atkins retired after 27 years of faithful service to the U.S. Navy.

Admiral Atkins’ bravery during the Battle of Leyte Gulf helped change the course of our Nation’s history and I am truly grateful for his leadership and unwavering courage aboard the USS Melvin. I hope that you will join me in honoring the life and service of Admiral Barry K. Atkins and offering our most sincere condolences to his family and friends.

IN HONOR OF KEITH SHAFFER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and legacy of Keith Shaffer, an influential and much beloved member of the community in the Santa Cruz area. Mr. Shaffer lived a life of dedicated and generous service to his community. He is survived by his wife Elinor Shaffer; his two sons, William and Richard Shaffer; daughter-in-law Alana Shaffer; and his two grandsons.

Mr. Shaffer was born in the San Joaquin Valley town of Atwater, on October 15, 1915. After serving as a naval aviator during World War II, he eventually moved to the Santa Cruz area in 1950, where he took over his brother’s orchards. Mr. Shaffer was a successful businessman, he also found time to give back to the community, by serving on numerous school boards, the Dominican Hospital Advisory Board, the Rotary Club of Santa Cruz, the Santa Cruz Chamber of Commerce, and the California Automobile Association. Mr. Shaffer was a shining example of dedication and devotion to citizens of the community.

In 1937, Keith Shaffer married his childhood sweetheart Elinor George. Along with his wife Elinor, his two sons, William and Richard Shaffer, daughter-in-law Alana Shaffer; and his two grandsons.

times than any previous Council. These mayoral overrides enabled much-needed legislation to become law, including measures to provide rape victims with emergency contraception, expand access to birth control, provide training for people moving from welfare to work, prevent homeowners from being unreasonably fined and protect our air and water. As a result of his efforts in budget fights, hundreds of millions of dollars have been restored to the City budget for health care, child care, college scholarships, libraries, senior citizens and HIV/AIDS prevention. In 2002, Miller’s Educational Campaign helped prevent hundreds of millions in proposed cuts to New York City’s public schools.

Gifford Miller is an extraordinarily talented and hard-working public servant. Although term limits are bringing an end to his Speaker-ship, I am hopeful that he will remain active in public life. New York city needs him.

Mr. Speaker, I request that my colleagues join me in paying tribute to Speaker Gifford Miller, a remarkable public servant and community leader.

STATEMENT IN HONOR OF CURTIS McCLAIN

HON. NANCY PELOSI
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Curtis McClain, a champion of the trade union movement and trailblazer for racial equality, who passed away November 6 after a long battle with cancer. Friends and colleagues will gather on December 3 to pay tribute to his lifetime of service to the working men and women of America.

Born of humble means in Akron, Ohio, World War II provided Curtis passage to a new life. After his discharge he relocated to New York City. At 10 years old, the son of an Italian immigrant and grocery store operator, Anthony Bennett, became an American for the last six decades. His arrival as a force in our culture was an expression, President Roosevelt had begun the New Deal, looking back, with those values in mind, Curtis became frustrated by post-war discrimination against African-Americans in the labor movement. Being passed over repeatedly for promotion due to race inspired Curtis to form a group of African-Americans in Local 6 called the Frontiersmen. Their encouragement and that of International and other local officers drew Curtis into leadership positions. In 1960, Curtis became in the first African-American to be elected Business Agent for Local 6.

By 1969, Curtis was an important labor leader in San Francisco and was elected Local President, followed 2 years later by a position on the International Executive Committee of the ILWU. In 1977, he broke another racial barrier when he was elected ILWU Secretary-Treasurer, the position he held until retirement in 1990.

Curtis served with ILWU International President Jimmy Herman. Together they fought for a democratic and diverse trade union and guided their membership through turbulent times.

Longtime Local 6 leader LeRoy King, who helped found the Trailblazers with Curtis, remembers: “He was a natural leader. He helped lead the efforts to break the color line, not only in the ILWU, but in other unions and in the community. He was an outstanding negotiator and union officer. And he took care of business for the members.”

Curtis was an advocate of working people. He helped form the alliance between the Teamsters and the ILWU that created the Northern California Warehouse Council, whose influence stretched to the Oregon border. Curtis was also instrumental in the civil rights movement, opening up employment opportunities for African Americans in San Francisco’s auto and burgeoning hotel and tourism industries.

