The region-wide blood drive effort will help hundreds of lives in 57 different Ohio hospitals. Everyone who donates blood at a Red Cross site on September 27 will be able to write a personal message to Mr. Coleman. The day of celebration also marks the creation of "Casey's Fund," which will contribute all donations to help treat alcoholics and addicts as Mr. Coleman is a recovered alcoholic and his legacy will continue to aid in fighting addiction with the help of Recovery Resources.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join the city of Cleveland and myself in honoring and rejoicing over Mr. Casey Coleman's inspiring life, courage against cancer, and devotion to Cleveland. My thoughts go out to his wife and his six daughters during this difficult time.

NATIONAL ADDICTION RECOVERY MONTH

HON. RICK LARSEN

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 26, 2006

Mr. LARSEN of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an often overlooked group of Americans who have made great contributions to the health and safety of our Nation. Those who have made a career out of counseling individuals with alcohol and drug addictions deserve our recognition, respect, and gratitude, as we celebrate National Addiction Recovery Month this September. Furthermore, I would like to recognize that September 20th is National Addiction Counselor's Day.

Last year, over 19 million Americans used illicit drugs. Fifty-five million engaged in binge drinking, and over 16 million were considered heavy drinkers. These numbers are staggering. Imagine the entire populations of New York and Los Angeles as illicit drug users. Imagine if the entire population of Florida were heavy drinkers.

This is a prevalent problem.

The problem of addiction is not restricted to illicit, illegal drugs or products sold on the street. There are dangers in our homes and our medicine cabinets. Common household products, such as cough syrup, contain ingredients that can provide a high if taken in large enough doses.

According to research conducted by the Partnership for a Drug-Free America, one in 10 teenagers, or 2.4 million young people, have intentionally abused cough medication to get high. Teens take excessively large amounts of over-the-counter cough medicine or abuse the main active ingredient in most cough syrups, dextromethorphan (DXM). DXM can be purchased over the Internet in bulk and is very dangerous when abused.

Since cough medicine is a necessity in every home with a child, we must take action to ensure our kids are protected from DXM abuse. First, parents need to talk to their children about the dangers of overdosing on DXM and cough syrup. Second, Congress needs to ensure that bulk amounts of DXM are not sold over the counter, or over the Internet, to entities not registered to do so with the FDA. I urge congressional leadership to bring legislation I introduced with Rep. FRED UPTON, H.R. 5280, the DXM Distribution Act of 2006, to the floor of the House for a vote.

The professionals who treat the destructive disease of addiction are a dedicated, knowledgeable group. Today there are hundreds of thousands of clean and sober individuals living happy, productive lives because a counselor was there and made the difference. Not only do these counselors assist in recovery, but in prevention and intervention as well. Addiction professionals are an essential cog in the health services machine. Through training and experience, addiction professionals can help turn a life around and often even save a life.

I call upon all of my colleagues to join me in recognizing the invaluable contributions of addiction counselors. Congress has shown strong support for this issue in the past, yet we are far from victory. We must continue our steadfast fight against drug and alcohol addiction. The hard work of addiction professionals should be recognized, honored, and appreciated.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO KIRK V. CLAUSEN

HON. JON C. PORTER

OF NEVADA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 26, 2006

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Kirk V. Clausen for his leadership as the regional president of Nevada for Wells Fargo Bank.

Kirk has worked for Wells Fargo Bank in various capacities since he was 14 years old. In his childhood hometown of Sioux City, Iowa, Kirk worked for Norwest Bank, now Wells Fargo, delivering calendars and performing other odd jobs. During college, Kirk worked the night shift as a teller. By the time he graduated from college, Kirk was managing all three teller lines during all three shifts. Due to his adeptness, Kirk was asked to participate in the bank's management training program, and so began his bank management career. Today, Kirk is responsible for more than 11 Wells Fargo banks across Nevada.

Despite demands on his time, Kirk is also very active in the community and has served on numerous community boards, including the Economic Development Authority of Western Nevada, EDAWN.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to honor Kirk V. Clausen. His combination of professional success and community activism is exemplary. I applaud his efforts and wish him the best in his future endeavors.

J.S. HOLLIDAY

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 26, 2006

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, our Nation and especially our great State of California, lost part of our soul last week.

Thousands of historians have written about American history, but it took J.S. Holliday to analyze, understand, define and describe the monumental effect on our State and Nation of the California Gold Rush.

In authoring the two classic histories about the Gold Rush—The World Rushed In (1981) followed by Rush to Riches (1999)—Jim Holliday captured the spirit, the human face and the meaning of what he defined as the seminal event that changed the American West and indeed all of America. He described recklessness, entrepreneurship, resourcefulness, greed, speculation, ambition and thrill, and how gold abolished all the old rules. He explained dry diggers and long toms and sluice boxes and ditching and tailing, and he opened our eyes to life on the Yuba River and Sutter's Mill and Marysville. His meticulous research exposed the life of the miner and through him, the culture of the time and the impact of it all on us, as Californians and Americans.

Beyond being a great historian and a great writer, Jim Holliday was a great friend. The decibel level of his voice was not the only thing that ensured he was a presence in the room; his laughter, his warmth, his passion to learn and capacity to listen, and his sheer brainpower, made him the center of gravity in any setting. He was as irrepressible and dynamic as they come.

On behalf of the members of the California delegation—both those who knew him personally and those who knew only his work—I send condolences to all members of his family.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that obituaries from the San Francisco Chronicle of September 2 and the Carmel Pine Cone of September 8 be printed in the RECORD.

J.S. HOLLIDAY: 1924–2006

(By Carl Nolte)

J.S. Holliday, one of the most eminent historians of California and the West, died at his home in Carmel on Thursday at the age of 82. He had been suffering from pulmonary fibrosis.

Holliday was the author of "The World Rushed In," a history of the California Gold Rush that was a best-seller when it was published in 1981; it went through 13 printings, and a new edition was reissued recently by the University of Oklahoma Press.

Kevin Starr, another noted historian of the West, called "The World Rushed In" "a classic."

If it were only for the one book, Holliday's reputation as a historian would be secure, but he was also the founding director of the Oakland Museum of California and executive director emeritus of the California Historical Society, taught history at San Francisco State University, and served for a time as assistant director of the Bancroft Library at UC Berkeley.