Curtis McClain also led in movements for social justice, peace, and disarmament. Mayor Jack Shelly appointed him to the San Francisco Human Rights Commission, and Mayor George Moscone appointed him to the San Francisco Fire Commission where he served for 12 years.

Curtis McClain reminded us what can be accomplished with determination and belief in the person working right beside you. His hard work for social justice and workers’ rights broke barriers and deepened the ties of our wonderfully diverse community. Our thoughts are with his family and friends as they gather to remember him, and we thank them for sharing Curtis with us.

TRIBUTE TO LUTHER C. WALLACE

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Luther Wallace, a community leader who passed away from a brain tumor on November 10, 2005. Luther was a visionary whose approach to inclusivity and human rights taught us all a lesson.

Born in Bakersfield in 1941, Luther grew up in Oakland where, at a young age, he learned the importance of empowerment from his family. As a preteen, he stuffed envelopes for the NAACP, church functions, and local politicians. In 1968, after serving in Viet Nam, he worked as a community organizer with the Ventura County Community Action Agency while using his GI bill allotment to complete a degree in Psychology from California State University, Northridge. He later earned a Masters in Public Administration just prior to his first brain surgery.

Luther went on to manage an energy conservation program for the State of California and service agencies in Ventura, Santa Cruz, Marin, and Santa Clara counties. Under his leadership, the Human Rights Resource Center, Inc. in San Rafael provided services—including training manuals, Cultural Awareness Training, and public policy recommendations—to every State as well as to 9 foreign countries.

Luther’s influence, often centered in the African American community, was also widespread through his commitment and involvement in the California Rainbow Coalition (co-founder), The California Democratic Party Executive Board, the Marin Black/Jewish Dialogue (co-founder), the Marin City Project, the Marin Council of Agencies, the Marin County Adult Criminal Justice Commission, the Center for Southeast Asian Refugee Resettlement, the African American Coalition of Marin, and many other groups.

His special interests were people, music, reading, learning new things, all sports, and working with his family’s organic herbs and vegetable garden. With a voice as smooth as silk, his love of music (his “unforgiving mistress”) called to him no matter where he was. On international junkets with the UN and the Jewish Community Federation, the band somehow knew to invite him on stage to sing. Shortly before his death, Luther achieved his greatest dream with the publication of his book of short stories titled, “Our Color Our Kind: A Male Bedside Reader.” At the time of his death, he was at work on an original screenplay and new short stories.

He is survived by his wife of 39 years, Mary Christine [Tina] (Mattice) Wallace; son James Matthew Wallace, Santa Cruz, CA; daughter Cassandra Jane Wallace-James, Thousand Oaks, CA; grandchildren Tanesha Cherie, Tony LaBarroon, Jr., and Luther Demetrius, IV; Wallace-James; his special “sister” Donella Dennis, Los Angeles, CA; and a host of cousins, nieces and nephews.

Mr. Speaker, Luther Wallace inspired so many with his passion for human rights and justice. His dedication and leadership enriched and informed the African American community and all of us in Marin County who will benefit from his legacy.

TRIBUTE TO TONY BENNETT

HON. PATRICK J. KENNEDY OF RHODE ISLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an Icon of American Culture and one of our country’s finest citizens, Tony Bennett. Much has already been said and written about the life and work of Tony Bennett, but I am honored to have the opportunity to say a few words about my friend here.

Tony has been a part of the experience of being an American for the last six decades. His arrival as a force in our culture was announced nearly seventy years ago at the opening of the Triborough Bridge in New York City. At 10 years old, the son of an Italian immigrant and grocery store operator, Anthony Dominick Benedetto was invited to sing at a ceremony to open the bridge by another famous son of Italy, New York’s iconic Mayor Fiorello La Guardia. At the time, our country was in the midst of a staggering Great Depression, President Roosevelt had begun the “New Deal,” and that bridge was a concrete symbol that New York City, that America, and that Americans, would persevere. The Bridge stood as the accomplishment of our American ingenuity, our hard work, and our craftsmanship. Looking back, with those values in mind, it is altogether fitting that Tony Bennett was there.

The ingenuity of his voice and his style have transcended generations of American music fans. Tony once quipped that he was spoiled because he, “never had to sing songs [he] didn’t like.” But it is generations of Americans. who have been spoiled by a sound that, no matter where or when it is heard, is always fresh, always new, and uniquely American.

As Tony approaches his 80th birthday, he has sold more than 50 million records, he has won the praise of musicians across the spectrum, and he has been acknowledged by his industry for his commitment to it. Yet, he continues to work, bringing enjoyment to thousands of fans each year, and winning new ones each day.

His accomplishments are not limited to just music. He is also an accomplished painter in his own right. He is a tireless advocate for juvenile diabetes research, and the American Cancer Society—each year he donates one of his paintings for the ACS holiday card. He has been a friend of Presidents and Heads of State, singing at the inaugural festivities for President John F. Kennedy in 1961 and President Bill Clinton in 1993.

Tony has never been afraid to point out injustice and advocate for equality. He marched with the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in Selma, Alabama, and was an activist throughout the Civil Rights Movement. Coretta Scott King, bestowing the Martin Luther King Center Award for Excellence upon Mr. Bennett in 2001, said, "Tony is not only one of America’s premier performing artists, but he was a deeply-committed friend and supporter of my husband and the Civil Rights Movement, and he has continued to support the efforts of the King Center to fulfill Martin’s dream."

The list of accomplishments for Tony is innumerable, he has embodied the American spirit and he has lived the American dream. I could not be more pleased that the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts has chosen to honor Tony Bennett with its highest honors on December 4th, 2005. Tony is truly a credit to his Italian heritage, and to the contributions of millions of immigrant families who have made this country great.

His story is that of what is possible in America, what is great about America, and his life is the embodiment of what it means to be an American. In short, Tony Bennett is a national treasure, and it is with great pride that I speak today as his friend to say thank you for his great contribution to our Democracy.

IMPORTANCE OF IMPACT AID

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, as a co-chair of the Congressional Impact Aid Caucus, I rise today in strong support of the Impact Aid program.

Impact Aid provides important resources to replace lost tax dollars to school districts that include a military base, Indian land, or any type of special presence or activity to assist with the basic educational needs of its students. These funds improve the quality of life for our military personnel by ensuring their children receive a quality education wherever they are stationed.

Due to budget constraints, the Impact Aid program faces unique challenges. While most education programs contend with an increase in the cost per pupil each year, Impact Aid faces the additional challenge of an increasing number of military dependents within the program—projected to dramatically increase over the next 10 years—causing the cost of fully funding Impact Aid to escalate sharply.

For example, as a result of the BRAC recommendations, over the next 4 to 5 years, the Department of Defense estimates that an additional 32,000 dependent children of military families will enter state-side public schools due to overseas base closures and realignments. Without additional funding, this tremendous increase will cause a significant change to the level of assistance to the current and future school districts serving our military children and to the services and resources the districts will be able to offer our children.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask my colleagues to pay attention to the critical situation our military children are facing and the further deterioration of their educational resources and services if we do not act soon. In a time of war, it is absolutely essential that we provide the necessary resources to ensure our military dependents’ educational funding will be maintained.

TRIBUTE TO WILLIAM E. LIGHTFOOT

HON. TIMOTHY V. JOHNSON
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I come to the house floor today to pay tribute to William E. Lightfoot, PFC, of Lexington, IL, as well as the 13 other Navy and Marine Corps airmen of Flight 19. On December 5, 1945, a five-plane squadron took off from Ft. Lauderdale Naval Air Station in Florida. This would be the last time anyone would see these brave men, as all five planes mysteriously vanished while flying over the Bermuda triangle. A Mariner rescue plane, comprised of 14 crew members, was sent to look for survivors but also vanished without a trace. In all, 27 men died in this unexplainable tragedy.

To this day, no wreckage from any of the six planes has been found and no explanations have been realized. However, today, the House of Representatives approved H. Res. 500 to honor these men and recognize the 60th anniversary of the disappearance. Unfortunately, when this vote was called today, I was unable to cast my vote. Had I been able, I would have voted “yea.” I was a proud co-sponsor of this resolution and strongly support honoring these brave men. My heartfelt sympathy and admiration go out to Private William E. Lightfoot and his surviving family members.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, due to official business, I missed a vote on November 17, 2005. I ask that the RECORD reflect that had I been able to, I would have voted “yea” on H. Res. 500 (rollcall vote No. 597) recognizing the 60th anniversary of the disappearance of the five naval Avenger torpedo bombers of Flight 19 and the naval Mariner rescue sent to search for Flight 19.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. CARRANAH. Mr. Speaker, due to technical problems, my vote in favor of H.J. Res. 72 on Thursday, November 17 (rollcall No. 598) was not recorded. I was, in fact, present for this vote and did vote in favor of the resolution.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. JOE BACA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, the budget reconciliation process is wrong, and it must be stopped.

We must reject any cuts to critical federal safety net programs when so many Americans are experiencing hard times. They have been forced to turn to the government, as well as charities, for assistance with basic necessities.

Nine hundred thousand American families affected by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita are relying on the Food Stamps Program to avoid hunger. Voting for this budget resolution is voting to cut food stamps for these families—and for millions of others who would otherwise go hungry.

This budget resolution boosts mandatory cuts in crucial programs, including health care and student aid, by 44 percent.

Over ten million Latinos on Medicaid will be affected by these cuts. Medicaid provides health insurance to about 50 million people in America, including 41 percent of people in poverty. We need choices that can help the 34 percent of Latinos that are uninsured.

The budget reconciliation shows how misguided Republican priorities are. Instead of helping make health care affordable, they will force families to choose between staying healthy or keeping the lights on.

The budget will slash such programs as student loans and therefore hurt hundreds of thousands of American families. And yet the GOP budget also requires $70 billion in new tax cuts, helping mainly the wealthiest Americans.

Under the proposed cut in student loans, the typical student borrower could be forced to pay an additional $5,800 for his or her student loans compared to under current law.

These budget cuts do nothing to ease the national budget deficit.

While Republicans claim that they are serious about deficit reduction, their reconciliation plan actually increases the deficit by $20 billion.

Let me repeat: the two GOP reconciliation packages together will result in a $20 billion increase in the deficit! One cuts mandatory spending by $50 billion and the other cuts taxes by $70 billion.
Mr. Speaker, this proposal makes no sense and is immoral. We cannot balance the budget on the back of the poor.

People across the country responded with compassion and generosity to the suffering and devastation caused by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita. Washington must continue to play a role to reduce the suffering of our fellow Americans in the gulf region.

It is not compassionate to cut funding for critical programs that in many cases would hurt those very communities.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this budget resolution.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

HON. JERROLD NADLER
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, November 18, 2005

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this horrid legislation. In all my years in Congress, this is easily one of the ugliest bills I have ever seen. I can’t think of a more glaring example of pandering to the rich on the backs of the poor. It’s no wonder the Republican leadership needed all the extra time to bring it to the floor.

The cuts in this legislation will result in the reduction of life-saving, life-sustaining services to those who need it most, and those who are able to fight for them least. I hope that those in the faith-based community are watching closely: this is the true face of “compassionate conservatism.” This from the party which claims to have cornered the market on morality.

It is hard to identify what is most egregious about this bill—there is such a litany of problems here. Is it the cuts in food stamps that will leave hundreds of thousands hungry? Is it that Medicaid funding has been decimated, adding to the rolls of the millions without adequate health insurance? Is it the hits that student loan programs take, leaving our Nation’s youth with still more financial burdens? Is it the insidious weakening of environmental provisions, inserted under cover of darkness? The list goes on and on.

And despite the rhetoric from the other side, this bill will do nothing to reduce the staggering deficits we’ve been seeing. That is because, under the Republican fiscal policies, deficits are built into the system. As a result of the tax cuts for the wealthy that the Republicans forced down this country’s throat several years ago, there is simply not enough revenue coming into the treasury to eliminate the shortfall. Indeed, unless Republicans are planning to gut just about all discretionary spending, there is simply no way to plug the hole. It’s basic arithmetic.

No, what’s going on here is that my Republican friends have created a monster. Their tax cuts have starved our government of its resources, and have brought us from record surpluses to record deficits. But will budget reconciliation reduce the deficit and begin to fix the problem, as they claim? No. This bill actually increases the deficit. This bill is about making room for still more tax cuts. In fact, the bill allows for up to $106 billion in new tax cuts during FY06. Instead of the $75 billion specified in the bill, $50 billion in spending cuts, and $106 billion fewer dollars in the treasury, leads to an increase in the deficit to $56 billion!

And the $106 billion in tax cuts will not benefit the families of the troops fighting in Iraq, nor those who suffered in the gulf coast. No, these cuts are targeted to benefit corporations and the wealthy.

Three hundred thousand low-income Americans will lose food stamp assistance. 17 million Americans, half of them children, will see increased costs in Medicaid; the average student will suffer an almost $6,000 increase in his or her college costs because of $14.3 billion in cuts to student loan programs. So we give tax cuts to those who don’t even need them, and the hikes to those who need assistance. This is a disgraceful bill. It is socially unjust, and it will aggravate, not help cure, our Nation’s fiscal crisis. In the strongest possible terms, I urge a no vote on this bill.

DEFICIT REDUCTION ACT OF 2005

SPEECH OF
HON. BENJAMIN L. CARIDIN
OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Speaker, tonight the House leadership is making a second attempt at passing its reconciliation bill. This is the wrong bill at the wrong time for America, and I will oppose it.

We have heard a host of arguments from the majority in support of this bill, which will cut vital Federal programs by approximately $50 billion over five years. We have made the case that higher deficits hurt our Nation’s economy. I agree, but although this bill is titled the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005, it will do nothing to ease our deficit situation.

H.R. 4241 is part of a larger strategy by the House leadership resolution that calls for a savings of $732 million. This strategy includes $70 billion in reconciled tax cuts and $36 billion in unreconciled tax cuts. The spending cuts in this bill are the initial step. The majority intends to force tonight’s vote with a tax cut bill. After the tax cuts are passed and in place, there will be no funds available to pay for hurricane relief. In the end, the House leadership’s charade will not reduce the deficit; it will make the deficit even larger than it is today.

In the weeks after Hurricane Katrina devastated the land and the lives of so many on the gulf coast, many lawmakers said they had a newfound understanding of the extent and depth of poverty in America. They also said that the photographs from New Orleans, particularly those taken at the Superdome and the Convention Center, had demonstrated that government does have an important role in lifting Americans out of poverty. There seemed to be bipartisan support for authentic, meaningful approaches to addressing the plight of poor Americans. I would hope that this sentiment still reverberates. But somehow, it is not evident in the majority’s reconciliation bill that is on the House floor tonight.

This bill reduces access to health care for the poor. It contains $11.9 billion in cuts to Medicaid, including cuts of $8.8 billion that are borne by low-income beneficiaries through tougher restrictions on eligibility. It also gives the States the green light to eliminate periodic health care examinations and the treatment of conditions picked up by those exceptions for many of America’s neediest children. Maryland’s Medicaid rolls cover 430,000 children and health services for 90,000 of them will be jeopardized by this provision. Approximately $2.5 billion of the Medicaid cuts will affect elderly Americans, who will lose access to nursing home care through tougher restrictions on Medicaid.

This bill reduces access to higher education. It contains $14.3 billion in reductions to Federal student loan programs over 5 years, by increasing the interest rates and imposing a new 1 percent origination fee on all loans. This will hurt many families who rely on child support payments. It reduces the Federal match for child support administrative costs from 66 percent to 50 percent, eliminating $4.9 billion in help for the States to enforce child support orders. The majority, which claims to want to help our States, is shifting the cost of enforcement to them. It will not save money in the long run, and it will hurt struggling single parent families across America.

As a result of this bill, fewer children in foster care will be eligible for payments, and $577 million will be cut from these funds. This bill will also limit food stamp eligibility to only those households who are receiving cash assistance through TANF, and requires that legal permanent residents live here for 7 years, rather than the current 5 years, before they can receive food stamps. The result will be $844 million less in food stamp assistance to low-income families.

The legislation before us is also making it harder for some of the most disadvantaged Americans, those who receive Supplemental Security Income, SSI, to receive assistance. It imposes an extra level of review for certain disability determinations and for those who are found eligible after lengthy delays, this bill requires that retroactive payments are spread out over a longer period of time, for a total savings of $732 million.

So in the name of paying for hurricane relief, we cut funding for the programs that would help the neediest Americans, including many of the gulf coast citizens who were affected by that disaster.

At this time of economic uncertainty for our country, the so-called Deficit Reduction Act places the burden on the shoulders of the American families least able to carry it. It is clear that this legislation will make painful cuts, and when combined with the tax legislation will increase deficit problems that we face, and so I must vote against it.

DEPARTMENTS OF LABOR, HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES, AND EDUCATION, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. MARK UDALL
OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, November 17, 2005

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to the Conference Report on H.R. 3010, which provides Federal funding for health, education and worker programs.

On healthcare, the bill takes a huge step backward in efforts to maintain basic health care services for the people in this country who are uninsured or underinsured. It eliminates the Healthy Communities Access Program, which helps health centers and public hospitals provide care for the uninsured. The bill cuts rural health care program funding almost in half, and it wipes out almost all of the Title VII health profession training programs that institutions like the CU Health Sciences Center need in order to provide critical training and education for medical students and residents who aim to practice in rural, low-income, and underserved areas.

And while the bill eliminates or cuts funding for several programs, it also fails to adequately fund others. The bill virtually provides no new funding for community health centers to cover the rising costs at existing centers or to expand care for the uninsured even though the president called for a doubling of these centers. The National Institutes of Health, which works to find cures for many diseases, gets a paltry .5 percent increase in funding, and the low 6 percent increase in funding for the Ryan White AIDS programs funding is frozen, even though the number of people living with HIV/AIDS has been rising by more than 6 percent each year.

Many of the education provisions are equally as troubling. The Republican majority has imposed a decline in funding for the Department of Education while requiring local school districts to implement federal mandates under the No Child Left Behind Act. Though I am pleased to see some of the programs such as vocational programs that were cut in the President’s budget were restored in this bill, I am concerned about the low levels of funding for several education programs.

Our Nation has seen a decreased number of students in the science, technology, engineering and mathematics, STEM, disciplines, and in the United States we are seeing careers in STEM fields. The Math and Science Partnership provides grants to recruit STEM majors into teaching, and links current teachers with state agencies or universities to improve teaching skills. This program, coupled with its counterpart at the National Science Foundation, works to improve the quality of teaching in math and sciences that will excite the best teachers, we all undermine everything else we are trying to do to improve our schools. That’s a conscious decision that will undermine our economic strength, political fabric and stability as a nation. It’s exactly the type of teachers that Mr. Gerstner speaks of and this award serves as a testament to Dr. Schilling’s outstanding career in education.

I appreciate all that Dr. Schilling has done to improve the lives of students and extend my congratulations to him as a 2005 U.S. Professor of the Year.

IN MEMORY OF JAMES BRANYAN

Mr. ROSS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life and legacy of James Branyan, a pillar of the Camden, Arkansas community for nearly a half century. Mr. Branyan died on November 3, 2005 at the age of 72 in Camden.

James Branyan was born in Glendale, Arkansas on January 15, 1933. A 1950 Glendale High School graduate, Mr. Branyan played basketball for Henderson State University. Following graduation, he moved to Camden in 1964 to manage the Branyan’s Feed Store. Throughout his impressive career, Mr. Branyan went on to own the Credit Shop, the Downtown Antiques Mall, the Stard Fashion Shop, Banks Jewelry, A & H Ready to Wear, Stephens Department Store, Packard’s Office Supply, Data Service Center, Office Computer Services, KJWH Radio Station, Robertson Feed Store, Walker and Associates Advertising and Public Relations, and the Good Times Travel Store, Walker and Associates Advertising and Public Relations, and the Good Times Travel
Mr. Branyan had a deep love for the place he called home; he truly believed Camden was “paradise.” Mr. Branyan’s commitment went far beyond the business community; he was passionate about giving back through community service. Mr. Branyan served as President of the PTA, President of the Ouachita County Red Cross, Chairman of the United Fund Drive, Chairman of the Camden Water Commission, Vice-President of the Chamber of Commerce, and this is simply the tip of Mr. Branyan’s exhaustive list of involvement which kept him involved in every aspect of the Camden community.

Perhaps Mr. Branyan will be most remembered for his decade of service to the Arkansas Highway Commission from 1973–1983, a prestigious commission which he chaired from 1981–1983.

In 1962, Mr. Branyan was named Camden’s Young Man of the Year, an award bestowed upon young men for their dedication to community service, and today that award is named in his honor. In 1971, he was named Camden’s Man of the Year and in 1991 Arkansas’s Retail Merchant of the Year. Mr. Branyan was also an active member of Maul Road Church of Christ, where he served as an elder, Bible school teacher and song leader.

Mr. Branyan was a tremendous businessman and led a life dedicated to the betterment of his “paradise.” Camden has lost a true friend and economic ambassador. I am honored to have known him and counted him as a friend. Mr. Branyan will be deeply missed, but his spirit and legacy will live on for generations to come throughout the Camden community. My heartfelt condolences go out to his wife, Shirley; their daughters, Cherel Chilton and Rhonda Stuart; and their grandchildren, Lance and James.

Congressional Record

The Congressional Record (USPS 087–390). The Periodicals postage is paid at Washington, D.C. The public proceedings of each House of Congress, as reported by the Official Reporters thereof, are printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed one time. Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congress is in session. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 21, 1994) forward. It is available through the Congressional Record Index, which may be purchased for the same per issue price.
